45,000 SEE BATTLE

Sensational Hun Hammers Out Bloody Victory In Last Rounds

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW York, June 27. (AP)—The rising might of Max Schmeling swept tonight over the rock ribbed figure of Paulino Uzcudun, and left the sturdy Basque a punch battered wreck along his path to the world heavyweight championship.

For 15 rounds, before a crowd of 45,000 that half filled the big American league ball park the flashing young Teuton cut and slashed at Paulino's head and body, bulled and chased him about the ring and left him at the end a gory shattered figure with nothing but courage. There were no knockdowns, but the lifting of Schmeling's hand in signal of victory at the close was just a gesture.

Basque Badly Beaten

For the last six rounds, the only question in the minds of the faithful who gathered for the first heavyweight extravaganza of the open air season was Paulino's ability to weather the storm of leather that flew at him from all angles, slashed his features, closed his left eye, and left the wood chopper's face as bumpy and irregular as his own Pyrennes in Spain.

Only in the early rounds was there a semblance of a contest and a slow one at that, as the Teuton, sticking to a methodical battle plan, met Paulino's rushes with straight lefts to the head usually hidden behind a barrage of gloves and elbows. The stumpy Spaniard stalked forward, body bent, peering through his shaggy brows, and waited for the opening in Schmeling's defense that never came.

For a time it seemed that Paulino was biding time, taking punishment with the ease for which he is famous, waiting until the German tired and gave him the opportunities he wanted. But Max never tired. He got faster, more eager and more deadly. In the end he made a gory picture of misery of the proud Spaniard.

Paulino never has been knocked out, never even knocked down, but as the full fury of Schmeling's attack broke about his sore and bloody head in the sixth round it seemed that tonight the record was to be broken.

German Batters Opponent

Max opened up in the ninth round, and set out to end the battle. He stopped leaning defensively into Paulino in the clinches, slugged with the big Spaniard in the open, and constantly ripped in short, lacerating punches that almost tore the Spaniard's features apart.

Gamely, like a tired man bucking a gale of wind, Paulino leaned into a storm that increased in intensity with each round. Always the action was the same as the German, scenting the kill, lathered Paulino's torn features with punches, pouring in leather in the attempt to reach the vital spot.

Schmeling was so anxious to bring the matter to a decisive close that he kept his fists at work on the Spaniard's head after the bell sounded to end the 14th round. The worn Basque lifted his battered head, brought his hands back to fighting position and tried to carry on, too, but the effort was too great and he fell helpless in his chair while Referee Arthur Donovan pulled Schmeling away.

How Would You Like A Five-Day Vacation By Air?

Marjorie Mathis, girl reporter of The Record News, will leave Wichita Falls Friday morning on a S. A. F. E. plane for a five-day airplane vacation tour of the country between Wichita Falls and St. Louis.

Miss Mathis is being sent on the "vacation tour," the first of its kind in this section, not with the idea of showing air travel to be cheaper, but to show just how much one can see and do in a brief period of time at a comparatively low cost.

Both Sides Claim Victory in Raley Suit Against County for $18,000

Jury Returns Verdict on 33 Special Issues in Case; Judge Cook to Hear Arguments

The outcome of the second trial of Guy C. Raley's $18,000 suit against the county remained in doubt late Thursday afternoon when a jury in the 78th district court returned its answers to the 33 special issues involved. Both sides claimed the victory and announced that motions for judgment, based on answers to certain of the 33 questions, would be filed before Judge W. W Cook in the immediate future.

No date for the hearing on arguments on the opposing motions has yet been set. Attorneys said that the jury's answers corresponded closely to those returned in a similar suit brought by M. L. Tittle, former tax collector, and their arguments for judgment would probably follow lines similar to the ones developed at that time. Judge Cook awarded Mr. Tittle a $13,000 judgment which has been appealed.

Attorneys Divided

Harvey Harris, special counsel for the county, and Wayne Somerville, county attorney, based their claim for judgment on the fact that the jury decided that the county commissioners court did not make an agreement promising to refund to the tax collector the delinquent tax commissions for which he is suing. They also claim victory in the jury's holding that the money was voluntarily paid into the county treasury and that the collector did not relie upon the promise of the court for a refund. The defense also claims to have scored in the fact that the verdict declared that certain notices sent out by the tax collector did not contain sufficient date for the filing of suits and the obtaining of valid judgments against the delinquent property owners.

Seeks $18,000

On the other hand T. R. Boone, attorney for Mr. Raley, declared that his client had won the case because the jury held that the county judge did make an agreement to return the money; that Mr. Raley did send out notices to delinquent property owners; that reports were filed with the comptroller and copies were furnished the county attorney. The verdict also held that the tax collector had collected the delinquent taxes claimed and turned the money, with the commissions, into the county treasury.

Mr. Raley is asking for a refund of commissions on delinquent taxes he claims to have collected during the years 1923 and 1925. His claim is based on a supreme court decision which last December held invalid a legislative act repealing a 5 per cent commission formerly granted to collectors. The collector claims to have paid the money into the county treasury with the understanding that it would be remitted should the legal questions involved be decided in his favor.

NIX IS DENIED VENUE CHANGE

Poison Death Jury to Be Selected Today

BOSTON, Texas, June 27. (AP)—A change of venue for Ocie Nix, 29, Bowie county farmer charged with the fatal poisoning of his wife, Vinitia Nix, 17, 19 days ago, was denied here late today. Selection of jurors for the trial was ordered by Judge George Johnson to start tomorrow.

The probability that Nix will plead insanity in the alleged poisoning was foreseen when defense attorneys introduced a statement by Nix's mother in a motion for postponement.

The statement of the youth's mother went into the record as what she would have said had she been able to attend court. She declared her son had been mentally deranged since 1925, when a physical disability affected his mind. She said he could not foresee the consequences of any act he might commit.

After three motions for postponement had been overruled, the three state-appointed defense attorneys entered the plea for change of venue.

Nix, who in an alleged confession was said to have admitted giving his wife a poison pill 10 days ago, appeared in court under heavy guard. He apparently was shaken by the report of the state chemist that poison had been found in Mrs. Nix's viscera.

First reports from the E. C. Stovall gusher No. 12, Stovall in the South Bend pool in Young county which came in late Wednesday afternoon with an estimated production between 3,000 to 4,000 barrels underestimated the flow, and after a six-hour gauge taken Thursday the well was flowing natural at the rate of 5,500 barrels. The well which came in unexpectedly increasing its flow each hour from leakage around the control head.

SMUGGLING ON BORDER BARED

When Texan Investigated He Got Fired, He Says

SAN ANTONIO, June 27. (AP)—Thirty days after Col. P. J. Hennessey recommended an investigation into the lack of cooperation between federal departments in this area he was informed that he was to be relieved from his post as coordinator of the eighth corps area, he testified today at the U. S. senate patronage committee investigation.

Colonel Hennessey said that immediately after his appointment as coordinator he began investigating law enforcement. He was informed, he declared, that liquor, narcotics and aliens were being smuggled into the United States over the 1,300 miles of Rio Grande border.

Dissension had developed between William A. Whalen, superintendent of the district immigration office in San Antonio, and Roy Campbell, customs collector at Laredo, and the differences increased when the border patrol was established, the witness said.

In September of 1927 he wrote the chief coordinator at Washington, suggesting an investigation to increase cooperation, since "all laws can be enforced if there is proper cooperation and coordination," Hennessey declared. A month later he was informed that he was to be removed from his position.

"I heard it said that Roy Campbell boasted he had put the skids under me," Colonel Hennessey said.

Hennessey's testimony was intended to show, it was claimed, that unsatisfactory handling of patronage had resulted in poor cooperation.

CHEERS GREET VOTE

Land Office Commissioner Surrounded by Friends At Climax

AUSTIN, June 27. (AP)—Impeachment charges proposed in the house against J. T. Robison, state land commissioner, were dismissed by vote of the membership late today, 80 to 37.

Proposals to reprimand and censure him were voted down prior to final action on the "exoneration" resolution, proposed yesterday by representative Coke R. Stevenson of Junction and many others.

Report Adopted

Representative A. P. Johnson of Carrizo Springs was author of the resolution to censure and reprimand him for his "careless and indiscreet handling" of the one-million-an-acre reappraisement fund subscribed by land owners to pay the expenses incident to revaluing state lands. It was voted down 83 to 34.

Representative Olan Van Zandt of Tioga proposed preferment of articles of impeachment to be filed with the senate, sitting as a court, but his proposition was defeated 80 to 34.

The first vote was by the house sitting as a committee of the whole. Later, the committee of the whole reported its findings to the house proper and it was adopted 80 to 37.

Pandemonium Reigns

As the electric bulbs flashed results on the voting board a whoop went up and the result was barely out of Speaker W. S. Barron's mouth that pandemonium broke loose.

Mr. and Mrs. Robison, sitting at the counsel table, were surrounded by relatives and friends. Mr. Robison shook hands with his attorneys and members of the house clustered about him. He visibly was pleased although apparently worn out by the long ordeal.

The climax came after a long day of arguments by five attorneys, supplemented by debate on the part of house members and many points of order and parliamentary inquiries. The final vote was taken at 8:10 p. m. after a continuous session from 9:30 a. m. with one and one-half hours off for lunch.

Mr. Robison, 67, has been com-

JUST THE Baer Facts

By Bugs Baer

NEW YORK, June 27. (US)—Paulino and Schmeling present the amazing spectacle of two husky Europeans smacking each other around for what may prove to be the championship of America.

America has educated Europe in the manly art of selfish defense.

Personally, we don't like our leather business in the rough.

But, the lessons you learn in boxing will stand you in good stead in later years.

We once boxed as an amateur in the Skuylkill navy over in Philadelphia. But we had a nose that had learned the art of picking off punches in mid-air.

The first prize for these amateur tournaments was a watch. After the first punch we decided we didn't need a watch as we could tell time by the stars.

Fifteen years after that we were congratulated for rushing into a burning building and saving an old man who was much hampered by his rescuer.

The fire chief remarked, "That was great. How did you do it?"

"Easy," we replied. "The air is always cooler and fresher near the floor."

"Where did you learn that?" asked the chief.

"In the ring," we said.

That's a lesson we never forgot. Whether it is a fire or a fight, the air is always better near the floor.

There may be a chance of either Paulino or Schmeling discovering the same thing. If that happens, we advise them to follow the famous example set by Mr. Tunney in Chicago.

Take advantage of every minute you are on the canvas.

Both Schmeling and Paulino are likeable young thumpers and there will be no interference in their transplanted war.

Outside of what they do to each other they will be just as safe as a bottle of liquor in an embassy.

We would not like to fight either one. A much healthier occupation would be going to sea on a bass fiddle.

We trust that this fight will be the means of bringing either Tunney or Dempsey back into the scarred circle. America taught Europe how to use its fists.

True that England taught America the manly art of claiming fouls, but England is now rocking on its heels with Bombardier Wells and other lullaby heavyweights.

Championships are an industry which must be controlled by America. Rather than see the pennant go to Spain or Germany, we will get down the old boxing shoes, put them on and run until they are worn out.

YO-YO TOURNEY OPENS TODAY

Marathon Contestants To Start at 8 o'Clock

Yo-yo, the fad of the hour, will have the spotlight turned full upon it Friday morning at 8 o'clock when the city-wide marathon yo-yoing contest begins at Bellevue park. Anyone appearing at the starting post, as the official yo-yo director gives the signal to unleash the prancing toys, will be eligible for the prizes which have been donated by local merchants.

Several names have already been entered in the lists, but with a record of nearly 70,000 spins to be broken, C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, sponsor of the contest, has announced that entries will be received up until the moment of starting. Names of any desiring to enter the feature events to be staged at Bellevue park Friday night will likewise be received at any time before the contest. Names may be turned in at the office of the park department by telephoning 2-2183 or may be given to C. C. Frazee, who will direct the marathon test.

The completion of the endurance run will be held at the Kemp and Holt hotels, the contestants yo-yoing through town and dividing into two sections, one going to the lobby of each of the hotels. The present world's record required 16 hours. If any of the local yo-yoers can endure the grilling of a 16-hour spin, Wichita Falls may lay claim to a new championship. In case none of the entries last that long, the prize winners will be announced and presented with their prizes at the termination of the events Friday night.

The more intricate and dexterous performers in America's latest and most fascinating national pastime will be given an opportunity to demonstrate their knack with the mischievous toy in the nine events scheduled for the evening. There will be prizes in the following contests: The greatest number of tricks, the most yo-yos at one time, the youngest, oldest, best out-of-town and best left-handed yo-yoers, the yo-yo with the longest string and the largest and smallest yo-yos. The Playground band, under the direction of Paul Seeds, will provide music for the events of the night.

Prizes ranging from vanities and hose for girls to baseballs and fountain pen sets for boys, with worthwhile orders for merchandise from several stores in between, have been donated by the following local merchants: Kruger Jewelry company, Zale's Jewelry store, Kirby's Jewelry store, Slipperland, Kimberlin's, Wage's store, McClurkan's, Williford Harrison Drug company, Renfro Drug company, Woolworth's, Kress', City Laundry company, Sauf's store, Hub Clothiers, Sears-Roebuck company, Art Jewelry store, Model clothiers, Montgomery-Ward company, and Ludlam and Riggs.

In Holland all Christian names after the first are taxed.

Mr. Adair assumes his publicity duties July 1, but will spend part of the time in Wichita Falls, where the office of the Oil and Gas bureau will be maintained in the Hamilton building.

Succeeds Whitehead

Mr. Adair succeeds E. H. Whitehead, who has held the publicity post for the past four years. Whitehead goes to the South Texas Chamber of Commerce as assistant manager, where he plans to conduct an extensive publicity campaign for South Texas. He plans to take up those duties immediately.

The new publicity manager for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is a newspaper man of wide experience. He was for many years with the Dallas Times-Hehald, later engaged in the weekly newspaper game and then in a small town daily and in this way became acquainted with the work of the press in its various phases. For almost two years he was publicity manager for the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce and resigned that place to become manager of the Oil and Gas division of the West Texas organization. With this organization he handled the publicity for the two last conventions, the one here and the one in Fort Worth.

Board is Named

Following the resignation of Mr Wade several weeks ago, the board of directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce at a meeting in Abilene last week elected President Bourland to act as manager of the organization until after the annual convention which will be held in El Paso in October A. Mr. Bourland's request the advisory board of four was named and it is planned for meetings to be held from time to time for a discussion of the various problems confronting West Texas. It is expected a statement will be issued by President Bourland and the advisory board within the next few days, setting forth the policies of the organization and the program which it is desired to put into effect.

