American League Champs Boom Out Hits For Victory

Chicago Team Is Hammered Into Submission By Nine To Three Score In 2nd World Series Game

Home Stand Routed

A's Bombardment Is Led By Al Simmons And Jimmy Foxx To Drive Pat Malone From Box In Fourth

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

WRIGHT FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 9.—The Athletics changed their tune today but it was still a dirge so far as the Cubs and their hopes of World's series conquest are concerned.

Connie Mack's American league champions said it with base hits instead of slay curves as they hammered the Chicago team into submission, 9 to 3, captured their second game in a row and started back toward Philadelphia with the 1929 championship of the baseball world apparently in their grasp.

Home Stand Routed
The home stand of the Cubs ended in an almost complete rout. The rampant Athletics, led by the war club of Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx, drove big Pat Malone out of the box in less than four innings and completed the bombardment at the expense of Hal Carlson.

The Cubs with his second home run of the series and Simmons, with his first, contributed three of the mightiest blows. Together they drove in seven of the A's nine runs as the rival murderers' row of the Cubs, except for Hack Wilson and a continuing outcast, put on another dismal exhibition at the plate.

Goose To Rescue
The Cubs drove George Earnshaw, the A's starting pitcher, from the box in the fifth inning with the tally that produced all three of the runs.

"Obey" Omitted From Ceremony

NEW YORK, Oct. 9. (AP)—The revised book of common prayer of the Protestant Episcopal church was issued today, after 15 years' work by the committee on revision. The draft of the book was ratified a year ago by the church authorities.

Some of the more outstanding changes from the old prayer book are:

Omission of the word "obey" from the woman's promise in the marriage ritual and the omission of the statement "with all my worldly goods I do endow" from the man's promise.

Pantages Is Charged With Attempt To Buy Perjured Testimony In Attack Case

Surprise Witness Introduced In Turbulent Session Of Sensational Trial On Charge Of Statutory Offense On Dancer

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9.—A major prosecution surprise in testimony by Jay Sheridan, San Diego, Calif., resort owner, that Alexander T. Pantages had attempted to buy perjured testimony, and subsequent defense moves against the statement marked today's turbulent session of the trial of the vaudeville magnate on a statutory charge.

Sheridan's entrance into the case was dramatic. District Attorney Burton Pitts announced a surprise witness would be called, and asked a ten minute delay in opening the session to produce him. When the man entered the courtroom, apparently defense attorneys and Pantages alone recognized him.

Pitts asked Sheridan a group of perfunctory questions eliciting the information that the man had known Pantages fifteen years and during part of the time Sheridan had been in the theater business.

September 22 Sheridan said, Pantages interviewed him in San Diego. That date was more than a month after the theater man's alleged attack on Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer.

"I was asked if I would testify that I was in the little room (the stairway cubbyhole in which the attack was alleged to have taken place) on August 9," Sheridan said. "I said I would."

Pantages told me to say I saw the girl's hand on the door as I approached the room and saw it still there as I left," Sheridan said, in answer to long-asked questions about directions given him.

Sheridan then testified Pantages promised to take care of him financially and that he actually was, in San Diego August 9. He said a woman named Miss "Skiddie" Pringle, with whom he remained overnight in Tia Juana, Mexico, was to be identified as Eunice Pringle, and that defense attorneys dismissed him as a witness when he informed that the couple could identify definitely as "Skiddie" Pringle, a newspaper photograph of Eunice Pringle.

Defense attorneys launched a bitter attack on Sheridan's testimony, and the man admitted he had telephoned Pantages he thought he could be of assistance, and that more than $200 had been paid, for expenses incurred in making trips to Los Angeles to confer with Pantages.

Independence For Philippines Denied As Senate Rejects Tariff Amendment

By D. HAROLD OLIVER

President Andy Bourland Visits City In Interest Of W.T.C.C. Convention

UNVISAGING the future of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and characterizing each city and community composing the organization as an artery for formulating workable policies, A. M. Bourland, of Vernon, president of the regional body, conferred here last night with W. W. Rix and Spencer Wells, of Lubbock, W. T. C. C. directors, while on a final of the annual convention in El Paso, October 24-26.

Face New Era
"We are facing a new era in the history of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce," said Mr. Bourland, "and the El Paso convention will be the most significant of any yet recorded."

"The regional organization might be characterized as an indelible force in the minds of West Texas citizens. It is greater than any individual, greater than any city and greater than any section. It is a pulsating body, its arteries throbbing in and for West Texas."

"Each West Texas citizen as an individual is directly or indirectly benefited by the united efforts of the organization which serves the region in which that individual lives. Serves West Texas."

"The West Texas Chamber of Commerce has served West Texas and it will continue to serve."

"We are now formulating policies in meetings throughout the area so that we might present a skeleton form before the directors at the El Paso convention. The organization belongs to West Texas and we, as West Texas citizens, must determine its future in the manner which has characterized West Texas."

Financing Planned
A concrete plan for financing a crystallized system for better representation of each city and community, a program for closer contact of all units with the organization, and a board of directors forming a chamber which represents all industries of West Texas are visualized by Mr. Bourland, who expressed hope that those plans would terminate into a definite program at the convention.

Five Meet Death And Many Hurt As Trains Crash

Details Of Tragedy Meager As Express and Freight Collide Head On; Relief Trains-Nurses On Way

(By Associated Press)
PITTSBURGH, Oct. 9.—Five persons were killed and an undetermined number injured tonight, according to a report from Dr. J. E. Buzard, when the Pittsburgh-Washington express of the Pennsylvania railroad ran head on into an extra freight train at Portage, near Johnstown. Dr. Buzard said some of the injured were being treated in his office.

Relief trains with nurses and doctors were sent from Johnstown and Pittsburgh, the Pennsylvania railroad offices here announced. Traffic on all the main lines of the railroad was held up, he said.

Sleepers Carried
The train known as the Pittsburgh-Washington express, carried sleepers for Wilkes Barre, Harrisburg and Washington. It also was hauling express cars and coaches.

Dr. Buzard, who was reached at his office in Portage, said one of the dead men had been identified as William McClain, fireman of the passenger train at Portage, here said Engineer W. S. Johnson of the passenger train and Engineer W. C. Reed of freight, also were dead.

The railroad statement said the Pittsburgh-Washington express was made up of two express cars, attached to the train behind the locomotive, three coaches and four sleepers, the sleepers being on the end of the train. It was added that only the express cars were derailed. The sleepers were being carried to Wilkes Barre, Harrisburg and Washington.

Lubbock Officers Arrest Prisoner After Extended Chase Hundreds Of Miles

Two Men And One Woman Are Lodged In Jail Here by Local and Slaton Officers; Theft and Forgery Charges Made

FOLLOWING an exciting man-chase which carried them over several hundred miles, Sheriff Wade Hardy and Tom Ables, Slaton chief of police, returned to Lubbock late Wednesday afternoon from Archer City with three prisoners, two men and one woman.

The two officers were called to Archer City to take charge of J. A. Tucker, being held in jail there and wanted in this city for theft of a truck body. Upon arrival there they learned of the whereabouts of Raymond Tucker, son of J. A., and a woman, Bessie Phillips, both wanted in Lubbock county on charges of forgery.

Raymond Tucker, alias Stevens, formerly of this city, together with Bessie Phillips, who declares she is Tucker's wife, are charged with forging over $2,000 worth of checks in this city and other nearby.

Young Tucker, according to officers was not taken without some trouble. Sheriff Hardy telephoned from Archer City to Newcastle, where the two were arrested, asking that the man be held until he could get there. A constable in that city was threatened by Tucker, officers said, and told to "beat it," at the point of a gun.

Tucker Not Found.
Sheriff Hardy and Chief Ables, in company with a deputy sheriff and the constable, hastened to Newcastle. When they arrived at the house where Tucker was living they were met at the door by Bessie Phillips who said he had gone to Lubbock. A search was made of the house but Tucker was not to be found.

War Possibility Said "Banished"

Hoover and MacDonald Are In Agreement On Solution On Abolishment Of U. S., Britain Trouble

By C. P. WILLIAMSON,
Associated Press Staff Writer
WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—President Hoover and Prime Minister MacDonald joined tonight in announcing their conversations had been based on the assumption that war between the United States and Great Britain was "banished" and that consequently a satisfactory solution of the "old historical problems" between the two nations had become possible.

While these problems were not specified in the statement, there was little doubt that the principal one was freedom of the seas, a subject which has been the cause of many controversies in the past and particularly during the first days of the World war before the United States became a belligerent.

The chief executive and the prime minister asserted that on the assumption "that conflicts between the military and naval forces cannot take place, these problems have changed their meaning and character, and their solution, in ways satisfactory to both countries, has become possible."

An agreement on the freedom of the seas has been demanded by some senators, particularly Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee as a prelude to any further naval limitation treaty.

Grassy Marsh Land Turns Into Lake Overnight Near Sour Lake Oil Field

(By Associated Press)
BEAUMONT, Oct. 9.—Where yesterday was a stretch of grassy marsh land adjoining the Sour Lake oil field now lies a lake approximately one-fourth mile wide and eighty longer, the depth of which is estimated at 50 to 150 feet.

Depression was first noticeable late yesterday and during the night the hole reached practically its present proportions, although a constant crumbling about the edges continued throughout the day. The depth of the crater cannot be estimated as water from the adjoining marshes and drainage ditches has poured into the hole.

A new boiler belonging to the dry P. D. Hart, over the edge of the hole but a tackle has been attached and it is thought the boiler will be salvaged.

No oil derricks are in danger, say company officials, as the nearest are several feet from the depression. Damage to the four companies whose leases adjoin the territory, however, will amount to thousands of dollars, it is said. Almost every well in the field has shown decreased production today and many have been cut off entirely.

(By Associated Press)
HAMMOND, Ind., Oct. 9.—One policeman and one alleged bandit were killed, another officer and two gunmen were seriously wounded, and five persons, including two women, are under arrest as the result of a gun fight between four policemen and six bandits in the heart of the residential district today.

The dead:

Walter Wahzynski, address unknown.

The wounded:

Calhoun Ready To Test Martial Law

Right Of Military Officers To Hold Prisoners Without Bond Will Be Up In Court Proceedings Today

(By Associated Press)
BOSTON, Oct. 9.—District Attorney Glenn Calhoun prepared tonight for a busy day tomorrow in which he expected to defend the right of military officers here to hold prisoners without bond, and at the same time mix in some detective work in running down the clue to the identity of the slayer of the late District Attorney John A. Holmes.

Calhoun planned to leave here for Canadian, Texas, before daybreak to run down the clue, and return to Stinnett in time to oppose habeas corpus petitions for a number of prisoners whom state rangers and national guardsmen have arrested and held without bond. The district attorney said tonight that he was not certain how hot his clue was, but that he was hopeful that it would solve the assassination of Holmes.

