Murder convict plans appeal

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Felix Zamora of Knott, sentenced to 30 years in prison Thursday for the murder of his estranged wife, plans to appeal the verdict, said his lawyer Robert Abalos of Odessa.

The appeal will be based on information about parole included in District Judge James Gregg's charge to the jury before they decided punishment, Abalos said.

A 118th District Court jury set the punishment Thursday afternoon after finding 37-year-old Zamora guilty of fatally shooting Maria Isabel Zamora at the Latin Quarters club on Nov. 16.

The verdict followed two days of testimony during which witnesses testified that Zamora shot his wife at the club after an argument with her.

As part of the punishment verdict, jurors found Zamora guilty of using a deadly weapon to commit the murder.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said this morning he was elated with the sentence. He said inclusion of the deadly weapon verdict ensured Zamora would serve time in the state penitentiary until 1996.

Immediately after sentencing, Zamora's lawyer told Judge Gregg

"the defendant gives oral notice of appeal."

Gregg said later Zamora would serve time in the state penitentiary regardless of the appeal because the sentence exceeded 15 years. An appeal on a sentence up to 15 years gives the defendant the right to make bond, he said.

Abalos said he would file his appeal with an appellate court and hope a motion will be granted for a new trial.

"I think he (Zamora) has got a shot at reversal," Abalos said.

The motion to appeal, he said, was decided after Gregg denied Zamora's request to delete information pertaining to parole from the charge.

Gregg read the charge to jurors as part of his instructions to them before they entered deliberation to

Governor hails plan to give state share of offshore revenue

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas will get "its fair share" under legislation requiring the federal government to distribute more than $7 billion in offshore oil and gas revenue, Gov. Mark White said.

"Congressional passage of the Outer Continental Shelf Bill is a major victory," the governor said of the plan under which Texas ultimately would receive $645 million.

Legislation given final congressional approval by the House Thursday night ends a dispute between the federal government and the states over how to distribute long-disputed offshore oil revenues.

"I would like to see this money benefit the school children of Texas and continue the state's efforts to achieve educational excellence," said White, who as Texas attorney general initiated a lawsuit over the matter in 1979.

"That litigation continued under Attorney General Jim Mattox," the governor said, "and for the past two years I have participated in ongoing negotiations with the Department of Interior and testified before a U.S. House and Senate committee to secure Texas its fair share of offshore oil and gas revenues."

White said the legislation also requires the federal government to pay 27 percent of all future bonuses, royalties and rents from submerged land where a state shares jurisdiction with the federal government.

"This brings to an end a long, acrimonious litigation between coastal states and the federal government," White said.

Chamber dissension leads to resignation

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Internal squabbles have rocked the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce in recent weeks, culminating in the resignation of a committee consultant Thursday and committee complaints of unauthorized spending.

Sam Woodward, cultural affairs committee consultant who worked closely with the Big Spring Symphony board, resigned Thursday, saying in a letter that "virtual total lack of cooperation from the executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce (LeRoy Tillery) has rendered ineffective any professional guidance that these projects require."

Tillery was in Odessa this morning and unavailable for comment.

In his letter, Woodward said he would "allow the executive vice president the total control as well as the ultimate responsibility for the success or failure for this committee's endeavors."

Lea Whitehead, co-chairman of the cultural affairs committee, said Woodward intends to continue to work with the committee, but "he just doesn't want to be in charge."

Other complaints have surfaced concerning allocation of funds. Chamber committee members have complained that the board of directors put into the general fund money the committees raised for what they thought to be a specific purpose.

Complaints were brought up at both the board of directors meeting Wednesday and the cultural affairs committee meeting Thursday.

At the cultural affairs committee meeting, Whitehead said the budget showed "a sum of our money had been spent to pay the salary of a secretary and hadn't been authorized by us," leaving the committee with an empty bank

The rigs are not the only ones affected by the downturn in the oil industry. Howard County posted an almost 2½ percent increase in its February unemployment rate, largely attributed to problems in the petroleum industry.

County's jobless rate climbs

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Unemployment in Howard County has risen almost 2½ percent in a month and will continue to rise, said Phyllis Preston of the local Texas Employment Commission.

February's unemployment rate was 8.9 percent, compared to 6.5 percent in January and 6 percent in February of 1985.

That's the highest unemployment the county has seen since September 1983, when the figures hit 9.3 percent, Preston said.

"We attribute it to the depressed agriculture and oil industries and the ripple effect it has on the economy," she said.

There were 1,382 unemployed in February, compared to 1,004 in January and 920 last year.

The total civilian labor force in February was 15,519, compared to 15,509 in January and 15,456 last year.

There were 14,137 employed in February, compared to 14,505 in January and 14,536 last year.

Candidates discuss issues at city meeting

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Issues ranging from city nepotism policy to teacher competency testing were addressed by 12 men running for city, school district and Howard College offices at Thursday night's candidate forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters.

The forum, held in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, was attended by more than 100 people and opened with each candidate giving a brief, general statement about themselves and their ambitions.

After the statements, candidates were asked questions submitted by those in attendance.

Candidates present included mayoral hopefuls Cotton Mize and Troy Fraser; District 2 council candidates D.W. Overman and Tim Blackshear; school board candidates Dan Wise, Dock Voorhies, Teddy Griffin, Larry Phillippe, Jerry Myrick and Bill Brooks; and Howard College Board of Trustee candidates Bill Sprinkle and Curtis Mullins.

Conspicuous by their absence was college trustee incumbent David Gomez, council hopeful John Whitmire and school board candidate Jamie Baldwin.

Mayoral aspirants Mize and Fraser concurred that the Spring City should join more than 200 Texas cities in a statewide

State Hospital workers feted

Marilyn Newsom gets Friends of the Hospital Award.

Robert von Rosenberg received the Superintendents Award for Exceptional Service Thursday at the 17th Annual Awards Luncheon at Big Spring State Hospital.

Rosenberg is assistant superintendent at the hospital. "This person helps make us look good. He's effective and competent," Superintendent A.K. Smith said in making the presentation.

Friends of the Hospital Awards went to Marilyn Newsom and Safeway stores. Newsom was recognized for her "long and distinguished record of service as a volunteer," Smith said. Her greatest single contribution this year was to plan and host a Donation Tea to raise funds to retire the debt for the curtains in the patients' gym, he said.

"Marilyn is a true friend of Big Spring State Hospital," Smith said. Safeway stores were commended by Smith for the "numerous occasions in which they volunteered gifts of food, flowers and other supplies for patients plus being in the front rank of givers when donations were needed."

