Saudi Plan Given PLO

By The Associated Press

Yasser Arafat's trapped guerrillas studied a Saudi offer to fly them out of west Beirut to avoid an Israeli invasion while Israel's Prime Minister Menachem Begin gave them a 48-hour deadline and warned civilians to "get out, get out!"

Begin said Tuesday that his forces outside the Palestine Liberation Organization's last retreat would wait "another day, two days" before routing the 8,000 cornered guerrillas by force, completing the objective of their 25-day-old invasion.

"Under no conditions will we let them stay in Beirut," Begin told Israel's parliament, the Knesset. "They will leave Beirut. Nothing will help them. They will leave."

He urged civilian residents in the shattered western sector of the Lebanese capital to flee, as Israeli warplanes for the third day running showered besieged neighborhoods with leaflets warning of a possible invasion.

"Civilians get out, get out!," Begin declared from the Knesset floor. "We don't want to hurt any of you. By foot or by vehicle, get out of Beirut."

In Washington, the State Department gave Israel the Reagan administration's clearest warning yet not to take west Beirut, saying that preserving the cease-fire was the only way to achieve a political settlement and stop the killing.

Hundreds of Israelis outside the Knesset demonstrated for and against Israel's invasion as Begin spoke.

Official sources in Beirut who requested anonymity said the Saudi Arabian government of King Fahd proposed Tuesday to airlift the guerrillas to countries of their choice as an alternative to the Israeli offer of safe-conduct in buses to Syria. The Saudi plan would spare the guerrillas the humiliation of traveling under Israeli guard.

The right-wing Christian Voice of Lebanon radio said the Saudi offer was being examined by the Lebanese government and PLO.

Palestinian and Lebanese leaders would not comment on this. But soon after the Saudi plan was disclosed, Arafat told reporters, "There is a new hope."

Lebanese sources said Arafat has been amenable to the principle of evacuating Beirut provided the PLO is assured of a token military and political presence in Lebanon and guarantees that the 500,000 Palestinian civilians living there will not be expelled.

The eight-faction guerrilla group Arafat heads has been based in Lebanon for 12 years in its campaign to regain a homeland on Israeli-occupied territory.

Begin told Israeli lawmakers he acceded to the PLO guerrillas' demand to be allowed to keep their personal weapons. But he rejected their insistence that Israeli forces withdraw three miles from Beirut.

"They have no right to dictate terms to us," Begin said.

Begin spoke in reaction to opposition calls that Israel stay out of west Beirut. He and Defense Minister Ariel Sharon said such a pledge would embolden the guerrillas to stall for more time.

DISASTER ASSESSMENT—Deputy Assistant Secretary of Agriculture John Ford (at the mike) and U. S. Congressman Charles Stenholm (immediate right) spoke to a group of some 300-400 area farmers at an early morning meeting today. The group, composed of Ford, Stenholm and seven USDA staffers were in the area to assess weather damage to the West Texas cotton crop Scurry County farmers were well represented at the meeting which got underway around 7:50 a.m. at the Colorado City Airport, near Cuthbert, just south of the Scurry County line. Permit Upheld For Stacy Dam

The Third Court of Appeals has upheld the Stacy Reservoir permit granted the Colorado River Municipal Water District by the Texas Water Board.

The court of appeals ruled that the 53rd District Court in Austin did not err in approving the permit.

The district court's decision had been appealed by the Lower Colorado River Authority. Joining the LCRA in opposing the permit were the Garwood and Lakeside Irrigation Corporations, and the Lake Travis Property Owners Association.

Any future action depends on further litigation by LCRA.

CRMWD had sought the permit to build another lake on the Colorado River below Ballinger which would impound 455,000 acre feet, covering some 19,000 surface acres.

Officials of CRMWD were elated over the decision in the Third Court of Appeals.

"This brings us one step nearer to luanching a monumental effort to secure an adequate future supply of water for the Permian Basin and adjacent area of West Texas," said O. H. Ivie, general manager. "The CRMWD has done about all it can in the way of hearings, reports, engineering and environmental studies, all at a cost of several hundred thousand dollars without having an uncontested permit to build Stacy.

"The phenominal population growth and economic development in the heart of the Permian Basin have increased our demands for more water. All signs indicate these pressures will increase. There may be other obstacles, but we are anxious to face and do our best to overcome them."

"We are gratified by the decision of the court," said P. C. Harbour of Odessa, president of CRMWD. "In October it will be five years since we first applied. Delay has cost us an inflated cost and more importantly in time. We still have a long way to go and we must get on with this urgent business."

July 4 Parade Lineup Posted

A lineup for the annual July 4 parade has been posted by Russell Shannon, parade marshall.

The parade is scheduled immediately following the opening ceremony and flag raising at 9 a. m. Saturday. Entries in the parade have been asked to assemble no later than 8:30 a. m. just west of the National Guard Armory.

Here is the order in which the parade will take place:

Squad car; sheriff's car; VFW colors; VFW Auxiliary; Cub Scouts; KSNY entry; all other participants marching on foot; Gay 20 Social Club entry; Queen candidates; floats of Snyder boxing club, Church of the Nazarene, Vivace Music Club and any other float entries; all bicycle riders; Kay Bros. entry; all motorcycles; three-wheelers; car entries; Scurry County Sheriff's Posse; any other horse riding participants.

Anyone who has not notified Shannon of their entry and feels that it is an exception to the listed categories should contact the parade marshall as soon as possible.

Not Enough Sign Liquor Petition

It was back to square one for the Hermleigh liquor petition this morning.

County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth said she had returned the petition due to insufficent signatures of qualified voters.

In order to mandate a local option election, a petition must have signatures of 35 percent of the voters who cast ballots in the governor's race of the last election.

After checking signatures against the voter registration rolls, Mrs. Ainsworth found 80 valid signatures. A minimum of 81 would have been needed to make 35 percent of the number voting for governor in the Hermleigh voting box, and this would not be considering those from Hermleigh who voted in the absentee box in the last governor's election.

Lynn Bratton, one of those who was active in circulation of the petition, indicated that another application would be made for a petition.

The petition had some 99 signatures, but only 80 had been registered long enough to be qualified voters, Mrs. Ainsworth said.

Team Inspecting Farm Damages

Congressman Charles Stenholm and a team of U. S. Department of Agriculture officials led by Deputy Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, John Ford, stopped off in the Snyder area early this morning.

The team arrived at the Colorado City Airport, near Cuthbert, around 7:45 a.m. and spent about an hour talking with Scurry, Mitchell, Borden and Nolan County farmers about this year's weather ravaged crops.

The USDA team is in the third day of a tour of the West Texas area, from Amarillo to Abilene. The team was dispatched by Agriculture Secretary John Block for the purpose of making aerial photographs of hail, wind and water damaged crops in the region.

The group has also stopped in several cities to take testimony from area farmers. The photos and testimony the group collects will be returned to Washington for evaluation.

According to local SCS representative Irwin Pavlik, prospects for a disaster relief program for

Lakes Still Show Gains

Colorado River Municipal Water District Lakes continue to catch water from recent rains, although the flow has subsided somewhat.

Lake J. B. Thomas held 70,500 acre feet of water this morning, up from 73,600 acre feet the past weekend. It has caught 2,400 acre feet during the prolonged wet spell of May and June.

Lake E. V. Spence, the larger reservoir at Robert Lee, has caught 54,500 acre feet, up from a gain of 51,000 acre feet the past weekend. Lake Spence now has 326,200 acre feet of water impounded and with each additional flow it sets a record.

The two lakes combined have caught 124,950 acre feet of water so far this year.

Ask Us

Q.—Can't the city do something to keep utility rates from going up every year?

A.—Cities can intervene in hearings before state regulatory agencies, but ultimate decisions are left to state agencies, the Public Utilities Commission for telephone and electric rates, and the Railroad Commission for gas rates.

The SDN Column

Next spring, come income tax time, how would you like to fill out one simple slip of paper, listing your gross income and the amount of tax you owe, knowing that everyone else, regardless of his income, was doing precisely the same thing.?

It probably never will come down to a situation that simple, but there is considerable pressure building for a "flat rate" income tax plan.

Congressman Charles Stenholm mentioned it here Monday, and we have received mail from several other lawmakers over the past few months expressing interest in such a system, which means some of their constituents are pushing it.

The simplest would be a set percentage for all, without any deductibles or exemptions. But, of course that is too simple and too many factors in our way of life are involved in deductibles.

Churches and charitable organizations fear that their contributions would evaporate if donors should suddenly lose their deductibles. Then, of course, there is the question of where to start, or a floor on taxation. Should the tax apply only to those whose gross income is above "poverty level?"

These are questions which politicians do not like to face. Consequently, it likely will be next year before any specific proposals are made.

