EARTH TREMORS ROCK EIGHT OKLAHOMA TOWNS

Frederick, Okla. Child, 5, Dies After Being Severely Burned In Weed Fire

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

To those of us who are a bit careless in our spelling there is comfort in the statement of Dr. Ernest Horn of the University of Iowa that the word, circumference, can be spelled 360,000,000 ways.

A few years ago somebody prepared a list of 10 words in more or less common use. We remember that we misspelled nine of the 10.

We are glad to learn that Noah Webster wanted to spell women, "wimmin." When somebody writes us about that sex and spells it "wimmin" we know he means exactly what he says. If there were more men who spelled it that way wimmin would be wimmin yet.

This subject of words is most interesting. Take the word, carburetor, for instance.

Most of us think of a carburetor as a thingamabob on the motor that gets out of fix occasionally and then we apply adjectives and expletives to it until the mechanic gets out and puts it in order.

But we look in the dictionary and find that the word "carburetor" is almost as much abused as the thing it names. For one thing it is seldom pronounced correctly. It should be spoken as though spelled "kar-byu-ret-er," the U sound in the second syllable being like U in unite. The main accent is on the first syllable; the secondary accent on the next to the last syllable.

Particularly interesting is the origin of this word. Few people associate "carburetor" with carbon, perhaps, yet this is the fundamental suggestion embodied in the term. Strictly a carburetor is that which carburets; to carburet is, according to Webster's New International dictionary, "to combine chemically with carbon" or "to impregnate or charge with volatile carbon compounds."

Gasoline is a volatile carbon compound. Gasoline, mixed with air, is burned in the engines that drive our automobiles. The function of the carburetor to bring air into contact with the fuel (in an automobile, gasoline) and to combine the proper quantities of each to form a highly inflammable and explosive gaseous mixture. This mixture, in the cylinders, is then ignited by an electric spark and explodes, driving the pistons so that they turn the crankshaft which in turn move the wheels and makes the car run.

With all this you can see that the carburetor isn't such a simple thingamabob after all and maybe it ought to be spelled at least 350,000,000 ways.

That will be all on the subject of words today and maybe you are as thankful as I am that it is.

But you don't have to read this column and I have to write it.

A letter from the Oklahoma City bureau of the United Press announces that Frank Hall, formerly a reporter on The Times, will join that bureau on Jan. 1. Frank has been city editor of the Lawton Constitution since leaving The Times some months ago.

This talker predicted that Frank wouldn't stay in Lawton long. He has an insatiable interest in and curiosity about things and people. He's constantly making discoveries and telling about them. That kind of a fellow ought to go pretty far in newspaper work.

When a reporter thinks he has learned about all there is to know and isn't driven by a lively interest in life about him, he's through. And for that matter the rest of us are too.

Some folks are more gifted than others in this particular, but any of us can allow ourselves to die a long while before we are buried.

There are a lot of dead folks going around who don't know it.

If man could only keep through his lifetime the curiosity, interest, desire to experiment, and spirit of adventure of childhood how far he might go before he dies, and maybe he would live longer.

Although the Texas turkey crop this year is estimated at 1,800 cars, 560 more than that of 1928, its value is $3,000,000 less because of lower prices, says the Public Service News. The Texas turkey crop was valued at $8,000,000 in 1928.

When conditions are so favorable that everybody can have success in turkey raising then's when Texas raises so many that the price goes down.

The expert turkey raiser doesn't want too favorable a season. The expert will have fair success even in a bad season and it's then that turkeys bring a good price.

Gotham Cops Capture $125,000 Whisky Cargo

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. (INS)—Uncut holiday liquor, conservatively valued at $125,000, was in the possession of police today following a raid on a Bronx garage.

Five men were arrested in connection with the finding of the liquor and will be arraigned in police court today.

FLAMES SWEPT OVER BOY BY STRONG WIND

Physicians' Efforts to Save Life of John Clarence Jared Futile

RESCUE IS ATTEMPTED

Playmates Tear Burning Clothing Off of Fire Victim

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., Dec. 27.—Burns which Thursday afternoon seared the body of 5-year-old John Clarence Jared, son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Jared, who live near here, proved fatal early today in spite of the efforts of physicians and nurses. The child died at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jared, of this city, where he was taken after hospital attendants had exhausted all efforts to save his life.

The child's clothing became ignited early Thursday afternoon when he and several other children were burning grass and tumble weeds along the road near the Jared home several miles from here. A strong wind whipped flames from the burning weeds into a large overcoat he was wearing.

Realizing he was on fire, the child tore off the large coat but the flames had reached the overalls beneath. The other children, older than John, tore away the outer garments and rushed the child to his home. His father rubbed lard over the seared body. When the father took off the thick underclothing from the upper portion of the body, the flesh came off.

The child was rushed to a hospital here and was later removed to the home of his grandparents. Funeral services were held late today with Rev. James M. Blakey, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating. Arrangements were under the direction of the Gish Undertaking company. Interment was in the local cemetery.

Three Nations in Hunt For Lost Arctic Flier

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Dec. 27. (AP)—Aviators of three countries today participated in the hunt for Carl Ben Eielson, noted arctic flier, and his mechanic, Earl Borland, lost since Nov. 9 in the icy wastes of Northeastern Siberia.

One Russian plane was on its way from Moscow to North Cape, Siberia, near where Eielson and Borland were last reported. Other planes were detailed by the Russian government for scouting the area around North Cape, and Soviet officials announced a reward of 2,000 rubles (about $1,000) would be paid for information as to the whereabouts of the missing American aviators.

Three powerful cabin planes were assembled here for six Canadian airmen assigned to participate in the hunt. They will fly to the Alaskan shores of Bering Strait and thence to North Cape to establish a base of operations. They hope to leave here by next Sunday.

Chicago Gangster Faces Federal Robbery Charge

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27. (US)—Maurice Plan, alleged Chicago bandit and gunman today was ordered to Mississippi to face a postoffice robbery indictment. The removal order was made by U. S. Commissioner Head after he had dismissed a charge of passing counterfeit money.

Plan, said to be a member of the Chicago "mob" headed by "Bugs" Moran, was brought back here from Chicago last week to face the spurious money charge. This charge was dropped because of the failure of victims to identify Plan.

Escaped Baboon Breaks Up Negroes' 'Possum Hunt

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (UP)—A party of negroes who had spent the night treeing 'possums in Oak Cliff with fair success themselves had to take to the trees early today when "Rollo," a baby baboon which escaped several months ago from the Marsalis Park zoo, broke up the hunt.

"Rollo" used to make frequent appearances, but had not been seen in some time until he treed the hunters early today. Many women and children have been frightened by the animal. The hunt for him was renewed.

Cotton Agency May Be Ready In Time to Market Next Year's Crop

Committee Now at Work Drawing Charter and By-Laws for Gigantic $30,000,000 Corporation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—The final draft of a charter and by-laws for the $30,000,000 corporation—fourth of the federal farm board's gigantic machines for cooperative marketing—was begun today at the board's headquarters.

The sub-committee of the national organization committee started work after a short conference with Carl Williams, the board member representing cotton. A week or 10 days is expected to be required before the draft is completed.

To Work Cautiously

S. L. Morley of Oklahoma City, Okla., chairman of the sub-committee, said it would move cautiously to assure that no legal technicality was overlooked in the draft that is to be presented to the board for approval and subsequently submitted to the national organization committee in Memphis, Tennessee.

"We feel sure," he said, "that our way is clear, that there will be complete harmony between the board and the cooperatives which are to become members of the corporation and that a national marketing agency for cotton will be set up and functioning in time to handle the 1930 crop."

With the exception of N. C. Williamson of New Orleans who is expected to arrive Jan. 1, all members of the sub-committee were present.

ENFORCEMENT REPORT READY

'Dry' Facts Compiled by Hoover's Commission

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—Facts marshalled by the Hoover law enforcement commission have resulted in formulation of a report on four definite aspects in connection with enforcing all laws in general and prohibition in particular.

That report has been ready for about one month, and awaiting publication pending congressional authorization of a joint committee to cooperate with the administration and the commission in drafting a legislative program. It is expected to be made public soon, perhaps by the commission, but possibly not until the house adopts the senate resolution for appointment of the joint committee.

Four Dominant Issues

The four phases which have emerged as dominant from the findings of the commission, and which its report touches, come under these classifications:

Relief of court congestion.

Centralization at the department of justice of work being done by the prohibition bureau, now under the treasury department.

Unification of the various border

Railroads Admit Loss In Shipments of Beer

LINCOLN, Neb., Dec. 27. (UP)—The tall stein grows dusty on a shelf and the beer garden is overgrown with weeds.

Onto the desk of the state railway commission here today fell an application which completes the story. The Union Pacific asked authority to cancel carload rates on beer shipments because there "no longer is any movement of such traffic."

Commissioners will grant the request.

NICE, France, Dec. 27. (UP)—The greatest gambling duel of all time continued at Frank Jay Gould's $5,000,000 casino tonight with no signs of abatement, although the players had continued almost without letup for six days and nights.

M. Zagraphos and his so-called "Greek syndicate" were tossing their millions of francs across the baccarat table to cover equal millions placed on the turn of the cards by a Franco-British syndicate.

The stakes totalled 10,000,000 francs ($93,000) last night and were expected to go far higher before tomorrow's dawn, since Gould ordered the minimum increased from 100 to 5,000 francs for each deal.

YOUNG COUNTY GRAND JURY INDICTS SHOOK

Perjury Bill Returned in Plot to Delay Trial For Robbery

INVESTIGATION ENDS

Only One Indictment Voted In Probe of Alleged Conspiracy

An indictment charging perjury was added Friday to the counts already pending against Tom Shook, former Electra police chief, sentenced to five years imprisonment as a robbery accomplice, charged in two states with murder, and under three additional felony indictments in Wichita county.

The new bill of indictment was returned Friday afternoon by the Young county grand jury, recalled in special session to investigate an alleged conspiracy to delay Shook's recent trial in Graham by the summoning of three fictitious defense witnesses. The indictment, drawn by Sam E. Spence, district attorney, alleges that Shook made false statements about the testimony of the three purported witnesses in his motion for a continuance, presented when the robbery case against him was called to trial last week. The motion set out that the three men would give evidence tending to establish an alibi.

New Trial Refused

Investigation by the district attorney's office, begun after the defense witnesses failed to appear at the trial, resulted in a statement from Constable W. W. Hopper of Harrold, admitting that he had only pretended to serve the three men named and had made false returns on the subpoenas. A. L. Shook, cousin to Tom, later declared that he had asked the officer to go through the motions of serving the papers in order to force a delay. Both men were fined and given jail sentences for contempt of court, and Mr. Spence asked for a special grand jury session to investigate the alleged conspiracy. In

Farmer Jim Visits 'City of 'Isms'; May Run for Governor

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP)—James E. Ferguson, whose political acumen gained for him twice and for his wife once the position of governor of Texas, came to what he termed the "city of 'isms" today to "sharpen his political wits."

He denied he planned to seek a senatorship; said he was not fully decided as to whether he would run for governor; and promised that in the event he decided to run, he formally would announce his candidacy by Jan. 12.

Ferguson referred to Dallas as the "city of isms" because "there are more fanatics and patriots to the square inch in Dallas than any place else in the world."

A secondary reason for coming to Dallas was to check upon the activities of two possible starters in the coming race for governor, Senator Thomas Love, and Lieut.-Gov. Barry Miller, he said. Former Governor Ferguson took exception to President Hoover's policy of advancing public works as one cure for depression. Hard work and economical living will prove the nation's salvation, he asserted.

SHREVEPORT, La., Dec. 27. (UP)—An audit of the city of Shreveport's books by H. A. Conway, state supervisor of public accounts, was directed today by Gov. Huey P. Long.

Numerous complaints which had come to him prompted the order for the audit, the governor said.

Mayor L. E. Thomas declined to comment. Bob Dixson, city finance commissioner, said he would welcome the audit. The governor's home is in Shreveport.

France Votes Confidence In Tardieu on Eve of Parley

Cabinet Gets Biggest Majority Since Clemenceau's Coup; Premier Plans Conference With MacDonald

PARIS, Dec. 27. (AP)—The Tardieu cabinet won two votes of confidence from the chamber of deputies today on its foreign policy and will participate in the coming Hague conference with the largest majority any French ministry has received since former Premier Clemenceau abandoned the national bloc in 1919.

Although he obtained a sweeping vote of confidence 342 to 17 on the first poll the premier was not satisfied because the radicals and Socialists had abstained from voting. He forced another vote based directly on confidence and won for the second time by a vote of 355 to 231.

TARDIEU TO CONFER WITH MACDONALD

PARIS, Dec. 27. (UP)—Premier Andre Tardieu informed the United Press today he had arranged to confer with Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain on the eve of the five-power naval conference opening in London Jan. 21.

He said he had a number of questions, not discussed with British representatives so far, which he wished to talk over with MacDonald. He expressed hope that the two-man conversations on these points would conciliate the French and British viewpoints sufficiently to permit a successful opening of the conference.

Policy Supported

Tardieu and Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, the leading French naval delegates, will go to London with an overwhelming mandate of confidence from the chamber of deputies. The chamber supported their foreign policy this afternoon by a vote of 342 to 17. Radical Socialists abstained from voting and the extreme left wildly applauded the vote.

Even Tardieu was surprised at the size of the vote, though he had brilliantly engineered it.

After Briand had been criticized in the chamber Tardieu outlined his programs for the London con-

Modern Penelope And Cyrano Married at 70

PARIS, Dec. 27. (UP)—A modern penelope was Miss Willie Haden and there was something of cyrano de bergerac in Robert Sprinkle.

Just 50 years ago Miss Haden promised Robert, her childhood companion, that she would become his wife. Sprinkle told her he must first "go west and make a fortune." He would return soon.

The years passed and Sprinkle did not return but like Cyrano, his romance remained fresh to him through the years. Miss Haden bent over the millinery work and remained faithful.

Today the two were on their way to Florida for a honeymoon. They were married Christmas Day at the age of 70. Robert now is a prosperous Montana rancher.

The visitors will go on to Breckenridge, he added, spreading invitations to a junior chamber dinner here in the very near future. At the dinner, guests and hosts will join in plans for a combined festival in celebration of the completed roads.

HOMER, La., Dec. 27. (UP)—Alcoholic poisoning caused the death of Glenn Grafton, 20, of Bernice, La., Baylor university student, Coroner E. W. Middleton of Claiborne parish decided late today after a thorough investigation of the case.

It was thought for a time the youth might have died from carbon monoxide poison, but an analysis of the liquor found in the automobile where Grafton was found dead early Thursday revealed that it was "impure and dangerous," according to Dr. Willis P. Butler, Caddo parish coroner, who analyzed it.

OKLAHOMA CITY FAMILIES FLEE FROM HOMES

El Reno and Union City, All Within 40 Miles, Also Feel Shock

WINDOWS SHATTERED

Early Reports Tell of No Injuries; Quake Is First In 12 Years

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 27. (AP)—Earth tremors of sufficient intensity to cause persons to run from their homes in alarm occurred at 6:45 tonight at El Reno, Union City and Oklahoma City. So far as could be ascertained immediately, no damage was done. The three cities are not more than 40 miles distant from each other. Residents of these communities recalled that tremors had been felt 12 or 15 years ago.

The shock, it was learned later, also was felt in Tulsa, where windows and dishes were rattled.

Slight Shocks Felt

Slight tremors were felt at Elk City, Geary, Bridgeport and Weatherford.

Two distinct shocks were felt at El Reno and Oklahoma City. At El Reno fire broke out simultaneously in a theater, but was extinguished immediately. A cursory investigation was reported to indicate that it was caused by friction of lighting wires, incident to the vibration. Telephone operators scurried in fear from the building in which they worked. At Yukon, nearby, buildings were shaken.

Windows Rattled

The windows of homes were rattled in the western section of Oklahoma City. At Union City the shock was pronounced.

It was recalled that two shocks were felt there somewhat more than a decade ago, one of which cracked the rear wall of the Union bank.

The Oklahoma Gas and Electric company here reported that the phenomenon was accompanied by a drop of 25 volts and sharp increase from the low point of 50 volts on its distributing lines.

Three Racketeers Shot Down As They Walk Into Officers' Trap

CHICAGO, Dec. 27. (AP)—Three reputed labor racketeers said by police to have been trying to "shake down" officials of a union, were shot and killed in a gun battle with police on the west side late today.

The three men armed with a shotgun and revolvers, walked into an ambush carefully laid by Sergeant Patrick O'Connell and his squad when M. J. Powers, president of the Tire Repair men and Vulcanizers' union, told police he had been threatened with death unless he gave the men $10,000.

