Second Year...

Snyder Girls Capture State Volleyball Title

By BILL McCLELLAN

AUSTIN -- Snyder High School utilized its wealth of playoff experience to rout South San Antonio Saturday afternoon and wrap up its second consecutive Class AAAA State Volleyball Tournament championship; its fourth in a 10-year span.

The Tigers, hesitant in their semi-final match with Waxahachie on Friday, came out calm and determined and strolled away with the 15-8 and 15-5 victory.

"Our kids were just really fired up," said Coach Joyce Elrod. "They took the momentum and kept it."

No one thought it would be so easy after watching South San defeat Beaumont South Park the evening before.

"I figured we'd really have a battle. I told the girls we'd have to play like

WTC Board Session Set

Scurry County junior College District Trustees have scheduled a special session for 7 a. m. Tuesday.

At that time, the board is due to receive the annual audit report, along with a report on health insurance for personnel and insurance for campus buildings at Western Texas College.

A proposal for increasing insurance coverage on buildings will be submitted. The board asked for reports on health insurance after a notice of an increase in rates was received from the present carrier.

Congress To Try Again...

Spending Resolution Vetoed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today vetoed an emergency spending resolution to restore funds to federal agencies and called an emergency Cabinet meeting to begin the shutdown of non-essential government services.

It was his first veto in 10 months of office.

Reagan told reporters minutes after signing the veto that the bill posed "a difficult choice" for him. The rejection sends the measure back to Congress.

The choice, he said, was, "Either to sign a budget-busting appropriations bill that would finance the entire government at levels well above my recommendations, and thus set back our efforts to halt the excessive government spending that has fueled inflation and high interest rates and destroyed investments for new jobs; or to hold the line on spending with a veto, but risk interruption of government activities and services.

"I have chosen the latter," Reagan said.

He acknowledged that "the failure to provide a reasonable resolution means that some citizens may be inconvenienced and that there is a possibility of some temporary hardship," but added, "Nevertheless, a far greater threat to all Americans is the sustained hardship they will suffer by continuing the past budget-busting policies of big spending and big deficits."

Reagan said, "The practice of loading the budget with unnecessary spending and waiting until the 11th hour ... on assumption of a presidential veto has gone on much too long." He said that "so-called stopgap resolutions are actually budget-busters that can last an entire year."

After reading his five-minute statement, Reagan, in answer to a reporter's question, said Congress can either extend the continuing resolution that lapsed Friday and work on a real appropriations bill after the Thanksgiving weekend "or they could come in and pass what I said in the first place, that I would split the difference with them, between our request for help and their budget figures."

Asked whether he would take less than that, he said, "I don't think the people should take less than that."

He said the Congress "in the hours ahead has the opportunity to reconsider — and I urgently request that they do so."

Reagan in September had asked Congress to reduce non-discretionary programs, except defense, by 12 percent, a saving of $8.5 billion.

"A few days ago I offered to meet Congress half-way," he said, but the $2 billion the Congress cut Sunday is not enough.

He also told reporters that the federal government has "got to say, 'Let's quit this and do what 50 states manage to do on time, every year — and that is have a budget.'"

The latest in the president's budget battles with Congress followed a weekend of nearly non-stop negotiations between House and Senate conferees that ended Sunday night with congressional approval of a compromise spending bill Reagan had vowed to veto.

With government agencies stripped of their authority to spend money, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the president was set to tell the Cabinet to order non-essential employees to "come to work, cancel meetings, lock the safe, cut out the lights and leave."

The confrontation also forced the president to delay his departure — scheduled Sunday — for a Thanksgiving holiday at his California ranch.

Allen Status Not To Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III says he knows of no plans "at the present time" for national security adviser Richard V. Allen to leave his White House post.

"Until and unless there's some adverse information that comes to light, I think the situation will remain as it is," Meese said Sunday.

Meanwhile, it has been learned that Justice Department officials, although they doubt that Allen received $10,000 instead of $1,000 from two Japanese journalists, still are investigating that possibility.

Meese, interviewed on the CBS program "Face the Nation," said, "I don't see any plans at the present time for Mr. Allen to leave the White House" because he received the money as an expression of the journalists' gratitude for obtaining a Jan. 21 interview with first lady Nancy Reagan.

Allen has said he took the honorarium to spare Mrs. Reagan embarrassment and put it in his office safe, then forgot about it until the cash was discovered by someone else eight months later.

On the matter of how much money was involved, it was learned that Justice Department officials believe the possibility of a $10,000 payment will prove to be a dead end, but they are awaiting additional information from the FBI.

3 Nations Agree To Help In Patrol

PARIS (AP) — France, Britain, the Netherlands and Italy have agreed to participate in a multinational peacekeeping force to patrol the Sinai after Israel returns the area to Egypt, the four governments announced today.

In making the announcement, the four governments reaffirmed their support of the so-called "European intiative" for a Mideast peace that calls for the Palestine Liberation Organization to be brought into the Camp David process.

French foreign ministry officials said at a briefing that the United States, Egypt and Israel, which had asked Europeans join the force, were informed of the decision to go ahead with it on Sunday.

The Arab League has warned that participation in the peacekeeping force could jeopardize European ties with the Arab world.

The joint declaration said the four countries welcomed the peace treaty between Israel and Egypt as "a first step" toward a lasting Middle East Peace, and emphasized that their support of the treaty was "completely distinct and independent of the rest of the Camp David process."

It described the peacekeeping unit as "a symbol of the determination of the four governments to reach a global peace through negotiations between the parties."

The joint declaration said the decision to join the force stemmed from "the policies defined in the (European Economic Community) declaration in Venice in 1980" which called for "guarantees for the security for the state of Israel and justice for the Palestinian people and its right to self-determination."

The Venice declaration, basis for the "European initiative" in the Middle East, calls for the PLO to be "associated" with the peace process.

A Saudi Arabian "blueprint" for Mideast peace proposes a Palestinian state be established on the West Bank with East Jerusalem as its capital. Israel, which claims all of Jerusalem as its "eternal capital" rejects the Saudi plan.

Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin has said he would veto particiaption of any country that ties its contributions to the Sinai force to pursuit of peace proposals different from the Camp David accords. Israeli officials said Sunday that veto right was retained but would not otherwise comment on the European decision.

Monday update

FBI Arrests Suspects

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — An ex-Brink's guard charged with taking $1.85 million from his own armored van in the second-largest Brink's theft ever was quietly arrested by FBI agents near a busy San Francisco supermarket.

George Manuel Bosque, 26, the object of an intensive, international manhunt, was unarmed and offered no resistance Sunday night as he was arrested in the parking lot of one of the city's busiest markets, crowded with people doing their Thanksgiving shopping, the FBI said.

No further details of the arrest were given. Bosque was scheduled for arraignment today.

Bosque, on the run since Aug. 15, 1980, when he and the money disappeared, is charged in a federal grand jury indictment with larceny of bank funds and theft from interstate shipment. At the time of his indictment bail was set at $3 million.

