Hortense punishes Puerto Rico, kills 8

■ High winds, heavy rain snap trees, power lines, sweep away homes.

Associated Press

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico — Hurricane Hortense lashed Puerto Rico with punishing winds and torrents of rain Tuesday, killing eight people as it snapped trees and power lines, swelled rivers and collapsed hillsides, sweeping away homes.

Half the dead were children killed by mudslides or rising water. Police said the death toll could rise once they reach areas cut off by the storm, which passed directly over southwest Puerto Rico before dawn Tuesday.

Later Tuesday, Hortense skirted the northeastern coast of the Dominican Republic, which had been spared from hurricanes for nearly 20 years.

The entire north coast of the Dominican Republic was under a hurricane warning, as were the Turks and Caicos islands and the southeastern Bahamas.

Tourists were ordered off beaches and evacuated from oceanside resorts. Authorities at eastern Punta Cana airport canceled 14 flights after clocking 90 mph wind gusts around noon.

There was a 10 percent chance of the hurricane

Defying warnings

WASHINGTON — Defying a U.S. warning of further attacks, Iraq is rebuilding air defense installations damaged in last week's U.S. raids, administration officials said Tuesday. Iraqi military activity has been noticed in the South which "we are watching very carefully," White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said during a stop in Kansas City. New radar units have been attached to the surface-to-air missiles and the systems may again be able to threaten U.S. aircraft, said a defense official familiar with the details of Iraq's military.

Double blow

WASHINGTON — The Senate dealt a double blow to gay-rights activists Tuesday, voting to reject same-sex marriage in federal law and killing a separate bill that would have barred job discrimination against gays. The Senate approved the Defense of Marriage Act, 85-14, sending it to President Clinton, who said he will sign it. The House approved the same bill by a 5-to-1 margin in July. "This should not be cause for any sort of discrimination or gay bashing," Clinton said, adding that he regretted that the discrimination bill had failed.

MISD trustees agree dress code should be enforced consistently

■ School principals to meet today to discuss cheerleaders' uniforms, enforcing code.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Midland school board trustees credited the dress code for improved student behavior on campuses, but allowed that it needs to be checked for consistency in enforcement.

"I've just heard too many comments about cheerleaders wearing uniforms (that don't meet the code)," said trustee Dianne Anderson. "If they meet the code, OK. But we shouldn't let one group wear something the others can't."

Midland Independent School District Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. said school principals would meet this morning to discuss consistency in enforcing the dress code.

Ricardo Torres, MISD executive director of secondary education, said Abell Junior High School and Midland High School are not permitting cheerleaders to wear uniforms during the school day.

"We should support the principals in what they decide," Ms. Anderson said.

Parents Byron and Betty Hubbard spoke to school board trustees about the difficulty of buying skirts and dresses for girls to meet the 3-inch-above-the-top-of-the-kneecap hem length.

Hubbard said he didn't see how changing the rule from 3 to 4 inches "would have a bearing on discipline."

Council reviews bids for construction of airport's terminal building, parking

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Airport officials gave the City Council a progress report Tuesday on plans for a new terminal building.

Construction bids for a new terminal and parking at Midland International Airport are under review and a recommendation for an award is expected to be made to the council Oct. 8.

The city received five bids — three from companies in Texas and one each from Georgia and Alabama — in the neighborhood of $35 million each.

"They were very competitive, less than 2 percent difference between the highest and lowest bid," Director of Airports Ken Day said.

Inflation because of a delay in plans — caused by a public vote in May on whether to build a new terminal — was responsible for high-

More than inch of rain floods streets, stalls cars in Midland

By Joe Gaines
Staff Writer

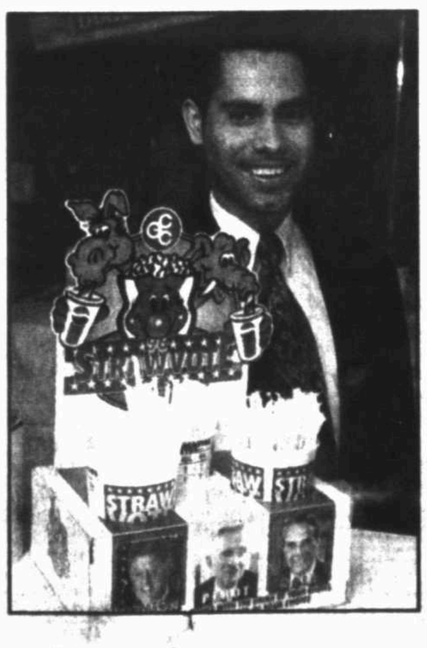

Some parts of Midland had flooded streets after Tuesday afternoon's rainfall, but only a trace was recorded at Midland International Airport, according to a forecaster with the National Weather Service.

NWS radar showed heaviest local rainfalls to be in north Midland. More than 1 inch of rain was estimated to have fallen around the area of Midland College and northern Loop 250, the forecaster said. Part of Loop 250 was blocked off for a while on Tuesday evening.

The heavy rains that began late Tuesday afternoon caused street flooding in the northern areas of town and led the NWS to issue an urban and small stream flood advisory.

In north Midland, police received reports of stalled vehicles at the intersection of Garfield Street and North Loop 250 and

It's not just a Gallup or news organization poll that has President Clinton ahead in the presidential race, but also a national poll of moviegoers.

General Cinema's STRAWVOTE poll uses actual drinking straws to track voter opinion. Every time a moviegoer orders a soft drink between now and Nov. 4, the moviegoer casts a vote for president by choosing a Democrat, Republican or Reform Party straw.

At the two General Cinema theaters in Midland, Bob Dole leads Bill Clinton by a wide margin. Dole leads at Midland Park Mall Cinema with 52 percent, followed by Clinton with 41 percent and Ross Perot with 7 percent, Steve Viera, store manager said.

WEATHER WATCH

RAIN: Today to be partly cloudy

reports of several minor accidents.

The heavy rain was a result of afternoon heating mixed with gulf moisture, which formed scattered thunderstorms that moved across Midland.

The rain was to subside after dark Tuesday as the storms lost energy from daytime heating, forecasters said.

Severe thunderstorms producing heavy rains also were reported in the southern Permian Basin and a severe thunderstorm warning was issued for southern Pecos County.

Rain is not expected today, but forecasters said the chance for isolated thunderstorms across the Permian Basin continues.

Tuesday's rain brings the month's total in Midland to a little more than 0.24 inches, with the average for the month to date being 0.75 inches.

Midland is still behind on yearly rainfall with slightly more than 6.48 inches recorded. The normal for the year is 10.10 inches, according to the NWS.

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and a high near 90 with southeast winds at 5-15 mph.

Tonight's forecast calls for fair skies and a low between 60 and 65.

Thursday's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies and a high in the upper 80s.

The high for Tuesday was 86, compared to the record high for that date of 100, set in 1964.

Tuesday's low was 63, compared to the record low of 51, set in 1935.

STATE

Most of Texas basked under clear, sunny skies Tuesday with warm temperatures being the rule.

Midafternoon temperatures ranged from 97 at Alice to 75 at Marfa and Guadalupe Pass as northerly breezes wafting at 5-15 mph over the northern half of the state. In South Texas, southerly breezes blew at 5-10 mph.

Moist air along a weak cold front brought showers and thunderstorms to parts of West Texas, from the Permian Basin to the Edwards Plateau.

Skies in North Texas will remain clear today and tonight. Highs will be in the 90s, with lows in the 60s.

Partly cloudy skies will again dominate South Texas today with scattered showers or thunderstorms possible in the Hill Country and upper Rio Grande Valley. Highs will be in the 90s, with 80s along the Gulf Coast. Lows will be in the 70s, with some 60s in the Hill Country and Piney Woods.

In West Texas, skies will be fair to partly cloudy with widely scattered afternoon and evening showers and thunderstorms from the mountains west. Highs will be in the 80s and 90s. Lows will be in the 50s and 60s.

NATION

Rain was scattered over much of the Southeast on Tuesday, and thunderstorms peppered parts of the upper Midwest with hail.

A cold front stretching along much of the length of the Appalachians combined with moist, tropical air to generate widespread rain over the Southeast. Showers and occasional thunderstorms spread across Florida and through Georgia and the Carolinas into Virginia.

Parts of the region were still waterlogged from Hurricane Fran, which caused widespread flooding. And on the horizon, Hurricane Hortense was approaching, after battering Puerto Rico Tuesday with 90 mph gusts and more than 18 inches of rain, killing at least seven.

Hortense was moving over the Dominican Republic on course for the Bahamas, and the National Hurricane Center said it has only a 7 percent chance of striking West Palm Beach, Fla., by Friday afternoon.

Showers also were scattered along the Gulf Coast and the Tennessee Valley as the cold front curved from the lower Appalachians across the South.

Another cold front extended from Canada into the northern Plains and upper Midwest, and thunderstorms developed across parts of Minnesota, South Dakota and Iowa.

One group of thunderstorms spread hail as wide as nickels on parts of west-central Minnesota near Ortonville, and nearby Milbank, S.D., got hail up to three-quarters of an inch in diameter.

Hail also fell in northern Minnesota near Grand Rapids and Duluth.

In the Southwest, showers and thunderstorms spread across parts of Arizona and New Mexico, spreading northward into Utah.

Lines of showers also extended across western Texas.

Elsewhere, showers also were scattered over Maine.

Tuesday's temperatures around the Lower 48 states ranged from morning lows of 32 at Craig, Colo., and Jackson, Wyo., to an early afternoon reading of 96 at Palm Springs, Calif. The lowest wind chill was 19 at Sun Valley, Idaho.

CITY: Council to review terminal bids

er than anticipated bids, airport officials said. Nevertheless, costs are within funding availability, officials said.

The bids include various options that will need to be considered before a contract is presented to the City Council for approval.

The lowest bid — from Temple-based MW Builders Inc. — is being scrutinized by city officials and the architectural-engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper. Generally, government projects are awarded to the lowest bidders except under special circumstances.

The low bid for the terminal equates to about $158 per square foot, which is in line with the national average for comparable airport terminals, according to Kyle Womack with Parkhill, Smith & Cooper. That compares to $185 per square foot for a terminal building recently bid in Austin and $160 per square foot for a project in San Diego, he said.

In reply to questions about the experience of MW Builders Inc., Womack said the company has never constructed an airport terminal before but appears to possess the qualities to do the job.

Once the council approves a contract, a notice to proceed with construction is anticipated to be issued in mid-November, Womack said. Actual construction may begin shortly after or be postponed until January so as not to inconvenience holiday travelers, he said.

Noticeable work at the airport will begin with the construction zone — including the terminal building and covered parking — being cordoned off followed by demolition of existing parking and construction of the new terminal.

The new terminal will be built where covered parking and close-in parking currently exists and new covered parking and close-in parking will be pushed back. The new covered parking is expected to be completed within eight months after work begins.

Construction of new covered parking and the new terminal building are expected to go on at the same time. As a result, airport users would be without covered parking for about six months.

Council members discussed the option of postponing terminal construction so airport users would never be without covered parking and the city would not lose about $70,000 in parking revenue. But that would mean a six-month delay for the entire project and about $230,000 in additional costs.

Without the delay, officials anticipate the project will be completed in late 1998 or early 1999.

During construction, three shuttle buses — at an estimated cost of $325,000 for the duration of the project — will take airport users around the construction zone to and from parking and the existing terminal.

In addition, air-conditioned, lighted, painted walkways will connect the parking lot with the terminal.

HURRICANE: Hortense kills 8 in Puerto Rico

striking West Palm Beach, Fla., the National Hurricane Center in Miami said.

The victims in Puerto Rico included a 2-year-old boy killed in a mudslide in the southwest and a 3-year-old boy killed in another slide in the southeast, where two 8- and 13-year-old sisters were swept away by flood waters. The girls' bodies were found under a bridge. Four family members were missing.

Three adults were confirmed drowned, and a woman was found dead — presumably of a heart attack — in her car in a west-central farming town of Lares.

Hortense cut water and electricity to most of Puerto Rico's 3.6 million people. The water supply could be contaminated by rivers overflowing into reservoirs, Scott Stripling of the U.S. National Weather Service in San Juan said.

Hundreds of cars were stranded on highways, which ran like rivers with chest-high water in San Juan, the capital.

A U.S. Navy helicopter and swimmer braved winds gusting to 55 mph to rescue 11 crewmen aboard the freighter Isabella, swamped off the east coast town of Humacao.

The scene at Guayama, 30 miles south of San Juan, was one of the worst.

The Guamani Canal, part of an old sugar cane mill network, burst its banks, washed out the Santo Domingo Bridge on coastal Highway 3, and forced its way through the poor Borinquen neighborhood, carrying away at least 50 homes.

Residents spoke of watching the father of the drowned sisters trying to save the younger girl, only to have the surging waters drag her from his hands.

Jose Melendez, 36, said he and other men tied themselves together with belts and ropes to try to save five people. But they had to abandon their efforts as the swollen river rose ever higher.

"There are a number of people still missing, but we don't know how many. They could be in the sea," Melendez said.

Three families took refuge in a single, one-story concrete home near Guayama, only to be trapped by flash flooding for nine hours.

When rescuers finally reached the home, they found four children and a man huddled on the top of a closet. Five other adults and a child were missing.

Spectators on a bank, who had been weeping and praying for their safety, applauded as rescuers brought a baby safely from the home.

Authorities earlier had incorrectly said the house had been swept off its foundation and was floating downstream.

In the south, more than 200 homes were destroyed or severely damaged around the city of Ponce, civil defense and police reported.

In the worst-hit shantytown, Punta Diamante, Evelyn Rentas came back to rescue belongings from her roofless, flooded home. Among them, she carried a portrait of Puerto Rico's Gov. Pedro Rossello.

At the east coast town of Naguabo, which got a half-year's worth of rain in a half-day with 17.9 inches, people locked themselves inside their homes, afraid to venture out in the deluge.

Iraq events could turn Clinton triumph into embarrassment

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

■ News analysis

WASHINGTON — Round one of the showdown with Iraq seemed like a winner for President Clinton as he punished Saddam Hussein with a shower of cruise missiles. Round two, so far, has a different look: the beginnings of what could be an embarrassment for the White House.

A week after Clinton declared that the Iraqi president was "strategically worse off," Saddam's Kurdish allies swept unchallenged across northeastern Iraq, sending thousands of anti-government rivals into flight toward Iran.

The swift rout left Saddam in virtual control of northern Iraq for the first time since 1991, when American-led forces established a safe-haven for the Kurds. Moreover, a U.S. defense official said that Iraq, defying warnings from Washington, was rebuilding air-defense sites struck by the United States last week.

"At first blush it appeared to be a great American victory, but on second thought it doesn't seem very impressive at all," said University of Virginia political scientist Larry Sabato. "To the contrary, it's looking more and more like Saddam Hussein won. But I don't think that view has penetrated to the broad body of voters."

The turn of events raised the prospect of another round of U.S. air strikes against Saddam. "We are watching very carefully," White House chief of staff Leon Panetta said Tuesday.

The battlefield news was compounded by reports about the execution of CIA-backed Iraqi dissidents and the splintering of a U.S.-sponsored opposition group that Washington had hoped would help topple Saddam.

A week after asserting that reckless acts have consequences, Clinton was talking about the limits of his power to control events in Iraq.

Clinton said there was little he can do as long as the Kurdish factions in northern Iraq — the Saddam-supported Kurdistan Democratic Party and its rival, the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan — are feuding.

That feuding works to Clinton's advantage, said University of Rochester political scientist John Mueller. "If the people you are trying to protect are fighting each other, it's fairly easy to wash your hands of the situation politically."

Despite the setbacks, Clinton's encounter with Saddam still seems to be working for the president.

"This is not a controversial thing," said pollster Andrew Kohut of the Pew Research Center. "He is taking on someone the public reviles. He seems decisive. This action goes with the vision of Clinton as a leader."

Brookings Institution analyst Thomas Mann observed, "This is not a president who needs a bump from foreign policy. He's doing just fine without it. People have already internalized and discounted the fact we left Iraq back in 1991 before the job was done and now our tools are limited."

In addition, foreign policy is never high on Americans' radar scope unless U.S. troops are involved. In this case, Clinton has not put U.S. forces at risk.

"Lobbing a few cruise missiles is easy to do, and Clinton can keep that up for awhile," Mueller said.

Sabato warned that perceptions could change. "Americans do not ever want to believe that Saddam Hussein has ever gained the upper hand. He is the No. 1 villain. That would be quite a comedown from the Persian Gulf War."

Clinton did not mention Saddam as he returned to the campaign trail, but Republican challenger Bob Dole gingerly raised the subject.

"In Iraq as in Bosnia," Dole said, "the Clinton administration should be careful about making claims of success that events on the ground may not substantiate, and about giving assurances that it is unable or unwilling to fulfill. The credibility of the United States is at stake."

The administration dismissed Dole's comments as mere politics.

State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns asserted that the U.S. missile strikes had accomplished their goal: to remind Saddam that he could not threaten Kuwait or Saudi Arabia without facing a swift and severe U.S. response.

But Burns acknowledged that Saddam has strengthened his hand in the north of Iraq.

"There's no question that he has taken advantage of this opportunity over the last 10 days," Burns said. "There's also no question that he is now more limited militarily on a regional basis than he was 10 days ago because of the extension of the no-fly zone. That, in many ways, was the most important step the United States took over the last several weeks."

DRESS: Board agrees code needs to be consistent

nomically," Mrs. Hubbard said.

Parent Sonny Blake said he was pleased that the dress code cracked down on gang-related attire. "As a parent I am seeing the dress code has put the schools back in control," he said, noting his daughter is a cheerleader and her cheerleader skirt is not revealing.

Parent Nancy Rogers said replacing clothing is putting "parents in a position of financial hardship." She suggested that the fingertip rule — having hem lengths no shorter than the tips of one's fingers when the arms are down at the sides — would make more sense.

School board President Robin Hightower said her fingertips come to 7 inches above her knees. "I have short arms," she said.

One student said shorts, skirts or dresses worn 5 inches above the knee are not short or revealing. She said the fingertip rule was preferable to measuring because it eliminates "someone having their hands all over my legs to measure."

'Prior to (code) enforcement, people in the community said we needed to do something about it. I am perplexed at the reaction we are getting, but I think it will be a short-term reaction. What we are doing now is for the long term.'

trustee

Trustee James Fuller said he expected principals to "put the emphasis on consistency" at today's meeting. "We need to be consistent across the board and not make any exceptions for certain groups," he said.

Fuller said he was surprised at the resistance to the dress code. "Prior to enforcement, people in the community said we needed to do something about it. I am perplexed at the reaction we are getting, but I think it will be a short-term reaction. What we are doing now is for the long term."

Teacher representatives said they are working on guidelines for appropriate teacher attire, and are policing themselves.

"Teachers are professionals. We do not have to have a policy (dress code) for them," said school board member Jackie Hamilton.

As an action item, school board trustees set the public hearing on Midland High School's low-performing accreditation for 7:30 p.m. Sept. 30 at the school.

Midland Educators Association President Teresa Marmolejo announced that MISD bus driver Shirley Howard was featured in the September issue of Today magazine, a publication of National Educators Association. She was featured, in part, for stressing the importance of homework to the children who ride her bus.

POLL: Clinton leads in nationwide STRAWVOTE

(From 1A)

Cinema with 60 percent, Clinton at 30 percent and Perot with 10 percent, Joyce Hollowell, store manager said.

But according to national results, Clinton leads with 45.8 percent, followed by Dole with 37.5 percent and Perot with 16.7 percent, with 153,224 voting, said Jennifer Witte[illegible]auer of General Cinema Theatres.

Each evening theater managers count the STRAWVOTE totals and send the results electronically to the company's headquarters. The national results are then tabulated and sent back to theaters for display in lobbies, giving moviegoers an idea on how the nation will vote on Election Day, Ms. Wittenbauer said.

The survey started this past weekend at the company's 193 theaters across the country. It is the eighth consecutive STRAWVOTE poll by General Cinema and each poll has accurately predicted the next president of the United States, often within a few percentage points.

The 1996 poll will survey more than 3 million moviegoers. Professional pollsters typically survey approximately 1,000 people. General Cinema's grassroots efforts even will be able to project this year's winner one week before Election Day, Ms. Wittenbauer said.

"STRAWVOTE's accuracy can be attributed to the sheer number of votes and the fact that moviegoers represent such a broad cross-section of America," said Page Thompson, vice president of theater marketing for General Cinema.

In the 1992 election, General Cinema predicted 40 percent for Bill Clinton, 35 percent for George Bush and 25 percent for Ross Perot. The actual results were 43 percent for Clinton, 38 percent for Bush and 19 percent for Perot, Wittenbauer said.

In 1988, the STRAWVOTE poll was 1 percentage point from the actual vote. General Cinema predicted 55 percent for Bush and 45 percent for Dukakis. The actual results were 54 percent for Bush and 46 percent for Dukakis, Ms. Wittenbauer said.

Saddam offers amnesty to prevent exodus by Kurds, lifts trade, travel barriers

■ Leader's Kurdish allies flaunt new authority over Sulaymaniyah after collapse of U.S.-declared 'safe haven.'

Associated Press

SULAYMANIYAH, Iraq — Saddam Hussein wasted no time Tuesday in reasserting control of the north of his country after the collapse of a U.S.-declared "safe haven," lifting trade and travel barriers that had stood since the Gulf War.

Saddam's Kurdish allies flaunted their new authority over this northeastern city, parading through the streets and looting the headquarters of their vanquished rivals for trophies — even toilet seats and light bulbs.

Tens of thousands of Kurds fled Sulaymaniyah for the rugged hills of nearby Iran after the Baghdad-backed Kurdistan Democratic Party rolled into the city on Monday night.

