Iran renews threat to close strait

Cutoff could hurt 'enemies'

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran's president said today that closure of the Strait of Hormuz would weaken Iran's enemies and that his nation was fully prepared to halt traffic through the crucial oil route, Tehran Radio reported.

The president, Ali Khamenei, renewed Iran's threats to block the strait if attacks by Iraq undermine its ability to export oil or if foreign powers intervene on the side of Iraq.

"The day when they decide to threaten us and render our vessels insecure, then there is no doubt that...we shall not allow others to use the strait either," the radio quoted Khamenei as saying, without specifying to whom "they" referred.

President Reagan recently vowed to keep the strait open and U.S. warships have been stationed inside the Persian Gulf. Half of Japan's oil and 28 percent of that for Western Europe is carried through the strait, at the south end of the gulf.

Iraq, which has been combatting an intensive nine-day offensive by Iranian troops, on Thursday said it had sunk eight Iranian ships in the gulf as part of its blockade of Iranian oil ports.

Khamenei told clerical members of the ruling Islamic Republic Party that Iran could endure a closure of the strait, but that "the same could not be said for the rest of the world," the radio reported.

"Should the strait be closed, then the blow dealt to the world would be very serious...," the radio reported Khamenei said.

"The influence enjoyed by America and other powers and countries is ultimately due to America's economic power," the radio added. "However, if America is deprived of its potential, it would be tantamount to undermining its political influence as well."

The radio said Khamenei told the clerics that Iran has "no adventurous intentions" regarding the strait. "Rather, we wish to prove to the world that we have the power to take countermeasures."

Iraq announced its blockade of Kharg Island and other Iranian oil ports on Monday. It also said it had attacked oil tankers anchored at the island. Iran denied the attack, and U.S. sources said their study of the area showed no damage to the terminals.

In ground fighting Thursday, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency claimed Iran's forces advanced deeper into Iraq in the Talaya-Nashwa region, between the border and the oil port of Basra, Iraq's second-largest city, near the gulf.

The agency reported 1,300 Iraqi casualties on that front and said it had repulsed three Iraqi counterattacks.

But Iraq said the attacking force was wiped out in battles that raged until Thursday evening.

Strategic storage

A worker, silhouetted at the above-ground control, checks the flow of crude oil into the Strategic Petroleum Reserve at West Hackberry, La. More than 380 million barrels of oil are stored at the site.

Mexico would study market

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Energy Secretary Francisco Labastida Ochoa says Mexico would have to study the petroleum market "very carefully" before ordering any production increases, in the event the Iran-Iraq war cuts the Middle Eastern supply.

Asked if Mexico has the capacity to increase production if the Strait of Hormuz were blocked in the Persian Gulf, Labastida Ochoa replied: "Mexico has some capacity installed at this time that it is not using for production, but we would have to examine very carefully the market's behavior before taking a decision to elevate production."

Energy officials here have said repeatedly that Mexico, one of the world's largest oil exporters, will retain its current level of 1.5 million barrels daily throughout the year.

Labastida Ochoa said enough demand exists already for Mexico to sell selling 300,000 to 400,000 barrels more than it does, but the decision was made not to increase production.

"We believe that an attitude of oversupply could lead us, in a relatively brief period, to the buildup of very big inventories which then would go against the interests of our country and against the interests of producing countries," he said. "Any decision that is adopted will be thought about serenely and discussed at higher levels; this is not the time to take any decision nor make statements about it.

"With complete tranquility and with complete serenity we are observing market behavior and at the proper time we will propose at higher levels some decision about the matter," the energy secretary said.

Labastida Ochoa spoke to reporters Wednesday after the departure from Mexico of Libyan Oil Minister Kamal Hassan Maghur, who was here for an OPEC seminar presented to local journalists. The Energy, Mines and State Industry Department later distributed a transcript of his comments.

Mexico is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries but generally follows its price guidelines.

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the oil cartel here said the Iran-Iraq war should not have any adverse effect on OPEC's ability to export oil from the Middle East.

"It is a very sad situation, but that is all I can say," OPEC research director Ahmed Said at the seminar. "This political situation has not in any affected the work of OPEC. The ministers of Iraq and Iran present their cases at each meeting."

Both nations, embroiled in a war since 1980, are members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Reserve 'cushions' U.S.

By BILL CRIDER
Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS — Deep under the Gulf Coast, in salt caverns as big as 10-story buildings, billions of gallons of crude oil lie in storage, awaiting a crisis.

If that crisis were to come in the form of an Iranian decision to pinch off the flow of oil from the Persian Gulf, the multibillion-dollar Strategic Petroleum Reserve could cushion the shock to the United States.

At last count, at the end of February, there were 387 million barrels of high-class crude bottled up in the reserve, which was started in 1975 by President Ford to counter what the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries called the "oil weapon."

That's enough to replace 90 days of imports at 1983's daily rate of 4.2 million barrels a day from all sources, according to Department of Energy estimates.

But many of those sources are nowhere near the volatile Persian Gulf, where Iran has repeatedly threatened to close the 50-mile-wide Strait of Hormuz, the bottleneck between the gulf and the Arabian Sea.

President Reagan has said the United States cannot allow the Strait of Hormuz to be closed. Last Sunday, the Navy destroyer Lawrence fired warning shots to make an Iranian patrol plane keep its distance, and warned an Iranian frigate by radio not to get any closer.

Tankers carry 7.5 million barrels of oil a day through the strait, but only about 500,000 barrels of that goes to the United States. A barrel is 42 gallons.

Oil shipped through the strait makes up 18 percent of the world's daily crude consumption.

Panel pushes parental education

From Staff and Wire Reports

AUSTIN — A Select Committee on Public Education subcommittee has approved a proposal that would force parents of misbehaving students to attend "parenting" courses.

Subcommittee Chairman Sen. Carl Parker said the idea is to "drag them up to the schoolhouse and teach them how to be parents."

The plan now goes to the full committee, which is looking at sweeping reforms in Texas public education. Final recommendations of the full committee, headed by H. Ross Perot, are expected to be released in mid-March, a SCPE spokeswoman told the Reporter-Telegram this morning.

Also Thursday, the subcommittee voted to recommend legalizing, under close monitoring, home education of children by their parents, and required education college courses in maintaining discipline.

The parenting course would be the recourse if parents break a "contractual agreement" they would sign with school districts. Parker said it's nothing more than an agreement to "meet their parental responsibilities."

The subcommittee plan would allow state district courts to force the parents to attend the "parenting courses" set up by districts.

The home teaching proposal was approved although Parker, D-Port Arthur, said it's a bad idea. He added, however, that parents have a constitutional right to do it.

"I wouldn't do it for my children. You limit the scope of your knowledge to one teacher, one concept, one technique," Parker said.

But the senator said it doesn't take much more than a "good, bright high school graduate" to be able to teach basic skills to his or her children. He said the committee heard from members of a "loose-knit association" of Dallas-area parents who now teach their own children — in violation of current state law.

The parents said many people, "from Jesus Christ to Douglas MacArthur were home taught."

Under the system proposed by the subcommittee, parents who teach their children would have to register with a school district, maintain an organized course of study and pay the district's administrative costs of keeping up with the student.

The student would have to pass tests prepared by the district.

Parker predicted the recommendation, if approved, would not cause "any mass exodus" from public schools.

"Some may use it for racial purposes, to avoid integrated schools. But most of them have already found a private school somewhere to put them in," he said.

Outspoken editor takes shot at DWIs

Pat Mullins

ROCKPORT, Texas (AP) — Nothing triggers more fear in the hearts of some folks around here than the prospect of being arrested for drunken driving.

It's not facing the law that scares drinkers. It's facing Pat Mullins, owner, editor and photographer of the Toast of the Coast Herald newspaper.

Mullins lurks at the jailhouse door, camera in hand, waiting to take their pictures and publish them in his paper.

The caption under a Feb. 8 picture of one 30-year-old woman said that she was "arrested on a charge of Driving While Intoxicated Saturday, asked a couple of quaint questions of arresting Troopers Ahrens and Richardson — 'What if I decide not to take a breath test in Texas? I don't want to take a breath test because I have had more wine than your test can tell.' Troopers proceeded to process her for a night in jail whereupon (she) threw herself on the jail floor and engaged in a hysterical fit that lasted 33 minutes."

Mullins says his purpose in packing his paper with such incidents is to get drunken drivers off the road and show Gulf Coast residents through the experience of others "what dangers face them when they begin each day."

He is so committed to this goal that he has run several pictures of his own children who were involved in traffic accidents.

The 50-year-old publisher has his fans. Rockport Police Chief Joe Hinojosa thinks the Herald has "been a definite help to the community."

Mullins had no prior experience in journalism before taking over the Toast, but he considers that an asset. Journalists and publishers with more experience would take a photo of a drunken city councilman and "put it in the bottom drawer," he says.

"I'll put it on page one."

Mullins says his paper sells an average of 7,000 copies a week by living up to its slogan, "The Cure For The Common Newspaper." It's read by residents of Rockport, Port Aransas, Ingleside, Portland and Corpus Christi, along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico in southern Texas, he says.

Convenience stores which stock the tabloid say they're flooded with customers wanting to pick up a photo-packed copy of the Toast to see who has partied too hard.

Before Mullins bought the Herald for $10,000 in 1979, it was just a little tourist paper. Not any more.

In addition to photos of drunks and alleged drunks it features pictures of dead bodies, people maimed in accidents and drowning victims being pulled from murky waters. The stories include accounts of nude couples found passed out in automobiles.

Highway hero tries TV stunt

CINCINNATI (AP) — When motorist Arthur Naltner saw a car go out of control on Interstate 75, he recalled a tricky stunt he'd seen on television — then edged his own vehicle in front of the runaway and braked both to a halt, saving the stricken driver.

"I'm going to have to stop watching 'Highway Patrol,'" Naltner joked Thursday. "I still get the inside quivers every once in a while."

"I was a little bit flabbergasted," said police Officer Dave Holloway, who investigated the accident and credited Nalter with preventing a pileup on the busy highway. "I had heard about people doing it, but never actually saw it."

Naltner, a 42-year-old salesman from Edgewood, Ky., was heading home from Cincinnati on Wednesday night when he saw a 1979 Monte Carlo go out of control.

Police said the driver, Charles Snowdy, 25, of Lexington, Ky., was disabled when a truck lost its driveshaft and a 15- to 20-pound chunk of metal flipped up and smashed through the windshield.

"As I remember it, he was in the center lane southbound and I had to be several cars behind him," Naltner said. "All of a sudden his car just did an abrupt right, like he hit an ice patch. He went off the expressway onto the shoulder, hit the snow over there, spun around and shot back across the expressway, hitting the guardrail.

"To be honest, I was probably going to do just what everyone else was going to do, get in the far right lane and cuss," Naltner said. "But when he hit the guardrail and jumped back, I saw him slump and thought perhaps he had a heart attack."

That's when he borrowed the stunt from the old TV cop show, pulling his 1980 Volkswagen Rabbit in front of Snowdy's car.

"His car bumped into mine, then I put my brakes on and slowed down," he said. "We kept going; I put my emergency brake on, and we kept going. I thought, 'What am I doing here?' Then we got stopped."

Snowdy was in fair condition early today at Christ Hospital, where he was being treated for broken ribs and a collapsed lung, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Naltner, who was not injured, said his car's rear end was crumpled, but his insurance would cover most of the damage.

"I'm sure someone else would have done it if I hadn't been there. It was just one of those spur-of-the-moment things," he said.

"Actually, it was probably the providence of God that did it."

Showers from the central Gulf to the Carolinas, snow for the western and southern Plains, and cooler temperatures are forecast for Saturday by the National Weather Service.

Weather outlook for area under constant change

From Staff and Wire Reports

It is the prerogative of women and March to change their minds. And since winter and spring elements are fighting for superiority this month, a constantly changing outlook is being predicted by the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

While tonight's forecast calls for fair skies and lows in the low 40s, winds are expected to be variable at 5 to 10 mph and then come in from the southeast late tonight.

Saturday brief morning cloudiness is expected, turning sunny with highs near 70. South winds of 10 to 15 mph should increase to 15 to 25 mph and gusty by afternoon.

A 76-degree high Thursday fell 9 marks short of the record 85 set on that date the bicentennial year. An overnight low of 36 beat the record 9-degree low in 1980 by 27.

STATE

Patchy, dense fog enveloped parts of Central Texas and the Gulf coastal plain today, while rain dampened other sections of the Lone Star State, but forecasters predicted sunny skies later.

Abundant low-level moisture continued to push northward from the Gulf of Mexico, bringing a dense veil of low clouds to most of South, Central and East Texas.

Sporadic drizzle dampened parts of South Central Texas, the National Weather Service said. Skies remained mostly clear in the western half of the state, with the exception of high-level cloudiness over the Panhandle.

Winds were south to southwesterly winds at 5 to 10 mph across most of Texas, except the High Plains, where light northeasterly breezes prevailed.

NATION

Strong westerly winds continued to produce snow showers today in the lower Great Lakes region and over Vermont, New Hampshire, northwestern Pennsylvania and much of New York state.

Light snow showers were scattered from east central Iowa to southeastern South Dakota, and over western North Dakota, lower Michigan and eastern Kentucky.

Light rain fell over the northern and central Pacific Coast and the northern Rocky mountains.

Temperatures were in the 50s over much over Texas early today, and below the freezing mark from the central Rockies to the Atlantic Coast. Readings were in the single digits and teens from eastern North Dakota to northern New England.

Police seek truck, driver

ODESSA — Police are looking for the driver and pick-up which reportedly left the scene of an accident near the intersection of Loop 338 and Highway 80 in Odessa at 12:05 a.m. today which put a 22-year-old motorcyclist in Medical Center Hospital.

Rick Dale Kennedy, 22, Odessa, was listed in stable condition at Medical Center Hospital today with a broken leg. Witnesses to the early morning accident said a late-model beige or yellow pick-up travelling south went through a red light on the East Loop 338 off-ramp and collided with the 1983 Honda motorcycle carrying Kennedy and a passenger.

The motorcycle was passing through the intersection on a green light east on the Highway 80 service road where it crosses the Loop off-ramp, witnesses said. After striking the motorcycle, witnesses told officers the truck headed east toward Midland on Highway 80.

Kennedy was taken to the hospital, but the passenger — Neng Rakrti Pranot, 20, Odessa — was uninjured. No further description of the driver or truck was available, apparently due to the darkness at the scene.

Cuts recommended in military aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee is recommending deep cuts in President Reagan's proposals for military aid to Central America, seeking to shift the money into reconstruction and development efforts and bolstering Latin American economies.

The Western Hemisphere subcommittee of the Foreign Affairs Committee approved 5-1 on Thursday a bill that would eliminate further military assistance to El Salvador in the current fiscal year and place stringent conditions on later spending.

The bill would also force an end to joint exercises by U.S. and Honduran troops in Honduras, which critics claim have been used as a pretext to build military installations as part of the administration's effort to curb Marxist expansion in the region.

Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of the subcommittee, said he had "misgivings" about the restrictions on Salvadoran aid and would try to work out a compromise with administration supporters by the time the full committee meets next Tuesday.

Rep. Steven Solarz, D-N.Y., however, said the subcommittee action put the administration on notice that "you are not going to get the money you are talking about without being willing to accept the kind of conditions we are talking about."

The administration's overall request for military and economic aid to Central America is cut by $750 million, from $1.9 billion to $1.15 billion. However, $500 million of this is put into a fund for reconstruction and development of Central America and $125 million is shifted into economic support funds for Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador and the Eastern Caribbean.

This leaves a net reduction of $125 million.

The measure adopted by the Democrat-dominated panel would eliminate $179 million of proposed supplemental military aid for El Salvador in the current fiscal year and cut another supplemental request for $90 million in security-related economic support funds in half.

On a motion by Reps. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., and Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., the panel adopted a recommendation that would cut off further military aid after Oct. 1 unless the president and Congress both declared that El Salvador had completely eliminated right-wing death squads and made other desired reforms.

Rep. Robert J. Lagomarsino, R-Calif., said the amendment would "jeopardize the future of a region that is vital to the national security of this country."

Another provision of the bill bars sending U.S. armed forces to Honduras for training exercises or other purposes except for guarding the U.S. Embassy and carrying out duties under the foreign assistance program.

Rep. Douglas K. Bereuter, R-Neb., led the fight against this provision, saying it would endanger passage of the entire foreign aid program and unconstitutionally encroach on the president's powers as commander in chief of the armed forces.

'Death squad' threatens reporters

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — A right-wing death squad is threatening to kill reporters who "distort reality," and a court source says the defense minister has been asked to provide written testimony about the 1980 murder of four American churchwomen.

The rightist newspaper El Diario de Hoy on Thursday quoted a one-paragraph threat against journalists signed by the Salvadoran Anti-Communist Command, one of the death squads that has stepped up activity since last November.

The statement said reporters "who cooperate with the enemies of our republic, sending dispatches that distort reality or repeating false news items that come from abroad will be executed, because what they do is confuse our people and play the game of terrorist gangs and those bands of reporters in the pay of international communism."

A court source, meanwhile, said the judge handling the case of the churchwomen's murder has sent a list of questions to Gen. Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova, the defense minister. He was director of the national guard when the women were slain.

Five former guardsmen are charged with the crime, and the court source — who requested anonymity for fear of reprisals — said one of the questions sent by the judge was whether Vides Casanova knew at the time who the murderers were.

Judge Bernardo Rauda Murcia said Thursday that the former guardsmen's trial will begin in April. Two appeals by defense lawyers to higher courts, both rejected, have delayed the trial more than a year.

Rauda Murcia sent the questions to Vides Casanova after a defense request for further pretrial testimony.

The slain women were nuns Ita Ford, 40, and Maura Clark, 49 — both of New York — and nun Dorothy Kazel, 41, and lay worker Jean Donovan, 27 — both of Cleveland.

They were kidnapped on the road from the international airport to San Salvador on Dec. 2, 1980. Their bullet-riddled bodies were discovered in a shallow grave two days later.

