'HE KILLED MY DADDY'

Old Feud Flares, Joe Villa Dies In Hail Of Bullets From Twin Guns

By SAM BLACKBURN
Luck ran out for Joe Cruz Villa, 22, Sunday afternoon.

He had survived one bloody gun-battle on Oct. 4 in which three persons died but he was unable to cope with what fate dealt him on a brightly sunlit Big Spring street at 1:05 p.m.

He died in the gutter, sprawled on the paving, as 14 slugs from two blazing .22 pistols plowed into his head, neck and chest.

Firing the deadly guns was Robert Larez, 29, son of a man Villa himself killed in a North Side barroom on the night of Oct. 4. Larez, charged with murder with malice, is in the county jail. Guilford Jones, district attorney, said he would recommend $7,500 bond be set for him but the bond had not been sought at 11:30 a.m. Larez coolly told Jones that he killed Villa.

"He killed my daddy," said the dark-skinned Latin American. Jones said the defendant recited the story of the fatal affray at the intersection of NW 3rd and Gregg without visible emotion. Larez told Jones he had two .22 calibre nine-shot pistols. He emptied them into the recumbent body of his foe after an initial shot had toppled the beer truck helper to the pavement.

OLD FEUD

Trouble between Villa and Larez was of ancient origin. Jones was informed. The difficulty reached its climax on the night of Oct. 4 when Tommy Larez, a cousin of Robert, Alfredo Larez, Sr., his father and Lupe Sapata, girl friend of Tommy, met Villa and Alfonso Rodriguez, 22, in a beer tavern. A quarrel ensued, guns flashed and when the battle ended, Alfredo and Miss Sapata were dead and a bracer bystander, Pedro Ramirez, had been shot to death. Villa was seriously wounded in the head, jaw and chest. Tommy Larez was shot in the head and abdomen and Rodriguez slightly wounded in an elbow.

Robert was not present at the affray. He had been in the tavern but had left before the guns were drawn.

The senior Alfredo Larez perished in that battle from a bullet fired by Villa, ballistic tests indicated. The Howard County grand jury had declined to indict Villa for Alfredo's death.

Sunday afternoon, according to officers, Larez, with his 16-year-old brother, Alfredo Jr., and his cousin, Tommy Larez, 22, were riding in a pickup truck. They saw Villa, accompanied by a cousin, Fidel (Felipe) Lopez, walking across the viaduct.

DUMPED COMPANIONS
According to their statements, Robert stopped the truck and told Tommy and Alfredo to get out. He gave them no reason, they said, but they complied. Later they caught a ride with another driver. Robert said he drove on along Gregg, encountering Villa and Lopez at the intersection of NW 3rd and N. Gregg, in front of the Alexander Grocery.

He stopped the truck and approached the pair, he related. "I told Joe, 'This is it.' He grabbed at his belly as though he was reaching for a gun and I began shooting," Robert told Jones. Witnesses related that Villa grabbed Lopez and pulled him in between himself and Larez. Lopez broke away and ran from the scene. Villa crossed the street, followed by Larez.

A shot, presumed to be the one which struck him in the chest, dropped Villa to the paving. Robert told officers he stood over his fallen foe and fired the remaining 17 bullets from the pistols he held in each hand.

Robert then boarded the pickup truck, located Tommy and Alfredo, and the trio set out for Colorado City. They were halted in that city by Police Chief Leon Yeager and Patrolman Selma Dixon on orders from Big Spring officers.

This was just 59 minutes after the affray in front of the grocery.

ADMITS SLAYING

Robert immediately told officers in Colorado City he was the man who had wielded the guns. Two fully loaded .22 pistols were on the seat of the pickup.

Father Of Slain Nurse Meets His Son-In-Law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The grief-stricken father of Olga Duncan, murdered Santa Barbara nurse, met his son-in-law for the first time Sunday.

Friends said Frank Duncan, the dead woman's husband, sobbed as he and Elias Kupczyk, her father, discussed tentative arrangements for her funeral at a meeting in Duncan's Hollywood apartment.

The funeral will be private at a date not fixed.

Ventura County authorities charge that Olga Duncan, 30, died because her mother-in-law, 54-year-old Mrs. Elizabeth Duncan, was jealous of the younger woman.

At a grand jury session Friday two men, Luis Moya, 22, and Augustine Baldonado, 25, repeated confessions investigators said they had given earlier, in which they told how the older Mrs. Duncan offered them $6,000 to kill Olga, who was five months pregnant.

The body was found Dec. 21 in a shallow grave near Casitas dam in Ventura County.

The coroner's office said the victim had been beaten and throttled and that death was due to suffocation, possibly from being buried alive.

Kupczyk arrived by rail from Benito, Man., in northern Canada.

Lindy Oldfield and Jones went to Colorado City and took custody of the trio. Back in Big Spring they were questioned at length and charges were filed on Robert.

Tommy and Alfredo were detained over night in the city jail but Monday morning Jones said he had no plans to file any charges against either.

In the meantime, officers said that Alfonso Rodriguez had heard of the death of his friend, Joe. He is accused of arming himself and going to the residence of Robert and Alfredo at 213 NE 8th. There, Jones said, he fired several shots into the house. Neither of the Larez brothers was on the premises at the time but there were other occupants of the house inside. No one was injured.

VILLA UNARMED

Search of Villa's body at the scene of his slaying and later disclosed no weapon of any kind. He had no gun on his person, officers said.

Larez will be brought before the grand jury on Jan. 26, Jones said.

Funeral arrangements are pending for Villa.

Eleven of his 13 immediate survivors live in California, and Nalley-Pickel Funeral Home, where the body had been taken, had no word from the West Coast members of the family Monday morning.

Villa was born Aug. 11, 1936, in Big Spring.

Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Sostenes Villa, Atwater, Calif.; nine brothers, Gregory Villa, Big Spring, Julian Villa, El Paso, Felix and Frank Villa, Los Angeles, Calif., Tony, Alex, Tommy, Raymond and Albert Villa of Atwater, Calif.; and two sisters, Mrs. Lupe Espinosa, Roswell, N. M., and Mary Villa, Atwater, Calif.

But until quotas on imports from America and Canada are increased or abandoned, the sellers on that side of the Atlantic can expect no marked increase in sales to Western Europe.

The limited convertibility was announced Saturday by Britain, West Germany, France, Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg, Denmark, Sweden and Norway. It became effective this morning.

France also cut the value of the franc 17 1/2 per cent — from 420 francs to the dollar to 493 — in an attempt to make prices on her exports more attractive to foreign buyers.

Limited convertibility is a step toward the distant goal of complete convertibility, the day when anybody in any country can exchange any currency for any other at a uniform, official rate.

The switch to limited convertibility is partly the result of recent, continued large increases in the foreign exchange holdings of most West European countries, lessening of demand for the U.S. dollar as trade among the European nations has expanded, and a desire by Britain to meet the competition of the six-nation European Common Market, which goes into effect Jan. 1.

The Common Market is made up of France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg. On Jan. 1, they start doing away progressively with customs barriers between themselves and at the same time unifying their tariff systems against the rest of the world.

France so far has rejected British proposals to expand the Common Market into a free trade area made up of all 17 nations of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation.

Some officials on the continent charged that Britain had come out with limited convertibility to torpedo the Common Market. But a British treasury spokesman said the liberalization resulted from factors that had been building up for years and had been done with the full understanding of France and West Germany.

The key to the convertibility switch was Britain, because the British pound, as the currency of the vast sterling bloc, buys more than half the goods sold in the world.

But the French position was relieved somewhat by today's announcement it is receiving a 60-million-dollar loan from West Germany, and by reports that other European states may come to France's assistance.

British businessmen, sorting out the convertibility puzzle, were expecting no direct benefits but believed they will gain in the long run because a freer pound should give them a bigger share of world trade.

Until the change today, anyone who sold goods to Britain for pounds, for example, had to pay more than the official rate to convert these pounds into dollars. West German marks or other currencies, as a result, stood up well to other currencies.

It had sagged a little in the first hours of trading. Freer convertibility of the major European currencies seemed to be off to a promising start. But some doubts were expressed — chiefly in France. There, with devaluation of the franc and an austerity budget, the country faced a more serious financial shakeup than other lands.

Belated reports today swelled the nation's toll of dead from traffic accidents over the four-day Christmas weekend to nearly 600. Tragic as it was, the number of fatalities was fewer than the pre-holiday estimate of 620.

