Wage garnishment amendment wins big

AUSTIN (AP) — New constitutional amendments approved by Texas voters will give veterans a break in buying their first home and make it harder for wayward parents to keep from making child support payments.

Nine of 11 proposed amendments to the state's constitution won approval in Tuesday's statewide election and one was leading in vote tabulations that resumed this morning.

The only one losing was proposal No. 8, which would have authorized tax-exempt status to certain veterans' and fraternal organizations. With 91 percent of the precincts reporting, it had received 52.7 percent "no" votes. Secretary of State John Fainter had closed the state's vote-tabulating machinery at midnight. He said he did not expect the uncounted votes to change any trends.

Proposition No. 10, authorizing cities to relocate or replace sewers on private property, collecting the money from the property owner over a period of years, was leading with 53 percent approval with 91 percent of the precincts reporting.

The other nine proposed amendments received 61.9 percent approval or more. Voter turnout statewide, as predicted, was low. It was not expected to go above 13 percent when the final votes were counted today. But in Houston, voter interest was aroused by a mayor's race and a controversy over building a downtown convention center, and turnout there ran more than 36 percent of the registered voters.

State elections officials said the vote in Harris County accounted for nearly 40 percent of all the votes cast in the state Tuesday.

Texas voters gave the most lopsided amendment support to proposition No. 6, which would allow for the first time in Texas garnishment of wages to make overdue child support payments. The new amendment was leading with a 79.5 with 91 percent of the precincts reporting.

Attorney General Jim Mattox said ironically "it will probably have the greatest impact on people who are not voters — individuals who do not accept their responsibilities." He hailed it as an "extremely useful tool to enforce wayward parents into supporting their offspring."

The landslide victory of an amendment doubling the size of the Board of Pardons and Paroles and taking the governor out of the paroles process "surprised" prison reform activist Charlie Sullivan.

"In many ways this is a referendum on the prison reform question. We are entering a new era of criminal justice in this state. I'm surprised at the overwhelming support it got," said Sullivan, director of the Citizens United for the Rehabilitation of Errants, a prison reform group.

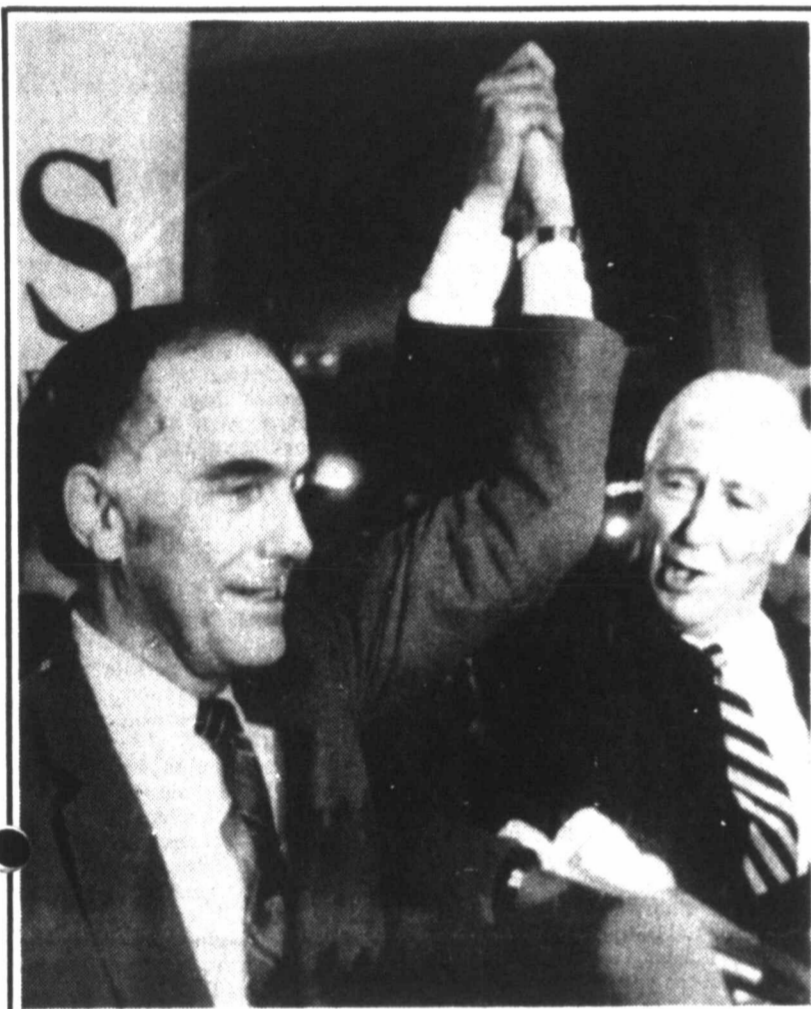

Rep. Bill Hollowell, D-Grand Saline, said Texans made an "enlightened decision" in approving his amendment to keep the Legislature intact in case of enemy attack. It also gives the governor the power to move the Legislature's meeting place away from Austin if war makes it necessary. Hollowell said the site was unspecified, by design.

"If we were subject to a missile attack, you wouldn't want to broadcast where you're moving your seat of government," he said.

Veterans who have been able to borrow up to $20,000 to buy rural land can now apply the money instead toward purchase of their first home if they choose, as a result of Tuesday's election. It was a pet project of Land Commissioner Garry Mauro.

"Texans have shown they are willing to help our Texas veterans help themselves," he said.

Evans victory seen as boost for GOP

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

Sen. Dan Evans' convincing victory in the Washington Senate election was a personal triumph, a significant boost for Republicans hoping to retain control of the Senate in next year's balloting nationwide and a strong indication of political support for President Reagan.

"If I beat Dan Evans ... it will be because of the issues of economic and foreign policy, where he has gone down the line with Reagan," particularly on the president's policies in Grenada and Lebanon, defeated Democratic contender Mike Lowry said before Tuesday's vote.

He lost to Evans and no Republican, at least, is likely to pass up the chance to tout the results as a strong vote of confidence for a president who has not yet made a formal declaration of his candidacy.

There were other national implications in a smattering of off-year elections:

— Democratic Lt. Gov. Martha Layne Collins of Kentucky has become the only woman elected among 50 state governors, a win that will catapult her to a position of prominence overnight. Without her, the Democrats have been trying to exploit the "gender gap" that

AP news analysis

President Reagan suffers from without being able to claim a single woman among its own ranks of governors and senators — Democrats also hailed the victory of Georgia state lawmaker George "Buddy" Darden over the widow of the slain Rep. Larry McDonald. McDonald was an ultra-conservative Democrat and a John Birch Society leader who rarely followed his party in the House. With his widow Kathryn promising to follow in his footsteps, House leaders were quietly hoping she could be defeated.

But these Democratic triumphs aside, the Washington Senate race was the one that drew the most attention.

For Evans personally, the victory over Lowry, a three-term liberal who will return to the House, was evidence of unusually enduring popularity in a state where 40 percent of the voters are new since he ran and won his last governor's race in 1972. He was appointed to the seat when Sen. Henry M. Jackson died two months ago, and now will serve out the five years remaining in the term.

County voters agree on six amendments

By JULIA CLARK
Staff Writer

Less than 10 percent of the registered voters in Gray County helped decide, among other things, that a person's wages can be garnished for overdue child support and how Texas will be governed in times of emergency in Tuesday's election.

Of 13,688 registered voters in the county, 1,133 went to the polls and cast their ballots on 11 proposed constitutional amendments.

Gray County voters agreed with the statewide vote on six of the amendments and disagreed on five of the issues.

Agreeing with the rest of the state voters on the following amendments, Gray county voters said:

Yes to Constitutional Amendment 6, allowing the state to deduct up to one third of a person's earnings from his paycheck to make overdue child support payments, with 825 yes and 286 no votes.

Yes to Constitutional Amendment 1, allowing sparsely populated counties fewer justices of peace and constables, 789 yes and 297 no votes.

Yes to Constitutional Amendment 5, allowing school districts to issue bonds guaranteed by the permanent school fund, 603 yes and 485 no votes.

Yes to Constitutional Amendment 7, allowing the Veterans Land Board to issue $800 million more in state-guaranteed bonds to help the state's military veterans, 667 yes and 436 no votes.

NO to Constitutional Amendment 8, thereby denying property tax exemptions to certain veterans and fraternal organizations, with 712 no and 386 yes votes, and

Yes to Constitutional Amendment 11, removing the governor from the prison parole process and giving the state board of pardons and paroles the full authority to investigate and grant or revoke paroles and releases from prison, 571 yes and 524 no votes.

Disagreeing with the rest of Texas voters on the following issues, Gray County voters said:

No to Constitutional Amendment 2, changing the terms of the homestead exemption by protecting urban homesteads of up to one acre, with 633 no and 430 yes votes.

No to Constitutional Amendment 3, allowing farmers and ranchers to vote if they wanted to assess a charge against the profit on their products to finance marketing, research and education projects relating to that product, 580 no and 494 yes votes.

No to Constitutional Amendment 4, setting up a line of succession if senators and representatives were killed, wounded, captured or missing due to an enemy attack, 587 no and 494 yes votes.

No to Constitutional Amendment 9, allowing probate judges to sit in probate courts in counties other than the one in which they were elected, with 610 no and 468 yes votes, and

No to Constitutional Amendment 10, permitting cities and towns to replace or relocate sewer lines on private property and then assess the property owners, with 791 no and 308 yes votes.

Voters reject tax

Wheeler water district left high and dry

By JEFF LANGLEY
Senior Staff Writer

WHEELER — Wheeler County voters' rejection of a lake tax Tuesday leaves funding for a county water district high and dry.

Voters here Tuesday rejected a tax that proponents of a $28 million lake project said would give local residents more control over planning a proposed lake and county water supply system.

The issue rejected would have allowed the Wheeler County Water Supply District to levy a tax of up to five cents per $100 valuation to pay for planning a proposed large lake northeast of Wheeler.

Wheeler County voters defeated the proposed tax levy, with 584 people voting against the issue and 504 people voting in favor of the tax.

Since 1963, state - appointed water boards and locally - elected water board members have tried to find a way to dam up Sweetwater Creek and create a large lake seven miles east and two miles north of Wheeler. The lake would provide water to all towns and residents in the county, and its projected 2,500 surface acres of water would make for some fine recreation, proponents say. "It would be a little bigger than Lake Greenbelt," local water board member M. Kent Sims said about the proposed lake near Wheeler.

The state legislature long ago created the Red River Authority to study the best way to use that river's resources throughout the state.

Since Sweetwater Creek is part of the Red River's watershed, the state - authorized river authority has studied the creek since 1963. The authority has studied the cost of placing a dam on the creek near Wheeler and the lake that would result.

A local board, forming the Wheeler County Water Supply District, was also authorized by the legislature. The local water district's five board members were confirmed by voters last August.

From the early 60s to date, the state's Red River Authority has spent about $150,000 studying the proposed lake.

The local water board wanted voters to authorize the tax levy so that it could pay off the state authority's expenses and take over control of the project, according to Sims.

If the Wheeler water district controlled the project, local residents could determine the lake's design and future use, Sims said.

"People here indicated they wanted local control of recreational facilities and development of the lake," he said.

The vote Tuesday left the local water district without funds to pay the river authority's expenses or to pay for future local studies of the proposed lake.

Now that the voters have rejected the tax to fund local studies of the proposed lake, it is unknown whether the river authority will continue to spend its money on the project.

The Wheeler County Water Supply District board members will meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in the county courthouse to decide what to do next.

Even colder weather expected after low of 32 this morning

From Staff and wire reports

Light snow dusted central sections of the Texas Panhandle before dawn today as the icy fingers of a cold front moved into the state, bringing the promise of brisk temperatures over northern regions.

The low temperature for Pampa hit 32 degrees at 4:33 a.m. today with a wind chill factor of 5 to 10 degrees. The city received .03 inch of moisture from rain falling during the night. Some large snowflakes were reported mixed with the rain.

The freezing mark was reached after the temperature hit a high of 77 degrees in Pampa Tuesday afternoon before the cold front entered the region Tuesday night.

Gusty northerly winds 15-25 miles per hour will keep temperatures brisk today. A 30 percent chance of rain mixed with snow will continue through the night.

The cold front stretched from around Wichita Falls southwestward through the South Plains. Occasional rain was noted along with the snow.

Ahead of the front, low clouds covered the central third of Texas, while light fog reduced visibilities over the southeast. Clear skies were the rule across the rest of the state.

Pre-dawn temperatures varied from the lower 30s in the Panhandle to the 70s in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. At 4 a.m., readings ranged from 34 at Amarillo to 74 at McAllen.

Light southeasterly winds breezed across South and East Texas while southerly breezes at 10 to 15 mph flowed over North Central Texas. Winds had shifted to the north at around 10 mph in West Texas, while icy gusts of up to 25 mph were noted in the Panhandle.

The forecast called for temperatures to drop throughout the day over North Texas as the cold front moved southward. Lower readings were expected tonight and Thursday over southern sections of the state.

Locally the high was expected to reach into the upper 40s today under partly cloudy skies. Skies should be clearing tonight with the low forecast to dip near 30 in the early hours Thursday morning.

High tomorrow for Pampa and surrounding areas should be in the low 60s, forecasters said.

City says thanks to Brown Foundation

By LARRY HOLLIS
Staff Writer

The Pampa City Commission passed a resolution at its regular meeting Tuesday morning expressing gratitude to the M. K. Brown Foundation for its contributions and continuing support to city programs.

The resolution noted the late Mr. Brown's "desire to assist others" has been continued through the foundation, noting specifically the M. K. Brown Auditorium and the new M. K. Brown Pool.

Before presenting the resolution for commission approval, Mayor Calvin Whatley recalled his memories of M. K. Brown and gave a brief biographical background of the city philanthropist.

"We look back upon his years here with a lot of fondness and a lot of love," the mayor said.

He talked of first seeing Brown shortly after he moved to Pampa when he was about 11. "He always walked straight ... he was always busy," Mayor Whatley said. "He worked as if he would live forever," he recalled, remembering seeing him picking up mailbags from the train depot when the post office was located in the White Deer Land office.

Foundation President Bill Waters thanked the commission for the resolution. "Mr. Brown had a fierce loyalty and a fierce pride in his town" and wanted to help insure its success, he noted.

"I'm concerned sometimes that a majority of our citizens might forget him (Mr. Brown)," Waters said. He noted that Brown never sought notoriety but "was always encouraging" of those who sought to achieve.

In other matters, the commission set a public hearing on a request for a variance concerning a mobile home at 300 Miami for its regular meeting on Dec. 13. The mobile home is extending into city right of way as currently placed on the property, Steve Vaughn, city building inspector, explained.

Vaughn said the mobile home extends 4½ feet into the city's right of way on the property. It should have been set back 10 feet from the property line.

He told the commissioners that no permit had been obtained from the city to move the home onto the property. The owner said he had been told by a moving company in Amarillo that they would take care of all permits and meet city standards.

Vaughn said many mobile home dealerships have been telling buyers they will take care of needed permits but then fail to do so. However, the city ordinance puts the responsibility for compliance with city codes on the buyers of the homes, he said.

Commissioners set a special meeting for 8 a.m. next Tuesday, Nov. 15, to cast votes for members of the Gray County

Woman, black, Republican win in spotlighted elections Tuesday

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Voters gave Kentucky its first woman governor and Philadelphia its first black mayor, and kept a U.S. Senate seat in Republican hands for five more years in a Washington election seen as an endorsement of President Reagan's policies.

In other off-year voting Tuesday, the widow of John Birch Society chairman Larry McDonald lost to a less-conservative Georgia Democrat in her bid to replace her slain husband in the House. Mississippi voters stuck to tradition and elected Democratic Atty. Gen. Bill Allain as governor, despite a bitter campaign in which he was accused of having had sex with male prostitutes.

Several states had referendums on the ballot. Ohioans refused to repeal a 90 percent income tax increase. Maine voters turned back an attempt to ban moose hunting, and New Yorkers approved a $1 billion bond issue to repair the transportation system.

