Police 'fence' in 17 thugs

City, state and county law enforcement officials arrested 17 suspects Wednesday night to bring to an end the biggest undercover operation Big Spring has ever witnessed.

After hiring out-of-town agents, a storefront operation was set up at 603 E. 3rd in March. The store, called the Shade Tree, attracted criminals from the entire area wishing to unload stolen merchandise and black market drugs.

Records were kept, merchandise was noted, indictments were handed down by the grand jury, and Wednesday night officers were ready to move.

A short briefing session took place at the Dora Roberts Community Center at 8 p.m., and then two- and three-man teams of officers hit the streets. The first arrest was made 8:35 p.m. by the Coahoma Chief of Police on a county warrant, and the last arrest was made 3:56 a.m. today.

Five additional suspects are still at large. Police know the location of three of them, but two have vanished, according to Police Chief Stanley Bogard.

"All in all the arrests went very smoothly. We didn't have much trouble with anybody," said Bogard.

Apparently the bust came as a complete surprise to most of the suspects. One incident was particularly unusual.

Local police officers had combed the streets looking for two suspects for approximately three hours. They had come up empty-handed.

But then, by a stroke of luck, at 11:20 the two suspects contacted undercover agents and told them that they had some "hot" merchandise to unload. The agents agreed to the deal, and when the two suspects came to make the exchange officers arrested them.

Another suspect was caught unawares by Lt. Avery Falkner.

"When we went to arrest him he was standing in the front yard wearing boxer shorts and a T-shirt, polishing his car. We had to go inside and get his pants and shoes for him," said Falkner.

A total of 35 officers were involved in the arrests. These included local police, Howard County Sheriff's Deputies, State Highway Patrolmen, Alcoholic Beverage Commission agents and the Howard County Game Warden.

One of the suspects was actually arrested twice in the same day. After reportedly making a deal with one of the undercover agents noon Wednesday, the suspect was arrested, charged with delivery of marijuana and controlled substances, and thrown into jail.

According to Bogard, the man posted bond and was back on the streets in about an hour. He was then rearrested later that night on three indictments from the Howard County grand jury.

Only three doors were kicked in during the evening, according to Capt. Jim McCain.

"We knocked first, and in most cases they let us in. But in a few cases, they tried to slam the door shut, or just plain refused to let us in," said McCain. "Most of the time it went smoothly, though," he added.

In a statement issued by Chief Bogard, it was explained that the indictments returned and the arrests made do not present a true picture of the number of cases presented to the grand jury, and county court.

The grand jury accepted each indictment presented to it by District Attorney Rick Hamby which related to the storefront operation.

Those arrested following grand jury indictments are: Jack Wallis, three counts of delivery of marijuana; Jimmy Bartlett, delivery of a controlled substance; Charles Ussery III, delivery of marijuana; Gilbert Gamboa, delivery of controlled substance; J. D. Moore, two counts of delivery of controlled substance; Joe Nunez, delivery of controlled substance; Joe Perkins, delivery of marijuana; Jody Hodnett, delivery of marijuana; Jeffrey Russell, theft by exercising control; and Roy Dean Boyd and Jeffrey Russell, three counts of burglary and two of theft by exercising control.

The name of the other suspects are being withheld pending the formal filing of charges.

Wallis, Bartlett, Ussery, Gamboa, Moore, Nunez, Perkins, and Hodnett have posted their bonds and have been released from the Howard County Sheriff's Department.

Hurricane to hit Brownsville area

BROWNSVILLE, Tex. (AP) — Hurricane Anita, feeding on conditions ripe for strengthening, increased its winds to 115 miles per hour late Thursday morning as it crawled across the Gulf of Mexico toward the lower Texas coast and northeastern Mexico.

Rain and stiff breezes pushed through morning haze on South Padre Island as Anita's first tentative thrusts were felt.

The season's first hurricane moved to within 150 miles of Brownsville and threw gale force winds 200 miles from its center. Hurricane warning flags were hoisted along the Texas coast from Corpus Christi to Brownsville.

Evacuations were under way at South Padre Island and were completed at Port Mansfield.

Brownsville, population about 40,000, is located slightly inland from the Gulf of Mexico, and is the focal point of the Lower Rio Grande Valley that takes in such cities as Harlingen, McAllen and Edinburg. Brownsville's twin city of Matamoros, Mexico, is directly across the border, and its population of about 180,000 sat directly in the storm's path.

Low pressure continued to suck the hurricane on a slightly southern and western track that would indicate a landfall just below Brownsville-Matamoros.

Below Matamoros, the coast opens up to sparse population and few buildings for about 150 miles.

Anita's westward motion doubled in speed from five to 10 miles an hour as hurricane warnings were hoisted between Corpus Christi and Brownsville.

Grand Jury indicts 39

A Howard County Grand Jury indicted 39 cases Wednesday in 118th District Court. 19 of those indictments were connected with the recent storefront "Shadetree" operation by the Big Spring police and Howard County Sheriff's Department.

The 20 indicted who were not connected with the undercover arrests are: Roy Gardner, aggravated assault; Roger Danley, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle; Alford Kendrick, aggravated assault; Robert Michael Thornton, robbery and rape; Bruce Thomas Wadsworth, theft over $200; Douglas Smith, forgery by passing; Fedecio Diaz, theft by check; Steve Valencia, theft by exercising control; Eusebio Saiz, burglary; George David Manning, burglary; Terry Granato, two counts of burglary and one credit card abuse; Edward Charles Samuels, credit card abuse; Larry Dean Pearson, felony DWI; Joe Morgan Simmons, felony DWI; Alberto Rivas, unauthorized use of a motor vehicle; James Daniel Payne, theft by exercising control; Juan Flores Peredia, failure to stop and render aid; and Domingo Polendo Rios, involuntary manslaughter.

No-billed were Will Guthrie, investigation into the shooting of Jack Thompson; Judy Gardner, aggravated assault; Wendell Burley, aggravated assault; Leon Houston, Jr., aggravated assault; Paul Kinsley, theft; Curtis Lockhart, burglary; Wendell Young, aggravated assault; Bob Sawicki, theft by check; Stephen Francis Klusman, credit card abuse; Howard Preston Johnson, theft by taking; Manuel Chavez, theft by exercising control; James Bolton, burglary of a motor vehicle; Salvadore Trevino, theft by taking; Joe Max Carpenter, burglary; Wilbur Franklin Townshend, bribery; Leonard Wayne Phillips, felony DWI; Fred Lee Allen, felony DWI; Michael Dean Harper, felony DWI; Pete Gonzales Jr., theft by taking; Sam Elmo Taylor, forgery; Ricky Allen Raulston, burglary of a motor vehicle.

$27,000 in loot recovered by store

By JAMES WERRELL

In addition to the suspected criminals swept off the street, the storefront operation here recovered $27,000 in stolen property, and $5,000 worth of black market drugs.

How did the operation get started, and how did it work?

In December of 1976, the first undercover agent was hired. Two more were hired. All were qualified police officers unknown in this area.

Operations were coordinated between the Big Spring Police and the Howard County Sheriff's Office. Police Chief Stanley Bogard, Capt. Jim McCain and Detective Tony Lujan served as liaison men for the agents.

"That's a 24-hour job," said Bogard. "If this thing hadn't been cleared up soon, my wife might have left me," he joked.

The storefront operation was set up at 603 E. 3rd in what had been a television repair shop. It was named The Shade Tree because, according to Bogard, a large elm tree grew near the door of the shop.

Local businessmen donated merchandise, electronic surveillance equipment was installed and the shop was in business. Word slowly spread that the shop was in the market for used merchandise, and that few questions were asked.

Soon the merchandise began to flow in. Not only were the stolen goods identified from local burglaries, but also from a number of area cities.

In one instance goods from a burglary in Midland were purchased at The Shade Tree before Midland Police had been notified of the heist. A check was later run on the suspect's car, and it was found to have been stolen in Dallas.

The suspect was arrested in the stolen auto as he entered the city limits of Midland.

The videotape equipment used brought out the most chilling aspect of the operation. According to Capt. McCain, a taped record of almost all transactions was kept, totaling nearly six reels of tape.

In one transaction, the sellers "bragged" about a recent burglary they had pulled off.

According to Bogard, the two housebreakers were at work in a local home, when they heard the owners return.

"They jumped into a closet in the home, and spent the whole night there. They didn't leave until the next morning when the owners had gone," said Bogard.

In another incident, two burglars came into the shop with hot merchandise for sale. After making a deal with the agents, the two suspects told the undercover men to "hold on" while they rounded up more goods.

"They walked out of The Shade Tree, pulled another burglary, and were back in less than 20 minutes with more stuff to sell," said McCain.

Altogether, the operation cost between $16,000 and $17,000 according to McCain. Of that, only about 20 per cent was used to purchase merchandise.

The rest was used for rent on the shop, utilities, vehicle expenses and a variety of other costs, he said. According to Chief Bogard, expenses will be split between the city and the Howard County Sheriff's Office.

"We will also receive some money from other towns. Midland, for one, has offered to reimburse us for the three cases we cleared for them," said Bogard.

The operation also caused some bittersweet moments for the police. Chief Bogard told of one incident that was difficult for officers to handle.

"Detective (J.D.) Carter was going over a list of stolen items with one of the victims. It seems that she had this tea set that wasn't really valuable, but it had a lot of sentimental value. When the lady got to the tea set on the list she burst into tears. We couldn't tell her we had the set upstairs after having bought it at the shop," said Bogard.

Most of the recovered merchandise will be returned to owners immediately, according to the chief. Burglary victims will be notified, positive identification of the merchandise will be made, and the goods will be returned.

Bible fund falls short

The Bible Fund campaign is grinding to a halt more than $1,000 short of its goal.

The drive formally ends this weekend, although donations will continue to be accepted by the sponsoring organization, the Howard County Ministerial Association.

Gifts over the past two days have totaled $502, bringing the aggregate to $8,933.13. The alliance is seeking $10,000 to insure that Bible chairs will be retained at high schools in Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan.

Mr. and Mrs. Alton Underwood, who had made a donation earlier through the First Baptist Church, asked that their gift be in memory of Johnny Chaney and Dr. J.E. Hogan.

FAREWELL SALUTE — The final T38 piloted by two pilots from Williams AFB left Webb AFB this morning and there are no military planes left in Big Spring. The final class graduated this week and the training mission at Webb is completed. The runway will be officially closed before the week is out.

Last plane leaves Webb

By MARJ CARPENTER

The wheels of the last military plane at Webb AFB left the ground at 11:07 a.m. today as two pilots from Williams AFB in Arizona flew the T38 to their base.

Lt. Kel Weller and Lt. Scott Hammond were pilots for the final flight. Lt. Weller said, "I'm impressed with this community that they would make a ceremony out of the last plane leaving. I'm not sure they would at Chandler."

Both of the pilots remarked on the fact that there seemed to be a close relationship between the local base and the community.

"If 7 come 11 is a lucky number, possibly the time of departure spelled good luck for the future of Big Spring," one crewman stated.

The last plane to leave just happened to be the last one ready to go as it needed some minor repairs when most of the planes flew away on Wednesday. The runways are to be completely shut down this week.

The ground crew for the final plane included Sgt. Charles E. Nahoolkaika of Waiane, Hawaii, who is known to his friends as Charlie Alphabet. He is to return to Hickam AFB in Hawaii and is "going home."

Hulsey R. Peterson, SRA of New Jersey, is to be stationed at Columbus AFB and Mark Bishop AIC of Lincoln, Neb. has not learned yet where he will go.

The two pilots from Williams said that many of the Webb personnel are being transferred there and that people here were asking them about their future home.

A small gathering of around 50 persons gathered to watch the crew check the plane, gas it up, check the flaps, remove the blocks and watched it taxi away.

At the end of the runway where the plane stopped for the routine check for hydraulic leaks, Col. Harry Spannaus, wing commander drove up and talked to the pilots briefly on the radio. He had been attending a farewell reception honoring the Prairie Pilot staff and printers at Big Spring Printing Co.

The lone plane looked small on the large runways. An onlooker asked what happened to the Spirit of Big Spring plane after it was repainted. It was learned that it went to Vance AFB in Enid, Okla.

The gathering looked out at the quiet and lonesome runways until the plane was out of sight.

"Sure lots of concrete," one officer quipped.

Offbeat: 'The Art of Doing Nothing'

MARIEMONT, Ohio (AP) — Glen Miller believes Americans need training to do nothing. So the adult education director in this Cleveland suburb is offering classes in "The Art of Doing Nothing."

"It's aimed at teaching people to relax in this age of tension," Miller said.

Classes begin Sept. 26 for eight weeks at a cost of $15.

"It's cheaper than going to a bar and a lot better for you," Miller said.

He said the instructor wished to remain anonymous, noting: "He's semi-retired. He's a quasi-expert on doing nothing."

"It's an exciting course if you have a lot of tensions," Miller said. "It's also cheaper than going to a psychiatrist."

There are no textbooks or supplies required for the course. Just come and don't expect anything, Miller said.

Glenn Ford to marry

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Glenn Ford intends to end 10 years of bachelorhood to marry 29-year-old Cynthia Hayward.

The 61-year-old actor obtained a marriage license in Superior Court for his third marriage, a court clerk said Wednesday.

Ford's last marriage, to actress Kathy Hays, ended in 1967 after two years. Prior to that he was married 17 years to dancer Eleanor Powell and was divorced from her in 1960.

Miss Hayward is also a divorcee.

WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — Paul Conrad, the political cartoonist whose work earned him a place on Richard M. Nixon's "enemies list," has been named a Nixon Scholar at the former president's alma mater.

The 53-year-old Pulitzer Prize-winning Los Angeles Times cartoonist "will be the first of our distinguished scholars holding the Nixon Chair for this year," a spokeswoman for Whittier College said Wednesday. Nixon was graduated from the school in this Los Angeles suburb in 1934.

The endowed lectureship was started by college backers in the 1972-73 academic year in honor of the president, said spokeswoman Daphne Lorne.

TV news show reworked

NEW YORK (AP) — John Chancellor and David Brinkley, seeking to dispel the notion that television anchormen are "high priests of the news," will come out from behind their desks when a revamped "NBC Nightly News" is aired next Tuesday.

The show will be divided into four segments, NBC said Wednesday, and is intended to engage the audience more and add both depth and more stories at the same time.

Chancellor, who co-anchors the show from New York, will lounge in a swivel chair and perch in front of three small, visible TV monitors and a 32-inch color set for talking with correspondents or Brinkley, who works out of the Washington studio.

NBC denies it, but the changes seem designed to counter the faster pace initiated by ABC News as well as the credibility image of CBS anchorman Walter Cronkite. At stake are ratings, which represent millions of dollars in advertising revenues.

Cronkite honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Cronkite, a familiar figure behind the anchor desk of the "CBS Evening News," will be honored by other anchormen Sept. 17 when he is named an "honorary commodore" by the United States Coast Guard Auxiliary.

Cronkite, who also anchors CBS Radio's "Walter Cronkite Reporting," is to be presented the award at the auxiliary's national convention in Louisville, Ky., by Adm. Owen W. Siler, commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard.

Mary Martin 'satisfied'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Actress Mary Martin, appearing in her first stage performance in more than 10 years, says she's had such a satisfying life that she couldn't be happier in reincarnation.

Miss Martin said at the National Press Club Wednesday that her favorite roles were in "South Pacific" and "Peter Pan," in which she first came to stardom.

