Ike Arrives As Strong Rights Plank Is Nailed

Making A Point

U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge points to a chart as he tells the United Nations Security Council in New York that the U.S. has proof that Soviet fighters deliberately pushed an American RB47 plane off its course and shot it down over international waters. Lodge introduced charts to demonstrate his points. The Soviet Union charged the plane was on a spy mission over Soviet territory when it was shot down July 1.

Defense Matter Next For Change

CHICAGO (AP) — The Republican Platform Committee today agreed to reconsider the civil rights plank termed unsatisfactory by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

A parliamentary maneuver by advocates of a less far-reaching plank failed. It was considered likely the committee would go on to make some of the changes asked by Nixon in the plank previously approved by the Platform Committee.

Earlier, the committee broke under pressure and agreed to reconsider its plank on national defense.

Nixon said that if the convention should adopt a platform "divergent from my views" he couldn't accept the presidential nomination.

But, he added quickly in a television interview, "that's a moot question," meaning there is really no such issue.

President Eisenhower was reported to be the prime mover in getting the defense language reviewed. Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut said changes would relate to the successful firing of a Polaris submarine missile last week—rather than to Rockefeller's demand for a specific, beefed-up spending pledge.

Bush said Rep. Glenard P. Lipscomb of California, chairman of the defense subcommittee, made the move for reconsideration.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York predicted agreement momentarily on a civil rights plank.

"We have been making a great deal of progress," he said.

Javits predicted the plank will contain a rephrased endorsement of lunch counter sit-ins. He also predicted endorsement of authority for the attorney general to take the initiative in intervening in school segregation cases.

Nixon and Rockefeller continued to pound hotel corridors hunting delegate strength to force a stronger plank on civil rights.

Up to the time the committee backed off on defense, some of the Southern contingent were insisting there was no way to get a civil rights change in committee—that it would be a matter for floor action. Both Nixon and Rockefeller were trying to reach their goal without a fight in the convention hall itself.

Javits said the Nixon-Rockefeller people want these three points added to the plank adopted earlier by the Platform Committee:

1. A declaration favoring a curb on filibustering in the U.S. Senate.
2. Power for the attorney general to start civil injunction suits in civil rights violation cases.
3. Specific endorsement of the objective of equal opportunity with particular reference to the sit-in demonstrations in the South.

Rockefeller earlier had said the defense plank was not strong enough for him. It did not meet his proposal for an extra 3½ billion dollars of spending.

The plank commended the defense policies of President Eisenhower and denied that defense expenditures have been held to a price ceiling.

Nixon Worked Through Night On Platform

CHICAGO (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon said today he had worked through the night in his fight to nail a strong civil rights plank into the Republican national platform.

A telephone conference with Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, an ally in this fight, was part of the effort.

The vice president reported to newsmen as he left his hotel suite for the first of a series of meetings with state delegations to the GOP convention.

He made it clear that his energies still were being devoted to an effort to win the kind of civil rights plank he is insisting on for the platform. He called off meetings Monday with 29 state delegations to work on the matter.

"It's been a long night," Nixon said. "But we've made progress, I think we've made some yardage, and starting at 10 o'clock we'll know how much."

The platform committee is to convene at 10.

Nixon remained the almost certain presidential nominee of the Republicans.

Nixon said he talked with Rockefeller on the civil rights fight after returning to his hotel from a call on former President Herbert Hoover.

Nixon said he also talked by telephone with members of the platform committee and other party leaders before getting a little sleep.

Nixon's first meeting today was with delegates from four Southern states—the area where opposition to his civil rights ideas centers—Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Mississippi.

President Ready For Convention

CHICAGO (AP) — President Eisenhower arrived at 12:55 p.m. Central Daylight Time today to attend the Republican National Convention.

The President's military transport plane touched down at O'Hare Field, about 20 miles from downtown Chicago, after a two-hour flight from the President's vacation residence at Newport, R.I.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower were greeted by a 21-person reception committee composed of representative citizens from the Chicago area.

About 200 persons, mainly newsmen, photographers, and Air Force personnel, were in the crowd.

The general public was barred from the area in which the President transferred from his jet plane to an Army helicopter for a flight into Chicago and a motorcade through the downtown area.

The President's schedule was about two hours off through delays caused by bad weather.

Eisenhower is to address the convention tonight, in one of its main preliminaries to nominating a candidate to succeed him in the White House.

Eisenhower took off by jet plane for Chicago from Quonset Point Naval Base near Newport, R. I., at 11:56 a.m. (EDT).

The President, noted for a knack of getting tugging forces to pull together, will deliver a nationally televised address tonight to delegates who have been wrangling bitterly over GOP platform policy.

For Eisenhower, the trip to Chicago represented something of a sentimental journey. It was there that he was nominated for the first of his two terms as president.

Eisenhower, as commander of Allied forces in Europe in World War II, won a reputation for being able to smooth out national rivalries and differing viewpoints.

The summer White House gave no hint as to whether he would step directly into the disputes at the convention.

But the very presence of the nation's leader and the views he expressed in his speech could hardly fail to carry some influence on the platform to be adopted Wednesday.

Less than 24 hours before Eisenhower set out for Chicago, Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the odds-on favorite for the GOP presidential nomination, said he was not satisfied with the civil rights plank drawn up by a convention [illegible].

New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said the big Empire State delegation would wage a floor fight on both the defense and civil rights planks if necessary.

Rockefeller has proposed a 3½-billion-dollar increase in defense spending for the current fiscal year as absolutely vital to the nation's safety. Eisenhower has said the present spending program is adequate.

Castro Arrives

LAS MERCEDES, Cuba (AP)—Stern-faced and tired, Prime Minister Fidel Castro arrived in this east Cuban town today for a rally celebrating the seventh anniversary of his revolution.

Castro, who has been seen little in public since a recent attack of pneumonia, was cheered by the vast crowds. Castro's appearance dispelled rumors that he was seriously ill.

Kennedy Hopes GOP's Platform Is 'Clear'

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential nominee, said today he hopes the Republicans write a civil rights platform plank "as clear and effective" as the one his party approved.

"It sets a standard for them," Kennedy told reporters.

Kennedy voiced praise for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, and his role at the Republican convention.

"I think he's been very effective in persuading a majority of the Republicans to accept his views, but they did it reluctantly," Kennedy said at a new conference on the lawn of his summer home.

Asked what his personal views were about Rockefeller, he called him "a valuable public servant."

Kennedy disclosed he may go to New York City Wednesday or Thursday to spend "not more than a day" on some mission he declined to detail.

Kennedy said the United States must concern itself more with the problems of the peoples of Africa, and help the newly independent nations there find their economic and governmental feet.

He stood beside Tom Mboya, general secretary of the Kenya Federation of Labor, with whom he had discussed various phases of the African situation for an hour and a half.

Robert F. Kennedy, the senator's brother and campaign manager, plans a round of talks in New York City between now and Friday with various factional leaders. He flew to Washington Monday before going into New York on his fence-mending and fence-building mission.

Another brother, Teddy, was sent by the senator to California for talks with Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

Kennedy forces faced fresh problems in their efforts—through the "Citizens-for-Kennedy" movement or otherwise—to line up a unity of effort by clashing forces in New York. All of these say they want to back the Kennedy-Johnson ticket but are in bitter factional disputes.

Michael H. Prendergast, New York state Democratic chairman, spoke out Monday against the "Citizens-for-Kennedy" idea. He said the party experienced "tremendous losses" while attempting a somewhat similar unity effort in the 1952, 1956 and 1958 campaigns.

Prendergast said he made an "arrangement" with Kennedy before the Democratic national convention that Prendergast would run the New York state campaign.

Some persons thought Prendergast and Kennedy might be closer than the state chairman's statements might indicate.

He intends "Citizens-for-Kennedy" to fit into the structure and provide a voice for independents and dissident Republicans.

Three Boards Of Equalization Due To Convene

Tax equalization boards for the city, county and schools will set up operation in the county commissioners courtroom and the offices of the county judge at 9 a.m. Wednesday. The sessions will extend through Thursday.

All taxpayers who have matters dealing with tax assessments will be given an opportunity to discuss their grievances with the boards. The county commissioners will be the equalization board for the county and for Howard County Junior College. The city and school equalization board members will be George Elliott, Lawrence Robinson and William Sheppard.

Chileans Flee Flood Waters

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Icy flood waters from Lake Rinihue poured in torrents today into the doomed city of Valdivia, covering low-lying sections with three feet of water.

Most of the city's 80,000 inhabitants fled to high ground before natural dams holding back water in the mountain lake burst Monday, turning the San Pedro and Calle-Calle rivers into rampaging torrents. The San Pedro feeds the Calle-Calle which runs through Valdivia.

The dams were formed when disastrous earthquakes thrust up the earth in southern Chile's coastal city last May and blocked Lake Rinihue's natural outlets to the sea.

Republican Governors Fail To Make Rocky Reconsider

By ROBERT T. GRAY

CHICAGO (AP)—A group of Republican governors failed today in an attempt to get Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York to accept the Republican nomination for vice president.

Rockefeller changed the subject on them and made his own sales talk for support of the platform principles he and Vice President Richard M. Nixon agreed on.

Gov. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon, leader of the group, said he still had not abandoned all hope Rockefeller would change his mind about the nomination.

But Rockefeller said the decision against running in second spot is "irrevocable."

Rockefeller and Hatfield addressed a packed news conference in the lobby of the Sheraton Towers Hotel after the meeting between Rockefeller and his fellow governors.

Hatfield had requested a meeting to try to persuade Rockefeller to run.

Hatfield told the reporters that Rockefeller's previous statements still stood.

Rockefeller has turned down the No. 2 spot in every conceivable way. He said last Saturday that, if necessary, he would make the classic political rejection: "If nominated, I will not run. If elected, I will not serve."

The governor, in a position almost parallel to that of Nixon, is plugging for a civil rights plank stronger than the one the Platform Committee has turned out. For himself, Rockefeller is also urging stronger action on national defense.

At least in part for bargaining purposes on the latter point, he has been holding back the New York delegation, now committed to him for the presidential nomination, from a shift to Nixon.

From his session with the governors, Rockefeller headed into talks with delegation from New Jersey, the District of Columbia, Louisiana, North Dakota and Illinois.

He said he would discuss platform issues with them.

Other governors invited to the meeting were Robert T. Stafford of Vermont, Christopher Del Sesto of Rhode Island, William F. Quinn of Hawaii, John Reed of Maine and J. Caleb Boggs of Delaware.

Meanwhile, the New York State delegation was poised to leap into the Nixon presidential camp.

The delegates needed only the word from Rockefeller, chairman of the 96-vote delegation.

The governor has held the delegation uncommitted, first against the possibility he might be a presidential candidate himself, later to back him up in a fight for a party platform acceptable to him.

But with selection of a presidential candidate imminent, the New York delegates were growing increasingly restless over their neutral status in a one-man race.

Rockefeller planned meetings today with delegates from New Jersey, the District of Columbia, Louisiana and North Dakota as part of his continuing campaign to win support for a 14-point platform agreed upon by himself and Nixon.

Rockefeller denied he has any idea of stirring draft support in his visits with state delegations. He said the sessions are solely to discuss platform issues.

The lack of any significant support for a draft-Rockefeller movement was indicated Monday night when he joined his family in a box at the convention hall about half way through the evening's proceedings.

There was a minor stir, a small burst of applause from those sitting nearest the box. But most of the delegates and spectators appeared not to know who the late arriver was.

Clear Skies Over Texas

By The Associated Press

Clear skies greeted most Texans on Tuesday morning, but widely scattered afternoon and evening thundershowers hung on in forecasts for every part of the state.

Some Gulf clouds hung over the Austin-San Antonio area shortly before dawn, and there was some high cloudiness in El Paso and in the Lower Rio Grande Valley, but the rest of the state was clear.

Isolated thundershowers fell west of a line Monday night from San Angelo to Abilene and Midland after early-morning rains dried up uder a hot sun that kept most temperatures in the 90s. Monday's maximum ranged from 103 at Laredo to 86 at Alpine.

Tuesday morning temperatures ranged from 68 at Lubbock and Dalhart to 81 at Dallas and Palacios. Forecasters said a hot day was certain.

Little measurable rain fell Monday. Less than a quarter of an inch fell at Midland, Greenville, Sherman, Big Spring, Paris, Muleshoe, Fort Stockton, Presidio, Wink, Fort Worth and El Paso.

West Coast Fire Toll Rises To 9

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Three fire fighters died Monday, raising the death toll in the West's outbreak of forest and range fires to nine.

Two men died in Washington from burns suffered earlier while fighting blazes in the Umatilla National Forest. Near Kamloops, in British Columbia, a fire fighter was killed when struck by a falling tree.

Many of the fires, which have charred a total of 275,000 acres in the Western states and western Canada, remained out of control today.

Dixie GOP Unhappy Over Rights Plank

CHICAGO (AP)—Southern Republicans showed disappointment and anger today over Vice President Richard Nixon's insistence on a strong civil rights plank.

The Mississippi delegation scheduled a caucus to decide whether to abandon support of Nixon and switch to Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

Delegate Richard Poage of Richmond said that if the Virginia state convention had heard Nixon say what he did about civil rights Monday before it acted "It wouldn't have instructed a single delegate for him."

Nixon called in members of the platform committee Monday and told them his views on civil rights.

Later, he said he had enough votes to push through a "good civil rights program" on the convention floor if the committee refuses to accept his views.

A. D. Barnes of Greenville said the South Carolina delegation is tired of being "harassed" with threats of a strong civil rights plank.

"If they give us something we can't live with, I think the entire South will stay home," he said. "We may look around for the strongest independent ticket we can find and vote for it."