Washington's GOP Sen. Dan Evans, appointed two months ago after the death of Democratic Sen. Henry M. "Scoop" Jackson, easily defeated liberal Democratic Rep. Mike Lowry to maintain the Republicans' 55-45 margin in the Senate.

"It's been a long 60 days," Evans told supporters as he claimed victory. "These have been fantastic returns for me."

The 58-year-old former governor said Reagan telephoned congratulations as he flew over the Pacific bound for Asia. "It was gratifying to hear from him. I'm just as pleased as I could be," Evans said.

Lowry had run as a critic of the Grenada invasion and of keeping Marines in Beirut, and said Evans was "wrong" to support Reagan on those and other issues.

Lowry refused to concede immediately, but with 55 percent of the vote counted, Evans had 342,550 votes, or 54 percent, compared to 283,329 for Lowry, or 46 percent.

Martha Layne Collins, Kentucky's 46-year-old Democratic lieutenant governor, defeated former major league baseball pitcher and Republican legislator Jim Bunning in the race to succeed Gov. John Y. Brown Jr., a Democrat barred by law from seeking a second term.

She will become the nation's only woman governor when she takes office and is only the third woman ever elected governor without succeeding her husband.

"We made history and I thank you very much," she told supporters. "I thank you for making a dream come true."

With 98 percent of the vote in, Mrs. Collins had 525,150 votes, or 54 percent, to 431,200, or 45 percent for Bunning. Independent Nicholas Cubbin ran a distant third.

W. Wilson Goode, 44-year-old son of a sharecropper, won election in Philadelphia as the first black mayor of the nation's fourth-largest city. Blacks now control City Hall in four of the six largest U.S. cities, including Chicago, Los Angeles and Detroit.

"I said all along I was running to be mayor of all the people and I intend to be mayor of all the people of this city," Goode told thousands of cheering supporters. "I'll be a good mayor. I'll work hard. God bless all of you."

With 99 percent of the vote counted, Goode had 387,266 votes, or 55 percent; Republican John Egan had 259,478, or 37 percent, and independent Democrat Thomas Leonard had 55,739, or 8 percent.

Charlotte, N.C., also elected its first black mayor, with Democrat Harvey Gantt narrowly defeating Republican Ed Peacock, and Richard Hatcher, one of the nation's first big city black mayors, easily won a fifth term in Gary, Ind.

In Georgia, Kathryn McDonald told supporters they had all "fought a good fight" after she was beaten by legislator George "Buddy" Darden. The special election was for the 7th District seat occupied by her husband until he was killed when the Soviets shot down a Korean jetliner Sept. 1.

"But we have been handicapped," she said in conceding. "It's very difficult to put your whole heart in something when half of it is broken."

Mrs. McDonald had pledged to follow the ultra-conservative policies of her husband, who often voted against the Democratic leadership in the House. Party chairman Charles T. Manatt said it was "particularly gratifying" that Darden won since he was "running as a national Democrat."

Complete but unofficial returns showed Darden had 56,167 votes, or 59 percent, to Mrs. McDonald's 38,880, or 41 percent.

In Mississippi, Allain said he hoped everyone would "forget about these things" after he overcame the charges of homosexuality and fought off a bid by businessman Leon Bramlett to become the state's first Republican governor since Reconstruction.

"I want Mississippi to move forward with a vision I see for our state, a vision of greatness," Allain said.

With 87 percent of the votes counted, Allain had 350,841 votes or 55 percent, to 251,673, or 39 percent for Bramlett. Black activist Charles Evers and two other independents trailed.

Incumbent mayors who won elections included, William Hudnut, winning his third term in Indianapolis, William Donald Schaefer, winning his fourth in Baltimore and Ted Wilson, earning a new term in Salt Lake City. Dianne Feinstein in San Francisco and Kathy Whitmire in Houston both won second terms.

But in Miami, five-term incumbent Maurice Ferre was forced into a Nov. 15 runoff.

New trial granted

AUSTIN (AP) - A Harris County man, who complained that drugs found in his car should not have been used as evidence, today was granted a new trial on charges of trying to kill an Alvin policeman.

Donald Eugene Wallace had been sentenced to 20 years in prison and a $5,000 fine for the attempted capital murder of Sgt. Jeffrey Atkins on Jan. 9, 1980.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals said Atkins stopped Wallace's car and asked Wallace for his driver's license. Wallace said, "I don't have one," and drove away.

Security tightened at Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Capitol will remain open to visitors despite a bomb blast that ripped through a Senate corridor, but a top security official says tourists face strict new security measures because "times are different now."

Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Larry E. Smith said Tuesday the public immediately will discover fewer open entrances, more metal detectors and once-public areas declared off-limits. Eventually, tourists will be issued identification badges.

While Smith and congressional leaders worked on the new measures, senators debated a military spending bill over the whine of electric saws and the scraping of shovels sweeping up broken glass.

And throughout the day, Capitol Police special squads dashed through the building checking out phony bomb threats, "most of them crank calls," Smith said.

The bomb exploded late Monday night on the second floor.

Tax Appraisal District after Carruth and Curry indicated they wanted more time to determine which candidate might better meet the city's needs.

Vaughn, who also serves as coordinator for the Office of Emergency Management (Civil Defense), discussed briefly a revised disaster emergency plan for Pampa and Gray County. Commissioners had received the new plan in bound-book form.

Vaughn explained the new emergency plan contains laws, operations methods, procedures and other information to be considered by the commission in the event of a need to declare a state of emergency. In the past, the city and county had separate plans, but under state guidelines one plan has been devised.

He noted that "an elected official must be the one to declare a state of emergency in the city." The first one to do so should be the mayor. In his absence then a commissioner could declare the emergency. If the mayor and commissioners are all absent, then the county judge could step in, he said.

Vaughn also discussed the new emergency warning system, which will use scanner radios to inform citizens more quickly of disaster information over the city public works or city police frequencies. He said the system could be more helpful in disseminating information to schools, churches, nursing homes, hospitals or other places in which a large number of people might be assembled when normal radio or television broadcasts might not be in use.

He also informed the commission of a program to train shelter managers to provide assistance in church and other basements during disasters.

In other business, commissioners approved a payment of $67,289.20 to Ivan Dement, Inc., for Duncan and 23rd St. construction, approved payment of $54,113.81 to Hayden Sales Construction Co. for work on the new pool and okayed accounts payable.

authority indicate Sweetwater Creek produces enough water to create the lake, Sims said. But whether local residents even want a lake and the cost of building it are the questions in dispute.

"A lot of people have said it's too big - that they could never use that much water," Sims said.

"They said the same thing about Greenbelt," he added.

All water used in the county is currently produced by wells. But the water table is dropping, and it has become more difficult to find good wells in Wheeler County to replace those that have gone dry, Sims said.

He said the lake might solve the county's water supply problem and meet future needs.

The lake would serve rural Wheeler County residents and the towns of Wheeler, Shamrock, Mobeetie, Allison, Briscoe and Kelton.

The total cost of the lake and the system of distributing its water is estimated at $28 million.

Sims said the Texas Water Development board would probably grant a $10 million loan for the project, with the remaining $18 million to be funded by the local water district.

The entire cost of the new lake and water system would result in a total tax levy of about 15 cents per $100 valuation over 15 years, Sims said.

The voters' rejection of the lake studies tax is only the latest setback for the project. In the past, nearby landowners have filed unsuccessful lawsuits to block drilling tests in connection with the lake. The states of Oklahoma and Arkansas also had past squabbles with Texas over water rights from the Red River watershed. However, the states' differences have been resolved, Sims said.

Even with some of the past obstacles to the Wheeler County lake out of the way, the State of Texas hasn't even said whether it would allow the proposed dam and diversion of Sweetwater Creek.

Before the lake ever becomes a reality, the Texas Water Commission must issue a permit to impound the creek's water, Sims said.

Mondale-Bentsen ticket favored by Texas Democrat officials

AUSTIN (AP) — A Democratic ticket of former Vice President Walter Mondale and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is favored by four of Texas' top officials, the Bryan-College Station Eagle said Tuesday.

The newspaper said a survey showed Attorney General Jim Mattox, Comptroller Bob Bullock and Land Commissioner Garry Mauro support Mondale.

Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower refused to make a public statement on the campaign but indicated privately he is a strong backer of former Vice President Mondale, the Eagle said.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby actively supports Sen. John Glenn as his state chairman.

Gov. Mark White and State Treasurer Ann Richards are uncommitted.

"All of the statewide officeholders said Bentsen, who is considered high on Mondale's list of prospective vice presidential nominees, would make an excellent running mate to the party's nominee," the Eagle said.

"Other elected officials in Texas, congressmen and state legislators who are leaning toward or already supporting a candidate are divided between Mondale and Glenn," the newspaper said.

The story said virtually all elected Republican officials are expected to support President Ronald Reagan should he decide to seek re-election. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the only Republican holding a statewide elected position, is chairman of the Reagan campaign in Texas.

The Eagle said that although White says he will be uncommitted until after the May primaries "he is already pointing out the differences between Reagan and the two leading Democrats."

White said in an interview with the Eagle that "either Mondale or Glenn would help Texas more than the Reagan administration." The governor said Mondale has a head start in Texas.

Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis told the Eagle he had not made any endorsement but said his "philosophy is more in tune with Glenn."

State legislators supporting Glenn, according to Hobby, include Sens. John Montford of Lubbock and Bill Sarpalius of Hereford and Rep. Gerald Hill of Austin.

Senators on Mondale's state steering committee are Sens. Kent Caperton of Bryan, Chet Brooks of Pasadena, Hector Uribe of Brownsville, Oscar Mauzy of Dallas, Carl Parker of Port Arthur and Carlos Truan of Corpus Christi.

In Congress, Texas Democrats who are leaning toward or supporting Glenn are Reps. Sam Hall of Marshall, Mike Andrews of Houston, Charles Stenholm of Stamford and Ralph Hall of Rockwall, the Eagle said.

Mondale supporters include Reps. Charles Wilson of Lufkin, Jack Brooks of Beaumont and John Bryant of Dallas, the newspaper said.

House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Fort Worth has not made an endorsement but is considered a long-time friend of Mondale.

"Regardless of the Democratic nominee, virtually all of the elected officials said they support Sen. Bentsen as the vice presidential nominee and scoffed at talk of Gov. White as a possible presidential running mate," the Eagle said.

Whitmire re-elected Houston mayor

HOUSTON (AP) — Kathy Whitmire, proclaiming Houston is on the right track, is returning for a second two-year term as the first female mayor of the nation's fifth-largest city after decisively withstanding the challenge of former supporter Bill Wright.

"We have the people of Houston ready to believe that we can make this city work," she said Tuesday, crediting her victory to installation of a "top flight management team for the first time in Houston's history."

"We could point to specific improvements in city hall," Mrs. Whitmire said. "We increased the policemen on the street by 25 percent. The buses now run on time 90 percent of the time."

In the next two years, she said she hoped to "continue the things that we started. One high priority is economic development."

Mrs. Whitmire, 37, a widow who rose to prominence as city controller when she became in 1977 the first woman to ever win citywide elective office in Houston, took 64 percent of Tuesday's vote. Wright, 39, her closest pursuer among eight challengers, had just 35 percent.

The final vote margin was 179,568 to 97,814. More than 36 percent of the city's registered voters went to the polls Tuesday.

"We're just beginning, I think," Wright said, hinting at another run in 1985. "We started out as an unknown. We've built name identification. We're going to press on."

In two other Houston-area ballot proposals, voters approved a hotly contested referendum that clears the way for construction of a $175 million downtown convention center and sanctioned installation of a 911 emergency telephone system.

The convention issue, for which more than $2 million was spent by backers and opponents, succeeded by a margin of 58 percent to 42 percent, 132,635 votes to 94,830.

"It will be the greatest thing to help Houston," said Frank Horlock, chairman of the group backing the proposal.

The 500,000-square-foot center now, by law, is to be financed by the city's hotel-motel tax and not by residents.

"I really can't explain what happened except they got more votes," said Jim McConn of the Houston Sports Association, which operates the Astrodome and was the chief opponent to the new convention center. He said, however, that the expensive campaign warned people to make sure supporters of a project "don't dip into the taxpayers' pocket."

The 911 phone system, which could cost residents an extra 20 cents a month on their telephone bills, had no organized opposition and easily passed in Harris County by an 82-18 percent margin, 229,621 votes to 50,390.

In the mayor's race, the campaign centered on Mrs. Whitmire's leadership during a time when Houston's oil-dependent economy sagged with the petroleum industry's depression. During her first term, unemployment soared to double-digit levels and city workers became irate after going without raises for two years. Her management skills also were questioned this year as the city was ripped by deadly spring tornadoes, August's Hurricane Alicia and late summer flooding.

Mrs. Whitmire, however, pointed to her streamlined businesslike approach to city government, the appointment of a black police chief and a decrease in the city's crime rate. And by the time the campaign peaked, hurricane debris which littered city neighborhoods was gone.

Wright, a former aide to U.S. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, and a Democratic Party fund-raiser, helped raise money for Whitmire in 1981. But he entered the race early this year, complaining that she had not lived up to earlier campaign promises, most notably one that promised an open administration.

The question of her access to reporters came up Tuesday at a news conference following her victory statement.

"During the campaign, you have to spend time campaigning and part of that is talking to the media," she said. "We're not campaigning any more."

In Lucas trial

Testimony expected to end today

DENTON, Texas (AP) — Attorneys said a jury might be able to begin its deliberations today in the murder trial of self-proclaimed mass killer Henry Lee Lucas, whose detailed account of how and why he killed a Florida teen-ager was played in court.

Lucas, 47, who has talked freely with law enforcement officers about many of about 165 slayings he claims to have committed across the nation, said he stabbed the 15-year-old girl in a pasture during a quarrel over whether to hitchhike to Florida.

Denton County District Attorney Jerry Cobb indicated Tuesday that he would rest the state's case after testimony from a pathologist who examined the skeletal remains of the victim and after additional testimony from Larry Brearley, a former Denton policeman who made the videotape.

Brearley was on the stand when the trial was recessed Tuesday.

Court-appointed defense attorney Mike Whitlock said he expected to call only two witnesses, possibly including Lucas.

Whitlock said that if Lucas takes the stand, he will be able to explain more fully the details that led up to the slaying of Frieda "Becky"

Powell.

Lucas is accused of murder in the Aug. 24, 1982 mutilation slaying of Ms. Powell, whom he had referred to as his common-law wife, and who ran away from Jacksonville, Fla., to accompany him.

Several acquaintances of Lucas described him Tuesday as "a hard worker" and "a good employee," but they also testified he was with his common-law wife the day she was slain.

Whitlock said he would try to convince the jury that Lucas should be convicted of voluntary manslaughter, instead of murder, because of an angry quarrel Lucas had with the girl in a pasture near Interstate 35 in Denton before he killed her.

"I think we will show that Henry Lee Lucas committed only the offense of voluntary manslaughter — which is bad enough — out there on Aug. 24, 1982," Whitlock told reporters Tuesday.

Voluntary manslaughter, in effect a killing in the heat of violent emotion, is punishable by a maximum of 20 years in prison.

Cobb said he would seek the maximum penalty of life in prison if Lucas is convicted of murder.

The victim's bones were discovered earlier this year after Lucas led authorities to a field near the intersection of U.S. 380 and Interstate 35 in Denton.

In the tape, Lucas said he and the girl decided to spend the night in the field after they were unable to catch a ride. She wanted to go to Jacksonville and he didn't, he said. They undressed, quarreled some more, and then she hit him, Lucas said on the tape.

Lucas said he stabbed the girl, then took off her panties and brassiere before having sex with the body and cutting her into "little teeny pieces."

However, Whitlock made a last-ditch attempt to have the videotape thrown out. Shortly before testimony began, the attorney argued that drugs given Lucas the evening made it impossible for him to give informed consent for the tape to be made.

With the jury out of the room, Lucas took the stand to testify that the drugs, which were prescribed to help him sleep and reduce anxiety, did not put him to sleep the night before the tape was made on June 17.

Lucas said he did not remember much about the next day, including making the tape, and that he was not in sufficient control of his mind to agree to the taping.

