Oil prices fall below $50

■ Crude prices fall $5 a barrel in past week on rising supplies, slow economic growth.

By George Jahn
Associated Press

Oil prices closed below $50 a barrel for the first time in more than two months Friday after declining by more than $5 a barrel in the past week on rising U.S. supplies and slower economic growth.

Light, sweet crude for June delivery fell $2.05 to settle at $49.72 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, where prices fell as low as $49.10. It was the lowest settlement price since Feb. 18, when Nymex oil futures closed at $48.35.

Oil broker Tom Bentz of BNP Paribas Futures said from a technical trading perspective the oil market right now is "pretty much as bearish as you can get. It portends lower prices next week."

Bentz was still leery of declaring the end of high oil prices, however, saying another runup above $50 a barrel would hardly come as a surprise given the tight global supply cushion and the market jitters about even the slightest output disruption. That said, in the near term prices could drop below $48 a barrel as early as next week, he said.

Gasoline futures fell by 5.57 cents Friday, to settle at $1.4933 per gallon on Nymex. Still, pump prices average more than $2.20 a gallon nationwide and the peak demand period is right around the corner.

In the past week, oil prices have been on a downward trend due to a spate of bearish news, the most recent being the U.S. Commerce Department's announcement that the U.S. economy grew at a slower-than-expected rate of 3.1 percent in the first quarter.

On Wednesday, the U.S. Energy Department said inventories of crude oil in the largest energy-consuming country grew by 5 5 million barrels last week to 324.4 million barrels, or 9 per cent above year-ago levels — the tenth time supplies have risen in 11 weeks.

President George W. Bush also has signaled he would act to reduce crude prices, first when he called on Saudi Arabia's Crown Prince Abdullah Monday to expand production, and Wednesday when he urged using closed military bases as sites for new oil refineries.

While oil futures have fallen from their recent peak above $58 a barrel, prices remain more than 30 percent higher than a year ago.

Strong global demand, concerns about limited excess production capacity and fears of unplanned supply disruptions have kept prices high in recent years.

Pathologist gets more than three years for child porn possession

By Bob Campbell
Staff Writer

A Midland pathologist who had told jurors during his January trial he was "a Christian nudist" was sentenced to 37 months in federal prison Friday for possession of Internet child pornography.

Among other sentencings by U.S. District Judge Robert Junell, 29-year-old Clarence Lee Mosley got a 280-month term. Mosley had jumped bond on a federal crack cocaine trafficking charge before being arrested in Monahans for robbing an Odessa liquor store.

In an appeal not to be jailed, Morgan C.D. Dyer said he's been undergoing therapy for his sexual addiction, working in the Meals on Wheels and Adult Literacy programs and caring for his wife Sherrie, who has had a heart transplant. He said he surrendered his medical license Feb. 15.

Mrs. Dyer wept, leaning on a friend's shoulder, when the sentence was pronounced.

The doctor and 20-year Air Force veteran's attorney, Bruce Evan Foster, said he "has never denied any of the activities of which he was accused." Foster said the Evidence Eliminator device Dyer used upon learning he was being investigated was not intended to deny evidence to the U.S. Attorney's Office.

"I didn't think what I did was wrong," said Dyer, adding he accepted the jury's verdict the photos he downloaded of nude children were lascivious.

Junell also fined Dyer $15,000 and sentenced him to 200 hours of community service. He will be on three years of supervised release when released by the U.S. Bureau of Prisons.

The judge said Dyer will be imprisoned at Butner Federal Correctional Institute in North Carolina, which has a sex offender's treatment program.

During Mosley's sentencing, Assistant U.S. Attorney John Klassen said the man had reneged on a promise to cooperate in his drug case, then held up Kari's Liquor with two other men March 31 in Odessa before being arrested by U.S. Marshals outside a Monahans barbecue restaurant April 8 carrying a pistol.

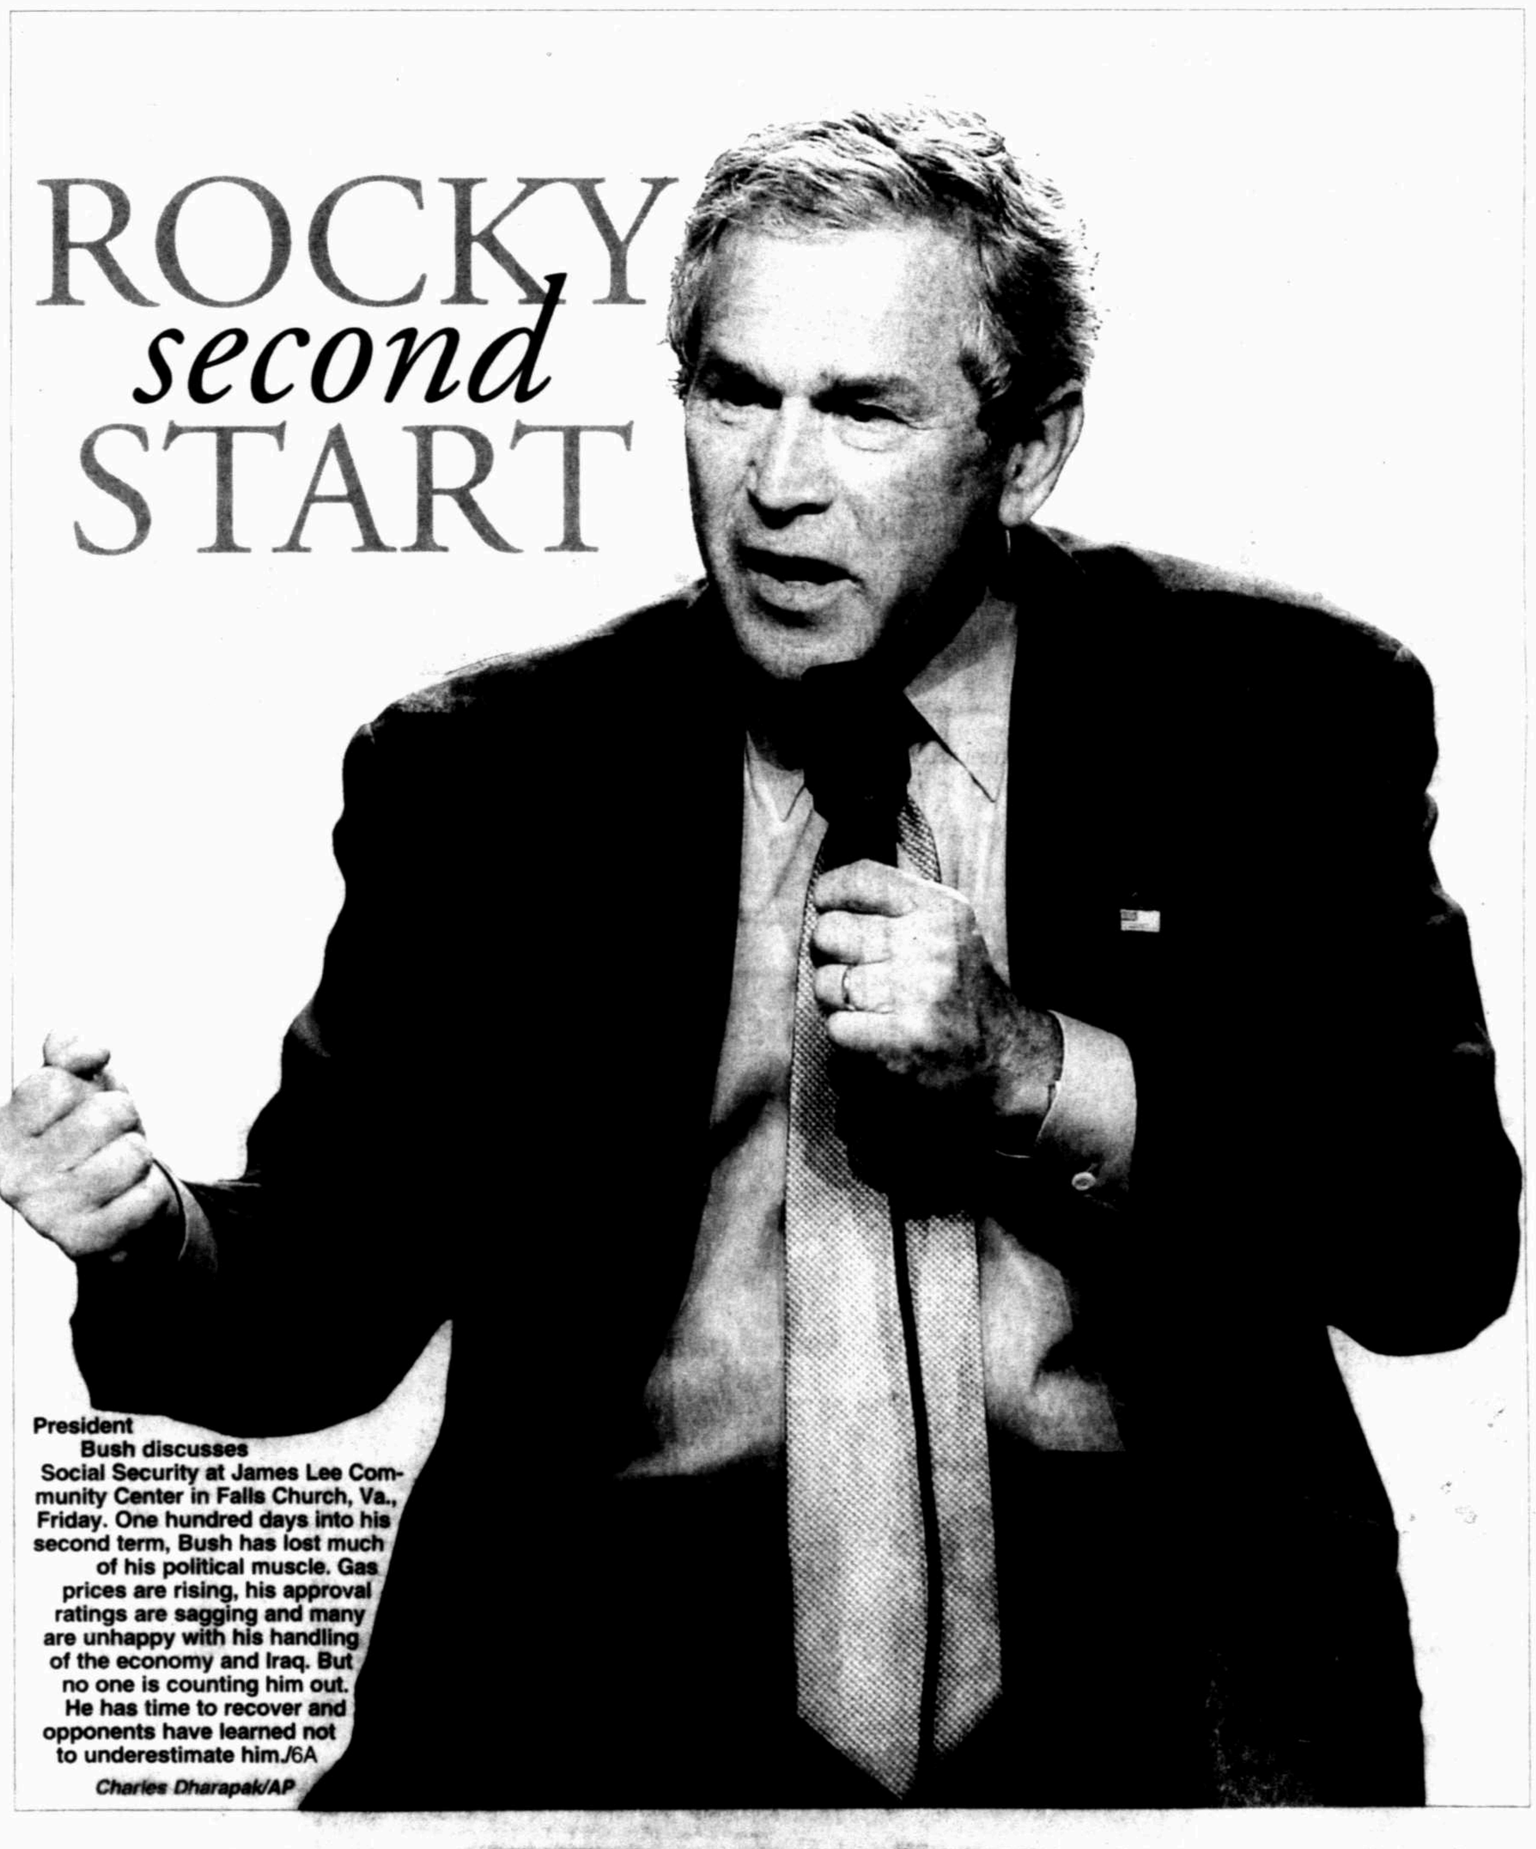

Mosley's Odessa attorney, Merry Worley, argued her client deserved leniency because his only prior felony conviction was for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, for which he served a state jail term. "I could understand 10 years more than 20," she said.

"If your client hadn't walked off, I might agree," said Klassen. "What he did was unfathomable."

When Mosley said he would have been murdered in prison for testifying, Junell said, "I don't agree." The judge said he sentences 750 to 1,000 people a year, many of them cooperating witnesses, and none have ever been killed by a fellow inmate. He said a large percentage of federal inmates have testified for the government.

"I've always been a hardworking man," Mosley said. "I still don't understand what happened with the UUMV."

Junell granted Mosley's request to be incarcerated at Big Spring Federal Correctional Institute.

President Bush discusses Social Security at James Lee Community Center in Falls Church, Va., Friday. One hundred days into his second term, Bush has lost much of his political muscle. Gas prices are rising, his approval ratings are sagging and many are unhappy with his handling of the economy and Iraq. But no one is counting him out. He has time to recover and opponents have learned not to underestimate him./6A

Chesapeake Energy, Midlanders celebrate opening of new office

By Mella McEwen
Oil Editor

Midlanders have long feared the acquisition of local independent oil and gas operators resulted in the loss of jobs and control of local oil fields.

To prove it was not following that trend, Oklahoma City-based Chesapeake Energy Corp., which entered the Permian Basin in February 2004 with the purchase of Concho Resources, Friday unveiled its $2.5 million Midland field office, which already employs 60 — and an additional 50 in Hobbs, N.M. — and is poised to employ more.

In another demonstration of its commitment to the Midland community and the Permian Basin, the company also made a gift of $100,000 to the Petroleum Museum for its upcoming capital fund drive to develop and renovate its original exhibits.

The award was accepted by Tim Thompson, Petroleum Museum president, who said he and the museum's trustees were pleased to accept the donation.

MDC board points out exciting signs for Basin economy

By Bob Campbell
Staff Writer

Permian Basin hiring is up, unemployment is down, new and established companies are hiring and there is a big "Go!" sign on the oil price-fueled area economy, Midland Development Corp. officials said Friday.

City Comptroller Bob McNaughton opened the morning meeting at City Hall by noting sales tax revenues are noticeably up. "We're more than 10 percent ahead on our sales tax," he said.

"If that trend holds, MDC will generate an extra $350,000 to $360,000 this year," said McNaughton, noting $3.58 million was projected last fall. The city's quarter-cent economic development tax produced

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

from wire reports

LOS ANGELES — Jerry Seinfeld is going the Bee-movie route.

Seinfeld has written the cartoon comedy "Bee Movie," for which he will provide the key voice, and also will produce the tale for DreamWorks Animation.

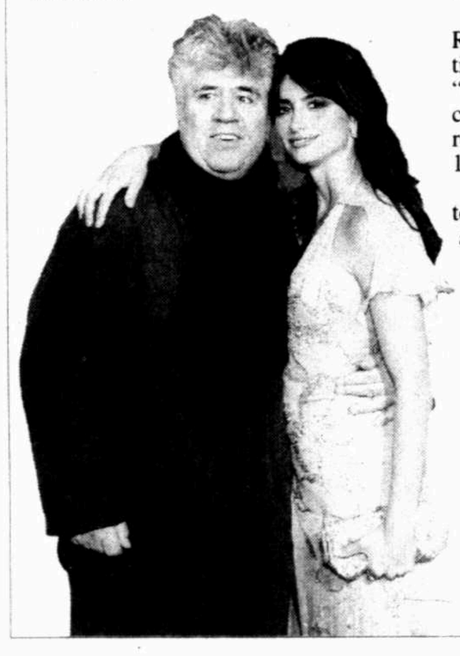

The all-star voice cast also includes Renee Zellweger, Robert Duvall, Uma Thurman, Kathy Bates, Eric Idle, Oprah Winfrey, William H. Macy, Alan Arkin and Larry King.

"Bee Movie" follows a bee just out of college who sues humanity for mass theft of his winged species' honey. Steve Hickner ("The Prince of Egypt") and Simon J. Smith ("Shrek 4-D") will co-direct.

