NOBODY'S BUSINESS

BY JULIAN CAPERS JR.

Austin—Business in Texas—both big and little—today faces the brightest outlook in 10 years. With the national election definitely behind it, with returning prosperity reflected by every recognized index, and with the national administration already at work toward bringing the national budget into balance within another year, the national picture is the brightest since 1929.

But equally important to Texas business, is the state picture. Freed for the first time in a decade of threats of a revolutionary revision of the state tax system, with a governor in office for another two years who is firmly pledged against any new or increased taxes, an era of industrial expansion and development is expected by leading experts to follow in the wake of the Centennial year, which has focused national attention upon Texas.

The old age pension situation apparently has been adequately taken care of by the omnibus tax bill passed by the recent special session. The general fund of the state has a deficit somewhat above normal, but seasonal tax collections soon will begin reducing it to reasonable proportions. The Confederate pension fund, surrounded by constitutional limitations, is behind, but is on a basis that will bring it out of the "red" eventually. All other state funds are in excellent condition. The highway department remains on a cash basis, and will begin next week on the new 1936-37 federal-state program, by letting contracts for $2,400,000 as the first step on a program of closing gaps in cardinal highways that will call for expenditure of $15,500,000 during the fiscal year.

Blended Tax System

A "blended" tax system, in which sales taxes on gasoline, cigarettes and other commodities, substantial natural resources taxes on oil, gas and sulphur and ad valorem taxes on real property other than small homesteads, all share equitably in the cost of government has been evolved. Neither the sales tax advocates, who would tax everything sold, nor the "tax the rich" adherents, who would put all the load on oil and gas, nor those who would remove all taxes from the land, have been completely successful. But all are reasonably well satisfied, and no revolutionary policy of state taxation that will upset present operating estimates of business, need be feared for the next two years, observers here are convinced.

Pension Howl Coming

The new house of representatives, with 75 new members, 36 of them having defeated incumbents, and many making their race on a more liberal pension platform, is expected to raise considerable howl for more liberal pension payments in January—particularly when their constituents who are going to be cut off under the new deliberalized law, begin complaining. But the senate has demonstrated a conservative and commonsense viewpoint on pensions. And there will not be sufficient change in the complexion of the new senate to upset that attitude. The 45th legislature will have time to develop some statesmanship. It will be able to deal at length with such topics as social security, governmental planning, improvement in governmental methods, advertising to develop Texas industrially and as a tourist resort, regulation of quasi-public businesses, moral questions such as the gambling laws, horse and dog racing, etc. It will not be confronted with a more or less constant financial crisis in the state's affairs, such as its predecessor, the 44th was.

Voters Change Sentiment

The voters of Texas apparently have undergone a decided change

Conservation Payments Coming

College Station—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration has announced that initial payments under the 1936 Agricultural Conservation program will soon be started to producers in Texas and the other states of the Southern region, according to A. L. Smith, secretary of the State Conservation Committee.

There are two classes of these payments, Class 1 to be made on acreage diverted from soil-depleting crops, and Class 2 to be made on certain soil building practices. It is estimated that the payments in Texas will amount to approximately $37,322,435, though, because of incomplete figures on compliance at this time the final payments may vary from this amount.

Producers in the Southern region will receive 90 per cent of the Class 1 payments and 100 per cent of the Class 2 payments, H. R. Tolley, A. A. A. administrator, states. An additional payment will be made after the exact extent of participation is determined.

"Complete information on participation will not be available for several weeks," Mr. Tolley said, "although it is known that the number of farmers taking part in the program is in the neighborhood of 4,000,000. This is substantially in excess of participation for any one year under the old crop reduction."

"From the standpoint of sound business procedure, therefore, it was deemed advisable to take advantage of the safeguards provided by the program in order to avoid possible deficits, and, at the same time, avoid holding up a large share of the applications for payments until all of them are completed."

Rev. A. C. Hardin and family of Post visited his mother, Mrs. H. H. Hardin, and other relatives here Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Hallmark returned home Thursday from Abilene where she had been for treatment.

in sentiment regarding the state constitution, and political observers here are beginning to wonder if the time has come to consider the writing of a new document to expound the fundamental law. Formerly, the voters voted down good and bad amendments without mercy. The adoption of all 6 of the amendments in last week's election indicates a decided tendency in the opposite direction. An interesting sidelight was the heavy vote polled in the large cities for the amendment to limit the number of house members from heavily populated districts. Several members of the legislature from large cities expressed amazement. Critics of the legislature explained it by declaring the legislature in recent years has fallen into such disrepute with the people that the people were quite willing to restrict house membership on almost any basis.

Depression Ends For These

Gov. James V. Allred, Atty. Gen. Bill McCraw, State Comptroller George Sheppard, Treasurer Charley Lockhart, Land Commissioner J. H. Walker and Secretary of State B. P. Matoch, will soon be able to bid the late depression a not-to-fond farewell as a result of salary raises voted Nov. 3. Allred's salary, after his new term begins Jan. 19, will be $10,000 a month; Lockhart, Sheppard, Matoch, and Walker will draw $500 monthly; and McCraw $10,000 a year. All but the governor's increase are effective after the official canvass, Nov. 19. Bill McDonald will succeed Walker in January, all the others remaining in office another two years, except Matoch, who holds an appointive place. Reports current are that J. B. Ford, member of the house will be named secretary of State next January by Allred.

Eighteen years ago the Armistice bringing to a close the great World War was signed. Today a portion of the world is again at war and another large portion is on the brink of war. We are thankful that America has been able to steer clear of trouble and we hope will continue to be clear of it.

ONE TRUCK'S WILD RIDE

Kansas City, Kans.—A 15-ton truck on a wild rampage finally came to a stop at this hardware store. A part of the damaged wall of the building rests on the truck, which cannot be removed until workmen brace the structure. Such destruction of property, particularly by irresponsible itinerant truckers, is the reason why safety councils nationwide are seeking more stringent laws thoroughly regulating motor transports.

CENTENNIAL TRIP MADE LAST WEEK

This editor and family were among the number from Loraine who took advantage of the low fares to the Centennial last week. About sixty school children and parents made the trip. The train left here at 9:30 Thursday morning and arrived in Dallas a little before five. The return trip was started at 1:30 Saturday and arrived here at 8:30.

Everyone who made the trip enjoyed every bit of the trip. The Centennial itself has not been over estimated. It is wonderful and school children especially should see it if possible before closing date November 29. The railway will make the same rate any week end if as many as 25 will go.

The Cavalcade of Texas is one of the greatest shows we have ever seen and when seen at night is one of the most beautiful things ever produced. All of the buildings are wonderful and the exhibits in them are beyond imagination.

If you have not been to the Centennial by all means go if you can for we feel sure that you will not be disappointed.

HAVE OPENED CONOCO FILLING STATION

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bristow of Stonewall County have moved to Loraine and have opened the Conoco Service Station. The station was formerly known as the Magnolia Stationette.

COLORADO JAIL FULLER THAN FOR MANY MONTHS

Less than a week ago Colorado boasted an empty jail and a clean jury slate. During the past week-end, however, the Mitchell county jail was fuller than at any time in recent months, 20 arrests being made Saturday night and Sunday. Charges included gambling drunkenness, and street brawling, according to Sheriff R. E. Gregory.

