WOMAN SEIZED AND BEATEN BY SKIRTED BAND

Who Belled The Cat? Nobody

Klan's Plans for a Party Fail to Go Through, Writer Declares

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—What's the matter with the politicians of Texas? What's wrong with the game? Why the milling and the dodging around at the Texhoma offices, were married church parsonage at 1612 Kemp corners? Why the hide-and-seek tactics? Why the unwillingness to take the plunge into the deep pool? Why not lift the pressure and end the agonizing suspense of the voting public?

In other election years the game began early. In other years all the candidates threw their cards on the board a year in advance of the primary contest. In other years the frenzied seekers for high or low place, were out in the highways and the byways shaking hands with the men, flattering the women, kissing the babies, strewing the surface of the earth with dead platitudes and filling the air with gaseous odors.

It has been different this year. Governor Miriam A. Ferguson isn't doing any direct talking as to her candidacy for a second term or as to her retirement from the political arena at the close of the first term. Farmer Jim is talking through the Ferguson Forum, not direct as to the Ferguson candidacy, but slipping the news around the corners that the Fergusons will be on the firing line at the proper time.

A Problem For Jim.

Farmer Jim has a knotty problem to solve. Those who are close to him say he would like to take a fall out of Senator Earl B. Mayfield when the latter comes up for re-election in 1928. Now if the Fergusons retire at the close of the present term, Farmer Jim wonders if he will lose any voting strength by pulling out of the state contest this year.

On the other hand if the Fergusons go into the state contest this year as a candidate for re-elecion to the office of governor and then go down in defeat, will it be the finish of the Fergusons in the political life of Texas and the possible loss of a senatorial toga in 1928.

It is a knotty political problem for the individual or two individuals concerned. And, it is made ten times more knotty for the reason that Farmer Jim loves the political arena as Jack Dempsey loved the fisticuff arena before he became fat and wealthy and took unto himself a beautiful wife. It goes without saying that the Fergusons must make up their minds in the near future.

Sarcastic politicians say they are waiting for Dan to declare himself. And envious politicians say Dan is waiting for the trial and the finish of the Hoffman Road company suit and others of like nature; and then he will accede to the demands of Vox Populi and jump into the race as a candidate for governor. There is a game called belling the cat. It is an old game. It was staged at Houston last Sunday.

He Wasn't Belled.

Dan, whose othe name is Moody, and who is the attorney general of Texas, was the cat that was to be belled. Those who are on the inside say that the women of the ku klux klan were to do the belling while the men of the klan were to be onlookers only and enjoy the festivities of the occasion.

A law enforcement meeting was called. Dan was invited to be the orator of the occasion. It was staged as a W. T. C. U function. A woman, high in klan councils, was selected to introduce the speaker. A ministerial brother, high in klan councils, was on the program to introduce the klan as a law enforcement agency.

Dan isn't a mucker. He saw the invisible bell with the naked eye and he smelled the invisible cat with his delicate nostrils. There were 2500 in the audience, and it is said a majority knew what was coming. Dan was to be adopted and relieved of political orphanage. He was not to be permitted to roam about without chaperones, cicerones or friends. Then he saw the invisible bell again and then smelled the invisible cat again and before the interesting stage of proceedings had come he smashed the bell and he kicked the cat between the eyes. In other words, he informed the president of the W. C. T. U. that

Teacher Braves Storm; Pupils Fail to Show Up

LAST Thursday was a day of particular inclemency so far as the weather went, and particularly was it so for Miss Elizabeth Peters, teacher in the Cobb district school 12 miles west of town.

With three or four inches of ice and snow on the ground and roads soaked and muddy, Miss Peters got up early and drove the 12 miles to the school building. She was there on time, but not a single one of her 24 regularly enrolled pupils greeted her. None showed up all day.

She came back that night and drove out again the next morning—to find exactly the same thing. Not a pupil appeared. Most of them live three or four miles from the building.

"I cleaned house thoee two days," she said.

NEW COLD WAVE ON WAY, REPORT

Blizzard Sweeping Down To Chicago from Northwest, Bureau Declares

CHICAGO, Jan. 23- (AP)—Warm weather today caused considerable moderation of the zero wave that held the middle west in its grip for 48 hours but weather bureau indications were that another cold wind is burrying here from the northwest, although it is not expected to send the mercury to zero.

The thermometer here climbed from two above at 7 a. m., to 23 above at 4 p. m., and the coldest expected tonight is 16 above.

SAN ANTONIO SUSPENDS WORK TO CELEBRATE SNOW

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. —23.—(AP)—San Antonio's snowfall of 2.25 inches—the heaviest in 20 years—sent city employes on a snow spree this morning and business at the city hall was suspended three hours.

Gathering at the main entrance to the building the municipal workers sent a volley of snow balls at city officials coming to work. When this diversion lost its charm the snow fighters went from floor to floor with buckets of snow showering all who tried to work and had not locked their office doors. Mayor Tobin, evidently "tipped off," did not visit his office today.

UNIVERSITY CO-EDS ARE GIVEN ROLLING IN SNOW

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Cries of "roll 'em, roll 'em" greeted Texas university co-eds as they traversed the snow-blanketed campus in going between classes. Many of the girls were "rolled" by boy friends.

WARMER WEATHER DUE TODAY, FORT WORTH TOLD

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Warmer weather failed to materialize here today but will arrive Sunday, the weather observer announced this afternoon. Temperatures were still below freezing at today's maximum and promised to drop somewhat tonight.

HEAVIEST SNOW FALL IN 29 YEARS IN HOUSTON

HOUSTON, Jan. 23.— Houston's heaviest snowfall in 29 years was recorded between 6:10 o'clock and 1:15 p. m. today. It measured eight-tenths of an inch and was the third heaviest snowfall on record in this section.

A white blanket covered all of south Texas.

Will Show Burned Bones and Ashes At Trial of Snow

STEPHENVILLE, Jan. 233.—(AP)—Damaging testimony regarding the other two slayings involved in the trial of F. W. Snow, being tried for the slaying of his step-son, Bernie Connally, 19, here last November, is being admitted in the evidence submitted, giving the state wider scope in making out the circumstantial chain against Snow. This was featured today by the announcement that before the prosecution rests it will offer in evidence a box filled with ashes and burned bones which the state hopes to prove are the remains of Mrs. S. A. Old, mother-in-law of Snow, and of Mrs. Maggie Snow, his wife.

GOLF LINKS FOR TOURISTS ON LINCOLN HIGHWAY CAMP

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—On the theory that transcontinental motor tourists will want relaxation on a golf links from time to time, on a long trip, Lavern Miller of Sterling, Ill., today began work on an 18-hole links in connection with a tourist camp on the Lincoln highway.

To Call Another Confab on Strike

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Anthricite miners and operators will meet again in joint conference in a few days for another battle to end the long coal strike.

The meeting will be held at the request of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, but the operators already have served notice that the plan on which the call for further conference is based is fundamentally unsound and does not afford a satisfactory basis for a contract.

GROOM GIVES PASTOR $500; IS ARRESTED

Suspicion Following Generosity Brings Detention For N. M. Officers

CONFESSION CLAIMED

Posing as Owner of Orange Groves and Huge Ranch, Admits Auto Swindle

CHILDRESS, Jan. 23.—When a debonair young white man gave a local minister a check for $500 for uniting him in marriage with a girl in a nearby farming community, he aroused suspicion which resulted in his arrest. The check was found to be worthless, after the minister, unaccustomed to such gifts for hearing the simple words, "I do," began an investigation.

Sheriff John B. Compton, who arrested the man, said the visitor had posed as the owner of a large orange grove in California, a large cattle ranch near El Paso with over 36,000 head of cattle, and other properties. Sheriff Compton said the man, who was taken yesterday to Amarillo by federal officers, admitted he was wanted in a number of places. He said Albuquerque, N. M., officials wanted him for giving a worthless check to a sick soldier for the Dodge coupe in which he came to C[illegible]ress county.

The Albuquerque chief of police, in a conversation over long distance telephone with local officers, characterized the suspect as "a bad man."

C. F. Crisp was sent here from Albuquerque to recover the automobile.

SMACKOVER FLOOD CUTS PRODUCTION OF OIL WELLS

ELDORADO, Ark., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Operation of oil wells located in the Smackover creek "bottoms" was being hampered today by the overflowing of the creek.

Water is reported two feet higher than ever before experienced. Several companies report rigs under water and production curtailed. One company estimated that its daily production had been reduced three thousand barrels.

Bank Clearings Fall $334,799.27

MOODY SUES FOR REVENUE ON STATE GASOLINE LAW

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Attorney General Dan Moody today filed suit in the 53rd district court of Travis county against the De Leon Pipe Line and Refining company of De Leon, Commanche county, for taxes alleged to be due under the one-cent gasoline tax law. It is alleged in the petition the defendant sold between June 27, 1925 and 1925, 88,756 gallons of gasoline and that $8,887.37 is due the state.

Charges in Osage Cases Are Upheld

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 23—(AP)—Federal District Judge John H. Cotteral today denied a motion of attorneys for John Ramsey and W. K. Hale, "king of the Osage hills," charged jointly with the murder of Henry Roan, wealthy Osage, to quash federal grand jury indictments against the men.

Judge Cotteral held that a motion to quash was not the proper procedure to challenge the jurisdiction of the government.

Demurrers to the indictments were immediately filed and J. M. Springer, attorney for Ramsey, opened the arguments.

TON PIECE OF COAL IS ON DISPLAY UNGUARDED

SUNBURY, Pa., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Unguarded day or night, a 2000-pound piece of anthracite coal is attracting great attention as it stands in front of the retail office of the George Nevin estate here. The block of coal was placed there 22 years ago when anthracite was worth $2 a ton wholesale.

THE DAY IN WASHINGTON.

Hearing on charges against Federal Judge H. B. Anderson were ended.

French Ambassador Berenger announced he was prepared to discuss the French debt.

The agricultural appropriation bill, carrying $126,250,000 was reported to the house.

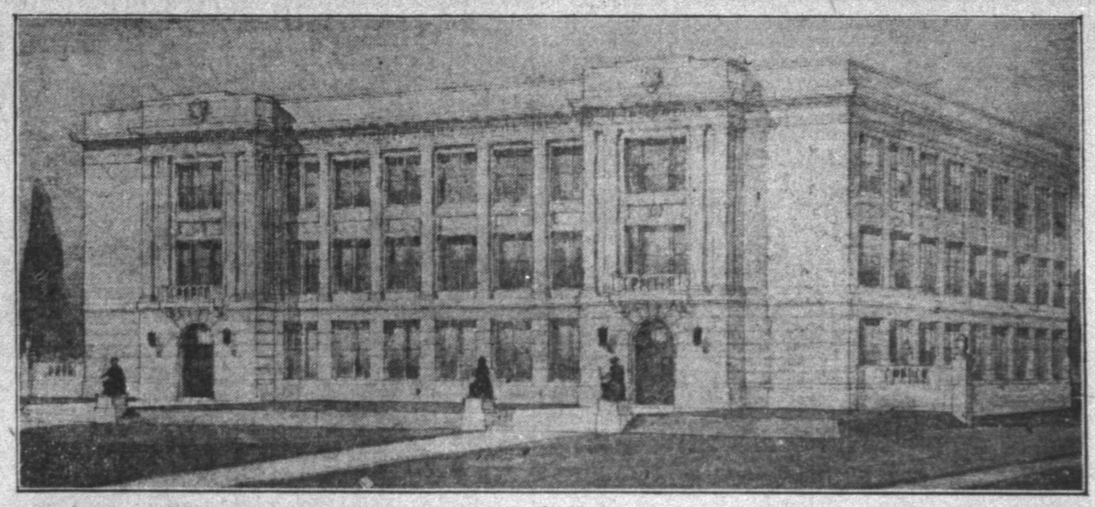

Efforts to obtain an unanimous consent vote date on the world court failed.

The house was in adjournment because of the death of Representative Baker of California.

Senator Norris delivered a general attack on conditions surrounding the tariff commission.

Senate leader, considered, asking President Coolidge to withdraw the Woodlock interstate commerce commission nomination.

New Junior High To Be Next School Building Here

How the new Junior High School building, to be erected on Avenue G between Polk and Taylor, will look when it is completed, according to the plans drawn by Voelcher and Dixon, architects. The contract for the building was let by the school board Thursday to J. H. Reddick of Fort Smith, Ark., for the sum of $144,300. It is to be ready for school work by September 5, 1926, by the terms of the contract.

The building will have 35 rooms including domestic science, art and sewing rooms, gymnasium and auditorium.

MASONS QUIZZ BRO. BURBANK

Seek to Know How He "Squared" His Belief With Lodge

SANTA ROSA, Calif., Jan. 23.—(AP)—As an aftermath of his announcement that he did not believe in the God of Moses and Isiah the creeds and dogmas of revealed religion or in the persistence of personal identity after death, Luther Burbank, noted plant culturist was asked today by Masonic friends how he "squared" his belief with his membership in that fraternity. Mr. Burbank recently had conferred on him the thirty-third degree (honorary) of Scottish Rite Masonry.

Mr. Burbank's reply was that the idea of a supreme being as expressed in Masonry was in accordance with his annouced beliefs and ideals. He said he believed in a supreme power of some kind but that his idea was that it was spiritual and not anthropomorphus in any sense.

The "plant wizard" said that virtually all great reformers had been disbelievers in some of the accepted tenets of religion.

SHEPHERD GIVEN OFFICE BY TEXAS FAIR ASSN. MAN

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—W. V. Crawford of Waco, president of the Texas Cotton Palace was elected president of the Texas Association of Fairs today. COMMISSIONER RELEASES BOAT LOADED WITH BOOZE

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Honduran schooner Jose Louis, seized outside the 12-mile limit off the Louisian coast by the coast guard cutter CG-250 on January 8, was ordered released by United States Commissioner Burgett today after a hearing and the master, F. Woods and six seamen who were arrested and charged with violation of the Volstead law and conspiracy to violate the traffic act were acquitted on the contention that the vessel was seized outside the territorial waters of the United States.

Soviet Occupation of Railway Station Threatened Following Arrest of Russ Railway Manager and His 3 Assistants By Chang's Men

PEKING, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A threat of a soviet occupation of the railway station at Harbin, Manchuria, headquarters of the Chinese eastern railway, was telegraphed today to Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, dictator of Manchuria, by L. M. Karakhan, soviet ambassador to China, following the arrest yesterday of M. Ivanoff, Russian general manager, and three Russian directors of the railroad.

The arrests were made at Harbin by orders of Marshal Chang or his subordinates, following several days of controversy over the right of Chinese troops to ride without payment of fares.

Ambassador Karakhan's threat was supplemented by a telegram from the Peking foreign office to Chang and other military leaders concerned, insisting that M. Ivanoff must be released in the interest of good relations of Russia and China. This message was sent after M. Karakhan had protested vigorously to the foreign office.

The soviet embassy stated today that the Harbin arrests create a very serious situation and constitute a "grave insult."

In his protest to the foreign office M. Karakhan demanded that Ivanoff's immediate release reserving the right "to return to the matter of the arrest and to demand satisfaction for an unheard violation of the agreement of 1924 (for joint Russo-Chinese operation of the railroad)."

Fire Drives Scores Into Zero Weather

MONESSEN, Pa., Jan. 23.—(AP) Twelve buildings were destroyed and 20 families driven to the streets in near zero temperature when fire early today swept an entire block in the business district of Monessen. The loss was estimated at $350,000. Three firemen were injured.

Amundsen Defends Cook's Claims To Discovery of Pole

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—(AP) Dr. Frederick A. Cook's claims to having discovered the North Pole are just as sound as those of Commander R. E. Peary, declares Captain Raold Ai undsen, discoverer of the South Pole, here today to lecture on his explorations.

Captain Amundsen recently visited Dr. Cook at Leavenworth penitentiary where the former North Pole explorer is serving a 14-year sentence for oil stock promotions here more than two years ago.

"I have read Dr. Cook's story, written months before Peary's, and I have read Peary's," Amundsen said. "In Peary's story I have not found anything of consequence Dr. Cook had not covered. I am only unconvinced that Dr. Cook was a faker, but on the contrary I am of the opinion that his story of the discovery is just as plausible as Peary's.

"It is possible that neither of them actually reached the pole, but regardless it seems to me that Dr. Cook's claims were just as sound as Peary's."

Captain Amundsen deplored the weight given the testimony of the Eskimos on which Dr. Cook was discredited.

KNELL HEARD FOR MERCIER

Belgium's Beloved Primate and Patriot Succumbs To Long Illness

BRUSSELS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, died at three o'clock this afternoon and the passing of the great patriot and churchman was announced by the tolling of bells throughout the land.

He died peacefully, with eyes fixed upon the crucifix and surrounded by his family. The funeral will take place at Malines on Thursday and the body will be transported there tonight. It will lie in state in the arch Episcopal residence. The holding of national funeral services will be decided upon by the council of ministers.

Half an hour before the end the cardinal's mind, which had been extraordinarily clear and keen began to fail. Breathing became difficult and at exactly three o'clock his his head fell forward slightly as he expired.

In the last hours Cardinal Mercier grasped the hand of Brother Hubert, who had so long and so faithfully watched over him, and with Hubert's hand in his the cardinal breathed his last. A nun held the other hand, in which she had placed a lighted candle.

King Albert and Prince Leopold came to St. Jean clinic, when they learned of the passing of the cardinal and remained for cevefal minutes silently beside the bier where the body lay clothed in ceremonial robes. Prior to this, Burgomast r Max came personally to record the death of his ancient war time ally.

All the newspapers published special editions this evening announcing the cardinal's death, which provoked consternation generally despite the fact that every one knew the cardinal's days were numbered. Belgium throughout the length and breadth of the land is in deep mourning.

REGENTS SELECT HEAD OF DENTON COLLEGE FEB. 10

DENTON, Jan. 23.—Election of a new president of the College of Industrial Arts, Denton, to succeed Dr. Lindsey Blayney, who resigned last fall ,effective at the close of the present school year, will be held at a meeting of the board of regents of the college to be held in Fort Worth on February 10. This was announced late Saturday following adjournment of a two-day session of the board at the college.

Plane Forced To Land Off Beach

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP)—One of the first squadrons of naval seaplanes which left Fernandina, Fla., this morning on the Miami leg of their flight to Cuba to participate in naval maneuvers, was forced down a mile at sea off Daytona beach this afternoon, according to members of the crew of one of the planes which arrived here today. The disabled plane was towed ashore, the fliers said.

SEEING JAR OF RUM IS NO BASIS FOR SEARCH

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 23.—(AP) Seeing through a window that a man had a jar containing what appears to be whiskey is insufficient basis to enter the place without a search warrant, Judge Duval West ruled in federal court today in dismissing a charge of violation of the national prohibition act.

FAMED DOCTOR DEAD.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23.—(AP) Dr. O. L. Pothier, an authority on tropical medicine, died here today.

First Unit of New 8-Room School Building in Country Club Estates Addition to Be Started at Once

Construction of the first unit of eight rooms of a new public school building in the Country club estates now being developed on the southern edge of the city will be started as soon as architects plans for the structure can be completed, it was announced Saturday. The school will be ready for use when the September, 1926 term, is opened.

A contract was entered into Saturday between C. H. Clark, representing the school board, and N. H. Martin of the Hamilton-Martin Investment company, developers of the Country club estates addition, whereby the building will be erected on a plat of ground tendered the board recently by the investment company. It was accepted. The school will serve children living south of the Junior college and in the south part of Scotland addition; those in the Harrison addition and, of course, those in the new addition.

Could Fill It Now

Mr. Clark, speaking for the school board, said yesterday that the new school could be filled now if it were ready. The new Crockett school nearing completion in the western part of town will give relief to overcrowded conditions in the San Jacinto school; while the new building in the Country club estates will do the same for the Alamo school, one of the largest in the city.

Architecture of the building will be in keeping with the improvements of the new addition. The ground is almost entirely surrounded with surved driveways and parks, while shade trees on the campus will be water oak. Landscaping for the grounds will be done complimentary to the board by Hare and Hare, city planners and landscape architects of Kansas City, who are planners of the Country club estates.

Surroundings of the school, it is pointed out, will be fully as attractive if not more so than can be found anywhere else in the city.

The popular priced section of the Country club estates, lying in the west and southwest of the new school where lots have been cut to 40 foot fronts with a building restriction of $5,000, will be put on the market immediately. This section will be restricted to brick residences and will have all the improvements in the way of large shade trees, parks, irrigation water and paved streets.

To the south of the new school a number of large homes have been contracted to start construction immediately on some of the many large building sites.

Mr. Clark stated that the large building campaign going on through the south part of the city, especially in Brook addition, Harrison addition, the south part of the Southland addition, and in Highland addition south of the Junior college, as well as the new construction in the Country club estates, makes the erection of this new building an absolute necessity.

VICTIM TAKEN FROM HOME AND THEN ATTACKED

Tied Hand and Foot, She Is Carried to Lonely Spot And Whipped

Ocala, Florida, Resident Is Picked Up By Motorist And Given Aid

OCALA, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP)—A band of 17 masked women drove up to a house here today in automobiles and nine members of the band forcibly removed a woman from her home, tied her hands and limbs and rushed her to lonely spot three miles north of the city where they whipped her with switches cut from nearby trees.

The woman was left there, she reported to the police. She was picked up by a passing motorist and brought back to the city where she was given medical attention. She was unconscious when picked up. No arrests have been made.

Body of "Ghost Woman" Exhumed

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Post mortem examination of Mrs. Mary C. Sterling French, aged recluse of Parkridge, suburb was begun today. The body was exhumed yesterday by order of Coroner Wolf.

Action was also started, cited Edmund Ostronski, executor of the $35,000 estate, to disclose hidden assets.

The woman, who was known as the "ghost woman" died January 6, leaving her entire estate to a friendly neighbor, Mrs. Harriett Dahlman. Rumors concerning the will led to an investigation.

The first claim to heirship to the estate was made yesterday by W. H. Weir of Temple, Texas, who notified authorities that his father was Mrs. French's half-brother.

SCHOOL ATTENDANCE FOR 1926 PLACED AT 1,360,000

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Basing his calculation on annual increase of 1 1-2 per cent, A. M. Blackman, second assistant superintendent of public instruction, today estimated the number of Texas children of scolastic age for 1926 would approximate 1,360,000 as compared with 1,340,053 for 1925.

Taking of school census will start March 1.

Archer Ruling Is Expected Monday

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Decision of the United States supreme court on the application of the attorney general of Texas for leave to file motion for re-hearing in the Archer county bond case, affecting validity of $75,000,000 to $100,000,000 worth of district road bonds in Texas, is expected Monday by Attorney General Dan Moody. This was learned today at the attorney general's department. Moody filed this application when the judge of Archer county announced that he would not file a motion for re-hearing of the bond case, which has attracted nation-wide attention.

DURKIN MOVIE DRAWS CHEERS

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Showing of news reel motion pictures which depicted the capture, arrival in Chicago and detention of Martin Durkin, slayer and automobile thief, was forbidden today by Chief of Police Morgan Collins. He acted after a conference with Mayor William A. Devers.

Some of the films already were showing and in South Side movie theaters the crowds applauded Durkin and booed the police. Durkin's attorney today sought a court order directing the state's attorney to deliver to Durkin's young wife, Irma Sullivan Durkin, $2295 the prisoner carried.

The state's attorney instead presented a receipt showing the money had been turned over to the federal department of justice which felt that the money was the proceeds from the sale of a stolen automobile. The attorney then sought to have the chief of detectives, Shoemaker, cited for contempt in that he disposed of the money without a court order.

The hearing was set for Friday. So much has been printed about Durkin that his women relatives plan to capitalize his penchant for producing first page news. The money returned, if any, would go for his defense.

As a part of a syndicate his mother, Hattie, his sister, Lucille, and three cousins have been assigned to sell the idea and their stories to Chicago newspapers.

Florida Concern Sued for $35,000

PENSACOLA, Fla., Jan. 23—(AP) The west coast corporation of Marianna, Fla., has been made defendant in a damage suit for $35,000 brought by Mrs. M. S. Bennett, according to announcement by the clerk of the federal court here. The case will be returnable before the Pensacola division of federal court at the coming term.

The nature of the bill of the complaint could not be learned.

The west coast corporation was chartered under the law of Florida to engage in general development projects.

CHINA SERVED NOTICE TO FREE RUSS RAIL MAN

MOSCOW, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Foreign Minister Tchitcherin forwarded to China today a demand that M. Ivanoff, Russian general manager of the Chinese Eastern Railway, under arrest by the Chinese at Harbin, be released within three days and that the Chinese observe the agreements concerning the railway. Otherwise, he said, the soviet must be allowed to take independent action.

Golden Beetle Coffe Shop, Just Opened Here, Is Color Symphony That Grew Out of Ancient Story

Miss Orveta Wyatt's New Cafe on Indiana Avenue Marks New Departure in Tea Room and Lunch Room Institutions in Wichita Falls

Sanscrit and a coffee shop. Is there any connection?

Hundreds of years ago in the stories of Sanscrit there was a story of the Golden Beetle, a symbolic tale in its meaning, beautiful on its thought and interpretation. It was translated and in a book many readers have on their selves, almost forgotton, is "The Lost Key of Masonry," a modernized revision of the translation of the Sanscrit which also carries the idea of square dealing.

There was a Wichita Falls girl who read this story and its symbolism appealed to her. She had a beautiful red beetle pin and many were the comments and questions asked about it. Not many months ago this woman decided to open a coffee shop in her home town, and when thinking of a name, none other seemed to fit but the "Golden Beetle Coffee Shop."

Miss Orveta Wyatt has recently opened one of the most charming tea rooms Wichita Falls has ever seen—the Golden Beetle at 806 Indiana avenue.

Main Floor First.

Entering from Indiana avenue, one goes into the main floor dining room, walking forward a few steps to the daintily arranged tables. There is atmosphere in the coffee shop, a distinctiveness, giving it unusual and pleasing effect that has weight with its patrons.

Screens finished in craftex in designs of enamel pain harmonize with similar trimmings on the tables where there are places for two, or places for four, and when necessary even for more. The screens may be changed to accommodate a party on the main floor. A dainty design of flowers and pastel shades is painted on the tables which are enameled in dull, warm tints. Each table has its vase, maybe a dull blue, maybe another color, but there is that Golden Beetle around which is a circle. In small letters above the beetle is "Food DeLuxe," which Miss Wyatt hopes to make the trademark of her shop in the future.

Chairs finished in designs with the table form a pleasing whole.

Silver Service Pretty.

The silver service is pretty. Unusual are the salt and pepper shakers of fine pottery with carpet shaped bodies and green tops of foliage. The coasters are in unit with the table service.

Up stairs is the balcony tea room in turquois and blue and orange and brown. This room is to be used as a specialty for ladies for their afternoon teas from 3 to 5 o'clock, where tea plates will be arranged.

To the rear of the balcony is the Sunflower room, the banquet room of the establishment. It is bright in its colors of green and orange, and the low hanging Chinese lamps with their wide shades lend a cheerful glow in the Sunflower dining hall.

"I started the coffee shop three months ago thinking I would serve in addition to drinks, four foods," Miss Wyatt said in telling of the "Golden Beetle." Soon, people were calling for other foods, and now the shop is serving regular dinners, short orders, as well as parties, banquets and clubs.

"If the public demands it, I shall put in a private dining room.

"My aim in opening the shop was to make a place for business girls and for men who had to take their meals down town, giving them the very best foods I could supply.

I buy the best foods on the markets, in small quantities, too, and that gives me no reduction. Nominal prices are charged, and with a volume of business I hope to keep them.

Well Balanced Diets.

Miss Wyatt spoke of having well balanced meals, and serving foods to the business girls that they should eat. "They cannot have health without proper foods, nor intelligence without health,' she said, in naming the menu according to diet.

The Golden Beetle Coffee shop makes a specialty of sending out sandwiches, and arrangements are being made to send out drinks, hot and cold, in cartons prepared for the purpose.

At the end of the week the shipment of sea foods including lobsters, crabs and shrimp will arrive here, and the new establishment expects to have specialties in sea foods. Later the shop will have Chinese foods.

In appreciation of the needs of those who work and who find it necessary to go to meals dressed in their work clothes, Miss Wyatt has arranged a counter opening from the kitchen on the alley where butchers may run in wearing their aprons, and other workmen may come in to "take a bite." This room will be ready probably Monday.

"I want the people of Wichita Falls to feel that they can make this their home place to eat, and anything the public wants let them make their suggestions to me, and I shall try to meet the demand," Miss Wyatt said.

Assisting Miss Wyatt is George Dean, formerly with the Statler hotel of San Francisco, the Muehlbach and Baltimore hotels of Kansas City, and of the Adolphus in Dallas.

HEAT BY RADIO IS PROF'S PLAN

Carnegie Institute Instructor Is Making Study Of Problem

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The broadcasting of heat by radio is only a matter of years in the opnion of Professor S. E. Dibble of Carnegie institute of technology who, it became known today is making a study of the problem. Mr. Dibble, president of the American Socity of Heating and Ventilating Engineers and holder of the Aprens professorship in plumbing, heating and ventilating, believes that "it is no more improbable to broadcast heat waves than it was to broadcast soound waves."

The problem of sending heat to consumers via the air, is now the problem of research men and laboratory workers, who must "discover instruments to control heat waves, especially a detector which will pick them up and hold and amplify them," says Professor Dibble.

Transmission of heat by atmospheric conductivity is essential because of the graduale exhaustion of the element of fuel, said the professor, adding "the day is not far off, in my opinion when we will see huge centralized heating plants broadcasting heat to homes, industries and office buildings."

The professor admitted that the problem "is only in the thought stage now," and "our hope is to incline the activity of research men toward this objective—heat transmission by air waves. We know that heat travels through space, through solids and when we once learn how to pick up these waves and control them, heating throughout the world will be revolutionized."

Heat broadcasting will mean better health to the public, says the professor because it will eliminate from the air the impurities of present day heat making systems.

Cotton Acreage In State Will Be Cut

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Leading farmers and agricultural experts of Texas and several other cotton states unanimously decided here today that the cotton acreage must be reduced at once. The meeting was called by George B. Terrell, Texas state agricultural commissioner.

Another meeting behind closed doors was held at the same time by the nearly organized Texas Safer Farming association. O. H. Cross of Waco told the meeting that bankers and business men would have to step into force the farmers to decrease their acreage.

GALVESTON JURY UNABLE TO AGREE IN BRIBE CASE

GALVESTON, Jan. 23.—The jury in the case of Mike Megna and Tony Cusshia reported late yesterday afternoon that it was hopelessly deadlocked and a mistrial was entered. Megna and Cucchia were charged with the bribery of prohibition officers.

France Ready To Talk About Debt

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Henry Berenger, the new French ambassador, informed Secretary Mellon today that he was prepared to meet with the American debt funding commission at its convention to discuss French debt funding.

The ambassador made an official call at the treasury to announce the French government's instructions that he renew the funding negotiations.

There was nothing in his remarks to indicate what course he proposes to pursue in the conversations. He simply said he was prepared to meet the American commission.

Mr. Mellon said afterward that no date had been fixed for a conference.

Tells About Fight On Inheritance Tax

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)— The story of the fight that southern legislators have waged before congress for repeal of the federal inheritance tax was related to a gathering of legislators from eevry section of Texas here today by Edgar A. Brown, speaker of the South Carolina house or representatives. Senator Robert A. Stuart of Fort Worth presided.

Speaker Brown, on behalf of Texas legislators and those of more than a dozen other states has been in Washington continuing the fight inaugurated by the Texans.

About 50 Texas law-makers were expecter to attend the meeting.

WORLD'S SPEED RECORD IS SET FOR SEAPLANES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP) A new world's record speed flight for seaplanes was made today at Langley field, Va., by Lieut. George C. McDonald of the army air service, flying a Loening amphibian airplane over a 200 kilometer stretch.

In the 200 kilometer flight Lieut. McDonald carrying a "pay load" of 500 kilograms reached a speed of 111.206 miles per hour.

PLEA TO DROP CHARGE ON AD MEN IS REFUSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A motion to dismiss for lack of jurisdiction a complaint against the American Association of Advertising Agencies, charging unfair methods of competition has been denied by the federal trade commission with Commissioner Humphrey dissenting. The case now will go to trial before an examiner.

ARKANSAS BRICK PLANTS SOLD TO TEXAS CONCERN

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Arkansas Brick and Tile company, with plants at Pine Bluff, Malvern and Peria, has been sold to the Acme Brick company of Fort Worth, Texas, it was announced here today. Consideration is said to have been $450,000 and other payments not specified.

STONE MOUNTAIN COIN SALE DATE EXTENDED

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Extension of the Stone Mountain memorial coin sale to March 1 today was summoned by Lou A. Smith, state chairman. Date of the Texas ball for coin workers was postponed to early March, and of the All-Southern ball at Atlanta to March 17.

Frisco Railroad Refuses to Pay District Taxes

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Frisco railway company has declined to pay road district taxes for two districts of this county, tendering a tax payment to the county collector which was not accepted. The action of the road is based upon the recent supreme court ruling invalidating road district bonds in Archer county. Both the Santa Fe and Brownwood North and South railway companies have paid the district tax in this county

$100,000 TO BE ASKED FOR HOME FOR INSANE.

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Dr. H H. Harrington, chairman of the state board of control, said an appropriation of $100,000 will be asked of the next legislature for a new dormitory at the San Antonio state hospital. He said that the building housing 70 women patients has been condemned, and is not worth the expense of repairing.

TEXAS IS OVER-INSURED FOR FIRE, HOLTON SAYS

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—That over insurance for fire protection exists in Dallas to "a surprising degree" was the statement of G. N. Holton, state fire insurance commissioner after a conference with more than 50 Dallas insurance men today.

Mr. Holton laid the blame on "over zealousness" and "carlessness" of local agents and failure of the home office to check the business.

EXTRADITION GRANTED.

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Requisition of governor of Indiana for extradition of Dan Morgan, 24, was honored today by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson.

Degrees Conferred On Olney Masons

OLNEY, Texas, Jan. 23.—Four Wichita Falls Masons were in Olney tonight to confer degrees on a class of a dozen candidates in Olney Council No. 342. The royal and select masters degree was conferred.

The visitors, Otto Stehlik, R. L. Joiner, G. W. Lawler and George Mathis, conferred the work faultlessly and i ncolorful manner.

SLIPS ON ICY CAR AND IS KILLED BY TRAIN

SNYDER, Texas, Jan. 23—(AP)—David L. Strahan, brakeman of Slaton, was instantly killed here this morning when struck by a moving Santa Fe freight train. He is believed to have fallen in the path of the train when his foot slipped on an icy platform.

Two Incomes Are Better Than One

INVEST IN THE

BRACY MEDICINE CO.

BEING INCORPORATED AT $50,000

10,000 SHARES OF STOCK

WILL BE SOLD AT $1.00 PER SHARE

This Wichita Falls institution is now making big money manufacturing the famous medicines.

Bracey's Rheumatic Wonder

Bracey's "Breatheasy" and Bracey's Asthma Compound

For the purpose of building a factory and carrying on other expansive measures, 10,000 shares of stock will be placed on the market at par value of $1.00 per share.

The profits of this company are tremendous and offers you an opportunity to have two incomes instead of one at a very small investment. And an investment it is, as there is absolutely no speculation to it, it being a business of proven merits and showing wonderful possibilities. Bracey's Rheumatic Wonder is manufactured here and sold on a money-back guarantee—the best evidence of good faith the manufacturer can give. Concocted from a secret formula secured by Mr. Bracey in India, this Rheumatic Wonder has time and again completely cured cases of Rheumatism and has brought relief to thousands. "Breatheasy" is used in cases of severe colds in the head and is guaranteed to clear the head in five minutes. It should be in every home. Bracey's Asthma Compound is not guaranteed to cure asthma, but it is guaranteed to give instant relief to those suffering from that incurable disease.

Only 10,000 shares of this stock will be sold. The only reason that this is being incorporated is that Mr. Bracey is becoming old and wishes to place the business in younger hands, so that it will be carried as a monument to his name in years to come.

AN INSTANCE OF RHEUMATIC WONDER POPULARITY

Mr. Bracey recently left Wichita Falls with a car load of the medicine with which to supply the drug trade of Olney, Graham, Breckenridge, and Cisco. When he arrived at Olney, the Anderson Drug bought his entire supply necessitating his return to Wichita Falls and shipping by express to the other dealers. This is but one instance of Rheumatic Wonder demand.

CAPITAL, LABOR JOIN HANDS IN NEW PEACE PACT

Idea Promulgated by Joint Boards to Have Big Results

BY HARDEN COLFAX.

Special Correspondent of The Record News. Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Preliminary plans were formulated here this week to join the hands of capital and labor in an industrial relations study which holds promise of far reaching importance to the social as well as the business life of the nation.

Back of the idea is belief that a survey of the past for the benefit of those who in their hurry forward seldom pause to look over their shoulders may result in a sign board pointing to the best road ahead.

While the national conference on women in industry, under the auspices of the department of labor, was in session her this week for an exchange of views regarding the welfare of the woman works, there met in another part of Washington a group of men who for more than a year have been trying to evolve a practicable plan for the improvement of industrial relations between employers and employes, both men and women. These men believe they have found a plan that is workable as a foundation for their object. They do not hope to turn existing order upside down or right-about-face in a week or a month or a year, but they do hope to start a movement for future development by the simple expedient of taking time to examine the present and to give more than a glance backward into history.

Details To Be Settled.

Details of the plan, and more especially of how it can be executed to carry the message to the baximum number of those whom it is desired to reach, remain to be worked out, for only the most broad lines have been laid down thus far.

An executive committee in draft detailed plans and a program for an industrial relations congres sto be held in Philadelphia in 1927 and to put the plan into execution was named at the conference here. It is composed of Ernest Trigg, Philadelphia chairman; Charles A. Baton, representative of the fourth New Jersey congressional district and an active worker in the American Educational association; James E. Morey, Washington, counsel of the National Association of Manufacturers, L. J. Tibor, master of the National Grange; and Frank W. Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor.

The executive committee will meet within two weeks to begin its labors.

Has Official O. K.

The general idea has the endorsement of Secretary of Commerce Hoover and Secretary of Labor Davis, the former appearing before the preliminary conference this week in person and the latter through a representative. But the government, as such, will take no active part in the proceedings.

It is proposed to have 24 groups, representing labor, agriculture, educational and major industries prepare studies of the progress of each group in the 150 years of American independence, with emphasis on the relation of the specific group to other specific groups and to society at large and to point from the experience of the past what sound judgment indicates may be expected in the future. The matter of interdependence will be developed by such studies, it is believed so as to point a lesson for co-operation in the future.

No Pollyanna material is to be sought to the exclusion of that which may not have such a bright side. The facts will be permitted to speak for themselves but it is believed they will speak in harmonious tones.

How the lessons of the past are to be translated into a book for the future and how the messages are to be carried forth to be determined, but it is beyond question that the germ of a rather important idea for he improvement of industrial relations and social conditions is being nurtured in this undertaking.

JONES WILL LEAD

Alton Jones will lead the missionary program of the Ansil Lynn league of the First Methodist church this evening when the members will study Japan. E. C. Hardin, educational director of the First Methodist church, south, Memphis, Tenn., will speak. Misses Josephine and Jean Fisk will sing special vocal numbers.

ESCALATORS IN WACO

Mrs. M. P. Albritton, pianist of the Escalator Sunday school class, and Mrs. W. W. Nelms, president of the class of the First Methodist church, are in Waco today visiting the Methodist orphanage there. They are choosing the orphan which the Escalators will clothe during the year. They are expected to return tonight.

$76,000 Obtained In C-C Campaign

Checks and pledges to the amount of $76,000 had been received at chamber of commerce headquarters Saturday afternoon in the drive for a $100,000 budget fund for 1926, it has been announced.

The membership committee of the chamber will keep at work Monday and through the early part of the coming week, with every indication that the full quota will be raised. Checks and contributions are still coming in, chamber officials profess every confidence that the entire amount sought will be obtained.

BIG BUSINESS ON THE MARCH

PETROLEUM hunting must be the greatest game in the world. Petroleum production and refining and marketing must be one of the greaest industries of the hour. There are giants in the game and billions in the investment.

Months and months ago the Standard Oil company of Indiana acquired the Doheney interest in Mexico. This staggered the petroleum hunters of the world for awhile. Then, the Standard of New York took over the Magnolia Petroleum company of Texas. This was another stagger for the petroleum hunters of the world.

Now it is said the Pacific Oil company has been taken over by the Standard Oil company of California, and this is blazoned by the press as "one of the most important consolidations ever planned in the history of the oil industry."

It is said that the new combination placed the Standard Oil company of California in a formidable position, as second in rank to that of Standard Oil company of New Jersey, the latter the leader in the petroleum industry of the world.

It is also said that the Standard of California previously held this position of second in rank, but it was lost to the recent Magnolia-Standard Oil of New York consolidation, and the recent deal restored the California Standard corporation to its old position in the petroleum industry.

A trade journal says the total assets of the Standard Oil of New York and Magnolia Petroleum company aggregates $618,000,000, whereas the total assets of the Standard of California-Pacific Oil combination approximates $447,000,000. Thus two of the Standard oil combinations have assets of more than one billion dollars.

It was early last spring that the Standard Oil company of Indiana acquired control of the Mexican properties of Doheney and his associates. Then the same Standard company acquired the property of the Lago Petroleum company which controls large production in Venezula.

Edward L. Doheney is not down and out. He is said to be worth $200,000,000, and has vast interests in California and elsewhere. This same trade journal says "in the old days of the Standard oil organization, it was the policy of the management to let the little fellow who carried the risk of drilling oil wells to find new production, while the Standard organizations would refine all the oil produced. Within the last ten years, however, the so-called little fellows have grown into strong, independent oil organizations, with refineries and distributing organizations of their own. This situation forced the hand of the Standard organization to control their own production and the expansion of the last ten years has been chiefly along these lines.

There are billion dollar oil corporations under the flag of the Standard; there are two hundred million dollar oil corporations under the flag of Doheney; there are a hundred million dollar corporations and fifty million dollar corporations under the flags of lesser lights in the petroleum world. This appears to be a big business age. Billions talk.

STANDARD IN SOUTH AMERICA

NOW the Standard is the owner of the Lago Oil and Transport companies in Vensuzula, South America. These properties have developed a production of 45,000 barrels daily, and the Lago holdings comprise about 3,000,000 acres to the bed of Lake Naracaibo. It must be true that the sun never sets on the possessions or the flag of the petroleum company and industry founded by Deacon John D. Rockefeller, the elder. America first.

ANOTHER STEEL RECORD BROKEN

PRODUCTION of steel ingots in the United States aggregated 44,186,977 tons in 1925. This total established a new high record in the history of the industry. If steel is a baramoter of trade or rather the condition of trade,, then 1926 is going to be a year of great prosperity in the United States and Canada.

That is, it is going to be a year of great prosperity for big business and the employees of big business. It may not be a year of great prosperity for the corn grower or cotton growers if they produce huge surplus beyond the needs of the buying world.

Steel makers know what they are doing. When there are danger signals flying they restrict their output.

A RUBBER TIRED ARISTOCRACY

IN THE good old days the people had the ox-cart aristocrats. They had the stage coach and four aristocrats. Later on they had the buck-board and mule aristocrats. Then came the hug-me-tight buggy aristocats. Now all these have made way for the rubber tired aristocrats.

More than 60,000,000 tires for motor vehicles were manufactured in the United States last year.

This is a rubber tire age, and the fact that it is a rubber tire age, has sent the price of raw rubber to the sky. Now Americans are going in for rubber plantations in order that they may furnish rubber tire manufacturers an adequate supply. This is a great old world.

AMERICAN RUBBER GROWERS

THERE are American rubber growers in evidence. The United States Rubber company has added another tract of 13,000 acres to its rubber growing plantations in the Sumatra and Malayan peninsular region. A New York exchange says the company now has more than 130,000 acres under rubber, representing an investment of $24,000,000, and is beginning upon its own plantation to supply its crude rubber.

At the close of 1925, 46,258 acres of 111,145 acres were bearing, while another 71,000 acres were planted. During 1925 the company produced about one-fifth of the rubber consumed and executives say it will be only a short time before it will get half of its annual requirements from its own plantations.

Harry Firestone and associates have invested $5,000,000 in land and trees in Liberia, and the automobile chamber of commerce of the United States has pledged $10,000,000 for rubber production in the Philippines and elsewhere.

Speaking of high price rubber of the present is a burden upon the pocket book of the ultimate consumer and not upon the bank account of the rubber tire maker or the auto manufacturer.

Jones, if he is the owner of a car pays the price.

WISE YANKEES AND THEIR LAWS

WHY not a compulsory insurance law in Texas for reckless motorists. Connecticut requires financial responsibility as a penalty for offenses perpetrated by wild drivers. This law became effective in Connecticut on Jan. 1. It is a compulsory insurance act, but of very limited scope, as it will only apply to motrists who have been convicted of some serious infraction of the law.

Those offenses include reckless driving, reckless speeding, operating while intoxicated and evasion of responsibility causing the death of or injury to any person or causing damage to property to at least $1000.

A compulsory motor insurance bill is before the New York legislature. Massachusetts is working upon plans for the enforcement in 1927 of a general motor vehicle compulsory insurance law. All drivers will be compelled to qualify under the new law in the old Bay state.

Why not licensed drivers in Texas? Why should incompetents be permitted to drive cars? Why should children be permitted to drive cars? Why should speed maniacs be permitted to endanger the lives and property of their fellows?

CHAPTER VI

As Told to Lillian Barker

BY ESTELLE TAYLOR DEMPSEY

As I told you, on the Monday following our marriage, Jack surprised me with a long, narrow jewel box.

He had carried it around in his pocket all afternoon, delaying presentation until dinner time. As we sat down at the table I found the box beside my plate.

"I hope you'll like the little present I bought for you today," said Jack. "I know you'll find it useful."

I did like it tremendously and I have found it very useful. For it was one of the loveliest diamond and platinum wrist watches I have ever seen. And it has always kept perfect time.

The watch was but one of many delightful surprises which, ever since our marriage, have followed one another in quick succession.

Jack seldom comes home in the evening without bringing me some gift—perfume, candy, flowers or something else he thinks I'd like.

Nightbefore last it was something entirely different, five twenty-dollar gold pieces.

"I went to the bank today especially to get these for you," he said.

A Birthday Beyond the Sea.

