The Woman's Day

By

Boys will be boys. They've thrown a barbed wire entanglement about St. Hilda's College, one of the women's colleges at Oxford University, all because the male undergraduates insist on serenading the girls on campus property, and even invading their sacred citadel. To be sure, the boys did not begin the invasion until they were forbidden to serenade. Then they began sealing water-spouts, sneaking up fire-escapes, and taking any means to send cold chills up and down a nation's spine. Now the barbed wire is up. "Away, had, the men!" which is just one more reason why I have no patience with middle-aged women of Victorian ideas having jobs with girls. Nothing can so injure a girl as exposure to the idea that men are evil, strange creatures whose serenading must be stayed off, even with barbed wire, if necessary.

Male "Step-ins"
Not a few he-haws have been spent on the fashion note that males, stalwart, doughy males, will wear "step-ins" on their manly forms this year. "Step-ins" must be fashioned of charming pastel shades—coral, apple green, lavender, flesh, mauve, baby blue, and perhaps even vampy black georgette with lace edgings and insets. Peach, I believe, is said to be the favorite shade. And why, not, and what of it? There is tradition, I believe, that women like the conventional, only, uninteresting, drab, plain clothes that men wear—that they are masculine, et al. Well, we don't. And if the males think they can make as mad by matching our peach step-ins, they have another guess coming. Heberdshery windows will be interesting places wherein to gaze.

Baby Murderer
Baby Tommy Ruby, aged 4 got the loaded family revolver, sneaked up behind his mother as she was planting garden seeds, and killed her. Tommy was mad because his mother wouldn't let him play with matches. When the corpse came, Tommy got the family bread knife and almost stabbed him. When they said, "Poor baby! you can't blame him; he doesn't know what he has done!" Tommy yelled, in a rage, that he did, too, know what he had done; that he was glad he'd killed her—now he could play with matches. "It takes a psychological authority to say just what ails Tommy—just how abnormal he is. He is precocious, certainly, to even know that guns and sharp knives mean death. But I am inclined to think that Tommy really performed an act of mercy to his mother when he killed her. She has been spared much."

The Morning Avalanche Menu for the Day

Breakfast: Orange juice, cereal cooked with figs, cream, crisp toast, poached eggs, milk, coffee. Luncheon: Toasted cheese sandwich, molded dandelion salad, drop molasses cookies, baked rhubarb, milk, tea. Dinner: Lamb stew with dumplings, stuffed cabbage, apple-celery salad, maple custard, milk, coffee.

The luncheon salad suggests an attractive way to include dandelion greens in the diet. Any sort of greens can be used in place of the dandelions. Wild mustard is equally good while purslane or "pussley" and peppercorns follow a close second choice.

Molded Dandelion Salad
One cup cooked dandelion greens, 2 hard cooked eggs, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1 cup boiling water. Chop greens very fine. Soften gelatine in cold water for ten minutes and dissolve in boiling water. Stir until thoroughly dissolved and let cool slightly. Add lemon juice and let stand until it begins to set, a tart salad dressing. Mayonnaise Fold in greens. Line one large mold or six small ones with slices of hard cooked egg. Add the gelatin mixture taking care not to disturb the eggs. Let stand until chilled and firm. Turn out of mold and SORROW FOR SIN — O Lord, my God, hear me, for I am ready to halt. I will declare mine iniquity; I will be sorry for my sin.—Psalm 38: 15-18.

FEASTING ON THE LIGHTER THINGS

As we go plodding through life, to some people we appear not very alert, and possibly not as wide-awake as some, but we have observed some things about people. We find that there is a great variety of things that interest the wonderfully mixed population of this nation. However, we have observed that the seekers after the lighter things of life seem to be greatly in the majority while those who would acquire knowledge is not so great. Oh, for sure there are more people attending colleges in the United States today than ever before in the history of the nation, but right down deep in the minds of those attending what percent are in reality seeking knowledge in a way that it could be said truthfully that they are thirsting after it? A large number are there because the parents have sent them there. They have no fixed goal. They attend and get by. That is about as far as they are interested and many of them we fear are not interested even that far. One is failing when they are not doing their best, no matter what they are engaged in.

We are of the opinion that each of us have what is pleased to be termed "a goodly heritage." We are privileged to breathe the pure air, enjoy the wonderful sunshine, the starry nights and the cooling breezes, and the privilege of getting knowledge, but how many of us properly appreciate these things? How many of us improve our time? All through the centuries there has been a rage for something, a seeking for something. In the days of Queen Elizabeth you will possibly remember were days of exploration and those days of Medici we find were days of glorious art. The century that ended twenty-seven years ago must have been the century of science, because in that time there was such wonderful improvements along scientific lines, which is continuing in this present time. The past hundred years has witnessed the entire transformation of human life, the use of steam and electric power, telephone and telegraph, and thousands of other marked changes in things that are commonly used now. We are all seeking something but in this day and time it seems that majority of people are following after the lighter things of the world.