According to information we have received from the offices of various lawmakers in Washington, various "systems" are under study, and if something new should be enacted, it probably will not be a simple slip with only gross income and taxes owed. But whatever evolves is expected to simplify the filing of income tax returns.

Speaking of income taxes, we noticed one of those political paradoxes the other day that enable many politicians to make things seem seem different from what they really are.

Did you know that President Ronald Reagan vetoed legislation that would have rescinded earlier action in which Congressmen gave themselves a $75 per day incomes tax exemption?

Now, it is highly unlikely that the president looked with favor on those exemptions. But, taking that simple statement--which is true--it would seem that he did. The catch is, the rescinding action was tied to a housing bill which the president vigorously opposed. He had reason to believe that Congress would still do away with the $75 per day exemption in future action, but if he had let the housing measure go through, his regime would have been saddled with it from now on.

Nevertheless, a foe could proclaim, "The president favors $75 per day tax exemption for Congressmen," and on the surface, it would appear to be true.

So, when a lawmaker involved in a political race tells you that his opponent favored or opposed something, there may be more to it than meets the eye.

Busing Decision Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today upheld a California law aimed at curbing mandatory school busing designed to achieve racial integration in Los Angeles. But the court struck down a Washington state law barring busing plans voluntarily adopted by local school boards to promote racial integration.

Boeing Pleads Guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Boeing Co. pleaded guilty today to concealing more than $7 million in illegal commissions to sell 35 airplanes to foreign countries and agreed to pay $450,000 in criminal fines and costs.

In a plea bargain worked out with the Justice Department, the giant aircraft manufacturer pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to 40 counts of filing false statements with the U.S. Export-Import Bank in connection with its financing of Boeing's sales to airlines in Spain, Lebanon, Honduras and the Dominican Republic in the early 1970s.

Under the plea bargain, Boeing agreed to pay $400,000 criminal fines and $50,000 in costs to cover the government's investigation of the scheme.

Soviet Bargaining Position

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — With a warning from President Reagan, American and Soviet negotiators begin substantive bargaining today on reducing the two superpowers' long-range nuclear hardware.

Besides a reduction in missile warheads, the talks will cover the number of missiles and long-range bombers, the destructive power of warheads and future weapons research.

The United States and the Soviet Union enter the talks with positions far apart. They disagree on how their nuclear forces currently compare and what the treaty should accomplish.

Dancer Disappearance

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Chinese dancers say they're worried for the safety of a colleague who vanished after taking a curtain call and requested political asylum during the International Ballet Competition here.

Lin Jianwei, 24, was last seen Monday night at the Jackson City Auditorium after his performance of "Deer With Its Head Back" — a ballet about the hunter and the hunted.

A government source, who asked not to be identified, said Lin had requested political asylum and was in federal custody.

But police and federal officials on Tuesday would not confirm that Lin was in custody.

"All I know is that he did not come back to the dormitory," said William Leighton, executive director of Mississippi Ballet International, the local sponsor of the competition.

Government Index Rose During Month Of May

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government index designed to show future U.S. economic trends rose in May, the Commerce Department reported today. It was the third straight monthly gain and another sign the recession may be ending.

The 0.3 percent increase in the Index of Leading Indicators followed the sharp 1.3 percent increase in April. Today's report also revised the figure for March to a 0.2 percent increase instead of the 0.5 percent decline earler reported.

That meant the index started going up in March for the first time since a 1.1 percent drop in April 1981. Not since March and April of 1981 had the index climbed two months in a row.

Government officials have been predicting the economy will pull out of the recession and gather strength in the July-September quarter, helped in large measure by the July 1 tax cut.

"The economy is poised for recovery from recession," Acting Commerce Undersecretary Robert Dederick said last week.

Private analysts have said, however, that sustained economic growth may be difficult to maintain unless interest rates decline markedly from their high levels. Short-term interest rates have picked up again in the last few weeks.

The biggest contributors to the May gain in the Index of Leading Indicators were new orders for consumer goods and materials, building permits and prices for sensitive raw materials.

Also rising last month was the average workweek for production workers. Stock prices were unchanged.

Declining in the new report were money supply, change in total liquid assets held by U.S. businesses, average weekly initial claims for state unemployment insurance, delivery performance by business vendors, and contracts and orders for new plant and equipment.

The biggest drop in the index in the last year occurred last September, when it plunged 2.5 percent. It was flat in November but fell in the next three months before turning up in March.

All the figures are adjusted for normal seasonal variations.

Businesses Due To Close On July 5

Most Snyder stores planning to take a business holiday during the Independence Day weekend will close on Monday, July 5, according to an informal survey conducted by the chamber of commerce.

Chamber personnel contacted local retailers by telephone. Since July 4 falls on Sunday, government agencies are scheduled to be closed on Monday, July 5, and most businesses planning to close here have selected the same date, the survey revealed.

Not all retail businesses will take a holiday, however, the chamber reported.

Opposing Visions Thrust Two Women Into ERA Controversy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their opposing visions of what America is and what it should be drove Phyllis Schlafly and Eleanor Smeal into the heat of national debate over women's rights.

Over the years, these two strong-willed women came to symbolize the antagonists in a fight which, for the moment, has been settled with Mrs. Schlafly's side the victor and Mrs. Smeal's the vanquished.

HARLEY BYNUM
Photography
573-4190

The issue was the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution, and whether prohibiting discrimination based on sex by any law or act of government would serve the interests of women and the nation.

The battle was waged for 10 years. Today was the deadline for ratification by the states. The amendment fell three states short of approval by the required 38.

ERA will be proposed again, but Mrs. Smeal says she thinks it will take 10 to 25 years for it to become part of the Constitution. Someone else will lead the fight; her term as leader of the nation's largest women's organization ends this fall.

Mrs. Schlafly says ERA will never come close again.

"I don't think they'd get five states to go for it," she says.

To mark the occasion, Mrs. Smeal will address a rally near the White House today "to focus attention on the major opponents of equality, President Ronald Reagan, the Republican Party and major business interests they represent."

And Mrs. Schlafly will be the hostess at a party for 1,000 guests at which prominent conservatives who opposed ERA will be honored.

Mrs. Smeal says Mrs. Schlafly was not the real enemy; she was "used" by "the special corporate interests that profit from sex discrimination."

Mrs. Schlafly replies that "the libbers" never proved that ERA was needed.

"I don't think women are unfairly treated," she says. "The whole thing is founded on the myth that women are ground down and oppressed."

For all their differences over ERA, they have much in common.

Both come from the heartland. Mrs. Schlafly, 57, was born in St. Louis and Mrs. Smeal, 42, in Ashtabula, Ohio. Their families were Roman Catholic and their backgrounds were middle class.

Mrs. Schlafly's father was an engineer and inventor who suffered financial reverses in the Depression. Her mother was an art librarian.

Mrs. Smeal's father, an immigrant from Italy, sold life insurance.

paul harvey

Pollster George Gallup was telling the American Bible Society that there is a great and increasing spiritual hunger in our nation — but that only 12 percent of us allow our faith to influence the way we behave.

In other words, we know so much better than we do.

Coincidentally, his speech was the same day evangelist Oral Roberts' son, Ronald, with a record of drug misuse, shot himself to death.

Roberts' other son, Richard, also had some problems when he was younger.

Billy Graham's children all turned out fine but their youthful years were not without turbulence.

The preacher's kid seems frequently to epitomize the ailment common to the 88 percent of Americans who know so much better than they do.

Chicago's Reverend Donald Gerig is a son of a preacher, himself a pastor, also a father.

I asked him if there are problems perculiar to growing up in the home of a clergyman.

He sees three:

Work gets in the way of the father-child closeness, and the more prominent the preacher, the greater the preoccupations.

If a child matures feeling that the ministry tended to pull his family apart, he will likely rebel against religion, per se.

Conversely, if the child matures feeling that the ministry helped pull the family together, his reaction will be quite different. In Gerig's family, all four children are now in the ministry.

"But," he explains, "Our parents made much extra effort to accomplish that filiality."

Second, says Gerig, there is such a thing as an "overdose of legistated righteousness."

This is where family "image" becomes the criterion for behavior, rather than rightness and wrongness.

A preacher's kid at some point will likely challenge that edict.

Third: The preacher's child is likely to see inconsistencies in his parents or in parishoners. While the minister's public image if flawless, his child knows better.

Thus, ironically, the preacher's kid who senses hypocricy may react negatively, while the child of a chronic wife-beating drunk may react affirmatively.

But Dr. John Haggai, the world evangelist, himself son of a minister, suggests we not allow isolated aberrant behavior to cloud our perspective. In Who's Who in America — there are more sons and daughters of missionaries and pastors — more by twice — than any other professional category.

Obituaries

C. B. Sanders

C. B. Sanders, 63, who lived at 3206 Ave L, died at 3:05 p. m. Tuesday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Funeral service has been set for 10 a. m. Friday in the Bell-Seale Chapel, with burial to follow in Hillside Memorial Gardens. The Rev. Raymond Dunkins will officiate. He will be assisted by Rev. Bluford of Sweetwater.

