Dust Storms Rage Over County With Old Women Also Rage Over County As Brooms Find Double Duty Timers Declaring Them To Be New Type

Unusual dust storms of fog-like density continued to cover Collingsworth County during the past week.

Old timers declared that they never saw any sandstorm of the 1935 type in Collingsworth County before.

The thing that is most uncommon in regard to the dust storms is that they are not accompanied by sweeping winds as are the ordinary sandstorms which frequently sweep across this section.

In contrast to the ordinary type of storms, those during the past week have been chiefly composed of dust or fine silt—and out of a clear sky will settle down over the county, plunging the area into semi-darkness.

Some persons estimate that the dust storms are blowing into the Panhandle from Kansas, where atmospheric disturbances have been reported in recent weeks.

This theory seems to be generally accepted.

To say the least, the old broom and dusting cloth have been working overtime—and while the old timers are declaring they "never seen the like of it before," the women of Collingsworth County are declaring with equal vehemence that they hope they will never see the likes of it again.

Bidders Notices To Be Advertised By City Council

Consulting Engineer Employed To Draw Plans And Specifications

Formative Stage

City Will Strive To Secure Domestic Rate Of 45c Per Thousand

After several weeks of consideration, the City Council adopted preliminary plans for the installation of a Municipal Gas Distribution System in Wellington in an effort to bring lower gas rates to the consumers. Notices to bidders for the construction of the plant and the furnishing of gas at the city limits will be advertised in the daily papers the latter part of this week and will be advertised locally next week.

Plans Are Drawn

Plans and specifications for the construction of the plant have been drawn by Ralf Toensfeldt, who has been employed as consulting engineer by the city.

If the city is successful in securing satisfactory bidders for the construction of the distributing system and the contract is finally let, the system will be paid for by the bond issue voted for that purpose in 1931. Plans are still in a formative stage, and city officials are unwilling at this stage to make any predictions as to the success or failure of the enterprise. However the council has decided to make a determined effort to install the system, providing a satisfactory program can be completed.

If the system is installed, the city intends to sell natural gas to domestic consumers at a rate of 45c per thousand cubic feet with commercial and industrial consumers taking a lower rate.

Coyotes Moving East By Uses Of Modern Methods

Naturalists State Coyote Most Adaptable Of Predatory Animals

The coyote, "wild dog of the Western plains," seems to be moving East. In keeping with its reputation of resourcefulness, this predator is "moving in" by modern means of travel, the automobile and the express train, according to naturalists in the United States Department of Agriculture.

Tourists in the West often purchase coyote puppies, and bring them East. They do not find them dependable pets, however, so there is little grief when an occasional coyote escapes. In a few cases eastern sportsmen have brought in young coyotes and freed them, thinking they were fox puppies. From these small beginnings have developed numerous infestations in some of the Eastern States.

Coyotes are now present in New York, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, and Alabama, and may be present in other Eastern States. In addition to artificial plantings, coyotes are pushed eastward of their own accord, having been recently reported in parts of lower Michigan and Indiana.

"The coyote is the most adaptable of the predatory animals," says A. M. Day of the Bureau of Biological Survey. "Civilization has no terrors for him. He lives and thrives there, finding life easier, even if somewhat more dangerous than in the open. He is shrewd and bold.

"Home to the coyote is wherever he digs his den. He migrates easily and upon slight provocation. Coyotes multiply rapidly. The litters are large, averaging five to seven puppies, which look much like young German police dogs. Recently a litter of 17 was found. With the coyote's adaptability, shrewdness, boldness, and ability to multiply, it is possible they may eventually inhabit the entire United States."

The paid-hunter system is advocated by the Biological Survey as the best method of keeping coyotes under control. The payment of bounties often leads to abuses and deception.

Although coyotes are scavengers and, in addition, destroy many rodents, they are all too likely to find it easier to obtain their living by killing poultry and young pigs, lambs, and even calves. For this reason they may become as much a menace to eastern farmers as they have been to the western rancher.

Refuse Oxen For Plowing; Result, Hamburger Meat

OKLAHOMA CITY—Because Oklahoma farmers did not care to have any part in reviving the ancient custom of plowing with oxen, a relief project has been consigned, literally, to the hamburger grinder.

Three months ago E. G. Jeffry, managing editor of the Oklahoma Rural Rehabilitation Corporation, acquired 50 head of oxen and had them trained to the plow, with high hope of placing them with his farmer clients.

When the oxen had finished their short course in farming, they were offered to the clients. There were no takers. Relief officials went into a huddle and decided to offer the plow-oxen on credit. Still, no takers, and the feed bill was mounting.

Now, it has been decided the oxen will be slaughtered and reoffered as ground beef. The clients will take that.

Seeds of black stem rust have been found more than two miles above the earth.

Man, 63, Cutting New Teeth

NEWPORT, Tex.—M. T. White, 63, prominent farmer of Newport, is cutting his third set of teeth. The teeth are coming through his lower and upper gums where teeth have been extracted for several years and he has at present five new teeth. Mr. White says that he was ill for several days before the teeth came through. He did not know what his illness was, and says he never had such strange symptoms of illness before. He can now fully sympathize with all babies when they are having their troubles and don't blame them for being fretful, Mr. White says. He was in town last week and was the center of much attraction when he exhibited his set of young teeth of which he seems to be very proud.

Baby, Born With Tooth, Gets More On Second Day

DENISON, Texas—The Dionnes may outnumber Martha Jo Coffman, but Denison's wonder babe is away ahead of the quintuplets as far as teeth are concerned.

Baby loves the world over had a thrill a few days ago when Annette Dionne sprouted her first tooth, but diminutive Martha Jo already can boast two teeth.

Born March 2, Baby Jo weighed but three pounds. She came into the world with a lower incisor and on her second day developed a second tooth.

No sign of other teeth have shown up so far but her proud father, R. R. Coffman, says if she keeps up the rate she has produced them she will have a full set by the time she reaches the age of Annette Dionne had her first.

Martha Jo's mother died the day she was born.

The infant has gained three-quarters of pound since birth but is so husky she thrives without the use of an incubator.

Doctors say it is very unusual for a baby to be born with a tooth.