The legal battle at Stinnett will be the first of its kind in Texas as prisoners held under the rigid code of martial law never before have involved the aid of civil courts.

Proposed Change In Pro Laws Is Asking Attention

Sheppard Bill Would Make Liquor Buyers Equally Guilty With Sellers In Prohibition Amendment

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—An organized movement to bring about amendment of the Sheppard bill to declare liquor buyers equally guilty with sellers under the prohibition laws is pressing for attention of members of Congress.

Headed by Bishop James Cannon, Jr., as chairman, and Eugene L. Crawford, as secretary, the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has directed a formal appeal to Congress for passage of the measure.

The contention of the association against the prohibition amendment is that such a proposal having been excluded deliberately from the Eighteenth Amendment, Congress could not enact it now as law "without nullifying the amendment" was contained in the church organization's appeal with this statement:

"The principal reason for excluding the purchaser from punishment in the present Volstead act was the expectation that the testimony of the purchaser would be necessary for the conviction of the seller, but ten years experience seems to have demonstrated that better results can be secured in curtailing traffic if the purchaser is also branded as a criminal, eliminating the open flaunting of the law by persons without sense of shame who are willing to show contempt for the effort to promote social betterment merely to indulge their own personal appetite without regard to the constitution of the country."

Indication Given
An indication of the line which the opposition to the bill probably will follow if it is pressed at the regular session beginning in December was given by Senator Hawes, democrat, Missouri. Holding it "would put another army of millions of men and women in the lawless class," he contended that, if the scope of the Eighteenth Amendment were to be extended, "it should be extended by another amendment to the constitution."

Carload Will Be Distributed To Lynn County Farmers, About November 1; County Agent In Charge

TAHOCA, Oct. 9.—One carload of first class dairy cows, heifers and bulls will be imported to local farms about the first of November, according to plans that have been perfected by the dairy committee of the local chamber of commerce.

County Agent Ray Shaver, A. L. Wood, Dr. E. E. Calloway and R. H. King, compose the committee sponsoring the movement. Mr. Shaver will select the cows and ship them to the farms at cost.

That Lynn county is becoming increasingly interested in profitable livestock raising is shown by the fact that 450 head of livestock were exhibited at the recent Lynn county fair. There are now nearly twice as many dairy cows, hogs and chickens in the county as there were three years ago, and the number is increasing at a rapid rate each year.

Owner And Lessee Are Held Liable

AUSTIN, Oct. 9. (AP)—Both the owner of state land and the lessee is liable to the state school fund for one-half the bonus paid for oil and gas rights and 50 cents an acre rental after deducting the usual ten cents per acre paid the state as stipulated in an oil and gas lease, the third court of civil appeals held today in affirming the decision of the Travis district court in the case of the state of Texas vs. the Empire Gas and Fuel company.

The state had obtained judgment in the court below against J. H. Tippet, lessor, and the gas and fuel company, lessee, for one-half of the $16,800 cash bonus and one-half of $1 acre rental remaining after deducting the ten cents per acre paid the state, as stipulated in oil and gas lease executed by Tippet to the company under the relinquishment act on 480 acres of school land.

It was contended by applicants the lower court erred because the land involved was never properly classified as mineral.

Arbitration Bus Suit To Come Up

FORT WORTH, Oct. 9. (P)—An arbitration suit involving the South Texas coaches, the Southland Greyhound lines and the First National bank was filed in district court Tuesday morning.

The petition, is an agreement to arbitrate by means of a board of arbitration. The right of appeal to district court is reserved by both the two bus lines.

The petition says that on August 7, 1929, the South Texas coaches entered into an agreement with the Southland Transportation company, by which the latter was to deliver its properties for a cash consideration of $400,000. The Southland lines named the Southland Greyhound lines to receive and pay for the South Texas coaches. The buying lines claim that there was an error in the gross revenue reports of the selling company to the amount of $36,000, but agreed to pay $399,900 provided the seller puts $39,900 in escrow to be held subject to agreed conditions.

The board of arbitration, consisting of Elmer Renfro and F. W. Powell, will settle the matter according to the petition.

Strikers Murder Trial Continues

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 9. (P)—S. C. Davis, Loray mill overseer, and O. L. Glymph, an electrician, testified today that George Carter, one of the seven defendants on trial here on charges of murder in connection with the shooting of a F. Aderholt, Gastonia chief of police, had tried to fire on them and a number of police officers after the shooting of the police chief.

In a search of the tent colony grounds of the Loray textile mill strikers after the tragedy on June 7, Carter was discovered upon a bed in one of the tents.

Reached For Gun.

As he was being dragged out, the witness testified, he made an effort to get his gun high enough to shoot them.

"One of the officers asked him," Davis testified, "if he had the chief's reply was that he didn't shoot the chief but that he stepped them and that's what I was getting paid $40 a week for."

Shooting Of Pro Agent Is Probed

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 9. (P)—While the Bexar county grand jury in the 94th district court Tuesday probed the bombing and robbery of the Victor's Uptown theater here, the Atascosa county grand jury in Jourdanton was investigating the shooting of Capt. Charles Stevens, prohibition agent.

S. C. (Barney) Shipp is charged with robbery by assault with firearms and with arson in connection with the $100 theater robbery and the bombing of the theater shortly after.

Joe Rhomer, McCullen Shank, Lee Cottle and Lynn Stephens are charged with conspiracy to commit murder in connection with the death of Captain Stevens, who was killed in ambush September 24, in the Pleasanton road, six miles from San Antonio. The charges were filed in Jourdanton after charges of murder were filed in San Antonio against the quartet and Alice Smith, Mrs. Louisa Guajardo, Martin Casbeer and Joe Hohrecht in connection with the same shooting.

Amarillo Fireman Makes Wise Move

Another Railroad Man Has Gained Wonderfully On Only Two Bottles Of Orgatone

"I am just finishing my second bottle of Orgatone and I have gained wonderfully in health," said W. N. Worford, at his home. Mr. Worford is a stationery fireman at the general office Santa Fe Railroad and lives at 2802 Tyler St., Amarillo, Texas.

"For twenty years," continued Mr. Worford, "I have suffered from indigestion and my stomach was in such a bad condition every thing disagreed with me, and I couldn't digest the food which my system needed. A short time after eating my food would sour, gas would form and blast me up so at times I could scarcely breathe, many a night I would have to get up out of bed and take a dose of soda so I could get momentary relief. I would get up in the morning feeling as tired and worn out as if I hadn't gone to bed."

"I decided after reading the high endorsements to try Orgatone, and it certainly was a wise decision. My stomach is now in better shape than it has been in years and my food digests properly. I am relieved of constipation and that tired and achy feeling has left me as if by magic. Orgatone has certainly proved to be a great medicine in my case and I highly endorse it to any one suffering as I have done."

Genuine Orgatone may be bought in Lubbock at Bovens Drug Store. Adv.

Pauling Frederick Is Back In Movieland Once More; Will Be Shown In Two New All-Talking Pictures Soon

BY DAN THOMAS
NEA Service Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 9.—The talking movies have started more than one established moving picture star on the pathway to oblivion. But, as if to make up for it, they have provided several others who were in semi-retirement, with the opportunity to make a worthwhile come-back.

Movie fans everywhere will doubtless be glad to learn that among these latter is Pauline Frederick, one of the most competent actresses who ever appeared before a camera.

Out of the game for some little time, Miss Frederick is getting a new opening because of the presence of the microphones in the studios. Warner Brothers are bringing her back and are about to release two all-talking pictures in which she is starred—"Evidence" and "The Sacred Flame."

Charles "Buddy" Rogers, whom the publicity hand-outs dub "America's Boy Friend," has a new girl—so to speak. That is, in his next picture he will have a new leading woman in the person of Jean Arthur.

These two popular players have never yet appeared together in a picture, although both have been under contract to Paramount for some time. Now they are to play opposite one another in "Here Comes the Band Wagon," a film depicting the adventures of a carnival troupe, which will be directed by George Abbott, the Broadway playwright and stage director.

Much has been written about the great influx of Broadway playwrights since the movies turned musical. Equally important, though less talked about, is the way playwrights and authors have been coming to Hollywood.

It would be almost impossible to list all of them. Here, however, are a few of the well-known ones who are now turning out scripts for the movie men:

PAULINE FREDERICK

"Lulu Belle" and co-author, with Ben Hecht, of "The Front Page," Hecht himself, Edna Ferber, author of "The Royal Family," Lawrence Stallings and Maxwell Anderson, famous authors of "What Price Glory?" Zoe Akins, Clare Kummer, Edgar Selwyn, Eugene Walters, James Gleason, Philip Barry—well, those are enough names to start with.

This means, of course, that the movie fans of the country are going to see some films which are based on solid, well-written scenarios, with dialogue written by men and women who know their business. The day of the movie that struggles along with a weak plot and amateurish dialogue sequences would seem to be about over.

How to Achieve Beauty

As one reads through pages and pages of ancient history to learn of the existence of men and women long ago, it is interesting to note how the stress laid upon the care of the body fluctuated with the rise and fall of civilization. The Greek civilization, and before the Greeks the Egyptians, give historic evidence of this fact.

Of the Egyptian civilization I will only speak briefly, for while they did fascinating things, both with cosmetics and perfumes, superstition played too great a part in their beauty rituals. That they had problems like falling hair, graying hair and all the various difficulties which trouble our modern existence so much is evidenced in documents, and in various perfumed creams which have been excavated with mummies. To show the extent to which superstition played a role in their beauty treatments, I will relate one of their recipes for graying locks. Try to imagine an elegant gentleman of Egypt—the year 3300 B. C.—calling on the learned gentleman of the village.

"Tell me, O Learned one," we can almost hear him say, "what can I do to preserve the color of my hair. I am sure you could never guess the cure suggested by the Learned one. It was as follows:

"Get the blood of a black cow, rub it up in oil and boil, after which it is to be applied to the locks. Unfortunately, there is no record of the success of this treatment.

The Greek civilization, however, brought to the field of beauty culture a higher note. They glorified beauty of body form. It was their religion. Hippocrates, that wise old Greek, who is sometimes called the Father of Medicine, founded the Greek School of Dermatology 400

Hair Rats Are Gone! AN ANCIENT PREJUDICE HAS BEEN REMOVED

Modern woman, freed of the restraint of long tresses, realizes the comfort and sanitation of the bobbed head. The shears in the hands of AMERICAN INTELLIGENCE have severed the bonds of another archaic dogma.

"toasting did it"

Gone is that ancient prejudice against cigarettes—Progress has been made. We removed the prejudice against cigarettes when we removed harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from the tobaccos.