The largest Brink's robbery netted $2 million at a Chase Manhattan Bank branch in New York City in 1979.

Nuclear Waste Site

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The message to the nuclear engineers and scientists at the annual National Waste Terminal Storage Conference was clear: get on with developing methods and procedures to store wasted radioactive fuel.

President Reagan has said the nation's energy future depends on further development of nuclear power. Although he admits government has shirked responsibility on developing a waste system, he wants the work to proceed swiftly.

Scientists say technology exists for safe disposal of nuclear waste, but that the biggest problems are social and political. The public must be convinced disposal is safe, and politicians must be persuaded that accepting a disposal site isn't career suicide, they say.

Carbon Monoxide Deaths

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Carbon monoxide fumes killed two adults and made nine children ill as they spent their first night in a house that police say was condemned less than a week before.

The house, near the business district, was declared unsafe last Wednesday by the Tulsa City-County Health Department due to "poor ventilation," said Tulsa police Detective Richard Bishop.

Authorities declined to name the home's owner. "We are on delicate ground, and some of this we'd rather not get into until the investigation continues," Bishop said.

The 11 people moved in Saturday night, and "when they got cold, they lit a floor furnace that was improperly vented," Bishop said. "Carbon monoxide fumes made everybody sick and caused the deaths."

Reprieve For Rose Capital

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The City of Shreveport — which calls itself the Rose Capital of the World — has decided against deflowering its public rose beds.

Two weeks ago, the city — which had an All-American Rose named after it this year — intended to plow under as many as half of the 300 rose beds that beautify neighborhoods, medians, and nooks and crannies, officials said.

Inflation was the villain, city spokesmen said. The cost of maintaining the rose beds in 1982 would be $69,785 — up 83.7 percent from the $37,980 spent in 1979.

Even horticulturists who were horrified at the prospect had trouble arguing against the city's statistics.

But last Tuesday, the man in charge of the Shreveport Parks and Recreation Department appeared before city councilmen with a red rose in his hand.

Texans Closely Watch Budget, Tax Cut Plans

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Despite a lot of brave talk about Texas' strong economy, top state Republican politicians are closely watching the outcome of President Reagan's budget and tax-cutting efforts.

Most agree that if Reagan can curb inflation and interest rates, it undoubtedly will help their 1982 campaigns.

On the other hand, a Reagan failure may or may not hurt GOP candidates in Texas.

"It's no question, if by midsummer, interest rates are down and unemployment less, it will have a very positive effect on the GOP ticket," said George Strake, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor.

"However, if interest rates are still high and unemployment is up it will damage all of us, although Texas may be affected less than other areas," he added.

Strake said he was "comfortable with the situation" because he believes Reagan's program is beginning to work. "Good signs are showing up."

Gov. Bill Clements told a recent news conference he did not think the success or failure of the Reagan economic program would affect his re-election campaign.

"Reagan is extremely popular in Texas," he said. "Texas has a uniquely healthy economic climate and Reagan's economic recovery program doesn't even go into effect until Oct. 1."

"I believe our successes in 1982 will be determined by the effect of the president's program and the governor's second," said Chet Upham, state Republican Party chairman. "I am confident both will be successful. There is evidence that we are on the right road."

Upham said he thought "Texas is fortunate to be in a higher degree of economic boom than other parts of the country.

"In the last recession, Texas was not hurt like the people in Detroit were hurt. I really feel that Texas would not feel a recession like other states. I am very optimistic about Texas."

State Sen. Walter Mengden, GOP candidate for U.S. Senate, said recently that Reagan's performance is a key to the 1982 elections.

Arms Reduction Talks Begin...

Schmidt Meets With Brezhnev

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Chancellor Helmut Schmidt, who takes credit for persuading President Reagan to propose a European missile ban, sat down today in Bonn with Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev to urge Soviet acceptance of the nuclear arms reduction plan.

The West German and Soviet delegations got down to business at the chancellor's office beside the Rhine River. Later today, Schmidt and Brezhnev, accompanied only by translators, will meet at Schloss Gymnich, the ancient castle where Brezhnev is staying 20 miles northwest of the capital.

Before today's talks, the Soviet leader reviewed a West German honor guard in a nationally televised ceremony welcoming him to Bonn. The weather was unseasonably mild and Brezhnev wore only a suit as he walked slowly but steadily along the reviewing line between rows of troops.

Brezhnev arrived at the Bonn-Cologne airport Sunday evening and Schmidt accompanied him to Schloss Gymnich.

Schmidt later told a West German television interviewer he had a 20-minute impromptu talk with Brezhnev at Gymnich that touched on "the central themes" of the visit including arms control. He gave no other details.

Tass, the offfcial Soviet news agency, said the two leaders had a brief talk in a "friendly atmosphere."

Schmidt has made it clear he will press Brezhnev to accept the Reagan proposal to forego the NATO deployment of U.S. cruise and Pershing II nuclear missiles in return for dismantling Soviet medium-range rockets aimed at Western Europe from bases in Western Russia.

Schmidt was said to doubt the Soviets would accept it without compromise. But he reportedly hoped for some sign that Brezhnev would not reject it.

Reagan's proposal, which he made in a speech last Wednesday, will be the opening American gambit in the Soviet-American arms reduction talks beginning next Monday in Geneva, Switzerland.

The Soviet media condemned the proposal as "propagandistic" and designed to guarantee Western military superiority in Europe.

Moscow contends its missiles in Western Russia only put it on a par with North Atlantic Treaty Organization forces in Europe.

The Kremlin insists the United States must limit its missile systems aboard submarines operating off European coasts, curb British and French nuclear missile capability and negotiate reductions in the number of Western European bases from which bombers and missiles could be launched against the Soviet Union.

Despite the Soviet arguments, the Reagan formula has been well received by the West German public, which has grown increasingly wary of the possibility that Western Europe would become a nuclear battleground in any new East-West confrontation.

Brezhnev will meet on Tuesday with Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher; Helmut Kohl and Franz-Josef Straus, the leaders of the conservative Christian Democrats; former Chancellor Willy Brandt and West German President Karl Carstens.

The Soviet president is scheduled to fly back to Moscow on Wednesday.

Brezhnev is making his first trip to the West since June 1979 when he and President Carter signed the SALT II strategic arms limitation agreement in Vienna. The U.S. administration shelved the agreement after the Soviets sent troops into Afghanistan in December 1979.

About 50,000 people demonstrated in Bonn hours before Brezhnev arrived. The bulk of the protests were aimed at Moscow's military and human rights policies, but some 10,000 of the demonstrators protested the nuclear polices of both the United States and the Soviet Union.

Pressure In Tires Should Be Checked

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — An easy way to remmber to check your car's tire pressure every month is to do it every time you pay your monthly rent or mortgage, says Theodore T. Fountain, president of Ironsides Tire Company here.

"Monthly pressure checks are essential to get effective wear out of a tire," Fountain said.