A native of Paris, Tex., he had been a Snyder resident since 1927. He was a retired service station operator.

He was married on Jan. 18, 1946, in Snyder to Geraldine Muse Gift. She survives.

Also surviving are daughters; Yvonne Grant and Diane Riley, both of Fort Worth, and Marcia McKnight of Snyder; a son, C. B. Sanders Jr. of Snyder; two stepdaughters, Karen Shelley of Vallejo, Calif., and Esther Gift of San Diego, Calif.; a step-son, Hubert Gift Jr. of San Diego; 33 grandchildren and four great-grandchilren.

Hostages Freed

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — An accused drug trafficker said to be wearing a necklace of dynamite freed about 100 of his 250 hostages from a hijacked Alitalia jumbo jet today after being told his estranged wife and son were on their way to Bangkok from Rome, negotiators said.

They said those freed were all the women aboard the jet, and all men under 19 and over 50. All were reported in good condition. Identities were not immediately known, but authorities said earlier the hostages included two Australian officials and possibly an American.

Police, EMS Answer Wreck Call

Snyder police and units of Scurry County EMS were called to the scene of a major motorcycle-pedestrian accident in the 600 block of the north U. S. 84 access road around 11:39 p.m. Tuesday

According to police reports, a 1980 Suzuki motorcycle driven by Pedro Rodriquez of 309 N Avenue T was in collision with Rhonda Chester of 2311 Peyton. Both Rodriquez and Chester were transported to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by the ambulance service.

Chester was reported to have sustained a possible broken collar bone and was complaining of neck and back pains after the mishap. Rodriquez reportedly sustained numerous scratches and bruises.

Clara Simmons Martin of Ira and her two children were also taken to Cogdell Hospital by units of Scurry County EMS following a major traffic mishap around 3:26 p.m. at the intersection of 25th St. and Avenue J.

According to reports, Martin's 1979 Cadillac struck a telephone pole at the intersection. Injuries to the three were not thought to be serious.

Damages to both the car and the pole, owned by Southwestern Bell, were listed as extensive.

Vandals with a penchant for broken glass struck Snyder Monday night. Local police are investigating 7 criminal mischief complaints filed Tuesday.

The calls, all in reference to broken windows in cars and a house, began coming in around 7:52 a.m. and didn't stop until 7 p.m.

O. H. Hooper of 3411 Avenue A reported a broken picture window at his house.

Jimmy Prince of 315 36th Place, Benny Hollis of 2110 40th St., Ms. Whiteside of 128 Milburn and Sam Houston of 3601 Avenue A all reported broken windows or windshields in their private vehicles.

Glass was also broken out of a Drilling Mud Inc. truck parked at the Juan Hernandez residence at 1901 Coleman and a Halliburton truck parked at the Mike Cato residence at 207 36th Place.

All of these incidents are thought to have occurred sometime Monday night.

Local police are also investigating the theft of a 10 speed bicycle from the Ramon Garcia residence at 2201 Avenue M. Garcia called police around 11:59 p.m. Tuesday and told officers that he had seen someone taking the bicycle from his back yard.

One minor hit and run traffic accident was also reported to the police around 1:35 p.m. According to reports, a parked 1975 Chevrolet owned by Raymond Boyce of San Angelo was struck by an unidentified vehicle it was parked in the 400 block of 20th St. .

Damages to the Boyce vehicle were listed as minor.

Woman Regains Custody

ATLANTA (AP) — A white woman has won custody of her 3-year-old white son taken from her after a judge ruled she was an unfit mother because she had an illegitimate, racially mixed daughter. Attorneys in the case say it may be awhile before the family is reunited.

The boy's 51-year-old grandmother, who has raised him for the past two years, may fight the order, according to her attorneys.

The Georgia Supreme Court on Tuesday overturned a lower court ruling issued after Kathleen Blackburn, a 26-year-old divorcee, gave birth to girl fathered by a black, married policeman.

The state's highest court voted 5-2 to reverse a controversial decision by Jenkins County Superior Court Judge W.C. Hawkins that she was an unfit mother.

Farmers

the area producers are very uncertain at this time. The traditional federal disaster program administered by the ASCS was eliminated in this year's recently passed farm bill.

Lobbying of the USDA by the Cotton Council and Congressional leadership prompted this week's fact finding tour.

Ford describes the damage he has seen thus far as "staggering" but says that he has not yet made up his mind about the farmers requests for financial aid.

A relief program, if an when it is approved, might possibly come in either the form of cash payments or federal loans to stricken producers.

Any decision concerning possible relief will probably not be made until evaluation of the data collected on this trip is completed sometime in July.

General estimates peg this year's losses at approximately 2 million of the 7 million acres normally planted in West Texas cotton.

Stenholm, in a brief address to this morning's gathering, spoke about the tremendous financial losses that this season holds for the entire region.

According to Stenholm, 2 million acres lost will be worth about $500 million based on a nominal production of 1 bale to the acre and a price of 50 cents per pound.

He added that given statistics that show each dollar turning over about 7 times before it leaves the region, total losses to all businesses in the area could exceed $3 billion dollars.

An estimated 300-400 farmers from the four county area attended this morning's session. Stenholm and the team left around 8:45 a. m. to travel to Haskell for a similar meeting.

2 Brothers Have Drowned

BALCH SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — Two preschool-age brothers who "never went anywhere apart" drowned Tuesday after sneaking into a neighbor's above-ground swimming pool.

Nathan James, 5, and his 4-year-old brother, Jonathan, had been missing about an hour when their mother, Annette James, found them in the four-foot-deep pool. She scrambled over a fence and tried to revive them.

The two boys, the only children of Mrs. James and her husband, Jesse, were pronounced dead at Southwest Methodist Hospital.

"They were together constantly," she said. "They never went anywhere apart. I guess it's only right they died together."

"They are so ...were so energetic. They were always doing sweet things like picking me wildflowers and bringing me little presents, like a frog."

The boys had begged their mother to go swimming Tuesday morning. She had set up a small plastic wading pool for them in the front yard beneath a tree. They loved to drop from a rope into the pool, she said.

She heard them splashing and laughing outside but later noticed the silence. She said she began looking for the boys and even once thought to look over the chain link fence around neighbors Roy and Judy Condor's pool, but she did not see the boys.

Mrs. James and her mother, who lives next door, began a search and about an hour had passed when Mrs. James heard her mother scream. She ran back to the neighbor's pool and saw the boys floating in the water.

"I climbed the fence, jumped in and pulled them out," Mrs. James said. "I tried CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) on Nathan while a neighbor boy worked on Jonathan, but I couldn't get a pulse."

E. F. Knox Completes 35 Years

E. F. (Bobby) Knox, who has completed 35 years of service with Texaco, will retire from the Producing U. S., Midland Division of Texaco Inc. at Snyder effective July 1, it was announced by Joel Lozano, personnel manager, at Midland.

Knox is a native of Burkburnett and attended Fairview High School near Burkburnett. He joined Texaco at the Burkburnett Gasoline Plant in 1947 as a roustabout. Subsequently, he served as head pumper and assistant foreman at Electra, assistant foreman and production foreman at Snyder. He became production supervisor at Snyder in 1981.

Mr. and Mrs. Knox live at 4111 Eastridge Drive Snyder. They have three children, Jimmy W. Knox of Brownsville, Kenny D Knox of Wichita Falls, and Mrs. Sharon A. Langford of Wichita Falls.

The Italian dictator Benito Mussolini resigned and was arrested in 19 Mussolini was rescued daring raid by German parachutists in the Abruzzi Mountains, but in 1945 he was captured and executed.

By CowBelles And Cattleman's Assn....

Ag Round-Up Slated July 10

The Texas CowBelles and the National Cattlemen's Association are having an Agriculture Round-Up and Symposium Saturday, July 10 at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum in Big Spring.

The purpose of this event is to inform men and women interested in the beef industry about current changes and innovations in the industry and about legislation, past and pending, that will effect them. It will also familiarize them with the functions of the organizations working for cattlemen.

The Round-Up will begin at 12 noon with registration and at 1:30 Jim Collins, Texas congressman from District III and a candidate for the United States Senate, will hold a question and answer session.

The symposium, from 2:30-6 p.m. will feature speakers on many topics relevant to the beef industry. These will be Anne Anderson, director of nutrition services, Texas Cattle Feeders Assn. of Austin, on consumer demands; Jim Powell, chairman of NCA and TSCRA tax committes, of Fort McKavitt on tax reform; Becky Terry, president of Texas CowBelles, of Alpine, "How CowBelles Help;" Dub Waldrip, NCA president elect, of Lubbock, "Working Within Your Industry;" Hilmar G. Moore, chairman of the Beef Industry Council, National Livestock and Meat Board, of Richmond, "Somehow, Nothing Satisfies Like Beef;" and Dr. Dennis Stiffler, meat extension specialist at Texas A&M, "Innovations in Beef."

