Leibowitz Refuses To Aid Hauptmann

Congressional Probe Of Townsend Plan Will Be Staged

Flier Is Affable Host To Visitors

Admiral Byrd Refuses To Comment On Any New Plans For Further Explorations

By BILL DONNELL
Of The Avalanche Staff

ADMIRAL RICHARD E. BYRD lost his pipe while in Lubbock yesterday.

He was more perturbed over it than in getting ready for an engagement within 10 minutes.

He failed to cast aside his naval uniform coat for rolled-up sleeves attire, although Lubbock temperature which ranged in the thirties and low forties during his visit was summertime when compared with refrigerator weather ranging to 81 below in the Antarctic.

An Affable Host

He was, to the few who were allowed to see him, the affable host, the willingly interviewed, retired but not tiring or trying.

In fact, without his official attire, Admiral Byrd would seem the average business man—not the explorer who has given magnetic needles the jitters by taking them across the North and South poles, who has directed two other hazardous polar expeditions without loss of life to his assisting cohorts.

Approaching the half century mark, Byrd in nowise looks it. Firm-faced, weight average for his middle-size, clean shaven, blue-eyed, hair clipped high and fringed in grey, Byrd has apparently weathered a several months illness of monoxide poisoning suffered most severely when isolated, in 1934, 123 miles from "Little America"; and in addition, a lecture tour begun last October and not to end until early next May.

Couldn't Locate Pipe

Often described as "incessantly puffing on a pipe," Byrd Wednesday afternoon couldn't locate it, nor could J. E. McDonald, one of his traveling companions. Whether the pipe was found later was not known, the fact not so important as this one: The incident confirmed in practice his stated belief regarding a true sense of values.

The ordinary person would have more likely forgotten about the loss of a pipe in rushing to prepare for an immediate engagement.

"My long stay alone confirmed my idea of values: That simple, homely things are of most importance so far as they are construed from the standpoint of an individual."

"The infinite diversions 'up here' are in marked contrast with those in the Antarctic," Byrd said. "Of the dozens of things 'up here' which provide diversion, there is only contemplation in the Antarctic when alone. Here there is no chance to contemplate but to get about doing things to survive. Life follows a set groove."

Asked if he were to attempt further expeditions, Byrd said, "If I answered that I'd get in the Associated Press. When I've finished paying for the last expedition, not until, I might have something to say."

Byrd is making his present lecture tour of 400 engagements to remove a deficit of thousands of dollars from his last venture. Be-

Large Crowds Present Here For Lectures

Motion Pictures Of Life In Antarctic Shown By Admiral Byrd; Adventure Described By Noted Explorer

Adventure on the second Byrd expedition to the South Pole was explained to receptive audiences by Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd in running commentaries on 9,000 feet of motion pictures Wednesday afternoon and night in Senior High school auditorium.

One of the larger audiences ever to attend a Lubbock performance was present Wednesday afternoon. The audience was enthusiastic, although it had waited 45 minutes because of the admiral's delayed arrival. Regular seating capacity of 1,497 was filled and scores of persons were in the aisles.

Auditorium Packed

Last night, the auditorium was again packed as the noted explorer presented his lecture to an audience composed of townspeople and scores of people from over the South Plains.

The Texas Technological college artists course sponsored the lectures. Dr. Bradford Knapp, college president, introduced the admiral.

Touching briefly on scientific results of the expedition, the famous explorer and aviator spoke mainly on the "adventure had in pursuit of science".

In Full Naval Attire

Admiral Byrd appeared before the crowds in full naval attire to give introductory remarks, after which he was in evidence only through a well modulated voice explaining pictures shown on the screen, and during brief bows.

Appealing to young and old, the picture and lecture offered the educational and the comic.

Penguins strutting in the snow at the bottom of the world added a light touch, as did an acrobatic performance staged by one of the expedition's members for benefit of the penguins.

Wanted Opportunity

In speaking of his five months amazing vigil at Advance Base, Byrd said simply: "I did not want anyone to think it a sacrifice because I wanted the opportunity". He spoke only briefly of the "lonely vigil" and

Randolph Field Cadet Killed When Ship Falls Out Of Loop

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 19. (AP) — Wilkes S. Barnett, 24-year-old Randolph field student from Greenville, S. C., was killed today when his plane crashed on what was to have been one of his last basic training flights.

The young cadet, who was to have been graduated to Kelly field here next Friday, was killed when his machine made a loop close to the ground and spun into a thicket four and a half miles northeast of Lavernia, near here.

The plane did not burn.

Rifle Cartridge Swept Into Fire By Kansan Injures Her

OTTAWA, Kas., Feb. 19. (AP)—A rifle cartridge that exploded while she was sweeping the floor had Mrs. Robert Jones limping today.

Mrs. Jones was sweeping up some burning debris after extinguishing a small blaze in front of a stove and swept the cartridge into the glowing embers. It exploded and the cap struck her on the ankle.

Texas Studes Facing Fight

Attorney General Swings Into Action To Aid University In Fight To Retain Rights To "Eyes Of Texas"

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, Feb. 19.—Students of the University of Texas today faced possibility of a legal fight to retain free use of their school fight song, "The Eyes Of Texas."

Attorney General William McCraw swung into action to assist the students after it was revealed an arrangement published by a Boston firm had been copyrighted.

Suit Is Possible

McCraw mentioned possibility of a suit to have the copyright set aside. He and an assistant, Merton Harris, studied copyright laws and decisions and conferred with President H. Y. Benedict.

"Copyrighting 'The Eyes of Texas' is to a Texan like copyrighting 'The Star Spangled Banner' or 'Dixie'," said McCraw. "To University of Texas students and ex-students, it is like copyrighting the four gospels."

Written In 1903

For 30-odd years Texas students have cheered their teams in athletic contests with the song written in 1903 for a comic show of university students. The humorous initial verse and refrain was dropped and the chorus developed as the school's anthem.

"It has been adopted unofficially by the people of Texas as a state anthem," McCraw said, "and it is

Peach Crop In Sections Of Five States Struck By Cold

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19. (AP) — Agricultural experts reported tonight that cold weather virtually has destroyed prospects for a peach crop in sections of Illinois, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, and Iowa.

Other fruit apparently has been damaged little if any and field crops have benefitted in most sections of the middle and southwest from a heavy blanket of snow.

Pension Idea Is Claimed To Be Fantastic

Author Of Resolution Claims That People Of Nation Are Demanding To Know Real Facts Behind Move

Townsend Supporters Declare They Favor Inquiry But Denounce Attacks Made On Organization Officials

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. — The house voted 240 to 4 to investigate the Townsend and other old age pension movements today after hearing them defended from such charges as "fantastic and fraudulent."

Speaker Byrns said he would consult both Republican and Democratic leaders before appointing the eight-member investigating committee.

Bell To Be Chairman

Representative Bell (D-Mo), author of the inquiry resolution probably will be committee chairman, with the major political parties given equal representation.

Representatives Burdick (R-ND), Stefan (R-Neb), Marcantonio (R-NY) and Mortis (D-Pa)—who cast the dissenting votes, indictaed their belief the investigation would cost $50,000 to $60,000 and produce no definite results.

Bell branded the Townsend plan as "fantastic, impossible and fraudulent." He told the house he had received letters from all parts of the country "demanding that the people of the United States be given an opportunity to know the real facts behind this vast promotion."

No Reflection Cast

"I want to say I cast no reflection whatsoever on Dr. Townsend as a medical doctor," said Bell, ". . . but as a doctor of the ills which affict our social structure, he is a charlatan and a quack."

The Missourian said the depression's wide-spread want and unemployment "has been a fertile field in which these quacks and charlatans, these false prophets of social reform have promoted their schemes and rackets, reaping vast sums in unholy profits at the expense of tens of thousands of good and faithful, but deluded, followers."

Bell estimated the Townsend plan of $200 a month pensions to all persons 60 years old or over would require $24,000,000,000 annually. He said the two per cent transactions tax which the Townsendites propose would mean $800 in taxes every year on each family in the United States.

Investigation Favored

Townsend supporters announced they favored the investigation, but denounced attacks made on officials of the movement.

"The Townsend organization welcomes this investigation," said Representative Smith (D-Wash), "although taking the position there is no justification for it. There are between four and six million members of Townsend clubs who respect the integrity of their leaders and these people resent this investigation."

Representative Main (R-Mich) recently elected on a Townsend platform told the house he favored the inquiry but that he was "beginning to recognize the symptoms of political jitters which I was told were evident in Washington."

Guard At State Prison Is Shot As Result Of Argument

HUNTSVILLE, Feb. 19. (AP)—Gus Gray, guard in the state prison here, was wounded slightly tonight when shot by another guard after an argument.

Gray, who frustrated a break lead by the notorious Charlie Frazier in 1934, was permitted to go to his home after undergoing treatment at the prison hospital for buckshot wounds in the neck and shoulder.

Burning Bush Halts Rescue In New South Wales Crash

SYDNEY, New South Wales, Feb. 19. (AP)—Five persons were killed tonight when an airliner crashed in flames three miles from Dordeam dam in New South Wales.

The accident occurred after the plane's motor stalled. Rescue of the occupants was impossible because the surrounding bush caught fire.

Surgeon Operates In Zero Weather

Arm Amputated While Man Hangs By It In Mid-Air; Last Rites Had Been Offered

(By The Associated Press)

LOWELL, Mass., Feb. 19.—A surgeon operating fifty feet above the ground in zero weather amputated the arm of a man jammed between the control cab of a traveling crane and a steel girder today.

Dr. N. Gilmor Long, cut off the arm of John McCoy, Lowell Gas and Light company employe, at the shoulder after McCoy had hung suspended by his arm for two hours.

Cramped quarters of the cab served for an emergency operating room. Flashlights, held by firemen straddling girders, provided illumination for the surgeon.

One fireman, standing on the tip of a swaying extension ladder, handed Dr. Long his surgical instruments.

McCoy, after his two and a half hour ordeal, was reported at St. Joseph's hospital in "serious, but not critical condition."

Just before Dr. Long arrived Rev. Edwin F. Casey administered the last rites of the Catholic church.

Firemen quoted McCoy as saying, "take it off, get me out of here," when Dr. Long told him he must lose his arm.

McCoy's plight was discovered by fellow workmen soon after midnight when his screams attracted them. The traveling crane, they said, jumped its track and fell 20 feet to the girders supporting the tracks.

McCoy, thrown partly clear of the cab, was caught, head down, by his arm.

Firemen were unable to remove him. They had to use acetylene torches to cut through the tangled steel cab so that the doctor could reach McCoy.

Dairy States Coalition Sets Up Hue And Cry As Farm Bill Is Taken To Floor Of House

In Effort To Prevent Greater Dairy Production, Demands For Restoration Of Usages For Land Are Made

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—An outburst of controversy today met the administration's AAA-substitute farm bill as it started a journey through the house, scheduled by majority leaders to end in passage by Friday night.

An organized bloc of representatives from the dairy states hardly waited for the measure to reach the floor before opening an effort to prevent an increased dairy production under it.

Warn Against Forage Grasses

They demanded that lands taken out of wheat, cotton or other production under the subsidies-for-soil conservation program not be used for growing grasses or forage or for the production of livestock for sale.

Despite this move for amendment, and cries of "regimentation" and "unconstitutional" from other house quarters, leaders expressed confidence that a measure not radically different from that already passed by the senate could be enacted by Friday night and sent to conference with that branch.

Seek Enabling Procedure

Briefly, the legislation brought before the house would:

1.—Amend the 1935 soil erosion law to enable payments of grants or other aid to farmers until December 31, 1937, on condition that they improve soil fertility, promote economic use of land, and diminish exploitation and unprofitable use of national soil resources.

2.—Authorizes the secretary of agriculture to make payments after that date to states provided they arrange to have their farmers meet these conditions and maintain stable and adequate agricultural supplies at fair prices to producer and consumer.

Urges Allotment Bounties

The legislation would provide also for payment of "domestic allotment" bounties of domestic and foreign markets and disposition of surpluses; for use of AAA personnel; and for use of customs receipts as under the AAA to pay exporters bounties.

A $500,000,000 yearly limit on payments was fixed by the senate. Chairman Jones (D-Tex) of the house agricultural committee said he probably would propose writing it into the house version, also. Another amendment considered by the chairman and author of the house bill was to permit fixing of quotas on imports found to compete with agricultural markets.

Jack Dempsey And His Wife Are Expecting New Arrival

SALT LAKE CITY, Feb. 19. (AP)—Jack Dempsey and his wife, the former Hannah Williams of the stage, are expecting another child next summer, the former heavyweight champion said today in a message to the Salt Lake Telegram.

The arrival is looked for the last of July or early in August. Their first child, a girl, Joan Hannah, will be two years old next August 4.

GULF ATTORNEY DIES

BEAUMONT, Feb. 19. (AP)—Oswald S. Parker, member of the legal staff of the Gulf Production company and prominent Beaumont attorney, was found dead this afternoon in his automobile at Houston. He was 63 years of age.

Fierce Tempers Of Solons Might Be Ascribed To Raw Meat In House Restaurant

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Representative Treadway (R-Mass) told the house today that "raw meat" should be taken from its restaurant menu.

He read an editorial which said Representative Blanton (D-Tex) has offered to fight all the physicians in Washington, Representative O'Connor (D-NY) had offered to kick Father Charles E. Coughlin down Pennsylvania avenue and Representative Marcantonio (R-NY) proposed to meet the New York police commissioner in a gymnasium.

"All these things have happened in the last few days," said Treadway, "and I agree with the writer of this editorial that we ought to take raw meat off the house restaurant menu."

Aimee Facing Damage Claim

Vivian Denton, Former Publicity Agent For Temple, Asks $400,000; Declares She Was Slandered

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19. — Vivian Denton, former publicity agent for Angelus Temple, filed suit for $400,000 damages against Aimee Semple McPherson today, charging slander.

Miss Denton, former New York night club entertainer, accused the evangelist-pastor and founder of the temple, of saying:

"You are like a madam of a house of ill fame."

"You are a coarse and common woman."

"You are a devil out of hell."

"You are not a Christian; only a brat."

"You are an imp of satan and a creature out of hell."

Caused Her Suffering

These remarks caused Miss Denton "great and grievous mental and physical suffering," she charged.

Mrs. McPherson refused comment on the suit.

On Feb. 10 Miss Denton took poison after what she described to police as a lengthy quarrel with Mrs. McPherson.

"She said things to me that I just could not stand to take, and fired me," said Miss Denton at the time. Miss Denton still is confined to her home under the care of a nurse.

Pioneer Of Dickens County Claimed By Death Yesterday

SPUR, Feb. 19, (Special) — Funeral services for H. T. Garner, 66, pioneer resident of this county who died Wednesday morning, will be held Thursday afternoon at the First Christian church here. Burial will be in Spur cemetery.

Mr. Garner had been ill with pneumonia for two weeks. He came to Dickens county 45 years ago and worked in the development of the county. His wife, six children and a brother, A. J. Garner of Jacksboro, survive.

