Exxon settlement

JUNEAU, Alaska — A second settlement has been reached in government lawsuits against Exxon Corp. over the nation's largest oil spill, a spokesman for Gov. Walter J. Hickel said Sunday. Details of the settlement were being withheld until a formal announcement today at the governor's Anchorage office, spokesman Eric Rehmann said. An earlier settlement, announced in March, fell apart when a federal judge rejected the criminal plea bargain and the Alaska House voted down the entire agreement.

Verdict questioned

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Church leaders said Sunday they are dissatisfied with the conviction of two army officers and acquittal of seven other soldiers in the 1989 massacre of eight people, including six Jesuit priests. The jury's decision Saturday came in the first trial against Salvadoran army officers for political killings, eroding a tradition of military impunity in such slayings./3A

Fighting continues

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Fighting flared again Sunday in several parts of battle-scarred Croatia, and the federal army surrendered more barracks besieged by militias of the secessionist republic. The army has been beset by increasing morale problems and mass desertions as the Croatian campaign drags on.

Dems: Bush's moves may mean more cuts

By Adam Clymer
N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — President Bush's dramatic moves to reduce American nuclear forces may lead to cuts in other military programs that he would like to keep and could affect domestic spending as well, highly placed Democrats said Sunday.

Sen. Sam Nunn, the influential chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said that reductions in spending that Bush specifically warned against in his speech on Friday were now likely, including cuts in spending for long-range weapons like the B-2 bomber, for the Star Wars anti-missile system and for the military budget

Baptist pastor blasts Baylor-convention pact

DALLAS (AP) — The Baptist General Convention of Texas stands "at the greatest crisis in its history," and that crisis has been perpetuated by the actions of Baylor University, the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Dallas said from the pulpit Sunday.

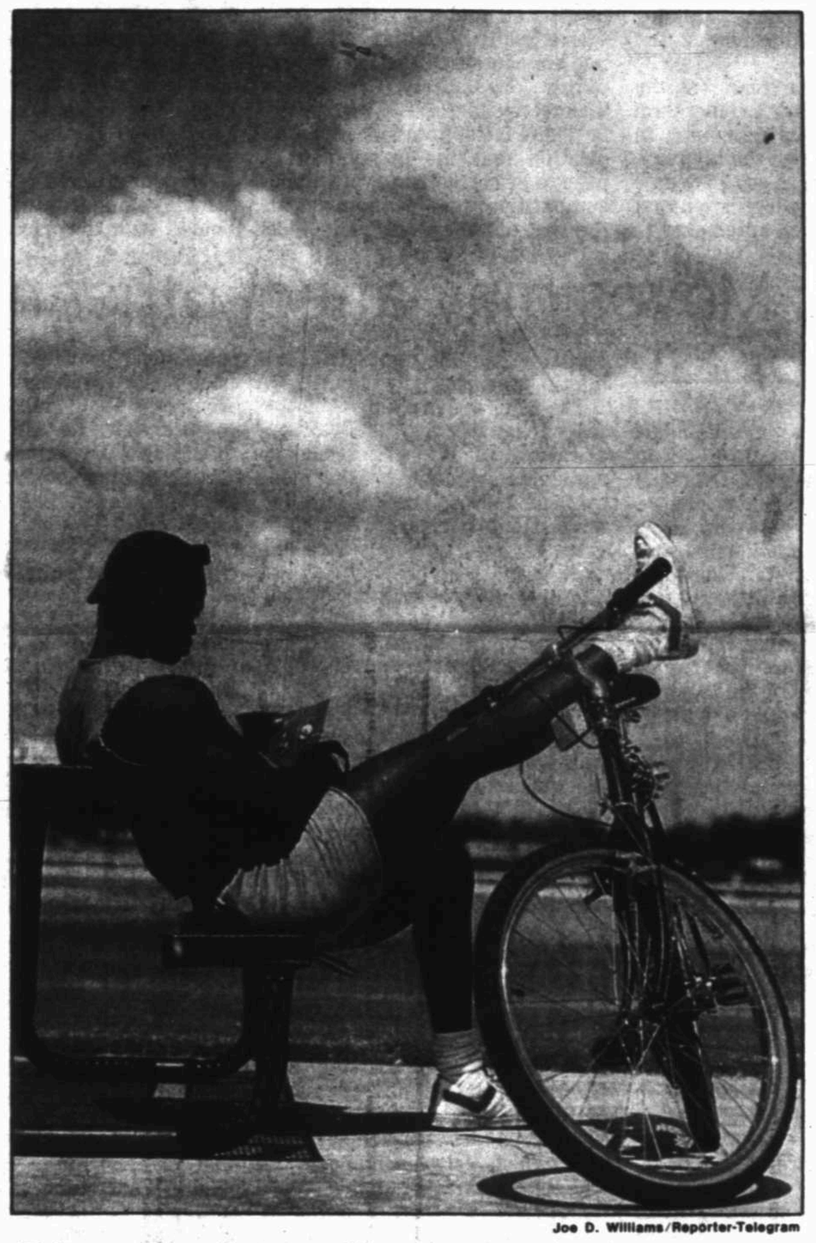

Beginning with the history of the 12,000-student university, the Rev. Joel Gregory recalled Baylor's ties to the Baptist church in Texas. He emphasized the BGCT's financial support of Baylor, even during the Waco school's formative years.

"From its beginning, Baylor University was the crown jewel for Texas Baptists and glory of Texas Baptists," he said.

"The life of Baylor University and the First Baptist Church of Dallas can't be severed," he added.

The BGCT and the world's largest Baptist-supported university have been at odds since Baylor trustees, now called regents, proposed last year to create a new semi-autonomous governing board. The move would change

5-cent tax pumps up gas prices

■ Tuesday's increase boosts state's take to 20 cents a gallon; several other levies to hit consumers, businesses.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Drivers in Texas will pay a nickel more for a gallon of gasoline Tuesday under a $900 million state gasoline tax increase that is one of several tax increases that take effect on Oct. 1.

The gas tax increase was part of a $2.7 billion tax bill signed by Gov. Ann Richards, which lawmakers approved during a special session to balance a $59.1 billion state budget.

The increase boosts the state gas tax from 15 cents per gallon to 20 cents, and ties Texas with Louisiana for the 12th highest state gas tax in the nation, according to the state comptroller's office.

The increase will bring in approximately $903 million over the two-year budget period. Of that money, $665 million will go to the state highway department and $238 million to public schools.

Texas' other neighbors, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Arkansas, charge 16 cents per gallon, 16.2 cents and 18.5 cents, respectively, the comptroller's office said.

The national average is 17.4 cents per

Fuel economy of '92 models drops slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fuel efficiency in 1992 cars is down from last year's models, the sixth consecutive year with little or no reduction in new automobiles' appetite for gasoline, the government reported Sunday.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency's annual fuel economy statistics covering about 1,000 cars, the 1992 models — both domestic and imports — show an overall average of 27.5 miles per gallon.

That is down from 27.8 mpg in 1991 and is the industry's poorest showing since the mid-1980s, when a decade-long surge in mileage improvements leveled off.

"It's a slight decrease," said Eldert Bontekoe, manager for certification and fuel economy for the EPA in Ann Arbor, Mich. "I wouldn't jump up and down and say it's really big, but it does suggest some level of decrease from

Texan smuggles drugs to help AIDS sufferers

By Carolyn Piorot
N.Y. Times News Service

DALLAS — Ron Woodruff readily confesses that he's an international drug smuggler.

He surreptitiously brought home a smoking black leather briefcase full of dry ice and 36 tiny vials of frozen, highly concentrated interferon from Tokyo two years ago and is still selling the contraband on the black market to hundreds of people with AIDS.

Woodruff, who founded the Dallas Buyer's Club shortly after his HIV infection was diagnosed in 1986, said he borrowed money from his mother for his first illegal drugs and has cashed in life insurance policies to keep afloat the underground business, which state and federal regulators tolerate.

IRS targets employee who blew whistle on unpaid taxes

KENNER, La. (AP) — The former controller of a computer company said he didn't expect a parade for telling the Internal Revenue Service the firm wasn't paying all its taxes, but he didn't think he'd get stuck with the $69,000 tab.

The IRS said it was just following the law when it held S. Stewart Joslin responsible for taxes the company withheld from workers' paychecks but never passed on to the government.

"I could wind up paying interest all my life and never get to this $69,000," Joslin said Saturday. "The real problem is, I don't owe the cotton-picking money. And they're not looking at anybody else. That really steams me."

Joslin wouldn't name the company he went to work for as a controller in early 1987. He said he didn't realize until that fall the company wasn't forwarding the tax money.

"I wasn't aware of withholding tax problems until October, when I began signing paychecks on a regular basis," he said. "The bookkeeper told me there was a problem. I started trying to get the owners to pass on their withholding."

The owners finally agreed to do it, Joslin said.

"It was supposed to be done in May. It never happened. At that point, I notified the IRS and became their primary target with that notification," Joslin said.

The owner told an IRS agent at a meeting with Joslin that Joslin wasn't responsible for the decision not to pay up, Joslin said.

"The IRS didn't take his word for it. I continue to be the primary target for repayment," he said.

IRS spokeswoman Teresa Bailey said the agency is following the law in going after employees responsible for making sure that taxes were paid.

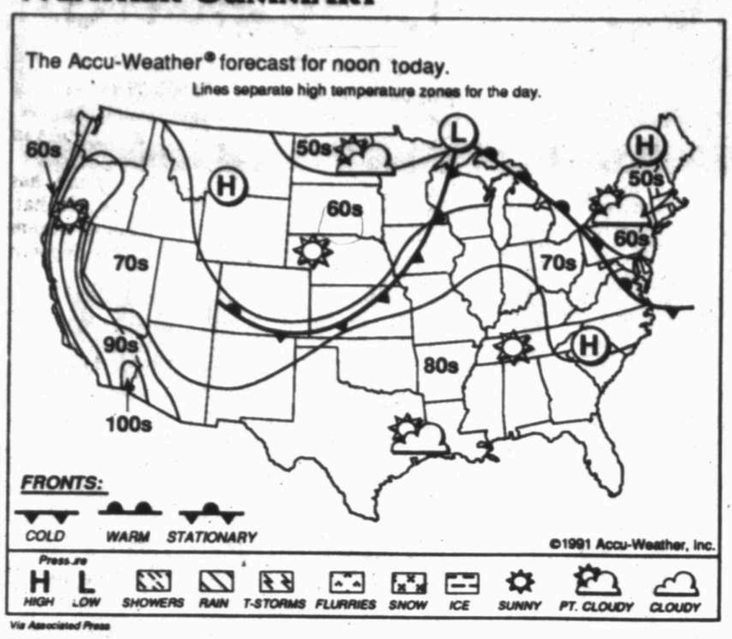

"The IRS tries to educate people. ... And one of the things we tell them is that when you sign your name (on company tax forms) you are as responsible as you are for your own individual return," she told the The Times-Picayune in a story published Wednesday.

Rep. Bob Livingston, R-La., asked the IRS to review Joslin's case and Sandra Freeland, chief of the agency's New Or-

WEATHER SUMMARY

Via Associated Press

Expect some clouds, low 80s

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high in the low 80s and south winds at 5 to 15 mph, according to the National Weather Service of Midland.

Tonight should be increasingly cloudy with a low in the mid-50s and a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms. Tuesday should be mostly cloudy with a high in the mid-70s and a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms.

Monday's high temperature was 77, compared with the record of 102 set in 1977. The low temperature was 51, compared with the record low of 41 set in 1945.

STATE

North Texas skies were mostly clear and temperatures mild Sunday under the influence of a high-pressure ridge, but forecasters expected increasing cloudiness.

Some showers and thunderstorms, which developed in South Texas along a weak Gulf trough, were moving westward.

The National Weather Service said satellite data indicated increasing mid- and high-level cloudiness over South Texas, moving toward the north.

High temperatures ranged from the 70s to 80s statewide. Extremes were 70 degrees at Guadalupe Pass, with 76 at Stephenville and 84 at both Longview and Lufkin.

Winds were mainly easterly to southeasterly at 5 to 10 mph in the north and south, and southerly to southwesterly at 15 to 20 mph in West Texas, with occasional gusts.

Forecasters predicted increasing cloudiness statewide, with a slight chance of showers or thunderstorms in the Coastal Plains and Southeast Texas and widely scattered precipitation in the Panhandle.

NATION

Locally heavy rain fell on parts of Florida on Sunday, and chilly air settled across the Great Lakes region.

Showers and thunderstorms were clustered over the northern half of the Florida Peninsula during the afternoon. From 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. 2.13 inches of rain fell at Jacksonville Naval Air Station, the National Weather Service said.

Elsewhere, a few showers and thunderstorms spread over the western Gulf Coast during the afternoon. A few showers that formed ahead of a cold front extended over northern New England and upstate New York. And a few showers developed ahead of a warm front over North Dakota.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

gallon. The federal tax is 14.9 cents per gallon.

Most of the taxes passed by the Legislature took effect Sept. 1. A major overhaul of the state's business tax — the corporate franchise tax — will take effect Jan. 1.

In addition to the gasoline tax, several other levies will hit consumers and businesses on Tuesday. Those tax changes and the amount of money they will produce include:

■ Delaying the phased-in exemption from the 6¼-cent state sales tax on the purchase of manufacturing equipment. ($368 million).

■ Assessing the state sales tax on equipment purchased by contractors for projects with tax exempt entities, such as the state or a city. Contracts with school districts will remain exempt. ($91.5 million).

■ Applying the state sales tax to wrapping and packaging materials. State Comptroller John Sharp has interpreted this levy to be a tax on wrapping and packaging that is not related to the processing of a product. ($87.4 million).

■ Increasing the sales tax on boats from 6 cents per dollar to 6¼ cents. ($12.3 million).

■ Applying the state sales tax to non-profit, private club membership fees. ($5.9 million).

■ Expanding the sales tax on answering services. ($6.8 million).

■ Assessing the sales tax on amusement ticket sales, including concert tickets. ($9.2 million).

■ Repealing the sales tax permit fee paid by businesses. (This will reduce revenue by $25 million).

BLASTS: BGCT stands at crisis, pastor says

(From 1A)

the school's 146-year-old charter to allow the convention to choose only 25 percent of the new governing board.

The university would select the remaining board members.

Earlier this month, a committee of BGCT leaders approved the proposal. It will be voted on in November at the BGCT convention in Waco.

Baylor officials called the proposal a move to ward off a fundamentalist takeover. The BGCT remains in moderate hands, but the Southern Baptist Convention nationwide has been under conservative leadership for the past dozen years. Moderates say conservatives are targeting state conventions.

Gregory refuted Baylor's claim that fundamentalist Baptists might take over the university. He drew loud applause after comparing Baylor's plan to protect itself from the Texas convention to "foxes guarding the chicken coop from the interference of the farmer."

Gregory says the proposal betrays the trust of Baylor's Baptist benefactors.

"Ranchers who have given their ranches, teachers who have given their small estates, businessmen in this city and Houston who have left their empires to Baylor University with the calm confidence that always this school would be the crown jewel of Texas Baptists ... I say refutation of that trust is wrong, it's wrong, wrong," he said.

Gregory said Baylor president Herbert Reynolds once said the BGCT owned Baylor in a 1984 letter published in the school's newspaper. He said Reynolds wrote, "while we have long received support from the BCGT of Texas, which owns the university, we have benefited greatly from diversity on our campus."

Gregory snapped, "Let it be said, if the BGCT owns Baylor University in 1984, it owns it in 1991."

"President Reynolds doesn't have the right to play with 145 years of history ... saying one thing when it suits his purpose in 1984 and another thing when it suits his purpose in 1991," Gregory added.

Later Sunday, Reynolds said the BGCT never "owned or operated" Baylor, although it is written in the charter.

last year to this year."

Six of the 10 highest-ranked 1992 cars get 50 mpg or better, but they were rare exceptions. Topping the list was the one-liter minicompact Geo Metro XFi, which gets 53 mpg in city driving and 58 mpg on the highway.

Bringing up the rear was the luxurious two-seater Lamborghini Diablo, which gets nine mpg in town and 14 mpg on the highway.

The report comes as the Senate prepares to debate legislation that would require each automaker to improve its overall fuel efficiency by 40 percent within a decade.

The industry bitterly opposes the bill and contends only minor improvements are possible that quickly unless fleets are drastically "downsized" to eliminate many larger and mid-size models.

But industry critics say automakers can reach the bill's target using currently available technology.

"These latest numbers are an indication that the manufacturers need to be regulated for us to have competitive fuel economy with the rest of the world," said Joan Claybrook, president of Public Citizen, a consumer organization.

Automakers are pushing larger cars because they are more profitable, Ms. Claybrook said. "They've put in heavier engines and juiced them up. Speed kills, and it wastes fuel."

A spokesman for the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, a trade group representing the Big Three U.S. automakers, said it would have no immediate comment on the EPA report.

The government's first fuel-economy standards in the 1970s coincided with the oil crisis, which sent buyers scurrying to showrooms for smaller cars. The overall average leaped from 14 mpg in 1974 to 27 mpg in 1985.

