DIGGING FOR DIRT: Colorado City Mayor Jim Baum shovels a scoopful of dirt with the assistance of 'Davy Crockett' and 'Gregorio Esparza' who were in town on Thursday for "The Great Fiesta Texas Dirt Roundup," which is being conducted in each county across the state.

Shovelful of county dirt to be used in theme park

Mitchell County Judge Ray Mayo and Colorado City Mayor Jim Baum assisted legendary Texas heroes 'Davy Crockett' and 'Gregorio Esparza' collect a shovelful of dirt from the Courthouse lawn on Thursday.

The ceremony is part of "The Great Fiesta Texas Dirt Roundup" being held by the musical showpark - Fiesta Texas - which is currently under construction in San Antonio.

Dirt from Mitchell County - along with that from each of the other 254 of the states counties - will be used in 'The Texas State Square' at the park.

Event organizers noted that they want, "...to make sure that every part of Texas is represented at the theme park since Fiesta Texas will celebrate the musical and cultural diversity of all of Texas."

"By collecting dirt from every county in Texas, we are recognizing what ties us all together - our love of the land, the very soil we call 'Texas,'" Bill Hoelscher, Fiesta Texas general manager said.

The dirt from Mitchell County will be taken back to San Antonio and used in 'The Texas State Square.' The square is a central square within the theme park that will feature brick pavers engraved with the names of all 5,000-plus towns, cities and counties in Texas.

Fiesta Texas is scheduled to open next spring and will feature the history, culture and music of the state in four themed villages.

A wide variety of rides, children's attractions, restaurants and retail shops will join the theaters in reflecting the theming for each of the park's main areas.

The Fiesta Texas team is traveling over 22,000 across the state in a 3 month timeframe to collect the state's dirt in an effort sponsored by Chevrolet/GEO, Coca-Cola and Diamond Shamrock.

Competing redistricting plan to be submitted this week

The group of persons opposed to Mitchell County's redistricting plan have completed work on a competing plan - with a minority impact district - that will be submitted to the U. S. Justice Department this next week.

The plan is a combination of efforts from Mitchell County residents opposed to the redistricting plan that was approved by commissioners' and the staff at Texas Rural Legal Aid (TRLA) in Austin, Sara Ortiz said.

The precinct in the competing plan with the highest percentage of minorities - the minority impact district - is an area in which 72 percent of those living in the area are classified as minority citizens, Ortiz said.

The area takes in part of Colorado City and runs out to encompass part of Loraine, she noted.

Commissioners' have approved a redistricting plan which was prepared by Bickerstaff, Heath and Smiley of Austin. This plan was submitted to the Justice Department several weeks ago.

It has been expected that the Justice Department would take 90 days after submission to make any decision regarding the redistricting proposal.

The competing proposal from the citizens will be accompanied by a letter of opposition from their lawyer, Manuel Perez of TRLA.

5th S&L employee charged with fraud

One count of bank fraud has been charged against a former employee of First Western Savings and Loan (First Western) in U. S. District Court in Abilene on Thursday.

In other action related to First Western employees, Marilyn Roberts plead guilty to the one count information she had been charged with in federal court in Dallas this morning.

Linda Rivera - a former mortgage loan supervisor at the facility - was formally charged in a one count information.

The charge stems from a scheme that was initiated by persons associated with or employed at First Western, involving check kiting and false journal entries which were made to defraud the institution of more than $500,000.

Rivera faces a maximum sentence of 5 years in prison and/or a fine of $250,000 or twice the gain or loss caused.

She becomes the fifth employee charged in the investigation being conducted by the Dallas Bank Fraud Task Force.

Neva Turner, Roy and Katy Byrd and Marilyn Roberts have been previously charged.

Turner and Roy and Katy Byrd plead guilty to the charges filed against them on September 27 and are scheduled to return to court on November 15 for sentencing.

Roberts, who used a different attorney, plead guilty and will return to court on December 6 for sentencing.

The scheme involved numerous checks were written between March 1985 and July 1987 on various insufficiently funded personal accounts.