The Fandangle from 6 p.m.-12 midnight will include a barbecue and dance. Charles Stenholm, Texas congressman from the 17th District, will speak at this event.

Early registration will be $25 per person. Registration after July 3 will be $30 per person.

For more information contact the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce or Mrs. J. M. Sterling, Rt. 1, Box 152, Colorado City, TX 78512, (915) 965-3464 or Mrs. Jim Alexander, Box 203, Forsan, TX 79733, (915) 457-2202.

WHAT ARE COWBELLES?

CowBelles are women involved in the beef industry who represent every segment of the industry and many related fields. CowBelles strive to provide accurate facts and reliable information to housewives and consumers concerning the nutrition of beef.

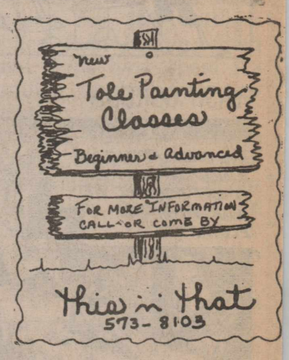

Texas CowBelles projects include sponsoring the 4-H Meat Identification contest at the state level, Beef for Father's Day, Ag Day, beef education booths at fairs and conventions, in-store beef promotions in large city supermarkets and selling all beef cookbooks.

On Sept. 22 they will host the 1982 National Beef Cook-Off in San Antonio. This event is rotated among the 30 states that have active CowBelles. Prominent people in food related fields such as famous chefs, butchers and food editors will be among the judges.

Each year they award two $500 scholarships to students planning to pursue a career in an agriculture related field.

When placing tomato plants in the garden, crushed egg shells in each planting hole will add lime, a nutrient, to the soil.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Today's hand is based on one in Harry Lampert's book called "The Fun Way to Serious Bridge."

East's bidding crowded North and South. When he finally bid seven hearts he gave South a chance to pass to ask North to go to seven if he held the heart ace. North did hold the heart ace and obliged.

Off hand, South's problem seems to be with a club finesse for trick No. 13. But South also holds the 10 of hearts which is surely a potential squeeze card against East. There is plenty of time to think about the choice between squeeze and finesse. South starts by taking dummy's ace of hearts and playing a few rounds of trumps.

East shows out on the first trump lead so West is marked with three spades. When South starts on diamonds East shows out of that suit on the first lead also. Now 10 of West's cards have been shown to be spades and diamonds. He has led the nine of hearts so 11 cards that are not clubs can be accounted for. West can't hold more than two clubs and the heart-club squeeze against East is now a certainty.

South can claim or if he is a cautious person he can lead out all his trumps and watch poor East wriggle and squirm.

No Oil Yet But Drilling Goes On At Georges Bank

ABOARD THE ALASKAN STAR (AP) — Once a week a supply boat makes a 16-hour journey from this giant drilling platform in the Georges Bank to the mainland with a precious cargo of tin cans packed with mud and bits of 150-million-year-old rocks.

These rocks, sandstone and limestone, are the product of a year-long search for oil and gas below the valuable fishing grounds off the New England coast.

The nation's oil companies have already bet over $1 billion that the rocks will tell them where to look for the millions of barrels of oil and billions of cubic feet of natural gas geologists think lie beneath the waves.

But so far, analysis of samples from four other exploratory wells — as deep as two miles into the ocean floor — have found no trace of gas or oil. Despite the lack of immediate success, the oil companies are preparing to spend millions more for offshore leases on 3.1 million acres scheduled for bid in August.

The sale is likely to face opposition from state officials and environmentalists worried about the impact of deep-water drilling on lobster beds and fish spawning grounds. But the oil companies say it is vital to the national interest to know what is out there, even if billions are spent without result.

"This country must define its hydrocarbon supply," says Charles Schneider, a spokesman for Tenneco, which runs the drilling aboard the Alaskan Star. "If there's nothing out here we should know that too."

Drilling in the Georges Bank, the nation's latest offshore drilling operation, began July 24, 1981, more than a year and a half after 63 tracts on the fringe of the fishing area were leased for $817 million. Since then Exxon, Shell and Mobil have spent $93 million to drill four dry holes.

Mobil, Shell, Tenneco and Conoco are now operating in an area about 160 miles southeast of Cape Cod.

No one expects a sudden discovery.

"In a frontier area you're looking for information," says Allen Stockman, a Tenneco geologist aboard the Alaskan Star. "They'll use all the information we get from this hole to determine where would be a better place to go to drill another hole."

The cost for that information is high. Joe Elkins, Tenneco's East Coast drilling superintendent, says rental on a "semi" — semisubmersible drilling rigs — runs from $80,000 to $100,000 a day. The costs of running the drilling operation and crew of 80 pushes the costs to over $160,000 a day.

Tenneco estimates it will cost $25 million to $30 million to drill the 21,000-foot well. The bill will be split among seven companies that have already paid $15.8 million to lease the nine-mile square tract.

And drilling for oil at sea is a difficult and dangerous occupation. The Ocean Ranger, a rig built by Mitsubishi Heavy Industries of Japan, the same firm that built the Alaskan Star, sank off the coast of Canada in a fierce storm Feb. 15, killing all 84 crewmen.

Costs may be a factor in the upcoming lease sale. Forty-eight bids offered last December on tracts in the Baltimore Canyon off New Jersey were rejected as too low by the Department of Interior.

Oil company executives say the government's expectations, based on optimistic geological estimates, were too high.

There is also a current lull in oil exploration, due in part to high interest rates and the worldwide oversupply of oil. Elkins also says an increase in Norwegian and British taxes on North Sea operations has slowed drilling to the point that some rig owners are cutting charges by 15 percent to keep their equipment working.

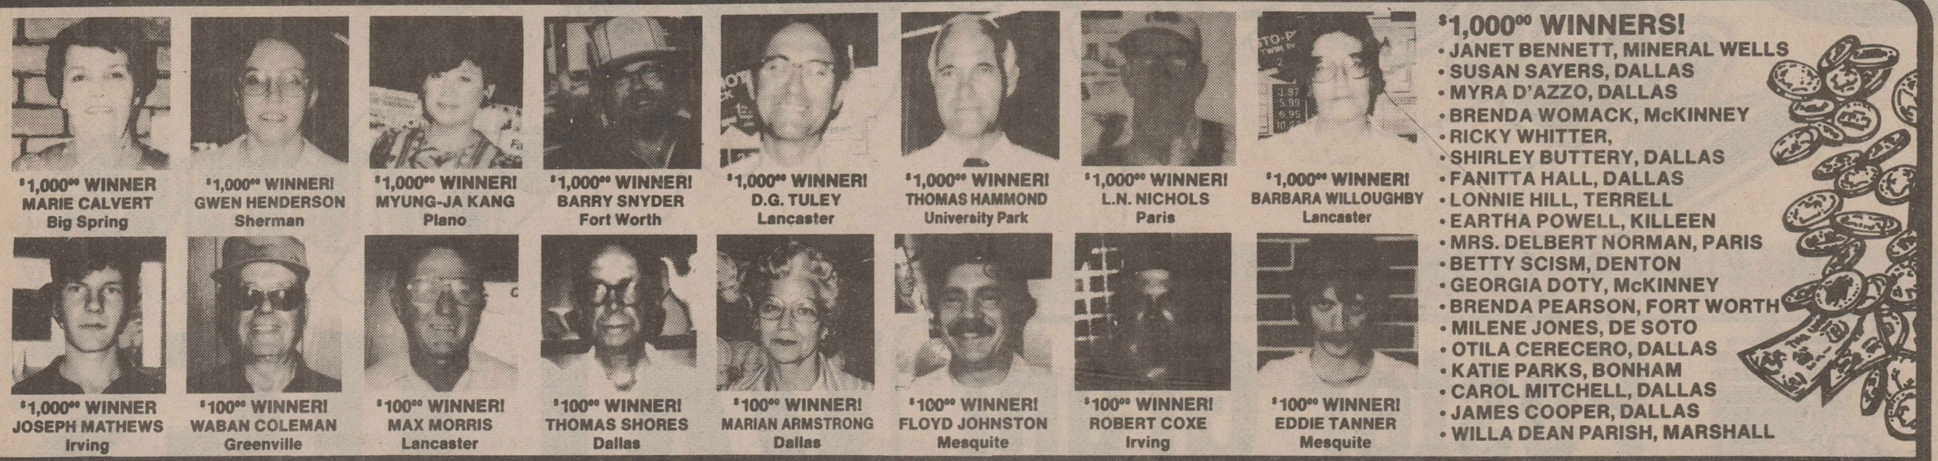

"A year ago, rigs were hard to come by," he says. "Now they're available."