People are seeking amusement, and they are not at all particular of the kind they get. It is having a tendency to pull down the moral standard of the people. By this seeking after things that are of light weight, is driving from the lives of the women of the land the sense of modest that they once so proudly boasted. The modern habits, customs and practices has almost completely changed the home life of the nation. No longer do the homes of America have that splendid type of discipline that the nation once boasted of. No longer do the children in the homes respect the father and the mother as the children of years ago did, and this is possibly caused by the fact that the homes are not of the same type that they once were, and this is because parenthood is seeking the pleasures of the amusement places more than ever before, the movies, the dance hall the golf grounds and the various types of society have all taken their toll from the home life, and it is bred and born in the lives of the children of this age to seek pleasure rather than deepen their knowledge of things that are more stable in their nature. It seems that this is the jazz age, and it is hard indeed to interest a great many people in anything that does not to a certain extent smack of the swiftness of the age. It is said however that after a great nervous strain a person will laugh hysterically, and we are convinced that this is true of a nation. The World War put the nation under a terrible strain, and now since it is over we are in the state of hysteria, and we are after the lighter things. We tolerate foolishness that there is absolutely no, we see the folly of dress and our manners are not what they used to be, but there is a hope that this is only a hysterical fit that the people of the Nation are suffering from at this time, and it will not be a permanent thing. Human beings worth while, even though this class might be thought to be a small percent of the number, are trying to calm themselves, and we hope that they will be able to bring the balance of the nation to their sense, though the progress seems distressingly slow, it may be that we are just attracted more by the hysteria than by the calm sober-minded group that is going forward building a more safe and sane foundation on which the lives of the coming generation may build temples of knowledge when they get over their fit of building air castles. Things happen in our community that are not good sounding. It is considered news, and the newspaper prints it. It is heralded through out the land, over the fast news wires, it is flashed to all parts of the world, while the thousands and thousands of others who are not doing anything out of the ordinary are not notices particularly in that way. Let us console ourselves by believing that things are not as bad as they may seem. Remember that when you read of some woman conspiring with some man to kill her husband that there are thousands of other women who are not killing their husbands, though some of them may be too sorry to kill, and instead of getting rid of these tiresome life partners, they are working for them, taking care of their children, and trying to keep the home together. It is the deep water that moves slowly, and it is the very best population of the nation that is attracting the least attention.

While it seems that the world is crazy for trashy things, it may be that this is just the noisy bunch, and the trash that is floating on the top of the deep pool, and that the under current is taking care of the movement and progress of the water in the stream, and that in a few years when the fit of hysterics has been worn out we may settle down to a more sane and sensible trend, and this age of flimsiness may soon pass into history, and the minds of the people will get into the deeper and more important channels and into the deeper currents, so that the trashy elements will not concern us, and our coming generation will be spared of the dizziness of the present time.

COOLIDGE NOMINATION CONSIDERED CERTAIN

When Chairman Butler was in Denver the other day he "intimated" that if Denver wanted to get the Republican National Convention it would have to "put up" $200,000. Mr. Hamlin, the Colorado member of the National Committee, made the same estimate. San Francisco has already promised that little sum, and "as much more as may be needed." Denver is acid but prudent. She paid $100,000 for the Democratic National Convention of 1908; a big sum for those days. Unfortunately, Mr. Bryan's third nomination was certain.

There was no prospect of a fight. Strangers at the gates were few. Denver was far from getting her money back. Still sore with the stings of that old experience, the Rocky Mountain News warns against a repetition of it, and issues this challenge and ultimatum:

"If Denver is going to raise the amount required for next year's Republican Party Convention, the subscribers should have a rider attached to their subscriptions to the effect that Calvin Coolidge must declare himself definitely out of the race in advance or nothing paid. Denver is not going to be caught napping a second time. It is not going to put up hard cash for a ratification meeting. It is sour on pre-arranged battles; it demands the real thing in the arena."

This devotion to sound and spirited political athletics is worthy of Denver. It is regrettable that the challenge will not be accepted. It is safe to say that Mr. Coolidge is no friend of "riders" either in Congress bills or subscriptions paid; and he is believed to be pursuing, with some energy and success, the famous sport of delegate-hunting in many States. Yet lovers of Denver will be a little pained to see her ardor pinioned by conditions, while San Francisco, her ancient aleatory instinct undiminished is ready, to take chances and even to double her bet. It might be thought that the Democratic National Convention would be not without promise of continuous stir and shindy. Our high-seated contemporary permits itself to use this unworthy flier:

"As for a Democratic National Convention, the fear is that it might last too long and it would become the duty of the city to ship out the delegates by way of the Platte River, like a Coxey army."