In Washington, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Thursday the United States must be willing as a "last resort" to suspend military aid to El Salvador if that country cannot curb death squads and corruption. But he said El Salvador has made a "great deal of progress" in doing so.

Human rights groups claim death squads, together with Salvadoran security forces and paramilitary groups, are responsible for the vast majority of the 43,000 civilian deaths in the four-year civil war against leftist rebels.

"In the end, they (the Salvadorans) must know that we are willing to walk away," Shultz said before the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations.

The Reagan administration has sought to increase aid to Ele Salvador, while members of Congress have tried to tie such aid to improved human rights and a resolution of the churchwomen's murder case.

In other Central Americam developments:

—Reporters and workers from the opposition newspaper La Prensa defied a ban on demonstrations Thursday and protested government censorship at a rally in Managua, Nicaragua. About 30 La Prensa employees marched outside the government censorship office, shouted slogans demanding press freedom and burned what they said was a copy of a draft bill to restrict the news media.

Carlos Nunez, president of the Council of State, said press censorship imposed under the two-year-old state of emergency would be lifted for general elections scheduled Nov. 4. But he said recently that the council, a legislative advisory body to the leftist Sandinista junta, would soon start debate on a new law to regulate the press.

—The Salvadoran armed forces press office said a retired colonel who served as a military judge was abducted Thursday and shot to death. The body of Col. Jose Alberto Montenegro Vasquez was discovered on the northern outskirts of San Salvador, the office said.

—Guatemala's military leader said Frederick Chapin, the former U.S. ambassador to the country, "does not fulfill the requirements necesssary" to receive the Order of the Quetzal medal normally given to departing diplomats.

Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores did not say what requirements Chapin, who left Guatemala on Tuesday, had not fulfilled.

Reserve could cushion U.S. in oil crisis

As a gauge of how things have changed since the time when OPEC swung a big stick, withdrawals from the oil bank could cover almost 900 days of the U.S. imports that move from the strait — and about seven months of all imports from all OPEC members.

The top five oil exporters to the United States these days are Mexico at 807,000 barrels a day, Canada at 460,000, Venezuela 413,000, the United Kingdom 369,000, and Indonesia 336,000.

In a series of tests, the last one on Feb. 28, officials showed that the five operating storage facilities in the oil bank, with all pumps going, could extract about 3 million barrels a day. Guy King, a Strategic Petroleum Reserve spokesman, said that when the project is completed in 1991, with 750 million barrels banked, it will be possible to draw more than 4 million barrels a day.

"The test was ordered by the inspector general to find out for sure that we could do it," King said. "We hope it laid to rest all those questions as to whether we can get the oil out."

King referred to accusations by a House Government Operations energy subcommittee, headed by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., that equipment was so poor the SPR ran the risk of being unable to get its oil back out of the salt caverns.

The subcommittee also charged that project officials had a poor accounting system and accused them of paying too little attention to fire protection and failing to monitor contractor performance.

In hearings last year before the subcommittee, project officials said problems had been corrected.

There are at least 350 of the mountain-size domes of salt, underground and out of sight, along the Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama coasts. The salt is so hard it feels like marble when pieces of it are handled, but like any rock salt it can be dissolved by water.

In the six domes chosen as storage sites, water was injected into the salt, the salt dissolved and the brine was pumped out, leaving vast caverns several thousand feet below the grass. Then, in five of the caverns, the oil was pumped in. The sixth is still under construction.

Oil doesn't dissolve salt, so SPR officials compare the caverns to huge glass bottles.

Except for guard and maintenance buildings, the only surface structures at the five storage facilities are pipeline valves and pumps.

Underground pipelines that can pump oil into or out of the caverns connect the facilities to tanker docks and to pipelines that extend up through the Midwest.

One cavern is in use in Texas under Bryan Mound, near Freeport, and another is under construction at Big Hill, near Winnie, Texas.

In Louisiana, the SPR has oil reserves in West Hackberry and Sulphur Mines, both near Lake Charles; Weeks Island, once a big salt mine near New Iberia; and Bayou Choctaw, near Baton Rouge.

King said the oil bank grows at the rate of 186,000 barrels a day, brought in by tankers, and will continue to do so through fiscal 1984.

Thus far, the oil has cost over $12 billion with final costs projected at $30 billion.

Boy takes his complaint to top, secures review on mom's benefits

FREMONT, Calif. (AP) — Eighth-grader Scott Henderson went straight to the top — the White House — in his determination to see that his mother gets disability benefits.

And, he scored an initial victory Thursday when the Social Security Administration agreed to review his mother's case after a White House liaison said the case merited "special attention."

Scott, 13, said his mother's unhappiness over her failure to get disability pay after four operations for a brain tumor set him on a quest that took him right to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue — via telephone, of course.

"It was a spur of the moment thing I did because Mom was getting on a downer," Scott said. "She was just moping around the house."

Scott's mother, Georgia Oliveira, said she didn't pay much attention when her son told her last Friday, "Don't worry, Mom, I'll take care of it."

But Scott, home from school because of strep throat, got the White House number from information and called, asking to speak to the president. While President Reagan did not come to the phone, Scott did reach White House liaison Charlene Cozart, who told him the case would be reviewed.

Scott hedged no bets, and also called the offices of Sen. Alan Cranston and Gov. George Deukmejian.

Mrs. Oliveira, 37, whose husband is a lawyer, has been unable to work as a sales representative since the brain tumor was discovered in January 1983.

Suffering from headaches, loss of vision in her right eye and partial paralysis of her face, she was fired from one job and said she had to quit another because she was afraid to drive on the freeway.

Social Security officials said she was able to work and turned her down for benefits. The case has been on appeal.

El Salvador's president comes to San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The provisional president of El Salvador planned to address a conference on Central America tonight, but authorities would release little information about the dignitary's visit for security reasons.

Security officials refused to reveal when Alvaro Alfredo Magana would arrive in San Antonio, when he planned to leave or if any other matters were on his agenda.

Magana, who assumed power in April 1982, is not seeking another term in his country's upcoming elections.

He is scheduled to address a dinner audience at a downtown hotel on the topic of "Central American Perspective and Dialogue."

Before Magana's speech, three members of the President's Bipartisan Commission on Central America will participate in a panel discussion of problems in the region.

"As this thing has developed, everything has changed 10 times," said Robert Farrington, a spokesman for the Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, which has been coordinating the visit.

Assistant City Manager Rolando Bono, who supervises the police department, conceded that strong security measures were being mapped out.

"You have to expect the security in this is going to be pretty tight," Bono said. "It's that way with any head of state, but it's especially that way because he's from Central America."

A spokesman in the local Secret Service office refused to comment Thursday on security preparations.

A local activist group called Latin America Assistance already has announced plans to hold a "peaceful demonstration" to protest Magana's visit.

Group members planned to gather in front of the hotel Friday to draw attention to the "brutal military regime" that they contend has continued under Magana's leadership.

Bonilla brothers endorse Krueger

AUSTIN (AP) — The three Bonilla brothers, all former national presidents of the League of United Latin American Citizens, have endorsed Democrat Bob Krueger in his U.S. Senate campaign.

Tony, Ruben and William Bonilla, all Corpus Christi lawyers, appeared with Krueger at a Capitol news conference Thursday.

The endorsement was another phase in the contest between Krueger and State Sen. Lloyd Doggett for Mexican-American voter support.

Earlier, Doggett announced that delegates at a United Farm Workers of America (AFL-CIO) convention in San Juan voted unanimously to support him. Both Doggett and Krueger spoke to the convention.

Last week, the Mexican-American Democrats organization gave Krueger a majority vote of support, although short of the two-thirds needed for a full endorsement.

Krueger told the news conference he got 71 percent of the votes of MAD delegates attending the San Antonio convention while Doggett got 29 percent.

'Aliens' suggest raising Texas flag over prime piece of Manhattan

NEW YORK (AP) — They rode into town from out of the West and stopped at a saloon, spreading talk of secession and raising the flag of Texas over a prime piece of Manhattan land.

Former Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe led Thursday's expedition to the Lone Star Cafe, which bills itself as "the best honky-tonk north of Abilene" and which Texas now wants for its very own.

After the singing of "The Eyes of Texas," Briscoe presided over a tongue-in-cheek news conference. He presented a memorandum from current Texas Gov. Mark White proposing "that the Lone Star Cafe consider seceding from New York and formally apply for annexation by the great State of Texas."

Asked if his state had ever made such a request before, Briscoe replied, "Not since the Civil War."

Cafe spokesman Bill Dick said the bar's patrons would be given ballots to vote on the proposed secession, which was staged partly to publicize the Texas Sesquicentennial, or 150th anniversary, coming up in 1986.

New York City Mayor Edward Koch stopped by and said the city might let the tavern secede, making its patrons "undocumented aliens." The "aliens" could be fined $100 each, he said, which — judging from the number of Texans in the area — could solve the city's budget problems.

Glenn tells staff to close Houston headquarters

HOUSTON (AP) — John Glenn has told his campaign staff to temporarily close his Houston headquarters after his disappointing third-place finish in the New Hampshire primary.

But workers were told not to accept defeat before "Super Tuesday" — March 13 — when ten states hold caucusses and primaries.

Glenn finished third, behind Colorado Sen. Gary Hart and former Vice President Walter Mondale in Tuesday's New Hampshire primary, and earned a poor fifth-place showing in last week's Iowa caucus.

"We're not going to shut down our operation, but we've been told to close our headquarters," said coordinator Nancy Sims, who has been paid to run Glenn's Southeast Texas campaign from his Houston office.

Planners make mistakes

HOUSTON (AP) — Transit officials have revealed that planners made $578 million in errors in figuring the costs of future city busways.

In the first meeting of the Metropolitan Transit Authority board's five new appointees Wednesday, officials said the errors are inconsequential because no funding or schedule arrangements have been made for the regional busway system.

Officials have in recent months reduced the estimated cost of the system, which includes special freeway lanes for buses and van-pools, from about $1.94 billion to $1.15 billion.

Hooks named director

AUSTIN (AP) — Dr. Michael Q. Hooks, historian and archivist at Texas Tech University, has been named director of archives and records for the General Land Office, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro announced.

Mauro said Land Office records include 4,300 original Spanish and Mexican land grants which date back to 1758; 206,000 Republic and State of Texas land grants and vast quantities of manuscript material associated with the early development of the state, including detailed records kept by Stephen F. Austin on his colonies.

Tanker truck blows up

HOUSTON (AP) — A tanker truck exploded on a high bridge over the Houston Ship Channel early today, killing one person and snarling traffic, authorities say.

Firefighters continued to battle the blaze resulting from an explosion of a tanker truck at 6:09 a.m., said a Houston Fire Department spokesman.

One person was pronounced dead on arrival at a local hospital, said fire spokesman Gary LeCompte. He said authorities believe the dead man was the driver of the truck.

Lecompte said the explosion occurred on the southbound lanes of the new Beltway bridge near the intersection with the East Freeway.

The Beltway is a toll bridge over the ship channel.

Firefighters from Pasadena and another community were also dispatched to the scene.

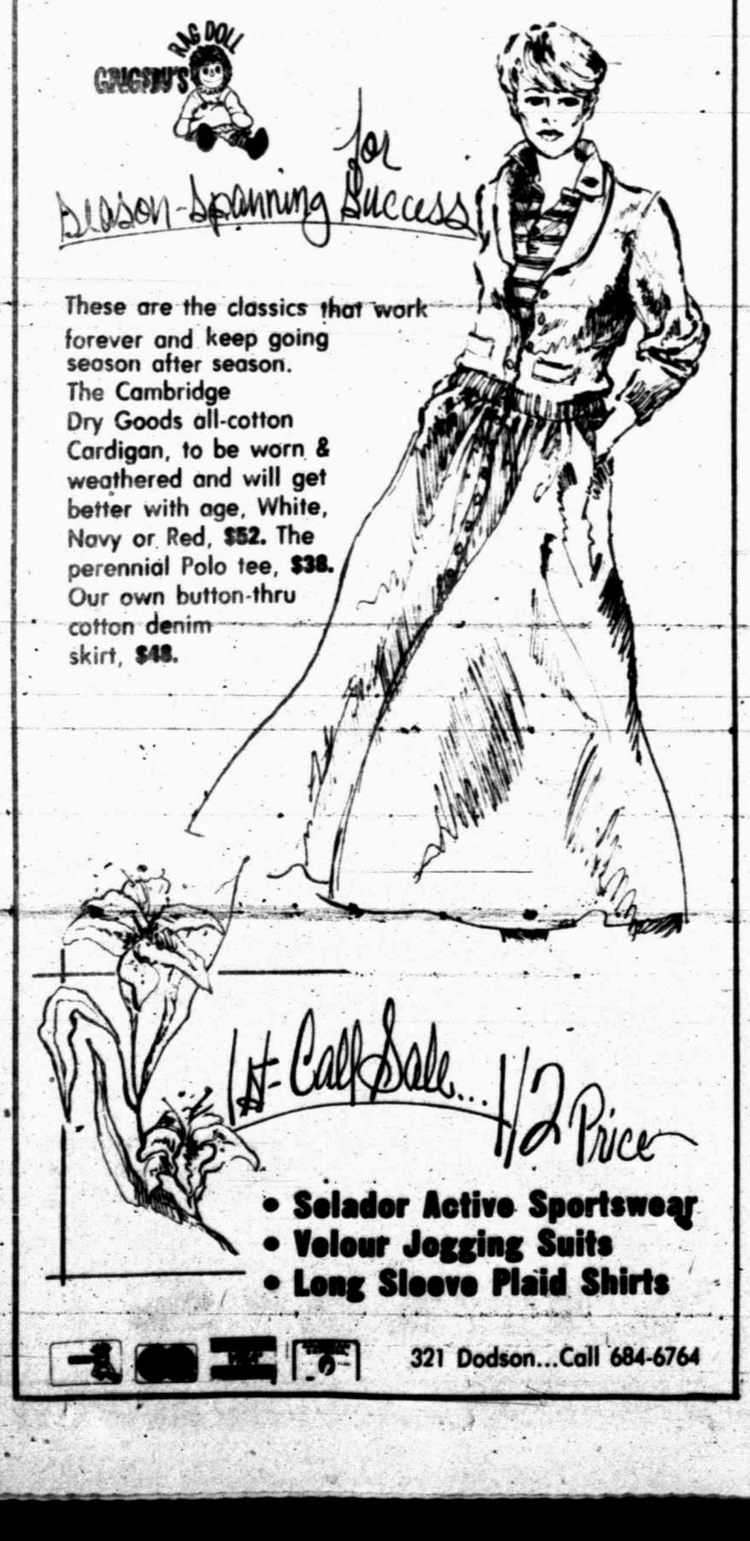

Authorities said the tanker truck ruptured from an unknown cause and they were trying to determine the nature of the burning material.

Judge upholds sheriff's sentence

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal judge has refused to reduce the prison sentence of a former San Jacinto County sheriff convicted of using water torture to gain confessions from his prisoners, saying the punishment will serve as an example to others.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda, after reviewing a psychiatric report, said Thursday that the 10-year prison term and $12,000 fine given James C. "Humpy" Parker in October will stand.

Parker, 47, was convicted of conspiring to deprive jail inmates of their civil rights and of two counts of torturing inmates to deprive them of liberty without due process of law.

Bartender's testimony challenged in rape case

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — A bartender who testified he saw a screaming woman dragged to a pool table and raped underwent a battery of questions from defense attorneys who portrayed him as a man with a drinking problem who speaks to the devil.

Carlos Machado, who was in Big Dan's tavern the night six men are accused of taking part in a rape, was grilled under defense cross-examination Thursday on subjects ranging from his sobriety to a firearms incident that took place seven months later.

Machado, a 41-year-old immigrant from the Azores, told of watching from the bar while a woman was stripped on the floor of the bar, assaulted, then dragged by her feet to the pool table in the back of the bar where the assault continued.

Speaking through an interpreter, Machado said he saw defendant Daniel Silvia try to pull off the woman's jeans while defendants John Cordeiro and Victor Raposo tried to force the woman to perform oral sex.

Two other defendants, Virgilio Medeiros and Jose Medeiros, no relation, were laughing and yelling "telling the boys to continue to do it," Machado said.

Machado said he tried to stop the men, shouting, "Let's finish with all of this and leave her alone."

But when he tried to walk from behind the bar, Virgilio Medeiros stepped in front of him, saying "Where are you going?"

Machado said Silvia and defendant Joseph Vieira dragged the woman by her feet to the back of the barroom where they threw her on the pool table. He said Silvia then assaulted the woman.

"He was on the girl doing piggy things," said Machado. "She was crying and screaming."

The witness said Vieira then touched the woman as he tried to take off his pants, but the woman jumped off the table and ran from the bar.

The testimony differed in several significant details from that given by the woman, and under cross-examination, Machado faced a series of attacks from defense attorneys.

Silvia's attorney, Edward Harrington, asked the witness if he had a drinking problem. Machado denied it.

In a confusion created by a mistranslation, Machado was asked if he was "not sober." When Machado said "no," Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina, who speaks Portuguese, approached Judge William Young for a private conference.

City Hall set afire

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Four fires broke out at City Hall in a four-hour period, prompting police to evacuate 50 nighttime workers and search for an arsonist with the help of four trained dogs, officials said today.

No injuries were reported and no arsonist was found.

Firefighters easily put out the fires Thursday night, which caused a lot of smoke but only minor damage.

About 50 janitors and other city employees were evacuated from the four-story building during the search for an arsonist, police Sergeant Joe Allegro said.

"Somebody had to have a key," Allegro said, adding that at least two of the small fires were started in locked rooms at City Hall. "We think it was done either by an employee or a person who has a key."

The first blaze began at 6:30 p.m. in a basement debris box, he said. That was followed by one at 7:50 p.m. in the locked press room and another nearly two hours later. The final fire was started at 10:30 p.m. in the mayor's criminal justice counsel room, Allegro said.

"We closed the building up for a search of anybody who didn't belong, but all we found was a deputy city attorney working late," he said.