State District Judge W.C. Boyd denied the defense motion.

In addition to the watching the videotape, jurors also were shown pictures of the skull, bones, rope and other items investigators found in

WILLIAMS ACQUITTED — Anthony Williams hugs his mother in the courtroom in Dallas Tuesday after he was acquitted of a charge of robbing a 7-Eleven store in Greenville of $31. Williams claimed he was charged with the armed robbery only because he is black and drove a car with South Carolina license plates. (AP Laserphoto)

Engineer holds no animosity against town after his acquittal

DALLAS (AP) — A 25-year-old black engineer acquitted of armed robbery by an all-white jury says he would shake hands with a police officer whose racial prejudice, attorneys charged, led to his arrest.

Anthony Williams, who was arrested and charged with robbing a Garland 7-Eleven store of $31 after a Greenville police detective distributed his picture to other authorities, hugged jurors Tuesday after the verdict.

Civil rights attorneys contended that Lt. James Fortenberry was suspicious of Williams only because the former E-Systems Inc. engineer is black, drove a car with South Carolina license plates around Greenville and lived with another robbery suspect.

"If I ran into Lt. Fortenberry, I'd probably shake his hand," Williams said after his acquittal. "I don't feel animosity toward anyone."

Police and prosecutors, he said, "had a job to do and they thought what they were doing was right. When it comes right down to the jury — that's where it really counts."

Williams' supporters, many of them from South Carolina, cheered as State District Judge Ed Kinkeade read the verdict, which jurors said was reached after two hours of discussion and one ballot. Some of the jurors, and Williams' mother, cried.

Williams said he believed his arrest and indictment "was motivated from racial prejudice (in) Greenville. I'm not down on Greenville as a whole, but there's always at least one bad apple."

In closing arguments, NAACP attorney George Hairston told jurors national attention had been focused on Dallas County and its judicial system.

"This case is being watched by the whole country," Hairston said. "They are watching what you do about a $30 robbery where there's a black man accused. They want to know whether Dallas renders blind justice, equal justice."

After the verdict, the Brooklyn, N.Y. attorney said, "My faith in the Dallas County judicial system has been affirmed. I'm just sorry Anthony had to go through this long ordeal."

Williams, who was arrested about a year ago, spent one month in jail before being released on bond.

Defense attorney Edwin Sigel said the verdict will help NAACP attorneys in their appeal of a life sentence given Williams' roommate, Lenell Geter.

Geter, who moved with Williams from South Carolina last year to work for E-Systems 50 miles northeast of Dallas, was convicted of robbing a fried chicken restaurant in 1982.

"Our next goal is going to be to get Geter out," Sigel said.

"They were saying that if one was guilty, than the other one was too," Williams added. Hairston said the NAACP was considering filing a petition for a new trial in Geter's case.

Fortenberry testified Monday that he considered Williams a suspect because his roommate, Geter, was suspected of another robbery. The police detective, called by the defense, testified he considered Williams a "possible suspect" in a series of North Texas armed robberies several days before the robbery of the Garland store.

Fortenberry said he told Dallas-area police agencies that Williams was a suspect in other unsolved robberies because Geter was a robbery suspect and because Williams had been his roommate.

Fortenberry also said he had circulated photographs of all six black E-Systems engineers from South Carolina to other police agencies.

Williams' picture was shown 7-Eleven clerk Lyla Jagget and she said she believed Williams was the man who robbed Aug. 22, 1982. At a police line-up, she picked out Williams, even though he is four inches taller and 35 pounds heavier than the assailant she described to police.

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessings. Only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government, and that men have the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property for themselves and others.

Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself, no more, no less. It is, thus, consistent with the coveting commandment.

Our opinion

Why the invasion was moral action

A majority of even the most severe critics of President Reagan have agreed, after learning the facts and feeling the hot breath of public opinion, that the United States did, indeed, have moral justification for its invasion of Grenada.

But many of those former critics have changed their minds for what appears to us to be the wrong reasons. They have concluded the invasion was necessary because Grenada had a Marxist government, a large presence of Cuban soldiers and Soviet military advisors, plus large stores of small arms.

But those are not proper reasons to call it a moral action. The invasion was right because citizens of Grenada overwhelmingly wanted the Americans to come in. That, and that alone, justifies military action by the United States after the safety of American citizens was assured.

It Grenada had wanted a Marxist government and approved of Cuban and Soviet representatives being in their country, that would have been their business and the United States would have had no right to intervene.

But the reaction of Grenadian residents compels freedom-loving people to conclude the invasion was moral. It is obvious now that they did not want a Marxist government; they did not want the Cuban and Soviets in their country; they were an oppressed people who WANTED the United States to free them from oppressors and, even now, they don't want U.S. troops to leave. They people of that nation do not consider the United States an aggressor; they see us as a liberator.

The invasion, in addition to guaranteeing the safety of American citizens, also extended freedom to citizens of Grenada. It lifted them out of the clutches of a government they did not choose and did not want. Free men cannot, in good conscience, now say that was an improper action.

About the only arguments left for the remaining critics of the administration is that we shouldn't have done it because most other countries in the world did not approve of the action. We totally reject that argument. Whether or not other nations approve of our actions is completely immaterial. It is none of their business, even as their activities are none of our business.

Some of those nations, for the most part, even after learning the facts about Grenada, still compare our actions there to the Soviet Union's invasion of Afghanistan. But there were no cheering crowds when the Soviet tanks rolled into Afghanistan, while American troops in Grenada were greeted by relieved citizens with friendly smiles. In view of that and the announced intentions of President Reagan to pull American troops out of Grenada as soon as possible, those charges are ridiculous.

Two of the United States' representatives in the United Nations, responding to those comparisons, gave rebuttals that we found particularly significant.

Ambassador Jeanne Kirkpatrick, her voice dripping with disdain as she spoke on the United Nations floor, said if that organization could not tell the difference between actions aimed at freeing enslaved people and actions enslaving free people, then its opinions are not worthy of serious consideration.

U.N. Representative Charles Lichenstein said those who compare the U.S. action in Grenada to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan see no difference between a gun in the hand of a thief and a gun in the hand of a policeman.

It is now incumbent upon President Reagan to carry through with his vow that U.S. troops will leave the island as soon as possible and leave the formation of a new government entirely up to the people of Grenada with no outside interference from the United States.

Once those actions are taken, nobody can dispute that the gun was in the right hands.

Clark right choice for Reagan

WASHINGTON (NEA) - The shift of William P. Clark, from the National Security Council to the Interior Department may have astounded many people, but it's an especially sensible move for the man who made the decision - President Reagan.

The replacement of James Watt with Clark as interior secretary provides that department with a leader who doesn't thrive on confrontation politics - and that's beneficial for the president because Watt's belligerent style and abrasive personality unnecessarily antagonized too many people.

At the same time, the substitution of Robert C. McFarlane for Clark as head of the NSC will help the president because it provides with an assistant for national security affairs qualified to hold that especially demanding position.

The allegation that Clark is somehow "unqualified" to be interior secretary is specious in several respects. Like both Reagan and Watt, Clark embraces a pro-development philosophy toward the land and natural resources under the government's control, but sensitivity to environmental concerns unfortunately is not an official prerequisite for the job.

Clark hasn't demonstrated much of an interest in the issues he will have to deal with at the Interior, but that consideration also is irrelevant. Every president in modern times - Republican and Democrat, liberal and conservative - has filled his cabinet with men and women who had little or no experience or expertise in their department's specialties (with the exceptions of the secretaries of state and treasury, both of which demand highly specialized backgrounds).

Far more scandalous than the pending nomination were the first two assignments Reagan gave to Clark. Both were important foreign policy positions even though Clark has repeatedly demonstrated that he is a geopolitical illiterate.

Clark's first post in the Reagan administration was under secretary of state. When he appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations committee for his confirmation hearing, he provided a dazzling display of ignorance about heads of state and forms of government around the world, leading one European newspaper to characterize him as a "nitwit."

McFarlane may be a colorless careerist, but he is, according to most accounts, a well-qualified professional capable of handling the delicate job of providing national security advice to the president.

At the Interior, Clark will have to do more than merely perpetuate Watt's policies to be successful, because Watt not only antagonized virtually everyone who cared about the environment, but also failed to achieve his own stated goals.

The Reagan administration's policy of aggressively leasing federal lands for the development of oil, gas, coal and minerals, for example, was specifically promoted as a means of producing new revenues for the government.

In the case of Watt's program to offer almost the entire outer continental shelf for oil and gas exploration and production, he predicted that the first four major sales would produce almost $9.9 billion for the federal treasury. The proceeds actually totaled only about $4.9 billion - less than half of what had been promised.

Under Watt's direction, the Interior Department this year sought to auction off more offshore oil and gas leases than had been offered in the entire 30-year history of the program - and the new sales have been conducted under revised rules which engender the acceptance of abysmally low bids.

For example, the Shell Oil Co. last spring paid the government $4.7 billion for drilling rights to an offshore tract which the department had refused to lease to the same company less than one and a half years earlier for $15.2 million.

Similarly, the department rejected a Gulf Oil Co. bid of $14.3 million for an offshore tract in late 1981, but accepted the same company's $7.9 million bid for the same tract last spring.

If Clark insists upon perpetuating the policy of leasing, selling or giving away the country's most valuable natural resources, he at least ought to insist on receiving adequate compensation.

Legacy

In this feature we excerpt material that has appeared on The Pampa News' editorial pages in previous years, whether from the editorials, the column written for many years by former editor and publisher R.C. Holles.

One of the ways we would have better schools and more competition in education would be to repeal the various tenure laws that exist in different states. I presume that most states have tenure laws so that teachers after they have held a certain teaching job for a certain time cannot be discharged without the authorities proving that they have violated some law or are guilty of serious moral turpitude.

There is no more reason why a board of education should be compelled to continue to employ a teacher when the board believes it could get better teachers than there would be to have a law that compelled subscribers of this newspaper, after they had taken it for three years, to continue taking the paper so long as the publisher wanted them to take it and pay for it.

How to learn about an invasion

"Hi, Colonel, where are you going with your parachute?"

"I can't tell you, son. It's a military secret."

"I'm from the press. Can I come along?"

"No way, son."

"Why not sir? I'm paid to cover wars."

"I'd be too worried about your safety. We have a mission to accomplish, and we don't want you to get hurt."

"With all due respect, sir, that sounds like a load of bullfathers. How are the American people going to know what's really happening if you exclude the media from the operation?"

"We'll brief you at the White House, with great maps and wonderful pictures."

"That isn't the same as being on the scene. Are you trying to tell me that from now on we have only the government's word as to what happens when American troops are sent into a foreign land?"

"Why not?" Do you think the government would lie to the people?"

"No, they wouldn't lie. But they do tend to see things from a different point of view. In a free and open society, the American people demand to be informed as to what their government is doing."

"You may think so, but the latest polls show the American people would rather believe what their government tells them than what the media reports. The trouble with you guys is that you're always bringing them bad news, while the government prefers to give them good news. As far as the Pentagon is concerned, you guys covered your last war in Vietnam."

"Well, if you won't let me come along with you, can you give me a little hint of where you're going?"

"We're going in to overthrow a repressive government that took power through force and wiped out all the opposition."

"You're not going into Chile, are you?"

"You're not even warm. The present leaders of this particular country are no more than thugs with curfews and death squads and they have no respect for human rights."

"I got it. You're going into El Salvador."

"We are in El Salvador. The government we're going to overthrow is a totalitarian regime that rules with an iron fist, has martial law and doesn't think twice assassinating its critics."

"Wait a minute. You're not going to attack the Philippines are you?"

"You're in the wrong ocean. It's a Communist government steeped in Marxist philosophy, with contempt for all democratic reforms."

"Poland?"

"We have no intention of being bogged down in Poland, or anyplace behind the iron curtain."

"They're so many countries in the world that fit your description, it's hard to come up with just one. Let's see, we've eliminated all the major Communist countries because militarily it's not feasible. I'm stumped.

You have to give me another hint."

"Ask me if it's bigger than a breadbox."

"I forgot that one. Is it bigger than a breadbox?"

"No, it isn't bigger than a breadbox."

"It's not bigger than a breadbox and it's a threat to the U.S.?"

"It isn't a threat to the U.S. in itself, but it's a way of sending a message to Cuba and the Soviet Union not to mess around with us because we mean business."

"You mean it's not bigger than a breadbox and the press can't even accompany the American troops going in?"

"Now you're getting very warm. Do you give up?"

"What choice do I have? Where are you going with your parachute?"

"I can't tell you all. But if you go over to the Pentagon tomorrow they'll give you all the details, and to show we he nothing personal against the media, the coffee and doughnuts will be on the house."

Curious facts about apples

A most remarkable fruit is the apple, which we of north America harvest at this season of the year.

If we lived in Chile, we would pick our apples in April, that being their Autumn. The apple grows in two zones around the Earth, one about 35 to 50 degrees north, the other 35 to 50 degrees south, of the equator.

How many apples are grown the world over, no one knows, but they are easily the most popular of the tree fruits that grow in the temperate zones. More are grown in North America than in any other continent.

A curious fact about apples is that you do not grow them merely by planting seeds. Plant a seed from a McIntosh apple and you will not get a tree that bears McIntosh apples. To get McIntosh, you must graft or bud a cutting from a McIntosh onto your seedling. This budding has been done by the nursery that sells you the tree.

For this reason, one should be careful to buy from a reliable nurseryman, for you have to accept his word for the variety or apple you are buying.

Another interesting fact is that there are or have been hundreds, maybe thousands, of varieties of apples propagated. Some are good, some not so good, but all are different. Only a few varieties of apple trees are available at most commercial nurseries. They are the ones that have proven best and most practical to grow.

Nowadays, the Delicious (unknown in my childhood), both the Red and the Yellow or Golden, are tops in popularity. They yield heavily, taste as their name indicates. To me it would be first because it has a more spirited flavor than the Delicious, but the commercial grower must consider other factors such as yield and keeping quality, as well as flavor.

Another good quality is the Winesap, and the Stayman Winesap also has good flavor. An old variety, for some reason not grown as widely as it once was but still excellent in quality, is the Northern Spy. Still another, especially good for pies and sauce, is the Rhode Island Greening.

A tasty early apple is the Yellow Transparent, but it has to be used in late summer. My father had an early apple called the Peach Apple, which was similar to Yellow Transparent but even better in flavor, though smaller. He also had several trees of Hampshire Sweet, a big yellow apple which was excellent when baked and eaten in a bowl of bread and milk.

The biggest apple I ever saw was the Wolf River, which resembles a small pumpkin - in both sizes and flavor. However, it had eye appeal and so it sold rapidly. Another big one is the Twenty-Ounce Pippin.

One is warned not to set out an apple tree unless you expect to be around for 5 years and more, because it takes that long for the tree to grow and come into full bearing.

When buying an apple or other fruit tree, buy a sprayer too, for whatever variety you plant it will need to be sprayed at least once or twice after the blossoms fall, in order to get good fruit. You will also need pruning clippers and a saw.

Newest space shuttle enroute to launch site at space center

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Low clouds prevented the crew of America's newest space shuttle, Discovery, from making a scheduled swing over Dallas, but an estimated 100,000 people were able to see the arrival of the mammoth spacecraft at Carswell Air Force Base.

The craft, scheduled for its first mission next May, came in atop a Boeing 747 Tuesday afternoon after a piggyback flight from California. Carswell was the second stop for the Discovery, which is being transported to Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

"The shuttles each cost about a billion dollars, all taxpayers' money. So we want to let people take a look at what they bought," said Dr. John Lawrence, of the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

"Besides, this is an extraordinary machine, a huge piece of architecture, on the forefront of technology and we're very proud of it," he said.

"If Apollo and Gemini were the Lewis and Clark expedition of space, then the shuttles are our Conestoga wagons, designed to make space habitable and industrialized," Lawrence said.

Carswell officials estimated that as many as 100,000 had the chance to view the shuttle as it flew in, many from vantage points on the city's hilly west side.

The Discovery, 122.2 feet long with a wingspan of 78 feet the third of four space shuttle orbiters to join the NASA fleet reusable manned spacecraft. The other operational orbiters are Columbia and Challenger.