The second Georges Bank lease sale is scheduled for Aug. 24 in New York.

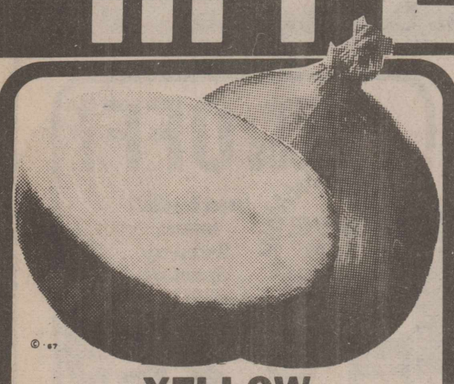

Massachusetts officials, including Gov. Edward J. King and Attorney General Francis Bellotti have asked U.S. Interior Secretary James Watt to delay the sale four months and to delete 600,000 acres that include lobster beds and spawning grounds at the head of underwater canyons.

Massachusetts congressmen have sent a similar letter to Watt, warning that the sale may be contested in court.

Douglas Foy, executive director of the Conservation Law Foundation, said his group may also go to court to oppose the sale.

European-U.S. Relations Tense

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration officials are acknowledging that relations with the European allies are "extraordinarily tense," in part because of expansion of a ban on U.S. oil and gas equipment to the Soviet Union.

They also say a preliminary peacemaking effort begun by Alexander M. Haig Jr., in which a group of Cabinet members would focus on how to best deal with the deteriorated relations with Europe, has been put on hold since Haig's resignation as secretary of state.

The problems, which started cropping up almost as soon as the president returned home from his 10-day European tour at the beginning of the month, became most pronounced after he decided on June 18 to expand the ban on U.S. oil and gas equipment sales to foreign subsidiaries and licensees of American companies.

The United States first imposed the sanctions, aimed at delaying construction of the Soviet Union's natural gas pipeline to Europe, last December as a reaction to the declaration of martial law in Poland.

The West Europeans also are disturbed by the Reagan administration's recent decisions to curb imports of European steel and to contest Europe's joint agricultural policy.

One administration official said Bill Brock, Reagan's special trade representative, returned from Europe last week and reported "that the relationship was extraordinarily tense."

The official, who asked for anonymity, added: "I've come to the same conclusion."

In Brussels on Tuesday, the leaders of the 10 Common Market nations wound up a two-day meeting, agreeing that "the maintenance of the open world trade system will be seriously jeopardized" if the Reagan administration lets stand its decision on the pipeline.

But British Foreign Secretary Francis Pym predicted that the differences could be resolved, and others said negotiations would be undertaken to settle the disputes.

"It was an unhappy response," said one U.S. official in his discussion of the Common Market statement.

French President Francois Mitterrand, who accused the Reagan administration of "unjustified and dangerous" policies toward Europe, criticized the attempt to hinder construction of a Soviet-Western European pipeline.

Mitterrand also claimed that Reagan had used the economic summit June 4-6 at Versailles as a "propaganda" platform, and said the American president broke a promise not to interfere with the pipeline.

"I don't know where that came from," said one Reagan administration official. Another official said he knew of no agreement at the summit dealing with the pipeline question.

At the State Department, officials refused to speak for the record. But administration officials, who asked to remain unidentified, said Reagan had given summit participants no reason to anticipate that he would reverse his opposition to development of the pipeline.

"As to the signals they've received out of Washington and from the president, I don't believe the record shows any disparity or wavering in his position that should have given rise to these expectations," one official said.

"The president has been very consistent on this question," said another administration official, also requesting anonymity. "There were no private conversations that would have supported another type of decision. There were no deals. There have not been mixed signals."

Nor were any conflicting signals given by Haig, as far as this official could tell. Haig was reported to have argued strongly within the administration that the pipeline ban should be relaxed, and the decision against him was viewed by some to have played a role in his resignation.

But one official said that the Europeans could have read "an intimation" that if an agreement was reached at Versailles on limiting favorable credit treatment for trade with the Soviet Union, "the pipeline question would be easier to manage." The credit agreement became a sticking point on the final day of the summit and was eventually resolved, with much fanfare at the end of the day.

In addition, this official said, by delaying a decision on the pipeline question until after the summit, the president may have led the Europeans to believe that if they relaxed their oppsition to the credit restrictions that he sought, he would take the resolution of this issue into consideration when making the pipeline decision.

In The Mideast...

U.S. Calls For Cease-Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is telling Israel in polite, but firm tones it should keep out of Beirut and end the bloodshed in Lebanon, U.S. officials say.

A shift in U.S. attitude toward the fighting has emerged in the past few days as a result of White House dismay over the large number of civilian casualties, it was understood.

"We do not want any more casualties and we do not want any more violations of the cease-fire," a U.S. official said Tuesday. "I think Israel understands that."

The official, who did not want to be identified, said the administration is optimistic that negotiations to achieve a political settlement will be successful and doesn't want them conducted under threat of an Israeli-imposed deadline.

Until the last few days, the administration had avoided saying anything that hinted at public pressure or criticism of Israel in its invasion of Lebanon.

But Dean Fischer, the State Department spokesman, signaled an apparent toughening of the U.S. position on Tuesday when he called for preservation of the cease-fire "so the political dialogue can continue and further loss of life can be avoided.

"The cease-fire "refers specifically to Israel; it refers specifically to the Palestine Liberation Organization."

"We are calling on the parties to preserve the cease-fire," he said.

Since the United States doesn't have direct dealings with the PLO, and PLO units in west Beirut are threatened with virtual extinction by Israeli forces that surround them, the thrust of the message was aimed at Israel, a State Department official said.

He said the U.S. feelings were being conveyed to Israel in polite but firm notes. "There is no harsh rhetoric being exchanged."

The latest U.S. statements come at time when Israeli officials are voicing growing impatience with the pace of the talks in which Philip C. Habib, Reagan's special Mideast envoy, is a key participant.

In what seemed to be a warning to Israel not to try to dictate the terms of the negotiations, Fischer also said, "Our goals and the goals of the government of Lebanon are in effect goals which we hold in common."

Homicide Detectives Probe Machete Death

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A teen-age boy will remain in custody until a juvenile court decides if he will be tried as an adult for the bizarre machete killing of a man police said was lured to his death by a female impersonator.

Homicide detectives said they are searching for other persons implicated in the slaying of Andres P. Arredondo.

Police said a 15-year-old boy, whom they declined to identify, told investigators he took part in the killing of Arredondo, 31, who was attacked with a broken bottle and a machete.

Dr. Vicent DiMaio, Bexar County medical examiner, ruled that the San Antonio man died of a stab wound to the abdomen, and established the man's identity late Monday.

Juvenile referee Phil Chavarria ruled at a brief afternoon hearing Tuesday that the teen-ager should be held at the juvenile detention facility for at least 10 days.

Assistant Chief of Juvenile Probation Herman C. Wolf said a juvenile judge will conduct a hearing to determine whether the youth will be tried as an adult on a murder charge, or for delinquent conduct as a juvenile.

Different Space Paths

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Soviets have a space station and want a space shuttle. America has a shuttle and wants a station. The Soviets probably won't get what they want soon. America hasn't decided yet.

America's space agency used its considerable innovative talent to build the world's most sophisticated and versatile spacecraft. The space shuttle is a sleek craft, capable of carrying a crew of seven and a 60,000-pound payload. It lands like a plane and can be reused.

But it is a luxury spacecruiser in search of a destination. Without a space station, the shuttle has no port on the ocean of space.

The Soviet space community, never strong on technical innovation, found a spacecraft that worked almost 10 years ago and has used the same design since. The Soviet's top-of-the-line craft is the Soyuz T, a cramped, three-man can that lands by parachute and is not reused.

The Soyuz T, however, does have a destination in space. The Soviets have orbited several Salyut space stations. Four Soviets and a French "guest" cosmonaut are now aboard Salyut 7.

Cosmonaut crews have twice spent 185 days aboard Salyut stations. Missions of 75 days have become common. The Soviets' announced goal of keeping an astronaut in orbit 365 days a year may not be far off.

Western experts have received reports that the Soviets are moving toward development of a reusable spacecraft. James Oberg, an analyst of the Soviet space program, reported in a magazine article evidence that the Soviets had tested a "lifting body," a vehicle with an aerodynamic shape that would be able to glide to Earth from space.

"Aviation Week and Space Technology", a weekly U.S. magazine, also eported a possible test of a Soviet space shuttle concept.

In public statements, however, Soviet space officials have stated strongly there is no Soviet space shuttle in the near future.

Western experts believe the Soviets have created an economy of production scale with the Soyuz, making it less practical to invest heavily in a shuttle. More than 40 have been flown with cosmonauts.

In sharp contrast, each of the U.S. shuttles in a planned fleet of four is a custom job costing something over a billion dollars. Many parts are handcrafted and installed.