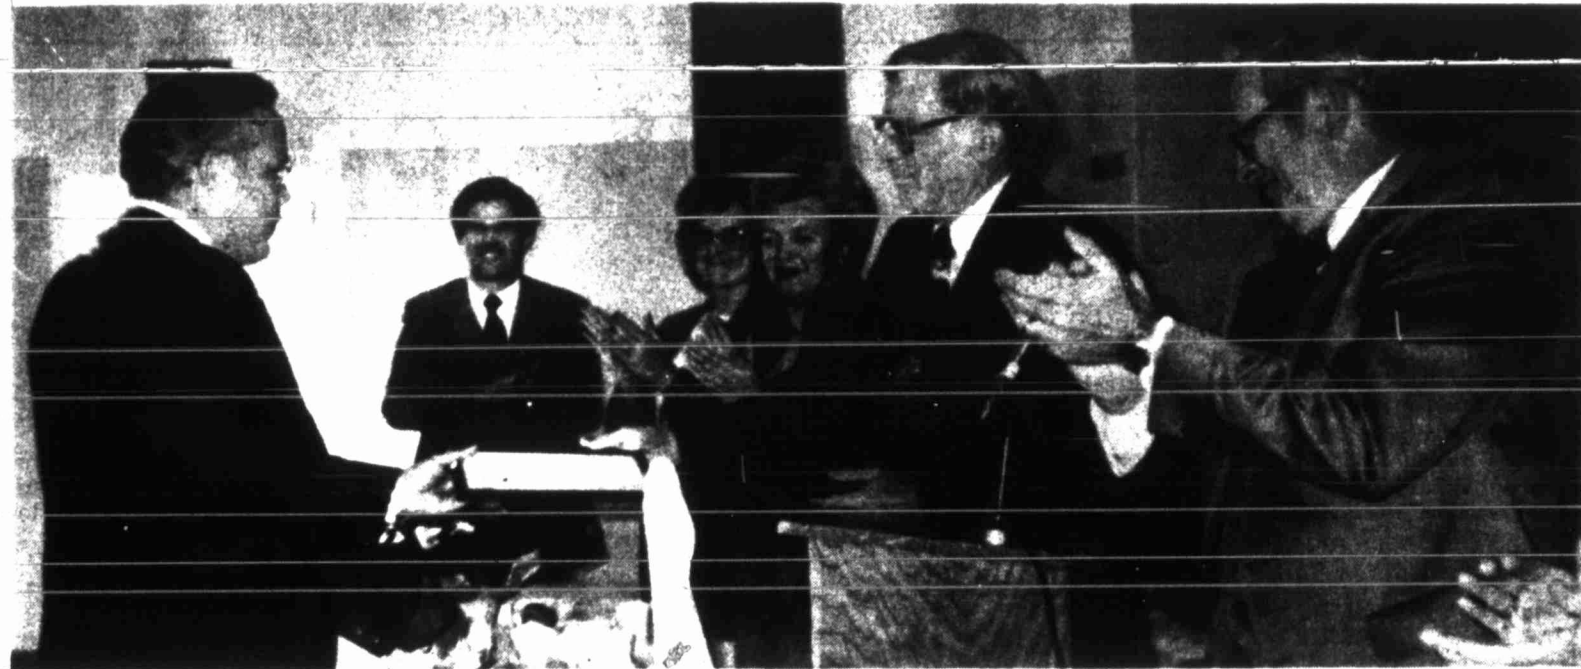

Ten other awards were presented to outstanding employees for their hard work. Margaret Matthew received the Charles McCall Award;

Psychiatric Aide of the Year award went to Robert Aldridge; Commendation Awards, nominated by co-workers, were presented to Lupe Barraza, Gordon Cavnar, Louisiana Jones, Lorene Petty and Eva Watkins; and Nursing Scholarship Awards were given to David Simpson and Sue Denton.

Special service pins went to Sharon Osborn, 20 years service; Margaret Owens, 25 years; and Fernanda Morales, 30 years.

Pins also were given to 25 employees with 10 years of service and eight employees with 15 years of service.

Certificates of appreciation were awarded to 25 employees with five years of service.

The business committee, too, complained that funds it earned, earmarked for certain projects, were put into the general fund.

Some committee members, said business co-chairman Pat Porter, believe funds they earn should not be subject to use by the rest of the chamber without authorization.

"The (business) committee last year voted to have the auction and the belt buckle sales. It was determined the purpose for being an income-producing committee was to purchase the Christmas decorations," she said.

"At the last committee meeting, we voted to retain the money from the auction for additional Christmas decorations and activities. We voted to use a dollar amount — to be determined later — from the belt buckle sales to be made available for the downtown rehabilitation activities."

But the executive board at its meeting Wednesday voted to put funds from belt buckle sales and the Heart of the City auction into the general fund.

Chamber president John Arrick, responding to complaints at the cultural affairs committee meeting Thursday, said, "We really haven't changed anything as far as the money that's going to be available."

"The budget's just a guideline. It's not hard and fast and set," he said. "You move numbers around as needed."

The money still belongs to the committee, even though it is being used for another purpose at the moment, he explained. The funds will be made available to the committee when it is needed, he said.

Committee member Suzanne Haney said, "That's a step back for us because we have always had funds available to us."

Arrick suggested the committee appoint members to meet with the board of directors to discuss the matter.

beautification drive, make efforts to enhance communication with the city's deaf community, and build a thriving tourism trade.

On the question of the city's nepotism rule, Mize said it should be relaxed except in cases of close relatives directly supervising one another.

Fraser, too, said he saw problems with the policy saying its definition of what constitutes nepotism is far too broad. Fraser said cousins and people living under the same roof should not be subject to a nepotism clause. He went a step further by calling for the reinstatement of Rudy Rubio, the fireman fired because he has a cousin working for the department.

The economic condition of the city was touched on by both mayoral and council candidates with none of the men willing to commit to higher taxes. They did, however, have other ideas on how to combat tough economic times.

Along with creating a healthy tourism climate, Mize said it is essential to spend tax dollars wisely. "If we take the tax dollars that we have now and spend them right, we won't have to sacrifice very much," Mize said.

"I personally feel we need to cut a few services," Overman said while discussing the drop in oil and agriculture revenue. He also suggested the city begin to repair existing machinery instead of consistently purchasing new equipment.

Blackshear said boosting user fees for recreational facilities was one way to increase city revenues. "I feel that by (implementing user fees) we can raise money efficiently," he said.

Fraser's ideas for treating the sour economy were also rooted in building a tourism industry. He noted that 80 percent of a city's economic growth comes from within. "If we can figure out a way to entice some of those people (who pass Big Spring on the highways) to stay in our motels and eat our food and spend their dollars in Big Spring, that creates an industry within itself," he said.

The issue of liquor by the drink drew the sharpest differences among the council candidates.

Overman said it "was a tricky issue" but did not commit either way, while Blackshear stated simply he opposes any such measure.

Fraser said he supports liquor by the drink, saying its passage is essential to facilitate tourism and draw franchise restaurants such as Red Lobster to Big Spring. He further said citizens should at least have the right to vote on the issue.

Mize said he is against liquor by the drink and rebutted Fraser's assertion that the ban on selling liquor in public restaurants was the only reason Red Lobster balked at coming to Big Spring. A franchise representative, he said, told him Red Lobster would not come to Big Spring regardless of its liquor policy because the city lacks a population of 40,000.

On the school board front, the main issues were House Bill 72, and drug and sex education in the schools.

The chunk of the state education reform bill referred to most was the teacher competency test.

Voorhies called the exam a "literacy test" that won't improve the quality of education. Other ways in which teachers are effective in the classroom need to be evaluated, he said.

Myrick said the test "was unfair to teachers" and opposed the test.

Also opposed to the test was Wise, who agreed with Voorhies' assessment that teaching implies more than simply knowing basic skills in math and English. The test, he said, doesn't measure how teachers relate to students and parents or intangibles such as dedication.

Brooks said as a former teacher he underwent years of schooling and training. But if the only way to retain his teaching certificate is to be tested, he would take the exam, he said.

Griffin said he would not want his children taught by anyone who could not pass a basic skills test.

Phillippe opposed the exam saying it did not measure teaching competency.

On sex and drug education in the schools, all but Griffin were in favor of instruction in those areas.

decide Zamora's punishment.

"They (the jurors) were instructed to consider that Zamora's sentence could be reduced through the process of parole," Abalos said. "I added that it was vague and indefinite. There should have been no instructions for the jury to think of parole."

A new law stipulating that parole be included as part of the charge went into effect in September, Abalos said.

"It (the new law) invades the province of the governor's office, the executive branch and board of pardons and paroles," he said.

The law, which is encoded in the Texas Rules of Criminal Procedure, is "messing with the checks and balances" of the legislative branches of state government, he said.

Hamby said inclusion of the parole clause "was an attempt by the Legislature to inform jurors a little bit more about the parole process."

Hamby said, however, he wasn't sure the law hasn't confused jurors even more about the parole process.

Fund set for fire victims

A fund has been established at Security State Bank to help a Howard County family who lost their $40,000, two-story home to fire early Sunday morning.

Jackie and Angie Richey and their two children escaped the burning house with their lives and little else, according to a family acquaintance, who asked not to be identified.

Fire units from Big Spring responded to the blaze just off Highway 360 about five miles northeast of Big Spring shortly after 3 a.m. to find flames coming from the garage and upstairs windows of the stucco building. Before long, according to the fire report, flames broke through the roof of the structure and soon engulfed the entire second floor.

A spokeswoman at the bank said anyone wishing to contribute to the fund can do so at any teller window.

John Branham, president of the local firefighters association, said the union will be making a contribution of at least $100 to the fund.

Man gets jail term for DWI

A Big Spring man was sentenced to four months in jail by County Judge Milton Kirby Thursday afternoon after he pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated on Feb. 4.

