MDC increases Orbital Outfitters incentive

Additional $1 million to compensate for rising construction costs

By Joseph Basco
jbasco@mrt.com

The Midland Development Corp. on Friday added $1 million to the maximum allocation for Orbital Outfitters' new headquarters at Midland International Airport as local construction costs continue to rise.

The board voted to amend the original $2.2 million set aside for the construction of Orbital Outfitters' facility to include an additional $1 million, which makes the incentive up to $3.2 million. MDC also agreed to provide $3.2 million for an altitude chamber complex and $1.5 million for salaries and relocation costs in the incentive package to move Orbital Outfitters from California to Midland, as previously reported.

Robert Rendall, MDC board chairman, said the building originally was going to cost $100 per square foot, but the cost of construction in the Midland area increased more than anticipated.

"We beat the cost down every way we can, and it's going to come in higher than ($100 per square foot)," Rendall said.

The new cost estimate for the 22,000-square-foot headquarters is in the $150-per-square-foot range, though the actual price may turn out to be less than $150 per square foot, Rendall said.

MDC also began negotiating with a new contractor after the original contractor was unable to obtain a bond to secure its obligations. The new contractor will have to seek out bids from subcontractors, Rendall said.

Orbital Outfitters is one of two aerospace companies MDC is working with to relocate to Midland. XCOR Aerospace was the original company with an intent to move to the airport after MDC provided a $10 million incentive package in 2012.

Both space companies will occupy the spaceport at

Hazardous house gets demolished; more houses to fall

From staff reports

A crew went to work Friday to demolish this home — at the intersection of Main Street and Kansas Avenue — which the city of Midland deemed a public hazard. The city's Code Compliance Division regularly scouts for dilapidated properties and notifies the property owner of pending demolition if the home is not refurbished.

In April, city building official Steve Thorpe said the 12 dilapidated buildings that the City Council was voting to demolish had boarded up windows, holes in rooftops and unkempt yards. At the April 22 council meeting, some property owners said they were willing to improve their property to avoid demolition.

"There are people that are legitimately trying to repair (the buildings)," Thorpe said in April. "But we don't want it to be a smoke screen. They may get a permit to keep us away from them for six months."

The owner of the Kansas Avenue home contracted for the demolition, Thorpe said on Friday.

Midland unemployment continues its summer slump

■ Rise is result of increased labor force, students and graduates seeking jobs

By Mella McEwen
mmcewen@mrt.com

Midland's labor market continued its summer slump, with June employment rising for a second month.

The Texas Workforce Commission said Friday that Midland's June employment rose to 2.9 percent from 2.6 percent in May but remains below the 3.7 percent reported last June. Midland continues to report the state's lowest unemployment, followed by Odessa with 3.6 percent and Amarillo at 4 percent.

"Midland had a seasonal bump," said Willie Taylor, chief executive officer for Workforce Solutions Permian Basin, pointing to monthly job declines in the education and health services sector, which lost 100 jobs, and the government sector, which lost 200 jobs between May and June.

Taylor said the state followed a similar trend, with the seasonally adjusted rate of 5.1 percent remaining unchanged from May, ending a three-month trend of falling unemployment.

"The workforce really surprised me with its growth," he said.

Midland's civilian labor force increased by 1,200 — from 97,016 to 98,234 between May and June. That number could continue to rise as companies like Schlumberger expand their Permian Basin operations. The company expects its number of employees in the region to increase from 2,800 to 3,000 by the end of the year and the number of employees at its new headquarters to increase from about 250 to 300 in the near future. Schlumberger celebrated the opening of its Permian Basin headquarters on Wednesday.

"We need more resources in the Permian Basin," said Robert Drummond, president of Schlumberger's North America division. He said the company likes to hire as many local residents as it can find. But, he said, "we will recruit

Court overturns Okla.'s gay marriage ban

New York Times News Service

DENVER — A federal appeals court here on Friday struck down a second conservative-leaning state's voter-approved ban on same-sex marriage, ruling that Oklahoma could not deny gay couples their "fundamental right" to wed.

The 2-1 decision came less than a month after the same panel of judges for the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals decided that Utah's ban violated same-sex couples' constitutional rights to equal protection. It was another legal victory for gay couples as a range of legal challenges to state bans on same-sex marriage edge toward the U.S. Supreme Court.

As in the Utah case, the panel of three judges — two Republican-nominated and one Democratic-nominated — were once again asked to weigh the constitutionality of same-sex marriage prohibitions that had passed with overwhelming voter support.

Lawyers for the Tulsa County clerk, who was the lead defendant in the case, argued that limiting marriage to one man and one woman sought to reinforce traditional family bonds and encourage the raising of children by their biological parents. The judges rejected that view.

"Oklahoma's ban on same-sex marriage sweeps too broadly in that it denies a fundamental right to all same-sex couples who seek to marry or to have their marriages recognized regardless of their child-rearing ambitions," Judge Carlos F. Lucero wrote in the court's majority opinion. "Oklahoma has barred all same-sex couples, regardless of whether they will adopt, bear, or otherwise raise children, from the benefits of marriage while allowing all opposite-sex couples, regardless of their child-rearing decisions, to marry."

As in the Utah case, Lucero, who was nominated by President Bill Clinton, wrote much of the opinion and was joined by Judge

Stolen commemorative pistol returned to couple

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — For more than 20 years, Bob Bybee held on to the wooden boxes that once held two commemorative Colt .45 pistols made in honor of U.S. Navy battleships.

They were all that was left after a 1992 burglary at his office on North Frankford Avenue.

Thieves broke into his office, wheeled a safe outside and opened it to take out items including the two pistols and his father-in-law's watch, he said.

"They just tore it to pieces," his wife, Sue Bybee, said of the safe.

Bob Bybee said he thought he would never see those guns again.

"We'd marked it off," he told the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal.

Lubbock County sheriff's investigators, on the other hand, didn't and were able to return one of the guns.

The Bybees sat in Lubbock County Sheriff Kelly Rowe's office Thursday and thanked his deputies for their work in returning their stolen property.

"We cannot thank you enough for what you do for us," Sue Bybee said as the silver pistol commemorating the USS Texas sat in the box she and her husband kept empty for two decades.

"The box meant more to me than the guns," Bob Bybee said.

Rowe said the gun was recovered during a drug raid nine months ago in South Texas.

Agents with the Starr County High Intensity Drug Trafficking Area task force found about 30 firearms in the house, including the Bybees' Colt.

Lubbock County investigator Bo Roberts found the pistol as he checked a list of stolen items against a state and national crime database.

Rowe said reports of stolen firearms are kept in the system until they are recovered, but his office isn't automatically contacted whenever stolen items are recovered out of town. His deputies regularly audit their list against the database.

"They've got to keep up with it," he said.

Sue Bybee said they bought the guns about two years before they were stolen thinking they would be good investments. Colt made a limited run of the guns.

Obituaries

Kenneth (Ken) Ray Large

Kenneth (Ken) Ray Large passed away Wednesday, July 16, 2014, while surrounded by his family after a lengthy battle with cancer.

Ken was born August 14, 1932, to Obie and Cora Large in Leakey, Texas. The younger brother of Helen.

Ken graduated from Knott High School and went straight into the United States Air Force, where he served as a military policeman for 10 years. After being stationed for three years at Fairford Royal Air Force Base near Cheltenham, United Kingdom, he returned back to his roots in Texas, where he served at both Webb and Lackland Air Force bases.

After leaving the Air Force, he tried his hand at various jobs and settled on being an engineering assistant at Cap Rock electric for 20 years.

Ken was passionate about chili. A member of CASI (Chili Appreciation Society International), he was instrumental in developing what is now known as "The Ranch". In 1989, in the heat of Texas summer, he volunteered his time digging trenches and laying wire to what would become the main stage at The Ranch in Terlingua, Texas, with 3 of his close friends. Very well respected and a fierce competitor, Ken served at several different post within the organization, including director.

Ken was preceded in death by his parents, Obie and Cora Large of Big Spring, Texas; his sister, Helen Large Thrailkill of Stanton, Texas; niece, Fran Scott of Midland, Texas; second wife, Dorothy Large of Midland, Texas; third wife, Barbara Large of Odessa, Texas; and daughter, Kimberly Large Carnes of Midland, Texas.

He is survived by his four sons and their families, Kyle Large and wife Kristina of Fort Worth, Texas, Kevin Large of Carleon, Wales, Cody Large and girlfriend Debbie of Midland, Texas, Drew Large and wife Angie of Midland, Texas; first wife, Hazel Burgess of Midland, Texas; step-son and step-daughter, Doug and Develan Doss; niece, Pat High of Stanton, Texas; five grandchildren, Kurt and Scott Large of Carleon, Wales, United Kingdom; Rian Large and wife Cassie of Midland, Texas; Kayleigh Humphries-Large of Midland, Texas; Harriet Large of The United Kingdom; and two great-grandchildren, Hazel and Londyn.

Visitation will be held on Sunday, July 20, 2014, at Ellis Funeral Home from 2:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m. Memorial service will be held at Ellis Funeral Home in Midland, Texas on Monday, July 21, 2014, at 5:00 p.m. with a small reception immediately following the service.

The family wishes to thank Home Hospice of Midland for their love and compassion shown towards dad in his final days. We would also like to recognize the nurses and aids on Ortho/Neuro and Oncology, especially Janet and Glenn, who went above and beyond the standard given. We thank you from the bottom of our hearts!!!

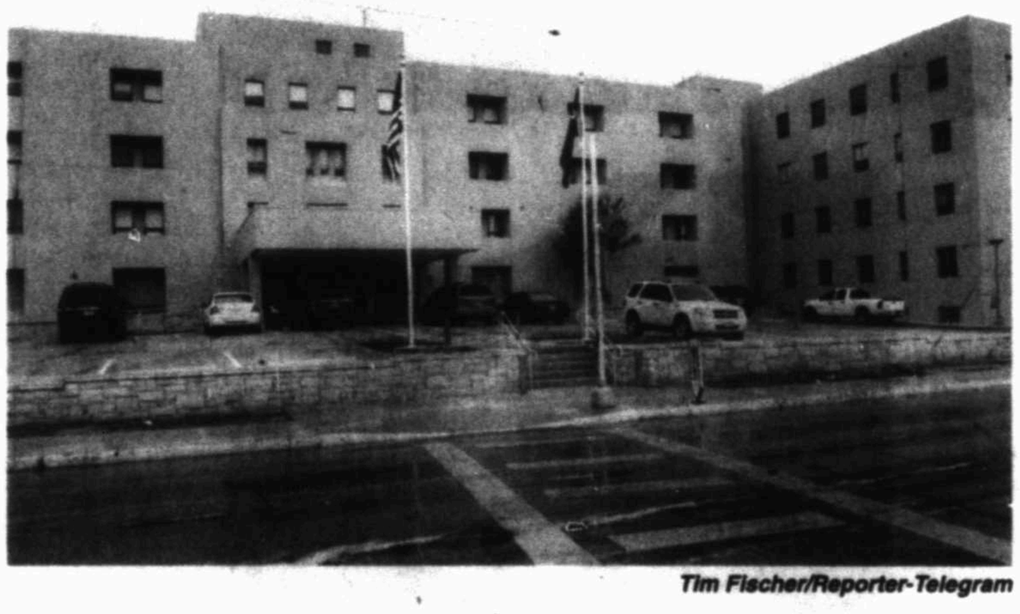
PARKING FOR PATIENTS



Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

Construction has been completed on the parking lot at Midland Memorial Hospital's Illinois Avenue entrance. The area has 27 patient parking spaces, including eight that are handicap-accessible, wheelchair ramps and new lighting. The entrance allows for more convenient access to services on the south side of the hospital, including the Wound Management Center, Surgery Center, Endoscopy and Outpatient Treatment Center, Midland Memorial Heart Institute and the Midland Community Health Services Women's Clinic, which also underwent a renovation in mid-July. As with all other entrances except the emergency department door, the Illinois Avenue door is open 5 a.m.-10 p.m.

Texas mortuary owners charged with abuse of corpse

FORT WORTH — North Texas police have filed criminal charges against two owners of a funeral home where eight decaying bodies were discovered earlier this week.

Rachel Hardy-Johnson was arrested Friday and charged with seven counts of abuse of a corpse, according to a police statement. She was arraigned and was to be transported to a Tarrant County jail with bond set at $10,500, but it was unclear if she had an attorney, said Officer Sharron Neal, a Fort Worth police spokeswoman. Court records do not list an attorney.

She and her husband, Dondre Johnson, owned Johnson Family Mortuary in Fort Worth.

Seven corpse-abuse counts also were filed against Dondre Johnson, but he was not yet in custody Friday evening, Neal said. He has been contacted and is expected to turn himself in, but it was unknown when, she said.

Abuse of a corpse is punishable by up to a year in jail and a fine of up to $4,000 per count.

The Tarrant County Medical Examiner's Office has said seven of the eight bodies found Tuesday at the business were in advanced stages of decomposition, though none showed signs of trauma or foul play. The Johnsons' landlord notified authorities after he went to the home and found the bodies, but no workers.

The property owner said he told the Johnsons about two weeks ago to vacate the building because they had not paid their rent, according to police.

The Johnsons have said they were tending to the bodies as they awaited burial or transportation for burial elsewhere. It wasn't immediately clear Friday if Hardy-Johnson has an attorney.

The Texas Funeral Service Commission has said it is investigating five separate complaints against the business. The state license for the mortuary expires at the end of July.

Hardy-Johnson previously told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that the landlord locked the doors last month because the business was behind on rent.

Texas pair stole more than 50K pieces of mail

Two people have pleaded guilty to targeting dozens of U.S. post offices across Texas and stealing more than 50,000 pieces of mail.

Federal prosecutors in Waco say the couple from Temple robbed post offices, collection boxes and parcel lockers in more than 80 communities, including Midland, College Station, Dallas and San Antonio.

Charles Hattenbach pleaded guilty Thursday to conspiracy to steal mail, bank fraud, theft of government property and three counts of aggravated identity theft. Kathryn Hubbert earlier pleaded guilty to conspiracy to steal mail, bank fraud, theft of government property and two counts of aggravated identity theft.

Hattenbach and Hubbert since December stole credit cards, checks, money orders, postage, gift cards and other valuables.

Both await sentencing and face up to 50 years in prison.

Endangered ocelot found dead on Texas highway

Federal authorities say one of the last remaining U.S. ocelots has been struck and killed on a South Texas highway.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said Thursday the male cat was found dead last week on a highway between Laguna Vista and Los Fresnos.

The federally protected endangered species was once found from South Texas to Arkansas and Louisiana. The agency says there are less than 50 left, mainly because of loss of habitat.

The agency said the ocelot was found next to a concrete highway barrier and was likely killed by a vehicle. A manager of a nearby wildlife refuge says at least four ocelots have been killed in the area since the barrier was constructed four years ago.

VA chief promises reform in El Paso visit

Acting Veterans Affairs Secretary Sloan Gibson met with VA medical center officials in El Paso and vowed to improve veterans' access to health care.

Gibson met Friday with the VA center's leadership, employees and U.S. Rep. Beto O'Rourke to hear about lingering problems in providing care.

Gibson said the facility will receive an additional $5 million to facilitate access to doctors outside the VA. He also promised that VA officials will be accountable for past and future wrongdoings.

The secretary has taken the reins of a VA system rocked by a scandal showing records were falsified to hide months-long wait times for veterans to see a doctor. A VA audit showed facilities in El Paso and elsewhere in Texas had some of the longest wait times for medical appointments.

The local VA has reached out to close to 2,200 veterans to offer them appointments and opened a hotline so veterans can schedule appointments. They have also expanded their hours to allow for more appointment slots.

John Mendoza, the director of the local VA, said they are working on filling 15 positions for mental health professionals and have gotten commitments for eight of those jobs.

from all over the world" and bring workers into the Permian Basin.