Soviet space goals have centered on long-duration flight. Long-term tenants in the Salyuts are resupplied by a robot craft called Progress. It is launched into orbit and guided by the ground to a docking with Salyut. This is a skill NASA has yet to demonstrate.

The Soviets are also developing a larger robot supply ship, according to Western observers, and may be building a large and very powerful booster. The aim of this activity, it is believed, is to build a very large space station that would be manned continually with the dependable Soyuz as a ferry ship.

NASA would like to do the same thing, but, except for programs of study, there have been no funds allocated for a U.S. space station.

While 80 percent of the Soviet effort, by most Western estimates, has been toward the military application of space technology, military needs may also soon be the driver in the U.S. space program.

Charles Darwin first outlined his theory of natural selection and evolution in 1857.

Shuttle Crew Testing Systems

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's crew rigorously tested the space shuttle's navigational and thermal systems today as part of the ship's last shakedown cruise. But the astronauts seemed most pleased when they surprised everyone by fixing an experiment built by nine Utah college students.

In California, 186 miles below, Challenger was rolling off the assembly line to become the second in America's fleet of space shuttles. By 1985, four ships will be ferrying commercial, scientific and military cargo to space.

With the shuttle's belly baked in the sun to dry out any soggy tiles, Ken Mattingly and Henry Hartsfield turned their attention to the Get Away Special tests that had defied repair efforts since launch last Sunday.

Using fresh instructions from the Space Center in Houston, they tried again today. Officials had all but given up hope and the students were disappointed but understanding. A flight director said there was little hope.

But the fix worked and the instruments — to determine the biological and physical effects of weightlessness on various plants, animals and materials — started up.

"Sounds to me like we owe somebody down there a great big cheer," said Mattingly. "That was a very clean scheme."

Capcom Roy Bridges said, "That's really great news. You're going to make a lot of folks happy down here." Eight students from Utah State University and one from Weber State spent three years preparing the tests. A benefactor spent $10,000 reserving the cargo space.

While the Columbia astronauts continued their flight, four Soviet cosmonauts and their French crewmate aboard the Salyut-7 space station studied weightlessness, effects of antibiotics in space and the earth's atmosphere, the official news agency Tass said today in Moscow. Two soviets and a Frenchman were launched last week to join two cosmonauts already aboard the orbiting Soviet space station.

In Colorado, the North American Aerospace Defense Command, which keeps track of all objects orbiting the earth, said the two spacecrafts were 5,514 miles apart on opposite sides of the globe on Tuesday.

Mattingly and Hartsfield awoke shortly after 3 a.m. (EDT) today and were serenaded with stirring martial music. Hours later the crew began their daily session with a package of secret military instruments. That's what the flight plan called for anyway; there was no confirmation of the task on the not-very-secure space-to-ground voice network.

Man Finds Cat Hurtful

DALLAS (AP) — Paul Selby says the cat in a car lot looked friendly so he decided to pet it. Minutes later he was bleeding and scampering from car top to car top as a 75-pound cougar gave chase.

He says he escaped when his friends backed their pickup toward him in the street.

"I jumped into the back bed of the truck and he (the driver) just peeled out before the cat could jump in with me," said Selby, 19, of Farmers Branch.

The cat was captured by the city animal control department with a noose attached to a long pole. It was being held for observation.

Man's Wealth May Be Enviable, But Not His Luck

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Charlie Kallestad ranks as one of the luckiest — or unluckiest — men in the world.

He recently struck a deal with a European company to sell his 14-year-old Kallestad Laboratories for $100 million. The sale cleared him $6.2 million.

But if his wealth makes him enviable, his experiences during the last year do not.

Last Labor Day, his convertible collided with another car and flipped over on Interstate 35, leaving him with a mangled right shoulder and two-inch gash in his head.

This spring, five days after he left the hospital where he had gone to have scar tissue removed from his arm, his helicopter ran into a power line and plunged into Lake Austin. The crash killed the pilot and broke Kallestad's leg, hand, nose and ribs, dislocated the already injured right shoulder and blinded him in one eye.

The 45-year-old transplanted Minnesotan was in a wheelchair for several months.

Besides suffering his own injuries, Kallestad has lost two brothers during the last year. Steven Kallestad, who helped him start the company, died the same week the agreement was made to sell Kallestad Laboratories. Another brother was killed in a motorcycle accident.

A senior vice president at Kallestad and a close friend, Bruce Engman, also died last year in the Memorial Day floods.

Kallestad wasn't able to attend Steven's funeral because of another accident. Fumes from a sewer line at his new home burned his vocal cords and sinus membranes. He couldn't talk for four days.

"I come back quickly," Kallestad said of his woes. "Some people can (live with such traumas), and some people don't."

He keeps pictures at his home of his car and helicopter accidents to show he's lucky to be alive.

Kallestad looks like the executive's executive — well-dressed and serious with a set jaw. The only visible sign of the ordeal he's been through is a scar on his forehead and a slight, stiff-legged limp.

He made his millions by capitalizing on the emerging field of immunology, developing a successful business that sells diagnostic test kits used by hospital labs and researchers.

He moved his company headquarters from Minnesota to Austin three years ago.

"I came to Texas because of the business climate, cost of living and attitude toward business," he said. "It's kind of the last of the free-enterprise attitudes."

The soft-spoken Kallestad has the demeanor of a psychiatrist, a profession he nearly chose before founding his company. What started out as a small business in the basement of his father's dental office grew into a company with more than $14 million in worldwide sales last year.

Kallestad said he has drawn from various previous careers to find business success.

He said he didn't go to college until he was 22, turning down a Harvard scholarship to travel around the country and pursue such odd jobs as running a bar, selling accident insurance and "getting street smart."

For six months, he holed up in a cabin in the Santa Cruz mountains for day-long studies, before enrolling in San Jose State University. After pre-medical studies there for two years, he attended UCLA medical school for a year, intent on becoming a psychiatrist.

"After the first year of medical school, I was a little unhappy both at the medical school and with my experience with psychiatry," he said, so he took a year's leave of absence and never returned.

Kallestad started his company in 1968, in partnership with his brother, an immunologist. He ran the business and sales end of the company while his brother controlled the technical side.

Kallestad Laboratories showed sales of $20,000 the first year and $300,000 the second year, he said. "The third year, I broke a million dollars."

The company injects animals with antigens to make the antibodies used in diagnostic test kits to measure the concentration of substances such as proteins, drugs and hormones in blood.

The company's sale will hand over control of Kallestad Laboratories to Montedison, a multibillion-dollar Italian petrochemical company.

Although Kallestad has sold the company, he signed a five-year contract with Montedison to run it.

Time Runs Out Today In ERA Ratification Clash

By JOHN DANISZEWSKI
Associated Press Writer

Time runs out today in the 10-year battle for ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, with its foes celebrating and its backers mourning at wakes and rallies nationwide. Some planned new bids to outlaw sex discrimination under the U.S. Constitution.

One ardent ERA supporter, former state Sen. Sue Dye of Tucson, Ariz., announced a "riotous" wake for the amendment and quoted the wartime words of Winston Churchill: "This is not the end, nor the beginning of the end. But it is, perhaps, the end of the beginning."

Midnight tonight marks the deadline set by Congress for ERA ratification. For feminists, it tolls the end of a decade of lobbying, campaign gifts and mass demonstrations in a failed effort to convince 38 state legislatures to make the amendment the law of the land.

ERA backers said there would be more than 150 rallies nationwide today and Thursday around the theme "A New Day — Beyond ERA," in which women would be urged to support candidates committed to a new equal rights proposal that is to submitted to Congress next month.

"It will be a bad night for feminists," said Sue Luecke, a counseling center secretary in Milwaukee planning an informal wake for the amendment with friends tonight at her apartment.

But Sen. Nancy Kassebaum, R-Kan., who intends to cosponsor the ERA when it is reintroduced in the Senate next month, urged its supporters to avoid dwelling on their defeats.

"June 30th should not be regarded as an ending, but rather as a time to highlight the accomplishments which women have made," she said. "Those who would believe that the expiration of the ERA will somehow turn back the clock on women's achievements are sadly mistaken."

Eleanor Smeal, head of the National Organization for Women for nearly six years, was to address a rally today near the White House "to focus attention on the major opponents of equality, President Ronald Reagan, the Republican Party and major business interests they represent."

Meanwhile, Phyllis Schlafly, a leading ERA opponent, was to host a party for 1,000 guests in Washington tonight at which conservatives who opposed ERA were to be honored.

Haitians Release Ordered

MIAMI (AP) — Haitian refugees cheered, hugged and kissed, and their leaders claimed a "major victory" after a federal judge issued a long-awaited plan ordering the aliens' release from federal detention centers.

"I feel a celebration in my heart," said Roger Biamby, director of the Haitian-American Community Association of Dade County. "I feel the agonizing pain these people went through and I feel their relief," he said.