In his new duties Mr. Adair will have charge of "West Texas Today," the official monthly magazine of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, as well as direct the publicity work from the Stamford office.

COPENHAGEN, June 27. (UP)—The international anti-prohibition congress, with some 300 delegates from 18 countries, opened here today and was addressed by Premier Th. (CQ) Stauning, an American delegate and a Finnish delegate.

Premieur Stauning, in his speech of welcome, said that all must agree that laws which are to decide the citizens' way of living in respect to consumption of liquor must be the result of close investigation with reference to the general social effect.

These men don't need sympathy—they need information. They need to be told that WAGES' Summer suits of TROPICAL WORSTEDS have about half the weight and half the warmth of the suits they usually wear.

And if they think that these Summer suits don't have style . . . that they won't hold their shape . . . we have another pleasant surprise for them.

TASTE above everything

Taste shows, in Chesterfield, in the tobaccos we buy—aromatic leaf of good "body," free from harshness, high in natural sugar, mild, ripe. It shows, too, in the way we blend and "cross-blend" them.

Most of all, it shows in the way men stick to Chesterfields—for that's final proof of taste!

COUNTY GARDEN WINNER NAMED

Victory, Okla., Woman in First Place

Special to The Record News

ALTUS, Okla., June 27.—Mrs. John Bauman of Victory has been awarded first place in the state garden contest in Jackson county on arrangement and condition of her garden, according to scores compiled in the office of the county home demonstration agent.

The final county judging will be Nov. 1 when reports are sent in stating the yield and a complete outline of the canning budget as it was followed by the individual gardener.

The first scoring merely indicates the condition of the garden at the present time.

Refuting all ideas that successful truck gardening cannot be carried on in this state, Mrs. Bauman has 35 different varieties of vegetables in her garden. Her only perrenial is asparagus, but others include pole, snap beans, bush snap and lima beans, beets, collards, cauliflower, sweet corn, cow peas, cucumbers, muskmelons, onions, okra, parsnips, peanuts, sweet peppers, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes, New Zealand spinach, squash, Swiss chard, turnips, tomatoes, watermelons, pumpkins, Kahl Rabi, ground cherries, garden peas, kale, lettuce, mustard, radishes and summer spinach.

Mrs. T. L. Harris of Friendship placed second, Mrs. A. Curry of Warren, third, and Mrs. J. B. Cupp of Warren, fourth.

Frederick Officials 'Up in The Air' Over Airport

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., June 27.—City officials and others interested in a landing field are "still up in the air" over the matter, it developed Tuesday night, when this matter was discussed at a regular meeting of the council. It was reported the committee from the chamber of commerce to help select a site is waiting for the city council to start something.

Major Joe Rogers said if the present fair grounds could be sold the money could be used in buying a site so that it could not be necessary for a bond election to be held for this purpose.

Councilman A. G. Noel said the fairgrounds and landing fleid ought to be together. He said the county commissioners were of the same opinion.

Confederate Vet, 83, Puts Thug to Flight

AUSTIN, June 27. (INS)—Holdup men should take into consideration the resistance a victim is likely to offer before they continue with any proposed hi-jacking. Still, most any holdup man would hardly think that an 83-year-old Confederate veteran would, or could, offer much resistance. One found that out recently, however, when he attempted to force J. B. Tant, inmate of the Confederate home here, to hand over his money at the point of a gun. Tant only had 15 cents in his pocket but he refused to give that up and he refused so firmly that, with the aid of J. D. Rhodes, another 83-year-old veteran, he was able to put the hi-jacker, a negro, to flight.

'Back-to-Nature' Idea Sends Negro To Hospital Bed

HOUSTON, June 27. (INS)—Dee James, 27, negro, of Houston, became convinced that "back-to-nature" was the only life, so Dee began putting his belief into practice. Dee's first appearance as an exponent of the movement ended disastrously for him, regardless of whether his belief was shaken after the experience.

Appearing suddenly in a community of his race without any raiment at all, Dee mounted a box and began preaching the beneficial effects to be derived from such a practice. As was calculated, he did not have to beg for an audience. They flocked around him in ever increasing numbers. There were doubters—then dissenters. An ominous rumble rose from the multitude, a brick hurtled through the air and landed directly behind the preacher. Then the storm broke.

Strong hands were laid on the apostle of physical freedom; he was dragged from his rostrum and immediately became the object of the wrath of several hundred irate members of his audience.

When the police arrived, Dee—or what was Dee—was placed in an ambulance and taken to a hospital, where, at last report, Dee was resting as well as could be expected in his fully clothed state. For the exponent of "back-to-nature" was wearing bandages calculated to cover him completely from head to foot—as was found necessary upon his arrival at the hospital.

Surprise Linen Shower Honors Bride-Elect at Home of Mrs. Riesen

A compliment of Thursday afternoon to Miss Mary Jo Hackbusch, whose marriage to Henry J. Stricker Jr. of Waco will take place Saturday at 1 o'clock at the Church of the Good Shepherd, was the surprise linen shower given by Mrs. Louis Riesen at her home, 1905 Tilden street. She was assisted in receiving by Mesdames L. P. Nolen, F. T. Datson and O. Morgan.

Pastel shades predominated in decorations of the living room and were repeated in plate favors for the guests of small sweet pea corsages. A larger bridal corsage was the favor for the honoree, who also received beautiful linen pieces in a May basket decorated with tulle bows. Little Patsy Sue Bailes, niece of the bride-elect, presented the basket of gifts to her.

Guests for the occasion were Mesdames Gene Graham, Maurice Stevens, William Bratton, J. R. Martin, Paul Pond, Gerald Pond, R. A. Lincoln, George Bodkin, Leo Sellers, Charles Pogenpohl, L. P. Nolen, F. T. Datson, O. Morgan and Chester R. Bailes; Misses Grace Downing, Mary Florence Porterfield, Lorene Tucker and Patsy Sue and Marion Bailes.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

NEW YORK, June 27. (US)—Women are buying more and more clothes. Each year the output is about 15 per cent more than the year before. They buy them supposedly to wear, but—what do you suppose they do with them?

The report is that men are buying fewer and fewer clothes, the decrease being about one and a half per cent per year annually.

If the women buy more the men have to buy less. All the money is spent, and what is left after (statistically) $1,494,401,044 is spent for clothes by the women, is given to the men. Any American woman will tell you that's fair enough.

A woman in Norwalk, Conn., sues a man of 72, with grandchildren, for breach of promise. He promised at 62. She wants $50,000.

Wouldn't it be simply awful? I mean it really would for her, if he decided to marry her? So disappointing!

It's alwayys a balm suit. Balm, balm, balm, all summer and all winter. The women seem to be going completely balmy.

What is it?

Balm is what a woman wants so that she can live easier. It is something for nothing. It is the jingle of gold instead of the ringing of wedding bells, which to the kind of woman who wold ask it, is a much prettier noise.

Irene Castle doesn't want dogs called "Mutts," and she got very angry when a boy called one that in court.

It used to be all right until they got to calling people mutts roguishly and it won't do for dogs any more.

Joe's wife has a phobia for bugs. If she knows there is a moth or a gnat or a fly or a June bug or anything else with wings in the room, she can't go to sleep. She gets up and chases it and she won't go to bed until she gets it.

The other night her husband was sleeping soundly, having got used to his nightly performance. He didn't mind her moving about the room hurriedly, and hitting at things. But he had fallen asleep when all of a sudden he felt a terrible wet smack on his face. It was like a terrible nightmare. He jumped up ready to fight. (He is Irish).

"There," shouted his wife, "I got him."

The fact that one hard working husband's night's rest was interrupted meant nothing. Nothing at all. But on the bed lay the corpse of a great moth miller that had just then shaken off his mortal coil. He too had been wet smacked but he didn't have to try to go to sleep all over again.

There are less important things than being a husband.

I don't know what.

Work Panacea For 'What Ails Women,' Says Dorothy Dix

"It Is Generally Regarded as a Great Misfortune When a Woman Has to Do Any Useful Labor—But Instead of Work Being a Curse to Women, It Is a Universal Panacea for What Ails Them."

Why do we regard work as a blessing for men and a curse for women? We are filled with contempt for a man who is a loafer and an idler, but we have no such feeling about the woman loafer and idler. On the contrary, it is generally regarded as a great misfortune when a woman has to do any useful labor and that the most enviable lot of a member of the female sex is to spend her life sitting on a silk cushion and feeding upon strawberries, sugar and cream like the heroine of the fairy tale.

In order to keep their wives and daughters from working, innumerable men work themselves to death. When a girl has to earn her own living her mother sheds tears of pity over her and bemoans the sad fate of Sadie or Katie. When a woman's husband dies or deserts her and she is left without money our chief commiseration is not because of the hurt to her heart she has sustained, but because she will have to go to work. We even speak of the self-supporting girl as "a poor working girl."

How we ever got this way, Heaven alone knows. Probably the idea that a woman should not do anything more strenuous than ply a needle originated in the days when women were such frail creatures that they swooned away if they more than paced around a garden and when they were esteemed to have so few brains that they had to ask some man to tell them what they thought they thought.

But the theory that women should not work is incongruous enough in these days when girls are just as husky as their brothers, and when just as many of them take college degrees and more of them go through high school. Now it is as shameful for an able-bodied woman not to be doing her share of the world's work as it is for a man to renege on his.

As a matter of fact, instead of work being a curse to women it is a universal panacea for what ails them bodily, mentally and spiritually, and there is not one of us who cannot testify to the miracles that we have seen it work. For with our own eyes we have beheld it cure the sick, cast out the devils of morbidity and turn the sour-tempered sweet.

There is no other such prescription in all materia medica for obtaining and retaining health as work. The women who fill sanatariums and hospitals, who enrich nerve specialists and fill the waiting rooms in doctors' offices are the idle rich women who have nothing to do but coddle themselves and search their systems for symptoms of mysterious diseases.

The women who are well and strong are the busy mothers with a house full of children who work about 14 hours a day cooking and scrubbing and sewing and babytending and who have no time even to think about how they feel themselves. Or they are the business women who have to hold down their jobs, who keep healthy because they can't afford the luxury of being sick.

I had a friend, a wealthy woman, who was a bedridden invalid for 20 years when her poor husband, worn out with nursing her, died, and it was found that his estate was insolvent. Whereupon the sick lady rose from her couch and started a big boarding house and apparently never had another ache or pain. Work cured her completely.

Nor is there any other such potent weapon with which you can fight off old age as work. The thing that makes women look old is the dulling of the eyes, the lackluster gaze, the slouching of the figure, the fretful wrinkles that come about the mouth.

The woman who works has none of these and that is why she looks about 10 years younger than her idle sister. Her eyes are keen with the light of competition in them, for she is up on her tiptoes fighting for success. She is alert in her bearing and quick in her movements because she is intent on her purpose and eager to arrive. She has no wrinkles about her mouth because she has to wear the smile that won't come off and besides her face has been lifted by cheerfulness instead of by a plastic surgeon.

Work is the one sure cure-all for all discontent. The world is full of whining, fretful women who have wishbones instead of backbones, who are never satisfied with what they have and always longing for something else. They crave a better way of living than their fathers or their husbands can give them. They long for pretty clothes, for a car or to travel, to have the things that money buys. Often these thwarted desires make them bitter and envious and a torment for all those who have to live with them.

I have known a woman like this, in whom the milk of human kindness seemed to have turned into clabber, changed into an amiable and agreeable and helpful woman by getting a good job that gave her scope for her energies and use for her really brilliant mind, that took away from her the feeling of galling dependence on her relatives and that enabled her to earn the money to gratify her tastes. It is work that has changed old maids from the dreaded pests of society into its most esteemed and admired members.

And work is the only balm for sorrow. The only anodyne for grief is to fill your hands and your mind so full of work that you can think of nothing else. Absorb yourself in some occupation that will give you new interests to think about, new problems to meet. It is because women have been idle that they broke their hearts.

And work will do more than all the Ten Commandments to keep women in the strait and narrow path and prevent their committing follies. It is the rich women with nothing to do but hunt thrills who play with gigolos and cake-eaters. It is the idle women who discover that their husbands are not their affinities, or that their husbands have ceased to love them because they have quit bringing them orchids and quoting poetry to them. The busy women have something more important to do than always to be analyzing themselves and vivisecting their husbands.

So, ladies, if you want to keep healthy, happy and young, try the work cure. It never fails.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

Woman Has a Civic Duty

Twelve years ago we women—a great many of us—were agitated by the necessity of obtaining equal suffrage.

We spent any amount of time and effort in speechmaking, argument and parades.

Some of us were actuated by the feeling that we had as much right as a man to vote and others of us sincerely deplored existing political evils and believed that our active influence would do much to correct them.

We were all ardent. We were [illegible] And we won our point.

Now ... equal suffrage is an established fact, what are we doing about it?

Look around you, take note how many of your friends put themselves to the trouble of registering and of going to the polls on election day. The summer-time is a good time to check up on yourself. Sit quietly down and figure out exactly what use we have made of the privilege acquired.

Most of us shrug our shoulders, say that one vote more or less doesn't matter; that graft and corruption will always be inseparable from politics.

We are too lazy to pursue our political education. Home, children, social life are more absorbing interests. Too often we sneer at those women who are politically alert, remarking that their husbands and babies would fare better if they themselves spent more time in the kitchen. This serves to justify our own indolence.

No mother is a good mother unless she interests herself in community well-being.

She may slave for her children 24 hours a day and she is still neglectful if at the same time she omits to keep an eye on civic betterment.

It is of no use for her to sterilize and scrub and clean within her home unless the town's sanitation is good. It is not enough for her to purchase only the freshest and most perfect foods for her family when the city's water supply is polluted. All her moral teachings go for nothing if her boys and girls are brought up in a community where vice runs rampant.

Very dirty pans?
No, very hard water

THE pots and pans weren't very greasy. But the water was hard. It mixed with the soap, and formed scum! How could pots and pans get clean? They just had to stay greasy! They needed a cleaner!

That was before Melo's time. Now hard water, softened with Melo, becomes a very fine cleaner, with or without soap. Dirty ring? Scum? Grease? All gone. Soap much more effective! Pots and pans? Shiny and gleaming! At 10c a can you can afford to buy three—one for the kitchen, laundry, and bathroom.

'POOR WORKING GIRL' TELLS OF 'DADDY' HARDINGE'S GIFTS

TULSA BEAUTY LEAVES STAND

Balm Seeker Denies She Was 'Gold Digger'

By RAY C. WHITTAKER

CHICAGO, June 27. (US)—Ann Livingston, 29-year-old Tulsa divorcee, left the stand in her $250,000 heart balm suit against Franklin S. Hardinge, 63-year-old millionaire, today the same "poor little working girl" despite efforts of counsel to label her a "gold digger."