Charles Harding, Schlumberger's vice president for the Permian Basin division, agreed. "We will go where we have to to get the people we need."

With new residents coming in, Taylor said, "We ask where they're coming from, and where are they staying." If Midland and Odessa are going to support the energy industry here, he said there needs to be a balance of housing that can not only accommodate the high wages earned by those in mining, logging and construction and "probably manufacturing and trade, transportation and utilities" but the other sectors, as well, such as leisure and hospitality, education, health services and government, which don't pay those higher wages.

He estimated that "probably 45 percent are getting those high wages."

Midland added 800 jobs from May to June, 500 of them in the mining, logging and construction sector. From June 2013 to June 2014, the city added 4,100 jobs — 3,100 of them in mining, logging and construction — for a 4.8 percent growth rate.

"The area continues to see more jobs than seekers, so it's a job-seeker's market," Taylor said.

Mining, logging and construction, which includes oil field work, is doing very well in Midland-Odessa, Taylor said, as is the trade, transportation and utilities sector, which has added 700 jobs over the last year.

"Both Midland and Odessa need to focus on manufacturing," he advised.

Still, he said, the city's energy industry, wages and unemployment claims continue to remain stable, as well.

The Permian Basin Workforce Development Board, which Taylor also oversees, works closely with local junior colleges to "ensure the workforce has career choices and good training," he said. "We need to be training, training, training. We have a need for everything from mechanics to engineers, doctors and nurses, and teachers."

Statewide, the commission said 19,100 jobs were added in June, bringing the number of jobs added in the past year up to 371,000.

Seven of the 11 major industries in Texas showed employment increases over the month, led by a rise of 7,700 jobs in trade, transportationS and utilities. The industry added 90,400 jobs over the year as its annual growth rate reached 4.0 percent, the highest in the industry's recorded history.

MPD: Road rage ends in rollover

By Cale Ottens
cottens@mrt.com

A man driving west on Highway 191 Friday afternoon lost control of a pickup while he allegedly engaged in a "road rage" altercation with another vehicle.

The pickup rolled over just west of the Highway 191 and Farm-to-Market Road 1788 intersection around 1:30 p.m., according to a Midland police officer at the scene.

The altercation began at the Highway 191 and Loop 250 intersection and continued for several miles. The other vehicle involved continued driving west on Highway 191 toward Odessa, the officer said.

The driver of the pickup was wearing a seat belt and suffered minor injuries. He was not taken to the hospital, the officer said.

There weren't enough details available about the other vehicle to allow the Midland Police Department to pursue charges against the other driver, he said. The pickup driver also was not issued any citations, he said.

The driver told police he was trying to avoid several objects he believed were thrown from the other vehicle, which caused him to swerve and lose control of the pickup. The officer was not sure what items were thrown.

There were no passengers in the pickup.

I-35 northbound lanes open after wreck

The Texas Department of Public Safety says two northbound lanes on Interstate 35 are now open following a wreck involving three semitrailers.

Trooper D.L. Wilson said the southbound lanes reopened Friday afternoon.

All lanes on Interstate 35 near Bruceville-Eddy were closed Friday morning while crews worked to clean up the accident. Traffic had been backed up for at least 12 miles in each direction.

The Waco Tribune-Herald reported the wreck happened after a tractor-trailer hit a concrete barrier, pushing it onto opposite traffic where it was hit by another tractor-trailer.

A third tractor-trailer jackknifed after swerving to avoid hitting the first tractor-trailer.

Wilson said two people had minor injuries and were taken to a local hospital.

Texas ex-convict gets 40 years for purse snatching

A Texas man has been sentenced to 40 years in prison for stealing a woman's purse outside a grocery store.

A Tarrant County jury on Thursday handed down the sentence to 49-year-old Michael Wayne Perry. He will have to spend at least 10 year in prison before he's eligible for parole.

Perry has three past convictions for theft and one for credit card abuse.

He pleaded guilty to charges on Tuesday for the 2012 theft. A woman was leaving a grocery store in Arlington when Perry pinned her against her car and took her purse.

Police were able to locate Perry by the tracking device on the woman's phone.

Man guilty of killing Houston-area police officer

A jury has found a 23-year-old man guilty of capital murder in the Christmas Eve killings two years ago of a Houston-area police officer and an auto body shop owner.

The Harris County jury deliberated about two hours Friday before returning its guilty verdict on Harlem Lewis III. He was on trial in the deaths of Bellaire officer Jimmie Norman and auto body shop owner Terry Taylor.

Prosecutors say Norman had stopped Lewis for a traffic violation, got into a struggle with him and was shot. Authorities say Taylor was shot when he tried to help Norman.

Jurors can now sentence Lewis to life in prison without parole or death by lethal injection.

ICE to house families at Texas detention center

U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement is converting a South Texas detention center for male immigrants to instead house women who entered the United State illegally with their children.

In a statement Friday, ICE said it had modified its contract for the Karnes County Civil Detention Center in Karnes City to begin holding families in expedited removal proceedings. They are expected to begin arriving in several weeks.

Illegal immigration in South Texas has surged in recent months, especially children travelling alone and parents bringing their children from Honduras, Guatemala and El Salvador. Lacking family detention centers, the government has been releasing so-called "family units" with notices to appear before immigration authorities when they arrive at their destinations.

Karnes City is about 50 miles southeast of San Antonio.

Texas search group says it will resume drone use

A Texas-based group involved in searches for missing persons around the nation said it will resume using drones in its work after a federal appeals court ruled on Friday that a warning the group received to stop using them didn't have any legal consequences.

Texas EquuSearch had sued the Federal Aviation Administration, seeking to overturn what the group described as an order it had been sent in February by email prohibiting the nonprofit organization from using drones.

While a three-judge panel for a federal appeals court Washington, D.C., dismissed the lawsuit, Brendan Schulman, an attorney for Texas EquuSearch, said that was good for the group.

In its ruling, the appeals court said it can't review the case because the email Texas EquuSearch had received didn't represent the FAA's final conclusion on the use of drones. Final rules on drone use are expected next year.

UConn to pay $1.3M in sex assault handling lawsuit

Associated Press

STORRS, Conn. — The University of Connecticut will pay $1.3 million to settle a lawsuit by five women who alleged the school did not take seriously their claims of sexual assaults on campus.

The bulk of the settlement, $900,000, will go to Silvana Moccia, a former UConn ice hockey player who alleged she was kicked off the team after reporting she had been raped by a male hockey player in August 2011.

The other four women will receive payments ranging from $25,000 to $125,000.

University officials adamantly denied that they have been indifferent to reports of assaults and did not admit any wrongdoing in the settlement. They said the legal fight would be costly and bad for UConn's image.

Associated Press

University of Connecticut students Rosemary Richi, left, Kylie Angell, second from left, Erica Daniels, second from right, and Carolyn Luby, right, listen to attorney Gloria Allred speak during a news conference on Friday in Hartford, Conn. The University of Connecticut will pay nearly $1.3 million to settle a federal lawsuit filed by five women who claimed the school responded to their sexual assault complaints with indifference, the two sides announced Friday.

"It was clear to all parties that no good would have come from dragging this out for years as it consumed the time, attention and resources — both financial and emotional — of everyone involved," said Larry McHugh, the chairman of the school's Board of Trustees. "In order to do this, compromise was required on both sides, which is reflected in the settlement. I hope this resolution will help the students find closure on this issue."

The university remains the subject of a Title IX investigation by the U.S. Education Department's Office for Civil Rights.

The high-profile case is one of several underscoring the issue of sexual assaults on campuses across the country. The prevalence of sexual assaults on college campuses took on new focus in the wake of the Jerry Sandusky case at Penn State and after a high-profile battle on Capitol Hill about military sexual assault led college campus assault victims to demand the same attention.

Sexual violence investigations are pending at nearly 70 postsecondary institutions whose actions, policies and procedures are being questioned.

Colleges and universities need to do a better job investigating sexual assaults, said Christopher Mallios, an attorney at Washington-based AEquitas: The Prosecutors' Resource on Violence Against Women. Schools should have investigators who are trained by experts who know how traumatizing sexual assault is, he said.

"You're dealing with victims of sexual trauma. The last thing you want to be doing is re-traumatizing the victims," Mallios said.

The UConn lawsuit alleged discrimination based on gender and retaliation in violation of Title IX, which guarantees equal educational opportunities to students at schools that receive federal funds.

Officials: Unlicensed mortician had 12 bodies

Asssociated Press

BOSTON — An unlicensed funeral director accused of stealing more than $12,000 from an elderly couple could face more charges after authorities found 12 bodies and the cremated remains of more than 40 others in two self-storage units he rented, authorities said Friday.

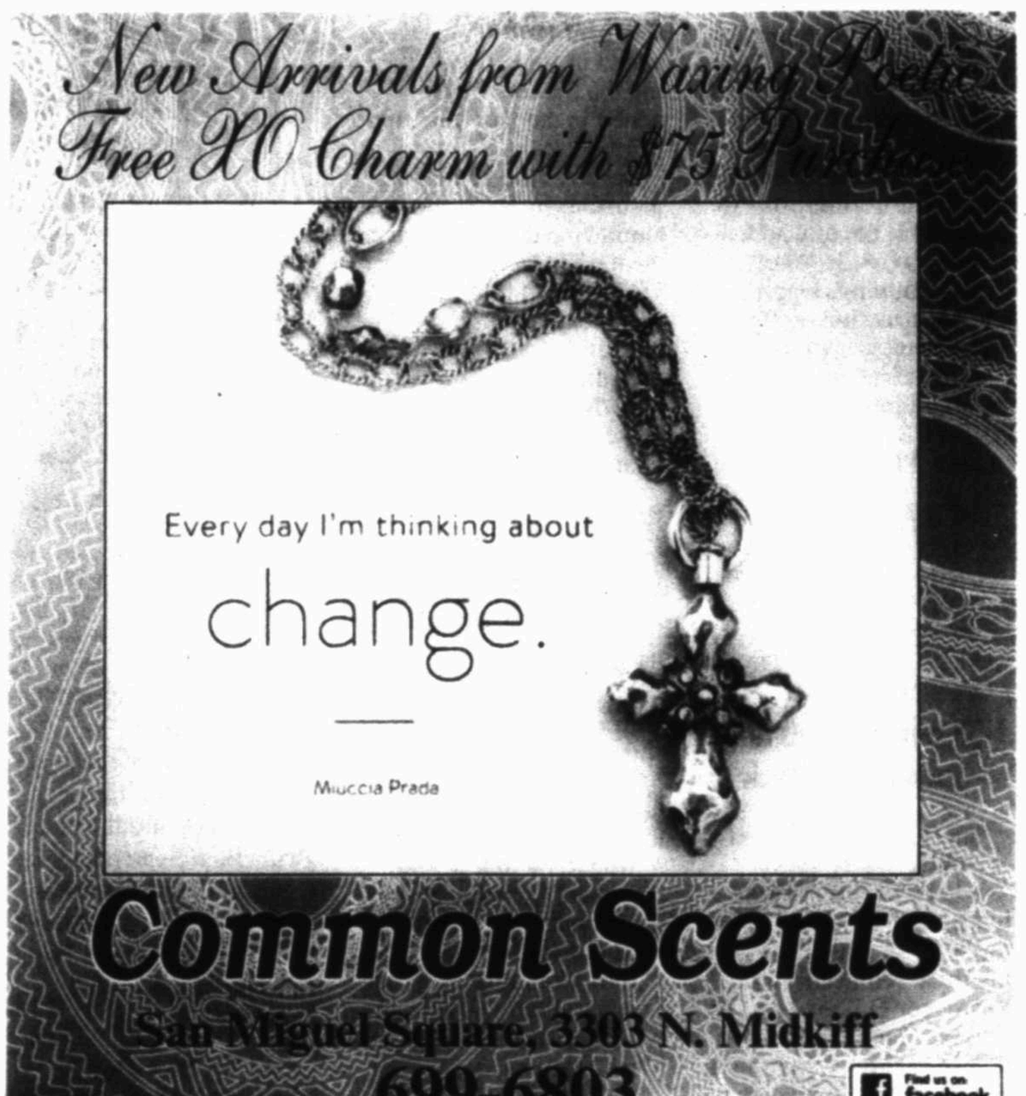
Joseph O'Donnell, 55, of Boston was being held on $10,000 bail in a larceny case when investigators found the cremated remains Wednesday at a Somerville self-storage business. On Thursday, they found 12 sets of human remains at a similar business in Weymouth.