But government officials cautioned against premature optimism following U.S. District Judge Eugene P. Spellman's order Tuesday for release "forthwith" of 1,900 detainees.

"It would create a bad psychological problem for the detainees" to lead them to think they will be freed soon, said Alan C. Nelson, chief of the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

Justice Department lawyers immediately requested a stay of Tuesday's order. "We cannot abide by this court's decision," said Robert Bombaugh, the chief Justice Department lawyer in the case.

Spellman was to rule on the stay today. If the stay is denied, the government will appeal the case to the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta.

It was unclear when the release plan would take effect. If the stay request fails, the first Haitians probably would be freed within two weeks, said attorneys for the refugee center.

Cheers and cries of "Merci Dieu!" — "Thank God!" — erupted when word of the order reached the office of the Haitian-American Community Association in the heart of Miami's Haitian community.

At a Miami Beach hotel where 27 detainees are confined, there was laughing, cheering, kissing and hugging when news of Spellman's order was read over a Creole-language radio station.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My problem is a customer who patronizes my bookstore regularly. He's dirty, grossly overweight, rarely shaves or combs his hair, and his body odor nearly knocks me down! After he leaves, I have to use a room deodorizer.

He comes in almost every day and stays from two to three hours reading my books. His hands are usually filthy, and in the book business dirty hands are what we dread the most because if a book is soiled, it won't sell.

This man is not a bum. He's educated, loves to read and he buys everything from cookbooks to political science. I appreciate his business, but I really think I'd be better off without him.

How do you tell a customer you would rather not have his business? People move away from him in the store because he smells so bad, and some won't even come in if they see he's here. I'm a rather sensitive person myself and I hate to hurt his feelings.

Is there some way to handle this?

BOOKSELLER IN HAWAII

DEAR BOOKSELLER: You are under no obligation to allow anyone to come into your store with filthy hands and soil your merchandise. Neither must you permit anyone to come into your store whose odor and appearance drive other customers away. Find a gentle way to tell this well-read, smelly character that he will either have to clean up his act or shop elsewhere.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently at a picnic with several families. A man was sitting at a table, and in front of him was a small portable radio. He turned the radio on and was listening to it when his 15-year-old son came up to him, turned the radio off and said, "That's mine!"

The father didn't say a word but he looked so hurt. My heart just ached for that poor man. I wanted to say something to the boy, but I felt I had better not.

Please print this, Abby. Maybe some teen-agers will see it and treat their fathers a little better before they're gone — like mine is.

WAS THERE IN RITCHIE, MD.

DEAR WAS THERE: My heart aches not only for the father but for his son, who apparently had not been taught to respect his father.

While it's sad to see parents abused by their children, the fault could conceivably lie with the parent who has failed to "train up a child in the way he should go."

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about an office problem that is creating friction here at work.

We have a large office with three clerks, and two of them have radios that they play all day, every day. The stations selected are hard rock and the volume is loud. I have asked both clerks to keep the volume down, but they persist in keeping it up to what I find a distracting level.

I am 20 years older than the other two "girls" and was not brought up to appreciate rock music. I have no objection to soothing music; in fact, I like it. My supervisor, with whom I have talked about this problem, agrees that the volume should be kept down but does little to enforce it.

We are working in an office at a college, not a regular "business" office.

Do you think that there is any way out of this dilemma? Do you think that rock music has a place in offices? I would like your thoughts on this and any solution that you think we could come up with.

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAMES: Regardless of what kind of office it is, music of any kind at a disturbing level should be prohibited. Complain to your supervisor again, and if nothing is done to improve the situation, complain to the person who supervises the supervisor.

Discrimination Suit Is Filed

DALLAS (AP) — An assistant golf pro at a Dallas municipal golf course has filed suit in federal court here claiming he was denied a job as pro and manager of one course because he is Caucasian.

Larry Billingsley said he applied and was turned down for the job of pro and manager at the city's Cedar Crest Golf Course in the summer of 1981.

His attorney, Steven Thorpe, said Tuesday that his client was told by a superior that the position was being reserved for a black. A black later filled the position, he said.

During Shultz Hearing...

Bechtel Issue To Be Considered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State-designate George Shultz will sever his ties with a company that does extensive business in Arab states, according to one senator, but the nominee still faces questioning from the Senate on the issue.

Shultz' presidency of Bechtel Group Inc. came up repeatedly as he made the rounds of congressional offices Tuesday to smooth the way for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee confirmation hearings expected to begin July 13.

"He in fact will be severing all ties (with Bechtel), and I believe will be prepared to enter with even-handedness into not only Middle Eastern policy, but policy with regard to the rest of the world," Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said.

Lugar, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said he will support the nomination of Shultz to succeed Alexander M. Haig Jr. at the helm of the State Department.

The Washington Post, meanwhile, quoted two unnamed associates of Haig as saying the outgoing secretary felt he had been "entrapped" and "set up" by White House staff members.

"Haig did not realize that complaining to the president meant resignation," one of the associates was quoted as saying in reference to a meeting between President Reagan and Haig on Thursday, the day before the resignation was announced.

Reagan announced Haig's resignation and the nomination of Shultz on Friday.

Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, R-Minn., chairman of the Foreign Relations subcommittee on the Near East, and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a committee member who is assistant Democratic leader of the Senate, reserved judgment Tuesday on the Shultz nomination.

"I am concerned by the fact that the Bechtel corporation has a tremendous amount of business with the Arab world and no business with Israel," Cranston said. "I am concerned about what that means in terms of judgments that Mr. Shultz has made in the past, but of course more concerned about what that might mean about judgments in the future.

"Those questions will be asked, in one form or another, by myself and others in the hearing.

"I think it is likely that he will be confirmed, but I would not make a flat prediction until I see what sort of questions are asked and what sort of answers are provided."

Boschwitz said the Bechtel connection "has to be troubling," but added that he found Shultz "very objective" with regard to the Middle East.

"I think it is too early to say which way things will tilt," he added.

Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said, "I expect that he will do very well in his hearings and will be confirmed by the Senate."

Baker said he would schedule action on the floor promptly after the committee approves the nomination.

Vaginal dryness

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Since a few years after my menopause I have been troubled with what I think is vaginal dryness. The only symptom is very painful sex. Penetration is almost impossible and of course causes severe pain. I have taken Premarin but since I have no hot flashes or other problems I am reluctant to take it indefinitely.

Is there anything else I can do to correct this problem? Is there a cream or lubricant that will handle it? I have used a lubricant at times but it doesn't seem to help. I wonder if I could use something daily to correct this situation?

DEAR READER — First, you need to know exactly what your problem is. Go to your doctor, let him examine you and tell him your symptoms. You are absolutely right in thinking that dryness can be the problem but there are other things that may be causing pain.

The menopause results in a decrease in production of female hormones. Since puberty ushers in sexual changes caused by an increase in female hormones, it is not surprising that menopause reverses these changes. In plain language, loss of such hormones does decrease femaleness. With the onset of puberty the glands in the vagina increase and begin to form secretions that protect the lining and provide lubrication. All of this is to prepare for having children and everything that goes with getting pregnant. When you are no longer in the reproductive phase of life nature reverses that and you stop producing the secretions. There is literally an involution of the female sexual characteristics.

There are some vaginal creams that contain hormones that are very useful for women who do have dryness caused by lack of hormones. Your doctor can prescribe one if you need some help and that is really the problem. If you have another cause such as an inflammation you may need other treatment.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause, to give you a better concept of what happens to the body at that stage of life and what you can do about it. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Many folk remedies have proved to have some basis for their supposed value when investigated scientifically. Is there any published study of apples as a food to support the well-known adage, "An apple a day keeps the doctor away?" Is it reasonable to suppose that two apples a day may keep two doctors away? I would like to know, because I eat about two apples a day.

DEAR READER — Enjoy them. Some people have gas problems from apples, apple juice and applesauce. Unless you have such a problem, apples may indeed be good for you.

They are a good source of vitamin C, and like other fruits they provide potassium and are low in sodium.

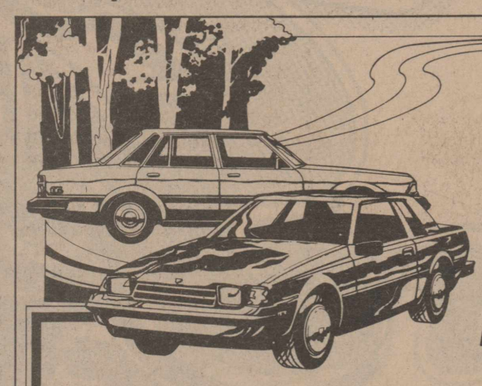

They are a good source of bulk which helps promote normal colon function (if you don't have gas). The pectin fiber content has been reported to help lower cholesterol levels in contrast to the fiber in wheat, specifically bran, which may not. Also, apples do not cause a sharp rise in blood sugar or cause a rebound effect on insulin production. For that reason both diabetics and people with reactive hypoglycemia can often tolerate raw apples.