U.N. officials estimated up to 300,000 Kurds might have left, but many refugees started returning home Tuesday, by truck and taxi and on foot, reassured by news that Saddam's troops had not entered the city.

Saddam sought to discourage an exodus, declaring a general amnesty for all Kurds and lifting travel and trade restrictions between Iraq and the northern semi-autonomous Kurdish areas imposed at the end of the 1991 Persian Gulf War.

The full ramifications of the announcement were not immediately clear. But Saddam and his Kurdish allies clearly had effectively eliminated the Kurdish "safe haven" established by U.S.-led forces five years ago.

A State Department spokesman ridiculed Saddam's amnesty offer, saying past treachery made the gesture "laughable, almost comical."

"He gave a pardon to his son-in-law and then had him executed," Nicholas Burns said in Washington. "He tried to make up with the Iraqi Kurds five years ago and then tried to destroy them."

The latest fighting in northern Iraq began Aug. 31, when the Iraqi army and the Kurdistan Democratic Party teamed up to capture Irbil, the de facto Kurdish capital in the north.

U.S. missile strikes against southern Iraq last week seemed to deter the Iraqi army from taking part in further fighting, although Burns said Iraqi intelligence, military and security advisers apparently continued to aid the KDP. With Iraqi forces marching behind the KDP, the faction has easily defeated its Kurdish rival, the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan.

In addition to launching missiles against Iraqi military installations, the U.S. and allied nations expanded the so-called "no-fly zone" in southern Iraq.

Saddam retorted not only by announcing he would no longer honor the no-fly zones but also by ordering his forces to shoot at U.S. and allied aircraft.

Iraq claimed Tuesday it fired three surface-to-air missiles at allied aircraft over the no-fly zone, but no hits were reported. It was the fourth time in five days Iraq has reported shooting at warplanes over the zone.

In Sulaymaniyah, Iraqi troops were nowhere in sight Tuesday as the KDP celebrated its sweeping victory with an impromptu parade. Fighters carrying AK-47 rifles rode through the streets in pickup trucks decorated with yellow flags and streamers. Women and children dressed in yellow — the party color — and merchants hastily plastered photocopied pictures of KDP leader Massoud Barzani on their store windows.

About 20 miles northeast of Sulaymaniyah, KDP fighters looted everything they could carry from the headquarters of the Iranian-allied PUK.

Soldiers and villagers towed away air conditioners, wire, pipes — even light bulbs. One old man stumbled away with three fluorescent light tubes, a large ceramic urn and a toilet seat.

At the nearby two-story villa of PUK leader Jalal Talabani, looters filled trucks with furniture not completely destroyed in a fire. KDP soldiers claimed Talabani ordered the blaze set when it was certain that the town would be overrun.

The one object that survived the fire unscathed was a large sculpture in front of the villa in the form of the PUK emblem: a hand grasping a red flower.

"What about this?" a KDP fighter yelled to the others, holding up a coffee table missing a leg.

"Throw it in," said the truck driver. The table was tossed into the load to be carted away.

At a nearby hilltop, KDP fighters picked through a hut, taking blankets, kerosene lamps and some bedding. "Wait a second," one said. He ran back and unscrewed a light bulb.

The KDP also took artillery shells and ammunition from the blackened armory.

"It's much better doing this than having them shooting at you," said Hassan Abdul, an 18-year-old KDP fighter, as he carried a mortar shell above his head.

In Sulaymaniyah, only a few leading PUK members chose to remain.

"I don't think we're in any danger, only Talabani and about 10 other important PUK members are the ones whose lives are at risk," said Majid Haji Ahmed, a senior member of the PUK council in Sulaymaniyah. "It's better than being a refugee."

But many Kurds showed little faith in Saddam after so many harsh crackdowns directed at them in the past.

In Geneva, Rupert Colville, a spokesman for the U.N. refugee agency, said 75,000 Kurds were heading for — or were at — the Iran-Iraq border town of Panjwin. Some of those fleeing threw stones at U.N. vehicles in apparent frustration.

The Iranian government said 200,000 refugees were massed at the border with Iraq, and it gave conflicting signals about whether they would be allowed in.

In Baghdad, Foreign Minister Mohammed Saeed al-Sahhaf announced the amnesty on state television, saying the only people excluded were those who committed murder, rape or stole state property.

U.N. approves global treaty to prohibit nuclear testing

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The General Assembly voted overwhelmingly Tuesday to endorse a global treaty that would ban all nuclear test blasts. President Clinton called the vote a "step toward lifting the cloud of nuclear fear."

The endorsement opens the door for the treaty to be signed by U.N. member states, although it must overcome strong opposition from India if it is ever to take effect.

"We are taking the next crucial step toward lifting the dark cloud of nuclear fear that has hung over the world for 50 years now," Clinton said from Kansas City after the 158-3 vote.

"With this treaty, we are on the verge of realizing a decades-old dream that no nuclear weapons will be detonated anywhere on the face of the earth," said Clinton, who is expected to sign the pact when he visits New York for the General Assembly in two weeks.

India, which carried out its only test blast in 1974, voted against the agreement and said it would not endorse the treaty, blocking it from becoming law. Libya and Bhutan also voted against the treaty.

"India will never sign this unequal treaty. Not now. Not later," Indian representative Arundhati Ghose told the assembly.

India has said the treaty is flawed because it does not include provisions for disarmament. India also said the major powers could refine their arsenals despite the treaty by using highly advanced tests that did not involve nuclear explosions.

India's rival, Pakistan, said it would not sign the agreement either, although it voted for the pact Tuesday.

The treaty must be signed and ratified by the 44 nations known to have nuclear weapons capability, including India and Pakistan, to have the force of law.

The five declared nuclear powers — the United States, Russia, France, Britain and China — support the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. The five major nuclear powers have detonated all but one of the 2,045 known test blasts carried out since 1945.

The endorsement "is a milestone in our transition from the Cold War era to a new and safer time," U.S. Ambassador Madeleine Albright said.

U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali applauded the vote, saying the "prohibition of nuclear weapons tests is an important first step toward nuclear disarmament and the future elimination of all nuclear weapons from the face of the earth."

The overwhelming support from the General Assembly could pressure countries to honor the ban even if they refuse to sign the agreement. Only Cuba, Lebanon, Syria, Tanzania and Mauritius abstained from Tuesday's vote.

Royal sex scandal stuns principality

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Boy meets girl. Whir, click. Boy marries girl, even though she's a princess and he's her bodyguard. Boy meets another girl and romps with her at poolside. Whir, click, click.

With the whine of a photographer's motor drive, Europe's oldest and most laid-back monarchy is mired once again in muck. Paparazzi, who follow every move of Princess Stephanie and her blue-collar husband, have captured his infidelity in grainy photos for the world to see.

The salacious photos are banned in this placid principality on the sun-kissed French Riviera, but they are hawked in magazines in nearby France and Italy.

"Scandalous? That goes without saying," said Veronique Roca. She was selling fruit in the shadows of the royal palace, perched like a fortress on a cactus-studded cliff overlooking Monaco's palms and pink-washed stucco villas.

"I think it's terrible," she said. "He was in paradise and didn't appreciate it."

"He" is Daniel Ducruet, whose tryst with Belgian stripper Fili Houteman sent Stephanie and their two young children into hiding.

Even worse than the infidelity itself, some say, Ducruet has tarnished the image of the Grimaldi dynasty just as it prepares to celebrate 700 years of rule in what has become a ritzy tax haven.

In cover stories this week, Paris Match and other popular French magazines liken the affair to Britain's royal divorce and to the sex scandal that just forced Dick Morris, an adviser to President Clinton, to resign.

RATE CONTROL CD

ANNUAL PERCENTAGE YIELD*

Your First 11-Month Renewal Comes With Our Guaranteed Interest Rate.

If you're like most people, it's getting pretty hard to second-guess interest rates. They've gone way down. Some say now they're going up. Tough to know what to do. That's why Norwest has introduced the Rate Control CD.

Open a Rate Control CD, and Norwest will guarantee the rate for your first 11-month renewal. If rates go up, your CD can earn the current rate at maturity—but if rates go down or stay level, you can just leave this auto-renewing CD in place to earn the same 6.00% APY (annual percentage yield). Your interest earnings can be applied to your Norwest checking or savings account, or applied to your CD balance.

That's just like Norwest Bank. A new CD that starts out great and keeps your options open.

"This is our kind of investment —cut the best deal you can, and keep your options open."

Yeltsin hands over authority to his prime minister, rests before surgery

MOSCOW (NYT) — President Boris Yeltsin, on vacation and resting up for heart surgery, formally handed over authority Tuesday for national security and law enforcement to his prime minister, Viktor Chernomyrdin.

Yeltsin will still hold onto the nuclear button, the president's spokesman, Sergei Yastrzhembsky, said. But in a move that seemed partly aimed at curbing the ambitions of the national security adviser, Alexander Lebed, the ministers of defense, foreign affairs, intelligence and the interior, who normally report to the president, will now report to Chernomyrdin.

As the ailing Yeltsin, 65, prepares for bypass surgery this month, the Kremlin is struggling to lock in the chain of command and contain a power struggle that picked up steam when Yeltsin acknowledged last week that he would undergo heart surgery.

The Russian Constitution says that if the president dies or is incapacitated, the prime minister takes over as acting president until new elections are held within three months.

While the decision Tuesday confirmed that Chernomyrdin will run things if Yeltsin cannot, it did not settle who, if anyone, will receive Yeltsin's blessing to run in the next presidential race, which given his health could occur well before his term ends in the year 2000.

As Yeltsin has receded from public view, the three men most likely to compete to succeed him have suddenly sprung up all over the place, doing things that look eerily like the first steps of a presidential campaign.

Lebed is seeking peace in Chechnya by noisily declaring war on vested interests in the Kremlin.

The powerful mayor of Moscow, Yuri Luzhkov, has recently begun voicing strong views on foreign policy and national security matters, and vividly attacked Lebed last week, denouncing his peace plan for Chechnya as "capitulation to armed bandits."

And the stiff, buttoned-down Chernomyrdin suddenly left Moscow last week to attend the opening of a newly restored Russian Orthodox Church in his home village, Chorny Otrog, accompanied by the Patriarch Aleksy II. Chernomyrdin, wearing a tie and a borrowed workman's jacket, also drove a harvester and talked about his log cabin roots.

Russians are suddenly talking openly about political life after Yeltsin, weighing scenarios and evaluating the various candidates' chances.

"Now, when the president's illness is known and nobody knows when the next presidential campaign will be, the question of who will be the next president has become legitimate," said Vyacheslav Nikonov, a political consultant who worked on Yeltsin's reelection campaign this year.

But he warned that unless or until Yeltsin anoints someone as his chosen successor, "they will also start running against each other — and create enough division and chaos for a Communist revanche."

The decision Tuesday reined in Lebed, who had received and asserted sweeping powers over a wide range of national security issues. Lebed, who has brokered a controversial peace agreement in the secessionist republic of Chechnya, is Chernomyrdin's main rival for influence inside the Kremlin — and in the next presidential race.

Lebed will continue to report directly to the president, according to the Kremlin. But Chernomyrdin, who usually oversees the economy and social issues, was given additional authority to decide national security and military matters.

Rebate figures reflecting growth

Midland's September sales tax rebate check was recently received by the city and it was a pleasant surprise — a whopping $933,507!

The September check marked a 23.19 percent increase over the check received a year ago, and the increase underscored the strength of the Midland economy which has been bolstered in recent years by surging retail business growth, business growth that is helping cement Midland's position as a retail shopping center.

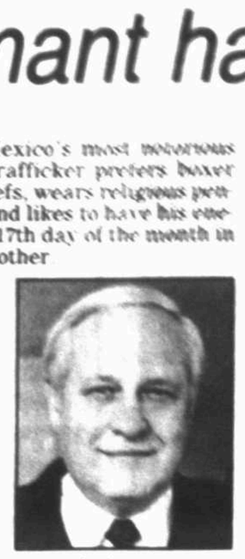

What is interesting is that sales tax rebates for other cities in this area also have shown surprising strength. Odessa's September check, although far lower than Midland's, was still $751,255 which was still 24.11 percent higher than the check received a year ago. Andrews received a check more than 24 percent larger than the one it received last year; Big Spring's rebate was more than 19 percent higher; Lamesa's check was up more than 37 percent; Stanton's rebate was more than 56 percent higher; and McCamey's check was almost 74 percent more than the one it received in September 1995! Seminole and Rankin also registered good increases on their sales tax rebate checks.

The higher rebates could well reflect higher prices to a degree, but not in their entirety. Rather in the cities recording significantly higher sales activity, we believe the booming business activity shows that consumers are feeling more positive about this region's outlook for the future. They're feeling good about our area and their spending echoes that fact!

Informant has goods on drug kingpin

HOUSTON — Mexico's most notorious alleged drug trafficker prefers boxer shorts over briefs, wears religious pendants for good luck, and likes to have his enemies executed on the 17th day of the month in memory of his late brother.

Anderson

Juan Garcia Abrego goes on trial here this month on drug and money laundering charges, and it promises to be a colorful and revealing affair.

Though his lawyers claim he is innocent, Garcia Abrego was long reputed to be the No. 1 drug trafficker in Mexico — a man who pioneered Mexico's highly profitable role in the distribution of Colombian cocaine in the United States.

At his peak, he was believed by Drug Enforcement Administration officials to be personally responsible for 70 percent of the cocaine entering the United States.

A series of setbacks had reduced his empire by March 1995, when U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno personally announced his placement on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted Fugitives list. With a $2 million reward on his head, Garcia Abrego became the first international drug trafficker to make the list.

Despite the setbacks, including numerous defections from his organization and the arrest of at least 75 associates, Garcia Abrego still controlled an estimated $10 billion empire at the time of his arrest. He allegedly had eight machines working around the clock counting his drug profits.

A high-school dropout, Garcia Abrego learned at the elbow of his legendary uncle, Juan N. Guerra, who allegedly made a fortune in arms smuggling, rum running, protection and gambling. "His rise to one of Mexico's top narco-traffickers was accelerated in part by the political clout of his uncle, major Mexican underworld figure, Juan N. Guerra," reads a "DEA Sensitive" report shown to our associate Dale Van Atta. At the age of 80, Guerra still holds court at the same round table in his Matamoros restaurant, Piedras Negras.

Since Garcia Abrego took control of the Matamoros-Gulf Coast drug corridor in 1987, U.S. officials believe his organization is responsible for between 60 to 100 murders. A 1991 turf war with one drug rival resulted in a body count of 25 during a single 30-day period.

He is known as "La Muneca," the doll, not because of his disposition, but because of his youthful face. His personal fortune is placed at more than $2 billion, including more than 80 homes and 20 race horses.

The most accurate details about Garcia Abrego's organization — and expected to surface at his trial — have come from his cousin and confidant, Francisco (Paco) Perez Montoy. Fearing for his life, Perez Montoy turned himself over to U.S. federal agents in August 1993.

The most tantalizing information is contained in the highly confidential 50-page FBI debriefing document we've obtained, which covers all interviews with Perez Montoy from Aug. 26 to Sept. 27, 1993. Here are some of the tidbits he alleged about Garcia Abrego before the latter's capture in January 1995, according to the FBI file:

— "He usually wears a baseball cap of an American baseball team such as the Yankees or the Oakland A's, and sunglasses. He wears a gold and stainless steel Rolex watch and a large gold chain around his neck with 3-4 religious medals such as a cross, saints, etc."

— "He always wears boxer shorts and a V-neck T-shirt. He wears Sans-a-belt slacks and a button front shirt. ... He carries a .22 caliber derringer in a black leather briefcase."

— He is a superstitious man who "carries additional (lucky) charms loose in his pants pocket along with a large gold Mexican coin."

— Garcia Abrego has never been married, but has a current common law wife and a mistress, as well as a string of girlfriends. Perez Montoy claimed Garcia Abrego ordered at least two murders over women he loved.

— He also allegedly ordered the murder in 1980 of "an air conditioning man ... when the technician was unsuccessful in resolving problems relating to the installation of an air conditioner."

— Garcia Abrego liked journalists even less, calling for the "murders of two Matamoros newspaper reporters, one male and one female, in 1986."

— Finally, he had a preference for ordering murders near the 17th of each month. Perez Montoy explained: "Source advised that because JGA's brother Pepe was killed in a car wreck on 7/17/82, JGA always had people killed around the 17th of the month to memorialize him."

School uniforms can offer many benefits

Uniforms end the expensive and distracting school "fashion shows" that too many students and their parents have fueled. ...

More important, uniforms tend to give students the clear sense that school is important. ...

Those who have studied the trend toward school uniforms nationwide say there are other benefits, as well. Uniforms promote a sense of student unity, they improve safety in schools and they improve student behavior.

In many cases, uniforms get a share of the credit for a greatly improved educational atmosphere, which is essential to educational improvement.

Uniforms may not be for all schools and for all kids, but the trend toward uniforms in more schools for more kids is a healthy one.

Ethiopian Jews in Israel face many hardships

WASHINGTON — Maybe, as readers of I Kings 10:13 surmised, King Solomon had an affair with the Queen of Sheba before her return to Arabia. Or perhaps, after the destruction of the Temple in 586 B.C.E., a tribe of Israelites fled to Africa.

Safire

Whatever the origin of Ethiopian Jewry, thousands of Africans who believed in Judaism — relying on the Bible, without benefit of Talmud, and stricter than the most orthodox on certain rituals of purity — kept their faith for more than two millennia.

Threatened by war, persecution and starvation, 50,000 trekked across deserts or were ransomed by Israel and airlifted with U.S. help to the place these gentle people maintained was the Promised Land. The State of Israel extended full citizenship under the Law of Return.

What a heartwarming story. Five years after Operation Solomon, how has it worked out?

Not as well as it should have. Although most live in far better conditions than the misery they fled from, they are poorer than other recent immigrants. Half are unemployed.

Mistakes made in America by social engineers were made anew in Israel. Misguided government policy encouraged segregation, and ahead loomed urban ghettos, welfare dependency and a black underclass.

Dissatisfaction flared last year after health officials, fearing the high incidence of HIV infection in Africa, were revealed to have been disposing of blood from Ethiopian Jewish donors. A demonstration in front of Prime Minister Peres's residence made headlines and elicited apologies, but the far greater offense to Ethiopian Israelis was ignored.

Over half the blacks in Israel are under 18, which should offer a tremendous opportunity to teach and uplift a new generation — but the kids are not getting the equal-opportunity education they deserve.

That upsets Micha Odenheimer, a California-born rabbi who heads the Israel Association for Ethiopian Jews at 34 Ben Yehuda Street in Jerusalem. "We still have time to turn this all around," he insists, "if we go all-out to educate the children."

He's pressing for Head Start programs, tutoring, and free books and software to give the blacks a fair chance at academic, not only vocational, achievement. No more shunting black kids to the worst schools in the poorest neighborhoods. His goal is to raise the percentage of Ethiopians matriculating beyond high school from 8 percent to at least the national average of 38 percent, which the rabbi says is doable in the next few years.

When applied early, such affirmative action works. And a nation with universal military service has an edge in integrating, instilling pride and advancing members of a minority racial group; E.J. officers in the Israeli Defense Forces will be a leadership cadre later.

An unexpected ally in this campaign to prevent an underclass is the new prime minister, who likes to refer to Ethiopian Israelis as "this precious part of the Jewish people." Netanyahu sees that part not as any Jewish white man's burden but an opportunity for his nation to light a candle in the race-relations darkness.

The diplomatic advantage of a multiracial society is obvious (Israel's new consul in Chicago is a young woman born in Ethiopia). But the equal-opportunity potential for Israel — small enough to be a laboratory, steeped in the tradition of education — would be to serve as a model for race relations in the coming century.

The world could use an example of racial diversity within religious and national unity. Science could do with a rebuttal to hypotheses of genetic inferiority. Blacks and Jews in the United States need every bridge they can build; success of Ethiopian Israelis (don't call them "felashas") would blunt the wedge threatened by the Gadhafy-Farrakhan connection.

That's why, in the week that Jews believe they are inscribed in the Book of Life, I hope that Rabbi Odenheimer's inexpensive cause is enlivened. Though primary responsibility lies with the new Israeli government, Netanyahu should set up a channel for outsiders to participate.

This will not get the media attention of a handshake with Yasir Arafat or a standoff with Syria. But years from now, Israel's obeisance to equality for its African-born children could sparkle, in Shakespeare's simile, "like a jewel in an Ethiope's ear."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 11, the 255th day of 1996. There are 111 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 11, 1789, Alexander Hamilton was appointed the first U.S. secretary of the Treasury.

On this date:

In 1885, author D.H. Lawrence was born in Eastwood, England.

Ten years ago: On Wall Street, the Dow Jones Industrial Average plummeted 86.61 points, ending the day at 1,792.89.

Five years ago: Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev announced the Kremlin would withdraw thousands of troops from Cuba, a move bitterly denounced by the Havana government. In the Middle East, hopes grew for the release of Western hostages in Lebanon after Israel freed 51 prisoners.

One year ago: The prosecution in the O.J. Simpson murder trial in Los Angeles reluctantly began its rebuttal case, as ordered by Judge Lance Ito, after the defense refused to rest.

What sweet political nothings might be whispered in ear?

What surprised me the most about Dick Morris' alleged romance with a $200-dollar-an-hour "significant other" was the revelation that they shared all of the Democratic secrets. Apparently Sherry Rowlands was turned on by politics, and one can only speculate on their pillow talk at the Jefferson Hotel.

Buchwald

Here's my guess:

Sherry: Oh, darling, come to bed and tell me what you brought as a gift for me.

