Democrats Rebuff National Nominees

Two 'Saucers' Fall Near Midland, While Reports Pour In From Tokyo To Midwest

Two "flying saucers" fell in the Midland area Friday night but—darn it—they were nothing more exciting than a couple of weather information devices.

One was found on the Nobles Ranch 12 miles northwest of Midland and the other near the Walker Nursery on the Andrews Highway.

Johnny Nobles, Jr., said he was riding horseback Friday evening about one mile from the ranch house.

"I saw this bright orange disk and rode over closer to see what it was," he explained. "Actually it was nothing but an orange-colored paper parachute."

Attached to the parachute was a small radio device known as a radiosonde, which, when launched from a government weather station, transmits weather data back to a receiving station.

When the device, carried aloft by a balloon, reaches a height of 12 miles, the balloon bursts, the parachute opens and the device, about 10 inches square and four inches thick, floats gently to earth.

Both Nobles and J. T. Walker, operator of the nursery, brought the devices to Midland Saturday to be mailed to the Radiosonde Reconditioning Center in Joliet, Ill., in compliance with printed instructions on the side of the case.

Markings indicated the balloons were released at Big Spring.

Meanwhile reports of the unexplained things that fly in the sky spread Friday and Saturday all the way from Korea to Midwestern U. S. A. And the descriptions ranged from mere spots to a whole river.

Mostly, the Associated Press reports, the objects sighted were the familiar saucer shape and luminous. They hovered or zoomed at incredible speed, swung, dipped, circled—and vanished on pursuit. The Air Force, skeptical but taking no chances, was doing the pursuing.

The sheriff's office at Lancaster, Calif., reported a half-dozen persons saw two round, reddish-white lights moving in the sky shortly before Friday midnight. Two of the observers were sheriff's deputies.

At Tokyo, a Japanese weather bureau observer said he saw a greenish-white thing, with a tail, flying through the sky Friday night.

And in Washington, a planeload of newsmen and photographers went aloft at dusk Friday to search for anything unexplained. They flew around the capital more than an hour but didn't see anything unusual, despite a two-week rash of "blips" on Washington radar screens.

AP photographer Hank Burroughs, member of the expedition, had an explanation:

Autopsy Adds Grisly Details In Murder Of Oklahoma Girl

OKLAHOMA CITY —(AP)— Two surgeons performed an autopsy Saturday on the beaten and decapitated body of a young woman and added a few details to the grisly story of her murder.

Dr. Paul H. Obert and Dr. Alice Bruce told police the woman was alive when her head was severed. They gave the decapitation as cause of death.

They also determined finally she was between 20 and 23 years of age, five feet, eight inches and weighed about 155 pounds. Police had believed the victim was between 13 and 14.

Her nude torso with the word "rat" cut into the stomach was found Wednesday in a dry creek bed near Yukon, Okla., with a dress here and belt nearby. The head, hands and blue jeans and shirt were found Friday eight miles southwest.

Officers have taken fingerprints and footprints in an effort to establish her identity.

Lt. O. K. Bivins, head of the State Crime Bureau, said search for the killer spread to Texas Saturday with the report that a bloodstained auto was seen at Fort Stockton Thursday and San Antonio Friday.

A service station operator at Fort Stockton reported servicing the car, occupied by two men. Bivins quoted the operator as saying there was "a great amount of blood on the front fender and the door." The license number was reported to Oklahoma authorities.

★ LATE NEWS FLASHES ★

MUNSAN —(AP)— Allied negotiators met with the Reds for 32 fruitless minutes Sunday, then demanded—and got—a recess in the Korean armistice talks until August 11.

CAIRO —(AP)— Prince Mahomed Abdel Monem, a cousin of King Farouk, Mohamed Bahei Aldin Barakat, an independent politician, and Army Col. Mohamed Rashad Mehanna were named Saturday night as Egypt's temporary Regency Council to act for the baby King Fuad II, son of the abdicated Farouk I.

BERLIN —(AP)— Tension mounted in divided Berlin early Sunday as West Berlin police alerted riot squads to combat a threatened invasion of Western sectors by thousands of Communist youths in a planned demonstration "for peace."

Midland Republicans Choose Eight Demos On County Slate

Midland County Republicans named a slate of candidates for county and precinct offices Saturday but within three hours the eight Democratic nominees on the ticket had been asked by their party leaders to withdraw their names.

The "simon pure" Republicans on the ticket, nominated at the county convention, included:

Robert F. Jennings, Jr., Midland attorney, for county judge.

W. H. (Bill) Price, Midland attorney, for county attorney.

Hugh McClure, Midland engineer, for commissioner from Precinct 1.

Mahlon L. Keel, operator of a car-rental service at Terminal, for commissioner from Precinct 4.

Candidates for eight other county offices were those nominated last Saturday in the Democratic primary election.

If they withdraw, in accordance with a resolution adopted Saturday afternoon at the county Democratic convention, the Republican County Executive Committee probably will name replacements to fill out a county ticket for the first time in Midland County's history.

A vigorous campaign, scheduled to be launched in September, was pledged by the Republicans and the candidates for county judge and the two commissioner's posts made it plain they would run on a promise to redistrict the county—as far as the Commissioners Court is concerned—on a basis of population rather than square miles.

Democrats Object

By the time the Democrats met Saturday afternoon, they had heard of the action and accused the Republicans of "putting us on the spot" by cross-filing the Democratic nominees on the Republican ticket.

Hamilton McRae described it as "an encroachment of the Democratic Party at grass roots level" and Richard Brooks asserted it was "a mechanical trap" to attract "thoughtless voters."

The convention then adopted a resolution asking that "the Democratic nominees be requested not to permit their names to appear on the Republican ticket."

In adopting the majority report of the resolution committee, the convention rejected a minority report which would have given the party's blessings to the cross-filing.

While nominating the precedent-smashing local ticket, the Republicans had a harmonious session as almost 100 party faithful gathered in the County Courtroom.

Delegates Chosen

Richard Hughston was reelected permanent chairman to direct the GOP destinies here the next two years and Mrs. Harry Russell was named permanent secretary.

Harry Russell and William C. Liedtke were named delegate and alternate to the state convention to be held in San Antonio; John J. Redfern and George H. Bush, delegate and alternate to the congressional district convention; Cliff Wilderspin and Charles Linehan, delegate and alternate to the state senatorial district convention; Mrs. Rosalind Redfern and Gilbert Blankenship, delegate and alternate to the representative district convention, and Bill Adam and Mrs. Alice Bradley, delegate and alternate to the judicial district convention.

The principal business, however, was the nomination of candidates for county and precinct offices.

Price, a 25-year-old graduate of Southern Methodist University law school, was nominated for county attorney by Liedtke, who pointed out that the attorney had been living in Midland "off and on" since 1942, is married and has two children.

Jennings, pointed out as having been reared in the ranch country of West Texas and now practicing law in Midland, was nominated for the county judge post by Redfern.

McClure, a former University of Colorado classmate of County Judge Clifford C. Keith, was nominated for county commissioner from Precinct 1 by Dana Secor.

Keel was nominated for county commissioner from Precinct 4 by Russell, who served as chairman of the nominating committee, which also included Redfern and Adam.

J. D. Richters Dies In Action On War Front

Johnny D. Richters, an 18-year-old Midland youth who joined the Army less than a year ago, has died in action on the Korean war front.

The news of his death came Saturday in a telegram from the Department of Defense to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pleas Richters, 609 South Mineola Street.

There were no immediate details.

The message simply stated that Private First Class Johnny D. Richters had been killed in action on July 24, 1952.

The death came only a short time after Richters, a former Midland High School student, had been awarded the Combat Infantryman's Badge, the symbol of the frontline fighting man.

He volunteered for service last October and on May 14, he sailed from the United States, bound for Japan and Korea.

Before joining the service he had been assistant stockroom manager at the F. W. Woolworth store here.

In addition to his parents, survivors include three sisters, Dorothy Richters of Midland, Mrs. L. E. Shields of Providence, Ky., and Mrs. T. B. Consford of Houston, and three brothers, Donald and Tommy of Midland and Airman Joe Richters of Mountain Home, Idaho.

Stanton Approves School Bond Issue

STANTON—A $200,000 bond issue to provide funds for improvements to the elementary and high school plants carried here Saturday by a vote of 95 to 31, School Board Secretary Elmer Long reported Saturday night.

The buildings will be completely reworked, rooms respaced and new windows, floors and ceilings installed, Supt. O. W. Winstead said.

Space now occupied by the administrative offices will be converted into classrooms and a new administrative wing constructed between the two buildings.

102-Year Tradition Abandoned For Ike

RICHMOND, VA. —(AP)— For the first time in its 102-year history The Richmond Times-Dispatch Saturday came out for the Republican nominee for President.

The paper "unreservedly" endorsed Dwight D. Eisenhower and said "We are convinced his election is essential to the well-being of our country."

Midland Stabbing Victim Reported Seriously Hurt

A man, identified as Bodoniano Avila, was in a serious condition Saturday night in Western Clinic-Hospital suffering from a stab wound in the back.

Attaches said the injury evidently was made by a knife thrust through the left shoulder. Additional X-rays were to be made Sunday to determine if the chest cavity was penetrated, attaches said.

Midland city police said they received a call at 9:18 p.m. to go to the Har-Wil Courts on East Highway 80, where they found Avila sitting on the front porch.

No arrests had been made by police in connection with the stabbing.

Party's Stand On Tidelands Brings Revolt

By COPE ROUTH

Midland County Democrats were fighting mad Saturday.

They fumed at Adlai Stevenson and John Sparkman.

They fussed at the Republicans for trying to "steal" their candidates for county and precinct offices.

They were peeved for awhile at Governor Shivers for asking that Midland County name a Houston man as one of their delegates.

And they even had cross words with each other over what one delegate charged was "steamroller tactics."

But when their county convention finally ended after a two-hour session, everyone was happy again.

Except when the names of Adlai Stevenson and John Sparkman were mentioned.

Stevenson, as most people probably know by now, is the Democratic nominee for President of the United States and Sparkman, a senator from Alabama, is his vice presidential running mate.

And Chairman Frank Bezoni made it clear what he, and most of the other Midland County Democrats, thought of them before the convention was five minutes old.

"I have something to say," said Bezoni, just before opening nominations for permanent chairman of the convention.

'Certain Duties To Perform'

"I'm just a little man but there are certain duties I have to perform and I want to say something before you nominate a chairman.

"This is the first time in my life that anything like this has happened. It's the first time in the history of the party, as far as I'm concerned, that this has happened.

"I just can't endorse the only Southern senator in Congress who voted against state ownership of the Tidelands.

"I'm not saying I'll vote Republican in November. Chances are, I won't because my grandfather would turn over in his grave.

"But unless Mr. Sparkman changes his color concerning the Tidelands and Mr. Stevenson gives us assurance that he is in favor of returning the Tidelands to the states, I shall not vote the national Democratic ticket in November.

"I hate to say that but I think you should know.

"Now, if you want another county chairman, now's your chance."

Bezoni immediately was nominated and Delegate H. E. Chiles jumped up to move that he be elected by acclamation.

Delegate J. Sam Roberts bounced right to his feet in momentary protest.

"I'm new at this thing," he said, "but I want to protest. I don't want to see steamroller tactics used to ramrod this thing through."

Precinct Protest

He asked that his Precinct I delegation be permitted to caucus and Bezoni gave them 10 minutes.

Ten minutes later, Alfred (Red) Petty, chairman of the delegation, arose to report.

"We don't have any other candidate for county chairman," he said, "but as a unit we want to protest against the chairman declaring he will not support the Democratic ticket."

There was one dissenting vote in the delegation, however, as Mrs. Ronald Jarrett arose to proclaim

Shivers Maintains Texas Party Reign

By The Associated Press

Gov. Allan Shivers' rampant forces were in firm control of Texas Democratic Party machinery Saturday as the party held its county conventions.

Most of the meetings were mild, sugar-and-honey affairs with Shivers forces in firm control.

In Austin, Shivers' forces smoothly squelched two Loyalist gestures in the Travis County Convention and then named an all-Shivers group of 150 delegates and about 300 alternates to the September 9 state convention in Amarillo.

But at Houston, conservative and "Loyal" Democrats clashed in a wild meeting featured by a fist fight and harsh words.

Bob Bradley, an attorney, was slugged by a man he called a "Loyalist Democrat." He is a son of a conservative leader, Palmer Bradley, Jr.

Shivers' faction controlled the Harris County meeting and elected uninstructed delegates to the state convention.

Fred C. Driskell, 37, Shell refinery employe, was charged with simple assault after Bradley was taken to a hospital for treatment of a cut eye. His condition was not serious.

At Gainesville, the Cooke County Democratic Convention requested the state Democratic Party to ask party nominees for President and vice president to state clearly their position on Tidelands ownership and commended recent actions of Governor Shivers.

Pro-Shivers Democrats had control at the Stephens County gathering in Breckenridge. They instructed state convention delegates to vote as a unit and to vote for state ownership of the Tidelands.

Shivers' supporters were in solid control at Pampa's Gray County convention. A resolution was adopted asking that the presidential nominee be requested to state clearly his position on the Tidelands controversy.

Similar action was reported from a majority of county conventions over the state.

Airplane Troubles Hex Dean Acheson

SAN FRANCISCO—(AP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson landed here Saturday night on a twice-delayed flight to Honolulu for talks to implement the ANZUS defense treaty between the United States, Australia and New Zealand.

The secretary's plane touched down at San Francisco International Airport after an unscheduled stopover in Denver on a flight from Washington.

Acheson was to depart for Honolulu Sunday after spending the night at a San Francisco hotel.

Acheson and his party, including Mrs. Acheson, were delayed slightly more than 24 hours in Denver by mechanical troubles with two planes.

Weather Conditions Unchanging Sunday

"Pretty much the same."

That's the Sunday weather outlook for Midland and vicinity as based on records of CAA observers at the Air Terminal Saturday night.

Partly cloudy skies are expected to clear by noon. Mid-ninety degree temperatures with mild surface winds appear in the offing.

Texas Republicans Assemble, Applaud Ike, Running Mate

By The Associated Press

Texas Republicans—most of them—think Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is a wonderful candidate. And if Senator Richard Nixon is all right with Eisenhower, he's all right with the Texas GOP for vice president.

That was the opinion Saturday in most Republican County conventions in Texas.

The Harris County Convention asked that the Texas Democratic Party's 'choices for governor and U. S. senator—Allan Shivers and Price Daniel—be on the GOP ticket in the November general election.

Midland Building Grants Soar Past $3,000,000 Mark In Single Month

Midland's building permits soared to record breaking heights for one month during July as last week alone brought in more than $1,000,000 worth.

Records in the office of R. S. Higgins, city superintendent of inspections, showed that $3,136,800 worth of permits were issued for the month, shattering the previous record of $2,941,831 issued last March.

The month's permits brought the year's total to $13,499,547, almost $1,000,000 short of the total of $14,632,301 worth of permits issued during the entire 12 months of 1951.

Burden Of Rear Area Work Taken From Combat General

TOKYO—(AP)—The U. S. Army split its Korean command Saturday with the creation of a new rear area headquarters paralleling Gen. James A. Van Fleet's fighting U. S. Eighth Army.

The new outfit is the Korean Communications Zone. It will handle all the back area support for the fighting Army, prisoners of war and civil assistance.

Its commander, whose main headquarters are at Taegu, is Maj. Gen. Thomas W. Herren of Dadeville, Ala.

Gen. Mark Clark's Far East Command headquarters two weeks ago announced that Van Fleet's all-Korea command would be split for the sake of efficiency.

The importance of the new communications zone is shown in the fact that Herren's command is parallel to, and not under, Van Fleet's Eighth Army. Both generals will report as equals to Clark in Tokyo.

Since the war began, enormous port facilities have built up in Pusan and elsewhere. Engineers and Signal Corpsmen have rebuilt the Korean roads, railroads, telephone and radio systems. Camps for the growing number of Red prisoners—an army itself—have had to be set up. Wide-scale measures for rebuilding South Korea have been undertaken.

Altogether, it raised the supply, housekeeping and civilian functions to a level equalling the fighting war.

Saturday's formal changes set up three commanders under the new communications zone:

The old Second Logical Command, with headquarters in Pusan, is changed to a Korean Base Section with the same commander, Brig. Gen. Edward H. Lastayo.

The recently formed prisoner of war command under Brig. Gen. Haydon L. (Bull) Boatner is raised to an equal level with the base section.

The United Nations Civil Assistance Command in Korea, under Brig. Gen. William E. Crist, also is raised to the same level.

Rhee's Reelection Expected In Korea Balloting Tuesday

PUSAN, KOREA—(AP)—Western observers expect 77-year-old Syngman Rhee to be reelected president of the Republic of Korea by a large majority Tuesday.

The 77-year-old executive has remained aloof during the short campaign despite vigorous electioneering by the three other presidential candidates. But his supporters have plastered his picture throughout South Korea and he is the only public figure known to the bulk of the nine million persons eligible to vote.

The only expected contest will be the election of vice president from among nine candidates. Former Home Minister Lee Bum Suk, who directed Rhee's purge of political opponents which paved the way for the national election, is given the best chance.

X-RAY SURVEY STARTED FOR COUNTY—Hundreds of Midland County residents had free X-rays made Saturday as the survey opened on the first floor of the courthouse. X-rays are to be made through August 12 with the exception of Monday which is a holiday for State Department of Health technicians. Here L. V. Bashum, president of the Midland Lions, has his chest X-rayed as the line formed behind the machine. The Lions unloaded the machine and otherwise helped in setting up equipment.

Presidential Nominees Fire Preliminary Campaign Shots

By The Associated Press

Preliminary shots were exchanged Saturday night between the camps of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Republican and Democratic presidential nominees.

In a statement issued from the executive mansion in Springfield, Ill., Stevenson said he wondered if Eisenhower's "crusade" is not "more for office than principle."

"My distinguished opponent says he will support 'to the limit' Republican party winners, however they may be, and attach them firmly to his 'crusade'," Stevenson stated.

"Apparently any Republican primary winner automatically becomes a commissioned officer in this 'crusade' no matter how much his views may differ from those of the commander in chief."

Eisenhower's campaign manager, Arthur E. Summerfield, let off a fusillade of his own from the general's temporary headquarters in Denver.

Stevenson, he said in a prepared statement, would "out-Truman the Truman regime in leading the nation down the road to complete socialism."

Summerfield contended that when the Illinois governor appointed Wilson W. Wyatt as his personal campaign manager Friday it meant that "the ultra-left wingers — not the Democratic party—will have complete charge of his campaign." Wilson has long been an exponent of the Roosevelt New Deal and the Truman Fair Deal.

President Truman said in Kansas City he is awaiting the word to start out on a bare-knuckle campaign tour in behalf of Stevenson.

But now the word must come from Stevenson, the President told James Arrington, former Democratic state chairman of Oklahoma. "I'm just a private in the rear ranks now," Arrington quoted Truman as saying.

Arrington visited the President at his temporary headquarters, where Truman is vacationng between rounds of official chores.

After a general conference at Eisenhower's command post Friday, Senator Richard M. Nixon of California, the GOP vice presidential nominee, said the general had done "a beautiful job of assuring harmony" in the Eisenhower camp.

Eisenhower's problem is to combine the campaign efforts of the professionals in the regular party machinery with the work of the National Citizens for Eisenhower Committee and still keep everybody happy.

Angeloan Injured In Traffic Crash Remains Critical

Mervin E. Manning, San Angelo salesman, remained in a critical condition Saturday at Midland Memorial Hospital, suffering from multiple injuries received in a car-truck accident Friday.

Attaches said Manning received a cerebral concussion, chest, lung and eye injuries, and several broken ribs.

Highway Patrolman Oscie Renfrow, who investigated, said the accident occurred at 5:25 p.m. Friday, 15 miles from Midland on the Garden City Highway.

Renfrow said Manning was driving a 1952 Ford automobile, going toward San Angelo, and struck broadside a 1951 GMC dump truck operated by William Monroe Linton of Odessa.

Linton had just entered the highway from a county road, when the accident occurred, the patrolman said.

Manning's automobile was a complete loss, while the side of the dump truck was damaged.

Carlsbad Saucers Are Bigger, Faster

CARLSBAD, N. M.—(AP)—Now it's a saucer 12 feet high and seven feet across that goes faster than any jet plane, turns sharply without slowing down and is made of frosted stainless steel.

T. L. Fox, Carlsbad contractor, saw it:

"About 6:30 in the morning, I was standing in my back yard when I noticed an object gliding from the north. I thought it was a balloon and I started for my car to go after it.

"Before I could get to my car, the thing had grown many times its size and had leveled off. It then, to my astonishment, maneuvered and shot forward with a burst of speed toward the Carlsbad Airport a burst of speed which has never been equaled by any jet I know of and no plane with wings attached could have made that sharp turn."

He estimated its speed at 1,000 miles an hour.

Canadian Convicts Set Fire To Prison In All-Night Riot

MONTREAL, QUE. — (AP) — Police reinforcements and firemen raced to riot-torn Bordeaux Jail again Saturday when 700 rebellious prisoners set new fires to back up their shouted demands for better food.

The fires apparently were not serious and police appeared to be in control of the six winged institution 10 miles from downtown Montreal.

The prisoners set 17 fires Friday night, smashed cellblock locks and fought 200 police in a two-hour battle. A dozen or more convicts were injured.

This was the second series of riots at Bordeaux over food since last May. Provincial police reported Saturday morning that order had been restored after Friday night's violent outbreak. Screaming inmates touched off the fresh fires a few hours later.

Guards had been unable to confine the prisoners in their cellblocks because of the smashed locks. The prisoners roamed the main corridor and adjacent corridors at will. Outside the prison walls, yelling could be heard plainly.

Word from within was that Saturday's fires were minor and firemen who rushed in with fire hoses were able to put them out without too much trouble. Ten police squad cars sped to the scene when the alarm was sounded to join heavily-armed squads who had been on guard since Friday night.

Five ringleader suspects were reported held incommunicado by provincial police. About 100 prisoners were transferred to jails in other parts of the city.

Prisoners were said to have rushed a food truck when it entered the main yard Saturday, but apparently no serious trouble resulted.

About all police appeared able to do for the present was patrol the prison grounds and maintain some semblance of order among the shouting, jeering prisoners.

Police used tear gas bombs and fired pistols over the heads of the rioters Friday night and succeeded in driving them back into their cellblocks but they stayed there only briefly. Soon the prisoners spilled back into the courtyards, yelling and taunting the police.

Aware that the broken locks made it impossible to keep the men behind bars for the night, the police stood by and allowed them to blow off steam. Shortly after midnight the big jail quited down. Two prisoners were wounded by fragments of tear gas cartridges. Ten or so others were injured in the fighting. First reports that one prisoner had been killed were denied by police and hospital authorities.

After the riots last May, an official investigation was promised by the Quebec provincial government, but no results have been announced.

All the prisoners are serving two years or less. Those sentenced to more than two years go to the federal penitentiary at nearby St. Vincent de Paul, Quebec.

Polio Death, Two New Cases Reported In Texas Epidemic

By The Associated Press

Killer polio struck again in Texas Saturday.

One polio fatality and two new cases were reported at Houston.

Charles F. Redmon, 38, died in Houston, the eighth county polio fatality of the year.

In Dallas another polio victim, a 32-year-old woman, was admitted to Parkland Hospital's isolation ward.

Her admission brought the number of Dallas polio cases thus far in 1952 to a record 202.

The new cases in Houston boosted totals this year to 314 city cases and 11 deaths, 199 county cases and eight deaths and 181 out-of-county cases and eight deaths.

McKinney Willing To Stay As Demo National Chairman

COLORADO SPRINGS, COLO.—(AP)—Frank E. McKinney indicated here Saturday he would be willing to continue as Democratic national chairman—if Gov. Adlai Stevenson, the Democratic presidential candidate wishes.

McKinney is here for a week's vacation. He made his remarks in an interview.

He said, "I believe my three-fold misson is completed, but if Governor Stevenson wants me to continue, I believe I will." He added he would see Stevenson August 10 in Springfield, Ill.

No Pint-Sized Saucer, Pal; Illinois Has 'Flying River'

CHAMPAIGN, ILL.—(AP)—You can have your flying saucers. Scientists have spotted "a flying river."

No pint-sized saucer, if you please. A man-sized river 100 miles long.

Observers spotted the wayward stream several nights ago on their radar screen at the University of Illinois Airport.

It had them in deep water for a while. They finally figured out it was a reflected radar image of a 100-mile long section of the Illinois River, which is 80 miles west of the airport.

The Illinois State Water Survey's airport station has kept a radar check on the skies since 1948.

Meterologist Glenn E. Stout said the station's observers have sighted some weird objects—from "flying saucers" to colored neon signs and rows of street lights.

Stout said some of the images were caused by rain high in the air which never reached the ground.

Others were reflections of ground objects caused by the bending of radar rays. Layers of hot and cold air have different densities. Together they act like lenses or prisms, bending radar and light rays.

Stout says they've found that—just like the human eye—radar can be tricked too.

Seen any "flying rivers"?

Operations Resume Tuesday In Making Of Chest X-Rays

No X-rays will be made Monday in the county-wide chest X-ray survey being made in Midland County, as it is a holiday for State Health Department unit technicians, Hulon Brown, county chairman, announced Saturday.

Brown reported a total of 673 persons had chest X-rays Saturday, opening day of the survey.

The unit will be in full swing again at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday on the first floor of the Midland County Courthouse. The survey will continue through August 12.

Only persons 15 years of age or older are eligible for the free chest X-ray, with hours from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily.

For the opening day of the survey Saturday, 21 members of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority each gave more than two hours of her time to assist in registering those having X-rays made.

They included Lily Walker, Pat Berry, Vi Rubin, Jean Byars, Jean Horton, Mary K. McDade, Aileen Maddox, Marian Reeder, Annette Butler, Sara Johnson, Ruth Slatton, Dilly Nance, Jodie King, Jessie Mae Whiteside, Evelyn Wink, Alma Heard, Billy Lay, Flo Lamp, Yvonne Preston and Vera Wecker.

A block of parking spaces next to the courthouse has been reserved by the Midland Police Department for those having chest X-rays made.

Dr. Lex B. Smith, president of the Midland County Tuberculosis Association, has urged that everyone have a chest X-ray each year. He pointed out that tuberculosis can be cured if discovered in its early stages.

"Even though a person may have had an X-ray last year, he should have another made this year to know if he has caught this contagious disease," Dr. Smith said.

As an extra inticement to get Midlanders to have X-rays made, the Midland Baseball Club will give free tickets to Indians' home games each day. Four persons having X-rays will be given two tickets each.

Each X-ray has a number and two numbers each morning and two in the afternoon will be selected, and the person whose X-ray bears one of these numbers will be given two tickets to see the Indians play.

HIGH COST OF SUCCESS

ABERDEEN, WASH.—(AP)—Delos Shea, 56, of Tacoma, pulled a 26-pound salmon into his boat Friday and shouted gleefully, "My trip is paid for!"

An instant later he toppled to the deck, dead of a heart seizure.

Truman Calls For Support Of United Defense Fund Drive

KANSAS CITY — (AP) — President Truman called upon the American people Saturday night for all-out support of the 1952 drive of the United Defense Fund for $19,451,340.

"It is essential that there be no let-up in the work of the USO and other services for the armed forces, in the health and recreation programs for defense production communities, in the collection of clothes for the suffering people of Korea, and in the overseas facilities for those who man the ships carrying defense material," he said.

Baylor To Fight Architect's Suit

WACO—(AP)—Baylor University officials defended their actions Saturday in a controversy over an architect's fee for planning a memorial building.

Dr. W. R. White, Baylor president, said he felt the school had done 'everything reasonable" to avoid a suit by Architect Guy A. Carlander of Amarillo.

Carlander recently filed suit for $109,153 against Baylor in a Dallas district court. He claims that amount represents fees and expenses due him in drawing plans for a memorial building to the late Dr. J. B. Tidwell.

Prompt Action Essential

It certainly is not a very pretty situation in which the City of Midland now finds itself in regard to sewage disposal and flies.

Rather it is an alarming condition in which citizens generally must cooperate to the fullest extent if serious trouble is averted.

It is a situation which never should have been allowed to develop, but now that it has, nothing should be overlooked and no expense spared in correcting it.

* * *

Mayor Perry Pickett reports the city has mobilized its entire resources to combat an unfortunate situation, and that everything possible is being done.

City Manager W. H. Oswalt says the city has spent almost $10,000 within the last few days in its battle against flies.

The City-County Health Unit, too, is devoting almost all its time in battling flies. Fogging machines are busy at all potential fly-breeding spots.

It appears the only real solution to the sewage situation is the completion of the south side interceptor sewer line, which will prevent the overloading of the present line. That, too, appears to be a slow process, and a proposal to engage an additional contractor to help push the important project to completion certainly should receive thorough consideration. Time is the very essence in this case, while cost is secondary. The health and welfare of the community is at stake.

Emergency measures now are justified, and then steps surely must be taken by the city to see that similar situations do not occur in the future.

* * *

Meanwhile, citizens should respond graciously and wholeheartedly to the plea of the City Council by using sewer facilities as sparingly as possible. Fewer baths during the period of emergency perhaps will help as much as anything else in easing the burden upon the city's overloaded and inadequate sewer lines. YOUR cooperation is urged.

Then, too, householders and others must do everything possible to control the fly infestation by eliminating fly-breeding places on and near their own premises. It is a cooperative movement which cannot be successful unless everyone will do his part. Again, it is up to YOU.

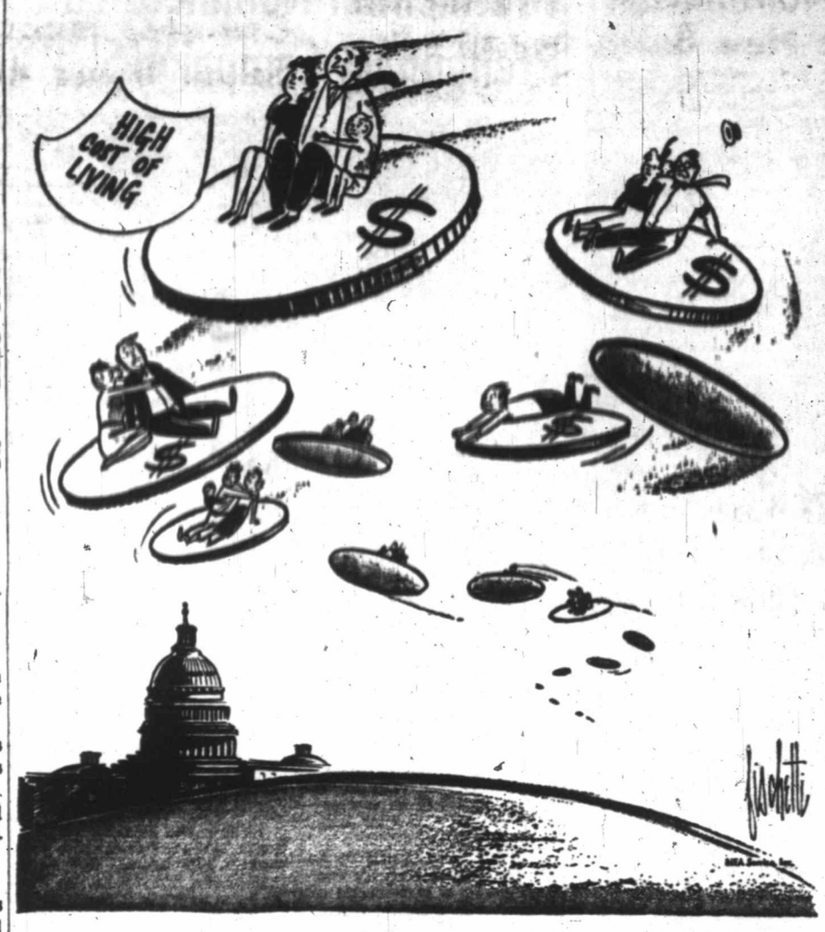

* * *

The community-wide clean-up campaign scheduled later this month will be the final, all-out effort for complete victory in the war on flies. Representatives of civic and service clubs will meet Tuesday afternoon to plan the drive. It is hoped all organizations will participate actively in the program, which is of tremendous importance to the health and welfare of Midland and its citizens.

The success of the clean-up campaign, of course, depends largely upon individual participation. Now is the time for citizens to launch the effort in their own back yards. It is not something which can be delayed. Prompt action is essential.

A united front is necessary to correct an unfortunate and unpleasant situation. Midlanders can and must accomplish this important mission.

An Explanation Of Those Washington Saucers

● The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1952, by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Drew Pearson says: Non-Stevenson Democrats rush for the Springfield throne; backslapping Senator Wiley becomes a diplomat; Iran may go behind the Iron Curtain.

WASHINGTON — Already the scramble has started to get closest to the Stevenson throne.

Taft Republicans, on the whole, are more dignified. They have not rushed to snuggle up to Eisenhower. But some of the Democrats who were working their heads off to defeat Adlai Stevenson at Chicago now are in a frantic frenzy to get on the bandwagon.

Franklin Roosevelt had an interesting way of dividing up his friends. He called them "B.C." friends and "A.C." friends—referring of course to whether they were "before" or "after" Chicago.

Probably the stanchest "before Chicago" friend Stevenson had in Washington is Assistant Postmaster General Osborne Pearson (no relation of this columnist) who got into considerable hot water with certain Trumanites for boosting Stevenson.

As early as last April, Pearson began predicting Stevenson. On May 23, speaking at San Jose, Calif., he made this amazing prediction, as quoted in the San Jose Mercury:

"It will not be Stevenson on the first ballot. Two other candidates, Senator Russell and Senator Kefauver, will have to neutralize the situation. That done, Governor Stevenson will be drafted and will accept."

Shortly after coming out for Stevenson, Pearson was called in by his chief, Postmaster General Donaldson.

"What do you mean by making these Stevenson statements?" the postmaster general asked. "The White House is sore about it."

Was White House Sore?

"I thought the President was for Stevenson," Pearson replied.

Later he found that it was not the President, but one of his aides who pretended to speak for him who was irked—Matt Connelly.

Connelly, who long has been maneuvering to keep his job, telephoned Pearson, asked why he was beating the bushes for the Illinois governor. Pearson replied that, since the President wasn't going to run, the Democratic Party had to get busy and pick a good man.

"But," replied Connelly, "I think if you work it right, we can get him to change his mind."

The assistant postmaster general, however, kept on plugging his man, made speeches all over the country, and continued the battle on the floor of the Chicago convention. At one time he was almost thrown bodily out of the California delegation—his home state—for trying to switch its delegates to Stevenson. While Donald Dawson of the White House staff and Chairman Frank McKinney were plugging for Barkley, Pearson battled for the man he had picked months before.

It will be interesting to see how Stevenson handles his "B.C." friends; also how he handles his "after" Chicago friends.