When the policeman stepped from behind a door, the hoodlums fired a blast and the officers returned the fire. Two of the men were shot as they crouched to resume firing and fell dead. The third man wheeled and attempted to flee, but three shots stopped him.

One of the men was tentatively identified as "Dinky" Quan, at one time suspected of shooting Detective Joseph Sullivan during a gangster kidnaping investigation. The other was thought to be a man known only as Wilson. Finger prints were rushed to the bureau of identification.

Officers describing the gun fight said that the man identified as Quan, carrying a cane and walking with a limp, entered the room and said:

"We want $10,000 or we're going to take over this union."

Before Powers had time to answer, Daugherty opened the door slightly to see the men. At the slight noise, one of the men shouted: "coppers." They immediately opened fire. One of the racketeers used a sawed-off shotgun and the other two had automatic pistols.

NAVAL PARLEY HOPE WEAKENS

Pessimism Prevails on Eve Of Conference

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE
(Copy't, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Three weeks before the opening of the five-power conference on limitation of armaments in St. James palace, the speculative tone not only of the London press but also the occasional well-known man in the street, is distinctly pessimistic.

This pessimism as to the probable outcome of the conference is all the more marked by contrast with the exultant expressions of confidence which reigned during MacDonald's visit with President Hoover and a short while after his return to Britain.

Both Were Optimistic

Perhaps it is safe to say that American confidence in the outcome of conversations held on that classic log over the Rapidan river was equally matched in John Bull's island. The somewhat slow-fire imagination of the Briton actually came to a glow over the spectacle of two trusted statesmen ironing out in personal contact the wrinkles of international relations.

But during the last few weeks it has become increasingly apparent to shrewd observers here in England that the rainbow tinted optimism inspired by apparent—and perhaps very real—Anglo-American understanding in the matter of naval disarmament had been built without reckoning upon a whole lot of factors which are bound to raise their heads in the historical precincts of St. James.

France Is Problem

Chief of these disturbing factors is now, and surely will continue to be during the progress of the conference, La Belle France.

Though the London press has consistently soft-pedalled France's impish delight in fingering her nose at the whole notion of five grown-ups trying to figure on a basis of no more naval wars, it is easy to read between the lines a very marked fear that "the French brother" is going to pack a horseshoe in each glove when he weighs in at the St. James ringside.

Whether the official statement of the "rapporteur" to the naval committee of the French chamber of deputies which was made a short time ago was deliberately drawn to give the French delegates to the conference a mark to shoot at, or was exclusively for home consumption, must remain an open question.

But the significant fact to be drawn from that report is that France approaches the London meeting on Jan. 21 in the absolute conviction that every sovereign state has the God-given right to determine its own naval needs without reference to the needs of any other state.

May Ask Parity

Unless the temper of the French government makes a volte face in the next three weeks, French delegates to the St. James tea party will insist upon parity between French and Italian naval forces in the Mediterranean, besides an adequate submarine and cruiser fleet to keep open sealanes from her Atlantic coast strip to overseas colonies, and to defend the same in time of war.

Out of all the haze of rumor surrounding the progress of Franco-Italian pre-conference negotiations little that can be counted reliable appears except, perhaps, the fact vouched for by an official source in Paris that France will agree to theoretical "parity" with Italy at the conference, provided France is permitted to dictate the gross tonnage at which such parity will be reached.

In other words, France will be quite content to set an impossible tonnage mark as the gauge of parity and let Italy build up to it—if she can.

Submarine Issue

Great Britain, who came within a split hair of being brought to her knees through starvation by operations of German submarines during the war, ardently wishes that the forthcoming conference should outlaw the submarine as a naval weapon. The United States is reported as being willing to trail along with Cousin John on this point but France will utterly refuse to countenance the abolition of the submarine; and Japan is credited with the same intention.

Britain argues that the submarine is an offensive weapon and is "barbarous." France maintains with heat that the sub-sea prowler is a defensive weapon and "the poor man's warship." A few Italian submarines in the Mediterranean—so argue the French naval sharps—could threaten if they did not absolutely prevent the moving of France's African troops from her great reservoir of man-power in that continent in time of war.

Italy Hates 'Em

Italy, in her turn, points out that the possession of even two submarines by Jugoslavia across the Adriatic from her shores is a menace which must be countered by Italian submarines. Because, you see, Jugoslavia is "strongly suspect" of being a secret ally of France; and in the event of the Franco-Italian war which jingoes of both nations are constantly visioning, Jugoslavian submarines would make the Adriatic a poor place for a picnic party.

JAP DELEGATES ARRIVE AT LONDON

LONDON, Dec. 27. (INS)—The Japanese delegation to the five-power naval disarmament conference beginning Jan. 21, arrived in London today.

The delegates were welcomed by Sir Ronald Lindsay, recently appointed British ambassador to the United States, acting on behalf of Prime Minister J. Ramsey MacDonald, who is at his home in Lossiemouth, Scotland.

Reijiro Wakatsuki, chief of the Japanese delegation, expressed his gratitude over the warmth of the reception he and his countrymen received.

"We shall do everything in our power to make the conference a lasting success, conducive to the permanent peace of the world," he said.

Mob Action Threatened as Boy Attacks Woman in Reformatory

BOONVILLE, Mo., Dec. 27. (UP)—Mob action threatened momentarily here today when news came from the state reformatory of disorders in which four boys escaped and a fifth beat a woman teacher into unconsciousness with an iron pipe.

Reformatory officials removed Richardson Congdon, 16, to secret confinement elsewhere when they learned townspeople talked of lynching the boy who critically injured Miss Ora D. Hayes, teacher, in an effort to obtain keys with which to escape.

Shortly thereafter four boys overpowered Del Griggs, trusty night-watchman, tied him to a bunk and escaped. They stole a motor car near the reformatory walls and fled toward Kansas City. The quartet was overtaken at Sweet Springs, Mo., and returned to the reformatory where they will face prison sentences as a result of the escape and theft of the car.

They are Wayne Williford, Kansas City; Floyd Soldem, Norman Fitzwater and Francis Hanlon, St. Louis. Each of them was 17 years old.

Congdon, sentenced from Kansas City for car theft, returned to Miss Hayes' classroom after she dismissed her pupils and attacked her with a long pipe. He was subdued when the teacher's screams brought other inmates to her assistance. Miss Hayes was taken to St. Joseph hospital where her condition was reported critical.

The disorders in the reformatory here follow half a dozen major prison breaks in penal institutions throughout the country during the past few months.

Alabamans Protest Ouster of Candidates Who Are Bolters

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 27. (AP)—The Birmingham News today published what purported to be an official proclamation from high authorities of the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama to klan members which denounced recent action of the state Democratic executive committee in refusing to permit persons who bolted the party a year ago to become candidates in the forthcoming primary and which asserted "we intend to lick our enemies until they can't stand up."

PANTAGES IS DENIED BAIL

Plea of Ill Health Fails in Its Intention

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27. (UP)—Alexander Pantages late today lost his attempt to gain liberty on bail pending decision on an appeal from his conviction of statutory assault against 17-year-old Eunice Pringle.

After denying admission to bail, Superior Judge Charles W. Fricke ordered him sent to the General hospital for treatment, but made a modification to permit county jail physician Benjamin Blank to administer treatments to him in the county jail if arrangements can be made.

Judge Fricke authorized Pantages' personal physician, Dr. C. N. Fishbaugh, to attend him whenever he receives treatments. The location will depend upon Dr. Blank's report on county jail facilities.

Before making his decision, Judge Fricke heard a dozen doctors called to support or attack Pantages' plea that if his confinement in the county jail was continued his leaky heart might cause death.

Testimony by the doctors for each side was contradictory. Judge Fricke said he agreed with many of the physicians that "he has a 'prison psychosis'."

Pantages, a multi-millionaire theater man, was convicted of attacking Miss Pringle when she applied to him for work as a dancer. He was sentenced to from one to 50 years in prison.

$50,000,000 Oil Deal Is Rumored

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP)—The Dallas Times-Herald said today it had learned the United Gas company of Houston would exercise its option upon the holdings of the Magnolia Gas company in the "very near future" in a transaction involving approximately $50,000,000.

No confirmation could be obtained. Fred M. Legge Jr., president of the Magnolia company, referred queries to O. R. Seagraves of Houston, president of the United Gas company; and Seagraves was not at Houston.

At Seagraves' Houston office, it was said that the company had "taken no action on its option." The company deposited $1,500,000 for the option which expires sometime in January.

The Magnolia Gas company, owned largely by the Magnolia Petroleum company, has holdings in Louisiana and East Texas, and is one of the larger gas concerns in the commercial field.

President-Elect Rubio Honored in Washington

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—President and Mrs. Hoover entertained at a state dinner in the White House tonight for Pascual Oritz Rubio, president-elect of Mexico, and Senora De Ortiz Rubio. The guests included seven cabinet members.

The event was the high point of honors paid the future chief executive of his country since his arrival yesterday. It closed a day in which he placed Roman wreaths of orchids on the tombs of George Washington and the Unknown Soldier, lunched as the guest of Secretary and Mrs. Stimson, and exchanged calls with Vice President Charles Curtis.

Bowie Bible Class Plays Santa to Needy Families

Special to The Record News

BOWIE, Texas, Dec. 27.—Members of the Business Men's Bible class of the First Baptist church here brought joy to the hearts of many by their visit on Christmas Eve.

It has been the custom for a number of years for the class to get a list of the families who are not fortunate enough to provide themselves with a Christmas dinner, and on Christmas Eve drive a loaded truck over town and remember each family. This year 41 families were visited and to each was given a turkey and a package of cranberries, and in addition there was distributed 160 cases of canned goods, 100 packages of candy, 300 oranges, 400 bananas, 5 boxes of apples, and 24 sweaters.

SHOPPING GOOD

Christmas Buying Holds Up to Par, Hoover Is Told

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—The department of commerce has reported to President Hoover that Christmas shopping this year was fully up to that of last year, and he considers the condition very encouraging.

Special interest in the subject was taken by the administration, in view of its campaign in the interest of business stabilization, since there had been fears that the effect of the stock market crash last November would be seriously damaging to the retail trade.

ENFORCEMENT REPORT READY

'Dry' Facts Compiled by Hoover's Commission

controls now consisting of customs, coast guard, labor, prohibition and narcotics divisions; and codification and reenforcement of the multifold laws on prohibition.

For days agitation has been going on among a group of southern dry senators for the making of a report by the commission, and the fact that one will be forthcoming was expected tonight to appease their wishes. The demands for a report by Senators Harris of Georgia and Glass of Virginia preceded the current turmoil in Washington over prohibition enforcement.

Asked to Resign

Out of this turbulence there materialized today a demand for the resignation of the secretary of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, who is vacationing in Caribbean waters. Again seconding Senator Borah of Idaho in condemning lax Volstead enforcement, Senator Norris of Nebraska told questioners he would begin a reorganization of the personnel "with Andrew W. Mellon."

Although both are Republican drys, the Idahoan and the Nebraskan conflicted in the presidential campaign last year—with Borah backing Hoover and Norris supporting Smith. When the Idaho senator declared three days ago that the dry law would never be enforced "with the present personnel from top to bottom," his fellow Republican from the Northwest maintained that men of political influence were getting away with millions through the liquor traffic while less well-connected persons were going to jail. Today he emphasized that view.

Enforcement Criticized

"I don't say the law is not enforced everywhere but I do say it is not generally enforced," he averred. "I think there is evidence that the politicians are meddling too much. I don't think Andrew Mellon, who is the chief enforcement officer, is in sympathy with the law. I don't demand prohibition cranks. In fact, I don't want any cranks in the service but I want an administration of that law which is free from political influence."

This expression by Norris, who is chairman of the judiciary committee, coincided with reports reaching the capitol concerning the findings of the law enforcement commission. While no official word was forthcoming, since the majority of the commission is out of the city, the rumors were that the Hoover agency had tentatively determined that politics were playing a large part in connection with the dry law and that this tended to undermine effective enforcement measures.

Cotton Officials Work on Charter

In addition to Morley they were Harry Williams of Dallas, Texas; Allen Northington of Montgomery, Ala.; U. B. Blalock, of Raleigh, N. C., and A. H. Stone, of Greenwood, Miss.

Sub-Committee Present

Although the sub-committee did not expect to meet with the board today unless called, the presence of Chairman Legge in the general conference room kept it ready with a preliminary statement of the views it expected to incorporate in the organization plan.

Frequent meetings will be held as the work proceeds, each group having expressed a desire to maintain harmony of policy at each step. Whatever draft the board and the sub-committee agrees on is to be sent to the national organization committee representing cotton cooperatives in 14 states before steps are taken to incorporate.

The cotton corporation is to follow the general principles of the national marketing agencies set up for grain, wool and mohair and livestock, Morley said.

It is to provide central marketing facilities and sales services, to buy cotton and cotton by products, to develop a centralized finance system and to lend money to its stockholding members. Each operation entails numerous ramifications among which are the acquisition of physical facilities, the handling of cottonseed for planting purposes and the schooling of farmers to adjust production to prospective demand.

Divisions Planned

For purposes of representation in management and to indicate divisions between territory of any regional offices of the corporation, it has been proposed that the cotton belt be separated into four geographical divisions, North Carolina, South Carolinia, Georgia, and Alabama, would make up the southeast divisions; Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee the Mississippi valley division; Texas and Oklahoma the southwest, and New Mexico, Arizona and California, the far south west division.

Grand Jury Indicts Shook

the trial that followed the attempt at delay, Tom Shook was found guilty as an accomplice in the robbery of the Jefferson hotel at Electra in June, 1928, and sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Immediately after the reconvening of the grand jury in Graham Friday morning, Judge Allan D. Montgomery overruled a motion for a new trial for Shook, argued on questions of the admissibility of evidence. The prisoner, in the custody of Sheriff W. H. Bralley and Charlie Gant, deputy, was sentenced at once and returned to the Wichita county jail.

Murder Trial Scheduled

Shook is also charged with the fatal stabbing of Oscar Daugherty in August, 1928, with driving while drunk, and with two other robbery counts. A second murder charge is pending against him in Tennessee.

Mr. Spence has announced that he will next call the defendant to trial on the Wichita county murder count. No date has been set, but the district attorney expects the case to come up about the middle of January. The perjury count, originating in Young county, cannot be tried until the March term of court, he attorney said.

The report of the special grand jury Friday afternoon also included a bill charging Bill Pittman with the possession of whisky, Mr. Spence announced.

Federal Agents Quiz Prisoner in Jail Here

Two special agents from the treasury department at Washington, investigating an alleged liquor violation in Pottawatomie county, Okla., spent Friday morning in Wichita Falls in conference with Marion Borders, held here under a fugitive warrant from Oklahoma City.

Borders, a prisoner in the Wichita county jail, made a statement to the government agents in the office of Sheriff W. G. Bralley, in whose custody he is being held. The prisoner asked to be allowed to stay in the jail here rather than be transferred to Oklahoma where the widespread investigation is centered Mr. Bralley was told.

The 1928 death rate for Utah, according to the U. S. department of commerce, was 962.1 per 100,000 population as compared with 907.5 in 1927.

France Votes To Back Tardieu

ference and for the second Hague conference on reparations opening Jan. 3. He demanded a vote of confidence so that the government could go to The Hague with assured support.

"If you think we have done wisely, say so today," he urged, "in order that France's prestige may not be diminished or divided at The Hague."

Plans for Parley

Regarding the government's preparations for The Hague, he said: "Our chief aim is to maintain intact the unconbitional German reparations annuities given France at the first Hague conference."

Briand earlier had declared he was not following the policy of conqueror or conquered with respect to Germany and other nations.

Violent scenes occurred between Briand and Deputy Charles Reibel when the latter refused to stop reading a letter which the late Marshal Ferdinand Foch sent to former Premier Raymond Poincare in 1926, pointing to dangers in the hasty evacuation of the Rhineland.

Briand demanded to know where Reibel got the letter, the contents of which he had never seen.

Protests Letter

"Foch was the chief of the interallied military control committee at Versailles and should have sent his letter to the committee at Varsailles and should have sent his letter to the interallied commission," Briand said. "Moreover, he should have informed the foreign minister. In revealing a communication of this nature, which may precipitate a new grave situation on the eve of The Hague conference, Reibel forces me to respond to certain questions, and the responsibility rests on his shoulders."

Premier Tardieu, referring to the incident, said Foch was not always of the same mind, and that the question of the Rhineland was more psychological than military.

Report of Fatal Crash Is Denied

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 27. (US)—Denial of earlier reports that Col. Pablo Sidar, crack army pilot, and Gen. Juan Azcarate, head of the department of aviation in the ministry of communications, were killed today in an airplane crash at Ixtlamahuaca, Guanjuato, was made tonight by the department of aviation here.

It was declared that the two army officers arrived at Mazatlan, a seaport on the Pacific coast, this afternoon.