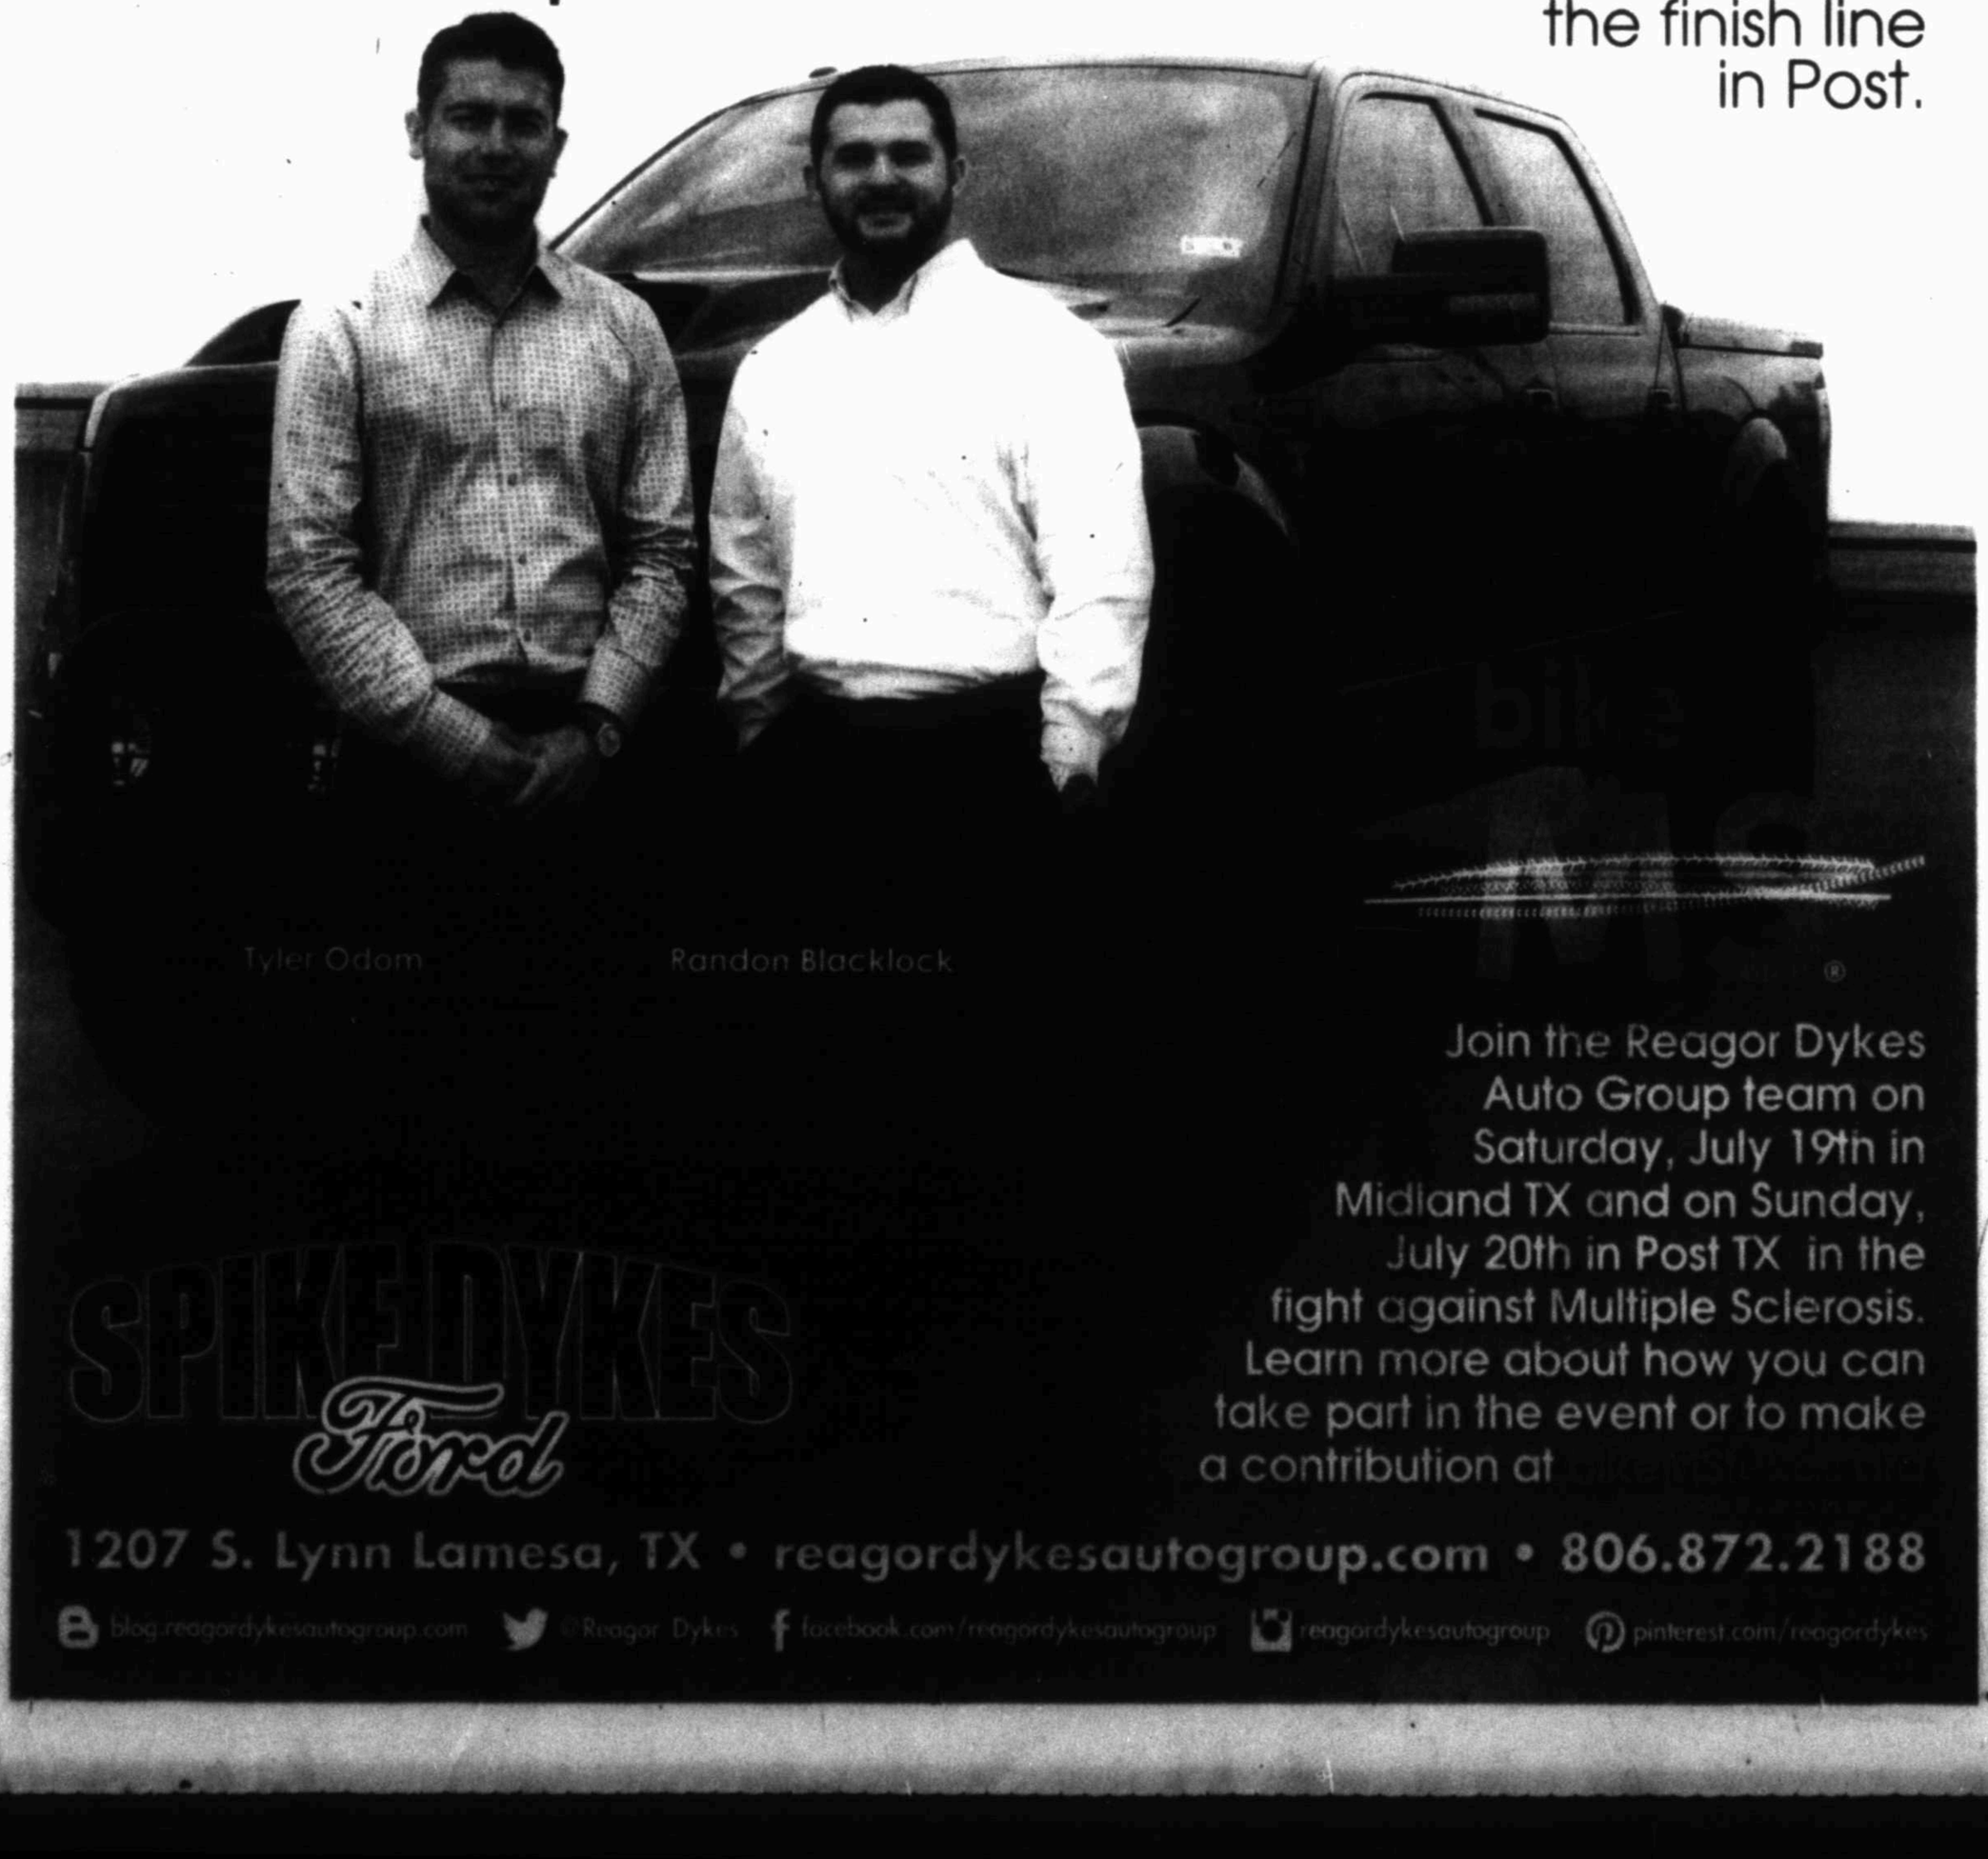
Suffolk District Attorney Daniel Conley said no foul play is suspected and investigators were working to identify the remains.

Conley's spokesman, Jake Wark, said no charges have been sought against O'Donnell in the discovery of the human remains, but authorities are conducting a criminal investigation. O'Donnell's funeral director's license lapsed in 2008.

His attorney, Paul Tomasetti, did not immediately return a call seeking comment. A message was left at his office.

O'Donnell was charged with larceny in April. Authorities said he took more than $12,000 in prepayments from an elderly couple to cover two future funerals. Later, when the couple asked to apply one payment to another family member who had died, they learned that O'Donnell's funeral home had closed and O'Donnell was unable to return their money, investigators said.





Flow of child immigrants at border slowing for now

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The flood of children crossing the Mexican border illegally and without their parents has slowed down in recent weeks, two senior Obama administration officials said Friday.

Border Patrol agents in the Rio Grande Valley in South Texas have found fewer than 500 children crossing the border illegally this week, the officials said. Last month, agents arrested as many as 2,000 child immigrants a week.

The Obama administration has been struggling to deal with a flood of more than 57,000 children traveling alone since Oct. 1. Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson said earlier this month that as many as 90,000 unaccompanied child immigrants could be apprehended by the end of the budget year in September. Most of the children are from Honduras, El Salvador and Guatemala.

Guatemalan President Otto Perez Molina, Honduran President Juan Orlando Hernandez and El Salvadoran President Salvador Sanchez Ceren will meet with Obama and Vice President Joe Biden on July 25. Biden has been the point person for contacts with these Central American leaders. He last spoke to them by phone on July 9 and was in Guatemala for meetings on June 20.

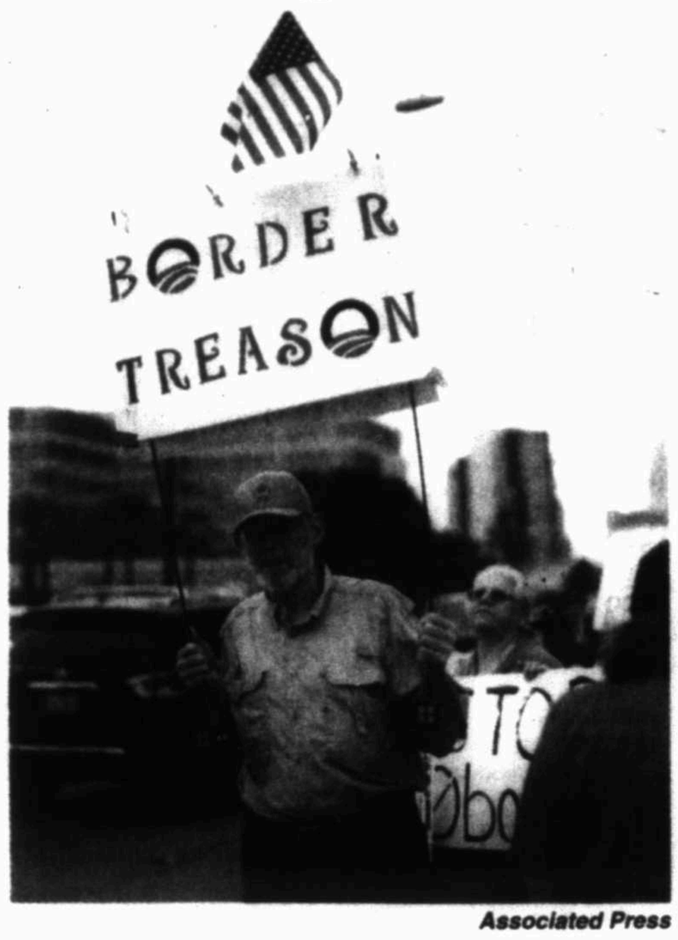
The U.S. has been urging those governments to take steps to stem the exodus of children and warning that the U.S. will take steps to send them back promptly.

The volume of child immigrants has significantly taxed resources at the Homeland Security and Health and Human Services departments in recent months and prompted President Barack Obama to ask Congress to approve an emergency $3.7 billion spending bill to deal with the situation he has called an "urgent humanitarian crisis."

The officials, who spoke on the condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to publicly discuss the latest trends in border arrests, said Friday it's too soon to know what has led to drop in border arrests. They said illegal border crossings along the Mexican border tend to slow during the summer.

Customs and Border Protection has launched a public relations campaign to warn would-be immigrants and their families in Central America that the trip to the U.S. border is dangerous and immigrant children will face deportation after they are apprehended. But since the trip through Mexico can take weeks or even months, recent border crossers are unlikely to have seen much of the campaign.

Along with dealing with the flood of children traveling alone, the Border Patrol has also arrested more than 55,000 people traveling as families, mostly mothers with young children. Because of a lack of detention space many of those people have been released with a notice to report back to immigration authorities at a later date. The Obama administration has repeatedly declined to say how many people have been released and how many have reported as ordered.



Associated Press

Protesters gather outside the Mexican Consulate on Friday in Austin. Prospects for action on the U.S.-Mexico border crisis faded on Thursday as lawmakers traded accusations rather than solutions, raising chances that Congress will go into its summer recess without doing anything about the tens of thousands of migrant children streaming into South Texas.

Permian Basin sheds seven rigs this week

From staff reports

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the Permian Basin decreased seven this week to 556, according to the weekly rig count report released Friday by Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

In District 8, which includes Midland County, the rig count was unchanged at 321.

Across Texas there were 888 rigs this week, down 10. In other Texas basins there were 212 in the Eagle Ford, down six; 75 in the Granite Wash, unchanged; and 23 in the Barnett, down one.

At this time last year there were 468 rigs in the Permian Basin and 845 in Texas.

The number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in the U.S. decreased four this week to 1,871. There were 1,554 rigs listed as searching for oil, down nine; 315 for natural gas, up four; and two as miscellaneous, up one.

By trajectory, there were 366 vertical drilling rigs, down 11; 1,288 horizontal drilling rigs, up 12; and 217 directional drilling rigs, down five.

A year ago this week there were 1,770 rigs in the U.S.

The top five rig counts by basin this week were the Permian; the Eagle Ford; the Williston with 185, up five; the Marcellus with 79, down one; and the Mississippian with 79, down one.

The top five rig counts by state were Texas; Oklahoma with 200, up two; North Dakota with 178, up six; Louisiana with 113, up six; and New Mexico with 90, down two.

In the U.S. there were 1,796 rigs listed as on land, down five; 18 in inland waters, unchanged; and 57 as offshore, up one.

The Gulf of Mexico added two rigs for a total of 57.

The number of rigs in Canada increased 66 this week to 381. There were 226 rigs listed as searching for oil, up 48; 155 for natural gas, up 18; and zero as miscellaneous, unchanged. There were 324 rigs in Canada at this time last year.

The total number of rigs in the North America region — which includes the U.S. and Canada but excludes the Gulf of Mexico — increased 62 this week to 2,252. At this time last year there were 2,094 rigs in North America.

Obama opens Eastern Seaboard to oil exploration

Associated Press

ST. AUGUSTINE BEACH, Fla. — The Obama administration is reopening the Eastern Seaboard to offshore oil and gas exploration, approving seismic surveys using sonic cannons that can pinpoint energy deposits deep beneath the ocean floor.

Friday's announcement is the first real step toward what could be a transformation in coastal states, creating thousands of jobs to support a new energy infrastructure. But it dismayed environmentalists and people who owe their livelihoods to fisheries and tourism.