Elvin Greathouse, 39, of 1004 W. Fourth also was fined $300, ordered to pay $131 court costs, and his license was suspended for 320 days.

According to police records, Greathouse was arrested Feb. 4 after the car he was driving was involved in a minor accident with a school bus.

The bus, driven by Carolann Win-bush of Sterling City Route, was unloading students on Randolph at Albrook when it was struck in the left rear by Greathouse's car as he attempted to pass, according to the accident report. The bus had its red flashers operating at the time, the report said.

Greathouse left the scene but returned a short time later and was arrested, according to the report.

Greathouse was on probation for a prior DWI conviction in Gonzales County at the time of his arrest.

He is currently in custody at the Howard County jail.

Gay rights approved

NEW YORK — The city where the nation's homosexual rights movement started 17 years ago in riots sparked by a police raid on a gay bar has passed anti-discrimination legislation after the failure of seven previous attempts.

The City Council voted 21-14 Thursday to approve the measure banning discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation in housing, employment or public accommodations.

Three drugs recalled

PHILADELPHIA — SmithKline Beckman Corp. asked that three of its products be removed from shelves nationwide after drugs that had been tampered with were found in two cities.

Officials said they knew of no motive for the latest incident involving popular, over-the-counter drugs.

Health officials in several states issued warnings Thursday and stores began pulling Contac, Dietac and Teldrin capsules from shelves after SmithKline and the Food and Drug Administration announced the contamination.

Marcos' bequest to wife

WASHINGTON — Ferdinand Marcos' personal papers, described as "an encyclopedia of corruption," disclose $30 million in bank accounts in Switzerland, France and the Caribbean and his hand-written promise to his wife, Imelda, that she would inherit the Philippines government upon his death.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., who Thursday released copies of 2,000 pages of documents taken from Marcos in Hawaii, said they did not contain any overall measure of Marcos' extensive wealth, which has been estimated as high as $10 billion.

Wreckage identified

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Rocket experts have identified a quarter-ton piece of Challenger's wreckage as a section of the right booster rocket that might provide vital clues to what caused the shuttle explosion, sources say.

However, the sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Thursday that they did not know if the piece contains the joint suspected of triggering the Jan. 28 accident that killed the crew of seven.

TAYLOR — Drums believed to contain toxic materials, taken from a federal prison near Bastrop, were improperly stored on a farm in eastern Williamson County, federal and state officials say.

Workers planned to remove about 60 drums of the chemicals today.

Lobby falls short

House rebuffs aid proposal for Contras

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, in his unsuccessful effort to wrangle approval for $100 million in aid for Nicaraguan rebels, used a strategy that backfired in a hostile, Democratic-controlled House, some lawmakers say.

The House rebuked Reagan's proposal, 222-210, on Thursday in a vote that followed weeks of high-pressure lobbying that went right up to the last minute.

The Senate is scheduled to vote on the proposal Tuesday.

Some of the most intense pressure came from White House Communications Director Patrick Buchanan, who had insisted weeks ago that the vote would reveal whether the Democratic Party "stands with Ronald Reagan and the resistance" — or (Nicaraguan President) Daniel Ortega and the communists.

"Congress resented attempts by the administration to question the patriotism (of aid opponents)," said House Majority Whip Thomas Foley, D-Wash. "That was scandalous. That was unfortunate and classically ineffective."

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., compared the administration's lobbying tactics with "that dark era of fear" — the McCarthy era of the 1950s.

"Americans (have) not only the right but also the duty to speak their minds on questions of national policy without fear, without the dread that their motives and purposes will be questioned," O'Neill said.

But those comments were challenged by Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., who said he could not "find a single vote that we lost" because of the sharp attacks on opponents from Buchanan and other backers of the Contra rebels fighting Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government.

But one other Reagan tactic — looking for a last-minute compromise — also worked against him, according to one congressman at whom the strategy was aimed.

Rep. Jim Chapman, a conservative Democrat from Texas, said he decided to vote against the president after Reagan offered House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill holds a pair of boxing gloves given to him by Marvin Hagler during a brief meeting on Capitol Hill. O'Neill and the Democrats-controlled House posted a victory Thursday when they defeated President Reagan's request for $100 million in military aid to Nicaraguan rebels.

Wednesday to forgo spending any of the $100 million on offensive weapons for 90 days.

"What I see now is that both sides have expressed a willingness to compromise," Chapman said, referring also to O'Neill's promise to allow another vote on the issue on April 15.

"Not only is aid to the Contras likely, it is inevitable," Chapman said. "In substance, I think I can agree to the compromise that the president offered. But now we have an opportunity to tidy it up."

Rep. Jack F. Kemp, R-N.Y., blamed poor strategy by the White House for rejection of the aid package.

"In my view the White House strategists began to compromise too early. They sent the wrong signal to Democrats and Republicans that a compromise was in the wind. Very frankly, it didn't bring many votes," Kemp said.

Kemp said there was a lack of understanding by Democrats, but added that he wasn't "challenging anyone's patriotism."

"I'm saying flat out that it was a mistake by the Democratic Party to allow themselves to be portrayed as neutral with regard to what happens in Central America," he said.

Kemp was in Concord, N.H., Thursday night to address a Republican fund-raising dinner.

OPEC talks continue

GENEVA — OPEC opened a new round of talks today with five independent oil-producing nations to negotiate production cuts that could help the cartel reverse the recent collapse of world oil prices.

The meeting, following five days of mostly fruitless deliberations, could prove a turning point in OPEC's desperate drive to unite behind a common strategy aimed at pushing up prices.

Shultz to push bases

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Panama has rejected ousted Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos' request for refuge, a government official said.

PARIS — New conservative Prime Minister Jacques Chirac, stepping into an unprecedented period of power-sharing with a Socialist president, immediately announced plans to denationalize industry and push through other measures by decree.

Soviet girl embarks on two-week U.S. friendship visit

CHICAGO (AP) — An 11-year-old Soviet girl whose U.S. tour recalls the international journey for peace of Samantha Smith began her visit by telling the adults and children who greeted her, "I hope we will be friends."

Katya Lycheva set foot on American soil for the first time Thursday night at O'Hare International Airport and was met by Star Rowe, 10, of San Francisco, who gave her 10 white roses and said in well-rehearsed Russian: "Welcome to our country. We will work together for peace."

The fifth-grader was accompanied by her mother, an interpreter, the general secretary of the Soviet Peace Committee, and Patricia Montandon, the executive director of the U.S.-based Children as the Peacemakers Foundation, the sponsor of Katya's trip.

"We're building a bridge instead of a wall," Ms. Montandon said as she introduced the entourage.

Katya, who had just completed the 18-hour journey from her home in Moscow, was beginning a two-week trip that will include visits to New York, Washington, Houston and Los Angeles.

In reply to Star's welcome, she said in English: "Thank you very much. I'm very glad to see you. I hope we will be friends."

She said she hoped to tell American children as much as she could about her homeland, which Samantha visited in 1983.

Her Chicago visit was to include breakfast today at a hotel, lunch with sixth-graders and a chat with Mayor Harold Washington.

Also planned were a trip to the Statue of Liberty; a day at Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif.; a Texas-style barbecue; and a meal at a McDonald's restaurant.

Katya attends Special English School No. 4 in Moscow, where children start studying English in the second grade.

Before her departure from Moscow, she said she hoped her "journey would contribute even just a little bit toward the cause of peace."

Her departure Thursday evening was carried on Soviet television, spliced with the footage from Samantha's visit to Moscow three years ago.

The Soviet news agency, Tass, said Katya was bringing with her to the United States paper "peace doves," with the name and address of a Soviet child written on one wing.

Giving up contras is inviting Soviets

Sometimes history presents American foreign policy with clear and easy choices — whether to help Baby Doc Duvalier to suppress a popular revolt or to stand by Ferdinand Marcos as he tried to defy the democratically expressed will of his people.

The civil war in Nicaragua is not one of those pleasant opportunities. Helping the contras fight the Sandinista regime does not provide the moral satisfaction of coming to the aid of Corazon Aquino. But that doesn't make it any less necessary. The security of the United States and the prospects for democracy in Latin America hang in the balance.

