GM Head Declines To Attend Wage Parley

Government Hits Conciliation Snag And Settlement Of Strike Delayed

(By The Associated Press)

THE federal government's plans to try its hand at settling the rift between the General Motors corporation and striking CIO United Auto Workers received a setback late yesterday when the company announced it would not participate in conferences arranged by the government.

Shortly after Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach announced Charles E. Wilson, General Motors president, and Vice President Walter P. Reuther of the UAW would confer in Washington today with Edgar L. Warren, U. S. conciliation director, Wilson denied he promised or planned to attend "this week or at any other time."

No Other To Attend

Furthermore, a spokesman for GM said no other company representatives would attend the Washington meeting today.

Wilson said he told Warren that "the strike situation" at Detroit would prevent his attending the general labor management conferences which have been underway in Washington for several days. He said he had not been in communication with Schwellenbach on the question of a General Motors strike conference.

The UAW announced Reuther would attend a conference with Warren. The conciliation director had planned separate conferences with union and management.

The week long strike has idled 225,000 workers.

The union announced earlier it would file a supplemental brief with the regional National Labor Relations board accusing the company of "flagrant violations" of the Wagner act in refusing to negotiate demands for a 30 per cent wage rate increase.

The corporation has accused the union of creating a "situation of

Iran Rebels Start March On Capital

(By The Associated Press)

TEHRAN, Iran, Nov. 27.—The Iranian government officially announced tonight that an insurgent military force from Azerbaijan province in northern Iran was marching toward the Iranian capital city of Tehran.

Authorities ordered the capital defended at all costs.

The government said also that Azerbaijan forces, who are seeking autonomy, had occupied Zenjan, a rail station 170 miles northwest of the capital.

The announcement said the main force was marching along the rail line southward toward Tehran. At the same time, another force occupied Takistan, a small railway station nine miles southwest of Kazvin, 85 miles northwest of Tehran.

The advance force at Takistan was expected to reach Kazvin tonight.

Observers in Tehran believed it was questionable whether the Azerbaijan forces would continue to march on Tehran in view of the presence of armed Iranian troops and tanks at Sharifabad, four miles east of Kazvin.

But Tehran authorities were taking no chances and ordered the city strongly defended. Iranian reinforcements were ordered up.

Advance Of 56 Miles

The occupation of Zenjan represents an advance of 56 miles from Bianeh which the government reported last week had been occupied by the insurgents. All government buildings in Zenjan, capital of Khamseh province were reported in the hands of the Azarbaijans. Telegraph lines were out.

Government circles believe the Azerbaijans will stop at Kazvin and the arrival of the insurgents there might be a signal for sympathizers and "armed strangers" to start a rebellion in the capital. Previously the government had charged that the insurgents were operating with weapons distributed by "unknown people."

The government announcement said that the Caspian seaport of Astara, 230 miles northwest of Tehran on the Iranian-Soviet border, also was completely occupied.

The Iranian Parliament voted to appoint an emergency delegation of 16 deputies to act as a liaison between Parliament and the government during the crisis.

Premier Hakimi met the Soviet charge affaires but nothing regarding their talks was made public. Azerbaijan province borders Russia and Soviet troops occupied it during the war and are still there.

Following the American and British notes to Moscow demanding information on the disturbances in northern Iran, there was a feeling of mixed relief and apprehension here.

Hurley Quits In Huff, And Marshall Takes China Post

U. S. Foreign Policy Now In Sharp Focus

Yank Pilots Angered By Having To Fly Perilous 'Hump' To Aid China

(By The Associated Press)

CHUNGKING, Nov. 27.—A reported mass movement of United States planes into North China from Burma and India and the sudden resignation of Ambassador Patrick J. Hurley brought into sharp focus today the fateful question of United States policy in this country's undeclared civil war.

Hurley quit his post with the blunt statement that American policy had failed in Asia and that the effect of it now was to "undermine democracy and bolster imperialism and Communism."

Initial Reaction

The initial reaction here to the announcement of Hurley's resignation was that while Nationalist China had lost a warm friend and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek an ardent supporter, the course of America's policy in China had been set and would not suffer any marked change.

Following reports last month that Hurley was returning to China, Chiang said he was "very happy," and expressed the hope the ambassador would use his good offices in the dispute between the government and the Communists.

Pilots Are Angered

In Shanghai, meanwhile, Associated Press correspondent Richard Cushing found American airforce pilots "debating angrily" their postwar assignment to the perilous job of flying planes wholesale over "The Hump" from India and Burma for delivery to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's forces.

Ranking officers told Cushing that virtually every flying plane in India and Burma was being sent to China in an operation which already has cost several American lives. About 700 aircraft were being flown to airfields in the greater Shanghai area, he was told, with

Hurley Denounces Career Diplomats And Warns Another War 'In Making'

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—General of the Army George C. Marshall was appointed special envoy to China late today after the U. S. ambassador, Major Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, had resigned with a bitter denunciation of career diplomats and a warning that a third world war was "in the making."

The two events, coming in rapid-fire order, stunned the capital.

First the dashing Hurley, who was secretary of war under Herbert Hoover and global trouble-shooter for Franklin D. Roosevelt, released a scathing 1,800 word statement virtually unprecedented in recent diplomatic history.

U. S. Policy "Wrecked"

It charged unnamed professional diplomats with wrecking U. S. foreign policy. Instead of backing democracy and unity in China, he said, they "sided with the Communist armed party and the imperialistic bloc of nations whose policy it was to keep China divided against itself."

Secretary of State Byrnes went into a quick huddle with President Truman and other officials. Then White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross called reporters into his office.

After announcing that the President had accepted the Hurley resignation, he disclosed that Mr. Truman had named Marshall as his special envoy with the rank of ambassador. The assignment will be temporary.

Called By Telephone

As Ross related it, the President telephoned the five-star general, who only last week retired as United States chief of staff, and asked:

"Will you go, General Marshall?"

"I will, Mr. President," Marshall replied.

Ross explained that Marshall's assignment "is to do a particular job that needs to be done in China."

Hurley's statement charged that American diplomats serving in Chungking had thwarted the realization of policies announced by the top-level leadership of the United States.

Guilt Denied By Yamashita

MANILA, Wednesday, Nov. 28 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita took the stand in his own defense this morning in his war crimes trial and testified he never had been in supreme command in the Philippines, thus implying that he could not be blamed for atrocities committed in these islands.

Asserting he always was under orders of Field Marshal Count Hisachi Terauchi, supreme Japanese commander in the Southwest Pacific, Yamasihta also declared he never had headquarters in Manila, and that Nipponese air force, transport and 30,000 other troops in the Philippines were under other commanders.

Plans of Conquest

The Japanese plan for defense of the Philippines called for the Navy and air force to annihilate the American invaders, with the Army merely cooperating, he said.

Yamashita, conqueror of Malaya, said he came to the Philippines in October, 1944, to assume command of the 14th area army. Nine days after he took over that army, the Americans landed.

He found his forces in "unsatisfactory" condition, Yamashita declared, with his chief of staff ill in bed and only three staff officers familiar with the Philippines. He was short five divisions of troops, he went on, and lacking in supplies, particularly food and gasoline. There was considerable anti-Japanese feeling among the Filipinos, he admitted.

Stares At Interpreters

Staring at his interpreters, Yamashita frequently shook his finger like a lecturing schoolmaster. He repeated remarks for the young Nisei interpreters, nodding beningnly when they translated to his satisfaction. (Yamashita has insisted on using Japanese, although he apparently knows English).

After the session was adjourned for lunch, Yamashita told a Nisei Army sergeant "I'll go over it once, and then repeat what I say piecemeal."

Took Over October 8

Yamashita said he learned Sept. 9, 1944, he was to be sent to the Philippines. He acutally took over the 14th area army Oct. 9 and established headquarters at Fort McKinley. In December, when the Philippine campaign was in full swing, he moved to Ipo dam, 30 miles northeast of Manila, he testified.

Earlier today, defense witnesses characterized Yamashita as kindly and gentle, and said he was a member of a "pacifist group" which considered war with the United States "undesirable." His views enraged Dictator-Premier Hideki Tojo, who "exiled" him to Manchuria, declared Keichoku Yoshida, a Tokyo attorney.

Konoye Feared Jap Military Regime . . .

Grew Recounts His Secret Conference

By WILLIAM T. PEACOCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew testified today that Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye told him Sept. 6, 1941, that the Japanese military would take over his country unless he could have a personal "peace" meeting with President Roosevelt.

Grew told a Senate-House committee that Konoye, in dire fear of the military extremists, met him secretly at a friend's home to urge that such a meeting be arranged.

Official license plates were removed from their automobiles to preserve the secrecy of their three-hour rendezvous, he said.

Plan Failed To Work

The late President decided against the meeting although Grew said he messaged Sept. 29 that he believed failure to hold the conference would result in Konoye's downfall and "the formation of a military dictatorship lacking either the disposition or temperament to avoid colliding head-on with the United States."

In October came Konoye's downfall and the elevation of Tojo to the premiership, and, on Dec. 7, war.

The gray-haired former envoy told the committee investigating the Pearl Harbor attack that he believed Konoye advanced his proposal in good faith although he said the prince was "saddled with responsibility for some of the worst acts of banditry."

Realized Situation

He believed, Grew said, that Konoye had then seen the handwriting on the wall and realized Japan was on "the edge of the abyss."

Grew told also of an exchange of letters he had with Mr. Roosevelt in the previous winter when, he said, they agreed that divergent American and Japanese policies were "bound eventually" to bring a "head on clash with Japan."

Under questioning from Senator Ferguson (R-Mich), Grew said he interpreted the President's letter of Jan. 21, 1941, as supporting the ambassador's view that the United States must be prepared to go "all the way" in support of its diplomatic representations to Japan.

Grew had written the President that the United States must build up its Army and Navy because Japan would pay little attention to demands not backed by military force.

Economic Conflict

The former U. S. ambassador to Tokyo told a Senate-House committee, however, that what he had in mind was an economic conflict and not necessarily a "military clash."

Grew read to the committee, which is investigating the Pearl Harbor attack, a letter he said he wrote to the President on Dec. 14, 1940 expressing his fear of a "head-on clash with Japan."

The letter added that the question "is not whether we call a halt to the Japanese program but

Soldier Keeps His Pledge, Remembers Buddy In His Will

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 27. (AP)—Marine Corp. H. B. Smith of Glendale, Calif., meant it when he told his buddy: "I'll remember you in my will."

The buddy, James Braun of San Angelo, has been notified that Smith, killed in action on Okinawa June 12, had remembered Braun with $1,600 for "exceptional friendship and loyalty."

Smith's estate was valued at $175,000, Braun said.

The two men served in the same unit until they were separated at Munda when Braun was wounded.

Tire Rationing May End Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—The government's expressed hope that tire rationing can end early next year was bolstered today by an official report that tire output is up sharply.

The OPA announced that production has increased considerably during the past few weeks, and "barring work stoppages, is expected to attain the scheduled production goal of 11,000,000 (passenger) tires in this quarter."

May Boost Quotas

Production in the July-September quarter was about 7,000,000 passenger tires.

Meanwhile the number of tires available to the public may be augmented somewhat as a result of work stoppages in the automobile industry.

Here's the reason: OPA limits auto manufacturers to a 15-day inventory of new tires. Strikes or shutdowns in the industry have the effect of freezing manufacturers' inventories.

Thus tires which ordinarily would go to tire manufacturers are diverted to tire dealers.

It was learned also that termination of truck tire rationing had been scheduled for Dec. 1, but that this plan has been revised in favor of ending all tire rationing at the same time.

Vocational Education Setup Is Adjusted

AUSTIN, Nov. 27. (AP)—The difference between the U. S. Office of Education and the State Board of Vocational Education over the latter's employment of W. E. (Brick) Lowry as state director of vocational education have been adjusted.

This was announced by Lowry today on his return from Washington, where he had gone to outline to the federal department the state board's objectives in meeting postwar needs for vocational education in Texas.

He spent three days discussing a revision of the Texas plan, which met with full approval.