Early in the long holiday, with highway deaths occurring at a much faster pace than anticipated, it appeared the final count would be far greater than the estimate.

But three-quarters through the weekend the rate of deaths slowed as motorists—apparently shocked by the awesome toll the first three days—exercised greater caution.

Safety experts had expressed alarm at the slaughter on the highways from the start of the 102-hour holiday period at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve to late Saturday.

The toll had been taken, where the body had been taken, had no word from the West Coast members of the family Monday morning.

rate was one death every 13 1/2 minutes.

There were several multiple death accidents during the long holiday weekend. Eight died in two crashes Sunday, including four young Milwaukee men in a smash-up near Racine, Wis., and four persons in a collision on icy pavement in morning fog near Green-up, Ill.

Fires took a heavy toll, including a rash of multiple death dwelling fires. The worst single fire took the lives of a mother and eight of her children in a farmhouse near Auburn, Wash. The record number of holiday fire deaths was 111 in the four-day 1951 Christmas period.

This year's over-all accident death toll compares with the record of 884 in the four-day 1956 Christmas weekend.

The over-all total also compares with the 532 reported in an Associated Press survey for a non-holiday test period from 6 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 10, to midnight Sunday, Dec. 14. Included in the survey, made for comparative purposes, were 341 traffic deaths, 106 killed in fires and 105 deaths in miscellaneous type accidents.

In Dumas, winds estimated up to 50 m.p.h. in gusts swept snow through the city. It dropped visibility to zero at times and travelers rarely could see more than 100 feet. Heavy snow continued to fall about noon.

Roads were completely snowed in from El Paso to Dumas, 12 miles south, authorities said.

First death reported from the weather occurred 14 miles northwest of Muleshoe in Bailey County near the New Mexico border. L.D. Rundell, 35, a farmer of near Lariat, drove onto tracks in the blinding snow and died when a freight hit his automobile.

The Weather Bureau urged stockmen to protect their livestock.

The snow was expected to cover much of Northwest Texas by morning, reaching into the Middle Red River Valley and into the edge of Central Texas.

The official U. S. forecast was for around 4 inches of snow in the Panhandle and South Plains and Middle Red River Valley.

The snow struck Dalhart in the upper Panhandle about midnight.

By 8 a.m., it had reached Amarillo and then pushed on toward the Lubbock area in the South Plains.

Reports at Amarillo showed the snow general over the Panhandle and indications were that it would blanket the South Plains by Tuesday.

The high winds swirled the flakes in drifts.

The Highway Department warned at mid-morning that roads already were icy and dangerous in the Panhandle. The department said 25 to 30 mile winds and drifting snow made conditions dangerous in the Amarillo District, where it was to three inches of snow had fallen.

The mercury slid to 20 degrees at Amarillo and visibility was cut to a quarter mile. Wind gusts were up to 35 miles an hour.

The Highway Department said one to one and a half inches of snow had fallen in the Lubbock District at Muleshoe, Dimmit, Bovina and Tula by mid-morning.

Roads were icy and hazardous north of Lubbock. Winds ranged from 15 to 20

DEAR ABBY

SOLID ANSWER!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Please forgive me for not signing my name but how can I impress upon the friends of my 14-year-old daughter that they cannot stay in her bedroom with the door locked (even if they are "only dancing"). Boys and girls (ages 14 and 15) congregate in her bedroom for hours with the record player going and they bolt the door on me. My daughter says if I can't trust her friends it is just too bad! I would like something CONCRETE to show them.

DEAR LOCKED: Tell them that they are not to be in any room of the house with the door locked. If this rule is respected and you need something more CONCRETE to show them — how about the sidewalk?

DEAR ABBY: I married this guy because I thought I had to but it turned out that I didn't have to. We are a painter and if you know anything about painters they are a bunch of drunks. When he's on a job I don't see him for days at a time and I never know where to find him. We've got our name in for adoption because I'm crazy about kids, but the way he's acting could never measure up to what they expect parents to be. He says he drinks because we've got no family and it helps him forget. Is there any hope for us?

DEAR SICK: Tell your husband to get the lead out of his pants and visit a marriage counselor with you. He can be straightened out if he gets the proper help. Good luck. (P. S. ALL painters aren't drunks.)

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that my husband is gaining so much weight that I am getting ashamed to be seen with him. I try to cook low-calorie meals but he eats out a lot on business and I can't watch him. He used to be a very good looking man but now he can't even bend down to tie his own shoes. How can I make him listen to reason?

DEAR GIVE: A man who is digging his grave with his teeth needs to listen to a few vital statistics. His doctor or insurance company can supply them. If this doesn't convince him, it might take a headshrinker to shrink the rest of him.

DEAR ABBY: My mother starts picking on me the minute I walk in the door. It's "Don't slam the door! Pick up your feet! Hang up your things! Stand straight!" Is it just me or do other boys get ordered around like this? I am sick and tired of it. Don't tell me to talk to my father as he always sticks up for my mother.

DEAR PICKED: Other boys who slam doors, drag their feet, leave their clothes around and slouch get picked on, too. How about a little improvement in those departments? You'd be surprised how much your mother's disposition will improve, too.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CHARLES: Don't be afraid to opposition. Remember — a kite rises AGAINST the wind.

Man Could Dodge Radiation Bands

WASHINGTON (AP) — Man won't have to worry about radiation in space flights if he learns how to dodge two radiation bands circling the earth, according to a cosmic ray expert.

Dr. James A. Van Allen, head of the physics department at the University of Iowa, based that prediction on findings from the latest Army and Air Force space probes.

Van Allen said the earth is like a marble in the hole of a huge doughnut which in turn is encircled by another doughnut. Both bands seemingly trap high energy particles from the sun.

He said the first band is 2,000 miles thick and extends from 1,400 miles to 3,400 miles above the earth, roughly in line with the Equator. The second is 4,000 miles thick, beginning 8,000 miles out. The extent of the earth's magnetic field capable of holding small charged particles apparently is some 40,000 miles out, he said.

Van Allen addressed a meeting of the American Astronautical Society and talked with reporters. He gave detailed information from the Army's Pioneer space probe fired Dec. 6.

He said the rocket reported back good cosmic ray data almost all the way going out and returning earthward during the 38-hour flight in which it shot about 63,000 miles high.

If you assumed the high energy particles were trapped by the earth's magnetic field, he said, you could assume there were radiation-free passageways — similar to the hole of a doughnut — extending through the earth's magnetic poles.

Dr. Hugh Dryden, deputy director of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said a study of the two radiation bands will get highest priority next year from the new civilian space agency.

Dryden said during a television interview the amount of shielding needed for man to survive in space flight will be based on such explorations.

In another scientific development over the weekend, President Eisenhower announced he was creating a new federal council for science and technology. The group will work for better planning of scientific programs and the reduction of duplication in scientific studies.

Girl Refuses Rescue Gift

STRATFORD, Conn. (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Alida Pettit couldn't accept the gift. Not from the church. Not from anybody. Not while Herman Simmons lay in a hospital with his body covered with burns.

The gift was from the First Baptist Church. The congregation directed its pastor, the Rev. William O. Johnson, to present Alida with $56 Sunday. She was to buy a new coat with the money.

"I don't need a new coat. I don't want a new coat," she sobbed. Alida, a 95-pound high school sophomore, leaped from her mother's car Saturday when Simmons' garbage truck overturned and burst into flames. She tugged at the 200-pound Simmons and helped him escape through a broken window. Then she took off her coat, a Christmas present, and smothered the flames covering his body.

The 36-year-old driver is in critical condition, burned over almost 60 per cent of his body. When she was asked how she came to run to Simmons' aid, Alida said: "He was screaming. I knew I couldn't let him die."

She and her father, Wilbur Pettit, asked the pastor to give the money to Simmons for hospital expenses.

The Rev. Mr. Johnson said the church had already directed other funds for the Simmons family. Simmons is secretary of the church's board of deacons.

Alida finally took the $56. Then she donated it to the Herman Simmons Fund of the First Baptist Church.

"There is really nothing wrong with my coat," she said.

Marine Faces Trial Today

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — A Marine training instructor, Sgt. Ralph A. J. Grant of Racine, Wis., goes on military trial today on charges of beating recruits and accepting payoff money from them.