Given their open ties with the Soviet Union and their penchant for exporting subversion, we can ill afford to let the Sandinistas cement their control. The contras, with all their defects, are the best hope for stopping them. If they fail — if we condemn them to failure — the only obstacle to broader Nicaraguan adventurism and Soviet expansion will be American soldiers. Would any American prefer that option?

Most Democrats in Congress are engaged in a monumental exercise in wishful thinking, grasping desperately for any pretext to avoid doing what needs to be done. The litany is tediously familiar: The contras are brutal Somocistas with no popular support. The rebellion has no chance of success. U.S. intervention will lead to another Vietnam.

These are poor excuses for inaction. The contras harbor more than their share of unsavory elements, but they also include democrats who fought against Somoza and abandoned the Sandinista government only after it began incorporating itself into the Eastern Bloc. The rebellion may not succeed with U.S. help, but it will certainly fail without it. Anyone fearful of direct American intervention should be eager to bolster the only plausible alternative.

It is desirable but not necessary for the contras to win. As long as they keep fighting, they give the Sandinistas an incentive to accommodate the interests of the U.S. and their neighbors. Cutting off aid, on the other hand, would encourage still greater bellicosity and intransigence.

The danger can be denied only by the willfully blind. If the U.S. abandon the contras, it will be inviting the Soviets, who have already supplied Managua with an array of economic and military help, to consolidate a second beachhead in Latin America. We have much to lose from another Cuba.

A militarily powerful Nicaragua, committed to the interests of Moscow, would force the U.S. to divert more resources to protecting its southern flank. This is the regime whose defense minister once said that, if asked, he would seriously consider letting the Soviets install missiles in Nicaragua. In time of war, the Sandinistas could provide bases for Soviet ships and planes. They would endanger American shipping, particularly through the Panama Canal.

With the most powerful military machine in Central America, Managua will also be free to promote subversion among its neighbors — as it has assisted the M-19 guerrillas who last year massacred 90 people at Colombia's Palace of Justice — without fear of retaliation. If a communist Nicaragua doesn't concern you, then ponder a Marxist revolution in Mexico.

The various hazards can be discounted because none is decisive. How many threats are there? There are two reasons to removing small threats: to prevent them from growing large and to free us to concentrate on big ones. Some Democrats, however, sound as if they would be unmoved by anything short of SS-20s in Juarez.

They are not the only ones at fault. The Reagan administration, with its smear tactics and overblown rhetoric, may be the contras' worst enemy. To head off a limited threat, President Reagan implies an unlimited commitment. That is what scares the electorate, dimming the chance that Congress will approve his $100 million request.

But the errors of the administration, like the flaws of the contras, don't justify abandoning Nicaragua to the unchallenged rule of the Sandinistas. Doing that would create a permanent source of trouble on our doorstep. This may be the last chance to prevent it.

Plastic handgun immune to metal-scanning device

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — We stirred up a tempest of alarm, denial and malicious innuendo when we reported recently that Libyan dictator Muammar Khadafi, the terrorists' friend, was dickered to buy a quantity of Austrian-made, semi-plastic pistols that are difficult or impossible for airport security measures to detect.

The pistol is the Glock 17, invented by an Austrian, Gaston Glock, and manufactured at a plant outside Vienna. Our intelligence sources told us Khadafi was trying to buy 100 to 300 of the handguns.

We also reported that a Pentagon security expert had succeeded twice in carrying a dismantled Glock 17 through the human and mechanical weapons detectors at Washington's National Airport.

After our January report, Glock and the Austrian government began issuing refutations in press releases and telegrams to major publications. Their concern was presumably heightened by the fact that Glock is attempting to market the pistol in the United States.

One Pentagon spokesman had the nerve to tell a journalist that he doubted the existence of the "Pentagon security expert" we said had tested the Glock 17 against airport security. For the record: The man who conducted the unofficial test is the Pentagon's top expert on counter-terrorism, Noel Koch, the principal deputy assistant defense secretary.

Glock told anyone who would listen that tests under the supervision of unnamed "official security specialists" showed clearly that "both scanners and detectors can identify the Glock 17," which has a mass that is 83 percent steel and only 17 percent plastic.

The point, of course, is that the metal parts, which are detectable, don't look like gun parts, while the plastic parts, which do look like a gun, escape detection. Koch proved this twice with a dismantled Glock 17.

In fact, Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., settled the matter beyond any nitpicking. One of his aides hand-carried the most recognizable part of a Glock 17 — its plastic, pistol-shaped frame — through a Capitol Hill metal detector without having it spotted. The rest of the pistol's parts, mostly metal, were in his briefcase and went through the scanner without being identified.

Meanwhile, both the Federal Aviation Administration and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms suddenly decided the problem of plastic handguns deserved attention. The aviation agency has since learned of a U.S.-made, all-plastic pistol, which is not yet on the market but which would be undetectable by a metal-scanning device.

Biaggi has introduced a bill, H.R. 4223, that would require federal security testing of all non-metal firearms, whether imported or made in the United States. If a weapon failed to be detected by standard scanning equipment, it would be outlawed, with a few minor exceptions.

How serious is the problem of a gun that can beat the airport security machines? Some FAA figures should make clear that it's deadly serious. Since mandatory screening procedures went into effect at U.S. airports in 1973, more than 33,000 firearms have been detected and almost 14,000 related arrests have been made. Officials estimate that at least 113 hijackings have been prevented.

Footnote: Glock told us he has never sold his pistols to Libya, and has no ongoing negotiations to do so. But other sources told us that, without Glock's knowledge, Khadafi was trying to buy the guns through intermediaries in Austria. It would be interesting to know if the salesmen have told Khadafi about Glock's claim that the pistol is easily detectable by airport security scanners.

UNDER THE DOME: Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., has been in the news more than most members of Congress lately because of his investigation into the Marcos millions. With un-Brooklynese modesty, he has said he expects to sink back into obscurity — but we can't help wondering. The Democrats badly need someone to run against Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., in the fall. Beyond that, Solarz may have bigger things on his mind.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: When the Ayatollah Khomeini and his mullahs took over Iran seven years ago, one of their top priorities was to extirpate all of the degenerate influences that the United States had inflicted on his country. American diplomats and businessmen are long gone, of course, but our sources in Tehran say there is still some eerie evidence that "the Great Satan" once was welcomed: unmistakable McDonalds and Kentucky Fried Chicken outlets in downtown Tehran, run by Iranians.

MINI-EDITORIAL: A recent study of 17,000 old Harvard grads indicates that moderate exercise can add years to your life. It then defines moderate exercise as the equivalent of a brisk 20-mile hike per week. At the risk of sounding like cynical, sedentary slob, we'd like to know more about that study. Who funded it — the shoe industry? Where did the distinguished guinea pigs do their walking — up and down the sidewalk in front of the Harvard Club? Quite frankly, we favor the opinion of a medical expert a few years ago, who said jogging will lengthen your life, all right — by the precise amount of time you spend jogging.

Private schools are in danger

To the editor:

We're in grave danger of losing our private non-state funded schools and our home schooling within our state. This can be credited to Commissioner of Education W.N. Kirby and his proposed amendment to the compulsory attendance law.

The law now states that the only requirement of a private school is that it includes in its course a study of good citizenship. This is how it has been since 1923. Our state truancy laws were never meant to be inflicted upon those enrolled in private or home education. This is proven in our Texas Education Code, as it states that our State Board of Education (SBOE) is set up to "exercise general control of the system of PUBLIC education at the state level" (TEC 11.02), and that "this code shall apply to all educational institutions SUPPORTED EITHER WHOLLY OR IN PART BY STATE TAX FUNDS" (TEC 1.04.a). This allows no doubt to the jurisdiction of our SBOE and Commissioner of Education. It does not and should not govern non-state funded schooling. There are those who would wish to regulate all schools in such a manner as to label students truant if not receiving an education parallel to public schools, despite the evaluation scores of the rapid growing private school sector.

Mr. Editor, try to picture this: General Motors believes it to be in the best interest of the public to place functioning guidelines over Ford Motor Company, defining its times of production, employee qualifications, materials to be used, etc. If Ford should fail to meet their criteria, they are said to not be an automobile manufacturer. It matters not that Ford's products speak for themselves. It's not hard to see that General Motors would be self-serving, rather than truly protecting the needs of others. This is what is happening in Austin. Private education is our only barrier to a total monopoly of public education.