The cannons create noise pollution in waters shared by whales, dolphins and turtles, sending sound waves many times louder than a jet engine reverberating through the deep every ten seconds for weeks at a time. Arguing that endangered species could be harmed was the environmental groups' best hope for extending a decades-old ban against drilling off the U.S. Atlantic coast.

The U.S. Bureau of Ocean Energy Management acknowledged that thousands of sea creatures will be harmed even as it approved opening the outer continental shelf from Delaware to Florida to exploration. Energy companies need the data as they prepare to apply for drilling leases in 2018, when current congressional limits expire.

"The bureau's decision reflects a carefully analyzed and balanced approach that will allow us to increase our understanding of potential offshore resources while protecting the human, marine, and coastal environments," acting BOEM Director Walter Cruickshank said in a statement.

Sonic cannons are already used in the western Gulf of Mexico, off Alaska and in other offshore oil operations around the world. They are towed behind boats, sending down pulses of sound that reverberate beneath the sea floor and rebound to the surface. Hydrophones capture the results, which computers translate into high resolution, three-dimensional images.

"It's like a sonogram of the Earth," said Andy Radford, a petroleum engineer at the American Petroleum Institute, an oil and gas trade association in Washington DC. "You can't see the oil and gas, but you can see the structures in the Earth that might hold oil and gas."

The surveys also can map marine habitats and identify solid undersea flooring for wind energy turbines. But fossil fuel mostly funds this research, and corporations keep the data secret, disclosing it only to the government.

"They paid for it, so I can see why they don't want to share. These things are not cheap," said John Jaeger, a University of Florida geology professor.

Oil lobbyists say drilling for the estimated 4.72 billion barrels of recoverable oil and 37.51 trillion cubic feet of natural gas that lies beneath federal waters from Florida to Maine could generate $195 billion in investment and spending between 2017 and 2035, contributing $23.5 billion per year to the economy.

These estimates describe the total amount of energy "technically recoverable" from the nation's outer continental shelf, but the Atlantic seabed from New Jersey through New England remains off limits for now. While some states have passed drilling bans, Virginia and the Carolinas asked for the surveys, bureau officials explained Friday.

"I honestly feel we can go offshore and harvest the energy that's out there," said South Carolina state Sen Paul Campbell. "I think we're kind of foolish not to."

In any case, the area to be mapped is farther offshore in federal waters, beyond the reach of state law.

The sonic cannons are often fired continually for weeks or months, and multiple mapping projects may operate simultaneously. To get permits, companies will need to have whale-spotting observers onboard and do undersea acoustic tests to avoid nearby species. Certain habitats will be closed during birthing or feeding seasons.

Still, underwater microphones have picked up blasts from these sonic cannons over distances of thousands of miles, and the constant banging — amplified in water by orders of magnitude — will be impossible for many species to avoid.

Finding oil with sound blasts, by the numbers

The Obama administration on Friday approved using sonic air cannons to map offshore oil and gas in the Atlantic Ocean by measuring sound reverberating through waters shared by whales and other marine life. Some numbers to help explain it:

60 decibels. This is how loud humans normally talk.

140 decibels. Even momentary exposure to sound at this level can cause permanent hearing damage in humans.

180 decibels. The maximum underwater noise from sonic cannons allowed within 500 meters, mitigating physical damage to marine mammals.

2,500 miles. How far away lower levels of noise pollution from the cannons have been recorded by hydrophones.

138,000. The minimum number of whales, turtles and other sea creatures that could be harmed, according to government estimates.

280,000. The number of jobs the American Petroleum Institute says could be created by offshore drilling in the Atlantic.

4.72 billion. The number of barrels of "technically recoverable oil" beneath federal waters from Florida to Maine, according to government estimates.

$23.5 billion. The annual economic contribution that Atlantic oil drilling could bring to the U.S. economy, according to the oil industry.

What we know, and don't, 1 day after Ukraine crash

Associated Press

BRUSSELS — One day after the crash of a Malaysian jetliner carrying 298 people in eastern Ukraine, here's what is known, and what has been claimed:

The cause

U.S. officials and an adviser to Ukraine's interior minister have said a surface-to-air missile brought down Malaysia Airlines Flight 17 as it flew Thursday from Amsterdam to Kuala Lumpur. All 298 people aboard died. U.S. Ambassador Samantha Power told the U.N. Security Council in New York on Friday the missile was likely fired from a rebel-held area near the Russian border. Independent aviation experts have agreed a missile was the likely cause, but so far, there's been no proof. Ukraine's government, the pro-Russia rebels who oppose it and Russia have all denied shooting down the passenger plane. The official investigation into the crash and its cause has only begun.

The "black boxes"

The whereabouts of the plane's flight data recorder and cockpit voice recorder remained unknown Friday. The rebels gave conflicting reports about whether they had found them. Russia's foreign minister said his country had no intention of acquiring them and that they should be given to international aviation organizations. Some experts in air accident investigations said the boxes' contents could be key to establishing what happened to the Boeing 777 in the moments before it crashed. The thud of a missile hit or the acoustic shock wave emitted by an explosion could have been picked up by the cockpit recorder, they said. However, U.S. aviation safety expert John Goglia, said he doesn't think the black boxes will yield a great deal of evidence on the cause of the crash since the operation of the plane doesn't appear to be an issue in the incident.

Associated Press

Fire engines arrive at the crash site of a passenger plane near the village of Hrabove, Ukraine, as the sun sets on Thursday. Ukraine said a passenger plane carrying 295 people was shot down Thursday as it flew over the country, and both the government and the pro-Russia separatists fighting in the region denied any responsibility for downing the plane.

The investigation

According to international civil aviation regulations, Ukraine should take the lead in investigating an air crash on its territory. Ukraine has called for an international probe, and the United States has offered to assist. But access to the site in rebel-held lands 25 miles from the Russian border remained difficult and dangerous Friday. It was still uncertain whether the rebels would allow Ukrainian government officials to pass through their checkpoints. A spokeswoman for Ukraine's emergency services accused rebel militiamen of interfering with recovery operations.

The victims

By midday, 181 bodies had been recovered, according to emergency workers. A Ukraine Foreign Ministry official said remains of the dead would be taken to government-controlled Kharkiv for identification. Andrei Purgin, a leader of the pro-Russian separatists, said the bodies will be taken to the Black Sea city of Mariupol, also controlled by the government. Malaysia Airlines and relevant governments said the passengers included 192 Dutch, 29 Malaysians, 28 Australians, 12 Indonesians, 10 Britons, four Germans, four Belgians, three Vietnamese, three Filipinos and one person each from the U.S., Canada, New Zealand and Hong Kong. These likely include some with dual nationalities. Some passengers were researchers and activists heading to an AIDS conference in Australia, news that sparked an outpouring of grief across the scientific community. Among them were the well-known Dutch researcher and former president of the International AIDS Society, Joep Lange, and World Health Organization spokesman Glenn Thomas, based in Geneva. Malaysia Airlines regional vice president Huib Gorter told reporters at Amsterdam's Schiphol Airport the carrier was making an initial payment of $5,000 to families of all victims to cover their immediate costs.

Why airlines didn't avoid risky Ukraine airspace

Associated Press

The shooting down of a Malaysian Airlines plane with nearly 300 people on board over war-torn eastern Ukraine is likely to have profound consequences for the world's airlines.

Airlines are already being more vigilant about avoiding trouble spots. That will make flights longer and more costly because of the need for extra fuel — an expense that will be passed on to passengers. They may be quicker to abandon routes near conflict areas.

In the aftermath of Thursday's disaster, carriers around the globe rerouted flights to avoid Ukraine. Malaysia Airlines announced that it will no longer fly over any portion of the country, routing flights over Turkey instead.

Some airlines had been circumventing the country for weeks after warnings from aviation authorities, and experts questioned Malaysia's decision to fly near the fighting.

"I find it pretty remarkable that a civil airline company — if this aircraft was on the flight plan — that they are flight-planning over an area like that," said Robert Francis, a former vice chairman of the National Transportation Safety Board.

The airline noted Friday that other carriers flew the same path in the days and weeks before — and even on the same day its plane was shot down. Malaysian Transport Minister Liow Tiong Lay insisted again Friday that the airline's path from Amsterdam to Kuala Lumpur was an internationally approved route.

Violence in Ukraine between government forces and pro-Russia rebels in the country's east erupted after Russia annexed Ukraine's Crimean Peninsula in March. Earlier this week, the rebels claimed responsibility for hitting a Ukrainian military jet with a portable surface-to-air missile; the pilot was able to land safely. And the government charged that a military transport plane was shot down by a missile fired from Russian territory.

The U.S. Federal Aviation Administration had warned pilots in April not to fly over parts of Ukraine, and the U.N.'s International Civil Aviation Organization told governments to warn their airlines. Thursday's crash, however, occurred outside those warning areas, prompting the FAA to expand its prohibition to eastern Ukraine.

Thomas Routh, an aviation attorney in Chicago, said it would be unusual for an airline to ignore such warnings, but he said there are many dangerous air corridors and airlines must decide whether a flight will be safe.

"There are airlines flying through Afghanistan airspace every day," Routh said.

Greg Raiff, an aviation consultant in New Hampshire, said that if airlines must avoid all the world's hot spots, flight times would be extended, requiring extra fuel and pilots. Some routes will become uneconomical, forcing airlines to abandon them, he said.

Aviation experts said that many airlines continued to fly over Ukraine despite the warnings because it offered a shorter route that saved fuel. Malaysian officials denied that was their motive.

Joshua Marks, CEO of aviation-data firm masFlight, calculated that flying over Ukraine instead of around the country saved Malaysia Airlines up to $1,500 per flight in fuel, or 2 percent, and shaved about 10 minutes off the trip.

Ukraine closed the eastern region to air traffic below 26,000 feet on July 1 and extended the ban to 32,000 feet on Monday.

US building case tying separatists to plane crash

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The United States began building a case Friday linking pro-Russian separatists to the shocking downing of a passenger jet in Ukraine. A somber President Barack Obama declared the deaths of those on board, including at least one American, an "outrage of unspeakable proportions."

Obama said the U.S. believes the Malaysia Airlines plane was felled by a surface-to-air missile launched from an area near the Ukraine-Russia border that is controlled by Kremlin-backed separatists. Even as he cautioned that the exact circumstances were still being determined, the president turned his sights on Russia, saying the insurgents would not be capable of carrying out such an attack without Moscow's support.

"We know that they are heavily armed and they are trained, and we know that that's not an accident," Obama said. "That is happening because of Russian support."

The president spoke shortly after Samantha Power, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, outlined preliminary evidence against Russia and the separatists during an emergency meeting of the U.N. Security Council. Power said separatists were spotted Thursday with an SA-11 anti-aircraft missile at a location close to the site where the plane came down and that they had boasted on social media sites about shooting down a plane, then later deleted those posts.

Power joined Obama in calling for an immediate international investigation, and she warned that the separatists and those supporting them would have "good reason to cover up evidence of their crime." The U.S. has called for evidence from the crash site to remain in Ukraine until investigators determine who is responsible.

The American killed in the incident was identified as Quinn Lucas Schansman. Officials said they were still working to confirm whether any other U.S. citizens were on board the plane.

For Obama, the downed plane adds new complexity to U.S. efforts to quell the months-long conflict between Russia and Ukraine. Increasingly stringent economic sanctions imposed by the U.S. and Europe, including a new round of penalties announced a day before the plane was shot down, have done little to change Russian President Vladimir Putin's approach.

Obama warned Russia anew on Friday that the U.S. has the capacity to increase the economic pain, but he outlined no specific potential actions. He did say he saw no U.S. military role in the conflict that has stemmed in part from Russia's annexation of the Crimean Peninsula from Ukraine.

All 298 people aboard the Malaysian plane were killed in Thursday's incident. The victims included vacationers, students and a large contingent of scientists. The passengers came from a dozen countries, spreading the impact of the Ukraine crisis around the globe.

"This certainly will be a wake-up call for Europe and the world that there are consequences to an escalating conflict in eastern Ukraine — that it is not going to be localized, it is not going to be contained," Obama said.

Justices: Utah doesn't have to recognize gay marriages

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Friday said Utah is not required to recognize the marriages of roughly 1,000 same-sex couples there while state officials pursue appeals.

The court's order was two sentences long and said only that a lower court's ruling "is stayed pending the final disposition of the appeal" by the federal appeals court in Denver.

The marriages took place between Dec. 20, when Judge Robert J. Shelby of U.S. District Court in Salt Lake City struck down Utah's ban on same-sex marriage, and Jan. 6, when the Supreme Court issued a stay blocking that ruling while the decision was appealed.

On June 25, the 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, in Denver, upheld Shelby's ruling. Utah officials have announced that they will soon ask the Supreme Court to hear that case, which presents the separate and much larger question of whether there is a constitutional right to same-sex marriage.

Friday's order came in a different case, one concerning the status of what the state calls "interim marriages," meaning those entered into during that period in December and January when same-sex marriage was briefly allowed.

Utah officials initially sent mixed messages about whether they would recognize the marriages but ultimately said they were "on hold." Federal officials said they would recognize the marriages.

On May 19, Judge Dale A. Kimball, a second judge on the U.S. District Court in Salt Lake City, ruled that Utah must recognize the marriages.

"The state has placed plaintiffs and their families in a state of limbo with respect to adoptions, child care and custody, medical decisions, employment and health benefits, future tax implications, inheritance and many other property and fundamental rights associated with marriage," Kimball wrote. "These legal uncertainties and lost rights cause harm each day that the marriage is not recognized."

Kimball entered a brief stay of his decision. The 10th Circuit, which has yet to rule in the case, extended the stay through Monday. A dissenting appeals court judge said the majority's approach, of failing to stay the lower court's decision while appeals proceeded, invited chaos.

State officials echoed the point in urging the Supreme Court to step in.

"Constitutional rights do not spring into existence by mass social activity triggered by the unreviewed decision of a single district court judge," their brief said, adding that the status quo should be maintained until the Supreme Court has the last word.

Obama to extend protections for gay workers

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama plans to sign an executive order Monday barring discrimination against gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender employees of companies that do federal government work, according to White House officials. But it will not include a religious exemption many faith organizations had requested, the officials said.

The order would also for the first time explicitly protect federal employees from discrimination on the basis of gender identity.

After a setback in the Supreme Court in the Hobby Lobby case, Obama was facing pressure from religious groups demanding to be excluded from the long-promised executive order.

A group of major faith organizations, including some of Obama's allies, had said he should consider adding an exemption for groups whose religious beliefs oppose homosexuality. In Burwell v. Hobby Lobby Stores, the court ruled that family-run corporations with religious objections could be exempted from providing employees with insurance coverage for contraception.

In a July 1 letter to Obama sent the day after the Hobby Lobby case was decided, leaders of religious groups wrote that "we are asking that an extension of protection for one group not come at the expense of faith communities whose religious identity and beliefs motivate them to serve those in need."

The effort behind the letter was organized by Michael Wear, who worked in the White House faith-based initiative during Obama's first term and directed the president's faith outreach in the 2012 campaign.

Wear, who calls himself an "ardent supporter" of the president and a backer of gay rights, said in an interview Tuesday that the rationale of the organizations was to maintain the rights they have.

"We're not trying to support crazy claims of religious privilege," he said.

To give an example, faith leaders said a Catholic charity group that believes sex outside heterosexual marriage is a sin should not be denied government funding because it refused to employ a leader who was openly gay. Gay-rights groups countered that it would be unacceptable to allow religious organizations receiving taxpayer money to refuse to hire employees simply because they were gay and said they did not expect the White House to provide such an exclusion.