Since 1987, the fleet averages have stagnated. They were 28.1 mpg in 1987, 28.6 mpg in 1988, 28.1 mpg in 1989 and 27.8 mpg in 1990.

As in previous years, the 1992 figures showed a wide range.

Four of the 10 best performing cars were variations of the Geo, a Japanese-made minicompact sold through General Motors. Four others were versions of the Honda Civic and the remaining two were versions of the Suzuki Swift.

CUTS: Moves may affect other military spending

generally.

Focusing on the military budget for the fiscal year that begins Tuesday, the Georgia Democrat said Bush's discussion of the reduced Soviet threat would affect the "dynamics" of a Senate-House conference on military spending legislation. And for himself, Nunn said he would like to see a sharp reduction in eventual purchases of the B-2, which he has championed, to about half of the 75 bombers the Air Force has sought.

Bush's speech was seen by highly placed Capitol Hill aides and leading Democratic politicians as also likely to weigh heavily on congressional budget actions next year and to make it much easier for Democrats campaigning for president to urge that the cuts in military spending be used for domestic programs.

The congressional aides said the speech was also very likely to lead a review of last year's budget agreement, which bars using money from military budget cuts for domestic programs, when Congress reviews spending decisions next year.

And Democrats maintained that since Bush had made cuts in nuclear weapons without waiting for reciprocal Soviet action, it would now be much easier for Democrats to call for arms reductions without fearing that the Republicans would accuse them of favoring unilateral disarmament.

Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, who is expected to announce his presidential candidacy on Thursday, said he thought that Bush had "opened an area of opportunity politically," provided that Democrats made carefully thought-out arguments about military cuts. In an interview, he said his party should also pay attention to converting military bases, manpower and technical expertise to civilian uses.

Gov. L. Douglas Wilder of Virginia, a presidential candidate, said in an interview that he thought that Bush's move would add authority to his own calls for reductions in American troop strength overseas.

Meanwhile, administration officials went on national television to warn that Bush's moves would not provide any substantial savings soon and indeed would cost money in the short run.

"In the short term over the next few months," Dick Cheney, the secretary of defense, said on the ABC News program "This Week," there would be "added costs with terminating contracts, moving systems around, destroying warheads, et cetera, that had not previously been expected."

Brent Scowcroft, Bush's national security adviser, said on the NBC News program "Meet the Press, "In the first year it will certainly cost money. It costs money to bring these weapons home. You have to bring them home very carefully. It costs money to deactivate units."

The two men both predicted long-term savings. "Five years out, I think there will be a peace dividend," Scowcroft said. "I honestly don't know," he said "what the size will be." Cheney would only say that "the most recent initiatives will produce long-term savings."

SEARCH: Man believes he saw Columbus' ship

(From 1A)

search of more than 100 sunken shipwrecks along the Haitian coast to determine whether Koski-Karell's hunch is correct.

"To discover and confirm the location of that famous vessel would certainly be one of the greatest accomplishments ever made in the field of underwater archaeology," he said excitedly at his home base in this Washington, D.C., suburb.

If Koski-Karell succeeds, his stunning feat seems likely to overshadow many of next year's international festivities celebrating the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of the New World. The explorer landed in the Bahamas on Oct. 12, 1492.

Later on that epochal first voyage, Columbus visited what became Cuba (where the Pinta's captain defected with his ship) and planted a cross claiming the island of Hispaniola for Spain.

Cruising eastward above the island, which today embraces Haiti and the Dominican Republic, Columbus set sail from Cap-Haitien on Christmas Eve of 1492. With his ship becalmed three miles offshore and making no headway, Columbus went to bed at midnight.

About an hour later, strong tidal currents shoved the square-rigged wooden vessel onto a barrier reef. As the tide receded, the Santa Maria's seams split. The crew ripped open the decks and salvaged some of the cargo before they were forced to abandon ship.

Columbus transferred to the smaller Nina and returned to Spain, leaving most of the Santa Maria's crew ashore to build a fortified settlement he called "Navidad" (Christmas), using timbers from the shipwreck.

When Columbus returned the next year, he found that Indians resentful over their mistreatment by the Spaniards had killed all the settlers and burned Fort Navidad to the ground. A few pieces of clothing and an anchor salvaged from the Santa Maria were found nearby.

The exact location of Columbus' "lost colony," quickly reclaimed by wilderness, has been a mystery for five centuries. But with the help of a Baptist medical missionary who has lived near Cap-Haitien for about 30 years, Koski-Karell hopes to find the ruins of Fort Navidad next year.

The archaeological consultant and his privately financed partners, Sea Salvage International Inc. of Orlando, Fla., have an exclusive contract with the Haitian government to locate the Santa Maria's watery grave somewhere east of Cap-Haitien.

Guided by Koski-Karell's careful research, underwater surveyors will look for evidence peculiar to the Santa Maria, including handwrought iron fastenings and ballast of cobblestones.

Perhaps the most important evidence will be shards of a distinctive pottery probably carried aboard the Santa Maria. Known to archaeologists as "Columbia Plain," it is a glazed green majolica first produced in Spain in 1490 and found in the New World only at Spanish colonial sites dating to the time of Columbus' first voyage.

TARGETS: Appeals office concludes he is responsible leans appeals office, concluded Joslin is responsible for the unpaid taxes.

(From 1A)

Joslin isn't alone.

"You don't get any gold stars for bringing a problem to the attention of IRS," said Frederick Daily, a tax lawyer in San Francisco.

He said he represents a personnel manager held responsible for $600,000 in unpaid taxes after his San Francisco firm declared bankruptcy and its owners went to England.

Syndicated columnist Jack Anderson recently wrote about a woman billed for $120,000 in withholding taxes even though she quit her company in Austin, Texas, and told the IRS her former bosses weren't turning over the money.

A congressional subcommittee is considering an investigation into whether it is fair to go after mid-level managers.

Joslin said the tax bill amounted to $120,000 when he first got it in November 1988 from the IRS.

"I responded, saying, 'I don't accept this. This is a bunch of baloney. I would like to appeal this.' ... In February, I'm notified there's been a lien placed on my home."

He said he called the IRS and was told his request for an appeal was rejected because he hadn't cited the appropriate regulations.

"When the company I was with was sold out ... I went to work for the new company. As did the ownership of the old company," Joslin said. "Some of the monies from the acquisition were supposed to go and pay the IRS. I found out that they didn't do that. That's when I got my attorney."

Over a year, Joslin said the company paid about $35,000 in back taxes. In May, he said the IRS agreed that Joslin wasn't responsible for taxes due before he joined the firm and knocked $16,000 off the bill.

"I asked one agent, 'Why are you harassing me?' They said, 'Well, you're the only one that returns my phone calls,'" Joslin said.

SMUGGLES: Texan helps hundreds with AIDS

(From 1A)

To Woodruff, the legal issues are moot.

"This thing is important to me — damn important. It's my life," Woodruff said. "All we're doing is staying alive. I've got no scruples at all when it comes down to staying alive or helping somebody else stay alive."

Woodruff said the real power of the club lies in its contacts.

"This is a network," he said. "You have to know people. We have a pool of experts — doctors and lawyers and pharmacists and laboratory people who have HIV or who have a son or a daughter with HIV. We use everyone's talents. I've never been turned down when I asked for a favor."

Woodruff, 41, said he has made hundreds of trips into Mexico and also has been to Japan, Germany, Taiwan, Denmark and Switzerland to bring back various underground AIDS drugs.

"Thousands of people depend on me," said Woodruff during an interview in his plain, small office at 3102 Swiss Ave., near Baylor Medical Center in Dallas. "These people are willing to go to any length to protect their health, and we're willing to go to any length to help them. I don't feel like I'm doing anything illegal."

The Dallas Buyer's Club, one of several such operations across the country, is a non-profit organization with about 2,000 members nationwide, Woodruff said. It provides people who have HIV infections with a newsletter, extensive library and all the more popular unapproved AIDS drugs, including peptide-T, ddC, isoprinosine, clarithromycin, compound Q and interferon.

The drugs are sent throughout the country by overnight express service, and those that require refrigeration are packed in dry ice in Styrofoam boxes. Members pay $50 to join and a nominal fee for the various drugs.

The controversial, low-dose interferon has become the drug of choice for many people shopping the underground market, and Woodruff said he will return to Japan in about six weeks to find a new source because the doctor through whom he purchased the original concentrate has disappeared.

The World Health Organization this summer launched a major study of the drug, involving 1,200 people with acquired immune deficiency syndrome in Africa.

In addition, doctors at Mount Sinai Medical Center in New York and at the Community Research Initiative in Toronto are conducting limited trials with interferon, which increases energy and appetite and helps clear secondary infections including thrush and genital warts in some patients.

Woodruff said he had "a little trouble" bringing the interferon back from Tokyo. His suitcase was smoking.

"There was a circle of condensation on the outside that was deep white and really showed up against the black leather," he recalled.

Customs officials searched it, but the briefcase contained nothing but dry ice.

"I finally told them I had a fetish for dry ice," Woodruff said.

Fighting flares in Croatia, army gives up barracks

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Fighting resumed Sunday in several parts of battle-scarred Croatia, and the federal army surrendered more barracks besieged by militias of the separatist republic.

The army has been beset by increasing morale problems and mass desertions as the Croatian campaign drags on. This situation could have contributed to a move by the generals to regroup in parts of Croatia where there are large concentrations of ethnic Serbs who support the Serb-dominated army.

In other developments, Stipe Mesic, the head of Yugoslavia's collective presidency, said after consultations in New York with Javier Perez de Cuellar that the U.N. secretary general had offered to negotiate a peaceful end to the crisis.

A referendum on the independence of Kosovo province was almost complete, with nearly all of the Serb-ruled territory's ethnic Albanian majority expected to opt for sovereignty. The voting in Kosovo ended late Saturday, but Albanians born in Kosovo and now living elsewhere continued voting in other Yugoslav towns and abroad.

Tensions were high in Kosovo, another potential flashpoint of ethnic violence, where at least 100 people have died over the past two years in clashes with Serbian police. But no major incidents were reported after the arrests Saturday of dozens of referendum organizers and participants.

In Croatia, sporadic violence continued despite a cease-fire signed last week by Croatian and army leaders. At least six people were reported killed in fighting overnight and Sunday.

The Croatian Defense Ministry said federal warplanes dropped three bombs on a suburb of the Dalmatian port of Sibenik, damaging buildings in the first air attack in a week.

The army denied it had bombed Sibenik.

Late Sunday, Belgrade TV showed grief-stricken villagers from Brlog, 70 miles southwest of Zagreb, and claimed other villagers had been massacred by Croatian militiamen.

The claim could not be independently verified, and there were no other details.

More than 600 people have been killed in fighting since Croatia declared independence June 25. The fighting began as clashes between Croatian militias and Serbian fighters in the republic who oppose secession.

But the Serb-dominated federal army has become increasingly involved in the combat, leading to accusations by Croatia and others that the military is siding with the Serbian insurgents.

Fighting was at its fiercest just before the latest cease-fire, with army tanks, navy gunboats and airforce warplanes leading a large offensive on several fronts on the Dalmatian coast and in the republic's northeast.

Clashes have continued past the cease-fire but in fewer areas than before.

Croatian officials reported a Croatian guardsman and a civilian killed by artillery fire around the regional capital of Osijek. To the southeast, in the Vinkovci-Vukovar region, republican guardsmen were said to be battling both the army and Serb forces. One person was reported killed and some 30 wounded.

Among the heaviest fighting Sunday was at Bjelovar, about 40 miles east of Zagreb.

Church leaders question death squad convictions

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Church leaders said Sunday they are dissatisfied with the conviction of two army officers and acquittal of seven other soldiers in the 1989 massacre of eight people, including six Jesuit priests.

The jury's decision Saturday came in the first trial against Salvadoran army officers for political killings, eroding a tradition of military impunity in such slayings.

The trial also was a watershed in relations with the United States. Congress has made successful prosecution of the Jesuits' killers a condition for continued aid to El Salvador's rightist government.

Washington has provided hundreds of millions of dollars in a nearly 12-year-old war against leftist guerrillas that has killed more than 75,000 people, mostly civilians. Many were slain by death squads.

Monsignor Gregorio Rosa Chavez, auxiliary Roman Catholic bishop of San Salvador, said "the church is not satisfied" that only two of nine military men were convicted for the murders of six priests, their housekeeper and her daughter.

Rosa Chavez said the church does not believe that "the real authors of this crime have been convicted . . . the decision has to more wide-reaching."

Father Jose Maria Tojeira, Jesuit Provincial for Central America, said: "I'm not overly bothered by the acquittal of those of lower rank, though I believe there was sufficient evidence to convict them. I believe it is correct that the jury placed the blame going upward in rank, and we should keep looking up the ranks for more of those responsible."

President Alfredo Cristiani declined to give his opinion of the verdict Sunday. "The jury made that decision, and it has to be accepted," he told reporters.

There was no immediate comment from the U.S. government.

Army Col. Guillermo Benavides, believed to be the man that ordered the massacre, was the only one convicted for the murders of the priests. Lt. Yusshy Mendoz was convicted of the murder of 15-year-old Celina Ramos.

German extremists clash over refugees

BERLIN (AP) — Hundreds of protesters marching to show support for foreigners clashed with police Sunday during a weekend in which extreme rightists attacked refugee shelters in more than a dozen German towns.

Meanwhile, state Interior Minister Rudolf Krause, responsible for security in the new eastern state of Saxony, resigned late Sunday.

The state has been one of the hardest hit by rightist attacks on foreigners over the past weeks and Krause had been accused in media reports of not doing enough to halt the violence.

However, Krause was also facing allegations that he once worked for the former East German secret police. An Interior Ministry spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, confirmed Krause's resignation but declined to provide further details.

President Richard von Weizsaecker said he would visit a home for asylum-seekers this week to show his concern over the rising violence aimed at foreigners in both the prosperous west and the economically depressed east.

For nearly two weeks, extreme rightists have been attacking shelters for asylum-seekers across the country. Most of the violence has involved the throwing of stones and firebombs at the shelters, but some foreigners also have been beaten.

Politicians from all parties have denounced the violence, which has begun appearing in western Germany. The attacks began in former East Germany, where rightists say foreigners are taking scarce jobs when the transition to a market economy has left many eastern Germans out of work.

Police said more than a dozen refugee centers across the country were attacked Saturday and Sunday.

More than 3,000 people, most of them young leftists, clashed with police Sunday after demonstrating against rightist attacks in Hoyerswerda, an eastern German town.

Soviets face gold reserves shortage

MOSCOW (NYT) — In a development that adds more gloom to the Soviet Union's economic outlook, a key economic policy maker has announced that the nation's gold reserves are far smaller than the West believed.

As it prepares for a tough winter amid fears of widespread hunger, sharply lower reserves would mean the government has a far smaller cushion to help make the payments on its $70 billion in foreign debt and to provide for emergency imports of food and other goods.

Grigory A. Yavlinsky, the architect of plans to move toward a market economy, said Friday that the Soviet Union had 240 metric tons in official gold reserves, worth about $3 billion. That is less than one-fifth of what many Western officials estimated.

For decades, there has been official secrecy about the gold reserves, which the Kremlin regarded as a strategic asset. In disclosing figures, Yavlinsky may have hoped to increase pressure on the West to provide debt relief and food aid.

Many Western officials have hesitated to support vast economic aid to Moscow because they believe the nation is sitting on huge official gold reserves, worth perhaps as much as $25 billion.

The estimate of $3 billion in reserves is very much at the low end of private Western estimates, most of which have exceeded $10 billion. In Washington, a U.S. Treasury official who insisted on anonymity said the department could not confirm the accuracy of Yavlinsky's remarks.

The Treasury official said the United States was reviewing the Soviet Union's debt situations but that no decisions had been made.

Yavlinsky, in an interview broadcast on Soviet television. said Moscow had sold two-thirds of its gold reserves last year to help finance imports and pay interest on its debt. Some experts suggested that the Soviet Union had pledged gold reserves as collateral on loans, which could help explain why the price of gold did not shift strikingly last year.

The deepening Soviet economic crisis has been underscored by the grain harvest, which is falling below already pessimistic estimates.

Opposition leader takes reins in Zaire

KINSHASA, Zaire — President Mobutu Sese Seko and his opponents chose an opposition leader as prime minister Sunday despite threats by government critics to kill the new minister if Mobutu remained in power.

Etienne Tshisekedi, leader of the Union for Democracy and Social Progress, was selected to form the so-called government of national crisis, unconfirmed French media reports said.

The appointment, which was widely expected, remains to be approved by a national conference of political leaders that will convene on Tuesday, the reports said.

It was not clear what role Mobutu would play in a new government or what powers Tshisekedi would have as prime minister.

Earlier, about 20 opponents of Mobutu forced their way into his marble palace and disrupted the nine hours of talks aimed at keeping this vast country from slipping further into chaos.

The group told reporters that they would kill Tshisekedi, 58, and other opposition leaders if they agreed to form a coalition government with Mobutu remaining even as a figurehead.

The scene demonstrated Mobutu's loss of control since unpaid soldiers mutinied a week ago, pillaging Kinshasa and other cities in this sprawling Central African country of 30 million people.