All efforts to "cross her up," and to discredit her direct testimony, seemingly failed and the jury and crowd smiled with her as she turned back their sarcasm.

Standing Room Only

Such was the size of the crowd today that ropes were stretched from the judge's bench to the first row of spectators' seats on the side of the room opposite the jury box. The S. R. O. sign was out more than an hour before court opened this morning and the spectators postponed luncheon rather than lose their seats or stand-ups.

Defense counsel stressed three major points in cross-examination, namely:

First, the pre-nuptial contract in which Hardinge sought to settle $100,000 on his bride in lieu of dower rights.

Second, Hardinge's gifts to his fiancee, which brought him the name of "daddy" among the spectators, possibly because of "Daddy" Browning's gifts to "Peaches."

Third, Charles Nax, the St. Louis newspaperman.

Several Contracts Drawn

It developed that there were several contracts drawn and that all had been rejected by Miss Livingston. None of the contracts were admitted to evidence, or read, on objection of Miss Livingston's counsel. However, it was intimated that the basis for most of them concerned protecting Hardinge's fortune for his son and daughter and allowed the "poor little working girl" only $100,000 at his death.

Miss Livingston admitted that Hardinge had taken her on several "buying sprees." She said she "just couldn't keep him from buying her things."

Among the items, "a few little things" purchased, were:

A $200 dress, bought at an exclusive Michigan avenue shop.

One evening gown valued at $120.

A leopard-skin fur coat which cost $600.

An unset diamond—which tipped the scales at three and three-quarters carats. Ann "thought" it cost $650.

A pair of pajamas, $35.

Lingerie, $48.

"General Merchandise!"

General merchandise $500, purchased on an afternoon shopping party.

A pair of shoes $22.50—Ann was to have been married in them.

An evening wrap, $110.

Then there was pocket money. There was $10 one day, $20 another day, $100 another time, $100 for a wedding ring. And, Hardinge sent her $200 while she was in Tulsa, to pay a note due at a bank.

Ann denied that she took Hardinge's money—the spending money—to spend on herself.

Defense counsel suddenly swung from the financial to Nax. Ann was asked about a letter she wrote Nax asking him to come to Chicago.

Wrote to Scribe

"I wrote Mr. Nax," Ann replied, "and told him Mr. Hardinge and I planned to marry. He sent me a little clock. It was the only present I ever received from him.

She was asked if she still had any of Nax's letters. She replied that she was not sure but would look in her apartment and if she found any she would bring them to court tomorrow.

"I suppose you will want 11 kisses for them?" her counsel interposed.

Defense counsel turned a fiery red and objected but the judge grinned and made no effort to suppress laughter in the crowd.

Ann took another "crack" at defense counsel when Josephine Brand, the Hardinge housekeeper, bobbed back into the testimony.

"She said I had a funny shaped head," Miss Livingston testified.

"And what did Mr. Hardinge say?" ask — defense counsel.

'Perfectly Exquisite'

Ann looked at Hardinge, who was again sitting at the very edge of the witness box, with his hand cupped at his ear, and with a saucy tilt of her chin, said:

"He said that my head, like the rest of me, was perfectly exquisite."

Hardinge dropped his head, snorted silently and the crowd snickered. Defense counsel called it a day and excused the witness.

ANOTHER TULSA GIRL CLAIMS 'ACHING HEART'

TULSA, Okla., June 27. (UP)—Miss Muriel C. Standley, 29, of Tulsa, today asked $1,500,000 from an oil millionaire here, charging breach of promise, in the second such suit filed by a Tulsa girl recently.

Miss Standley's suit, similar to that by Miss Ann Livingston against a Chicago manufacturer, sets forth that they had traveled widely as man and wife during a three-year courtship in which R. A. Josey, president of the Josey Oil company, allegedly promised marriage.

After visiting Chicago, New York and Kansas City, the couple were to have married in Atlantic City, according to the plaintiff, a former Columbia university student, who said Josey promised to buy her $100,000 worth of jewelry. Later, the complaint asserts Josey was reported to have made a will to her for $1,000,000. Miss Standley said the defendant is worth $9,000,000.

Miss Standley charged Josey was too attentive to an 18-year-old Chicago girl and their engagement broken off. She married J. L. Crowell at Port Chester, N. Y., she said, while mentally unbalanced from the shock of her break with Josey. This marriage later was annulled.

SENATE VOTES TAX REFUNDS

Ancient Claim of Texan Is Denied

AUSTIN, June 27. (AP)—After lopping $66,265 from claims made against the state, represented largely by refunds on illegally collected taxes, the senate today passed a bill allowing $421,873 to cover accounts approved after investigations.

One of the items eliminated at the instance of Senator Tom DeBerry, Bogata, was a claim of heirs of Thomas F. McKinney, Galveston, who was purported to have been due $16,942 from the state for funds advanced when Texas was a republic.

Twenty claims made by farmers of Brewster county who were not allowed to raise cotton in 1928 on account of the pink boll worm quarantine were reduced from $24,896 to $12,448.

American Bar Head To Address Texans

BEAUMONT, June 27. (AP)—W. M. Crook, president of the Texas Bar association, announced today that he had received a message from Gurney E. Newlin of Los Angeles, president of the American Bar association, accepting an invitation to address the Texas state convention, which assembles in Amarillo July 4, 5 and 6.

Floods Leave 30,000 Homeless

LONDON, June 27. (UP)—The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Calcutta tonight described conditions resulting from the recent floods in the Northeastern areas as the most desperate in history.

The commissioner of Assam valley estimated that 20,000 persons had been driven from their homes in his district and that the flood in the Srma valley covers about 1,900 square miles.

The entire town of Salchar is under water and hundreds of persons have been reported dead. The food shortage is acute and relief operations have been so hindered that many refugees are facing starvation.

GANG ELUDES COPS

KANSAS CITY, June 27. (UP)—Trails had grown faint, police reported tonight, in their search for two escaped members of the gang of five men who fought a pistol battle here early Sunday.

BOY, 13, AND SISTER DROWN

Father Nearly Loses Life in Rescue Attempt

WACO, Texas, June 27. (AP)—George Dworsky, 13 and his sister, Helen Dworsky, 11, were drowned in the waters of Cottonwood creek, near West, late yesterday when the girl fell into the swimming pool and the brother, who could not swim, attempted to rescue her.

J. L. Dworsky, father of the pair, barely escaped. Although he could not swim a stroke, he went in after the two children and was taken out, almost unconscious, by Louis Gast, 20, who also rescued the bodies of the children.

TILLMAN COUNTY RECORD FOR WHEAT YIELD IS SHATTERED

36 BUSHELS TO ACRE IS MADE

Harvest Finished on Farm Near Grandfield

Special to The Record News

GRANDFIELD, Okla., June 27.—What is believed to be the largest yield of wheat made in Tillman county this year, is reported by R. A. Merritt, who raised a crop three miles north of Grandfield on the Frederick-Grandfield highway. A field of 15 acres averaged 36 bushels to the acre Merritt stated after he harvested the grain.

The wheat was of the Black Hull variety and was planted early last fall. The ground had been carefully prepared before the seed was put into it, according to Merritt.

Merritt is one of the most successful farmers of this community.

OKLA. GRAIN OFFICE PROBED

Abolition of Branch Is Advocated

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 27. (UP)—Abolition of the state grain inspector's branch and reorganization of the state market commissioner's office are recommended in the house investigating committee report on the department of agriculture. Harry Cordell is president of the board.

The report was submitted to the general investigating committee at 1 p. m. today and was filed by Herman Dittmer, chairman of the subcommittee.

The report charges illegal practices have been customary in the agriculture department. That these practices borne out by records and testimony studied indicate they not only afford corruption but invite corrupt practices, the report charged.

The report charged that names of field inspectors were signed to a blanket payroll by a departmental clerk instead of the inspector filing claims with affidavits attached in accordance with law. The report said that money could easily be paid persons not entitled to compensation through such "dummy entries." The report recommends that such practice be stopped immediately.

PROSPERITY IS STILL WITH US

Optimistic Report Issued As Usual

WASHINGTON, June 27. (UP)—The federal reserve board yesterday issued its monthly statement on business conditions, indicating that the United States is still stable on the prosperity wave.

"Industrial production continued large in May and was accompanied by a further increase in the volume of factory employment and payrolls," the statement said. "Output of the iron and steel industry increased further, and shipments of iron ore during May were the largest for that month of any recent year; production of pig iron, steel ingots, and coke was at record levels; and semi-finished and finished steel was produced in large volume.

Steel Output Big

"During the first half of June, steel operations remained close to capacity, although some declines from the high rate of May were reported. Output of automobiles, which has been in unusually large volume since the beginning of the year, showed a slight reduction in May.

"Value of building contracts awarded declined in May, and was below last year's level, the decrease in comparison with 1928 being chiefly in residential building. During the first two weeks in June contracts averaged 15 per cent less than in the same period in 1928.

"The volume of freight shipments increased seasonally in May and continued substantially above the total of a year ago. Department store sales increased in May and were 2 per cent larger than in the same month in th preceding year.

Wholesale Prices

"Wholesale prices continued in May the downward movement of the previous month. The decline of the general level was chiefly the result of price declines in agricultural products and their manufactures, although prices of other products also declined slightly. Prices of cotton and grains continued sharply downward in May and there were marked declines in the prices of hogs, wool, and lambs. Petroleum and gasoline, and iron and steel advanced in price, while in lumber there was a slight decline.

"Since the latter part of May prices of cattle and hides have advanced sharply and there have been increases in the prices of grains, hogs, and cotton."

Mexican Exiles On Journey Home

SAN ANTONIO, June 27. (UP)—Refugee Mexican Catholic churchmen from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana were here or en route to San Antonio today in preparation for the return to their native land. One group will leave tomorrow night, and the remainder will leave Monday.

Three bishops and 25 priests are in the San Antonio contingent, it was learned from Bishop Gerardo Anaya of Chiapas, secretary of the committee of the Mexican episcopate here. He was designated by Archbishop Ruiz y Flores to make arrangements for the return of the exiles who left Mexico when differences arose between church and state three years ago.

A three-day thanksgiving celebration was in session today.

Kaiser's Sister Seeks Advice About Divorce

PARIS, June 27. (UP)—Attorneys for Princess Victoria, wife of the Russian immigrant, Alexander Zubkoff, said today that the princess had interviewed her brother, the former German kaiser, at Doorne, Holland, in regard to proposals that she get a divorce. PISTOL SHOTS DISTURB MASS

Crazed Man Fires Volley At Worshippers

CHICAGO, June 26. (UP)—Worshippers at mass in a west side Catholic church were terrorized today, when a drink-crazed man stood in the aisle between rows of pews and fired four shots at the altar where Father Ansel Keenan was giving communion.

One of the bullets, which apparently was aimed at the priest, struck Richard Murphy, 29, a communicant, as he knelt at the altar rail. His injury is not serious, doctors said.

Charles D. Foster, the invader, aimed a fifth bullet at his own head but suffered only a scalp wound.

Father Keenan probably saved his own life when he threw himself to the floor as the bullets were fired into the sanctuary of the Our Lady of Sorrows church.

Women members of the congregation shrieked and sought refuge behind pews and pillars while several men grappled with Foster until he was subdued.

"I wanted to finish him and finish myself," Foster mumbled at a district police station. He imagined that he had wounded himself fatally and although he said he did not belong to the Catholic faith, asked that he be given the last sacraments.

"I was drunk when I got up this morning," Foster said. "I went to an Italian and bought some more whisky. I got the gun from him and paid him $15 for it. He loaded it for me and I left."

The priest told authorities that he was unacquainted with Foster and could ascribe no reason for the attempt of his life.

SCORES ATTEND DIXON RITES

Noted Scout's Body Is Returned to Battlefield

Special to The Record News.

BORGER, Texas, June 27.—Vows of respect and gratitude to Billy Dixon, renowned scout and Indian fighter, were sealed today by more than 500 residents of the Southwest when the remains of the straight-shooting pioneer were entombed in the ruins of the Adobe Walls fort, 25 miles from here, where his greatest fight was enacted 54 years ago.

Services held over the body, which for the last 16 years had lain in a cemetery at Texline, attracted friends of the old buffalo hunter and Masons from all over the Southwest. Judge H. E. Horner of Canadian, who met Billy Dixon 43 years ago, presided and was the principal speaker. Talks also were made by T. D. Hobart, president of the Panhandle Plains Historical society at Pampa, A. B. McDonald of the Kansas City Star, Dr. O. H. Simpson, Dodge City, Kan., and W. T. Coble, owner of the Turkey Track ranch.

The incident for which Dixon has been remembered was his leadership in the defense waged by a group of 28 white plainsmen in the Adobe Walls fort against a force of approximately 700 Comanches, Kiowas and Cheyennes. Chief Quanah Parker was among the chiefs commanding the Indians. On the morning of the third day of the battle, Billy Dixon dropped with a single bullet a defiant warrior who had taken his position upon the caprock 1,200 yards away. At that moment the remaining redskins became pacifists, and withdrew.

Five of Dixon's seven children, together with his widow, Mrs. Olive King Dixon of Miami, were present at the interment services here.

Kaiser Granted Right to Come Home On Eve of Tenth Peace Anniversary

BERLIN, June 27. (UP)—Tumultuous scenes in the reichstag today marked the defeat of a bill providing for the extension of the law of protection of the republic. Failure of the measure enables the former German kaiser to return to this country after July 28, without the government being able to prohibit.

The vote was 263 for extension of the law to 166 against it, with two absentees, but there was not a two-thirds majority as required for passage.

The defeat of the bill was due to a last-minute change of attitude by the Economic party, which was said to be dissatisfied with the outcome of voting on the land reform measure.

Announcement of the defeat caused Nationalist party members to cheer while the Socialists hissed. For a moment there was danger of an exchange of blows between Professor Bredt, the Economic party leader, and Deputy Breitscheid, the Socialist chief.

The government announced that a new law with the same aim as the defeated one will be introduced later.

There was absolutely no indication that the former kaiser has any intention of returning here from his exile at Doorne, but various factions of the nationalistic political parties have long openly advocated permission for his return.

MANIFESTO DENIES 'SOLE' WAR GUILT

BERLIN, June 27. (UP)—A government manifesto, denying absolutely that Germany bears "sole guilt" for the world war and signed by President Paul von Hindenburg and members of the cabinet, was issued tonight in connection with the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Versailles peace treaty.