Sgt. Grant and Sgt. Willard B. Poss of Augusta, Ga., another drill instructor at this Marine recruit training center, are charged with accepting money from 69 members of an Ohio recruit platoon. Each recruit allegedly chipped in $10 into a $690-pot for sergeants.

The two are also accused of assault and battery in the alleged manhandling of boot or rookie Marines. A third drill instructor, Sgt. Ronald J. Heller of Milwaukee, Wis., is charged only with assault and battery.

The general courts-martial of Poss and Heller will follow that of Sgt. Grant.

The charges grew out of statements made by six members of Ohio's Steel Valley Platoon when home on leave last September after completing basic training at Parris Island.

They told their parents of alleged mistreatment and the payoff which they said all members of the platoon made. The Steel Valley platoon was recruited last June in the Youngstown-Warren area.

The six recruits referred to in the charges now are stationed at Camp Lejeune, N.C. They are Privates Raymond E. Theisler, Herbert S. Stevens and Gerald Wardrop, all of Youngstown; William K. Hartman, Leavittsburg; Arthur L. Browne, Lisbon; and Pfc. Charles E. Weaver, Newton Falls.

Texas Toll 77

By The Associated Press

Shootings and mysterious gas joined with traffic fatalities to send the holiday death in Texas to at least 77 persons by early Monday.

Traffic mishaps have accounted for 47 deaths since The Associated Press count started in the state at 6 p.m. Christmas Eve. It will continue through midnight New Year's Day.

A mysterious gas in an El Paso home was blamed Sunday for the deaths of Maj. Horace Tillson, 41, his wife, Vivian, 39, both of Lawton, Okla., and Mrs. Tillson's brother, Henry Epley, 17, of El Paso. Investigating officers said there was no indication of suicide and no signs of violence. They said the strong, choking gas smelled like ammonia. Autopsies were being held to determine the cause of the deaths.

France Devalues Franc

French Finance Minister Antoine Pinay, left, announces new financial measures at the Ministry of Interior at Paris, after the French government devalued the franc to 493.7 to the American dollar. The old official rate had been 450 to the American dollar. The sweeping monetary changes were announced after Premier Charles De Gaulle called his ministers to a special cabinet session to overhaul the nation's economic position internally and externally. Trigger-Happy Ex-Convict Shoots Up Ft. Worth Club

FORT WORTH (AP) — A man was killed and another was critically wounded in a night club on Fort Worth's East Side early yesterday by a trigger-happy former convict.

Kenneth Burson, 19, a brakeman for the Rock Island Railroad, was killed. Bobby Fogle, 27, was shot in the legs and hips.

Officers arrested Eugene Webb, 33, a former convict, who has served three prison terms.

"He had no reason at all for the shooting," Detective Grady Haire said. "He had nothing to do with the ruckus. He just wanted to shoot somebody, and he did."

Refusing to talk, the ex-convict answered all questions with "I ain't got nothing to say."

Officers gave this account of the affray:

The lights in the club were switched on and off at 1:05 a.m. to signal closing time. A 21-year-old man walked over to Fogle and started a fight. The two were ordered outside the club.

When Fogle re-entered the club, he was shot by the gun-waving ex-convict.

The gunman then turned on Burson, an innocent bystander, and fired a bullet into his chest from a distance of two feet. Burson and a friend, James Ford, started outside to their car.

Burson then fell to his knees, pleading, "Help me, I'm shot."

Ford went back into the club to telephone an ambulance. He was met with gunfire.

"Nobody's going to call an ambulance," the gunman proclaimed.

The East Side night spot, the Penguin Club, was the scene of three bomb attempts last year.

Peeping Tom But Not A Burglar

DALLAS (AP) — Bouncers at a burlesque house thought they had caught a burglar when a man crashed through the ceiling of the dressing room, narrowly missing three strippers.

But the man insisted he had not come to rob a safe on the second floor. He said he was just a patron who had climbed up to the attic to peep into the dressing room.

While squinting through the peephole, he said, he lost his balance and fell through.

France Embarks On 'Housecleaning'

PARIS (AP) — France today embarked on a new year's housecleaning of her economy.

It was bad news all along the line for most French people, but Premier Charles de Gaulle said it was the only way to get out of a dangerous situation.

In a nationwide radio and television address Sunday night, De Gaulle presented only the melancholy big picture. The sad details of the new austerity will be in the fine print of the official journal, which prints all government regulations, in the next few days.

These were the major hardship measures announced by the Premier:

Devaluation of the franc by 17.5 per cent, cutting prices of French products abroad but raising them and of imports for the home folks.

Partial convertibility of the franc, allowing foreigners to dip into France's small stock of gold and dollar exchange without comparable liberalization for Frenchmen wanting to buy, travel or invest abroad.

A budget of nearly 15 billion dollars, up more than two billion dollars from last year.

A variety of tax increases and cuts in subsidies the government has been paying to producers to keep prices of many things down. The government estimates this will keep the budget deficit to about $1,100,000,000, some 300 million less than it was last year.

But the loss of subsidies will send prices on those items up.

More spending in Algeria, both for the military campaign against the nationalist rebellion and for the ambitious economic program De Gaulle wants to launch to better the lot of the Moslems.

The little he promised to brighten the dark picture included a raise in the lowest minimum wage levels, and increases in unemployment benefits to bring jobless pay to the minimum wage. There was also indication of improved hospitals, housing and schools.

De Gaulle said the revolt of the colonials and the army in Algeria last May, which brought him back to power, actually resulted "from the general conviction that the public powers were impotent against the wave of menaces, which comprised, naturally, those striking our economy."

"The confidence of the country," he continued, "has permitted us, in this realm as in others, to reverse the tendency and ward off the most threatening. However, the situation remains precarious, that is to say, dangerous."

The franc now drops from a rate of 420 to the dollar to 493. This means that French goods sold abroad should sell for 17.5 per cent less, but Frenchmen in turn will have to pay 17.5 per cent more for what they import.

Since France is a big importer of raw materials, hardly any item on French store shelves will be spared a small rise in price.

Playwright Gives Humanity 10 Years

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Playwright Tennessee Williams gives the human race 10 years if it doesn't settle down in amity.

"People talk glibly about what kind of cars they will have in 1970 and how long it will take to get to the moon," Williams told a Sunday Herald interviewer.

"My opinion is that you and I not to speak of the rest of the human race, won't be here by 1970. I think Armageddon is really at hand this time."

"We have speeded up time itself, travel in jets . . . and talk seriously about living in outer space when we haven't yet learned to live on earth without fighting each other."

A Devotional For Today

It shall come to pass, that at evening time it shall be light. (Zechariah 14:7.)

PRAYER: May the nations, our Father, find inspiration, challenge, and hope in Thy Word. Grant to us a new birth of freedom that, under Thy guidance, we may show forth the glory of our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. In His name and spirit we pray. Amen.

This Affects Your Pocketbook

One of the paramount issues facing the Congress when it convenes in January is that of inflation.

The depreciated dollar is just about as important to the average person as the threat of a cold war erupting into a hot one. One of the first and most positive steps that can be taken toward halting the shrinking value of your dollars is the balancing of the federal budget.

To the average person this sounds like high finance talk and doesn't make personal sense. But when the federal government (or any branch of the government) fails to balance its budget, it has to borrow the difference between income and outgo. By so doing, the government adds to the money supply and hence increases the demand for goods without necessarily increasing the production of those goods. This means that the additional money is used to bid up the prices in order to buy the available goods.

For instance: If in your little neighborhood there is available $1,000 for purchase of 100 items which are priced at $10 each, one may continue to buy them at that price. If, however, there suddenly comes into play an extra $1,000 but no extra goods, bidding for the goods becomes more competitive. In order to achieve a balance between the available money and available goods, the price then becomes $20 per item. You still get only one item but you pay twice as much as before.

You see, this is the basic fact about inflation. It is not how much you make or have, but what it will buy that determines the value of your money. When anything, such as unbalanced budgets adds fictitiously to the money supply, the value of your dollar is lessened. You have been robbed of some of your purchasing power.

If you have expectation of using your gains for old age or extra comforts of living, or if you are retired or are on Social Security, you have a tremendously real stake in seeing that the value of your savings of retirement income is not permitted to shrink any further. You can write your congressman or others in Congress and insist that the budget be balanced.

There are two ways to achieve balance. One is through higher taxes; the other is through reduced expenditures. You know which course is wisest for you.