YEARS ago, when cigarettes were made without the aid of modern science, there originated that ancient prejudice against all cigarettes. That criticism is no longer justified. LUCKY STRIKE, the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the choicest tobacco, properly aged and skillfully blended—"It's Toasted."

"TOASTING," the most modern step in cigarette manufacture, removes from LUCKY STRIKE harmful irritants which are present in cigarettes manufactured in the old-fashioned way.

Everyone knows that heat purifies, and so "TOASTING"—LUCKY STRIKE'S extra secret process—removes harmful corrosive ACRIDS (pungent irritants) from LUCKIES which in the old-fashioned manufacture of cigarettes cause throat irritation and coughing. Thus "TOASTING" has destroyed that ancient prejudice against cigarette smoking by men and by women.

The finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—are scientifically subjected to penetrating heat at minimum, 260°—maximum, 300°, Fahrenheit. The exact, expert regulation of such high temperatures removes impurities. More than a slogan, "It's Toasted" is recognized by millions as the most modern step in cigarette manufacture.

Cubs Continue Whiffing Act Of 1st Day As Macks Take Second Game Of Series! Fans Boo "Murderers Row"

Teams En Route To Philadelphia For Third Game Of Series With Mackmen In High Spirits

Their runs but Left Grove came to the rescue with an assortment of fast balls that stopped the Bruins in their tracks and left them dismayed from slugging at the air for the second day in succession.

Thirteen Cubs, for the second straight day, struck out, to make the downfall of the supposedly slugging National League champions all the more humiliating to themselves as well as to 49,987 fans who paid $217,311 to sit shivering in the cold, biting winds that blew through the park.

Crowd Annoyed
The whiffing performance on the part of the Bruins, equaling the opening day World's series record so far as victims are concerned, was even more annoying to the bundled and blanketed crowd because it had been led to believe the Cubs thrived on fast balls. They got them today but couldn't do much more with them than they did with Howard Ehmke's slow curves yesterday.

In fact, the crowd became so thoroughly annoyed by the futility of the big guns at the plate it booed Rogers Hornsby when he fanned for the fourth time in two days and booed Kiki Cuyler as he struck out for the fifth time. Before he retired under fire, Earnshaw chalked up seven strikeouts and gave added six more, fanning the first three men to face him and shooting over seven successive strikes in the sixth inning to explode the Cubs' hopes of a sure death to southpaws, especially southpaw speedball artists.

Marks Record
The aggregate total of 26 strikeouts for the Cubs in two games surpasses anything in World's series history for futility at bat. Alone of the regulars, first baseman Charley Grier has escaped being fanned on either day by Ehmke, Earnshaw or Grove. Cuyler, Hornsby, and Wilson, three of the foremost sluggers, have fanned 11 times, while four pinch hitters have been numbered among the victims. Gaby Hartnett twice.

With such a performance, the representatives of the National league took it on the chin for the tenth straight game in the worst series losing streak on record. Not since 1925, when Hornsby led the Cardinals to victory over the Yankees, has the National league had a chance to cheer a triumph in the big autumn carnival.

Chance Fading
They still have a chance, the Cubs, but seemed to be fast fading into the distance today as the Athletics forged ahead at the same pace their predecessors, the Yankees, maintained in 1927 and 1928. As the warring forces moved to Philadelphia for the third game, scheduled for Friday night, the Athletics needed only two more conquests to win their first world's championship since 1913 and their fourth in six tries.

Nehf Sent In
The Cubs used four pitchers today in their desperate efforts to check the on-rush of the Mackmen but only one, the veteran southpaw Art Nehf, who pitched in the ninth, escaped without being hit for at least one safe blow. This was Nehf's fifth world's series, after a lapse since he was the star of the champion Giants of 1921-24, but he showed enough stuff in his brief appearance today to make it probable that he may be called into action later.

Guy Bush is slated to twirl the third game for Chicago on Friday but Nehf probably will be first relief. Connie Mack has vetted his pitching choices so far until just before each game but the probability is that either Jack Quinn or Rube Walberg will go to the box in the next fray.

Fox Again Here
The youthful Fox, barely old enough to vote and making his first appearance in world's series, again made himself a hitting hero by blasting a home run over the right field wall into the temporary bleachers in the third inning, with Cochrane and Simmons on base. This herculean blow by the big first baseman, started the downfall of Malone, just as his homer yesterday proved the undoing of Charley Root.

At Simmons landed the knockout blow on Malone, however, in the fourth when he shot a single to center with the bases full of men. Dykes opening this decisive rally with a single. Boley sacrificed, Earnshaw was safe on Elwood English's third error of the series and Max Bishop walked to fill the bases. Dykes ran on Haas' rap to English, who ran back to force out Bishop at second. Malone fast moving bases. Cochrane and Wilson were replaced by Sheriff Blake after Simmons drove in Earnshaw and Haas with a single. The Sheriff

Three games are scheduled in Philadelphia and the Athletics with their vastly superior forces are favored to end the series within that period, unless the Cubs put on a comeback of the first magnitude. The Bruins have been noted this year for their ability to fight back but they looked today to be fast fading into the distance.

Friday's assembly, to last 20 minutes, will be held at 7:30 o'clock in the college gymnasium.

forced Fox to pop out and the rally was over.

Fox's single, with Miller's sacrifice and a single to left by Dykes, produced another run in the seventh and Simmons, in the eighth, scored Cochrane ahead of him with a drive that landed beyond the wire fence guarding a runaway in extreme right field.

The big feature of the A's attack, aside from the timeliness of the blows by Fox and Simmons, was the fact that eight of their nine runs were scored with two out.

The extreme top and bottom of the A's batting order demonstrated some weakness but as soon as the Cub pitchers began tossing to Cochrane, Simmons, Fox, Miller and Dykes they found themselves in plenty of trouble.

Factor In A's Second Triumph

AL SIMMONS

Driving in four of the nine runs chalked up by the rampaging Athletics in their second successive triumph over the Chicago Cubs Wednesday, Al Simmons, Philadelphia's "foot-in-the-bucket" slugger, was one of the many potent factors in the A's attack on four Chicago pitchers. He landed a knockout blow on Pat Malone in the fourth when he shot a single to center with the bases full and in the eighth hit for the circuit.

American League Champs Chesty Lot Of Players Following Victory Over Cubs Wednesday.

Series Big Shots

(By Associated Press) Here's how the big guns of the Cubs and the Athletics fared in the second World's series game.

Rogers Hornsby First inning—struck out. Third inning—struck out. Fifth inning—singled to center and scored on Stephenson's single. Sixth inning—walked to Fox. Ninth inning—walked and was out at the plate on Cuyler's roller to Grove.

Hack Wilson First inning—walked. Third inning—walked. Fifth inning—singled to right and scored on Grimm's single. Seventh inning—singled to center. Ninth inning—singled to right.

Al Simmons First inning—struck out. Third inning—walked and scored on Fox's homer. Fourth inning—singled to center scoring Earnshaw and Haas. Sixth inning—rolled out, Carlson to English to Grimm.

Eight inning—hit home run scoring Cochrane ahead of him. Jimmy Fox Second inning—rolled to English. Third inning—hit homer scoring Cochrane and Simmons ahead of him.

Fourth inning—fled to Cuyler. Seventh inning—singled to left and scored on Dyke's single. Eighth inning—doubled to left.

George Earnshaw, who started the game for the Athletics, giving way to Grove in the fifth, said the pitching might not have been the best, but there was nothing wrong with the A's hitting.

"We are hitting now, and that's all that's necessary," Earnshaw said. Jimmy Dykes, the Athletics third baseman, expressed confidence in the team's ability to make it four straight.

Mack Silent Manager Connie Mack left immediately for his hotel, and thence to the special train, without making any comment on today's victory, or giving an inkling of what pitcher he might start in Philadelphia Friday.

An air of quiet and extreme depression came from the vanquished Cubs as they silently packed their baseball belongings for their hurried departure to the special train. The confidence that a hopeful club ordinarily exudes, appeared to be gone.

Their spirit, while not broken, was thoroughly shaken. None of the players could, or would, talk, and nobody talked to them, either.

Joe McCarthy, their manager, did all the talking, and there was very little of it.

Cubs Kept Quiet The players filed into their dressing room, sober and silent, and packing. Not a word was spoken for at least five minutes. Then pudgy Hack Wilson, dressing in a corner of the room, suddenly snarled:

"Well, what about that Grove? He ain't got any more stuff than Root."

Wilson seemed to know what he was talking about, for he managed to nick the "fire-ball" left-hander for two singles.

Manager Joe McCarthy was in no mood to talk, showing an inclination to remain as quiet as his players.

"They looked like the better ball club today," McCarthy finally said. "They didn't yesterday, but they did today."

"If they can win two games so can we. This thing is not over until the fourth game is won. It has been done, this business of one club coming back after losing two, or even three games."

Tradition Holds Against Chicago In Second Clash

Malone Whiffs First Batter To Face Him And Old Diamond Tradition Takes Hand In Outcome.

BY PAUL MICKELSON Associated Press Sports Writer.

WRIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 9. (AP)—A baseball tradition, almost as old as the game itself, held against the Cubs today as they were routed by Connie Mack's stampeding elephants.

If a pitcher strikes out the first batsman to face him in the first inning, this diamond tradition points to a loss for him and his team. Pat Malone whiffed the first Athletic batter, Max Bishop, today and fed the jinx by striking out "Mule" Haas, the second man on the A's batting order.

Old heads of the game say they recall but one or two exceptions to the rule, one of them being a tie game because of rain.

Blankets were at a premium today because of the chilly blasts that swept Wrigley Field. Many wrapped their legs up with newspapers and then tossed them on the field and seats as park attendants frowned.

Two rajahs, one of them of swat and another of a royal household were present. "Rajah" Hornsby of the Cubs was one; the genuine one was Rajah of Kapurthala, India, who said he had often heard of the Cubs' second sacker.

Elwood English, the goat of the first game because of his two bad errors in the ninth inning, got a big ovation when he came up to bat in the first inning. He got a bigger one when he got the first hit of the game—a sizzling liner that hit the left field wall. He got the first hit yesterday, too.

Capt. Charlie Grimm stood the crowd on its head by standing on his own in the second inning. English fielded Fox's roller and tossed far wide of first base. The Cub "Joker Wild" snatched it out of the dirt with his mitt, just toughed it and rolled over on his own head.

New Rule Prevents Defense From Turning Fumble Into Touchdown

BY CHESTER L. SMITH NEA Service Special Writer. Roy Riegels, California center, would not have made his famous "wrong way" run to the Georgia Tech goal line last New Year's—Minnesota might have beaten Northwestern instead of losing to the Wildcats and the whole complexion of the Big Ten race would have been changed.