'Dogbrellas' Helping Carriers Avoid Hurts

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — It was no contest when two dogs pounced on San Jose, Calif., mailman Durant Simon 2½ years ago. But now the San Jose postmaster is trying to even the odds by equipping his letter carriers with "dogbrellas."

The postmaster, William J. Lawrence, was skeptical about the umbrellas at first. "But I've lived with this problem for 20 years and anything was worth a try," he said.

Simon suffered 12 puncture wounds and nearly lost an eye when the pit bulls jumped him. He says he's "terrified every time I see that kind of dog again."

Lawrence said in a recent interview that the small push-button umbrellas, which can be opened rapidly if an unfriendly canine approaches, are reducing by 35 percent the number of dog-related injuries suffered by letter carriers.

Some charging dogs turn around and run the other way when the umbrella pops open in front of them, he said, and others attack the umbrella rather than the mail carrier.

The attack on Simon was among 8,000 that occur every year, costing the government $7 million annually in medical treatment, disability payments and replacement carriers.

The Postal Service equips most of its carriers with Halt, an aerosol product that stings the eyes temporarily. The agency also will stop deliveries to a house with a dog that it considers dangerous, or even to an entire block if the dog prowls that far.

But the Postal Service decided to try the "dogbrellas" because those measures weren't cutting the injury toll.

"The umbrellas seem to be effective in preventing bites," Lawrence said. "I have several chewed up umbrellas, which is better than chewed-up carriers."

He said carriers in San Jose now carry both Halt and dogbrellas and "the letter carriers union is 100 percent behind the program."

The umbrellas also are being tested in Stockton, Calif., Louisville, Ky., Long Island, N.Y., Salt Lake City and Seattle. In addition, the British post office is trying them in London.

However, test results are not conclusive enough yet to equip all Postal Service carriers with the umbrellas, the agency says. And umbrellas frequently can't be opened quickly enough.

That might have been the case with 95-pound Lourdes Hormilla of Miami, who suffered permanent neurological damage when a Doberman pinscher knocked her to the ground, ending her career as a letter carrier.

"I had no warning," said Mrs. Hormilla, who received a Postal Service award when she returned to work at a desk job after 11½ months in bed.

Essentially, the philosophy of Reaganomics is that government should stay lean to stay virile.

Government, instead of using tax dollars to support jobless people, should use tax dollars to create jobs.

Government, instead of printing more money worth less, should spend less money until it becomes worth more.

The idea is not new nor is it ours alone.

Essentially the same economic fundamentalism is promoted by the prime minister of England and advocated by the likely next chancellor of West Germany.

For many or most industrialized nations where overfat government is having trouble breathing the prescription is similar: Diet and exercise.

American people—what used to be called "the silent majority"—are aware what ails us.

Why our balance of trade with other nations was unbalanced in their favor, $7.2 billion worth the third quarter.

We bought less foreign oil—but we bought cars and TV tape recorders and a lot of other suff because we got more for our money in foreign makes.

Lou Harris pollsters asked us, the people, why our nation is falling behind, and 79 percent of Americans blamed "low productivity;" too many of our home folks charging too much for producing too little.

Britain is in a similar fix. A generation of Labor governments left the British economy a shambles—with workers escalating wages without increasing production to where everything they produced cost more.

When Maggie moved in on this situation, Britain's industrial production had backslid to where it was in 1966!

But she dared to apply her own brand of Reagonmics, reduced government spending, high interest rates, increased incentives for productivity.

Despite continuing pressure from Laborites—to print more money to buy time for herself—despite repeated efforts in Parliament to unseat her, the plucky prime minister prevails.

And her hard-line policies have cut Britain's inflation rate in half; her country is beginning to pull out of its steepest recession since World War II.

Weaning begets hollering; always has.

We have leaders who can take it—if we can.

Hinckley Moved Back To His Cell

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Hinckley Jr., released from an Army hospital, will undergo additional medical tests, apparently to determine if he suffered any permanent brain damage when he tried to hang himself, the Justice Department says.

Hinckley, 26, charged with attempting to assassinate President Reagan, was moved Sunday to a new cell at the Fort Meade, Md., army base, said department spokesman John Russell.

Hinckley spent a week in Kimbrough Army Community Hospital on the base after trying to hang himself on Nov. 15. The Justice Department has said that Hinckley jammed the lock of his cell with cardboard when a U.S. marshal who was watching him from an adjacent room turned away to let another guard in.

As a result of his second suicide attempt, the U.S. Marshals Service has put added security around Hinckley's new cell, the Justice Department spokesman said.

Hinckley has been under 24-hour watch since he took an overdose of tranquilizers and aspirin substitute on May 27 while imprisoned at Butner N.C., for psychiatric tests.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you hope to get today, you must first be a giver. Others won't treat you generously when they feel you've been a trifle stingy with them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for material gains are good today, but don't do anything at the expense of others. Cut your profit a bit if it will keep your reputation intact.

Man Coughs Up Evidence

PATCHOGUE, N.Y. (AP) — A suspect with expensive tastes literally coughed up the evidence before a court hearing, Suffolk County police said.

Police said a man entered the Rose Jewelers store in the Long Island community of Patchogue on Saturday and asked the clerk to show him a ring. The clerk produced a ring and the man tried it on, police said.

Then the man asked to see a larger stone, and the clerk produced a ring with a bigger diamnond, police said.

The customer allegedly took both rings and ran out of the store and the clerk pursued him. A policeman who happened along joined in and made the tackle.

But police said that before the officer could handcuff the suspect, he swallowed both rings, which are valued at more than $10,000.

He quickly coughed up the bigger ring and was taken to the county jail, police said.

But it wasn't until he was taken to Hauppauge for arraignment Sunday that he coughed up the second ring, police said.

The suspect handed the ring, no worse for the wear, over to his attorney before entering the court to be arraigned, according to the police account.

Authorities said a grand larceny charge had been filed against Robert Engle, 22, of Mastic Beach.

Taking Action...

Public Aware Of Need To Conserve Energy

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

Home energy conservation isn't making headlines any more.

But, according to one energy researcher, that is a good sign. "When a subject makes news, it isn't being done; when it stops making news, it is being done," said Herbert Mertz.

Mertz is a former researcher at Princeton University's Center for Energy and Environmental Studies and is president of Princeton Energy Partners, a home energy consulting firm. He says the level of public interest, awareness and acceptance of conservation, has taken a definite upward turn since the subject first got widespread attention several years ago.

"People are doing conservation now; builders are more aware of energy problems and new housing tends to be less leaky than it used to be." Also on the upswing are a maze of new products, some of which are less than useful, he added.

The time gap between energy analysis or installation of some new device and the reality of the savings makes it easy for misinformation and unrealistic expectations to develop. Consequently Mertz suggested consumers look at product claims very carefully and ask for specifics on product tests before spending their money.

A useful question that is rarely asked is: how will this product fit into my life?

"Wood stoves are a good example. They are great for some people, but others who bought them soon discovered that chopping wood and cleaning the stove were simply too much trouble and they stopped using them," he said.