An Honor Of No Small Measure

The selection of Dan M. Krausse as one of the five outstanding young men in Texas during 1958 is an honor of no small measure.

It is richly deserved by Krausse, a man with a civic conscience to match his exceptional talents and energies.

In less than a decade he has moved to one of the places of greatest responsibility in Coston Petroleum Corporation, Inc. This, within itself, is an indication of the manner in which he has combined brilliance with administrative skill.

He has played a leading role in the undertaking and execution of bold new concepts in refining and petrochemical technology. Yet he has not confined his functions to the simple mechanics of processing or manufacture, for Krausse has been put in charge of all the refining and processing and has come in contact with the transportation and other dispositions of products, financing, etc.

In his relations with his colleagues he has shown a proper appreciation for the human side of any successful operation. In his community, he has taken time to assume responsibilities ranging from the most humble to the heaviest. He has taken a place of leadership in his church and has proven a stalwart family man.

Being chosen on behalf of the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce organization for this high honor is certainly a cause for pride to him, but even more for the community that it possesses such a personality.

Divided GOP Faces The Fiscal Policy

WASHINGTON — Republicans are still fighting Republicans in the Senate contest for the selection of a leader. Some of the group calling themselves "liberal" give the impression that they want to cease being an opposition party. They show an affinity for what the Democratic "liberals" advocate and perhaps belong in the Democratic party. They seem to be intensifying a feud that could alienate conservative voters of the Republican party throughout the country.

When Sen. Bush of Connecticut says that he wants Sen. Cooper of Kentucky elected leader so as to show that the party "is looking to the future rather than to the past," he is by inference attacking Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois, and the conservative group in the Senate.

The Illinois senator was a disciple of the late Sen. Taft. He has supported the Eisenhower administration on every one of its vital programs, including "civil rights." The function of a Republican leader in the Senate today is not only to carry out by his own vote the wishes of the administration, but to persuade other Republicans to support the legislative program of the administration.

The "liberal" Republicans claim they are 100 per cent behind the Eisenhower administration and always have been. So the main problem is to keep the conservatives in line. Would a Republican "liberal" who condemns the conservatives be able to accomplish that feat, or would he widen the breach in the party? To ask the question is to answer it, but the Republican "liberals" are talking as if it didn't matter whether or not they won the conservative Republicans to their side.

What is the real difference among the Republicans in the Senate? Some of them have been stampeded by the last election returns into thinking that conservative Republicanism was repudiated at the polls. The theory that more and more billions of the taxpayers' money should be expended for "welfare" and that the budget can be kept unbalanced indefinitely has gained ground among the "liberals" in both parties. It's the same old story of New Deal days when it took a war to rescue the country from the heavy unemployment that "leaf-raking" and WPA extravaganzas had failed to cure.

Both "liberals" and "conservatives" on the Republican side really went down to defeat in last month's congressional elections primarily because of the recession. The party in power always suffers when there's a recession. The voter didn't pass judgment on "liberal" or "conservative" issues. He voted his grievances, blaming the party leadership in the White House for economic ills it had not created.

The next test will come in the approaching session of Congress when the administration announces its policies. These will fit in far more with the established conservative doctrine than with the spending theories of the "liberals." It will take some sturdy fighting in the Congress to defend the administration's fiscal policies. Anyone who isn't in sympathy with such fiscal policies and believes in the spending ideas of the "liberals" on the Democratic side isn't going to be able to put up much of a battle for the administration.

When the President's message is read to Congress next month it will be denounced by "liberal" Democrats because it will not recommend the spending of the billions they want to see spent. The administration will be on the defensive and it will need a veteran battler like Sen. Dirksen who is experienced in political combat to inspire the Republican party generally.

It's curious how history repeats itself. Back in 1910 the Republicans lost the House of Representatives to the Democrats for the first time in 18 years. The issue was the "high cost of living" which was blamed on the protective tariff. The "liberals" of those days were called "insurgent Republicans." They fought the conservatives so bitterly that two years later the Republican party put two rival presidential tickets in the field, divided the Republican vote, and the Democrats easily won the presidency.

There are signs that the 1958 "liberals" in the Republican party are ready to do it again—to divide their own party and force its defeat in 1960. President Eisenhower is the only man who can keep the "liberals" from breaking up the party and, judging by the firm way he has announced his stand on a balanced budget, the "spending" wing of the party cannot expect much encouragement from him. The issue of 1960 could well be between a depreciated dollar or a sound dollar. On that issue an overwhelming majority of the people will be found supporting a stable dollar.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

News item says American jukeboxes are being imported by the Communist government of Rumania to keep life from getting too grim and boring in that Soviet satellite state.

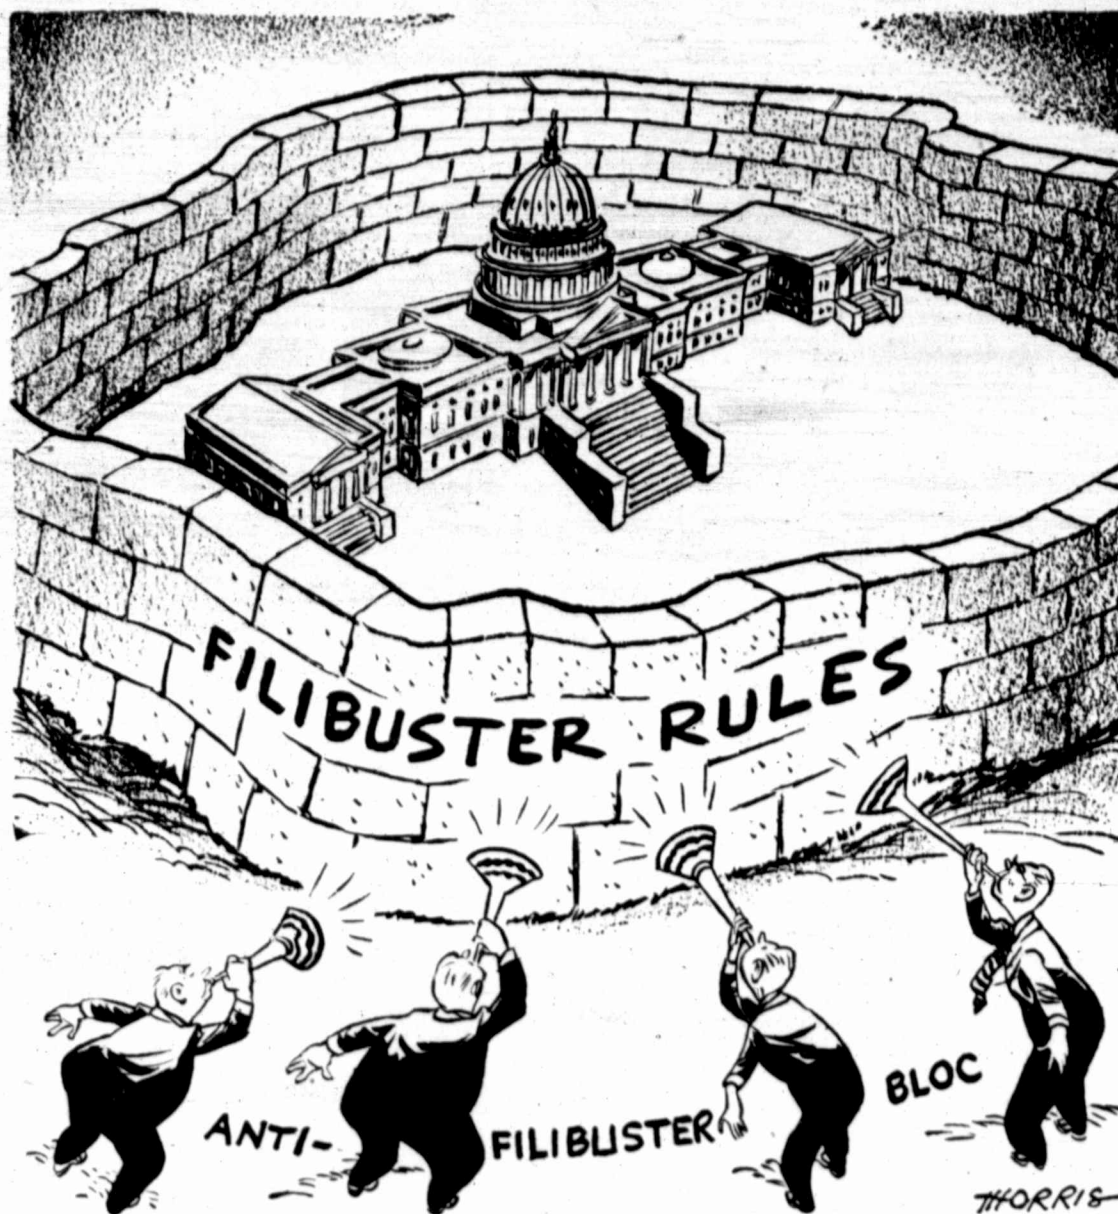

We know boredom is hard to endure, but it does seem the Hungarian Communists are adopting a rather drastic remedy for it. In fact, it leads one to wonder if, in this case, the remedy might not be worse than the disease!