I put them in my safety deposit box at the bank where I have, for some time, kept gold coins as they have come to me.

But, perhaps, the greatest of all Jack's surprises was one he "sprang" on me when we started on our belated honeymoon trip.

As I said before, at the time of our marriage, we both had picture contracts which required our presence in California. So we could not get away for some months.

After discussing several other places we finally decided to go to Europe. I had never been there and Jack and I agreed that it would be a nice trip for me.

So we left Los Angeles for New York, a few weeks before my birthday, which is May 20th.

At Chicago I remember Jack said: "We'll spend your birthday in Europe How will you like that?"

"All right," I answered. "The only thing I don't like about our trip will be the voyage across the Atlantic."

Just before we reached New York he referred again to my birthday. "We must celebrate the occasion with a dinner—or something," he said.

When we had gotten off the train at Grand Central Station, New York, and were walking towards the taxi stand, Jack raised his hand, as I thought, to signal a cab.

As a taxi drew up close to where we were standing, I started to enter it. But my husband laid a restraining hand on my arm.

Just a Little Remembrance

"No, not that car," he said. "Wait just a minute."

After two or three other machines had followed in rapid succession and people had gotten into them and ridden away, I asked: "Why are we standing here like this? Why don't we go on to the hotel?"

Jack remained silent. That should have prepared me to expect "something unexpected." But, somehow, it didn't.

Another car passed. Then a Rolls Royce limousine, upholstered in gray, stopped just in front of us.

The driver stepped from his seat and opened the door.

Just what it all meant, even then, I did not guess until Jack, taking my arm, said: "Step into your birthday present, Estelle."

"But my birthday isn't until the 20th of May," I reminded him.

"I know, I know," he replied, "but this is your birthday present—in advance. How do you like it?"

"A thousand times more than I can ever tell you," I answered. "After four months of married life I thought I was prepared for any possible surprise from you, but in this Rolls Royce you have outdone yourself."

And we drove to the Alsmac Hotel in it. There we awaited the sailing of the Berengaria, the ship on which we'd engaged passage for Europe.

It was on that liner that I first saw Jack in a boxing bout. His opponent was a butcher on the ship and a former heavyweight boxer of England. He still looked as if he could take care of himself, all right, but having heard and read so much about the power of Jack's punches, I asked him several times not to hurt the man and he promised that he wouldn't.

A Horror of Civilization

With that assurance I joined the excited onlookers. It was a very quick affair, for in the second round the ship's butcher-boxer "retired"—as I later saw, with a black eye. When I reminded Jack of his promise he said: "Why, I had no idea I'd hurt the fellow. I certainly didn't mean to."

Although I suffered terribly from sea-sickness all the way over, I managed to divert my mind on several occasions by solving all the puzzles in a cross-word puzzle book which Jack had given me.

On our arrival at Southampton it was raining so hard and the downpour continued until we reached London. But that did not stop people from gathering in welcoming crowds both at the station and at the Savoy Hotel, where we stopped.

Wherever we went people seemed eager to get a "close-up" of Jack. And very frequently he was asked to make a speech.

I remember, while in England, we were honor guests at a dinner given by Lord Leake at the Albion Hotel, Brighton. A prominent member of the House of Commons was present, as were many other personages.

Jack made a short speech. But then he never makes many other kind. As much as he likes to entertain and to be entertained, public speaking, and especially after-dinner speaking, is to him always a dreaded thing.

Fighting for Fun—And Charity

I recall, as we were going to the Brighton dinner, he said: "You know, for me, the order of dinner speaking is all wrong. If I could only speak before dinner my mind my mind would be easy and I could enjoy my food. But as it is, all during the meal I sit and worry about what I'm going to say. I certainly believe that the shorter the speech, the better it is for the fellow making it and for those listening to it."

I heartily agree with Jack's view, for at the same dinner I also was requested to speak. And I found that stage fright as compared to table fright was nothing.

All I could say on that occasion was: "I thank you, from the bottom of my heart I thank you."

One of the happiest of all our experiences abroad was the exhibition bout in which Jack appeared at Brighton. Three years ago Harry Preston, owner of the Royal Albion and Royal York Hotels in that place and a former lightweight boxer in England, asked him if he would appear in a bout for the benefit of the hospital for the blind. Jack said he would be delighted to do so at the first opportunity. So the exhibition was set for last July 4th.

I witnessed the affair, and though I'm no expert on boxing, I was told by sportsmen that it was an exhibition worth seeing, for the four opponents Jack took on, one after another, were all clever boxers.

One of them, Eddie Eagan, an Oxford man, is a close friend of Jack's. He was his sparring partner in Denver several years ago and they had a pleasant reunion.

The bout, we learned before leaving England, earned for the hospital the sum of $25,000.

Gorgeous Georges Entertains

Another pleasing experience was a visit to a fashion show in London given by Reveille in Hanover Square. There I saw some marvelous creations on some marvelous creatures, but I called them to Jack's attention he spoke up like a true honeymooner and said: "None of them come up to you."

The English were extremely hospitable. And so were the French and Germans.

In Paris they seemed to take us right into their hearts. When we got off the train we were caught in a swirling, cheering, shouting crowd. I tried to glimpse the faces, but everything was so blurred, so shifting that I could see was vest buttons, vest button and more vest buttons.

Ever since I heard the opera, La Boheme, several years ago at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, I've wanted to visit the Latin Quarter. So, soon after our arrival in Paris, I suggested to Jack that we go there.

In a well known restaurant of the Quarter an amusing incident occurred. We were having dinner when an artist at a nearby table recognized Jack and "did" a portrait of him. When it was finished he brought it over to us and asked for my husband's signature. Jack signed the picture very readily, then the artist said something which we did not at first understand. But a moment later when a guest seated near made a bid for the sketch, explaining it was the signature and not the work he wanted to buy, we realized that the artist had been trying to sell us the picture—and that in paying Jack a compliment he had amusingly combined thrift with art.

A few evenings later Georges Carpentier entertained us with a dinner at Le Perroquet in Montmartre. Nazimova, Mae Murray, the Dolly Sisters, Jimmy Hussey, John McDermott, Jr., motion picture director, and Descamps, Carpentier's manager, were of our party, which we counted a very enjoyable affair.

Happily for us, the former French heavyweight champion spoke English as fluently as French. When I asked him how he had acquired such an English vocabulary he said.

"Partly from my little daughter, Jacqueline. Having an English nurse she speaks English excellently—and even her French she speaks with an English accent."

Jack's Health Hurt Jimmy's

At that same dinner Jimmy Hussey confided to us that he had drunk so often to Jack Dempsey's health that he'd just about destroyed his own.

The following afternoon we went to the Paris Exposition of Fine Arts. There a group of East Indian dancers, who had arrived from their native country only the day before amused us very much.

We were watching with considerable interest the steps of the dancers when I suddenly noticed certain side glances and nudgings that I could not understand. Puzzled, I asked Jack what he thought they meant and he replied that he supposed the glances and nudgings were just a part of the dancing. But later we were told that the performers had recognized Jack and were trying to communicate the discovery to the other members of their troupe.

I, of course, visited the Paris fashion shops, but I did not buy very much. I found the French designing less to my taste than American styles. The short-vamp French shoes, however, appealed to me and I bought several pairs of them.

Just before we left Paris for Germany, Georges Carpentier, Jack and I motored to the offices of L'Echo Des Sports. On the way there, the crowding of the curious who were trying to gain a close view of Jack, was so great that traffic was held up.

A speech was demanded. So, on reaching the newspaper offices, Jack, conducted by Mr. Carpentier, went to a window on the second floor.

There was wild cheering from the crowd below and more cries for a speech. Then a hush in expectation. I knew the limits of Jack's French vocabulary and wonderingly waited for him to begin.

(In the next chapter Estelle Taylor Dempsey will report verbatim the champion's speech. She will also tell of outstanding incidents of their visit to Berlin and of their return to America.)

2 Speakers Will Appear at Kiwanis

Two out-of-town speakers will deliver ten-minute addresses before the Kiwanis club in the meeting Monday at noon at the Kemp hotel, according to announcement by the secretary, Joe Sherrill. Rabbi Aaronsohn of Cincinnati, who has been speaking at Temple Israel will be one of the speakers.

The eleventh anniversary week of Kiwanis, 1915-1926, will be celebrated.

ARMY'S "NO PROFIT" STORES TO BE CLOSED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The army's "no profit" stores at which officers and enlisted men are sold many kinds of merchandise at cost will be closed on March 31, but an exception probably will be made to permit continuance of such sales at posts overseas.

POEMS THAT LIVE

If I can stop one heart from breaking,
I shall not have lived in vain;
If I can ease one life the aching,
Or cool one pain,
Or help one fainting robin
Unto his nest again,
I shall not live in vain.

National Men And Affairs

Now that most of the returns for 1925 are in, it is easy to see the drift of the American people on the subject of thrift. This past week has been "thrift week" in most parts of the country, but the celebration of the event has been desultory and sporadic to say the least.

The people are with President Coolidge on government economy. They think it is grand for the government to cut to the bone, for they have been told that this form of economy means lower and lower income taxes. The people do not care if the army is reduced to poverty and the navy cut to such an extent that the 5-5-3 ratio as to Great Britain and Japan is no longer anything but a sea lawyer's joke. The people do not care if aviation is allowed to lag and die. The people do not believe there is ever going to be another war. The people are mad for tax reduction.

If ever there was a unanimity of opinion on a government policy it presented itself during the hearings on the new tax bill. Every person who appeared before senators and representatives argued in favor of more and more cuts.

But when it comes to practicing individual thrift and economy, that is something else again. The people want to save their tax money so they can spend it on something else. In order to celebrate in proper fashion every time they save $50, they spend $100. That is typically American. It is, one might say, 100 per cent American. In any event the country is prosperous. It grows more prosperous as the taxes come down. If congress will just be sure to pass the new law before March 15, the great majority of 100 per cent Americans won't care a hang what happens during the remainder of the session.

Slowly but surely the cities of the country are beginning to realise that their street traffic troubles are an engineering problem rather a police pursuit. Policemen are used on the job, but it would be just about as reasonable to use firemen, or soldiers or boy scouts. The latter have been employed many times in emergencies and have acquitted hemselves with the usual distinction.

Washington unquestionably has been one of the laggard cities in recognizing the engineering phase of the traffic situation, but has discovered at last that automatic lights control the streets better than a score of cops working according to their own ideas as to how and when traffic shall stop or go.

The capital city's traffic engineer is not finding himself in a bed of roses by any means. Not being a policeman he has complained that the police have not cooperated to the fullest extent. The district commissioners have not sustained this view. In any event Washington is in the throes of a great traffic transformation. At first glance visitors to the city assert the traffic problem should be simple. Washington is a city of magnificent distances and wide thoroughfares. But when the great French engineer, L'Enfont laid out the city in cart-wheel fashion he had no vision of an automobile age. With so many avenues cutting the city obliquely like the spokes of a wheel, there are innumerable intersections which are extremely difficult to deal with from the traffic point of view.

In the meantime it is just as well for capital visitors to watch their steps every moment they are on the streets and avenues. They may find themselves in a traffic maze or a traffic jam at any moment.

The new cold wave which has swept in upon Washington from the west has caused another wave of suffering in the temporary buildings which have housed so many of the government workers ever since the war. These structures, which in many instances are little better than the shacks which contractors put up for offices during the construction of some big building, are so thin that they do not keep out the winter cold. By the same token they fail to stop the mid-summer heat and so it is necessary to excuse employes in the summer because of the unbearable heat and in the winter because of the unbearable cold.

A government economy which fails to provide suitable quarters for government workers and government business is so short sighted as to be almost unbelievable. It merely is putting off the day when huge sums must be expended or government activity must cease.

Meantime the congress is going ahead with plans for adding a fine annex to the palatial marble building which provides offices for the members of the house of representatives. Washington is glad to see the congressmen so well provided for, but thinks they might give some consideration to their fellow workers of the government.

S. A. U. & G. ROAD'S VALUE IS $4,204,200.00

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A tentative valbe of $4,204,200.00 as of the date of June 30, 1919, was fixed today by the interstate commerce commission on the property of the San Antonio, Uvalde & Gulf railroad in Texas. The corporation has outstanding capital issues at par of $4,918,000, while its own book investment account totals $4,693,000.

DREAM OF MEXICAN ROAD IS NEARER REALIZATION

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Plans for construction of a paved highway from Laredo to Mexico City and later to Central America are rapidly taking form, Howard S. Phillips of Mexico City, editor of a publication dedicated to this work, said here Friday.

ENNIS MAN RE-ELECTED HEAD OF FARM BUREAU

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—W. D. Farris of Ennis was unanimously re-elected president of the Texas Farm Bureau Federation at the closing session of its sixth annual convention yesterday. H. G. Lucas of Brownwood was re-elected vice-president.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"It can't be in here?" demurred Helen, as they entered an arcade of small shops, frequent in German cities. "This's all so modern!"

"Only a cellar—guess they've built over it. Sign's outside—must be an entrance somewhere." Warren glowered about. "Yes, there it is."

An old Gothic-lettered sign—"Auerbach's Faust Keller."

A globe light, above the stone figures of Mephistopheles tempting Faust, illumined the steep descent to the historic cellar.

Down the steps, through a heavy iron-hinged door, and into Leipsic's oldest tavern—the inspiration of Goethe's "Faust."

Low vaulted ceilings, dark carved woodwork, age-mellowed frescoes—an atmosphere of sombre antiquity.

"Oh, I love this," glowed Helen. "We've stepped back into the Middle Ages!"

"Yes, looks like the real thing. Where d'you want to sit?"

An elderly waiter seated them at one of the few vacant tables.

"These must be the scenes from 'Faust'," eagerly Helen scanned the walls. "That's where he first meets Marguerite. And the next—is that the duel scene?"

"Now, those pictures'll keep. Let's get this order off," intent on the "Speisen-Karte." "How 'bout a matjes herring as a starter? And here's kraft broth with mark—that's marrow."

"Yes, we had that in Berlin. Dear, this wonderful old woodwork!"

"Zwei matjes herrings and zwei kraftbruhe mit mark," ordered Warren. "Now these main dishes. Rehrucken? What the Sam Hill's that?"

"Rin minute, bitte."

Their kellner, shuffling off, returned with another waiter who spoke English.

"Rehrucken—that is saddle of venison. Very good, sir."

"Oh, dear, that's so rich—not when we're to travel all night!"

"What's that got to do with it? A good feed'll make us sleep. Now where's your vegetables? Schoten—that's peas. What in blazes is 'Blumenkohl'? Cauliflower? Good. And some potatoes—any way but fried. Now your wine list."

"Dear, that fresco in the next room—that figure on the flying keg—"

"Here's some red Rhine wine. No, guess we won't experiment—the white's pretty good." Then to the waiter, "Bottle of that Niersteiner '21."

"Dear, do look—that flying keg's on everything. Even on the wine card—'Dr. Faustus'," deciphering the lettering on the worn leather cover.

"That's the old bird in the legend—where Goethe got his dope. Supposed to've been an alchemist. Delved in black magic and all that medieval bunk—lookin' for the elixir of youth. Tune in on the devil—and swapped his soul for some monkey-glands."

"And I always thought that was Goethe's own idea," laughed Helen.

"Huh, just grabbed off a good peppy plot and polished it up. Same with Shakespeare—most of his plays are only re-writes. All in the way it's done."

"That must've been the proprietor—and you didn't return his bow."

"Didn't see him. How d'you skin this slippery Johnnie?" struggling with his matjes herring. "Zip, got it that time!"

The proprietor now returning presented Helen with a booklet, "Auerbach's Keller."

"Oh, thank you. Danke!" Then as he passed on, "In English, too. And that same picture! Yes, here it says, 'Dr. Faustus On His Flying Keg'."

"Took his hootch along, eh? 'Flying Keg!' Make a mint with that kind of a bus at home."

"Oh, we should've sat in the other room. Here's what it says—'On the walls the six original paintings of Dr. Faustus and his pact with Satan, from which Goethe received his inspiration'."

"We'll rubberneck in there later. Put that book down and eat your herring."

"Dear, I can't bear to think it's our last night in Leipsic," wistfully. "Only three days here—"

"Now, don't start on that—darn lucky to get here at all! Speed up on hat herring—he's got our broth there."

"All this delicious marrow!" when she spooned into the cup of amber broth wtih generous lumps of marrow. "Why don't they serve this in coups at home?"

"Too darn wasteful—throw the bones away. Know how to save over here."

With the venison came a mixed kompott—plums, apricots, and cherries. The cauliflower, peas—everything excellent except the baked potatoes.

"Only know how to fry 'em," shrugged Warren. "But you always kick like a steer at anything fried."

"Why have potatoes? They're all starch—not so good for you, anyway."

"Now, I'm not dietin'! Happen to like potatoes—and want 'em with every meal."

"Dear, just look at the things on that door!"

"Made 'em strong in those days," glancing at the ponderous ironwork. "And that's a dainty little lock!"

"Oh, I love this place! The old woodwork, the paintings—you can't get this rich dark coloring except with age. And think—under a modern building!"

"Wonder how they built that without rippin' out this cellar? Had to strengthen the foundation somehow."

"I saw something about that in here," again turning to the booklet.

"Now, you eat your dinner! Can't dawdle here all night. Twenty of eight—that train leaves at ten-forty. How long'll it take you to pack?"

"Why, I'm all packed! I got back early this afternoon—so we wouldn't have to hurry this dinner."

"Well, if you're packed," relenting, "guess you can loaf a bit."

Then pushing back his empty plate, he glanced through the booklet, while Heeni, lingering over her kompott, gazed about at the old-world fixtures.

"While a student at the University of Leipsic (1765-68) Goethe spent many convivial evenings in this ancient tavern'," Warren read aloud. 'Huh, bet he did—was a pretty gay bird!"

'Oh, was he? Why I thought he was just a student and a defamer."

'Not when he was young. Hit it up pretty lively. Here's a snappy sentiment,

'Who loves not women, wine and song,
A fool will be his whole life long'."

"Maybe that's why this old legend appealed to him so," mused Helen, studying the scene of Mephistopheles' pact with Faust. 'His soul for youth! But he should've made Faust a woman. Women dread growing old much more than men."

"Guess that's right," grinned Warren. "Wouldn't our flapper-grands go the limit to shimmy off forty years! Old Mesphisto ought to open a 'youth for souls' exchange on Fifth avenue! He'd do a rushin' business."

"Yes, I'm through," Helen nodded to their kindly old kelner, patiently waiting to serve the hot apple-strudel.

"Now what cheese after this? Eh?" irately. "Course I want cheese. Got Munster here," glancing under "Kase mit Butter." "But I'll try this Liptauer."

"No, none for me. Dear, this old stone floor! Look how worn—there by the door. Could they be the original stones?"

"Old, all right. No fake 'bout this joint. Take a squint at that keg."

Helen glanced back at the ancient wine cask with its brass-plate inscription.

"I wonder what that says? If we could only read German! We miss so much—"

"I read it all right. Didn't have any trouble orderin' this meal, did I?"

"Oh, you could read food in any language. Dear, let's take up German this winter? Think how much more we'll enjoy it when we come back next year."

"Next year?" squechingly. "Who said anything 'bout coming back next year?"

"We will! I'm going to hold the thought that we will. No one ever loved traveling as I do. I just think—now we're in Leipsic in this wonderful old cellar. Tonight we sleep on the train—in the morning we'll be in Munich!" rapturously.

"Hope we get into the Bayerischer Hof. Spaeth says that's a good hotel."

"Leipsic and Munich!" purred Helen. "Everybody goes to Berlin, but Leipsic and Munich seem so much more remote, more foreign—and old-worldish."

"Huh, Leipsic strikes me as bein' pretty lively and up-to-date."

"Yes, in the new parts. But I was in the quaintest old street yesterday—by a market place. Like an old print! Old gabled houses and——"

"Now, you sink your strudel—here comes our cheese and pumpernickel."

"Dear, how often we'll think of this when we're back home! It'll seem like a dream—it does now almost. No, no more for me," covering her wine glass.

"The part of the dream I'll remember," refilling his. "Think what you have to cough up for this Rhine wine at home."

Half past eight when they finally rose from the table.

"Oh, yes, we'd love to," thrilled Helen, as the English-speaking waiter offered to show them through.

Down three worn steps, into the lower cellar. There on the vaulted walls the original Faust paintings, now almost black with age.

A low narrow chamber with a huge wine cask at one end. Here Goethe, over many glasses of Rhine wine, had absorbed the ancient legend.

The massive chandelier, a weird woodcarving of Dr. Faustus on his flying wine-keg. And in the floor, the stone image of Bacchus dated "1530."

Plainly this was the oldest and most historic of the cellars.

"Ten to nine," brusqued Warren. "Come on, we got to shove off!"

The waiter generously tipped, they made their way out, past the bowing proprietor.

Up the steps, and out into the brightly-lit modern Grimmaische Strasse.

"Dear, it seems like a dream already," wistfully looking back. "That old cellar under those modern shops—I feel as though we came up out of the Middle Ages."

"That joint's all right. Good food, too. If we're ever in Leipsic again—that's where we'll grub. Now for a taxi!"

"Oh, dear, not yet! Look down there," pausing at the corner of a dark narrow buckway. "Those old lanterns and those toppling houses! Our last night—can't we just walk through?" plendingly.

"No, we can't! Not pokin' 'round any dark alleys now. Got to pay the hotel bill and get to the station in time to check our traps."

"But it's barely nine—and the train doesn't leave until ten-forty——"

"Well, you can't cut too close when you don't know the ropes nor the lingo. Not goin' to mies that sleeper. This Leipsic station—biggest in Europe. Walk a mile to gun up the luggage room. That a taxi?" flourishing his cane. "Come on now, swing your stumps!"

Next week: "On to Munich!"

DINNER STORIES

At the trial of a wife's suit for separation and alimony, the defendant acknowledged that he hadn't spoken to his wife in five years, and the judge put in a question:

"What explanation have you," he asked severely, "for not speaking to your wife in five years?"

"Your honor," replied the husband, "I didn't like to interrupt the lady."

"Sir," said the sleek-looking agent, approaching the desk of the meek, meaching-looking man and opening one of those folding thingumjigs showing styles for binding, "I believe I can interest you in this massive set of books containing the speeches of the world's greatest orators. Seventy volumes, one dollar down and one dollar a month until the price, $680, has been paid. This set of books gives you the most celebrated speeches of the greatest talkers the world has ever known and—"

"Let me see the index," said the meek man.

The agent handed it to him and he looked through it carefully and methodically, running his finger along the list of names.

Reaching the end he handed the index back to the agent and said: "It isn't what you claim it is. I happen to know the greatest talker in the world, and you haven't her in the index."

CAL FINDING IT EASIER NOT TO USE 'BIG STICK'

President Believes He Has Done Enough in Making Recommendations

BY ROBERT T. SMALL.

Special Correspondent of The Record News. Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—President Coolidge is turning a deaf ear to all who would advise him to lash the whip over congress. He is not deviating from the path he laid down for himself when he first took up the duties of chief executive of the nation and he will not deviate from them.

President Coolidge feels that his constitutional function is ended when he recommends a certain course to the congress. If the congress does not choose to follow the course outlined then it is up to congress to stew in its own juice. It is up to the people to deal with congress as they see fit. Mr. Coolidge believes in making the record clear. After that his worries are at an end.

So often has Mr. Coolidge, both by word and deed, made his position plain in respect to congress that he is surprised to have persons calling upon him from time to time to depart from his principles, to assume a rule for which he has not the slightest craving, and to wield the "big stick" with all his might and main.

G. O. P. Must Take It.

If the republican party is looking to President Coolidge for leadership it must accept the leadership which he chooses to give. This is a leadership in strict accord with the constitution which divided the government into three co-ordinate branches, the executive, legislative and judicial. Mr. Coolidge has made a careful study of the constitution. Among other things it says:

He (the president) shall from time to time give to the congress information of the state of the union, and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient; he may, on extraordinary occisions, convene both houses, or either of them and in case of disagreement between them with respect to the time of adjournment he may adjourn them to such time as he shall think proper."

The president intends to hew to this constitutional line, letting the legislative chips fall where they may. He is not the driving type of president, like Theodore Roosevelt or Woodrow Wilson. As a matter of fact he does not believe in that type of president and does not believe that the people desire such a president. Mr. Coolidge has his own ideas as to the presidency and is demonstrating them. It has generally been thought that the present session of congress would give the country a better idea of Mr. Coolidge than it ever has before. He is acting now for the first time in his own special rights as president. No longer is he fulfilling an unexpired term. No longer is he committed to another man's policy. Mr. Coolidge is himself. He is in full control of the executive branch of the government. He is conducting himself according to his own ideas and ideals.

The president does not feel it is up to him to solve any of the congressional problems. It is entirely a matter for the senate and the house, if after the senate and house have acted the president does not approve of what has been done, he is vested with the veto power, which he has not hesitated to use in several notable instances. The veto power is constitutional. There is nothing in the constitution about the "big stick."

When President Coolidge decided not to address the congress in person at the beginning of its present long term it was a further indication of his purpose to keep the legislative and executive branches of the government in their proper places.

Makes Recommendations.

The president has made a large number of recommendations to the congress. He does not expect half of these to be acted upon. That, however, is a matter for the congress to settle with itself. Mr. Coolidge will not emulate the example of Vice President Dawes and go to the country complaining of the congres. He wants the people to judge congress for themselves and if the people can see any remedy for the situation he is perfectly willing that they shall apply it.

President Coolidge is perfectly aware of the fact that for him the congressional situation is going to grow worse and worse. The next senate is bound to be less republican than the present one. Only seven democratic senators are up for election this year and each one of the seven is from the solid south. This admits of no possibility of a republican gain whereas at least half a dozen republican senators are facing a very ticklish situation at home. It would seem certain as anything can seem in politics that the democrats are bound to make senate gains.

The president may be looking forward to the time later in his term when the "big stick" would have no great potency at best, and therefore he has determined not to wield it at this time for the world court, for the tax reduction measure or for any one of the score of other things he has recommended to congress in his own earnest if quiet manner.

It would not be in character for Mr. Coolidge to wield the "big stick." Therefore the country may as well make up its mind that Mr. Coolidge is determined to let congress severely alone except where the constitution gives him definiate power to act.

2 Men Rob Patrons Of Grocery Store

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Two unmasked robbers entered the Langley Brothers grocery store here last night, held up the proprietor and several patrons and escaped with about $200. Several shots were fired at the men by a Mexican, one of the victims, but none took effect.

The bandits are believed to have recently robbed the Melrose Court, an apartment hotel here.

EUROPE CALM OVER AIR TEST

Big Continental Centers Refuse To Be Excited Over Attempts.

LONDON, England.—Despite the furore in America over the International Radio week reception tests, London and Continental Europe refuse to get excited. In fact, London, Paris and Berlin still wonder what it's all about. The smaller cities in England and Europe haven't even started wondering.

Europe generally is far behind the United States and Canada in radio interest. So the special international tests prove no exception.

American and Canadian stations attempting to send their programs to Europe during the test periods set aside for this, will find but a very small audience attempting to dial them in. In the first place, the fans would necessarily have to listen in between three and five o'clock in the morning to hear the "special" programs. In the second place, English listeners expect their stations to do the listening for them. If the stations hear America or Canada loud enough to rebroadcast them, and do so, even that will not excite England or France.

Will Read About It Later.

The fact is, English and other European radio fans will be more than content to read the account of the reception and the possible rebroadcasts in their morning daily papers at breakfast time. But take it from one who knows the Englishman, the latter in reading his newspaper will be far more interested in news of Indian uprisings, Australian affairs of state, shipping and commerce items, and the latest status of the heart of David Windsor—His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

English radio is satisfactory without worrying about the bally programs from North America. The French have their attention on the Dreuses. The Germans are busy rebuilding their economic and moral structure. The Russians have all they need to worry over. Italy is kept busy watching King Victor Emmanuel and Mussolini.

Therefore, the international tests, as far as enthusiasm is concerned, are apt to be more or less lopsided.

GETS SUSPENDED TERM IN KILLING OF WOMAN

Barnum and Bailey Rank Amateurs Compared To Bethlen And Horthy Who Rule Hungary In Comic Style

And Then Colburg Feels the Iron Hand and Imperialistic Rule of Duke of Albany Who Takes About All He Can Get

BY MAXIMILLIAN HARDEN.

Special Dispatch to The Record News. Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Much more interesting than Berlin, where the new Luther cabinet, the fourteenth since the empire, is hardly discussed, are two other cities.

First is Budapest, the city of the fiery czardas and wildest shimmy, alcoholic orgies and picturesque gypsy maidens. When Hungary was still a part of Austria it used to be said that a minister needed only three things—an iron fist, an iron crown (Hungarian order) and an iron face. That Count Bethlen possesses an iron crown is probable and that he has an iron fist and face has been proved by him as premier.

Lots of Murders

The number of murders committed under his regime is vast. Few worry about it but everybody regards as worth seeing the premier who thundered in moral indignation against the counterfeiters and who then proved himself to have been in the secret of the "patriots" who counterfeited French notes and brought them over the border under the protection of diplomatic passes. Barnum and Bailey are outdone by the firm of Bethlen and Horthy.

The other city, much smaller and stiller, is Coburg. But while Budapest harbors only one pretender to the throne—Archduke Albrecht, whose chances have been weakened by the counterfeiting revelations—Coburg has two tsars and one duke. There Tsar Ferdinand, himself a Coburger, who was driven out of Bulgaria, inhabits his hereditary castle and there is Tsar Kyrall. Who is that? Grand Duke Kyrall Vladimirovitz of Russia who as second cousin to the murdered Tsar Nicholas, solemnly proclaimed himself on Aug. 31, 1924, Tsar of Russia. His wife was born Princess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and she brought him as part of her dowry, Edinburgh palace.

High above the two tsars in old Fort Coburg lives Duke Karl Eduard duke of Albany and a royal prince of Great Britain and Ireland. He bears at least sixteen other titles, German and English and the Order of the Garter and the Black Eagle. He is honorary doctor of laws of Oxford, and was a Prussian general. He was born in Claremont, England. But he is so full of burning love for "his" German country that he wants it entirely. Hence he demands in addition to the most beautiful forests of Thuringia more than a seventh of the entire duchy of Gotha, big estates, popular bathing resorts, hotels, villas, many city houses and an entailed estate of almost 800,000 square feet, art collections and other small things.

He Gets It All

Duke Karl declares that all these things "are inseparably connected" with the rights of ruling houses. Despite the fact that these rights have not existed for the last seven years this doctor of laws demands these as his private property. The German citizen rescued hardly one-twentieth of his property from the consequences of the war and inflation and he has sacrificed much other property to war loans, taxes and numberless other requirements.

Duke Karl Eduard whose freedom from taxes as a sovereign ruler protected him from such sacrifices and who, as a British royal prince, is not in any danger of starving, insists like Shylock on his alleged rights and he does not let himself be frightened off by threatening impoverishment of "his" country. And there can be no doubt that the glowing love for Germany, of this Duke of Albany, grandson of Queen Victoria, is because of his wealth in the mightiest protection of the German nationalists. He is admired by General Ludendorff, who dwelt in his palace and he is tirelessly active in behalf of secret association.

Isn't little Coburg interesting? With three royal courts, related to each other and to reigning houses—politically active Queen Maria of Roumania is also a Coburger—is in the center of emigrant intrigues and the laboratory for experiments in monarchic restoration.

Whoever sees court equipages in the streets and flags of the empire and duchy and hears royal concerts and theatrical performances, must believe that the seven year dream is ended and that the good old monarchy days have come again.

IT DRIVES OUT WORMS

The surest sign of worms in children is paleness, lack of interest in play, fretfulness, variable appetite, picking at the nose and sudden starting in sleep. When these symptoms appear it is time to give White's Cream Vermifuge. A few doses drives out the worms and puts the little one on the road to health again. White's Cream Vermifuge has a record of fifty years of successful use. Price 35c. Sold by all drug stores. —Adv.

Ex-Head of Vets Asks a Rehearing

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Petitions for rehearing of the case of Colonel Charles R. Forbes, former head of the United States veteran bureau, and Colonel John W. Thompson, wealthy St. Louis, Mo., contractor, convicted and sentenced in connection with hospital contract frauds, have been filed in the United States circuit court of appeals, it became known today.

MOTHER WINS IN COURT BATTLE FOR CHILDREN

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Waging the long fight for the right to have custody of the children to whom she had given birth, Mrs. Leona Crawford saw victory finally glance her way when Judge R. W. B. Terrell in the seventy-third district court decreed that her little girl and two little boys should spend their summer vacations with her in Corsicana.

But her need of victory came only after a persistent fight with her former husband, John E. Crawford, a fight which has been waged for several years in Hunt and Lamar and Bexar counties and which, has invariably resulted in defeat for the mother.

McKINNEY MAN BLAMED IN DEATH OF HIS UNCLE

McKINNEY, Texas, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The district court grand jury which convened here Monday indicted John M. Rutledge on a charge of murder in connection with the death of his uncle, Ed Rutledge, whose body was found in a cotton field on the Brown farm near McKinney last November 23. The case was set for trial on February 17. John Rutledge made a confession in December in connection with the case.

Metzger Leads Commercial League Scores With 40 Points

MOORE AND SHARPE TIE FOR SECOND HONORS WITH 29 AS FAICHNEY FALLS FAR BEHIND

Landon-Hill And Draughon Lead League Both In Games Won, Field Goals And Free Throws

By BLONDY CROSS

Oh would but that there were ways by which statistics could be kept on the efficiency of basketball guards. But there isn't. It's hard to keep tab on the work of forwards and centers, too, because of the various methods of attack and defense used by different cage quints.

In the case of the forward it isn't always the player who loops the most baskets who is the best forward on his club or in the league. It depends a great deal on the kind of floor game he plays and how he fits into the scheme of things with the rest of his team mates.

There may be a small honor attached to cold figures on goals shot by players; the leading scorer may feel satisfied that he's on top of the heap but these same figures do not do justice to his guards other than to indicate between the lines that his club boasts a good set of defense men. Few forwards can get away for many baskets unless their guards are holding the opposition down in the meantime and "feeding" the ball up the court.

Plays Guard, Too.

Six contests have been played in the Wichita Falls Commercial basketball league to date. Strange to say, an athlete who has performed at both guard and forward, if in truth there can be any strangeness about such as that, is leading the organization in points tabulated. He's C. E. Metzger, manager of Draughon, team tied at the top with Landon-Hill. Metzger has scored 40 points, sinking 19 field goals and a pair of free pitches.

His closest pursuers are his team mate at forward, Captain Nealie Moore, and B. G. Sharpe, Dixie-Stephens forward, who have checked 29 points each.

Van Horn, Landon-Hill center, follows on their heels with 28 points, and Beck, Landon-Hill forward, comes next with 27 points.

Faichney Trails Behind.

Don Faichney, Texhoma center and leading point getter of the league last year, hasn't been hitting the hoop with regularity. He trails Beck with 26 points, annexed via the field goal route.

It is more or less a coincident that the league leaders, Landon-Hill and Draughon, each have totaled 99 points. Each club has scored 43 field goals and 13 free pitches.

These teams meet Tuesday night in the second game of a double-header. Texhoma plays Dixie-Stephens in the opener.

ROJACKI MEETS VELCOFF HERE NEXT THUSDAY

Winner Takes on Santel Feb. 4—Checco vs. Gorman

Nick Velcoff, the Bulgarian heavyweight, meets Joe Rozacki, the giant Pole, in the Wichita Falls wrestling association main event next Thursday night at the 512 1-2 Scott emporium, announces Matchmaker Ross.

Both grapplers are well known here. Each wrestled Ad Santel in more or less sensational matches here a couple months back. Velcoff lost a heartbreaker to the Washington Roughneck, Dick Daviscourt, here a couple of weeks ago, and Rogacki tamed John Emohizer here last week with rapidity.

The winner of the Thursday frolic will be given the old favorite Ad Santel here February 4, says Ross.

Jack Gorman and Sylvia Checco, the former navy welter champ, wrestles the prelim. Checco wrestled Gorman bare-footed here a month or two back and was forced to quit when Gorman split his toes. Checco has been rearing for revenge ever since. And there's a number of Wichita Falls mat fans who aver the gob can beat the Plainview flash. It's a grudge affair.

The association originally had planned on using Jim Londos, the great Greek wrestler here next Thursday but a conflict of dates forced postponement. Londos will be brought here later on, however, possibly three weeks hence.

Suzanne Packs Advantage Over U. S. Net Queen

Lenglen Defeated McKane Easily—It Was Hard For Helen

The long deferred match between Miss Helen Wills, United States national women's tennis champion, and Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the idol of Europe, will probably take place at the Wimbledon tournament in England in the early summer. Miss Wills has announced that she is in Europe primarily to study art, but she also plans to enter several meets while abroad. Like the proverbial street car conductor who spends his vacations riding on trolley cars, Miss Wills had scarcely recovered from her attack of seasickness when she went to see some exhibition matches on the courts at Cannes, France. It was there she met Suzanne for the first time.

Helen's Anxious to Face Suzanne.

Mlle. Lenglen was heard to exclaim, "I admire Helen in every way. She is such a sweet child. I simply love her." All well and good—they may continue to be friends off the courts, but when this pair face each other for the first time in a grueling match, tennis as only those two can play it will be on tap. The California girl has been waiting for a long time to return some of the Frenchwoman's much talked of serves. Once in 1924 it was thought they would come together at the Wimbledon championship matches, which were held before the Olympics, but Mlle. Lenglen defaulted on her doctor's orders after playing in the early rounds. Later she withdrew from the Olympic tourney without playing a match.

Comparative Records.

A survey of the 1925 records gives Mlle. Lenglen the edge, if we compare their showings against the English girl, Kathleen McKane. In winning the English title for the sixth time Suzanne Lenglen did not drop a set and Miss McKane did not even manage to get a game. The young American star met Miss McKane twice during the summer, first in the international matches, then in the national championship, and was able to win only by the narrowest margin.

Miss Elizabeth Ryan returned to the U. S. after an absence of 13 years and defeated Miss Wills at Seabright, then returning to Wimbledon won two games from the French star and dropped 12 in succession.

Miss Wills has definitely announced that she will enter the Wimbledon tournament and Mlle. Lenglen will defend her title there unless her health is bad, and the favorites will undoubtedly reach the finals. Her experience on the continent will have benefitted the American girl and she will be in better condition than in 1924.

She will be back in the United States in time to enter at least two tournaments before the championship matches begin in August.

FOR WORKING PEOPLE

The best of workers get out of sorts when the liver fails to act. They feel languid, half-sick, "blue" and discouraged and think they are getting lazy. Neglect of these symptoms might result in a sick spell, therefore the sensible course is to take a dose or two of Herbine. It is just the medicine needed to purify the system and restore the vim and ambition of health. Price 60c. Sold by all drug stores.—Adv.

Helen's Unbobbed Tresses Attract Love of Europe

CANNES, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Miss Helen Wills, besides possessing the most powerful forehand drive ever seen in woman's tennis on the Riviera court holds the distinction of being the only unbobbed player out of 32 entered in the present tournament.

A hair dresser at the hotel Metropole, while preparing the champion's head dress prior to her appearance on the courts for practice this morning asked "why don't you bob your hair, Miss Wills?"

"I am too old fashioned," replied the 22-year-old champion.

But while thousands of spectators applauded her during her match against Mrs. Aeschlimann yesterday an elderly British countess in the audience was heard to remark:

"I love her because she has not sacrificed her beautiful hair to a foolish fashion."

HOLY CROSS BREAKS RECORD

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The Holy Cross college relay quartet established a new world's record of 3.24 4-5 in the 1,000 meter intercollegiate relay at the Brooklyn college games here tonight. In shattering the former mark the team defeated the Georgetown university team who were heavy favorites by three yards.

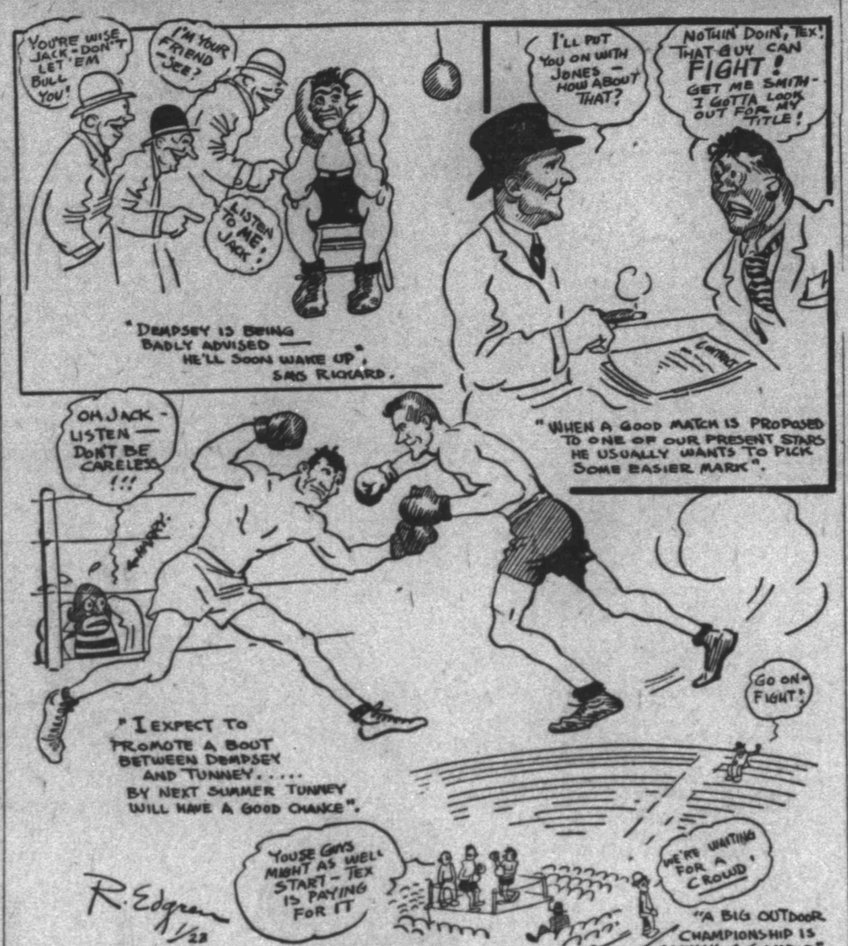

HYDE REAL CAGE STAR

FREDERICK, Jan. 23.—Rufus Hyde, erstwhile grid star on the 1925 Frederick high school Bearcat football team, is making an even more enviable record on the basket court for the Frederick quintent this year.

Hyde works ably at center and forward, and has led the pace of his teammates in Frederick's winning streak over northern Texas teams.

Cubs Return Alex Metzler To Spudders

Rickard Expects Dempsey To Fight Both Wills and Tunney This Year

LEONARD WILL BE BACK, TOO, DECLARES TEX

Fighters at Present Quite Unreasonable in Cash Demands

By ROBERT EDGREN

"I expect to see Jack Dempsey fight twice this year," said Tex Rickard, putting aside a lot of blue prints and dodging a bunch of plasterers and carpenters who were hustling through his office to get to work on the remaining details of the New Garden.

"I expect to promote a bout between Dempsey and Gene Tunney. If there is a Dempsey-Wills match I expect to handle it. I doubt that Dempsey and Wills can meet outside of New York state, if they ever meet, but I'm very uncertain that the fight will ever materialize. Public opinion may be strongly against it.

"Dempsey is being badly advised, and he will soon wake up to the real situation. Yes, I know he wants to fight.

"It's certain Dempsey has gone back, and doubtful that he ever will be the Dempsey of Toledo again. No athlete can stay out of action as long as Dempsey has and keep his best form. Still, Dempsey is a great fighter and I think he'll be champion for at least another year, if he goes on fighting. He never dissipated and never stopped training and taking care of himself even with a couple of years between fights, and he may surprise everybody when he fights again Dempsey can go back a little and still be the greatest living heavyweight.

"Gene Tunney is improving all the time. By next summer he will have a good chance even against Dempsey. That's a match I'd like to handle because it will be a great fight and one that will surely satisfy the public, no matter which man wins.

"I don't expect to run more than two big outdoor shows next summer. The overhead expenses of these big outdoor bouts are too heavy, and too much ring talent has to be used to make up a card that will attract the crowd needed to make a profit. I've made money with some outdoor shows and lost money with others. The weather, train service, and a lot of other details have to be figured on. A big outdoor championship bout is always more or less of a gamble.

New Garden Seats 20,000

"With my new garden I can entertain a crowd of 20,000 and there are few outdoor arenas where the spectators can have as good a view of a contest. I expect to run shows at the new garden weekly in the summer months because our cooling system will make the place comfortable even during the hot weather.

"I expect to see Benny Leonard back this year. Big money will bring him back. He dropped out too soon, when he was still at his best and there was no necessity for retiring. Benny liked the stage, but I think he will soon tire of that and be glad to box again. His earning power as a boxer is much greater than on the stage or in pictures or anything else. But Leonard has been out a long time and he will have to show his form in one or two bouts before grabbing any really important matches or going after the welterweight championship—which I understand is his ambition.

"There is no shortage of top notch fighters. The only trouble with putting on bouts between really first class boxers is that the headliners are all money mad and they demand purses that no promoter can give without risking a loss. I believe a promoter, who takes all the financial risks and provides the arena and handles all the million details that go with running any big sporting event, is entitled to a fair profit and there's no reason why the boxers should have a dead sure thing and the promoter be a good fellow who pays all the bills. I'm through with giving all the money to the fighters, I've done it several times—but no more."

Bouts With Western Boxers

Asked about his plans for the coming season Tex said he could arrange 20 corking bouts with such men as Tunney, Berlenbach, Stribling, Greb, Walker, Shade and some of the little fellows, but just now finds it hard to get one really first class card because the fighters are so unreasonable in their demands.

"These birds can't think in terms under a hundred thousand dollars," said Tex. "I offered Wills $150,000 to meet Gene Tunney and only got a laugh from his manager."

"But this sort of thing will straighten itself out," Tex went on. "I expect to put on a great many championship matches this year, and when I haven't a championship to offer I will put on triple event features, which means that six well known star boxers will be on the same bill. I intend to bring a lot of new boxers to New York. Some of those boys in the west have been doing good work, according to reports. LaBarba came here and made good. From what I saw of him in one fight I think he is really a great little champion, and will be one of the best that ever held the flyweight title. If the others are anything like LaBarba the public is going to find the new fighters more interesting than the champions they've been looking at for four or five years, and that will help to bring a few fighters and their managers back to their senses.