Churchill Opens Fight On Attlee

LONDON, Nov. 27 (AP)—Winston Churchill tonight launched the Conservative party's first major offensive against Britain's Labor government with a demand that Commons censure the cabinet for "neglecting" major national problems in favor of Socialist projects.

Churchill submitted to the House a broadly-phrased censure motion accusing Prime Minister Attlee and his government of failing to deal effectively with reconversion, demobilization and housing because of a "pre-occupation" with long-term plans to nationlize industries.

Could Bring Resignation

The motion—which, if approved, could lead to the resignation of the Labor government — was almost certainly foredoomed because of Labor's overwhelming voting majority. It will serve, however, to provoke a full-dress debate on the whole range of Britain's postwar plans.

The government, Laborite sources said, will set aside parliamentary time next week for debate on the motion of censure, which was so broadly worded as to constitute a denunciation of the government's entire post-war program.

Secret Nazi Papers Bared

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

NUERNBERG, Nov. 27 — A secret German document showing that in 1938 the Nazis were preparing to fight "two-thirds of the whole world" to establish the Reich as a leading power was disclosed today by the American prosecution in the international war crimes trial.

This was one of the many documents placed in evidence, in whole or in part, against the 20 Nazi leaders on trial for their lives before the international tribunal. The portion quoted above was not read in court and is, therefore, not yet a part of the evidence.

Planned World Power

The document, taken from Navy files, said Hitler's aims to make Germany a world power probably could not be "achieved by peaceful means" and that Germany was forced to make "preparations for war" against England, France, Russia and "in fact one-half to two-thirds of the whole world."

For hour after hour, U. S. assistant Prosecutor Sidney S. Alderman hammered relentlessly with scores of documents, showing that German military and naval leaders started rearming secretly shortly after World War 1 and that they had deliberately violated the treaties of Versailles and Locarno.

Major disclosures during the day were:

Even before the Nazis took power German submarines were being built secretly in Holland, Spain and Finland and that the Germans were deliberately falsifying the tonnage of war ships in figures to England and the rest of the world.

As early as October, 1932, the Germans were secretly building up a military air force in civilian guise by organizing and training airlines pilots for combat.

On Jan. 31, 1933, the day after Hitler came to power, the Nazis

Aging Orlando Fails In Plan For Cabinet

ROME, Nov. 27 (AP) — Crown Prince Umberto, lieutenant general of the realm, invited leaders of the six main parties to new conferences this afternoon on the Italian political crisis, still unresolved after the Leftists rejected 85-year-old Vittorio Emanuele Orlando as premier.

Political leaders met this morning without result.

A royal communique said Orlando—former premier and colleague of Woodrow Wilson, Lloyd George and Georges Clemenceau in writing the peace which ended World War I—reported to Umberto today that his efforts to form a unified government had produced "no concrete results" after he had sounded out party leaders yesterday.

Marshall Choice Pleases Chinese

CHUNGKING, Wednesday, Nov. 28. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Patrick E. Hurley's resignation as United States ambassador to China caused disappointment here today, but word of Gen. George C. Marshall's appointment as his successor was taken to signify the immense interest in Washington over events now stirring in the Orient.

Particularly critical is the situation in North China and Manchuria where Chinese Nationalists and Communists are engaged in undeclared civil war for dominion.

Decision On Marines

It was felt here Marshall will be able to make an on-the-spot decision as to whether United States Marines will stay in North China, or return home.

Marshall's appointment occasioned a thunderbolt-like surprise here, where his name had never cropped up even in gossip as a possible successor to Hurley.

HURLEY CONGRATULATES GENERAL ON SELECTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley said tonight he had sent congratulations to Gen. George C. Marshall and added that he thought the appointment of Marshall as special envoy to China would be "helpful to the situation."

Hurley, who resigned earlier in the day as ambassador to China and delivered a stinging criticism of American foreign policy there, said his telegraph to Marshall had read simply:

"Hearty congratulations. Best of luck."

The wife and mother is the former Miss Clara Buck of Corsicana.

Mrs. W. B. Alderman of Dallas, a sister of Mrs. Pierce, said Pierce had been despondent because he was unable to have his family with him while working with the railroad, due to housing conditions. She said he had quit his job the day before the tragedy.

Fury Of Battle In Java Mounts

BATAVIA, Java, Nov. 27 (AP)—The Indonesian national committee voted confidence in Premier Sutah Sjahrir's government today as British ground, sea and air weapons lashed at Indonesian forces and fighting intensified around the civilian internment center at Ambarawa in central Java.

Four British Thunderbolt fighters strafed Indonesian vehicles and columns at Ambarawa after reinforced Nationalists attacked a camp quartering 10,000 former internees, including women and children, the Dutch news agency Aneta said. The assault forced back Allied and Japanese troops defending the camp, it added.

Destroyer Shells Town

Guns of a British destroyer standing off Semarang shelled the town of Oenganan, midway between Semarang and Ambarawa. Hundreds of British sailors were landed from HMS Sussex to patrol in Semarang.

Indonesian reinforcements were reported marching toward Ambarawa, and toward Soerabaja, where Nationalists in an attack spearheaded by a small tank of Japanese make, forced British Indian troops to withdraw in one forward sector of the naval base city.

British officers said they were mopping up in Darmo, last unoccupied residental suburb of Soerabaja, and that other objectives had been taken, some with little opposition.

Planes Lash Radio Station

Four RAF planes bearing rockets and 500-pound bombs attacked the Indonesian Nationalist radio station at Jogjakarta, which was ordering Indonesians to concentrate at various points, Aneta said.

Sjahrir's government received a vote of confidence at the end of a three-day Indonesian Nationalist conference. Eighty-nine delegates voted for the government; 11 abstained.

Boost In Cost Of Shoes Seen

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Manufacturers' ceiling prices for shoes will be increased four and one-half per cent to cover rising production costs, OPA announced today.

The official order to effect this probability will be issued in December, the OPA statement informed the shoe manufacturers' industry advisory committee at a meeting here.

Industry Protests Plan

OPA said there probably would be no change in prices consumers will pay. However, no final decision on this will be announced until a study of distributors' costs and earnings is completed.

OPA said present indications are that wholesalers and retailers can absorb the entire amount of the general increase in manufacturers' prices. The industry committee protested this idea.

In addition, the committee passed a resolution stating that it felt the increase in manufacturers' ceilings "is insufficient," but that the industry would accept it and ask issuance of the order "with all due haste."

OPA said that its action in raising ceiling prices at the manufacturers' level also will include additional price adjustments to encourage production of lower-price shoes.

U. S. Favors Collective Intervention

Latin Plan Approved

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP) — The United States today backed up a Urguayan proposal for collective intervention in the internal affairs of any American republic violating human rights or its international obligations.

Secretary of State Byrnes issued a statement expressing this nation's "unqualified adherence" and declaring that if the American republics are to preserve the peace they "cannot permit oppressive regimes to exist in their midst."

Urguayan Foreign Minister Alberto Rodrigues Larretta suggested the intervention policy, as a hemispheric security measure, in a note sent to other American republics last week.

While the note made no mention of any nation, diplomats regarded it as being aimed at the military government in Argentina.

Byrnes said the Allies, at a "huge cost in lives, blood and treasure," had won a victory "which means that men everywhere may properly demand" respect for human rights and dignity as an essential condition to the maintenance of peace and security.

"Violation of the elementary rights of man by a government of force and the non-fulfillment of obligations by such a government is a matter of common concern to all the republics," Byrnes said. "As such it justifies collective, multilateral action after full consultation among the republics in accordance with established procedures."

Jap Liberals Move Toward Democracy

Emperor Opens Diet

TOKYO, Nov. 27.—A resolution urging wartime prominent legislators to "clarify their war responsibility" was introduced in the Diet today by the Liberal party after Emperor Hirohito stiffly opened the 89th extraordinary session with an injunction to reform the election laws.

The emperor opened the session in traditional formalit. He read his brief perfunctory rescript in heavy tones. Members of both houses stood with bowed heads. There was not a word about the occupation, no reference to the situation that made necessary urgent action to revise the house of representatives election law and other matters."

The other matters included repeal of repressive laws, epropriation of landed estates and other changes ordered by Allied headquarters to make way for democracy.

Indications were that the Liberal part might not have the full cooperation of other elements of the Diet in its efforts to clarify responsibility for the war that wrecked the empire.

A spokesman for the social Democrats said his party supported the resolution. A spokesman for the Progressives, however, said his group was undecided "because there are many technical difficulties."

The progressives hold nearly 300 seats, a majority, in the house of representatives.

Communism Suffers New Blow As Austria Follows Trend From Right

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
United Press Staff Writer

Communism in Central Europe has suffered another blow in the result of the Austrian election.

Coming on the heels of the poor Communist showing in the earlier Hungarian balloting, it is an assurance that Soviet political domination will not extend as far westward as many alarmists had predicted.

Austria held its first free election in 15 years, Hungary its first since before the war. The outcome in both cases is certain to be cited by the Anglo-Americans as justification of their insistence of this democratic procedure.

Nothing Conclusive

Yet nothing conclusive can be deduced from these elections, nor from those farther to the southeast in Yugoslavia, Romania and Bulgaria. In the latter three countries, only single-party tickets were allowed, and there is natural debate over how far the returns express the free will of the people.

Neither can the Austrian result be considered a certain gauge of how that liberated republic will turn in the immediate future. There are strong indications that the balloting against the extreme left was partly dictated by resentment against Soviet occupation.

Vienna dispatches describe it is a popular protest against the Red Army, which moved in weeks before joint Allied occupation was agreed upon. When the Russian, British and United States occupying forces have been withdrawn, Austria is expected to hold a subsequent election which will be less conservative, although still not veering all the way to the left.

Sharp Trend From Right

The Austrian election, in which the Catholic, conservative people's party came out top dog, with the Socialists a close second and the Communists a poor third, does not negate the sharp trend away from the extreme right which is evident throughout Europe, not least of all in England and France.

The Communists have not been, and probably will not be, excluded from some share in the current governments of Hungary and Austria, even though they are distinctly in the minority.

In England, where a Socialist-Labor government is in the saddle, the Communists cut very little figure. In France, on the other hand, they are powerful—not strong enough to control the government, but still with enough popular support to make a stable left-center regime almost impossible without their inclusion.

Significant In Britain

Britain cannot be used as a yardstick for political thought on the continent. It is nevertheless significant that Britain, regarded as a stronghold of conservatism, has overwhelmingly repudiated the conservatives and the country's revered war-time leader, Winston Churchill. An amazing program of nationalization and socialization has been undertaken.

Perhaps France is the real key to the general trend in liberated and occupied Europe, as suggested by Prof. Vincent Harlow, noted British political commentator. He observed:

"The right wing—temporarily at any rate—has disappeared and the pattern shows graduations of the left, ranging from Communists to progressive Catholics or Agrarian reformers. The fourth republic of France is worth close observation, for in many vital ways it will be the index of a new Europe which is taking shape before our eyes."

U. S. Now In Position To Set Price, Output On Natural Rubber

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — Plenty will be said about this: For the first time America is in a position to govern the price and production of the world's natural rubber.

Before the war, in 1940, we used 650,000 tons of rubber, all imported. That was more than the rest of the world used. We were paying about 18 cents a pound for it.

Come From Far East

Most of it came from the Far East. War shut off our imports. We needed rubber. The government spent $750,000,000 in 52 synthetic rubber plants. Those plants now can turn out 1,000,000 tons a year.

The plants—government-owned but operated for the government by chemical, petroleum and rubber companies—are all working. The rubber they produce goes to the government which sells it to commercial firms.

In the first five months of 1945 the synthetic rubber cost the government 27½ cents a pound to produce. The government sold it to commercial firms at 18½ cents.

This was a loss of nine cents a pound to the taxpayers but, through production improvements, the cost is going down. Synthetic rubber now is costing the government about 12½ cents a pound, which is also the selling price. The cost may drop further.

(All the figures used here are from government sources.)

But synthetic rubber is not yet good enough for all purposes. Some natural rubber still must be imported. We can make synthetically about 85 per cent of all the rubber we need. We have to import the remaining 15 per cent.

Brazil Is Market

We still are getting natural rubber from Brazil, about 22,000 tons a year. The government is paying 63 cents a pound for it, selling it to commercial firms at the OPA ceiling price of 22½ cents a pound, a loss of 40½ cents a pound.