France and Belgium sent 1,750 troops to evacuate foreigners, and the soldiers' presence helped to quell the rioting in the former Belgian colony. But both Paris and Brussels have demanded Mobutu end 26 years of dictatorial rule and allow democracy.

The unrest in Zaire comes amid a wave of strikes.

Israeli soldiers kill schoolboy, 12

JERUSALEM (AP) — A 12-year-old Palestinian boy who threw stones at Israeli soldiers on his way to school and was shot in the head has died, the army said Sunday.

The victim, identified as Ramil Abdel Latif Iktifal, was critically wounded Thursday in Gaza City in the occupied Gaza Strip. Arab reporters said the incident began when boys stoned a military observation post on their way to school.

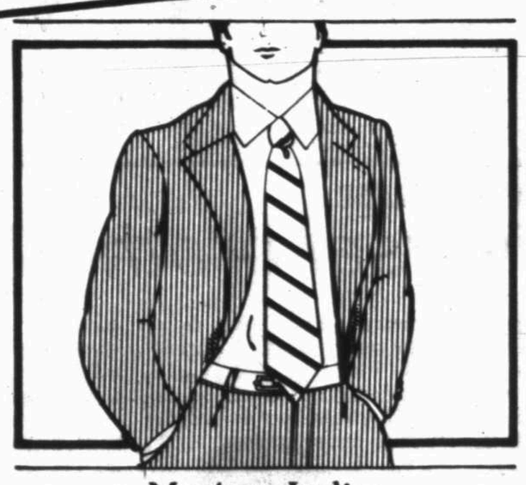

Iktifal was shot twice in the back of the head and was taken to Gaza City's Shifa Hospital, an Arab reporter said.

Basin's future appears bright

The state comptroller's office brought a positive message to the Permian Basin the other day — a forecast for slow, steady economic growth during the 1990s.

For a local economy that's ridden the roller-coaster of booms and busts associated with the oil industry for decades, the message was more than welcome. A booming economy, like that experienced during the latter 1970s and the early '80s here, can wreak havoc on a city and the resulting bust, when the boom fades away, can leave both office buildings and people's lives marked by a tragic emptiness.

We've had enough of that emptiness.

The economic outlook, explained by Don Hoyte, a regional economist with Comptroller John Sharp's research department, not only shows that business services have rebounded and health care has continued to expand in this region, but also that the oil and gas industry may get a much-needed boost as a result of changes in the Clean Air Act.

What's more, the slow, steady growth envisioned for the Permian Basin during the remainder of the decade is also expected to reign over the rest of Texas, which is a positive sign for the Lone Star State.

We really can't think of any reason not to be receptive to the comptroller's forecast. Having experienced the highs and lows of the past decade to an extreme degree, we can attest that there's more validity to the argument for slow, steady growth than what has been called a "ho-hum economy." It may not offer much excitement, but every time the local economy races to build to new heights, you can be certain that a new jumping off point will be found.

Slow and steady growth may not make your blood pump or your temples pound, but after the challenges faced in the 1980s, a decade of it doesn't sound so bad!

Checking policy can avoid grief

If you have property in storage buildings, I cannot stress enough to please check with your insurance companies to see if your homeowner's policies cover theft or damage.

In the first week of June I placed a considerable amount of personal items in a storage unit. Around the first week of July while going to pay my unit rent I noticed my lock was missing, and was horrified at what I found. It was as if a tornado had gone through everything. After going to the office where the managers live to inform them of the break in, I was told that they knew for weeks of the theft, and tried only twice in over a two-week period to contact me. I was never called in the evening nor sent a card, and meanwhile my unit sat unlocked for weeks. When asked why they didn't put one of their locks on the unit, I was never given a satisfactory reply. Yet they do put one on if you are late with your rent.

I called the manager and was told that they did not call me in the evening for it was after their office hours and then later in the conversation she said that they are such conscientious managers that they have gone out after 12 a.m. to rent to people in need, which I find to be a contradiction to their after-hours policy.

My children no longer have tents to camp in, fishing poles to fish with, a stereo to listen to, etc., items that were bought with chore money or babysitting money earned by hours of elbow-grease and time. Statues and pictures were broken, and a table handed down to me from my mother are just some of the items that are gone forever. The police could do nothing for it as "too late," our insurance was a joke, too many things not verifiable.

My family has been heartsick since then and I hope that the thieves are happy and enjoy the items my family worked so hard to get. If in need we would have given them the shirts off our backs, or their child a meal. I hope they realize that when my children ask where their property is with tears running down their cheeks, that I have no answer for them for I cry too.

So please check your storage and insurance policies for it may save you grief. To the thieves I say shame on you!

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Monday, Sept. 30, the 273 day of 1991. There are 92 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

Two hundred years ago, on Sept. 30, 1791, "The Magic Flute" (Die Zauberflote), a "singspiel" by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, premiered at the Theater auf der Wieden in Vienna.

On this date:

In 1777, the Congress of the United States — forced to flee in the face of advancing British forces — moved to York, Penn.

In 1846, Dr. William Morton of Charleston, Mass., used an experimental anesthetic — ether — for the first time on one of his patients.

In 1927, Babe Ruth hit his 60th homer of the season to break his own major league record. The round-tripper was off Washington's Tom Zachary in Yankee Stadium.

In 1938, British, French, German and Italian leaders ended the Munich Conference with a decision to appease Adolf Hitler by allowing Nazi annexation of Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland.

In 1939, the first college football game to be televised was shown on experimental station W2XBS in New York as Fordham University defeated Waynesburg College, 34-7.

In 1946, an international military tribunal in Nuremberg, Germany, found 22 top Nazi leaders guilty of war crimes.

Military wants soldiers to be fit, lean

WASHINGTON — Air Force Capt. James Spellman hit an aerobics class every day at dawn and then jogged 3 miles a day to keep his weight down. But after the holidays last year, Spellman weighed in at 207 pounds — 4 pounds over the maximum weight allowed by the Pentagon for his 5 feet, 10 inches.

Anderson

Spellman's career was over.

Never mind the fact that he scored high on fitness tests or that his record showed eight years of stellar service to his country. The man, who as part of "combat camera" operations in the 1989 invasion of Panama, shot the first footage of a captured Manuel Noriega is now looking for work.

The Pentagon not only demands that its soldiers be fit, but it also wants them to look lean. A burly soldier is still a fat soldier in the Pentagon's draconian view. Last year, 4,561 men and women were booted out of the armed forces because of their girth.

The weight-control program goes by various euphemisms, but unofficially everyone calls it the "Fat Boy Program." Violators of rigid height-to-weight ratios enter the stigmatized program of nutritional counseling, exercise and humiliating monthly weigh-ins. The gauge is a tape measure test of neck, chest and belly to calculate body fat. If a few months on the Fat Boy Program doesn't produce the desired body, then the soldier's career is in jeopardy. Even graduates of the program suffer with the mark in their records.

The military has a right to expect its people to be physically capable of carrying out their rigorous duties, but the slavish devotion to a uniform physique ignores the latest advances in understanding different body types. And, the Fat Boy Program has also become a convenient excuse for getting rid of people when all other things are equal.

One Army personnel board was recently trying to decide which junior officers would be retained and which would be dismissed. The board reviewed the record of one officer who was playing a key role in an ongoing counter-narcotics operation. They eyeballed his latest official photo and pronounced him a tad pudgy. "Call him up and tape him," one of the board members said. The officer was a casualty — booted out of the Army even though he was a valuable asset.

One robust officer told our associate Jim Lynch that the military uses the weight standard as a convenient way to fire bad soldiers and troublemakers. Spellman was neither, but he was outspoken. The after-action report he filed on the Panama invasion criticized his own unit, saying that their mission to send back real-time pictures of the battle to the Pentagon was hampered by logistical problems, including the lack of any weapons for the camera crew to defend themselves.

After the critical report made the rounds, Spellman's battle with his bulge became of special interest to his superiors at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. Spellman was discharged.

Now, as he tries to begin a new career at the age of 32, he wonders why his waistline cost him his chosen career while national military heroes of the moment, who more than filled the TV screens during the Persian Gulf War, were allowed to be on the hefty side.

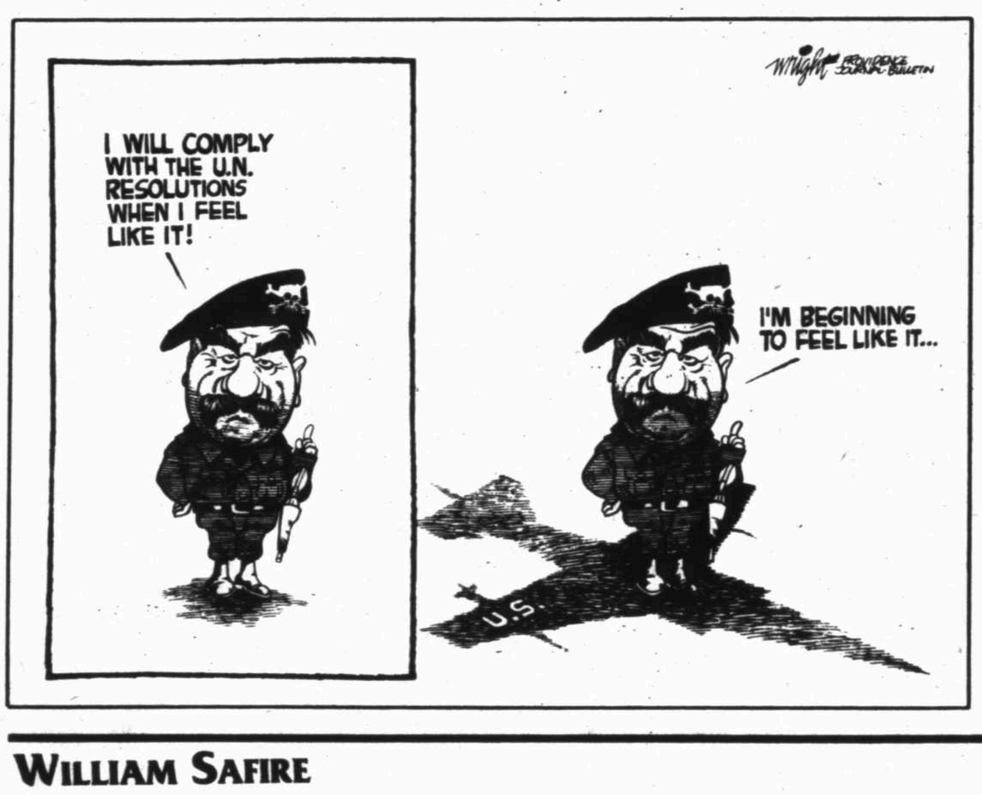

One military analyst said of Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, "I tell you, I was so glad to have a big fat boy in charge. He was out of the mold." That admiration rarely extends down the ranks.

We asked the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marines if they were considering doing away with the weight regulations and replacing them with a standard based solely on physical fitness tests. All of them said no.

NO WIN SITUATION — At last, the Democratic presidential race is turning into a scramble. But the party is plagued with a losing formula. Less than 10 percent of Democratic voters bother to vote in presidential primaries. Those who turn out are activists and are more liberal than the voters who will choose the president the following November. They favor liberal candidates who can win primaries, but can't get elected to the White House.

Philistines invade scroll cartel's preserve

PASADENA, Calif. — A little band of willful academics, representing no interest but their own arrogant selfishness, have for 40 years kept clutched to their scholastic bosoms a substantial portion of the Dead Sea Scrolls.

Safire

These treasures are the ancient documents found in a West Bank cave that cast light on the religious politics roiling the world between 200 B.C. and a century after the birth of Christ.

The Kingdom of Jordan first made a deal with a tight coterie of scholars to decipher and publish the precious texts; after the 1967 war, the government of Israel went along with this cozy arrangement, which meant that the non-biblical portions of the scrolls would be dribbled out by the favored academics over a period of decades.

Now the cartel has been broken. The Huntington Library in San Marino, Calif., refusing to be pushed around by scholastic monopolists at Harvard, Notre Dame and Hebrew University, has made available to all other libraries microfilm of the complete set of scrolls — all 3,000 negatives. Freedom of information now extends clear back to the era that made possible the emergence of Jesus.

Of course, the Judases to academic freedom who are now subject to scholarly competition are furious. Harvard's John Strugnell, cartel boss until he was kicked out last year for what was reported to be anti-Semitism or incompetence, sees an assault on "the intellectual investment of the individual scholars who are preparing these editions."

Their private preserve has been invaded by Philistines: they claim that this may lead to hurried publication and shoddy, non-establishment research.

Here in the Huntington Library near Pasadena, William Moffett, the library's director, punctures that pompous balloon: "I've never known a real scholar to be intimidated by the possibility of somebody else's shoddy research."

He showed me the negatives, some of which may cast light on the psychology of Masada, where Jews committed suicide rather than surrender.

Here's what happened. A farsighted and irascible philanthropist named Betty Bechtel built an ancient manuscripts center in Claremont, Calif., and persuaded Israeli officials to deposit a microfilm of the scrolls there in case of new war in the Middle East.

She was ultimately kicked off the board, which kept the microfilm in the center's vault.

She kept her own separate copy, which museum officials refer to informally as her "scroll in the hole." In 1980, she slipped them to the Huntington, with funds to build an air-conditioned vault. When she died in 1987, title to her private set passed to the library.

The cartel got wind of the extra film and imperiously sought its return to monopoly control. Moffett, an Oberlin history professor who became library director last year, bridled at this intimidation and his board backed him up. As a result, the negatives are available to all scholars through inter-library services. We shall know the truth and the truth shall make us free.

The original scrolls found in the West Bank, first claimed by Jordan, are now owned by Israel; if Bush establishes a PLO state, Yasser Arafat is sure to claim ownership.

One minor irritation: Some in Jerusalem's antiquities bureaucracy, long the captive of the cartel, have been quoted making threats of legal action against the Huntington for setting the information free.

I am privately assured it will not happen, but Prime Minister Shamir should shut them up: He should publicly welcome the dissemination of the scrolls' contents, symbol of the winds of freedom that must one day rock the cradle of civilization.

CHARLEY REESE

Universal brotherhood unrealistic theory

There is good news and bad news about the collapse of communism in Europe and the Soviet Union. The good news is that war between empires is now unlikely; the bad news is that war between former components of their empire is more likely.

Reese

Croations and Serbians, formerly forcibly Yugoslavians, are currently having a go at war and very likely in the next few years other ethnic or national groups will take up the gun to settle disputes. Hungarians, for example, are not enthralled by Romanians or vice versa. Azers, as in Azerbaijani, and Armenians are not exactly practitioners of the idea of universal brotherhood.

In fact, universal brotherhood is on the cosmic, metaphysical level true, but on the practical level, a crock. Since enlightenment is a long and difficult process, even for the rare person inclined to pursue it, you can for all practical purposes consider universal brotherhood a crock and proceed on the more realistic hypothesis that humans are tribal. We might, errant creatures that we are, devise a system for peace between the tribes but we will never succeed pretending such tribes don't exist.

People look at the world reflected from their minds and suppose it to be the universe. It's not easy to convince them otherwise.

So, what should America's policy be in regard to the tribal conflicts present and future? Sympathy, but not interference. By not interference, I mean we neither aggravate, take sides in nor attempt to stifle the conflict. Many of these conflicts, after all, are genuine conflicts and most genuine conflicts most often can only be settled by force.

In the current example, it's not a question of whether the Serbs or the Croatians are right or wrong. They're both right. Trouble is what they both want and both believe is right is mutually exclusive.

Just because we can now see the globe on CNN doesn't mean that we are responsible for all parts of it. It's sad when people kill each other and waste scarce resources in the process, but the only real way to prevent such conflicts is the Soviet way we just spent 45 years condemning.

Any American politician who proposes that we replace the Soviet Union as the chief oppressor of dissent and conflict east of Berlin should be forthwith routed out of office. Beyond good wishes to all, our attitude toward foreign groups not engaged in killing Americans should be: Do whatever you think is best.

Well, the excuse that we have to meddle to out-maneuver the Soviet Union is no longer valid and we ordinary folk who pay for the meddling with blood and treasure, should take care that the Establishment does not think of a new excuse.

If the collapse of communism is to have any benefit for Americans, then it must mean that we are now free at last to turn our attention and our resources to our own very real problems. Otherwise, we might as well resurrect Joe Stalin and prop him up on the throne in the Kremlin.

That's not to say we should not provide some effective aid to Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. It would be stupid in the extreme to spend trillions on the cold war but blow the peace out of stinginess. If Congress had any collective brains and were not bought, it would divert a third to half of the current foreign aid program to Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. It's in our self-interest for Soviet democrats to succeed.

Panel plans hearings on Vietnam MIA case

WASHINGTON (AP) — The specter of thousands of Americans missing from the Vietnam War is again haunting the government that pursues their remains and the families who insist some are still alive.

A special Senate committee, expected to begin hearings in late October, will probe the unthinkable — that 18 years after North Vietnam's final release of 591 POWs, Americans are still being held captive in the jungles of Southeast Asia.

It will sift through intelligence reports of live sightings, take up disputed photos of middle-aged POWs, and listen to those who support and disparage the government position there is no convincing evidence of survivors being held against their will.