When a good match is proposed to one of our present stars he usually wants to pick some easier mark. Where he's offered a dollar he demands three. With a lot of newcomers here trying to make good and willing to take any fight offered things will be different. I expect to have Jimmy McLarnin, Mushy Callahan, Leo Lomski, Tod Morgan, Ace Hudkins and a lot of other boys who have made good out west, and if they show up to their advance notices the local boys will have to wake up or find that they're forgotten. It's going to be a great year in boxing. I expect to see new champions in several classes. These new boxers are going to make it hot for the old timers.

"The public's interest in all sports is increasing. New York is very keen about hockey. We'll have one of the greatest years on record in swimming bike racing and all sports that can be held under a roof. I expect to run two bike races in the new garden next summer.

"You're going to be busy, aren't you?"

"Busy!" exclaimed Tex. "Oh, I don't know. I'm thinking of taking up golf to have something to do in my spare time."

YOUNG GARDNER CRAMMED PILL FOR .316 MARK

Fitzgerald Expected to Be Released to Wichita Falls, Also

By BLONDY CROSS

Alex Metzler, outfielder sold to the Chicago Nationals at the close of the 1925 season by Wichita Falls was released to the Spudders during the Catalina baseball meeting, but substantiation of the transaction was not made until yesterday out of Chicago via Associated Press wire.

Metzler and Howard Fitzgerald were sold to the Cubs at the same time. Fitzgerald will be taken to the Cub training camp at Catalina Island, but the possibility of his breaking into the Chicago lineup seems very slim. Joe McCarthy is well heeled with outer gardners, having a dozen good ball hawks in all. It is general opinion that Fitzgerald will be returned to the Spudders, for it was agreed when he was sold to Chicago that should the Cubs not use him he would not be shipped elsewhere but would be sent back to Wichita Falls.

Task Ahead.

Just how Metzler will fit in the Spudder plan of affairs is a question. Although a comparatively sweet ball player it doesn't appear likely that he can break through the first line defense of the veterans, Ping Bodie, Fitzgerald and Lyman Lamb. At any rate, he'll make the old timers hustle. It is understood Brainard does not intend to carry an extra outfielder, he being somewhat of an all-around player himself, and ready to fill in at the garden patrol if necessary.

It is possible Metzler will land in Beaumont if he doesn't make the grade here, or else he'll shunt a veteran into the Beaumont lineup. It's a certainty that if Spudder powers can't get an exceptionally good price for Alex, should he fail to break in here, he won't be let go at a small figure nor be farmed to a class D or class C loop. Texas league clubs are allowed to lend Beaumont, the weak sister of the circuit, any ball players they can't use themselves, don't want to sell or farm out, and Beaumont may be in position to use.

Many Friends.

Alex has many friends here who believe that if any lending is done he won't be the player who will be lent. They expect the sturdy young athlete to beat one of the veterans out of a job.

Metzler was with the Spudders in the early part of the 1925 season, then was sent to the Western association, but was brought back late in the season. He participated in 40 games wih the Spudders last year, was at bat 174 times, scored 42 runs, connected for 55 safe hits, a total of 833 bases, hit nine two-baggers, two triples, five home runs, five sacrifices, drew 20 bases on balls, drove in 32 runs, stole one base, struck out 26 times, and enjoyed a batting average of .316.

DEMPSEY-GENE TUNNEY SCRAP ALMOST CINCH

McGann Avers Battle Will Be In Jersey City This Summer

EX-MARINE NO MATCH

How About That Madden Kayo? Yeah, How About It?

By SPARROW McGANN
Special Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—It surely looks now as though the big feature outdoor fight season this year will be a Dempsey-Tunney bout—maybe in Jersey City, although it may turn up in the Yankee stadium. It is a good bet, in fact, that it will.

The bout will be a plum for every one and New York is not likely to let Jersey have it without making an effective move.

This pugilistic development of the week was attended by another—the shelving of Harry Wills. Tex Rickard has come out definitely and stated that he is no longer interested in promoting a heavyweight title bout between the champion and the brown panther. Strange talk, in view of the fact that in his recent ratings of pugilists, Rickard placed Wills second to Dempsey.

That's The Fashion.

But, then, strange talk and strange deeds are always the fashion in boxing.

Dempsey has been doing a vaudeville turn in Florida and it has been getting over big. He has been viewed by many expert judges and the excellent results of the training he has been doing under Gus Wilson, are perfectly evident.

As for Tunney? Well, he will require some building up to attract the customers in numbers sufficient to make it worth while for Dempsey to risk his title.

By way of showing how matters are trending, mark Tex Rickard's entrance into the ballyhoo arena. Tunney, he says, is Dempsey's logical rival, and then he presents an impressive list of names of men the Greenwich Villager has beaten including Tommy Gibbons, Carpentier, Marty Burke, Spalla, Harry Greb and Bartley Madden.

It is not a bad list at that. The knockout of Gibbons was a real achievement, especially in view of the fact that Tommy was clever enough to go the full route with Dempsey.

Laugh This Off.

But if you listen to the insiders you will hear the opinion expressed that Tunney's knockout of Bartley Madden, the durable Irishman, whom even Wills was unable to send to sleep, requires a lot of explaining.

How Gene and Bartley ever came together is one of the mysteries of the ring. The pair are—or were—the best of friends and Gene does not think enough of the fight game to swap punches with his best friends for the money or honor there is in it.

Soon after Tunney was discharged with honor from the United States marine corps, it was noticeable that he and Bart were in each other's company a great deal. No doubt the veteran Madden taught the youngster many tricks of the game. Then why did Tunney knock him out?

There are some who feel that the less the kayo is ballyhooed the better. But, so far as the writer's judgment goes—and he happened to be in Minneapolis when Gene pulled his sleep producing stunt—it was a simon pure knock out; the first, as every one knows, that Madden ever received.

Never Meet Wills.

But unless Dempsey has gone back a great deal in the last three years, Tunney's showing, good as it is, is not good enough to give him much of a chance against the fists of the champion. Many feel that it were better for the ex-Marine were he to wait at least another year.

As for Wills, Dempsey says he is willing to take on both Tunney and the negro this year. But no one is taking Jack seriously when he says that. Talk is cheap and he knows, just as everyone else knows, that few if any states would be willing to permit a mixed bout of this importance to be held within their borders.

Dempsey will be perfectly safe in continuing to state his willingness to meet Harry and putting it up to the promoters to find a battleground. In short, the pair in all probability will never meet.

SNOW HALTS POLO

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 23.—(AP) The only game scheduled for today in the southwest mid-winter polo tournament—between Houston Polo club's four and Eighth Corps Area headquarters second team—was postponed today because of the snow. It was thought that the fields would be in condition for any contests tomorrow.

Smith, Melhorn, Cruickshank Even Up in Dallas Play

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Macdonald Smith of New York winner of the Texas open played at San Antonio last week, was tied for first place with Bobby Cruickshank and Bill Mehlhorn of Chicago, with a medal score of 153 each, in the first day's play of the Dallas open golf tournament. One stroke behind them in the 36 hole march in weather seven degrees below freezing came Willie Hunter of Los Angeles, Andy Kay of Toronto, Canada, and Erwin Juelg of San Antonio.

Harry Cooper, winner of the recent Los Angeles, open, took honors in the morning round with a 75, while Juelg was second with 76 strokes. Each of these youngsters hit some hard luck Saturday afternoon and Cooper finished for the day with 156, tied with Joe Kirkwood of Australia.

Among the score reported late this afternoon were Tom Lally, 84; Tom Burke, 85; Fred Greenhill, 86; Waldo Crowder, 85; Bill Strachan, 94; Joe Bradley, 86; Bill Hester, 89; Francis Scheider, 84; Larry Nabholtz, 82; Jack Forester, 84; John Rogers 79; Bill Creevey, 85; Pat Doyle, 82; Tom Boyd, 81; O. County Cage Meet Set at Frederick

FREDERICK, Jan. 23.—According to a decision of the executive committee of the Tillman county interscholastic association, the county basketball tournament is to be held in Frederick despite the fact that Frederick has been excluded from participation because they are a suspended member of the Oklahoma athletic association until March 21.

The meet will start in Frederick March 4 and continue through March 6. Scores of good teams in the county, including boys and girls teams in high school, junior high school and grade divisions will participate in the meet. Hundreds of people are attracted to Frederick yearly by the tournament.

Winter League ForagE

Picked up at Random

AT SANTONE

Harry Ables, president of the San Antonio team, did not do an excessive amount of trading at the minor meeting as one might have imagined from the reports of trades made. He sold three players and bought six, the latter number not including the usual number of rookies signed up for try-outs and reported about the time of the meeting.

Sales included Pitcher Collard, Pitcher Heitzman, and Outfielder Moke Myers.

Ables purchased three pitchers, one outfilder and two infielders. The pitchers were Poulson and Ward from the Fort Smith club and Leon Drake from Scranton of the New York-Pennsylvania league. Outfielder George Bliss was purchased from Syracuse; Infielder Henzes from Bridgeport of the Eastern league and Serre from Syracuse.

JOE PUTS BOYS ON (A La Pop Boone)

Josephus Pate seems to have accepted his fate as a member of the Athletic pitching staff and is about set for his departure for the training camp in Fort Meyers, Fla., by the 15th of February. Josephus will drive through to Florida from Fort Worth, accompanied by his wife and baby. When the Athletics start winging their way back north, Pate has permission to drive his family to delphia.

Pate received a questionnaire from the Brooklyn Eagle the other day. After asking the usual questions about where the left-hander started pitching, what engagements he had played and how long he had been with Fort Worth, the list went on with some queries that gave Josephus latitude to exercise the quirks of his left-hander complex. "How do you throw and bat?" was answered by Pate with the word, "Good."

"What were your duties in the army, if any?" Josephus wrote in answer, "Passing the buck." Josephus was a leftenant in the army. If you please—a first leftenant. "What was the funniest thing you ever saw in baseball," was another question. "Watching Ed Konetchy trying to hit a curve ball," wrote Josephus in answer.

"What was your greatest achievement in baseball?" went on the questions, and Josephus told 'em, "Striking out Ping Bodie on three pitched balls. Brooklyn's sporting editor should get a real kick outtn Josephus' questionaire, for it is typical of a lefthander. Also big league dope slingers may prepare to see a colorful ball player if the big Cat vet likes his place with the Athletics and really shows his stuff.

SPRING SCHEDULE

The Spudder exhibition schedule announced by Prexy Gardner on his return from Catalina follows: St. Paul of the American association March 19, 20, 21; Kansas City March 26, 27, 28; Oklahoma City of the Western league April 2, 3, 4; Des Moines of the Western April 9, 10, 11. No games will be played away from home.

Helen Wins Way Into Riviera Final

CANNES, France, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Showing the self control and unruffled demeanor which caused her compatriots to know her as "little poker face" Helen Wills smashed her way into the finals of the Metropole tennis tournament today maintaining her record of not having lost a set in her Riviera competition.

Her semi-final match against Mlle. Contostavos, France's fifth ranking woman player, called forth the American champion's reserve strength, but she pulled the contest out of the fire after trailing at 2-4 in the first set, and finally won, 6-4, 6-4.

The straight set victory upset the "dope" of most of the experts, who had expected Mlle. Contostavos just now playing in superb form to take at least one set.

Wichita Falls Polo Four Defeats Fort Marfa at Santone

The Wichita Falls Polo club, now playing in the army invitation tournament at San Antonio, won its first game Friday afternoon by defeating the Fort Marfa team 11 to 8. This information was received Saturday from C. H. Featherstone, one of the Wichita Falls club.

With Featherstone are Dave White, Jim Minnick and a Fort Sill, Okla., army officer taken to San Antonio to aid the Wichitans.

The tournament, which has been badly delayed by inclement weather has attracted practically all the army polo teams of the state and has also been opened to a few private teams.

PING! PANG! PUNG!

Our charming and gentle young friend, Ping Bodie, the copper, is a famous individual from coast to coast, as it were, so it appears. The latest item of interest concerning this personage was put on the ether waves by Prexy Gardner yesterday in reminiscence of that recent jaunt J. Alvin took to California with the rest of the minor league baseball world.

* * *

Many quips and quaps have been shoved into the microphone as regards the form—physical, not batting, of the bludgeoning Spudder outer gardner, but possibly the funniest at the time to baseball men within earshot was pulled in Jaurez during a bull fight attended by quite a delegation from the minor leagues.

* * *

COULDN'T BEAT PING

An exceedingly plump matador who evidently had lived exceedingly well all winter and hadn't taken his spring training seriously as yet, therefore being considerably out of shape, was mixing it up hilariously with a fierce old male bovine from the plains of Chihuahua, but as one player-manager on hand put it, although looking a great deal like Ping he wasn't nearly so adept at throwing the bull.

* * *

The perspiring matador, sides heaving, and getting slower and slower like unto Ping endeavoring to stretch what should have been a home run inside the park for the average player, to a two-bagger, failed to side-step quick enough, and pronto was rolled in the dust by irate Mr. Bull. Matador wasn't hurt any, but the tumble illicited the excited exclamation from Joe Berger and Bill Rogers: "Gosh! Look at Ping Bodie! He like to uv got horned!" The American portion of the stands went into an uproar.

* * *

Afeard of Our Noble Athletes.

It's quite a coincidence that both Beaumont in the form of Jeems Galloway and Houston, Fred Ankenman broadcasting, should up and aver on the same day Wichita Falls is the club that must to beat this summer. Somebody's playing with our good nature, or naturally just stringing us along, but that's what occurred yesterday. These two baseballing gentlemen although admitting the Cats will pack considerable wallop believe Gardner's outfit will be the toughest over the circuit.

* * *

In perusing newspapers from these cities we learn San Antonio, Houston and Fort Worth were after DeFate and Dallas wanted Lapan. Gardner, as you know, got 'em both. DeFate dion't want to go anywhere else, and J. Alvin just must have outfigured the boys on that Lapan deal.

* * *

It used to be nobody wanted to play in the Texas League. Now all the minor leaguers want to join up with the Lone Star teams. Why? For one thing the loop is generally admitted among baseball men as the fastest class A circuit in the country. For another, the clubs pay good salaries. Ping Bodie probably disagrees with that last crack.

CHEERS FOR FREDERICK

From time to time, various Wichita Falls basketball players have told us there isn't a town in the country which beats Frederick, Okla., for sportsmanship and out-and-out hospitality, win, lose or draw with the invading team. The latest was enacted Friday night when Landon-Hill cagers received a royal reception. The boys declare Frederick fans are the best, and their team although hard fighting, is clean, and the refereeing fair.

* * *

PROF. NEAL.

Anent that game at Frederick Friday they tell us some of Frederick's fair young women rooters labored under the misapprehension that Landon-Hill is an educational institution here. Yeasir, they thought their boys were playing the varsity quint from Landon-Hill university and Manager Chubby Neal at forward was the principal of the institution. It's Prof. C. E. Neal now.

* * *

And young Mr. Beck at that other forward enjoyed a very busy evening, they say. He participated in the game, then presided over a banquet Frederick fans brought out for the invaders, and after that went down to the church and took charge of a B. Y. P. U. meeting.

* * *

Speaking of church, we understand Manager Brainard is going to see to it that all his Spudders attend church here this summer each Sunday.

* * *

Duke Trammel goes on with Harry (Dago) Ryan again in Dallas Friday. The punching Cowtown tad takes on the tough Dallasite in a card being put on by the Good Sinners club. It should prove a whale of a mill, while it lasts. Harry mixes it hard, but he can hardly expect to get over with the boy who has defeated him roundly several times and one day down in Waco knocked him cold in a couple of cantos.

* * *

BOXING RULES.

And speaking of boxing, to satisfy the inquisitiveness of many Wichita Falls ring bugs who have called for various and sundry rulings at odd intervals, the local boxing commish composed of Bill McDermett, Morris Wolff and the writer have drawn up a set of rules governing all fights which are staged under the auspices of the American legion here. Bill did all the heavy work in drafting this laws. They are:

All boxers will fight with one hand free and will break clean at the command of the referee. Hitting in the break will be a foul.

Hitting below the belt line, the rabbit punch, the pivot punch, the kidney punch and heeling are fouls and are barred from all bouts.

The belt line is even with the top of the hip bones.

The rabbit punch is a blow delivered with any part of the glove or forearm at the base of the brain or on the back of the neck.

The kidney punch is any blow struck above the kidneys.

The pivot punch is a back handed blow delivered while whirling the body partialy or completely around.

Heeling is striking with the lower part of the palm and wrist.

Any obscene, vulgar, or abusive language will not be permitted.

Stalling, wrestling, holding or any undue roughness will not be permitted by the referee.

When a boxer is knocked down his apponent must immediately retire to the fartherest corner from him. The count will start immediately, but, should the standing boxer not go to the corner the count will be stopped until he does go, then the count will be resumed where it was left off.

A man is down when either one or both hands or knees are touching the floor, when in a lying or sitting position or when hanging helpless on the ropes.

The referee will not warn a man more than three times for an offence, or, if in the judgement of the referee the offence was intentional or his apponent was injured the bout will immediately be awarded to the fouled boxer.

Any occasion that might arise where the referee is uncertain or unable to give a decision it will be left up to the Boxing Commission and a decision will be rendered by them.

Any boxer that goes down without being hit, unless he slips, trips or becomes overbalanced and falls, will be automatically disqualified and his opponent will be awarded the bout.

BIG BOY LINES UP HOT SKETCH AMERICAN NINE

Burkett May Enter Munger Autos—Pond Expected Back

BY BLONDY CROSS.

There may be snow on the ground and it may be the time of the year when basketeers hold sway, and all that kind of stuff, but old King Baseball hasn't been snuffed out entirely. No, sah, what with all the minor league doings this month, the maneuvers of Texas loop clubs in the winter strengthening process, and last but not the most minute—the whisperings of the Wichita Falls Twilight loopers.

The amateurs are stealthily working away laying plans for the coming summer forays. Lawrence Medford for one is a team leader who didn't hibernate when cold blasts busted into this sector for annual winter time play. The American refinery manager has just about signed up what appears to be a team of real championship caliber. And several of the rest of the managers aren't exactly idle.

It begins to look like we're going to have a banner year here next summer. Practically all of the old guard will be back. And there's a hefty possibility a bunch of newcomers will flit in for combat with these boys.

It's assured American refinery will put a team into the field. Rabbit Gordon and Gerard Boone probably will turn to in answer to the initial call for spring with a first class Texhoma team. It's understood Panhandle moguls are thinking seriously about throwing a club into the race to kind of sling cold water on their brother refinery nines. That would be a real battle in itself, the scrap the three teams, Texhoma, Panhandle, American, would put on.

Change Them Rules.

Then there's Grover Monroe—he figures on putting out a winner this summer if several player rules are changed. Grover has his ideas about allowing ringers to compete and letting enemy team managers compromise a man's athletes and possibly steal 'em. Hugh Cotner over at Security National Bank meditates along the same lines.

But Doc Landon declares the recent merger of Wichita Falls amateur athletics with the Texas amateur athletic federation automatically puts the bars down on such carryings-ons. You see, this city's athletes have lined up with the state organization in order to get a whack at Texas recognition and state championships. There are certain rules in the state organization which Prexy Lndon says automatically dispel all fears Grover or Hugh may have on the particular matters mentioned.

So all's fair and warmer.

How About Pond?

And we understand there's quite a possibility Ralph Pond will send another Pond laundry team into the affray. The Pond outfit did not compete last summer, and this organization was missed heavily.

Burkett over at Munger Auto company is planning seriously on shooting his automobiles into the league, wants to know what the stipulations for membership are and when will the league meet again. That makes it still better. May have to start talking eight-club organizations this year. Loop was composed of six teams last season. Ludlam and Riggs is the only club dropping out. If Panhandle, Munger autos and Pond come in along with the old standbys, Monroe, Security, Texhoma, American and possibly Wichita Falls Electrics, there will be an eight-team league. There's the dope. Try and improve on it. Landon says the league will hold its initial 1926 meeting in February. That's not far off.

That American Roster.

Meantime, Medford's about to get the jump on the rest of the gang. He's got himself down for first base. Francis has signed for second. Windham comes out for short, and Christian goes after third. Speck Roberts, .360 hitter over at Burkburnett last year, has been signed to try and break into that infield somewhere. Right now the mound corps is divided up between the outfield with Glidewell, Conley and Andree getting the call. Of course, Lawrence figures on signing up two or three more outer gardners. Can't run with only three outfielders and one of them supposed to be working in the box.

The Americans are depending a lot on Conley. Snipe won 18 games and lost none last summer in Dallas amateur ball. He got beat once all summer and that was at Electra when pitching for Texhoma.

Horton and Rounsaville are corralled for the catching burden, says Medford.

SWIM RECORDS GO IN BUFFALO MEET

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 23.—(AP) Three world's records were smashed in a swimming meet held at the Buffalo athletic club tonight. Walter Laufer of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. broke the 100 yard and the 100 meter back stroke standards. He swam the 0 yards in 1:03, two-fi... under the Johnny Weissmuller, former world mark. At the end of the hundred yards he continued to the 100 meters and covered that distance in 1:11 1-5. Weissmuller's old mark was 1:12 3-5.

Walter Spence of the Brooklyn Y. M. C. A. broke the world's 100 yard breast stroke record of 1:09 2-5 by one full second. That record also was held by Weissmuller.

Bus Says He'll Stop Jack This Time.

BUSTER MARTIN.

Buster Martin, the speedy heavyweight socker of Wichita Falls and Tulsa, has been climbing the fistic ladder rapidly the past several months. He's been beating 'em all—all except Jack Matlock, who held him to a draw verdict in a mighty mean ten-round fracas here several weeks ago.

Since that night, Buster's been training hard and looking forward to the time he gets another cut at Matlock. That occasion will be given him again Monday night in the American Legion main event at the 8121-2 Scott gym. A likely appearing card has been arranged preliminary to the Matlock-Martin match. The program was announced through these columns Saturday.

Buster is in the best of condition and expects to stop Matlock cold this time. But, of course, as far as that goes, Jack expects to flatten Bus. So taking it all in all and considering the fact they waged such a bloody mill in that other encounter she looks like a powerful meen scrap lined up for tomorrow night.

And the writer refuses to pick the winner.

Prospects are excellent for the repeal of the excise tax on sporting arms and ammunition. The house has passed the tax bill which carries with it a repeal of the war-time tax and it is expected that the senate will concur. If there are no hitches the tax measure will reach the President by the latter part of February and should become a law by March 1. The excise tax of 10 per cent on sporting arms and ammunition will cease just as soon as the President affixes his signature to the bill.

World's series are nothing to Jack McInnis, Pittsburgh first baseman, although his younger teammates found the one with Washington very much of a novelty. It was back in 1911, during the combat between the Macks and Giants, that Stuffy got his first thrill of being a world series participant. The Athletics and Giants had battled through five hectic tilts and in the sixth and final, which the Athletics won, 12 to 2, Connie Mack yanked Harry Davis out of the batting order in the ninth inning of that game just to let Stuffy get his first taste of a series thrill. Stuffy didn't quit in batting for Harry. He went to first when two Giants were down and got the last putout of the game, and incidentally, his first of a money series. It was the greatest thrill in Stuffy's young life, but it's no novelty now.

KIRKWOOD PULLS FANCY SHOT GOLF STUFF AT CLUB MONDAY

Joe Kirkwood's going to pull that trick shot exhibition in Wichita Falls, after all, so announces Tom Cochran. Knocked out of his scheduled showing over the Country club golf course here Thursday by snowfall, the Australian links wizard returns Monday to fill his engagement.

The 18-hole foursome originally planned has been called off unless, off course, old Sol comes out strong enough today and tomorrow to dry up the links sufficiently to make it possible for match play without damaging the course. But Kirkwood's exhibition stuff is to be enacted regardless, said Cochran.

Joe intends to exhibit all his wizardry as a trick shot artist at 4:30, giving a golf lecture along with it. Everybody's invited whether or not members of the Country club.

If by any chance weather permits, that is, the course dries up, Kirkwood and Bill Strachaan are to play 18 holes against Dud Golding and Tom Cochran besides the regular exhibition Kirkwood plans.

Bears Menace, But Fail to Stop Hogs

WACO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The dazzling brilliance of Jimmy Walker, star forward on the Baylor team, gave the Arkansas Razorbacks quite a scare for one-half in the second game of the series here tonight, but while the half ended with the score tied at 11-all, the Razorbacks came back and completely outplayed the Bears in the second half to win the game by a score of 19 to 14.

In that furious first half Walker scored eight points in the first 15 minutes of play and at that time the Bears had a lead of 9 to 6. The Porkers tied the score just before the shot sounded for the close of the first half and took the lead early in the second half never to be headed, running up a margin of 18 to 11 before the Bears counted.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Sponsors of the annual national interscholastic basketball tournament of the University of Chicago hope to limit entrants to 40 teams this year, it was announced tonight. The tournament will be held March 30, 31, and April 1, 2 and 3.

Lowly Mustangs Up And Kick Froggies

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—(AP) With three games to their credit on foreign courts, T. C. U. cagers came home tonight to take a 15 to 11 defeat at the hands of the tail-end SMU Mustangs. Both clubs played defensive games throughout and only seven field goals were chalked up, the Ponies accounting for five of these. Both quintets missed enough free shots to win a couple games.

At the end of the half, the Horned Frogs led 5 to 3 and with only five minutes to p... they had a three point margin, 11 to 8. With only three minutes to go, however, Allison and Wooledge came through with shots from the floor which, aided by three free pitches turned the tide in SMU's favor.

BRITISHERS WALLOPED

SARASOTA, Fla., Jan. 23—The favorite golfing sons of France and England, Arnaud Massey and Archie Compston, were subjected to the most thorough defeat they have sustained since coming to the United States here today at the hands of Bobby Jones, national amateur champion, and Tommy Armour, Whitfield, pro. The American stars won eight up and seven to play.

Landon-Hill Team Disputes Leadership in Cage League

They haven't broken any records yet, (they came near to busting the camera) but they're knotted for the Commercial cage league leadership, is this Landon-Hill aggregation, with Metzger's Draughon outfit.

Chubby Neal shoots his sporting goods men onto the floor Tuesday night at Junior college in contest to break that tie with Draughon, and believe me, brother, or words to that effect, we're gonna untie that knot, aver the Landon-Hillers.

BASEBALL RULES REVISION DUE TO BE CONFINED TO RESCINDING OF INTENTIONAL PASS STATUTE

It's Possible Pitcher Will Be Allowed To Release Ball With One Foot In Contact With Box

By GEORGE CHADWICK
Special Correspondent

Copyright, 1926, by the Consolidated Press Assn.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Revision of the playing rules of baseball, now under way, probably will be confined to rescinding inocuous section Six of Rule 54 which was designed to eliminate the intentional pass, the writer learned today. It is possible that the rule makers will adopt Clark Griffith's suggestion of Section One of Rule 30 be amended removing restrictions from the pitcher against putting either foot back of the pitcher's plate.

There has been no formal meeting of the joint committee of the major leagues, appointed to revise the rules but in formal discussions which have taken place indicate that few changes are contemplated. A meeting will be called for sometime in February before the teams start south and west for spring training.

The last revision of the rules governing baseball was made in 1920 and while there has been no demand for radical changes, the powers that govern the game thought the regulations should be gone over at least every five years.

The Rule

In 1920 the rules committee sought to eliminate the intentional base on balls from the game. So the following rule was passed:

"It shall be illegal for the catcher to leave his natural position immediately and directly back of the plate for the purpose of aiding the pitcher intentionally to give a base on balls to the batsman. If the catcher shall move out of position prior to the time of the ball leaving the pitcher's hand, all runners on bases shall be entitled to advance one base."

If the catcher tries to assist in an intentional pass, the rules provided for a balk. But that already had been provided for elsewhere in the rules. So the amendment might as well have been an amendment to the constitution of the Esquimaux republic. Besides at was rarely ever enforced anyway.

Opposition to the base on balls intentionally given by the pitcher is sentimental. There never can be any logic in not giving the pitcher equal rights with the batsman.

If the latter does not wish to strike at the ball he need not do so and if the pitcher, in the course of a development of a game, does not wish the batsman to strike at the ball, he should have the same privilege as the batsman.

Worst of all, effort to eliminate the intentional base on balls is the utter impossibility of trying to read the mind of the pitcher, to say nothing of the batsman. The pitcher might be trying his level best to get the ball over the plate and yet be unable to do so and if it were within the power of an official to punish him for well meant effort it would make baseball a travesty.

Clark's Suggestion

The real factor of development which is most desired in baseball, is anything to assist the pitcher to improve.

There will be no return, however, to the archaic spit ball, the mud ball, shine ball or any other kind of delivery which will assist the pitcher to maltreat the ball. Although canvass of the owners of ball clubs finds them hostile without exception to any such plan. The presidents of both major leagues are firmly against the spit ball.

Thought the club owners and baseball officials are well agreed there shall be no spit ball or similar contraption of pitching they are not averse in any way to a modification to straight pitching rules that may give the pitcher a little more latitude.

Last spring Clark Griffith suggested that the restrictions be removed from the pitcher so that if he had one foot in contact with the pitcher's plate he might deliver the ball regardless of the position of the other foot, except that the pivot foot must always be in contact with the plate when the pitcher releases the pitched ball.

There is a lot of merit in that suggestion and it probably will go before the rules committee meeting. If there is any real desire to give a pitcher a little more freedom, a little more laxity, a little better cross fire and to work a little better slant this change will bring that about.

If Griffith's plan goes through, there would be some very interesting pitching developments.

Wuxtra! Parlor Athletes Smash Charleston Mark

HOUSTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Two human forms swayed about a dance room floor to the schreeching strains of barbaric jazz music here tonight.

Arm in arm, they thumped steadily upon the polished surface until the band swung into "Yes Sir, That's My Baby," with a vim and vigor that shook the roof of the dance hall.

Two minutes of this and an announcer called "26 hours 34 minutes and 35 seconds, gentlemen." They stopped and a new world's record for continuous dancing of the Charleston had been hung up by two Houston boys who completed that much hoofing of the "hey hey" dance here at 10:35 tonight having started their marathon at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Miss Dollis Skinner, 19-year-old Houston girl, holds the record today for feminine Charlestoning with eight hours and 48 minutes of hoofing to her credit having fallen by the wayside at 5:57 Saturday morning.

TEXAS BEATS CENTENARY

AUSTIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Centenary college failed to solve the strong man-for-man defense of the Texas Longhorns here tonight and Texas took the second game of the series, 23 to 15. Centenary did not score a field goal until after 33 minutes of play. Captain Boynton, however counted seven times from the foul line.

Frazee Bills Tiffs in Fort Worth, Springtown, Meridian

BY BLONDY CROSS.

Wichita Falls Junior college cagers just couldn't get over last night down at Decatur on an ice-covered court in the Decatur Baptists' barn-like gym. There was a leak or so somewhere and water had run onto the floor, freezing up sudden-like, making the going exceedingly hard for both teams. She was a tough contest, 27 fouls in all being called on the two quints, and the Indians being away from home just naturally couldn't locate the hoop, losing the second and final game of the series, 27 to 18.

There weren't any individual stars unless you call Waller, Decatur center who scored nine points, one. Little Jack Thurman chunked a trio of field goals. Rawls was still off-color and could sink only a couple of baskets from the floor.

But undaunted by the two lickings received at hands of the Baptists, the Tribe moves on down to Fort Worth this morning for a week of basket encounters. There won't be any game today or Monday. Frazee sends his club onto the court Tuesday against the fast Kelsay lumber company quint. The Cowtown Y. M. C. A. five, just back from a tour of Mexico, incidently, champs of the southern republic now, battles our boys Wednesday eve. They'll have their hands full Thursday, for Coach C. C. Mains a practice affair with Matty Bell's T. C. U. Froggies. The Junior college team is to play the Christian varsity, and T. C. U., as you know, next to Arkansas right now ranks as the strongest club in the southwest conference. Springtown plays host to the Wahita Falls lads Friday night, and then they hop down to Meridian for a game Saturday, starting the trek home Sunday morning.

PAIR OF LOVERS PERISH IN SNOW

Blizzards of Prairies Are Still Unconquered In Modern Age

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 23.—The terrible blizzards of the plains, dreaded by pioneers, scouts and Indians alike, still are unconquered. Even the inventions of which modern civilization is most proud, the automobile, the radio and the telephone and telegraph, have not sufficed to master them. The blizzards which since October have swept over the Nebraska prairies are said by old timers to have left tragedy and misery in their wake.

The storms which the range cattle and the buffalo could not face have conquered the auto also. Several persons have lost their lives and many have been saved only by stumbling on some isolated farm house. The old reliable horse and sleigh was subject to less vicissitudes than more modern vehicles since drivers took no chances when a blizzard seemed imminent.

Scores of automobile owners started out on what looked like a fair road with their cars in good condition only to be overtaken by the storms before their destinations were reached. When their cars stalled in the wind-piled drifts, many unused to the ways of the plains, did the worst thing possible, abandoned their cars in an effort to find more adequate shelter.

Lovers Die.

The most tragic toll of the blizzards this winter was the lives of a young couple on their way to be married. Search is still being made for their bodies which are thought to be lying in some ravine with snow for a winding shroud. Their fate probably will not be known until spring.

They are J. E. Shea of Omaha and Gladys Dunbar, who started in a light coupe from Alliance, Neb., toward Mitchell, expecting to have Christmas wedding at the girl's home.

That was the last seen of them. The car was found in a deep drift with the snow drifting in over the bag which contained the prospective bride's wedding finery. They must have stumbled blindly over the snow-covered expanse of prairie, lost all sense of direction and sank down to perish from cold and exhaustion with only the shriek of the wind and the mournful howl of the coyote for requiem.

1,000 Men Hunt Bodies.

More than a thousand men have been engaged in the search for their bodies and their descriptions have been broadcast repeatedly by raido in hope of locating some trace. Another young couple escaped similar fate by sticking to their car for a day and a half. The girl, Majorie Blundell, of Chadron, was being taken back to school by Andrew Kakanson after the holidays when the blizzard caught them. Although without food for 48 hours they stayed in the car until the storm passed. Then they walked to a farm house where they found the parties sent to search for them.

Old timers still tell of the blizzard of 1880 when a school teacher saved the lives of her pupils by roping them together and leading them safely through the storm. During that blizzard over one hundred persons in Nebraska lost their lives. Old timers say the safest plan when overtaken by a storm is to dig a hole in a snow bank and to stay in it until the storm has passed.

Hayne Opposes Caraway Measure

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP) If the Caraway bill prohibiting trading in cotto nand grain futures is passed the cotton exchanges would have to close Frank B. Hayne, president of the New Orleans cotton exchange, told the senate agriculture committee today.

But for the exchanges, he said, the farmers would be forced to peddle their cotton on the streets and would be at the mercy of the big cotton interests without event the protection of the law of supply and demand.

The legitimate exchange, he said, is the only buffer between the helpless producer and the big interests.

NW Archer County

The Waite Phillips No. 13, on the T. B. Wilson, Howard survey in northwest Archer county, is reported to be swabbing 190 barrels fro mthe 1,730-foot sand. The s me company is said to have a sand at 1,212 feet, in their No. 1 Lowe, section 2402, east of the Harmel pool, Archer county.

NW Wichita

John O'Neil on the Woodward land, Waggoner colony lands, block 269, located about two and a half miles northeast of Electra, is reported to be down below 500 feet. This is a wildcat block worked up by W. H. Kerbow of Henrietta. It is hoped to find a sand at 1,100 feet.

Jefferson County

Fain, Childress, Hughes and Robertson, are drilling below 400 feet on their wildcat located 200 feet each way from the southwest corner of the southwest quarter of the northeast quarter of township 6s-6w, Jefferson county, Oklahoma. This well is on a block of 620 acres. The derrick is about two miles from the Magnolia tract, on the Spring land, located six miles northwest of the Oscar field. Pay oil is found in sands ranging from 700 feet on down to 2,020.

Jefferson County

Reports from the Couch-Browne well located in the southeast of the northeast of the northeast of section 33-6s-5w, Seay ranch, about a quarter of a mile from production, were that forty-one feet of sand at 1,425 feet had been drilled. The well swabbed 300 barrels of 38-gravity oil, according to a report from Waurika Saturday. An upper sand was drilled through about two weeks ago which made a good showing. This was mudded off.

The Hamilton-Browne Shoe company has an interest in the well.

Jack County

Buttram Petroleum Co. of Oklahoma City, discoverer of the new wildcat in the J. Preston farm abstract 1005, Jack county, have made a location for another well to be drilled 2000 feet to the north of the producer, according to late reports received in Wichita Falls. The Prairie Oil and Gas compaany is said to be running a pipeline to the new well, which is said to have made over 100 barrels when drilled deeper. Cable tools are used by the Buttram company. It will take twenty days to drill the No. 2 well.

Clay County

Nobody Knows Who Owns Which Near Duval Oiler

HOUSTON, Texas, Jan. 23.—Humble Oil & Refining company's Walsh discovery well on the Piedras Pintas salt dome in Duval county, which stopped flowing last week, is believed to have been stopped up with paraffin, officials say.

Completed early in December at 3,620 feet, it has been allowed to flow about 1,700 barrels daily, though on open flow it tested better than 10,000 barrels. However, Piedras Pintas is in awful shape insofar as development is concerned. Nobody knows who owns which; abstracts, titles, surveys, maps and such things used ordinarily before leasing, can't be found for the right pieces, and other tracts hav entirely too many for practical purposes.

Reagan Leads In Oil for November

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 21.—Oil production of 10,428,884 barrels in November, pipeline run report, 11,419,276 in October and 11,186,327 in September, was reported by the oil and gas division, state railroad commission.

Reagan county took the lead in November with 1,522,435 barrels, Limestone second, with 1,096,181 barrels. The Lulining district produced 495,207 barrels in that month, while Dale accounted for 179,173 and Lytton Springs, 65,103 barrels additional for Caldwell county. Harris county produced 425,841 barrels in November.

Reagan, Liberty and Limestone counties each produced over a million barrels in September, with Reagan and Limestone over the million mark in October. Wichita county dropped from an average above a million barrels monthly, to 824,352 barrels in September, 647,285 barrels in October and 554,461 barrels in November.

Defends Britain's Stand on Rubber

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—An explanation of "this pother about rubber" coupled with theassertion that the law restricting British rubber exports would be found in the long run to have operated "for the benefit not only of the planters, but also for the consumers," was given today by Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to Washington, addressing the Advertising club.

The ambassador illustrated the situation resulting from passage of restrictive legislation by the principal British rubber producing states, Malaya and Ceylon, with a picture of his own financially disastrous experience as a rubber pioneer 30 years ago.

Paul Whiteman and His Boys Capture Wichita Crowd With Jazz Tunes

Wichita Falls set its official stamp of approval upon jazz in general and Paul Whiteman, in particular when it turned out en masse Saturday night to hear the king of jazz band leaders and his company of 25 artists supreme. They packed the auditorium of the Junior college and after a full program of semi-classical and downright jazz numbers had been rendered and Mr. Whiteman had most generously obliged with popular requests numbers, they were still reluctant to go home.

"Jazz is blamed for all the evils of the present age," Mr. Whiteman said in the course of the evening, "and I'm glad to see that Wichita Falls does not agree wit hthat. I often wonder what record Nero played while Rome burned. And now you're going to hear the jazziest jazz, the Charleston, which is blamed for the downfall of buildings and morals." His company then boomed and sis'd into "Charlestonette" and the audience clung to its seats in sheer desperation.

Seats Nailed Down.

"Too bad," Mr. Whiteman declared, "that the seats are nailed down and we can't have a dance," proving that he read the mind of every man, woman and child present. If it had been possible to dance, grandma and sis would still be out this morning so it's probably just as well that the thing was confined to a concert.

Whiteman has been accused of taking jazz from tin pan alley, from the backyard to the drawing room and he pleads guilty. And, aided by George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," given as a closing number, he provided something which is so essentially U. S. A. that it could not be mistaken if given in Russia. Here was jazz in its most blatant form, placed upon a plane with genius.

Can't Keep Quiet.

There were other numbers, probably better known to the lovers of popular music, which were so toe-tickling, so soul syneopating that it was misery to keep the fee, and shoulders still. The versatile artists interspersed the program which was wholly "jazz" was in particular brought music from a pump, a violin held behind his back, under his foot and every place that a violin should not be held.

Undoubtedly the second part of the program whch was wholly "jazz" was the favorite. It contained, "I Miss My Swiss," "I'm Sitting on Top of the World," "Tiger Rag," "Who," "A Little Bit of Jazz," "Nadine" with Chester Hazlett soloist "Rhythm Rag," "Ukelele Lady" with a special accompaniment by two of the artists.

The program was opened with "Mississippi" a tone journey by Ferdie Grofe containing "Father of the Waters," "Huckleberry Finn," "Old Creole Days," "Mardi Gras," "Hymn to the Sun" by Rimsky-Karsokoff followed, then "Caprice Vennois" and "Indian Dawn."

Those who were fortunate enough to hear Mr. Whiteman can readily understand why he is such a figure in the advance of music. And speaking of figures, Paul's rotundity and corporosity are well known throughout the entire world. He has strayed from the folds of symphonic endeavor, but long may his baton wave.

Great and Near Great Furnish An Eyeful For Florida Naives When Real Winter Festive Season Opens

All the Swells Appear at Miami Track to See The Horsies Run; Real Boys go Into Background As King Fun Reigns

BY HAL LEYSSHON.
Special Correspondent of The Record News.
Copyright, 1926, by The Consolidated Press Association

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23.—Personalities of 1926" is the show which is having its 'steenth annual revival in Florida this winter with many new and not-so-new personages of fame and fortune playing at the same old stands.

Real estate selling has moved back to secoond place and amusement is lacking in Florida resorts as a result of the influx of leisured spenders who demand that it be this way. Desultory acreage deals are reported, salesmen briskly herd in prospects for their sub-divisional wares and a $12,500,000 apartment house has been announced for construction but it is the tales of night clubs, race and dog tracks, golf, sailing, fishing and social affairs that one hears.

Miami Track Opens.

Most brilliant of the play time activities of the last week was the opening of the Miami race track when more celebrities was packed into the square inch than is customary even in Florida. There was Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, Mrs. Dempsey, who is celebrated as Estelle Taylor in her own movie right, Flo Ziegfeld and Billie Burke Ziegfeld, his wife, Will Rogers, O. O. McIntyre, Kin Hubbard, Gloria Swanson and her titled hubby, the Marquis De La Falaise De La Coudraye, Dudley Field Malone, James M. Cox, John Golden, Ned Wayburn and a host of others not so near the pupils eye but undoubtedly something with a big "S."

And it is hard to say who are more entertained, the celebrities or the natives who bask for the season in the sun of hearing great talk of the great buzzes around them.

Dudley Field Malone not only christens Gloria's marquis "Hank"—Americanese for Henri—but he leaps higher in the limelight by telling anxious Floridans that to import Dr. John Roach Straton is automatically to depress realty values to the pre-war status. Will Rogers "takes it all back" at a dinner which apparently has humble pie on the menu. He regrets the joshing he has given Florida in his Follies appearances, syndicated funny stuff and ad writings. He is glad that California and Florida are so far apart that a chap can attack either state, as local pride demands, and not be "called" by the other state the same day. Fornier Governor Cox thereupon forgave Will and went so far as to introduce him through "mike" to a radio audience where Will again recanted.

"Hank"—the marquis De La Falaise, etc., was too polite to discuss prohibition for he pointed out that he was the guest of America and one does not criticize one's host's taste in drinks.

Golden Sore.

John Golden is getting telegrams which indicate that his latest play "The Wisdom Tooth" will pinch out before it ever makes Broadway. He consoles himself by pointing out that it is the only play ever staged without a line of it having been read previously by the producer. For the debacle he blames Winchell Smith, as being a good playwright but a poor guesser of public whims.

The Smiths—you know them—the Mrs. of whom was Consuelo Vanderbilt before her honeymoon started, have threatened to abandon Boca Grande, a hitherto quiet little west coast resort, because they have been pestered so by newspapermen and other curious ones.

Every harbor of Florida which is developed to the extent of having good hotels within easy put-putting distance of a dingby, is swarming with yachts. Yachts are growing smaller but more numerous, it seems.

It is being whispered but not shouted that there are "vacancies" galore in hotels and apartment houses of both coasts and while the usual tourist prices are being publicly held up, it is at a sacrifice for some who did not fill up with the first major rush from the north. They are hanging on and praying.

As far down the peninsula as Miami seem nippish weather has had its days but the climate has been at normalcy lately and Kin Hubbard, daddy of Abe Martin, is going about in the sun all day trying to collect a mahogany veneer.

Eclipsing all former seasons in providing for greater comfort for the expect host, wise Florida is waiting until the gamboliers have frollcked their frill. Then when "wintering" has taken the edge off the round of activities and visitors begin itching to do business while waiting for the north to warm up, the warehouses of dotted lines will be unlocked and the real estate ballyhoo will drown out all other noises.

At least that is what they say and "they" were right last year.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The cotton market was quite active for a Saturday session the main influence being the census bureau's report on ginnings to January which showed that a total of 15,488,230 bales had been ginned to that date. As this total was considerably smaller than expected prices advanced sharply soon after the report was issued, gaining 35 to 42 points over yesterday's closing levels. This sharp bulge developed a good deal of realizing by satisfied longs and other liquidation for over the week-end and a good part of the early gain was lost, the market finally closing at net gains for the day of 20 to 21 points on near months and 11 to 14 points on more distant positions.

At the start Liverpool was hardly up to expectations and the ginnings report was not received when the call opened hence the first trade in March at 19.54 showed a gain of only one point over the previous close. The ginning total was then issued and the later months showed gains on the call of nine to 14 points. Right after the call prices advanced sharply January trading up to 20.58, March to 19.95, May to 19.36 and October to 17.93, or 35 to 42 points above the close of yesterday.

The sharp bulge brought out considerable profit taking by satisfied longs and there was also later a good deal of liquidation for over the week-end which caused prices to ease off considerably from the early highs particularly on late positions. October making a new low for the day at 17.65, or 28 points down from the highs. The near positions did not decline quite as much. The close was steady.

Exports for the day totaled only 550 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The report of the census bureau on the amount of cotton ginned prior to January 16, was below expectations and was followed by a sharp advance in the cotton market early today. Buyers evidently were supplied on the upturn, however, and after selling at 19.92 for May contracts the market reacted with that delivery closing at 19.64. The final tone was easy, although last prices still showed net gains of 11 to 17 points.