The new attitude (which research centers such as Princeton's energy center helped to shape) is that the first chore is to examine all the energy systems in the home to determine whether there are inefficiencies. Mertz enumerated these systems as the furnace or heating system, the hot-water system and the air movement or circulation system.

Sometimes, small flaws in one of these systems such as a missing batt of insulation or a slender crack where wood moulding was carelessly installed or a bad faucet washer can produce a large loss in system efficiency.

Gathering accurate information about system performance — once a very difficult task — can identify these small problems as well as larger ones. It's easier now because a new array of measurement tools has been pressed into service, said Mertz.

His firm, for example, uses an infra-red scanning device to identify differences in temperature in the walls of the house. The scanner was originally developed as a military tool to accurately indicate ground targets and shows warmer areas in green and registers cooler areas as black. Using it with other tools such as a blower door makes it possible to tell how tight a house is and to pinpoint the places where energy leaks are occurring.

The blower door, a fanlike contraption that can force air in or out of the house while measuring the time and force required to produce the effect, was invented by a Princeton researcher as a measurement tool.

From industry have come such tools as smoke guns and smoke pencils. Observation of the path of the smoke when the pencil is operated next to a window, outlet receptacle or wall quickly reveals problem areas.

Electronic combustion analyzers (used for years in industry) measure furnace efficiency and indicate whether a furnace needs tuning up, says Mertz. Digital thermometers provide quick and accurate temperature readings.

These measuring tools (and others) make it possible to document energy deficiencies as well as to rule out unnecessary work, he said. As more individuals are trained in energy technology, he predicted, such techniques will become standard practice.

Alan: "British publishers Faber and Faber have added another book by Hugh Kelsey to the American market. It has the awesome title 'Advanced Play at Bridge.' In spite of the title it is well worth reading for anyone interested in studying the game."

Oswald: "Kelsey starts by showing the value of planning your play before playing to the first trick. We use the acronym 'ARCH' to cover what you study."

Alan: "In today's hand South can wrap up four no-trump and make five on a diamond lead. Unfortunately, North will be no-trump declarer and a diamond lead would give the defense the first six tricks."

Oswald: "Review of the bidding tells you that you must try to keep East from gaining the lead so you should find out that your only good line of play is to duck that first heart."

Alan: "West can do no better than to continue. Then you discard two spades on the top hearts, play dummy's ace of spades; ruff a spade high; back to dummy with the eight of trumps, ruff another spade; back to dummy with jack of trumps, ruff one more spade; back to dummy again with the king of clubs and you discard one diamond on the last spade."

Oswald: "Expert play, but you can be an expert if you plan things at trick one."

DAC Hears Program On First Thanksgiving

Members of George Cogdell Chapter of Daughters of American Colonists held their regular meeting at Martha Ann Woman's Club in Snyder. Mrs. Connie Tutt was hostess.

The meeting was called to order by regent, Mrs. Doug K. Hill and the opening prayer was voiced by Mrs. Henry F. Clark, chaplain. The Pledge to the flag to the United States of America was given in unison. Minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Vera Morrow, program chairman, presented Mrs. Clark who gave an interesting and informative program titled, "The First Thanksgiving — How Healthy Was It?"

Among facts given regarding the celebration of the harvest of 1621 in the settlement of Plymouth, Massachusetts was a list of food served at the First Thanksgiving which lasted three days. They were roast goose, venison, duck, eels, mussels, cornbread stuffing, leeks, watercress, a variety of greens, white bread, cornbread, wild plums, dried strawberries, gooseberries, and raspberries. After the feast, wine from wild grapes and popped corn were provided by the Indians.

How healthful was it? This food gave a good supply of vitamins A, B-1, B-2, and C. It was high in sodium, phosphorus, iodine and calcium, but lacking in vitamins B-12, D and E. A small portion of each food would have totaled more than 7,000 calories.

Little did Governor Bradford and his band of Pilgrims know that they were establishing a tradition that would become an unforgettable part of our American heritage.

Attending the meeting were Mmes. Ophelia Blackard, Henry F. Clark, Jimmy Hale, Leland S. Herod, Douglas K. Hill, Vera Morrow, Connie Tutt, and Misses Josie and Delila Baird.

Bridge Winners

The Duplicate Bridge Club met Friday at the Snyder Country Club. Mrs. A. L. Bethel directed five tables of Howell movement.

On Sunday they played three tables of Howell movement under the direction of Mrs. Scott Casey.

First place winners were Mrs. Verdi Kimbro and Mrs. N. R. Clements and second place winners were Mrs. A. G. Furlow and Mrs. W. M. Landau. Mrs. Ann Davis and Mrs. Bill Hudson won third place.

Diet facts & fallacies

These nutritional tips brought to you by DIET CENTER

As this holiday season approaches, it will bring many Christmas parties and family get-togethers. These special occasions are often accompanied by cookies, candy, alcoholic drinks and rich, calorie-laden meals. Don't fall into the trap of associating "HOLIDAY" with "EXCUSE" for overindulgence in those sweet, sugary foods.

Instead of nibbling on sweets, try this filling, low-calorie, vegetable snack.

In a large jar or container, place the following: sliced cucumbers, bite-sized cauliflower, diced green pepper, chopped celery, chopped green beans and chopped green onions. Marinate the vegetables in vinegar and seasonings overnight. Snack on these delicious vegetables liberally throughout the day. Their fibrous content will keep you full and satisfied.

This holiday season, don't let the "mirth" be replaced by "girth" when your scale registers an extra five pounds. For additional hints, consult your local Diet Center Counselor before the holiday season begins.

Not-So-Merry Woman Wants Some Christmas Rest

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: How do you go about putting a stop to exchanging Christmas gifts with people you hardly ever see? I don't mean relatives, I mean out-of-towners who used to be neighbors and whose children were friendly with our children (all grown now), and folks we are no longer close to.

Shopping, wrapping and mailing Christmas presents have gotten to be a real chore, and I am not as young as I used to be. It's also expensive. I would like to get off a lot of people's lists and take them off mine, too. I'm sure they feel the same way about it, but don't know how to get off ours.

So how do I get off this merry-go-round, Abby? I would prefer to send Christmas cards to a number of people who are still on my Christmas gift list. Thanks from ...

CUTTING CORNERS IN CHICAGO

DEAR CHICAGO: Early in December write a note to those you'd like to take off your gift list and put on your card list, saying you are "thankful" for friends with whom you can be perfectly frank. Explain that this year, along with trimming your Christmas tree, you're trimming your gift list and sending cards instead. I'll wager they'll appreciate your practical approach and will cheerfully reciprocate.

DEAR ABBY: My cousin recently lost her baby daughter. The baby died a few hours after she was born.

It's been only three weeks, and already three women have asked me whether my cousin intends to return the baby gifts she received at her baby shower!

I find it hard to believe anyone could be so small as to be concerned about whether her baby gift will be returned or not.