Big Hangovers For The New Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Troubled but indecisive 1958 has left some big hangovers for 1959, here and abroad. It was hardly more than a minor interlude between past and future.

Of three of the most important things to face mankind—disarmament, an end to nuclear tests, and prevention of surprise attack—there was no solid agreement. There will, of course, be more talks next year.

This was the biggest recession year since the war, with as many as 5,200,000 unemployed. By year's end the United States had bounced back but millions are still jobless and living costs, though steady in recent months, threaten to resume their rise.

Next year looks good for jobs and business. But no economist is brave enough, or stupid enough, to predict there won't be more recessions, and perhaps worse ones.

In November the voters showed overwhelming lack of faith in the Republican party. Yet President Eisenhower, whose faltering leadership has failed to give his party a sense of newness or direction, remains highly popular.

He himself seems more conservative as he grows older.

In his early White House years he talked brightly of cutting government spending. And did. But this year spending hit a peacetime high, and may go even higher next year although Eisenhower still talks of balancing the budget.

All through 1958 the bitter, tense Southern resistance to public school integration continued and with increasingly deadly effect: thousands of white students were out of their closed-down schools. There's no end in sight in 1959.

The United States entered 1958 in gloom and doubt about its ability and its destination. The Russians, with their Sputniks of 1957, were ahead in the space age.

Americans asked themselves: Can we catch up? What's happened to us?

By year's end the United States had lifted into orbit first of some tiny satellites and then the huge Atlas. It also sent two atomic-powered submarines under the North Pole.

Those were boosts to sagging morale. But the contest between the United States and the Soviet Union for superiority on the earth and the space above it is just beginning.

Onomus equally for the United States and the Soviet Union was the breakneck dash of Red China to catch up with the 20th century, with its 600 million people reduced to machines and the population growing.

The brief crisis over the shelling of Quemoy by Red China was small potatoes compared with what this country faces in 1959 and later from the Chinese Communists.

They say they have the determination—and plenty of time—to dominate Asia, take Formosa, and utterly freeze the United States out of the Orient and the western Pacific.

The revolution in Iraq was an American disaster. It virtually wrecked the Baghdad Pact—that American-sponsored alliance of nations friendly to the United States on the southern Soviet flank.

Worse still is this possibility: Communists may take over Iraq next year. This would be the Red's first great foothold in the Middle East and a springboard for the conquest of all of it.

What may be the year's most critical problem was the sudden Soviet effort to shatter American strength and influence in Europe by demanding that Berlin be left an undefended island in the East German Communist sea. If the United States resists, it could mean war.

If it yields, the result may be disaster anyway: destruction of the Atlantic Alliance, ruination of European confidence in America, and the Soviet Union's greatest postwar victory.

In 1959 there will be no real peace and certainly no rest.

All Set

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Sam Weisenberg of San Diego hooked a ride with three men in a jeep during a hunting trip in Utah. He fell off the jeep and injured his back before he was introduced to the trio and learned they were all from San Diego.

But by then he felt quite secure. One was a doctor. Another was a priest. And the third was an undertaker.

No Warning

CALERA, Okla. — After a breakdown of several days, Calera's water pumping machinery was repaired and Water Superintendent Andrew Hamilton threw the switch.

The flow of new water didn't fill the mains and Hamilton investigated. He discovered many residents had left their faucets open and the water was pouring down the drain.

Around The Rim

Trouble Ahead With The Hope Diamond

Any day now, I expect the value of the good old American earlobes to plunge still farther, taxes to go up and San Francisco to fall into the bay.

Someone talked the gem into accepting the Hope diamond, a bigger and more durable jinx than anything an African witch doctor ever concocted.

The Smithsonian Institute accepted it on behalf of the United States last month. It's apparent that the museum felt heir to it after no one else wanted it.

In its lengthy history, the famous jewel has been worn by harem favorites, king's mistresses, actresses, wives of the tall millinery and velvet push and, more recently, by a princeling of the canine kingdom.

The history of the Hope diamond dates back to 1642, when one Jean Baptiste Tavernier got his meat hooks on it while traveling in the Orient.

The antecedents of the Hollywood pitchmen must have been abroad in those days because some of the stories told about it even then would have done credit to those "happiness pills" fed us by the show business press agents of today.

Tavernier sold it to King Louis IV and, if Louis didn't have two strikes on him before that incident, he did once the transaction was closed.

Not long after he came into possession of the gem, the French regent went to his maker while visiting in Russia.

One of the king's favorites, Mme. de Montespan, was allowed to wear it, but, he dropped her like a hot potato before he started on that one-way trip to Russia.

King Louis XVI fell heir to it and later was separated from his think tank, Marie Antoinette came into possession of the stone along about that time and she, too, lost her head over it, to put it bluntly.

Not long after Marie's big scene at the chopping block, a Princess de Lamballe, who had borrowed it, had a losing and very fatal argument with a mob.

In the early 19th century, a son stole it from his father. The sire died, a ruined man, and the offspring decided to depart this mortal coil before his own time through self-mayhem.

One ambitious but ill-advised fellow bought it for a fraction of its worth in the middle of the 1800's and died of starvation the very day after he had wished it on some one else.

It came into possession of an English lord named Francis Pelham-Clinton-Hope and he went through all sorts of tribulations before he died without a farthing to his name. His wife, a one-time actress, reasoned her luck had turned when told the gem was hers but later became a scrub-woman in order to make ends meet.

One poor bloke of royal birth, who owned it briefly, ran into the stiletto of a revolutionist. Another who juggled it for a while wound up as the honored party at an old-fashioned necktie party. Still another drowned in a shipwreck off Singapore.

Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, one of its more recent owners, was known to drape it about the neck of her Great Dane, on occasions. The dog only yawned at the folklore, however, and lived his life without an abundance of trouble.

Now, it would appear we're all going to the dogs.

The Swinging Of The Labor Pendulum

There was a time, within the memory of the majority of Americans living today, when the electorate got fed up with rapacious, undisciplined and bullheaded big business and slapped it down through the medium of its elected servants, the Congress of the United States.

It occurs to me that big labor might, with profit to itself, take a close look at this recent chapter in our national history. The sauce that is served the goose in one instance often becomes forced-feeding for the gander in short order.

Or, to put it in another way, no matter how wide the pendulum swings, on its return journey it sweeps just as far in the opposite direction. And it is one woman's opinion that the electorate is getting fed up with strikes against the public, and that it is particularly angered by strikes against the public at Christmas.

Christmas strikes, affecting large segments of the public, are obviously a chosen instrument of policy in certain sections of labor. This season the general public has been the chief victim of strikes against the major airlines, at a time when holiday travel is at its height.

This year, the greater New York area, affecting some 15,000,000 persons, has been without metropolitan newspapers. Business has been seriously affected and readers inconvenienced by a strike of the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union which the Rev. William J. Smith, director of St. Peter's Institute of Labor Relations, describes "unjustified and without reason."

Christmas in New York is the chosen season, too, for the transport unions to threaten to close down the subways and suspend bus service. These are not strikes against the subway and bus systems; these are strikes against a suffering and no-longer-patient public.

A Mild And Gentlemanly Proxy Fight

Make yourself comfortable in a ring-side seat. You won't need shower curtains to shield you from spraying sweat of toiling, growing, slugging gladiators. This is a sweet-scented combat—a powder puff puff battle. That's what makes it worth writing about.

When the late Robert R. Young stormed the bastions of William White's New York Central Railroad, when Louis E. Wolfson took on that redoubtable octogenarian, Sewell Avery of Montgomery Ward & Co., name-calling, character-assassination, and personal mayhem were entirely in order. Young and Wolfson wanted scalps. No holds or public-relations devices were barred.

