Plunge Of Stock Values Spreads To Every Large Center In U. S. And Europe

TWO BILLIONS WIPED OUT BY SUDDEN CRASH

Sharp Recession Reflected In Curb Exchange And Other Marts

LOSSES $5 TO $30

Overnight Selling Orders Push Total Sales Up To 5,000,000

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—The top-heavy speculative structure, created in the securities markets of the United States by the wild speculation of the last few months, was rocked to its foundations today by the bomb shell of a higher New York federal reserve rediscount rate hurled into the financial district after the close of business yesterday.

Prices Tumble

Prices of active issues on the New York stock exchange tumbled $5 to $30 a share, with one inactive stock dropping $46. Similar recessions took place on the New York curb exchange and in the stock markets of Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles and other large cities. The repercussion even was felt in the bourses of Europe.

Two billion dollars in the quoted values of American securities was wiped out during the day. Measured by the leading stock market indices, the reaction was the severest on record, although in percentage it probably fell short of the drastic break which followed the first federal reserve warning six months ago, when prices were considerably below recent high leves.

5,000,000 Shares Sold

Wall street had seldom seen such an accumulation of overnight selling orders. On the New York stock exchange at least a score stocks opened with blocks of 10,000 to 25,000 shares while on the curb there was one block of 50,000 shares of stock and a block of 100,000 rights. Total sales in the first half hour on the stock exchange ran close to 1,350,000 shares, with the tape 20 minutes late, but trading slowed up considerably later, and the tape was only a couple of minutes behind the market at the close. The day's sales were 5,022,360 shares, the largest in about five months, but well below the record of 8,246,740 on March 26. Two efforts to rally failed. Final quotations generally were around the lowest of the day.

WOMAN TELLS WHY CITIES OF U. S. ARE 'WET'

Mrs. Willebrandt Shows That Big Centers May Be 'Dried Up'

GOOD MEN NEEDED

Staunch Enforcers And Prosecutors Only Hope of Cause

THE INSIDE OF PROHIBITION

VI. Are the Cities Hopelessly Wet?

By MABEL W. WILLEBRANDT

(Copyright, 1929, by Current News Features, Inc. All rights for publication reserved throughout the world.)

(In this article Mrs. Willebrandt shows the obstacles which must be overcome before the liquor supply can be cut in the places where the demand is greatest and the market most attractive to law-breakers, namely, the cities. Here again politics raises its head but victories already won by the attorney general's office are held as hopeful signs for the future.)

Throughout the country there is an opinion prevalent that "it is easy enough to dry up the country and the small towns, but you never will succeed in drying up the big cities."

Mrs. Willebrandt

In a measure, this belief has some foundation in fact. The great bulk of the liquor traffic, as everyone knows, is in the larger cities. And that that traffic is of enormous size cannot be disputed. I have often been asked "How wet is the country under prohibition? What amount of liquor is being sold; how many bootleggers are there in the business?"

Bootlegging No Infant

These questions cannot be answered exactly, but we know that bootlegging is certainly not one of our "infant industries" in need of care and protection. Protection it does have, but that protection is from the law and not from "low wage foreign competition."

The evidence that bootlegging, large and small, is in a flourishing condition is definite and certain. Remus, the Chicago lawyer who became one of the most extensive and successful masters of bootlegging, according to his own sworn statement, was worth prior to entering upon his adventures in lawlessness, about $8,000. After only 13 months of illegal liquor operations, he was worth more than $3,000,000, according to a sworn statement he gave to a bonding company. This amount of money, of course, could not have been made so quickly in anything but the larger metropolitan centers. The big whisky markets are in the cities.

Bootleg Millions

The number of other millionaires created by violation of the prohibition law is amazing. In one case, for instance, which involved six bootleggers, we found that in

Zeppelin Over England In Flight to Germany

Dirigible Makes Good Progress in Voyage to Friedrichshafen To Begin World Cruise

LONDON, Aug. 10. (Saturday)—The Graf Zeppelin crossed land's end at 1 o'clock this morning and is expected over London by 4 a. m.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 9. (AP)—The transatlantic air liner Graf Zeppelin tonight appeared making good progress as it neared the European coast on the first leg of its round the world flight. The ship probably will reach Friedrichshafen by tomorrow night or early Sunday.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander, hoped to reach his home port tomorrow. In a message to the ministry of communications, he said he would be unable to fly over Berlin on Sunday, Germany's constitution day, as he expected to land Saturday.

Progress Satisfactory

The Graf's progress thus far has been satisfactory to Dr. Ludwig Duerr, chief constructor of the Zeppelin works.

"By Saturday morning we will know pretty definitely whether our expectation is justified that the Graf will return to her home hangar in the course of the night of Saturday to Sunday," he said. "Judging by the progress which has been quite fast, the airship should be able to make it by then."

Once safely home, forces hope to have a sufficient reserve for her to take off for the jump to Tokyo within three days.

"Should any motor prove defective on examination here, we can build a substitute within half a day," Dr. Duerr said, "we have sufficient reserve motors ready for all emergencies. Blau gas (the fuel used by the dirigible) is here in sufficient quantities while the manufacture of hydrogen gas at our plant is proceeding with all speed.

"Within two or three days after landing here, all should be ready for the start for Tokyo."

No freight except mail will be taken on the journey from Friedrichshafen to Los Angeles according to the Hamburg American booking. Dr. Duerr pointed out that it was preferable to take along the greatest possible amount of oil and gas.

Man Items Expected To Fall Under Axe Of Executive

AUSTIN, Aug. 9. (AP)—Claiming every minute allotted to him by the constitution, Gov. Dan Moody continued consideration of the appropriation measures and other bills left by the third called session of the legislature until midnight.

He declared he would barely get his proclamations vetoing items from the money bills ready for filing with the secretary of state, within the time limit and refused to give advance information.

GIRL ACCUSES A. T. PANTAGES

Theater King Arrested On Dancer's Charge

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9. (AP)—Alexander T. Pantages, millionaire theater magnate, tonight was held under technical arrest by order of Police Captain Louis Canto for investigation of an alleged assault upon Eunice Pringle, 17, a dancer who had gone to Pantages' private office to arrange a vaudeville appearance.

Pantages flatly denied the charges of the girl that he had attempted to attack her. Miss Pringle was turned over to juvenile authorities for questioning.

The millionaire was taken into custody shortly after 6 o'clock by a patrolman who answered calls from the theater. He and the girl, together with several witnesses, were taken to police headquarters.

Pantages told Captain Canto he had booked Miss Pringle in a dancing act two weeks ago, but she had proved a failure. He said for two days she had frequented his office begging for another chance.

At 4:30 p. m. today, Pantages said, the girl came to his office and asked for an interview. After preliminary conversation he asserted she leaned over close to him and said, "I'll make you take my act." He said she then pushed him into another office and into the hall.

Fred Weise, who was in the hall, told police he heard the girl screaming, and saw Miss Pringle come from the office with Pantages following her. Weise told police the clothing of the girl and the man was in disarray.

"I want the company's money," Levey said the man replied. "I don't want your money."

LONG BATTLE CULMINATES IN DRAMATIC ACT

Slaying on Rifle Range Re-Enacted to Show Jury Mode of Murder

HIS SPIRIT UNBROKEN

Horse Doctor's Life Hinges On Long Story Told From Stand

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 9. (UP)—Dr. James Howard Snook left the courtroom when his trial for the alleged murder of Theora Hix adjourned tonight, having done all that he himself could do to save his own life and retain his liberty.

In the middle of the afternoon he completed 16 hours of testimony which represented his effort at self-preservation. Perspiring in the sweltering, crowded courtroom, his coat off, and fanning himself with a little cardboard fan, he had fenced and parried with John J. Chester Jr., the prosecutor, all morning and half the afternoon.

Struggle Re-Enacted

He had re-enacted with Chester in the role of Miss Hix, a part of the struggle in his automobile which led to Theora's death.

He had crouched before the jury waving the hammer which crushed Theora's skull.

He had repeated the unrepeatable story which is his version of what happened on the New York Central rifle range the night Miss Hix was killed and with a great wealth of detail than even a clinical record might require.

Repudiates Confession

He had repudiated over again his alleged confession and denied everything that Chester alleged he said during the 17 hours of questioning which followed his arrest.

Through it all he maintained his calm for the most part. Once he seemed about to weep, but he did not. And to contrast to that was an interested glance he gave towards a window through which the noise of prisoners exercising in the yard of the county jail came rolling into the courtroom. An impromptu quartet was singing "Sweet Adeline."

Hands in Motion

When the situation grew tense his face sometimes would turn ashen, and again it would flush. His body was always still. But his long, slim, well manicured hands with their polished nails were constantly in motion. They gripped the arms of his chair. They lifted to his face, his hair and they scratched his ears and eyes. But his voice never changed. To the last he answered in almost the same, slightly high, thin voice

Junior C.-C. Pledges Support Of City-Wide Young People's Revival

Unanimous endorsement of the city-wide young people's revival meeting to be conducted by Rev. Patrick D. Moreland, pastor of the Grant Street Methodist church, beginning Aug. 25, and assurance that the entire machinery of the Junior chamber of commerce will be devoted to making the revival a success, were voted by the board of directors of that organization at a meeting held Friday night in the chamber of commerce offices.

The matter of a second city-wide revival for young people was brought before the directors by Rev. Mr. Moreland at the request of junior leaders in various churches of the city, it was said. The first such meeting was held last summer at the Floral Heights Methodist church, the movement originating entirely with the young people's organizations, according to Rev. Mr. Moreland. This year the revival is to be held in the auditorium of the old First Methodist church, at Tenth and Lamar.

By the action of the directors Friday night, the two-weeks' evangelistic meeting becomes a part of the organization program, and will be supported by speakers, radio, publicity, and other commit-

'I Shouldn't Have Run Away,' Says Dallas Man Held in Auto Fraud

FORT WORTH, Aug. 9. (UP)—"They've called me a financial wizard, I understand. Say, that's a good one. And me in jail here flat busted." D. D. McLarty's hearty laugh boomed through the corridors of the run-way at the Tarrant county jail.

McLarty and his brother, Fred, disappeared from Dallas following the crash in December, 1927, of the Nash-McLarty Motor company, North Texas distributors of Nash autos.

Alleged irregularities in the company's books which mounted close to a million dollars formed the high light of the story of one of Texas' most sensational financial smashups.

Flight of the brothers already has put Fred in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth for three years. D. D. was brought back to Texas this week following his arrest by Northwestern Mounted police officers in western Canada.

"Where we made our mistake was in running out of town," he said. "If we'd stuck in Dallas the affair would have been just another auto firm failure."

McLarty's tone turned bitter as he dealt with the auto business.

SNOOK ENACTS GIRL'S DEATH

Doctor Ends 16-Hour Battle to Live

which had carried throughout the courtroom with the first word he spoke three days ago.

It may well prove that testimony given in the last hour of the day, will mean more to Dr. Snook's defense than anything he did for himself. Dr. Jonathan Foreman, Dr. L. H. Van Buskirk, Dr. E. G. McCampbell, former dean of Ohio State university medical school, and Dr. R. B. Harris, one after the other came to the witness stand and in answer to a hypothetical question testified that no one could tell what wound had actually ended the life of Theora Hix. The importance of this testimony was that the state maintains it was the workmanlike slitting of her jugular vein which killed her—a premeditated act. If some other wound had killed her, perhaps there was no premeditation. The point is important in law, so important it might mean the difference between life and death for Dr. Snook. But it was not dramatic.

Chester Dramatic

The drama came in Snook's own testimony. The day was only well started when Prosecutor Chester led up to the story of the actual death of Theora. He picked up the blood-stained, pink, rayon combination garment Theora wore and standing immediately in front of the professor, forced him to inspect it with ruthless detail. He picked up the knife, a little black pen knife, alleged to have been used, opened and closed its blades, inspected them and felt their edges.

"Always keep it sharp that way?" he asked curiously.

"Yes," said the doctor.

"Nicely whetted up isn't it?" said the prosecutor, and then didn't wait for an answer.

Chester quickly turned back to the scene on the rifle range. Dr. Snook told how he and Miss Hix had driven there and were sitting, with lights out, in the cozy seat of his little blue coupe.

"And now, doctor," said Chester "tell the jury just what happened there."

Nothing Omitted

Snook went non-chalantly ahead, Chester prompting him until their close embrace had been described in every detail. Nothing was omitted.

"And then what happened?" demanded Chester.

He plunged into the story of the frenzied attack Miss Hix is alleged to have made upon him. Chester was unsparing, and would not brook omission of a single detail. Snook told how he was in excruciating pain. He reached for a hammer.

"And then you hit her on the head with the hammer?" asked Chester.

"Yes," replied the professor, "and she stopped."

"Then what?"

"I got hold of her arm and twisted it."

"Now, Doctor," said Chester, kneeling in front of the witness, "you just show the jury exactly what you did. Consider that I am Miss Hix."

Doctor Snook protested, but Chester was insistent.

"Go ahead, go ahead, Doctor," he urged tauntingly. "You can't hurt me. Doesn't matter if you do."

Gentle Struggle

They both talked at once. But at last the witness took Chester's hand, drew it upward, and turned the prosecutor around. It was rather gentle for a supposed death struggle.

Going directly in front of the jury, the doctor and the prosecuor re-enacted the version which Snook gave of the scene in the blue coupe.

"And then you hit her a real hard blow and she went down?" Chester asked.

"Yes."

"And what next?"

"Well, I remember nothing more until I found myself sitting on the running board of the car with my elbows on my knees. Miss Hix was on the ground. I spoke to her. I don't recall what I said but I said something. She did not answer and I left. I was scared.

"And you drove away leaving her dead?"

"I spoke to her and she did not answer," parried Snook.

"So you left her dead?"

Then Chester began reading from the record of the questioning of Snook following his arrest.

"And did you say that" or "did you hear that said," Chester would demand at the end of each paragraph. Snook denied everything.

The defense asked a few brief questions and at 3:25 p. m. Doctor Snook left the stand. He had told his story; fought his fight for life; done all he could. He was tired, perspiring, flushed and uncomfortable, but he had not been broken.

Then came the medical experts to answer their hypothetical questions until adjournment.

'I Shouldn't Have Run' Says McLarty

"Nobody can make any money in that racket but the manufacturers," he said. "It's a hard, hard game."

McLarty is bothered with the heat here after months in prison near Vancouver, where he said he slept under two or three blankets every night. But even if the heat is hard to bear, he is finding compensation in the superior table set here.

"Mush and water, three times a day, it was in Canada," McLarty said. "And here you can send out after things. There are no such liberties up in the provinces."

McLarty is still wondering how the Northwest "Mounties" located him. He had enjoyed 18 months of Vancouver's bracing climate and fine beer, he said, before he felt the tap on the shoulder which resulted in the long journey to Texas.

"Life was fine up there," McLarty glowed. "But the wife was back in Texas, so I waived extradition. She's been here to see me several times since I got in town. You see, we've been married 10 years."