In other words, only the Colorado Republicans, "have the price."

In 1537, the Baron de Caravetter bequeathed his "title and estates" to the people of Montpellier, France, since which time each citizen born there claims the title of baron. This reminds us of the Kentucky Colonel who acquired his title by marrying a real colonel's widow.

Few aviators have had a greater thrill and lived to tell the tale than General Augustin Justo, Argentine minister of war, who was blown from an airplane by a sudden gust of wind, at an altitude of 6,000 feet. A parachute strapped to his back opened perfectly and brought him to earth in safety.

OUT OUR WAY

SO THINK WE

"It takes all kinds of folks to make a world, but we do not for the life of us see how some people can be even worth anything just to fill space."

We do not need flies and mosquitoes in this country, and we need not have them neither if we will just do the right thing at the right time in keeping the city in a sanitary condition.

There is not much chance to escape it when one chooses the footlocking route as the route to bring about a red end. After a fellow gets a few shots of the bootleg whiskey he has pretty near got him. It then takes the man what he usually is not to resist the temptation of more.

Some folks hold the chamber of commerce responsible for everything that goes wrong. The main trouble with that type of people is they never put anything into the organization, know nothing about it and hence merely depend upon what "they say" and they say, very seldom know what they are talking about.

The fellow who gets up and bustles when times are not just as good as they are at others is the fellow that is going to succeed. The chronic achey will never get anywhere in the fight for wealth for he is whipped before he starts.

This good old Lubbock country may have its disadvantages, but we would not swap even our life in this country for any place we have ever seen. Part of the business not for a dozen pairs of boots.

Cotton acreage may not be reduced in this section of the country, but it will be in the flooded portions of the United States, and that may reduce the number of bales, although it may be that the yield that will be increased in this country may bring it up to the highest production.

SOUTH PLAINS PRESS

SMOKE AND FIRE.

Borger so it is said, is a rather dead town since the curtailment in drilling and the clean-up inaugurated by Gov. Dan Moody. A citizen of the town stated recently that business was not half so good, and that the outlook was not as bright as it might be. This man was of the opinion that the clean-up was not needed and was put on solely for the benefit of Dan Moody who was seeking more political notoriety. He said that Borger was as quiet as any other town in the Panhandle, and that there was but little law breaking in the city. That is very good and we are glad to learn this, but that gentleman will have a hard time making the people believe what he says. "Childress Index."

There is an old saying that most of us have heard some time or other, and that is "where there is so much smoke there must be some fire." This, we think, is true in regard to Borger. Newspaper reports and newspapers from that very city, would indicate that there has been some things happened happened there that would smack of the "tough." However, we give the town credit for having shown much improvement, and if that city has been prospering merely because of the toughs that have made their headquarters there, it deserves to be dead.

IN NAME ONLY.

Statistics seem to indicate that an ever-increasing number of divorces are being granted in this state. The court says that after a long and hard fight, the court has granted a divorce in the name only. The following is the court's decision:

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that someone has figured out consolation in a quart of bootleg whiskey. That one has said that the consolation he gets out of it is that after a fellow has bought and paid for a quart of the stuff he does not have money enough to hire a car and that eliminates the danger of driving while intoxicated.

It is reported that cross parking is getting to be quite common in Lubbock. The main trouble about that is that it is sure to cause more accidents.

TOO LATE

Floods and Locking the STABLE. Juneville (Wia) Gazette: There is water enough ten miles inland from the channel of the Mississippi river to float the largest craft that sails the seas. No need would there be for government appropriation for digging a deeper channel if this state of water could be held. It would change all the geography and ten thousand square miles of tillable land would be thrown into the waterway. In these days of engineering marvels when all manner of problems are solved by that skill and science of the engineer, we have little excuse for a flood except that we do not want to pay the price. It takes a thousand years to get leaves and debris so that we get an inch of top soil on the land but in an hour the flood from a river may wash it all away and another thousand years may elapse before we have the same top soil. Trees are killed and property destroyed to the amount of millions of dollars.

We are having now the worst flood known since the Mississippi valley was built up. It takes in a great territory. It begins above Kansas City on the Missouri, takes in the rivers in Kansas and finds its greatest channel of destruction below the Arkansas river. The flood has done millions of dollars of damage along the White river in the Ozarks below there, sweeping out of business a power dam and burying hydroelectric machinery in useless masses under silt and mud.

From St. Louis to New Orleans there is one chapter after another reading exactly alike save that the names of the towns and cities change. Dead and dying people and animals drowned victims, starvation and suffering follow in the wake of this flood. Little amelioration can come from all that the Red Cross and other aid organizations, local or national, can provide.