The only explanation offered for the earlier erroneous report was that two other aviators must have fallen at Ixtlamahuaca and been mistaken for Sidair and Azcarate. Communication with the tiny hamlet is difficult as it is far removed from a telegraph station. Every effort is being made to clear up the mystery.

Japan May Break Relations With China

TOKIO, Dec. 27. (UP)—Japan was understood today to be planning virtual severance of diplomatic relations with China in event the Nanking government persists in refusing to accept Yukichi Obata as Japanese minister.

Japan's first move, it was said, will be to request the recall of the Chinese minister to Japan and thereafter refuse a successor. Japanese consuls will continue to carry on the routine work in connection with any problems that might arise.

It was officially announced that the Japanese had asked China to reconsider her decision, since the Chinese minister at Tokio, it was claimed, already had informed foreign minister Shidehara that Obata would be acceptable. Obata was appointed Dec. 10.

The reports from some of the 26 states are only partial and the president is hopeful of receiving a more complete outline of the building programs by the first of the year.

Prizes Offered For Best - Living Christmas Trees

At the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's clubs which will be held in Denver, June 5-14, 1930, colored lantern slides and enlarged colored photographs will be shown of prize winning pictures of growing Christmas trees for which prizes have been offered by Mrs. Warder Irwin Higgins, national chairman of the committee on gardens.

These prizes are offered for the purpose of creating more interest in the planting of evergreen trees and to procure pictures of more living Christmas trees. Lantern slides and enlarged photographs will be made to add to sets of slides and photographs of forest scenes and evergreens in parks and gardens which will illustrate a lecture on "Living Christmas Trees and Their Inspiring Purposes," that will be available for state federation meetings of women's clubs after Feb. 15, 1930.

The prizes will be $5 each for six photographs of the most beautiful and symmetrical living Christmas trees listed under the following classes:

Class one: large community Christmas tree, illuminated if possible.

Class two: community Christmas tree, planted by a woman's club, since June, 1924.

Class three: illuminated evergreen in a churchyard.

Class four: Christmas tree in a school yard or other public grounds planted by Boy or Girl Scout troop or Camp Fire girls' group.

Class five: Christmas trees growing in a home garden.

Class six: potted evergreens decorated to set forth the story of the Nativity.

Conditions for prize winning are that the pictures must be of growing trees, illuminated if possible; that a full description of their locations and dimensions shall accompany the photographs, and the date of planting be given, and by whom planted. The photographs will not be returned to the owners unless the request is made with postage enclosed as these pictures will used for exhibits.

The exhibit of prize winning photographs at Denver next June will include the Riverside Park, New York "Tree of Life;" the municipal Christmas tree at Salem, Oregon; the community Christmas tree planted by Mother's club at Barron, Wis.; the home Christmas tree of Mrs. A. W. Miles at Livingston, Mont., and the community Christmas tree planted by the Women's club of South Deerfield, Mass.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We paused at the teller's window just back of a sweet faced old lady who was endorsing and cashing checks. "Did your children spend Christmas with you?" the teller asked. Her face lighted up. "All but four of them," she said with a smile.

◇ ◇ ◇

All but four of them! The average family of today does not number that many.

◇ ◇ ◇

We know several large families and it is a peculiar fact that as an average, they are united ones. We have a particular one in mind, every member of which pulls together. And we know families where one child is a pest to everyone outside the immediate family, and families of two children where the two scrap like cats and dogs.

◇ ◇ ◇

We read that there is on Fifteenth street, New York, a "Variety Dog and Cat Beauty parlor."

◇ ◇ ◇

The children may look out for themselves, but the owners of the cats and dogs see to it that the dogs are shampooed, permanently waved and probably have their eyebrows plucked; while the cats are dry cleaned by a secret formula. If a dog should be afflicted with rheumatism, he may have a violet ray treatment for $10.

◇ ◇ ◇

We wonder how the lady whose family, "all but four," spent Christmas with her, would regard spending of money in such a manner.

◇ ◇ ◇

Her faded sweet pea cheeks would, we suspect, flush red and her blue eyes snap.

◇ ◇ ◇

She was a native Texan. She was born where, as we heard a man in the office remark, "a man's a man and the women are glad of it."

◇ ◇ ◇

She went through the days when measles and whooping cough, chicken pox, scarlet fever and "grippe" had to be suffered patiently. Germs wandered round loose in her youth; they weren't in the habit of being isolated.

◇ ◇ ◇

And she missed surgery. Which is so often as much a blessing as a curse. Which reminds us of a story told about the famous little surgeon, Professor Jean Antonin Gosset of Paris.

◇ ◇ ◇

He has two maxims which he tries to impress on all his students: First; "Do unto others in a surgical sense what you would have others do unto you." Second: "If you are hesitant as to your duty, do to your patient what you would do to your father."

Four Hurt When Well In Oklahoma Is Opened

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 27. (UP)—When oil field workers opened the No. 1 Button producer of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company here today, a wild rush of oil and gas tore away equipment, roaring high into the air and injuring four workmen.

Elmer Smith and Duke Anderson were taken to hospitals and the two others injured were given emergency treatment.

The well was closed on a proration order and officials believed the tremendous rock pressure which had accumulated was too much for the master gate to withstand. The well produces 1,800 barrels daily.

Mother Without Defense Against Arrogant Youth

How Can Mothers Compel the Respect of Their Arrogant Daughters?—Will the Caveman Fiance Make an Equally Thrilling Husband?

Dear Miss Dix—Can you tell us how to keep our children jollied and in love with their parents? It seems to me that the older and the younger generation are hostile by nature. As some one has said, what we need is not birth control, but to control children after they are born.

Here is a concrete question. I have an 18-year-old girl who says I have no right to dictate to her, that she is old enough to do what she likes, and who questions and challenges me as to why I do this and don't do that, and who insults me whenever she feels like it and is impudent to a colossal degree. Shall I allow her to "sass" me with impunity? I am an old-fashioned mother who has always rejoiced in making a slave of myself for her and I have tried to command her respect and love. I have neither, but rudeness and impudence instead. How shall I act?

—MRS. X.

Answer: If I had some recipe for turning the modern, impertinent, ungrateful, unappreciative girl into a loving, considerate daughter, I could work a miracle that would stanch millions of mothers' tears and lighten the burden that breaks millions of mothers' hearts.

For, alas, Mrs. X, you do not suffer alone. There are untold numbers of other women who face the same problem that you do, and who do not know what to do with headstrong young girls who are neither to bind nor to hold, and who do not show to their mothers the respect or the consideration that they would show to a servant. And nobody knows how to deal with these egotistic, arrogant young upstarts.

They are too old to be given the spanking they so richly deserve. You cannot reason with them because their conceit is so colossal that they think they know it all, and they consider their parents doddering imbeciles whose views are too antiquated and senile to even be worth listening to.

You cannot appeal to their hearts because they have none. They are as hard as rocks, and the only human being for whom they have the slightest affection is themselves. You cannot tell them that unless they show you proper respect and speak civilly to you, you will no longer feed and clothe and house them, because you dare not throw a young girl homeless out on the streets.

So your love and tenderness and the poor, silly, young creature's helplessness render you powerless to defend yourself against her. Because you know, if she doesn't, what would happen to her if she was left without the protection of the home she so despises, without the help of the parents she holds in such contempt.

You know if she had to support herself that she would starve. You know that for all she considers herself so worldly wise she is as ignorant of life as a child, and so you have to give her the care that she so furiously resents.

It is certainly hard for a mother to have to endure insults from the child she brought into the world in agony and to whom she has sacrificed every hour of her life. Yet countless mothers have to endure this from their "superior daughters." I know a mother who cannot ask her daughter even the most casual question about where she is going or when she expects to return, without being told to shut her mouth, it is none of her business.

And only the other day I saw a tired, worn mother, who had sewed half the night trying to make her daughter a pretty ball dress, have the work snatched out of her hands, and receive a torrent of abuse for her clumsiness because it lacked the style of a French model. And I know other mothers who wash and press and mend to keep their daughters' clothes in order who never so much as get a "thank you."

It seems to me it is time for these down-trodden mothers to rebel, and simply refuse to do another hand's turn of work for their girls until the girls show some appreciation. If, when the girls got home, there was no dinner cooked, if their rooms were unmade and their clothes unlaundered and unmended, they might be brought to appreciate that mother is at least a handy thing to have around the house.

But, dear Mrs. X, in rearing children an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. The time to teach a girl to treat her mother with respect and deference and to show appreciation of her is in the cradle. After she is grown up it is too late. You can't let a girl "sass" you for 18 years and then stop her.

But if you have never let her talk back to you she won't begin at that date. If you have forced her to respect you, the habit of doing so will prevail. If you have taught her to regard you as an oracle, she will think mother knows best as long as she lives.

And if you teach children to appreciate the sacrifices their parents make for them and to make the outward gesture of gratitude for everything their parents do for them, they will never make doormats of their fathers and mothers. "Train up a child in the way he should go and when he is old he will not depart from it," said the wisest of all men.

Parents have only themselves to blame when their children are ungrateful and undutiful and impudent to them, for children treat their parents as their parents have taught them to treat them.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am engaged to a man whom I adore. His very presence thrills me. The date for the wedding is set, but I am beginning to wonder about this:

My fiance is of a very domineering disposition, and when I fail to obey him he strikes me. Not long ago he spanked me because I displeased him. Then he brought me some flowers and I instantly kissed him and forgave him. Now it thrills me to be afraid of him, but will I always feel the same? Will I always get a kick out of his commands when he says: "Do that, and don't forget I will permit nothing else."

—ELSIE M.

Answer: Well, Elsie, not being a worm of the dust myself, I feel that I cannot judge what would bring happiness to a poor, weak, spineless female who crawls at the feel of a bully and enjoys being trodden upon.

But if you have one spark of independence in your soul, I am here to tell you that you will get mighty sick and tired of being tyrannized over, and of being treated like a brainless imbecile without enough intelligence to know what to do, or how to do it. The only "kick" you will get out of being bossed will be the one you will put up about having to ask your husband whether you can go downtown or buy a new hat or have your mother come to see you.

And what is the matter with this man who is so self-complaisant and self-conceited and thinks himself so superior to you, and who is going to make you do his way all the time? Are you to have no rights in marriage? Is your happiness of no concern? Better draw out while there is still time. That kind of a man doesn't want a wife, he wants a slave.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—My husband reads all the time he is at home and carries on a conversation with me at the same time. He has done this until he can answer any question intelligently without looking up from the page. He is a good man, but a little dull for a companion and I would like all of his attention when I talk to him. He seems to think that he is remarkable because he can do two things at the same time.

—MRS. S.

Answer: He certainly is remarkable, but I don't know that he is so different from most men, for the average husband never gives more than one lobe of his brain to what his wife is saying anyhow. That is the reason they can stand having wife tell them over again every night about the price of butchers' meat and the cute thing that little Johnnie said, and that the baby is about to cut a tooth and what the gas man said.

I think for a man to be able to read while carrying on an intelligent conversation with his wife makes him an ideal fireside companion because he can do what he wants to do and entertain her at the same time. Anyway you wives who complain about your husbands spending the evenings in reading are hunting for trouble. You don't know how blest you are. Suppose he was out making love to some blonde instead of reading about some golden-haired heroine in a novel? Be thankful he takes his romance and adventure vicariously in books.

Frank Byrd and his Bluebird orchestra furnished music for a dance that was reported to be unusually enjoyable. Over 200 guests had dinner and others came in later for the dance.

Among those who entertained and were entertained were Mrs. Peyton Gwynn with a party of 63; H. M. Muse with a party of four; Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Couper with a party of six; Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Pistal Shot Kills Banker

Stock Collapse Believed Cause of Suicide

BALTIMORE, Dec. 27. (UP)—Sewell S. Watts, 60, a partner in the investment banking firm of Baker, Watts and company, was found shot to death today in his garage.

Clutched in his right hand was a new revolver with one cartridge exploded. Watts had been killed by a bullet fired into his right temple at close range.

Although no motive has as yet been assigned for the shooting, it is said Watts lost heavily in the stock market collapse last November, both through declines in the value of his own stocks and in attempts to protect the investments of clients of his firm.

Police, who were called to the garage after Watts' body was found, summoned Coroner Link, who gave a verdict of suicide.

First Christian Loyal Daughters Observe Season

A large Christmas tree was a pretty feature in the basement of the First Christian church Thursday afternoon when members of the Loyal Daughters class of that church observed their regular Christmas party. The rooms were decorated in the holiday motif.

An interesting part of the program was the presentation by Mrs. C. F. Chewning, president of the class, to Mrs. J. Lem Keevil, teacher, of a gift to show the appreciation of work done by Mrs. Keevil during the past year.

Gifts from the tree were interchanged between the members and after a reading by Miss Helen Steele, a contest was held, in which Dr. Maude Lindsey won the prize.

Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the program.

Bandits Kill Cop in Fight

Trio Shoots Officer and Makes Escape

NEWCASTLE, Pa., Dec. 27. (AP)—One state highway patrolman was shot and killed and another was wounded near here today in a fight with two men and a woman believed to have robbed a store at Butler.

The bandits were riding in an automobile. After shooting and killing Patrolman Brady Paul and wounding Patrolman Ernest Moore, the trio fled. They later held up a motorist, took his car and continued in flight toward Newcastle.

The highway had patrolmen along the Newcastle-Butler road to watch for the Butler bandits.

Kip Rhinelander Granted Divorce

LAS VAGES, Nev., Dec. 27. (UP)—Kip Rhinelander, scion of a wealthy New York family, late today was granted a divorce decree by default from Alice Jones Rhinelander.

Rhinelander testified briefly to charges against his wife, the daughter of a New Rochelle, New York, negro taxi driver.

Two witnesses told of his having fulfilled the three-month residence rule and then Judge William E. Orr granted the decree.

The New Yorker said he married Mary Alice Rhinelander in New Rochelle in October, 1924.

He contended that the octaroon took advantage of his youth and inexperience. By the use of artifice and wiles, he said, she induced him to forsake his family and his friends.

This action of Mrs. Rhinelander, he continued, ultimately caused an estrangement between Rhinelander and his family.

The estrangement led Rhinelander to suffer great humiliation, distress of mind and finally led to a nervous condition which became so acute that he left her, he testified.

Rhinelander said he had provided for his wife liberally since their separation.

Spanish Argosies Surpassed by Italy's Famous Art Treasure Ship

By ANDRUE BERDING
Associated Press Staff Writer

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 27.—The Spanish argosies of old, their holds filled with gold from the Spanish main, are far surpassed by the treasure ship of art that Italy recently sent from Genoa to England.

The cargo of the 7,000-ton steamer Leonardo Da Vinci consisted of 350 masterpieces of Italian art, with a nominal value of $70,000,000. Their market value, if they were permitted to be sold, would run into hundreds of millions of dollars.

Braves Storm

Just as the Spanish argosies passed through many perils before reaching port, so the Leonardo da Vinci passed through the peril of a terrific Atlantic storm on the way to England early in December.

The treasure of the ship was gathered from all the major museums and galleries in Italy and was destined for an exhibition of Italian art in Burlington house, London, opening Jan. 1. It will provide the backbone for the third great foreign exhibition in London, the first being of Flemish masterpieces and the second of Dutch.

Premier Mussolini approved the temporary transfer of these priceless paintings to London, and enthusiastically assisted in sending them off. They were gathered in Milan before being sent on to Genoa for shipment and the the galleries that contributed sent selections from their best.

The Albertini collection lent Titian's "Virgin and the Child," Correggio's "Marriage of Saint Catherine," and Giorgione's "The Tempest."

Milan contributed Tintoretto's "Venetian Judge," Botticelli's "Virgin and Child," Correggio's "Holy Family," and a portrait by Antonello da Messina.

Rome Sends Offerings

Rome offered Bellinis "Portrait of a Girl," Veronese's "The Cavalier," "Botticelli's "The Derelict," and Titian's "The Baptism of Christ" and "Salome."

Verona sent Pisanello's "Virgin" and Bellini's "St. Jerome."

Venice's offering included Bellini's "Virgin and Child" and Carpaccio's "The Two Ladies of the Court."

Brescia's municipal museum shipped Raphael's "The Angel" and "Christ Giving a Blessing."

A group of gallery and museum attendants and specialists accompanied the shipment.

NEW TRAFFIC RULES ISSUED

Police Chief Urges Autoists To Observe Signals

The new traffic signal area in downtown Wichita Falls had been practically completed Friday when new lights at numerous intersections were in operation. Only a few minor details remain before the system will be beyond the construction stage. Small additions to the control apparatus at central fire station will be completed at once, it was said.