The manifesto condemned terms of the Versailles treaty and was made public in connection with the great demonstrations against the "war guilt lie" planned in various German cities for the anniversary observance tomorrow.

MOVE TO OUST ROBISON FAILS

Impeachment Move Voted Down, 80 to 37

missioner of the land office for 20 years, having been elected 11 times. Prior to his elevation to be head of the office he was a clerk there for 14 years.

Office Investigated

Impeachment charges were proposed after an investigation of the land office by a joint legislative committee during the regular session last January. The controversy started last December when an effort was made by the governor, attorney general's department and board of regents of the University of Texas to have the commissioner postpone all sales of oil and gas rights in university lands he had advertised for January.

He agreed to the postponement of all except tracts aggregating about 58,000 acres which he maintained he was obliged to sell under a decision of the supreme court holding that when the commissioner had specific requests for land it was mandatory for him to advertise it.

An injunction was obtained by the board of regents restraining the sale, but this later was dissolved on final hearing in Travis county district court. An appeal now is pending in the supreme court.

Called 'Careless'

The investigation committee reported its findings to the first called session and recommended that Mr. Robison be reprimanded for his "careless" handling of the one-cent-an-acre fund and suggested that the attorney general file suit for an accounting of the fund. Hearing on the charges just dismissed was begun by the house on June 13.

Arguments were made by Robert B. Allen Sr. of Dallas and C. T. Freeman of Sherman, attorneys for the house in developing the charges and E. F. Smith of Austin and former Senator Lloyd Price and Dayton Moses of Fort Worth for Mr. Robison.

The Final Vote

The roll call vote to exonerate Robison follows:

PRYOR AMENDS RETRIAL PLEA

Jury Took "Average" For Term, Attorney Says

Charges that the jury which sentenced Ed Pryor, former Electra constable to eight years in the penitentiary arrived at that term "by lot" are contained in an amended motion for a new trial filed in the 89th district court late Thursday afternoon. The motion, which will be opposed by the district attorney's office, will be argued Friday afternoon or Saturday, Shields Heyser, attorney for Pryor, announced.

The motion as filed Thursday specifically alleges that each juryman set down his own opinion as to the number of years of punishment to be assessed; that these numbers were then added and divided by 12 to reach the eight-year term finally imposed.

The defendant also pleads for a new trial on the grounds of about 40 exceptions to the rulings of the court and to the court's charge.

Pryor was convicted as an accomplice to Henry Shumate in the robbery of the Grand theater in Electra last summer, during his term of office as constable in that city.

OKLA. GRAIN OFFICE PROBED

Abolition of Branch Is Advocated

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 27. (UP)—Abolition of the state grain inspector's branch and reorganization of the state market commissioner's office are recommended in the house investigating committee report on the department of agriculture. Harry Cordell is president of the board.

The report was submitted to the general investigating committee at 1 p. m. today and was filed by Herman Dittmer, chairman of the subcommittee.

The report charges illegal practices have been customary in the agriculture department. That these practices borne out by records and testimony studied indicate they not only afford corruption but invite corrupt practices, the report charged.

The report charged that names of field inspectors ware signed to a blanket payroll by a departmental clerk instead of the inspector filing claims with affidavits attached in accordance with law. The report said that money could easily be paid persons not entitled to compensation through such "dummy entries." The report recommends that such practice be stopped immediately.

PROSPERITY IS STILL WITH US

Optimistic Report Issued As Usual

WASHINGTON, June 27. (UP)—The federal reserve board yesterday issued its monthly statement on business conditions, indicating that the United States is still stable on the prosperity wave.

"Industrial production continued large in May and was accompanied by a further increase in the volume of factory employment and payrolls," the statement said. "Output of the iron and steel industry increased further, and shipments of iron ore during May were the largest for that month of any recent year; production of pig iron, steel ingots, and coke was at record levels; and semi-finished and finished steel was produced in large volume.

Steel Output Big

"During the first half of June, steel operations remained close to capacity, although some declines from the high rate of May were reported. Output of automobiles, which has been in unusually large volume since the beginning of the year, showed a slight reduction in May.

"Value of building contracts awarded declined in May, and was below last year's level, the decrease in comparison with 1928 being chiefly in residential building. During the first two weeks in June contracts averaged 15 per cent less than in the same period in 1928.

"The volume of freight shipments increased seasonally in May and continued substantially above the total of a year ago. Department store sales increased in May and were 2 per cent larger than in the same month in the preceding year.

Wholesale Prices

"Wholesale prices continued in May the downward movement of the previous month. The decline of the general level was chiefly the result of price declines in agricultural products and their manufactures, although prices of other products also declined slightly. Prices of cotton and grains continued sharply downward in May and there were marked declines in the prices of hogs, wool, and lambs. Petroleum and gasoline, and iron and steel advanced in price, while in lumber there was a slight decline.

"Since the latter part of May prices of cattle and hides have advanced sharply and there have been increases in the prices of grains, hogs, and cotton."

Mexican Exiles On Journey Home

SAN ANTONIO, June 27. (UP)—Refugee Mexican Catholic churchmen from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana were here or en route to San Antonio today in preparation for the return to their native land. One group will leave tomorrow night, and the remainder will leave Monday.

Three bishops and 25 priests are in the San Antonio contingent, it was learned from Bishop Gerardo Anaya of Chiapas, secretary of the committee of the Mexican episcopate here. He was designated by Archbishop Ruiz y Flores to make arrangements for the return of the exiles who left Mexico when differences arose between church and state three years ago.

A three-day thanksgiving celebration was in session today.

PISTOL SHOTS DISTURB MASS

Crazed Man Fires Volley At Worshippers

CHICAGO, June 26. (UP)—Worshippers at mass in a west side Catholic church were terrorized today, when a drink-crazed man stood in the aisle between rows of pews and fired four shots at the altar where Father Ansel Keenan was giving communion.

One of the bullets, which apparently was aimed at the priest, struck Richard Murphy, 29, a communicant, as he knelt at the altar rail. His injury is not serious, doctors said.

Charles D. Foster, the invader, aimed a fifth bullet at his own head but suffered only a scalp wound.

Father Keenan probably saved his own life when he threw himself to the floor as the bullets were fired into the sanctuary of the Our Lady of Sorrows church.

Women members of the congregation shrieked and sought refuge behind pews and pillars while several men grappled with Foster until he was subdued.

"I wanted to finish him and finish myself," Foster mumbled at a district police station. He imagined that he had wounded himself fatally and although he said he did not belong to the Catholic faith, asked that he be given the last sacraments.

"I was drunk when I got up this morning," Foster said. "I went to an Italian and bought some more whisky. I got the gun from him and paid him $15 for it. He loaded it for me and I left."

The priest told authorities that he was unacquainted with Foster and could ascribe no reason for the attempt of his life.

SCORES ATTEND DIXON RITES

Noted Scout's Body Is Returned to Battlefield

Special to The Record News.

BORGER, Texas, June 27.—Vows of respect and gratitude to Billy Dixon, renowned scout and Indian fighter, were sealed today by more than 500 residents of the Southwest when the remains of the straight-shooting pioneer were entombed in the ruins of the Adobe Walls fort, 25 miles from here, where his greatest fight was enacted 54 years ago.

Services held over the body, which for the last 16 years had lain in a cemetery at Texline, attracted friends of the old buffalo hunter and Masons from all over the Southwest. Judge H. E. Hoover of Canadian, who met Billy Dixon 43 years ago, presided and was the principal speaker. Talks also were made by T. D. Hobart, president of the Panhandle Plains Historical society at Pampa, A. B. McDonald of the Kansas City Star, Dr. O. H. Simpson, Dodge City, Kan., and W. T. Coble, owner of the Turkey Track ranch.

The incident for which Dixon has been remembered was his leadership in the defense waged by a group of 28 white plainsmen in the Adobe Walls fort against a force of approximately 700 Comanches, Kiowas and Cheyennes. Chief Quanah Parker was among the chiefs commanding the Indians. On the morning of the third day of the battle, Billy Dixon dropped with a single bullet a defiant warrior who had taken his position upon the caprock 1,200 yards away. At that moment the remaining redskins became pacifists, and withdrew.

Five of Dixon's seven children, together with his widow, Mrs. Olive King Dixon of Miami, were present at the interment services here.

Kaiser Granted Right to Come Home On Eve of Tenth Peace Anniversary

BERLIN, June 27. (UP)—Tumultuous scenes in the reichstag today marked the defeat of a bill providing for the extension of the law of protection of the republic. Failure of the measure enables the former German kaiser to return to this country after July 28, without the government being able to prohibit.

The vote was 263 for extension of the law to 166 against it, with two absentees, but there was not a two-thirds majority as required for passage.

The defeat of the bill was due to a last-minute change of attitude by the Economic party, which was said to be dissatisfied with the outcome of voting on the land reform measure.

Announcement of the defeat caused Nationalist party members to cheer while the Socialists hissed. For a moment there was danger of an exchange of blows between Professor Bredt, the Economic party leader, and Deputy Breitscheid, the Socialist chief.

The government announced that a new law with the same aim as the defeated one will be introduced later.

There was absolutely no indication that the former kaiser has any intention of returning here from his exile at Doorne, but various factions of the nationalistic political parties have long openly advocated permission for his return.

MANIFESTO DENIES 'SOLE' WAR GUILT

BERLIN, June 27. (UP)—A government manifesto, denying absolutely that Germany bears "sole guilt" for the world war and signed by President Paul von Hindenburg and members of the cabinet, was issued tonight in connection with the 10th anniversary of the signing of the Versailles peace treaty.

The manifesto condemned terms of the Versailles treaty and was made public in connection with the great demonstrations against the "war guilt lie" planned in various German cities for the anniversary observance tomorrow.

MOVE TO OUST ROBISON FAILS

Impeachment Move Voted Down, 80 to 37

missioner of the land office for 20 years, having been elected 11 times. Prior to his elevation to be head of the office he was a clerk there for 14 years.

Office Investigated

Impeachment charges were proposed after an investigation of the land office by a joint legislative committee during the regular session last January. The controversy started last December when an effort was made by the governor, attorney general's department and board of regents of the University of Texas to have the commissioner postpone all sales of oil and gas rights in university lands he had advertised for January.

He agreed to the postponement of all except tracts aggregating about 58,000 acres which he maintained he was obliged to sell under a decision of the supreme court holding that when the commissioner had specific requests for land it was mandatory for him to advertise it.

An injunction was obtained by the board of regents restraining the sale, but this later was dissolved on final hearing in Travis county district court. An appeal now is pending in the supreme court.

Called 'Careless'

The investigation committee reported its findings to the first called session and recommended that Mr. Robison be reprimanded for his "careless" handling of the one-cent-an-acre fund and suggested that the attorney general file suit for an accounting of the fund. Hearing on the charges just dismissed was begun by the house on June 13.

Arguments were made by Robert B. Allen Sr. of Dallas and C. T. Freeman of Sherman, attorneys for the house in developing the charges and E. F. Smith of Austin and former Senator Lloyd Price and Dayton Moses of Fort Worth for Mr. Robison.

The Final Vote

The roll call vote to exonerate Robison follows:

PRYOR AMENDS RETRIAL PLEA

Jury Took "Average" For Term, Attorney Says

Charges that the jury which sentenced Ed Pryor, former Electra constable to eight years in the penitentiary arrived at that term "by lot" are contained in an amended motion for a new trial filed in the 89th district court late Thursday afternoon. The motion, which will be opposed by the district attorney's office, will be argued Friday afternoon or Saturday, Shields Heyser, attorney for Pryor, announced.

The motion as filed Thursday specifically alleges that each juryman set down his own opinion as to the number of years of punishment to be assessed; that these numbers were then added and divided by 12 to reach the eight-year term finally imposed.

The defendant also pleads for a new trial on the grounds of about 40 exceptions to the rulings of the court and to the court's charge.

Pryor was convicted as an accomplice to Henry Shumate in the robbery of the Grand theater in Electra last summer, during his term of office as constable in that city.

Today in Texas History

JUNE

1843—The Houston Telegraph was urging settlers to recognize the advantage of entering Texas by way of the Trinity rather than the Red river.

1916—Mobilization of national guard is ordered for protection of Texas towns on Mexican border.

Henry Ford borrowed two cents the other day to buy a two-cent stamp. Evidently he didn't buy it in a drug store or he would have been obliged to float a loan for a nickel.

Why can't men wear a couple of straps over their shoulders all summer like the girls?

Among the newer fashions for men are red shoes. Probably this is meant to match the vogue in noses.

A Red Cross Thriller

YOU'LL FIND tales of adventure in unexpected places, sometimes.

Tales of sacrifice, bravery and achievement, with lives saved and hope given to the helpless—and right where you'd be least likely to look for them.

The Red Cross Courier, official magazine of the American Red Cross, would hardly seem a periodical in which to look for thrillers. But it has them, just the same; thrillers that leave you with an added respect for your fellowmen's ability to take hard knocks and do tough jobs.

In the magazine's June issue there is a story telling how the Red Cross went into action this spring when a tornado hit the little Arkansas town of Guion.

Guion was almost wiped out. Eighty buildings were utterly smashed. Many people were killed or injured; the survivors huddled helpless in caves in a hillside, and saw the tornado, in its last, freakish rage, suck the White river into the air and pour it on the wreckage of the village.

Then the magazine goes on with the story:

"When the Red Cross workers arrived the next morning, old residents shook their heads despairingly. Guion was lost, they said. But the workers cheerfully plunged into the job that was admittedly of bleak prospect. The health situation was pressing. The water supply was wrecked, and tricklets of sewage criss-crossed the town.

"Miss Birdie Weems, Red Cross nurse from Little Rock, was assigned the duty of typhoid inoculations. A long line of serious faced men, and mothers with babies in their arms, waited outside her box-car headquarters where she was obliged to eat and sleep for two weeks. Good water was difficult to obtain, so the Red Cross purchased a 300-gallon open topped tank which was placed under a pure spring in a silica mine above the community. Lines of pipe now run down from it to hydrants at various points.

"Shelter, however, remained a serious question. National guard tents dotted the hillside; but the ground was cold, and the river breeze still beat upon the victims. As an answer, 35 carpenters from Batesville, nearby, volunteered their services to the Red Cross. On Monday morning, May 6, they alighted from the local train with their hammers, saws and other tools. The sound of building activity soon filled the valley, and several hours later Red Cross lumber had been turned into sills and studdings. By nightfall three houses were nearly completed. The following day the operation was repeated, and today Guion is a 'Phoenix' of new buildings."