Death Claims Noted Aviator On Wednesday

Brigadier General William "Billy" Mitchell Dies In New York Hospital Following A Long Illness

End Unexpected

Known As Bad Boy Of Aviation Because Of His Criticism Of War And Navy Departments In Past Years

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Brigadier General William "Billy" Mitchell, 57, died late today in Doctor's hospital here after a long illness of influenza and heart affliction. He had been in the hospital since Jan. 28.

His open conflict with superiors on war department aviation policy resulted in his courtmartial in 1925 and he was suspended from the service for five years. He resigned his commission in 1926 and continued his criticisms of the war department from the lecture platform.

Death Is Sudden

Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, jr., who attended Mitchell during his illness, said death had come suddenly and unexpectedly. He said the general apparently had been improving during the past week and was believed in no immediate danger.

Dr. Lambert was with him at the time of his death.

General Mitchell was known as "the bad boy of aviation" to higher governmental forces because of his open criticisms of the war and navy departments. His suspension sentence was upheld by President Coolidge but was modified by allowance of half pay.

Resigns In 1926

But Mitchell, not wishing to be held in such status, resigned his commission Jan. 29, 1926, and announced he would go on lecture tour to show that the United States had inadequate air defenses.

The son of U. S. Senator John Ledrum and Harriet Danforth Mitchell, Mitchell rose from a volunteer in the first Wisconsin infantry to command of the entire air forces in the American expeditionary forces. He was the first American officer to fly over the lines in World war and in the St. Mihiel offensive. Later in 1918, he commanded the largest aerial concentration in the history of the world.

Was Highly Honored

For his exploits in the World war he was awarded the Distinguished Service cross; the Distinguished Service medal; the French Croix De Guerre with five palms and was made a commander of the French Legion of Honor. The British made him a companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George and Italy honored him as a commandatore of S. S. Maurizio E Lazzaro, the war cross and grand officer of the crown.

After he was commissioned a lieutenant in the regular army, he was promoted through all grades to lieutenant colonel on May 15, 1917. August 5, 1917, he was given the temporary rank of colonel and, on October 1, 1918, he was given the temporary rank of brigadier general

Negro Is Given His Liberty After 30 Years In Prison

AUSTIN, Feb. 19. (AP)—Sam Harris, Jefferson county negro once under sentence of death, today obtained his liberty on a general parole after 30 years in the penitentiary.

One of the "forgotten men" in prison, the governor's proclamation said Harris served over 30 years straight time, or 43 years with overtime and commutation, and "has never had a furlough."

Action On State Projects Being Urged By Montgomery

FORT WORTH, Feb. 19. (AP) — Letters were sent out today by Julian Montgomery, state PWA director, urging all applicants that have received PWA allotments to begin work immediately.

"There is a danger that allotments will be rescinded unless work starts within a reasonable length of time," he explained.

PNEUMONIA VICTIM DIES

Pneumonia at 12:45 o'clock this morning claimed Marion Ellis, 23, of Anton, scarcely four hours after he had been admitted to a hospital here and a week after he became ill. Oxygen was administered in a futile effort to save him. Ellis, son of M. L. Ellis of Anton, was employed by Telford Lumber company there. A sister living at Anton is the only other survivor in the immediate family. The body was taken by Rix Funeral home.

Uncertainties Of Tax Plan Occupy Dems

Shaping Of Program Discussed By President And Advisors; Limited Plan Likely Because Of Two-Fold Cause

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—New conjectures, mixed with uncertainty, today surrounded the administration's tax program as President Roosevelt and his fiscal advisors once more conferred on the shaping of a plan—concededly a major hurdle remaining in the path of congressional adjournment.

Representative Bankhead of Alabama, the majority leader, said after a luncheon with Mr. Roosevelt that he did not expect congress would receive any tax suggestions until next week.

Will Be Limited

The possibility that the program would be limited was seen by some in Bankhead's statement that "at present, I am sure, he (the president) has no new controversial suggestions to make that might delay adjournment."

Experts in the treasury and agriculture departments already have drafted tentative proposals for levies which would bring in a maximum of $900,000,000—the amount estimated required for all farm needs and cash bonus payment.

But one phase of the complete program would involve changes in income tax legislation, and many members of congress are known to be opposed to action on such a controversial subject in a campaign year.

Another Of Series

The conference today was another of a series in which the president has been canvassing the New Deal's entire financial picture to determine what funds must be raised and where savings could be made.

Bankhead said Mr. Roosevelt expressed a desire for ship subsidy legislation, but reported a belief the executive would not insist upon this to "indefinitely tie up adjournment."

Speaker Byrns coincidentally told newsmen the tax bill would be given right of way when it is presented to congress. He said the session might wind up by April 15.

Tyler Youth Gives Self Up After His Escape From Jail

MONROE, La., Feb. 19. (AP)—Wymond Allsup, 18, Tyler, Tex., youth who with two other prisoners escaped Tuesday from the Henderson county jail at Athens, Tex., where he was held as one of two men who robbed an Athens filling station, walked into the editorial offices of the Monroe Morning World and News-Star here today and surrendered to a police reporter.

"I want to go back and face the charge against me, and start life over again after everything is settled," the youth said.

President Joins Eleventh Fraternal Group Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP) — President Roosevelt joined today his eleventh fraternal organization, the Knights of Pythias, setting what some believed to be a "joiner" record for a chief executive.

Today's induction ceremony, held in the diplomatic room of the White House, conferred the three degrees of the Knights of Pythias on the chief executive—page, esquire and knight, symbolic of friendship, prudence and benevolence.

Fate Stacks Cards Against Bruno And Attorney Says Man Has But Bare Chance To Escape Death

New Date Is Set

Stolid German Tells His Own Story Of How He Would Have Kidnaped Baby; Says Would Have Used Gang

BY SAMUEL G. BLACKMAN
Associated Press Staff Writer

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 19—Samuel S. Leibowitz, veteran criminal lawyer, quit his efforts in behalf of Bruno Richard Hauptmann tonight, explaining his withdrawal from the case in a statement strongly indicating that he believed Hauptmann guilty of the Lindbergh kidnap-murder.

The Leibowitz withdrawal came with dramatic suddenness at the end of a crowded day in which the new date for Hauptmann's death was fixed for the week of March 30, and in which Hauptmann from his death house cell sent forth an appeal that he be permitted to see Dr. John F. Condon once more. "I believe I can prove to him I am not the man," Hauptmann said of Condon.

LAWYER'S STATEMENT

"Lloyd Fisher has today been more than cooperative. We've brought home to Bruno Richard Hauptmann at the death house in unmistakable language the plight which confronts him.

"He understands that at the present moment there is not available the newly discovered evidence which the law demands, before any court of this state will grant him a new trial. He understands that his case has been fought up to the very highest tribunal of the country, the U. S. Supreme court in Washington, and that Mr. Fisher and Judge (President) Pope (another defense attorney) have moved heaven and earth to save him through the courts.

"He understands very clearly that his last card has been played and he has lost there as well. Both Mr. Fisher and I have told him there is little further that any lawyer can do for him.

"His only salvation as matters stand now lies in his making a clean breast of whatever guilty participation he may have had in this fiendish crime.

"Mr. Fisher's attitude as expressed is that he still believes Hauptmann's story.

"Prominent persons not identified with Hauptmann and bearing no personal interest in the matter other than a sincere desire to get at the bottom of this horrible crime and fiends that are guilty induced me to make an effort to unravel.

"When Mrs. Hauptmann called at my office I made clear to her my position and the condition under which I would consent to become her husband's attorney.

"I told her publicly that I would not under any circumstances lend myself to any proposal to defeat the ends of justice.

"My opinion as to her husband's guilt or innocence, which I had after a close study of the evidence in the case has not been changed one bit by the three intensive and exhaustive conferences at the death house.

"I cannot see how I can serve the interests of justice any further by my continued participation.

"I therefore want no further part in any of it. I know that Lloyd Fisher has done everything humanly possible for his client. He is a splendid lawyer and will continue to exercise his talents and energies to the utmost in the client's behalf.

"But I for one have refused to associate myself as this man's attorney."

CONSERVATION and thrift are two phases that are of particular interest to members of the Daughters of the American Revolution and those in the local chapter were asked last Saturday to collect data on what they had done along these lines last year and give their tabulations to Mrs. J. L. Barstow, local chairman.

Can you imagine how difficult this check-up was revealed to be? There is not a person who fails to do some piece of human conservation, some private charity, some community service, some rehabilitation of body or spirit. Practically every woman "puts up" some article of food, repairs a piece of furniture, passes on garments or literature to those who have less, or cultivates some plant. These things come under the heading of conservation.

If you pick up a Tech student who is thumbing his way down Broadway, you are enabling him to conserve energy that may be spent later in a laboratory or lecture period instead of using it in walking. When you purchase labor saving devices for your home you are following household conservation. Its opportunities are almost limitless.

THE A.A.U.W. FELLOWSHIPS

APPROACHING the last year when they will contribute to a million dollar fellowship fund, the local American Association of University Women branch wonders what use those who have held awards from the national association have made of their training.

A record of the fellows lists seven as college administrators, 16 as heads of college departments, 29 as college professors, 21 as associate college professors, 10 as assistant college professors, 10 as college instructors and 10 as doing other college teaching. Fourteen of the women are doing other teaching in South America, Mexico and other countries, 30 are doing research and writing, three are doing literary work and the others are in business, in social service work and the like.

Six fellows married soon after the fellowship year, one refunded half of the stipend when she became engaged during her fellowship year.

WOMEN AND RELIGION

FROM John Erskine's new book, "The Influence of Women and Its Cure," a clip sheet presents the following:

"The male element in religion is positive, the female is passive. You can turn to religion either to give something or to get something. You either are aflame with a vision and wish to utter it, or you are looking for comfort, for a spiritual salve, a bandage or a plaster. The masculine form of religion is aggressive, it would build an empire, it would spread its gospel; the feminine form is introspective, it is occupied with its own sensations in the presence of a ritual or a discipline, it would rather conform than push ahead."

TALE OF A COW

WE wish that man with holes in the soles of his shoes who stole the A. N. Gamble's cow would have asked them for milk instead of breaking the law. They would have given him some daily, we are almost sure, since they had been supplying Mrs. W. T. Milam's orphanage. Officers traced the cow and the man who stole her by their tracks, losing them when the cow was placed in a truck.

Miss Jean Shelley Jennings Is Married To Patrick Henry

Fathers Of Bride And Groom Officiate In Impressive Church Ceremony; Sisters Are Attendants

The marriage of Miss Jean Shelley Jennings, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Walter P. Jennings, 218 Alpine Drive, Plainview, and Patrick Henry, jr., son of the Rev. and Mrs. Patrick Henry, 2548 University Drive, Fort Worth, was performed at 7 p. m. Tuesday at the Plainview First Christian church.

The vows were read by fathers of the couple.

Mrs. Sam J. McFarland, aunt of the bride, played prelude in C minor by Chopin and "A Western Romance" by Davies preceding the ceremony and accompanied Mrs. Helen Fouts Cahoon of Fort Worth as she sang "Impatience" by Schubert and "All For You" by D'Hardelot.

The bridal party entered to the strains of the bridal chorus from Lohengrin by Wagner.

A color scheme of white and green was used in all details.

Spanish moss and smilax decked the chancel rails and candelabra bearing white cathedral tapers were placed on the altar, which was flanked with large baskets of white carnations and stock. Tall potted palms were used in the choir loft.

In White Satin

The bride wore pearl white satin designed with cowl neckline, dolman sleeves tight-fitted from the elbow and a train. She wore a satin coronet and her tulle veil was caught at the back with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley, and entered with her brother-in-law, Elliott Taylor of Post, who gave her in marriage.

The bride's attendants wore green dresses and carried bouquets of shasta daisies and white stock.

Miss Elizabeth Henry of Fort Worth, sister of the bridegroom, was maid-of-honor. Mrs. Elliot Taylor of Post, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and Mrs. John Gammon of Muleshoe, the bride's sister, and Miss Eugenia Smith of Sherman were bridesmaids.

Granville Walkers of Fort Worth was best man.

Groomsmen

Groomsmen were Jim Parrot of Butler, Mo., Otto Nielsen of Fort Worth, Springer Williams of Amarillo and Mr. Gammon.

The couple is at home at 2217 Polk street in Amarillo.

Out-of-town guests at the ceremony were from Lubbock, Amarillo, Post and other towns in this section.

Mrs. Henry is a graduate of Texas Technological college, where she was a popular student and was chosen twice as one of the most beautiful girls on the campus. She has been teaching in Plainview public schools the last year.

Mr. Henry, a graduate of Texas Christian university, Fort Worth, is secretary for the North Texas conference of the Y. M. C. A. He is active in young peoples work in the Christian church and is an ordained minister.

Riches From Productive Land Of Ethiopia Sought By Italy

Fascists Certain To Locate Wealth In Vast Land; Rich Agricultural Stretches Are Needed By Rome

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Foreign Staff

AKSUM, Ethiopia, Jan. 27. (By Airmail And Ship To New York, Feb. 19.)—One swift glance over the plain of Aksum, encompassing some hundreds of square miles of level, rich plain, suddenly makes you realize where Italy is certain to find wealth in Ethiopia.

It may not be in the massive mountains, or hidden in quartz or river beds, as they found it in California and the Klondike.

There may or may not be oil, the black gold of Texas, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma and most of the rest of the southwest and far west, under the hills and plains farther to the southward.

May Not Hold Copper

No one has been able to determine yet whether the mountains that someday may afford visitors vistas that make Alpine veterans gasp, also hold the copper that is Montana's, the silver of the far-western lodes.

One look, however, shows that the rich black soil of the plain country of the Tembien province contains all the potential riches that the same sort of land brought to the cotton planters of the Mississippi valley, of North America's south in general. Certainly there is all the wealth there of the corn and wheat lands of the middle and northwest, black, gummy teeming soil that rivals the silt of the Nile.

Agricultural experimental stations have been distributed around the conquered sections, with the headquarters at Adigrat. On the Somaliland front on the far south, where climatic conditions are entirely different from the north, Italy has been experimenting for years, in its own possession of Somaliland.

No Limit To Crops

The results show that there is no limit to the crops that Ethiopia, under proper cultivation and with the right sort of irrigation, will produce. All tropical fruits thrive in the south and surprisingly enough, peanuts do as well as coconuts. In the north the experiments indicate that the entire range of food crops, winter and summer wheat, cotton, oats, potatoes, fruits, and all the truck farm produce are in their element.

In the plain of Aksum alone it is estimated there is room for 50,000 Italian farmers, a tremendous outlet for a nation of 40,000,000 that covers little more territory than one large American state. This plain alone might become in time the breadbasket of an Italian nation that today raises on the former Pontine marshes considerable wheat.