Quotes Of The Month

Here are the two most interesting quotes of the month. One was given by Governor Stevenson during his acceptance speech at Chicago; the other was released by the State Department as part of its historical documents. It quotes Cordell Hull's instructions to the American ambassador in Paris in case Hitler rearmed.

The quote from Governor Stevenson—probably the greatest highlight of his speech—follows:

"And more important than winning the election is governing the nation. That is the test of a political party—the acid, final test. When the tumult and the shouting die, when the bands are gone and the lights are dimmed, there is the stark reality of responsibility in an hour of history haunted by those gaunt, grim speecters of strife, dissension, and materialism at home, and ruthless, inscrutable, and hostile power abroad."

The 1935 instruction of Secretary of State Hull following an inquiry from the U. S. ambassador in Paris as to what he should do about Hitler's plan to rearm in violation of the Versailles Treaty, follows:

"For your confidential information this government is continuing to follow the situation with the keenest and closest attention but as yet it has reached no determinations as to the action, if any, which it may feel it necessary to take. Whatever action may eventually be taken may well depend upon circumstances which cannot as yet be clearly foreseen."

Wiley Turns Diplomat

Senator Alex Wiley of Wisconsin, the Republican on the Foreign Relations Committee who will become chairman if Eisenhower is elected, staged a private dinner the other day for the new president of Panama which proved helpful to the State Department.

President-elect Jose Remon, who has not been regarded as a particularly good friend of the U.S.A., was frank and forthright to Senator Wiley. He criticized Dictator Peron's attacks on the U.S., proposed cleaning Communists out of Panamanian universities, said he would appoint Bobby Heurtematte, and a good friend of the U. S., as Panamanian foreign minister.

Senora Remon told Mrs. Wiley that she was anxious to do some welfare work but was afraid of becoming another Evita Peron, while President Remon said he planned to slap an income tax on the people of Panama.

"If Mexico can do it, Panama can, too," he said, "since the Mexicans are worse thieves than the Panamanians."

Wiley concluded that President Remon would be a good friend of the U. S. A. after all.

Note—Senator Wiley, who used to be the most genial back-slapper in the Senate, has settled down to take life seriously since his new marriage.

Another Moscow Victory??

There was a lot more than meets the eye behind the sudden comeback of aged, cantankerous, Mohammed Mossadegh as premier of Iran.

First, it was a decisive defeat for American diplomacy. Second, it could mean that the Shah of Iran will go the way of the king of Egypt.

What happened was that the shah finally had gotten up nerve to do what he should have been doing long ago. He fired Mossadegh, replacing him with Ahmed Qavam, stanch foe of Russia, who immediately pledged publicly that he would settle the oil dispute with England and thus restore Iranian economy.

Following this, U. S. ambassador Loy Henderson, the Kansas boy who has become one of the State Department's top experts on the Middle East, called on Qavam and promised him a large American loan in order to help clean up the mess Mossadegh left behind.

Henderson also called on the shah, warned that the Communists, in league with fanatical Mossadegh followers, would try to overthrow the government. So the ambassador begged the shah to give Qavam the power to call out the army, arrest the ringleaders, and smash the riots.

The shah promised that he would but immediately got cold feet.

Word leaked out that he had changed his mind and that the new premier could not call out the army. The result was wholesale riots. Mossadegh followers and Communists took over without fear of reprisal. Qavam barely escaped with his life.

Mossadegh will get no financial aid from the U. S. A. until he cleans up his dispute with the British, but the danger is from religious fanatic Mullah Kashani, who has been playing footsie with the Communists. Continued unrest and economic depression in Iran is almost certain to suck it behind the Iron Curtain.

● JACOBY ON BRIDGE

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

It is unusual to bid and rebid a suit as weak as ten-nine-x-x, but sometimes this is quite sound procedure. In last year's national tournament Henry Chanin, of Atlanta, earned a fine score by making just such a bid.

In response to one heart Chanin hated to bid no-trump with a singleton, but was not strong enough to bid two diamonds. He therefore shaded the usual requirements in order to respond with one spade.

When his partner raised to three spades, Chanin decided that his partner probably had strong trumps, and that the suit offered the best road to game. He therefore rebid his moth-eaten suit.

West opened the deuce of clubs, and Chanin saw that dummy's spade support was far from robust.

To draw trumps in the normal way might well give the opponents enough trump tricks to defeat the contract. Chanin therefore decided to cash his top cards and cross-ruff.

He won the first trick with the ace of clubs, crossed to the ace of diamonds, cashed the king and jack of clubs, and ruffed a diamond in dummy. He next cashed the ace and king of hearts and ruffed a heart in his own hand.

Another diamond ruff in dummy provided the ninth trick and reduced East to four trumps. When another heart was now led from dummy, East could do nothing to defeat the contract.

Actually, East ruffed low, and Chanin won his tenth trick by over-ruffing with the nine. The defenders could not be prevented from taking the last three tricks, but Chanin had already made his game.

♥ CARD Sense ♦

Q—With neither side vulnerable, the bidding has been:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 Spade | 2 Clubs | Double | ? |

You, South, hold: Spade 7, Hearts J-10-8-2, Diamonds K-Q--J-9-8-7-6, Club 5. What do you do?

A—Bid three diamonds. This is not a forcing bid, but it does show a very strong suit and a fair hand with marked shortness in clubs. North should go on if he can provide help in the red suits but should pass if the bulk of his strength is in the black suits.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spades Q-J-10-8, Hearts Q-J-9-7, Diamonds K-J-8-4, Club 5. What do you do?

Factions Move To Give Voters Bigger Hand In Party Policies

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Behind the trials and tribulations of both Republican and Democratic National Conventions over the seating of "loyal" party delegates is a growing new movement in American politics.

Its purpose is to make the members of Congress more responsive to what is believed to be the will of a majority of the people. At present, it is believed that too many senators and representatives are more responsive to the will of the party bosses and their own convictions.

The idea for changing this situation probably has made more headway in the Democratic than in the Republican Party. But the rise of the insurgent Republican forces in Southern states from Florida to Texas shows that the idea is very much alive and kicking in the GOP.

The aim of the Southern Republican revolters—largely pro-Eisenhower forces—was to take control of the party machinery away from the Old Guard regulars. For years this faction in control has been operated more like a private club than a party of the people.

The Old Guard machine gained and maintained more power by having the Republican Party's national ticket defeated than it stood to gain in victory. This was the condition that led to the rise of pro-Eisenhower forces in the Southern state conventions.

In the Democratic convention, the move for more democracy in shaping party policy was revealed in the drive to write into the platform a plank favoring a change in Senate rules. The change would limit Senate filibusters by a simple majority vote, instead of the two-thirds majority now required.

Southern Democratic senators opposed this change. Their argument was that the Senate was a self-governing body. No one on the outside should tell the Senate how to behave.

By this argument, the senators indicated that they put themselves above the will of the party and the will of a majority of the people.

Two years ago, the Republicans went through the same kind of a snake dance. It grew out of GOP National Committee Chairman Guy George Gabrielson's proposal for a mid-term declaration of party policy.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio at first resisted this move. His argument was that between national conventions, the party policy was determined by the Republican members of the House and Senate.

Both the Republican and Democratic senators' objections to outside interference were equivalent to saying that congressmen were above party dictation and discipline and the will of the people.

Mid-Term Conventions

It was to overcome this attitude that the American Political Science Association has been promoting the idea of mid-term national conventions.

The purpose of these conventions would be to restate party policy and party objectives in the light of changing conditions. At present, the party platforms adopted by the presidential nominating conventions remain the party doctrine for four years. That is considered too long a time.

It does not permit a change of foreign policy objectives created by some mid-term development like the outbreak of war in Korea. A restatement of party policy on the eve of the mid-term congressional elections would give the voters a clearer idea of the issues at stake, according to the political scientists' theory.

President Truman has given his endorsement to the mid-term convention plan. For the Republicans, Rep. Jacob Javits of New York has been promoting it. Minnesota and Wisconsin Democratic state conventions endorsed it this year. But the effort to put a plank in the Democratic platform, favoring the calling of such a convention in 1954, failed to carry.

The idea is not dead, however, and it is bound to grow.

It has certain obvious objections, in addition to inconvenience and cost. The principal objection is that in subjecting members of Congress to more strict party control and discipline it would kill independence of thought and contribute to a more totalitarian form of government in America.

Summer Dream

By Irene Ernhart

Copyright 1952 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Laurie French, engaged to be married in October, is spending the summer in Indiana with her father. A young school teacher, Steve Wyeman, takes her to a dance and later tells Laurie she came to Indiana to run away. He kisses Laurie, who returns the kiss.

* * *

VI

LAURIE FRENCH stirred her coffee and didn't look at Steve. "Blame the kiss on the moon," he went on. "Besides, you looked lovely last night. But it won't happen again."

Another long pause. Laurie said, "Didn't you like to kiss me?"

"Good heavens, Laurie, that's a silly thing to ask. Of course I did." He rose from the table abruptly and put the coffee pot back on the stove. He returned. "But you just don't go around kissing girls who are engaged to somebody else."

"Oh, Steve," she whispered. "I liked it too."

Steve gulped some coffee. After a moment he said. "Sure. You're lonesome and away from the man you love. It was really Fletcher Sturdevant you kissed last night. Not me."

He rose from the table abruptly, scraping his chair back. "I'm awfully sorry, Laurie, to have to hurry off, but I promised Evelyn last night that I'd ve her and Johnny up to Capitol City to the Clinic. Johnny's under treatment there, and the second Sunday in the month he goes into the hospital. Evelyn doesn't have a car of her own."

"You'll be gone all day?" She couldn't disguise her disappointment.

"Probably be back around supper time."

"Could we go for a swim then? There'll still be a full moon."

"Maybe."

"Please."

He shrugged. "If you'll excuse me now, I've got to shave." He glanced at his watch. "Go ahead and finish your breakfast." He went off into the back wing of the cabin and presently she heard the sound of the sho er running.

Laurie got up from the table and went out, closing the screen softly behind her.

Last night, she thought as she went back up the path, Steve had told her in effect that she was not sure she was in love with Fletcher, and he had kissed her. This morning he seemed to take it for granted that she was in love with Fletcher. And he was sorry for last night's kiss. Why? Was it because of Evelyn Crane?

Her day stretched ahead somber and empty. She helped her father in his garden for a while and then in the afternoon curled up in the shade to read a book Steve had lent her. The book was boring, for some reason or another and after supper she decided to return it.

It was as good an excuse as any to see whether or not Steve had returned from Capitol City.

He wasn't home yet, but the house was never locked and Laurie went in, because she knew he wouldn't mind her picking out another book. She browsed through the volumes on his desk, picked out a likely one and sat down on the davenport to skim through it. S ve would probably be home shortly. The book was rather interesting, so she turned on the radio and settled herself to read.

* * *

THE next thing she knew someone was shaking her awake, and she heard Steve's angry voice saying, "Laurie, what are you doing here at this time of the night?"

She sat up, blinking. "Is it late? I must have dozed off." The radio was still bleating.

"It's 2 o'clock in the morning."

Laurie yawned. "Fine time for you to be coming home, especially when you knew we were going swimming." She tried to collect her sleep-drenched thoughts.

Steve pulled her to her feet. "What's the rush and why are you so mad about it? After all, I didn't mean to fall asleep."

"Suppose Mrs. Jenner should see me bringing you home at this time. She knew you were coming down here, I presume."

Laurie nodded as she stood u still yawning. "Don't be mad at me, Steve," she whispered. She felt all warm and sleepy and quite reckless, and suddenly she reached out her arms and put them around his neck and lifted her lips to his.

Steve tried to push her away but then all at once he pulled her against him and kissed her. She was trembling when he let her go.

"Come along. I'll take you home." He was standing at the screen door, opening it. His voice was brusque and impersonal.

She almost had to run to keep up with him as he strode up the path.

* * *

H stopped and waited for her to catch up. "You little nitwit," he said hoarsely, "you're a spoiled brat that's always had her own way about everything and thinks she can have just anything she takes a fancy to. Why don't you stop fooling around here and go back to New York and get married? At least go back to your own kind."

Laurie couldn't think of anything to say, so she followed him silently the rest of the way. There was a light in the library still and at Steve's knock her father came out to the door. "I've got your child here, Louis. She fell asleep on my davenport and I found her there when I got home just now."

"For goodness sake, Laurie," her father said, "I thought you were upstairs in your own bed asleep."

She went past him swiftly. "Good night, Dad."

In her own room she shut the door and stood there against it. Her eyes brimmed and spilled over. The salty tears stung her cheeks and one ran down her nose. Steve's words echoed in her mind confusedly.

Maybe she should go back and marry Fletcher. She felt miserably lost and confused.

Taft, Loser In Nomination Bout, May Face New Battle

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, loser in a determined fight for the Republican presidential nomination, may face another battle with senators of his party.

This may come when the new Congress organizes in January if Taft decides to try to retain his key position as chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee.

Taft has held the job since 1944 although Republicans had to change the rules that fromerly required rotating the chairmanship. Several times his leadership has been challenged by Republican senators referred to as the "Young Turks."

The Ohioan has not announced his plans regarding Senate Republican leadership but intimate associates here expect him to offer to serve again, either as policy chairman or possibly even as Republican floor leader.

Taft had the support of a majority of Republican senators in his latest unsuccesful presidential bid, but those who have challenged his Senate leadership in the past generally were in the Eisenhower camp.

These included Lodge and Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Morse of Oregon, Ives of New York, Tobey of New Hampshire, Smith and Hendrickson of New Jersey, and Duff of Pennsylvania.

Lodge, one of the chief Eisenhower campaign managers, was beaten by Taft both in 1947 and 1949, for the policy chairmanship.

Morse, one of the few "Young Turks" here now who have tried to unseat Taft in the past, told a reporter:

"I don't intend to spearhead any attempt to displace Bob Taft as policy chairman at the next session."

Negro, Said To Be 117 Years Old, Dies

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Esquire Smith, whose family claims he was 117 years old, died here Friday.

Mrs. Mary Arrington, one of six surviving children—he had 15—said her father was born in Shreveport, La., about 1835.

Smith, a negro who recently attributed his long life to hard work, was a rancher, gardener and cowboy in Texas and Oklahoma territories, living at Marshall and Paris, Texas, and at Boley, Okla.

He came here in 1921. And at the age of 86 he obtained a job as streetsweeper.

"Daddy was a spry old man," said Mrs. Arrington. "He worked until he was 102. His eyesight was wonderful. He could read a newspaper and could even thread a needle—all without glasses.

His wife, Ollie, with whom he was wed 57 years, died in 1912.

Besides his children, he leaves 32 grandchildren, 13 great grandchildren and two great, great grandchildren.

KNIGHTSTOWN, Ind. — (AP) — A 16-acre field of green corn lies in the middle of thousands of acres of crops turned brown in drought-stricken East- Central Indiana.

Farmer Alvin Hardin has kept the 16 acres in perfect condition by using six giant sprinklers that pour the equivalent of two inches of rain in three and one-half hours.

Hardin uses an industrial motor to pump 600 gallons of water a minute from a well dug for the purpose.

$28 Wager Costs One Life, Injuries In Highway Tragedy

PARKERSBURG, W. VA. — (AP) — The bet was $28. Robert Montgomery of Parkersburg and George Baker, Jr., of Coolville, Ohio, both 18, made it. The objective: Ripley, W. Va., 36 miles down U. S. 21 toward Charleston.

The automobile race started a little after 2 a.m. Saturday.

In South Parkersburg, Baker lost control of his car, hit a guard rail and careened back onto the highway.

Montgomery swerved to miss him, skidded along a ravine 500 feet deep and hit a tree.

The score: James Taitt, 16, dead. Peter Deem, 18, critically hurt, unconscious. Montgomery, critically hurt, unconscious. Dale Taitt, 18, broken leg and head cuts. The Taitt brothers and Deem were riding with Montgomery.

Sgt. Bruce Parsons of the Parkersburg police force, who pieced together the story, charged Baker with reckless driving. He wasn't hurt.

Troops Kick Reds Downhill In Three Tries At Old Baldy

SEOUL—(AP)—Fighting slackened on Old Baldy Hill in Western Korea Saturday after Allied infantrymen stoutly beat off three Chinese Communist assaults on the shell-blasted crest.

Only the deep rumble of artillery disturbed the comparative calm, but there was brisk skirmishing in the predawn darkness elsewhere in the Western sector—northeast of Chorwon.

Only small patrol clashes were reported on the other sectors of the front.

Allied infantrymen regained the top of Old Baldy Thursday after bitter, seesaw fighting. Associated Press correspondent Milo Farneti reported the Chinese made two attempts to storm the hill Friday—both in platoon strength of 40 to 50 men. Ten Chinese tried it again early Saturday and seven were killed.

Aerial activity diminished except for a sweep by U. S. Sabre jets Saturday afternoon and a fighter-bomber strike against small Communist boats off Korea's West Coast.

The U. S. Fifth Air Force reported four boats destroyed and 15 damaged. Sabre jet pilots reported they spotted no MIG's.

Crowded Hiroshima Thrives Seven Years After A-Blast

HIROSHIMA, JAPAN—(AP)—This Southwestern Japanese city—the first populated area to be blasted by an atomic weapon—is getting back on its feet after seven long years, but much remains to be done.

Seven years ago August 6 the city was flattened and burned, with almost half its 343,000 population dead or dying. Today it has more than 300,000 inhabitants and most of its structures have been replaced by new buildings.

Downtown Hiroshima buzzes with business activity. Scores of amusement places draw capacity crowds. The city's people seem to be happy and robust, but most appear to be poor. Many of the new homes and business establishments are only flimsy, jerry-built shacks.

The well-built, imposing new buildings were partly or largely financed by outside funds—including considerable donations from the United States. But the roads and sewage system are in bad shape. The city government cannot afford to fix them.

Hiroshima is in Southwestern Honshu, Japan's main island, and is on the delta of the Ota River. The delta divides the city into six islands, which are connected by 81 bridges.

The increase in population since the closing days of World War II does not mean there is a big demand for manpower. It's a situation common to all Japanese cities. The average Japanese farmer, with only one acre to till, sends his second and third sons or daughters off to the city to seek jobs.

Many people here are Japanese government employes or merchants catering to them.

Communist influence in Hiroshima seems to be minor, despite strong efforts by the Reds to make propaganda out of the atomic attack.

A Communist artist held an exhibit here last year with paintings of "A-bomb atrocities" but only a few people showed up. Those who did go to see it said the paintings did not depict the facts.

Nicolls Notches 19th Win As Tribe Dumps Roswell, 8-1

White Sox Scout Watches Midland's Ace Stop Roswell

The Midland Indians will move back to their home field for a three-game series with the Artesia Drillers Sunday after losing two out of three games on their recent road trip.

They will play a single game against the Drillers, starting at 4 p.m. Sunday with Israel Ten (13-8) scheduled to go on the mound.

Then Monday they will play the Drillers a doubleheader, starting at 7 p.m. One of the games is a make-up of the Artesia game which was postponed Thursday because of wet grounds.

In Saturday night's game, right-hander Keith Nicolls turned in an impressive performance for Chicago White Sox Scout, Hugh Alexander, who was in the stands as he tossed a four-hitter at the helpless Roswell Rockets as the Indians took an 8-1 win.

The Midland win gave them a split with Roswell in their two game series.

Nicolls was in control all the way, weakening momentarily in the [illegible]rth. He fanned seven and walked only four.

Bobby Lemmel bounced a ground rule double over the left field wall and Autie Malone drilled a single through the box for Roswell's lone run in the eighth inning.

The Indians cracked the scoring ice in the third with a four run outburst. Four consecutive singles and Julio de la Torre's inside the park homer on a low line drive sliced to right accounted for the four. There was one on when De la Torre connected for the homer.

The Indians added one in the sixth on singles by Bill Brown and Pat Waters and a Roswell error. Brown's double and Water's third single of the night gave them another in the seventh.

They completed their scoring in the eighth on singles by Cal Barbour and Nicolls, a balk and two Roswell errors, the last of five Rocket miscues in the night.

Rookie Gary Young, who was chased in the fourth, took the loss.

Midland Pony Loop Squad Loses Out In State Tourney

AUSTIN — The Midland Pony League All-Stars started their long trip home Saturday night after being eliminated in the State Pony League Tournament here Friday and Saturday. The Midlanders went down, 3-1, before San Antonio in the first game, then took it on the chin, 4-2, in the second tilt at the hands of Abilene in a consolation battle.

In the first game, played Friday afternoon, the Midland Pony League All-Stars fought a spirited battle before an error on the part of Arthur Meyhew cost them the ball game, allowing the two deciding runs to score.

Lanky Jim Owens, who went all the way in the first tilt, was swatted for a double by the San Antonio leadoff batter, who scored on a single. But after that, Jim really was tight as he struck out eight men along the route.

In the sixth frame, San Antonio placed two runners on base on a single and a walk. The men were sacrificed down for the second out. But Arthur Meyhew, Midland second baseman, fielded an easy grounder which should have been the third out, then threw wild to first base to allow the winning runs to cross the plate.

Wahoo McDaniel slapped out three of Midland's five hits in the first game. Midland's only run in the first game came when McDaniel singled, stole second and came all the way home when the catcher overthrew second on an attempted pickoff play.

In the second contest, Midland fell victim to the one-hit pitching of Abilene Hurler Smith. The Abilene moundsman had a no-hitter going for six innings but in the seventh, Meyhew, the goat of the first game, spoiled his no-hit bid by slapping a single through the box to score Jack Etheredge, who had walked and stole second ahead of him. Midland's only other run came in the third frame when Gary Howard and Robert Williams walked to open the inning. Both runners advanced on an error, and Howard then scored on a long fly by catcher Dennis Patton.

Abilene's first run came in the second inning on a double and a single. They scored the deciding runs in the sixth on a hit, two walks and a Midland error.

San Antonio beat Austin, 5-2, to win the State Tourney and gain the right to enter regional competition at Florence, Ala., Tuesday. The winner of regional play will compete in the Pony League World Series at Washington, Pa.

In a semi-final game it took Austin nine innings to overcome the stubborn Abilene nine.

San Angelo Roars Back To Take 10-6 Win Over Vernon

VERNON —(AP)— Roaring back from a Friday night loss, the San Angelo Colts came to life here Saturday night to thump the Vernon Dusters, 10-6, before 629 fans.

J. B. May took the victory for the Colts, but had to have aid from Clarence Tinkler and Thomas before the ever-threatening Dusters could be quelled.

Jesus Sosa, first of three Duster hurlers, took the loss. Steve Lagomarsino replaced the big Mexican on the hill, but Lefty Wallis turned in the big job for the Dusters. Wallis faced 12 men and fanned six of them. He fanned six of the first eight coming to the plate.

Glen Burns and Tony Guerrero did the trick for the Colts in the second inning. Jake McClain scored on Burn's single and then Guerrero hit a long fly ball to bring in Burns.

Ken Kowalik doubled to score Mart Dooley in the third canto. Then marked up a tally when McClain singled sharply to dead center.

In the top of the fourth inning, Ronnie Dacko was safe on an error by George Hayes, Duster hot corner man, and scored on May's single.

Vernon dented the scoring column in the lower end of the fourth. With one down, George Hayes walked, went to second on John Reimold's single. Both runners scored on Joe Neidson's double to left. Neidson then scored when Lagomarsino forced Art Neal at second.

San Angelo's big inning was the sixth. Cotton Russell led off with a circuit smash. Dacko singled and John Tayoan drew a gratis trip. Kowalik got a single, scoring Dacko and Dooley. Tayoan scored on McClain's single.

Dacko scored Burns in the top of the ninth with a single for the last tally of the night.

Mills Relief Chore Gives Artesia Win

BIG SPRING —(AP)— Superlative relief tossing by Rooster Mills enable the Artesia Drillers to defeat the Big Spring Broncs, 10-5, here Saturday night. The contest was played before about 1,000 paying customers.

Mills came on in the fifth with the bases loaded and yielded a two-bagger to Grimes but was airtight after that.

The Drillers hit Bronc pitching freely, driving out 21 safeties. The game was close until the ninth, however, when the Drillers broke loose with a six-hit offensive that netted four runs.

Paul Halter, with five hits, and Johnny Alonso and Bill Haley, with four each, paced the rugged Artesia attack.

Reggi Corrales started on the mound for the home club but the loss went to Bertie Baes, who came on in relief in the fourth inning.

Rick Gonzales collected three of Big Spring's ten hits.

Playoffs Start Monday In JayCee Softball Loop Here

Playoffs in the Midland JayCee Softball League to determine the city champion will start at 7:45 p.m. Monday at Wadley Park with a twin-bill.

In the first round Monday night, league-leading Standard of Texas will oppose Rendezvous in the opener with Western Plastic scheduled to meet Humble in the nightcap.

At the end of regular season play, Rendezvous and Phillips were tied for fourth place in the league's standings so a playoff was held Saturday night to determine the winner.

The game was won by Rendezvous, 8-3, behind the three-hit hurling of Jack Smith. Rabbit Spears of Phillips was the losing hurler, giving up nine hits in defeat.

Phillip's defeat in the final game cut short a spirited drive for a playoff berth which saw them win eight out of their last 10 games.

Hurling for Standard in the lid-lifter Monday night will be their ace, Milt Montgomery, who has yet to meet defeat this season in registering 11 wins. Rendezvous probably will send Malone (5-4) to the mound to opppose Montgomery.

For Western Plastic in the nightcap, Jack Dunlap (7-2) will toil on the mound while John O'Donohoe (6-2) will toe the rubber for Humble.

A special attraction at Monday's twin bill will be the announcement of the league's all-star team and the most valuable player in the league.

Team managers in the league cast ballots on the all-star squad last week.

U. S. Athletes Pass Russians To Cinch Olympic Team Title

By TED SMITS

HELSINKI —(AP)— United States athletes, their position as the world's best in jeopardy, grabbed 111 points Saturday to hurl back the challenge of the Russians and win the unofficial team title of the 1952 Olympics, 610 to 553 1/2.

Nothing the Russians can do in Sunday's equestrian events, which will bring an end to competition in these games, can alter the outcome.

For 12 days the Soviets, appearing in their first Olympic games, were in the lead. They started Saturday, the second last day, with an edge of 24 1/2 tallies, 523 1/2 to 449.

But the U. S. basketball team, rallying after a slow start, whipped a stubborn, ball-freezing Russian team, 36 to 25, to retain its Olympic title and cut into the margin. Ford Konno shortened it even further by winning the 1,500-meter swim and a trio of Uncle Sam's nieces swept the women's platform diving to pass the Russians.

Saturday night the U. S. boxers won five championships to put the team title beyond the reach of the Russians. That is the most individual ring championships ever won by one country in a single Olympic tourney.

Mrs. Pat McCormick, a blonde California housewife, led the American sweep in diving.

Sunday the great white Olympic flag with the five interlocking circles will be hauled down and the call issued for the youth of the world to reassemble at Melbourne, Australia, in 1956.

Back of the United States and Russia in the team battle came Hungary, always an Olympic power, with 308. Other leaders were: 4. Sweden, 267; 5. Germany, 165 1/2; 6. Finland, 162 1/2; 7. Italy, 158 3/4; 8. France, 146 1/2; 9. Czechoslovakia, 113 1/2; 10. Great Britain, 105.

Ever since Russia piled up a flock of points in men's and women's gymnastics, the United States team had trailed despite its virtual sweep of men's track and field. Here 14 first places were won for a record high.

One of the biggest surprises of the closing moments of these brilliant games was produced by Ford Konno. This tiny Honolulan Saturday swam as he never swam before, and his amazing time of 18:30 set an Olympic record.

The sweep of women's high diving was expected. Mrs. McCormick previously won the platform dive and thus became one of the few doubles champions of the games.

Selle Takes Top Honors In Softball

After leading the JayCee Softball League in batting the last several weeks, Jim Walker of Western Plastic saw the title slip from his grasp here last week when he failed to come to bat enough times to qualify. Bernard Selle of Standard of Texas grabbed it from his reach.

Walker missed the title by the narrowest of margins when he batted only 37 times. Thirty-eight times at bat is the absolute minimum required to claim the honor of top hitter in the league.

Walker compiled a .514 average. Other hitters who failed to qualify were R. T. Stacey of the Shell squad with a .572 mark and Barney Howard of American Legion with a .519 average.

In taking the crown, Selle collected 29 safeties in 59 trips to the plate for a .492 average. Selle also dominated the league in most other departments, getting the most runs with 37, the most hits, 29; most home runs with seven; most doubles with nine, and the most total bases with 61.

The only honor the Standard of Texas star failed to cop was in triples. Bill LaRoche of Rendezvous and Rabbit Spears of Phillips tied for the honor, each collecting nine three-basers.

Far and away the best hurler in the league was Milt Montgomery. He led the loop in strikeouts with 56 and was undefeated in regular season play, posting a victory string of 11 games without a defeat.

Made Sure All Had Shipping Money

LOS ANGELES—(NEA)—At the close of a meeting on a western racing circuit, characters were hanging around the bookkeeper's office, waiting to put the touch on somebody for money "to get to the next town," as horsemen got their checks.

The principal target was a man whose horse had won a stakes worth $3,000 on closing day. He walked in boldly and drew his money.

"Any body got a pair of dice?" he asked. A set was produced. He examined them, put the roll on the table.

"Even money I can make a four the hard way," he said. Hustlers got money out of shoes, hat linings and elsewhere. Tens and twenties, even a few fifties began to appear. The man could have had action for $500.

"Just wanted to make sure everybody had shipping money," he said, picking up his $3,000.

Lamesa Nine Wins

SPORTS NOTES from the BENCH JOCKEY

By BOB ADAMS

With the "For Sale" sign hung up on Pagoda Park, home of the Midland Indians, we've been trying to discover just what steps are being taken to build a new baseball park here.

Actually the property, owned by the City of Midland, has been up for sale since last Spring, even before the season started.

At that time, the Board of Directors of Midland Indians, Inc., met with City Council to discuss the sale of the property.

At that meeting, the council agreed that if the site was sold while the current season was in progress, the purchaser could not claim it until the season was over.

Also at the meeting, the council adopted a resolution stipulating that a certain amount of the sale price of Pagoda Park, to be determined at the discretion of the council, be used toward the purchase of a new site for another baseball layout.

But other than contributing toward the purchase of a new site, council agreed to do nothing except to cooperate in every way they could.

Now, with time running out on the current season and with several persons interested in the purchase of the site, the city is anxious to sell the property.

We've talked to both sides on the matter, city officials and several members of the Board of Directors of Midland Indians, Inc.

The board members with whom we discussed the situation seemed to think that it was the city's duty to take the initial steps, namely, that of purchasing a new site on which to build.

But city officials said it was the other way around.

"We're not in the baseball business," said Morris Howard, assistant city manager, but we're perfectly willing to cooperate in helping to get a new park started here."

And now that the matter of who should make the move to get a new park started is cleared up somewhat, we hope the board of directors will take action.

It will probably take all or most of the Winter to get a field in shape to play on next Spring.

Two sites, both owned by the city, have been discussed as possible locations for the new park. One is the old college campus site in College Heights, and the other is the present site of Wadley Softball Field, north of the city.

Of the two, the college campus site is probably the most desirable from the point of location. Situated just off busy West Highway 80, it would be sure to attract a lot of customers.

However much of the area on the campus site is comprised of a caliche pit where a natural lake was situated many years ago. The city is currently filling in the caliche pit with dirt and it will probably be some time until the dirt could be sufficiently settled.

The Wadley Park site probably would require the least amount of work, and there is sufficient room there for a wide parking lot.

As for a model stadium, the San Angelo layout probably would be the most desirable. However, even that could be improved on.

Regardless of what stadium the field is fashioned after, we hope the directors will take steps to get the ball rolling. We would like to see the Indians start the season off next year on a brand, spanking new field.

Pencil scratches: Stan Coker, all-state tackle on the Midland Bulldogs grid squad last year, is to leave Monday for Fort Worth, where he will go through final training for the North-South football game, the climax to the Texas High School Coaching School. The game will be played Friday night.

Pat Garner, Midland's popular young golfing miss, has returned from Los Angels and has started training here for the USGA Women's National Amateur Tournament. The national will be held at the Waverley Country Club in Portland, Ore.

Horace Busby, business manager of Midland Indians, Inc., announced Saturday that New Iberia of the Evangeline League has recalled Hurler Ed Geraci from the Midland squad.

Tribe Drops Wild Game To Rockets

ROSWELL —(AP)— The Roswell Rockets exploded for 10 runs in the fourth inning here Friday night to pave the way for their easy 15-6 conquest of the Midland Indians.

It was the sad story of bases on balls and more bases on balls for the Indians. The four pitchers they used in the inning, including Manager Jay Haney, gave up a total of eight free passes to the Rockets in the one inning. Two of the walks came with the bases loaded to force in runs.

Roswell got only six hits in the big frame, but one of these was Van Huppert's grand slam homer. The three men on base ahead of him had walked.

Singles by Manuel Temes and Pat O'Keefe, a pair of walks and a Roswell error had given the Indians a quick two run lead in the first inning.

They padded that with two more in the second on singles by Cal Arbour, Earl Bossenberry, Gahlen Dinkel and Temes as they chased Rocket starter Dick Woodworth from the mound.

Andy Alonso then came on to hold them scoreless with a fine relief performance until Scooter Hughes slugged a solo homer in the eighth. Dinkel also got a one run homer for the Indians, his in the ninth.

Roswell picked up a pair of unneeded runs in the seventh and three in the eighth. Stubby Greer's two-run homer was the big blow in the Roswell eighth.

Alonso took credit for the win, his 13th against eight losses this year. Ed Santa, second of the parade of Midland hurlers, was tagged for the loss.

Yank Boxers Glean Victory For Team, Five Gold Medals

HELSINKI — (AP) — A 20-year-Olympic victory drough ended in a golden cascade of first place medals Saturday night as America's inspired boxers swept five championships, beat Russia in the only face-to-face meeting of the two nations in the sport, and won the unofficial team title for the first tme.

Marshall Patton

Patton Tries Turn As Pro On August 20

Heavyweight Marshall Patton of Midland Saturday turned down a chance to box in the State TAAF Boxing Tournament in Fort Worth July 14 and 15 but indicated instead he probably would fight a professional bout in Midland July 20.

The slugging Midland heavy gained the right to enter the state meet by blasting out a split decision over Clyde Wright of Odessa in a district TAAF tourney at Odessa last weekend.

Now the trip to Fort Worth is all off. Patton said: "I can't spare the time away from my job that the Fort Worth trip would require."

Patton's manager, Irish Pat Murphy, who is in charge of the Optimist Club Boy's Work Shop here, said Patton would turn from amateur to professional fighting here on July 20 in a benefit match, tentatively scheduled at Midland Indian Park.