Had the "fumble rule," the most important change in the 1929 football code, been put into effect a year sooner.

Riegels, it will be recalled, snatched up a fumble by Thompson of Georgia Tech and, completely turned around in his directions, ran almost to his own goal line before his teammates could flag him down. Under the new rule, the ball would have been dead at the spot where Riegels recovered it.

Caldwell, a Northwestern halfback, grabbed the ball when it was dropped by Westphal of Minnesota and outraced the whole Gopher team. His touchdown, which was instrumental in winning the game, 10-9, robbed Dr. Speers' eleven of a golden chance at the title.

However, had Thompson of Westphal recovered the ball either could have continued to run with it. That is the important thing to keep in mind. The ball is dead only when it falls into the hands of the team that is on the defense.

The new rule is covered in these two paragraphs taken from the Guide:

"When a backward pass or fumble strikes the ground and is recovered by an opponent, it is dead at the point of recovery."

And "If the side in possession of his haunches and glared at Earnshaw for almost half a minute when "Big George" got into a jam because of his wildness in the third inning. It had a steadying effect on the big fellow, too, and he got out of the hole by forcing Riggs Stephenson to pop up back of second, leaving three Cubs stranded on the bases.

Gaby Hartnett, alling Cub catcher, is the strike-out pinch hitter of the series so far. With two on and two out, he batted for Blake and whiffed. He did the same thing yesterday.

These changes were made with the realization that while a spectacular part of the game—the run with a fumbled ball—would be lost, the penalty for a fumble formerly was too severe on the side that made it, especially since it generally was the error of a single player for which the whole team suffered unjustly. The loss of the ball is considered equal to the loss of about 40 yards, equivalent to the distance lost by the fumble itself plus the average distance of a punt—35 yards—and is thought to be sufficient penalty.

Purpose of Rule. The ball must first touch the ground after the fumble, which means that the opponents still can intercept a lateral pass or rush through and grab a ball that is being juggled or mishandled.

Reduced to simpler language these are the things the fans should remember:

1. If the ball is fumbled by a back, or the pass from the center goes wild, or a lateral pass is missed or fumbled and the ball is recovered by the opponents AFTER IT HAS TOUCHED THE GROUND, it cannot be advanced.

2. The side that put the ball in to play can always advance it if they recover.

3. The ball must first touch the ground after the fumble, which means that the opponents still can intercept a lateral pass or rush through and grab a ball that is being juggled or mishandled.

Tiger Eleven Set To Upset Local Club In Battle

Lubbock Crew Holds Slight Edge In Local Circles; Wright Crew Working on Attack Daily

The Lubbock Westerners will open "both barrels" when they launch their attack on the Slaton Tigers here Friday afternoon. Coach Henry E. Frka emphasized last night Slaton's unmistakable strength in stamped even more firmly on the minds of the Westerners yesterday as the Lubbock coaches drove their candidates through another strenuous afternoon's drill in preparation for the impending battle with the Bengals.

Local sentiment gives the Westerners a slight edge over their formidable Class B opponents, but the Purple crew is conceded an even chance to hold its own by many close followers of the game in this section.

One of the largest delegations ever to follow a team here is expected to be on hand from Slaton Friday when Coach Wright sends his ambitious aggregation out to battle the Frka-Morgan machine. Both teams are nearing the peak of playing form, and indications are that local fans will see two smooth-running elevens in action when the game is called.

The football record between Lubbock and Slaton gives neither team a decided edge. The Westerners managed to beat out the Tigers last season, but on the year preceding, Slaton was the victor.

Slaton Aggregation Promises Stiff Go (Special To The Avalanche)

SLATON, Oct. 9.—A determined Slaton football aggregation will invade Lubbock Friday with the best prospect they have had in years to upset the Westerners of Lubbock High school in the annual clash between the two teams.

Although realizing that they will be battling against odds when they tangle up with the Class A eleven, the Bengals are working over time in preparation for the contest, and are certain to give the Frka-Morgan crew a hard time.

Army Of Diamond Stars To Hold Spotlight In New Contract Wars

Stars whose contracts must be renewed, and what they've been getting.

BY WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The annual battle between baseball magnates and their slaves of the greenward over money matters will take on proportions of a major engagement this fall and winter.

Listed among those who will demand more sugar for participation in the 1930 baseball wars are some of the most glittering specimens of talent in the game.

Leading the horde of athletes whose contracts expire with the season is George Herman Ruth, Brooklynite, who has been getting $70,000, needs must talk things over with Owner Jake Ruppert before next opening day. Meusel and Penneck are nearing the end of their playing days and Hoyt slowed up after a good start this season. Figure it yourself.

Babe Herman, the hard-hitting Brooklynite, will be looking for a raise—and will probably get it. Frank Frisch and Jim Bottomley of the Cards may not have to take a cut and may even get a raise—but you never know. Frank has been getting $15,000 while Jim pulls nearly as much. Paul Waner of the Pirates, another $15,000 earner, also comes up for salary discussion in after season. He is young—a strong talking point.

There are others—but these men will draw the spotlight in their

Houston and Waco Golfers Still In

DALLAS, Oct. 9. (P)—Only two out-of-town threats, Jack Dold of Houston and Clarence Hubby of Waco, survived the first two rounds of match play in the Dallas County club invitation tournament today. The other six players who will pair off in the quarter-finals tomorrow play their golf on local courses.

Hubby went to the third round by defeating Ed. McClure, Shreveport, 6 and 5, and Dick May, Dallas, 2 and 1. In the feature match tomorrow the Waco star will encounter young Ralph Guldahl, Dallas city champion and medalist, who defeated B. M. Lindsay, 1 up, in his first hour and then disposed of Jack Jackson, Dallas, 3 and 2.

L. R. Robertson and R. Smith will clash in another all-Dallas duel tomorrow. Robertson defeated F. M. Zuber, 3 and 2, in his opening match and then overwhelmed Eugene Bedford, Plainview, 5 and 4.

McCarthy's Mother Believes In Son

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 9. (P)—"My that young man Fox must be a very good player," was the quiet observation of Mrs. Susan McCarthy, mother of Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, as she heard the radio description of the A's triumph over Chicago in her home in Germantown, this afternoon.

Despite the double victory for the Athletics, Mrs. McCarthy predicted that her "Joe's team would win the series."

She hopes to attend Friday's game here as the special guest of her son.

gan crew just about all they can handle.

Coach Paul Wright has kept the Tigers at hard practice until dark each day this week, and there will be no let-up until the battle is won or lost.

All In Fine Shape
With one exception, all members of the team are in fine physical trim for the conflict. Otis Cannon has a sprained ankle, but it is believed he will be able to play in Friday's game. With the team in splendid condition, Coach Wright said today he expects his team to go into the game full strength. The two Cannons will be on the firing line, and Austin, flashy fullback, will be depended upon to give a good account of himself.

It is generally accepted here that the Westerners have a bang-up foot ball machine, one that is much more powerful than any the Tiger have faced this season. The Tigers defeated Plainview last Saturday, 39 to 0, but they don't expect to repeat this performance with the Westerners. Another Class A Texas team, Big Spring, went down 12 to 0, before the Tigers, and Cloria, N. M., bowed to the Slaton eleven by the decisive score of 21 to 0. But, the Tigers realize that the story of the fourth game is yet to be told.

Coach Not Pleased
The Slaton outfit was slightly off form when they played Plainview last Saturday, Coach Wright said, in spite of the top-heavy score in the Tigers' favor, and he is making an effort to whip the squad into more perfect shape this week. Frankly, he expects the Tigers to make a good showing against the Westerners, and his team will go in to win if they can, but they realize it will be a hard game, win or lose.

CUTHBERT GETS K. O.

Judging Teams To Vie At St. Louis

The Lubbock county 4-H club dairy judging team, champions of Texas, left here yesterday at noon for the St. Louis National Dairy exposition where they will compete for national honors.

County Agricultural Agent D. F. Eaton is managing the team, which is composed of Jack Stalcup, Fred Elliott, Jim Potts and E. C. Pounds, alternate. The quartet will compete in judging against a national field Saturday.

The Lubbock county boys also will stage a dairy cattle tattooing exhibition next Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The gray substance represents 37 to 38 per cent of the total weight of the brain.

Victorio Campolo complained to the New York coach that his manager, Gustave (Gus) Leneve, gave him $217 out of the $10,000 purse he was to get for fighting Scott. Mr. Leneve has received a flood of congratulations from those who saw the fight.

FOR KNOCKING OUT TOM HEENEY, VICTORIO RECEIVED $80 FROM HIS MANAGER. THAT'S AN EXORBITANT PRICE, HOWEVER, FOR KNOCKING OUT TOM HEENEY

Maybe this heralds a new era when fighters are to be paid according to what they earn. Anybody got change for a buck?

It was worth $217, perhaps, to have Campolo and Scott eliminate themselves at the same time, which their fight indicates they did.

Leneve's expense account showed $625.39 for "assorted expenses" and $547.39 for "various expenses." That fellow Leneve should have been a newspaper man assigned to cover the world series.

Gus works on the theory of 98 per cent for the manager and 2 per cent to the fighter. He ought to think up some way whereby that 2 per cent would go to charity.

FRISCO TAKES LEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9. (P)—The San Francisco Missions defeated the Hollywood Stars, 8 to 6, here today, taking a lead of two games in the series for the 1929 championship of the Pacific Coast baseball league.

Organization Of Bank Progressing

BADEN-BADEN, Germany, Oct. 9. (P)—The conference for establishing a bank for international settlements after a slow start now is progressing so rapidly that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, returning from Berlin today expressed surprise at the acceleration.

The conference has virtually adopted the Young plan for receiving deposits.

Although no country has yet made a formal bid to be the home of the proposed bank, there were indications that both Great Britain and Belgium would welcome it. On the other hand the prevailing sentiment seemed to be for selection of a neutral European country.

BROWNSVILLE, Oct. 9. (P)—Three bootleggers who figured in a nearly fatal auto crash near here in June, were sentenced to the penitentiary here today. The men fled from their automobile when it crashed into one driven by George Fletcher last June. Fletcher, however, nearby and said to have carried off several sacks of liquor before officers arrived and seized nine sacks that remained. Fletcher and his wife both were injured.