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., chairman of the select committee on POW-MIA affairs, said the investigation, the eighth conducted since 1973, "begins with the presumption that somebody may still be alive."

The revival of the MIA issue has meant that families that had come to grips with their missing relatives' death are being offered "proof" they are alive, and are beset by suspicions the government knew this all along.

"I don't want to think my country would do something so morally wrong," said Carol Collins of San Antonio, whose former husband Army Capt. Donald G. Carr was identified in one recent POW photo.

"I didn't know anything for 24 years about my father. Now I've got a photograph that shows him alive," said Shelby Robertson Quast, who was 4 years old when her father, Air Force Col. John L. Robertson, was shot down over North Vietnam in 1966.

Gates hearing to give look inside CIA

WASHINGTON (NYT) — The confirmation of Robert M. Gates as director of central intelligence now hinges on three issues that many people who worked for him had been concerned about all along: his management skills, his ideological views and his intellectual integrity.

Until last week, the main issue of the Senate Intelligence Committee hearings was whether the nominee was truthful when he stated over and over that his knowledge of the Iran-Contra affair was limited and that his actions were appropriate.

The laborious questioning so resembled reruns of the 1987 congressional hearings into the affair that C-Span and the Cable News Network pulled the plug on their live coverage.

It took the riveting theater of testimony behind closed doors to rekindle the interest of most of the Senate Intelligence Committee members and to shift the focus of the debate.

For the first time, the senators heard, firsthand, charges and defenses from five witnesses on whether Gates used his management positions in the CIA to slant intelligence either to fit his pessimistic view of the Kremlin or to please his boss, William J. Casey, the director of central intelligence from 1981 to 1986.

It will also provide a unique public view of the heart of the CIA that most Americans know little about — the armchair culture of analysis that is completely separate from the swashbuckling world of spies, coups and assassination attempts that has dominated the agency since it was founded in 1947.

No savings from nuclear cuts, Cheney says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials said Sunday there will be no short-run savings in defense costs from President Bush's dramatic nuclear weapons standdown.

"Over the next few months, or in fiscal year '92, there are added costs with terminating contracts, moving systems around, destroying warheads, etc., that had not previously been expected," Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Cheney said the nation's military must be ready to fight a regional conflict anywhere in the world and that the Strategic Defense Initiative is needed in a world of nuclear proliferation.

He defended the B-2 bomber program as necessary to the country's defense and said the armed forces already are in the midst of a massive builddown that will cut their manpower by 25 percent.

The need to prevail in a regional conflict like Operation Desert Storm forms "the basic underlying assumptions by which we size our forces today," Cheney said.

National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft said that "five years out, I think there will be a peace dividend," and "hopefully it will be" sizable.

But "I honestly don't know how much," said Scowcroft, speaking on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Defense spending is heading down to 3.6 percent of gross national product, the lowest level since 1939, said Undersecretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz.

"The United States can afford the programs it needs and still afford an adequate defense," Wolfowitz said on CNN's "Newsmaker Sunday."

The administration got an expression of support from one congressional Democrat, Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

"I do think those who believe we're going to be able to declare a peace dividend and have a huge amount of money for domestic purposes are not looking at the fiscal picture of the country," Nunn said.

"Most of the defense savings are going to have to go to try to meet the deficit, which is growing," added Nunn, speaking on CBS's "Face the Nation."

Nunn also said he doubts the need for 75 B-2 bombers that cost $850 million a piece.

"The strategic role has been diminished somewhat by the president's speech if we carry through on this action, and I think we have to re-examine the number of B-2s," Nunn said. "I don't think we can afford 75."

Van runs over, kills 4 in tent

FOLLETTS, Iowa (AP) — A van went off a road in a campground and ran over a tent Sunday, killing a family of four inside.

In Texas, one teenager was killed and two other injured when they were run over while sleeping on a road near Humble.

The van's driver, Jason Van Scoyoc, 18, of Camanche, was charged with four counts of vehicular homicide, said Bill Rowe, Clinton County's chief deputy sheriff.

Rowe said authorities were investigating whether Van Scoyoc had been drinking. Five other people in the van weren't charged.

Van Scoyoc was being held in county jail pending arraignment Monday. Vehicular homicide is punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The accident happened Sunday morning at the campsite of the Hanson & Fairbanks Boat Dock near Folletts, near the Missisippi River in eastern Iowa.

"We heard a squeal of tires and the impact of the van hitting the picnic table and tent. It dragged the tent close to 25 or 30 feet," said Mel McKay, who was camping nearby with his wife. "It was just a hell of a mess."

In Texas, meanwhile, a 14-year-old boy was killed and two others teen-agers were injured early Saturday when a car struck them while they camped on a rural road in Humble, about 20 miles northeast of Houston.

One of the survivors told the Harris County sheriff's office the trio moved their sleeping bags onto the road to try and stay warm. The two-lane road usually has little traffic.

Both sides stage abortion protests

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of abortion-rights advocates marched down Fifth Avenue on Sunday to counter a "life chain" staged by abortion opponents.

Abortion foes tried to form a cross by lining 60 blocks on Fifth Avenue and five blocks of 34th Street with people holding signs saying "Abortion Kills Children." But the chain had gaps, with some entire blocks left empty.

Organizer Christopher O'Hare, of the National Traditionalist Caucus, estimated 2,700 abortion foes took part. There was no police estimate.

Counterprotesters organized by the Women's Health Action Mobilization marched down Fifth Avenue carrying signs and chanting slogans including "Not the church, not the state, women must decide their fate."

There were about 4,000 counterprotesters.

ACLU switches focus to state courts

WASHINGTON (NYT) — In a frank admission that it considers taking cases before the U.S. Supreme Court virtually a lost cause, the American Civil Liberties Union says it will now concentrate more of its resources in bringing issues before state courts, relying on state constitutions to secure an expansion of civil liberties.

Frustrated by the conservative leaning of the federal courts in the areas of civil rights, abortion and criminal justice, ACLU officials say they will accelerate a recent trend of keeping many important issues away from the federal judiciary and move more aggressively into state courts.

Ira Glasser, the ACLU's executive director, said in a telephone interview on Friday from ACLU headquarters in New York that with several of the conservative Supreme Court justices in their 50s, and with Clarence Thomas, the latest nominee to the high court in his early 40s, the change in strategy is a long-term adjustment of outlook, not a momentary departure.

He added that the new strategy includes strengthening the group's legislative lobbying effort at both the federal and state levels, and pouring more resources into a "public education" that attempts to win more converts to the group's view of individual rights.

Glasser and other ACLU lawyers say that a number of state constitutions provide strong privacy guarantees that explicitly include a woman's right to an abortion and some states grant expansive rights for the mentally ill, for example.

In addition, these lawyers say that while the Supreme Court has never considered access to quality education as one of the constitution's unenumerated rights, several states explicitly guarantee such rights in their constitutions.

ACLU lawyers also say that should a case be won in state court based on the state constitution, it cannot be reviewed by the federal judiciary.

"The highest state court is the final word in interpreting its own state constitution," said Steven Shapiro, an associate legal director for the ACLU.

Conservative lawyers who often are the adversaries of the ACLU are not surprised by the organization's new approach.

"I think it's a logical move for the ACLU," said John Scully, counsel with Washington Legal Foundation, a conservative public interest law firm. "With the appointments beginning in 1980 we have on the federal bench more and more people who will not give an expansive reading of the Constitution. But in some states the judiciary is loaded with old-fashioned liberal judicial activists."

Still, Scully said his group will "take on the ACLU toe to toe" in state courts.

The Lunch Crunch

Kathy Gupton does some stretching after a workout.

Julie Bixler leads a lively aerobic workout at the Central YMCA. Bixler is part of the lunchtime crowd that flocks to the fitness center.

Steve Smith chats with Margaret Burchfield while working out on the Stairmaster.

As noon approaches, many folks who work downtown begin to deliberate where to go for lunch.

Kathy Gupton, 27, quit making that decision a little over a year ago — and she's felt better ever since.

"When you go out and eat a big lunch, you come back feeling like a moose. You don't have as much energy," Ms. Gupton said.

That's one reason she eats a home-packed lunch at her desk — following a rigorous appetite-building workout.

Ms. Gupton is one of a growing number of working people who have opted to workout rather than eat out.

A legal secretary for Arco Oil & Gas, Ms. Gupton warms up about 11:25 a.m. when she walks over to the YMCA on North Big Spring Street four or five times each week.

Twice or three times a week, she partakes in a step aerobics class. The other two days she works out with weights.

Ms. Gupton, an avid long-distance bicyclist, began her mid-day workout as a supplemental exercise and to maintain her body tone in addition to avoiding the high fat/high cholesterol restaurant lunches.

"It makes you feel good and it's a good way to maintain a good overall fitness," Ms. Gupton said.

And instead of returning from lunch day dreaming about taking a nap, Ms. Gupton said she returns to the office "rejuvenated and ready to go."

"You just feel better. It motivates you the rest of the day. I think your work performance is better because you're not sleepy and tired," she said.

"And it's just fun to go over there (to the YMCA)," Ms. Gupton said.

Ms. Gupton originally joined the YMCA to have a place to exercise during lunch but has since utilized the facility at other times.

Roger Moon, program director at the downtown YMCA, said between 200 and 400 people join Ms. Gupton at the facility at lunch time.

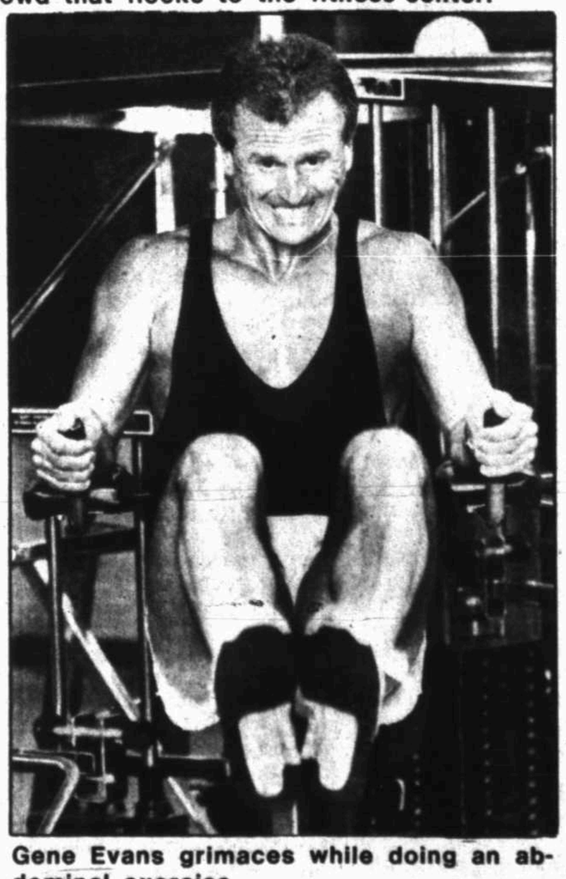

"It's probably our busiest time. Almost equal is our 4:30-5 crowd when people get off work," Moon said.

"Probably our biggest program is our aerobic program. A lot of men and women take advantage of that during the lunch hour," he said.

In addition to aerobics, other popular mid-day workouts include

'Pop' showed many faces, public and private

(Excerpted from "The Hearsts: Father and Son" by William Randolph Hearst Jr. with Jack Casserly. Part two of a nine-part series)

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor in Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

He was a Caesar. He had an inferiority complex.

He was a Charlemagne. He was shy and unassuming.

He was a Napoleon. He was indecisive.

He was a megalomaniac. He was a reserved, restrained, private man.

He was ruthless, reckless, a rogue. He was a keen competitor but a man of principle (his word was his bond), demonstrably kind, a gentleman of impeccable manner and speech.

He was one of the most hated men in America. He was a man of vision and greatness.

He was a muckraking sensationalist, a terror in print. He was one of the greatest technical innovators and public crusaders in the history of American journalism.

He was an enigma, two different men, a human contradiction. He was many things, but one for certain: a genius.

Those clashing characterizations have portrayed my father for a century — from when he became owner of the San Francisco Examiner in 1887 to his death in 1951 and even after his passing.

He was all of those things. And none. Pop was simply a man of his times. He could be ahead of those times, as in his profession, and he could be deliberately behind, as in his courtly manners and love of art. But my father was essentially of the years and milieu in which he lived and worked.

The three dominant newspapers in New York City at the time were the Sun, Herald, and World. The Times and the Tribune lagged far back of the Big Three in circulation and earnings. Dragging in the rear were the Recorder, Press, Advertiser, and Morning Journal.

Pop purchased the Morning Journal, the only newspaper for sale at the time, for $180,000. The Journal was called the "chambermaid's paper," because it covered mostly gossip about the rich and famous. It had been owned for about a year by John R. McLean, a seasoned Ohio publisher, who bought it for $1 million. The paper had a German edition. McLean had, however, let the Journal slide, and it was ready to slip soundlessly into the nearby East River if the paper's news coverage, advertising, and earnings fell any further.

Pulitzer's World, a crusading and often sensational paper featuring explosive exposes of all types, had been Pop's model. He had learned at Pulitzer's feet as a reporter there. Pulitzer also appealed to my father because he was enthusiastic about the news, prompted by an extraordinary curiosity about everyday life.

Now Pop prepared to challenge the newspaper king with his own, new brand of newspapering. He would reach out to even more of the masses — the underdogs, the ignorant, the lost — and bring them not only into the fold of his newspaper but into society itself.

The old man was passionate about that society. He was an idealist who believed deeply that American democracy was the best form of government on earth. Other newspapers catered to the educated and rich, but Pop did not believe those times would sustain such journals or that they would have much effect on the life of the city.

Pop and Pulitzer exploded the fiercest newspaper war in American history, fought over the pennies of Irish and Jewish working girls and German and Italian common laborers. They were the masses who dreamed of speaking English, finding a better job, fighting those who bilked and then ignored them, seeking a voice in their economic, social, and political futures.

Pop became the foremost publisher in the nation to champion so many causes of the underclass. From promoting fairness in the courts to halting police harassment and seeking hospital care for the needy, he supported the entire range of social initiatives affecting the poor.

In the fierce battle, Grandma gave Pop $7.5 million, an astonishing sum in those days, and my father spent every dime of it in the first three years of his fight with Pulitzer. All her advisers cautioned Phoebe against such an expensive and — they thought — unwinnable battle. But she was galvanized by the fact that she had reared a very hard-working son. Diligence was a frontier virtue. She prized it.

Pop's human approach to news was based on a more precise premise than the vague concept of "human interest." He often said that each reader had five basic interests — himself, others, the world around him, where he came from, and where he was going. If a publication satisfied those needs and desires, he believed it would succeed. He never separated those aspects of success. He saw no nobility in going broke. Less than two months after he took the helm of the Journal, its circulation soared from 30,000 copies to about 100,000.

When Pop began challenging Pulitzer in the late 1890s, the old man set a course that he followed at all the papers he purchased across the country. My father not only hired the best talent available but doubled and tripled their salaries. This included Arthur Brisbane, Mark Twain, Stephen Crane, Richard Harding Davis, James Creelman, Dorothy Dix, Susan B. Anthony, and many others.

William R. Hearst Sr. on a European voyage with sons Bill and Jack.

He used the latest technology, including his own innovations and changes, perhaps more than any other publisher in America.

Through the years, Pop continued to buy newspapers, magazines, and other media outlets across the country and abroad.

In 1936 the Depression was strangling not only the American economy but the Hearst empire as well. But Pop continued spending. His top executives received higher salaries than most in the industry, and he refused to ask that reporters and others on his papers take wage cuts. In fact, Pop was not listening much to anyone until John W. Hanes, former assistant secretary of the treasury under President Roosevelt, finally convinced him to undertake drastic savings measures.

One aspect of all this remains clearest in my mind. I was working in New York as the publisher of the Journal-American at the time. Part of Pop's fabulous collection of art, purchased in Europe and elsewhere over decades — but stored in warehouses in the Bronx and its vicinity — was put up for sale at Gimbel's department store. More than 10,000 of these art objects covered about 100,000 square feet in the store. Mobs of bargain-hunting shoppers swarmed through the store.

It was bedlam as they rubbernecked and then grabbed this or that to take home and be able to say: "Old man Hearst owned this. I bought it for ten bucks." I was sick about it, so ill that I went to bed. I avoided passing Gimbel's. It seemed like all of us had sold out.

For the old man to accept the drastic surgery on all he had built over the years, including his art treasures, was perhaps the lowest moment of my father's life. If Pop was upset by all the turmoil, he never showed it. It was only money, he said, not life or death. I presume he sold more than $100 million in various properties to survive. But, typically, he said nothing. He never made one excuse. To me, that was a profound part of his character and, to this day, I have tried to live with similar guts.

My father was a very calm, logical person, the epitome of the old-fashioned gentleman. He often made his points with humor. In more than 40 years I never saw him lose his temper, although he often had reason to be upset. He didn't believe in personal confrontations and took pains to avoid them. The old man, clearly referring to outside critics, kept this quotation from George Washington among his most important private papers: "To persevere in one's duty and be silent is the best answer to calumny."

The old man was never merciless, yet often merciful. He never asked for forgiveness but gave it abundantly.