What do I tell these women? I certainly do not want to approach my cousin with such pettiness. She's having a hard enough time as it is.

CAN'T BELIEVE IT

DEAR CAN'T: I suggest that you tell these petty, insensitive women that you wouldn't consider approaching your cousin with such a painful question.

FOOTPRINTS IN THE SAND

One night a man had a dream. He dreamed he was walking along the beach with the Lord. Across the sky flashed scenes from his life. For each scene, he noticed two sets of footprints in the sand: one belonging to him, and the other to the Lord.

When the last scene flashed before him, he looked back at the footprints and noticed that many times along the path there was only one set of footprints in the sand. He also noticed that this happened during the lowest and saddest times in his life.

This really bothered him, so he questioned the Lord. "Lord, you said that once I decided to follow you, you would walk with me all the way, but I noticed that during the most troublesome times of my life, there was only one set of footprints. I don't understand why, when I needed you the most, you deserted me."

The Lord replied, "My precious, precious child, I love you and would never leave you. During your times of trial and suffering, when you see only one set of footprints, it was then that I carried you."

11 Disturbances Since June...

Officials Blame Unrest On Federal Court Order

By The Associated Press

The Texas Department of Corrections has been shaken by more violence in the last five months than in the past seven years because a federal judge's prison reform order has changed inmates' attitudes, state officials say.

The TDC has had to quell 11 disturbances since June, compared with six such outbreaks between then and 1973.

"We have a very serious and dangerous situation," Attorney General Mark White said. "We have been fortunate that there has been no loss of life.

"I feel this is directly attributable to the actions of the federal court that has given prisoners the mistaken notion that they do not need to obey the rules and regulations of the prison system."

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice of Tyler last December ordered prison officials to solve immediately problems such as overcrowding, inadequate medical care and understaffing. The state agreed to make some of the changes, but has appealed the others.

But William Bennett Turner of San Francisco, the lawyer for the inmates who filed the class-action lawsuit that led to Justice's order, said state officials are using the court order as a scapegoat for their own failure to improve conditions.

"What causes the unrest is that the department of corrections will not comply with the order. If the system won't act like a law-abiding citizen, the prisoners don't see why they should," he said.

"The prison system has been thumbing its nose at the order ever since it was handed down."

In the most recent outbreak of violence, 50 inmates at the TDC's Eastham Unit, near Trinity in East Texas, threw rocks and burned the tents where they were housed to meet the judge's order against overcrowding.

The Friday night incident cost the system $100,000 in damages and 15 inmates remained hospitalized Sunday with minor injuries, TDC spokesman Rick Hartley said.

Asked whether the fact the prisoners were not in cells allowed the violence to get out of hand, Hartley replied: "That's certainly true."

The Eastham incident followed by two days a riot in which 500 inmates participated at the Darrington Unit, 150 miles away. Thirteen people were injured and $200,000 worth of property was damaged, TDC officials said.

Gov. Bill Clements, reached in New Orleans where he was attending the Republican Governors Conference, agreed with White that the court order was the root of the unrest.

Clements complained that the court-appointed "special master" assigned to oversee the reforms was "playing father confessor" to the inmates.

"These disturbances are not nearly as serious as those in New York or New Mexico, but when you look at it in terms of our history, they are an indication of restlessness and turmoil we have not had before," he said.

At least two of the recent disturbances have been directly related to the court order.

In October, inmates refused to work or go into their cells at the Retrieve Unit and demanded to see the special master. Meanwhile at the Ramsey Unit, 160 inmates refused to work, complaining that the court order was not being obeyed. Several other work stoppages have been reported.

Clements said the corrections board and TDC Director W. James Estelle agree "that this is due to the special master and his staff circulating in the prisons and making themselves highly visible."

White said he met Friday with the special master, Nathan Vincent, to "get him to recognize that the prisoners are using him as an excuse to rebel and be unruly."

"So far it seems that every one of these federal officials takes the side of the prisoners. I'm tired of our law enforcement people putting their lives on the line to arrest people only to find out that a federal judge wants them to all have private rooms," White said.

4 Charged With Clubbing Doe

NORTH ATTLEBORO, Mass. (AP) — Four men went into a park, clubbed to death a tame deer named Babe in her pen and then butchered her for a pre-Thanksgiving meal because they felt hungry, police said.

"I've been here 28 years and we've had all kinds of stuff out at the park — rapes, child molestation and attacks," Police Chief John Coyle said. "But this has made the community very angry. This is the first time I've seen a real expression of fear."

Detective Sgt. Brian F. Coyle, the police chief's brother, said the four men who entered Memorial Park before dawn Nov. 11 skinned the sickly, 150-pound white-tailed doe and ate a "pre-Thanksgiving meal."

Police arrested the four men Wednesday on a tip after the town selectmen put up a $500 reward.

Police said the four men were charged with larceny over $100, conspiracy to commit larceny, cruelty to animals and destroying a park animal. They were identified as Richard J. Paul, 18, and Tracy Penny, 18, both of North Attleboro, William T. Davis, 28, of Hyannis, and Ralph F. Door, 22, of Provincetown.

The were released on their own recognizance.

Individualize your diet

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently you agreed with the person who asked about eating poultry and fish because they avoid saturated fats. Well, I have been told that half the fat in beef is unsaturated fat and that more than half of the fat in pork is unsaturated fat. What is wrong then with red meat for a diet? I always thought a good healthy diet should include some good red meat, that it was good for your blood and gave you a lot of good protein. Are some cuts of beef better than others? Which is better, pork or beef? Should you leave organ meats alone?

DEAR READER — I have no objection to people eating red meats if their system can handle it. If you read my column often you know that I usually advocate individualizing rather than generalizing.

If you happen to have a high cholesterol level, then it is wise to lose weight and to limit fat. If these measures are not adequate it is important to limit saturated fat and cholesterol. A severe problem might even be benefited by a vegetarian diet. It depends upon the patient and his problem.

Now, good lean red meat — such as round steak with all the fat removed — is a good food. It is a good source of complete protein. And it is a low calorie food if you don't fry it in grease or add fat gravy to it. A whole pound of raw lean round steak only contains about 600 calories.

You are right that about half of the fat in beef is unsaturated. But almost all of that is monounsaturated fat, which is not much better than saturated fat. Beef fat is very low in the polyunsaturated fat that many heart specialists believe is better for you.

The relationship of beef, sheep, pork and organ meats is included in The Health Letter number 8-12, Red Meats: Good and Bad, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

In general, the organ meats, except lean heart (which is really muscle, not an organ), are high in cholesterol. Brains are the highest cholesterol food available. I suspect avoiding brains will not create a dietary hardship for many.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know I shouldn't, but I couldn't help laughing at the gentleman with prostate surgery. At age 63 he is under the delusion he is still a young buck and that women should fall all over him as he is a "perfect specimen."

He would do better if he realized he was getting "baggy and saggy" and looked for a nice 63-year-old woman who is getting the same. If the gentleman stops worrying about "ringing the ladies' bells" and concentrates on being a sensitive, thoughtful companion, he will have plenty of female friends. We old gals have had our bells rung enough.