In this contest all is decorous. The date is January 14. The target in the contest is Adrian M. Massie, chairman of the board of the staid, conservative, $900,000,000 New York Trust Co. Yet, Massie's attackers don't want to throw Massie out. All they ask is the right to name five additional directors to the 19-man board. Nor will Massie have to displace old directors. The by-laws permit a board of 25.

The besiegers are not Johnny-come-latelys, trying to muscle into the inner circle of New York's high finance. They have formed a committee for Stockholder Representation. Their first letter to stockholders is so discreet it doesn't even state the purpose of the committee, which is to powder-puff the bank into a merger with another bank.

The committee's principal members are Ellery C. Huntington Jr., of Darien, Conn., formerly chairman of the Equity Corp., an investment trust with banking interests; Williamson Pell Jr., of Rye, N. Y., of the Wall Street law firm of Jackson, Nash, Brophy, Barringer & Brooks; and C. Frank Reavis and Robert Thrun, of the law firm of Hodges, Reavis, McArthur & Downey, of 26 Broadway. Thrun is secretary of the committee.

Thrun contends that Massie and the present board of directors are inflexibly opposed to a merger; that the committee, by gaining board membership, hopes to make the board more receptive to merger; that this would better serve the stockholders. Thrun says the committee represents more than 20 per cent of the outstanding shares.

The officers and directors feel that the New York Trust has a rightful, respected, and useful place in New York banking, with six strategically located branches, each serving an active business community. They oppose the suggestion that officers should take an active part in or initiate merger negotiations. It's "against the best interests of stockholders."

Three large New York banks, the Guaranty Trust Co., the Hanover Bank, and the Chemical Bank, have approached the New York Trust in the last several years.

When the head of one of these banks called Massie to chat about merger possibilities, Massie told him the New York Trust wasn't interested in dickering. That got back to the merger-bent stockholders, who now insist that Massie won't listen to any plan unless it's complete in every detail—"with all the t's crossed and i's dotted."

In 1952, an actual merger was agreed to with the Manufacturers Trust Co., but it fell through when a group of stockholders, including some of those who now want to powder-puff the board into a merger, argued that the terms were not favorable. They wanted a premium for their stock.

The insurgents cite the recently announced J. P. Morgan-Guaranty Trust deal as proof that profitable mergers can be worked out. In terms of book value, Morgan shareholders will get more than $290 of Guaranty book value against their own book value of $234. In dividends, they'll get $17.60 versus their own rate of $10. Morgan stock rose some 50 points on the announcement.

Underlying this decorous proxy contest is a basic investment problem. The insurgents argue stockholders will be better off if New York Trust's organization is a useful part of a larger institution; that stockholders will get greater return on their investment and the capital value of the stock will be immediately enhanced.

The counter argument is that an independent institution has a viable function in New York City serving a special clientele, that the New York Trust has been growing steadily and widening its scope, that dividends have increased, and that there is always time for a merger. If big banks in New York continue to gobble up smaller independent institutions, the banks that remain independent will command a still greater premium value in mergers later on.

It's no easy choice for stockholders.

IN DAVIS CUP PLAY

Olmedo Triumphant But MacKay Falls

By WILL GRIMSLEY

BRISBANE, Australia (AP)—Alex Olmedo crushed Mal Anderson, but Barry MacKay fell before the smooth strokes of Ashley Cooper today to give the United States and Australia one victory apiece in the opening singles of the Davis Cup Challenge Round.

The results also made Perry Jones, the controversial 70-year-old U.S. captain, look alternately like a sick old genius and a not-so-smart-old-timer.

It was Jones who convinced U.S. brass that Olmedo, a Peruvian, should be put on the team. It also was Jones who bypassed Hamilton Richardson, the No. 1 U.S. player, for MacKay over the former's violent protests.

Olmedo whipped Anderson 8-6, 2-6, 9-7, 8-6 in a magnificent uphill battle. Cooper, after writhing under MacKay's bullet services for one set, came out on top 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4.

So now it's a brand new match. The doubles are scheduled for Tuesday with Olmedo teaming with Richardson and Cooper pairing with left-handed Neale Fraser for the Australians. It is in the doubles that the Americans were conceding their best chance in pre-match forecasts.

The courts were soaked from a tropical storm the night before, and all four players donned spikes at one time or another. Despite the canvas covering, some rain seeped onto the turf of the Milton Tennis Stadium.

Olmedo, 22, the first foreigner ever to play on a U.S. Davis Cup team, more than acquitted himself before the sellout crowd of 18,500. He hauled himself off the deck a couple of times when he appeared ready to take the count, and slugged it out toe-to-toe with Anderson until the tide of battle changed.

In the first set, Anderson was ahead 6-5 and ran up a 40-15 margin on Olmedo's service. But Alex forced Anderson into two errors, then grabbed two more quick points and it was tied at 6-6.

In the third set again, Anderson made a bid to chop down Olmedo. But Alex again wouldn't give. Anderson was ahead 7-6 on Olmedo's service. No fewer than five times was the Aussie at set point, only to have Olmedo come storming back at him, and finally win the game.

That one discouraged Anderson, and by the time the fourth set came around, Olmedo was the master of the situation.

As for MacKay, he tried to put his service right through Cooper for three sets.

His strategy worked for one set, but then Cooper began merely keeping the ball in play and waiting for the proper spot to go for his winners.

That finished MacKay. In the final set, Barry also decided to change his tactics and he gave up trying to overpower Cooper. By that time it was too late.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

By TOMMY HART

Ex-Big Spring griddier Raymond Gilstrap, an all-conference end here in 1952, will finish his schooling at San Diego State in California.

Gilstrap had designs on attending Texas Tech or some other school in the Lone Star State after departing the Marine Corps but none could offer him the deal San Diego extended him.

Raymond played football for the Marines against San Diego and made quite an impression on Dr. Paul Governali, the former Columbia passing ace who is now coach of the Aztecs. He'll have three years of eligibility left with the California team.

San Diego played a schedule which included games with Santa Barbara, Pepperdine, Long Beach State, Los Angeles State, Fresno State, Cal Poly and College of Pacific, in addition to the SD Marines, the past season.

Gizz now weighs 208, about 18 pounds more than he did when he performed here under Carl Coleman. He's put in two years of junior college ball at Ranger JC.

A couple of the nation's golfers will probably long remember boners they pulled in 1958. In the Los Angeles Open, amateur Frank Hardison put his nine-hole total of "40" in the scoreboard box for the 18th hole. The scoreboard was certified with that mistake—and Hardison wound up with an official score of 119 for the 18-hole total.

In the Tucson Open, Art Berry carried one club over the limit for an entire round of play. As a result, he was forced to take a two-stroke penalty for every hole — 36 strokes in all—and wound up with a final score of 118.

Ex-West Texan Marshall Brown, who guided his Lon Morris College basketball team to a 28-4 won-lost season last year, says the Bearcats are just as good as they were last year and give every indication of getting better.

The Bearcats have never won the national junior college crown but this could be the season.

Professional golf records show that no fewer than 25 of the players in the play-off pay ranks earned between $15,000 and $50,000 in tournament loot alone during 1958.

One of those was Billy Maxwell, who earned something like $20,000 during the year. Billy, of course, is well known in these parts. He played in his first tournament in Big Spring at the age of 12.

Jay Arnette, the University of Texas basketball player, is a pharmacy major and that's not surprising. His father is Director of Pharmacy Extension Training at the university.

Archie Moore, the lightweight boxing champion, is six months older than Joe Louis, according to his mother, and Joe hung up the gloves seven years ago. That would make him 45 years plus.

They call him Antiqua Archie but his advanced age doesn't make him unique, even in his own field of trade.

The one-time heavyweight titlist Jack Johnson fought seriously until he was 50 and had two three-round exhibitions in 1947 at the age of 67.

Robt Fitzsimmons won the 175-pound title at the age of 41, after he had been dethroned as king of the superdreadnaughts.

The late Jim Brail, a London golf pro, shot a 69 when he was 80 years old. Jack Hutchinson, another golfer, is in his 70's and he still breaks 70.

Sarge Easter, a bowler in his middle 70's, is averaging 208 in California this season. Bill Tilden was playing the very best in the pro tennis world at the age of 48. Who said sports is a young man's game?