The checks were used to fund stock purchases at a brokerage firm in Amarillo.

These accounts were consolidated into a single account in the name of Western Crest, Inc. before the Federal Bureau of Investigation seized assets of $102,000 in May 1991.

Loraine receives funding

Loraine has been announced as the recipient of funding in the amount of $163,136 from the federal government.

Awards of $28.3 million in Comprehensive Improvement Assistance Program grants from the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development were announced recently by U. S. Senator Phil Gramm.

"I am pleased that, once again, we have been able to return some of the money Texans have paid in federal taxes to directly benefit Texans," Gramm said.

The grant that Loraine will receive funding toward will obligate the local Housing Authority to operate the project as lower income housing for a period of 20 years.

The funds were made available to modernize low-income housing units.

Local 'stars' shine in movie filmed here

A hideous crime is uncovered in 'Shadows On The Wall' which has made its debut on late-night television.

The 1985 portion of the film - flashbacks are used to cut between the time-lines of 1939 and 1985 - was shot in Colorado City.

Locals including Tandy Curlee, the late Shorty Pace, Queetie Ausbie, Bob Bowers - formerly of Colorado City, Ronnie Clark, Jerry Hammond, Ronnie Love and Earl Plagens have appearances identified in the movie.

Other home-town folks will be able to identify themselves in the movie that was filmed in Colorado City between October and December of 1985. The faces of many of those that were used in supporting roles of the production were shot from an angle that kept their face from appearing in the film.

Filming was done at local sites including the Baker Hotel, the county cemetery, the Spade Ranch, the Palace Theater and Bowers Z Bar B Western Wear Store, were used for filming of the Alfred Hitchcock-style movie.

Chicago Herald's syndicated columnist, Clayton Tuten (played by Gary Swanson), endures attempts on his life including being chased down by a monster truck, beatings, an ax-wielding bell-hop and having his car banged-up in attempting to uncover the events that occurred on the evening of November 22, 1939, in the mythical location of Crowder City, Texas.

Tuten began digging into a story of a fictional western films movie star, Buck McCain.

McCain had reportedly killed a woman at the Baker Hotel on the night in question, then committed suicide.

This led his studio, Mamouth, to declare the act 'deplorable' and take all of McCain's cowboy films out of movie theaters.

With a desire to find out more about the November night, Tuten caught the next plane to Lubbock and drove south 90 miles to Crowder City where he could search for facts about the life and death of the movie star.

The reporter found a run down

Baker Hotel where the mysterious night occurred almost fifty years earlier and a community that is not anxious to have the activities reexamined.

As the information begins to unfold, the reporter switches his interest from just the history of McCain to everyone at the Baker Hotel on the eventful night and what actually happened.

The Baker Hotel in Crowder City was marked with two events that occurred on the same November 1939 night: the release of McCain's new film, "Ambush at Triple Creek," and the candidacy announcement of Edward T. Crowder for the office of Senator.

"It was a real big shabang," said retired Crowder City publisher Fred Gillard, who covered the event first hand.

Miss Gene Logan (played by Tammy Roberts) was murdered in the Baker Hotel on that night.

She, being the standard movie-type sultry blonde, had the affectionate interests of McCain, the married Crowder and a young bell-hop - who loves Miss Logan enough to keep the secrets of the night to himself since it is what 'she would have wanted.'

The events related to Logan's murder resulted in a cover-up that lasted 50 years - until 1985 - in an effort to protect the guilty and damage the reputation of the American-hero, Buck McCain.

Permit fee to be refunded

AUSTIN--"New businesses that are scheduled to open their doors on or after October 1 and have already paid the $25 sales tax permit fee, will have their money refunded," State Comptroller John Sharp says. "The same applies to existing businesses that have already filed to have their sales tax permit renewed on or after October 1."

The refunds coincide with the announcement that the annual $25 sales tax filing fee paid to the Comptroller's Office is abolished, effective October 1.

"Not only will the $25 fee be abolished, but we're also going to issue a sales tax permit to a business for an indefinite period of time. As long as they are making sales and sending their taxes to the state, businesses won't be required to renew those permits every year, as they are now," Sharp said.