McLarty said he hadn't seen his brother since the pair left Dallas.

"Fred left a week ahead of me," he said. "I got disgusted and followed. That was the big mistake."

REYNOLDS SICK OF HIS PRISON

Millionaire's Son Grumbles In English Cell

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE

LONDON, Aug. 9. (US)—Richard Joshua Reynolds of Winston-Salem, N. C., born to wealth as the son of a great tobacco baron, and accustomed in his 26 years to every luxury and softness in life that money can buy, has spent his first week as a felon in Wandsworth jail, on the outskirts of London, and is taking his incarceration disagreeably.

Reynolds complains he does not get enough to eat, for one thing, and that he does not like getting up at 6 in the morning, for another.

I went to Wandsworth today, and though not permitted to see Reynolds who, as a prisoner of the "second division," has the privilege of only one visitor monthly. From the warder I learned the intimate, first-hand details of how an American millionaire finds life in an English prison.

Manslaughter Term

After the trial at old Bailey, on the charge of manslaughter in running down Arthur Graham while driving in an intoxicated state along Bath road—a trial which drew comments of its fairness from the American press—Reynolds was found guilty and sentenced to five months in Wandsworth jail.

By good behavior he will be able to cut his sentence to four months and one week. Wandsworth is the place where the majority of criminals of the London district are sent for sentences of under three years. Prisoners of the second division, classed as first offenders, are not allowed to associate with "old lags," who are more than "one time losers." Said the warder:

"The fact that this chappy Reynolds is a millionaire don't make much difference in Wandsworth. 'E gets no more raisins in 'is duff than a Whitechapel leathersnatcher. Prison fare don't seem to set very well with 'im.

Not Used to It

"'E says 'e don't get enough to eat, but tyke it from me, hit's because 'e don't get what 'e's uster gettin' that mykes arl the difference with Reynolds.

"'E'll get used to good, honest prison grub afore 'e gets 'is discharge."

Here are the dinner menus which Reynolds' quail-and-champagne palate must accommodate itself to during coming months:

Sunday—Bully beef and potatoes; Monday—Pork and beans; Tuesday—thick soup and potatoes; Wednesday—boiled suet pudding and potatoes; Thursday—stewed beef and potatoes; Friday—thick soup and potatoes; Saturday—boiled suet pudding again.

Reynolds spends his nights in a cell 16 feet by 10, with a stone floor, whitewashed walls and a single, barred window. He sleep on a wooden bed with a hair mattress. His day begins at the ringing of the prison bell at 6 in the morning, and he must be shaved, dressed and washed by 6:30, when his cell is unlocked by the warder.

Breakfast in Cell

The young millionaire then follows his fellow prisoners to the main floor, where he attends roll call, after which comes a half-hour of exercise in Indian-file around the prison garden, under the vigilant eyes of armed warders.

Breakfast is served in the cell, and is every unvarying—a bowl of porridge and a half-loaf of bread, washed down with a half-pint of tea. That over, the scion of one of the South's richest families scrubs the floor of his cell and polishes the metal washbowl, his spoon, fork and waterbucket.

Labor commences at 8:30. Instead of putting Reynolds in the shops, he has been assigned to work in the prison library, cataloging and taking armfuls of books for distribution among the prisoners—nothing wearing on the millionaire's muscles.

At 11:30, there is another half-hour's exercise in the yard, and then Richard Joshua Reynolds goes to his cell for his dinner, which is allowed another half-hour, and then—more labor—until 4:30.

Darns Mailsacks

The man who once knew how to order the most delicate hors d'oeuvres and select the most succulent chateaubriand in New York's most expensive caravanserai, has a 5 o'clock supper all alone in his cell—a half-pint of cocoa, a loaf of bread and two ounces of margerine.

His night task consists of darning holes in government mailsacks, with the other prisoners, he is allowed two books weekly to read.

Sitting behind the bars, darning mailsacks, is a far cry from night-clubbing it in Manhattan.

I am told that if Reynolds' conduct is exemplary, he will soon be allowed to become a member of the "prison mess," which means he can have his meals with other prisoners, and use specified rooms for association with his fellow exemplaries.

BIRTHDAY FETE AT SEYMOUR

Celebration and Fair to Be Held Sept. 12-13-14

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Aug. 9.—Sept. 12, 13 and 14 will be eventful days in Seymour. On those days the Baylor County Fair will be held, and at the same time Seymour and Baylor county will celebrate their 50th anniversary. The town was started in 1878 and the county was organized in 1879. The chamber of commerce is sending out invitations to all the old settlers who can be reached asking them to be present for the golden jubilee.

One night during the fair will be given over to a historical pageant, depicting in a vivid manner the history of town and county through the 50 years. At this pageant the pioneer citizens will occupy places of honor on a platform. Mrs. W. A. Baker is preparing the scenario for the pageant, and Misses Mildred Ballew and Sarah Wheat will be the directors.

The Baylor County Banner is preparing a Golden Jubilee edition of about 60 pages in celebration of the event. Last Saturday a picture was taken of about 50 of the pioneers, for use in the edition. A large amount of historical matter will be carried in this paper, which will be given wide circulation.

Richman Finds Way Out of His Trouble

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 9. (INS)—Harry Richman, entertainer and night club star, has only to remain in Hollywood, basking in the smiles of his "it" girl fiancee, Clara Bow, to avoid the $250,000 damage suit filed against him here by Ellen Franks, dancer, it was learned today.

In fact, Kivie Wolfe, attorney for Mrs. Franks admitted all Richman has to do is to stay out of the jurisdiction of the federal court here which is, roughly, western Pennsylvania.

The young Mrs. Franks, who alleged that Richman beat her and took her by force in his private car to Cleveland several months ago, was at Warren, Ohio, recovering from her "nervous wreck" condition which she said resulted from the alleged attack.

Of course, if Richman desires to enter into a controversy over the charges, or to deny them, he may appoint an attorney to accept notice of the suit and to argue the case, Wolfe said. This would not necessitate Richman's appearance here in person.

Nobody, however, had intimated today that Richman intended paying any attention to the suit. He was reported, shortly after the action was filed, to have termed it a "holdup."

FREDERICK, Okla., Aug. 9.—Thirty-six hundred acres of farm land in consolidated school district No. 2, southwest of Frederick, are to be drained if the affected property owners approve, preliminary plans having been prepared by D. Several property owners were present at a meeting of the county commissioners Tuesday when they voted to present the petition asking the commissioners to appoint the board of surveyors. If the district judge finds this project feasible he will select a permanent board to decide the benefits and damages resulting from its construction.

One-third the cost of a French motor car consists of taxes.

Peoples Ice Preserves Flavor

When you buy fine cuts of meat—choice vegetables—selected milk, you pay extra for flavor. Use ice to preserve it.

Without ice, the flavor of fine foods quickly disappears. The moment the temperature rises—or becomes too dry—vegetables begin to lose their crispness, butter and milk their sweetness, meats begin to dry out.

In flavor preserved and enhanced, in food saved, in health value, a well-iced refrigerator pays for itself many times over.

We Women

By BETTY BRAINERD

A THOUGHT FOR DARK DAYS

What we get out of life depends to a considerable degree on how we react and adjust ourselves to trouble. To remain clear-headed is to avoid adding weight and woe to disappointment, difficulty or pain; to be muddle-minded in test, trial or tribulation is to make life almost insufferable during the period of distress.

People who commit suicide do so because, at the moment, they do not see clearly. Their emotions are in tumultuous disarray. They look out upon life and the world and people about them through a fog of confusion. Their perspectives have been distorted, their sense of values upset because their runaway fevered feelings, rather than their minds, control.

This should not be so. Civilization advances according to the improved thinking of man. Civilization, indeed, is the fruition of all of man's thinking. Not to think is to revert, in effect, to the ways of savages—but savages do not commit suicide. As a matter of fact, trouble does not upset them at all. In this sense, savages are so civilized that they cease to be savages. They are realists. They accept things as they are. They do not make them worse. That is left for us—the more civilised (broadly speaking) folk to do.

Trouble cannot be entirely eliminated from our lives. Like rain, it falls upon the just and unjust alike. We can only accept it and help to disperse and dispose of it by weighing it accurately instead of adding the unnecessary weight of melancholy and bad thinking to it.

I heard two southern darkies talking once about a white man who had had business troubles and had committed suicide. It seems that he was deeply in debt, through no special fault of his own. He was an honest man. But business matters over which he had little if any control had thrown him into bankruptcy—and by way of solving the problem for himself—and his wife and children — he had committed suicide.

Said one of the darkies: "Heah's de way Ah feels 'boute sech things. If Ah owes money Ah'll do my lebbel best to pay off. But ef Ah cain't Ah ain't gwine worry. What's de sense? Let de udder feller do de worryin.' Let him do de soocidin'!"

There is an illuminating thought in that darky's attitude toward trouble. He shows us how to resign ourselves to trouble. Indeed, it is only when we accept trouble for its face value that we are able to think our way through our problems and thus restore life to its normal and pleasant balance.

Are you troubled and do you need advice? Betty Brainerd will reply personally to those sending stamped self-addressed envelope.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 9. (US)—On leaving Los Angeles a few high lights shine out:

The fact that everybody thanks everybody for everything, and everybody seems glad about something. Saw two girls in a car thanking two men for stopping their car and letting the ladies pass. They did it by smiling and bowing. The men thought of course they were being flirted with, which immediately labelled them strangers in this town.

A wealthy and prominent Los Angeles woman I heard about today, who is being credited with extraordinary talent because she paints pictures, doesn't paint them at all. She has some young men of artistic accomplishments on her list, and one of them paints the pictures.

But she may be doing it with a beautiful thought in mind. None would buy them, or pay them any mind if they knew who painted them. Eventually the young artist will benefit, and maybe he's benefitting now for all I know.

After coming from New York it seems strange never to see a policeman. The natives say, of course, that they don't need them. I thought I saw one today but it turned out to be a messenger on a bike.

I was laid out in a chair having a few facial mistakes rectified when I heard chatter like magpies outside my booth in a beauty parlor. Presently a lady explained: "Well, he told her that he saw in the crystal two marriages for her, and that she simply must follow her own heart."

The girl who was trying to do my face some good said haughtily: "Dreadful, isn't it? I attribute it to ignorance and the utter lack of education. Poor benighted creatures!"

I didn't tell her I had my fortune told yesterday.

A bright-looking young man at an oil station, according to Gretchen, plays the piano, the harp, the violin and the organ. He also studies psychology and with the rest of his time he sells oil at a filling station.

Oh this California!

A woman sent the other day for the owner of a beautiful apartment hotel. It was extremely important, she told him, so he went to her home. They do that way out here. Anything to accommodate. When he arrived she said she would like to become manager of his apartments. "I know I can keep them filled with nice people," she assured him.

"How do you know?" he asked her.

"Well, I can. Another thing, I don't like Christian Scientists, Jewish people, dogs or children."

She didn't tell him what she would fill the apartment with, but she didn't get the job. Incidentally, the owner was Jewish and he laughed right heartily about the kind of a diplomat she was.

Dear Miss Dix—My husband and I are separated and he has asked me to divorce him. We have been married 24 years and have three grown children. He says there is no other woman and I know he is telling the truth, because I have watched him. He says my jealousy killed his love long ago, and my accusations have made him hate me. My friends advise me to fight him and not give him a divorce. They tell me to ruin his business and turn my children against him. If there was another woman I wouldn't hesitate a minute to do it, but my children say they will leave me and have nothing more to do with me if I don't give their father a divorce quietly.

My son had the audacity to tell me that jealousy was a greater sin than infidelity. He said jealousy was based on selfishness and suspicion and that I could control my jealousy just as well as I could control my desire to steal. He said that if I had any self-respect I would keep from showing that I was jealous.

I think every wife has a right to be jealous and I don't blame myself a bit. Years ago nobody made such a fuss over jealousy. Everybody took it as a sign of love, but now all the young folks say jealousy is the curse of love and kills love quicker than any thing else. They laugh at a poor jealous wife and make fun of her. I love my husband and I don't want to divorce him. If I fight him, my children will turn against me. If I don't fight him my friends will quit me. What shall I do? —UNHAPPY WIFE.

Answer—Take the advice of your children and not these false friends who are urging you on to a suicidal course. Believe me, they would be the first to fall away from you when they found you estranged from both husband and children, a lonely old woman with nothing but a tale of woe with which to bore every acquaintance.

It might satisfy your revenge to ruin your husband, but you would find cold comfort in that when the price of it was giving up everybody you loved on earth.

You can make your husband miserable by keeping him tied to you. You can make him hate you worse and worse every day by the way you are badgering and tormenting him, but nothing on earth will bring him back to you. Nothing will ever make him care for you again. You have killed his love and you can no more bring it back again than you could blow the breath of life into a corpse.

So why not do the one decent thing that is left to you to do and give your husband the divorce he wants, and that even your children think he is justified in having?

They are right in saying that you have brought your misfortunes on your own head and that you killed your husband's affection for you by your jealousy. How could you expect a man to go on loving you when you were always watching him, always spying on him, always accusing him of crimes he had not committed, when you never trusted him or had any faith in him?

You say that in your day jealousy was considered a proof of love. Well, thank Heaven, we have come to a saner understanding of it now and we know that jealousy is the deadliest insult that can be offered love. It shows that the jealous one believes the worst of one of whom he or she is jealous.

The jealous wife believes her husband such a rogue that he cannot even speak to another woman without sensual thoughts. She believes that he is without honor and that he continually betrays her. She holds him as a liar whose word she cannot believe. The husband who is jealous of his wife believes that she is a wanton at heart and that he cannot trust her out of his sight.

Jealousy is the misbegotten child of a foul mind. It attributes to others its own low impulses and desires, its own base standards of conduct. No really clean and honest-minded man and woman are jealous, because they believe others to be as fair-dealing and honorable as themselves.

The only excuse for jealousy is that it is a form of insanity, and it is a pity there is not some sort of an asylum in which the jealous can be locked up in padded cells, instead of being permitted at large to ruin the lives of the unfortunate victims to whom they are married. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—Does personal appearance have any great bearing on character? A young man in whom I am interested seems to be the kindest, most considerate and unselfish person, but while he is scrupulously clean, he always looks sloppy. My husband, who lies in Flanders Field, was as straight as an arrow and looked like a young god in his clothes and his dealings were always as straight as his beautiful body.

Do you think there is anything in judging a man by his looks? I have a little girl who needs a home and I am tired of loneliness. I don't expect ever to love any one again, but what shall I do?—PERPLEXED.

Answer—Don't marry any man that you don't love, no matter whether he looks like a ragbag or a ready-made clothing advertisement. And loneliness isn't so hard to bear as having to endure the presence of a man in the closeness of matrimony for whom you do not care. Loneliness may be drear, but enforced companionship is purgatory.