Lakers Draft Worthy First

NEW YORK (AP) - The champion Los Angeles Lakers are richer, the 1983 senior class of college basketball talent is poorer and James Worthy is delighted after the National Basketball Association draft.

Led by No.1 pick Worthy, seven of the first nine selections in the first round of Tuesday's draft were among the 12 juniors who had elected to skip their fourth year of collegiate eligibility.

Unlike many first picks who have to play on weak teams for years, 6-foot-9 Worthy, the star on North Carolina's national collegiate championship team last season, will get the chance to play for a winner immediately.

Worthy, Terry Cummings of DePaul and Dominique Wilkins of Georgia were considered the three superstar-quality players available in the draft, and it wasn't surprising when they became the first three picks.

Cummings, a 6-10 forward, was selected by San Diego and Wilkins, a 6-7 dunk artist, was picked by Utah.

Only 6-9 forward Bill Garnett of Wyoming, selected fourth by Dallas, and 6-5 guard Trent Tucker of Minnesota, chosen No.6 by the New York Knicks, interrupted the string of juniors among the first nine picks.

The other juniors in the first round were 6-10 center LaSalle Thompson of Texas, taken by Kansas City as the fifth selection; 6-3 guard Quintin Dailey of San Francisco, selected No.7 by Chicago; forwards Clark Kellogg of Ohio State and Cliff Levingston of Wichita State, taken eighth and ninth by Indiana and Detroit, respectively; 6-foot guard John Bagley of Boston College, picked by Cleveland as the 12th selection; and 6-2 guard Rob Williams of Houston, who was the 19th pick, by Denver.

The rest of the first-round selections were 6-5 guard Keith Edmonson of Purdue, 10th by Atlanta; 6-3 guard Lafayette Lever of Arizona State, 11th by Portland; 6-3 guard Eric Floyd of Georgetown, 13th by New Jersey; 6-4 guard Lester Conner of Oregon State, 14th by Golden State; 6-6 forward David Thirdkill of Bradley, 15th by Phoenix; 6-5 swingman Terry Teagle of Baylor, 16th by Houston; 6-5 guard Brooke Steppe of Georgia Tech, 17th by Kansas City; 6-5 guard Ricky Pierce of Rice, 18th by Detroit; 6-5 swingman Paul Pressey of Tulsa, 20th by Milwaukee; 6-7 forward Eddie Phillips of Alabama, 21st by New Jersey; 6-11 center Mark McNamara of California, 22nd by Philadelphia, and 6-11 center Darren Tillis of Cleveland State, 23rd by Boston.

Kevin Magee, a 6-7 forward from California-Irvine who was on the 1981-82 All-America team with Sampson, Cummings, Floyd and Dailey, was not selected until the 39th pick, by Phoenix.

Texans Drafted

by The Associated Press

Here is how Texans and Southwest Conference players were taken in the 10 rounds of the National Basketball Association draft Tuesday:

FIRST ROUND -- LaSalle Thompson, Texas, Kansas City; Keith Edmonson, Purdue, San Antonio, Texas, Atlanta; Terry Teagle, Baylor, Broaddus, Texas, Houston Rockets; Ricky Pierce, Rice, Detroit; Rob Williams, Houston, Denver; Darren Tillis, Cleveland State, Dallas, Boston.

SECOND ROUND -- Scott Hastings, Arkansas, New York Knicks; Jeff Taylor, Texas Tech, Houston Rockets.

THIRD ROUND -- None.

FOURTH ROUND-Rudy Woods, Texas A&M, Dallas Mavericks; James Griffin, Illnois, Fort Worth, Texas, New Jersey.

FIFTH ROUND -- Terry White, Texas-El Paso, Cleveland; Clarence Swannegan, Texas Tech, San Antonio.

SIXTH ROUND -- David Vann, St. Mary's (Texas), Golden State, Jaime Pena of Mission, Mexico State, San Antonio; Jake Bethany, Hardin-Simmons, Phoenix.

SEVENTH ROUND -- Terry Long, Lamar, Portland; Delonte Taylor, North Texas, San Antonio.

EIGHTH ROUND -- Keith Peterson, Arkansas, Dallas.

NINTH ROUND -- Ralph McPherson, Texas-Arlington, Dallas; Perry O'Brien, St. Mary's, San Antonio.

TENTH ROUND -- Albert Culton, Texas-Arlington, Dallas; Keith White, McMurry, San Antonio.

Pull Announces 'Open' Division

Snyder's Fourth of July Tractor Pull will feature a stock four-wheel drive class, "open to anyone who has the desire to enter and who abides by the rules most tractor pull associations use nationwide," it has been announced.

The annual pull, sponsored by the Snyder Jaycees in cooperation with the West Texas Tractor Pullers Association, is being held 8 o'clock nightly July 2 and 3 at the old rodeo grounds.

Tickets are $4 for adults and $2 for children age six through 14.

Basically, there are three divisions of four wheel drive (4WD) trucks; modified, super modified and econo trucks. Modifieds must retain original stock appearance with the exception of hood scoops and vertical headers. For power, any engine made by the same manufacturer of the truck can by used along with modification, but it must be naturally aspirated.

Super modifieds use any engine and turbochargers, superchargers, fuel injection or multiple carburation.

Econo trucks are usually for the puller who is just starting out and they use a single carburetor.

Those interested in competing in the stock 4WD class are requested to contact the West Texas Tractor Pullers Association, either Larry Lee at 573-2176 or Jesse Allen at 573-3658 for technical information.

Wimbledon Briefs...

King Advances

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - Billie Jean King, the No.12 seed, upset sixth-seeded Wendy Turnbull of Australia 6-2, 6-3 for a berth in the quarterfinals at Wimbledon.

In other matches, Anne Smith, seeded 13th, beat fourth-seeded Andrea Jaeger 6-4, 6-2; Barbara Potter, No.10, ousted seventh-seeded Pam Shriver 6-2, 6-4; Martina Navratilova beat Zina Garrison 6-3, 6-2; Chris Evert Lloyd overcame Virginia Ruzici 6-7, 6-3, 6-1; unseeded Joanne Russell eliminated ninth-seeded Sylvia Hanika of West Germany, 6-4, 6-7, 6-3.

In men's play, third-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis beat Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia, 6-7, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, and Roscoe Tanner edged Vijay Amritraj of India 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Bucks Pick Pressey; Celtics Choose Stewart

Paul Pressey, former Western Texas College standout who went with Nolan Richardson to Tulsa, was chosen in the first round of the National Basketball Association draft yesterday by the Milwaukee Bucks.

Pressey was one of two former WTC and Tulsa players selected. The other was 6-9 Greg Stewart, who went to the Boston Celtics in the fourth round. Stewart was voted the Most Valuable Player of the National Invitational Tournament while at Tulsa and was a two-time NJCAA All-Tournament selection for Western Texas.

"Pressey was the guy we wanted all along," said Bucks coach Don Nelson, who called the 6-5 swingman "certainly the best defensive player in the draft."

Nelson eluded that Pressey had the talent to play immediately in the NBA, although his likely role for the Bucks next season would be as a backup player.

The Bucks drafted 20th among the 23 teams and Nelson noted he was surprised that Pressey had not gone sooner.

"We thought he might go as early as 11th," Nelson was quoted as saying. "We think he was the best defender in the draft, period."

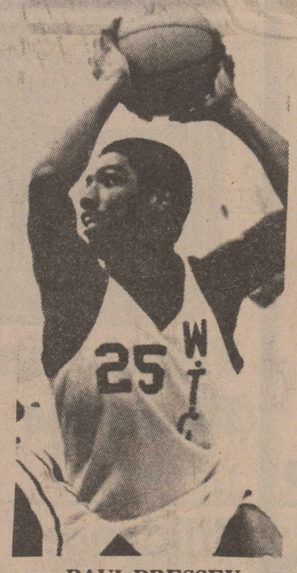

The 23-year-old Pressey was nicknamed the "Rubber Band Man" by Tulsa Coach Nolan Richardson, who has said, "Pressey is a complete ballplayer. Anything you ask of him he can do."

Richardson had predicted Pressey and Stewart would be drafted by the NBA draft three seasons ago when they were aiding Western Texas to an NJCAA National Tournament championship.

In a telephone interview, Pressey commented, "I was just happy to be picked by such a good organization," adding that he felt he could fit in well with the Bucks' fast-paced style of play.

"I can add a lot to any ball club. If it takes defense, or passing, or scoring, whatever I have to do, that's what I'll do."

Pressey, who averaged 13.2 points per game his senior season and was third-team All-American, set single game, single-season and career steals and assist records at Tulsa.