We started buying rubber from Brazil under this agreement — which lasts until June 30, 1947— during the war when we needed rubber badly.

But before the war almost all our rubber was imported from the British, Dutch and French possessions in the Far East, Java, Borneo, Malaya, Ceylon, Indo-China.

Those countries have been taken back from the Japanese. They'll be in production, sooner or later. But how much will they produce? The amount will depend in large measure on how much natural rubber we want. That will depend on what we do with out 52 synthetic plants.

With our synthetic plants we now are in a position to bargain on natural rubber prices.

Mexia Textile Mills Back In Operation

MEXIA, Nov. 27. (AP) — The Mexia textile mills hummed again for the second day in six weeks as practically all of the 200 workers ended their walkout and returned to their jobs. A few stragglers, not returning to work yesterday, reported for duty today, officials announced.

Local union representatives made no statements concerning negotiations during the past week which led to the decision to return to work. The walkout failed to force the management to bargain collectively with the employes. The walkout was called because of the management's alleged noncompliance with a war labor board order to sign contracts with the workers.

Fast Freight Almost Tears Up City Depot

NACOGDOCHES, Nov. 27. (AP)—A fast freight just about wrecked freight depot as it roared through town today.

A nine-by-sixteen frame to a marble cutting machine, weighing over 6,000 pounds, broke loose from its steel cable moorings on the passing train and hurtled into a loaded boxcar here.

The boxcar tipped over and smashed a platform.

The 6,000-pound frame then bounced down the tracks and into the steps of the freight office, missing Telegrapher G. M. Hooper by inches.

Hooper quickly regained his poise. He stopped the fast freight three miles from Nacogdoches. It had a car cut out at Garrison and returned here, where the frame was reloaded.

Labor And Management Leaders Make Friends At Ritzy Affair

By PETER EDSON
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27.—Most important session of the President's Labor-Management Conference thus far was not held in the Labor Department auditorium nor in any of its committee rooms, but in the bon ton Carlton Room of the high-priced Carlton Hotel.

It ran from 5 till after 7 on the fourth day of the conference, but it was all done so quietly and in such elegant taste that not a word about it ever got out.

EDSON

About 100 guests were present, including most of the 72 labor and management delegates and their alternates, plus most of the top government men dealing with labor relations. Some of the tycoons brought their wives and so did some of the labor leaders, and there was more democratic mingling of class with mass than anybody has seen in Washington since the days of Andrew Jackson.

It was peace on earth personified—well, peace in the parlor, at any rate—but labor-management peace, definitely.

Invitations to this love feast went out in the names of Judge Walter P. Stacy, the conference chairman, Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, Secretary of Commerce Henry Wallace. This triumvirate greeted the guests at the door. The invitations, incidentally, said it was for a reception.

Taxpayers Pay Check

To give you the bad news first, Uncle Sam picked up the check. Meaning that the taxpayers paid the bill. It must have been for several hundred dollars, but it was worth it in results accomplished. Expenses of this labor-management conference are coming from the President's emergency funds, duly appropriated by Congress for whatever use he considers worthy. Bureau of the Budget checks the bills to protect the taxpayers' interests, and it okayed this reception as necessary in the public interest, just as it approves diplomatic receptions.

For two hours or more, everything was hot southern baby biscuits, shrimp on toothpicks, finger sandwiches, goo-covered crackers and cold toast — with plenty of things to wash them down. A big table groaned with hors d'oeuvres and there were a couple of bars in operation. A dozen waiters helped one and all forget what a hard day they had had at the mill.

Labor leaders slapped industrialists on the back and vice-versa. They called each other by their first names.

"Do you know this buy here?" a labor leader would inquire, introducing an industrialist to another labor leader. "He's on the other side. You got to watch him, but he's a good guy."

Admit U. S. Way Is Best

Alan S. Haywood, director of organization for CIO, was the center of one group. He was just back from Russia and full of his experiences in Europe. He gave the Ruskies credit for all they had done, but he had to admit that the American way was the best way, after all, and the good old U. S. A. was the place for him. Johnny Green of the Marine workers echoed the sentiment. These, the industrialists learned to their surprise, were the kind of people supposed to be communists.

Phil Murray had to leave early for another engagement but he didn't get away before John L. Lewis arrived. They met and conversed with a group of others. Lewis huddled for a few minutes with Bill Hutcheson of the carpenters and George Meany, AF of L secretary-treasurer. But that broke up quickly. Actually, there was little ganging up of industrialists on one side and labor leaders on the other.

Lewis Enjoys Himself

When John L. Lewis first came in, he stalked across the big room to a chair in the corner and sat down by himself. Pretty soon three or four of the management delegates came up to him and began to talk. A few minutes later he was surrounded, and he took over the show, told jokes and had a fine time.

This was the day after Lewis had made his famous speech on preservation of private enterprise. It was the first time most of the management delegates had heard him, let alone seen him, and he admittedly had hypnotized them. Everyone was congratulating him as a great orator and—this will slay you—some of the management delegates even asked him for his autograph.

Terminal Leave Pay For Enlisted Men Is Boosted By Solon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) set out today to remedy "one striking exception" to a general American rule of being more generous to war veterans than most countries.

The quoted words are from a report prepared by Bernard M. Baruch, financier-philanthropist, for Johnson and other members of the Senate Military committee. Baruch said the exception was in mustering out pay.

Johnson said he would push a bill he has offered to extend to enlisted men terminal leave pay, as now granted to officers.

Under Johnsons bill an enlisted man could be discharged and then get payment in cash in lieu of accrued leave.

Houston Workers To Take Strike Vote

HOUSTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—A vote here tomorrow by the United Steel Workers of America (CIO) is expected to decide whether an estimated 15,000 members will leave their jobs in 13 plants in this area.

The Hughes Tool company, one of the plants involved, yesterday presented a counter-proposal to union demands for a straight 25-cents-per-hour wage increase. There was no immediate response from the union.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the Railroad Brotherhoods of America said he believed there may be a definite announcement today on action on the independent union's strike vote against the Southern Pacific lines. A strike on the lines would affect between 18,000 and 19,000 workers in Texas and Louisiana.

Two thousand members of the National Maritime Union (CIO) here will join other union members throughout the nation in a 24-hour work stoppage Dec. 3, the union announced yesterday.

Gilroy Group Buys National Refining

CLEVELAND, Nov. 27. (AP)—National Refining Co., announced today its board of directors had approved sale of the company's oil business and oil properties to Wallace Gilroy and associates, who will carry on the present refining and marketing business under the present company name.

The company announcement said it was understood the total consideration would be "in the neighborhood of $3,000,000."

Texas Bond Showing Is Said "Miserable"

DALLAS, Nov. 27. (AP)—Nathan Adams, state chairman of the Victory Loan, described the showing Texas is making in the purchase of "E" bonds as "miserable."

Adams said the state has bought only 30.7 per cent of its 90 million dollar E-bond quota, and added:

"If each and every Texan doesn't wake up to the importance of the Victory Loan, the Lone Star State will indeed stand alone in Failure."

SISTERS EDIT PORTUGUESE BOOK

MEETING a well defined need, Dr. Eunice J. Gates of Lubbock, former associate professor of foreign languages at Texas Technological college, and her sister, Dr. Virginia Joiner, associate professor of foreign languages at Trinity university, San Antonio, have edited and adapted a Portuguese book for classroom use. The text book is Meireles' "Rute e Alberto," and will be published by D. C. Heath and Co.

The book tells of a sight-seeing trip taken by a family to places of interest in Brazil. It is designed for early reading and is supplemented with vocabulary and exercises. The book is illustrated with photographs of places of interest in Brazil. Brazilian poems add interest.

Mrs. Gates and her sister have a personal interest in editing the text book. They were born and reared in Brazil where their father was a district superintendent of Methodist mission work in South America. Each holds bachelor and master of arts degrees from Southwestern university, Georgetown; Dr. Joiner holds a Ph.D from the University of Texas and Dr. Gates received her doctor's degree from the University of Pennsylvania after receiving a master of arts degree from the University of Michigan.

WE'VE had more than a passing interest in Portuguese language since learning several years that that language is spoken in Brazil and not Spanish as we had supposed. Mrs. Gates says Brazilians are offended when travelers go there and expect to get along with a rudimentary knowledge of Spanish; knowing nothing of the native language.

A talented and brilliant linguist, Mrs. Gates says one of the chief differences in the two languages is that Portuguese is more difficult to pronounce.

"It's just a simple book we adapted for elementary use; not so much, really," she said, in the modest, quiet way typical of her manner in the classroom and in private life.

Although we haven't seen a copy of the book that describes the adventure of "Ruth" and "Albert" we are sure it is a neat and interesting bit of work. We'll be glad when it is added to shelves of romance language departments in Lubbock schools.

REMEMBERING OTHERS

GRANTED that the Goodfellows organization each Christmas sees to the wants and wishes of needy children in Lubbock, who takes care of the old folks who have neither kith nor kin to care?

Yesterday Mrs. L. H. Barkham told us about a project she learned of when she was in San Diego last Christmas that seemed worth while to consider here. Daily on the radio and in the newspapers there were plans about carrying Christmas remembrances to elderly people alone in the world or without funds to provide the extra niceties that make Christmas what it is—the happiest season in the year.

San Diego residents were asked to buy new gifts or to donate articles they had received last Christmas or sometime during the year that they either didn't want or hadn't used, Mrs. Barkham said. Volunteers to deliver the Christmas cheer were sought over radio and she said the response was tremendous.

In answer to "Couldn't something like that be done in Lubbock?" we could only say that it is certainly possible if someone or an organization will take charge. You couldn't get very far without organization. Although we haven't asked DeWitt Landis, manager of KFYO, we feel sure the Lubbock station would assist in putting the plan across if someone will take over and get the names and addresses of the needy ones and also provide a place where gifts could be brought and get transportation for the deliveries.

What do you think of it? We'd like to have opinions.

DESK KIT—If you go directly from the office to your show or dinner date, you'll appreciate an emergency kit kept in your top desk drawer. In addition to soap, a towel and make-up, it should contain nail polish and remover, cleansing cream, face tissues, powder and a comb.

Such reserve items as a pair of stockings, clean gloves and a freshly laundered handkerchief all wrapped in tissue paper are worthwhile.

Budgeting Lecture Given For Wives

"Learn How to Plan Family Budgets" was the subject discussed by Mrs. Mary Ann Duke Tuesday afternoon at the second of a series of lectures being offered for wives whose veteran husbands are attending Texas Technological college. The meeting was at St. John's Methodist church. Mrs. Duke teaches home and family life education at Tech.

Mrs. Duke stated, "Planning is not a financial cure-all because the best planning in the world can only stretch limited funds so far, but planning can help insure that one's income will be used to the best possible advantage and in accordance with his own considered judgment." Continuing she said, "Budgeting can result in better balanced expenditures, provide protection against impulsive spending and make it easier to put funds aside for emergencies and future needs."

Next Tuesday at 3 p. m. in Annex G of the Tech home economics building, Mrs. Duke will speak on "Getting the Most from Your Food Dollar." The nursery at St. John's Methodist church will be open for children of the women.

Programs On World Happenings, Authors, Heroes, Delinquents Are Given Tuesday

Club members and visitors were present for the regularly scheduled fourth Tuesday programs of study and federated clubs. A number of clubs had guest speakers to discuss world affairs, war experiences and delinquency.

In a discussion of "Juvenile Delinquency" for Sorosis club in the home of Mrs. Dan A. Blair, 2915 Twenty-first, Mrs. Nancy Green, policewoman, said that in Lubbock's expansion program, plans for a local home for delinquents should be made. She explained that to put the problem children in a home rather than a jail would be a much better corrective measure. Mrs. Green reported that the Lubbock police department has dealt with more than 1300 juvenile delinquents this year. She suggested that the clubs of the city push this home project.

Attending the meeting were Mesdames W. P. Clement, D. D. Cross, W. R. Dorsey, C. R. Hurmence, J. C. Levens, G. W. McCleary, Sim O'Neal, C. Y. Partain, J. B. Peters, Rufus Rush, C. H. Smith, A. T. Stewart, J. W. Wallace, and two new members, Mesdames H. G. Gizzelle and W. P. Books.