Bulldogs Go To Roscoe Wednesday

On the afternoon of Armistice Day the Loraine Bulldogs and the Roscoe Plowboys will tangle on Parks field in Roscoe. Thus far in the season the Plowboys have a perfect record in district play while the Bulldogs have only won one game, tied one and lost two others.

The Bulldogs will go to Roscoe with the avowed purpose of avenging the stinging defeat they got at the hands of the Plowboys last year and to mar the perfect record of the Plowboys for this season. The Bulldogs have the stuff in them to do the job and we believe they are in the right frame of mind to do it. Coach Pratt has been working them hard for a little more than a week now on both defense and offense plays for this game and they are ready to go.

This being a holiday Loraine fans in great numbers should follow the Bulldogs to Roscoe Wednesday afternoon to encourage them on to victory. The band a pep squad will be there but the larger number of fans the more encouragement the boys will have. Lets close up and go to Roscoe.

GLORIA MARTIN ENTERTAINS WITH PARTY

(Delayed from last week)

Thursday evening at 7 o'clock thirty spooks of varying shape and size were ushered into the realm of witches and kindred ghosts where the old grandmother witch herself appeared in person and related to the young spook recruits the folk lore and ghost stories that have been handed down through the ages and is the spirit of every Halloween.

After the new comers to witchland were thoroughly spookified they were ushered through the hall of pandemonium and horrors, from which they were told their fortunes by the head witch.

Spook drapery was discarded and much hilarity was in order as the time honored apple bobbing was practiced. Strung marshmallows were raced for with ferocious efforts as contestants vied for honors. The apple on the string was hard to nibble and the various teams ate crackers and corn flakes and tested their skees at whistling, but the funniest thing was the couple who fed each other breakfast cereal with large spoons as they sat cross legged on the floor blindfolded.

The sewing contest when the boys cut and threaded while the girls costumed lolly pops was lots of fun with no one allowed to say a word and all directions being given in pantomime.

Refreshments were gully-gaw cookies, hob goblin sandwiches, briny bits and witches brew. Favors were Halloween candies and balloons.

The Martin home was festive with Halloween decorations, every room representing a part of the witches lair, candle lighting and grinning pumpkins gave the rooms an eerie glow while skeletons, bats, cats and witches in flight overhead added to the ghostly chambers. Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Martin, Mrs. Max Martin, Miss Margaret Bell Glass, Miss Effie Corwile, and Mrs. Hall Hooker attended the young spooks in their revelry which lasted until 10 o'clock.

TO HAVE NEW CHEVROLET CAR ON DISPLAY SOON

The Loraine Chamber of Commerce has purchased the new 1937 model Chevrolet car to be given away by Loraine merchants on December 24, and it will be on display here very soon according to V. H. Wimberley from whom the car was purchased.

Good Shows At Rialto This Week

Beginning with Friday and Saturday of this week the Rialto Theatre in Loraine has the best program during the next week that the show has ever offered for an entire week.

Friday and Saturday Fred Kealing and Del Campo are showing in "Devil on Horseback", a nine-reel picture made in natural colors, the first picture of its kind ever to be made in colors. Four new song hits and other music will be heard.

Monday and Tuesday George Raft and Dolores Costello appear in "Yours For the Asking", and it is a great picture.

The best program for the week will be on Wednesday and Thursday when patrons of the show will see Will Rogers in "Old Kentucky", the best picture Will ever produced. This is also Money Night.

The Souls of Oysters
In the Coffin, He Pays
Polly Has a Tombstone
Suicide Is Folly

Mr. Kokichi Mikimoto, able Japanese gentleman, once a peddler of noodles, is now a giant of the oyster industry. He makes real pearls by forcing the oyster to work at pearl production. Instead of diving for oysters, hoping to find one with a pearl in it, he puts little, irritating grains of sand inside the shells of millions of oysters, and each oyster proceeds to deposit the pearly substance on the sand to escape its irritating scratching.

These pearls are "real." Although experts can tell the difference, they annoy jewelers and have hurt the value of the other accidental pearls, but they make it unnecessary for the unfortunate pearl diver to "go all naked to the hungry shark," as the poet has it. Mr. Mikimoto has been obliged to kill hundreds of millions of oysters, which is serious: his Buddhist religion teaches that each has its little separate soul—in fact, the soul of his great-grandmother might have resided in one of the oysters.

An American who recently died left a fortune of between twenty-five and thirty million dollars, chiefly in tax-exempt securities on which the owner, while he lived, paid no income tax. Now that he is dead, inheritance taxes will take about two-thirds of the many millions.

The lack of a "dead-or-alive" tax-exempt securities offers opportunity to some able lawyer. If the government has no constitutional right to take any income from tax-exempt bonds, how can it legally take half merely because the owner is in his coffin?

A green parrot, with red tipped wings, buried in a respectable grave, will have a granite headstone with "Here lies Polly Coddington, sixty-eight years old," engraved on it. Exactly how old Polly was, no one knows. Born in Brazil, she was presented to the grandmother of Mrs. Joseph E. Hunt, sixty-eight years ago. Parrots, like eagles, elephants and other intelligent creatures that eat wisely, often pass one hundred.

A higher race thinks up foolish things for itself.

Gruesome details which no one seems to have put into a movie or a horror story are published in connection with a recent suicide. The unfortunate victim, convinced that life was not worth while, hanged himself, and then, still conscious, found he was mistaken and made desperate unsuccessful efforts to cut the rope.

Those that think of suicide should remember that they must leave the world soon in any case, and might as well remain to see what will happen. While there is life, there is hope.

Chiang Kai-Shek, dictator of the Nanking government, warns China, "No nation can ruin us unless we first ruin ourselves," emphasizing the fact that the short road to national ruin is neglect of preparation for war. Some patriotic American "radio sponsor" might arrange to broadcast that talk in Washington, D. C. We need it here almost as much as China needs it.

England fears that quarrels among union men may cause strikes in airplane factories and delay Britain's effort to get ready for her next war. Such strikes would probably bring welcome orders for planes to American factories; nevertheless, it is only fair to remind British workers, quarreling among themselves, that when foreign bombs begin dropping on their families any strike against national safety will seem to have been foolish, in retrospect. And those words, "chiefly women and children," should be remembered.

Borrowed money is cheaper, and it ought to be, since the dollar is only worth 90 cents. A cheap house or cheap dollar should bring a cheap rent. Even so, it surprises you to learn that Mayor LaGuardia borrowed from J. P. Morgan & Co. thirty million dollars for the city, spread over a five-year period, for one and one-tenth per cent interest.

Here, Myron C. Taylor, head of "Big Steel," greatest steel company in the world, announces increases in wages, also resumption of full dividend payments on the preferred United States Steel stock, also earnings in three months of more than thirteen million dollars, biggest in six years. Thirteen million dollars in three months may not be "big money," but "it is better than being hit on the head with a sharp s'one."

Tremendous Victory of President Roosevelt Gives Him Electoral Vote of 523 to 8 for Landon—Congress More Strongly Democratic.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

© Western Newspaper Union.

"WE LIKE your New Deal policies and have complete confidence in your administration. Go as far as you like."

President Roosevelt

That in effect was the message sent to Franklin Delano Roosevelt by more than twenty-five million American men and women when they voted to continue him in the Presidency for another four years. It was the most tremendous victory ever scored by a Presidential candidate since the days of James Monroe, for Mr. Roosevelt captured the 523 electoral votes of 46 states. Only Maine and Vermont, with five and three electoral votes respectively, were won by Landon and Knox, the Republican candidates. Their popular vote, when all returns are in, and tabulated, may be fifteen and a half million.