Switzerland's towering center, appears virtually certain to take scoring honors. He enters the final game with 50 points—13 more than anybody else in the tournament. Bobby James of Southern Methodist has 37, Clyde Rhoden of Arkansas and Tom Robitaille of Rice 36, Neil Swisher of A&M 35 and Leon Hill of Texas Tech 31.

The tournament has drawn well but doesn't appear likely to set an attendance record. The four sessions Friday and Saturday pulled in 18,500. Some 8,000 are expected Monday afternoon and night. The record is 28,000, set in 1953.

When the conference race opens Saturday, it will be Texas A&M vs. Southern Methodist at Dallas, Baylor and Texas Christian at Waco, Rice and Texas at Houston and Texas Tech and Arkansas at Fayetteville.

Tom Robitaille of Rice leads the league in scoring for the season with 192 points while Kirchner is second with 158.

BALTIMORE COLTS WIN IN GREAT COMEBACK

NEW YORK (AP)—If they play football for 100 years, they never can top Baltimore's first championship snatched in a sudden death playoff 23-17 after New York refused to gamble.

The Colts coddled a 17-14 lead with 2 1/2 minutes to play after an electrifying second half comeback. It was fourth down and inches to go on New York's 43. A first down probably would have permitted the Colts to run out the clock on four ground plays. A punt would give the Colts another chance.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

Norwegian Actress
Samples U. S. Ways

By LYDIA LANE

HOLLYWOOD — When Norwegian actress Anna Lisa came to America she was prepared for a long struggle to break into motion pictures. But after this beautiful blonde appeared on the CBS-TV "Lux Playhouse," her acting career began to zoom.

"California is quite a contrast to Norway. When I left Oslo I was wearing heavy shoes with clumsy heels and strong soles because of the deep snows we have there. Naturally when I arrived here I had to do a lot of shopping."

"And at home we use very little make-up and wear only the most practical clothes," she added.

But one look at Anna Lisa (she has dropped her last name) and it was evident to me that she has been an apt pupil in learning glamour tricks.

"I think re-styling my hair — taking out the tight curls and bleaching it a little — has made the most important change in me," she said.

"What do you think of our American men?" I asked, positive she had a list of admirers.

"It is very impressive to a Scandinavian girl to have a man open a car door for her, light her cigarette or offer to carry her parcels. In Oslo there is less sex-consciousness. We do not have what you call 'the battle of the sexes.' We treat each other as human beings first — love and marriage are not an issue the way they are here.

"It is not easy to explain, but a boy takes a girl out because they have mutual interests. A love of the same sport or working together often develops into romance and that is nice, but love is not their original objective."

"I hope I never lose my ability to relax," Anna Lisa exclaimed. "It seems to me that people in America rush too much. They seem to have a sense of guilt when they enjoy themselves and feel they are wasting time. In our country we do not have the pressure or the ambition to reach a goal in a hurry. There is not that driving competitiveness that you find in America."

"I like the philosophy that Martin Luther expressed when he said, 'If the world would go under tomorrow, today I would still plant an apple tree.'" Anna Lisa said in conclusion.

Correct Care Of Gift
Plant Brings Added Life

By ANNE LEFEVER

A bit of care lavished on that pot plant you received for Christmas will bring its reward in longer life for the flowers and more pleasure for you.

First thing to consider in placing the plant is to keep it away from the heating source in your home. In this day of central heating, the air in most rooms is too dry for growing things to do their best; for that reason, they will require more frequent watering.

Most plants prefer tepid water to cold, since the shock to their root system is not so great with warmer water.

Cyclamens should always be watered from the bottom of the pot, as should African violets. Azaleas, too, thrive best when watered in this way. Simply place the pot in a pan of water, tilted a bit so that the water may reach underneath the container. Allow to remain until the top of the soil is damp.

Azaleas and cyclamens are thirsty plants and require more moisture than most of the others; African violets should be drained after being watered as they dislike having "wet feet" constantly.

Foinsettias should be kept moist and in a warm spot in the house. After their flowering season is over, keep them in the house, but put the plant in a cooler place to condition it for going outdoors as soon as danger of frost is over.

Some time in March, after the last frost, place the pot in a well-shaded location in the garden on the south side of the house. If the plant grows tall and spindly, it may be cut back, and the cuttings rooted in sand and garden soil.

Azaleas may be carried over for another growing and blossoming season by placing them outside in the garden when warm days are promised.

As the blooms on the cyclamen die, remove them and you'll have a foliage plant. This flower, too, may be enjoyed another season if

Eat Black-Eye Peas On
New Year's Day For Luck

It may be just folklore, but the people in this part of the country take it seriously.

Every year they take out Good Luck Insurance on New Year's Day for the coming 12 months by eating black-eye peas. Experts on this matter claim that the black-eye peas must be cooked with hog jowl and eaten with corn pone to be truly effective.

Many old-timers can cite examples after example of how black-eye peas brought good luck during the year. There is the story of Gen. Sam Houston, who ate a potful of black-eye peas and hog jowl just before he won the Battle of San Jacinto.

During the Civil War, many southern families made it through the winter on black-eye peas and a little pork. At that time, some folks thought they would surely earn a dollar for every pea they ate on New Year's Day.

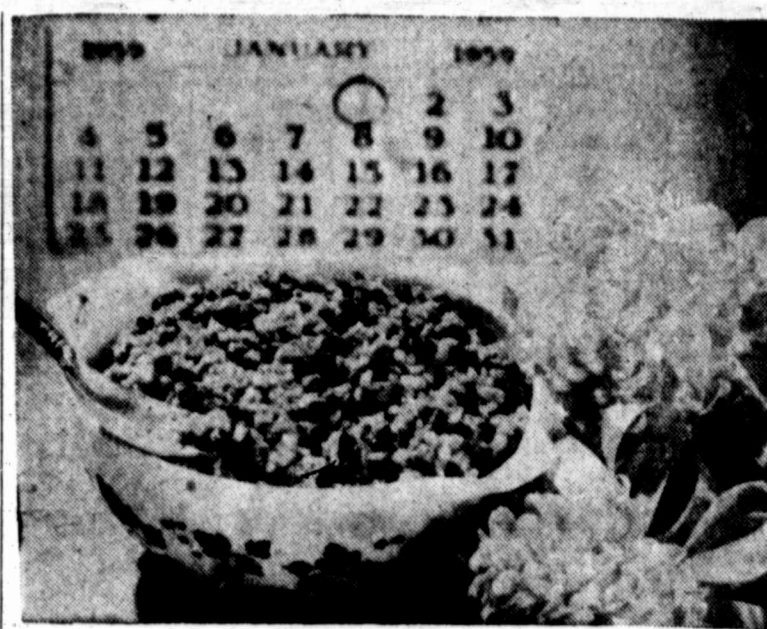

With a generous serving running around 500 to 1,000 peas, a man would have been rich in that day with an income of $500 to $1,000.

Early settlers put away their winter's supply of black-eye peas by drying them on the vine and then shelling them. Later, they learned how to can the fresh shelled peas and snapped pods. Then came the frozen black-eye peas.

You'll be able to find sufficient supplies of dried, canned or frozen black-eye peas at local markets for New Year's Day to assure you of Good Luck for 1959, says the Agricultural Marketing Service. Of course they rate high, nutriti-nationally, any day of the year. First-class eating is what Hopping John could be called any day of the year. But, if you want to follow the tradition of the South and Southwest, you will find it particularly enjoyable on New Year's Day.

Here's the recipe:
HOPPING JOHN
1 cup dried black-eye peas, water to cover
1/4 lb. smoked bacon or salt

pork, cut in small pieces
3 cups cooked rice
1 pod red pepper
Salt and pepper to taste
Soak peas overnight, cook with pork and pepper pod until peas are tender (not overdone — keep the peas whole). Add cooked rice, mix well, season with salt and pepper to taste. Place in covered casserole and cook until liquid is absorbed and dish is hot through. Serves 8 to 10.

U.S. Assets Report Called Unbelievable

WASHINGTON (AP)—The fabulous Hope diamond, variously valued at up to two million dollars, counts for zero in official totals as to what the federal government is worth.

That's because it was donated without cost to the government. But despite that and numerous other unrealistic valuations, the value of federal assets was fixed in a new annual report at 262 billion dollars as of mid-1958.

The actual value is much greater, but most of the items are carried at their original cost to the government many years ago.