John Wood of San Antonio said the Texas delegation feels that the kind of plank Nixon and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York want is unconstitutional.

"This will hurt us in Texas," he said. "We could carry the state with the moderate plank that the committee approved. But we are going to have a lot of difficulty doing that if we have a stronger one."

Negroes marched in the streets Monday outside the hall demanding the strongest possible plank. The Rev. Martin Luther King, a demonstration leader, said that if the GOP comes up with a moderately worded plank the party "could very well lose" Negro support in November.

Nixon said he wants the plank to endorse lunch counter sit-ins by Negroes who purchase other merchandise in stores but are denied the right to eat at food counters. In one draft, the committee had applauded merchants who discontinued this ban.

RAYMONDVILLE, Tex. (AP)—A truck carrying Mexican farm workers overturned near here today injuring at least 30 braceros.

Two men were listed in serious conditions. They are Ismael Medina, who lost an arm, and Jesus Garza, who suffered a head injury.

The truck overturned about one mile west of here on Highway 186.

All worked at the Downing Farm Cooperative here.

Navy Gives Fuel To Congo Airlift

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. carrier Wasp was pumping 200,000 gallons of aviation gasoline today to refuel the United Nations airlift to the Congo, the Navy said.

The carrier was moored 2½ miles at sea off the port of Accra in an operation to relieve a critical shortage of fuel for planes transporting men and supplies.

The Wasp was using a flexible hose connected to an underwater pipe to pump the gasoline to storage tanks ashore. Accra, in the Gulf of Guinea, has no harbor for large ships.

Nice Doggie

HOUSTON (AP) —Mrs. T. M. Teague bought an English bulldog to protect her home against prowlers.

She left a basket of laundry on her back porch and tied the dog, Prince, nearby.

Both the dog and laundry were gone when she returned six hours later.

Mine Dispute Near Settlement

TOKYO (AP)—One of Japan's bloodiest, biggest and longest labor disputes headed for settlement by arbitration today.

The Mitsui Mining Co. agreed to accept labor board proposals for a truce in the 182-day strike at the Mike colliery in southwest Japan. The union already had accepted the truce proposals.

The union struck in opposition to company plans to streamline operations and discharge some 2,000 miners. One person has been killed and hundreds injured in violent clashes.

The labor board's truce proposals call for suspension of picketing, withdrawal of management's demand for application of a court injunction to curb picketing, and acceptance without reservation by the disputing parties of the settlement to be worked out by the board.

Management is not to undertake coal production before the settlement.

Houston Police Use WWII Tank

HOUSTON (AP)—A World War II tank Houston police obtained two years ago has gone into action the first time.

The armored vehicle was obtained for quelling possible riots and mass disturbances. No such incidents have developed and the tank has been operated only once a week to keep it in working order.

Patrolmen were exercising the tank Monday when they saw a man snatch a case of beer from a delivery truck and run to a car. The tank moved in and cut off the escape.

Four men were arrested.

Congo Minister Says His Nation Needs Money Aid

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Finance Minister Pascal Nkanyi today said his government needs up to 10 million dollars of foreign funds to keep it running in August.

Nkanyi said the government can meet its payroll at the end of July, but unless foreign aid begins to arrive soon the state will collapse and the Congo "will be plunged in unemployment and misery."

Three weeks of chaos following the army mutiny has stopped economic and social activity throughout the vast new nation and paralyzed the inexperienced government administration, he told a news conference.

He appealed again to Belgian and other foreign technicians who fled the country to return.

Nkanyi said the increase of joblessness in the nation of more than 13 millions is catastrophic. Many factories and business establishments are closed for lack of competent supervision.

U. S. Ambassador Clare Timberlake left for Washington Monday night for consultations. Timberlake came to Leopoldville on the eve of independence almost four weeks ago.

President Joseph Kasavubu told Timberlake when the ambassador presented his credentials he was sorry for the unpleasantness which many diplomats have suffered in the recent troubled weeks. Kasavubu expressed the hope that missionaries who have left the country will return soon.

The buildup of United Nations forces continued.

By Wednesday Maj. Gen. Carl von Horn's command expects to have about 9,000 multiracial troops on duty to pacify the country and enable economic wheels to start turning again.

Congo Premier At U.N. For Talks

Premier Patrice Lumumba, left, of The Congo chats with U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold at the United Nations after a 2½-hour meeting. He met with Hammarskjold and members of the U.N. Security Council. Lumumba is seeking trained personnel to help get his chaos-ridden nation back on its feet.

Insects Present No Problem Now

As of Monday, three insect pests are infesting Howard County cotton fields but none is at a stage where poison can be effectively used and none is causing serious damage.

Jimmy Taylor, county farm agent, made a wide tour on Monday and stopped and inspected at least 20 fields in all parts of the county. He found—in order of their importance — fleahoppers, boll worms and cabbage loopers in the fields.

Taylor warned that the insect situation in a cotton growing area is highly flexible. The fields can be tolerably free of the pests one week and gravely endangered within the next. Rapidly changing conditions gravely menace crop situations at all time and a constant vigilance has to be maintained to safeguard the plants from insect invasion.

At the present time, he said probably the fleahopper is doing the greatest damage. Bollworms are in second place but here the worms have reached a stage where poisoning would be largely ineffective. The present crop of bollworms hatched early in July, he said. They have now gone through their life cycle to the pupae stage. When they emerge as moths from this stage, a new boll worm danger will probably develop. At that time, poisoning will possibly have to be initiated. Or, he warned, moths from other areas can blow in at any time and set off a new crop of worms.

The cabbage looper is present now as it is each year. This pest is not important enough at this time to justify any extensive poisoning activities.

Taylor said the crops look exceptionally good. This, he added, applies alike to cotton and to grain. The grain is doing exceedingly well and prospects are very good for a good crop.

Committee To Pick Hereford Sale Entries

A committee, headed by Bill Reed, Sterling City, will make a two-day tour of all Hereford herds in this area on Aug. 2 and 3 to select the animals to be consigned for sale at the annual Hereford sale on Dec. 10.

Anyone interested in a tour of the Hereford ranches of the area is welcome to join the committee. The group will leave the court house at 8 a.m. on each day.

The summer selection of the animals to be sold at the big December sale is a regular practice. Cooperation of the Hereford breeders in the association, which sponsors the sale, is a major feature in the success of the enterprise.

On the first day of the tour—the committee will visit the ranches reported in Big Spring. Herds to be seen will include W. L. Hardrider, Dr. G. T. Hall, George Kaney, Charles Creighton, Buchanan Hereford, Jamsey Coates, Leland Wallace and C. A. Walker.

On the second day, the committee will visit the ranches of F. A. Youngblood, Lamesa; R. H. Odom, Snyder; Paul Turner, Sweetwater; Lewis Beresford, Blackwell; and Price Turner, Big Lak.

Club's First Project

The Mu Kappa chapter of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha sorority has furnished a department in the Big Spring State Hospital with an electric clock as its first project. Shown making the presentation to Burton Boyd of the hospital staff is Mrs. Kenneth Williams. The club chapter is six months old.

Soviets Dared To Prove Yarn

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Smaller nations in the U. N. Security Council challenged the Soviet Union today to prove its charge that a U. S. RB47 plane penetrated Soviet air space before it was shot down July 1.

Both Italy and Argentina warned the U.S.S.R. it risked jolting world public opinion by rejecting an American proposal for an impartial international investigation. Both expressed deep skepticism of the Soviet story.

The Soviet Union was expected by some U. N. diplomats to cast its fifth veto to prevent international investigation of the incident in which one American flier was killed, three are missing and two are Soviet captives facing trial as spies.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov told the Security Council Monday his government is "resolutely opposed" to the U.S. proposal that the U.S. and Soviet governments submit their dispute over the plane to an international commission or to the International Court of Justice.

The only purpose of such an inquiry, said Kuznetsov, would be to "confuse a completely clear issue."

The U.N. diplomats also anticipated that a majority of the 11-nation council would vote down a Soviet resolution asking the council to condemn "continuing provocative actions by the United States Air Force" and to insist that the U.S. government stop such flights.

In the debate Monday U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge denied the Soviet charge that the RB47 was on a spy flight and was over Soviet territorial waters when it was shot down in the Barents Sea.

Lodge told the council the plane was on an "electromagnetic observation flight" and never came closer than 30 miles to the Soviet coast, 18 miles beyond the 12-mile limit the Soviets put on their territorial waters.

He said the RB47 would not have come closer than 50 miles to the coast had not the Soviet fighter forced it off course as it was turning to avoid flying over Soviet territory. He claimed it was 200 miles off when it finally fell.

Lodge said the flight of the plane from Brize Norton, England, was monitored throughout and its course "established beyond a doubt by the evidence of our scientific devices."

Kuznetsov charged that Lodge's version was fabricated and his maps falsified. But Sir Pierson Dixon of Britain told the council his government also "has reliable evidence" to show that the plane never went within 30 miles of the Soviet coast.

The U.S. resolution proposed an investigation commission made up of representatives of the United States, the Soviet Union and a government acceptable to the two nations.

The Soviets are holding two of the plane's six crewmen for trial as spies, and three are missing. The body of the sixth, the pilot, was recovered by the Soviets and was flown to a U.S. base in Germany Monday.

Dag, Congo Chief Talk

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold held last-minute talks with Premier Patrice Lumumba of the Congo today before flying to Belgium and the turbulent new African republic.

Hammarskjold leaves tonight for discussions with the Belgian government which granted the Congo independence June 30. Thereafter, the U.N. official will fly to Leopoldville, the Congo capital, to survey the confused situation there.

Lumumba has announced that Hammarskjold has promised to "spare no effort" to get Belgian troops out of the Congo.

Lumumba also conferred with Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, head of the United States U.N. delegation.

Lumumba told a news conference Monday he would go to Washington and to Canada to seek French-speaking technicians for the Congo and then fly back to Leopoldville for another meeting with Hammarskjold Aug. 5.

The Congo premier said he had asked Hammarskjold to set a deadline for the withdrawal of Belgian troops. He said Hammarskjold "assured me he will spare no effort and it is in that spirit that he will negotiate in Brussels with the government of Belgium."

Lumumba accused the Belgians of provoking the mutiny in the Congo army by failing to give promotions to native personnel when independence was granted June 30. He also accused the Belgians of trying to detach the rich province of Katanga, whose government has declared its independence of the central government.

"There is no problem of Katanga," Lumumba declared. "There is only the problem of the withdrawal of the Belgian troops."

The Belgian soldiers, sent into Congolese cities after the native troops mutinied, now are slowly pulling back to their bases in the Congo as a U.N. force of 22,000 moves in to keep order.

Lumumba called again on Belgium to pull her troops entirely out of the Congo, claiming the Belgians had "violated and destroyed" the friendship treaty under which they retained two bases in their former African colony.

Asked if he would renew his threat to call in Soviet troops if the Belgian troops did not quit his country, he said he was encouraged Russian "will have to leave Where the Security Council's decision and will have to leave our territory."

Road Sought By Officials

Howard County Commissioners Court met with the Texas Highway commission in Austin Tuesday morning to discuss the building of a three-mile farm-to-market road connecting U. S. 80 and SH 350. The road would begin at the FM 700 intersection with U. S. 80 east of Big Spring and extend north and east to tie into the Snyder highway.

The route would pass to the east of the new Howard County airport and would provide a badly needed access route from SH 350 to U. S. 80.

The proposed road has the endorsement of Jake Roberts, district highway engineer, and is approved by the county commissioners and the city council.

Attending the conference in Austin are Ed Carpenter, county judge, Hudson Landers, Ralph White and L. J. Davidson, commissioners. They will return to Big Spring tonight.

More Braceros Come Into State

HIDALGO (AP)—More braceros have come into the Lower Rio Grande Valley to help harvest thousands of acres of cotton.

The arrivals Monday numbered 2,000 and, combined with the thousands coming to the Valley during the weekend, make up enough to meet present demands of Valley farmers. About 1,000 Mexicans came in during the weekend.

School Board Meets Today

Trustees of the Big Spring Independent School District will take on another formidable problem this evening—the completion of a tentative budget.

Two weeks ago the board gave first consideration to the budget and it is due to be forged this evening and will be considered at the required public hearing. Emmett McKenzie, head coach and director of athletics, will be present to discuss the athletic budget with the board. There also may be two or three other items of business presented for board consideration.

The session is set for 6:30 p.m. at the Sands restaurant.

BEAN PICKIN'

Old Timers Getting Ready For Reunion On Friday

It's bean pickin' time again.

Meaning the picking of the mountain of beans which are to be cooked up as one of the pièce de resistance items on the annual old settlers reunion barbecue on Friday.

Three years' bean picking will be at the W. L. "Squeaky" Thompson residence, 1608 Stadium. It will start at 4:30 p.m., and there are 200 pounds of beans to be hand-picked and readied for the bag pots.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson invite any and all to the party. Drop by and help out, they urge. There will be sandwiches for the pickers and the picking is to be accomplished in the breezeway of the residence.

The beans have to be ridded of miscellaneous pebbles and other debris on Wednesday in order the reunion chefs to get them cooking in time for the Friday noon feast at the City Park.

Thompson is the current president of the Howard-Glasscock Old Settler's Association, sponsor of the all-day reunion. Old timers and other residents not so old from the two counties will gather at the park on Friday and take part in the king-sized dinner to be served at noon.

Brave Juror

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—An unwilling candidate for jury duty told court bailiff Bob Barron, "I don't have citizenship papers."

"Your people met the boat. Papers or no papers, you're a native citizen," Barron replied and ordered Douglas M. Osceola of the Florida Everglades to jury duty.