DreamWorks said Thursday it has slotted "Bee Movie" for release Nov. 2, 2007, following the May 18, 2007, debut of the studio's third "Shrek" film.

MADRID, Spain — Pedro Almodovar has confirmed that Penelope Cruz and Carmen Maura will star in his next film, "Volver", a comedy about three women from the same family seeking a better life.

The movie is set to shoot in July in Madrid and in the region of Castilla-La Mancha, where Almodovar grew up, his production house said Friday.

Maura starred in Almodovar's films in the early 1980s and last worked with him on 1988's "Women on the Verge of a Nervous Breakdown."

The new film is a generational story involving a grandmother, a mother and a daughter who journey from Spain's south to Madrid.

Almodovar says "Volver" is a cross between Michael Curtiz's "Mildred Pierce" and Frank Capra's "Arsenic and Old Lace," mixed with the "surrealist naturalism" of his 1984 film, "What Have I Done to Deserve This?"

NEW YORK — Bobby Brown's old group, New Edition, says they would welcome back the troubled singer.

"No matter what, we love that brother," Ricky Bell told AP Radio recently. "I mean, this is for real; this is no politically correct answer or anything like that. The door is open for him."

After forming as a Jackson Five-style R&B group in the early '80s, New Edition's hits included "Candy Girl" and "Cool It Now." Brown left for a solo career in 1986, though New Edition reunited for a short-lived comeback in 1996.

Brown, who married Whitney Houston in 1992, took off with singles such as "Don't Be Cruel." But he progressively became known more for his drug and alcohol arrests.

Bell says that even in his New Edition days, Brown's troubles were evident.

"It wasn't something he was trying to hide," Bell says. "You'd see the mood swings and the change in attitude."

But Bell adds that when Brown wasn't drinking, "We (would) see that he's a sharp individual, a talented individual, a family man."

Brown, 36, will be the subject of a new eight-episode reality TV show, "Being Bobby Brown," that will debut on Bravo June 30.

The show will also feature Houston, who has had problems of her own. In March, the 41-year-old singer checked herself into a rehabilitation center for the second time in a year.

NEW YORK — Lance Armstrong is always on a bike of some kind.

If he's not racing, he's tooling around on his custom-made motorcycle that was designed and created for him on the Discovery Channel's "American Chopper" series.

Fans of Armstrong can bid on a one-of-a-kind plaque made for the Armstrong chopper during an eBay auction on May 6. The proceeds will benefit the Intrepid Fallen Heroes Fund.

Other auction items include a Ryder Cup golf bag signed by Tiger Woods, Phil Mickelson, Chris DiMarco and Davis Love III, an autographed racing jacket signed by NASCAR's Rusty Wallace and a 2004 Masters yellow flag signed by Mickelson.

The Intrepid Fallen Heroes Fund provides unrestricted grants to the families of military personnel who have died in Afghanistan and Iraq.

TEMPLE — A 27-year-old Texas man has been convicted in the slaying of a former manager of the 1970s rock group Grand Funk Railroad.

A Bell County jury deliberated less than 40 minutes Wednesday before finding Donald Alan Fair guilty of murder in the Nov. 1 death of Richard Terrance "Terry" Knight.

Authorities said Fair stabbed Knight to death during a domestic dispute at an apartment complex.

In his closing argument, defense attorney Jim Hewitt said there was "strong evidence" Fair was high on methamphetamine when he stabbed Knight 17 times.

Fair was the boyfriend of the victim's daughter. Knight, his daughter and her boyfriend all lived in the apartment, police said.

Knight, 61, managed Grand Funk Railroad, which started in Flint, Mich., during the 1960s and early 1970s.

BERKELEY, Calif. — Former Olympic swimmer Anthony Ervin is auctioning off the gold medal he won in 2000 to raise money for victims of last year's tsunami in Southeast Asia.

Ervin won the medal when he tied Gary Hall Jr. for first place in the 50-meter freestyle in Sydney. Ervin is coming out of retirement and hopes to win another gold at the 2008 Olympics in Beijing.

"The medal itself is just a symbol of the work I put in," he said. "But the work was what was mine. And the time I invested, I still have that. That dedication and tenacity and trying to pursue things with excellence — I still have that. By doing this, it's a good way of being able to give back."

The auction was expected to begin Thursday on eBay.

Ervin came up with the idea of auctioning off his medal on a trip to Japan in December. After the tsunami hit Southeast Asia later that month, he decided to make his donation to the Tsunami Relief Fund.

'The Apprentice' down to final three

By Derrick J. Lang
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Alex Thomason's series of losses on "The Apprentice" didn't dazzle Donald Trump.

The 29-year-old lawyer from Seattle was fired during Thursday's episode of the NBC reality show for his less-than-stellar track record.

"When I went into the boardroom, I thought it was a done deal that I was fired," Thomason told The Associated Press Friday. "But I thought I might have a chance to work my way out of it."

Thomason wasn't able to avoid being fired — and he won't be participating in the final interview gauntlet. Only the final three — Tana Goertz, Kendra Todd and Craig Williams — will face the interviewers on the next episode of "The Apprentice."

In past seasons, the last quartet of contestants endured a series of interviews before the field was narrowed down to the final two candidates for a job with Trump. Not this time.

"When I found out we had to do another task, I was like, 'Ooooh nooooo! I'm so tired, but I'll buck it up,"' Thomason told the AP.

Unfortunately, Thomason and Goertz, his lone teammate, didn't make enough money selling limited-edition Hanes T-shirts. Project manager Goertz spent more time focused on finding a BeDazzler to glam up their garb than making a marketing plan.

"Originally, I thought the BeDazzler was the headband from 'I Dream of Jeannie,"' said Thomason.

Thomason said he thought his spat with previously fired candidate Chris Shelton would have turned into fisticuffs.

"At the time, yeah, I thought Chris was gonna take a swing at me," said Thomason. "I chose to swallow my pride. I pictured Chris and I rolling around in the back of a van, punching each other with pizzas flying everywhere. I don't think my mother would've approved."

Waco still coming to terms with grisly 1916 lynching

By Angela K. Brown
Associated Press

WACO — Nearly a century after a black teenager was stabbed, burned and hanged in front of some 15,000 Waco residents, the city continues struggling with the legacy of the brutal slaying.

While it was just one of the 4,700 lynchings in the South from the late 1800s to early 1900s, it was one of the few photographed in progress. That spring day in 1916, a photographer captured images as a mob dragged 17-year-old Jesse Washington from the courthouse, cut him with knives and dangled him over a fire.

Newspapers referred to it as the "Waco horror" after the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's magazine published an article and the rare pictures, now displayed in the National Civil Rights Museum in Memphis, Tenn.

But some blacks in the community say Waco leaders through the years have pretended like the lynching never happened. Two new books have renewed interest in the case and spurred calls for the city to make amends, such as apologizing or erecting a historical marker.

"I think it's appropriate. I think it's time ... because if we don't address things, we never get healed," said Michael Babers, a black minister.

City officials did not return calls for comment Friday.

William Carrigan, author of "The Making of a Lynching Culture: Violence and Vigilantism in Central Texas 1836-1916," spoke at Baylor University last month.

Houston author Patricia Bernstein, who wrote "The First Waco Horror: The Lynching of Jesse Washington and the Rise of the NAACP," spoke Wednesday night at a Waco church where two congregations gathered — one from a predominantly white church, another predominantly black.

LYNCHING Thousands of people gather in Waco in 1916 to watch the lynching of a black teenager. Some blacks in the community say Waco leaders have pretended the event never happened.

The Texas Collection, Baylor University

Bernstein said she wanted to help residents start a dialogue about how the city should address the lynching, which happened after Washington was convicted of raping and killing a white woman.

In many ways, Waco has not moved past it, she said. Three years ago, county commissioners rejected a request to create a plaque to explain an image of a tree with a noose in a courthouse painting of Waco history.

Even now, a legend remains in the black community that Waco's devastating 1953 tornado followed the path where a lynching victim had been dragged.

"Imagine the longtime pain of people who were so unable to do anything about these horrible things themselves, not even to speak out ... that this was the only thing they could take refuge in," said Bernstein, who is white. "Well, (they believed) God finally took retribution on Waco."

Amber Franklin, 16, said she had never heard about the lynching until she attended the forum. She said it should be mentioned in high school history classes and discussed.

"I feel like I've been robbed, like maybe I should have known about this a long time ago," said Franklin, who is black.

Mary Darden, a college administrator, suggested forming a committee with members of churches and other groups for more discussions and to decide whether to seek a historical plaque.

"Obviously this is not just racism ... and we need to really explore more where that evil and hatred lies and how do we prevent it from infiltrating our culture and our society and making monsters out of all of us," said Darden, who is white.

To obtain a historical marker, anyone can apply with the county historical commission, which refers the request to the state. For controversial requests such as acknowledging a lynching, the Texas Historical Commission can gather information and send the matter to board members for a vote, officials said.

Those in Waco who don't want to bring up the lynching cite negative publicity the city has endured since the deadly Branch Davidian standoff in 1993, said Jim Vaughan, president of the Greater Waco Chamber of Commerce. The religious sect's compound was 10 miles outside town, but that association with Waco lingers, especially outside Texas.

Vaughan said he has mixed feelings about a historical marker for the 1916 lynching but believes talking about the event is important.

"I think there are some whites and some African-Americans that will come closer together," said Vaughan, who is white and has lived in Waco a year. "I would hope something positive would come from the discussion."

engaged in the community and its philanthropic endeavors, not just as a company but through its employees.

That is why, said House Speaker Tom Craddick, Chesapeake is a good fit with Midland.

"They have a can-do spirit," he said while at the grand opening celebration. "I'm impressed with the company and these facilities. When you have a large independent come in like this, it's a major plus. The fact that they plan to continue and expand drilling activity is a positive."

Mayor Mike Canon, also participating in the grand opening celebration, agreed.

"To me, this is both substantive and symbolic," Canon said. "It's substantive because they've spent $2.5 million for these facilities, hired 60 and plan to expand. They've made a commitment to the Permian Basin and will have a great impact on our economy. It's symbolic because here is probably one of the fastest, if not the fastest-growing independents in the country, certainly one of the most aggressive independents, and they see the Permian Basin as a place to grow. That says a lot about the Permian Basin, about the future of the Permian Basin as they see it and as I believe it."

Since its acquisition of Concho in February 2004 for more than $400 million, McClendon noted, Chesapeake has spent nearly $700 million more in acquisitions, most recently of Pecos Production, in the Permian Basin, bringing its total Permian Basin investment to more than $1 billion in a little more than 12 months.

McClendon said part of Chesapeake's success is not just seeking acquisitions, but once they are made, successfully blending in a drilling program. The company is the third most active driller in Texas and he said plans are to increase drilling activity this year.

With oil at $50, he said the company will seek crude oil reserves but it is the nation's most active explorer for natural gas, and deep gas reserves at that.

"We have an exciting program in Loving County, drilling 18,000 to 20,000-foot gas wells at $10 million a pop," McClendon said, adding it has been successful in finding deep gas reserves.

In fact, he said, "We plan to increase from four to 10 rigs by the end of the year, and at that rate we'll be spending $200 million a year in Loving County."

The Permian Basin, he said, like other basins in the United States, has been well-explored but not at deeper depths, where there's not much oil but lots of natural gas, because deep drilling is expensive and technologically challenging.

"Our advantage is through our drill bit expertise," he said. "We're able to buy more assets because we can find the upside and drill the upside and create value through a combination of our acquisition and drilling program."

McClendon said he hopes to make additional acquisitions — as much as $500 million to $1 billion, and will expand the Midland operations as local assets increase. Already, he pointed out, dirtwork has been completed to make way for an expansion to the just-opened field office that could house another 20 employees.

Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Vice President Blake Wallace said Noram Power Systems is adding 20 jobs along with a number of other firms that are hiring but not seeking MDC assistance. "Overall, the activity is picking up quite nicely now," Wallace said.

Board member Grant Billingsley said the AccuTel calling center "is growing very rapidly" and will record a substantial hiring increase by the end of the year.

Chamber President John Breier said MDC "doesn't count the jobs until they're created," adding local commercial realty transactions have quickened and Midland's housing market has contracted many new homes, which are being purchased before they're completed.

The county in March had a 4.1 percent unemployment rate, lowered from 4.8 percent a year earlier.

MDC President John James said there "is a need for labor and housing" and the board might make the area need for workers known in Michigan, Pennsylvania and California.

Board member Jerry Morales reported on the MDC's outreach to business leaders in Chihuahua, Mexico, saying a May 16-17 visit there will include inspections of Chihuahuan factories.

Sites and Facilities Committee Chairman Jim Nelson said the N.C. Sturgeon Co. is progressing with its construction of Building A at Entrada Enterprise Park near Midland International Airport with several prospective business occupants having expressed interest in occupying it.

Nelson said Sturgeon is working on bringing a crane to the site to erect the building's walls.

Opal Dunn

Opal Dunn peacefully passed through the gates of heaven in her sleep to be with her Lord on Tuesday, April 26, 2005, at her home in Midland. She was born July 20, 1922, in Coleman, Texas, to Jim Will and Bessie Ray Jackson. She was reared in Coleman and married Berlie A. Dunn on June 22, 1941, in Coleman. They first moved to Midland in 1949. After a brief time in Abilene, they came back to Midland in 1957. She worked at Grammar Murphy and Bed and Bath stores during her sons' college years. She has been a faithful member of Kelview Heights Baptist Church since 1964, teaching 6th grade girls and other Sunday school classes.

She was preceded in death by her parents. Opal is survived by her dear husband of 64 years, Berlie, two sons and their wives: Jerry and Deanna Dunn of Midland, and Eddie and Debbie Dunn of Plano; two grandsons and their families: Kirk and Leslie Dunn, and great grandchildren, Blake and Blair Dunn, of Midland; Rusty and Heather Dunn, and great granddaughter, Aubrey, of Odessa; two granddaughters: Kristen Dunn Hager and her husband Bryan of Jacksonville, Florida; and Rhesa Dunn of Odessa; four sisters: Ozell Dunn and her husband Raymond, and Gwen Jackson, of Midland, Billie Jean Woodard and her husband Harold of Odessa, and Betty Ray Mittel and her husband Glenn of Bandon, Oregon; and numerous nieces, nephews, cousins, and great-nieces and nephews. The apples of her eye were her grandchildren and great grandchildren. It was her joy to serve them "tea parties" any time they came to see her.

Her strong and courageous response to illness during her 5-year battle with cancer showed her quiet trust in God's love during trials. She carried this heavy burden with great grace. We, her children, "rise up and call [her] blessed. Many daughters have done virtuously, but [she] excellest them all" (Prov. 31:28). "Strength and honor are her clothing" (Prov. 31:25). She is rejoicing now. Her labor has ended. Our dear Lord has said, "Well done, good and faithful servant, ... enter thou into the joy of the Lord" (Mt. 25:23). Making a home for her family was, after her devotion to her Lord, the center and focus of her life. She loved every aspect, even the cleaning. Even when too weak to clean, her "fingers itched" to scrub the house until it shone. An extremely talented seamstress, she used her talents to create clothing and wonderful keepsakes that many of us will forever treasure. She cared for the love of her life, her dear husband Berlie in an extraordinary and remarkable way. She gave him reverence, love, and devotion. "The heart of her husband safely trusts in her" (Prov. 31:11).

To many of us, Opal was a dear friend and mentor who taught us how to be a gracious and Godly woman, wife, mother, and mother-in-law. She fostered and modeled an unconditional love and enjoyment of family that made our gatherings a great tribute to God's grace. This joy shows that she "taught her children well." She has passed on a legacy of blessing to generations to come, a precious heritage which will continue on to descendants that she will never know except in eternity. She will be numbered with the quiet, unsung heroes of faith that never sought the earthly limelight. Since she loved God and loved people passionately, her memory will be a rare and priceless jewel to all whose lives were touched by hers.

The family wishes to express a special thanks to Eddie and Debbie who graciously came to live with and provide care for her during the last three months of her life. Also, thanks to the persons who served her at Allison Cancer Center and Home Hospice. Their compassion, love and skill were such a comfort to Berlie, Opal and the family during her lengthy illness. In addition, thanks to Harley Bynum for the picture for this column.

Services are scheduled for 11:00 A.M. Saturday, April 30, 2005, at Kelview Heights Baptist Church with the pastor, the Reverend Jerry Berry officiating, assisted by the Reverend Bill Skaggs. Interment will follow at Resthaven Memorial Park. Pallbearers will be Winfred Kelly and the deacons of Kelview Heights Baptist Church. Arrangements are under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

Memorials may be directed to Home Hospice, 901 W. Missouri, Midland, Texas 79701.