Explosion, fire break out

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (AP) — An explosion and fire occurred this morning in a plant where propellants for missiles are mixed, causing some injuries, authorities say.

Box Elder County sheriff's dispatcher Sharon Barker said a "major" explosion occurred at about 4 a.m. at the Thiokol plant about 15 miles west of here.

Firefighters were battling a blaze that followed the explosion and were unable to get into the building to determine whether unconfirmed reports of deaths were true, said county sheriff's dispatcher Bill Hughes.

Injuries were reported and emergency personnel from Brigham City, Tremonton and Ogden had gone to the scene, said Sgt. Jess Palmer of the Brigham City Police Department. But officials said Thiokol had its own emergency personnel and some of the local government units later were recalled.

Palmer said he didn't know the extent of the injuries.

The explosion occurred at a section of the plant where propellants for missiles are mixed, he said.

Pentagon billed $3,404 per hour

WASHINGTON (AP) — While a defense contractor was charging the Pentagon $3,404 per man-hour to build missiles, some workers were lounging and others were making black boxes to pirate cable television movies, according to Senate critics of Pentagon waste and fraud.

The accusations were made Thursday by Republican Sens. William V. Roth Jr. of Delaware and Charles H. Percy of Illinois as Roth's Governmental Affairs Committee continued its probe of military contracts.

Percy said he is receiving mounting evidence from Defense Department sources that Hughes Aircraft Co. was paid "$3,404 per standard work hour for 93 Maverick missiles."

"We learned that hands-on machinists and laborers who did the work at Hughes' Tucson plant were typically paid between $4 and $14 an hour," Percy said. "Including reasonable overhead and other costs, I could understand a contractor charging the Air Force $30 or $35 an hour for the work of employees like these. But $3,404?

"I realize, as Hughes has asserted, that these were developmental missiles built for testing purposes, so they may have required some special machining and reworking, adding to their cost," he said.

"But I cannot understand how each of these missiles could possibly have cost anywhere close to what they did, had this been an efficient operation," added Percy, who said he had "falsified time-cards" to support his argument.

Roth said a Pentagon audit determined that "plant employees were idle an average of 14 percent of the time, excluding lunch time, preparation for work and other normal work breaks.

"According to reports by government and company informants, employees had so much time on their hands that they were building HBO television receiver sets illegally on company equipment and apparently selling them," Roth said.

Percy said sources reported that "several Hughes employees, including at least one executive, may have these receivers at their homes. The materials and time to make this illegal device have been charged to the taxpayers."

Hal Watkins, a spokesman for Hughes, said that "we believe many of the allegations are untrue, exaggerations of the facts as we understand them or are based on misunderstandings of complex contractual data."

He said the company believes the $3,404 figure "is calculated improperly, and even if it weren't, it has no significance in the real world as a measure of costs."

THE BETTER HALF

"Now I've seen everything — a salad bar with a happy hour and a bouncer!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, March 3, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Celebrities sharing your birthday include pitchers Jim Wright of the Chicago Cubs and Neal Heaton of the Cleveland Indians, Lee Bouvier Radziwill, golfer Julius Boros and football's Randy Gradishar. Also born on this date: Alexander Graham Bell, actress Jean Harlow and baseball's Willie Keeler. Showing greater consideration for mate's needs will bring the two of you closer together. Let professionals provide the legal and accounting help you require. Your talents lie elsewhere. Those who are willing to work long hours will make the largest gains. Be sure loved ones understand the need for any sacrifices they are asked to make.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Concentration could be difficult today. Try to get outdoors and get the exercise you don't have time for during the work week. Romance may be very expensive now.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A good weekend for forming friendships and launching a new romantic plan. Look for fresh outlets for your creative and artistic talents. Clear the air with a family member.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Treat older family members with more affection and consideration. Even if they are difficult, they have contributed greatly to where you are today. Avoid any risky financial activity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Good luck and kind friends make this a joyful day. Romance blossoms when you find someone who is your intellectual equal. You now know what you want out of life.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your talent for making money gets the respect it deserves. Developments at home require your immediate attention. Treat loved ones as a full partner and domestic life will become much happier.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Others may not share your expansive mood. A gesture of good will helps to ease tension in your neighborhood. Romance demands more of your time. Call and catch up on family news.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Tackle household chores with zeal. A helpful hint saves you time and energy. Promote a positive attitude among the small fry. Mate or partner is more supportive than in the recent past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Use today to catch up on personal chores. You need to find a way to reap better rewards from your efforts. Free entertainment has tremendous appeal for those on a budget.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A child's birthday may be on your mind. The mail brings welcome financial news, perhaps even a check. A great day for making new social contacts. Join a club or civic group.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A change in lifestyle holds special appeal now. Things come into sharper focus. You see exactly what you must do. A friend or neighbor shares a wonderful secret.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Involvement in community affairs will bring happiness to your entire family. Others are receptive to your ideas. Speak from the heart when trying to resolve a frustrating situation. You win big!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Tread lightly when it comes to discussing a teenager's problem. Eventually he or she will seek you out. Romance is looking up. Teamwork swells the profits from a weekend business.

PBS looks at nuclear industry

NEW YORK (AP) — The qualifications of the news media to cover the nuclear power industry, soundly criticized in the aftermath of the Three Mile Island accident, are examined Friday night on public television's "Inside Story."

"Nuclear Power and the Press" focuses on the Arizona media's coverage — or lack thereof — of the huge Palo Verde plant being built 55 miles west of Phoenix.

But it offers some general insight on how these gigantic power reactors can be built from coast to coast with huge cost overruns and with defect after defect — but without sufficiently probing coverage by the local media.

The program focuses on the relationship between the Arizona media and the plant's owners, although it could have just as easily picked one of at least two dozen other sites around the country where the story is the same.

On one side are the reporters. They are not scientists. Since nuclear plants are built in rural areas, newspapers and TV stations most often aren't nearby. The media outlets that are close tend to be smaller.

In either case, resources are limited.

Anchor Hodding Carter interviewed a half dozen reporters, who discussed allegations of lies and coverups by the utilities, as well their own inadequacies.

"This is our first experience in Arizona with nuclear power. We don't know what can go wrong because we don't even know how it works when it's going right," Howard Fischer of the Arizona Daily Star told Carter.

The reporters admit that, in the early days of the Palo Verde story, little attention was paid to the plant's opponents, who were portrayed at the time as "rag hippies," according to one reporter interviewed.

As time went on, though, the lawyers and scientists representing the opposition began to get attention and began to make sense, the reporters said.

On the other side of the issue is the utility — in this case, Arizona Public Service. Officials appear on the program to deny any wrongdoing and tell Carter their side of the press-utility relationship.

Carter makes a big issue out of the relationship between the publisher of The Arizona Republic and The Phoenix Gazette, who has editorially endorsed the plant, and the chairman of the board of Arizona Public Service.

Darrow "Duke" Tully, publisher of both newspapers, explains on the program that he and Keith Turley, the utility's chairman, are "close friends." But, Tully added, that doesn't necessarily mean there is a conflict of interest.

Trump Coup Tommy could not remember when last he had enjoyed himself so much. On the first hand of the rubber he had made a grand slam with a quadruple grand coup — a first even for him. As readers are well aware, Tommy has the curious ability to perform like a world champion whenever trumps break badly, while butchering hands that even a neophyte would make.

Tommy picked up a fair hand on the second deal, and even though East opened the bidding to his right, he was soon in four spades. Actually, with his three aces, the raise to game was only slightly aggressive and justified by the vulnerability.

West led the queen of his partner's suit. Tommy held up the ace one round, then crossed to the table with the king of clubs to lead the queen of trumps. East did not cover, and when West showed out, Tommy's eyes lit up.

He ruffed a heart in hand and led a diamond to the queen and ace. With nothing better to do, East returned a diamond. Tommy won on the board and led the jack of trumps. East covered with the king, and Tommy allowed him to hold the trick. That completed the defensive book and reduced the hand to this position:

NORTH

If East led a heart, declarer would discard a diamond from hand while ruffing on the table with the nine. He would then take the marked trump finesse for the ten and make the balance. So East exited with a trump.

Tommy won the eight, as West safely let go of a club. But when Tommy next cashed the ace of trumps, West was hopelessly squeezed. No matter which suit he discarded, declarer would score the long card in that suit for his game-going trick.

Static pollution?

Uh oh! Just when you thought it was safe to go back in the water — if you could find any!

Along comes U.S. News & World Report with a report on a new "public enemy." And this one is — you guessed it! Static pollution.

Don't say you never heard of static pollution! The magazine says, "An epidemic of high-tech static blamed for disrupting operations from jet flights to drunk-driving tests is triggering demands for curbs on electronic emissions."

In fact, the magazine says, the emissions — known as "hash" or "noise" to technicians — "is an unwanted byproduct of the electronic age, but it is increasingly common as the use of computers and other electrical equipment spreads."

Computer experts say that any electrical device gives off impulses that travel through the air as radio waves. "Now," the magazine says, "the powerful machines used by both individuals and big organizations are jamming a variety of sensitive equipment from police transmissions to the space shuttle."

The space shuttle reference was made because during the first landing of the space shuttle Columbia, stray radiation from cameras of TV crews covering the event interrupted communications between the astronauts and ground controllers. But the static pollution being experienced has become more than a nuisance in other ways, too. In West Virginia, near the Green Bank Observatory, for example, static from hair dryers and electric blankets destroyed the work of two astronomers using ultra-sensitive radio telescopes to study distant galaxies.

Without a doubt something must be done. Well, what about it? Do we give up television, hair dryers or electric blankets?

America's economy

The rest of the world always keeps a sharp eye on the American economy, and is influenced by its ups and downs. France is an example, and many of its economists and financiers as well as those in other European nations believe our economic recovery is solid and is here to stay for years to come.

Bernard D. Kaplan, European correspondent for The Hearst Newspapers, wrote recently about how favorably a Frenchman views the fiscal situation in the USA. Mr. Kaplan quoted Alex de takascy, a Paris banker and veteran of the international investment scene, who said:

"Americans have a strange inclination to underrate their own economic advantages. Most of the billions which have transferred to the U.S. over the past four years are in for the long term. It's not speculative money in the sense of being poised to pull out at the first scent of a short term loss ... It's in America because it thinks that is definitley the place to be for the forseeable future, at least until the year 2000."

That is long-range thinking by a hard-headed banker. He added that "... America is regarded as having firmly jumped aboard the 'new economic revolution' with both feet ...."

Europe's view of the American economy should be must reading for the feint of heart and week of knees in this nation.

Another View:

New Hartthrob

Sen. Gary Hart's victory in the Democratic primary in New Hampshire makes the Coloradan's challenge for leadership of his party credible. Does it make Hart himself credible? That is a question that must be answered on the larger stage of presidential politics. It cannot come from a fraction of the ballots in a state with a fraction of 1 percent of all American voters.

The thrill of the chase inevitably will make those who are fascinated with the details of a system that in a matter of hours can make one candidate powerful and another powerless pay closer attention to Hart and to what he says. That will be a good thing, both for Hart and for the voters. But it will be good only if the analysts who consider themselves to be on the fast inside lane of politics resist a temptation to overdo the story to the exclusion of other candidates, a temptation that too often has prevailed in past New Hampshire elections.

Former Minnesota Sen. Eugene McCarthy comes most easily to mind in connection with the New Hampshire primary. He lost to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson in the 1968 primary, but the fact that he came close campaigning against the Vietnam War eventually was used to support a notion that Johnson was washed up.

Cheering on an underdog is very much a part of the American character. So is the fairly common feeling that it is good for front-runners to take it on the chin now and then if only to keep them humble.

But pulling for an underdog is not always wise in a process as important as choosing a president, as was demonstrated in 1976 when Jimmy Carter came from nowhere and toppled Democrats who thought they had a more valid claim on the presidency than he.

Hart clearly was a persuasive campaigner in New Hampshire, a young man trying to persuade young Democrats that the generation gap has real meaning. But the dialogue to date has been sparse on facts, limited to something like this: There is a new Democratic Party. What is it? Anything that is not the old Democratic Party.

The most important thing Hart did was show that he somehow knew what he was talking about when he said that New Hampshire would shake the Democratic Party down to a contest between him and former Vice President Walter F. Mondale. If that contest in turn shakes down to a serious and detailed debate on issues, then both politics and voters will be well served. If it succeeds in doing no more than making Hart the new glamour figure in American politics without forcing him to be specific on how he would run the country better than anyone else on the scene, then both politics and voters will be ill served.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

One senator rises; another falls

WASHINGTON — Today I'd like to present awards to two members of the Senate: kudos for one, a kick for the other.

Jack Anderson

The kudos goes to Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., for his humanitarian efforts to get American rice shipped to thousands of desperately needy families in the Philippines.

The kick goes to Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, for his efforts to push legislation that would benefit his own oil and gas leases.

Here are the citations that go with the awards:

— Melcher: The 50-year-old senator from the Big Sky country spent this past Christmas holiday in the Philippines, and what he saw there has haunted him ever since. He visited the slums of Manila and saw hordes of hungry children whose parents have been unable to find work in the shattered Philippine economy.

Cardinal Jaime Sin, head of the Roman Catholic Church in the Philippines, appealed to Melcher for help in getting an emergency shipment of food for his starving flock. Melcher, who has two grandchildren of his own, was eager to be of service.

So the prelate wrote a letter to President Reagan, asking for 30,000 tons of rice from America's bulging granaries. The rice would fill the shrunken bellies of 100,000 Filipino families, the cardinal wrote. Melcher promised to deliver the letter to the president personally.

But Melcher, a World War II combat infantryman, found the White House's bureaucratic defenses tougher to penetrate than the Siegfried Line. In the weeks since he has been back, he has been unable to get an appointment with the president to hand-deliver Cardinal Sin's letter, as he promised he would. The best a White House aide offered was to "send a messenger" to pick up the letter. Melcher refused.

On Jan. 17, the senator pleaded his case with Robert McFarlane, the president's national security adviser. He asked that the administration approve Cardinal Sin's appeal for food. Melcher told my associate Lucette Lagnado that McFarlane promised he'd take care of the matter.

So far, he hasn't. Neither has the State Department, the Agency for International Development or the U.S. Embassy in Manila. When U.S. Ambassador Michael Armacost returned to Washington early last month, Melcher collared him and told him of the trouble he'd had trying to deliver the cardinal's letter. Armacost suggested he might have more luck if he enlisted a Republican ally.

Melcher took the suggestion. He wrote a letter to the president, outlining the hunger problem in the Philippines and Cardinal Sin's hopes of alleviating it with American rice. Then he got Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, to cosign the letter.

With Helms' clout, Melcher may yet deliver the cardinal's appeal — and the slum kids of Manila won't have to go to bed hungry.

— Murkowski: One of Big Oil's best friends on the Energy Committee, he has been enthusiastic lately in his support of a new trans-Alaska pipeline that would make North Slope natural gas available for sale to Japan, Taiwan and South Korea. He also proposed an amendment to the Export Administration Act that would legalize sale of Alaskan crude to foreign countries.

The new pipeline, which needs congressional approval before it can be used to ship gas, could make millions for Exxon, ARCO, Sohio and other big oil companies that own most of the gas leases in the region.

It could also be a bonanza for a cooperative venture of which Murkowski owns about 2 percent; its leases are in the Prudhoe Bay area that would be served by the proposed pipeline.

How much Murkowski might net if the pipeline he's pushing gets approval is impossible to figure. But one leaseholder told my associate Jock Hatfield: "You could make a killing. ... Even if you have a few hundred acres next to a productive well, it's big money."

Murkowski, a former Fairbanks banker, has already more than doubled his original 1979 investment in the co-op. According to his 1981 financial disclosure statement, the holdings were worth between $15,000 and $50,000. A year later, his share of the co-op's sale of a lease to Murphy Oil amounted to $75,000, and his share of the co-op's 13 remaining leases is valued at $50,000 to $100,000.

Murkowski sees no conflict of interest in his pipeline promotion efforts, which included a trip to the Far East to drum up buyers for the pipeline's future gas shipments. He said buy-and-sell decisions on the leases — which may or may not yield gas — are made by the co-op, and he has no contact with it.

And the Senate's conflict-of-interest rules are so accommodating that he's safe from censure. A senator would have to get a bill passed that affects only himself to be in violation.

INSIDE REPORT:

Another Middle East crisis?

WASHINGTON — By refusing public support for Iraq in its long and bloody war against Iran's Islamic radicalism, Secretary of State George Shultz may inadvertently tilt the Iraqis into using the dread Exocet missile — an act that could plunge the strategically vital Persian Gulf into general war.

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

That portends another American disaster in the Middle East that would dwarf Shultz's Lebanon fiasco in ill effects for the U.S. At least partly in response to American persuasion, Iraq so far has not used the French-made antiship missile that gave Argentina its one success against Great Britain in the Falkland Islands war. But official U.S. "neutrality" ordered by Shultz could lead to Iraqi use of the Exocet against Iranian tankers. Indeed, reports early this week that Iraq attacked Iranian docking facilities at Kharq Island could be the curtain-raiser.

The inevitable Iranian counterattack to any use of the Exocet almost certainly would climax with an effort to close the Strait of Hormuz. Since oil to Japan, Western Europe and (to a much lesser extent) the U.S. flows through the bottleneck entrance to the Persian Gulf, President Reagan has repeatedly pledged to do whatever is needed to keep the oil lanes open.

Part of the Iranian response could involve an irrational attack on one of the militarily weak, oil-rich Gulf states such as Kuwait, even though they play no part in the Iran-Iraq war. Understandably, these states have no great hope of help from Washington. Public U.S. neutrality toward Iraq, under attack by the world's most rabidly anti-American country, is incomprehensible to Arab states — starting with Iraq itself.

Shultz's neutrality policy can be explained by a long view of history which sees Iran, though temporarily consumed by madness, ultimately playing a more important role than smaller, weaker Iraq. But Arabs suspect another motive: Shultz's reluctance to oppose Israel, which fears and distrusts Iraq while maintaining secret sympathy for Iran.