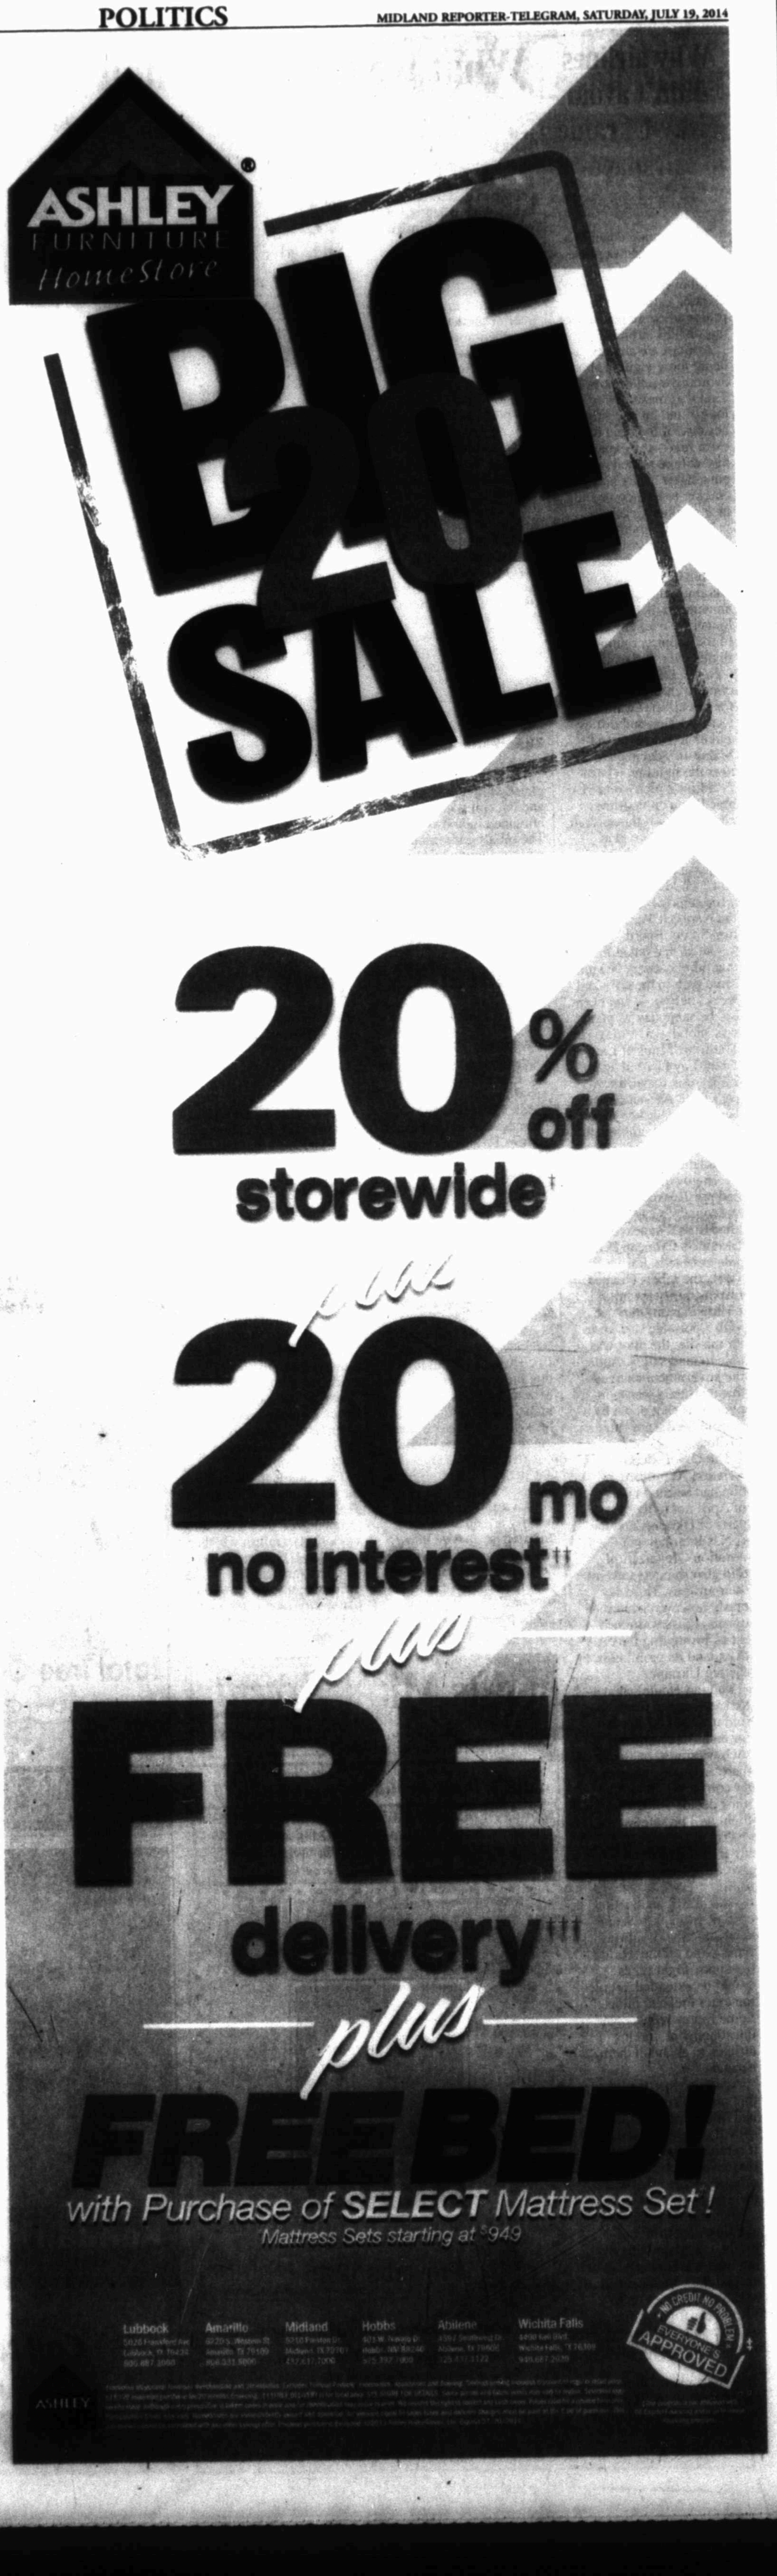
Jerome A. Holmes, who was nominated by President George W. Bush.

Judge Paul J. Kelly Jr., who was nominated by the elder President George Bush, dissented in both the Oklahoma and Utah cases, saying it should be up to the voters of a state to define marriage.

"Same-gender marriage is a public policy choice for the states and should not be driven by a uniform, judge-made fundamental rights analysis," Kelly wrote.

The court, whose decision affirmed a federal judge's ruling striking down Oklahoma's ban, immediately put its ruling on hold pending an appeal. Utah has said it will appeal its loss in the 10th Circuit directly to the Supreme Court.



Former NFLers: Painkillers easy to get as recently as 2012

By Jim Litke
Associated Press

Dozens of former players joining a lawsuit against the NFL say teams kept handing out powerful painkillers and other drugs with few — if any— safeguards as recently as 2012. That extends by four years the time frame for similar claims made in the original complaint and could open the door to a criminal investigation.

"On flights home, the routine was the same everywhere," said Brett Romberg, who played center in Jacksonville (2003-05), St. Louis (2006-08) and Atlanta (2009 and 2011). "The trainers walked up and down the aisle and you'd hold up your hand with a number of fingers to show how many pills you wanted. No discussions, no questions. You just take what they hand you and believe me, you'll take anything to dull the pain."

With the federal Drug Enforcement Administration beginning to look into accusations contained in the lawsuit — filed in May and covering the years 1968-2008 — the new allegations could dramatically expand the investigation's scope, legal experts said. Any violation of federal drug laws after 2009 would not be subject to the five-year statute of limitations.

"Then it's no longer just about money. Then it's potentially about criminal conduct and that's a completely different ballpark," said Steven Feldman, a former assistant U.S. Attorney for New York's southern district.

"And all you need is one (criminal) act within the last five years to reach back and say, 'The same group of doctors and trainers were there and' ... if you have enough of them doing the same thing in different locker rooms, well, it's hard to defend as a one-off," he added.

The NFL is not aware of "any DEA subpoenas or investigations into club practices," spokesman Greg Aiello wrote in an email Friday. "There has been a league-wide reporting system in place (to track controlled substances and prescriptions issued by team doctors) since 1973 for compliance with DEA and state law requirements."

The DEA declined comment, citing the agency's policy against discussing potential investigations. But law enforcement sources, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to speak publicly, confirmed that the agency was looking into allegations in the lawsuit.

The lawsuit on behalf of 500 former players was filed in U.S. District Court in northern California and amended two weeks later to add

Grand win for 'Hounds

Grand slam lifts Midland to another win in 9th

By Oscar LeRoy
oleroy@mrt.com

Some advice for those attending Midland RockHound games at Security Bank Ballpark in the future: Don't leave before the ninth inning because you never know what the RockHounds might do.

Matthes

On Friday, they came back from a 3-0 deficit with five runs in the ninth inning. The comeback was punctuated by a game-winning Kent Matthes grand slam to left to beat the San Antonio Missions 5-3 in front of 4,424 fans.

It was the second straight night that the RockHounds had beaten the Missions in their last at-bat after a costly outfield error allowed two runs to score with two outs in the bottom of the ninth in Thursday's 6-5 victory.

RockHounds	5
Missions	3

"This might not be the most talented team I've played on, but this team knows how to win," said Matthes, the 27-year-old designated hitter. "There are a lot of veteran guys and you're not going to see a lot of them on top prospect lists or anything like that, but we know how to win. It's a really good group of guys and I'm happy to be part of it."

The win was also the sixth straight for the RockHounds over the Missions, with four of those coming in their last at-bat at home.

"You've got to give it up to our guys, they battled and never gave up," Midland manager Aaron Nieckula said. "They never waved the white flag, even though we were up against the wall."

The win also comes after the Rock Hounds were dominated by San Antonio starter Josh Geer, who allowed just three hits in seven innings of work.

But just like they have for most of their recent hot streak, which has seen them win 13 of their last 15 games, the RockHounds found a way to win a game, this time coming at the expense of San Antonio reliever Luis De La Cruz (4-8) as all the runs came with one out in the inning.

Astros fail to sign first pick of MLB draft

By Rachel Cohen
Associated Press

The Houston Astros failed to sign the first pick in this year's draft, San Diego high school left-hander Brady Aiken, before Friday's deadline.

The head of the players' association said the union is working with the pitcher and his advisers to explore "all legal options."

Aiken originally was offered a deal with a $6.5 million signing bonus by the Astros, a person familiar with the negotiations said earlier this week, speaking on condition of anonymity because no statements were authorized. But the club expressed a concern over Aiken's elbow ligament and lowered the offer, the person said.

Aiken

The union is also concerned with Houston's handling of the negotiations with fifth-round pick Jacob Nix. The right-hander from Los Alamitos, California, didn't sign either.

"Today, two young men should be one step closer to realizing their dreams of becoming Major League ballplayers," union head Tony Clark said in a statement. "Because of the actions of the Houston Astros, they are not. The MLBPA, the players and their advisers are exploring all legal options."

The Astros insisted in a statement that their offer to Aiken "was extremely fair considering all the factors involved in this case."

"As always, we approached these negotiations in good faith and with the best interests of the Astros organization in mind, both short-term and long-term," the team said. "Throughout this entire process, we have absolutely acted within Major League Baseball's rules and guidelines, which MLB has confirmed on numerous occasions."

MLB Executive Vice President Dan Halem defended the team Tuesday and said "we fully support the Astros."

"We believe that they have conducted themselves appropriately," Halem added.

Rory McIlroy plays out of the bunker onto the 16th green during the second day of the British Open on Friday at the Royal Liverpool golf club in Hoylake, England.

Rory McIlroy builds a 4-shot lead at British Open

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

HOYLAKE, England — Rory McIlroy only saw birdies at Royal Liverpool, mostly on his scorecard, and even one pheasant that trotted across the eighth green as he was lining up a putt. That was but a minor interruption in his command performance Friday in the British Open.

Once he made a birdie, and then another, nothing could stop McIlroy.

Not another collapse in the second round. Not anyone in the field. And certainly not Tiger Woods.

After a bogey on his opening hole stirred memories of another "Black Friday," McIlroy looked more like the Boy Wonder who won two majors in a runaway. With three birdies in his last four holes, he posted a second straight 6-under 66 to build a four-shot lead over Dustin Johnson.

McIlroy spoke of an "inner peace," and the two secret words that triggered his powerful swing and set up birdie chances on just about every hole.

"People call it the zone, people call it whatever," he said. "It's just a state of mind where you think clearly. Everything seems to be on the right track. I've always said, whenever you play this well, you always wonder how you've played so badly before. And whenever you've played so badly, you always wonder how you play so well. I'm happy where my game is at the minute. And hopefully, I can just keep up the solid play for another couple of days."

Woods is fortunate to even play for two more days.

He started the second round only three shots behind. He finished it on the 18th hole, standing over a 6-foot birdie putt just to avoid missing back-to-back cuts for the first time in his career. Woods made the putt for a 77, matching his second-worst

From 1B

Jefry Marte, who's been the hero in three of the last six wins over the Missions, started the rally with a single to left. Jeremy Barfield then singled and then Beau Taylor singled to score Marte and cut the deficit to 3-1. Dusty Coleman then drew a walk to load the bases and set up Matthes' heroics.

"(Marte) is the one that got it going and he comes through again," Matthes said. "We had been struggling offensively, so a lot of times when we can get that first base runner on or second base runner on, we can get on a roll. Once Marte got on, a couple of other guys followed and I was able to get the big hit."

There was no question that Matthes' hit was huge as he got a 0-2 fastball in the lower, middle part of the plate and crushed it over the left field wall.

"I was just looking for a fastball, and I got one," Matthes said. "I just wanted to try to hit the ball hard and put up a good at-bat. Dusty had a really good at-bat right before me to draw the walk and I was just trying to keep it going."

Nieckula said he was happy for Matthes, who was 0-for-3 in the game before his last at-bat.

"Matthes did a great job to come through," Nieckula said. "He had been struggling lately. For as hard as he works, for as positive he's remained though his struggles, it couldn't have happened to a better guy."

RockHounds' starting pitcher Shawn Haviland delivers a pitch Friday night against the San Antonio Missions at Security Bank Ballpark.

The ninth inning for the RockHounds was a stark contrast of their performance from earlier in the game against Geer, the 30-year-old right-hander and Texas League veteran. At one point, he retired 13 straight RockHounds, but even the few hits the 'Hounds managed weren't hit hard.

"It's tough to see here early with the shadows and (Geer) had a four-pitch mix that he was throwing for strikes, he was coming right at us," Matthes said. "He could throw any pitch at any count. We've got to tip our hat to him. He did a really good job. He's been around for a while and he knows how to pitch."

Meanwhile, Midland starter Shawn Haviland did a nice job of keeping his team in the game. He allowed two runs on seven hits with three walks and six strikeouts in six innings of work.

The Missions added an unearned run in the top of the ninth to extend the lead to 3-0, but the RockHounds once again had the final say at home.

'HOUND BITES: The win for the RockHounds was only their fourth win when trailing after eight innings this season. ...Midland is now 18-8 against San Antonio this year and improved its record to 18-9 in the Texas League's second half. ...Even though Jefry Marte wasn't the late-game hero for the RockHounds, he was busy at third base as he had nine assists on the night. ...RockHounds first baseman Max Muncy started a key double play to get out of a jam in the top of the third inning. With one out and runners at second and third, the Missions' Casey McElroy grounded out to Muncy at first, who first checked Casey Overbeck at third base. However, after Muncy stepped on the base for the out, Overbeck strayed too far from third and was eventually caught in a 3-5-2 rundown.

TODAY'S PROBABLES: The RockHounds host the Missions in the third game of a four-game series at 7 p.m. Midland is expected to send RHP Chris Jensen (7-7, 3.52 ERA) to the mound against San Antonio's Leonel Campos (0-3, 3.60).