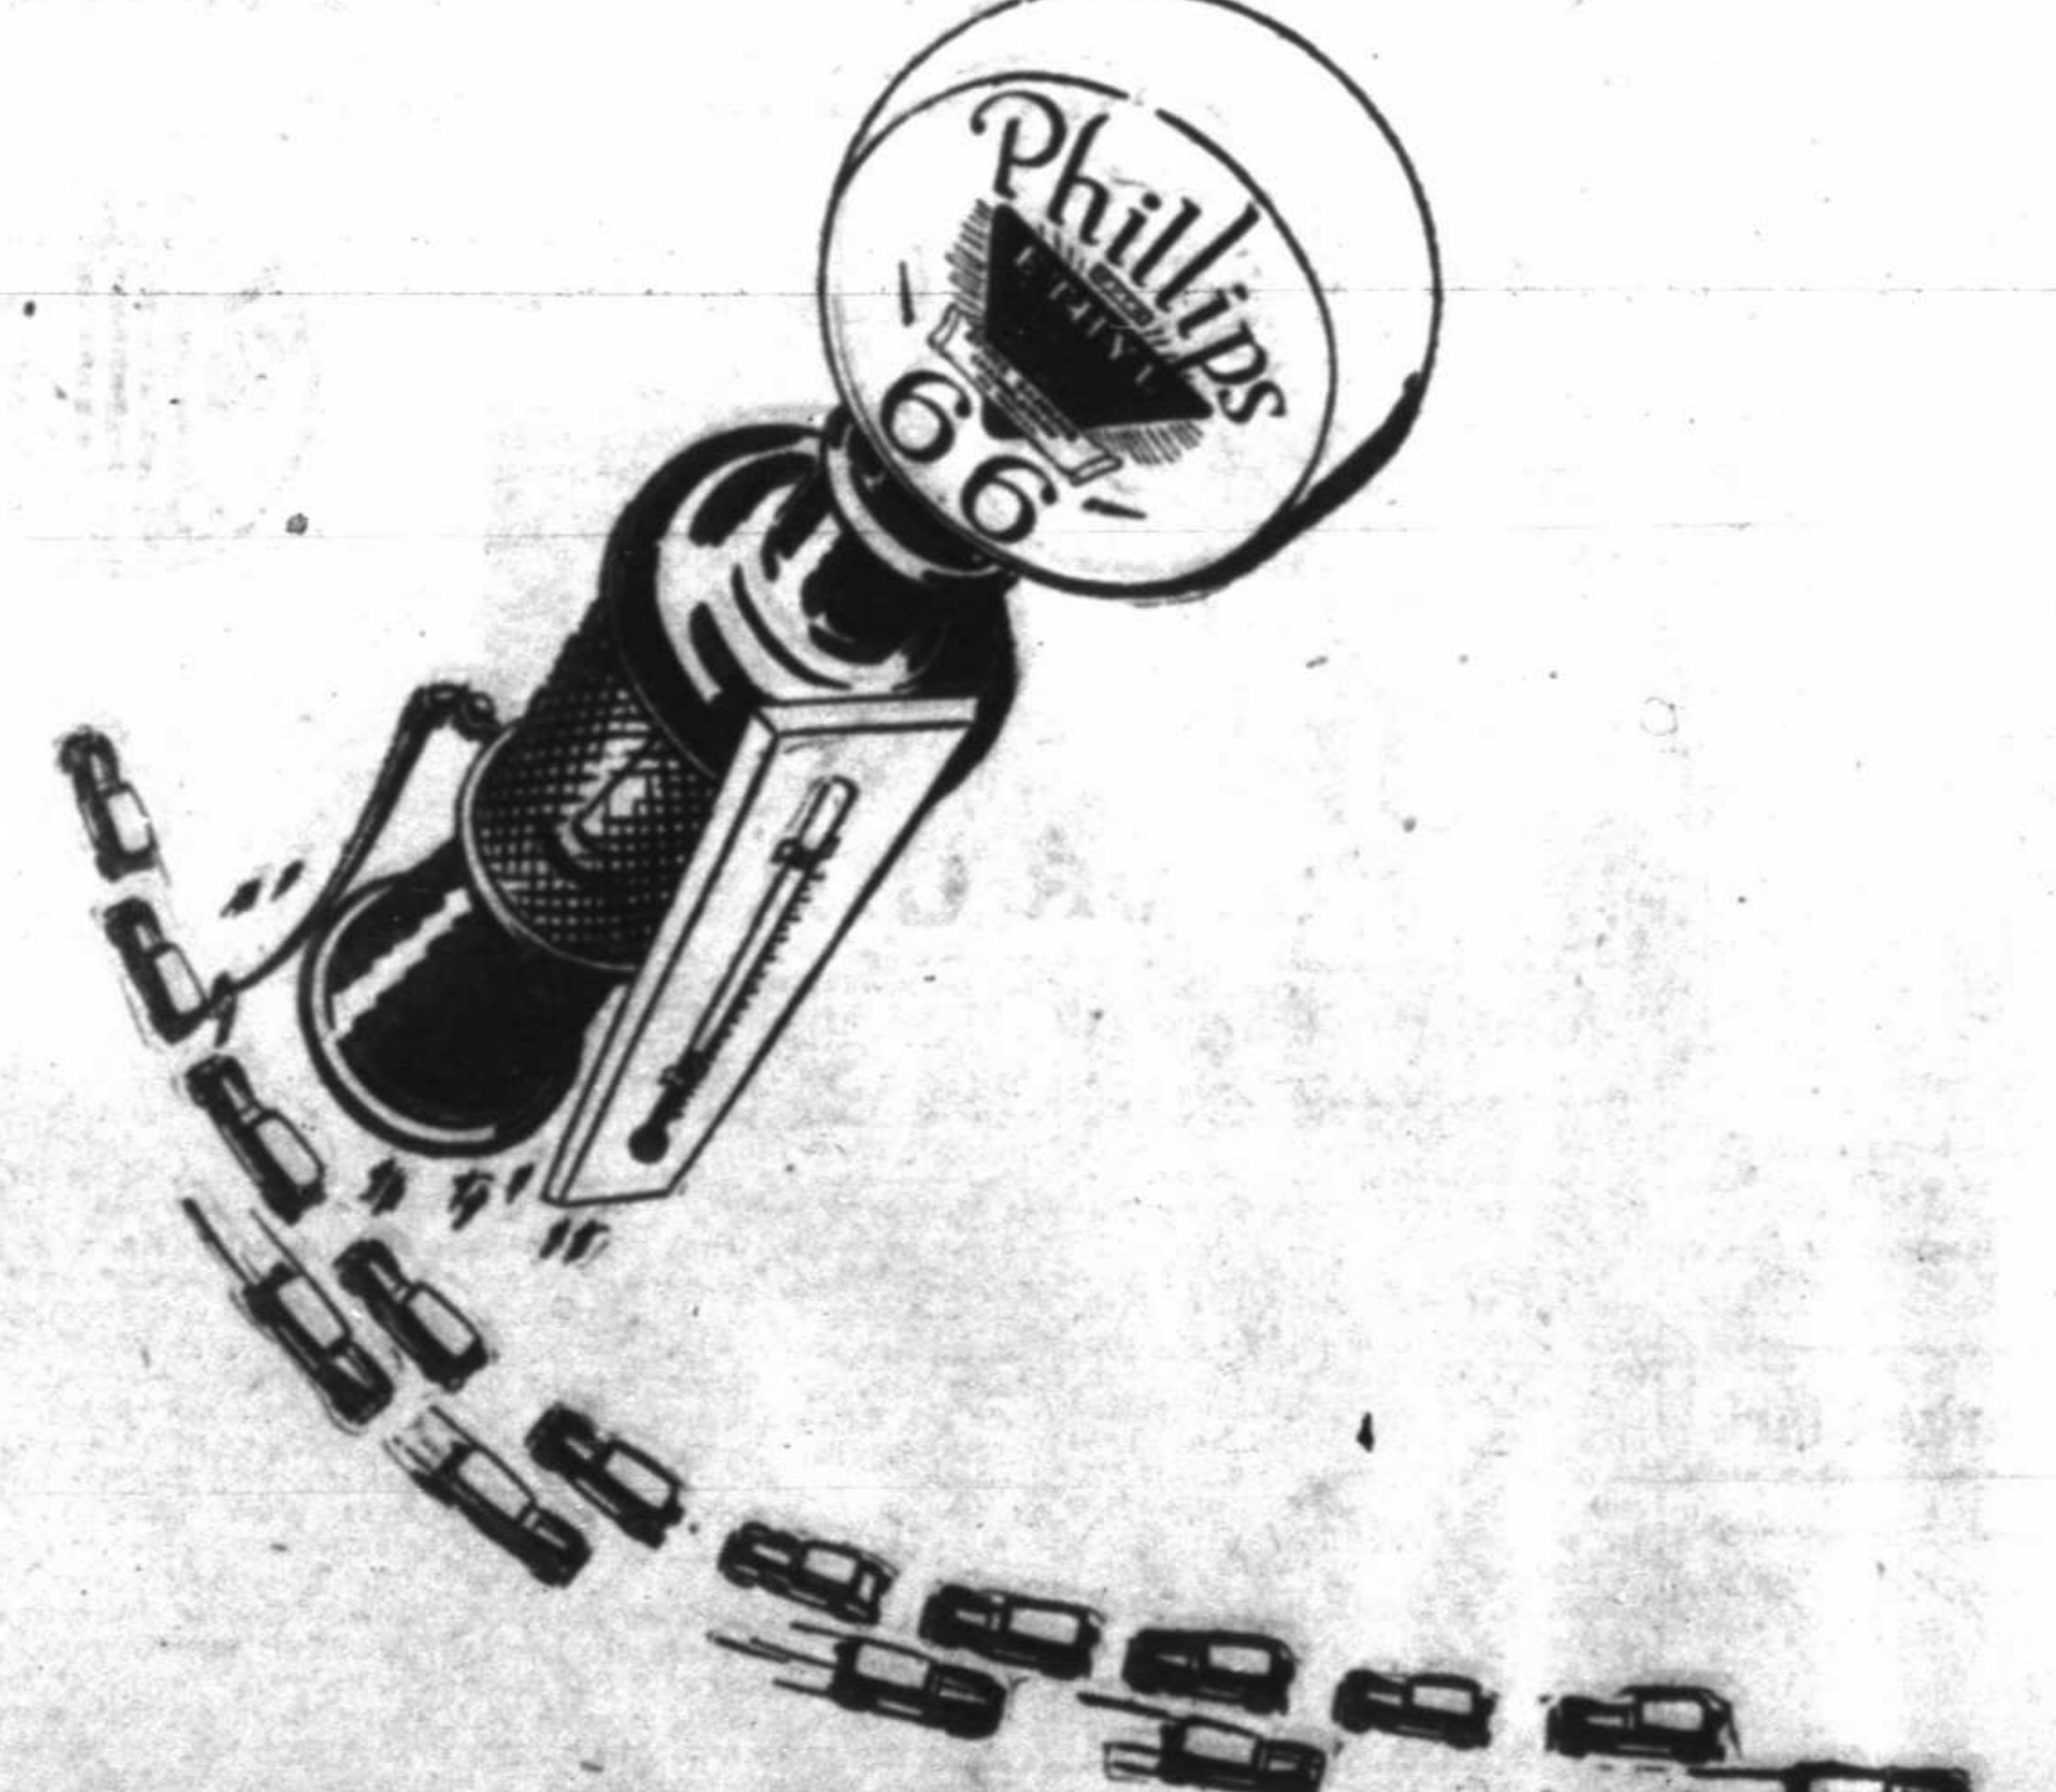

Hilario Noyola was sentenced to four years in prison, Jose Torres to three and Gil Montalvo to two in court here today.