These reflections are the first time in more than a century that I — the only one of us to do so — have lifted a word or voice about our inner family circle. My father chose to remain private throughout his life.

Noted meteorologist Taft dies Friday

By James Vincent Brady
N.Y. Times News Service

FORT WORTH — The Chief used to dream about the weather, but not the way you or I would dream about anything. He dreamt in calculus. In these dreams, his numbers are a symphony written just ahead of the heavens' tides — or they come back in jolts, imaginary miscalculations that distort the reports he gave hours earlier.

For a time in these last few weeks, the weather drifted out of his dreams.

Harold Taft is flying 50 feet above North Korea in an F-18 and the enemy air base below is scrambling from the surprise, then the jet blasts straight up 30,000 feet into the night ...

He sees the bodies stacking up at the front, soldiers with frantic gloved hands ejecting overheated machine-gun barrels that sizzle in the snow, the mechanical killing resumes until live bodies reach the position ...

Listless outposts where wind is the only noise ...

The faces of children, grandchildren, great-grandchildren ... were they really there in that moment he remembers, or is this how fatigue and narcotics can dupe the imagination?

For a mind that has worked always and only with definites, this aspect would fairly be called terrifying, but Taft, scientist and military careerist, would term it "unsettling."

The cancer that took his stomach and pancreas in 1990 and then retreated, hid long enough for Harold Taft to transform hope into thanks. Now it was trying to squeeze the life out of him, working against a will that for the first time had no tangible countermeasures, but just the same, felt obligations.

When the cancer struck, Taft's commanding personality had found a way to take charge of illness and work it for the biggest benefit: to the viewers of KXAS/Channel 5 who had counted on him for more than 40 years to get them through the weather, he had bared his surgical scars and, in a multipart series, shown them how to get through cancer.

At one point he looked to the camera the way he looks into the eyes of a visitor and said, "If you get into a situation like I'm in, it's not a death sentence. Don't look at it that way."

Common among the tens of thousands of fans' letters and cards is the salutation, "World's Greatest Weatherman." Taft pioneered television weather reports, and as the consummate scientist, mastered the mysterious turns of gaseous realms.

In these final days of his life, he has had to reckon the realm that transits between living and dying, a famously empirical mind in uncertain territory.

On Sept. 5 he spent his 69th birthday stuck in bed at Harris Methodist hospital in Fort Worth, and stayed there until Sept. 20.

One afternoon before he left, when his visitors were down to one and his wakefulness diminishing, he was contemplating the unpredictable condition of life: he lost a daughter, only 19, to leukemia; yet his mother, 95, lives well in Oklahoma City.

The reel of memories starts to run again.

"Life goes by so fast," he says, closing his eyes to the afternoon light from the narrow seventh-floor window where clouds sail by like ships in a pageant. "We have had a good life."

Friday night, Taft died at his home.

Drivers find loophole in new liability law

HOUSTON (AP) — A new Insurance Reform Act, which went into effect on Sept. 1, requires drivers to show proof their vehicle is covered by liability insurance before they can apply for an operator's permit, license plates or car inspection.

But there's a loophole, and Department of Public Safety officers say so many motorists are trying it, it already has reached epidemic proprotions.

In the past, drivers were required to show proof their vehicle was covered by liability insurance only if stopped by law enforcement officers while driving. Failure to carry proof of liability could result in a fine ranging from $175 to $350. Subsequent violations carry fines up to $1,000 and seizure of a vehicle for 180 days.

The new law allows drivers who don't own a car to sign a sworn affidavit acknowledging that fact. If they do, the proof of liability requirement is waived.

"We've got a parking lot overflowing with motor vehicles that no one owns," said the clerk, who declined to identify herself to the Houston Chronicle. "And these are adults, not kids."

It was scuttlebutt-spreading-like-wildfire at its finest, she said. After one applicant claimed the exemption, the news moved down the line of applicants like an infection. A stack of 150 waiver forms — which a supervisor suggested would last a week — was used by noon.

A spot check of DPS license offices around the state shows that it's not a common occurrence yet, but troopers in each location said they weren't surprised that some drivers were taking the chance to lie, even though it's a criminal act.

Various criminal laws apply, law enforcement officers say, with the most severe constituting a third-degree felony. Punishment could include a fine up to $10,000 and confinement in prison for up to 10 years or in a community correctional facility for a year.

Carswell AFB answers stand-down with party

FORT WORTH (AP) — It was a weekend of tailgate parties and other impromptu celebrations at Carswell Air Force Base as the 7th Bomb Wing learned it was one of several Strategic Air Command units — including Dyess in Abilene — removed from alert status.

The United States removed hundreds of its nuclear weapons from 24-hour alert Saturday. The two Texas bases were on the list of 11 Air Force bases affected by the action.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney signed an executive order removing 40 long-range bombers and 450 long-range Minuteman missiles from their full-time alert, the first step toward implementing a package of sweeping reductions announced Friday night by President Bush in U.S. nuclear arsenals.

Cheney said the move will "make the world a safer place."

For Carswell's B-52 bomber crews, it meant the end of 24-hour-a-day, seven-day-a-week alerts.

Twenty-four bombers are currently assigned to Carswell, a base spokeswoman said.

"By noon Saturday, all our alert bomber and tanker aircraft were off alert," said Col. Richard Szafranski, commander of the 7th Bomb Wing. "The alert crews are returning to their homes and the aircraft are being reconfigured for peacetime flying of training missions."

Air Force records show that the first time Carswell strategic air crews went on alert status was Oct. 1, 1957. They have been on alert status every day since.

Things also began winding down for crews at Dyess. Saturday was the first time since 1986 that the base's 31 B-1B bombers have not been on alert, said a base spokeswoman.

College sets alien classes

Staff Report

Legal aliens residing in the Midland area may attend free classes at Midland College to satisfy educational requirements. The classes are available at the college's Adult Learning Center or at Casa de Amigos.

Those eligible legalized aliens currently holding temporary resident green cards may attend classes at the college's Adult Learning Center from 9-11 a.m. or from 2-4 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Evening classes are taught at Casa de Amigos on Monday and Wednesday from 7:30-9:30 p.m.

Classes also start Tuesday for those persons wishing to acquire knowledge of United States government and history, plus minimal English literacy skills, also may attend classes at either Midland College or Casa de Amigos.

The MC classes start Tuesday and those at Casa on Wednesday.

The classes satisfy educational requirements set out by the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Citizenship classes for resident aliens with permanent cards who participated in the amnesty program are available either daytime or evening.

More information may be obtained by calling the Midland College Amnesty Office at 685-4704 or 685-4713.

weight training, basketball, volleyball, running and fitness lap swimming, Moon said.

"The majority of our clientele are the downtown business people," Moon said.

Why is the lunch break so popular?

"My guess is a lot are family people and want to spend evenings with their family," Moon said.

Ms. Gupton commented on the lunch break as being an opportune time for people with a busy schedule: "If something comes up at the end of the day and you can't work out it's OK because you've already done it."

DEATHS

Willie Thompson

Services for Willie May Thompson, 92, of Bridgeport will be held today at 11 a.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Loraine with Rev. Tommie Taylor officiating. Burial will be in Loraine Cemetery under the direction of Morehart Mortuary in Breckenridge.

She died Saturday morning at her home.

She was born August 15, 1899 in Ellis County, Texas. She married Otha L. Thompson in Loraine in 1916. He preceded her in death in 1921. She lived in Loraine in the early 1930s. She graduated from Texas Women's University in Denton and was a schoolteacher in the early 1940s. In the late 1940s she ran a private kindergarten in Midland. She moved to Runaway Bay in 1978. She was a member of the First Presbyterian Church in Bridgeport.

Survivors include one brother, Phil Smith of Breckenridge and several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by five brothers and a sister.

The family requests that memorials be made to First Presbyterian Church in Bridgeport. Memorials may be left at Morehart Mortuary.

Truman Gilliland

Services for Truman J. Gililland, 83, of Rotan will be held today at 4 p.m. at the Rotan Church of Christ with Rev. Doug Reeves and Rev. Tommy Harbin officiating. Burial will be in Rotan Cemetery.

He died Friday at a hospital in Rotan.

He was born on Oct. 11, 1907, in Lubbock. His first marriage was to Grace Hembree on June 28, 1930, in Abilene. She died on February 5, 1977. His second marriage was to Doris Owen on Feb. 24, 1979, in Rotan.

He moved to Rotan from Abilene in 1937. He was employed by Rotan Cotton Oil Mill until he retired in 1974. He was a member of the Rotan Church of Christ and the Rotan Lion's Club.

Survivors include his wife; a son, Gary Gililland of Midland; a sister, Losceal Banko of Fort Worth; three grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

William W. Smith

Services for William W. Smith, 59, of Midland, will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the First Baptist Church with Dr. Jim Denison officiating. Burial will be in Resthaven Memorial Park under the direction of Ellis Funeral Home.

He died Saturday at his residence.

He was born August 30, 1932, near Kinta, Okla. After graduation from high school, he entered the Army and served two years in Korea. After his discharge, he moved to Dumas and later to Amarillo, where he was employed with Energas. In 1969, he was transferred to Midland where he retired after 31 years of service.

Survivors include three sons, Rick Smith, Rodney Smith and Royce Smith, all of Midland; a daughter, Ravona Lloyd of Jackson, Texas; his mother, Bessie Smith of Amarillo; two brothers, Astor Smith and Marvin Smith, both of Amarillo; four sisters, Eula Scott of Guyman, Okla., Priscilla Chick of Amarillo, Nan Mosley of Amarillo and Mary Smith of Alamogordo, New Mexico; and eight grandchildren.

Plastics plant burns

Odessa — A fire at the Orion Pacific Inc. plastics plant Saturday night took four units and 11 firefighters about 30 minutes to control, Odessa fire department officials said.

The "trash fire" started amid 200 bales of crushed plastic milk containers and 2-liter bottles.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

The recycling plant is located south of U.S. 80 at 2525 E. Pearl St.

Annual fundraiser is 'smash'

By Linda Anderson
Staff Writer

What do tennis, Mexican food and Golden Oldies from the '50s and '60s have in common? Smash Fiesta, which was presented Saturday night at Holiday Inn Convention Center in Midland, is the answer.

The annual benefit for the Developmental Disabilities Center was attended by an enthusiastic crowd of about 700 who enjoyed a Mexican feast catered by the Holiday Inn, sang along with the band and bid on silent and live auction items.

Funds raised will benefit the DDC's scholarship fund and its general operating expenses, said Kay Bynum, executive director of the DDC. "We hope that we generate at least $50,000" from the event, she said.

The Developmental Disabilities Center was founded in 1984 to provide quality education and socialization for developmentally disabled children. The school is privately funded, Mrs. Bynum said. "We receive no state funding" and no federal funding. "It's totally private."

This year the DDC opened "Bynum School specifically for children who have learning differences such as dyslexia," she said. Bynum School is open to children in grades kindergarten through seventh, although "next year we hope to expand to eighth grade." Current enrollment in Bynum School is 11 children, she said, but as many as 50 students may be able to attend next year.

Children may be referred to the DDC by physicians, private schools, "other parents and other health care service providers like MHMR (Mental Health/Mental Retardation) and the Health Department," Mrs. Bynum said. Students at the DDC can be as young as 18 months or as old as 25, she added.

The DDC also offers a Greenhouse Vocational Training Program that works with the Texas Department of Highways to provide flowers for a highway beautification program. "You know where Wall and Highway 80 split? Those are our flowers there," she said.

Smash Fiesta is the major annual fundraiser for the DDC. The all-day event includes a tennis tournament in the morning and the dinner-dance and auction in the evening.

Saturday night the evening began with a Mexican buffet, including such classics as fajitas, tacos, enchiladas, rice, beans and guacamole. During dinner music was provided by FMO Mariachis from Odessa.

Silent auctions items, including professional studio photographs, clothing, jewelry, gift certificates from various merchants, and an 18-hole round of golf, were on display for interested bidders to view. Live auction items bid on were a Purgatory ski vacation, an 18K yellow gold inlaid natural stone ring, a trip to John Newcombe's Tennis Ranch, a four-day cruise, a personal "flip phone" and a Caribbean holiday.

Dancing was almost manditory when TFC band started to play. They opened with a medley — including "At the Hop," "Get a Job" and "Johnny B. Goode" — that almost required the feet to move. Their renditions of favorites from the '50s, '60s and '70s inspired "a whole lotta shaking" to be going on. Music for Smash Fiesta 1991 was provided by Wemus Entertainment.

Benefactors for Smash Fiesta were Fred and Kathy Bradley, Kay and Rufe Bynum, Sherri and Don Davison, Mr. and Mrs. Clay Hill, and Joseph and Jan O'Neill.

Committee members for the event were Sara Gieb and Paula Morrison, chairmen; Ellen Ramsey, beverages; Marsha Bettis, computer; Lynda Webb, decorations; Mrs. Bynum, entertainment; Andi Wiggins, food; Karen Holder and Dana Runyan, hospitality; Andrea Hughes, invitations; Sarah Fagin, live auction; Carla Curtner, program; Marueen Wheeler, publicity; Sully Shiplet, public relations; Greta Miers, silent auction; Lisa Burlas, sponsors; Roxanne Murphy and Bonney Mulloy, tennis; and Kim Hatchett, treasurer.

Special contributors were American Airlines, KMID-TV Big 2, KMGP Magic 102.1, Midland Reporter-Telegram and Permian Distributing Inc.

DEAR ABBY

Many denominations support right to choose

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: With all the talk about "pro-life" and "pro-choice," I am confused about where the various religious denominations stand in the controversy.

Can you please tell us which religions support a woman's right to choose? — CONFUSED IN ST. PAUL

Van Buren

DEAR CONFUSED: It is confusing. Not only do the various theologies differ in their positions on abortion, but within each religion individual members (and groups) may also have differing beliefs. The following are the official positions of some of the major religious groups that support a woman's right to choose.

AMERICAN FRIENDS SERVICE COMMITTEE (QUAKERS): Supports a woman's right to follow her own conscience concerning child-bearing, abortion and sterilization.

CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST: "Matters of family planning are left to the individual judgment of members of our church."

CONSERVATIVE JUDAISM: Opposes government restrictions on a woman's right to have an abortion.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH: "Any proposed legislation on the part of national or state governments regarding abortions must take special care to see that the individual conscience is respected."

ISLAM: Abortion is allowed for any reason in the first 40 days of pregnancy (approximately 5.7 weeks). They oppose abortion after this point, except if the woman's life is in danger. The issue of fetal deformity is an issue that is being examined by the church.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH: "The abortion decision must remain with the individual, and be made on the basis of conscience and personal religious principles, and must be free of governmental interference."

REFORM JUDAISM: The decision of whether or not to have an abortion is the woman's. Under traditional Jewish law, the fetus is not considered separate from the woman until its head is out of the womb.

UNITARIAN UNIVERSALIST ASSOCIATION: Supports the "right to choose contraception and abortion as a legitimate expression of our constitutional rights."

UNITED CHURCH OF CHRIST: "Upholds the right to have access to adequately funded family planning services, and to safe, legal abortions as one option among others."

UNITED METHODIST: Supports the legal option of abortion under proper medical procedures.

ZEN BUDDHISM: "A decision should be made in full awareness of the consequences, and should be made by the individual with a clear head fully awake to the whole issue."

AMERICAN BAPTIST CHURCHES: Have adopted a neutral position.

No stated position has been announced by: African Methodist Episcopal, Buddhism, Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, Seventh-day Adventists, Shintoism, Sikhism.

For further information, contact the Religious Coalition for Abortion Rights, 100 Maryland Ave. N.E., Suite 307, Washington, D.C. 20002; (202) 543-7032. No self-addressed, stamped envelope is required.

DEAR ABBY: I have some next-door neighbors (they are two sisters and their cousin) who are nice people, but they act like my house is a free grocery store. They even bring their empty bottles to me to fill up with shampoo. When they borrow my mayonnaise, if I don't hurry up and ask for it back, they keep it in their refrigerator and use it until it's all gone.

I have no husband and I'm doing my best to raise five children, and I can't afford these "borrowing" neighbors anymore. They borrow cough syrup, peanut butter, aspirin, eggs, bread — and never offer to replace anything.

I would like to stay on good terms with them because our front doors are 3 feet apart. Any ideas? — HAD IT IN HAWAII

DEAR HAD IT: Yes, I have one. And if you use it, it's the only one you'll need. The next time these neighbors ask to "borrow" something, tell them you are "fresh out."

And should you soften up and decide to "lend" them something, measure it out; if you hand over the entire container, they will take it to mean "help yourself." Nice guys finish last, and overly generous neighbors usually get stuck, so don't lend them anything you can't afford to give them.

Prices rise

NEW YORK — Oil prices rose Friday, as a buying spree in Europe shook the market out of doldrums that set in with this week's OPEC meeting.

European oil traders were stocking up on oil contracts on news of platform problems in the North Sea, a key production area. The rally extended into New York trading.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in November settled at $22.32 per barrel, up 11 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

For the week, oil rose 35 cents a barrel in New York.

Natural gas prices were mixed, with contracts for delivery in November settling at $1.920 per 1,000 cubic feet, up .2 cent. For the week, natural gas for next-month delivery rose 17.8 cents per 1,000 cubic feet, but the move was somewhat exaggerated by the expiration of the October delivery contract.