The market opened firm at an advance of six to 27 points and soon showed net gains of 29 to 44 points. March selling at 20.50 and October at 18.43. The census report, placing the ginnings prior to January 16 at 15,488,230 bales was lower than private reports recently issued and evidently disappointed recent sellers.

Considering the difference in weight it was the opinion of some in the trade that the ginnings in running bales pointed to a total for the season very close in line with December's estimate of 15,603,000 bales of 500 pounds gross. Buying on this view of the report was promoted by steadiness in Liverpool with a continuance of favorable advices from the goods trade both in Manchester and domestic markets and for a time the market showed considerable activity and strength.

Offerings increased as prices approached to 20½ cent level for March and after the initial demand had been supplied, the market eased off under local and Wall Street selling. Later prices showed reactions of 16 to 38 points from the best. Old crop positions were relatively firm on the advance but did not fully maintain their increased premium with March closing 105 points over October compared with a difference of 192 points on Friday.

Private cable advices from Liverpool said the position of spinners had improved but also reported a rumor that two thousand bales of staple cotton were being shipped out of the Liverpool stock to Boston, and that another four thousand bals would probably be shipped next week. Sales of cloths in the Fall River market for the week were estimated at 200,00 pieces, the largest business there for weeks.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Buoyancy of the high priced industrials, several of which advanced two to nearly five points, and the heaviness of the common stocks of the Rock Island and Frisco railroads, following the announcement of a plan to merger those two properties, were the contrasting features of today's stock market. Prices in general pointed upward with trading in moderate volume; the day's sales totaling 747,700 shares.

The sharp reduction in brokers loans during the past twe weeks, which undoubtedly was accelerated by the decision of the federal reserve and New York stock exchange authorities to make them public, and the easing of time money rates, had a bullish effect on speculative sentiment. U. S. Steel common was again heavily brought in the hope that directors would adopt a more liberal dividend policy at next Tuesday's meeting.

The commodity markets were mixed. Cotton rallied $1.50@2.00 a bale on short covering following the publication of the government's ginning report, but lost most of the gain on profit taking, closing quotations disclosing net gains of 11 to 17 points. Active wheat futures closed less than a cent lower. The sugar and coffee markets displayed a firm undertone.

Among the so-called "rich men's industrials" to show substantial gains on the day were, American Can, California Packing, DuPont, General Electric, Otis Elevator, Sears Roebuck, South Porto Rican Sugar, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, Westinghouse Air-brake and Woolworth.

Demand for the oil shares was stimulated by rumors of new mergers and expectations of an early increase in Mid-Continent crude prices. Atlantic Gulf and West Indies, Houston Indian Refining, Marland, Skelly, Sun and Tide Water all closed a point or more higher. Merchandising issues were in better demand as a result of the optimistic tone of the weekly mercantile reports.

Trading in the rails was restricted by the heaviness of the latest merger stocks. Frisco common closed 1⅞ lower at 99 after selling at 98½, and Rock Island common showed a net loss of 1½ at 58⅝, after fluctuating between 58, the opening price and 55½. Delaware and Hudson broke nearly four points in reflection of speculative disappointment over the failure of the latest efforts to bring about a resumption of anthracite mining. Atchison and Norfolk and Western showed independent strength.

Foreign exchanges moved within rather narrow and irregular limits with trading quiet. Demand sterling ruled around $4.85⅝ and French francs just below 3.73 cents. Japanese yen were unchanged 44⅝ cents. The weekly clearing house statement showed strong reserve position excess reserve total $26,121,930, an increase of $611,370 above that of last week. Aggregate reserve was $624,813,000. The detailed statement showed decreases of $36,621,000 in loans, discounts, and investments, $3,058,000 inreserve in federal reserve bank of member banks; $32,397,000 in net demand deposits, and $4,810,000 in time deposits. Cash in own vaults showed a gain of $1,308,000.

KANSAS CITY CASH GRAIN.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Wheat: No. 2 hard, $1.72@1.82; No. 3 red, $1.84⅛@1.86; May $1.64⅜; July $1.40⅝.

Corn: No. 3 white, 74@74c; No. 2 yellow, 76@77c; No. 3 mixed 74⅛@75½c; May 79⅝c; July 85⅛@85¼c; September 85c.

Oats: No. 2 white, 43¾@44⅝c; No. 3 white, 43@43½c.

CHICAGO CASH GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Wheat: No. 2 hard, $1.78.

Corn: No. 3 mixed, 74c; No. 4 yellow, 74@75c.

Oats: No. 2 white, 42@42¼c; No. 3 white, 41⅝@42c.

FORT WORTH CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—No changes were apparent in the Fort Worth cash grain market Saturday, cash premiums for good wheat remaining at usual levels, with other grains showing no increase in demand. Receipts Friday here were only 66 cars, but the total for the week was high.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Enlarged shipments from south of the equator together with a halt in export business from North America brought speculative buying of wheat nearby to a stand-still here today. As a result wheat prices gave May 2¾c a bushel, but subsequently rallied. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ⅝ to ¾c net lower. May (new) $1.70⅝ to $1.70⅝ and July $1.48 to $1.48⅛, corn finished ⅛ to ¼c off, oats a shade to ¼c down, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 12c, corn and oats showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure, and held within narrow limits.

Profit taking sales eased down the provision market after an advance due to higher quotations on hogs.

Cook Applies For Highest Honor

Gordon Cook made application for an Eagle Scout badge, the highest honor in the organization of Boy Scouts, at the January court of honor held Friday night at the First Christian church. The following boys were promoted to second class: Troop twelve, Harold Dawson; troop four, Maynard Creighton, Bob Crocker, Lloyd Holmgren, James Cole and Gordon Ellis; first class, Bill Kay and Elbert Childers.

Scoutmasters of the various troops performed some stunts, Winslow Beckham read the class prophecy, and John Tevis gave the valedictorian address, the close of the scoutmasters' training school.

TO MOVE PATIENTS

One hundred women patients in the Wichita Falls state hospital will be removed into the dormintory recently made vacant when the male occupants were removed to the new structure which was recently completed. The women's ward which has been crowded will be relieved by the move, it was said.

Troops on Move as Civil War Is Renewed in China

China is again being shaken with warfare, with indications that a decisive struggle between the rival generals, Chang Tso-lin and Feng Yu-Hsiang, long at loggerheads, is impending. At present the odds favor Chang, who recovered from serious setbacks to triumph over forces of Kuo Sung-lin. Photo shows a unit of Chang's army on the move.

Life In Pen Is Jury's Edict To One Who Might Have Ruled All Mexico

By A. HALLMAN
Record News Staff

A Mexican general with no more convincing an oath at his command than the legitimate American "shucks," whose tongue does not slip even once to the conventional "damn" or "caramba," a revolutionary leader from the southern republic who sheds tears unhesitatingly at a reunion with children he has not seen in fourteen years, a soldier who pleads for a pardon for the man that betrayed him and cut short what looked like a destined rise to Chapultepec Castle and the highest office of the Mexican nation, only to give in return a 99-year sentence in a Texas prison.

A paradox you say, you whose picture of a Mexican general is a likeness of Pancho Villa or a vengeful-eyed, black moustached Zapatista.

No, a fact.

Listen: In the Texas state penitentiary at Huntsville there is assigned to the auditor's office in a position of high responsibility one Jose M. Rangel (pronunced Ran-hel). He has been there a full twelve years, since the latter part of 1913 when he received a 99-year sentence at the hands of a court in San Antonio in connection with the slaying of Candelerio Artiz, a deputy sheriff of Dimmitt county, earlier in the year. Rangel's hair is gray, his steps falter a bit, one arm is stiff from bullet wounds received in the days of his youth—he is sixty years old and shows every day of it.

Given Furlough.

In the early part of December of last year Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, signing her thousand-and-something-th act of clemency, gave this man a 20-day furlough to spend the Christmas holidays with his children. Twenty days of freedom is not so much to give a man of whom justice in the guise of twelve strangers in a jury box has exacted 99 years confinement behind prison bars. So the lawyer that sought the furlough argued that and this, that Rangel's sentence was the product of international complications and the furor of the Texas borderland in 1913, rather than the sane and normal judgment of twelve men on the error of fellow.

The furlough was granted and Rangel left the prison, a free man for twenty days. His wife, the mother of his children, was long since dead. There were left just Consuelo, an unmarried daughter; Beatrice, who lived with her husband and two little girls in Fort Worth; Arturo, a son and the youngest of all the children, employed at Fort Worth; and Abelardo, a son in the ranks of the United States air service at Kelly Field, San Antonio.

At Beatrice's home, 2610 Refugio street, Fort Worth, the reunion took place. Rangel had not seen Beatrice in fourteen years, not since she was a little girl, seven years old, living in a convent at Waco. Neither in that time had he seen Arturo, who had been even smaller then. Consuelo and Abelardo, though, had visited him once during his stay at Huntsville. This man, whose word had once sent men to battle, cried like a baby. "Mi hijoe—so good, so good, to see you again!"

They All Cry.

Consuelo and Beatrice cried, too, and tears streamed down youthful Arturo's face as he saw again the father that had come to mean little more than a memory to him. Two little girls, ninitas, aged 3 and 4, looked on wonderingly. They had never seen this man, their grandfather.

There were reporters from Fort Worth newspapers near. To these Rangel turned and said in a faltering English, broken with Spanish words that more nearly expressed his emotions, "I didn't want to come back to my children like this. I wanted to come back to spend the few years I have left of life a free man. I have paid the penalty—!"

To a representative of the Record News shortly after, Rangel told his story, the story of as strange a life as it is given most men to experience in this modern day, the story of flaming patriotism, of fighting, long exile, secret missions, leadership, betrayal, and the ignominy of criminal conviction and a prison sentence.

Rangel was born in 1865 in the Mexican state of Guuanajuato, lying between the cities of Queretero and San Luis Potosi, in the midst of the foment that attended the emperor Maximilian's brief reign. He was educated at the normal school of Guanajuato, finishing school only to join the army and ultimately become a rabid anti-Porfirista as the enemies of the then president of Mexico, Porfirio Dias, were known. This enmity soon won him exile and he came to Texas, where in 1895 he married the daughter of another anti-Porforista. Secret activity in the United States engaged him for several years, but in 1907 while heading a band of insurrectionists near San Luis Potosi he was captured and confined for a while in the federal penitentiary at Mexico City.

The miscarriage of the plans of the anti-Porfiristas and the assumption of the presidency by Francisco Madero upon the resignation of Dias was a hard blow to Mexico's labor party, whom Rangel represented. The Huerta coup made the matter only worse and early in 1912 Rangel was making preparations to take command of a large body of men just across the Rio Grande near Piedras Negras.

He joined twenty men, among whom was an American soldier of fortune by the name of Smith, near Hondo in South Texas and started out with them and a large store of arms and ammunition which they carried for the border. They were fired upon by American officers and one of their men, a sentinel killed. An American deputy, Ortiz, was captured, however, and General Rangel kept him prisoner rather than, as he said a few days ago, give him his liberty and allow him to inform the Huerta factionists as to his strength and plans. The prisoner was delegated to a young Mexican who came to Rangel shortly afterwards and told him that he had been killed while trying to escape.

"I told him that one act would cost us dear," comments Rangel. "He shrugged his shoulders and said that it could not be undone. I was right. When we were almost within sight of the Rio Grande an armed posse caught up with us and opened fire. I would not let my men return the volley but fastened a white handkerchief to my gun barrel and surrendered."

He Deserts.

Rangel's capture had come about in a peculiar way. The American soldier of fortune, fearing the consequences of the shooting of Ortiz had the night before deserted the Mexican band. The posse had found him in a deserted shack and recognizing him as one of the party, obtained from him by some means or other information as to Rangel's whereabouts. This enabled them to find the little band of Mexicans in the vast wilderness which stretches between San Antonio and the Rio Grande.

Rangel and his band were taken to San Antonio, charged with murder and given sentences ranging from five, ten and fifteen years, to 99 years each for himself and the American deserter.

That was the end of the general's revolutionary days. He was nearly 50 then and pardon or parole would have to come soon or he would die in prison. At Huntsville he is said to have made a most remarkable record. He was soon accorded the status of "trusty," and now has duties in the auditor's office entailing considerable responsibility.

But "trusty" even is small return for liberty and a home at Chapultepec Castle, traditional residence of the lends of the Mexican nation, who, ex-officio, so to speak—and it is not straining logic far—are those who win the republic's revolutions.

"Would you have been president of Mexico if your revolution had succeeded?" Rangel was asked.

The answer was typically Mexican. A shrug of the shoulders, upturned palms, and "Quien Sabe?" (Who knows?)

"That would have depended on the will of the people," he says. "I had a large following. Who knows?"

Holds No Malice.

Rangel is strangely magnanimous toward Porfirio Dias, by whom he was exiled from his native land. "For "Dias," he says, "I have the utmost respect. But he was not president of Mexico—he was king, emperor. Elections meant nothing. Dias always saw to it that an overwhelming majority was returned in his favor. The will of the people did not prevail. Big buisness was helped but the poor were left to their own resources." Rangel tells an anecdote of Dias that may be new: "In 1883 in the interim between his first and second terms as president of Mexico, Dias visited New York City, while there calling upon Sebastian Lerdo de Tejado, from whose hands Dias had in the first place wrested his position of president of the republic by a military coup usual to a change in Mexican chief executives. Lerdo, always proud but reduced to servantless circumstances in his exile, opened the door himself. The sight of Porfirio enraged him, though, and he slammed it in Dias's face. Rangel chuckles over the story, for Lerdo always retained a big following in Mexico even in his exile. Dias afterwards repaid the insult of the slammed door by bringing Lerdo's body back to Mexico after his death and according it an extremely ceremonious and elaborate burial. "There was a method in his madness," Rangel comments on this. "It made friends of many who had been lifelong enemies."

For the American that betrayed him Rangel has only magnanimity, too. "Censure him?" he asks. "No. Most of us would do the same. He thought he saw freedom for himself in his action. It was only irony that he went to prison with me."

"I hope to be free some day," he told the writer as he left. "There aren't many years of life left to me. I'm an old man."

He extended his right hand. "Come to see me some time, I'll be at Huntsville again after the first of the year."

And that is that for a man who might have risen to Chapultepec.

J. A. KEMP HEADS 'SAFE FARMERS'

Wichita Falls Man Elected Permanent President Of Texas Association

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Organization of the Texas Safe Farming association was effected here Saturday. J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls, was unanimously elected permanent president and chairman of the executive committee. This committee is composed of Nathan Adams, Dallas; Ed Woodall, Dalias; R. E. Harding, Fort Worth; T. J. Caldwell, Houston, and F. H. Welch, Taylor.

The purpose of the new organization was stated as two-fold:

To persuade Texas farmers to raise more feed on more acres and to raise better cotton on fewer acres.

The organization has a board of directors composed of about 100 men, most of whom have accepted office.

WHO BELLED

be would depart without making a speech unless he was given the privilege of removing the fragments of the bell and scorching the tail of the invisible cat.

Gets Permission.

Permission was granted and Dan, the red-headed, paid his respects to the klan as a law enforcement agency in musical language that is said to have delighted those in the audience who did not believe in the belling of the cat and made stony the hearts of those who did and who were going to enjoy the festivity of the function.

It is the duty of an American to contribute to the gaiety of his fellows. Dan contributed. Publicity? Yes. In all the newspapers, daily and weekly. There were many outsiders in the city at the time that the belling did not bell. Dr. Hi Evans of Atlanta and his retinue was there on private business. Of course, Dr. Hi's visit had nothing to do with politics.

Farmer Jim was in the city. He was there on business. Politics? Why he scorned to talk politics on Sunday. Lynch Davidson was there. He did not make a speech. After the play was over Lynch shook hands with Dan. It is most interesting to say the least.

Lynch denounced the klan early in the game. Farmer Jim denounced the klan early in the game. Dan as district attorney placed seven klan leaders of his own county behind prison bars. He denounced the klan in those by-gone days and he reiterated from the rostrum on this very interesting occasion when pious women, all for law enforcement, mind you, fixed up the papers of adoption in a gathering that was to be non-political, to relieve him of his orphan state in the Bayou city with Dr. Hi of Atlanta within speaking distance of the auditorium.

The open season for the payment of poll taxes will close on the last day of this month. Farmer Jim and his Forum predicts the payments of 1,250,000 poll taxes with exemptions included. After the books have been closed the old slogan, "On with the battle," may be heard in Texas. But back to the foreword. Who planned the belling of the cat, and who is responsible for the fiasco?

HOME-SEEKERS NEWS

The Pride Of The Realtor

The pride of the Realtor is his city. Wichita Falls is often termed "The City of Beautiful Homes".

In advancing the interest of this community he has advanced the interests of all its members. He has furnished their homes and managed their Real Estate.

Through cooperation with his brother Realtors he has contributed his best knowledge and experience to those who have needed it.

When you are confronted with a real estate problem, remember the service which a realtor offers you—A service based on a rigid code of ethics formulated by the national association of real estate boards for the protection of the public from unscrupulous real estate dealers.

Wichita Falls will continue to grow and the Realtor will continue to aid its growth. He will render the same sincere, conscientious service, at all times safe-guarding the interests of those who seek his aid.

Real Estate Values Are Increasing

One hundred years ago, Fifth Avenue, New York City, was a cow path; today it is the greatest and most valuable street in the world. There is no use telling the average American how real estate values grow. Mothers bringing children into the world, give real estate its value.

Some property in Denver, Colo., which is now worth many millions of dollars, was traded with $25.00 in return for a horse, saddle and bridle.

The territory which comprises the State of Pennsylvania was granted to Wm. Penn in payment of a personal debt of $16,000.

Real Estate values are increasing and will always increase. When in the market for Real Estate, find out if your agent is a Realtor.

The Bible and Booze To Be National Political Questions Next, Claim

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—The campaign against teaching evolution in American schools did not end with the death of William Jennings Bryan and the entrance of Professor Scopes into Chicago university as a graduate student, according to Maynard Shipley, president of the Science League of America which has its headquarters in San Francisco.

The fundamentalists fight to eliminate Darwinism from the schools really began with Bryan's death, Shipley states and the other and fundamentalist pamphleits, periodicals and books now are carrying more anti-evolution propaganda than ever before. The fight is hotter now than even during the famous Tennessee trial, he declares, despite the fact that it is not getting front page publicity.

Mr. Shipley, who puts a Dawes spirit into his crusade against what he terms "religious bigotry and obscurantism" spends his idle moments writing books. His offerings to his publishers during the last few months indicate his Catholicity of mind. "How to teach yourself to play the piano," "Elementaries of Physics and "The Wonders of Radium" are the titles of some of his books.

Two New Schools

Summarizing the information he has secured from sources close to both sides of the controversy, Mr. Shipley says the fundamentalists are planning to erect two big universities which will not teach evolution, one in Florida and the others near Chicago. The fundamentalists, he says, are carrying on an active organization campaign in virtually every state of the union with the object of securing state anti-evolution laws at the 1926 legislative sessions in 43 states, raising millions for press and radio publicity, conducting a lobby at Washington to influence legislation and turning thousands of religious groups into anti-evolution organizations.

Mr. Shipley declares that only two issues will interest voters next year, one is the Bible and the other is prohibition and he says in relation to the former, active evolution anti-evolutionists outnumber proponents more than ten to one.

Though no state is free form an evolution controversy Mr. Shipley believes the fight is keenest on the west coast. Oregon fundamentalists are conducting such a spirited campaign that evolutionists there have sent an earnest SOS for ammunition to offset effects in the campaign.

In California fundamentalists are preparing to submit the question to voters through the initiative and referendum and a bill is to be introduced into the legislature at this session requiring every school to have a Bible in the library and every teacher to have one in his or her home. The campaign here has been conducted not only through the radio and the press but also in tents like old fashioned camp meetings with the appeal of the circus.

Jesus Revived

Professor Joseph McCabe who has been debating with leading fundamentalists of the country is reviving the issues here this week end and next Tuesday night he will debate the worth of the evolution theory against the local champion of the fundamentalists, the Rev. A. L. Baker, adventist editor.

While the proponents of evolution are quiet and tolerant, declares Shipley, fundamentalists are "thoroughly organized, devoted, self-sacrificing and zealous" and with the motto that "scientists so-called" are "trampling God's word under foot," they threaten to carry the nation by storm.

Fundamentalists and evolutionists here both state that the direction of the movement depends upon the final Scopes verdict. If the conviction is not upheld, a fight will be made for a constitutional amendment to prevent the teaching of evolution.

That a merry fight is approaching is indicated by the latest enrollment of the Science League during the last two weeks.

$255,440 IN FARM BILL TO FIGHT SOUTHERN PESTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—An appropriation of $255,440, for the study of southern crop insect pests is carried in the annual agriculture appropriation bill reported today to the house. The amount is the same as that available in the last appropriation bill, but is $20,4440 more than was estimated to be necessary for this purpose in the budget.

"No new methods for controlling the boll weevil have been developed, the sub-committee which drafted the measure reported, but added that experiments and investigations will continue.

Camp Fire Girls To Stress Beauty In National Week

Every since March, 1916, Camp Fire Girls have been celebrating the anniversary of first birthday of Camp Fire Girls, March 17, 1912, with some special program carried out simultaneously throughout the country where the glow of Camp Fire burned. During war days service programs, such as making baby kits for Belgian babies, adopting French orphans, collecting clothes for Russian refugees, and contributing to Anna Pavlowa's Paris home for Russian orphans compromised the work. For the last few years, however, the type of service has changed to something less spectacular. In 1924 music and better singing was emphasized. 1925 emphasized the home, girls taking charge of households and relieving mothers for a week.

This year the first law of Camp Fire, "Seek Beauty," will be emphasized, with the slogan "Beautify your own corner." The raising of standards of beauty in personal possessions and in recognizing beauty around them will be the aim of the contest. National headquarters is offering a prize for best articles of 200 words on the following subjects: "How I beautified my room or the corner of the house I call mine." "My most beautiful possession and why." "Where I discovered beauty." "When beauty surprised me."

Temskatawa Plans On Saturday Hike

The Temskatawa group of Camp Fire Girls met for a business and social meeting at home of two of members, Laura and Fannie Godfrey, 1816 Tenth street, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. T. N. Colligan, guardian, explained "Seek Beauty" contest to be held in connection with Camp Fire birthday this year. Members were invited to hear Mrs. Morgan, of Morgan Seed & Floral company, at Camp Fire headquarters Thursday afternoon, at 4 o'clock. Plans for a hike, Saturday, Jan. 30 were made. Those present were: Mildred Robinson, Virginia and Burton Wilson, Kathleen Colligan, Mary Hyatt, Edith Long, Dorothy Lee Taylor, Marion Proctor, Marjorie Dalton, Mary Lou Johnston, Mrs. Colligan, Mrs. Frank Jones, who is to take assistant guardianship of new group being formed out of Temskatawa overflow membership, and the hostesses, Fannie and Laura May Godfrey.

Packard Will Answer Burbank's Religion In Sunday Evening Sermon

An address which will doubtless attract wide attention will be delivered Sunday night at Highland Heights Chirstian church by Dr. Paul Henry Packard, evangelist, on the subject, "Is Burbank Right?" or "The Religion of the future."

The sermon will be an answer to the article appearing in Saturday morning's paper, giving Luther Burbank's position on the resurrection, immortality and the incarnation. As Dr. Packard's custom is, he will deal frankly on the weaknesses of some of the religions of the world and show the nature of that faith which he says will some day become a world religion.

Dr. Packard believes that some religions are tottering to their doom; that others have failed man in his hour of greatest need, but he also contends there is a faith which will answer every cry of humanity and satisfy every longing of his heart. He delivered a sermon a few weeks ago on "Is Rabbi Wise Right?" which was declared by those who heard it to have been a classic and the address tomorrow night will be of the same fair, logical, intelligent dealing with a vital question. The service will begin at 7:30. The Highland Heights congregation is worshipping temporarily in a large tabernacle on Avenue H opposite Junior college.

TAX STATIONS OPEN MONDAY

Polls Payments Reach a Total of $9,750 Saturday

Five sub-stations for the purpose of collecting poll taxes are to be operated beginning Monday morning through midnight of January 30, according to Guy C. Raley, county tax collector. The stations will be located at each bank in the city and at the Labor Temple.

At the close of business Saturday, 9,750 poll tax and exemption receipts had been issued at the county collector's office. Exemption certificates numbered nearly 1,000. As the voting strength of the county during election year is calculated now at around 19,000 or 19,500, all of which must either procure exemption certificates or pay poll tax, it is estimated that approximately half of the county's voting population will pay during the next week.

In addition to the stations in the business district pool taxes may be paid at the court house as usual, and at the sub-station in Burkburnett and and at Electra.

1. What is the best way to cook potatoes for children?

Answer:

The best way is to bake them; if possible serve baked potatoes at least three or four times a week. Even a ten months old baby can have potatoes.

A well baked potato is not only more digestible than other kinds, but it contains all of the food value in the potato, since there is no way for any of it to escape. It is well to eat the skin of the potato, if baked. If you want your baked potatoes to be mealy, break the skin a little, or pierce them with a fork when taking them from the oven.

Next best are steamed potatoes; also if you will boil potatoes with the skins on, you will save much valuable material which you would otherwise lose in the water.

The one kind of potatoes children never should have, is fried potatoes. It takes three times as long to digest fried potatoes as baked or boiled ones. Is that not reason enough for not serving fried potatoes?

Rigid Traffic Law Enforcement Will Be Started Here

Fines of from $10 to $50 are to supplant those of $5 and $10 for violators of city traffic laws, Police Commissioner Frank Queisser has declared. With the installation of new "stop" signs at 16 important intersections, police are to open a much more rigid campaign of traffic enforcement.

Motorists driving against red traffic lights; motorists driving past the stationary stop signs without coming to a full stop; motorists making left hand turns at prohibited corners; motorists turning left or driving straight across a street through an alley will all be liable to prosecution and fine

Traffic signs recently installed are now doing duty at the following corners:

Seventh and Burnett, Eighth and Travis, Eighth and Austin, Eighth and Burnett, Eighth and Brook, Ninth and Austin, Ninth and Burnett, Tenth and Travis, Tenth and Austin, Tenth and Burnett, Tenth and Van Buren, Tenth and Grant, Eleventh and Scott, Eleventh and Lamar, Eleventh and Burnett.

MARTIN BARS BABES IN COURT

Judge Rules Wife and Children Can't Sit With Defendant

Denial of the privelege of wife and children of a defendant to sit by his side during trial was made by Judge P. A. Martin in the 89th district court Saturday afternoon when he refused to allow Mrs. O. C. Smith and two infant children the right to sit in a chair by the side of her husband during either the giving of testimony or argument of attorneys. Smith is on trial in a criminal assault case which has been under way the past two days.

During the early part of the trial and throughout the first trial a week ago Mrs. Smith had stayed at her husband's side. Judge Martin, in making his ruling Saturday said she might remain in the court room but not inside the bar.

Refers to Russell.

Judge Martin stated that an incident in Judge H. R. Wilson's court last Tuesday whena prisoner on trial had in some manner been smuggled a gun which he afterwards used in breaking jail had led to his making the ruling for his court. He stated that while it had been made with reference only to this one case, he would probably invoke it at future trials also. Judge Martin's reference was, of course, to R. J. Russell, tried early in the week on two counts of highway robbery Throughout Russell's two trials Mrs Russell sat by her husband's side, the two taking turns in holding a small child. Within a few hours after the conclusion of the second trial he held up deputies at the county jail with a gun and obtained his freedom.

W. J. Beckham is in Trent for the week-end visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Beckham.

Joel Edward, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel H. MacGregor, is reported improving from an illness of influenza.

Mrs. M. Gaffney, who was injured Wednesday night when she was struck by an automobile is reported to be restitng well in a local hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Shaffer of Electra were in Wichita Falls Saturday, Mrs. Shaffer having come over to have a tonsilar operation performed.

Al Ellis, Otto Stehlik, George Lawler, Lee Joiner and George Harben will return today from Olney where they put on the Royal Arch and council work for the Olney chapter Saturday night.

Valley View Runs Third School Truck

The third truck for the transportation of pupils residing in the Valley View district of Wichita county has been installed and is in operation now, according to County Superintendent Burl Bryant. Out of an approximate enrolment of about 200 pupils, something like 135 of them are carried to and from the school by means of the trucks, according to Mr. Bryant.

The new truck at Valley View gives the county eleven now, he says, Iowa Park having just added the tenth a day or so ago.

WOMAN IS FOUND

Mrs. Willie Bess Stanley, former resident of this city, is at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. R. McInnis in Waco, according to information received Saturday. Mrs. Stanley was reported to have disappeared here April 9, 1925, and foul play was believed to have been her lot after her disappearance.

GAS COMPANIES TO RAISE RATES ON STATE PLANTS

AUSTIN, Jan. 223.—(AP)—Notice of north Texas natural gas distributing compani that rates for several state eleemosynary institutions soon will be advanced from 17 to 50 cents a thousand cubic feet is engaging attention of Dr. H. H. Harrington, chairman of the state board of control. He said today he would confer with Attorney General Dan Moody to ascertain if such an increase would not be violation of the anti-trust laws, as the gas companies do not propose to make similar advances in rates to individual consumers.

Weddings and Parties Keep Social Circles Active Here

Peggy Piedmont Tells Kitty

—the cooking school
—cloud dancing
—a morning musical
—Stratton-Porter

Jan. 23, 1925.

DEAR KITTY:

With the opening Monday afternoon of the cooking school at the Kemp hotel, my telephone already ringing and matrons asking all about it, intermingled with other calls about what is scheduled in the way of parties on every day for the next two weeks, me thinks, friend o' mine, that we are going to be a busy lot, with our interests much diversified.

Sunday school class parties have occupied important places on the social stage, several of them taking the form of elaborate luncheons while others were delightful evening affairs.

But as has been the usual schedule this season, it remained for Saturday afternoon to furnish the date for one of the most charming parties of the week, when Mabel Bundy, entertained with a bridge and shower for a winsome bride, Mrs. Gage McDermott, who before her marriage was Katherine Hopper, a popular member of the younger set.

* * *

AND then dancing has also been a popular form of diversion lately, with one of the most delightful ones given on Friday evening at the Country club for the members and their friends. Every indication points to this being a dancing season, both on and off the stage for that matter, and I heard recently that everybody who dances (who already didn't know how) becomes enthused over learning "The Charleston" and they declare it is just lots of fun.

If you ask me what's the latest, I would answer without hesitation, "Cloud Dancing." The women members of London't new Light Airplane club have decided that their enthusiasm for flying is not to interfere with their interest in dancing, with this end in view the first social function in connection with the recently organized club was an inaugural dance during the holidays at the Suffolk galleries.

Mrs. Sophie Elliot Lynn, the first woman to gain her license and an enthusiastic disciple of civil aviation for both sexes, is the organizer of the party, Sir Philip Sassoon, M. P., is the patron, and profits will be devoted to furnishings for the Pioneer Aero clubhouse of England.

"FLOATING Among the Clouds," a waltz, and "Throbs and Thrills" a one-step were among the pieces written especially for the occasion.

An affair of this week being looked forward to with enthusiasm by guests with a literary turn of mind, is the evening at the Country club on Tuesday, when Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Silk and Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Martin are presenting two Texas poets, Norman H. Crowell and his wife, Grace Noll Crowell. While it is not such an uncommon occurence to find one artist or unusually talented person in a family, it certainly is exceedingly unusual to find two, and especially of the "same turn of mind." Mr. Crowell is described as a poet whose verse runs along humorous lines, while his wife writes in a more serious vein. Her recent book, "White Fire," is considered one of the best books of verse published this year and is being received in both America and Europe. Both poets are members of the Poetry Society of Texas, and of course are dear to the hearts of Texans, and to Wichitans especially where they formerly made their home.

On Wednesday morning, another treat is in store for those privileged to go, and that is the "Musical Morning" at the home of Mrs. J. G. Fain, when members of the Woman's Choral club are entertaining, each one asking a guest. And then again probably the largest affair of the week will be on Saturday, when Mrs. J. W. DuVal is entertaining at the Kemp hotel with a Japanese tea party. This is expected not only to be one of the most elaborate affairs of the week, but of the entire winter season. And it will certainly be different from any of the recent parties. For everyone is asked to be there at "one time," and the time is 3 o'clock. So everybody will certainly see everybody and the event is sure to be a social success.

BUT returning to literary folks, poets and authors, you probably like myself didn't know that one of the most popular women of the literary world was the late Gene Stratton-Porter, who is said by many critics to have been the most popular of modern novelists. Over fifty million readers in America alone, not counting the thousands who read her stories in translations, is the remarkable record of success left by her.

At the time of her sudden and tragic death it is said that her publishers had sold over 10,000,000 copies of her stories. They estimated that for the past seventeen years, seven days a week, her books have sold an average of one thousand, seven hundred copies a day. If placed end on end her novels would form a continuous book, 1,100 miles long, as far as from Philadelphia to New Orleans, and if piled one on top of another, they would reach a height of 1,250,000 feet, or 1,666 times the height of the Woolworth building. The fantastic figures do not take into account the books in Spanish, Czecho-Slovakian, Danish, Norwegian, Swedish, Dutch, German and even Arabic.

It is said that no one was more surprised by this phenomenal success than Mrs. Porter herself. About twenty years ago she began to write stories about the swamps and forests of Indiana, the Limberlost country which she knew and loved, hoping to carry a breath of the outdoors to a few people who did not know its delights, and through her romances of the open, to interest a few readers in the birds and flowers and wild shy inhabitants of the woods.

SHE was never a nature fakir. "All the natural history I ever have incorporated in a book has been the result of personal investigation," she said, "clean, straight stuff, scientifically verified in every instance. And all the characters that I have ever incorporated in a book I have tried sincerely to use in the workout of recognized and high principles of conduct."

But I must hurry up now and put on my hat and go, for I see somebody coming in and I can tell by the look of their face that they want to ask me questions about the cooking school. So the cinema hit, "The Vanishing American," has nothing on——

Miss Bundy Entertains With Shower Saturday For Mrs. Gage M. Dermott

Complimenting Mrs. Gage McDermett, who before her marriage recently was Miss Katherine Hopper, Miss Mabel Bundy entertained with a lovely shower at the Country club Saturday afternoon.

The reception suite at the club was beautifully decorated for the occasion in flowers and greenery carrying a dainty color scheme in the pastel shades, the score pads, pencils and other accessories for the games further emphasizing the note. The card tables, arranged in the dining room, were centered with plates formed like pink roses holding home-made candies, while from the handles hung miniature wedding bells. A special chair was arranged for the bride, which was prettily decorated in blossoms and white fluffy tulle.

Bridge the Diversion.

Bridge furnished the diversion in which the high score favor was a dainty taffeta telephone screen; the low score, a hand-embroidered towel and the guest favor a pair hand-painted candle holders.

A shower of beautiful gifts was presented the honoree which was inclosed in a large box decorated with pink and white colors and wedding bells. The presentation was made by little Miss Elizabeth Huff.

Those Attending.

Wales' "Bride-to-Be" Can Bake and Spin

LONDON, Jan. 23.—A hundred years ago Britain was clearing up the wreckage wrought by the ambitions of its greatest enemy in five centuries, Napoleon Bonaparte. Now it is joyfully reading the news that its crown prince is going to wed a descendant of one of Napoleon's lesser generals.

A hundred years ago the marriage of a British crown prince with a little known Swedish princess of royal blood of short standing would have been considered madness. Today, with monarchies in decline, and the princesses eligible by religion to be bride of the Prince of Wales few, there is no alternative.

The prince, after showing a preference for flappers on his extensive globe-trotting, is now, it seems, about to wed an old-fashioned home girl. That is the description of Princess Astrid given by intimates. From her mother, Princess Ingeborg, a niece of the late Queen Alexander of England, she has learned all the domestic accomplishments and, what she has not been able to pick up at home, she has acquired through domestic science and nursing instruction in the excellent schools of Stockholm. Last spring she took a regular course in the care of babies at the Foundlings' Home in Stockholm, and this fall she and her older sister, Martha, attended a course in cooking at the house-keeping school of Mrs. Jenny Akerstrom-Soderstrom. Like a regular Cinderella she there learned to peel apples and potatoes, bake, sweep and wash dishes, as well as calculate calories and mix salad dressing.

Lives Out-of-Door Life.

In society circles in Stockholm Astrid has the reputation of feeling happiest at home. There survives the old tradition that after the evening meal the family gathers about the reading lamp, and while some one reads aloud the women folk either sew or embroider or knit or crochet.

Astrid is fond of out-of-door life. In Stockholm parks she may be seen on skis at almost any time in winter, usually with her younger brother as a pacemaker. At other times she and her sister may be found out for a brisk walk with their mother or on a morning horseback canter with their father. In summer the girls play tennis; they can handle a motor car in traffic and a catboat on the inland waters of the beautiful Stockholm skerries when the water is not too rough.

This is the way Princess Ingeborg, who married Prince Carl, younger brother of King Gustav, has brought up her own daughters. Originally there were three of them, but the oldest, Princess Margaretha, already has married Prince Axel of Denmark.

The second daughter, who last winter was rumored as the future bride of the Prince of Wales, is Princess Martha, who was born in 1901 and therefore 24 years old. Prince Astrid is the next, and she was born on Nov. 17, 1905. Her full name is Astrid Sophia Thyra.

There is a boy, Carl Gustav Oscar Frederick Christian, who is close to 15.

Prince Loves Her, 'Tis Said.

The father, Prince Carl, is not only a general in the Swedish army, occupying the post of inspector of cavalry, but he is also the active head of the Red Cross in Swecien and the honorary president of the International Red Cross of Geneva.

The Prince of Wales is now 31. Not for hundreds of years has the heir to the British throne reached this age without a wife, and if this condition has not bothered him, as his intimates declare to be the case, it has worked just the other way with the British people.

Most British girls believed at some time to be on the verge of marriage with Wales found mates elsewhere. This, with the collapse of hopeful enthusiasm which surrounded the visits of princesses of Spain, Belgium, Italy and Roumania to England, made many people believe the story that the prince had declared he would never marry.

It is authoritatively learned that Wales several years ago informe. his family that he did not wish to marry until he had completed tours over the empire and that he would not take a bride unless he loved her. Now, it is said, he is ready; and it is declared he has more than a cousinly feeling for Astrid.

The princess is known and loved by the British reigning family and it is asserted that when she pays an official visit to London next spring there will be a royal announcement that his royal highness has at last found a Princess Wales-tobe.

A view of Princess Astrid in her home in Stockholm. She is sewing with her sister, Princess Martha (right), while their brother, Carl, reads to them.

! FASHIONS !

BY AILEEN LAMONT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The long and short of the fashion story so far as coats are concerned may be told by tow garments, the cape coat and the camels hair coat. The former is specially adaptable for tall women. It is usually of English tweed with a cape which falls to the waistline in the back and does not appear in front at all. The cales hair coat is better suited to short women and has sufficient weight and flare to make its skirts swing gracefully with movements of the wearer. Both are fairly expensive at present.

Black on Gold.

The ordinary millinery procedure is entirely reversed in one of the new hats just brought to this side of the Atlantic by a film favorite. Instead of having gilt leather imposed on felt, this has a background of gold kid over which is patterned blac. felt in cut-out designs with a sworl of tight black cock feathers over the right ear.

High Insteps and High Prices.

Shoes cost no more than they did a year ago but footwear bills are higher. The answer is buckles. Black or blond shoes still continue fashionable but few of them are unadorned. The majority have buckles of enamel, rhinestones, cut steel, jet or onyx. These buckle sets frequently cost from $15 to $50. The buckles lend an appearance of aristocratic height to any instep.

Clean Hands.

Many a feminine plaintiff, especially in divorce actions, fails to come before the court with clean hands but at least she may have clean gloves. The glove to be fashionable today must be readily cleansed. In the present era of soft coal smoke no white glove lasts more than an hour or two and consequently the washable leathers and fabrics are almost universally chosen for hand coverings.

Spring Fashion Forecast:—
BLACK SATIN

The Frock of the Hour Is of Black Satin

A fashionable infringement upon the season's general call for color.

Despite Dame Fashion's decree for high colors and brilliant prints in smartest Spring apparel, she smiles benignly upon black satin for afternoon or informal dinner wear.

Hattie Carnegie creates frocks of black satin featuring the hip bow-tie, the mannish high collar, perhaps smart pleatings about the skirt—and a new note is the fringe of crystal dew drops she suspends from sheerest beige georgette sleeve puffs, or hemline.

THE Black Satin Coat

Smart for day wear—lovely at night. Lined with soft cashmira of cocoa shade, piped in gold. The collar is of cocoa dyed squirrel, a narrow band of satin crossing the fur at the back of the collar and extending down to center back.

Hats Use Black Satin

If the hat is not fashioned of black satin, the shining fabric is the chief decorative note on recent arrivals.

A large model of black manila boasts a huge black satin bow.

New Nash Model Draws Attention At Show Room

An exhibit that is attracting pronounced local interest is the new Nash with the new "enclosed car" motor being shown at the salesroom of Nash-King Motor Co. It was initially introduced at the New York Motor show and proved to be an outstanding attraction. The reason for the discussion centering around this engineering development is the fact that Nash has here approached and solved the problem of providing power, speed, acceleration, quietness, and long life in a passenger car engine from a standpoint entirely new to the industry. In fact Nash engineers have reversed precedent in seeking to improve upon the performance standards of today.

A Motor Speciality.

Nash has engineered a motor specially for the requirements of enclosed models. In fact, instead of building the perforamnce abilities of the motor up to the lighest car of the line, Nash has created a motor to power he heaviest model and to give that model the kind and calibre of live, alert, powerful performance that his hitherto been linked only with the open car.

In the first place this new Nash "enclosed car" motor is bigger, with greater power development. Measured in relative terms there is approximately a 25 per cent increase in this point alone. Yet so expertly has the motor been designed that despite the increase in power and speed there is such economy in the consumption of fuel that the mileage per gallon remains at its old low level.

Thus in al lthose factors so close to the owner's heart—smoothness, quietness and responsiveness clear through an ample speed and power range—Nash has struck a wonderful new note in performance with this "enclosed car" motor.

Engine Protected.

Another feature that is focusing the attention of visitors o he Nash-King showrooms is he complete manner in which this "enclosed car" motor is encased against foreign substances. Nash originally led the movement to protect moving parts from flying dust and dirt which is so harmful to mechanism and which is the biggest single factor in shortening the life of the motor. From enclosing the rocker arms Nash quickly inaugurated improvements of similar character, culminating in this new "enclosed car" motor which is the most completely preserved from foreign substance of any motor on the market. Even the crankcase breather arrangement has been scientifically calculated as to position in order to keep out the most minute dust noms. And an air cleaner is ullized to clean the air that mixes with the gasoline in he carburetor.

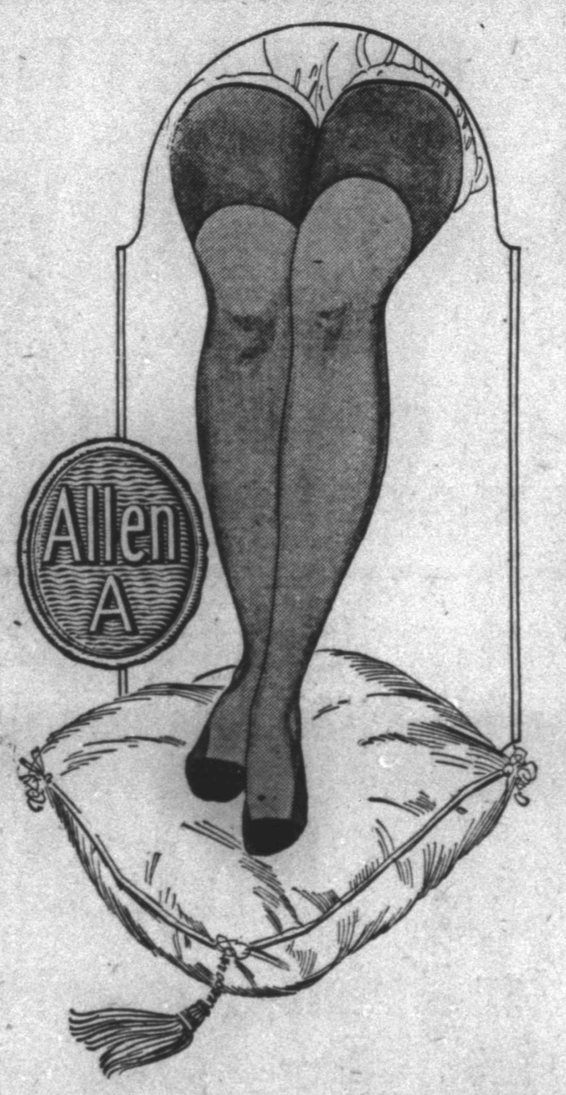

Fourth Salt Dome In Month Proven

HOUSTON, Jan. 23.—The fourth productive salt dome in Gulf Coast area within a month was proven this week.

Gulf Production company's No. 5, Ward, on the Orchard srtucture in Fort Bend county added this structure to the proven district Jan. 1 Cwhen it found a sand which is flowing between 2,500 and 3,000 barrels of 30 gravity oil at a total depth of 3,837 feet.

The well is located virtually in the center of a tract of some 12,000 acres under lease to the Gulf. The dome was located by the Gulf with instruments and surface indications. Four other wells were drilled before production was obtained. This is a usual feature in the discovery of a salt dome, the discovery well usually being the third, fourth, fifth or even sixth well drilled.

Furniture Of The Better Kind

Did you ever stop to consider what an all-important element pride is in the selection of your home's furnishings? Surely, you want comfort, you want beauty, you want convenience—but you want, most of all, a home to be proud of. When friends assemble you want them to be impressed. That is but natural.

No one appreciates this factor in home furnishing better than we do—so we plan our business accordingly. We go to the furniture markets with thought in mind that our customers prefer the better in construction, the more unusual in design—and then buy such things for your selection.

Discriminate home-makers are always impressed with our selection.

Taylor Report To Be Submiteed To Commissions Here

Presenation of the report of Dean T. U. Taylor of Texas university on the future water supply of Wichita Falls is the main item of business to come before the city council at its regular weekly meeting Monday night. The report of Dean Taylor, which has been some 60 days in the making, was received by Mayor Shepherd late last week. While its details have not been made public it is understood that it goes rather thoroughly into the future needs of the city, also taking up the question of water softening here.