This is the story of failure. In August the river will be low, the Arkansas will be fordable, where a stretch of miles of water makes even crossing by boat dangerous. "Rivers flowing gently to the sea" are fine in poetry but in modern civilization where man checks the ravages of nature we owe it to future generations to stay the flood by series of dams and reservoirs. Some day we shall do this. In doing this we shall save forests, drying and burning and save lives and property and the menace of flood and disaster.

By Williams

Religion Of The Presidents

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The American people have always applied the principle religious liberty in their choice of president. That is to say, they have never made the religious convictions of a candidate for that office a test for his qualifications, thereby conforming with the constitutional provision which prohibits such a test without, however, any conscious compliance with that provision. Few of the presidents, indeed, have been churchmen in the strict sense and a number of them were not members of any church, but most of them, if not all of them, were essentially religious and some of them deeply so.

Three of the greatest of the presidents belonged to no church. Jefferson, to whom more than any other man religious liberty in America is due, never attached himself to any church and was bitterly condemned by the Puritans as an atheist. He said of himself: "I am a real Christian. I am a disciple of the doctrines of Jesus very different from the platitudes which call me an infidel and themselves Christians and preachers of the gospel" while they draw all their characteristics from what its authors never said or saw. Jackson was not a church member until late in life, becoming a Presbyterian after he retired from the presidency. Lincoln lived and died outside the church, although he was perhaps of all the presidents the most deeply religious. He favored the Presbyterian church while president. Van Buren was a regular attendant, but was not a member, of the Dutch Reformed Church, with which Roosevelt was also associated, but who in his later years attended the Episcopal church. Polk was not a church member, though while president he attended the Presbyterian church in deference to the religious opinions of his wife. The religion of Taylor and Johnson is a matter of doubt.

Washington was brought up in the Episcopal church, was long a vestryman and always gave liberally to its support, but whether he was a communicant or not is a subject of dispute. He was, however, a very religious man, and his devotion is more liberally expressed in his correspondence and state papers than is the religious feeling of any other president. Madison, Monroe, Tyler, the elder Harrison and Arthur were also Episcopals. Pierce was either an Episcopalian or a Congregationalist; conflicting statements leaving his church connections in doubt. If a Congregationalist, he was the only one until Coolidge. It is a popular impression that Taft was a Unitarian, but there were three others of that denomination, John Adams, John Quincy Adams and Millard Fillmore. Both of the Harrisons were strict church members. Benjamin was a Presbyterian. All of the Ohio presidents were churchmen. Hayes and McKinley being Methodists, McKinley particularly devout. Garfield, a member of the Church of the Disciples, and Harding a Baptist. Both of the democratic presidents who have served since the Civil War, Cleveland and Wilson, were Presbyterians and so also were Buchanan and Polk. Grant was an attendant of the Methodist church.

But whether church members or not, whether religious or not, religion has always had the respect and support of the American presidents.

A teacher asked her pupils to bring to school objects that represented songs.
One boy brought an apple, another a banana and a third an old whip.
"What song does the apple represent?" asked the teacher.

"What does the banana represent?"
"Yes, We Have No Bananas."
"And what does the whip represent?"
"Thanks for the Buggy Ride."—The Progressive Grocer.

Avoiding Disease

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

A committee of the American Public Health association, including several authorities on public health, after consultation with numerous leaders in the field of public health, has prepared an outline of the elementary facts that should be known relative to the spreading of all infectious diseases.

Some of the conditions are so unusual in the United States that they are little likely to give concern to the average person; others are quite frequent and represent a constant menace. Their control, indeed their complete elimination depends largely upon the average person's knowledge about them.

Cause Is Mystery

The cause of chicken pox is unknown. Apparently the infectious agent is present in the blisters that appear on the skin and on the membranes in the mouth and nose. Since the blisters appear early and break almost as soon as they appear, the disease may be spread before the eruption is visible on the skin. The blisters on the skin appear in successive groups, usually first on the back, chest or face, and most profuse on the parts of the skin that are covered by the clothing.

One of the most important facts relating to chicken pox has to do with its resemblance to smallpox.

I met him on the street today
An old time friend who broadly smiled
And stopped me in his friendly way
To brag about his little child.
The wonder of the world is she!
There never was a girl so smart
She's one you surely ought to see
She is her mother's counterpart!
She sings, she dances and she plays.
Recites and does a lot of stuff.
She has her mother's clever ways!
The boy? Oh, yes, that rascal's tough!

Fifteen days in jail sentences were meted out to alleged bad check artists by County Judge Nordyke, and a fourth person was released under bond to await trial, it was reported.