This issue requires our urgent and immediate response to our State Board Members, Commissioner Kirby, and legislators.

Trust in God for healing

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I think my husband must have hardening of the arteries in the brain, for he is getting very forgetful and hard to deal with. I'm not very well myself, and I just don't know how much longer I can continue trying to do all the work. Please pray for me. — Mrs. E.K.K.

DEAR MRS. E.K.K.: One of God's great promises is that He will always be with us, even when the problems and infirmities of age begin to catch up with us. The Bible says, "Even to your old age and gray hairs I am he, I am he who will sustain you. I have made you and I will carry you" (Isaiah 46:4). It is a wonderful thing to know that when we commit our lives to Christ, he will always be with us.

Do not misunderstand this promise, however, as if God were promising to solve all our problems without any action on our part. He would also have you take whatever practical steps are necessary to help both you and your husband. For example, you need to share your concern with your family doctor and have him examine your husband thoroughly to see if his condition is treatable. In addition — although you may be reluctant to face this — the time may be near when you need to think of a retirement home or of getting someone to help you from time to time. Your pastor may be able to help in this regard, pointing you to practical assistance available through your church or a community program.

Whatever the immediate future holds for you and your husband, let this be a time when you both look beyond your problems to the glorious promise of Heaven. Are you trusting Christ, and are you turning to Him each day for the strength and hope you need? Let his promises encourage you and sustain you every day. "For our light and momentary troubles are achieving for us an eternal glory that far outweighs them all" (2 Corinthians 4:18).

Today is Friday, March 21, the 80th day of 1986. There are 285 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 21, 1685, composer Johann Sebastian Bach was born in Eisenach, Germany.

On this date:

In 1804, the French civil code, the "Code Napoleon," was adopted.

In 1918, during World War I, Germany launched the Somme Offensive, hoping to break through the Allied line before American reinforcements could arrive.

In 1945, during World War II, Allied bombers began four days of raids over Germany.

In 1946, the United Nations set up temporary headquarters at Hunter College in New York.

In 1960, some 70 people were killed in Sharpeville, South Africa, when police fired on demonstrators.

In 1963, the Alcatraz federal penitentiary in San Francisco Bay was closed.

In 1965, more than 3,000 civil rights demonstrators led by the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. began their march from Selma to Montgomery, Ala.

In 1972, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that states may not require one-year residency for voting eligibility.

Ten years ago: The United States ended all operations at its bases in Thailand to prepare for final military withdrawal.

Five years ago: Philippine opposition leaders held a rally in Manila, vowing before a crowd of more than 5,000 to topple President Ferdinand E. Marcos from power.

One year ago: Police in South Africa fired into a crowd of blacks, killing 17. A Lebanese cameraman and soundman working for CBS were killed in South Lebanon, allegedly by Israeli forces. President Reagan told a news conference it was "high time" for a superpower summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Dear Abby

Humane society causes kids to yowl

DEAR ABBY: On Valentine's Day, my husband and I took our two daughters (5 and 2) for a follow-up appointment at the pediatrician's, and left the office feeling glum. Our 5-year-old had been pleading for a kitten for several months, so we decided to take the advice in your St. Valentine's Day column and adopt a pet. We went to our Humane Society to get a kitten. We learned that the kitten we selected would cost $45, which included initial shots and spaying/neutering at six months of age. We'd just written our last check at the doctor's office, so my husband and I counted our monies and came up with $43.78 cash.

Abby, they let us walk out with two crying girls. We could have given that kitten a perfect home, but being short $1.22 stood in our way.

Is that crazy or am I crazy?

FEELING BAD IN

BIRMINGHAM
DEAR FEELING: You are not crazy, and I cannot imagine the people at the Humane Society being so insensitive and petty. You failed to indicate in which Birmingham you live. There's one in Alabama, Canada, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Michigan and New Jersey. Please write again and let me know. I'll send the $1.22, and if you don't get your kitten, fur will fly.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Nameless Please," who was tempted to meet the girl whose voice he'd heard daily on the telephone, brought back some happy memories.

In the spring of 1910, I was working on the switchboard at the local power company. Every day I took the morning report from a young engineer with a very pleasant voice. One day he appeared in person — wanting to find out if I was as sweet as my voice! After we visited a while, he invited me to go out dancing. I was a little hesitant to accept before knowing him better, so he told me I could bring my older sister and he would bring his friend along for her.

I knew at once that this was the man I had been waiting for. That first date led to our marriage four months later. We were happily married for 60 years — until his death.

I thank my lucky stars that he was curious enough to want to meet the girl behind the voice on the telephone.

MRS. J.
P.S. Dear Abby: I typed this letter for my grandmother who just celebrated her 94th birthday. She reads your column every day.

MRS. J.'S GRANDDAUGHTER
DEAR MRS. J. (and her granddaughter): Thanks for a lovely day-brightener.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column signed "Honest" in reference to thigh-reduction surgery (suction lipectomy). I would like to know more about this type of surgery. I need to do something about my thighs. I have dieted and exercised. Both have helped some, but my thighs are disproportionately large. I am so self-conscious about them that I will not wear slacks or a bathing suit.

What kind of doctor does this kind of surgery?

THUNDER THIGHS
DEAR THUNDER THIGHS: A plastic surgeon. But you would be wise to get some recommendations from the county medical association or the American Medical Association to be sure the plastic surgeon is board-certified.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 35923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Dr. Donohue

Thyroid problem develops gradually

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I read your explanation of Hashimoto's disease with much interest as I also have the condition. I still have several questions.

You referred to it as a children's disease. I was first diagnosed well into my 20s. Is the irregularity of the body's immune system something a person is born with, or is it a tendency that is dormant and triggered by something? Or is it caused by a virus?

My father was diagnosed with this thyroid problem when he was past 50. Is the disease hereditary? When I first began taking my medication I would be fine for months, then the dosage of Synthroid would have to be increased. Why? Can I control the gland's output by special diet or exercise? — L.S.

You've asked some good questions, and they are indications of the limitations in discussing a complex illness in a handful of paragraphs.

I did note that Hashimoto's was a childhood ailment, and it is, in fact, the leading cause of thyroid enlargement in children. I should have added that it is the leading cause of all thyroid inflammation, period.

As to cause, all of the hypotheses you suggest have been considered, but none has been confirmed. All we can say for sure is that it is one of those cases where the immune system starts attacking certain normal body tissue selectively.

Hashimoto's thyroiditis is a chronic ailment. That is, tissue damage is ongoing. This explains your experience with the thyroid hormone medicine. As more of the gland comes under attack there is less tissue left to supply the hormone. You have to increase dosage. Eventually, you will be able to settle on a dosage to achieve full correction of the problem.

Neither diet nor exercise alters the course of Hashimoto's. Incidentally, although the problem favors neither sex nor age, it is found most often in middle-aged women.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm writing in regards to a friend of myself and my late husband. He has been writing me and he tells me he has been in a VA hospital for treatment of active TB. He now claims he is OK. He is out of the hospital now. I don't know whether to believe him or not. I enjoy his letters and hate to drop his friendship. I am concerned about getting TB from him. Can I? — H.K.

Within two weeks of beginning treatment for tuberculosis, the patient no longer is a danger to those around him. The medicine has inactivated the germs. In fact, even in that two-week period, the chance of spread is far from automatic. Many factors enter into it — how much the person is coughing, and the number of germs in his sputum. TB is not spread by cough droplets that have, for example, dried on writing paper, something I assume concerns you. The germ quickly dies when the droplets dry. The way you get TB from someone is if he has coughed and you have taken in germs. But, as I noted, once treatment has begun the chances of that happening drop sharply.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My child was home with mononucleosis and I was told that the spleen can get enlarged with mono. Is the spleen an organ that can be felt from the outside, through the skin? How does the doctor tell if it is enlarged? How big is it normally, and where is it located? — Mrs. L.

The spleen lies below the left rib cage, just over the pancreas. The doctor can tell if a spleen is enlarged by palpation (feeling the body at that point). The normal spleen is about the same size as the heart (about fist-sized).