The new system of control allows clearing of traffic up Ninth street out of the business district by switching on the amber lights on that street alone and allowing traffic in other portions of the downtown section to continue unhampered. A second switch turns on the amber lights over the entire area, to clear traffic for fires or emergencies in all other directions from central station.

Chief of Police Frank Burns cautioned motorists to notice the new lights at intersections where there has been no traffic control in the past. Accidents due to carelessness and force of habit in crossing one of the new lights might prove serious, the chief said, and all drivers have been asked to watch for the lights before driving on any of the downtown streets. The department will be unable to add more men to the traffic force, he said, and those already on duty can not watch all the corners. Motorists must remember that many intersections now have signals where there were none before.

The chief also called the attention of drivers to several changes in the "left turn" and "no left turn" corners. Each signal bears a metal sign at the bottom, the sign indicating whether a left turn is allowed. A blue background with white letters indicate a left turn allowed and a red background with white letters indictes no left turn allowed, the chief pointed out. If drivers will accustom themselves to glancing at the color of the sign, they will form the habit of knowing at which intersections they may turn left. The left turns have largely been confined to the outlying signals in the traffic area and several corners where left turns were allowed before now prohibit left turns, the chief concluded.

Talk of lynching Congdon began early today after it became known that he had assaulted Miss Ora D. Hayes, state reformatory teacher, late yesterday. Miss Hayes is in a critical condition at St. Joseph's hospital.

Herbert Kaufman's

THE STRIKE AT POINT TOY

Daily Editorial

IF WE CONTINUE to forget we owe other debts than those at the butcher's and baker's and candlestick maker's, one of these fine mornings, Byrd or Amundsen, taking a Sabbatical week-end at the north pole, will be sending an SOS for an expedition to rescue Santa Claus from doubt.

The ice, enveloping the heart of society, all finally drifts into the arctic.

Experts in such matters find that it's forming an impassable barrier around Sentiment Island, Point Toy and Reindeer Inlet.

And there is no way to countercheck this phenomenon except by restoring channels for the warm currents of generosity that, for two thousand years, have kept open a thoroughfare from gift headquarters to Cripple Creek, Ramshackle Town and Penniless Lane.

In which case the sooner we start on the job the better for all widows, orphans and derelicts concerned.

Can you think of a more wonderful work than the restoration of fast vanishing Christmas kindness, and the protection of Santa Claus from 20th century incredulity?

The friend who never failed your own youth, now appeals to all prosperous folk—to all the happy and protected households in the land—for assistance in carrying on his ancient trade, of keeping the world kinder-minded.

THE EARTH is no bigger than it used to be, but the constant increase of population, with its corresponding spread of suffering and unemployment, renders it impossible to satisfy growing demands on his limited facilities.

Also, the nixy, gnome and elf craftsmen in the shops, Up Yonder, have struck for shorter hours, and are no longer content to accept beds of eiderdown, beakers of honeydew and suits of baby-seal-skins in lieu of wages!

Reindeer fodder has doubled in price. And the lumber barons have been cutting down the forests from which he once got trees for nothing—not to mention free timber to whittle into sleds, and rocking chairs and pop-guns and jumping-jacks, and other play-things still dear to the dreams of girls and boys.

You surely recall, when Mother and you used to wonder how he ever managed to turn out such godles of stuff in the short space of 12 months. And you didn't understand until she told you that he built them with the magic tools of Faith.

Besides, the neighbors used to help out in a pinch, thenadays. They saw to it that little ones, without wide enough chimneys to their homes—(the tots who never wore brand-new shoes or a fresh-from-the-store dress)—didn't grope shivering in the chime-sweetened dawn to mantelpieces where stockings were filled to the top with disappointment.

And if you've since become a Mother yourself, perhaps you can visualize the despair and bitterness, and the desolation scalding the souls of women, who must face wretched bairns on Christmas morning, and try to explain how God and Saint Nicholas both forgot the address.

So this year, instead of sending such elaborate presents to "your nephews and your nieces and your cousins and your aunts," play Robin-hood and "rob the rich to feed the poor."

Mail a check for half the money you intended to spend on people who need nothing—to some Christmas fund which takes care of waifs who have nothing.

Then write cards to the unwitting donors, explaining what you've done in their names—and "His."

Health Officer Surveys White Deer Territory

Special to The Record News

WHITE DEER, Texas, Dec. 27.—Dr. O. York of Panhandle, who is health officer for Carson county, was in White Deer Thursday in the interest of community health. Dr. York said that there are about 14 cases of scarlet fever.

No two objects in the universe can be more than 540,000,000,000,000 miles apart, science has discovered. Surely the law doesn't always hold, however, as any two men who pick all-America football teams must be farther apart than that.

A Louisiana woman shot a man who wasn't her husband. She's likely to get into trouble that way.

War's False Romance

IF WE can ever succeed in stripping war of its false glamour we shall have done more for the cause of world peace than all the treaties in the world can ever do.

War has a romantic glitter—provided you haven't seen it at close range. That glitter, that glamour, that romantic, drum-and-trumpet quality that invest the fighting man and the fighting ship with an aura more exciting and colorful than anything in our workaday world, are precisely the things that make it easy for nations to go to war.

Here is an example.

Embedded in the sandy shore of Lake Erie, near the town of Vermilion, Ohio, are the decayed timbers of some long-forgotten ship.

The timbers have been there since the boyhood of the town's earliest inhabitant. No one knows what ship it was that drove upon the sands there, perhaps a century ago, and was buried in them as the drifting years passed. No one knows—and, until recently, no one cared.

But not long ago some antiquarian or other announced his belief that this rotting hulk was the wreck of one of the British war ships captured by Commodore Perry in the battle of Lake Erie.

Perry, having captured his famous "two ships, two brigs, one schooner and one sloop," undertook to get them to American ports. One of the vessels, however, was so riddled by shot that it was not worth the effort. So, according to the antiquarian's story, Perry removed its stores and equipment and let it go ashore, a total loss.

When this story came out, interest in the old hulk was suddenly stimulated. Metropolitan papers wrote stories about it. People came to look at the old timbers, poke at them, and moon over them. An old wreck—that was nothing; but the hulk of an old-time war vessel was something exciting, something worth going to see, something fit to be talked about and thought about.

Why should a wrecked warship be more picturesque than a wrecked grain carrier? Why have we built up this false romance about war?

Perry's battle with the British squadron was exciting, to be sure. But it was no more exciting than the peaceful deeds of the early Great Lakes merchant seamen. The hardy sailors who took their clumsy brig and schooners up the lakes, exploring the unknown bays and islands and carrying the first of the cargoes that were to build up the whole Middle West, surely did as much for their country as Perry's fighters.

Peace is infinitely more romantic than war, if you look at it in the right way. Once we realize that fact, peace will be in sight.

A Man Hard to Replace

WICHITA FALLS and Northwest Texas will miss Frank E. Clarity, who has resigned his post as executive vice president of the Fort Worth and Denver City railway. The Fort Worth rail official has ably served his road and this section of the state for a period of 10 years, and he may well be considered a friend of this city and section. During his term as manager of the railroad, two of its most important projects have been completed—the building of the lines to the South Plains and to the Cap Rock country.

The Fort Worth and Denver undoubtedly will seek the most capable executive it can find to fill the post made vacant by Mr. Clarity's resignation, but it will be no easy task to replace one so able and so highly esteemed. To Mr. Clarity we can gratefully wish success in any new enterprise which he undertakes, with the hope that his new sphere of activity will not be too far removed from Northwest Texas.

If for no other reason, we always liked the Denver's manager because he seemed sincerely convinced that there are other towns in Texas to be considered besides Fort Worth and Dallas. Too many officials, commercial and governmental, seem to think that when you give the two north Texas leaders what they want, you have satisfied the entire state. So far as Wichita Falls is concerned, nothing could be more fallacious.

Let Him Go

POOR OLD DOC FREDERICK COOK is seeking parole from the federal penitentiary after having served about a third of the 14-year sentence assessed against him in Texas for conspiracy to use the mails to defraud. He undoubtedly deserved his sentence to prison, but there are few Texans who do not feel that justice would be well served by allowing him his freedom. His offenses against the laws of the nation were no more flagrant than many which have gone unpunished in oil promotion. It was simply his misfortune to be caught.

Additional time in prison could add nothing to the penalty which the law and life have exacted from this man. Once famed as an explorer, a scientist and then as a business man, he closes his life shamed, discredited, disgraced and broken. A few more months in prison can't make much difference to old Doc Cook as he looks back over the ruins of his career. It can do no harm to let him know that a beneficent commonwealth may forgive even one who has betrayed in more than once in positions of trust.

John Bull as a Censor of Films

HOME SECRETARY J. R. CLYNES of the Ramsay MacDonald government has announced that the movie censorship will be tightened up in England. He has issued to the local licensing censors a memorandum that aims to keep children away from films "inciting to immorality and crime."

Children under 16 years of age, unless accompanied by a parent or guardian, will not be allowed to see certain classes of films.

A warning notice will be flashed on the screen before such pictures begin and the children in the theater must leave if they are not accompanied.

But will the children "who are not accompanied" leave the theater after the warning has been flashed on the screen? They would not in America. Are they different in England?

Cotton Handling Charges Cut at New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 27. (UP)—A reduction of 20 per cent in the basic charge for handling cotton was voted by the New Orleans dock board yesterday in an effort to place New Orleans on a parity with other gulf ports. Some of the extra service charges were also reduced.

The reduction establishes a basic rate of $1 a bale, as against the present rate of $1.25. The new rates apply to all cotton received on and after Jan. 1.

Marriage for Two--By Arthur Somers Roche

The Half of His Fortune

There was a moment of dead stillness. Across the plaza a Moor, retailing shawls, argued violently with an Armenian who made a living in the same pursuit. A gull shrieked raucuously. The clatter of the laughing voices at the nearby tables was a deafening roar.

Slowly Helen arose. She faced Larry. She held out her hand.

"Good-by," she said.

That was all. She didn't look at Joyce, dropped her eyes from the miserable expression on Larry's face. Then she was gone. Larry sat down. He faced Joyce.

"There may be," he ventured, "an explanation for this. I can't imagine one."

"You found it vulgar?" she gently queried.

"I find it incredible," he said. "I find it so dreadful—God knows," he blazed, "a man would have to love you to let you—"

"Get away with a thing like that?" she finished.

"I don't mind your humiliating me—but, in God's name, why humiliate Helen, deliberately?"

"Wasn't there deliberate humiliation for me in what she did last night?" Joyce countered.

"An impulse of a moment," he began.

She cut him short.

"It may have been the impulse of a moment, but it wasn't carried out for several weeks. She had time to think over that impulse on her way across the ocean, on her way down here from Paris."

"But revenge—"

"How do you know it was revenge?" she asked.

"What else was it?"

Oh, he was learning things about life and about himself. Women who were not "nice" could nevertheless be inifinitely desirable, and desirable in ways that were not base. A man could love—aye, adore—where reason told him that here was something contemptible.

"Suppose," she made reply, "that I let you find out for yourself the answer to that question."

Billy Valdemagara joined them then, and further questioning was impossible. And when, after luncheon, they drove to Resaurie, something flinty, unyielding, in her attitude, forbade his referring to the scene at the Bar Basque.

Burton's Answer

The telephone was ringing as they entered the villa, and the butler was struggling with the message. Larry took the receiver. He handed it to Joyce.

"Some one wants you," he said.

Joyce went to the telephone.

"Mrs. Tracy?"

"Yes."

"This is Frank Burton, Mrs. Tracy. Much obliged."

That was all. The receiver at the other end of the line clicked. Well, Joyce mused, Helen hadn't waited long. She had been convinced that Larry's avowal, forced from him by his wife, was not couched as it had been simply because he wished to protect his former fiancee from unpleasantness. Helen knew that Larry loved his wife, and therefore—if Joyce had any ability at all to read a situation correctly—she had gone to Burton and consented to marry him soon. That must be it.

And Larry—she grimaced at his unconscious back as he mounted the broad stairs—Larry thought she had humiliated Helen through mean spite, through petty jealousy. How dare he think that of her? How dared he think that his kisses mattered where they were bestowed? Perhaps in this very moment he was pluming himself that she, his wife, was jealous of his former sweetheart.

She repressed a desire to scream after him, to tell him that she had forced his avowal to save him from financial ruin, and for no other reaon on earth. It would lessen his conceit in himself.

But she was to learn, within a very few minutes, that, so far as she was concerned, he had slight vanity. He knocked on the door of her room, grimacing to himself as he noted that the door was closed not chummily ajar as had been its custom.

"Come in," she called.

He entered the room and stood very stiffly before her.

"Found a cable from my lawyers in my room," he said.

She was extremely conscious of her charming negligee. She knew, too, that the least-provocative woman is at her best when she reclines in a chaise longue. Stuffy, conceited man; she'd make him suffer if she could.

"Why does a lawyer need other lawyers? Aren't you able to look after your own legal affairs?" she asked.

"I hope so," he said. "But—er—doctors don't treat themselves, you know. Besides, these are the lawyers of the estate. I'm not an investment shark. Leave it to Bellows and MacLane. Here's something for you."

He handed her a sheaf of imposing-looking documents.

"They look like papers in a separation suit," she said. And then she regretted the jeer.

"They make you—they're copies—you'll find that the originals have been deposited for you in the Central and Northeastern—owner of half of whatever I have."

He turned as stiffly as he had entered the room, and started away. She looked after him.

"Larry," she called.

He halted.

"When did you do this?" she asked.

"Before we sailed," he answered.

"Why?" she asked.

"You're my wife," he said, as though that covered everything.

"But you—you didn't—care for me—then."

She hated the stumbling way she spoke.

"What did that have to do with it?" she demanded.

She digested this slowly.

"You mean," she finally faltered, "that—from the very start of our—marriage, you planned—"

"If a man," he smiled, and the smile was not pleasant, "deliberately makes a fool of himself, he might as well go the whole way, don't you think?"

"A Good Time to Sell"

The words, the intonation, the smile that was a sneer, struck through the armor of her pride and wounded her. Impulsively she started to rise, to hand him the documents which made her—good God how rich did they make her—and then she sank back on the chaise longue. Something remote in her brain cells struggled to be articulate. Some warning dimly comprehended made her change her mind.

"How much is all this?" she asked.

He shrugged. "I'm not certain. It depends, you know, on market conditions. Sometimes it's more than others. On the average, though, there's about three million there. Mostly in American and International Rubber consolidated. That's where the money was first made, so that's where I let it remain."

"All the eggs in one basket?" she commented.

"It's a very strong basket," he said.

"It doesn't seem sensible to me," she said.

Unaccountably his temper was awakened by the remark.

"Perhaps you'd like to change your investment," he said.

"Perhaps I would," she agreed. "Is—I don't know much about these things, but—is the price high now?"

"Higher than it's ever been," he said.

"A good time to sell them, isn't it?" she inquired.

"Some people do look a gift horse in the mouth, don't they?" His voice was polite but his words and expression were not.

Nevertheless, she imperturbably went on.

"How could I sell them? What are they? Bonds?"

"There's a million in bonds, and a million and a half, par value, in stock. It's worth two million at the present market—"

"I want to sell the whole business," she interrupted. "Instantly."

NEW YEAR'S CARD SUGGESTIONS

1—For a Bear

Here's wishing you prosperity
As through next year you cruise!
May 1930 be one round

2—To Any Broker

May 1930 bring you joy,
And blessings to you know,
And when you're asked opinions may
You answer "Yes" or "No"!

3—Cards of Candor for All Purposes

Happy New Year—
Wish you well!
Cards are cheap so
What the ——!

I'm sending you this New Year's card
To mark the yuletide season;
We found we had an extra one
And that's the only reason.

Each New Year our thoughts to you go—
We'll frankly tell you why:
We always get a card from you
And, well, we just reply.

This card is sent
To you by me—
You're lucky it's Not C. O. D.

We're mailing you this New Year's card
Upon this New Year's day
Because the folks we meant it for,
We find, have moved away.

You Know How It Is

"Don't go near your father or mother this evening," grandma cautioned the children.

"Why not?" asked the kiddies.

"Because," explains grandma, "they're addressing New Year's cards and they're awfully cross and irritable."

"Unidentified Man Found Slain on Dump."—Headline. Possibly an apartment hotel tenant who remembered the elevators and doorman only with Christmas cards.

Proof

You ask me how I can be sure
That I'm in love with you,
And how I know it will endure
For aye—and longer, too.

Now just think back a little while—
Your doubts will all be gone;
Do you recall . . . I've seen you, chil',
Without your make-up on?

Identification of Vitamin Made

PALO ALTO, Calif., Dec. 27.(US)—Vitamin A has been definitely identified by Dr. J. H. C. Smith of Stanford as carotin, the red pigment in leaves of certain plants.