Osceola is a member of the Miccosukee Indian nation, which has never accepted the citizenship offered all Indians by the U.S. government in 1912.

Searchers Await Clear Weather In Airplane Hunt

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Search planes waited for improved weather today before heading into the vast northwest interior of Alaska on a hunt for a missing U. S. Weather Bureau aircraft with seven aboard.

The plane vanished on a flight from Anchorage across the interior to Nome, 550 miles to the northwest.

Last word from the craft was heard 34 minutes after it took off from here when it crossed over Skwetna, a check point 100 miles north of Anchorage. It had fuel for six hours for the flight, which takes about four hours.

Final weather Monday forced planes to turn back soon after they had left here to search for the missing craft.

George Brewster of the U. S. Weather Bureau in Washington, D. C. was piloting the plane. His passengers included Walter Brandstetter of the Everett, Wash. Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, and five members of the Anchorage Weather Bureau.

The others aboard were Bert Lindley, Harry Carl, James W. Grant, Charles Belcher and Tom McDonald.

Murder Charged In Tavern Death

PORT STOCKTON (AP) —Matias Velasquez, 28, has been charged with murder after a Sunday night fight in which a tavern waitress was stabbed to death and two men were wounded seriously.

Police say Velasquez, paroled from the state penitentiary, is accused of killing Margarita Martinez, 24. She had her throat cut, and also was stabbed in the right and left sides.

Two men who went to her aid, Hilario Munoz and Rosendo Gomez, received stab wounds, and are in serious conditions.

Navy Prisoners Test Atom Shelter

PLEASANTON, Calif. (AP)—Ninety-three prisoners today began the second of five days 15 feet underground in a 25 by 48-foot Quonset hut, hopeful of cutting short their terms by helping the Navy develop an inexpensive nuclear fallout shelter.

The 93 were among more than 250 who volunteered at the Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center for the test. Underground with the prisoners are three Alameda County deputy sheriffs and four scientific observers.

Of primary interest is whether a filtered air system, powered by gasoline-driven pumps, can suffice during summer heat, so as to avoid the expense of air conditioning units.

Friendly Texans Invade England

LONDON (AP)—Texans—84 strong—invaded London Monday, but the invasion, old fellow, was strictly friendly.

With two Lone Star flags flying, the 84 Texans arrived in a plane for a three-week tour of Britain.

All plan to drive around Britain in sightseeing buses, dropping in at homes of members of the English-Speaking Union, which organized the tour.

Tour leader Jack Lowe of 2416 Kipling, Houston, said, "I hope it will be the forerunner for many more such visits from our region in the future."

Lowe's accent was not exactly Texan. "I'm an Englishman," he admitted with a sheepish grin, "but married to an American."

Two nuclear engineers, David Egan and his wife, George, of 4224 Clayton, Houston, were among the arrivals. "We thought this a grand opportunity to get away from it all," said George. "Our working lives just don't give us a lot of time to get away together.

State Winners For Design

Winners in the Texas division of the Fisher Body Craftman's Guild model car competition this year were Darwin Hawthorne, Greggton, whose entry is shown above, and William D. Payne, El Paso, whose model is below. Ronald Jeter, Big Spring, won honorable mention.

Ronald Jeter Wins Honors In Craftsmanship Contest

Ronald Jeter, 16, of 1814 Benton has been awarded honorable mention in the 1960 Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild, junior division, for his entry of a mahogany model of a hard top sports car.

The Guild sponsors the contest to interest young men in automotive designing and building.

A junior, in Senior High School, Ronald became interested when representatives of the Guild came to the school. He noted that also he always liked to draw cars and after the visit of the Guild representative, he decided to build one.

After making models for two years, Ronald entered for the first time this year and won $25 honorable mention in state competition. The model, made of hard wood, took about nine months to complete. Contestants may use any material they desire in making their cars.

Ronald plans to enter the contest again next year, but has no intentions of going into car designg as a career.

He received his award, of $117.00 in cash and scholarships given nationally by the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild this year.

Bobby Pierce Gets Lone Star Award

Bobby Pierce, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Pierce, Coahoma, was selected for a Lone Star Farmers Award by the Future Farmers of America at the Texas convention in Houston last weekend.

Pierce, attending his first state convention, was the first student under the leadership of Ray Foster, FFA instructor in the Coahoma schools, to receive the coveted award—highest which the Texas Vocational Agricultural Association confers.

Bobby, a graduate of this year's senior class of the Coahoma High School, plans to be a vocational agriculture teacher. He will enroll in Howard County Junior College this fall.

He has had three years in the Future Farmer program in the Coahoma High School. He has gone in for animal husbandry as a prime activity. He is currently president of the District FFA organization. The district includes all FFA students in Coahoma, Big Spring, Garden City, Flower Grove, Midland, Stanton and Odessa. He also was president of the prize winning district leadership team.

He served as Greenhand president of his chapter in 1958-59.

From his projects last year, he cleared $1,050, operating programs in steer and lamb feeding as well as crop production.

With him at the Houston meeting were Foster and Donnie Reid, current chapter president of the Coahoma FFA.

Under Same Roof But No License

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A young woman seeking to marry a prisoner in County Jail today shared the same roof with him, but no wedding is in sight.

Laura Ann Rawson had requested permission to marry David Walker even though he had been sentenced to 20 years in prison on two armed robbery counts and was awaiting trial on a third charge.

When the young woman went to visit him Friday she was arrested on warrants charging burglary, larceny and forgery. She is being held in the same prison.

GRAND PRAIRIE, La. (AP)—There were 231 descendants to mourn the passing of Corinne D. Dupree, 93, who died at her home here Sunday. She left three sons, two daughters, 68 grandchildren, 77 great-grandchildren and 84 great, great-grandchildren.

Lyndon Begins His Campaign

DENVER (AP) — Sen. Lyndon Johnson started his campaign as the Democratic vice presidential candidate with a special train trip today to the Frontier Days celebration at Cheyenne, Wyo., 90 miles north of here.

Johnson, guest of Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Denver Post, goes to a Chamber of Commerce luncheon and then visits the rodeo. No formal address is scheduled.

Johnson expects to return to Denver Monday night from his ranch without fanfare.

A half-dozen newspaper men and a few onlookers met him at an inconspicuous taxi strip where his private plane stopped.

Johnson had little to say.

"I am an ardent advocate of reclamation and a firm believer in the future of the West," Johnson said. "The West is destined to become the heart of the bread basket of the world."

Johnson said he expects the post-convention session of Congress will be short and productive. He said he doubted that it would become a sounding board for party platforms or a campaign program.

After his return to Johnson City, Johnson will relax a few more days before flying to Hyannis Port, Mass., to open campaign discussions with Sen. John Kennedy.

Selby Jury Still Forming

AUSTIN (AP) — The slow job of picking a jury for the murder trial of Houston accountant Joseph Selby continued today.

Only one juror was acceptable to both sides in almost seven hours of questioning individually Monday, the first 20 members of the jury panel.

Some 76 prospective jurors remain to be questioned on the original jury panel.

Selby, a neatly dressed, wealthy accountant, is accused of agreeing to pay $1,500 to three Negroes to kill his wife, Mrs. Selby, 48, was shot down in her fashionable Afton Oaks home Nov. 16.

L. E. Powell, a printing pressman, was the first juror to be accepted. Many of the prospective jurors were excused on grounds they were opposed to capital punishment.

Twenty witnesses have been summoned by the state and six have been called by the defense, including taxi driver Sammy Fance. Fance, considered a "mystery witness," did not testify in the trial of Maggie Morgan, 45, a Negro woman sentenced to the electric chair for her part in the murder of Mrs. Selby.

It may be late in the week before actual testimony begins.

Murder Suspect Claims 7 Victims

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A man charged with one murder has led officers to a second body and told a vague, dream-filled tale which includes six other possible victims.

Emmett Spence, about 35, of Sandy Hook, Ky., is being held on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Johnny Thomas Keen, a Navy Yard employe, whose body was found in his Key West home.

Dade County (Miami) detectives said Spence led them to the body of Leon C. Hammell Jr., 45, in a wooded section on Big Coppitt Key, 10 miles north of Key West.

Spence was brought from Key West for a search today in this area for the body of a woman hitchhiking companion. Police said he told them he believes he murdered the woman "on a two-lane highway" while traveling from Virginia to Key West a month or two ago.

Officers said Spence told them he dreamed he killed a fourth person "somewhere up the line" and claimed responsibility for the slaying of a family of four in Virginia. The FBI has arrested another man in that case.

The tall, thin Kentuckian said he was drinking at the time of all eight murders, detectives related.

A detective said, "All we know for sure is he's led us to two bodies already and we're checking out everything he tells us."

Pair Held After Goodwill Raid

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A jobless father and his wife were held in jail today after police asserted they led their five children on a pilfering raid of a Goodwill Industries box.

"I didn't see any harm in taking the things," said David M. Garcia, 30, who said he had not worked in six weeks.

"The articles are for the poor and we are poor.

"It couldn't have been stealing. It was broad daylight."

Police booked Garcia Monday for contributing to the delinquency of a minor and theft under $50. They booked Mrs. Garcia, 35, who is expecting a sixth child in September, with theft under $50.

The five children, ranging in age from 2 to 6 years, were taken to the children's shelter.

Patrolman Ronald Atnip said the father sat in the car while the mother and five children sacked up 12 flower pots, 6 bags of clothing, 4 pillows, 1 vase, 1 fish bowl, 2 clocks, 1 ice bag and 25 assorted toys.

Garcia said he pleaded with the patrolman to allow him to return the items.

Division Praised

THIS DAY IN TEXAS

By CURTIS BISHOP

On this day in 1918 blew in the Fowler gusher, launching the Burkburnett boom and entitled at least one Texas woman to say "I told you so."

She was the wife of S. L. Fowler, the farmer who had wanted to sell his land, but was restrained by his spouse. Mrs. Fowler was positive there was oil on the place. A dry hole or two failed to discourage her; she was sure the drillers were trying the wrong spots.

Finally the drillers "spudded in" where Mrs. Fowler directed.

The result was historic. In two weeks' time there were 60 companies ready to drill on one small lease. In three months 200 test wells had been drilled without finding a single dry hole. Walter Cline, who drilled the first Fowler well, profited $3,500,000 in a few months.

For holding on to his property at his wife's insistence, and against his better judgment, Farmer Fowler netted almost two millions. By the next spring the Burkburnett field was producing 55,000 barrels of oil per day.

Brazil May Expel BenJack

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Justice Ministry started proceedings today to expel BenJack Cage from Brazil.

Cage is a former Texas insurance man under a 10-year sentence at Dallas for a $100,000 embezzlement.

He has been living in Brazil since 1957. After a series of real estate deals, he was reported working last spring as a laborer on a rubber plantation in the remote western state of Mato Grosse.

There is no extradition treaty between Brazil and the United States, so Cage could not be forced to return to serve his sentence.

Spokesmen did not go into detail concerning the expulsion move.

A Devotional For Today

For me to live is Christ, and to die is gain. (Philippians 1:21.)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, source of life, we praise Thee for life in and through Jesus Christ. Keep us in Him in these days of our pilgrimage. In the name of our living Lord, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Time Out For Surveys

Hardly a day passes that this desk doesn't receive an urgent plea from some survey outfit, most of which seemed to be centered in New York, Washington or Chicago, asking if we won't please fill out the enclosed questionnaire and return immediately.

Way it looks to us these surveyors or pollitakers and "business" consultants hire themselves out to big concerns of one sort or another to gather and collate information of all kinds covering all kinds of industries, businesses, groups and whatnot.

They want detailed information on everything from the number of filling stations, and by whom operated, to drive-in laundries or motels with drive-in restaurants. One such request received recently would take one person's time for up to half a day to gather the information desired and fill out the blank form.

We suppose other types of businesses are plagued by the same type of request. In many cases, there isn't the slightest chance your firm could possibly benefit by taking the time and trouble necessary to fill these importunate demands.

What do you do with unwelcome intruders on your time like those mentioned? Well, if it seems to be a responsible outfit doing the asking you do your best to comply. But for 90 per cent of this material the wastebasket is the proper receptacle; somebody's trying to use you instead of doing the work themselves, at their own expense.

Wonderfully Welcome Development

The announcement that Sid Richardson Carbon Company is to construct a smokeless type carbon black plant here is as welcome as a series of 3-inch rains.

This project, which will involve an investment of a few million dollars, broadens our industrial base. With this there will be an increase in our population, and our experiences in the past assures us they will be a high type of citizenry. That means participation in civic affairs as well as an economic boost.

Because an industry of this type utilizes raw materials which abound in this area, it is a logical enlargement of our industrial complex, in this respect. Richardson has chosen to contract with Cosden for its furnace oil supplies, thus adding another good customer for Cosden.

A similar relationship between Cosden and Cabot has been a fruitful and satisfactory one, so much so that Cabot has just completed innovations which will virtually double its output.

In both of these developments, we have Cosden to thank. R. L. Tollett, president, had moved boldly, with approval of his directors, to step in and offer inducements in the way of site, etc. to attract new industry, thus neutralizing the inclination on the part of some to look upon prospective industry as sources of private gain.

We are proud that Sid Richardson carbon has chosen Big Spring as a home, and we feel the community has an obligation to make this the type of city where its workers will be happy and productive.

Lucy's Masterpiece

"This political cartoon," America's No. 1 Fussbudget told Charlie Brown in the "Peanuts" comic strip last week, "is guaranteed to cure all of the world's troubles!" At first glance, her claim may seem exaggerated. But on second thought, if G.O.P. and DEM. stopped glaring at each other, and the early American spirit of "Don't Tread On Me" came out from behind that rock, and Uncle Sam stopped just standing there with his hands at his sides, maybe . . . just maybe . . . Well, what do you think?