Miss Martin is appearing at the Kennedy Center with Anthony Quayle in "Do You Turn Somersaults?" by the contemporary Soviet writer Aleksei Arbusov.

Wholesale prices up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wholesale prices inched ahead by one-tenth of a percent in August as a fourth consecutive monthly decline in farm prices nearly offset increases in other areas, the Labor Department reported today.

The small August increase in wholesale prices followed two months of decline in the government's Wholesale Price Index.

Farm prices declined another 4.3 percent, the fourth consecutive month of decline, which is a welcome trend for consumers but continuing bad news for farmers, who have seen their farm income steadily eroding in recent months.

Lower prices were recorded during the month for coffee, eggs, livestock, grains and poultry, while prices increased for fresh and dried fruits and vegetables.

Prices trends at the wholesale level are eventually reflected in prices consumers pay for the finished product, although not all at once.

The Labor Department said prices of industrial commodities rose five-tenths of one percent in August for the second consecutive month, largely because of a 4.1 percent hike in prices of lumber and wood products, and a nine-tenths of one percent hike in prices of transportation equipment, especially for autos and auto parts.

Prices of processed foods and feeds declined eight-tenths of one percent in August, much less than the July decline of 2.4 percent.

On the whole, the August price report was favorable. The overall increase of wholesale prices for the 12-month period ending in August was 5.9 percent.

Wholesale prices had declined one-tenth of one percent in July and seven-tenths of one percent in June following increases in the previous nine months.

The Wholesale Price Index for August stood at 194.6, meaning that goods which cost $100 in 1967 were priced at $194.60 last month.

The figures are adjusted for seasonal variations. Without taking seasonal

The Labor Department also said that looking at wholesale prices a different way — according to the prices users of the wholesale goods would eventually receive — prices also rose one-tenth of one percent in August on an adjusted basis.

'I've been shot,' said Mrs. Davis

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A witness in the Cullen Davis murder trial testified today she was awakened by a wounded, excited Priscilla Davis one night last summer and told, "Cullen is up at the house killing everybody."

Mrs. Clifford Jones, the state's third witness, said it was 12:45 a.m. that August morning when Mrs. Davis approached her Fort Worth home, rang the doorbell and told her, "I've been shot."

It was Mrs. Jones and her husband who summoned police and an ambulance after the midnight Aug. 2 shooting at the Davis mansion across a field from their home.

The defense agreed to permit the Jones to testify out of order so that they might return to Fort Worth today.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Davis, 36, sat in an anteroom awaiting her ninth day of questioning by attorneys.

She told Wednesday how an angry, cursing Davis in 1974 banished her then 10-year-old daughter Andrea from the mansion and decreed that she not return.

It was Andrea, then 12, who was the first to die in the August 1976 shooting spree at the Davis mansion in Fort Worth, but she has been almost forgotten victim.

Davis, 43, a millionaire industrialist, is on trial for the child's death, but most of the testimony has centered on the wounding of Mrs. Davis and the slaying of her boyfriend, Stan Farr.

There were no witnesses to the shooting of the child, and the state is attempting to link Davis to the murder through the subsequent shootings.

The defendant's socialite wife said Wednesday that Andrea was living with her father, Jack Wilborn, Priscilla's second husband, when the 1974 incident occurred.

"He (Davis) told me to call Andrea and tell her to get over there (to the mansion) this weekend," she testified. Suddenly, she said, he jerked the phone from her hand and ordered the youngster to his home.

"He said, 'Goddamn it, Andrea, I want you over here this weekend,' and then he said, 'I don't give a goddamn what your plans were. I want you over here.'" refused, Mrs. Davis said, her husband told the child: "All right, goddamn it, you're not welcome over at my f---ing house again until you're ready to do what I tell you. And furthermore, you're to return everything I ever gave you."

"I don't give a goddamn what it is, I want it returned, do you hear?"

After the incident, Mrs. Davis said, Andrea did not visit the mansion again until after she and Davis separated and a domestic relations judge awarded her temporary possession of the $6 million dwelling.

Ironically, Andrea was not living at the mansion when the shootings occurred, but was spending the night there after returning the day before from a trip to Houston.

In another area, Mrs. Davis, who previously admitted she was "probably" addicted to the prescription painkiller Percodan, said she now is taking four Percodan pills every two hours for different injuries and illnesses.

"I take it from the time I wake up in the morning until the time I go to bed, generally," she said.

That computes out to more than 200 pills weekly. Mrs. Davis also testified that she had seen her husband taking target practice at the couple's lake home near Fort Worth and said, "He was a very good shot."

She said she had seen his pistol lying about in a variety of places before the couple separated in 1974.

Carter failed to pay for flights

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House said today that through an oversight the Carter campaign committee failed to pay for rides by candidate Jimmy Carter on corporate and state-owned planes during a swing through the Carolinas in April 1975.

But Doug Huron, a campaign committee official and now a White House attorney, said the money — approximately $1,000 — is being paid, now that the matter was brought to the administration's attention.

The free airplane rides were disclosed today by the Washington bureau of the Cox Newspaper chain.

Huron also said the disclosure had prompted campaign officials to go back over their books to determine if any other similar rides on small chartered planes, had not been paid for.

However, Huron said that the campaign had previously paid bills totaling $151,332 for small charter planes. He said this demonstrated there was nothing intentional in the failure to pay for the trip through the Carolinas.

"It's not like we had a practice of not paying for those plane trips," Huron said.

Carter took five flights during a three-day swing through North and South Carolina in April 1975.

Two of the flights were paid for by R. R. "Bobby" Allen on a plane owned by D. R. Allen and Son Inc. of Fayetteville, N.C.

Huron said that Allen was being reimbursed for $271.25 for the plane trips since

Allen had previously contributed $1,000 to the Carter campaign, the legal limit for individuals under federal law.

Huron noted that the plane rides Allen paid for were not corporate funds and said Allen apparently failed to bill for the flights because he wasn't aware of the $1,000 contribution limit.

A secretary at Allen's construction firm in North Carolina said Allen was out of the office and could not be reached immediately.

Allen became a member of the finance committee for Carter's inauguration and was named to the executive board of the Democratic National Finance Council last January.

Joe Christie resigns

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — State Insurance Board Chairman Joe Christie resigned today, saying he wanted to make a decision whether to run for U. S. senator "on my own time, not at the taxpayers' expense."

Christie said he would announce in October whether he will make the race, and most observers already view him as a candidate.

He leaves the board at a time when several major decisions are pending, including how much to increase car insurance rates. Insurance companies want an average 17.4 per cent increase while the board's private consultant says only 1.8 per cent would be needed. "There will always be some decisions pending," said Christie, who recently moved the car insurance question off the board agenda because of reports that companies were making sizeable profits.

Christie said he would return to his private law practice, which he maintained in El Paso while a state senator, and would "get more active in the oil business." He said he has several oil interests, including five producing wells in South Texas.

Oil and gas price deregulation has been the chief issue of U.S. Rep. Bob Krueger of New Braunfels, the only announced Democratic candidate for the Senate seat now held by Republican John Tower. Christie said he was not sure now whether there were any energy questions on which he and Krueger would differ.

He expressed optimism about his chances against Krueger.

"The Christie Committee tells me things look good and that there is strong grassroots support for my candidacy," Christie said. He said he had suggested to Gov. Dolph Briscoe that he replace him with a woman. A chairman, he said, should be a lawyer with some trial experience, since "oral hearings are virtually non-jury trials."

Police beat Burglars not home

In the burglar roundup Wednesday night, police were frustrated in their attempts to find two of their most wanted suspects at home. It was assumed the burglars were committing another act, and as it turned out, they were.

The home of R.E. Wilson Sr., 2304 Roberts, was broken into early in the evening Wednesday when the housebreakers removed a screen from a window at the rear of the house.

The burglars, once inside, made quick work of finding a slide projector, a cassette recorder, a 20-gauge shotgun, some notary stamps, a coin collection, a sound synchronizer, a portable television set, a clock radio, a bronze piggy bank, a camera, and $8 cash.

The items were all recovered later that night when the unsuspecting burglars attempted to make a sale to undercover police.

Unfortunately, not all the Big Spring burglar contingent relaxed their efforts Wednesday, and burglars broke a window at the rear of a home belonging to Irene Morland, Northcrest Apartments, No. 7.

It is not known at this time what the burglars took from the home.

A battery charger was taken from the home of Mrs. Jessie Nalley, No. 8-Indian Ridge, between 8:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Someone took a depth finder, rangefinder combination from the gunwale of a boat belonging to H.H. Morris, 1604 B Lincoln, between 10:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. Wednesday.

According to reports, the equipment was worth $149. Car burglars took a 12-volt battery from a car belonging to Ben A. Boadle, 111 Jefferson, sometime between Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. and 7:15 p.m.

According to reports, the car was parked on the north side of Boadle's home, and the battery was worth $30.

John S. Kopec, 538 Westover, reported the theft of a .38-caliber pistol sometime during the last two weeks.

In final arguments Wednesday, attorney Tim Herman urged the eight-woman, four-man jury to believe Hausmann that he did not intend to defraud the state. The attorney called the charges against the dentist were "ridiculous" and "ludicrous."

Herman said Hausmann grosses about $100,000 a year in his Monahans practice and asked why his client would scheme to steal $432 as the state alleged.

The charges alleged that Hausmann padded invoices to the state health department.

The pistol is worth about $50.

Someone stole a bicycle belonging to Kiki Jo Gilbert, 2007 Morrison, between 11 p.m. Tuesday and 7 a.m. Wednesday.

The bike, worth $100, was stolen from the front porch of Ms. Gilbert's residence.

Gladys B. Hollandsworth, 2107 Carl, is in satisfactory condition at Malone and Hogan Hospital after the car she was driving collided with one driven by Thomas Frank Montgomery, 1804 Goliad, at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, at the intersection of 18th and Main.

Debra Denise Cockrell, Sterling City Rt. 2, Box 76, was treated and released from Malone and Hogan Hospital after a car she was driving collided with a car driven by Patricia Conway Parks, 503 Highland, at 7:25 p.m. Wednesday at the intersection of F.M. 700 and Goliad.

Cars driven by Gary E. Schultz, 1506 Wood, and Billy Joe McSweeney collided at 1:05 p.m. Wednesday at 201 Benton.

Cars driven by Joyce of Choate Phillips, Rt. 2, Box 165, and Grady Lynn Hodnett, 611 Scurry, collided at 4:56 p.m. Wednesday at 1008 E. 3rd.

Cars driven by Cynthia Jones Monteleone, 1712 Purdue, and Cecil Vance Riordan, 1103 Barnes, collided at 6th and Settles, at 4:56 p.m. Wednesday.

At 11:44 a.m. Wednesday cars driven by Camilla Pachal 1608 Runnels, and Rufus Monon, 2303 Austin, collided on the 3000 Block of E. 23rd.

Foreign labor rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal court decision favoring some Virginia apple growers may have a major impact on the ability of Texas farmers to hire foreign laborers.

The court decision, handed down Wednesday, forced the Department of Labor to allow the apple growers to import 5,100 Jamaicans to pick their crop, even though the department felt it could find unemployed domestic laborers to do the job. The decision, by U.S. District Court Judge James Turk, will have no impact on Texas unless it is affirmed by higher courts. Even then, its eventual impact is not certain.

But, according to Secretary of Labor Ray Marshall, "if this order (by Turk) is allowed to stand, it will set an alarming precedent that will undercut the ability of the Labor Department to control the importation of foreign workers."

Under present rules, farmers who want to hire temporary foreign labor to pick crops must apply to the Labor Department at least 60 days in advance. The Labor Department looks for domestic workers willing to do the job. If it cannot find them, it is supposed to allow the farmers to bring in foreign workers.

In the Virginia case, the Labor Department wanted the apple growers to hire Puerto Rican labor.

The department and the growers wrangled constantly over such things as whether the growers would be required to advance transportation money to the workers in Puerto Rico.

Finally, this week, the growers went to court and told Turk they could wait no longer; they said their crops had to be picked. Turk ordered the department to allow the admission of all the foreign workers the growers had asked for.

Marshall said the growers could have reached an agreement with the department but for one thing: "I know that growers prefer foreign workers because they find them more docile than domestic workers. With unemployment at 6.9 per cent, this is not a valid consideration."

Marshall said the Labor Department would file an appeal shortly.

WET WALK ON THE HIGHWAY — Two young men make their way up Interstate 494 near Penn Avenue in Bloomington, Minn., Wednesday afternoon. The highway was closed due to flooding caused by a seven inch rain Tuesday night. In background are tanker trucks which were hauling away water which was pumped out of the roadway.

Landslide in Rhodesia

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — British Foreign Secretary David Owen and U.S. Ambassador Andrew Young brought the British-American peace plan for Rhodesia to Prime Minister Ian Smith today following a landslide election victory that strengthened the white Rhodesian leader's earlier rejection of the plan's key proposals.

Owen and Young arrived from Nairobi, Kenya, where they waited out the election. Smith called Wednesday to tighten his hold on the Rhodesian Legislative Assembly. Young is the highest-ranking American official to visit Rhodesia since Smith declared the country's independence from Britain in 1965.

The 8,000-word British-American plan for Rhodesia's transition to black majority rule was to be made public simultaneously in Salisbury, London and Washington later today. But its chief provisions were leaked last week. Both Smith and the leaders of the black guerrillas fighting his regime rejected some or all of them.

Smith told reporters Wednesday night he was ready to listen to Owen and Young, but "it looks as if the whole thing is pretty cut and dried, and they do not want to be confused by any facts or ideas that we may be able to give. We've got lots of ideas. We want to look at their plan and then put forward ours."

The British-American plan reportedly calls for Smith's replacement by a British administrator, a U.N. peacekeeping force to replace his army and the black guerrillas of the Patriotic Front who have been fighting white rule since 1972, and elections next year in which all adults among Rhodesia's 6.4 million blacks and 270,000 whites would be eligible to vote.

Smith is committed to majority rule after a two-year transition period directed by him. But both he and the guerrillas reject the proposed U.N. force, and Smith wants a multiracial government and a favored position for the whites in the new Rhodesia.

In the voting Wednesday, Smith's Rhodesian Front won all 38 of the white seats in the Legislative Assembly that had been decided by this morning and was expected to win the other 12 in rural districts to be heard from today.

2.66 inches of rain splashes Dalhart

By the Associated Press
Hurricane Anita, after spending several days meandering in the Gulf of Mexico, set sail for the South Texas coast early today, packing 105 m.p.h. winds.

But the rainfall was at the far end of the state during the night as fair skies were being reported in the area where the hurricane was expected to make landfall. At Dalhart in the Texas Panhandle, 2.66 inches of rain fell during a heavy thunderstorm.

But, Dalhart's moment of glory as the state's wet spot was expected to soon be upstaged in South Texas. The National Weather Service issued a hurricane warning for the Texas coast between Corpus Christi and Brownsville.

Big Damage suit testimony slated

HOUSTON (AP) — Testimony was scheduled to resume today in the trial of a $7.6 million damage suit resulting from the 1972 death of a Houston doctor.

Jurors were given the day off Wednesday as State District Court Judge Arthur C. Lesher heard arguments on various motions with most of the meetings in his chambers.

The son, widow and mother of Dr. John Hill, a prominent plastic surgeon, are suing millionaire Ash Robinson, alleging the oilman arranged Hill's death in revenge for the death of Robinson's daughter.

When he was shot to death at his plush River Oaks home Hill was awaiting trial on charges he killed his first wife, Joan Robinson Hill, through medical neglect in 1969.