The amazing New Deal landslide is looked upon by most unbiased observers not as a Democratic party victory, but a personal triumph for President Roosevelt, an expression of confidence in him and a recognition of the improvement in the country's business and industry. It was so overwhelming that the President may well consider he has been given carte blanche to do as he pleases in carrying his policies on to their logical ends. What he may please to do depends largely on pending decisions by the Supreme Court of the United States on New Deal legislation.

President Roosevelt, moreover, will have at his command a Congress more heavily Democratic than were the last two, for the lingering hopes of the Republicans that they could capture enough seats to enable them, in conjunction with conservative Democrats, to put up effective resistance to New Deal measures, were not realized. The New Deal majority in the new senate will be about five to one, and in the house it will be almost four to one. The few Republicans will be permitted to take part in debate, but when it comes to a vote the congress will be virtually a one-party affair.

Governor Landon and Colonel Knox, his running mate, accepted their defeat gracefully and sent to Mr. Roosevelt congratulatory telegrams promising to support, as good Americans, his efforts for the welfare of the country. The President responded with wires expressing his confidence that "all us Americans will now pull together for the common good."

The Republican party, despite its terrific drubbing, is not dead. Its national organization is intact and it, and such organizations as the American Liberty league, the Sentinels of America and the Volunteers, will continue their efforts to keep the ship of state on an even keel and headed in the right direction.

William Lemke, candidate of the Union party, failed to carry a state and his popular vote was not impressive; but he was re-elected to congress from North Dakota on the Republican ticket.

Incidentally, John N. Garner, who was scarcely mentioned during the hectic campaign, was re-elected vice president and will preside over the senate again. He took no real part in the battle, just riding along with his chief.

Among the well-known Republican senators unseated by the upheaval are Daniel O. Hastings of Delaware, Lester J. Dickinson of Iowa, Jesse H. Metcalf of Rhode Island and Robert D. Carey of Wyoming. The one gain by that party was the Massachusetts seat won by Henry Cabot Lodge II, grandson of the noted senator. He succeeded in defeating Gov. James M. Curley, Democratic boss of the state. The Michigan seat of the late James Couzens was won by Representative Prentiss M. Brown, who beat former Gov. W. M. Brucker. William E. Borah of Idaho, Arthur Capper of Kansas and Charles L. McNary of Oregon, all listed as Republicans, were re-elected; and so was George Norris of Nebraska who ran this year as an independent with the approval of Mr. Roosevelt. Minnesota Democrats meekly accepted the wrecking of their state ticket by New Deal orders and helped elect Ernest Lundeen, Farmer-Laborite, the only state in which the Presidential vote was at all close, sends a Republican to the senate in the person of Gov. H. Styles Bridges. Other governors who won in senate contests were Theodore Francis Green of Rhode Island, who defeated Senator Metcalf; Clyde L. Herring of Iowa, victor over Senator

Dickinson, and Ed C. Johnson of Colorado, who defeated Raymond L. Sauter.

Among the many Republican members of the house of representatives who failed of re-election were Isaac Bacharach of New Jersey, Chester Bolton of Ohio and Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California. George H. Tinkham of Massachusetts and Bertrand H. Snell of New York, minority leader, retained their seats. The new house will have five woman members, one fewer than in the last session. Oregon elected its first woman representative, Nan Wood Honeyman, Democrat and close friend of the Roosevelt family.

AT LEAST 25 states elected Democratic governors, and the number may be 27. In only three were the Republican nominees winners. William Langer, independent, won the governorship of North Dakota, from which he was ousted some time ago. Elmer Benson, Farmer-Laborite, was victorious in Minnesota, and Philip F. LaFollette, Progressive, in Wisconsin. New York re-elected Gov. Herbert Lehman, but he ran far behind President Roosevelt. Gov. Henry Horner of Illinois, Democrat, also won, but his vote, too, was far less than that for the head of the ticket.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, leaving Hyde Park for Washington to "try to balance the budget," as he said, authorized the announcement that on November 17 he would start on a cruise on the warship Indianapolis for a rest of about four weeks, and that it was possible he might go to Buenos Aires, Argentina, to open the Pan-American peace conference on December 1. He may also visit Rio de Janeiro.

JAMES A. FARLEY, manager of the triumphant Roosevelt campaign, resumed his office of postmaster general, attending the first post-election meeting of the cabinet. He said he would serve out his term but refused to comment on predictions that he would not be in the next cabinet. Mr. Farley is about to leave for a short vacation in Ireland.

The Democratic national chairman, commenting on the election, called attention to his exact forecast that Roosevelt would carry every state except Maine and Vermont, and added: "We would have carried Maine if we had put forth the same effort there as we did in the September election."

DEFENSE MINISTER EDOUARD DALADIER sees a possibility of a swift attack on France by Germany, so he urged upon the chamber of deputies an army committee the immediate fortification of the Belgian and Swiss frontiers and the speeding up of manufacture of war materials. He asked the committee to recommend an appropriation of 500,000,000 francs to fortify the borders with another "Maginot line" of steel and concrete "pill boxes" and underground passages.

Obligatory physical training for all Frenchmen, beginning at the age of eighteen, was proposed by Daladier as an aid to building up the French army.

The number of professional troops in the army, he asserted, has been increased in the last few months from 106,000 to 144,000.

KING EDWARD VIII, making his first parliamentary appearance since he succeeded to the throne of England, opened parliament with all the traditional ceremony. His throne stood alone in the house of lords and beside it rested the crown which has not yet been placed on his head. Robed in crimson and gold, the monarch read his address to the nation, beginning with his affirmation of the Protestant faith.

"My relations with foreign powers continue to be friendly," he said. "The policy of the government continues to be based on membership in the League of Nations."

He took up in turn the points of his government's proposed program. It would, he promised, work with other nations through the league, for peace. It would "persist in efforts" to build a new Locarno treaty and to extend the naval armaments limitations treaty signed last March by Britain, France, and the United States.

The government, he announced, will call an imperial conference in London next May, and that after his coronation he would go to India to be crowned emperor.

Mrs. Wallis Simpson, the king's American friend, had a choice seat in the diplomats' gallery, being accompanied by two other women.

Party Line-Ups in 10 Congresses

This chart shows how Republicans and Democrats will share seats in both houses of seventy-fifth congress, as compared with nine preceding congresses.

Election Sets a New Record With 43,000,000 Votes Cast

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, elected to a second term by a greater plurality than any candidate has ever enjoyed in the past, finds himself now with perhaps more power than has ever before been trusted to any man in the world. He polled some 25,500,000 popular votes, to set a new all-time record. Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, his Republican opponent, was a bit shy of 16,000,000, while William Lemke, the Union party candidate, polled about three-fourths of a million.

These results were based upon the 107,309 districts reported out of the 122,722 in the United States. It was estimated that the total vote, with all districts reported, would approximate 43,000,000 also a new all-time record.

The American people, providing the incumbent Democratic candidate with 523 votes in the electoral college to 8 for Governor Landon, also voiced their approval of the New Deal by materially increasing the Democratic majority in both houses of congress.

The senate in the Seventy-fifth congress will find the Democrats with 75 of the 96 seats, outnumbering the opposition more than 4 to 1. The house of representatives, where the Republicans had hoped to recover as much as 125 seats, will see the Democrats even stronger than before, holding 334 seats against 89 for the G. O. P.

