Wallace Labels Jesse Jones an 'Obstructionist'

Texas Accused Of Hindering War Effort

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—In a new clash between major administration figures, Vice President Wallace today accused Secretary of Commerce Jones of "obstructionist tactics" and of harassing the board of economic warfare in the "single-minded effort to help shorten this war by securing adequate stocks of strategic materials."

In a statement prepared for the Senate Appropriations committee, Wallace, chairman of BEW, also stated that Jones, who heads the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which supplies funds for BEW buying of strategic materials, had created a "false impression" in testimony before the Congressional Economy committee, headed by Senator Byrd (D-Va.).

"It is time to prevent further harmful misrepresentations of this nature," Wallace said, adding: "Although the president, on April 13, 1942, transferred full control over the programming of imported strategic materials from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Board of Economic Warfare, which operates under broad directives received from the War Production Board, Mr. Jones has never fully accepted that authority."

"He and his personnel down the line have thrown a great many obstacles in the way of our exercise of the powers given us to carry out wartime assignments. Some of these obstructionist tactics have been minor and annoying and some have been of major consequence in this job of waging total war."

In his statement, Wallace discussed the stockpiling of various strategic materials. He said congress had made funds available for such a purpose as far back as 1939 and that in the summer of 1940 the RFC was given funds for stockpiling.

"From the summer of 1940 until well past December 7, 1941," Wallace said, "the Reconstruction Finance Corporation failed miserably, so far as the import field was concerned, to build the stockpiles authorized and directed by the congress nearly eighteen months before Pearl Harbor."

"During this period, of course, private purchasing of imports continued on a somewhat increased scale but due to better business, and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation entered into various underwriting agreements with some countries under which we agreed to take

Tire Ration For July Reduced

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—Rubber director William M. Jeffers today called for "strict adherence" during the next few months to tire conservation regulations and the office of price administration put force to his words by sharply reducing the number of low-mileage passenger car owners eligible for used and recapped tires.

Jeffers advised OPA that only 500,000 used and decapped tires will be available for rationing in July, a reduction of 300,000 from June. Beginning July 1, and probably for a period of 90 days while supplies of used tires are being put into serviceable condition, the eligibility of drivers with mileage rations of 24 miles or less a month will be determined by these standards:

1.—In the eastern gasoline shortage area, where an "A" book is good for 90 miles, drivers who hold only an "A" book cannot get replacements.

2.—Outside the shortage area, where the "A" book provides 240 miles a month, the applicant must show he used his car for essential purposes.

Present regulations make all low-mileage drivers eligible for used or recapped tires. Regulations for drivers with monthly mileage rations exceeding 240 miles were not changed.

Dead Sub Served Up By Allies Each Day

OTTAWA, June 29 (AP)—Malcolm MacDonald, British high commissioner to Canada, said today a lease 14 enemy submarines had been sunk in the last two weeks and predicted that the Allied assault on Europe would start very soon.

"We have had a dead submarine served up for breakfast every day," he said for the past fortnight, MacDonald said.

"His statement was added evidence of Allied ascendancy in the critical battle of the Atlantic, which Prime Minister Churchill said recently the Allies were winning. Re-

Barrimore's Hamlet Shirt Sells For $7

HOLLYWOOD, June 29 (AP)—To help defray some $200,000 in claims remaining against the estate of John Barrimore, the wardrobe and furniture of the late stage and screen star were offered at auction today.

The shirt in which Barrimore, once ranked among the foremost Shakespearean actors, played Hamlet, went for $7 as the auction opened last night. Other bids ranged from 50 cents for a tuxedo vest to $32.50 for a gray sack suit.

Several pairs of embroidered silk pajamas brought $2.50 a pair. Shoes brought from $1 for bedroom slippers to $18 for a pair of jodhpur boots. An informal jacket, long and pinched-backed, referred to by the auctioneer as a "zoot suit, circa 1935, went for $2.

A pink girdle that reinforced the sagging Barrimore abdominal muscles was bought by Edward Molen, a balding steel jobber, for $4.50.

Among the throng of some 450 persons, most of them curiosity seekers, was film actor Errol Flynn, who left early without making a purchase.

"Jack drew the crowds to the end," he remarked.

Subsidy Bill Delayed By Confusion

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—Differences in senate and house bills halting the subsidy-rollback on food prices yesterday today to hamstringing the 10-year-old commodity credit corporation.

The anti-subsidy provisions are wrapped up in legislation granting the CCC two more years of life beginning at midnight tomorrow. With the deadline less than 36 hours away, senate and house conference still awaited a call to get together.

Two of the five senate conference members reported evidence of disagreement even among their own group on the meaning of the terms denying further funds for price roll backs and transferring future subsidy decisions to the war food administrator.

Resignation of war food administrator Chester C. Davis, announced yesterday, further muddled the situation.

In the house, Rep. Fulmer (D-SG) sponsor of legislation to give control of all food production and price-fixing policies to the food administrator, said he felt it "almost useless" now to pass the legislation.

Other differences to be settled include a senate provision to increase the CCC's borrowing power from $2,650,000,000 to $3,650,000,000. The house provided for an increase of only half that amount, or $500,000,000.

Advocates of a more liberal subsidy policy such as a proposal by senator Taft (R-Ohio) to authorize the reconstruction finance corporation to spend up to $500,000,000 to compensate for losses in the retail price cuts of meats, butter and coffee, saw possibility of a presidential veto should the bill be revised to pass both houses.

Senators generally agreed that regardless of the time limit an effort would be made to keep alive CCC activities, which principally involve loans to farmers to protect and increase farm income, stabilize farm prices and stimulate production.

AMARILLO, June 29 (AP)—Marvin Jones, newly appointed war food administrator, has gone down the line for the New Deal since its inception.

Jones campaigned for the Democratic party in every presidential campaign since 1916 and he and vice president Henry Wallace campaigned together in 1940.

Born on a farm near Valley View, Cooke county, Texas, Jones received a teacher's certificate at 17, taught farmer two years and then attended southern university. Later he received his law degree from the University of Texas.

He moved from Miami, Roberts county, to Amarillo to practice law in 1916, when he was 31, he decided to run for congress. Elected, he served in the house as on a declaration of war against Germany. He joined the army and was assigned to the tank corps.

Working on KP duty in July, 1918, he was notified that he had been renominated to congress. Jones served until December, 1940, when he resigned to start work on the Rain checked wheat harvesting. A third of the crop has already been cut, the county farm agent's office estimated today.

War Labor Board Agrees On Two Vital Points

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—The Tripartite War Labor Board was agreed today on at least two points of potential controversy in the new Connally-Smith-Harness strike control bill.

Fresh Allied Assault Seen Against Japs

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—Japanese land and sea forces are being slammed with a mounting fury that may well mark the opening phases of a new campaign to drive the enemy farther back in the Pacific.

This became apparent today in the wake of the navy's two latest reports, listing 13 U. S. bomber raids throughout the Pacific and the destruction of 11 Japanese surface craft by American submarines.

From Kiska to the Solomons heavy and medium bombers sent their bombs crashing onto Japanese air, sea and supply bases.

Their raids came at almost the same time submarine commanders reported sinking six Japanese supply craft, damaging three others and sending a destroyer and mine layer to the bottom during battle cruises in the "Pacific and Far East."

These sinkings brought the totals for Pacific submarine action to 269 Japanese vessels—190 sunk, 29 probably sunk and 50 damaged.

Kiska, last Japanese foothold in the North Pacific Aleutian islands, shuddered under the heaviest raids in weeks.

Eight fires, possibly in barracks and supply dumps, were left blazing there after the 16th raid in the three days ending Saturday.