House Republicans say they'll draft Social Security bill

By David Espo
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House Republicans injected new urgency Friday into their drive to overhaul Social Security, unveiling plans to draft legislation in June and brushing aside Democratic claims they intend to cut benefits for middle-class retirees.

"I'm confident we're going to get something done," said President Bush, struggling to build support for the centerpiece of his second-term domestic agenda.

After months of little evident progress on the issue, House Republicans said they intended to have legislation before the Ways and Means Committee by June. "It won't just be a Social Security bill. It will be a retirement bill," said Rep. Bill Thomas, the chairman.

Apart from changes in Social Security itself, the California Republican spoke vaguely of steps to encourage private retirement savings. He indicated he may attach provisions to ease the financial burden of long term or chronic care for the elderly.

He spoke in guarded terms about Bush's call for personal accounts for younger workers. "I believe you can construct a personal savings account that could be one component of many that address solvency," he said.

"House Republicans are ready to roll up their sleeves and do some hard work on Social Security. We look forward to searching for solutions so that younger workers aren't left with an empty promise from the government," said Speaker Dennis Hastert, R-Ill.

Official Social Security estimates predict that annual benefit costs will begin to exceed payroll tax income beginning in 2017, and the trust fund will be depleted in 2041. At that point, the government would be obliged to cut benefits for all recipients.

Bush favors personal accounts for younger workers as well as curbs on benefits for medium and upper wage earners who have yet to retire. Both are intensely controversial, and Hastert has wanted to let the Senate act first on Social Security legislation. His statement gave no indication he has changed his mind.

The Senate Finance Committee is expected to consider legislation by the end of July. The panel's chairman, Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, has previously cited the idea of a sliding scale benefit as one of numerous options under consideration but has not accorded it any particular priority.

Thomas made his comments on the day after Bush indicated support for tilting the current Social Security system to make it more favorable to lower-income retirees. That would be accomplished by permitting benefits for future lower-income retirees to rise in accordance with current law, while growing more slowly for middle and upper income people.

A White House fact sheet issued during Bush's news conference Thursday night referred to an approach authored by Robert C. Pozen, a private economist. In testimony before Congress earlier this week, Pozen said a plan along the lines that he advocates could erase roughly 70 percent of Social Security's long-term deficit.

While avoiding all talk of details, Bush renewed his support for that approach in an appearance in suburban Falls Church, Va., during the day.

"I know that we ought to be able to say in a new system, as we fix the safety net for future generations, that you must receive benefits equal to or greater than the benefits enjoyed by today's seniors," he said.

At the same time, he added that one way to assure the long-term solvency of the program was to "have the benefits for low-income workers in a future system grow faster than benefits for those who are better off."

Democrats charged Bush with obscuring the true nature of the plan, and said he favored benefit cuts by another name.

"What he didn't mention is that there are also very significant benefit cuts for the middle class," said Sen. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y. "For most people, it would be better doing nothing than doing the president's plan."

"Democrats believe that slashing Social Security benefits to pay for privatization is the problem, while Republicans believe massive benefit cuts are the answer," said Rep. Nancy Pelosi of California, the party's leader in the House.

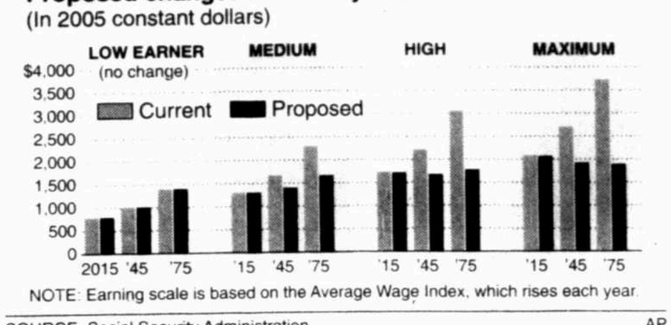

"Benefits would be cut for all workers whose annual earnings are more than $20,000 a year," Democrats on the House Ways and Means Committee estimated.

Democrats have said they are willing to work on bipartisan solvency legislation as soon as Bush drops his call for personal accounts.

A progressive scale for Social Security

The progressive indexing proposal aims to close the long-term deficit by more than 70 percent. For workers retiring after 2012, low-income earners would keep the same benefits while medium to maximum earners would get less as more baby boomers retire.

GOP voices support for Social Security changes

TIMING: A day after President Bush went on national television to build support for his Social Security plan, House Republicans said they intended to have legislation before the Ways and Means Committee by June. The Senate Finance Committee is expected to consider legislation by the end of July.

DEMOCRATIC CRITICS: Sen. Charles Schumer of New York and Rep. Nancy Pelosi of California said Bush's plan would leave middle-class taxpayers with reduced benefits.

STICKING POINT: President Bush endorses personal retirement accounts; many Democrats do not.

It's been rocky first 100 days for Bush second term

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

■ News analysis

WASHINGTON — One hundred days into his second term, President Bush has lost much of the political muscle he boasted about after winning re-election. Gas prices are rising, his approval ratings are sagging and Americans are unhappy with his handling of the economy and Iraq.

Now he's trying to sell a Social Security plan that would cut future benefits for all but low-income retirees — giving opponents fresh ammunition. Even before Bush unveiled his new proposal — and despite a 60-day sales campaign — a majority of Americans thought he had mishandled Social Security, too.

Along with his other troubles, Bush has had to prop up two endangered Republicans: House Majority Leader Tom DeLay, accused of ethical lapses, and John Bolton, the president's choice for U.N. ambassador, criticized for his judgment and treatment of subordinates.

It wasn't supposed to be this hard. Not for a re-elected Republican president with a GOP-ruled House and Senate.

"He's in far weaker shape than most people expected he would be in the aftermath of the election," said Margaret Thompson, a professor of history and political science at Syracuse University. "I think he became overconfident about what he could accomplish."

No one is counting him out, three months into his second term. He has time to recover and opponents have learned not to underestimate him. But his slide in the polls and the dissatisfaction with his performance have been striking.

"He's behaved like a 'landslide president,' and we know what happens with landslide presidents," Thompson said. "Their reach always exceeds their grasp. They always overextend themselves."

Democrats in Congress have proven to be a more effective force than anyone expected, standing united and combative in opposing Bush's judicial nominees and his plan to create private investment accounts under Social Security.

Democrats complain that Bush has been uncompromising, giving them little reason to cooperate on big issues. They want to keep him and other Republicans on the defensive in hopes of winning control of Congress in next year's elections and then recapturing the White House in 2008.

"Democrats have no incentive to see President Bush succeed," said Merle Black, a political scientist at Emory University. "He's operating in a political context that's very difficult for any leader to have any success. It's been hard for presidents to have a successful second term."

In contrast with the Democrats' unity, Republican leaders are having a hard time keeping their troops in line. Some GOP lawmakers are balking at Bush's Social Security prescription and reserving support on Bolton's nomination.

A large part of Bush's troubles in opinion polls stems from soaring gasoline prices — averaging more than $2.20 a gallon — that have infuriated motorists and worried business leaders. That has created anxiousness about the economy on top of concern about big budget deficits. Gas prices were a problem that seemed to catch the White House off guard.

Oil costs weren't on Bush's mind back in November when he stood up after the election and declared, "I earned capital in the campaign, political capital, and now I intend to spend it." Listing his priorities, he never mentioned energy.

But now, with prices skyrocketing, the White House says energy ranks alongside Social Security on Bush's must-do list. He is pushing Congress to send him a long-stalled energy bill by August.

Yet, Bush unhappily concedes there's little he can do to bring gas prices down any time soon. "I wish I could," he said. "If I could, I would." Diverting from his attention to Social Security, Bush devoted two speeches to energy in a week's time.

NASA postpones first mission since Columbia because of ice concerns

By Marcia Dunn
Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — NASA on Friday pushed back the first post-Columbia space shuttle flight by at least two months, after last-minute analyses suggested that ice falling off the fuel tank could prove as catastrophic as the foam that doomed the last mission two years ago.

Discovery is now set to fly in mid-July, assuming engineers can perform the necessary repairs to eliminate the danger. The flight had been scheduled for late May.

The plan calls for installing a heater along a 70-foot liquid-oxygen pipe that runs along the tank — unprecedented work that will require NASA to remove the shuttle from the launch pad and roll it back into the shop.

"We are not going to rush to flight," said NASA's administrator of just two weeks, Michael Griffin. "We want it to be right, so we're doing what we need to do to ensure that."

The decision followed a flurry of launch-debris reviews in recent weeks that found to NASA's surprise that ice forming on certain unprotected spots on the tank could prove a potentially deadly source of shrapnel during liftoff.

Because it was a 1 1/2-pound chunk of fuel-tank foam insulation that damaged Columbia's wing and led to the spacecraft's destruction during re-entry in February 2003, NASA had focused on keeping large pieces of foam from coming off during launch. Ice — the commonplace result of the tank being filled with super-cold fuel — was considered less threatening and therefore less important for analysis.

Once ice began looming as a bigger threat, NASA hurriedly conducted tests and data analyses that concluded, just in the past few days, that even small, slushy patches of ice could fly off the oxygen feedline and strike the shuttle with deadly force. Engineers did not believe before that ice shards would actually hit the shuttle.

Through exhaustive research, NASA learned that pieces of ice forming on the expansion joints in the 70-foot feedline probably came off and smacked the shuttle in years past but caused only minor damage.

"That was the information that said, wait a minute, yes, maybe we've been a little lucky, maybe we don't understand this problem as well as we should," shuttle program manager Bill Parsons said.

Discovery and its crew of seven have from July 13 through July 31 to lift off. Otherwise, the 12-day supply and repair mission to the international space station will have to be put off until September.

The two-week launch window is dictated by both the position of the space station and NASA's insistence on launching Discovery in daylight, to provide good photographs of the shuttle that can be examined for any liftoff damage.

Griffin said he wants to launch as soon as possible. "Schedule matters," he said, referring to the need to finish building the space station. But he added: "It shouldn't matter to the point of causing people to do dumb things or to take ill-advised actions."

Station program manager Bill Gerstenmaier said the orbiting complex should be able to keep flying safely until Discovery gets there, even though the main oxygen generator is broken and the steering system is operating with the bare minimum number of working gyroscopes.

The shuttle fuel tank has already gone through extensive modifications since the Columbia catastrophe. NASA changed the way it applies some of the foam to the tank, and removed large sections of foam from certain trouble spots. Then heaters were installed to prevent ice from forming at those areas.

But the newly recognized ice problem involves expansion joints that have always been left bare, because insulation would only fall off the moving hardware.

Before the postponement, NASA devised a foam skirt, or "drip lip," to wick moisture away from those joints. Engineers believe it would reduce ice formation by 50 percent. But Parsons and others decided a more comprehensive repair was needed.

Mexican government pulls recognition of church

By Mark Stevenson
Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — Mexico's government canceled the official recognition of a religious group devoted to the worship of the Santa Muerte, or "Saint Death" on Friday, arguing the group had violated its own statutes.

While the cancellation will not prevent the group from continuing its religious practices, it does affect the church's right to raise money and own property.

The group, known officially as The Traditional Catholic Mex-USA Church, has no ties to the Roman Catholic church.

However, when the group registered with the Interior Department in 2003, it declared its purpose was to "conserve the Holy Tridentine Mass."

A dissident priest from the group asked the government last year to investigate the church, arguing it had violated that precept.

The group did not mention in its registry application that its main activity is to pray for the intercession of Saint Death, who devotees usually depict as a skeleton wearing women's robes and who they view as the right-hand servant of God.

Those rites appear to have little to do with the Tridentine Mass, the standard Latin Mass codified by Pope Pius V at the request of the Council of Trent in 1570.

"The complaint was filed by one of their own ministers, who requested their registration be canceled because they had severely altered the aims" of the group, the Interior Department said in a press statement.

"For this reason, the group forfeits its legal standing, and with it such rights as owning property ... and publicizing or transmitting its religious events in the mass media," the statement continued.

David Romo Guillen, the self-styled Bishop of the church's main shrine in a tough downtown Mexico City neighborhood, said the death-worshippers would not be deterred.

"We are going to carry on despite this," Romo Guillen said. "We are going to hold various mobilizations to stop this injustice."

In March, hundreds of death worshippers carrying statues of the grim reaper and white flowers marched through downtown Mexico City to demand respect for their religion.

They complained that, because the group draws most of its followers from rough neighborhoods and prisons, society at large — and some Catholic priests — brand them as criminals or drug addicts.

Many of the faithful recount miracles performed for them by Saint Death — depicted as a smiling female skeleton known as our "Our Little White Girl."

While the official Catholic church was not involved the complaint, some priests have accused the cult of seeking to profit from people's faith.

The Saint Death rites, which are performed in Spanish, use some phrases of Catholic liturgy, but mix them with other references not found in the official cannon.

Romo Guillen accused the Catholic church of being behind Friday's decision.

"This is clearly a persecution carried out by Rome, through the offices and agencies of the government," Romo Guillen said. The Mexican Council of Bishops was not immediately available to comment on those allegations.

Mexico enacted a very strict form of separation of church and state — including harsh anti-clerical laws — in the 1920s, and did not loosen those restrictions until the 1990s.

Mexican television actress dies following attempted robbery

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican television actress Mariana Levy died Friday of a heart attack after a man armed with a pistol approached her van on a Mexico City street.

Levy

Levy, 39, appeared on the Nuestra Casa show on the Televisa network. She started her career as a singer in the 1980s, and later went on to appear in more than a dozen soap operas.

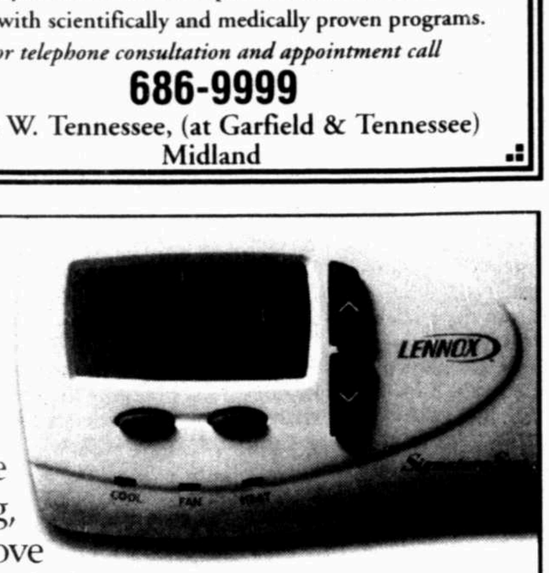

"We cannot feel anything other than an enormous rage and indignation," Televisa news anchor Adela Micha said of Levy's death. "Even if a bullet didn't kill her, the fear and the lack of public safety did."

A man was arrested and later identified by Levy's husband as the man who approached the vehicle, in which the couple was taking several children to a local amusement park.

Another witness said the man had earlier approached his car and tried to rob him, according to local prosecutor Carlos Gurrea.

But Gurrea noted the suspect — who was being held on suspicion of illegal weapons possession — did not apparently directly threaten or make any contact with Levy.

Vietnam keeps focus on future 30 years after U.S. troop withdrawal

By Tini Tran
Associated Press

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam — Vietnam celebrated the communist victory over a U.S.-backed government Saturday, parading its troops down the same boulevard along which tanks rolled to smash into the Presidential Palace of South Vietnam 30 years ago.

Watched by the country's top leaders and legendary figures like Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, soldiers, government workers and performers marched with red flags waving toward the palace gates. Hundreds of aging veterans, their chests dripping with medals, watched from the sidelines.

Giant billboards of Ho Chi Minh, Vietnam's revolutionary leader, dominated the parade ground and adjoining streets, which had been blocked off to the public because of security concerns.

On April 30, 1975, North Vietnamese tanks barreled through the gates of the palace, the heart of the U.S.-backed Saigon government. The fall of Saigon marked the official end to the Vietnam War, and the U.S.'s decade-long involvement in Southeast Asia. The war claimed some 58,000 American lives and an estimated 3 million Vietnamese.

"I was listening to the radio with my family and heard that Saigon had been liberated. I was very happy because for many years we weren't free. After 30 years we have rebuilt our country. Our land is safe and secure and I think the future will be better for my children," said To Thanh Nghia, 51, a government worker marching in the parade.

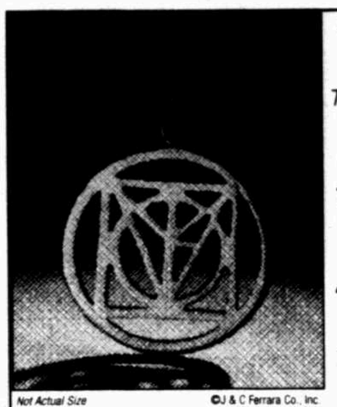

But the atmosphere in the country three decades later has been mostly festive, focusing on Vietnam's economic rejuvenation in recent years. Memories of the war and its aftermath are little more than anecdotes in history books for the majority of the country's population who were born after it ended.