Murphy said he is trying to line up a fight with Bruce Smith of Pecos, a fighter who defeated Patton once previously by a TKO. The fight was called in the first round when an old cut which Pattoh suffered while playing football was opened over his eye.

However, under Murphy's watchful eye, Patton has been training conscientiously and is in superb condition for a return go. Efforts to contact Smith failed Saturday but Murphy said, "Even if we are unable to get Smith to fight, we'll have a professional lined up for Patton.

In matching their perfect five-for-five performance in the semi-finals Friday, Uncle Sam's leather-pushers not only broke the games record for individual victories but also romped off with the silver loving cup given to the outstanding boxer in the tournament.

This went to Norvel Lee, the 27-year-old veteran from Washington, D. C., who won the light heavyweight crowd and drew rave after rave from other boxers, officials, coaches and trainers for being the "perfect Olympic boxer."

Lee, a picture fighter, who boxes in the classic standup style, gracefully maneuvered to a unanimous decision over wild-swinging Antonio Pacenza of Argentina.

The victory parade was touched off by slender Nate Brooks, the 18-year-old flyweight from Cleveland, and carried on by light welterweight Charley Adkins of Gary, Ind., middleweight Floyd Patterson of New York, Lee, and then giant Eddie Sanders of Los Angeles.

Lee won the cup, but Adkins, a 20-year-old National Collegiate A. A. champion from San Jose State, won the sweetest victory of them all. He beat the Russian, game, strong Viktor Medkov, in the bout that gave the U. S. its second individual title of the evening and clinched the team championship.

With five first places, the United States piled up 50 points on a 10-5-4-3 basis. There was no fight-off for third and fourth places and the beaten semifinalists in each division received three and one-half points apiece.

Russia's two finalists both were beaten and the once high rolling Soviet boxing brigade wound up in a tie for second place with little Finland, the host nation, each with 24 points. And Finland had a champion to boast of, its second in the history of the boxing Olympics.

Rugged Pentti Hamalainen sent Finland's colors fluttering up the center victory pole when he outpointed lanky John McNally of Ireland for the bantamweight prize.

The American boxers thought it would be up to them to clinch the team championship for the entire Olympics. But that was taken care of earlier in the day.

So it was up to Adkins to take care of the Russians.

"I'll do it or they'll have to carry me out," said the grim-faced negro.

All five American winners are negroes.

The 20-year-old father of one child entered the ring with a patch over and under his left eye to protect cuts. The Russian had two heavy patches over his eyes. He had big gashes requiring seven stitches over the right eye and six over the left one.

Charley took the fight right to the usually aggressive Russian. He ripped left hooks to the head to win the first round by an edge and knock the patch off Medkov's left eye. In the second Adkins hammered the Russian all over the ring. He kept it up in the third and made the Russian hold on. Twice the sturdy Soviet was staggered and the blood flowed from his cuts.

Children See Aged Kin Fatally Stabbed

LLANO, Tex.—(AP)—Two small children watched their great-grandfather fatally stab their grandfather here Saturday night, Sheriff L. B. Turbiville reported.

The sheriff said the youngsters, a girl, six, and a boy, four, were the only witnesses when their grandfather, Sam Hoben, about 65, was stabbed at the family home. The children's names weren't known immediately.

Hoben died after attempted murder charges were filed against his father-in-law, Andy Broome, 83. Sheriff Turbiville said the charges would be changed Sunday to murder.

Turbiville said Hoben was stabbed after a family argument between the two old-age pensioners.

Nine Are Killed As Auto, Truck Collide In Utah

MIDVALE, UTAH — (AP) — Four adults and five children, all believed to be members of one family, were killed Saturday in a collision of a car and a sand-laden truck.

In the worst passenger car accident in Utah history, the vehicles smashed together at a street intersection. The auto was "folded like an accordion," police said.

The owner of the automobile was listed as John Imada, 67, of West Jordan. At Salt Lake County Hospital the dead were said to include the husband and wife, an elderly woman, an adult girl and four small boys. No names were given.

A fifth child died later.

that she wanted no part of those sentiments and that she was wholeheartedly behind Bezoni.

A few minutes later, Mrs. Jarrett was named permanent secretary after the convention, overriding the Precinct 1 protest, elected Bezoni permanent chairman.

Then came the squabble over the delegates as Petty, chairman of the nominations committee, included the name of Weaver Moore, former state senator from Houston, in the list of Midland County delegates to the state convention in Amarillo.

Bezoni explained that Moore was named in the list at the request of Governor Allan Shivers. He said Moore would not be named from Harris County and that the governor needed him to work on the floor at the state meeting.

"I am utterly opposed to that," shouted Robert Payne, "and I think it is an insult. We have just as good men here in West Texas as they have in Houston."

For 30 minutes the debate raged. Richard Brooks urged the approval of Moore as a favor to the governor since "we must present a solid front for the things the governor is fighting for."

The convention finally voted, 15-11, to include Moore's name in the list of delegates.

Other delegates include Mrs. William Y. Penn, Chiles, Bill Moss, Kelly Bell, W. A. Yeager, Tom Sealy, L. N. McMath, Curtis P. Rogers, Bezoni, J. C. Franklin, Petty, Roberts, R. W. (Bob) Hamilton, Reagan Legg, Mrs. Susie Noble, D. W. McDonald, Mrs. D. W. McDonald, Hulon Brown and Payne.

Then came the debate over the resolutions, presented by Chiles as chairman of the resolutions committee.

The first one, a routine memo declaring the delegates would go uninstructed and vote as a unit, was passed quietly.

Tidelands Resolution

The second, calling on Stevenson and Sparkman to state clearly their position on the Tidelands, finally passed, too, after Boyd Laughlin objected on the grounds that they "already have taken their stand against the return of the Tidelands."

The third resolution involved the Democratic nominees for county offices and whether they should permit their names to be used on the Republican ticket.

After lengthy discussion, the convention finally adopted the resolution requesting that Democratic nominees named in last Saturday's primary election ask that their names be withdrawn from the Republican ticket.

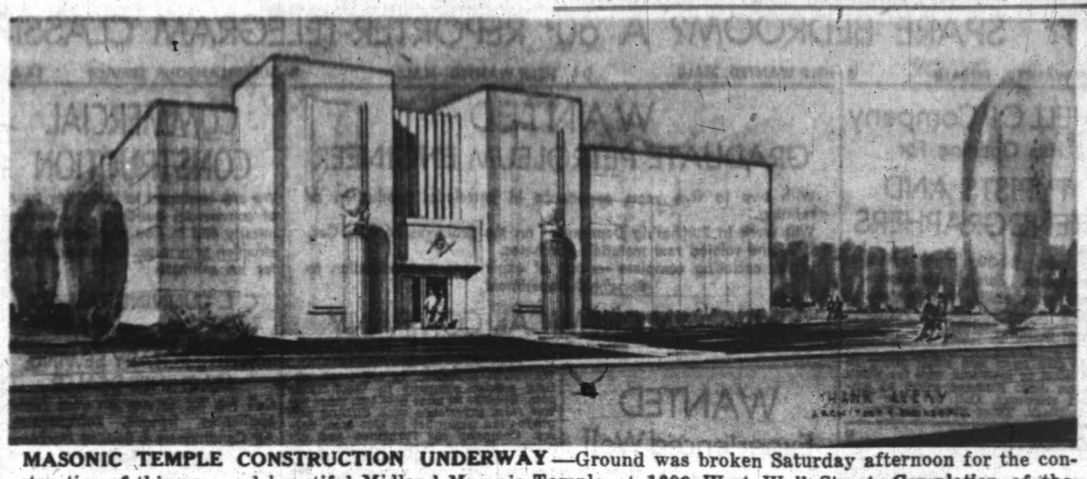

Other resolutions submitted from the floor included one calling for a preferential presidential primary in Texas, and one calling for a re-examination of the 1951 election code to correct inequities.

One submitted by Laughlin, asking that delegates do all in their power at the Amarillo convention to have General Eisenhower's name placed on the Democratic ticket, was defeated quickly.

Then came a resolution that delegates support all party nominees up to the level of state offices.

One delegate quietly asked that it be amended to include the Democratic presidential and vice presidential nominees.

The amendments was defeated overwhelmingly.

MASONIC TEMPLE CONSTRUCTION UNDERWAY—Ground was broken Saturday afternoon for the construction of this new and beautiful Midland Masonic Temple at 1600 West Wall Street. Completion of the edifice is scheduled in February of next year. Houston Hill of Midland has the general construction contract for the two-story, cut-stone masonry building, which will be equipped with lodge rooms, banquet rooms, offices, kitchen, rest rooms, and storage and practice rooms. Building plans call for no windows. The temple will be set back upon the property to permit attractive landscaping.

Ground Broken By Masons For New Midland Temple

"Today is a hot day so far as the atmosphere is concerned, but it is no warmer than the warmth in our hearts to break the ground for our new Masonic Temple," Charles L. Klapproth of Midland, grand orator of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Texas, said Saturday afternoon.

Klapproth, principal speaker for the ground-breaking ceremony at the site of the new $190,474 temple at 1600 West Wall Street, pointed out that the former temple, erected in 1909, had given almost a half-century of service.

"The new edifice will be more adequate and in line with the work of Midland Lodge No. 623, AF&AM," Klapproth said.

The speaker said the new building would be only a meeting place, as the great moral edifice in each Mason's heart was the thing that counted.

"Many beautiful characters should emerge from the new, beautiful surroundings to be constructed," Klapproth said.

"Existing back in the ages, Masonry supplements the work of the Christian religion, and a Mason does his best to serve his fellow man and God," he said.

"Let us realize the greatest edifice is the spiritual edifice on High."

The first spade of dirt for the new structure was turned by George F. Vannaman, worshipful master of the Midland lodge.

Before applying the spade to the dirt, Vannaman said, "May I ever be worthy of this honor."

Rev. J. B. McReynolds gave the invocation and benediction.

Actual construction will get underway Monday with completion of the two-story structure slated in February, 1953. Houston Hill of Midland is the general contractor.

Chairman of the lodge's building committee, which has been working more than three years on the project, is R. B. Cowden. Hank Avery is the committee secretary and project architect.

The ceremony, held at 4:30 p.m. was attended by approximately 75 Masons and guests.

Texas Democrats Set Voting Record

DALLAS—(AP)—Another record apparently was established Saturday as the Texas Election Bureau released its final report on last Saturday's Democratic primary.

The new mark was set by Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey of San Augustine, who won reelection, 1,019,927 to 210,352, over Frank Hessbrook Morales, Austin funeral director.

It was believed to be the first time an opposed candidate for state office in a first Texas Democratic primary election had polled more than a million votes.

Ramsey, 48, East Texas lawyer, is known for his dry wit and for the restrictions on labor unions he sponsored in both the Texas House of Representatives and State Senate. Morales did not make an active campaign.

The Election Bureau's final report included a complete count from all but three of the State's 254 counties. It boosted still higher the new record vote for a Texas primary—the 1,352,293 ballots cast in the governor's race. Gov. Allan Shivers got 829,829, or 61.36 per cent of the total. Ralph Yarborough of Austin polled 485,652, or 35.91 per cent, and Mrs. Allen Traylor, San Antonio housewife, polled 36,812.

The 1,352,293-vote total is almost 150,000 higher than the previous record—the 1,205,257 cast in 1948 when Beauford Jester defeated Roger Evans for governor, 642,025 to 279,602, with six other candidates trailing.

More than half the qualified voters of Texas took part in the Democratic primary. A record 2,337,618 had paid poll taxes or obtained exemption certificates for 1952.

The State Democratic Executive Committee will meet in Austin August 11 to make the official canvass.

BATTLE IN BURMA

RANGOON, BURMA—(AP)— Government forces Saturday were locked in battle with 3,000 rebel Karen tribesmen and Communists 20 miles southwest of the Irrawaddy River delta rice port of Bassein.

Critical Sewerage Situation Reported Easing In Midland

Midland's critical sewage situation was reported easing somewhat late Saturday.

But city officials were reluctant to say whether it was due to fewer baths or to increasing use of the city's new sewage treatment plant southeast of the city.

"The sewage has quit overflowing on the Magnolia tank farm," reported Henry E. Nunn, city sewage and water engineer, "and here in the city it's not nearly as bad as it has been."

The City Council Thursday afternoon urged Midland residents to take fewer baths in an effort to lighten the load flowing into the city's overburdened sewage lines.

Nunn said increasing amounts of water are being diverted to the new sewage plant, which began operation last week.

Meanwhile work was being rushed on an interceptor sewer line which will relieve the overloaded condition of the city's present lines.

University Of Texas Trains Sights On Condition Of Beloved Clyde Littlefield

AUSTIN—(AP)—They eyed all reports from Helsinki anxiously Saturday out at the University of Texas.

Their beloved Clyde Littlefield, "Mr. Track" in the Southwest, was fighting against a bleeding stomach ulcer.

The man who was one of the greatest athletes the University ever produced, then compiled a fabulous record as a coach—was stricken while at the Olympic Games, where he was one of the coaches of the American track and field team.

It isn't the first time for the big fellow, the first great passer in Southwestern football and a trackman who set all sorts of records and lost but one race, to be down but not out.

Several years ago Littlefield put on a winning fight against pneumonia. He won when most everybody had despaired of his life.

It is but natural that his followers expect him to win this battle, too. He's a tough man, a battler from away back yonder.

Littlefield not only was a great hurdler in track but he was All-Southwest Conference in football and basketball. And he was a fine baseball player, although he never put much time in on the diamond game at the University. It would have interfered with his track.

He became a high school coach upon graduating at Texas but returned to his alma mater soon to start a great coaching career. He once was varsity football coach at the University and won two Southwest Conference championships in a period of seven years.

But his track teams won him the most fame. He produced some of the greatest names in cinder path history and won more conference championships than any other coach.

Littlefield played halfback on the football team from 1912 to 1915. He was a long and accurate passer. He could pass a football farther and truer than he could kick it and in the days when the rules allowed it, used the pass instead of a punt.

Littlefield founded the colorful Texas Relays, one of the major track and field meets of the country.

AILING COACH IS IMPROVING

HELSINKI—(AP)—Clyde Littlefield, United States Olympic assistant track coach, was reported "much improved" Saturday after a series of blood transfusions for a bleeding stomach ulcer.

Dr. Harry McPhee, U. S. Olympic team physician, said the University of Texas coach was reacting well now to the transfusions.

He said Littlefield, who was stricken Wednesday, probably will be confined to the military hospital about two weeks.

"We are trying to build him up so he can either undergo an operation or can be moved back to the United States," Dr. McPhee said.

Texas Schools To Continue Surplus Food Lunch Program

DALLAS—(AP)—More than 500 Texas schools will continue to get surplus foods for their school lunch programs this fall.

State Welfare Director John S. Winters announced at a meeting of the State Legislative Budget Board Saturday that his agency agreed to take control of distribution of the foods until the state legislature can act on the matter in January.

It had been feared that Texas would lose about one million dollars in hams, bacon, honey and dried milk set for September distribution.

County School Superintendents Roy Boyd of Lubbock and T. J. Wilroy of Lufkin explained the problem to the budget board. They said the U. S. Agriculture Department cancelled contracts with 17 county and independent school boards that had been distributing the surplus foods for several years.

USDA insisted that Texas, like 46 other states, set up a central state agency to be responsible for distribution of the foods.

Wilroy told the board these supplies would go to another state unless the USDA demands were met.

Boyd said the demand for a central agency developed after New York state, with a distribution set-up similar to Texas, had a $100,000 shortage of foods and USDA had no recourse.

Winters, in an answer to a question by Reps. James Lindsay of Texarkana, said he would sign contracts with each of the 17 school districts, which would continue to distribute foods in their areas. An audit of the program, Winters added, would be set up by State Commissioner of Education J. W. Edgar.

Solution of the problem required no action from the budget board but was worked out before it so the board could report needs to the state legislature.

C. E. Johnsons Talk With Soldier-Son Across Pacific

Friday night was a very special occasion for Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Johnson, 1205 South Baird Street.

They talked over long distance-trans-oceanic telephone with their son, Joe Johnson, in Tokyo, Japan.

"Hello Son," "Hello Mom," and "Hello Dad," were the greetings which started off the six-minute conversation between the parents in Midland and the soldier son in far-away Japan.

Joe told his parents he is getting along fine, but is "ready to come home." He has been in the Far East 11 months, five months of which were spent in Korea with a tank battalion.

Mrs. Johnson placed the call last Sunday, but it was not until 7:35 p.m. Friday that is was completed. It then was 11:35 a.m. Saturday in Japan, and Joe said he was getting ready for "chow."

C. E. Johnson is pressroom foreman for The Reporter-Telegram, and Joe, a Midland High School graduate, formerly worked for the newspaper.

"It was well-worth the cost to hear Joe's voice again," Mr. and Mrs. Johnson commented after hanging up the receiver.

Red Cross Requests Impartial Hearings On Germ Warfare

TORONTO—(AP)—An impartial investigation of Communist charges that the United Nations have resorted to germ warfare in Korea was asked Saturday by the Red Cross.

A resolution adopted at the 18th International Red Cross Conference here asked "the governments concerned to submit those charges to investigation on a commonly agreed basis."

REPORTING THE TOP NEWS IN REAL ESTATE

EVEN IF YOU HAD A MILLION you could not prefer another home to this one. With its 3 bedrooms, den, and 2 baths, it offers you the utmost in beauty, graciousness, and ease of relaxed living. It rambles for 78 feet across the front of the large lot with a front porch which is about 45 feet in length. For separate entertaining, there is the very spacious living room with a wood burning fireplace—and sport-shirt entertaining in the den (also with a fireplace, paneling, and cork floor). Two-car completely finished garage, utility room, storage rooms, and loads of closets throughout the house. Central heating and air-conditioning, and all the other desirable features which go to make up your ideal home. Priced under $35,000.

GOT A TOT with a surplus of adrenalin? Let him play in the indestructable den of this home, which also has two bedrooms. The den is located off the living room, and is three steps sunken. Good closet space, newly re-decorated interior, and nice kitchen. Furnace heating, carpeting in the living room and hallway. Here is a home that is definitely worth your time and consideration. ONLY $9,900. We can arrange for a down payment of only $2,500.

WITH PLEASANT SURROUNDINGS and attractive homes in a well settled section . . . and where the dust flies least. Two large bedrooms (one is over-sized), and a 16x24 living room with picture window overlooking the rear yard. Lovely antiseptic-appearing kitchen with built-in breakfast table and washer connection. Small rear porch, attached garage which can be converted into a well-located den, furnace heating, and air-conditioning unit. Fenced yard, nice lawn and landscaping in front and rear. This one, you will really like. It's on Kentucky; it's 5 years old, and it's priced at a most reasonable $13,000.

THEY'VE GONE TO YANKEE-LAND and left us a really cute home located in the western section of town. It's solidly constructed, and consists of 2 very nice-sized bedrooms, a 20 foot living room and large kitchen with dining area. Single attached garage which can be used as a winter playroom for the kids. Part of the rear yard is fenced, and most of it is landscaped. Furnace heating, air-conditioning unit, insulated attic, and good closet space. It is only 2 years old. This home can be handled for only $1,800 down—and the full price is $8,250.

HAVEN'T YOU WONDERED how other people have more money than you? Surely. It's all a matter of wise investing. They've put their capital to work for them—and if it is extra income you want, here is a practical way of obtaining it. First you call us. Then we show you a duplex which will rent for $230 per month which you purchase. You make monthly payments of only $78 per month, and you pocket the rest. It's as simple as that. How much CASH do you need? We could arrange a down payment of only $3,650. The duplex is brand new, with 2 bedrooms on each side, garages, and low FHA financing. Here is an opportunity of earning money without working—the ideal set-up. Call us for the details.

PRICED DOWN TO EARTH although it is a heavenly house. Located on West Michigan, it has 3 bedrooms, tile bath, tiled kitchen, and adaptable living room and dining combination. It has the ideal floor-plan in that you don't have to go through the living room in order to get to the remainder of the house. The attached garage is completely finished and painted inside, and what a play-room for the young citizens when it gets wintry! Of course, it's new, and it's brick (cream velour). Central heating, ducted for air-conditioning, completely and richly carpeted, washer connection, huge lot. ONLY $15,500.

WANTA START SOME'IN? In the way of a business, that is. What about a well established welding plant fully equipped? Does an automatic laundry interest you? There's a steam laundry that needs a buyer. Factory sites, warehouse lots, business and residential lots, available. Rankin Hiway, Andrews Hiway, West Hiway 80. You name it—and we've probably got it.

ONE WAY TO FINANCIAL SECURITY is by the purchase of a home which saves you the huge monthly rents. For ONLY $1,500 down, you could own this gem of a home located only nine blocks north of town. 2-bedroom Johns-Manville asbestos siding home (never needing painting), lovely living room, and colorful kitchen. Three years old. Lawn, small trees, and paved street. Full price is a low $6,900.

MAGNIFICENCE AND RELAXATION—These two objects, so difficult to attain in a world cluttered with commerce and confusion, are offered with constancy in this white chipped brick home. Set far back from the wide, paved street, on a green carpet-like lawn, it is a beautiful sight, indeed. Three bedrooms, cool living room and dining room, 2 ceramic tile baths. It has loads of wonderfully large closets and storage rooms, and 2 carports. Central heating, attic ventilation, Disposall unit, softly carpeted, and washer connection. High tile fence offers private outdoor living and dining, trees, and expensive landscaping. ONLY $26,500. Please, by appointment only.

AND IT'S COMPLETELY FURNISHED with new, modern furniture. The home is almost brand new, and never been scratched. Two bedrooms, large living room, and delightful kitchen. It has 2 panel ray units for your distributed heating, and an air conditioner for your Summer comfort. You can move in immediately if you like (just give owner time to get his tooth brush.) Located in TOWN WEST. FULL PRICE IS $7,999.

8 MINUTES FROM DOWN TOWN. In a highly restricted area, owner regretfully must dispose of his home. The homes are wide spaced, and this lot is 128x171, and is completely privatized by tile fence in front and rear. Three large bedrooms, gracious living room, full dining room, and front and rear porches. Huge 2-car garage, water well, central heating and cooling. You'll love the beautiful pecan floors. We have pictures of this home in our office. Going "HOME" to this one will really mean something. $22,500.

OWNING YOUR HOME in Midland is much more than merely owning a piece of Texas real estate. It is an accomplishment, a pride, a financial saving, and a wise investment. And a compact home is a good start. Just for size, try this new, 2 bedroom, asbestos siding home, located west of town. Attached carport and storage room. Close to everything. $6,900.

DRIVE BY 312 EAST MAPLE if you prefer your home slightly modernistic. Two bedrooms, attached carport and storage room, large living room and compact kitchen and dining area. Central LENNOX heating, draperies and curtains, large bookcases. And the monthly payments on this GI financed home are only $61. It is 2 years old—long enough to prove its construction.

LET US SHOW YOU that it is possible to purchase a home which is located close in—on Ohio, and at a reasonable down payment. Two big bedrooms (one is 15 feet and the other is 18 feet in length), 16x21 living room, airy kitchen with separate breakfast room, breezeway, and attached garage. Large rear patio, lawns in front and rear, completely fenced. This home is located on a large corner lot and both streets are paved and paid for. But there are other features that you must see. $11,750.

LOVELY TO LOOK AT . . . and wonderful to own. If you prefer master craftsmanship in construction, this 3-bedroom, Burgandy-blend brick home should be given all priority. Expandable living room, dining area, and a dream kitchen (tile wainscoating, lots of cabinets). The 2-car attached garage is completely finished and easily converts into a huge den. Central heating, ducted for air-conditioning, luxuriously carpeted throughout in sand tones, washer connection, and large corner lot. It's on West Louisiana. ONLY $14,500.

BUSINESS LOTS—150x75, Hiway 80, near Ranch House. 120x466, Rankin Hiway, close in. 50x140, Hiway 80, near Ranch House. 140x100, near new Fedway Stores site. And others. Just call us.

Albaugh Contracts To Drill Five More Matador Tests

Ray A. Albaugh, Midland independent oil operator who early in 1952 entered into a contract with The Superior Oil Company to drill three wildcat oil explorations on the 4,480 acre Matador Land & Cattle Comapny Alamocitis Ranch in Oldham County, has made a new deal with Superior which calls for the possible drilling of five additional prospectors on that big spread of acreage.

Albaugh has already drilled one of the wildcats which was called for under the original contract; executed early this year.

That project was his No. 1 Matador Land & Cattle Company. It drilled to a bottom of 4,915 feet in granite without finding any shows of oil or gas. It has been abandoned.

Two More To Go

He still has two more wildcats to drill on the property before the end of 1952.

Albaugh says those tests will be drilled. He has not yet selected the locations for either No. 2 or No. 3 Matador—but expects to do so within the next 30 days.

He reports that an interesting feature was developed in the drilling of his No. 1 Matador. That failure found the granite at 4,320 feet, which is on a datum of minus 448 feet.

Superior No. 3 Matador, a dry hole two and one-quarter miles southwest of the Albaugh failure found the top of granite at 5,499 feet, which is on a datum of minus 1,638 feet.

An Extra High Market

According to some correlations the Albaugh No. 1 Matador found the granite at a sub-sea point which was 1,190 feet higher than that at which the Superior No. 3 Matador found the same formation.

Location of Albaugh's No. 1 Matador was 1,980 feet from north and 4,620 feet from east lines of league 291, State Capitol Lands. The Superior No. 3 Matador was in league 331, abstract 1-2567, State Capitol Lands.

Superior has held the oil and gas lease on the 400,000-acre portion of the Matador Alamocitis Ranch in Oldham County since December, 1950.

No Shows Reported

That concern has done a large amount of exploratory work on the property, including the drilling of several wildcats to the granite. None of those projects have been credited with having found any shows of oil or gas.

Under the terms of Albaugh's first contract with Superior he was to drill three wildcats at sites of his own selection on the Oldham County part of the Alamocitis Ranch during 1952.

He says he is going to fulfill that contract with Superior which calls for him to drill five additional granite wildcats on the Matador property during 1953.

He Pays Expenses

He is to pay for all expense of drilling the wells if they are dry. If any one of them is completed as a producer of oil and gas Superior has the option of taking it over and repaying Albaugh for the cost of drilling the well.

In the event production is developed, Albaugh is to share with Superior in the returns from the production on an unreported overriding basis.

Under the terms of the new contract between Albaugh and Superior he must drill two more wildcats on the Matador property before the end of 1952—if he is to have the right to drill any one or all of the five projects during 1953 which are provided for by one new contract.

Plant To Handle Borden, Howard Gas Being Built

Two oil and gas fields on the line of Howard and Borden Counties and two in Borden County, all producing from the Pennsylvanian, will have an outlet for their gas probably by January 1.

Reef Fields Gasoline Corporation of Houston, of which J. R. Butler is president, and Skelly Oil Company of Tulsa are building a gasoline plant in northeastern Howard County with a capacity of 35 million cubic feet of gas daily, it was learned Saturday. Reef Fields will be the operator.

The gas will come from the Vealmoor and East Vealmoor fields of Howard and Borden Counties, the Reinecke field in Borden County and the Good field in Borden County. From it appfoximately 200,000 gallons of natural gasoline, propane and butane will be extracted daily.

The plant will be about 17 miles north-northeast of Big Spring.

A pipeline will be laid from the plant about three miles west to deliver gas to the El Paso Natural Gas Company's pipeline. Three parallel lines will be laid from the plant south to an undesignated point on the Texas & Pacific railroad for shipment of natural gasoline, propane and butane in tank cars.

The gathering system in the Good and Vealmoor fields is about completed. Pipe is being wrapped and coated at Coahoma for the gathering systems in the East Vealmoor and Reinecke fields.

Contractors include the Delta Engineering Corporation of Houston on the gasoline plant, Groninger & King of Pampa on the compressor stations in each of the four fields, Holder Construction Company of Snyder on the gas products pipelines, and United Pipe Protection Company of Snyder on the pipe lines.

Show Drop In PB Rotary Rigs Again

Repercussions of the recent steel strike in Permian Basin rotary drilling activity have resulted in a sharp drop in number of rigs operating.

The 534 units counted by Reed Roller Bit Comapny in its semi-monthly survey, ended July 25, was lowest in the Permian Basin since early 1950.

The Spraberry Trend areas, where approximately one-third of the rotaries have been in use during the past year, showed only 87 on the last count as compared to 120 on the previous survey July 10.

Lea Up

Operations in Lea County was still enjoying flush activity in spite of the strike. That area gained four rigs for a total of 123. Lea's lowest count in several months was recorded on the July 10 survey. At that time there were 119 rigs drilling.

Midland, Upton, Reagan and Glasscock Counties, most active in the Spraberry Trend, continue to lose ground. On the July 25 tally, Midland showed a loss of 22 from 54, Upton lost 11 from 72, Reagan dropped from 44 to 42 and Glasscock lost one to 15.

On July 10 there were 596 rotaries turning as compared to the 534 two weeks later. One year ago there were 632 rigs going.

Coke Strawn Sand Opener Is Completed

Southwest Natural Gas Company (formerly Laan-Tex Oil Company) No. 1 Russ Mathers, has been completed as a discovery from the Strawn sand in Northwest Coke County, three-quarters mile northwest of the Jameson field.

It reported a 24-hour potential flow of 688 barrels of 41.4-gravity oil from the Strawn sand through a 3/8-inch choke. Production was through perforations at 6,031-47 feet and at 6,069-98 feet. Gas-oil ratio was 800-1. It made no water.

Five and one-half-inch casing is cemented at 6,431 feet. Total depth is 6,451 feet, corrected from 6,483 feet as had previously been reported through error.

Operator will now test in the open hole section from 6,431 to 6,451 feet and try to complete as a dual producer from a Strawn lime. That zone had good shows of production on a drillstem test before casing was set.

Location is 330 feet from south and east lines of the north half of the south half of Winfred Scott survey No. 8, abstract 635.

Conoco Operates For Four Years Without Accident Fatalities

PONCA CITY, OKLA.—Continental Oil Company last week marked four years without a fatal accident, and, at the same time, company refineries located at Lake Charles, La., and Glenrock, Wyo., completed five years without a lost-time accident, according to announcement by J. S. Boylan, director of Continental's safety division.

Boylan also reported that Conoco's refinery at Wichita Falls, recently recorded one year without a lost-time accident.

"We are especially proud of this record of four years without a fatality," said Boylan, "because the year 1945 was the only fatality-free year in our safety history prior to the start of the present four-year record in 1948."

A pioneer in accident prevention week, Continental has won 37 annual National Safety Council awards since entering the organization's contests. In 1951 its manufacturing and marketing departments were judged the safest in the petroleum industry in competition with as many as 43 other oil firms.

Tex-Harvey Employes Incorporated has filed application with the Railroad Commission of Texas asking for discovery allowable rights for its No. 1 Chappell and others, Mississippian detrital discovery in Northeast Sterling County.

Operator turned in a daily flowing potential of 98.51 barrels of 46.5-gravity oil. That flow was gauged on 24/64-inch choke and from perforations at 7,674-84 feet.

Pay was topped at 7,674 feet, elevation 2,287 feet.

The detrital had been treated with 2,000 gallons of regular acid.

Hole is bottomed at 7,760 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of section 43, block 18, SP survey and 18-miles north and slightly east of Sterling City.

Thompson, Murray Not Alarmed By Rate Of Oil Use

AUSTIN —(AP)— Two members of the Railroad Commission of Texas who help look after Texas' share of the nation's oil supply think there's no cause for alarm in figures showing we used oil last year faster than we discovered it.

The figures were reported by World Oil, and industry publication, in its current issue devoted to a world wide survey of oil activity in 1951.

The journal said that production outpaced discovery of reserves to such an extent that if no new oil were discovered, U. S. reserves would supply requirements at the 1951 rate for only 11.7 years. In 1950 the figure was 13.3 years.

"Mathematical bunk," said Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson.

Blast Short Fears

Neither Thompson nor Commissioner William J. (Bill) Murray were willing, even for the sake of a figure, to suppose, as World Oil did, that no more oil would be discovered.

Even, so; they reasoned, there were other dangers in the statistics.

"Estimated field reserves are revised each year, usually upward," Murray noted. "It takes years to find out just how much oil a field can be expected to produce; so any figure reported in the first year of a field's existences is not likey to be the correct figure. Even now, we don't know how much production we can expect from the Spraberry discovery."

Thompson pointed to the ever increasing rate or recovery, many fields now producing 50 to 60 per cent of the reservoir potential, compared to 10 to 20 per cent 20 years ago. He anticipated the rate would go even higher in years to come.

Techniques Improve

"We are constantly learning better ways to get more of that oil. We are also constantly learning how to squeeze more gasoline out of a barrel of oil, and I'm hopeful we'll soon learn how to squeeze more miles out of a gallon of gasoline," he said.

But both Thompson and Murray insisted that discoveries are not about to be at an end.

"The more oil we use, the harder we'll look for more," Thompson said.

Murray noted also that one major discovery could offset several years of falling statistics.

Harder To Find

He conceded, however, that hunting oil is like hunting Easter eggs. "The more you find, the harder it is to find the rest," he said. "We also know there's only so much to be found. But no one knows how much of it we've already found and how much we have yet to find."

20 Year Record Cited

World Oil said U. S. reserves rose from 26,217,724,000 barrels in 1950 to 26,308,610,000 barrels in 1951.

But along with the slight increase in reserves went a greater increase in producing rate. Production in the same period rose from 1,971,845,000 barrels to 2,244,404,000 barrels—52.51 per cent of the world's yield. At that rate and without the discovery of new oil, the public said, the U. S. had a ratio of reserves to production of only 11.7.

"Twenty years ago we were told we had only enough oil to last 21 years, but after we've produced billions of barrels of oil we still have more oil than we ever had before," Thompson said.

Wildcat In C-N Sterling Gets Oil Flow

Austral Oil Exploration Company, Inc., of Houston No. 1 Ellwood Estate, wildcat in Central-North Sterling County, flowed oil on a straddle drillstem test in the Mississippian.

Interval tested was from 8,074 to 8,095 feet. Tool was open nine hours and 35 minutes. Gas surfaced in five minutes and oil in two hours and 50 minutes. It flowed to pits to clean 50 minutes and then was turned to tanks.

It flowed oil through a one-half-inch choke at the rate of five barrels hourly and through a three-quarters-inch choke at the rate of 11 barrels hourly.

In four and three-quarters hours of flowing it made 30.36 barrels. There was no water.

Drillpipe unloaded recovery. Gravity of the oil was estimated to be 40 degrees.

Operator was to cement five and one-half-inch casing on bottom at 8,157 feet in the Ellenburger. Operator will perforate and test opposite the Mississippian.

Location is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 78, block 18, SP survey. It is 13 miles north and slightly west of Sterling City.

NGAA Convention For 1953 To Be Held In Houston

The thirty-second annual convention of the Natural Gasoline Association of America will be held April 29-May 1, 1953, in the Rice Hotel, Houston, according to a recent announcement from NGAA Tulsa headquarters.