Actually, the Reagan administration behind the scenes is assisting Iraq a little. It has promised to help build a new Iraqi pipeline across Jordan and is pressuring Great Britain to stop selling Iran top-grade war material.

But Iraq wants a public signal of American support. So do all the small Persian Gulf states quaking with fear over the export of Khomeini-style Shi'ite radicalism.

Unless President Reagan changes Shultz's neutrality edict and signals Saudi Arabia and the Gulf states it will not let the Ayatollah Khomeini's radical Shi'ite movement take over Iraq, the stage is set for a harsh new question in the wake of the disgrace in Lebanon: What is America's friendship worth? Washington's even hand toward Iran, following months of vitriolic criticism of Syria, has damaged Saudi Arabia's close relationship with the U.S.

Iraq's forbearance in the use of its 10 to 20 Exocet missiles plus the Super-Etendard aircraft (also made by France) to carry and fire them is solely the result of Shultz's appeals. Iraq has long wanted to smooth its relations with the U.S. and the two countries are closer to upgrading their arms-length diplomacy than they have been for years. In response to American requests, the Iraqi government has quietly smothered its principal terrorist operation, the Abu Nidal Palestinian group.

But American neutrality in Iraq's moment of gravest danger is wearing thin Baghdad's good will. Iranian air attacks have reduced Iraq's oil sales to well under 1 million barrels a day, in sharp contrast to Iran's shipments of 2.2 million. That difference is enough to finance the cost of the world's longest and bloodiest ongoing war.

Present policy has its critics in the administration outside the State Department, including the White House. "There is nothing to be gained by even-handedness," one such official told us, "and a lot to be lost if Iraq sees our neutrality as costing it that marginal edge in the war that could turn back Iran."

In the Middle East, Shultz's neutrality is seen as another example of his inability in office to treat with Arab states on a basis of fairness. The full cost of those mistakes has not yet been computed. If blindness to reasonable Arab expectations in Baghdad and elsewhere persists, the costs could be far larger than the humiliation of Beirut.

CHARLEY REESE

Lebanon: Lesson in blundering

The Syrians have defeated U.S. policy in Lebanon. They prevented us from getting what we wanted — an independent Lebanon at peace with Israel and instead got what they wanted — a Syrian controlled Lebanon hostile to Israel.

Charley Reese

You can try to dress it up with words and excuses, as no doubt the Reagan Administration will do, but the United States has been handed a major defeat.

The implictions are serious, too. The Soviet Union has demonstrated to the world that it can frustrate United States policy in the Middle East. Every Arab leader will note that it was the Soviet ally, Syria, which triumphed over the American ally, the government of Amin Gemayel. Arabs respect strength, and they are the world's champion opportunists. In their minds, the stock of the Soviet Union has gone up and the stock of the United States has gone down.

The ash-canning of the agreement with Israel, which was really a peace treaty, is most dangerous. It means that a lawfully elected government can be intimidated by a totalitarian neighbor into repudiating an agreement which its parliament had accepted. This will not set well at all with the Israelis who made an enormous sacrifice to get a peace treaty with Egypt which the Egyptians are virtually ignoring.

If I were the President of Egypt, I'd be more careful about ignoring that peace treaty lest I wake up one morning to find the Israeli Defense forces back on the banks of the Suez Canal.

It means, of course, that Israel cannot get out of Lebanon which it very badly wanted to do. If the Israelis get out now, they will be right back where they started with the PLO and now the Syrians in southern Lebanon lobbing rockets and shells into Israeli towns.

Mr. Reagan himself is responsible for this mess. Either he got good advice and ignored it or he got bad advice and took it, but our involvement in Lebanon has been one blunder after another. If nothing else, we should learn from our mistakes.

If in fact an independent Lebanon at peace with Israel is what we wanted, the time to have pursued that was in the summer of 1982 when the Israelis first went in to rout the PLO. Thier quick, smashing defeat of the PLO and the Syrians had the opposition stunned and demoralized. If Mr. Reagan had sent the fleet in support of the Israelis, the Syrians could have been forced out at a relatively low cost.

But, no, Mr. Reagan succumbed the Arab lobby, the American left, and the historical liberals. He chastized the Israelis and demanded that they get out of Lebanon. He even engineered the rescue of the Soviet Union's favorite terrorist organization from Beirut.

That was blunder number one. Blunder number two was sending the Marines in as a peacekeeping force. Now that it was too late, Mr. Reagan suddenly decided he wanted a unified Lebanon. Blunder number three was negotiating the withdrawal agreement between Lebanon and Israel without including the Syrians.

The Israelis warned us this was a mistake but the State Department geniuses insisted they knew what they were doing. What they were doing was setting up the United States for a fall.

The very first demand the Syrians and their allies made to the Lebanese president was that he scrap the agreement we had insisted he make. We put Gemayel into an impossible situation. On the one hand, we said don't scrap the agreement but make a deal with the factions. He couldn't make a deal because we were, in effect, forbidding him for making the concession the Moslem factions said was necessary even to discuss reconciliation.

The Marines, in the meantime, were likewise put into an impossible situation. They were ordered to be merely present. They could not fight alongside the Lebanese Army which meant the Lebanese Army was eventually going to lose. On the other hand, the Marines were told to shoot back if they were fired upon. Well, the instant the first Marine bullet killed the first Moslem, the Moslems considered the Marines as no longer peace-keepers but as allies of the Lebanese Army. Thus, the Marines got the worst of both worlds. They were targeted by the enemy as an ally of Gemayel but they were forbidden to help Gemayel defeat the enemy.

This is the same pattern of blundering that got us into Vietnam. The president never had a clear idea of what he wanted to do, what the risks were, what the price would be. He simply reacted on a piece-meal basis to other peoples actions.

Jackie Coogan dies

Jackie Coogan

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jackie Coogan, who shot to fame as a 4-year-old breaking windows for Charlie Chaplin in "The Kid," was a true professional and a "gutsy guy" with a "gargantuan appetite" for life, fellow actors said after his death at 69.

Coogan, who became the first major child movie star when "The Kid" came out in 1920 and who later charmed the TV generation as the eccentric Uncle Fester in "The Addams Family," suffered cardiac arrest and died Thursday at Santa Monica Hospital.

"He had a great lust for life," said actor-director John Astin, who worked with Coogan in "The Addams Family."

As an actor, Coogan was "very professional and also had one of the best senses of humor that I ever ran across," said Jackie Cooper, another former child film star.

Cooper recalled Coogan as "a gutsy guy, his own man" who stood up to his mother and stepfather over the $4 million he earned as a child star — a fortune Coogan discovered had been squandered.

In 1938, he sued his mother and stepfather, eventually settling out of court for $150,000. The publicity led to the passage of the so-called Coogan Law, which puts all juvenile earnings into court-administered trust funds.

Born Oct. 26, 1914, Coogan made his screen debut when he was 16 months old and was discovered at age 4 by Chaplin in his parents' vaudeville act.

Later, Coogan appeared in "Peck's Bad Boy," "Oliver Twist," "My Boy," "Daddy," "Old Clothes," and as a teen-ager in such talkies as "Tom Sawyer" and "Huckleberry Finn."

Coogan remained active in TV and on the stage through the 1960s. His last theatrical effort was "The Escape Artist" in 1980, a never-released Francis Ford Coppola film.

Coogan had suffered several strokes and his kidneys failed four years ago.

He was undergoing kidney dialysis when his blood pressure dropped, and he was taken at 11:50 a.m. to the hospital, where he suffered cardiac arrest, a spokesman said. He never regained consciousness. He died at 1:32 p.m., hospital spokeswoman Mary Isaacs said.

Funeral arrangements were not finalized by late Thursday, but the ceremony would be open to the public, family members said.

Lillian Gish

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — "She was there at the birth of an art form," said Douglas Fairbanks Jr. as the film world saluted Lillian Gish, the last great star of the silent movie era.

Miss Gish, 90, was presented Thursday night with the Life Achievement Award of the American Film Institute, the second woman recipient of the 12-year-old honor. Bette Davis won the award in 1977.

It was an evening for women achievers in the movie world, and Miss Gish presided at the table of honor in the Beverly Hilton ballroom with stars Sally Field, Jessica Lange, Jeanne Moreau, Sissy Spacek, Mary Steenburgen, Lily Tomlin and Cicily Tyson.

The 12th presentation of the AFI Life Achievement Award attracted an extraordinary outpouring of celebrities including Cary Grant, Fred Astaire, Ed Asner, Donald O'Conner, Dennis Weaver, Telly Savalas, Henry Winkler and Stefanie Powers.

The program was taped by CBS for presentation at a date not yet announced.

NEW YORK (AP) — Mick Jagger, the high-strutting lead singer of the Rolling Stones, and his longtime girlfriend, model Jerry Hall, became the parents of an 8-pound, 2-ounce baby girl today, a hospital official said.

"Both mother and baby are now in good condition," said M. Parris, administrator at Lenox Hill Hospital.

The infant, whose name has not yet been selected, was born at 1:37 a.m., she said.

The 40-year-old Jagger has one other daughter, Jade, 12, from his marriage to ex-wife Bianca.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fresh from winning a record eight Grammys, Michael Jackson raked in more honors at the annual Black Gold Awards honoring top achievers in soul music, and Gladys Knight and Herbie Hancock shared in the laurels.

Jackson won honors for top male vocalist, single and album of the year and best video performance at ceremonies that were taped at the Cocoanut Grove nightclub Wednesday night for syndicated broadcast in March and April.

"Rockit," the Herbie Hancock tune that won a rhythm & blues instrumental Grammy on Tuesday night, was named instrumental record of the year.

Gladys Knight was named top female vocalist and Gladys Knight and the Pips took the top vocal group award.

Quincy Jones, Jackson's co-producer on his top-selling album "Thriller," was tabbed as record producer of the year. Lionel Richie's calypso-tinged "All Night Long" won as song of the year.

Jackson's sister, Janet Jackson, picked up the hottest female newcomer prize. Kashif earned the male newcomer award, and Klique scored as best new group.

Veteran blues singer Joe Williams won the black legend award.

Lou Rawls, Gladys Knight and Deniece Williams shared emcee chores for the two-hour production by the Dick Clark Company. The show featured a special tribute to the late Jackie Wilson and performances by Angela Bofill, Evelyn "Champagne" King, Klique, Gladys Knight & the Pips, Patti LaBelle and Jeffrey Osborne.

BOSTON (AP) — Splitsville for comic Joe Piscopo and "Saturday Night Live"? Probably!

Piscopo said Thursday he's unlikely to return to the NBC network show next season.

He denied rumors that he doesn't get along with the "Saturday Night Live" crew. "It's some other folks," Piscopo said on WBZ-TV's "Live on Four."

He also said it would be hard to return to the program without his "buddy" Eddie Murphy, who left the show last week.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dean Martin has undergone an emergency appendectomy and is expected to be out of the hospital by the weekend.

"The entertainer is doing well," said a spokesman at Cedars-Sinai Hospital on Thursday.

The surgery was performed Wednesday morning.

"It was totally routine. Everything is fine," said a spokesman for the 66-year-old Martin, who has made about 50 movies and earned more than a dozen gold records.

Martin had stomach pain for a few days. The decision to operate was made after he went in for a checkup Tuesday night.

Gemayel expected to cancel withdrawal pact

Agreement would call for new cease-fire in Lebanon

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Amin Gemayel is expected to call for a new cease-fire among Lebanon's warring factions within two days and announce cancellation of the troop withdrawal pact with Israel, Lebanese newspapers and radio stations said today.

Gemayel returned to his presidential palace this morning after a two-day visit with Syrian President Hafez Assad, who supports the Druse and Shiite Moslem rebels opposing Gemayel's government.

The Lebanese president left Syria on Thursday evening, and airport and hotel sources said he spent the night on the Greek island of Rhodes before returning today to Beirut. The visit to Syria was his first since assuming power in September 1982.

Syria has demanded cancellation of the Israeli-Lebanese accord that was reached with the help of the United States in May 1983. Lebanon's state radio said Thursday that Gemayel and Assad agreed on a "process' for scrapping the pact, but gave no details.

A SPOKESMAN for Assad described the talks as "positive and fruitful" and said there would be tangible results "within the next few days."

Opposition spokesmen said Druse leader Walid Jumblatt and Shiite leader Nabih Berri left Beirut for Damascus today for talks with Assad and Syria's foreign minister, Abdul-Halim Khaddam, on the agreements made between Gemayel and Assad.

Jumblatt earlier told reporters he was unwilling to join reconciliation talks unless Gemayel was put on trial for ordering artillery attacks on Druse and Shiite communities.

In Beirut, fighting flared through the night between government troops and Moslem militias along the "green line" dividing the Moslem half of the city from the predominantly Christian eastern half.

Police said eight people were killed and 24 wounded between Thursday afternoon and this morning.

IN THE MONTH of February, a total of 497 Lebanese were killed and 911 wounded in civil warfare in Beirut and the hills around the capital, police said. Most of the victims are thought to be civilians, but the official report did not give a breakdown.

Gemayel's expected nationwide address announcing abrogation of the agreement would also call for a new cease-fire in Lebanon's civil war and set a date for warring Moslem and Christian leaders to hold reconciliation talks in Switzerland, according to local news reports.

The reports said Gemayel and Assad agreed that constitutional reforms should be introduced to give Moslems an equal share of power with Christians and that a national coalition Cabinet should be formed.

The leftist newspaper As-Safir, which is close to the Druse and Shiites, said the Damascus talks also covered guarantees by Syria that the rights of Lebanon's Christians would be protected.

As-Safir quoted unnamed Syrian sources as saying Gemayel would announce Lebanon's adherence to the 1949 armistice agreement with Israel after scrapping the withdrawal accord.

THE PAPER SAID Gemayel would assure Israel that he would work out security guarantees once its forces withdraw to the international border defined in the 1949 agreement.

Most Israeli newspapers said abrogation of the May 17 accord would lead to a new redeployment by Israeli troops in Lebanon and a de facto partition of the country into Israeli and Syrian zones.

In Washington, Israel's defense minister, Moshe Arens, told reporters that the United States and Israel can still have influence in Lebanon if they work together more closely.

"In the hands of Israel and the United States there are still several cards with which to influence the future of Lebanon," he said, Israel Radio reported, but he did not elaborate on what steps the two countries might take.

He was in the United States to attend the funeral of his brother, an American law professor.

Syria has an estimated 30,000 troops in northern and eastern Lebanon, while Israel maintains a 15,000-strong force in southern Lebanon.

In Paris, the French Foreign Ministry said Thursday that France "cannot alone bear the responsibility of the international community in Lebanon" but stopped short of saying it would withdraw its troops.

Two airlines plan cut rates

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The competition for air passengers to London is taking off with two British airlines planning to offer cut-rate fares as low as $75, both less than the cheapest flights offered by People Express.

British Caledonian Airways says it plans $75 one-way flights between Kennedy Airport in New York and Gatwick Airport outside London.

If approved by U.S. and British aviation authorities, the fare would begin April 1, 1985, when a British-American moratorium on new trans-Atlantic airlines ends.

American record tycoon Richard Branson says he hopes to launch Virgin Atlantic, a cut-rate airline that would fly between Gatwick and Newark, at a one-way price of $148.50.

The prices in dollars could change by April 1985 because of currency exchange fluctuations. But Branson's proposed rate is 50 cents below the $149 fare charged by Newark-based People Express, which currently offers the lowest advertised rate.

The British Civil Aviation Authority began Thursday conducting hearings on the bids by British Caledonian and the U.S. millionaire, whose project British Caledonian is trying to block.

John Ellis, a British Caledonian spokesman, said his airline's cheap fares would be part of a new arrangement to provide four classes of service aboard Boeing 747 and Douglas DC-10 wide-body planes.

Ellis said Virgin Atlantic has "just a single aircraft and unproved standards of operation and service," while British Caledonian is "an established carrier with the strength and experience to endure the rigors of a very tough market."

British Caledonian flew to New York until the 1974 oil crisis, and in 1977 resumed trans-Atlantic flights serving Houston, Dallas-Fort Worth, Atlanta, St. Louis and San Juan, Puerto Rico, he said. Two years ago, it launched fights to Los Angeles.

However, Randolph Fields, an American lawyer who will be president of Virgin Atlantic, said British Caledonian's offer was "a sick joke" and added it was "a slur" to call his company inexperienced.

He said his firm is hiring four former employees of defunct Laker Airlines, which pioneered cheap trans-Atlantic flights in the mid-1970s. Laker collapsed in 1982, claiming the major airlines had ganged up against it.

Branson said he plans to lease Boeing 747s for daily flights. He added that British Caledonian was "running scared" and that he is willing to cut the price of a one-way seat from $148.50 to $73.50 if necessary to compete.

He said he expects to carry 185,000 passengers to and from London in the first year.

Russell Marchetta, a People Express spokesman, said the airline had no immediate plans to change its fare between Newark and London.

"We're not going to charge low fares just to be the lowest in the market and take a loss. We've never charged a price where we couldn't make money," Marchetta said.

He said People Express' five round trips per week are "flying about 85 percent full and we're making money on them." He said service will be increased to seven days a week beginning April 1.

After jail release, activist vows to rejoin struggle

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The founder of South-West Africa's independence movement emerged defiant from 16 years in South African prisons and vowed to rejoin the struggle.

"This is not my freedom," Hermann Toivo Ya Toivo, 59, told supporters late Thursday. "I went to jail for the freedom of my people, I went to jail for the freedom of my country. I will not be free until they are free."

Toivo's release from Windhoek Central Prison, in the capital of the South African-ruled territory of South-West Africa, or Namibia, came two days after he was transferred from Robben Island prison off the coast from Cape Town.

Namibia lies along the Atlantic Ocean between South Africa and Angola, which has sheltered Namibian guerrillas and was invaded by South African forces hunting them.

South African and Angolan military teams met Thursday to begin monitoring South Africa's troop withdrawal from southern Angola, announced by South Africa in January after U.S. mediation.