PRESIDENTIAL VOTE BY STATES

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt swept to re-election on the crest of the largest wave of votes, both popular and electoral, ever cast for a Presidential candidate. It was apparent with 105,251 districts reported out of a total of 122,722 in the United States. The table below shows the number of districts reporting in each state, the popular vote, the electoral vote and the winner's plurality in each state. Pluralities are estimated, since in most cases complete returns will not be available for some time.

SYNOPSIS

Dr. Greeding, a wealthy and talented middle aged surgeon, is possessed of seemingly supernatural powers. Occasionally he can wish for something extraordinary to happen and have the wish fulfilled. Greeding meets Ira Jerrell, a wealthy business friend of his own age, who tells him he loves his daughter Nancy and would like to marry her. Dr. Greeding is pleased and tells Jerrell he has a clear field. Nancy, however, is in love with Dan Carlisle, an assistant professor at the University who has little means. They discuss marriage, but decide to delay talking to her father about it. Nancy, who has been playing tennis with Dan that afternoon, tells her father she had been playing with a girl friend. Greeding knows this is untrue and is secretly enraged. Stepping into his wife's room he finds a note pinned to the door which he snatches up. He picks it up, wishing he could smash it to bits. Suddenly it is snatched from his grasp as by an invisible force and bursts asunder. Mrs. Greeding is greatly disturbed over the mysterious destruction of the statuette. The doctor reveals that Ira Jerrell wants to marry Nancy. On the way to a dinner party a car crash in front of Greeding's. He angrily expresses the wish that the driver would break his neck. An instant later an accident occurs in which this very thing happens. At the dinner the Greedings meet Prof. Carlisle, Dan's father, and his daughter Mary Ann. Dr. Greeding is intrigued by Mary Ann, who is a surgical nurse. Mrs. Greeding tells Prof. Carlisle about the destruction of the statuette and he indicates it might have been caused by a "poltergeist," a "racketing, mischievous spirit." Greeding pretends to Nancy that he has no objection to Dan. More interested in Mary Ann, Dr. Greeding induces her to take a position in his office. Eventually he finds he loves her. Jerrell continues to see Nancy, whose love for Dan is unchanged. The Greedings invite the Carlises to dinner. Dr. Greeding discusses with Prof. Carlisle the subject of "poltergeists." The dinner party is interrupted by a call from Dr. Greeding from a neighboring town. He asks Mary Ann to accompany him. On the ride to see the patient, Greeding is extremely happy. He invites Mary Ann to visit their summer home. It is late when they finish the call. Nancy is disquieted when he kisses her hand on parting. Mrs. Greeding upbraids him when he returns home.

To each of the people who knew him best, this change presented itself in a different guise. Paul Master, through whom Doctor Greeding made his occasional investments, saw it in the shape of a reckless turn to speculation. Doctor Greeding had in such matters always heretofore been willing to hear advice and to be guided by sane counsel; but Associated Cottons was not the sort of security calculated to appeal to a conservative man, and Greeding had always been conservative. When during May and June he steadily increased his purchases of this stock, Master was more and more perplexed and uneasy. Cottons sagged steadily; but Doctor Greeding continued to buy, with a stubborn insistence which Master's best arguments could not shake.

From Mrs. Greeding's point of view, Doctor Greeding altered in the direction of an increasing irritability. He was apt to object to things which hitherto had evoked from him no least remonstrance. Between any husband and wife there grow up certain tolerances, certain acceptances. It had been so with these two. Mrs. Greeding always came downstairs to breakfast, usually in a dressing-gown and slippers and with a lace cap to hold in order her untended hair. Despite her presence, Doctor Greeding always read the morning paper, and Mrs. Greeding always talked to him constantly throughout the meal, content with his monosyllabic replies.

But now, when she did only what she had always done, he might explode. "I wish to heaven you wouldn't talk to me while I'm reading, Myra." Or: "Can't you find time to brush your hair before you come downstairs?" Or: "Isn't a woman wiser to make herself presentable in the morning before greeting her husband?" Or, obscurely: "They've a rule in Surabaya, I have heard, that no one speaks to anyone else before breakfast. It's a good one."

Mrs. Greeding was disturbed; but she was not in the least in awe of her husband.

"Nonsense, Ned," she protested, one morning. "I declare I don't know what's got into you all of a sudden. You object to the things I've done for years."

"Isn't the fact that you've done the same things for years enough reason for wanting to change?" he retorted.

"No, of course not. People our age are old enough to have arrived at a routine."

"Our age?" he demanded, in a rising exasperation. "You appear to think me on the verge of senility."

"I think you're on the verge of being a crosspatch," she said with a wistful tenderness. "Ned, dear, what's the matter with you lately? Tired? Nervous? Are things going badly at the office?"

"Nothing is the matter with me," he assured her angrily. "But you take the typical feminine attitude. If anything ruffles the placid surface of a woman's life, she decides there is something wrong with her husband. It never occurs to her that there is anything wrong with her."

"I haven't changed," she protested.

"I haven't either," he insisted. "I always did resent your coming down to breakfast frowsy and half-dressed, and gabbling like a hen. But I've kept quiet about it for twenty years."

She said carefully: "I'm glad you did, Ned. It has made the years pretty happy ones for me."

So he knew a grudging contrition for his words, and came to kiss her cheek. "There," he said. "Sorry, Myra. Let me blow off steam on you, won't you?"

"Of course," she agreed, forgiving him completely. "As much as you like, my dear."

Early that evening Nancy and Dan had gone in her car, with sandwiches which she had herself prepared, to have a picnic supper together beside the Cochrane reservoir; they made a lark of it, enjoying the fact that all about them at little distances were other cars, other young folk like themselves who had come here to be alone.

"It makes me feel as though I belonged," Nancy confessed. "I suppose it's common, but I like it. I like to be doing the things all these other girls are doing, riding out here with their young men, and whispering together in the darkness, and making love."

She said half-dreaming: "It makes me feel as though I were part of a big thing, a universal thing." She held Dan's hand tightly. "It is big, and universal, Dan: this loving, this mating, isn't it?"

Dan chuckled. "Bless you, yes. I suppose so," he said. "But I like to think it has never happened to anyone but us before. No one here can even half guess how I feel about you."

He said: "I never thought that. You must think me insufferably conceited!"

He shook his head. "Not at all! You know that I like you. I admire your ability, but I like you personally too. Very much indeed. But you need have no least misgiving, Mary Ann. He added soberly: "And in all seriousness, I do need you here. You are invaluable to me in my work. We can save a good many lives together, you and I."

In the end she did stay. He had, by stating her thoughts in plain words, shrewdly succeeded in making them ridiculous, and so destroying any reason she might have had for leaving him.

But also, she wished to stay. She found in this association with his work a daily pride and wonder. He had a healing magic in his fingers. He did miracles, without apparently realizing that they were miracles. She saw him perform operations which her training told her were well-nigh hopeless; yet the patient proceeded to swift and complete recovery.

Late in June, Mrs. Greeding and Nancy went to the lake to open the house for the summer, and the Doctor was left alone in Cambridge. Mary Ann suggested one night that he dine with them; but Doctor Greeding declined.

"I suspect your father is a little bored with me," he said. And he added: "I'm dining with Jerrell tonight. I hope he will spend the week-end at the lake with me. . . . By the way, when can you and Dan come up there? Sometime during August, say?"