Furthermore, it isn't fair for a woman to marry a good man just for the sake of getting a home. It is cheating him. It is taking a despicable advantage of him. You are taking his affection, the work of his hands, his whole life and giving nothing for it but cold duty. Such a marriage would bring no happiness to either one of you.

And don't despair of loving again yourself. The human heart is the most resilient thing in the world. It always comes back. Time will work its miracle. The old wounds will heal and you will find that you will be able to love again, not as romantically perhaps as the first time, but with the deep, true affection of your maturity.

I don't think you can judge a man's honesty or sincerity or his moral principles by his clothes, but I think that they give a mighty good tip on his ability along many lines. A rumpled coat may cover a kind heart, for instance, but not the back of a go-getter.

I have observed that the man who is sloppy and slovenly in his dress is seldom efficient in his work; that is sloppy and slovenly, too, and that the man who is always inappropriately dressed lacks judgment, and that the man whose clothes are never in the fashion is the man who is never up-to-date in his business methods. —DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 34 years old, but I have never had time even to think of marriage because I have always had to support my mother and father, and it seems as if I always will have to do so, although I have five brothers who are all married but one. I am now in love with a man who wants to marry me and who would be able to give me a good home. What must I do? —WORRIED.

Answer—Marry your man and make your brothers do their part toward supporting your parents. It is their job just as much as it is yours and if you divide it out among the six it will not fall hard on any one of you. Don't let them make you the family goat. All you need is a little spunk, so brace up and make a fight for your happiness. —DOROTHY DIX.

COURT DENIES OIL INJUNCTION

Suit for Judgment Will Stand, However

Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court Friday afternoon declined to grant an application for an injunction forbidding the McCarty Oil company and F. B. Jackson Jr., to use a vacuum pump on an oil lease in Wichita county. The application, filed in the name of the state by Mike Anglin, assistant district attorney, accompanied a suit for a judgment of $1,000 a day for each day upon which the defendants are alleged to have operated the pump. Ed Peterson and J. A. McCarty, doing business as the McCarty oil company, are specifically named as defendants along with Mr. Jackson.

Judge Cook refused to grant the application on the grounds that only the attorney general or one of his agents is legally qualified to present such a petition. The suit for judgment, however, which charges the operation of a vacuum pump on a lease in the Kemp Wichita Valley Farm lands since April 1, will stand, Judge Cook declared, and will come up for trial during the next term of the court.

Filing of the suit and of the application for injunction followed a recommendation returned by the railroad commission in a recent investigative session here. The commission held that its rule against the use of such pumps had been violated and recommended that the suit for the collection of the penalties be brought.

Good food promotes good health

A little sugar is so helpful in making the healthful foods delicious

HEALTH is an indispensable feature in the efficient life of this busy world.

If most of us who were born healthy would eat and exercise properly from earliest childhood through adulthood, most of us would be strong, healthy and happy. Good foods, varied foods, balanced foods, are becoming more and more important in the art of keeping well.

Nearly everyone knows that a balanced diet of milk foods, cereals, fruits, vegetables and meats are needed for health. But taste enters in and makes it hard for a great many people to enjoy the things they should eat. That is why sugar is being acclaimed as the world's greatest blessing when it comes to making a varied diet palatable and enjoyable. If people like the proper foods, they are almost sure to eat them.

A group of women cooking experts, working in a kitchen high up in a New York skyscraper, recently rediscovered an old secret that a dash of sugar added to vegetables while they are cooking develops their flavors, improves their colors, and makes them fresher and better to the taste. Sprinkle sugar over cereals and watch how much more the children enjoy them. Use sweetened milk desserts and note how much easier it is to get the members of your family to eat the amount of milk they should each day. Use fresh fruit salads with a sprinkling of sugar, and slightly sweetened stewed fruits for health and enjoyment. Remember a few cookies or cakes and ice cream for topping off the meal. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

Youths Steal Butter for Movie Money

But Jail Doors Clink When They Try to Sell It

A pair of youngsters, 8 and 9 years old and small for their ages, spent Friday night in the juvenile ward of the Wichita county jail considering the disadvantages of "swiping" butter out of grocery store refrigerators and trying to sell it around the corner in another store.

The little boys are the smallest ever to hear the big steel jail door click shut behind James A. McDonald, county juvenile officer. He didn't want to lock them up, but the butter stealing episode, which occurred Friday afternoon, was the climax to a series of shoplifting enterprises and called for stern measures.

Bare footed and wearing overalls the two children entered a self-serving grocery store here Friday afternoon. They opened the refrigerator door and each grabbed a pound of butter. They were such little fellows among the crowd of shoppers that nobody noticed how they slipped the goods into their overalls and made for the door.

But it wasn't butter they wanted—it was cash. They wanted to go to a show, they told Mr. McDonald, and they decided that stores must first buy butter before they can sell it. Wherefore the wily pair presented themselves before a second storekeeper, offering their wares.

The result was disconcerting. The groceryman recognized the make of the butter and sent for the city police, who in turn sent for Mr. McDonald. The juvenile officer had caught the boys stealing toys from the 10-cent store here before. This time he didn't let them off with a lecture. After a talk with their parents, he led them to the juvenile ward in a room separate from the quarters of the older boys, and shut the door fast behind him. They weren't bothered then, but the officer is expecting the long hours of the night to work wonders in their attitude toward butter stealing.

SHOWDOWN ON PAYMENTS DUE

Snowden Stands Pat On Britain's Demand

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, Aug. 9. (AP)—A showdown on the British demand for revision of the Young plan's distribution of German reparations payments is expected tomorrow morning at a meeting of the financial committee of The Hague conference to put the plan into effect.

Philip Snowden's resolution providing for the appointment of a sub-committee to study revision of the Young plan to meet British requirements will then come before the committee.

Premier Briand of France tonight issued a statement declaring that Britain was alone and aligned against five nations in opposing the Paris changes in the Spa percentages for distribution of reparations among the allies. He did not believe the conference could fail because of this British stand but emphasized that the whole hope of the peace of Europe depended on the outcome.

It was rumored tonight that Mr. Snowden declared he would return to London Monday if British claims were not granted before that time.

Apparently there was no change in the lineup of the powers on adoption of the Young plan, with France, Italy and Belgium determined on integral adoption. If Snowden demands a vote tomorrow on his resolution as it stands, Great Britain is certain to be the only big power to vote for it, and perhaps the only power.

There was an impression in British circles tonight that smaller powers discontented over their shares, might swing to the British side. This could not be confirmed.

GUARDS ROUT 'RED' ARMIES

Texas Militia Completes Sham Battle

CAMP PALACIOS, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—Launching a drive behind a rolling barrage along the entire Red front at 5 a. m. Friday, the 36th division, Texas National guard, swept the enemy from its position near Blessing early in the day and after seven hours of hand to hand fight, marked by vicious attacks and more vicious counter attacks, won a complete victory.

Reserves thrown in at the last moment turned the tide for the 36th after a last desperate counter attack at 11 a. m. regained for the Reds a portion of the ground they lost in the opening hours of the engagement.

Tired but elated at the successful manner in which the maneuvers, part of the field training program of the division in summer camp here, were carried out, the 600 officers and enlisted men who had been on duty nearly 24 hours under actual war conditions, staggered to their tents to catch some much needed sleep, when the regular army instructors announced the close of the problem with the Red forces routed.

The forces were almost evenly matched, a slight superiority in numbers of the Reds being offset by better transportation facilities and higher morale of the 36th. In the end it was the superior knowledge of military tactics of the A. E. F. veterans comprising the command and staffs of the 36th that turned the tide. The Reds were represented only on paper.

BERLIN, Aug. 9. (UP)—Diplomatic circles were disturbed tonight by reports from Warsaw and Vilna alleging that Polish military quarters intend to exploit the present tense situation between Soviet Russia and China.

The reports asserted that the military quarters intend to take advantage of Russia's preoccupation with the Manchurian situation to engineer a coup d'etat at Kovno and establish a pro-Polish government in the Lithuanian capital.

Considerable military activity was reported on the Polish-Lithuanian frontier but Warsaw has vigorously denied in recent weeks any move to influence or injure the Lithuanian government.

FAMILY LEAVES GIRL TO DIE

Austin Tot Burns to Death, Man Also Trapped

AUSTIN, Aug. 9. (AP)—While her mother and seven brothers and sisters scurried to safety, little Ernestine Bashara, 4, slept on, as fire destroyed their modest home on the second floor of a frame building in the downtown section early today.

When firemen found her, she was dead. Cupped hands over her face indicated that she had suffocated.

Joe Guerrero, another occupant of the building, was burned fatally. He died at a hospital several hours later.

Joe Daywood, who lived across the street, pulled Guerrero from the burning building. He saw him standing at the head of the stairs on the second floor, his clothing afire. He rushed through the flames and carried him out.

Other occupants escaped uninjured.

The Bashara girl was one of a family of 10. Her father, John Bashara, was away on a business visit to Weatherford. Mrs. Bashara thought her eight children, ranging in age from 1 to 16, had followed her from the burning building. The children had scattered in the confusion and excitement. When she missed Ernestine it required the strength of several firemen to keep her from entering the roaring flames.

Strength Came Back

"ABOUT two years ago, I found myself very weak and run-down. I was very nervous because I felt like I was getting weaker. I had read a good deal about Cardui, and decided to try it. After I had taken one bottle, I felt better. I had more strength. I kept on taking Cardui until my strength came back. I took five bottles in all, and it did me a world of good. I did not have the weak, worn-out feeling after taking it. I am glad to recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. F. M. Worley, Malvern, Ark.

Herbert Kaufman's THE GAS BAG Daily Editorial

INFORMATION is gathered at the ear and wasted at the mouth. We find what a man doesn't know by listening to him—one can merely guess at his thoughts.

Gabblers are most apt to be garblers—the loudest-squeaking wheel is always out of alignment, too.

Folk who tell the most usually have the least to tell. Chatterers are invariably smatterers—with a stock of unsalable odds and ends on their mental shelves.

They don't pause long enough to replenish their brains.

There's mighty little to digest in the average conversational "free lunch." People who know worthwhile things likewise know their worth, and aren't found scattering pearls of wisdom gratis.

The voluble man is seldom a valuable man. He plays a poor game. He shows all his cards at the flash and immediately exposes his hand.

He never leads for information. Given the opportunity, he soon exhausts his facts, his listeners and his welcome.

His hearer is tired out, and he is tired out at one sitting. Thereafter, his tale is stale. He can merely review ideas and plans already expressed. He leaves nothing to be expected when he leaves.

He's a nuisance and a bother. He has no conception of the passing or the importance of time.

He obstructs routine, delays schedules, upsets appointments. He departs under a cloud of dislike and carries no rain-check.

He abuses the privilege of audience. He runs on until he runs down.

HE DOESN'T comprehend the distinction between the patience of courtesy and actual interest. He locks every door behind him and breaks the key in the lock.

He can't hold a secret, so he can't hold a good friend or a good position. Therefore he's neither a safe acquaintance nor a desirable employe.

Rodger Rambleon is no longer "carrying the message" of the Duplex Drill company. Rod's tongue was the town's best imitation of perpetual motion. He could say more and deliver less than anybody in the firm's employ.

After the Old Man had accepted his "resignation," he sped the parting pest with a few potent sentences of advice.

"My boy," he said, "you remind me of a chap back home named Phineas Philps.

"That's your trouble. You start before you know where you're headed, and so you aren't certain when you've reached the mark.

"You can't guide yourself any more than one of these talking machines. When you've said your little piece, you keep scratching and scratching until you've spoiled the record.

"You've unsold as many customers as you've convinced. For every man you've talked into a bill, you've talked another out of a purchase.

DAVID BRANCH'S DAILY FILOSOFY

"He who forces his will upon another is a robber."

High pressure methods of selling are only respectable methods of stealing. Wares which can only be sold by high pressure salesmen are failures and so are such men. No deal is a good deal unless all parties to the deal profit.

The world's laziest man built his farm close to the river so he could live all summer off the fish caught in his barb-wire fences during flood season.

An Englishman is going to introduce a car in this country that will travel 88 miles an hour and run 56 miles on a gallon of gasoline. There ought to be a grand rush of Sunday drivers for a machine like that.

An airplane struck a steam roller the other day at Roosevelt field. One of these days an airplane is going to collide with a submarine and that will be news.

Foolish—Not Brave

ARTHUR SCHREIBER and Albert Buschkla have a lot in common—they can now sympathize with each other, but the public on both sides of the Atlantic probably will sympathize with neither of them.

Arthur, you will remember, is the youth who stowed away on the transatlantic plane, Yellow Bird, just before it hopped off from Old Orchard, Maine, for Paris. His added weight caused the flight to fall short of its goal, the French fliers being forced down in Spain when triumph was almost within their grasp. He got a cold reception when the French aviators finally reached Paris.

Albert, you have doubtlessly read, is the German youth who stowed away aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its record flight to this country. Commander Eckener, enraged, clapped Albert in irons, put him on a bread and water diet aboard the dirigible and announced that he would be sent back to Germany in disgrace.

In both cases the public seemed in hearty accord with the treatment the stowaways received. Arthur's rebuff in Paris and Albert's punishment at the hands of Dr. Eckener seemed to meet with popular approval.

All of which is as it should be.

These two young daredevils were more foolish than brave. They accomplished nothing for the good of themselves or for the good of aviation. Merely to satisfy an abnormal—and unnatural—craving for a thrill, they risked their own lives and endangered the lives of others by their foolhardiness.

The world respects and admires men who risk their lives to attain an object, an aim or a principle. It has little patience, especially in this day of sane and practical aviation, with sheer daredevils, however spectacular their feats may be, who recklessly endanger the lives and enterprises of others for the sake of a mere thrill.

Actual Values Not Affected

WITHIN fifteen minutes of trading on the New York stock exchange Friday morning more than a billion dollars was wiped from the quoted value of stocks.

The loss resulted from an advance in the discount rate by the Federal Reserve bank of the New York district. Loans to brokers had reached the highest figure in history and was tending to absorb the credit reserves of the country. The higher discount rate is expected to decrease such loans and to make more credit available for other purposes.

The loss coming so quickly is staggering, but it must be remembered that it does not affect the real value of a single share of stock or a single bond. Whatever earning power these stocks and bonds whose value shrank so quickly in the quoted prices remains the same as before the shrinkage. If there were to be such a shrinkage in the earning value of the securities listed on the stock exchange this huge loss would be almost calamitous. How forunate it is that such is not the case.

Of course there will be losses to those who have bought for resale at a profit and to those who have bought for investment and whose percentage of return will be lower, but this will be mostly to those who are accustomed to taking losses as well as profits. And even they may not lose for in a few days or a few weeks the market may be up again.

If the raising of the discount rate has the intended effect of making more credit available for industry and business, whatever bad effects there may be from the losses in the stock market may be offset by the benefits to the country as a whole.