"It's a lot bigger than I thought," said Scott Montgomery, 13. "I'd really like to see it again some time, and I'm going Florida this spring to watch it take off."

On board the 747 that carried the shuttle was a crew of that included research pilot A.J. Roy, who flew the 747, astronaut Richard Scobee, the pilot for today's leg to Kennedy Space Center and a member of the crew for shuttle Mission 13 late in 1984.

Also on board was astronaut Gordon Fullerton, 47, who is flying as an observer, and flight engineers, Ken Haugen, Skip Guidry, 42, Victor Horton, 53.

Roy described the flight as "smooth" but said low clouds prevented the crew from making a scheduled swing to Dallas.

Fullerton, training at the American Airlines flight school qualify on 747s, said he "got a little stick-time" Tuesday when Roy allowed him to take the controls of the 747 during a smooth leg of the trip.

The 14-year NASA veteran piloted the March 1982 Columbia shuttle mission. He said, "The challenge for the shuttle program now is to refine the operation so that we can turn orbiter around and meet a schedule whenever a customer wants us."

Fullerton added, "For a test pilot, flying the shuttle is the ultimate assignment."

Discovery, the third operational shuttle with Columbia and Challenger, had departed from Vandenberg Air Force Base where it underwent testing of ground-handling equipment the base's new military shuttle facility.

Discovery first took flight Sunday when it was ferried at the 747 to the base, about 140 miles northwest of Los Angeles from Edwards Air Force Base north of Los Angeles.

On Saturday, it was towed 33 miles to Edwards from the Rockwell International plant at Palmdale where it was built.

An estimated 50,000 visitors streamed into Vandenberg Monday to see the Discovery.

The next space shuttle mission is scheduled to take off Nov. 28, with mission commander John Young, pilot Brewster Shaw, Dr. Owen Garriott and Dr. Bob Parker.

It will be the sixth mission for the space shuttle Columbia which will be returned to the factory for repairs following the November mission.

PLO fighting rages as truce is announced

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian-backed guerrilla PLO mutineers shelled PLO loyalists in northern Lebanon today despite announcement of a cease-fire, while U.S. Marines traded fire with gunmen at their base at Beirut airport.

Gunmen attacked the U.S. peacekeepers on the northeastern edge of their camp at 1:15 a.m. and the Marines "returned machine gun fire," Capt. Wayne Jones, a Marine spokesman said. There were no casualties in the eight-minute firefight, he said.

Beirut radio stations said Israeli air force jets made repeated reconnaissance flights over Beirut and surrounding hills at mid-morning.

Reporters in Tripoli, where PLO chief Yasser Arafat has been cornered by the seven-day assault, said the attack on his forces was raging when Kuwait minister Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmed announced that Arab mediators had tentatively convinced the Palestine Liberation Organization rivals to cease their warfare.

The mutineers pounded the PLO loyalists with artillery and rocket fire, igniting more fires in the oil refinery of Tripoli, Lebanon's second largest city, according to Beirut radio.

Arafat met with Tripoli's political and religious figures on Tuesday and announced that if the rebels stop their assault he would quit the fight — and fight only in self-defense — to spare Tripoli's 500,000 residents from a "bloodbath."

On Tuesday, the mutineers shelled the Baddawi camp of Palestinian refugees, which was Arafat's last Middle East stronghold, and Tripoli itself. Loyalists fired back with rockets and mortars.

Police said the PLO war has left at least 1,000 dead and 3,000 wounded in and around Tripoli since fighting began Sept. 13. Qatar, the Kuwaiti foreign minister said the mediators have arranged an "agreement in principle" for a cease-fire in the PLO warfare.

The sheik had just returned from a mediation mission assigned by leaders of six Arab nations in Doha for a summit of the Gulf Cooperation Council.

It's said their numbers once darkened the sun.

Once they were said to be countless. Today it takes special care to ensure waterfowl's survival. It takes your help.

Ducks Unlimited is an organization that provides our Continent's waterfowl with the habitat they need to breed and survive. DU works to protect and restore the marshlands of Canada, where United States Federal funds do not reach... and where 70% of our waterfowl are hatched.

DU has preserved 2.7 million acres of habitat — more than any other private wildlife organization. But as civilization presses in upon natural waterfowl habitats, DU's work becomes even more important. And so do your dollars.

Pilots claim passengers were exposed to dangers during flight

HOUSTON (AP) — The Air Line Pilots Association, whose members are on strike against Continental Airlines, contends passengers on the carrier were endangered on a flight last month because the non-striking pilot forgot his navigation charts.

But while ALPA, in a Houston newspaper advertisement Tuesday, called the failure to have the charts "a blatant safety violation," a Federal Aviation Administration official said it was "no big deal."

"We get those all the time," Robert Rightmer, FAA team supervisor at the Houston Air Control Center, said. "I wouldn't think that would be a serious matter."

The airline, meanwhile, reported Tuesday a $77.2 million loss for the third quarter of 1983 before it asked a federal bankruptcy court for protection from creditors on Sept. 24. The figure included an operating loss of $47.2 million, which does not count deficits caused by the reorganization under federal bankruptcy laws.

The third-quarter figures, which amounted to $3.54 per share, compared with a second-quarter operating loss of $29.7 million and net loss of $26.5 million. Third-quarter revenues were $312.5 million.

The airline, the nation's eighth-largest prior to reorganization, said it suffered a net loss of $161.3 million in the first nine months of 1983, compared with a loss of $30.5 million in the same period a year ago.

Continental halted U.S. flights for two days Sept. 24. When business resumed, it limited service to just 25 of its previous 78 cities.

Pilots and flight attendants struck Oct. 1, complaining the reorganized carrier had cut salaries by half and increased work hours. The airline, however, has continued to fly.

The ALPA ad, which appeared in Houston, the home base for Continental, says pilots on the Oct. 2 Continental Flight 311 from Denver to Burbank, Calif. reported as they approached Burbank that they did not have the Jeppsen charts that give details on airport arrival routes.

According to the ad, passengers did not know "of the dangers posed by this blatant safety violation" and said the risk was enhanced by the fact Burbank's airport has mountainous terrain on three sides.

John Crouch, a spokesman for the striking pilots, insisted the absence of charts posed a real hazard.

"In the event of their two-way radio failure, it would have been a severe problem," he said. "They (the crew) would have had no directions on what to do."

Rightmer, however, said it was routine for control centers to provide the approach information needed if the aircraft did not have the appropriate charts aboard.

Continental spokesman Bruce Hicks pilots on Flight 311 had outdated charts because new ones had not yet been distributed. But he said if the pilots had lost radio contact, they could have used the old charts and still landed safely. The plane landed without incident.

In another development, Continental said Tuesday the federal bankruptcy court in Houston approved a plan announced last week under which the airline will exchange unused tickets bought prior to reorganization for certificates for future travel.

The certificates will equal in value the price of the old ticket, but because of new low rates, certificates should allow in most cases two trips for the price of the one original ticket. For tickets exceeding $250 originally, certificates will be issued for two trips, each one good for up to one round trip.

Tickets may be exchanged at city ticket offices, at Continental airport counters or by mail, Hicks said. Mailed tickets should be sent to Continental-Credit-For-Travel Office, 7300 World Way West, Los Angeles, Calif. 90009.

Reagan operates on 'trust me' plan

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Joseph Biden of Delaware barged into debate on the Senate floor with an unmistakable message to his fellow Democrats. It was that he had just been briefed on the facts and they'd be wise not to criticize President Reagan on Grenada.

Biden couldn't say what facts because the information was top secret. He'd been briefed. The senator was saying, "Trust me."

The "trust me" system of government was in full force during the invasion of Grenada — the administration was the sole source of the facts for the first few days — but that's not so

Black mayors are chosen

By The Associated Press

A raucous victory party, dotted with signs that read "Let the Goode Times Roll," celebrated W. Wilson Goode's win in his bid to become Philadelphia's first black mayor, as voters in Charlotte, N.C., Gary, Ind., and Flint, Mich., also picked black chief executives.

Democrat Harvey Gantt became the first black elected mayor of Charlotte, beating Republican Ed Peacock, and Gary Mayor Richard Hatcher was elected to a fifth four-year term Tuesday.

James Sharp, a Democrat, narrowly upset GOP incumbent James Rutherford to become the first black elected mayor of Flint. A black was selected as Flint's mayor by the city council in the 1960s.

Of the six biggest U.S. cities, Chicago, Los Angeles and Detroit also have black mayors. New York and Houston have white mayors.

Goode, a Democrat, became the first black mayor of the nation's fourth-largest city with 55 percent of the vote, downing Republican John Egan and independent Thomas Leonard.

unusual. Whenever something dramatic happens, a group of people in Washington springs into action. They work the phones. Reporters? No. Congressmen and their staffs. Their need to know turns them into snoops. Whoever has the information can shape the debate.

When the invasion began, the press and the public got all it knew about it from Reagan, who announced it three hours after the landing.

The "facts" were Reagan's facts: the operation was necessary to save American lives; it was necessary because control of the island had fallen into the hands of "a brutal group of leftist thugs."

Briefed on Reagan's facts, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill of Massachusetts came out of the White House saying that no word of criticism should be spoken when American boys were under fire.

Days later, when the administration was no longer the only source of facts, O'Neill was more skeptical. By then, debate was superfluous.

It's an old story. The Public Broadcasting System series on the Vietnam War makes a persuasive case that Congress passed the Tonkin Gulf resolution — a functional declaration of war — on the basis of an administration account of a naval attack that never occurred.

White House control over what Congress and the public are allowed to know will be made more complete if the administration plan for controlling sensitive information takes effect.

An estimated 100,000 government employees would be required to clear all their speeches and their writings with the government — even after leaving office. Even novels would have to be approved.

Ohio tax cut fails, Maine moose lose out

By The Associated Press

The annual moose hunt will go on in Maine. Taxes won't be drastically slashed in Ohio. New Yorkers will spend more than $1 billion to repair their crumbling transportation network. And a historic Washington tavern has been saved from the wrecking ball.

Those are among the results of voting Tuesday on ballot measures in 11 states and the District of Columbia.

The results spelled major political victories for Ohio Gov. Richard Celeste, who had opposed the two anti-tax measures which that state's voters defeated, and for New York Gov. Mario Cuomo who had whistle-stopped throughout his state on behalf of the $1.25 billion "Rebuild New York" bond which voters narrowly approved.

With 99 percent of the New York vote tallied, the bond carried with 1,641,344, or 53 percent, in favor, and 1,474,474, or 47 percent, opposed.

With 98.1 percent of the Ohio precincts reporting, Issue 3, which would have repealed all state taxes enacted this year, including a 90 percent income tax hike, was defeated with 1,843,514 voters, or 56.5 percent, against it, and 1,419,537, or 43.5 percent, in favor.

"Ohioans have made a tough choice at the polls today. And in doing so they have turned back the tide which would have cost our state dearly," said Celeste after the vote was in.

A second Ohio measure, Issue 2, which would have required a three-fifths legislative majority to enact future tax increases, was rejected by an even wider, 59 percent to 41 percent margin. A bid to raise the beer drinking age from 19 to 21 was also rejected by a 59-41 margin.

Despite a television campaign that featured the cartoon moose Bullwinkle, Maine voters rejected a proposed ban on the annual moose hunt by a 3-2 margin.

With 632 of 651 precincts reporting, 178,490, about 60 percent, voted to keep the hunt, while 117,583, or 40 percent, favored the proposed ban.

In other ballot contests around the country:

— Washington, D.C. voters approved a measure making it city policy to save Rhodes Tavern, a 183-year-old structure, that was threatened by a new commercial development.

— A resolution protesting U.S. involvement in Central America passed in Boulder, Colo. A similar measure was leading by a 53-47 margin in Seattle with 57 percent of the precincts reporting. And a San Francisco measure opposing U.S. involvement in El Salvador won by a margin of 74,627 votes to 65,366.

— Also in San Francisco, a measure calling for repeal of federal laws requiring bilingual ballots won 61.6 percent of the vote. And an anti-smoking proposition guaranteeing smoke-free areas in workplaces was a cliffhanger with 74,624 for it and 73,546 against.

— A proposed rent control measure affecting unincorporated areas of Los Angeles County that would roll back rents to January 1981 levels was headed for defeat. With 159 of 541 precincts reporting, 21,500, or 63 percent were opposed to the measure, and 11,650, or 37 percent were in favor.

— In the affluent desert retreat of Rancho Mirage, voters led by former President Gerald R. Ford rejected a measure aimed at blocking construction of a luxury hotel and residential complex. Frank Sinatra was among those on the losing side. Ford was an investor in the proposed development.

— St. Louis voters rejected a $63.5 million bond issue which would have funded part of the nation's largest voluntary school desegregation program between a city and its suburbs. The final vote was 35,129 for, and 28,402 against, but a two-thirds majority was needed for passage.

— Voter turnout was a heavy 66 percent in Cambridge, Mass. for a proposal to turn that university town into a "nuclear-free zone" where nuclear weapons research would be banned. Cambridge counts votes by hand, and vote results won't be known for days.

— Houston voters, by a 58-42 margin, voted to build a $175 million downtown convention center. They also approved establishment of a 911 emergency phone system.

— Three western Massachusetts towns — Springfield, Chicopee and Agawam — voted 2-1 against proposals to fluoridate their water supplies.

— LaPorte, Ind. voters approved a plan to create their own municipal electric utility, and break ties with Northern Indiana Public Service Co. The vote was 4,758 to 2,065. Backers claimed the city will save $90 million over the next 10 years.

— Concord, N.H. voters overwhelmingly approved a nuclear freeze resolution — the first passed in that state since the Soviets downed a Korean jetliner. Democratic presidential hopeful Walter F. Mondale campaigned for the measure last weekend.

— Washington state voters passed a measure creating a citizens commission empowered to redraw legislative boundaries every 10 years beginning 1990.

— Texas voters approved nine constitutional amendments, including one allowing the state to withhold delinquent child support payments from a person's paycheck.

— Voters in Dover, N.H., blocked by almost a 2-1 margin a plan to transfer the city's fire department to a private Florida firm.

— Wayne County, Pa., in the Pocono Mountains, rejected a pair of legalized gambling referendums. One would have permitted slot machines and other forms of casino gambling, and the other would have given individual communities the option to allow gambling.

Indecision in the Kremlin fuels Adropov rumors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unusual indecision in the Kremlin is prompting top officials of the Reagan administration to suspect Soviet leader Yuri Andropov is seriously ill.

"I don't think it necessarily makes them more dangerous," a leading U.S. Kremlinologist said Tuesday. "But there will be a period of uncertainty."

Administration analysts met at the White House on Tuesday to try to piece together what few clues have been gathered about the Soviet leader's health. Colds have been given as explanation for Andropov's absence from several scheduled meetings since mid-summer.

But when he skipped an indoors celebration of the Russian revolution Saturday night, suspicions here deepened. They grew stronger when he did not appear atop the Lenin Mausoleum on Monday in the annual revolution day parade.

Leonid Brezhnev managed to show up a year ago, even though he was near death. Experts here were unable to recall a Soviet leader ever missing the event.

Andropov had not been scheduled to give the formal speech at the Palace of Congresses on Saturday night. The honor is rotated among full members of the Politburo, and it was Grigory Romanov's turn.

But since Andropov did not even appear for the indoors event "one has to assume there is a real problem," said the U.S. official, declining to be identified. "Whether it's life-threatening or not, I do not know."

"If he cannot be propped up for two hours, he's in really bad shape," said another official, who also asked not to be named.

Andropov, 69, succeeded Brezhnev a year ago and moved quickly to try to revive the sluggish bureaucracy and curb corruption. On the international front he vigorously competed with President Reagan for Europe's favor in promoting arms control proposals.

But he appeared frail. Known to have had a heart condition for more than 15 years, he was also believed by some Western officials to be suffering from a kidney ailment.

Only two weeks ago, in an interview with Pravda, Andropov offered a new Soviet proposal to restrict intermediate-range nuclear missiles in Europe. Administration officials are pondering how to respond.