At Munda, on New Georgia island in the Solomons, American bombs struck twice Saturday. Results of the first raid by army Liberators were not reported.

The bombing team of dive bombers and torpedo bombers, hitting the second time that day, blasted holes in the airfield runway and in the revetment area, possibly damaging some grounded enemy planes.

The dive-torpedo-bomber team scored again at Vila on Kolombangara island. There they pockmarked the airfield with bomb pits and sent missiles hurtling into the enemy camp area.

In other raids, Liberators dropped heavy bombs on Kahili, in the Buin area on Bougainville island, while navy Liberators battered Balale island, an enemy supply base in the Shortland area. Torpedo planes raided Japanese positions at Rekata bay on Santa Isabel island, but results were not reported.

Leghorn Gets Pounding By Our Airmen

(By The Associated Press)
RAF block-buster raiders in "great strength" left the Rhine city of Cologne in flames before dawn today and also attacked Hamburg in northwest Germany, marking the eighth assault on the Nazi home front in 10 days.

Twenty-five RAF bombers were listed as missing in the synchronized thrust.

In terse phrases, the German high command gave this account of the attack on Cologne (Pop. 800,000), the 117th of the war:

"A British force carried out another serious terror raid against residential quarters in the city of Cologne last night.

"Thickly populated parts of the city were destroyed as they were hit by a great number of explosive and incendiary bombs, causing conflagrations.

"The Cologne cathedral suffered damage caused by fire. The population suffered losses.

Berlin dispatches to Stockholm, Sweden, said last night's raid on Cologne blasted German hopes that stiffer anti-aircraft defenses would slow up the Allied aerial offensive and that there would be "a change in the bomb war."

After a 48-hour lull, the RAF came back to explode the illusion.

Axis broadcasts, now heralding July 3 as the date for an Allied grand assault upon Europe, continued to sound invasion alarms—notably in the Mediterranean theatre—and the Rome radio declared that a state of emergency had been proclaimed in Iraq, next door to Turkey.

Without Allied confirmation, the German-controlled Paris radio said two battleships and six destroyers had sailed from the British base at Gibraltar into the Mediterranean for "fleet maneuvers."

From North African bases, 100 American Flying Fortresses dropped hundreds of tons of bombs on the Italian port of Leghorn, 180 miles north of Rome, damaging a cruiser and four supply ships and creating havoc among other military targets. All returned home without loss.

The big Fortresses battered Leghorn with such fury that "fire burst after the raid the entire port was still heavily covered with smoke," it was officially announced.

Leghorn is believed to be a base of the shore-bound Italian fleet. Other U. S. warplanes returned to the assault on Sardinia, raiding a series of enemy airbases.

Italian headquarters acknowledged great damage in Leghorn and also reported raids on Reggio Calabria in southern Italy and Messina, Sicily.

RAF Wellingtons from North Africa attacked San Giovanni, near the "inset" of the Italian boot, a few hours before the Fortresses hit Leghorn.

London informants declared the

V-Mail Voting Is Suggested

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—V-mail voting for members of the armed forces on foreign duty was proposed in legislation ready for introduction today by Senators Lucas (D-Til.) and Green (D-R.I.).

To facilitate voting on state and federal officials by soldiers, sailors and marines, the two senators would have congress direct the secretaries of war and navy to provide the fighting forces overseas with absentee ballots that could be sped back as V-mail.

The war and navy departments would be required under the measure to submit complete lists of candidates to commanding officers who would be charged with the responsibility of seeing that every man in their units had an opportunity to vote.

Voting by members of the armed forces within the United States would be carried out on regular absentee ballots obtained from secretaries of state, with commanding officers directed to distribute postcards to troops on which they could request the ballots.

The Lucas-Green measure also would direct military commanders to make ballots and election information available to American civilians outside the continental United States.

I use it daily as part of my regular beauty routine. "First comes a good cold cream cleansing for my face. I spread it on lightly, and remove it with tissues. Try These Three Clever Tricks To Cut Down Stocking Expense

DOLORES MORAN: pairs off odd stockings.

By ALICIA HART NEA Staff Writer Stockings, without a doubt, are about the biggest expense and problem in a woman's wardrobe. But here are a couple of conservation tricks which film player Dolores Moran, of the new picture "Old Acquaintance," says makes her stock of stockings last weeks longer: Never wear stockings more than once without washing them, for even the slightest perspiration left in the feet has a deteriorating effect. Keep the backs of your heels as soft and smooth as you do your hands, otherwise the least little roughness will wear your stockings thin long before they should show signs of wear. A pumice stone rubbed over the backs of the heels and an application of hand lotion after your bath each day will do the trick. And when you find that there are a few odd stockings, none of which match in color to make a pair, dip them in a solution of color remover and then retint them all the same shade. Finally, in pairing off stockings, make certain they match, for mismatched stockings can run the effect of your nicest ensemble.

Drink Hot Water Each Morning For Clear Skin

MRS. KNOTT: rosy checked.

By ALICIA HART NEA Staff Writer A beautiful complexion usually goes with health and a well-balanced stomach. So if you wish to improve your skin's appearance, you might start by checking your general physical condition. Mrs. David Knott, Jr., prominent young New York matron, has a flawless, very fair and naturally rosy complexion, which she attributes in part to a simple stomach settler which she calls a "Sam Lambert Cocktail." It is a cup of warm water mixed with the juice of one lemon and a teaspoon of bicarbonate of soda. Mrs. Knott says this homemade potion helps to keep her skin clear. Though there is no medical background for the soda, she finds a warm drink in the morning is healthful, as is orange, grapefruit and tomato juice. And the idea that a lovely complexion is the reward of keeping healthy is basic. If you have an occasional blemish, you needn't take it too seriously; but if your skin is stubbornly lifeless or spotted despite adequate surface care, better check your health with your physician. Cotton Fashion For Annual Cotton Week

The advent of the thirteenth annual Cotton Week puts the spotlight on cottons once more. This year, because it's wartime, they are more important than ever—and no wonder, because through economy, practicality, and enduring style cottons offer the best clothes investment one can make. They are economical not only in purchase price, which is lower than that of other fabrics, but also in upkeep because they can be laundered at home at no cost. Also, their long-wearing quality (even organdie and batistes, wear much better than equally sheer fabrics of other fibers) makes them literally "durable fabrics." They are practical because they don't have to be pampered—most of them can be tossed into the family washing machine with the minimum of time, effort, and cost, and many of them require almost no pressing. They have been styled to offer charm and style for the price, year-round types that will be in good taste long after the armistice, and double-duty styles that serve more than one purpose and thus cut down the size and cost of a wardrobe. "For these reasons cottons are ideally suited to the American way of living in war as in peace," says Virginia Jewel, fashion director of the Cotton Textile Institute and the National Cotton Council, "and the American public has confirmed this fact by using twelve billion yards of cotton this past year—fifty per cent more than in 'normal' times." Let's look at this season's fashions. In coats there are lovely hollow-cut velveteens, corduroys, and wide-wale plushes. In styles, such as the very popular Chesterfield, that do duty round the clock and practically round the calendar. America's favorite casuals and sportswear—cottons—include two-piece play-suits with detachable collars, crepe-raucher, percale, poplin, broadcloth, and glazed chintz, which are ideal for play, tennis, housework, and neighborhood shopping; slack suits of denim, gabardine, covert, corduroy, and seersucker for country, campus, air-raised duty, war work, gardening, and housework; one and two-piece swim suits, some with matching beach coats that can alternate as housecoats, of glazed chintz, seersucker percale, and poplin; and casuals and pinafors of chambray chintz, crepe-raucher, shirting, longcloth, seersucker, and other washable cottons. Cotton lingerie, such as batiste, lawn, and muslin negligees, gowns,

U. S. Rubber Industry To Meet All Demands By End Of 1943

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—America's $700,000,000 rubber industry by the end of this year will be capable of meeting all essential civilian as well as military requirements, commerce secretary Jones said today.