Important events of the recent inter-America conference held in Mexico City were related by Mrs. D. M. Davis at a meeting of Athenaeum club in the S. T. Hodges home at 2204 Twenty-fourth. She explained that the Monroe doctrine had been applied to Argentina; thereby denying her the right to be represented at the conference.

Mrs. O. C. Southall presented a chart to the group which showed the plan for world organization made at the San Francisco Peace conference. She stated to the members that this plan has accomplished little because it has not been perfected. The speaker also spoke on the atomic bomb meeting attended by President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee, and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Twenty members attended.

FDR Said "Sold" On Possibility Of A-Bomb As Early As 1939

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—The Late President Roosevelt became interested in the possibility of an atomic bomb as early as the autumn of 1939, a witness declared today in the first open hearing of the Senate atomic energy committee.

The witness, Alexander Sachs of New York, said he carried the news of the latest scientific developments to the President.

After the conversation at the White House Oct. 11, 1939, Sachs said Mr. Roosevelt called in his secretary, General Edwin M. (Pa) Watson and told him: "This needs action."

Sachs said he long had been interested, as a layman, in theoretical physics and was a friend of numerous scientists, including Dr. Albert Einstein. Acting as their spokesman, he arranged to apprise the President of the latest developments in uranium experiments.

Job To Develop Atom

He said he informed the chief executive "that I was convinced there was sub-atomic energy all around us and that it was our job to develop it, and see that it was not all used to blow our neighbors up."

He then quoted the President as having said:

"Alex, what you're after is to see that the Nazis don't blow us up."

Sachs said the potentialities of the atomic bomb were "very much in mind of the President" and that he left him with a copy of a letter written by Einstein on the subject Aug. 2, 1939.

Einstein's letter described the new phenomenon which had resulted from recent eperiments, and said he suspected uranium could be turned into a new source of energy in the near future. The refugee scientist recommended that American experimental work in the field be speeded up.

Chairman McMahon (D-Conn) said during the day his special Senate committee intends to proceed slowly in an effort to insure "that atomic energy becomes a blessing to mankind and not a scourge."

McMahon issued this statement at the opening of public hearings by the 11-man atomic energy committee, charged with studying all legislation dealing with the war-found power.

Said McMahon:

"The release of atomic energy is certain to affect every phase of our life. Like the discovery of steam and of electricity, this may well hold the promise of tremendous benefits to mankind. It is essential that we exercise the best judgment we are capable of in order to insure that atomic energy becomes a blessing to mankind and not a scourge."

GI's Foreign Brides To Start Over Soon

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP) — As many as 100,000 G. I.'s may have married girls in foreign lands.

This top estimate was disclosed today, but no officials wanted to guess how many of the brides eventually will come to this country to live.

So far, however, 22,000 already have applied for permission.

Starting in January, from 6,000 to 8,000 G. I. brides are scheduled to enter the United States each month.

The state department estimated—and emphasized that it was purely an estimate—that 60,000 G. I.'s may have married English girls: That 5,000 to 15,000 soldiers took brides on the European continent, and from 20,000 to 25,000 married Australian or New Zealand girls.

Stevenson Suggests Method Of Stopping Decrease In Deer

AUSTIN, Nov. 27. (UP)—Back from a hunting trip, Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today offered a remedy for reported decrease in size of deer. He believed that only bucks with eight or more horn points be killed.

The governor did not agree with the theory of some sportsmen that the smaller deer are due to poorer grazing conditions, nor that the remedy was to permit the killing of does for a time.

"Some ranches for years have had a rule that no buck with less than eight points may be killed," Stevenson said. "In those places the deer are not diminishing in size. If there is a surplus of does they should be trapped and be sent to areas where there is a shortage."

Another theory that increased sheep and goat grazing was taking forage that once sustained deer is not borne out, Stevenson said. Where there still are large deer there are the largest goat herds, he said.

Present law prohibits killing does. A lawful buck must have two prongs.

The value of farm lands and buildings in Missouri in 1940 was $1,167,302,598.

Subsidy For U. S. Sheep Growers Urged As Ten-Day Hearing Ends

By TEX EASLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—A subsidy for American sheep growers was recommended today by textile manufacturers as a Senate special wool committee concluded a 10-day hearing on problems of the industry.

The proposal that growers be paid a subsidy to enable them to compete with low-cost foreign wool production came from Arthur Besse, New York, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, and Col. C. F. H. Johnson, president of Botany Worsted mills, Passaic, N. J.

Policies Criticised

Sharp criticism of the administration's foreign trade policies was voiced by Johnson. He declared that this government is passively looking on while the British government acts vigorously to get its woolen products on to the American market.

Declaring it is impossible to sell domestic wools or wool products in the foreign markets, Johnson said:

"Try to break into Britain's domestic markets and those of its colonies or its world markets, and you will find arrayed to protect them the whole strength of the empire from the foreign office down—and don't forget that included in what they call their foreign market is ,this United States of America.

"Contrast that with our own government's policy during the past few years and you will find exactly the opposite policy."

Comment On Trade

Senator Walsh (D-Mass), commenting later on views expressed by the two witnesses, declared that it is apparent that the theory of some governmental leaders is that nothing shall be done to interfere with the wishes of other countries regarding foreign trade, because it might lead to ill feelings and consequently to war.

He added that it is a "dangerous policy" which considers that no subsidies should be paid to American producers, simply because that would enable them to survive against the competition of countries with lower standards of living.

Chairman O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) said that the committee will review the record of the hearings before making any recommendations.

German Prussia May Be Cut Up, Is Report

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 27. (AP)—A State department official predicted today that German Prussia, home of the militaristic Junkers, will be partitioned.

"Present developments indicate clearly that Prussia is to be broken into a number of autonomous states will probably survive in modified form as constituent units of a new federal union," said James W. Riddelberger, chief of the division of central European affairs.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Kansas City council on world affairs he stressed that Germany itself "is to be maintained for the present as an entity but the administration of affairs is to be directed toward the 'decentralization of the political structure and the development of local responsibility.'"

Noting that the State department "has often been accused of having no Germany policy," Riddelberger reviewed the Potsdam declaration and the government directive to General Eisenhower as evidence of a policy which it had tried to make conform "as well as possible with the consensus of informed opinion."

Allied occupation of Germany will last "as may be necessary" to carry out Allied objectives, he said, while Germany's economy is being "systematically decentralized."

Wheeler Opposes UNO Plan, Says It Would Force War With Soviet

By WILLIAM R. SPEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27—Senator Wheeler (D-Mont) told his colleagues today that if the United Nations already were organized to stop aggression "you would be compelled to go to war with Russia."

He opposed a bill outlining the terms of American participation in the United Nations organization and urged instead "a real peace conference" to bring about disarmament, abolition of conscription and international control of the atomic bomb.

Second Day Of Debate

It was the Senate's second day of debate on the measure and it was Wheeler's day. He read a speech four hours long contending that hope for the UNO was dim, that the U. S. was "appeasing" Russia, and that present policies were leading to another war.

"We have so degraded the democracy for which we fought," he said, "that, when brought to the bar of judgment, it will be found a harlot that has been whistled off the streets of chaos."

The debate was a contrast to those of pre-war days on the neutrality act, lend-lease and other international policies. The visitors' and press galleries were sparsely attended. Frequently no more than ten senators were on the floor.

Connally, Vandenberg

Of these, Senators Connally (D-Tex) and Vandenberg (R-Mich), members of the U. S. delegation to the San Francisco conference, provided most of the challenges to Wheeler's arguments.

Connally mimicked opposition complaints about the UNO.

"Let's do something about it," he shouted.

Vandenberg, agreeing with Wheeler on his recital of wrongs allegedly done to smaller nations by Russia, declared that he saw "no hope on earth" of remedying them "except to implement the United Nations charter."

It was then that Wheeler remarked:

"If the United Nations organization had a definition of aggression today, and you were going to stop aggression, you would be compelled to go to war with Russia."

Doesn't Favor War

In reply to questions from Connally, however, Wheeler said he would not favor going to war with Russia. This evoked another bit of mimicry from Connally. He drew a word caricature of Wheeler saying to the Soviets:

"Don't do that—if you do that I ain't going to like it."

"Suppose Russia said they'd do it anyway?" Connally then said sharply. "What would you have done—fight, or not?"

Wheeler explained that all he wanted was that it be made clear to Russia that "you can't do that with our approval."

Wheeler inquired whether the UNO was going to act to fulfill the principles of the Atlantic charter and safeguard the rights of small nations, and Connally gave the answer:

"When it is organized, it ought to take the charter drawn up at San Francisco and live up to the obligations assumed by the delegates there. I assume when it is organized it will live up to the terms of the charter."

NAZIS ARE OUSTED

FRRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 27. (AP) — The American Military government said today that more than 141,000 Nazis or sympathizers had been ousted under an order forbidding them to hold supervisory or influential positions.

Mysterious Calls On Death Bring Warning

A person representing himself to be a "colonel calling from Dallas," who has telephoned four Lubbock women, three of them widows, within the last ten days to report that "your son has been killed in action overseas," has been warned by police.

Officials reminded that two Texas Tech students had been jailed briefly in recent days in connection with investigation that brought admissions of having turned in false ambulance and police alarms.

"The same can happen if this latest practice is continued," it was announced.

No Such Calls Placed

It also was learned that at least one other agency was investigating the "colonel from Dallas," and that it had been determined that no such calls were placed in Dallas.

"Some crackpot or worse is likely to find himself in pretty deep if he is caught at this business," a detective working on the case said. "Two of those calls were last night—and the "colonel knew something about the persons he was calling. That much could be determined, and the fact may help in establishing his eventual identity.

"Actually, the public itself should be reminded of this fact; That the War or Navy department always informs the nearest of kin by telegram—before the news of the death of a serviceman is announced to other persons. Pay no attention to such unauthorized reports."

Although Nevada has been in the Union more than 80 years, only two native Nevadans have served in the U. S. Senate—Sen. Pat McCarran and Rep. Berkeley Bunker, who was appointed to fill an unexpired term after the death of Sen. Key Pittman.

Texas Claimed Using Mixed Up System On Pardons, Paroles

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Frequently in the solution of a crime, it develops that the perpetrator was a convict under parole, or a pardoned convict. This has led to frequent outspoken criticism of the state's parole system. Just what this system is, and how it came to be, is described and discussed by those in closest touch with it in a series of stories, the first of which follows).

By MARY L. KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Nov. 27—During the past eight years nearly 15,000 men and women in Texas have been paroled from the penitentiary under a system which is not precisely legal.

This condition results from the fact that Texas in 1936 created a board of pardons and paroles by a constitutional amendment, but the legislature has never finished the job by passing enabling laws. The present board of pardons and paroles is operating under old laws applying to the former system.

System Said Working

That only an average of seven per cent of all those freed have broken parole since 1936 is proof, say defenders of the system, that its basic idea is good although the mechanics of administration may be far from perfect.

Police and sheriffs and other law enforcers who deal with the seven percent who break parole are saying the system should work better than it does, or suggesting it should be overhauled.

Plan Is Explained

As originally chartered, the parole system anticipated:

1. Transfer of unrestrained pardon power from the governor's office by constitutionally-establishing a three-member board named by the governor, the chief justice of the supreme court, and the presiding judge of the court of criminal appeals.

2. Clarification of the adult suspended sentence and revision of all laws governing release from prison.

3. A scientific classification, rehabilitation and educational system within the penitentiary as the cornerstone of parole.

4. A statewide system of volunteer parole workers to help parolees find satisfactory jobs and environment, as well as keep tab on them through the probationary period.

5. Cooperation of police in helping parole workers keep the ex-convict on the straight and narrow.

Eight years after adoption of this basic plan, only a few of its requirements have been written into the law.

The parole system will be discussed in more detail in subsequent stories. Tomorrow: Since the men paroled come out of the penitentiary, how does the Texas system prepare men for parole?

the 10th Airforce bringing transports and the 14th Airforce fighters.

The Chinese press said a few weeks ago that the United States had decided to hand over 1,300 planes to the central government, but in Washington the War department at that time countered that no such number had been decided on.