C. O. Green, charged with the same offense, pleaded guilty and received a fine of one dollar and costs and five days in jail.

A person giving his name as Edw. Tomlin pleaded guilty to the same offense and received the same sentence.

G. N. Lammons, charged with swindling, was released under bond to await trial, it was stated by court officials.

More than sixty persons were in the building when the explosion happened. Twenty two of them were girls who were at work in the rear of the structure and who escaped injury.

Police, searching the wreckage, later found the bodies of Charles Mallett, 21, clerk, and Charles J. Quinlan, 25, head of the claim department being the number of known dead to five.

The total of known dead as a result of the mysterious explosion that demolished a two story building on East 23rd Street today reached seven when police discovered the bodies of two young women stenographers.

The stenographers' bodies were found by the aid of powerful searchlights mounted on an adjacent roof. They were identified as those of Florence Cavanaugh, 19, and Elizabeth Lovinger, 23.

As the search progressed spectators swarmed in thousands from

While the investigation gave no clues as to the cause of the explosion one building inspector said it might have been due to gasoline from the Yellow Taxi garage next door backing up the sewers to the ceiling.

REPORTER JAILED

rangers had him for Kimes-Terrill story which we carried this afternoon, which story said that Kimes and Terrill, Oklahoma bandits wanted in connection with the recent bank robbery at Pampa, were reported to be in Borger. I went with him to a car in which Chief of Police C. G. Purcell and Ranger Captain Cummings, and "Scotch Bobby", a wrestler were waiting for Wagner. Purcell and Cummings told me they wanted Wagner to tell where he got his information. Wagner told them, in my presence, that the information came from "Scotch Bobby". Then Purcell blamed the paper loudly for carrying a story from police court today including testimony of a man who said that police beat him after arresting, then telling me Wagner was "held for investigation, without charges", they drove away. I took a telegram addressed to Dan Moody and one to the Associated Press to the Western Union office, then went to police station just as Wagner and officers came up. Wagner was booked "for investigation" as was Scotch Bobby and when myself and others asked whether we could bond him out, Cummings said:

"No charges have been filed against him. You can't make bond for him until I get ready."

I then went to Western Union to send another telegram I wrote "Associated Press, Dallas, Texas, Wagner held without bond, Ranger Captain Cummings says no charges filed" and signed it. Cummings, who was looking over my shoulder, seized the telegram from my hands and pulled me by my coat collar on to the street out of the telegraph office, took off my glasses and told me that if I sent any telegrams using his name he would give me the "damndest beating I ever had."

I asked him if this was official. He said "Yes." I said then that I would not use his name in any telegram, not that he was in charge in any way. I didn't want to get beat up. So he went with me into the telegraph office and I wrote:

"Wagner held without bond for investigation, by rangers. This telegram dictated by rangers. Taken from my hand and said I could not send any telegram. I then went to the newspaper office and attempted to get calls through to Amarillo and Panhandle, but could not get through. Attempts to get local telephone numbers also failed. I then went to a nearby filling station, thinking rangers had stopped calls from Herald office and using assumed name to get call through, advised Amarillo, News-Globe and Panhandle Herald of situation."

(Signed)

T. E. CAUFIELD, Managing Editor, Borger Daily Herald.

Denials Entered

Chief of Police C. G. Purcell and Ranger Captain Cummings interviewed tonight said the statement issued by T. E. Caufield, managing editor of the Borger Daily Herald, was totally unfounded. That they had had nothing to do with communication, either telephone or telegraph and had no reason to prevent news or anything pertaining to the local situation from being sent to the outside news associations and publications.

Chief Purcell said he was trying to cope with the local situation in the best manner possible and that he had not received the cooperation of the local paper, inasmuch that it had published news which reflected upon the efficiency of the rangers and local police.

Will Settle Trouble

Purcell said the present trouble, if there be any, will work out of its own accord, and does not need the assistance of newspapers. "We wish no publicity that reflects on our efforts here. We are trying to work fairly and squarely with the citizens, newspaper and every man, woman and child in Borger who has the least desire to be a law-abiding citizen. All we ask is cooperation not resentment and antagonism."

Wanted Name Left Out

In reference to the statement of Caufield, Captain Cummings said, that he told Caufield to send nothing out of the city mentioning his name in any manner. That Caufield had used his name in a message to Governor Moody and the Associated Press, for that reason he took the message from Caufield, but had no objection to news of any other nature being sent and took no steps to prevent telephone calls or telegraph messages thereafter from being sent out. Cummings said that he did not want such publicity as it was a no consequence. That the rangers were here to enforce the law and that this was their mission in Borger.

"No Authority", Moody

PORT WORTH, Texas, May 6 (AP)—The rangers have no authority to censor the press or news comments. Governor Dan Moody declared here tonight when informed of the action by state rangers in Borger in placing a newspaper reporter in jail.