Manufacturing capacity of the 40 plants throughout the country by December will be in excess of 800,000 tons a year "which is more than we have ever used and sufficient for our essential purposes," Jones declared in an address prepared for a "made in America rubber" luncheon at Houston, Texas. Telephoned from Washington, his address was broadcast over a Texas state network.

143 Camp, Hospital Councils Are Formed

The North Plains Camp and Hospital Council is one of the 143 now sponsored by the American Red Cross, according to Pampa Field Red Cross Director Ray Ellis.

More than 1,600 Red Cross chapters, including the 16 that make up the North Plains Council, are participating to serve thousands of military and naval units in training and on duty throughout the country.

"Established less than two years ago, this phenomenal growth has been brought about by the enthusiastic cooperation of community groups and individuals like we have in the Panhandle area, eager to do something for the men and women in uniform," said Ellis.

He explained that the purpose of the council plan is to provide supplementary equipment, supplies and services that may be needed to carry out the responsibilities of the army and navy when such items are not available or cannot be secured from official sources in time to meet the need.

"By utilizing existing local resources the councils are helping to make camp life a bit easier for the trainees," Ellis said. "Community efforts are co-ordinated by the councils and channeled through resident Red Cross field staffs, who are informed by commanding officers of the stations' needs. Duplication is thus avoided as well as inappropriate, superfluous gifts on the part of well-meaning but uninformed citizens."

Extension Proposed For Oil Compact Body

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt proposed to Congress today that it extend again for four years starting September 1, a compact executed by the governors of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arkansas, Louisiana and Kentucky for the conservation of oil and gas.

The compact originally was executed in February 1935 and Congress approved it the following August. Since that time, with congressional consent, it has been renewed three times for two year periods. The most recent extension period expires next September 1.

In a message proposing another extension, the president told Congress the purposes of the compact were "worthy," since it was designed to promote state legislation pertaining to conservation of oil and gas and had resulted in "effective collaboration" of the oil producing states which are parties to it.

Correspondent Gives Closeup Picture Of Chinese Soldier

(Editor's Note: J. Reilly O'Sullivan, veteran Associated Press war correspondent, presents a closeup of the Chinese soldier in the following dispatch from the Upper Yangtze front, scene of recent hard fighting in which the Japanese suffered a sharp defeat. O'Sullivan is one of a group of foreign correspondents permitted recently to make a trip to the front from Chungking.)

ON THE UPPER YANGTZE FRONT, June 28—(Delivered AP)—Give him two pounds of rice a day and free China's fighting man keeps going. His endurance is incredible. Sometimes he has a few vegetables to supplement his rice diet. Most of all, never. Two pounds of rice is his due—from private to general. A Chinese private receives eight Chinese dollars monthly—half that I pay for a package of Chinese cigarettes. The Chinese soldier doesn't smoke often. His allowance for the purchase of vegetables runs about a dollar daily, depending on the locality. His family receives a rice ration and cloth for clothes semi-annually. Officers are a little better off as to pay. A first lieutenant gets $94 monthly and the rate rises $40 for each grade up to general.

A soldier's summer uniform consists of a khaki blouse, shorts, sandals, wrapped leggings and a cap or straw hat. He doesn't have a raincoat or a tent. Some unit leaders carry umbrellas. Besides his weapons and ammunition, a soldier totes a pack weighing 40 pounds including his rice rations. He can climb like a mountain goat and is tireless on a march. In the Yangtze gorges where our troop ship tied up under a towering cliff during midday to prevent attack by Japanese planes from nearby fields. I ran into a battalion which Lieutenant Colonel Chang Sze Liang had brought 300 miles through lofty, barely passable mountains. His men had suffered hardships but not one was left behind on the march. The troops were busily cleaning guns and polishing equipment before moving to the front lines. Rain soaked us most of the trip," said Chang. "Many men who lost or wore out their sandals walked barefoot. On the worst day we walked through 74 mountain streams but made 80 miles. Some days it was so wet the men were unable to put down their packs until we reached night camp."

Today on the Home Front

By JAMES MARLOW AND GEORGE ZIELKE
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—If you read this and still feel tough, think twice before trying to prove it to John B. Kelly, who was and is quite a man.

Summed up, Kelly's contention is this: "Take care of yourselves or you may wind up something less than a patch on your grandpa."

"What I have been trying to do," said Kelly, "is make Americans physically conscious and not have our kids start drinking and smoking at 15, starting their dances at 11 o'clock at night, and coming home at 4 or 5 in the morning. "I would like to see us get down to a saner view of life with our young people particularly."

Before this is finished you can take Kelly's words to heart, or dismiss them as "chatter," or ask a question as we are. But Kelly, 54-year-old Philadelphia and over 6 feet tall, is one of the great athletes this country produced. Boxer, sandlot footballer, baseballer, basketballer, hiker, Olympic sculler, he twice won Olympic sculling championships.

He has just been made chairman of the newly appointed—by Federal Security Administrator Paul McNutt—committee on physical fitness which will seek to build up Americans through school, state and community programs.

Serving without pay, Kelly recently testified before a congressional committee:

"Our schoolmasters have been spending too much time in cramming and making quiz kids out of all our kids; and you cannot stop Hitler with perfect English."

"The automobile softens us up and every little gadget that we have makes us a softer nation. "Our pioneer fathers crossed the country and built the railroads, climbed the mountains, and crossed the creeks and built their houses and fought off the Indians. They were tough inside and out. That is what made this country great."

WASHINGTON, (AP)—The first big question pinned to the new anti-strike law today was: Can it bring back to work in the nation's coal pits the miners who walked out this week and refused to return?

If the present scale of the shutdown lasts long enough the whole war production effort may be crippled—and military schedules thereby wrecked—for lack of coal.

In war plants seized by the government—as the mines have been seized—the law allows for individuals to remain away from work if they decide to do that individually but it provides fines and a jail penalty for those conspiring to lay off work in such a plant.

Could the government attempt to arrest 100,000 or 200,000 or even 15,000 miners who refused to go back to the coal pits even if it was found in some way they all had agreed to stay away?

Labor attorneys say this would be an impossible job. What then? The same attorneys say the government might act against a handful of mine leaders, holding them responsible under the "conspiracy" provision if it was found they had helped promote the strike.

But the top leadership of the United Mine Workers—John L. Lewis and his policy committee—last Tuesday, three days before the anti-strike measure became law, instructed the miners to return to work until Oct. 31.

Only an estimated 60 per cent of the 500,000 miners near week's end had accepted the order and gone back to the pits.

Did the rest of the miners remain home because each of them individually decided to stay home, or did they pass the word among themselves that they would, or did some one else tell them to?

That might need plenty of investigating. But suppose the government acted against that "handful of mine leaders"—who might be, for example, local leaders well-known and liked by the miners—would that soften the miners' determination to stay away from work?