A large number of paving hearings are scheduled for he evening session, these to include the stretches on Ozark, Grant to Hoyes; Polk, H to M; Filmore, L to M; Filmore, 9th to 10th; Smarsh, Holliday to Grace; Broad, 18th to 24th; 16th street, Burnett o Holliday.

Snow Halts Work On County Roads

Snow of last week halted work on both of the county's road and construction projects, according to J. M. Isbell, county engineer. Work on the paving of the Holliday-Park-Lake road will be delayed until the last of this week, Mr. Isbell thinks. There will also be an indefinite delay at the site of the new bridge across the Wichita river north of the city, where work of pouring concrete piling had already begun when interrupted by the snow.

The two projects are all that the county has underway at this ime.

Why a Cooking School? Mrs. Chitwood Explains It All Here

BETTER FOOD; BETTER HEALTH IS CLASS AIM

All Features of Preparing And Serving Correct Dishes Planned

What is the motive, what the why and wherefore of the Record News cooking school that Mrs. Ida L. Chitwood, famed culinary expert, will open at the Kemp hotel Monday?

Mrs. Chitwood has explained it very comprehensively and completely in an interview given Saturday. In it she tells of some of the things she proposes to do, outlines the plans that will be followed and gives other details.

Her story follows:

"Every age has had its cooking problems. Brillat Savarin, the French authority on good eating, declared, 'The destiny of nations depends upon the manner in which they feed themselves.' Knowledge of how to cook and what to cook is now a recognized science closely related both to happier life and to longer life.

"Every housewife has her own puzzling 'whys of cookery.' The cooking school this year, is going to solve hundreds of your whys. Come and bring your whys along and let me help you with them. Let me tell you why certain methods should or should not be used for best results in cooking. Let me show you how cooking can be made a pleasure. Let me show you how to become a lover of this art.

What a Chef Said

"Nde, one-time chef of Louis XVI, said: 'Prominence in cookery never occurs under 30 years of age, and nothing but consummate experience can elevate one to the rank of chief professor. In connection with diligent and studious application one must also possess no small share of intellect.' What then, is to become of our families while the mother is reaching the age of 30? The first years of housekeeping are the most important. The period when the digestive habits of young children are forming; then, if ever, the home should be provided with well-prepared food.

"When the prudent, thoughtful house wife takes from the oven a loaf of sour bread or a cake with a heavy streak through it, or when her pie runs over and the best part of it is left in the oven, she is then most desirous of knowing 'why' these things have occurred, and she sets herself to find the cause.

How They Worked It

'Two hundred years ago, in the time of Nde, each individual housekeeper worked out the remedy for these and other culinary mishaps only after many repetitions of the same bad results. After an expenditure of valuable time and thought, together with a waste of foodstuff, the earnest worker discovered that certain conditions being present, certain results would surely follow. These discoveries are now the rightful inheritance of the housekeeper of today. She should not be obliged to begin her work where her ancestors began, but should continue where they left off, and, better still, from the point at which her instructor of today has arrived.

"To the housewife some knowledge of the whys and wherefores of processes in cooking—as in all other processes—means to be forearmed; and in putting her knowledge into practice she may avoid much mortification of spirit as well as pecuniary loss. What is of greater value still, insurance of a more cheerful and contented family.

Such the Motive

"Such, then, is the motive for this cooking school, domestic science departments in the various schools and colleges, together with many other places where the knowledge of science and cookery is gained.

"The reasons 'Why,' are to be given in the Record News Cooking school. For instance why Meringus and Souffles fall; why bread is sometimes sour, pastry, saggy, and cake heavy; why it is best to use a knife for one process and a spoon for another; why we should use a bread flour made of wheat that has been grown, selected and milled in a certain way. All these and many other hints and suggestions are given and made plain that she who is desirous may be the gainer thereby in money, time, health and comfort.

"'Mrs. Chitwood, is this all you are to give us in the Record News Cooking school?' I have been asked.

"No, indeed not. I will include some of the whys in serving. Our full duty to our friends and the guests whom we invite to share our meals is not done when we have simply set before them well-prepared food. While one dish may constitute a meal, more often, the meal is made up of several dishes, and the several dishes confined in a meal must be given particular attention.

"First of all, the dishes presented together, to be eaten at one meal, should conform to physiological demands; and, secondly, they should be chosen to produce harmony of color, texture and flavor. To know why certain vegetables, salads and sauces are served with fish and why certain other vegetables, salads and sauces with steak and chops, is to know the joy of discovery, for, in the actual doing of these things you yourself become a discoverer.

"It was La Reyniere who truly said the kitchen is a country in which there are always discoveries to be made.

To Give Cake Secrets

"Many of my 'cake secrets' will be given. You will be pleased with the new and delicious dainties that are to be taught this year. Exquisite cake decorations will be given, altogether new to last years work. Hors D'oeuvres and salads and pastry are to be given.

"'Mrs. Chitwood, are you going to talk about budgets this year?' Yes, but I am not going to just talk about it. I am going to tell you how every woman can either make or break her husband. Why she should have a savings account and how she can start and maintain a savings account with pleasure, ease and delight regardless of how rich or poor she is. The City National bank is ready to help you with this adventure."

"The Air" Prepared For Radio Spark To Leap Over The Seven Seas

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Radio hopes to advance another step as a means of world communication through the series of international broadcast tests which begins today and continues through the week.

The new year was marked by what was termed the most successful broadcasting accomplishment of history when New York and London exchanged greetings and music, which, through a system or re-broadcasting, were heard in most parts of the world.

Plans for next week's test, however, are even more extensive and will find America, British, French, South American, Canadian, Mexican, Central American, Porto Rican, Cuban, Italian, Rustrian, German, Czech and Spanish stations participating.

Should Be Successful.

"'Tests should be more successful this year because of the favorable atmospheric conditions which we expect to encounter," said Willis K. Wing, of Radio Broadcast, a publication instrumental in the undertakings.

"'More people than ever before should hear the foreign stations because the tendency in radio purchases lately has been definitely toward sets of greater sensitivity. The most important thing to mention this year is to ask listeners to properly control their receivers which are capable of radiating into the air.

"The stations most generally heard last year were in England, London, Newcastle, Bournemouth, Cardiff, Glasgow; on the continent, Madrid was especially well heard and the station of the Petit Parisien, station FPTT, was very well heard. Several scattered listeners reported hearing German and Belgian stations, but no definite verification of that could be had."

Will Open At 10 P. M.

The program will open tonight at 10 p. m., eastern standard time, when American, Canadian, Mexican and Porto Rican and Cuban stations will broadcast an hour in an effort to reach European and continental countries.

These stations then will remain quiet from 11 to 12, while the foreign broadcasts from foreign stations, including British, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Austrian, Polish and Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday South American, are made. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday the same program will be followed.

On Friday night, however, American eastern standard time zone stations will broadcast from 11 to 11:15, when American central standard time zone stations will pick up and continue until 11:30. American mountain time stations then will broadcast until 11:45 and the last quarter hour will be consumed by the American Pacific time stations.

AUTO DEALERS PLAN BANQUET

Details Also Will be Arranged for April Motor Show

At the last meeting of the Automotive Dealers Association plans were formulated and a committee appointed for the holding on the first Tuesday in February of a big banquet for all employers, employes and their families. A special program consisting of talks and music will be arranged. The object of the banquet is to promote good fellowship and closer acquaintance of the personnel of each organization.

Another feature of the meeting was the proposed annual automobile show which will probably be held some time in April. A committee composed of Julian McFall and Lloyd Weaver was appointed to look after a suitable place for the holding of this show. In previous years the show has been held in down town buildings but at the present time there seems to be no suitable building available. However, the show will be in April as the big auto building at the fair grounds is always available.

President Boyd Speaks.

At the meeting Tuesday night, President Boyd of the Texas Automobile Dealers Association and Capt. Williamson, vice-president of San Antonio were to have addressed the local association, but on account of illness of both, neither was able to attend. Jack Harvey, field man for the Texas Association delivered a short address on membership of the state association. These memberships will never be solicited, Mr. Harvey stated, but Dallas and San Antonio have each subscribed $100 and Wichita Falls has been asked to subscribe to a similar amount.

Julian McFall gave an interesting talk on the Texas Automobile Dealers' Association and its relationship comprising the T. A. D. A. He spoke of the work done by the state association for the auto dealers as being similar to the work done by the chamber of commerce for the state and different organizations and industries connected with it and urged each local dealer to at once become a member of the T. A. D. A.

HOLDS A THIEF.

DURANT, Okla.—Mrs. E. W. Butts discovered a man in her barn stealing her chickens. She leveled a shotgun on him and held the thief until the police could arrive and take him into custody.

GET RID OF YOUR FAT

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs by my simple and efficient method of fat reduction without starvation diet or burdensome exercise, aften at a very rapid rate and WITHOUT PAYMENT until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practicing physician and have made a careful study of the physiological requirements of the human body. This has enabled me to select such ingredients and in such proportion as in my opinion will produce not only a loss of weight without harm and an improvement in health, but with it an alleviation of all the troublesome symptoms which frequently accompany and often are a direct result of overstoutness, such as shortness of breath on slight exertion, palpitation of the heart, etc., not to speak of the relief from the embarrassment of being too stout. Stout persons suffering from such diseases as Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Eczema, Asthma and high blood pressure are greatly relieved by a reduction of their superfluous fat.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you the renewed energy and vigor which come as a result of the loss of superfluous fat.

If you are overstout do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my FREE TRIAL TREATMENT and my plan whereby I am to be PAID ONLY AFTER REDUCTION HAS TAKEN PLACE if you so desire.

Hoboes' Home

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Jan. 23.—"Hoboes' Rest," the boxcar winter resort of the Weary Willies, is gone.

Deserted and shorn of the conveniences gathered by many a follower of the open roads, the once cozy hangout now is only an empty boxcar on a siding near the Rock Island freight depot.

Stern officers of the law padlocked the place recently and put John Ryan and George Myers, alleged permanent caretakers of the "hotel" in jail.

Until the interruption by city detectives, the box car had been as widely known as many of the more famous millionaire resorts of Colorado Springs.

GOES TO SERVICE

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—Robert McNab, 91, who died here recently, had a record of not having missed a prayer meeting at the First Presbyterian church for 50 years. He had been a resident of Dallas since 1872.

McNab observed his 91st birthday anniversary January 1 by attending two church services.

Stuard Hotel At Waurika Is Sold

WAURIKA, Okla., Jan. 23.—One of the largest deals in real estate ever made in Waurika was closed today when R. D. A. Tharpe of Stephensville, Texas, bought the Stuard hotel, owned by C. G. Stuard and Mrs. Fannie Nall. The consideration was $45,000. Mr. Tharpe, who owns a string of hotels in Texas, will take possession February 1. The Stuard has been one of the leading hotels of southwestern Oklahoma ever since it was built in 1900. It is three stories, the front has two business rooms, one being occupied by the Rexall Drug store and the other with a pool hall. Last summer the entire building was remodeled and redecorated for the fall and winter season. Mr. Stuard probably will engage in the cattle business in Jefferson county.

Louise Married

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—While Rudolph Valentino, the original movie "sheik," was busy letting his wife win a divorce here, it developed that Louise Glaum, the original movie vampire, who has been absent from the screen for several years, was getting married.

Louise and Zachary M. Harris, theatrical man, were wed at the Municipal Building here yesterday by a city clerk. They will continue to live in New York.

IF BACK OR KIDNEYS ACHE DRINK WATER

Drink Freely and Often to Flush the Kidneys, Also Take Salts.

Flush your kidneys by drinking a quart of water each day, also take salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that too much rich food forms acids which almost paralyze the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken; then you may suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sendiment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To help neutralize these irritating acids; to help cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste, get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here. Take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not injure and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink.—Adv.

BANK AT RULE FAILS TO OPEN

Plans Being Perfected For Reorganization; Examiner Is in Charge

HASKELL, Jan. 23.—The Farmers State Bank of Rule failed to open for business this week. The affairs of the bank are in charge of H. D. Wallace, state bank examiner. Rumor has it that losses on cotton and cotton seed caused the bank's condition. Plans are being perfected to re-organize the institution and open for business again at an early date if the business can be adjusted in a satisfactory manner. The bank was operating under the state guaranty law and the depositors are protected against loss, in case the bank should be unable o adjust its affairs and re-open for business.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wells Of Memphis Observe 60th Anniversary of Wedding

J. W. WELLS.

MRS. J. W. WELLS.

MEMPHIS, Jan. 23.—Being married is nothing so remarkable in this day and age, it is admitted, but being married in 1866 and staying married for 60 years is an accomplishment decidedly out of the ordinary.

This is the status, however, of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wells of this city who on Jan. 17 observed their 60th wedding anniversary at their home here. And to help them celebrate were five children, all that survive of the eight born to them. Incidentally, scores of their friends in this section dropped in during the day to congratulate them on the record that few couples attain.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells were married in Tishaming county, Miss., Jan. 17, 1866. They lived there until 1880 when they moved to the old Indian territory, and in 1885 moved to Wise county, Texas, settling near Decatur. From 1885 to 1901 they stayed in Wise county and then came still further west to Collingsworth county. A three-year residence there ended in 1904 when they moved to Hall county, where they have since remained.

J. W. Wells is the son of Col. Joe Wells, a figure in civil war history. The colonel with four sons entered the confederate army and two of the boys died in military prisons during the war. J. W. enlisted in 1862 and served in the 23rd regiment, Mississippi infantry, Adams' brigade, Loren's division of the army of Tennessee. When hostilities ceased he returned home and was married shortly thereafter. He is now the only surviving member of a family of five brothers and three sisters.

Mr. Wells was born Aug. 27, 1844 in Tippah county, Miss., and is now 82 years of age. His wife, formerly Miss Mary Mauldin, daughter of Joe Mauldin, was born March 5, 1847 in Tishamingo county, Miss. She had four brothers, two of whom were killed in action in the civil war, and four sisters.

The children of the couple are L. A. Wells of Amarillo, Percy Wells of Wellington, J. C. Wells, Mrs. R. L. Madden and Mrs. G. W. Sexauer, all of Memphis. They have ten grandchildren.

Female Weakness

"MY HEALTH began to fail," says Mrs. W. C. Bridgman, 1005 North 18th St., Fort Smith, Ark. "I grew weak and pale. My sides and back gave me considerable trouble. At times I was forced to to go to bed and let my household duties go. I was very nervous. The least little thing upset me terribly. The cause of my trouble was female weakness, I knew, and I worried a lot over my condition. It seemed as if nothing would help me. For months I dragged around the house. Important things went undone, because I had not strength to do them.

"My mother told me to try Cardui. She had taken it herself and knew what a wonderful help it was for womanly troubles. I did as she told me. I soon found out what the real merits of Cardui are, for after a few months I was entirely well and able to enjoy life. I began to gain in weight until I had gone from 119 to 140 pounds. I slept fine at night and the old trouble of pains in my sides and back left me altogether. I felt like a different human being."

Count Borrowed Money From Bride For Honeymoon

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Count Ludwig Salm Hoogstraeten's version of his married life with the former Millicent Rogers, heiress to $40,000,000 of Standard Oil money, reveals that he was forced to borrow money from her for their honeymoon and that he blames her for their hasty marriage.

An affidavit in support of his suit for separation and his demand that his infant son be restored to him to be raised in the Roman Catholic faith is to be heard Monday by Supreme Court Justice O'Malley. It was his wealthy fiancee and not he who urged secrecy in their hasty marriage at the municipal building two years ago, avers the petition. At that time Miss Rogers was afraid her parents might force on her a marriage that would be distasteful to her, he claims.

Moreover, he says, the fact that he had been seen the day before lunching with Mrs. Grace Coffin, a former fiancee, had nothing to do with the haste of the marriage. The countess was aware of the previous engagement, the affidavit continues, and knew it was broken off by mutual consent.

US Oil Men Lose In Mexican Court

TAMPICO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The applications of 13 oil companies for injunctions against the new petroleum law were rejected yesterday by the district court. The court ruled that the law could not be considerer as violating the guarantees of the companies. Application for a rehearing of the appeals has been made by the companies.

A sensation was created last night by the receipt of a message announcing that several oil companies would suspend operations, among them the Corona Oil company. Representatives of this company, however, denied the report, declaring that on the contrary the company would increase its operations in the Panuco zone.

Rupert Hughes Talks About Gallant Gentlemen and Revered Women

By RUPERT HUGHES

Astounding is a weak word for the series of revolutions that have taken place in the whole life of women in America and Europe. But what word is there to express the far more dumbfounding revolutions that have altered the ancient customs of Oriental women and brought them alongside American women almost overnight?

The pioneer life of America compelled or permitted American women a partnership in the hardships and freedoms of American men. They very gradually attained to their present political equality. It is a hundred and five years since Susan B. nAthony was born; and 73 years since the night when she rose to speak at a meeting of the Sons of Temperance, was told by the mossbound chairman that "the Sisters were not invited there to speak, but to listen and learn," and marched out of the hall with several other bold and abandoned females.

She grew up shameless then as to bob her hair and for a time put on the garments devised by Mrs. Bloomer. The gallant gentlemen of those "good old times when men revered women" promptly mobbed all females who appeared on the streets in the indecent raiment and preachers ordered them out of the churches just as women pilgrims to Rome have been ordered out for baring their arms or revealing their ankles. It is 65 years since Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton drove moral people almost to apoplexy by their unspeakably infamous demand for the vote. It is 53 years since Mrs. Anthony was properly arrested, tried and found guilty by a jury, for the vile, the shameless offense of walking into a voting place and casting a ballot.

She was so incorrigibly bent on minding her one business of securing the vote that she refused to approve a set of resolutions beginning "We believe in God" and another denouncing prize fighting.

It is 19 years since the old Jezebel, who had withstood the abuse of all nice people for most of her life of 86 years, died in an aureole of reverence, murmuring: "These have been wonderful years."

At the height of Susan B's battle for the unheard-of rights that hardly anyone disputes today, the American woman was far behind the privileges enjoyed by the women of Egypt in the year 2000 B. C.

But long after Susan B's death the good women of Egypt still wore the veil over their faces, peered at the world through iron grills, and, if they had to go out on the street, covered their clothes with shapeless black cloaks.

Then the World war came and did more to unify mankind than any other influence in all history. The tremendousness of it forced the women to come forth from the lairs and take more and more control of their manless homes. They were abandoned females indeed, and they had to come out into the open.

And then when peace was declared, old institutions began to crackle and crumble, topple and crash to dust.

The Czar of Russia was set to shovelling snow and his empire turned into a communism of peasant rule, or at least the pretence of it. With him went his church. The Sultan of Turkey was lifted off his divan and chucked overboard and a republican government took control. With him went his Caliphate. The Shah of Persia found himself a nobody and his priests were mocked when they declared a republic a sacrilege.

In India, even, women awoke and went forth to independence. When the gentle revolutionist Ghandi was sent to jail by the British government, his wife did his work for him. The wife of another revolutionist, C. R. Das, sometimes shared her husband's imprisonment and sometimes toiled for the cause outside.

Hindu women became co-eds at men's colleges and took degrees. A woman's medical college was opened at Delhi, Miss Mithi Tata began to practice law. There were not 50 educated women in India 50 years ago and there are 50,000 today. In politics the Hindus are so zealous that the great Indian National congress this year had for president a woman, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, a poetess of fame who has used her gift of song to bring together the Hindu and the Mohammedan factions.

There is a rumble and tremor of earthquake in old Mesopotamia where the daughter-in-law of King Hussein, and the wife of King Faisal, broke away from her father-in-law's palace, took a ship to Basra and a motor car for Bagdad, and was met in the desert by her husband who flew to meet her in an aeroplane.

The queen owes her emancipation to an English woman, Gertrude Bell, Oriental Secretary of the High Commissioner of Mesopotamia and daughter of Sir Hugh Bell, the British steel magnate.

In Persia a social cataclysm is preparing. On the Caspian sea, the port of Resht has a military governor of modern notions. He has encouraged women to seek their rights and discard their veils. The first poor Persian souls to aim at liberty got what American women got from their noble men, and meetings of women without veils were broken up by ruffians who beat the women and chased them home.

The Moslem priests, of course, denounced the women as heathen and approved their punishment; for as Susan B. Anthony and Elizabeth Cady Stanton never tired of saying, the cloth as a class has always been the worst enemy of women's liberty.

In other Asiatic countries, in Japan, Corea and Chind, women have begun to claim and to achieve more and more privileges and to awaken to greater and higher ambitions.

But nowhere perhaps has so profound and sweeping a revolution taken place as in Turkey, the peculiar stronghold of womanly subjection.

Of course, the Turk was never as bad as he was painted. In fact nobody ever was so badly painted or so universally slandered as the Turk. Individuals who have known the Turks of old and of late have protested in vain against the misrepresentation of him, and have proclaimed in vain his peculiar charm and kindness when met half way.

There are many things in Turkish history and customs of which little can or would be said in praise, but it has been too much our own custom to slander them wholesale.

Among the greatest sins of Christendom, stands the prodigious and persistent unwillingness to treat the Turks with justice, truth, mercy or common honesty.

The reaction to the burning of Smyrna, for instance, was a peculiarly horrible example of our utter unwillingness to play fair with the Turks, or even to reveal the minimum of truth that self respect should compel one to tell about an enemy.

The newspapers, magazines, books formus and pulpits of our world were simply deluged with wildly exaggerated lies about the atrocities committed by the Truks. Yet when the Turks put forth proofs of wild distortion and injustice and proofs that far worse atrocities were committed against them first, and when they supported their charges with the testimony of Christian witnesses, not a line could they get printed. They could not even get their side of the case published at advertising rates! This surely is hypocrisy of the vilest sort.

There must be something heinously wrong with a prejudice that denounces a whole nation as a criminal unit, permits the most insane ghouls to be broadcast and will not deign to listen to a word in exculpation or self-defense.

The American admiral, Hugh L. Bristol, who has been for seven years the high commissioner of the United States in Turkey, came home on leave a month or two ago and testified that mistaken conceptions of the Turkish character were to blame for many disasters. He spoke particularly of the change in the attitude toward women and prophesied a speedy revision of laws that would place marriage there on the same footing as in Occidental nations.

The sudden increase of divorce, as usual, as always, was one of the first signs of women's awakening. People who talk about the good old divorceless times when homes were realms of happiness are rudely answered by the fact that the first use women make of liberty is to ask for easy divorce.

When a bill was passed in Uraguay making divorce easy, the wife of the author of the bill was the first to demand one. When Mustapha Kemal, the president of Turkey, began to turn the harems inside out, he married the Susan B. Anthony of Turkey, Latife Hanoum—the word "Hanoum" being about the same as "Madame" with us.

They made divorce so easy that Kemal Pasha decided to try one himself. This shocked everybody, but liberty is always shocking. As soon as our forefathers established their principles of liberty and equality they began to fight one another. It took George Washington's countrymen five years to patch up a constitution after the British sailed away and left the colonies with no common enemy to wreak their liberties upon.

As Admiral Bristol pointed out, Kemal Pasha and his wife had had no children and they agreed to separate as soon as their political ideals drifted apart. Lafte Hanoum spoke of it with a certain regret and likened herself and her hussband to Josephine and Napoleon.

Turkey has gone in for modernism with a vengeance. There is a ferocious house-cleaning there.

First the women were permitted and more or less compelled to throw aside their veils. This was a frightful, an obscene thing in the eyes of the good old-fashioned Turks to whom as to us still, the word "barefaced" stood for everything shameless.

To the Turks as to the Spaniards a woman's hair is more sensational than her face. The Spanish women were long ago forbidden to go to church bareheaded. Hence, since they had no love for hats, they devised the lace scarf, the mansilla which has since been almost a uniform.

Some years ago when the yashmak or veil was universal in Turkey, there was downright horror of exposing the hair. A delicate minded Turkish woman who accidentally encountered a strange man when her veil was off, would blush, scream, faint and weep for hours over the shame of it. But if a strange man caught sight of her hair, she would be so shocked and degraded that she would probably commit suicide.

And now Turkish women are not only barefaced; they have not only taken to wearing French hats on the street, but they have taken up tennis in short skirts and swimming in bathing suits; Latife Hanoum goes about in riding breeches!

Last July there was actually a swimming race for girls before a mixed throng of spectators. Think of it, the Turkish woman who once enjoyed all the protection of the harem, such devoted care from her father or her buband that if she stuck her head out of the window he would cut it off for her, such chivalrous respect that he made her home a penitentiary—the Turkish woman is now so far neglected and despised that she is allowed to go out on the street shopping like an ordinary American woman, she is permitted to go into business, politics and even to indulge in athletics. At the bathing beaches now men and women bathe together as they have done in this country for only half a century.

The old fashioned Turk was permitted four wives on earth and a crowd of houris in paradise, but polygamy grew too expensive some time ago to be practiced and now one wife at a time is the legal limit.

Latife Hanoum advocated a law compelling bachelors to marry, but it did not pass. For in Turkey as elsewhere, it is now the male who is fighting for life, liberty and equality.

The Turkish women beat the men to dress reform. If the veil was universal for the women, the fez was universal for the men. In the course of time it had acquired a positively religious value. A Turk who wore a hat would have had his head chopped off.

The Turkish army and navy found it useful to adopt the visored caps of the Auropeans. The police followed, and the students took up hats as a fantastic novelty.

Firnally, as a further step in shuffling off the past, the fez was ordered into the discard with the harem, the veil and polygamy. The usual howl of "Sacrilege!" went up from the prieses and other conservatives, but a day was set for the casting off of this last badge of antiquity.

The Turks made a holiday of it and on the given day threw away their fezzes or tore them off the heads of those who persisted in wearing them. There was such a festival as Americans indulge in when the straw hat suddenly becomes an eyesore.

With all this breathless mania for freedom in Turkey has come a breaking of innumerable old idols and the assault on many things reverd of old. The Turkish papacy, the Caliphate, has been destroyed and banished. The famous howling whirling dervishes have been forbidden to spin for the glory of Allah.

The old Sultan was also called the slave of his astrologer, and now the astrologer is an outlaw in Turkey. The nation that for hundreds of years submitted to the tyranny of the astrologer, forbade the sculptor to exist at all.

The Turkish sacred laws had long forbidden the making fo statuary on the ground that man was made in God's image and God had forbidden the making of images of Himself, which, logically enough, forbade the making of the similar images of men.

The same horror of sculpture obtained in ancient Israel, and was revived in Christendom for centuries, until the revoking of the law brought about the glorious awakening of the Renaissance, and the flooding of Christian churches with images and paintings of every sort.

In Turkey the edicts against sculpture have just been removed and we shall soon see a Turkish art flourishing with all the splendor of early Christian art. But for the present, sculpture is as dead in Turkey as it was so long in Christendom. The Christians had to learn to draw and carve all over again and that explains the pathetic crudities of many primitive geniuses like Giotto, Cimabue and the rest.

So the Turks demanding statues in a hurry must needs import them. And their George Washington, Kemel Pasha, has had to entrust his image to an American sculptor just as George Washington's portrait had to be entrusted to painters and sculptors from overseas.

The heroism of Turkey will find its memorials henceforth, but, better, yet, the beauty of Turkish women will be released from its ancient doom. For centuries doltish men in the name of virtue made pallbirds of all their women, their mothers, wives, daughters, sweethearts and slaves.

Now the Turkish woman has the world before her. She lifts her face to the sunlight. She breathes deep of th air. She rises from the soft cushions, the dull industries, and the laziness and vice of living burial. She goes into business, into politics, into all the arts, into athletics.

She is going through all the strata of the American women's resurrection from the grave. Everything that was so long held sacred is cast aside and she is the better for it. All the denunciations heaped upon her were heaped upon the brace and beautiful American and European women who endured public revilement for the sake of their posterity.

The Turkish woman, the very byword of indolence, has fairly flashed from the divan to the rostrum with a speed that makes the American woman look like a snail. But if the snail had not crept, the bird could not have leapt.

A Turkish woman has told the whole story of her fellow women in a novel recently published in New York under the title "The Shirt of Flame."

The author Halide Edib Hanoum was the ifrst Turk to graduate from the College of Constantinople. She wrote the first Turkish novels and lost her good name because she was immoral enough to plead for the freeing of women, immodest enough to appear in public, indecent enough to be a liberal in politics.

She worked with the Red Crescent, which is the Red Cross of Turkey. She saw the frightful atrocities inflicted upon the heathen Turks by the Christian Greeks. She saw the cruelties practiced upon the Turkish revolutionists by the Turkish enemies of liberty for either man or woman. She founded orphanages, toiled through the mud of war and the mud of the woman's rights conflict, and lived to see the dawn.

And now she is acclaimed a heroine by all the powers in Turkey, from the government officials to the peasants.

In every nation of the world, the same patterns are traced in the eternal battle for liberty; the same martyrdom must be endured; the same glory comes to the ones most besputtered with abuse.

The women of America, like the men in America, and like the women and men of other nations calling themselves free, have not finished the war. The fighting has just begun.

Innumerable superstition, slaveries, repressions, tyrannies abound. They must be and will be faced and beaten to the dust. The best thing about the new wars is that women and men who love freedom and unshackled opportunity fight now shoulder to shoulder with equal opportunities for wounds, defeats, shame and triumph.

Rumania Expels 20,000 Germans

VIENNA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A Bucharest dispatch to the Wiener Neuste Nachrichten state that the Rumainian minister of the interior has instructed the police to expel 20,000 Germans and Austrians from Rumania by next Monday.

There has been no indication of trouble between the Rumanian authorities and the German and Austrian minorities. The league of nations council last June considered the question of the treatment of the minority populations in Transylvania and in September succeeded in settling the question of the treatment of the Hungarian farmers in Rumania whose lands were expropriated. Rumania agreeing to pay an indemnity.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 88

Mother! It's Cruel to "Physic" Your Child

To Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated infants and children had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all children's little ills, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even if the child is chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the most delicate system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant that even a cross, feverish, bilious, sick child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

RADIO

Keep Up With Programs. Keep Up With Radio Development. These Firms Are Reliable Radio Dealers!

FAME AWAITS FIRST TO HEAR

Radio Fan Who Picks Up Foreign Station Asked To Tell About It.

Every minute of the International tests will be reviewed by a large staff of Radio Digest observers scattered over the country and listening in with the most sensitive types of receivers. The reports of these observers, who will not enter the contests because of their professional rating, will be available to American and Canadian fans who wish to obtain any information concerning the International broadcasts, etc.

Fans in the eastern half of the country are directed to write or telegraph prepaid to the New York City offices of Radio Digest, located at 247 Park avenue, New York City. Fans in the Middle West and western states or western provinces of Canada are directed to write or telegraph prepaid to the Chicago offices of Radio Digest, located at 510 North Dearborn street, Chicago, Ill.

No matter which office is communicated with, information will be telegraphed collect, unless the inquiring listener-in makes it plain that the information is to come by mail. The latter method, however, is not recommended on account of the short span of time occupied by the tests.

First Reception Report.

The fan who is sure he has received foreign station first in his locality, should immediately telegraph prepaid to the closest Radio Digest offices, New York or Chicago. The Radio Digest will release information to the press at large concerning these first receptions.

Telegrams must contain a short sketch of the program received, the call letters of the station heard, the local time received, the approximate meters wave length, and the address of the listener.

If satisfied that the sender of the telegram was first to receive a foreign station in his or her town or locality, after having checked the details against the bona fide data in the offices of the Radio Digest, this publication will make nation-wide release of the information, giving credit to the successful listener.

Inasmuch as tens of thousands of listeners will take advantage of this means of receiving credit for their work, it is emphasized that telegrams must be sent prepaid. No collect telegrams will be received.

PROGRAMS NOT VARIED

Radio entertainment in lands beyond the sea is not near so varied as in most any large American city. As an illustration, here is an announcement of radio programs for France:

"Eiffel Tower (Wave length 2,750 meters) 6:15 p. m., concert; weather reports and signals at the usual hour.

"Radio Paris (Wave length 1,750 meters) 12:30 p. m., concert; 1:45 and 1:50 p. m., news bulletins and exchange rates; 4:30 p. m., exchange rates; 4:45 p. m., concert; 5:45 p. m., news bulletins and exchange rates; 8:15 p. m., medical bulletin; 8:30 p. m., news bulletins and exchange rates; 8:45 p. m., Italian music festival.

"Ecole Superieure (Wave length 458 meters) 3 p. m., concert; 8 p. m., scientific bulletin; 8:30 p. m., Italian gala opera 'Rigoletto' from the Grand theatre, Geneva, performed in honor of the League of Nations.

"Petit Parisien (Wave length 345 meters) 9:15 p. m., popular scientific lecture, 'What Is Life,' by Prof. R. DuBois."

Roaming The Air

International test week starts tonight. Twenty-one foreign stations will participate. Tonight and Tuesday between 10 and 11 o"clock, central standard time, tune in on 5WA, Cardiff, Wales (353); 2LO, London (365); 2ZY, Manchester, England (378); 5NO, Newcastle, Wales (404), 5SC, Glasgow, Scotland (495), 5IT, Birmingham, England (479), 2BD, Aberdeen, Scotland (495), and 5XX, Daventry, England (1600).

On Monday, Wednesday and Thursday at the same hour try for SBR, Brussels, Belgium (262); PTT, Toulouse, France (515); EaJ7, Madrid, Spain (373); OSLO, Oslo, Norway (382); IRO, Rome, Italy (425); Paris, France (458); Berlin, (505); Bresslau (416); OKP, Prague, C. S. (513); ORV, Vienna, Austria (530); HIBI, Geneva, Switzerland (800); HB2, Lausanne, Switzerland, (850); AFT, Berlin (1300); RDW, Moscow, Russia (1450); OXE, Lyngby, Denmark (2400).

On Friday, try the American tests, by United States, Canadian, and the America stations; CYB, Mexico City (275); CYA, Mexico City (300); CYX Mexico City (325); CZE, Mexico City (350); LOX, Lima, Peru, (380); and PWX, Havanna (400).

Further tests in two-way communication between WLW and an airplane from McCook field will be carried on. Previou tests, heard by many broadcast listeners, were successful in directing the plane from the studio on the ground.

Battery manufacturers are striving to produce better "B" batteries in the hopes of eliminating howling and distortion. The problem is being solved by lowering the internal resistance of the cells insofar as is possible.

Last Wednesday an unusual graduation ceremony was held when thousands of American women received diplomas by radio from the Betty Crocker radio cooking school. Lessons have been broadcast for six weeks from a chain of 12 stations on Friday mornings. Another class will be started Jan. 29.

Each Monday night a prominent banker broadcasts a talk for business men through WGBS.

The Department of Commerce reports that 29 stations signed off permanently last month. License renewals hereafter will be based on service to the public, and will be placed in jeopardy through failure to maintain scheduled transmissions.

The government of Chile has granted the privilege of building two stations. One will be in Santiago and the other about 200 miles south of there.

Cincinnati finds that broadcasting pays. Community concerts given each Monday night from WLW have resulted in an increase in business, manufacturers and wholesalers announce. They called attention to the inserts by advertisements on every piece of mail sent out.

The Greater New York Federation of churches broadcasts inter-denominational services each Sunday afternoon from WEAF.

A popular feature of the WEAF chain of six stations is the Capitol Theatre Sunday evening program.

MONY, St. Louis' new community [illegible] talent that runs approximately $3,000 a week.

A weekly political talk covering the nation's affairs is given each Thursday night from WRC and WJZ by Frederic William Wile.

KDKA found new requests for jazz music when the listeners were asked recently to make up their own program for a dinner concert.

Fans in England, New Zealand, Alaska and Cuba report having heard programs from WBBM.

WLW will celebrate its fourth anniversary with a special 23-hour program starting at 7:30 o'clock in the morning of Jan. 27. One hour will be observed as silent hour during the international tests. The 10,000th hour of broadcasting by this station will be passed during the anniversary program.

Children who have heard the Lullaby Lady at WEAF at 7:30 o'clock each Monday night are eager for her next appearance. It is reported that many grown folks also are delighted by her crooning melodies.

Stations KYW Chicago; WBZ, Springfield, Mass.; MFKY, Hastings, Neb., and KDKA, ittsburgh, have been linked successfully by a short wave relay apparatus on 61 meters, foreshadowing a time when this method of transmission will be used generally for relaying programs from one station to another.

It has been predicted that dual control, one dial for the antenna circuit and the other for all amplifying and detector circuits, will be adopted more or less as a standard by leaders in the radio trade.

A national radio fading test will start Feb. 9 by station WBBM to determine the cause of static and fading. More than 4,000 observation stations will take part in the survey. The first test will be held from 8 to 11 o'clock central standard time on the night of Feb. 9. The second and third tests will be on the two succeeding nights at the same hours. Subsequent trials will be held throughout the winter.

Secretary Jardine has ordered an expert named to take over control of the Department of Agriculture's radio activities, heretofore divided, and to undertake a development of radio service to the farmers.

5 Great English Stations Participate

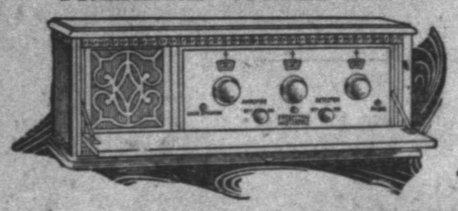

LONDON.—Five of the great English broadcasting stations will participate in the international broadcasts to be held during the coming week, and America should be entertained with the greatest talent the British Isles can muster for the event. The British Broadcasting company has entered into the overseas tests with enthusiasm and have lent the fullest cooperation of which their great organization is capable.

The English stations which will endeavor to bridge the Atlantic through the ether are London 2LO, 365m; Manchester 2LY, 377.5m; Newcastle 5NG, 320m; Daventry 5XX, 588m, and Cardiff, Wales, 5WA, 353m.

The British Broadcasting company has been working on the preparation of programs for the tests and will undoubtedly be heard in many sections of this country. It has been announced that the greatest number of recognized artists to take part in any one enterprise or endeavor in the history of the Islands will appear before the microphone of the five stations.

OVERLAND 4 TO BOOST OUTPUT

Production to Increase 50 Per Cent in 1926, Says Officials

Production of the four-cylinder Overland, the light car product of Willys-Overland, will be 50 percent greater for 1926 than during the past year, which was the record year for this model in the history of the organization.

The first indication of greater developments in the four-cylinder Overland came in September of last year, when the price on the standard sedan was dropped to $595, the lowest price ever put on a four-cylinder enclosed car with standard features of design and equipment including three forward speed sliding gear transmission, honeycomb radiator, heavy frame construction and standard-size body specifications.

Brings Big Sales.

This price brought a volume of sales which exceeded by a large percentage the ability of the factory to keep production up with demand.

The acceptance of this sedan at the price established was an immediate indication of a sales field which had never been sounded by any manufacturer of a standard type four-cylinder car.

The total volume of sales in this four-cylinder model for the entire year of 1925 was over 100,000 cars, including all body types, of which there were four.

150,000 a Minimum.

Manufacturing plans for 1926 contemplate a minimum output of not less than 150,000 four-cylinder Overlands, with every possibility that this number will be exceeded before the year is over.

The sales volume in this four-cylinder model was reached in the face of a total volume of six-cylinder cars, Overland and Willys-Knight, sold and delivered during 1925 which exceeded 400,000 units.

At the present time, the price on the Overland four-cylinder standard sedan is still the lowest in the field.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER'S TRAFFIC TALKS

REGULATIONS TO SAFEGUARD PEDESTRIANS

An ever increasing number of cities is making use of the law to compel pedestrians for their own safety to observe traffic signals. These cities hold that no distinction can be drawn between the man afoot and the man in a vehicle whether motor driven or horse-drawn. Both pedestrians and motorists must observe the signals. To run counter to signals is to run afoul of the law.

Some way should be found to get it into the public consciousness that motor regulations and traffic signals are for the safety of pedestrians just as much as they are for the convenience and safety of motorists.

An interesting experiment was tried recently in a certain city. At a given signal the police officers stationed at a certain very busy corner, left their posts of duty and went to the nearest sidewalks. There they stood. Traffic began to jam up. Pedestrians darted in all directions. Motor vehicles stood still. The confusion increased. A whistle blew after just five minutes and the police officers went back to work.

In just five minutes it was demonstrated that a city of any traffic at all would be utter chaos without traffic regulation and traffic signals. Ten minutes after the traffic officers went back to their posts of duty traffic was running smoothly again.

This regulation of the pedestrian is an interesting problem. The difficulty of it all is how to handle that individual who insists upon ignoring traffic signals. Certain cities say the law should look after him. Other cities say moral influence should be enough. But the point is that that man should realize that when he fails to observe signals he endangers his life.

NO DECREASE IN DRUNK DRIVERS

A. A. A. Survey Shows That Intoxicated Motorists Run Rampant

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 23.—A nation-wide survey by the American Automobile association and its affiliated motor clubs has disclosed the fact that the intoxicated driver is still running wild in many of the large cities of the country.

According to a statement from A. A. A. national headquarters today, official figures secured for the large centers of population show that there has been no diminution in the number of arrests and convictions for driving while under the influance of liquor.

While the total number of arrests and convictions on this charge are small in comparison with the number of law-abiding motorists, the A. A. A. takes the position that this is not a question of ratio or proportion and that the intoxicated driver should be treated as a dangerous criminal on whom the law should bear down with a heavy hand.

"It looks as if the law-enforcing authorities and the courts are much more adept in convicting and fining motorists for trifling and technical violations of traffic rules than they are in ridding the streets and highways of these potential murderers, who operate machines while under the influence of liquor," said Thos. P. Henry, president of the A. A. A.

The A. A. A. survey, it was pointed out, is still incomplete, but it has gone for example to indicate that a great many cities are lax in their method of dealing with the man who is convicted of driving while intoxicated and that in many cases they are let off with a fine only.

"Heavy jail sentences and revocation of driving permits should be uniformly meted out to this class of offender," Mr. Henry declared.

CAR OF FUTURE IS OUTLINED

Small Machine With High Speed to Be The Answer

Further corrobroation of the trend of the motor car industry, as forecast recently by Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Chrysler corporation, that cars capable of much greater speeds, even to 90 miles an hour, would be built within two years, is contained in a recent article by William Ullman in the Detroit Automobile club's publication, the Detroit Motor News.

"Thinking ahead in car buying has become a prime consideration for motorists who are not addicted to the yearly buying habit," the article reads.

"The question in the mind of the motorist who thinks ahead should be whether the car he buys now will be able to transport his car with comfort, at the speed that will be customary for road travel within the next few years.

Speed Is Factor.

"The predictions are that speed, more than pulling power, will be the prime demand upon the motors within a short time.

"Here the motorist turns to road building for an answer to his query. He finds that concrete roads are not merely making higher speeds relatively safe, but that they are also eliminating steep grades and treacherous turns. If the motorist is looking ahead he cannot afford to buy a car just because it walks up a hill in high gear or blows off his hat when the demonstrator steps on the gas for a brief interval.

"The buyer wants a motor that will sustain speed, and sustain it without vibration.

"Another factor the thoughtful motorist takes into consideration is that within the next few years there is likely to be an era of soaring gasoline prices. An egnine today that will not deliver more than 12 miles to a gallon, as an average for its year round operation, may be a white elephant in 1927."

Still more corroborative evidence of Mr. Chrysler's forecast the car of the future would be a smaller car is contained in the same article.

Detroit Visitors By Thousands See Ford Cars Built

The Ford Motor company's Highland Park plant continues to be the big attraction for visitors in Detroit. A total of 168,927 persons, representing practically every country in the world and including many prominent personages, visited the plant during 1925 to become acquainted with Ford manufacturing methods, the visitors' record shows. This was approximately 35,000 more than during 1924.

The River Rouge plant of the company, said to be the largest industrial center in the world, also is growing as an attraction to people interested in manufacture on a large scale. Visitors at the Rouge plant during 1925 numbered 24,797.

DETROIT SHOWS HOW IT'S DONE

Motor Manufacturers In U. S. Give Production Views to Foreigners

Opening the factory doors unreservedly to the delegates from the Second World Motor Transport congress just concluded in New York the automobile manufacturers of Detroit are placing before the visitors the panorama of American production methods. Delegates arrive in Detroit, Jan. 18th.

Selling the idea of low cost motor transport was the keynote of this factory tour, and it was the basis for the Transport congress and the other relationships which are being developed by the motor vehicle groups all over the world. It is the belief of most of the leading vehicle manufacturers in the world, and very strongly the belief of the American delegation, that rapid progress in transportation can be best accomplished by exchange of ideas in production, distribution and financing, so that the pooled knowledge may benefit all. The public will get the returns from the lowered cost of the vehicles.

Still Expensive.

While prices of automobiles in this country are the lowest they have ever been, the high cost of shipping, financing, tariffs and taxation are still obstacles in many countries. It is believed that through united action the motor users, traders and manufacturers throughout the world can materially lower the cost of motor transport and provide larger markets for the vehicles of various nations.

The Detroit reception committee for the visitors from the Motor congress which was held under the auspices of the Natoinal Automobile Chamber of Commerce is as follows:

Roy D. Chapin, chairman, Hudson Motor Car company; Charles D. Hastings, president, Hupp Motor Car corporation; M. L. Pulcher, president, Federal Motor Truck company; A. T. Waterfall, vice-president, Dodge Brothers, inc.

Among the visiting delegates were: H. G. Burford, Society of Motor Mfgrs. & Traders, Ltd. United Kingdom; Paul Cappel, Deutscher Automobil Handler Verband, Germany; Henri Jenny, H. Jenny, & Company, Switzerland; Frank Lanchester, Society of Motor Mfgs. and Traders, United Kingdom; W. R. Shephard, Motor Traders association, United Kingdom; M. Tachadi, H. Jenny and Company, Switzerland; C. E. Wallis, Iliffe and Sons, Ltd. England; Prof. C. C. Wawrzinick, Dresden Technischer Hochschule, Germany; Rowland Winn, Motor Agents assn., United Kingdom; G. A. WHITE GARAGE IS "STANDARD"

Measuring Devices at Cleveland Recognized as Last Word in Accuracy

"The Bureau of Standards of Cleveland" is what manufacturers in various parts of Ohio call the gage inspection department of the White Motor company, where many of them take their gages for occasional testing.

In the White company plant, where the building of motor trucks and busses calls for scores of operations accurate to ten-thousandths of an inch, most complete equipment is employed to make sure that the thousands of gages in use all over the factory are constantly accurate themselves.