The commission met at Cuvelai, site of a major battle in January in which South Africa claims to have killed hundreds of Angolan and guerrilla fighters.

In another development, South African Foreign Minister R.F. Botha met Mozambique's economics minister, Jacinto Veloso, in Cape Town today, and official sources said Veloso might also meet Prime Minister P.W. Botha.

The sources said the two countries were likely to initial a non-aggression treaty, which would be a major breakthrough in South Africa's relations with its black Marxist-ruled neighbors.

But the formal signing, contrary to earlier speculation, was not expected until a summit could be arranged between Prime Minister Botha and Mozambican President Samora Machel.

The exiled leaders of the South-West Africa People's Organization, which has been fighting for 17 years to end South African rule over Namibia, have agreed to give the South Africa-Angola peace initiative a chance.

Peace initiative to continue in Canada

OTTAWA (AP) — Canadian officials say they will carry on the global peace initiative started by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, even though Trudeau has announced his resignation.

But the effort will not have the visibility of Trudeau's recent whirlwind tour of more than a dozen world capitals in search of a formula to ease East-West tensions.

Trudeau told Parliament last month that his personal involvement in the initiative would be "less intensive" in the future.

He cited an improvement in the tone of East-West dialogue, without explicitly taking credit for the change. He also set out a 10-point list of principles to which he said both sides can agree — beginning with the statement that a nuclear war cannot be won.

Trudeau launched his campaign in October, saying nuclear disarmament and the threat of war were issues too important to leave to the superpowers — the United States and Soviet Union.

He then set out on an almost frantic schedule taking him to London, Paris, Rome, Bonn, Brussels, the Hague, Peking, New Delhi, Prague, Berlin, Bucharest and the United Nations.

Trudeau will stay in office until his Liberal Party picks a new leader at a convention, expected in late June. The choice will automatically become prime minister, but must set a date for national elections before spring of 1985.

AP Laserphoto

Former Canadian Finance Minister John Turner is said to be a top choice for the leadership of the Liberal Party.

The early favorite as a successor is Toronto lawyer John Turner, who quit as finance minister in 1975 in a disagreement with Trudeau and has been out of politics but quietly planning for a return ever since.

Whoever succeeds Trudeau will be little known on the international scene and would not be in a position to lend personal prestige to the peace initiative.

If the new leader takes over in late June, as expected, Trudeau will have an opportunity to make a final pitch for his ideas at the annual summit of the seven most powerful industrial democracies, scheduled this year for early June in London.

UK bops Rebels, takes 35th SEC crown

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Sam Bowie had 20 points, a career-high 19 rebounds and lot to think about as Kentucky won its 35th regular-season Southeastern Conference basketball title.

Still smarting from a 63-58 loss Monday night at Tennessee, Coach Joe B. Hall had put his Wildcats through two days of strenuous workouts in preparation for Mississippi.

Kentucky responded with a 76-57 victory that boosted its record to 22-4, 13-4 in the league. And when Louisiana State lost to Vanderbilt, 76-68, the Wildcats had clinched the SEC title.

Even in victory, Hall could not erase the memory of the game at Tennessee, where Kentucky has won just once in 12 years.

Kentucky outrebounded Mississippi 46-25 in totally dominating Ole Miss, which is in last place in the SEC.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was: No. 5 DePaul 65, South Carolina 56; No. 6 Oklahoma 79, Nebraska 70; Cal-Irvine 77, No. 7 Nevada-Las Vegas 74; Brigham Young 83, No. 8 Texas-El Paso 65; No. 9 Tulsa 126, Indiana State 102; No. 10 Illinois 73, Ohio State 58; UCLA 73, No. 13 Washington 59, and No. 18 Temple 69, Penn State 66.

College Basketball

Top Ten

DePaul, 23-2, completed what it called a "pay back" sweep with its victory over South Carolina, beating all 10 teams that beat the Blue Demons last year. Tyrone Corbin and Tony Jackson each had 12 points for DePaul, which led by 18 with less than six minutes left in the first half.

All-American Wayman Tisdale scored 31 points and enabled Oklahoma to become the first team to win 13 Big Eight Conference games since 1977-78. Oklahoma, 26-3 and 13-1 in league, scored the final seven points of the half to lead Nebraska 43-33 at intermission, and the Sooners scored the first 10 points of the second half.

Cal-Irvine used a stall in the final five minutes, tied the score 74-74 with 2:42 left on a layup by Bob Thornton and beat Nevada-Las Vegas on Tod Murphy's three-point play with three seconds left. Ben McDonald scored 21 points for the Anteaters in their Pacific Coast Athletic Association triumph. UNLV is 25-3 and 16-2 in the PCAA.

Devin Durrant, the third-leading scorer in the nation, hit 35 points, and Brigham Young held Texas-El Paso scoreless for six minutes late in the game to win the Western Athletic Conference game. Texas-El Paso is 24-3 and 12-3 in the WAC, while BYU has an 11-4 WAC record.

Herb Johnson and Steve Harris led seven Tulsa players in double figures as the Hurricane beat Indiana State in the Missouri Valley Conference. Johnson had 28 points and 14 rebounds, and Harris added 24 points, including 16 of Tulsa's first 20 in the second half. Tulsa, 24-2 and 13-2 in the MVC, matched its season-high point total with its third straight 100-plus game.

Second Ten

Illinois moved back into a tie with Purdue for the Big Ten Conference lead by beating Ohio State behind the 26 points of Efrem Winters and 24 of Bruce Douglas. The Illini and Purdue each have 13-3 conference marks. Illinois is 21-4 overall.

UCLA, which had lost six of its last seven, held off an early second-half spurt by Washington and got 22 points from Ralph Jackson to score an upset over the Pacific 10 Conference leaders. Washington dropped to 20-6 and 13-3 in the conference. The Bruins, 15-10 and 8-7 in conference, led 39-26 at halftime, but the Huskies scored the first 10 points of the second half.

Terence Stransbury scored 29 points, and Jim McLoughlin added 16 to help Temple keep its Atlantic 10 Conference record perfect at Penn State's expense. Trailing 68-66, Penn State missed a chance to tie when Dwight Gibson's jumper was off the mark with less than 10 seconds left. Temple now is 23-3 and 17-0 in the league.

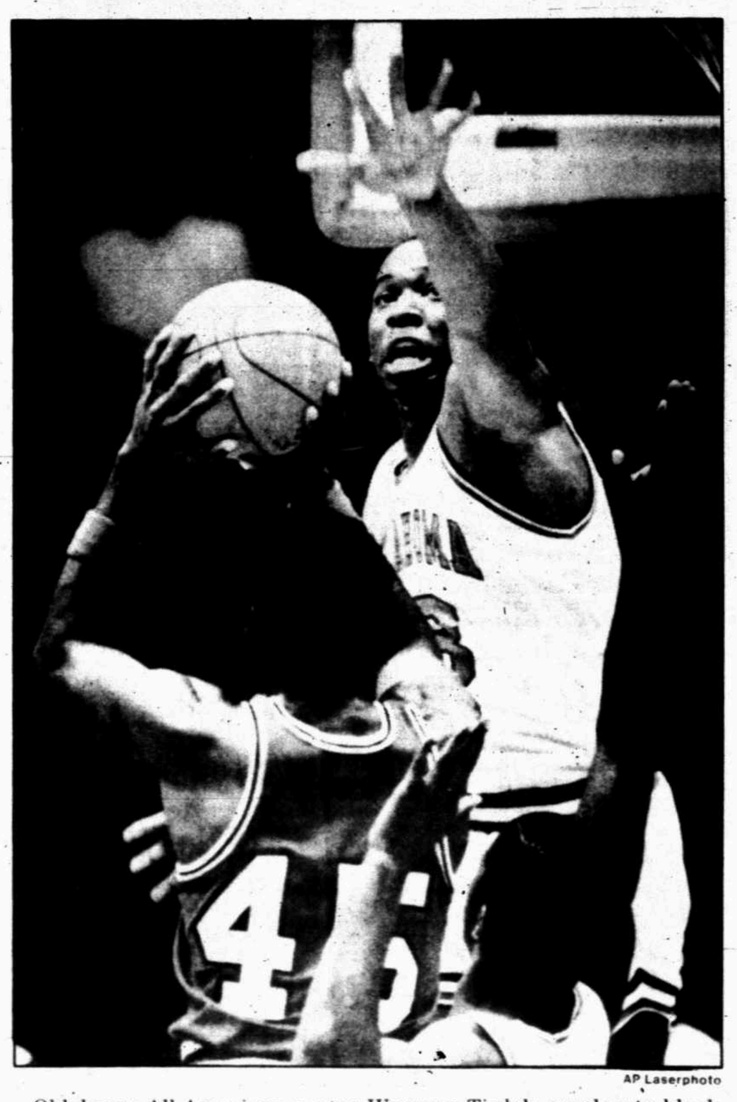

Tournaments

Two conference tournaments, the winners of which get automatic NCAA tournament berths, also were under way.

In the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference tournament semifinals, Iona defeated St. Peter's, N.J., 59-56 with the help of Gary Springer's 16 points, and Fordham beat La Salle 62-60 when Jerry Hobbie hit a jump shot from the top of the key with one second left.

Iona will play Fordham Saturday for the conference title.

Monty Murphy hit eight of 10 free throws in overtime to boost South Carolina State over Bethune-Cookman 71-65, and Dominic Snowden scored 18 points to help Delaware State to a 67-52 victory over Maryland-Eastern Shore in the opening round of the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference tournament.

Regionals: Fort Worth vs. El Paso

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland is hosting the Region I basketball tournament for the fourth year in a row this weekend and Chaparral Center seems ideal this year since it will be Fort Worth against El Paso in first round games tonight.

But with geography out of the way, the so-called "experts" are saying that Saturday's 3 p.m. finals will feature an inter-city Fort Worth shootout.

Fort Worth Dunbar, 36-0 on the season, No. 1 ranked in the state and No. 8 ranked in the nation by USA Today, is the odds on favorite to capture this Region I title and opens that bid at 9 p.m. against 26-5 El Paso Riverside.

THE WILDCATS have won ever game they have played by 10 or more points this season, except twice, and there comes the rub. The only team they haven't run off the court this year is Fort Worth Southwest, who will meet 29-3 El Paso Jefferson at 7 p.m.

Dunbar, the only team to be in all four Region I tournaments in Midland, scores points like a machine gun spits out bullets. Dunbar got here with an 85-60 area victory over Arlington Sam Houston, and Panther fans were wondering where the team left its offense.

Dunbar won the Region I title in 1981 at Chaparral Center, but have come away empty-handed the last two years, losing in 1983 on a last second shot by Fort Worth Paschal. The memory of that loss still lingers.

Dunbar is a heavy favorite over Riverside with a front line of scoring guards in Fred Hamilton (14 points per game), Rodrick Ford (15) and Jeffery Perkins (12). They also have 6-foot-4 Linzie Bogan (11). Those averages aren't impressive, but Dunbar has won so easily this season that the bench gets a lot of playing time.

If Southwest makes the finals with a victory over Jefferson, the finals Saturday could be interesting. Southwest lost to Dunbar by two points and six points in two games this year and have been the only team that could stay on the floor with the potent Wildcats.

SOUTHWEST'S EFFORTS have centered around three key players this year. Norman Anderson, a highly recruited 6-7 post, can score and even bring the ball downcourt against the press. Derrick Lewis, a 6-6 post, and Ron Perkins, a 6-3 forward, also blend in and the three have accounted for 70 percent of the scoring and 80 percent of the rebounds for Southwest. The team does not keep season statistics, but all three have had 30-point games.

Southwest got here with a 47-45 win over L.D. Bell.

It's easy to see that the two El Paso schools have their work cut out for them, but neither Border team lacks talent.

Riverside, who has to test Dunbar first, will rely heavily on 6-5 junior Mike Duran, who scores at a 12.0 clip. Rudy Acosta, a 5-11 guard, averages 11.0. But in Riverside's 77-66 area victory over Lubbock Monterey, David Neria, who doesn't average in double figures, hit for 29 points and Eric Fino, another sleeper, had 17.

Jefferson, the smallest team in the tournament, will square off against Southwest, the tallest team. Jefferson is paced by 5-11 forward Larry Hernandez, who has an 11.7 average and 5-8 guard Jesse Uranga owns a 10.8 average.

TICKETS FOR each game are $4 for adults and $2 for students. Chap Center will be cleared following the 7 p.m. contest between Jefferson and Southwest. The prices will hold for the 3 p.m. finals Saturday.

Dunbar can become the first team to win two Region I titles since the tournament moved to Midland. Other one-time winners have been Paschal and Pampa.

Nearly 5,000 fans saw Dunbar defeat Midland High by five points in the first Region I tournament and that is the tournament's record turnout and one of the largest crowds to ever see a West Texas high school basketball game.

Chaps fall 85-81

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

ODESSA— Odessa College finally did what it has been threatening to do all season — beat Midland College.

After coming close twice without getting a cigar, the Wranglers came on strong in the second half to defeat the Chaparrals, 85-81, in the final regular season Western Junior College Conference game Thursday night.

By rallying from a three-point halftime deficit and then holding off a late MC bid, Odessa nailed down second place with a 13-5 record and automatically qualified for a berth in the Region V Junior College Tournament along with WJCC champion Howard College.

The Wranglers will bring a 19-10 record into the tournament, which starts with four games next Thursday.

MIDLAND COLLEGE is 20-11 after Thursday's defeat and must win playoff games Saturday and Monday to gain one of the two remaining berths allotted to the WJCC in the Region V tournament.

MC, with a 10-8 conference record, tied with South Plains for fifth place. However, South Plains, on the basis of a power-rating system, was awarded fifth, 39.5 to 38.5.

As a result, MC will host New Mexico Junior College Saturday. If the Chaps win, they would have to go to Amarillo Monday, unless NMMI upsets the Badgers Saturday. The other pairings find Frank Phillips at Western Texas College and Clarendon at South Plains with Western getting to host Monday's game, if it wins.

THE BEST thing about Thursday's game was the return to form of 6-9 Tevlin Binns, who had his soft touch from five to eight feet away on the base line working again. He wound up with 33 points, sinking 12 of 18 from the floor and nine of 10 from the line.

He also had four blocks.

MC led throughout the first half, by as much 25-16, 29-21 and 32-25. Still, it was evident that the team that stopped throwing the ball away would win. If MC had demonstrated any ability to handle the ball in the first half, it would have been all over but the shouting. It was, in fact, a turnover in the last few seconds that enabled OC to trim the Midland lead to 42-39 at half.

It was the Wranglers who stopped throwing the ball away first and OC opened 60-53, 75-66, and 78-71 gaps in the second half, the last with 6:07 to play.

Still, the Chaps hung tough and reduced the Wranglers margin to 82-80 on a couple of Vernon Coleman baskets and a Binns free throw with 2:07 left. Jackie Phinnessee, who finished with 16 points, rebounded a Binns miss for two points, but was called for a foul, so instead of a tie, OC's Frank Jones made it 83-80 from the line.

Again with 1:15 left, Coleman converted the first of a one-and-one free throw opportunity to cut it to 83-81. MC rebounded the second shot, got off a shot with 0:45 left, called time and then missed another shot at 0:13 with OC rebounding. Luther Burks converted the final two free throws with 0:08 left.

Dewayne Chism missed his first five field attempts for OC, but did much better at the free throw line, hitting nine of 10. That with four of 17 field attempts gave him scoring honors for the Wranglers with 17. Burks had 12 and Luther Bolden 12. The difference was at the line where OC converted 29 of 43 and MC made 19 of 31.

Optimistic Lee, Midland High return to diamonds

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

Both Midland Lee and Midland High baseball teams have a smattering of experienced varsity players back this year to help build the foundations of good baseball teams.

The Rebels have five players back and the Bulldogs eight. Each returnee saw at least one-game of varsity playing time.

The outfield looks to be one of Lee's stronger areas this season since three experienced players are back, led by left fielder Steve Woodlee, a first-team All-District selection with a .429 batting average.

Also back are Rob Walker and Bryan Willis, who is expected to be one of Lee's top pitchers this year.

IN THE infield, Sergio Ochoa, last year's starting catcher, and third baseman Dennis Matta are back, leaving three positions for Coach Ernie Johnson to fill. It's a task he doesn't seem too worried about.

"Our infield is new and young, but they've got ability," said Johnson. "It may not look good early but it will be as the season goes on I think. They've got good moves, good arms and good ability. They're not very big, but they might be the best infield I've had in a long time."

At the plate, four of the five returning players had .333 or better averages in 1983. Woodlee's .429 is the best of the group followed by Walker, .351; Matta, .349; Ochoa, .333 and Willis, .263. Because of injuries, Willis only played in eight 4-5A games last season. Ochoa missed one district game but the other three played in all 14.

"We have some proven hitters out there, but they're not hitting at all yet," said Johnson. "But, I think we're going to be good at the plate. We're not hitting good now as a team but I think it will come. We have a lot of good hitters back."

Pitching, an area where Lee was expected to be strong last year with two hurlers back, became one of the weak links after the .83 season when Craig Ray, a 5-1 record with a 3.53 ERA, moved to Tyler.

That leaves only Willis with varsity pitching experience and in 4-5A play that amounts to a mere two innings. Though a short amount of time on the mound, it was well spent. He faced seven batters, gave up one hit, no runs and struck out two while not allowing a walk. Two injuries kept him from more mound time.

"Pitching? We're hunting," said Johnson. "We haven't found a pitcher behind Willis yet and we haven't got long to find one either."

After this weekend's Pre-District Tournament in Odessa, the Rebels have only a doubleheader with Lubbock Monterey and the Tournament of Champions next week to get everyting in shape for 4-5A play. Lee will begin league play March 13 against Odessa High at OHS field.

4-5A Baseball

MIDLAND HIGH'S returning players, as a group, didn't see as much playing time last year as Lee's, but they have the infield and pitching mound pretty well covered.

Second baseman Darren Thrope, the only full-time retunring starter, will be doubling at shortstop and second this year, depending on who is on the mound for the Bulldogs. Thorpe was a .231 hitter last year as a sophomore.