Already they have been reported in angry mood by a Pittsburgh district leader who expressed hope they would return to the pits, for he said:

"This draft threat (meaning President Roosevelt's plan to draft

China Flat Farmer Sells 795-Pound Hog

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS. AMERICANS ARE STILL THE BEST NOURISHED PEOPLE ON EARTH . . . AND THERE'S A REASON

Our food may be stretched out these days to share with the peoples of the United Nations, but thanks to new scientific developments in animal feeding, our feathered and four-legged armies are being greatly improved in quality and propagation. To tiny yeast cells goes much of the credit, because brewer's yeast is the source of the vitamins used to fortify feed mixtures. Now, when you eat meat raised on vitamin-fortified feeds, you're getting nutrition plus. Anheuser-Busch is America's biggest supplier of yeast vitamins for cattle and poultry feeds. Our large-scale production of natural vitamins is another achievement that resulted from years of research and laboratory work in producing the world's most nutritious feed mixtures.

In addition to supplying the armed forces with glider parts, gun turret parts and foodstuffs, Anheuser-Busch produces materials which go into the manufacture of: B Complex Vitamins • Rubber • Aluminum • Munitions • Medicines • Hospital Diets • Baby Foods • Bread and other Bakery Products • Batteries • Paper • Soap and Textiles—to name a few.

Dangerous Business Somebody in Mobile, Ala., has been flirting with disaster, not only for himself, which might be none of our business, but also for the United States, the United Nations and the future of democratic institutions.

The racial misunderstandings in the Alabama Drydock and Shipbuilding Company's yard, now temporarily or permanently solved, resulted from bad judgment at best and bad faith at worst.

The latter interpretation has been suggested by the local representative of the OWI and by the acting adjutant-general of Alabama.

The OWI accuses the company, implicitly, of deliberately taking steps which resulted in race rioting, in which 20 workers were badly injured, for the purpose of casting disrepute upon the federal government's fair employment practices program.

Acting Adj.-Gen. Robert E. Joerg has reported to Gov. Chauncey Sparks of Alabama that the company is responsible for the racial disturbances. General Joerg's report makes it clear that this rioting was not an inevitable outcome of the deep-rooted Negro problem in the south.

According to the OWI, there was an agreement that four shipways should be set aside for Negro workmen. The company succeeded in keeping news of this sensible agreement from the workers until R. B. Chandler, publisher of the Mobile Press-Register managed to break through the conspiracy of silence.

Meanwhile Negroes were put onto one way not covered by the agreement. The mismanagement or worse involved in this situation is serious because of tactfulness and common sense, southern shipbuilders had succeeded in working out satisfactory solutions of the race problem so as to use many Negro workers, and shipbuilders were trying to do likewise, but the Mobile rioting has frightened the shipbuilders and set back the entire program for utilizing available southern Negro manpower to the maximum.

This incident can and probably will be reflected in smaller output of ships, which at this moment continue to be the most critical of all critical war weapons.

Pity The Poor WAVE There is something pathetic in the funny story of the New Hampshire girl who spent two months stretching in order to add half an inch to her height so that she could become a WAVE and at the last minute found the restriction relaxed so that she could have made the grade without stretching.

The pathetic and the humorous seem to us to be much less important than that a girl named Berdette Liljevald wanted to get into the Navy so badly that she would spend two months trying exercises in hope of adding 13 millimeters to her five feet.

The Nation's Press JAILING THOSE EYEBROWS (The Wall Street Journal) Having to decide within a few days whether to sign or veto the Smith-Connelly anti-strike bill, or allow it to become law without his signature, President Roosevelt need not feel compelled to give much attention to the denunciations of it by C.I.O. and A. F. of L. executives.

But the President will doubtless consider very seriously the practical usefulness to the war effort of a bill written in haste to avert a catastrophe that threatened or seemed to threaten. Suppose the bill to become law—what next? Suppose a bushy-eyebrowed labor leader were subpoenaed to give testimony by a War Labor Board newly given the subpoena power, disregard of which could then mean a term in jail.

Imagine the bushy-eyed one incarcerated in a cell otherwise filled to overflowing with flowers, strawberry shortcakes topped with real whipped cream—all sent by his perhaps misguided but none the less devoted hundreds of thousands of followers. Would his influence for or against the war effort be broken? One fancies not.

No doubt there would be poetic justice of a sort in the jailing of a heavy contributor to a party campaign fund who afterwards turned his political coat inside out. But poetic justice is not in the law books.

SAVE THE TOP SOIL (World-Herald, Omaha, Neb.) To avoid a critical grain shortage in the next 12 months the United States will need 40 million more acres in production, or "enough to offset the lands withdrawn from cultivation from 1932 to 1939."

The speaker was Herbert Hoover. A reporter asked him if he thought the situation required plowing up the Dust Bowl again. "I mean all the land under cultivation in 1932," replied the ex-president. That, of course, would include the great bowl, and many lesser ones.

A wise man, Mr. Hoover. As Frank R. Kent points out, he probably has a better grasp on the world food problem than any other person alive.

But we wonder if he has ever seen a dust blizzard. We wonder if he has ever smelled that choking, terrifying smell. We wonder if he has ever seen the top soil piled up in fantastic windrows along the fences and trees. We wonder if he has ever seen the stunted crops grown on range land which never should have been plowed.

No doubt Mr. Hoover sees the problem realistically. The world seems headed for the longest and most tragic era of starvation in modern times. The problem offers a challenge to civilized leadership in every part of the world.

But it is practicable and reasonable to meet that challenge by plowing up American lands which, experience has shown us, should remain forever in grass?

That question should receive some thought. For in the last analysis the soil of our continent is the only thing of material value we Americans possess. It should not be treated as an expendable asset. If we squander a large part of it in one generation in order to meet the problems created by the war lords of that period, then we shall be depriving our children of their inheritance. History shows that a nation which loses its good soil is headed straight toward poverty and ruin, and no

Common Ground

By R. G. BOILES "I speak the plain-word primer. I give the sign of democracy. By God! I will accept nothing which all cannot have their counterpart of on the same terms."

DEMONSTRATES BROTHERHOOD OF MAN The first half of the book, "The Discovery of Freedom" by Ruth Wilder Lane, demonstrates the brotherhood of man better than any book I have ever read.

"The brotherhood of man is not a pretty phrase nor a beautiful ideal, it is a fact. It is one of the brutal realities of human life on this inhuman planet."

"All men are brothers, of one blood, of one human race. They are brothers in one imperative desire to live, in one desperate necessity to combine their energies in order to live. Any man who injures another, injures himself, for human welfare is necessary to his own existence."

"Many men do not know this fact. It is not the first fact that men have not known, nor the only one that they do not know now. There are still people who believe that the earth is flat. Because it is not flat, because it holds them to its surface by the attraction of its spherical mass, they can behave, within limits and for short distances, as if it were flat."

"Men who behave as if the brotherhood of man were not a fact, are alive to do so only because it is a fact."

"Imperative human brotherhood creates the individual's relationship with other individuals."

REDUCED ACREAGE Herbert Hoover is responsible for the statement that the acreage of 17 leading crops has been reduced 47,000,000 acres between 1932 and 1939; that these 17 leading crops comprise 95 per cent of the total harvested area.

In 1934, the total acreage including fruit food crops, was 298,642,000 acres. Thus, we have reduced the acreage, between 1932 and 1939, under the New Deal planned economy, by better than 15 per cent. We did this under the New Deal when Roosevelt was telling us that one third of our people were ill-fed, ill-clad and ill-housed. Of course, the acreage was reduced for two reasons:

First, the Administration paid to have production reduced and, second, by permitting labor groups to establish wages by intimidation and by force it forced city wages up. These high wages attracted people from the farm.

These acts of the Administration are largely the reason why the people have such a desperate time at present trying to get food to eat. The future of course looks serious if the present policies are continued.

And if we are to help the rest of the world, which we certainly should do under this catastrophe, we will find that we are not producing enough under the Administration's policies to properly feed our own people, let alone the rest of the world.