DEAR READER — Letters I've received indicate that sex life varies greatly at all ages. Many feel as you do but others still hope there is a clapper in the bell. You will be interested in another letter as follows:

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a lady of 63 and my sex life is dull because I can't meet Mr. Right. I believe the gentleman has not met the right lady who can turn him on. I am considered sexy and attractive by men, however I do not believe in jumping into bed with just any man. Send me that man's name and address.

Public Meetings Set This Month

Public meetings will be held Dec. 2 at San Angelo and Dec. 8 at Lubbock to discuss the Secretary of Agriculture's preferred soil and water resouces conservation program put together as a result of the Resource Conservation Act of 1977.

The Dec. 2 meeting will be held at the MIR Center of Angelo State University located on U. S. Highway 87 north of San Angelo. The Dec. 8 meeting will be held at the Plains Coop Oil Mill, 2901 Ave. A, Lubbock. Both meetings are scheduled from 10 a. m. to 12 noon.

The public is being invited to comment on the preferred program which features roles for local and state governments and the targeting of USDA dollars and personnel to conserve soil and critical resouce problem areas.

Farmers, ranchers, USDA personnel, conservation district directors, ASC county committeemen, county extension agents and others are being invited to attend.

Mother's Search For Son Ends In North Carolina Prison

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Dallas woman's two-year search for the son she gave up for adoption in 1959 ended seven months ago when she found Riccardo Hernandez in a North Carolina prison.

Suzanne Raikes' elation was short-lived, as prison walls and her limited funds have kept the 21-year-old Hernandez from meeting his mother, his nearly blind father or his 105-year-old grandmother.

But Hernandez, who is serving a 16- to 25-year sentence for burglary and armed robbery, still savors the memory of their reunion by telephone.

"We had a conference call — my real father, my real mother and me, and my grandma, and my half brother, and my mother's husband — and it felt real good," Hernandez said in an interview last week at Odom Prison in Northampton County. "It was a feeling I'd never had, because I felt real whole."

Hernandez was a 19-year-old Fort Bragg, N.C., private when he and another soldier burglarized two Fayetteville homes in 1978.

Hernandez was arrested the next day, returned the loot and pleaded guilty in 1979 to two counts each of second-degree burglary, larceny and armed robbery.

Superior Court Judge James H. Pou Bailey gave Hernandez a sentence of 16 years to life, later reduced to 16 to 25 years, which makes him eligible for parole in 1990.

Mrs. Raikes, who earns $4.65 an hour working in a Dallas cafeteria, says her search cost $15,000. Now she is waging a vigorous mail-and-telephone campaign to free her son or reduce his sentence, which she considers harsh and excessive.

"He's had a raw deal since he was born," the 45-year-old woman said. "I'm not ever going to give up trying to get him out."

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Texas, and others have written Gov. Jim Hunt in her behalf. The governor has the statutory authority to pardon an inmate or commute his sentence.

Mrs. Raikes wants to see her son but she also is determined to win an audience with Hunt. Since she can afford only one journey to North Carolina, she has delayed her trip in hope that she can meet Hunt and her son.

Mrs. Raikes was 23 when she eloped with 40-year-old Daniel Zuniga. But when she learned she was pregnant she had lost touch with her husband.

Estranged from her family, she went on with her life after her baby's adoption and remarried in 1974.

Hernandez said he had wanted to find his mother, but he didn't know how to search. And although he is pessimistic about winning his release, his outlook has been brightened by the discovery.

"Even though I'm in here, I'm really happy now because I know who my mother is at last."

GOP Governors Support Cuts

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Most of the Republican governors here for their annual convention admit to serious economic problems back home, but they are united in their support of President Reagan.

The consensus emerging Sunday from the opening sessions of the Republican Governors' Association was that Republicans had better stick together as the economic crunch comes and Reagan's economic programs come under fire.

"I think the great majority of the American people are behind this program, and they recognize that in the states there will be some cutbacks and it's a necessary element for balancing the federal budget and getting our national fiscal house in order," said Gov. Dave Treen of Louisiana.

Anesthetics were first used in surgery in Europe in 1846.

Cowboys Win, Eagles Lose To Lock East

by The Associated Press

Dallas didn't exactly bend, fold, spindle or mutilate the Washington Redskins, but computer cards did come into play as the Cowboys helped forge one of three division ties created this weekend in the National Football League.

The Cowboys' computer, a well-known tool of Coach Tom Landry, apparently spotted a flaw or two in the 'Skins offense during the week, and Landry used the information to beat the Redskins 24-10 on Sunday. The victory, coupled with the New York Giants' 20-10 upset of Philadelphia, left the Cowboys and Eagles tied for the National Conference Eastern Division lead with 9-3 records.

The New York Jets also figured in a division tie, beating Miami 16-15 and moving into a deadlock with the Dolphins in the American Conference East. Each team has a record of 7-4-1.

The third tie was formed when the Cincinnati Bengals powered past Denver 38-21 and Kansas City blasted Seattle 40-13. That left the Broncos and Chiefs each at 8-4 atop the AFC West.

In other games Sunday, it was San Francisco 33, Los Angeles 31; San Diego 55, Oakland 21; Pittsburgh 32, Cleveland 10; Detroit 23, Chicago 7; Tampa Bay 37, Green Bay 3; New Orleans 27, Houston 24; St. Louis 35, Baltimore 24, and Buffalo 20, New England 17.

The Minnesota Vikings, who lead the NFC Central by 1½ games over Detroit and Tampa Bay, play at Atlanta tonight.

Dallas quarterback Danny White threw for a pair of touchdowns, including a 10-yarder to tight end Doug Cosbie late in the third quarter that broke a 10-10 tie. Drew Pearson set up the final Dallas score when he ran 25 yards on a double reverse to the Washington 1, and Ron Springs scored with 52 second left.

The Redskins' game was weakened when running back Joe Washington left the game late in the second quarter. Washington, who had rushed for 84 yards, sustained torn cartilage in his rib cage and did not return to the game.

With four weeks left in the season, only one division title appeared in the bag. That was the NFC West, where San Francisco, now 9-3, led Atlanta by 3½ games and Los Angeles by four. Cincinnati also was 9-3 after the weekend's play, and the Bengals had a two-game lead over the Steelers, 7-5.

Buffalo, at 7-5, and San Diego, also 7-5, also were in contention for AFC wild card playoff berths. The Giants, Detroit and Tampa Bay all had 6-6 marks in the NFC and were not entirely out of the chase.

Giants 20, Eagles 10

The Giants snapped a 10-10 tie in the fourth quarter with a 33-yard field goal by Joe Danelo. The play was set up when Eagles kicker Max Runager shanked a punt on a broken play.

Runager's punt went 9 yards to the Philadelphia 32, and six plays later, Danelo kicked his winning field goal. Terry Jackson put the game away when he intercepted a Ron Jaworski pass on the Eagles' next possession and returned it 32 yards for a touchdown.