Could Raise Cattle

An Italy that today imports tremendous quantities of beef, mostly from the Argentine, is looking down on territory where enough cattle to feed the nation could brouse on hill sides and in fertile valleys, and scarcely take up enough room to get in the way of anybody's plans.

Goats, the national meat supply here at the moment, thrive without any care, and sheep, with their economically invaluable crop of wool, apparently could do just as well.

The ease with which water has been made available has surprised everyone. In the Ogaden desert country to the south, 30-foot wells bring water to the surface, usually without the necessity of pumping. There is surface moisture in all the northern valleys, even in the dry season. A little digging, a few pumps, and year round irrigation seems simple.

So the Italian leaders seem to know whereof they spoke when they said there was gold in Ethiopia. They may not find it in lumps, but it is there.

Trio Indicted In Theft Of Cattle

BROWNFIELD, Feb. 19. (Special)—Nine indictments charging cattle theft were returned last week by a 106th district court grand jury here against three men, two of whom, Oscar Sumner and Buck Brewer, are in custody, said Sheriff J. S. Smith.

The other man remained at large.

Sheriff Smith said approximately 56 head of cattle had been missed on ranges of the Brownfield and the T-Bar ranches, which, he said, are proximate to the Sumner ranch in Lynn county. Two batches of hides, sections that formerly had carried brands cut out, were dug from the ground on Sumner's property, as well as heads and feet, and "brand patches" were found in a cistern, he said.

Beef the sheriff said was believed to have belonged to the two ranches was sold at Tahoka, Post, Bronte, Borger, Pampa, and Shamrock.

A grand jury of the same judicial district is reported to be investigating the case at Tahoka.

Sheriff Smith said Lubbock police arrested Sumner and transferred him to the Lubbock sheriff's department, which, in turn, released him to custody of the Terry county sheriff, and that Brewer's delivery was made possible by Lubbock authorities.

Byrd Interview

fore the results of the expedition are finally recorded, Byrd estimated a dozen books have yet to be completed.

Many Branches Aided

He said 22 branches of science were aided through findings already reported and others yet to be investigated.

Byrd claimed for the Antarctic that it was the most fertile field in the world for additional scientific data; for a study of an active ice age; for its vast unexplored area; and for adventure.

"No matter what you might go for, if there is no adventure, you're bankrupt," Byrd commented in explaining the costliness of any expedition to the Antarctic.

"There would be no excuse for spending money and risking lives just for the sake of an adventure," he declared, "but I would not go for the sake of science unless adventure went with it."

Substantiating already published statements by the explorer, Byrd said Wednesday that he saw in the immediate future the utilization of the southern polar regions as a refrigerator "for storing goods in time of plenty against a time of drouth and need."

Also, Byrd called attention to the known vast regions of coal and the unknown variety and quantity of minerals and ores which underlie the cap of snow and ice.

Interested In Aviation

"I became interested in aviation as soon as the Wrights flew, and I determined to fly."

Securing his "wings" in war-time, he was already in the U. S. Naval air corps and commanded this country's air forces in Canadian waters during the war. He determined to be the first to fly over the North pole, discovered by Peary in 1912, and accomplished that aim in the company of Floyd Bennett May 9, 1926. In 1925, he accompanied the MacMillan expedition to Greenland as flight commander.

He Spanned Atlantic

Before his two Antarctic expeditions, he was one of a four passenger flight which spanned the Atlantic from New York to Ver-sur-Mer, France, June 29 - July 1, 1927.

His first trip, lasting two years, to Antarctic was begun in the fall of 1928 and resulted in establishing of "Little America." The second Antarctic expedition left in October, 1933, to return May 10, 1935. His lectures here were based on the latter jaunt.

Byrd has received all the citations and medals possible for the United States government to bestow, and also many from other lands. Nine of these crosses are on three bars, which adorned the coat he wore during his stay in Lubbock.

Poultry Show Opens Friday

Eleventh Annual Tri-County Affair To Be Conducted At Seagraves; Many Prizes Are Offered To Winners

SEAGRAVES, Feb. 19. (Special)—Eleventh annual Tri-County Poultry show, the pioneer county show on the South Plains, will be held here Friday and Saturday with the Seagraves and Seminole Chambers of Commerce cooperating with Lee R. Pool, county agent and vocational agriculture teachers to make the show a success.

At the same time the show will mark the local observance of the Texas Centennial, Mr. Pool stated. Visitors are expected from Gaines, Terry and Yoakum counties as well as exhibits from those counties.

Boys Plan Entries

Future Farmers of America members and 4-H club boys will have entries in the show. There will be several new features, including a feeder calf division, as many of the boys did not get their animals on feed until late. Fat lambs is a new division also.

Charles A. King, assistant county agent at Lubbock and former cotton adjustment assistant for Gaines and Yoakum counties, will judge the poultry show Friday afternoon, Mr. Pool announced.

Winners from the calf and pig divisions will probably enter the Lubbock Quality Meat show late in March. Some animals also are on feed for the Texas Centennial shows in Dallas during the year.

Prizes Are Offered

Business men here and at the county seat have cooperated with ranchers and farmers in raising prize money. The Seminole hatchery, Manager Woodward announces, will have a commercial baby chick exhibit. Plenty of coops and stalls for the livestock have been secured.

Prizes are announced as follows:

Baby beef division: 1, $6.50; 2, $5; 3, $3.50; 4, $2 and 5 and 6, $1.

Feed calf division: 1, $5; 2, $3.50; 3, $2.50; 4, $1.50 and 5, $1.

Grand champion: $5.

Fat lamb division: $5, $4, $3, $2 and six $1 premiums.

Best pen of 5 fat lambs: $5, $3, $2 and $1.

Grand champion lamb: $3.

Fat pigs, (classes over and under 150 pounds weight) $5, $4, $3, $2 and $1 in each class; grand champion, $3.

Poultry division, premiums paid on all standard breeds as follows: best cock, hen, pullet and cockerel, $1, 50 cents and ribbon for high three; young and old pen, $1.50, 75 cents and ribbon; champion male and female, $1.

Turkeys: best pen, $1.50, 75 cents, ribbon; best tom and hen, $1, 50 cents and ribbon; best pair ducks, $1, 50 cents and ribbon; best pair pigeons, same.

Best colts under two years: $2, $1.50 and $1.

Rabbits: best doe and best buck, $1, 50 cents and ribbon.

R. H. Wells, vocational agriculture teacher here and Dewey Davis, teacher at Seminole, are assisting Mr. Pool. President Joe H. Webb of the Seagraves Chamber of Commerce and Secretary Willard Bright also are helping with arrangements.

Tom Walker, who inspired the expression, "The devil or Tom Walker," was Thomas Jefferson's guardian, daddy of "Albermarle Pippin," founder of Charlottesville, host of presidents, and doctor, soldier and pioneer.

Newfoundland is probably the largest civilized territory in the world without a military force. Its nearest approach to one is the Church Lads' Brigade, which is armed with rifles.

Regains Appetite After New Gly-Cas Tones His System

Mr. Moore Suffered With Gas And Indigestion, Frequent Dizzy Spells; Gly-Cas Again Proves Master Medicine

Lubbock residents by the hundreds will tell you that Gly-Cas is the greatest system purifier they have ever found and there is no substitute for the merit of this new remedy. Former sufferers are judges of medicines for they know from actual experience the REAL medicines of the market today.

"There is only one Gly-Cas and sufferers should realize it and profit by it," said Mr. W. A. Moore, 609 East Queen St., Tyler, Tex., "There were many foods that I had been unable to eat for years such as cabbage, pickles, onions etc., and it got so I was badly able to eat anything but that they would cause terrible suffering with gas, bloating and indigestion. My stomach would become terribly sore and was so nervous I could hardly stand it at times. Nervous spells nearly wrecked me, and often become so dizzy. I lost all desire for foods as they just meant suffering to me. Then too my kidneys were giving me trouble and I was not allowed a full nights sleep. But I never saw any medicines that could equal the results that this new Gly-Cas gave me—it was remarkable even when all else had failed in my case."

"My stomach and kidneys were regulated almost at once," continued Mr. Moore, "Dizzy spells are now in the past and my appetite is as fine as it can be. It is really wonderful to be able to eat and enjoy my meals again, sleep fine the entire night through and just feel like a different man in everyway. Sufferers cannot go wrong in trying Gly-Cas for it gives the desired results."

Gly-Cas is sold by Mark Halsey Drug Store, 1217 Broadway, and by all leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

Gly-Cas $1.00 per box—6 boxes $5.00. Add 2c postage for each box ordered. Send money orders made payable Mark Halsey Drug Store. Don't send cash. Checks not accepted—No C. O. D. Mail Orders.—Adv.

A LIGHT SMOKE
OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

Luckies are less acid. One of the chief contributions of the Research Department in the development of A LIGHT SMOKE is the private Lucky Strike process, "IT'S TOASTED." This preheating process at higher temperatures consists of four main stages, which involve carefully controlled temperature gradations. Quantities of undesirable constituents are removed. In effect, then, this method of preheating at higher temperatures constitutes a completion or fulfillment of the curing and aging processes.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

Matadors Topple Wildcats Off Border Conference Lead In Bruising Game; Garrett And Case Lead Scoring

(By The Associated Press)

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 19. — Texas Tech's Matadors snatched a sensational 41 to 39 victory from the University of Arizona here tonight to topple the Wildcats from first place in the Border conference cage standings.

Trailing 30 to 25 and with less than six minutes to play, the Texans launched a smashing scoring drive that soon overhauled the Cats and put the score at 37-37.

From then on it was a bruising battle with Tech ekeing out a victory by the margin of a single field goal.

The teams meet again tomorrow night.

Tech "Loses Money" On Trip To Tempe

Minus $700 in checks and cash for traveling expenses, the Texas Tech Matador basketball team left Tempe, Ariz., for Tucson Wednesday, the Associated Press reported.

Bo Williams, graduate manager, had the money in a wallet but during the night it was stolen. Police were notified.

It was necessary for the team to check on the home bank to continue the trip.

Junior Cage Tourney Booked At Wolfforth This Weekend; Schedule Made For 21 Clubs

Junior boys and girls basketball championships will be decided this week when 11 boys and 10 girls teams engage in a two-day tournament at Wolfforth.

Play will be launched at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon, continue that night and be resumed at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon, said E. R. Haskins, superintendent of the host district, Frenship.

All rural schools are entering teams with exception of the Roosevelt district. New Deal district will enter only a boys team.

Schedule Is Made

First place trophies will be awarded. Competent officials will be selected, said Supt. Haskins. Any other school not listed in first round pairings is eligible to enter junior teams.

First round play follows:

Friday: Liberty vs Union (boys) at 1 o'clock; Union vs Woodrow (girls) at 2; County Line vs Slaton (boys) at 3; County Line vs. Becton (girls) at 4. Shallowater vs New Deal (boys) at 5. Liberty vs Shallowater (girls) at 6. Idalou vs Woodrow (boys) at 7. Idalou vs Frenship (girls) at 8. Becton vs Frenship (boys) at 9. New Hope boys drew a bye in first round play.

Paul Waner Refuses Pirate Contract; Salary Reduced

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 19. (AP)—The Post-Gazette says Paul Waner, hard hitting Pirate outfielder has refused to sign a Pittsburgh contract for 1936 because of a "heavy cut" in salary.

The newspaper quotes Waner as saying at his home in Sarasota, Fla.:

"When I received the contract sent me by the club, I was fairly stunned at first over the figures. I thought for a while that somebody in the office had made a mistake.

"Naturally I sent it back unsigned."

Shanghai lies in about the same latitude as Mobile, Ala.

Jock The Socker

JOCK McAVOY is England's new fistic hope, and a real one for a change. . . . Ringsiders at his first two battles in Madison Square Garden decided either that British boxing is on the upgrade or that this Briton from Manchester isn't boxing British. . . . He is the antithesis of such famous swooning Britishers as 'Phainting Phil" Scott. . . . McAvoy impressed the New York critics of Fistiana first by outpointing Al McCoy, Boston light-heavy, in a lopsided 15-rounder, and then by a one-round kayo over Middleweight Champion Babe Risko in a non-title bout. . . . Risko hit the deck half a dozen times before the coup de grace was delivered. . . . McAvoy has promised to take the world middle and light-heavy crowns back to England. . . . He holds the British title at those weights. . . . The Garden has matched McAvoy for a 15-round title bout in New York April 3, with John Henry Lewis, the Arizona negro, now reigning as champion of the next-to-heavyweight group.

No Changes Made In District Cage Tournament Here

Russell T. "Dutchy" Smith, acting athletic director of this district, said last night that no changes had been made in the schedule or plans for the annual interscholastic district basketball tournament which starts at Texas Tech gymnasium Friday morning.

The schedule opens at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning with champions of Terry and Yoakum counties playing the first game.

At 10 o'clock, the Garza county champion will meet Lubbock's official title holder, Shallowater High school, which won the flag Tuesday night in a play-off.

An interesting game is scheduled for 11 o'clock when teams of Plainview and Lubbock high schools meet. They are the two city units of the district not required to play in county elimination tournaments.

12 Games Friday

Draw, champion of Lynn county, will meet Abernathy, Hale county champion, in a first round game beginning at 12 o'clock.

In the lower bracket is Lamesa, champion of Dawson county and favored to repeat in the district tournament as champion. Lamesa was defeated by Denton in the state final last year. The Golden Tornadoes meet Levelland, champion of Hockley county, in a first round game at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Championship teams of Lamb and Cochran counties meet at 2 p. m., and Ralls, champion of Crosby county, plays the Floyd county winner at 3 o'clock. First round games will be over after the winners of Bailey and Dickens counties meet at 4 o'clock.

The four second round or quarter-final games will start at 5 o'clock with winners playing winners down the bracket.

Ship Gets 'Kaptenskan' When Her Master Marries Royalty

LONDON, Feb. 19—The romantic wind-jammer Herzogin Cecile, now bound for Australia to take part in the 1936 grain race, has added a kaptenskan to her crew.

The kaptenskan is Pamela Bourne, daughter of the late Sir Roland and Lady Bourne of London.

A year ago Miss Bourne quit a job on a British newspaper to make a trip 'round Cape Horn on the Herzogin Cecile, one of the most beautiful sailing ships in the world. She signed on as a passenger but during the long, hard trip helped with the washing and cooking. She also wrote a book.

And just before the vessel started again southward she married Sven Erikson, the Capiain. Now she is signed on permanently as kaptenskan.

Achiu Defeats Nick Bozinis; Meyers In Tie

Greek Grappler Divides Work, Turns On Referee; Achiu Throws Him; Kentucky Man Brings Surprise

Nick Bozinis was getting along pretty good—too good to suit 95 per cent of the fans; too good, even, for Nick himself. He got a bit chesty, took it upon himself suddenly to whip two men instead of one.

The referee was handy, and the referee had been bothering old Nick for 51 minutes. So Nick turned on the referee. That was where he made his mistake. That was why Walter Achiu, the not-so-clever-last-night Chinese, won the main event on Sled Allen's wrestling program at the Auditorium last night. At least, that's why he won it 13 minutes after the third fall started, instead of, perhaps, later on.