We are in a new Automobile Era

Cars built since 1931 have twice the power and speed of ten years ago

Continental offers you better lubrication for modern cars
—an *Alloyed Oil with twice the film strength of other oils

★ Alloyed by the Patented Germ Process

Just as the metallurgist adds small amounts of other metals to make special alloy steels, so we add small quantities of concentrated oily essence to highly-refined, paraffin-base motor oil. This Germ Processing, discovered and patented by Continental scientists, gives Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil lubricating qualities no other oil has.

IT'S hard to realize how improved cars of the '30s are over those we drove ten years ago. We are in a new automobile era! Power and speed have almost doubled in a decade, with little increase in motor size.

Increased power has brought enormous increases in bearing pressures and crankcase temperatures. In making motor parts that will stand up under these severe conditions, car manufacturers have turned to new alloy metals of extra strength and durability. For the same reason, you must have oil with enough extra oiliness and film strength to protect your motor under extreme pressures!

Yet motor oils generally have no more oiliness and film strength now than they had ten years ago. New refining methods have recently come into use to make oils free from carbon and sludge. But these new refining processes have actually lowered instead of increased oiliness and film strength!

There is one exception—Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil. It, too, is free from carbon and sludge troubles, as its users know after millions of trouble-free miles of driving. But more important, Timken machine tests prove that the new Germ Process* puts into this oil 2 to 4 times the film strength of any straight mineral oil! That extra film strength protects your motor under the most extreme pressures and heat.

Germ Processing gives other valuable advantages. Because Germ Processed Oil penetrates and combines with metal surfaces, a "Hidden Quart" stays up in your motor and cuts down starting wear. Germ Processed Oil gives longer mileage with greater motor protection, as proved by the famous Indianapolis Destruction Test.

Plain mineral oils were all right ten years ago—today they are becoming obsolete. Say "O.K.—Drain"—fill with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and drive with the comfortable assurance that your oil meets your motor's needs!

Clean Houses, Yards Cited As Aid To Health

Cleanliness Would Aid Greatly In Preventing Disease Spread

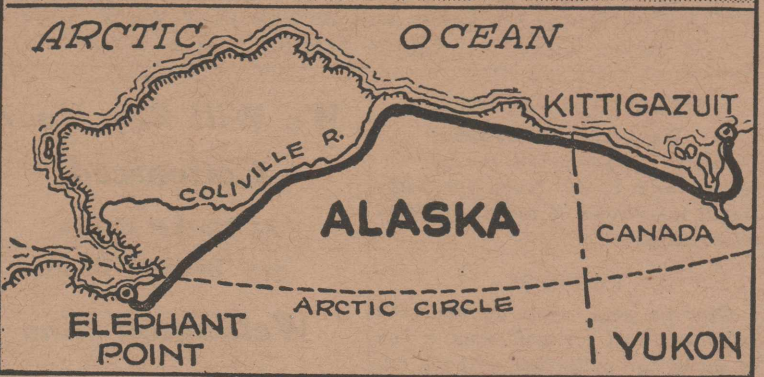

AUSTIN, Tex.—The accumulation of winter's debris represents a distinct menace to the health of cities and particularly to little children, according to Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, who asks everyone to clean their houses and yards at this time. It is not only good housekeeping, but many sanitary principles indicate the necessity of prompt removal of all waste matter in and around the neighborhood of yards and homes, but the definite lessening of the spread of disease, especially those affecting infants, is vitally connected with this procedure. Diseases help spread typhoid fever, diphtheria, diarrhea, tuberculosis, scarlet fever, and cholera. They breed, and feed in filth. To prevent an increase all refuse should be removed at once, garbage kept in covered containers, privies made sanitary, and houses screened. Every neighborhood raises its own standard, so that their number is an index to the sanitary conditions. Mosquitoes are responsible for the spread of malaria, dengue, and yellow fever. Malaria is spread by the bite of the Anopheles or malaria mosquito. Dengue fever, yellow fever are transmitted by the Aedes Aegypti or Tiger mosquito. The best way to prevent these diseases is to destroy the breeding places of the mosquito. Mosquitoes breed in standing water, so, one should drain, ditch, fill such places, spray oil on them each week, or stock the water with surface minnows as they eat the wigglers. Houses should be well screened to protect against these insects. After the cleaning is finished, it should be kept in this condition at all times.

Home Beckons Eskimos' 'Santy'

A modest little Laplander, Andy Bahr, above, is homeward-bound after completing one of the biggest, most unusual "jobs" in modern history. A little more than five years ago, Andy and six helpers started from Elephant Point, Alaska, to herd 3000-odd reindeer over the Arctic barrens to the Mackenzie river district, 1200 miles away, along the route shown in the map. The animals were to form the nucleus for future herds, to furnish food and transportation to starving, sealless Eskimos. Hazards of the Alaskan trek took a toll of 1400 reindeer before Andy arrived at his goal.

Home Owner May Build Or Refinance Property With Insured Mortgage Plan

Lee C. O'Neil, Collingsworth County Better Housing Chairman, today announced that Section 2 of the Better Housing Act was now in effect and that through this section old mortgages might be refinanced or new homes might be built, whereas the old plan only offered repairs and remodeling on homes.

In summarizing the plan Mr. O'Neil said:

"Any responsible person with a steady income and a good credit may borrow under the Insured Mortgage plan. Any property primarily to be used as a residence may be financed by an insured mortgage loan provided it meets the simple requirements as to location, characters of neighborhood, and the type of construction. "Not more than a maximum of 80 per cent of the appraised value of the property, land and dwelling included, and not more than $16,000 in any case, may be borrowed under an insured loan. The mortgage is repaid in equal monthly amounts covering the interest on the outstanding balance of the loan, payment on account of the principal of the loan, the service fee, and the estimated monthly proportion of the annual taxes and insurance premiums on the property and the mortgage.

"The plan applies equally to present dwellings and new dwelling constructions, conforming to the standard requirements under the new plan."

Parties interested in the Insured mortgage plan were urged to contact some member of the Better Housing Campaign in this community and to secure more complete details. The leaders have plenty of printed material covering points in the campaign.

The restriction of practically all kinds of crops by the government, together with the uncertainty as to future prices for agricultural products, has many farmers guessing just what to do. Most of them are willing to co-operate with the government by reducing their cotton acreage, but the question then arises what to do with this surplus land. The average farmer is a man of action. He is accustomed to utilizing everything to some advantage, and it grieves his thrifty soul to see good acres lying idle, or to think of great quantities of the products of those acres which he cannot use to any profit.