Chiang's Plans Unknown

Just how Generalissimo Chiang planned to use the planes in his announced all-out campaign to restore order and unity in China remained to be seen. His ground forces were pushing ahead vigorously into Manchuria, scheduled under the terms of the Sino-Russian agreement to be evacuated soon by the Soviet troops presently occupying it.

Chungking newspapers said Nationalst forces had advanced 40 miles along the Peiping-Mukden railroad to Kowpangtze, 90 miles from Mukden. No opposition by Chinese Communists was reported.

The influential daily Ta Pao added that the Communists had withdrawn from Changchun, the Manchurian capital from which Chinese central government officials fled.

Etheridge was enlisted in the army three years ago at Los Angeles, Calif., and expects to go there for his discharge.

Vinson Holds Hope Of Balanced Budget

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 27. (AP)—Secretary of the Treasury Fred M. Vinson said here today the national budget may be nearly balanced in 1847.

Vinson also said in a press conference that the country is faced with "every element of inflation."

"I have no doubt that if there are no unprecedented conditions," he said, "we will be pretty close to a balanced budget in the fiscal year of 1947."

Vinson said the national debt is about $265,000,000,000 now and will be increased by about ten billions by next June.

Nuernberg Trials

secretly issued plans to build a great armament industry.

Many of the documents presented by Alderman were signed or initialed by Adm. Erich Raeder, who furiously scribbled notes in the prisoners' dock as the prosecutor built up his case to prove cold-blooded and deliberate aggression.

Other parts of Nazi documents, which were made public but were not read into the record, disclosed that the German Army had greatly overestimated the number of Allied divisions in England in November, 1943, that the Allies had underestimated the German strength in the west, and that the Germans had underestimated Russian strength.

In one of these documents, Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, a defendant, disclosed that the Nazis planned three campaigns which never were carried out—an invasion of England, the capture of Gibraltar and seizure of Iceland and the Azores.

Jodl said the lack of German transportation and the strength of the RAF caused the German high command to abandon its plans to attempt a cross-channel attack on England.

Jodl also confessed that in November, 1943, six months before the Normandy landing, the Germans did not know where the Allies would strike the continent—in the Mediterranean, Norway or France.

Chinese Not To Stop UNRRA Relief Trucks

SHANGHAI, Nov. 27. (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has ordered his military commanders not to molest trucks carrying UNRRA supplies into Communist areas, T. F. C. Tsiang, head of the Chinese National Relief and Rehabilitation administration, told newsmen today.

Tsiang said he had talked with Gen. Chou En-Lai, Communist leader, in Chungking and had been promised the fullest cooperation in getting medical and other supplies to all parts of China.

He declared the UNRRA program was drawn up with the idea of supplying all qualified people, without regard to race or political belief.

back to Washington from Chungking, he said, some of them were given posts as his supervisors in the State department and some were sent as advisors to the supreme commander in Asia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Side With Communists

"In such positions," he said, "most of them have continued to side with the Communist armed party and at times with the imperialistic bloc against American policy."

The United States, he said, should avoid lining up with any "predatory idealogy." He said it should support revision of the United Nations charter to "make it democratic."

As other remedial steps, he urged that the light of "factual publicity" be thrown on the "secrecy" surrounding the State department, and that the government reorganize its "policy-making machinery beginning at the lowest official levels."

The White House indicated that Hurley's resignation and statement came as a surrise to it.

State Dearment Surprised

The State department said it was surprised at Hurley's resignation. Michael J. McDermott, special assistant to the secretary state, told reporters that Hurley had sought to resign yesterday, but that Secretary Byrnes urged him to change his mind and go back to China, and he agreed to do so.

Secretary of State Byrnes called on President Truman this afternoon, and the State-War-Navy coordinating committee which largely determines U. S. policy in the Far East, also met.

Most members of Congress who were approached for reaction said they wanted to study the statement further.

Vastly Improved Street Lighting Plans Set Up In Bond Issue Here

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another of a series of articles on the city's five-year expansion program on which taxpayers will vote on Dec. 11. An over-all bond issue of $5,894,000, offered in 14 different propositions, will be offered for approval or rejection on that date.

By C. W. RATLIFF
Avalanche Staff Writer

The City of Lubbock is far below the average American cities of its size in respect to both quantity and quality of street lighting.

An attempt will be made to remedy this deficiency within the next five years should taxpayers of Lubbock approve proposition No. 11 in the $5,894,000 bond issue election on Dec. 11. The proposition covering street lighting calls for an expenditure of $245,000 for this purpose.

More Than 51 Miles Planned

The five-year program would provide for more than 51 miles of additional street lighting in Lubbock, of which more than 70 per cent of which would be in residential areas. Four and one-half miles of whiteway in the main business district and seven miles in secondary business areas would be provided under the program.

Nine miles of lights would be added on major traffic routes and six miles on secondary traffic routes. More than 25 miles of strictly residential street lights would also be erected under the program.

Lubbock Below Average

A recent survey of the street lighting situation in Lubbock revealed that Lubbock has a total of only 54 lumens per capita while the average progressive American city has from 175 to 200 lumens per capita. Total lumens per mile in Lubbock is 21,475 compared to 50,000 to 120,000 lumens in other cities. Total population per street lamp in Lubbock is 63 compared to 30 to 40 for progressive cities.

The average annual per capita investment for street lighting in this country is approximately $1; and on a mileage basis, approximate $443 per mile for the group of cities ranging between 25,000 and 50,000 population. As compared to this national average, the annual street lighting budget in Lubbock approximates only 31 cents per capita—based on a population of about 40,000.

Advantages Are Cited

On the basis of 100 miles (estimated) of improved streets and highways in Lubbock, the present street lighting budget results in only about $122 per mile of street, about 28 per cent of the country-wide average per mile for cities of this size.

The safeguarding and acceleration of vehicular traffic flow; affording of a maximum of nocturnal protection and convenience to pedestrians; stimulation to retail trade throughout business districts; general enhancing of abutting values; direct aid to the fire and police departments; a positive impetus toward effective general municipal advertising; and creation and promotion of civic pride and community well-being are outstanding advantages of a system of modern street illumination.

Cuts Down Accidents

An ever-increasing amount of authentic accident data and experience proves, beyon' any doubt, that properly applied street and highway illumination is the most effective method—so far devised—for guaranteeing a maximum of nocturnal protection to both vehicular and pedestrian traffic. These data and records, from scores of progressive American communities, conclusively prove that approximately 50 per cent of all night traffic accidents and fatalities can and are being prevented by means of modern street lighting systems.

Under the city's proposed lighting development program, use of both and incandescent lights would be made in the street lighting extensions, the sodium lights being planned for the traffic routes, both major and secondary.

Plan New Traffic Lights

The development program also calls for a complete new traffic light system for Lubbock with the lights being changed from the present type to the three-light system which provides for an amber caution light, warning drivers of an impending traffic flow change.

A careful study will be made of the city's major thoroughfares under the plan and lights installed at various points to aid in controling vehicular traffic.

U. S. Forces Destroy Poison Gas In Japan

KYOTO, Nov. 27. (AP) — Sixth Army troops racing against cold weather are destroying more than 3,500 tons of poison gas—enough to drench New York City—discovered on the small island of Okuna, 35 miles from Kure naval base.

Lt. Col. Julian Newlander, Washington, D. C., chemical officer of the 41st division, estimated the task would require at least two months. The lethal chemicals are being dumped in the ocean five miles from the nearest land.

Troops are trying to finish the job by December when cold weather will freeze some of the gasses.

OPA Orders Further Slash In Newsprint

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP) — The Civilian Production administration, acting to bring deliveries in line with supply, today ordered newsprint inventories cut below previous ceilings by Dec. 31.

Under an amendment to the newsprint limitation order, L-240, newspaper publishers may not have more than a 25 days' supply of print paper on hand and in transit as of Dec. 31, if they are located in the central and northeastern states. The inventory ceiling heretofore was a 30-days' supply.

The limit for publishers in western and southern states is a 45-day inventory, as compared with 30 days previously.

The Civilian Production administration said the cut is necessary to fulfill an agreement with the Canadian newsprint administration. This requires that accumulated newsprint over-orders from United States customers during the last three months of this year would be eliminated as of Jan. 1.

These over orders amount to approximately 30,000 tons, CPA said.

Ushers of newsprint other than newspaper publishers must bring their inventories on Dec. 31 down to 28 per cent of the tonnage lawfully used during the current quarter.

Westerner Cagers To Play Levelland Thursday Night

Coach Marlin "Shorty" Hayhurst will get his first look at his Lubbock Westerner basketball team in action Thursday night when the Lubbock five invades the lair of the Levelland Lobos for the season's first game at 7 o'clock.

Coach Hayhurst has been working with a squad of about a dozen boys this week, with flu keeping several boys from coming out for the team.

There will be both an A and B game on the schedule.

Hayhurts also announced that the Lobos will return the game in Lubbock next Tuesday night. Hayhurst also announced that a home and home series with the Abernathy Antelopes have been booked for Dec. 7 and 11, playing at Abernathy first. Both A and B squads will play on all these dates.

Hayhurst said that he would start Bob Crawford at one forward, but was undecided about the other. Either Gerald Davis of Jerry Thrush likely will get the nod. Verdell Turner, only returning letterman, will be at center. The guards will be Jimmy Clark and Don Finley.

Amarillo To Honor Officials, Coaches

Howard "Bull' Lynch, coach of the Amarillo Golden Sandies, issued an invitation to South Plains coaches and officials to attend the party planned for next Tuesday night at Amarillo by the Panhandle-Plains Coaches and Officials association.

A dinner at the Amarillo Country club has been planned for the meeting, with gride officials and coaches from throughout West Texas expected to be on hand. The dinner will cost $1.75 per plate.

Lynch urged that all those intending to attend the meeting make their reservations with him by Friday.

MARSHALL IS OUT

MARSHALL, Tex., Nov. 27. (AP)—A group of Marshall baseball fans announced following a meeting here last night that Marshall will be unable to enter the East Texas Baseball League until 1947.

A VETERAN RETURNS

Having served in every branch of our Armed Forces—and with every unit—and having been through every action in every theatre from Guadalcanal and El Alamein to Berlin and Tokyo, V-B's are (gradually) being Honorably Discharged from the Service and will soon be home—greeting friends, old and new, at their favorite Cigar Stores.

It was GREAT being away with the boys! . . . But it's GRAND to be coming back with them!!

Quail Season Opens Saturday

Quail season opens December 1 in both North and South zones of Texas and extends through Jan. 16, according to a release through the local office of the Texas Game, Fish and Oyster commission.

Hunters may use shotguns no larger than a 10 gauge, and guns must be plugged so they will hold no more than three shells, the report said. The bag limit for hunters is 12 birds a day and not more than 36 a week. Possession limit is also 36.

Possession limit west of the Pecos, however, is only 24 and Fool or Mearns quail can not be killed.

Andrews, Duvall, Garza, Scurry (Precinct 3), and Terry counties are closed.

Hunters 17-years of age or older must have hunting licenses when hunting outside their home county.

Duck hunters were reminded that the federal law for hunting migratory birds says that hunters may start shooting 30 minutes before sunrise and must stop at sunset. Sunrise in Lubbock for Dec. 1 is 7:34 o'clock and for Dec. 2 at 7:35 o'clock. Sunset for the two days is 5:38 p. m.

Bowl Games Ponder Question Of Tieups

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27. (AP)—There's plenty of ammunition for both sides this season in the perennial argument about whether a New Year's day bowl football game gains or loses from a tieup with one of the college conferences.

The Rose Bowl is committed to play the Western Conference champion, and thus will wind up with a two or three-times beaten home team against mighty Alabama.

The Sugar Bowl however, stayed clear of the entanglement with the Southeastern Conference, and as a result lost Alabama, the year's top prize.

Cotton Bowl sponsors, allied with the Southwestern Conference, have watched the Sugar Bowl grab off Oklahoma A. and M. and St. Mary's—ranking eligibles outside of Alabama—while three Texas teams have been fighting it out for the championship and the right to be host at Dallas Jan. 1.