Or Too Much Bozinis?

Achiu, undefeated in the local circuit, a prize specimen of Oriental manhood and ordinarily one of the most exciting of middleweight wrestlers, was outwrestled last night. He might have been feeling bad, disappointed because he didn't get to go hear Admiral Byrd maybe, or sadly reflecting upon internal strife in China. At any rate, he wasn't at his best, didn't do much offensive wrestling.

Of course Nick Bozinis might have had something to do with Achiu's poor showing. Walter won the match, all right; probably would have won it even if Bozinis hadn't turned on Referee Dale Haddock. But Bozinis was doing his best; he wanted to win that match, and he carried the fight all the way.

The main event, however, was not all of the show.

In fact, the semi-final match came near to swiping the works. In the semi-final match, Luis de la Torre, the handsome Spaniard, fought Ray Meyers, Louisville, Ky., veteran, to a 30-minute draw. But there's more to the story than that.

Two For One

Meyers was making his debut. Thirty-nine years old, he is, and a professional wrestler since he came home from the world war. In fact, he was wrestling in 1916. A pure American, educated, more or less handsome, intelligent, wrinkle-browed, well-built, Meyers gave the folks a two-in-one show last night.

For 20 minutes Meyers and la Torre did fast scientific stuff, which was pleasing the people but not arousing much noise from the bleachers. Fast, both of them, the veteran Meyers, who certainly knows his way around the ropes, matched everything the clever Spaniard had in the way of speed, feinting and clean showmanship. Neither of them grasped a good hold during the first five minutes. Then they grappled cleanly and swiftly, slowing up when Meyers fixed a hammer-lock that he held for 3 minutes and which threatened to make la Torre give up.

It was too good to be true, or too clean, at any rate. The spark went off all of a sudden, and for the next ten minutes there was a terrific contest between two men suddenly gone mad. To the credit of both of them, neither sought protection behind the ropes, but Meyers, who, if not tired, probably would fight a clean fight all the way, got in some neat licks with his fist, some clever hair-pulling and other illegal holds.

The newcomer started out the big favorite, cheered on by fans who had nothing against la Torre except that he is a "foreigner," but he wound up 100 per cent unpopular. La Torre mixed it with him, but Meyers carried the fight, never stopping, never holding up.

"Come on and rassle!" he challenged la Torre, and he meant it. He whisked about the ring like a fresh colt, feinting in and out to deliver solid blows that all but escaped the attention of the referee but which dealt out misery nevertheless.

La Torre handed a lot of it back, drew cheers for it, but he found the Kentuckian, like two other well-known Kentuckians, Tiger Moore and Bobby Burns, as tough as the proverbial bootheel. He can take it, this Mr. Meyers can. La Torre can take it, too; they'd make a good main event pairing.

Don Carver Wins

The folks got a laugh out of and had a lot of jeers for Ed Schuman and Don Carver in the preliminary. It was fast and active, but it was mostly hokum and hooey, especially Schuman's part of it. Carver worked industriously, and surprised everybody by suddenly winning the preliminary match four minutes before it would have been a draw. The New Mexican did some clever work, including some of the repertoire of Dory Detion, and had the bully from Houston running half the time. He seemed much smaller and less muscled, but Carver finally hoisted Schuman, let him drop in the pile-driver hold, smothered him there.

The main event was fair to look upon, what with Bozinis dashing around, winning the first fall with his back-breaker hold in 11 minutes of rough play.

They twizzled for 27 minutes in the second fall before Achiu grabbed a Bozinis arm and whipped him with a wrist-lock all over the ring, slamming him and applying a cruel surfboard. Bozinis had been thwarted in his efforts to regain the back-breaker.

Nick continued to carry the fight in the third fall, but in 13 minutes Achiu rushed him, while Bozinis was entangled with the referee, and smothered him.

Tech Stages "Fun Night" Program In Gym At 7:30

Varsity, Freshman Gridders Receive Letter Awards

Postponed from last Thursday night, Texas Tech's annual winter "fun night" program goes on at the Tech gymnasium at 7:30 p. m. today.

The Tech athletic department invites the public to attend. There is no admittance charge, no reserved seats.

Object of the affair is to honor varsity and freshman football players of the 1935 season. Coach Pete Cawthon will direct distribution of letter awards to standout performers last season, and fans who have witnessed one of these ceremonies know that the presentation of letters is an occasion of importance.

Program Not Changed

The entertainment program announced for last week has not been changed. Gwynn Dowell, former Tech star, is in charge of the special entertainment features, which consist of three bouts of boxing, specialty acts by dancers, skaters and rope artists, and music furnished by a team of "fiddlers."

Three of Texas Tech's outstanding boxers, each of whom has won state amateur championships, will be paired against a trio of well known boxers from the Ralls and Crosbyton area.

James Elder, who failed by a slim margin to repeat as state amateur lightweight champion in the AAU tournament at Houston week before last, will meet John D. Walters of Crosbyton, who has appeared on several independent cards.

Joe Elder, brother of James and a middleweight, will meet Ray Campbell, and Milton Coffey, former state middleweight champion, represents Tech against the well known John Buck of Crosbyton.

Lubbock Cowboys Oppose Plainview

Coach Lovic Liston's Lubbock Junior high school Cowboy cagers will wind up their basketball season in a game with the Plainview juniors starting at 3:15 o'clock at the senior high school gymnasium.

At the same time, the Cowboys will be after revenge for a 15 to 14 defeat they suffered in a game with the Plainview team on the latter's court earlier in the season.

Coach Liston has shifted his lineup considerably, believes his team is "ready" for a victorious windup.

Harbert and Foster are due to start at forwards for Lubbock today, Aldredge at center, Moxley and Southard at guards.

Operating Bookie Shop Still Is Misdemeanor, Court Rules

AUSTIN, Feb. 19. (AP)—The court of criminal appeals today refused to revise a former opinion holding that operation of a bookie shop was a misdemeanor and not a felony and opened the way for a supreme court decision in two suits contesting legality of pari-mutuel wagering on dog races.

The criminal court ruled that article 625 of the penal code, a felony statute which included a broad, general prohibition against use of premises for gambling purposes, in addition to outlawing specified types of wagering, did not apply to places where wagers were accepted on horse races, but that a special statute making the offense a misdemeanor controlled.

The decision was expected to have a bearing on a supreme court ruling in two civil suits attacking legality of pari-mutuel wagering on dog races. The state sought to enjoin operation of dog race tracks on the basis of the prohibition in article 625, arguing it applied to all forms of gambling.

"Article 625 specifically mentioned the games prohibited and the legislature did not intend to include therein betting on horse races, football and baseball games, bookmaking or pool selling," the majority opinion, written by Associate Justice F. L. Hawkins stated.

Fish Beware!

Mayor And Party Off For Gulf

Introducing a new wrinkle in fishing trips, a party of seven local sportsmen left Lubbock late yesterday afternoon in a dirigible-like land craft, equipped as a "house on wheels," for Port Aransas and a week of deep sea fishing in the gulf.

Headed by Mayor Ross Edwards, the party making the big trailer's maiden voyage to the coast consists of Hub Jones, Bill Humphries, John Dalrymple, Lawrence Bacon, Owner Jack Casey and Driver Paul Ward.

The party was to drive all night, and planned to arrive at Port Aransas about 10 o'clock this morning. The return trip will start next Wednesday, allowing six days of fishing.

The huge trailer, built along the lines of a streamlined airship and mounted on a heavy duty, high speed truck chassis, was built recently by Jack Casey for the purpose of conducting fishing and hunting parties to desirable locations. It is divided into four compartments, or rooms, and is outfitted as a small apartment house, with electric lights and power supplied by a separate dynamo, natural gas, hot and cold running water. A compression drum carries gas supplying a cook stove and heater. Tanks carry water, supplying the kitchen and bathroom. The bunk-room, fashioned after a Pullman section, accommodates four passengers comfortably, and two other beds serve double purposes in the "living" or drawing room.

The rear end of the trailer is elevated and the space glassed in, fitted with movable chairs much as an observation or club car on a railroad train. There is a large radio, dressing table, other chairs and a divan in the drawing room. The bathroom is completely outfitted with built-in fixtures.

Joe Louis Rests, Puts On Tonnage

DETROIT, Feb. 19. (AP)—Joe Louis is getting fat and likes it.

The young negro heavyweight, here to visit his mother and attend an amateur boxing tournament, said today he is enjoying his vacation from the ring by "just catching up on my chicken eating."

"I'm six or seven pounds over my fighting weight right now," Louis said. "I want to be about 215 pounds when I start training April 15 for my fight some time next June with Max Schmeling."

Louis, announcing he will train near Bangor, Me., said he is adding to his weight intentionally so he can gradually reduce to his ring weight of slightly over 200 pounds. He anticipates no trouble in taking off the excess poundage.

"I'm doing nothing much right now but eating and sleeping," he said. "The rest won't do me any harm, and once I start training I won't have any trouble getting my timing and footwork right again.

"I'd like to be in training now but since I have a long vacation I'm enjoying it. When I'm in training I go for a steak, but now I'm catchin' up on my chicken."

Walter Johnson And Bambino May Accept Baseball Jobs

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Walter Johnson, former manager of the Cleveland Indians baseball team, said today he and Babe Ruth had been offered jobs by a group of Atlantic City business men.

Johnson, who now is "in training" for an attempt to duplicate George Washington's supposed feat of throwing a silver dollar across the Rappahannock river, asserted it had been suggested he teach in a baseball school and manage a team in exhibition night games this summer.

"I was told that the Babe has been approached and that he's interested," Johnson said. "It sounds to me like a good proposition and I may take it."

LSU Linksman Cards 70 For Tourney Lead

Heavy Weather Handicaps Aces Of Amateur Golf In Qualifying Play; Johnny Dawson Ties For Second Place

BY FELIX R. MCKNIGHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON, Feb. 19.—Gangling Freddie Haas, 20-year-old Louisiana State university student, blasted through a heavy drizzle and occasional snowflakes for a sub-par 70 to lead qualifiers in the twenty second annual Houston Country Club invitation tournament today.

The New Orleans youth, former Southern amateur champion and runner up for the National intercollegiate title in 1935, whittled a stroke from the first nine's par 36 to finish with 35-35—70.

Munger Shoots 72

His magic putter brought him in a stroke ahead of Johnny Dawson, Chicago, and Lieut. Ken. Rogers of San Antonio, an army pilot, who carded 71's.

Close behind were Jack Munger of Dallas, a National amateur sensation the last two years, and former National interscholastic champion and Harry Todd, 19-year-old fellow townsman and Texas amateur champion, they carded 72's. Raw weather hampered play of the top-notchers, murky skies of the morning finally pouring out light rain and traces of snow.

Haas' putter seared the greens, the youngster needing only 25 putts on the 18 holes or 11 putts under the allotted par quota.

Ed White of Bonham, National intercollegiate champion breezed in with a 74 and Billy Howell of Houston, former Walker Cup star of Atlanta, Ga., qualified easily with a 76.

Pairings Announced

Pairings for the first round of match play were:

Fred Haas, New Orleans, vs Porter Holloway, Corsicana.

Don Schumacher, Dallas vs Lonnie Wedniand, San Antonio.

Harry Todd, Dallas, vs. Dave Ritchie, Houston.

Billy Howell, Houston, vs Preston Moore, Houston.

Johnny Dawson, Chicago, vs Reuben Albaugh, Dallas.

Ed Herron, jr., Houston, vs A. C. Hunt, Houston.

Ed White, Bonham, vs Jack Cameron, Houston.

Dick Nauts, Houston, vs W. H. McNamara, Houston.

Lieut. Ken Rogers, San Antonio, vs Bill Welch, Houston.

Joe Russell, Houston, vs Rufus King, Dallas.

Glenn Crisman, Houston, vs Gus Novotny, Chicago.

Jack Munger, Dallas, vs Willie Maguire, jr., Houston.

Ike Handy, Houston, vs Henry Bowbeer, Chicago.

Milton Ward, Corpus Christi, vs Tommy Cochran, Dallas.

Paul Leslie, New Orleans, vs Wilmer Allison, Austin.

Shreveport Miss Is Women's Medalist

HOUSTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Miss Edna Saenger, dimunitive Shreveport, La., golfer, paced the field in the qualifying round of the first annual women's division of the Houston Country Club invitation tournament today with 45-41—86.

Miss Saenger, playing in raw, subfreezing weather, rallied on the last nine to out distance her nearest rival, Mrs. Charles Newbold of Wichita, Kas., three strokes.

Patty Berg Wins From Mrs. Vare

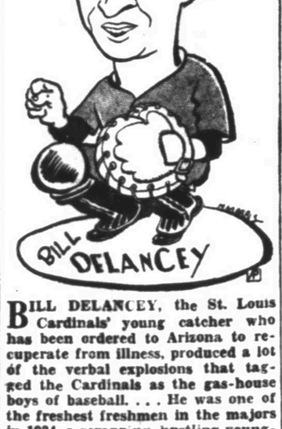
PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19. (AP)—A fighting Irish high school girl, red haired Patty Berg of Minneapolis, decisively defeated Glenna Collett Vare, who beat her in the final of the last national, in the second round of the annual Palm Beach women's golf tournament today.

The score, 3 and 2, was the same by which the veteran Mrs. Vare last year temporarily halted the 17-year-old Patty's meteoric march to golfing glory.

In tomorrow's semi final round Miss Berg faces Mrs. Leon Solomon of Memphis Tenn., who played uphill golf today to down another youthful sensation, 17-year-old Hilda Mae Livengood of Danville, Ill., 1 up.

Paired in the other semi-final match are Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews of Miami, who came within one stroke of Virginia Van Wie's course record in eliminating Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C., one up, and Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., the medalist, who rallied to eliminate Mrs. Marion Turpie Lake of New York, 4 and 1.

Cards Need Him



BILL DELANCEY, the St. Louis Cardinals' young catcher who has been ordered to Arizona to recuperate from illness, produced a lot of the verbal explosions that tagged the Cardinals as the gas-house boys of baseball. . . . He was one of the freshest freshmen in the majors in 1934, a scrapping, hustling youngster who displaced the seasoned Virgil Davis as the Cards' first-string receiver. . . . Bill was fined $50 for using "over-ripe" language in the 1934 World Series won by the Cards over Detroit. . . . Detroit fans the same day expressed their feelings with a shower of over-ripe fruit tossed into the outfield at Navin Field. . . . Umpire Cy Rigler pasted a $25 fine on Bill last season . . . . Delancey's rise paralleled that of Paul Dean. . . . They moved up to the majors together via Springfield (Mo.) of the Western Association and Columbus of the American Association, figuring as the ace battery on pennant-winning clubs in both cities. . . . Their first season in the majors saw them as the ace battery of the World Series. . . . While the Cards are waiting for Bill to get well, they'll use Davis and a rookie named Brusie Ogrodowski, who came up through Houston of the Texas League and the American Association club at Columbus.