"I know Dan will want to," she asserted, added evasively: "I'm not sure, myself."

But he insisted. "You must come. Myra and I like to have young people around. I suppose it makes us feel a bit younger ourselves."

"You're the youngest man I know," she assured him, smilingly; but she did not promise to accept this invitation.

He did dine that night with Jerrell; and Jerrell asked: "How's Nancy? I had no chance to see her before she went to the lake."

"You'd better run up with me over the week-end," Doctor Greeding suggested. "Myra will be glad to have you, and Nancy too, I know."

To this Jerrell readily agreed. They arranged, before they parted, that Jerrell should accompany Doctor Greeding to the lake Friday night; and at Jerrell's suggestion they chartered a seaplane and made the trip by air. Doctor Greeding telephoned ahead, and when they landed in the open water in front of the island, a boat put off to meet them, Nancy at the wheel, some one beside her. Doctor Greeding, with a quick resentment and concern recognized Dan Carlisle. He had not anticipated the possibility that this young man would be here, and regretted it; and when they were in the boat, he said almost curtly:

"Hello, Dan. Didn't expect to see you."

marvell!" He added, vaguely puzzled: "And she says he's a lot of fun, too—joking all the time, and gentle and kindly and considerate. She likes him."

Nancy shivered in his arms; and he asked: "Cold?"

"No, not a bit," she assured him. "I don't know why I shivered. Just—something."

CHAPTER V

It was not wholly true that Mary Ann saw no change in Doctor Greeding. She did not confess this even to Dan; yet no woman can be wholly unconscious of the fact that a man's thoughts are bound tight around her.

A day or two after that trip to Kennebunk together, disturbed by her own perception of the developing situation, Mary Ann came to the Doctor to suggest giving up her employment with him.

"I think Dan and Father need to have me more at home," she said evasively. "To keep the house running smoothly."

He said seriously: "I can understand the need for you there; but there is also a real need for you here."

"You could get some one—"

He spoke directly, with a disarming frankness. "Let's be straightforward about this," he urged. "I know what you're thinking. You're ill at ease, since our drive together the other night. You suspect that my interest in you is rather more than professional!"

Her cheeks flamed; and he said with a chuckle: "I suppose that suspicion on your part is not unnatural; but Mary Ann, if it will reassure you, I guarantee that I'm not in danger of falling in love with you."

"Heavens!" she protested, laughing. "I never thought that. You must think me insufferably conceited!"

He shook his head. "Not at all! You know that I like you. I admire your ability, but I like you personally too. Very much indeed. But you need have no least misgiving, Mary Ann. He added soberly: "And in all seriousness, I do need you here. You are invaluable to me in my work. We can save a good many lives together, you and I."

To this Jerrell readily agreed. They arranged, before they parted, that Jerrell should accompany Doctor Greeding to the lake Friday night; and at Jerrell's suggestion they chartered a seaplane and made the trip by air. Doctor Greeding telephoned ahead, and when they landed in the open water in front of the island, a boat put off to meet them, Nancy at the wheel, some one beside her. Doctor Greeding, with a quick resentment and concern recognized Dan Carlisle. He had not anticipated the possibility that this young man would be here, and regretted it; and when they were in the boat, he said almost curtly:

"Hello, Dan. Didn't expect to see you."

"I was on my way to the mountains," Dan replied. "Just stopped on my way through."

"I made him stay for dinner," Nancy explained, and turned the boat toward shore.

Mrs. Greeding was on the wharf to meet them. They moved up the path to the house, and Jerrell made appreciative comments. The house was like a Swiss chalet in outward aspect, with a low red-tiled roof. Within, they came into a big living-room that extended to the roof-beams, with a tremendous fieldstone chimney like a column in the center. A balcony ran along two sides of this living-room at the second-floor level, and bedrooms were accessible from this balcony.

Doctor Greeding showed Jerrell his room, in the rear on the second floor, then himself returned with Mrs. Greeding to the big south bedroom which they occupied. And when they were alone there, he said to her, in a low tone, resentfully:

"You might have used a little common sense, Myra. You knew Jerrell was coming. There was no need of his finding Dan here."

She said defensively. "I was playing bridge, at Mrs. Thurston's, when he telephoned. So Nancy answered, and when I got home he was here. After all, if Nancy is going to prefer Dan, she had better find it out before she marries Ira Jerrell, rather than afterwards."

"She'd have too much native decency to find it out afterward," he retorted. "You know, she's my daughter."

Mrs. Greeding chuckled in affectionate amusement. "Darling, of course! You are a model of loyalty, I know. Not many middle-aged wives can be as sure as I that their husbands have never looked around the corner."

"It's not a thing to brag about," he retorted.

"It happens to be one thing I'm proud of," she insisted smilingly. "The fact that you still love me. I shall even boast about it, if I choose."

He said morosely: "I've heard mothers boast about their immaculate sons, when I happened to know that the youngsters were plain devils."

She laughed. "Don't try to pretend that you're fast and loose, my dear," she protested. "I know you too well." And she added, still lightly: "Even if you and Mary Ann—"

He exclaimed: "Myra, for heaven's sake don't start being jealous. Even if you are ready to think the worst of me, you might have more respect for Mary Ann. She's hardly a — home-wrecker, you know. It's shameful to suggest—"

"There," she protested, laughing almost desperately. "I don't suggest anything except that you have a swim before dinner. Here's your suit."

So he was silenced, and began to undress.

After dinner Dan had to leave. Nancy suggested: "Shall we all go for a boat-ride, drop Dan at the harbor, and then have a run around the lake afterward?"

Doctor Greeding caught his wife's eye. "Take Mr. Jerrell," he suggested. "Ira, if you're a timid man, she'll give you bad dreams. There are some channels around this lake that I won't even tackle by daylight, but Nancy knows them in the dark. You go along!"

"I think I'll go too," Mrs. Greeding decided. "I—"

But Doctor Greeding said: "I want you to look over the bills with me, Myra, so I can have the checks sent out Monday." And when presently the others had departed, he said irritably: "You're singularly dense, sometimes. Jerrell doesn't want to ride around the lake at night with you!"

She seemed about to speak, then held her tongue.

After Dan was gone, the week-end passed pleasantly enough. Nancy and Jerrell played tennis together; they swam; they explored the lake. Sunday on the tennis court Doctor Greeding and Jerrell and the girl shot at targets. Pistol-shooting was the Doctor's pet hobby.

Jerrell proved singularly inept at this pastime. "I'd better stick to fishing," he confessed at last. "I can cast a fly more accurately than a bullet!"

And Nancy said: "I'll take you after bass this afternoon; see if you're as clever as you say."

When Doctor Greeding and Jerrell climbed into the plane for the return trip to Boston early Monday morning, the Doctor was well content. Jerrell and Nancy had been together constantly; and when Doctor Greeding said good-by to the girl, he kissed her, and asked in a whisper:

"Like Mr. Jerrell pretty well, Nancy?"

"He's a peach!" she agreed.

Mary Ann had already gone to the hospital when he reached the office; but he met her in the corridor outside the operating-rooms. His smile quickened at the sight of her.

She remarked: "You look rested, and he nodded.

"I am," he said. "Ready to move mountains."

She laughed softly. "Nothing so massive this morning," she replied. The forenoon passed in a monotonous routine. When the last case was done, he proposed: "Come and lunch with me. You can tell me what has been going on."