No criminal charges have been filed against Robinson, 79, and his attorneys deny the allegations by Robert Hill, 17, Connie Hill, 37, and Myra Hill, 75.

Publisher's corner— Town that refuses even to be wounded

Once again, Big Spring continues to come through the closing of Webb Air Force Base better than expected.

One very important indication came late last week and early this week as the students returned to school.

The enrollment at Big Spring public schools is nearing the 5,272 students which had been projected. The high school is down about 300 students from this time last year, but only 120 from the last day of school in May.

THIS IS VERY close to what public school officials had predicted. The fact that enrollment did not fall off any more than that leaves the schools in good position for a slow recovery in students throughout the year.

IN AN EQUALLY crucial registration, the students at Howard College began signing up this week, and the news was very good indeed.

The regular enrollment at the two-year college remains steady with last year, although the college appears that it will be down 100 part-time students.

The Air Force's environmental impact statement had predicted that public school enrollment in Big Spring would decline 23.6 per cent.

Actually, it appears that Big Spring has a good chance to hold at no more than 16 per cent loss.

The impact statement also estimated that the minimum loss could be 14.3 per cent, and it appears Big Spring could do as well or better than the minimum figure by midyear.

At Howard College the impact statement said the drop in students could be 367 students, or 29 per cent of the enrollment.

But it now appears the college will fare much better than that.

STUDENTS WILL continue to arrive and drop out at both the college and the public schools for the next week or so, and the enrollment numbers are not considered very firm until then.

This much we do know: Big Spring is outperforming the economic computer model for base closings thus far in almost every category.

Already the regional news media has begun to refer to this community in western-sounding terms as "the town that refused to die."

We may be better than that. We may be the town that was too determined even to be wounded.

Inherent goodness

Around the rim

James Werrell

I have enjoyed beer ever since I was not old enough to drink it.

I had my first can of beer all to myself when I was 15. That one led to another, and then just one more, and after three I was walking horizontally.

That was in Ohio, one of the few members of the Republic that offers the abomination known as 3.2 beer. This is a watery brew that contains only 3.2 per cent alcohol, as opposed to the usual 6 per cent.

BUT 3.2 BEER was the staple of all Ohioans under 21 years of age (technically it was meant for only the 18 to 21 year age bracket, but most of my contemporaries ignored the technicality).

And 3.2 was enough to get us through that rough transitory period; to usher my friends and me gracefully into legality. It allowed us to rise to the challenge of the rarified world of college beer drinking.

Those years led me to steady friendship with bubbling nectar with magic names such as, Piel's Real Draft, Rheingold Extra Dry, Rolling Rock's Old Latrobe, Stroh's Fire Brew, Schoenling Little Kings Cream Ale, Labatt's Splits and, when nothing else was available, Schlitz.

These were consumed in the dead of winter, upstate New York winter in the warmth of such establishments as Hickey's Tavern, The Old Stone Jug, D'Andrea's, The Tin and Lint, Bud's Cafe, The Rathskeller and anywhere you could take a six pack.

But what has brought on this rush of nostalgia, this brazen show of affection for the golden brew?

It is an article which caught my eye early last week that may change my whole attitude toward popping the pop-top on a can of suds.

While I was fully aware in college that beer often helped to prolong the life of an evening (and a "High Life" it was, I had no idea that it could lengthen life in the larger sense of the word).

But lo and behold, what are the conclusions of a recent study?

I quote: "A beer-a-day may keep heart attacks away."

IT SEEMS THAT the New England Journal of Medicine published an article stating that moderate beer drinking may be beneficial in the prevention of coronary heart disease.

The researchers examined the drinking habits, over six years, of 7,705 Japanese men living in Hawaii. Of these, 294 developed heart disease, and the report said the illness was far less common in those who drank up to four beers a day.

Among the non-drinkers, there were 6.8 deaths due to heart disease for every 1,000 people. Among those who drank the equivalent of one or two beers a day, there were 4 deaths per 1,000.

According to the article, researchers could not pin down the exact reason for this phenomenon, but they speculated that drinking may alter the cholesterol level in the blood.

There has always been something in the back of my mind that told me of the inherent goodness of beer. I knew that something wonderful happened between the time that mess of hops, barley, corn and yeast is tossed into the boiling cauldron, and the time it emerges as a tall cold one.

And about all I can add to that is, here's looking at you kid.

Phony figures

Jack Anderson, Les Whitten

WASHINGTON —

The Foreign Agriculture Service (FAS), an arm of the Agriculture Dept., sends both government men and businessmen abroad to promote the sales of U.S. farm products.

In all fairness, it must be said that these traveling pitchmen have been successful in boosting foreign sales of ripe tobacco leaf, surplus wheat and other commodities grown in the United States.

They haven't been quite as successful, however, as the FAS likes to claim. Last year, the agency inflated its claim with phony statistics — the better to justify its $40 million budget.

THERE WAS THE matter, for example, of cattle exports to Hungary. A staff investigation for Chairman Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, of the House Trade subcommittee, found that Hungary is buying less cattle from the United States.

But the FAS solemnly assured Congress Hungary is purchasing more U.S. cattle than ever. For this, the agency took full credit.

It turned out, however, that the FAS had various statistics to choose from. The Economic Research Service, which keeps track of livestock exports, reported that 597 American Steers reached Hungary in 1976.

The Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service keeps its own count of the cattle shipped overseas. By its arithmetic, 1,245 head of cattle made it to Hungary.

Neither figure was much to boast about. The FAS, therefore, seized upon some private statistics kept by the Holstein-Friesian Assn., a huge cattle cooperative. Triumphant, the FAS reported to Congress that the cooperative had exported 6,300 cattle to the Hungarian market. But the agency couldn't even get the private figures right. The surprised cooperative had reported shipping only 3,326 steers to Hungary.

If Congress has been misled about the amount of U.S. beef served to hungry Hungarians last year, the FAS is not repentant. An official told us the agency intended to "ignore" the congressional investigation. He said the FAS was constantly being investigated by Congress, without detriment. It is difficult, he added, to make sure all the figures are accurate.

But congressional critics are wondering why the taxpayers need to spend $40 million to promote agricultural sales overseas. The United States dominates agricultural trade and shouldn't need touring promoters to tout its beef and barley.

"It's a little bit," Vanik told us, "like Saudi Arabia advertising the benefits of its oil."

NUCLEAR CRISIS: At least 20 nuclear reactors are so swamped with their own radioactive wastes that they will have to close down within seven years unless drastic action is taken.

The Carter administration has prohibited reprocessing used nuclear fuel and many nuclear plants have crammed their storage facilities to capacity with the spent fuel rods. A nuclear reactor must shut down if its lethal wastes cannot be stored or shipped away.

The CIA apologizes

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON —

A federal judge has just ruled that the CIA must write a letter of apology to people whose mail they opened in the United States. The Department of Justice has suggested the text of the letter, which turns out to be a formal apology in typical governmental gobbledygook, which in my opinion would not get the CIA off the hook.

I think if the CIA really wants to show it's sorry for reading the mail of Americans they should make each letter a personal one, which would show that the Central Intelligence Agency has a heart.

HERE ARE A FEW suggestions of the types of letters of apology Adm. Stansfield Turner, the head of the CIA, would send out to people whose privacy had been violated.

Dear Mr. Macomber, You can't imagine how sorry all of us in the CIA are for reading your mail during the past 14 years. It was an oversight which I assure you won't happen again.

I regret your Aunt Tilly in Dublin still has pains in her back. Our medical team suggests she use a hot water bottle at night to relieve the agony. Also, I think your son is out of line when he says he wants to stay in Paris to continue his education. Our agents in Paris report that he is not going to school but is spending all of his time at cafes.

The letter you received from the Carlsons in Venice telling you what a wonderful time they were having was slightly exaggerated. Carlson came down with dysentery and Mrs.

Carlson's photographs of St. Mark's Square were all overexposed.

WE'LL BE HAPPY to send you information on any other letters we read, if you want us to. I hope it will make up in a small way for what we now consider an illegal undercover program.

Sincerely Yours

Adm. Stansfield Turner

Dear Ms. Halifax, As you know the CIA was involved in a mail-reading program, and for reasons which no one here can explain all your letters from abroad were opened and scrutinized. You can't imagine how upset we are about this. Some overzealous employee, who will have to remain nameless for security reasons, was responsible. After going through his report on your mail, all I can say is that you have beautiful handwriting and I wish my children could write as well.

Your love letters to Mr. Cesar Randini in Rome were masterpieces and should be published in a book. The CIA would do it, but we recently went out of the book publishing business.

WE'RE SORRY THAT Mr. Randini broke off the relationship by marrying Signora Carmelita Verdi of 14 Via Condotti, but you must take my word for it that Mr. Randini is not a one woman man. All the time he was calling "his little artichoke" he was spending his evenings at Signora Verdi's apartment, sometimes leaving as late as four in the morning. You are well rid of him.

Sincerely, Adm. Stansfield Turner

Pregnancy can touch off 'E.M.'

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you advise me on erythema multiforme, it's cause, and why it affects certain joints with such severe pain? What is the treatment? How long does it last and should the joint pain continue after the skin rash disappears? I had never heard of this malady. —L. G. W.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am pregnant and also have a rash that my doctor calls erythema multiforme. He said in my case the pregnancy brought it on. I was three months pregnant when it broke out. It's healing now. Can you tell me more about this? —G. C.

Erythema multiforme is an acute inflammation which affects many parts of the body beside the skin. The typical eruptions are quite varied, from small red ones to large blisters. The word multiforme means "many forms." It comes on quite dramatically, with fever, weakness, much aching and joint pains, and, of course, rash.

It's one of the mystery diseases. No germ has been singled out as a cause, although it may follow a viral infection. A drug sensitivity or an acute infection may be involved also. It usually accompanies some other disorder or condition.

For you, Mrs. G. C., a pregnancy may touch off an attack of E.M., but I would not call pregnancy the "cause" of it. Other factors would have to be present not involving the pregnancy.

The disease lasts from two to six weeks depending on the severity. Because its cause is unclear, treatment is uncertain. Steroid drugs have been used with effect in severe cases, and milder ones are treated with soothing lotions or wet compresses. E.M. usually subsides by itself leaving no lasting effects. It may recur, though.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a terrible growing stomach. I am 64 years old and in good health. My stomach used to growl just in quiet places like funeral parlors, church, shows, etc. It is so embarrassing. Now it seems to growl much of the time. What is causing this and what can I do to correct it? —Mrs. R. A.

Four things come to mind in this "case of the growing stomach."

It can start with the mouth — rapid eating, sighing, or talking while eating, any habit that causes air swallowing. It can be so casual as to be hardly noticed, but gas once trapped in the stomach will rumble around.

An overactive bowel can cause it. Tension or anxiety can speed up the gas-producing action of the bowel, causing the growling. The excitement of preparing for and going to special places, such as those you mention, might contribute to it.

A kink or a mild obstruction in the bowel might cause it, but that would be accompanied by other symptoms — constipation, diarrhea, possibly stomach distention (bloat) and even pain.

Finally, you might investigate food sensitivity. If this is a daily occurrence suspect a food used regularly, say, coffee, lettuce, sugar, raw fruits or vegetables.

The first two factors are the more common and likely ones. An examination of your entire gastrointestinal tract would reveal any of the more serious ones I mentioned.

There are preparations containing simethicone that break up gas bubbles. My new booklet, "Stomach and Abdominal Complaints," may offer leads. For a copy send 35 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me in care of The Herald.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to know the effect prostatitis has on diabetes, particularly with regard to insulin needs. Is it possible for prostatitis to cause diabetes if there was no previous record of it in anyone in the family? —C.M.H.

Prostatitis is usually a low grade (mild) infection. It should have no drastic effect on diabetes. If, however, there is an acute flareup with fever and pain, the effect would be the same as with any other acute infection. More insulin would be required, and control would be temporarily difficult. Prostatitis would not cause diabetes, whether or not there was a family history of it.

To learn the major categories of prostate trouble — symptoms, treatment, how to speed recovery — read Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "The Pesky Prostate." For a copy write to him in care of The Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

Dr. Thosteson welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

John Curry, world ice skating champion, who has created a Theater of Skating Spectacular, has broken new ice by playing London's Palladium. John is the first performer to cover that stage on blades, and he's such a hit he's thinking of moving the act west to New York. Curry's big number is "Afternoon of a Faun." On ice? Well, why not!

And listen, if you think New York is the only crazed jungle, John was rather nastily beaten to a London sidewalk last week by an unknown assailant for unknown reasons. Hot hyperbole: I hear the persistent hissing of everyone whispering that Ryan O'Neal's agent has told a fib about her client's $3 million fee for his starring role in "Love Story II." Those in the know hiss back that half that amount might be closer to the truth.

True dope: Flying in from Tahiti to read the script of director-producer Terence Young's "Opium" is none other than Marlon Brando. If the mighty B accepts the scribbles, he will co-star with George C. Scott and Omar Sharif. More importantly, Brando gets $3.5 million — even more than he reportedly got for his fatherly role in "Superman."

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM:

We are heartsick over our young granddaughters, who are not getting any religious training. What, if anything, can we as grandparents do? —Mrs. B. J.

DEAR MRS. J.: I am sure grandparents have been more responsible for directing children in the right direction than most people can ever imagine. The apostle Paul, for example, commended the faith of Timothy, "which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice... from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus" (II Timothy 1:5, 3:15).

I know you are anxious to avoid giving the impression that you want to run your grandchildren's lives. But there are some practical things you can do. You can give your grandchildren Bible story books for birthdays or other special events. You can give them a good copy of the Bible if they don't have one, and encourage them to read it. If you live near them, you might ask permission to take them to Sunday school and church. Perhaps you would be able to contribute toward sending them to a Christian summer camp which your pastor would recommend. Be sure that they understand that God is important in your lives. A simple thing like saying thanks before meals when they are present can have a memorable effect on a young child.

So there are things you can do. But most of all, pray for them. And pray also for their parents, that you might have a natural opportunity to talk with them, not only about their children, but about their own relationship with the Lord.

WASHINGTON — After explaining to Zbigniew Brzezinski that he wanted to lunch alone with Henry Kissinger last week, President Carter suddenly changed his mind and invited not Brzezinski but top White House aide, Hamilton Jordan, to join him.

In an earlier day, such treatment of the President's national security adviser would have been deemed cavalier. "It is unthinkable that predecessors of Brzezinski, such as McGeorge Bundy, Walt W. Rostow or the fabled Dr. Kissinger would have accepted it."

In the Carter White House, however, Dr. Brzezinski not only blithely allowed himself to be odd man out but seemed unperturbed. "Remember," one White House aide told us in trying to establish a rationale for Brzezinski's exclusion, "there's a new attitude in the Carter White House — an attitude of mutual trust."

PERHAPS, BUT the exclusion of Brzezinski was a symbolic act that points up this danger: lack of overall foreign policy coordination that has led to flatly contradictory positions by bureaucratic interests competing for Mr. Carter's favor; the result is bewilderment in foreign embassies and among the bureaucrats themselves.

It would be grossly unfair to blame this on Brzezinski. It is the President who sets the style and dictates the way he wants things done. The handling of the Carter-Kissinger luffe on the terrace outside the Oval Office is a case in point.

Brzezinski's exclusion cannot be explained, as some White House aides are saying, by the "limited" subject matter: the President's wooing of Kissinger to support the Panama Canal treaty. In fact, the two men ranged over many issues far removed from Panama. Jordan, in charge of rounding up enough Senators for ratification, took an active role in the conversation.