Bill Delancey Of Cards Is Granted Retirement Papers

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis today granted the voluntary retirement application of Catcher Bill Delancey of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Delancey, seriously ill with pneumonia for weeks, has improved but is not expected to play baseball again for several months.

Baylor Bruins Beat Mustangs In 30-28 Game

Late Scoring Gives Bears The Game And Fourth Place; S. M. U. Drops To Fifth; T. Alford Leads In Scoring

(By The Associated Press)

WACO, Feb. 19.—Three field goals in the last five minutes of play enabled the Baylor Bears to defeat the Southern Methodist Mustangs, 30 to 28 in a Southwest conference basketball game here tonight.

The victory lifted the Bears to fourth and dropped the Ponies to fifth place in the conference standing.

Midway in the second period the Ponies were trailing 10 points but a sensational rally featuring one-hand shots by Capt. Charley Haren soon put them a field-goal ahead. The Ponies missed an easy crip shot just before the game ended and also failed to make good two free tosses late in the game.

Haren Leads Mustange

Haren shot five field goals and a free toss to lead the Mustangs' scoring.

Theo Alford, Baylor forward, starred for his team and led scoring with 12 points.

The Southern Methodist freshmen defeated the Baylor freshmen, 32 to 17, in a game preliminary to the main contest.

District Court Jury Here Is Discharged By Agreement

By agreement of sides, a 72nd district court jury was discharged Wednesday afternoon in one of 12 cases styled Temple Trust company and others against J. E. Spencer and others, and arguments will be made this morning before Judge Homer L. Pharr, who alone will decide the case.

It was further provided Judge Pharr would rule on the facts and on the law and that his decision would govern the other 11 cases, as well.

Testimony had been completed and the jury was in its box expecting to be given the court's charge when the announcement was made.

Attorneys in the case are John B. Daniel of Temple and E. M. Critz of Coleman for plaintiffs, J. E. Vickers and W. W. Campbell and George E. Lockhart and Franklin D. Brown for defendants. Pettit heirs and Robert A. Sowder for intervenor and defendant Lubbock National bank.

More Than 2,700 Checks Are Said Due Lubbock Farmers

More than 2,700 checks are due Lubbock county farmers who held over 3,000 AAA contracts when that New Deal agency was held void in January by the U. S. supreme court, County Agent C. C. Jobson said yesterday.

"I think most of the checks due are from the special cotton pool and the new cotton pool," he explained.

No estimate of the amount due farmers was made by Mr. Jobson. He said he was unable to give any idea of the approximate amount.

More than 100 first cotton payment checks are due, about 200 second cotton payments and as many parity payments, in addition to pool checks. Also there are due second 1935 payments on wheat contracts and second payments on corn-hog contracts.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19 (AP)—Mrs. Bernice S. Wheeler won an interlocutory divorce today from Bert Wheeler, screen comic.

NEWS BRIEFS

Despite numerous injuries, general condition of H. (Hop) Sooter, 55, apparently was "good" late Wednesday at Lubbock sanitarium, where he was taken Tuesday night after an automobile accident near Levelland. X-ray examinations disclosed a broken left leg. "Open reduction" for repair of that member will be resorted to this morning, it was expected. Earlier reports had indicated normal recovery at Levelland of E. A. Hall, about 65, who was with Sooter in the accident. Both principals live at Pettit.

Reversal of conviction of F. V. Williams of Lubbock for possession of beer for sale and ordering of prosecution dismissal by the court of criminal appeals at Austin, was announced Wednesday by the Associated Press. A 99th district court jury had assessed his punishment at one year in the penitentiary.

Funeral arrangements for J. K. Walls, who died Tuesday in California, await arrival Friday of the body, said Rix Funeral home. Burial probably will be in Lubbock.

Civil cause of Mollie D. Abernathy and others against Carl P. Webb and others, for damages and to try title, is set down for hearing today in 99th district court.

Official designation of April 17 and 18 for conduct here of an Interscholastic league district meeting was made Wednesday afternoon when a committee met at Senior High school for a session directed by Dr. A. W. Evans of Texas Technological college, director-general.

Fishing for tools in the W. T. Walsh-Harry Adams No. 1 Averitt, three miles northwest of Seminole, was still under way Wednesday. Tools were blown up about 25 feet in the hole by gas which developed at 3,940 feet.

Lubbock's three national banks will close Saturday in observance of the birthday anniversary of George Washington. Local bankers plan to attend a district meeting in Fort Worth, as usual.

Questers club, composed of several men faculty members of Texas Technological college, will conduct its monthly dinner and meeting in Hilton hotel tonight at 6:30 o'clock. Dr. Bradford Knapp, college president, will speak on "What Price Democracy."

A junior Boy Scout organization, cub pack No. 1, will be organized when parents of boys aged 9, 10 and 11 of the troop meet at 7 o'clock tonight in the Junior High school building. C. C. Schmidt, instructor at Tech and cubmaster, called the meeting.

Mrs. T. E. Devenport, 29, of Earth, who died in a sanitarium here Tuesday afternoon, was to be buried after services at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at Earth First Baptist church. Rix Funeral home had charge of arrangements.

In lieu of $1,000 bond set by J. T. Trigg, justice of the peace, Archie Douglas, a negro, remained in county jail Wednesday night on a charge of burglarizing Southern Trading company. Grand jury investigation is promised.

Two complaints of swindling with worthless check were filed Wednesday in the county clerk's office against persons who had not been arrested. They were prepared by Madison S. Rayburn, assistant county attorney.

Judgment for plaintiff in the cause of Lynn Foster against H. H. Roberts, for debt and sequestration, transferred from justice of the peace court, was allowed Wednesday by County Judge E. L. Pitts. Defendant's motion as to jurisdiction of the court was overruled. Defendant expected. Gene Blair represented plaintiff, Vaughn E. Wilson defendant.

Charged with theft from the person, a felony, Clydie King, a negro, Wednesday remained in county jail in default of $1,000 bond set by J. T. Trigg, justice of the peace. The case will be investigated by a grand jury.

Appreciation in behalf of Sanders Sunday school class for response of the public to an old clothes matinee conducted at Lindsey theater, and to the theater and to Avalanche-Journal publications, was expressed by J. T. Trigg and George Dupree. "Appreciation extends back to other responses, as well," said Trigg, "notably that in September. With advent of cold weather and resultant increase in need of clothing, necessity for additional assistance scarcely could have been over-stated. Exclusive of shoes, approximately 1,000 articles of clothing were contributed by the recent matinee."

Announcement that an Eagle Scout banquet, to have been given at 6 o'clock tonight at Tree Top Inn, had been postponed until Saturday night, same hour and place, was made Wednesday night by Earle M. McClure, council executive. Letters to all Eagle Scouts of the council were mailed, inviting attendance.

A bicycle belonging to Edgar Yarbrough of 2307 Ninth street was stolen Wednesday, police were informed.

Four Ralls business men were here yesterday to attend the Rotary club meeting and also on business. In the party were: Percy B. Ralls, Reed Loftin, C. B. Hendrick and H. H. Nicholas.

Copies of the catalog for the ninth annual Panhandle - Plains Dairy show, to be held in Plainview April 6-9, have been received here. C. C. Jobson, county agent, received a copy. The booklet is dedicated to the late Henry Ansley, former agricultural editor of the Amarillo Globe-News.

Henry W. Stanley, Dallas, manager of the trade extension bureau of the Dallas chamber of commerce, will be in Lubbock March 4, it was learned yesterday.

A box for making pullorum tests for chickens and turkeys has been made by County Agent C. C. Jobson and Assistant Agent Charles A. King, jr. The box will be used in testing county flocks for the disease. It was made along lines suggested by George P. McCarthy, assistant poultry husbandman of the state extension service.

First Aid On Roads Is Plan

New Method Discussed By Red Cross In Committee Meet At Lubbock Has Attained Much Favor In Britain

Plan of action looking forward to establishment of first aid stations at strategic points along Lubbock county highways, was discussed by the county's chapter of American Red Cross executive committee at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon on mezzanine floor of Hilton hotel.

Reports were read and nominations of officers for the ensuing year made.

Mrs. J. S. Johnson, county chairman, presided, and 11 members of her committee attended. Robert T. Bridges of Abilene, representative of the mid-western branch of the organization, attended.

Several Reports Made

Report of Paul Hardwick, treasurer, for 1935 indicated healthful status of the chapter, and was accepted. He said 557 members were counted in the annual Roll Call campaign.

Mrs. M. C. Overton, chairman of the Junior Red Cross, reported that eight schools of the county are active in that department.

A home service report was made by H. D. Woods, chairman. That department deals with conditions in homes of ex-service men and its reports govern discharge from CCC or regular army service of sons of former soldiers. Several cases were handled last year.

A nominating committee for officers made a report which was accepted by the committee and is subject to confirmation at an annual meeting March 3.

Nominations Are Made

Other committees reporting were: On volunteer service, Mrs. W. P. Clement chairman, and Life saving, K. N. Clapp chairman. Retiring Chairman Bert Pinson reviewed work accomplished last year.

The following nominations for officers and directors were made: For chairman, Mrs. Johnson; for vice chairman, Mrs. Clement; for secretary and publicity chairman, Hardwick; for directors, one-year term, Mrs. J. H. Hankins, Dr. Bradford Knapp, W. C. Rylander, Mrs. R. J. Allen, J. B. Maxey, William Levine, C. W. Ratliff, Pinson, and Mrs. K. L. Scudder of Slaton; for directors, two-year term, J. M. Gordon, A. B. Davis, Mrs. Clement, L. C. Ellis, Rev. W. R. Vivrett, Hugh Harbert, Jack Randal, W. H. Rodgers, and A. J. Payne of Slaton; for directors, three-year term, Mrs. S. C. Arnett, Glenn Hess, George Kuykendall, Dr. Albert Barnett, B. Sherrod, H. L. Allen, Mrs. R. A. Studhalter, Mrs. M. C. Overton, and Mrs. S. A. Peavey of Slaton.

C. I. Wall was made chairman of the first aid stations program, realization of which would stamp Lubbock as the second county in the state to initiate the plan, which has met with unqualified success in Great Britain.

"We are presenting to chapters a program of first aid and highway work," Mr. Bridges said. "This is not a safety program, but a first aid. So far we have established and have in operation, 306 such types of work, with 1,769 others in preparation.

"It is the aim of the Red Cross to have first aid stations at strategic points, so that in the event of an accident on the highway, aid can be rendered promptly. In this way, lives may be saved."

Worry Over Food And Clothing Only Secondary; Boy And Mother Are Ill

Worry over lack of sufficient food and clothing is secondary with a Lubbock family.

A seven-year-old child of the family placed a bean in his ear. It sprouted and the injury has affected the hearing of the child, who also has tonsilitis but continues to attend a public school here because warmth in the classroom is more conducive to health than a shack which leaks and is heated by stoves picked from junk piles by the father, who is seeking work.

The mother is seriously ill. A Lubbock doctor has given his services without charge. She lacked necessities Wednesday. Several persons donated bed clothing and food Wednesday afternoon and night, however, said Mrs. Tom Foster. A hot water bottle, and other food and clothing are needed.

Capt. John G. Churchill of the Salvation Army Wednesday afternoon also reported he knows several destitute families, for whom he would appreciate food and clothing.

The sick mother has five children, aged 8, 7, 4, 3 years old and 20 months. Lubbock persons with donations or wishing to inquire further may call Mrs. Foster at 1929W or Miss Mayme Alexander, visiting teacher, at 2468.

The family hitchhiked last fall from Missouri and picked cotton in Spur and later here. It was enroute to New Mexico where the man's sister lived. The sister left there before they arrived in New Mexico because of illness of another member of the family.

Aerial photographs numbering 8,750 were taken during the 1935 season of 5,500 square miles of territory in Montana. The pictures were turned over to the United States forest service.

Former Baseball Player Is Killed In Highway Mishap

CORSICANA, Feb. 19. (AP)—Arthur Sullivan, 55, of Centerville was killed instantly early today near Dew, on highway 75 in Freestone county, when his car was reported to have been crowded off the highway, according to information received here. Two companions halted passing motorists who brought the body to Fairfield.

Sullivan was formerly a baseball player and was well known in this section of the state. The body was taken to Centerville this afternoon.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Let The People Decide!

TO ALL intents and purposes, status of the gas question in Lubbock is the same today as it was after the first bond election held last April, in which a proposal to issue bonds for construction of a municipal system was turned down by the voters.

A second election, held last October, approved issuance of bonds by a margin of 24 votes, but unless all signs fail a suit questioning legality of the election and docketed in 99th District court for March 2, will result in the election's being declared null and void. That is a statement concurred in by both sides of the gas controversy.

Since a third election is as certain as sunrise, why shouldn't the City commission call it without the necessity of a petition? It has the power so to do. Every man on the commission knows, as well as he knows his own name, that such a petition can and will be gotten up—that another vote on the pesky gas question is sure to be demanded by the citizenship at large. Hence, the commission at its next meeting might just as well go ahead and call the election and be done with it.

Of course, the City commission can issue the gas bonds without an election—providing a petition bearing the names of 10 per cent of the qualified voters of the last election is not submitted, forcing the issuance to a vote of the people. However, with one, or possibly two exceptions, The Avalanche-Journal believes the City commission will not arbitrarily seek to issue the bonds without an election. We think the majority of the commission feels that the people as a whole certainly have a right to say whether or not their money shall be gambled against the possibility of a municipally owned plant bringing cheaper gas rates — and used, incidentally, as a political football.

We say, as we have said all the while, the gas question and the issuance of bonds is for the people to decide and not for the commission to finally rule on.

Since it is apparent that a very appreciable percentage of the public is not satisfied with the present status of the gas problem, let's vote agan, let's have a legal, above-board election and let's give the public a chance to take care of its own business.

Today's One-Minute Sermon

Better is little with the fear of the Lord, than great treasure and trouble therewith.

Better is a dinner of herbs where love is, than a stalled ox and hatred therewith.

A wrathful man stirreth up strife: but he that is slow to anger appeaseth strife.

The way of the slothful man is as a hedge of thorns: but the way of the righteous is made plain.

A wise son maketh a glad father: but a foolish man despiseth his mother.—Proverbs, XV: 16-21.

With All My Love

by Mary Raymond Copyright NEA 1938

BEGIN HERE TODAY

DANA STANLEY, divorced from her husband, DR. SCOTT STANLEY, is making plans to marry rich RONALD MOORE. NANCY, Dana's half-sister, has loved Ronnie, hopelessly, for years.

Dana had left her husband believing he loved PAULA LONG. Scott thinks Dana was tired of being poor.

He becomes a partner of the town's outstanding physician, DR. OSBORNE.

Dr. Osborne hears that Dana and Ronnie plan to marry that night. He telephones Scott, who is in another city attending a convention.