Around The Rim

Maybe The Mosquitoes Will Learn

It was very consoling to me as I mowed my lawn the other afternoon to know that the city hall was waging a vigorous campaign to kill off the mosquitoes. It made me happy to know that something was being done despite the fact that I was in grave danger at times of being lugged off by mosquitoes who have not heard about the city's war of extermination.

I consoled myself with the thought that if the city wasn't waging war against the pest, there'd be many more. So many, in fact that I would have been drained of my life blood and wound up an anemic wreck. As it worked out, only one mild transfusion was required to restore the lost blood. In only a few days I was nearly as good as new.

I AM A TRUSTING sort of duck and I trust devoutedly that the city's little smoke pot, which occasionally drifts by my house, is quite capable to dealing death to the mosquitoes. My trust does not seem to be wholly supported by the facts. It sort of looks like the device, only drives those mosquitoes who live between me and the machine over in my yard along with what earlier recruits they may have picked up.

However, I am told this stinky stuff does kill the mosquitoes, and who am I to question the purported verdict of science?

I do not think this year's crop of mosquitoes quite equals last year's in the matter of individual size. This year's models are more streamlined, of less bulk, and rigged with much sharper bills, and much keener radar equipment. They are also jet propelled whereas the ones I fought last summer were merely equipped with two to four propeller type engines.

THEY HAD MORE weight and threatening appearance but not the nuclear drive of this year's models. These bigger buldier models of 1959 had to soar in for a landing, settle their legs firmly on your flesh, and then drill a little test hole before actually starting operations.

The ones which gave me a workout the other afternoon were rigged to go at speeds which made them invisible until they reached their target. They were able to land, drill in and drag out the maximum quantity of blood before one could possibly get a whack at 'em.

I am quite well aware that it is only mama mosquitoes who do the biting. The males, apparently are strictly vegetarians and therefore harmless. Makes me almost wish I were a cabbage.

HOWEVER, I AM not fully advised on how to distinguish the papas from the mamas. To date every darned one which has hit me has been able to bite and bite deep. There must be a great abundance of lady mosquitoes. I also am beginning to believe that the city's smog maker may be lethal to the gentlemen of the tribe, but impotent when it comes to the women folk.

Oh, well, maybe the mosquitoes will learn you can't fight city hall and give up the struggle.

Vice President No Help To Ticket

CHICAGO—In both parties there's been an overemphasis on the vice-presidency. The selection—or failure to select any particular individual—in either case will not decisively influence the result.

If it's in the cards, for instance, for Nixon to carry New York state, he will do so irrespective of whether Governor Rockefeller had been his running mate.

If, on the other hand, it's in the cards for Senator Kennedy to win the election, he will do so without the states in the South he is supposed to have drawn to his banner by the selection of Lyndon Johnson as the vice-presidential nominee.

HISTORY PROVES that in not a single instance has the vice-presidential nominee of either party, by carrying his own state, contributed enough electoral votes to bring in his running mate. This has been true for more than 100 years.

Take the 1928 election for instance. Al Smith, who had three times been elected Governor of New York on the Democratic ticket, did not carry the electoral votes of his own state. As for his vice presidential nominee, Joseph T. Robinson—who was nationally known because, like Lyndon Johnson, he was the Democratic leader of the Senate—the results after election day showed that he carried his home state of Arkansas all right, though by a reduced margin. But he couldn't prevent five other states of the solid South from going Republican. This has often been attributed to the religious issue, but this writer always has believed it was related to the prohibition issue. For the South was determined at that time to keep its states dry because of circumstances related to the Negro problem.

TAKE THE 1952 campaign, when the Democrats thought it might be helpful to have a Southerner on the ticket. Senator John Sparkman, the vice-presidential nominee, carried his home state of Alabama though by a greatly reduced majority as the Republicans piled up a vote in that state nearly four times what Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, got in either 1944 or 1948. But the presence of a Southerner on the ticket didn't prevent four other Southern states —Texas, Tennessee, Florida and Virginia —from going Republican, and there was no religious issue involved either.

Take then the 1956 election when another Southerner, Senator Estes Kefauver, was named for the vice presidency on the Democratic ticket after a consistent string of victories in the primaries of several states in the North. The South didn't back him. Not only did he lose his own state of Tennessee but the Republicans also again carried Florida, Texas, and Virginia and added the electoral votes of Louisiana and the "border states" of Kentucky and West Virginia.

AS FOR DEMOCRATIC presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson, he lost his home state of Illinois both in 1952 and 1956. His running mates in the two campaigns had no influence in his behalf in the northern states.

There have, moreover, been instances in which the vice-presidential nominee lost his home state, but the party ticket won just the same. Thus, in 1940 Henry Wallace, Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency failed to carry his own state of Iowa, but Franklin D. Roosevelt won the election. John Bricker carried his own state of Ohio as the vice-presidential nominee on the Republican ticket in 1944. While presidential nominee Dewey failed to carry New York state and lost the election.

ANOTHER INSTANCE of failure of the vice-presidential nominee to help win the election was in 1948, when Earl Warren, former governor of California and now Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court, lost his home state while Dewey won his own state of New York. Yet the Republicans mistakenly thought in 1948 that the presence of Warren, the progressive, on the ticket would help them to victory nationally. The so-called logic of the convention hours somehow proves of little consequence by November.

WHEN THE AMERICAN people vote in a presidential election, they apparently either cast their ballots for the party they favor or the presidential nominee they like—they don't stop to appraise the possibility that a vice-presidential nominee, if elected, might possibly be president some day. Indeed, seven vice presidents have succeeded to the presidency out of a total of 23 men who have held the office of president. Thus, about one out of five, or a little more than 21 per cent, of the presidents have come to the White House through the vice-presidency. Three who succeeded to the presidency were subsequently elected in their own right.

All this really suggests that each party should select for the second place on the ticket the best qualified man in their ranks irrespective of the geographical area in which he lives and irrespective of whether he can placate the dissidents of a certain ideological wing of his party.

Both Conventions Are Rather Dull

CHICAGO (AP)—It's like a re-run of the World Series. You see the players running around the bases but you already know the score.

The Republican convention is pretty much a duplicate of the Democratic convention in Los Angeles two weeks ago.

Dull is an accurate word to describe them both.

At Los Angeles there never was much doubt Sen. John F. Kennedy would get the presidential nomination.

Here there never has been any doubt Vice President Richard M. Nixon would be the Republican presidential candidate. The convention will say so Wednesday.

With Kennedy it was just a question of which ballot he'd be nominated on. With Nixon it's even more cut and dried. He'll get it on the first.

The only surprise at Los Angeles was the choice of Sen. Lyndon Johnson of Texas to be Kennedy's vice presidential running mate.

Here the choice of Nixon's running mate still is up in the air. So that's the only element of surprise in Chicago.

In Los Angeles the Southern Democrats protested against the party's liberal civil rights plank.

Here the Southern Republicans are protesting against the liberal civil rights plank demanded by Nixon and New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Despite the machine-tooled nature of both conventions, the two parties still went through the traditional routine and long-winded speeches, full of bombast and exaggerations.

What the politicians of both parties seemed to overlook was how they looked on television.

In pre-TV days they could put their act on for hours and bore no one but themselves. Now, thanks to TV, they can bore the whole nation.

No wonder there is increasing talk for the need of future conventions to come abreast of the times, and cut their long-winded performances down to the essentials in choosing a presidential candidate.

There won't be much steam in either campaign until September, when the candidates start explaining how they'd carry out the promises made at these conventions.

Does It Help The Waistline?

NEW YORK (AP)—Hilde Somer, one of America's best-known lady concert pianists, has an unusual prescription for a happier life—become "a belly breather."

Miss Somer spends six hours a day at the keyboard. But she says the real key to her own rose-cheeked vitality is a series of five-minute Yoga exercises she does three times daily.

And she believes that anyone who tries them will find they do more than tranquilizer pills to make him feel happier.

"The Yoga exercises do more than keep you in physical trim. They help your mental attitude. I think they can help anyone who is a victim of 20th century pressure," she said.

"Yoga exercises help you enjoy each fraction of the thorny path toward your goal. You can still be ambitious and be happy—if you don't tie yourself into a thousand unnecessary knots."

But the biggest secret of all, said Miss Somer, is to learn to breathe in the Yoga manner.

"There are three ways of breathing—with the upper part of your chest, through expansion of your diaphragm, and through your belly," she said.

"It is breathing through your belly that calms you."

Yeah, but just how do you do that, ma'am?

"You just lie down and let the air out through your nose very slowly—without pushing," answered Miss Somer. She wrapped her skirts around her knees, then stretched out on the floor.

"Then you breathe in very slowly, until your belly feels very plump and full. It's hard to describe verbally, but if you experiment you can learn it. It takes practice. It takes research on your own anatomy. Do you want to try it?"

"Not now, ma'am," I told her bashfully.

That night at home I lay down on the floor, let the air out through my nose carefully—without pushing—and tried to let some air in through my belly. Nothing much happened.

"Now what are you up to, Rover?" asked my wife. I told her with husbandly dignity I was discovering joy through belly breathing.

"If that makes you happy, you should be the most cheerful man in the world," my wife replied. "Your stomach looks as if someone had done nothing but pump air into it for 10 years. Maybe what you need is to find a way to let some of it out."

Blackouts Caused By Many Different Things

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I have had blackouts for as long as I can remember, but in the last year they have become more frequent. I suffer from dizziness and everything turns black when I stand up. Sometimes my head feels full and hot inside. The spells last from a few seconds to perhaps a full minute. Although they occur at different times, they seem most severe after my menstrual period.—Mrs. J. T."

There are many causes of "blackouts"—momentary loss of consciousness which can occur without a person actually fainting or collapsing.

This type of problem as a rule is indeed annoying and may be serious, and it can, of course, be embarrassing.

Some blackouts are mild convulsive disorders—often what we call the petit mal type of epilepsy. (The grand mal type involves the violent seizures.) In the petit mal type, the attacks are very brief and sometimes extremely numerous. For example, an individual with petit mal may halt in the middle of a sentence for a few seconds, then go on and complete the sentence, sometimes not even realizing the pause has occurred.

Another type of blackout can be due to changes in circulation. There is a sensitive spot in the neck which, in certain people, can cause a slowing of the circulation. A tight collar, or looking over the shoulder can touch off this sort of thing. (It is called an "irritable carotid sinus," that being part of an artery serving the brain.)

Another cause is a slowing of the heart action due to a "heart block," or interference with the impulses causing the heart beats. This is called Stokes-Adams Syndrome.

In older people with hardening of the arteries, blackouts can result from narrowing of the carotid artery.

Still another is what we call "postural hypotension," or moments of low blood pressure which occur when one is changing position, from sitting or lying down, to standing. This can occur in young as well as old people.

Some of these blackouts (or other blackouts which may have nothing in common with any I've just listed) may be triggered by other conditions. The menstrual cycle, since it brings extensive physical changes (fluid balance in the body, glandular activity, etc.) as well as psychological stresses, is a not-unusual factor in women. Fatigue and emotional disturbances also are common factors in blackouts.

Treatment, hence, varies. If there is a suspicion of petit mal (preceded, perhaps, by a head injury or severe infection which may have occured so far back that you can't remember it) the use of one or another of the anticonvulsant drugs sometimes puts an end to, or lessens frequency of, the blackouts. If the blackouts are primarily related to the menstrual cycle, some of the newer medicines to prevent "water-logging" of the system at that time may help.

If circulatory or other causes are the apparent cause, still other special drugs may have a place in treatment to minimize the trouble. Age, sex, condition of arteries and other elements, you see, often need to be taken into account to track down the cause, and then the treatment, when blackouts are troublesome.

Dear Dr. Molner: My teen-age daughter does not break out excessively on her face, but her back is all broken out. What could cause this and how can it be cleared up?—Mrs. M. K."

It sounds like acne, common in teen-agers and not necessarily always on the face. For acne, scrupulous cleanliness is essential —warm soap and water and rinsing with plenty of clear water. Avoiding chocolate, sea-food and excessive fats in the diet may help.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way to remove a scar or incision from an operation that causes embarrassment to a child?—ACS"

Plastic surgery can reduce such scars and sometimes make them virtually invisible. Your doctor can refer you to the proper surgeon to have this done.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

The London Daily Mail is fretting about the way we hold elections and the image it conveys to the world.

What seems to be disturbing our British cousins is that Premier Khrushchev has refused to negotiate with the West until there is a new man in the White House. The image of Uncle Sam and "log cabin electioneering" ought to be scrapped if the U. S. ever hopes to become a more adult nation.

More adult like Big Brother, say? That would be easy. All we'd have to do would be to choose a dictator. Or more adult like the British campaigners? But if Mr. Macmillan thinks it wise to campaign for a summit meeting in order to win an election, we can't see why we're unwise to campaign for an election in which summit meetings will certainly get a going over before we go to another one.

Our guess is the U. S. will keep on holding elections just the way it has through wars and any other kind of a crisis, though to tell the truth maybe there's something to that complaint about our image.

Kids Are Running The Conventions

CHICAGO. — Something is certainly killing me at the Republican convention, but it isn't suspense.

What has me covering is this convention's all-out accent on youth. The brats with their noses in braces who appeared to have their hand on the helm at the Democratic convention were sufficiently disturbing. But adults are so accustomed to being pushed around by teen-agers that the situation more or less passed for normalcy.

BUT THE REPUBLICANS are working at the kindergarten level. Or at least Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona, who is trying for Veep, is making a strong play for the moppets.