Mike Timlin, who hit .241, is Midland High's top returning pitcher. In five district ball games last year, Timlin compiled a 1-3 record and a 4.87 ERA. Doug Daehling, who didn't pitch last year but batted in five games for a .167 average, and Steve Wootan, are the three hurlers Coach Tim Whalen is counting on this year. Wootan and Daehling also play the infield.

"We've got three kids that can go in and throw strikes, Timlin, Wootan and Daehling," said Whalen. "If Mike Stanton (a junior) comes along, that will give us a good left-hander."

And as to fielding?

"We ought to be able to pick up a ground ball and throw somebody out," said Whalen. "I think our defense is further along this year than at this point last year.

"We don't have numbers in the outfield and we don't have great speed. We're green in a lot of positions."

When not on the mound, Timlin will be playing in th outfield while Chris Herbert, who played some in '83, will be moving from infield to outfield this year."

The Bulldogs could be a good hitting ball team this year but it all will depend on how much the returning players improve and how much the newcomers learn. Only Keith Clay, a .297 hitter with four doubles and one home run, had a respectable year at the plate last season. But, Whalen has confidence.

"I think we'll be okay," he said. "We won't be able to hit the long ball. We'll be more of a punch and Judy type team."

Like Lee, MHS doesn't have long before district starts and one less game to play. After the Pre-District Tournament, the Bulldogs play Lubbock Coronado in Lubbock on Tuesday and then the Tall City Tournament next weekend. Midland High's 4-5A schedule begins on March 13 against Permian at Bulldog Diamond.

Colts ponder switch

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The National Football League owners were scheduled to meet Friday in Chicago with a topic of discussion the possible move of the Baltimore Colts to Indianapolis.

NFL officials said it was a preliminary meeting of the owners prior to their annual session March 18. But The Indianapolis News reported Thursday that Irsay's proposed move to the Hoosier Dome will be discussed.

The Baltimore Sun reported Thursday that only Colts owner Robert Irsay's signature stands in the way of the Colt's move to the Indiana capital.

The Sun said it had learned that Indianapolis officials had delivered a $15 million loan package that Irsay demanded and had worked out a "modest" lease for the team to play in the new, 61,000-seat stadium.

However, an aide to Indianapolis Mayor William Hudnut indicated Thursday that a deal to bring the team to Indianapolis was not as close as some sources indicated.

Kae Browning, the mayor's executive assistant, told The News that "negotiations still are under way. That's all we can say."

She said the mayor, still confined to his home by illness, did not want to be quoted further.

Meanwhile, the Baltimore paper quoted two unnamed sources in its report on the negotiations. The newspaper quoted one source as saying that in his best judgment, "the deal is done."

But P.E. MacAllister, president of the Capital Improvements Board — the group that runs the Indianapolis Convention Center, of which the Hoosier Dome is a part — told The News he didn't know if a deal had been reached or not.

MacAllister indicated he thought the city and Irsay had reached an agreement at one point, but then there was a hitch. Something the city had promised was found to be illegal, he said.

A Baltimore source was quoted in Thursday's Indianapolis Star as saying, "The momentum has swung back. I think the Colts are going to stay. Although I wouldn't say the talks have drastically depreciated, they have started to take the shape of previous negotiations."

Kings keep edge over Rockets

NBA

By The Associated Press

Kansas City Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons had a nice round number to savor — 500 — but he much preferred 36 and 3½.

Fitzsimmons registered his 500th National Basketball Association coaching victory Thursday night, ninth on the all-time list, as the Kings defeated the Houston Rockets 108-101.

But the fact that the two teams are involved in a race for the last playoff spot in the Midwest Division overshadowed Fitzsimmons' milestone victory. The triumph put the Kings 3½ games ahead of the Rockets.

"The most important thing is the win," Fitzsimmons said. "The only thing I was thinking about was pinning the 36th loss on Houston." Kansas City is 26-32 to Houston's 23-36.

Kansas City's Eddie Johnson scored 23 of his 27 points in the second half against Houston, including the go-ahead basket with 2:51 remaining. A short jumper in the lane by Johnson counted because of Ralph Sampson's goaltending to put Kansas City ahead for good 101-99 and a 10-foot baseline jumper iced the game. Sampson paced Houston with 28 points.

Suns 112, 76ers 100

Larry Nance scored 24 points and Paul Westphal came off the bench to spark a 21-2 fourth-period Phoenix flurry. Nance's tip-in, three free throws by Westphal and Kyle Macy's jumper put Phoenix up 88-84 entering the fourth quarter and the Suns scored 10 of the period's first 11 points, with Westphal getting six and Alvin Scott the other four for a 98-85 lead. Charles Pittman added five quick points and his layup with 4:40 remaining capped the burst for a 109-86 bulge. Philadelphia missed its first 14 shots in the fourth quarter and didn't make one until there was 2:42 remaining. Julius Erving led Philadelphia with 23 points.

Trail Blazers 121, Spurs 98

Guards Lafayette Lever and Jim Paxson scored 20 points apiece as Portland handed the Spurs their seventh straight loss. Lever, who did not start, also had seven rebounds and 11 assists. Paxson, with help from Jeff Lamp and others, held San Antonio's George Gervin scoreless over the final three quarters. Gervin, who averages 27.3 points a game, had all 10 of his points in the first period.

Nuggets 119, Cavaliers 113

Kiki Vandeweghe hit 34 points and Alex English added 26, including the clincher with 46 seconds left. The Cavaliers, who have won only four of 28 road games, rallied from 12 points back late in the second half and grabbed their first lead since the opening minutes when Lonnie Shelton scored with 4:08 left to make it 109-107. Vandeweghe then scored five points to put the Nuggets back on top 112-110. It was 114-113 when English canned a running one-hander with 46 seconds left. Geoff Huston paced Cleveland with 22 points.

Olympic pros making mark

NHL

By The Associated Press

The hockey teams of Canada and the United States didn't win any prizes in the recent Olympics, but some individual players are giving gold medal performances in the National Hockey League.

First, it was Canadian goalie Mario Gosselin turning in a shutout in his pro debut with the Quebec Nordiques. Then, teammate Pat Flatley scored a goal for the New York Islanders on his first NHL shot.

Thursday night, Gosselin and Flatley were joined as headline-makers by U.S. goalie Bob Mason and Canadian center Carey Wilson. Mason, the No. 2 U.S. netminder, turned aside 22 shots in his NHL debut and came within 5:21 of a shutout as the Washington Capitals buried the Pittsburgh Penguins 9-1. And Wilson scored just 7:31 into his NHL debut, triggering the Calgary Flames to a 5-1 victory over the Philadelphia Flyers.

In other games, the Montreal Canadiens downed the Detroit Red Wings 3-1 and the Boston Bruins edged the Los Angeles Kings 4-3 in overtime.

"I was thinking shutout at the start of the third period, but I'm satisfied with a one-goal game," Mason said after blanking Pittsburgh until Norm Schmidt scored at 14:39 of the third period after grabbing an errant Washington clearing pass.

The 22-year-old Mason, who was given the starting assignment while Al Jensen recovers from a bad back and Pat Riggin was rested after 17 consecutive games, was given an ovation by the Capital Centre crowd after surrendering the goal and again after the contest.

"Mason was in the game and very conscious of what he had to do," said Coach Bryan Murray. "One game does not make a goaltender in this league, but in his first outing he showed a lot of confidence. The fun part of coaching is picking the right guy on the right night."

Bryan Erickson and Peter Andersson scored two goals apiece and each recorded one of Washington's four power-play goals as the Capitals climbed into a third-place tie with Philadelphia in the Patrick Division, four behind the Islanders and one in back of the New York Rangers.

Mike Gartner and Erickson scored in the first period, while Andersson and Scott Stevens added second-period goals. The Caps poured in four more in the first 10:31 of the third period to make it 8-0 before Pittsburgh scored.

Flames 5, Flyers 1

Wilson, Ed Beers and Doug Risebrough gave Calgary a 3-0 lead before Brian Propp scored for Philadelphia on a power play midway through the second period. Al MacInnis and Hakan Loob also scored for the Flames, who extended their home unbeaten streak to 14 games, while goalkeeper Rejean Lemelin stretched his personal unbeaten streak to 19.

Wilson, who scored three goals in Canada's 4-2 Olympic victory over the United States, opened the scoring moments into his second shift. He took a pass from Kent Nilsson inside the Philadelphia blue line, wheeled into the slot and beat Flyers goalie Bob Froese with a low, screened 30-foot shot. Beers made it 2-0 after 76 seconds of the second period with a booming slapshot and Risebrough scored at 9:51 just as a Philadelphia penalty expired.

On his goal, Wilson said Nilsson "pulled the defense over and slid me a great pass. All I did was shoot and it picked the corner. It was an exciting moment. I felt a little more comfortable in the third period when I was finally able to relax a little."

Canadiens 3, Red Wings 1

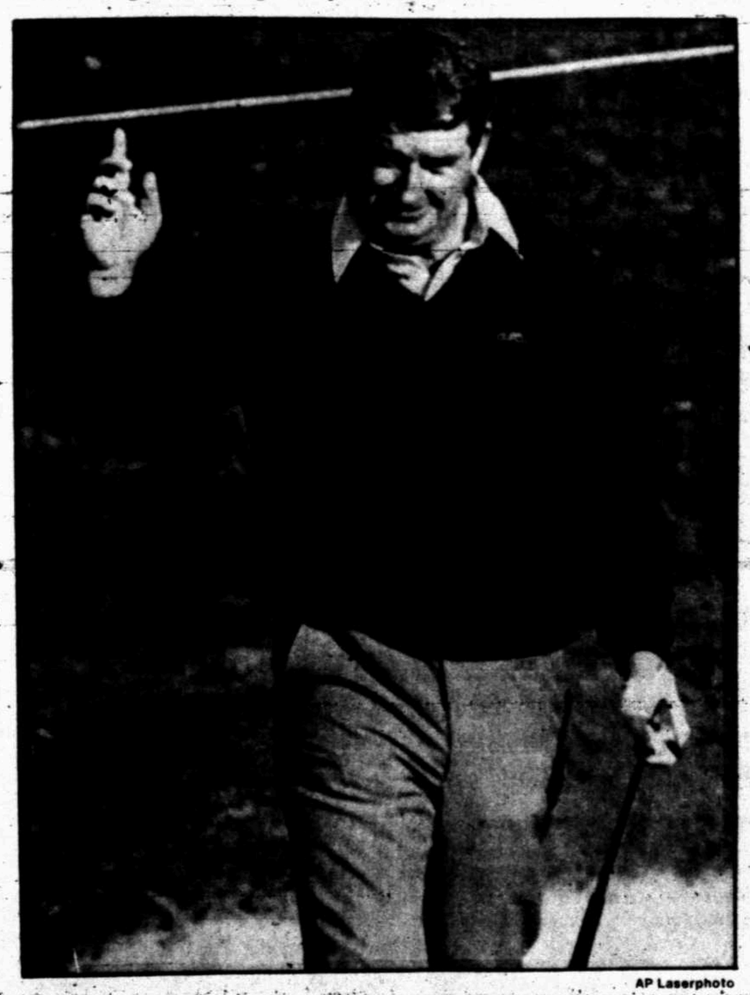

Guy Carbonneau scored his seventh short-handed goal of the season and Guy Lafleur reached the 30-goal plateau for the seventh time as Montreal posted its second straight victory since Jacques Lemaire replaced Bob Berry as coach. With Detroit leading 1-0 and Montreal killing a penalty, Larry Robinson broke up a rush and fed Carbonneau near the Red Wings' blue line. Carbonneau, using Robinson as a decoy, beat Detroit goalie Greg Stefan with a 20-foot wrist shot at 13:07 of the second period. The Canadiens took the lead 1:33 later on a power play goal by John Chabot before Lafleur scored on a slapshot from the top of the faceoff circle midway through the final period.

"When you're in your own zone, the first thing you think about is clearing the puck," said Carbonneau, who has scored 12 of his 41 career goals while killing penalties. "If I have the puck on my stick, they can't score. If I have time or a break, then I'll think about scoring."

Bruins 4, Kings 3

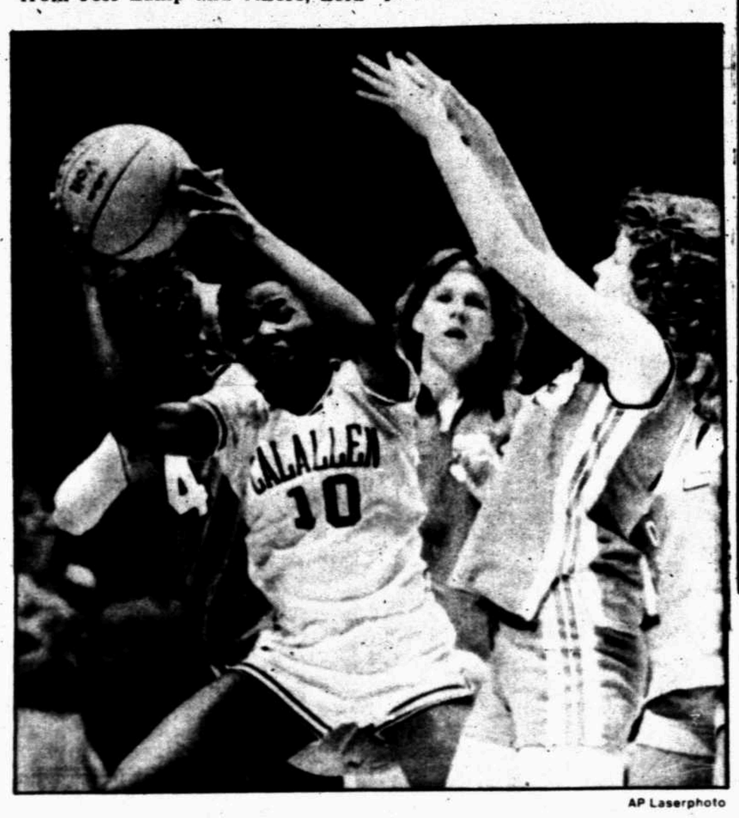

Rick Middleton tied the game with 30 seconds left in regulation play after Boston lifted goalie Doug Keans for an extra skater, then scored his 40th goal at 3:16 of overtime to hand the Kings their fifth straight setback. Los Angeles had battled back from a 2-0 deficit to take a 3-2 lead on John Paul Kelly's goal at 2:46 of the third period before Middleton tipped in Ray Bourque's slapshot from the blue line to tie the game.

On the winning goal, Mike Krushelnyski passed the puck from the right boards to Middleton, who picked it up in full stride and fired a 20-footer from the right circle past goalie Markus Mattsson. The victory enabled the Bruins to move within two points of Adams Division leader Buffalo. Pete Peeters, Boston's starting goalie, left the game after the second period with whiplash of the neck.

Corpus Christi Calallen's Janice Williams (10) pulls down a rebound against a horde of Levellanders in the girls' state basketball playoffs in Austin.

Levelland girls gain semifinals

State Playoffs

AUSTIN (AP) — Waco Richfield and Nazareth remained undefeated, defending Class 4A champion Levelland put on a record defensive performance and Glinda Taylor of Groesbeck had an eight-point play at the Girls' State Basketball Tournament on opening day.

Taylor's sudden scoring splurge centered around the ejection of coach Mike Fountain of Sour Lake Hardin-Jefferson from the game with three technical fouls.

The 34th annual tournament resumed today with semi-final games in 2A and 5A. All championship games are scheduled for Saturday.

Richfield extended its record to 32-0 with a 46-37 victory over Orange Little Cypress-Mauriceville, which sets up a championship match with Levelland, a 32-17 winner over Corpus Christi Calallen.

Abernathy defeated Van Vleck 46-32 in 3A to advance to the finals against Groesbeck, which walloped Hardin-Jefferson 79-51.

Nazareth, winners of a record six tournament titles, raised its season record to 34-0 with a 59-32 victory over Priddy. The Swiftettes will play Petty West Lamar, which edged Moulton 38-36, for the Class A championship.

Fountain was whistled for three technical fouls in the third quarter by official John Ferrara of San Antonio, which resulted in Fountain's automatic ejection from the game.

The last two technicals were assessed after Taylor had arched a two-point shot from the corner, with Groesbeck already comfortably ahead. She was fouled after the shot and made two free throws, then swished four more free throws on the technicals.

The Hardin-Jefferson superintendent was called on the public address, presumably to calm down Fountain. The coach walked off the court with 1 minute 33 seconds left in the third quarter, and his assistant took over.

Taylor, a 5-foot-7 senior, made 8 of 8 free throws and finished with 18 points, one behind team leader Bobbie Whitfield. Groesbeck had a 29-3 edge in free throws over Hardin-Jefferson, which lost four starters on fouls, including high scorers Lisa Turner — 16 — and Barbara Anderson — 12.

Richfield trailed Little Cypress 27-26 at the end of three quarters, but Martha Estelle pitched in eight points, allowing the Ramblers to pull away. Estelle had 14 points and Maggie Davis 17, with 14 rebounds, for Richfield.

Levelland, with scoring star Darla Isaacks in foul trouble, led Calallen only 19-17 going into the fourth quarter, but shutout the Wildcats 13-0 in the final eight minutes.

Isaacks, an all-tournament player in 1982 and 1983, returned with about five minutes to play and finished with a game high 13 points.

The 17 points for Calallen, which lost in the 4A championship to Levelland last year, was a record low for 4A, and the total of 49 points for both teams also was a new low in that division.

Holly Hodges scored 10 points for Calallen even though she could only limp around the court because of a month-old stress fracture below her right knee, which was heavily wrapped.

Nazareth appeared invincible in whipping Priddy, which lost starter Naidene Tiemann on fouls in the first minute of the third quarter. Tiemann had averaged 15 points a game but was scoreless against Nazareth's relentless full-court defense.

Leona Gerber had 13 points for Nazareth, and LaDawn Schmucker and Ramona Heiman each scored 12.