The 262 billions included 67 billion dollars for the 770 million acres of real estate the government owns—equal to all the land east of the Mississippi plus California, Oregon and Arizona.

The other 195 billion dollars came under the heading of personal property. This covered items other than land and buildings, ranging from $82,634.12 for recording studio equipment for congressmen to 21½ billions for the 25,164 planes of the Air Force.

The House Government Operations Committee, which published the report, called the figures unbelievable. It rapped what it called mis-leading and antiquated evaluations supplied by government departments for the report. It asked for eventual listings according to true present day value rather than original cost.

Among the items it reported: Because the government got Randolph Air Force Base's 2,322 acres free from the city of San Antonio, Tex., the vast grounds are carried on the books at zero dollars.

The Army Presidio, 1,366 choice acres at San Francisco, is officially valued at $1, despite a real worth of maybe 50 million dollars.

The White House grounds, 18 acres in the heart of Washington, are recorded worth $1,000.

The committee said the Hope diamond will not be carried at a specific value even though reforms are under way in evaluating land and buildings.

It has been agreed, the congressmen said, that the most realistic accounting on personal property is to list at acquisition cost. So that will include priceless items like the diamond displayed at the Smithsonian Institution.

The grand total of $262,054,838,000 as of last June 30 is 54 billion dollars more than the federal worth total in the committee's first report three years ago and 12 billion higher than last year's figure. The increase has been due to revised evaluation methods as well as to the rise in government holdings.

California Poll Shows Sentiment For Two States

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Public sentiment favors splitting California into two states, the San Francisco Chronicle said today.

The newspaper, releasing results of a poll, said a majority of participants believe the north and south have little in common. They wanted the issue settled by referendum, the paper added.

More than a third of the voters indicated that the question as put to them was unrealistic, if not impossible.

Almost half expressed the belief that such a division would benefit both the northern and southern sections of the state and a majority of the ballots favored a partition of California at the Tehachapi Mountains—the traditional boundary between north and south.

The issues which received most votes: Dissimilarities between interests, the cultures and general points of view in the north and south make partition desirable—55.7 per cent.

Constant shift toward Southern California political domination of the state is a threat to the north which can best be met by separation—49.8 per cent.

The Chronicle concluded that the ratio of participants favoring partition may in reality outnumber those who oppose it by three to two.

The newspaper did not release figures of the number of persons participating in the poll.

Tests Support Story Of Death

HOUSTON (AP)—A police lie detector operator yesterday said tests given to a youth charged with shooting his girlfriend appeared to confirm his story.

Officers quizzed Johnny Lee Sage, 18, who told them he pointed a .32 revolver at the girl and pulled the trigger while thinking the chamber was empty. Stella Louise Morrell, 13, died instantly Friday.

Sage surrendered to police Saturday after hiding out overnight under a house. He is charged with murder.

"I will have to go along with the boy's story," Detective John C. Wiener, who gave the tests, said.

Officers also took a statement from Mamie Lou Sanders, 15, Princeton, Tex., a cousin of the victim who was visiting her at the time of the shooting.

5 Killed In Crash Of Auto, Pickup

SEDAN, Kan. (AP)—Five Arkansans, en route home from a holiday visit to Colorado, were killed Sunday when their car and a pickup truck collided on a bridge near here.

Killed were Frank Zitzman, 62; his wife Jessie, 65; Sloan Rudy, 55; his wife Mary, 50; and Mrs. Lona O'Bannon, about 80, mother of Mrs. Zitzman. All lived at Imboden, Ark.

The driver of the truck, Virgil Heckathorn, Winfield, Kan., was hospitalized at Coffeyville, where his condition was reported as fair.

Undersheriff C. F. Gibbs said ice on the U.S. Highway 166 bridge may have caused the collision.

The Arkansans had been visiting a stepson of the Zitzmans, Bill Pitts, in Colorado Springs.

Plane Crash

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—A light plane crashed in a residential area Sunday, killing an Illinois couple. But it hit the ground in a 50-foot space between two houses and no one else was hurt.

Whites' Negro Pastor Retires

STAFFORD, Conn. (AP)—Eight years ago, the Rev. Dr. Roland R. Heacock created a stir when he became pastor of the Staffordville Congregational Church.

Dr. Heacock is a Negro. The congregation at the century-old church is all white.

Dr. Heacock retired Sunday. He will be 65 Tuesday. He looked out at his congregation, which has grown in the past eight years, and said: "We have exerted a strong and wholesome influence in the field of race relations, particularly in the Christian church. We are glad that we had a part in this good work."

In his farewell sermon, the pastor recalled his arrival in 1950. "The event was flashed across the nation in newspapers, radio and television as big news," he said.

"Today many churches have followed our example and called Negro pastors to serve their needs and integrate their membership."

Eight years ago Dr. Heacock thought all the publicity over his arrival was unwarranted. He said, in his first sermon in 1950: "It is a sad commentary on the state of democracy and Christianity that when an obscure, untalented Negro minister takes over the pastorate of a tiny rural Connecticut church, that is big news."

"The truth is that the Christian church should hang its head in shame at its snobbery, racism and class consciousness."

Now that he's retiring, Dr. Heacock isn't going to quit working. He plans to lecture to the Little Rock, Ark., First Congregational Church in March. Later he will speak at Montgomery, Ala.

Dr. Heacock, a native of New Milford, Conn., plans to continue his residence here with his family.

Pregnancy In Dogs Reversed

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Successful use of a simple drug which reverses pregnancy in dogs was reported today by a Yale pathologist.

"The drug, known as malucin, does not cause abortion," said Dr. Leon F. Whitney of the university's medical school staff. When injected, the drug causes the pregnant female dog to reabsorb the embryo into her blood stream, explained Dr. Whitney. He describes his studies in Veterinary Medicine Magazine.

He said the drug was used on many bitches between the 10th and 42nd day of pregnancy "and was successful in all cases." The gestation period of a bitch is 61 days.

In an interview, Dr. Whitney said, "From a practical standpoint, when the drug in injectible form is made available to the veterinary profession, it should be a boon in the elimination of unwanted puppies."

"Beyond that," he stated, "based on the present state of our knowledge, I should not want to go."

Malucin was discovered by Dr. Ivan Parfentjev, a former member of Yale's microbiology department. He produced the drug from spent brewer's yeast. Malucin has been used as an antibiotic to destroy bacteria and fungi in the blood and to treat dogs with certain skin diseases.

Dr. Whitney said the drug affected pregnant bitches only when shot directly into the blood stream, and then only when given in large doses.

"How malucin accomplishes its result, and how the embryo is absorbed into the blood stream, is still more or less of a mystery," he said.

Yarborough Spurns Liberal Plea For Johnson Battle

DALLAS (AP)—Senator Ralph Yarborough has turned down a plea by Texas liberals that he lead a fight to keep Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson out of control of the state's delegation to the 1960 Democratic National Convention, the Dallas Times Herald said in its Sunday edition.

The invitation was made and refused at a meeting of liberals here in mid-December to plan strategy for the battles in 1960 that will determine the membership, leanings and leadership of the Texas delegation to the national convention.

Representatives from almost all of the state's 31 senatorial districts and such statewide liberals as Dist. Atty. Tom Moore of Waco and Dist. Judge Jim Sewell of Corsicana attended the meeting.

Yarborough is reported to have told the liberals he will continue his fight for principles and will side with those who shared his views, but that he would not carry on a personal vendetta against Johnson.

Yarborough also was reported to have made a point of defending Johnson against liberal attacks, saying that his differences with the majority leader were far less on matters in the Senate than on political infighting within the Texas party.

The liberals opposition to Johnson was said to be based on his complete domination of the Texas delegation to the 1956 national convention, his role in the 1956 state convention in Fort Worth and his tacit support of Gov. Price Daniel at the state convention in San Antonio this year.

Reminders On Social Security

WASHINGTON (AP)—A couple of end-of-the-year reminders on Social Security changes that may affect your pocketbook: Social Security deductions will take about an additional $2 a month from the paychecks of most working Americans after the first of the year.

The new year will also bring increases of 7 per cent in the Social Security checks received by 12 million retired persons.

New York News Strike Settled

NEW YORK (AP)—The costliest newspaper strike in the city's history is over. Deliverers went back to work early today with a new two-year contract. It gave them a $5.30 wage increase and fringe benefits. They ratified it Sunday 2,091-537, ending the 20-day walkout. The strike cost estimated at 50 million dollars.