According to Mickey Moore, president of the Texas Association of Retailers, merchants are delighted to see the permit fee abolished. "They felt all along that it was inappropriate to ask them to pay a fee for the privilege of collecting sales tax for the state," Moore said.

"Since it was first enacted by the Legislature in 1987, the $25 annual sales tax permit fee has generated more mail from angry business people than any issue handled by this agency in the last 20 years," Sharp said.

"Hundreds upon hundreds of business owners were mad that they had to pay a $25 fee every year to collect taxes for the State of Texas. It didn't make any sense to me either, but that was the law--a law that needed changing," he said.

"While the fee generated substantial state revenue--estimated at $12.6 million in 1992 and $14 million in 1993--it also generated more animosity among Texas business people toward state government than you can place a dollar value on," Sharp said.

Also eliminated is the requirement that sales tax permits be renewed annually. Beginning October 1, the permits will only be cancelled if a taxpayer reports no sales or taxable purchases to the state for a year's time, or if the business does not file its sales tax returns and remit the taxes it collected to the state.

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

DEAN WILLIAMSON

I was listening to the news as I drove home Monday evening and was reminded of the new gas taxes that would be going into effect the next day.

I looked at my gas gauge and headed to a station in order to save some money.

It seemed sort of nostalgic as I pulled up and saw a line of cars waiting at the pumps.

Everyone in the Suburban society was evidently informed of the impending rise in tax and had set their meeting for precisely five minutes before the time I showed up.

It took me twenty minutes to get my car within hose and nozzle distance of the island.

In that time I remembered what it was like to sit in the gas lines of the late seventies and early eighties.

I put the gas in, then pulled my car out of the way while I went in to pay. At least then the guy in the car behind me quit yelling.

Inside I went to pay for the gas from a girl who looked like she had seen better days. When I pulled out a charge card she snarled her lip and grabbed what must have seemed to her like yet more paperwork to fill out.

"Been busy?" I asked.

She glared and without a word tried to flatten all the numbers on my charge card with the credit card machine, then stuck the slip of paper in front of me. "It's been like this all day."

I signed the slip of paper. "Everyone wants to save money."

She shook her head. "Some people have been here three and four times today."

"Filling up every car they own," I guessed.

"I don't know what they're doing with it," she said still shaking her head. "This one guy must have filled up every gas can he could find by now, I haven't seen him in an hour or so."

I took the charge slip and looked at it, still proud that I had gotten the tank on the car filled up one last time.

She must have seen the look of satisfaction in my eye. "What are you so happy about?"

"The money I saved."

She laughed vindictively. "Do you know how much money you saved?"

I already knew that I didn't want to know.

"You only bought nine gallons of gas," she said, "so you only saved 45 cents."

"Well, forty-five cents is forty-five cents!"

She laughed in a more hearty voice. "You waited out there in line for twenty minutes with the guy in the car behind you honking the horn so that you could save forty-five cents."

"It's the principal," I fumed. "I'm protesting new taxes."

By this time the guy from the car behind mine came in to pay his bill. He rushed to the counter and threw down a five-dollar bill. "Whew," he said and looked at me. "I've never had to wait this long to get gas, what's going on?"

"Haven't you heard?" I asked. "The price of gas is going up tomorrow!"

He rushed back to the door, "I better fill it all the way up."

"Thanks a lot," the clerk grumbled. "He probably has another car or two at home."

I checked with him on the way back to my car, he didn't.

I noticed the clerk was looking out over the window and scowling at the crowd as I drove away.

But that was nothing compared to the look she gave me when I returned with my gas can.

"Special guest" visits in the Wulfjen home

After a remodeling project of the homestead, most people invite friends and family over to see the changes made to the house.

Cole and Kakai Wulfjen of Colorado City were no different. The renovated house with its new carpet even attracted a guest who couldn't wait to see the completed project until they got home, so he broke in and conducted an unassisted tour of his own.

The break-in was discovered when Cole, who had been outside welding at the time, went into the house.