Plans for three regional meetings are now complete with the following dates: Blackstone Hotel, Tyler, October 24; Herring Hotel, Amarillo, November 21, and Hotel Scharbauer, Midland, Feb. 27, 1953.

Clarkson Added To 'Paleo Lab' Staff

W. G. Clarkson, Jr., well-known Midland geologist, has joined the staff of the Paleontological Laboratory of Midland.

He resigned a position on the staff of The Ohio Oil Company's Permian Basin district geological department in this city to take the new job.

In Midland 12 Years

Clarkson had been employed by Ohio for 14 years. The last 12 years of the work had been in Midland.

R. V. (Dick) Hollingsworth is owner and operator of the Paleontological Laboratory. That service organization for the petroleum industry now has 10 persons on its staff—in addition to the owner.

University May Hold Lease Sale

The Board for Lease of the University Lands is considering holding an auction sale of oil and gas leases on University Lands during late November and early December of this year.

Persons desiring an opportunity to bid on leases on University Lands should send a list of such acreage to Bertie R. Haigh, University Lands, P. O. Box 1663, Midland, by September 20.

Pure Wildcat In NE Schleicher Is In Ellenburger

The Pure Oil Company No. 1 Mrs. R. S. Williams, wildcat in Northwest Schleicher County, was drilling below 7,545 feet in Ellenburger dolomite.

That formation was topped at 7,470 feet, elevation 2,440 feet.

No shows have been found in the Ellenburger so far.

Location is in the center of the southeast quarter of the southwest quarter of section 32, block TT, TC survey and 15 miles northwest of Elodrado. It is five miles south and slightly west of the Tankersley (Clear Fork) field.

Shallow Wildcat To Start At Once In West El Paso

W. G. Wilmouth of El Paso has spotted location for a shallow wildcat in West El Paso County.

It will be drilled as No. 1 A&W, 2,212 feet from east and 2,300 feet from south lines of section 6, block 1, psl survey and on an 80-acre lease. It is 34 miles north of El Paso.

Operations are to start at once.

Stanolind Finds No Ellenburger Shows In SW Martin Test

Stanolind Oil & Gas Company No. 1 Cowden, Southwest Martin County wildcat, nine miles northwest of the city of Midland failed to find any shows of oil, gas or water in a drillstem test in the top of the Ellenburger.

The test was at 13,090-135 feet. The tool was open two hours. Recovery was 30 feet of drilling mud, with no shows of oil, gas or water.

All pressures were zero. Operator plans to drill 25 to 30 feet deeper and then run another test.

Ellenburger Topped

Top of the Ellenburger was at 13,108 feet. Elevation is 2,896 feet.

Location is 660 feet from south and east lines of the southwest quarter of section 30, block 40, T-1-N, T&P survey.

The wildcat is 30 miles west of Stanton.

It has not found any shows which could be developed for commercial production in any zone it has drilled through, according to interested observers.

Slight Shows

There were some slight shows of oil and gas in the Spraberry and in the Dean, but those shows were not of any appreciable amount.

Stanolind No. 1 Marion Flynt, in Central-West Martin County, 28 miles north of Midland and 24 miles northwest of Stanton had reached 11,495 feet in lower Pennsylvanian lime and shale and was making more hole.

To Dig Deeper

It has not logged any possibilities of production in any zone it has penetrated.

This prospector is slated to dig to 14,500 feet to test the Ellenburger.

Location is 660 feet from south and west lines of labor 12, league 258, Hartley County School Land survey.

Good Oil Flow Reported From Dawson Field Test

El Tee Oil Company No. 1-95 Classen, project in the Mungerville (Pennsylvanian) field of Northwest Dawson County, was assured as a good producer after pay had been treated with 200 gallons of regular acid.

After the acid treatment, operator pulled the swab one time. It kicked off and flowed out acid residue and load and then flowed at the rate of more than 50 barrels of oil hourly for seven hours through a 7/16-inch tubing choke.

Production was through perforations at 8,620-30 feet.

Available storage tanks are full. Operator has shutin to move off the oil already produced. The above gauge might be turned in as the potential test for the well.

Location is 660 feet from north and east lines of the southwest quarter of section 95, block M, EL-&RR survey and 18 miles northwest of Lamesa.

Era Of Service To Oil Industry Cited By West Texas Geological Society

By ROBERT MOORE

With the largest membership of any similar organization in the United States, the West Texas Geological Society, which has headquarters in Midland, is one of the most energetic such groups to be found.

President L. E. Patterson of Midland, district geologist for Cities Service Oil Company, points out that the 896 membership comprises 21 committees.

"Each committee is a working one and the members really pitch in and help," Patterson said proudly.

The 26-year-old organization, which was founded with only seven members, has such a host of varied activities that a recapitulation is amazing, he asserted.

A current project of the group is a 140-page directory of the membership, which will be off the press in September. The directory will contain pictures and biographical sketches of each member and was no small task in compiling.

Annual Field Trip

Since the first year the society was in existence, annual field trips have been made with two being made annnually currently. Trained leaders are secured to head the field trips with surface outcropping formations studied in West Texas localities. A guide book is published of each field trip made.

The society studies drilling statistics on all wells drilled in West Texas and Southeast New Mexico. The percentage of wildcats that were producers and the ratio drilled on geological and geophysical information is determined. The findings are published annually in a bulletin of the American Association of Petroleum Geologists, with which the society is affiliated.

Another annual paper prepared by the society for publication is the AAPG bulletin deals with the geological history of development of the petroleum industry in West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

A considerable amount of publication work is carried on by the society to meet the requests for scientific information on the rich Permian Basin oil fields. These publications include charts of formations found in wells throughout the Midland Basin and other types of pamphlets.

Papers For Both

At the request of the State Bureau of Economic Geology, University of Texas, the society is preparing necessary papers for a two or three colume edition of "Oil Fields of West Texas."

One of the most important projects of the society is sponsorship of a technical section in the Midland County Library. The section now contains more than 4,500 volumes devoted mainly geological publications. New Midland oilmen find it invaluable in obtaining quick background material on this area. The society finances the section through half of the proceeds it receives from its publications.

Recommendations are made by the society to the Texas Railroad Commission of names for all new oil fields discovered in this area. The commission, in general, follows these recommendations.

The future generations of geologists have not been forgotten by the society, which sponsors a geology club in Midland High School. The busy members take time to give lectures to the youths interested in geology.

Annual awards also are made by the society to outstanding geological graduates at Texas Tech College, Texas Western College and Sul Ross State College.

Texas Road Logs

A new project for the society is preparation of a geological road log of all principal highways in West Texas. These logs will picture location of formations outcrops, the nearest oil field to the highways and historical spots along the route.

This year, the society is preparing a road log of highways that will be crossed by members attending the annual AAPG convention in Houston.

Regular meeting schedule of the society — two luncheon and one night session a month—will be resumed. The evening sessions are devoted to reading of scientific papers, while a variety of programe are given at the luncheons.

In May of this year the society was merged with the Midland Geological Society, which formerly handled social events, and plans are to have an annual barbecue in September and an annual dance in November or December.

Patterson points out that the purpose of the society is to provide a professional vehicle where projects of common interest among geologists can be conducted for up-to-date information on geological studies, to provide social and professional contacts, and carry on certain local work.

700 In Midland

Of the 896 memberships, 700 are in Midland with the others elsewhere in West Texas and Southeast New Mexico.

The average layman would be lost at a society conclave, as most of the members are geology graduates and they speak a lingo all their own that deals with surface outcrops, structures and other scientific terms.

Patterson said the growth of the society has been in line with the oil industry in West Texas.

Many old-time geologists remember the days when drillers wouldn't even allow them on the property. Now, most of the drillers rely on scientific information secured by geologists and geophysicists.

Officers of the society are elected annually. In addition to Patterson, other officers are Max David, vice president, Midland consulting geologist; Paul Kolm, secretary, of the Permian Basin Sample Laboratory in Midland; and Nugent Brahear, treasurer, district geologist for Stanolind Oil and Gas Company in Midland.

Beede First President

The late Dr. J. W. Beede of San Angelo, was named first president of the society, which was founded in San Angelo in 1926 and moved to Midland in the '30's.

Other presidents have included: 1927—Dr. Harold P. Bybee, now professor of geology at the University of Texas; 1928—Edgar Kraus, now with Atlantic Refining Company at Dallas; 1929—V. E. Cottingham, chairman of the North Basic Pool Engineer's Committee in Midland; 1930—R. E. Rettger, now with Sun Oil Company; 1931—Robert L. Cannon; 1932—A. L. Ackers; 1933—Robert F. Imbt, now consulting geologist at Fort Worth; 1934—C. P. Butcher, deceased; 1935 — C. D. Bertress, now district geologist for Continental Oil Company in Midland; 1936—E. Russell Lloyd, now consulting geologist in Midland; 1937—James Fitzgerald, Jr., deceased; 1938—Hubert A. Hemphill, now president of Texas Eastern Company of Houston.

1939—Berte R. Haigh, now with University Lands of Midland; 1940—Robert E. King; 1942—Ronald K. DeFord, now professor of geology at the University of Texas; 1934—Fred H. Wilcox; 1944—Robert I. Dickey, now with Forest Oil Company of Midland; 1945—F. H. McGuigan, now division manager for Union Oil Company of Midland; 1946—Bernard A. Ray, now consulting geologist in Midland; 1947—W. J. Hilseweck, now with Blackwood & Nichols of Dallas; 1948—W. A. Waldschmidt, now consulting geologist in Midland; 1949—W. T. Schneider, now with Honolulu Oil Company in Midland; 1950—John M. Hills, consulting geologist in Midland; 1951—W. Dave Henderson, consulting geologist in Midland.

Texas Construction Figures Show Gain

AUSTIN—(AP)—Texas construction awards edged upward to $20,044,442 last week.

The Texas Contractor, trade publication reported engineering contracts accounted for almost half the total, $9,823,601.

Nonresidential work came to $5,840,936 and residential awards amounted to $4,979,900.

The residential awards included 488 residences, apartments providing 36 one-family units and 10 duplex apartment houses.

Giant Buffalo Bones Found In Lake Deposite Near Lubbock

University of Texas geologists have discovered near Lubbock the bones of a herd of giant prehistoric buffaloes.

The great beasts, some weighing as much as two tons, were almost twice as large as the familiar buffaloes which later roamed Texas plains until they were almost wiped out by settlers and Indians. Glen L. Evans, Texas Memorial Museum associate director in charge of the project, announced.

Evans estimated that the giant buffalo herd existed in the latter part of the Ice Ages—about 10,000 years ago.

Also found in the excavation, a lake deposit two miles northwest of Lubbock, were bones of prehistoric elephants and huge ground sloths; and spear heads, arrow points, and other tools of humans thought to be among the first ever to inhabit the Southwest.

The University scientists said they hope to use the discoveries in reconstructing what happened in Texas during prehistoric times and in double checking information already obtained.

Months Of Work

Ahead of the geologists are many months of work, hardening, gluing together and otherwise preserving the many bones and artifacts and identifying and cataloging them. Eventually the researchers hope to put together a giant buffalo skeleton and display it in the Museum.

"Our so-called modern buffaloes probably are descendants of the newly-discovered giants," Evans commented. "Evidence indicates buffaloes existed in Texas and the Southwest as far back as we have recorded. However, we will have to do much investigating before we can draw more definite conclusions."

One mysterious factor in the research: no human bones were found, just weapons and tools. The scientists are unable to explain why yet.

Tex Harvey Reports—

miles northeast of Rankin found salt water, and no shows of oil or gas in the top of the Ellenburger.

The project is taking electric logs and waiting on orders. It likely will be plugged and abandoned. No shows of oil or gas have been logged in any formation which has been drilled through.

The water came in a drillstem test at 12,370-480 feet. The tool was open two hours.

Salt Water

Recovery was the 1,800-foot water blanket; 180 feet of salt water cut drilling mud and 1,710 feet of salt water.

There were no signs of petroleum in the fluid which was recovered.

Top of the Ellenburger is approximately 12,370 feet. Elevation is 2,630 feet.

Northeast Of Rankin

Location is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 32, block B, C&M survey. It is two miles northeast of Rankin.

This deep project is seven miles southwest of the nearest Ellenburger gas-distillate producer in the Benedum multipay field.

Humble Is To Plug Back To Wolfcamp In Sterling Test

Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 Mrs. Marvin Dayvault, South-Central Sterling County wildcat, eight miles south of Sterling City is to plug back to 4,350 feet and perforate the 5½-inch casing above that point.

A section of the Wolfcamp-Permian lime above 4,350 feet will be tested through the perforations.

There were some slight shows of oil and gas in that zone when it was drilled through.

This prospector is located 660 feet from north and east lines of section 13, block 15, H&TC survey.

Ellenburger Dry

It drilled to a bottom of 8,177 feet in barren Ellenburger.

A string of casing was cemented at 8,177 feet. The top of the Ellenburger was tested through perforations at 8,090-8,104 feet.

That interval made salt water.

The project then plugged back and perforated at 7,924-30 feet in the Strawn lime. That zone was washed with 500 gallons of mud acid and then treated with 2,000 gallons and 6,000 gallons of regular acid.

Swabs Salt Water

After the last acid injection the wildcat swabbed 24 hours. It recovered 36 barrels of salt water with faint shows of oil and gas.

Operator then ordered it plugged back to 4,250 feet for the testing in the Wolfcamp section.

Ellenburger Wildcat Spotted In SW Nolan, To Start At Once

The Wilshire Oil Company, Inc., and British-American Oil Producing Company No. 24-182 Spires is to be drilled as a 7,500-foot rotary wildcat in Southwest Upton County.

It is 660 feet from south and east lines of the southwest quarter of section 182, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

Wolfcamp, Devonian Flows Reported In NW Lea Exploration

Amerada Petroleum Corporation No. 1-MA State, project in the Moore (Devonian) area of Northeast Lea County, was testing for final completion in the Devonian and Wolfcamp.

During the last 24-hour gauge through Devonian perforations 10,450-500 feet, the well made 264 barrels of oil through a one-eighth-inch choke.

Last gauge from Wolfcamp perforations, at 8,150-95 feet, was 35 barrels of distillate in 24 hours with gas volume at the rate of 903,000 cubic feet daily.

Location is at the center of the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter of section 24-11s-32e and one location north of The Texas Company No. 1 Moore, discovery well for the area.

Jameson Outpost To Be Drilled In NW Coke Sector

Kenneth J. Rich of Midland and others No. 1 A. E. Moore is to be drilled as a project on the north side of the Jameson field of Northwest Coke County.

Drillsite was spotted 467 feet from south and east lines of C. J. Norris survey No. 1, A-1080 and three-quarters mile north and slightly west of a lime producer and one-half mile west and slightly north of a sand producer.

It is to go to 6,500 feet, starting at once.

Humble Wildcat Fails On DST In Tom Green Area

Humble Oil & Gas Company No. 1 George T. McEwen, Central Tom Green County wildcat, approximately 800 feet north of the north city limits of San Angelo, topped the Strawn reef lime of the Pennsylvanian at 5,171 feet.

Elevation is 1,909 feet. The prospector cored to 5,196 feet and took a 30-minute drillstem test at 5,173-96 feet.

Recovery was 15 feet of drilling mud. There were no shows of oil, gas or water.

Coring Deeper

The prospector now is coring below 5,214 feet. It is contracted to 6,500 feet, or a test of the Ellenburger at a lesser depth.

Location is 2,500 feet from east and 1,000 feet from south lines of section 175, WCRR survey.

This wildcat had a show for possible production and a discovery in the Palo Pinto-Pennsylvanian lime in a drillstem test at 4,810-30 feet.

Gas To Surface

The tool was open one hour. Gas surfaced in nine minutes. The gas volume was not gauged or estimated.

Recovery was 650 feet of very heavily oil and gas cut mud, estimated to have been 50 per cent oil. There was a trace of salt water in the top of the tester.

The section at 4,830-40 feet had a slight show of oil in a core, but a drillstem test of that interval failed to develop any shows of oil or gas.

Sinclair Wildcat In C-E Lea Finds Water On DST

Sinclair Oil & Gas Company No. 1 Charlesia Taylor, wildcat in Central-East Lea County, two miles northeast of the Hobbs field, found sulphur water on a drillstem test in the Devonian.

Interval tested was from 10,997-11,040 feet. Tool was open three hours and 10 minutes. Recovery was 3,000-foot water blanket which was used and 6,948 feet of muddy sulphur water.

The Devonian was topped at 10,895 feet, minus datum point of 7,272 feet. Operator was running logs.

This wildcat had no shows for commercial production in drilling to its present total depth of 11,040 feet.

Family-Sized Farms Gather Highest Incomes In History

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The income from family-sized farms, hit an all-time peak last year, with Western sheep ranches probably the most profitable of all.

A government report that summarizes this income situation is careful, however, to emphasize that:

1. Despite a heavy inflow of money to farm families, inflation and other factors cut their purchasing power to one of the lowest points since the start of World War II.

2. The incomes of these particular farms is substantially above the national farm average. Twenty types of family farming, in all parts of the country, were studied. They included only medium-sized farms operated by families, excluding share croppers. Large scale farms were excluded as were the smaller ones and part-time or suburban-type farming. Only farms from which families made the major portion of their income were included. A few types of farming, such as fruit farms, were not covered.

The total income of all farm operations in 1951 was estimated at almost 38 billion dollars. This includes cash income as well as farm-produced food used in the home. It is the highest gross income American farmers ever enjoyed.

The family-operated sheep ranches of the Rocky Mountain region brought the greatest gross return of all types covered in the study. They averaged $47,464 each. Next came the sheep ranches of the Northern Plains country, $31,461. Cattle ranches of the mountain country came next, $19,002, and then the hog-beef fattening farms of the corn belt, $15,794.

In the lowest group were the smaller family-operated cotton farms of the Mississippi River delta country, $3,353; the cotton farms of the Texas Black Prairie, $5,262, and cotton farms of the Southern Piedmont region, $4,048.

Although gross or total income was at a record level, the purchasing power of the families declined from the peak it reached in 1947, government experts estimated. That is because the prices of things which farmers have to buy to operate their farms and households went up in 1951.

Expressed in the purchasing power of the dollar in the period of 1935-39, it was estimated that family farm operators were in about the same condition in 1951 as around 1941. Purchasing power increased from 1941 until 1947 but fell off then, with 1950 the worst year of all since 1941. Recently the Department of Agriculture reported the purchasing power of the farmers in 1952 may be the lowest since the start of World War II.

But even with the cost of production deducted, the government experts estimated the sheep ranchers had the best average income in 1951 of all the types of family farms operating that were studied. The net income of the mountain ranches was estimated at $19,108 and of the plains country ranches at $20,135. The average for the mountain cattle ranches was $13,565, for hog-beef fattening farms of the corn belt, $11,529, and for Southern Piedmont cotton farms $12,023.

The report said many factors have helped increase farm returns in recent years but that the most important were the use of more fertilizer, greater use of improved farming techniques and the use of more labor-saving equipment.

The report is careful to point out that the recent years have been rosy ones in American farm history. It points out that in the 1930's the incomes of many farm operators were not sufficient to pay expenses.

The Agriculture Department says that before anyone rushes out to get into the sheep business he should think a second time. Unusually high prices for wool and meat made sheep ranching profitable last year, and it may continue to be profitable for some time to come. But department experts don't expect profits to remain anywhere near the present record level. This year the prices of wool dropped from 95 to 50 cents a pound.

Strike Threat Hangs Over New York Central Railroad

NEW YORK —(AP)— A threatened strike on Eastern lines of the New York Central Railroad cannot begin until after a Cleveland meeting of union officials Monday, a union spokesman here said late Saturday.

The strike reportedly had been authorized for any time after 6 a.m. (EST) Sunday and officials of four rail unions held an eleventh hour parley here Saturday.

After the eight union officials met for six hours at the Hotel Times Square, a spokesman announced plans for the Cleveland meeting.

He said the strike "certainly" would not take place before the Cleveland meeting.

Earlier, a Syracuse, N. Y., union leader had said the strike would be put off 72 hours.

The Syracuse leader said this would be done as a courtesy to the National Mediation Board, since its offices are closed for the weekend.

Union grievances over working rules were said to be the cause of the threatened strike. These cover more than 300 issues dating back to 1950.

The unions involved in the dispute are the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the trainmen's, firemen's and conductors' groups.

A strike would affect some of the Central's key routes, such as the main line link between New York and Chicago. But its effects would be diminished somewhat by the fact other railroads serve much of the same area and have direct lines between the two cities.

Perhaps the greatest difficulty would be created for thousands of New York office workers, who live in suburban areas and travel to their jobs on New York Central commuter lines.

U. S. Steel Builds Huge Dock In Texas Floats It To Venezuela Piece By Piece

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—U. S. Steel Corporation is building a huge iron ore dock—more than one-fifth of a mile long—in Texas and floating it to Venezuela.

The pier, to be used in loading iron ore on ocean-going ships, is being constructed in three sections at Orange by U. S. Steel's Consolidated Western Steel Division. Each section will be towed to South America by big tugs.

The first dock section was launched last April and floated across the Gulf of Mexico, the Caribbean Sea, Gulf of Paria and up the Orinoco River to Puerto Ordaz, the South American ore terminal of Big Steel.

The other two dock sections will get the same treatment when completed.

The finished units are large steel structures which closely resemble oversized barges. They were given a barge-like design to make it possible to float them to their destination.

In Veneuzela, the three dock sections will be assembled as one unit in a fixed position.

The unique stunt marks the first time a steel producer has prefabricated an iron ore dock. The novel construction design and transportation features are saving months of work which would be required to build the dock piece by piece in the conventional manner at the site.

The finished pier will be connected by railroad and highway to Cerro Bolivar, U. S. Steel's fabulous mountain of iron ore, 90 miles south.

Much of the ore will be shipped to the corporation's huge new steel plant now under construction at Norrieville, Pa., on the Delaware River near Philadelphia. Some cargoes will be transhipped to U. S. Steel plants in Pittsburgh and Alabama.

At Orange, on the Sabine River, dock construction is being carried on its shipways used to build destroyers in World War II. Each section takes the space needed for two destroy

Believed to be the largest steel structure ever built in the form of a barge, each dock section measures 82 feet wide, 376 feet long and 15 feet deep. Each weighs 2,250 tons and has 13 miles of welding. The honey-combed interiors have both transverse and longitudinal bulkheads.

Three Wildcats Are Set In New Mexico

HOBBS, N. M.—New Mexico gained locations for three wildcats this week, one each in Chaves, Eddy and San Miguel Counties.

In Chaves County, Lubbock Machine & Supply Company will drill No. 1 Randle-Anderson 3,970 feet from south and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 3-16s-16e. It is to go to 5,000 feet. Site is in the extreme west side of the Southwest Panhandle of Chaves and 30 miles east of Alamogorda.

Southern California Petroleum Corporation will drill No. 1 Scully-Federal as the Eddy County wildcat. Located 460 feet from north and 330 feet from west lines of section 5-26s-29e, it is to go to 2,800 feet, starting at once.

Drillsite is 28 miles southeast of Carlsbad and in Southeast Eddy.

In San Miguel County, 29 miles south of Las Vegas, Neuton R. Roberts as a 3,200-foot wildcat. Operations are to start at once. It is 660 feet from south and west lines of section 14-11n-15e.

One location southeast of The Wilshire Oil Company, Inc., No. 1 Townsend, Pennsylvania discovery in Central-East Lea County, The Pure Oil Company staked location for No. 1-A Lea State. It is 660 feet from north and west lines of section 10-16s-35e. It will bottom at 10,500 feet.

Shell Oil Company No. 2-A State is to be drilled as a 9,600-foot Wolfcamp test in the Denton field of Central-East Lea County. Site is 2,310 feet from south and 2,100 feet from west lines of section 2-15s-37e.

Lawton Oil Corporation No. 2 State-Gulf, wildcat three and one-half miles south of the Hightower field of Northwest Lea County, developed gas-distillate production on a drillstem test in the Devonian.

Open six hours, the test was taken from 11,220 to 11,372 feet. Gas surfaced in 32 minutes at the estimated rate of 5,000,000 cubic feet daily. Water blanket surfaced in 44 minutes and distillate in three hours and 45 minutes.

It was cleaned to pits 15 minutes and turned to tanks. It made seven barrels of distillate the first hour through one-inch choke and five barrels the second hour through five-eighths-inch choke. Recovery was reversed out.

Location is in section 10-13s-33e. Operator will make a few more feet of hole and take another drillstem test.

Amerada Petroleum Corporation No. 8 Caudle, project three-quarters of a mile southwest of the Hightower field, has been plugged in Pennsylvanian at 8,996 feet. It was in section 34-12s-33e.

Drilling Activities Again Slump In State

AUSTIN —(AP)— Drilling activity slumped again last week. The Texas Railroad Commission reported completion of 160 oil wells compared with 231 the previous week.

The year's total of 6,850 wells compared with 6,433 a year ago.

Fifteen gas wells were brought in, and the total of 503 for the year compared with 494 last year.

Dry holes totaled 118.

Wildcatters drilled 10 oil, one gas and 63 dry wells.

Plugged were 118 dry, 10 gas, and 90 oil wells.

The total average calendar day allowable as of Saturday was 2,961,781 barrels of crude, a 200,039-barrel increase as the August allowable went into effect.

Goetzinger Named To New Post For Oil Well Supply

The appointment of G. F. Goetzinger as vice president-treasurer of the Oil Well Supply division of United States Steel Company was announced by Fred F. Murray, president of the division.

Goetzinger has served as treasurer and general credit manager since 1946.

The new "Oilwell" vice president is a veteran of 39 years service, having joined the organization in 1914 as a clerk in the credit department at Pittsburgh, Pa.

In his new job he will continue to develop and administer the division's credit and treasury activities in furnishing such services to the oil industry.

WASHINGTON OIL—
Well-Drilling Program For Year Reduced Drastically As Result Of Steel Strike

By JOSEPH HUTTLINGER
Reporter-Telegram Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON—The National Petroleum Council, composed of up to 100 of the nation's top oil and gas executives, has decided to make a study and report on the "oil and gas prospects" of the tidelands.

At the request of Interior Secretary Oscar L. Chapman, the council is setting up a committee in a few days to gather facts about probable future producing capacity of the offshore lands and of the higher cost of that production. It will not go into ownership.

At its quarterly meeting, the council also heard reports about the impact of the steel strike on oil industry, about current shortages of aviation gasoline and threatened shortages of heating oil this Winter, and of flank attacks by the Justice Department on government—oil industry cooperation as now set-up.

As for American petroleum producers, the steel strike means this year's well drilling may add up to only 42,000 new wells against 50,000 which had been in sight before the strike, the PAD says. Russell B. Brown, counsel of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, says the total may be closer to 40,000 the lowest level in several years. Both Brown and J. Ed Warren, deputy petroleum administrator, agree that the steel strike cost tubular goods for the drilling of 8,000 domestic oil wells and 1,000 foreign wells.

Worst Yet To Come

"The worst of the shortage of tubular goods by far is yet ahead," according to Brown. He pointed out that the PAD is making no allocations of tubular goods for the fourth quarter from its regular supply, explaining that more than 75 days of steel production were lost by the strike.

What tubular goods are available, says the PAD, will be used to make sure second and third quarter tickets, already issued, are honored when the operator tries to pick up the casing and tubing. After that, wildcatters and emergency cases will be taken care of.

On top of this, American producers will be paying more for tubular goods, as a steel price increase of $5 a ton or more goes into effect in the very near future. This will add up to a minimum of $20,000,000 a year for American producers, according to Brown.

The West Coast Pipe Line Company, Dallas, planning a 900-odd-mile crude oil pipe line to the Los Angeles area faces a delay into next year in starting construction, as a result of the strike, it was learned. All told, crude oil pipe lines planned to handle 1,000,000 barrel daily of crude and products lines to handle 400,000 barrels daily, face a delay due to line pipe shortages.

A total of more than 250,000 tons of line pipe for natural gas projects may be held up as a result of the steel strike, says PAD. As for oil refinery construction, the impact is a delay in construction, as steel for adding 125,000 barrels daily to refineries was lost.

PAD-Justice Feud

Reports of PAD feuds with the Justice Department were partly verified behind the closed doors of the council meeting, it was said.

The Justice Department is accused of forcing the petroleum agency to disband two industry committees set up to meet possible world oil shortages on the one hand, and domestic shortages on the other. Further, the Justice Department, under Attorney General McGranery, is giving signs it wants to end the petroleum council as such, substituting a government man for Walter S. Hallanan, the industry chairman.

Elmer Batzell, the PAD counsel, said "these basic tools" in industry-government cooperation, "must not be permitted to rust in idleness occasioned by misunderstanding, neglect, or collateral attack."

In other actions, the council received a report from a nine-month study of tubular goods sizes, pointing out that some producers prefer smaller sizes. The council also decided to make a study, requested by Secretary Chapman, of the use of radio and radar by oil and gas, chiefly by pipe lines, and any possible conflict with use by the military.

Spraberry Field In Reagan Sector Given Stepout

George G. Johnson Drilling Company and Davidson & Mascho will drill No. 3 J. F. Nunn as a one-half-mile east stepout to production in the Aldwell (Spraberry) field of Northwest Reagan County.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and east lines of section 44, block 36, T-5-S, T&P survey. It is to go to 7,600 feet.

"Survivor" swims to deflated lifeboat, pulls gas release cable.

Under pressure of gas, lifeboat snaps into shape, canopy erects itself and first survivors prepare to climb aboard.

Survivors inflate, with hand pump, floor liner which insulates floor in cold climates, doubles as extra life raft in warm weather.

NAVY DEMONSTRATES ITS NEW 'SELF-RISING' LIFEBOAT

The Navy recently made a dramatic test of a new rubber lifeboat at the New York Naval Air Station at Floyd Bennett Field, where these pictures were taken. In a simulated sea disaster, a Coast Guard helicopter dropped one of the new lifeboats to "survivors" struggling in the water. Half a minute after hitting the water, the "package" opened, the boat ballooned into shape and raised its protective canopy. In a short time—before any of them had time to suffer from exposure—the sailors climbed aboard and paddled to shore. Outstanding feature of the new boat, developed by the Navy in cooperation with the B. F. Goodrich Company, is its ability to inflate in 30 seconds and provide shelter, with a 70-degree temperature, for 15 survivors in either sub-zero or blistering tropical weather. Deflated package is thrown overboard. When a gas release cable is pulled, carbon dioxide gas under pressure quickly snaps the 230-pound, 15 1/2-foot-long craft into shape.

With everything shipshape, the survivors paddle toward shore, taking in tow one of the inflated floor liners which carries several men.

More Than 30 Companies Join To Form Fractionation Group

Fractionation Research, Inc., a non-profit organization which will compile and develop engineering information on fractionaation problems, has recently been formed by more than 30 companies, representing the oil, natural gas, construction engineering, and chemical industries.

Participation in the organization is open to any individual company or corporation interested in design engineering information useful or necessary in the construction and operation of fractionating columns. The initial meeting of Fractionation Research was held last week in Oklahoma City.

In general, the organization's work will consist of developing information covering the construction and operation of apparatus for separating the components of a fluid of mixed composition on the basis of their relative volatilities or vapor pressures.

$25,000 Capital

The organization has authorized capital stock of $25,000, consisting of 250 shares of common stock with a par value of $100 per share. The stock is non-dividend-bearing. The cost of financing Fractionation Research's work will be accomplished from a fund contributed by the stockholders and which will be available for expenditure during the five year term of the organization's agreement. The amount each member will contribute will be decided on the following basis:

How Financed

A company that refines crude oil will pay a five-year maximum of 50 cents per barrel of its daily refining capacity as of January 1, 1950. A natural gasoline manufacturer will pay a five-year maximum of one cent per gallon of the daily capacity for January 1, 1950. A non-petroleum company will pay a five-year maximum of 50 cents per thousand dollars of net assets of the company as of January 1, 1950. The program has a minimum pledge of $1,000 per year for the five-year period and a maximum pledge of $20,000 per year for the five year period. No member will be required to pay more than 40 per cent of its five-year total in any single year.

Directors Hires

All devices or techniques developed as a result of the research program may be used by members of Fractionation Research. Personnel required to carry on the research program will be obtained through the employment of a competent director with a carefully selected staff and by using existing research institutions, utilizing manufacturing plants and present laboratory facilities, to minimize investment of the research funds in capital items.

Officers elected at the first meeting were T. B. Hudson, of Phillips Petroleum Company, president; D. W. Wilson, of Arthur G. McKee Corporation, Cleveland, Ohio, vice president; George H. Burras, of Anderson Prichard Oil Company, Oklahoma City, vice president; and Paul J. Parker, of Phillips Petroleum Company, secretary-treasurer.

Italy Now Without Its National Song

ROME —(AP)— Musical Italy has had no national anthem since World War II.

An author of famed Neapolitan songs, E. A. Mario, tried to end this shortcoming. He wrote a new song which now awaits approval by Italy's professor President Luigi Einaudi.

Military defeat in World War II ended the "Royal March" and "Giovinezza" as two national anthems. Since then the country has stood to attention to an old-time revolutionary song called the "Hymn of Mameli." Because of its revolutionary background, the hymn was never recognized as an official anthem.

Mexico Notes Drop In Tourist Business

MEXICO CITY—(AP)—The tourist business, which puts the butter on Mexico's daily bread, shows signs of withering under European competition and high prices here.

Even with the big Rotary and Lions international conventions, tourist entries are only a few hundred above last year's average. There was also a momentary slump in the tourst business immediately after the disturbances following the recent presidential elections.

Any falling off in the tourist business would be a serious threat to Mexico's economy and would force Mexico to cut down on her purchases abroad.

Music, Not Books Interest Commies

VIENNA —(AP)— Hungary's Communist are unhappy because workers buy trumpets instead of books.

The newspaper Magyar Nemzet reported recently that every nationalized factory has funds set aside for the purchase of Communist books and literature. But the paper complained:

"In the Boroksar textile works, they preferred to buy football equipment, instead of books. Trumpets were bought with the funds of the stocking factory at Pestersebet."

Norwegians Fete Birthday Of 80-Year-Old King Haakon

OSLO, NORWAY — (AP) — King Haakon VII, oldest reigning monarch in Europe, will be 80 Sunday and joyous Norwegians are getting out party clothes for their biggest celebration since they gave him a yacht five years ago.

Flagpoles have been placed in all the main streets. Parliament Building has been scrubbed of its dust and dirt. Portraits of the beloved king are everywhere in this 900-year-old city.

Among those invited to the party for the man who has ruled Norway 47 years are King Gustaf VI, Adolf of Sweden, Queen Mother Alexandrine of Denmark, Prince George of Greece and the Duke of Edinburgh, husband of Britain's Queen Elizabeth II.