Included in this master equipment are numerous sets of Johanssen blocks one of which is capable of accuracy in measurement within two millionths, others within four and eight millionths of an inch; a tool maker's microscope with powers of magnification to 80 diameters, used to check the angle and pitch of threads; an Optimeter accurate to 50 millionths of an inch; a super-micrometer with which diameters may be measured within one ten-thousandth of an inch and many other instruments of rare accuracy.

General Motors New Six is here!

GENERAL MOTORS now presents through its Oakland division the New Pontiac Six—the first six-cylinder car it has ever named and sponsored from the original design.

Representing the supreme embodiment of the corporation's almost limitless resources, this new Six is destined to compel a complete revision of existing ideas in motor car value.

The Pontiac Six is not another of the so-called "revolutionary" cars.

It is simply and soundly a car of high quality developed to dominate a definite market . . . and as such represents an achievement no less significant, no less unprecedented, no less epochal than the invention of the first six-cylinder engine.

In the Pontiac Six you are offered a new order of beauty—that grace of line and balanced proportion characteristic only of Fisher craftsmanship. You are offered precisely the enduring body construction that is used on cars selling for $2,000 or more, finished in rich Duco colors.

You are offered a roadability of extraordinary scope—exhilarating power for hills, refreshing agility in traffic, a maximum speed you will use only in emergencies.

Add to this new order of beauty and this performance of unprecedented brilliance, the equally important matter of accessory equipment, and the preponderance of Pontiac value becomes literally irresistible—

—for the Pontiac Six comes equipped with full balloon cords, nickeled radiator, Fisher VV windshield, automatic windshield cleaner, indirectly illuminated instrument panel, rear vision mirror, high-speed window regulators and other important essentials to pride of ownership.

The Pontiac Six is now on display in our salesrooms. Demonstrations may be arranged for. We not only invite you to see this newest creation of General Motors at the earliest possible moment—we urge you to come prepared for a new and unique experience—for here at last is the Six you have always wanted . . . . at a price so unexpectedly low that only General Motors could possibly achieve it.

These astonishing new figures represent more than a price reduction. They represent a price sensation!

At one stroke they eliminate the necessity for compromise in the purchase of a motor car.

They mean that henceforth no one need be forced by economy to invest in less than Dodge Brothers quality.

They mean that a car world-renowned for its long life and dependability is now well within reach of every income.

They are made possible by a $10,000,000 expansion program, vastly increasing production, and introducing the latest and most advanced efficiency processes into motor car manufacture.

They apply to the finest line of motor cars Dodge Brothers have ever produced—

Graceful and stylish new body lines. Rich and attractive new colors.

Absolute smoothness of engine operation—with new snap, power and silence.

Perfected steel body construction, affording among other things, complete vision from every angle, greater safety, greater beauty and longer car life.

OLDS SHOWS AT GOTHAM EXHIBIT

Company Completes Another Highly Successful Year in 1925

Completing one of the most successful years in its long history, Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Mich., was exhibited for the twenty-sixth time at the National Automobile show in New York. Two new body types were included in the display in addition to the present touring, coach and sedan in both standard and deluxe type.

The constantly growing popularity of Oldsmobile has been evidenced by new sales records, particularly during the past six months. Business during the fall months has been larger than in a similar period in any previous years. The increased sales have necessitated adding more space and equipment to the plant. These changes are now in progress and will be completed by the first of the year at which time facilities will be available that will permit doubling the 1925 production capacity.

Besides setting up new sales records, Oldsmobile in 1925 accomplished a number of record performances in various sections of the country. The outstanding feature of this nature was the breaking of previous records of stock cars in the Pike's Peak and Lookout Mountain-Bear Creek canon climbs.

BUICK OUTPUT AT HIGH RATE

Heavy Production Schedule Maintained Through December

The heavy production schedule announced by the Buick Motor company several months ago for the winter season is being maintained, as evidenced by figures for the month of December.

In the first ten days of the month, 5,331 new automobiles were delivered to purchasers. In the next ten days this figure increased to 5,372, and during the final ten days 5,960 Buicks went into the hands of owners, making a grand total of deliveries for December of 16,633 cars. Of this number 1,737 were export jobs, making the total of domestic deliveries 14,926. This is one of the best months for deliveries for this season of the year in the history of the Buick Motor company, and is evidence that 1926 will be the biggest in the history of the industry.

There is no immediate possibility of a curtailment in production of the Buick factory. Work on additions to increase plant capacity to 1200 cars a day is being rushed in anticipation of a heavy demand for cars later in the year.

Al Niehaus Goes to Atlanta.

Grange Deserts His Ice Wagon For a New Nash Sport Roadster

Harold E. "Red" Grange, financier of the football field, has made his first investment—a new Nash Special Six Roadster. No longer will the famous Redhead rumble over the streets of Wheaton, Ill., in his memorable ice wagon. Now "Red" can enjoy the luxury of soft balloon tires and spirited performance other than that of his high priced legs.

Grange, returning to his home in Wheaton for a short rest after his strenuous tour of eastern gridirons, stopped off in Chicago just long enough to visit Motor Row and buy his new Nash.

Despite many offers of "gift cars" from other motor car dealers, "Red" had his heart set on owning a Nash, and he graciodsly turned down all other inducements to buy a Nash roadster. The check was drawn on the Illinois Trust of Champaign, the bank whose coffers, it is rumored, are already bulging with Grange's football winnings.

"I wanted to have a nice new car to show the folks at home," said "Red." "Besides, I guess I can afford to own one now," he added with a grin.

With his bankroll swiftly approaching six-figure dimensions Grange did not feel the necessity of taking advantage of the usual time-payment plan in general use among 85 per cent of all automobile owners.

"Red drove from Chicago to Wheaton in his new car where he will spend a few days with his family before getting back into his football togs for a new campaign in Florida.

Dodge Brothers Output Reaches 1,500,000 Cars At 11 a. m. January 14

The building of 1,500,000 Dodge Brothers Motor cars was completed Thursday, January 14, at 10:15 a. m. just 11 years and two months after the first car bearing the name rolled from the assembly line. This production record stands as an achievement never approached by any other motor car maker in an equal time after the building of his first car.

Car number 1,500,000, a special touring car, although greataly refined in point of beauty and riding comfort, shows a striking family resemblance to the first of this noted line, thanks to Dodge Brothers sound policy of constantly improving a standard basic design. During the production of this immense number of cars there has never been an annual model, never a change that was not a distinct betterment.

Continual Growth.

The dates when Dodge Brothers output passed important production fugures show clearly the continuously accelerated demand for the production. The first car was built November 14, 1914.

The first 100,000 cars were completed in 23 days less than two years. The 500,000th car was completed on June 30, 1920, three years, nine months and seven days later. Car 1,000,000 rolled off the line December 12, 1923, three years five months and 12 days later. 1,000,000 cars had been produced in nine years and one month.

The last half million cars were produced in two years, one month and two days—an interesting record compared with 5 1-2 years for the first half million.

The last 100,000 were built in five months and nine days—the first 100,000, in a few days less than two years.

Car No. 1,500,00 as soon as it had been checked by the final inspection department was shipped to the Albertson Motor company of Los Angeles, Calif. Albertson "Scout Cars" have long been familiar sights on the roads of California where they are in constant service laying out and reckening tourists routes and investigating road conditions for newspapers and the automobile clubs. The members of the fleet are Dodge Brothers cars Nos. 300,000; 600,000; 900,000 and 1,200,000. And now Car No. 1,500,000 is on its way to take its place in the well known souct fleet. The Albertson Motor company has a standing order with Dodge Brothers, Inc., for every 300,000th car.

File Advance Orders.

In fact many Dealers have filed advance orders for cars which mark the completion of large round numbers in production. For instance, W. L. Enton, Dodge Brothers dealer in Seattle, Wash., has filed an order for car 2,000,000.

A record of having built and sold a million and a half motor cars in a little over 11 years invites attention to Dodge Brothers production and sales policies. Undoubtedly the policy to which their success should be atributed more than to the others is that which is now associated with Dodge Brothers name whenever the problem of annual models and rapid depreciation is discussed—that is the policy expressed in the words, "Constantly Improved but no early modely."

Strong public demand has kept production capacity of the plant constantly oversold. Dodge Brothers original plant of 20 cars of floor space has been constantly expanded to its present size of 130 cars. The expansion program completed during the last few months at an expenditure of $10,000,000 gives Dodge Brothers, Inc., a present capacity of 1,500 motor cars per day.

GENERAL AFTER BIG SALES YEAR

$25,000,000 Is Goal Set By President for 1926 Record, He Says

Nineteen-twenty-five has been very good to us, and 1926 looks even better," says Wm. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber company, in response to a request for a statement on business prospects for the new year. "For the first six months, at least, business is sure to be stronger than at any time since the boom of a few years ago. Our own faith in the future is proved by the fact that we are equipped and ready to go after $25,000,000 sales. That will mean a growth of practically 50 per cent in our business.

You will note that business men are more conservative than usual ust now in making their predictions. Usually it is easy to look forward over the probable course of a year, if one excepts wars and similar cataclysms. There are no clouds on the business horizon now as we face 1926.

Big Credit Extension.

There is, however, an enormous extension of credit, in business of every kind and to the individual. More business is being done without the immediate exchange of money for goods than ever before, and the credit system is still extending itself, even now. The system is perfectly safe within itself, but anyone of a number of outside causes can disturb it enormously. Hence you find business men reducing their predictions from a year to a half year, and some leaders in the automotive industry are willing to predict only for the first three months of 1926.

Being neither astrologer nor seer I make no effort to peer into the future farther than six months from now. But I believe we are on the upward swing of a prosperity era; that every business is sharing good times and that even better times are coming before the inevitable swing comes toward depression.

Ready to Go

Automobile manufacturers are ready to go," with plans and facilities for the biggest production in history. Unofficial figures show nearly twenty million cars and trucks and busses in operation, all of them wearing out tires. That tells the story for the tire manufacturer.

The present crude rubber situation is a serious but not fatal complication. It effects the ability of the tire manufacturer to budget his rubber requirements at any one price, and high tire prices can interfere with the public's operation of cars. It is safe to predict that there will be no actual, physical rubber shortage to an extent that will curb manufacturing operations in 1926. The trend indicates that there wli be high rubber prices for six months at east, however. The present market has as its basis, fear of a rubber shortage rather than shortage itsef. The fear has broguht on widl buying, speculation and profiteering. I believe that by midsummer rubber makers will be calmer, speculation will have diminished and that the market thereafter will be stendily saner until additional crude rubber for the world's needs comes into production.

3 Month Intermission.

It should not be forgotten, however, that at least three months must elapse before any change in the price of crude can affect the price of manufactured goods. Many manufacturers are just beginning to use the rubber they had to buy at the year's highest price; rubber must come half way round the world from the plantation to the factory. Tires were not advanced in price until long after crude rubber had jumped. That was because the manufacturer for a time was able to use cheap rubber, purchased long before. Selling prices of manufactured goods are based on crude material and labor costs.

There is every reason for optimism for the new year. It might be perfectly safe to gloss the unpleasant possibilities, for a year at least. I have no belief that anything will happen to check greater prosperity in 1925. Still it is always as wise to exercise caution in a period of expansion as in depression. A sound ship can weather almost any storm, but if she is not properly rigged or manned and is handled carelessly disaster is easy. And in good times we all are prone to become careless.

Motor Truck Men To Combat Taxes

Aroused by the action of the senate finance committee in fastening an excise tax on the motor truck wherens the house bill had removed this levy, shippers, users, truck makers and dealers are prepared to exert every energy in fighting this measure which they regard as a penalty on one branch of transportation. Members of the national automobile chamber of commerce are calling a special meeting to formulate a program.

In this battle they have assurance that the issue will be carried to the floor of the house and senate. Many representatives and senators are on record favoring the complete removal of excise taxes on motor cars as well as on motor trucks; and it is possible that much further reductions will be granted on the cars as well as on the trucks now that the senate finance committee has precipitated the issue.

Cheapest Dependable Power

When one counts the advantages of natural gas supply, he must reckon with the cheap power it supplies manufacturing concerns. In this it contributes materially to the well being and growth of gas supplied communities.

Careful analysis of many sets of figures shows that gas costs but two-thirds of the next cheapest in power production. More than that, it is most dependable. Its operation in modern engines is simplicity itself.

LOWER COST—DEPENDABILITY—SIMPLICITY

These three great advantages should interest every power user in this territory. Fullest investigation will enforce the statements made as to the use of natural gas for power

Through its Engineering Department, this company will gladly co-operate with power users.

TRUANT HUBBY FOUND IN FLA.

Southern Resort State Is Popular Place For Them To Hide.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 23.—Runaway husbands here have become one of the nightmares of the life of Mayor John Alsop of Jacksonville. Every day brings fresh letters from deserted wives and families in the North asking the assistance of the unhappy mayor in locating the missing head of the household.

Careful listing of the automobile license, the state and the home town from which tourists come, and the number of persons in each car are required of all tourist camps. By checking up these lists for missing husbands, many a father of a family is discovered happily ensconsed with the new lady of his heart's desire under the balmy breezes of the tourist camp.

In fact, moral conditions in many camps are such that the women who reside in the camps permanently divide themselves into two klans, those who wear the wedding ring and those who argue heatedly that the couples most respected in the cities of the North are living together without the benefit of clergy, so why not in Florida?

Occasionally the appearance of a police officer and an adoring couple dragged ruthlessly apart is the only answer to the weeping Jezebels who don't mind cooking on a folding camp stove or hanging rain-soaked bedding on a bedraggled line in Florida, while a little woman waits alone in her home in the North.

First Coroner

GLASGOW, Ky., Jan. 23.—W. M. Watkins, who recently qualified as Coroner of Barren county, is the first Coroner this county has had in sixty years, according to the records. Just why this office has never been sought is not known, unless, according to a story recently revived, they do not are to hold an inquest. The story relates that a man in this county was elected to the office of Coroner and when he learned holding inquests was required he refused to qualify, saying he "did not care to fool around dead people."

The Coroner is the only office in the county who can place a Sheriff under arrest, and should the Sheriff die, he automatically becomes sheriff.

Saves Mail When Car Catches Fire

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 23.—Although his automobile was almost totally destroyed by fire, O. C. Leathers, rural mail carrier on route 10 leading out of Lexington, loyal to his trust, by heroic efforts saved the mail in his charge after an exciting experience.

In turning a sharp curve in the road, Leathers' car skidded on the ice as he passed another automobile, striking a stone wall and jarring loose ignition wires, which set his car on fire. His first thought was saving the mail. In doing this he narrowly escaped being severely burned himself.

Leathers completed his itinerary in another car which he secured from a nearby farm house and returned to the postoffice on schedule time. He carried no insurance on his damaged car, but postal authorities here will endeavor to secure for him an allowance from the postoffice department at Washington to cover his loss.

Truck Driven By Girl's Father Strikes Her, She Sues and Collects

LINCOLN, Neb. Jan. 23.—The Nebraska supreme court has just entered a judgment of $2,500 in favor of Miss Rose C. Peterson against the Troy Laundry company, a suit the like of which has never before been known, say the lawyers who tried it.

Miss Peterson's cause of action was based on the charge that she stepped out into an Omaha street after a street car had passed, only to be run down by a laundry truck driven by her father. Neither the daughter nor the father saw the other. The girl went to a hospital for several months, and when she got out sued the company for $20,000 damages. The jury awarded her $4,500, but the court cut it down to $2,500.

Witness for Daughter.

The father was the principal witness for his daughter, although it meant that he jeopardized his job with the laundry company. The latter said that as a matter of fact Peterson was operating his car properly and was on the right side of the street, and that if the girl had taken time to look before she stepped out from behind the car the accident would have been avoided. The father tearfully protested that while he never intended to harm anyone, he had attempted a short cut to his destination that included violation of traffic laws.

Testimony Disagrees.

The supreme court, passing on the case, says that a totally disinterested bystander gave testimony contradictory to that of the father, and that he ought to have been given equal credibility, but that it no longer attempts to explain why juries act as they do.

The defense urged that a father charged with the support of all members of his family could not properly be a factor in a suit out of which a daughter might profit. The other side pointed out that no one contended that the father and daughter collaborated in producing the accident and the court agreed.

Love Complicated These Days; Here's Different Styles

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—The ancient superstition that "marriages are made in Heaven," has much to do with the increasing number of divorcees, according to Prof. David Seabury of New York.

"Marriage must shape itself to human nature and it is silly to think that they can be predestined," Professor Seabury declared in an address at the Sinai Temple last night.

"There is nothing more insane than the present marriage ceremony in which the contracting parties promise to 'love forever'," the professor said. "It is biologically and psychologically impossible for two persons to make such a promise because love is not of the will."

Here Is List.

Professor Seabury has classified seven kinds of love and explains them as follows:

1. Mate love. This is the highest form and in this classification the two people are psychic partners, just as happy together as alone—the dual solitude idea.

2. Partnership love. Here it is the desire to build a home and have children that predominates.

3. Romantic love. This follows the Romeo and Juliet idea and lasts only as long as the romance endures.

4. Emotional love. Magnetic unity, like the devotion of a dog for its master, dominates this kind of union.

5. Sex love. Inadequate in itself but very necessary as a supplement to other forms.

6. Propinquity. Mutual surroundings and experiences controls this form of love.

7. Frigid love. This form is nothing more than marrying for a lunch basket, the search for security and protection.

WILL ISSUE COINS.

DUBLIN, Jan. 23.—The first step toward a separate Free State currency was taken by the finance minister, Ernest Blythe, who introduced a bill in the Dail Eireann, empowering the government to issue silver, nickel and bronze coinage. Other items over 40 shillings, the existing British currency will remain unaffected.

MINE HIDES HUGE STILL

Abandoned Oklahoma Shaft Used By Bootleggers to Ply Their Trade.

PICHER, Okla., Jan. 23.—One of the largest and most complete distilleries ever uncovered in the State of Oklahoma was found in an old abandoned mine recently, which was destroyed by fire in 1923. The mine is within three blocks of the main street of Picher and was about mined out when the fire occurred, therefore it was never reopened.

Two federal men, Ben Butler and John H. Vickrey, came to Picher about a month ago and started to work in the lead and zinc mines as miners. During this time they made purchases of liquor in drug stores and pool halls and finally were led to this gigantic distillery. It is estimated the still and equipment are worth more than $25,000.

No Arrests Made.

The mine is electrically lighted and had natural gas piped into it for cooking the mash. The gas bills were paid under the name of the McGuire Garage, a blind business enterprise. The city water main had been tapped by the owners of the still.

Entrance to the hoisting room and mine shaft was made through a secret door in the garage. The hoisting room was outfitted with an electrically driven hoist.

Time-Table Good For a Geography

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 23.—"It's a long way to Chicago where we used to live," said Mary to her teacher, whose class is learning geography out of a railroad folder. "But see how straight the railroad is," added John. "Let's go to Borneo," urged another.

Thousands of children in the Pacific Northwest are interested in the new method used quite often of studying the rail and steamship literature. Officials of all the national lines have contributed masses of printed matter to state school authorities for this special course. As to its benefits—there is not a dull moment during geography recitation when the multi-colored folders are handed to the pupils.

All New Models With the

New "Enclosed Car Motor"

Now Nash has solved the problem of providing power, speed, acceleration, quietness and long life, in a passenger car engine from a standpoint entirely new to the industry.

Come in and inspect, among other important features, the latest Nash engineering achievement—the new "Enclosed Car" motor.

Reversing general engineering custom which developed the motor to the open car standard of needs, Nash has created a motor which endows the closed car with a radically new type of performance.

Larger—and with 25% more power—this new Nash "Enclosed Car" Motor gives to a Sedan the brilliant "liveness'" and sparkling responsiveness that has hitherto identified the finest kind of touring car action.

In all those qualities dear to your heart—smoothness, quietness and flexibility, through the entire range of speed and power—Nash has literally re-created former standards.

The thoroughly remarkable "pick-up" of this new "Enclosed Car" Motor is vividly evident when you realize that it flashes from stand-still to peak-speed in 23% less elapsed time than before.

Yet it is so economical that consumption of fuel has not been increased one iota.

And the design is such that with normal usage you may expect the mileage to mount well up into five figures before you give the motor the slightest though beyond ordinary care in changing oil.

Seven main bearings. Four cam shaft bearings. Still larger crankshaft, and it's counterbalanced! Forced Lubrication. Oil purolator—gas cleaner and air cooler on all models. Many added refinements.

ETHYL GAS NO HAZARD, CLAIM

Cummings Is Told Its Sale Should Not Be Prohibited.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—Commercial gasoline containing tetraethyl lead is not a hazard to the public health and there is no reason why its sale should be prohibited under proper regulation, Surgeon General Cumming of the public health service has been informed by a committee appointed to study the subject.

The investigation was ordered by the surgeon general last May as a result of the death of five workers at the Bayway, N. H., plant of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey.

The report of the committee was based upon a study of 252 individuals exposed in various degrees to the exhaust fumes of the gas and who had handled and distributed tetraethyl lead gasoline.

No cases were discovered of lead poisoning or other disease resulting from the use of ethyl gasoline, the report said.

The investigation gave special attention to automobile drivers who were exposed to exhaust gases in a much higher degree than the average automobile owner. It was pointed out, however, that the health hazard in the manufacture and blending of tetraethyl lead is serious and must be the subject of precise regulation and care.

The committee asked that provision be made for a continuing study of the problem.

Conscience Hurts; She Finally Pays

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Jan. 23.—Joe Appell, representative of a life insurance concern at Boonville, until recently a resident of this city, received a money order a few days ago from a conscience-stricken woman in Oregon. Some years ago Appel lived in Avondale, a suburb of Evansville, and he lost a number of chickens by theft. They were unable to learn who was responsible. A letter with the money order told Apell the story. The woman who wrote the letter said she was leading a different lief now.

The letter follows:

"This has been a burden on my heart for some time. You know when I lived next door to you in Avondale, some of your chickens got over in my yard and, I killed them and I afterward learned that they were yours. I always wanted to tell you and pay you for the chickens, but I could not make up my mind to do this for fear you would think I stole them. So I am sending you a money order. I hope you will forgive me for I am leading a different life now. I hope you will write me when you get this letter and forgive me for I feel like God has forgiven my many sins."

Appell did not want to make the name of the woman public.

Animal Spirits —By James J. Montague

Bill came into the locker room Sunday and stood around a while to watch one of the bridge games. By and by Howard, who was seven or eight dollars ahead decided that he had had enough.

"Sit down and take my place, Bill," he said. "This is a lucky seat."

"Can't do it," said Bill, and stretched forth his right hand, which was swathed in bandages.

Naturally we inquired what had happened.

"Just a dog," said Bill. "I spent last evening over at Egbert's. Egbert and his wife think a lot of that dog, lovely little creature that he is."

"I understand he's a very bright dog," said Howard. "Does all sorts of tricks."

"Yes, he's bright enough, I suppose. Smart as a steel trap would describe him better though. Someday he'll follow Egbert over here to the course, and he may have difficulty getting back home again. I'm anxious for a return match with him, dear little fellow."

"Go on—what did he do to you?"

"Well the wife and I dropped into Egbert's for a Sunday afternoon call. The dog sa wus through the window and before we had even rung the bell he began to voice his disapproval of us. Egbert and his wife were upstairs, and when they heard us they told us to open the door and walk in.

"The dog met us in the hall with bared fangs and menacing grols, and bracing himself by thrusting his fore feet ahead of him barred our way. "Egbert's wife heard him, and called down for us to pay no attention to him and walk right into the living room. She might as well have told us to pay no attention to a machine gun.

Finally I had a bright thought and threw my overcoat over him, and in that way we managed to get past.

"But he worked loose from the overcoat in a few seconds and came after us.

"Naturally we stepped up on a couple of chairs while he ran around us gnashing his teeth and braking. Then Mrs. Egbert came down stairs.

"Dear little Togo, she said. You oughtn't to take such violent dislikes to people." She set him gently behind her, and he stayed there glaring at us from between her feet and snarling.

"He hasn't ben very well today," said Mrs. Egbert. "We're quite worried about him. He ate a whole mince pie for his dinner last night and his tummy is upset. But do sit down and make yourselves at home. He'll love you as soon as he gets used to you."

"We talked for a little while, and then, being a little uncomfortable, I shifted slightly in my chair.

"Instantly Togo leaped at me and would have had me by the throat if I had not hastily seized a book from a table near by and blocked him.

"'Naughty, naughty little dogie,' said Mrs. Egbert, 'Mustn't bity bity even if ums is bilious.' Then, turning to me 'Better not move about wuch William. It makes him dreadfully nervous to have people fussy when he feels so bad. Just sit quietly and he soon will adore you.'"

"A glance at Togo convinced me that he could adore nobody. He had retired behind a table, and was giving me one dirty look after another. I sat like a rock, for fear that if I batted an eyelash he would be after me again."

"'He's having his little tantrums this morning,' said Mrs. Egbert reaching down and stroking one of his ears 'but he's the most affectionate creature in the world when he's himself.'"

Togo bared his teeth and growled.

"'And of course he doesn't like bright colors, and that necktie of your's is a little bit gay, isn't it. Sit up Togo, and let me see the little paw you got the pin in last week."

Togo sat up, but reluctantly as he did so, he arranged his hind feet so that he could spring at me on an instant's notice.

"He was quiescent for a while. That is he didn't say anything excepting when I would make some slight movement with my hands. Then he would burst into a paroxysm of barking, which he kept up till his breath failed him.

"I tried to ignore him, and to talk about the weather and the neighbors and such other topics as I could think of. But presently Mr. Egbert came down stars rather hasitly, and on the landing knocked a hat his wife had left on a chair to the floor.

"I arose to pick it up, and just as I laid hold of it Togo laid hold of me. He was a small dog, but he has extremely sharp little teeth, and it seemed to me that they sank to the bone. Egbert grabbed him by the middle and tried to unfasten him, but he held on like a rattle snake, and it was not until I had nearly strangl. him with my free hand that I got the other one away from him.

"Mrs. Egbert was in the meantime wringing her hands and expostulating, and I was quite moved to think that she was so deeply stirred till I found out that it was the dog and not me who had her sympathy.

"'Egbert,' she wa cr ying hysterically. 'This excitement will be the death of him. Oh William, how could you offend him that way?'"

"'I thought that Egbert, who had gone into the other room as soon as his wife picked the creature up in her arms was going to get me a drink. But I was wrong. I heard him trying to get a telephone number.

"'Don't bother about a doctor.' I said. 'I'll be all right. Just get me a bandage and a little scotch.'

"'In a minute he called back, 'but first I must get the vet down here. The blood always rushes to his head when he gets angry like that and sometimes it gives him fainting spells.'

"'Yes, and they are dreadfully dangerous' said Mrs. Egbert. 'Do tell the vet to hurry.'"

"'I got the scotch after a while and felt better. But I thought it was time to be going, and so did my wife. I've been passing Egber's house for the last two days with an ammonia gun, hoping that lovely little Togo will be out in the yard, and that I may have an opportunity to give him a fainting spell that will be permanent.

"But though he always sees me from the window and tells me what he thinks of me he never dares to come out and meet me face to face. The dirty little coward."

Offers Apology

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 23.—"I beg the Court's pardon for not hitting him," said Louis Webber, 80-year-old Civil war veteran, to Judge Henry Bray at the trial of Jim Brown, negro ex-convict whom Webber had shot at when he found Brown trying to break into his drug store. "It was dark and my aim was bad. I blame the mistake on my musket, which hadn't been fired for 25 years. I'm sure sorry to put the court to the trouble of trying this man." Brown pleaded guilty and was sentenced to a term of one to three years in the penitentiary.

BUILDING KAUFMAN ROAD

KAUFMAN, Texas, Jan. 23.—The work of pouring concrete has begun on the eleven-mile stretch of highway No. 40, the Kaufman-Dallas road. Workmen have completed eighty feet on the curve just west of the Big Brushy bridge, three miles out of Kaufman. Traffic is detouring by way of Rose Hill.

'Weed' Cooperative Sells 100 Million Pounds of Smoke

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 23.—Tobacco growers of the Burley tobacco district, comprising the states of Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Missouri, Tennessee and West Virginia, are jubilant over announcement by its headquarters here that since Dec. 1 the Burley Tobacco Growers' Cooperative association has sold for the affiliated growers more than 1100,000,000 pounds, for approximately $30,000,000, which huge sum is expected to be distributed among the members of the association within the next few months.

This announcement was made at the executive offices of the association here, when another sale of 40,000,000 pounds of Burley pooled tobacco of the 1923 and 1924 crops was made to the Ligget & Myers Co. This is in addition to the 30,000,000 pounds sold to the same company earlier in the same week and brings the total purchase by that concern from the association up to 40,000,000 pounds.

Cops Too Heavy

FORT WORTH, Jan 23.—A reduction in the Fort Worth police department is planned by City Manager Carr Carr unfolded his plans Wednesday. He has no idea of actually trimming the force numerically.

"But a lot of our men are getting like me, a little too hefty," grinned the manager.

"If the force is to look its best and render the best service to the city, there must be come reducing."

Carr hasn't worked out the details of his plan, but there'll be a regular schedule of calisthenics, he intimated.

Greek Meets Greek

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 23.—Victor E. Smith, assistant to Walter W. Head, president of the Omaha National bank, was leaving police headquarters just as Municipal Judge Patrick, who handles traffic violation cases, was arriving.

"Well, well, if this isn't my old friend, Vic," exclaimed the judge grasping Smith's hand. "I haven't seen you for a coon's age. Come down and visit me some time."

"I certainly will, some time in the day or so," Smith promised. The banker neglected to state that he had just bailed himself out after arrest for speeding.

Has Wild Night

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 23.—Arrested four times during the night, a young scion of one of the city's most prominent families must answer to three charges of drunkenness and one of abusive language and assault on an officer.

A friend of the young man was also booked on charges of drunkenness. Raising a row in an all-night restaurant, Officer Saladino interfered and was knocked down.

While on his way back to the station, after being released on bond, to obtain information about the charges, the young man drove his car into an ice wagon, knocking the driver into the street and severely injuring him.

SUPERIORITY too Great to be Overtaken

Today Chrysler is talked about and desired with even greater eagerness than two years ago, when it brought the first new note to motoring efficiency in years.

Chrysler was first to sweep old traditions aside. The new kind of performance, comfort and beauty which Chrysler created, captivated the public and exerted a tremendous influence on all motor car developments since that time.

But even the past two years have not brought any other car abreast of Chrysler.

Chrysler, meanwhile, has developed its own new measures of manufacturing fineness, new features of extraordinary equipment, new superiorities of performance and new standards of riding and driving ease—in the Chrysler "70" and the Chrysler "58" as well as in the new and superfine Chrysler Imperial "80".

The world has given recognition to outstanding Chrysler superiorities with a volume of popularity that sweeps beyond any previous height.

The purchase by the public of more than 280 million dollars' worth of cars of Chrysler manufacture during the first two years of Chrysler history takes premier rank among the industry's most brilliant achievements.

The Chrysler Corporation promises that the emphatic superiority which is the foundation of this overwhelming success, will be kept as far in advance as it is today.

PIGGLY WIGGLY HAS SURPRISE

It Furnishes Groceries For School—And Something For Ladies

The Piggly Wiggly stores, which will furnish groceries for Mrs. Chitwood's use in the cooking school have planned several novel surprises for the ladies who attend the school, according to Mr. Gaskins, local manager.

Piggly Wiggly is vitally interested in anything of interest to the housewives of Wichita Falls and we are glad indeed, to participate in this school, said Mr. Gaskins yesterday.

"We carry all of the articles Mrs. Chitwood uses in her school and we are always glad to co-operate in a venture of this kind.

Oldsmobile All Set For Big Year, Says General Motors Head

The 1926 motor car year got under way with a bang at the New York Automobile Show when the various motor car companies gathered together their eastern distributors and dealers and unfolded plans for the year. It was the concensus of opinion that not a speck was apparent on the horizon to mar the prosperity of the coming year.

Among the many large organizations foregathered in business session and banquet, were the dealers and executives of the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan.

Both sessions of this company were presided over by D. S. Eddins, general sales manager. The afternoon session was devoted to business, the evening session to a banquet.

Sloan is Speaker.

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of the General Motors Corporation, stressed the value of manpower in any organization as the most powerful factor for success and told of the corporation's confidence in the personnel of the Olds Motor Works. In speaking of the future outlook for Oldsmobile, Mr. Sloan said, "General Motors is right behind Oldsmobile. Oldsmobile is one of the members of the General Motors family that has made great progress and we are planning for even greater progress in the future." I. J. Reuter, president and general manager of the Olds Motor Works, told of the additional facilities and personnel at the Oldsmobile factory preparing for the doubling of production during 1926. He told of new types of machinery and new manufacturing methods developed at the Olds Motor Works, and ended by reminding the dealers that their responsibility to the public only just began when a car was sold.

"Bad Nights" Will Undergo a Test

"Atmospheric blanketing," a radio annoyance generally classed as a symptom of "fading," today was given its own place in the list of wireless ailments and charted for further clinical investigation.

Members of the Northwestern university department of physics and engineers of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer corporation, who are jointly conducting an investigation of atmospheric conditions affecting radio reception, today announced the result of preliminary observations which are to be used in the national tests of static and fading on the nights of February 9, 10, and 11 from eight to eleven o'clock, central standard time.

Chicago this season has presented a number of phenomena which are very interesting as well as contradictory. The Monday night after Christmas was clear and cold—a night of the type which hitherto has been looked upon as ideal for radio reception. But despite a complete absence of dampness and heat, few out of town stations were heard and such signals as were registered showed a serious deminution of volume.

It was the experience of observers at various points in the city that fading, generally associated in the public mind with "bad nights" for radio, was so slight as to be negligible.

Station WSB, which reaches Chicago with considerable variation in volume, was almost constant. There was little or no fading in WGY or WBZ, where it had been expected, nor, for that matter, from any of the eastern stations. On the other hand, Omaha, which is well received in northern Illinois even in summer time, was very erratic.

Big Gains Shown In Texas Wealth

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 23.—Texas' assessed values in 1925 showed the first definite swing back from the deflation period, and increased $183,125,268 to a total of $3,692,217,082, Comptroller S. H. Terrell has announced.

Nearly 165 million acres of lands gained in assessed value $72,000,000 to a total of $1,429,379,131. Value of city property (land) crossed the billion-dollar mark, gaining $69,000,000 over 1924. Railroad assessments gained only one million dollars to $140,000,000.

Capital Stock Drops

Capital stock shares dropped 50 per cent to $874,906.

A million and nine thousand carriages of all kinds, including buggies, automobiles, bicycles and wagons, assessed for an average of $10 each showed a gain of $14,000,000 in the property total.

Total state tax on these valuations will be $27,737,071 for the year.

For the first time since the deflation period, possibility that the ad valorem tax rate may be cut was indicated in the substantial increase of property values.

Property of companies and corporations dropped from $157,000,000 to $136,000,000 and value of shares in banks from 73 to 71 millions. Goats gained in value $200,000 to a total of $3,157,475; hogs dropped $400,000 to $2,052,000 while there are 10,200 dogs assessed at $212,701, which is $5,000 less than in 1924.

PROHIBITIONIST DEAD.

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 23.—Miss Marie C. Brehm, 65, candidate for vice president of the United States on the prohibition ticket in 1924, died at her home here today from injuries received in the Pasadena grand stand collapse on New Year's day.

The noted prohibitionist is the sixth fatality of the tournament of roses distaster, in which 114 persons were injured.

If The Bone In Your Little Toe Is Getting Smaller, That's the Moneky In You, Famed Scientist Declares

Incidentally, He Says Your Ears, Arms and Feet Are Not Mates and That Your Eyes Are Set Awry And Your Mouth Is Lop-sided.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Tendency of the human ear to become smaller, except the lobe, which remains as a kind provision of nature "to give women something to hang ornaments on" was cited among other things today by Dr. Adolph H. Schultz as demonstrating in his opinion the present day working of evolution. Decreasing number of small bones in the little toe and the passing of the wisdom tooth are others.

Dr. Schultz is associate in anthropology in Johns Hopkins Medical school and is widely known for his research concerning the bodily structure of man as compared with the primates.

For the edification of man—and woman, too— who ever is prone to believe that he is perhaps a perfect specimen, Dr. Schultz enumerated the following as not certainly but quite likely to be wrong with him;

His eyes are not in the same horizontal plane.

His ears are not the same size.

His mouth is bigger on one side and the sides are not on the same level.

His right arm is longer than his left.

One foot is larger than the other.

His collar bone is not symmetrical.

"In the past the tendency was for the human ear to continue to grow after birth and increase in size in proporion to the body," Dr. Schultz said.

"Now we find the tendency is to decrease in size in proportion to the body. Strangely enough, the lobe of the ear is not decreasing."

Bones are decreasing in the little toe while in highly civilized races the wisdom tooth now in many cases has only one root, he continued, while in primitive races it still has three.

HAYS MEATS AT COOK SCHOOL

Meat Day to Be Studied Under Direction Of Mrs. Chitwood.

How many of you remember "meat day" at the school last year?

John Hays of the Sanitary market was kind enough to come to the cooking school and show the housewives the various cuts of meat and to explain in detail their costs.

This year Mrs. Chitwood has another novel plan—and of course, the Sanitary market will supply all the meat for the school. Housewives whose meat bills are proving problems—whose husbands want something new and something better, are urged by all means, not to miss "meat day" this year.

Full announcements will be made later.

Fisher Expands At Oakland's Request

PONTIAC, Mich., Jan. 23.—In order to meet the demand for an increasing number of bodies for the Oakland Motor Car company and to provide adequate facilities for producing bodies for the new six cylinder car, Pontiac, to be introduced early this week as a companion to the Oakland Six, the Fisher Body Corporation is expending approximately a half million dollars in additional building and equipment at its Pontiac plant.

The present Fisher Body Corporation's $2,000,000 plant has been devoted exclusively, beginning two months ago, to building Oakland bodies, due to the tremendous demand that followed the appearance of the new Oakland and the monthly breaking of sales records since that time. The building additions will add 60,000 more feet of floor space.

INDIAN IS WEALTHY.

HENRYETTA, Okla.—From a ragged, barefooted, uncared-for boy to a millionaire, is the record of Punskee "Barney" Fields, a fullblood Creek Indian. Punskee was left an orphan at an early age, but made the best of life. Many times he did not have shoes nor enough clothing. Many times he has tramped the site now where Henryetta stands today. He now owns $250,000 worth of property in Henryetta.

On his land there are 24 producing oil wells. Only a few dys ago a new well was brought in and is producing 400 barrels of high grade oil per day. His remembrance of the hardships that befell him as an orphan has caused him to father two distant relatives, Randolph and James Erwin, brothers, who are receiving their schooling at the expense of Fields.

Chevrolet Head Predicts Prosperity

W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager of the Chevrolet Motor company, predicts continued prosperity for the automotive industry during 1926.

"My opinion is that 1926 will be a good year in the automobile industry," he said.

"That there will be as many passenger cars sold at retail as in 1925.

"That there will be more trucks sold at retail than in 1925.

"That dealers will improve their merchandising methods and the dealers who do will increase their turnover.

"That used cars will have to be treated as merchandise and dealt in as such at fair prices and in running order.

"That dealers' improvements in shops and tools will help to reduce the maintenance cost of automobiles.

"That people will never stop buying good motor cars at the right price."

POLISHING IS COSTLY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—That gilded descendant of the old sawdust box—the brass cuspidor—costs a single big office building in New York $21,000 a year to polish.

The building is the Equitable building and the cost estimates were made today at an "economy session" of the conference of the National association of Building Owners and Managers. The association closed its three-day meeting today with a discussion of real estate values and the evils of over-appraisal.

NEGRO IS SPEAKER.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 23.—For the first time since reconstruction days, a negro spoke in the halls of the general assembly of Virginia today.

William Mack Lee, body servant of Gen. Robert E. Lee, addressed members of the state senate in tribute to his former master. The 88-year-old negro spoke at length giving his reminiscences to an audience which crowded the chamber to overflowing.

TOY GARAGE.

DENTON, Jan. 23.—A garage constructed entirely of toy blocks is being built by little tots in the primary department at the College of Industrial Arts. The tiny pupils are building the shelter commodious enough to accommodate a Shetland pony of average size.

NOSE KNOWS A FIRE DANGER

Dallas Night Watchman Preventing Serious Conflagrations.

DALLAS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The nose of the night watchman knows its business. Guardians of the night in Dallas have become such proficient "sniffers" that an educated nose is a prerequisite for their job. In a brief period, they "smelled out" 60 gas stoves left burning by careless cooks, detected crossed wires, burning cigar stubs, smouldering rubbish, and prevented numerous fires, all through a trained olfactory sense.

A woman has been responsible for much of this training. Mrs. George A. Smith, who aids her husband in the management of an extensive night watchman service, imbued the 100 nocturnal guardians employed by the company with the idea of "following their noses," and each night when the men start to work she is on hand to admonish them.

These men go forth into the night, passing like shadows through dark alleys, peering into hidden nooks, "nosing" about where thief or fire may be lying in wait to steal a man's life or his property. The company maintains its own system of private, underground wires and call boxes, and the men patrol regular beats, reporting to headquarters at definite intervals.

A business man, hurrying away from his office one evening, left a lighted cigar on his desk blotter By night the blotter was mouldering. When the night watchman entered, his nose told him something was wrong. One whiff was enough. He finally located the cause of the odor and probably prevented a disastrous fire.

"PLAIN PEOPLE" FOE OF "REDS"

National Speaker Asserts They Are Greatest Patriots.

HOUSTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The plain people are the greatest bulwarks against Bolshevism, Mrs. Anthony Wayne Cook of Washington, D. C., president general, Daughters of the American Revolution, told members of the three chapters of the daughters at a luncheon in her honor here today.

"They are to be found in the farming homesteads and in the Main Street adherence of the small towns of our nation to the plain, old-fashioned virtues which, please God, we shall also be enabled to make the vogue in the generations to come," she said.

Is Visiting Chapters.

Mrs. Cook's visit to Houston was in the course of a swing around the circle of D. A. R. chapters.

It is not easy, she said, for the West to understand the East or the North to appreciate the problems of the South, "but such appreciation and understanding is the only cement which can hold widely separated groups to the essential ideal of a more perfect union, whether that union has to do with solidarity of a nation or of a patriotic organization such as the Daughters of the American Revolution."

Some mistakes are inevitable, she said, "but if we can avoid making the same ones twice we can depend upon being reasonably well advanced upon the road to success.

Our Real Pride.

"As for you, the people of Texas, I am sure your most enduring pride is not alone in the tremendous number of square miles within the boundaries of your vast state, but rather in the splendid proportion of square, right-thinking citizens who make up your population and constitute your state's real claim to greatness."

She made a plea for elders to interest their children in the society "so that our organization may renew itself in their energy, enthusiasm and outlook just as you and I have had a part in bringing the best we have to offer to our day and generation."

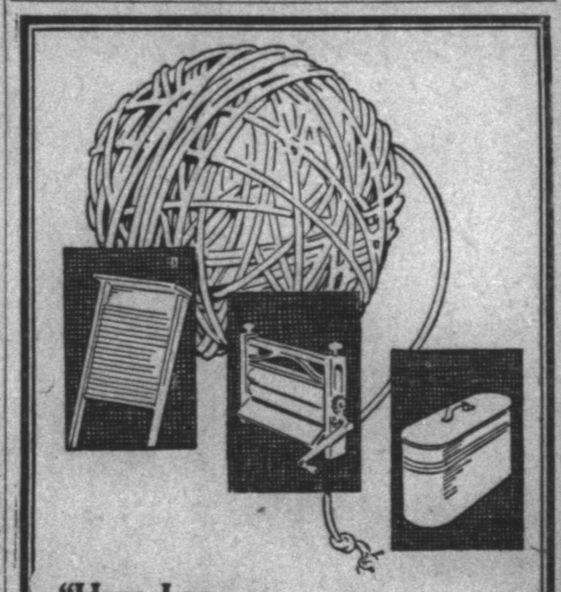

Crane One of The World's Great Men

BOSTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The life of W. Murray Crane made the world "distinctly better," President Coolidge says in a foreword to a posthumus book on the distinguished Massachusetts senator, written by Solomon Bulkley Griffin, eminent newspaper man and for forty years managing editor of the Springfield Republican.

While Mr. Griffin describes Crane as a man and brother, President Coolidge characterizes him "as one of the best example of American life on both its material and spiritual sides." Chief Justice Taft closes the book, to be published Friday by Little, Brown and company with a tribute and the statement that "one speaks of Crane with heartfelt enthusiasm."

COSTLY APARTMENTS

NEW YORK.—Opposite the marble chateau of Mrs. Henry C. Frick on Fifth Avenue are to be the world's costliest apartments. It will take from $200,000 to $500,000 to buy a suite in the 12-story building.

"How Long is your clothesline?"

—MRS. CHITWOOD

Do you measure your clothesline by feet—or by days? Does it stretch from the corner of the house to the fence—or from one week to another, always keeping you tied to a disagreeable task? The true measure of a clothesline is the time it represents in your daily life. A washday a week means 52 days a year, or one-seventh of your time.

To many women who use our laundry service a clothesline means "something to tie up trunks with", or "a rope for the children's sled". They send us their weekly washing—rid themselves of the drudgery of washday slavery—free themselves from the bonds of the clothesline. A telephone call will bring our representative to explain our various services. Call us today.

Mrs. Chitwood recommends less home drudgery—She will send all her table linens and laundry during her Cooking School to the

PIGGLY WIGGLY

HELPS THOSE WHO HELP THEMSELVES

Mrs. Chitwood Shops At Piggly Wiggly

Mrs. Ida L. Chitwood, noted home economist and lecturer, has chosen Piggly Wiggly to supply her groceries for the Record News Cooking School.

There must be a reason for this choice from so well versed a woman in economics! And this reason is not unknown to hundreds and hundreds of housewives of Wichita Falls who shop at Piggly Wiggly.

—They know that during the month they save enough on their groceries to pay the gas bill and perhaps some others as well.

—They know that the food at Piggly Wiggly is always fresh—made possible by a large volume of business in the form of a steady stream of shoppers day in and day out.

—They know that only the best foodstuffs are carried in the Piggly Wiggly stocks—articles that are nationally advertised and those which we stand behind with the firmest guarantee.