She hesitated; but then she assented, smiling at her own hesitation. "Very well," she said.

"Do you like Italian food—minestrone, ravioli?" he asked, when they arrived at the restaurant.

"Of course. And I probably make the best spaghetti in captivity," she assured him smilingly.

"That will take some proving," he told her. "They are famous for it here."

But even after lunch she still insisted on the superiority of her own product. "We always have it Thursday nights," she explained. "Maid's

Jerrell Asked, "How's Nancy?"

night out, you know. Father and Dan devour it by the bale, or bushel, or whatever the unit of spaghetti measure may be."

"I'll come, some Thursday night," he declared, "and give you a chance to prove your claims."

She hesitated, then she said: "Do come! When?"

"This next Thursday?"

She said, half to herself, thinking of appearances:

"Dan won't be there this week; but of course Father will!"

He read her thoughts, and was quick to turn them into another channel. "I saw Dan at the lake," he remarked. "He stopped off for dinner, on his way to the mountains—was there when Jerrell and I arrived."

She smiled. "I expect that distressed Dan. He knows Jerrell is fond of Nancy; and he feels pretty keenly that he hasn't much of anything to offer a girl like her."

"He has—youth, to offer," said Doctor Greeding, watching her reaction to this suggestion.

"That's a fairly common asset," she pointed out. "If youth is a man's only capital, he'll soon be bankrupt. I'd rather rely on qualities acquired by years of life and effort, than on the accidental—and fleeting—virtue of youth!"

He looked at her thoughtfully. "You plead Mr. Jerrell's cause pretty warmly," he suggested, an intangible uneasiness awakening in him.

She smiled, said in easy evasion: "Oh, I was just talking abstractions." Then, abruptly: "It's almost two o'clock. We ought to get back."

Gondolas Were in Use in Sixteenth Century Days

Gondolas are first mentioned in an Eleventh century document, and by the Sixteenth century competition among their owners in Venice had become so fierce that the city had to set up a code of fair practices. Instead of being allowed to attract passengers by the bright colors on their boats, the gondoliers were summarily ordered to paint everything black and black the gondolas have remained to this day, observes a writer in the Los Angeles Times.

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE
HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it. When your back aches and your nerves scream, don't take it out on your husband. He can't possibly know how you feel.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomfort from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Football, A Character Builder

School and college football fit into the educational scheme very nicely when we look upon education in its broad sense; that is, preparing boys to live and to fight the battles of life the right way.

The football field is a laboratory where the boy really tests himself, and where he meets a variety of hard problems and situations. Success here is gained by exactly the same qualities that will be necessary for success in later life. The factors that may cause failure in later life.

The boy learns that rewards come from hard work properly applied; also that many failures are caused by a lack of this. He learns that if he becomes discouraged, he is heading for sure ruin, and he learns that when he becomes self-satisfied, he is sure to start slipping.

He finds out that he alone cannot attain success; that other people are involved, and that he must co-operate with them to advance. He learns to fight hard battles with his chin up.

He remembers these experiences, and takes them with him into adult life, knowing that success in the game of life is like success on the field. And what he has learned from these experiences will be an everlasting asset for him.

—Coach Bernie Bierman,
University of Minnesota.

Education is as essential to us intellectually and morally as light and air are to us physically.
We cannot develop to our fullest capacities as individuals equipped to get all that is good and worth while out of life except through education.

Students Attend the Centennial

Thursday morning, at 9:30, many students of the Loraine public school left for the Centennial. The students were admitted at half price to the more educational sites. The high school students were: Price Hall, Iris
Riden, Byron Bennett, Maurine
Robertson, Jesse Compton, Dell
Johnson, Pauline Parker, Doris Glass, Garland Faulkenberry,
Robert James, Ruby Jo Marshall,
Loeita Martin, Margaret Glass,
Frances Riden, Marvin Hall,
Truman Walker, Truett Butler,
Charles Glass, and J. W. King.

Grammar school students were:
Doris Mae Smiley, Louise Spikes, Allene Hallmark, Bill Glass, Melvin King, Wanda Mae Richey, Sidney Meek, Gypsy Ted McCollum, and Tommy Jean Riden.

Chubby's Chatterings

As I have said before, all I know about reporting is what the big boys have told me.

On Thursday, Nov. 5, the Bullpups of Loraine Grammar, inspired to greater heights by an aswell organized cheering section as has come before this writer's eyes in many a day—took Lone Star into camp, 31-0. Stars for the Pups were Harold Simmons and Jack Albright, who accounted for all the scoring. Standouts for Lone Star were Captain Russel Coffee and Wayland Bennett.
Quarterbacks James and Coffee
both called smart games.

Close observers might have detected a light in Coach Pratt's eyes, which might have been interpreted to mean he would be greatly pleased when these stalwarts of the grammar school gridiron came under his tutelage.

When this has gone to press the Loraine-Roscoe brawl will have already become "Aye" or "Nay."
On Friday, Nov. 20, the Bulldogs are to be guests of Merkel.
Several persons at different times in various places have mildly suggested that it was time for the Bulldogs to provide some of the entertaining features instead of leaving such matters to their hosts. After losing three straight conference tilts, Merkel tied the strong Snyder team, 7-7. So you see, a noted columnist of old was not far wrong when he said, "It's not how big the dog in the fight, but how big the fight in the dog." So, go to Merkel and see the Bulldogs display the fighting spirit their namesake is noted for.

Mrs. Annie Hooker and children, Maxine and Patricia, visited her husband in Corpus Christi last week end. Mrs. Floyd Coffee substituted in her place.

Homecoming

Just two more weeks till homecoming! Ex-students, old friends, and everyone will be here for a regular get-together. Homecoming was started last year and is going to continue as long as Loraine High exists. The program will start at 10 A. M. and will continue until 12. A real pep rally will be held in the morning for the game that afternoon. So, let us start right now showing the ex-students how much we think of them.

Liberi Romae

The "Liberi Romae", the Latin

Jokes

Iona—That drsse is the most perfect fit I have ever seen.

Margaret—Then you should have seen the one my father had when he got the bill for it.

Clista—Well, I can see from the way you talk that the fools aren't all dead yet.

Lenthus—I'm glad of it. I never did look well in black.

Wennola—Do you return the money when an article isn't satisfactory?

Iris Duke—That depends on the article.

Wennola—This is a book.
Iris—What was wrong with it.

Wennola—I didn't like the way it ended.

Truett—Is that your last year's suit you're wearing?

Roy G.—Yes, and it's my next year's too.

E'dridge—I, my friend, am a self-made man.

William—How bad you must feel about being interrupted before you had completed the job.

Freshman Frolic

"Boy, my dogs are tired," you would have heard some of the Freshmen say who had been to the Centennial, but just the same they seemed to enjoy it.

Lona Beth Hardin, one of our ex-students who now lives at Post, visited some of her friends here Saturday.

The "Fish" are on pens and needles, expecting three weeks exam papers back this week. We hope we make a good grade.

Senior Sayings

Did anyone ever tell you about the dignity of Seniors? It's just legend. Don't believe it, because it isn't being practiced by the Seniors of 1937. Well at least not yet. Not many, if any, have stopped to think about the seriousness and responsibility (!) of being a Senior, and don't intend to until necessary.

There are 27 Seniors in the class of 1937, 16 boys and 11 girls, who have selected: Opal Martin, President; Lillian Hendrick, Vice President; Ruth Ann Hall, Treasurer; W. F. James Jr., Reporter.