"My father and grandfather fought in the war but I was too young. I think my future will be good because they created opportunities for my generation," said Nguyen Thanh Tung, an 18-year-old student. Taking part in the parade, he wore a drab olive uniform and wielded a wooden gun.

Down the grand boulevard where Communist tanks once rolled in, capitalism has taken solid root. Many of the parade floats were sponsored by American companies including VISA and American Express.

DEAR ABBY

Husband struggles to endure marriage of obligation

DEAR ABBY: I am a 46-year-old man who has been married for 29 years. I was a father at 18, and have been with "Barbara" ever since because I felt obligated to her and the kids. Our children are grown now, and I am still with her.

Frankly, what we have is more like a chore than a marriage. I won't even go into what I think about her family. I wish I could change and try to love her, but it has reached the point where I make excuses not to have sex. Even when Barbara calls me "Honey," it turns my stomach.

My wife is a good person, and I wish I had it in me to say I love her, but it's just not there. I am repelled emotionally and physically.

I am confused and don't want to hurt Barbara, but I can't say the words or go through the motions. I'd like us to be friends, and I'll live with her as long as she wants. We have discussed it, and she says she will never leave me or divorce me. What should I do? I'm ... A MESS IN COOPERSBURG, PA.

DEAR MESS: If you are asking me to give you permission to leave a woman who has given birth to and raised your children, and tried to be a good wife to you, I can't do it. You're already living with her as "friends." It's time to recognize there will be a high price for what you have in mind, and you must decide if it's worth it. Counseling might help you.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I have lived with my boyfriend for five years. "Brian" is a good man and a decent boyfriend. I get along well with his family and particularly his mom. Brian is sweet, sensitive and, for the most part, very laid-back.

My problem is Brian's temper. Although he has never physically abused me, when he gets angry, he completely loses control. He breaks things like phones, radios, doors and anything else around him. It is terrifying to watch. During those times, saying anything to him only makes it worse. Once I tried going out when it happened, and he broke the phone. After these episodes he's always terribly sorry and feels horrible.

I love him and don't want to leave him, but I'm beginning to question how this is affecting me. Abby, is this abusive behavior, and what can I do to help him regain control of his anger? — SECOND THOUGHTS IN PHILLY

DEAR SECOND THOUGHTS: Pack your bags and leave now. If you don't, your "sweet, sensitive, laid-back" boyfriend's outbursts will escalate until he hurts you — or the child you could have together if you stay. You cannot help your boyfriend regain control of his anger — only HE can do that, with professional help. His destructiveness is intended to intimidate you. Please don't tolerate it out of naivete and affection for his family, because without serious help it will only get worse.

P.S. If there is any chance he could lose control when he knows you are going, either do it while he's out or have a male family member with you.

DEAR ABBY: I have a slight tremor in my right hand, which makes my handwriting all but impossible to read. (Sometimes I even have trouble deciphering what I have written!)

When writing personal notes such as thank-yous or condolences, I use a script font on my word processor. I always close with my handwritten signature. Is it necessary to make a brief apology for this social indiscretion? — PETER IN GRASS VALLEY, CALIF.

DEAR PETER: I see no reason to apologize. I'm sure the recipient of your thank-you or condolence is grateful for your acknowledgment, whether it is handwritten or typed.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, April 30, 2005:
Often this year you will want to assume a low profile. On some level, that might work for you. You are blessed with unusual insight and perspective. You will get what you want, but not by pressuring others. Your charisma helps draw the right people to you. Your daily life is enhanced through October. You also could see a pay raise or promotion. Watch a tendency to overeat. If you are single, a cascade of suitors will greet you after the fall. You have the opportunity to meet someone very special this year. If you are attached, develop a hobby or pastime that you both enjoy. This common interest will create more warmth between you. Come winter, you will enjoy being together much more. AQUARIUS pushes you into the limelight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★★ You need to be where the crowds are. Add lightness where others are serious. Express your caring so that others can hear it. Sometimes actions speak louder than words. Use care with someone you meet today. Avoid negativity. Tonight: The party follows you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★ You might want to let your hair down and be more carefree. Responsibilities call, be it work or an older relative. You might feel that you don't have a choice. The good news is that when you decide to swing into weekend mode, others are delighted. Let go of a heavy feeling. Tonight: A must appearance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ Your vision and perspective help not only you, but many other people. You can manifest far more caring if you relax. Take in new information without making judgments. More facts will follow. Use care with spending. Tonight: Enjoy yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★ Work with individuals rather than groups. You could get into a game of Scrabble or some other favorite pastime. Quality time enhances a relationship much more than you'd anticipated. Go out for an early dinner. Tonight: Catch up on others' news.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ Unexpected events toss you into the limelight. How you see someone else could change because of a development involving a key friend or loved one. Enjoy being indulged. Tonight: Play follow-the-leader.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ Slow down and get into a favorite hobby or pastime as soon as you can. Clear out errands and calls. Share news and visit with people who add to the quality of your life. A little routine helps you relax. Tonight: Let someone else do the work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Allow more playfulness into your life. Everyone gets dragged down by the banality of his or her life sometimes. Initiate a change. Make your daily life more enjoyable by infusing lightness into it. Tonight: Do what is good for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Center activities on your home. Enjoy yourself with others, be it a child, a relative or new friends. Someone shares a more caring side with you. Getting to know him or her better could be a delight. Tonight: Share and be more open.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Look toward unexpected changes on the home front. Review recent decisions with an eye to a more dynamic approach. Though you might need a change, how you instrument it could be different from the norm. Tonight: Favorite place, favorite people.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ How you deal with someone could change because of new information. Be more accepting of the follies and problems of others. Indulge and buy that new item you have been thinking about. Give up being so budget-conscious. Tonight: Out on the town.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★ The Moon bestows energy on you. You no longer have a problem where there previously was one. Invest in your security rather than be so carefree. A purchase today could be very special but also expensive. Tonight: As you like it.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★ Know when to say little and simply be responsive. You have a tendency toward bold action. Know when to call it quits and head in another direction altogether. You draw many people. Be discerning. Tonight: How about some privacy?

Insurgents unleash bombs killing at least 50

By Thomas Wagner
Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Insurgents set off at least 17 bombs in Iraq on Friday, killing at least 50 people, including three U.S. soldiers, in a series of attacks aimed at shaking Iraq's newly formed government. An audio tape by one of America's most-wanted insurgents, Abu-Musab al-Zarqawi, warned President Bush there was more bloodshed to come.

The well-coordinated attacks, which also wounded 114 Iraqis and seven Americans, came as political leaders are trying to curb the insurgency by including all of Iraq's main religious and ethnic groups into an uncertain new Shiite-dominated government that takes office Tuesday. Most of the bombing targets were Iraqi security forces and police, whom insurgents accuse of collaborating with the Americans.

An association of Sunni Muslim clerics believed to have links with the insurgency, saw little prospect for peace as long as U.S. forces remain in Iraq.

"We don't believe that the government will solve the problems of an occupied Iraq. We don't trust the government," Harith al-Dhari, head of the Association of Muslim Scholars, told Turkey's Anatolia news agency. "We don't see hope because the occupation is continuing."

U.S. officials had hoped the new Cabinet approved Thursday would help dent support for the militants within the Sunni Arab minority that dominated under ousted leader Saddam Hussein and is now believed to be driving the insurgency. However, the lineup excludes Sunnis from meaningful positions and leaves the key defense ministry in temporary hands.

"You, Bush, we will not rest until we avenge our dignity," al-Zarqawi said in the audiotape that was posted on the Internet. "We will not rest while your army is here as long as there is a pulse in our veins." He threatened more attacks against U.S. forces and warned against collaborating with Americans.

In Washington, an intelligence official said the tape appeared to be genuine.

The deadliest of Friday's attacks were multiple bombings in the small Baghdad neighborhood of Azamiyah and in the town of Madain, 12 miles southeast of the capital.

Despite the day's bloody toll, the U.S. military maintained that attacks are diminishing overall in Iraq.

"We see these attacks as another desperate attempt by the terrorists to discredit the newly formed Iraqi government" and "drive a wedge between the Iraqi people and their right to choose their own destiny," the military said in a statement.

Gen. Wafiq al-Samarie, Iraq's presidential adviser for security affairs, urged Iraqis to stand up to insurgents.

"Today too many car bomb attacks took place, but this is not the end," he said in an interview with al-Jazeera television. "Our people should stand up against these criminals. ... Security is everybody's responsibility."

At least 13 car bombs exploded in and around the capital Friday, killing at least 23 Iraqi security force members and wounding 31, the U.S. military said. Iraqi police said they included six suicide attacks.

Trinity takes TCAL state championship

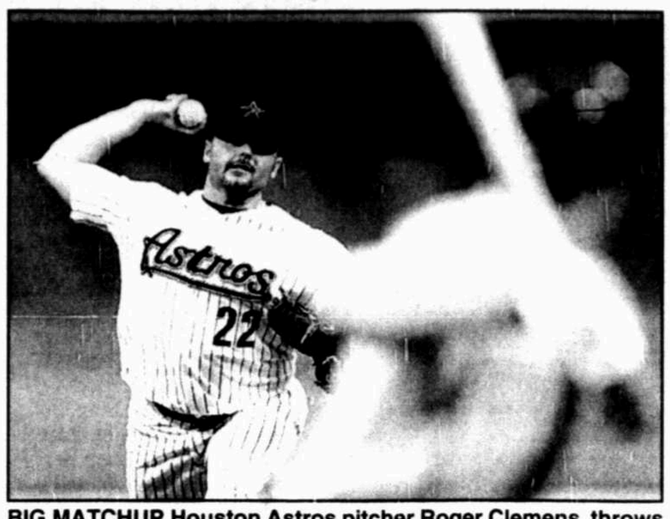

From staff reports

PASADENA — It wasn't as easy as it looked it could have been for the Trinity baseball team, but the Chargers nonetheless got the job done — and brought home a state championship.

The Chargers, who have routinely knocked around opponents at the plate this season, got only five hits in their Texas Christian Athletic League championship game Friday against Fort Worth Temple Baptist, but they made them count. Pitcher Matt Russell made a five-run lead hold up, and with some relief help from Matt Roam, led Trinity to the state title with a 5-2 victory.

Trinity (20-4) could be forgiven for wanting to take it easy after thrashing Houston Life Christian 26-0 in a five-inning run-rule decision in Thursday's semifinals. But the Chargers faced the challenge of having to make five runs in the third and fourth innings combined stand up.

Cubs' Maddux outduels Clemens for 3-2 victory

By Joel Anderson

HOUSTON — Greg Maddux outpitched Roger Clemens in a rare duel between 300-game winners, and Jeromy Burnitz hit a tiebreaking homer in the seventh inning to lead the Chicago Cubs over the reeling Houston Astros 3-2 Friday night.

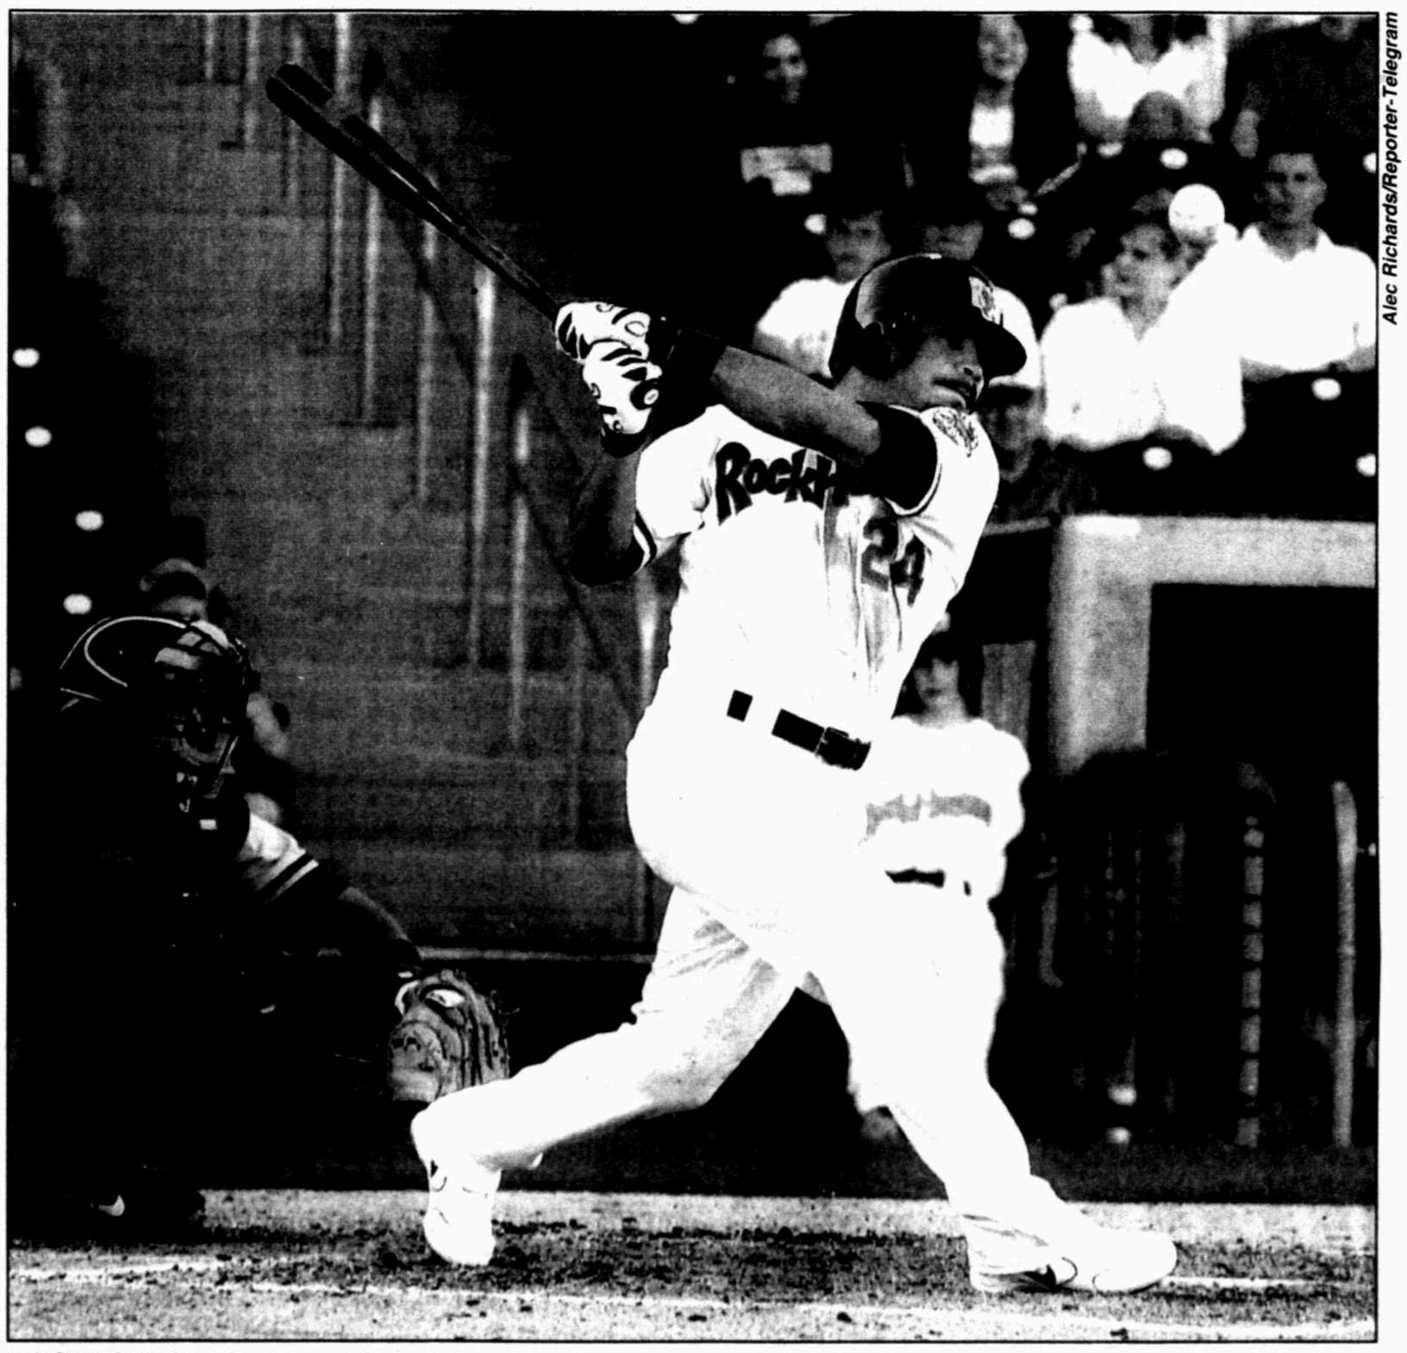

Maddux (1-1) got his 306th career win and first since the Cubs' 2004 season-finale against Atlanta. He lasted six innings, giving up two runs on seven hits with three strikeouts and one walk.