"And I am slow to believe that they are assuming any such authority," he said. "The right of habeas corpus has not been suspended and the freedom of the press still exists."

"The men I sent to Borger are experienced peace officers," and in my judgment they will enforce the law and protect the rights of citizens. I know nothing of this matter," (meaning the arrest of the reporter), "and would not attempt to comment on it until I have some knowledge of the details."

Stores Will Close At Commencement

Lubbock stores will close from ten o'clock until twelve o'clock May 30 to allow all merchants, clerks, and other employees to attend the commencement address at the Texas Technological college's first commencement exercise. It was voted by the directors of the Lubbock Retail Merchants association today in regular monthly session.

Dr. Paul W. Horn, president of the Tech requested that the business men of Lubbock make this concession to the college in view of the fact that this is the first commencement program.

The directors voted to observe National Window Display Advertising Week from May 18 to 21 by fixing up windows with a particular appeal to the American Legion members who will be here May 21 and 22 for the annual convention of the fifth division. Many cities over the nation are observing the week, going to considerable expense to put up prizes for the best decorated windows. Prizes are being offered both to the stores having the best decorated window and to individuals who come nearest to judging the winning display windows.

The week is observed to create more interest of the public in window display advertising.

The directors also voted to endorse a movement already started here to ask all merchants to decorate their windows to give an appeal to the visiting Legionnaires. The directors also voted to endorse a movement to have all merchants make Saturday, May 31 a special bargain day in Lubbock to attract more people to this city for the opening day of the convention.

Several other matters of a detailed nature were passed on by the directors.

TWO KILLED IN RIOTS

Forty More Wounded When Students Stone Newspaper and Police Attack Them

LAPAZ, Bolivia, May 6 (AP)—Two persons were killed and forty wound in a riot here late last night which resulted today in the declaration of martial law by the Bolivian cabinet. Quiet prevailed throughout the city today, and the cabinet met in an all day session.

The riot grew out of a manifestation by 2,000 students before a newspaper office in support of an imminent strike by professors of the national faculty who had not received their salaries for three months. Today an agreement was reached between the government and the faculty by which the professors were promised their back salaries.

The students, who declared a strike of their own in support of the faculty, last night gathered in front of a newspaper office and began stoning it. This resulted in a charge by mounted policemen and in the ensuing disorders two persons were killed and forty wounded. Chief of Police Millan was replaced by the government by Gabriel Gonzalez.

Today the government closed the plant of the newspaper La Razon which will resume publication Sunday, and deported five men, including Claudio Sanjines, chief of the liberal party and Gustavo Carlos Otero, managing editor of La Razon.

WEENIE ROAST HELD BY YOUNG PEOPLES GROUP
Approximately 100 people were entertained with a weenie roast and reading program in the municipal park last night by a division of the Young People's meeting of the Church of Christ.

A contest for leadership in attendance conducted by two groups of the class has increased the attendance 50 per cent within the last four weeks. Last evening's entertainment was given by the defeated group, under the leadership of Charlen Christian. Clyde Williams, leader of the winning group, won in attendance by a very small margin.

B. Sherrod and Emerson Shepherd are instructors of the Young People's class of the Church of Christ.

KILLED BY PROPELLOR

Youth Instantly Slain When He Is Struck By Blade In Airplane Task

PORT WORTH, May 6 (AP)—Armond Sensing, 17, Whitney, Texas, was instantly killed this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock, when he was struck by the propeller of an airplane on which he and two companions were working.

Sensing, according to Jessie Bristow, 21, owner of the plane, was working under the plane just before an attempt was made to start the motor. When the motor was started the boy crawled from under the plane and leaned against one of the guy wires by the motor pit.

KIRSCHBAUM CLOTHES

Lower the Cost of Dressing Well

Virgin Wool Fabrics offer a definite advantage

— and here is definite proof!

THE fabrics in Kirschbaum suits are made of new wool yarn—wool that has seen no other service in the trip from the pasture to the loom. All fabrics do not give this advantage—even all wool fabrics, many of which are made of reclaimed cloth that has been ground up, respun and re-woven into so-called new cloth.

The one is new cloth. The other merely a second-hand substitute. Which do you prefer? We ask many customers the same question daily, and invariably they answer, "Give me a Kirschbaum suit tailored of reliable 100% virgin wool fabrics."

DEPENDABLE MERCHANDISE

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

General Topic:—Peter, and the other disciples.

Scripture Lesson:—John 20:1-10.

John 20:1.—Now on the first day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene early, while it was yet dark, unto the tomb, and seeth the stone taken away from the tomb.