San Francisco voters call for end to bilingual ballots

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco voters have called for repeal of federal rules requiring bilingual ballots.

But two other measures on that city's ballots Tuesday were judged too close to call: one enforcing a city ordinance requiring non-smoking areas in workplaces, and a second which placed tough environmental restrictions on future city construction.

Results on those issues will remain uncertain until 6,500 to 7,000 more absentee ballots are counted today, said Registrar of Voters Jay Patterson.

With all of the city's precincts tallied, the proposition calling for English-only election ballots passed, 89,740 to 55,924. Its chief supporter, Supervisor Quentin Kopp, had argued that printing ballots in English, Chinese and Spanish was costly and discouraged proficiency in English.

Teen charged in 'helter scelter' slaying

BELLEVUE, Ky. (AP) — A teen-ager who wanted "to know what it felt like to kill" after a romance went sour slashed a 68-year-old man's throat, poured acid on the body and left the blood-smeared words "helter scelter" on the victim's bedroom mirror, police say.

William Thompson, 19, of Dayton, Ky., faced arraignment today on a murder charge.

Thompson told police that he killed Cecil Browning, a retired shoe repairman, because Thompson was angry with his girlfriend for leaving him, Police Chief Elmer Corbin said.

"He vented his anger and frustration on the old man, is what it amounted to," Corbin said.

Police said Thompson wrote the words "helter scelter" — misspelling the word "skelter" — on a bathroom mirror, using lipstick he found in the apartment. Then he wrote the words again on a bedroom mirror, this time using the victim's blood, Corbin said.

Police said they also found a teddy bear stuck to the wall with a steak knife.

Corbin said the assailant walked into Browning's apartment and picked up a butcher knife, held Browning by the hair and slashed his throat three times.

He then dragged Browning down the hall to the apartment of Thompson's former girlfriend's sister while he was still alive, Corbin said. However, no one was home at the time.

"He stabbed him several more times and left the knife in the body," Corbin said. Two bottles of sulfuric acid were poured over Browning's body. Browning, a gun collector, had the acid in his apartment to clean weapons.

Paul Scarberry, a friend, said he persuaded Thompson to surrender after Thompson confided to him about the murder Sunday night. Scarberry accompanied Thompson to the police station.

Browning was murdered early Saturday morning and Thompson turned himself in at the Bellevue police station around midday Monday, the police chief said.

Scarberry said he and Thompson had watched the television movie "Helter Skelter," about California murderer Charles Manson, a month ago. But Thompson had not shown any fascination with the movie, Scarberry said.

Thompson was in the Campbell County Jail in Newport, Corbin said.

"He just wanted to know what it felt like to kill," Corbin said. "That's what he told us first. Then he told us about the girlfriend."

Bellevue, a small northern Kentucky town, is across the Ohio River from Cincinnati.

Corbin said the death was the second killing of the year in Bellevue, which previously had not had a homicide in 34 years.

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Based on what you may have read, consumer confidence has climbed a mountain and now looks out upon the valley of plenty.

Why, then, do you feel so glum?

One explanation, says Albert Sindlinger, is that there isn't just one consumer out there but three, and with rich offsetting poor, the result might indeed spell confidence.

But that's no way to prove something, he says, any more than it is statistically viable to say that, seasonally adjusted, Lake Erie never freezes over, or to say that a person with one foot in the oven is quite comfortable because the other foot is in a bucket of ice.

There is, he says, a pioneer in consumer confidence measurements, a "household schism," a three-tiered division of consumers:

—AFFLUENT, where there is no decline in current or expected income and no unemployment.

—DISTRESSED, where current and expected income are down and unemployment is present.

—INTERMEDIATE, an in-between tier that just about keeps up with inflation.

Daily telephone surveys in September confirm the three, nearly equal-size tiers: The 78.3 million households were 31.4 percent affluent, 32.7 percent distressed, and 35.9 percent intermediate.

"The 1983 confidence upturn and the modest recovery it generated," says

Sindlinger, "raised the number of affluent households and reduced the distressed category, with little change in the intermediates."

"This expansion 'at the top' has helped keep the recovery from sliding off the board even while confidence drops and the economy itself is moving into a slower growth mode."

The University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research, which issues quarterly measurements of consumer attitudes, offers another, subtle explanation:

"By the start of 1983, consumers had more than five years of growing economic adversity: rising and then double-digit inflation, followed by record-high interest rates and double-digit unemployment rates."

This adverse economic environment apparently conditioned them.

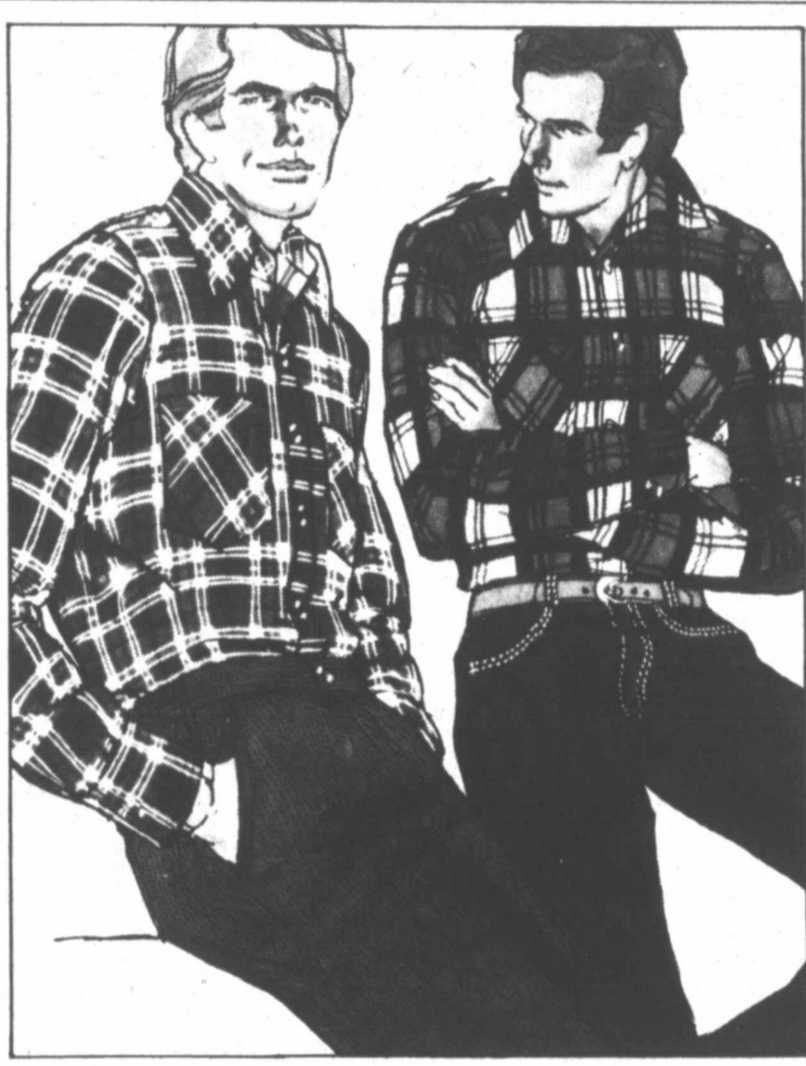

"Consumers became increasingly habituated to news of unfavorable economic developments."

Poisonous plants abound in region

Many of the plants that grow in West Texas are poisonous and can cause death, illness or extreme discomfort to anyone who eats them, cautions a range specialist with the Soil Conservation Service.

Esteban "Steve" Mesa, a Pampa SCS range conservationist, said poisonous plants are not restricted to rangelands; they are common in flower and vegetable gardens around the home. Parents should be aware of the dangers involved when children sometimes eat or chew the leaves, seeds or berries of poisonous plants, he said.

The oleander bush is one of the most poisonous plants in Texas and is grown all over the state. It contains a deadly heart stimulant similar to the drug digitalis. The oleander poison is so strong that a single leaf from the bush can kill a child, Mesa said. People have died merely from eating steaks speared on oleander twigs and roasted over a fire, he added.

Dieffenbachia, or "dumb cane," is a beautiful house plant grown in millions of homes, but merely biting its stalk can cause swelling of the mouth and tongue and can be deadly. Sap from this plant is also very toxic when it contacts open cuts.

Mistletoe is also dangerous. Its berries are most often involved in poisonings.

Cattlemen suffer large losses each year from the death of livestock and reduced production caused by plant poisonings. The real danger in livestock poisoning, Mesa said, is that some animals dearly relish and prefer certain poisonous plants over other available forage.

The Astragalus Genus, "Loco Weeds," includes some of the most common poisonous plants on rangelands. These varieties of weeds, Mesa said, are unique: in that once an animal eats them, it becomes addicted to the poisonous plants.

The government range specialist said livestock poisoning can be controlled by first recognizing poisonous plants, and then learning to manage them.

Some potentially - poisonous plants found around the home or on the range in West Texas include silver nightshade, elderberry, black locust, oak, broad-leaved milk weed, bitter weed, broom snakeweed, Texas Queen's Delight, Johnson grass and mesquite. Many of the plants are considered poisonous only during a specific stage of growth or maturity.

For more information about identifying and controlling poisonous plants, call the Pampa SCS office at 665 - 1751 and talk to Mesa.

Um-kumph!

Miami Hurricanes storm Seminole lair

By Major Amos B. Hoople
The Original Drawback

Egad, friends, this week's card boasts a plethora of hak-kaff — of outstanding matchups — with bowl game aspirations riding on the results.

Vying for top billing is the independent clash of the Florida powers, Miami and Florida State; and an SEC head-on collision, Auburn and Georgia, for the right to be the host team in the Sugar Bowl.

The high-flying Miami Hurricanes will take their polished offense and rugged defense to Tallahassee, Fla., to challenge the explosive offense of the Seminoles in what should be a wild and woolly affair.

In a fitting climax to an exceptional season, we see coach Howard Schnellenberger's Hurricanes topping Bobby Bowden's Florida State boys, 31-28. Har-rumph!

For the third week in a row interest in the SEC will run high. Auburn and Georgia get it on for the 87th time in their classic series, which began in 1892. The records stand 41-38-7 in Georgia's favor, and the Bulldogs have won the last three contests.

(And, dear readers, how is this for a switch? Vince Dooley, the incomparable Georgia coach, is a 1954 graduate of Auburn, while Pat Dye, the Auburn mastermind, graduated from Georgia in 1962. Egad! It must be confusing — kaff-kaff — in those households.)

Speedster Bo Jackson is "lugging the leather," so to speak, for Auburn. He will make the difference in Athens, Ga., as the visiting Tigers take a rock 'em, sock 'em 31-24 decision. Har-rumph!

Looking at the rest of the SEC sked we foresee a Florida win over Kentucky, 35-21; Tennessee doubling the count on Mississippi, 42-21; and LSU slipping past Mississippi State, 32-24.

In the Big Ten, Illinois will stay on track for the Rose Bowl trip with a 35-14 triumph over Indiana. Michigan, still clinging to its Rose hopes, will thump out-manned Minnesota, 30-6. Elsewhere, Ohio State will prevail over Northwestern, 35-10; Iowa will beat Michigan State, 28-14; and Wisconsin will top Purdue, 28-

21. Kaff-kaff!

In the Pac 10, UCLA, aiming for its second straight Rose Bowl appearance, will squeeze by an excellent Arizona squad, 22-20. Jove! That's close!

Washington, with an outside chance at the Rose Bowl, will take Southern Cal, 35-21; Arizona State rates the nod over Oregon State, 33-10; Stanford will beat Oregon, 22-15; and California will get by Washington State, 25-17.

The awesome Nebraska Cornhuskers and the potent Oklahoma Sooners will warm up for their annual Big 8 donnybrook on Nov. 26 with easy triumphs over conference foes. Nebraska — led by Mike Rozier, whose 150-yards-per-contest rushing makes him practically a Heisman Trophy shoo-in — will whack Kansas, 49-14. The Sooners will have little trouble polishing off Colorado, 33-17.

Here is the Hoople Upset Special of the Week: the Clemson Tigers to upend Maryland in the ACC headliner. The Tigers are banded from bowl competition this year, so they'd like nothing better than to whip the loop leader. We are calling it Tigers 27-24 over the Terps. Har-rumph!

Notre Dame has been absent from the bowl scene since Gerry Faust took over three seasons back, so you can expect them to go all out against the Joe Paterno's Nittany Lions looking for a major post-season assignment. The Irish played Penn State tough the last two years, losing 24-21 in 1981, and 24-14 last season. This week the Hoople System is calling it N.D.

24-21 over Penn State. But not without a battle. Joe Paterno's clubs fight to the last inch. Kaff-kaff!

In the Southwest, Texas will romp over TCU, 35-7, and SMU will dump Texas Tech, 32-21.

Crowd-pleasing Brigham Young, with an astonishing offense of better than 600 yards per game, will dispose of WAC opponent Colorado State, 49-10.

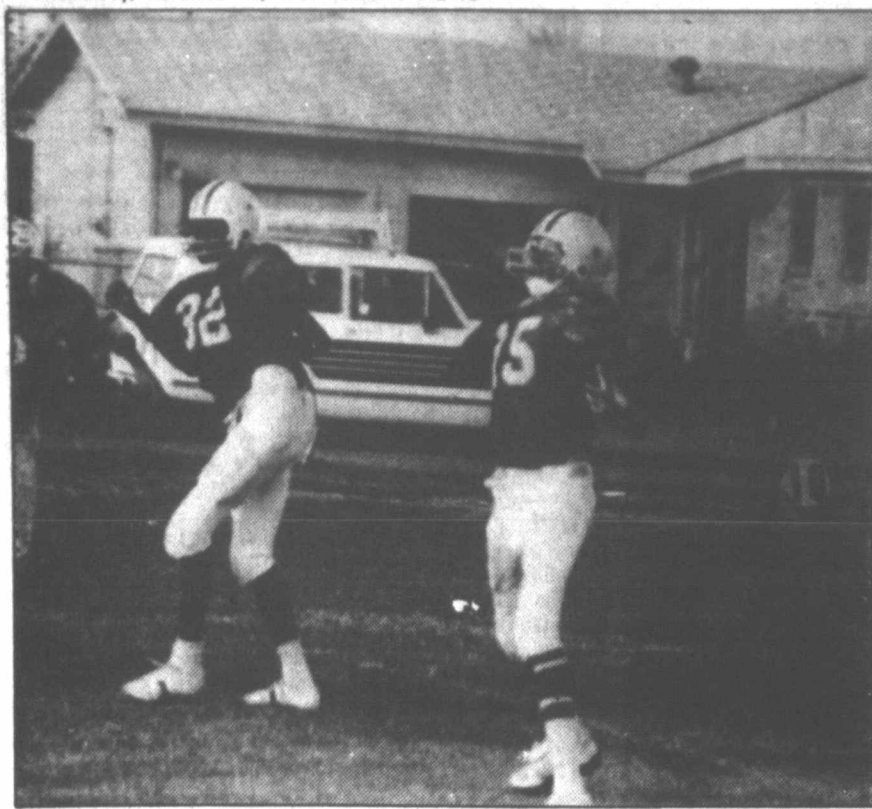

In other meetings, North Carolina, going against Virginia for the 88th time, will run its record to 52-33-3 in this traditional series — with a convincing 42-17 win.

Pittsburgh, playing at home, will take Army, 42-14. West Virginia will level Rutgers, 35-13. And Boston College, with the amazing Doug Flutie at the controls, will continue its determined bid for the Lambert Trophy, denoting supremacy among Eastern elevens. BC will turn back Syracuse 31-18.

The Golden Eagles of Southern Mississippi ambushed the Alabama Crimson Tide last season, 38-29. But Ray Perkins' crew figures to reverse that this Saturday. Barna will triumph 24-21.

Finally, the '83 Hoople System is operating with precision — despite rain, wind, thousands of missed blocks and some colossal upsets. Late in the season your Favorite Forecaster had a total of 362 winners out of 514 picks, for a creditable 70.4 percentage. Har-rumph!

Now go on with my forecast:

Pampa Blue wins final game

Pampa Blue, held scoreless the first half, rallied to defeat Pampa Red, 26-8, Tuesday to wrap up the eighth-grade football season.