Streaking Mercury host WNBA All-Star Game

By Bob Baum
Associated Press

PHOENIX — The desert is a perfect place for this year's WNBA All-Star Game. It's where the most dominating basketball in the league has been played this season

The Phoenix Mercury enter the All-Star break on a franchise-record 12-game winning streak and have compiled a gaudy 18-3 record.

So the best players squaring off in Phoenix makes undeniable sense.

"It kind of matches the momentum of the team," said West coach Cheryl Reeve of the reigning WNBA champion Minnesota Lynx, "the excitement surrounding the team."

Mercury stars Diana Taurasi and Brittney Griner are starters for the West in today's game, with teammate Candice Dupree among the reserves. Taurasi makes her seventh All-Star appearance. Griner was supposed to start as a rookie last year but sat out the game because of injury. She enters the game off her second dunk of the season Tuesday night.

Taurasi said the game is a reward to the Mercury's loyal fan base.

"This is one of the only places where they'll never boo a player," Taurasi said, "because they respect everyone so much."

East All-Star reserve Chiney Ogwumike, a rookie with Connecticut, says the Mercury "are a great measuring stick" for the rest of the WNBA.

The Mercury drafted Griner No. 1 overall a year ago and were expected to dominate immediately. It didn't happen. The team played better down the stretch and made it to the second round of the playoffs before being eliminated by the Lynx.

This season, the Mercury have been virtually untouchable.

"I just think they're really, really good," Reeve said. "They've kind of established themselves back to the media darling, maybe what was expected of them last year. They're fulfilling those expectations."

Taurasi said there are some years when a player wonders after loss after loss whether it's worth it to keep playing.

This year, she said, has "been one of those (seasons) where after every game we just want to get back at it. "After every game, you want to get back in the gym and see each other."

Atlanta's Michael Cooper will coach the East team. The five-time NBA champion said women are better at the fundamentals of the game than their male counterparts.

"I think women have a greater understanding of the game," he said, "simply because it's played below the rim."

One player who can operate above the rim is the 6-foot-8 Griner. She has four dunks in her two WNBA seasons and blocked a league record 11 shots in a game against Tulsa.

"She might get out of here with a dunk," said Indiana's Tamika Catchings, who's playing in her ninth All-Star game. "The fans would be so excited to see that."

In the NBA All-Star Game, there's little defense and a lot of acrobatic showmanship. It's different in the WNBA, Catchings said.

Arencibia homers, Rangers beat Blue Jays

Ian Harrison

Fred Thornhill/The Canadian Press

Texas' J. P. Arencibia gets a hug from starting pitcher Yu Darvish after Arencibia hit a three-run home run Friday during the seventh inning in Toronto.

Rangers	5
Blue Jays	1

TORONTO — J.P. Arencibia tormented his former team in an impressive return to the Texas Rangers.

Arencibia hit a three-run homer, Yu Darvish matched his season high with 12 strikeouts and the Rangers beat the Toronto Blue Jays 5-1 on Friday night.

Adrian Beltre added a solo homer as the Rangers snapped their season-high, eight-game losing streak and won for just the second time in 13 road games.

"It was a solid game all the way around," Rangers manager Ron Washington said. "We made all the plays. That's the way we have to continue to play."

Promoted from Triple-A Round Rock on Thursday, Arencibia was booed by the crowd of 38,012 before each of his at-bats, but silenced his detractors with a first-pitch homer off R.A. Dickey (7-10) in the seventh, his second.

"It's kind of flattering when they boo you. It gives you a little bit more fire," Arencibia said.

Arencibia caught Dickey's knuckleball during spring training and at the World Baseball Classic last year, but didn't handle the former Cy Young winner again after a trio of passed balls on opening night in 2013.

"I got to catch it and I really didn't catch it," Arencibia said. "It's a little bit easier to try and take swings at it."

Washington said Arencibia gives the Rangers "some threat" in the lineup, and was pleased to see him succeed on his return.

"I hope it gives him confidence," Washington said. "He certainly didn't lack it when he arrived here from the minor leagues."

Darvish (9-5) won for the first time in three starts, allowing one run and five hits in 6 2/3 innings. He reached the 10-strikeout plateau for the sixth time this season, all in his past 12 starts.

"Darvish was outstanding," Blue Jays manager John Gibbons said. "He can carve you up pretty good."

The Blue Jays went 0 for 10 with runners in scoring position and left nine stranded.

"They had some traffic on the bases and (Darvish) was able to make some pitches in those situations and shut the inning down," Washington said.

Beltre opened the scoring with a leadoff drive in the fifth. Two outs later, Arencibia was hit by a pitch and scored on Rougned Odor's triple. Odor finished 3 for 4, coming within a homer of the cycle.

Colby Rasmus connected off Darvish to begin the bottom of the seventh, Toronto's first homer in five games. One out later, Josh Thole walked and went to third on Munenori Kawasaki's ground-rule double. Darvish left after getting Jose Reyes to fly out, and Neal Cotts came on to retire Melky Cabrera.

Cotts struck out three batters around Dioner Navarro's single in the eighth and Joakim Soria finished for the Rangers.

Dickey lost for the sixth time in seven starts, allowing five runs and six hits in seven innings. The right-hander, who walked none and struck out seven, has received only five runs of support over his past four starts.

Lawyer: Clippers sale could miss August deadline

By Linda Deutsch
Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A lawyer for the man offering to buy the Los Angeles Clippers for $2 billion told a judge Friday that Donald Sterling's stalling tactics are threatening to doom the sale by pushing it past a contractual deadline.

At a hearing to set parameters for the rest of a probate trial, attorney Adam Streisand implored the judge to make a swift decision when hearings conclude July 28.

He said the final deadline for closing the deal with former Microsoft CEO Steve Ballmer was extended by a month, but "the deal ends on Aug. 15."

A month later, the NBA can seize the team and sell it at auction, Streisand said.

Sterling has vowed he'll never sell the team and is suing to block his wife's single-handed deal to do so after the NBA banned him for life for making racist statements. He has denied he is a racist from the witness stand.

Streisand said a ruling in favor of Shelly Sterling would set off lengthy appeals that also could stop the sale. Outside court, he said Donald Sterling's refusal to sell the team is "a suicide mission by a madman."

In spite of the looming deadlines, Sterling's attorney, Gary Ruttenberg, who weighed in by phone, asked to further delay proceedings, insisting, "This case has been railroaded on a bullet train."

Superior Court Judge Michael Levanas disagreed and said the schedule was clear from the beginning. When Ruttenberg asked for time to obtain review of that ruling from an appellate court, the judge said curtly, "That's denied."

Levanas also barred Sterling's lawyers from calling opposing counsel to the witness stand. He also rejected a bid to strike the testimony and reports of two doctors who found the 80-year-old has Alzheimer's disease and is incapable of acting as administrator of the family trust that owns the Clippers. Their finding is what opened the door for Shelly Sterling to broker the team's sale.

Three days of hearings, at which Donald and Shelly Sterling may return to the witness stand, begin Monday.

Attorney Pierce O'Donnell, who represents Shelly Sterling, told reporters her legal team has decided against challenging Donald Sterling's competency in court because it would lead to "a battle of the experts" that would prolong the trial.

Streisand said Donald Sterling is motivated by ego in stalling the sale, despite the incredible value he'd get for the team.

ASTROS

From 1B

Aiken was just the third high school pitcher to be selected first overall when he was taken last month, joining fellow lefties Brien Taylor (1991, Yankees) and David Clyde (1973, Rangers). He was also the first high school lefty to be drafted in the first five picks since Adam Loewen went fourth overall to Baltimore in 2002. Both Aiken and Nix have committed to UCLA and are being advised by Casey Close.

The Astros were the first team to select first in three consecutive drafts, picking shortstop Carlos Correa in 2012 and right-hander Mark Appel last year.

Aiken has terrific control of a fastball that hits 96-97 mph, a knee-buckling curve and a tough change-up that sits in the low- to mid-80s. On draft day, Astros general manager Jeff Luhnow raved: "It's the most advanced high school pitcher I've ever seen in my entire career."

"He has command like I've never seen before of his stuff," the GM said.

Stewart back racing sprint cars after wreck

Associated Press

Tony Stewart was back in a sprint car on Friday night, the same series he raced in when he broke two bones in his right leg.

It was unknown if this is Stewart's first sprint car race this season because he didn't announce when he'd compete. Stewart is available because the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series is off this weekend.

Stewart's runs were posted on Facebook and Twitter. Dirt track star Dustin Daggett tweeted a photo of Stewart's No. 14 car at Tri-City Motor Speedway in Auburn, Michigan. Daggett also tweeted, "Raced hard in heat against Tony Stewart! But we got him, now for the Feature!"

Stewart crashed last year at Southern Iowa Speedway in Oskaloosa, where he flipped his 360 winged sprint car while leading with five laps remaining in the 30-lap feature. He missed the final 15 Cup races last year after breaking his leg in two places.

Stewart posted several pictures to his new Twitter account in May of a car he drove for a test session. He also posted that the car had safety improvements to the torque tube to prevent an injury such as the one he suffered.

WHITE SOX 3
ASTROS 2

CHICAGO — Slump-ridden Tyler Flowers drove in the go-ahead run with a seventh-inning double, and four Chicago pitchers retired the final 22 batters to lift the White Sox to a 3-2 victory over the Houston Astros on Friday night.

Alejandro De Aza singled off Scott Feldman and stole second before Flowers delivered the game-winning hit. He entered the game with only 12 hits in his last 116 at-bats, and a .218 batting average overall.

Daniel Webb (5-2) retired the six batters he faced in relief of Jose Quintana to earn the victory. Zach Putnam pitched a scoreless inning for his second save of the season.

After Quintana allowed a pair of unearned runs, he set down the final 10 batters he faced. The left-hander allowed three hits and two walks in five innings.

INDIANS 9
TIGERS 3

DETROIT — Jason Kipnis hit a tiebreaking, three-run homer and Asdrubal Cabrera sent the next pitch over the right-field fence to cap a seven-run seventh inning and help the Cleveland Indians beat the Detroit Tigers 9-3 on Friday night.

Kipnis hit another home run, a solo shot, in the Indians' two-run ninth.

Trevor Bauer (4-4) gave up three runs on six hits over six innings.

Detroit's Anibal Sanchez (6-4) retired the first seven batters he faced and had a 3-0 lead. He ended up giving up four runs, six hits, walking one and striking out seven in an uneven performance.

The AL Central-leading Tigers won 17 of 23 games going into the All-Star break. Cleveland has won seven of its last 10 games.

RED SOX 5
ROYALS 4

BOSTON — Jonny Gomes hit a go-ahead two-run pinch homer in the sixth after another two-run shot in the inning by Xander Bogaerts and the Boston Red Sox beat the Kansas City Royals 5-4 on Friday night.

The Red Sox maintained their momentum after winning four of their last five games before the All-Star game. They entered the break in last place in the AL East but were coming off Clay Buchholz's 11-0 complete-game win over Houston, their season high for runs.

Buchholz (5-5) allowed four runs in six innings against Kansas City. Koji Uehara allowed Omar Infante's two-out double in the ninth but got his 19th save in 21 chances.

BREWERS 4
NATIONALS 2

WASHINGTON — Scooter Gennett and Khris Davis homered and Kyle Lohse pitched seven strong innings to help the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Washington Nationals 4-2 in a meeting of division leaders Friday night.

Aramis Ramirez added a two-run single for the NL Central leading Brewers.

Lohse (10-4) picked up his first win since June 22. He allowed 10 hits, but just a run over seven innings as Washington went 1 for 10 with runners in scoring position.

Milwaukee shortstop Jean Segura was back in the lineup, a week after the sudden passing of his 9-month-old son, and went 1 for 4.

Bryce Harper had a homer and two singles for Washington, which began play percentage points ahead of Atlanta in the NL East. Francisco Rodriguez gave up Harper's ninth-inning homer, but picked up his 28th save.

GIANTS 9
MARLINS 1

MIAMI — Pablo Sandoval hit a three-run homer off one of his favorite foils, and the San Francisco Giants beat the slumping Miami Marlins 9-1 Friday night.

All-Star Madison Bumgarner (11-7) allowed one run in six innings.

BRAVES 6
PHILLIES 4

ATLANTA — Jason Heyward homered and drove in two runs, Andrelton Simmons had two RBI, and the Atlanta Braves won their third straight game with a 6-4 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies on Friday night.

Returning from the All-Star break, the Braves moved one game ahead of Washington in the NL East. Last-place Philadelphia dropped 11 games behind Atlanta.

ROCKIES 2

PITTSBURGH — Travis Snider's pinch-hit double in the eighth scored Neil Walker to spark the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 4-2 victory over the Colorado Rockies on Friday night.

Walker trotted home when Colorado right fielder Carlos Gonzalez couldn't track down Snider's sinking line drive off reliever Matt Belisle (2-5). All-Star Josh Harrison added a sacrifice fly one batter later.

YANKEES 4
REDS 3

NEW YORK — Jacoby Ellsbury hit a two-run homer, and David Phelps pitched the Yankees to a fast start in the second half, leading New York to a 4-3 victory over the Cincinnati Reds on Friday night.

Brian McCann and Carlos Beltran had two-out RBI for the Yankees, who began a 10-game homestand by winning the opener of an interleague series against a National League contender. New York, with a major league-high 40 home games after the All-Star break, improved to 19-23 at Yankee Stadium.

John Force takes qualifying lead

Associated Press

MORRISON, Colo. — Funny Car's John Force raced to the quickest run in track history to take the qualifying lead at the Mopar Mile-High NHRA Nationals at Bandimere Speedway on Friday.

Force set the pace in his Ford Mustang, setting both ends of the track record with a time of 4.049-seconds at 318.39 mph.

If the pass stands after the final two qualifying sessions, it will be the 16-time world champ's fifth career No. 1 qualifier at Denver and third of the season.

"I made today with confidence early," Force said. "I think everybody was programmed how to run today. We stepped up and started getting there."

Tony Schumacher (Top Fuel), Allen Johnson (Pro Stock) and Hector Arana Jr. (Pro Stock Motorcycle) also were qualifying leaders at the NHRA Mello Yello Drag Racing Series event near Denver.

Day gets another injury scare at British Open

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

HOYLAKE, England— Jason Day won the Match Play Championship, and then played only one tournament (the Masters) over the next three months because of a thumb injury. So imagine the scare at the British Open when he took a practice swing and felt a stinging sensation from his left hand.

It wasn't the thumb. It was his wrist.

"I took a practice swing and something popped in my left side, and it was kind of like a tingling sensation through my hand, and it went straight up to my elbow," Day said Friday after a birdie on the 18th hole for a 73 that assured he would at least make the cut.

It happened on Thursday, and Day said it bugged him the rest of the day. He received treatment and played the second round with his wrist heavily taped.

At least this injury doesn't appear to be serious.

"I've had wrist injuries before," Day said. "And it just didn't feel like it was a harm to me. So I just wanted to get through the round and see the guys, see how it went. And today it was only one shot where it felt bad."

Day said he had a similar problem last year at the British Open, only the pain was in his right side.

BRITISH

From 1B

round as a pro in the British Open.

Woods hit driver five times — four more than he hit all week when he won at Royal Liverpool in 2006. None found the fairway. Woods was 14 shots out of the lead and still thought he had a chance, referring to Paul Lawrie making up 10 shots in one round to win at Carnoustie in 1999.

That was against Jean Van de Velde. This is Rory McIlroy, who has won both his majors by eight shots.

"Two 66s from Rory is a bit special, but he is just that — he is a bit special," Graeme McDowell said. "So he's going to be tough to catch this weekend if he keeps that up."

McIlroy was at 12-under 204 — the same 36-hole score of Woods in 2006.