Every tiny tot on Michigan Boulevard is marching along with a golden-yellow balloon bearing the legend, "Goldwater." The Senator's conservative admirers are handing out such balloons to every child who passes near convention headquarters at the Hilton Hotel.

EVEN ABOVE the sound of traffic, the bystander hears frequent howls of anguish from small Goldwater admirers whose balloons have either gotten away or burst.

All the banners proclaim "Youth for Nixon," "Youth for Rockefeller," "Youth for Goldwater." Most of the 10 tons of free campaign literature at G.O.P. press headquarters in the basement of Hilton Hotel bears the imprimatur of the Young Republicans or is about the Young Republicans (who have, for instance, used two more tons of paper and hundreds of gallons of paint to produce 18,000 convention signs and banners).

THE VERY WORST thing that one can be at a political convention in 1960, aside from a Mugwump or Typhoid Mary, is an adult. Neither party wants anything to do with adults except on Election Day. Maturity, which the political parties thought so highly until a few years ago, is a dangerous handicap. At any moment, I feel that all over 18 are apt to be led out on the ice floes and left to die.

Politically, adults have been scratched by both parties. Senior citizens are solidly for Forand. So that takes care of the population.

When I first arrived in Chicago, I felt that the difference between the Democratic and Republican conventions was as that between the quick and the dead. At first, the Den Mothers Association of Vassar, all in good, basic black, and the Ivy League types in the button-down collars seemed to have buttoned down the convention. It was all very quiet, dignified and dull.

IT WAS SO dignified the first day that I overheard a Vassar type in the good B. B. tell her Ivy League spouse, "For heaven's sake, Fred, take off those dark glasses or someone will think you're Carmine DeSapio!"

I thought only a pulmotor, plus constant shots of adrenalin, would manage to get a little life into the Grand Old Party. But things have picked up in the past 24 hours. And Big Ben types from the Midwest have begun to dilute the Ivy League look. There is a little more life in the hotel lobbies and a strip-teaser named Connie Vention thinks the Republicans are the greatest. She didn't even bother with Los Angeles.

GOP All Mixed Up On Rockefeller

CHICAGO — The phenomenon of Nelson Rockefeller has this Republican convention bewitched, bewildered and beguiled.

It is the widely held view of most Democrats and some Republicans that Governor Rockefeller at the head of the ticket would be unbeatable. But that possibility was precluded long ago. For months Vice President Nixon has had the delegates in a political deep-freeze and he has taken every precaution to see that they stayed there.

WHAT PUZZLES virtually all Republicans in Chicago is why Rockefeller goes on resisting second place on the ticket. On every side hopeful politicos are saying: If Senator Kennedy could get Senator Johnson to run with him why can't Nixon have Rockefeller?

This overlooks certain fundamental facts about the Rockefeller character. First of all, he believes with a passionate intensity the things he has been saying in speech after speech on the major issues before the country.

HE IS TODAY deeply troubled about the state of the nation and the world. Unless the Republican party faces up to the grim facts of life, in the Rockefeller view, then not only will the party fail to assume a position of leadership but it will fail to win the election.

This is not a matter of politics, of winning votes, of appealing to one group or another group. To fail in the plank on national defense in the platform to call for spending an additional $3 billion a year for national defense for at least four or five years is for Rockefeller a bitter betrayal in the face of imminent peril. To him this is so obvious that when his tactics are put down to personal ambition he is baffled.

CERTAINLY ambition is part of the Rockefeller phenomenon. But it is far from being the principal motivation in the course he has followed in recent months. Realistically Rockefeller has had few illusions about the possibility of his supplanting Nixon with the regular Republicans who are running the show here.

On the practical side the New York Governor believes that the chances are against Nixon's winning in November. He accepts as valid the polls showing the Vice President trailing Senator Kennedy by wide margins in five key states with 160 electoral votes.

How much would Rockefeller add in second place on the ticket? Those close to him believe that he has never considered the matter in this light nor is he likely to. It is probable that Nixon, a thoroughgoing realist, is by now fully aware that to coerce Rockefeller into running for Vice President would look even more like a "deal" than the Johnson-Kennedy marriage of convenience.

AFTER ONLY two years in the sweaty arena of politics, winning a victory as Governor that all the pros had thought beyond his reach, this man occupies a strange position. A Rockefeller, with the death of his father in the head of a clan controlling hundreds of millions of dollars in capital and philanthropy, he is a maverick, an outsider, even a troublemaker to the regular and the orthodox. Conceivably if he should come before the convention, having rejected the Vice Presidency, he could be booed.

That is a measure of the party, and its caution and conservatism, as well as of the Governor. The private bitterness expressed against Rockefeller in the right wing, among those whom the Governor dismisses as Neanderthal, is reminiscent of how these same men denounced Wendell Willkie. If we lose in November, the right-wingers are already saying, you can put the blame on Rockefeller.

ANYTHING can happen in politics and it usually does. But if Rockefeller should yield to the pressure and run on the Nixon ticket he would shatter the image of an independent - minded leader who cares more for principle than for place and he would disillusion his wide following—a following bearing some resemblance to that of Adlai Stevenson.

At the same time in refusing to be coerced he will anger the professionals in his party and perhaps thereby damage his future chances for high office. But in the midst of what he believes to be the gravest crisis the nation has ever faced this personal dilemma seems to concern him hardly at all.

Gloves Go To Various Lengths; Belts Wander

Belts that ride the hipline or perch above the waist, and gloves that go to all lengths to achieve elegance for casual and dressy wear will make the fashion scene a colorful one this fall.

New contour belts, with tapered fronts to accentuate the tapered shoe look, are to be seen in suede, grained and smooth leathers. Many belts blend dual colors, such as black and brown, or bone with gray, brown and loden green—usually in one leather texture. Slim suede belts with fringed ends are tied at the waist, or rest on the hips.

Pastel suede leather belts, often jeweled or embroidered, join gloves in the trend toward the elegant romantic look for late-day dress. Suede and crushed leathers will circle elegant waists at evening functions. Gold crushed leather will be important for evening wear.

For teen-agers, the newest rage will be wooly shearling belts in bold, bright eye-stopping colors such as shocking pink or bright green. Fad or fancy, shearling belts will add color interest to knit dresses or tunics over slim skirts.

Gold will appear in every length of glove, from the shortie to the elbow length glove. Shorties are to show delicate tiny floral designs in golden thread, while an elbow length gold glove will be available in shimmering metallic gold from fingertip to cuff. Another more tailored white kid glove will bear a rim of gold kid streaked around the cuff and center vent.

There are to be leather gloves in golds, browns, greens and fall's newest color—shimmering plum. Some offbeat interpretations include harlequin-like designs in charcoal black and bone white, or olive green and gold.

Tan With Care

Bernadette Withers believes in being sensible about the sun. "If you can't take a tan easily," she says, "be very careful about staying out too long or you'll end up blistered and burned." Bernadette is a regular member of the "Bachelor Father" TV series for NBC.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Teen-Age Actress Has Tips For Youth

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — Bernadette Withers of the "Bachelor Father" TV series enjoys playing a girl older than she is. "I am only 14 and my mother is very strict about dating. She always tells me that there is plenty of time for that later," Bernadette said, as we chatted on the set.

"But I really don't mind," she went on. "I'm awfully busy because I model on Saturdays when I'm not working on TV. I've learned a lot about clothes. I know what I can wear, and I select my own costumes. The fashion coordinator advises all the girls and tells us what accessories to use. Unless you've had experience, you never realize what a difference it makes knowing how to accessorize."

I asked Bernadette if she was troubled with any teen-age beauty problems.

"Well, I can't take too much sun. My skin seems to blister and burn rather than tan," she replied. "But I can keep a little color if I don't stay out too long.

"Sunburn can be very painful. I found a lotion that helps a lot, but I don't intend to need it because I'm not going to get burned this summer.

"And another thing I have to take in moderation," Bernadette said, borrowing her mother's phrase, "is chocolate. I love it. But it makes my face break out if I eat too much.

"My mother is a trained nurse and she makes me have plenty of fresh fruit. She plans meals that are low on starches. She believes that it is good for me to drink plenty of water every day, and she's always reminding me of it. She says, 'If you are really thirsty there's nothing better than a glass of cool, fresh water.' And she doesn't approve of my drinking too many carbonated drinks."

"I think keeping your skin clean helps to keep it from breaking out. I like to mix lots of salt with a thick soap lather. I rub this all over my face and then rinse with tepid water. It feels good and it really cleans out the pores," Bernadette said in conclusion.

Bucs Use Long Ball To Regain Top Spot

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

They said the trouble with the Pittsburgh Pirates is that they're just a bunch of singles hitters. They lacked the ingredient that helps win pennants—the long ball.

So what did the Bucs do about getting back to first place Monday night? They banged out three home runs and halted the oncoming St. Louis Cardinals with a 4-2 victory that gave them a half-game lead over the idle second-place Milwaukee Braves.

Bill Virdon, Bob Skinner and Roberto Clemente provided the long ball. Virdon hit his homer in the sixth. The blow came off Larry Jackson and tied the score at 1-1. Pittsburgh went ahead, 2-1 in the sixth and St. Louis tied it 2-2 in the seventh, when Jackson went out for a pinch hitter.

In the eighth, with Ronnie Kline, a former Pirate on the mound, Skinner hit one into the seats to regain the lead for the Pirates. Then, for insurance, Roberto Clemente homered in the ninth and relief artist Elroy Face came in to seal Bob Friend's 11th triumph of the season.

In the only other game scheduled in either league, the Cincinnati Reds overcame a 5-0 deficit to defeat the Chicago Cubs 6-5. The Cincinnati triumph with two runs in the ninth climaxed an action-packed game in which Ernie Banks of the Cubs was carried off the field after being hit with a pitch and Cincinnati pitcher Joe Nuxhall had to be restrained from assaulting umpire Ed Vardo.

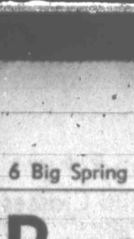

Banks, batting against Don Newcombe in the second inning, was struck on the left knee by a pitch. He fell writhing to the ground and it was feared he had suffered serious injury. Examination showed only a bruise and he was expected to be in the lineup today for his 589th consecutive game.

Nuxhall's blowup game in the eighth when George Altman, who had hit a three-run homer off Newcombe earlier, beat out an infield hit. Nuxhall, covering first on the play, took the throw from first baseman Gordon Coleman. When Varga called Altman safe, Nuxhall charged him and nearly knocked him off his feet.

Manager Fred Hutchinson had to restrain Nuxhall. Then Billy Martin and Coleman jumped on the southpaw pitcher and wrestled him to the ground to prevent a further attack on the umpire.

The Cubs carried a 3-0 lead into the seventh when a walk and two singles gave Cincinnati a run. Cub starter Bob Anderson was shelled in a three-run eighth sparked by singles by Eddie Kasko and Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson's double.

The Reds winning runs in the ninth came on singles by Chico Cardenas, rookie shortstop, pinch hitter Gus Bell and Pinson plus sacrifice flies by Kasko and Harry Anderson.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Sports dialogue:

PAT LYNCH, New York writer, discussing an afternoon at Aqueduct race track, during which times the crowd 'got on' jockey Eddie Arcaro and Eddie, for once couldn't retain his composure:

RUSTY RUSSELL

"He even challenged one particularly foul-mouthed fan lining the rail above the paddock. If the guy hadn't been out of reach, Eddie probably would have done what Ted Atkinson did one afternoon at Jamaica — jumped the fence and scrimmaged with his tormentor. At 44, Arcaro is still the best rider. He's still the best buy in racing from the quarter-pole home. His switch-hitting is smooth as running water in its execution and, as Marshall Cassidy said one day, 'On a horse creating a problem, Eddie can think of and do more things to solve it in a short space of time than any rider I've ever seen.'"

* * *

PAUL MILLER, five-year playing veteran in the National Football league, discussing Coach Sid Gillman of the Los Angeles Chargers:

"I'll say this for Sid. He'll sometimes take the blame. He took all the blame in 1955. That's when he (the Los Angeles Rams) won the division championship."

* * * *

ALLEN RUSSELL, general manager of the Dallas-Fort Worth Rangers:

"The minor baseball leagues will never draw again like they once did. This is a jittery age. Living habits have changed. People are home owners, heavily mortgaged. There are more families and responsibilities. They have more places to put their money. The minors must live with this. The man who won't see a minor league game still will watch a World Series with intensity because that's the ultimate. Every pitch is a climax. Fans are demanding quicker climaxes. If baseball law would allow it, I would like to stage doubleheader games of five innings each night. Then every play would be important. The final result will come quicker."

* * * *

RUSTY RUSSELL, former SMU coach, discussing his idea of a perfect passer:

"He'd have the poise of Gil Johnson. He'd have the broad vision of Gil Johnson and the ability to unload that Johnson had. He could throw the ball before you could bat your eye. He'd have the balance of Don Meredith; the throwing strength of Fred Benners and the running ability of Doak Walker."

* * * *

MAYO SMITH, former big league manager, commenting on Tom Sheehan's rough road as manager of the San Francisco Giants:

"When Lefty O'Doul took over the 'Frisco Seals years ago, his opening speech to the players was: 'I know I am going to be a so-and-so. But how big, or how little, depends upon you.'"

* * * *

FRANK (POP) IVY, coach of the St. Louis Cardinals of the NFL:

"Our players will have to take two or three written quizzes a week. There'll be a fine for every written error. It'll cost a player a buck if he doesn't know the other fellow's assignment on a given play, $5 if he doesn't know his own."