Oilmen meet

The Midland Christian Oilmen's Association is scheduled to meet at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in the Charlie's restaurant in the Midland Hilton.

Speaker will be Jim Curfew of Arco Oil & Gas Co.

Cost of the luncheon is $7.50 per person.

Dollar drops

NEW YORK — The dollar fell Friday amid continued trader pessimism about the direction of interest rates.

The British pound gained against the dollar, rising to $1.7435 in New York from $1.7285 late Thursday.

The dollar also lost ground against the Japanese yen, falling to 133.15 yen in New York from 133.95 yen on Thursday.

Other dollar rates in New York, compared with late Thursday's prices, included: 1.6705 German marks, down from 1.6875; 1.4535 Swiss francs, down from 1.4675; 5.6905 French francs, down from 5.7490; 1,249.00 Italian lire, down from 1,263.85; and 1.13355 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1360.

Market loses

NEW YORK — Stock prices finished mixed Friday after a modest early rally faded.

Analysts noted that the market has been groping for direction all week as the economy struggles to recover from the recession.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials dropped 11.18 to 3,006.04, closing out the week with a net loss of 13.19 points.

Advancing issues slightly outnumbered declines on the New York Stock Exchange, with 769 up, 762 down and 555 unchanged.

The NYSE's composite index lost .23 to 212.21.

New chief likes look of RTC efforts

DALLAS (NYT) — He had a keen eye for controlling costs and a gambler's touch in cutting deals. But the talent that most shaped Albert V. Casey's long career in the transportation, newspaper and airline industries was his knack for wringing success from managers in big organizations.

Now the hard-driving Casey, 71, is about to tackle Washington's biggest management mess, the much-criticized Resolution Trust Corp. that is charged with cleaning up the nation's failed savings and loans. And Casey's view about the job the bailout agency is doing puts him in agreement with a distinct minority of lawmakers, bankers and real estate investors.

"I'm going to be their champ," Casey said of the agency he intends to head for about two years. "This is a great group doing a fine job, but the story has sort of been misrepresented to the general public."

"It's like condemning American Airlines because some guy tells you a cocktail story of going to Florida and his baggage winds up in Seattle," he said. "Often when people say they are talking about the RTC, the RTC isn't involved. The RTC is a popular target for all of the criticism, but it is highly unwarranted."

Casey is best known for reviving American Airlines as its chief executive in a 10-year span that ended in 1984. But he has a reputation as a troubleshooter who can quickly take control of a floundering bureaucracy.

In the mid-1980s, he stepped in as postmaster general after a newly installed postmaster general stumbled and was dismissed.

In 1988, federal bank regulators asked him to lead a recapitalization of the failing First Republicbank Corp., once Texas' largest banking company. Casey brought immediate stability to the executive suite, although ultimately his plan was not accepted by banking regulators, who went on to sell First Republic's 40 banks to NCNB Corp. of Charlotte, N.C.

Last Monday, the Treasury Department tapped him for the newly created post of chief executive at Resolution Trust, which will pick up the responsibilities that now belong to L. William Seidman, the chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. In the coming weeks, Seidman plans to retire from the government.

"Scale doesn't bother him; indeed, he likes scale," said Robert L. Crandall, chairman and chief executive of AMR Corp., American Airlines' parent company, who was Casey's longtime lieutenant at the airline. "He's got a lot of experience in the management of big organizations. That will be where his focus should be: how to organize so that the people who are doing the detail work can interact efficiently."

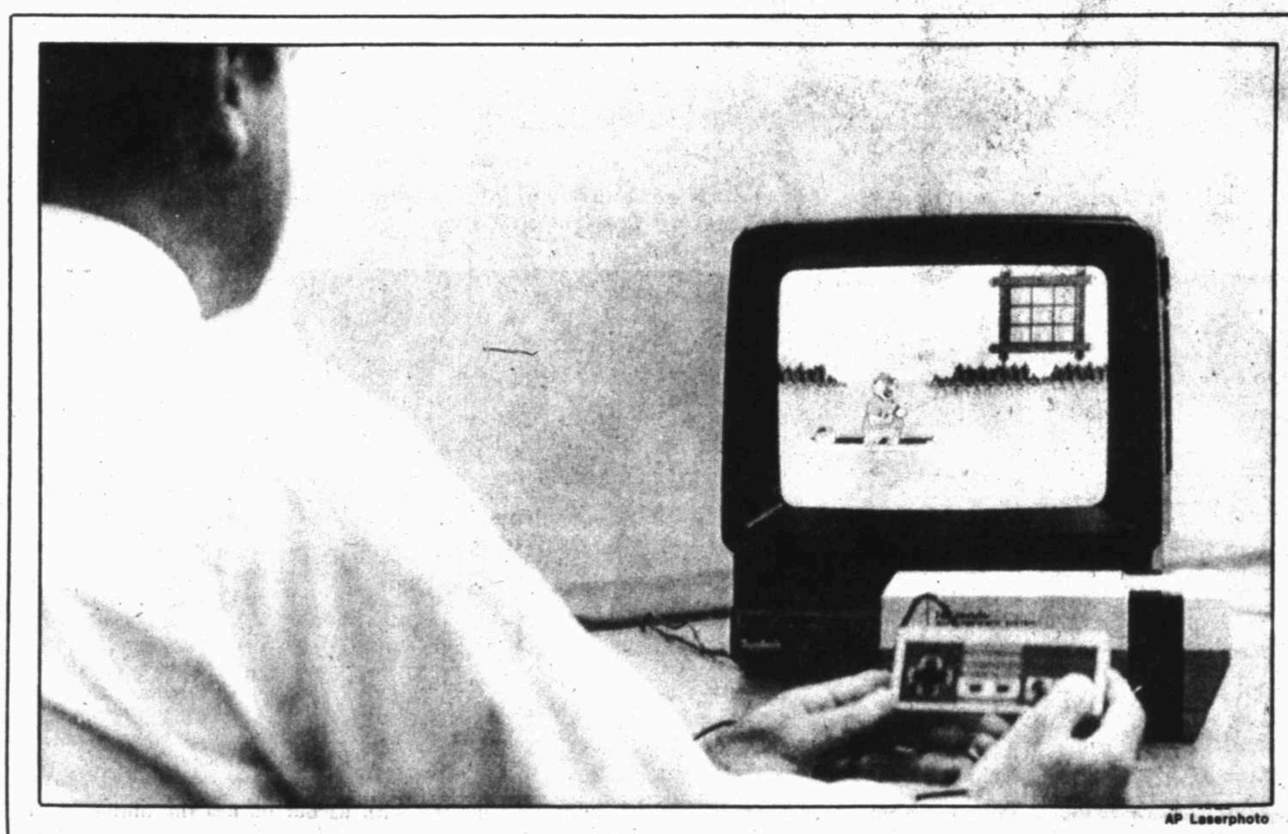

The Casey style "does not suffer fools gladly," said one lawyer who worked on the rescue of First Republicbank and spoke on the condition of anonymity.

Casey dismissed one top Postal Service official during his nine-month tenure, and he quickly moved to halt bad management practices when he took charge of the bank.

He is known as a warm, supportive boss, who is very smart, quick and demanding.

"When somebody starts on some long-winded explanation," the lawyer said, "he's usually got it figured out by the third sentence."

Casey's buoyant appraisal of the bailout agency seemed calibrated more to praise the agency than to confront its critics. And it reflects a leadership style that blends blarney with his outgoing nature, and robust optimism with his skill at setting high expectations for people and motivating them to perform.

Jack Hoehm, Minnesota state lottery director of operations, demonstrates how people can play the lottery game at home on Nintendo equipment.

Minnesota tests Nintendo lottery

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Proponents of a plan to let Minnesotans play the lottery with the popular video game Nintendo say it could boost sagging interest in lotteries and increase use of home computers for shopping and other services.

Minnesota, one of the last states to enter the lottery sweepstakes, plans to become the first to let people play the lottery at home using Nintendo equipment. Lottery Director George Andersen said 10,000 people will test the play-at-home system.

The six-month test is to begin next summer.

Critics, including Senate Majority Leader Roger Moe, say the experiment will encourage children to gamble.

"While I understand that the lottery folks are simply trying to maximize revenue," he said, "I also recognize that intruding into people's homes and converting a game which is immensely popular with young children into a gambling tool is not only unethical, but insidiously destructive to society."

But Minnesota lottery officials and lottery vendor Control Data Corp. say they have developed built-in safeguards that will prevent children from using the game for gambling. It's illegal for minors to purchase lottery tickets.

Lottery players would select numbers using the control deck from a Nintendo video game and a Minnesota State Lottery cartridge to hook up via a modem to the lottery's computer system.

Participants would have to deposit up to $200 in advance and no credit would be extended. Any winnings would be credited to their account, but prizes of $1,000 or more would be claimed through a lottery office. There would be a $50 daily limit for at-home players.

There is no service charge during the testing period, but once the system goes into wider use the state will lease out cartridges to play the lottery. Those charges have not been set, according to Jack Boehm, director of operations for the Minnesota State Lottery.

The new way of playing the game is for state residents only. Out-of-state players will not be able to tap in because of security controls that include a password system, officials said.

Players also will need to buy or lease a modem to hook up with the lottery's computer system. Boehm said the modem, which all Nintendo machines are equipped to be fitted with, probably would cost from $50 to $60.

"This is a whole new exciting level of use of a piece of equipment already owned by a large number of people," Andersen said.

Nearly a third of the nation's homes have bought Nintendo since the Japanese company sold its first machine in the United States in 1986.

In Japan, Nintendo customers use their machines for banking and for buying and selling stocks, and the company hopes to encourage the development of similar on-line services in this country.

The play-at-home lottery system is seen by Control Data as a way to boost interest in lotteries.

Analysts fear Favorite Fifty malady back

By Chet Currier
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK — If Wall Street analysts start worrying about the stock market's health these days, a malady they often mention is "Favorite Fifty" syndrome.

It's a condition that first flared up two decades ago, when money managers at investing institutions developed a powerful fondness for the shares of a few select growth companies.

When you bought into this elite group, the savants of the time declared, it mattered very little what price, no matter how high, you paid.

Since those companies, in an alphabetic range from Avon Products to Xerox, were growing rapidly in all kinds of financial weather, they were "one decision" stocks that need never be sold.

That notion was exploded in the big bad bear market of 1973-74, when the popular market averages suffered declines of 40 percent to 50 percent, and a typical member of the nifty fifty took an even bigger dive.

Now, in the early 1990s, some observers contend that a new generation of investors is venturing in the same direction.

"Today in a market dominated even more by institutions, we are seeing another gravitation to a handful of hot stocks," says Stephen Quickel in his newsletter U.S. Investment Report.

"Nobody is stupid enough to call them one-decision stocks in these more sophisticated times. But (price-earnings) multiples are soaring past 50 and still rising."

Adds Kurt Feuerman, an analyst at Morgan Stanley & Co., "With interest rates low and real asset prices generally not rising, the only investment theme left is growth.

"The market's response has been to take the P-E multiples of the remaining growth stocks higher than at any time since the nifty-fifty period of the early 1970s."

Indeed, many analysts agree, the comparison is reinforced by the similarities between the economic environments of then and now. At the start of the '70s, as in the early '90s, the economy was struggling fitfully to recover from a recession that followed an era of financial exuberance.

The memory of recession and prospect of a weak recovery tend to put a premium on demonstrated earnings growth that looks like a good bet.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Early calls for 'bearer' bonds bear watching

By Bill Doyle

Q. If the owner of a "bearer" municipal bond fails to learn the bond has been called for early redemption, what happens?

Doyle

A. In that case, the investor does not receive the bond's redemption price until after he or she learns about the "call" and sends the bond to the trustee for the bond issue. Even after presenting the bond for redemption, the investor might have a bit of a wait for the trustee to send the check.

The investor could also miss out on at least one interest payment, because a bond no longer pays interest after it is called. Most municipal bonds pay interest semiannually. If a bearer bond you own makes interest payments, say, on April 1 and October 1 and is called for redemption on April 1, you might not learn about it until after your October 1 interest coupon is returned unpaid.

This can also happen with some corporate and U.S. Treasury bonds, many of which formerly were issued in bearer form. No bearer bonds have been issued in the United States since July 1, 1983, but a lot of old ones are still around.

The owner's name does not appear on a bearer bond certificate nor on the record books of the issuer and its agents. When you own such a bond, it's smart to watch for early calls. You can ask your broker or bank to do that. Or you can peruse Standard & Poor's Corp.'s "Call Bond Record," which you will find at some public libraries.

You won't run into this problem with a bond in registered form. Your name is on a registered bond certificate and is recorded by the issuer and its agents. Interest checks are mailed to registered bond owners. And, unless there is a major goof, owners are notified of calls.

No certificates are issued for bonds in book-entry form. Interest on municipal and corporate book-entry bonds is sent to the brokerage firm or bank through which you bought book-entry bonds. So are redemption proceeds.

Q. Who loses and who gains when a bearer bond is called for early redemption and the bond's owner does not learn about it until much later?

A. The bond owner loses the use of the redemption amount from the date of the call until he or she finally gets that money from the bond trustee. And chances are an interest payment the investor was expecting will never arrive.

The winner will be the bond trustee — usually a bank. The trustee will have the use of redemption proceeds until the bond owner collects them. On the call date, the bond issuer turns over to the trustee the money to redeem the bond issue.

Q. If the owner of a bearer bond called for redemption no longer has an account at the brokerage firm through which the bond was purchased, won't the bond trustee, which also is the interest-paying agent and has been redeeming the interest coupons, notify the bond owner?

A. If you hope for that, you are more than naive. The trustee is not obligated to do that and, in the normal course of events, does not.

Be realistic. Or, as the kids say, "Get real." By hanging onto the proceeds of called bonds not presented for redemption, the bond trustee can put that money to work earning more money — for it, not bond owners.

Q. At what point in time does a called bond become worthless, if the owner has missed the call date?

A. Never. A bond is a debt obligation and will be paid off, unless the issuer defaults.

After a long period of time — five to 25 years, depending on the state — the "law of escheat" comes into play and the money is turned over to the state treasury.

Even then, the bond owner can claim the money from the appropriate state agency.

Braves swap

HOUSTON (AP) — In a trade so surprising because it came so late, the Atlanta Braves tried to boost themselves in the final week by getting pitcher Mike Bielecki and catcher Damon Berryhill in a deal that sent two young pitchers to the Chicago Cubs.

The move, one of the latest in baseball history, was announced just as the Braves were finishing beating Houston 6-5 in 13 innings. The victory pulled Atlanta within one-half game of NL West-leading Los Angeles, which played San Francisco at night.

The Cubs received Turk Wendell, one of the best prospects in the Braves' minor league system, and Yorkis Perez.

Bielecki, 13-11 for the Cubs, was scheduled to start Monday night for Chicago.

Cowboys hang on

AP Laserphoto

Dallas tight end Jay Novacek (84) is stopped by New York cornerback Everson Walls after a nine-yard gain during the Cowboys' 21-16 victory.

■ Dallas comes from behind, then holds on to give Jimmy Johnson his first win over the Giants.

Associated Press

IRVING — Jimmy Johnson claimed his biggest prize since he replaced Tom Landry three years ago with a come-from-behind victory over the defending world champions.

Troy Aikman completed a 23-yard scoring pass to Michael Irvin with 2:13 to play Sunday and the Dallas Cowboys snapped a six-game losing streak to the New York Giants with a 21-16 victory.

"We took a big step as a team, as a franchise today," said Johnson who was 0-4 against the Giants since he left the University of Miami to coach the Cowboys. "It was a very big step." The victory gave Dallas a 3-2 record while the stumbling Giants dropped to 2-3. It's the first time Dallas has been over .500 since Johnson became the coach.

Irvin caught the ball at the four-yard line and broke Mark Collins' tackle to score standing up on the game-winning play.

"Michael Irvin is a winner and that's why he makes plays like that," said Johnson. "He did a great job of believing in himself after dropping a pass."

Irvin said "Collins was trying to tackle the ball instead of tackling me. It was the kind of play you dream about."

The Giants stormed back and Jeff Hostetler's pass intended for Stephen Baker was intercepted in the Dallas end zone by Issiac Holt with 1:11 to play to preserve the victory.

"This was a disheartening loss," said

U.S. claims Ryder Cup

Associated Press

KIAWAH ISLAND, S.C. — The United States broke Europe's six-year Ryder Cup reign in dramatic fashion Sunday, winning the title when Germany's Bernhard Langer missed a 5-foot putt on the final stroke of the final hole.

The miss allowed Hale Irwin, playing against Langer in the 11th and final head-to-head matchup, to take a half-point and give the Americans a 14½-13½ victory.

After three days of play, the Ryder Cup came down to the final green. Langer's putt went right of the cup and the Americans jumped for joy, hugging and waving American flags as they congratulated each other. The crowd surrounding the green began chanting "USA, USA!"

After 10 matches Sunday over the windswept dunes and marshes of the Ocean Course, the Americans led 14-13 and needed only a tie to win the cup.