The position we find ourselves in in food, let alone other things, is just evidence that when the federal government attempts to plan that Thomas Jefferson knew what he was talking about when he said, "Were we directed by Washington when to sow and when to reap, we should soon want bread."

Baby Needs Food Because of low point values placed by the OPA on baby foods, many adults have been buying them. This diversion has reached such a point that one major manufacturer has requested food editors to ask the public to stop using them.

Baby ration books would call for something over 250,000,000 dozen cans a year, if all were used, but the industry is restricted to producing not more than 40,000,000 dozens. There isn't enough to feed everybody on strained foods.

Presumably most of the offenders have assumed that the low point value means a plenitude of baby food. It doesn't. There's a scarcity. So please don't take the food out of infants' mouths.

Wrong Approach Those who urge that we now promise absolutism to the German people if they will overthrow Hitler are on the wrong track. In World War II we gave them absolutism in return for their overthrowing the Kaiser, and in less than five years they were preparing for World War II.

For Germany and for Japan there can be only one ultimatum—unconditional surrender, and for any postwar mercy thank our discretion, not our pity.

"Winning the war" will take longer that way, and will cost more in lives and treasure. But it will be genuine victory, which might last for a while, and not the uneasy armistice that Versailles produced.

amount of pious talk about freedom from want can stop the debacle.

Of course we Americans should do our utmost, in the way of planning and toil and self-denial, to save the starving people of the world. All honor to Herbert Hoover for his efforts in that cause.

But when it comes to tinkering with our own top soil, when it comes to risking the livelihood of our children and their children's children—in such matters we might do well to make haste slowly.

WHY NOT TRIPE? (New York World-Telegram) The OPA's meat rationing authorities are doing their damndest to encourage the eating of tripe. They have lowered the value of this delicacy to one point a pound, ranking it along with beef tails and pork snouts as among the best bargains on the list.

Always eager to aid a good cause, we hasten to say a few good words for tripe. It has been strangely neglected by the poets and sages. Bobbie Butras preferred haggis or painch, but did not consider tripe worthy of mention in the company of these noble viands. An old English proverb had it that "tripe broth is better than no porridge," and another, with slightly less restraint, avowed that "tripe's good meat if it be well wipped."

But we string along with William Shakespeare, who wrote the deathless query, "How say you to a fat tripe finely boiled?" and supplied the prompt, appropriate reply: "I like it well, good Grumio. Fetch it me!"

Many are the merits of tripe. It is boneless and beautiful with honeycomb effects. It can be stewed with onions and covered with cream sauce; it can be fried to a rich and savory brownness. The people of France, in a mode de Caen. The people of Germany, according to a reliable report, used pickle tripe as a substitute for rubber heels.

So hasten to the butcher shop and stock up on tripe. Meanwhile, we'll be doing some research on pork snouts.

LAGGING BEHIND

ULTIMATUM—A lone lieutenant wearing four decorations, who had "gone through hell" as a bombardier in North Africa, recently visited the Capital on a furlough. After reporting to his superiors in the War Department, he made a bee-line to the headquarters of John L. Lewis here.

On his arrival at the luxurious office of the United Mine Workers in what was formerly the University Club, Lewis said he had a message to bar him from the august presence. But he swept them aside, banged open the door and sat down opposite the boss.

"Listen," he declared to the astonished labor chief, "we guys overseas are all in favor of unions. We believe with you that your men should have a decent wage. But we are giving our lives, some of us, for fifty dollars a month. We think that you should back us up."

"And if you don't, when we come home we will put you and your whole gang out of business. Because, on our return, believe it or not, we're going to run Congress and the country. And there will be, perhaps, twelve million of us."

The officer, explaining that he was actually a spokesman for the troops abroad rather than as an individual, did not wait for Mr. Lewis's reply or reaction. Upon delivering his military ultimatum, he turned on his heel in barracks style and left the room.

BREAK—Nationalization of all coal mines is the common aim of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Harold L. Ickes and John L. Lewis as a final escape from their dilemma. Although the White House is not showing its hand, F. D. R.'s more radical advisers see the present controversy a glorious chance to take over vital bottlenecked industries.

The president already has seized control of practically all America's water power, which rivals bituminous as a productive fuel. Private ownership has brought his public utility program with the argument that in some sections black diamonds are cheaper and more effective for generation of electricity than his string of dams at Grand Coulee, Bonneville and Muscle Shoals. Statistics appear to support their contention.

But if Washington confiscates the pits it can set prices and wages, as Mr. Ickes is doing now, to create the impression that "white coal" is preferable to anthracite or other solid combustibles.

In other words, F. D. R. will save the general Federal power experiments at the miner's expense. Although generally overlooked, this consideration lies behind the Administration's manipulation of the whole problem.

John L. of course has no objection to the idea of a permanent partnership of the shafts by Uncle Sam. He figures—in fact he knows—he can get a better break from Congress on pay and working conditions than from independent operators.

BOMBING—No naval miracle accounts for our conquest of the submarine in the Atlantic lanes to North Africa, Britain and the Soviet Union by way of Murmansk. Plodding patience, changed marine tactics and a conscientious study of the enemy's operating methods are the reasons for our recent successes in this type of deadly warfare.

We have stepped up the building of destroyers and corvettes escorting our grand convoys from home ports to foreign destinations. Merchants in mention in the company of aircraft carriers—or "baby ships" as the navy calls them. Planes arising from their decks in mid-ocean discover and destroy Herr Hitler's U-boats. For more than two weeks troops and material have been shipped to the continent without the loss of a single life or a pound of food.

Another factor, not quite so pleasant, may explain our victories on this front. As Hitler seems to be withdrawing into a shell on land with a "come and get me" challenge to the Russians, English and Americans, so may he have called in his wolf packs for a final and desperate defense of the Fatherland and its conquered countries.

Such is the conclusion of the Allied war staff sitting here, and belief in this theory is why within the round Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON NEA Staff Correspondent Not that Virginia O'Brien has completed the Hollywood cycle from "Meet the People" to "Meet the People"—it's high time for movie audiences to meet the Virginia O'Brien behind the dead pan.

So today we are forming a new organization known as "Get Virginia O'Brien into the Hero's Arms." All members of the "GVOIRRAITHA" will wear lapel buttons reading "Meet Virginia O'Brien."

Reason for our campaign is that Hollywood, we feel, isn't doing right by Virginia.

On the screen she's been given songs to sing deadpan style, a few lines of dialog and that just about ends it. She's typed as a comedienne. She's never had a screen romance. All her leading men are comedians. Handsome heroes ignore her. She's never been kissed in any of her pictures except by Bert Lahr, who pecked her on the arm once.

OFF-SCREEN LOVELY Off the screen, Virginia O'Brien is the antithesis of her celluloid self, a very beautiful young lady, indeed. People, in fact, have been known to do a double take upon meeting her for the first time and say, "No, that's Virginia O'Brien." There's that much difference. It can all be blamed, of course, on the poker-faced style of singing. That's what people remember about her.

Don't get the idea that Virginia is complaining. She's very happy as a deadpan, smiling one of the warmest smiles in Hollywood every time she appears in the weekly paycheck comes in.

But in support of the "GVOIRRAITHA" we submit the following: She can act! Several months ago, before Myrna Loy decided to return to the screen, studio bosses looked at some of Virginia's film scenes and decided she would be a splendid Nora opposite William Powell in the Thin Man series. She was given a script to read and told to prepare for the role. Then, Myrna suddenly decided to come out of her retirement and Virginia lost the part.

She has glamour: During filming of "Dubbary Was a Lady," the studio ordered one of Virginia's scenes refilmed. When she inquired what was wrong, she was told: "You looked too beautiful. You're supposed to be a comedienne."