The question of a conference alignment is almost acute now at Miami, where the Orange Bowl is under pressure to match the non-affiliated University of Miami against Holy Cross, already selected as the invader.

The Orange Bowl always has struck with the Southeastern Conference without any official treaty, and some spectacular games have resulted.

Money still talks in landing the teams with no commitments.

Alabama didn't waste much time choosing the Rose Bowl offer, with a purse of about $100,000, over the Sugar Bowl, which pays each team about $70,000.

The annual rainfall in Santa Fe, N. M., ranges from 9 to 22 inches, with an average of 14 inches.

District 6-A Picks All-District Eleven

BROWNFIELD, Nov. 27 (Spcl.)—Both 1944 All-District guards in District 6-A, Gene Streety of Denver City's champion Mustangs and Charles Everett of the Seminole Indians, were renamed here tonight as the only repeating boys on the All-District eleven.

Two boys named on the second team last year were back on the honor roll for 1945, one moving up to the first team. It was Grayson Tate, the sparkplug in the smooth working machine that Coach Wilson Head piloted into the bi-district play, who moved up from the second team to take one of the backfield posts on the first team this year.

Constant Hood, the Seminole star, was back at a second team berth this year. Hood is the sole survivor of the 1943 regional champions of the Seminole school.

Champs Place Four

The Champion Denver City club placed four men on the All-District eleven, more than any other team. Andrews Mustangs, runners-ups to the Denver City Ponies, and Seminole, considered by many as the outstanding team in the late season play, each placed three men on the first team, while Tahoka's Bulldogs claimed the eleventh spot.

Besides Streety and Tate, the Denver City club placed Bob Edwards, an end, and Calvin Trice, a tackle, on the first team.

Jack Young, the spark plug of the Andrews club, also held down one of the backfield spots. Other Andrews stars on the first team were Hudgeons at end and Nixon at tackle.

Fred Blair, the big 200 pound fullback star of the Seminole Indians, Everett and Jamiel Aryain, center, were the three members of Coach John Burns' Seminole eleven.

Bragg Eleventh Man

Buddy Bragg, the Tahoka speedster, was the eleventh man, and the lone Tahoka star on the first team honor roll.

On the second team, Denver City named Bob Miller in the backfield and Reed at guard. Andrews placed Stewart in the backfield. The other backs were Hood and Harris of O'Donnell. Seminole also placed Loyd Lunceford at end and Jack Ridens at tackle. Jerry Edwards of Tahoka manned the other end. Woodward of Sundown of Sundown held down the other tackle slot. Post placed two men on the second team, rounding out the honor roll with Thomas at guard and Duren at center.

Plans were set at the meeting here tonight for the coming basketball season, with the championship tournament for the south half of District 5-A play (made up of football district 6-A) set for the week-end of Feb. 9, with the site still undecided.

Jones And Hood Get Top Wrestling Spot

Ivan Jones and the Hood will square off tonight in the feature event of the weekly grunt and groan show at the Lubbock Horse and Mule Auction arena with the curtain raiser scheduled for 8:30 o'clock.

The two light heavies have been showing their wares in the local ring for several weeks, and the feud tonight is reported to have reached a new high after some alleged remarks made by the masked grappler about Jones, and to which Jones took exception to, and intends to avenge in tonight's brawl.

The main event is scheduled for the best two out of three falls, with a two hour time limit.

Two more familiar figures will be back for the semi-final of the card, a one hour time limit scrap pairing Milt Olsen and Charley Trijo.

A special event, with a 45 minute time limit, will start the show, the curtain raiser pitting Tony Ross with Gorilla Poggi, a pair seen last week on the team tag matches.

Promoter Pete Hallas also announced that in case of cold weather, stoves have been installed at the arena to provide comfort to the fans. Babe Ritchie is the referee. Tickets are on sale in Lubbock at the Busy Bee cafe.

PORKERS LOSE CAGER

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 27 (AP)—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks lost a likely basketball candidate today when Paul Anderson, Neosho, Mo., received his draft call for Dec. 5. He will not work out with the squad, Cage Mentor Eugene Lambert said.

Army Again Top Team Of Nation

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—It's Army again in the No. 1 spot in this week's Associated Press poll to determine the top football team in the nation.

The unbeaten and untied Cadets, who are favored to wind up their second successive perfect season by beating Navy on Saturday, were voted first by 80 of the 82 sportswriters who ballotted.

Tom Sptehenson of the Elkhart, Ind., Truth, voted for Indiana, and Harold Harris of the Knoxville, Tenn., News Sentinel, named Alabama. Stephenson said "Army and Navy are in a class by themselves, somewhere between the colleges and pros."

Altogether Army garnered 809 points to Navy's runnerup total of 604. Alabama, picked for the Rose Bowl, took over third place at 629 with Indiana, unbeaten but tied fourth at 584. Notre Dame placed fifth with 443.

The unbeaten and untied Oklahoma Aggies, named for the Sugar Bowl with St. Mary's, polled 358 points for sixth place. Michigan was seventh at 280, Pennsylvania 8th at 231, St. Mary's 9th at 221 and Texas tenth at 96.

Duke at 65; Ohio State 33; Holy Cross 29; Tulsa and Missouri 25 each; Southern California 22; Tennessee 21; Clemson 16; Columbia 12; and Virginia 8 made up the second ten.

Honorable mention went to North Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana State 4 each; Temple 3; Washington 2; and Wake Forest, Northwestern and Purdue, one each.

Dempsey Invited To Boss New York Arena

NEW YORK, Nov. 27. (U.P.) Jack Dempsey was considering today an invitation to become "head man" at a new indoor sports arena, seating 11,000, which is planned for mid-town Manhattan—to "buck" Madison Square Garden.

Representatives of the real estate firm which controls the property—near Radio City—discussed the proposition with ex-Commander Dempsey of the Coast Guard at a lengthy conference yesterday, his first day in civies.

Dempsey will have a final conference at Los Angeles late next month with representatives of the firm, which incidentally has extensive interests in the motion picture industry.

Max Waxman, Dempsey's business manager, described the site of the proposed arena like this: "It is a large plot of ground, back of the Roxy theater, between Sixth and Seventh avenues. It fronts on both 50th and 51st streets. It is occupied by a large automobile parking concern."

Denver Pioneers To Play Sun Bowl Tilt

EL PASO, Nov. 27. (U.P.) — The Pioneers of Denver university wearing their traditional crimson and gold, will clash with the New Mexico university Lobos New Year's day at El Paso, it was announced today.

Sun Carnival officials announced the acceptance of the bid for the post-season game by the Denver team, which last Saturday won its first clear-cut and undisputed Rocky Mountain Conference championship in 32 years.

The Lobos, one of the strongest teams that the Albuquerque school has fielded in many years, have lost one game this season, when they fell before the attack of Utah university 21 to 20, and last week they battled to a 6-6 tie with Texas Tech.

Following the game last week, Sun Carnival officials named New Mexico the home team for the bowl classic, and today filled the card for the tilt when they announced Denver's acceptance of the bid.

The recent hurricane in Florida caused only five per cent damage to the orange and grapefruit crop, and the trees showed very little damage.

Abernathy Cagers Eke By New Deal, 15-13

ABERNATHY, Nov. 27. (Special)—The Abernathy Antelopes launched the basketball season here tonight, nosing out a 15-13 victory over the New Deal High school five.

Harvey Lutrick paced the Antelopes with six points, but the high point man of the night was New Deal's Hall, who looped in 12 of his team's 13 points.

Santa Fe, N. M., oldest capital in the United States, is known as "the ancient city."

Air Policy Is Needed

Our Forces Must Be Bolstered

FORMULATION of a definite, long-range air policy should be undertaken without delay.

Just a few months ago we were secure in the knowledge that we had the most powerful air force that ever roared through the skies. But, the other day, we were shaken out of our complacency by the words of Gen. Ira Eaker, who said we had reached the point in demobilization where we were incapable of fighting an effective air war, and that by next Spring the destruction of the mightiest air force would be complete. Already, most of the experienced airmen have been released or are scheduled for early discharge; those remaining to man the planes are, for the most part, the less experienced.

The foregoing is not said to hint that the discharge of aerial combat veterans is not justified. On the contrary, it was a "must" that they be released as soon as they had compiled the necessary service, for they certainly had contributed their part. Rather, it is a reminder that we can become flaccid and impotent overnight without realizing it. Weakness can slip up on us very easily while we are occupied with the relief that the war is over, and the tasks of Reconversion.

It seems pertinent to suggest that congressional and Army higher-ups set about on the "re-tooling" of our air force machine as soon as feasible. It should be decided how many men are to be needed along with how many planes. Next, the most complete and efficient training program should be launched. While we may not need air power comparable to that of the war years, what we have must be nothing less than the best.

The Trouble In Iran

THE pro-Soviet revolt in Iran, nee Persia, is a natural outgrowth of what has gone on before in regard to that country. Since the early days of the century it has been the subject of conflict between Russia and Great Britain.

Before the war, Russia and Great Britain jockeyed for control of Iran, which meant for control of Iranian oil. Now, Russia seems to have the better position; that is, it seems to have gained some active followers. Presumably, this is because the rebels have seen emerge from the war a stronger Russia and a weaker Great Britain.

Prior to discovery of Iran's enormous oil reserves, Russia viewed the country as a stepping stone to India, while Great Britain saw it as a buffer state for India. In 1907, the two nations agreed to partition Iran, with the Russians' having a zone of influence in the north and the Britains a similar zone in the south, with a no-man's land in between. Britain eventually wrested control of all of Iran in 1919 by putting the screws on the Shah. But in 1921, Russia, with her feet on the ground following the upset of World war I, invaded and forced the Shah to abrogate the 1919 pact with Britain. Then, U. S. oil interests entered the game of push-and-pull, and from there on the Shah played off one great power against another.

Britain forced the Shah to abdicate in 1941 for his son. Soon afterward, the Allies occupied the country and, in September of 1943, Iran declared war on Germany and became a member of the United Nations.

In the following September, the "Big Three' met in Teheran and promised Iran postwar independence and sovereignty and economic aid during and after the war.

However, the smell of oil seems to have overpowered allegiance, particularly of Britain and Russia, to whatever pledges that might have been made. And so there is still another point of friction between the great powers. "The Iranian affair is rapidly approaching the critical stage," say United States officials. What to do about is? We don't know—perhaps no one does. We like to tell outselves that it is another growing pain.

Something New Is Added

PEOPLE of the United States in the near future may be eating as many mangoes as apples or oranges, or any other common fruit, as the results of experiments now being conducted in Central America by the United States Department of Agriculture and the United Fruit company.

The mango is not a native of the Americas, but grafted varieties are being propogated in the fertile, tropic soils of our South. The fruit company plans to bring the fruit to American markets by refrigerated boat.

Though the mango comes originally from India and the Andanan Isles, the experiment reveal that it is well adapted to Southern parts of the new world.

Like the pecan tree, the mango is both ornamental and utilitarian. It grows to a height of 30 or 40 feet and has a dense, spreading foliage.

The mango, according to its sponsors, tastes like something "between a plum and apple."

It sounds good, at least. .

Marshall's Report On The War

By Gen. George C. Marshall
Wartime Chief Of Staff

(This is the twelfth of 42 installments of material selected from General Marshall's report on the winning of World War II).

THE FINAL PHASES

DURING the withdrawal of troops for ANVIL, one American division, the 91st, had arrived to reinforce the Fifth Army. On 15 September a combat team of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force moved into the Fifth Army line in the Valley of the Serchio River. Before the end of autumn the entire Brazilian division was in the line. During this same period one of the Army's two Negro divisions, the 92d, which had reached Italy during the late summer and fall, was assigned to the IV Corps.

MARSHALL

The advances had brought General Alexander's Allied armies up against the 'Gothic Line," an elaborate transpeninsular defense system which the Germans had been preparing since early in the year. Despite the heavy diversion of troops to other theaters it was decided to launch another general offensive on 10 September for the purpose of breaking through the Apennines into the Po Valley. While the U. S. Fifth Army assaulted the Gothic Line frontally through the mountains, the British Eighth Army, now commanded by Lt. Gen. Sir R. L. McCreery attacked northwest from Rimini. This offensive involved our troops in some of the bitterest and most difficult fighting of the Italian campaign. The jagged Apennines and bad weather seemed almost insurmountable obstacles.