Dick: The latest polls from California. We're climbing back up after the Republican convention.

Sherry: Oh, don't stop — don't stop.

Dick: Things are looking good in Florida and Texas, and the commercials are starting to pay off in Oklahoma.

Sherry: Hold me close, my darling, and tell me we're going to win in Kentucky.

Dick: Kentucky and Arkansas.

Sherry: Is it true what they say about Al Gore?

Dick: What do they say about Al Gore?

Sherry: I was watching Ted Koppel while I was waiting for you tonight. Ted said Al Gore is stiffer than the Washington Monument, but the voters like stiffness. Jack Kemp is almost as stiff but in a supply-side-economics sort of way. I want you desperately, Dick, but before we embrace I have to know more about Clinton's entitlement plan.

Dick: Move over, and I'll whisper in your ear. We are not going to touch Social Security or Medicaid.

Sherry: Oh, darling, never stop saying that to me.

Dick: I pushed the president to sign the welfare bill.

Sherry: Only you, Dick darling.

Dick: I get my kicks every time Clinton raises the minimum wage.

Sherry: When you say things like that, I just want to swoon.

Dick: Would you like to read the president's acceptance speech?

Sherry: I'm afraid I'll go crazy and scream if I do.

Dick: That's what I like about you. You're the only woman I know who goes ape reading a Clinton speech.

Sherry: Dick, I can't believe my eyes. It says here that Clinton is going to balance the budget in seven years.

Dick: He wouldn't say it if it wasn't true.

Sherry: Oh, Dick, please seal that promise with a kiss.

Dick: I think I'm going to have to get back to the White House soon. How much more pillow talk would you like?

Sherry: I want you to stay here with me forever.

Dick: I'd love to, but I still have to worry about Pennsylvania.

Sherry: Dick, do I mean more to you than Michigan's electoral votes?

Dick: A lot more. Why do you think I keep coming back?

Sherry: Tell me if I mean more to you than New Jersey.

Dick: Sherry, I love you, and love means never having to say you're sorry, even if the tabloids find out we are messing around.

Senate passes anti-gay marriage legislation

■ Bill to bar job discrimination against gays is rejected with 50-49 vote.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate dealt a double blow to gay-rights activists Tuesday, voting to reject same-sex marriage in federal law and killing a separate bill that would have barred job discrimination against gays.

The Senate approved the Defense of Marriage Act, 85-14, sending it to President Clinton, who said he will sign it. The House approved the same bill by a 5-to-1 margin in July.

"This should not be cause for any sort of discrimination or gay bashing," Clinton said, adding that he regretted that the discrimination bill had failed.

Conservatives hailed both votes as validation of their views.

"This is a string of major victories for the pro-family movement that demonstrates on the threshold of a major presidential election that the political debate is moving in our direction," said Ralph Reed, leader of the Christian Coalition.

"The drive for the acceptance of same-sex or same-gender marriage should serve as an indication that we have drawn too close to the edge and that we as a people are on the verge of trying so hard to please a few that we destroy the values and spiritual beliefs of the many," said Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va.

The marriage bill defines marriage in federal law as a legal union between one man and one woman and allows a state to refuse to honor a same-sex marriage performed in any other state. States would still have the authority to legalize gay marriages, but the federal government would not recognize them.

"The traditional family has stood for 5,000 years. It is the oldest institution that exists," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. "Are we so wise today that we are ready to reject 5,000 years of recorded history? I don't think so."

Twenty-six of the Senate's 47 Democrats joined Republicans in voting for the marriage bill but also voted for the anti-discrimination measure. The two votes underscored the political predicament faced by senators who historically have supported gay rights causes.

Supporters called the bill a preemptive strike against a lawsuit that went to trial Tuesday that could lead Hawaii to become the first state to issue marriage licenses to gay couples.

The Senate voted 50-49 to reject the discrimination bill, which would have forbid employers from using sexual orientation as a basis for hiring, firing, promotion or compensation.

Supporters said the vast majority of Americans believe that homosexuals should be free to earn a living without fear of hostility.

But opponents warned that the bill would lead to a deluge of lawsuits and said employers should be able to refuse to hire a gay person if they have moral or religious beliefs that condemn homosexuality.

"This bill would validate a lifestyle that is unacceptable," said Majority Leader Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss.

Gay activists said they were disappointed, but would immediately begin lobbying supporters of the anti-discrimination bill to introduce it again before Congress adjourns this fall, perhaps as an amendment to another bill.

Had Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., been present on the Senate floor, he likely would have voted for the bill, making the vote 50-50, said David Smith, spokesman for the Human Rights Campaign, one of the country's largest gay political groups.

"We could pass this with Pryor's vote and with Vice President Al Gore breaking the tie," he said. "We are going to consider moving this on another bill this Congress."

Pryor was at the bedside of his 33-year-old son, who had cancer surgery Monday, said Bo Morrison, Pryor's secretary.

"He felt he could not leave his son's bedside during the very critical recovery period on Tuesday," Morrison said.

Elizabeth Birch, executive director of the Human Rights Campaign, predicted that gays eventually will win the right to marry despite the vote.

"We are appalled over the passage of the Defense of Marriage Act," Birch said. "Denying lesbian and gay Americans equal marriage rights will not stand over the long term in this country. The Human Rights Campaign vows to continue to this fight legislatively and in our country's courts of law and public opinion."

Perot chooses economist to be his running mate

DALLAS (AP) — Snubbed by several established political figures in his search for a running mate, Ross Perot picked economist Pat Choate on Tuesday to share his Reform Party presidential ticket, calling him "a person of intellect, courage, integrity and grit."

Choate is a protectionist and was a strong Perot ally in opposing the North American Free Trade Agreement. He was Perot's coach for a televised NAFTA debate the Texas businessman had with Vice President Al Gore.

"He knows the system as few do," Perot said, announcing his choice in a 30-minute infomercial on CBS. "He knows what's wrong with it. We agree what's wrong with it. His views are your views out there across America."

For his part, the campaign novice Choate said he joined Perot's third-party ticket because government can't be reformed "from the inside."

"It cannot be changed by either of the two major political parties," the bearded candidate said. "...Too many people profit too much at public expense."

Choate coauthored a book with Perot after Perot's unsuccessful 1992 presidential run and recently has traveled the country promoting the Texas billionaire as the best alternative to the two major party candidates. He lives in the District of Columbia and is little known outside of political circles, although he was a frequent radio talk show guest during the NAFTA debate.

Perot's poll standing has plummeted in recent months to the point where he now gets roughly 5 percent in national surveys — well off the 19 percent of the vote he garnered in 1992. An ABC News poll released Monday, for example, showed Clinton with 53 percent, Republican Bob Dole with 38 percent and Perot with 5 percent. In polls since Aug. 27, Clinton has averaged 52 percent, Dole 38 percent. Perot hasn't been in double digits since mid-August.

This shaky political standing apparently made it hard for Perot to attract a major political figure to share the Reform Party ticket.

In his hunt for a running mate, Perot twice made overtures to University of Oklahoma President David Boren, a Democrat, but the former governor and U.S. senator said he didn't want the job.

Democratic Rep. Marcy Kaptur of Ohio also declined an offer. She and Perot see eye-to-eye on NAFTA and other economic issues. Republican Rep. Linda Smith of Washington, an outspoken advocate of dramatic campaign finance reforms, also reportedly was approached and declined.

Still, the pick drew early praise from Reform Party regulars.

"He's not a politician," South Carolina Reform Party Chairwoman Betty Montgomery said. "People need to think outside the box and realize you don't have to have a politician to go and run the country."

Perot and Choate co-wrote a book predicting the North American Free Trade Agreement would cause a flood of U.S. jobs overseas and put pressure on U.S. employers to keep wages and benefits down if they hoped to remain competitive.

Saddam rebuilding damaged radar sites, officials say

■ More national news/4B

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defying a U.S. warning of further attacks, Iraq is rebuilding air defense installations damaged in last week's U.S. raids, administration officials said Tuesday.

Iraqi military activity has been noticed in the South, which "we are watching very carefully," White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said during a stop in Kansas City.

New radar units have been attached to the surface-to-air missiles and the systems again may be able to threaten U.S. aircraft, said a defense official familiar with the details of Iraq's military.

"We're looking at three or four SAM sites that have been what I would call reconstituted since the attack," said the defense official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. "They've put new radars with them. ... The working assumption is the site is operational."

In Baghdad, an Iraqi military spokesman claimed that three Iraqi surface-to-air missiles were fired at allied warplanes in the no-fly zone, but no aircraft were hit. It was the fourth time in five days Iraq had made such claims.

The Pentagon disputed the Iraqi claims. "We've had no such reports,' said Lt. Col. Ed Veiga, the Defense Department spokesman.

In the north, the Pentagon considers Iraq's military push a success for Saddam Hussein, giving the Iraqi leader effective control of the region and chasing hostile Kurdish rebels into Iran.

The rebuilding of Iraqi air defense sites south of Baghdad defies a direct U.S. warning over the weekend that such moves would prompt follow-up strikes. In two separate attacks a week ago, 44 U.S. cruise missiles struck a total of 15 targets.

Asked Tuesday if Saddam's rebuilding of air defense installations could lead to more strikes, President Clinton said: "We will evaluate them on what they do, not what they say."

"We have warned Saddam Hussein that any attempt to repair those sites or reinforce them will be taken very seriously, and he must understand the consequences of such an act," Gen. John Shalikashvili, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said last weekend.

White House Press Secretary Mike McCurry reiterated the point Tuesday.

"We reserve the right to take military action that protects our pilots and protects our ability to enforce the no-fly zone," McCurry said.

The United States is watching Iraqi moves closely with a combination of spy satellites, eavesdropping technology and the reconnaissance brought back by patrol planes. Coalition aircraft are flying 120 to 140 sorties per day in southern Iraq.

"We have perfect vision in Iraq," said State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns. "We know what he's doing."

Those overflights are picking up clear evidence of an Iraqi effort on its air defenses.

"We're seeing a continuing effort to repair sites," said Pentagon spokesman Kenneth Bacon. "He's trying to repair a variety of sites, including those that were hit."

Operating air defense radars exposes the systems to immediate attack by radar-seeking air-to-ground missiles fired by allied planes. Because of this, the Iraqis have been careful not to turn on the systems, making it difficult for the Pentagon to assess what is up and running. But intelligence gathered by the Pentagon indicates the Iraqis have already put damaged sites back into operation.

Educator says Texas facing crisis

■ TSTA Vice President Ignacio Salinas says demands on teachers' time hamper education reform and contribute to high turnover rate.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Texas teacher representatives are traveling around the state in an effort to buy more time for educators. Texas State Teacher Association Vice President Ignacio Salinas said teachers are being buried under a mountain of paperwork and administrative duties that seriously hamper education reform.

"To put it plainly, we can not hope to reform Texas schools, teach the essential elements, teach to test, complete paperwork, attend the meetings, grade the papers, and still have time to restructure schools for the 21st century. It can't be done," said Salinas, speaking at a Tuesday morning news conference at Austin Elementary School in Odessa.

"If teachers are spending 56 hours a week just doing their job, it logically follows that time to be active participants in restructuring schools just isn't available. The losers are the citizens of this state and the children that we teach," Salinas said.

The TSTA vice president said his organization surveyed 1,000 randomly selected teachers during the summer on this issue. He said the survey indicated the average teacher is spending 55.82 hours a week just doing the essentials. The average teacher spends close to eight hours a day on campus, about two hours on school work, nearly four hours a weekend on school work, about one hour a week calling parents, and one hour a week in faculty meetings.

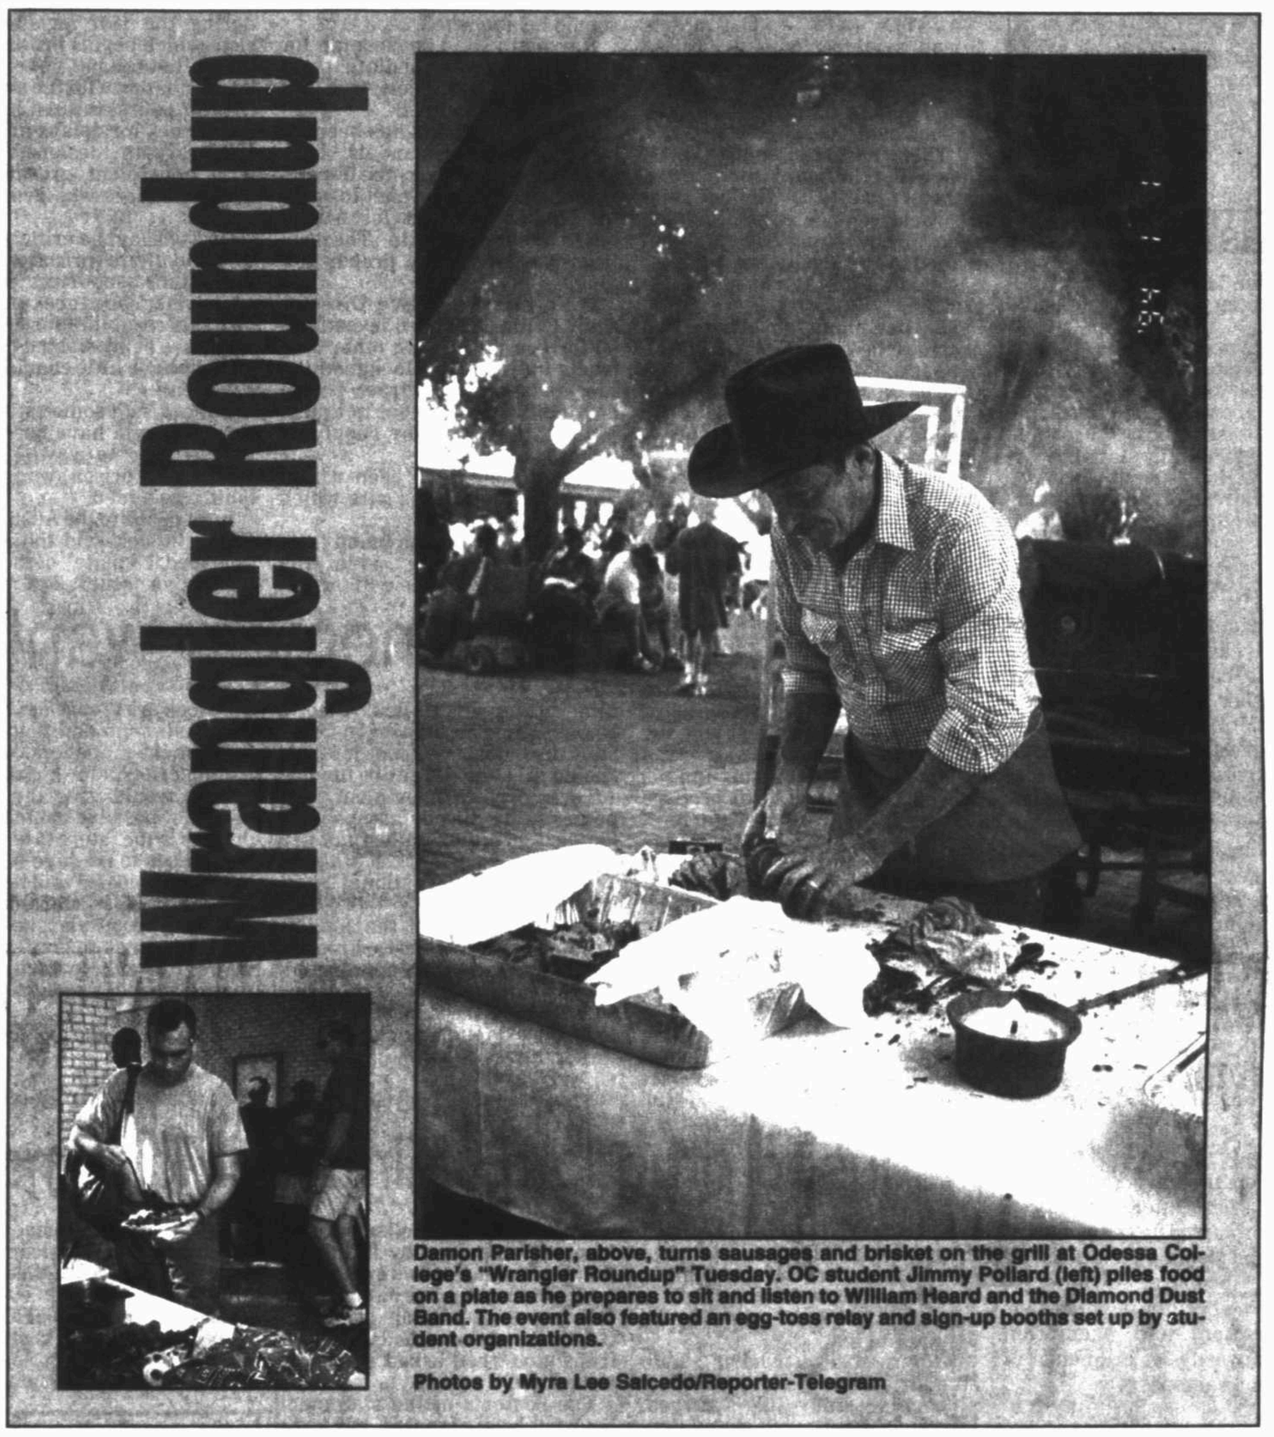

"What makes the numbers even more shocking is that they do not include time spent in other job-related activities such as committee meetings, and they don't require staff development time or professional growth activities," Salinas said. "If teachers are spending 56 hours per week just doing their job, it logically follows that time to be active in restructuring schools just isn't available."

He said the critical shortage of time for teachers to plan, collaborate with other teachers, conduct research and "maintain a personal life" contributes to teachers leaving the profession. "The dropout rate for teachers is more than 50 percent during the first five years," Salinas said. "About 45 survey respondents said they are seriously considering leaving. Add to this the fact that 35 percent of the current Texas teaching force will retire by the year 2005, and the state is faced with a serious crisis in education, a major contributing factor of which is time."

TSTA suggests that no more than 50

Investigator describes death scene

■ Prosecutors in Randolph trial present testimony from Police Department crime-scene expert.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

Testimony Tuesday in the murder trial of a Midland man accused of killing his wife centered around technical evidence gathered by specialists at the scene and from the autopsy.

Daniel Randolph Jr., 40, was charged in the shooting death of his wife, Wanda Randolph, 44. Mrs. Randolph was found lying on her bed at their home at 302 S. Adams St. in the early morning hours of Dec. 23. She was found with one large-caliber bullet wound in her head, according to testimony in the case.

Earlier Tuesday, 238th District Judge John Hyde heard testimony of previous spousal abuse on the part of Randolph, but this was done out of the presence of the jury.

Working from photographs enlarged on video screens positioned around the court, Karen Hare, ID specialist for the Midland Police Department, attempted to explain the death scene for the jury.

Ms. Hare pointed out pooled blood where the victim's head lay after the shooting and spattered blood and tissue blown onto the wall at the instant of the shooting.

Crime-scene technicians also found a spent cartridge casing from a .45-caliber pistol like the one officers found on the kitchen table.

In her testimony, Ms. Hare described a test she performed on the hands of both Randolph and his wife.

The test determines whether or not the person being tested had handled metal recently.

Large purple stains created on Randolph's palms and fingers, indicated that he had recently handled one kind of metal, Ms. Hare said.

On Mrs. Randolph's hands, the test showed orange stains, which indicate she ODESSA — Cowboys rope cattle and sing them songs, yip and yell on the trail, and, if Old West legend holds true, "shoot'em up" when they come to town on Saturday night.

Camp cooks light up the mesquite and cook vittles for hungry cowboys and cowgirls and youngsters who gather around the chuck wagon.

Dancers cut a rug.

Fiddlers and guitar-pickers conjure up Western swing, country 'n' Western, honkytonk, bluegrass, and cowboy music. And entertainers in Western garb sing ballads and heart-break songs.

And much of that, except the trail drive and the shoot'em-up, is but a morsel of what's in store today through Sunday in the 21st annual Permian Basin Fair & Exposition on the grounds of the Ector County Coliseum at 42nd Street and Andrews Highway.

Fairgoers, for a $5 for adults, $3 for senior citizens, and $2 for children 12 and under, also can watch an American bushman named Kachunga wrestle an alligator, a lumberjack climb a tall pole, and acrobats command feats.

The fairgrounds are to be open from 3 p.m. to 10 p.m. today and Thursday; 10 a.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Among the fair's highlights is to be Saturday's Authentic Chuck Wagon Cook-Off that is to feature chuck wagons from ranches in the Hartley, Brownwood, Sweetwater, Stanton, Midland, Poteet, Bryson and Odessa areas.

The Chuck Wagon Cook-Off is part of the fair's Cowboy Symposium that is to feature cowboy musicians, cowboy poets, and cowboy storytellers today through Sunday.

Camp cooks are to be fixing meat, beans, breads and desserts. Chuck wagon teams will be competing for the most authentic camp site.

"All food will be prepared as it was in the Old West and cooked over open fires in cast-iron utensils," according to a Chuck Wagon Cook-Off spokesman.

Chuck wagon bosses are to begin setting up their camps 8 a.m. Friday in preparation for the Saturday noon chuckwagon feed.

Only 500 chuck wagon meal tickets are

Dispute between city, Bird Lady returns to federal court for ruling

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

The dispute over the operation of a bird sanctuary and wildlife rehabilitation center within city limits remains alive and back in the hands of a federal judge. Meanwhile, the sanctuary and rehabilitation work at the home of Midge and Woody Erskine continues despite the city's objection.

The two parties were back in court last week after failing to resolve differences following a ruling by U.S. District Judge Royal Furgeson in November. The judge, last year, essentially supported the city's right to prohibit the Erskines from operating a sanctuary and rehabilitation center in the city.