Florida Stars

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Oct. 8.—Operations for removal of tonsils seems to have become a fad among University of Florida football players.

Rainey Cawthon, captain of the Gator varsity eleven and one of the best fullbacks in the Southern Conference; Dale Van Sickle, alternate captain and All-America end in 1928; Jimmy Nolan, alternate crack end, and Captain Everett M. Yon, retired director of athletics of the University, recently submitted to operations for removal of tonsils.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

GENERAL BUTLER DESCRIBED AS MAN WHO COULD DRY UP NATION'S CAPITAL, THOUGH HE FAILED IN PHILADELPHIA
 By CHARLES F. STEWART
 Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9.—Given a free hand, as Washington's law enforcement dictator, Maj. Gen. Smedley Butler, of the marine corps, unquestionably could and would show the country one bone dry spot in the United States to judge prohibition by.

Senator Robert B. Howell, of Nebraska, was exactly right in what he told his fellow legislators a few days ago:

The capital is wet.

Open-minded drys, like Senators Howell and Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, themselves admit it. It is in a naturally wet area, the same as its nearby neighbor, Baltimore, whose wetness is generally conceded.

Washington can be dried up, however. There may be doubt concerning the practicality of such a campaign in some wet centers. There is no doubt concerning the possibility of drying up the right man is put on the job with carte blanche to do the limit.

The right man! Carte blanche! The combination is essential.

Now, General Butler is the right man. Several others, who looked all right, have been tried out and found wanting, because they proved to lack the necessary remoteness when it came to a show-down. Smed Butler has been tested; he has it. True, the Philadelphia wets bet him—but carte blanche was denied to him in Philadelphia. It was promised to him but he never got it.

Smed is hard boiled enough to accept an invitation to a party at an acquaintance's house and then prefer charges against his host for serving cocktails at that very function.

It was by doing just this thing that the general won the sobriquet of "Smelly," which he is known by (behind his back) in the city.

There are naval officers who declare that a man who would do a thing like that would do anything. Precisely; it is just that quality which makes the general's ability to dry up Washington such a certainty—with the sky as the limit of his authority.

Local politics caused the failure of General Butler's effort to purify Philadelphia. The bosses—including the ones who enlisted him, under the impression that they could manage him—simply cut the ground from beneath him, as soon as they realized how genuinely he meant business. Naturally he could make no progress, minus the slightest contact with terra firma, to furnish him with a foothold.

Any other American big city assuredly would serve him identically the same way—with the lone exception of Washington.

Washington is unique, in that it has no local politics.

It unquestionably has more politics than any place of similar size elsewhere on earth—but no LOCAL politics.

Folk who never have dwelt in the District of Columbia probably realize the absoluteness of the despotism which governs it.

Czarist Russia at least had a Russian czar—presumably with a modicum of sympathy for his fellow Russians, as himself, a Russian. The district's czarism is more potent than ever Russia's was, because the district is only a twentieth the size of Rhode Island and thus can be bossed in the minutest detail—and its ruler is a wholly alien.

Public opinion in Washington signifies nothing to its government.

Its government is responsible exclusively to the rest of the country—to Anroostock county (Me.), Brownsville (Tex.) and Woodburn township (Ore.)—and the rest of the country not only cares not a hoot what Washingtonians want, it simply loves to see their civilization experimented with.

General Butler, once placed in charge of the task of drying up the capital, need never waste a thought on its inhabitants' preferences in the matter.

No boss' threats need worry him. Washington is municipally bossless.

Serene in the knowledge of the White House's approval (if accorded to him without a single string on it), the general's only other consideration need be congress, when in session—which it frequently is not for nine months at a time—and which, even in session, is an exceedingly slow-moving body—besides being politically dry by a huge majority.

The ideal moment to hand his commission to General Butler would be right after the lawmakers' spring adjournment—thus guaranteeing him hard onto an year of uninterrupted activity.

Then the fun could begin—as it would, it's ten to one betting.

The devil dog veteran's initial difficulty in Philadelphia arose from his ambition to make prohibition as airtight for the Quaker City's aristocracy as for its lowly and humble.

Had he confined himself to raiding cheap bootleggers all would have been well—but when he started breaking into good society, believe me, good society resented it. In fact, it put the skids under the general as speedily as it was able, which was pretty speedily.

The Spirit Of 1929!

TWO-CENT POSTAGE
 Climaxing a century of postal progress, the rates on letters was reduced to 2 cents in the United States on Oct. 10, 1929.

The first federal law on postage in the United States was passed in 1792 and set the rate at 6, 10, 15, 17, 20, 22 and 25 cents for distances of 30, 60, 100, 150, 200, 250, 350 and 400 miles, respectively, for single letters. The law defined a single letter as a single sheet or piece of paper.

The earliest letters consisted of single sheets of paper, brought and addressed upon the sheet. An envelope would have subjected them to double postage.

Postal stamps were first issued at New York in 1847; stamped envelopes were first issued in 1853; letters were first registered in 1855; free city delivery was established in 1863, and money orders were first issued in 1864.

Two years after the 2-cent letter postage went into effect, the post-office department inaugurated the special delivery system, and the rural delivery first began in 1896.

Today's Poem

LOVE'S LORD
 When weight of all the garnered years
 Bows me and prate must find relief
 In harvest-song, and smiles and tears
 Tint in the band that binds my shief,
 Thou know'st Unknown, dark, radiant sea
 In whom we live, in whom we move,
 My spirit must lose itself in Thee,
 Crying a name—Life, Light, Love.

Quotations Of Real Merit

"I can't break my engagement," Helen said stiffly. "I can only ask to be released."
 Bob drew back from her, white to the lips. Her attitude was incomprehensible to him except from one angle—she did not truly love him. Bob wondered that Helen could brain told him, would be useless. What could it mean to a girl who either was not very deeply in love or who was caught up in fallacies. To be told that only a fool would keep to a mere engagement when disaster threatened the outcome?
 "Bob," he said quietly, "I could think of it. Wondered that she could not see, as he did, that the course she was taking was sordid rather than idealistic."
 A moment of anger flared up in his heart against her—the resentment of clean youth for evil compromise. It wiped from his mind the question he wanted to ask her. The name of the man she was going to marry.
 "I'm going to marry," he said, "going to marry."
 The words echoed in Bob's mind as a sentence to lifelong unhappiness. "No man would let her go. Red! A decent man. Not white but white he thought, she might love him."
 Bob felt himself slipping into a maze of doubt and fear. But he could not argue, could not plead his own case further.
 "What appeared to be uncertainty on her part drove him to curiosity. He would not recognize quixotism as her prompter, he was too modern for that, and he knew nothing of her sense of obligation. To him she was unsure of her heart, and he had no tolerance for her."
 "Then," he said quietly, coldly, "you're a bit of a rotter."
 All that he knew of needless, even criminal, self-sacrifice; all that he knew of lives wasted for false precepts of honor; all that he realized of right and wrong was behind his eyes. What seemed her stupidity, that defined her brain, her apparent lack of courage to change her course when, to anyone but a fool, the danger signals all were set against it—these too had helped to call forth his scathing remark.
 He had thought of her as brave and fearless—never a juggler with the tender passion. Love, he had believed, would come to her as true and untrampled as it had come to him. How it could involve two men at the same time was an impenetrable mystery to his brain.
 For Bob had never known puppy love. Helen's passing from love of love to love itself was beyond his understanding.
 His youthful hardness, steeled by the thought that she would go through with a loveless match, was a shade of resentment to her. Bob had never encountered before. Bob had never been cruel on occasion, true, but his was the suave cruelty of a hidden menace—the sheathed claw, that cut lightly on the surface but bit deep into the heart.
 The frankness of Bob's generation was unknown to her. She did not flinch before the blow. Perhaps she was too shocked to show by so much as a flicker of her eyelids that it had struck her with terrific force.
 Without another word Bob turned and strode out of the room. Mrs. Wethering, usually waiting in the library, saw him fling himself out of the house, leaving the front door open behind him, as though he were pursued by a demon.
 She hurried to the kitchen but Helen had fled up the rear stairs to her room.
 Mrs. Wethering gathered up the things that were to have gone into the preparation of their midnight supper and put them away. Later she went to Helen's door and listened. She thought she detected the sound of muffled sobs but when she tried the door and found it

Shortly afterward he tells the girl that in accordance with a promise given her recently and she is the only grandchild of a millionaire, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM. Brent takes her to Cunningham and offers as proof a locket containing a picture which he had taken from the dying Nellie. Pending investigation, Helen remains with Cunningham on the lake where until she accidentally hits EVA ENNIS, who has to be taken to the hospital. Helen meets Eva's brother ROBERT, who falls in love with her.
 Cunningham gives a party and announces that Helen is his dead daughter's child and his heiress. Brent finds a locket which exactly matches the one he had taken from Nellie. To avoid discovery he asks Helen not to wear her locket to public. A few days later Eva and Helen are with Cunningham on the lake and Robert rescues them. While changing clothes, Eva tells Helen that she had lost an old-fashioned locket the night of her party.
 Fearing Robert's attentions to Helen and annoyed by the demands on him for money, Helen tells the doctor she is pregnant. The plan worked and when the attendant returns he is dead. Then Brent appears as the friend and guardian of Helen and takes charge of arrangements. One painful duty is to break an affair with Eva without making Helen suspicious. Bob is too proud to speak his love until a chance meeting breaks his reserve and they both acknowledge their love. But Helen tells him it is hopeless, as she is promised to another.