Saints 27, Oilers 24

New Orleans Coach Bum Phillis made his return to Houston a triumphant one as Jack Holmes ran for 142 yards and two touchdowns to beat the Oilers.

The game was the first for Phillips in Houston since the Oilers fired him after last season. Phillips was greeted by a standing ovation when he entered the stadium.

Bengals 38, Broncos 21

Quarterback Ken Anderson passed for 396 yards, the second best single-game total of his 11-year career, as Cincinnati downed Denver. Anderson threw three touchdown passes and ran for another score against the top-rated defensive team in the NFL.

The victory was the fourth in a row for Cincinnati, which rolled up the biggest point total of the season against the Broncos.

Anderson's TD strikes included a 65-yard pass play to running back Charles Alexander in the fourth quarter.

Steelers 32, Browns 10

Cleveland quarterback Brian Sipe was intercepted six times, and Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw threw a pair of short touchdown passes as Pittsburgh kept alive in the AFC Central.

Franco Harris also scored a touchdown on a short run, tying him with Jim Taylor for career rushing touchdowns with 83.

Texas To Host 'Bama; Four Are Bowl Bound

by The Associated Press

Texas Coach Fred Akers has an immediate retort for anyone who says the Longhorns backed into the Cotton Bowl because champion Southern Methodist is on probation.

"We beat 'em (the Mustangs)," said Akers in the press box at Memorial Stadium after the Longhorns had clinched the host role in the Cotton Bowl with a 34-12 victory over Baylor. "I'd say we have nothing to be ashamed of."

Texas handed the sixth-ranked Mustangs their only loss - 9-7 - last month in Texas Stadium.

SMU earned its first Southwest Conference title since 1966 with a 32-18 victory over Arkansas in Fayetteville.

"Let's not talk about maybes," said SMU Coach Ron Meyer. "This was our bowl game. The conference title is ours."

SMU running back Eric Dickerson added, "This is fantastic ... this makes up for the probation 100 percent. You can't get any better than this."

SMU finished with a 10-1 season and a 7-1 SWC record while Texas is 8-1-1 and 5-1-1 with a regular season game remaining against Texas A&M Thanksgiving Day.

The Longhorns' opponent will be Alabama. The Crimson Tide was the choice all the way of the Cotton Bowl although Southern California was given some consideration. Akers was called in the pressbox before the end of the USC-UCLA game to be told his opponent was Alabama.

The SWC landed four teams in bowls.

Arkansas, 8-3 and 5-2, will play North Carolina in the Gator Bowl Monday Dec. 28.

Houston, which outlasted Texas Tech 15-7 Saturday and still must play Rice, meets Oklahoma Dec. 26 in the Sun Bowl.

The Texas Aggies, who blasted Texas Christian 37-7, play Oklahoma State Dec. 12 in the Independence Bowl at Shreveport.

Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant said his squad was "very happy over the Cotton Bowl invitation. They had expressed a desire to return to Dallas. You can check the record, though. We don't have a very good record against Texas.

"But right now we have to concentrate on Auburn. If we don't beat them, then none of us will have a very good time at the Cotton Bowl."

Tigers Come Through Again...

Snyder Sacks State!

we were playing Monahans to beat them," said Elrod. "But I guess our playoff experience made the difference. We weren't nervous at all today."

Snyder led off the serve with Becky Harrell, one of three Tigers to made the All-State Tournament Team. Also named to the elite squad were Sabrina Robinson and Toni Elrod. Harrell opened with an ace serve and Snyder rolled out to a 3-0 lead.

South San eventually tied the game at 3-3, but only because Snyder had trouble serving. The Tigers used 17 servers to account for the 15 points, and frequently served out or into the net.

Toni Elrod broke the deadlock with another ace serve, 4-3, and Harrell got Snyder its next point with a spike down the middle of the court. The Tigers upped their lead to 5-3, then 7-4 and 10-4 before Sherri Rich delivered a pair of ace shots that made it 12-5.

Both teams traded points until Shana Koonsman served up a 14-8 shot that South San hit back into the net.

Snyder dominated the second game even more completely. South San served four of their opponents past the end line to aid the Tiger momentum, which never faltered, despite a 1-3 deficit at one time.

With Rich serving, the score went to 2-3 on a hitting foul, 3-3 and 4-3 on a pair of aces, and 5-3 when the Cougars hit the ball out of bounds.

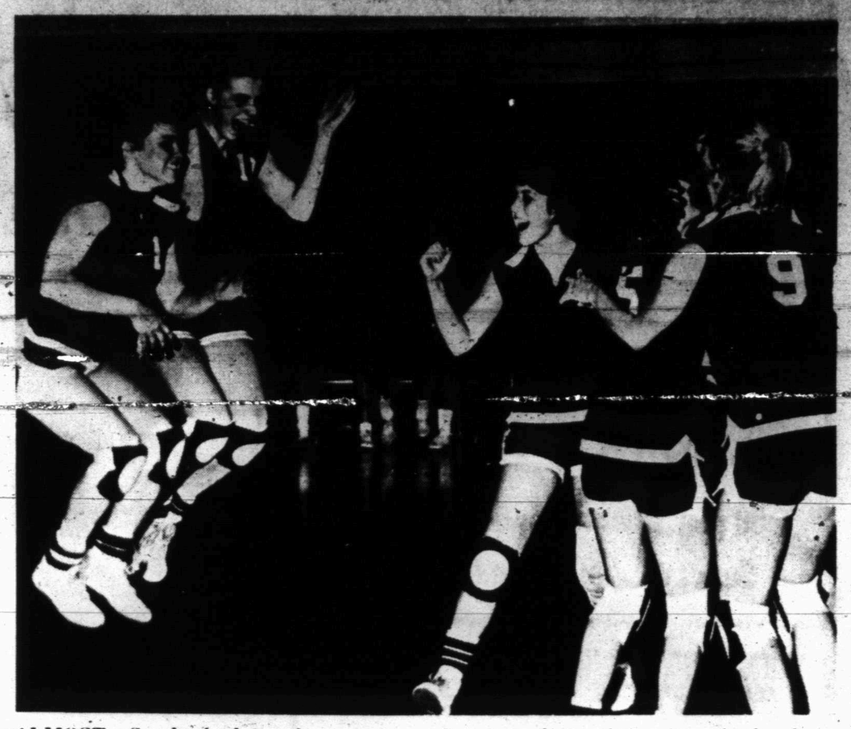

Though the serve changed sides several times in the next few minutes, thundering spikes, set up by Toni Elrod and delivered by Robinson and Northcott, kept South San from capitalizing. Sabrina Robinson served Snyder's sixth point, and Toni Elrod went to the line moments later to put the game away.

The two-time All-State Tournament setter combined with the defense and offense of her teammates for six straight points and an insurmountable 12-3 advantage.

Still, it took four more serving chances before Snyder could lock up the match. Northcott served up 14-3 and 14-4, and Robinson served 15-5 for the winner.