Dustin Johnson birdied the last two holes for a 65, the low score of the week. That ordinarily would put him in the last group with McIlroy, except they will have company in a historic decision at golf's oldest championship. Because of a nasty storm approaching England, the Open will go to threesomes teeing off on both sides Saturday.

Francesco Molinari (70) will join them. He was part of a large group at 6-under 210 that included Rickie Fowler (69), Sergio Garcia (70), Charl Schwartzel (67), Louis Oosthuizen (68) and Ryan Moore (68).

Johnson had a chance at the claret jug three years ago until a 2-iron that went out-of-bounds on the 14th hole at Royal St. George's. He also lost a three-shot lead in the U.S. Open at Pebble Beach, and missed out on a playoff at Whistling Straits for grounding his club in sand at the 2010 PGA Championship.

"I'm glad and I'm in the last group," Johnson said. "Just go out there and try to shoot a big number."

Four shots can be lost quickly in any major, especially in links golf, particularly in nasty weather. McIlroy followed up a record-tying 63 at St. Andrews in 2010 with an 80 the following day. Even so, the ease with which he moved around Royal Liverpool was more frightening than any forecast.

McIlroy picked up his first birdie with two putts from across the green on the par-5 fifth. But it was on the par-3 sixth, when McIlroy deposited an 8-iron to 7 feet for birdie, that he found that peace and put the pedal down on the rest of the field.

He ushered the pheasant off the eighth green, regrouped and holed a 7-foot birdie putt, chipped to tap-in range on the 10th and then kept giving himself chances on all but one hole until ending with three birdies. McIlroy was in such a groove that with the wind at his back, he hit driver 396 yards on the 17th hole and pitched to 8 feet.

It was only Friday — a fantastic one, not a freaky one — but the kid looked like he was going for a knockout.

"Once I got to 7 (under), I felt like, 'OK, this time I feel good. I can get to 8. I can get to 8, 9, 10, 11, 12.'"

The 17th hole is where Woods fell apart. He started double bogey-bogey and made only pars the rest of the way until his tee shot on the 17th was about 100 yards short and 50 yards wider than McIlroy's drive.

Hanging his head, Woods was walking down the fairway when he was told it was out of bounds. Back at the tee, he hooked that shot closer to the 16th fairway and made triple bogey.

A birdie enabled him to make the cut, a small consolation considering what McIlroy is doing.

"It's not a surprise. He's done this before," Woods said. "Once he gets going, he can make a lot of birdies and he plays pretty aggressively to begin with. And when he's going, he can get it going pretty good."

As for those two secret words that keep McIlroy locked into what he's doing?

"I'll tell you on Sunday, hopefully," he said.

In Alps, Nibali again dominates Tour de France

By Jamey Keaten
Associated Press

CHAMROUSSE, France — If Vincenzo Nibali was looking happier Friday after the Tour de France rode into the Alps, here's why: His top rival fell out of contention, he gained nearly a minute on his next-biggest challenger and oh, he won Stage 13 to boot.

On a sunbaked and melting Alpine road, the 29-year-old Italian, cemented his control of cycling's greatest race with a solo-finish victory that was an afterthought to gaining time on other title contenders.

Team Sky's Richie Porte, who began the day in second, saw his title hopes all but vanish after he lost about 9 minutes to Nibali on the last climb along the grueling 197.5-kilometer (122-mile) trek from Saint-Etienne to Chamrousse ski station.

Ever cautious, calm and understated after his stage win, Nibali noted that three big Alpine climbs still await today and other punishing ascents are on tap in the Pyrenees next week.

"For the coming days, I only know that I have to remain quiet," he said.

But in the winner's circle, where he collected the yellow jersey for the 11th time this year, Nibali perhaps let slip a bit more happy emotion — knowing that a first Tour victory for an Italian since Marco Pantani in 1998 just got a little closer.

"I expect more attacks tomorrow in another very hard stage and next week," Nibali said. "My advantage over Porte is good now. He's the rider I feared the most in the closing time trial."

If Nibali's mountain dominance keeps up — on Monday, he won the only other high-mountain stage so far — the 54-kilometer (33-mile) time-trial in Stage 20 from Bergerac to Perigueux is the only real challenge left in his way.

The unexpected has gone Nibali's way. He surprised himself by winning an up-and-down Stage 2 stage in the hills and dales of Yorkshire and capturing his first Tour yellow jersey. He mastered cobblestone treachery in Stage 5, when 2012 Tour champ Chris Froome crashed out. And then, two-time Tour winner Alberto Contador went out five stages later after a fast downhill crash fractured his tibia.

In a sport where many dominant riders in past years later turned out to be drugs cheats, Nibali confronted the issue of doping a day earlier, saying he expected questions about it. "This theme belongs to the past," he said, crediting recent efforts like enhanced testing and the biological passport to clean it up.

This 101st Tour could become the third straight in which the winner locked up victory from before the halfway point. Last year, Froome was in yellow from the eighth stage onward. In 2012, Bradley Wiggins had the shirt for good after Stage 7.

Nibali took it in Stage 2, lost it in Stage 9, and regained it a day later. He's hoping to take it home after a largely ceremonial ride on the Champs-Elysees in Paris on July 27.

A comeback by a rival would be exceptional by recent standards. After the 13th stage last year, Froome had three other riders within minutes. In 2012, Wiggins had only two. After Friday's ride, no one is within three minutes of Nibali.

The first of two days in the snow-capped Alps lived up to its billing as the daunting final climb of 18 kilometers (12 miles) with an average 7.3 percent gradient shook up the overall standings.

The ride was hot: black tar on the recently resurfaced road to Chamrousse melted. Big crowds lined the route, including fans dressed as superheroes and one as a scantily clad Borat — the Sacha Baron Cohen film character.

LAWSUIT

another 250. The nine named plaintiffs include current ESPN analyst Marcellus Wiley, Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon and Hall of Fame defensive lineman Richard Dent.

It contends the NFL and its teams, physicians and trainers acted without regard for players' health, withholding information about injuries while routinely — and often illegally — providing them with prescription painkillers such as Vicodin and Percocet, and anti-inflammatories such as Toradol, to mask pain and minimize lost playing time.

Lead plaintiffs' attorney Steve Silverman said this week that 500 more players have since joined the lawsuit, which is seeking class certification. The latest group includes dozens who played in the NFL between 2009 and 2012 and told lawyers in interviews that little had changed about how some teams handled the drugs. The Associated Press interviewed three of those players.

Romberg described the Jaguars as "very liberal" in doling out painkillers and called the Rams' training room a "huge free-for-all." He said there were some changes in the clubhouse between his two seasons in Atlanta.

"In 2011, you had to see the doctor first. ... You'd still get your Molotov cocktail, but they were tighter about documenting it," Romberg said.

Roscoe Parrish played wide receiver in Buffalo from 2005-11, then on the practice squads in San Diego, Oakland and Tampa Bay, in 2012.

"I had knee problems in 2010, so I started getting, I'm not sure, I think they were Vicodins, in a small white envelope. I played that game without pain, so it became routine," he said.

"I never saw a bottle. They were always in envelopes," Parrish said. "I got accustomed to (Buffalo trainer) Bud Carpenter giving me painkillers and didn't educate myself. All I cared about was playing."

The Bills declined a request to speak to Carpenter, but said in an email response: "Bud Carpenter strongly disagrees with Roscoe Parrish's accusation."

Patrick Cobbs, who joined New England in 2006 as an undrafted free agent and then caught on as running back in Miami through 2010, said he started taking painkillers to deal with hip and rib injuries in 2007-08.

"It seemed like the norm then. Now, you know what that's done to you and it seems so wrong," Cobbs said.

Six of the plaintiffs in the painkillers lawsuit, including McMahon and Van Horne, were also parties to the concussion-related class-action lawsuit last year against the NFL. A federal judge granted preliminary approval to a settlement nearly two weeks ago.

The former players in the painkillers lawsuit have reported a range of debilitating effects, from chronic muscle and bone ailments to permanent nerve and organ damage to addiction. The players contend those health problems came from drug use, but many of the conditions haven't been definitively linked to painkillers.

Romberg, 34, had three stints inserted during heart surgery just a year after retiring, and said his doctors asked how the team never noticed the heart problems during physicals.

"It could be an anomaly," Romberg said, "and I don't know if there's any correlation. But a lot of pills I took, I look at the warning labels now and a few of them say 'if you have heart issues, don't take them.'"

NFL official 'double rookie' with debut as referee

By Stephen Hawkins
Associated Press

IRVING — Brad Allen is one of 13 first-year NFL officials this season. Making his debut at football's highest level unique is also being one the league's three first-year referees.

"They're referring to me as a double rookie," Allen said Friday night at the NFL officiating clinic.

After being a referee in the Atlantic Coast Conference the past nine seasons, Allen will be the first official since Tommy Bell in 1962 to make his NFL debut as a referee leading his own crew.

"He's worked at the top college level, he's worked the biggest games, he's worked bowl games, he's worked championship games," said Dean Blandino, NFL vice president of officiating.

"And the difference between NFL officiating and college officiating, it's getting closer from a rules standpoint. ... And we've surrounded him with a veteran crew."

Allen was preparing to be an umpire this season after being in the NFL's officiating development program last year. That plan changed with the departure of veteran referee Mike Carey, who hired last month by CBS to provide rules analysis, interpretation and explanations of rules during broadcasts.

The other first-year referees are Craig Wrolstad, who is going into his 12th NFL season, and fifth-year official Rob Torbert.

All the NFL officials are at a Dallas-Fort Worth hotel this weekend for their annual clinic in advance of the season. Taking part are all 119 officials and participants in this year development program, including two women.

Among the games Allen worked during his time on the collegiate level were the 2012 Rose Bowl and the Sugar Bowl last January.

After getting his new assignment, Allen got a congratulatory call from former NFL referee Jerry Markbreit that also included a blunt reminder.

"He said, 'I really enjoyed your work the Rose Bowl in 2012,' and he said, 'But kid, every game is the Rose Bowl in the NFL'," Allen said. "And he's right. So that's the perspective that you have to understand as you go into this."

Allen said the biggest adjustments for him on the NFL level will be the extra administrative duties and increased time commitment.

NFL referee Walt Coleman, the league's senior game official entering his 26th season, agreed that the biggest challenge for Allen won't be what happens after kickoff.

"All the things you have to deal with, the TV stuff, the security stuff and dealing with the crew and all the places you're going," Coleman said. "He'll be fine, but it's a challenge. I would have hated to think that I came into the National Football League as a referee. I was just happy I came in as a line judge and was above to survive that first year, because things happen really fast."

During a session with officials Friday afternoon, Blandino reviewed new rules and points of emphasis for the upcoming season, using video examples.

Among them:

■ Officials can now review recovery of a loose ball, something not allowed in the past. One of the examples used was the NFC championship game when San Francisco linebacker NaVorro Bowman stripped the ball from a Seattle receiver and clearly cradled the ball on the ground inside the 49ers 5-yard line. But officials didn't see that before the ball wound up in a pileup and Seattle came out of that with the ball.

■ Roll-up blocks from the side of a player will be categorized as clipping and be penalized 15 yards. In the past, only blocks from behind that rolled up on the back of a defender were considered penalties.

■ For the standing rule that pass interference applies more than 1 yard beyond the line of scrimmage, Blandino told officials, "a yard is a yard" and to call it tight.

■ There were several clips shown of defenders grabbing jerseys of receivers while running down the field before the ball was in the air. Teams are being reminded of defensive holding, with plans to more closely enforce that foul.

ALDON SMITH SENTENCED TO PROBATION IN WEAPONS CASE: At San Jose, California, San Francisco 49ers linebacker Aldon Smith was sentenced Friday to serve three years of probation and to spend 11 days with a work crew after he pleaded no contest to drunken driving and weapons charges.

The sentence came after Santa Clara County Superior Court Judge Daniel Nishigaya reduced three felony counts of possessing illegal assault rifles to misdemeanors. The judge noted that Smith has no criminal record involving violence, but warned the 24-year-old football star that if he violates any of terms of his probation, he will be sent to jail for 11 days.

Smith was also told to serve 235 hours of community service and pay nearly $4,000 in fines.

Prosecutors said Smith didn't receive special treatment in the case.

The weapons charges stem from an out-of-control party at Smith's house in 2012, where he got stabbed and two people were shot. Investigators later found three rifles in Smith's house that were legally bought in Arizona, but are illegal in California.

The DUI charges were filed after Smith's car smashed into a tree in San Jose last Fall. Police said his blood-alcohol level was twice the legal limit.

NFL TO RESTRICT EVALUATIONS OF UNDERCLASSMEN: At New York, the NFL will limit the number of underclassmen who can receive evaluations for the draft to five from a single school, although special exceptions will be allowed.

Concerned about the record 107 underclassmen who applied for this year's draft, and with 37 of them not selected, the league's College Advisory Committee developed new guidelines for players considering forfeiting their final years of eligibility.

Troy Vincent, the league's head of football operations, said Friday the underclassmen will be advised on their potential to be picked in the first or second round. They also could be advised to stay in school.

Previous assessments dealt with the first through third rounds, and whether a player had no potential of being selected.

Only two schools, LSU and California, had more than five underclassmen in this year's draft. Six of LSU's seven players were chosen, while only two of the six from Cal were drafted.

Qualifications for an exception will be taken on a case-by-case basis by the NFL committee.

BON JOVI PART OF GROUP EYEING BILLS: At Buffalo, New York, rocker Jon Bon Jovi is part of a Toronto group that has retained a banking firm and submitted paperwork expressing interest in buying the Buffalo Bills, three people who have reviewed documents regarding the sale process told The Associated Press on Friday.

It is unclear if the group would eventually want to move the NFL team to Toronto. The club is on the market after Hall of Fame owner Ralph Wilson died in March.

The three people spoke to The Associated Press on the condition of anonymity Friday because the process is private and the Toronto group has not revealed its intentions.

Harris County judge balks at latest Astrodome plan

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Harris County's top elected official said demolishing the Astrodome would be a "silly plan."

Judge Ed Emmett on Thursday voiced his opposition to a $66 million proposal by The Houston Texans and the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo to destroy the historic stadium to make way for green space.

Emmett told members of the Hotel & Lodging Association of Greater Houston he wants to repurpose the stadium instead. The Houston Chronicle reported (http://bit.ly/1p1Nyfs).

"It's an asset that belongs to the taxpayers of Harris County and it would be a shame, because I know that I would wake up in retirement at my log cabin 10 or 12 years later and somebody would come forth and say 'If we just had the Astrodome,'" said Emmett, who chairs the county's governing board.

The Houston Texans and the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo have been eager to free up the area now filled by the derelict dome. The stadium opened in 1965. It was vacated by the Houston Astros in 2000 and declared unsuitable for occupancy in 2009.

Plans released last week show the domed stadium replaced with a green space and an "Astrodome Hall of Fame." A proposed construction timetable ends with the 2017 Super Bowl.

"It's a silly plan," he told the newspaper after the event. "I told them: If you're going to tear it down, just tear it down. I mean, is anybody going to care this is where Harmon Killebrew hit a home run?"

Emmett has other ideas for the stadium.

"The Astrodome is the only building in the world that's 350,000 square feet of column-free space," he said. "There are a lot of creative people in the world who would love to figure out ways to use the space if we just keep it and make it an option for them."

The newspaper reports that The Rodeo declined to comment and that The Texans did not respond by press time.

ROUNDUP

WOZNIACKI THROUGH TO ISTANBUL SEMIFINALS: At Istanbul, top-seeded Caroline Wozniacki of Denmark advanced to the semifinals of the Istanbul Cup on Friday after being taken to three sets by eighth-seeded Karolina Pliskova of the Czech Republic.

Wozniacki, who served six aces and saved four of five break points, won 6-1, 3-6, 6-2.