Cole must have been shocked to find that the offender had strewn the morning paper across the living room, rearranged furniture, that dirt from potted plants had been shaken around the room and that he had even gone to the bathroom - neglecting the newly remodeled facility - in the middle of the living room floor.

The tour must have been tiring on the misdoer of deeds, for he laid down in front of the television and took a nap under the breeze of the ceiling fan.

Cole tried to stir the slumbering guest and insist that he leave, but by this time the guest had found how comfortable the new carpet was and wanted to stay.

By the time Kakai returned home in the evening the trespasser was out of the house and most of the evidence had been cleaned up.

She did, however, find that the intruder was still on the property and that Cole had him penned out in back - where the six month old colt belonged.

Fire Week proclaimed by Richards

Citing the loss of 271 lives and almost $350 million in property damage to fires during 1990, Gov. Ann Richards has proclaimed the week of October 6-12 as Fire Prevention Week in Texas and announced her appointments to the new Texas Commission on Fire Protection.

"Fire continues to be a major threat to all Texans, particularly the very young and the very old," Richards said. "Our intention is that by focusing attention and resources on this problem, we can increase the safety of all Texas citizens and fire service personnel."

During 1990, fires in Texas killed 271 people, including four fire fighters, according to reports submitted by Texas fire departments to the State Fire Marshal's Office. The 94,000 reported fires injured 2,500 people and destroyed an estimated $341 million in property. The largest incident included in these statistics was the Arco chemical manufacturing fire, which caused 17 deaths and property damage estimated at $10 million.

Statistics gathered by the State Fire Marshal's Office and the Texas Department of Health show that children under 5 years old and senior citizens over 65 years old die in fires in disproportionately high numbers. Approximately 45 percent of 1990 fire deaths were children under 5 years old or senior citizens over 65 years old, although those age groups make up only 18 percent of the population.

State Fire Marshal Ernest A. Emerson encouraged all Texans to become involved in fire prevention. He noted that the 18,000 reported residential fires caused almost 200 deaths and 1,000 injuries.

"Much of this tragic loss could have been prevented," Emerson said. "We have the knowledge and technology today to prevent much of the needless loss of lives and property in this state. We urge every Texan to practice fire prevention everyday to help conserve our valuable Texas resources."

Emerson added that fire prevention efforts in the home can be increased by three simple actions. First, we know that making sure each home has an adequate number of working smoke detectors and that practicing escape procedures in the home can greatly improve your chances of surviving or avoiding a fire," he said.

"Second," Emerson added, "always watching the stove or range while cooking could help avoid cooking fires, the leading type of residential fire. And third, exercising great care while smoking and using heating equipment could reduce the number of fatal fires, especially those in which more than one person dies."

Fire Prevention Week was first declared in 1922 by President Warren Harding in memory of the so-called "Great Chicago Fire" of October 9, 1871. That conflagration killed 250 people and destroyed 17,430 buildings valued at the time at $168 million. Recognizing the limitations of even the best fire suppression capabilities, the public and the fire service began thinking in terms of fire prevention as a result of the Chicago fire.

The Mitchell County 4-H Horse Club would like to thank everyone who donated to the Mitchell County 4-H Horse Show. It was a success thanks to your support and everyone who was a participant came home a winner.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT

...BY DON NIMMO

It's the day every parent dreads: the budding scholar who lives under your roof has brought home a report card marked with an F. You may want to scream as loud as you can, hand him a stack of books and point an extended finger toward his room—a place from which he cannot emerge until he fully masters every bit of the subject in question. You may want to do this...but don't.

It may be difficult to suppress your anger, but a child who receives a failing grade needs his parents' support more than ever. Let your child know you will help him identify what went wrong and will work with him to master the material which he is finding difficult. Remind him that failures, like successes, go hand-in-hand with the learning process. Expressing a nonchalant attitude by saying, "Oh well, try to do better next time," or making excuses for the poor grade by asserting, "I was never any good at math either," can be as bad as overreacting. A "ho hum" approach reinforces the child's feeling that he is doomed to perpetual failure.