Racing back to prevent the marriage, Scott's car crashes with another. Scott escapes injury. He takes the injured occupant of the other car to the city and grimly prepares to operate. He pleads with another physician to bring Dana to the hospital.

Dana hears of the accident and rushes to Scott. Nancy breaks the news to Ronnie. He asks Nancy to run away and marry him, and she agrees.

The news that Ronnie and Nancy are "parson hunting" reaches Nancy's grandmother and great aunt.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVIII

"Oh, I'm shameless!" Nancy's singing thoughts ran as she and Ronnie drove away. "But I'm happy!"

Ronnie had driven to Lakeville where he had straightened out the license business. And now, with a marriage license of their own, they were off to be married in another town.

That had been considerate of Ronnie, choosing a new place for the ceremony, Nancy thought.

"How would you like to go to Bermuda?"

"Grand!" Nancy said. Bermuda was a dream place for a honeymoon.

"First, though," Ronnie told her, "we'll go to New York, and you can buy some clothes that really suit you. Clothes," he hesitated, "that weren't selected for somebody else."

There was a lump in Nancy's throat. If she could only tell Ronnie what a darling he was.

She could picture the clothes Ronnie's wife would wear. Some smartly simple, accentuating lines and materials, others richly furred. Georgeous fur wraps and coats; diaphanous, dream-like things that made you feel young and gay. And evening dresses that fitted your body like nothing had ever fitted it before giving the feeling of being very regal and fine.

"What are you thinking about?" Ronnie asked, as the silence deepened.

"Clothes," Nancy said, honestly.

Ronnie laughed. "Gold digger!"

"We'll buy out the shops," Ronnie added. He reached over and pressed her hand. At the touch of Ronnie's hand, the understanding pressure, Nancy's happiness dropped from her suddenly.

Dazzling Ronnie by her appearances wouldn't make him love her, if he loved somebody else. And what would anything matter — grand clothes and houses, everything you wanted except the moon —if you couldn't have Ronnie's love too?

If she could only find the courage to tell Ronnie what she had done. If she had softened the blow for him tonight would he have married her?

"It wouldn't have made any difference what I told Dana," Nancy was arguing fiercely with herself. "Dana was only waiting for Scott to whistle. All that was true. But there was Ronnie's reaction to consider. If he had known that Dana had gone to Scott believing he was seriously injured, wouldn't he have gone away? And wouldn't her own chances of marrying him have been lost forever?"

"Well, here's a nice-sized town that looks as though it might boast a parson," Ronnie said. "What shall it be? Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Baptist, Methodist, Congregationalist—name the church, Nancy, and we'll find the man."

"It doesn't matter," Nancy said. Her throat was aching.

"That leaves it up to me," Ronnie spoke cheerfully. "First, a telephone book."

In an open-all-night restaurant, possibly the only one the small town afforded, Ronnie produced a "reverend" and they found him a short while later in a modest home beside a modest little church.

But his denomination was to remain a mystery. Because a current that had been set in motion on the long drive was gathering force, sweeping such small considerations aside.

The mild-mannered minister with the white hair radiated interest and enthusiasm.

Nancy suspected that not so many couples chose this town as a Gretna Green. And, undoubtedly, the clergyman had perceived that marrying a young man of Ronnie's type, who had arrived to be married in the kind of car that was seldom seen in these parts, would be more than unusually remunerative.

"My wife," the minister said, "will be one of the witnesses. And my brother the other."

The two "witnesses" were summoned.

"Mother," as the officiating clergyman called his wife, was a pathetically faded little woman, who had evidently assembled herself hastily, judging from her appearance. She had come without her glasses in the excitement, she told them, and kept peering at Nancy and Ronnie from near-sighted eyes.

"Brother," had come provided with an ear trumpet. And periodically his questions must be answered in a vigorous shout by the Reverend Bennett.

"I don't know what denomination he represents, but I think it would have been better if we had picked the other fellow," Ronnie said, smiling. But there was no answering smile on Nancy's piquant, heart-shaped face. Her dark eyes were looking out, solemnly, upon the scene.

The minister examined the license, opened his Bible, cleared his throat and now motioned for the two to step forward.

Suddenly Nancy laid a trembling hand on Ronnie's arm. "Ronnie," she whispered, "I can't."

"Can't!" Ronnie said in a low voice. "You mean you've backed out?"

"Yes. I've backed out. I couldn't, Ronnie. You see—"

"It's not necessary to go into explanations," Ronnie said in a queer, curt voice. He stepped forward, speaking quietly. "We've decided not to be married, sir."

"Decided not to be married!" The mild-mannered minister was all at once not so mild. His voice had an indignant ring. "Young man, is this a joke?"

"No, it isn't a joke. We're just not—"

The minister interrupted. "Getting me out of bed, and everybody else out of bed. And then you decide not to marry!"

"What's that?" asked the man with the ear trumpet, and the Reverend Bennett shouted back violently: " They've decided not to marry!"

"Gracious," said the faded little wife, spiritedly, "you young ones do beat all these days. Marriage is an institution. It's something sacred. Not to be made light of and flaunted in any such fashion!"

"It's not his fault, it's mine," Nancy said tremulously. "Please don't blame him!"

"In my day if a handsome young man—"

Ronnie broke in abruptly: "Please allow the young lady the privilege of changing her mind."

He stepped forward and handed a bill to the clergyman, who stared at its denomination in shocked surprise. His hand lingered on it a moment, and then he shook his head. "A laborer is worthy of his hire, young fellow. But I didn't marry you. I can't take that."

They climbed back into Ronnie's car. Nancy could see the stern set to Ronnie's chin and the proud squaring of his shoulders. Yet she sensed a hurt and weariness that broke her heart.

The car rushed on through the darkness with Nancy's eyes pools of dark misery. Tears were streaming down her face. And now and then when she thought Ronnie's attention was entirely engrossed in piloting the car over some difficult stretch of road, she would take her handkerchief and wipe her eyes and nose.

Miles behind them. More miles to cover before Ronnie could put Nancy out again on her own doorstep.

Ronnie's voice came finally: "Stop crying, Nancy. After all, you were hurried into this so quickly, you hadn't time to think. And it was natural for you to repent of your bargain. I don't blame you. Not a bit."

"But you didn't hurry me into it. I proposed to you, Ronnie. You know I did—and there was something else. I'm a cheat. I didn't tell you the truth about Dana."

Ronnie stopped the car. "Let's get things straight. What are you talking about Nancy?"

Nancy told him in a low, unhappy voice, but courageously. When she had finished, Ronnie asked, "Was that the reason why you wouldn't go through with it, Nancy?"

"Part of the reason," Nancy said. "Let's have all of it."

Nancy shook her head.

"Please, Nan." His tone was tender, and Nancy's reserve broke. She cried wildly, "I couldn't marry you, Ronnie, under false pretenses. I wasn't trying to save your face, as you thought. I was marrying

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

ALTHOUGH Secretary Dern has waved Major General Hagood toward the court-martial bench, epauletted general staffers have advised him to go slow in hauling the soldier on the carpet for describing U. S. currency as "stage money." Brother officers fear the fire-eater will outsmoke "Billy" Mitchell and Smedley Butler if prodded to the point of fighting words.

What most people miss is that Hagood didn't get into trouble until his talk got into headlines where New Deal enemies could read them. It was on December 17 that he poked sarcasm at government spending. The five Democrats and two Republicans who heard him at a secret committee session were not shocked by his language. He wasn't asked to explain or elaborate. Even Chester Bolton failed to develop the monetary theory, although he masterminds for the GOP as co-chairman of their Joint Congressional committee.

What makes it bad for Hagood is that he read copy on his remarks before they were released for publication a week ago. Now he's putting them in writing again for the Secretary of War so that it will be "official"—and a possible basis for disciplinary action.

POKER: Those on the inside whisper that President Roosevelt has rarely shown a more serious mood than on the day he called in the chiefs of lending agencies and asked them to sweeten the "kitty."

Mr. Roosevelt delivered a serious lecture on the importance of maintaining the government credit. He reminded them that the treasury must go into the market for $11,500,000,000 worth of money within the next eighteen months. It was economically and politically essential to obtain that vast amount at low interest rates, for an increase of only ½ per cent in the cost of money to the government would run into large figures. Most important of all, he impressed on them, was the psychological effect on business and industry and purchasers.

HOLC Chairman John Fahey made himself solid by speaking up first. "I'll chip in $1,000,000,000," he said, referring to unused lending authorizations. RFC-er Jones promised to throw in a "couple of hundred million" and FHA-er Stewart MacDonald matched him. It was the most plutocratic game of poker ever played in Washington and the "banker" was smiling broadly when his guests departed.

DRIVE: The administration's topnotch experts in stocks and bonds are having a quiet laugh at the expense of Herbert Hoover. They rate the former President rather low as an investors' counsel.

They pass out word that he chose an unhappy moment to advise Leland Stanford university trustees to shun government bonds for investment and put their money into better-paying stocks. It coincided with a confidential report showing that institutions with funds to stow away had pursued an exactly opposite policy. Although more than nine-billion worth of U. S. bonds have been issued in three years, individuals hold $500,000,000 less now than they did when Uncle Sam first went to market in 1933. It's universities, banks, insurance companies and trusts which have gobbled up the offerings—apparently playing it safe.

But Mr. Hoover's advice bears out reports that GOP strategists will stage a campaign to win over everybody who owns securities, savings accounts, life insurance policies. By emphasizing inflation's effect on purchasing power, they hope to drive every owner of someobdy else's "I. O. U." into Republican stocks.

SPIES: There's a kink in the "navy mind" which makes admirals see spies in every waste basket and communists in every umbrella stand.

Even such a hard-bitten old salt as Admiral Standley, chief of operations, seriously believes that other nations' spies—one nation in particular—infest the U. S. So do several spy-chasing captains in the Naval Intelligence service. They sold their fears to several patriotic and industrial organizations. Between them they whipped up a "scare" which produced the pending sedition-defection bill. Though some provisions would land a careless editorial writer in jail if strictly enforced, it almost sneaked through Congress on dull days when nobody was looking.

Then two House cubs—Reps. Maverick of Texas and Marcantonio of New York—put their heads together. They dubbed it the "navy spy bill." Immediately its Senate sponsor—Senator Tydings—disavowed it. Other backers ran to cover. It's dead for this session unless events in the Orient and Europe resurrect it. Before making their net maneuver, naval intelligencers await the return of Admiral Standley from the London naval conference. He may have some new ideas as a result of his experiences there.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

LAST week's gestures of Republican hospitality to right-wing Democrats by Senator Vandenberg and Chairman Fletcher settled a lengthy backstage argument. Some GOP inner councilors have favored such a move right a'long. Others feared it would convey the impression that the Republican weren't strong enough to stand on their own feet. Vandenberg took the plunge on his own initiative. Fletcher and his advisers played echo.

But don't take this "coalition" stuff too seriously. Naturally the GOP-ers will welcome Democratic recruits. But they'll be mighty chary of commitments on cabinet posts and such. In the event of victory they don't intend to share any more of the spoils with temporary converts than necessary.

The suggestion that the Republicans choose a Democrat as vice-presidential nominee is positively out—although Liberty league circles have privately urged this as an election clincher. That's one reason the proposal isn't acceptable. If John W. Davis, Al Smith, Jouett Shouse, John J. Raskob et al want to help elect a Republican—that's fine. But they needn't expect to run the show—now or afterwards.

RIDDLE: A certain number of Democrats are expected to climb publicly on the Republican bandwagon for duration of the campaign. New York understands that one of them will be Judge Pattangall of Maine—one of the original proponents of a Jeffersonian Democrat third party. But the Judge will merely be returning to his first love. He started political life as a Republican—even though he switched to the Democratic side more than 30 years ago and has remained there ever since.

There are plenty of Democrats—especially in the South—who would like to get rid of Roosevelt and yet balk at swallowing the GOP label. Anti-New Deal leaders will continue their efforts to promote a conservative Democratic party for the benefit of this element. Such a party admittedly would not corral many votes. Yet it might serve a very useful purpose—as the Palmer-Buckner ticket did in 1896—if it drew just enough ballots from Roosevelt to give the GOP a couple of doubtful states.

The big trouble is to locate a leader. Everyone approached in this connection who has the faintest claim to a political future has ducked the assignment as he would the plague. It savors too much of political suicide. So the promoters must pick the man who is politically dead and yet can command a public following. A number of big-time brows are aching over his riddle.

FARMERS: The Republican high command doesn't intend to miss any tricks in its attempt to recapture the farm vote. New York insiders learn that L. J. Taber of Ohio—master of the National grange—has been sounded out on his willingness to accept the vice-presidential nomination.

The grange is one of the most powerful farm organizations and Taber is very popular with his followers. It would be a sweet stroke if the GOP could line it up to offset Edward A. O'Neal's Federation of Farm bureaus—which is pretty definitely committed to support FDR. Taber is a Republican, so there would be no straining at party ties.

Reports indicate that Taber is not very receptive to the suggested honor. But a number of GOP chiefs still believe he can be persuaded.

TOWNSEND PLAN AGAIN

Editor, The Avalanche: The flood of crocodile tears, shed by some political writers, in the fear that Doctor Townsend's unscrupulous associates are betraying him, is astonishing and pathetic. It is not pathetic because of the effect on him and associates, but in showing that so many bright word merchants are compelled to prostitute their talents to serve Mammon. Perhaps, however, this is better than having them herded in CCC camps blowing bubbles, and about on a par as far as adding knowledge or wealth to the world is concerned. They have not had the affrontery to accuse him of dishonesty. What they cannot understand, is how it is possible for one to be honest and not be a fool. But while they are so deeply concerned in protecting him from his friends, they adopt methods of hit and run drivers in their own treatment of him. They resemble a ring of poodles surrounding a mastiff, with now and then one daring to rush up to within a safe distance and barking at him, which scares the barker, causing him to skedaddle back to his circle of poodles for safety. If his bark is by way of a question, he does not wait for an answer, for he knows the answer would embarrass him, though he wants his boss to hear him ask it.

For variation, we often hear the deep tones of a "Saturday Evening Post" editorial as it inadvertently recites reasons why the Townsend plan should be adopted. But it is so bogged down in dignity, egotism and general superiority that it cannot stoop to recommend anything so plebeian in its origin as this plan. This editor must be a deep, deep thinker, but if he would come up for air occasionally he might find inspiration for a cure of the ills he so accurately describes.

Ray Tucker, Whirligigger of news "besides" the news, invents a senator and arranges a meeting between him and Doctor Townsend, in which the doctor is made to confess, in a heart-to-heart talk, that his scheme for financing $200-a-month pensioners, founders on the facts, and asks the mythical senator to work out a plan that will be workable. Ray himself does not present any facts, but tries to show that a man earning $2,500 a year would have to pay $300 of it in taxes under the Townsend plan and, that none but the workers would have to pay anything. He did not show how two per cent on $2,500 could be made to equal $300. Nor did he show that most men who would receive $2,500 under that plan, are receiving much less or nothing now; nor that the pensioners receiving the $2,400 a year, would have to spend it all and pay the tax, while his $2,500 man would not. He probably figures that the cost of living would increase, and is to be hoped for, because it would mean higher prices for commodities, which the New Deal has been straining every nerve to bring about, up to prices of 1926, by destroying wealth instead of increasing buying power of consumers. The price raising effect of the Townsend plan should please new dealers. Ray must have had his Whirligig tangled in his hair, and was thinking more of that than of what he was trying to write.