BRZEZINSKI SHOULD by right have been there both to protect the President from possible end runs by the formidable Kissinger and to soak up a little of Kissinger's foreign policy lore. Most important word of his absence immediately fed the capital's rumor mills, already choked with tales of Brzezinski's limited authority over the bureaucracy. Herewith a sampler:

Item: Central Intelligence director Stansfield Turner failed to coordinate with Brzezinski the CIA's strong opposition to the proposed U.S. sale to Iran of AWACS (early warning) aircraft. A letter from Turner to Congress warning against the sale for security reasons damaged the administration's real position: strong support of the sale.

Item: One of Turner's National Intelligence officers told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee behind closed doors in June that withdrawing American troops from South Korea would incur "unacceptable risks" to the U.S. A few hours later, Gen. George Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and Philip Habib, under secretary of state, battled the same committee by saying the administration favors the troop pullout.

Item: By agreement with presidential press secretary Jody Powell, Assistant Secretary of State Richard Holbrooke on Aug. 18 formally briefed the press on Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's China trip. The next day, Brzezinski summoned a dozen reporters for a "worldwide" briefing — which turned into a second Vance-to-China analysis. There was no coordination with the State Department.

ITEM: ALTHOUGH NO one publicly admits it, aides close to Secretary of State Vance insist he is admitted to the flow of policy decisions only at the last moment, straining relations with the White House.

Hall Ranch bids requested

Sealed bids will be received by The University of Texas System at 210 W. 6th Street in Austin until 10 a.m. Wednesday, Sept. 14 for the purchase of the Hall Ranch, located approximately 12 miles south of the City of Big Spring in Howard and Glasscock Counties.

Separate bids on each of seven tracts ranging in size from 282.73 acres to 640 acres are requested.

This is the former farm of the late Dr. G. T. Hall in the Lomax area. The Hall Properties—office and members of the family had no comment on the auction.

A University of Texas representative stated that the property had been donated to the University of Texas Medical School by the Hall family.

Terms and conditions of the sale along with a more detailed description of the improvements will be furnished prospective bidders upon request.

Tom E. Smith, mortgage and real estate officer, Office of Investments, Trusts and Lands, the University of Texas System at 210 W. 6th Street, Austin, Tex. 78701 may be contacted. The telephone number is area code 512-471-5781.

The property is available for inspection between the hours of 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. today, and again on Sept. 6, 8, 12 and 13. Prospective bidders should meet University personnel at the Lomax gin on FM 818 during the times specified. Inspection of the land at other times is not permitted.

Big Spring 'hold-up' called big success

"Big Spring is such a lovely town, the Texas hospitality is certainly alive and well in Big Spring," said Mrs. David Bope, member of the first Big Spring Hold-Up Family.

The Tucson Family was overcome with the generosity of the local merchants and people of Big Spring. They were coming back from their vacation in Florida and stated their visit in Big Spring was the highlight of their vacation. That night, they even called their friends at home to tell them what had happened, accomplishing the goal of spreading good words about Big Spring.

"It was through community effort and support that made the first 'Hold-Up' such a success," said Bill Albright, Executive Vice President of the Chamber of Commerce.

Those local businesses that provided complimentary gifts and services were Walls, Coca Cola, Cactus Paint, Etc Shoppe, Gibson's, Carver's Pharmacy, KBST Radio Station, Newsom's Food Center, Coor's Beer, Bowl-A-Rama, Blum's Jeweler's, Toyland, Swartz, Baskin-Robbins and the Big Spring Herald.

The Bope family had never tasted fried chicken steak and got a tasty introduction at Rip Griffin's Truck Terminal Restaurant, who also provided breakfast the next morning.

Their overnight accommodations were courtesy of the Mid-Continent Inn, hosted by the manager Alton Taylor.

The Bope family was highly impressed by the Comanche Trail Park and the natural Big Spring. They were also made aware of the rich history of this area.

Martinez top graduate

Richard Martinez, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Martinez of 427 Hillside Drive, graduated recently from Texas Tech University in Lubbock as the outstanding engineering student for 1976-77.

Richard entered Tech after graduating from Big Spring High School. While in high school, he received many awards for outstanding performance. In high school, he was a member of the National Honor Society for four years.

He is now employed by Staecena and Billingsly, an architectural firm in Lubbock.

He earned a National Honor Society scholarship in 1972 while in high school here. He also won a Los Tertulianos scholarship.

In 1973, he earned All-University recognition, was in the Phi Eta Sigma (an honor fraternity).

In 1974, he was presented with a Dads' Association scholarship and in 1975 with a Texas State scholarship. He was admitted to the Alpha Phi Omega (National Service Fraternity).

RICHARD MARTINEZ

Frank Martinez, Richard's brother, has received an academic grant from Pratt Institute in New York where he will be working toward a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree.

Frank will major in art, with emphasis on print making. He graduated from Big Spring High School in 1971, where he took art one year.

He attended Howard College and was a photographer for el nido. He served two years with the U.S. Army in Germany as a member of the military police.

For the past two years he has been living in Santa Barbara, Calif., where he was manager of two theaters while attending Santa Barbara City College. There he completed requirements for an Associate of Arts degree.

Energy Bill stamped 'consumer rip-off'

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill says proposed oil and gas use taxes in President Carter's energy bill would be "a consumer rip-off" with no real effect on consumption.

He released a letter Wednesday that he sent last Friday to Sen. Russell Long, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, which is reviewing the House version of Carter's bill.

The attorney general said he doubted that raising the price of gasoline by three to seven cents a gallon through taxation would cut the demand for foreign oil.

What possible justification can there be for such a measure if increased domestic production of oil and gas is not augmented by its imposition? It will be a consumer rip-off in the highest sense of the word," Hill said.

He said that if Congress does adopt the tax, then it should use the proceeds for domestic oil and gas exploration and production and for development of new forms of energy, such as solar and geothermal.

Hill also said taxes to Texas electric utilities that discourage natural gas use still rely heavily on gas as a would penalize customers of boiler fuel.

Motorists, there's good news today

Texas planning motorists trips during the Labor Day weekend can budget a little less for gasoline than they could two months ago. According to a survey made by the American Automobile Association, the average price of regular gasoline has declined by over 1 cent per gallon since the July Fourth weekend.

The survey of 207 service stations throughout the state showed that regular gas is now selling for an average price of 58.9 cents per gallon, compared to the average 60.2 cents per gallon revealed by AAA's Independence Day survey.

Prices for unleaded and premium fuel also declined, though by lesser amounts. The current average prices (July 4 prices in parentheses) are: Unleaded — 62.2 (63.0); Premium — 63.9 (64.6).

Gasoline prices remain higher than they were last Labor Day weekend, when AAA's survey revealed averages of 57.4 for regular, 59.4 for unleaded and 61.1 for premium.

The survey showed that motorists can save money by shopping around for fuel. The price charged for regular gasoline ranged from 47.9 cents per gallon at a self-service station in Beaumont to 69.9 cents per gallon at a full-service station in Fort Stockton. But regular was selling for as little as 55.9 in Fort Stockton, and for as much as 65.9 in Beaumont.

Station operators contacted by AAA for the survey said they expect no supply problems during the Labor Day weekend, and most stations will be open Sunday and Monday of the long weekend.

UTPB fall courses list

Registration for fall courses being offered by the University of Texas at the Permian Basin at Howard College will continue through Sept. 10.

There will be no classes on Labor Day, P.E.D. 671 which is the group techniques for counselors needs two more students to form a class as does P.E.D. 647 which is Human Growth and Development.

More students are needed for the undergraduate courses including P.E.D. 325, Teaching Reading in Elementary and Management 312 on Personnel functions.

County extension office empty

GARDEN CITY — The county extension office in Glasscock County is empty today for the first time in 25 years.

Oliver Werst, 55, who has served in that post the past 25 years, retired officially on Aug. 31 and a replacement has not yet been announced.

Glasscock County citizens gathered at St. Lawrence Hall Saturday to honor the agent. They "roasted" him and then presented him a suit from the St. Lawrence Cotton Growers Association, a plaque of appreciation from all citizens, a wishing well filled with cash, a bracelet for his wife and other gifts.

Werst has served at one time as state president of the County Agents of Texas, and was honored in 1975 with the superior service award. In 1969, he was presented the distinguished service award from the National County Agents Association.

Born in Temple, Werst completed high school in McCamey where his father was a printer. His brother, Mike, went on to become the publisher of the Big Lake Wildcat.

Oliver graduated from Texas A&M, went on to San Antonio where he served as an assistant two years and then went into the army in World War II, fighting in Italy. After the war, he served as agent three years in Callahan County at Baird.

Since he was a reserve officer, he was called back and fought another 1½ years in the Korean Conflict.

When he returned, Werst went to Glasscock County and has been there ever since. He plans to retire in Glasscock County and go into business for himself.

"I came here because I needed a job and I stayed because I like the people," Werst said here this week. He also said, "It was sure a good place to raise kids."

Werst met his wife, Jessie in the days when they rode the schoolbus from Girvin to McCamey. They have three children including Mrs. Billy Joe (Dana) Blair of Sterling City; Mrs. Kenneth (Jeanie) Blank, San Angelo; and Mark, who is a sophomore at Texas A&M.

One of the many 4-H students whom Werst had helped through the years, Nancy Balla, read his history at the event in his honor.

Governors ask roads, prison funds

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The 43rd Southern Governors Conference has ended, following the chief executives' approval of resolutions seeking more federal money for highways and prisons.

Nine governors were on hand for the close of the conference, which consisted of three days of hearing speeches, passing resolutions and partying — not counting weekend social events for early arrivals.

In the hope of influencing Washington, the governors adopted a resolution that "strongly urges" Congress to substantially increase funds for highways other than the interstate system.

They specifically asked that a fourth of any increase in the federal gasoline tax that might be imposed as part of a national energy program be "retained" by the states.

Also sought was federal money to pay for state and local prison and jail construction since "the states are limited in their capacity to provide for capital construction."

"It bothers me that we are speaking to a lot of things we want more federal money for," said Gov. James Hunt of North Carolina.

Hunt observed that the governors already had endorsed a balanced national budget. He won a unanimous vote to add the words "consistent with a balance federal budget by 1981" to the two resolutions.

Gov. Mills Godwin of Virginia grumbled in passing that if federal courts would stop trying to upgrade state prisons, "we wouldn't have to ask for more federal funds."

Gov. James Edwards of South Carolina was elected new chairman of the conference, succeeding Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe. Edwards will be the host of next year's conference, to be held Sept. 16-20, 1978, at Hilton Head Island, S.C.

The conference also elected Gov. David Boren of Oklahoma vice-chairman, putting him in line for the 1979 chairmanship.

In the final round of speeches Wednesday, the governors heard criticism of the Carter administration from Roger B. Smith, executive vice-president of General Motors, and a defense from Bert Lance, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Smith said Carter's various economic initiatives, still pending in Congress, have left business in a state of uncertainty and kept firms from investing in enlarged productive capacity.

"When business is uncertain and even apprehensive about the course of government policy, there is a strong tendency to delay long-term commitments," Smith said.

Lance said the new administration strongly desires "some predictability and a degree of sureness" in the economy but added that "it takes time" to reach that point.

He assured the governors that their views would be listened to in the administration.

Glickman appointed BSSH info officer

Jake Glickman, previously chief social worker at the Big Spring State Hospital, has been appointed to the position of Administration Officer and the Hospital's Public Information Officer.

Glickman, a native of Big Spring, attended Big Spring High School, and Howard County College. He received a BA degree in psychology from Texas Tech, and served as a staff member of the social service department of the State Hospital from 1965 to 1967.

In 1967 Glickman earned a Masters Degree in social work at Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio.

Subsequently, he joined the Family Service Travelers Aid Association of Tarrant County, working in Fort Worth, Arlington, and Denton. Glickman also served as liaison between that agency and the juvenile probation office and as a consultant to the Dallas State Mental Health Clinic the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children in Tarrant County and as a family counselor to the Jewish Social Service Agency in that Area.

He returned to Big Spring to head up the Social Service Department of the State Hospital in 1971.

Glickman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Glickman of Big Spring and he lives with his wife Mercy in the Silver Heels Addition.

PREPARING FOR REOPENING — Cuban workmen leave site of the former U.S. Embassy building in Havana Wednesday after preparing it for Thursday's ceremonies in which Swiss officials will turn the building over to the U.S. Diplomatic Mission, headed by Lyle Lane.

Korean businessman indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tongsun Park, the South Korean businessman who vows he will not return to the United States and face questions about alleged attempts at influence-buying in Congress, reportedly has been indicted by a federal grand jury.

A congressional source Wednesday quoted a Justice Department official as saying a sealed indictment was handed up last Friday against Park, who fled the country nearly a year ago and was last reported to be in South Korea.

The congressional source did not say what charge was specified in the indictment. A Justice Department spokesman refused to comment about the report.

But the Washington Post reported today that the sealed indictment against Park was filed before U.S. District Judge John Pratt here. It said the nature of the charge could not be learned.

The paper quoted a source familiar with the evidence as saying that the indictment might be used to pressure Park to return to the United States and testify with the understanding that the indictment then would be dropped. The United States has no extradition treaty with South Korea.

Pratt said Wednesday night that he recently had received sealed grand jury indictments but said he did not know what they contained. "I know nothing about it," he said when asked whether Park was named in any of the indictments.

Park, a 42-year-old millionaire rice dealer who first came to Washington in the 1950s as a student, has been accused of spreading hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in gifts and cash to numerous congressmen and other U.S. government officials in recent years.

Both Park and the congressmen who admit receiving his contributions and gifts deny any illegality.

The Justice Department,

according to the congressional source, had been trying to gather evidence against Park in connection with possible bribery charges, mail fraud, defrauding a federally chartered bank and income tax evasion.

The Internal Revenue Service last January filed liens against the South Korean businessman in three states and the District of Columbia, charging that he owed back taxes, interest and penalties of more than $4.5 million from the years 1972-75.

The White House and Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell have said they are using diplomatic channels to enlist the help of the South Korean government in questioning Park.

The Justice Department this summer turned over to House investigators a list of at least 20 congressmen and other officials who received cash or other gifts from Park.

Yarbrough files suit

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Texas Supreme Court Justice Donald B. Yarbrough has filed a $4 million damage suit against Greater Houston Bank in connection with Yarbrough's 1974 purchase of the Bank of Victoria.

The suit filed Wednesday claimed Yarbrough financed the purchase of control of the Bank of Victoria Sept. 16, 1974 with a loan from Greater Houston Bank.

The suit alleged he soon learned the bank's records were inaccurate and that he found numerous illegal or unwise loans.

Yarbrough claimed in the suit that his efforts to replace certain bank personnel were thwarted by Greater Houston Bank officials Vincent Kickerillo, Ken Henderson and Don R. Hoffman, all named in the suit.

Yarbrough said that on Sept. 27, 1975, Greater Houston Bank officials "illegally seized control" of his Victoria bank stock ownership.

Greater Houston Bank attorney T. D. Smith said the allegations were about the same ones made in a lawsuit tried in 1976. Smith said in that case a judge ruled Yarbrough "didn't have enough evidence and threw him out of court."

Yarbrough resigned from the Texas Supreme Court last June. He also has been indicted on charges of forgery and perjury in Travis County.

United States-Cuba getting bit chummy

HAVANA (AP) — The United States and Cuba, separated by only 90 miles of water but 16 years of official hostility, are moving a step closer with the opening of interest sections in each other's capital.