She was joined by second-seeded Roberta Vinci of Italy who beat sixth-seeded Kurumi Nara of Japan 6-0, 6-2.

Vinci next plays Croatian qualifier Ana Konjuh who, in her first WTA quarterfinal, defeated fourth-seeded Elina Svitolina of Ukraine 6-4, 1-6, 6-1.

17-YEAR-OLD ZVEREV REACHES HAMBURG SEMIFINALS: At Hamburg, Germany, the 17-year-old Alexander Zverev reached the semifinals of his hometown tournament by defeating Tobias Kamke 0-6, 7-5, 6-3 in the Hamburg Open on Friday.

Zverev earned just six points in the opening set, but he saved seven of 11 break points and converted four chances to beat his fellow Hamburg resident in two hours.

The 285th-ranked Zverev is the first 17-year-old to reach an ATP semifinals since 2006, when Marin Cilic lost to Feliciano Lopez at Gstaad.

Zverev has also beaten Robin Haase, fifth-seeded Mikhail Youzhny and 11th-seeded Santiago Giraldo. He next faces top-seeded David Ferrer, who eased past Spanish compatriot Pablo Andujar 6-0, 6-2.

BARTHEL ADVANCES TO SWEDISH OPEN SEMIFINALS: At Bastad, Sweden, Mona Barthel of Germany beat Kaia Kanepi of Estonia 6-2, 7-6 in the Swedish Open quarterfinals on Friday.

The 54th-ranked Kanepi was the highest ranked player left in the tournament after early defeats for the top eight seeded players. Barthel won on the first of two match points.

Barthel, chasing her third WTA title, next plays Silvia Soler-Espinosa. The Spaniard — a first-time finalist in Strasbourg in May — beat Russia's Alexandra Panova 6-3, 6-2.

Teen's homebody parents prefer to lead a quiet life

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: Neither of my parents do anything for fun. When Dad comes home from work, he either reads the newspaper or takes a nap. If Mom has free time after finishing the housework or running errands, she watches the news on TV or goes to bed early.

I never thought it was unusual because it has been this way since I was growing up. But once I was in high school, I started hearing classmates talk about their parents' friends or hobbies and I realized my parents are different. They don't even listen to music or read books.

When I want to go out with friends, my parents act annoyed and wonder why I want to go out instead of staying at home. Are there other people out there like this, or are my folks unusual? — MYSTIFIED IN MAINE

DEAR MYSTIFIED: At the end of a busy day, many people want to simply unwind rather than look for things to do. Reading the newspaper, napping or watching the television news are some of the ways they do that. While your parents may be more introverted than those of your classmates, I don't think they are particularly unusual.

The question you should ask yourself is, "Is their relationship working for them?" And if the answer is yes, be glad. What's natural for some families isn't for everyone, and neither is their idea of what's fun.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 15-year-old girl and my favorite teacher, "Mr. Brown," is going to another state with some other teachers to start a new school. I'll miss him dearly because he is funny and charismatic.

We have an average student-teacher relationship, but I still would like to stay in contact with him and see how he's doing. Is there any way I can maintain our relationship and contact him on my own to show that I miss him? — TEEN IN NEW HAVEN

DEAR TEEN: If he hasn't already left your district, I suppose you could tell him he has been your favorite teacher and ask for his email address. He may be willing to share it with you, but if he and the other teachers are starting a new school, you can bet they are going to be extremely busy and focused on that — so he may not be able to respond as often as you might wish.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were invited to a friend's house for dinner. When I asked her if I could bring anything, the hostess handed me a cookbook and said she had marked two items I should make and bring. When I looked at them, I was shocked.

She was asking me to bake bread and make a salad. The bread had many ingredients, and I have never made bread from scratch. I don't even own a stand mixer. The salad recipe was also complicated.

Was I unreasonable to decline the invitation? The ingredients alone were going to cost me at least $30, and the stress was more than I was willing to take on. — AGHAST IN ARIZONA

DEAR AGHAST: I think you cut off your nose to spite your face. All you had to do was level with your hostess and tell her you had never baked bread and didn't have the necessary equipment — and that you were prepared to make her a SIMPLE salad. What was she going to do, disinvite you?

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, July 19, 2014:

This year you might be busier than you think you are. You might have an unexpected responsibility involving an older relative or parent. Your professional life could be dominating your days, which leaves you little time for yourself. You need to make time for your personal life. If you are single, you will meet someone in a most unexpected way or through someone you would never think could introduce you to such a special person. If you are attached, you will want to spend more time with your sweetie. Even with all the demands in your life, you will make an effort to have alone time together. TAURUS has a way with you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★ You might be the source of all your pressure because of a judgment you've made regarding a certain issue. You will be putting a lot of effort into your home or domestic life. A little creativity could save you a lot of money. Tonight: Keep your budget in mind.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★ You'll feel better than you have in a while. Dealing with a grumpy person might not even bother you today. Consider taking a drive to the beach or to the mountains, or meet up with a friend who lives far away. Tonight: Catch up on a loved one's news.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★ You recently might have gone to extremes in living life to the max. The fast-paced life will catch up with you. Slow down, and do only what you must. Give yourself a little time to recharge your batteries. You will be better for the experience. Tonight: Play it low-key.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ Friends will want you to join them. It is clear that you won't be left alone, so you might as well head out the door. Choose your preferred invitation, or do something you have been postponing doing. Tonight: Where the action is.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ Someone could be too difficult and domineering for your taste. You might want to head in a different direction, and you will find a reason to do so. A loved one or special friend will be only too happy to see your detour end wherever he or she is. Tonight: All eyes turn to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ You will relate directly to a loved one in order to understand what you need to do to gain favor with a key person. A discussion could help illuminate this person's long-term goals and desires. Do what you can to make his or her dreams a reality. Tonight: Chat over dinner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ Defer to others. You have dealt with enough flak for a while. You don't need to be responsible for making plans or for giving out suggestions. You actually might be happiest with one close loved one whom you can be open with. Tonight: Mellow out over a good dinner.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ It seems as though, no matter what you do, someone has a better idea. Don't cop an attitude; instead, be open to this person's suggestions. Reach out to a loved one at a distance who you have wanted to speak with. Make plans for a visit soon. Tonight: The only answer is "yes."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ You might decide to pull back and handle a personal matter differently. Given some time, you could complete a project that you have kept on the back burner. Use a window of time just for you. Tonight: Do whatever feels right.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Your imagination could be the source of some intriguing plans. You'll have to decide who you want to invite to this get-together. Follow your intuition, and you can't go wrong. You might find it difficult to kiss logic goodbye, but you will. Tonight: You can be quite a flirt!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ You might want to center yourself and reconsider what to do with a personal situation. Your home life also could be involved in a discussion. A change might be inevitable, so remain open to a new and different idea. Tonight: Invite friends over to your place for a special meal.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Make an effort to touch base with several people you have not had time to reach out to. Do not be surprised if you get a strong reaction from a friend who has really missed you. Understand what this person's disgruntled attitude means. Tonight: Hang out at a favorite spot.

GENERAL INFO

To ensure the integrity of our newspaper, for the benefit of our readers and advertisers, the Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right to revise, reclassify, edit or refuse any advertising. We also reserve the right to convert all advertising into digital and/or print formats within our other products and services.

Please check your ad the first day it appears, and, if you find a mistake, please call our office at 682-6222 so we can correct the error immediately. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. If an error does occur, you can choose to rerun your ad once for free, or we'll gladly refund the cost of the portion of the ad affected by the error. If an ad is inadvertently omitted, we will assume liability up to the cost of the ad itself – consequently, we will publish your ad in our next available edition or refund the price you have paid.

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classifications require payment in advance. Credit applications are required for business accounts.

We welcome suggestions or comments.

HAPPY ADS

Surprise your child, parent, or special friend with a Happy Ad!

We'll help you design something unique and publish it in the Midland Reporter-Telegram Classifieds...whatever the occasion!

Publish a special memorial to mark the passing of a loved one with an "In Memory Of" ad. Include a poem, prayer, and/or the names of all who care. Also, express your appreciation to everyone who brought food, sent flowers, or was there for you when you needed them most with a "Card of Thanks." We'll help you design a respectful, thoughtful ad.

Ads containing art or photos need to be in our office 2 working days before the ad is to be published and we ask that you pay in advance.

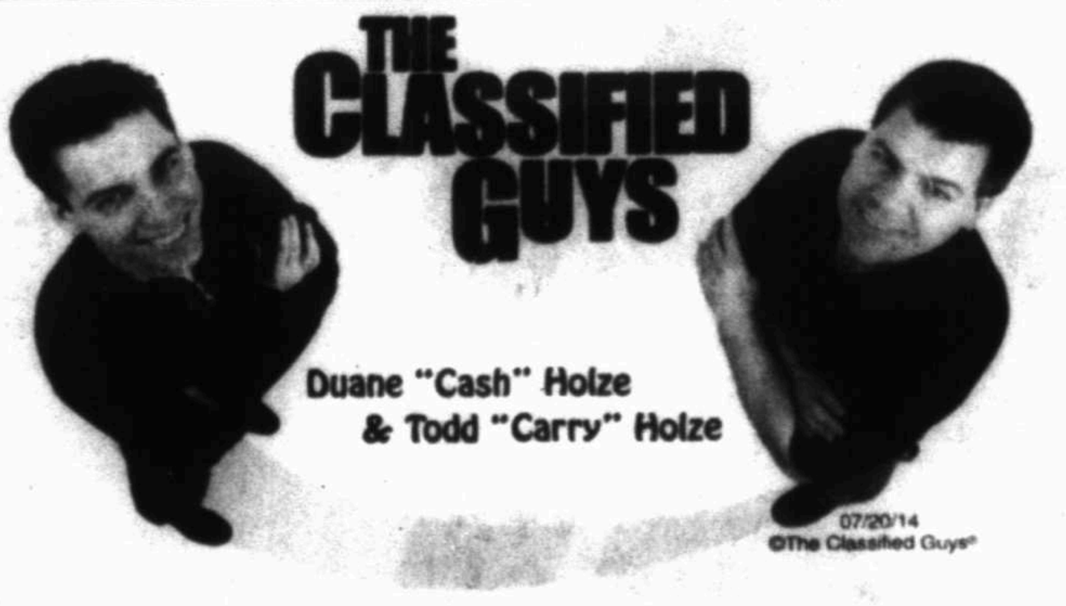
Ask the Guys



Dear Classified Guys,
My wife and I are usually on the same page about most things. We just passed our six-month anniversary and decided it was time to expand our family. No, not a child! I'm not ready for that, but we do want a dog. My wife wants a small dog, like a Terrier, while I want something bigger, like a Mastiff. You know, the kind of dog that says "I've arrived" when you walk down the street. After much discussion we both compromised on a mid-size dog like a Labrador or a Golden Retriever. But now we're at another stalemate. I want a male dog because I think it would be better for security and compatibility. My wife, however, is stuck on having a girl dog. She thinks a female would be more protective, easier to manage and faster to train. Since both of us think we're right, we need help. Which is the better choice for a couple like us, a male or female dog?

Carry: After only six months of marriage, you two are certainly putting your compromising skills to the test. However, it sounds like you may have won out on your deal. Most people would consider a Labrador or a Golden Retriever a large-size dog.

Cash: In any case, a pet of any kind is a welcomed addition to the family. It's great that you and your wife are thinking about these things before getting the dog. People often don't consider the size, gender or breed of the dog until it's too late.

Carry: Before you decide on a gender, it's important to realize that every breed and individual dog has it's own personality. So while there may be common traits among male or female dogs, the one you choose may not necessarily follow your expectations.

Cash: With that said, there do tend to be differences among genders. Generally speaking, male dogs typically maintain their exuberance throughout their lifetime. Females can be enthusiastic as well, however they can become more docile as they age.

Carry: Like many guys, male dogs are often more motivated by food than their female counterparts. This can make training them a little easier. However, female dogs have their advantages too. They are often more independent and less aggressive than males.

Cash: For you two, it sounds like it's less about choosing the dog's gender and more about choosing the breed and personality that fits with your lifestyle. And that's probably the best approach since you can't compromise between getting a male or a female!

Fast Facts

Gender Bias

When you already own a dog, adding a second can be a tricky process. Although there are no set rules, expert breeders often suggest that adding a dog of the opposite sex is a good choice. If you already have a female dog, she is more likely to be accepting of a male dog into the pack. Since male dogs often take a submissive role, the chance for altercations is diminished. And if you already have a male dog, then adding a female could be a better choice. Your male dog might be more accepting and have less dominance issues.

Man's Best Friend

With nearly 75 million pet dogs in the U.S., there's a breed for everyone. However, some are much more popular than others. According to the AKC statistics, the Labrador Retriever tops the list as the most popular breed. Coming in second place is the Yorkshire Terrier, followed by the German Shepherd, Golden Retriever, Beagle and Boxer. The breeds of least choice are the English and American Foxhounds.

Best Friends

When we got our new dog, he immediately loved our six-year-old son, Jake. I'd like to say it was sheer devotion, but I think it had more to do with Jake feeding him half of his lunch.

For weeks, we've been teaching Jake that it's best if the dog only eats dog food and not people food. For the most part he follows the rule quite well.

However, the other day I caught him eating one of his cookies and then feeding one to the dog. He repeated this several times until I reminded him not to feed the dog people food. "Remember honey," I said, "Don't give the doggy people-cookies."

"Oh don't worry Mom," he corrected me holding up the box. "These are animal crackers."

If "totally updated" means anything to you as you search for a new home, look no further! 2305 Metz, constructed in 1975, has been updated starting at the front door and continuing throughout the home. Paint, tile, Plantation shutters, crown molding, new fixtures and more are waiting behind this beautifully landscaped home where trees with outdoor lighting add curb appeal during the evening hours. It is situated on .23 acres with 3,305 square feet (per MCAD), and a bonus room not included in the square footage. There are four bedrooms, three bathrooms, two dining areas, two living areas and a pergola on the back porch. Schools for this area include Emerson Elementary, Goddard Jr. High and Midland High.

Doors open to parquet flooring that flows throughout the house. To the left of the entry is the dining and formal living room. Saltillo tile cover the floor in this area and a mirrored wall makes the room appear even larger. Recessed lighting and windows facing the front provide natural lighting.

Relax in the den by the brick fireplace, which is surrounded by built-in bookshelves and cabinets. An arched ceiling and skylight add architectural details to this spacious room. Entertain with your new wet bar, complete with display and storage areas. The house has an abundance of storage including a large walk-in closet in the den.

Move on over to the kitchen where you will find black appliances, tile countertops and backsplash as well as tile flooring. Walls of white washed cabinets are waiting to keep dishes and small appliances tucked away. Sit at the bar for quick meals or move over to the breakfast nook where there is plenty of room for a table. The laundry room is nearby where you will find another skylight, a sink and more cabinets for storage. A door leads to the two-car garage filled with even more storage opportunities including a large closet and a wall of built-in shelves. Access to the side yard leads to a storage shed.

Off the den is a room that is full of possibilities! Game-room, office—you name it! Continue through this room to the sunroom where you can enjoy the outdoors from the inside of your house. Exterior doors lead to the bricked porch and pergola-- perfect for outdoor entertaining.

To the right of the entry is a hallway leading to the four bedrooms. On the left is a bedroom which is connected to a full bathroom. It can be closed off from the bedroom making it perfect for guests to use. All bathrooms have new commodes, sinks, countertops and bronze faucets. The second and third bedrooms are connected by a Jack and Jill bathroom and have windows to the front. In the hall is a huge walk-in cedar closet for bonus storage. Your new master suite features a spacious room with French doors exiting to the side yard. His and hers dressing areas (each with a walk-in closet) are separated by a bathroom with tub and separate shower.

This updated home is waiting for you! MLS #100051 $379,500. More information may be obtained by contacting Sandy J. Hanson at (432)638-3819.