* * * *

PAUL CHRISTMAN, former passing great, discussing King Hill, the one-time Rice grid star, now with the St. Louis Cardinals:

"Hill has everything to be great—if he'll learn to set his feet so that when a receiver breaks open for a split second, he'll be able to hit him. I'm trying to sell these fellows on the idea that the short pass, the quickie, is part of their running game, not really their passing game . . . The 50-yard touchdown pass is 'over-glamorized.'"

PGA MEET GROWS

Club Pros Shoved Into Background

By DON WEISS

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—The bigger the Professional Golfers Assn. championship grows, and it has pushed into the big three of American pro golf, the smaller it is likely to become in interest to the fellow it used to be designed for—the club professional.

That seemed to be the trend today as the nation's top players and teachers headed for their homes and stops on golf's continuing circuit after Jay Hebert's nerve-numbing victory in the 1960 PGA tournament.

Of the top 60 finishers in the final standing, only a handful were club pros. It has been that way for three years now since the PGA was changed from a match play event on generally easy "pool tables" to medal play on a course like this 7,165-yard, par 35-35—70 Firestone Country Club monster that played as tough as a site of the National Open.

Only the regular members of golf's tutoring group have a chance on courses like these. At the start of last week, 90 per cent of the touring pros claimed Firestone was too tough for all but a few of their number.

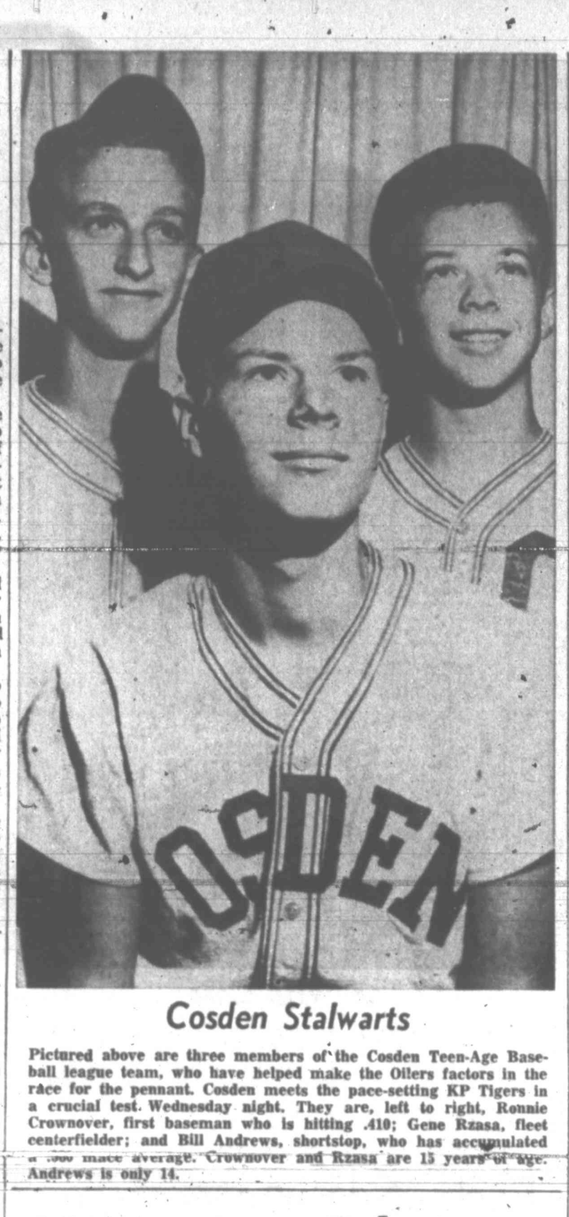

That Hebert wasn't one of those mentioned as capable enough really shouldn't matter. What does matter is that of the top 60 in a field that originally numbered 184, the best performances by club pros were 72-hole totals of 296 by old-timer Henry Picard of Cleveland, Shelley Mayfield of Jericho, N.Y., and Bob Harris of Winnetka, Ill.

That's an average of 74 per round and 15 strokes off the 281 that won for Hebert and his blazing finish in Sunday's final round.

For a time, John O'Donnell, 46, teaching pro at a public links course in Baltimore, stuck close to the leaders. But he couldn't break 80 in the last two rounds and finished way back at 305.

"If you get any money away from these touring players in a medal play tournament, you just have to be lucky," O'Donnell said.

Used to be that a club pro would sneak in now and then and grab the PGA title. But in the three years since it went from match play to medal play, the champions have been all tourists—Dow Finsterwald, Bob Rosburg and now Hebert.

Cosden Stalwarts

State Game People Low Pay Is Cited

AUSTIN (AP)—The head of the State Game and Fish Commission says his top technical people are underpaid, and called it a "poor investment" for the state to pay trained people low salaries.

Executive Director Howard D. Dodgen told the Legislative and Governor's Budget Boards Monday his agency plans to spend $12,034,945 in the two years beginning Sept. 1, 1961.

"We feel that the top echelon of our technical staff is grossly underpaid," Dodgen said. Dodgen repeated the lament of other state agency heads before the Budget Panel that inadequate salary levels make it hard for the state to get and keep top personnel.

Kiwanis Blasts ABC, 15 To 3

The Kiwanis blasted the ABClub, 15-3, in a Teen-Age Baseball league engagement here Monday evening.

Emilio Ramirez hurled the win, yielding only three hits to the losers. He pitched hitless ball for the first three rounds.

His mates took full advantage of wildness on the part of ABC hurlers. ABC pitchers walked five batters in the first inning, two in the second, five in the third and hit three others.

Don Osborne and John Villa each drove out two hits for the winners. The only other Kiwanian to hit safely was Jimmy Hensley, who connected for a single in the first inning.

Tommy Erhardt, Jimmy Earhart and B. Bell were credited with hits on the ABC side of the ledger.

The win was the Kiwanis' fourth in 14 league starts.

Bill Skowron Rapping Ball For The New York Yankees

NEW YORK (AP) —"Give Bill Skowron a full season with the Yankees and he's liable to make life miserable for American League pitchers."

This is what Skowron's teammates and some opponents have been saying the past few years while the husky first baseman has been plagued by numerous injuries.

This year Skowron has appeared in 80 of his team's 87 games and it's showing up in his work. He took over the American League batting lead over the weekend and today showed a .334 mark-11 points higher than runner-up Minnie Minoso of Chicago.

In all, Skowron collected 16 hits in 28 trips last week. He gained 24 points while moving up from eighth place.

Minoso picked up eight points to .323 with 12 hits in 30 times at bat. Al Smith of the White Sox advanced from sixth place to third on the strength of a nine point increase to .322.

In the National League, Norm Larker of the streaking Los Angeles Dodgers held a one-point lead over Willie Mays of San Francisco after Sunday's games. Larker dropped seven points to a .344 last week and Mays' average tailed off five points to .343. Richie Ashburn of the Chicago Cubs was third at .321.

Cromwell Foresees Success For U. S. Olympic Athletes

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Former Olympic head coach Dean Cromwell, always the optimist, today forecast great success for the United States track and field team in Rome this summer.

In a quieter but equally reassuring tone, Uncle Sam's decathlon star, Rafer Johnson, predicted it will take a record score to win the 2-day, 10-event grind in the 1960 Olympics.

Harold Connolly, hammer-throwing champion, announced he will be trying to better his world mark of 225 feet 4 inches and his Olympic mark of 207-3½ even before he heads for Rome in meets coming up in Southern California Aug. 5 and 12.

Connolly is pampering a badly torn back muscle but said the injury is gradually responding to treatment.

The three were guests at a track and field writers' luncheon.

Johnson, who set a record score of 8,683 in the recent National AAU decathlon at Eugene, Ore., admitted that 9,000 or more points are possible.

"If I had two good days I suppose I could (reach that figure)" said the ever-modest ex-UCLA athlete.

He said he expected C. K. Yang, of UCLA, who will compete at Rome for Nationalist China and who finished second in the recent National, to give him the most competition.

Dave Edstrom of Oregon, however, could be a threat and a big help to the United States if a leg injury mends before Rome-time, Johnson said.

Was he looking forward to meeting his old foe, the Soviet Union's Kuznetsov, with whom he has been swapping the world record for the past few years?

"I'm always looking forward to meeting him," said Johnson, who defeated the Soviet athlete in Moscow in a dramatic meeting in 1958.

Cromwell, who strung years of success with titles while coaching the University of Southern California, was highly enthusiastic.

Coach of the 1948 American team, Cromwell declared the United States could leave its top three athletes at home and win the Games with the next three.

Cromwell predicted a sweep in the 100 and 200 meter dashes, as Bobby Morrow accomplished in the 1956 Games. "If we are provided with enough bandage and adhesive tape to keep Ray Norton together."

Norton, subject to injury, is best U.S. bet in the sprints.

Cromwell predicted success in the 3,000-meter steeplechase for George Young, the ex-Arizonan now in the Army.

"And Herbie Elliott had better not have anything wrong with him or that young man from Oregon, Dyrol Burleson will beat him. Don't sell him short in the 1,500 meters," said Cromwell, referring to Burleson, the American champion.

Jim Piersall Problem Still Far From Solved

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The Jimmy Piersall controversy has calmed down — on the surface — but remains explosive underneath. Troubled peace has descended on the Indians.

A scheduled meeting today between the Cleveland players and Manager Joe Gordon to discuss the perplexing Piersall problem was called off late Monday night but it's no guarantee that another won't be called.

Player representative Harvey Kuenn, after a talk with Piersall, said there was no longer any necessity to have a meeting. Piersall, at first greatly distressed to learn that the players planned to hold a meeting concerning him, voiced pleasure over the decision.

"Piersall convinced me that his talk with President Joe Cronin had given him a new outlook," said Kuenn. "Jim promised me that he would mend his ways and his teammates are going to give him a chance to prove it. We're very glad we didn't have to have the meeting."

On the surface, everybody is happy. But the resentment apparently lingers on.

The latest Piersall episode began Monday afternoon when Kuenn disclosed he had requested a meeting between the Cleveland players and Gordon to discuss what should be done about Piersall because of his numerous wrangles with the umpires.

Jimmy's latest squabble, which resulted in his sixth ejection, last Saturday, resulted in a summons to Boston Monday. He received a fatherly talk from Cronin and was fined $100.

It wasn't until he arrived in New York that he learned of the proposed meeting.

"What have I done now?" was his first reaction.

"I felt like I had jumped out of the frying pan into the fire," said the 30-year-old star center fielder.

"I had just told Mr. Cronin that I was wrong and I promised him I would cut out the horse play and concentrate on baseball. Then I come to New York and see where they were going to have a meeting about me. I don't mind telling you I was terribly disturbed.

"I asked Harvey, who is a friend of mine, what it was all about," said Piersall. "He told me the players felt I was making them nervous with my actions on the field and they wanted to talk the situation over with the manager.

"I told him it's all right with me if that's what the fellows wanted but I resented all the talk about my hurting the club's chances to win the pennant. I told him nobody on the club wants to win more than I."

Kuenn, following his talk with Piersall, talked with several other Cleveland players and it was agreed to call off the meeting.

From now on, the only thing for me to do is to prove I can keep quiet and play ball," said Jimmy.

Earlier, he had expressed bitterness over what he felt were unjust charges against him by his teammates.

"All of a sudden, I'm the goat," he said bitterly. "We lost a few games and it's all my fault. Why are they picking on me? I didn't pop up with the bases loaded. I didn't throw the home run ball for the pitchers.

"They claim I'm upsetting them. Apparently I didn't upset them when I hit those two home runs and we were winning. It's only when we're losing that I upset them.

"I felt that after my talk with Mr. Cronin I had learned something and I was going to tell Gordon that from now on he would have no trouble with me. Then I find out they're holding a meeting about me. What am I supposed to do now?"

Corpus Team Wins Triangular Here

A YMCA team from Corpus Christi won first place in a triangular swim meet held at the local Y over the weekend, scoring 207 points.

Big Spring was second, with 159 points; while El Paso trailed, with 82. Midland was to have sent a team but it didn't show up.

Bill Dunham of Coprus Christi emerged as the high point man, with 38 points. Dunham, competing in the "15 and over" group, won the 40-yard free style race, 100 - yard breaststroke, 100-yard butterfly, 100-yard backstroke and the 100-yard freestyle.

Medals were handed out for first and second place finishes in each race. Ribbons went to those who finished third and fourth. The Corpos team also earned a trophy.

Joe Leach of the Y served as the meet director.

Leach announced that the local Y now plans to hold about three invitational swim meets a year, the first shortly after New Year's Day, the second in the early spring and the third up in the summer.

In addition, city-wide meets will be conducted once each month for all age groups. Ribbons will go to those finishing among the first four places in each of those events.

DEAR ABBY

'NUFF SAID

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: A little over a year ago I wrote a letter to you and signed it "Young Widow." I told you that my first husband was hard to beat and I was afraid of a second marriage because so many people warned me that they never work out. You printed my letter asking your readers for first-hand experiences. You sent me a box that weighed 12 pounds and had 600 letters in it. They were letters from readers who were kind enough to share with me their personal experiences with a second marriage. I read every one of them. Abby, I married the man, and I want to say that I never knew I could find this much happiness again. How can I thank you and those wonderful women who wrote to me? THANKFUL

DEAR THANKFUL: You already have.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a 14-year-old daughter (nearly 15) and she has the most beautiful red hair, a very pretty face—and is as stubborn as a mule. This is my problem: She insists on wearing her hair in rolls and curls, all tangled and wild-looking. She looks like a little old lady.

I try to tell her she would be so much prettier if she would fix her hair in a simple way to show its beauty. She says it's the style this way and all her friends think it looks "sharp." I realize that teen-agers like to do what their friends do, but isn't there some way I can get through to her?