What could it mean to a girl who either was not very deeply in love or who was caught up in fallacies. To be told that only a fool would keep to a mere engagement when disaster threatened the outcome?
 "Bob," he said quietly, "I could think of it. Wondered that she could not see, as he did, that the course she was taking was sordid rather than idealistic."
 A moment of anger flared up in his heart against her—the resentment of clean youth for evil compromise. It wiped from his mind the question he wanted to ask her. The name of the man she was going to marry.
 "I'm going to marry," he said, "going to marry."
 The words echoed in Bob's mind as a sentence to lifelong unhappiness. "No man would let her go. Red! A decent man. Not white but white he thought, she might love him."
 Bob felt himself slipping into a maze of doubt and fear. But he could not argue, could not plead his own case further.
 "What appeared to be uncertainty on her part drove him to curiosity. He would not recognize quixotism as her prompter, he was too modern for that, and he knew nothing of her sense of obligation. To him she was unsure of her heart, and he had no tolerance for her."
 "Then," he said quietly, coldly, "you're a bit of a rotter."
 All that he knew of needless, even criminal, self-sacrifice; all that he knew of lives wasted for false precepts of honor; all that he realized of right and wrong was behind his eyes. What seemed her stupidity, that defined her brain, her apparent lack of courage to change her course when, to anyone but a fool, the danger signals all were set against it—these too had helped to call forth his scathing remark.
 He had thought of her as brave and fearless—never a juggler with the tender passion. Love, he had believed, would come to her as true and untrampled as it had come to him. How it could involve two men at the same time was an impenetrable mystery to his brain.
 For Bob had never known puppy love. Helen's passing from love of love to love itself was beyond his understanding.
 His youthful hardness, steeled by the thought that she would go through with a loveless match, was a shade of resentment to her. Bob had never encountered before. Bob had never been cruel on occasion, true, but his was the suave cruelty of a hidden menace—the sheathed claw, that cut lightly on the surface but bit deep into the heart.
 The frankness of Bob's generation was unknown to her. She did not flinch before the blow. Perhaps she was too shocked to show by so much as a flicker of her eyelids that it had struck her with terrific force.
 Without another word Bob turned and strode out of the room. Mrs. Wethering, usually waiting in the library, saw him fling himself out of the house, leaving the front door open behind him, as though he were pursued by a demon.
 She hurried to the kitchen but Helen had fled up the rear stairs to her room.
 Mrs. Wethering gathered up the things that were to have gone into the preparation of their midnight supper and put them away. Later she went to Helen's door and listened. She thought she detected the sound of muffled sobs but when she tried the door and found it locked she hesitated to demand admittance.

 The sounds gradually grew fainter and finally the housekeeper decided that it would be better for Helen if she left alone.
 The next morning the girl was pale and worn, with shadowed eyes in which there was an unhealed wound.
 Mrs. Wethering was very gentle and remained with Helen while she breakfasted, or rather while she went through the motions of partaking of her fruit and coffee. She hoped Helen would confide in her and went so far as to mention having witnessed Mr. Ennis' hasty departure the night before.
 Still Helen said nothing, but there was on her face a set, cold expression that warned Mrs. Wethering that the incident, whatever it was, had a serious aspect.
 Mrs. Wethering sighed over her inability to administer comfort and suggested that Helen ought to get out into the open. "You haven't driven your car very much lately," she said. "Why don't you let me fix you a picnic lunch and you can telephone for someone to go for a long drive with you? The weather is lovely."
 "I'm going to New York," Helen answered quietly.
 Mrs. Wethering was greatly disturbed but she did not dare offer any opposition. There was about Helen an air of determination that plainly indicated she was set upon a course from which she could not be swayed.
 "Are you taking an early train?" Mrs. Wethering asked, hoping the girl did not intend to drive her car to the city. She was much relieved when Helen told her she was going on a morning train.
 In Helen's mind, too, was fear of driving her car. She knew that she was likely to become forgetful of danger on the road, and she did not want to risk injury to another person.
 Mrs. Wethering found an excuse to go to her room with her when Helen went up to get her hat and wrap.
 "There's just a little tang in the air, won't you wear a fur?" the housekeeper urged.
 Helen accepted a silver fox and threw it carelessly about her shoulders. It made her costume perfect and Mrs. Wethering wondered if she had selected the black and white tulle ensemble with its smart black and silk blouse, with any particular care.
 "What could be the object of her visit to the city? It worried the older woman almost to the point of causing her to attempt to break down Helen's reserve.
 But that reserve had acted as a shield upon many occasions and it remained effective now. Helen was permitted to leave without revealing her destination.
 On the train she consulted a card to make certain that she had the correct address. Two or three times she looked over a memorandum of the street and number, then put it away. The name that was engraved upon it was a silent reproach.
 How often had she flattered it as her own! Mrs. Leonard Brent. And now she dared not think beyond the hour that was to come—when she would beg to be released from her mad promise. Surely, surely he would not hold her to it.
 But the voice of fear deep in her heart answered that he would. She realized that, aside from the keeping of his promise to her father, Leonard Brent had nothing outstanding creditable to his account. On the contrary there were many things against him. His past, so many women, his strange, undeniably selfish desire to shape a young life—her life—so to please himself.
 "I should always have been myself," Helen mourned. "Then his could not have happened. Len would not have cared for me if I had been more independent."
 She was wrong, of course, for youth will frequently have its hour of aberration in regard to love—when it turns to worship of an unnatural object.
 But Helen felt that she was the only foolish girl in the world—the only one who had been fascinated by an older man, and she was drinking deep of regret.
 The distance to New York from Yonkers seemed interminable—and yet she arrived there too soon, for the interview ahead of her promise to be extremely painful.
 She had not telephoned to say that she was coming, feeling certain to find Brent in the thought of talking with him by wire had been impossible. She wanted to see him now, tell him, and have an end to her suspense.
 At Brent's apartment house she gave her name at the desk and was taken to come up. The girl who announced her name had a curious look upon her, but Helen missed it.
 She stepped hurriedly into the elevator and gave her floor to the operator.
 "Mr. Brent's apartment?" she inquired when he again opened the door for her. He too flashed her a queer glance when she named Brent. But his voice was correctly modulated when he gave the directions she asked for.
 "To your right, Miss, the third door beyond the turn."
 "Thank you," Helen replied and walked rapidly down the hall, quite unaware that her pale face and feverish eyes, her compressed lips and the hint of tragedy that hung about her was like a standard that she might have carried, and that the building attaches had read it as "men trouble. Particularly as they knew that a visitor had arrived ahead of her, a tall, slim, elegant visitor in fashionable attire and the unmistakable atmosphere of being at home in her surroundings.
 Helen hurried on, expecting to find only Brent.

Refusal Seen For Liquor Clearance

OTTAWA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Refusal of customs clearances for liquor shipments for the United States is foreseen by government officials here who profess to know the attitude of Premier McKenzie King and his cabinet.
 Despite the fact that there was no announcement regarding the subject at the close of a meeting of the cabinet yesterday, these officials said they believed the ministry had decided in favor of refusing the permits.
 The subject of refusing clearances to liquor cargoes was discussed at a joint conference of United States and Canadian officials a year ago at which time the Canadians rejected the proposal but agreed to give it further consideration.
 There is said to be an earthquake about once a week near Lima, Peru.
 The English language is spoken by more than 100,000,000 people.

STRICTER LAWS NEEDED TO KEEP FOOD FREE FROM INFECTION
 By DR. MORRIS FISHEIN
 Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

In New Jersey, according to the health officer, Dr. C. V. Craster, one typhoid carrier was responsible for 35 cases of typhoid fever and three deaths in the city of Newark and 72 cases and three deaths in the state of New Jersey, before he was finally captured and put where he could not continue to infect the food of other people.

Health authorities are agreed that certain factors are definitely required to establish the safety and quality of food. The food must be free from adulteration, substitution, or evidence of spoilage; it must be produced under clean conditions, protected from dust, dirt and flies, and it must be handled by people who are free from communicable diseases.

Almost everyone now realizes that an infected food handler can pass his disease on to other people.

Unfortunately, legislation and the enforcement thereof for the control of food handlers has not been efficiently developed in most communities. Obviously, physical examination of every person who advances food in any way in a restaurant, hotel or barbecue establishment is an almost impossible task.

It is not necessary to know, of course, whether or not the food handler has flat feet or bow-legs. It is important, however, to know that he is not subject to active tuberculosis, septic sore throat, diphtheria, or chronic tonsillitis; that he has not typhoid fever; that he has not a communicable skin disease, or in the case of males, at least, any venereal disease.

Most states are beginning to demand at least certification of every food handler that he is free from the conditions mentioned. In order to have such certification, it is, of course, necessary that the food handler submit to a partial physical examination.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

For Zion's sake will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth.—Isaiah lxii, 1.

THE PEOPUL HAVE SPOKEN:

THE present visit of England's premier, Ramsay MacDonald, and his apple-cheeked daughter Isabel, may or may not result in a limitation upon naval armaments, but if it decides, once and for all, who shall sit by whom and why" it will have accomplished something for this country.

The Morning Avalanche is not averse to taking a courageous editorial stand in this most important problem. It believes that the nation, from the cold, infested waters of New England to the over-advertised sunny cliffs of far-away California, should know—officially—just where Mrs. Gann may expect to repose at dinners of state, provided, of course, that Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth will let her attend at all!

In the first social brush of the current Washington season, Mrs. Gann, better known in Topeka, Kansas, as "Dolly," because of her connection with Vice-President Curtis—gave up her seat next to Miss MacDonald, but she didn't tender the easy chair to Teddy Roosevelt's girl. No sir! Mrs. Howard, wife of Britain's ambassador Sir Eame, was given the post of honor and as yet press dispatches have failed to report where the militant matrons, Dolly and Alice, were permitted to crunch their celery. As a matter of fact, they may have had to eat in the kitchen or wait for the second table as far as we have been able to find out.

It is the opinion of this conservative journal that the news services of the country have fallen down hard on one of the biggest stories of the year. Reams of copy on the tariff, the League of Nations and the World series have failed to fill the breach in the daily reports of the world's events. We want to know about Dolly and Alice—and how!

This dilly-dallying on the all-important question of social prestige has gone far enough. We have sat stolidly by when justice monkeyed over the Fall, Dohoney and Sinclair cases. We have not raised our voice in vehement protest over the shipbuilders and their lobby. But we have come to the end of our rope—our patience, in the Gann-Longworth heavy-weight social battle, is exhausted.

If this be treason, make the most of it. We, the common peepul, are entitled to know the facts. Even if it takes a boycott, yes, if it takes a threat of anarchy, revolution or civil combat, we must have those facts. Washington must act. The peepul have spoken—now they're screaming out loud!

"Who can sit next to whom, and why?" We demand to know!

FITY THE OLD GRAD

In these latter days there must be times when "The Old Grad" feels he has been outlawed from the world to which he once belonged. He is being blamed for commercialized athletics in the colleges. Upon his graying head is placed much of the responsibility for football's "over-enthusiasm." He is told when he protests against sweeping changes in the very form and spirit of his alma mater, that the colleges belong to the faculties and the undergraduates.

If he comes back to the campus and shows even the most casual interest in a team upon which he once played, he is called a "Peanut Pan." Charges of "alumni interference" ring in his ears. He is held responsible for the "foolishness" that rages in many colleges. But, if he fails to contribute to the athletic fund and does not attend the games, he is branded as disloyal.