2. She raneth therefore, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other disciples whom Jesus loved, and saith unto them: They have taken away the Lord out of the tomb, and we know where they have laid him.

3. Peter therefore went forth, and the other disciples, and they went toward the tomb.

4. And they ran both together, and the other disciple outran Peter, and came first to the tomb.

5. And stooping and looking in, he seeth the linen cloths lying; yet entered he not in.

6. Simon Peter therefore also cometh, following him, and entered into the tomb; and he beholdeth the linen cloths lying.

7. And the napkin that was upon his head, not lying with the linen cloths, but rolled up in a place by itself.

8. Then entered in therefore the other disciple also, who came first to the tomb, and he saw, and believed.

9. For as yet they knew not the scripture, that he must rise again from the dead.

10. So the disciples went away again unto their own home.

John 21:1-15. So when they had broken their fast, Jesus saith to Simon, Peter, Simon, son of John, lovest thou me more than these? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my lambs.

12. He saith to him again a second time, Simon, son of John, lovest thou me? He saith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knowest that I love thee. He saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

13. He saith unto him the third time, Simon, son of John, lovest thou me? Peter was grieved because he said unto him the third time, Lovest thou me? And he said unto him, Lord, thou knowest all things; thou knowest that I love thee. Jesus saith unto him, Feed my sheep.

Time:—Sunday, April 3, A. D. 36, the first Easter, and about two weeks later.

Place:—First at the rock-hewn tomb of Joseph of Arimathea outside the Damascus Gate at Jerusalem. Then at some unnamed spot on the shore of the Sea of Galilee, probably near Peter's home in Capernaum.

Golden Text:—Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who according to his great mercy begat us again unto a living hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead. 1 Peter 1:3.

Introduction

Although Christ died and rose again according to the scriptures, and according to his own repeated prediction, yet the disciples were not looking for it, and when it actually occurred they were hard to convince of the fact. "For as yet they knew not the scripture that he must rise from the dead." Now the fact that the disciples and closest friends of Christ were slow to believe, but were finally convinced that Christ did really rise from the dead, makes their testimony all the more valuable to us. As they were not predisposed to believe it, they could never have invented the story of the resurrection. When Mary found the tomb empty and told Peter and John, her words seemed to them as idle tales.

Mary Magdalene, v. 1.

"Cometh Mary Magdalene." The new honor given to women by Christianity is nowhere better illustrated than by the resurrection. Women were "last at the cross and earliest at the grave." It was to a woman, Mary Magdalene, supremely grateful because Jesus had healed her of a terrible malady, that our Lord first showed himself after rising from the dead. This fact, so contrary to the spirit of the age, proves the honesty of the record. A false historian would have had the Saviour appear first to Peter or John or James, or perhaps show himself in majesty to Caiaphas or Pilate or the Sanhedrin. But Mary, in her deep thankfulness, had devoted her possessions to caring for Jesus and his disciples, and had followed them in their toilsome wanderings, joyfully ministering to them. In her person Christ honored all the vast multitude of ministering women.

An Expected Difficulty Vanishes

Verses 1-10.

"And seeth the stone taken away from the tomb." The tomb was cut in the side of a cliff, and closed with a round slab of rock running in a groove. This was rolled over the entrance, and then was sealed by the Romans, who, moreover, placed soldiers at the spot to guard the body. This was done at the request of the chief priests and Pharisees, who remembered Christ's prophecy of his resurrection, and intended to make it certain that his disciples should not remove his body and pretend that he had risen from the dead. Mary Magdalene was not alone, but was accompanied by other women disciples (Matt. 28:1; Mark 16:1; Luke 24:10). They had been worrying about how they could roll away the heavy stone door—a good illustration of the folly of worrying. The obstacle had been removed by an angel, at sight of whom the Roman guard, were as dead men. They ran away, but were protected by the chief priests, who gave them money, and bade them say that the Christians stole Christ's body while they slept. That story gained currency among the Jews, but it was plainly false, for any Roman guard that slept at his post would have been put to death.

The Empty Tomb, vs. 11-15.

"Then entered in therefore the other disciple also, who came first to the tomb, and he saw, and believed."

What The Resurrection Meant to Peter

It meant all to him. When Christ comes back from the grave a great transformation is wrought. Peter is made over into a real man. Fear flees and instead of the sorry coward we find the dauntless hero who stands and preaches in the face of the same Sanhedrin he had feared so much. He has no power and never could have accomplished anything at all without the heartening influence of Christ's resurrection. He is a different man. Hope, love, courage, faith, perseverance, obedience, come to him in a great way as a result of his vision of the risen Christ.

The next best thing to coming from good stock is owning plenty of it.