This identification, tentatively announced today by Dr. Smith identifies for the first time important nutritive element in food classified by scientists by the general term, vitamin A.

Dr. Smith who has been experimenting for many months in the Stanford laboratory of the Carnegie institution under Dr. H. A. Spoehr, chairman of the division of plant biology of the institution here, believes he has isolated enough of the carotin to determine its composition.

Carotin has been known to scientists for some time but never before completely analyzed. Dr. Spoehr said today that if the identification of this substance as vitamin A is finally established, more will be known of this element than of any other of the vitamin series.

Notified that McCartney was in El Paso and had talked with Boone there yesterday, Mallett instructed the Texas police to arrest the Kansan.

"The City That Faith Built"

Presented below are a representative number of progressive Wichita Falls industries, business and professional men. The energies of the individuals composing these firms are devoted to the upbuilding, not alone of their own businesses, but helping to make Wichita Falls a bigger and better city in which to live. They are recommended for your favorable consideration when their services or merchandise is required by you. Consult this list frequently; become acquainted with the concerns, their lines, their location and telephone numbers. They merit and will appreciate your patronage.

BOOSTERS FOR A GREATER WICHITA FALLS

Wichita Falls As An Oil Center

That Wichita Falls may still be known primarily as a center of the oil industry in the Southwest, despite the passage of 10 years since the "oil boom" began, is revealed by a brief survey of that industry's activity in this area today.

Located approximately in the center of the largest high-grade oil producing territory in the state of Texas, this city is surrounded by approximately 10,000 oil wells in Wichita county alone, besides the thousands of other producing holes in Wilbarger, Clay, Archer and Young counties. As compared with the maximum daily production of almost 105,000 barrels, when the Northwest Burkburnett pool was breaking out daily with gushers, Wichita county is now supplying the crude-oil consuming world with 102,000 barrels of high-grade oil each day. Almost exactly offsetting the tremendous reduction in the flow of many leading producers in the Burkburnett pool has been the development of numerous other tracts in the county, and of many lucrative sands above and below the dependable 1700-foot level on which the "boom" soared dizzily to its peak.

Contributions to the growth of Wichita Falls and Wichita county as a result of oil development began almost a decade before the boom took place, that movement originating in the neighborhood of Electra, where one of the most dependable producing fields is now located. The district surrounding this city now includes all of Wichita county, and part of Clay, Archer, Young, and Wilbarger counties.

Attesting the continued activity in exploration of oil sands, reports for the month of October, 1929, show that no less than 230 wells were being drilled in this area. The distribution was as follows: Archer county, 51; Young, 63; Wilbarger, 40; Wichita, 55; and Clay, 21. According to T. L. Coplin, deputy oil and gas supervisor for this district, no other oil producing area in the state showed a comparable degree of constructive activity during the fall.

Ten of the major oil companies of the world are operating extensively in this North Texas field. More than a score of gasoline refineries are located in and near Wichita Falls.

Approximately 250 members of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce are engaged directly in the oil producing industry and its branches. Operators and producers among the local citizenship and members of the chamber of commerce number 176. Twenty members of the organization are engaged in the marketing of oil field equipment. Manufacturers of oil field drilling and producing machinery are represented by four memberships. Members representing the refining of crude oil number 26; five are dealers in royalties; two are marketers of crude oil, and one represents a tank car manufacturing company.

On the basis of demonstrated productivity in the Wichita Falls territory, and with means derived largely from past development, citizens of these five counties now are setting up a fund of $1,000,000 to be used in drawing upon deeper levels than those yet touched for further increases in production. In the opinion of leaders in this progressive program, the coming year will find Wichita Falls' prominence as an oil center in the ascendancy rather than declining.

ARMY STANFORD BATTLE ON CALIFORNIA GRIDIRON TODAY

The Sportlight

By GRANTLAND RICE

The First of the Duels

In the two impending duels between the Far West and the East, the Far West pins its hopes upon two great football teams—Stanford and Southern California. Both have a world of material, speed, skill and man power. Both are ably coached, with two such directors as Pop Warner and Howard Jones looking after the situation. No section could ask for stronger delegates to look after the intersectional cause.

Against this combination the East is better off than it was a year ago. Stanford will meet a better, fresher Army team, geared up to go, with a flock of Army stars playing their last stand. Southern California will meet the best team the East has to offer in Pittsburgh, where Donches, Montgomery, Uansa, Parkinson and Demoleo were all placed upon various all-America casts. Pittsburgh had more stars featured in the Purple parade this season than any other team. But Pittsburgh hasn't met a team yet as strong as Southern California, a team carrying as much speed, man power and as many reserves. Pittsburgh is strong in reserve strength, but Southern California is stronger. With Pittsburgh the best team in the East, the Army, as it played against Notre Dame, was one of the best, on a par with any organization along the Atlantic coast line. So the East has no advance alibis to offer in regard to the caliber of team strength it is firing at the enemy. And neither has the Pacific coast. The Army and Stanford, with Pittsburgh and Southern California, constitute four of the best teams in football. It is doubtful if any one could name a stronger quartet.

The first of the duels breaks today, with the Army out to give all it has to make up for its Stanford showing a year ago. The odds are slightly in favor of Stanford, but this time it will be a football game, and not a rout.

Fleishhacker and Cagle

Two of the main contributors this afternoon at Palo Alto should be young Herbert Fleishhacker and Chris Cagle.

Fleishhacker represents more man power than any man playing football this season. He is about 6 feet 2 inches tall, and he has a displacement of about 220 pounds. He is also fast. He is a great line breaker, a fine interferer, an all-round football player.

Cagle will have a better line to work with and a better chance to show his stuff. He is one of the most dangerous of all the backs, a fast, shifty, hard-running ball carrier, who can also pass with the best. And there are no better defensive backs.

Stanford has a great center in Heinecke and a star end in Muller. Stanford also has a supply of high-grade backs.

The Army's leading stars are Murrel in the backfield, Perry and Price in the line, and if Carlmark and Messenger play as they did against Notre Dame, they will come in for polite mention in Sunday's dispatches.

Concerning John J. McEwan

Capt. John J. McEwan, the Army coach who preceded Bill Jones, has turned in a fine record at Oregon university, with still another year to go on his contract. He came on East again this season, to take in the coaches' annual conclave.

During the last two seasons Oregon has lost only three Pacific Coast conference games, and these were lost to such strong teams as Stanford, Southern California and California. McEwan's team has beaten Washington the last two years. Few men have coached teams as far apart as West Point and Oregon. Having also played football at Minnesota, here is at least one coach who has been thrown closely against most of the leading systems, including Rockne and Warner. Oregon's record under McEwan's direction should be even better next fall, with the material he has at hand, including the first reserve contingent he has drawn to work with.

Another Army Record

Ex-Army directors have been doing well enough in the last few years. In addition to the good job Captain McEwan has done at Oregon, there is Major Neyland's record at Tennessee.

With Neyland in command of her football destiny, Tennessee has lost but one game in four years. His four-year record in the Southern conference is 22 victories, three ties and one defeat. Tennessee has traveled through 30 games without a defeat, which is about all that any one can ask from any coach or any team.

In McEver Tennessee has one of the star backs of the game, with still another year to go.

The trouble with most football coaches is that it is almost impossible to get them to talk about football. Ever try it?

The world series ended about two breaths ago, and about the time you turn around twice the two major leagues will be on their way south again. And the Cubs and Athletics will be in the middle of another world series before you know it. Maybe.

Tunney Wins In Love Balm Suit

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Dec. 27. (AP)—Judgment in favor of James J. (Gene) Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion, was given in superior court today in the $500,000 breach of promise suit filed by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty.

Counsel for both sides agreed to the judgment.

A signed stipulation agreed an injunction should be issued against the Fort Worth, Texas divorcee, but this was not acted upon immediately by Judge Carl Foster. He said he would read the prepared injunction carefully before affixing his signature.

Lamesa Coach Elected To Academic Society

LAMESA, Dec. 27.—Roger Elms, basket ball coach at the Lamesa High school and a graduate of the Trinity university, has been elected to membership in the Dr. S. L. Hornbrak Scholarship society of Trinity, it was announced here this week. This honor is awarded students who make highest grades in sophomore, junior and senior studies at the university.

CAGLE PLAYS IN LAST GAME

Many Favor Stanford to Win

By CARLE H. BENNETT
United Press Staff Correspondent

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., Dec. 27.—Cadet Christian Keener Cagle closes his sensational collegiate football career when he leads his Army team into battle against Stanford here Saturday.

Captain Cagle, known the country over as an all-American, will have the last turf of Stanford stadium for his final contest as a college player.

The weather man has predicted fair weather for the encounter with a light chilly breeze much the same as prevails at West Point military academy in October.

First appearance of Cagle on the Pacific coast has seemed to exceed in interest other individual stars who have invaded this territory in the past. There is a likelihood that 90,000 persons will attend the game—already more than 80,000 tickets have been sold.

Stanford Favored

Although Stanford was favored, many were hesitant to voice an opinion of the result. There were several reasons for this.

In the first place Coach Glenn "Pop" Warner offered one of his noted surprises today by having a secret practice for his Stanford Cardinals. The purpose was obviously to impress his players with the importance of the struggle and presented the possibility that Warner thinks them over-confident.

Secondly the Army is in the best frame of mind. The easterners want to avenge a 26 to 0 beating they took from Stanford last year in New York. Also it is Cagle's last chance to star for his alma mater and Coach "Biff" Jones is coaching his last game for West Point.

Furthermore Army has full strength while Stanford will start without one of its best players, Walter Heinecke, selected by many as the leading center on the Pacific coast this year. Perry Taylor, who has been on the bench most of the season, has been substituted for Heinecke, who has a bad cold.

Stanford won last year by stopping Cagle. The Cards are depending upon Herb Fleishhacker, big quarterback, to halt the efficient Cagle this year. Therefore Cagle's mate, Johnny Murrell, might become the outstanding player of the contest.

Against this pair of individual satellites Stanford will throw a backfield that has a unified attack timed to the fraction of a second. In some reverses every man in the backfield handles the ball on a single play. And the Cards have Charles Smalling at fullback as the most dependable man on the coast to gain two yards when exactly that distance is needed.

Stanford Well Scouted

Army has pointed at the Cards. A member of its staff has come to this coast by airplane to scout Stanford in important games this season. He has reported the plays that carried Stanford to a tie for first place of the Pacific coast conference.

The question seems to be whether Cagle can do what no other player has ever done this season—score on Stanford while carrying the ball. All points rolled up against the Cards have been by forward passes most of them from beyond the 20-yard line.

The probable starting lineup is:

ARMY	Position	STANFORD
Carlmark	L.E.	Mueller (c)
Price	L.T.	Tandy
Slumber	L.G.	Bardin
Miller	C.	Taylor
Hillsinger	R.G.	Driscoll
Perry	R.T.	Thompson
Messenger	R.E.	Preston
Garver	Q.	Fleischhacker
Cagle (c)	L.H.	Rotnem
Hutchison	R.H.	Frentrup
Murrell	F.B.	Smalling

Estelline Defeats Athens Basketeers

Special to The Record News

ESTELLINE, Texas, Dec. 27.—The Athens Hornets national champion basket ball team of 1929 went down in defeat before the Estelline Bear Cubs here tonight. The final score was 22 to 20. The Cubs outplayed the lenghty Athens boys on the floor and in goal shooting, the speed of the Cubs was the outstanding barrier in the Hornets path to the goal. Baccus, veteran player for the Cubs, went out early in the first quarter with an injured knee and did not return to the game until near the half. This was the first game to be lost on their western tour according to the Athens coach. The two teams play the second game here tomorrow night.

New Idea in Athletics Sponsored by Princeton

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 27. (UP)—The much discussed "give the game back to the boys" idea in sports will receive a test in Princeton university's baseball campaign next spring, it was announced here today. Dr. Charles W. Kennedy, chairman of the board of athletic control at the university, said that coachless teams would take the field when Princeton plays Yale and Columbia in baseball games.

The games will be part of the eastern intercollegiate baseball league. The players will devise their own strategy without the assistance of the coaches.

Doctor Kennedy said that Columbia and Yale had accepted the proposals made by Princeton, and that other members of the league "expressed a sympathetic interest in this experiment.

Cardinal Catcher Denies He Would Not Meet Shires

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Dec. 27. (UP)—Earl Smith who as catcher for the Cardinals has demonstrated an occasionally obstreperous temperament, manifested mild resentment tonight when he read a comment in a St. Louis newspaper to the effect he had not challenged Art "The Great" Shires.

Smith said his colleague appeared to be having so much success that he hated "to have to spill the great one on the resin of a regulation ring."

"However," continued the Cardinal backstop, whose home is here, "I am ready to meet Shires before any club that would offer a suitable purse."

Tuffy Griffiths Wins Ten Round Decision Over Risko

Meet for Light Heavy Title

Jimmy Slattery (left) and Lou Scozza, both of Buffalo, will meet there in January in a title bout. The winner will be recognized by the New York boxing commission for title of 175-pound division, recently vacated by Tommy Loughran.

Francis McQuade Makes Pitiful Plea To Be Retained as Giant Treasurer

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Now if you had seen Magistrate Francis McQuade on his knees, grasping Charles A. Stoneham about the legs, pleading to be retained as treasurer of the New York Giants, a picture testified to today by Leo J. Bondy, you might have figured Mr. McQuade to be momentarily harmless.

But Mr. Bondy has data, he says, to show that Mr. McQuade was rendered no less vigorous by his genuflection.

In fact, says Mr. Bondy, Mr. McQuade arose from his knees, dusted off his pants, and popped Mr. Bondy in the eye, breaking Mr. Bond's glasses. Mr. Bondy, who succeeded Magistrate McQuade as treasurer, told about this today before Supreme Court Justice Callahan.

Callahan's Decision

Justice Callahan reserved decision on a motion made by Mr. Bondy to have Magistrate McQuade and County Clerk-elect Daniel Finn made codefendants in the suit brought by William F. Kenny and other minority stockholders of the National Exhibition company, owners of the Giants.

Isaac N. Jacobson, attorney for McQuade, said McQuade was ousted because he protested against withdrawals from the treasury of $155,000 and $125,000 by Stoneham, but Bondy, denying that, said McQuade was put out because of "his conduct toward the other officers."

James A. Delehanty, attorney for Kenny, said McQuade was not named as defendant because he was not believed guilty of the acts of which the plaintiff complained. Finn, he said, occupied a similar position.

When Bondy made the statement about McQuade going to his knees and pleading with Stoneham, Justice Callahan interrupted to direct Mr. Bondy to file an affidavit incorporating a description of that alleged event.

Delehanty said the action was to compel "unfaithful officers who have looted the treasury to return what they have taken."

He charged that Stoneham had taken money for himself and for numerous corporations in which he was interested, some of those he named being: E. M. Fuller & Co., Charles E. Stoneham & Co., Havana Racing and Jockey club, a copper company, a security company and a company in which John J. McGraw was interested. Delhanty said the stockholders lost about $500,000 through what he termed illegal withdrawals.

He cited the Dempsy-Firpo fight. The company was to receive 10 per cent at first, he said, of the gross intake, but, he charges, Stoneham canceled that lease, which would have brought in about $118,000, and as a result the company received but $50,000 as flat rental for the Polo Grounds. Delhanty charges that the difference went into the pockets of Stoneham and his associates.

Shires to Fight Baseball Player

BOSTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—Arthur (the Great) Shires and Al Spohrer, Boston Braves catcher, will clash in a six-round bout here on Jan. 10, the Boston garden management announced today. This baseball battle will be the semi-final to the Ernie Schaaf-Al Friedman heavyweight contest.

Lawn Tennis Body Bars Negro Stars

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. (UP)—The United States Lawn Tennis association barred the two young negro tennis stars, Reginald Weir of C. C. N. Y. and Gerald Norman of Flushing High school from the national indoor junior tennis championships now in progress because of their color, a letter from the U. S. L. T. A. to the national association for the advancement of the colored race revealed today.

The U. S. L. T. A. stated that in pursuing this policy no attempt was made to reflect on the negro race. It was also pointed out that the U. S. L. T. A. believed the present method of separate associations for administration of the affairs and championships for negro and white players should be continued.

Pin Topplers Take Only Pair Out Of Trio Friday Night

Wages Clothing company bowlers knocked off two out of three games with Wolff Brothers Y. B.'s Friday night at the Spudder alleys. FANS GET BIG RUN FOR MONEY

Cleveland Baker Boy Game To Core

By FRANK GETTY
United Press Sports Editor

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Dec. 27.—"Tuffy" Griffiths of Sioux City, Iowa, fulfilled expectations by defeating Johnny Risko of Cleveland in a hard-fought 10-round bout in Madison Square garden tonight, but failed to qualify as a logical opponent for Jack Sharkey in Miami next February.