However there is one agricultural activity upon which no restrictions have ever been placed. On the contrary the Department of Agriculture has for several years been using every means to encourage farmers to increase production in this particular line, and warning the people that the shortage would become serious unless production was sharply increased.

For several years we have been hearing much about "surplus" and "overproduction." We have produced too much cotton, too much wheat, corn, hogs, beef, wool, tobacco—too much everything. But we have heard nothing about any surplus of horses and mules. Statistics show that there is a real scarcity which is becoming more acute every year, and that it will be a long time before the supply catches up with the demand. Every observing farmer knows that right in his own community good horses and mules have been getting scarcer every year, and anyone who has had occasion to inquire about prices knows that they have been going up by leaps and bounds.

True, many farmers are going the "tractor route" and this of course will have a certain bearing on the situation. But many of those farmers who are now buying tractors will tell you frankly that they are doing so because it is almost impossible to find really good animals for sale. Also feed prices are abnormally high, due to the widespread drought of last year. However, this last is a temporary condition, not likely to be repeated soon, and with feed production returning to normal as may reasonably be expected, feed prices will compare favorably with tractor farming.

Altogether it looks as if the farmer is overlooking a good bet if he fails to consider the possibilities of horse and mule raising for the next several years. The keeping of a few good brood mares might be the means of placing him on the profit side of the ledger.

Many Farmers In West Texas Using Seed Test Method

Texas Tech Offers Free Service To West Texas Farmers

LUBBOCK, Tex.—“Farmers throughout this country are taking advantage more and more of having their seed tested,” states G. L. Beene, assistant State seed analyst. “I have received at least one-third more samples this year than any other year. Seeds have been sent to the station at Texas Technological College from Kansas, New Mexico, Arizona, Missouri, Oklahoma, Iowa and even from South America, to be tested.”

Beene runs from 16 to 25 tests a day on an average, with a maximum of 35 tests. From four to ten days time is necessary to make a complete analysis and germination test. Sudan and Red Top seed average seven days for the test, and cotton seed takes at least ten days.

Any one may send in seed samples to be tested, according to the analyst, and no charge is made. The following are minimum weights of samples to be submitted for analysis: two ounces of grass seed, white or alsike clover, or seed not larger than these. Five ounces of red or crimson clover, alfalfa, rye grasses, broom grass, millet, flax, rape, or seeds of similar size. If the sample is to be examined for origin at least five times the quantities here specified should be submitted.

The sample must be taken in such a way that it represents as accurately as possible the bulk lot being sampled. To this end it is important that equal quantities be taken from each container sampled, and from each place in a container, in a given lot of seed.

The working sample is weighed and separated into four parts: 1. pure seed; 2. other crop seed; 3. weed seed; 4. inert matter. All seeds under consideration are considered pure seed, whether shriveled, cracked, or otherwise injured. Broken seed are counted pure seed when the pieces are larger than one-half, while those one-half or less are considered inert matter. Decorticated seeds of legumes are considered inert matter.

Seeds of plants locally grown as crops, other than the kind under consideration, are considered other crop seeds unless designated as weed seeds. Weed seeds are those seeds recognized by laws or official regulations or by general usage as weeds. Inert matter consists of broken seeds when one-half or less, decorticated seeds of legumes, dirt, stones, chaff, fungus bodies, and any other matter not seeds.

According to Beene the best bundle crops for this locality and soils are Red Top and Hegari. Hegari is a dual crop, making both grain and fodder. Milo and Kafir are considered the best grain crops. Chilte, a hybrid of Hegari and Feterita, is a very good crop for sandy loam soils, and adapted to that soil only for best results.

The rule of seed testing is to aid agriculture in avoiding one of the hazards of crop production. This testing involves information to the crop producer as to the potential ability of his seed to produce a good crop of the desired plants and information that will aid in the control of the quality of planting seed offered for sale.

Dionne Quintuplets Become Wards Of Ontario, Despite Parent's Objection

TORONTO, Ontario—Five baby girls—skyrocketed to fame and popularity by the accident of simultaneous birth—Friday night passed under the protection of the British crown.

Against the protests of Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, the backwoods French-Canadian father and mother of the quintuplets, the Ontario Legislature adopted a measure which makes the babies wards of the Government.

As a gesture of opposition Mr. and Mrs. Dionne and their other four children moved bag and baggage into the Dafoe Hospital, specially built home of the quintuplets, it was reported.

They stayed there two hours until induced by Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, the babies' doctor, to leave. The parents, who have engaged a manager, believe they should be permitted full control of the quintuplets. Welfare Commissioner David Croll insisted they be made crown wards to prevent their being exploited to the detriment of their health.

Guardians in their first months had to abrogate a contract for exhibition of the quintuplets at the Chicago World's Fair.

Under the bill passed Friday, Oliva Dionne and Dr. Dafoe will be named guardians and they will be responsible directly to the welfare commissioner of the province, who in turn is an officer of the Crown.

Dr. Dafoe reportedly induced the parents to leave by pointing out the tiny hospital contained no facilities for accommodating other than the quintuplets and their nurses. For the parents and other children to move in would be to endanger the hard-won health of the girls.

There was no debate when the bill came up on final reading Friday, in contrast to fiery discussion Thursday. The bill went to Lieut. Gov. the Hon. Dr. Herbert A. Bruce for signature, which will make it a law governing welfare of the quintuplets until they are 18.

According to word received here from North Bay shortly after the parents went to the hospital, a provincial Constable hurried to the place. Subsequently the Dionnes left. Dr. Dafoe was at his office when he heard of the incident.

“I will get in touch with the hospital immediately,” he said.

Welfare Commissioner Croll confirmed that the Dionnes had gone to the hospital and left two hours later but denied they had moved in with their own children.

Continental Oil Company Holds Meeting Tuesday

Advertising Schedule Announced For Next Three Months

Continental Oil Company dealers and employees of Collingsworth County Tuesday night attended a special meeting in which the Continental advertising campaign was outlined for the next three months.