The celebration starts Sunday morning with services in the Oslo Cathedral, led by the bishop of Oslo, Johannes Smemo. The big event comes in the afternoon, when King Haakon will drive through the streets in an open automobile.

Crowds lining the walks may rival those cheering thousands who greeted the king and his family in 1945 when they returned from London after the German invaders had been defeated.

Members of the Royal Guard and contingents from the Army, Navy and Air Force will parade in tribute to their leader.

Sunday night, the king, a Dane by birth, will speak by radio to his people from the balcony of Town Hall. By popular vote in 1905, Norwegians made Haakon their monarch and their love and devotion have deepened with the years.

Gifts from all parts of this Northern land of three million have been pouring into the royal palace for days. Most civic organizations and many cities have sent gifts. Silver bowls, valuable art objects and painting are among them. The government's gift will be a painting by one of Norway's foremost artists, Christian Krogh.

The celebration will continue through Monday. The King will receive members of the diplomatic corps, and there will be a reception for Norway's highest civilian, military and church leaders. At night, the government will give a state dinner in the king's honor at ancient Akershus Castle.

OUT OF DOORS with Field & Stream

By WARREN PAGE
Shooting Editor

Lots of lies are told about bears and they make fine listening around the campfire. But there's one silly lie going the rounds, and one dangerous lie now being fed the sporting public. Let's straighten them both out.

The first fib is merely a myth, one of those old wives' tales that never die. That's the business of the bear's catching salmon by scooping them out with a dexterous paw, flipping his bright-hued meal out onto the gravel bar. You've seen that picture on hardware store calendars countless times; you've read accounts of such doings in supposedly reputable writings.

Any bear, black or brown, may catch a salmon with his feet. But he doesn't scoop or flip. The bear will pounce on him just as your dog will pounce on tadpoles or minnows in a pond. The bear anchors the humpy of coho against the bottom and then picks it up in his teeth. He may even grab his meal in those fangs first off.

But if you think you have seen a bear, either brown or black, using his paws like dipnets or swiping lunch up onto the bank with a roundhouse right, you'd better change your brand or get those spectacles fixed. It just ain't so.

The really dangerous lie, a menace to the preservation for the American public of the greatest American game animal, is the insidious propaganda that the brown or Kodiak bear threaten the salmon industry. Sure he eats salmon. Almost every creature of the coastal area save the Sitka deer, creatures furred, feathered and finned, either directly of indirectly depends on salmon runs for a living. But the bear doesn't threaten the salmon canning industry. The industry threatens itself. For lack of a better scapegoat it now threatens the bears.

Assume there are ten grown bears on a salmon stream, which is possible but too big a family for any save the biggest creeks. Assume further that each of them eats three meals a day, three salmon at a whack, which is an extreme consensus.

But granting such extremes during the months of July, August, September and October, bears might conceivably eat 11,000 salmon. Actually they wouldn't. Bears get fed up on fish. They wander into the berry patches or stoke up on skunk cabbage and wild celery to ease the dysentery product by a straight salmon diet. Nor are all the salmon they catch fresh, unspawned. A spawned-out salmon is doomed within a few days anyway, of use only to the bears, ravens, and scavenger eagles.

Half that many salmon would be a fairer guess for these ten brownies. But each bear is worth from one to two thousand dollars on the hoof, in terms of hunter and tourist money spent in the salmon country.

Yet I have seen four Siwashes gig 500 salmon in three hours, bright salmon, killing half as many more in the process. These supposedly for their own use—actually for sale. They were doing it on every tide, and sneaking in to sein the first pool of that creek during the brief summer darkness. A few illegal sein hauls have made wealthy men of crooked white fishermen. One brailing of any one of the numerous fish traps along the coast can produce 40,000 unspawned salmon.

DANVER, MASS.—(AP)—A store which not-too-modestly admits to having sold the most expensive cups of coffee in the world is a highlight of this town's 200th anniversary.

The drug store in which three armored truck guards sipped coffee while their truck was looted last March has hung a huge counterpart of a coffee cup in front, inscribed: "The Home of $681,000 Cup of Coffee."

High Level Truce Talks Resume, But Differences Remain

MUNSAN—(AP)—Top level Korean armistice delegations have met again after a week's recess in which staff officer talks produced no break in the critical deadlock on the prisoner exchange issue.

The session at Panmunjom was to have been at 11 a.m. Sunday (8 p.m. Saturday, Midland time). Staff officers were to meet after the plenary conference.

Agreement was confirmed during the week on the wording of all but two paragraphs in the proposed truce document. Those paragraphs deal with prisoner parole and recommendations to beligerent governments. The staff officers dealt mostly with the Chinese and Korean versions of the words "Korea" and "United Nations Command."

Exchange of prisoners remains the major issue blocking an armistice. The Reds have demanded the return of all military prisoners, particularly 20,000 Chinese. The Allies refuse to return any prisoner against his will and say 15,000 Chinese have renounced communism.

In a letter to the UN command Saturday the Communists listed 238 Chinese whom they charged were forced to act as special agents for the Allies and had been parachuted into North Korea. The Reds asserted the names had not been included on the Allied list of prisoners.

The Communist letter was in apparent reply to a UN Command written request for an accounting of 45 Red-held prisoners.

Hybrid Grass May Go Wild

By RENNIE TAYLOR

BERKELEY, CALIF. — (AP) — Scientists have produced in the laboratory some new species of grasses which they believe will grow wild on the range, competing against weeds and brush and providing new sources of livestock feed.

Plant breeding in the laboratory usually results in varieties which need cultivation or at least watchful supervision of humans. The idea of a bred plant that can do better than hold its own against the tough vegetation of arid wastes is a forward step in man's effort to control natural processes.

Plants Change

These new types, like many natural varieties, apparently have a built-in ability to fit themselves into different environments.

Seed from a single variety, sown in one locality, eventually yield offspring varying slightly from those produced by the identical seed in another location. Each kind seemingly works toward becoming better adapted to the place or the climate in which it started to grow.

This is one of the fruits of experiments in which scientists learned how to make sterile hybrids fertile. Dr. G. Ledyard Stebbins, Jr., geneticist in the University of California, College of Agriculutre, tells about it.

Hybrids, or crosses between one kind of living thing and another, usually are sterile. Using two different methods, Dr. Stebbins and associates induced fertility into several types of plant crosses.

Hybrid Produced

One was a cross between blue wild rye and squirrel tail grass. The natural rye plant does well in the California foothills but cannot stand drouth. Squirrel tail grass is drouth resistant but has spikes on it that makes it dangerous for stock feed. The result of the cross was a plant resembling blue wild rye that was drouth resistant and had spikes less formidable than squirrel tail grass.

These first crosses were sterile—seedless. Dr. Stebbins propagated them by cutting off stems and stocks and coaxing them to grow, alongside some of the parent blue wild rye plants.

This association with the parent evidently did some good. Among 48,000 blossoms produced by the second-generation hybrids the experimenters found a single potent seed.

The lone seed produced a plant with a few more good seeds. From those beginnings the new plant has grown successfully in several places and it stands to become a new species of forage grass, Dr. Stebbins said.

The geneticist also reported on another way of producing fertile new plant types. It is done by doubling the number of chromosomes or heredity carriers in plant cells.

Poison Helped

Colchicine, a poison derived from a common plant, is used to bring this about. The poison interfers with cell division, the basic mechanism of growth. It does not, however, interfere with the process by which a cell doubles the number of its chromosomes just before dividing.

A colchicine-poisoned cell keeps on working internally. Its chromosomes reproduce themselves and it thus has a double set of heredity carriers.

Under certain conditions this overgrown cell will shake off the effects of the poison, again double its chromosomes and divide into two cells, each of which will have twice as many heredity carriers as the parent cell before it was poisoned.

These new double-heredity cells continue to reproduce their kind indefinitely and they build themselves into a plant resembling that of their untreated ancestors but havinb important differences.

The process has been used to improve grapes, bananas, pineapples. But it can also increase the chances for producing a fertile hybrid in case it is crossed with some other species of plant. It multiplies the probabilities for the pairing-off of chromosomes from cells of another plant species into a combination that will produce a new type of individual.

Soviet Peasants Ride Herd On Livestock, Garden Plots

By THOMAS WHITNEY

MOSCOW —(AP)— Most Russian families own livestock of their own.

While the growth of urban population in the USSR in the last three decades has been tremendous, the majority of Soviet families still live in rural or suburban surroundings where they have a plot of land for vegetable gardens and orchards—and for livestock. This is true not only of the collective farmers, but also of the majority of other families both in rural areas and in semi-urbanized territory.

In such circumstances almost all families keep their own chickens. Fed with scraps from the kitchen, and allowed to fend for themselves about the yard during the day to feed on what they find, they are an economical way of furnishing eggs and poultry meat for the family.

Most families in addition keep at least one milch goat, easy to care for. During the Summer it can be pastured in the yard or on vacant small plots of grassland. During the Winter it can be supported on relatively small amounts of hay and other fodder. One good goat will keep a family supplied with milk. In addition it bears a new kid each year which usually fattens during the Summer and in the Autumn is slaughtered to replenish the family meat supply.

Most families also keep a pig. In the Spring a piglet is purchased. It fattens during the Summer and Fall and is slaughtered when the weather is cold enough to assure preservation of the meat.

At a disadvantage in the business of livestock ownership are the apartment dwellers in cities and towns. However, the government has devised a means by which they also can share in the benefits of small-scale livestock ownership. The trade unions in many enterprises sponsor livestock clubs. These provide collective ownership in livestock. The members furnish a share of the capital, taken on themselves a share in the results when slaughtering is carried out, or in the constant production of milk and eggs.

Indian Ceremonial In New Mexico Due To Last Four Days

GALLUP, N. M.—(AP)—The annual inter-tribal Indian ceremonial — billed as the biggest show of its kirid—is strictly for the Indians.

Thousands of tribesmen from all parts of the country will be on hand for the four days of festivities August 7-10. Many will pitch their tents on the 90-acre ceremonial camp area.

Each year for the 29 years the ceremonial has been held, an increasing number of non-Indians have crowded into this Northwestern New Mexico City of just over 9,000 population during ceremonial days.

This year's show is expected to draw more than usual with the added attraction of Republican presidential candidate, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Only Indians may take part in the rodeos, Indian sports contests, shows of crafts and ceremonial dances that have brought the ceremonial fame.

"The only purpose of the ceremonial is to preserve Indian arts, crafts, customs and ceremonials," said M. L. Woodard, director of the Inter-Tribal Ceremonial Association, non-profit corporation that sponsors the show.

Billy Wyche was here from his Van Horn ranch last week loading out the bulk of the cattle from his Ector-Andrews ranch northwest of Midland for shipment to Van Horn.

The former Midlander said he has had some rain on his ranch in the Van Horn area and range conditions there are pretty good. He waited as long as he could before moving the stock from his ranch near here, which incidentally had been missed almost entirely by the recent rains.

It is dry, hot and kinda pitiful, in so far as farm and ranch activities are concerned, over the Sweetwater-Abilene sector. A trip into that area Wednesday was a none to pleasant experience. Fields are barren and range lands are parched. The usually highly-productive fields around Loraine and Roscoe are without crops this season. And the temperature reached 104 degrees in Abilene Wednesday afternoon. A trace of rain fell during the afternoon but it failed to cool things off very much.

The field trip sponsored by the Martin County Chamber of Commerce to farms and ranches in North Martin County last week was immensely successful from every standpoint, according to Garvis P. Ross of The Stanton Reporter.

Ross says the 35 persons making the tour were highly pleased and that are all looking forward to the next trip later this month.

The country in the north part of the county looked green and pretty and the crops looked good, Ross declared.

Again refesring to The Stanton Reporter, James E. Kelly, veteran West Texas editor, compares Mr. Irrigationist with Mr. Dry Land Cotton Farmer, in his column "Snooter Knows." Citing the many advantages enjoyed by Mr. Irrigationist, who grazes cattle on his green grass and feed, Snooter winds up by saying "He is back home next day (after selling a pickup truck load of fat cattle) with more money in his pocket than his neighbor, Mr. Cotton Farmer, will realize off any two or three bales of his cotton . . .

"This marketing of livestock by Mr. Irrigationist continues at frequent intervals during the year and I'll bet my last year's straw hat that he winds up with more cash money at the end of the year and has a darn site easier time raising his product than Mr. Cotton Farmer does in raising his farm produce, and can do it dressed in a sport shirt and his shoes shined."

Could be, Uncle Jim.

The Hardin-Simmons University Cowboy Band will be a main attraction at the annual Big Spring Rodeo, August 6-9.

The Big Spring Rodeb will be the band's fourth rodeo for the Summer. During July, it played for rodeos in Coleman, Stamford, at the Ray Woods ranch near Dallas during the National Junior Chamber of Commerce convention, for which the cowboys were the official band.

Woods, a professional rodeo-er, described the group as "the best rodeo band in the Southwest." While in Big Spring the band will be directed by J. D. Schoonover, professor of wind instruments at H-SU. Bill Woods, plainview, drum major for the band will accompany the group.

The Hardin-Simmons music-makers have played for approximately 300 rodeos across the United States and chalked up a record of more than 2,500 separate rodeo performances.

American farmers will turn green with envy when they hear of the good luck of the coffee growers of Central America. Experiments carried on by the United States Department of Agriculture have led to the conclusion that in coffee plantations it is best to let the weeds grow. It seems that the roots of the coffee tree are very close to the surface and weeding therefore does more harm than good. There soon may be no need in that part of the world for "the man with the hoe."

If the experimental conclusions are proved in practice it may start an exodus of cotton and corn farmers to Central America. Although the U. S. produces no coffee, the Department of Agriculture carries on constant experimental work in coffee production and cultivation hoping to protect the American people's sources of supply for the popular beverage.

Foy Proctor, Midland rancher, reportedly has sold 1,400 mixed calves for Fall delivery to a Fort Worth concern—the Texas Livestock Marketing Association. The calves will go to Illinois feeders, it was reported.

Peacock Military Academy Preps Young Men For Life

At no time since its founding in 1894 has Peacock Military Academy of San Antonio realized its responsibilites more to the youth of the land, as well as to the national government during the present period of uncertainity throughout the world.

While it was one of the pioneers in the State to offer military training, being one of the first three schools in Texas to be recognized by the United States Government, the school has never been militaristic in the popular sense of the word. It always has felt and taught that essential, thorough military training impresses upon each cadet that he must make courage and loyalty a part of his creed of daily living. He is taught that his ability to command is rooted in his respect for authority. Through the proper functioning of the military department, the cadet has his time mapped out for him, each exercise has its proper place, and each duty must be performed at the appointed hour.

He is taught the duty of ready and prompt obedience to those in authority, without questioning that authority. As he is taught to obey, so he learns to command, to study character, that his influence and efficiency may be increased and his capabilities in leadership developed. He is taught habits of self-reliance, self-restraint and independence of thought and action to fit him gradually for the larger and more varied duties of citizenship and business. He learns to think straight and quickly.

In substance, the essence of Peacock training is to prepare boys and young men for life, whether they are to purpose a college course after graduation, enter the armed forces, or obtain technical or practical training in filling a particualr niche in the business world. The school emphasizes the importance of the individual in its personal guidance plan of instruction. It stresses character building and personality developement above all else, believing these are vital to good citizenship and successful living.

Peacock, known as "The West Point of Texas," is the oldest private school in Texas under the same family management. The founder's two sons, Col. Wesley Peacock, Jr. and Col. Donald W. Peacock, have been the active heads of the institution since 1926. The executives and practically all members of the faculty and their families live on or adjacent to the school premises, associate daily with the student body, and take their meals in the same dining hall with the cadets.

Veterans To Get Deferred Tuition

NEW YORK—(AP)—A special deferred payment plan for veterans of the Korean war and for other veterans entitled to educational benefits under the GI Bill of Rights will be started in September at Columbia University's Teachers College, according to Dr. Milton C. Del Manzo, college provost. They may have up to two-thirds of their tuition deferred.

Under the deferred payment plan, if the year's tuition for a veteran is $600, he pays $200 in cash and the balance in installments starting six months after he leaves college.

Threescore And Ten Years Pose No Barrier For Cupid

HOUSTON —(AP)— Love, the ancients said, skittishly hurdles the barriers of age.

A Houston couple Saturday confirmed the wisdom of the graybeards of old.

Eugene Henry Golden, retired stock farmer, 75, married Rebecca Jane Ready, 70, before Justice W. C. Ragan.

He's an erect, bespectacled man, who spoke firmly when he said ". . . with this ring I thee wed . . ."

She's a slight, dainty little woman with laugh wrinkles around the corners of her mouth. She wore a lacy-looking blue dress adorned by a white rose corsage.

Did they plan a honeymoon trip? "Well, no," said Golden.

Said his daughter, Mrs. Wynonia Plaint, "Dad's been talking for days about this wedding. He's anxious to go on a honeymoon trip and get away from the kids."

The "kids" Mrs. Plaint explained, include 11 children, some 30 grandchildren and about 35 great-grandchildren.

How did they meet?

The new Mrs Golden said:

"We met through a friend several months ago. We've been seeing each other ever since."

She circled her bridegroom's waist with one hand and leaned against him: "We're so happy."

She said she had been a widow for about two years and that Golden had been a widower for about a year.

Japanese Propose Censoring Movies

TOKYO —(AP)— American movie companies have balked at a plan to set up a board of Japanese and foreign film representatives to censor all foreign motion pictures entering Japan.

Kyodo News Agency says other foreign companies have indicated they will go along and talks will begin soon with British, French, Italian and Russian film companies.

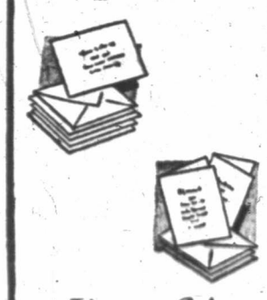

Kyodo said there had been protests from parents of the "evil effects" uncensored foreign movies were having on children. It added that uncensored American films will continue to be distributed in Japan.

Mary Hardin-Baylor College Trains Women For Century

BELTON.—For more than a century, Mary Hardin-Baylor College, Belton, has been training young women for places of responsibility in a constanty-changing world.

Founded in 1845 while Texas was still a republic, Mary Hardin-Baylor is the oldest college for women west of the Mississippi. It is the only private or demoinational fully accredited college for women serving the six states of the southwest.

The curriculum of MH-B has been developed in accordance with modern needs and to meet the specific requirements of women.

Faculty and administration strive to meet the needs of educating the student socially, physically, intellectually, morally and spiritually. College of Christian culture, MH-B offers young women training in liberal arts, fine arts and the home-making arts.

As needs have arisen, courses have been added to meet the standards of higher education of each new generation. To prepare young women for professional and home life, the college now offers courses leading to the B. A. B. M. and B. # Enrollment Jumps In Decatur Baptist College's Classes

DECATUR — During the past year, Decatur Baptist College has not followed the enrollment pattern that most of the schools of higher learning have followed, in that it has experienced an approximate 18 per cent increase in enrollment rather than a noticeable decrease. This fact is due to the increased promotional program that was launched a year ago by the administration.

In the light of an unusually small graduating class from almost all of the high schools, it seems that there will still be a decrease in college enrollment, but because Decatur Baptist continued to emphasize a promotional program, an additional increase in enrollment is anticipated for the coming year.

Besides the increase of enrollment, there has been an increase in physical facilities of the college. A new home for the president of the college has been completed. There have been additional improvements made with plans underway for still greater improvements during the next few years.

For several months plans for an expansion program have been in the process of development, going through various stages of alteration and change. It is expected that within the next three months these plans will reach a point of crystalization and a general announcement will be forthcoming concerning them. For the next several years, emphasis will be placed on increasing the enrollment, equipment and endowment of Decatur Baptist College.

Although Decatur Baptist College has from year to year a fine group of ministerial students, it is by no means just a school for training ministers. Students are preparing themselves for life's work in the various professions.

Another misconception of our work here, which is common to junior colleges in general, is that it is not accepted in other schools. Officials want students and parents to know that Decatur Baptist College is a fully accredited junior college, being a member of the Association of Texas Colleges, The Texas Junior College Association and The American Association of Junior College.

300 Persons Struck By Lightning Yearly

NEW YORK —(AP)— Lightning takes about 300 lives a year, says the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in warning that Summertime is the period of greatest danger.

About one-fourth of all the deaths from lightning occur among persons who seek shelter under or near trees, say Metropolitan statitisicians. After striking a tree a bolt may flash sideways or it may run along the ground killing anyone in its path.

Some of the activities lightning victims were engaged in when struck were: lunching in a wooded area, playing baseball in an open field, fishing in boats on open water, working in fields, gathering in the family washing from clotheslines attached to trees, standing on a porch or swimming.

Schreiner Institute Offers Christ-Centered Education

KERRVILLE — Students at Schreiner Institute receive a Christ-centered education that prepares them for effective leadership in civic, business, professional, church and community life.

Schreiner's strong academic program, its well-planned extra-curricular activities, and the valuable military training given all boys, combine to make a Schreiner education top-notch. Schreiner offers four years of high school and two years of junior college work.

Four brick dormitories house Schreiner cadets. Newest of these dormitories is Delaney Hall, which the Dallas Texan professional football team occupies for six weeks during their Summer training.

Schreiner students receive individual attention of skilled and friendly instructors, and the Schreiner dormitory life trains cadets to live democratically with their classmates.

Located in the scenic Texas Hill Country Schreiner's aim is "Education for Complete Citizenship."

Dental School Sees Increase In Classes

HOUSTON—With registration set for September 15 and 16, the Dental Branch of the University of Texas will enroll its largest class in the history of the forty-seven year old school when 66 students, all residents of the state of Texas, will be admitted.

The students accepted were chosen from a list of approximately 600 who wrote the Dental School requesting information about its program. A total enrollment of 245 is expected for the Fall semester.

Houston, Tilletson Combine For Negroes

AUSTIN — A widely known but rarely attempted strategem among educational institutions, is the instrument of merger. The merger of Samuel Huston and Tillotson, two widely known and highly respected colleges, officially was consummated April 16.

The name of the new institution is Huston-Tillotson College. The permanent plant will be built on the present site of Tillotson College, but until new buildings are erected the activities of the newly created College will be conducted on both campuses.

Combining one hundred twenty-seven years of experience in the field of Education, the union of these two historic institutions will make available to negro youth in the Southwest one of the largest and strongest colleges in the nation.

Commercial College Stresses Radio Work

The Radio Department of the Tyler Commercial College is proud of its 30 year record in training radio operators and technicians for broadcast, marine, government and the many other fields of radio and electronics.

It has always been the established policy of the school to provide radio training which goes beyond the bare requirements of FCC license examinations.

The school offers training in radio, television and broadcasting techniques.

Every student spends a portion of his school day in our modern, spacing laboratories, building individual apparatus, testing it and conducting experiments which demonstrate the application of radio theory to actual equipment problems.

There are three Norwegian and three Russian settlements on Vest Spitsbergen, largest island of the Spitsbergen archipelago.

Academy Students Prosper In Civil, Military Realms

BRYAN—Military training is a vital source of American leadership, both in military and civilian life.

Officers of the army often become the captains of industry.

One of America's leading magazines recently published an article pointing out the fact that former military brass were turning their experience as leaders into industrial gold as high-salaried business executives. They are sought after by major corporations.

Long-known as the political camp of big business, the Republican party this year has nominated a former five-star general as its presidential candidate. The keynoter of its national convention was another five-star general.

This, of course, is not unusual. The father of the country was general of the army. And more than one-fourth of the American presidents, nine in all, have been former U. S. Army generals.

In selecting a school for their sons, many mothers and fathers consider such facts. And as a result, America's military academines are among the country's strongest private educational institutions.

Allen Military Academy, founded in 1886, is the oldest preparatory school and junior college for boys in Texas. It has been rated an honor military school by the army for 29 consecutive years, and it is now the only honor military school in the state.

When an Allen cadet has finished four years of ROTC at the academy, he has fulfilled all of the military requirements for a reserve commission. He may then attend any college or university in the country for the next two years, and he is exempt from military draft until completion of his college work. He need not take any more ROTC.

The academy is situated in the city limits of Bryan, a friendly and prosperous school town. It has a wooded and rolling 475-acre campus, with 38 buildings, including a big, new gymnasium. The school has a 20-acre, completely fitted athletic field and a large sanitary outdoor swimming pool.

New Mexico School Helps Meet Demand For More Engineers

SOCORRO, N. M.—"The national demand for young engineers and scientists continues to grow," says Dr. William Hume, II, well-known physicist and director of the College Division of New Mexico Institute of Mining and Technology.

"All of our recent June graduates in technical fields have secured interesting and remunerative positions in their chosen fields," he stated. "In fact, we have far more requests from industries for young petroleum engineers, geophysicsts, and other specialists than we are able to fill."

National trends indicate that this need for young people with sound technical training will continue to grow for some years to come. The colleges have not been able to keep pace with the needs of advancing American industry.

Dr. Hume pointed out that young women are needed as well as young men, and that an increasing number of coeds are attending NMIMT and other colleges specializing in scientific fields. While few women enter the engineering field, there are opportunities for them in research, teaching, and laboratory work in chemistry, geology, mathematics, and physics.

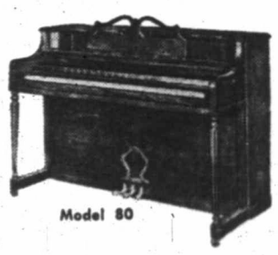

New Mexico Tech is at Socorro, in south-central New Mexico.

Air Force 'Blues' To Make Debut On Texas Tech Campus

LUBBOCK—The Air Force "blues" will appear on the Texas Tech campus this Fall.

New uniforms for the Air Force ROTC unit at Tech have arrived and will be issued to all Air Force ROTC students during the first semester. Col. Ollen Turner, professor of Air Science and Tactics, announced that the Air unit had been wearing the regular Army uniform for some time, but would change to the blues.

Tech's Air Force enrollment last year was 710, and an increase in this number is expected this Fall.

Col. Turner explained that the young men, usually freshmen, were finding that they can get their college education and still serve their country by taking ROTC training. Under the ROTC setup, a student may be deferred all four years to complete his college education. And, upon graduation, serve his stretch in the Army or Air Force, being more beneficial to the service and to the student.

The ROTC training is divided into two phases, basic and advanced. As a basic student, ROTC is taken like any other class in college, the student getting full credit for his work. As an advanced student, the ROTC course pays the student about $27 a month, and he wears the officer's uniform. Either his junior or senior year, the student attends a Summer camp, for which he is paid $75 and given his food, clothing, transportation, and housing.

Texas Tech's Air Force unit this Spring graduated five regular Air Force students, setting a record of more than three times the average over the United States.

President Ratifies Free Germany Pact

KANSAS CITY —(AP)— President Truman Saturday ratified the agreement setting up a free West German Republic.

The United States became the first nation to ratify documents carrying out this action, which abolishes the existing three high commissioners of the United States and its Allies.

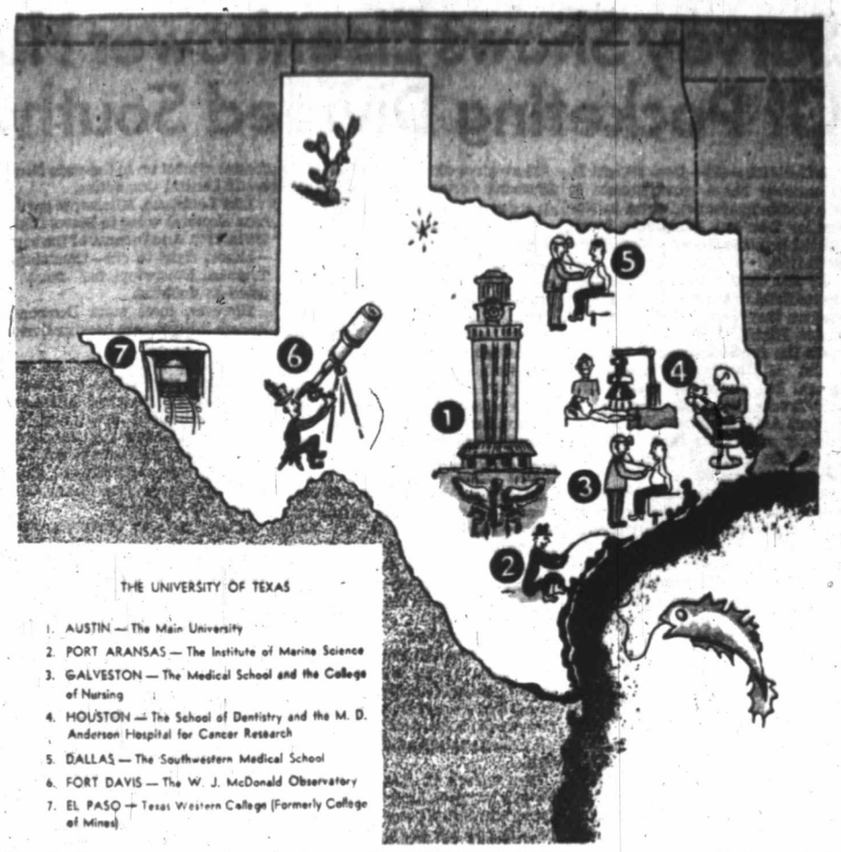

The British Parliament has approved the agreement, but the queen has yet to ratify it.

The President signed the necessary documents in his penthouse suite at the Hotel Muehlebach here.

University Of Texas Strives For Individual Student Aids

AUSTIN — Does a big university lack the personal touch so necessary to the training and guidance of students?

Not necessarily so, explains Dr. T. S. Painter, president of the Main University of Texas at Austin.

Most of the great institutions of higher learning in Amarica are large, Dr. Painter points out, and the University of Texas, despite its rank as the largest institution in the South and Southwest, places the welfare and interest of the individual student in first place.

Students entering the University for the first time need not fear that their individual needs will be overlooked or that they will be absorbed, as an anonymous individual, in the student body.

Friendliness is the keynote of faculty-student relations at the outset. For one week prior to the beginning of each school year, a full orientation program is carried on for all new students, ending with a get-acquainted dance. Upon registering each new student can seek the advice and counsel of a faculty advisor in the college or school in which the student is enrolled. Further, the student may use, free of charge, the facilities of the Testing and Guidance Bureau which will assist him in determing his aptitudes, or proficiency, so that he may be better able to select courses for which he is prepared.

Many students have found this service invaluable in leading them toward the program of study, for which they have real aptitudes.

In the classroom the new student will find that not all classes are large. Although, becaause of purposes of economy, it is efficient to hold large lecture sections in certain beginning courses, most conference and laboratory sections are kept small to preserve closer student-teacher contact.

Currently, the student-teacher ratio at the University is about fifteen to one, the lowest it has been in recent history.

To aid students with problems other than academic the university maintains a large staff of highly-trained, competent men and women within the Dean of Student Life Organization. A student is assured of a cordial reception and of sympathetic counseling when he visits any of the offices within this organization.

Student health is given a high priority at the university.

Robots Could Pick Winners At Races, Predict Pennants

NEW YORK—(NEA)—This news will be greeted with snorts of disapproval by all honest race horses, but it must be told anyway. Sooner or later, say electronics experts, an electronic brain will be perfected which will predict the outcome of horse races.

Before you go out and bet two on the tube, be warned that this delightful gadget may be a long time in coming. The Age of Electronic Brains, in which horse-race-predicting-machines will abound, is not yet here. And it may take decades to arrive, but arrive it will.

"Electronic brain" in the popular phrase for a device known as a computer. As its name implies, this machine doesn't actually do any thinking. It merely computes data that human beings feed it. Some of them work from figures (digital computers) and some work from "things" (analog computers).

It is the analog computer that may be developed into a high-voltage handicapper. Currently (get that one?) analog computers work on more serious problems. For example, they may predict the flight of a guided missile. Humans give it the information—such as the weight of the test missile, wind conditions, fuel consumption and so on—and the computer records on a graph the predicted flight pattern.

* * *

Instead of missile flight factors, suppose you gave an analog computer such information as the condition of the track, the past performances of the horses, the weight of the jockey. Could a machine be perfected which would figure out the winner?

"It is not inconceivable," says Rawley McCoy, chief engineer of the Reeves Electronic Division of Claude Neon, Inc., who has worked on the guided missile computer. "It's a problem of working out the right equations to give the machine. If somebody wanted to spend enough time, it could be done."

From that point, you can proceed on many flights of fancy—fancy that could logically some-day be fact. Why couldn't analog computers be devised which would predict the weather accurately, give you tips on the stock market, say what team would win the pennant, tell you what crops to plant each year, figure out exactly how much weight you'd gain (or lose) on a certain diet?

There's no reason why not. All these—and anything else your imagination can dream up—are entirely within the realm of possibility. It's strictly a question of assembling the necessary information, getting a skilled mathematician to work out the proper equations, and having someone who could evaluate the result.

* * *

The digital computers, dealing with figures, offer a more immediate practical future. Philip S. Fogg, president of the Consolidated Engineering Corporation, says that one digital computer could replace 300 employes in a bank, for instance, or the entire billing department of a department store.

"Before long," he says, "electric impulses may be keeping track of your bank balance, your gas and electric bill, how much you owe the department store and the insurance company, as well as all the behind-the-scenes figuring on inventory and stock control, payrolls with numerous deductions, tax computation and general business statistics.

"It's time to admit the vacuum tube is mightier than the finger."

Present electronic brains are pretty big machines. Fogg's company makes one about the size of a grand piano, one of the smallest available. But in laboratories and on drawing boards, engineers are working up computers much smaller. McCoy says that it won't be long before portable computers, about the size of a big tape recorder, will be on the market.

When that happy day arrives, applications for the machines will be found everywhere. Already, men are adapting various computers for the following jobs:

Navigation, right in commercial airplanes. When the price and size are right, computers will take the guesswork out of navigation. This will add to airline safety. There'll be no more bumping into unexpected mountains.

Education, specifically as a teaching aid in calculus. McCoy says it will make this branch of mathematics easier to learn, because it will solve different equations graphically. Students will see problems worked out in front of their eyes.

Graphic arts, by color-recorrecting color plates electronically. Presently, it takes a skilled engraver days to make color plates by hand-finishing them on a more-or-less trial-and-error method.

* * *

Industry, where computers are now at work. They do such things as regulating any blending process—in such fields as petroleum and paint and steel—and they could be adapted to any work of this sort, like blending coffee.

Engineering, where a properly-used computer would have prevented a disaster such as the collapse of the Tacoma, Wash., bridge. A computer would take every possible combination of stress and strain into consideration, and a computer engineered bridge would not be blown down by a surprise wind.

Those are some of the practical uses of computers, uses that are in the forseeable future. After they're perfected, physicists can turn their attention to the bang tails.

Survey Shows Eisenhower Has Chance Of Pocketing Divided Southern Votes

ATLANTA —(AP)— Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower has a better chance to win Southern electoral votes in November than any Republican presidential nominee since Herbert Hoover in 1928.