—They know that Piggly Wiggly has no bad accounts—no delivery expense—no bookkeeping to charge them for—but foremost in their mind is the knowledge that—

EXPORTS WILL BE SUMMED UP

Vast Insurance Business To Be Reviewed When Bureau Meets

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Five years of progressive effort in the extension of America's export business will be summed up in reports of the fifth annual meeting here January 26 of the American Manufacturers' Foreign Credit Insurance exchange, a co-operative organization of 1,100 firms and corporations in thirty- four states.

These members have pooled their credit information on 250,000 foreign buyers of American products, the index to this vast amount of business information proving a basis upon which the exchange issues insurance policies upon exports of its members.

Almost $100,000,000 of such insurance has been written, covering exports to ninety-one countries in every part of the world and every line of American exports.

The actual loss on the first $75,000,000 of insurance written was slightly in excess of $550,000, or approximately three-fourths of one per cent. Officers estimated that at least $200,000,000 more of American export business was done on the basis of information supplied by the pooled ratings.

Electric Ice Box To Be Used Here In Chitwood Classes

Mrs. Ida L. Chitwod will supervise the first demonstration of the Coleman electric refrigerator, handled by Maxwell & Son Hardware company.

This electric refrigerator which supplies the ice box with a modern electric plant, is the solution to the refrigeration problem, according to the local dealers.

The full sized demonstrator plant will be in operation at the Cooking school and will be explained in detail to the housewives of Wichita Falls by Mrs. Chitwood next week.

Navy Replies To Radio Charges

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Numerous protests to the commerce department of undue radio interference by the navy brought the explanation from that department today that the complaints resulted from the use of a certain broad wave length in broadcasting to merchant ships.

This wave length is ordinarily used only in sending weather reports to these ships which can not read the wave lengths of other naval transmitters.

The navy department has conferred with the commerce department and is endeavoring to improve the types of receiving apparatus on merchant ships to solve the problem.

4 Foreign Nations Have Representatives On C. I. A. Campus

DENTON, Jan. 23.—Representatives of four foreign nations, China, Japan, Spain and Mexico, are enrolled at the College of Industrial Arts this year.

Miss Mamie Wah of Eagle Pass is of Chinese parentage. She is a graduate of the Eagle Pass high school and a junior at C. I. A. this year.

Miss Wah speaks three languages. She talks to her neighbors in Spanish, to her mother in Chinese, and to her C. I. A. friends in English.

Miss Toki Kishi of Terry is a freshman at the college and was born in Nagoaka, Echigo, in the northern part of Japan. She came to America with her parents at the age of three. Miss Kishi graduated from the Orange high school last June and is a sister of Taro Kishi, star of the A. & M. football team.

Miss Beatrice Gonzales, a Spanish girl, is a freshman at the college. She graduated last June from the Main Avenue high school in San Antonio. She is enrolled in a literary course.

Miss Consuelo Muzquiz, a Mexican girl, enrolled in the college last fall from Eagle Pass. She graduted from the high school there last June with second honors and has begun work at C. I. A. on a literary course.

Spanish Fliers Reach Huelva.

HUELVA, Spain, Jan. 23.—Capt. Ramon France, and Capt. Ruise De Alda arrived here today from Melilla, Spanish Morocco, in the seaplane in which they plan a flight to South America and the United States. They plan to hop off from Palos on their South American flight on Friday.

Producers' Products Used Exclusively In Big Cooking School

Producers Pasteurized Milk and Cream and Wichita Maid Butter will occupy places in the limelight at the Record News Cooking school next week.

"I am mighty glad that Mrs. Chitwood is coming back to conduct a school, said Roy Priebe, manager of Producers Creamery, yesterday. We were highly pleased with the splendid demonstrations given by Mrs. Chitwood last year and this year's program with all the new features should be equally interesting. I predict a good crowd at the school and an even greater interest than that shown last year.

BLOOD TESTS WILL TELL

German Scientists Experiments May Find Mayflower Descendants.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Blood tests to identify descendants of those who crossed the Atlantic in the Mayflower or to expose fake survivors of the Light Brigade will soon be possible if experiments of Dr. A. O. Manoiloff, Russian blood specialist, are extended, this scientist claims.

The adage "blood will tell" is literally true, Dr. Manoiloff says. Though his experiments have been limited to Europeans, he asserts that by blood analysis he can tell a Chinese from a Japanese, a German from a Pole. Out of 1,362 Russians and Jews whose ancestry had been traced, Dr. Manoiloff said that his tests enabled him to distinguish between the two races with 8 per cent accuracy.

DALLAS AFTER LOWER RATES

Will Fight For Fire Reduction From Commission.

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 23.—The city of Dallas will wage a determined battle for reduction in its fire insurance rate and lowering of the general rates applied thereon at a hearing here under auspices of the State Fire Insurance commission. Finance Commissioner John Harris will be the city's representative at the hearing.

The city building code, upon which work has been in progress several months, is now completed and ready for passage by the city commission, Mr. Harris announced. It will be cited as meeting demands of the state insurance authorities for regulations on construction here. The code may be presented to the city commission at its regular session Friday or Monday. It will require a week for reading, claus by clause.

MADRID.—Alvator Retana and Juan Caballero, novelists, have been fined, jailed and deprived of civil rights for 11 years for books regarded as offensive to modesty.

Bootleg Ship Caught After Wild Chase In Harbor Off New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—With machine gun fire rattling through the harbor, the tug Rescue led police and Coast Guard boats a thrilling chase almost within sight of New York City during the night and finally was abandoned, her seacocks opened. She was saved from sinking only by quick boarding of the pursuers.

Four men were arrested, four others are believed to have escaped and $1,000,000 worth of liquor was captured.

$150,000 Boat.

The Rescue is a $150,000 boat, equipped for high speed, and recently was sold by the Merritt-Chapman company of New York, the present ownership being indefinite. It is believed that the vessel had loaded her cargo abroad instead of buying it on Rum Row, and was attempting the daring feat of running it direct to a wharf in New York.

Coast guard officials had a tip to watch for the ship. Last night they saw it steaming through the narrows. A coast guard speed boat was sent in pursuit, but its engines failed and as the Rescue drew away the coast guard opened fire.

A police detail heard the firing and sent out a police boat. The Rescue sped directly past the police launch, disheeding signals to stop. The police opened fire. The Rescue dashed on up the East River, with the police following. About a mile up the river the Rescue swerved and then the seacocks were opened, the boat swung toward a wharf, the men leaped over board and the ship was abandoned.

Ship Is Boarded.

Officers drew up and boarded, closing the seacocks just in time to prevent the boat from sinking.

Four men were still aboard or scrambling up the nearby dock. They were arrested. The others escaped.

Officers counted about 30,000 cases of liquor, which they said was worth $1,000,000. It was seized and today was being hauled into Government warehouses.

STOKES IS SUED.

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—William E. D. Stokes, multimillionaire hotel owner and financier, and his son, W. E. D. (Wedley) Stokes, Jr., are named in a suit for $8,125,000 growing out o fthe concessions obtained from the Turkish government by Admiral Colby M. Chester.

C. I. A. CAMPUS TO GET LIGHTS

Denton School Scheduled For Big Improvements This Year.

DENTON, Jan. 23.—A complete lighting system for the campus drives and walks, the moving of the poultry yards, and an improvement of the athletic field are numbered in the list of projects which will be completed before the end of the current session of the College of Industrial Arts. The paving of all streets and drives on the campus with the exception of a short stretch near the Household Arts Building has been completed.

The C. I. A. poultry yards will be moved shortly to a site specified in the landscape plans of Arthur A. Shurtleff, north of the athletic field. The contract for the work will include as well the leveling and aranging of the enlarged premises for athletic purposes. Tennis courts on the southeast portion of the campus will be moved to the athletic field and the total number of tennis courts there increased to eight.

Producers' Milk and Cream and Wichita Maid Butter will be used exclusively

Mrs. Ida Chitwood, nationally known as a cooking and baking expert, will teach new and scientific methods of preparing foods and menus. Her lesson in "Cooking For Pleasure" will be valuable to good cooks and beginners as well.

Mrs. Chitwood's standard of food products is naturally extremely high, and we feel proud that Producer's products were chosen for her school.

We know she'll help us, and we feel sure she'll be helped by our products.

WHEN you are cooking for your family and mix in Producer's Products, you've added something more than ingredients that taste good—

You've Mixed in Good Health

You've put into your dishes and foods certain elements—found only in milk, cream and butter—that are necessary for the nourishment and good health of your family. You've made your cooking formulas recipes of health.

Your family will get nutritive elements from the milk and butter that are not to be obtained from any other kind of food. These protein elements are something the human body cannot do without just as it cannot do without water.

If there are impurities in the milk or cream, your family's health will suffer.

"What stove?"

Mrs. Chitwood chose the stove she will use, by wire. Last year she used a Hotpoint Electric range, and in order that she might have the advantage of the same type of stove this year, wired the Wichita Falls Electric company to save one for her use.

I like this stove so much, said Mrs. Chitwod. It is such a splendid stove to demonstrate on—and it works just as well in the home as it does on the cooking school stage.

Mrs. Chitwood will explain the various details of electric cookery to all who are interested.

VON SEECKT FORBIDDING

Chief of German Army a Relentless Taskmaster.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Though the Imperial German army is only a name today, the chief of staff of the reich's reduced forces, Maj. Gen. Hans Von Seeckt, embodies most of the characteristics of Prussian officers of before the war.

Stern, forbidding and impassive, with never a smile to relieve the apparent hardness of his features, Gen. Von Seeckt when on duty conveys the impression that he is not only a hard taskmaster, but that he spares himself least of all.

At home, however, he is regarded as one of the most affable hosts in German officialdom. With Frau Von Seeckt, he entertains frequently and President Von Hindenburg, who visits in few homes, accepts invitations to the general's mansion from time to time.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTIZE.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—"Madame Gaston Doumergue" is really her name, although she is not the wife nor any relation of the president of the republic, who, a hardened bachelor, is not considered likely to give any woman the right to bear his name.

The "Madame Doumergue" in question sells vegetables in the covered market of Carcassone and her name, which is authentic, since she is the wife of a Gaston Doumergue, is inscribed over her stall in accordance with municipal regulations. The regulations, however, do not prescribe the large and flambouyant letters she uses.

"She was permitted this form of advertising, however, until she added a bunch of tricolor flags painted on each side of her name. Then the police intervened and recommended the removal of the flags, with their suggestion of official connection.

THE KAISER CHANGES.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The former kaiser of Germany is pictured as a great "home body" and lover of nature in motion pictures taken at Doorn which have just been shown in London. There is no suggestion of the military in the film, the former Hohenzollern ruler being revealed as a trim and bearded figure very moderately dressed. One scene shows him feeding birds in his snow covered garden while in another he makes a solicitious tour among the villagers with his wife and her children. The general effect is one of domesticity on every hand, entirely free from worry about how Germany or any other part of the world is getting on in its post-war struggles.

Time Destroying Famed Paintings

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Masterpieces of painting that the world can never replace, including such works as Leonardo da Vinci's "Mona Lisa" are deteriorating so rapidly under varying temperatures in museums and central heating and tobacco smoke in private houses that these great canvases will soon be only shadows of themselves. M. Albert Flament, widely known French painter, raised this cry of alarm after a recent visit to the Louvre.

The "Mona Lisa," M. Flament said, was a piece of brilliant coloring when it left the hands of Leonardo and now is nothing more than an outline in tints that remind M. Flament of gingerbread.

SKYSCRAPERS DEBATED

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—No invasion of foreign art has ever provoked a volume of conflicting criticism equal to that aroused by the exhibition of American architecture at the Academy of Arts under the direction of Max Liebermann.

Assailed by some as "art-soulless" the American skyscraper is accepted by others as an aesthetic development born of economic necessity. The adverse criticism is inspired by the traditional eGrman aversion to tall buildings which obstruct full view of the sky.

Opera on the Air

NEW YORK, Jan. 23.—Guiseppe de Luca, baritone, of the Metropolitan opera, Dusolina Giannini, soprano and Renee Chemet, violinist, are announced as the artists for the third radio concert in the new series of the Victor Talking Machine company. They will broadcast through WJZ, New York, and other stations of the network of the Radio Corporation of America, on the evening of Jan. 20, beginning at 9 p. m., Eastern standard time.

With these artists will be heard the Victor salon orchestra, under the direction of Nathaniel Shilkkret. The program will consist of 16 numbers, divided equally among the three artists and the salon orchestra.

WAR ON LITERATURE.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Paris, home of highly spiced magazines, is going to have its book and periodical stalls censored. Prefect Morain has declared war on the purveyors of "snappy" literature, who had a profitable holiday season, which they attributed largely to the large number of foreign visitors in the Gay capital.

The prefect has announced that the plea that the undesirable publications are devoted to "atr" will not be tolerated and he is not afraid his reputation for "culture" will suffer as a result of his campaign.

SEEK NEW UNIVERSITY

TOKYO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Dispatches from Korea state a movement has been started by American missionaries there for establishment of a new university at Seoul. Considerable funds have been raised and it is hoped construction can be begun this year. The new university would be devoted to higher education for Koreans.

THE WOMAN PAYS

NEW YORK.—Women cannot assault their husbands, then kiss, make up and go free in Magistrate Gresser's court. He ordered Mrs. Mary Corpansky held on $25,000 bail for gashing her husband's head with a plate.

"Electric Cookery Is Better Cookery"

Mrs. Chitwood Chooses the "HOTPOINT" Electric Range

CONVENIENCE is a magic word to the housewife of today. She is ever hunting for more convenient ways of doing her household duties. Electric cookery has proved that cooking and convenience go hand in hand, for the heat is so concentrated, so fully utilized in cooking that little escapes into the kitchen. There is no smoke, no fumes—the cool, comfortable and clean kitchen is no longer a dream but an actuality when a Hotpoint Range is used.

The fireless cooker oven is an outstanding feature of the Hotpoint. It prevents evaporation with the consequent shrinking of meats and the losses of natural juices and flavors. Water in the roasting pan, constant basting, and a double roaster are unnecessary in the Hot Point oven. Even distribution of heat and the maintenance of a steady, even temperature places the electric oven in the lead and assures it first among other types of stoves.

Positive automatic time-control of the cooking operation in the oven is practical with the Hotpoint Range.

We will be pleased to demonstrate the Hotpoint Range to you.

NOBLE-LITTLE GIVE UTENSILS

Pots and Pans for The Cooking School Are Supplied Here

Noble Little Hardware company will furnish all the utensils and dishes used in the cooking school.

There are so many short cuts to better cooking brought out recently, said Mrs. Chitwood, and I am glad that this progressive store has agreed to furnish them for our school.

All of the necessary utensils and dishes for kitchen use will be displayed and demonstrated at the Record News Free Cooking School next week.

DANCE PARTNERS RAPPED

PARIS, Jan. 23.—Professors of dancing in Paris have begun a campaign against professional "dancing partners" of the jazz parlors. They say these men, whose business seems to be to seek out lonely women and see that they are not left to play the wallflower in consideration of tips or other subsidies that do not enter into the category of regular fees, have nothing in common with dancing masters and cast disgrace on the dancing profession by numerous scandals growing out of their traffic.

London Loses A Promising Catch

LONDON, Jan. 23.—London society has lost one of its most eligible young bachelors by the decision of Lord Hobart, only son of the Earl and Countess of Buckinghamshire, to desert England for the great open spaces of Australia. This youthful peer, not yet 20, is riding in the bush as a cowboy in Queensland, while London mothers and debutantes with designs on a distinguished title are regretting his defection from Mayfair.

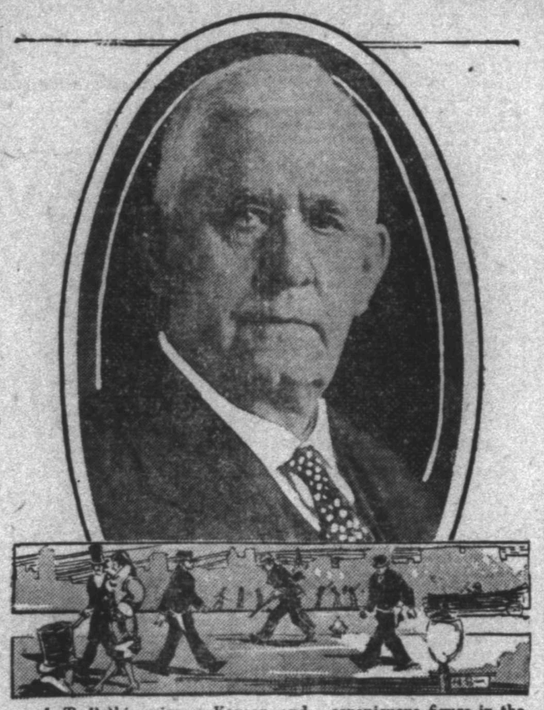

Lord Hobart left Eton a little while ago with the intention of going into business, but a short period in a counting house convinced him he was meant for some other career, so he embarked ond a freighter bound for Australia. There he became a cowboy and now looks forward to a career in the cattle business.

FIRE TUG ON SPREE.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Berlin is proudly exhibiting its first fire tug. It has created something of a sensation and crowds gather on both banks of the Spree river and the Havel canal whenever the new craft appears.

The tug is 50 feet long and can pump 1,050 gallons of water a minute. It is outfitted with wireless so that it can be called instantly even when cruising.

"Six Shooters" on Everybody's Hip Pioneer's Cure for Crime Wave

J. T. Botkin, pioneer Kansan, and a conspicuous figure in the early "six-shooter" days when holdups were few, thinks repeal of the gun-toting laws would end the crime wave. The laws never will disarm the underworld, he says, and they prevent honest citizens from defending themselves with lead, as in pioneer days.

TAXES IN GERMANY TOO

Reductions Made Possible for Taxpayers There.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—While American taxpayers are counting their savings from income tax reductions promised them, Germans also are figuring on economies resulting from the reichstag's new income tax law.

Under the German law the basic exemption limit, for single men as well as married, has been raised to $325 instead of $275. Framers of the law apparently considered a wife no more of an expense than a child, the additional exemption for the wife and the first child being $25 for each. In larger families the scale rises, an additional exemption of $45 being allowed for the second child, $140 for the third and $180 for each additional child, until a man with a wife and six children does not have to pay tax until his income exceeds $1,100.

WANTS A NEW SCHOOL

LONDON, Jan. 23.—An appeal to British artists and manufacturers to get together and create a "new school of design" as part of a "brighter England" movement, was made by Col. Vernon Willey, president of the Federation of British industries, at the annual meeting in Leeds of the National Society of Art Masters.

"One of the strong featnes of the new school must lie in color," said Colonel Willey. "Modern life is becoming so increasingly urbanized that town dwellers feel the necessity of recreating in their homes and in their clothing the bright colors which formerly satisfied their eyes in natural surroundings."

ROTARY BLUB AIDS STUDENTS

Atlanta Organization Is Financial Salvation Of Many Boys

ATLANTA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—During the last four years the Atlanta Rotary club, through a loan fund contributed principally by its members, has made it possible for 143 students to complete their college educations and not a cent has been lost to date.

Without the Rotary fund, the students would have been compelled to drop out of school, for the money is loaned only to students who have exhausted every other resource.

Quick Result.

Four years ago Kendall Weisiger, educational director for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company, was impressed by the number of college students who came to him in search of work. Being without funds, they told Mr. Weisiger they would be compelled to leave college.

$770 Is Raised.

The matter was presented to the Atlanta Rotary club by Mr. Weisiger and the result was instantaneous. A subscription totalling $770 was taken immediately and the Rotary Students' Loan Fund was launched.

Since then $31,440 has been loaned to students faced with the necessity of obtaining funds or withdrawing from school. The average amount loaned each student is $180, although $250 can be obtained.

BANJU BAND A HIT.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Lonodu's first banjulele band composed of society leaders has made a pronounced hit. The leader is Lady Churston, whose husband was formerly an aid de camp to the viceroy of India, other members being her daughter, Joan Yarde-Buller, Lady Diana King and Lady Clifton.

The banjulelists have original costumes for their appearances at private homes and public performances in aid of charity, wearing attractive velvet trousers with white turn back collars and floppy artists bows.

Joan Yarde-Buller is considered the best all round musician of the group, playing not only the banjulele, a combination of banjo and ukelele, popularized here by the Prince of Wales, but also the piano and the violin. She also has a fine voice.

BEER SUDS IN FAVOR.

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—Bock beer suds are holding undisputed sway in Berlin's drinking emporia. For the first time since the war bock, which is served only during the first five or six weeks of each new year, has reached its pre-war strength of 16 percent. Berlin is deluged with advertisements of bock beer festivals at which bock, sauerkraut and frankfurters are the principal attractions.

Chevrolet Coupe Serves Her During Cooking School Stay

"What kind of a car do I drive? "I do not know who told Mr. Brown of the Fox-Brown company, but was delightfully surprised to find a new Chevrolet Coupe which he has placed at my disposal during my stay in the city.

Every woman should drive an automobile—and I prefer one that is smart in appearance, easy to handle and one which will not break down or die in the middle of a shopping expedition or upon an afternoon's call. I find the Chevrolet an ideal car—so easy to use in shopping—and so comfortable to ride in too.

"I place my entire confidence in my Chevrolet, and through the kindness of Mr. Brown, I'll be able to enjoy every minute in Wichita Falls, with never a dull moment upon my hands.

SOCRATES HAD HEAD

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The general conception of the personal appearance of Socrates is only partially upheld by the latest evidence adduced by the British Museum. That institution has placed on exhibition a recently discovered statuette, which shows the Athenian philosopher had the very snub nose with which he is usually credited, but does not bear out the stories of his completely bald head. This is said to be the only fully sculptured figure of the great Athenian made within a measurable time after his death.

Two Wichita Falls Bankers Turn Author and Contribute Business Outlook Articles To Magazine

C. C. Cabiness and Oral Jones Both Predict a Year Of Prosperity for the Nation in January Southwest Bankers Journal.

Two Wichita Falls bankers, Oral Jones, cashier of the City National and C. C. Cabiness, active vice president of the Security National, have broken into the author's class through contributions to the January number of The Southwest Bankers Journal.

This magazine, which enjoys a wide circulation through financial circles from bankers of the territory on business prospects for 1926. Included in the list of published statements are those from representative bank executives in practically all of the larger cities of Texas. Predictions are also included by such authorities as Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust company, St. Louis; Charles H. Sabin, chairman of the board of the Guaranty Trust company, New York; William P. O'Neal, vice president of the Marine Bank and Trust company, New Orleans; Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, Chicago; W. E. Brown, Halsey Stuart company, and others.

The article by Mr. Cabiness is entitled "Commerce Faces a Bright Future" and goes on to point out the various business factors which he believes will contribute to the prosperity of this section of the country. Mr. Cabiness touches on the tendency of the small salaried man to own his home; the decided improvement in the oil industry which is now returning a small margin of profit to refiners, rather than exacting a loss from operation; crop conditions and general merchandising outlooks.

Mr. Jones treats of matters a little more fully and mentions among other things the apparent harmony existing between leading financiers in America and abroad: the attention of congress to tax relief; congressional attention to relief for the farmer; reductions in the national debt: possible inauguration of the civil service system of examinations in the internal revenue and prohibition bureaus.

He predicts a remarkably prosperous year for the Wichita valley, Wichita Falls and its whole trade territory.

Philosophy Mixed With Statistics In This Man's Report

CHICAGO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A Scotchman well past the traditional three-score-and-ten, who scorns the softening convenience of elevator service in reaching his fifth floor office and who, winter and summer, rain or shine, takes an hour's canter daily on the bridle path, is Laurence A. Carton, treasurer of Swift & Company.

Most treasurers' reports are made up only of dry statistical data, but Mr. Carton has learned that the shareholders look forward to his report because he injects something of literature and philosophy into the document.

"What an interesting latitude of the earth's surface we occupy for our purpose, 'whose duties circle with the sun,'" he said in his last annual report. "I came out of a house in London. It was raining, and, to me, the reverse of balmy. But my hose remarked cheerfully, as drops coursed down his top hat: 'A wonderful climate we have here; never too hot; never too cold to work.' Well, why should not we chorus, in respect to our country, what has been said: 'Where the air is full of sunshine and the flag is full of stars,' and be also patriotic?"

Your Kitchen Doesn't Have To Be Stylish

But it should by all means be modern! Kitchen hardware and China can get just as out-of-date as horsehair sofas and bustles. And it can be as hard to get along with.

You who are going to Mrs. Chitwood's Cooking School this week at the Kemp must be sure to notice her equipment. Modern to every piece—from the largest to the smallest, and every one a temper and time saver.

Everything that she uses may be found in our store, for she has chosen us to furnish her with the most modern equipment.

You'll be surprised at the many different cooking helps devised to make cooking easier and more pleasant.

HOOSIER HELPS MRS. CHITWOOD

High-Boy Cabinet Will Simplify Distribution Of Ingredients

A cooking school uses more ingredients in one day than the average housewife uses in a week. For that reason everything to be used must be just as handy as modern methods can keep it.

With a Hoosier High-Boy Cabinet, all the worry and confusion vanishes. Every article is just where it belongs and Mrs. Chitwood has within reach of her hand, the countless articles necessary for a cooking school demonstration.

"I am frank to say that I prefer the Hoosier," said Mrs. Chitwood. It has been my good fortune to demonstrate over the country with Hoosiers and I have yet to find a situation arising where the Hoosier fails to save time and labor.

McConnell Brothers have planned to furnish a special Hoosier display of Hossier Kitchen equipment for the school.

Adams Water A Protection for Home

"Should a home be as well protected as an office?

Mrs. Ida L. Chitwood, conductor of the Record News Cooking School says that it should. And she intends to point out that fact very forcibly in ser series of demonstrations. Mrs. Chitwood will use Adam's Electrified water in the cooking school and show every woman who attends just why it is absolutely necessary to have pure and distilled water in every home.

AGENTS FIGHTING POST

Recommend Oil Spray As Aid in Removing Scale.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Jan. 23. Urging Rio Grande valley citrus growers to spray their trees at the present time to rid them of scale and other pests, County Agricultural Agent Henry Alsmeyer, declares orchards where a regular schedule of spraying has been maintained have demonstrated the value of such practice by yearly turning out better crops of fruit than neighboring unsprayed orchards.

These can be cleaned of scale and other pests now, while they are practically dormant, easier than at any time, he said.

An oil emulsion spray of 50 to 1 strength is recommended by the county agent.

Booze Capacity A Bismarck Favorite

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The esteem held by Prince Von Bismarck, the "Iron Chancellor," for a man who could "carry his liquor" is chronicled in a book just published, the memoirs of General Victor Von Podbielski, late commander of the Prussian Hussars and once Prussian minister of agriculture.

It was 35 years ago that Baron Herman Von Eckardstein, then a mere captain in the horse guards, attracted the chancellor's attention by drinking 100 Bavarian cavalry officers under the table at one sitting. Bismarck heard of the feat and invited the victor to luncheon. Afterwards he told his son, Herbert: "That is a most remarkable man. He can drink like a trooper without losing his gentlemanly bearing. I expect great things from him." And not long after Bismarck placed Eckardstein in the diplomatic service, where he added to his laurels. He served with distinction in America, England and Spain and won notice in 1913 by his advocacy of German treaties with England and Japan that might have changed the course of history.

PUM-KEEN PIE! OO-O-O-O

Swedish Actress Finds It's Best Thing Aloud America, Anyhow.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The best thing Greta Garbo, Swedish screen star, has found about American "ees what you call pum-keen pie."

The acress has been in this country several weeks, having been engaged by the Metro-Goldwyn company to appear in pictures. But it was only when asked the usual question about her impressions of America that she was revealed as an advocate of the pumpkin.

"In Sveden," she said, "ve teenk pumkeens are goot only for to feed cows. But here I eet pum-keen pie and I teenk maybe dat de cows dey know much better than us what ees goot."

Dance Craze Is Life Saver in London

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The great demand for dance music which has swept London in recent months has practically solved the unemployment problem as far as the musicians are concerned. Three years ago there were 3,000 jobless musicians in the city, but the dance craze has absorbed practically all these and drawn many new professionals into the ranks, including several hundred "lady syncopaters" now playing alongside men in jazz orchestras.

Herman Darewski, who leads one of London's most celebrated dance orchestras, is authority for this survey. He estimated that not less than 25,000 melody dispensers were employed in London alone on New Year's eve, playing for dancers in hundred of hotels, cafes, cabarets and ball rooms.

MAN GETS ATTENTION.

LONDON, Jan. 23—Having achieved what they considered something near perfection in the art of bobbing and shingling women's hair, mainly through technical classes in most of the large centers, Lancashire hairdressers are turning their attention to mere man. They consider that man has been more or less neglected during the recent shingling craze for women, and are planning to remedy this by instituting technical classes in Blackburn and other towns for higher learning in connection with tonsorial services for men.

IT SCORES AGAIN.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—"Cyrano de Bergerac" has returned to its stage birthplace and met with a reception hardly less enthusiastic than that which marked its first appearance 28 years ago. Rostand's famous play is being presented again at the Porte Saint Martin theatre, where it was produced originally. Its reappearance produced an ovation, and flowers were rained on the stage at the end of the performance. Repeated calls brought the stars, Jean Coquelin, M. Francen and Mlle. Provost, before the curtain time and again.

Advanced Spring Millinery Shows Few Changes

Advanced spring and summer hat styles show that no revolution has taken place in millinery circles. Above at left the wide poke shape appears in dress attire with hemp crown while ribbon and large flower form trimming. Below, the felt sports hat, done this time in green with tailored trim of grosgrain ribbon. The other chapeaux in the illustration are variations of the popular sports mode!

What's in a Name?

BERLIN, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Appealing to the German passion for official titles, the Bavarian government frequently referred to as the Royal Bavarian republic, has manufactured a number of new titles, 150 of which have been bestowed upon men of various callings, including veterinarians, labor union secretaries, master plumbers, furnace tenders and teamsters.

Each of the titles contains the coveted suffix "Rat" which means "councilor." An "arbeitsrat"—privy councilor of labor—can be a plumber, carpenter or any one who has distinguished himself by working. The title "veterinaerrat" has been bestowed on several horse doctors. Dispensers of pills have exchanged the title of druggist for "herr pharmazierat."

Heated controversy has been aroused by the titular awards.

GREASY GRIND FADING

Keynote of Modern Scholarship Is Personality, Says Professor.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—That the keynote of modern scholarship is the development of personality, is the belief of Dr. John H. Minnick, dean of the School of Education of the University of Pennsylvania.

"Modern education is rapidly doing away with the so-called 'greasy grind,'" he said. "In the old days, superintendents of public schools were most impressed by the marks made by future teachers, but nowadays they are most anxious to hire living personalities for their class rooms than mere fact absorbers."

Lumber Drys Out

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 23.—(AP)—By a high vacuum process, invented by a Swedish engineer, fresh cut lumber is now "seasoned" in a day or less, sufficiently for the carpenters bench.

Thus green birch boards become ready for the finest furniture in 20 hours; spruce and pine in thirty, and oak in forty. Such artificially "cured" lumber, moreover, is free from cracks, warps and "blue" spots.

On sliding rollers the planks are put inside the long, air-tight chambers, where they are first heated by steam coils and then pumped dry by the vacuum process which is 99.9 per cent perfect. This procedure is repeated according to the nature of the wood.

SMALL RESPITE FOR PRESIDENT

Doumergue Has But Two Private Luncheons In a Week

PARIS, Jan. 23.—(AP)—President Doumergue—"the prisoner of the Elysee," as the chief magistrate of France is known—has at last broken through the barriers his rigid social calendar and obtained two private luncheon dates a week for himself, with no questions to be asked or admonitions given by his official social advisers.

Twice a week now he repairs to his old bachelor apartment in the Avenue Wagram. There, the president has retained his lease on the little bachelor flat he occupied during the many years he sat in the chamber and senate. The flat is on the fifth floor, quite high for Paris apartment houses, and there is no elevator. Yet just about noon, twice a week, the chief of state makes the climb all alone, to meet a few intimate friends and offer them a simple dunch in memory of the days when he was merely "Doumergue" or "Gaston" and not "Monsieur le President."

The president takes a good two hours and more for these luncheons, sitting over the coffee, liquers and cigars as long as his official schedule will allow him. Then, with a sign of regret, he descends the six flights of stairs and climbs sedately into a waiting limousine to be whirled back again to his round of official ceremonies.

Ma Makes the Law, Says Applicant

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—"Ma" Ferguson is the "law making body" of Texas.

There are two houses of congress—the White House and the senate.

Texas has five United States senators; they are not elected but are appointed by the people.

Miriam A. Ferguson is supposed to be governor of Texas, but nobody knows if she is or not.

These were among the answers submitted by a class of 51 applicants for citizenship head before Federal Judge James C. Wilson here recently. One man, a tailor knew the number of supreme court justices but maintained that congress presides over the senate. Not one who was asked the name of the vice president could answer.

Nicholas Cris Onoufriou, a Greek was asked if he wished his name changed.

"No, just turn it around and make it O C. Nicholas" he replied.

The court ordered the "turn."

British Woman Is Rival of Weston's As Long Sprinter

LONDON, Jan. 23.—Miss Gertrude Rickards, 70 years old, is challenging the pedestrian record of Edward Payson Weston, the veteran American walker. She recently completed a walking tour of 1,644 miles through Scotland and England.

Bad weather has checked Miss Rickard's tour, but she will resume it next spring. When she sold her country home in 1923 she took up walking to amuse herself.

"I started at Land's End and set out for York at the beginning of my tour, but I went by highways and by ways and not by the main roads," Miss Rickards explained. "I went to the South Cornish coast, Exeter, Bath, Gloucester, Warwick, Rugby, Oakham, Grantham, Lincoln and Doncaster, studying flora and fauna. In 1924 I went to Iverness by way of Edinburg and this summer I reached John O' Groat's, putting in 186 days of actual walking."

HAMMER SLAYER'S TRIAL

Woman May Get More Time for Hearing Result of Court Rule.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Slowing down of the legal machinery of Bexar county may delay the trial of Mrs. Mabel Longworth Sheridan in connection with the hammer slaying of Mrs. Ada McCobb, eccentric 60-year-old widow, in San Antonio last fall.

The case is scheduled to be called January 25, but it is uncertain if Mrs. Sheridan will go on trial then or some time later. The recent decision of district judges holding that the jury wheels had been illegally filled has held up all trials in the county courts, and veniremen may not be available for another week or two.

EARL WAS A REPORTER

Speed Demon at Shorthand, However, Could Not Read Own Notes.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The Earl of Birkenhead, secretary of state for India, started out in early life to be a stenographer, but he did not get very far. He made this revelation in an address to the graduating class of a commercial college. "I thought I would rather be a shorthand reporter than anything in the world and I worked like a beaver," he said. "I was a wonder. I broke all speed records. My teachers had never seen anyone who developed such speed. But there was a rude awakening. Nobody else could read my notes and I couldn't read them myself. So my shorthand ambitions came to a sudden end."

HAM AND CHESSE WIGLETS.

All Night Settings of Paris Chamber Result in Evening Lunches.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—All night sittings of the chamber of deputies, which have become quite usual in recent months are "ham and chess" nights to the chamber attendants. As soon as it is known that a session is to go on, the refreshment manager sends out for extra provisions and between 8 and 9 in the evening great baskets of bread, butter, red and white wine, and above all "ham and cheese" make their appearance.

Hungry deputies wash down dry speeches with beer, coffee or chocolate in the newspaper men's buffet and fortify themselves with great sandwiches of ham and cheese.

SAVINGS HELP HOME CONTROL

Systematic Financing Is An Important Factor, Says Mrs. Chitwood

Mrs. Ida Chitwood, nationally known Domestic Science expert who comes to Wichita Falls Monday to conduct The Record News free cooking school is an advocate of systematic saving for the housewife.

"Every woman must bear in mind that she is running a business—and the home is just as much a business as any mercantile establishment. For that reason I believe that every woman should have her own bank account and should endeavor to run her house on a business basis. Every woman should keep an accurate account of her expenses and if she is wise, she will try to live within the sum allotted to her and have a balance left to put in the savings department.

Save Systematically.

One way for a housewife to save money is to start in on a systematic basis. The City National bank has a Christmas savings fund which is very handy for ladies and by depositing a small amount each week, a nice Christmas budget is the result.

I hope to have one or more of the men of the City National bank tell us, during the school, of the most efficient way to budget household expense, concluded Mrs. Chitwood.

Even Flowers Help

Mrs. Chitwood believes in "flowers for the living—"

At any rate she believes that every home should be brightened up regularly with fresh flowers.

Her little workshop on the stage at the Kemp ballroom next week will be a fitting example of what she thinks a kitchen ought to be. The Wichita Floral company have agreed to furnish Mrs. Chitwood with all the floral decorations necessary for her cooking school.

French Smokers Up In Arms Over Taxes

PARIS, Jan. 23.—The French smoker, as represented by "the National League for the Defense of Smokers" began the new year with the traditional resolution making. It was not the stereotyped resolve to adjure tobacco that he made however, but a determinatioon not to submit mildly to the designs of each successive finance minister to make him the gold mine from which revenue is to be dug for replenishing the treasury's empty coffers.

The council of the league had a meeting to consider the government's proposal to raise tobacco prices to five times the pre-war level. A resolution was voted, warning the government that "these prohibitive rates" would defeat their own ends and pointing that the last increase in the prices of tobacco supplied by the state monopoly which was made in May, 1925, had resulted in diminishing receipts to 12,000,000 francs below the budget estimates.

Belle of Wichita Is Mrs. Chitwood's School Selection

"I am so glad that ou are using Belle of Wichita Flour again"—this from Mrs. Chitwood when told that The Record News had arranged with the Wichita Mill and Elevator to furnish the flour for the Cooking School.

"I have used a number of different brands of flour in my numerous schools, said Mrs. Chitwood yesterday, but I have yet to find a superior brand. The housewives of Wichita Falls are to be congratulated upon having such a splendid product made right here and they can well afford to show real pride in its use.

Flour is a most important factor in keeping house and I hope that my demonstrations with Belle of Wichita Flour will convince the most skeptical upon the merits of this wonderful product.

'Supremely 'Appy' Berlin's Status

LONDON, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Irving Berlin's next song hit should have as a chorus the refrain: "Please say we are supremely happy" for that seems all that the shy jazz composer and his bride seemed able to say when they arrived here for their honeymoon.

Like the hauntting sentiment of the Berlin ballads of the last year or so, this thought runs through everything the world's most talked of newlyweds told the French, British and American reporters who flocked to meet them at Cherbourg and Southampton.

Even the big Cockney lackey who guarded their suite in a London hotel caught the spirit of the Berlin-Mackay romance. For the first few days, he was besieged by callers of all kinds—reporters, song writers, theatrical agents and moviemen—but whenever proposals were made about interviewing the tuneful Berlin and his bride, the gold-braided dignitary was sure it would be "himpossible, sir."

"H'I can assure you, Sir," he always ended, "that they're supremely 'appy."

KING CARNIVAL COMING.

PARIS, Jan. 23.—King Carnival, the 48th of his line, makes state entry into Nice on February 4. His Majesty's tastes are so exacting that workmen have been kept busy for weeks preparing for the event. The decorations this year are so elaborate that the three weeks alloted for the work will hardly be sufficient to complete them and erect the grandstands along the line of march.

"Battles of flowers" take place on February 11 and 18 and March 11. The biggest night fete will be Roman in character and will be called "An evening with Petronius." Only costumes of the Roman era will be worn.

WOMEN WORKERS INCREASE

Japanese Reports Show Steady Gain In Industrial Centers.

TOYKO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Governmental investigations have developed that the number of women workers, bot hin factories and on farms, is steadily increasing. Figures disclose there are approximately 725,000 women workers in the employ of various large manufacturing plants, not including those employed by small factories. Nagoya leads in the number of women workers, with Osaka second and Tokyo third.

OLD WILD WEST TO LIVE AGAIN

Saloon Will be Like in Wet Times all Except Real Liquor

DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 23.—(AP)—An old time western dance hall and saloon, wreaking with the atmosphere but not the liquor of pre-Volstead days, is to greet the members of the Texas Retail Dry Goods association when it meets here in April.

The dry goods men crave a little of the surrounding that were familiar when wet goods were for sale, and L. L. Lorch of Dallas is preparing to satisfy the craving. He is said to have developed great skill in the art of putting on stunt luncheons, and it is said that his wild west dance hall scene even beats Hamlet in dress clothes.

The meeting this year has been set for April 13 and 14 instead of the second Tuesday and Wednesday of June which has been the customary dates, F. E. Morriss, secretary, announced.

One of the business features of the convention will be a discussion of price fixing legislation to be followed by a vote on whether the United States chamber of commerce should foster such legislation.

A recent vote of the directors of the association disclosed that they were strongly opposed to price fixing laws.

Twelve directors who will be elected to take the places of the one year directors whose terms expire include A. R. Watland of Wichita Falls.

LADY LISTENS TO RADIO

Millions of Fans Tune in As Music Starts.

LONDON, Jan. 23.—The radio has brought the British public closer to the royal family. For the first time in history a lady-in-waiting to Queen Mary has appeared before the microphone and been heard by millions of listeners.

The speaker was Lady Bertha Hawkins, an active charity worker, who issued an appeal in behalf of a home for gentlewomen. Speeches of the king, the Prince of Wales and the Duke of York have been broadcast from time to time, but Queen Mary's voice has never yet been heard on the radio, although there is a possibility that it may be in the near future. Both the king and queen are radio enthusiasts and have their own wireless sets at Buckingham palace and their castles in the country.

In Every Home—FLOWERS

Spreading Their Fragrant, Sunny Cheerfulness—This is Mrs. Chitwood's First Admonition.

To my mind the most important thing in the home is its cheerfulness. And I know of no better or more cheerful thing than sunny, fragrant flowers. Cheerfulness is another name for Happiness and every step we can possibly take in this direction means more out of life for us and our families.

Sergi's Death A Tragedy for Paris

PARIS, Jan. 23.—The Paris press has been generous with tributes to the memory of Sergei Yessinin, the young Russian poet who was the husband of Isadora Duncan and who committed suicide in Moscow recently. Yessinin was long one of the most familiar figures in Paris where his death is regarded as the tragic ending of a career which, but for the ruin wrought by drink and drugs, might have been a brilliant one. He is characterized as one who might have been the Russian Virgil and written Slaav "Georgics" had his life been turned into different channels.

One of his last poems has just been published here showing how bitterly he was dissillusioned when he returned to his native land from Paris; "I no longer understand the language of my own people: I have become a stranger in my own country—I who once was ever bawling out what friends we were, I and the people. No one here has any further need of my poetry and in truth no one here has any further need of me."

RUDOLPH PUTS "COBRA" OVER WITH WALLOP

Valentino Cinema Comes To Strand Theatre Next Friday

"Cobra" shows at the Strand next Friday. Rudolph Valentino has made of "Cobra," a photoplay of strong and adult emotions. The theme has been treated sincerely and intelligently

The picture, directed by Joseph Henabery, was adapted from Martin Brown's successful Broadway play by Anthony Coldewey. title itself signifies the appeal of a fascinating woman—the lure of the cobra for its victims.

Valentino is seen as a young Italian count who has an inherited weakness for the cobra type of woman. He makes a successful and sincere effort to reform, only to be lured back into the old ways by the wife of his best friend. This affair leads to a tragic conclusion. To atone for his misdeeds, the Count makes a great sacrifice. The star's emotional acting is superb and he never looked in such excellent physical condition.

Nita Naldi slimmer and more alluring than ever, the cobra woman, while Gertrude Olmsted plays a role of great sympathy and charm. Casson Ferguson returns to the screen with a fine performance as the loyal friend. Other parts are capably played by Eileen Percy, Claire de Lorez, Hector Sarno and Rose Rosanova. Joseph Henabery directed the picture with a fine understanding of the dramatic and psychological values.

"Cobra" was produced by Ritz-Carlton and distributed by Paramount. It is lavishly mounted. The early scenes in Italy and in the New York antique shop are fine examples of the screen's pictorial beauty.

Buck Jones Coming To Palace Sunday

It wasn't so many years ago that the strife between the cattle men of the northern and the southern ranges was savage and long drawn out—the reason being that nearly all Texas cattle were infected with the Texas cattle fever tick. That disease was almost always fatal to cattle, and when the Texas herds started North, Kansas ranchers barred the way at the border. Many a cowpuncher "went West with his boots on" during the resultant gunfights.

The powerful story of "The Trail Rider," written by George Washington Ogden, has that old cattle war as a basis. It is a tale that develops thrilling situations and gives the dashing Buck Jones ample oportunities to show that the man who lived longest was the fellow whose gun leaped from its holster first. The escape from the forefront of a herd of stampeding cattle is wildly pulse quickening.

It is a William Fox production, and will be shown at the Palace theatre today.

"East Lynn" On Screen Today At Mission Theatre

Film Animated Edition Of Famed Godey's Lady Book

Of particular interest to the feminine patrons of the cinema will be the William Fox screen version of "East Lynne," which opens a two-day run at the Mission today.

Aside from the tensity of the drama unfolded, the younger generation of women folk will see visualized the costumes worn by their grandmothers who lived and loved in the 1875 period.

The gowns, hats, wraps and other accessories of women wear used in the film were made only after a careful research into the style magazines of that period—"Godey's Lady Book" and "Demorest's Magazine." The Fox wardrobe mistress thought when the styles had been found that her troubles were ended. But they had only commenced. Came then the finding of a dress-maker or seamstress who could pattern gowns after the styles of half-a-century ago.

As "East Lynne" will show milady's frocks of those days were fearful and cumbersom eand most plentifully ornamented with tucks, frills and furbelows utterly unknown to the present generation. Another hard thing to locate was passementerie, without which no real elaborate gown of the 1875 period could be complete, but it was found.

It was even difficult to obtain silk of the weave and pattern employed in grandma's day. Of special interest to the younger generation will be a wedding gown worn in "East Lynne" by Marjorie Daw. To duplicate this gown today would be utterly impossible, as the type of heavy white silk and ornaments used in it are not now procurable. This gown was loaned to William Fox by Mrs. Esther Harvey of 1372 N. Western Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif., whose grandmother was a bride in June, 1876. The women of the company went into ecstasies over this wonderful wedding frock. None had ever seen anything to approach it. The white grosgrain silk employed in the dress is of unusual thickness and weight and no longer loomed.