Moulton missed four field goal attempts and a free throw in the last 40 seconds in falling to West Lamar by two points. Freshman sub Dani Battle led West Lamar with eight points and 15 rebounds.

Jackie Fishbeck, another freshman, scored 17 points and grabbed 16 rbounds for Moulton.

Snead leads Honda

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP) — The "yips" is a term used to describe a problem that is common and well-known in golf.

It usually involves the putting stroke, quivering nerves and shaking hands; twitches and spasms; the reluctance — or even inability — to draw the club back.

It has stricken some of the greatest in the game, Ben Hogan and Sam Snead among them.

But Snead's nephew, J.C., said he had a version of the affliction that may be unique.

"I damn near had the yips with the driver," Snead said after he used a new club to help cure the problem and produce a 4-under-par 68 that gave him the first round lead Thursday in the $500,000 Honda Classic. "That's hard to do," he drawled. "Yips with the driver. Can you have that? Well, I had it. I'd stand up there with the driver in my hand and had no idea what was going to happen."

Using a club he put in his bag only two days earlier, however, Snead hit his first tee shot on the new Tournament Players Club at Eagle Trace straight down the fairway and rode the new-found confidence to a one-shot advantage in the chase for a $90,000 first prize.

Jack Renner, who won the Hawaiian Open and was runner-up in Los Angeles in his last two starts, shared second with Andy Bean at 69.

Tied at 70, 2-under-par, were Tommy Nakajima, Joey Sindelar, Jeff Grygiel and Tom Kite.

Johnny Miller, who won this title last year at the Inverrary Country Club course a few miles away, struggled home with an 80.

MHS golfers get 3rd

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING— Midland High's first team golfers finished with a 662 total here Wednesday for a third place finish behind Odessa Permian and Abilene Cooper.

Bulldog David Pritchett carded a 78-76— 154 for runner-up medalist honors. Pritchett's rounds were vital in allowing MHS to nip rival Lee by a single stroke to nab third place in the 19-team Invitational. Permian recorded a 650 total and Cooper netted a 657.

MHS' second teamers finished sixth overall with a 693 total. The 'Dogs have a final tune-up next Thursday at the San Angelo Invitational before starting District 4-5A competition.

Knick star NBA honoree

BASKETBALL— Forward Bernard King of New York, who averaged 32.9 points in 16 games during February — including a 35.8-point average during the Knicks' 11 road games — was named Thursday the National Basketball Association Player of the Month.

King opened February the way he closed January, with a 50-point game, becoming the first NBA player to hit 50 in consecutive nights since Wilt Chamberlain did it on Feb. 17-18, 1964.

Among King's other top games during February were a 38-point effort against Utah and a 35-point performance at Boston...

Continental Basketball Association players will be given consideration for the U.S. Olympic basketball trials because of the "great uncertainty" of Olympic eligibility rules, Bhl Wall, executive director of the Amateur Basketball Association-United States of America, said Thursday.

"Recent events at the Winter Olympic Games have placed the rules governing eligibility of athletes into great uncertainty," Wall, head of the sport's governing body in the United States, said in a statement. "The implications of the International Olympic Committee's action will have a significant affect on the sport of basketball, perhaps more so than any other sport on the Olympic program."

At the Winter Games in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia last month, the IOC ruled five hockey players ineligible because they had played in the National Hockey League, the only league it considers professional. Players who had signed NHL contracts but never played in the league and players who played in the minor professional leagues were not affected by the ruling. The FIBA has twice rejected ABUSA requests that the CBA, a minor professional league, be considered non-professional and its players be considered amateurs.

"As a result of the recent action by the IOC," said Wall, "the ABUSA has not considered any CBA player to be ineligible and such players are welcome to complete the necessary availability questionnaire for consideration to be invited to the Olympic basketball trials." CBA Commissioner Jim Drucker is opposed to ABUSA's belief, saying that his league is professional...

The championship game of the Big East Conference basketball tournament will be televised live on ESPN March 10 at 6 p.m. from Madison Square Garden, it was announced Thursday...

Michael Cage, the San Diego State star forward ranked fifth nationally in rebounds, was top vote-getter in selections for the all-Western Athletic Conference basketball team.

Cage is a senior from West Memphis, Ark. He is averaging 12.4 rebounds, good enough to lead the conference. Cage also averaged 24.7 points and was a member of the gold-medal winning U.S. team at the 1983 Pan American Games.

Devin Durrant, Brigham Young's senior forward ranked third nationally with a 28.5 point average, is a repeat selection to the team. Rounding out the all-WAC squad are Texas-El Paso forward Fred Reynolds, New Mexico guard Phil Smith and Brigham Young forward Brett Applegate.

Reynolds, from Houston was a member of the 1983 Pan Am team and is averaging 13.9 points and 5.6 rebounds. Smith is averaging 14.7 points and six assists for the Lobos. Applegate is averaging 15.3 points and 11.6 rebounds for the Cougars.

SKIING - Canadian Steve Podborski, the 1982 World Cup downhill champion who still has a shot at this season's title in what will be his final campaign, paced a training run Thursday in advance of Saturday's World Cup downhill ski race on Aspen Mountain. In the closest training result of the season, Podborski was clocked in 1 minute, 45.04 seconds down a course called Ruthie's Run, which is 10,400 feet long with a vertical drop of 2,600 feet. Three other skiers were spaced just one-hundredth of a second apart.

Helmut Hoeflehner of Austria, who won the first two training runs on Wednesday, finished in 1:45.05, followed by Switzerland's Urs Raeber in 1:45.06 and Austrian Anton Steiner in 1:45.07.

Bill Johnson of Van Nuys, Calif., the Olympic downhill champion, was fifth in 1:45.24. Pirmin Zurbriggen of Switzerland, the World Cup overall points leader, was sixth at 1:45.68.

Saturday's race will be the first men's World Cup event since the Olympics and the first in North America this season...

HOCKEY - Center Wayne Gretzky of the Edmonton Oilers scored 15 goals and added nine assists for 24 points in only nine games in February and was named the NHL Player-of-the-Month by the league on Thursday.

With Gretzky in the lineup, the Oilers posted an 8-1-0 won-lost-tied record, but only were 1-5-0 in the six games that he missed because of a shoulder injury.

It is the fifth straight month Gretzky has received the honor.

Gretzky currently leads the league in scoring with 76 goals, 101 assists and 177 points in 61 contests for a 2.9 point-per-game average...

FOOTBALL— New Jersey Generals quarterback Brian Sipe underwent arthroscopic surgery to remove torn cartilage from his right knee Thursday and will be sidelined three weeks, the United States Football League team physician said.

"The up side is the team will have him for the bulk of the season," said Dr. Mark Schottenfeld, who removed medial cartilage from Sipe's knee during a one-hour procedure at John F. Kennedy Memorial Hospital here.

Sipe, once the National Football League's most valuable player when he played for the Cleveland Browns, injured his knee several weeks ago during a practice session at the Generals' training camp in Orlando, Fla., the doctor said.

Tech wins; sets SMU showdown

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech scored nine straight points midway through the second half to overtake Texas A&M and post a 62-53 victory Thursday night behind guard Bubba Jennings, keeping alive its hopes for a first-round bye in the Southwest Conference post-season tournament.

Tech ran its season record to 16-10 and SWC mark to 10-5. A&M finished the regular season at 14-13 on the year and 7-9 in SWC competition.

Tech must beat Southern Methodist in Lubbock Saturday to tie the Mustangs for third place in the conference. A Tech win would require a coin flip to decide who gets a bye directly into the tournament.

Jennings scored 19 points on 8 of 12 field goal attempts and three of four free throws, although his consecutive free throw streak ended at 24 when he missed one in the first half.

Kenny Brown scored 15 and Winston Crite 13 for the fifth-place Aggies, who will host the loser of Saturday's Texas-TCU game in a first round tournament contest next Tuesday night.

After a lackluster first half that ended in a 23-23 tie, the Aggies took a slight command in the early part of the second half and held a 34-31 lead with 10:09 remaining.

Then Tech exploded. Tony Benford hit a field goal, Vince Taylor made a slam dunk on an alley oop play and added a free throw for a three-point play, and the Raiders added four more free throws for a 40-34 lead.

Sampling suffers some changes

Symphony performs works from 20th-century

A Review

By GEORGIA TEMPLE

Presenting a sampling of works by composers who were contemporaries of one another because their lives overlapped — Prokovief, Walton, Milhaud, Ives and Saint-Saens — yet diverse in their interpretation of music seems to have been the original intention of the Midland-Odessa Symphony's 5th subscription concert.

But with the cancellation of guest artist violinist Mihaela Martin's performance (due to her country, Romania, expecting her to perform there on the same dates) came a break in the presentation of music by 19th and 20th century composers, all of whom were composing in the 20th century.

The addition of violinist Benny Kim to the evening's presentation subtracted Saint-Saens' Concerto No. 3 in b minor, and added Mendelssohn's Concerto for Violin in e minor.

Of Mendelssohn's large output of 200 musical compositions, today's audiences most frequently hear only fragments of some of his best work. The two most common exceptions are this concerto, written in 1844, and the fourth of his five symphonies, the Italian, written in 1833. Born in 1809, Mendelssohn died in 1847.

Mendelssohn was gifted in creating melody and in organizing the forms of his compositions so they would be clear and easily understood. Kim's performance of Concerto No. 3 in b minor exemplified this clarity. His manner indicated he was quite familiar with the piece; his execution was well defined.

Kim was not the only guest artist on the program. Midlander Marilyn Allen acted as narrator for Walton's Facade Suite.

"Facade" was written by poet Dame Edith Sitwell in 1922. Sir William Walton, who was in his early 20s at the time, put the words to music. The presentation of Facade Suite brought both artists a certain type of recognition.

Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, the symphony's director, tried to prepare Saturday's audience by saying of the work: "It makes sense up to a certain point until they begin to confuse you. It's like an abstract painting — Is that a horse or a chicken or a grand piano?"

After hearing the work, it seemed to have abstractions of all three. A horse could be referred to as a nag, a chicken a hen, and a grand piano one of the greatest of all instruments as long as it is properly tuned. It was easy to undertand the initial shock of the work's first audience in the 1920s.

As Hohstadt said of the first performance: The artist (Sitwell) was advised to stay in her dressing room because it was feared bodily harm might be done to her by members of the audience.

Ms. Allen's narration was a competent one, but relief flooded this reviewer when Facade Suite was over. This surrealistic work struck this reviewer as all of the following: abrasive, arch, nonsensical and trendy for its time.

Hohstadt tucked Facade Suite between two delightful works. Upon reflection, it's hard to decide which was excuted with more finesse by the symphony — Prokovief's Classical Symphony, a dynamic, but disciplined and elegant piece, or Milhaud's "The Creation of the World," a Frenchman's interpretation of American jazz and African music set in a classical framework.

Following intermission, the symphony opened with "The Unanswered Question" by American composer Charles E. Ives (1874-1954), who was 71 years old before he heard any of his compositions performed by a full orchestra.

In this work, Ives questions life through trumpets, attempts answers through flutes, while the string section provides the background. It is a brief piece; one which leaves the listener with an unresolved feeling.

Georgia Temple is entertainment critic for the Reporter-Telegram.

Violinist Benny Kim's guest appearance with the Midland-Odessa Symphony added to the group's sampling of 20-century compositions.

'Tribute' film series to begin at Stables

ENTERTAINMENT

The Museum of the Southwest begins a new film series, "Tribute," today when "The Agony and the Ecstacy" will be shown in the Stables Gallery at 7:30 p.m.

The series is designed around paying tribute to three artists — Michelangelo, Van Gogh and Toulouse-Lautrec — by showing a film about each. The Tribute Series was planned in conjunction with the Museum's "Alfred Morang: A Retrospective Exhibition," on display at the Museum through April 8.

"One of the interesting occurances in researching Alfred Morang for the exhibit was the great tales that have sprung up about his life," says Anne Sherburn, development and public relations officer for the Museum. "It was hard to find people to talk objectively about his days in Santa Fe, especially the final years.

"This mystique that has surrounded Morang since his tragic death in a fire at his studio got the staff thinking about how the media and art historians tend to dramatize the lives of artists. We thought we'd bring attention to this with the Tribute Series."

Based on Irving Stone's best-selling fictionalized biography of Michelangelo, played by Charlton Heston, "The Agony and the Ecstacy" dramatizes the triumphs and conflicts in his life and art. The film is directed by Carol Reed. Supporting cast members are Rex Harrison and Alec McCowen.

The series continues on March 15 with "Moulin Rouge," director John Huston's vigorous study of the celebrated artist Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec. The film successfully captures the atmosphere of Paris' art district, Montmartre, and its colorful characters. The cast includes Jose Ferrer as Lautrec, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Suzanne Flon and Collete Marchand. Showtime for this Academy Award-winning film is 7:30 p.m. in the Living Room at the museum.

"The award winning movie, 'Lust for Life' is a fitting conclusion to our Tribute Series," Ms. Sherburn says. "Vincent Van Gogh and his tormented life is probably one of the best known and popular stories about an artist told today."

Director Vincente Minnelli captures the friendship between Van Gogh and Paul Gauguin in a beautifully photographed film. The characters of Van Gogh and Gauguin are skillfully developed and portrayed by Kirk Douglas and Anthony Quinn. Supporting cast members are James Donald, Pamela Brown and Everett Sloan. This film will be shown March 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the museum.

The response has been quite positive to the museum's previous film series and those interested in seeing the films are invited to come early. Suggested donation is $2.

Music teachers rename competion to honor Knox

The Midland Music Teachers Association announces that its annual Sonatina-Sonata-Concerto contest will be renamed the "Knox Music Competition." Scheduled to be held this year at Midland College Saturday, the annual event has become, since its beginning 30 years ago, one of the most widely entered competitions in this area.

In order to further enhance the contest with additional incentives, Mrs. Gordon S. Knox has made an annual monetary gift to the competition, and the association has chosen to name the competition in her honor.

Mrs. Gordon S. Knox

A 20-year resident of Midland, Mrs. Knox has been active with the Midland Symphony Association, the Midland-Odessa Symphony Board of Directors and the Midland Symphony Guild. She has worked closely with the symphony's National Young Artists Competition since she has been in Midland.

She has served on the advisory panel of the Texas Commission on the Arts, is past president of the Texas Women's Association for Symphony Orchestras and has served on the National Women's Council for Symphony Orchestras and the American Symphony Orchestra League.

Mrs. Knox is the mother of two daughters, both of whom have studied music privately with MMTA teachers and participated and been winners in the Sonatina-Sonata-Concerto contest.

In this year's competition, judges will hear 267 entries in the fields of piano, both solo and concerto; and voice and strings, a new category that has been added this year. Medals will be presented to the first, second and third place winners by a representative of the Knox family.

Judges for the competition are Dr. Neil Stannard, The University of Texas at El Paso; Dr. Richard Redinger, Texas Tech University; Patricia Anthony and Joy Moutus, private teachers in Lubbock; Elizabeth Horner, Kermit; James Nance and Walter Osadchuk, both of Midland.

The first place winners will be presented in two recitals Sunday in the Allison Fine Arts Auditorium, MC campus, at 1:30 and 3 p.m. The recitals are open to the public at no charge.

MCT's production of 'Annie' scheduled through March 24

Currently playing in Theatre One at Theatre Midland is the musical "Annie." The production will run through March 24.

Based on the comic strip "Little Orphan Annie," the musical traces the exploits of the carrot-topped heroine from her life in Miss Hannigan's Orphanage to Christmas in the loving arms of Daddy Warbucks. Along the way the irrepressible waif brings joy and happiness into the lives of countless people, including the President and his cabinet, and through them the entire country.

This Midland Community Theatre production is directed by Don Bachmann, executive director at MCT. Music director is Tom Roberts, minister of music at First Presbyterian Church.

The dance numbers have been choreographed by guest choreographer Ed Brassos. Set design is by Brett Batterson with John Michael Warburton serving as technical director.

For reservations call MCT's box office at 682-4111.

Bass family realizes $100 million on Texaco

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Members of Fort Worth's Bass family and their associates realized a paper profit of more than $100 million in the past month when the price of Texaco Inc. stock jumped in response to speculation the family was involved in a possible takeover attempt, a newspaper says.

Texaco stock jumped 1⅝ points, or almost 4 percent, on heavy trading Wednesday of 2.9 million shares, and registered a smaller increase on Thursday.

Bass family members and associates announced on Feb. 1 that they owned almost 25.5 million shares of Texaco, almost all of it acquired for less than $40 per share, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram said Thursday. The stock closed at 45⅛ on Wednesday and at 45¼ on Thursday after heavy trading.

Wall Street speculation drove up Texaco's stock 3 points for a time during the day Wednesday, as unsubstantiated rumors linked the family's 9.8 percent share of Texaco's stock with Pennzoil Co. in a possible effort to take over Texaco.

Texaco and Pennzoil representatives declined to comment on the takeover rumors. Bass family representatives could not be reached for comment.

Industry analysts, however, downplayed the possibility.

"I've heard so many stories today, I don't know which ones to listen to," said Constantine Fliakos of Merrill Lynch investment bankers in New York.

"All these things make some sense. The problem is there's no way you can substantiate it. But that's the way it usually is with these takeovers," he told the newspaper.

Texaco was the second most active company on the New York Stock Exchange on Wednesday, as slightly more than 3 million shares traded hands. Gulf Corp., considered another takeover candidate, was the day's most active stock, with more than 4.6 million shares traded.

When Texaco officials first revealed on Jan. 19 that the Basses owned 18.5 million shares of the nation's third-largest oil company, the company quoted Sid R. Bass, who generally heads the family's investments, as saying that the Texaco stock was purchased for investment purposes.

Volcker calls national deficit 'a loaded gun'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Calling record federal deficits "a loaded gun" pointed at the nation's economy, Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker says the deficit should be cut by $50 billion in 1985, even if tax increases are necessary.

Testifying before the House Budget Committee Thursday, Volcker said the Fed does not want to risk spiraling inflation by pumping new money into circulation to keep the economy expanding rapidly.