But instead of issuing a final order, the judge gave the city and the Erskines a chance to settle the conflict without the court's help. That was unsuccessful.

Now the fate of the Erskines' activities — at their 4.4-acre property at 3306 W. Golf Course Road for nearly 25 years — may be ultimately resolved by Furgeson or an appeals court.

The city has asked the judge to issue an injunction forcing the Erskines to comply with the federal ruling and city regulations and cease operation of the sanctuary and rehabilitation center. The Erskines' attorney has argued in the past that such an injunction would terminate the facility forever and essentially make an appeal prohibitive.

Apparently along the same line of reasoning, the Erskines have asked the court to delay any final order pending the outcome of their appeal.

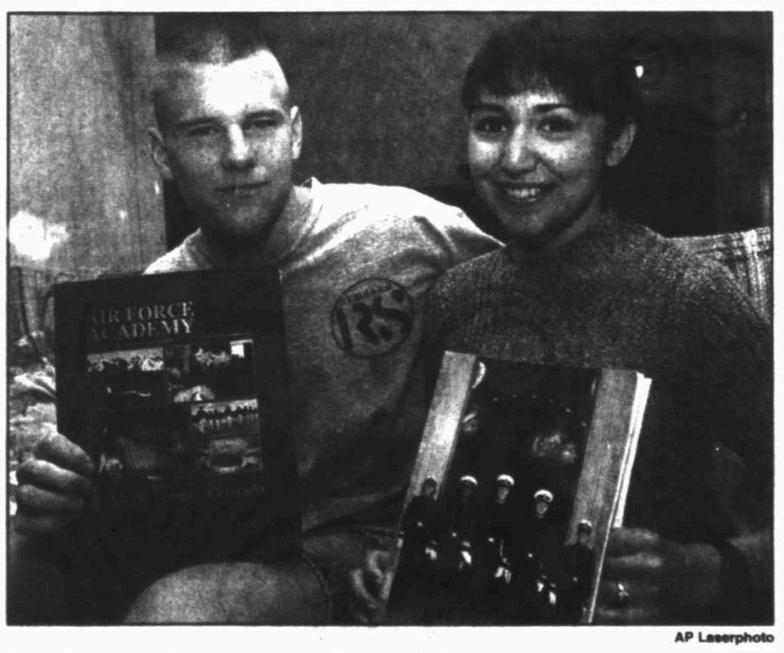

The judge has also been asked to review two other issues — of lesser immediate consequence — in the case.

Both sides want a ruling on whether the Erskine operation is a non-conforming use, a dispute the judge declined to rule on previously because he thought it was a state matter rather than a federal one.

A non-conforming use of a property is permitted if the use existed before a zone change or annexation and maintained in that capacity. The Erskines have claimed their operations are applicable under non-conforming use; the city disagrees.

The Erskines also want the judge to reconsider the argument of estoppel, which essentially means that even if the Erskines' operation was not permitted, it should not be prohibited since it was city- sanctioned and never enforced.

BASIN BRIEFING

Road construction

Construction is to get under way on Midkiff Road and Mockingbird Lane from the intersection of Bluebird Lane and Midkiff to a half mile west of Midkiff on Mockingbird, according to the Texas Department of Transportation. The two-lane roadways will be expanded to four lanes with a left-turn lane. The work zone will be closed to through traffic for the duration of the project, said Mike Chetty, TxDOT engineer in charge of the project. He said that only traffic to and from residences in the area will be permitted.

Citizens on Patrol

The Midland Police Department will be giving an information session for Citizens on Patrol, a citizens crime watch group, at 7 p.m. Thursday, at the Police Department, 601 N. Loraine St. Training sessions will be Sept. 17 and 19. Participants must be 18 or older.

Senate candidate

Former state representative, Gary L. Watkins, 49, announced Monday that he would be running for the 28th District State senate seat vacated by John T. Montford. Watkins is a former Ector County judge and state representative. As a state representative, he served as chairman of the higher education committee and on the appropriations and ways and means committees. Watkins, who is married and has five children, said, "We must rededicate ourselves to seeing that our children have the opportunities and quality of life that we have enjoyed. ... I have always supported the educational institutions in West Texas," he said. "We must educate our children if we are are going to have a better future for Texas."

Officials investigate Dallas church fire

DALLAS (AP) — Arson investigators were looking for suspects Tuesday in a fire at a predominantly black church believed to have been deliberately set.

The fire caused about $100,000 in damage to the Church of the Living God in south Dallas, said Chief Dick Langran of the Dallas Fire Department's arson investigation division.

"We feel comfortable in the fact that it's set," Langran said. "We'll be combing through it some more."

The blaze, reported at 12:55 a.m. Tuesday, engulfed the rear of the church before it was extinguished about an hour later, he said. The sanctuary sustained smoke and water damage.

Langran said he notified the FBI and Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Bullock seeks to furlough prison board

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's prison system "is a great big mess" and dumping the agency's nine-member governing board would help to fix it, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said Tuesday.

"There has been enough questions about the board, members. I just can't justify it," Bullock said. "I would replace it by a person appointed by the governor and confirmed by the Senate and tell him, 'Go clean it up.' It's as simple as that."

The lieutenant governor, who oversees the Texas Senate, said he has discussed the idea with Gov. George W. Bush and TDCJ Executive Director Wayne Scott. He wouldn't say how either responded.

Allan Polunsky, chairman of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, said it would be up to lawmakers to decide. He said it would not be appropriate for him to say whether he believes the board should be abolished.

Ray Sullivan, a spokesman for Bush, had no immediate comment. A call to Scott was not immediately returned.

The prison system has been hit by several recent scandals:

■ Earlier this year, the department had to file a lawsuit to end a $33 million contract for a soy-based meat substitute. The contract was let without proper bidding.

■ Former Executive Director Andy Collins has been investigated for possibly letting other contracts improperly. He signed the meat substitute contract before leaving the department to take a job with the company supplying the product.

■ Questions have been raised about private prisons with which the department contracts.

Bullock said he has found little support for getting rid of the board. But he said he will push it during the 1997 legislative session, which begins in January.

The lieutenant governor has been unhappy with the prison system for years. In 1994, he blasted the agency for delays in the state jail program, designed to work with nonviolent criminals and drug offenders who are not dangerous.

On Tuesday, he criticized plans to build more prison space for maximum security prisoners while other space goes unused. He also said rehabilitation efforts and funds are being wasted on prisoners who have little chance of being released.

Bullock said some estimates on prison growth have been inaccurate. "In some ways I question whether the prison system is overbuilt," he added.

In a speech to the Austin Rotary Club, Bullock said the state has "cleaned it's plate" of most major legislative issues. But he added there are many areas that need work.

The lieutenant governor said some issues that will top the 1997 legislative agenda include:

■ Property Taxes. Bullock said he's heard a lot of complaints but few ideas about how to replace rising property taxes. He said it will be difficult to take action if no consensus is built.

■ Welfare. Bullock told the more than 200 people gathered that federal welfare changes will hurt more people and children than most Texans realize. He said lawmakers will have t work through the changes to determine how they impact the state and its welfare changes approved last year.

■ The state's budget. Bullock said the distribution of state funds to education, crime prevention and welfare will determine the quality of life for everyone.

percent of a teacher's day be spent teaching, to free up time for teachers to work together, to prepare lessons, to confer with parents and students, and for staff development.

Salinas said teachers in other countries, such as China, teach three hours a day. In Japan and Taiwan teachers teach 60 percent of the time they are in school.European teachers average 18 hours a week of direct classroom instruction, compared to 25 hours a week American teachers spend in classrooms.

TSTA suggests flexibility be given in scheduling so that each subject is given the amount of time needed to complete a lesson or task, rather than giving every subject 45 minutes, for example. Other suggestions included having administrators teach classes, teaming teachers together, shortening homeroom, block scheduling, limiting the number of school assemblies and putting them at the end of the school day, hiring substitutes once a month to free up teachers for meetings and staff development, providing aides for lunch, bus and clerical duties, and reducing class size.

Education board member wants outside help

AUSTIN (AP) — A State Board of Education member, saying the staff handling most of Texas' $13.4 billion public school trust fund is overburdened, wants to prepare for possibly hiring private companies to oversee more of the money.

"We've got four people running $10 billion for us," said board member Monte Hasie of Lubbock, senior vice president of an investment company and a Republican running for state Senate. "Four people can't manage $10 billion.

Even the possibility of farming out more of the Permanent School Fund to private managers raises concerns for board member Geraldine Miller of Dallas, also a Republican. She says the in-house staff has done a good job and should manage the entire fund.

Three private investment companies were hired last year to handle $3.5 billion of the fund in a move that also marked its first venture into international markets.

The remainder of the fund is handled by a staff of 11 within the Texas Education Agency, including four money managers. Hasie said he wants the Education Board to be poised to act quickly in case an in-house money manager should leave.

At his request, board members this week are to consider asking for proposals from additional outside investment managers and establishing criteria for hiring them.

That would give the board a choice of possible contenders if it decides in the future to hire private companies to manage more money, Hasie said. He said he wants to get the process started because soliciting proposals takes months.

"This is not to hire any managers. It is only to have the information there if we decide to do it," he said.

Ms. Miller, who argued against last year's move to private managers, said putting out a request for additional managers would be premature.

She said board members had planned to wait until next year to evaluate the outside managers, and that the state doesn't yet have an objective analysis of their performance.

If the internal staff needs help, she said, the answer is to hire more workers.

"Even though it's a small staff, and underpaid, they have managed to keep it (the fund) performing in the top 5 percent in the nation. I don't call that broken," she said. "They are swamped because they have to oversee the external mangers that we've hired already."

BIRD LADY: Erskines, city go back to federal court

(From 1B)

The judge had ruled previously that there was no case for estoppel.

The judge is expected to review these requests and make any subsequent rulings within the month.

The federal lawsuit was filed in March 1995 by the Erskines after the city denied a request to operate a bird sanctuary and wildlife rehabilitation center. The city — initially prompted by complaints of health and zoning violations by adjacent property owners — required a special use permit for rehabilitation, and exemption from the weedy lot ordinance to maintain a sanctuary.

Accused drug lord claims not to remember confessing

HOUSTON (AP) — Accused drug lord Juan Garcia Abrego says he doesn't recall admitting to drug crimes or waiving his right to have an attorney present after his January arrest.

Garcia Abrego, who is set to stand trial next Monday on federal cocaine smuggling charges, testified Monday in an evidentiary hearing before U.S. District Judge Ewing Werlein.

At issue in the hearing is whether the judge should allow Garcia Abrego's statement into evidence.

Garcia Abrego, who was arrested by Mexican authorities last Jan. 14 and delivered by Mexican government jet to Houston, claims police administered high doses of two powerful sedatives.

Federal drug agents testified earlier that Garcia Abrego was informed of his rights on Jan. 15 but waived them and agreed to an hourlong interview shortly after his arrival at the FBI office in Houston.

Defense attorney Tony Canales has argued that his client was so mentally impaired by the drugs that his statement is worthless.

"I don't remember having read this paper or having seen it," Garcia Abrego testified through a translator when asked about the statement.

The contents of the statement have not been revealed, but prosecutors have said they planned to use it against the accused drug lord.

Between his arrest in Mexico and his arrival in Houston, Garcia Abrego complained of chest pains and shortness of breath.

Dr. Gary Coleman, a Houston heart specialist, testified that Garcia Abrego was given 1 milligram of Xanax and injected with 20 milligrams of Valium by Mexican authorities.

Coleman stood by at Houston's Intercontinental Airport awaiting the arrival of Garcia Abrego, who has a history of high blood pressure, from Mexico City.

Based on information he received from Mexican doctors who accompanied the accused drug kingpin and his own observations, Coleman concluded that Garcia Abrego was in stable condition. The doctor also said Garcia Abrego seemed alert and able to answer questions.

Garcia Abrego, who before his capture was among the FBI's 10 Most Wanted, was charged with conspiracy, drug trafficking, money laundering and bribery in a 28-count federal indictment issued in 1993.

TRIAL: Investigator describes scene

(From 1B)

had handled a different kind of metal. The only stains indicating that she could have touched the gun were two small purple spots on the very tips of her index and middle fingers.

Prosecutors Al Schorre and Brian Carney contend that the shooting did not happen by accident in a struggle for the weapon; defense attorney Rusty Wall will attempt to prove otherwise.

The angle of the bullet's entry into the victim's brain is in contention in the case (it was incorrectly stated in Tuesday's edition that prosecutors will attempt to prove distance between the firearm and the victim).

"The gun was either against the skin — touching the skin — or was in extremely close proximity," a medical examiner testified Tuesday.

Although the proximity of the weapon upon discharge does little to disprove the defense's contention of a struggle and accidental discharge, the angle of the bullet could.

According to expert medical testimony, the bullet entered Ms. Randolph's head near the top from the right and at an angle partly back to front and top to bottom.

According to the medical examiner, the only way for Randolph and his wife to be struggling, face to face, and for a shot to be fired in this relation to her head, Randolph would have to have the gun in his left hand (he is right handed), pointed partially back toward himself.

Wall will present evidence for the defense's case today.

Depending on how long this takes, the four-woman, eight-man jury could pass a verdict on Randolph later today.

Cadet awaiting extradition to face murder charges for killing over fling

DALLAS (AP) — An Air Force Academy cadet reportedly told police he killed a 16-year-old girl because their one-time fling was an "unclean act" that enraged his fiancee and threatened the "purity" of their relationship.

The cadet, David Graham, is to face murder charges in the slaying of Adrianne Jones.

His fiancee, Diane Zamora, an 18-year-old midshipman at the U.S. Naval Academy already has been charged in the killing.

The 16-year-old was found beaten with weights and shot Dec. 4 in Grand Prairie.

According to authorities, Graham's fiancee ordered him to kill Miss Jones after Graham admitted having sex with the younger woman in a car parked behind a school.

Graham told police in a statement that he "convinced myself that Diane was even worth murder. After Diane gave me the ultimatum, I thought long and hard about how to carry out the crime. I was stupid, but I was in love," The Dallas Morning News reported Tuesday.

"Well, Diane's beautiful eyes have always played the strings of my heart effortlessly," he said.

'I thought long and hard about how to carry out the crime. I was stupid, but I was in love. ... Well, Diane's beautiful eyes have always played the strings of my heart effortlessly.'

— from the statement given to police by David Graham

Graham's lawyer said police coerced him into making the statement.

Miss Zamora signed a confession before her arrest on a murder charge Friday, police said.

She was being held on $250,000 bail at Grand Prairie.

Graham, 18, was being held without bail at Colorado Springs, Colo., awaiting extradition to Texas to face charges.

The Morning News quoted Graham as saying he and Miss Zamora had shared a "perfect and pure" relationship that was tarnished by "that one girl that had stolen from us our purity" witn a single "unclean act."

"When this precious relationship we had was damaged by my thoughtless actions, the only thing that could satisfy her womanly vengeance was the life of the one that had, for an instant, taken her place," he said.

He said that he had planned to break Miss Jones' neck, but that as the young woman struggled, Miss Zamora struck her with weightlifting weights, and then he shot her with a 9mm pistol when she ran.

"I didn't have any harsh feelings for Adrianne, but no one could stand between me and Diane," he said.

Graham's lawyer, Dan Cogdell, said his client will plead innocent.

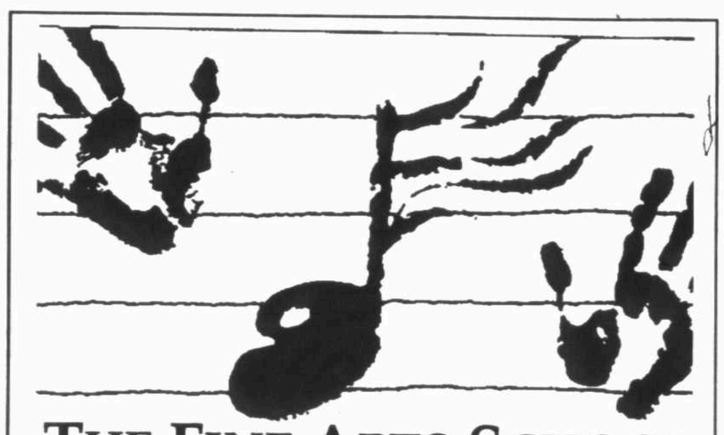

"The statement was taken after 30 hours' worth of interrogation after he was denied counsel, promised that he was better off without a lawyer, promised that if he gave a statement he would receive probation and threatened with capital murder if he did not make a statement," Cogdell said.

Police release statement excerpts

DALLAS (AP) — Excerpts as reported by The Dallas Morning News from what investigators say is the written confession of David Graham in the slaying of his former classmate, Adrianne Jones:

" The plan was to call Adrianne and convince her to come out to my car: That worked. The plan was to drive her out near Joe Pool Lake: That worked. The plan was to (and this is not easy for me to confess) break her young neck and sink her to the bottom of the lake with the weights that ended up being hit into her head: That didn't work. ... We realized it was either her or us, and Diane struck her in the back of the head with one of the weights while I held her."

"I fired again and ran to the car. Diane and I drove off. The first things out of our mouths were, 'I love you,' followed by Diane's 'We shouldn't have done that, David.'"

Dole, Perot push for end to IRS, but who'll collect taxes?

By Dave Skidmore
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Republican Bob Dole and Reform Party nominee Ross Perot are campaigning for president on "ending the IRS as we know it." What does that mean?

The candidates envision a leaner, friendlier agency — or perhaps no agency at all. But even they acknowledge someone has to collect the nation's taxes.

Dole, in his economic plan, revealed limited details on his proposals for the Internal Revenue Service. Perot, in a 30-minute infomercial first aired Sunday, offered next to none.

But Perot makes his intentions clear with advertisements depicting "IRS" in large capital letters, surrounded by a circle and bisected by a slash.

He promises a "fair, paperless, modern system." Experts question whether that means an end to audits and other headaches that are part of today's tax system.

"You can't change the IRS as we know it without changing the tax system as we know it," said J.D. Foster of the Tax Foundation, a conservative-leaning research organization in Washington.

Perot says only that he would consult the experts, run a computer analysis of reform plans and select the best.

Dole, pitching a 15 percent income tax cut, says a new system should be "lower, flatter, fairer, simpler and more savings-oriented." He would eliminate tax-return filing altogether for 40 million low- and middle-income taxpayers.

Joel Slemrod of the University of Michigan Business School said that's "certainly doable" even without radically changing the tax system. Deductions and credits would have to be pared, he said. And a more sophisticated system of payroll withholding would be required to account for midyear changes, like the birth of a child, that raise or lower tax liability.

"It's done that way in both the United Kingdom and in Japan. A typical taxpayer does not have to file a tax return. ... At the end of the year, it (withholding) works out just right," he said.

Dole also wants to shift the burden of proof in tax disputes. Currently, taxpayers must prove their returns are accurate and the IRS has no obligation to prove they're not.

While the switch sounds attractive, it almost certainly would involve a more complex process than the current system, said Joseph Lane of Menlo Park, Calif., a former IRS division chief who now represents taxpayers.

"What this says is the IRS will no longer be able to look to the person who files the return and has all the data," he said. "Instead, the IRS would have to go in with a summons to everyone you did business with."

Dole also proposed a one-year amnesty for payment of back taxes without interest or penalties, a move that probably would bring in more revenue at the risk of angering taxpayers who pay fully and on time.

And he wants to cut the IRS' 110,000-person staff by 30 percent and shift the agency's remaining resources toward helping taxpayers file correct returns and away from auditing for mistakes.

The IRS already is struggling to keep offices open and answer its telephones in the face of a 2 percent budget cut imposed by the Republican-majority Congress this year, and the 6 percent to 9 percent cut contemplated for fiscal 1997.

President Clinton doesn't share sentiment for dismantling the IRS.

Instead, Clinton signed a bill in July aimed at curbing abuses by the tax collector.

The law allows taxpayers to sue the IRS for up to $1 million for reckless collections, sets up a taxpayers' advocate and expands obligations on the agency to deal faster with disputes and refunds.

Argentine seeks justice in 1976 torture case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Argentine businessman Jose Siderman says soldiers from Argentina's junta took him from his home, beat him, applied electrical shocks to his genitals and burned him with cigarettes for nearly a week while screaming anti-Semitic insults.

His tormentors finally dumped him on a road with three broken ribs, a crushed testicle and his teeth knocked out, and warned him to leave his home or die.

Siderman fled to America with his wife, leaving behind a flooring business and luxury hotel worth $26.4 million.

Twenty years later, the 85-year-old Siderman is on the verge of a settlement with Argentina that will pay him millions and avert the first U.S. trial of a foreign government on human rights charges.

Siderman and his attorneys declined to be interviewed, but Argentine President Carlos Menem's chief legal adviser told The Associated Press Tuesday that a settlement "was in Argentina's best interests."

"We have made considerable progress and we hope to finalize the terms of the agreement in the near future," Rodolfo Diaz, solicitor general of the Treasury, said in an interview in Buenos Aires.

Diaz said the terms will be confidential, and denied that the case would expose the government to claims by others who suffered at the hands of Argentina's military.

"In no way does this set a precedent," Diaz said. "This case is completely unique."

The New York Times had reported the settlement discussions last week, citing anonymous sources.

More than 9,000 Argentines disappeared during the junta's seven-year "dirty war" against dissidents in the 1970s and '80s. Others were tortured and some imprisoned, including both Menem and Diaz, before the junta collapsed in 1983 and was replaced by a civilian government.

Menem's administration has not disputed that Siderman was tortured and driven from his home but said his businesses were properly sold to pay debts.