In addition to the Collingsworth dealers, the new district superintendent, Harry Brady, went over the proposed campaign and explained to the dealers that the Continental advertising was supported strictly by facts. Jess Allen was also present and traced over the possibilities offered through the Continental Travel Bureau, showing the complete detail with which the office routed users of the unusual service.

A comparison of the advertising schedule to be placed in the Wellington Leader for the next three month period was also shown in which it was disclosed that The Leader will receive larger ads than those to appear in the Amarillo and the Wichita Falls papers. The fact was acknowledged by Jimmie Gillentine, Leader representative, who attributed the situation to the results through The Leader and the strict merchandising campaign which follows on the part of station operators.

Those who attended the meeting were: E. H. Harwell, Joe Rountree, Alvin Horton, Reuben Fillpot, Fred Boyd, W. L. Tyler, O. H. Hodel, U. A. Coldiron, M. B. Bridge, J. C. Rogers, L. J. Wayne, Judge Holton, Don Manzer, Jess L. Allen, Harry Brady, Jack Smallwood, Jess Deger, Jimmie Gillentine, Ralph Scheu, H. M. Dowdy, Idus Smith, Buck Hankins, Lee Hankins, Reuben Rountree, Joe Knoll.

As Mystery Cloaked Heiress' Death

Whether the death of Elva Statler Davidson, right, heiress to the Statler hotel millions, was murder, suicide, or due to accidental monoxide poisoning was the burning question as a Pinehurst, N. C., coroner's jury quizzed her husband, H. Bradley Davidson, above, in an effort to clear the mystery, later reaching the decision of accidental death. Davidson testified sharply that he had married for love, not money, and that he was unaware she had willed him $300,000, with a $12,000 annuity.

Man Admits Kidnaping Himself In Effort To Get Money For Marriage

WILMINGTON, Del.—A love affair with a high school girl and the desire to obtain money so that he could marry her were the motives that impelled Cester Hyde, 21, of Woodbridge, N. J., to "kidnap" himself, the young man admitted recently.

Shortly after Chester was found lying in Rockford Park bound and gagged, he confessed, according to Chief of Police Howard L. Boyd, that his "kidnaping" was a hoax planned and engineered so that he could collect $10,000 "ransom" from his stepfather, William Lella, a Woodbridge horticulturist.

Boyd said the youth talked of a romance with Marion Hatedron, 18, in disclosing his reason for the asserted hoax.

According to the police head Chester said he left his Woodbridge home last Monday evening and went to Philadelphia where he stayed three days. Last midnight he came to Wilmington with a length of rope. Going to the park, he stuffed a handkerchief in his mouth. Ingeniously tied his hands and feet and lay down in a ditch where patrolmen found him, young Hyde was quoted as having admitted.

Credit System For Agriculture
The Farm Credit Administration provides a complete credit system for agriculture. The needs of the farm and ranch are different from the needs of business.

This is the first time in any country that a complete credit structure has been set up for the farm and ranch separate from the commercial credit structure.

It has greatly reduced the interest rates, and within sixteen months has refinanced and saved more than half a million farm homes.

In our own District, approximately 25 million dollars in farm credit loans have already been made including about three million dollars in crop and feed loans.

Parallel To Business Structure
The farm credit system should completely parallel the business credit structure, and I have therefore introduced a measure giving the Intermediate Credit Banks, which are the discount banks for farm credit, the same reserve note issuing privilege which the Federal Reserve Banks now have.

This would be done on a perfectly sound basis.

The forty percent reserve would be provided, and the sixty percent farm and ranch paper would be used just as the commercial paper is now used for Federal Reserve notes.

This would do away with the necessity of selling tax-exempt bonds and would substitute another method just as sound as the Federal Reserve notes—in fact, the same character of notes.

This plan would still further reduce the interest rates on all types of farm paper.

Purchase Of Farm Homes

The bill also would encourage small farm home owners by providing loans in limited amounts at a low rate of interest. This provision would apply only to existing indebtedness and purchase money. Any time the borrower transfers to other than an actual farm-owner, the interest rate would be increased automatically to the regular rate. This would prevent speculation. Many persons not otherwise able would thus be in a position to buy and pay for a home.

The Sandstorm

By G. A. Richards

(Note: Comments published in the Wellington Leader regarding recent sandstorms have resulted in comment over the entire state of Texas. The Leader appreciates articles from its readers. Let's get to the bottom of this thing. Here is an unusual poem which may help us a little.—Jimmie Gillentine.)

You move the Sands
From place to place;
The smoke house and the stable
You blow the dust and closet close
And on the dining table.

You blow the moisture from the soil,
You kill the growing grain,
You drive away all cheerfulness,
You kill our souls with pain.

You make us scorn our best of friends,
The Butcher, the Baker;
You make us shoot holes in our heads,
And call the Undertaker.

You drive the sweetness from our wives,
Their kindness is not here;
You make them kick our hounds around,
You make them pull our hair.

You tire the wings of little birds,
The Nighthawk and the Pigeon,
You make us doubt the word of God
And question men's religion.

You parch the tongues of toiling men,
The Donkey and the Ox;
You tear the petticoats from ma
And take from pa his socks.

You burn the petal of the Rose
And kill the wild flowers, too;
You drive the moisture from the air
And drink the morning dew.

You make thieves of scores of men,
How pitiful and true;
They steal the last dime from their wives,
And spend them for Home Brew.

You make us doubt the best of men,
The Doctor and the Teacher;
You take from us our daily bread
And make us owe the Preacher.

Your only mission here with us
Is scattering your sorrow;
You make us shun our daily chores,
You make us dread tomorrow.

You still the laughter of the young,
You send away their cheers,
You bow their heads in sorrowful-ness
And fill their eyes with tears.

Your usefulness to man and beast
We hesitate to scorn;
We want you not—we need you not,
We wish you were, not born.

You draw the praise of Tack and Jim,
With them you are a winner;
You place rabbit on their breakfast plate;
Serve them black eyed peas for dinner.

I have told some faults of yours to you;
There are hundreds more to tell,
And, mildly speaking, Old Sandstorm,
You are pure D. Billie H. . . .

To Plant Trees On Test Strips In Two Counties

Slight hopes were seen this week for a shelterbelt test strip in Collingsworth County in connection with the government tree planting campaign, which is to extend from Childress north to Canada.