A week or so later, he invents a prominent lawyer (Ray has a genius for invention) in Washington, who was personally acquainted with all the Blue Sky operators in the United States before the depression put them out of business, and on a trip to the Pacific Coast, met every one of them and found they were advocating the Townsend plan, and to the everlasting shame of the plan, found R. E. Clements, its co-founder and secretary, had actually been engaged in the real estate business. Gosh!

I. W. Ross,
Lubbock.

(Dear Mr. Ross: For your information, Ray Tucker is not the "inventive" type but, quite to the contrary, has been known for years as one of America's best reporters and magazine writers. His professional and personal reputations are tip-top. Whether he is for or against the Townsend dream would make no difference to him, or to any other good reporter. And, strange as it may seem, whether a man is deluded, or not, by the Townsend plan or any other question, has nothing to do with his basic honesty. Yours truly, The Editor.)

DIES OF SCALDS

DENTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—Mrs. Lula Bays, 40, died here today of scalds received Sunday when a pressure cooker exploded in her home. She is survived by her husband and five children.

The only vegetable which natives of the South Seas will cultivate is the yam.

Black-Draught Relief Is Prompt And Refreshing

It's a good idea that so many people have—to keep Black-Draught handy so they can take a dose for prompt relief at the first sign of constipation.

"I have used Black-Draught a long time, about as long as I can remember, and have a package on my shelf now," writes Mr. Sherman Sneed, of Evensville, Tenn. "I take Black-Draught for constipation which causes headache, a bad, tired feeling and for biliousness, bad taste in the mouth and sluggish feeling. Black-Draught, taken about two nights, clears up this trouble and I get all right."

Black-Draught is made of medicinal herbs, dried and finely ground, but no other change in their natural condition. It is a laxative that men and women like so well because of the refreshing relief it brings in constipation troubles.—Adv.

Hundreds Present For Safety Show

Hundreds of Lubbock people crowded Texas avenue, between Thirteenth street and Broadway, Wednesday afternoon to see the Avalanche-Journal-Montgomery Ward safety show.

Nationally-known as racing drivers, Gus Schrader and Lew Brown gave demonstrations of incorrect and correct driving in certain situations. Interest in the maneuvers was increased by the entertaining commentations of Jack Story, radio announcer, over a public address system.

The party will go to Clovis, N. M., for a show, then to Amarillo. From there the group will present demonstrations en route to the west coast.

The crowds jammed both sidewalks and flowed into the street. Police had difficulty in keeping some spectators out of the danger zone. The street had been roped off.

The Hudson river once flowed southwest, crossing the Palisades and Watchung mountains of New Jersey to reach Raritan Bay, rather than passing Manhattan island on its way to New York harbor, according to Dr. Johnson, of Columbia University.

TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS, No. 130

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

With his small squad of Alexandrian soldiers, Tarzan was ready to give battle to the superior forces of the shiftas. Quickly he explained to Lady Beth and Jerry. "I'll go with you," Beth offered; "I must interpret your commands to the soldiers."

True enough. Tarzan could not maneuver his "army" without her aid. "If she goes, I shall go, too," Jerry declared firmly. The ape-man pointed out to them the danger they would encounter. "The brigands have firearms, and ours are the weapons of antiquity."

Jerry and Beth were unmoved, however, and at last Tarzan gave his consent, certain in his own mind that he would be able to give them protection. Now, at his sharp command the guardsmen moved forward, the grim light of battle burning fiercely in their eyes.

The Jungle Lord moved on in advance to reconnoitre and map out his strategy for counteracting the advantages which the shiftas had in numbers and armament. Soon he heard their shouts again, and he wondered if perchance they had discovered Tommy and Arbela!

Stocks

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Feb. 19. (AP)—The stock market fired and fell back today after one of the fastest three hours sorties since 1933.

In the morning periods the buying wave that swept over the list pushed leading industrials 1 to more than 3 points higher in the new 5-year tops. During the forward surge the ticker tape was continuously from 1 to 5 minutes behind floor dealings.

Transfers totalled 4,302,470 shares, which was a bit under Monday's sensational gale owing to the dying down of the volume in the last two hours. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined .4 of a point to 61.7.

Backward throughout were the steels and utilities. Late realizing in yesterday's buoyant group, and further selling of the utilities as a belated response to Monday's TVA supreme court decision, finally spread to other categories and traders were taking profits throughout the list when the final gong sounded.

Market analysts, generally, said they were unable to account for the spectacular purchasing demand that almost swamped stock exchange dealers for a time.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19. (AP)—A slight easiness developed in the cotton futures market in late trading today as the trade marked time for farm-aid developments in Washington and operations held within a narrow range. The close was steady, with near months off 3 to 5 points from the previous close, and later options up two or 3 points on transfer operations from the March position.

Despite the fact Liverpool came in lower than due, the opening here was steady on most months with March showing some weakness on reported liquidation of that position by the government cotton pool.

Speculative interest was at a low ebb, but there was a good demand for spot cotton in the local market, attributed mainly to purchases from the cotton pool.

Port receipts today 7,699; week 39,560; season 6,194,692; last season 5,922,326. Exports today 11,837; week 30,343; season 4,229,149; last season 3,113,689. Port stocks 2,461,883; last year 2,686,004. Stock on shipboard at New Orleans 25,094; last year 12,898; at Houston 28,163; last year 26,139; at Galveston 14,208; last year 46,300. Spot sales at southern ports today totaled 38,520 bales compared with 4,829 last year.

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 19. (AP) (USDA) — Midwestern markets received approximately the same number of cattle as a week ago and about 4,000 in excess of a year ago. Weak to lower prices in dressed meat reflected itself in the live trade with fed steers and yearlings moving slowly at weak to 25c lower levels. Real weighty steers in Chicago landed at 11.65, with yearlings at 10.75.

A few choice heavy heifers made 9.25, with 675 lb. weights at 9.00. Most butcher cows bulked from 5.25@6.00.

Values in hogs ruled steady to 25c lower than Tuesday's average, instances more. The extreme top in Chicago on early deals was noted at 11.00. Receipts totaled 43,300.

Fat lambs cleared at generally steady rates, with sheep strong to 25c higher and the few feeding lambs available weak to 25c off. Best lambs topped at 10.35, with bulk at 10.00 downward. Numerous loads of fed western ewes cashed from 5.00@5.35, scaling 116-125 lbs.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, Feb. 19. (AP) (USDA) — Hogs 1,600; top 10.35; 190-260 lb. averages 10.30@10.35; cattle 2,400; calves 900; market moderately active. Few plain and medium grades steers and yearlings selling at 5.75@7.00; beef cows 4.50@5.50; most killing calves 5.00@6.75.

Sheep 600; killing classes steady; good fat lambs 9.25 down; aged wooled ewes 4.00.

five. A 12-point scoring spree near the end of the game was the only sustained attack shown by the Southwest conference co-champions.

Art Hillhouse, Long Island's six foot six inch center, consistently commanded the tap over Floyd Kelly, the Owl's six foot seven-inch pivot man.

Hailed as a team that could handle the ball well and would present L. I. U. with a stiff test, the Texans did not have a semblance of defense. They were able to keep abreast for a few minutes on field goals by Willis Orr and Wesley Steele but L. I. U's tall man, Hillhouse, accounted for two field goals to start a scoring spree that put the Blackbirds into a 14-4 lead before Jack Steele tallied for the Texans.

of the air service in charge of all aircraft in the A. E. F.

Assigned To Texas

Returning to America after the armistice, Mitchell was named assistant to the chief of the air service July 16, 1920, but after four years in Washington as a "desk aviator," he reverted to the rank of colonel and was assigned to the 8th corps area at San Antonio, Tex.

It was while stationed in Texas that Mitchell began battling the war and navy departments for their alleged negligence and mismanagement of the air services. This brought about his court martial.

Predicted High Speed

In 1922 Mitchell predicted an air speed of 300 miles in the near future. He had held the speed mark himself at 221.05 M. P. H. made at Mt. Clemens, Mich., Oct. 18, 1922. He has lived to see 300 M. P. H. a reality.

Later he derided naval tests with warships and volunteered to take a plane and sink a warship to prove his contention that our military future lay in the air. This offer was not accepted.

In the literary field he was author of "Our Air Force" (1921) "Winged Defense" (1925), and several score pamphlets and articles in periodicals.

Ill Since December

Ill since his appearance here early last December at congressional committee's inquiry on patents, General Mitchell entered the hospital Jan. 28 for what his doctor said was "merely a rest."

He had come here from his family home near Warrenton, Va., where he had recovered from a heart seizure.

Brazil's railroad growth was shown in recent official figures as follows: In 1904 the miles in operation total 11,319,631; in 1934, 20,494,102.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Feb. 19. (AP)—Because of moderating temperatures and snowfalls that eased anxiety about new crop prospects, July and September wheat average lower in price today, whereas May advanced.

May wheat rose 1⅝ cents to the highest points reached since Feb. 7, owing largely to curtailment of Chicago stocks of red winter grades and to reports that flour business throughout the country has improved.

Wheat closed irregular, ¼ lower to ⅝ higher compared with yesterday's finish. May 86⅛@86⅝, corn ⅛ to ½ down. May 61⅝ @ 61⅞, oats unchanged to ¼ off, and provisions at 2 cents to 7 cents decline.

Pronounced strength shown by the Liverpool market was a contributing influence helpful to the bullish trend of May wheat.

Corn and oats eased as a result of better weather conditions.

Provisions went lower responsive to hog market declines.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, Feb. 19. (AP)—Demand for grain here was still slow today. Estimated receipts were: Wheat 8 cars, corn 1, oats 3. Cars inspected Tuesday were: Wheat 2, corn 3, oats 3, sorghums 1, and cane seed 1.

Delivered Texas Gulf ports, domestic rate: Wheat No. 1 red winter 1.30¼@1.31¼.

Delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points: Wheat No. 1 hard, according to protein and billing 1.31¼@1.31¼. Barley No. 2 nom. $1@$3; sorghums No. 2 yellow milo per 100 lbs. nom. 1.06@1.07; No. 3 white kafir nom. 1.03@1.08.

Delivered Texas common points or group three: Corn (shelled, Texas billing) No. 2 white 78½@78½. Oats No. 2 red 37½@38½.

The copyright was filed Jan. 8 on an arrangement by Oscar J. Fox of San Antonio and Mrs. Lota Spell, wife of a university professor.

Denied Individuals

Ed Nunnally, chairman of the students' assembly committee on copyrights, said John Lang Sinclair, the author, who now lives in New York, had authorized students to copyright the song and denied the privilege to individuals.

The Daily Texan, student publication, said Mrs. Spell unsuccessfully sought permission from Sinclair and Nunnally and had offered three per cent royalty.

Borger Youth Is Sentenced To Two Years After Trial

BORGER, Feb. 19. (AP)—Frank Gale, Borger youth, was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary today after a jury convicted him of failure to stop and render aid after the automobile he was driving killed W. Z. Nichols here Dec. 7.

E. T. Miller, his counsel, said a motion for a new trial would be made.

The case went to the jury yesterday afternoon after the defense waived argument.

Two youths riding with Gale testified the automobile hit some object and Gale refused to stop.

this fiendish crime."

Hauptmann protested his innocence, it was authoritatively learned.

Leibowitz would not say that he was withdrawing from the case because he was convinced of Hauptmann's guilt.

"I will merely stand by what I said," he replied to one question on that subject. Later he said, "the statement is clear and speaks for itself. I will not interpret it for anyone."

Leaves No Loopholes

In withdrawing he left no loopholes for a possible re-entry in the case. "I cannot see how I can serve the interests of justice any further by my continued participation. I therefore want no further part in any of it (the case.)"

Said Fisher: "It must be admitted that the outlook is dark" for the defense.

No comment was forthcoming from Governor Harold G. Hoffman, who by reprieve already once saved Hauptmann from the electric chair. The governor's office said the chief executive did not plan to issue any statement tonight on the Leibowitz withdrawal. Leibowitz, meanwhile, said he did not plan to confer with the governor or to revisit Hauptmann. He conferred with Hoffman after his death house visit last Sunday. Mrs. Hauptmann was not available for comment.

Outlines Own Plan

The signing of a new death warrant was followed within a few hours by the bizarre disclosing that Hauptmann, in talking to Leibowitz Sunday outlined what he considered the "best" way to have kidnaped the luckless Lindbergh baby. The disclosure was made by a person who heard the interview.

He would have had accomplices, he said. He would not have used the ladder. He would have made use of the front door of the home of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh at Hopewell, and he would have contrived beforehand to acquaint himself with one of the women in the house in order to facilitate the crime.

"I guess my story sounds pretty weak," he was quoted as saying of his own explanation of how he happened to possess ransom money, his denial he wrote the ransom notes, built the kidnap ladder or had any part in the abduction and slaying.

Some of the other conversation was as follows:

"What would you have done in case of an accident to the baby?" Leibowitz asked.

"I would have dropped the baby and run like hell in my automobile," Hauptmann replied.

"But there would have been no accident if you went out the front door?" asked Leibowitz.

"I guess that's right," Hauptmann said.

Take It To Farm

"What would you have done if you had got the baby away?"

"I would have taken him to a nearby farmhouse."

The talk turned to the ransom money.

"How would you have collected the ransom, had you left the dead baby behind you? Would you have taken the sleeping suit to prove you were the kidnaper so that you could collect the ransom?"

"I don't know," Hauptmann replied. "I guess that's what the kidnaper would have done."

"If you were Fisch, what would you have done with the ransom money?" "What would you do if you knew that the police all over the world were looking for this money, and that if you were caught in this city or on the high seas or in Germany you would have been brought back and held for the Lindbergh murder?"

"I guess I would leave it in a safety deposit box. You know Fisch had one."

B. E. Moores Meet As Cars Crash; Similarity Of Name More Shocking Than Impact

Final Contests Set On March 7

Final contests for selection of the junior livestock judging team and dairy judging team of Texas Technological college who will compete in the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock show in Fort Worth will be conducted in the college livestock pavilion March 7, said Ray C. Mowery, acting head of the animal husbandry department.

The livestock team will compete March 14, the dairy judging team, March 16 at the exposition. A livestock team from the college won first at the exposition last year.

To Visit Farms, Ranches

Fifteen candidates for the teams will visit farms and ranches over this section at various times before the contests to do practice judging.