In his lawsuit, Siderman claims that he was targeted because of his wealth. Jews like him were often singled out under the military regime.

"In the cellblocks where Jews were tortured, police and military officials often hung Nazi flags and swastikas, printed the backs of prisoners with swastikas, and forced their prisoners to yell out, 'Heil, Hitler!'" the lawsuit says.

Siderman, whose ordeal began hours after the military overthrew the civilian government of Isabel Peron in 1976, said the junta pursued him even after he left the country. Argentina, he said, issued an international warrant for his arrest, accusing him of passport fraud. Arrested in Italy in 1981 on a family visit, he spent seven months under arrest before a court ordered his release.

Later, when Siderman and his wife, Lea, were settled in Santa Monica, the provincial government in his Argentine hometown of Tucuman filed a lawsuit accusing him of fraudulently changing the deed to family land.

Because the lawsuit was forwarded through a Los Angeles County court, a U.S. court ruled that Argentina had waived its "sovereign immunity," or protection from prosecution in foreign courts.

That enabled Siderman to sue Argentina for alleged human rights abuses in 1982. Argentina initially claimed sovereign immunity, but Menem's top legal adviser last week said the opposition had been dropped.

"I always had the dream that I could make things right, make them right for my family," Siderman told the Times before the settlement. "I will not have that time now, but I want the world to know what they did to an Argentine family."

As fellow former political prisoners, Menem and Diaz have been sympathetic to Siderman's cause, Diaz told the Times. "We understand this viscerally," he said.

U.S. courts have weighed human-rights charges from other countries before, but those cases involved individuals.

The Siderman case would have been the first U.S. trial of a foreign government for human-rights abuses, said David Cole, a Georgetown University law professor.

Giant pandas start their 12-year stay at San Diego Zoo

SAN DIEGO (AP) — On an international quest for luck in love, Shi Shi and Bai Yun traveled Tuesday to the United States, where zoologists hope the rare giant pandas will produce a bouncing baby bear.

The endangered black-and-white pandas, guests of the San Diego Zoo for the next 12 years, are the first to be allowed into the United States since officials banned the importation of the species in 1993.

"It's an exciting day for San Diego and Southern California," said Doug Myers, executive director of Zoological Society of San Diego. "More importantly, it's an exciting time for giant pandas."

Shi Shi, a 16-year-old male, and Bai Yun, a 5-year-old female, flew into the city Tuesday afternoon and were escorted from the airport by the California Highway Patrol.

Bai Yun was born in captivity in China, while Shi Shi was rescued from the wild when he was found with slashes probably received in a fight with another panda.

The furry couple is expected expected to draw huge crowds when their quarantine ends in late October or early November, but officials promised they will be more than cash cows.

"As soon as these animals literally step out of their crates, we will have a team ready to go with on-site monitoring," said Don Lindburg, a zoo behaviorist. "We're very eager to track the activities of the two pandas, the kinds of things they do, the frequency with which they do them."

The research, conducted by the zoo's Center for the Reproduction of Endangered Species, will focus on how the animals communicate sexual willingness using the scents of other pandas, Lindburg said.

Eventually, scientists hope that the data will lead to successful breeding — an event that requires precise timing. Female pandas only produce eggs about once a year and are fertile for just over a day.

Pandas are protected by the Endangered Species Act and treaties. Only about 1,000 remain in the wild in China.

The only captive pandas outside China are in Mexico City, Tokyo, Seoul and Washington, where years of fruitless attempts by the National Zoo to breed one pair ended three years ago with the death of the female, Ling-Ling. She had given birth five times, but none of the cubs lived.

Under the San Diego deal, the zoo will donate $1 million each year to habitat preservation projects in China.

Woman's home-based market runs on honor system

FLOWER MOUND — As Farm Road 1171 curves through this south Denton County community, highlighting its subtle transition from a lazy countryside to a sophisticated urban development, there is little evidence of a rural lifestyle.

Except for Bob and Jan Balekian's ranch, wedged between mammoth golf course developments, manicured horse farms and sprouting businesses. Here, just east of 1171's intersection with Shiloh Road, hand-made signs offer fresh vegetables for sale. They point the way to the Balekians' driveway, flanked by two iron gates and lined with a dark brown wooden fence.

There, more painted signs tell you where to park, what to buy and surprisingly, where to pay.

At the Balekians, payment is on the honor system.

"I've never had anybody take anything without paying that I know about," Jan Balekian said. "If they did, and they really needed it that badly, then they can have it."

The front porch of the house is the market, by and large. A few melons under the trees in the front yard are for sale too. They lie beneath colorful, hand-painted birdhouses, also sale items.

On the porch, tomatoes, squash, cucumbers, green beans and a variety of peppers are set out in containers. On the wall, a price list silently tells the customers how much each item costs.

There is a small calculator with which to run the tally. An antique cash register sits at the end of the tables with a large sign telling its users to punch in the total and make their own change.

If you need to write a check, there is a sign spelling out Balekian's name. No I.D. necessary. No major credit card.

"Sometimes I'll find a note saying 'I owe you .25 cents,'" Balekian said with a smile. "And then sometimes I'll find one saying 'I am 25 cents short, because I left you 25 cents too much last time.'"

The customers do it all at Balekian's 8-year-old vegetable stand. They select it, bag it and make their own change. "This has been more fun to me than anything I've ever done," she said. Customers "love to know there are still people who trust them."

The Balekians moved to Flower Mound 16 years ago to renovate a frame house that the local fire department had hoped to get some practice on. That's how bad it looked back then, Jan Balekian said as she shows a photo of the original shell.

"We worked on it for two years before moving in," she added.

Now, it is a warm and comfortable home, resting on 25 acres, one of which is given entirely to a garden.

"I'm from a farm family," the 47-year-old Balekian said. "I'm originally from Louisiana, about 60 miles from New Orleans. I have always had a garden but we didn't start selling the vegetables until about eight years ago."

It was then that one of the two Balekian daughters borrowed the family car, without permission, and ended up in a wreck. As a form of punishment, she was dispatched to the family garden and told she would have to work there the entire summer.

"We told her she could put up a stand and sell her vegetables, and keep the money, but she was going to work out there all summer," her mother remembers. "She had a ball. We got the point across — if you do the crime, you do the time. She learned a lesson and got to save some money too."

The Balekians closed their furniture store in Lewisville six years ago, Bob remains in the furniture business, but Jan maintains that she is retired.

"I'm doing this full time now," she said of her vegetable business.

Each morning, seven days a week, she places the vegetables out on the porch for sale. She is open for business generally around 8 or 9 a.m., and closes about 7 p.m.

"We have a lot of regular customers, mostly men, who show up right after work," she said. "They're in and out in five minutes. They like doing this kind of shopping."

When Balekian isn't in the garden, she's in the kitchen. She is an incessant canner — beets, potatoes, green beans, tomatoes, pickles and jellies and jams of all kinds.

Every cabinet in her kitchen is tightly packed with perfectly aligned Mason jars filled with homemade fruits or vegetables. A few boxes on the floor house even more goods awaiting a permanent spot on the jammed shelves.

"It is kind of a lost art," she said of canning. "I teach people how to do it. It's easy to do but not many people take the time to do it."

Balekian enters the State Fair of Texas canning contests each year, and she has hundreds of ribbons to prove her success. This year she sent 40 entries and expects to win ribbons on more than half.

Poll: Gramm leads Morales by 11 percent

DALLAS (AP) — Fifty percent of registered Texas voters support Republican Sen. Phil Gramm in his re-election bid against Democratic challenger Victor Morales, according to a poll published Monday.

The poll, conducted Sept. 2-5 by The Dallas Morning News and the Houston Chronicle, found 39 percent of voters in support of Morales. Ten percent were undecided or favored other candidates.

The survey of 1,007 registered voters was conducted by telephone. The margin of error is plus or minus 3.5 percentage points.

Gramm's lead, as reflected in the poll, is similar to his margins in earlier surveys. Campaign aides said the results prove the senator is on the way to a convincing win this November.

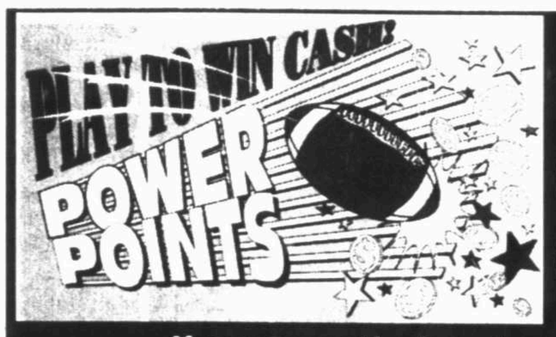

"It's clear he's on the road to doing exactly that," said spokesman Larry Neal.

Morales, however, said the poll shows him within striking distance of the incumbent.

"He's still at 50 percent, and if I was him I'd be extremely worried," said Morales, a Mesquite schoolteacher in his first statewide race.

Fifty-eight percent of those polled said they had a favorable opinion of Gramm, compared with 32 percent who had an unfavorable opinion.

Morales drew a favorable rating from 44 percent of those polled. Twenty-three percent had an unfavorable opinion of the Democrat, while 33 percent said they didn't know enough about him to offer a rating.

Welfare limits should help curb abuse

AUSTIN (AP) — Welfare limits that went into effect in six counties this month will push people toward independence and redefine the system as a temporary solution instead of a way of life, state officials say.

The law puts welfare recipients who are heads of a household on a one- to three-year timetable, based on their education level and work experience, before they are forced to leave the welfare system.

"Theoretically, somebody with a college degree will have an easier time finding a job than someone who dropped out of the 8th grade," said Mike Jones, spokesman for the Texas Department of Human Services.

The welfare restrictions, part of an overhaul passed last year by the Texas Legislature, took effect earlier this month in Travis, Harris, Dallas, Tarrant, Denton and Fort Bend counties.

The time limits were phased into Bexar County on June 1 and will reach the rest of the state by January.

Under the law, the clock begins when welfare recipients are notified by the Department of Human Services that they are eligible for the state Job Opportunity and Basic Skills program.

"We worked hard to minimize the negative effect that this legislation would have on low-income families and did so by making sure the only recipients that would be affected would be those who entered the JOBS program or obtained work," said Rep. Elliott Naishtat, D-Austin. He served as vice-chair of the Human Services Committee and helped write the legislation.

Naishtat said lawmakers wanted to ensure that welfare recipients would have the job training, child care and support benefits necessary to move them from welfare to independence.

"I am still concerned, however, that ... thousands of low-income families may, through no fault of their own, find themselves without assistance," he added.

The law says that a person can reapply for welfare after five years. And it does not apply to children, who may still receive benefits and food stamps even if their parents are not eligible.

The law also provides for the creation of regional workforce development boards, which will manage the JOBS program.

Regional boards have been approved in Dallas, Denton, Tarrant and Travis counties, with applications pending in the other two.

The program is scheduled to be phased in throughout Texas. Of 28 state regions, 20 have applied to have certified boards and 10 have been approved by the governor, according to the Texas Workforce Commission.

David Beshear, spokesman for the Workforce Commission, said he expects the first board to begin operating by January.

Laurie Larrea, president of the Dallas County Workforce Development Board, said businesses, which will comprise at least 51 percent of the board, will play a large role in making the program a success.

New trade project excludes Texas

■ Lack of funding leaves El Paso and Laredo out of program that could improve efficiency of moving shipments across border.

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP) — Texas' international ports, through which most of the country's trade with Mexico passes, will be excluded for now from a project aimed at improving the efficiency of moving goods across the border.

Ports at El Paso and Laredo initially had been chosen along with four other sites to start testing the project this week but were dropped because of a lack of funding, said Robert Ehinger, who oversees the project at the U.S. Treasury Department.

But another Treasury official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said other ports were selected over the Texas sites because of protests in past weeks over congestion at the international bridges in Laredo.

"People looked at El Paso and Laredo and decided that to test any new system there might be to run the test in the most hostile conceivable environment, and that wouldn't be the best way," the official said.

Texas leaders criticized the decision.

"It would be ludicrous not to do this at Laredo and El Paso with the vast majority of the volume of trade passing through these ports," said Secretary of State Tony Garza. "These are the environments that best understand trade and could best give you a sense of whether a program could be effective or not."

Garza questioned whether politics played a role in the site selection.

"It's either an election-year political decision to allocate sources in other states but Texas, or it's another clear sign that the Clinton administration simply doesn't understand trade," he said.

At issue is a pilot project called the North American Trade Automation Prototype, or NATAP.

NATAP is the product of an article of the North American Free Trade Agreement calling on the United States, Canada and Mexico to standardize documentation and data needed to import and export merchandise.

A working group comprising customs officials from all three NAFTA countries last year recommended the project be tested at Buffalo, N.Y., and Detroit along the U.S.-Canada border as well as Otay Mesa, Calif.; Nogales, Ariz.; and El Paso and Laredo along the U.S.-Mexico border.

All sites except the two in Texas have received funding to start the project, Ehinger said. Testing already is under way at Otay Mesa and should begin in Nogales, Buffalo and Detroit over the next 45 days.

Ehinger said Texas' funding troubles exist within the U.S. Department of Transportation, which is contributing $1.5 million per site for equipment.

'Having sent the information on the truck and its driver and what it's carrying in advance, the government agencies can ... much more speedily release the vehicle.'

— Robert Ehinger, U.S. Treasury Dept.

The idea is to eliminate multiple reporting requirements — in the United States more than 60 agencies collect international trade data — and establish a standard set of data that would be collected once to satisfy the needs of all agencies.

More importantly, NATAP would allow that data to be submitted to ports of entry in advance, meaning shipments could be cleared before trucks arrive at the border.

"Having sent the information on the truck and its driver and what it's carrying in advance, the government agencies can have performed their risk assessment and they ought to be able to much more speedily release the vehicle, as opposed to the process today when everything comes to the border and stops," Ehinger said.

About 300 businesses, from customs brokerage houses to large manufacturers such as Sony and General Motors, have volunteered to participate in the program, Ehinger said.

DOT officials said they did not have enough money in their fiscal '96 budget to fund all of the sites, but deferred to Ehinger when asked why the two Texas ports were axed.

Ehinger said he didn't know why the Texas sites were cut, responding: "Ask DOT that. They've never found the money to do it."

NATAP eventually will be tested in Texas, he said. Officials now are awaiting approval of the DOT's fiscal '97 budget.

"I don't want to say that there's no chance this year, but the candle is burning very low," Ehinger said.

Meanwhile, Texas businesses that agreed to participate must sit back and watch as the project gets under way elsewhere.

"We were very, very much ready and committed to start the program," said Daniel Hastings Jr., a customs broker in Laredo who agreed with Garza that politics may have hindered the project. "I think it's because of the election year. Unfortunately, trade is taking a back seat."

New PBS sitcom aims at teaching basic English

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aiming beyond the dry textbook English lesson, state and federal officials are launching a television situation comedy to reach some of the nearly 14 million adults who lack basic English skills.

With the 26-part series "Crossroads Cafe," which traces the lives of six characters of various ethnic backgrounds, the program's sponsors are hoping to reach an immigrant population not being served by standard instruction.

"'Crossroads Cafe' can reach up to 14 million people nationwide who need to learn basic English skills but cannot attend formal classes because of transportation problems, or because they must work or take care of children," Education Secretary Richard Riley said at a Capitol Hill news conference Monday.

PBS is making the series available to its 350 local affiliates nationwide.

In addition to learning English from "Cafe" characters such as Jamal Al-Jibali, an unemployed engineer who becomes the restaurant's handyman, viewers will be exposed to other lessons. One episode, for example, shows an applicant seeking U.S. citizenship going through an interview with an Immigration and Naturalization Service employee.

"Crossroads Cafe" is the product of a partnership between the INS, Education Department, Public Broadcasting Service, and the education agencies of four states with large immigrant populations.

The program will be the first nationally televised English instruction program, airing weekly this fall on PBS affiliates. The U.S. Information Agency plans to televise the series in Central and Latin America.

The states — California, New York, Florida and Illinois — and federal sponsors hope the series goes beyond TV viewers.

Videotapes of the show will be distributed to English as a Second Language education programs, classrooms, and to organizations that provide services to immigrants. Accompanying the TV series are teachers' guides, a workbook for students, and a photo guide with simple captions.

Immigrants aren't the only ones the program's backers are hoping to reach.

"It can also help 24 million other Americans who need a boost in their reading skills," Riley said, stressing the benefits of literacy. "Adults who cannot read have a hard time providing for their families, especially in these times when nearly every new job that is created requires a worker to be highly literate and skilled."

The four states' education agencies each contributed Adult Education Act funds to underwrite creation and production of "Crossroads Cafe." The INS kicked in $1 million more, said agency Commissioner Doris Meissner.

Meissner said "Crossroads Cafe" fits with her agency's effort to naturalize as many as possible of the 6 million people who are eligible for citizenship.

Panhandle town initiates lottery to revitalize area, decides to give away land around town

LEFORS (AP) — Since the oil bust hit a decade ago, there's not much left in this Texas Panhandle town.

A couple of swimming holes keep the few kids still here entertained in the summer and, on Thursdays, the senior citizens' club serves a mean potluck lunch. Watching a good thunderstorm blow across the rolling plains always makes for an entertaining afternoon.

But that's about it. When the oil wells were capped and the workers moved out, Lefors lost two grocery stores, a bowling alley, a bar and one-third of its population. Only about 600 people remain, and enrollment is so low that the local school is in danger of closing.

So, with ingenuity born of desperation, School Superintendent Norman Baxter and Mayor Bob James came up with a plan over coffee one morning: People could write in and, if they were lucky enough, they just might end up with a piece of Lefors — for nothing.

Twelve vacant lots that failed to sell at auction — worth roughly $150 to $400 apiece — are up for grabs in a drawing Oct. 14. The only requirement is that each winner put a trailer on the lot or begin construction on a house within six months.

Before the deadline passed for entries last month, more than 480 postcards streamed in from as far away as California and Maine.

Baxter and James are crossing their fingers that the gimmick will attract young families, restaurateurs and other wholesome, friendly folk.

"We make no discrimination," James says. "Of course, we'd like people with 18 or 20 kids."

But what Lefors wants and what Lefors gets could be two very different things.

Meet, for example, applicant Becky Bremmer. She lives with her husband in a trailer home south of nearby Amarillo. Both are in their 50s and don't work because of disabilities.

"We want to get farther away from our kids," Mrs. Bremmer says. "I want to say no when they ask me to baby-sit."

Then there's Susan Daughety, a Dallas nurse fed up with traffic and crowds who doesn't like the cramped quarters of her trailer home park.

"Kids play ball here and keep hitting the house and I have to keep yelling at them," she says. "I don't feel like I need a lot of other people to get along."

Not exactly kid-friendly, young families.

If history is destined to repeat itself, in fact, the last thing Lefors will get is the June and Ward Cleavers of the world.

"I wish them well, but it's not going to work. It's doomed to fail," says William W. Savage Jr., a history professor at the University of Oklahoma.

"They think they're going to attract the middle class, people with money to invest, people who are going to add something. The historical likelihood is that just the opposite is going to happen."

A century ago, during the land runs of Oklahoma homesteading, most people lured to the free land were "bums and losers" who wanted something for nothing, Savage notes. And Lefors, he warns, shouldn't expect any better.

Bob Jones, mayor of Lefors stands in a vacant lot slated to be given away by the tiny Panhandle town as part of an effort to revitalize the area. Since they got the idea and put the word out, more than 480 people from all over the United States have sent in entries for their chance at the land.

'Cheerleader mom' gets 10-year jail term

HOUSTON (AP) — Wanda Webb Holloway, who offered her diamond earrings in a murder-for-hire plot aimed at getting her daughter on the junior high cheerleading squad, was sentenced to 10 years in prison Monday.

Holloway, portrayed as a vindictive stage mother at her 1991 trial and two subsequent TV movies, pleaded no contest to murder solicitation and was sentenced by District Judge George Godwin.

Defense attorney Jack Zimmerman said she can apply for release in as little as six months, though prosecutors said they would fight such a request.

"Everyone was in concurrence that if she were willing to do this, it would be the best for everybody," Zimmerman said.

Holloway plotted to have Verna Heath murdered by a hit man, hoping the death would upset Heath's daughter Amber so much that the girl wouldn't make the cheerleading team, police said. That, in turn, would improve Holloway's daughter's chances of making the squad. Both girls were 13 at the time.

During Holloway's trial, jurors heard secretly recorded tapes of her asking her former brother-in-law, Terry Harper, to hire a hit man. Prosecutors said she gave him the earrings and promised to pay cash for the murder within a month.

"You want her dead?" Harper asked.

"I don't care what you do with her. You can keep her in Cuba for 15 years," she replied. "I want her gone."

Holloway was convicted of solicitation of murder and sentenced to 15 years in prison. She won a new trial, however, after it was learned a juror was on probation and should have been disqualified from serving.

Two years ago, Holloway agreed to pay $150,000 to Heath and her family to settle a lawsuit accusing Holloway of causing the Heaths extreme anguish.

The Heaths said they were satisfied with the sentence.

"I've always wanted to see Wanda Holloway show some remorse, which she never has. I think her only regret is getting caught," Mrs. Heath said.

Threat of license suspension brings in $33 million in support payments

AUSTIN (AP) — The threat of having state licenses suspended brought child support payments totaling more than $33 million from deadbeat Texas parents, the attorney general's office reported Monday.

The license suspension sanction, allowed by a law that took effect Sept. 1, 1995, was responsible for payments being made in 32,884 child support cases, the agency said.

The suspension program collected a total of $33.2 million, considerably more than the $20 million initially projected.

Attorney General Dan Morales said that his office also suspended 208 licenses that were issued to 204 deadbeat parents.