Maddux was lifted in the seventh for a pinch-hitter, and Michael Wuertz, Will Ohman and Roberto Novoa combined to pitch two scoreless innings before LaTroy Hawkins pitched a scoreless ninth for his fourth save.

Clemens (1-1) pitched seven strong innings to hold up his end of the marquee matchup. The Rocket allowed three runs on seven hits and

Wichita out-hits, out-homers RockHounds

By Len Hayward
Sports Editor

Friday night's game between Wichita and Midland was one of those Tall City minor league baseball classics with plenty of runs (24), hits (27), home runs (5) and windy conditions at Citibank Ballpark.

But it was also another tough night for the RockHounds in their second home stand of the season.

The Wranglers scored six runs in the first two innings, and scored at least one run in seven of the nine innings to take a 13-11 victory in front of 3,434 fans. It was the RockHounds' second consecutive loss.

"We had a lot of opportunities and we took advantage of them," Wichita manager Frank White said. "But so did they, and when you hit home runs, it brings you back quick."

The Wranglers wasted little time working on Midland starter Drew Dickinson. The Wranglers had four consecutive hits and scored two runs before Dickinson recorded his first out when he struck out Cory Aldridge.

One batter later, though, Mike Aviles hit a three-run home run to left field for a 5-0 Wichita lead that was a sign of things to come in this game. The Wranglers added one more in the second for a 6-0 advantage as Dickinson left in the second with one out and a full-count on Wichita first baseman Justin Huber.

Wranglers	13
RockHounds	11

But that six-run lead disintegrated during the second and third innings.

The RockHounds scored four in the second, with Matt Allegra, Andrew Beattie each recording RBI, and Lloyd Turner hitting a two-run single to left that scored Allegra and Beattie to cut the lead to 6-4.

An inning later, the RockHounds tied the game with one swing. Brant Colamarino, who was 3-for-4 with a walk, hit a two-run home run to right field to knot the game at 6-6. Allegra was also 3-for-4 with an RBI.

Wichita, though, took the lead back at 7-6 in the fourth and the RockHounds were playing catch-up the rest of the game.

During the top of the fourth, an already stiff wind shifted from the southwest to northwest, changing the nature of the game and the ballpark with the wind blowing out to right field.

Wichita increased its lead while the left-handed hitter heavy RockHounds struggled at the plate in the middle innings.

The Wranglers added two more runs in the fifth thanks to a two-run homer by Shane Costa, which was one of five in the game, and two more in the sixth, which also came on a

Hill wins bronze, others just miss out at I-5A meet

LUBBOCK — Lee junior Lacy Hill admitted she was nervous as the preliminary round of the discus approached its conclusion on Friday. A throw of little more than 117 feet had an outside chance to qualify for the finals in a solid regional field.

Webb

But upon receiving a spot among the top eight competitors, Hill unleashed a season-best throw of 125-9 on her first attempt of the finals. The effort was good enough for third place in the region, one place short of a berth in the state meet but a new school record.

"I scared everyone again," Hill said. "I had to make it interesting. We were afraid I wouldn't make the finals so I'm very happy with third. Not necessarily satisfied, but happy."

Hill put an excellent cap on her first track and field season at Lee after transferring from Burnet High prior to the school year. She followed a district championship performance two weeks ago in Odessa with a bronze medal at the Region I-5A meet.

Though the throw reset the Lady Rebels discus record, it wasn't a career best. Hill threw a 129 at a regional

Lee's Rodgers lone Midland rep in I-5A semifinals

By Garrett Luft
MRT Correspondent

LUBBOCK — Friday was a rough day for all but one Midland tennis player at the Region I-5A tennis tournament in Lubbock.

Rodgers

Lee junior Brett Rodgers advanced to the regional semifinals before being defeated by El Paso Franklin's John Nanosky 6-2, 2-6, 7-6 (4), while Midland High's Wright Womack, Lee's Sureena Weir, and the Lee doubles team of Katie Benton and Mandy Fly were all defeated in the first round of tournament play.

Rodgers quickly dispensed of Arlington Martin's Kyle Faber (6-2, 6-1) and Grapevine's Bert Srianant (6-4, 6-2) before facing Nanosky in the semifinals. After Rodgers lost the first set, heavy winds and a light drizzle began to hit the Burgess-Rushing Tennis Center. The change in the weather also brought a change in Rodgers' game, as he broke Nanosky's powerful serve in the third game and took the second set 6-3.

Both players held serve in the final set before Nanosky took the tiebreaker 7-4. Despite the loss, Rodgers still has a chance to reach the state tournament today as a result of reaching today's semifinals.

"It's all the same to me," Rodgers said. "I would not be upset with third place. As it is, I just wanted to come out and play the best tennis I could."

Womack faced a difficult opening draw on the other side of the boys' bracket by having to face the tournament's top-seeded player in Josh Zavala of Amarillo Tascosa. Womack managed to reach a tiebreak in the first set but still lost 7-6 (4), 6-0.

Rockets lament lost chance to deflate Mavericks in Game 3

By Joel Anderson
Associated Press

HOUSTON — The Houston Rockets were rolling late in Game 3, and Yao Ming seemed to put the game out of reach when he took a pass from Jon Barry and scored despite a hard foul from Dallas forward Dirk Nowitzki.

The Rockets sideline erupted in celebration, the crowd roared and Barry raced to the other end of the floor pumping his fist. Yao was going to the free throw line to give Houston a nine-point lead.

Not so fast.

An official ruled Nowitzki hacked Yao on the floor and waved off the basket, deflating the Rockets at the start of an amazing 20-0 run by Dallas in the Mavericks' 106-102 win on Thursday night. Dallas has a chance to even the first-round playoff series in Game 4 on Saturday night.

"That game was still in our hands," Yao said. "We should have taken care of that."

But the Rockets never recovered and will be forced to go back to Dallas for Game 5 on Monday night because of their collapse.

On Friday, the Rockets were still lamenting a missed opportunity to take a commanding 3-0 lead over Dallas — a hole no NBA team has ever rallied from.

"We'd love to be 3-0 ... but it didn't work out," said Rockets coach Jeff Van Gundy, who was unusually dour — even for him.

Houston had been expecting this sort of desperate push from the Mavericks, who had won nine straight and 16 of their last 18 going into the playoffs under rookie coach Avery Johnson. Someone wrote "Read, React and Make Them Pay" on a wipe board in the Rockets' locker room. They even wore black road shoes to remind themselves of the daunting task ahead.

It seemed to work.

The Rockets weathered an early run by the Mavericks, even after falling behind by 10 points late in the first half. Then Tracy McGrady resumed his near-flawless execution of Houston's catch-and-shoot offense — with childhood idol Magic Johnson watching from a courtside seat — and led the Rockets to an 11-point lead in the third quarter.

But the Mavericks started chipping away at the lead and the Rockets fell apart down the stretch — an odd late-game flop for the league's most experienced team.

"It was a real shame watching that game on film," Barry said. "Our focus wasn't there and we paid the price for it."

The 20-point run by Dallas — the longest in the playoffs since San Antonio did it against the Mavericks on May 29, 2003 — finally gave the Mavericks proof that they could slow down the Rockets.

Houston went more than six minutes without a

Lee at San Angelo Central

When/where: 2 p.m., today, Central High

Records: Lee is 17-11 overall, 7-4 in District 3-5A; Central is 5-16 and 1-10.

Last meeting: Lee 10, Central 0 (April 5)

Last game: Lee 5, Odessa Permian 4; Abilene Cooper 6, San Angelo Central 5

Notes: The Rebels are in a simple predicament today: Win and they're in the playoffs, no ifs, ands or buts. They'll clinch a tie for second place with a victory . If they lose and Cooper beats Odessa High, that would create a district playoff to determine the third and final representative from the district for the playoffs. No matter what, the Rebels will keep playing after today... The way Lee is playing right now, the playoffs look like reality, if not a formality. The Rebels have won three straight in district, their best streak of the season... On paper, this game would appear to be a mismatch. Central is guaranteed of finishing last in the district by at least two games, but the Bobcats have shown some signs of life in their last two games. They fought district champion Midland High tough at Zachery Field before losing 5-1, and lost to Cooper by a run on Tuesday... Lee beat Central 10-0 in a five-inning run-rule decision in their first meeting of the season. Sophomore right-hander Conrad Flynn threw a one-hitter while striking out nine and not walking any, and will likely get the call today. Tim Smith, Barry Keiffer and Brandon Britto each had two hits in the game for the Rebels.

Fort Bend Baptist Academy scores 3 in 6th to beat Midland Christian

From staff reports

BOERNE — Midland Christian's young baseball team hung tough in the postseason pressure cooker for 5 1/2 innings Friday, but it wasn't enough in the end.

Fort Bend Baptist Academy scored three runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to beat Midland Christian 7-4 in a TAPPS Class 5A bi-district playoff game at Boerne High. The Mustangs finished the season at 17-11.

Midland Christian trailed 4-3 heading into the sixth inning, but the Mustangs tied it when Lane Ogden hit a home run to left field to make it 4-4. But that lead didn't hold up in the bottom half of the inning.

Fort Bend's leadoff batter reached on an error against Midland Christian reliever Carson Smith, who then walked the second batter before a bunt single loaded the bases. Chris Withrow, who started the game on the mound, relieved Smith and was greeted by Zack Jordan's two-run single to right. Grant Parkman's sacrifice fly capped the scoring for Fort Bend (22-8).

Reid Redman led off the seventh with a double to center but the Mustangs couldn't get anybody else on base and their season ended.

"We had a great season but this is a disappointing loss," said Midland Christian coach Dale Redman, whose team returns seven starters next season. "We'll just start getting ready for next year."

Midland Christian took a 3-0 lead in the second inning as Ogden was hit by a pitch, Justin Herricks doubled and Withrow's fly ball was dropped in right field, allowing a run to score. Brett Burleson and Reid Redman each drove in runs with singles.

Herricks and Redman each had two hits for the Mustangs.

TRINITY

(From 1B)

"We had to play some small ball and manufacture runs any way we could," Trinity coach Danny Jordan said. "The bottom half of the order really stepped up to help out the top half today."

The game was scoreless until the third when Mikey Christensen and Austin Grigsby walked to start the inning against Temple Baptist starter Brian Caldwell. Luke Hoffman drove in the first run with a single, then Nathan Midkiff singled home a run before Roam's sacrifice fly capped the inning to give the Chargers a 3-0 lead.

Hoffman's single proved to be just the spark the Chargers needed against Caldwell, who looked dominant to start the game.

"(Caldwell) shut us down the first two innings," said Hoffman, one of several seniors on the Trinity baseball team. "Nobody really got a good bat on the ball. Once we started seeing the ball we got his speed down."

In the fourth inning, Preston Midkiff's two-run double gave the Chargers a 5-0 lead. The freshman is Trinity's No. 9 hitter, but he came up with the big hit which gave the Chargers some breathing room.

"We produce all through the lineup," Preston Midkiff said. "We don't have a weak bat out there. We have the best coaches so we all know how to hit."

Russell also showed that he knows how to pitch. Trinity's ace, who finished the season 8-0, struck out seven hitters in 5 2/3 innings and gave up only three hits.

After giving up a run in the top of the fifth, Russell, who was named the TCAL tournament MVP, retired the first two batters in the sixth before he walked two batters, and Jordan decided to be cautious and relieve him with Roam, who earned the save.

"We told (Russell) in the second half of the season he was the man," Jordan said. "We were gonna ride him like a thoroughbred. It was sure nice to have a guy like Roam come in to put the fire out."

Roam did give up a run in the top of the seventh, but it was too little, too late for Temple Baptist. Russell acknowledged it was nice to have a five-run lead early.

"Once we started scoring runs it gave me a little cushion to mess with," Russell said. "That really helped me out to get that many runs."

Perhaps the biggest foe the Chargers faced in the championship game was overconfidence. It would have been easy for Trinity to assume that a state title would be a breeze after crushing Houston Life Christian the day before.

But the Chargers knew not to take anything for granted as a young program. This is only their third year of existence, and their second under Jordan, a Lee grad and former Lee and Midland High hitting coach whose Trinity players have obviously learned their lessons.

"For two solid years we laid a foundation," Jordan said. "We picked up where last year's bunch left off (going to the TAPPS 3A playoffs). It's very satisfying.

"We demanded that a state championship had to be our goal. They found a way to get it done at a very fast rate."

meet last year with Burnet, also earning her a third-place finish.

Hill was the only Midland athlete to claim a medal during the first day of the regional meet, though Midland High's Andrew Webb and Lee's Anthony Reasno came close, each finishing fourth. Webb cleared 6-6 on his second attempt during the high jump, but could not get over the bar at 6-8 and settled for fourth.

Despite an injured hamstring suffered at the district meet, the Midland High senior did not miss a jump until his first attempt at 6-6, while Mansfield High's Grant Lindsey cleared on his first attempt at that height to earn the tiebreaker and the bronze.

"I think I could have done better," Webb said. "My leg, I thought it hurt, but it really wasn't a factor. I got a few good jumps up to 6-8. My first jump on 6-8 was probably my best. I just didn't follow through with it. It just didn't work out today."

Abilene High's Lyle Leong, a friend and fellow District 3-5A rival of Webb's, cleared 6-8 on his final attempt to place second. Allen's Luke Barr won the event in a jump of seven feet and threatened the Region I-5A record of 7-1.

Reasno opened the scoring for the Rebels in the triple jump, posting a 45-9 3/4 to finish fourth. The Lee senior also helped his team secure spots in the finals of two relays.

Lee's final points of the day came from distance runner Billy Giano, whose surge to close the 3200-meter run earned him a sixth-place finish. Giano hovered around sixth and seventh place for much of the race before passing Weatherford's David Hebert in the final 50 meters to place. Giano will compete in the 1600-meter run today.

"I went in feeling all right," he said. "It was really weird. My arms got really tired about the first three laps and I fell back in there for a little bit. I just picked it up at the end pulling out sixth place. We have the fastest region in the state and you've got to go out there and leave it all out on the track. I did my best, I'm looking forward to the mile (today) to make up for it."

Plano High's Scott McPherson dominated the competition in the event, setting a regional record with a time of 9 minutes, 19.26 seconds.

The Rebels almost turned the hat trick in Friday's preliminaries, qualifying two of three relays for today's finals. Lee posted the second-best time in the 400-meter relay, a season-best 41.87, while running a 1:27.86 in the 800 relay, good for the No. 3 seed in the finals. The Rebels came up short in the 1600 relay, finishing fifth in their heat.

"We are excited about the four-by-one and four-by-two," Lee boys track coach Mike Meeks said. "We ran well, although we did not run well in the four-by-four. That's a little disappointing. It's hard to get all three relays in the finals. We'll focus on those short relays tomorrow and try to get those to Austin."

Lee's crosstown counterparts were equally impressive Friday. The Bulldogs qualified for the finals in the sprint relay, grabbing the fourth seed with a time of 42.15.

Midland High also boasted two individual qualifiers in junior Baron Batch (100) and senior Cody Hoover (400). Batch tied for the best time of Friday's preliminaries at 10.68 seconds.

Also in the 100, Lee junior Christina Rountree claimed a spot in the finals with a 12.04-second run. She competed in the finals of the 200 at the regional meet last year.

The Lady Bulldogs will be represented today by junior Jenny Maynard, who ran a 45.66-second race in the 300-meter hurdles en route to berth in the top eight.

The final day of the Region I-5A meet begins with field events at 9 a.m., followed by running events at 2:30 p.m.

TENNIS

"He is really good," Womack said of Zavala, who advanced to today's championship match against Nanosky. "He hits a really heavy ball with a lot of topspin. We both played a great first set, but I had too many unforced errors in the second set. I was expecting him to let down a little in that second set, but he played even better."

The championship match between Nanosky and Zavala could have a bearing on Rodgers' state tournament hopes if Nanosky goes on to be the region champion. Rodgers will play Aleix Blackington from Plano West in the third place match at 9 a.m. today.

Should he win that match, he could still earn a state berth in a playback match against Zavala. If Rodgers loses or Zavala wins, Rodgers' season will be over.

Should Rodgers get another shot at Zavala, it will be the second time the two have met this season, with Zavala getting the win in straight sets earlier in the year.