NOT LISTENED TO

DEAR NOT: I agree that some of the new hairdos look like an unmade army cot, but teen-agers must have what's "in" in order to be "way out." Let her fix her hair the way she wants to (as long as she doesn't shave it or dye it). Next week it will be something else.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: When my husband was 19 he married a girl of 18. They lived together for nine months and he was sent overseas. When he came back she told him she had fallen in love with another man and wanted a divorce. He tried with all his might to save his marriage, but it was hopeless. He gave her the divorce and she married the other man.

I met my husband a year after he was divorced. He told me his story and I found it all true. He is a fine Christian and is very active in the church, as I am. We have two daughters, 7 and 10. We are raising them with high moral standards and have taught them that marriage is a life-long proposition. They know nothing of their father's first marriage and will probably never find out because we are far from his first home. Should we tell our children about it? WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: Volunteer nothing. If it ever comes up, the truth won't hurt.

* * *

CONFIDENTIAL TO SORRY SARI: Next time a fellow asks you up to see his etchings, skip the art and look for the handwriting on the wall.

* * *

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of The Big Spring Herald. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bethlehem Steel Leader Dies At 83

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP)—Eugene G. Grace, 83, who made Bethlehem Steel Corp. the nation's second largest producer, died Monday.

Grace, who for nearly half a century served as president, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, abandoned a promising career with the old Boston Braves to join Bethlehem in 1899 after graduating from Lehigh University at the top of his class.

His first job was that of an electric crane operator earning 15 cents an hour. He rose steadily until he became one of the highest paid corporate officers in the country. His salary and bonus totaled $1,560,000 in 1929.

Grace abounded in energy.

At the age of 80 he was in the midst of directing Bethlehem's 300 million dollar expansion program designed to increase its 20 million ton annual capacity by 3 million tons.

His philosophy was that a business cannot afford to stand still any more than an individual can.

"I don't like to think backwards," he once said. "When a man stops thinking forward, he's done."

Grace, the son of a Goshen, N.J., sea captain turned shore merchant, has said he gave up baseball because he felt his career would be over at the age of 35.

Ironically, in 1913 at the age of 36 he became president of Bethlehem Steel Co. Less than three years later he was promoted to president of the parent Bethlehem Steel Corp., owned by Charles M. Schwab.

Grace became board chairman in 1945 and continued as chief executive officer. Under his guidance Bethlehem's ingot capacity increased from 950,000 tons in 1913 to 73 million tons for six years during and just after World War II. It now exceeds 20½ million tons. He was also chiefly responsible for making Bethlehem the nation's largest ship building concern.

In 1957, shortly after he resigned as board chairman and chief executive officer, his health began to go downhill.

But he had left his mark. He had cut his own income by $350,000 during World War II as an example to other executives. He led the industry in introducing benefit plans, paid vacations for hourly workers and company grants to schools. He advocated the theory that an organization should develop its own men and give them advancement opportunities.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. David Guthrie, Bethlehem; two sons, Charles and Eugene Jr.; eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren. His wife, the former Marion Brown of Bethlehem, died in 1956.

Faubus Awaits Voter Decision

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Gov. Orval E. Faubus' bid to become Arkansas' first four-term governor today rested with the voters in the Democratic primary.

Faubus, central figure in Little Rock's 1957 integration controversy, confidently predicted a record 400,000 voters would nominate him over four avowed segregationist opponents.

The other candidates forecast 360,000 to 375,000 votes and predicted Faubus would be forced into an Aug. 9 runoff. No incumbent governor has ever survived a second primary.

In 1958, a record 383,000 voters gave Faubus a third term by a 2½ to 1 majority.

Opposing Faubus are Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett, a leader in the anti-integration movement; Joe C. Hardin, a planter-businessman; H. E. Williams, Baptist preacher and small college president; and Hal Millsap Jr., a grocer and oilman.

Pardoned Prisoner Hurt By Gunshot

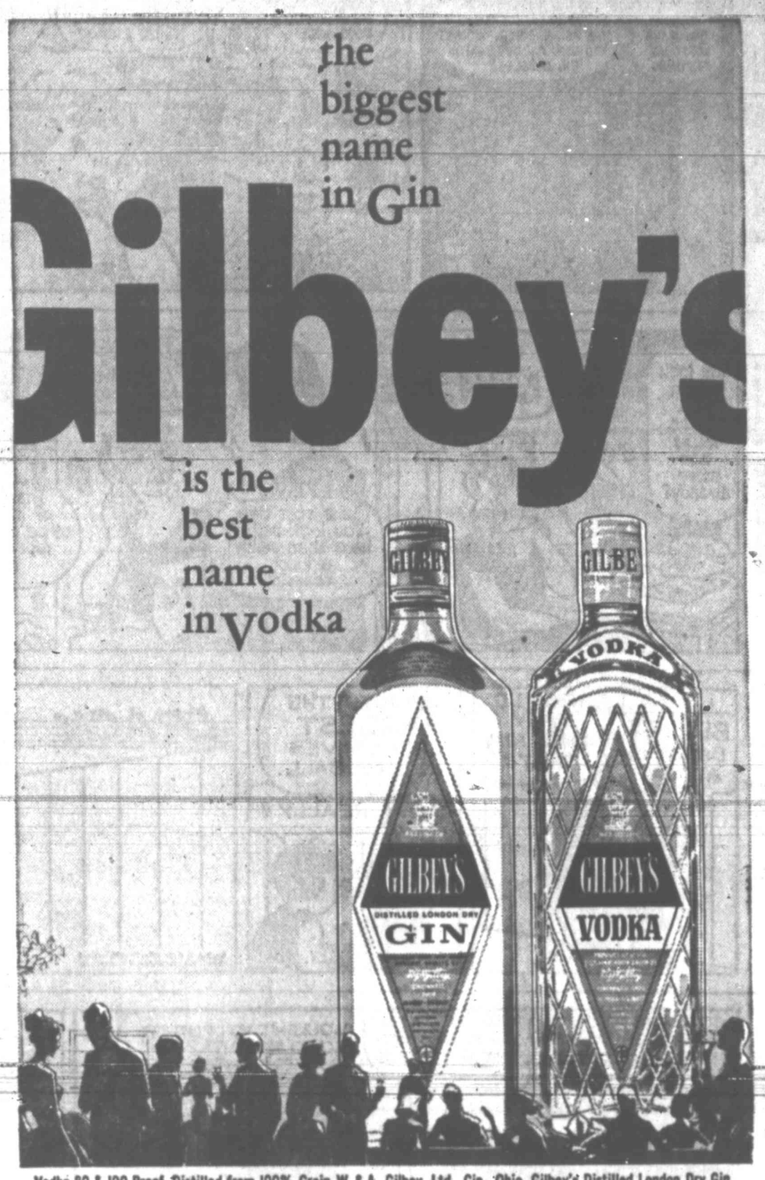

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—A young prisoner, unaware he had been pardoned only a short time before, was wounded in the back with a load of bird shot as he attempted to escape from a work detail.

Joseph C. Bacon, 19, was stopped Monday by the blast of the guard's shotgun as he attempted to make a break.

Prison Supt. H. J. Pickett said Bacon's wound was treated and he was released from custody after signing a release absolving the city from any liability for his injury.

Republicans Cheer Herbert Hoover

CHICAGO (AP)—All the chairman could get out was, "Ladies and gentlemen, I present to you one of the greatest humanitarians—"

The ladies and gentlemen knew who was coming. They roared, stamped, clapped and marched.

Here he was again, the ancient Republican, and again he was saying this would be the last time.

"Unless some miracle comes to me from the good Lord, this is finally it," Herbert Hoover told GOP conventioneers who seem to like him more as the years go by.

Certainly hoping he was mistaken, the Grand Old Man of the GOP had announced in 1948, 1952 and 1956 that those were his farewell conventions. He repeated the announcement Monday night.

"No" shouted the people who salute him every four years. Jumping at their first chance to make noise in Chicago's festooned convention hall, they relished this kind of talking back to father.

Hoover smiled his peculiar smile. His tight lips curled down, his eyes twinkled.

Hoover is the Republicans' Harry Lauder. That Scot singer was forever making farewell tours. This was Hoover's eighth convention tour. And Republicans who love the sight of the once rejected leader, now a living portrait of white-haired patriarch, were out to see him again.

Hoover's voice is thinner than before and less clear. He talked of a moral slump in the land he once served as president.

He spoke against the hum of a crowd half listening and half wandering. There was appropriate applause. But there were those in the flock who were not so worshipful of his words to hear them out.

That's not really offensive, in the ways of political conventions. Hoover, 85, knows the ways of conventions.

"Age has skill," he was told by a young man who heads the Young Republican National Federation. He presented Hoover the national convention medal.

They cheered again in the hall, and they prompted the man who has been living out the memory of a great depression, the man who now speaks of moral slump, to recall: "I, too, was once a young Republican."

Daily Average Oil Production Rises

TULSA (AP) — Daily average U.S. oil production increased 43,340 barrels to 6,855,615 during the week ended July 23, biggest advance since last May, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

The Journal said the 4-week average during the past 9 weeks has not exceeded 6,825,000 barrels daily, a factor it said tended to counteract excessive stocks.

Oklahoma increased 11,000 to 519,200 barrels. Colorado was down 1,500 to 127,000.

The Journal estimated 1960 production at 1,438,262,500 barrels compared to 1,458,516,200 a year ago.

Production was unchanged in Texas, 2,434,800 barrels, 27,100 barrels daily below the June average; Louisiana, 1,061,800; New Mexico 291,000; and Arkansas 78,650.

Huge S. Carolina Mobs Clash In Racial Incidents

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP) — Several hundred whites and Negroes carrying weapons ranging from a pistol to a slingshot clashed near two white drive-in restaurants Monday night.

City police arrested 18 persons, mostly teen-agers, of both races.

Outside the city, at another white drive-in two miles west of Greenville, another crowd of about 100 whites and Negroes were dispersed by four patrol cars and eight deputies from the sheriff's office. No arrests were made.

This was the second night of racial disturbances in this northwestern South Carolina city. On Sunday, a brief scuffle involving about 200 whites and Negro teenagers broke out near a drive-in restaurant.

The Chamber of Commerce took steps today toward creation of a race relations council. In suggesting such a council, Chamber President Grady Hipp said it was needed "to prevent bloodshed, which appears to be inevitable if something is not done."

Capt. G. O. Bramlette of the Greenville police said that lunch counter demonstrations at two downtown variety stores here last Thursday probably triggered the incidents. At that time a crowd of 500 whites and Negroes milled about after Negroes left sit-ins at the S. H. Kress and the W. T. Grant stores.

Some punches were exchanged between the two groups, and three white youths were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct.

Of the 18 persons arrested Monday night, one was a white man, about 40, who carried a pistol. A set of brass knuckles was taken from another participant and a slingshot from still another.

Police said most of those arrested would be charged with disorderly conduct. They included 10 Negroes and 8 whites. Two of the 18 were under 16 years of age.

Bodies Of Youths Sought In Lake

LUBBOCK (AP)—Search parties continued efforts Monday night to recover the bodies of two teenagers who drowned in a farm lake 10 miles southeast of here.

The two youths were Carl Hill, 13, of Woodrow, Tex., and Ronnie Taylor, 14, of Fort Worth.

They were drowned when their makeshift raft overturned while the two cousins and two companions drifted across the lake.

Coahomans To File Bid State Bank

COAHOMA—Organizers of a proposed state bank for Coahoma are nearing the formal application stage.

Flushed by the success of a community stock offering during the weekend, backers indicated they hoped to complete the application by the end of the week and have it in the hands of the state banking commissioner.

At a tea held in the Coahoma school Sunday afternoon, residents of the area quickly subscribed $130,000. This left only $50,000 to be pledged to round out the goal of $180,000 capitalization.

The pledges Sunday ran from two shares (par $36) to 280 shares. In all there were 123 who filled out slips pledging to take stock if and when a charter is approved.

R. A. Foster, who has been handling much of the mechanics of the preliminary organization, is working on the application and indicated Tuesday that it should be completed by the end of the week. Meanwhile, he predicted that all of the capital stock would have been subscribed.

Leap To Freedom Figure Is Dead

NEW YORK (AP) — Oksana Stepanova Kasenkina, whose "leap to freedom" 12 years ago formed a melodramatic chapter in the cold war, died Sunday in a Miami, Fla., hotel, friends here reported today. She was 63.

A one-time Russian schoolteacher, Mrs. Kasenkina in 1948 jumped from the third-story window of the Soviet consulate here to avoid being returned to her homeland.

The case stirred an international sensation.

The Tolstoy Foundation, Inc., an organization to aid White Russian exiles from communism, said that Mrs. Kasenkina died at the Gralynn Hotel in Miami from natural causes complicated by a heart condition.

In recent years, she has lived in seclusion, the foundation said, changing her residence often for fear of reprisals. She became an American citizen in 1957.

Dixon Plant Is Given Spotlight

Coincidental with the completion of improvements virtually doubling the capacity of the Dixon plant here, Cabot Industries has devoted a special issue of "The Flame," employe magazine, to it.

The cover page of the magazine shows an aerial view of the furnace type plant east of Cosden's refinery, its source of raw material.

Samuel A. (Buster) Bradford, maintenance superintendent, at the Dixon plant, is featured in the "Hall of Flame" monthly personality feature. Owen Gee and Earl Shank teamed on a sketch of Big Spring and its history from the time it was a watering place on the Comanche trail to its present role as home of more than 30,000 people. Lines from the cantata, "Big Spring," are used for picture identification except for current pictures of such things as Howard County Junior College, courthouse, downtown section.