Pampa Red led, 8-0, at halftime, on a touchdown by Alex Casel.

However, Pampa Blue rallied to score two quick touchdowns in the third quarter on runs by Michael Landers and Darrell Morlin. Blue added one more scored in the third quarter on a pass from Chris Wilson to Chad McDougall.

Panhandle gridders named to schoolboy honor roll

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Sabine Pass wide receiver Chad Finch remained an over-achiever to the very end.

Finch, a 6-1, 175 senior, needed to catch four passes in last week's 44-38 loss to Apple Springs to become the all-time Texas high school pass catching leader.

To assure there would be no miscount, Finch hauled in 13 passes from quarterback Keith Mayhugh for 114 yards in the regular season ending loss to earn Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll honors for the second time this season.

Finch now has 190 receptions in his career, 10 better than the record 180 set by Port Arthur Jefferson's Brent Duhon in 1978-80.

"I had my best game ever," Finch said. "I made some catches that I had lost confidence in and thought I couldn't catch. But I didn't drop any. I started slowly this year but I think I proved that I am a good receiver."

When not catching passes from Mayhugh, Finch has found time to play trumpet in the school band, has earned all-district baseball and basketball honors and earned best actor honors in state one-act play competition last year.

Cocher Larry Speek says Finch's performance on the field is no act.

"I think his record will stand for a long time," Speek said. "For one thing, it takes a great quarterback and receiver combination to get something like this done."

In other outstanding performances: — Librado Carrillo helped Benavides advance to the state playoffs for the first time in 31 years with a 29-8 victory over Zapata. Carrillo scored on a 78-yard kickoff to open the game, rushed 90 yards on 12 carries and contributed 10 tackles as a linebacker on defense.

— Granger's Lavioris Fisher rushed 271 yards on 23 carries and had scoring runs of 20, 68, 6, 39 and 17 yards in a 57-7 rout of Salado.

— Ronnie Terry rushed 240 yards on 18 carries and scored on runs of 69 and 72 yards to give Hereford a 29-6 victory over Lubbock Coronado to put his team in the playoffs against Odessa Permian.

— Panhandle easily survived a showdown with Wellington, winning 39-0 on the pass-catch efforts of Todd Lamberson and receiver Kevin Power. Lamberson completed 16 of 30 passes for 339 yards and four touchdowns, three for 18, two and 38 yards to Power.

— Hansel Wise rushed 180 yards on 22 carries to lead Mart to a 20-8 upset victory over Franklin.

— Ricky Cerna returned a punt 88 yards for a touchdown as Carrizo Springs beat Uvalde 33-14. It was Cerna's fifth touchdown on a punt return this year and he also had a 48-yard touchdown run.

Tech's Moore receives vote of confidence

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech head football coach Jerry Moore has got a vote of confidence from the university president despite the team's disappointing 3-4-1 record so far this fall.

University President Lauro Cavazos scoffed at mid-season criticism of Moore and told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal he has never considered a coaching change.

"I see some things coming, some tremendous potential. There are some coaches in this conference who've been around for a long time. It has taken them a long time to build good programs and the tradition that goes with those programs," said Cavazos.

The Red Raiders generally were picked by pre-season polls to finish in the bottom half of the Southwest Conference standings, but one national magazine ranked Tech as the nation's No. 20 team in its pre-season ratings.

Athletic Director John Conley said naturally the Texas Tech fans and the athletic department are disappointed the team hasn't been able to live up to their expectations, but added that "I think they were too high to begin with."

"There's nothing in my mind to even suggest a head coaching change. Moore is our head man, and his present contract runs through 1987," Conley said in the story of the newspaper ran Tuesday.

Cavazos said Moore was named Tech's head coach because school officials felt they needed someone who was committed to stay with the school.

When Moore was hired in 1981, he became the Red Raiders' fourth head coach in seven years. Jim Carlen left Texas Tech for another job in 1974, after five seasons, and he was followed by Steve Sloan and then Rex Dockery, each of whom had stayed only three years before moving on.

Moore was the only Texas native among the four. Moore, 44, was an ace wide receiver at Bonham, Texas high school and the Baylor Bears. Moore was an assistant to Hayden Fry at Southern Methodist, head coach at North Texas State University, and assistant to Tom Osborne at Nebraska before Texas Tech hired him.

"Remember, we've tried it the other way," Cavazos said, referring to Tech's version of musical coaches. "You've got to take it steady and correct it at the appropriate time."

Mobeetie teams place in cross country regionals

Mobeetie boys placed 13th in the Class 1-A, 2A and 3A Region I cross country meet held last weekend in Lubbock.

Mobeetie came in 23rd in the girls' division.

Boys Ranch won the boys' title while Nazareth won the girls' championship.

"We had to face some tough competition this year," said Mobeetie coach Larry Bacon. "We had the only 1-A team in the eastern panhandle competing in cross country."

Prior to the regional meet, both Mobeetie teams had finished 12th in the Dumas Invitational.

Panthers meet Stinnett in Harvester stadium

When Panhandle met Stinnett in the second game of the season, the Panthers came away with a hard-fought 17-0 victory.

Panhandle coach Stocky Lamberson doesn't look for things to be any easier when the two clubs clash at 7:30 p.m. Friday night in a Class 2A bi-district game in Pampa.

"Stinnett has improved a good deal since then," Lamberson said. "They have a lot of speed and they have a real strong defense."

Panhandle, unbeaten (9-0-1) and ranked sixth in the state by AP, blanked Wellington, 37-0, last Friday night to earn the No. 1 seeding in the Class 2A playoffs.

Todd Lamberson, the coaches' son, passed for 339 yards and four touchdowns as the Panthers registered their seventh shutout of the season.

Junior flanker Kevin Powers caught three touchdowns as Lamberson passes for touchdowns in the third quarter.

However, Lamberson has been more pleased this season with the defense, which has allowed only 34 points in ten games.

"We've playing much better defense than we have been," Lamberson said. "We have to stop giving up the big play, which has hurt us some."

Stinnett closed with a 6-3-1 record and won the District 1-2A title with a 4-1 mark. The Rattlers' offense, which was the best in the district, is led by quarterback Gitch Greer and tailback Ted Harris.

"Greer has good leadership and Harris has a lot of speed," Lamberson said. "We're going to have to control the ball and keep it away from their offense."

The Panthers are in the playoffs for the fifth year in a row.

District 2-2A Final

(Season record in brackets) Panhandle 4-0-1 (9-0-1); Wellington 4-1 (8-2); Clarendon 3-1-1 (8-1-1); Quanah 2-3 (6-4); Shamrock 1-4 (3-6-1); Memphis 0-5-0 (2-8).

NBA roundup

Celtics have NBA's best record

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Sports Writer

It was experience and tradition versus enthusiasm and youth, and this time experience and tradition won.

The veteran center, Robert Parish, outmuscled rookie Steve Stipanovich for a rebound and banked it into the basket as time expired to give the Celtics a 99-97 victory Tuesday night over the Indiana Pacers, the youngest and least-experienced team in the National Basketball Association.

The Pacers, who average just over 23 years old and less than two years NBA experience per player, are "a frightening group of youngsters," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. "They never know when to stop. They hustle extremely well and are a scrappy group. They are very well coached."

But "it would have been a better education if we would have won," Pacers Coach Jack McKinney said.

Indiana's Herb Williams scored 16 of his game-high 32 points in the fourth quarter to bring the Pacers back from an 80-66 deficit after three periods. Two free throws by Clark Kellogg, who added 22 points, tied the score at 97-97 with 16 seconds left.

Then Parish saved the Celtics, whose 5-1 record is the best in the NBA.

In other NBA action, it was Milwaukee 97, New York 90;

Washington 119, San Diego 113; Chicago 100, Kansas City 97; Portland 122, Houston 104; Los Angeles 133, Denver 124; Seattle 123, Phoenix 116, and Golden State 97, Atlanta 90.

Lakers 133, Nuggets 124
Earvin "Magic" Johnson, averaging just 13.8 before the game, had 29 points, 14 assists and 12 rebounds as Los Angeles beat the Nuggets in Denver.

Johnson had 11 points and Bob McAdoo 10 during a decisive third quarter that saw the Lakers extend a 70-66 halftime lead to 108-90.

NBA scoring leader Kiki Vandeweghe led the Nuggets with 25 points.

Sonics 123, Suns 116
Jack Sikma scored 30 points and combined with rookie guard Jon Sundvold for 11 points in the final minutes as Seattle pulled away at home to beat Phoenix.

The Suns, who got 43 points from Walter Davis, led 112-110 with 3:18 remaining before Sikma and Sundvold started the winning 13-4 run by the Sonics.

Tom Chambers added 27 points for Seattle.

Blazers 122, Rockets 104
Portland won at Houston for its fifth victory in seven starts as Calvin Natt scored 26 points and Darnell Valentine 24 for the Trail Blazers.

Houston lead of 2-1 was its only one of the game as the Blazers broke away from a 10-10 tie with a 22-9 streak that gave them a 32-19 lead at the end of the first period. Portland led by as many as 22 points in the third period.

Ralph Sampson paced the Rockets with 24 points and 12 rebounds before fouling out.

Bucks 97, Knicks 90
Sidney Moncrief scored 35 points as Milwaukee took sole possession of first place in the Central Division with a road victory at New York.

Bob Lanier scored seven of his 15 points during a 14-1 streak midway through the fourth period that turned an 81-74 Bucks deficit into an 88-82 lead. Bernard King led the Knicks with 22 points.

Bulls 100, Kings 97
Orlando Woolridge scored five of his 29 points in the final 90 seconds to lift Chicago to a home victory over Kansas City.

Woolridge made a layup and a free throw at the 1:30 mark to give the Bulls a four-point lead, then added another basket to help preserve their edge.

Bullets 119, Clippers 113
At Landover, Md., rookie Jeff Malone scored 28 points. Jeff Ruland had 27 and Greg Ballard 26 to pace Washington over San Diego.

Lady Harvesters to scrimmage Mobeetie

Pampa's Lady Harvesters will host Mobeetie at 6 p.m. Thursday in the first high school basketball scrimmage of the season.

The scrimmage is open to the public and no admission will be charged.

"The girls are really coming around," said new Pampa girls' coach Albert Nichols. "I've just been real pleased with them, especially with their shooting. That's really been an improvement."

"The post players have been working hard on their inside game," Nichols said. "The entire team is as excited about the season as I am."

Pampa opens the season Nov. 21 at River Road. The Lady Harvesters will have another scrimmage Nov. 18 again with Mobeetie.

"A lot of smaller schools can play that basketball, so we're looking forward to scrimmaging against Mobeetie," Nichols added.

"Mobeetie has a 6-1 girl and some good overall height. There's a lot of height in our district this year, so these scrimmages will help us get ready."

Top returnees for Pampa include 5-6 senior Trecea George (4.2 ppg), 5-11 junior Kerri Richardson (3.6 ppg), 5-6 junior Stephanie Smith (2.5 pp) and 5-6 senior Gaye Hendricks (2.1).

Melissa Nichols, a 5-10 sophomore and the daughter of the coach, will be counted on heavily. She played last year for Hartley, which advanced to the regional tournament.

Three player's off Pampa's district championship volleyball team—5-9 junior Leslie Cash, 5-8 sophomore Melanie Morgan and 5-5 senior Lisa Crayton—will also help the cause. "All three of these girls played varsity ball last year," Nichols added. "They're a little behind right now, but they're working hard to catch up."

Nichols will also be working hard to break a long losing tradition in girls' basketball at Pampa. The Lady Harvesters have won only eleven games during the past three seasons.

Leslie Cash (42), a 5-9 senior, will add height and experience to the Pampa Lady Harvesters basketball team this season. The Lady Harvesters scrimmage Mobeetie Thursday night in McNeely Fieldhouse. This photo was taken during a game last season.

Tickets on sale today

Last season's ticket holders for the Pampa High basketball games will have first choice again for the 1983-84 season.

Tickets go on sale today at the high school athletic office for last season's ticket holders only.

Tickets are $20 apiece for ten home games and will go on sale Tuesday for the general public.

The champion laughed. "I thought the man can't speak English," he said.

Both fighters finished sparring Monday and began tapering off Tuesday. They will rest today, weigh in early Thursday and then meet in the 15,200-seat stadium constructed in the parking lot outside Caesars Palace.

"I am ready in every area," said Hagler.

"Two days, no more champion," said Duran, gesturing toward Hagler.

Hagler, Duran throw verbal jabs at press conference

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler and Roberto Duran staged the usual pre-fight press conference with the usual gestures and threats, the usual disdain for the opponent and the usual demands to stage the bout right here and now.

It is, well, business as usual for a big fight.

Somehow, they will control themselves and keep this $20-million bout on hold until Thursday night when Hagler defends his undisputed middleweight championship against Duran.

The promotion put together by Top Rank and Caesars Palace has a huge revenue potential for the middleweight division. Hagler is guaranteed $5 million and percentages of other income could push his total to $8 million. Duran has a lower guarantee of about $1.5 million, but his percentage trigger comes more quickly, and he could pocket $4 million.

The show is scheduled for 400 closed circuit locations with three million seats. There also is pay-per-view television in Los Angeles and

Campbell asks Oilers to trade him

HOUSTON (AP) — Running back Earl Campbell, who said after he was benched Sunday that he has no future with the Houston Oilers, says he hasn't changed his mind and has asked the team to trade him.

Campbell said during the Tuesday morning filming of "The Earl Campbell Show," which airs Saturday on KPRC-TV, that he wants to play the last year of his National Football League contract with another team.

"It was pretty obvious what I said over the weekend, that I think the best thing would be for me to be out of here as far as playing football with the Houston Oilers," Campbell said. "Even this morning I still feel that way."

"The writing was on the wall a long time ago," Campbell said. "I hope the Houston Oiler organization will follow up on it. That would be best for all of us."

Campbell complained bitterly when he was benched Sunday during a 55-14 loss to the Bengals.

"I guess my future with this team is no place," he said. "I wouldn't treat a dog the way they treated me today."

Campbell was pulled from the game late in the third quarter with Houston trailing 41-0. The loss was the Oilers' 17th in a row and made the team 0-10 this season.

Head Coach Chuck Studley said he made the move to protect Campbell from injury.

Campbell said he respects Studley and thinks he is doing a good job.

"I'm just one of those individuals in America, that it's time they get a new address," he said.

Studley took over the head coaching job midway through the season, when Ed Biles resigned the post.

Campbell, who won the Heisman Trophy in 1977 at the University of Texas, was the first pick in the NFL draft the next year. He led the league in rushing each of his first three seasons, gaining 1,934 yards in 1980.

He noted speculation about where he would play in 1984 will be nothing new for him.

"Every off-season for the last three years, I've played for a different team," he said in reference to past rumors.

Murphy wins MVP honors again

ATLANTA (AP) Dale Murphy insisted he was surprised by his second straight National League Most Valuable Player award, but his philosophy makes the honor seem logical.

"In this game, if you're doing something right, you need to do it every year," the Atlanta Braves' center fielder said.

The Baseball Writers Association of America on Tuesday made Murphy the fourth NL player to win back-to-back MVP awards since the honor was created in 1931.

Murphy received 21 of 24 first-place votes cast by a panel comprised of two writers from each National League city. Andre Dawson of Montreal, Mike Schmidt of Philadelphia and Pedro Guerrero of Los Angeles each received one first-place vote.

Murphy had two second-place votes and one for fifth for 318 points as each panelist voted for 10 players. Dawson got 213 points, followed by Schmidt with 191 and Guerrero with 182.

"I never thought of something like that happening," said Murphy, whose humility has been a trademark.

"It's just tremendous. It's a thrill again."

Murphy led the league this year with 121 runs batted in and with a .540 slugging percentage. He was sixth in batting average (.302); second in runs scored (131); second in home runs (36); sixth in hits (178); third in on-base percentage (.393); fourth in walks (90); and tied for fourth in game-winning RBI (14).

He also stole 30 bases to become the sixth major leaguer to hit 30 home runs and steal 30 bases in the same year.