It may become enlarged in a number of illnesses. With mono, the enlargement represents an increase in the size and number of its cells from the virus attack. Despite its important role in salvaging iron from worn-out red blood cells, producing antibodies, and trapping invading germs, the spleen can be removed, when necessary, with no great effect on the person's health.

FOR D.O. — The hormone (estrogen) treatment for prostate cancer is used chiefly when the cancer has been long-smoldering and has spread (metastaticized). In most types of prostate cancer, the approach surgery or radiation therapy.

Your thyroid plays a critical health role — in everything from eyesight to fertility. The booklet "Your Thyroid: How It Works for You" explains this important, and misunderstood, gland. To get a copy, enclose one dollar and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Teachers offered stimulus

UPPER MARLBORO, Md. (AP) — Teachers needing jobs will find a free month's rent, cheaper car loans and discounts at local restaurants if they apply to the Prince George's County schools in suburban Washington by August 1, say officials trying desperately to fill 400 positions.

The unusual offer was the brainchild of local business leaders who have been working with the school system the last two years under the philosophy that good schools mean good business.

"The school system is the heart of the community," said Winfield Kelly, president of the Advisory Council for Business and Industry, which organized the program. "If it is strong and healthy then everyone else in the community will benefit."

He predicts that if the program works, "some of the brightest and most gifted teachers in the Northeast will be coming here."

"Just like everyone, we are competing for a small number of applicants," said Jacquelyn Lindsey, spokeswoman for the Prince George's County school system, which, at full force, has about 5,000 teachers.

The 103,000-pupil system has the lowest starting salary in the metropolitan area — $15,738 — though the amount will rise to $19,000 next year. Mrs. Lindsey said the raise "makes us competitive."

LSU, Auburn provide SEC tournament shockers

Louisville outbattles North Carolina

Last year it was known as the "Big East Invitational" with Villanova, Georgetown and St. John's in the Final Four. This season the Southeastern Conference is the league that's showing off in the NCAA basketball tournament.

No less than three SEC teams were still alive in the Final Eight following Thursday night's results which featured third-ranked Kentucky's 68-63 victory over SEC colleague Alabama and LSU's 70-64 upset of No. 6 Georgia Tech in the Southeast Regionals, and Auburn's 70-63 shocker over No. 11 Nevada-Las Vegas in the West.

Louisville, the nation's seventh-ranked basketball team, beat No. 8 North Carolina 94-79 in the other West semifinal in Houston.

"I wish they'd placed us in different regions," said Kentucky Coach Eddie Sutton, who had called the Southeast Regional in Atlanta the "SEC Invitational."

"If we were in four different regions, there would be a chance we could play the SEC tournament in Dallas," said Sutton.

The NCAA playoffs continue tonight with semifinals in the East Regional at East Rutherford, N.J., and the Midwest at Kansas City.

Top-ranked Duke plays DePaul and Navy takes on surprising Cleveland State in the East Regionals at New Jersey's Meadowlands. Also tonight, in the Midwest Regional semifinals at the Kemper Arena in Kansas City, North Carolina State plays Iowa State and Kansas faces Michigan State.

Kenny Walker scored 22 points and James Blackmon hit two key baskets in a second-half burst as Kentucky continued its mastery of Alabama. It was the 14th straight victory for the Wildcats and their fourth this season over Alabama in advancing to Saturday's regional finals against LSU.

Alabama fought back from a 12-0 spurt in the first half to close to within 38-36 on a driving basket by Terry Coner with 14:43 left in the game. Kentucky then went on a 10-3 burst to build a 48-39 lead and the Crimson Tide was never able to get closer than seven points until the final 30 seconds of play.

"The big key was offensive rebounding," Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson said. "Every time it looked like we might come back they got a big putback."

Don Redden scored 27 points and Derrick Taylor added 23 as LSU upset Georgia Tech to create an all-Southeastern Conference final in the Southeast Regional.

LSU's defense forced two turnovers which helped overcome a 56-52 Yellow Jackets lead. Combined with sharpshooting efforts from Taylor and Redden, the Tigers earned a fourth meeting with Kentucky.

Tom Hammonds was forced into a turnover which resulted in a Redden jumper which put the Tigers ahead to stay at 60-58 with 3:30 left.

"Hammonds just made a mistake. He wasn't really looking," Taylor said. "And I got it from him."

Auburn's Chuck Person scored 17 of his 25 points in the second half and rallied the unranked Tigers over Nevada-Las Vegas.

Person, who hit only 4 of 11 shots from the field in the first half, scored Auburn's first three baskets of the second half and led a charge that gave the Tigers, who trailed by as many as 14 points in the first half, their first lead of the second half, 50-49, with 7:57 left in the game.

Auburn, advancing to its farthest point in NCAA play, took the lead for good at 56-55 with 3:55 to play on a side jumper by Person. Nevada-Las Vegas' Anthony Jones, who scored 16 points, missed three free throws over the final 2:44 as the Runnin' Rebels couldn't mount a last-minute charge.

"I was a little timid in the first half because my shot wasn't falling, but my teammates kept encouraging me to shoot it and I did," Person said. "We wore them down in the second half and that's where our conditioning came in. We're a very hungry team and we want to be the first Auburn team to get to the Final Four."

Billy Thompson scored 24 points and Herbert Crook contributed some deadly free-throw shooting to lift Louisville over North Carolina. It was Louisville's first victory since 1929 over North Carolina, third-place finisher in the Atlantic Coast Conference this season.

Louisville outscored North Carolina 16-4 to start the second half to take a 59-47 lead but the Tar Heels rallied behind Joe Wolf to tie the score 71-71.

Thompson scored two baskets and Crook, who had 20 points, got hot at the free-throw line, making six straight to help the Cardinals pull away at the end.

"We're cresting now," said Louisville's Milt Wagner. "Our guys realize you have to be ready to play teams like North Carolina."

Hobbled Lady 'Horns blast Sooners, 85-59

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas, the No. 1-ranked team in women's basketball, defeated Oklahoma with a squad that looks like it was just released from a hospital ward, and Mississippi surprised conference rival Auburn in the other Midwest Regional semifinal Thursday night.

Texas, with five players scoring in double figures, walloped the No. 19 Sooners 85-59 for its 31st victory without a loss this season. Mississippi nipped Auburn 56-55 in overtime, avenging an earlier 25-point loss in the Southeastern Conference.

Texas of the Southwest Conference and No. 11 Mississippi will play for the regional championship Saturday night. The two teams have played once this season, with Texas defeating Mississippi 57-46 on Dec. 30.

Texas, playing before a home crowd of 7,474, forced Big Eight champion Oklahoma into 22 turnovers and took advantage of 27 Sooner fouls in its victory.

Freshman Clarissa Davis of Texas was high for the game with 18 points and also led all rebounders with nine even though she did not start and played only 25 of 40 minutes.

Andrea Lloyd, with a heavily wrapped knee, scored 14 for Texas; Beverly Williams and Gay Hemphill, who wears a back brace, each scored 12; and Fran Harris had 11.

Lady Longhorns Annette Smith and Yulonda Wimbish also played with large knee supports. Smith had five points, Wimbish nine.

Jacquetta Hurley was high for Oklahoma with 16 points. Vickie Green, the team's leading scorer with a 15-point average, was scoreless at halftime as Texas raced to a 41-23 lead and finished with only seven points, shooting three of 10 from the field.

Green also had five turnovers, which was high for both teams. "This was a good effort. One more," said Texas Coach Jody Conradt.

Mississippi trailed No. 7 Auburn by as much as 10 points in the first half but caught up 48-48 on Jennifer Gillom's 15-foot shot with 11 seconds left in the game, and the two teams played a five-minute overtime.

With the score tied again, 55-55, a short shot by Helene Barody of Auburn hit the front of the rim, and Vikki Craig rebounded for Mississippi. She was fouled by Barody with one second to go, and made the first of two free throws for the victory.

Barody left the court with a bloody nose on the foul call.

"You witnessed two things tonight — one the official made a gutsy call and the other is one of the greatest comebacks in women's basketball," said Mississippi Coach Van Chancellor.

Auburn Coach Joe Ciampi said, "If someone wants to call a foul to make a decision in a game, that's a gutsy call."