Next Saturday part of the group will go to the farm of T. L. Shepard to judge jersey cattle and to the farm of Dr. Smith J. Underwood of Hale Center to judge jerseys. Most of the group will go to Merkel Monday afternoon to judge the C. M. Largent and Son Hereford herd. Some of the candidates probably will accompany Mowery to Mason Tuesday, where Mowery will be the judge at the Mason County Calf show, the more outstanding calf show of the state.

Fine Is Aiding

Casey Fine, animal husbandry instructor, is coaching candidates for the dairy judging team and Mowery is coaching livestock team candidates.

The candidates are Arnold Black, Herbert Browder, E. C. Hightower, Pegues Houston, Leldon Hudson, Raymond King, Billy Lewis, Winburn McAlister, Billie Mitchell, R. C. Mitchell, C. C. Nunnally, Raymond Puryear, Ralph Riddel, Floyd Williams and Hoods Willis.

Mowery said the college will exhibit the following livestock at the exposition: six head Aberdeen-Angus steers, three Hereford steers, 27 barrows of three breeds: nine Durocs, nine Hampshires and nine Poland Chinas. Consideration is being given to exhibition of Holstein-Friesian cattle and Hampshire breeding sheep.

Last Saturday some of the candidates visited the Ben Jenkins, G. T. Potts and Price farms for practice judging.

Punitive Actions Against Swiss In Germany Possible

BERLIN, Feb. 19. (AP)—An authoritative promise of reprisals against Swiss citizens in Germany—blunt retort to the Switzerland decree banning nazi organizations—awaited positive action by reich officials tonight.

The promise was made by the Sozialistische Partei-Korrespondez, official nazi press service publication, which termed the "Berne decision as a challenge that indeed cannot remain without proper counter-measures."

Col. Franco Recalled From Exile To Head Government

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Feb. 19. (AP)—Col. Rafael Franco, Paraguayan military leader recalled from exile following the overthrow of the government of Pres. Eusebio Ayala, assumed the provisional presidency of Paraguay tonight.

Franco, generally considered one of Paraguay's most able corps commanders in the Chaco war, returned to Asuncion today from Buenos Aires, 13 days after he was exiled by the Ayala government on charges of subversive activity.

Caverns Total Hits New Peak

Total Of 116,457 People Go Through National Park In 1935 To Set All-Time Mark; Texas Continues To Lead

CARLSBAD, N. M., Feb. 19 (Special)—The year 1935, an alltime record in number of visitors at Carlsbad Caverns national park, near here, represented over 17 per cent of the total who have visited the caverns since 1924 when the federal government took it over.

Last year 116,457 persons went through the caverns; up to December 31, 1935, there had been 667,420 to see the caverns.

By years, visitors were: 1924, 1,876; 1925, 2,483; 1926, 11,743; 1927, 29,034; 1928, 46,224; 1929, 78,460; 1930, 91,462; 1931, 80,144; 1932, 16,159; 1933, 56,002; 1934, 92,397; 1935, 116,457.

August Sets Record

August, 1935, set up an all-time record of attendance in one month, 30,636 persons going through, or nearly 1,000 daily. The 1935 visitors represented a gain of 26 per cent over the previous years.

Last year 50,976 Texans went through the caverns, or a fraction over 43 per cent of the year's total. New Mexico residents numbered 12,675 or a fraction over 10 per cent, while Oklahoma was third with 11,798 or 10 per cent. California was fourth with 9,881.

Others In Leaders

Eight other states had 1,000 or more citizens to go through the caverns. They were: Colorado, 3,930; Kansas, 3,419; Illinois, 2,737; Missouri, 2,218; Louisiana, 1,656; Arizona, 1,386; New York, 1,333; Ohio, 1,303.

Largest number of visitors in 1935 on any one day was on May 11 when 2,002 went through the caverns; minimum was February 26 with 32 visitors. There were 35,569 cars parked on the cavern terraces during the year, with visitors in the park.

Based on the Texas Centennial celebration in the adjoining state to the east, a list of 150,000 visitors is predicted for 1936.

Every State In Union Represented In January

CARLSBAD, N. M., Feb. 19 (Special)—Every state in the union, one territory, the District of Columbia and 14 nations were included among the 4,043 visitors to Carlsbad Caverns near here in January.

Texas led, 708 of them, or 17 per cent. California was second with 443 visitors; New Mexico third with 371 visitors; Illinois fourth with 266. In all 12 states had 100 or more citizens here: Oklahoma, 201; Colorado, 198; Kansas, 194; Minnesota, 172; Michigan, 136; Wisconsin, 134; Missouri and Iowa, 123.

Prehistoric Belles Wrapped Selves In Pants La Marlene

LONDON, Feb. 19. (AP) — Modern women are not the only ones to don trousers. Prehistoric women in some instances wore turbans, striped jackets and trousers, exactly like the dress of Kurdish women today.

This is announced in a report by the British Museum on excavations carried out in the Habur region of North Syria.

Statues of "goddesses" were represented as wearing trousers.

Compliance Papers In AAA Program Being Signed Here

Signing of corn-hog compliance papers, made under the defunct AAA program, is being done by county committeemen, under orders from Washington, County Agent C. C. Jobson said yesterday. All work was stopped when the supreme court in January held invalid the AAA program.

As soon as the compliance papers are finished, they will be sent to the district corn-hog supervisor for checking. Later they will be sent to Washington and payment probably will be made from funds made available by congress following the court decision.

One check has been paid on these contracts. The second check was to have been sent, under the previous program, as soon as compliance papers were finally approved.

Lubbock county had over 500 corn-hog contracts. Payments last year amounted to $21,387.

Wheat compliance contracts also are being forwarded to Washington under the same order. There were 83 contracts for the 1935 crop. Payments amounted to $23,313.

Bids On Community Center Will Be Opened On Feb. 26

Bids are to be opened February 26 on construction of a four-store community center at Broadway and College avenue, it was announced yesterday by S. B. Haynes, architect, who has prepared the plans. Location is at the northeast corner of the end of Broadway.

Brick and stone will be used in construction. An English type of architecture is to be used. The property is owned by W. D. Green, local capitalist, who is erecting the structure.

A drug store has leased the corner location, it is understood. A grocery store also has secured quarters and it is said negotiations for other rooms are under way. The building will be 100 feet by 125 feet. Bids for the job are being received by Mr. Haynes.

Dr. William Curry Holden Is To Be Principal Speaker At Abernathy; To Be Held In School Gymnasium

ABERNATHY, Feb. 19 (Special)—Annual banquet of the Abernathy Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night, Feb. 25, will have as a speaker Dr. William Curry Holden, acting head of the history department at Texas Technological college, it was announced here today. The banquet will be held in the new high school gymnasium.

George W. Ragland, postmaster and former president of the chamber of commerce, is to preside as toastmaster. Ray Pinson, also a former president, will welcome the visitors to the city.

To Talk On Centennial

Theme will be "Texas Centennial Celebration." Dr. Holden, while not yet announcing his subject, is expected to deal with plans for a South Plains and Texas Tech participation in the celebration, including the museum to be erected on the college campus at Lubbock.

There will be other participants on the program and some entertainment, details of which have not been worked out. The home economics department of high school will serve the banquet.

Numerous out of town guests are expected, including a delegation from the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce and also from the Plainview Chamber of Commerce. Hale Center, Petersburg, Monroe and other towns in this area likewise are expected to be represented, as well as a number of farmers of this area.

Outstanding Students From Senior Class To Be Chosen

Four outstanding students of the Senior class of Senior High school are being chosen by senior English teachers so that their names may be placed on the Ellwood English cup, given to the school by the late W. L. Ellwood in 1927.

Qualifications for these students include outstanding work in the English department, and a high average in all studies. The 1936 selections will not be announced until the annual Senior Day program on May 7.

Names engraved on the cup for outstanding work in the past are: Sarah Michie, Mary Wedemeyer, Otis Taylor, Henri Mast, W. R. Fickas, Harold Brown, Maurine Jons, Neva Davies, Houston Hinson, William Lane, Mary Leidigh, Margaret Lindsay, Arvie Elliott, Robert Jarvis, Eleanor Simmons, Elsie Coywood, Lois Pitts, Winnifred Aycock, Billy Wiley, M. K. Foster, Lorene Owens, Ruth Lewis, Ruth Wagner, Ralph Brook, Betty Bizzell, Virginia Black, Pauline Edgett, Artie Hicks, Betty Lindsey, Robert Laverty, Margaret Marshall, and Joe Donaldson.

CARPENTERS STRIKE

GALVESTON, Feb. 19. (AP)—About 150 union carpenters were on strike here today to enforce a demand for an increase of wages of from $7 to $8 a day. A federal conciliator was expected here tomorrow for a conference.

you because I love you with my whole heart! I didn't tell Dana everything the doctor said because I thought I would die if she didn't go—"

And then, Nancy had found a comforting haven in Ronnie's arms, while Ronnie wiped the tears from her eyes with his handkerchief, and kissed her over and over again.

"I have something to confess, too," Ronnie said. "When I came to your home for Dana tonight I was all mixed up and darn miserable. Some little vixen I had had to shake and kiss one night had mixed things up for me. I had decided she was right about what she said. And I had discovered something else, that I was in love with the little vixen, thought I didn't know what to do about it. You won't believe me, maybe."

"Oh, Ronnie, I will believe you," Nancy cried, "because I want to so much." Her arms went up and closed rapturously around him.

Sometime later, the Reverend Bennett's front door was treated to another vigorous pounding. The minister, tired from the night's exciting experiences, slept deeply on. But his wrapper-clad wife answered the bell, and under persuasion opened the door.

"Father, it's a couple to be married. The same young couple!"

"Constantinople!" exclaimed the minister, excitedly, clamboring out of bed. An ejaculation termed "Presbyterian dam" by his family.

But in a moment he was chuckling. These modern young people tried your patience!

But they would make a nice young couple. And it was going to be nicer still to be able to keep that $100 bill this time.

Texas Tech Professor Is Speaker At Rotary Club Luncheon On Wednesday

Delusions, myths and so-called "international friendships" were explained and several political angles debunked by Hardison C. Pender, associate professor of government at Texas Technological college in an address on that subject before the Rotary club yesterday noon.

President R. F. Bayless announced Jack M. Randal as a member of the student loan committee, taking the place of the late Roscoe Wilson. He also announced directors had named Dr. C. M. Ballenger an honorary member of the club. Dr. Ballenger had long been an active member.

The term "international friendships" is "inadequate" he said in pointing out that nations "think in terms of groups or nations," quite differently from the way individuals of these nations may think and act. "Nations act largely in self interest, and not because of any friendship between other nations," he pointed out.

One Great Delusion

One great delusion that many Americans have is that "our nation is greatly superior to other nations," he said, adding other nations had similar ideas. The so-called Anglo-Saxon superiority was called a "myth" and the theory of many that "our own armaments are for national defense only," was denied.

"We kid ourselves that we are in love with peace, as such," he commented, adding that many ideas of righteous wars or wars of defense are not borne out by the acts. Selfish motives may be the real cause of many conflicts. Often nations claim the thing they are doing is essential to their own life, in order to justify themselves in their act.

Declaring the "self sufficient" idea of many Americans is not borne out by the facts, Professor Pender read a list of essential raw materials which the United States imports from other nations. In 13 out of some 20 raw materials, importations run from 40 to as high as 90 per cent or better, of the demand of the nation.

Mrs. Floe Swenson of the Business and Professional women's club explained the drive the club is making on sale of Centennial car tags.

Agents To Confer In City Tonight

Conference of county agents with O. G. Tumlinson, district agent leader for the men and Miss Lida Cooper, district agent for the women agents, is to be held tonight in the office in the federal building.

Plans for further extension work with a strong agricultural planning program, will be discussed. Later it is the plan for county agricultural groups to work out a definite program.

Lubbock county's agricultural organization, County Agent C. C. Jobson pointed out, is not only one of the pioneer groups of its kind in this section, but has been among the most active in the state with a program of community cooperation that has become a model for many other counties. The work was begun by Mr. Tumlinson when agent in this county and he has used it as an example for other counties.

With Mr. Jobson will be Charles A. King, jr., assistant county agent and Miss Norfleet Grimes, home demonstration agent and Miss Gladys Sanders, assistant.

This morning at 8:30 Mr. Tumlinson and Miss Cooper have a meeting scheduled for Brownfield with R. N. McClain; at 11 a. m. with V. F. Jones, and Miss Sylvia Robb at Tahoka; at 4 p. m., with W. C. Taylor at Post.

Firemen Are Selling Tickets For Dance Here On Feb. 25

Sale of tickets has begun for a Fireman's ball to be given in the Auditorium Tuesday night, Feb. 25.

Early demand for the tickets, which are being offered for $1.50 for couples and 50 cents for extra women, is satisfactory, said Cecil Casey, assistant fire chief.

Milton Brown and his Musical Brownies of Fort Worth will provide the music for the dancers. The Brownies have been featured on radio station WBAP.

Girl's Story Being Upheld

Woman Testifies That Mother Of Girl Once Claimed That Ann Hewitt Was Crazy And Planned Operation

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19. (AP)—Ann Cooper Hewitt's assertion she was tricked into a sterilization operation by her wealthy mother found corroboration today in testimony at a mayhem hearing of the case.

Miss Florence Slavich, testifying at a preliminary hearing for Dr. Tilton E. Tillman and Dr. Samuel G. Boyd, accused of mayhem as a result of the operation, said Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt, mother of the 21-year old heiress, once told her:

"Ann's a nut. I'm going to have her operated on and tell her it's an appendicitis operation. I'm going to see Tillman."

At the time Miss Slavich said she was a paid companion to Mrs. Hewitt, against whom a mayhem warrant has been issued.

Named Defendants

The heiress recently named her mother and the two doctors defendants in a $500,000 damage suit as a result of the operation. She claimed the surgery tightened her mother's hold on a trust fund by eliminating possibility of the income passing to another generation.

Describing an interview with Dr. Boyd, Miss Hewitt testified:

"He looked at me and said, 'well, Ann, I understand you have appendicitis.' That's all there was to the examination. They put me in a hospital and operated on me."

Police in New York have been unable to locate Mrs. Hewitt since the warrant was issued here a few weeks ago. Through her attorneys she refused to waive extradition because the complaint was filed by police authorities instead of by her daughter.

Holiday Will Be Observed At Postoffice On Saturday

A holiday will be observed Saturday, Washington's birthday, at Lubbock postoffice, said Amos Howard, postmaster.

Owing to the fact that Saturday's business is generally good, there will be three collections of mail down town, 10 a. m., 1 and 6 p. m. There also will be one delivery down town, but none in the residential sections.

No windows will be open during the day and no rural mail routes will operate. Special delivery letters and parcels will be delivered. Box mail will be put up, as usual.

DIES OF BURNS

TULSA, Feb. 19. (AP)—J. P. Burton, 76, pioneer Oklahoman, died this afternoon of burns suffered yesterday in a futile attempt to rescue his grandson, George Burton, 3, from their blazing home.