Bids for supplying young trees for the shelterbelt strip tests near Childress and Shamrock will be opened soon, according to John D. Jones, state director, who has opened offices in Wichita Falls. No mention was made of a test strip in this county, however, but if the tests give proper indications it is supposed that trees will be planted in this county.

Cedar, hackberry, and walnut trees, already one year old, will be used for the test. Land for the test was donated in Childress County by Mr. Brummett of near Kirkland.

Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Jones and granddaughter, June Ann Nix, and Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Campbell left Wednesday for Haskell to visit a few days with Mrs. Jones' and Mrs. Campbell's mother, Mrs. R. H. Crow.

Highlights Of Marella Community Brought Out In Historical Sketch

(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of historical sketches, tracing the growth of the various communities of Collingsworth County as presented by the Wellington Leader.)

By JOE CLAUNCH

The people of the Marella community are to be complimented for their encouragement and support of all enterprises undertaken by the Church and School. The two churches now serving this community, the Methodist and Christian, enjoy a large crowd each Sunday, with visitors from the surrounding communities. The Methodist Church located one-half mile east of the school building and the Christian Church is across the road from the school.

This community is also served by one service station and grocery store which is owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Dowdy. Mr. Dowdy is a booster of the community and has lived in this community for many years.

School In 1920

In 1920, the first year of the Marella school, there were 80 students enrolled with two teachers. In 1925 the home economics department was added which called for another teacher. This enabled each teacher to do his part of the work more thoroughly. The following is a list of the teachers who have taught in the Marella school in the order that they were here: Miss Clark Skelton, Miss Stella Skelton, Miss Eloise Evans, Miss Alma Hall, C. M. Weaver, Mrs. C. M. Weaver, Jim Cook, W. E. Moss, Mrs. W. E. Moss, Eric Ming, Mrs. Roy Willingham, N. C. Duggins, Mrs. N. C. Duggins, Mrs. T. W. Fuller, Miss Elsie Jameson, Miss Ruth Laine, Miss Florence Arnold, Jack Youree, Mrs. Warren Carter, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cheves, Miss Mabel Jones and Richard Finch. These teachers have each contributed to the upbuilding of our school, church, and general community.

During the year 1926, under the coaching of Mr. Ming, the Marella senior girls basketball team was one of the strongest teams. The girls who played were: Thelma (Ogletree) Needham; Luna (Ogletree) Pegram; Cordie (Farmer) Claunch; Carrie (Stephens) Melton; Irene (Stephens) Brisbin; Lucille (Stephens) Brisbin; Louella (Farmer) Jones. The pennant that the girls won still hangs in our school building.

The boys during that year who played were: Wayne Melton, Mayfield Claunch, George Moss, O. D. Gilbreath, Otis Melton, Jim Claunch, and Elmer Gilbreath. Junior boys were: Floyd Moss, Joe Claunch, Gene Farmer, Paul Bell and Clyde Gilbreath. The school during this period had several outstanding candidates in the county.

with Mr. Pierce as the first postmaster. The office was then located in a half dugout being moved later into another building. This particular office served several of the surrounding communities. Henry Jones who now resides in this community was the first carrier of this district and made his rounds riding a mule and carrying a mail bag.

Carried Mail On Mule

One morning when Mr. Jones started out a prairie fire broke out and almost burned him and his mule before he could out run it. The grass was almost three feet high all over the territory. No schools nor churches were built at that time.

There now is a modern three-room school and every year we have several graduates who go to high school and college. The teachers who are now employed at Marella are: Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Cheves, Richard Finch. Trustees are: French Self, J. A. Carmack, E. G. Pierce.

Fat Stock Show Holds Interest

The Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth held unusual interest for Collingsworth County residents, who reported the show as unusually interesting this year. Among those who attended from here were: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Goforth, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Goforth, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Leach, Inez Leach, Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Richards, A. Y. Bell, J. B. Baumgardner, John C. Harper, Judge Holton and J. D. Hill, Kelley Pigg, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Laycock, Guyron, Raymond and Mary Laycock, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Monroe, Rev. and Mrs. T. M. Mr. Bonner is an experienced service station and tire man and states that he is indeed glad to have such a splendid, dependable line of tires and products to offer the public. In addition to his distinctive success in the judging field Leldon is also making a record at Texas Tech, where he expects to complete three years of his work in two years this spring. He has also taken interest in all campus activities of the school while in Lubbock.

Leldon is also making his own way through college. He has a small herd of cows and through a special arrangement with the college he furnishes milk and nets $50 and $65 each month as his sole means of support. Mr. Hudson stated that Leldon had made his way entirely during the two years he has been in school.

The unusual record, which shows what a boy with determination can accomplish naturally affords Leldon a busy 24 hours in every day, but he reports that he also finds time to see an occasional ball game and to enjoy his college life. Leldon graduated from the Wellington High School and during the time he attended school here, he expressed unusual interest in livestock and livestock judging.

Encourage Boys

The directors also announced that special provisions were being made to encourage some of the younger boys of this county to join the team, and said that a practise game on some specified day of each week would probably be held, in which all of the younger boys might take part and compete with regular team members. Also, if some of the boys show exceptional ability, they will be given a place on the regular team.

The idea was said to be an effort to create more interest in baseball in the county among the younger boys so that the county might have plenty of material in future years—and to possibly secure some good players from the boys who might not feel themselves good enough to make the team, but who might show up in practise so well that they would be placed on the squad.

R. W. Pritchard of Hiawatha, Kan., inserted an ad in the local newspaper: "Wanted—Good, soaking rain." A few hours later one-half inch fell.

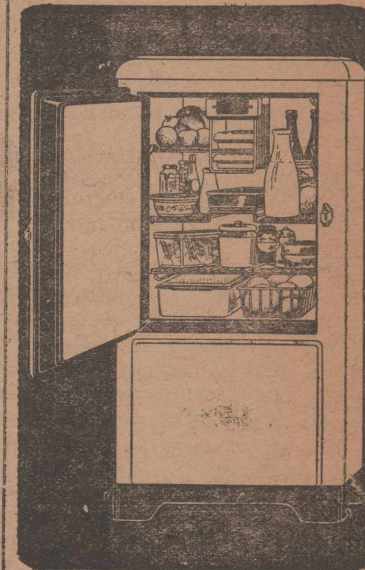

In recognition of his 50 years of service at State Teachers College, Farmville, Va., Philli Ward, negro head cook, has been awarded a diploma.