William L. Mayfield and Munson M. Steward are spotlighted on the page, "Cabot Folks You Should Know." Five pages of pictures, touching almost all employes from A. R. (Dave) Davenport, superintendent, to the newest worker, follow in the publication. Then there is a historical sketch of the Dixon plant entitled "Dixon on the Move." This traces the beginning of the unit when two wells were drilled near Guymon, Okla., in 1937 until the unit was actually constructed two years later. Within 10 years it had been closed down but ultimately was relocated here in the spring of 1950 when Cosden made an unlimited supply of furnace oil available.

There also is a feature story on Ed Wright, welder at the Dixon plant, on Wright's unusual rifle and pistol collection. In the series of stories in the issue, prominent mention is made of such veterans as Davenport, who became the plant's first and only superintendent, Buster Bradford, E. T. Clark, Monk Stewart, Bill Mayfield and others.

Negroes Ask Strong 'Rights'

CHICAGO (AP)—An estimated 10,000 Negroes, carrying signs and singing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," demanded a strong civil rights plank of the Republican convention Monday.

The marchers wove through South Side streets and halted outside the International Amphitheater where Sen. Kenneth B. Keating of New York spoke with leaders of the demonstration.

Keating told the marchers he had been appointed by the GOP National Committee as its spokesman. Keating's voting record established him as a strong civil rights supporter.

A. Philip Randolph, president of the Sleeping Car Porters Brotherhood, asked if the Platform Committee had settled on a plank.

"I can't tell you that," Keating replied. "I don't know. I'm not happy with the present civil rights plank but I think my selection to meet with you is significant."

"Do you think this is an indication that a strong civil rights plank will be adopted?" Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, asked.

"I don't know, but it would indicate to me that the Republican National Committee, at least, favors adoption of a strong civil rights plank."

'Castrovich'

NEW YORK (AP)—New York's Spanish-language daily, El Diario, came up with a new name today for Cuba's leftist ruler — Fidel Castrovich.

It called him that in a front page headline.

PLAINVIEW — (Spl.) — Wayland Baptist College will confer on Rep. George H. Mahon, the honorary Doctor of Laws degree at the 50th session summer commencement on Aug. 25, by vote of the board of trustees.

Coke Has No Political Plans

AUSTIN (AP) —Former Gov. Coke Stevenson, retired to ranch life, will take no part in presidential politics but he will vote for Republican Richard Nixon in November, he said today.

Defeated by Sen. Lyndon Johnson by 87 votes for the Senate in 1948, Stevenson has shunned politics for a decade. He appeared at the Capitol with his wife and young daughter, Jane, following his old early rising habits, before 8 a.m. today.

He said he will vote for Nixon. "And I think that's all I'm going to do," he added.

Stevenson said he favored Nixon long before he heard of any other candidates because he considers him the best qualified man for the job from the standpoint of experience.

Multiple Ailments Are Repairable

By HALVARD T. HANSEN, D.C.

Quite often patients who come to chiropractors for one major ailment usually receive many side corrections in relief of various minor ailments.

Generally these grateful patients are amazed and invariably ask how it is that they come in with a kidney problem, for instance, and wind up free of minor digestive disturbances, or perhaps, headaches, sinusitis, muscular aches and pains, dizziness, etc. Actually, this is simple to explain from the chiropractic point of view.

Injuries to the spine usually involve several different nerve groups. A pelvic distortion, for example, could cause an adaptive spinal curvature affecting many nerve trunks. In our daily routine, minor nerve disturbances often pile up and accumulate — and each adds to the previous nerve pressures until a person might suffer from a dozen ailments at the same time. This explains how all of a patient's pains could have similar or related causes, though each could be resulting from a different nerve branch.

Proper realignment of the spinal column, correcting the causes of the injured or disturbed nerves, would naturally benefit all the complaints, though each ailment may have been previously "diagnosed" under a different name.

Take this case from our files as an example:

This mother of two teenagers had a serious chest condition that has resisted all efforts of "specialists" for several years. Discouraged, she related her sad, fruitless experiences. Her condition had been "diagnosed" as "chronic bronchiestiasis." We found she was suffering from a long string of secondary ailments such as hot and cold flashes with profuse sweating especially at night, interfering with her sleep. She got up tired and difficult breathing kept her physically exhausted. "Every little effort just wears me out — sometimes I'm just too tired to eat." Constant deep coughing didn't help matters and sometimes caused heart palpitations along with dizziness and fainting spells. Indigestion related with gas, bloating, constipation and hemorrhoids was enough to make anyone nervous, unhappy and bring on depressed crying spells. "I can live with everything else, Dr. Hansen, but please do what you can for my chest."

Our spinal examination located defective energization throughout her spine and X-rays showed us points of nerve interference.

Corrective adjustments removed the interference and this case like most all cases we accept was discharged with spine corrected. Our last checkup showed all her miserable symptoms had disappeared, including her chest syndrome. No. 2732.

Dugger Eyed For Senate Seat

SAN ANTONIO (AP) —A group of Houston and San Antonio liberal Democrats said Monday they hope to draft Editor Ronnie Dugger of Austin to run for the seat of Sen. Lyndon Johnson if Johnson is elected vice president.

The announcement said Dugger, contacted after a meeting of leaders of the movement, reported he is interested.

Dugger edits the Texas Observer, a weekly.

Sturge Steiner, Mrs. Billie Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Gil Phillips and Mrs. Janie Ingram of San Antonio and Jack Matthews of Houston told of the proposal. Matthews was leader of the Texans for Adlai Stevenson movement before the Democratic convention.

THE FRONT ROW

By Bob Smith

Married students at the University of Chicago take their kids to a sexy play, and think nothing of it.

It's Moliere's "Scapin," one of the most subtle stage comedies ever contrived. It's so subtle, in fact, that even 25-year-olds sometimes don't get it. But there's enough innocent horseplay to make the production amusing to those who do not define the subtleties.

Could this be the answer to the national baby-sitting problem?

Houston is getting a new art theatre. Not just an old movie house, but a brand spanking new building especially designed for artistic films.

* * *

In November the National Theatre Conference will take up the subject of critics and criticism, under the aegis of Baylor's Paul Baker —a frequent target.

This should be an interesting development. And I predict at least one result: The theatre folk will lambaste critics in general, but will have kind words for "constructive criticism" —whatever that is.

Thomas Jefferson, a bit of research shows, was a music lover. He spent much of his idle time playing the fiddle. The source did not say if anyone burned.

The St. Louis, Mo., Municipal Opera, will present Puccini's "Madam Butterfly," "Knights of Song," a musical story of the stormy collaboration of Gilbert & Sullivan; "The Red Mill" of Victor Herbert, and the recent Broadway hit, "Redhead." Performances nightly begin at 8:15 (CDT) in the 12,000-seat amphitheatre in Forest Park.

The dates of the four musicals are: "Madam Butterfly," Aug. 1-7; "Knights of Song," Aug. 8-14; "The Red Mill," Aug. 15-21; "Redhead," Aug. 22-Sept. 4 (14 nights).

* * *

"Holiday In Japan" will be presented by State Fair Musicals through Aug. 7, with performances at 8:15 p.m. Monday through Saturdays, and matinees at 3 p.m. on Sundays, at State Fair Music Hall in Dallas.

The show is a fanciful blending of the old and new in the Japanese theatre, ranging from the courtly splendor of ancient Nippon with its authentic Kabuki-style dances, costumes and wigs, to modern Japanese entertainment featuring a high-kicking American-type chorus line. The 70-member troupe includes some of the most beautiful girls in Japan.

IZUMI YUKIMURA
Musical comedy star

Among the entertainers who appear in "Holiday in Japan" are Izumi Yukimura, Japan's top film and musical comedy star, and James Borges, one of that nation's most popular singers.

Oklahoma Holds Vote

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Oklahoma voters make the final decision today on Democratic candidates for three state offices and one congressional post and two constitutional questions.

The runoff to the July 5 primary was expected to attract a light turnout in view of tepid voter interest.

The statewide race for Corporation Commission pits incumbent Wilburn Cartwright against Andy Payne, clerk of the state Supreme Court. Cartwright led Payne and three other candidates by a big margin in the July 5 primary.

Supreme Court Justice Harry Halley and Judge John Powell of the Court of Criminal Appeals are in runoffs for new terms.

Powell trailed Hez Bussey of Norman in the initial primary. Halley is opposed by Dist. Judge Leslie Webb of Tulsa.

The Democratic nomination to Congress in the 1st District, and the right to face Republican Rep. Page Belcher in the fall election, is between state Sen. Yates Land and Wesley Disney, both of Tulsa.

State Question 391 calls for the creation of an industrial loan fund to help lure industry to the state. Question 392 would allow counties to vote for extra taxes for county libraries.

Unhappy Boosters

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—All is not harmonious among Texas Democrats, the San Antonio Express reported Monday. It pointed to auto stickers reading: "Half the Way with JFK." Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson, the vice presidential nominee, used "All the Way with LBJ" as his slogan in seeking the presidential nomination.

Keynoter Judd Says Ike Has Kept The 'Peace With Honor'

CHICAGO (AP)—Rep. Walter H. Judd says the Eisenhower administration has kept peace with honor and that "the man this convention will nominate" is incomparably the best qualified to deal with the cold war.

Judd meant Vice President Richard M. Nixon. But his keynote speech Monday night was on opening day of the Republican National Convention, and Nixon is not slated to be nominated until Wednesday night.

The Minnesota congressman's 6,000-word address followed the classic pattern of keynote orations, though it was longer than most. He sang praises for the Republican record under President Eisenhower, predicted even better things ahead under Nixon, and charged the Democrats were unqualified to meet the challenge.

The delegates, in a relaxed and receptive mood, greeted his sallies with roars of approval.

"What kind of reckless and irresponsible action is it," Judd asked, "for anyone to misrepresent the United States as a second class power, as was done in the Democratic convention, and thereby encourage the very attacks which all Americans profoundly hope and pray can be prevented?"

In this 1860-1960 centennial year, Judd hearkened back to Abraham Lincoln, the first Republican president, and said the gravest issue of this century too is human slavery.

"This time not men enslaved by other men," he said, "but masses of men enslaved by governments. More human beings are in bondage tonight than ever before in human history."

Dealing with more recent Republican history, Judd said the Eisenhower administration "brought to an end the fighting in the Korean War which the Truman administration would not win and could not stop."

"In addition," he said, "this administration has prevented a half dozen other threats from developing into war—Trieste, the Mossadegh uprising in Iran, Guatemala, Formosa, Suez, Lebanon, Quemoy, West Berlin."

Far from allowing the nation to sag into a dangerous lag in missile strength, as has been charged by Democrats, Judd said, the administration fought and overcame a lag in this field he said was inherited from the Truman administration.

"The Truman administration in eight years had put 17 times more into price supports for peanuts than for long-range missiles," he said, adding:

"It took the Soviet Union 12 years to develop its long-range missiles. It took this administration six years to get ours operational. Anything wrong with that?"

Judd also pictured the use of the controversial U2 spy planes as one of several "brilliant examples of successful initiative."

"The fact that our U2 operations were so outstandingly successful for four years should be a source of intense pride to all Americans," he said. "The U2s were not provoking war, they were helping to prevent war.

"It has been suggested that the President should have done something different or better about Mr. (Nikita) Khrushchev's breakup of the Paris conference. Will they please tell you what they think the American people want their president to do? Apologize, and hand over West Berlin? Blow up and start a war? Of course not."

Judd said Republicans agree with the Democratic presidential nominee John F. Kennedy that the most important issue in this campaign is foreign policy. "We agree and welcome the test," he said.

On domestic affairs, Judd said "undeniably this has been overall the best seven-year period in the history of the United States."

The Republican party, he said, will attract youth because "youth wants to get ahead" and the GOP stands for maximum freedom and opportunity.

"This is why it is possible in America for the son of a rich man, like Jack Kennedy, to become president," Judd said.

"This is why it is possible in America for the son of a poor man, like Dick Nixon, to become president."

GOP Is Behaving Better For TV

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Will the Republicans pay more attention to the speakers at their convention than did the distracted Democrats?

Apparently so, judging from the first day of GOP sessions on TV. Of course, the Republicans have the advantage of hindsight, having witnessed the frenetic doings in Los Angeles a fortnight ago.

The Republican delegates in Chicago were urged by special message to avoid the recurrence of the rudeness of their Democratic counterparts who milled, mumbled and munched while their leaders orated.

The admonition appears to have paid off. Or maybe the Chicago event is better stage-managed.

Still, there were the usual calls for order during the first day's proceedings. The initial words heard from the rostrum were spoken by actor Wendell Corey: "Please clear the aisles."

Sound familar? You'll be hearing it again during the four-day fest, along with "Will the delegates take their seats," and "May we have order?"

Even though the Republicans appear to wield a larger gavel than did the Democrats, the need to recall the delegates from their noisy business of politicking still remains.

Monday the TV networks tried to put some life into what was feared would be a cut-and-dried convention and to a fair degree they succeeded.

Those who lamented that their favorite Westerns were pre-empted on TV were able to see both action and Indians.

The Indians were a dozen tribal chieftains who appeared on the convention platform for some obscure political ceremony. The action was provided by Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The networks came forth with shots of the Nixon family arriving at Chicago, making their way through the airport crowd, flying by helicopter to lakeside Chicago and driving through city streets to campaign headquarters.

Few arrivals have been as well covered since Gen. Douglas MacArthur returned to Leyte.

But the Nixon timing led to the inattention of the TV cameras to the serious business of the first convention session. The evening session drew a better response. The cameras stayed with addresses by Herbert Hoover and Sen. Barry Goldwater. The latter, it might be added, had to begin with, "Might I ask that we have quiet."

The star of the evening was Rep. Walter H. Judd of Minnesota, the keynoter.