SCARED SENSATION Meanwhile, Virginia is working in the film version of "Meet the People," the Hollywood revue in which she was literally frightened into a career. The dead pan was natural. She was terrified on opening night. She stood stiffly, almost motionless, while she sang. She was scared to death. She was a sensation, and won a film contract before the show closed.

Her role in the picture is typical of her other screen appearances. She plays a shipyard riveter who is featured in an amateur show staged by Dick Powell. She sings four numbers, two of them deadpan. There's no romance and very little acting to do. But now, we hope, things are going to be different.

Try Fixing A Farm Quota!

By PETER WADSWORTH Pampa News Editor Correspondent

FARM goals for 1944 are now being determined by the War Food Administration-Department of Agriculture setup. They'll be announced by the middle of next week, summer beginning with the winter wheat acreage program which must be determined by July 1 in time for first plantings.

Fixing of these farm crop quotas to meet the war requirements is about the most difficult responsibility ever thrown on any government agency.

The success of failure of the war effort may hang on these decisions, which will be carried right down to the individual farmer—the number of head of livestock he will farrow next spring, the number of poultry hatchings he will figure on, the acreage of each crop he will plant.

Then will come the big job of persuading the farmers, through their County War Boards, to grow the crops needed. If a farmer says he doesn't want to grow flax because he never raised it before, the proposition must be put up to him that the linseed oil is needed to paint the battleships or tanks.

Involved in the decisions to be made are complicated factors of the degree to which lifelong farming habits can be changed, the relative incomes to be derived from different farm products, the farm machinery and equipment available to handle special crops the human and animal food requirements, the comparative nutritional values of various crop combinations, the labor supply, the very future fertility of the land itself if the usual crop rotation routines are to be changed appreciably.

It is easy, say the agricultural economists, to sit down with paper and pencil and figure what is needed or what should be done ideally. But that involves shoving people around, ordering them to do this and so. The problem is to make goals that are attainable in a practical farm program that will be acceptable to farmers.

Basic determination of the entire program is to balance the number of livestock with the available feed supply. Bofled down, that means devoting as much acreage as possible to stock feed, in the light of other farm crop needs and taking into consideration the amount of feed grains that might be imported from Canada, Australia, the Argentine.

U. S. livestock population is now over 250 million head of cattle, sheep and hogs, over 540 million chickens. How much feed can be raised to support how much bigger a food animal population?

And how many of each kind of animals? If whole milk has a higher pork, shall dairy herds get a higher priority on feed supplies than chickens or pigs? And at what weight shall the meat animals be sent to market? Choice and prime beef that people like is fattened and slaughtered heavy, but you get more pounds of lean meat per bushel of stockfeed if the animals are slaughtered light.

Similarly with pigs. If fattened to 250 pounds the farmer gets more money return for the corn he feeds them than if he sells at 200 pounds. But the customers get more pork per bushel of corn if the pigs are sent to market at lighter weight. Also, beef and sheep have an advantage over pigs in that they will eat hay and pasture crops, while pigs need corn. How shall these factors be controlled, if at all?

In the corn belt, the need for other essential farm crops—particularly soybeans—competes with corn for acreage priority, and much-needed flax competes with wheat. In areas where there is an established five-year crop rotation—corn, alfalfa, wheat, corn, alfalfa—the system might be changed to a three-year cycle of corn, soybeans, corn, wheat shall the meat animals be tility of the soil and it would mean that the war had jolly well better end in 1946 so that a couple years of alfalfa could be planted to restore the land.

More wheat might be grown in the plains, but there is danger in plowing up the hazardous lands, the loose soils west of Minnesota and

Today's War Analysis

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Writer

When I came out of the far-northern Maine woods last week end, after being cut off from news during a fortnight's fishing vacation in the wilds, naturally the first thing I demanded was what the main development of the war had been during that period, and the quick answer was:

"The coal miners are going back to work."

Characterization of a coal mining situation as the biggest current news of the war had an odd ring in the ear, but undoubtedly that appraisal was the correct one. Continuance of the coal stoppage would represent a major disaster. We have been treading dangerously close to the edge of a precipice.

The trend of the operations in all theaters now depends on production and transportation. Invasions hinge on the availability of equipment and supplies in the fighting zones.

In short, as this column has remarked previously, the burden of this war rests very largely on the shoulders of the civilian workers at home. We can't pass the buck to the soldiers at the front, because they are helpless without equipment.

The second most important piece of news, and one closely interlocking with the first, seemed to be Stalin's renewed appeal for the opening of a western front by the Anglo-American Allies.

At the same time Moscow issued a communique which said that "everything now depends upon the manner in which our Allies will exploit the favorable situation by creating a second front in Europe, as well as to go this summer. It is impossible without a second front."

That summation represents the view as I have found it among American and British military men, although it isn't yet clear just how far the Anglo-American Allies may find it feasible to go this summer. It can be said that there still is a possibility of a wholesale invasion of the continent this year, if the Allies don't encounter any big hitch.

As things now stand it wouldn't be surprising to see an invasion of Sicily or Sardinia at any moment. Whether an assault on the Italian mainland or the Balkans will follow remains to be seen, but both are among the possibilities.

What Stalin is gunning for, of course, is an invasion of France across the English channel, so to place the Fuehrer squarely between two great armies, and he is very insistent. There are no indications thus far that this isn't in the cards. The Anglo-American air fleets are doing a magnificent job of spade work over western Europe, and another few weeks of this might open the road for a landing.

Iowa, in that it might start the dust bowl blowing around again.

Shall sugar beet acreage be re-sent to market? Choice and prime beef production that might be done if ships were available to bring more sugar from the tropics.

Should cotton acreage be reduced That, however, would mine the federal law against reducing cotton quoduced to increase potato, dry bean peanut harvesting machinery.

There, in over-simplified form, you have the outlines of the battleground for the war of food production. Where is the acreage to be for more peanut production? There's needed for civilian consumption, for the Army and Navy, for Lend-Lease, for relief and rehabilitation of occupied countries?

Majors Will Play War Relief Tilts

By JUDSON BAILEY Associated Press Sports Writer It's going to be a great relief for the major league clubs to start another round of inter-sectional play tomorrow.

This is because tomorrow is the first of two "war relief" days designated by Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis with all clubs turning over their entire receipts to the National War Fund.

Last year each club played a pair of games for the army and navy relief societies and some of them were given haphazard promotion by the clubs concerned. Nevertheless, the 16 games, played on various dates, and under various conditions, netted $266,630.30.

This year baseball has profited from its experience in 1942 and has mobilized for the two big relief days, June 30 and July 28, instead of scattering their dates and the whole show is being glided with gaudy side-features. All the shows will be either doubleheaders or twilight or night games.

The program tomorrow: National League—St. Louis at New York (doubleheader), Cincinnati at Brooklyn (doubleheader), Chicago at Boston (doubleheader), Pittsburgh at Philadelphia (night). American League—New York at Cleveland (night), Philadelphia at St. Louis (night), Boston at Detroit (twilight), Washington at Chicago (doubleheader), combined Washington-Chicago squad plays Great Lakes naval training station in first game.

These games will set off a busy two-week program for both leagues with a heavy holiday schedule awaiting all clubs this week-end and the annual all-star game coming up at Philadelphia, two weeks from tonight.

As is customary this year, most clubs had a two-day intermission before embarking on the East-West series. The only activity in the majors yesterday was a night game at Pittsburgh with the Pirates pummeling the Cincinnati Reds 7-1.