Auto Speed Kings In Film Drama At Olympic Thursday

Ben Lyon, Mary Astor With Noted Racers in "The Pace That Kills"

One of the world's most famous automobile race tracks—the Altoona Speedway—was turned into a motion picture location during the filming of the most stirring scenes in First National's "The Pace That Thrills," in which Ben Lyon and Mary Astor will be co-featured at the Olympic next Thursday.

Not only was the track turned over to the company, but a group of the most noted automobile drivers spent an entire day coaching Ben Lyon in the art of automobile racing and in assisting in making the picture a success.

Peter de Paolo, Earl Cooper, Harry Hartz, Jerry Wonderlich, Leon Duray, Wade Morton, Frank Elliott, Davie Lewis, Dr. Shattuc—these were among the racing drivers who taught Ben some of their tricks. And all of them took part in a special automobile race staged for the picture the day after the recent annual spring races at the speedway.

"The Pace That Thrills" is a picture in which Lyon appears as a movie hero. The biggest thrill is an automobile race in which Ben proves his nerve by driving madly against professional drivers, ending his race when his car crashes through a section of the track that has caved in.

All of the automobile speed kings were anxious to have Ben drive their car, but the honor fell to Harry Hartz and when "The Pace That Thrills" is thrown on the Olympic screen Ben will be seen riding in Hartz's car.

Hartz spent a couple of hours teaching Ben the intricacies of the mechanism. Then Peter de Paolo, nephew of the famous Ralph de Palma, took Ben in hand and gave him an hour of intensive training.

"Smilin' Through" To Start Run At Majestic Today

Edna Park Back in Lead Role of Fantastic Comedy

Because of the inability of dainty little Miss Park, the star of the Edna Park Stock company, now holding forth at the Majestic theatre, the production "Smilin' Through" which was announced for last Sunday showing was delayed until today, when at regular matinee time, the production will be presented.

Unusual Show.

"Smilin' Through" is a production which ran for a record time in New York and starred none other than the inimitable Jane Cowl, was written by Allan Langdon Martin and is a fantastic comedy of English life. The story has to do with the loves of two youngsters, who are being kept apart through the efforts of an old uncle, the guardian of Kathleen, the girl. The uncle holds a grudge against the boy for some remote misdeed the boy's father had committed against him many years past.

Finally after many troublesome and heart-breaking events, the old uncle is brought to see that the only true way to real happiness is through service and not grudge-holding, and then brings the two lovers together for the unusual happy wedding. We say unusual happy endings, for after the two youngsters are re-united, there comes to pass a most miraculous occurrence and the audience is permitted to see one of the most beautiful things ever witnessed on the American stage.

The Cast.

Edwards announced today for the second time his cast:

John Carteret, Mr. Edouard D'Oize.

Dr. Owen Harding, Mr. George McManus.

Ellen, Mrs. Helen K. May.

Kathleen Dunganson, Miss Edna Park.

Moonyeen Clare, Miss Edna Park.

Willie Ainley, Mr. Raymond Appleby.

Jeremiah Wayne, Mr. Jack Edwards.

Kenneth Wayne, Mr. Jack Edwards.

Sarah Wayne, Miss Arline Althoff.

Mary Clare, Miss Octavia Powell.

Edward Edmond, Mr. Bentley Wallace.

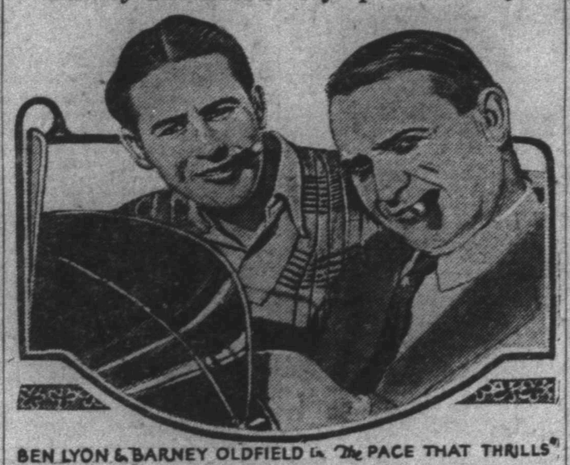

Arthur Spencer, Mr. Andrew Strong.

Reviving the contests, which were held at this theatre a few weeks past, Manager Edwards announces that he has arranged one of the most novel surprises ever invented and that he will spring it on his audience Monday night. It is to be a Charleston contest, but will be different from the others inasmuch as the contestants will not be announced before competing.

Sour Lake Gives New Big Oil Well

FORT WORTH, Jan. 23.—Following closely on the heels of the old Spindletop done deep sand discovery, Sour Lake, one of the coastal old time pools, duplicated with a 2,000 barrel well in sand at 4,250 feet. As in the case at Spindletop, the Sour Lake well was drilled by the Young Lee Oil company. It is on the Martin-Gilbert 10 acres, where the first deep sand well was drilled 10 years ago. It is No. 3.

"KEEPER OF THE BEES," IN NEW LOCALE, ON AT STRAND MONDAY

Changing the locale from the "Limberlost," a great tract of swamp, lake and uncut timber in Indiana, to the sun-kissed slopes of the Sierras as they rear their majestic dignity above the blue Pacific and to the endless variety of desert, mountain and fertile valley that is typical of golden southern California, Gene Stratton-Porter's most recent novel, "The Keeper of the Bees," is the first that ever has been screened in this magnificent setting, which starts at the Strand Monday.

The late author's early books were all written around the country where she was born and raised, and they taught a whole generation to love the outdoors, the fields, woods, and open country.

But Mrs. Porter's second love was California. She built a winter home in Los Angeles and declared that on the Pacific coast she had found her place in the sun.

"The Keeper of the Bees" (Doubleday, Page & Company), the story which Mrs. Porter had completed just before her sudden and tragic death, deals with the curative sun of her beloved Pacific coast. It is the romance of young MacFarlane, a Scottish boy who, held in a detention hospital in California, became convinced that his wound would never heal unless he get back to the sun and the sea. Running away from the hospital, he stumbled into the bee-keeper's house, the sort of house he had dreamed about, set on a cliff above the sea, fragrant and riotous with garden flowers and faced toward the sun. In the sudden misfortune of the master of the bees, MacFarlane and a partner, the Little Scout who was a regular fellow, even if she was a girl, carried on the work. The healing virtue of the sun and the breeze from the open sea brought to MacFarlane strength and hope. On the rocks of the high shore he did an unconsidered deed of kindness and found a strange, bright romance that after many blind and curious episodes brought him a golden reward.

Jack Hoxie Here At Gem in His Latest Picture

Jack Hoxie's latest film thriller, "The Love Call," depicts the struggles of a desert waif for an education, in which the girl is ably assisted by a picturesque cowboy. Following is a short synopsis:

"Kid" Allen lived with her father, Mate Allen, up in the hills. Between drinks the "Mate's" one subject of conversation with the "Kid" was the she "get a eddication." When the "Mate was murdered, the "Kid" started out to get what her dad said she ought to have, and became involved in some exciting and romantic adventures. She fell in love with a young sheepherder who rescued her when she had fallen from her horse onto a ledge of a cliff.

A picturesque cowpuncher took her under his protection and promised to see that she got her "eddication," whatever that meant, even going to the length of beating up an innocent old college professor who tried to explain that an education wasn't a vegetable, but something to be acquired by study.

The play was made from a story by Marjory Benton Cooke, which was published in book form and later syndicated throughout the country, attaining great popularity.

Ray Griffith In Fast Comedy At Olympic Today

It's His Initial Picture As Paramount Star—He Enjoys It.

Raymond Griffith, he of the million dollar personality and shiny "topper," has been elevated to stardom by the folks who turn over theid hard earned money at the box office, and he's sure to vindicate the confidence the fans have in him with his first comedy as a full-fledged Paramount star. He's a Prince!" portraying the life of a young European prince during his working hours. What with reviewing parades, laying corner stones, christening ships, judging baby contests and a hundred and one other equally silly things, a son of royalty, country to the general belief, is not a gentleman of leisure. Actually he is a young man leading a mighty hectic life. But you can bet your life that Griffith manages to get a lot of fun out of it in his new picture, which starts at the Olympic today.

Mary Brian, the famous Wendy of "Peter Pan" fame, is featured in support of the star. "The Little French Girl," and "The Street of Forgotten Men" also saw her in prominent roles. Other big names include Tyrone Power, Nigel de Brueliere, Gustav Von Seyfertiz and Kathleen Kirkham, Carl Stockdale, Michael Dark, Lincoln Plummer, Jacqueline Gadsen and Jerry Austin complete the cast.

The coronation scene in "He's a Prince!" has yet to be equalled on the screen. Some idea of the magnitude of the scene can be gotten from a part of the call the casting office of the studio sent out before the sequence was "shot."

The order was for 20 palace guards; 10 palace officers; one major dumo; 20 palace servants; 12 soldiers to the Queen: one Prime Minister; 4 Dukes; one Archbishop; 15 foreign ambassadors; 8 naval officers; 8 army officers; 6 peers in robes; 8 heralds; 60 women in court dress; 60 men in court dress; 75 women in evening dress and 75 men in evening dress.

It's a real howl when Griffith kicks against being made King and is carried bodily into the coronation room. Then he plans a little revolution to overthrow himself, but the [illegible] double-cross him and made him president of the new republic—and he's just as bad off as before—except he wins the girl.

"He's a Prince!" is Griffith's story, Griffith's gags, Griffith's ideas. Edward Sutherland, Hay's own choice, directed. Keene Thompson wrote the scene play from the story by Reginald Morris and Joseph Mitchell.

Upton County's Prospects Brighter

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 23.—Indications that the Upton county district may reverse the unfavorable results found so far are seen in the fact that the Independent Oil and Gas company No. 1 Burleson, but a short distance north of the discovery well now owned by the Republic Production company, the No. 1 Baker, section 35, block "R," G. C. & S. F. Ry. survey, eight miles west of Hurdle, and more than 100 miles west of San Angelo, has found the salt, the best key formation of the district, 15 feet higher than the discovery.

Kirby Petroleum company No. 1, Union Land company, about a mile and a quarter south and a bit east of the Baker, was slightly higher in the salt than the Baker, showed a dip of 60 feet in the pay from the Baker well. The fact that the Kirby well revealed a southward dip in the lime is basis for the hypothesis that north of the discovery lies the most promising area.

"Back In Beverly Hills" Tops Majestic Bill This Week

FANCY DANCE STUNT TO BE ONE FEATURE

Stevens And Hollister Back In New And Lively Vehicle

Better and bigger than ever, declares Ollee Rahl, manager of the Majestic theatre, speaking of this week's vaudeville card, five big acts which ope nin matinee Wednesday and run twice-aday through Friday night.

Starting right in with Miss Lucille Ballattine, a dancing girl, wwho is a sure-enough mean hoofer and on throogh the skit in which Little Pipifax makees 'em laugh without ever so much as saying a word the bill is a whizz, according to Rahl.

All the superlatives ih tne world will not make a thing anything except what it is. Miss Lucille Ballatine is a dancing girl. She might describe in any one of a thousand superlative ways, but even so she would still be a dancing girl, and to her that is quite sufficient. But oh, what a dancing girl Miss Ballatine is; fair of face and figure; a perfect form for grace; a technique that has provided a firm foundation for natural talent. Miss Ballatine is a dancing girl indeed. This dancing girl and her four boy friends, a male quartette of singers and steppers present what they call a new idea in song and dance. Mr. Maxwell M. Kennedy is responsible for the new idea and its staging.

Vamps and Fools.

What would become of the movies and the melodrada were it not for the vampires and fools that fall so easily to their lures. There is only a hair's breadth between drama and comedy and so his style of drama is perfect material for travesty. Jimmy Lucas understands traversity as well as a fish understands water. In other words he is perfectly at home as though they were made for each other. Lucas has decided that those big scenes are something else besides thrillers and so with the assistance of his company he is spoofing them in a travesty called "Vampires and Fools." Mr. Lucas and his company make this skit a highlight for fun.

About midway between Los Angeles and the ocean just beyond where Hollywood meets the mountains, lies Beverly Hills, one of the loveliest spots of God's Garden country—California. Here in this location Lona Stevens and Len D. Hollister, two of vaudeville's most capable and legitimate comedy artists have laid the scene of their newest offering entitled "Back in Beverly Hills" which by the way is a companion piece to their former vehicle "Out in California" which met with such signal success over the larger circuits of the country.

Stevens Sweet Singer.

In "Back in Beverly Hills," Miss Stevens and Mr. Hollister are found living as neighbors, the one a resident of several years sfanding and the other a very recent arrival. Incompatability of temper sets in and through no fault of his own the man is placed in an embarrassing position and through a series of ludicrous situations thwarts his fair neighbor's at to have him jailed as a suspicious character.

Miss Stevens characterization of the offended dancer and Mr. Hollister's role of the quiet inoffessive bachelor is giving vaudeville one of its greatest vaudeville treats. In addition, Miss Stevens sings songs as she alone can sing them supplying the necessary melody without which California is not complete.

Little Pipifax with his peculiar stumble and fall, his ridiculous gestures of contempt and his general all around faculty of getting into trouble, provides a real laugh. He always manages to please an audience without saying a word, which in itself is a difficult feat when one considers some of the efforts of other artists with the whole dictionary at their command. Pipifax is ably assisted by Elsie and Eddie Panlo who perform some graceful tumbling.

RAYMOND GRIFFITH AND MARY BRIAN IN THE PARAMOUNT PICTURE 'HE'S A PRINCE!'

Old Name Bandied About By Gray Bearded Traveling Men So Niles Native Suggests "Opp In"—By Ring

To the editor:

A couple of weeks ago the present (and pleasant) writer done a big service to the citizens of the town where he lives by giving them some good suggestions for a new name for their main street. The suggestion must of been good because they seemed to of put a quietus on the whole argument. Since the article was printed I have been deluged with at least 2 postcards from folks wantknow without asking that the Opp Inn must be opp. the post office. Further and more, Opp might easily be the name of a fish. It sounds like a name a fish would pick out for himself. And last but not least, one of the oldest and most respected families of Niles was the Oppins which they sometimes spelled with a H.

Chiropodist Park Has Wide Choice.

That suttler disposed of we can turn to my other postcard which is from one Basil Park, Indianapolis, who describes himself as a chiropodist. Mr. Park is an expectant father, not of one child but a plethora. He is already worrying in regards to their names and has called on me for help.

Well, as luck would have it, I was talking to Mr. Dudley Digges the actor a few days ago and he told me about a family he knows back in Ireland who the wife's maiden name is a Miss Kettle and the husband was Mr. Drum. Came several kiddies to curse the home. The first, a girl, was christened Beta. The second, a boy, was baptized Fife N. Drum. The third, a girl was named Clarinet N. Drum and goes under the nicknames of Clara and Nettie. The fourth, another girl (not the same girl) is Snare. And finally what should pop up but a pair of male twins and the parents was puzzled for quite a while, but at last, when they discovered that the 2 kiddies was always together when you wanted them, hit on the idear of naming them each Tom and always calling both of them at once.

Mr. Park might do worse than name his first few children White River, Garfield, Brookside, Military, St. Clair and University, in honor of different Indianapolis parks when it becomes necessary, he could call on parks from other cities, christening the next dozen Hyde, Central, Rock Creek, Golden Gate, Humboldt, Willow Grave, Fairmont, Schenley, Forest, Laurel, Washington and Jackson. And if worse kept getting worse he could help himself to a few of the ball parks like Shibe, Fenway, Sportsman's Comiskey and even Cub.

When Mr. Park finally runs out of those kind of names, what is to prevent him from selecting names pertinent to his profession? A daughter might be christened Cornelia and called Corn. A boy might be baptized Bunion and called Bunny. Another boy might be called Callous and Called Cal. And the last one, we hope, would be christened Ingrowing Nails and called Ingy.

New Pay Formation Looms for Crockett

SAN ANGELO, Jan. 23.—A new pay formation just below that had in the discovery well in the World pool, northern Crockett county, due south of the Big Lake field of Reagan county, may change the complexion of affairs in that more or less casual pool.

Humble Oil & Refining company-Marland Oil company of Texas No. 3 Powell, 1,000 feet south of the discovery, block BB2, after picking up the usual pay, a lime, at 2,680 feet, went deeper and at 2,667 feet had a new pay, a brown, sandy lime, softer and yielding more oil. It filled up and slopped over in a few hours. The boiler is being moved back as there is considerable more gas than in the discovery. In fact, the handicap of the first two wells, the discovery and No. 2, 1,000 feet west, was the lack of gas.

LESLIE FENTON AND MARJORIE DAW IN EAST LYNNE AT MISSION FOR SUNDAY AND MONDAY

The Fable of the Go-Getting Smarty—By George Ade

Once there lived in the Western Hemisphere a Citizen who was easy to get along with if you would let him have his Way, take Orders from him and not sass back. There was no tarnation sense in any one having an Argumet with this Bird, because he was always Right. It almost stupified him if some Upstart, with a disposition like a Mule, suggested to him that possibly he was not One Hundred Per Cent Infallible.

Yes, he was one of those chesty Ikes who are apt to get Results in a world largely peopled with Procrastinators, Hesitators, Doubters and Back-Pedalers, but he would have been an Awful Thing to room with.

Imagine being all the Time with one who tells you when to Bathe, how many Towels to use, what to order for Lunch, how many Studs to wear with the Bob-Tail, on which side to part the Locks and what Books to con before turning out the Light. Also keen enough under the Hat to win every Battle if any one finds Fault with a single Item in his Program. At no Time endeavoring to conceal the Fact that he is a Superman, generating his own Aureole of Superiority.

Even as a Lad, in the weather-beaten School House and on the Village Common, he was Czar and Dictator. He appointed himself such and banished to outer darkness all those who questioned his Rule. Every Day the down-trodden Worms would get together and mumble a lot of Threats and organize a Mutiny, but when it came time for the Uprising there never was a Leader who dared to meet Julius in the Arena.

If ever Imperial Ceasar looked down from the Battlements he must have been proud of his Namesake.

We are said to be free and Equal. It would be hard to say which half of the foregoing Joke is entitled to the louder Laugh.

The Imperial Ceasar must have been proud of his namesake.

When you discover in a Grammar School a square-jawed Lad with steely Eyes, of whom the Teacher stands in Awe, look out for him. It simply means that he has a through ticket for the Stock Exchange, the U. S. Senate or the Gallows.

Even as a Squirrel cannot be kept on the Ground, so it is impossible to keep any Napoleon in a Side Pocket.

When he appeared on the Campus of that undersized but ambitious Institution of Learning known as Gobie College and began to swank all over the Place, the infuriated Undergraduates called a Secret Meeting and voted that nothing would cure him except a Dip in the Horse-Tank.

So he called the Freshmen together and told them just what he expected from them in the way of Cooperation. He said that if they would obey orders, the Class of Umpty-Ump would be the brightest Jewel in the Diadem of dear old Gobie.

So they elected him Class President and he told them what the Colors and the Yell would be and they all went mooching back to their rooms to whisper among themselves and declare that they wouldn't stand for it.

They were in a State of Revolt except when in the immediate Presence of his hypnotic Personality and then the Complex of Inferiority got a Strangle Hold on the Ego and they knew that the Gnats could not argue with an Eagle.

When he finally picked out a good Eugenic specimen of four-plus Pulchritude and decided to permit her to be the Mother of his Children, he did not propose at all. He patted her on the Shoulder and told her to brace herself and not give way to joyful Emotions, even though she was to be the recipient of Good News. In putting her wise to the Fact that she had drawn the Capital Prize he impersonated the King who pauses on the Highway to bestow a Coin on a barefooted Peasant Girl.

Irene had vowed that before she signed up he would have to unstarch himself and get down on his Knees and talk purity, but when the Big Moment came she was just as cool and defiant as a small Bird in the presence of a large and energetic Snake.

He somehow had the mesmeric Power to convince Folks that any one who didn't fall in with his Suggestions was guilty of Lese Majestie, Contempt of Court and Moral Delinquency.

Julius went into the Practice of Law, and the first Client who walked into his Office had to wipe his feet on the Mat and dig up a retaining Fee. He had the Option of doing that or going somewhere else and hiring a second-class Dub.

How the other Attorneys hated Julius! Why? Because, when they opened up on him with all of their Heavy Artillery, Bombs and Shrapnel, he would be reading a Letter and not aware that Opposing Counsel were present. The most they ever got out of him was a Smile indicative more of Pity than of Anger. After they had hollered themselves hoarse and supplicated the Court and massaged the Jury, then Julius would arise and explain What was What in Language which was feebly imitated some time ago by William Shakespeare, Lord Macauley, and Daniel Webster. And, somehow, before he got through, all of the Listeners would be convinced that they were listening to Chief Justice Taft.

The Average Lawyer can not tell you, definitely, his Wife's first name until after he has gone to the Office and looked at a couple of Books. Julius knew what the Authorities had to say before they said it.

The Barristers with defective Ignition and no Self-Starters found it hard going when they tried to regulate the activities of a bounding Intellectual Gazelle whose intuition was about three Weeks in advance of their carefully figured-out Dope.

Julius shone with especial Luster when he had a Board of Directors eating from the Hand. He was the Kind of Legal Adviser who always felt that he could get a better line on the Workings of the Company which employed him if he owned quite a Block of the Stock. And no matter what they slipped him, it was always with the Understanding that they were mighty lucky to secure the services of the ne plus ultra Crackerjack of the Twentieth Century.

Julius rode down the Appian Way in a Golden Chariot drawn by 24 White Horses while all of the Chair-Warmers and Checker Players and Culls and Misfits and Dumb Bells said it was a Crime the way he was getting the Breaks, which he was, the same as Hagen gets them in Golf and Tilden in Tennis.

You surround Mount Everest with Ant Hills and Mount Everest is going to be lonesome. No one can be chummy with a lot of Pigmies who are only Knee high. Julius had very few Pals and those who were his Close Friends needed only Blue Suits, Short Pencils and Freckles to make them regular Messenger Boys.

Astronomy teaches that Sattelites may revolve around Planets, but never Vice Versa.

Julius was always the incomparable It without making any apparent Effort to overshadow his Environment. He took the Center of the Stage because the Minor Actors backed away at his regal Approach and tried to hide behind the Scenery.

Inasmuch as all normal Adults are missing on most of the Cylinders, it was no Miracle that one who functioned at Top Speed and was absolutely minus all Doubts and Fears should become a Leader by Common Consent, and then be privately hated by all of the Second-Raters.

One of our prize Delusions is that men who acquire extreme Unpopularity are seldom successful and happy. To ge the cold facts play the Reverse English. The handshaking Greeters who achieve Popularity are often elected to Office, with the result that they are neither happy nor financially prosperous. They get their Pictures in the Papers and finally are buried by Popular Subscription.

One of the real Satisfaction which followed Julius through his Meteoric Career arose from the Knowledge that he was thoroughly detested because of his Wealth, his Wardrobe, his Town House, his Fleet of Motor Cars, his Suite of Offices, his princely Income and his Magnetic Control of all surrounding Circumstances.

He could hear the Buzz of the Detractors below but he never saw the Knockers, because he always wore his Head tilted back and was giving a correct Imitation of Ajax defying the Lightning.

It would have broken his heart if the perspiring Commoners had ever hailed him as an Equal. He wanted to be in the Ether while they were crawling in the Mud and the fullest Vindication of his Career was that no one ever asked him to be a Candidate for Anything. He had no Time to hold Office. He was too busy telling the Office-Holders what to do.

It is said that the Funeral Procession was over a Mile long, with 240 cars, and in every Car at least four happy Mourners who were swapping Stories about Julius and his superlative Egotism and offensive Eccentricities.

The lofty Monument for which he provided in his Will, knowing that the Beloved Ones could not be trusted is 80 feet high and is visited by many Sight-Seers who stand around and recall that, even though he was ornery and stuck up, he batted 1,000, never was caught on bases and hadn't a single Error marked up against him. No wonder the Hatreds survived.

There are all sorts of Guesses as to what became of him. Some think he is the Gatti-Casazza of the Heavenly Choir and others feel sure that he is President of a Heating Plant. Wherever he is, he has a Swivel Chair and a big Desk with Flowers on it.

MORAL—The easiest thing in the World to get and the hardest to cash in is Three Hearty Cheers.

THE GREAT MAN By FANNIE HURST

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

Copyright, 1925, by The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

As the new year was born into the world, the Great Man sat alone in his huge oak-panelled study.

Out on Long Island his hoydenish nieces held high revel with their gay young college friends.

Old Man Bringhurst's sons—and Bringhurst was almost as powerful as the Great Man—had a gay party for the holiday, and Bringhurst suggested the Great Man as a guest.

Below stairs in the Great Man's house the servants drank hot cider and wished each other joy as the new year came in.

But in the warm, comfortable library, when the new year finally rang in to the bells and the laughter of the crowds, the Great Man sat alone, his fine, powerful white hands stretched emptily along the arms of his carved Italian chair.

THE year was dying and, as if to match the mood of the last day of its being, wore a gray shroud. A gray shroud of low clouds that turned the river the color of lead and made everybody, hurrying and scurrying to get home for the merry business of New Year's Eve, seem a little gray, too. The grayness of faces nipped with damp cold. Of overcoats and reefers and of asphalt when it is wind swept.

There was a Christmas tree with an incandescent star at its head left over in the square. But it, too, had the look of belonging to a year that was done.

It was from the windows of houses that the promise of the New Year looked out. Warm, cozy-looking interiors with fire flickering against walls and bowls of fruit on tables and the smell of cinnamon in egg nog and tin horns and feather ticklers stacked on mantel pieces for the striking of the hour of twelve.

The great man sat in his study, an oak panelled one the size of a baronial hall, his leonine gray head against a chair that had seen many a New Year come and go in a de Medici Palace in Florence. He had white hands that lay along the chair with a sort of silent strength that made them beautiful. There was a twelve-foot, superbly carved grandfathers' clock directly in his vision and beside the Gothic stone fireplace, so that without even turning his head, he could watch the old year tick out its dying breaths, tick by tick.

There was something superb in the spectacle of the great man, who, by scarcely lifting one of those white hands, controlled the industrial destiny of thousands and thousands of men and women, sitting there staring a little defiantly at the ticking out of time.

The Dutch clock had a great round tick to it. Almost as if each tick were a grain of golden sand dropping into eternity.

Tick. Tock.

Portraits of fine ancestral ladies and forefathers in doublet and hose looked out wisely into the silence of that room with the tick-tock in it. As if the passing of the golden grains were no longer a mystery to them. Great, silent ancestral portraits, solemn with eternity.

At eight o'clock, two butlers carried in a small table and set it beside the great man and served him a meal that began with a broth the color of the lovely golden eyes of a very young girl. And on through fowl, simmering in its juices, and wine that sang in the imprisonment of frail crystal and amber-colored jellies and grapes the size of plums and an ice that melted down against the tongue so that you could not feel yourself swallow it.

A handsome, solemn meal, to the padding of soft-footed servants and the crackle of fire in the Gothic fireplace that had been imported from a Tudor castle. And finally, cigars on a silver tray with a silver Aladdin's lamp burning on it, and the low mahogany and emerald glow of liqueurs in their crystal decanters on the coffee table and the adjusting of the lamps and the draping of the heavy window hangings more securely into place and the solicitous inquiries about the comfort of the great man and then the padding out of the servants and the closing of the doors, softly, to spare the great man's nerves.

Tick. Tock.

There had been thought of the great man on this night. His sister's children, two splendid hoydens who lived in a sort of manor house on Long Island that was mad and merry with sheep dogs and college week-end guests and the joie de vie of youth, had suggested their uncle for their New Year's party.

"Let's have Uncle Wintringham down! He's a good sort. A little of our nonsense will do him good."

"Foolish children," said the sister of Wintringham. "As if your uncle would have time for you! Do you realize that a great man like him has only time for the big things!"

And so Wintringham was not asked.

A group of his old colleagues had suggested him, too, for a week-end in an Adirondack camp. And this is how it petered out:

"Wintringham's grown too big for us. It'll bore him to have our wives and youngsters about. Don't embarrass him by making it necessary for him to refuse us."

And so Wintringham was not asked.

The Bringhursts wanted him, too. In fact, old man Bringhurst, who in a less spectacular way was a man of Wintringham's enormity of wealth and power, debated the matter with his sons a full half hour.

"Wintringham is a man I like to have about. The man has ideas. I've never spent an hour in his company that I didn't come away with a new thought."

"I know, Father, but Wintringham is not the man to have trivial folks about. The girls have asked down too many light-weights. You can't really play with a man like Wintringham about. And it's holiday time."

"He's a great man, son."

"That's just it, Father. Too great for us."

And so Wintringham was not asked.

It was quiet in the big study even after the horns began to squeak and the bells to peal and the river boats to blow off hilarious steam.

The great enclosing window drapes saw to that.

But down in the servants' quarters sometimes an irrepressible spurt of hilarity leaked up. The laugh of a maid. The delighted cry of a child. The broad brogue of the head butler.

Quickly suppressed noises of hilarity.

The Wintringham mansion with all its fine points of architecture was not sound proof. The servants tried to remember that and sometimes the laugh of a child or the brogue of the butler were nipped in their very bud.

And so the great man sat on and smoked on and watched the weaving motion of the fire. And looked at the great Dutch clock.

"And the ould man a-sittin' up there alone on New Year's Eve—it don't seem right—except it's of his own choosin'."

"Tell you what," cried the parlor maid, who had a nose as pert as the flirt of her feather duster, "it's New Year's Eve. Let's ask him down to have hot cider with us. We're all only human—human to human on New Year's Eve!"

"You must be inshane," cried the head butler, and clapped his hand over her pretty mouth and made her spin in a dance with him—"asking the great man down with the likes of us—now, he'd have time for a-spinning and a-drinking in the New Year with the likes of us—now, wouldn't he? Ain't she the chipmunk mind—a-bringing the great man down with the likes of us—him that could be dining with kings tonight."

"Aw, whadda you bet he's sitting up there lonesome for a swig of good cheer and hot cider—if he dared—"

On the spurt of hilarity from the laugh that went up on that, the great man rose from his chair and walked to the door, and stood in a listening attitude.

The great man was lonesome.

He somehow didn't want the New Year to chime in on the spectacle of him sitting alone there beside the fireplace. For a mad moment the impulse to go downstairs and join in the simple good cheer of his servants laid hold of him.

He walked down a flight of stairs. Two. Then he paused and, with his hand dragging along the balustrade, retraced his steps.

"They haven't got time for me," he said to himself. "I'd spoil their fun."

And so when the New Year finally rang in, to the bells and the laughter and the sirens of the river boats, the great man was sitting beside his stone fireplace—and his hands, the fine white ones with the crouching strength in them, open in his lap in a manner that in any one else would have seemed pathetic.

The strangest hands. So full of strength and yet the emptiest looking hands in all the world.

New and Interesting Facts from Science and Life

RAISING Disease GERMS to GUARD Your HEALTH

At the Left Is Shown Dr. Rodolfo Robles, of the Faculty of Medicine in Paris, Whose Recent Studies of Disease Germs Have Resulted in Many Important Discoveries, Especilaly in Tropical Maladies.

The Illustration at the Right Is a View of a Germ-Culture Laboratory, with the "Chef" Preparing a Meal for His Hungry Charges, Which Are Being Raised for Making Vaccines and Serums to Prevent Disease.

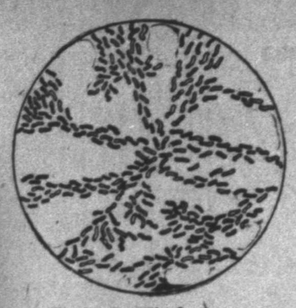

Fig. 1—Bacilli of Influenza.

Fig. 2—Diphtheria Germs.

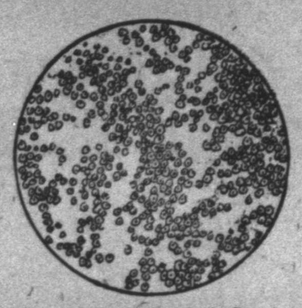

Fig. 3—Infantile Paralysis Germs.

Fig. 4—Above—Typhoid Germs.

Special Cooks in Chemical Laboratories Serve Luxurious Meals to Invisible "Bugs."

SCIENCE has domesticated dangerous disease germs to the extent that great laboratories throughout the world have gone into the business of raising certain varieties of bacilli for experimental purposes and for the preparation of vaccines and serums to save human lives. Millions of dollars have been invested for this purpose and millions of germs may be purchased for a few cents, depending upon the species. They are shipped to all parts of the world to supply physicians and hospitals. One great laboratory in London, for example, always has about 2,000 kinds of germs in stock for sale.

Some laboratories devoted to germ culture employ what a contributor to Popular Mechanics calls special "chefs" to prepare food for the organisms, many of which are so tiny that 500,000 or more may be contained in a single drop. Their diet consists of animal and vegetable gelatin, glucose and beef tea, either with or without sugar.

When the germs are properly developed, they are washed off the substance in which they have been raised, thoroughly shaken and counted. This is done with the aid of a microscope by placing them on a ruled glass divided into small squares. By counting the number of squares in the total area, the correct number is closely estimated. This is important, for the number of germs determines the strength of the vaccine, which is administered in carefully measured amounts to insure beneficial effect of the treatment.

Before the germs are ready for use they must be killed. This is accomplished by heating them to about 180 degrees Fahrenheit for thirty minutes. They are then placed in a salt solution and made ready for the shipping containers. Administered as a vaccine, the dead germs stimulate the white corpuscles of the blood to combat the disease germs, preventing their multiplying in the system. This is what occurs in the treatments for preventing typhoid fever, pneumonia, boils, whooping cough and other diseases for which vaccines are available.

The preparations are of little aid, in fact, may be positively harmful, doctors declare, if given after the disease has been contracted, for the reason that the white corpuscles already are working to fight the enemy and need no artificial stimulation.

A serum is not made directly from germs, but from the blood of a horse or other animal to which a vaccine has been administered. It acts as a poison and is intended to combat the disease germ directly as in lockjaw and diphtheria.

Preparing food for the germs requires the utmost care in order that foreign microbes may not contaminate the vaccine. It is thoroughly sterilized, weighed and measured and kept at an even temperature in bottles sealed with cotton. Often the kind of food on which the germ thrives gives a clue to its identity.

As a check against mistakes and before a germ is admitted to "recognized standing" in the scientific world, four tests have been applied. First of all, the germ must be found, it must then be reproduced by culture in some medium, inoculation must show that it really produces the disease it is supposed to cause, and after that, the germ must be recovered from an animal or person suffering from the disease. By this cycle of tests the nature of the germ is established and it can be raised with a certain degree of assurance that it will produce the expected results. Many germs under cutivation in laboratories have not yet passed these tests. Among these are the influenza germ and that which causes smallpox.

Among the scientists who have made recently important discoveries about diseases is Dr. Rodolfo Robles, of the Faculty of Medicine in Paris, where experiments with disease germs have resulted in shedding new light on many diseases, especially various maladies of the tropics.

Some of the varieties of germs under cultivation are so delicate that they must be kept at constant temperatures day and night. Some thrive best on food in which egg is a chief ingredient and others manifest a taste for alcoholic substances.

Evidence of the effectiveness of these beneficial microbes in saving human lives is plentiful, but figures gathered by Dr. C. C. Pierce, director of the third district of the United States public health service, from army records are cited as proof of the value of the use of such means of combating disease, a method which has been practised in the fight against typhoid fever, for instance, only since 1904 in this country. During the Spanish-American war, before the typhoid fever vaccine was used, one man out of every six of the 175,000 called to the colors contracted the disease, and there were 1,580 deaths. In the World War, with nearly 4,000,000 men in the service, only one out of every 9,800 contracted typhoid, and there were but 213 deaths from it.

BODILY RELICS OF PREHISTORIC DAYS

THERE are many peculiar human characteristics which scientists claim may be relics of man's prehistoric ancestors. For example, a writer in London Tit-Bits advises parents not to punish a child the next time he is caught stealing apples. Blame his ancestors.

According to Professor Marcus Pembrey, "the petty pilfering of orchards by children should be regarded as a sign, not of original sin, but of an instinctive desire for vitamines." Man's early ancestors chose by instinct the food that promoted growth; that is why so many children are fond of raw turnips and carrots. They are merely echoing the habits of their primitive forbears!

"When a normal child is a day old he can hang by his arms from a horizontal bar, supporting his own weight, for two minutes; this early strength recalls the time when primitive mothers carried their babies by allowing them to cling to their long hair!"

The blood that flows in your veins contains salts in nature and proportion almost identical with the salts of the sea. This, perhaps, is the longest "echo" of all, for according to the scientists, it is a reminder of the days when, as the lowest forms of life, man is believed to have lived in the mud of the ancient Cambrian Sea!

Another vestige of former human mechanism is the third eyelid, or nictitating membrane, that is found as a small red tongue of flesh in the corner of the eye. It is more prominent in some races than others. It is found in rabbits, dogs and all birds. With these it serves the purpose of an ordinary eyelid. Birds flick it across their eyes by twitching two special muscles, and it returns to position independently, acting on the principle of a spring blind.

In the human eye system the increased mobility of the upper eyelid has degraded the third eyelid to the position of the appendix and similar bodily relics.

House CAT Came from EGYPT

ZOOLOGISTS, on the whole, seem to favor the opinion that the house cat is the descendant of the wild Egyptian cat—Felis ochreata. One of the most important pieces of evidence which Professor W. P. Pycraft, the noted British authority, gives in the London News in support of this view is the fact that the domesticated cat and the Egyptian species agree in having the pads of the feet black. In the hind feet the black extends up to the heel bone; whereas in the native wild cat still found at large in Scotland the sole of the hind foot is of some shade of yellow, or yellowish gray; while the pads have but a small black spot. Insofar as the general coloration of the body is concerned, the "tabby" and the native wild cat are closely alike. Again, the dark rings on the tail of the wild cat appear blackish brown when held against the light, whereas in the domesticated "tabby" they are jet black. Cats were held in great veneration by the ancient Egyptians, and their mummified remains are found in thousands in their tombs. Is the house cat of today a descendant of these pampered animals, or was it derived direct from the wild race?

But all domesticated cats are not derivatives of the Egyptian cat. Thus the singular Siamese cat is almost certainly the descendant of the golden, or bay cat, Felis temmincki, of the Malay countries; while the beautiful Angora, or Persian, is apparently the descendant of Pallas's cat, Felis manul, of the deserts of Central Asia.

The spotted domesticated cats of India have probably been derived from the Indian desert cat, Felis ornata, a pale, sandy-colored animal, with small roundish black spots on the body and spots or streaks on the neck and face. Probably, however, crossing has taken place between two other species, the leopard cat and the tiny rust-spotted cat.

The eyra cat, of South America and Mexico, is a short-legged, long-bodied species, which is tamed by the natives, and makes a charming pet. But, so far as known, it has never found its way into Europe, save as a menagerie specimen, and so may be left out of consideration as a factor in the evolution of the domesticated cat.

The chief peculiarity of the Manx cat is that it has no more than the stump of a tail. Since there are no wild species in like case, Professor Pycraft says that it must be regarded as another instance of "mutation." The other species mentioned here may each or all have played some part in modifying the coloration of the domesticated cat of today.

WHY Some FABRICS Fade and LOSE Their LUSTER

THE loss of luster and the fading of color in fabrics has assumed important significance in view of the present-day demand for high-color effects in all kinds of habiliments. This has been a puzzle to everyone but the expert colorist. One of these, George Rice, describes in the American Exporter what has been done to prevent such losses.

"It is easy to understand," says Mr. Rice, "why a fabric dyed with inferior dyestuffs or by inefficient colorists may become fugitive. Or if the dyed material is exposed too long to the rays of the sun, or subjected to too intensive washing with strong scouring ingredients, fading can be accounted for. Or if the dyed material is shoddy, or cotton dyed on the woolen principle, fastness of color cannot be expected. But when the cloth or garment is dyed with superior dyes and chemicals, by experienced colorists, according to the most approved methods, and the fabric is not overexposed to light or alkali-cleansing liquids, and is made up of virgin wool, pure silk or other fiber capable of retaining the color, and fading takes place after it leaves the dye house, even the experts are often at loss for a satisfactory explanation.

"There are three principal reasons for the fading of dyed materials after they leave the mill: 1, the failure of the dye; 2, the employment of certain materials in the fabric; 3, bacteriological action.

"It has long since been established that whenever a dyed fabric changes color when exposed to the light such action is due to the absorption of certain light-rays, resulting in an oscillation of the molecule of the dye. If those rays are absent in any form of light, there will not be an effective reaction of the dyestuff molecules, and a satisfactory test will not result.

"In order to reproduce the action of sunlight on dyed materials, two types of light are necessary, one of which should have long-waved rays and the other short-waved rays of light.

"The waves must be of sufficient intensity in the visible and invisible parts of the spectrum to produce an effect on the dye structure. Such waves are present in natural sunlight but are usually only partly present in artificial lights. Hence when a dyed fabric is tested by a carbon light or violet-ray light, the color may hold. But when subjected to the action of sunlight the same color will succumb.

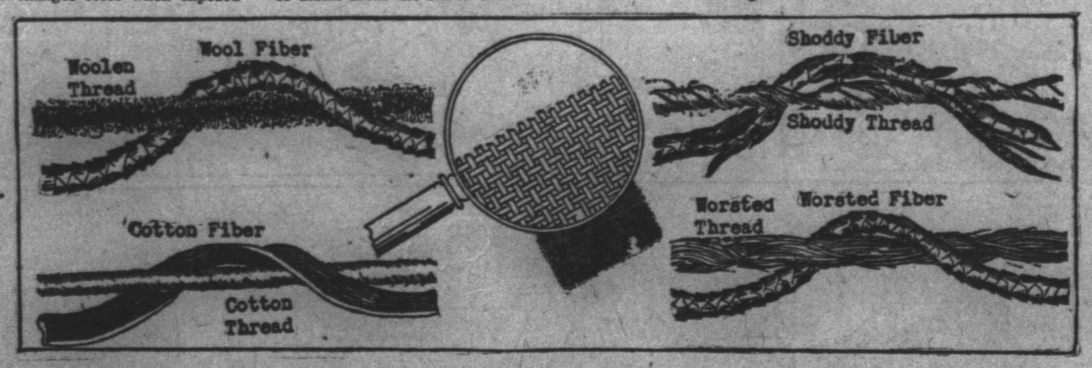

"As no dyestuff is used in white woolen cloth, the fading which frequently occurs is somewhat different from the change of color by action of light or chemical or solvent.

"Even if not exposed to sunlight, the heat of the sun or heat from other sources can affect white woolen by causing a partial oxidation of the fiber or may act on the wool fats which may not have been thoroughly removed and cause a yellowing or darkening in appearance. Heat can also act on the fiber structure, causing partial destruction. Air conditions cause fading of white woolen or colored fabrics, as in the case of abnormally dry or moist air, or air containing gases or alkali from the street dust.

"A great deal depends upon the physical and chemical properties of the fiber itself. In the case of colors dyed on wool the size of the dyestuff molecule is much increased and the fastness of the color is thereby enhanced owing to the chemical reaction which takes place. The dyeing of cotton fabrics is more of a physical action in which the size of the dyestuff molecule is not materially increased and consequently the stablizing effect produced with wool is absent, and the color is more likely to be fugitive. An examination of the microscopically enlarged fibers of the different species used in the manufacture of cloth shown in the accompanying illustration will give one an idea of their physical structure.

"If a piece of cloth is examined through a glass, the fine texture will be enlarged sufficiently to show the physical composition of the threads in the weave, but will not help in determining the nature of the individual fiber structure. If a thread is drawn from the sample and it looks like the thread shown in the drawing, it can be classed as a wool.

"An apparently entangled arrangement of filaments forms the basis of wooden yarn, yet there is order in the plan, for the filaments are systematically crossed and recrossed in the carding and spinning so that a firm thread results. Woolen stuffs have a greater affinity for dyes than some other textiles because of the natural structure of the fiber, which is coated with scales or serrations equipped to absorb and retain the coloring substances"

These Microscopic Views of Fibers of Various Species Used in the Manufacture of Cloth Plainly Reveal the Many Differences in Their Physical Structures.

Why Your Teeth Need Exercise

THE teeth, like every part of the body, were devised for service. If you fail to permit them to function normally, the result is that the teeth and surrounding tissues will not be in good condition.

Coarse food should be eaten as an aid in cleansing the teeth and stimulating the gums, advises a writer in Hygeia. Brushing the teeth is purely a mechanical means of removing any deposits that may have adhered to them, but brushing is a good habit.

Children should be taught at an early age to brush the teeth at least twice every day. Any means of brushing the teeth which will accomplish a thorough cleansing and will not injure the teeth and gums will suffice.

The outer surfaces of the teeth and between the teeth may be scoured by a vigorous rotary motion without lifting the brush from the teeth. No one of the five surfaces of the teeth should be slighted. The gums should be brushed from a position high up on the gums onto the teeth, to prevent injury from the bristles of the brush and to keep from forcing foreign materials under the margins.

This brushing exercises the gums and also acts as a massage. It will aid in keeping them healthy. After the teeth and gums have been cleansed, rinse the mouth thoroughly with plenty of cool water, forcing it through the teeth.

Breeding Goldfish Is Chinese Occupation

A FAVORITE occupation of the Chinese from time immemorial has been goldfish breeding. The Japanese adopted it from their neighbors at a very early date. But it was not until the 17th century that a few specimens of this fish survived the journey to England and thus spread throughout all Europe. Then in 1878 goldfish were brought directly to the United States from the Far East.

According to a writer in the National Geographic Magazine, the goldfish is now the most widely used of all purely ornamental creatures. Although the industry is still in its American infancy, being only 35 years old, more than five million goldfish are produced for market annually at one farm in Indiana and almost as many are being raised in Maryland. Millions of others are distributed throughout the West from breeding centers in Iowa and Kansas.

The goldfish is a domesticated variant of an olive-green member of the carp family found in Chinese waters. It is a purely artificial product and its marvelous coloring is the result of albinism. All goldfish are albinos, except the highly prized black variety, which is a carp afflicted with melanism instead of albinism. The special charm of the goldfish, says this authority, lies in its plasticity. It responds to selective breeding with readiness, assuming the most fantastic shapes and colors.

There are more than a score of well-recognized goldfish varieties in the United States, besides many minor types. The most peculiar type has "telescope" or "celestial" eyes protruding grotesquely from the head. These eyes, however, are developed slowly by selective breeding and not by cruel treatment, as is often supposed. The ordinary varieties of goldfish now command prices ranging from $15 to $45 a thousand.