Griffiths, weighing 184½ to his opponent's 192, stepped around Risko at times like a lightweight. But lacked the punch to cause the tough baker boy any real distress.

The decision of the referee and judges was unanimous, but the crowd still had some applause left for Risko when Johnny left the ring, for he put up a game fight and made the issue fairly close by a stirring rally in the last two rounds.

At no time did "Tuffy," who only recently graduated into the heavyweight ranks, give signs of possessing the qualifications of a potential heavyweight champion. He had the speed of foot and boxing ability to outpoint Risko tonight, but he couldn't hurt the Clevelander.

"Tuffy" won at least six of the 10 rounds, with Risko opening in whirlwind fashion and coming back in the closing sessions to fight the Iowan flat footed. There were no knockdowns. And the only visible sign of injury was a cut opened under Risko's left eye.

Football Talent Is Gathered in Dallas

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP)—There was more extra fancy football talent in this city today than was ever before gathered under one roof in the Southwest. There were more all-Americans and near-all-Americans than you could comfortably shake a stick at.

There were, to begin with, the undefeated Pittsburgh university Panthers, claimants of the national title, passing through on their way to Pasadena, Calif., where they have an important engagement with the University of Southern California on New Year's Day.

They shared interest with the outstanding stars of the Southwest and Mid-West, who are engaged in a strenuous training grind for their benefit tussle, also on New Year's.

Gridders Banqueted

Tonight members of the three squads sat together at a banquet given by the Dallas chamber of commerce. The program included, among other things, an address by J. Waddy Tate, "hot dog" mayor of Dallas. It was a notable gathering.

Around the festal board were such nationally known stars as "Pest" Welch, all-American halfback of Purdue; Uansa and Donchess, all-American halfback and end of Pittsburgh; and a raft of other greats, including members of the undefeated Texas Christian and Southern Methodist teams.

The Pittsburgh squad of 33, making its trip to the coast by easy jumps, took advantage of the first ideal weather it had struck to engage in a lengthy workout. Coach John Southerland put his huskies through a long signal drill and then let them romp and pass and kick to their hearts' content. Uansa and Donchess came in for a lion's share of attention from the several hundred fans who watched the Panthers practice. Officials said the entire Pittsburgh squad was in great condition and confident of victory over Southern California. The team left for El Paso, its next stop, soon after the banquet.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 27.(UP)—Establishment of an all-weather road between Oklahoma City and the northwest section of the state to provide better mail service will be advocated next year by the chamber of commerce, it was announced today.

Coaches and Athletic Men's Meeting May Bring Reply to 'Bulletin No. 23'

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Decision of the Carnegie Foundation report on college athletics will be opened anew at the meeting of the American Football Coaches association and the National Collegiate Athletic association here Monday and Tuesday.

The meetings here next week will be the first nation-wide gathering of coaches and athletic directors since the famous "Bulletin No. 23" appeared on Oct. 24, and the college officials may take occasion to reply to the charges involved in the Carnegie report.

Dr. Savage Speaks

Dr. Howard Savage, who headed the Carnegie investigation of American college athletics, is listed among the speakers. One of his subjects will be, "Right and Wrong Methods of Promoting College Attendance," which will be delivered at town hall Monday under the auspices of the sportsman brotherhood.

Another speech listed for the N. C. A. A. meeting is entitled, "The Challenge of the Carnegie Report."

Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, president of the N. C. A. A., is uncertain exactly what the reaction of the body will be but said that the association would take some action.

"I have not made up my mind," he said, "as to the proper procedure to take, but the N. C. A. A. cannot allow the Carnegie Foundation report to stand without doing something about it."

Now that coaches and athletic directors have had ample time to study closely the Carnegie report, it seems more than likely that action will be taken to correct the abuses mentioned in the report instead of attempting to ignore the situation or take the view that college athletics have no serious evils.

The truth of the matter is that the big men of college athletics realize that the Carnegie report came at a time when it was most needed to open the eyes of all to the fact that the whole system of recruiting, proselyting and subsidizing college athletics has taken on gigantic proportions.

Trojans All Ready For Pitt Panthers

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27. (AP)—The Trojans of the University of Southern California are ready for the New Year's Day game at the Pasadena Rose Bowl against the University of Pittsburgh.

Coach Howard Jones said Friday the team has been prepared for the fray without one actual scrimmage, although dummy scrimmage against the Pitt Panthers' plays have taken place daily.

"If the kids haven't learned to play football by this time," said Jones, "it's time we all quit."

Jones may make three possible changes in the forward wall, he said, but otherwise the team that trots out on the Rose Bowl gridiron will be the same as the one that started against Carnegie Tech.

Massachusetts Rules On Boxing 'No Contest' Fiasco

BOSTON, Dec. 27. (AP)—The Massachusetts boxing commission today instructed its referees to take either the whole or a part of the offending boxer's purse whenever they declare a bout "no contest" and state in writing before leaving the ring just what disposition shall be made of the money retained.

The commission, which described the recent Jackie Fields-"Gorilla" Jones bout as an object lesson, said it was inconsistent with the spirit of the state boxing laws to stop a bout and not impose the money penalty.

After the Fields-Jones bout which Referee Joe O'Connor halted in the seventh round, the commission advised Eddie Mack, Boston garden promoter, to pay both boxers because of its official's alleged failure to order their purses retained when he ordered them from the ring.

Convict Road Camps

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 27.(UP)—A study of the two state convict road camps is being made by a highway contractor to determine the possible saving to the state by use of more convict labor, Col. A. R. Losh, state highway engineer, said today.

BILL WALKER LED PITCHERS

Lively Ball Proved More Than Myth

By BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 27.—Official pitching averages of the National league made public today, indicate that the lively ball was more than a myth in the senior baseball circuit last season. Bill Walker, lefthander of the Giants, who led the league in pitching effectiveness, allowed 3.08 runs per nine-inning game. This is the highest mark with which a pitcher has won the honor since earned run rating was made a part of the official averages in 1912.

Charlie Root, Cubs, led on the basis of games won and lost, his 19 victories and six defeats giving him an average of .760. Burleigh Grimes, Pirates, was second in effectiveness with an average nine-inning field of 3.13 runs, and third in games won and lost with an average of .708, winning 17 and losing 7.

Bush Second Best

Guy Bush, Cubs, 18 games won and seven lost, was second to his colleague. Root, although on the basis of earned run rating the Mississippi entry, who pitched Chicago to its lone world series victory, was seventh. Bush was the most active pitcher in the league, taking part in 50 games. Charlie (Red) Lucas, Cincinnati mainstay, engaged in the most complete games, 28.

For the first time since 1922, Arthur (Dazzy) Vance, the Brooklyn meteor, was not the strikeout king, Slowed down by illness and forced to forego much of his normal activity, Vance yielded the crown to Pat Malone, of the Cubs, who forced 166 to miss third strikes. Vance was in third place, with 126, trailing also his teammate, Watson Clark, who struck out 140. Clark had more opportunities, for he pitched the most innings, 279, lost the greater number of games, 19, faced the most batsmen, 1,189 and allowed the greatest number of hits, 295. Only five pitchers struck out more than 100 opponents, Malone, Clark, Vance, Root and Carl Hubbell, Giants.

Malone's Victories

Malone, in addition to strikeout honors, scored the most victories, 22, standing alone as the only pitcher in the circuit to register more than 20. He also led in shutouts with five.

Claude Willoughby, of the Phillies, allowed the most runs, 156, and another Philadelphian, Ray Benge, was responsible for the most earned runs, 139. A third Phillie, Bob McGraw, finished the most games, 24.

Clive Dudley, Brooklyn, led in hitting batsmen with 10 and Fred (Sheriff) Blake, Cubs, gave the most bases on balls, 130. Douglas McWeeny's 11 wild pitches led all the rest.

The only no-hit game of the season was pitched by Hubbell of the Giants against the Pittsburgh Pirates, May 3. The Giants won the game, 11 to 0.

ALL-STARS TO PUT UP BATTLE

Morrison Men Bank on Aerial Game

DALLAS, Dec. 27. (AP)—The same wide-open, passing attack which the football world has come to associate with Coach Ray Morrison and Southern Methodist university will be in evidence when the Morrison-coached Southwest all-stars and Mid-West all-stars clash in their post-season bout here next Wednesday.

A visit to the camp of the Southwest stalwarts at Ownby stadium Friday revealed that much. Morrison, using one combination and then another from the wealth of material on hand, was tucking some kind of lateral or forward pass into almost every play. Grubbs of T. C. U. and Mills of the Aggies were flipping the ball all over the field. The Mid-West boys, from all indications, are due to see an aerial display as is an aerial display.

Southwest Is Powerful

After two days of intensive drill, the Southwest eleven shapes up as a powerful unit. In Mills and Grubbs, Coach Morrison has a pair of passers after his own heart, and he has everything else to go with it, including a heavy, fast-charging line. The only trace of a weakness appears on the ends. Officials of the game have given up hope of inducing Wear Schoonover and "Big Un" Rose, all-conference wingmen, to join the squad.

"Pest" Welch to Show

Coach Jimmy Phelan also put his Mid-West players through two stiff workouts today. The way "Pest" Welch, all-American halfback, and the other huskies have thrown themselves into the short training grind is sufficient proof that they intend to give the pride of the Southwest the battle of their young lives. Indications were that Phelans big team would concentrate on a hard running attack, such as was used by the Big Six stars in crushing the Southwest' last year. Whether Welch, Walker, Holman and other crack ball carriers of the invaders can rip the Southwest line to pieces like "Blue" Howell did last year, however, remains to be seen. The Southwest team, from tackle to tackle, will be a tough one to go through.

Hanna Looks Good

Jake Hanna, Centenary college's celebrated little star, is due to see much service in the Southwest back field. It looks now as if he and Dick Miller of Arkansas will join Mills and Grubbs in the starting backfield. The four make a splendid combination. There is no telling yet, though, who Coach Morrison will give the call. He is giving all of them an opportunity to show what they can do.

Members of both the Southwest and Mid-West squads were guests at a banquet given by the Dallas Chamber of Commerce early Friday night in honor of the Pittsburgh university Panthers, who stopped off here en route to Pasadena, Calif., for their New Year's Day fray with the university of Southern California.

Rocky Mountain All-Star Team Practicing for Go

DENVER, Dec. 27. (AP)—Long and hard workouts were in order today as all-star football squads representing the Rocky Mountain and North Central conference indulged in separate scrimmages, tuning up for their New Year's charity game in Denver university stadium.

Jack West, head coach of the squad from the Dakotas, used several line and backfield combinations from his squad of 23 players.

"Bully" Van de Graaff of Colorado college, directing the Rocky Mountain players, had his men running plays which had been mailed out in advance.

The Cure of Measles

Measles spreads so rapidly that one case of measles in a schoolroom of youngsters is almost as infectious as a lighted fire cracker in a box of unlighted fire crackers. Usually when one youngster has the measles his playmates are all likely to get them.

Measles occurs most frequently between the years of 6 and 10, or the first years of grammar school, but the disease may occur at any age, and every once in a while an adult may be attacked.

In most cities, epidemics of measles may run through the school on the average of every two years. This is explained by the extremely epidemic nature of this disease. During the year when it is prevalent all of the available school children may have it and by taking it home spread it to the younger ones as well. By the next year the potential crop of measles-takers is exhausted, but the third year usually finds several thousand new children both in city and country schools—enough of the younger children to start the measles epidemic all over again.

Fortunately, nature seems to have provided a safety period for young babies during the first four or five months, during which time the infant is very unlikely to catch measles. After this time he usually loses his immunity,

The majority of measles cases occur during the winter and early spring. The first indications of measles are usually a catarrhal discharge, of the nose, accompanied by sore spots in the mouth known as Koplik's spots. After this occurs, the well known rash of measles develops on the skin of the body.

Fortunately, the disease is usually not serious and need not be so, provided the right treatment is used.

In the beginning of this disease, the appetite is poor, the nose swollen and the patient presents all of the usual symptoms of a cold, with irritation and fretfulness. As the rash comes on, the face, lids of eyes, nose and lips may become so swollen and misshapen that it is difficult to recognize the patient. The rash, which usually takes two or three days to develop, usually starts on the face and spreads down over the body. The areas first affected begin to fade about three days later. A week is usually required for the whole process of rash development and peeling off of the entire body surfaces. The rash turns from a rosy color to a yellowish; and the skin finally comes off in brown-like flakes accompanied by an intense itching.

At the first symptoms of the disease the child should be given frequent small enemas, at least two or three times daily. The child should also be put to bed in a fairly darkened room, but allowed plenty of fresh air. The child should be urged to drink large quantities of water, and it is easier not to allow any other food except some of the acid fruits if the child desires them until the rash has begun to disappear.

The child affected with measles should be kept isolated from all other children to prevent the spread of the disease as much as possible. If this method of treatment is followed there is very little danger of complications arising. Adults should use a similar treatment should they be affected.

If you give the healing forces of the body a chance to work by following this regime, the chances are that after the measles have been overcome the patient will feel much better than before.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Strained Heart

Question: W. P. asks: "Will you please advise me if anything can be done for a strained heart? Would a massage help?"

Answer:—One who is suffering from an acute case of heart strain should rest in bed for several days and have at least one massage treatment each day to help the circulation. After the heart has partially recovered from its strain, it is then well to take light calisthenic exercises, first while lying in bed, and then finally simple twisting and bending exercises taken while standing. The heart should be examined frequently and the exercise increased under the advice of a competent physical culture instructor.

Cheese

Question:—Mrs. B. L. H. writes: "Will you please advise whether or not Limburger cheese is fattening?"

Answer: All cheeses can be considered fattening, as they contain a large amount of butter fat.

Rubbing Bunion

Question:—F. E. L. asks: "Will you kindly let me know if rubbing a bunion will reduce or enlarge it? If rubbing is of no avail, could you tell me what to do?"

Answer:—The bunion is formed because of a constant rubbing of the toe against either a tight fitting shoe or one that is too loose. Have your shoes fitted propperly, and soak your feet in hot water for at least 30 minutes each day. Rubbing around the bunion may be of some help in increasing the blood's circulation, but medicinal preparations would be of no value.

RUM GUARDS LET VICTIM DIE

Cops Charged With Seeing Man Bleed to Death

BUFFALO, Dec. 27. (INS)—Two coast guardsmen stood idly by while Eugene Downey Jr. bled to death on the docks of Buffalo. Police Lieutenant Stephen Crotty testified at the inquest held today into Downey's death.

Downey was shot by guardsmen in Buffalo harbor while piloting what government agents thought a rum runner.

Crotty said he arrived at the docks and found Downey slumped in a boat, slowly bleeding to death. Leaning against a building some 80 feet away, according to Crotty, were two coast guardsmen.

"I then called a fire truck and with the aid of a rope and the firemen and the coast guardsmen succeeded in lifting Downey to the docks," Crotty said.

Crotty testified he called an ambulance and Downey was taken to a hospital where he died shortly after admittance.

Dr. Orceo de Dominicis followed Crotty to the stand.

He testified Downey's death was caused by loss of blood.

Three guardsmen—Rudolph Thompson, Asa Ennis, and Orville Lagrant—are under arrest in connection with the shooting. The inquest, however, was adjourned until tomorrow without calling them to the witness stand.

ANDREWS WELL IN LIMELIGHT

No. 1 Ogden Revived in Wildcat Area

Special to The Record News.

BIG SPRING, Texas, Dec. 27.—Revival of Deep Rock Oil company and others' No. 1 Ogden in rank wildcat territory of Andrews county and the slightly disappointing showing of Glasscock Brothers' No. 1 Edwards, a three-mile extension well in northern Glasscock county, featured oil development during Christmas week along the Texas and Pacific railroad.

Deep Rock's No. 1 Ogden bounced back into the oil limelight with nearly the same rapidity as it fell from grace one week ago. Sulphur water that was encountered while drilling from 4418 feet to 4428 feet was virtually exhausted during the week and production by heads was revived with what some operators believed was an increase.

Extra Storage

Heads were flowing from the well at intervals less than three hours apart, a more rapid rate than has previously been reported from the test that is still holding attention of every oil interest in West Texas. As the week closed operators were forced to erect additional storage to accommodate the flow. There are now five 500 barrel tanks on the lease with four standing full of crude oil.

Production of No. 1 Andrews during Christmas Day was entirely lost for the lack of sufficient storage facilities. Hundreds of interested spectators enjoying a holiday visited the Andrews county wildcat and while there saw the well's production be wasted on the ground to run promiscuously over the lease. However, oil men who had been watching the well for days estimated the production from 175 to 200 barrels.