One fact not to be denied, not even by "The Old Grad," is that the alumni are responsible for the so-called overemphasis and commercialization of football. It is their enthusiasm, loyalty and money that are building costly stadiums, developing powerful teams and filling the stands every Saturday.

There is some reason to doubt that the glorified football of today is subordinating the academic as much as the game did when it depended largely upon underclassmen for support.

RESTRAINTS ON RECKLESSNESS

Meeting in Chicago, the National Safety Congress is confronted with a record of 91 automobile fatalities per day during the month of August, and with the duty of studying means of curbing the rising toll. The rate—$3,125 per year—compares with 27,800 in the calendar year 1928, which itself presented an increase of seven per cent over the year before.

More automobiles, more motor fatalities. That might be expected, except for factors operating to offset the consequences of increased traffic density and additions to the ranks of inexperienced and incompetent drivers. Those factors are the alleged increased mechanical efficiency in motor car control, principally owing to slightly better braking power, and added legal and sentimental restraints upon recklessness.

Sentimental restraint covers the awakening of public opinion to the necessity of "caution—care"—grade crossings, on curves and hills, in crowded streets and highways and on slippery pavements. This will be part of the job of the National Safety Congress.

THE DAYS AHEAD

Virtually all of the predictions now being made by business prospects for the remainder of the year agree that activity on an increasing scale is to be expected.

This optimistic outlook is based on the high momentum in industry, improved agricultural conditions, the fair state of employment and purchasing power, absence of any advance in commodity prices and, for the time being, some reassurance in the direction of money and credit.

From the canvass of opinion among retailers serving the farming districts, it appears that excellent fall trade is in prospect. This canvass was broad and penetrating.

Where the basic lines of industry are concerned, little change is observed. Steel operations are not slack and constant. Automobile production continues to run at such a record rate that forecasts of the year's output have been revised upward to near the 6,000,000 mark. The construction field offers the one weak spot in major activities.

Westerners Honor Guests At Rotary Luncheon Program

High School Football Players Hear M. H. Duncan In Principal Speech Here Wednesday Noon

The Lubbock high school Westerners Wednesday were the honor guests at the regular weekly luncheon program of the Lubbock Rotary club. Henry E. Frnka, director of athletics and head football coach of the public school system, was in charge of the program while M. H. Duncan, superintendent of schools, was the principal speaker.

Taking as his subject, "The Value of Athletics to Education," the school superintendent went on record as believing that football, particularly, had more bearing upon education today than any other vehicle. He praised the work of Head Coach Frnka and his assistants, both as athletic coaches and builders of ideals and called attention to the Lubbock-Slaton mix-up here Friday.

Players Entertain
Carroll McCaslin and Cherry Foster, members of the high school grid team, and Sam Henry, Jr., now on the Tech freshman squad and a former Lubbock high player, entertained with harmonica trios, after which Coach Frnka spoke briefly on "Picking a Team." At the close of his remarks he "chose" a mock team from members of the Rotary club, picking his players in opposite form to which he ordinarily would.

President Jerry Clements announced plans being laid for an Inter-City Rotary meeting here next Wednesday evening at the Tech college gym. Rotarians from the Panhandle-Plains region will come to Lubbock as the guests of the club and a big program is to be heard.

WOULD ELIMINATE TAX Tourist Commission Makes Recommendations

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9. (AP)—After a visit to border points, a committee appointed by the national tourist commission recommended abolition of the 10 per cent tax on meal aboard trains, charged to help pay Mexico's foreign debt.

The committee pointed out the amount derived from this tax is small and the tax creates a bad impression among tourists.

Other recommendations of the committee were that customs agents who go through tourist's baggage aboard trains be uniformed and that a money exchange service be established on the trains.

CONSTITUTION ACCEPTED

The constitution of the Student's Association, as it was printed in the yearbook, was accepted by the student body yesterday morning in general session at eleven o'clock.

The only points of discussion were: the election of student yell leader, the class standing of editors of the school publications, and the last clause dealing with the purchase of student athletic tickets.

The last clause was stricken out but no other changes were made.

The constitution was drafted last year and never voted upon. Last week's convocation was supposed to have been devoted to the adoption of the document but other matters delayed the adoption until yesterday.

Next week's convocation will be in charge of the faculty and will be Wednesday at 11 o'clock in the gymnasium, where yesterday's session was held.

PEP RALLIES

The first pep rally of the week was held last night at 7:30 o'clock in the gymnasium. New yells were introduced to the student body and an appeal made for larger representation of students at the next pep meeting, to be held Friday night at 7:30 o'clock.

The meetings are not long and the yell leaders are very anxious to have a large crowd out to practice new yells, according to Jake Schorer, head yell leader.

STUDENT STUDIES

Ogden King, a former student of Tech and who received his bachelor of science degree in agriculture from the school, is studying at Cornell university this year. King is doing work for his master of arts degree in agriculture economics.

CONTRACT LET

Contract for the printing of this year's La Ventana has been let to the Economy Printing company, of Iowa City, according to Holmes Webb, editor of the book.

This is the same firm which printed last year's annual.

A meeting of the La Ventana staff will be held Monday night according to Mr. Webb. The complete staff for the book will be announced at an early date.

PRE-MED STUDENTS

Of the 80 students registered for work in the pre-medical department 30 are upperclassmen and 50 are freshmen. Five of this number are girls. Three of the girls are freshmen and the other two are upperclassmen. The girls who are taking pre-medical work are: Lucille Houston, Lubbock; Dorothy Owsheer, Big Spring; Grace Thompson, Lubbock, and Irma Stoken, Lubbock.

The first pre-med student of Texas Tech to attend a medical school is Miss Avery West. She is now studying at Baylor Medical college, Dallas. She will graduate next June.

ARENA RITAS, 5 o'clock gymnasium; Student Council, 7:30, room 209; Pre-Med club, 7:30 o'clock; Catholic students' dinner, Our Cafeteria, 7-9 o'clock.

TWO KINDS OF FIGURES

With a total of 2,030 students enrolled in the college there are 200 more individuals receiving instruction this year than at this time in 1928, Dr. Paul W. Horn, president, reports. The increase amounts to 20 per cent, the president points out.

While the student body grows, less funds are being used in the operation of the faculty, the report continues. Salaries for teachers total $10,000 less this year as compared with last year, while maintenance figures show a decrease of $17,500. Appropriations for the summer school during 1929 were approximately one-third less than the year previous despite the fact that 1,200 students were enrolled during the summer just completed.

COMMITTEE TO MEET

Lobby Probers To Map Out Course For Action

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—The Senate lobby investigating committee probably will meet tomorrow to organize and map out a course for its tremendous job.

Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, chairman of the committee, has announced first attention will be given to the activities of those seeking to influence the pending tariff measure.

The chairman desires to confine the inquiry to those organizations and individuals who are actually engaged in attempts to influence legislation, without touching the other group, for the time being, engaged solely in propaganda.

DID IT EVER HAPPEN TO YOU?

A LONG steep grade, a narrow road, and a load of hay! You could have taken it easily on high, but now—That's when you're glad you've got TP in the crank-case. It won't thin out under the long grind. Your engine won't be dangerously overheated when you get away. TP first proved its superiority under more severe tests than this—in aeroplane engines.

This process preserves all the lubricating bodies of the crude oil just as they occur in nature, eliminates the necessity for blending light and heavy oils to produce various grades, and it positively removes all the paraffine wax.

This means perfect lubrication at all times, smoother, more efficient operation for your engine, longer life, reduced repair bills, and more mileage at less cost per mile. It is wise economy to pay 45c a quart for TP-Oil.

TP-Aero Oils are produced from pure, paraffine-base crude by a process for which patents are pending.

Spur Fair Races Demand Attention

Many Entries Being Made In Dog Events At Northwest Texas Exposition October 10, 11, And 12

(Special To The Advance)
SPUR, Oct. 9.—The races at the Northwest Texas fair are attracting a great deal of attention as is evident from the number of entries in the dog races being refused. The fair is to be held October 10, 11 and 12.

The Spur band has made two trips to neighboring towns in the interest of the fair, and the big carnival attractions are now on the grounds at the fair park, and with the football game with Matador high, the outlook for the fair promises to be the best yet held here. There has been added at the last moment some rodeo attractions, and the last evening will close with a gigantic fireworks display.

W. L. Stangel, of Texas Tech, will judge livestock; Taylor White, instructor of vocational agriculture, Tahoka high school, will judge the poultry, and W. O. Logan, county agent of Scurry county, will judge the agricultural exhibits.

Uniform Breed Of Cotton Is Urged

(Special To The Advance)
TAHOKA, Oct. 9.—Local business men and farmers have started a movement to bring about the planting of some uniform breed of cotton, the result of which would be the realization of a better price on the product. Much short staple cotton has been planted in the county in the past, resulting in all cotton bringing a lower price than in localities where only long staple cotton is raised. This move has been successfully made in many parts of Texas, it is said, greatly to the benefit of the farmers.

Farmers here are selecting a choice of long staples and each signing a pledge to plant the choice of the majority next spring.

Lindy Brings Exploration Of Maya Ruins To Close And Starts For U. S.

HELIQUE, British Honduras, Oct. 9. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh today brought to a close his explorations of the Yucatan peninsula for ruins left by the ancient Maya Indians when time and early enemies wiped them from the Mexican terrain.

In three days flying over Yucatan, Mameche, Quintana Roo, and parts of British Honduras and Guatemala, Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh and two scientists of the Carnegie institute discovered one city hitherto unknown to science and found strong indications of existence of another.

En Route To Miami. Leaving here today, en route to Miami, Fla., the aviator planned a final reconnaissance along the east coast of Yucatan and over Cozumel Island, where it is thought still other ruins as yet unlocated may exist. He expected to put in somewhere along his route tonight arriving at Miami late Thursday. He landed at Belize at 6:25 p. m. yesterday.

It was in the afternoon the party sighted their first undeniable ruins those seen Sunday being open to question until proved by a land party. Five massive white pillars, never to have been seen before by white men, were sighted near Tical, Guatemala, in the midst of a jungle.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. (AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald said today in accepting the honorary degree of doctor of laws from George Washington University that one could never acquire anything in this world without purchasing it by one's own effort, own will, and own sacrifice.

Judge Holds Court In Air

Magistrate Leo Healy of Brooklyn, N. Y., presided over the highest court in the land for awhile the other day. He's pictured above, right, just before taking off in a big cabin plane with Pilot William H. Alexander, left, in a court investigation of the cause of Alexander's recent crash at Coney Island beach, where two children were killed and several persons injured. Aboard this first flying court room, Alexander explained the accident, a court stenographer recorded his testimony, and attorneys for the prosecution and the defense argued.