After three months of this costly but successful penetration of the Gothic Line, the Allied command prepared in December to drive on Bologna, but pressure against the western flank of the Fifth Army and diversion of Eighth Army units to meet the political crisis in Greece disrupted these plans. Meanwhile the Germans had time to refit and strengthen their forces and establish a new defensive position.

On 12 December 1944 Field Marshal Alexander replaced Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson as Supreme Commander in the Mediterranean area. General Wilson was promoted to Field Marshal and senior representative in Washington of the British Chiefs of Staff. Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark moved up to command the Allied armies in Italy and Lt. Gen. Lucian K. Truscott assumed command of the Fifth Army.

Secret Reinforcements

In January the Fifth Army was reinforced by the 10th U. S. Mountain Division which gave a fine exhibition of battle efficiency on its initial employment. During the winter, three Italian combat groups entered the line of the Eighth Army. These small gains were more than offset by a February directive from the Combined Chiefs of Staff which ordered the transfer of five British and Canadian divisions to the European Theater. The directive was later amended to send three to France, one to the eastern Mediterranean, and retain one division in Italy for possible use in the impending final battle. This movement of more than 125,000 combat troops was accomplished in complete secrecy and gave Marshal Montgomery's Northern Army Group on the Rhine additional power to the surprise of the enemy.

During the fall and winter months, the Tactical and Strategic Air Forces pounded away at communications over the Alps and in Northern Italy. With opposing ground forces so nearly equal in strength, the Air Forces represented our margin of advantage and made the maintenance of German forces in Northern Italy most difficult while our own was unmolested. In addition, Italy-based aircraft assisted the Yugoslav patriots. Closely coordinated with the attacks staged from Britain, the Strategic Air Forces struck heavy blows at oil and rail targets in Austria and southern Germany, averaging weekly bombings of nearly 4,000 tons.

Ground action on the Italian front in the late winter was limited to small but important advances in the mountains southwest of Bologna. The strategic aircraft kept up the pressure on communications and industrial targets beyond the Alps, reaching as far north as Berlin.

On 9 April, General Clark's Fifteenth Army Group launched its spring drive, known as operation GRAPE SHOT. The Eighth Army led off with an attack across the Senio River west of Ravenna. In spite of unusually heavy air and artillery preparation, the offensive met stiff opposition from the German Tenth Army in approaching the Argenta Gap. Five days later, after the enemy had presumably had time to dispose himself to meet the Eighth Army attack, the II and IV Corps of the Fifth Army threw their weight into the offensive from positions in the Apennines south and southwest of Bologna.

Resistance Collapses Everywhere

After a week of heavy fighting our troops broke into the Po Valley and entered Bologna from the west and south. At the same time, Polish forces of the Eighth Army entered the city from the east. The Fifth Army columns beyond the city swept up the great highway leading to Piacenza—the ancient Via Emilia—and, by-passing Modena to the east, drove toward the Po south of Mantua. Pursuing the disorganized enemy to the river, bridgeheads were quickly established across the Po on 23 April. The Eighth Army met determined resistance in Ferrara, but by the 25th had crossed the Po in force. On the same day, our forces on the Ligurian Coast captured La Spezia with its naval base. The German armies were virtually destroyed south of the Po, the bulk of their equipment being either destroyed or abandoned.

The final week of the war in Italy brought wide advances throughout northern Italy. Bridging many rivers that flow south from the Alps, the Eighth Army swept northeast along the Adriatic coastal plain, liberating Padua, Venice, and Treviso. While Fifth Army infantry and mountain troops drove into the foothills of the Alps along the Brenner route, other armored columns and motorized infantry raced up the valley of the Po and by 29 April had reached the great city of Milan.

On every side effective support was received from the Italian patriots. After seizing Genéo, our Ligurian forces drove beyond Savona to make contact with the French. Advance elements of the 442d Japanese-American regiment reached Turin. Resistance collapsed everywhere; more than 160,000 prisoners were taken by the Allied armies. By the first of May, Eighth Army troops advancing on Trieste had made contact with Yugoslav partisans at Monfalcone. On 2 May 1945 the commander of the German armies in Northern Italy found it impossible to continue the bloody struggle and capitaulated.

The Italian triumph is a striking demonstration of the solidarity of the United Nations. Fighting under the Fifteenth Army Group, at some time during the Italian campaign, were Americans, British, Canadians, French, New Zealanders, South Africans, Poles, Indians, Brazilians, Italians, Greeks, Moroccans, Algerians, Arabs, Goums, Senegalese, and a brigade of Jewish soldiers.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich 'Brandeis

WE went to a housewarming a few evenings ago.

A friend of ours had bought a dilapidated place over in New Jersey and by the use of excellent taste, a good architect and many thousands of dollars, had converted this hundred-year old farmhouse into a lovely modern mansion.

Yet in spite of its modernity, the house retained all the charm and mellowness which can only come with many years of being, and my wife and I agreed that our friends should have very many happy years in it.

BRANDEIS

And yet — we were wondering.

We, too, have a remodeled old house, nothing as elaborate as our friends', but charming and well aged, like a good old wine.

But old houses, like old people, have their ailments, too.

Those wide-board floors which so many people dream about, creak and ideal nests for moths moths and flies to rear their young.

Winter is coming and we hear squirrels and field mice house-hunting in the attic and the chimney.

Our water is a rich chocolate eventually turning into tea-color and then to watery clearness—but it is a definite sign that the plumbing isn't quite what it should be.

There is a leak somewhere in the roof and I am afraid that I'll have to have it reshingled next spring.

So I was quite interested when I read a story this morning about those new prefabricated houses that will go into production next spring. There was a picture with the story. It looked like a cute little colonial affair and, when covered with climbing vines, isn't going to look bad at all.

This is how it works, according to the story:

"Forty-eight big pieces make each house, and the hurry-up schedule includes trucking them to your building site. Among the pieces are side walls, shingled outside and complete with windows, and inside insulated and wired for electricity, except for the final connecting work.

"Floors are lowered into place, already waxed and polished. Roof sections come ready-made to the last shingle. All these parts fit together with the minimum of trouble and without a single crack to betray their ready-made origin.

"So far it has kept five men busy for four hours setting up the house's main structure. Another crew now takes over for a few days for the inside touches.

"There is a furnace, burning oil or gas, with a winter and summer air conditioning attachment, an electric range and complete bathroom equipment. The price is from $3,000 to $7,000 and you have your choice of wallpapers."

THERE is more to the story about garages, extra bathrooms and other extras available—but this is enough to give you an idea.

And with my wife downstairs, telling me that one of the kitchen faucets is leaking, I wonder whether it's such a bad idea, after all,

Capital Ponders Loans

British, Russian Pleas Studied

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

PRESIDENT TRUMAN and his State department aides are giving deep thought to a new and disturbing factor which beclouds their negotiations with the British for a postwar restoration loan to London of about five billion dollars Both groups are keeping silent on the question, but other interested parties do not feel bound by the same secrecy.

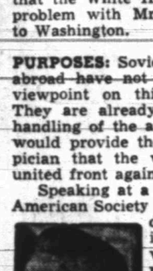

The belated realization is that if the United States makes such a grant to a foreign government committed to nationalization of key industries on an elaborate scale, it can hardly refuse or haggle over a similar advance to Russia Thus the present deal represents a test case which, if decided in favor of the British, will make it almost impossible to resist foreign demands totaling between twenty and 25 billions dollars.

This consideration, as well as the differences over the concessions which London should make in return for financial assistance explains the long delay in the current conversations it is understood that the White House discussed this phase of the problem with Mr. Attlee during his recent visit to Washington.

PURPOSES: Soviet spokesmen in this country and abroad have not hestitated to present a vigorous viewpoint on this delicate international matter. They are already smarting over Anglo-American handling of the atom, and financial discrimination would provide them with further ground for suspician that the western powers were forming a united front against their wartime Ally.

Speaking at a recent New York meeting of the American Society for Russian Relief, Inc., the president of the organization said that if England got the amount she wanted, "the American government and people should have enough sense and self-interest to make an even larger loan to the Soviet Union."

TUCKER

The Russo-American audience was also warned that they should favor an advance to the British "only provided that the five billion dollars is not partly to keep the American people in partnership with the imperialistic side of English life."

Incidentally, congressional spokesmen on Capital Hill raise the same objection to loans to either power, figuring that both our former Allies might use our funds for imperialistic purposes around the globe and in violation of the "Atlantic Charter."

FEAR: In this connection, however, our diplomatic negotiators face a dilemma.

Behind the scenes they may receive assurances that both England and Russia would spend the money on domestic reconstruction — factories, food, homes, agriculture etc.

But no self-respecting nation can make an open agreement on this score. By the same token, the borrowers say they cannot give us the right to examine their books periodically to ascertain where our money went.

Standing in line between the two members of the "Big Three" are the smaller countries — China, France, Belgium, Holland, Greece, certain Balkan and Scandinavian states They want approximately 10 billion dollars, possibly more, and they believe that they need assistance more than do our first two customers. Any discrimination against them will strengthen their fear that they must henceforth become poor relations of the "Big Three," as some already suspect.

Ironically, the Truman administration originally thought it could use its financial might and resources to build a peaceful and democratic world. Now it appears that we will make enemies, no matter what we do with the taxpayers' money.

"SCANDAL": The dawn of an extensive passenger-and-freight air era in domestic and foreign fields threatens to be as long-delayed as the age in which the atom will heat homes, propel automobiles, railroad trains and ships, operate vast industries and herald a three-day work week.

That disappointing conclusion is the settled opinion of observers at Washington who have looked behind the optimistic and gaudy announcements and prospectuses of certain aviation companies and government officials whose jobs depend on dangling this dream before the American people.

Indeed, certain unpublicized happenings and delays in this domain may precipitate a sensational congressional investigation. In view of complaints they have received, a group of senators and representatives suspect that, like the railroad and automobile industries in their early days, aviation has fallen a victim to the promoters and the politicians in Washington.

How long the "scandal" can be hushed up is a question which frightens the companies and individuals primarily responsible.

COPETITION: The Civil Aeronautics board, which has more than its share of political appointees, is partially responsible for the bursting of the bubble. It has held back the establishment of domestic feeder lines by its wrangles and sluggish action. It has permitted certain corporations with licenses for foreign routes to trade on their government grants and hamper operations overseas.

Here is the situation in the domestic field: Numerous companies have filed applications for licenses to serve different regions of the United States, such as the New England, North Central, Midcontinent, Rocky Mountain, Texas-Oklahoma, West Coast. When established, they will provide fast daily service to cities and towns from coast to coast.

The competition for these licenses is terrific, and much depends on CAB's decision.

BOTTLENECK: The construction of municipal airports, the hiring of men, the making of contracts for flying and ground equipment ,the issuance of local bonds etc.—all must wait upon CAB's final action.

Nevertheless, no contract has yet been awarded in any of these regional areas, although CAB's preliminary investigations and hearings began more than a year ago in some instances. It may be twelve months before even the framework for commercial flying will be thrown together because of this "bottleneck" at Washington.

The shenanigans in the foreign field, as set forth in letters to prominent members of Congress, constitute another serious problem that will be discussed in a forthcoming column.

TEXAS
By Gordon Shearer

AUSTIN: Some legislation for bus lines and public utilities patterned on the National Railway Labor act may be the outcome of strikers of Greyhound Bus Line drivers and electrical workers of the Lower Colorado River Authority.

Both strikes made the public chief sufferer.

Action by the state legislature would be necessary to put such a plan in effect. The Railway act provides for a system of arbitration supervised by the government.

Technically right now under the terms of the state motor transport laws, it would be impossible for some one to file an application for a bus operation permit over a route where a strike had halted operation of an existing bus line. This application would cost the applicant only $25 and would be based on a showing of public convenience and necessity.

FUTILE: But practically, Col. Ernest O. Thompson, senior member of the Texas Railroad commission, pointed out such action would be futile.

For by the time the application for a rival permit could be set down for hearing and be heard, any strike likely would be settled; service would be resumed, and there would no longer be a public need.