Truett (Rip) Sewell, on the way to his most successful season, pitched steady, seven-hit ball and personally whacked Bucky Walters off the mound with a two-run triple in the second inning. The opening frame Bob Elliott contributed a two-run homer toward Sewell's tenth triumph against two defeats. All clubs are idle today.

Whirlaway Bows Out Of Racing

NEW YORK, June 29 (AP)—Racing loses the champ today, and the old game just won't seem the same any more.

Whirlaway is all through with the races and heads back to the blue grass for keeps. And with him, something goes out of the turf. There have been greater horses, but there probably never was one who gave you a bigger thrill than little Mr. Big Tail.

There was hysteria that swept over Narragansett the day he and Alsab hooked up in their match race thriller-diller. Flyers Taste Sweet Revenge, Defeat Hubers

Sunday was a "day of sweet revenge" for the Pampa Army Air Field Flyers as they trounced the Berger Hubers, 8 to 2, in a baseball game at Pampa Field's diamond, thus erasing an earlier defeat at the hands of the Hubers.

The Berger nine eked out a ninth inning 6 to 5 win over the PAAFP's at Berger several weeks ago, but they couldn't repeat Sunday against the hard-hitting soldiers.

Paced by their slugging first-baseman, "Chief" Gutierrez, the Flyers scored in the 4th, 5th, 6th and 8th innings to win their most impressive victory of the year.

Sgt. Sams was on the field for the men of Pampa Field and was ahead of the Hubers' hitters all afternoon. He limited the losers to 8 hits and struck out nine to chalk up his third hurrying triumph of the season.

The Hubers scored first, getting

Texan, Three Others Survive Crash Landing In South American Jungles, Are Rescued

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, June 29 (AP)—Four crew members of an air force transport who survived a crash landing in the South American jungles last reached a U. S. air base after a 20-day trek during which they escaped starvation, drowning in mud swamps, and mosquito infection, the Antilles air command headquarters disclosed today.

The four are Lieut. William B. Robson of Corsicana, Tex. the pilot; Flight Officer Stanley T. Carter of Bemidji, Minn., co-pilot; Tech. Sergt. Arthur Rowlen of Jones, Okla., crew chief; and Corp. William J. Manley of Escanaba, Mich., radio operator.

Robson, a graduate of Texas A and M college, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Robson of Corsicana. Rowlen is the son of Mrs. T. L. Rowlen of Jones.

Off his course and fighting motor trouble, Robson picked a partially cleared opening in the jungle for a belly landing. But what appeared to be solid ground turned out to be a swamp and the plane slithered to a halt while its propellers dug into the soft mud. The plane buried its nose and threatened to bury the crew under a surge of slime.

Chapter 26

THE American officers in Brisbane wanted to know something about the Japs, and I tried to tell them what I had learned.

A few days before we sailed away from Bataan, MacArthur had talked to Jacoby and myself about the Japanese soldier.

"The Jap," he said, "is a first-class fighting man. These troops facing me on Bataan may not be as good as the best troops in the World War, but it would take the best troops to beat them."

"Their officers spend lives heedlessly, even for unimportant objectives. The individual Jap is a fanatic. He will throw himself on a land mine to explode it and clear the way for others. Or he will fling himself on my barbed wire and let those following him climb over his body."

I recalled to the general an interview which I had two years before Pearl Harbor with Lieutenant General Masaharu Homma, then commander of Japanese forces at Tientsin, whose troops had blockaded the British Concession in the North China port and stripped British men and women and slapped their faces. I told Homma that the blockade appeared to me part of a deliberate plan to drive the white man out of the Orient; but he disclaimed any such purpose on the part of Japan and denied responsibility for the inexcusable assaults on Britons—blaming them on "gen-darmes whom I am unable to control."

Our talk touched Japanese-American problems and drifted to the Philippines, where two years later Homma was to turn up as commander of the invasion forces opposing MacArthur. Homma said he hoped the United States would recognize Japan's "true mission" in the Orient and would not cut off Japan's sources of needed materials. If the United States tried to oppose Japan, then war was inevitable. Japan, however, he said had considered it inevitable for years.

"I think I understand your American psychology very well," he said. "I think that every American believes he can handle any two Japanese soldiers. Is that not true?"

I replied, "Well we have our own ideas."

THE entire Japanese plan was a desperate gamble but everything, everywhere, broke right for them. Their audaciousness paid great dividends. They were gambling that their attack on Pearl Harbor would paralyze the U. S. Navy long enough to give them time to conquer Southeastern Asia, and their calculations proved correct. They gambled that they could knock out our Air Force in the Philippines, and in Malaya, and they won. They believed that we would be too slow in sending planes to reinforce the Netherlands Indies and Singapore, and they were right. They caught our planes on the ground again and again, in the Philippines and Malaya and even in the Indies. They used the element of surprise to the utmost.

In addition they knew every foot of ground they were to fight over. Through the years their spies had laboriously gathered all the information they needed. They knew what type of clothes and what arms and equipment to use in the jungles of Malaya and the mountains of southeastern Luzon. They knew what tactics to use to confuse our troops and terrorize the civilian population.

Soldier for soldier, our troops proved themselves better than the Japanese. In Bataan our Filipino and American troops killed an average of five Japs for every ally in our forces, and sometimes as many as seventeen or twenty to one. These figures were later equalled by our Marines on Guadalcanal. What made the Japanese tough foes was their refusal to surrender.

Twenty-five hundred Japanese died in January and February in the unsuccessful effort to crack our Bataan flank. We took some ninety prisoners out of the whole twenty-five hundred, and most of those were too seriously wounded to go on fighting. Perhaps that number is too small to permit any conclusions regarding the health of the whole regiment. But in any case four out of five of the prisoners were suffering from some chronic disease, usually venereal. When captured their physical condition was poor, due to lack of food and water, but most of them were husky and well built, approximately 5 feet 3 inches tall and weighing around 115 pounds.

"WAKE UP, AMERICA!"

Should The Wagner Labor Act Be Repealed?

As debated by Samuel Wolchok and John W. Scoville

Pres. of the United Retail, Wholesale and Department Store Employees of America, C.I.O. Nationally-known Industrial Economist, Writer and Lecturer.

MR. WOLCHOK OPENS: The Wagner Act merely protects the right of employees to bargain collectively. Congress insisted upon this recognition that denial led to costly dislocations of commerce by strikes and lockouts. Congress recognized that trade unionism, fostered and protected through 50 years on our railroads, brought industrial peace in place of strife. Congress intent has been well stated. At the time of the Act's passage few labor-management agreements existed. Today 13,000,000 men and women work under written agreements setting forth working conditions and providing day-by-day grievance machinery. In the early days, when the Liberty League declared the Act unconstitutional, 4700 strikes resulted—50% over issues of union recognition and anti-union discrimination. In excess of 28,000,000 man days were wasted. Today, not a single day is lost through strikes authorized by union action. Today, 12,000,000 trade unionists, subject to union discipline, work with fellow employees without fear of surveillance, violence or discrimination. This is the American way: Freedom from fear on the production front. To ignore the experiences and procedures of the Act is to blind ourselves to benefits accruing to management, labor and the public. To turn back the clock is to create a Pandora's Box of strikes and industrial anarchy destructive of the basic rights of collective bargaining.

MR. SCOVILLE CHALLENGES: In the decade since Congress attempted to deny employers the right to contract with individuals, the number of strikes has been three times as great as in the ten years preceding. The means (collective bargaining) have not accomplished the objective. Instead, the burden on commerce from strikes has been tripled.

If the many recent strikes are unauthorized, how can government or employers deal with irresponsible unions? If they are authorized, the instigators are traitors. If repeal means strikes and industrial anarchy, then labor leaders value governmental coercion of employers more than the lives of our soldiers and the safety of our country.