The Europeans needed to win the final match to gain a 14-14 tie and retain the cup, just as they did two years ago at The Belfry in England.

Irwin, a three-time U.S. Open champ, was 1-up with three holes to go and appeared in control. But Langer, a former Masters champion, dropped a 6-foot par-saving putt on No. 15 and stayed alive.

On the water-guarded, par-3 17th, Langer again was in trouble. Both he and and Irwin were in the fringe on their tee shots.

Irwin three-putted from 18 feet, missing an 8-footer, and Langer got

Harrelson ousted in New York

■ Frank Cashen's last move as Mets' GM is to fire field manager.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — In a surprise only by its timing, the New York Mets fired manager Bud Harrelson on Sunday in Frank Cashen's final act as general manager.

Harrelson was informed of his dismissal late Saturday after noon, and didn't show up at Shea Stadium as the Mets played their final home game of the season. The players were informed shortly before 11 a.m. by Cashen and Al Harazin, who will take over as GM at the end of the season.

Harrelson

One Met front-office official said Harrelson was surprised by the news and did not take it well. Harrelson was offered the chance to meet with players, media and coaches, but declined. He did not answer his phone.

The Mets named third base coach Mike Cubbage as interim manager, and he is considered a candidate to take over on a full-time basis.

"It's a nice opportunity," Cubbage said. "Yes, I definitely want to be considered for the job and I've made that known. They know what I can do and the decision is based on that rather than seven days."

However, a front-office official said Cubbage is unlikey to get the job.

The Mets said Harrelson, 47, would be offered a position in the organization.

"I hope he will stay with us but he has the option to go elsewhere," Cashen said.

Harrelson's firing closed a weekend of change in the Mets' management. On Friday, Cashen announced he was stepping down as GM with Harazin making all baseball decisions starting Oct. 7.

Cashen said on Friday that he would decide Harrelson's future within 48 hours after the end of the season.

In an interview late last week, Harrelson said there was an 8 in 10 chance he would be back next year. But that was clearly wishful thinking.

"Buddy has been on the defensive and it was cruel and inhuman treatment to have him being grilled every day," Cashen said. "I would have made the same decision even if I was staying on as general manager."

Harazin will make the decision on the new manager, and it's expected within two or three weeks. Among the leading candidates are Dallas Green, Dave Duncan, Clint Hurdle and Rene Lachemann.

There have also been reports out of Chicago that White Sox manager Jeff Torborg is at odds with the front office. If Torborg leaves, he would move to the top of the Mets' list.

"I have a list of requirements," Harazin said. "I don't want to talk about anyone specifically."

It's Twins

■ Minnesota clinches the AL West title when the White Sox fall to Seattle.

Associated Press

TORONTO — The Minnesota Twins became the first major league team to go from worst to first, clinching the AL West on Sunday when second-place Chicago lost to Seattle.

The Twins failed to wrap up the title earlier in the afternoon, losing 2-1 to Toronto. But when the White Sox fell 2-1 to Seattle, Minnesota won, anyway.

Minnesota rebounded from a season in which it went 74-88 and finished in last place. No team had ever bounced back to finish first, but the Twins did it in taking their first division championship since winning the World Series in 1987. Atlanta, meanwhile, is trying to do the same thing in the NL West.

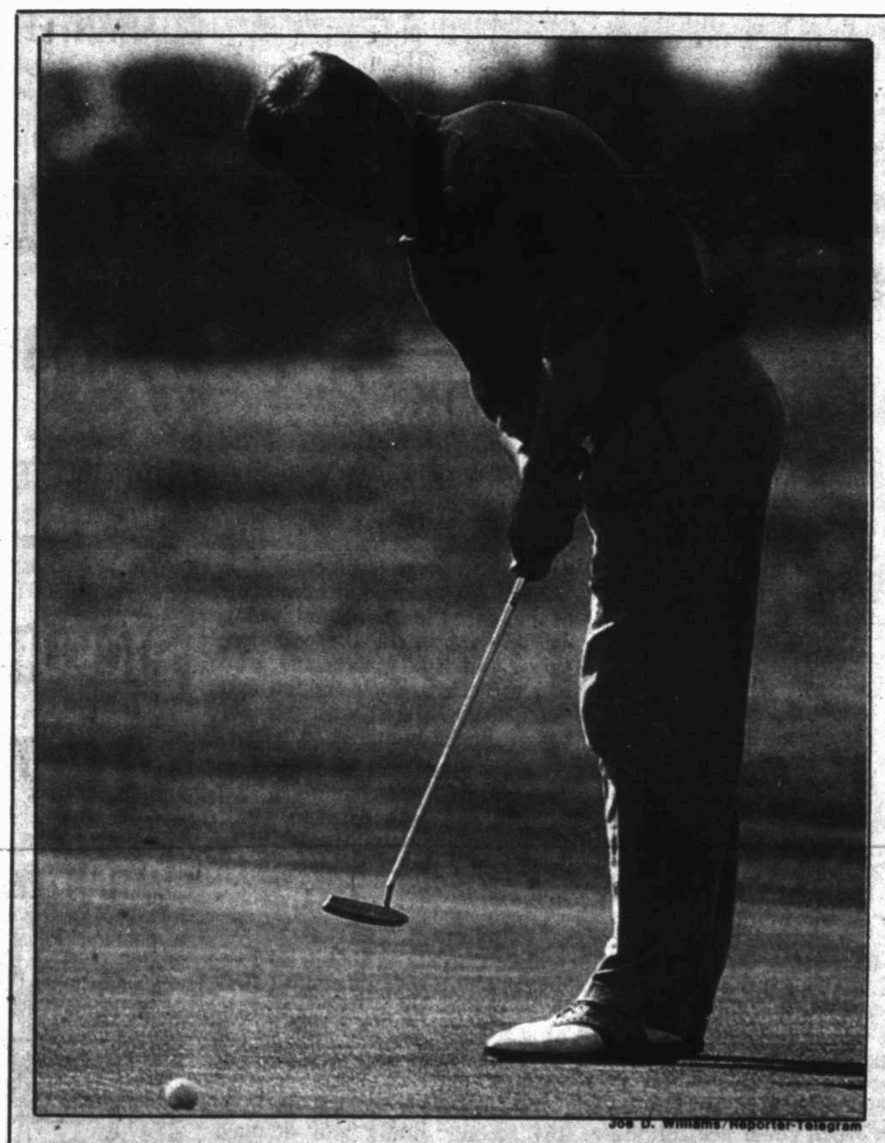

The Twins will face either Toronto or Boston in the playoffs, starting Oct. 8 at the Metrodome. The AL East-leading Blue Jays sliced their magic number to four against Boston, which was visiting Milwaukee.

Scott Erickson, hoping to become baseball's first 20-game winner, was outdueled by Toronto's Todd Stottlemyre.

Stottlemyre (14-8), making his 100th major-league start, allowed four hits in 6 1-3 innings for his first victory since Sept. 4. Following Gene Larkin's leadoff double in the seventh, he got great defensive support.

First, center fielder Devon White's leaping catch at the fence robbed Mike Pagliarulo. After Mike Timlin relieved and surrendered Paul Sorrento's RBI pinch single, third baseman Kelly Gruber made a nice stop on Greg Gagne's hard grounder. Pinch-hitter Randy Midland Lee graduate and 1991 men's city champion Larry Bryan watches a putt roll in on his way to winning individual top honors in the first Midland-Odessa Inter-City Golf Championship Sunday.

Midland triumphs

Even when Larry Bryan, Jr., is in trouble, he somehow finds a way to win.

Such was the case Sunday, when Bryan dug himself a seemingly deep hole only two holes into the final round, but then recovered to win individual honors and help lead Midland to a team victory over Odessa in the first ever Inter-City Golf Championship.

Bryan shot a 3-over par, 74 on Sunday to finish the three-day tournament with a four-under par, 209 for 54 holes. In the championship flight, Bryan was joined by fellow Midlanders Steve Whiteside and Bill Baker in the top four. Whiteside finished at 5-over, 218 for the tourney, tied with Odessan Marshall Morgan. Baker was a stroke behind at 6-over, 219.

As a team, Midland completed the event with a 5,793 team total; Odessa ended at 5,941. Midland defeated Odessa in each of the five flights to win the overall stroke count by 148 shots.

Saints drop Falcons, remain unbeaten

Associated Press

ATLANTA — The New Orleans Saints completed the first perfect September in their 25-year history with a smothering defense.

Bobby Hebert threw a pair of touchdown passes to Floyd Turner, but an unyielding defense was the key Sunday in the Saints' 27-6 victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

Rickey Jackson was the leader, accounting for three of the five sacks on Atlanta's Chris Miller and recovering one of two fumbles that led to Morten Andersen field goals.

Dalton Hilliard completed the rout for the Saints with 8:36 left, skirting right end and racing 65 yards for a touchdown.

The victory was the seventh in a row over two seasons for the Saints (5-0) and was their eighth in nine game with their biggest NFC West rival.

Raiders 12, 49ers 6

LOS ANGELES — Jeff Jaeger kicked four field goals and the Los Angeles Raiders held off a late San Francisco charge.

The Raiders bottled up the San Francisco passing game and held Jerry Rice without a reception until the fourth quarter, but were hanging on for dear life at the end.

A 25-yard field goal by Mike Cofer with 3:54 left drew the 49ers within six points. San Francisco had gotten the ball with 6:23 left at its 30-yard line when Charles Haley recovered a fumble by Steve Smith.

Bills 35, Bears 20

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Jim Kelly and the Bills took 28 minutes to realize they were home after two lacklustre weeks on the road.

Then they awoke like no other NFL team can, scoring on their next three possessions over a 10-minute span and going on to hand Chicago its first loss.

The Bills, who scored 87 points in their first two home games but just 41 in two games on the road, were limited to just 38 yards in their first five possessions by the Bears.

Cards 24, Patriots 10

TEMPE, Ariz. — Tom Tupa, shaking off the stigma of being a career-long backup, passed for a career-high 312 yards and three touchdowns as Phoenix beat New England.

Tupa inherited the job in the preseason, when Timm Rosenbach went out with a knee injury. Making his fifth straight start and the seventh of his four-year career, Tupa hit Ernie Jones with a 17-yard scoring strike and Johnny Johnson with a 15-yarder — both in the second quarter — and Ricky Proehl with a 62-yard pass-run in the fourth.

Chiefs 14, Chargers 13

SAN DIEGO — The Kansas City Chiefs went 2½ quarters without a score, then beat San Diego as the red zone became the dead zone for the Chargers.

Christian Okoye scored on a 1-yard run three plays into the game and Steve DeBerg threw an 11-yard touchdown pass to Robb Thomas for Chiefs (3-2).

San Diego (0-5) trailed 14-10 and had third-and-goal on the Chiefs' 5 with 10 minutes left. But Neil Smith sacked John Friesz for a 7-yard loss and Friesz lost 7 more yards on a fumble. John Carney then kicked a 37-yard field goal.

NFL Roundup

Rams 23, Packers 21

ANAHEIM, Calif. — The Los Angeles Rams, a team badly in need of some spark, got two big plays from special teams veteran Paul Butcher, scoring two touchdowns in seven seconds downing Green Bay.

Blair Kiel, taking over after starting quarterback Don Majkowski went out with a shoulder injury in the second quarter, rallied the Packers to two late touchdowns, but the Rams held on to the ball for the final 4:49.

The Rams (2-3), trailed 7-3, but moved ahead with 17 points in the last 2:41 of the first half.

After the second of three field goals by Tony Zendjas pulled Los Angeles within 7-6, Butcher, a 5-year NFL veteran who's started just one game, set up the Rams' first touchdown when he recovered a fumble by the Packers' Allen Rice at the Green Bay 15.

Jets 41, Dolphins 23

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Chris Burkett blocked a Reggie Roby punt, the first punt block in the NFL this year, and returned it 11 yards for a touchdown as New York beat Miami.

The touchdown was the Jets' second in a 26-second span just before halftime, and the first time in 12 years New York had blocked a kick and turned it into a score.

Ironically, the last time it happened, Sept 30, 1979, was also against Miami.

New York had just taken a 14-10 lead with a 10 play, 62-yard drive ended by Brad Baxter's 2-yard plunge into the end zone at 14:22 of the second quarter.

Seahawks 31, Colts 3

SEATTLE — Dan McGwire's debut couldn't have been much easier.

The 6-foot, 8-inch McGwire became the tallest quarterback in NFL history, but only got to attempt seven passes as Seattle routed winless Indianapolis.

McGwire, a first-round draft pick from San Diego State, did little more than hand off to his backs as Seattle (2-3) took a 17-3 halftime lead. He completed three passes for 27 yards and was intercepted once before Jeff Kemp replaced him in the second half.

Kemp threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to Tommy Kane in the third quarter and also directed Seattle on a 16-play, 95-yard scoring drive capped by Derrick Fenner's 10-yard run.

Lions 31, Buccaneers 3

PONTIAC, Mich. — Barry Sanders is feeling better each week and the Lions are playing better, too.

Sanders scored three touchdowns for the first time in his career and Detroit won for the fourth straight week.

Tampa Bay, the only winless team in the NFC, gave up two touchdowns in the first 10:14 as it fell to 0-5.

Sanders had his third consecutive 100-yard game, rushing for 160 yards in 27 carries. He had touchdowns of 7, 1 and 69 yards — the longest of his career.

Rodney Peete, who missed two days of practice last week to heal from rib and hip injuries, completed 12 of 22 passes for 159 yards. The Lions' defense helped by recovering two fumbles and intercepting two passes.

Tampa quarterback Chris Chandler, who completed only 10 of 26 passes for 64 yards with one interception, was forced from the game late in the third quarter with a concussion.

Broncos 13, Vikings 6

MINNEAPOLIS — Gaston Green ran for 158 yards and John Elway scored the go-ahead touchdown on a 17-yard draw play as Denver continued to rebound with a victory over Minnesota.

Green, playing in place of All-Pro Bobby Humphrey, a contract holdout, had seven runs of 11 yards or more. The previous week against San Diego, he gained 127 yards and scored three touchdowns.

Denver, which finished last in the AFC West last year at 5-11, improved its AFC West-leading record to 4-1.

Minnesota (2-3), which also was last in 1990 after winning a division title, continued to struggle with its new one-back offense.

New York coach Ray Handley. "Now we need help. But you can still lose three games and go to the Super Bowl. We have dug ourselves a hole."

Baker's diving catch of a 19-yard touchdown pass from Hostetler handed the Giants a 16-14 lead with 5:41 to go.

Replay official Bill Stanley ruled the catch was good after he studied Baker's fingertip catch just inches off the Texas Stadium carpet.

"Troy did a great job of bringing us back," Johnson said. "He made some big plays. You have to make big plays to beat a team like the Giants. It's the best team effort we ever had in a spot like that."

Johnson added "Aikman has matured greatly. He is exceptional."

Aikman said the victory proves the Cowboys have arrived.

"There is no question that this is the biggest victory," Aikman said. "It was one of the teams we needed to beat to establish ourselves. I just hope I can play here long enough where a victory over the Giants won't be considered a novelty."

The game-winning 84-yard drive took eight plays and 3:28 on the clock with Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor missing because of a torn ligament in his left thumb.

"L.T. hurt his thumb but he says he'll be able to play next week," Handley said. "It's pretty painful."

Aikman hit 20 of 27 passes for 277 yards while Hostetler connected on 28 of 34 for 368 yards.

"We moved the ball all over the field and didn't have anything to show for it," Hostetler said. "We don't want to panic yet but this thing is getting close."

The Giants defense felt a big letdown over not being able to stop Aikman.

"Our offense played a helluva game but the defense didn't play well, we didn't play our game," said Giants cornerback Everson Walls. "Dallas has come a long way back."

Larry Horton returned a fumble he forced 20 yards for a third period touchdown to give the Cowboys a 14-3 lead.

MIDLAND: Tall City wins Inter-City Golf crown by 148 shots

Friday and Saturday, and today," Bryan said, commenting on how his play slipped in the final round.

Take away Bryan's triple-bogey eight on the par-5 second hole (No. 20 at Hogan Park), and Bryan would've ended at even par for the day.

Two unplayable lies led to a three-over on that second hole, and briefly, all three of Bryan's playing partners saw an opportunity to catch the Midland Lee graduate.

"I had a chance to pick up four shots on that hole had I birdied," Whiteside said. Instead, the former Midland Men's City Champ parred, and trailed Bryan by four shot[illegible]th 16 holes to play.

It was after Bryan's triple that his luck began to turn. Four holes later, on the par 5 over the water near the entrance to Hogan Park, Bryan landed his second shot in the water and was forced to take his third penalty stroke of the front nine. Instead of giving his playing partners another opening, though, Bryan chipped on and one-putted for par and an amazing recovery.

On the back nine, Hogan's first through 10th holes Sunday, the Abilene Christian University student and this year's Midland city champion, played consistently with one bogey and one birdie.

"I would've liked to have played better for the last round," Bryan said. "But I was able to regroup. It was good to win."

Bryan and other members of the foursome said several factors contributed to the upturn in the scores. Most notable, though, it was the quickness of the greens, the traffic on those greens and a healthy wind which finally subsided about 15 minutes after the tournament's end.