Local Self-Government

REPRESENTATIVE BOB LONG expects to introduce a special measure in the legislature at the next term to give the people of Wichita county the right to determine whether they shall elect their county superintendent of public schools or whether he shall be appointed by the county board of education.

Similar bills have been passed for some other Texas counties and the plan is said to have worked out very satisfactorily. It brings a matter of government right down to the people concerned.

The duties of the county superintendent of public schools in Wichita county are chiefly if not almost entirely with the rural schools of the county, yet the votes of Wichita Falls can be and frequently are the determining factor in the election of that official. It hardly seems fair that votes from an independent school district should choose the officer whose duties are almost entirely with the rural schools of the county. It is a situation that seems to us ought to be remedied.

CHATTY—GODDESS OF GAB

He stopped beside her.

READ THIS FIRST

Charlotte Chatterton, nicknamed Chatty, is a born gossip. She loses her job in a hat shop because she talks too much. Her mother, a widowed dressmaker, has one wealthy customer, Mrs. Van Nuys, an old friend. Through her Chatty gets a position at the telephone switchboard in Mr. Van Nuys' bond house. There she meets Dave Jordan, a young bond salesman, and falls in love with him.

Millie Langridge, who works in the office, and her sister, Sara, come to live in the flat across the hall from the flat where Chatty lives with her mother and her brother, Pud. Pud attends high school, and works evenings in Ben Tomlinson's drug store. Chatty learns that he sells gin for Ben, and that one of his customers is Winnie Talcott, a stenographer in Mr. "Van's" office. She begs Pud to leave Tomlinson, but he refuses to.

Dave Jordan falls in love with Chatty, and the two have several pleasant parties and picnics with Billie and George Mayhew, another bond salesman. Then Sara tells Chatty that Billie has been married to a man named Brewster, but never divorced from him. Billie has not told this to George because she insists that they are only matter-of-fact friends and that there is no need to bare her past life to him. But when Chatty sees George with another girl, and tells her about it, Billie bursts into tears, admits she is in love with him, and cries on Chatty's shoulder.

One day Chatty sees Dave hand a note to Agnes Herford. Jealous, she goes through Agnes' desk to look for it. It is a simple message about some bonds, but in hunting for it Chatty finds Agnes' diary, filled with the story of her love for her employer. Chatty trans some of the pages out and mails them to Mrs. "Van," and later advises Mrs. "Van" to make her husband discharge Agnes. He does, and the girl is given two weeks' notice. Dave Jordan, alone, knows that Chatty is responsible for this, and he drops her like a hot cake.

Winnie Talcott is promised Agnes' position. Winnie is the office "vamp," and Chatty knows that she is one of Tomlinson's best customers, for Pud admits delivering gin to her. One night Winnie gives a party at her flat. She invites Bryant Dunning, a new bond salesman and a very handsome man, for Chatty. Bryant has been out of town, and is coming late, so Chatty leaves the office that night with Winnie, who shows her how to paint her face and "doll" herself all up for Bryant, who "likes fast steppers," according to Winnie.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER XXII

"Maybe Bryant won't like me when he sees me all dolled up like this," she said aloud, looking at her reflection in the glass with doubtful eyes.

Winnie gave a laugh. "I wish you knew him the way I do—and that wouldn't worry you," she answered. "All the girls I've ever seen him with were nifty steppers, all dressed up like Zulu hand cars. He says, himself, you're the first flat heel he ever fell for."

"Flat heel?" asked Chatty, who never could keep up with Winnie's ever-changing slang.

"Yea—flat heel," Winnie repeated. "You know—a girl who won't do any petting. Bum sports in other words."

Chatty had never been on what is known as a "wild party" before. But she had heard of them, of course. And even before Winnie's guests showed up that night, she knew that this was to be a "wild" one and no mistake.

The tiny kitchen, when she went into it to get a drink of water, was filled with all the signs of ope.

There was a big pail of orange juice, covered with a dish towel, standing under the sink.

The sink, itself, was covered with ginger-ale bottles, and dozens and dozens of glasses—tall, high-ball glasses, dainty little cocktail glasses, and some middle-sized glasses with thick green stems.

There was a huge cake of ice in a galvanized iron wash tub on the kitchen table.

"We always do some of our dancing out here," Winnie told her, brightly, when she followed her into the little room. "So we just stick these chairs out on the back porch so there'll be more room. The darned flat is so little that you can hardly find room to shake a hoof in it, what I mean."

She picked up the two kitchen chairs and shoved them into the outer darkness of the back porch.

"Get the chairs out of the breakfast nook, too, Chat," she ordered. "We don't need them. Nobody ever sits down at my parties. When they aren't having somethin' to drink they're too busy scuffling to sit down."

"Scuffling?" asked Chatty.

"Well, dancing, then, if you insist on being so refined." Winnie sounded sarcastic.

"What are you going to have to eat?" Chatty wanted to know next.

"Not a thing!" answered Winnie. "Food, my girl, is the curse of the drinking race. Nobody wants to eat at a party. Everyone wants to dance and drink and go hay-wire!"

Chatty began to feel ashamed of herself because she knew so little about really peppy parties. . . . She remembered Billie's Sunday night party. Billie had served food, good food and plenty of it. And no one but Winnie and a couple of the boys had drank anything. . . . Certainly no one had "gone hay-wire."

"Later on in the evening the gang usually piles into somebody's car and lopes out to some roadhouse or other for a club sandwich," Winnie went on to explain. "One of the boys always pays for the food we order, and that helps little Winnie out on the expenses. I never could buy food for all the folks who come here for parties. . . . Did you have a club sandwich out at the Lollypop Inn?"

The Lollypop Inn! . . . For an instant Chatty was back in the little white inn with Dave Jordan, and he was holding her hands in his across a small, white covered table, and telling her how much he loved her. For an instant the heartache—the dull, leaden feeling that had been in her breast for days—came back.

"They sure do know how to make club sandwiches out there," Winnie was saying. "Three layers, chicken and bacon and . . . There's the door bell!"

As she dashed into the front of the flat the back door rang suddenly, too.

"Open the back door, Chat!" Winnie called over her shoulder. "That's probably the kid with the gin!"

Chatty gasped. The kitchen door was still half open, and against the darkness of the back porch stood—Pud!

Even before she saw him, Chatty knew it would be Pud.

He grinned when he saw her. His wide, boyish grin, that did its best to call her attention from the startled, guilty lok in his eyes.

"Yeah, it's me," he said, and came into the kitchen.

He was carrying a large, square parcel covered with heavy, brown paper in his arms, and he laid it down upon the sink.

"This is good, finding you here," he said, his grin fading from his thin, freckled face, and a too-old look coming into it. "You preach to me like a dry agent, about selling gin—but I notice you ain't too nasty-nice to drink it!" He wagged his head at her accusingly.

"I haven't drank any of it yet—and I'm not going to," Chatty told him, lifting her chin and looking him squarely in the eyes. "You know I never touch anything like that, and if I were you I'd rather beg nickels on the street than help Ben Tomlinson sell it!"

Afterward Chatty looked back on that talk with Pud in Winnie Talcott's kitchen as the dividing line between the life she had always led and the life she led for months from that point on.

Until that night, Charlotte Chatterton had been the nicest kind of a girl—"nasty nice," as Pud had called her.

She had not smoked or drank. She had not painted her face or done any promiscuous "necking."

The only person she had ever kissed was Dave Jordan, and she had kissed him, not for the thrill or the "kick" there was in it, but because she loved him with all her heart—and he had thrown her over, and made her deeply unhappy.

Unhappiness can, and does, do queer things to people.

To Chatty it did this. It made her afraid of being hurt and unhappy again, as she had been for the past two weeks. It made her want to forget her pain, and Dave Jordan along with it.

And so she was looking forward to tonight's party as people in bodily pain look forward to a sleeping powder or a drug to dull their agony . . . and in the same way she was waiting impatiently to see Bryant Dunning once more.

For she had almost forgotten Dave Jordan, and what he had done to her during that ride home with him the other night.

She knew that that was why she had said that she would come to Winnie's party tonight—because he was going to be there. Just as once upon a time she had gone to Billie's Sunday night supper party to meet Dave Jordan—Dave—

"Off with the old love

And on with the new.

Forget eyes of brown

In these sweet eyes of blue—" sang the radio in Winnie's little living room.

"Go and tell Miss Talcott I'm waiting for my money," said Pud, sulkily. "She knows doggone well she has to pay for this stuff right on the dot. But she always tries to get out of it. Women are fierce to do business with." He shifted impatiently from one foot to the other.

She found the front room filled with a group of the noisiest, gayest people she ever had seen or heard. Their voices, as they congratulated Winnie on her birthday, fairly drowned out the noise of the radio.

"Many happy returns, Winnie—"

"This isn't much of a gift, Win, but it shows I was thinking of you—"

"How about opening a little bottle?" asked Winnie, shouting at the top of her voice, to make herself heard. "Bootlegger's in the kitchen. What grand egg will go out and pay him?"

Jim Bowen said he would, and he dashed out to do it.

"Come here, Chat, and meet my gang," called Winnie, and Chatty smiled and nodded and repeated their names.

But her heart, that had been so light, was like stone all at once. She felt actually sick with shame that swept over her nauseating her.

"Bootlegger's in the kitchen," Winnie had said—

Bootlegger! A shameful name for a shameful trade. A law breaker, a criminal who had not yet been caught, and punished by the law.

Bootlegger . . . that was Pud! Her little brother.

That night Chatty took her first drink.

She took not only one. She took four of them.

It was hard not to drink at Winnie's parties, for drinking was the main event of the evening.

If you didn't "get tight" at Winnie's parties you never were asked there again, it seemed. "No dry agents around here!" Winnie told her, severely, pressing a glassful of the gin and orange juice upon her. "You just gotta take one glass, Chatty, to be a good sport. Just enough to get a little edge on."

So Chatty took the glassful of liquor, and drank it at one gulp, because she hated the raw, bitter taste of it.

"It's just like taking medicine," she said to Jim Bowen, who was patting her on the back and saying: "That's a good girl" over and over in a very silly way.

By the time Bryant Dunning arrived at 10 o'clock Chatty was the life of the party. . . . She had had another bitter cocktail, and she had discovered that she could say funny things that made the others laugh, and that the men all wanted to dance with her, and that life was suddenly just the rosiest, wildest thing. Well, it just was, that was all.

"Oh, boy! I'm on top o' the world, and the crest of the wave is carrying me straight to Mahoola!" she told Bryant, running up to him when she saw him come in.

He laughed in a puzzled way. "That's fine," he said. "Glad to hear it. I'll go right along with you—but I thought you never drank."

"Who tol' you a story like that?" Chatty demanded to know, hanging on to him because she was feeling a bit dizzy by that time—but very gay and peppy, nevertheless.

"I told him that, Chat," said Winnie, coming up to them with two glasses in her hands. "But I was all wrong, Bryant, the kid's reformed."

Chatty drank her third cocktail, standing there with Bryant, holding on to him with one hand while she tipped the glass to her lips with the other.

Five minutes later he poured another one for her, and another for himself, and they drank them, sitting on the kitchen table, side by side.

The kitchen was brightly lighted, but after a few minutes the lights began to look purple to Chatty. She scowled at them.

"Very peculiar!" she said aloud to Bryant, who didn't know what she was talking about. "And I am feeling—perfectly—elegantly—groggy—" It was hard for her to form the words with her lips, all at once. It was hard for her to think of what she wanted to say.

"Better not have any more of these things, sweet," she heard Bryant's voice, as if it came from miles away, low and faint. "You aren't used to them."

Sweet . . . who was it used to call her sweet? . . . Oh, sure, it was Dave Jordan . . . Dave . . .

"Well, he doesn't think I'm sweet now! Not on y'life!" she told Bryant Dunning, solemnly. She peered at him, trying to see him through the purple mist that seemed to be gathering about her. "He thinks I'm—absolutely—unspeakable—" And without any warning, she suddenly fainted dead away in his arms.

"Passed out!" shouted Jim Bowen, coming in for a drink.

"Your friend's blotto, Win!" called someone else, just behind him. "And how!"

It was noon the next day when Chatty opened her eyes in Winnie's bedroom.

She felt sick and faint, and as she dressed she had to steady herself by holding on to the dresser top every now and then.

It was half past one when she took her place at the switchboard in the office, and she had not been there more than two minutes before Bryant Dunning and Dave Jordan came in.

Bryant came straight across the room to her, and stopped beside her chair.

"I've just been telling Jordan what a good party he missed last night," he said, leaning close to her. "Do you feel better?"

Chatty nodded. "I feel fine. Did you tell him I passed out?"

Bryant said that he had.

"Don't tell anybody else," said Chatty. But secretly she was tickled to death because he had told Dave Jordan about her. She wanted to let Dave Jordan know that she was around having a good time—that she wasn't dying on the vine just because he had given her the go-by, by Jiminy Jinks!

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—New Yorkers who fret at high prices for theater tickets and become annoyed at the police commissioner's complicated traffic regulations in the amusement zone may find comfort in the assurance that New York was always like that. Back in 1736, before little George Washington ever thought of doing his mischievous work with the hatchet, the Park theater, down on John street, was our best temple of drama. Traffic was so heavy that extra police were detailed to handle it, and the street was made a one-way thoroughfare. Boxes cost $7.56, orchestra seats $5, and gallery seats $3.75—in English money, of course.

Age and Dirt

Two tourists were watching a swarm of bootblacks bathing in the pool beneath the statue of civic virtue in City Hall park. Their notice was attracted by one urchin, who seemed to be smaller, noisier and more active than all the rest. Said one of the visitors:

"How old do you suppose that kid is?"

"He can't be more than eight," said the other.

"Oh, but he must be," countered the first. "He couldn't have got that dirty in eight years."

Composite Art

A huge mural painting in a new building on Broad street was executed by a dozen obscure painters, many of whom, one is told, had only a hazy idea of what they were doing. Yet the painting is called an excellent piece of work by those who know about such things.

When the building was within 10 weeks of completion, the owners decided that the lobby should be decorated with a mural painting. They commissioned Griffith B. Coale, an artist. Mr. Coale looked the building over and found that he had been entrusted with decorating an area 225 feet in circumference and 17 feet high. But that sort of work is Mr. Coate's meat.

For seven weeks he sketched and planned—"A pageant of the History of Commerce by the Sea." And then he set his painters to work. Under the explicit directions of Mr. Coale, they would paint here and there, using colors specially prepared by their boss. The mural was done in three weeks—and a beautiful thing it is.

Silent Treatment

Some of the motion picture theaters have discovered that the talkies have discouraged the practice of petting among the audience. In the old days of the silent film, a youth and his girl might slip into a quiet, dark movie theater and hold hands or sit cheek to cheek in peace. It is a strange twist of psychology that talking figures on the screen destroy the sensation of privacy, and make petting more difficult. The more hardened cases, however, still continue to pet, and one theater which prides itself on the courtesy of the staff has found an effective way to break up off-screen love clinches. An usher merely stands at attention beside the offending couple. He doesn't speak, he doesn't move, and he does not even look at them. But in short time the petters become self-conscious, and break the clinch.