Official ceremonies are planned here and in Washington today to mark the first posting of diplomats since relations were severed Jan. 3, 1961.

In the Cuban capital, Lyle Lane, a 51-year-old career diplomat, is occupying the U.S. ambassador's office.

There were plans for a Swiss flag to be raised outside to signify that, at least officially, Switzerland still represents American interests in Fidel Castro's Cuba.

In Washington, the presence of Fernando Sanchez Parodi and other members of his mission was being marked with a diplomatic ceremony at the Czech ambassador's residence. Czechoslovakia officially represents Cuban interests in the United States.

Parodi and Philip C. Habib, U.S. undersecretary of state for political affairs, were scheduled to speak.

The Cubans will operate temporarily out of the Czech embassy, moving into their former embassy once repairs are completed.

Lane, formerly the No. 2 American diplomat in Peru, said Wednesday his middle-level rank as "counselor of mission" probably will not bring him into direct contact in the near future with Castro or other top Cubans. He is supervising a staff of 10 Americans.

The exchange of diplomats is the most recent in a series of steps that President Carter and Castro hope will result in the eventual restoration of full diplomatic ties.

It follows a series of limited but important moves — a partial easing of the U.S. trade embargo, suspension of U.S. spy overflights, a new influx of American tourists to Cuba, a fishing agreement between the two countries and Castro's decision to let about 80 Americans take their Cuban relatives with them to the United States.

Only hours earlier, Cuban workmen were completing a hasty facelift of the 24-year-old embassy.

Facing the sea, the boxlike seven-story building has suffered from salt corrosion and general neglect. More than 300 Americans once worked there, but its only occupants in recent years have been the handful of Swiss diplomats who ran the one-room U.S. affairs office.

Ridin' fence

Coming home

with Marj Carpenter

It was nearing the end of my vacation last week after I had been down to the Rio Grande Valley to visit my mother, and I was coming home.

My son said I picked a round about way to get here and I did. We started out of the Valley at 7 a.m. last Friday and started up the highway through Falfurrias, Alice and Pleasanton. This is neither the closest nor the most scenic route.

The most scenic is by way of Goliad and the closest is by Laredo. But it's the way I happened to want to come on that particular day.

Along about 11 a.m., we stopped at a cafe at Pleasanton to eat barbecue and sit smiling as cowboy after cowboy came in for coffee. "There's more cowboys than in a Roy Rogers movie," I quipped and we decided, after listening to the conversations, that if you weren't raising at least one cow, you ought not to be living in Pleasanton.

I bought a San Antonio Light off the newstand because I always enjoy seeing other papers. Imagine my surprise when a columnist called Keith Elliott came up with a column which he claimed to have written somewhere in West Texas.

I quote part of the column, "It's no dryer in West Texas than San Antonio although you'll notice the altitude and breeze as we enter Big Spring are pretty doggone bracing. Exhilarating even. No humidity, that's the difference. (I'm talking about the weather, old buddy, not the night life.)"

"At a 'private' club called the Wooden Nickel, see the Cowboys blow one in overtime — on a delayed broadcast — to lowly Seattle. Hear this real, working cowboy stomp his boot and bray: 'Dallas Cowboys? They played like COWCHIPS!'"

Now surely, Mr. Elliott nobody in our 'Wooden Nickel' would say such a thing about the Cowboys.

As for the night life, I thought it had picked up around here this summer with the Wooden Nickel and the Pump and the Brass Nail. I notice the Brass Nail has Johnny Harra coming on Sept. 5-17 and Vic Dana is returning in November. Harra is a look-alike, sound-alike Elvis which ought to be timely right now. And Ray Charles is coming next February. Come on, Mr. San Antonio, don't pick on us.

But we went on to Hondo to visit friends and then whipped back to Austin to visit one of my daughters and stopped to eat spaghetti and go to see "MacArthur" at the movies. I ran across Cactus Pryor, known by lots of Texans, at that show. He operated Lady Bird television stations for many years. I met his wife and we talked about Big Spring. He was pleased to hear that we are not only surviving but starting to thrive.

And then we left. And we made a big mistake. We decided that if we drove at night that there would not be much traffic. Well, I don't know where everybody was going Friday night but they were going, brother.

My son was going to drive and informed me that I could sleep. Ha! We got about 30 miles out of Austin when suddenly he had to slam on the brakes and I almost went sideways through the glass.

Some guy stopped in the middle of the highway, apparently to turn toward one of the lakes, with no signals at all. I stayed awake to Liano and the same thing happened two more times.

We were becoming very nervous and I was becoming more and more awake. This kind of thing went on. Outside Brady, we got behind a fellow that was swerving back and forth across the center stripe. By then it was past midnight and we discussed whether he was asleep or drunk.

We thought he might be asleep and that if we shined the bright lights, he would wake up. Well, he wasn't asleep. He was drunk and shining the bright lights infuriated him.

He began to race past us and slow down and we played this game for ten miles. Finally, he raced past and weaved over to the side and came to a stop right across the center of a rural road. We played like we were stopping and then took off and left him there. We went ten miles farther and got behind another swerver. We did not shine the lights. We just simply got by him and hoped for the best.

We stopped at an overnight cafe in San Angelo and while there we saw ambulances and police headed back in the direction from which we had come. We could think of at least two that might be in a wreck out there.

We saw some Big Spring friends who wondered if "you're ridin' fence?" I started to tell them I was about to crawl under it. But we had some coffee and breakfast and started off again.

Between San Angelo and Sterling City, a camper bus in front of us suddenly burst into flames under the bus. "I don't believe it," I said. People poured out of the back of the bus in their nightclothes. The first child out literally fell out on the ground. We were pulling over to stop when we saw a CB laden car apparently riding with them stop, so we went on.

"Just don't tell me to go to sleep. It's wild out here," I intoned. There's more traffic than I've ever seen on this road and the excitement is about to get the best of me.

So we just idled on home, meeting bright headlights all the way and wondering when in the world we were going to get — back to our home fence. We got here — at 4:10 a.m. We'd been up since 6 a.m. I'd had enough.

HILLCREST BAPTIST CHURCH

You can't change the past, but you can ruin a perfectly good present by worrying over the future. Worry, fear, and anxieties travel up and down the avenues of our minds so constantly that happiness has little chance of survival with most of us. The preoccupied, test-walking, nervous-glancing, eager beaver doesn't leave the impression with anyone that happiness is his or her daily fare. The French have a word called "sabot" meaning wooden shoe. In their efforts to compensate for poor wages some years ago in industrial plants, the French workers threw wooden shoes in the factory wheels. The result was wreckage of the machinery. From that word we get our English word "sabotage."

Human nature knows something of that same process. It throws little wooden shoes into the delicate mechanism of the human mind. The shoes of worry which clog the delicate wheels of balance and health.

There's cherry ice cream. And then there's Cherry ice cream. The unstinting kind. Filled with luscious chunks of delicious dark cherries. A bountiful harvest for any picky cherry picker. And a choice opportunity for you to be bountiful.

BEFORE AND AFTER — King, the pony imprisoned in a Plaistow garage several years, at left shows mistreatment in shaggy mane, grotesque hooves and distended belly. At right, the Shetland pony after his rescue and treatment by University of New Hampshire veterinarians.

Pony will recover completely

DURHAM, N.H. (AP) — King, a 10-year-old Shetland pony confined for four years in a nailed-shut stall piled high with manure, will recover completely now that almost a foot-and-a-half-deformed hoof has been removed, veterinarians said today.

Dr. Walter Hilton, who is directing King's treatment, said after evaluating laboratory tests and X rays that "the film showed no growth abnormalities in King's legs, nor any signs of underlying disease."

"King's about the most tenacious pony I've ever seen," Hilton said of the pony that has gained national attention. "He's got an unbelievable will to live and that's probably why he is still around."

Earlier this week, Hilton, and blacksmith Bill McPhee, undertook a three-hour intricate procedure in which they sliced, chipped, and filed away pounds of deformed bone and hoof which had accumulated during the pony's imprisonment.

About three weeks ago, officers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals discovered King trapped in the fly-and-maggot-infested stall, standing atop a four-foot-high pile of manure in a garage in Plaistow.

The Palomino-colored pony was suffering from the most severe case of the deformity called laminitis the veterinarians said they had ever seen. Its hooves had grown about 18 inches beyond their normal length and they curved toward his knees like the runners on a rocking horse.

In Tuesday's operation, at the University of New Hampshire, the grotesquely curved hooves were carefully whittled back to almost their normal size.

But even as King stepped gingerly on normal hooves for the first time in years, doctors were saying that only X rays would give a clear picture of whether the pony was walking to a new life, or to eventual destruction because of possible hidden bone damage.

Today's optimistic prognosis ruled out the somber alternative.

"One of our biggest problems now," said Hilton, "is making sure they don't kill him with love."

A hand-printed sign in King's stall says "Please leave all apples, carrots and sugar cubes outside."

Food manufacturers challenged

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government, concerned over the possibility that sodium nitrite may combine with other substances in processed meats to cause cancer, is challenging food manufacturers to prove their products are safe.

For five years the government has questioned the longstanding use of sodium nitrite in meat products such as bacon, hot dogs and bologna. Nitrites and their chemical parents, nitrates, are added to processed meats to prevent the growth of deadly botulism spores and to color the products.

On Wednesday, the Food and Drug Administration and the Agriculture Department announced that the government is considering banning the chemical additives.

Officials said the two agencies are giving food manufacturers 60 days to prove that the additives don't pose any health hazard to humans.

The FDA regulates the use of nitrites in poultry and other foods, while the Agriculture Department has jurisdiction over the use of the additives in red meat — beef, veal and pork.

Officials said they are concerned over evidence showing that these nitrites and nitrates combine with certain amino acid compounds when bacon is fried to form nitrosamines, substances shown to cause cancerous tumors in laboratory animals. Officials said they are equally alarmed over the possibility that the potential cancer-causing substances may form in the stomach after processed foods are eaten.

The FDA said it will seek a ban on using the additives in poultry products if scientific studies it is compiling show that potentially cancer-causing substances are formed in the food before it is eaten.

The agency also said it would move to ban the use of nitrites in any poultry product if the processor refused to commit itself to conducting any tests the agency deems necessary to resolve safety questions.

At the same time, the Agriculture Department said the red-meat industry will be expected to produce similar scientific studies justifying the continued use of nitrites.

Assistant Agriculture Secretary Carol Tucker Foreman said the government's immediate objective "is to identify and propose to eliminate all uses of nitrites and nitrates in products in which cancer-causing nitrosamines are formed."

Richard Lyng, president of the American Meat Institute, responded to the government's announcement by declaring that virtually all cured red meats are free of nitrosamines. He said the government's announcement "should pose no serious problems."

Lyng said the red meat industry has been conducting extensive research on the use of nitrites and nitrates for years.

"Only in bacon cooked at very high temperatures have we continued to discover miniscule amounts of nitrosamines and recent research indicates that we are right on the edge of technology needed to totally eliminate even these amounts," he said.

Six Flags Over Texas schedules Elvin Bishop

ARLINGTON — Elvin Bishop's good-time, fun-loving music will be brought to Six Flags Over Texas Saturday.

Bishop made his mark on the music world with the gold record hit, "Fooled Around and Fell In Love." This hit is on his new album, "Rasin Hell."

Bishop's fifth album features many of his hits from his other recordings plus some new blues songs and what he calls "Southern boogie" music.

The album was recorded live to capture some of the exuberance from Bishop's concerts. He and his 10-piece band are as much fun to watch as they are to hear.

His trademarks are his casual clothes and loose style that prompts joking with the audience. Before long, he has the listeners laughing and clapping their hands to the music. Bishop plays lead guitar and lead singer is Mickey Thomas, a handsome young man with the group since 1975.

Thomas sang the group's number one hit and also "Sure Feels Good," "Travelin' Shoes," "Juke Joint Jump" and "Struttin' My Stuff."

The group will perform two concerts at Six Flags Music Mill Theater scheduled at 8 to 10 p.m.

The theme park will feature a special $5 discount ticket sold at the front gate after 6 p.m. on Saturday, September 3. On that day, Six Flags will be open from 10 a.m. to midnight.

Carlsbad Caverns data

A new schedule of hours for the Fall and Winter season will go into effect at Carlsbad Caverns National Park Tuesday, according to Park Superintendent Don Dayton.

Under the new schedule, the park visitor center will be open from 7:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. daily, and walk-in tours through the entire developed portion of the Cavern will be offered continuously from 8:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. daily. Big Room trips, which enter and exit the Cavern by elevator and cover a mile and a quarter of the most scenic areas, will be offered from 8:00 a.m. to 3:15 p.m.

Concession facilities, including the restaurant, gift shop, nursery, and kennel, will open at 8:00 a.m. and close at 4:30 p.m.

Bat Flight programs will continue to be presented at the Cavern entrance each evening through September 24, and during the period, the visitor center will remain open until after the evening programs are over.

Primitive lantern tours at New Cave, which is located in Slaughter Canyon, 23 miles from the main Cavern, will also be offered during the Fall and Winter season, but will be available on weekends only rather than daily as during the summer. Reservations are necessary for the lantern tours and may be made by calling (505) 785-2233. Four times for the New Cave lantern trips are 10:00 a.m. and 1:00 p.m., and approximately one hour and 45 minutes should be allowed to reach New Cave before the scheduled tour times. The lantern trips are limited to twenty-five persons each.

All scheduled activities and programs are covered by the park's daily entrance fee permit of $3 per carload or an annual Golden Eagle or Golden Age Passport.

The Big Spring Steers couldn't have asked for a tougher opponent with which to open their 1977 football campaign, except maybe the Oakland Raiders.

The Andrews Mustangs, powerful state contenders out of district 2-AAA, will be stampeding into Big Spring's Memorial Stadium Friday for an 8 p.m. meeting with the newly inspired Bovines, likely to be running amuck themselves.

Booger Brooks, the 180-pound senior quarterback and part-time rodeo participant, will lead the loyal opposition in its quest to do what they didn't do last season: Andrews was nudged out of the 2-AAA district crown last year on "White Friday" when Monahan slipped by on the ice and snow 3-0. Most people believed Andrews was headed for the state title last year.

Lopez (173-lb.), fullback Joe Don Barnes (190-lb.) and offensive tackle all-state candidate Don Fulton (216-lb.), are odds-on favorites to take the winning numbers in the battle, but Steer Head Coach Don Robbins feels the locals have a good chance of turning the tables if they can accomplish three feats:

1) Stop the Brook's-led Veer (triple option) offense by plugging up the middle to combat the fullback dive-play, and by keeping Booger from making the corner on the sweep.

2) Brickwall the counter (or double dive) play where both backs are diving into the line.

3) Stop Brooks from sprinting out on the run-pass option. "That guy can throw the ball 50 yards in the air," said Robbins.

Robbins feels that the Steers have made progress in preparing their defensive game plan for an offense as potent as the one Andrews will field. "I think we might have some defensive maneuvers to stop their bread and butter," Robbins commented, "but we have to do better at keying on pass defense and hope for heads-up play at the defensive ends."

The Mustangs finished 9-1 last season, and with the bareback rider Brooks at the helm again this year, that record is destined to be even better, so say most of the early prognosticators.

The Steers may not field an offensive unit nearly as experienced or beefy as the Mustangs, but what they lack in years and weight, they hope to make up with a new sense of pride and a propensity to hit 'n stick.