"I'm playing a lot better than I was back when I played him the first time, and I think I know a little more about his game now," Rodgers said.

In the girls' bracket, Weir came out strong by winning the first set against Colleyville Heritage's Katie Poettecker 4-6. Yet with her back against the wall, Poettecker turned her game to a new level and the Lee sophomore could not finish off the match, falling 6-2 and 6-4 in the next two sets.

"Sureena played the toughest match of any 2-seed against another district's champion," Lee head coach Steve Buck said. "I think she was probably the best number two here. She will have more confidence when she gets back here next year."

As Weir played her first match at Monterey High School, Benton and Fly were in their first match at the Burgess-Rushing Tennis Center, a scenario that was less than desirable for Buck.

"It was an awful tough situation because (Sureena) was playing at the same time as my girls' doubles team and I was with those girls," Lee head coach Steve Buck said. "I had my assistant coach calling me and giving me updates as often as she could, but it was hard not to be able to be there with both at the same time."

Fly and Benton were never able to get momentum in their opening match against Shannon Mackenzie and Lyndsay Ottosen of Allen as the Lee seniors fell 6-3, 6-3.

"You always want to win, but we just were not on today and that happens sometimes," said Benton, who also reached the region tournament last year as the doubles partner of Lauren Wilson.

"I am in a unique situation because I coach these kids in junior high too, so it is always tough to lose seniors," Buck said. "I've had those girls for six years now and I've seen them grow up, so it was really hard to watch them lose their last match."

Iverson hits 37 as 76ers race past Pistons

Associated Press

■ NBA Playoffs

PHILADELPHIA — Allen Iverson scored 37 points and handed out five of his 15 assists in the fourth quarter to lead the Philadelphia 76ers past the Detroit Pistons 115-104 Friday night.

The Sixers defeated the defending NBA champions for the first time in the best-of-seven series, cutting Detroit's lead to 2-1. Game 4 is Sunday.

Iverson led the way as Philadelphia overcame an early 13-point deficit and then played its best ball in the fourth quarter, keeping the Pistons from getting much offense from anyone other than Ben Wallace.

Detroit's center scored a career-high 29 points and grabbed 16 rebounds, but the Pistons got only two points from their reserves to offset another 50-percent shooting effort from the field — the third time in the series they've made at least half their shots.

Despite that efficiency, the Pistons couldn't find a way to stop Iverson after holding him to 35-percent shooting in the first two games. He finished 15-for-26 from the field, including 2-for-4 from 3-point range.

Chauncey Billups started as the primary defender on Iverson, and Richard Hamilton took over the job later in the game. But even when the Pistons managed to get the ball out of Iverson's hands, he was able to find open teammates who were able to knock down shots.

Chris Webber scored nine of his 19 points in the fourth quarter, Rodney Rogers added 15 points, Samuel Dalembert had 14 points and 10 rebounds and Andre Iguodala had 13 points and seven steals for Philadelphia, which shot 55 percent.

Suns 110, Grizzlies 90

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Amare Stoudemire scored 30 points, and the Phoenix Suns rolled over the Memphis Grizzlies for the franchise's first 3-0 lead in a best-of-seven series.

Joe Johnson scored 20 points and reserve Jim Jackson added 17 for Phoenix. Shawn Marion added 14 points and 13 rebounds, Steve Nash had 13 points and eight assists.

Lorenzen Wright led Memphis with 14 points. Pau Gasol and Mike Miller had 13 apiece, and Shane Battier and Jason Williams scored 10 each.

The knock on the Suns despite their NBA-leading 62 victories in the regular season was that they couldn't handle physical play from bigger opponents, preferring to sprint up and down the floor.

The Grizzlies felt the time finally had arrived for the franchise's first playoff victory after seven straight losses. They thought they had only themselves to blame in losing Game 2 108-103 on Wednesday night and expected their frenzied fans to provide the edge the team lacked in Phoenix.

Nemechek hovering near breakthrough 2005 season

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala. — At 41, Joe Nemechek is well aware he is no young up-and-comer.

Racing in NASCAR's top stock car series full-time since 1994, Nemechek has won just four times in 366 starts and has never finished better than 15th in the season points.

But that's no reason Nemechek, who moved into the No. 01 Chevrolet late in the 2003 season, can't still feel like a championship contender.

Last year, his first full season with the ambitious MB2 Motorsports team, Nemechek had a rebirth of sorts, running competitively most of the season, winning a race in Kansas City and finishing 19th in the points. It was his first time in the top 20 since that 15th-place finish with the now-defunct team of Andy Petree in 2000.

Last season's surge raised expectations — both Nemechek's and the team's. But the 2005 season has gotten off to a so-so start, with Nemechek 24th in the standings and his best showings in the first eight races a pair of 10th-place finishes.

Still, both those top 10s have come in the last three races and Nemechek remains optimistic heading into Sunday's Aaron's 499 at Talladega Superspeedway, a track where he has finished as high as third and is a perennial contender. He drove to seventh place last October after starting from the pole here for the third time since October 1999.

Nemechek, a disappointing 24th in qualifying Friday on the 2.66-mile oval, said he still expects to be a factor in the race.

"We'll be OK once the drafting starts," he said. "All we want to do is be consistent, get a top 10. If we can do that every weekend, we're going to be a threat for the championship."

So, what has been the problem so far this season?

"You just look back at what coulda, shoulda, woulda," Nemechek said. "Heck, we'd be easy top 10 in the points. But the team has done their job as far as building good, quality race cars and I've been able to keep them in front. We've had bad luck with parts and pieces and we just haven't finished."

Nemechek pointed out he started the season strong, finishing 13th in the Daytona 500, then leading 63 laps at California Speedway the next week before an engine failure relegated him to a 39th-place finish. A punctured radiator at Atlanta and a crash at Bristol also slowed his progress before he turned things around with those 10th-place finishes at Martinsville and Phoenix sandwiched around a 17th at Texas.

Nemechek has been around long enough that he knows how to deal with the up-and-down nature of racing.

"Having those years of experience is what makes me the kind of race driver I am," he said. "I feel it makes me smarter. I know what I want in my race car. I know what I want the thing to drive like and I know we do some crazy things with aerodynamics, and I know we make the cars drive bad now.

"But I still know what kind of feel I need in that car in order to put it in a position to win the race. And it just comes with experience."

And running into misfortune on the race track doesn't keep him down for long.

"There are a lot of guys that don't take care of their equipment and can't finish," Nemechek said. "But I've always been a pretty smart driver, trying to stay out of the accidents, trying not to abuse the engine, the transmission, the rear end gear. Abusing all that stuff is making sure you can't finish.

"But putting yourself in the right situation on the racetrack is very important, too. Sometimes things happen, but you can't say, 'Hey, my car's good and I'm just going to go out and stay out of trouble today.' I mean, you have to do it all the time, not just whenever you have a good car."

Another reason for Nemechek's optimism is his relationship with crew chief Ryan Pemberton.

"He's young, he's energetic," Nemechek said. "Ryan is very upbeat, and that does keep the team pumped up. Just watching him makes me laugh, and you've got to put a smile on your face.

"He has a way with people and that's why we've been able to draw such good people at MB2."

Pemberton is just as enamored of working with Nemechek.

"We know each other pretty well at this point," Pemberton said. "Both of us have been down some and we're looking to prove a little something. I think we've come to the point where we have the ability to run up front all the time. Now we just have to go out and show everybody we can do it."

So put it all together and Nemechek, who will be among the favorites on Sunday, is feeling good about his chances this year.

"It seems like some drivers have more bad luck than others," he said. "In my case, just like this year. I still think that this year can be my best year in Cup racing."

Harvick captures Talladega pole

By Mike Harris
Associated Press

TALLADEGA, Ala. — Kevin Harvick marked the birthday of the late Dale Earnhardt by winning the pole Friday at Talladega Superspeedway.

It was the third Nextel Cup pole for Harvick, who moved into Earnhardt's seat at Richard Childress Racing a week after the seven-time NASCAR champion was killed in the 2001 Daytona 500.

"Obviously, it's really special for everybody at RCR and the whole GM Goodwrench crew," Harvick said. "Hopefully, we can open a new chapter in the long book of history that Dale and everybody at RCR have shared here and get a win on Sunday."

Earnhardt, who would have been 54 Friday, won nine races at Talladega, making Childress the winningest car owner to compete here. Harvick has two second-place finishes in eight starts on the 2.66-mile track.

Harvick picked up considerably from his practice speeds Friday with a qualifying lap of 189.804 mph that was virtually unchallenged. Jeff Gordon was next at 188.988, putting Chevrolets on the front row for the Aaron's 499.

"I think when you go back and look at most of the restrictor-plate races, we usually make one run and try not to overwork our motor," Harvick explained. "That's always been the philosophy of (crew chief) Todd Berrier, to run as few laps as possible.

"We put everything we think we have on the car, and that's pretty much what we've got. There's no reason to beat a dead horse."

Harvick was particularly happy with Friday's showing, considering he was driving a new car.

"We destroyed both cars at Daytona (in February), so we had to go home and build new cars," he said. "It's obviously been a long process. We had to build new bodies and new chassis. Hopefully, we can carry the success of today on to Sunday."

Gordon has won three of the last four races at Talladega and Daytona, the two tracks where NASCAR requires the horsepower-sapping carburetor restrictor plates to slow the cars.

He said missing the pole Friday was not a big disappointment.

"I don't know where those guys found that speed, but I'm happy with second," Gordon said. "We won this race here last year in this car."

Elliott Sadler was third in a Ford at 188.548, followed by Scott Riggs in a Chevy at 188.474 and Ryan Newman in a Dodge at 188.237. Gordon's Hendrick Motorsports teammate Jimmie Johnson, the series points leader, was sixth at 188.226.

Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Michael Waltrip — mates on the DEI team founded by Earnhardt's father — were a disappointing 36th and 38th. They have combined to win 11 of the last 16 restrictor-plate races.

"It's disappointing to qualify as bad as we do, compared to how we used to run here" said Earnhardt, who won here last October and finished third behind winner Gordon and Kurt Busch in the Daytona 500 in February. "We've got to figure out how to get these things to run a little better by themselves. It's a little embarrassing.

"But we were slow in qualifying at Daytona. We will get up there somehow in the race. We always do."

Atwal holds one-stroke lead after two rounds

Associated Press

AVONDALE, La. — India's Arjun Atwal overcame Friday's gusting winds to shoot a 4-under 68 and take a one-stroke lead over J.J. Henry after two rounds of the Zurich Classic.

Atwal, looking for his first PGA Tour victory, had six birdies and two bogeys in gusts of up to 25 mph and moved 11-under 133. Henry had a second straight 67 to get to 10 under, and Chris DiMarco, playing in his first event since losing the Masters in a playoff, had a 71 and was tied with Tim Clark (69) at 8 under.

"I didn't hit it too well in the first few holes, when there was no wind," Atwal said. "But I got it up and down a few times, just steady stuff. And as the wind started to pick up, I kind of started to focus a little bit better and hit it closer and made a few putts."

Lucas Glover had a second-round 68 and was at 7 under. Defending champion Vijay Singh followed an opening 67 with a 71 and was in a three-way tie for sixth place at 6 under.

Henry, who was among the late starters Friday, was unfazed by the windy conditions and found the course to his liking.

"It was another kind of stress-free day to be honest with you," Henry said. "I feel real comfortable on this golf course.

■ Zurich Classic

"I like the way most of the holes fit. I'm driving the ball well, my ball striking has actually been great for the last couple of weeks, and my putter is finally catching up."

Henry, whose best finish this season was a tie for 26th at the BellSouth Classic, had six birdies and a bogey.

"This is my fifth year out here and I've put myself in position a couple of times," Henry said. "I think I'm finally realizing that living and dying by every shot is not the way to win golf tournaments."

DiMarco, who was tied for the lead after the first round, had an inconsistent round that included an eagle, four birdies, three bogeys and a double bogey.

At 10 under heading to the par-5 18th, DiMarco hit his tee shot into the water to the right of the fairway and scrambled to make a double-bogey 7.

"I have to give that to lack of knowledge of the golf course," DiMarco said. "For some reason, I think that right side that you can get to that far bunker out there. I'm not long enough to get to that bunker. I tried to take a little more off than I can chew. I thought it was going to fly into the bunker and it didn't even get close."

The event is being is played at the Pete Dye-designed TPC of Louisiana, which replaced English Turn.

DiMarco made bogey at Nos. 6, 9, and 15, but made eagle at the par-5 seventh and had three birdies on the back nine.

"I need a birdie on (No.) 1 tomorrow and I'll be fine," DiMarco said. "Every bogey I made today, I made a birdie right after."

Atwal, playing on a sponsor's exemption, has made 12 cuts in 30 starts and has two top-10 finishes. Last year, he finished in the money in 14 of the 30 events he played.

Oklahoma investigating racial remarks by head baseball coach

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — An assistant coach will assume the duties of veteran head baseball coach Larry Cochell while the University of Oklahoma reviews remarks he made during two off-camera interviews earlier this week, officials said Friday.

Before Tuesday's telecast of the Oklahoma-Wichita State game on ESPN2 and ESPNU, Cochell used racial epithets as he praised freshman outfielder Joe Dunigan, who is black, ESPN reported on their Web site.

While speaking with play-by-play announcer Gary Thorne, Cochell called Dunigan over to compliment him for staying in school. When the freshman returned to the field, Cochell used the epithet to describe Dunigan, according to a story on the Web site.

In a later discussion about Dunigan with ESPN analyst Kyle Peterson, Cochell used derogatory words to describe blacks and whites before saying, "Dunigan is a good black kid."

University officials weren't informed of the remarks until 4 p.m. Friday, when they were contacted by ESPN, according to the school's statement.

Although Cochell remains head coach, assistant coach Sunny Golloway will serve as head coach on an interim basis until the matter is resolved, the statement said.

"It is widely known that one of the most important values of the University of Oklahoma and its leadership is to celebrate diversity as a strength," Athletics Director Joe Castiglione said. "This university is a place where everyone is respected. Clearly, if these comments were made they run contrary to the core values of this institution and we will treat them very seriously."

Cochell couldn't immediately be reached Friday night for comment.

Oberst leads MC softball to two victories vs. EPCC

From staff reports

EL PASO — The No. 9-ranked Midland College softball team took different routes to win both games in a Western Junior Conference Athletic Conference doubleheader Friday.

The Lady Chaparrals invoked the run-rule in the opener against El Paso Community College, winning the first game 10-2 by scoring all their runs in the fourth and fifth innings. It was a little tougher in the second game, though, as Midland College committed six errors to keep the Tejanas alive before holding on for a 6-5 victory.

"The second game the big difference was the six errors we had," MC coach Tommy Ramos said. "It gave them opportunities to get runners on late in the game. I think the defense got real comfortable and relaxed too much."

Elizabeth Oberst was the winning pitcher for the Lady Chaps (48-12-1 overall, 30-4 WJCAC) in both games, but she had an easier time in the first game. She gave up two runs in the bottom of the third, but Midland College's bats came alive in the last two innings.

The Lady Chaps went up 3-2 in the fourth, sparked by a two-run home run by Jenifer McDowell. They added seven more in the fifth, as Danielle Payne hit a grand slam homer and Anna Rico followed it with a solo homer.

MC never trailed in the second game as they jumped to a 2-0 lead in the third on a two-run homer by Karena Dial. Despite some shaky defense behind her, Oberst struck out eight and allowed only two earned runs while striking out the final hitter in the seventh with the tying run on first base.

"We always look at the number of pitches somebody throws in a game," Ramos said of his decision to use Oberst again. "Liz's pitch count was relatively low in the first game so we decided to stick with what was working."

Midland College will stay in El Paso for another doubleheader today starting at 2 p.m. The Lady Chaps need just one more victory to clinch the outright WJCAC title.

Park quiets Red Sox, 7-2

Associated Press

ARLINGTON — Chan Ho Park limited Boston to just three hits over seven innings and Alfonso Soriano hit a tiebreaking two-run homer in the Texas Rangers' 7-2 victory over the Red Sox on Friday night.

Park (3-1) had a season-high seven strikeouts. Except for a rough fourth inning, the right-hander had little trouble against the World Series champions, who lost their third straight game.

Tim Wakefield (2-1) retired 12 in a row until David Dellucci led off the decisive sixth with a single. Dellucci scored on Hank Blalock's single to tie the game 2-all, and Soriano followed with his fifth homer.

Blalock, 5-for-37 his previous nine games, also had an RBI double.

The Red Sox played without manager Terry Francona. Bench coach Brad Mills filled in as Francona served the first of his three-game suspension resulting from the bench-clearing scuffles in Tampa Bay last weekend.