At 27, Murphy is the youngest of the National Leaguers to win consecutive MVP awards. The others were the Cubs' Ernie Banks (1958-59), the Reds' Joe Morgan (1975-76) and Schmidt (1980-81).

Murphy is the second Brave to win the award. Henry Aaron won it in 1957.

"I'm extremely honored and happy to share it with my teammates and coaches," Murphy said, adding that the individual honor could not erase the team's disappointment in missing the playoffs. The Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Braves by three games to take the National League West title.

Murphy will receive a $100,000 incentive bonus, placed in his contract last year after his first MVP award. He has four years to go on a contract setting his base salary at $1.3 million a year.

Murphy joined the Braves from their Richmond farm club in 1977. In 18 games, he hit .316. The next season, he hit only .227, but he had 23 homers, and in 1979, his average climbed to .276 with 21 homers. He hit 33 homers in 1980, 13 in strike-interrupted 1981. In his first MVP year, he hit .281 with 36 homers and 109 RBI.

SMU: A campus stadium needed

DALLAS (AP) — Southern Methodist quarterback Lance McIlhenny said Tuesday he would like to see a stadium built on campus where the Mustangs could play.

"I think it is a must," said McIlhenny.

SMU drew only 28,000 fans for its homecoming game, leaving 37,000 Texas Stadium seats empty when they played Rice last Saturday although the Mustangs were ranked No. 8 in the nation.

"We have a lot of people here who support it and would help financially," McIlhenny said. "I'd like to pursue this when I get out. I think it's something the school needs."

McIlhenny's father, Don, who also played at SMU, said a 45,000 to 50,000 seat stadium could be built on the current Ownby Stadium site for $17 million to $21 million.

The elder McIlhenny told the Dallas Times Herald "I have had some unofficial meetings with some friends who are prominent in Dallas and we've exchanged some ideas but nothing official. I think we can show that a stadium on campus would be a plus."

Athletic Director Bob Hitch said "For me to go to the university and even discuss the possibility of starting something on a new stadium between now and 1990 isn't even feasible."

Tuesday's sports in brief

By The Associated Press

BASEBALL
NEW YORK (AP) — Dale Murphy captured his second consecutive NL Most Valuable Player award, winning in a landslide over Andre Dawson.

Murphy became only the fourth player since the award was instituted in 1931 to be the NL MVP in consecutive years. He received 21 of 24 first-place votes and received 318 points overall.

Dawson got one first-place vote and 213 points, followed by Mike Schmidt with 191 points and Pedro Guerrero with 182.

Fruits add twist to holiday pecan pie

By DEEDEE LARAMORE
Lifestyles Editor

When Thanksgiving and Christmas seasons come around, you can be sure that you'll be served the old favorite, pecan pie, at least once.

I'm a collector of pecan pie recipes, actually. I didn't begin collecting recipes on purpose; I am just in search for the recipe that makes pecan pie a certain, more creamy, way. Most recipes produce a custard filling, which I love. But still, I'd like to find that recipe that makes creamy pecan pie.

Orange Pecan Pie is a southern variation of the holiday favorite that my family thought was super. This recipe comes from Aileen Claire, food editor for Newspaper Enterprise Association. I found out that the recipe doesn't double well. However, since the recipe is so fast and easy, it was no trouble to mix up a batch for each pie.

ORANGE PECAN PIE
3 eggs
¾ c. dark corn syrup
2 oranges, pureed (2-3rd cup), see NOTE
2 T. butter or margarine,

melted
1 T. vanilla
½ c. sugar
¼ t. salt
½ t. grated orange rind
1 c. pecans
1 unbaked 9-inch
pastry shell

Beat eggs in large bowl; stir in remaining ingredients except pastry shell. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in 400-degree oven for 15 minutes; reduce heat to 350-degrees and continue to bake 35 to 45 minutes longer.

Filling will be moist in center. Cool. This recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

NOTE: To puree oranges, remove skin; cut orange into eighths and process at medium speed in electric blender. One fourth cup frozen concentrated orange juice may be substituted for the orange puree. Increase sugar to one cup when using concentrate.

Since I don't have a blender, I used the orange concentrate which makes a really juicy pie.

Babe Mastin of Pampa contributed her "Never Fail Pie Crust" which is perfect for holiday pies.

NEVER FAIL PIE CRUST

3 c. unsifted flour
1 t. salt
5 T. ice water
1 egg
1 t. baking powder
1 1-3rd c. shortening
1 t. vinegar

Beat egg. Add water and vinegar. Mix. Makes three crusts. If you don't use all of the dough, place in airtight container in refrigerator. Take out two hours before using.

FRESH fruit and fruit juices add special flavoring to pies.

Score points with franks and beans

Whether your favorite football team is professional, collegiate, high school or sandlot, kick off the season in style with a tailgate party. As the fans huddle around for the pre-game festivities, you can be sure of scoring big with Tailgate Franks 'n' Beans.

These fun-to-eat frankfurters take their flavor signals from popular frank and beans and also chili dogs, all served up with Tex-Mex flair. The franks, broiled to perfection on a portable grill, are served in warm buns and topped with a spicy chili bean sauce, shredded Cheddar cheese, chopped tomato and sliced green onions.

There's an easy-to-follow game plan for most of the food is prepared at home and toted along to the game. The spicy sauce, conveniently made with canned chili beans and tomato sauce, can be carried to the game in a thermos container, then quickly reheated on the grill, if desired. The toppings, too, are prepared in advance so as game time approaches, all that's left to do is grill the franks and enjoy!

Frankfurters are a natural choice for a special outing such as this for they are everyone's favorite and easy and convenient to prepare.

TAILGATE FRANK 'N BEANS
1 lb. frankfurters (8 to 10)
1 med. onion, chopped
2 T. butter or margarine
1 can (15½ oz.) chili beans
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
2 t. chili powder
2 t. sugar
1 clove garlic, minced
Dash nutmeg
8 to 10 frankfurter buns, split
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese
1 lg. tomato, chopped
3 green onions, cut into thin slices

Cook onion in butter or margarine in large frying pan. Add chili beans and gravy, tomato sauce, chili powder, sugar, garlic and nutmeg. Cover and cook slowly 12 to 15 minutes. Transport in a preheated thermos container.

Wrap frankfurter buns in aluminum foil. Place shredded cheese, chopped tomato and green onions in individual bags or small containers. Too cook, place frankfurters and buns (in foil) on grill over ash-covered coals 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil at moderate temperature 8 to 10 minutes, turning occasionally. Heat tomato-chili bean sauce on grill until hot, if desired. Serve frankfurters in buns; spoon sauce over frankfurters. Top with equal amounts of cheese, tomato and onions. Yield: 8 to 10 sandwiches.

The Tex-Mex flavored franks are especially tasty served with tortilla chips. Sure to be welcome, too, are a fresh fruit salad and crisp relishes served with a creamy dip. Then brownies for dessert will send the eager fans off to the game with a smile.

Sardine Caesar salad

1 clove garlic
½ cup salad oil
1 cup French bread cubes (½-inch)
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon black pepper
1 ½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
1 large head romaine lettuce, washed and dried
¼ cup crumbled blue cheese
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 egg
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 can (3 ¾ ounces) Norway sardines, drained

golden brown. Set aside. To remaining oil-garlic mixture in jar, add salt, mustard, pepper and Worcestershire sauce. Shake and refrigerate. To serve salad, rub inside of wooden salad bowl with remaining garlic. Tear lettuce into bowl. Sprinkle with cheeses; toss with dressing. Break egg over center of salad. Pour lemon juice over egg; toss well. Sprinkle bread cubes and sardines over salad. Quickly toss and serve at once.

Dear Abby

Husband's antics humiliate wife

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1983 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are 70 and retired. Our hobby is dancing. So many of our contemporaries have taken to their rocking chairs that we are thrown together with younger people at our favorite club—where we dine and dance several nights a week.

It seems my husband has become infatuated with a young (to us), 40-year-old, married, sexy, uninhibited psychologist with whom he loves to dance. When they end a dance together, she clasps her hands around his neck and looks adoringly into his eyes as he holds her close for a very long time. Meanwhile everyone sees this.

When these two say good night, there are long, lingering hugs and kisses. In spite of my tears and pleading, my husband continues to carry on this way with her. Her husband just laughs and doesn't seem to care.

Well, I care. How can I cope with this situation, which has depressed me for over a year? My husband is a wonderful man and he doesn't lack for affection at home, but I can't handle this. I've been to two marriage counselors without success. Now what?

HURTING IN N.Y.

DEAR HURTING: You say you have been to two marriage counselors without success? What about your "wonderful" husband? If he hasn't gone, he should waltz over to a family therapist. He needs to hear from a professional that his inappropriate public behavior is humiliating his wife and undermining her health. And don't rule out the possibility that his cruelty could be due to a physical or mental abnormality, in which case he needs to see his physician.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you will print this as a heart-warming twist in the "heard-it-all" department.

After 24 years of driving, two days ago I had my first automobile accident. It was entirely my fault and could have been avoided had I been paying attention. My car was heavily damaged, but fortunately I was not injured. The car I hit was damaged but drivable.

Today, the woman who was driving the car I struck telephoned to assure me that her injuries were not serious; then she offered to chauffeur me around until I could get another car!

Can you top that for generosity? I can't.
SUE L. IN AURORA, COLO.

DEAR SUE: Neither can I. That settles it. Santa Claus is a lady!

...

DEAR ABBY: I am really getting disgusted with a topic that arises every time my so-called boyfriend and I eat together. He always manages to ask me if I'm on a diet. My answer is, "No, I'm not." I know he's hinting, but I am happy the way I am.

Abby, I weigh 145 pounds, which is about right for my 5 feet 9 inches. My boyfriend is 5 feet 11 and weighs 185. I'm 24 and he's 26, and I weigh the same as I did when he met me eight years ago.

I've made it clear that I am tired of diet questions, but he keeps asking.

What should I do?
I'M OK

DEAR OK: Tell him that you like yourself the way you are, and if he doesn't, he should either keep his opinions to himself or find himself a thinner girl.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Salvation Army here set to begin annual Christmas cheer campaign

Plans are underway at The Salvation Army here for the organization's annual Christmas cheer campaign which provides material and spiritual assistance to the area's needy.

Captain Milton Wood announced that The Salvation Army of Pampa was pleased that Georgia Mack, local civic leader, is to head the Christmas Committee for the local corps.

Committee members who are to serve with Mrs. Mack include Jimmie Schuenman, Wayne Davis, Rick Harris, Mrs. Milton Wood and Maggie Ivey.

Fall cookouts

Many families so enjoy the convenience and marvelous flavor of meat cooked on the grill that they extend the cookout season well into fall and even winter.

Ideal for cool-weather barbecuing are beef pot-roasts and briskets. These hearty, budget-stretching beef cuts can be successfully cooked on the grill when placed first in a cooking bag, then sealed in foil and leisurely cooked over low to moderate heat, turning occasionally. This technique allows these less tender cuts to be braised on the grill with tender and tasty results.

When the meat is done, it can be removed from the bag and briefly broiled over the coals to pick up charcoal flavor. The flavorful juices that accumulate as the beef braised can be served over the sliced meat.

Astro-Graph by bernice bede osol

This coming year you are likely to realize you're not as beholden to others for your success as you previously believed. New vistas will open when you become more self-assured.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may not be in a domestic frame of mind today. Rather than make waves, get out of the house and be with other than members of the family. Order now. The New Matchmaker wheel and booklet which reveals romantic compatibilities for all signs, tells how to get along with others, finds rising signs, hidden qualities, plus more. Send $2 to Astro-Graph, Box 469, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to give your zodiac sign. Mail an additional $1 for your Scorpio Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a possibility you may misread the intentions of others today. Try not to be too glib. Someone sly may attempt to take advantage of you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid groups or cliques today which measure your worth by your bank balance. Associate with friends who like you for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not rely too heavily upon your wit, charm and good looks to get you by today. Accomplishments in the business world will require real effort.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Most of your problems today are apt to be creatures of your own fertile imagination. Negative thoughts will produce negative results.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Appreciate your friends today for what they are, not for what they have to offer. Don't lean on them for special favors or to bail you out financially.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Treat everyone equally today. Be careful not to ignore social contacts in order to glad-hand business associates.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Relations will be cordial today with persons who don't make demands of you. However, there's a chance you might run down someone who really needs help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It looks as though Dan Cupid will be your ally today, but those in the commercial world may not. Put your chips on romance, not business.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your mate might be a bit more temperamental than usual today, so be sure to employ all the charm and tact that you can muster.

Guilt gone but doubts persist after 20 years

EDITOR'S NOTE — Twenty years ago, at age 22, she was a stranger in a foreign land, a frightened young woman with few friends, no money, no job, no future, two infant daughters and a husband accused of killing the president of the United States. Marina Oswald Porter says she is a "stubborn survivor."

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Time, she says, has erased the guilt, eased some doubts, stolen her idealism and eroded her vivete.

"For a while I thought it would all blow over, just go away," she says. "But now I accept the fact that I must live with this for the rest of my life."

"I may still be naive, but I'm not stupid." There is no trace of self pity, and just a hint of sadness, as Marina Oswald Porter recalls the four days in November 1963 that plunged most of America and much of the world into stunned despair.

The Russian-born Marina was 22 years old and staying at the suburban home of a friend when President John F. Kennedy was shot to death in Dallas. She had been married to Lee Harvey Oswald less than three years when he, in turn, was gunned down by Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby.

"It was horrible," she said, shuddering. She considered returning to her homeland, then realized she could not face either friends or family or the uncertain prospect of prosecution or persecution.

"I left Russia of my own free will," she said. "I cut the ties, and there was no way back. The only person that I solely depended on, and that I crossed the ocean for, was Lee ... and then he was gone."

She once agreed with the Warren Commission that Oswald, acting alone and on his own, fired three murderous shots into the presidential motorcade as it passed the Texas School Book Depository.

She now has doubts.

"It's more confusing now than it was before," she said. "Twenty years ago, I took everything as the truth ... It was easy for me to pronounce Lee guilty because all the facts were against him."

Since then, Marina said, historical researchers and congressional investigators have raised new and disturbing questions and some now contend evidence was destroyed or distorted.

"So many things have been destroyed," she said. "Why? Maybe the answer is simple, but nobody bothered to give it ..."

"I would like for Lee to be innocent, but I honestly don't know whether the man is innocent or guilty. We're all just guessing."

At age 42, Marina Porter is tiny, trim and attractive, with light brown hair and blue-green eyes that sparkle when she laughs, which is often and easy.

She blends her heavy Russian accent with broken English and mixed metaphors and says she's grown older and not much wiser but has changed considerably in the last two decades.

"I cannot be 22 forever," she said.

Having reluctantly agreed to an interview, she arrived one recent evening at a northside restaurant with a longtime friend whose Austrian accent is at least as heavy as Marina's.

"We should have brought an interpreter," quipped Dallas attorney Frank Jackson, who is representing Marina's daughters in a libel suit against the National Enquirer.

"Sometimes people ask me how many languages I speak," she said. "I say none ... In Texas, you can not learn much English."

Less than two years after the assassination, Marina met and married Kenneth Porter, a carpenter, and they now live with their son Mark, 17, in a country home north of Dallas near Rockwall.

Her daughters by Oswald, June, 22, and Rachel, 20, attend the University of Texas at Austin where the elder is an honor student and journalism major and the younger is studying fashion merchandising.

Speaking of Rachel, Marina said with a laugh: "Today she wants something, tomorrow she wants something else... I wouldn't be surprised if two weeks from now she says she wants to be a doctor or a nurse or a dirt sweeper."

Jackson said the suit against the National Enquirer, set for trial in January in federal court in Dallas, is over a July 1982 story about June and Rachel Oswald Porter.

"The story holds them out as being socially ostracized and depicts them as social outcasts when indeed they were not," Jackson said. "They were not ostracized as children by their friends, their peers. They led a very normal childhood."

A lawyer for the National Enquirer, Irving Younger, said the publication would have no comment on the suit because the litigation is pending.