The majority of those were drivers' licenses. The noncustodial parents involved in those cases were responsible for withholding $2,061,961 in support from their children.

"The first year of our license suspension program has been an overwhelming success," Morales said.

"Not only did we exceed our $20 million goal by more than $13 million, but as a result of our efforts approximately 38,400 children are receiving the benefits of child support payments," he said.

Revoking licenses is the latest weapon in the state's ongoing battle to collect overdue child support payments.

The law allows for suspension of professional, occupational, business, motor vehicle, hunting and fishing licenses of parents who owe child support past due 90 days or more.

Match postponed

The Midland High-Midland Lee team tennis match Tuesday was postponed because of rain.

The teams had completed just two matches when showers at the Midland Lee courts forced them to put the team match off until today.

The varsity will begin playing today at 3 p.m. with the junior varsity getting under way at 4 p.m. It is the first District 4-5A match for both teams.

Boxes donated

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — The Houston Oilers, determined to be good neighbors before officially arriving in Tennessee, have donated 75 luxury suites to charity for the San Francisco game.

The VIP luxury suites, valued at $15,000, will be sold in travel packages to the Oct. 27 game in Houston at $1,000 apiece. The money will go to the Clinic Bowl, which primarily funds the Vanderbilt Hospital Physical Therapy Clinic.

"We've said from the beginning that Mr. (Bud) Adams and the Houston Oilers are going to be good corporate citizens of Nashville and Tennessee," said Mike McClure, the Oilers' vice president for administration.

WGN-NBA suit

CHICAGO — A federal appeals court overturned Tuesday a lower court ruling that allowed Chicago superstation WGN to broadcast more Bulls games than the NBA wanted.

Now the two sides will have to return to the courtroom to decide the closely watched broadcast rights lawsuit, which had the Bulls joining with WGN to double-team the NBA.

The issue ended up in court when the NBA sought to curb the number of games shown on WGN.

Steinberg arrested

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — Sports agent Leigh Steinberg, who recently added Olympic gymnast Kerri Strug to his star-studded client list, was arrested over the weekend for investigation of driving under the influence of alcohol, police said Tuesday.

Steinberg, 47, was arrested after his car rear-ended another vehicle early Saturday morning, said police Sgt. John Desmond. No one was injured in the accident.

"He (Steinberg) was given a field sobriety test, subsequently taken to the station and given a blood (alcohol) test and was booked on misdemeanor drunk driving charges," Desmond said.

Steinberg was released on $1,400 bail Saturday. Results of the blood test probably won't be known for a few weeks, Desmond said.

Clark's 3-run homer lifts Rangers by Blue Jays

Associated Press

Rangers . .11
Blue Jays . .8

TORONTO — Will Clark hit a three-run homer Tuesday night as the Texas Rangers won their fifth straight with an 11-8 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

It was the Rangers' eighth consecutive win over the Blue Jays.

Darren Oliver (12-6) gave up three runs on seven hits over six innings as the AL West-leading Rangers moved a season-high 22 games over .500.

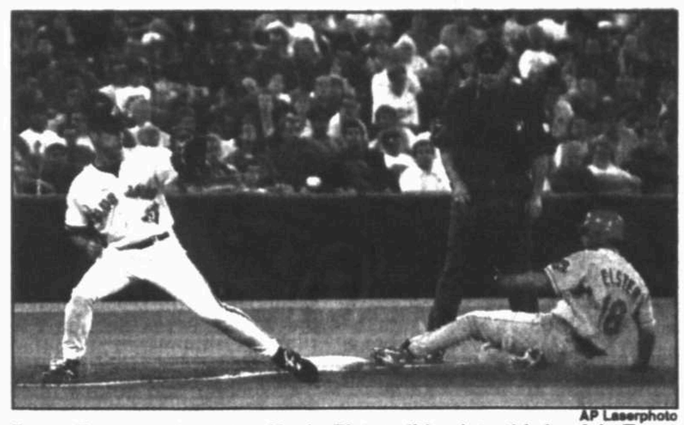

Mike Henneman got the last out for his 30th save, retiring Shannon Stewart on a grounder to third with men on first and third.

After Ivan Rodriguez's run-scoring single in the third, Clark hit his 11th home run of the season to give Texas a 4-1 lead.

Mickey Tettleton hit his 21st homer in the fifth, a two-run shot that put the Rangers up 6-3.

Mark McLemore scored on pitcher Huck Flener's throwing error, and Rodriguez singled home

Canada takes team USA in overtime 4-3

By John Bonfatti

PHILADELPHIA — Steve Yzerman scored with 9:23 left in overtime as Canada beat the United States 4-3 Tuesday night in the opener of their best-of-3 World Cup of Hockey championship series.

Yzerman's shot from 10 feet out in the left circle glanced off goaltender Mike Richter's glove and dropped over the goal line.

Canada, which outshot the U.S. 7-1 in overtime and 35-26 overall, was only 6.3 seconds away from victory in regulation when John LeClair sent the game into overtime with a goal that was actually pushed into the net by defenseman Eric Desjardins.

With just under 10 seconds to play in the third period and the U.S. having lifted its goaltender for the extra attacker, Joel Otto won a draw in the Canada zone to Brian Leetch.

Leetch's shot from 20 feet was stopped by Curtis Joseph, but the rebound bounced clear. Desjardins was trying to shovel the loose puck under his goalie but it went too far, dribbling into the net.

Theo Fleury's goal halfway through the final period gave Canada a 3-2 lead.

Fleury, who scored in the second overtime against Sweden on Saturday to move Canada into the championship round, collected a loose puck outside the U.S. blue line and skated in on Richter. He faked a move to the front of the net, causing Richter to drop to the ice, then beat the goalie with a short shot from a tough angle along the goal line at 9:58.

Game 2 of the series will be Thursday in Montreal. If needed, Game 3 will take place Saturday in Montreal.

Eric Lindros and Claude Lemieux scored the other goals for Canada. Derian Hatcher scored both U.S. goals.

The United States trailed 1-0 after one period before Hatcher scored twice in the second. Lemieux's goal with 39 seconds left in the second period made it 2-2 going into the third.

Lemieux was credited with the tying goal on a play set up by Mark Messier. Messier sidestepped a check at the blue

DALLAS COWBOYS

Cowboy class act

■ Dallas defensive tackle Tony Casillas urges local high school students to make smart decisions and get ahead in life.

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

Tony Casillas' massive 6-foot-3, 275-pound frame stood in the doorway of a chemistry class at Midland High Tuesday afternoon and he proclaimed to several impressed teenagers, "I'm a new student."

The 32-year old Casillas also said he was searching for the fountain of youth in the classroom. Of course, Casillas was kidding, but there's more than a shred of truth to his statement.

He's once again a new kid in class, rejoining the Dallas Cowboys after a two-year absence. Casillas was once a prize pupil on the Cowboys, a starting defensive tackle for a team which won two consecutive Super Bowls in 1992 and 1993.

But things have changed since those initial Cowboy glory years for both the team and Casillas. The Cowboys have changed coaches, and of the 25 defensive players who were on the Dallas roster for the team's first Super Bowl triumph in January 1993, only 10 remain. The advent of the salary cap and some rather suspect recent drafts have left the Cowboys thinner than Kate Moss defensively.

"We don't have the type of depth we had in '93," said Casillas, who was in town as part of the Partners in Education Program sponsored by Albertson's. "We used to have 8-10 guys (in the line) who could play at any time and we don't have that now. You have to count on younger guys to play and hope they learn fast."

On the NFL's traditional day off, Casillas made his first trip to Midland to encourage students to have fun and enjoy their high school years but also make smart decisions. He spoke

4-5A

It could have been a better start for two guys taking their first turn with the big clipboard in District 4-5A, but the end results spoke for themselves.

For Midland High head football coach David Browning and Abilene High coach Steve Warren, Friday night's induction might have tested the old ticker, but it put marks in the win column and brought much more in the process.

"It is always a relief to get that first win but particularly the way we got it," Browning said. "They could have quit, but didn't. We had bunch of kids who gave all they got."

The story of Midland High was probably the most telling of last Friday night. A lot of things were new around for the Bulldogs — new quarterback, new system, new attitude. Heck even the helmets — they look like Notre Dame's Golden Domes — were a different color. But when the score hit 18-0 in Frenships' favor in the third quarter, it appeared to be the same thing for the MHS.

But thanks to running back Sammy Powell — the district's leading touchdown scorer after week 1 — and the rest of the team, that changed. And when the final gun sounded, the gods that hoover over the Irish, maybe found another team at Midland Memorial as MHS defeated Wolfforth Frenship 34-27.

At Abilene's Shotwell Stadium, the test was a little different, but AHS, who shared residence with MHS in the 4-5A cellar in 1996, was up to the challenge against a very formidable foe, even if last-minute heroics was in their future.

AHS, 2-8 in 1995, gave Warren a debut to remember. The former two-year defensive coordinator under Gary Gaines, who is now the head coach at San

Bulldogs' 34 could turn into a 180 for football program

As Midland High's game with Frenship crept into the third quarter at Memorial Stadium Friday night, you will have to excuse that burning feeling in the stomach.

Williamson

It was so easy to say something like, "Well, it's just business as usual for the football Bulldogs." It was even easier to say something worse (under the breath, of course.)

And before you place a firm foot in that upset stomach of mine, just look at what we had seen for 2 1/2 quarters of play. The Bulldogs had managed only one first down on the night, a 35-yard screen pass. It wasn't like the MHS offensive line was creating huge holes against a huge Frenship defensive front.

It was 18-0 and really not much hope for better things ahead. After all, history wasn't on the side of the Bulldogs. It was much the same as it has been for the past few years. MHS saw the enemy and, shoot, it was MHS.

The facts back it all up. Two fumbles, a bad punt and an interception led to Frenship's four touchdowns. It was like giving Christmas presents to the kid who was already rich.

We had seen that before. Rarely do the Bulldogs overcome costly mistakes. When the head starts to bow, the big blow is just a few heartbeats away.

But somehow, some way, this was different. It was really different. Never have I seen a game at any level where a team just turned it around as completely as Midland High did Friday night. One first down for almost 2 1/2 quarters and then 34 points, including four touchdowns from an amazing performance by Sam Powell.

The Bulldogs went from not being able to make a yard, or catch a pass, to burning the field with huge gainers — and actually getting points out of it. The result was a 34-27 victory over a team MHS had never beaten, and again, in the most unlikely of circumstances.

The praise should be spread wide and far. There was no one individual that pulled this off. It was a "team" that emerged in the face of adversity, and it had been a while since we had seen that. It was the most courageous effort by the Bulldogs since falling a foot-and-a-half short against Odessa Permian two years ago. But that was a loss. This one has a "W" beside it.

It may be too early to classify this "W" to another one of those Miracles on Cuthbert, but it sure allows MHS to take that next step to another level. And in the end may be more than a mere football miracle. It could be a firm start on a 180-degree program turnaround.

But that in itself is the challenge that Bulldogs now face. This game could be a builder. It could be a game to call back on when things go wrong down the road — and things go wrong for every football team.

The question now is whether the Bulldogs can use the experience for further gain, or if they let this one thrill be a one-time celebration. Can the Bulldogs put this one aside? That's where good teams climb to the next level by using the experience that is left behind in their fluttering wake.

This win was special. It was almost unique. It was praiseworthy. It was a side of the Bulldogs we haven't seen in a while. And we liked what we saw. We saw some heart. We saw some conditioning. And coming at the same time of new coaching regime, the timing may not have been more perfect.

Now is the time to make it count for more than a mere victory. If there was ever a time to be unsatisfied, it is now. The next door is open, but it won't stay open if MHS hesitates now.

Rebel teams split matches

PECOS — The Midland Lee varsity volleyball team split matches in its last chance to get ready for District 4-5A play.

Lee, 10-5 for the season, defeated Buena Vista 15-3, 15-1 to open the dual matches and then lost to Pecos 6-15, 4-15. The match with Buena Vista was highlighted with 16 Lady Rebel kills.

In junior varsity action, Lee defeated Buena Vista 15-3, 15-3 and like its older peers lost to Pecos 12-15, 13-15.

Lee, 7-5, got 16 points from the serve of Maressa Underwood had 16 service points, including 11-straight in the first game.

Both teams open district play against Midland High this Saturday. The junior varsity starts at 1:15 p.m. while the kicks off at 2:30 p.m.

Tinney wins round one

TYLER — Midland's Liz Tinney advanced to the second round of the 75th Annual Women's Texas Golf Association Championships held at Willowbrook Country Club.

Tinney, who is a member out at Ranchland Country Club, defeated Helen Braunston Tuesday 6-and-4. The former Midland City champion will play JoAnn Scheid today. Tinney tied for the lowest qualifying score of the tournament with a 76 on Monday.

GTCC member Carpenter fires 70

Chris Carpenter of Green Tree Country Club shot a second round 70 to move into a tie for seventh after the second round of the North Texas Section Ping PGA Championship at Midland County Club.

Carpenter and Mike Winfrey of the The Club at Mission Dorado, are in a group of five players, who stand four back of Plainview's John Horne. Horne, the first round leader, shot a 73 on the par-72 course.

Other area golfers include Big Spring's David Turrentine (146), MCC's Terry Lester (146), MCC's Scotty Nieman (150), Ranchland Hills Country Club's Ken Livingston (151), RHCC's Larry Bryan (151), Misson's Tommy Darland (153), Hogan Park's Greg Sikes (158), MCC's Susan Holland (164) and MCC's Jeff Morrow (169).

Trinity v-ball splits with MC

The Trinity volleyball teams split matches with Midland Christian Tuesday.

The Lady Charger junior varsity defeated Midland Christian 15-11, 15-10 as Katherine Case served seven winners while Evelittle Chavez had six in a row.

The Trinity ninth grade volleyball team fell to MC 14-16, 14-16.

Trinity's Vallerie Powers had seven points on her serve and Elizabeth Sloan had five. Becka Vallez came up with eight digs.

McDonald aces Mission No. 4

ODESSA — Paul McDonald hit a hole-in-one Monday on the fourth hole at The Club at Mission Dorado during the Nike Volunteer tournament.

The 7-iron from 150 yards was witnessed by Bobby Stringer, Bill Bramley and Doug Bramley.

Scharbauer bids $800,000 for yearling at Keeneland

Staff and wire reports

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Midland's Dorothy Scharbauer purchased the top-selling yearling during the Tuesday session of the Keeneland September Yearling Sale.

Scharbauer bid $800,000 for a Yearling colt by Storm Cat (a leading sire that stands in Kentucky) and out of the mare With A Twist, who is by Fappiano, also one of the top thoroughbred sires in the world.

Scharbauer, at the annual Thoroughbred auction with her husband Clarence Scharbauer Jr., is best known for owning Alysheba, the 1987 Kentucky Derby winner which was also named thoroughbred Horse of the Year a year later.

Alysheba retired as the all-time richest thoroughbred with earnings which topped $6.7 million. Dorothy Shcarbauer owned Alysheba with her daughter Pamela.

The yearling purchased on Tuesday will be sent to California and will be trained by D. Wayne Lukas, according to Clarence Scharbauer Jr. The Scharbauer's currently have four 2-year olds racing out of the Lukas barn.

The Scharbauers have had recent success on the race track with Hadif One, which was named the Champion Texas Bred 2-Year Old Colt or Gleding for 1994. The fast Hadif One is by Hadif, a stallion which stands at the Scharbauer's Valor Farm near Pilot Point.

A colt by Gone West brought a sale record $1.4 million during the Tuesday session.

Buzz Chace, representing Richard C. Porter's Fox Hill Farm, signed for the yearling, who is the third foal from Existentialist, by Relaunch. Porter is from Wilmington, Del.

Chace said Fox Hill bought the horse to resell as a 2-year-old. He outbid trainer D. Wayne Lukas, who was seated with Robert and Beverly Lewis. Clarence Scharbauer also bid on the yearling, who was sold by Mill Ridge Sales, as agent, of Lexington.

The previous record for the September Sale was $1.2 million paid by Thoroughbred Corp. last year for a colt by Deputy Minister out of Bold Lady Anne.

The Lewisès, owner of champion filly Serena's Song, paid the second highest price, $600,000, on Tuesday for a bay filly by Forty Niner out of My Song for You, by Seattle Song.

Mill Ridge Sales consigned the yearling.

During the session Tuesday, Keeneland sold 265 horses for $32,620,000, an average of $123,094. Last year, 301 horses brought $33,397,000, an average of $110,953.

After two days of the 11-day auction, 529 horses have been sold for $69,406,000, an average of $131,202. By comparison, in 1995, 591 horses brought $65,948,000, an average of $111,587.

The sale continues through Sept. 19.

Owners uncertain going into talks

By Ronald Blum

Major League Labor Talks

NEW YORK — Owners headed into Wednesday's executive council meeting unsure if it will lead to a labor agreement or a breakdown in the talks that would lead to another season under the old work rules.

"It's the first time the executive council is going to be discussing this," acting commissioner Bud Selig said Tuesday. "I think it will be a long and thorough discussion, and I think this is a very constructive step, a very necessary meeting."

Management negotiator Randy Levine didn't want to comment on what he will say at the meeting, but others said he planned to detail the history of the 3 1/2-year talks and outline what would happen if owners don't give him permission to conclude a deal.

"I wouldn't speculate at this point," said Colorado Rockies chairman Jerry McMorris, a member of both the council and management's labor policy committee. "I'm hopeful that the executive council and the labor policy committee can help Bud forge a plan to move on with."

Levine and union head Donald Fehr negotiated most of the central points of an agreement during 13 bargaining sessions on Aug. 9-11, but the labor policy committee objected to some of the points when it held a telephone conference call the following day.

Since then, talks have been on hold, waiting for Selig to decide the next move. The labor committee will join the 10-man council for Wednesday's session, which was scheduled last week after Selig called off the owners' quarterly meetings.

Any agreement needs approval from 21 of the 28 clubs, and it's unclear how many are in favor. Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf, one of the owners who opposes the deal that has taken shape, said there aren't enough votes to approve an agreement.

Levine has told management officials that Selig has enough votes to sign off on the deal, which calls for a luxury tax in 1997, 1998 and 1999 with no luxury tax in 2000. The union would have the option for a second tax-free year in 2001.

Reinsdorf, Florida Marlins owner H. Wayne Huizenga and the Tribune Co. — which owns the Chicago Cubs — object to the union getting the second tax-free year and to all players getting service time for the 75 regular-season days wiped out by the 232-day strike.

Without a deal, players could strike again at any time and owners could lock them out.

line by Mathieu Schneider and skated along the right wing before flipping a pass to the net.

The puck hit either Lemieux or the U.S.'s Scott Young in front and dropped into the net.

Both of Hatcher's goals came when he moved in from his defenseman's post.

On the first, at 2:03, Joseph made a nice stop on LeClair's shot, but the Canadians were unable to clear a loose puck from in front. Hatcher collected the loose puck and shoveled it over the fallen Joseph.

On the second, at 13:51, Joe Sakic's weak clearing attempt was blocked at the point by Hatcher, who floated a pass to Tony Amonte in the faceoff circle. Amonte faked a shot, then passed across to Hatcher coming in from the point, and the defenseman redirected a high shot past Joseph.

Canada had the best of play in the first period.

With Bill Guerin off for holding, the Canadians scored on a play started by Wayne Gretzky. He fed the puck from the boards near the faceoff circle to Rob Blake at the point.

Lindros, standing just outside the crease, tipped Blake's shot between the goalie's legs at 16:50.

The U.S., outshot 11-5 in the first period, had few scoring chances and didn't play as crisply as they have throughout the tournament. The Americans' best scoring chance came midway through the period when Pat LaFontaine banked a 30-foot slapshot off the crossbar.

Kerry Fraser replaced Mark Faucette as referee after the third period. Faucette reportedly suffered an injury to his mouth.

4-5A: City trio make weekly honor roll

(From 1C)

Angelo Central, saw John Michael Herrera hit a 19-yard field goal with seconds remaining to give Abilene a fourth-quarter win over Lubbock Monterey, the 1995 District 3 champion.

"It went great," said Warren, whose team capitalized on five Monterey turnovers. "We played well on both sides of the ball and never quit. That was the major plus, and something Abilene High had done in the past."

Warren said going into the Monterey game, and season for that matter, attitude was something that had to be changed.

"We have stressed expecting to win and believing we have a chance to win," said Warren. "They believed it going into the Monterey game. I don't expect that to change. As long as you believe, you have a chance. We have to get over that mental hump."

For Browning, his mission is somewhat similiar.

"If they don't believe (in the system) know they ought to," Browning said. "We do have a long way to go, We just just have to turn it loose and not look for heroics."

Two other debuts were spoiled last week for Odessa High's Randy Quisenberry and Central's Gaines.

RUSHING
(Mulitple scores or 100-yard games)
- Josh Norman, Lee — 3 touchdowns.
- Sam Powell, MHS — 139 yards and 4 TD's.
- Koefie Powell, Permian — 151 yards and 2 TD's.
- Ja'Quay Wilburn, Permian — 115 yards and 1 TD.
- Patrick Strambler, Permian — 107 yards and 2 TDS.
- Freddy Espinoza, OHS — 141 yards and 1 TD.

PASSING
(200 yards or mulitiple scores)
- Julio Guerrero, SA Central — 12-18 for 228 and 2 TDS.
- Camar Jackson, MHS — 9-15 for 213 and 1 TD.

OHS lost fell one yard short of the goal line on its last drive in a 22-14 loss to Killeen High. Central didn't have enough ammunition in its 40-29 loss to Temple.

Other performances included Cooper's ugly 15-5 loss to Garland. The Cougars had the ball inside Garland's five -yard-line three times. They came away with just three points.