Mike Abreo (QB), Kent Rice (HB) and Robbie Wegner (FB) will start in the Steer backfield. Wegner, built much like Dallas' Robert Newhouse (compact and hard to knock over), rushed for over 30 yards on seven carries during the Sweetwater scrimmage, and will be backed up by Brent Overman (145-lb.) and Mike Blalack (176-lb.) at fullback.

Abreo, who has shown some nifty rushing moves himself so far in practice and in the scrimmage, has still to make a name for himself through the airways, although he did prove he had a more than adequate passing arm on the halfback option last season, hitting four of five for 225 yards and two touchdowns — that's over 50 yards a toss.

Three returning seniors from last season will add to the chances of more completions in 1977 for the Longhorns. All-district hopeful Kenneth Coffey (strong end "Waco"), Del Poss (flanker) and Greg Moore (tight end) have shown capable hands so far in pre-season.

Lance Perry (G), Dee Nanny (G), Matt Harris (T), Robert Wrinkle (T) and Steve Tipton (C) will be the starters on the offensive line.

Starters on defense include Ernie Nichols and Bryon Harris at defensive ends; Sam Ortega and Matt Harris at tackles; Tony Mann at noseguard; Robbie Wegner and Lance Perry at linebackers; Kenneth Coffey and Del Poss at corner back; Kent Rice at free safety and Bobby Huff as monster man.

Nicklaus, Watson to knock heads

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Tom Watson, the current ruler of world golf and the man who would replace him, head an international field of 20 players for Friday's start of the $300,000 World Series of Golf.

It is the last time Nicklaus and Watson are expected to face each other this year, and there is the distinct possibility they could hook up in another dramatic duel, such as the ones that saw Watson win the Masters and British Open.

And it is almost certain that, between them, they will decide Player of the Year honors and the money winning champion in the exclusive event that is designed as a climax to the golf season.

Presently, Watson has the inside track on both. A Nicklaus victory — and he has to be considered the favorite — could change things dramatically.

In addition to the two major titles that stamped him as the most likely successor to Nicklaus' long-time position as the game's top performer, Watson has won three American events this year and collected a leading $298,428. Nicklaus is a three-time winner on the U.S. tour and trails Watson on the money winning list with $273,343.

Should Watson win, he would have both titles clinched. A Nicklaus victory, however, almost certainly would make him the leading money winner (for the ninth time), would give him a record single-season accumulation and would put him in position to challenge Watson for Player of the Year honors. The biggest prize in golf, $100,000, awaits the winner.

Watson, among others, objects. "The money should be unofficial," Watson said before a practice round over the 7,130-yard, par 70 South course at the Firestone Country Club.

Stanton faces tough test at Tahoka

By DANNY REAGAN

STANTON — Tahoka and Stanton are expected to fight it out tooth and nail for the

MARVIN JONES

District 5-AA crown this year, but that is in the near future. In the immediate future, the Stanton Buffaloes, very impressive in two scrimmages thus far, open their 1977 football schedule in Tahoka against the Bulldogs Friday night.

Tahoka returns 10 offensive and 14 defensive players, including two hosses who will make a number of elite lists this year, provided they live up to last year's performances.

Stanton Head Coach David Thompson knows about that duo: "First of all, there's Randy Meeks, their senior middle linebacker. He's 6-0, 180-pounds and a real fine football player. Then, there's Clifford Bailey, 6-3, 195-pounds fullback. He's just a super running back and only a junior," Thompson explained. Tahoka will run a Wing T offense against the Buffs and a 2-7 defense. Thompson compared Tahoka to another squad of Bulldogs he faced last week.

"Tahoka is a real physical-type ballclub," Thompson said. "I would compare them with Coahoma. They line up nose to nose and just knock you as hard as they can."

Potential starters for Stanton defensively will be Larry Carroll (T), Craig

Graves (E), Collerson Huffman (S), Bob Jones (LB), Russel Mims (S), Mike Swinson (LB), Kendel Blocker (LB), Mitch Elmore (E), Ralph Tarango (LB), Jimmy Villa (T), and Oscar Perez (S).

Five Buffs will be going both ways during the game. What should be a highly physical contest begins Friday night at 8 o'clock in Tahoka. Buff fans can make the 60-mile trip easily by taking Highway 137 out of Stanton to Lamesa and then following Highway 87 straight into Tahoka.

Planned. The Buffalo coach has been more than pleased with the three weeks of work his team has put in. "We've worked on getting a balanced offensive effort. Marvin Jones is good both through the center of the line and on the outside. I feel like we might have to throw the ball a little more, but overall, we're ready," Thompson said.

Probable starters for the Buffs on offense will be Rocky Bludworth (T), Ralph Gonzales (G), Collerson Huffman (TE), Danny Iretton (SE), Bob Jones (FB), Marvin Jones (WB), Oscar Perez (WB), Mike Swinson (G), Kendel Blocker (WB), Tommy Morrow or Todd Smith (QB), Miles Tollison (C) and John Parker (T).

Potential starters for Stanton defensively will be Larry Carroll (T), Craig

Hunter says 'no more ad libs!'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Texas manager Billy Hunter says Juan Beniquez's ad lib base stealing days are over — if the Rangers' centerfielder wants to remain a Rangers' centerfielder.

Hunter was steaming following Wednesday night's 5-4 loss to the Kansas City Royals — a loss that dropped them 3½ games back in the American League Western Division.

Beniquez was issued a free pass to first to open the ninth (if you want to call getting hit on the arm by a Doug Bird pitch "free") and attempted to steal second without getting any sign from the coaches. He was thrown out by Royals catcher Darrell Porter, leaving the Rangers with two out instead of the winning run at the plate.

Hunter called that a no-no — among other things — as he promised "he won't run on us any more." The Texas coach was livid about the abortive steal attempt, with hot hitting Bert Campaneris at the plate and Mike Hargrove waiting his turn. With heavy winds from an approaching storm buffeting the stadium, any hit could have been over the fence. But Campaneris fanned and the Royals tucked in their 76th win against 54 losses, going 2½ ahead of Chicago and three in front of Minnesota in the tight Western Division.

It wasn't just Beniquez. Hunter pointed to a second-inning pickoff of Campaneris at first, a fourth-inning unassisted double play by Royals first baseman Pete LaCock who stabbed a Toby Harrah liner, then tagged first to get Jim Sunberg, and the sixth-inning when Claudell Washington was nabbed for trying to stretch a single into a double.

Royals manager Whitey Herzog was hardly thrilled with his club's play.

"We just played terrible," he growled, adding facetiously — "Just another laughor 130 games and we've had 120 laughers, just like tonight."

Herzog was unhappy about a Joe Lahoud miscue when he failed to tag third and run home after Dave May snared a long Fred Patek shot deep in right field.

The Rangers grabbed a 1-0 lead in the second, but the Royals came back to tie it in the same inning. The visitors went ahead 2-1 in the third, the Royals made it 2-2 in the fifth. Then Kansas City exploded in the sixth. Lahoud and Darrell reached base on the final hits Ranger pitcher Doyle Alexander, 13-9, surrendered for the night before being banished.

Rookie Len Barker came on to strike out Amos Otis, then serve up doubles in near-identical right field spots to Patek and Frank White. Lahoud, Porter and Patek scored. It was 5-2 and the damage was done.

Harrah's solo homer in the seventh off winner Jim Colborn, 15-13, prompted Herzog to go to the bullpen for Bird, who allowed one last run — May on a single to right by Bump Willis.

The Royals take their first day off in 22 days today before opening a four-game series with Milwaukee in Kansas City Friday. The Rangers take the day off before hosting Boston for a three-game series Friday. The Beniquez bean came the inning after Barker hit Patek on the wrist.

Vilas given free ride in Open?

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Two days ago Guillermo Vilas was stalking the big game at the U.S. Open tennis championships. The faithful, including some of the men he stalks, noticed, but maintained their homage to the obvious contenders — Bjorn Borg of Sweden and Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill.

But today, with the two top seeds suffering aches and pains that kept them out of first-day matches, other players were more apprehensive about the prospect of Vilas, who is seeded fourth.

"The way he's playing now, I don't see anyone beating him on clay," said Manuel Santana, the 39-year-old former claycourt giant who was Vilas' victim in the first round at the West Side Tennis Club Wednesday. The triumph was the 40th consecutive on clay for the 25-year-old Argentine.

Vilas disposed of Santana, the 1965 Open champion from Spain, 6-1, 6-0. It looked effortless. "There is no way you can win a point from him," said Santana. "It seems he has no weaknesses at all."

"I think I played very well," he said, noting Vilas had beaten Ilie Nastase 6-0, 6-2 over the weekend in a round-robin tournament in New York.

The top seeds in the men's and women's divisions were to make their first appearances here today. Connors aggravated a chronic back ailment over the weekend and had to

Harris to 'I-told-you-so' Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — James Harris firmly believes he was treated unfairly by the Los Angeles Rams and should have continued as their No. 1 quarterback. Tonight he'll try to prove his point as he runs the offense for the San Diego

Chargers in the Los Angeles Coliseum, opposing the Rams who employed him for three seasons.

This preseason, Harris has completed 27 of his 48 pass attempts for 331 yards and three touchdowns. He's been intercepted three times as the Chargers split four decisions.

Pat Haden, the former Rose Bowl star from Southern California, took over late last season as the starting Los Angeles quarterback and this preseason has hit 22 of 42 passes for 334 yards and three touchdowns, also with three interceptions.

Veteran Joe Namath will play the second half against the Chargers in his bid to dislodge Haden from the No. 1 position. Namath is 12 for 27 with the Rams with one touchdown pass and two interceptions.

Another Rams starter of 1976, tight end Bob Klein, will be in a San Diego uniform. The club promises that he'll see service against his former teammates.

Klein announced he was retiring after failing to reach contract negotiations with the Rams. Los Angeles then traded negotiating rights to the Chargers, who signed him for a reported $125,000.

Although Harris is slated to start at quarterback for San Diego, Coach Tommy Prothro, formerly of UCLA and the Rams, is expected to use rookie Cliff Olander from New Mexico State in the second half. Olander stands 6-5 and weighs 196.

Oilers waived

HOUSTON (AP) — Five Houston Oilers players apparently have been waived although club officials have not officially announced the cuts.

Among those missing at Wednesday's practice and presumed waived were linebacker Al Romano, an 11th round draft choice from Pittsburgh.

Others missing were free agent kickers Danny Lee from Northeast Louisiana and Mike Green from Ohio University; linebacker Mark Johnson, picked up from Buffalo on waivers; and quarterback Karl Douglas from Texas A&M.

Rookie cornerback Gary Woolford from Florida State was placed on injured reserve because of tendinitis in his knee. He joins rookie running back John Housman of Houston who is recovering from a dislocated shoulder.

The cuts bring the Oilers' roster to the required 52 players in preparation for Saturday night's preseason game with the Dallas Cowboys in the Astrodome.

The Oilers must cut to 48 next Tuesday.

Musical quarterbacks

By the Associated Press

One quarterback's gain turned out to be another quarterback's loss as more National Football League teams announced roster reductions to reach the limit of 52 players.

Gary Marangi, the 25-year-old backup quarterback at Buffalo, was traded to Green Bay for an undisclosed draft choice, giving the Packers a surplus of passing arms.

Exit Randy Johnson, 33, the journeyman quarterback who had completed 74 per cent of his passes in the preseason.

Marangi's gain is that he gets to play for Bart Starr, the former quarterbacking great of the Packers.

"We just felt that, looking at our ball club analytically, this was a better arrangement for us," said Starr, now Green Bay's head coach.

The Packers signed Johnson as a free agent last Nov. 16 after regular quarterback Lynn Dickey suffered a separated shoulder. Johnson started Green Bay's final game, a 24-20 victory over Atlanta, and was impressive in this year's training camp.

"We were pleased to have Randy late last season, and he contributed a great deal to our final victory," Starr said. "However, we also have to think about our future."

Joe Gilliam is also thinking about the future today. He's out of a job, ending, for the moment, his comeback from drug addiction.

Gilliam, a promising quarterback with Pittsburgh before drugs ambushed his career, had cleansed his system and was given a chance with Kansas City. But, after a strong start in training camp, the man they called "Jefferson Street Joe" began missing practices and team meetings.

"I fulfilled the promise and responsibility I made to him a year ago," Kansas City Coach Hank Stram said following the announcement.

"I have no regrets whatsoever. I'm just very sorry it didn't work out."

Another quarterback without a team is Steve Spurrier, who was waived by the Denver Broncos after a tryout. Spurrier played last year for Tampa Bay Buccaneers, who finished 0-14 in their first NFL season.

Winston Hill, Joe Namath's body guard for so many years with the New York Jets, was waived by Miami. Hill, an offensive tackle, had been traded by the Jets after 14 seasons.

The Jets traded kick return specialist Lou Piccone to Buffalo for a draft choice. Buffalo also cut defensive end Billy Newsome, a former Jet.

Super Bowl champion Oakland traded defensive lineman Art Thoms to Philadelphia for a future draft pick.

Club tourney set at BSOC

The Big Spring Country Club will hold its Club Championship Golf Tournament this Labor Day Weekend, open to all members.

The three-day tourney (Sat.-Mon.) will be highlighted by a barbecue and other refreshments get-together Saturday night. Entry fee is $15 per entrant and must be paid by Friday.

All flights but the Championship Flight will be match play the first two days and medal play the last. The Championship Flight will consist of three days of medal play.

Astros still streaking

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Manager Bill Virdon believes that three things lead to success in baseball.

"It takes hitting, pitching and defense to win ball games," Virdon said after his Astros extended their winning streak to seven games with a 5-2 triumph over the New York Mets Wednesday night.

"After losing six in a row it's nice to get back on the right track."

Enos Cabell drove in three runs and Mark Lemongello scattered eight hits as the Astros sent New York down to its seventh straight defeat.

Lemongello, 6-14, walked only one and struck out five while picking up only his third complete game of the season. Mets starter Jerry Koosman, 8-17, allowed the first four Houston runs and was tagged with the loss.

"I pitched with a bit of a virus," Lemongello said. "But I think that helped me conserve my energy because I didn't start going to my fast ball until the late innings."

Cabell's third inning single followed Terry Puhl's triple to give Houston a 1-0 lead. The triple by Puhl extended his hitting streak to 16 games.

The Mets forged ahead with a pair of fourth inning runs on RBI singles by Lee Mazzilli and John Stearns, but the Astros recaptured the lead with a two run fifth.

With one out Lemongello singled and scored on Cabell's two-out double to left. Cabell took third on the throw to the plate and scored on the same play when shortstop Doug Flynn's relay throw sailed past catcher Stearns for an error.

Bob Watson's sixth inning pinch-hit single tallied Houston's fourth run of the contest. Cabell's seventh-inning sacrifice fly off Met reliever Skip Lockwood accounted for Houston's final run.

The victory ended Houston's longest undefeated home stand in its 16-year major league history at seven games.

DALLAS COWBOYS

Houston fact sheet

THIS WEEK — The Dallas Cowboys (2-2 in pre-season play) visit the Houston Oilers (0-3 heading into Monday night's game with the San Francisco 49ers) on Saturday night in the Astrodome. Efrén Herrera's 33-yard field goal with no time showing on the clock gave Dallas a 23-21 victory over the Baltimore Colts last Saturday night in the Astrodome. It was a nationally televised game that featured prize rookie Tony Dorsett's 99 yards rushing (on 18 carries in a little less than three quarters of action). Dorsett's busiest night of the pre-season gave him the team rushing lead with 144 yards on 28 carries, a 5.1 average per carry. His total playing time adds up to less than five quarters, as a minor knee injury slowed him in the early going.