Friends say Marina has great rapport with her daughters and portray her as a woman of strength, sensitivity and intelligence.

Said Jackson, who is her friend as well as her attorney: "I think she has created a normal atmosphere by accepting the things that happened and not overemphasizing them. She has struck a beautiful balance in her life and in the lives of her family."

"She's incisive and sensitive and really just a helluva woman."

Marina does not fully agree.

"People always say, 'Oh, you are so strong,' and I'm not. I'm a very weak person. I bruise very easily. I really do. I'm a survivor, a stubborn survivor ..."

"People say I'm strong and that I've made it. Well, I would never have made it without Kenneth. When you're alone and all the chips and all the bridges fell down, who is there to pick you up?"

"Many times he would disagree with what I was doing, and he's not the wishy-washy type to go along with it. But he gave me room to grow and do it on my own. He's a very secure man, and he was always there to pick up the pieces."

However, she also says, "I don't always go with the flow. I swim against it. I'm not passive. When I was younger, I was idealistic. I'm not anymore."

She can also admit to being moody, forgetful, naive, humble, vain, a bad listener, a compulsive talker, a chain smoker and probably not the best mother, wife or neighbor.

"I'm cynical now, but I'm caring," she said. "I like myself even though I do put myself down."

When pressed, she acknowledges she is trusting, adaptable, sensitive, quick to forgive and forget and by no means a plain Jane.

"I'm multicolored," she said with a smile. "It depends ... I'm sunny on a sunny day and blue on a windy day. My husband never knows what's coming, and maybe that's what keeps him around."

Most importantly, she said, she is content, which has not always been the case.

"There's no need to run for the rainbow or to try to catch the rainbow because it's not there, for anyone," she said.

"When I came to this country I was very young, and everything seemed rosy across the ocean. I came with nothing but a peaceful feeling toward this country ..."

"Then the mess of '63 happened ... I thought I was an adult, but I wasn't. I was really a naive ... little girl, a kid with two kids in practically the middle of an international scandal."

She said she felt disgraced and somehow guilty and spent years purging the feelings of guilt and grief.

"When you start analyzing yourself it can drive you up the wall," she said. "It was horrible. So I stopped that and started living normally, and it's much better ..."

"I don't have any desire to waste the rest of my life trying to prove something that cannot be proven."

Marina did not recall, nor did she deny, once showing a reporter a magazine article in which the author theorized that her sexual rejection of Oswald was the "final straw" that snapped his mind and drove him to kill.

"I think he's right," she said at the time, two or three years after the assassination.

"I had been guilt-ridden so long," she explained this evening, "that I tried to find an answer, that maybe I triggered something ..."

"Some psychiatrists believe that if a man is (sexually) rejected, or if he is without a woman, he is more prone to commit a crime because he is under stress."

"They're more aggressive, and there has to be an exit for the energy somewhere. But psychiatrists have one opinion today and a different one tomorrow."

She said that after much reflection, she concluded she was not part of what drove Oswald to kill, if indeed he did kill.

"I'm not so certain anymore," she said. "But I'm not an expert on anything and it's natural for me to try to clear his name or want for him to be unguilty."

She said Oswald, while hardly a model husband, "wanted children, and I think he was a loving father."

However, she said it was "humiliating" living in this country and "depending on other people for hand-me-downs and charity. It was killing your pride and making you half a person."

She said she got a reputation for laziness because she slept long and late, but she maintains it was an escape mechanism. "That's the only time I could be somewhere else ... So it was my escape because I was very unhappy."

Years later, neighbors taught her to wallpaper and paint and mow the yard and edge the lawn, but she never learned to drive a car.

Marina was a pharmacist in Minsk when she met Oswald, and recalled being attracted to him because "he was very polite and very neat in appearance" and "he liked the classical music that I like."

She said she's too "picky" to ever cast a movie of the Kennedy episode, but if she did she'd want Norwegian actress Liv Ullmann for her role and Bruce Dern to portray Oswald.

"She is under my skin," Marina said of Ms. Ullmann. "She would understand ..."

"I learned a new word from her: longing. That's the feeling, that unsatisfied something that's always there ... longing. It's not a dream, it's just a longing for something, for something that was good and beautiful. It's nice memories."

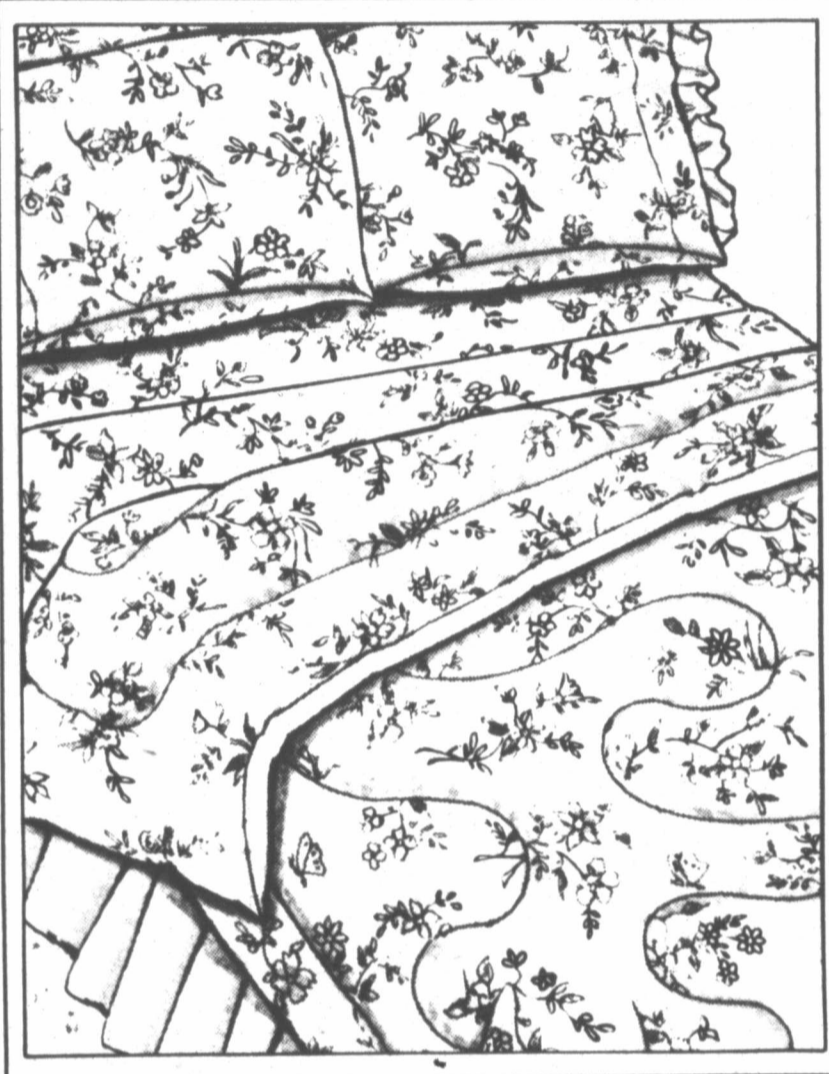

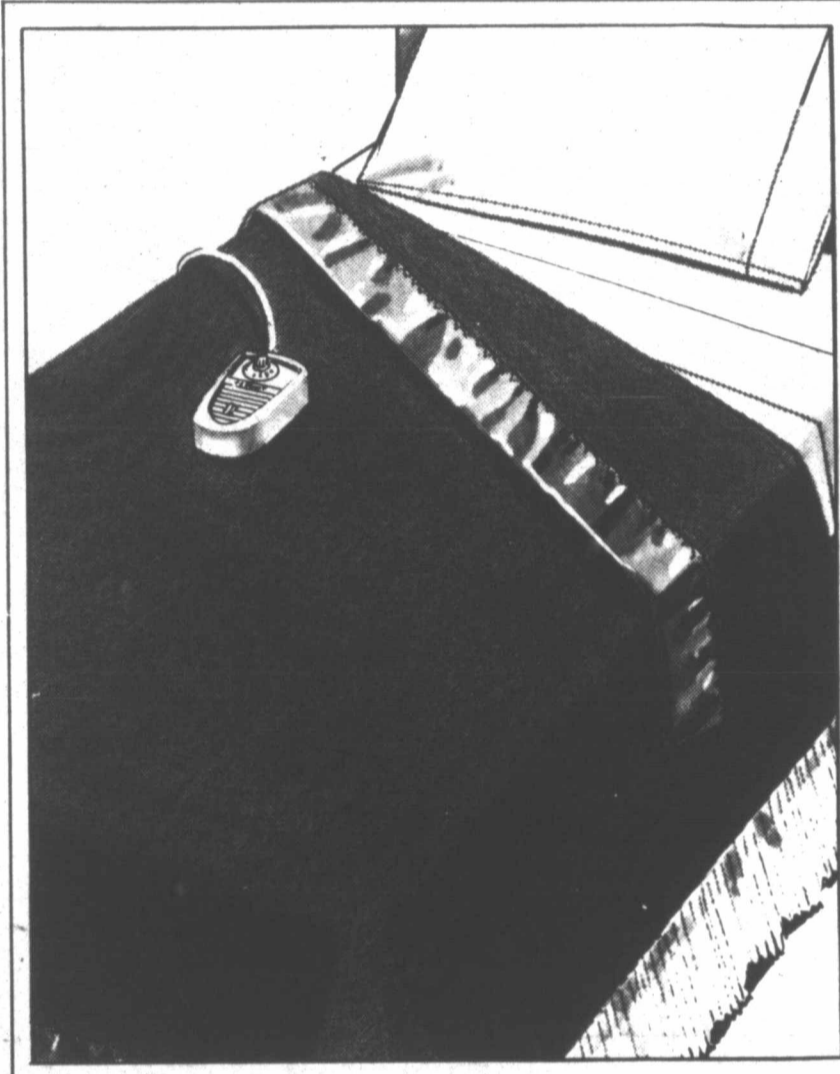

Dern, she said, was an actor "that I couldn't stand. He always played bad characters, and every time he was on I would leave the room. I just couldn't stomach it."

She said the memory of her ex-husband would fade away and she could not always "visualize his face" but that Dern somehow reminded her of Oswald.

"There was something there, something that was unclear about him," she said. "I'm not talking about Lee per se. But the last few days, in the jail, and all his dramatic experiences make him dirty and that's what Dern represented."

Marina said she later saw Dern in a non-acting television appearance and found him to be a "gentleman and a compassionate man ... and I was shocked to see the person was not mean."

Bishop's final bloody week

By DAN SEWELL
Associated Press Writer
ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — Maurice Bishop, Grenada's energetic, magnetic leader, spent his final week in fearful boredom, according to eyewitnesses. He was dazed, emotionally upset and weak from apparent torture and lack of food in the last hours before his death.

At the end, he snapped and ordered "everyone down!" at the sound of gunfire outside Fort Rupert, the army headquarters where he went after being freed from house arrest. He then asked a loyal soldier to announce his surrender and put his hands over his head.

It was the last time he was seen by family, friends and supporters who witnessed the events leading to the Oct. 19 execution of the 39-year-old leftist prime minister.

His accounts refute contentions by the short-lived army junta that Bishop was killed in a shoot-out with the marines, and support claims made by Caribbean leaders that chaos existed in Grenada when they called for U.S. intervention.

Here is a partial reconstruction of Bishop's final week according to interviews with a dozen eyewitnesses:

Oct. 13 — Bishop rejects a call by his ruling party's central committee to share power with his hardline Marxist deputy, Bernard Coard. He says he will "take it to the streets and let the masses decide." Soldiers put him under house arrest.

Oct. 14 — Jacqueline Creft, his 36-year-old education minister and mother of his third child, goes to Bishop's Mount Royal residence to be with him. Soldiers warn her she will not be allowed to leave.

Meanwhile, the government's information minister announces that Coard has taken over. Hours later, Coard says he is resigning to quash rumors that he was plotting against Bishop.

Oct. 15 — Alimenta Bishop, 69, visits her son. She takes him a bottle of whiskey and ginger ale, his favorite drink, and nuts. A soldier confiscates them.

Bishop is led into his living room from his bedroom and appears upset. He says: "Mommy, they killed my father and if they kill me too, I'm satisfied."

Mrs. Bishop, widowed in 1974, when police killed her husband, Rupert, notices a bruise on her son's nose.

Oct. 16 — Family friends deliver three movie videotapes to Bishop's home. They are told later that Bishop and Ms. Creft spend hours watching them to pass the time, and they remain under guard.

Oct. 17 — Mrs. Bishop visits her son again. She notices a new mark on his right cheek and that he seems unable to sit up straight.

"Mommy, no!" he exclaims when she touches his cheek. She asks him if he was eating food sent to him, and he jokes that his guard, called Abdullah, was getting fat on it.

Ms. Creft comes out and tells Mrs. Bishop they haven't been able to eat or sleep. Bishop, appearing worried, tells his mother she should leave. It's the last time she sees her son.

Visitors said it appeared that Bishop and Ms. Creft were allowed little privacy. A guard remained in the bedroom they shared.

Oct. 19 — Several thousand supporters break down the gate to Bishop's residence and rush past soldiers. Minutes later, they stream out, chanting, "We get we leader."

Bishop, wearing only a long shirt and underpants, stops the bottom of a hill to don a pair of long pants. The crowd goes to downtown Market Square, but Bishop says he's not yet ready to speak.

Public Notices

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR FLUID INJECTION WELL PERMIT
Gulf Oil Corporation P.O. Box 1635 Houston, Texas 77251 has applied to the Railroad Commission of Texas for a permit to inject fluid into a formation which is productive of oil or gas.

The applicant proposes to inject fluid into the Granite Wash, West Webb WF, Well Number 1A. The proposed injection well is located 13 miles NE of McLean, Texas in the Panhandle Gray County Field, in Gray County. Fluid will be injected into strata in the subsurface depth interval from 2629 to 2696 feet.

Legal Authority: Chapter 27 of the Texas Water Code, as amended, Title 3 of the Natural Resources Code, as amended, and the Statewide Rules of the Oil and Gas Division of the Railroad Commission of Texas.

Requests for a public hearing from persons who can show they are adversely affected, or requests for further information concerning any aspect of the application should be submitted in writing, within fifteen days of publication, to the Underground Injection Control Section, Oil and Gas Division, Railroad Commission of Texas, Drawer 78711, (Telephone 512-445-1373), G-32 Nov. 9, 1983

He leads some supporters to Fort Rupert and says he will ask the soldiers to lay down their arms. He tells press secretary Don Rojas to telephone "the outside world and let them know what's happening."

Inside the fort, Bishop talks to some loyal soldiers who pledge their support, and orders them to find him a public address system and to arrange to have his speech to the crowd at Market Square broadcast on the state Radio Free Grenada.

Hundreds of people, many of them school children, wait outside the fort. Then, three vehicles, described as armored personnel carriers and a truck loaded with soldiers, drive up the narrow road to the fort.

Some witnesses say a Bishop supporter raises a rifle and picks off a soldier. Others say the armored cars open fire into the crowd without warning.

In a panic, some people throw themselves down a cliff estimated at 40-50 feet high. Bodies were found down there on the following days.

Inside, Bishop orders everyone to lie flat on the floor at the sound of gunfire. When the shooting stops, he instructs a soldier to announce his surrender.

SELLING YOUR HOUSE by Joe Fischer

WHO CAN AFFORD WHAT? Could the "average" family afford the "average" house? Let's look at the Housing Affordability Index compiled by the National Association of Realtors. The index compares the median family income with that needed to qualify for the median priced resale home, assuming that mortgage principal and interest total 25 percent of family income.

Back in 1977, the median family had more than enough to qualify for the median home, but rising prices and especially rising interest rates changed the picture by 1982; then, the median family had only 65.2 percent of the income needed. This year's figures are much better: now the median family has 84 percent of the needed income.

Medians don't concern most homeowners. What's most important is that the prospective buyer who comes to see your house can afford it. That's why we carefully qualify prospects before we bring them. We don't waste anyone's time visiting out-of-reach properties.

Could the "average" family afford your house? Maybe not, but we'll find a willing buyer who can! List with Fischer 2219 Perryton Pky.