Odessa Permian used a big-time performance from a trip of running backs. Ja'Quay Wilburn, Kofie Powell and Patrick Strambler combined for 373 yards and five scores in the 36-7 win over Edmund Stansbury and El Paso Irvin. The three-headed monster did fumble four times.

The Norman brothers shined in Lee's 46-7 win over El Paso Coronado. Junior running back Josh Norman had three rushing TDs while big brother John scored via the interception return for the fifth time at Lee.

CASILLAS: Ex-Cowboy back in Dallas

briefly to a chemistry class and popped his head into a few other classes to say hello while at MHS.

Casillas, who graduated from the University of Oklahoma with a communications degree in 1986 after the Sooners had just won the school's third national title, lamented some of the changes he has seen in school over the years which haven't been for the better.

"When I was in high school teachers were role models," Casillas said. "I think that's the way it should be but usually isn't."

Casillas then headed to Midland Lee just before the Rebels' football team began its afternoon practice. Lee's players who met Casillas were most impressed by his ring from the Cowboys' second Super Bowl in January 1994. "You should see last year's ring," said Casillas. "It's even bigger."

Last year, Casillas was about as far from a Super Bowl ring as a player could be yet still wear an NFL uniform as a member of the New York Jets. In July, the Cowboys, desperately seeking defensive line depth, signed Casillas to a free-agent contract.

Love them or hate them, the Cowboys are always in the spotlight. Recent on-field and off-field problems have put the team under even greater scrutiny than usual, which was magnified with their season-opening loss to the Chicago Bears before a Monday night audience. Sunday's rout of the New York Giants at least temporarily restored order.

"A lot of people thought 'what's going on here' (after the Chicago game) and jumped off the bandwagon," Casillas said. "We already said 'Chicago Who' after that game was over."

Casillas concluded his trip to Midland by signing autographs at area Albertson's and encouraged several Lee players to remember Oklahoma when it came time to select a college.

The return to the Cowboys has brought Casillas full circle, again playing for Barry Switzer, his former collegiate coach. Swizter has his critics but Casillas isn't one of them. Having played for the Jimmy Johnson regime as well, Casillas appreciates both philosophies.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 11, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Finding new outlets for your creative talents should be your top priority. Romance will flourish throughout the fall. Family ties take on deeper significance during the winter holidays. Do not shirk your duty. Your career will receive a welcome boost as 1997 gets underway. A move to another city is possible. Establishing good relations with various groups make your job easier. Join professional organizations. Learn new skills even if it means returning to school.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: singer Harry Connick Jr., film director Brian DePalma, singer Lola Falana, actress Kristy McNichol.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stop dwelling on past disappointments and make an all-out effort to achieve a cherished goal. Group camaraderie lifts your spirits. Avoid taking risks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): More work and less play will put you ahead of the competition. Profits are high. A loving relationship could be tested by a tough situation. A key agreement gels.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Creative and artistic projects are favored. Your intuition tells you to take a chance on love. Behind-the-scenes maneuvers prove lucky. Honor your loved ones' wishes tonight.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Acting too quickly on a financial tip provided by friends could be costly. You need to get more facts and figures. An imaginative romantic move works out beautifully.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Certain sacrifices will be necessary in order to make a business venture work. A family conference could head off a hurtful confrontation. Give loved ones the benefit of the doubt when things go awry.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A fresh chapter unfolds as love and good luck strike home. A new understanding with a family member warms your heart. Good communication is the key to solving any career problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Conventional methods will work best now. Beware of backstage dealings. This is no time to shirk your responsibilities or put your funds in inexperienced hands.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Too much solitude could get you down. Take a short journey. Touching base with family and friends will boost your spirits. Younger workers may need more guidance than expected.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Someone goes out of his way to assist your career. A surprise from a co-worker is well-received. Follow the dictates of your conscience where a money matter is concerned.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Vow to do what it takes to create a bright future for yourself. Help comes through loans or good friends. Do not neglect your love life. Someone who feels taken for granted could look elsewhere.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A financial deal is the subject of many conversations today. Your ESP is truly uncanny. Although service-oriented businesses can be highly successful, a prime location is vital.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Look for ways to put your money to work for you. As long as you avoid pie-in-the-sky investment schemes, you will do just fine. A friend offers practical advice based on personal experience.

Defense is the most difficult facet of bridge. East played as if the cards were made of glass on today's deal.

South would have been better advised to raise to four spades than to persist with three no trump. The suit game can always be made as the cards lie. Not that three no trump was a bad contract; it was just that the defense was superb.

West selected the second-best heart to warn partner that the lead was not from a robust holding. Declarer won the opening lead in dummy perforce, and with entries to the closed hand at a premium, led a low spade from the table. East wasted no time in going up with the jack and found the excellent shift to the king of diamonds!

Since the ace of diamonds was the only entry to the spades, South could not afford to take the ace, so the king was allowed to hold. The contract would have romped home easily had East continued with a diamond but, having done so well up to this point, the defender was not going to falter.

East, correctly interpreting the lead as from a weak holding, now shifted to a club, and declarer was doomed. South could twist and turn any which way, but had to lose two club tricks, two spades and a diamond.

East's play of the king of diamonds is known in the trade as the Merrimac Coup. It is so named after the Merrimac, a coal-carrying American ship scuttled in 1898 in Santiago Harbor in an attempt to bottle up the Spanish fleet. The language of bridge is full of such colorful references to history, sport and other games.

Michael Jackson's concert tour turns into hysteria with energetic crowds

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Michael Jackson's "HIStory" tour is turning into hysteria.

A crowd of about 500 exuberant fans rushed a record store after word spread that Jackson had gone shopping. His bodyguards linked arms to keep people at bay, and the King of Pop himself appeared to wave the crowd back.

That gave the crowd a burst of energy Monday, and people surged forward, smashing through the store's windows.

"Jacko likes to come to Hungary because people here love him," said 18-year-old Ferenc Kis.

Jackson, on his first world concert tour since 1993, retreated to his hotel and tossed autographed pillows out a window.

"It can't be a good feeling to be accompanied everywhere by bodyguards," said 12-year-old Marta Erdei. "I'm sure he'd have more contact with his fans if they would only let him."

NEW YORK — Tom Chapin's music is evolving toward an older audience — but not that old.

Talking about "Around the World and Back Again," his sixth "family" CD for Sony Wonder Records, the singer-songwriter said his direction changed when his daughters were 8 and 6.

"I thought it was time to do a recording for older kids and something I would like as well as my kids," he said.

His daughters, now 16 and 14, "have gone through the part where they thought I was really embarrassing. Now they say, 'Cool. He does kids' stuff, but it's not bad.'"

PITTSBURGH — Tuesday was "Michael Keaton Day" and the guest of honor showed up at City Hall without bothering to shave.

Keaton apologized for being a half-hour late and said he had a good reason for not shaving. He said he had to look scruffy for his role in "Desperate Measures," a movie being filmed partly in Pittsburgh about a man trying to find a bone marrow donor for his son, who is dying of cancer.

The only suitable donor is a prisoner serving a life sentence for murder. Keaton plays the prisoner.

Keaton, who is from suburban Coraopolis, said he took a break from filming to catch up with relatives and friends and went to a Pittsburgh Steelers game on Sunday.

"I went back to my old haunts, but most of them have been shut down by the Board of Health," he said.

FOT, Hungary — Mandy Patinkin's next big role on television will place him in a Gothic cathedral instead of an operating room.

Patinkin, who left the cast of CBS' "Chicago Hope," is playing the lead in a remake of "The Hunchback of Notre Dame."

Richard Harris is cast as the priest Dom Frollo for the TV movie, being filmed with a partial replica of Notre Dame in this village near Budapest. Salma Hayek plays Esmeralda, the gypsy beauty in the tale set in 15th-century Paris.

"Gypsies were oppressed and still are. Handicapped are often still slighted. But the basic theme is freedom of speech and liberty," said Hungarian-born director Peter Medak, who fled the country after the 1956 revolt against the Soviet Union.

LAS VEGAS — The hooker caught with Hugh Grant last year faces new charges in Las Vegas.

Divine Brown was arrested Sunday night in the casino area of the MGM Grand Hotel by undercover officers. She was charged with loitering for the purpose of prostitution, aiding and abetting prostitution and resisting arrest.

She was arrested with Grant in Los Angeles in 1995 after police caught them engaged in a sex act in Grant's car.

The "Four Weddings and a Funeral" star pleaded no contest to lewd conduct and was fined and placed on probation.

LOS ANGELES — Wal-Mart won't carry Sheryl Crow's new album in its stores because of what it regards as a cheap shot from the Grammy winner.

The album, "Sheryl Crow," due for release Sept. 24, has a song called "Love is a Good Thing." One verse reads: "Watch our children as they kill each other with a gun they bought at the Wal-Mart discount stores."

Wal-Mart won't carry Sheryl Crow's new album.

"Selling a record implying behavior that is against all we stand for is something we just could not profit from," said Wal-Mart spokesman Dale Ingram.

Wal-Mart does sell guns by catalog but has strict policies against selling them to minors, he said.

A&M Records Chairman Al Cafaro challenged Wal-Mart's position: "They sell guns, and I'm sure some of those guns have found their way into the hands of people who shouldn't have them.

HOW TO READ THE MARKET IN REVIEW

Here are the 1,675 most active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, 925 most active on the Nasdaq National Market and 405 most active on the American Stock Exchange. Stocks in bold are worth at least $5 and changed 5 percent or more in price. Underlining for 50 most active on NYSE and Nasdaq and 25 most active on Amex. Tables show name, price and net change, and one to two additional fields rotated through the week, as follows:

Name: Stocks appear alphabetically by the company's full name (not its abbreviation). Names consisting of initials appear at the beginning of each letter's list.
Last: Price stock was trading at when exchange closed for the day.
Chg: Loss or gain for the day. No change indicated by ...
PE: Price-earnings ratio. Derived by dividing closing price by company's earnings per share for the most recent four quarters.
PPE: Projected price-earnings ratio. Derived by dividing closing price by company's projected earnings per share for upcoming 12 months. PPE supplied by I/B/E/S, Institutional Brokers' Estimate System. Is a consensus forecast of all analysts following the company. Only companies with three or more analysts following them have a PPE.
How to use: In general, if PPE is lower than PE, analysts believe earnings will be going up. If PPE is higher, they expect earnings to fall. The numbers can be helpful in following stocks but as with all financial data are only one of many factors to judge a company by. Consult your financial advisor before making any investment decision.

Prices rise

Energy futures prices rose Tuesday on the New York Mercantile Exchange after reports that Iraq is rebuilding its air defense system and marching troops toward Kuwaiti oil fields.

Defying a U.S. warning of further attacks, Iraq is repairing air defense installations damaged in last week's U.S. raids, administration officials said. Officials also said increased Iraqi military activity was noticed in the South.

Traders do not believe a threat to oil supplies is imminent, but the traders quickly buy crude and petroleum products whenever hostilities arise, said ARB Oil Inc.'s managing director, Gerald Samuels.

Heating oil futures rose because reserves continue to be tight and there may be spot shortages this winter if cold weather hits early or is particularly brutal.

Prices also rose after Norway announced its crude production fell 7 percent in August. Norway is the world's second-largest crude exporter.

West Texas Intermediate for October delivery rose 39 cents to $24.12 a barrel.

Natural gas for October delivery retreated 10.7 cents to $1.791 per 1,000 cubic feet after Hurricane Hortense moved away from platforms in the Caribbean.

Dollar climbs

NEW YORK — The dollar hit eight-week highs against both the German mark and Japanese yen Tuesday, rising for the third consecutive session on continued expectations of an interest rate increase in the United States.

The dollar's strength was derived indirectly from a falling mark, which suffered from speculation that the German central bank may lower rates again.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Monday: 1.2359 Swiss francs, up from 1.2228; 5.1555 French francs, up from 5.1110; 1,520 Italian lire, up from 1,510; 1.3700 Canadian dollars, unchanged.

Stocks slip

NEW YORK — Stocks edged mostly higher near the close Tuesday, holding steady against rising interest rates in the bond market and some profit-taking on a two-day rally in blue-chip shares.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 6.66 to 5,727.18, with investors securing some profits from a combined 125-point jump on Friday and Monday. That 2.2 percent advance had put the barometer of 30 big U.S. companies within 45 points of its all-time high at 5,778.00, set in late May.

Broader measures turned mostly higher by the close, but the market's moves were restrained by growing caution before some key readings on inflation due later this week.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by a slim margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where volume totaled 371.68 million shares.

The NYSE's composite index rose 0.21 to 356.49, and the Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.06 to 663.82.

The Nasdaq composite index rose 0.72 to 1,149.43, and the American Stock Exchange's market value index rose 3.27 to 565.23.

Higher imports swell trade deficit

Worker productivity shows only modest increase during second quarter

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Two of the economy's weak spots were highlighted Tuesday in reports showing the U.S. trade deficit widened sharply in the second quarter while growth in productivity, the key to rising living standards, showed only a modest increase.

The Commerce Department said the deficit in the current account, the broadest measure of U.S. trade, jumped to $38.8 billion in the April-June quarter, the worst showing in a year, as higher oil and merchandise imports swamped a big gain in U.S. farm exports.

Meanwhile, the Labor Department reported that productivity, the measure of output per hour of work, edged up at an anemic annual rate of 0.5 percent in the second quarter.

A month ago, the government's preliminary estimate said second quarter productivity had actually declined by 0.1 percent. But analysts took little encouragement from the upward revision, saying that there is no sign that the country is breaking out of the vise of stagnant productivity that has constrained personal incomes for more than two decades.

Productivity is viewed as the key to raising living standards. Higher productivity means that workers are producing more per hour of work, allowing employers to reward them with wage increases without threatening higher inflation.

For the first 70 years of this century, non-farm productivity rose at an annual rate averaging 2.2 percent. But from 1973 through 1995, the productivity increases have averaged just 1 percent. In 1994 and 1995, the gains have been just 0.5 percent and 0.7 percent.

GOP presidential candidate Bob Dole has seized on both the growing trade deficit and lagging productivity and more particularly, lagging incomes, as evidence that President Clinton's economic policies are not working and the country needs the boost of his $548 billion tax cut.

The Clinton administration has countered that Dole's tax package is too generous and would inflate the deficit. Labor Secretary Robert Reich told reporters Tuesday that the better way to address weak productivity is by following Clinton's more targeted program of providing tax breaks for education.

Reich released a new report that contended increasing the average educational level of employees within a manufacturing plant by one year would increase productivity at the plant by 8 percent.

"There is a potentially large payoff in investment in skills," he said.

Compared with the small gain in productivity in the second quarter, Tuesday's report showed that unit labor costs, which account for two-thirds of total production costs, were rising at an annual rate of 3.2 percent, more than double the 1.5 percent first quarter increase.

Mark Zandi, an economist at Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa., said the jump in unit labor costs was likely to set off alarm bells at the Federal Reserve about increasing inflationary pressures.

Banc One on hunt for big acquisition

N.Y. Times News Service

New York — Banc One Corp. is on the hunt for a big acquisition, as long as it brings a slew of profitable customers, the Ohio bank's top merger expert said.

After sitting out a wave of mega-mergers that swept U.S. banking since last year, Banc One, the nation's 10th-largest bank, is prepared to look at its first major acquisition in years.

"We are now clearly in a position to look at any opportunity that comes along," William Boardman, senior vice president of acquisitions, said.

Analysts and investment bankers speculate Columbus, Ohio-based Banc One was in the running to buy Boatmen's Bancshares Inc. of St. Louis last month, only to lose out to NationsBank Corp.'s roughly $9 billion bid. Although Boardman stopped short of confirming the speculation, he lamented in a speech to a conference on bank mergers that Boatmen's "would have been a nice augmentation to our company."

Wall Street has long viewed Banc One Chief Executive John McCoy as likely to join big banks that participated in a record $66 billion in mergers last year. Aside from a $5 billion bid for Bank of Boston Corp. last year that was quickly withdrawn, Banc One stayed out of the multi-billion mergers that occupied many of its peers.

Banc One's biggest acquisition in the last two years was the purchase of Premier Bancorp in Louisiana for $800 million. Now would be a good time to start looking at a big acquisition, Boardman said.

The excess capacity of some $450 million in investments in new computer systems in the past few years makes it easier than ever to track and boost the profitability of new customers taken on in a merger, Boardman said.

And by next year, a reorganization called Project One will be complete, where Banc One is cutting costs by turning dozens of local and regional banking units into 12 statewide units and by merging duplicate processing operations.

Until now, McCoy has publicly justified sitting on the acquisition sidelines. In May, he told Bloomberg Business News that bank asking prices are too high, and the bank won't make "dumb" purchases that will hurt earnings.

Boardman said Banc One still isn't willing to pay up for a bank that doesn't meet a principal criteria: delivering a big enough group of profitable customers to justify its price tag.

The profitably of a bank's customers is one of Boardman's top priorities when he looks closely at a potential acquisition. As much as buying a bank, with deposits, loans and a network of branches, Boardman said Banc One shops for retail banking customers that are profitable prospects for the bank's sales machine — customers who will use many of the bank's services.

Barry McBee, chairman of the Texas Natural Resource Commission, watches others sign a pledge card as his agency kicks off its third annual Texas Recycles pledge drive. People who send in pledge cards to start or increase recycling are eligible to win prizes.

Economy also benefits from recycling

■ Recycling has added jobs, added billions to state economy.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Recycling isn't just for the environment any more. It has created more than 20,000 jobs and adds $2.8 billion to the Texas economy, according to a study released Monday.

"Recycling is improving our state's economy as well as improving our state's environment," said Barry McBee, chairman of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission.

"Recycling conserves natural resources. Recycling can save money. Recycling can even make money for businesses and for communities and for individuals in our state."

McBee released the study, prepared for the Southern States Waste Management Coalition, as the TNRCC and a statewide recycling coalition announced the third annual Texas Recycles Day pledge drive.

In the drive, Texans who promise to start or increase recycling have a chance to win prizes at a drawing at the Texas Capitol Nov. 15. Grand prize is a Jeep Wrangler.

The recycling coalition includes representatives of business, government, schools, environmental organizations and civic groups.

The recycling analysis conducted by Weston Inc. says 20,218 Texans have jobs with recycling processors and manufacturers. That number doesn't include collection jobs.

The annual economic value was estimated by assessing the difference in value of a material before and after a recycling process, according to the report. For example, if a particular material was worth $20 per ton before a recycling process and $50 per ton afterward, $30 per ton was considered to be the value added by the processor.

"It's clear that recycling is now an established Texas industry," McBee said.

But the state still has a long way to go, he added. As much as 80 percent of the 22 million tons of solid waste put into Texas landfills each year is recyclable.

With a nod to economic pressures that limits recycling of some materials, such as certain plastics, the state's goal is to recycle 40 percent of the solid waste headed to the dump.

Private business activity in recycling already includes such projects as:

— Champion International's $100 million investment to build a de-inking mill for newspapers and magazines, plus processing plants in Houston, Arlington and San Antonio.

— Forney-based Corrugated Services Inc.'s expenditure of $67 million to triple the capacity of its mill that uses 100 percent recycled-content material to make corrugated cardboard boxes.

— Neches Fiber's groundbreaking in Beaumont for an $85 million mill to produce de-inked pulp from office paper.

Organizers of Texas Recycles Day are trying to spur more interest in recycling through the promise of prizes and by encouraging special local events, such as fairs.

Besides the Jeep, individuals can win a $4,500 gift certificate to The Home Depot; five $500 shopping sprees from HEB; a vacation package for four to Sea World of Texas in San Antonio; and, for a participating school, a laptop computer donated by Texas Instruments.

In addition, Amoco Chemical Co. is sponsoring $6,000 in cash awards to encourage businesses and schools to recycle. The money can be used for any purpose, such as an employee party or tree planting. That program runs Oct. 1-31, with entries due by Nov. 8 and winners selected by the Texas recycles Day executive committee.

The first day will feature a variety of entertainment and food sampling.

The 92,000-square-foot store will be open 24 hours a day seven days a week and feature produce, meat, seafood, dairy, beer and wine, a deli, coffee bar, Chinese kitchen and frozen food. Also available will be housewares, automotive supplies, card and party supplies, a photo lab, floral department, tobacco shop, cosmetics, and a pharmacy.

Just opened at 404 Andrews Highway is UPTOWN CONSIGNMENTS.

Owner Gail Reilly said she carries consignment antique furnishings and accessories for those with good taste and lower budgets.

Among the inventory already in the store are dinette sets, sleeper sofas, sofas, chairs, marble tables, china cabinets, lighted wall cabinets, poster beds, antique bedroom suites, stemware, china, antique quilts, silk florals, rocking chairs, bronze ware and vases.

She said she also carries some new items as well.

Consignments are still being accepted.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

TOYOTA OF MIDLAND has become a participant in the Toyota Certified Used Vehicles program.

General Manager Don James said all vehicles offered through the program must undergo a 128-point inspection. He added that the dealership has installed special equipment and added an employee qualified to perform the required service on vehicles certified under the program.

When certified, the vehicles are sold with a six-year, 100,000-mile limited powertrain warranty that includes 12 months of unlimited miles roadside assistance.

The program, James said, "assures anyone purchasing a Toyota Certified Used Vehicle from our dealership that they are getting a superior reconditioned automobile."

The three FURR'S SUPERMARKETS in Midland are joining the other 70 stores in West Texas and New Mexico in "Apples for the Students Program" that launches today.

Last year Midland-area schools received several thousand dollars worth of high-tech educational equipment under the program.

All yellow receipts collected between today and March 17 can be exchanged for Apple credit and towards the Apple Learning Tree Award, which gives the two winning schools with the highest per capita dollar amount either a $5,000 for enrollment under 299 or $10,000 learning center for schools with enrollment over 300.