KICKOFF — 8 p.m. (CDT) Saturday in the Astrodome. Crowd: A standing room-only sellout in the mid-40,000 range.

TELECAST — Telecast live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area only on KXAS-TV, Channel 5.

RADIO — KRLL (1080 in Dallas), KFJZ (1270 in Fort Worth) and the nine-state Cowboys Radio Network with Verne Lundquist and Brad Sham.

SERIES STANDING — This is the 11th straight year the Cowboys and Oilers will have met in the pre-season for the "Governor's Cup." Dallas owns an 8-2 edge in the summer series, but most of the games have been close, hard-fought battles. Last year, the Cowboys won in overtime in Dallas, 26-20, the second overtime game in the series' past three years. Houston's last victory over the Cowboys came in 1973 in the Astrodome, 27-24. Dallas has won the only two regular season meetings between the clubs.

LOOKING OUT FOR THE YUKON INDIAN—Eleanor Millard looks at her adopted Yukon Indian daughter, Annie, 10, in their home in Dawson, in the Yukon Territory of Canada recently. A member of the Yukon legislative assembly, Mrs. Millard is looking out for the interests of Yukon Indians, who feel Canada has "sold them out." The Yukon Indians are currently appealing to authorities to reject construction of a natural gas pipeline across the Yukon which they feel would result in "cultural genocide."

Says study on adopted children

Inherent ability stays the same

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The earnest efforts of modern parents to enrich their children's lives with educational toys and trips to the museum may not really make them any smarter in the long run, says a Yale child development expert who made a study of adopted children.

Dr. Sandra Scarr, somewhat ruefully reported

Friday that a study of adopted children raised by parents ranging from bus drivers to professors showed that varying child-rearing styles had almost no effect on future intelligence.

"It may not make any difference whether you take the kid to the theater or the ball game," she told the American Psychological Association.

"By naively assuming that all of the variation in behavior was environmentally determined, we blithely promised a world of change that we have not delivered," she added. Yet in a companion study, Dr. Scarr showed that when black children were raised in comfortable white, middle-class homes, their IQ scores rose significantly.

This is not really a contradiction, she explained. The improvement in the black children's scores showed simply that they became accustomed to the way white people think and how they measure intelligence.

"It is very unlikely that genetic racial differences account for differences in IQ," she said, setting herself against scientists such as Arthur Jensen who hold that blacks have a genetic intellectual inferiority.

Dr. Scarr and her colleagues studied 130 black children who were adopted by white families in Minnesota. Many of the families had natural children of their own. She estimated that the natural parents of the black children had IQs averaging in the 90s—and that if their children had been raised at home their IQs would have been roughly comparable.

But when the black children in their adoptive homes took intelligence tests at about age 4, they were found to average about 110.

"This has to represent at least a 15-point increase over what they would have scored if they had been raised by their natural parents," she said. As the children got older, their school performance was also at a higher-than-expected level, she said.

The related study involved 104 white families who adopted a total of 194 white children and another group of 120 families who had children that were their own. Both groups of families included some parents of relatively low educational background, income and social status and other that were wealthy and well educated.

As a whole, the adopted children scored about six points lower on IQ tests than the natural children of the families, and their intellectual skills did not match those of the parents or the parents' own natural children.

Nothing in the adoptive environments seemed to change the adopted children's inherent ability. "It has not been demonstrated that working class styles of child rearing have worse outcomes for intelligence than those of professionals," she said.

Dr. Scarr said her study leads to the suggestion that "we may be trying to create unnecessary homogeneity" in children.

Clipper ship promotes city

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore has launched a 90-foot, authentic recreation of an 1800-era Baltimore Clipper Ship, to act as goodwill ambassador to other cities and regions.

Called the Pride of Baltimore, the ship is the first Baltimore Clipper to sail in 100 years, according to Gail R. Shawe, director of the Pride of Baltimore Project.

"The hand-built topsail schooner is visiting cities along the East Coast and even Bermuda, promoting trade, urban pride and, of course, Baltimore's proud maritime heritage," she says. "It carries the Baltimore city flag."

Captain of the crew of eight is Melbourne Smith, the ship's builder and designer, who used ship-building techniques identical to those used in building the region's original clipper ships almost 200 years ago.

Baltimore Clippers made Baltimore and the Chesapeake Bay region world famous for the design of beautiful, fast sailing ships, notes Christopher Hartman, executive vice president of Metropolitan Baltimore's Chamber of Commerce.

From the Revolutionary War until about 1850, these vessels played an important role as privateers, merchant ships and revenue cutters.

During the War of 1812, Baltimore Clippers ran British blockades, easily outmaneuvering the heavily armed enemy cruisers. By the 1850s, these ships had given way to the larger three-masted Yankee Clippers.

The Pride of Baltimore is not merely a replica, but rather is a composite of the best aspects of her predecessors, Smith said. Like the originals, the Pride is a hand-built, all-wood ship, with towering masts rising 89 feet above the water line which enable her to carry some 9,500 square feet of sail. The top speed of the ship is 12 knots, considered fast for a clipper ship, according to Smith.

Construction of the ship—which cost $350,000—was a spectacle in itself, drawing thousands of area residents to a new shipyard in Inner Harbor. At the site, a blacksmith forged all the iron fittings, drifts and bolts. And the sails are canvas and flax instead of the dacron or nylon of today.

"The Pride of Baltimore is something to take pride in, and our city does," said Hartman.

ALBERTO RODRIGUEZ and his wife, Sally, work daily in their local restaurant, Alberto's. Rodriguez said Mexican food, his specialty, has become the number one choice for many people recently.

Local family long-time restaurant operators

By DUSTY RICHARD

Hungry for a piping hot plate of spicy Mexican food? If so, Alberto Rodriguez is just the man to see. Owner of Alberto's Crystal Cafe, a Mexican food restaurant located at the corner of 2nd St. and Runnels, he estimates that he has been cooking for 22 or 23 years.

Living all of his life in Big Spring, except for four years in communication work in the Air Force elsewhere, from which he was discharged as a Staff Sergeant, Rodriguez states he has been brought up in the food service business. His father, John Rodriguez, has owned the Spanish Inn restaurant for 37 years, and has three restaurants in other towns which are run by his children and grandchildren.

The Spanish Inn in Snyder, which opened last year, is run by his son and daughter-in-law, Ralph and Dorothy Rodriguez. His daughter and her husband, Annabelle and Bernardo Huante, manage the restaurant in Sweetwater, which started business last year, and his grandson, Benny Rodriguez, and his wife, Belinda, run the Spanish Inn in Lamesa, which opened this year.

Rodriguez has been married 17 years to his wife, Sally, who helps with the cooking at their restaurant. They have two daughters, Jackie, 15 and Debbie, 14. Both girls attend school in Big Spring. The Rodriguez family reside on E. 2nd.

When asked if he had noticed any changes in people's tastes in the years he has spent in the food business, Rodriguez said no. "I have seen Mexican food become the number one choice for many people, though," Mrs. Rodriguez added. "We are getting more customers all the time because people don't cook at home as much as they used to."

Although the Rodriguezes haven't been to Mexico, they said they know the food there is very different from Mexican food served in the United States. Mrs. Rodriguez said this is because they use altogether different ingredients, like different cheeses and spices.

The Rodriguezes said it usually takes them at least four to five hours to prepare most dishes served in their restaurant, and they cook for 250 or more people a day.

Specialties at Alberto's, which the Rodriguezes have owned for about three years, include the House Special, which consists of a green beef enchilada, a relleno, a guacamole chalupe and a taco. Another delicious dish served is Alberto's Special. This is a plate of chopped beef, with rice, beans and a flour tortilla.

Alberto's Restaurant is a real family affair. In addition to his wife, Sally, he is helped by his nephew, Jody Flores, who is a frycook, and another relative, Betty Rodriguez, who is a "cook's helper."

Store cherries now, serve later

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Fresh sweet cherries make market stalls colorful right now, but hurry, hurry. Gather the tempting fruit while you may. The fresh sweet cherry season is short — from mid-June to August.

For a luscious company desert you might like to use some of the cherries to fill meringues. The meringues are inexpensive; they use leftover egg whites that may be stored in the freezer until you are ready to thaw them and put them to work in this sweet.

CHERRY MERINGUES
3 cups fresh sweet cherries
3 large egg whites, at room temperature
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
Dash of salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sugar
Coconut topping, see below
Halve and pit cherries reserving 8 whole ones for a garnish; chill. Beat together until frothy the egg whites, cream of tartar, salt and vanilla; gradually beat in the sugar, a tablespoon at a time, until very stiff peaks form the sugar is dissolved. Cover a cookie sheet with plain ungreased paper; mark off eight 3 1/2-inch circles; spread each circle with 1-3rd cup of meringue; with the back of a tablespoon shape each portion of meringue to make a shell. Bake in preheated 275-degree oven for 1 hour; turn off oven with door closed for 1 1/2 hours. Run a spatula under each meringue to loosen from paper. Store in an airtight container in a cool dry place. At serving time, fill the meringue shells with the halved cherries; add the coconut topping; garnish with the whole cherries. Makes 8 servings.

Coconut Topping: Beat together until thick 1 cup heavy cream, 1 cup sugar and 1/4 teaspoon vanilla. Fold in 1/2 cup flaked coconut.

Sweet chocolate brownies

HONEY BROWNIES

The following recipe for delicious sweet cookie bars with lots of chocolate flavor would make a great dessert for school lunches or picnic fun.

1/2 c. flour
1/4 tsp. baking soda
1/4 tsp. salt
2 1/2 squares (2 1/2 oz.) unsweetened chocolate
1-3rd c. butter
2 eggs
1 c. sugar
1-3rd c. honey
1/2 tsp. vanilla
1 c. coarsely chopped walnuts

Stir together the flour, soda and salt. Melt the chocolate with the butter. Beat eggs until thickened and lemon color; beat in the sugar, honey and vanilla to blend; add flour mixture and beat to blend. Stir in nuts. Turn into an 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pan whose bottom has been lined with wax paper and the paper greased. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until edges come away slightly from pan — 40 minutes; a cake tester inserted in center will not come out clean. Cool on wire rack for 15 minutes; turn out on rack; remove paper; with another rack turn right side up; cool completely. Cut into squares. Makes 16.

TWEEN 12 AND 20 What age should baby sitter be?

By ROBERT WALLACE, Ed.D.
Copley News Service

Dear Doctor:
How old should a person be to baby-sit? I will be 12 in September.

My girl friend is 12 already and she baby-sits. We are both going into the seventh grade but she told me that the people she baby-sits for think that a girl 11 is too young to watch children.

I don't think that being 11 should be reason not to hire me. I am responsible and reliable and I don't think this is fair. Do you agree?

R.H., Columbus, OH

Dear R.H.:
I totally agree with you. It is not necessary to baby-sit for the same people that your girl friend sits for.

It shouldn't be too difficult to find other people who need a responsible, reliable, almost-12-year-old baby sitter.

Dear Doctor:

Help! I'm married to a sailor that doesn't like the idea of being married. He sure lets me know about it, too. If it weren't for the baby we would not have married.

Now he complains that he doesn't party as much or have as nice a car as he did. He gave up his hot rod soon after we were married because we couldn't afford that and the rent, too.

I'm to blame for everything. He has a habit of belittling me anywhere or any time. He has repeatedly told me and our friends that we're parents and lovers but not friends.

He is heavy into his field of electronics. All he does is eat, sleep, Navy and electronics.

How can I reach my husband? He says that our daughter is his prize possession.

Navy Wife, Chula Vista, CA

Dear Navy Wife:
Your husband appears to be grossly immature and hasn't yet accepted the responsibility of marriage.

Give him a choice. That of being a husband to you and a father to his prize possession or being a single swabbie once again.

Until he makes this choice, hopefully in your favor, I doubt if you will be able to "reach" him.

Questions may be sent to Dr. Robert Wallace, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Recipes for family, friends

CAKE PUDDING
2 c. milk
2 tbsps. sugar
2 large eggs
2 c. coarse fairly dry white or yellow cake crumbs
1/2 tsp. vanilla
Heat the milk and sugar until very hot. Beat eggs slightly; gradually add and vigorously stir in the milk mixture, then the cake crumbs and the vanilla. Ladle into six 6-oz. custard cups, distributing the solid part evenly. Place in a 13 by 9 by 2-inch pan; fill with hot water to come halfway up cups. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until a silver knife inserted in center comes out clean — 40 to 50 minutes. Serve warm or chilled with fresh raspberries, strawberries or blueberries. Makes 6 servings.

SPINACH SPREAD
From Illinois via Texas and better, in our opinion than the New York version.
10-oz. package chopped frozen spinach
2 scallions with green tops included, minced (2 tbsps.)
1/2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
Tabasco sauce to taste
1/2 c. mayonnaise
Thaw spinach but do not cook; squeeze tightly to remove all liquid. Mix with the remaining ingredients. Serve with saltnes.

FABULOUS LEMON BARS
1 c. butter
1/2 c. confectioners' sugar
2 c. flour
4 large eggs
1 tsp. flour
1/2 tsp. baking powder
1-3rd c. fresh lemon juice
1 c. chopped medium-fine pecan or walnuts
Cream the butter and confectioners' sugar; gradually stir in the 2 c. flour until blended. Pat over the bottom of an ungreased 13 by 9 by 2-inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven for 15 minutes. Remove from oven. At once beat the eggs slightly; add the granulated sugar, the 1 tsp. flour, baking powder, lemon juice and nuts; stir do not beat — until well-mixed. Pour over the still warm crust. Return to the 325-degree oven and bake until browned — about 45 minutes. Loosen edges, then cool. Cut in bars or squares and remove.

OLIVE CHEESE FONDUE
Easy to make and serve.
1 tsp. butter, soft
8 slices bread
6 oz. sharp cheddar cheese, coarsely grated
1/2 c. thinly sliced pimiento-stuffed green olives
3 large eggs
1 c. milk
Spread the butter over the bottom of an 8 by 8 by 2-inch glass baking dish or similar utensil. Place 4 slices of the bread in a single layer in the dish; sprinkle with the cheese and olives; cover with remaining bread. Beat eggs and milk to blend; pour over bread. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until bottom is well browned and top lightly browned — 40 minutes. Makes 4 servings. We used white bread from a 1-lb. sliced loaf containing 20 "thin" slices — each 3/8-inch thick.