That's all there is to the story—but isn't it a thriller? It is the kind of story that revives one's faith in the race. Surely, when men can work together like that, the reign of brotherhood is not a wildly impossible dream.

Incidentally, you might keep that story in mind when the next Red Cross roll call is held.

Why Dawes Swore

GENERAL CHARLES G. DAWES, American ambassador to England, has at last explained the famous "Hell'n Maria" episode, when he swore at a congressional committee that was investigating the American conduct of the war.

In an interview with a writer for the North American Review, Ambassador Dawes explains he swore deliberately and with premeditation. He felt that congress' investigation was a petty, partisan, useless affair; and he wanted the whole country to know what he thought. So, as he explains:

"Had I uttered platitudes they would have been submerged in the ensuing oratory. Instead I challenged the criticism of every man I wanted to impress. In their resentment they spread my speech before their constituents. So the people heard my voice. It was the only way to make them. As soon as they had analyzed what I said, they knew I was right."

Dawes' theory was quite right. His outburst blew the congressional investigation out of the water. It languished and died after he blasted it.

Goldenrod Is Absolved

THE GOLDENROD is one of the most attractive features of the summer landscape in the American Middle West. Yet, to many people, it is not a beauty at all, but a blight and a curse—because of hay fever.

Recently a number of physicians have suggested that the goldenrod may not be as culpable as we have supposed; and now comes O. C. Durham, botanist, with an article in the current issue of the American Druggist, to say that goldenrod is almost entirely blameless.

Extended tests, he says, have proved to him that 90 per cent of all hay fever is caused by the ripened pollen of the common ragweed—which, incidentally, is grown on practically every square mile of land east of the Mississippi.

Goldenrod's pollen, says Mr. Durham, is too heavy and resinous to be carried on the wind. Consequently, it cannot be blamed by the hay fever sufferer for his troubles.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS — By Fontaine Fox

The GREEN SHADOW - By Herman Landon

(Copyright by Public Ledger)

A woman has been murdered and Captain Summers of the police believes "The Picaroon" responsible for the crime. "The Picaroon," who preys upon the rich and then offers to return his loot on the payment of 10 per cent of its value to charity, is Martin Dale and a firm friend of Summers when they are both "off duty." Summers has found a cigar band of the same rare brand that Dale smokes near the woman's body.

The murdered woman has been identified by Alexander Ferryman as his wife, but Dale and Adele Castle know her to be the mysterious Miss Conway, who took Adele to the house where the murder was later committed for a weird interview with a man calling himself Dr. Moffett. The interview took place in a room flooded with a strange green light which rendered Dr. Moffett almost entirely invisible. Moffett tells Adele he knows her father was associated with Daniel Forrester, who obtained a fortune by fraudulent means and demands blackmail of $100,000.

Dale offers to help Adele and tells her he was present when she talked to Dr. Moffett. Later he visits the house and accuses Axelson, the caretaker, of knowing Dr. Moffett. Axelson, an employe of Ferryman who lives next door, denies knowing Moffett.

An intruder enters Dale's apartment. Dale tries to capture him, but grabs only an empty sleeve. Then he, too, is flooded in green light and the invisible burglar strikes Dale on the jaw and escapes.

Dale calls on Adele and meets her friend, Paul Ainsworth. The two are immediately suspicious of one another and Dale especially notes that Paul has only one arm. Dale enters the house where the murder occurred and investigates a flaw in the wainscoting he had noticed on his previous visit. He finds a sliding panel and behind it a rope of pearls. When he seeks to leave the room, a locked door bars his way.

But he had not expected to find anything like this. An even bolder hope had electrified his fingers as he inserted them in the hidden recess. It was exactly the kind of recess to which Dr. Moffett, who with Axelson's connivance appeared to make surreptitious use of the house, would confide papers of a secret and highly important character. They would have been safer there than in a place subject to possible search-warrant and raid not to mention the contrivances of safe blowers.

The Picaroon's imagination had played extravagantly with his idea. If such were the case—if the flaw in the woodwork indicated a secret receptacle for documents used by Doctor Moffett in his wicked enterprises—why might it not contain the very papers he had offered to sell to Mr. Castle for $100,000? What a stroke of luck it would have been! What a blow to Doctor Moffett!

But instead he had found this. Already the Picaroon's first sense of elation was yielding to a feeling of disappointment. This rope of pearls, exquisite and superb though it was, would not solve the problem pressing on Adele Castle's young heart. Aside from its esthetic merits, duly appreciated by the Picaroon, its value was a purely pecuniary one. It might be worth $100,000, perhaps even more—

The Picaroon drew himself up, momentarily forgetting the stoop that went with his assumed role. A thought burned brightly, exhilaratingly in his brain. Whatever the exact value of the pearls, it equaled or exceeded the price Doctor Moffett had demanded for the papers. With the pearls in his possession, the Picaroon would be in a position to negotiate terms with the wily doctor.

With an elated chuckle he dropped the pearls into his pocket. Now he reached for a case in his pocket, and from it he removed a small card with an engraved inscription. It read:

I trust you will pardon my little joke and excuse the liberties I have taken with your valuables. They will be returned to you as soon as you shall have donated 10 per cent of their value to the Society for the Protection of Animals.—The Picaroon.

He gazed doubtfully at the card. A similar card was always found on the scene of each of his enterprises and he had never failed to make good the promise toward the end, but that promise did not apply here. Doctor Moffett should not get his pearls back on such easy terms. Yet it was a matter of principle as well as ethics with the Picaroon to leave such a card behind him. It served as a taunt to the police who had once cruelly wronged him, and it safeguarded innocent persons against unjust suspicions.

After brief reflection he took out his pencil and in a cramped and unaccustomed hand changed the last sentence so that it read:

"They will be returned to you on terms that will be communicated to you in due time."

With a chuckle he dropped the card into the recess from which he had taken the pearls. His good friend Summers would grit his teeth and mutter maledictions. Doctor Moffett would fly into a rage. Adele Castle would give Martin Dale a heavenly smile. And that would be sufficient reward.

He started to close the aperture, and then a doubt came. Suppose the pearls were not Doctor Moffett's property? Suppose they belonged to Mr. Ferryman, the pitiful mourner in the next house?

Not for worlds would the Picaroon touch anything belonging to that gentleman. He stood in a quandry, but soon his doubt dissolved. The very nature of the hiding place in which he had found the pearls suggested secretiveness, even criminal design.

Mr. Ferryman would not have concealed them in such a place. Moreover, he would have been more likely to conceal them in the next house, where he lived and where he could watch them closely. Besides, it was doubtful if Mr. Ferryman possessed an ornament of such great value. No, in all probability it belonged to Dr. Moffett, who in all likelihood had acquired it through some shady transaction.

It was rather droll, thought the Picaroon, as he reached out his hand to close the aperture. Dr. Moffett's silence would be purchased with his own rope of pearls. For the present the Picaroon did not think beyond that point. Somehow Adele Castle must be saved from leaping from the frying pan of blackmail into the fire of marriage to a scoundrel, but perhaps that difficulty would take care of itself.

He laughed softly, and then, with great suddenness, jerked his hand away from the opening. With the swiftness of a thought he darkened his flashlight, stood with his back to the wall, all his senses exploring the darkness. A signal of warning had come out of the stillness, but as usual the Picaroon's senses had acted in advance of his mind. As yet his brain could not grasp the elusive something that had gone like the faintest tremor through his ears.

The room was utterly still. The Picaroon thought of the pearls in his pocket and the card he had dropped into the aperture. He edged back toward the opening. Perhaps he had been mistaken. The stillness on all sides had a reassuring quality. In any event, he had left way of retreat open—the door in the rear and the window looking out upon the backyard. Besides, the Picaroon had established a reputation for his ability to wriggle out of tight corners.

Just to make sure he stepped softly to the door in the rear. His fingers closed around the knob, he pushed, and then a faint mutter fell from his lips. The door was bolted on the other side. In one direction his escape was cut off. But there were still the windows and the door leading to the front hall. Swiftly and lightly he darted to the window looking out upon the street, raised the shade a little, then drew quickly back at the sight of a face looking straight toward him.

"Trapped!" he muttered.

The Picaroon Cornered

It was not an unusual situation, and it had its tang and its thrills for the Picaroon, and without these life would have been a tame and dull affair. As he stood in the darkness waiting for the enemy to make the next move, there flashed through his mind recollections of exciting escapes in circumstances just as difficult as the present. His nerves tingled at a sound outside the door. Some one was about to enter. Captain Summers? Doctor Moffett? Who could tell?

In a moment his question was answered. The door was thrust open, the beam from a flashlight glared in his face. Behind the flash light he saw the stock figure of Summers with his oversized head and his short legs, grim of face and wary of eye, the bluish gleam of an automatic pistol in his hand. And behind Summers was the tall figure of Mr. Ferryman, followed by the white-faced and grizzly-headed Axelson. A stalwart policeman brought up the rear.

The Picaroon caught his breath. It was a formidable procession, and he knew that outside the house, at the windows and doors, were more policemen. The house was a trap, and the jaws were about to spring. It was as ticklish and baffling a plight as he had ever faced.

Summers advanced a few steps, then stopped. "The light, please, Mr. Ferryman."

Ferryman came forward, a prematurely broken figure with a stricken look in his face. His hand trembled along the woodwork. A little click sounded, and the electric lights flashed on.

"Guard the door, Carrigan," Summers directed.

The policeman stood in front of the door, blockading it with his broad back and shoulders. Axelson, looking badly frightened, stood behind his master. Summers thrust the flashlight into his pocket, tightened his hold on the automatic, and regarded his captive with a gelid eye and a tight little grin. He saw a bent, weary-looking figure in drab and unprepossessing garb, one who looked quite harmless and gentle mannered, and who peered at him in a nearsighted way out of heavy, shell-rimmed lenses.

"Great get-up!" His grin broadened a little. "You're a scream in those duds. Very nifty! But I knew you. You don't fool me, Mr. Martin Dale."

"Dale—Dale?" Ferryman stammered, staring at the Picaroon out of hollow, lustless eyes. "The gentleman who called here last night was a Mr. Dale. You don't mean——"

"Same one," Summers declared. "He's changed his style, that's all. I've seen him with that face on and in those togs before."

Ferryman blinked his eyes incredulously. "But the other one was taller, and his looks——"

"Sure, I know," Summers interrupted. "But he's Martin Dale, just the same, and this time I've got him dead to rights."

"Do you know," said the Picaroon, speaking in a gentle drawl that carried no resemblance to Martin Dale's voice, "I haven't the faintest idea what you are talking about. Dead to rights? What a funny phrase!"

"You know what it means. Your game is up, Dale. You've tricked me a lot of times, and you've pulled some very fancy stunts on me, but I've got you now. I've caught you red-handed."

"Red-handed?" The Picaroon held up his gloved hand and gazed at them uncomprehendingly. "Red-handed? What a droll idea! What an exceedingly droll idea!"

"And it will get droller and droller," Captain Summers promised. He cast an oblique glance at the aperture in the wall. It was still a gaping hole, for the interruption that came just as the Picaroon had been about to close it. "Please see if the pearls are still there, Mr. Ferryman."

The Picaroon's brows went up a trifle. With a dazed air and a faltering tread, Ferryman stepped to the opening in the wall. He inserted his hand.

"They're gone!" he exclaimed.

"Of course." Summers chuckled in a cocksure manner. "I expected it. That's what I meant, Dale, when I said I've caught you red-handed." He came a little closer with his automatic. "It was a plant."

In a moment the Picaroon had recovered from his surprise. Summers was gazing at him with a triumphant grin that yet had an edge on reluctance. Ferryman shook his head and as if unable to credit the testimony of his eyes and ears. Axelson held his gray head low and fixed the cornered man with a crafty, faintly gloating expression.

"Plant?" The Picaroon echoed. "Really, your language is very peculiar."

"Oh, drop the comedy," said Summers impatiently. "Please look again, Mr. Ferryman. Is there anything in that hole in the wall?"

Again Ferryman's shaking hand explored the opening. With a little start he drew it out again, exhibiting a card.

"I knew it," said Summers. "The Picaroon's card. It never fails to turn up wherever the Picaroon has been. He's made me eat a lot of crow with that card of his. There's an inscription on it, isn't there? Thought so. I know it by heart. This is how it runs: 'I trust you will pardon my little joke and—'"

And Summers, in a mocking tone that testified to many unforgiven taunts and gibes, recited the inscription to the end. "That's the song, isn't it?"

"Not quite." Ferryman adjusted his glasses and studied the card. "The last part has been changed."

"Changed? Well, that's something new. How has it been changed?"

"The last sentence has been stricken out and something substituted in pencil. It reads, 'They will be returned to you on terms that will be communicated to you in due time'."

"H'm." Summers stroked his jaw with his free hand. "That's a queer one. First time the Picaroon has sprung anything like that. Well, no matter. We'll soon iron out that little wrinkle. The pearls must be in his pocket. Don't leave the door, Carrigan! You search him, Mr. Ferryman, while I keep him covered. He's a slick bird—the slickest I ever ran up against."

Ferryman stepped forward reluctantly. "If he is the Mr. Dale who called here last night, I can't believe he is a criminal. Mr. Dale impressed me as a thorough gentleman."

"Search him," suggested Summers.

Shaking his head slowly, Ferryman came forward. Promptly the Picaroon stepped directly behind the the long library table.

"I resent this sort of treatment," he complained. "You call me strange names and make the most curious insinuations. I don't like it, and I will not be insulted."

"Keep still," growled Summers impatiently. "Can't you see you're caught? Stalling won't do you any good. You're only wasting time. Of course, if you prefer, we'll search you at the station. You are going to be booked on a charge of murder, anyhow."

"Murder?" It was the voice of Martin Dale that spoke. The word slipped out before he could disguise it.

"Ah, that gave you a jolt, didn't it? You forgot your phony patter for a moment. Might as well give in, Dale. I said I would get the Picaroon some day, and now I've got him. Didn't expect to get him for murder though." Again there was a faint trace of regret in his tone.

"Murder?" the Picaroon forced a laugh. His mind was in an uproar. Murder? It was beyond him. "I think you must have taken leave of your senses," he declared with a shrug. "Who has been murdered?"

"Mrs. Ferryman, but you know that. You were in this house the night she was murdered. Remember the cigar band?"