Park faced the minimum 11 hitters through the first 3 2-3 innings until walking Manny Ramirez and David Ortiz. Kevin Millar drove them home with a triple for a 2-1 lead.

Millar's drive deep into the gap hit off the heel of the glove of right fielder Gary Matthews Jr., who was in a full sprint when he lunged trying to make the catch. He ended up sprawled out on the warning track.

Park then struck out Bill Mueller to end the fourth. He struck out five of the last 12 batters he faced, including Ramon Vazquez to end the seventh.

Ron Mahay pitched two perfect innings for his first save.

Wakefield left with two outs in the seventh and pinch-hitter Chad Allen, the only batter faced by reliever Mike Myers, then had an RBI single.

Laynce Nix added an RBI single in the eighth for Texas, then scored on Kevin Mench's double. Nix was 2-for-4, his fourth multihit game in eight starts since being recalled from the minor leagues.

■ AL Roundup

Blue Jays 2, Yankees 0

NEW YORK — Roy Halladay threw a three-hitter with nine strikeouts, and Eric Hinske's two-run homer off Randy Johnson sent the Blue Jays to a victory over the punchless Yankees.

Halladay (4-1) walked one in his seventh career shutout and 17th complete game, second this season.

Johnson (2-2) allowed seven hits in his 93rd complete game, first this year. He struck out nine and walked three in a game that lasted just 2 hours, 8 minutes.

Indians 6, Royals 0

CLEVELAND — C.C. Sabathia pitched seven shutout innings in his first start since signing a two-year, $17.75 million contract extension as the Indians handed the Royals their ninth straight loss.

Sabathia (2-0) had his third straight strong start since being activated from the disabled list on April 16. The left-hander was never in trouble in holding the staggering Royals (5-18) to three hits. He walked one and struck out four.

Ben Broussard had three RBIs and Ronnie Belliard drove in two runs off Zack Greinke (0-2) for Cleveland.

Orioles 5, Devil Rays 0

BALTIMORE — Erik Bedard pitched five-hit ball for eighth innings to lead the Orioles to their season-high sixth straight victory.

Devil Rays manager Lou Piniella watched from the press box at Camden Yards as he began serving a three-game suspension for his team's involvement in two bench-clearing scuffles in a game against Boston on April 24. Bench coach John McLaren ran Tampa Bay.

Miguel Tejada, Jay Gibbons and Javy Lopez homered as Baltimore dealt the Devil Rays their season-worst fifth consecutive loss. Tampa Bay is 1-8 on the road.

Tigers 3, White Sox 2, 11 innings

CHICAGO — Nook Logan tripled in the go-ahead run in the 11th inning for Detroit.

Carlos Pena led off the 11th against Shingo Takatsu (0-1) with a walk and moved up to second on a sacrifice before Logan drove a pitch into the alley in right center to make it 3-2.

Twins 7, Angels 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Michael Cuddyer had two doubles and three RBIs, and Carlos Silva survived a rough first three innings to lead the Twins.

After falling behind 4-1 early, the twins rallied for their fourth straight win. Lew Ford singled home the tying run in the sixth before Cuddyer's RBI-double gave the Twins a 5-4 lead. Cuddyer's two-run double in the eighth completed the scoring.

Chap baseball team splits with Howard

From staff reports

BIG SPRING — The Midland College baseball team split in its last road trip of the year, beating Howard College 5-2 then losing the second game 12-4 in a Western Junior College Athletic Conference doubleheader Friday.

Adam Moser pitched a complete game to lead the Chaparrals (36-16 overall, 10-16 in WJCAC) to victory in the first game. Moser gave up six hits and allowed only a pair of runs in the bottom of the fifth as Midland College never trailed.

"Adam Moser gave us a big effort on the mound," MC coach Steve Ramharter said. "He gave us a solid outing every single start this year but he was only able to complete one game, so it was especially satisfying to see him finish his junior college career with such a gem."

Rebel Ridling had the big game at the plate for the Chaps, with three hits and driving in three runs. Ridling was a triple short of hitting for the cycle, and he hit a solo home run in the seventh inning.

Ridling also hit a solo homer in the second game, which tied him with Josh Haney (2002) for the school record for most homers in a season (13).

"Ridling is such an outstanding hitter," Ramharter said. "He certainly does not play like a freshman. He has such a good head on his shoulders and that translates into a good approach at the plate."

The second game wasn't nearly as successful for the Chaps. Howard scored five runs in the bottom of the sixth to take a 6-0 lead, knocking starting pitcher Shawn Schaefer out of the game.

Greg Ralston also homered and had two hits for Midland College, while Ryan Watkins (who also had two hits in the first game) and Ridling also had two hits.

"Poor pitching and defense set the tone early on for us and our hitters could never battle back," Ramharter said. "We had played so well the previous six games so it was a disappointing effort. You cannot make every play in baseball but we need to be a little tougher mentally."

Midland College will close out the regular season by hosting another doubleheader with Howard at 4 p.m. today at Christensen Stadium.

Matheny leads Giants past Pirates

Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — Mike Matheny hit a tiebreaking homer in the sixth inning and the San Francisco Giants turned Brett Tomko's four-hitter into a 3-2 victory over the Pirates on Friday night.

Jason Ellison singled to start a two-run first against Mark Redman (1-2) and had three consecutive hits, giving him eight in a row over four games, until he struck out to start the seventh.

Tomko (2-3) shook off a two-run fourth inning in which the Pirates got three of their four hits to win his second in a row after an 0-3 start, pitching his 10th career complete game. The Giants scored only three runs combined in the losses.

Despite the previous lack of support for Tomko, the Giants looked ready to have a big first inning, leading 2-0 only three batters into the game while ending the Pittsburgh staff's streak of 18 consecutive scoreless innings.

■ NL Roundup

The Pirates were coming off consecutive 2-0 victories over Houston.

Nationals 5, Mets 1

WASHINGTON — Livan Hernandez worked his way in and out of trouble for eight innings and hit one of the Nationals' three solo homers.

Jose Guillen delivered his team-leading sixth homer hours after the Nationals announced they were exercising his $4 million contract option for 2006, and Brian Schneider also hit one out.

Vinny Castilla added a two-run ground-rule double as the Nationals (12-11) avoided dropping below .500 for the first time since April 11.

Marlins 6, Phillies 4

PHILADELPHIA — A.J. Burnett pitched seven strong innings, Juan Encarnacion drove in three runs and the Marlins held on for their eighth win in 10 games.

Encarnacion tripled and homered, Miguel Cabrera went 4-for-5 with three doubles and a homer and Damion Easley also connected for Florida.

Chase Utley hit a solo shot and Jim Thome added a two-run double for the Phillies, who have lost five of seven.

Burnett (3-1) allowed two runs and five hits, striking out eight. Todd Jones earned his first save.

Cardinals 6, Braves 5

ATLANTA — Tim Hudson and Mark Mulder were roughed up in their first starts against each other, and Albert Pujols hit a two-run homer that carried St. Louis.

Hudson (2-1) gave up four runs in the first inning and left after the sixth, saddled with a line that showed nine hits and six runs — twice as many runs as he gave up in his first four starts, covering 28 innings.

Brewers 4, Reds 3

MILWAUKEE — Lyle Overbay homered in his first two at-bats for the Brewers.

Overbay hit a three-run homer in the first and a solo shot in the third off Cincinnati starter Brandon Claussen (1-2). He also doubled and walked in his fourth career four-RBI game.

ROCKHOUNDS NOTEBOOK

Interesting move

Midland manager Von Hayes made an interesting move early in Friday's game as starter Drew Dickinson struggled. Hayes made a pitching change when Justin Huber was in the midst of an at-bat. That's not strange, but what was interesting was that Hayes made the change from Dickinson to Shawn Kohn while Huber had a 3-2 count on him.

Kohn threw one pitch and Huber flew out to center for a sacrifice fly. The change could have brought up some interesting scoring possibilities. If Huber would've walked it would have been credited to Dickinson, while a strikeout would have gone to Kohn.

Oh the wind

The wind blowing at Citibank Ballpark is not out of the ordinary, in fact it's so common that it's a regular part of minor league baseball in Midland. Friday night, though, the wind shifted directions in less than a half inning.

At the start of the game the wind was blowing out of the southwest, but in less than 10 minutes during the fourth inning, it shifted directions to the northwest making it tough for right-handed hitters but better for left-handed hitters.

The wind also created a mass exodus of fans after it changed as the temperature dropped as well. A nice crowd of nearly 3,500 dwindled to a few hearty souls by the end of the ninth.

Today's starters

Midland will send right-hander Stephen Obenchain to the mound for the third game of this four-game series with the Wranglers. Obenchain is 1-1 wiht a 6.63 earned run average, giving up 14 runs and 32 hits this season.

Wichita's Mike Stodolka will take the hill tonight. Stodolka is 1-1 with a 3.57 ERA in three starts. He also has given up 22 hits and eight runs, seven earned this season with seven strikeouts and two walks.

'Hound bites

■ RockHounds infielder Mark Kiger, who was not in Friday night's lineup, has hit safely in seven consecutive games and is batting .375 in those seven game. He's also scored at least one run in those seven games.

■ Colt Griffin is on the roster for Wichita this season. Griffin is a hard throwing right-hander from Marshall, who was taken as the Royals' first pick (9th overall) in 2001.

■ The five home runs by both teams was the most in a game involving the RockHounds this season, as seven of the 18 players who had at least two plate appearances had multi-hit games.

■ The two teams combined for 27 hits and sent a combined nine pitchers to the mound on Friday.

ROCKED

two-run homer by Justin Huber for an 11-6 advantage.

Wichita starter Brian Bass recovered from the rough second and third to retire eight of the next 10 hitters he faced.

The 'Hounds cut the lead to 11-9 in the seventh, with the big blow coming on a two-run homer by Omar Quintanilla. Midland added two more in the eighth against a struggling Wrangler bullpen.

Wichita, though, kept the RockHounds at arms length with a run in each the seventh and eighth but the 'Hounds went to the plate in the bottom of the ninth down 13-11 with a chance to make something happen.

Colamarino drew a one-out walk but the inning ended when he was doubled off first base after Jeremy Brown flew out to right field, ending the game.

"When the wind shifted with (Midland) having all those left-handed hitters we were a little concerned," White said. "But we caught a break there at the end when the baserunner misjudged the fly ball or we still might be playing."

struck out five while walking two. He even went 2-for-2 at the plate, only the second multihit game of his 22-year career.

But mostly because of the Houston offense, second-worst in the majors, Clemens failed in his fourth straight attempt at winning his 330th game and remained tied with Steve Carlton for ninth on the all-time list.

Burnitz went 3-for-4, driving in two runs and finishing only a triple short of the cycle to decide the first matchup between 300-game winners in almost 18 years.

Before Friday, there had been only four matchups of 300-game winners in the modern era, all between June 28, 1986 to Aug. 4, 1987, all involving California's Don Sutton in the American League. Sutton made two starts against Phil Niekro and one apiece against Tom Seaver and Carlton.

The last time two NL pitchers with 300 or more victories faced each other was in July 21, 1892, between Philadelphia's Tim O'Keefe and St. Louis' Jim "Pud" Galvin.

This could be the last matchup between 300-game winners for a long time. Tom Glavine of the New York Mets is the closest active pitcher to 300 wins with 263, and he's 39-years-old.

Not surprisingly, offense was in short supply with Clemens and Maddux bringing a combined 11 Cy Young Awards — seven for Clemens and four for Maddux — into their highly anticipated duel.

Coming off an 0-5 trip that ended with consecutive 2-0 losses at Pittsburgh, the Astros did all of their scoring early.

Mike Lamb, filling in for struggling rookie outfielder Luke Scott, ended the Astros' streak of scoreless innings at 21 with an RBI double in the first.

The Cubs responded by snapping Clemens' streak of 24 consecutive scoreless innings on Burnitz's bloop RBI single in the second. Hollandsworth followed with a run-scoring double to give Chicago a 2-1 lead.

Houston's Jeff Bagwell led off the fourth with a 347-foot shot that landed just inside the left foul pole, tying the game at 2-all. It was Bagwell's seventh career homer off Maddux.

But Burnitz sent Clemens' pitch 407 feet over the right-field fence in the seventh — only the second homer Clemens has allowed this year — for the go-ahead score.

Baylor hammers Tech; Texas stumps Missouri

Associated Press

WACO — Josh Ford's two-RBI double fueled a five-run seventh inning for Baylor, which went on to beat Texas Tech 6-1 on Friday night.

Baylor (29-16, 14-5 Big 12) remained in first place with the victory.

Ryan LaMotta (5-0) struck out six in three innings, allowing one run on four hits.

Texas Tech's Billy Carnline (5-2) surrendered five runs on five hits before he was pulled with no outs in the seventh.

Cody Fuller's RBI double in the seventh scored the only run for Texas Tech (27-15, 7-10).

Texas A&M 3, Oklahoma St. 2

COLLEGE STATION — Robert Ray struck out nine and Andrew Baldwin had three RBI to lead Texas A&M to a 3-2 win over Oklahoma State on Friday night.

Ray (2-4) lasted into the eighth inning, giving up two runs on three hits. He allowed just two base runners through the first six innings.

Baldwin had a two-RBI single in the first before adding an RBI single in the third.

Texas 4, Missouri 1

AUSTIN — Kyle McCulloch threw seven innings, allowing just one run on six hits to lead Texas past Missouri 4-1 on Friday night.

McCulloch (8-2) surrendered a home run to leadoff batter Zane Taylor to start the game before settling down. He struck out five before he was relieved in the eighth by J.B. Cox, who picked up his 11th save.

ROCKETS

basket during that stretch, missing eight straight shots and committ line.

"We made some strides," said Mavericks guard Jerry Stackhouse, who scored 18 in Game 3. "We feel we've turned a page in figuring out what they' the Mavericks were a little more somber Friday after learning that they probably would be without top backup forward Keith Van Horn for Game 4. Van Horn sprainedned rookie big men Pavel Podkolzin and D.J. Mbenga for a quirky drill thatifted to the Rockets.

McGrady wasn't having any of that.

"We're up 2-1 and we're at home. There's no pressure," McGrady said. "The fact that they have it in their minds that the pressure is on us is crazy."

Midlander finds mission opportunity, husband all in one trip to Uganda

Little girls may fantasize about having a fairy tale wedding someday, but Sarah Hermann never imagined she would walk down the aisle in front of thousands of people in a church thousands of miles away.

She doesn't know all their faces or names yet — she doesn't even speak the same language, but she can't explain the connection she feels with the people of Kampala, Uganda, and after only three days, she knew she found the man with whom she will be forever connected.

One never knows what twists and turns life has in store, Hermann said, but if you follow what you know in your heart, God will reveal his plan. After a great deal of prayer, Hermann took a leap of faith and followed where she thought God was leading. Born in raised in Midland, Hermann, 20, will leave the comforts of home May 30 and set out to marry Meddie Mugoya, a native of Uganda, director of the Ugandan Bible League. He's even a tribal prince.

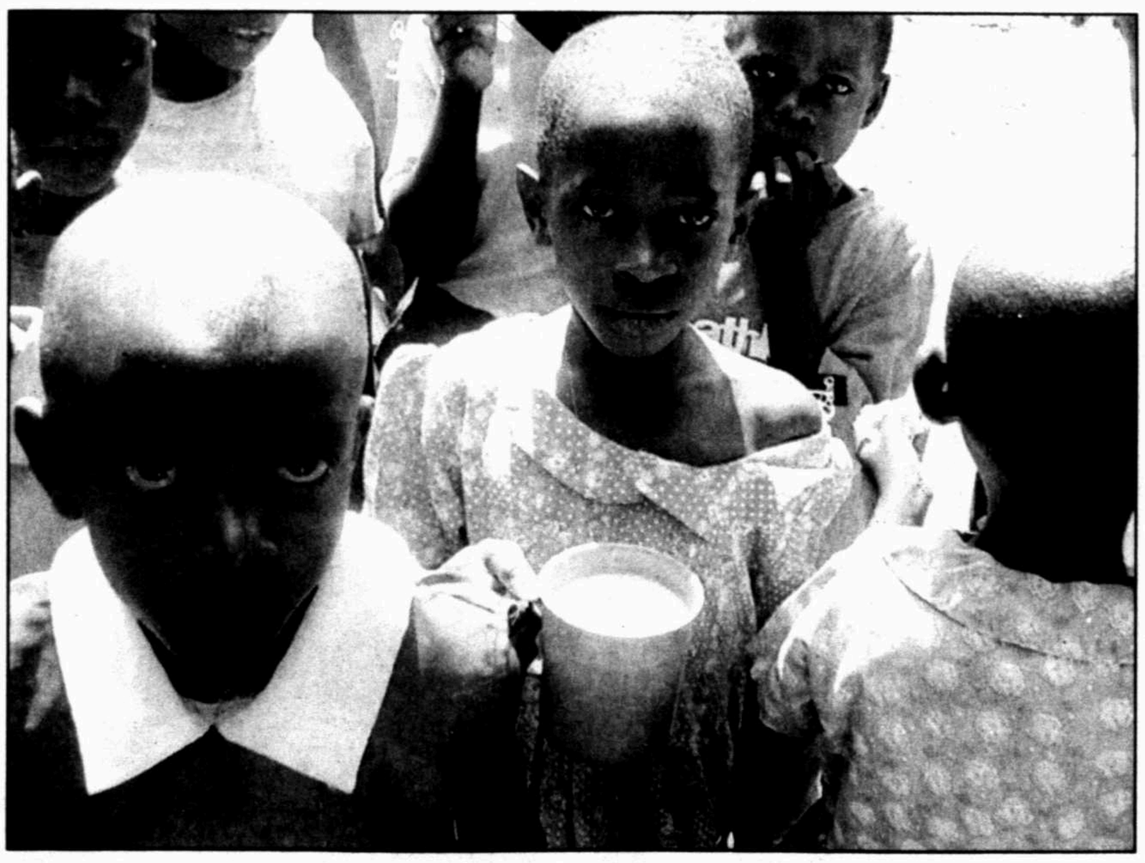

"His bloodline is royal. In fact, Mugoya means royalty, but it doesn't mean what we think of the prince being the next to take the throne. It's different in Africa," she said.