Another practical matter that precludes such action is that an applicant for a permit must show ability to operate under the permit in a way to meet the public need. One of the requirements is to show ownership or control of busses. No busses now are to be had

Anti-Strike Legislation Is Assailed

Solons Too Hasty On Labor Law

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—There's a right way and a wrong way to do things —including legislating.

An example of the wrong way may be seen currently in the attempt to rush drastic penalties against labor through the House of Representatives They are contained in a bill prepared by the Military Affairs committee. The measure has been ordered to the floor by the Rules committee for early consideration.

STOKES

The effort is to exploit the present strike situation. That offers provocation for labor law reform, certainly, but not through such hasty and ill-considered legislation whipped up hurriedly in a spirit of vengeance. Long-time changes in labor law should be considered carefully and soberly.

The penalizing provisions were inserted in a bill that originally was designed only to repeal the wartime Smith-Connally "anti-strike" law, so-called. Repeal of that act meets general approval. But the provisons added by the Military Affairs committee do not. Labor is complaining bitterly, and with reason.

Provisions Too Severe

One provision would punish any labor union which struck in violation of a no-strike clause in its contract by suspending its collective bargaining provisions for a year and making it subject to suits for damages incurred by work stoppages.

The obvious effect would be refusal by labor unions thereafter to accept no-strike clauses. Further, it would open the way for employers, so inclined, to provoke strikes themselves and drain union treasuries. There is no penalty for employers who might themselves induce strikes by their conduct.

ANOTHER provision would prohibit contributions by labor unions for political convention and primary election campaigns. This would extend the ban already imposed by the Smith-Connally act against such contributions for general election campaigns, which is to be retained. The latter somewhat restricted the scope of CIO's Political Action committee in last year's general election campaign, though it did not interfere much with its ultimate effectiveness. It operated under the exception permitting use of union funds for "educational purposes." Former Attorney General Biddle over protests from some members of Congress held that PAC was not violating the law.

The purpose of the prohibition in the case of conventions and primary elections is clear. Members with anti-labor records fear CIO attempts to eliminate them in next year's primaries, and with reason. The CIO had some primary success last year, even in the south. That served as a warning.

Senate Too Hasty

Aside from the injustices and the dubious constitutionality of these provisions, and the hasty method of legislating, there is something else wrong with this whole procedure.

This is the matter of jurisdiction. All this was done by the Military Affairs committee and not the regularly constituted House Labor committee. The Military Affairs committee proved its ineptness and lack of experience and judgment in framing labor legislation when it handled the original Connally bill two years ago.

It added so many punitive and restrictive provisions against labor when the bill passed by the Senate was presented to it that the whole measure had to be rewritten on the House floor. That is not a good place to write legislation, but it was necessary because of the bald discriminations against labor to which a majority of House members could not subscribe. Yet the same rewriting seemingly will be necessary again.

ADMINISTRATION leaders sought in vain to get the Rules committee to withhould report of the bill for House action until the labor-management conference here had finished its work. But the Republican-Southern Conservative Democrat coalition in the committee, which holds the whiphand, seized the second street car and bus strike here and beginning of the General Motors strike to shove the measure to the floor.

Newsprint Situation Again In Spotlight

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (U.P.)— Newspaper publishers and other newsprint nsers have been ordered to reduce their newsprint inventories by Dec. 21 to eliminate over-orders from Canadian supplies.

The civilian production administration said the reductions are necessary to fulfill an agreement with the Canadian newsprint administration. Fourth-quarter over orders to Canadian suppliers have reached 30,000 tons.

CPA amended the newspaper and newsprint limitation order to provide that as of Dec. 31:

1. Publishers in central and northeastern states ma hold no more than a 25-day supply of paper on hand and in transit instead of the present 30-day supply.

2. Publishers in western and southern states may hold only 45-day inventories instead of the present 50-day supplies.

3. Other newsprint users must reduce inventories from 33 1-3 per cent of the tonnage used in the fourth quarter to 28 per cent.

CPA said that a publisher need not include in his Dec. 31 inventory of supplies on hand and in transit any savings in fourth-quarter consumption.

Conflicting Claims

The union and management issued conflicting claims on the effectiveness of the nation's other major developing labor dispute—the Mongomery Ward & Co. "demonstration" work stoppage.

The CIO contended more than 13,000 of its members were out. The company, claiming considerably lower percentages idle at its Chicago properties, said a firm of certified public accountants would audit employe attendance in that city.

With no major labor controversies started or settled since Monday the number of idle remained at approximately a half million in nearly 150 separate disputes throughout the country.

Secretary Schwellenbach, in an unprecedented move, created a three-man fact finding commission to investigate the long standing oil industry wage dispute that led to government seizure of 53 refineries and pipeline eight weeks ago.

Fail In Negotiations

Establishment of the panel—the first created to deal with post war labor disputes—followed a report by the Navy that it had failed to persuade the companies and CIO Oil Workers union to resume negotiations on the union's 30 per cent wage rate increase demand. The Navy still is operating most of the seized facilities.

On another labor front, Schwellenbach advised the NLRB that Greyhound bus drivers on seven lines—4,000 of whom already are on strike—were not eligible to conduct a strike vote Nov. 30 under the War Labor Disputes act. He said the act does not cover the passenger transportation industry.

Grew Recounts Konoye Efforts

when."

Grew quoted Mr. Roosevelt as replying that he was "in decided agreement with your conclusions" but that the Japanese problem was only part of a "global problem."

"Our problem being one of defense, we cannot lay down hard and fast rules," he quoted the President as adding.

"Green Light" Message

Three months earlier, Grew had dispatched to Washington what he termed his "green light message" which said, in effect, that the time had come to apply economic sanctions against the Japanese.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich), who was questioning Grew when the message was first mentioned, remarked that it recommended a "get tough" policy but that little was done until the following summer.

Ferguson also commented to reporters during a recess that Grew, in his book "Ten Years in Japan," had described the message as perhaps the most important he sent during his first eight years in that country but that the State department had not considered it of sufficient importance to include in its volumes on Japanese-American relations.

Hull Back On Stand

Before Grew took up the story of his part in the diplomatic events prior to the Japanese attack, the committee heard former Secretary of State Hull:

1. Denounce as an "infamous charge" the assertion in an Army inquiry board's report that his note to the Japanese on Nov. 26, 1941, "touched the button" that started the war.

2. Express belief that Kichisaburo Nomura and Sabura Kurusu, the Japanese "peaces" envoys, must have been "morally certain" their government intended aggression, although they may not have known of the plan to attack Pearl Harbor.

3. Relate that he had received only an "unverified report" from the White House of the attack when he conferred with the Japanese envoys at 1 p. m., Dec. 7, 1941.

Bristles At Lucas

The 74-year-old former cabinet officer bristled when Senator Lucas (D-Ill) brought up the Army board's report.

"I sat under that infamous charge for months when every reasonable-minded person knew that the Japanese were attempting at that time to get complete control of the Pacific," he declared.

Hull went on to say that he was "gratuitously brought into the picture apparently on the theory that Tojo and the military elements moving abreast with Hitler in world conquest were not doing so and were not guilty of doing so but that this government of peaceful peoples—that this government was the cause—that is forced peace-minded Tojo . . . into war."

He paused to catch his breath and added in a milder tone

"If I could express myself as I'd want to I'd want all you religious-minded people to retire."

In a rambling philosophical discourse at another point, Hull expressed the view that if "peace-loving nations"—he mentioned Britain and the United States—had been strong militarily they could simply have told the aggressor nations to halt and those nations would have done so.

When Lucas alluded to the 10-point note Hull gave the Japanese on Nov. 26, the former secretary said it amounted to little more than a restatement of principles for which the United States had stood for years.

Events Move Swiftly In China As Indications Point To Soviet Gains

By JAMES D. WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27. — Events are moving swiftly in China, where central government armies are within 90 miles of the industrial city of Mukden, key to Manchuria.

Only one natural barrier, the Liao river, lies before the American-equipped Nationalists, and if the Chinese Communists make a stand to hold Mukden, it probably will be at this river.

But already it can be doubted that they will make a stand. Dispatches from Shanghai say that the United States is turning over some 700 fighter planes and transports to Chiang Kai-Shek's forces, and that these are being flown in from India and Burma in bad weather which is causing some loss of American pilots and consequent complaint by Amercian air force personnel.

Relations With Russia

Dispatches from Chungking, meanwhile, speak of improved relations with Russia, to the extent that unconfirmed reports say the Russians will not only guarantee the safety of central government officials returning to Manchuria (meantime safety from allegedly Communist forces roundabout) but that they also will permit central forces to be flown in. These reports hint, however, that such Russian cooperation will be at the price of giving Russia virtual joint sovereignty over Manchuria, which is the industrial key to China's recovery.

Whatever the actual status of Sino-Russian relations, it appears that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has received solid encouragement from some quarter. Yesterday he issued an important policy statement in announcing a supreme economic council to guide China's convalescence from the war.

Chiang's Statement

In this statment he said the following: "We shall spare no effort to bring internal order and security to the nation." Presumably among the efforts which will not be spared one may expect military efforts, if necessary, and if that presumption is correct he will wage civil war although it may continue undeclared.

In his policy statement, Chinag Kai-Shek also mentioned the necessity of reviving China's foreign trade, but aside from urging a prompt stabilization of the exchange rate (which probably will have to be underwritten by a loan from somewhere) he treated it somewhat generally and did not refer to the new Chinese corporation law which has most foreign businessmen in China worried.

Today General Patrick Hurley resigned his post as ambassador to China, charging that American policy in Asia had failed because it had encouraged both Communism and imperialism and because his efforts to effect accord in China had been frustrated by "lower echelon" diplomats whom he did not name.

Support From U. S.

His resignation followed a statement made yesterday by Rep. Hugh DeLacy (D-Wash) to an American Boardcasting Co. correspondent, Albert Leitch, that Hurley had given Chiang Kai-Shek "assurance of blank-check American support." "Why should Chiang negotiate with the Communists in the north as long as he feels there are no strings to our support?" asked DeLacy.

Secretary of State Byrnes said on Nov. 14 that up to that time the United States government had not discussed the Chinese civil strife with Russia.

These developments and statements appear conflicting, confusing.

The big questions they suggest are:

What is our policy in Asia, who is directing it, and where is it taking us?

Flood Control Funds Assailed By GOPs

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)— Republican contentions of "pork barrel" today greeted a Democrat-backed drive in the House to add $128,475,000 in river and harbor-flood control funds to a $1,131,-452,312 appropriation bill.

"It's worse than pork barrel," said Rep. John Taber of New York, ranking Republican member of the House appropriation committee which yesterday approved the deficiency supply bill without the river and harbor money.

Quick Showdown Seen

Taber directed his remarks at a move launched by some Democratic committeemen to restore to the measure the $128,475,000 knocked out by a close committee vote.

A showdown is unlikely before tomorrow or Thursday because today's House meeting was set aside for a general discussion of the bill and its scores of separate items.

"On some of these river and harbor and flood control projects," Taber told a reporter, "even the sponsors and the Army engineers can't agree. They are millions of dollars apart on the potential value of the projects."

There was no fight in prospect over the committee's denial of new funds—and its cancellation of previously-granted money—to the national labor relations board for financing strike-elections. Separate legislation repealing the NLRB's war-granted authority to conduct these elections has been approved by the House military committee and is pending in the House.

Ruidoso Is Now City Under Incorporation

Albert Vaughn, Ruidoso businessman in Lubbock Tuesday on business, reported the little New Mexico village, that is host to hundreds of Lubbock vacaitioners each year, has been incorporated into a city.

City limits of the newly incorporated town extend from the Old Mill, familiar landmark at the foot of the hill going into Ruidoso, about five miles to the Indian reservation. The city is about one mile wide.

Vaughn said an election would be held Dec. 11 to name a mayor, city trustees and a city clerk. Plans are being laid for new water and sewage lines and a butane gas line, all to be run by various companies for the entire city of 3,000 cabins.

Ruidoso has a permanent population of about 1,000 and a summer population of near 10,000. A private airport is being constructed and a golf course is to be put in soon, Vaughn said. Several brick buildings are being erected in the business section of the sprawling village.