At the same time, the breaches in the Solid South may be no greater than they were in 1948 when the States Righters won four states—while the Republicans took none.

And if Democratic leaders in several key states can forget their anti-Truman leanings enough to support Adlai Stevenson, Dixie conceivably could close ranks and cast all its 151 electoral votes for the Democratic nominee.

An Associated Press survey of the block of 13 states eastward from Oklahoma and Texas, normally regarded for political purposes as the Solid South, Saturday indicated that Texas and South Carolina are key states in the Southern picture.

By carrying Texas with its big block of 23 electoral votes and South Carolina with eight, Eisenhower could capture almost as many as States Righter J. Strom Thurmond won in 1948 by carrying Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and South Carolina and getting one electoral vote from Tennessee—a total of 39.

Also listed in the doubtful column in the survey—although some of them don't appear very doubtful—were Tennessee, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Mississippi.

That gives Ike a potential of 79 Southern electoral votes—if he won all six states, which is unlikely.

Texas is the biggest question mark of them all because of the size of its electoral vote and the Tidelands oil issue, a hot one particularly among Texas' big oil operators.

Gov. Allan Shivers has declared he has no intention of voting the Republican ticket. But he is equally firm that he will not vote for any candidate who favors federal ownership of the Tidelands—off-shore areas under which there is oil.

South Carolina soundly renounced Truman in 1948 to vote the States Rights ticket almost three to one. Gov. James F. Byrnes has not commented on Stevenson's nomination, but promised to make his views known at the August 6 meeting of the state Democratic Executive Committee. That meeting probably will determine what South Carolina will do in November.

Louisiana's Rooster

Louisiana, which gave its 10 electoral votes to the States Righters in 1948, is listed as doubtful because of another contest for the Louisiana Democratic ballot symbol—a rooster. The States Righters captured it in 1948.

Gov. Robert K. Kennon has said he will do everything he can to see that all candidates are on the ballot. But he left the question of putting Stevenson and Sparkman under the rooster symbol up to the state Democratic Central Committee.

Like Louisiana, Mississippi gave its nine electoral votes to States Righters in 1948. And because of the sound—almost eight to one—trouncing of Truman, Mississippi too must be listed as doubtful.

However, most state Democratic leaders this year are backing Stevenson.

Oklahoma with 10 electoral votes is another state listed as doubtful, which actually may not be the case. But Eisenhower's popularity leads Republicans to feel they have a better than normal chance to win. However, top state officials—all Democrats—are supporting Stevenson.

Effects Of Bitterness

After effects of bitterness stirred up in both Democratic and Republican conventions make Tennessee with 12 electoral votes, an unknown quantity.

The state always has a large Republican vote. While the regular Democratic organization is backing Stevenson, some Kefauver supporters, who feel that the senator was cheated out of the nomination, are backing Ike.

Alabama, the other state which gave its 11 electoral votes to States Righters in 1948 seems pretty sure to return to its democratic ways this year.

Party regulars have regained control from the States Righters and Alabama's Senator John Sparkman is the nominee for vice president.

Efforts to put a slate of independent Democratic electors pledge to Eisenhower on the ballot seem to have faded out in Georgia. That should assure the state's 12 electoral voter for the Democratic ticket.

Alben's Kentucky

Although Alben Barkley is not on the ticket, Democrats are confident of another victory in Kentucky. The state's 11 electoral votes have gone to a Republican only in 1924 and 1928.

Florida's Gov. Fuller Warren has announced his full support of the national Democratic ticket. He doesn't think there is much chance for Eisenhower to take the state's 12 electoral votes as Hoover did in 1928.

There is nothing to indicate that North Carolina will do other than keep its 14 electoral votes Democratic.

The Virginia Democratic party organization also is expected to campaign for the national ticket in that state, which has gone Republican only in 1948. However, Senator Harry F. Byrd made it clear that he has endorsed neither ticket.

Republicans were heartened by election of a mayor of Arkansas' capital, Little Rock, and will wage a strong campaign for the popular Eisenhower.

But there is no indication of any dissatisfaction with Stevenson and Sparkman, and no sign that Arkansas is likely to do other than vote Democratic like it has since 1872.

FIRE SUSPENDS SERVICE

CLERMONT, FLA.—(AP)—A fire broke out here recently that was difficult to report—it was in the city's telephone exchange. The whole town was without service 30 hours while damage was being repaired.

Mercury, smallest of the major planets, has a diameter of only about 3000 miles, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Scientists Tackle Problems Of Heat In Supersonic Craft

MOFFETT FIELD, Calif.—(NEA)—It may sound odd, but in the 60-degree-below-zero temperatures in which today's fastest planes travel, it isn't the cold that worries the scientists who are working out the problems of tomorrow's plane—it's the heat.

Scientists at The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics' Ames Aeronautical Laboratory here regard temperature—and high temperature, not low—as being the biggest stumbling block to man's efforts to travel faster and faster in the faster-than-sound speed range.

At supersonic flight levels, the rush of air past a plane's wings, tail and fuselage causes terrific friction. The friction causes heat. Not long ago a Douglas Skyrocket streaked at 1300 miles per hour above California's Mojave Desert. In the cramped cockpit, the pilot was cooled by a refrigerator with sufficient capacity to cool, a theater seating 2,000 to 4,000 persons.

But it's not merely keeping the pilot cool or in an air-conditioned cockpit that worries Ames people. High temperatures weaken aluminum structural parts, thus requiring heavier construction. The heavier the plane, the shorter the range.

* * *

Friction of the air through which the plane travels could very well cause a plane to melt—if it travels too fast, engineers now say.

While temperatures encountered by the Skyrocket on its 1300-miles-per-hour run are a secret, some figures have been released. At 2000 mph, for example, air friction creates heat of 600 degrees—enough to weaken aluminum alloys; at about 3300 mph—heat may rise to as much as 1600 degrees—heat that would sap the strength of any steel now used in plane construction.

To atack and solve the problems of this new "barrier of heat," major contributions are expected from the Bell X-2, a stainless steel research airplane designed to investigate high supersonic speeds where aerodynamic heating will be experienced.

The problem of heat is only one phase of supersonic flying being tackled at this vast air laborattory.

* * *

Here are wind tunnels, one of them the largest in the world. Here are smaller, supersonic tunnels, in which the wind screeches like a thousand banshees as it beats against plane models exerting a force equivalent to actual travel at twice the speed of sound.

This is a world of aerodynamic terminology which confuses the layman; of needle-nosed fighters with virtually no wings; of huge die casting machines; of complex recording machinery used aloft and on the ground, a world of research to find the materials and the mechanics that will go into the planes of tomorrow.

A peek into a supersonic tunnel, visible on a projected screen, shows the shock waves that bend like the strings of a bow around the model. The scream of the wind drowns out all other sounds in the room.

'Copters In Holland After Atlantic Trip

ROTTERDAM, THE NETHERLANDS—(AP)—Two U. S. helicopters which flew across the Atlantic Ocean arrived at Ypenburg Airfield near here Saturday enroute to their new stations at Wiesbaden, Germany.

The 'copters' landing was a feature of an air show being held at Ypenburg. They will fly on to Amsterdam later for a weekend rest before going to Wiesbaden, where they will be assigned to air-sea rescue work.

The flight across the Atlantic was undertaken to test whether such trips were feasible, in order to save valuable transport space on ships.

Wise Homemaker Plans Home For 'Golden Years'

Will your home be a pleasure when you reach retirement age?

It's one thing to have a house designed for a woman in her vigorous, youthful years, and quite another to plan one which will not be a physical strain when the homemaker's energy will not be so plentiful.

Here are some suggestions on home planning for simple living for elderly persons, compiled from the opinions of leading architects by the Tile Council of America:

1. Be sure to have a bathroom on the first floor. Climbing stairs is fatiguing to older people, as well as dangerous, as in heart conditions.

2. Easy maintenance is important. Government figures show that a majority of elderly persons live alone on their retirement funds, and that their independence includes doing their own housework. Bathrooms and kitchens in homes for these persons should be constructed of easy-to-clean material, with as many surfaces as possible of a washable nature.

Safety And Comfort

3. Give thought to plumbing fixtures for safety and comfort. There are some new, low, square tubs with wide seats, for example. Another feature is grab bars in showers and tub-shower combinations.

4. The simpler the kitchen, the easier it is for elderly homemakers to keep up. Compactness, simple-to-clean walls and counters, appliances arranged to save steps, and storage cabinets installed so that high reaching is unnecessary, are some of the factors to consider.

5. Automatic heating is certainly a "must." Equipment which needs no tending should be high on the list of essentials in a home planned for older persons.

6. Try to achieve efficient overall design to eliminate stair-climbing. The all-on-one-floor house, with neither basement nor attic, is ideal.

Modern Plastics Hasten Day Of Fireproof homes

American builders rapidly are approaching the day of the fireproof house, in the opinion of Frank Sohn, home consultant of the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company.

There's evidence of the swing to better fire prevention in every home built today, said Sohn, who credits the improvement to the following factors:

1. Greater use of non-burning materials, such as plastics, metal and glass.

2. Streamlined design, eliminating many of the old fire booby traps.

3. Development of fail-proof heating equipment.

Sohn pointed out that metal window sash, fireproof paint, entire walls of glass and fire-resistant roofing had reduced the fire hazard in the shell of the house. Fiber glass insulation for walls and roof provides an additional fireproof barrier and plastic laminate interior walls being introduced by some builders add further protection.

Misuse Of Electricity

Inasmuch as 52,000 fires annually in America result from misuse of electricity, Sohn feels one of the greatest strides has been in the development of urea plastic wiring devices—switches, wall plates, outlets and sockets—which do not burn or wrap when exposed to electrical sparks or flame. Urea devices meet rigid fire underwriters' restrictions, while products made of other type plastics do not, it was pointed out.

Other contributions toward the completely fireproof house, Sohn said, include metal kitchen equipment, the greater use of patterned glass for wall partitions and the use of non-combustible dry wall construction.

The trend toward metal-and-glass furniture, glass fiber draperies and upholstery material and small, non-flammable rugs also is a boon to fire prevention, he said.

The slopes of snowcapped mountains in the Belgian Congo are the home of the last remaining mountain gorillas.

HERE'S HOW ADS MAKE MONEY FOR YOU

USUALLY when you read or listen to advertising, you think only of the fact that it's trying to sell you something. And advertising's job certainly is to sell you something. That's what it's for.

But let's look at advertising in a broader sense. All the jobs and all the pay checks in America ultimately depend on people buying and selling. Yes, jobs depend on somebody selling something to somebody else.

So good, hard-working advertising is really the sparkplug of American business. And by stimulating business it makes jobs—more and better jobs for all.

In the last analysis, advertising does more than sell you something. It plays a big part in creating the job by which you get the money to buy.

So be glad there's plenty of advertising. Be glad Americans love to hear and read it. It plays a big part in American prosperity—a big part in making your job more secure.

OTHER WAYS ADVERTISING HELPS YOU AND YOUR FAMILY

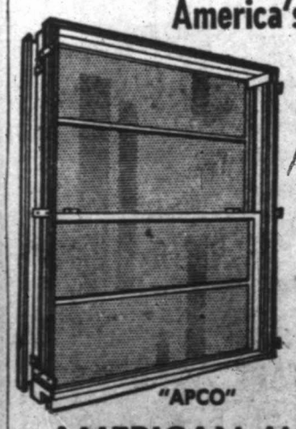

1 Brings you better goods for less money.
2 Makes shopping more pleasant and easier.

Iran Defense Move Snagged

WASHINGTON —(AP)— American military officials have tried unsuccessfully since 1946 to build up the defenses of Iran, where Nationalists are clamoring now for removal of three American military missions.

Turbulent Iran is regarded as the key to the defense of the entire Middle East, Both for its strategic position and its coveted oil resources.

Maj. Gen. William H. Arnold, head of the American military mission in Turkey, left little doubt during recent secret testimony before Congress that the loss of the American position in Iran would be serious.

High Turkish military officials have said that, in wartime, the Soviets could bypass powerful Turk forces by striking through Iran toward the Suez canal.

Unless the Iranian-Russian border is defended strongly, they said, Middle Eastern defenses will be jeopardized.

These defenses now depend mainly upon Greek and Turkish armies which have been built to a total of 500,000 well-armed men at a cost of more than one billion dollars.

Arnold testified at a closed session of the House Foreign Affairs Committee in April. Portions of his testimony were released in May.

Arnold said the United States began a small effort in Iran in 1946 when a military mission was sent there at the request and expense of the Iranian government.

"At that time," he said, "I thought we had quite an enviable position. We were there on the ground."

But, he added, little was accomplished by the military mission in training the Iranian Army or by a separate American group tutoring the police. He implied that Iranian officials were obstructing American officers.

A third mission, acting as a coordinating and advisory group, was sent to Iran in 1950 after that country was included in the global American defense program.

Secretary of State Acheson told a news conference Wednesday Iran has not requested the withdrawal of the missions, despite Nationalist pressure.

Regarding the vital oil problem, Acheson said he was not encouraged over prospects. He said Iran and Britain are right back where they were before the dispute began.

He said Premier Mossadegh suggested renewed negotiations, and then later changed his mind and withdrew his proposal.

Iran never has given the full guarantees required by Congress that it would bulwark American military aid by building its own defenses. For that reason, military assistance was suspended between January and April, 1952, but was resumed when Iran gave what were regarded as adequate assurances.

The Teheran government can eliminate these missions by cancelling verbal agreements and a specific contract, for the police group, which expires in October.

If so, American authorities regard the chances slim that adequate defenses wil be built for Iran's northern border. This faces Russia, whom the Iiranian Nationalists apparently are anxious to avoid offending.

White Kitchen Out-Of-Date In Today's Modern Home

The all-white kitchen is as out-of-date today as the foot-long hatpin. Like the rest of the house, the kitchen must be bright, gay and colorful. Manufacturers anticipated the trend and cabinets, stoves, sinks and other new equipment are being shown in a rainbow of colors.

The fact that this equipment in color usually costs more than the stark white should be no deterrent to the home-maker who wants to keep her house from being "dated." A can or two of paint will make an entirely new room of the kitchen. The transformation can be completed within a few hours, now that any one of 1,322 shades is obtainable in Colorizer paints. With this enormous range of colors it is possible to match any color exactly; or find the exact tint needed to best contrast or harmonize with other colors, such as woodwork, wallpapers or curtain fabrics.

Pastel Tones

If the kitchen is sunny, use pastel tones of green or blue on the walls, cabinets and woodwork. The ceiling may be white or off-white. If little sunlight reaches the kitchen, select warm tints of yellow, orange or peach and avoid cool blue and green. A combination of yellow with accent stripes of red, pine green or black at the wainscot line is good. To break the solid color on cabinet doors, paint panels, molding or door-pulls in a bright contrasting color.

When walls and cabinets are given the full color treatment the white stove, sink and refrigerator will afford a pleasing contrast and the room will no longer be cold, uninteresting and "dated."

Unusual Floor May Be Had By Mixing Oak Strip Widths

Here's a tip for home planners who prefer the economy, beauty and other advantages of strip oak floors but would like them to have an added note of distinctiveness. Consider the use of strip flooring in mixed widths.

Generally regarded as the standard quality flooring for homes, oak in the strip style customarily is laid in uniform widths.

The material is available in four sizes ranging from 1 1/2 inches to 3 1/4 inches wide.

Mixed widths produce a floor with some of the informal effect given by random width plank floors. Especially well adapted to low, rambling ranch type homes, they also are appropriate for dwellings of other architectural types, traditional or modern.

Popular Practice

A popular practice is to utilize 2 1/4-inch and 3 1/4-inch pieces in alternate courses. Other combinations, however, can be employed with equally attractive results.

Strip flooring is produced both in unfinished and in pre-finished form. When the unfinished type is used, the sanding and other finishing operations are performed after it has been installed.

The pre-finished variety, ready for use immediately after being laid, is particularly well suited for modernization projects where new oak floors are installed over old, worn floors. Remodeling experts point out that a room can be refloored and placed back in service the same day when pre-finished oak is used.

Marijuana Smuggler Grabbed By Officers

McALLEN —(AP)— A haul of 25 pounds of marijuana was made Saturday by federal officers, who arrested a San Antonio Latin American on a bus as it stopped at Encino, a small town near Falfurrias.

Officers said the man was enroute from Monterrey, Mexico, to San Antonio.

Making the arrest were McAllen customs agents Brownsville bureau of narcotics men.

Top Labor Officials Make Overnight Stop In City

Midland was host Friday night to Undersecretary of Labor Michael J. Galvin and other U. S. Department of Labor officials, who arrived here that evening aboard an American Airlines plane from Washington, D. C.

They were met at Midland Air Terminal by Loyan Walker, Agriculture Department manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, and Frank Melton, head of the WTCC Legislation and Taxation Department, both of Abilene.

Others in the Galvin party were Carl Holley, chief of the department's farm placement division, and John Leslie, director of information, both of Washington, and William B. McFarland, chief of farm placement in the Dallas region. William A. Tyson of Washington, solicitor of the Department of Labor, will join the party Sunday in Abilene, going there from Mexico City.

Farm Labor Conferences

The Labor Department officials are in West Texas to participate in a series of Mexican farm labor conferences sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and several regional farm and ranch organizations.

They left here by automobile early Saturday for Sonora where the initial conference was held Saturday afternoon. Penrose Metcalfe, San Angelo rancher and former state senator, joined the visitors here to escort them to Sonora, where they were joined by Earl Street, regional attorney, Dallas. They were to return to San Angelo for an overnight stop Saturday.

Other conferences are scheduled in Haskell on Monday; Littlefield, Tuesday; Lamesa, Wednesday; Pecos, Thursday, and El Paso, Friday. Bill Collyns of Midland, WTCC vice president for District 6, will preside at the Lamesa meeting.

The group of Labor Department and WTCC officials will return to Midland Wednesday for an overnight stop enroute to Pecos and El Paso.

Ed McDonald, another Labor Department official, will join the delegation in Abilene Sunday.

Robert M. Fielder of Abilene, chairman of the Agriculture and Livestock Committee of the WTCC, will attend next week's farm labor conferences.

Most of the half million people who live in the Azores Islands in the Atlantic Ocean are of Portuguese origin.

Richland Bandit Described As Slippery Escape Artist

SAN ANTONIO —(AP)— A prime suspect in the attempted Richland bank robbery Thursday was—at last reports—in an Austin jail Saturday.

But uneasily police were keeping a close watch.

Their prisoner, police records at Dallas indicated, was a 31-year-old negro officers regard as one of the slipperiest customers who ever left a trail of red-faced jailers and yawning cell doors across the country.

The slight, brown-skinned negro, identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation as Leonard Williams, was charged Friday at Corsicana and Dallas with the attempted robbery of the Richland bank. FBI Agent F. H. McEntire of the San Antonio office said the negro had admitted he robbed a Spencer, Okla., bank of $2,00 on July 3.

McEntire said his office had been informed that a state warrant charging bank robbery was being forwarded to the U. S. Marshal's office in San Antonio as a detainer on Williams. Although the prisoner's real name is believed to be Leonard Williams, he was variously listed as Roco Parnia, Rocco Parnia and Rocho Parnea.

Caught In Alley

He was captured in Taylor after a flight down an alley behind the Taylor business district. Otherwise he offered no resistance.

Police had been tipped that Williams would return to Taylor where he had lived since July 4 to meet a woman. As he alighted from a bus, he spotted police and fled. Deputy Sheriff Howe French of Corsicana said the negro was a vacationing railroad sleeping car porter.

Dallas police record show at least eight escapes for Williams, but officers said he had broken out so many times that they just do not have complete records. He has slipped out of the Dallas City jail and the Dallas County jail.

His latest escape was from the Texas penitentiary at Huntsville, May 27, less than a year after Dallas County deputies escorted him, manacled hand and foot, to the prison door.

Watch This Man

He has escaped two Oklahoma prisons, San Quentin in California, and various city jails.

All his records are marked: "Watch this man!"

In 1947, Williams posed as another prisoner about to be released, took the man's personal property and walked out of the Dallas city jail. Caught and returned to a cell, he just picked up a broom and swept his way through the jail door the first time it was opened.

He was recaptured and placed in the Dallas County Jail.

But he again posed as another prisoner, followed a lawyer into the jail lobby . . . and was free again.

Oakland, Calif., police caught him next, but he vanished in two days.

In Again, Out Again

Salt Lake City police found him. Two Dallas deputies were sent to bring him back to Texas. But he was gone by the time the Texans reached Utah.

Finally, he did serve several years in San Quentin for walking out of the Oakland jail. As his release time neared, Dallas officers went West for him again.

But just before they got to Sacramento, where he was being "held" for them, jailers found Williams busily sawing a jail window bar. He already had two out and was on his third.

In Dallas, he was sentenced to 10 years on burglary and theft charges and under heavy guard was delivered to the prison at Huntsville in June 1951. He was there hardly a year . . . and out again.

Foiled By Scream

He escaped the Richland attempted robbery scene when Mrs. Mattie Jones, a bank customer, ran from the building screaming for help. He had forced Cashier Jim Richards to place between $2,500 and $3,000 in a bag, but fled without the loot when Mrs. Jones' wild screams gave the alarm.

The search for Williams began at Streetman, where the bank robber was seen. A bag of clothes leading to Williams was found in the Streetman bus station.

FBI agents immediately went to Taylor to watch for Williams. With the help of Williamson County Sheriff Fred Allen and Taylor Police Chief J. W. Dellinger, they made the capture.

U. S. Commissioner Robert Sneed fixed bond at $25,000 and ordered the suspect to appear at an examining trial in Austin next Friday at 2 p.m.

Western Defense Plans Bog Down, Threaten Later Crisis

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The drive to arm the Western world against Russia appears to be slowing down. It is beset by economic and political difficulties which threaten to grow into a crisis later this year.

Dealing with this crisis, unless it is forestalled or quickly overcome by astute and fast-moving Allied statesmanship, may prove to be one of the first foreign policy tasks confronting the next president of the United States.

The outcome, moreover, will almots certainly have an impact on events ranging far beyond the build-up speed of Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's Western European Army. It may involve France's conduct of the costly war against communism in Indochina and final approval of plans for rearming Western Germany.

Several developments last week began to bring into focus the difficulties over which officials here and abroad have been worrying for some weeks.

A visit to Secretary of State Acheson by French Ambassador Henri Bonnet brought into the open the fact that the United States had turned down a request that it pick up the check for a total of 625 million dollars worth of French government armament contracts placed with French factories. Instead Acheson told Bonnet this country could take on only 186 million dollars worth now and possibly a few more orders later on.

French officials generally argued that the help was essential if France were to meet its commitments for contributions to the Allied defense effort.

On another front prime Minister Winston Churchill's Conservative government announced new belt-tightening moves in hard-pressed Britain and a new emphasis on production of civcilian gpods for export rather than on weapons and military equipment. It was the latest in a long series of steps to try to balance Britain's income with its costs and thereby solve its basic economic problem. It raised the question as to Britain's future ability to meet its defense commitments on present schedules.

A third difficulty was the disclosure that Spain is asking a price in American aid for the use by the United States of Spanish naval and air bases which American officials consider far too high. Authorities had hoped that the Spanish negotiations would be well-advanced by this time; instead they seemed to be close to the point of deadlock.

Russians To Help China 'Modernize' Its Military Forces

TOKYO—(AP)—The Peiping radio Saturday night announced a modernization program of the Chinese Communist Army drawing heavily on "Soviet military science, the most advanced in the world."

The broadcast was a report of a speech made Thursday by Hsiu Hua, deputy chief of the General Political Department of the People's Revolutionary Military Council.

Hsiu's position is that of a very high-ranking military commissar.

"Led by the Chinese Communist Party and Chairman Mao Ts-tung and educated in Marxism and Leninism and trained in Mao's teachings, the people's liberation army, the revolutionary army, has acquired excellent tradition in the long revolutionary war," Hsiu told 1,200 members of the Political Consultative Council.

But he said the army must speed up its modernization to "prevent the U. S. imperialist aggressive war."

In Korea, the Chinese Army has shown a rapid development along Soviet lines in the last year, particularly a great advance in artillery.

Hamblett, Former Midland Man, Dies

Quay Hamblett, former Midland grocer, died in Dallas Friday, it was learned Saturday. He had moved to Dallas from Midland three years ago.

Funeral services will be at the Harveson-Coe Funeral Home in Fort Worth Monday. He is survived by the widow and a son, Donald.

D. F. MOORE DIES

LOMETA —(AP)— One of the pioneer organizers of the Texas Pecan Growers Association, D. F. Moore of Lometa, died at a hospital here Friday.

GI Stages Sit-Down Strike; Protests Ticket To Far East

BLACKSTONE, VA. —(AP)— Prt. Hugh S. Carter sat here in the local railroad station Saturday, calmly waiting for the Army to put a halt to his anti-combat duty sitdown strike.

The 24-year-old Boston, Mass., negro, a conscientious objector, said he expected the MP's would be around to pick him up Monday or Tuesday. He's due at Fort Lawton, Wash., Monday for shipment as a medical corpsman to the Far East Command.

Carter took a seat in the railroad station July 18, after receiving his travel orders with a 12-day delay enroute. He has remained there ever since for most of his waking hours as a protest against being sent to Korea.

Nearby Camp Pickett, where he received his travel orders, has made no move to interfere with Carter's plans as yet. But officers said they would ask Fort Lawton what it wanted done if Carter still was here Monday.

The private has said the reason he didn't protest upon being inducted into the Army was his expectation he would be given a minister's duties in the service.

He is a member of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect, which allows any churchman to preach if he be so inclined.

INDEPENDENCE PAYS:

MORE FOR DOCTORS

Independent physicians top the list. Their incomes averaged $13,378 for 1951 while salaried doctors earned $9,522. The average medical man collected $12,518 which was $980 above 1950.

LESS FOR LAWYERS

Salaried lawyers made more money than independents, earning $10,197 in 1951. Unsalaried legal men made only $8,936. National average for lawyers was $9,375 which was $303 more than 1950.

ALWAYS FOR DENTISTS

Most dentists are independent and they collected $7,856 from their patients in 1951. Salaried dentists are too few to allow estimates. Average dentist made $450 more than in 1950.

For America's three best-paying professions—doctors, lawyers and dentists—independence pays more for some, less for others, as shown in the above news-chart. It shows the average 1951 income for the three professions according to the Office of Business Economics of the Department of Commerce. Physicians make more money when working for themselves, but lawyers, when working on salary, have higher incomes.

Rains Fall Too Late To Help Dixie Crops

ATLANTA—(AP)—Much of drouth-stricken Dixie is beginning to get some rain—but it is too little and too late to save crops.

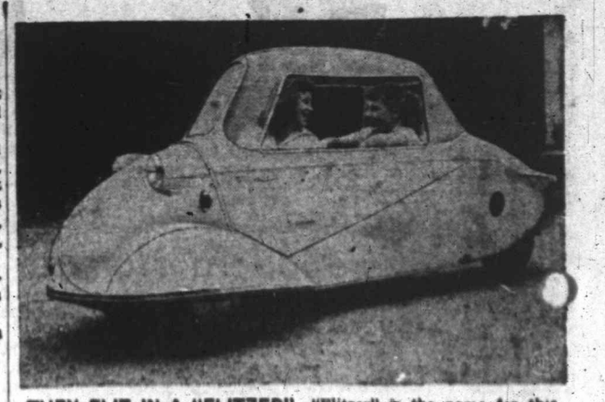

The Atlanta Weather Bureau said Saturday most of the Carolinas, Georgia, East Alabama and East Tennessee had thunder showers during the last 24 hours. Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas had light, scattered showers.

The forecast for the South generally was more scattered showers Sunday.

No heavy general rains are in sight for the South.

DAMP YANKEE RESCUED

TOKYO —(AP)— A woman identified as Patricia Hotson, 21, of Detroit, a civilian employe of the U. S. Army, was rescued Friday night from the moat surrounding the Imperial Palace.

THEY FLIT IN A "FLITZER"—"Flitzer" is the name for this new German auto-scooter, being tried out by a couple of young women in Frankfurt, Germany. Fritz Fend, its inventor and manufacturer, is displaying it there. The tiny car, which can be entered only by swinging open the whole top, has been clocked at well over 60 miles per hour.

Snyder Couple Hurt When Car Overturns

Mr. and Mrs. Elmos Everetts, Snyder, suffered minor injuries Friday, when their automobile overturned several times on the Andrews Highway.

Emergency treatment was given at Midland Memorial Hospital to Everetts for a lacerated nose, and Mrs. Everetts for contusions of the right shoulder and chest.

Attaches said the accident occurred when the Everett's vehicle started to pass a truck and the truck started to make a turn at the same time. In an effort to avoid striking the truck, Everett lost control of his vehicle and it overturned.

RED LIGHT ROBBERY

TOKYO —(AP)— Japanese police Saturday arrested three French sailors and charged them with burglary of a brothel in Yokosuka, the newspaper Asahi reported.

Midlanders Ride Hobbies Hard

☆☆☆

ARTIST — Nell Shaw, whose hobby is art, uses her lap easel for sketching an interior of the room. A portion of one of Miss Shaw's oil paintings can be seen on the wall, hanging above the bronze statue of Mercury. Like most Midland hobbyists, Miss Shaw must find a place for her avocation among many other activities. She is employed in Midland as secretary to the land manager of Shell Oil Company. Miss Shaw lives at 708 West Michigan Street.

BIRDWATCHERS—Mr. and Mrs. John Galley, 1610 West Holloway Street, are one of many husband and wife teams in the Midland hobby field. Their avocation is ornithology. Here, Mrs. Galley records her findings after a recent field trip. The Galleys have identified approximately 127 species of birds in Midland County alone. They estimated their all-time total at 350 species.

MIDLAND WRITER—Rickey, right, and Stephen, sons of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Swords, do a little kibitzing while mamma types a manuscript. Although Mrs. Swords writes chiefly for pleasure, her hobby has its profitable side, too. She has sold a number of cartoon gags to leading publishers. Also, she has written humorous sketches, short stories and skits for the annual minstrel shows.

PHILATELIST—Mrs. L. F. Lees compares engravings on Icelandic stamps from her Scandanavian collection. In the background is a display of Danish commemorative stamps as well as various awards which Mr. and Mrs. Lees have won. His specialty is collecting British and West Indies stamps. The Lees also build model ships and their son, Bill, 12, collects pennants.

MODEL BUILDER—Building miniature ships, planes and cars is Carl Yeckel's hobby. Here he works on his latest project, a model of a Great Lakes schooner. Also on the desk are several plane models which he already has completed, and tacked on the wall is a blueprint for a model he hopes to build soon. Carl is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phil Yeckel. The picture was taken in his home at 1703 West Ohio Street.

☆☆☆

Midland Museum Is Place With A Past

By PATTE ABBOTT

Do you ever wonder what Midland was like in the days when cattle was king?

Do you like to browse around among relics of the past? Like to see history come alive?

If the answer is yes, then the Midland County Museum is the place for you. Mrs. Ruth E. Stumbo, temporary director, or Mrs. Mary Connor, director, will be on hand from 2:30 until 5:30 p.m. Monday, Wednesday and Saturday to answer questions or show you around.

"We have very few days without a good crowd," Mrs. Stumbo said. "And that means adults as well as children."

Work On Projects

Some of the adults, she explained, are working on projects. One woman, for example, needed some information on dress fashions of the early twentieth century. Mrs. Stumbo helped her find her answer in some copies of the Delineator, a woman's magazine no longer in print.

Then there are always requests from the Community Theater and other drama groups. "Usually," she said, they're looking for authentic period costumes or furniture, but sometimes they want to borrow one of the exhibits. Naturally, we try to arrange it when we can."

Mrs. Stumbo listed travelers as another category of museum visitors.

"Not many of them are looking for anything specific," she remarked. "They just seem to happen by."

Appeals To Young And Old

The very young and the very old seem to enjoy the museum the most, she observed. "The children are naturally curious. And the old-timers can stand around for hours laughing and reminiscing about the early days."

"The old-timers particularly enjoy the pictures," she added. "They can tell you who all the people are and just where the buildings stood."

The museum is not limited to local history, though. There are exhibits, documents and books, most of them irreplaceable, dating from the 1700's. One Pueblo pottery wedding jug is thought to be more than 400 years old. There are Bibles from the Civil War and old Sears and Roebuck catalogues with laughably "dated" pictures.

One of the museum's most unusual exhibits is the front page of the Ulster County Gazette carrying the story of George Washington's death.

High on the wall hang a number of cattle brands formerly used by Midland ranchers.

Animals exhibited include a mountain goat, a cougar, rattle snakes, deers' heads, spiders, birds and even one of nature's freaks, a four-legged chicken.

The museum is a happy hunting ground for collectors, too. Among its exhibits are collections of buttons, books, shoes, dolls and arrowheads. (Some of the latter were picked up following a raid on an Oklahoma wagon train.)

All the exhibits have been either contributed or loaned by Midlanders, Mrs. Stumbo said.

As if to prove her point, a little boy walked in with two arrowheads to be put in the museum "for safekeeping."

Another young contributor was not so lucky. He offered a rusty gun barrel which had been found on a vacant lot. He stoutly maintained it was ancient. Mrs. Stumbo held more to the view it was a rusty .22.

In the end, it was turned down temporarily pending identification of type and age.

Not at all discouraged, the young donor went off happily shooting at the stuffed wild life exhibits with his empty gun barrel.

Overcrowding of the museum has forced the directors to be extremely particular about adding new exhibits, Mrs. Stumbo explained.

The museum is located in the basement of the court house.

Midlanders Spend Weekend At Ranch

The party, given by Mrs. Hal Peck, is to honor her daughter, Patti, on her tenth birthday.

Entertainment is to feature swimming, horseback riding, a barbecue, a theater party and a midnight snack. Cowboy favors are to be given to the guests. The group plans to return late Monday.

Those attending are Ann Bodenman, Martha Bowden, Carol Covington, Martha Howard, Dorothy Kelly, Mary Dean Lynn, Sally Moore, Mimi Muldrow, Susan Peck, Anita Queen, Patty Spiars, Sue Washam, Carol Wright and Linda Sue Wooly.

Hughes Circle Has Mission Study

The Hughes Circle of the First Baptist Church met Thursday in the home of Mrs. Charles Neuhardt for mission study.

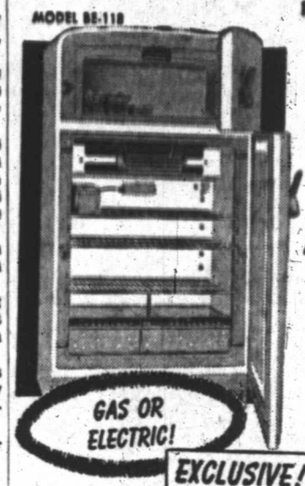

Mrs. Buddy Davis gave the program on "Stewardship in Missions." Mrs. James Colvin gave the opening prayer and the closing prayer was given by Mrs. Joe Angel.