On October 31, the Seniors were entertained in a most pleasing way by the Juniors with a Hallowe'en party at Earlene Brown's.

Sophomore News

The Sophomores regret very much to have lost two of their members last week: Quita Richards who went with her family to Corpus Christi where they joined Mr. Richards who has work there; and James Manly who moved with his family to Colorado.

A farewell party was given for Miss Quita Richards November 3, 1936, in the home of Margaret Bennett. Games were played after which Miss Ronel Thomas presented the honoree with a gift. Refreshments of weiners, pickles, marshmallows, and cocoa were then served to six guests and their Sunday School teacher, Mrs. Floyd Richey.

Typing News

Since typing is one of our new subjects, most everyone wants to take it. There are four classes of typing and at the present time we are just typing short exercises. In another month we will probably be at work on business letters. We will have speed tests and write themes during the second term.

WEEKLY COTTON GRADE AND STAPLE REPORT

Grades of cotton this week from Texas were generally improved over those of the previous week, while staple lengths showed a mixed trend.

Middling and higher grades represented 32 percent of that classed for the current week against 26 percent the previous week and 51 percent to date this season. A smaller proportion of the grades Strict Low Middling and Low Middling was reported for the week, with 34 percent, than last week, with 40 percent.
These grades so far this season constitute approximately 26 percent of the State total. Last week 4.3 percent was Strict Good Ordinary and Good Ordinary against only 2.3 percent this week.
Spotted grades increased slightly during the week to 31 percent, of which 13 percent was Strict Middling and Good Middling
Spotted, and 11 percent Middling Spotted.

A smaller proportion of cotton shorter than 7-8 inch in staple was shown this week than for the past week. The staple lengths 7-8 inch and 29-32 inch, 15-16 inch and 31-32 inch, and 1 inch and 1-1-32 inches increased varying-ly when compared with those of the previous week. Staples 1-1-16 inches and longer decreased only slightly, however.

Of the cotton classed this week 64 percent was of tenderable grades and staples against 59 percent the past week and 79 percent this season to date. Tenderable cotton to date ranges from 29 percent in District 2, High Plains, to 100 percent in District 1, Trans-Pecos Region.

BETHEL HHH CLASS NEWS

By the way, we have some special news for you about the HHH Sunday School class of Bethel. It's news of interest to everyone too. Now listen! Here it is.

The HHH class of Bethel has decided to put on some first class entertainment for the public by staging a play called Dotty and Daffy. It is a farce-comedy in three acts and above all one of the best plays people of this territory will have the privilege of seeing this season. Members of the cast have been carefully chosen and they are working hard under the direction of Mrs. Dee McCollum. The play will be staged at the Bauman school house on Wednesday night, November 18th, starting promptly at 7:30 P. M. Make your plans now to see Dotty and Daffy. It's a scream. You can't miss it. There will be a small admission charge of 10c and 15c and 50c for a family. The benefits will go to the HHH class.

DON'T GAMBLE

WITH A COLD

COMMON colds are dangerous! Don't gamble with them. You will lose more often than you will win. Even if you are lucky and recover from a cold within a few days without loss of time or money, YOU STILL LOSE. Any illness to a member of the family is definitely false economy because colds create a condition of depressed physical vitality.

This is the age of preventive medicine and medical science has followed the formula that "it is better to keep well than to get well." Therefore, don't gamble. Strike at the root of common colds by eliminating conditions that contribute to "catching cold."

If the temperature of any room in the house is insufficient for comfort it is INADEQUATE

The common cold germ is a constant threat to your well-being during the winter season. If you do catch cold—don't gamble; consult your family doctor before it has an opportunity to undermine your health.

FOR HEALTH. Members of the family go from a heated room into a cold hall or adjoining unheated room; then shivering and chilled, they return to the heated room. This is one almost certain way to catch cold.

Protect your family against sudden changes of temperature. Give them the benefit of healthful, pure, warm air throughout the home. If you have been heating only one or two rooms, don't go through another winter without complete health protection. If you prefer individual unvented room heaters of the open flame type, be sure to use ONE IN EACH ROOM and provide adequate ventilation from slightly opened windows. Keep connecting doors open from one room to another so that a natural circulation of healthful, warm air prevails throughout the home.

Heat your entire house and provide adequate ventilation of pure air . . . for your health's sake!

Limiting Incomes

If all the personal incomes in this country were limited to $5,000 and all money earned in excess of this amount equally divided among those whose income is under $5,000, each beneficiary would receive less than $2 a week extra. In 1931 this excess amounted to $4,000,000,000 and the number of incomes under $5,000 was 40,000,000.—Collier's Weekly.

To Quickly Ease Pains of Rheumatism

Bayer Tablets Dissolve Almost Instantly

In 2 seconds by stop watch, a genuine BAYER Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work. Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating. What happens in this glass... happens in your stomach.

Ask Your Doctor About Genuine BAYER Aspirin

Any person who suffers from pains of rheumatism should know this: Two genuine BAYER ASPIRIN tablets, taken with a full glass of water, will usually ease even severe rheumatic pains in a remarkably short time.

Ask your doctor about this. He will probably tell you there is nothing better. For real Bayer Aspirin tablets, not only offer a potent analgesic (pain reliever), but start going to work almost instantly you take them. Note illustration of glass.

Try this simple way. You'll be surprised at how quickly pain eases. Get real Bayer Aspirin by asking for it by its full name, "Bayer Aspirin" at any drug store. Now virtually one cent a tablet.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL Lesson

Lesson for November 15

THE HEROISM OF CHRISTIAN FAITH

LESSON TEXT—Acts 21:12, 13, 27-34; Romans 9:1-5.
GOLDEN TEXT—Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. John 15:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—On the Castle Steps.
JUNIOR TOPIC—On the Castle Steps.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Taking Risks for Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Risking All for Christ.

We now come to the close of the third missionary journey of Paul. As he came to Jerusalem for the last time in his eventful life he was warned by a prophet, Agabus at Caesarea, that if he went up to Jerusalem he would be bound and given over to the Gentiles.

Heroism of the highest and noblest type has characterized the followers of Christ in all times. Paul was not one to be deterred from what he believed to be God's will by the probability that he would suffer. Like all who follow the Lord Jesus Christ in truth he was

I. Fearless, in Practice as Well as Theory (Acts 21:12, 13, 27-34).

Many there are who sing, "I'll go where you want me to go, dear Lord, I'll be what you want me to be," or smoothly repeat consecration vows, who are frightened away at the slightest difficulty, and who feel that they must have been mistaken about the Lord's will for their life at the first indication that his guidance would interfere with their comfort or convenience. No such cowardice or vacillation was found in Paul.

In the first place, he did not intend to have a holy purpose weakened by disheartening talk. How many young men and women have left a place of sacred meeting with God aglow with the purpose of serving Him in the foreign mission field, and then permitted an uninterested friend or relative or employer to talk them out of it.

In the second place, we find Paul carrying through his purpose. When he came to Jerusalem he was counseled to enter the temple to take a Nazarite vow, and thus to satisfy his enemies. Some have commended Paul for thus pacifying those who withstood him, others strongly condemn him for yielding. His purpose was good, but his act led to unfortunate results. An infuriated Jewish mob saw him in the temple and wrongfully accused him of defiling the temple by bringing a Greek into this holy place.