Seven Wonders

There has been considerable discussion recently as to what are the seven wonders of New York City. You may have read that an inquiry resulted in the following popular lists of "wonders:" the water supply system, the Woolworth building, the subway, the Metropolitan museum, Brooklyn bridge, the sky line and Grand Central terminal. But in a list that an outside newspaper offers, I find the following:

Ticket speculators, organized banditti who limit theater audiences to millionaires and traveling men with expense accounts.

Here is a tip for those visitors to New York who may have suffered unnecessarily from the ticket speculator: There are cut-rate agencies in the city where tickets can be bought at half price for at least 50 per cent of the shows that are running. The half-price rate does not apply to the few oustanding hits, of course, but there are always good shows in the list. If the casual visitor to New York will hunt up a cut-rate agency he will be surprised at the good entertainment which will be provided at a price that will seem ridiculously low when compared to the box-office schedule.

Air-Mindedness Of Dallas C.-C. Heads in Doubt

DALLAS, Aug. 9. (AP)—Some doubt as to the extent of the "air-mindedness" of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce's aviation committee, as well as that of other local business men, as it applies in the first person singular was seen here today.

It developed yesterday that the chamber's proposed aerocade trip to Sweetwater Saturday for airport dedicatory ceremonies had been called off, and a reservation for a 14-passenger airplane cancelled, because only one man, and he anonymous because he feared his wife might object, had asked for a place in the ship.

The aviation committee has 17 members, at least 16 of whom had remained aloft and unresponsive in this instance to the beauties of whirling along in the clouds.

Homer D. Wade, general manager of the chamber of commerce, was out of town. But C. J. Crampton, executive secretary, said "the business men of the city are supporting aviation all right, but they can't be blamed if their business prevents them from making this Sweetwater trip." There will be a number of planes going from Love field to Sweetwater for the celebration, anyway."

Chicago School Teachers' Salaries May Be Cut

CHICAGO, Aug. 9. (US)—School teachers tonight faced a hard winter. Because the school board today was advised that it must slash its budget by $10,500,000.

And this means a reduction in teachers' salaries, the closing of some schools, the curtailing of operations. Maybe one or a combination of all three.

H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board, declared that he favored a 20 per cent slash in salaries.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Vacationists' Relief Fund

(Copyright, 1929 by The Associated Newspapers)

Have you helped yet? Have you done your bit toward the great humane work of rescuing people from their summer vacations? Are you the sort of person who can remain unconcernedly in a city home while thousands of your fellow beings undergo all the sufferings of a summer vacation? For shame! For shame!

PHILLIPS

Vacationists are now being rescued and brought home at the rate of 360 a day, weather permitting, but unless the fund is materially increased at once many poor victims of summer resort literature will be compelled to stick out their vacations to the bitter end. Pathetic letters are coming in daily, all of which proclaim that the food is getting worse, the bathing places more and more congested and the summer hotel dance music worse and worse.

The treasurer now figures that $9 will bring home a full grown summer vacationist, and that by a special arrangement three can be brought home for $25. A check for $100, if any good, will rescue a round dozen, transport them to their homes and provide them with enough medicine to get over the vacation.

Most vacationists recover rapidly with a little loving care, but they must be carefully watched. Often a vacationist will be almost fully recovered when a mere mention of hot dogs, ice cream cones, clam chowder, soft-shelled crabs, red ants, flies or souvenir postal cards will cause a relapse. For that reason a little money is necessary to look after vacationists after their return.

This week an anonymous contributor sent in a Westphalian ham, a lady signing herself "mother" sent in a photo of her lost husband, asking that nothing be done to find him, and from "three little Ziegfeld girls" came a sweater with a card labeled "for the boys in France." (Evidently a lot of people are not reading the column all through in the hot months and do not know just what the fund is about.—Ed.)

A pathetic case called to the fund's notice today is that of Miss Dorothy X——, a charming young woman, who left the city 10 days ago for the mountains and who is now the victim of a nervous breakdown, brought on by the desperate battle to keep her white shoes cleaned. (Every girl and woman vacationist knows what an ordeal this is.) Thousands of women break down under the task every summer. Dorothy now lies in her bed daubing imaginary shoes by the hundred. She is a pathetic spectacle. Remember that nine dollars will bring her home, and, once she is back where white shoes are not worn, a speedy recovery is certain.

Send in your contribution today! The fund now stands:

Habeas Corpus Writ Asked by F. S. Lively

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 9. (UP)—Attorneys for Frank S. Lively, held in the Oklahoma county jail on a contempt charge growing out of a divorce case, filed application for a writ of habeas corpus in the supreme court today.

A similar plea was denied by the criminal court of appeals several days ago and no writ was issued after the attorneys had held a personal conference with supreme court commissioners.

STAPLETON AND BENNETT LEAD SPUDS TO WIN IN TENTH, 6-5

BENTON PLAYS SUPERB BALL

Payne Chucks Last Inning, Scores Season5s 19th

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

The wish doubtless being father to the thought, the sentiment recently has been expressed that the Spudders would "crack" when the going became rough. Such words were written by a scribe within the past day or two and appeared in a sheet not a thousand miles away. Whereupon, the Spudders went out Thursday and won in the ninth inning, and to further confound their most severe critics and NOT best friends, came from behind yesterday to win in the tenth.

By taking their second straight decision from the Houston Buffaloes by a 6 to 5 score, and thus winning their sixth successive pastime, the Wichita Falls athletes stepped out in front of their contenders, increasing their lead to two and a half games over the Fort Worth Panthers.

And what a game it was. Enough to make women faint and strong men weep. Trailing 5 to 0 in the eighth inning, the fighting Spudders, long noted as a great money ball club, scored three runs. Then they came back in the ninth to tally two more to tie the count, and to win in the tenth.

How Galloways Won

Bennett, first up in the Spudder tenth, dropped a hit into right-center and by fast and heads-up base-running stretched it into a two-base blow. He went to third on a passed ball. Sullivan and Hermann were purposely passed to fill the bases, the only move for Skipper Bailey to make under the circumstances. Stapleton, who had started the big ninth-inning drive, hammered a hit far over Taylor in left, and Bennett ambled home with the winning tally.

George Washington Payne was the fourth and finishing Spudder pitcher, after going the distance and winning Thursday, and is credited with the victory. It was the 19th win of the season for Payne against nine defeats.

Superb relief chucking was furnished by other Galloway tossers Paul Hopkins retired the hostiles in order in the only round he worked the ninth, and Lester White pitched steadily and most effectively for several innings.

White relieved Harold Wiltse in the first inning after the Buffs had got away to a big lead with three tallies that resulted from a trio of hits, two passes, and a sacrifice. Big Lester halted the Buffs in the first round when he went to the hill with two out and held the foe scoreless and to three hits, retiring them in order in three consecutive innings, until the eighth. Two runs with the aid of four knocks and another sacrifice were made by the Buffs in the eighth and he retired for a pinch hitter in that inning.

Rhem Weakens in Eighth

Flint Rhem, formerly of the St. Louis Cardinals but recently with Minneapolis in the American association, had the Spudders impotent at bat until the eighth. He had held the Spudders to three hits and in four innings turned them back in monotonous rotation.

Then the Spudders broke loose in the eighth with a smashing offensive of three hits and a base on balls for three tallies, and after scoring two more in the ninth with four hits, big Joe Brown replaced Rhem. Brown stopped the Spudders temporarily but they were not to be denied and the winning attack came in the tenth.

Brown is charged with the loss.

Red Bennett, leading the league in batting, again played a most heroic role. In addition to his double in the tenth that led to the winning run, Powerhouse hammered a two-base smack in the eighth at drove home two comrades, thus accounting for three runs. He also had another hit early in the pastime.

Benton Handles 12 Chances

Bud Stapleton, who started the ninth inning rally with a double besides driving home the winning tally, and Benton with three hits, two of them during the ninth and tenth innings, were other outstanding luminaries in the thrilling triumph.

Benton continued his great fielding with one of the most brilliant displays of shortstopping seen here in many of moon, during which he handled 12 chances flawlessly. Turgeon and Stapleton again also flashed some sparkling defensive play.

Roy Moore led the Houston attack, the big first sacker pounding three hits. Hunt and Miller banged a brace of blows apiece.

Both Clubs Fielded Erroriessly

The Buffs tallied three runs in the first inning. Bailey and Taylor were passed after one was out and Bailey scored and Taylor advanced to third on Moore's single to center. Blades' lift to Bennett scored Taylor and sent Moore to second. Hunt hit sharply to center, scoring Moore. Miller singled to center, Hunt going to third. White replaced Wiltse and Mancuso bounced to Benton, who touched second to force Miller.

The Spudders were retired in order.

Rhem started the second with a single but it was to no avail. The mighty Red Bennett continued his great hitting by starting the Spudder half with a single to center, but he was left at first.

Roy Moore led off in the third with his second hit, a single to center, but Benton and Turgeon had hands in the next three plays to avert further scoring.

Benton singled but two were out and he was left.

Fine Pitching

Mancuso opened the fourth with a hit to center but he got no farther. Rhem turned back the homelings one-two-three.

White was settled to his task in great fashion and the big boy set down the hostiles as they came up in the fifth.

The Spudders had something of a chance to score in their fifth but muffed it. Hermann led off by dropping a hit into short left but was forced by Crouch, Bailey to Hunt, for the second out. Bailey made a fast play in snatching White's grounder past Moore but first was uncovered. Both runners were stranded on the lines.

Houston again was retired in order in the fifth, with Benton and Stapleton flashing some fast work. Wichita Falls also failed to get on base.

For the third successive inning White baffled the Buffaloes in the seventh to the extent that nary a one of them got on base. The Spudders also continued the monotonous parade to the plate and back to the dugout.

Foe Adds Two More

The Buffs broke through to score two in the eighth. Taylor and Moore singled and moved up a base on Blades' hoist to Sullivan. Hunt hit to left, tallying Taylor; Moore stopping at second. Miller singled to center, scoring Moore. Turgeon, Benton and Stapleton made a double play on Mancuso's grounder to Rabbit.

Galloway resorted to pinch hitters. Bettencourt batted for Crouch and was called out on strikes. Lapan was substituted for White and walked. Benton beat out a tap to Hock. Turgeon forced Benton, Hunt to Bailey, Lapan going to third. Fitzgerald whanged a single to left, scoring Lapan; Turgeon stopping at second. Then Powerhouse Fred Bennett came through again like the great and courageous hitter he is, his double to left scoring Turgeon and Fitzgerald. The rally ended with Sullivan striking out.

Hopkins went to the hill and retired the hostiles one-two-three in the ninth.

Spudders Tie Count

Blades took Hermann's lift; Stapleton banked the right field wall for two bases; Goff batted for Hopkins and tapped a roller down the third base line that was fair, Stapleton going to third. Lapan crashed a sharp hit to center, scoring Stapleton and sending Goff to second. Brown replaced Rhem. Benton whaled a hot bounder that hopped over Hunt into center, Goff scoring the tying run, and Lapan going to second. Turgeon popped to Moore, and Fitzgerald fouled to Mancuso.

Payne tokk up the mound burden in the tenth and walked Moore with one out but Blades flied to Sullivan and Hunt, who had blasted two homers off George Thursday, fanned.

Andy Messenger and Jim Lindsay probably will be the opposing hurlers today in the third and final game of the series.

Robertson's Homer Wins For Denny Burns, 1 to 0

FORT WORTH, Aug. 9. (AP)—That old drama of baseball, "Cast-off's Revenge," broke Fort Worth's winning streak at eight straight here Friday afternoon.

It was Denny Burns, sold down the river to Beaumont this season, who twirled the Cats into submission.

A home run by Manager Claude Robertson furnished the margin for a 1 to 0 victory. Score:

The SPORTLIGHT

One Record, Anyway

Joe Sewell, the Cleveland shortstop, is still short of Deacon Scott's mark of 1,307 consecutive ball games, but for all that, the old Alabama collegian is the iron man of baseball—and the iron man of all competitive sport. Sewell went from Alabama, the home of the Crimson Tide, to New Orleans. Shortly after this Ray Chapman, the Cleveland shortstop, was killed and Sewell was rushed into the gap. Sewell joined Cleveland in September, 1920. He was then a youngster with little professional experience. He was supposed to be just a gap filler for the time being. But since that date Sewell has played 1,349 out of the last 1,351 games Cleveland has offered to the public and the only reason he missed those two days came from a shake-up to help plug a leak or check a slump. Sewell has missed only two days in nine years. If this doesn't make him the iron man of sport you can dig up the fellow who has more iron in his system. Baseball isn't a killing game, but if you don't think it is replete with accidents, illness and injuries ask any manager you happen to run across. Few ball players are able to figure in every game played through one campaign. If one thing doesn't hit 'em, something else does. A bad arm, a bad leg, a charleyhorse, indigestion, or maybe the pip arrives to toss them out of the lineup for a day or a week or a month. Scott and Sewell, two shortstops, have at least been the most durable men baseball has ever known.

Shooting for Perfection

Some years ago George Duncan made this remark: "I don't believe Bobby Jones will ever win a championship because he is too much of an artist."

"Meaning what?" I asked.

"I mean," replied Duncan, "that he isn't thinking in terms of results, but in terms of approaching perfection in play, as far as it is humanly possible. He plays nothing safe. Whatever the risk might be, he takes it. He never takes the percentage into account. He might save one stroke or lose two, but if the shot is to be played he goes for it."

Norris Williams, trying always for the perfect shot, was still another example of the same point. Williams still is. I recall one shot that Jones had at Skokie in 1922. He was neck and neck with Gene Sarazen and John Black, with only a few holes left. His long drive left him only a short pitch over a deep trap to the pin, that in turn was close to another trap back of the green. Jones could have chipped safely to the left for his par 4. He elected to pitch boldly to the pin on a hard, keen green and have a chance for his 3. The ball barely dribbled down the bank into a trap just a few feet past the pin and he needed a 6. He lost the championship by a stroke.

Duncan is much along the same line. I saw him once refuse to lift his ball from casual water. "It can be played here," he said, "and it makes a more interesting shot. There is a good bit more to golf that the score."

An Old Record

The old Cub record of 1906—116 victories and 36 defeats—will always look safe until some ball club actually beats it.

The Athletics still have a mathematical chance to slip by this mark made 23 years ago, but they can't afford to make many mistakes.

You can look at the standing of the clubs and figure just how many more defeats they can afford if there is any intention of turning in a new set of winning figures for big league baseball. And there are nearly two months left in which to keep up steam.

Loughran and the Heavyweights

A bystander wants to know what chance Tommy Loughran would have against Schmelling or Sharkey in 15 rounds.