Mrs. O. W. Orson became a new member. Mrs. M. E. Neuhardt and Katrina were guests. Other members present were Mrs. Bill Johnston and Mrs. Joe Ranne.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

"Please straighten me out about red threes in samba," writes a Florida correspondent. "I drew three red threes one after the other at my first turn in a samba game recently. Everybody was confused as to how many cards I should draw to replace them. Can you clear this up?"

This is easy if you remember that you are entitled to two usable cards when it is your turn to draw in samba. A red three is not a usable card, so when you draw one of them you must draw again. You must keep going until you have obtained two usable cards. In this case you would draw a total of five cards: the three red threes and two normal cards.

"I drew one card, a king," writes another fan, "and then picked up a red three as my second card in a samba draw. I replaced the red three at once, getting a queen. Do I get another draw to make two cards drawn from the stock pile?"

No. You have already received two normal cards — the king and queen. That is all you are entitled to.

"Our opponents in a game of samba had two red threes but only one canasta," writes a St. Louis correspondent. "They said they got full credit of 300 points for the canasta, but no points at all for the red threes. We said they got 300 points for the canasta, and minus 200 for the red threes, giving them a bonus score of only 100 points altogether. Who is right?"

My correspondent is correct. The opponents get 300 for the canasta and lose 200 for the red threes, giving them a net score of only 100 points. When you have two canastas, your red threes are assets, but until that time they are liabilities. Red threes are never just neutral; they always count either for you or against you.

"When are you allowed to discard a red three in canasta or samba?" asks a Pittsburgh fan.

Never—but never. There are no exceptions to this rule, and there never have been. A red three can get into the discard pile if the dealer turns one up at the very beginning of a hand—but that's the only way a red three can land in that pile.

1,800 Reservists Flock To Fort Hood For Training Period

FORT HOOD —(AP)— More than 1,800 reservists of the 75th Infantry Division will arrive here Sunday to begin a two-week training period.

The Organized Reserve Corps division is composed of units from Southern Texas and Louisiana with headquarters in Houston.

Preceding the arrival of the main body, 100 advance party members have begun setting up facilities. Lending support is the First Armored Division's 25th Armored Infantry Battalion.

The training stay here will mark the first group appearance for the 75th Division since its organization as an ORC unit in March.

Training officers said Saturday that individual training of 75th Infantrymen will begin Monday and last through the week. Battalions will undergo field problems the second week with the final three days being devoted to a bivouac.

The division was activated in April of 1943 and saw its first action in December of the following year. After participating in several European campaigns during World War II, it returned to the U. S. in November of 1945 and was inactivated.

It Pays To Take Time For Summer Eye Care

Backyard beauty is a definite possibility, if you learn to utilize your outdoor hours. As you sun, or shade, tweeze your eyebrows of straggly hairs (above). Then, when evening arrives, complete your grooming efforts by sweeping your lashes excitingly upward (insert) with the help of a curler.

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

There is much more to beautiful brows and lashes than meets the eye. It is the behind-the-scenes treatment that makes your mascara, eye shadow and eyebrow pencil effective.

If you have always yearned for long, thick lashes, don't think clipping them at the ends will do the trick, because it won't. Lashes grow from the roots where the new tissues appear. You'll get much better results by gently pulling your lashes several times a day.

The three beauty tools necessary for your eye grooming are a good professional tweezer, a rich lash pomade and an eyelash curler.

Choose a tweezer for its precision and firm-gripping jaws. One of the most efficient of these implements features scissors handles which make it easy for you to operate. The ends of this particular type of tweezer are blunt in order to prevent any nipping of the skin around the delicate eye area.

Be careful never to pull hairs out at right angles or against the natural growth. A soft cloth, wrung out in hot water and applied to your brows just before you tweeze, will prepare the area and reduce discomfort.

A midget-sized tweezer, packaged in a tiny plastic case, is available for you to carry in your handbag or keep in your desk at the office for quick repairs.

A colorless lash pomade, or lash cream, will give depth and grace to your brows and lashes. Since lashes are constantly replacing themselves and are in all stages of growth at the same time, the hairs need training. Lash pomade will help to keep them smooth and pliable and also direct their growth.

The last step in your eye-grooming ritual is the use of the eyelash curler. Simply insert the lashes into the curved rubber cushion designed for the purpose and press the scissors handles firmly together while you count up slowly to 30.

When you release them, you'll be delighted to see your lashes curve upward. The eyelash curler also comes in a purse-style size with its own carrying case that protects it and keeps it folded into a small space.

College Clothes Are Feminine And Neat

The college coed's wardrobe this Fall will take on a new importance. The sloppy skirt and sweater combination, worn with loafers and anklets, is gone. The fashion wise coed this year will fill her wardrobe with neat and feminine clothes.

Midland coeds won't have to look far to select a pretty and practical wardrobe for the forthcoming college year. Midland stores are featuring a variety of pretty and fashion-wise clothes to fit the college girl's needs and budget.

Because it is easy to wash and needs no ironing the smart college girl should look to nylon and orlon for her clothes this year. You can get washable pleated skirts, fashionable dresses, blouses and all types of lingerie in this new, easy to wash material.

As for color, blonde tones seem to be the rage of the season. Everything from slacks to formals are shown in various shades of blonde through brown.

The smart young look of the sweater dress has taken on a fresh importance this Fall. Shown in both one and two piece styles the dresses are knit to fit and will be a must in any coed's wardrobe. The dresses are dressed up or down with leather or matching belts and various types of jewelry.

Corduroy is still with us shown in all types of dresses, skirts, jackets and weskets. The new pinwale corduroy looks almost like velvet and is perfect for mix and match ensembles.

Odd jackets and skirts will be an advantage to the smart young collegian this Fall. A completely new line of odd jackets are available to the Midland coeds this year and they offer a variety of different ensembles with your skirt wardrobe.

Skirts and blouses or sweaters, as always, will be good this year on all college campuses. However, the sweaters take on a new look. They are fitted with a dressy appearance.

For the leisure hours spent in the dorm the new home coat in gold prints are pretty and practical. Again nylon takes over in all styles and colors in pajamas and shortie robes.

Third For Presbyterians—

'Westminster' Selected As Name Of New Midland Church

Westminster Presbyterian Church was selected unanimously as the name of a new Presbyterian Church, Midland's third, by a large group of prospective members attending a lawn social Friday night at the home of Dr. and Mrs. M. S. Dickerson.

The new church would be located on property already acquired in the 2600 block of West Louisiana Street in West Midland. It would serve Presbyterians residing in that general area.

It was announced that 132 adults have signed a petition requesting charter membership in the new organization, thereby assuring prompt organization of the church. The every member visitation program will continue through August.

Marked interest was shown in selecting a name for the new church, with numerous suggestions offered.

Worship Service Held

Following the social, a program of singing and worship was held.

The Rev. Flynn V. Long, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, moderated the meeting. Leila McGeath, director of religious education for the First Church, had charge of the children's program.

The new church, sponsors announced, will be constituted as a congregation at the Midland meeting of the El Paso Presbytery on September 4.

Members of the steering, religious education and pulpit committees, all temporary, were alerted as to their duties and responsibilities.

Plans for organizing the new congregation first were mapped at a meeting of interested persons early last month, when a goal of 100 charter members was established.

The organization of Westminster Church is sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church, as was the St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, which was started late in 1950. Dr. R. Matthew Lynn is pastor of the First Church.

The Presbyterian program of expansion is designed to keep pace with the rapid growth and development in Ever-Growing Midland.

Bandits Recaptured By Posse Of 200

SPRINGFIELD, VT. —(AP)— Two desperadoes who escaped from state prison Wednesday and, police said, fatally bludgeoned a housewife after midnight, were captured Saturday after a brief but intense manhunt.

Part of a posse of more than 200 state police, hunters and other volunteers flushed the escapes out of the woods near Bishop's farm about three miles from the home of Donald G. Weatherup, 56, which was broken into during the night.

Mrs. Elizabeth Weatherup, 54, died in Springfield hospital a few hours after she was brutally slugged by the two intruders.

Supreme Court May Hear Rape-Murder Case Against Pair

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Two negro airmen sentenced to death by a military court in the 1948 rape-murder of a government girl on Guam have lost their plea for a civil court review of their case.

The U. S. Court of Appeals, in a 2-1 decision, upheld the decision of a U. S. District Court and said the airmen had suffered no loss of their constitutional rights in the court martial conviction.

It did, however, stay the execution for 60 days to permit counsel to appeal to the Supreme Court.

The airmen—S/Sgt. Robert W. Burns of Spokane, Wash., and Pvt. Herman P. Dennis, Jr., of Calvert, Texas—were arrested by military authorities after the body of Ruth Farnsworth, civilian employe of the Air Force, was found at the Pacific base. They now are being held in Japan.

Their counsel had contended the men were held incommunicado by military authorities, that confessions had been obtained by force, and that the trial was held in an "atmosphere of terror, hysteria and vengeance."

Hamilton Earns Air Force Wings

Robert W. Hamilton, Jr., son of District Judge and Mrs. R. W. (Bob) Hamilton, received Saturday the silver wings of an Air Force pilot and was commissioned a second lieutenant in ceremonies at Webb Air Force Base in Big Spring.

Forty-eight other aviation cadets were honored similarly when Class 52-E marked the end of a year of intensive training.

Members of the graduating class and their guests heard an address by guest speaker Richard Kleburg, former congressman from the 14th District in Texas and present chairman of the board of the famed King Ranch.

A graduate of Midland High School, Lieutenant Hamilton attended the University of Texas in Austin, where he received his BA degree in 1951.

Immediately prior to his present training assignment at Webb, he was stationed at Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, where he took his first phase of pilot training.

The newly commissioned jet pilot entered active military service in 1951.

Ballerina Suggests Taking Steps

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Ballerina Irene Hawthorne has no illusions about her lovely figure. She knows that the only way she can keep it perfectly proportioned is to exercise every single day.

"I don't like to exercise any more than most people," she confides, "but because of the demands of my dancing career, I realize it is absolutely essential."

Being a fresh-air enthusiast, Miss Hawthorne makes her exercise period pleasanter by spending it on the roof of her apartment house. To allow for complete mobility, she always wears shorts and a blouse.

"The keynote of making exercise effective," says Irene Hawthorne, "is to exercise it slowly and with the precision of a military maneuver. It's harder at a slow pace, but it shows results."

One effective way of dealing with a protruding hipline is to employ "bumping." Sit on the floor with your legs stretched out straight and stiff before you. Point your toes. Lean back to rest your weight on your hands, palms down, about 18 inches behind you.

Using your arms as a lever, stiff and unbent at the elbows, raise your body, twist to the right and vigorously bump the hip against the floor five times. Return to the original position. Repeat on the other hip.

To flatten your stomach and whittle down a waistline, put your right foot before you, the right arm behind your waist. Place your left foot behind you, with the foot at right angles to the right foot. Raise your left arm, stiff and straight, reaching with it, and bend from the waist, brining the arm over and down until it touches the outside of the right ankle.

Slowly come up, keeping your back flat and your torso stiff as you lean back as far as you can without raising the right foot off the ground. Do this five times and then reverse and repeat with the right arm touching the outside of the left ankle.

When your exercise period is over, stresses the red-headed ballerina, resist the impulse to flop down in a handy chair and take a long drink of water. Instead of water, eat a piece of fruit, and then hie yourself off to the bathroom and take a cool, invigorating shower.

Exercise is absolutely essential for a perfectly proportioned figure," advises ballerina Irene Hawthorne. "To reduce the upper leg, swinging the leg back and forth is simple but effective, above. For your hips, sit on the floor, bend the left leg at the knee so that the inside of the thigh lies flat on the floor. Bend your other leg in the same fashion. Put your hands on your hips and revolve your body from left to right." (Insert above.)

To Rebuild A Marriage Hit By Infidelity Takes Both Partners

"If a man deceives his wife once by an affair with another woman can she ever trust him again?" The wife who asks me that question adds: "He says he was a fool; that he really loves me and that it will never happen again. But can I believe him?"

That depends a great deal on two things. The first is the character of the man you're married to.

If he is a man of strong character who has made a mistake he is ashamed of and genuinely sorry for, if in the past your happiness has been important to him, then you've every right to believe that he means what he says.

If he is a weak sister, selfish and unreliable, then chances are he is likely to get involved in other affairs.

The second important consideration is how you mean to behave toward him.

Forget The Past

If you are strong enough and understanding enough to let the past be buried you will be able to help him keep his word. That means that you must not only stop talking about the matter, you must show him in every way that you do trust him, that you love him, and that you aren't sorry that you married him.

The future of a marriage that has been weakened by infidelity depends not alone on the person who was unfaithful.

It depends on both partners—on their maturity, their willingness to forget the past and live in the present, their honest desire to get back to the unity that was once theirs, and their belief in their own and each other's worth as human beings.

NEW YORK—In his book, "The American Commonwealth," James Bryce, the eminent English historian devoted a whole chapter to "Why Great Men Did Not Become President." He had in mind, particularly, such statesmen as Clay, Calhoun and Webster, and pointed out that it takes a combination of ability, acceptability and luck to get this highest office in the United States—something which these men did not attain, although they are more famous than most of our Presidents. Today some of the candidates of both political parties might well read this chapter which is as appropiate now as it was 65 years ago when it was written. Its big lesson is that greatness is not necessarily determined by whether one wins or loses.

Marshall Field, II, who spends a good deal of his time in New York tells how his father who founded the famous Chicago store of that name used to arrive at the store each morning a half hour before it opened, and kept a sharp eye on the tiniest details. One morning he came upon a male clerk who was arguing hotly with a female replied that he was settling a complaint. "No you're not," said Field. "Give the lady what she wants?"

I always thought the Indians left New York when they sold Manhattan to the white—men at the supposedly-bargain rate of $25. But this is a popular fallacy, I learned upon talking to some of the men who build the local skyscrapers. A lot of Indians still live here and they specialize on construction work in the dizzy heights of the tallest buildings. Even then, several Mohawks were working atop the building on 3rd Avenue operating with hammer and tongs and red-hot rivets and moving about the lofty girders like surefooted cats. Why, I asked, did these red-skins do this work? It seems that for many years, these Indians have been adept at this working in "high iron," they call it; they took it up generations ago when they found that such height did not bother them; they get paid well for it, are agile like their mountain-climbing ancestor; and it gives them a chance to work together—something they like. Also, about 400 of these Mohawks live in an "Indian village" in Brooklyn.

• • •

The traffic was whizzing by on Lexington Avenue when gradually at one point it jammed up and virtually came to a stop. In the middle of the street, a dapper little old man had been caught between the red and green lights, and suddenly found himself a shaky human island in a sea of rushing motors. He wavered, started backward, then forward, a taxi screeched to a stop, and a passenger car almost hit him as it shot by. Noting this obstruction, all traffic stopped, and all eyes—there must have been 200 of us—fastened upon him. Realizing that he was the center of attention, but nevertheless, not chagrined, the little man straightened up, adjusted the rose in his button-hole, and twirling his cane over his smart well-worn spats, smiled primly at us as he took his time and walked briskly to the other side of the street.

• • •

There's something mighty nice about clean clothes. Of course I can speak only from the masculine viewpoint, but a clean shirt, a newly-pressed suit and shoes neatly shined surely make a person feel just a little more important in this life. The Laundry and dry cleaners often can do as much for a man as his lawyer and doctor, it seems to me. Turned out on a bright morning in clean, nice—fitting clothes, a man just feels more self-reliant, more acceptable in society, enough confidence in himself to be President—and there's no doubt, he looks better.

• • •

A prominent executive and his wife were passing through Grand Central Station and she stopped a minute to make a phone call in a booth. He waited politely outside. When she came out, her face wore a look that was very pleasant—except it seemed to be a little like that of the cat who swallowed the mouse. "You know," she said to him in a low voice which I barely could hear, "that telephone made a mistake, and when I got through calling, six dimes came out." He raised his eyebrows. "I hope you put them back?" he said. She chortled as she took his arm, "I certainly did not!"

U. S. Border Patrol Leader Is Straight-Shootin' Texan

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The chief of the U. S. Border Patrol is a straight-shootin' Texan from Laredo.

He's 38-year-old Harlon B. Carter, and comes by his job naturally. His father, Horace B. Carter, joined the Border Patrol immediately after it was created in 1924 and now at 63 is immigrant inspector at Laredo.

The younger Carter, after leaving the University of Texas in 1935, became a border patrolman stationed at Del Rio. At Texas U., incidentally, he earned some of his expenses by working as a night watchman at the State Land Office and doubling as a wrestling coach at Gregory gym.

He looks as he still could handle himself on the mat, all six feet and 202 pounds of him. His hair's getting a little thin, but his smiling blue eyes are keen enough for him to be one of the crack pistol and rifle marksmen of the nation.

He has won three world's records, one of which still stands. That was won in 1946 when he got 193 consecutive bull's eyes with a .22 automatic pistol. He won the National Rifle Association 1938 .45 caliber automatic pistol championship with a score of 288 out of 300 possible points, and the 1939 .38 revolver championship with 291 out of 300.

No Glamor In Job

Noteworthy is the fact that in his 16 years in the border patrol he has never resorted to shooting to carry out his duties.

"Our work is interesting, but it's not unduly glamorous or spectacular," Carter says.

"It involves a lot of routine and careful checking. You have to be on the alert, and double check individuals when there's the slightest indication everything's not all right."

He told of an experience he had when stationed at Hebbronville and was watching all automobile traffic coming north from the border. A big expensive sedan approached and he hailed it down for a routine check of its occupants, two men and two women.

"One of the men looked like an Italian, one like a Scandinavian, and the two women were obviously Mexican," he related.

"When I questioned the men they said they were from Illinois and had been down to South Texas on business and were returning home. I asked the woman a question and got no reply. I repeated it in Spanish and they said they were from a small Texas border town.

"Although I was beginning to get suspicious, I at first didn't have any real excuse for holding them further and was about to let them go when I discovered the corner of a pink circular sticking out from under the front seat and recognized it as a bull fight program.

"They denied they had been across the border. Confronted by the program, they acknowledged they had come up fom Mexico and were taking the Mexican women to Chicago for purposes of prostitution.

Prison Terms Assessed

The result of that incident, Carter added, was that federal and state authorities broke up one of the biggest white slave operations ever uncovered in Chicago. Prison sentences were given the two men arrested.

Mexican authorities on the whole cooperate wholeheartedly, according to Carter, but the most effective enforcement of immigration laws comes through the personal relationship between the individual border patrolmen and the people on both sides of the Rio Grande.

When they get to know a patrolman and have confidence in him he added, they tip him off to suspicious individuals and doings.

Since Congress recently refused to grant an expanded budget for border patrol work against "wetbacks" (Mexicans who enter the U. S. illegally) the agency says it is forced to devote most of its attention to watching out for subversive and criminal aliens.

Carter also served with the Border Patrol in El Paso and Marfa and during World War Two was in New Orleans and Atlanta handling interned Japanese and Germans.

He came to Washington May 17, 1950, to take over his present post as chief of the patrol, supervising some 1,500 men operating on the Mexican and Canadian borders, plus a handful who check ships entering large coastal ports.

Pride In Service

There's a real pride of service among the men in the Border Patrol, declares Carter. He lets you know that Uncle Sam picks the cream of the crop among thousands who apply for an opening. They go through a two-months school at El Paso, studying immigration law and Spanish.

They don't have to know Spanish when they join, he said, but that is a qualification taken into consideration when looking over applicants. They have to learn it pronto, and in six months are given a test. A year after joining they go through another test in Spanish, and if they don't make a satisfactory grade they are out.

In the law course, the men are painstakingly drilled in the statutes covering their responsibilities and authority. Carter says that since he has been in the service he has not yet seen a false arrest charge sustained against a patrolman.

The starting salary of the border patrolman is $4,205 per year, and through seniority of service can automatically go up to $4,965 annually. Those who achieve posts of responsibility beyond that of ordinary patrolman get additional pay.

Heading the enforcement division of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, under which the Border Patrol comes, is Willard Kelly.

The MATURE PARENT

Train Children To Face Envy, Malice Of Workaday World

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

I know a charming, intelligent young woman with a degree from a noted university who, although talented, has made poor progress in her work.

Recently she applied for a job. After her interview, she called me excitedly to tell me that her prospective employer had promised her $5000 a year, quick increases and sure advancement. "Isn't it blissful?" she asked me. "The woman I talked to was so kind and helpful! It's just the job I've been waiting for!"

When the job didn't materialize, she came to see me as depressed as she had been exhilarated.

I said, "Beth, what led you to want to believe in the integrity of someone who made you such big promises without knowing anything important about you?"

She stared at me. Then her lovely blue eyes filled with tears. "Oh, Mrs. Lawrence," she reproached me, "if you talk like that, you'll destroy my faith in people!"

* * *

This is a dependent child. Her training in "faith" in everyone's loving kindness has been bad training. It has been training in evasion and dependence.

Her university degree has not been able to counterbalance this evasive dependence. Her need to believe in the goodwill and kindness of everyone she has worked for is a self-protective device. She has to believe in them because she does not know what to do with ill-will and unkindness. To survive, she has had to pretend that they do not exist. As they do exist, she has had a hard time surviving.

As human beings are only loving and kind part of the time, children get into trouble when they don't know how to handle what goes on in human beings the rest of the time.

Our universities recently graduated thousands of young Americans into the world of ambition, malice and envy as well as the world of justice and kindness. I sincerely hope they are not going to entrust their professional futures to the loving kindness of their associates without sufficient reasons to do so.

* * *

Harry's success as a business man may depend not on his degree but on his fearless recognition of envy in himself and those around him. Mary's art degree will be of small use if she feels it is ignoble to see through the unwarranted criticism by her ambitious advertising director.

It is our refusal to brief young people on the malice and envy of the workaday world that makesthem their victims. We refuse this education because we secretly fear what malice and envy can do. We take refuge from the burden of this instruction in pious talk about "faith" and "trust" in people. Instead we should say, "Where there are justice and love, trust them. Where there are none, do not trust."

I was shocked by the attitude of my young friend. Her parents are adults who pride themselves on their religious devotion and moral worth. We have no moral or religious grounds at all for ascribing good motives to those who are struggling with bad ones. We are just afraid of what the bad ones can do to us.

JACOBY ON CANASTA

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

In my last article I began a description of "Cut-throat Canasta," the new three-hand game that Fleur Cowles taught me on her recent return from South America. The new game is stirring up fresh enthusiasm even among those who have been playing canasta since it was first invented.

Suppose you happen to play this game against two other canasta enthusiasts—Adam and Eve, for example. Adam grabs the discard pile after a while, and he proceeds to meld a mixed canasta of aces, another of mixed canasta of kings, and three queens. Then he discards.

You and Eve are now partners. No matter what Adam has discarded, you don't take it. Draw your normal two cards from the stock pile and then meld as much as possible. Try to avoid using wild cards, because you don't want to spoil a possible natural canasta or two; but by all means, get down fast with as much as you can.

Eve, likewise, will meld liberally and quickly. A hand doesn't last very long, so you can't wait around with your melds. Eve will discard safely in order to prevent Adam from getting any more discard piles.

You, however, discard to your partner; so you can discard as helpful a card as possible each time.

In general, the longer the hand lasts, the more can be done by the two partners acting together against a single opponent. The lone wolf wins most of the short hands (when he melds out quickly); and the partners win most of the long hands.

For this reason, it isn't a good idea to meld out in a hurry when you have a partner. If you are in position to meld out, you must ask permission to do so at least once during the course of the hand. This rule doesn't apply to the lone wolf, of course, since he has no partner to give or refuse permission.

Each player counts his own red threes, but all other scores made by two partners are given to each of them.

For example, suppose Adam (the lone wolf) goes out with a score of 1,125. He gets that amount in his column. You have one red three, and Eve has two red threes. You get 100, and she gets 200.

Your combined melds and bonuses come to 890 points, but when Adam melded out he caught you with 100 points in your hand while Eve had 60 points. You subtract 160 from 890, leaving a partnership score of 730 points. You and Eve each get that 730 points.

Your full score for the hand is therefore 830 points, and Eve's is 930 points (counting the red threes as well). Since Adam scored 1,125 points, he goes a little ahead of you and Eve.

We'll have more to say about this game next week.

Failure To Report Expenses Creates Income Tax News

GALVESTON—(AP)—When a man exaggerates his expenditures so as to save on income tax—that's a common occurrence.

But when a man deliberately doesn't report business expenses so that his income tax will be bigger—that's news. And it represents a "headache" for the Social Security Service.

Sam F. Ward, Jr., field manager for the Galveston SS branch, told of the new income tax ruse. He said some self-employed, included this year for the first time under SS coverage, are suspected of boosting their net earnings up to the $600 minimum on which they can claim benefits.

"There are some self-employed persons," said Ward, "who may not have a net income of $600 after all allowable deductions are taken. They may be nearing or past the 65-year retirement age, and national SS authorities believe that in some instances they elected not to take the deductions so as to be eligible for the annual benefits when they retired.

Regional CAA Chief Lauds Progress At Air Terminal

A very favorable report regarding the Midland Air Terminal facilities was made by S. E. Travis of Fort Worth, regional chief of the airports branch, after a tour of inspection Friday afternoon.

Travis said "a lot of progress has been made since my visit here a year ago." "All of the space has been fully utilized."

The regional airport chief was accompanied by J. D. Church of Abilene, West Texas district engineer for the Civil Aeronautics Administration, and Cliff Green of Austin, director of the Texas Aeronautics Commission.

The officials particularly were pleased with the new $65,000 modern tower which will be ready for occupancy by the CAA in about 10 weeks.

They announced that work will start soon to re-seal the airport runways and construction of a 500 foot paved new taxiway.

Arriving here in a Beachcraft Bonanza, the officials were greeted by Perry Pickett, mayor of Midland; Bill Oswalt, city manager; Berwin Hines, assistant manager of the chamber of commerce; and Clyde G. Sharrer, manager of the air terminal.

THE SAME OLD STORY

DALLAS —(AP)— Five persons saw a bright object flash across the sky over Dallas Friday night about 8 o'clock.

All described the object about the same. They said it was white or silvery and moved at high speed in a northward direction. one man said it did not appear to be a meteor.

Three Texas Women Killed In Tennessee

ROGERSVILLE, TENN. —(AP)— A vacation trip ended in death for three Texas women here when two autos rammed into a trailer-truck on a rain-slick highway.

Five other persons were injured, one critically.

Among the less seriously hurt was Mrs. Velma Porter, 50, of Weslaco.

Highway patrolmen said the car occupied by the Texas women and driven by Mrs. Ratajara skidded into the truck near here Friday a portion of the truck blocked the highway and a car carrying a group of Virginians plowed into the big vehicle. Injured critically was Mrs. Bill Nichols, 21, of Richmond, Va.

The four Texas women were enroute home after a trip to Canada and Washington, D. C.

Colonel Wright Going Strong At 80

This is a story about an ancient issue of a New York newspaper.

It also concerns a well-known Midland man to whom the old newspaper belongs—handed down to him by his grandmother.

The newspaper is the Saturday, April 15, 1865, issue of The New York Herald—the issue which carried complete stories on the assassination of President Lincoln the night previous.

The Midlander is Colonel J. B. Wright, 505 East Florida Street, one of the best-known Irishmen in Midland and vicinity. He also is known well and favorably in fraternal, sports and civic affairs circles here.

Colonel Wright is a native Texan, born 80 years ago (March 19, 1872) in Austin, where his grandfather, who migrated to the United States from Ireland in 1811, built that city's first Masonic Hall. Despite his 80 years, the colonel today is as erect, alert, aggressive and as active as most men half his age.

The colonel, however, strayed far and wide from Texas after reaching young manhood, and it was not until 13 years ago that he returned to Texas, coming to Midland to make his home. He is a former soldier, professional baseball player, newspaperman and what have you. One thing is for sure, Colonel Wright has enjoyed to the utmost every venture and adventure in which he has been engaged. And he still is enjoying life and doing his best to see that others too, enjoy themselves and get more out of life than they otherwise might. Things come to life and good humor prevails when Colonel Wright enters most any group.

But back to the 1865 issue of the New York newspaper, which, incidentally, Colonel Wright keeps wrapped in a 1936 issue of The Bay City, Michigan, Times.

"Do anything you want with me, but don't lose, destroy or harm this newspaper," admonished the colonel when he brought the ancient issue to The Reporter-Telegram. And Colonel Wright meant what he said.

The newspaper actually was an

Colonel Wright

"extra," published at 8:10 a.m. on that eventful day back in 1865—the day on which President Lincoln died at 7:22 a.m.

A brief War Department bulletin, issued at 7:30 a.m. and addressed to Major General Dix, New York, said:

"Abraham Lincoln died this morning at twenty-two minutes past seven o'clock." The message was signed by Edwin M. Stanton, Secretary of War.

The assassination of the President while in his box at the crowded Ford's Theater in Washington, is described in detail in several page-one stories of the four-page newspaper which, incidentally, carried no pictures. The price was four cents per copy.

The scene at the deathbed of Mr. Lincoln is described in another story.

The lead story actually was a War Department communique issued soon after the assassination. It read:

"This evening about 9:30 p.m. at Ford's Theater, the President, while sitting in his private box with Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Harris and Major Rathburn, was shot by an assassin, who suddenly entered the box and approached behind the President.

"Leaped Upon Stage"

"The assassin then leaped upon the stage, brandishing a large dagger or knife, and made his escape in the rear of the theater.

"The pistol ball entered the back of the President's head and penetrated almost through the head. The wound is mortal.

"The President has been insensible ever since it was inflicted, and is now dying.

"About the same hour an assassin, whether the same or not, entered Mr. Seward's apartments, and under pretense of having a prescription, was shown to the secretary's sick chamber. The assassin immediately rushed to the bed and inflicted two or three stabs on the throat and two on the face.

"It is hoped the wounds may not be mortal. My apprehension is that they will not prove fatal.

"The nurse alarmed Mr. Frederick Seward, who was in an adjoining room, and he hastened to the door of his father's room, when he met the assassin, who inflicted upon him one or more dangerous wounds. The recovery of Frederick Seward is doubtful.

"It is not probable that the President will live through the night.

"General Grant and wife were advertised to be at the theater this evening, but he started to Burlington at six o'clock this evening.

"Speedy Peace"

"At a cabinet meeting, at which General Grant was present, the subject of the state of the country and the prospect of a speedy peace was discussed. The President was very cheerful and hopeful, and spoke very kindly of General Lee and others of the Confederacy and of the establishment of government in Virginia.

"All members of the Cabinet except Mr. Seward, are now in attendance upon the President.

"I have seen Mr. Seward, but he and Frederick were both unconscious.

"Edwin M. Stanton,
"Secretary of War."

All stories were datelined Washington, D. C. Four of the paper's six page-one columns were devoted to the assassination and death of the President.

The issue did not have a banner or streamer across the front page, the major stories appearing under a one-column, one-line head, "Important."

Another front page story was headed, "The Rebels," with the following sub-heads: "Jeff Davis at Danville;" "His Latest Appeal to His Deluded Followers;" "He Thinks the Fall of Richmond a Blessing in Disguise, as it Leaves the Rebel Armies Free to Move from Point to Point;" "He vainly Promises to Hold Virginia at All Hazards;" "Lee and His Army Supposed to Be Safe." Two columns are devoted to Civil War news.

Market Overstocked

The market, too, was overstocked with shad, "they went off slowly at $50 per pair."

The New York Herald, of which James Gordon Bennett was editor and proprietor, said editorially, "An unlooked for and terrible calamity has befallen the nation . . ."

One item which doubtless was well received by the adult males said, "In compliance with instructions received from the bureau of the Provost Marshal General of the United States, the business of recruiting and drafting will be discontinued in this district until further orders . . ."

Rejoicing in the streets of New York over the fall of Richmond was reported. The question of "reconstruction" also was being discussed.

Several columns in the newspaper were devoted to foreign news.

The advertisements appearing in the yellowed issue, too, are something to behold.

Prices Reduced

"Gold is down.—All persons requiring artificial teeth should visit the show rooms . . ." is the way one ad read. Others proclaimed:

"We have this day reduced the prices twenty per cent on our stock of gas fixtures and lamps."

"Radway's Ready Relief—The great cornerstone of medicines."

"Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup—The great blood purifier."

"Old eyes made new without spectacles."

"Grover and Baker's First Premium Stitch and Lock Stitch Sewing Machines."

"Corns, Bunions and other diseases of the feet cured."

"'Love on the Brain'—A Mirth-Provoking Song."

Colonel Wright now can have his treasured and most interesting newspaper back.

Thanks, Colonel!

HOW HAVE THE MIGHTY FALLEN—Atlantico, the once-proud white stallion Benito Mussolini rode in scores of Fascist parades and reviews, now humbly pulls a sightseeing carriage around Rome. Immediately after the war, the 20-year-old horse was bought by a movie company and used in several films. Now, with little demand for horse cabs, the owners of Il Duce's old steed accept any pay load, such as the load of hay he's pulling above.

Death-House Chaplain Prays For 36 Condemned Prisoners

EDDYVILLE, KY.—(AP)—". . . The peace of God passeth all understanding. . . ."

And this, believes a Baptist minister who has seen 36 convicts die in the electric chair at Eddyville State Penitentiary, is what sustains a condemned man in his last days.

The Rev. L. J. Knoth, 71, a prison chaplain for nine years until his recent retirement, said the condemned reached out for spiritual consolation. He saw only two men go to the chair unrepentant and without professing belief in God.

"The Lord made us so we can adjust to the circumstances, whatever they may be. It's amazing how they adjust on death row. Very few times have I seen any fear," said the tall, gray-haired missionary Baptist minister.

He said he'd never heard of a prisoner on death's threshhold asking for whisky or narcotics to steady him.

"I'm sure such a request would be refused should it be made," he added.

Task Has Reward

The business of preparing the condemned to meet their Maker is a dreary one; its reward is a profession of faith.

The chaplain is with the man to the end. He walks to the chair with him and stands beside it as he is strapped in. Then the chaplain offers a little prayer with a promise, such as this:

"Lord, this man's soul is coming to meet Thee. Grant through Thy grace and mercy that he may meet Thee in peace."

As the prayer ends, generators whir, a switch is pulled, and another man has paid with his life for his crimes.

Rev. Knoth saw seven executions in one night—the most ever performed in Kentucky's electric chair at one time, and a record for the nation. He found the experience shattering.

Among The Doomed

What made the executions particularly dreadful to Rev. Knoth was that he became attached to the men in what usually was a long association.

"If I didn't, I would have felt my heart was not right," he explained.

The chaplain usually found death row occupants and other prisoners defiant when he first appproached them.

Most of them are not interested in religion or much of anything else, at first. But they're here for a long time—the capital offenders to await appeals to higher courts, the lesser criminals to serve out their terms.