The officiating, more technical than the Tigers are used to seeing in West Texas, never bothered the defending champions in the last match. Snyder got called for slapping the ball on occassion, but made clean serve receives the entire time. South San, lacking the experience, got hit with several calls, but basically lacked the defense to cope with Snyder's rocket-like spikes and gentle placement shots to the open areas.

Snyder concludes the season with a 36-5 mark, while South San fell to 33-4.

ALMOST -- Snyder hadn't quite sewed up the Class 4A State Volleyball championship when this photo was taken, but the outcome was not in doubt. Minutes before the final point the Tigers could barely contain their joy, as is indicated. Snyder won the tourney by defeating San Antonio South San West in the championship match 15-8 and 15-5. Left to right above are Shana Koonsman, Sabrina Robinson, Sherri Rich, Toni Elrod and Kathy Northcott, five of the six starters on the team. The other is Becky Harrell. (SDN Staff Photo)

Dusters Edge Howard For Tournament Title

BIG SPRING -- Western Texas' Dusters showed just enough but not too much as they defeated host Howard County College 70-69 here Saturday to win the Hawk Queens Classic.

"We wanted to win but we are going to have to face them in conference play in a couple of weeks so we didn't want to show them a lot of things," said an elated Joe Cushing this morning.

"We had a lot of people play well. I was just real proud of them," he added.

Western Texas took the lead early and lost it only twice, but Howard hung close throughout the championship game. The Queens went in front 34-33 with 2:15 left in the first half until Cindy Maddox put the visitors back on top for intermission, 35-34.

Western kept 1-to-5 point leads until midway through the second period when the hosts went back in front for the final time, 56-54. Vickie Teal answered with back-to-back buckets to switch the advantage again, 58-56.

Late scores by Dale Pieper, Maddox and Teal held the lead and strong Duster defense in the final minutes kept the game from changing direction.

Teal's 17 points and 13 rebounds led the Dusters, while Dorcas Perkins added 14 points and 13 boards. Maddox notched 12 points; Pieper had 10; and Valerie Wells 8.

Cindy Goltl, playing for Norma Frazier, came up with 9 points and 10 rebounds. Frazier was unable to play because of sickness, but was expected back for tonight's game at Ranger.

Nell Haskins, voted the tournament's Most Valuable Player, led the Queens with 38 points. Cindy Robinson and Carrie Luttrick scored 10 each.

In other tournament action, McLennan Community College defeated Abilene Christian for third place, 65-62; Odessa won consolation over Temple and Ranger took seventh place over Weatherford.

Western Texas' teams are slated to play at Ranger tonight; the women at 6 and the men at 8. WTC's Dusters then entertain Howard Payne 6:30 Nov. 30 in Scurry County Coliseum before heading into WJCAC competition Dec. 3 at the coliseum against Howard.

Western Texas' Dusters are now 8-1 on the season.

Western Tops Wharton, Wins Fourth Straight

WACO -- Western Texas College's Westerners dodged the bullet again here Saturday night, nipping Wharton Junior College 51-49 for their fourth straight victory.

The Westerners continue their road schedule tonight at Ranger, then host Howard County College Tuesday in the WJCAC opener before heading out on the asphalt again.

The road schedule is something Coach Larry Dunaway is concerned about.

"Ten of our first 13 games this season will be on the road and that's a lot to ask," he said. "I think what happened against Wharton is it finally got to us. Our minds were willing but our bodies weren't. But these kids are going to have to be able to go on road trips and continue to play well. We can't afford to let traveling take so much out of us. We've got one home game in our next four games and we'll have to be ready to play each one of them," he added.

Jerrold Whitmore scored 19 points, Derrick Grow and Darren Lee hit for 8 each and Keary Bolden and Dwayne Hunt added 7 apiece for all of WTC's scoring Saturday.

Bolden also ripped down 10 rebounds and had two blocked shots, while Grow had 8 boards and Whitmore had 5 rebounds and 5 assists.

"Wharton was big, but they weren't all that strong," said Dunaway. "Thank goodness we were able to play good enough defense to hold them down. This was by far our worst game of the season."

Wharton took a 25-23 lead into the half as WTC shot only 27 percent from the field. The Westerners rallied to go ahead in the second half, and despite missing three freethrows in the final 40 seconds, hung on to win the game.

The game with Ranger is at 8 tonight, but the major contest coming up for the Westerners will be tomorrow's conference opener with Howard College, also at 8 in Scurry County Coliseum. The team then travels to the Tyler Classic in Tyler over the weekend, and takes off again Monday to play its second conference game against NMMI in Roswell, N.M.

College Update

by The Associated Press

In two college football Cinderella sagas, the clock struck midnight for Washington State before the Cougars could smell the roses for the first time in a half-century, while the glass slipper proved a perfect fit for Iowa.

The bowl pieces fell into place over the weekend, with most of the matchups as predicted by The Associated Press early last week. But seventh-ranked Michigan and No.14 Washington State had to change their itineraries from Pasadena to Houston and San Diego, respectively.

Ohio State upset Michigan 14-9 and the Wolverines had to settle for a trip to the Bluebonnet Bowl to meet No.15 UCLA. The Bruins were less than three minutes away from the Rose Bowl themselves, but a late 5-yard touchdown run by 10th-rated Southern California's Marcus Allen did them in 22-21.

Ohio State's triumph gave the Buckeyes a share of the Big Ten championship, but No.19 Iowa, after two decades without a winning season, earned the right to represent the conference on New Year's Day by trouncing Michigan State 36-7.

And UCLA's setback made No.17 Washington the Pacific-10's representative in Pasadena. The Huskies snapped a tie in the third period and turned back Washington State 23-10.

Thefts, Mishaps Occupy Police

Two thefts and two minor traffic mishaps occupied Snyder police over the past weekend.

Around 8 a.m., Saturday morning, local officers received a report of a burglary at Patterson Used Cars. An undetermined amount of money was taken in the robbery which occured sometime Friday night. The culprits apparently gained entry through a window and also vandalized the office in addition to taking the money.

In another episode, the rear door to the old Ben Wilson building on the square was reported to have been forced open sometime before 4:20 a.m. Monday morning. The owner of the building was called to the scene and reported that nothing appeared to be missing or damaged. The building is currently used to store items donated for the local Goodfellows Christmas toy drive.

At 9:48 a.m., Saturday, police were called to the 1000 block of 24th St. to investigate a minor two car collision. Involved were a 1981 Chevrolet driven by Vaughenie Voss and a 1963 Rambler driven by Jimmy Davis. No injuries and only minor damages were reported in the mishap.

At 3:03 p.m. Sunday, the 2100 block was the scene of the other minor mishap of the weekend. In this accident, a 1973 Ford operated by Twilla Durrett was in collision with a fire plug owned by the City of Snyder. Only minor damage was reported in this mishap.

In other action, officers arrested two subjects on charges of public intoxication and one on charges of DWI.