AN HONOR CODE

Many interesting stories are told of the honor code at Washington and Lee University, where it was established by General Robert E. Lee when he became president of the school in 1867.

No supervision of students is exercised during examinations, yet cheating is virtually unknown. Nothing is locked up about the institution; books, articles of clothing and all sorts of property are left anywhere with the assurance that they will not be disturbed.

Several students help to pay their expenses by selling sandwiches, candy, apples and the like, but the sales are made without the presence of clerks. The articles for sale are displayed with price cards, and customers help themselves, placing their money in the cash box. During one football game, more than $125 worth of lapel buttons were thus bought and paid for without supervision of anyone, except that when the box was filled with bills a passing professor placed a weight on them to keep them from blowing away.

New students are thoroughly instructed in the requirements of the honor code and impressed with the importance of rigidly observing it, because, it is explained, this school is built around tradition. And the essence of that tradition is that "it's a pleasure to be a gentleman."

TO CURE GOLD DIGGERS

A few days ago a bill to prohibit the bringing of damage suits for breach of promise, alienation of affections, or seduction, was passed by the House of Representatives of the Indiana Legislature by the overwhelming vote of 87 to 7. Its passage by the state Senate also seemed certain.

Oddly enough, the bill was introduced by Mrs. Roberta West Nicholson, the only woman member of the House, daughter-in-law of the noted author and diplomat, Meredith Nicholson. She has two children, a son and daughter.

Her bill also prohibits, except on order of a court, the naming of any person as co-respondent in a divorce suit. Speaking of her bill, Mrs. Nicholson said:

"I am firmly convinced that most actions for breach of promise and seduction have exhortation as their chief motive. Surely a suit to recover money as damages for the broken romance cannot soothe a woman if love was genuine."

Rufus, the family cat, awakened the 10 persons in the McCowan home in Atlanta just in time to enable them to escape from the burning building.

GREAT JURIST PASSES

In the death of Oliver Wendell Holmes, retired associate justice of the United States Supreme Court, the nation has lost one of the greatest jurists who ever adorned the bench of its highest court. At the time of his death he lacked only two days of being 94 years of age.

Justice Holmes was born in Boston, the son of the eminent poet and essayist whose name he bore. He entered the Union Army after his graduation from Harvard in 1861 and attained the rank of lieutenant-colonel. He was wounded three times in action—in the breast, in the neck, and in the foot.

After the war he practiced law and became a professor in Harvard law school, later serving as justice and chief justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Court for more than 20 years, until his elevation to the United States Supreme Court in 1902. He retired in 1932 on account of failing health at the age of 90.

While his decisions and opinions often ran counter to the majority of the court, his high ability and integrity were never questioned. He was esteemed and beloved by all, and his death, although expected for some time, was a distinct shock to his countrymen.

SUCCESSFUL WRITERS

How do writers become successful? That is a question now in the minds of half a million ambitious beginners, as it was in the minds of the present successful ones a few years ago. After a study of many books and reading many articles on the subject, one finds the question still unanswered.

About the only advice that can be given, it seems, is that of a noted editor who expresses it thus: "The only way to write is to keep on writing and never become discouraged." It might also be added that it is necessary to have something to say that will interest other people. Fiction is the most difficult branch in which to gain success, but the most remunerative when success is won. Many noted writers followed other callings before beginning to write.

Harold Bell Wright, whose novels are said to bring him greater money rewards than those of any other writer, was a printer and decorator, and later a preacher, before he wrote his first book. The late Dr. Frank Crane also was formerly a clergyman; Peter B. Kyne was in the lumber business; Edgar Lee Masters was a lawyer, and so on.

Those ambitious to write for a livelihood would do well to hold on to some other job, however, until they have something to say and know how to say it. One can tell when that time arrives by the number and size of the checks received from publishers who buy his stuff.