Hits Pay at 4345

Pay was encountered in No. 1 Ogden at 4345 feet and was continuous for three feet. An increase was encountered while drilling from 4362-66 feet and the well started flowing an average of 160 to 175 barrels daily until sulphur water showed up in the hole from 4418-28 feet. Heads were stopped for two days until the water was bailed and swabbed below the oil pay horizons. During 12 hours earlier in the week, No. 1 Ogden produced 90 barrels of oil by heads. There seems little doubt that commercial production has been encountered, but operators are still undecided whether to drill deeper in search of another pay and run the risk of drilling into more sulphur water or to produce the discovery well from its present depth.

No. 1 Ogden is located 2310 feet from the west line and 330 feet from the north line of section 6, block A-46, public school lands and is approximately seven miles southwest of Andrews, the county seat, and only town within miles of the well.

U. T. Bids Asked

In addition to numerous deals involving acreage near the well and private contracts involving acreage in other sections of the county, the university land board has advertised for award in January leases on 5,280 acres, three-fourths of each of sections 2 to 13 inclusive in block 4. Spirited bidding for leases is anticipated because of the discovery well. The university leasing board has reserved the northwest quarters of section 2, 3, 6, 11 and 13 and the southwest quarters of sections 4, 9 and 12 and the northeast quarters of section 5, 7 and 10 and the southeast quarter of section 8. Numerous company men are now in the region making tests and attempting to learn more of geological conditions with anticipation of entering bids on the preferred tracts.

In northern Glasscock county, 75 or 80 miles east of Deep Rock's No. 1 Ogden, but still far enough from proven production to be interesting is Glasscock Brothers' No. 1 Edwards, three miles west of proven regions known as the Coffee-Phillips pool.

Slight Disappointment

Glasscocks' No. 1 Edwards proved slightly disappointing to operators and interests in this region when settled average daily production totalled approximately 150 barrels. However, during the latter part of last week gauges increased advancing from 141 barrels the second day the well pumped to 156 barrels during the last 24-hour period.

Pay in No. 1 Edwards was encountered at 2277 feet and was opened at 2299 feet at which total depth operators expressed the opinion they had penetrated all the oil saturated lime in that particular strata. There was a slight amount of water, approximately 5 per cent, being pumped with the oil, but reports indicated it to be decreasing.

Operators have completed arrangements with Shell Pipe Line company to extend its line to the well despite the fact that minimum production of 300 barrels daily made a part of the tentative agreement to accept the oil was not approached. Plans are to drill the well deeper in 15 or 20 days to a lower pay expected 138 to 140 feet below the present productive formation.

Humble to Drill

Humble Oil and Refining company remains the only company which has staked its forced offset location to Glasscock Brothers No. 1 Edwards. Humble's No. 1 Turner will be drilled 1650 feet from the east line and 330 feet from the north line of section 19, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey and is 990 feet south of No. 1 Edwards.

When Humble starts drilling of its well the Shell Petroleum corporation will be forced to offset to the east as will R. R. Penn and others be forced to offset the extension well in the same direction.

In the Coffee-Phillips pool, Amerada Petroleum corporation's No. 1 Coffee, and westernmost well drilled in the field proper, was drilled into the lime top at variously reported depths ranging from 2005 feet to 2063 feet. Operators set and cemented eight and one-quarter inch casing at 2063 feet after drilling to a total depth of 2068 feet and started rigging up cable tools with which to bail the hole full of rotary drilling mud and to continue into the expected pay.

Boosts Producer

Amerada's No. 1 Coffee, 990 feet from the north line and 2310 feet from the west line of section 22, block 33, township 2 south, T. & P. Ry. Co. survey, has virtually the same surface elevation as Lion Oil and Refining company's No. 1 Coffee which topped lime at 2053 feet. The Lion well is a producer, therefore, operators did not feel skeptical about the field not being extended once more. Amerada's interesting test is 990 feet west and 330 feet south of Simms Oil company's No. 1 Coffee, the nearest producer in the northern Glasscock county field.

The past week was a quiet period in this region's oil activity. All leases that could not possibly be damaged by water encroachment for a period of 24 or 48 hours shut down Christmas Day and several were idle Christmas Eve. The general tendency to reduce intended drilling until after Jan. 1 has been accentuated this year.

Spirited Bidding Seen On University Oil Land

Special to The Record News.

MIDLAND, Texas, Dec. 27.—Oil men of Midland predict sharp bidding on 26 sections of university oil lands in block 14 of Andrews county when bids are received at Austin Jan. 21. The Andrews acreage carries a one-sixth royalty clause. Definite proving of the existence of an oil field in Andrews by continued production of around 175 barrels in Deep Rock No. 1 Ogden, section 6, block A-46, will hike the bids on university lands to new levels except for area of proved high production, oil men believe.

BERNE. (AP)—Switzerland is credited with the highest consumption and also the highest production of artificial silk per capita in the world.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. (AP)—Advances from rather an irregular opening in cotton today were checked by realizing and prices reacted later under comparatively small offerings. March contracts after selling up to 17.54 or 9 points net higher, declined to 17.44 and closed at 17.46. The general market closed quiet net 8 points higher to 7 points lower, with the near months relatively steady.

The opening was steady at a decline of 4 points to an advance of 3 points. Two or three more January notices were issued and there was some near month liquidation at the start, but it was quickly absorbed and the general market strengthened during the early trading. January up to 17.25 or 7 points net higher, while March advanced to 17.54 or 11 points above yesterday's closing quotations. Later months showed advances of about 5 to 7 points, May selling at 17.77, but these prices seemed to attract considerable realizing. In the case of January contract they reflected an advance of about ½c from the closing quotations of last Saturday.

The disposition to take profits on long cotton following the early advance may have been promoted by less favorable Lancashire advices. Cable reports received here said the demand for cotton cloth and yarn was limited with the political news from India causing anxiety and apprehensions of a boycott against English goods. Liverpool cables did not fully meet expectations based on the New York close of Thursday, although the market there showed moderate advances on covering and continental buying. Reports of a firmer tone in the cotton goods market here received no particular comment. Port receipts today, 50,233 bales. U. S. port stocks, 2,675,396. Exports, 32,097, making 4,156,038 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 27. (AP)—The after holiday dullness continued to influence cotton here today though a good rally of 11 to 14 points was noticeable in keeping with firmness shown by the New York market and moderate trade buying soon after a decline of 3 to 4 points at the opening.

Later, sustaining support failed and the market lost 8 to 10 points from the high. There was a further easing off in late trading and the day's close was near the lows at a nominal net decline for the day.

March rallied from an opening of 17.36 to 17.47, up 11 points and closed at 17.37 or 3 points net down for the day. The general market's close was at net declines of 1 to 4 points.

First trades dropped sharply due to a 3 to 5 points loss in the opening Liverpool market. As trade demand developed the prices rallied to 17.20 for January, and 17.72 for May, or 11 to 14 points above the previous close.

After the first hour bulge the market remained quiet the rest of the morning fluctuating narrowly within the early range and gradually easing off to levels within a few points of the early lows. Additional notices for 1,400 bales of January deliveries were issued here during the morning.

January closed at 17.10 bid; and May at 71.63, or 1 to 3 points net down for the day.

Receipts 72,978, for week 213,203, for year 6,766,185, last year 7,102,186. Exports 28,444, for week 145,491, for year 4,040,438, last year 4,567,450. Stocks 2,744,935, last year 2,744,935. By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Dec. 27. (US)—Renewed short selling and week-end profit taking wiped out early gains and closed the market lower in a more active session today. Heavier offerings of Fox Film, coincident with rumors concerning "important meetings" added to unsettlement in the final hour. Steel finished fractionally lower, while Montgomery Ward declined 1¼, General Electric 1¾, Johns Manville 1¾, Electric Auto Lite 1⅞ while Fox finished 3⅞ lower. Standard of New Jersey gained a point in a firm oil group. Allied chemical advanced 4½ and Commonwealth Power 10¾ while other price changes were limited to fractional amounts in most instances. Turnover totalled 3,300,000 shares. Call money was held at 6 per cent throughout.

New Autos Loom

More was heard of the automobile shares that indicated somewhat better feeling. It was only talk, however, and based mainly on hope that new models to be introduced at the January shows will stimulate buying. Practically every company of importance will introduce something new so that the result will be just as stiff competition as experienced in recent weeks. In fact, competition may be stiffer as none knows yet what Ford is going to do. When other manufacturers face lower production they are forced to raise prices because of their small margin of profit. Ford can make his margin even smaller, especially as he has no stockholders to answer to. It is variously estimated that production of the industry will drop to from 3,000,000 to 4,500,000 cars in 1930. This would mean falling off of from 2,500,000 to 1,000,000 as compared with this year.

Gas Merger Aids

Announcement of the Standard Power and Standard Gas combine gave some stimulus to the other utilities for a while. Belief was expressed that Louisville Gas and some others would go in the Standard organization before long. However, buying was half-hearted as it is realized that there are fairly substantial blocks of utilities of the distress variety that have to be taken care of at the first opportunity. As none knows just what price level represents black for the rescuers who have the stocks to unload there is timidity about following moves higher.

Reports concerning the Fox situation were in circulation again. It was stated that an "important meeting" was held Thursday and another today. Those who should be most powerful in the picture were said to be "getting tired" of procrastinating and refusal to make definite agreement. Another rumor was that the man most interested was not averse to seeing the situation handled entirely through the courts on the theory that he would fare better. Interests identified with other amusement shares were hoping that definite development would occur soon as they believe their stocks have been unduly depressed as a result of the influence of Fox reports and rumors.

Short Covering Features

Recent buying of Steel, Montgomery Ward and other standard industrials is said to have been short covering. Most of it was for the account of the Danforth crowd, it was maintained, prior to his leaving for an extended vacation in the South. If there is any truth at all to current reports this professional group now have more money than they ever have before. They are uncertain as to the outlook for the business and the market for early next year, however, and may stay out of dealings until definite indications are received. They expect to get some better idea of the first half-year's outlook from annual reports and other statements that will come out in January.

MID-WESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 27. (AP) (U.S.D.A.)—Hog trade around the 11-market circuit was moderately active at prices unevenly steady to 25c lower than Thursday's average market. Shipping demand was fairly broad and the lighter weights of butchers moved to the best advantage. The top of $9.85 was paid at Chicago and St. Louis. Offerings 79,900 a decrease of 25,000 from a week ago and 36,500 of the corresponding day last year.

The sheep supply approximate 39,100 against 30,928 last Friday and 38,652 a year ago. Demand for fat lambs was not as brisk and values were steady to 25c lower with Chicago the only market to report any material decline. Choice fed wooled lambs scaling 92 pounds down in Chicago brought $13.50 to $14.00.

A weak to lower tone prevailed on killing classes of cattle at several points. Quality was plain with most of the steer arrivals kinds that had received only a short turn in the feed lots. Short fed steers were especially difficult to move at Chicago where a decline of 50c to $1.00 has been enforced on such offerings the last two days.

Plain doggies of light weight on the Kansas City market realizing $10.20 and $10.25. Receipts 11,850 a decrease of 1,500 from a week ago and 1,000 more than a year ago.

Grain

TEXAS CASH PRICES

FORT WORTH, Dec. 27. (AP)—While offerings were light on the cash grain market today, demand was good for wheat, corn and sorghums, and dealers expected active trading when the New Year begins. Wheat was lower in sympathy with contract markets; others were unchanged.

Exporters bid $1.32@1.32¼ for No. 1 ordinary export delivered Texas gulf ports.

Other bids and offers, basis carlots delivered, freight paid at Texas common points:

Wheat—No. 1 ordinary hard milling $1.32½@1.33½; No. 1 hard, 13 per cent protein $1.33½@1.34½; 14 per cent $1.34½@1.36½; 15 per cent protein $1.37½@1.38½.

Corn—No. 2 mixed corn $1.01@1.03; No. 2 white corn $1.06@1.07; No. 2 yellow $1.05@1.06.

Oats—No. 2 red oats 58@59c; No. 2 white oats delivered group one points 55½@56c; rest unchanged.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Dec. 27. (AP)—Evidence of stubborn refusal to follow North American wheat price advances came from Liverpool and Buenos Aires today and wheat values here suffered material downturns. Premiums, though for United States wheat both at the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic seaboard, were made stiffer and indications pointed to likelihood that the amount of wheat afloat for Europe, already much scantier than usual, is to be further curtailed.

Chicago closing quotations on wheat today were unsettled, 1⅜c to 2c a bushel lower than yesterday's finish. Corn closed ⅛@⅜c to 1c down, oats ⅜c to ½@⅝c off, and provisions varying from 5c setback to a rise of 2@5c.

Assertions which were current that Europeans are playing a cat-and-mouse game, and are biding their time to pounce on wheat offerings from North America, failed to alter the fact that this week's Argentine and Australian exports as figured today showed a fair increase over the week previous. Liverpool quotations today were far lower than had been looked for and the Buenos Aires market was weak notwithstanding sharply reduced official Argentine crop estimates.

Corn and oats eased down as a result of wheat weakness and because of predicted lower temperatures likely to increase the movement of corn to market.

Provisions were responsive to declines both in hog values and in grain.

SCIENTISTS KICK AGED BELIEFS

Heredity Plays Minor Role In Life

By PAUL W. WHITE
United Press Staff Correspondent

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 27.—Twenty-four million meteors strike the earth's atmosphere every day; heredity plays a minor role in development of the mind; "pure air" is just a term and not a fact; children, even in conversation with adults, are often talking only to themselves—these are among the facts brought out today by groups allied with the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The man who estimated the meteor shower has seen on his own account as many as 50 in an hour. He is C. C. Wylie of the University of Iowa, who addressed the American Meteorological society.

Visible Near Earth

Most of the dim meteors, he said, become visible 75 miles from the earth and disappear after racing 25 miles further. Bright meteors, on the other hand, come to within 15 miles of the earth before they explode into nothingness. A few fragments descend, he said, but what becomes of the vast majority of meteoric formations remains a mystery as yet unpierced by science.

Frank N. Freeman of the University of Chicago, in a paper read before a meeting of physchologists, said that a study of identical and fraternal twins had convinced him heredity was overrated in regard to any influence on mental traits.

"Mental ability," he observed, "is more affected by the conditions under which a person lives. Scholastic attainment is affected still less by nature and more by environment."

Breathe Rocks

An analysis of "pure air" was made by Dr. W. J. Humphreys of the United States weather bureau. He found that in the course of a half year we breathe tons of pulverized rock, bits of thousands of trees and rocks and ocean salt.

Were it not for rain and snow, Dr. Humphreys said, the air quickly would be filled with suffocating dust.

A paper on research in child development was read by George D. Stoddard of the University of Iowa. He said that the average youngster of seven or eight talked to himself 45 per cent of the time.

Judas' Betrayal of Christ Denied In Book by Authority on Bible

By N. REYNOLDS PACKARD
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS, Dec. 27.—Judas Iscariot did not betray Christ for 30 pieces of silver as it is recorded in the New Testament but instead tried by daring strategy to have Jesus crowned king of the Jews, according to H. E. von Kalinowski, noted German authority on the Bible.

Dr. Kalinowski declares in his latest book, "Judas Iscariot," that this disciple is the most misunderstood man in history. He contends that Judas was not an avaricious man and never manifested any lust for riches and because of his honorable character was made treasurer of the disciples.

Emphasizing the ardor and enthusiasm of the betrayer for the cause of Jesus, Dr. Kalinowski says that Judas gave his master over to the Roman authorities only in the hope that Christ would perform a miracle and be proclaimed king of the Jews. If he had not been sincere in this enterprise Judas would not have committed suicide by hanging as soon as Christ was crucified, it is reasoned by the German theologian.

The intelligence of Judas also comes in for praise on the part of Dr. Kalinowski. He points out that there is little likelihood that a man who had been treasurer and used to handling money would suddenly desert the cause for which he had been fighting and betray his master for only $30.

Reward for Dog Starver Climbing

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 27. (AP)—Subscriptions to a reward fund for arrest of the persons who sewed up the mouth of a small dog and released the animal to starve continued to pour in today at offices of the Humane Society of Missouri, passing the $1,300 mark this morning.

Pledges have come by telephone, telegraph and mail. A telegram from J. R. Robinson, Dallas, Texas, announced he would add $15 to the reward, and Arthur M. Cooper of Alton, Ill., offered $100 reward.

Police thus far have found no trace of the perpetrator of the deed. The dog was put to death by the humane society.

SOLONS FACE PEN LOCATION

Prison and Fee Bill to Take Up Session

AUSTIN, Dec. 27. (INS)—When the fourth special session of the state legislature gets under way here next month, it probably will consider only the prison concentration problem and a bill to regulate fees of county officials, Governor Moody said today in announcing he plans to call the session on Jan. 15.

Austin Site Sought

Three reports on the state prison situation are to be presented to the solons. They include a majority report recommending the location of a central prison system on a site 20 miles from Austin at a cost of $4,900,000, and two minority reports seeking, respectively, location of the system at Wynne and Imperial.