"I was upset with myself for going after the ball," said Barody. "I saw her (Craig) going up straight. I thought I could jump around and tip it."

Gillom scored 19 for Mississippi. Alisa Scott had 11 despite hurting her leg, and Myra Williams tallied 12.

Ruthie Bolton with 13 and Charlene Thomas with 10 led Auburn.

the Amarillo Civic Center. In first-round victories on Thursday, Duke (21-7) beat West Texas State 68-67 when Connie Goins made two free throws with three seconds left, and Northwestern State (24-6), led by Teresa Thomas' 25 points, beat Tennessee Tech 77-71.

In another second-round game, Notre Dame (22-8) will play Idaho (24-5) at 7 p.m. today. Duke faces Northwestern Louisiana at 9 p.m.

Notre Dame took an early 11-2 to beat United States International 86-61 Thursday; meanwhile, Idaho's Twin Towers — 6-4 centers Mary Westerville and Mary Raese — combined for 39 points to lead their team to a 74-61 victory over Fresno State.

TPC upgraded to 'major' tour status

PONTE VEDRA, Fla. (AP) — Calvin Peete insists the Tournament Players Championship is one of golf's "majors."

"The players consider it a major tournament," said Peete who will open defense of his title Thursday on the Tournament Players Club at Sawgrass.

"When you win against the best field in golf, on a golf course of this caliber, it has to be a major," Peete said.

The 144-man field contains — with one exception — all the great players in the world. Absent will be two-time Masters winner Seve Ballesteros, who is suspended from the tour for a year for not participating in the minimum number of events (15).

The course — with water on every hole, an island green on No. 17, mounds, bunkers and waste areas — is among the most difficult and demanding in golf. And the purse, $900,000 with $162,000 to the winner, is among the tour's largest.

"It's a major to me," Peete said. PGA Tour Commissioner Deane Beman prefers to call it a "significant event."

Whether it has reached the status of the game's Big Four tournaments is a matter for interpretation. But the TPC is the most significant tournament to be played so far this year, representing an in-house championship for golf's touring pros.

Also, the Big Four are not PGA Tour tournaments. This one is.

The Masters is staged and governed by the Augusta National Golf Club, the U.S. Open by the U.S. Golf Association, the British Open by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrew's, and the PGA national championship by the PGA, an organization separate from the PGA Tour.

This year's tour championship will be the 13th edition, fifth at the Tour's home course, which is now the permanent site.

It's a course that places a premium on accuracy, as demonstrated by Peete's triumph last year. The 43-year-old veteran is recognized as the game's most accurate player. He's led the tour five consecutive years in driving accuracy and topped the tour in greens hit in regulation in three of the last five.

He's leading in greens in regulation now and is second in driving accuracy. Those statistics, along with a victory in the Tournament of Champions early this season, make him a strong contender to become the first player to successfully defend his TPC title.

Tom Watson, trying to fight his way out of a long non-winning string, is another strong candidate. Recently, he has shown signs he is approaching the form that made him golf's Player of the Year a record six times.

Also on hand are the current holders of the recognized majors, Sandy Lyle of Scotland (British Open), Andy North (U.S. Open), Hubert Green (PGA) and West German Bernhard Langer (Masters) — perhaps the most consistent performer on the tour this season.

Other leading players include Lanny Wadkins, Ray Floyd, Jack Nicklaus, Hal Sutton, Fuzzy Zoeller, Andy Bean, Tom Kite, John Mahaffey, Hale Irwin, Larry Nelson, Johnny Miller, Australian David Graham and Arnold Palmer, who received a special invitation.

Portions of the tournament will be televised nationally by CBS.

Middleweight contender James Shuler dead at 26

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — James Shuler, who started boxing at Joe Frazier's north Philadelphia gym and dreamed of bringing a middleweight boxing title to his hometown, died on its streets when his new motorcycle crashed into a tractor-trailer.

Shuler, 26, who suffered his first professional loss 10 days earlier in a first-round knockout by Thomas Hearns, was riding a Kawasaki motorcycle on Thursday north on a city street when it skidded into the cab of the truck at an intersection, police said.

The cause of the 5 p.m. accident is under investigation, according to Police Cpl. Lawrence DeJarnette. "Champ! Yo, champ!" said some of the crowd of 100 onlookers who gathered as rescue personnel tried to free him from the wreckage, according to The Philadelphia Inquirer.

Shuler was pronounced dead at the scene, DeJarnette said. Police said he had just bought the motorcycle, and an employee of the Medical Examiner's Office who would not give his name said the temporary registration slip was found in his pocket. An autopsy was scheduled for this morning.

Police said Shuler was wearing a helmet at the time of the accident.

The uninjured driver of the east-bound truck, Paul D. Wilson, 51, was questioned, but no charges were filed, police said.

"Oh, my god. That's really tragic," said Bob Arum, who promoted the Hearns-Shuler fight. "Obviously, I'm stunned. He was a decent, decent young man."

Shuler, an outstanding amateur who was deprived of an Olympic appearance because of the boycott of the 1980 Moscow Games, had won 22 professional fights, 16 by knockout, before losing his North American Boxing Federation middleweight title March 10 to Hearns.

At age 9, Shuler walked past Frazier's gym and saw the heavyweight champ inside. Frazier invited him in, signed a picture "To James, Good Luck," and Shuler quickly talked his father into taking him back to the gym to learn how to box.

Shuler came into the Hearns fight vowing to become the first in a long line of top-flight Philadelphia middleweights — including Bennie Briscoe, Eugene Hart, Willie Monroe and Bobby Watts — to win a world title.

"Every time I walk down the street, people are coming up to me, saying, 'You're the last person we got, James. You're Philly's last chance for the title,'" Shuler said before the Hearns fight.

"The days I don't want to get up and do my roadwork, I remember what the people are expecting."

He earned $250,000 for the Hearns fight, by far his biggest payday. Part of his first big professional paycheck went to his mother, for furniture, and his father, for a car. Shuler is one of 10 children raised in a north Philadelphia project.

Shuler compiled a 178-6 record as an amateur. He won the 1980 Olympic trials at 156 pounds and later expressed bitterness at not getting to fight in the Olympics and benefiting from the exposure — "the ill-fated class of 1980, shall we say," Shuler said.

He quickly turned professional — partly because his father suffered a heart attack and the family needed money — and in his first fight in September 1980, knocked out Chris Rogers.

He won the NABF middleweight title with a decision over Clint Jackson on Jan. 17, 1984 and became the World Boxing Council's No. 1-ranked middleweight after beating James Kinchen in February 1985.

Shuler was regarded as friendly and likable — not necessarily the best attributes for a fighter.

"I want to win, but I have never gotten to the point where I felt like I really wanted to kill the man across from me," he said. "I guess I'm not really right for this game huh?"

Blackman leads Mavs past Jazz, 114-107

By The Associated Press
Rolando Blackman was too much for the Utah Jazz — literally. Blackman scored 21 of his 35 points in the fourth period — he outscored the entire Utah team 21-13 during a 10-minute stretch — to rally the Dallas Mavericks to a 114-107 victory Thursday night.

And the Mavericks did just that. Utah, led by Adrian Dantley's 29 points, led 98-94 with 8:14 remaining when Blackman scored Dallas' next 12 points. The victory gave the Mavericks a four-game lead over the Jazz in the race for fourth place in the Western Conference playoff standings.

In other NBA games, it was Milwaukee 116, Houston 106; New York 93, Cleveland 87 and Seattle 116, Golden State 104.

Jay Vincent scored 26 points for Dallas and Mark Aguirre added 25 but it was all Blackman in the fourth quarter.

Bucks 116, Rockets 106

Terry Cummings scored 25 points and Sidney Moncrief added 23. Cummings' driving layup with 8:35 left gave the Bucks a 99-91 lead but Akeem Olatunji scored the Rockets' next seven points as they cut the lead to 101-98 with 6:40 remaining.

Steve Harris' two free throws with 4:29 to play brought the Rockets within 104-102 but the Bucks outscored Houston 9-2 to lead 113-104 after a layup by Moncrief with 1:35 left.

Paul Pressey added 20 points for the Bucks. Houston was led by Ralph Sampson with 20 points and Olatunji added 19.