As if the change of scenery and the excitement of being a newlywed aren't enough, Hermann and her groom-to-be have a greater mission at hand. They aim to abate the suffering of nearly 1,000 children living and learning at the Caring Heart orphanages in Uganda's capital city Kampala and rural village Sabobo. Years of warfare, political and tribal strife, poor living conditions and the widespread AIDS epidemic have left these children with no one to care for them. There are 1.7 million orphans in Uganda, Hermann said.

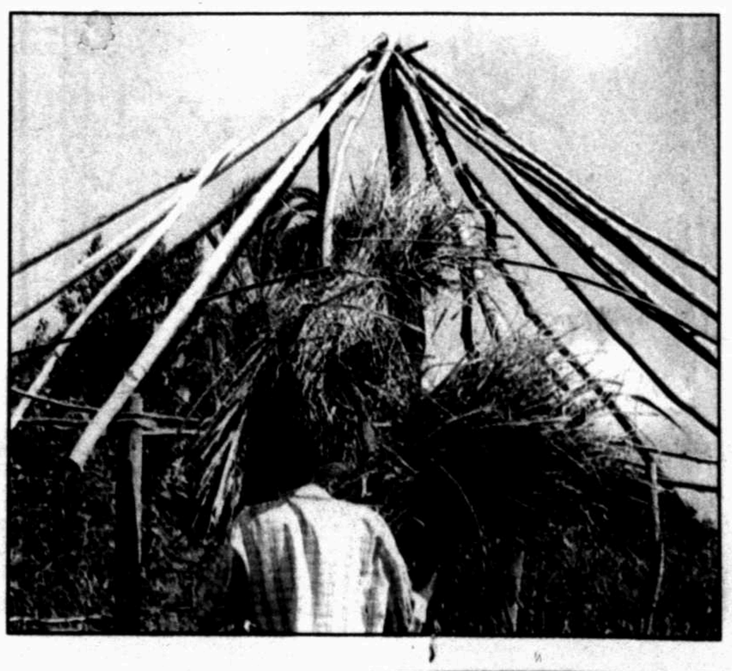

Her journey began in October 2003 when she traveled to Minnesota for an International Association for Theophostic Ministries conference. There she met and developed a friendship with Naomi O'Kane from Ireland, whom she later visited. O'Kane had previously hosted Paul Musisi, the Ugandan minister who founded Caring Heart orphanage, and was planning a trip to see him. Hermann got another stamp in her passport the following October when she flew to Uganda, " and that's when my life completely changed," she said.

"When we went over there, we saw the orphanage that Paul Musisi started in 2000. They were really struggling. The place they were renting was really horrible. Conditions were bad, water was bad and the kids needed a lot of help. We saw that need and God just put a burden on my heart," Hermann said.

"Its was horrible. It was the worst thing I've ever seen — just straight up poverty. Every street is dirt and there are trenches along the sides of slums that people use to go to the bathroom. The waste runs into the slums and streets. It's just unlivable conditions. They had to walk many miles to get water and when they did get it, it was unhygienic. We've only lost three kids at Caring Heart since 2000. That's amazing considering how sick they are, and the fact they haven't had any proper medical attention," she said

Hermann estimates up to 60 percent of the children's parents died from AIDS. It is evident many of the children have the virus — 50 to 75 that they know of — but not all of the children have been tested, she said. Malaria also is a widespread problem in Uganda, and Hermann estimates at least one to four children have to be hospitalized every week because of malaria.

During her stay, she was touched by how welcome she felt in Kamapala. Considering their circumstances, the children seem to have surprisingly positive outlooks, she said. The official language of Uganda is English, but there are at least 52 dialects spoken in the country, she said. In Kampala, they speak Luganda, and only the educated few speak English. The children at Caring Heart are required to learn English, so they can, "make something of themselves," she said. Hermann is slowly learning to speak Luganda, and some Swahili, but said she feels lucky that her future husband already speaks English.

"The kids are amazing. I've never seen such people with so little be so thankful. You would think they would get bitter after a while. You just come up and say, 'Hi,' to them, and it just makes their day. They're so thankful. The kids always greet you with clapping and singing. The first night we got there, that's what really broke my heart. We walked into the orphanage and they all surrounded us and started singing the only song in English they knew," she said.

Three days before Hermann was set to return to the United States, she met 28-year-old Mugoya, who had been mentored by Musisi. The attraction was almost instantaneous, she said, and he proposed after only knowing her one day.

"There they do things a little bit differently. They state their intentions first, and then everything falls into place after that. So he immediately asked me to marry him, and knew I was the one for him. He had really prayed that he would feel it in his heart when he met the woman he was supposed to marry. It's kind of funny, people had prophesied that he would marry a white girl from America, so he instantly knew, and so did I. I really did."

Originally taken aback by the proposal, Hermann looked to God for guidance.

"A lot of confirmation took place on my part — reading Scripture and praying, and when I left Uganda I said yes, I would marry him. I came back with a whole new mission and goal," she said. "I've been searching for a long time for what I should do and where I should go. I've prayed over the last few years, and it felt like the searching was not in vain when I went to Uganda. It was just instant. This is it. This is what I've been waiting for. This is it."

When she returned to Midland, her big news was met by shock and disbelief from casual acquaintances, but complete support from close family and friends.

"There was a lot of, 'How could you possibly know that he's the one after knowing him for three days?' But people who really know me and hear the story are right with me and say, 'Amen, do it.' All my friends have been incredibly supportive," Hermann said.

"I've had such a peace and such a faith about this. It's been really cool because I've always been so unstable in my life. As far as relationships and a struggle with alcoholism for many years — just instability in my life and my emotions. I don't think it was Africa so much as what God's done in my life. But something in Africa solidified my healing and my journey."

Janis Hermann, Sarah's mother, is naturally sad to see her youngest daughter move to Africa, but happy Sarah has finally found her way. The Hermann family traveled to Uganda from April 2 to 12 to meet their future son-in-law.

"I feel strong emotions about losing her, but I feel strong emotions about the fact that she is really called to do this. After going over and meeting family and children in the orphanage, it became very apparent to me that there is a real bond between Sarah and the people," Janis said. "We just thought, well, she has a real sense of direction here. I just talked and listened a lot, and I could hear her heart."

If the typical American bride thinks planning a wedding is stressful, try planning one on a different continent, all the while trying to raise money for land and new orphanage facilities. For the past six months, Hermann has been working at the Ground Floor coffee shop. Regulars of the cafe, which closes today, were well-acquainted with her story, and several customers contributed to the cause.

With the help of the community and a family from New Braunfels, Hermann was able to raise $15,000 for facilities, which have already been completed. Barbara Pickering, owner of the Ground Floor, put her ex-boyfriend Jeremy Jacobs in touch with Hermann, and he has become involved with fundraising and securing nonprofit status for Caring Heart. His mother and father, Jake and Connie Jacobs of New Braunfels donated $10,000 to the cause.

Because Hermann is not directly affiliated with any churches or charity organizations, she has been, "blown away," by individual contributions from Midlanders adding up to about $5,000.

"I've gone to different churches for support, and a lot of people have different African missions right now, so they're targeting a different area. Which is OK, but it's hard for me to come back and not be part of a church and not have a congregation that I can get support from, so it's been the community that's drawn the support together.

"We raised the money, the kids moved out on the new land Feb. 14 and we just went last month to see the land. We had no idea what they had done. We thought we had just bought the land for them, but they built two huge permanent brick buildings. Their last buildings were just sticks and stones thrown together more or less. One building is a church and the other one is a dorm where the kids sleep. They now have foam mattresses, which is an improvement from sleeping on the floor. They built their own pit latrine, the nicest one in the district with the deepest hole."

During her most recent trip to Uganda, Hermann and her family met Mugoya's family for the first time. They were the first white people to ever enter the village, she said. They were greeted by 1,500 people from his clan and village. They hosted an elaborate party complete with electricity and tents for dancing and singing. Though Mugoya is a Christian, his father and most of his family is Muslim. His father disowned him several years ago, but Mugoya wants to rebuild relationships and share his faith with his family, she said.

"It was such a miracle to Meddie's father that God had put a white girl from America and Meddie together, that he got saved," Hermann said. "He said if God can do this and my son worships this God, then I believe him. This was the first time Meddie had any breakthrough with his father. You just see miracles happen before your eyes there, and you feel like you're in the Bible."

The June 11 wedding will be an elaborate affair, she said, because African weddings are the biggest event in their lives. "They would say they spend small fortunes on weddings," she said.

To be married in a Ugandan church, the couple must be introduced four times to the congregation and be tested for AIDS. Hermann and Mugoya will be married in the largest church in the country that seats more than 10,000 people. She wagers the church will be packed. Hermann will have eight to 10 people from America fly to Africa, but Mugoya's clan, village and acquaintances will fill most of the pews. Herman plans to wear an American-style wedding gown, with one variation: the dress is both black and white, to symbolize the union of this unique couple. At the reception, she will wear a Gomez, the traditional Ugandan formal wear, and Mugoya will wear cowboy boots, jeans and a hat. She will be escorted down the aisle by her father and Musisi.

The Hermann family wanted to host a reception for the couple in Midland, but Mugoya was denied a visa, and it will take two to three years for him to get a green card. Hermann will have a bridal shower, but in lieu of gifts, the couple is raising funds for the wedding and for Caring Heart.

Does Bible belong in jury room

By Richard Ostling
Associated Press

Pope John Paul II died days after a ruling from the Colorado Supreme Court that related indirectly to one of the Polish pontiff's notable innovations in Catholic teaching.

The Colorado case involved Robert Harlan, who in 1994 kidnapped and raped Rhonda Maloney. Jacquie Creazzo, a Good Samaritan driving by, stopped to help and Maloney jumped into her car. They sped off with Harlan in close pursuit, shooting at them.

Harlan seriously wounded Creazzo, who survived with permanent paralysis. He dragged Maloney from Creazzo's car and her body was found later. A jury convicted Harlan and sentenced him to death.

But Colorado's high court has overturned Harlan's execution in favor of a life sentence because one juror discussed biblical teaching with another during the penalty phase of the trial. One passage cited was Leviticus 24:17-20 ("he who kills a man shall be put to death. ... eye for eye, tooth for tooth").

The justices called this the "use of improper, extraneous, prejudicial materials," which infuriated some religious commentators.

The fascinating case raises these questions: What does the Bible really teach about capital punishment? What's the proper role of the Bible in shaping culture and individual judgments?

Also, what moral resources should a juror be permitted to use? For instance, would it have been illicit for a juror to cite Roman Catholic teachings against the death penalty?

The 1992 Catechism of the Catholic Church, issued under John Paul, acknowledged Catholic tradition grants the right and duty of legitimate governments to exact "penalties commensurate with the gravity of the crime, not excluding, in cases of extreme gravity, the death penalty." However, "if bloodless means are sufficient to defend human lives," these should be applied instead, in order to honor "the dignity of the human person."

The pope's 1995 encyclical "Evangelium Vitae" ("The Gospel of Life"), which strongly opposed abortion and mercy killing, also hardened the church's stand against capital punishment.

Government "ought not to go to the extreme of executing the offender except in cases of absolute necessity: In other words, when it would not be possible otherwise to defend society. Today such cases are very rare if not practically non-existent," John Paul wrote.

Afterward, a revision of the Catechism said traditional Catholic teaching "does not exclude recourse to the death penalty, if this is the only possible way of defending human lives against the unjust aggressor."

That narrow wording virtually excludes execution. Since life sentences can equally protect against aggressors, America's Catholic bishops have for decades opposed all executions.

❶ Promote Your Merchandise - The more descriptive you are the more likely your merchandise will appeal to someone.

❷ Check The Market Value - The most common mistake that occurs is over or under pricing your goods.

❸ Always Include The Price - People are more likely to respond when they know the price range.

❹ Keyword Your Ad - Begin each ad with the name of the item, such as "Stove" or "Guitar" rather than "Kenmore" or "Gibson", "Ford 1997" instead of "1997 Ford", or by its key reference point, such as location or area in real estate ads..

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,

I've been living in my apartment for 2 months now and I'm going crazy. When I originally answered the ad for this apartment, the owner invited me over to see it. I loved it immediately, and was afraid I'd lose it if I didn't sign a lease that day. That was Sunday, the day the chinese restaurant below the apartment was closed. Once I moved in I realized the restaurant happens to be open every other day of the week. Although I love the food, the smell has permeated my apartment and become my new perfume. I don't know if I can take a year of this. Is the smell of chinese food a good reason to break a lease?

Cash: Your apartment sounds like a bachelor's dream place. A restaurant on the bottom floor is like having a personal chef in your kitchen.

Carry: If you set the table, they'll probably even deliver and have dinner with you.

Cash: Although a dream for some can be a nightmare for others. A constant odor of any kind of food can be overwhelming after a while.

Carry: It sounds like you loved the apartment because of its price or location in the neighborhood. However, what confuses us is why you didn't smell any residual odors on the day you looked at the apartment. If the food smell permeates the building, you would most likely still notice it on days when the restaurant is closed.

Cash: Before you terminate any lease, try discussing the problem with your landlord. There may be some issues with ventilation in the building. Since he doesn't live there, he may not even know about the problem unless a tenant brings it to his attention.

Carry: And I'm sure he'll understand the dilemma when he gets a sniff of your new "lo-mein" perfume.

Cash: If there are other apartments in the building, ask some of your neighbors if they have a similar problem. They can tell you if it has been a long-term situation, recently developed, or just specific to your apartment.

Carry: Then if for some reason the problem cannot be resolved, you can try a different resolution with your landlord. He may be willing to terminate your lease since you are not happy with the apartment. Most landlords don't want unhappy tenants. It just creates them more problems in the long run.

Cash: And if you're curious how your situation will turn out, just check your next fortune cookie.

Fast Facts

New Lease on Life

There's nothing worse than finding all the faults in an apartment AFTER you sign the lease. If you ever find yourself needing to make a quick decision on renting an apartment, try this technique. Add a note to your lease that gives you a 30-day grace period allowing you the right to void the lease if conditions are not satisfactory. If you later find out that something is wrong with the building or apartment, you can change your mind without repercussions.

Fortunately

Almost everyone loves to open a fortune cookie, but did you ever wonder how this tradition got started? It dates back to the 13th century when Mongols occupied China. When the Chinese planned for an uprising in the city of Peking, they hid the date and instructions in their moon cakes and passed them out in order to not alert the Mongols. This created the tradition of giving away cakes with messages and became a popular method for expressing wishes of good will and fortune.

Hands Up

As a police officer, I see all sorts of things when I answer a burglary call. However, I had one last week that even surprised me.

When I got to the apartment building, I knocked on the door and shouted, "Police, open up!"

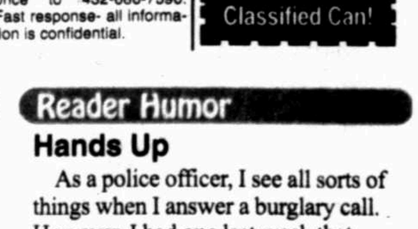

Surprisingly, the man answered the door holding a spatula and wearing an apron. I thought I knocked on he wrong door until he said, "I'm glad you're here!"

Then he explained that someone stole his grill right off his back patio while he was inside. When I asked him to describe it, he replied, "You can't miss it. It's the one with two hamburgers and a hotdog on it."