While it is too late to improve grades already recorded, there are ways parents can help children succeed in the next grading period. First, put the F in perspective. A child who makes an F in math will not necessarily be barred from a good college. College admission officers consider many factors when reviewing potential freshmen, such as SATs, class rank, extracurricular activities, and grades in all subjects. Bringing up the F also should be viewed favorably. But there are ways parents can help children insure that problems in grasping basic concepts do not evolve into difficulty with more advanced courses in later years.

Uncover the "real" problem. Rule out any underlying reasons for your child's failure, such as the need for glasses, hearing problems, a learning disability or problems with friends. Look for signs of substance use, particularly if you see a drastic change in performance. Then have a heart-to-heart talk with your child to pinpoint difficulties such as: disorganization about assignments, lack of understanding of material, failure to complete homework, poor confidence, fear of tests or lack of interest. Getting to the bottom of the problem is the first step in correcting it.

Meet with the teacher. A conference with the teacher should answer your questions about exactly what problems your child must overcome in order to bring that F up to a satisfactory grade, or better. Specific knowledge about your child's strengths and weaknesses can help to target areas which need special attention. Also find out if your child has been placed in a group which is beyond his/her abilities. Enlist the teacher's support. Ask if he or she could provide weekly progress reports.

Map a strategy for success. Work with the teacher to outline a plan to bring your child's grade up to par. This might involve a set homework routine every night with no exceptions, the elimination of television, telephone and extracurricular privileges until grades improve, a notebook to organize all tests and assignments, and help from you whenever he needs it. Let your child know that if he is willing to put in the time and effort, he can get a better grade.

Consider other options. If your child is still lagging behind in a subject despite the efforts of you and the teacher, you could go a step further. This might mean remedial classes, summer school, an after school tutor or, in some cases, counseling to improve classroom behavior or motivation. By keeping on top of your child's progress, you'll know if these additional measures are necessary.

Never give up. Don't dwell on the failure, discuss it with your child, then put it behind both of you. Remind your child of recent successes, such as the detailed science project, progress in gymnastics, or helpfulness around the home. Remember: You can rekindle confidence. Just because your child made an F, he/she is not a failure.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

An Open Letter to Parents:

From Tuesday through Thursday of this week, our 3rd, 5th, 7th, 9th, and 11th grade students will be taking the state-mandated TAAS achievement tests in writing, reading, and mathematics. Every student in those grades across the state of Texas will be attempting TAAS mastery on these dates.

As the parent of a third grader as well as a member of the CISD staff, I'd like to encourage all parents in our community to discuss the importance of the TAAS with their youngsters. Implemented for the first time last year, the TAAS is not just "another" achievement test; it is a higher order thinking skills test, and the state pays close attention to our district's results. The TAAS will also begin to broaden its scope in the next three years to include social studies and science. It is not a test to fear, but it is a test to take seriously.

The CISD staff has worked diligently for the past six weeks to help prepare our students for the TAAS. As parents, it is now our turn to contribute to that effort by ensuring that our youngsters get plenty of rest and a high-protein, low sugar breakfast next week. If breakfast is a rushed meal at your house, our lunchroom staff is offering hearty meals next week on testing days.

With great preparation by our staff, plenty of sleep, a healthy breakfast, and sincere parental support, our CISD students will be prepared to meet the challenges of the TAAS.

Thanks in advance for your help,
Kitten Arthur

Wylie beats Pack 34-0

Darren Bailey night was held by the Bulldogs of Wylie on Friday as the Colorado City Wolves were defeated by a score of 34-0.

Bailey rambled for 3 touchdowns as he took the ball on 18 trips to accumulate 187 yards on the ground and took a pass for 22 more yards to end up with 209 offensive yards in the winning Bulldog effort.

The Wolves had one strong drive in the first quarter, marching from their own 20 down to the Bulldog 9 yard line. The drive ended with a fumble on a 4th down and 8 play.

Wylie took advantage of the scoreboard early in the game when Colorado City lined up in punt formation at the completion of the set of downs, but a bobbled exchange between the center and punter led to the Bulldogs taking control of the ball on the Wolves 4 yard line.