HENPECKED HUSBANDS

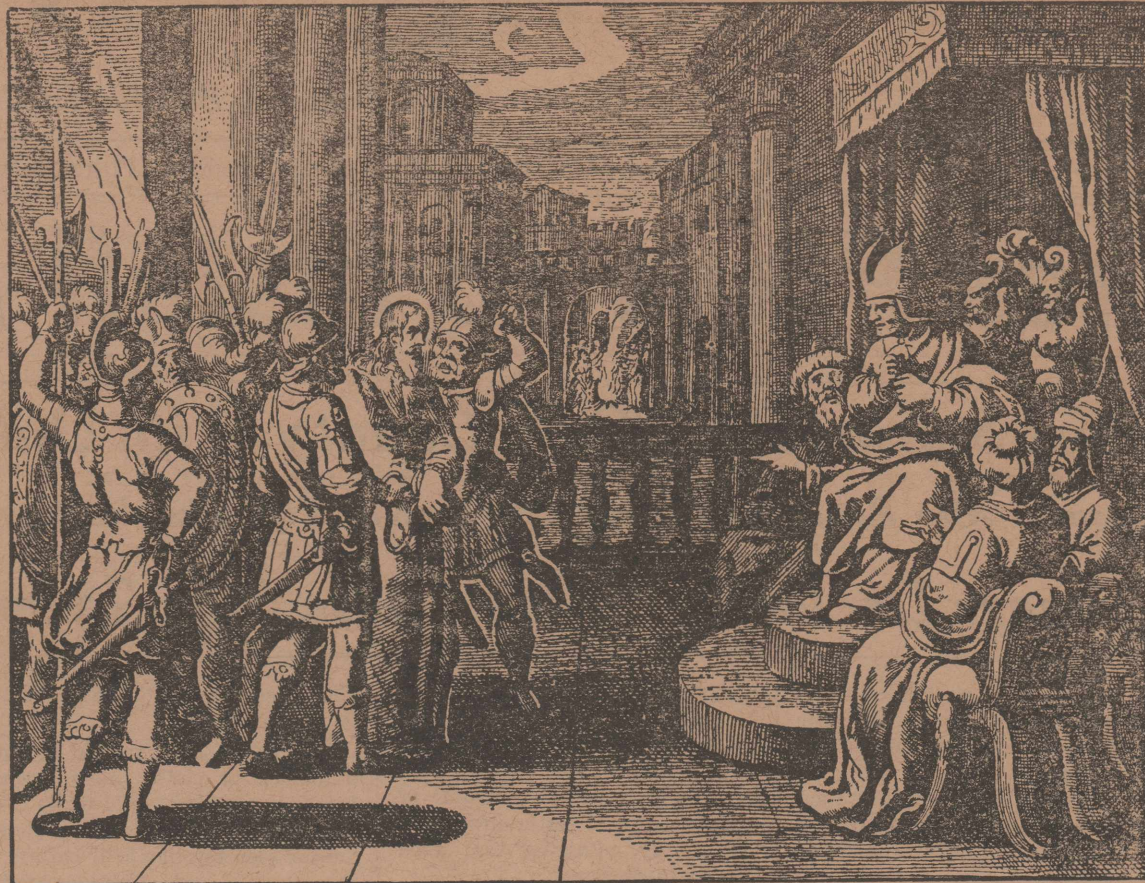

Henpecked husbands were applauded by Dr. C. W. Kimmins, a British educational leader, in an address before a woman's luncheon club in New York recently. His tribute must have been most gratifying to both the wives and husbands concerned. He said:

"The henpecked husband is the most delightful and childish person in the world. Some henpecked husbands are not really henpecked; they are henprotected."

Another encouraging statement he made in this connection was that henpecked husbands live longer than those who are not henpecked.

We must agree that even though they may not actually live longer, it no doubt seems longer.

The Story Of The Bible Told In Pictures

CHRIST BEFORE CAIAPHAS.—After the soldiers had taken Jesus, according to John, they led Him before Annas, at Jerusalem. "Then the band and the captain and officers of the Jews took Jesus, and bound him. And led him away to Annas first; for he was father-in-law to Caiaphas, which was the high priest that same year. Now Caiaphas was he, which gave counsel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man should die for the people. The high priest then asked Jesus of His disciples, and of His doctrine. Jesus answered him, I spake openly to the world; I ever taught in the synagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always resort; and in secret have I said nothing. Why askest thou Me? ask them which heard Me, what I said. Now Annas had sent him bound unto Caiaphas the high priest. And Simon Peter stood and warmed himself. They said therefore unto him, art not thou also one of his disciples? He denied it, and said, I am not. One of the servants of the high priest, being his kinsman whose ear Peter cut off, said, did not I see thee in the garden with Him? Peter then denied again; and immediately the cock crew."—John 18:12-27. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible in pictures, engraved in 1625-1630.

OUR PAST

By C. C. BISHOP

There is no better way to measure a man's greatness than by his deeds and actions. Texas has had one outstanding man, that we are inclined to forget in naming the great men connected with the early life of Texas.

This man was Mirabeau B. Lamar, one of the presidents of the Texas Republic, and has been called the father of Texas education.

During his administration, he favored sending a commission to Santa Fe, N. M., on a good will expedition. This commission left Texas in June with three commissioners, fifty merchants and seventy soldiers.

The purpose of the expedition was to try and gain some of the valuable trade from Santa Fe, as many men out of St. Louis were getting rich from the business of this town. It is said that ordinary cotton cloth was selling for $2.00 per yard.

On arriving in Santa Fe, after a very tiresome trip, the entire personnel of the expedition were placed in prison, the Governor of the Territory stating that their expedition was not of a good will nature or they would not have so many soldiers with them.

Another one of Lamar's visions was that to provide for the education for the coming generations in Texas.

At his inauguration as president, Lamar said, "We will foster agriculture, commerce and the useful arts as the true bases of national strength and glory—we will lay a foundation for higher institutions of moral and mental culture."

Carrying out Lamar's plans for education in Texas, Congress passed a bill January 26, 1839, which provided for three leagues of public land to be surveyed in each county and devoted to the establishment of schools. The following year an additional league was appropriated for school.

The act provided that if the land in the county was not suitable for the purpose intended, land nearby was to be used. Most important was the fact that schools, churches, and academies were to be established.

Another very important accomplishment during his administration that figures in our commercial life daily now and that was the passing of the homestead law. This law was passed, giving heads of families certain rights and privileges to their homesteads. We know the law now as the one exempting homes from debt, that is you cannot take a person's home for indebtedness, unless the indebtedness is for purchase money.

It must be remembered that this man of vision had his law enacted for the people of Texas, exempting their homes from debt, while England was still placing her people in prison for debt.

A fourth important accomplishment of Lamar's administration was the selection of a site for the capitol of Texas. It was a glorious time in the lives of the five com-

Meaning Of 'Christian Life'

Text: 1 Peter 3:8-18

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 24.

Carrying out the will of God was Jesus' description of the Christian life. And because the will of God is the will of an all-loving father, the carrying out of that begetting the yielding up of heart, mind, soul and strength in love to God and to one's fellow men. Paul defined the Christian life in the 13th of First Corinthians in terms of this love related to every virtue, every activity, and every goal.

Here in our lesson Peter defines the Christian life in details and terms of specific attitudes, tempers, and actions. Christians in their life together must be like minded—that is, one in their common aims and hopes. They must be compassionate, tender hearted, humble minded, and loving as brethren.

There can be no real Christian life or Christian community apart from that attitude. Nor is this attitude merely one of ideal hopes and aims. It is to be realized in a very practical world full of temptations and full of offenses in which man seriously tries his brother.

Under these conditions the Christian will not render evil for evil; he will not revile again when he is reviled. On the contrary, he will show the reality of his Christianity by rendering good for evil, and by giving blessing for reviling. The Christian is called to inherit and practice blessings.

Peter says that this sort of living is conducive to health and strength even in a physical sense. Surely, all other things being equal, that is essentially true.

That man has the greatest expectation of life whose life is freest from affliction and trouble and the disrupting influences of evil passions and tempers. There is nothing that can harm the man whose life is thus well established in blessedness and goodness.

Even if such a man should suffer for righteousness' sake, his blessedness is no less, and to have a good conscience toward God and man is much more than to be free from persecution or to be shielded from what others may do.

The example of this good life for Peter, as for all who have defined it, is in the Master himself. Christ suffered for us—the righteous for the unrighteous—to bring us to God, and it is through Him that we are made alive in the spirit.