There is only a slight chance that either could knock Loughran out, and if they couldn't knock him out, how could they outpoint a much better boxer? Loughran can outbox either Schmelling or Sharkey. He can't punch with Schmeling, but he has done about as much punching as Sharkey has done since his Dempsey fight. There has been no heavy cannonading from Sharkey against Heeney, Risko, De Kuh, Christner and Stribling in his last five fights. Sharkey looked like a good puncher against Maloney and Dempsey. In his other fights against the opponents named he might as well have used a feather duster.

Loughran undoubtedly deserves a crack at the heavyweight crown before any one else is awarded the toga. Maybe one of the others could beat him, but some one should be asked to prove it. As the case stands, you haven't heard any of the heavyweights clamoring for a chance to pop the Philadelphian over. If he could pick up a harder wallop he would be close to a cinch to finish in front. Even without the wallop he would be an even bet against any of the delegation now hanging around.

Loughran is fast, strong, smart, game and skillful. This happens to be a combination that few can laugh off.

Berlin Papers Say Schmeling Tricked

BERLIN, Aug. 9. (INS)—Max Schmeling, the German heavyweight invader of America has been "tricked," certain Berlin newspapers alleged today. In commenting upon cancellation of the Schmeling-Sharkey fight at Madison Square garden, New York city, these papers declared that "American boxers were afraid of the German pugilist."

The newspaper Tempo referred to "the Monroe (doctrine) principle of America for Americans." It asserted that the "Monroe idea, so dictatorially enforced by American presidents, is now applied to sports."

U. S. WOMEN WIN IN TENNIS

Helens Victors for 2 to 1 Lead Over British

WEST SIDE TENNIS CLUB, Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 9. (UP)—Red headed Helen Jacobs, husky, hardhitting California tennis ace, supplied the victory which gave the United States a commanding lead of two matches to one in the opening day's play of the seventh annual Wightman cup series against England before 6,000 spectators here today.

After Helen Wills had beaten Mrs. Phoebe Watson in the opening match, 6-1, 6-4, Miss Jacobs beat Betty Nuthall, rosy-cheeked British beauty and No. 1 player of the invaders, in a dramatic battle, 7-5, 8-6.

With four matches—three singles and one doubles—scheduled tomorrow, the United States needs only two victories to win back the Wightman cup which England captured last year at Wimbledon, four matches to three.

AMARILLO, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—Colman Barnhill of Amarillo, University of Texas tennis star and one of the favorites of the third annual tri-state open tennis tournament, won his first match handily today, defeating Earl Macy, also of Amarillo, 6-0, 6-2.

Tom McCarty of Wichita Falls won from Wayne Eubanks of West Texas State Teachers' college, Canyon, 6-4, 6-1.

In the women's singles, Frances McNeill of Amarillo beat Bonita Cazzell, one of the favorites, 6-4, 6-4, for the first upset of the tourney.

First Entry Received For State Tennis Meet

The first entry in the state tennis tournament to be held in Wichita Falls Aug. 16 and 17 was registered Friday when Lampasas notified C. C. Bunnenberg, city park superintendent, that that city would send two players to enter the junior singles and doubles events.

Other entries are expected within the next few days, Mr. Bunnenberg said. The meet is under the sponsorship of the Texas Amateur Athletic federation, whose seal and initials will be placed on the medals to be presented to the winners in each of the events.

Snore, and You Sleep Alone

When some people are sleeping they make a disturbing, rough, rasping sound through their nose or mouth which keeps the other members of the family awake and often awakens the snorer, himself. There are probably over a thousand and one different kinds of snorts and sounds made by different snorers, and the unmusical symphony of these sounds on a sleeping car is very disturbing to light sleepers, who toss about all night long waiting for the "bugle blowers" to cease.

The history of snoring is probably as old as the practice of those habits which have produced catarrhal disorders. It is not likely that Adam and Eve snored as long as they were in the celestial garden as they probably lived on fruits, nuts and succulent green vegetables. But we learn that after they were put out of the garden, Adam was forced to "earn his bread by the sweat of his brow." That is probably where the trouble first started. Anyway, one of the quickest and easiest ways to quit snoring is to cut out absolutely all starches, such as breads, and live on a cleansing, nonstarchy diet.

Besides the cause from general catarrh of the nose and throat, snoring is often directly caused by the growth of adenoids which obstruct the nasal passages, but even these adenoids are grown from the same irritation which produces nasal catarrh. In these cases the adenoids should be surgically removed, or reduced through a proper dietetic regime.

The noise of snoring is produced mostly by inhaling air through the mouth and thus vibrating the uvula and soft palate. Of course, no one does this when awake, and it is only when the catarrhal subject is asleep that he loses control enough to make the snoring sounds.

In some cases, even after the nasal passages are opened through curing the catarrh of the mucous membranes, the snorer will continue to snore. This is often due to habit which he has developed through years of snoring. In these cases it is sometimes advisable to fasten the mouth shut with a bandage until this habit is overcome and the patient develops the correct nose-breathing when asleep.

The quickest relief in the cure of snoring comes from taking a fruit fast for a few days. This is always the quickest way to get a start in the correction of catarrhal disorders. After a few days of the fruit fast the patient should use a careful diet, possibly of the non-starchy vegetables, with small amounts of such proteins as eggs, lean meats, fish and fowl. No strongly starchy foods should be used for some time, and no foods containing large amounts of sugar. Milk and cream should be entirely eliminated from the diet for a considerable period of time, as these foods undoubtedly encourage catarrhal trouble with those who have a sensitive tendency to such disorders.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Water-Drinking in Constipation

Question—H. J. writes: "I drink quarts of water a day and still I am constipated. Before moving here, my water drinking habit of eight glasses a day kept me in fine shape."

Answer—I am sure that the drinking of large quantities of water is often one of the causes of constipation and therefore cannot assist in its cure. If you drink more liquid than the body requires the intestines are discouraged in throwing out their lubricating fluids, and the result appears to be a gradual drying up of the intestinal fluids. To cure constipation, eat plenty of greens, exercise more, and cut down on the starches.

Celery

Question—H. G. F. asks: "Is celery good for young children and very old people?"

Answer—Well bleached celery is good for everyone. It never creates any digestive disturbances, and can be used by anyone who is able to use any kind of food at all. Be sure to get the kind that is well bleached, as this bleaching removes certain volatile oils that are irritating to the digestive organs.

Skin Has Darkened

Question—Jane asks: "Do you know of anything that would cause one's skin to turn from a white to a dark color? In two years my skin has become a dark brown, and I do not mean the popular sun-tanned shade. What can I do to get back a white skin?"

Answer—If you are not tanned from the sun, your dark skin is probably caused by some form of liver derangement. If this is so, take a fruit fast and then live on a careful diet. Take special exercises to stimulate your liver. Supplement these exercises by some kind of manipulative treatment over the gall-bladder and liver area.

HOW WET ARE CITIES OF U. S.?

Mrs. Willebrandt Further Tells of Struggle

three years they had evaded paying taxes and had built up such fortunes of magnitude that they owed the government the following amounts in taxes: One of them owed $1,300,000, that is the tax, not the money he made; another owed $280,000 in taxes, another $415,000, another $312,000, the others $72,000 and $33,000, respectively.

Evidence in the "Big Four" conspiracy case at Savannah, Ga., revealed the fact that in three years a ringleader of the bootleg industry derived such profits from the importation of liquor and other illegal operations that he was reassessed for income taxes in the sum of $1,243,254.29. Another owed $301,816.09. Lesser fry in the organization had dodged taxes ranging from $245,000 to $53,000.

Cities Have Money

Because of all this ready money and the great value of the city vote in elections, there has been a marriage between bootleggers and corrupt politicians.

With the liquor operations are often combined other big city "grafts." For instance, the United States attorney at Chicago recently called my attention to some accounts seized in the Chicago Heights raid. These records constituted the bookkeeping of income from slot machines only, and not from prohibition violations. The revenue over a period of three years, according to the books kept, was approximately $725,000 a year for these machines. This represented the result of slot machine operations in an area where there reside not more than $100,000 people, a small suburban city in the southern part of Cook county. The record sheets that were seized showed in detail the revenue from each machine, and the division of the profits among the five racketeers who controlled this form of lawlessness.

Still Hope

The district attorney, Mr. Johnson, said to me, "I have often wondered what the total figures might be, since there are about 4,000,000 people in this county, including Chicago, if every 100,000 population produced accordingly." We can only guess the aggregate profits from all the rackets in and near Chicago, but based on the spoils from slot machine operations alone, the total in a year's time, including revenue from bootlegging, the operation of disorderly houses, and protected gambling establishments, would amount to $25,000,000 or more a year.

With possible profits of such enormous proportions, it will be seen why the job of prohibition enforcement is one of such magnitude. And the fact that those tempted to engage in bootlegging and allied activities know very well that even if apprehended the congestion of court calendars probably will give them many months to temporize and use political pull, or in the end opportunity to plead guilty and be "rewarded" with a fine of only a few hundred dollars or a term of only three to six months in jail, explains why the forces of lawlessness never lacks for recruits.

But the chances for law enforcement in the big cities are far from hopeless.

Such men as Mr. Johnson, the United States district attorney in Chicago, and Roscoe Patterson, former United States attorney in Kansas City, Mo., and now senator from that state, and Haveth Mau, of Cincinnati, who sent literally two carloads (83) of city and county grafters to Atlanta, have proved that where there is determination to enforce the law, coupled with legal ability and high personal integrity, prohibition can be enforced like any other law to curb the operations of the criminal element of society.

Quick Money

The prohibition law has not given birth to any new element of lawlessness. It simply has attracted those who would in any event try to "beat the law" in some racket designed to make big money quick. The proof of this lies in the fact that the names of Al Capone and others of his gang run through cases involving all of the many rackets. The same men who are involved in Chicago in the trade union rackets—by which legitimate business or organizations are forced to pay tribute or have their places blown up and their employes slugged—are at the heads or in the ranks of the big liquor rings and involved as well in the slot machine graft, and the election fraud cases. The type of men who descend in a swiftly moving automobile on the garage which is the headquarters of a rival liquor gang and exterminates them with a machine gun is the same as those who kidnap the poll watchers of the opposition party on election day, take them to a deserted house and kill them with a volley from sawed-off shotguns.

And so, in Chicago, the United States attorney has not made war alone on the bootleg ring. With the cooperation of the state prosecutor, attack is being made, and successfully, on the whole army of the lawless.

The situation in Chicago exemplifies the difficulties in many other large cities. In the same county, are 92 smaller communities. To one of these, Chicago heights, there were 60 murders attributable in five years as a result of gang wars.

An Honest Politician

But when the wheel of political fortune brought into office an honest, efficient, and determined United States attorney, and a state's attorney of the same kind at the same time, law enforcement became far from a hopeless task. The information, and assistants of each prosecuting officer's staff were freely exchanged. There is a coordination of effort similar to the coordination and welding of the allied armies in the world war. When the forces of the law begin to work together, instead of at cross purposes or in an unrelated manner, results are achieved. The influence and investigations of the state's attorney secured the revocation of the licenses of 1,400 soft drink parlors, 2,854 speakeasies—places which had furnished a large part of the work for federal officers charged with prohibition enforcement. The United States district attorney, with his limited force of assistants and investigators, and with only one out of three federal judges available for trying criminal cases, could not hope to deal effectively with the racketeer gangs operating in the 92 smaller communities of the county. But the county attorney, with his larger staff and indirect control over thousands of police, sheriffs, and constables, could not only help to enforce the prohibition law but the state's liquor law, and the other laws of the state which supplemented or were akin to federal criminal statutes.

For instance, the federal and state forces can cooperate with each other in cases involving the stealing of automobiles, liquor cases, the robbery of drug stores and other places containing postoffice sub-stations, the possession or sale of narcotics, and robberies of or embezzlements from banks allied with the federal reserve system.

"Chee Chee" Dodges

Then too, when the state takes action where it has exclusive jurisdiction, such as in slot-machine gambling device cases, it often puts an end to joints which have also violated the federal prohibition law. And the crooks who always asked a jury trial in Chicago, knowing that the state or federal court docket was so crowded that such a request would bring about long delay, are now often disagreeably surprised to find that a federal charge is substituted for a state one, or vice versa, and the desire for a trial by a jury of peers is thus promptly "gratified," and promptness was anything but what they wanted.

For years, Kansas City, Mo., was notorious as one of the wettest spots in America. One of the principal factors in that situation was Frank (Chee Cheee) de Mayo, known far and wide as a "King of the Bootleggers." He operated not only in Kansas City; he supplied liquor through his organization to bootleggers in Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, and other territory. He was bold enough to maintain an office in a building, directly across the street from the federal building, the headquarters of the prohibition agents and the United States court!

His operations were so conducted, through lieutenants and go-betweens, that the regular force of prohibition agents could not—or did not—establish proof of De Mayo's own connection with the large scale bootlegging operations that were flooding Kansas City and the Southwest with liquor. De Mayo's spotters and tip-off men gave warning of every trap set for him.

The Law Closes in

But when Roscoe Patterson took charge of the situation, as United States attorney, he determined to bring Mayo to face the law. His first step was to secure the detail to Kansas City of the keenest men in the federal narcotic and prohibition investigating services. We exchanged many letters over this.

De Mayo, himself, seldom handled either the money or the liquor. He largely directed the operations of a big force of makers and distributors of alcohol and whisky. Those who wanted liquor for wholesale or retail distribution might see De Mayo once, and by him be placed in contact with the members of his organization who actually handled the liquor and received the money. That made actual evidence hard to obtain on him.

But the special investigators wormed their way into De Mayo's confidence and obtained definite proof of his own participation in prohibition violations.

Even after the evidence was gathered, the fight had just begun.

De Mayo was tried not once, but four times. Every legal obstruction was interposed in his behalf by a large staff of skilled lawyers. Three times conviction was prevented by the refusal of one or a few of the jurors to agree on a verdict of guilty. Then additional investigations were made by department of justice operatives whom I finally was able to get assigned to the work, as well as prohibition agents, and we secured evidence of attempted jury tampering.

The result was that when De Mayo was again brought to trial, the jury which had been carefully guarded from outside approach even before it was selected and sworn in, and which was sequestered during the trial brought in a verdict of guilty. De Mayo was sent to the penitentiary for three years.

Such a prosecution has a "moral effect" even more important than the immediate result of removing one man from active participation in violations. When the dozens of little bootleggers see their "king" go to prison in spite of the protection of political leaders and of a swarm of high priced criminal lawyers versed in every technical defense, the small crooks are frightened and either cease operations or seek other fields less dangerous. Furthermore the public is aroused to desire and back clean government.

It was the skill, ability, courage, and bull dog tenacity of the United States attorney in Kansas City, Roscoe Patterson, which brought the important De Mayo case to a successful conclusion. The skill and resourcefulness of the agents who investigated the case and furnished evidence for the indictment, would have been valueless without the services of a prosecutor determined to put guilty men behind prison bars no matter how often it might be necessary to the case to expose jury tampering.