MR. WOLCHOK REPLIES: More employers-employees have used collective bargaining, culminated by written contract, since the Wagner Act became law than before. Current unrest is due to rising living costs; the threat of inflation. More serious social dislocations from strikes will come unless effective action rolls back living costs. No one would expect industry to continue production if the government cancelled its war contracts. Industry refused to produce until it was paid for the contracts it wanted, including quick amortization. Labor, too, wants its conditions put in a written contract. Totalitarian countries destroy or control organized labor. Let us here, foster organizations like trade unions, not emulate the Nazis.

COLOGNE

RAF's raid on Cologne may have delivered as heavy a bombardment as the first 1,000-bomber assault, there on May 30, 1942, when more than 300 acres were left in charred ruins in the heart of the city.

"Clouds over the city made full observation of results difficult, but large fires were seen to be burning," the British air ministry said.

"Bombs were also dropped on Hamburg and mines were laid in enemy waters."

At the same time, RAF intruder patrols shot up railway targets in Nazi-occupied France, and fighter planes slashed at Axis shipping in the English Channel, damaging a supply vessel and two escorting E-boats.

Other events at-a-glance: RUSSIA—Ominous lull still prevails on long battle line; Soviet troops kill 200 Germans on central (Moscow) front.

SOUTH PACIFIC—Allied fighters break up 16-plane Japanese raid on Darwin, Australia, probably destroying six enemy aircraft; Gen. MacArthur's bombers pound four Japanese bases in islands above Australia; Italian headquarters listed 175 killed and 300 injured at Leghorn, 14 killed and 52 injured at Reggio Calabria, and four killed and four injured at Messina as fleets of Allied raiders pressed their pre-invasion offensive against Italy's island outposts and the Fascist kingdom itself.

"Very great damage was caused in Leghorn," the Italian communique admitted.

German bombers were said to have attacked Pantelleria Island "with good success," but the claim lacked confirmation from Allied sources.

WALLACE

surpluses if they were not bought privately.

This seems to us to have been a timid, business-as-usual procedure; at least it was a "far cry" from the aggressive government stockpiling which the congress directed and authorized so that this nation might have a margin of security in its imported raw materials inventories.

Wallace referred to testimony of last December before the Senate Banking committee in which he and Milo Perkins, executive director of BWE, "gave evidence of the extent to which he (Jones) had delayed the foreign rubber program and cited specifically his stalling in the gathering of wild rubber in South America and the planting of rubber plantations in Africa and in the planting of cryptostegia for natural rubber in the Caribbean."

He said he was making today's additional statement because "the effort to misrepresent the facts concerning the Board of Economic Warfare has continued."

"There are times when the sense of public duty outweighs the natural personal reluctance to discuss facts of this nature," Wallace said.

"This is such a time."

Wallace listed quinine, used in the treatment of malaria, among the strategic materials required. He said that on April 14, 1942, General Douglas MacArthur wired that two million seeds (Far East cinchona bark) of a high grade strain had been brought out of the Philippines and quoted MacArthur as saying the seeds "must be planted without delay."

"I am sorry to have to inform this committee," the vice president said in his statement, "that Jesse Jones and Will Clayton (assistant secretary of commerce and director of the Defense Supplies Corporation, an RFC subsidiary) stalled for months on this program. There are times when what we need is more fights and fewer shortages."

MR. SCOVILLE REPLIES: To bargain individually is just as sacred a right as to bargain collectively. The Wagner Act increases industrial unrest and class war; promotes labor monopolies and enables labor organizers to engage in racketeering, coercion, intimidation, strikes and violence, under the protective shield of the United States Government. It sets up no standards for labor unions. It assumes that employers alone are unfair. It has been administered by prejudiced officials who are hostile to employers. The culmination of this vicious class legislation was the walk out of all coal miners, Hell Hitler Congress should strike at the root of these evils and repeal the Act.

Oil Men Join Farm Groups In OPA Fuss

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—Congressional oil interests, Senator Thomas (D-Okla.) said today, probably will join with farm groups in demanding that Office of Price Administration activities be turned over to other governmental agencies.

During committee consideration of the $71,000,000,000 house-approved war department appropriations bill, much of the discussion was devoted to the urgent demand for an increase in the price of crude oil, said Thomas, chairman of the senate subcommittee on the bill.

A recent recommendation by Petroleum for War Administrator Ickes that the price of crude oil be increased 35 cents a barrel was turned down by OPA.

"Right now farm groups are demanding that OPA activities be given to War Administrator Chester Davis," Thomas said.

"Oil interests want OPA's authority turned over to PAW, and the two groups probably will join forces in order to bring these changes about."

Christian Science Lecture Is Heard

"The World today is suffering from one of these periods of human retrogression and spiritual stagnation," William D. Kilpatrick, C. S. B., of Detroit, Mich., told an audience last night at the Junior high school auditorium, in a Christian Science lecture entitled, "Christian Science; The Truth About God and Man."

"Christian Science teaches us that error of any nature destroys itself and that is precisely what is happening in the world today, error, or sin, destroying itself."

Excessive War Spending Cited

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—Reporting to the house after a personal inspection of 47 war plants, Rep. Engle (R-Mich.) declared today that "excess wages and profits" were being encouraged by administration policies.

He cited as examples of high wages, the payment of $55.50 weekly to girls "learning to mend shoes which are worn by men in the service receiving only $50 a month," and factory machine-gun assemblers who were paid more in some cases than top-ranking army officers.

Engle made the inspection as a member of the house appropriations subcommittee handling army expenditures.

Yale Looks Good In Golf Meet

CHICAGO, June 29 (AP)—Yale surged from behind yesterday at Olympia Fields to step into the role of a strong contender when favored Michigan and Louisiana State faltered on the last round of the 36-hole National Collegiate Golf championship route.

Today's second round pairings include Claude Wild, Texas, vs. Robert Fife, Michigan and William Roden, Texas, vs. Dale Morey, Louisiana State.

Difference Over Farm Bill Whittled Down

WASHINGTON, June 29 (AP)—Differences between the senate and the house over the $875,000,000 farm bill were whittled down today to soil conservation payments and crop insurance when conferees reached a compromise on the farm security administration program.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.), said senate conferees agreed to accept house limitations of $20,000,000 on administrative funds for the FSA's rural rehabilitation loan program and $60,000,000 in borrowing authority for the making of new rehabilitation loans.

Wheeler Sees Best Crops In 3 Years

(Special to The News)

SHAMROCK, June 29—Crop conditions in Wheeler county are the best in three years. Both cotton and feed crops up to a good stand over most of the county, and small grain crops are about ready for harvest.

Between 104,000 and 105,000 acres have been planted to feed this year by Wheeler county farmers. Some 5,000 additional acres will be planted to these crops as it is normal for about that much cotton to result in a poor stand and be planted to feed crops.

In addition to this large acreage of feed stuffs, some 49,000 to 50,000 acres of cotton will be left unless something unforeseen happens. This is about 70 per cent of the annual acreage for the county and is less than normal because of the stress being placed on growing feed.

A year ago this month rains amounting to from six to eight inches fell over the county, destroying about 60 per cent of the newly planted crops. At this time last year prospects were only a 20 per cent cotton crop—and that was about all that was harvested. A little cotton is yet to be planted over the county, but it is considered that there is still plenty of time to plant grain sorghums.

Generally speaking, the fruit crop of Wheeler county will be light, with only the grape and apple crop reported to be near 100 per cent normal. The peach crop will be only about 5 per cent normal. The cherry crop is about 20 per cent normal, but the plum and apricot crops are also light.