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, June 27.—First nighters are not so blase as one would suppose. At a recent opening—it was one of those here today—gone tomorrow summer comedies—a short circuit occurred during the first intermission, and the second act curtain went up with the theater smelling slightly of acrid smoke. The players went on with their lines, and obviously there was nothing wrong. But a murmur of voices ran through the audience. Suddenly the wife of a second string dramatic critic, who must have seen hundreds of plays and who should have acquired a little poise, sprang out of her seat and hurried up the aisle. One man in evening dress rushed out, leaving his wife in her seat. No one shouted "fire!" but a few scatter brains were providing the makings of a panic. The leading man of the play finally came down front. Decidedly angry he made no heroic speech. He simply shouted: "There is nothing wrong in the theater. Keep quiet." And the worldly first nighters subsided.

A Character

One of the most interesting of the town's actresses is Miss X, who is one of the best in the business of character portrayal. And none of her stage characters has been more eccentric than her own. She earns a good salary, but her employers won't give it to her. They invest it for her, for if she had the money it would be gone in no time, and she'd have nothing to show for it. She buys the costumes of defunct productions, and wears them until they fall apart. Recently she attended a formal dinner, wearing a low cut evening gown, cotton stockings, low heeled shoes, spats and a big hat with feathers in it. She is the dispair of her director, for during rehearsals she has a habit of leaving the stage and going into the darkened auditorium for a nap in an aisle. If it is cold she will roll up in a carpet.

Clothes Speakeasy

In the one block between Broadway and Eighth avenue on Forty-eighth street are—or were, at the last official census—15 speakeasies. And I imagine that about the same number are to be found in any other block in the theater zone. But what I started out to say is that somewhere in the forties is a clothes speakeasy. The sign on the window advertises water filters. You have to be known to get inside. Nobody, so far as I know, ever bought a filter there, but there is a grand collection of women's clothes. Nearly every gown and coat comes from a social register home. Chorus girls and the lesser known actresses find great bargains in apparel that has been worn little. Men, too, frequent the shop, for the proprietress has a monumental influence in political circles, and can get one a low license number for one's automobile.

Daddy Sells Out

Edward West Browning, Peaches Browning's famous "daddy," has retired from the real estate business. I am confident the most ornate office suit in the city will pass out of existence, for nobody else would share Browning's opinion of what the well housed business man should work in. The offices occupy an entire floor of a building on upper Broadway. A few private cubicles are partitioned off, but the rest of the space is an eye-filling sweep of floor area, broken by a forest of supporting columns. The motif is Chinese. The walls and ceilings are heavily silvered and gilded, and splashed far and wide are huge, horny, black Chinese dragons. The carpet measured in terms of building lots, is deep and soft, and of prominent design. The furniture is Chinese—massive stuff most intricately carved and inlaid. The chair cushions are covered with flowered silk. Even the elevator doors have been gilded and supplied with rampant dragons. Browning's real estate holdings were immense, and included everything from tenements to skyscrapers. The auction was so important that it was held in Madison Square garden.

No More Parties

The steamship lines are getting fed up with the houseparties that are held on their liners when the ships are in dock. It has been a great season for holding private dinners in the luxurious dining rooms of some of the newer vessels, but the lines have had enough. There is too much merrymaking. Too much liquor flows, and damage to crockery and furniture has been extensive. Likewise the French line is pioneering in discouraging farewell parties at sailing time, and has gone back to daylight sailings. When a ship goes in the daytime, it has been discovered only the immediate relatives and closest friends of those departing come to the boat to wish the passengers bon voyage. But when midnight sailings were inaugurated almost every passenger organized a party in his cabin. It was nothing to have 2,000 visitors swarming through a ship—and it was considerably more than nothing to get them all off again on time. Not infrequently some visitor would be left aboard, and would have to make a trip to Southampton and back without baggage and at his own expense.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

MR. ELMER TWITCHELL STOWAWAY EXTRAORDINARY

Flagpole Kelly, who planned to spend a week atop the flagpole on one of the city's tallest buildings, had to abandon his climb yesterday when only half-way up the pole. He had put on a light summer suit, a little oversized, for the climb and noticed as soon as he began the ascent that there was something wrong. "I just couldn't get any altitude," declared the champion flagpole-sitter. "I felt heavy. There was no lift to me."

PHILLIPS

Well, to make a long story short, Mr. Kelly examined his suit and found Mr. Twitchell inside of it. This made Elmer the first flagpole-sitting stowaway in history and he was disgustedly jubilant today.

"We did it!" he cried. "A lot of people thought Kelly and I would never reach the flagpole, but we fooled them, all right, all right. It's great to be an American. Three cheers for the red, white and blue!"

"I'd like to punch him in the nose," muttered Flagpole Kelly at this point.

"I never had any doubts we would do it," said Elmer. "All it called for was determination. That and a little red-blooded Americanism. I set out to make a place for myself as the first flagpole-sitting stowaway in history and I made good. I always wanted to be like Columbus, Drake and Lindbergh."

"For two cents I would sock him in the eye," declared Flagpole Kelly, who was in very ill humor.

"It is true that by getting into Mr. Kelly's clothes before he put them on, I was imperiling his mission, perhaps," went on Elmer, "but the risk was worth it. What if he could have climbed to the top of the flagpole safely without me? Half a flagpole is better than none. I flipped a coin with another fellow to see who would be the stowaway. I forget his name. It was Harry Thaw or something like that. I won because Thaw was near-sighted. Well, Kelly was a little peeved when he first discovered me in his suit, but he forgave me completely and we are great pals now, aren't we, Kelly?"

"If you knew what I was thinking, you'd fall in a dead faint," replied Kelly.

"Long live America!" cried Elmer. "It is the nation of pioneers. We lead where others follow. Fifty thousand dollars for my story? Don't be a sap. Yes, I would be a wow in vaudeville and will appear for $10,000 a week and expenses. My autograph will cost you fifty smackers. You'll have to pardon us now while we write a book. Kelly and I are pals and partners. What's his is mine and what's mine is nobody's business. Am I right, Kelly?"

Kelly dropped to his hands and knees, growled and bit Elmer in the fleshy part of the leg.

The Big Annoyance

Bill Foster reports that Eddie Roush, the old-time printer, is disturbed about the new issue of dollar bills. "Just think of the inconvenience the new bills are going to put Scotchmen to," says Eddie. "They'll have to take up every carpet in the house to make the change from old bills to new."

Puzzle

Oh this is a problem that drives me to drink—
'Tis too deep for wise men to measure:
Why people go motoring Sunday and think
They're getting diversion and pleasure?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Falling Hair

Question—R. H. J. writes: "I have been told that falling hair is caused by thyroid gland trouble. Is this correct?"

Answer—There is, no doubt, a close relationship between the growth of hair and the function of the thyroid gland. Those who have an insufficiency of the thyroid secretion usually become fat and have a poor growth of hair, while the thin person is usually of the hyperthyroid type and has plenty of strong hair.

Gums Causing Trouble

Question—M. J. H. writes: "I would like to know through your column something about the care of the gums. In two or three places in my mouth where the gums extend downward there is a noticeable redness, and when brushing them and often during the day, for that matter, they bleed quite a bit. Is there anything that will remedy this condition."

Answer—Cut down your stomach acidity by living on the right diet and have your dentist treat your teeth and gums. You are doubtless suffering from pyorrhoea or alveolar absorption, and need both local and constitutional treatment.

The Lunch Box Problem

Question—Housewife writes: "My husband does hard manual labor and must carry his lunch to work. Will you be good enough to tell me some suitable combinations through this column, as I know there are others who need this same advice."

Answer—If you can procure the genuine wholewheat bread, make sandwiches of it with fresh butter or peanut butter and lettuce. Provide him with a thermos bottle in which he may carry any of the following cooked vegetables: Spinach, stringbeans, asparagus, summer squash, egg plant, small carrots or beats, etc. Add one or two of the salad vegetables, such as celery or cucumbers wrapped in a a damp cloth, and you have a lunch both appetizing and healthful. Send for my special article on packing lunches; it will offer other suggestions.

What Kind of Mattress?

Question—Mrs. F. W. writes: "I would like your opinion of the materials used in mattresses. What would you advise—felt, cotton, or silk floss?"

Answer—It does not matter of what material the mattress is made as long as it is soft and comfortable, yielding readily to the pressure of the body.

FITZGERALD'S THREE HITS, INCLUDING HOMER, TRIM BUFFS

SMITH CHUCKS STEADY GAME

Payne Rescues Cy; Benton And Turgeon Star

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

It's the punch that counts—and it's the Spudders who have the punch. Galloway's gallopers again demonstrated that fact yesterday when they trounced the Houston Buffs, 9 to 7, in the opener of a three-game series at the stadium.

Only six hits were made by the Spudders, three of them, including a home run, by Howard Fitzgerald, but all the blows save one figured in the run-getting.

The Spudders won with a big inning—the second—in which Gerald Myres, the young lefthander, was replaced by Frank Foreman, another young man but a right-hander. Six runs were tallied in that round, with the aid of three hits and several bases on balls.

Breaks Against Smith

Cy Smith pitched a cunning and courageous game of ball until he weakened in the ninth, and then good ol' George Payne, who has won eight straight, hustled in there and silenced the invaders.

Smith hurled in terrible hard luck with all the breaks against him. Exactly four of the enemy's runs were directly due to Spudder errors and another Buff tally resulted from a lucky hop of a ball hit by Hock which was headed right for Pete Turgeon. Smith struck out six and hurled with particular effectiveness in the pinches.

Fitzgerald defeated the champions almost singlehanded, the greyhound of the garden hammering a double and single in addition to his circuit drive that batted in four teammates, and scoring a brace of tallies.

Bailey New Buff Boss

Gene Bailey, new skipper of the Buffaloes, replacing Frank Snyder, whose unconditional release was announced yesterday, and Hock and Martin led the Buff attack of 11 hits with two blows each.

Brilliant fielding by Benton and Turgeon marked the pastime and helped the Spudders turn back the enemy, particularly in late innings. Jordan, Buff keystoner, also flashed some fast defensive work.

The victory enabled Wichita Falls to maintain its half game lead over Dallas and game and a half lead over Shreveport.

Buffs First to Score

The Buffs went out in order in the first. A double play prevented the Spudders from tallying, though Benton had walked and Fitzgerald doubled.

Houston scored the first run in the second. Moore singled through short and advanced to third on Bailey's two-base smack to left. Taylor strolled, filling the bases. Funk struck out and hurled his bat violently against the stands and was chased from the ball game by Iggy Sears. Upon Skipper Gene Bailey's plea that he had no other backstop and the offender's penitent assertion that "Gee, Ziggy, I wasn't sore at you, honest; I was sore at myself," the catcher was allowed to remain in the pastime.

Hunt bounced to Turgeon, who threw out Joel at first and Taylor was doubled at second, Stapleton to Benton, Moore scoring. Moore's score counted as by Turgeon making the play to first on Hunt, the force-out was removed at second and Moore crossed the plate before Benton tagged Taylor.

The Spudders tallied six in the second. Stapleton and Hermann walked and Sullivan sacrificed. Lapan singled to center, scoring both runners. Jordan dropped Smith's short drive but forced Lapan at second. Benton walked. Foreman replaced Myres. Hock threw wild on Turgeon's grounder, filling the bases. Fitzgerald delivered again, his hit to center scoring Smith and Benton. Bennett singled to right, scoring Turgeon and advancing Fitzgerald to third. Fitzgerald ambled home and Bennett went to second on a passed ball.

Cy turned back the hostiles one-two-three in the third, aided by Bennett going far back for Hock's drive.

Wichita Falls counted another in the third without a hit. Hermann was safe on Hunt's high throw and advanced to second on Sullivan's infield out. Lapan walked. Hermann scored while Smith was forcing Lapan, Hunt to Jordan.

Houston tallied two after Martin and Moore fanned. Bailey walked and Taylor singled to right. And then, believe it or don't, Bud Stapleton made an error! Yes sir, Bud dropped Funk's high fly and Bailey, who set an example to his athletes by tearing in all the way from second in an apparent hopeless cause, scored. Hunt singled to center, scoring Taylor. Foreman struck out, the third strikeout of the inning.

Martin rattled the boards in center for two bases in the fifth but two were out and Roy Moore, hitting three balls and no strikes, fanned to Bennett.

Fitz Hits Homer

Fitzgerald slashed his homer over the center field wall, scoring Turgeon, who had singled ahead in the sixth to make the count 9 to 3.

Hock's bounder in the seventh hopped over Turgeon for two bases and Jordan's single to center tallied Eddie. Martin hit to left and Moore walked, populating all the bases. Hermann muffed Bailey's grounder, Jordan tallying and all hands being safe. Taylor forced Martin at the plate on a tap to Smith. Hermann booted Funk's grounder, Moore scoring, but Cyrus bore down and caused Hunt to force Funk, Benton to Turgeon.

His teammates helped Cy out of a hole in the eighth—and it was about time they were aiding the big boy. Hock singled to left after one was out and Jordan walked. Benton took Martin's liner and doubled Hock at second with a fast throw.

Great relief pitching by Payne and a stellar play by Turgeon averted possible disaster in the ninth. Moore walked, Bailey hit to center and Taylor was passed, filling the bases. Payne relieved Smith. Funk lifted to Sullivan, scoring Moore. Hunt lined to Turgeon, who touched second and retired Taylor for an unassisted double play.

Hal Wiltse probably will oppose the Buffs today. Jim Lindsey or Dick Schuman will work for Houston.

BAILEY NAMED BUFF SKIPPER

Snyder Released When He Declines Card Offer

HOUSTON, June 27. (AP)—Frank Snyder was asked to go to St. Louis in the hope he would be able to make a winning pitcher of "Wild Bill" Hallahan, but declined the offer, and asked for his unconditional release as manager of the Houston Buffs.

The statement was made today by President Fred Ankenman of Houston in explaining Snyder's unconditional release.

Snyder and Ankenman reached an agreement Wednesday night in Dallas, but Ankenman said he withheld the story until courtesy waivers had been granted by other Texas league clubs.

It was Branc Rickey's suggestion that Snyder go to St. Louis, the Cardinal officials believing that Snyder would have a chance of making a winner of Hallahan, Ankenman said.

Genee Bailey has been named temporary manager of the Buffs with the likelihood that he will complete the season at that post.

BOBBY JONES SHOOTS RECORD-BREAKING 69 TO LEAD OPEN

AL ESPINOSA TURNS IN 70

Sarazen Scores 71; Farrell Falls to 84

By FRANK GETTY

WINGED FOOT GOLF CLUB, MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 27, (UP)—For a most distressing quarter of an hour today, Bobby Jones caused the hearts of his admirers at Winged Foot to sink into their sport shoes.

Between traps and other trouble, the Atlantan was four strokes over par for the first three holes of his opening round in the national open championship.