Olatunji, showing the effects of a recent knee injury, was held to five rebounds. He was averaging more than 11 a game.

Knicks 93, Cavaliers 87

Darrell Walker came off the bench to score 16 points and James Bailey added 15 as New York won its second straight game but only its fourth in its last 23 outings. The loss sliced Cleveland's lead to one-half game over Indiana and one over Chicago in the race for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff berth. The Cavaliers have lost six in a row.

The Knicks trailed 73-62 late in the third quarter before cutting the deficit to 76-73 on a three-point shot by Ernie Grunfeld at the end of the period. New York then outscored Cleveland 12-4 over the first 7:40 of the fourth quarter to take an 85-80 lead. Roy Hinson led Cleveland with 19 points.

SuperSonics 116, Warriors 104

Ricky Sobers, who had played only 10 minutes in Seattle's previous two games without scoring, got eight of his 16 points in the last three minutes of the third quarter as the SuperSonics built a 15-point lead.

The Warriors were without starter Purvis Short, who had a sore toe, but his replacement, Greg Ballard, scored a season-high 25 points. Golden State's Joe Barry Carroll led all scorers with 29. Xavier McDaniel topped Seattle with 19.

Gators bite SW Missouri St.

By The Associated Press
With the Southeastern Conference dominating play in the NCAA tournament, the Florida Gators are doing their best to represent the conference's interests in the National Invitation Tournament.

Winning their third straight game at home with a 54-53 decision over Southwest Missouri State Thursday night, the Gators earned a ticket to New York City for the NIT's Final Four.

The Gators join Wyoming and Louisiana Tech, along with the winner of tonight's game between Brigham Young and Ohio State, in the championship round at Madison Square Garden March 24 and 26.

closed it up and made it exciting at the end. They never gave up."

Bears Coach Charlie Spoonhour said he wasn't surprised that his team was able to come back and make it close after falling behind 50-36 with less than eight minutes to play.

"When you get ahead 15 or 16 points, you have a tendency to try to protect the lead and the other team gets some initiative," Spoonhour said. "That's only human nature. I thought we got a little of the initiative back from Florida. I was proud of our guys, but Florida just came through."

Maurice Jackson and Robert Godbolt scored Louisiana Tech's last 11 points and the Bulldogs survived a late comeback by Providence.

The Friars had a chance to win when Matt Palazzi got open for a 14-foot jumper from the side. But it fell short with four seconds remaining. Kelvin Lewis got the rebound for the Bulldogs and they ran out the clock.

Louisiana Tech, 19-13, was led by Jackson's career-high 19 points, mostly on long-range shots, and Godbolt's 18, primarily on inside power moves.

Billy Donovan had just hit two long jumpers for Providence, but Coach Rick Pitino decided to try to get Palazzi free off a baseline screen. That part worked.

"We got the shot we wanted," Providence Coach Rick Pitino said. "We wanted Matt to take the shot. We thought they'd stay with Billy Donovan. Matt will make more of those than he misses."

American gains WFS title

GENEVA (AP) — "Hey," said Debi Thomas after watching U.S. teammate Brian Boitano skate a spectacular men's program to become world champion, "I just got inspired."

The 18-year-old Thomas, who like Boitano won her national title last month, has set her sights on a world title of her own — a feat she can accomplish if she finishes first or second in Friday night's finale.

Unlike Boitano, however, she glides into the free skating in the lead, ahead of Soviet Kira Ivanova, American Tiffany Chin and reigning world champion Katarina Witt of East Germany.

Boitano, 22, of Sunnyvale, Calif., was in fourth place overall before Thursday night's long program in which defending champion Alexander Fadeev of the Soviet Union, Canadian Brian Orser and Czech Jozef Sabovcik were the favored competitors.

Boitano said the spotlight that shone on the three leaders left him relaxed and able to put everything he had into his prize-winning routine that combined the best of Hollywood with dazzling aerial pyrotechnics.

"I knew I could match them technically," he said. "But there was a lot less pressure on me. I could stand back and watch the scenario."

Jumping and jitterbugging, Boitano executed one perfect move after another in a dramatic program done to Gershwin compositions mixed with the blues.

There was no sign of any ailment in his troublesome ankle, which he has been treating with acupuncture for sore tendons since winning the U.S. Nationals last month.

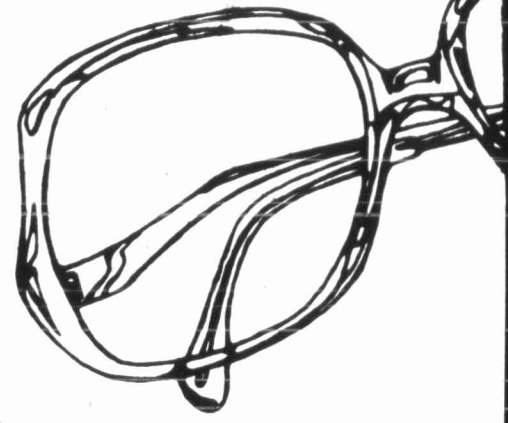

The American skated like a thoroughbred, completing the event's only clean triple axel jump in a night where one favorite after another tripped up. Among them was Sabovcik, who aired the first quadruple jump in international competition at this year's European Championships, but hobbled off the ice Thursday night in pain.

Boitano also aired a triple toe loop, followed by a double toe loop, followed by a double loop — seven rotations in the air in a few seconds time and something very few skaters ever attempt in competition.

Winning his third world silver medal was Orser, whose tumble on one triple axel jump and falter on another marred an otherwise fast, action-packed routine. Both Orser and Boitano ended with the same 5.4 total factored placements.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, MARCH 22, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You do wonderfully well now by forgetting the past and its mistakes and concentrate upon the new and inspirational aspects of your life. Think big today.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Pay that bill and forget about it, and then you can make the progress you want to in the outside world.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Steer clear of a person who makes demands on you. Get into your rightful niche so that you can operate more efficiently.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are thinking cleverly and you know how to make the right contacts so that you can improve your mode of operating.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Think how to add to your income and become a more important person and forget pleasure that is only temporary.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) You are charming and can gain personal desires easily, provided you don't just sit in that easy chair and let the world go by.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Sit down quietly and think about widening your vision. Be concerned more with the big issues and not so much on details.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good day to interest your friends in some new project you have been working on. Much sociability gets right results.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get outside duties handled that need attention though they are hardly enjoyable, and they are soon out of the way.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Go to new sites and make worthwhile contacts that can be very helpful to you in the near future.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can handle many small but important matters today if you don't keep harping on one issue.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show an outside partner that you appreciate his or her ideas and outlets. Avoid a bigwig who is troubled.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get your home in better condition and add to the harmony now existing there. Build up your energies and stamina with exercise.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be able to readily understand every phase of any project that is fascinating and can make a big success of it. Give sufficient praise for good work done in order to further raise the incentive. One who will have great vision and tremendous talents.

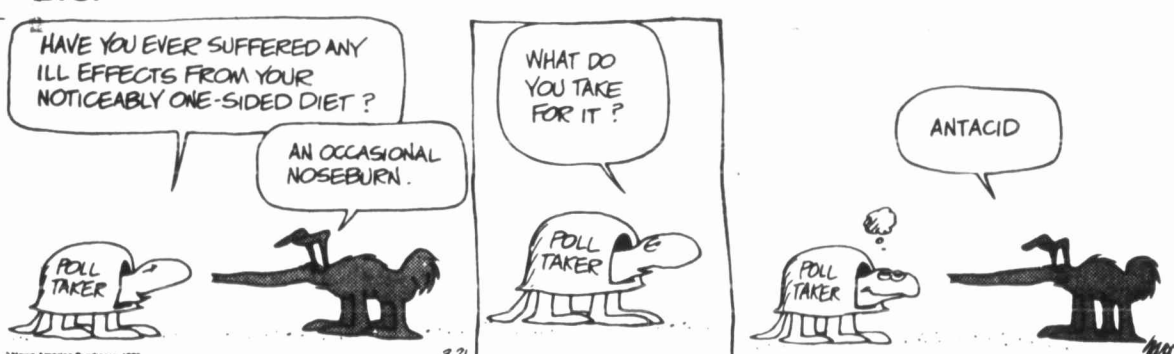

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!