Prohibition can be enforced in the big cities, if we can find more men of the type of Senator Patterson of Kansas City.

And such men can and will be found if political influence is disregarded or curbed by those who have the responsibility for appointments. Undoubtedly the cities are wet—but they are not hopelessly so.

(In her next article Mrs. Willebrandt will begin tracing the "big leaks," revealing the astounding abuse of the alcohol permit system and the power and corruption of the forces behind the alcohol steam-roller).

Two Deaths Laid To Cemetery Strike

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (UP)—Two men were found dead near cemeteries today, presumably as an outgrowth of the grave-diggers' strike for higher wages at Cavalry cemetery in Queens.

Stanley Zasadzinski, 40, one of 300 Cavalry cemetery grave diggers who walked out more than a week ago, was discovered shot to death. He was believed to have had an argument with strikebrakers, 200 of whom had been hired to bury bodies in trenches and such separate graves as they could dig.

The body of an unidentified young man believed to have been "taken for a ride," was found at the entrance of Evergreen cemetery. There were several bullet wounds in the back of his head.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—A continuation of yesterday's selling movement promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of beneficial showers in Northwest Texas was reflected by further declines in cotton today. December contracts sold off to 18.29 or 30 points net lower and 96 points below the high price of Thursday morning. Moderate rallies followed on covering, with December closing at 18.38 and with the general market closing steady at net declines of 18 to 28 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 8 to 14 points.

Prices worked off to 18.02 for October and 18.53 for March contracts during the afternoon, making net declines of about 27 to 31 points and in December contracts a decline of about 148 points from the high price touched late in July. Offerings tapered off somewhat at these figures, and the market showed indications of an improved technical position during the last hour, with prices showing rallies of about 7 to 10 points on covering.

Liverpool cables reported local and continental liquidation. Port receipts today 9,959. U. S. port stocks 517,706. Exports 9,102 making 53,669 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 9. (AP)—Cotton again declined today in moderately active trading. At the lowest values, it showed losses of approximately $1.50 a bale from yesterday's close. Selling on the weakness in stocks and reports of relief in the Texas drought section forced the decline with October contracts dropping to 17.93, or 32 points net down. The opinion rallied and closed at 18.01 for a net loss of 24 points.

Liverpool cables were 7 to 9 points lower than due. First trades here showed losses of 15 to 16 points. The advance in the re-discount rate from 5 to 6 per cent by the New York federal reserve bank added to the initial weakness which carried October to 18.09, December to 18.30 and January 18.35, or 15 to 17 points net down.

Towards the end of the first hour the market became steadier, but after recovering 5 to 10 points considerable selling developed. December traded at 18.17 and January 18.18, or 30 to 32 points below yesterday's close.

Shorts covered in final trading and last prices showed recoveries of 7 points from the lows, December closing at 18.24 and January 18.27.

Unexpected Advance in Rediscount Rate Causes Break on Stock Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (US)—Shock of the unexpected advance in the rediscount rate caused wide-open break in the stock market in a 5,000,000 share session today. Deluge of weak selling at the opening caused declines of from 3 to over 15 points. Increasing buying orders influenced rally after the first half hour but it was terminated by nervousness caused by refusal of the reserve authorities to make known action on the Chicago bank rate and many stocks closed near the lows of the day. Steel lost 7⅜, Can 9⅞ American & Foreign Power 11⅜, Auburn 19¾, Brooklyn Union 14, Consolidated Gas 8⅞, Macy 9⅝, and Westinghouse 10¾. Central lost 5¼, Atchison 8⅛ and other rails from 2 to 4 points. Allis Chalmers was the only stock to show advance with gain of 3 points recorded on one transaction. Baldwin new made its first appearance on the big board and held firm throughout. Call money was held at 8 per cent throughout.

From a high pressure press-agent policy that little group of powerful men known as the federal reserve board has descended to a policy of panic-inspiring mystery. It was not so much the advance in the rediscount rate that hurt the stock market as it was the method followed by the reserve in doing so. It's just about a month ago that a reserve governor strongly inferred the rate would not be raised. Then the only explanation made is that the reserve authorities decided on a "mutually satisfactory plan" to solve "certain peculiar conditions." The small man with stocks sees nothing "satisfactory" in the action, mutual or otherwise. The only "peculiar condition" he recognizes is that his savings, and perhaps his job, is threatened. The big holder of stocks believes it "peculiar" that his investment in industry can be threatened by a small group and wonders whether the "mutual satisfaction" is felt by international bankers or just by a group of laymen who are determined to govern the financial and business destines of the richest country of the world.

Individual stock influences were of little moment as the cloud of mystery was added to by the refusal of the reserve authorities to make known what action was taken on the rediscount rate at Chicago. However, inquiry of the most powerful interests in the market showed there was no change in their long-pull bullish feelings toward the rails, steels and automobile shares as well as the good utilities. After the opening deluge there was good scale absorption reported in the market for all these groups. Stocks mentioned in particular includes New York Central, New Haven, St. Paul, Atchison and Erie in the rails; U. S. Steel and Bethlehem in the steel group, General Motors, Hudson and Marmon in the motors and Consolidated Gas, National Power & Light, Electric Investors, Electric Bond & Share and American Superpower in the utilities.

Through the gloom of the street one ray of sunshine seeped through. It was in the form of a telegram from one of the most important bankers in the Northwest. He wired:

"If our business is anything to go by this country is very prosperous because we have never had so much buying of securtiies for cash as we have had the past 30 days. These purchases were made for people in Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho and Washington. Winter wheat crop in the Southwestern states is good. Damage by drought in Montana and North Dakota will probably be 40 per cent and in South Dakota and Minnesota 30 per cent."

The most interesting development of the day was cable advice from London telling how stock brokers stormed Sir Montague Norman's office and made him say whether the bank of England rate would be raised. He committed himself for only one week but the action should emphasize to security owners here that they have the right to full information as to the activities of our money powers. It would be a great aid to the suffering reporter of Wall street in trying to reach Governor Harrison of the reserve bank if E. H. H. Simmons, Colonel Prentiss and a few others would come along and demand answers to questions. Unless a congressional investigation is held that will be the only way the public will ever learn whether the reserve is influenced most by domestic or international affairs.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 9. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Killing classes of cattle found a moderately active outlet at most points around the 11-maket circuit. Choice 1,444-pound Missouri fed steers at Kansas City scored $16.35, indicating a fairly broad demand for highly finished heavy steers. Improved conditions at eastern dressed beef markets and much needed rain at various sections of the corn belt have given the cattle market a brighter aspect. A few grass cattle were received out of the Northwest this week.

Receipts were estimated at 9,900 against 7,148 a week ago and 11,159 the corresponding day last year.

Demand was fairly broad for fat lambs at firm to 25c higher prices. Closely sorted native lambs in Chicago scored $14.10, and best westerns went at $13.85. Several points on the river obtained $13.60 for range lambs. The supply approximated 28,200, a decrease of 10,500 from last Friday and 6,500 short of a year ago.

Considerable unevenness prevailed on hogs. Shippers purchased freely of the lighter weights at steady to 15c higher prices. Packers were bearish at values barely steady with Thursday's average. DRYGOODS MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (AP)—Cotton goods were quiet today as the market readjusted itself to a prospective 15,543,000 bale crop and easier cotton values. Curtailment for August was proving effective, and sales exceeding production. Large shipments, increased unfilled orders, and decreased stocks reported for July, were convincing arguments for firmer prices. Jute spot and afloat holders asked 10-point advances in a more active market. Wool goods markets openings of staple lines show 2½ to 5 per cent declines from fall levels. New York spot raws were quiet and firm with business confined to spot buying. Silk fabrics for fall were quiet.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 9. (AP)—Grain traders appeared more impressed today by likelihood of a stimulating crop report from Washington than by effects of price breaks in the stock market. Evening-up transactions to prepare for the government's August crop summary due after the close helped wheat and corn values to rally from early setbacks. The summary, when issued, proved to be decidedly bullish as to corn, showing 13,000,000 bushels less yield than the average of private estimates, but the official figures on wheat were 7,000,000 bushels above the unofficial forecasts.

Closing quotations on wheat were steady, ¼c off to ⅛c up compared with yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ⅜c decline to ⅝c advance, oats unchanged to ¼c setback, and provisions a shade to 12c down.

Wheat prices here underwent a material downturn as a result of selling that was associated with acute weakness of the stock market and with Liverpool wheat quotations much lower than were due. However, Chicago wheat values made a quick re-bound.

Independent strength shown by the corn market, with the East outbidding Chicago for corn at country stations also to make grain traders forget to a surprising extent the course of stock exchange quotations. Besides, rural marketing of winter wheat was letting up decidedly, arrivals of wheat at primary points today totaling but 3,981,000 bushels against 5,186,000 bushels a week ago.

Curtailment of the government estimate of corn yield was commented upon as reflecting deterioration of the crop in parts of the corn belt owing to extreme heat and dry weather late in July. Oats production as officially reported is 9,000,000 bushels under the average of private estimates.

BISHOP CANNON OFFERS FACTS

Tinkham's Charges Draws Churchman's Reply

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9. (UP)—Bishop James Cannon Jr. of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has written Attorney General Mitchell offering any information which he desires concerning Cannon's contributions to financing of the anti-Smith movement in Virginia last year. The bishop's letter was prompted by the suggestion of Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts, to the justice department that it investigate the matter.

"The total amount of these loans Mr. Tinkham declared aggregated during the entire period more than $27,000," Cannon said. "Mr. Tinkham knows full well that the records show that the largest amount loaned at any one time never equalled one-half that amount."

He charged Tinkham's attack was designed "to convince his wet Roman Catholic constituency that he should be retained as their representative in congress."

GRAND JURY TO PROBE ARSON

Deaths of Firemen to Be Investigated

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 9. (AP)—A special county grand jury was called here today to convene Tuesday to hear evidence in support of first degree murder charges against four men alleged to have been responsible for the death of three firemen in an arson plot.

Arch Glover, Durwood Dailey, John L. (Pat) Crowe and D. L. Piggott are the men now held without bond. They were arrested following a fire Monday which destroyed a drug store. The firemen were killed by an explosion while fighting the fire.

James R. Page, county prosecutor, said he was confident of indictments. He expected to place Grover, alleged "brains" of the plot, on trial here the week of Aug. 26.

CRASH HURTS TWO

FIRING HEARD IN MANCHURIA

Bombardment Believed Just Demonstration

TOKIO, Aug. 9. (AP)—Advices to Rengo News Agency from Manchuli, Manchuria, said the sound of heavy bombardment from the direction of Matsievskaya had been heard since 7 a. m. today. The inhabitants were much alarmed. It was believed here, however, to be no more than a Soviet demonstration.

Rengo News Agency dispatches from Manchuria said there had been a Soviet "artillery demonstration" at Pogranichnaya, at the eastern terminus of the Chinese Eastern railway. The government had received neither official nor unofficial reports regarding the alleged fighting, however.

Although the press dispatches indicated an increasingly threatening situation officials sources were inclined to discount much of what was reported as baseless rumor.

Reports of breakdown of negotiations arising out of seizure of the Chinese Eastern railway were not regarded seriously since, as understood here, the negotiations have been simply long distance telephone conversations by which the Chinese plenipotentiaries have endeavored to initiate conversations with Soviet representatives.

Sino-Russian antagonism in Manchuria has increased greatly, almost overnight, however, and reports from Harbin, Mukden, Manchuli, and other centers today indicated definite danger of serious developments.

Al Capone Given Change of Scenery

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9. (UP)—"Scarface Al" Capone, Chicago gang leader, today enjoyed a change of scenery and feels more or less at ease again.

Yesterday Al secretly was transferred from Holmesburg county prison, where he and Frank Kline, his bodyguard, were sentenced to a year's imprisonment for carrying concealed weapons, to the eastern penitentiary.

The reason given out by prison officials was that Holmesburg was overcrowded, but the "grapevine" of the underworld "had it straight" that Capone's safety had been threatened at the county jail. No other prisoners, it was pointed out, were transferred to relieve the overcrowdedness.

RAIDERS JAIL WOMAN OF 60

Aged Burk Resident Held On Beer Charges

A 60-year-old woman faced a second charge of possession of beer Friday afternoon when Warren Belcher and George Garrett, deputy sheriffs, raided her home in Burkburnett and seized 310 bottles of beer and 16 gallons of beer mash. Charges of manufacture and possession of beer, with a second offense clause in connection with the possesion count, will be filed against her Saturday before United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz.

The old woman lives alone in the little Burkburnett house. The deputies found 100 bottles of the beer hidden in a mattress on a bed, and the rest carefully secreted in various parts of the house. The elderly prisoner protested violently against her arrest, declaring that she made the brew for her own use. She spent Friday night in the woman's ward of the Wichita county jail. Mr. Belcher said she has already paid one fine after conviction in the federal court for the possession of beer.

Student Leaps From Third Story During Nightmare

TROY, N. Y., Aug. 9. (US)—While riding a nightmare early this morning, a six-foot student of Rensselaer Polytechnic, did these things in swift succession:

Leaped from a window of the third floor of a fraternity house.

Smashed a wooden shutter projecting from the first floor without awaking.

Fell on the concrete pavement, still asleep.

Jumped over an ashcan, still riding the nightmare, and entered a shed where several students were sleeping.

They wakened him and rubbed liniment on his few bruises after which he walked upstairs, dressed and reported for summer classes.

McKenney to Speak At Arkansas Assembly

Dr. S. S. McKenney, pastor of the First Methodist church, will be one of the speakers at the summer assembly of the Southern Methodist church which is now in session at Mount Sequoyah, Ark.

Doctor McKenney, with his family, left Friday for the Ozark region of Arkansas, in which Mount Sequoyah is located, expecting to be absent from this city during the remainder of the month of August.

On the program of the summer training assembly, he will deliver eight lectures on the life of Christ, basing his discourses upon the book of Mark and the first epistle of John. The four lectures on the latter book will be on the subjects of life, light, love and liberty.

Calvery Wins Award In Insurance Suit

Judge Allan D. Montgomery Friday entered an agreed judgment of $2,400 for W. W. Calvery against the Texas Employers Insurance association in the 30th district court at Archer City.

Mr. Calvery was appealing from a workman's compensation award growing out of an automobile accident in Archer county several months ago. He claims to have suffered permanent injuries when the car in which he was driving from one oil field location to another overturned. The $2,400 judgment was awarded in a lump sum instead of the weekly payment alloted by the former award.

Oil Well Still Ablaze In Beaumont Field

BEAUMONT, Texas, Aug. 9. (AP)—Fire raged today in the Republic Production company's Dolbear No. 68 well in the Hull Oil field. The blaze started Tuesday and all efforts to extinguish the flames have proved unavailing. The well came in Monday evening and was ignited the following morning from a spark from a light switch.