"Through the years, most of them realize their situation. Practically all make professions of faith. They have nowhere else to turn."

How does the chaplain feel about capital punishment?

"It's a hangover from barbarism. It's not the best way. When you've witnessed it, you don't believe in it. Being human beings it's hard for us to know just what justice is. . . I don't believe it helps, but the question is how to do it better."

Freedom Of American Press Stems From Printer's Trial

Editor's Note: Freedom of the press is a cherished right of free men under a free government, but it was not always so. Through the years it has been the object of continuing attack and hard-fought battles dearly won. Raising of news barriers over the world and the valiant battle of vigilant editors against creeping censorship give a special emphasis to this anniversary story, a summary of the history of the problem in this country.

By JOHN R. MORRIS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The court trial of a poor immigrant printer 217 years ago next Monday had much to do with the kind of newspaper you are reading.

It was Aug. 4, 1735, that John Peter Zenger, the little printer, came to trial in a crammed New York court.

He had been charged with libel for writing that New York's high-tempered colonial governor, William Cosby, endangered liberty by tampering with the people's right to a jury trial.

What happened in that court before nightfall crystallized colonial opinion, altered the nation's Constitution and influenced court decisions—past and present.

Unexpectedly, a prominent 80-year-old Philadelphia lawyer named Andrew Hamilton showed up just before the trial to defend Zenger.

Right off, the white-haired Hamilton surprised the judges by quietly admitting Zenger published the paper in question.

The governor's attorney shouted that the admission, under the laws of that day, amounted to a plea of guilty. Zenger was guilty, he yelled not for printing untruths, but for criticizing a government official.

Hamilton fired back, claiming Zenger was innocent unless his words were false.

At this, the red-robed English judges stopped Hamilton and said, "you cannot be admitted, Mr. Hamilton, to give the truth of libel as evidence."

Hamilton bowed to the court, and slowly turned to the jury.

"Then gentlemen of the jury," he said, "it is to you we must now appeal.

"This is not the case of a poor printer, nor of New York alone. No! It may affect . . . every free man. . . .

"An impartial and uncorrupt verdict will give the right of exposing and opposing arbitrary power . . . by speaking and writing the truth."

Right Of Jury

In short order, after Hamilton's speech ended, the jury returned a verdict of innocent amid cheers from the spectators.

Despite the verdict, the principals for which Hamilton argued — truth as a defense against libel, and the right of a jury to determine whether a publication is defamatory — were not accepted in the U. S. for some 60 years.

However, Zenger's trial crystallized public opinion concerning the freedom of newspapers.

This was evidenced twice within the next 50 years, once in 1765 when the British imposed a newspaper tax, and again after the Revolution when Massachusetts imposed a similar levy.

The people feared the right to tax might become the right to censor, control or destroy newspapers, and they cried out in loud protest. Both levies were quickly repealed.

After the Constitution was written, Thomas Jefferson begged that the states withhold ratification until freedom of the press, among other things, was specifically included.

Freedom Of Speech

As a result, the First Amendment stipulated "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press. . . ."

In the years that followed, the courts over the growing U. S. held that freedom of the press included the right to publish without prior censorship—federal, state or municipal.

Taken together, the court decisions add up to this:

If you're a newsman and can get it, you can print it. If what you print is obscene or libelous, you may be held accountable.

But if you are held accountable, it will be in front of a jury which will consider the evidence according to the principles pleaded for in the little printer's trial 217 years ago.

Dallas Housewife Adds Her Name To Texas Author Ranks

DALLAS—(AP)—A Dallas housewife with a typewriter and some free time has added her name to the ranks of Texas authors.

Her name is Carroll Estes and her first published work, "Eavesdropping on Death," is a murder mystery. It's strictly light reading.

Carroll is Mrs. Joe E. Estes, wife of a Dallas lawyer and mother of two teen-agers, Carl, 16, and Carol, 14. Mrs. Estes also is a garden club member and has other similar interests. Still she found time to write a story that sold to Arcadia House of New York. The book sells for $2.50.

The setting of "Eavesdropping on Death" is Dallas. It's told in the first person and the narrator is a pretty young lady, Susan Warren of Oklahoma City. Susan flies to Dallas when her cousin Lynn, wife of a wealthy Dallas man, sends her a cryptic telegram.

Susan's arrival in Dallas is the signal for the murder to set about his work.

"Eavesdropping on Death" is interesting, suspenseful, and as good as the average murder mystery which fills the void of a lonely evening. Mrs. Estes says she just wrote it, picked the name of an agent out of an advertisement, and sent it in. She promises to write more stories.

MESSAGE FROM MOSCOW

Wall Street Buys Tennessee Ballots

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The word from Moscow is that Wall Street has taken over the "Tennessee political machine" and is putting up the money to buy governors, mayors and congressmen.

A Soviet version of Tennessee politics given in a Moscow radio broadcast recorded by United States official monitors said Memphis Boss Ed Crump runs the whole show for the Mellons and Rockefellers.

The description came from Vladimir Morev, a one-time Soviet news correspondent in the United States, who recently has been giving Russians his version of conditions in various American cities and states.

Dismissing the idea of democracy in American politics as a "demagogic lie," the Russian writer gave this account of how the "machine" buys votes and then sees that they stay bought:

"Money flows in a wide stream into the machine's coffers and into the pockets of its bosses from the funds of Rockefeller and Mellon monopolies, railway companies, and individual industrial magnates. With this money, votes are purchased which elect the men needed by these monopolies such as governors, mayors and congressmen. . . .

"On election day in the town of . . ., for instance, the local sheriff sits in the school in the room facing the polling booth. Before him is a pile of filled-out voting forms and another of dollar bills.

"The elector receives one of the former and several dollars and then goes across to the official polling booth where he is handed another, clean voting paper.

"Having sold his vote, the elector drops into the ballot box the form he has received from the sheriff and takes back to him the clear form he has received. Woe to the elector who fails to do this!

"In another part of the town, in the local courtroom sits the sheriff's wife, protected by his brother and other members of his family armed with revolvers. They see to it that no elector, having sold his vote, tries to deceive them."

Morev said the Crump regime holds back vote totals in Shelby County so figures can be manipulated to control state election results.

August May Whip Doldrums For Business And Baseball

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK—(AP)—Most folk—in and out of business—are glad to see August here.

July, for most, won no popularity contests.

Those terrible twins, heat and humidity, set records in many parts of the country. Disastrous drouths in many sections shrivelled crops and threatened livestock. The effect on the cost of eating will show up in the grocery this Fall.

Fear of a tin can shortage, due to the steel strike, had many canners predicting that some of this year's harvest of fruit and vegetables will be lost—and prices of canned goods may be higher next Winter.

Higher Prices Seen

The cost of living hit a new high in July. And Washington officials predict you haven't seen anything yet. They think the aftermath of the steel strike, with its hike in prices, will send living costs still higher by year end.

The costly steel strike and six other big strikes spread idleness through many plants which had to close down for lack of materials. The Bureau of Labor statistics says July saw many million man-days of work lost, the greatest strike-caused idleness since 1949. The loss in June was 14,000,000 man-days. The loss in pay checks will be felt by many families for weeks to come.

Industrial production also suffered a big drop. The Federal Reserve Board predicts July output will be a low point for several years. It says its index, based on the 1935-39 average of 100, will drop to 193. This compares with 222 in February and 203 in June.

Profits, Taxes Down

Business profits took a big drop in July, too, although this won't show up in figures until the financial statements are prepared at the end of September.

And the U. S. Treasury will take a drop in tax collections. As business profits sag, so does the hefty share that Uncle Sam takes out of them.

This is bad news for the Treasury, because July also saw its deficit mounting in all but record fashion. In the month of July the Treasury spent almost $3,000,000,000 more than it took in.

American businessmen didn't sell as much abroad either. Reports for July aren't available, but the Census bureau estimates that U. S. exports in June dropped a drastic 18 per cent from the May total. With many U. S. plants idle during July, the chances of July being a good export month seem slim.

Vacations Help Business

On the bright side, more Americans than ever before thronged into vacation resorts this July. The spread of paid vacations through industry will make this Summer a record one for many resort keepers.

July also saw the end of the big steel strike, bringing a promise of industrial peace and a big pick-up in industrial activity in August. But as the month ended, John L. Lewis began making noises about new demands by the coal miners, so that a new worry lies just ahead.

Brooklynites remember July with special loathing. The Dodgers went into a frightening slump, their long losing streak being broken only as the month ended.

Revival Set For Youth

Three outstanding evangelistic figures will lead the Youth Revival opening Sunday at the First Baptist Church.

Eddy Nicholson, widely recognized for his musical talents, will lead the singing. He arrived Saturday by train.

Paul D. Brewer of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Cecil Sherman of Fort Worth will deliver the sermons at the week-long revival. Both have an enviable record in youth evangelism.

Services will be held twice daily during the week. They are scheduled at 7 a.m. and 8 p.m.

Youth of the church the last week held song and prayer meetings in making plans for the revival which is expected to be one of the crowning events of the year's program for Midland's First Baptists.

Churchill Approves American's Portrait Of Queen Elizabeth

LONDON —(AP)— Texas painter Douglas Chandor's portrait of Queen Elizabeth II has undergone the scrutinizing gaze of Winston Churchill.

The prime minister—himself an experienced artist—said he was deeply impressed.

Churchill viewed the portrait in Chandor's studio on the seventh floor of a hotel overlooking the Thames River. The portrait of the young queen will be the first since her accession.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt commissioned Chandor to paint it as a reciprocal gesture of friendship for the statute in London to the late President Roosevelt.

The painting will be presented to the British Embassy in Washington when it is finished.

The chief exports of the Azores Islands in the Atlantic Ocean are fruits, grain, cheese, cattle, dairy products, canned fish and whale oil.

THREE BELLES—And all's well with Britain's navy as three sailorettes from the Girls' Naval Training College at Portsmouth "man" the rigging of H.M.S. Foudroyant. Built in 1817, the Foudroyant is the oldest of the British navy's sailing ships still afloat.

EVER SEE A SNAKE RANCH?—George Sollman, cub scout of Cobleskill, N. Y., keeps a "snake ranch" in his back yard. George, seen standing near the door of his "ranch house," says that the critters are all harmless woods-dwellers, but to keep on friendly terms with neighbors, he keeps them in a glass-enclosed "corral."

Perjury Charge Groundless, Corpus Christi Officer Says

CORPUS CHRISTI —(AP)— W. B. Collier, Corpus Christi city manager accused of perjury, says his indictment is "without foundation" and politically inspired.

He was indicated by the Nueces County grand jury.

It charges that Collier last Monday testified under oath before the grand jury that he did not order Lloyd Clarkson, city building inspection chief to issue a building permit to Wilson Building, Inc.

The grand jury indictment charged that Collier did, in fact, order Clarkson to issue the permit on Jan. 4, 1951.

The Wilson Building, Inc., owned by Sam E. Wilson, Jr., millionaire oilman and sportsman, built a multi-million-dollar, 20-story building in downtown Corpus Christi.

Collier is the second city official and the ninth person to be indicted by the grand jury in its investigation of city affairs. His bond was fixed at $10,000.

"I think the indictment is without foundation," Collier said, "and together with the grand jury report was issued for the primary purpose of influencing the public in the matter of the recall petitions now being circulated."

Recall petitions referred to by Collier are being circulated by the Better Government League, an organization seeking ouster of Mayor Leslie Wasserman and four city councilmen.

Wasserman was indicted June 4 on two counts of accepting bribes in the granting of oil and gas leases on city land near Lake Corpus Christi.

Two other counts charged Wasserman with accepting bribes to permit gambling in the city.

At the same time, Barney Cott, now of Rye, N. Y., former city councilman, was indicated for bribing the mayor to permit gambling here. A. W. Gregg, Houston oilman, was indicted on two counts of bribing the mayor to secure two oil and gas leases on city-owned land. Sam Susser, local businessman, was indicted at the same time for offering to bribe the mayor to obtain an oil lease for Gregg.

L. K. (Doc) Mason, and Morris Liedeker, local businessmen, were indicted for bribing the mayor to permit gambling, and B. T. Parr and Buford Nicholson, also local businessmen, were indicted for acquisition of $24,000 by threats to have an architect's contract with the city canceled and revoked.

The eight persons indicted on June 4 have been released on $10,000 bond each.

Bell Rejects Tyler Phone Rate Proposal

TYLER —(AP)— The Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has refused a proposal made by the Tyler City Commission, which would grant 22 per cent hike in telephone rates.

Earlier, Southwestern Bell asked for a rate increase of 57 per cent and had been granted a tentative increase of 33 per cent.

The commission offered the latest proposal at a meeting attended by some 150 Tyler citizens.

THE PROFESSOR SAYS, QUOTE—

Modern Lasses Are Lazy; Eye Gravy Train Marriage

Boston—(AP)—The reason American girls are getting married younger and younger, says Boston University Prof. Lowell S. Trowbridge, is that they're too lazy to go to work.

It's hard to get a job and even harder to keep it, Prof. Trowbridge said, commenting on Department of Commerce statistics showing the median marriage age for girls now has dropped to 20.4 years.

"But," he adds, "how much easier it is to slip into a housecoat, put on the percolator, push down the toaster, kiss hubby goodbye and sit down to an after-breakfast cigarette and the morning paper."

Prof. Trowbridge speaks from the vantage point of acting chairman of the Department of Human Relations at BU's College of Business Administration.

"Marriage," he says, "is worthwhile, but you have to work at it."

He says it isn't the frothy Lohengrin dream pictured in some magazine yarns of paradise in a ranch-type house filled with everything automatic from dishwasher to bottle warmer.

"The life of a young married couple as presented by the women's magazine fiction," Prof. Trowbridge says, "is actually a bad influence for girls. They see only a dazzling future in sweet suburbia. When the baby gets croup and the cost of maintaining the ranch house threatens to swamp them, the girls can't cope with the situation.

"The big, beautiful bubble bursts. They dissolve into tears inwardly. And they often berate their poor husbands outwardly for not living up to that strong, brilliant storybook hero who never failed to walk off with at least the job of second vice president.

"A lot of these girls have been spoiled by over-indulgent parents. Their attitude is 'What's he got to offer me?' instead of 'How can I be a good wife to him?'"

For some young women, it's simply a question shifting dependency from parents to husband, he says. "It's a matter of having someone to hang onto."

American Airlines Adds New Midland-Dallas-Tulsa Flight

American Airlines will give new service to oilmen and others traveling frequently between Midland and the Dallas-Fort Worth area and Tulsa, Okla., it was announced Saturday by J. W. Campbell, American's manager of operations here.

Effective Sunday, August 17, American will offer an additional daily round-trip flight between these vital oil industry areas.

Daily Convair Flight 432 will leave Midland Air Terminal at 3:20 p.m., arriving Dallas at 4:50 p.m., and continuing to Tulsa, arriving at 6:22 p.m. Connecting service at Dallas will be available for those passengers destined to Fort Worth.

Convair Flight 431 will originate at Dallas at 1:20 p.m., arriving Midland at 3 p.m. Connecting service also will be available for those passengers originating at Fort Worth.

"American Airlines has enjoyed an increasing amount of business from and to the Midland area," Campbell said, "and we look forward to the time when traffic generated from this area will be such that we can add more flights."

Runoff Race Slated For Beckworth Seat

AUSTIN —(AP)— It will take a runoff to decide the third District race for congressman.

Brady Gentry of Tyler missed a clear majority by 16 votes in last Saturday's primary, State Democratic Executive Committee chairman James E. Wheat said.

Advance tabulations being made for the official canvass here August 11 showed 61,152 votes cast in the race. Gentry received 30,560. Next highest candidate who will go into the runoff with Gentry was R. L. Whitehead of Longview with 9,121 votes.

Five candidates sought the Congressional seat. It is being vacated by Rep. Lindley Beckworth who was a candidate for the U. S. Senate.

EAT PLENTY AND TAKE OFF UGLY FAT
Here is an inexpensive home recipe to take off ungainly weight and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Just get from any druggist, four ounces of liquid Barcentrate. Pour into pint bottle and add grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Then take just two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. Now you may slim down your figure and lose pounds of ugly fat without back-breaking exercise or starvation diet. It's easy to make and easy to take. Contains nothing harmful. If the very first bottle doesn't show you the simple, easy way to lose bulky weight and help regain slender, more graceful curves, return the empty bottle for your money back.
Lost 36 Pounds
Mrs. Lionel Scott, Route 1, Box 36, Weirgate, Texas, wrote us that she has taken off 36 pounds taking Barcentrate. Everyone does not want to lose that much of course. Mrs. W. G. Wester, 187 E. Park St., Sulphur Springs, Texas, reports that she lost 10 pounds and that she ate anything she wanted. Why not start today losing weight with Barcentrate?

★ Daddy Ringtail ★

By WESLEY DAVIS

Daddy Ringtail And Flub

Far away in the Great Forest there once lived a very lazy, lazy dog. The dog's name was Lazy Dog, but he was so very lazy he thought his name was too much work to say. He wouldn't say it, either, not even when people asked him. All he would do was wag his tail a very little bit when people asked what his name was. He wouldn't have wagged his tail, I guess, except it was only a little nub of a tail. Wagging it wasn't any work at all, even for Lazy Dog, as long as Lazy Dog didn't wag fast, and so he never wagged fast at all. Only a gentle wag and wig and wag this way and that. That's all the wagging or wigging that Lazy Dog would do with his nub of a tail.

Anyway, one fine day in the Great Forest, when Lazy Dog was not feeling as lazy as he usuallly felt, he crawled out of the tree where he lived, and stepped on the Elephant Path. Then, because he still did not feel as lazy as he usually felt, Lazy Dog took three steps of a lazy walk.

He yawned, and stretched and feeling very lazy by this time, Lazy Dog lay down to rest. He was resting there with his eyes closed, when Daddy Ringtail, your monkey friend, came walking up and said: "Happy day, there, dog-people, and what is really your name today, all of a very fine day?"

Lazy Dog opened one of his eyes. He opened the one that wasn't covered by his floppity ears. He wigged and wagged his nub of a tail in a very lazy wig-wag. But Lazy Dog said not a word. He didn't say what his name was. Lazy Dog's name was much too long for him to say it. Lazy Dog was much too lazy.

"Oh," said Daddy Ringtail with a friendly smile, "I have heard about you, I think. You have a little nub of a tail, and great big floppity ears, and you are really Lazy Dog, who needs a name that a lazy dog can say."

Lazy Dog wagged and wigged his tail again to show how much he appreciated the words Daddy Ringtail had said.

"Now let me see," said Daddy Ringtail, "you need a name that is short and easy to say. Yes, and the name ought to be one that goes with floppity ears and a nub of a tail. What about 'Flub'! Yes, 'Flub' ought to be a good name for you."

Yes, and Lazy Dog thought that Flub would be such an easy name to say, he decided to say it the very next time that someone asked what his name was. Yessir, he would say it, if he wasn't feeling too lazy, poor fellow. Happy day!

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1952, By Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Drew Pearson says: Price administrator to carry out resignation threat; Arnall refused to tolerate further concessions; Mink-coat boys have grudge against Stuart Symington.

WASHINGTON — During the early days of the long-drawn-out steel-strike negotiations, Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna Rosenberg was urging that the crisis be ended by giving the steel industry a price increase. She wanted to know why this wasn't practicable.

"You can increase prices all right," replied Price Stabilizer Ellis Arnall. "You can increase 'em if you want to wreck the country.

"Yes, you can increase 'em all right," he added very softly, "but you'll have to get yourselves a new price administrator."

Last week steel prices were increased as a "bribe" to the steel industry, and, as a result, Truman is going to have to get himself a new price administrator.

Arnall will carry out his threat without any shouting or bombast—in fact, just as softly as he gave his reply to Assistant Secretary Rosenberg. He doesn't blame the President for caving in to the steel companies in view of the desperate arms situation, and he doesn't want to embarrass anyone. Nevertheless, Arnall has concluded that you can't control prices, if you yield every time you get in a tight corner.

"Under the present law there are just two things left for the price administrator to do," Arnall told a friend recently. "If the price is too low he can remove a commodity from price control, or if the price is too high, he can cave in."

Arnall is tired of caving in as a result of pressure from above, so about the end of the Summer he unobtrusively will go back to Georgia.

Washington Pipe Line

The person who has more influence on Harry Truman than anyone else, told him just before the convention that she would not be too much opposed if he ran again. Hitherto Bess Truman had been one of the chief reasons why HST hadn't wanted to run. Another was daughter Margaret . . . Mrs. India Edwards, vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, received an offer from the Eisenhower camp to come over to the Republicans. She declined. She wasn't interested personally, and besides, the Republicans didn't even give the ladies a nominating speech for the vice presidency, whereas the girls had quite a fling at the Democratic convention . . . Both Mrs. Edwards and Judge Sarah Hughes of Dallas had their names put up, in addition to which one whole day was devoted to the ladies . . . Stanley High, who ghost-wrote FDR's famed speech on "economic royalists," now is ghost-writing speeches for Eisenhower defending the economic royalists . . . Truman is really burned up at Eisenhower. Once a great Ike fan, the President now privately calls him an ingrate. He is particularly sore at Eisenhower's claim that he had nothing to do with carving up Germany. Real fact is that the Pentagon has some papers signed by Eisenhower showing that Ike did have a lot to do with carving up Germany. These will be used if and when the campaign gets really hot.

Truman's Senate Opponent

It looks as if President Truman might repeat his propensity for picking the wrong candidate in Missouri. So far he hasn't picked a winner.

First he bet his money against Congressman Roger Slaughter of Kansas City and lost. Later he bet against ex-Congressman Tom Hennings for the Senate and lost.

Now he is betting against his old assistant, Stuart Symington, who is running in the Missouri primary against the President's choice, State Attorney General J. E. Taylor.

A lot of people have been puzzled regarding Truman's opposition to Symington, a man who worked long and loyally for the administration, first as secretary for Air, later as chairman of the National Security Resources Board, finally as head of the RFC.

Symington's difficulties with the White House date back to the days when he brought Charles E. Wilson into the administration as defense mobilizer. Symington had suggested Wilson for the job, and went up to New York to urge him to take it. Wilson, he planned, would be an independent operator, and he, Symington, would continue with his vitally important chairmanship of the National Security Resources Board.

However, it turned out just the other way. Symington found himself working under Wilson, the man he appointed. Wilson got the White House to issue an executive order making Symington his subordinate. The President probably didn't realize that he had undercut his own man. The deal was put across by subordinates. Anyway, he later shifted Symington over to clean up the RFC scandals and this was where Symington made his political error.

He let the chips fall where they may. When the Senate wanted information on such sensitive matters as Donald Dawson, a former RFC official now working at the White House; and on the President's private stenographer, Mrs. Merl Young of mink-coat fame, Symington released the true facts.

It was then that White House aides began gunning for him. Their nickname for him was "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Symington, they implied, was too pure.

It's difficult for any President not to be influenced by the palace guard, and Truman undoubtedly was affected by the constant anti-Symington pin-pricking of the Dawson, the Connellys, and the Vaughans.

It will be interesting to see what happens if and when Symington comes back to Washington next Fall as a full-fledged senator from Missouri.

Capital Chaff

Senator Kefauver has gone down to a Tennessee farm where he is swimming, relaxing, and trying to read some books. He hasn't been able to sleep at night for thinking how he could have handled his campaign differently—and, if so, won . . . Secretary of State Dean Acheson was flabbergasted at Brazilian hospitality. His host at Sao Paulo, Jorge Prado, built a glass wall costing $25,000 around his garden just for the party he gave in honor of Acheson. The wall was to permit guests to enjoy the garden while the public was kept out . . . Kefauver is going to the support of his old friend, Gov. Gordon Browning, who has been criticized by some Tennesseans for voting against the seating of Virginia unless Virginia took the loyalty oath.

Spiritual Strength Of Men At War Cited In GI's Note

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Korean War is well into its third year and the millionth draftee is now in service.

Month by month this faraway conflict has touched more and more lives, affected more and more American families. It has cost more than 113,000 casualties. It has been raised as a major political issue.

"Yet it remains, "the forgotten war," the war that almost no one knows except the men who fight it. It is as if Korea were upon another planet, or as if there were a conspiracy of silence against it—"if we don't mention the war, it will just go away."

Unfortunately, it is a war that won't go away, and America may still have men stationed on a battlefront in Korea after it inducts its second millionth draftee.

GI Morale High

The odd thing about the Korean combat picture is that the morale of the American fighting man has picked up, while interest at home has steadily waned.

"Why are we in Korea at all?" A the average man in the street that question, and he might be hard put for an answer.

But the American soldier in Korea now has a pretty good idea why he is there.

Take Pfc. George Whitenour, for example. He is a member of the St. Barnabas Lutheran Church in Queens. So is John R. Crooks, a veteran newspaper librarian.

Some time ago Crooks, who is 63, decided to put out a one-man newspaper for the members of the church who are in the armed service. His gossippy news sheet now circulates to 70 young soldiers, sailors and airmen, scattered around the world. It knits them to their old home neighborhood.

Keeps War From U. S.

Recently Pfc. Whitenour wrote a letter of gratitude from Korea, and this is what he said:

"We have church services over here in our mess tent, and they sure give a lift to the boys' morale. But I miss St. Barnabas; it is a beautiful church.

"As yet I am not right up at the front or in any danger at present. I'm not really hunting the Reds too much. I'm glad that I don't have to use a weapon against anyone. And I'm sorry that the other boys have to.

"But if the war isn't fought here it might have to be fought back in the States.

Hope For Peace

"The Korean people are not really as bad as some people would lead you to believe. Some of these people were just content to live their own lives, tending to their gardens, building homes and leading an ordinary life. But some of the big wise guys had to think they could rule them and buck their strength against the good people of the world.

"When you see all the nations that are represented here you feel that we can't lose. Scattered throughout this area are Turks, Ethiopians, Filipinos, Puerto Ricans, Canadians, Scotch, English, Australians, Hollanders, Hawaiians and others—all fighting on as one big team.

"How can we lose? Besides, we have the help of God. If we stay together as free nations after this is over, we can hope for peace for all time."

Midland PMA Sets Vote On County Committeemen

An election to name county committeemen will be held by the Midland County Production Marketing Association from August 18-23, Charles E. Champion, secretary, announced Saturday.

Champion said the election was being held at this time due to the drastic change in the 1953 program.

Ballots will be mailed August 9 to farmers and ranchers, Champion said.

He pointed out that committeemen elected will visit each farmer and rancher to work out an individual conservation plan.

Champion said there is a greater need for better conservation, and increased production on farms and ranchers than ever before in the history of the United States.

Dies Gets Official Nod; Will Not Face Runoff Competition

AUSTIN —(AP)— Texas' congressman-at-large will be Martin Dies of Lufkin, original chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

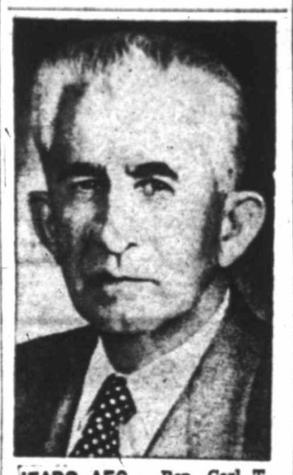

Dies was declared the Democratic nominee, usually as good as elected in heavily Democratic Texas, by the state Democratic Executive Committee chairman.

The Democratic chairman, J. E. Wheat of Woodville, said Dies would have no opponent in the second primary, August 23, in view of the withdrawal of John Lee Smith of Lubbock from the race.

Dies barely missed a clear majority over six opponents in the first primary last Saturday. Smith ran second, but far behind the former congressman who retired in 1945 after clashing repeatedly with the late President Roosevelt.

Smith said earlier in the week he would not contest Dies in a runoff. Both he and Dies are considered right-wingers in the Texas Democratic camp.

There had been some conjecture that if Smith's withdrawal stuck a third man would be placed on the ballot to contest Dies. However, Wheat's announcement ended that possibility.

HEADS AEC — Rep. Carl T. Durham, above, of North Carolina, will succeed the late Sen. Brien McMahon as chairman of the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee.

Grain Markets Set Shorter Work Week

CHICAGO —(AP)— The nation's major grain exchanges were closed Saturday and will remain inactive on other Saturdays until further notice.

The Winnipeg market, which was shut down because of a holiday, has not decided yet whether to close on other Saturdays. Its decision is expected next week.

The Chicago Board of Trade was the first to close on Saturdays. The Minneapolis and Kansas City markets followed.

Markets at Omaha, Milwaukee and Fort Worth also will shut down on Saturdays.

The Chicago board closed on Saturday last Summer, but Minneapolis and Kansas City did not.

Postal Receipts Decline Heavily

AUSTIN —(AP)— Texas postal receipts for June slipped almost one million dollars below those of May.

The total of $3,981,000 left the total for the first six months of this year 15 per cent greater than those of last year.

Seven Texas cities reported gains of 20 per cent or more for June. Belton was up 29 per cent; Brenham, 40; Giddings, 45; Palestine, 28; Paris, 22; Plainview, 59; and Port Arthur, 27.

Garland reported a decline in postal receipts of 34 per cent. Llano was off 24 per cent; Brownfield, 24; Cameron, 28; Jacksonville, 28; and Sweetwater, 25.

Mussel-Bound Ship Delayed In Sailing

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A mussel-bound luxury liner was six hours late sailing for Hawaii Friday night.

Scheduled to depart at 4 p.m., the Lurline had to drop anchor in the outer harbor while crews finished clearing an accumulation of mussels from its plumbing system.

Officials said the mussels, a form of marine life, invaded while the Lurline was tied up at San Francisco during the two-month maritime strike.

Plastics Play Important Role In Children's Outdoor Life

Keep your children's play equipment spanking clean by washing them every day with soap and water. Mud, grass stains and germ-carrying finger marks can all be swabbed away with a soapy cloth or sponge. Rinse plastic toys and inflated favorites with the help of the backyard hose.

By ANNETTE GREEN
NEA Staff Writer

NEW YORK—How to keep your youngsters occupied during the Summer months is no small problem. Since most of their waking hours are spent out-of-doors, it is up to you to plan constructive, safe activities.

A boon to any mother is a substantial-sized backyard. This play area allows you to keep the children within calling and seeing distance, and yet, at the same time, gives them plenty of room to move around in.

Ideal for backyard fun is a water merry-go-round. Complete with inflated plastic horses big enough for the children to ride, it makes the home swimming pool a possibility for every family. It has a carousel base, air inflated and water-cooled, and is non-tippable. The whole affair weighs only four pounds.

Baby can take to the air on a plastic playpad or in a plastic-lined basket complete with such delightful chewables as plastic rattles, animals and toys.

Your older youngsters will find satisfaction in enormous balls that are as exciting on the lawn as on the beach. Mud-pie molds and dishes, gardening water cans and pails, miniature plastic wheelbarrows, airplanes, trucks and trains, as you well know, hold their own fascination.

Plastic playclothes for youngsters are practical and popular. Cowboy and cowgirl outfits keep Summer laundry to a minimum and are perfect, among other purposes, for bubble-blowing sessions.

Since your principle interest in all these outdoor activities, in addition to providing fun, is maintaining healthful standards of cleanliness for your children, you will find plastics your greatest aid.

All of the toys can be wiped off with a sudsy cloth as frequently and easily as necessary. Grime never gets a chance to imbed itself in anything. Even if baby is terriby attached to a toy that isn't washable, you can make a plastic fabric "slip-cover" to fit.

No matter how dirty the toys may become during a day of mud-pie making, the beauty of plastics is they can start each day as fresh and clean as the day they were made.

A quick soap-and-water wiping when playtime is over will do the trick. And since soap and water themselves are prime favorites as toys, why not encourage the children to lend a hand in keeping their playthings clean?

Washing out the plastic wading pool every now and then, for instance, is not only advisable, but you can sell it to the younger set as an exciting play project.

If you and your family are apartment dwellers, you probably head for the beach at every opportunity. Again plastics will prove a great help. They are so durable and feather light.

Take along an air-conditioned, inflated, water-cooled plastic beach mat. Sand, sea, salt and suntan lotion won't even phase it. Carry your own sea-going boat along in the car.

An eight-pound plastic boat, which carries two grown-ups and two youngsters, folds into a package no bigger than 16 inches square. Putting it in drydock after use is as simple as changing your clothes. Swab it down with a soapy cloth to wipe off the salt water, dry it off and fold it up in the hall closet.

Most children like to take along water wings or swimming tube, and these, too, can easily be kept clean Give plastics the simple care they require, and you will help to assure your family of a healthy, happy Summer.

JUST BRING YOUR BRIDE

SYDNEY, Australia — (AP) — Archdeacon V. E. Twigg, Church of England rector of Griffith, New South Wales, said he prefers weddings without:

Confetti — "It makes unnecessary work."

MIDLAND VACATIONERS

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Mayes, 1013 North Loraine Street, are guests at the Sand and Sea Motel at Long Beach, Calif.

Canapes take to attractive garnishes. For fish or meat spreads use hard-cooked egg yolks mashed through a sieve, circles or stars cut from pimiento, slivers of cooked beets, finely diced green pepper, slices of pimiento-stuffed olives, tiny pickled onions, or finely chopped parsley.

Nylons Turn Into Flowers

This girl uses flowers made from her old nylons to create gay trim for a Summer straw. Color is removed from the stockings, then they are redyed any color you like (insert) and cut into petals and leaves for use on hats, as hair ornaments, as corsages.

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Imagine your nylons going to your head. That's just what they will be doing if you are one of the many budget-conscious women who would like to know how to convert old nylons into lovely flowers for trimming hats.

To do the job properly, you'll need a few boxes of color remover, all-fabric dye, porcelain or agate pans, a wooden spoon for the color-removing and tinting operations, ordinary copper screening, floral tape, scissors, corsage pins, and, of course, the discarded nylons.

The first step is to remove as much color from the nylons as possible with a color remover that doesn't require boiling. Next, re-dye the stockings in whatever color you like. Don't forget to dye some of the fabric green—to use as leaves.

As soon as the nylons have dried, cut the stockings into three-to-five-inch squares. Unravel eight-inch strands of wire from the copper screening for the petals and leaves. You can make the petals and leaves by folding a square of dyed nylon over the wire strand. Carefully stretch out the nylon. Bend the wire to any flower form you like.

Gather the stretched-out fabric at the bottom and fasten it with wire. Part of the wire should be left to act as the stem. Trim off excess fabric. Look! You've just made one petal. Now make as many as you desire.

Form the flower by bringing the petals together and tying them at the base with wire. Cover the exposed wires with green floral tape. As soon as your flowers are finished, you can use them as hair ornaments, decorations for your hats, or even as a corsage. They offer you endless possibilities.

There are interesting variations to the basic technique of making these pretty nylon flowers, however, and if you would like to know them, you can obtain a booklet of instructions—free of charge—from any all-fabric dye counter in department, drug or dime stores.