COTTON OIL EVEN
NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—The cottonseed oil market was moderately active and barely steady today, with final prices showing net declines of 4 to 6 points under commission and cotton house selling, in response to easier land and uncovering of stop orders near the close. Sales 15,500 barrels. Prime crude 7.75; prime summer yellow spot 9.00; May closed 9.00; July 9.25; September 9.71; October 9.73; December 9.63.

WOOL STRONGER
BOSTON, May 6 (AP)—The wool market is showing a better tone and a slight increase of sales. Private cablegrams report increasing competition at the London sales. More inquiries on domestic wools are being received from the mills. A bid of 41 cents in the grease for Ohio 1/4 blood 45-50's was rejected by a dealer. Demand for tops is restricted, and spinners are urging lower quotations.

WHEAT LOWER
CHICAGO, May 6 (AP)—Illinois legislation seeking to add state supervision to present federal measures governing grain exchange business had a bearish effect on grain values today, especially wheat. Corn, however, rallied sharply in the late trading. Wheat closed unsettled 5 cent to 1-4.

Daily Market

COTTON ADVANCES

NEW YORK, May 6 (AP)—Reports of rains in the central belt and additional overflows along Red river seemed responsible for advances in the cotton market today. July sold up to 15.90, or even with the best price of Wednesday, while January advanced to 16.51, made new high ground for the movement. July closed at 15.90, the general market closing steady at net advances of 18 to 21 points. The opening was firm at an advance of 12 to 14 points in response to the unfavorable weather news and firmness in Liverpool. Active covering by recent sellers for a reaction and re-buying by those who had sold out long contracts earlier in the week, sent active months about 20 to 25 points net higher in early trading. Offerings increased as prices approached the previous high levels, and there were reactions of several points during mid-day.

The setbacks seemed to bring in fresh buying, however, and the market firmed up again after publication of the detailed weather reports showing a good deal of rain in the Little Rock and Memphis districts. Buying also was stimulated by reports of an overflow of Red river near Alexandria, La., and for a time the market showed considerable strength with trading active.

May sold up to 15.78, a new high for the movement, while October advanced to 16.25 and December to 16.48. At these prices the market showed net gains of 19 to 30 points, but reactionary sentiment remained more or less in evidence, and the close was several points off from the best under realizing.

One of the private wires from Memphis claimed the rains there being the first for some days, would do no harm, but the most general feeling on the advance locally, evidently was that the unsettled weather would further delay the start of the crop in the flooded district.

Private cables reported continued selling early in Liverpool with advances following on trade calling, covering and a renewal of speculative buying stimulated by the rain news from the south. A bullish view of the week-end figures helped the afternoon advance in the local market.

Diversification Is Praised By Expert

Special to The Avalanche
HEREFORD, May 6.—The one crop plan in the Panhandle of Texas, is a dangerous system of farming, whether it be wheat, cotton or dairying, P. C. Bennett, manager of the agriculture department of the Board of City Development of Amarillo said in his address before the business men of Hereford at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon Monday. "The Chamber of Commerce can foster a balanced program, which will tend to balance the whole community," he said. Mr. Bennett recommended at least four money crops for the farmer, if he wished to be safe, and he also urged the cow, sow and hen, as a means by which the farmers might carry out the live at home plan.

The Panhandle of Texas is particularly adapted to grain sorghums, and Bennett seemed to think that this crop was our "ace in the hole," provided the people of this section practice stock feeding, rather than to market the grain that is raised each year. This section will soon rival the famous corn belt as a livestock feeding center, Mr. Bennett declared. Wheat, grain sorghums, cotton, broom corn and Mexican beans are all good money crops for this section, if three or four of them will be grown by each farmer.

Alpine Show Aids In Flood Relief

Special to The Avalanche
ALPINE, Tex., May 6.—Mr. Clay Holland, chairman of the Alpine Red Cross Chapter, announced this morning that the picture show, given in Alpine Sunday evening for the flood relief fund, brought $230, which is being forwarded today to Red Cross headquarters, to help relieve the deplorable situation caused by recent floods in several states. Mr. E. C. Mosley, manager of the Mojave theatre here, donated his building and equipment for the benefit show. Almost every family in Alpine was represented in the patronage of the Sunday evening show.

Hereford Donates Its Flood Quota

Special to The Avalanche
HEREFORD, May 6.—Hereford's quota for the Red Cross flood relief fund for those in the Mississippi flood district, will probably be doubled according to Ralph Barnett, chairman of the Red Cross here, and this is all the more gratifying to Mr. Barnett, because everything that is given here is strictly voluntary, and no canvass of the city is being made. The graduating class of the Hereford high school will do its bit to aid in the raising of this fund. A collection will be taken next Sunday evening during the basketball game, and the seniors have voted to appropriate this money to the Red Cross fund which is being raised here.