"I know I didn't help the team much by shooting an 80," Charles Roberts said. Roberts, however, was five or six inches away from a 76, as four out of five of his putts which opened the back nine lipped out or stopped short of the hole by a turn of the ball. Roberts finished at 12-over, 225, after an opening round 69 Friday.

"Those green's had everybody frantic," Roberts said. "Larry walked up to me on No. 8 and said it was the scariest green he'd seen all day."

"Putting," Whiteside added, "is the key. When it's all said and done, you can look at this tournament, you can look at the Ryder Cup, but when it's all said and done, putting is the key to playing."

Or as Baker noted, Bryan played well in the crunch.

"When he was in trouble," Baker said, "he'd get it up and down and make the par putts when he had to. He played very well."

Total team standings in the Midland-Odessa Inter-City Golf Championship (Each team scored the low five rounds in each flight each day to arrive at the daily and final totals):

Dodgers stay a game in front

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — If the Los Angeles Dodgers go on to win the NL West, it may be as a result of the strangest play of the year.

Los Angeles maintained its one-game lead over Atlanta on Sunday night by scoring two runs in the bottom of the ninth inning to beat San Francisco 3-2. It wasn't your everyday rally, either.

With the Giants holding a 2-1 lead, reliever Dave Righetti (2-7) gave up a leadoff single to Mike Scioscia and Jose Offerman came on as a pinch runner.

Pinch-hitter Stan Javier then singled on a 3-2 pitch, sending Offerman to third on a hit-and-run play. Brett Butler followed with a hard grounder to second baseman Robby Thompson, who threw home to get Offerman on a fielder's choice.

Offerman, however, was able to get in a run down and the runners advanced to second and third.

Mike Sharperson followed with a weak broken-bat grounder toward third. The ball and part of the bat, incredibly, arrived in the infield at the same time. The ball took a short hop and was hit by the bat — again — allowing Javier to score the tying run.

National

Braves 6, Astros 5

HOUSTON — The Atlanta Braves completed a three-game sweep the hard way, beating Houston in 13 innings and staying a single game behind Los Angeles.

Ron Gant walked to start the 13th and raced home with the go-ahead run off Mark Portugal (10-11) on Brian Hunter's double to left.

Pirates 6, Expos 3

PITTSBURGH — Barry Bonds and Curtis Wilkerson hit solo homers and Bob Walk won for the first time since July 14 as Pittsburgh beat Montreal.

Bonds broke a 2-2 tie in the fifth with his 25th home run and 111th RBI.

Cubs 5, Cardinals 3

ST. LOUIS — Rick Sutcliffe overcame wildness to win for the fourth time in five decisions and Ryne Sandberg drove in two runs as Chicago defeated St. Louis.

The victory kept the Cardinals from clinching second place in the NL East. St. Louis already has clinched a tie.

Mets 4, Phillies 3

NEW YORK — Only hours after Bud Harrelson was fired as manager, the New York Mets beat Philadelphia under interim manger Mike Cubbage.

The Mets announced Harrelson's dismissal at a morning news conference in a move that came only as a surprise by its timing.

The Mets were 74-80 under Harrelson this year, heading for their worst finish since 1983.

Reds 8, Padres 1

CINCINNATI — Paul O'Neill's first sacrifice fly of the season tied the game in the sixth and Chris Sabo followed with a three-run homer that pushed Cincinnati past San Diego.

WEST: Seattle knocks off Sox, 2-1

(From 1C)

Bush got an infield hit, but Jarvis Brown, running for Sorrento, rounded third too far and was thrown out by catcher Pat Borders to end the threat.

David Wells pitched the eighth inning and Duane Ward earned his 20th save with a perfect ninth.

M' 2, White Sox 1

The White Sox finished a surprising second last year, and hoped to do even better this season. But their loss to Seattle killed their hopes and handed Minnesota the AL West title.

The Sox pulled within one game of division-leading Minnesota in mid-August, yet never could overtake the Twins.

The White Sox, playing their first season in the new Comiskey Park, have drawn a team-record 2,833,211 fans. A crowd of 33,096 watched the club's elimination.

Orioles 7, Tigers 4

DETROIT — Hot-hitting Cal Ripken homered twice and drove in four more runs as Baltimore beat Detroit, eliminating the Tigers from AL East contention.

Ripken went 4-for-5 and increased his season totals to 34 home runs and 114 RBIs, both career highs. In his last five games, he is 12-for-22 with 13 RBIs, three homers, one triple and two doubles.

A' 19, Rangers 5

OAKLAND, Calif. — Rickey Henderson went 5-for-5 and drove in four runs and Jose Canseco got four hits and drove in four runs to lead Oakland to a rout.

The Athletics led 12-1 after three innings and 18-3 after the fifth. Oakland tied the record for the most runs against the Rangers, who avoided their worst loss in their 20-year Texas history when rookie Donald Harris hit a two-run homer in the ninth.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 4

MILWAUKEE — The Boston Red Sox blew it again Sunday, fading to 4½ games behind AL East-leading Toronto.

Boston wasted an early 4-0 lead and lost for the sixth time in seven games when relief ace Jeff Reardon gave up a two-run double to Dale Sveum in the eighth inning. Earlier in the day, Toronto beat AL West champion Minnesota 2-1.

Royals 8, Angels 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Rookie Tim Spehr hit his first career grand slam and Kevin Appier won his career-high 13th game, leading Kansas City over California.

Spehr hit his second home run of the season in the second inning off Jim Abbott (17-11). Todd Benzinger and Mike Macfarlane, who had three hits, each singled and Sean Berry walked with one out before Spehr homered to left.

Appier (13-9) matched his lifetime best with 10 strikeouts in 7 1-3 innings and won for the ninth time in 11 decisions. He left after giving up a two-run single to Junior Felix.

Indians 5, Yankees 2

CLEVELAND — Rookie Ed Taubensee had three hits and his first three major-league RBIs and Eric King won for the first time in his last nine starts as the Cleveland Indians beat New York.

Taubensee hit an RBI single in the second inning and doubled home two runs in the fourth, ruining Alan Mills' first big-league start. Mills (1-1) allowed five runs and five hits in 3⅓ innings.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 30, 1991

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: You have an opportunity to make big money. Being in the right place at the right time is the key to new professional and social success. Tend to practical matters in November. December is starred for romance. Forging an alliance with someone creative in February or March of 1992 will bring tremendous career gains. Support from your mate will be crucial early next summer. You can make a lucrative real estate investment in August. Watch your popularity soar next fall!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: singers Johnny Mathis and Marilyn McCoo, actresses Angie Dickinson and Deborah Kerr.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Positive forces continue to operate. You see eye-to-eye with those closest to your heart. Big financial news will land on your doorstep. Keep pace with today's interesting developments.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Confidential matters will come into clearer focus today. Use your verbal skills to reap a generous reward. Initiate new projects. Your enthusiasm is contagious!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A partnership could be today's hot topic. A candid discussion of thoughts and desires could foster a new agreement. The choices you make now are made for the right reasons. Harmony prevails.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your ability to work diligently is your saving grace now. Although there are upsets, upheavals and uproars, your role is that of the builder. Romance soars to new heights.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Use diplomacy when negotiating with an employer or influential people. You may notice a new note in a love song. Deeper rapport is likely if you do more listening than talking. Be attentive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A day full of promise lies ahead! Good luck will affect your finances as well as your love life. Join the laughter brigade. A sense of humor makes you popular with your co-workers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your communication skills empower you today. Work behind the scenes and trust your ESP. Lunching with influential people proves enlightening. Keep your own counsel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Candid chats with friends or groups could result in a wish coming true. Replace chancy techniques with more conservative methods in business. Romance may have to take a backseat to your goals.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Imaginative money ideas will benefit from your detail-oriented approach. Your keen powers of analysis impress those in the know. Be careful not to break the bank trying to impress a romantic partner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Speak from the heart to touch a tender chord with your loved ones. Romance flourishes when secrecy is cast aside. Entertaining at home suits your conversational style. Get in touch with a parent.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You are eager to make improvements today, especially where your home and finances are concerned. Handling domestic matters privately proves most effective. Be more aggressive about promoting a pet project.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): By working the communication lines today, you can discover bargains or a new source of funds. Do not sit home and vegetate — it pays to circulate. Romance looks awesome! Be affectionate.

ANSWERS TO WEEKLY BRIDGE QUIZ

Q.1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠9 ♡763 ◇AK10742 ♣A106
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	?

What do you bid now?
A.—You know where you have a playable spot, so why waste time? You have at least an eight-card fit in partner's major suit and your hand is well suited to hearts—a singleton, three trumps and three fast tricks. Jump to four hearts. If partner makes a move toward slam, you would be delighted to cooperate.

Q.2—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ10 ♡KJ1082 ◇A9 ♣AKJ
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—You certainly want to be in game, so it might seem that four hearts is the logical bid. However, there is a chance that partner has a balanced hand with three hearts, so we would venture three no trump. Partner is free to correct to four hearts with distributional values.

Q.3—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ105 ♡AK ◇AKJ7 ♣AK
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
2 ♠	Pass	2 NT	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass

What action do you take?
A.—Not only does partner not have much, he doesn't have three spades or four diamonds. However, he might have the queen of diamonds, which is all you need for 12 tricks. Bid four no trump. That's natural, and tells partner you have 10 tricks in your own hand. If North does have the key queen, he should recognize its importance and take further action.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ ♡Q9 ◇109852 ♣J1053
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♠	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—This is a question of hand evaluation. While you have only seven points, the three honor cards you have in the major suits are almost the equivalent of aces. We would raise to four spades without thinking twice.

Q.5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠8 ♡95 ◇Q643 ♣AQJ1092
The bidding has proceeded:

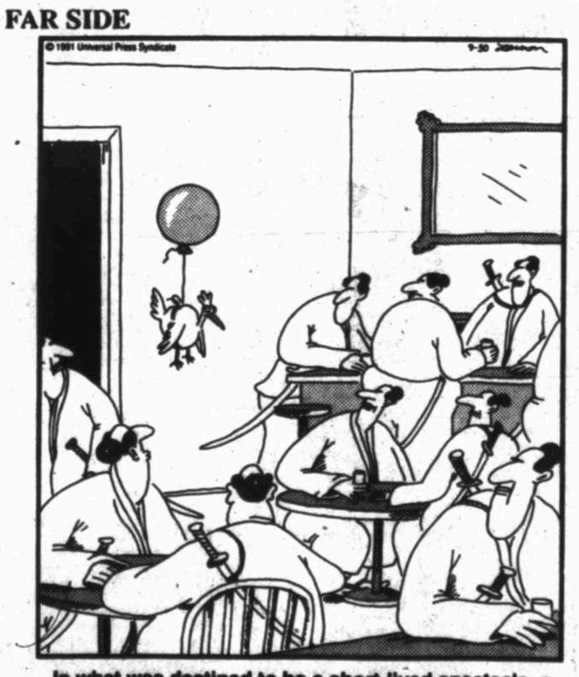

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
2 NT	Pass	?

What action do you take?
A.—You made a sub-minimum two-over-one response because of the good, long club suit. Your primary duty now is to complete the description of your hand by rebidding three clubs.

Q.6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:

♠8 ♡AKQ10652 ◇J965 ♣6
What is your opening bid?
A.—You have a powerful offensive hand with little defense. You expect to make seven heart tricks and a diamond. According to the Rule of Two and Three that suggests an opening bid of four hearts at this vulnerability.

Fred Dryer builds 'no frills' 10,000-square-foot home

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Fred Dryer, former star of the television police drama "Hunter," is building a "California Spanish" mansion.

Dryer

Dryer, who played professional football for the Los Angeles Rams and New York Giants before becoming an actor, said the 10,000-square-foot home in Beverly Hills will have five bedrooms and seven baths.

"It won't be all frilled up," Dryer said. "It won't have a bowling alley or a shooting range. Everything will be very usable."

He said he expects the home to be completed in January.

"Hunter" enjoyed a seven-year run on NBC before it was canceled last spring. Dryer then formed a company to produce several NBC movies in which he'll star.

NEW YORK — Richard Pryor's roasting sparked some incendiary humor. Said master of ceremonies Robin Williams: "It seems strange to have a roast for someone who did it to himself."

About 1,000 people, including Chevy Chase, Joan Rivers, Dick Gregory, Marsha Warfield, Bill Murray and Gene Wilder, gathered for the roast Friday at a New York hotel.

"We're here to honor a man who proved that black is beautiful — and flammable," Williams said. "A man who became the Olympic Torch. Truly the hottest man in show business. A man who never had a drug problem — if you mean by that a problem getting drugs."

Pryor was severely burned in 1980 while freebasing cocaine. He had bypass surgery in May and had to be helped to the podium during the tribute.

"I've never seen so many white people in one room who didn't want to hurt me," Pryor told the crowd.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Don Schlitz has been honored for the fourth straight time as country music songwriter of the year by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

He was cited at an awards banquet Saturday for writing seven top songs during the past year: "Battle Hymn of Love," "Guardian Angel," "I Could Be Persuaded," "I Watched It All (on My Radio)," "My Arms Stay Open All Night," "Richest Man on Earth" and "When It's Gone."

Named country song of the year was "Friends in Low Places," by Earl Bud Lee. It was recorded by Garth Brooks and is a finalist Wednesday for Country Music Association single record of the year.

CHIANG MAI, Thailand — Japan's imperial couple toured a 500-year-old Buddhist temple Sunday and stopped to ask ordinary people about their lives.

Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko were escorted through the main room of the Wat Photharam Maha Vihan, known as the Monastery with Seven Pagodas.

Outside, they walked past women and children seated on mats and waving small Japanese and Thai flags. Both stopped to chat.

"He asked me what I do and I told him I am a teacher," said Mrs. Kallaya Sunilahong, principal of an elementary school. "Then he asked me where I teach and I said at the small school behind the temple."

Akihito and Michiko have spoken with a number of local residents during their tour, upsetting their tight schedule.

Akihito will leave Monday for Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, the second stop on an 11-day trip that also will take him to Indonesia. This is his first trip outside Japan since he ascended the Chrysanthemum Throne last November following the death of his father, Emperor Hirohito.

MINNEAPOLIS — Prince fans are meeting this week in his hometown, but they're not expecting the royal treatment from the reclusive rock star.

Prince

"If he does anything, he won't say until the last minute," Eileen Murton, who came from England to stage the convention.

"No one expects anything," said Murton, 42, who publishes a Prince fan magazine named Controversy and owns more than 1,000 pieces of Prince memorabilia and recordings.

Many convention activities will be held at Glam Slam, the downtown nightclub owned by Prince's bodyguard-turned-manager, Gilbert Davison.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Joe Simon gave up his Grammy-winning career as a rhythm and blues artist because God wasn't in his life.

Simon, who became a minister four years ago, won a Grammy award in 1970 for his hit single "The Chokin' Kind" but said success was unfulfilling.

"I had a vocal gift, but I used it for Satan, for the world. That was then, and I see it as a shame."

NOTICE TO DEPOSITORS OF SOUTHWEST FEDERAL SAVINGS ASSOCIATION

The Director of the Office of Thrift Supervision of the Department of the Treasury of the United States ("OTS"), by order dated July 26, 1991, appointed the Resolution Trust Corporation ("RTC") as sole receiver ("Receiver") for Southwest Federal Savings Association, Dallas, Texas, ("Association"). The Receiver took possession of the Association on July 26, 1991, and succeeded to all of the Association's rights, titles, powers and privileges. Pursuant to the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 ("FIRREA"), the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation ("FDIC") is the exclusive manager for the Receiver of said Association.

The insured portions of the deposit accounts at the main office and forty-five (45) branches have been transferred from the Association to two agent banks: Kilgore Federal Savings and Loan Association ("Kilgore") and Guaranty Federal Savings Bank ("Guaranty").

The insured portion of all deposit accounts that were originally opened at the Association's offices known as:

will be paid out to depositors by mailing claim checks for the insured portion to their address of record.

Depositors with transferred accounts are further notified that the Receiver has the option to disaffirm, under the provisions of 12 U.S.C. 1821 (e) (1), all deposit contracts as of the date of this Notice. Withdrawals may be made by depositors, without payment of a contractual early withdrawal penalty, commencing the day after July 26, 1991.

If you have any questions about your account, please contact Customer Service Representatives at Kilgore or Guaranty, as your account may dictate. Questions regarding claim checks being mailed to depositors that are not received by Friday August 2, may be directed to the Claims Department at the Resolution Trust Corporation as Receiver for Southwest Federal Savings Association at (800) 233-3805.

If you have any questions relating to loans that are secured by deposit accounts not being transferred to one of the agent banks, as stated above, please call the Claims Department at the telephone number listed above.

Pearl Harbor: A Special Commemorative Edition

On this, the 50th anniversary of the "date which will live in infamy," The Associated Press commemorates the events at Pearl Harbor with a special publication.

This 192-page hard-cover edition, PEARL HARBOR, details the planning and execution of the surprise attack on the U.S. base on Dec. 7, 1941 — with 150 photographs and graphics.

How were the Japanese able to carry out the secret mission? Did the Allies know of the attack in advance? What was the Purple code?

All the facts are put in perspective in this book, available now. Just fill out the coupon below for your copy.