And then Bobby struck—and struck hard and true. Before the amateur champion was finished with that round he had won back seven strokes from par and had smashed his own all-time record for national opens with a blistering 69 to show the way to all the field of 148 entrants.

It is getting so that Jones, in order to produce a sensation, must first get himself into serious trouble, just as "Big Bill" Tilden used to lose the first two sets of a championship match and then come back with a desperate, irresistible rush to win.

Plenty of Trouble

Well, Bobby was in plenty of trouble at the start today.

Things looked so black that the Atlantan's most famous and most faithful follower, O. B. Keeler, went back to the club house to await the bad news.

By doing so, "O. B." missed some of the greatest golf Jones ever has played. Bobby's second nine cost him only 31 strokes—a new record for this youngster whose golf career has been just one more record after another. Moreover, Jones never has broken 70 in an American open championship until today.

It has been pretty generally admitted that the Atlantan is the greatest living golfer, but the marvel of it is that he still finds ways to add to his fame. The last 18 holes of Jones' round were played in par figures or better, with three birdies and two screaming eagles in the lot.

Because his first three holes were so poorly played, Bobby finds others close on his heels tonight, although he once more stands out as a prohibitive favorite for the title.

Al Espinosa Has 70

Next to Jones at the end of the first round of this 33rd national championship stands Al Espinosa, the Glencoe professional, with 70. Then comes little Gene Sarazen, a champion himself seven years ago, who blasted his way around today—fighting trouble with the heart of a lion—in 71.

These three alone bettered par for the west course at Winged Foot on a day which saw one favorite after another fall and fall back.

Spread out invitingly in the brilliant June sunshine of a perfect golfing day, Winged Foot did not a pear to hold the troubles which so many found. But the day's toll was devastating.

Johnny Farrell, the defending champion, was one of the victims—rather a pathetic one behind his brave Irish grin. For Farrell took an 84 today, going from one difficulty and tribulation to the next, and passing from the picture as a possibility to succeed himself.

Other Favorites High

Most of the other favorites are up there within striking distance, provided Bobby Jones should see fit to relax his grip on the leadership. Leo Diegel and Tommy Armour are not badly placed with their 74's. Billy Burke and Bobby Cruickshank have 75's, Horton Smith and Walter Hagen 76's.

But all these professionals are spotting the leader from five to seven strokes, and there isn't a golfer living who can do that when Jones is right.

The opening round of any open championship always provides its unexpected bits of drama. Take the case of Jack White, for example. Jack is the old chap who won the British open just a quarter of a century ago. He was good enough to be 1900 runnerup.

He's 56 Years Old

Few realized that the veteran Scot, who admits to 56 years of age, was in the present championship. He sailed to the United States with his nephew, Jimmy Thompson, of Knoxville, Tenn., the young pro who did well in this year's British open at Muirfield.

Invited to enter our open, Jack said he guessed he "might as well have a try." Lots of our leading professionals wish they had made as good a try today, for the Sunningdale pro turned in a spanking 72, par for the course on a day which found par out of reach of nearly everyone.

The first real "unknown" to achieve prominence in the current championship is Charles Hilgendorf of Grosse Point Shores, Michigan, who tied Jack White for fourth place with a 72.

Two Ohioans, Leonard Schmutte and Denny Shute, tied at 73—neither is regarded as a serious menace.

Again Leads All the Rest

2 Original Clubs In Texas League

Dallas and Fort Worth in Loop Since Start

DALLAS, June 27. (AP)—The average baseball fan, if asked whether New Orleans ever had been a member of the Texas league, would answer in the negative and feel sure of his ground. But he would be wrong.

Since the league was organized in 1888 with Fred Turner of Austin as president, there have been at one time or another 21 clubs within its borders, and one of them was New Orleans. The Louisiana metropolis had an entry in the league for the last several months of the 1888 campaign, after several of the original starters had dropped out. The Crescent City finished fourth.

Were in Five Years

Of the 21 cities that have supported a Texas league team, Dallas and Fort Worth are the only ones with unbroken tenures. Thirty-five campaigns have been run off, and both cities were in at the start, at least, of every one. The list of cities with tenure in years:

Fort Worth and Dallas 35, Houston 30, San Antonio 28, Galveston 25, Waco 25, Shreveport 18, Beaumont 16, Austin 14, Wichita Falls 9, Paris 5, Corsicana 4, Oklahoma City 3, Sherman 3, Temple 3, Denison 2, and Cleburne, Greenville, New Orleans, Ardmore and Texarkana one each.

If the old South Texas league, which flourished for four years between 1903 and 1906, and played the same class of ball as the Texas league, were brought in, two other cities would be listed. They are Lake Charles, La., and Brenham, Texas. San Antonio, Galveston and Houston each won pennants in the South Texas, the Buffs grabbing two.

Prior to the revival of the league in 1902 by Ted Sullivan, Doak Roberts, Joe Gardner et al, the Texas league finished but one complete season, that of 1896. The other seven attempts resulted in financial disaster or destructive squabbles. Since 1902 the league has failed to finish one schedule, that of 1918 when the famous "work or fight" order put baseball out of business.

Of the 21 cities that have made up the Texas league, 10 never won a flag. The list includes Beaumont, Temple, Greenville, Paris, Texarkana, Sherman, Denison, Ardmore, Oklahoma City and New Orleans.

Fort Worth and Houston each is officially credited with eight pennants, Dallas six, Waco three, San Antonio, Shreveport and Wichita Falls one each. The highest Beaumont ever finished was third in 1914, 1919 and 1924.

PAGE SCHOFENHAUER

LOS ANGELES, June 27, (UP)—When Sam D. Newberry attempted suicide today by turning on the gas in his room he got a headache so he filled his pockets with bricks and jumped into the Pacific ocean. Despite his ballast he was hauled out. "Life isn't worth living and it's too hard to die," he said after the second failure.

BRALLEY AT COURTHOUSE

Sheriff W. G. Bralley made his first visit to his office in the courthouse Thursday after a four-weeks' illness which kept him under treatment at the Hargrave-Walker hospital until two days ago. Although weakened by his long confinement, the sheriff is rapidly gaining strength and is expecting to be back in the office by next week.

IT SEEMS that though it has been announced by William B. Ruggles, statistician and acting head of the Texas league, that the 1929 season will not be split, there still is agitation in some quarters indicating that a division of the pennant race will be made. Four clubs have indicated to the Associated Press that they would not vote for a split. Which would end the matter, as a majority vote would be necessary to bring about a division.

J. Alvin Gardner said long ago that he was opposed to a split season and the Spudder boss has not altered his opinion. Other teams going on record in the (AP) poll as opposed to starting over again early in July are Dallas, Fort Worth and San Antonio.

◆ ◆ ◆

GEORGE WHITE, sports editor of the Dallas News, recently wrote in his columns that he had it from a fellow who heard it from a guy who knew that the Steer moguls would favor a split. That was providing the Bovines stayed on top. White was frank in saying that the club owners would welcome a division of the schedule to reap the extra coin from a playoff between first and second winners, if any. Perhaps the Steer powers have changed from that opinion, even if they subscribed to it, with the fall of their club and the rise of the Spudders.

◆ ◆ ◆

'TIS SAID that the ball used in the Texas league is dead. If that is true, some of these games marked by heavy scoring, such as that Waco-Fort Worth 20-16 game, would have lasted until midnight if played with livelier balls. And a flock of infielders and pitchers would have suffered broken legs from line drives.

Four Texas Clubs Oppose Split Card

DALLAS, June 27. (AP)—Only a week at most remaining in which Texas league owners can make up their minds about a split season, at least four still are dead set against dividing the schedule. A majority is necessary to effect the split.

The four clubs that swore opposition to the move in a poll conducted today were Dallas, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls and San Antonio. Unless one of the quartet changes its mind within the next six days there will not even be a meeting to discuss the matter.

The four other clubs, including the third-place Shreveporters, declined to make a statement.

The Affair of the Punch

Those who like to see a golf ball smacked, and stay smacked, might cast an eye on Clarence Gamber of Detroit. If he isn't the longest hitter in golf, he is as long as the longest. More than a few of the pros who have seen him play pick Gamber to outdrive them all. Several fairly long hitters say that Gamber can outdrive them by 30 or 40 yards.

Charley Hall of Birmingham is another who can send a golf ball on its way. So is Johnny Rodgers, the walloper, who came near driving a Winged Foot green 478 yards away when the drought was at its worst.

There is a big difference between roll and carry. Few in golf can carry beyond 240 yards, on level ground, without the help of a wind. The longest are not much past 250 on the carry.

Among those given a chance to win few can step many feet by Robert T. Jones Jr. when he decides to put on pressure. Jones makes no effort to kill the ball at every tee. It is only where extra distance is needed that he lets out. And when he lets out he lets out! There is no "perhaps" about it.

Leo Diegel is a long hitter, and there are times when Sarazen can wing them. Horton Smith has his full share of length.

But none of these can step with Gamber, who weighs 195 pounds and lets his swing carry all the mule power he can put into the big kick.

Distance will be a big factor at Winged Foot, but not the important factor when compared to direction and long, accurate iron play to the greens. Yet the walloper appeals to the crowd, for a while at least, and some of the longer hitters will carry their galleries a good part of the route.

Steel and Hickory

Dear Sir: Know what Horton Smith is going to do after the U. S. open? Well, sir, he is going to get himself a set of wooden shafted clubs and start practicing with them. Brought up on steel shafts, Smith was handicapped by the change to hickory when playing in the British open. But he will know how to use the wood when he goes over next year. He intends to learn how to mix them up and control them both.

When Horton switched back to steel, after using wood at Muirfield, he had difficulty in hitting the ball. "There was so little resistance to the steel shafts on the back swing, it felt like the club was out of control," said Smith in describing the difference between the two kinds of shafts. He had the same trouble in switching from steel to wood.

—S. G. H.

Iowa's Rebuttal

Dear Sir: Come on out and watch Iowa play its football games this fall. Unless the Big Ten elects to take Iowa back into the conference, every game will be one sweet battle for the elevens opposing the Hawks. Yes, sir, you should come out and see Iowa play Ohio, Illinois, Minnesota and the others. No holds will be barred.

—OVERLAND RED.

Dear Sir: American league batters declare Rube Walberg has much more on the ball than Lefty Grove, his team mate. They say Grove's hard one has little or no hop and is easy to follow. Yet Walberg gets hit hard and knocked out. Grove has lost only one game. What is the answer?

—SAMMY DEUTSCH.

On to the Cracking Point

When a pennant race gets as steamy as the National league race has been all year it will soon come down to a matter of the best set of nerves, which may not be the same as nerve.

Something is bound to bend if not to crack before long, with four ball clubs cutting one another down all in a lump through the first half of the six months' hike.

Baseball is supposed to be an easy-going pastime, but those in the upper set with a chance to win are already beginning to feel the continued strain. It won't be any lighter later on in August and September.

Cubs, Pirates, Giants and Cardinals have been well bunched for three years now, and this looks to be one of the hardest marches of the lot.

Those who like to learn how to conserve strokes around the green, just off the edge, in a bunker, or on the green, should watch Jones and Hagen. This happens to be one of the worst departments in golf, and it has been a big factor in giving this pair more than an elephant can carry without getting a kink in his spine. It's the shot that gets you up to the cup or into the cup that counts most, where so many can hit the ball so far and so straight. "We drive for pleasure," says Johnny Farrell, "but we putt for money."

WOMEN STAR AT WIMBLEDON

Tilden, Helen and Other Americans Victors

LONDON, June 27. (US)—"The ladies, God bless 'em."

That was the toast they were drinking around tea-time here this afternoon as the women's matches monopolized the attention for the third consecutive day of the Wimbledon championships.

The day's sensation outcropped early in the day, after Bill Tilden, Helen Wills, Francis Hunter and Molla Mallory had come through victoriously, when the English favorite, Betty Nuthall, went down to defeat at the hands of Mrs. L. R. C. Michell, the former Peggy Saunders.

The twinkling Lili de Alvarez, of Spain, and Miss Elizabeth Ryan of America, also provided some fine tennis in the setto that eliminated the American girl.

Helen Wills, paired with Frank Hunter in the mixed doubles opened the gospel of California over the English terrain when they defeated Ed A. Brown and Miss C. Tyrrell of England, 6-1, 6-0. The scores tell the sort of match it was.

Helen, this time with her California running-mate, Edith Cross, did her second bit of the afternoon by helping Edith eliminate Mme. Mathieu and Mlle. S Barbier of France, in the women's doubles. The scores were 6-1, 6-1.

Bill Tilden and Molla had by that time already taken the measure of Bela von Kehrling of Hungary, and Miss Jean Sanderson of India, in a short struggle, 6-2, 6-0.

Stimson Parrot Got In, But U. S. Refuses His Goat Entrance

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27. (AP)—"Old Soaks" when they happen to be parrots and belong to secretaries of state may wiggle entry into the United States, but with goats it's something else again.

William Hamilton Bones, a goat, belonging to Secretary of State Stimson, knows this today, if goats can be made aware of such legal and social discriminations. Mr. Bones arrived here recently in the army transport Meiggs to join his playmate "Old Soak," the Stimson parrot. Both had lived at the executive palace in Manila while Mr. Stimson was governor-general there. The "Old Soak" got in, but as no quadrupeds are allowed to enter the U. S. from countries where hoof and mouth disease is known to exist, Bones must go back to the Philippines, department of agriculture officials said here today.

FREDERICK OIL TEST PLANNED

Location May Be Made In Few Weeks

Special to The Record News

FREDERICK, Okla., June 27.—In a letter from Representative H. R. King of this county, dated Tuesday, he states that if he can get a block of 7,000 acres of leases southwest of Frederick, he feels sure he can get Oklahoma City oil men to make a 6400-foot test. As soon as the legislature adjourns, which he does not believe will be this week, he says he will come home and try to get property owners interested in the drilling proposition. King owns considerable land in the locality where the test is desired to be made.

The deepest test ever made in this part of the county was on the B. W. Giggs' farm, four miles northwest of Frederick, which reached a depth of 3510 feet, last Wednesday, when the well was shut down. It was drilled by the Wirt Franklin company. The rig is being torn down and will be taken to a location near Temple, where Burt Lambert, driller, claims he has a new contract.

The Ajax Rubber company, Inc., and its subsidiaries constitute one of the smaller units engaged in the manufacture of automobile tires and tubes. It has five subsidiaries. The company has two plants, one in Racine, Wis., and one at Trenton, N. J. The Trenton plant has been closed and its operation transferred to the Racine plant where production facilities have been increased. The present operating capacity of the Racine plant is 2,100,000 casings and equal number of tubes per year. The company operates selling branches throughout the United States.