Under the terms of the county officials' fees bill as outlined by the legislative committee which prepared it, the fees of officials in counties having a population of 200,000 or more would not exceed a total of $12,500 annually, while officials of counties with a minimum population of 2,000 would not receive in excess of $2,500 annually.

Education Bill Likely

Although those two problems may be the only ones to be placed before the special session, there is the possibility that other business may be transacted. Among the bills which it is hoped will be submitted are two dealing with education.

One of these proposes to increase the expenses of county school superintendents to $1,200 a year, such superintendents being now limited to $300 a year for all traveling expenses. The other would give local option as to whether a county school superintendent shall be either appointive or elective. At present, county school superintendents are appointive by the county board of trustees.

Ambassador To Germany Quits

Hoover Expected to Name Successor

BERLIN, Dec. 27. (INS)—The resignation of Jacob Gould Schurman as United States ambassador to Germany was accepted by President Hoover today.

The president cabled Schurman expressing his willingness to accept the resignation.

Schurman, descendant of an old New York Dutch family, has been ambassador to Germany since June, 1925.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27. (INS)—President Hoover's acceptance of Ambassador Jacob Gould Schurman's resignation was taken today to indicate that the president will shortly announce his successor.

There are a number of candidates for the post, among them Eugene Meyer, former head of the war finance corporation. Ambassador Joseph E. Grew, now in Turkey, also has been mentioned for transfer to the Berlin post.

Mother, Daughter Burn to Death

WOODSFIELD, Ohio, Dec. 27. (UP)—A mother and daughter were burned to death, a baby was burned so severely it may not live, and a father and son were seared when fire made a flaming prison of their log cabin home in the hills of Monroe county, near here.

Surviving members of the family of Joseph Pierce today were being cared for by neighbors. A son, Mansell, 17, saved a sister and brother while flames were sweeping the cabin and is in serious condition himself. The mother died trying to save the children.

Oklahoma to Put Convicts on Road

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 27. (UP)—The state board of affairs and the state highway department will establish additional prison road camps immediately to relieve congested conditions at the state penitentiary, Governor Holloway said today.

The governor visited the penitentiary Thursday on his way here from Texarkana, Ark., where he spent Christmas.

The governor was enthusiastic over conditions at the prison.

Two Killed, 25 Escape In Gas Tank Explosion

WAUKESHA, Wis., Dec. 27. (INS)—Two men were killed and a third seriously injured today when an acetylene gas tank exploded in the plant of the Creamery Package company here.

Twenty-five other employes in the room escaped injury from the explosion which crashed windows in buildings several blocks away and was heard for a mile.

The dead are—Emil Braman and Otto Adrian.

Twelve Escape Death In Mine Explosion

BECKLEY, W. Va., Dec. 27. (AP)—Twelve miners escaped safely from the Stotesbury mine of the C. C. B. Smokeless Coal company, eight miles from here, two hours after a local explosion in one entry. Two engineers were unaccounted for, but officials believed they were in another section at the time of the blast.

CLUB FOR WICHITA BOYS OPENS WITH MEMBERSHIP OF 12

ROTARY BACKS PROGRAM HERE

Two Work Rooms, Gym And Library Provided

An organization which has long been needed in Wichita Falls was formally opened Thursday night when the Wichita Falls Boys club, sponsored by the Rotary club, held open house at the new headquarters in the city hall annex and began its program of activities.

The club offers to all boys in the city 15 years of age or less a varied field of instructive and entertaining activities which have never before been available to boys who lack opportunity for such activities. The organization is open to all Wichita Falls boys of the specified ages at no cost to themselves and the Rotary club has invited all who have not yet enrolled in the club to visit the clubrooms and list their names with the others. The club will be open each Wednesday, Thursday and Friday night from 7 until 9:30 o'clock and on Sunday morning from 9 to 11 o'clock.

Ward Director

W. B. Ward, chairman of the Rotary boys work committee, is in charge of the club and will act as director in many of its activities. A half hour of talks and study will be held each Sunday morning, after which the boys will be allowed to play games and participate in the other activities offered.

One large room, 14 by 48 feet, has been equipped for manual training. Tools and materials are furnished for the boys and two classes in manual training have already been organized. Each class will be limited to 20 boys. The first will meet from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock and the second from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock each night, Mr. Ward said. Instruction in woodwork, joining and use of tools will be given and practical training will be afforded. The boys have already begun work on book racks and other small objects.

Another room, 14 by 17 feet, has been equipped as an electrical laboratory, in which the boys may experiment with telegraph instruments and other electrical apparatus. A telegraph class of 10 boys has been organized and plans are under way for a second class, so that the electrical classes may alternate with those in manual training.

One of the rooms will be used for a gymnasium, the floor to be covered with a layer of sawdust and then with a heavy tarpaulin to allow for boxing and wrestling. Other athletic apparatus will be added to this room, Mr. Ward said.

Library Opened

A library of 200 volumes of boys' books and scientific and educational works written for boys has been installed and is in use. The library will also contain all the latest magazines. Another room has been equipped with tables for ping pong and other games and still another with domino and checker boards and tables for such games. The game sets will be furnished by the club and may be obtained by the boys for use while the club is open. Each boy will sign out for a game and return the set to clear his record when the game has been finished, Mr. Ward said.

A total of 120 boys have already joined the organization and others have been invited to come in. Each boy is given a membership card showing that he is a member of the club and entitled to all rights and privileges offered. The directors ask each boy before membership his age, where he is employed, what church he belongs to, whether he has a savings account and other similar questions. One of the purposes of the organization is to encourage the boys to take part in useful activities and to afford them a place to go when they have time on their hands. The club will urge every boy to maintain or begin a savings account, Mr. Ward said.

Among the members are seven boys from the West Texas Children's Aid society, who are brought in each night for the sessions of the club. Their joining was arranged through Miss Katherine Henricle of the aid society.

The formation of the club was made possible through the cooperation of members of the Rotary club, who donated the various pieces of apparatus, the books, magazines and other materials. The clubrooms are situated in the rear portion of the building adjoining the city hall at Ninth street and Ohio avenue, the entrance on the Ohio avenue side. Plans for further expansion of the club facilities are under advisement and additional rooms and space in the building are available, Mr. Ward said.

Prisoner's 'Nerves' Lead to Identity

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27. (INS)—Fear of detection today led to the identification of a prisoner in the county jail as Joseph Caprico, 20-year-old Rochester, N. Y., robber, who escaped from Auburn State prison during the sensational riot of July 28 last.

Booked as a suspected automobile thief under the name of James Olivia, the prisoner's frantic efforts to obtain freedom on bail attracted the suspicion of police. Fingerprint measurements telegraphed by the Washington bureau today positively established Caprico's identity.

He was being held for extradition to New York, where he faces trial for the murder of guards, killed during the Auburn prison riot.

ROME. (AP)—Prof. Balbino Giuliano, new minister of national education, has decreed that henseforth the academic year shall be divided into thirds instead of halves.

Fresh roses $1.50 dozen, 25 for $2.50, Saturday only. Bebb's Flowers.—Adv.

STRAND: "Flight," first all talking picture of the air, and Paramount sound news.

MAJESTIC: Ted Lewis in "Is Everybody Happy?" Comedy and Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: Bert Lytell in "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," comedy and Pathe news.

GEM: Bob Custer in "Fighting Terror," also chapter No. 4 "Tarzan the Tiger" and comedy.

Our verse (or worse) in this col., and our comments on spats haven't got us run out of town YET, but somehow we see a paw scribbling something on the wall. Our bones quake with fear, and the cause of it all is a letter we received this morning from a reader, one William T. Kemp, of 1911 Lucille:

"Dear Sir," says he, "I suggest that you write more about the movies and less about spats in 'AT THE THEATERS.'

"Please don't be like Mr. Underwood (Editor's note: Mr. W. L. Underwood, theater critic of this news organ, who now is on a vacation. And in December, too!) who thinks Clara Bow has made but two talking pictures; that Paramount produced the Hollywood Revue; that The Cocoanuts was produced in California; that the two leading cinema production companies are Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Warner Bros.; that Paris Bound deserves two lines.

"I agree with you in saying that the Jolson pictures are not even pretty good, and knowing that it will be very hard to grin and bear it alone I am willing to sit through the misery with you for ten dollars if you will let me put cotton in my ears and a cloth over my eyes.

"Here is to less poetry and more facts and figures. Sincerely, WM. T. KEMP."

◇ ◇ ◇

Alright, Mister Kemp, here's for some facts and figures. The fact is that Friday afternoon, instead of coming on to work like I shouluv, I hung around the Majestic theater. Now that's the fact. And in a little while, along came the prettiest figure that we, you, they, or thus and so ever saw in their collective separated or amalgated lives. Now that was the figure!

◇ ◇ ◇

She went into the show.

◇ ◇ ◇

So did we.

◇ ◇ ◇

And just as we were ready to make a line plunge and rush said figure an usher stepped in between us and gave her a seat and then we couldn't see because it was dark, and so dern that usher, he ruined it all.

◇ ◇ ◇

And guess who that usher was. No less than Victor E. Lowery, who is the manager of the show.

◇ ◇ ◇

"Now look here, Vic," we said, "doggonit, you're supposed to be manager here, and here you are being an usher, and the other day I saw you working as a stage hand. Ain't you no dignity, and furthermore, whad you want to steer that figure away from us for anyhow?"

◇ ◇ ◇

"Now look here, you little upstart," says Vic, "I'm a working man and there is no task I won't do when it has to be done. When the crowd is big, I help the ushers. Fact of the matter is, I think a little work once in a while would do you good."

◇ ◇ ◇

Well that was the second time we'd been squelched during the day, and we came back to the print shop and hung our heads and thought over what Vic said about work. Not knowing any business men to go to for advice, since most of them would rather throw a poet out than help him out, we decided to see what the world of poetry had to say about Victor and his work, with the following results, to-wit:

"O come unto these yellow sands,"
Quoth Little Red Riding Hood,
"I've looked for a hubby in many lands
Who was even half as good."

"Sing heigh ho the holly
This life is most jolly,
What Folly," laughed Little Bo Peep,
"Inspires men to be
A worker as he?
I'm content with tending my sheep."

Now musing at Elba was old Nap Oleon, who was getting the razz;
"I'd won at Waterloo, mayhap
If I'd had what Victor has."

"To be or not to be,"
Quoth Ne-
Ro, tuning up his fiddle.
"Me work like Vic?
Don't make me sick
Toodle-doo hey diddle diddle."

"O trowl the bowl,
The brimming bowl,"
Quoth Falstaff, red with drink.
"No work for mine,
I prefer wine
But Victor likes to think."

Now there, my dears,
From fairyland
From fiction and from fact
We've heard what people
Think of Vic
How he doth some attract,
How others he doth sore repel
Because he likes to labor,
And thus I think that it is well
To end all this palaver.

2,000 ATTEND ZOO BENEFIT

Proceeds Assure Sufficient Funds to Meet Note

By W. P. HOOD
Record News Staff Writer

Wichita Falls signified its desire Thursday night to keep for the city the excellent zoo which it now boasts when almost 2,000 persons paid to see the Little Theater play, "White Collars," at the Memorial auditorium, the entire proceeds from which will go toward paying a note on several of the most valuable and interesting specimens at the zoo.

Actors Applauded

The play, which had proven its popularity at previous performances, drew highest praise with the applause Thursday night. At several points, the progress of the comedy was interrupted when particularly excellent character portrayal was shown by the members of the cast. Frederick Newth, as arrogant and argumentative Cousin Henry, was superb in his part and Jerry Moffett as William van Luyn, the millionaire, displayed excellence in every detail of his part. Joan Thayer, played by Dorothy Campbell, and Helen Thayer, played by Mrs. Ewing Watkins, were both exceptional in their parts. Hermione Vaughn and H. H. Ferrell made the perfect mother and father of the family and Raymond Strong, as Frank, Fay Helen Rackley, as Sally van Luyn, and J. W. Whitelow as Tom Gibney, were excellent in their smaller roles.

The Little Theater donated its services for the benefit and the city gave use of the auditorium. The stage hands, members of the union, also donated their services. Programs and tickets were provided through the courtesy of the Humphrey and Raley Printing companies.

The Playground band, under the direction of Paul Seeds, Friday afternoon went about the business section of the city playing on all the corners and carrying large posters advertising the zoo benefit play. Several of the animals which the city would have lost had not the benefit proved successful accompanied the band on two large trucks. The police department loaned the patrol wagon, in which a baboon, several monkeys and the kangaroo were caged. On another truck were birds and monkeys.

Many of the civic organizations of Wichita Falls joined in the ticket selling campaign Friday and interest was roused in the benefit through the cooperation of citizens and the sponsors of the program. The campaign was staged under the direction of T. J. Waggoner Jr., chairman of the ticket committee for the Wichita Falls Zoological society.

'Who Killed Marlow and Uale?' 'The Traffic Is Fine,' Says Whalen

CHICAGO, Dec. 27. (UP)—Police Commissioner Grover C. Whalen of New York arrived in Chicago today, boutoniere and all, "to see how traffic moved."

Semi-official announcement in New York previously had said Whalen hurried here to establish identity of the Chicago gunman believed to be the killer of Frank Marlow and Frankie Uale, New York gang leaders.

Delegations of police officials and hordes of reporters and photographers went to the station consequently to meet Whalen and learn at last the name of the suspect, rumored to be almost any one of a dozen Chicago gangland characters.

Whalen had left the train at suburban station however, and had taken a taxicab to his Michigan boulevard hotel. Considerable sleuth work on the part of newspapermen revealed him in his room there several hours later, lounging at ease in a blue ensemble from socks to necktie.

"Who killed Marlow and Uale?" he was asked.

"I was surprised at the alacrity with which traffic moved," Whalen replied. "Your boulevard traffic light systems are unusually efficient."

"What about this combination of Chicago and New York police to fight intergang warfare?" another questioner interposed.

"In spite of the slushy snow, the taxicab made good time, especially through the loop," Whalen continued. "I want to take some of your traffic methods back to New York with me when I return Sunday."

Whalen ignored in a similar fashion all other questions concerning what he knew about the relations of Uale and "Scarface" Al Capone, notorious Chicago hoodlum now in jail in Philadelphia.

"I am not here to investigate any crime," Whalen vowed. He admitted however, that he would confer later with Police Commissioner William F. Russell and Mayor William Hale Thompson.

Whalen was accompanied by Thomas Malone, his secretary, John Linb, a detective, and Commissioner William E. Walsh.

BRAZIL HOUSE SKIPS MEETING

Session Deferred to Quell Flare-Ups Over Killing

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 27. (INS)—The Brazilian chamber of deputies did not hold its scheduled morning session today to avoid any flare-ups which might result from the slaying of Deputy Souza Filho on the chamber floor yesterday by one of his colleagues, Deputy Simoes Lopes.

Meanwhile the government redoubled its efforts to keep order in order that the smouldering undercurrent of resentment in Republican circles might not flare up into flame.

In a confession, Lopes admitted having killed Filho in an argument which grew out of long-standing political differences. However, he is said to have defended his act by stating he fired only after Filho had threatened his son, Luiz, who was also in the argument, with a revolver.

All newspapers here joined in decrying the shooting which was the first ever to occur in the chamber.

OKLA. BANKER QUITS RESERVE

Davis Institution Takes State Charter

DAVIS, Okla., Dec. 27. (AP)—Declaring it was necessary for his bank to leave the federal reserve system or go out of business, H. S. Emmerson, president of the National bank of Davis, announced today the institution would surrender its national charter and become a state bank effective Jan. 1.

Demand of a federal examiner for a 75 per cent reduction in local loans of the bank precipitated the decision to quit the reserve system, Emmerson said.

"Federal banking has reached a point where we must withdraw or quit business," he asserted.

Emmerson said he had protested the examiner's action through W. B. Pine and Pine had told him the plight of the Davis bank was characteristic of banking conditions existing generally throughout the state.

The Davis banker said the federal examiner had ordered his bank to cut its local loans from $175,000 to not more than $40,000. Emmerson said he protested such action probably would work a hardship on his community, and the examiner replied:

"To hell with the community; you are here to make money."

The banker said his institution had deposits of approximately $300,000 and a capital of $25,000 when the examiner made his demand.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 27. (US)—The entire fire department of Caracal, Rumania, has been placed under arrest because its members refused to leave their annual dinner to fight a blaze that nearly destroyed the city.

The fire station, containing all the available fire-fighting apparatus, was itself burned down while the firemen dined at an inn and distracted citizens battled gallantly to save their homes. Appeal after appeal was sent to the dining firemen, but they obstinately refused to leave the meal until they had finished their coffee.