A riot ensued, and Paul would have been killed had not the Roman captain and his band rescued him. Was Paul afraid? He immediately turned his arrest into an unsurpassed opportunity to give a testimony and to make a defense of his ministry (See Acts 21:40-22:22). He admonished others to "be instant in season and out of season" (II Tim. 4:2); he practiced what he preached. He constantly urged faith in God, steadfastness in the midst of trials; he gave full proof of these things in his own ministry.

In all this he did not seek his own glory, or any honor for his own name. The Christian hero knows nothing of heroism for publicity's sake; he does not serve with an eye on the "grandstand." Paul was actuated by a deep and a genuine

II. Concern for the Salvation of His People (Rom 9:1-5).

The Christian worker who knows nothing of "great sorrow and unceasing pain" in his heart over the plight of the unsaved does not follow in the Pauline succession, nor does he know the heart of the Man of Sorrows.

Paul surely did not wish himself separated from Christ, but was so deeply moved that he said he "could wish" it—if it were not wrong—in order to save his brethren.

Do we need a revival of compassion in our churches, and in our own hearts, a yearning over the multitudes about us who are as sleep without a shepherd?

A Golden Link

A mother's love is indeed the golden link that binds youth to age, and he is still but a child, however time may have furrowed his cheek, or silvered his brow, who can yet recall with a softened heart, the fond devotion, or the gentle chidings, of the best friend that God ever gives us.

Love of Our Work

It is only those who do not know how to work that do not love it. To those who do it is better than play—it is religion.

Life

Life is not made up of great sacrifices of duties, but of little things of which smiles and kindness and small obligations given habitually, are what win and preserve the heart.—Sir Humphrey Davy.

Prejudices

Prejudices may be intense, but their lives are limited—to discover when they are dead and to bury them, is an important matter, and no unseemly tears should be shed at their funerals.

Certain of Milady's Vote

THREE post-election candidates for miady's wardrobe, every one a winner. Choose any one of these clever patterns and the vote will be unanimous that you have done well by yourself. Every pattern is accompanied by an illustrated instruction chart giving step by step details for quick sewing and perfect fit—the short cut to an adequate wardrobe.

Pattern 1821, a comely morning frock fashioned along princess lines, is available in a wide range of sizes, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. The smooth fitting and slenderizing hip line joins with the scalloped collar and cuffs in contrast to achieve a flattering effect, and this design is so simply made and so easy to wear, in swiss or percale or lawn or pongee, it will win instant favor. Size 38 requires four and three-fourths yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1958, the blouse and a skirt combination, speaks for itself. Versatility is the keynote of this double duty pattern which consists of just eight simple pieces for both blouse and skirt. The wide and graceful revers conceal those extra pounds above the waist, and the panelled skirt is o. the sort that will go well with any ensemble or tunic. Quickly and inexpensively made, this combination will add new life to any wardrobe with a minimum of effort. The pattern is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 18 requires two and three-fourths yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, two and one-sixth yards for the skirt. A grand pattern bargain.

Pattern 1843, the fitted slip, offers a choice of the strap or built-up shoulder and makes a perfect foundation garment for a smooth silhouette. Fashioned in silk or taffeta or pongee, the pattern employs just six pieces and goes together like a charm. Send for it today, in size 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 or 44. Size 36 requires three and one-fourth yards of 39 inch material.

SIGNIFICANCE OF INSCRIPTION ON OUR DOLLAR BILLS

A Treasury department circular states that the design on the back of the new one dollar silver certificates presents for the first time or any money issued by the United States, a representation of both the obverse and reverse of the Great Seal of the United States, first adopted in 1782, prior to the adoption of the Constitution.

The reverse of the Great Seal shows an unfinished pyramid, surmounted by an eye in a triangular glory. The pyramid bears in Roman numerals the year of the Declaration of Independence, 1776. Above the eye is the Latin motto "Annuit Cœptis," rendered as "He (God) favored our undertakings." The motto at the bottom, "Novus Ordo Seclorum," is translated as "A new order of the ages."

The eye and triangular glory symbolizes an all-seeing Deity. The pyramid is the symbol of strength and its unfinished condition denotes the belief of the designers of the Great Seal that there was still work to be done. Both the mottoes on the reverse of the seal are condensations of excerpts from Virgil's Aeneid.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Canada's Indians Gain

There is no foundation for the common belief that the Indians of Canada are a vanishing race. The census, which is taken at five-year intervals, has shown a substantial increase in each of such periods during the last fifteen years at least. According to the last census there were in Canada 122,911 Indians—62,943 males and 59,968 females. About 112,500 live on the reservations.

COMMERCIAL FAILURES ARE FEW IN TEXAS

Austin, Texas, Nov. 10.—Only seven commercial failures occurred during October according to the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research. Failures last month decreased both in comparison with the preceding month and the like month last year, and liabilities of the bankrupt firms also declined sharply, the Bureau has announced.

According to reports from Dun and Bradstreet, Inc., the seven failures in October contrasted with nine in September and eleven during October, 1935, the Bureau's statement pointed out. Liabilities of the bankrupt firms totaled only $62,000, a decline of 45.6 per cent from the preceding month and 61.2 per cent from the corresponding month last year.

PENSIONERS TO BE RE-INVESTIGATED

Austin, Nov. 10.—Our definite responsibility is to get assistance to the needy aged, and no deserving applicant or pension recipient in Texas should be afraid that we will overlook him, said Acting Director Orville S. Carpenter, of the Texas Old Age Assistance Commission, today, explaining re-investigation procedure required by the new pension statute.

The new law, House Bill 8, takes away requirements concerning property, cash ownership, and income as basis for determining eligibility. Entire basis of the new assistance law is the need of the individual. Aid contributed by other individuals, whether cash or free rent, free board, free medical care, or clothes, must be taken into consideration.

Later Investigation
"At present we are busy segregating cases in which recipients show no cash in the bank, no property owned, and no other income except that from the Commission. These cases will not be re-investigated until later because the old people would evidently be in need if they were off the rolls," Carpenter declared.

House Bill 8 requires that all recipients now on the rolls be re-investigated.

Investigated Immediately
"We have started already re-investigating each recipient on the rolls whose eligibility under the new law is doubtful because he has income, property, or is receiving assistance from some individual. However, it should be remembered that we will look at each of these cases with the question in mind: 'Is this old person in necessitous circumstances?'" he added.

Those Not On Rolls
"Of the applicants whose cases have not been investigated, or now are in the process of investigation, we will ascertain those whose applications reflect need and then get to them first. Many of our policies will be determined by the fact that winter is coming and that the needy aged must be taken care of now and not six months from now."

"The evident intent of the legislature was that assistance must

The sports of the various seasons, as they swing around the calendar, all receive attention from Hugh Bradley, ace sports writer, whose column of entertaining comment is a regular feature of this paper. From the time when the first warm breezes send millions of fans to the baseball parks to that same time the next year, each popular sport in turn is subject for his comments.

And Hugh Bradley knows all these sports... many through active participation in them during his college days and later... all of them through many years of critical observation.

All set to be a lawyer, Bradley was wooed away from his first love by an invitation to cover sports for the Baltimore American. He has been at it ever since and is now head of the sports department of the New York Post. His wide acquaintance among the stars of the present day and his intimate knowledge of sports history, his free and easy narrative style and the unswerving justice of his criticism have made him popular with readers of all ages.