The relapse in rubber prices caused a continued decline in earnings throughout 1928. It was evident however that unsatisfactory results were anticipated by the company since it established a $500,000 reserve to meet rubber price fluctuations. This was applied against loss in 1928 when the deficit was $2,563,970. This compared with a deficit of $1,990,700 in 1927. Since 1918 the aggregate losses have exceeded the aggregate profits by over $4,500,000.

Funded debt is $2,289,000. Capital stock outstanding consists of 880,330 shares of no par value. No dividends have been paid since 1920 when a distribution of $5.50 was made. As of Jan. 1, 1929, total current assets were $4,893,847. Total current liabilities amounted to $904,362 while net working capital was $3,989,485. Book value of the common stock amounted to $7.66 a share.

Solution of Water Problem Is Seen

FREDERICK, Okla., June 27.—Construction of new wells to give the present wells time to regain their usual supply was a suggestion offered by John Zumwalt, superintendent of water and lights, to the city council at a regular meeting of that body held Tuesday. Recently more water has been consumed in Frederick than has been pumped into the reservoirs, although the pumps have been functioning properly and going night and day. Zumwalt told council members that he believes the trouble is due to the fact that water has been taken from the wells constantly for the past 10 or 11 years, allowing no time for a surplus of water to flow or seep into the wells.

When a test was made for locating wells, some 10 or 11 years ago, he says another good location was found about 2,000 feet south of the present wells, west of Frederick. If wells were sunk there and water obtained from that place for a period of 60 days ro so, Zumwalt is of the opinion that the present wells would produce as much water as ever.

Cotton Steady After Dull Session — Livestock Light Demand At Fort Worth — Grain Wheat Prices Take Tumble

Cotton

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, June 27. (AP)—Renewed liquidation of July contracts appeared to have an unsettling effect on cotton here today and early advances on reports of further rains in the eastern belt were followed by reactions under realizing or reselling by early buyers. October contracts after selling up to 18.64 declined to 18.53 and closed at 18.59, compared with 18.52 at the close of the previous day. The final tone of the market was steady at a net decline of 8 points on July, but generally 6 to 8 points net higher on the new crop months.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 points on July and 5 to 7 points higher on later deliveries.

Closing quotations were several points up from the lowest on covering.

Exports today 21,218, making 7,964,898 so far this season. Port receipts 1,440. U. S. port stocks 821,493.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, June 27. (AP)—Cotton was dull today and price fluctuations were limited for the most part to a spread of about 10 points. Such trend as developed was slightly downward, although a flurry of covering in final trading caused the market to close slightly higher. October eased off from a nearly high of 18.54 to 18.43 and closed at 18.48, or 6 points net higher. The general market closed steady 6 points net higher to 1 lower.

Liverpool cables were relatively steady and first trades here showed gains of 5 to 9 points.

There was little interest shown in July contracts which indicated practically complete liquidation of that option. Only two sales of the delivery were reported during the day and it closed at 18.41, or 1 point net lower.

Further Gains Made by New York In Face of Loan Increase Rumor

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, June 27. (US)—Further gain was made by the stock market in a somewhat more nervous market today.

There was some fear of what the reserve statements would show in the way of increase in loans but knowledge of substantial drop in time money rate and other indications that the money conditions would be materially better after July 4 influenced demand that took care of profit taking.

Specialties and utilities featured again with National Cash Register gaining 6¼, American & Foreign Power 7⅝, Electric Power & Light 6¼, Worthington Pump 7¾, Commercial Solvents 20 and Brooklyn Union Gas 4½.

Steel and other standard industrials had to absorb the heaviest profit taking but met fairly good support. Central, Katy and a few other rails moved into new high ground for the move while the oils remained quiet and irregular. United Aircraft dropped 13 points. Money held at 10 per cent throughout with volume dropping a little under the 4,000,000 share level.

United Corporation is expected to make offer for stock of Public Service of New Jersey in the very near future. At the rate of exchange talked of Public Service is still selling out of line despite its big advance. The deal is another step in the plans of the utility and power interests which were told of exclusively in this column more than eight months ago when most of the stocks affected were from 20 to more than 100 points lower. The end is not yet, for when the United-Public Service deal goes through there are others to be carried out. With a good part of the buying in the group representing absorption by various companies, the technical position of most active stocks has been steadily strengthened. Electric Investors, Duke Power, National Power and others with large security holdings have enjoyed steady increase in asset value.

There is good demand for Paramount Famous Players for those who ought to know of affairs in the amusement field do not take denials of merger reports too seriously. The deal between Paramount and Radio corporation, they maintain, is "in the bag." Official offer from Radio is expected before long. The new airplane combine will tend to enhance competition. Those who will feel it first will be the motor companies with "airplane motors" as the Curtiss-Wright group will have motors of all classes including the much talked of "Diesel engine." Recent buying of Allis Chalmers was for an account that usually takes stock from the street.

Further reports were heard of the plans of the Morgan interests for adding to their new Fleischmann organization. Companies that are leaders in their line and have been operating under practical private ownership for over half a century are likely to be taken in. Loose Wiles gives a better account of itself for the Chicago interests who took a big block of stocks some months ago are determined to effect more profitable operations. Ultimately it should go into one of the food combines.

There was some enthusiasm engendered by the activity in Pirelli which was regarded as being influenced by the most powerful bankers in the street. An Italian Electric Manufacturing company, Pirelli is one of the few foreign stocks on the big board. Activity was looked upon as evidencing banking expectation that foreign stocks will play an increasingly prominent role in dealings over the next several months.

Increase of $122,000,000 in loans to $5,542,000,000 was no bigger than had been expected and its effect is offset by the increase in government security and bills of the system which indicates the reserve is letting up its pressure on the money market. The gain in loans was due mainly to the large payments on account of subscriptions to steel common and other new stock issues. Increase of over $10,000,000 in government security holdings and of over $50,000,000 in bills discounted is rendered more interesting in that it comes simultaneous with offering of a large amount of time money at under 8 per cent by one of the leading banking institutions.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, June 27. (AP)—Pressure to sell increased and buying dwindled in wheat today, causing values to drop quickly toward the last. Rains tending to relieve drought in the spring wheat region northwest, together with less pessimistic reports from the winter wheat harvest southwest, largely were responsible.

Wheat closed heavy, 1⅛ to 2⅜c a bushel below yesterday's finish, corn ⅞ to 2c down, oats ⅝ to ⅞c off, and provisions showing 2 to 20c decline.

Lowest prices of the day were current in the wheat pit at the close. Rallies at no time developed impetus enough to lift the market more than quarter cent above yesterday's final figures.

Wheat harvesting was reported to be getting well under way again in the Southwest, with weather conditions extremely favorable.

Oats were draggy, as a result of excellent conditions to mature the new oats crop.

Provisions sagged, responsive to hog values and grain.

RAY-MASSIE GROWERS BUSY

Garden Produce and Broilers on Market

Delays in completion of a market building on the Iowa Park road by the Ray-Massie Growers and Producers association have not checked the constantly increasing development of gardening and poultry raising in that addition, according to officers of the organization.

Erection of a sizeable market house, begun several weeks ago, twice was interrupted when thieves stole the electric wiring and other lighting equipment which had been installed to permit work on the building by members of the association after working hours. Building has been suspended during the last two weeks on account of a revival meeting in progress in the Ray-Massie addition.

Approximately 50 families have gone ahead with installation of poultry raising equipment, including many modern chicken houses and small incubators, and with the cultivation of a wide variety of vegetable produce. Thousands of chickens and large quantities of green vegetables have been marketed directly to local retail stores, it was said. Each of several members still have several hundred broilers and fryers which will be marketed during the coming few weeks.

Leaders in the community predicted that the market house will be completed during the next 30 days.

$50,000 SUIT GOES TO TRIAL

Woman Sues GMAC For Alleged Injuries

Trial of a $50,000 suit brought by Mrs. Lena L. Phillips against the General Motors Acceptance corporation, got under way in the 89th district court Thursday morning.

The suit grew out of an accident on the Iowa Park road on March 8 of this year. According to the petition filed by the plaintiff, Mrs. Phillips was struck by an automobile driven by Tom Williams and owned by the defendant as she started across the highway to board a bus near the Mid-Way Filling station.

Mrs. Phillips alleges that she suffered injuries to a foot and ankle which will probably make amputation necessary. Her petition claims that she will never be able to walk again and that she has been confined to her bed most of the time since the accident on March 5. Internal and other injuries are also alleged. The plaintiff, who was engaged in selling perfumes and other toilet articles last March, is 35 years of age and asserts that she had been rendered incapable of earning a living for the rest of her natural life. She is represented by E. W. Napier. John W. Davenport is counsel for the defense. The trial of the case is expected to last through Friday.

Public Shows Interest In Air Travel Here

Increasing demands for air travel accommodations are reflected by a constantly growing number of daily inquiries at local chamber of commerce offices relative to schedules, rates, etc., according to officials of that organization.

Complete information regarding rates, connections and other features of various air lines of the country is being accumulated rapidly by the traffic department, it was said, for the benefit of the public.

Drastic Rules Placed On Ship Bootleggers

NEW YORK, June 27.—New and drastic action was taken by the government today in dealing with bootlegging by crews of foreign steamships.

The threat was made by customs officials that if any member of the crew, charged with bootlegging, made his escape through the connivance of other members of the crew, after he had been arrested, the ship would be prevented from sailing.

Pistol Shots Fired At French Consul

BERLIN, June 27. (UP)—A Russian woman, Agathe Makaroff, 26, fired three shots at the French consul, Rene Binet, here today, but did not hit him. The woman, who was accompanied by her husband, had demanded compensation from France for the loss of her leg in an accident in France. The woman and man were arrested.

The Roman mile was considerably shorter than the American mile, being about 1,620 yards compared with 1,760 yards.

Wichita Ranch Owner's Wife Makes Statement

"Suffered From Acute Indigestion but Since Taking Orgatone I Am Entirely Relieved," She Says

"It's the truth, before I had taken one bottle of Orgatone, I began to notice a big change in my condition, and was feeling much better," said Mrs. W. M. Coleman, of the 3009 Tenth street, Wichita Falls, Texas, wife of a well-known ranch owner.

"I have suffered from acute indigestion for about five years, and just couldn't get hold of a medicine that would relieve this trouble. I had gas that formed on my stomach after every meal, and I was very bilious and had severe nervous spells, and at times couldn't rest well at nights. I got so I just didn't feel like eating anything for I knew that I would suffer afterwards, and had to be very careful of what I did manage to force down.

"Orgatone was advertised so highly and so I decided to give it a trial. I haven't had a spell of indigestion since I began taking it. I eat anything now I want, and am not bothered in the least. I'm not bilious or do not have that gaseous condition, and am feeling better in every way. Orgatone has certainly done me a world of good and I am glad to give this statement."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific bile preparation and is sold in Wichita Falls, exclusively by Allison's Drug Store, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.—Adv.

War Ace Who Downed 25 Hun Planes Mistaken for Tramp at El Paso

Ex-Service Men Rally to Aid of Derelict Here of Air Who Suffered Many Reverses

EL PASO, June 27. (AP)—The efforts of former service men here have furnished Capt. W. C. MacKenzie, famous Canadian war-time flier recently the subject of a widely read magazine article, employment and an opportunity to rebuild his body and his fortunes.

After being officially credited with downing 25 German planes with the royal air corps, Captain MacKenzie returned to United States with his tongue, throat and lungs badly damaged by gas, bullet scars on his body, a silver plate in his head and about half of the normal vision of one eye. Five years in hospitals in this country helped him a little and he set out to earn a living. He could not fly and the work of repairing airplane engines, at which he is expert, was too heavy.

Joined Border Patrol

He joined the border patrol at Brownsville, Texas, and was one of a score of patrolmen poisoned by canned goods in 1920. Many of his comrades died, but he survived again, becoming a gun and typewriter repairman. In San Antonio, recently, where there is a Canadian club, the number of guns and typewriters to be repaired was so great that MacKenzie was able to purchase a motorcycle and camping outfit for a trip to the coast. Near Uvalde, Texas, the motorcycle and outfit burned and MacKenzie arrived here "broke." At a newspaper office, where he sought a job repairing typewriters, he was taken for a tramp and ordered out. He did not tell them who he was but went to the county judge, seeking an introduction to the associated charities which would enable him to obtain a loan.

When the newspapers discovered his identity a story of his career and predicament brought MacKenzie the help of many ex-service men and plenty of typewriters and guns to repair.

Saw Richthofen Die

MacKenzie was a flying mate of the famous British ace Roy Brown and was with Brown when Brown shot down Baron Richthofen, the ace of all wartime aces. MacKenzie had shot down 25 Germans and was trying for his 26th when anti-aircraft fire wounded him and almost shot the motor out of his plane. He landed in mustard gas with swooping enemy planes raking him with machine guns, but survived, although he did no more flying.

Two of Captain MacKenzie's brothers and two brothers-in-law were killed fighting in the allied lines and one sister was killed while driving an ambulance. MacKenzie's wife and infant child were killed 10 years ago in Jacksonville, Fla., when an enraged wife entered a railroad station and killed her husband and her companion. A stray bullet killed Mrs. MacKenzie and her baby before the hysterical wife ended her own life.

State Fire Marshal Makes Survey Here

In line with plans of the state fire marshal's office to make thorough investigation of fires of a suspicious nature, a representative of that office has been in Wichita Falls for the last few days investigating recent fires in this city.

R. M. Mercer to Supervise Air Traffic

R. M. Mercer, clerk at the Kemp hotel, was appointed traffic representative for the Braniff Airlines division of the Universal Airlines, Inc., in Wichita Falls and vicinity, Thursday morning when Paul R. Braniff, president, and Leo Rice, executive vice president, were visitors in this city.

Mr. Mercer announced that a cabin plane will be stationed at the Municipal airport here within the next few days for taxi service. Relay trips for passengers from ships of the San Angelo-Wichita Falls-Oklahoma City line, and emergency hops to all points in this section of the country will be made by the taxi ship, it was announced.

A private auto cab of the Braniff company also is being sent to Wichita Falls, it was said, for the purpose of affording quick transportation for air passengers to and from the airport. The car will call at the Kemp, Marchman and Holt hotels 20 minutes before the time of departure of each plane, returning to the city immediately with incoming passengers.

Information relative to service through the Universal Airlines' system, and tickets to all points, will be available through Mr. Mercer, it was announced.