U. T. Land Leasing Board Plans Survey

AIR NAVIGATION IN FOG STUDY PLAN FOR FLYERS

BOSTON, (INS) — Intensive studies in aerial navigation in fog are now being planned by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at the recently enlarged airport on the Col. E. H. R. Green estate at South Dartmouth, Mass.

Facilities at the field have been improved to enable the handling of the Goodyear Zeppelin Mayflower, now being operated in the course of experiments. Studies in fog navigation and short wave radio communication were started at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology research station several years ago but the acquisition of the Mayflower for purposes of experimentation is expected to advance the work considerably.

◇ ◇ ◇

Whatever the talkies may or may not have contributed to art, one more word has been added to the vocabulary of the average American—synchronization. One year ago it was a scientific term. Today it may apply to anything from a breakfast menu to an oil painting.

◇ ◇ ◇

The glamour of the big city has been enhanced by a symphony of sound like unto that of the synchronizing orchestra. Raucous automobile sounds, the shrill cries of newsboys, the hubbub of a mob—all these are blended into a harmonious melody. Perhaps city councils who try to curb annoying noises in public places would do well to study orchestral methods in the newest talkie studios.

◇ ◇ ◇

All automobile horns might be in the key of F, for instance. Different notes of the triad chord could be combined in different ways to distinguish one's own particular honk.

'Youngest Generation' Drinks Hard, Sneers at Mencken, and Spurns Freud

The Rev. Dr. Fosdick Was All Wet When He Said the Lads Drink Less, Campus Observer Says; Are 'Smarties' Now

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (UP)—College students are drinking more than they did before prohibition, the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick to the contrary notwithstanding, according to Jesse Lynch Williams, author and authority on American college life.

Three hundred and six students drink for every 61 teetotalers, on an average, Williams estimated from his investigations. In a poll at Princeton—of favorite beverages, the senior class stood or leaned. 8 to 1 against prohibition and the "favorite beverages" balloting totaled whisky, 104; beer, 79; milk, 3.

Red Book Story

These and other figures will be cited in an article in the September Red Book Magazine by Williams to sustain the Williams contention that Dr. Fosdick was sermonizing through his hat when he said that the flowing bowl was yanishing from college life because of the eighteenth amendment.

The falling-off in beer preference at Princeton was a great disappointment to many of the old grads, who had confidently expected beer to come out ahead of hard liquor in any Princeton poll. But Williams does not pause to dally with the ramifications of this shocking development. He rushes on to defend college students, as he has recently observed them, and in so doing manages to be even more shocking than he originally intended.

'Youngest' Generation

Perhaps it should be recalled at this point that Williams is a literary celebrity of such calibre and presence that he is often invited to come to colleges and just sit around and let the student body get a glimpse of him. While being looked at, he has also done some looking and listening. What he observed, aside from an allegedly growing tendency to regard whisky as a polite beverage, is enough to chill the blood of oldsters.

The "youngest generation"—as Williams calls them to distinguish them from the late lamented "younger generation"—are a queer lot and one that will be hard to handle.

He finds them, at their age, more studious, serious and less defiant than the one which followed the war.

"Distinction between good taste and bad, recently banished, are returning," he says. "Not so many of the boys are drunk and disorderly at private dances. It is no longer funny to break the hostess' furniture."

Dancing Now Decent!

The literary sage also noticed that dancing "is decent" in many places. "You can sometimes see the light between partners," he asserts.

No one could see the light between partners in the old days of a year or two ago, and no one wanted to. It would have spoiled the story. But Williams has observed greater portents of impending calamity.

"H. L. Mencken is no longer their god," he says boldly. "Dean Gauss of Princeton tells me that the boys never mention Mencken's name now, except to smile at his vehemence in a manner of saying: "Why so hot, little man?" as one of them remarked to me: "A blunderbus firing noisy shots into corposes."

Freud Is 'Old Stuff'

And Freud is "old stuff" now and no longer the fashion. The newest generation has Freud pigeonholed as a "great scientist but not the only one."

There may be a suspicion that Williams gets some faint, even Freudian glimmer of happiness out of the attitude of the new college boy towards Mencken, but even so, if what he says is a fact, it means that the new crop of undergraduates are going to be slippery customers and hard for their elders to handle. A generation that snickers at Mencken is bound to laugh out loud at Mencken's targets and be too smart-alecy in general to be lived with comfortably.

MORE STOPS

20 New Traffic Regulators to Be Placed On Harrison St.

Twenty new type surface stop signs were received by the city Friday and will be placed at intersections on Harrison street within the next few days, it was announced Friday by W. B. Ward, city purchasing agent.

The signs are made of heavy rubber with the word "stop" in raised red rubber letters on the surface. The sign is of solid rubber and is claimed to be more durable than the old type rubber sign. They are set in a metal base, so constructed that the base may be removed from the street surface and a new rubber sign inserted when traffic has worn out the original insert.

BOY BANDIT GIVEN TERM

Minister's Son to Be Sent To Reformatory

Eugene Myers, 15-year-old preacher's son who has confessed to stealing an automobile and using a pistol to furnish it with gas throughout a race across Texas, may spend one year or seven in the state training school for boys, according to his own behaviour.

Judge Allan D. Montgomery, sitting in the 30th district court at Archer City, gave the boy an indeterminate sentence extending to his 21st birthday, the length of the term to depend upon his reaction to the training in the school.

Letter From Father

The sentence was imposed after Judge Montgomery had been told of a letter from Eugene's father, the pastor of a church in Dodge City, Kan. The minister had written authorities in Mason county, where young Myers was arrested, that they would "have to do their best with him."

"I have tried everything I know. The law will have to take its course," the father is quoted as having written.

The boyish prisoner received his sentence and the advice of Judge Montgomery without comment. He was reported in high spirits after he was returned to the Archer county jail.

In his statement to Judge Montgomery Thursday, Myers said he stole an automobile belonging to Sam Gibbs in Wichita Falls on July 31, stole a pistol, and then headed for Old Mexico. Three times he stopped and used his gun to obtain gasoline for the stolen car, he told the court. When Kimbell county officers tried to stop the car, he kept on driving and dodging their bullets, the boy added.

After Myers' arrest in Junction City, local officers drove the stolen car back to its owner here. Myers himself was indicted by the Archer county grand jury early this week and brought back to trial on a bench warrant signed by Judge Montgomery. His training school sentence is to begin at once.

Hangmen at Loss For Spot to Put Death Scaffold

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 9. (AP)—Denied use of either the roof of Broward county jail or the court yard, federal authorities today were without a place to erect a scaffold and gallows for the hanging of Horace Alderman, convicted slayer of three government officials in a sea fight off the Florida coast in 1927.

Under an order of Federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter, Alderman must hang Aug. 17 on the roof of the county jail. County officials, however, have demurred on the grounds that the roof of the jail is bonded by a roofing company and that use of it in this manner would cause the bond to be voided. The government, as second choice, asked if a scaffold and gallows could be erected in the courthouse yard, and this request was turned down.

Meanwhile, two county commissioners have interposed objections to the hanging on county property when two government reservations, one the coast guard base and another an Indian reservation, are nearby.

She first became known in Oklahoma when police learned she was in a car with Wyley Lynn, prohibition agent, when he killed Bill Tilghman, pioneer officer, at Cromwell.

History of War of 1812 Written In 1815 in A. Zundelowitz Collection

Samuel R. Brown's Narrative Gives Picture of War Seldom Obtainable in Most Extensive Libraries

By W. L. UNDERWOOD

Students of the Zundelowitz Junior high school beginning next month will have access in their library to intimate pictures of action in the British-American war of 1812 which are probably available in few cities of the United States.

Among the books recently sent from the A. Zundelowitz collection to Lester Jones for presentation to the school which bears the name of the former Wichita Falls philanthropist is a well-preserved, leather bound copy styled "An Authentic History of the Second War for Independence," volume 2, by Samuel R. Brown. The book was published at Auburn, N. Y., in 1815, by J. G. Hathaway, the printers being Kellogg and Beardslee. It is included in a group of about 30 volumes sent by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cowan, Santa Monica, Calif., in accordance with Mr. Zundelowitz' request.

Vivid Action

Written from the standpoint of a participant and observer, and enriched by extensive use of U. S. army files almost before the ink was dry, the history presents a picture of the war entirely different from that contained in general histories which of necessity find a place in public school curricula. No effort is made by the author to set the struggle in a frame of world events, for evaluation of its international significance, but the action is vividly reproduced from a purely local standpoint on the various fronts.

So great is the renown of John Paul Jones, Hull, Lawrence and other naval heroes of that brief struggle that the war of 1812 is usually thought of as one of the sea. Brown's history throws the spotlight of recognition upon persistent land campaigns which were more fruitful of valor and heroism than of outstanding battles.

Swinging over a battlefront 4,000 miles in length, the reader will be impressed with the amazing development of the United States territorially during the quarter-century following the close of the revolutionary war. In 1783 Washington lead the armies of 13 seaboard colonies. In 1813, the United States defended its sovereignty on a northern front extending from the present site of Chicago almost to the mouth of the St. Lawrence; and eastern front extending from Maine to Florida, and a southern front extending from Florida to Texas.

Campaign Abandoned

A degree of youthfulness as remarkable as its territorial extent characterized the new nation's warmaking in the second encounter with England. Campaigns, battles, skirmishes repeatedly were rendered ineffective because of the partizanship which at times threatened to make impossible any united effort of American arms. A well-laid campaign designed to sweep down the St. Lawrence to Montreal in the fall of 1813 had to be abandoned because Major Hampton refused to join his New England troops to the remaining forces, which represented largely New York and Pennsylvania militia. From Brown's description of the war on land, the gradual unification of interests against the pressure of a persistent invader may be regarded as one of the definite benefits derived by the United States. A prolonged period of intensive training early in 1814, when the principles of Napoleon for infantry maneuvers were thoroughly instilled in the American leadership, played a large part in the success of that year's movements.

The nature of the country in which fighting on the northern front was carried on is interestingly revealed by the inclusion of a company of axemen in each battalion. Cutting a path for the army through areas which were almost solidly in timber constituted the principal duty of the axe-equipped engineering unit.

Washington Respected

Correspondence between Secretary of War John Armstrong and the various commanding officers reveals the respect with which they looked back at the military genius of George Washington. In giving counsel relative to a strategical problem confronting a field officer, Mr. Armstrong cited Washington's conduct at Trenton, after having crossed the Delaware river, and in effect said: "Remember how Washington handled a similar situation. Follow his example."

Horror Reflected

The historian frequently reflects the horror with which Americans regarded outrages of Indian warfare which were attributed to English approval of such methods on the part of their allied savages. The discovery of a white girl's scalp hanging in the office of a British officer was recorded with bitter resentment. British officers were charged with participation in the mutilation of prisoners, who were taken in ambush. The officers on this occasion "painted like the Indians, with streaks of red and green around their eyes!"

Individual exploits and deeds of heroism are described numerously and in fascinating detail. Rivalling the feats of Dumas' sensational three musketeers is the escape of one Major Cyrenus Chapin, who was among 29 prisoners held by the British at Burlington heights, on Lake Erie. The body of prisoners was placed in two boats in command of 16 British soldiers for transfer to Kingston, another English stronghold. The historian continues: "When arrived off York, in the afternoon of the first day, the major (Chapin) gave a concerted signal for his men to rise and take the boats—which was instantly and successfully attempted. A British officer in one of the boats attempted to draw his sword; Major Chapin seized him by the neck and threw him on his back; two of the British soldiers drew their bayonets upon the major, who seizing both at the same instant, threw them on top of the officer, and held all down together. In the meanwhile his men had succeeded in disarming the guard. Major Chapin then changed the direction of the boats, and arrived safe at Fort George after rowing hard all night."

Communications from different line officers to their superiors, and from the generals to the war department, were profuse in expressions of praise for subordinate officers and enlisted men who had performed heroically. These efforts of the military to build up a morale were at least partially purposed to take the place of public support which appears to have been questionable.

Following more than a year of ineffectual skirmishing, the British and American forces met in "The Battle of the Cataract," near Niagara Falls, on July 25, 1814, in a conflict the importance of which impressed the writer of this history, who writes: "No battle of the war, perhaps none in the annals of the world can compare with this in the horror and awful grandeur of its character." Challenging the fearsome qualities of Napoleon's greatest battles, he continues: "In no instance elsewhere did the defeated party return three several times to the charge over the dead bodies of their companions; and this in the gloom of night. Here the conflicting armies closed at the moment the light of day was yielding to the empire of darkness. . . . Nearly two-third of the American troops were either killed or wounded. Almost every officer of distinction was wounded. An equal or greater loss fell on the enemy. What a scene of carnage must the battle ground have presented!—The superior numbers of the enemy enabled them to renew the attack until our troops were reduced to about one-third of their original number. Yet like a granite wall they remained immovable amid repeated shocks and surrounding horrors—they waded in gore to victory.

"The scales of victory for many hours were doubtfully suspended— . . . until at length the God of battles and the divinity of fortune crowned our arms with glorious success. The American soldiers, flushed with the pride of recent triumphs over the boasted conquerors of Europe, showed to tyrants and to the world how unavailing is the most perfect order of slavish discipline opposed to the resistless impetuosity of republican valor."

Detailed accounts also are given of the repulse of England's combined land and water forces at Plattsburg, on Lake Champlain, and the scattered attacks by British ships along the Atlantic coast. Washington was destroyed, and Baltimore threatened. Then New Orleans, General Andrew Jackson, and soon the termination of the war.

Brilliant victories of the "Constitution," the "Wasp," the "Essex," the "United States," the "Hornet," and others over line ships of the British navy are given intimate treatment in Brown's history.

ROBBERIES GET LARGER HERE

Two Raids Net $135 In Loot, Police Learn

Two robberies reported at police headquarters Friday gave indications that the wave of petty thefts which struck Wichita Falls several days ago may develop into more serious proportions. Previous to Friday, the stolen property records had held no reports of thefts of more than a few dollars for about two weeks.

An electric drill, valued at $195, was stolen from the warehouse of the Reed and Costley company on Burnett street near the water plant, it was reported Friday. A smaller drill, taken from the place, was recovered and was said to have been stolen by two young boys. No trace of the larger drill has been found, officers said.

Matilda Duke, colored, reported that her house at 113 Lake street had been burglarized Thursday night and about $45 in cash, a gold brooch set with a ruby, three stick pins, one Shrine pin, several old coins and deeds and other papers had been stolen. Officers are working on both cases.

Bank's Officials Are Charged With Robbery

NEW YORK, Aug. 9. (UP)—Manager Joseph V. Price, 43, and Teller August C. Siegmann, 41, of a branch of the United States bank today were charged with robbing the bank of $111,000 or more.

The shortage was discovered after a girl clerk became suspicious when Price was asked to explain a depositor's account which was out of balance. Siegmann was on his vacation at this time and the girl reported the incident to the president of the bank, B. K. Marcus.