Participating schools include Bowie, Bush, Crockett, Emerson, Fannin, Henderson, Jane Long, Milam, Sam Houston, and Travis elementary schools; Hillcrest School; Midland Baptist Temple Academy; Midland Christian School; Midland Lutheran Palaestra Preschool; Saint Ann's Catholic School and Trinity School.

Slim Strawberry Chef's Salad is a healthy main-dish choice for a quick weeknight meal. The salad is made with fresh strawberries, an assortment of fresh fruits and lean deli turkey. Each serving has 3 grams of fat and 194 calories.

SLIM STRAWBERRY CHEF'S SALAD

2/3 cup fat-free sour cream
1/4 cup red-wine vinegar
2 green onions, sliced
2 to 3 teaspoons hot-sweet mustard
Salt and pepper, to taste
Butter lettuce leaves
2 pint baskets strawberries, stemmed
2 cups assorted fresh fruit pieces (grapefruit segments, pineapple chunks, orange and kiwi slices)
8 slices (1 ounce each) lean deli turkey
1/2 cup alfalfa sprouts

To make salad dressing, in a small bowl whisk fat-free sour cream, vinegar, onions and mustard; season with salt and pepper. Set aside.

To assemble salad, line four dinner plates with lettuce. Top with fruits, turkey and sprouts, dividing equally. Serve dressing on the side. Makes 4 servings.

Homemade fruit pies make a sweet goodbye to summer

Associated Press

Capture the flavor of summer with homemade fruit pies. Very Berry Pie is a combination of blueberries, raspberries and blackberries. Peach Melba Pie marries the sweetness of orchard-fresh peaches with vine-ripened raspberries.

VERY BERRY PIE

1 1/2 cups blueberries
1 1/2 cups raspberries
1 cup blackberries
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
Pastry for 2-crust 9-inch pie
1 tablespoon margarine or butter

Heat oven to 400 degrees.

Mix berries, sugar and tapioca in a large bowl. Let stand 15 minutes.

Roll one-half of the pastry to an 11-inch circle (roll pastry 2 inches larger than pie plate) on lightly floured surface. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry, allowing 1/2-inch overhang. Fill with berry mixture. Dot with margarine.

Roll remaining pastry to 12-inch circle. Cut into strips for a lattice crust. Weave strips of dough in a crisscross or woven pattern. Seal edges. Bake 1 hour or until juices form bubbles that burst slowly. Cool. Serves 8.

PEACH MELBA PIE

4 cups sliced and peeled peaches
1 cup raspberries
3/4 cup sugar
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1 tablespoon lemon juice (optional)
Pastry for 2-crust 9-inch pie
1 tablespoon margarine or butter

Heat oven to 400 degrees.

Mix peaches, raspberries, sugar, tapioca and lemon juice in large bowl. Let stand 15 minutes.

Roll one-half of the pastry to an 11-inch circle (roll pastry 2 inches larger than pie plate) on lightly floured surface. Line a 9-inch pie plate with pastry, allowing 1/2-inch overhang. Fill with fruit mixture. Dot with margarine.

Roll remaining pastry to 12-inch circle. Cover pie with pastry; seal and flute edge. Cut several slits to permit steam to escape.

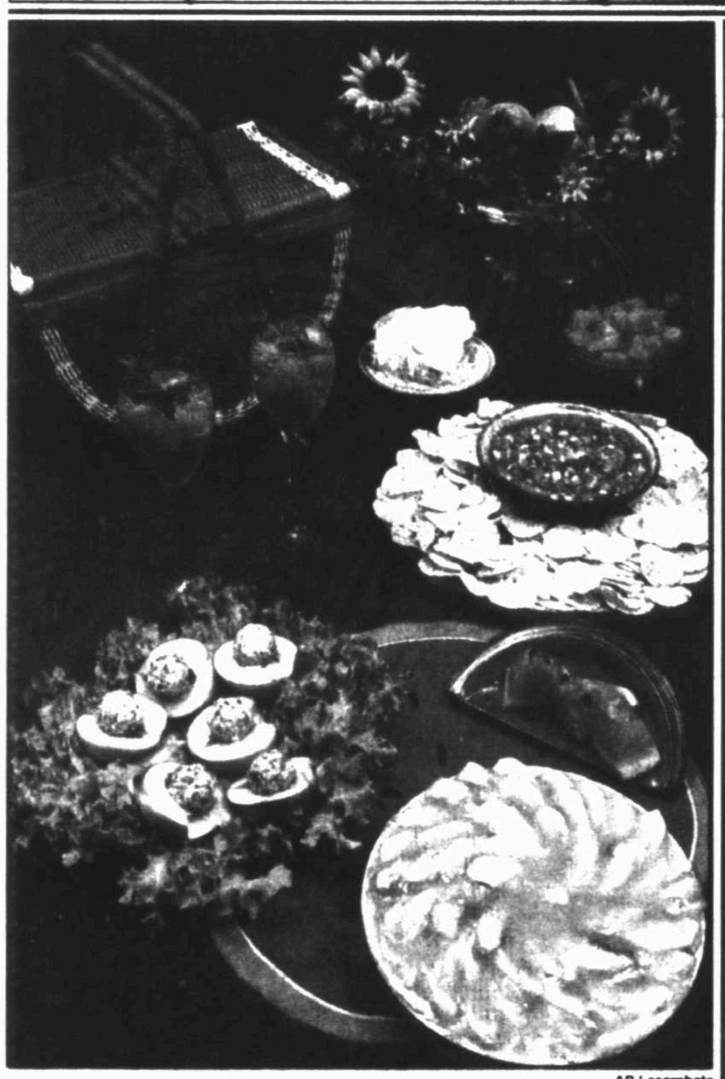

Bake 55 minutes or until juices form bubbles that burst slowly. Cool. Makes 8 servings.

By Pamela Percival

DE LEON — For watermelon fans, it's easy to see why the De Leon Peach and Melon festival is celebrated its 82nd anniversary this year — there's nothing better on a hot day than a free slice of crisp, cool watermelon.

It's BYOF (bring your own fork) on the sidewalks of downtown De Leon when 20,000 pounds of ice cold melon are served up. This is a one-of-a-kind event, said Betty Terrill, Peach and Melon Festival executive secretary.

Terrill, who has worked with the Peach and Melon Festival for about 30 years, said the event began more than eight decades ago as a cotton festival. "Then the boll weevil came along, so they decided it was good to grow watermelons. To show how good the melons were, they started slicing them and letting people taste them for free, and invited brokers to town to taste and sample. It gradually developed into a celebration."

Texas, as a whole, is the second-leading producer of watermelon in the United States. The average American will consume about 15 pounds of the juicy melons this year. Watermelon contains 92 percent water and 8 percent natural sugar, and is a good source of vitamin C, potassium and lycopene, an anti-cancer nutrient. One cup of watermelon generally contains 45 calories, and no fat or cholesterol.

Besides just eating a slice cold from the refrigerator, there are other culinary uses for watermelon, from watermelon salsa to a frosty watermelon margarita. But experts at the National Watermelon Promotion Board caution there are three rules to remember when working with watermelon.

WHAT'S COOKING?

Kristen Gould, owner of Mrs. Olsen's Coffee and Book Store, says cooking and togetherness have always been linked. In her home, dinner time is family time and everyone pitches in to help.

Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Woman says cooking, togetherness linked

By Linda Anderson
Staff Writer

Mrs. Olsen's Coffee and Book Store is a comfortable store filled with books in all kinds of categories, including adult fiction (Westerns, romance, science fiction and mystery included), adult non-fiction ("We have a big cookbook section," said owner Kristen Gould.) and children's books.

And if you're going to read all those books, what goes better than coffee (in about 40 different flavors), tea (in dozens of flavors of regular and herbal, loose leaf and teabags) and fresh pastries (from Tony's Bakery on Big Spring Street)?

That's the philosophy behind the little shop, tucked into a corner of Oak Ridge Square Shopping Center at the corner of Wadley and Garfield.

Of course, keeping the shop cozy, warm and inviting takes a lot of time too — store hours are 7 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday through Friday and 10 a.m.-6 p.m. on Saturdays — which doesn't leave Mrs. Gould with much time to cook for her family.

"We worked out a really good system that took years and years of marriage to iron out," she said. "When I do the grocery shopping, I write out the menus for the week.

"Our children are 14 and 16 and they can help out with dinner if they know what they are going to fix."

Many of the family's meals involve pasta with some kind of easy-to-make sauce, salad and bread. Like many other adolescents, the Goulds' children "like plain, simple foods," their mother said.

Because schedules are so tight, cooking at the Gould home is something the whole family likes to do together, she added. "We try to make it a family time. We don't have that much time together any more. Dinner time is family time."

Cooking and togetherness have always been linked for Mrs. Gould, who learned to cook from her mother. "She was a home ec major in college, back in the days when you (female students) were either that or studying teaching or in secretarial school.

"She enjoyed it (cooking) and shared that pleasure with my sister and me. She made it seem light and easy."

And now Mrs. Gould's children are picking up their own culinary skills from their own mother. Here are some of the family's favorites:

DEAR ABBY

Teens say no to sex, have no regrets

Van Buren

DEAR READERS: Last week I devoted two days to the wonderful responses I received from readers telling me how they just said "no" to sex. Today I'm devoting my column to more of the responses readers sent regarding this important question:

DEAR ABBY: How should teen-age girls say "no" to sex? My answer: BE HONEST.

After seeing many of my friends regret losing their virginity, I decided I wasn't going to make the same mistake. When I began dating Scott, I told him I wasn't ready to have sex, and if that's what he was looking for, he should go elsewhere.

Well, he stayed. And now, two years later — we're engaged to be married! I'm living proof that honesty is the best policy. — BETH PAILTHORPE, MARIETTA, GA.

DEAR ABBY: I thought you might enjoy my daughter Aimee's way of saying "no." It was printed in the December 1994 issue of Reader's Digest.

While attending a small, conservative college, my daughter worked as a veterinarian's assistant. When she transferred to Texas A&M University in College Station, I began worrying about how she would deal with the raging hormones of the young men on campus.

"No problem, Mom," she said. "I always introduce my dates to my cat, Ralph. Then I mention that I neutered him myself."

Her father's comment about our daughter's method was, "She probably doesn't have many second dates." — LINDA BARNETT, IRVING, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: I joined the Air Force when I was 19, so I got a lot of practice saying "no." Most of the guys I dated said they didn't believe the rumors that I didn't put out, and I knew that some of them dated me just to prove to themselves that they could score.

Once the conversation got around to sex, I was pretty straightforward and said I didn't believe in premarital sex. Sometimes the guys would get angry, but they never pushed me. A couple of guys called me a tease, but in the military any girl who doesn't put out is either a "tease" or a "lesbian." That gets the male ego off the hook for his failure to conquer.

My most successful phrase was used when the kissing got out of hand. I would say, "I have stop signs, not yield signs." And I followed it with, "When I say an area of my anatomy is off limits, I mean don't go there!" It usually got a laugh and eased what could have become a tense situation.

A couple of years ago I ran into one of my old boyfriends, and as we were catching up he asked if I had given in before marriage. He then told me that he'd thought about me often throughout the years, as he compared others' morals to mine. Then he said he really respected me and wished more girls were like that.

I know you'll get thousands of responses, but if you print mine, please sign me ... NO REGRETS

DEAR ABBY: My standard reply to a boy who wanted sex was, "Do you want to be a father?" That usually stopped him cold. Then I would say, "I don't want to be a mother, either." And that was usually the end of it.

Once in a while I'd run into someone who carried a condom in his wallet, then I just had to give a firm "NO."

I have passed on this strategy to several girls over the years, and they've always thanked me for the tip. I hope this helps your readers. — JANIS C. MINER, PITTSFORD, N.Y.

DEAR READERS: I'll devote my Wednesday, Sept. 18, column to more responses from readers. Stay tuned.

What teens need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with peers and parents is in "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. ## CONSUMING INTERESTS

Enthusiasm for this taste-test wanes

By Linda Anderson

Anderson

Every once in a while a taste-test comes through the office that other people are much more enthusiastic about than I am. When that happens, I just sit back and let them sample and then write about their reactions without becoming personally involved.

We got a package in the mail a couple of weeks ago that resulted in this kind of taste-test. Quaker Oats Company sent us a bag of its new snack-sized Popcorn Cakes in caramel flavor.

Now don't get me wrong, I love popcorn — when it's real popcorn. But I have absolutely no love for rice cakes, and I can't quite get up my courage to sample their cousin, popcorn cakes, in regular or snack size. But other people like popcorn cakes (and rice cakes too, though I can't imagine why), so that's why I let these other people do the actual tasting.

A 5.5-ounce bag of snack-sized Pop Corn Cakes has a suggested retail price from the company of $1.99, although they seem to run about $2.15 here.

One serving of the caramel-flavored snacks (that's five of the little caramel-flavored popcorn cakes) is listed as having 50 calories, with only five of them from fat, so the fat content of this snack doesn't seem to be much of a problem. They also have no cholesterol, which is another dietary plus.

In in fact, none of the four available flavors are listed as having more than 50 calories per serving, or more than 10 calories per serving from fat.

According to information from the company, "Quaker Popcorn Cakes are made from 10 percent whole-grain popcorn (there's another kind?) and available in four great-tasting flavors — caramel corn, cheddar cheese, butter and lightly salted.

"At home or on-the-go, from a bowl or right of the bag, snack-sized Quaker Popcorn Cakes satisfy your craving to crunch. Plus, you can munch on these great-tasting popcorn cakes without a lot of mess."

OK, on to the taste-test. One taster said the popcorn cakes tasted like rice cakes (I thought so!); one said they tasted like rice cakes at first but then tasted definitely like popcorn; one said they tasted like butter-toffee-coated popcorn snacks; one said they tasted more like Cracker Jacks.

I can't tell you from personal experience just exactly what they taste like. I may never know. I refused to touch them. I won't eat rice cakes — or anything that resembles them — and I may be one of the few former kids in the world who doesn't like Cracker Jacks. As far as I'm concerned, Popcorn Cakes already have those two strikes against them before they even come out of the bag.

You may want to try them, especially if you are watching fat and calories and don't mind rice cakes. Popcorn Cakes are available locally.

(from "The Eating Well Rush Hour Cookbook" magazine of Food Health)

1 pound linguine
2 teaspoons olive oil
2 cloves garlic, finely chopped
2 vine-ripened tomatoes, cored and chopped
1 teaspoon lemon juice
2 cups spaghetti sauce
1/2 cup chopped fresh parsley
1/4 cup chopped fresh mint
Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste

In large pot of boiling salted water, cook linguine until al dente, 8 to 10 minutes. Meanwhile, in large nonstick skillet, heat oil over medium heat. Add garlic and cook, stirring, until softened, about 1 minute. Add tomaotes and lemon juice and cook for 1 minute more. Add spaghetti sauce. Bring to simmer and cook 5 minutes. Remove from heat; stir in parsley and mint. Season with salt and pepper. Drain pasta and serve topped with sauce.

CHICKEN SALAD
(from "Colorado Cache")

4 whole cooked and diced chicken breasts
1/2 cup water chestnuts, sliced
1/2 cup chopped pecans
1/2 cup seedless grapes, sliced in half
1/4 cup finely chopped celery
1 teaspoon finely minced candied ginger
3/4 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons wine vinegar
1 tablespoon soy sauce
2 teaspoons minced onion
1/2 teaspoon curry powder
Lettuce leaves

Mix chicken, water chestnuts, pecans, grapes, celery and ginger. Blend mayonnaise, vinegar, soy sauce, onion and curry powder. Toss dressing with chicken mixture. Chill. Spoon onto lettuce leaves to serve.

NOTE: Mrs. Gould said this dish is "great for luncheon or dinner."

GRILLED SIRLOIN SALAD
(from "The Eating Well Rush Hour Cookbook" magazine of Food and Health)

2 tablespoons reduced-sodium soy sauce
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
2 teaspoons sesame oil
2 teaspoons brown sugar
1 teaspoon finely chopped fresh ginger
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
2 teaspoons black peppercorns, crushed
3/4 pound beef sirloin, trimmed of visible fat
Salt to taste
16 scallions, white part only
1 red bell pepper, cored, seeded and cut in half lengthwise
12 cups washed, dried and torn salad greens such as escarole, curly endive, radicchio or watercress

Prepare grill.

In blender or food processor, combine soy sauce, vinegar, sesame oil, brown sugar, ginger and garlic; blend until smooth and set aside.

Press crushed peppercorns into both sides of meat. Season lightly with salt. Place meat, scallions and red pepper halves on grill and cook 4 minutes. Turn meat and vegetables and cook until meat is medium-rare and vegetables are slightly charred, 3 to 4 minutes more. Let meat stand for 5 minutes before cutting it against the grain into very long strips.

Cut scallions into 1-inch pieces. Slice peppers into long strips. Toss greens with reserved dressing. Place on plates and arrange grilled meat and vegetables over the top.

NOTE: Mrs. Gould said to omit salt if using regular soy sauce.

"Serve with crusty French bread," she advised. "A delicious light summer meal! If anyone is still peckish, serve fresh fruit and cheeses after dinner."

ORANGE CHICKEN
(from "The Clay-Pot Cookbook," by Georgia MacLeod Sales and Grover Sales)

1 chicken, 3 to 4 pounds
Salt
Pepper
1 clove garlic, crushed
2 medium oranges, peeled and sliced (reserve rinds)
1/2 cup orange juice
1/4 cup soy sauce
1 teaspoon grated fresh ginger root
1/2 teaspoon allspice, ground
1 tablespoon brown sugar
Arrowroot

Presoak pot, top and bottom, in water for 15 minutes.

Wash chicken, inside and out, under running cold water. Rub inside of chicken with salt, pepper and pressed garlic. Stuff with peeled orange slices. Place chicken in pot, breast side down. Grate orange rind and sprinkle over chicken. Add orange juice, soy sauce, ginger, allspice and brown sugar. (NOTE: Mrs. Gould said, "I add peeled yams, cut in wedges, and they come out like candied yams.")

Place covered pot in cold oven. Turn temperature to 480 degrees. Cook 90 minutes. Ten minutes before chicken is done, remove from oven, pour liquid into saucepan and return pot, uncovered, to oven for final 10 minutes to brown chicken.

Meanwhile, bring sauce to boil and thicken with arrowroot. Add a bit of brown sugar to taste. Serve with tossed salad and hot crusty bread.

MELONS: Watermelons, cantaloupes are stars in recipes for pies, drinks, desserts

(From 1D)

1. Never cook it because the melon returns to its cucumber roots, losing texture and flavor.

2. Don't chop it too finely because it disintegrates when mixed with other ingredients.

3. Don't freeze it because freezing will make the watermelon mushy and mealy.

When choosing a mature watermelon, look for a dull rather than shiny rind. The underside should be yellowish or turning from white to yellow-green, advises the Texas Department of Agriculture.

People around DeLeon also grow cantaloupes, which Terrill likes to make into Cantaloupe Pie. "It doesn't sound good, but it is," she said with a laugh.

For an even more unusual cantaloupe dish, try the Texas Department of Agriculture's recipe for cantaloupe jerky. First puree the melon. Then, to a quart of puree, add about one tablespoon fresh lemon juice and a tablespoon of honey. Bake the mixture on low or use a home dehydrator. Patience is the key, since it takes about eight hours to dehydrate the cantaloupe.

At fewer than 50 calories a cup, cantaloupe is a great source of potassium and vitamins A and C.

Cantaloupes and other melons also make creative, edible bowls for serving summer salads, light desserts and even cool drinks.

For more great melon recipes and information, visit the National Watermelon Promotion Board's web site at http://www.watermelon.org. To receive a free brochure with recipes and tips, phone 1-800-55-MELON.

WATERMELON MARGARITA

1 to 1 1/2 ounces tequila
3/4 ounce Triple Sec
3/4 ounce Midori
6 ounces watermelon, cubed and seeded
8 ounces ice

Blend all ingredients and serve in 14-oz. glasses. Garnish with lime and watermelon wedge.

MINTED WATERMELON SALSA

2 cups diced, seeded watermelon
1 cup diced cucumber
1/4 cup sliced green onion
1/4 cup chopped fresh mint leaves
2 tablespoons minced Serrano or jalapeno pepper
1 tablespoon brown sugar
2 tablespoon cider vinegar

In large bowl combine all in gredients; mix well. Refrigerate, covered, at least one hour to blend flavors. Stir before serving. Makes six servings.

CANTALOUPE PIE

3 tablespoons flour (can substitute corn starch)
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 stick butter
5 eggs, beaten (can use only yolks and use whites for me ringue)
1/2 cup sugar
1 unbaked pie shell

Slice the cantaloupe and heat until soft enough to mash. Drain part of the water. Mix with flour, nutmeg, butter, egg yolks and sugar. Cook, stirring constantly, until thick. Cool and pour into baked pie shell. Make meringue as usual if you want it.

FRESH PEACH DESSERT

1 cup flour
1 stick butter
1 cup chopped pecans (optional)
1 cup powdered sugar
1 8-ounce package cream cheese
1 cup whipped topping
1 1/2 cups water
3 tablespoons peach gelatin
3 tablespoons corn starch
1 cup sugar
5 or more large peaches, sliced thin

Mix flour, butter and peaches and spread in 9x13-inch pan. Bake 20 minutes at 350 degrees. Cool. Mix sugar and cream cheese until creamy. Fold in whipped topping until well mixed. Spread on cooled cake. Mix gelatin, corn starch and sugar. Gradually add water and boil until thick. Remove from heat and stir in peaches; let cool. Pour over second layer and put in refrigerator.