It is instructive to observe that a portion of our lesson is quoted from the Psalms. The Christian life should never be conceived in terms of narrow religious experience. It is not a life of goodness in contrast with the good life as men lived it before Jesus came to earth, or with goodness as it is manifested in those who earnestly seek God through other religions not knowing the Christian way.

Jesus came not to destroy but to fulfill, not to set up a narrow or artificial standard of good living, but to emphasize the goodness that is inherent in man created in the image and likeness of God, and through which man manifests his affinity with his Creator.

Jack Rabbit Drives Revived In West As Pests Injure Crops

AMARILLO, Texas—Jack rabbit drives have become a necessary form of community recreation in Texas and other Great Plains states this year, due to the abundance and destructive activities of these animals.

Thousands of persons have participated in drives this year, whole communities surrounding several section of land and moving forward until the rabbits are driven into a pen where they are killed by the hundreds. These drives eliminate a destructive pest, furnish food for the needy and provide a popular sport for those participating.

Jack rabbit drives in cycles of abundance and when numerous play havoc with crops, especially in periods of drouth and short supplies of feed. This year the United States Department of Agriculture has received reports of severe damage from the animals in many states, the dry weather having caused animals to spread to Colorado, Kansas and other areas.

If dry weather revealed that twelve jack rabbits will eat as much feed as a 120-pound sheep and that fifty-nine rabbits will eat enough to feed a 750-pound cow.

Poisoning is an effective method of controlling rabbits in irrigated truck farming regions, where they often do much damage, but is dangerous in the plains country where livestock may eat the poison.

Nell Marie Watkins gave a very enjoyable piano solo.

Rev. Tom Johnston gave a very worthwhile address on "Safe guarding the moral welfare of the child." He stated that each person should be a master in his field. So he recognizes the impulsive age of the child and encourages him to become the obedient child rather than the "human wolf." He pointed out the fear that we face losing the American home, or following in the footsteps of the Russian, thus breaking down the nation. Ways to avoid such a calamity were offered in the following: worship in the home, good literature, good music, make the home a place of enjoyment for the child, and clean and educational pictures on the screen. Whooping Cough More Fatal To Girls Than Boys

Extreme Care Is Advised
In Counteracting Disease, Doctor Says

AUSTIN.—Whooping cough is disease of the spring and summer months. It is a real problem in households where there are a number of very young children. Statistics show that cases terminating in fatality are greater among girls than among boys. The danger to the child when attacked with whooping cough, the greater the age for alarm for its recovery. Babies, therefore, should be safeguarded and kept away from persons known to have been exposed to whooping cough. The danger of this malady is spread through contact with the secretions of the nose and mouth, which may come from sneezing, the use of contaminated handkerchiefs, toys, cups, and in close contact from any agencies which allow close contact.

There are three of more distinct stages noted in whooping cough. The symptoms of the first or catarrhal stage are similar to the ordinary cold, with an attendant cough. If the trouble is whooping cough, the cough grows worse instead of better as in an ordinary cold. The expulsion of mucous or vomiting commonly ends the attack of coughing.

Pneumonia and convulsions most frequently occur among children who are suffering from malnutrition. There is no communicable disease which exacts a higher toll among very young children than whooping cough.

Whooping cough is a highly communicable disease and the young and poorly nourished should be protected in every way from coming in contact with this infection.

is ready for the State Board and Washington. The contract signer for 1934 will recall that he also signed for 1935, and that he is obligated to sign the supplementary contract form. The contract signer for the first time only in 1935, will have to furnish the local committeemen with all information regarding the cotton history of his farm from 1928 to 1932; this is very similar to the requirements for the 1934 contract signers.

All producers who have signed 1934 and 1935 contracts and others who want to sign for the first time only, will see their local committeemen who will furnish them with forms, and assist in getting the contracts in shape for acceptance. It will be necessary this year for the producer to contact their committeemen, as the local committeemen are limited on funds, and cannot make a person to person contact, as many did last year. The signing of the completion of the 1935 cotton contract is going to rest on the producer, and it will be his duty to assist the local committeemen in any way possible. The producers should at once see their local cotton committeemen about their contracts, for it will be impossible for the local committeemen to look them up.

Ike Emmert will be in the court house Thursday, Friday and Saturday to take applications for 1935 cotton contracts for Wellington and Wellington School District.

Morris, Miss Virginia McMinn, Miss Helen McMinn, Jake Bradley and Mrs. Ernest Harwell.

The new church, which is considered a distinct credit to the community is expected to be completed by the time of the play, which is to be held in the church. The building has been completely remodelled. The old building was torn down and a basement was dug on the site for the new building. The old lumber and materials were used in constructing the building.

In addition to the auditorium and basement the new building also has three other rooms, giving a total of five Sunday School rooms in the church. Residents of the community are very proud of their accomplishment and give their thanks and deep gratitude to Rev. Wood, Baptist preacher out of Shamrock, who has worked long and untiringly in helping to put the project over.

The Lillie people can well be proud of their new church and the public is invited to help support the movement by attending the play Thursday night.

also deliver the evening services. He will be replaced Monday by Rev. Cochran, who will be unable to arrive here before that time. Rev. Story is also a strong pastor and has served as presiding elder of the Clarendon District.

The revival meeting will be conducted on a schedule of two services each day, featuring a service at 10 o'clock each morning and a service at 7:30 o'clock each evening. Children's work will be held at 4 o'clock each afternoon and special meetings for the young people will be held at 7 o'clock each evening.

"We are indeed fortunate to have secured the services of two such forceful, capable and distinguished church leaders for our revival," Rev. Johnston said. "The public is cordially invited to attend these services and I am confident that we will be presented with exceptional messages at each gathering."

missioners appointed to survey the land and select a site for the capital of the Republic of Texas. No doubt their names would go down through history, and no greater honor could be given them than to have had a part in such an undertaking. A. C. Horton of Matagorda, J. W. Burton of Nacogdoches, William Manifee of Colorado, Isaac Campbell of San Augustine, and Louis P. Cooke of Brazoria, were selected as the commissioners.

They were to choose a site somewhere between the Brazos and Colorado Rivers, and west of the San Antonio road. It was already decided that the new city should be named Austin. The site selected is the present city of Austin, where the capitol overlooks the Colorado River.