The Badgers brought a small playbook to the game as #32, Bailey's number, was called a lot.

The quarterback, Tim Melton, snuck into the endzone from one yard out to start a surge of scoring by the Bulldogs.

Bailey handled the next three touchdowns.

The first came in the second quarter when he ran for 44 yards to cap off a 65 yard drive, on the Badgers next series of downs they drove 74 yards to score on a Bailey 19 yard run.

The halftime score was 20-0 in favor of Wylie.

The Wolves never seemed to get untracked in the second half. Their first of only two 1st downs of the half came with 3:06 left in the fourth quarter, their ground rushing was in the red and they had to punt the ball away four times as compared to Wylie's one second half punt.

Bailey scored his third touchdown of the night with 4:56 left in the third quarter on a 3 yard run that capped off a drive that had begun on the Bulldog 36 yard line.

Sha Lang took over for Bailey who sat down after the Bulldogs were out to a 27-0 lead and ran in a one yard touchdown to complete the nights scoring on a 54 yard scoring drive.

Stenholm corrects statement

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- Congressman Charles Stenholm (D-TX) today announced that on several occasions he did unknowingly have insufficient funds at the House of Representatives Bank during the 101st Congress.

Stenholm issued a statement to correct a September 25 press release where he stated he did not think he had overextended his account.

"I first stated (because I believed it to be correct) that I had not had any overdrafts at the House Bank. But upon careful review of my account at the bank, I have found that I have, in fact, on several occasions, made errors in the timing of transfers of funds between the three banks in which I maintain accounts with resulting overdrafts.

"I was shocked, to say the least, when I reviewed my account and embarrassed completely that in my own way I have added to the negative attitude expressed by the people toward the Congress. I accept my share of the blame for permitting, as well as contributing to, a story that sheds bad light on the Congress.

"I am in total agreement with the new policy announced by Speaker Foley," stated Stenholm.

Last week, Foley announced that, effective immediately, overdrafts will be assessed a service charge and that no checks drawn against a House Bank account with insufficient funds will be honored.

FUMC plans Renewal Services

WESLEY PUTNAM

Wesley Putnam, widely acclaimed evangelist, singer, and composer, will lead the "Dayspring" Spiritual Renewal Services at the First United Methodist Church of Colorado City, Sunday through Wednesday, October 6-9. His ministry includes preaching, drama, and music woven together to create a fresh approach to renewal. His clear call to commitment through both word and song has impacted the lives of people of all ages from all walks of life.

The services will begin at 10:50 a.m. Sunday morning, and at 7:30 p.m. each evening, Sunday through Wednesday. Wesley will also speak at the United Methodist Men's breakfast at 6:30 a.m. Monday, to which everyone is invited. A Bible study program for children, led by his son, Philip, will begin at 6:30 p.m. each evening. All children from K through 5th grades are invited.

Rev. Putnam, holds a Bachelor of music degree from Northeast Louisiana University and the Master of Divinity degree from Asbury Theological Seminary. He is an ordained United Methodist clergyman, and he is a member of the Northwest Texas Annual Conference. He pastored local churches for over eight years before turning his attention to full-time evangelism in the summer of 1981. Wesley is a prolific songwriter whose compositions touch on virtually every aspect of Christian living from temptation and suffering to forgiveness and praise. He has cut six albums, two of which are being distributed nationally to radio stations and book stores. Selected songs from his last two albums, "The Battle's On" and "Hope of the World", have been published by Tempo Music in a choral collection. In addition, he has produced an audio and video cassette of one of his dramatic presentations. Attired in authentic Hebrew costume, Wesley captivates audiences as he recounts the lives of various Old Testament characters as though they were alive today. He animates James, the brother of Jesus, to relate New Testament stories.

Rev. Putnam is in great demand for revivals, concerts, youth camps and retreats. He has presented special music at many national United Methodist gatherings. He is currently serving as president of the National Association of United Methodist gatherings. He is currently serving as president of the National Association of United Methodist Evangelists. He and his wife, Felicia, live in Bedford, TX, with their three sons, James, Philip, and Timothy.