THE GOLDEN BOWL
A delightful combination of fresh and canned fruit that calorie-watchers should appreciate.
1 lb. (8 medium) fresh apricots, pitted and sliced
2 large bananas, sliced
20-oz. can pineapple chunks in unsweetened pineapple juice, chilled
1/2 c. orange juice
As near as possible to serving time, gently stir together all the ingredients; cover and chill. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

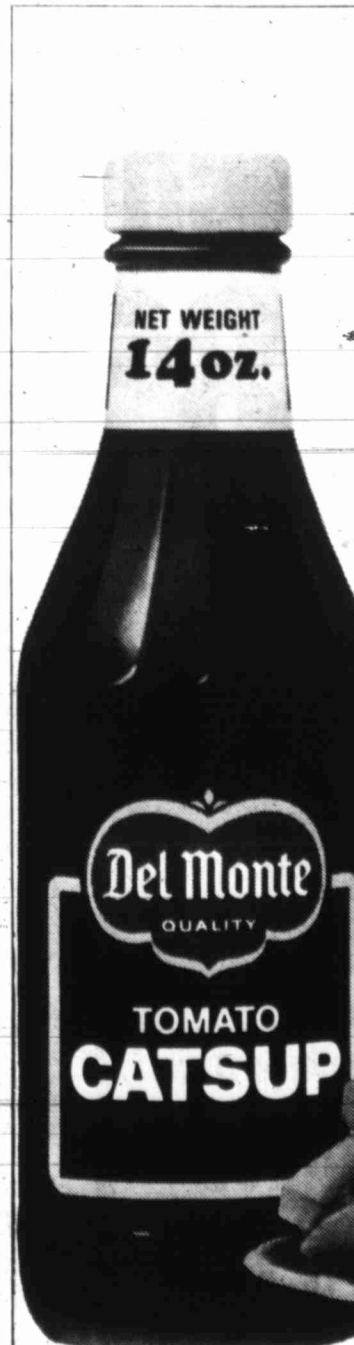

VEAL PAPRIKA
Good to make ahead and reheat so flavors have a chance to blend.
2 tbsps. butter
1 pound (may be scant) cut-up about 1-inch hunks boneless neck veal
1/2 c. finely diced celery
1 clove garlic, minced
1 c. chicken bouillon
1 tsp. sweet Hungarian-style paprika
1/4 tsp. sugar
1/2 c. cultured sour cream
Salt
In a medium saucepan in the hot butter, brown the veal. Stir in the celery, garlic and bouillon. Simmer, covered, until veal is tender — about 1 hour. There should be about 1/2 c. liquid in the pan. Stir in the paprika, sugar, sour cream and salt; heat. Makes 3 servings.

SAVORY CORNBREAD
Quick to put together.

2 large eggs
3/4 c. milk
1-3rd c. salad oil
1 can (8 3/4 ounces) cream style corn
2 c. fine, white self-rising, stoneground cornmeal
1 1/2 c. grated (medium-fine) loosely packed cheddar cheese
Beat together the eggs, milk and oil until blended; add the corn and cornmeal and stir until the cornmeal is moistened. Turn half the batter into a buttered 8 by 8 by 2-inch glass baking dish or similar utensil; sprinkle with half the cheese; carefully spoon the remaining batter over the cheese and spread evenly; sprinkle with the remaining cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven about 40 minutes. Serve at once. Makes 8 servings. If the self-rising cornmeal is not available, use regular fine white stoneground cornmeal and add 4 tbsps. baking powder and 1/2 tsp. salt.

PLUMMESUPPE
1 lb. red plums
1 qt. hot water
1-3rd c. sugar
1/2 c. red wine
2 tbsps. potato starch blended with 2 tbsps. cold water
In saucepan, uncovered, gently boil the plums, water and sugar until the fruit is tender. Remove plums, pit and puree; stir a little of the puree into the potato starch mixture; stir a medium back into remaining puree in saucepan. Cook over moderate heat, stirring constantly, until thickened and boiling; off heat stir in the wine. Chill. Makes about 5 c. Adapted from "Authentic Norwegian Cooking" by Astrid Karlson Scott. Note: Taste the plum soup while it is still warm and, if you like, add more sugar plus salt and cinnamon to taste.

SALAMI EGG PLATTER
It looks attractive and tastes good.
Watercress
Cherry tomatoes
Thinly sliced salami, preferably Genoa style
Stuffed egg halves
Arrange the watercress (thick stems removed) in the center of a round platter; border with the cherry tomatoes and then the salami and stuffed egg halves.

Prices for chopped chuck reported up, pork down

Associated Press Writer

Consumers fighting the battle of the grocery budget advanced slightly on some fronts during August, but lost ground elsewhere where they were a month earlier, an Associated Press marketbasket survey shows.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed the marketbasket bill went up at the checklist store in six cities and declined in six. The bill was unchanged in the 13th city. The average increase was just under 2 percent, the average decrease was 2.5 percent.

Overall, the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores decreased last month by an average of about a third of a percent. During July, the marketbasket bill increased by the same amount.

Shoppers with a taste for pork were lucky. The latest AP survey showed the price of pork chops declined last month at the checklist store in nine cities, with most of the decreases averaging 4 or

5 percent. Prices for chopped chuck and frankfurters, in contrast, went up in four cities each and beef prices are expected to rise further. The drought and lack of grazing area have caused some farmers to sell livestock they normally would have kept for breeding. This means adequate supplies right now, but paves the way for less beef and higher prices in the future.

The weather — drought, winter cold and summer heat — have affected other food items as well. The Florida frost boosted prices of orange juice and the latest AP survey showed that a can of frozen orange juice concentrate increased at the checklist store in six cities during August. The price went up in eight cities during July.

The extremely hot weather also caused chickens to lay fewer eggs. The price of a dozen eggs increased at the checklist store in eight cities last month, with increases ranging from 5 to 17 percent.

Comparing prices at the start of September with those at the beginning of 1977, the AP found that the marketbasket bill at the checklist stores had risen a little more than 9 percent. Much of the increase was due to higher prices for coffee, which reached a peak of $4 to $5 a pound in spring and early summer. Prices have started to decline, but remain more than $1 a pound higher than they were Jan. 1 in many areas. The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, R.I., Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Cattle industry gains unified lobbying voice

AMBOY, Ill. (AP) — The American National Cattlemen's Association and National Livestock Feeders Association officially merge today, giving the cattle industry a unified lobbying voice in Washington.

The new National Cattlemen's Association (NCA) has a membership of 30,000 ranchers and farmers but with affiliate state organizations like the Illinois Cattlemen's Association, it will actually speak for about 280,000 producers, said Thomas Monier of Walnut, Ill., vice president of the new organization. He was president of the Omaha, Neb.-based National Livestock Feeders.

The new group is based in Denver, formerly ANCA headquarters, with satellite offices in Washington and Omaha.

"Our main purpose will remain lobbying in Washington," Monier said. "Only now we will have a single, recognized voice of the cattle feeder industry."

The two cattlemen's groups occasionally found themselves on opposite sides of court cases, as in a dispute last year over the new federal yield grading system for beef. Monier said such policy disagreements will now be settled internally, preventing industry lobbyists from working against one another.

Where there were differences in policy, Monier said, no decisions are going to be made by the NCA until after its first national convention, Jan. 24-27 in New Orleans. "There really aren't that many areas of disagreement," he said. "Over the years we seemed to get closer together in our policies."

One main goal of both groups has been to insure the federal government does not adopt price ceilings and floors for the cattle industry. Last month's defeat of a national beef checkoff hurt the new organization, Monier admitted this week at a cattlemen's meeting in Illinois.

Most market development work would have been assumed by an organization funded by the checkoff, which would have raised an estimated $30 million the first year with a levy of three-tenths of one per cent on cattle sales.

The NCA "will have a budget of $1.7 million-plus for the first year," Monier said. "We've cut it $60,000—every bit of fat we thought we could get by without. But we'll still wind up with a $108,000 deficit next year."

About 60 per cent of the checkoff would have been earmarked for promotion, 30 per cent on research and 10 per cent on foreign market development.

"There are many associations saying, 'Let's vote again,'" Monier noted. "But we feel it will be at least two years before we can bring it to a vote again."

"The only thing we can do at this time is hope for more contributions," he said. "If we could get all states that have a checkoff to raise it to 25 cents (per hundredweight), we could raise $2 million a year. That's a far cry short of the $30 million we were trying to get with the program that was defeated."

Commodity prices down 6 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farm commodity prices are continuing to sag under the burden of huge harvest prospects this year, declining another 3 per cent from July 15 to Aug. 15, the third monthly skid in a row.

The Agriculture Department said Wednesday that lower farm prices for soybeans, corn, hogs, broilers and potatoes contributed most to the decline. Overall, commodity prices were down 6 per cent from Aug. 15, 1976.

Farm expenses, meanwhile, declined an average of one-half of 1 per cent last month, due to lower feed costs, the department's Crop Reporting Board said.

The index of feed grain and hay prices dropped 10 per cent from mid-July. Corn, at $1.64 a bushel, was down 24 cents, and oats dropped 11.4 cents to 90.6 cents a bushel. Barley, at $1.50, declined 3 cents a bushel from July 15.

After USDA issued its price report, officials announced they are putting into effect a price support loan increase for 1977-crop feed grains. The increase was indicated Monday by Deputy Secretary John White when he announced plans for a wheat acreage set-aside program to trim production next year.

The corn loan rate for 1977, effective immediately, is now $2 a bushel, up from the $1.75 previously set. Other feed grain increases include: barley, $1.63 a bushel and $1.50 previously; oats $1.03 and $1; rye $1.70 and $1.50; and sorghum $1.90 and $1.70.

The sorghum rate is equal to $3.39 per 100 pounds, up from the $3.04 previously set.

Officials noted that the higher feed-grain loan rates—the amount farmers can borrow from USDA by using their crops as collateral—are the same as called for in 1977 by the new farm bill waiting final action by Congress.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPT. 2, 1977

GENERAL TENDENCIES: If you have a change in attitude where finances are concerned, you will be able to gain much progress towards the security that is important to you. Don't overlook an opportunity.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact the most powerful individual you know and get the advice you need for a project you have in mind. Be logical.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan a better way of making a good impression on those that are important in your life. Happiness can easily be yours.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Figure out a way to rid yourself of situations that do not please you. Use your ingenuity to get ahead in career affairs.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Study how to get rid of friction between you and some associates. Be sure to handle business affairs wisely.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A civic affair could be annoying but take it easy and late afternoon you will know how to handle it. Do nothing to jeopardize your health.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study a business matter early in the day and you will know the right move to make. Come to the aid of a loyal friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend to routine duties early in the day and later you can study new interests that appeal to you. Come to a better understanding with mate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show associates that you are loyal. One who is annoying can be difficult but as the day progresses all works to your benefit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Attend to work that needs your supervision and be efficient at it so there are no complaints later. Think constructively.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Make early plans for the recreation you seek for later in the day. Be more thoughtful of mate. Be wary of strangers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Any problem at home should be handled in a most diplomatic way. A new outlet may seem difficult but later it becomes easy.

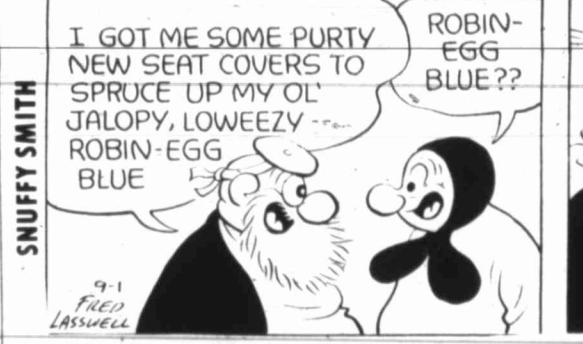

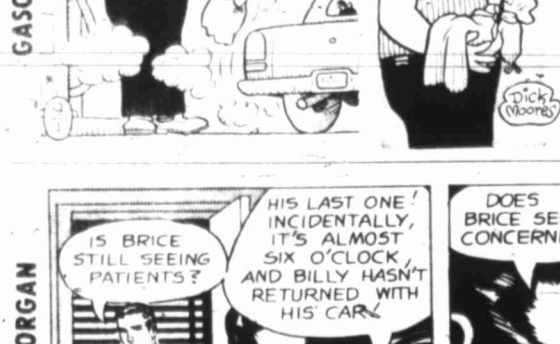

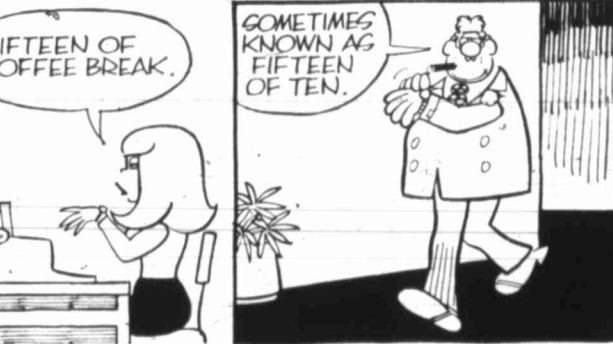

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have a new project that needs more study before it is going to work out satisfactorily. Plan for the days ahead.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have fine, practical ideas, so be sure to give as fine an education as you can. Good chart for anything connected with business of any kind. There's a good comprehension of finances here from earliest years.

The stars impel, they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

CARD OF THANKS

WE would like to thank everyone who helped, us during the loss of our loved one. Thanks to all for the lovely flowers, food and cards. A special thanks to Dr. Griffin and the staff of Malone-Hogan hospital for their care and untiring attention. Also to Jack McCall who conducted the funeral and the ones who sang. More important than anything, is the thoughtfulness of love behind each act of kindness. Thank you.

Pot farm raided by Big Springer

Gordon Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Thorpe of Big Spring and head of the Lampasas Sheriff's Department criminal investigation division, was instrumental in the bust of what appeared to be a grown-to-order marijuana farm near Lampasas.

Morris said that just one of the many varieties of pot hauled in, Acapulco Gold, would bring as high as $300 a pound in Texas and might sell for $550 a pound in Chicago.

"We do have knowledge some of it has been going up there," Morris said. "We don't think it is being grown for Lampasas County residents."

The alleged pot farmers were arrested for growing their crop in a climate-controlled greenhouse near Lampasas. They had more than 17 varieties of the weed and kept better records of its growth than Texas A&M, according to officials.

The discovery by police of the collection of lush pot plants resulted in the arrests of five persons. Approximately 100 pounds of marijuana were found in the back seat and trunk of the car which two of the suspects tried to drive away from the scene.

All five were charged with possession of more than four ounces of marijuana, and bail was posted at $10,000 each.

The bust came after over a month of surveillance on the 71-acre farm. On the night of Aug. 25, 16 law enforcement officers converged on the greenhouse and found nearly a thousand scientifically grown plants, six to 10 feet tall, in white plastic foam pots.

The fiberglass greenhouse measured approximately 40 feet wide and 100 feet long. The larger-than-life-plants were grown by someone "doing a superb job in crossbreeding," said a Lampasas deputy, who asked that his name not be used because he will be involved with a continuing investigation.

The deputy said the person growing the marijuana was not a complete professional but "was getting that way pretty quick."

Each of the 17 different varieties noted was marked and numbered on the container in which it grew. "They got records on this stuff better than A&M keeps," Lampasas County Sheriff Gossett said as he led a tour through the greenhouse.

A conservative estimate of the crop in the greenhouse would be 1,500 pounds, of-ficers said.

The growers, a deputy said, worked on an order system and only stripped plants when they had orders to fill. Drying was done in an air-conditioned barn.

The plants were of such high quality that 100 to 150 pounds could have been stripped every three days, according to Morris. Each plant, he estimated, would have been good for three full strips because the leaves were full and sturdy.

When the massive greenhouse was erected in the well concealed area is unknown, Sheriff Gossett said, but "no local labor or materials" were used. "It seems to be a real big organized operation."

Morris said authorities have learned that payments on the farm are being made by Wheeler, a widow with two young children who is living with her in the farm house.

Although the pantry was well-stocked, according to the sheriff, none of the house's occupants has been seen shopping in Lampasas. "About the only thing they did in Lampasas was go to the bank," he said. Bank records had not been studied as of Wednesday, he said.

A "guard house" in the form of a small peak-roofed trailer was set up at the entrance of the greenhouse, officers said, and a 24-hour watch was maintained.

Although they permitted a neighbor to run some sheep on the land, they were so insistent about knowing exactly what time he would put in an appearance, it made others in the area suspicious of them, Gossett said.

A sign posted conspicuously on the gate into the property, advised callers to honk twice and to leave if no one answered and call a telephone number shown on the sign.