He talked more bluntly than ever about the need for a tax increase, saying "I don't think there's any question" that new taxes might be needed. He said this would probably make interest rates "1 percent or more lower ... than they would otherwise be."

He stopped short of saying the Federal Reserve Board would act to slow rapid economic growth by restraining the supply of money and credit. But he warned that deficits threaten to push interest rates ever-higher even as the economy "gets better in the short run."

Deficits in Washington and interest rate jitters on Wall Street did not seem to bother American shoppers, as the nation's leading retailers reported double-digit sales gains in February.

Leading retailers said February's sharp rise in sales from a year earlier came even though the comparison was with February 1983, when the recovery was already under way and sales were strong.

Linda Kristiansen, retail specialist with the Wall Street firm A.G. Becker Paribas Inc., said that "people have adjusted to high interest rates."

Senator Bumpers asks for Arkansas oil study

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. Dale Bumpers asked the Interior Department on Thursday to investigate whether there are reserves of oil and natural gas beneath the Ouachita Mountains in western Arkansas.

He asked for the study because some geologists have said the reserves could be there and because the federal lands are not classified as having known geological structures. The "known geological structure" designation would require the government to lease lands on a competitive basis, the senator said in a news release from his Washington office.

Bumpers made the request for the study in a letter to Interior Secretary William Clark. In that correspondence, Bumpers, D-Ark., asked Clark to prohibit further non-competitive leasing of federal lands in the Ouachitas. Non-competitive leasing would cost the federal government and the state millions of dollars, he said.

"Respected petroleum geologists have recently reported that large oil and gas reserves, containing as much as 10 to 20 billion barrels of oil and one trillion cubic feet of natural gas, may lie beneath the Ouachita Mountains," Bumpers wrote Clark. He said major oil companies are interested in the region and that one company recently paid $1 million for the rights to drill on privately owned land there.

"Yet the federal government continues to lease its land for $1 an acre," he said. "State-owned lands in Arkansas adjacent to federal lands have been leased for more than $100 an acre, indicating that the federally owned resources are being sold for a fraction of their true value."

Reagan seeks to pay teens $2.50 hourly for summers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ignoring congressional opposition, the Reagan administration will again seek legislation permitting payment of $2.50 an hour to teen-agers hired for summer work, sources say.

Similar legislation introduced at the administration's behest on Capitol Hill last year ran into a wall of resistance in the Democrat-controlled House as unions lobbied heavily against it among liberal allies.

But administration sources, asking not to be identified publicly, said that in a meeting with his Cabinet Council of Economic Affairs on Thursday, Reagan gave the go-ahead for a renewed attempt to win enactment of the legislation.

A proposed "youth opportunity differential" — advocating authorization of a $2.50 wage rate, 85 cents below the current legal minimum — was a major element of an employment program Reagan submitted to Congress last year.

Other elements of the program included a proposal to permit unemployed people to receive government vouchers which could have been given to businesses to defray the cost of putting these people to work. None of the major jobs initiatives passed Congress.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said late last year, after the battle had been lost, that he planned to continue a push for the $2.50-an-hour wage rate "because I believe it's right."

Donoghue's Money Fund Average (Averages for all 251 taxable funds)		38	8.75	8.73

'MONEY FUND TABLE COMMENTARY: Assets of the 251 taxable money funds reported by Donoghue's MONEY FUND REPORT of Holliston, MA 01746 decreased by $529 million to $165.2 billion for the week ended 2-29-84. The taxable funds' 7-day average yield increased to 8.75% from 8.73%. The taxable funds' 30-day average yield increased to 8.73% from 8.72%. The taxable funds' average maturity increased one day to 38 days.

William E. Donoghue says, "After six consecutive weeks of asset increases totaling $6 billion, taxable money funds experienced a $529 million decrease this week. Most of the decrease was in money funds available only through institutions. The taxable funds' average maturity extended one day to 38 days, the level it has been six out of eight weeks in 1984.

Yields represent annualized total return to shareholders for past seven- and thirty-day period. Past returns are not necessarily indicative of future yields. Investment quality and maturity may vary among funds. x - average term to next rate adjustment date; g - one time sales charge; r - restricted availability.

El Paso loses court case on profits

HOUSTON (AP) — El Paso Natural Gas Co. cannot consider royalty payments or the market for gas in declaring about 3,200 natural gas wells unprofitable, a federal judge has ruled.

Attorneys for the pipeline company said they will appeal Wednesday's ruling by U.S. District Judge William N. Blanton Jr.

El Paso Co. filed suit last August asking to be allowed to transfer ownership of the leased wells, on which officials said the firm is losing $50 million a year because of royalty payments.

A contract clause allowed the company to change the ownership if the well were unprofitable.

Robert J. King, a lawyer representing El Paso, said the company filed the suit against Tenneco Oil Co., Conoco Inc. and other defendants.

King said the lease contracts are based on gas prices of 85 cents to $2.50 per thousand cubic feet. The contracts require overriding royalties of $3.35 per thousand cubic feet to be paid to the defendants. Since gas prices now are less than the overriding royalties, El Paso was losing about $50 million a year on the leases, said King.

But Blanton ruled that factor was not covered under the contract clause.

SEC accuses bank holding company of exaggeration

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bank holding company in Tulsa, Okla., once headed by the new president of the Synthetic Fuels Corp. has been accused by the Securities and Exchange Commission of publicly exaggerating its earnings.

The allegations concern Utica Bankshares Corp., a one-bank holding company incorporated in Nevada but doing business in Tulsa, where it operates Utica National Bank & Trust Co., the seventh-largest bank in Oklahoma, according to a text of the SEC's civil complaint.

Victor M. Thompson Jr., the new president of the Synthetic Fuels Corp., is the former chairman and chief executive officer of Utica Bank & Trust, Karen Hutchison, a Synthetic Fuels spokeswoman, said Wednesday night.

The federally financed Synthetic Fuels Corp. is responsible for promoting large new synthetic fuel projects, but has approved only one in its three years of existence.

The SEC accused the bank holding company in mid-1982 of underestimating its likely loan losses by millions of dollars.

The company, now under new management, agreed in a consent order to adjust its financial statements without admitting or denying any wrongdoing, the complaint said. Thompson stepped down from his positions at Utica two weeks ago when he was named to head the $15 billion Synthetic Fuels Corp. Utica has assets of about $375 million.

Specifically, the SEC said, the company filed amended reports with the agency on Wednesday reflecting a loss of $7.6 million in the third quarter of 1982 instead of the $1.28 million submitted earlier. And in light of that change, net income for the first nine months of the year was changed to a loss of $3.87 million from a profit of $2.45 million.

GOP hopeful re-announces for sheriff's race

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Gary Painter today re-announced his candidacy for Midland County sheriff.

"I am going to court," he said, in an effort to get his name placed on the Republican ballot in the May 5 primary. Painter said he is optimistic he'll be on the ballot after consulting with an Austin attorney who specializes in Texas election laws.

Painter said his renewed candidacy was inspired after he contacted the Austin lawyer — Buck Wood — who specializes in the Texas Election Code.

"He (Wood) said he's never seen a case like this at all," Painter said. "He's very optimistic and thinks I can get on the ballot. I am declaring myself a candidate."

Since Wood specializes in the election laws and "knows what he's doing," Painter said he is basing his candidacy on Wood's optimism. Painter noted that his case might set a precedent. However, he said, the lawyer "says he can't guarantee" that Painter will get on the ballot.

Painter, 36, resigned from his job as patrol lieutenant under Sheriff Dallas Smith on Feb. 6, filed for candidacy with Midland County Republican chairman Bill Shaner and announced his candidacy.

But his application for candidacy was rejected by the Texas Secretary of State, sinoe he was almost 2½ hours late getting it to Shaner.

Many Texas hospitals ban sales of tobacco products

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

About 72 percent of Texas hospitals responding to a state-wide survey indicate they no longer sell tobacco products in the health facilities.

"And a number of hospitals never sold them to start with," said Dr. Karl Shaner, director of research at the Texas Hospital Association in Austin.

While Midland Memorial Hospital banned vending machine, gift shop and courtesy cart cigarette sales in the late 1960s, Parkview Hospital officials say cigarettes are still available from vending machines. If they follow a growing trend, that may change.

Surveys were sent by the THA to the state's 500 hospitals. Of the 204 responses received, Shaner said 147 indicated they do not sell tobacco products in the hospitals.

"There's been an acceleration over the years of more hospitals stopping," Shaner said. "Obviously, there will be a point where you can't accelerate anymore."

DONE IN four-year intervals, the THA's statistics on smoking and hospitals show about 22 hospitals banned tobacco sales during the 1970-74 period with almost 30 hospitals joining the growing group during the 1975-79 period.

"Since 1980, about 30 to 35 hospitals have quit," Shaner said.

Officials cite the hypocrisy of urging the general public to quit smoking while peddling cigarettes on courtesy carts, in gift shops and vending machines.

"It's a very devastating thing to one's health. I saw people dying from the smoking they had done during the past 20 to 25 years and I knew it was a health hazard."

— Dr. Phyllis Huffman, Midland pediatric allergist

"I think more physicians are aware of the health implications," Shaner said.

One Midland physician was.

Dr. Phyllis Huffman, pediatric allergist, began a struggle against smoking in 1968 when she was appointed medical director of the MMH respiratory therapy department. "It's a very devastating thing to one's health," she said. "I saw people dying from the smoking they had done during the past 20 to 25 years and I knew it was a health hazard."

CLEARING THE AIR of political and administrative smoke screens was difficult, she remembered. With a smoking hospital administrator and more smokers on the board of directors, the plan had problems.

"It took many meetings to get the smoking vending machines removed from Midland Memorial," Dr. Huffman, who has practiced in Midland since 1958, said. "The staff met and agreed they would be removed from the hospital, but with an adminstrator and a bunch of influential people on board..."

Nonetheless, fellow doctors agreed it was unreasonable to petition for non-smoking while promoting it with the sale of tobacco products. The fight was won and the machines removed.

"We also tried to get designated smoking and non-smoking areas and rooms for smoking patients and non-smoking patients," Dr. Huffman said. Attempts were made to restrict smoking in all educational, service, staff and special meetings.

"WE TRIED TO get the dining room segregated to smoking and non-smoking areas, but it didn't work as far as I know."

"Of the physicians who smoked at that time, they're all either dead or have stopped smoking," she said. "I remember, we'd go to a meeting and there might be 75 people there and just one would be smoking. But that just ruins it for everyone."

Dr. Huffman admitted she tried smoking once. Although she wouldn't say at what age, "I was old enough to know better."

Twenty years ago, the first U.S. Surgeon General's report on smoking and health was released. "Everyone pooh-poohed it," Dr. Huffman said.

With the help of the American cancer, lung and heart associations, and communication through the media, the public is finally becoming aware of the dangers of smoking.

BUT DR. HUFFMAN isn't one to sit still and wait. Besides being responsible for starting a support and educational program for mastectomy patients, Dr. Huffman passes on the word of smoking dangers to her younger patients.

Tim Salmon, an 11-year-old student in the GEM (Gifted Education Midland) program recently published an article on smoking in the GEM paper's February issue. Written with information supplied by Dr. Huffman, the article focused on the dangers of smoking for non-smokers.

An asthma patient, Tim said he wouldn't smoke anyway. A grandmother who continues to smoke even though she was told to quit after having a triple by-pass prompted him to write the story.

At MMH, policies on designated smoking areas were adopted in 1981, according to hospital records.

Most hospitals prohibit smoking in patients' rooms with flammable liquids, gasses and oxygen, in elevators and corridors and in critical care, post-critical care and pediatric wards.

"In most hospitals, gift shops are run by the auxiliary," Shaner noted. "Those nice people are doing all they can to raise money and it's hard for a hospital to say, 'No, you can't have this as a resource.'

"But on the other hand," Shaner said, "hospitals should be considered a leader in the community in health awareness. You can't deprive anyone of something, but at the same time, you can say you're not going to make it available for them."

Parties to ECISD desegregation suit consider out-of-court settlement

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Almost 14 years after the federal courts ordered desegregation of the Ector County Independent School District, opposing sides are considering an out-of-court settlement.

The school board has called an emergency meeting Monday night to study a proposal from attorneys for the Committee for Redress, Unity, Concern and Integrity at All Levels that could signal a compromise.

Judge Harry Hudspeth is scheduled to begin a hearing Wednesday in Midland federal court. This hearing is the result of an appeal filed by attorneys for CRUCIAL in the wake of an August 1982 desegregation order.

But efforts by attorney Norma Cantu of the Mexican-American Legal Defense Fund (representing CRUCIAL) are the first steps toward settlement of the case that has been in the federal system since a 1970 order calling for desegregation in Midland and Ector Counties.

Bob Cox, ECISD attorney, said Thursday that Ms. Cantu is preparing a proposed consent decree. He expected to receive the proposal sometime today and planned to present it to the school board at the Monday meeting.

While Cox would not commit to any certainty of settlement, he said "If what Norma Cantu proposes or some modification is acceptable to the school board, then a settlement would become likely."

At a pre-trial conference Monday in El Paso, Ms. Cantu raised the possibility of settlement, said Cox. He said specifics of the compromise hinged on her proposal and modifications involved parties (including West Side Parents for Quality Education) would be able to agree on.

The westside parents group, an intervenor in the suit along with the Justice Department, has not been contacted on a compromise. Their agreement would be necessary to the success of a settlement.

Austin attorney Bill Bednar, said Thursday that he had been in on preliminary discussions Monday in El Paso, but that actual details had not been brought to his attention.

WSPQE's stance on the issue is not concerned with integration of the school district, explained Bednar. They insist that busing was "unfairly imposed" on westside students, especially at the junior-high level.

Bednar said that while southside minority students were being bused north under the present plan, Anglo students bused south to integrate minority schools mostly came from the west side.

"We are very much interested in any bona fide effort at settlement," said Bednar.

Bednar suggested the settlement would take place because the parties involved decided that they could work together under their own agreement rather than under a court-ordered plan.

If CRUCIAL, WSPQE and the ECISD could agree on a plan, the fourth intervening party, the Justice Department, would only be concerned that the agreement followed federal desegregation laws. The Texas Teacher's Association is involved as "friends of the court," rather than full intervenors.

A compromise would signal an end to long years of desegregation battles in the school district. After the system has worked for several years, the courts can declare the system "unitary," and withdraw from active monitoring of the system.

Austin schools have been unitary since a June 1983 ruling. A hearing is pending on a motion for the state to share costs of the proceedings, which attorney Jim Raup said exceed $1 million.

"It's unlikely that things will be wrapped up in one fell swoop," said Cox. "(Settlement) is like building a wall, brick by brick."

"Chances are if its going to settle, it would do so by sometime Tuesday," he said. The school district is meeting Monday, with the hearing set in Midland for 8:30 a.m., Wednesday. Once the parties begin presentation of their plans in the hearing, chances of settlement will decrease as all efforts are turned to the courtroom.

Hudspeth would need to approve any consent decree, but judges in desegregation suits traditionally follow compromises — provided the decree follows the law.

Ms. Cantu could not be reached in several calls Thursday to the MALDEF offices in San Francisco. In a mid-February interview, she said, "We waste money and we waste time (in the court proceedings)."

The school district has instituted a busing and magnet school program in response to the August 1982 order.

CRUCIAL (through Ms. Cantu) has criticized the voluntary magnet school appreach and what they call "one-way busing" used to bring the district within court-ordered quotas.

League campaigns for funds to feed Valley's hungry people

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The Youth Crime Prevention League is campaigning for funds for food to help the hungry in the South Texas Valley and elsewhere in the state.

The League, founded 27 years ago by 76-year-old Bishop L.C. Browning of Fort Worth, has been trying to instill responsibility and purpose in youth in order to steer them from crime and toward good and productive citizenship.

His nephew, 53-year-old E.J. Browning Sr. of Austin, is the League's state director and was in Midland recently to campaign for funds for food.

"When families and children are hungry," he said, "their behavior can be quite contrary to good citizenship. We must help."

Hungry children get angry, he said, sometimes steal, even if it's just a candy bar, and can start a life of crime and anti-social behavior. "If he's hungry, you've got problems."

His campaign is to provide food for those unemployed farm workers, their families and others who lost jobs due to the damaging freeze of the citrus crop in the Valley.

"We're not only going to aid the people in the Valley because of the food crisis," he said. "We're going to give food in Midland to the needy. It's not welfare." He said the League is encouraging people to "take the responsibility" to help themselves and work toward good jobs, personal success and sound citizenship.

E.J. Browning Sr.

Since the food fund was started in December, food has been provided to about 50 families. "We've just started," he said, adding thousands are hungry.

He is seeking funds in Midland. By April, he plans to begin distributing food to the needy here.

"The streets are paved with gold in Midland," he said, "and all we have to do is to take the responsibility and dig for it."

Browning said "whatever they (contributors) want to give will be appreciated," he said. "A dollar can provide a lot of food." He said contributions may be mailed to Youth Crime Prevention League Food Fund, Chase National Bank, 100 E. Anderson Lane, Austin, Texas 78752.

"I'm getting excited about the food," Browning said. "We're going to feed as many people as we can."

Because of the League's work in helping youth, the Texas governor has appointed his uncle, the League's founder, as "Ambassador of Good Will for the State of Texas."

The senior Browning launched the League in the late 1950s "to motivate people to take the responsibility to do something about their lives." Browning's anti-crime drive was an initial step toward that goal.

"All we have to do is to take the responsibility and meet the challenge," E.J. Browning said, "and things are going to happen. All things are possible with God."

"People need to be re-programmed," he said. "We're walking computers, and it seems we don't compute very well."

Browning, a minister who spent his early life in Midland where his father pastored Greater St. Luke AME Church in the 1940s, said the League is trying to "re-program youth."

"If they would take God with them, they could do anything. Opportunities are all around if they would take the responsibility."

DEATHS

Tom N. McCurdy

Mass for Tom N. McCurdy, 76, of 3410 Sentinel, was to be said at 9:30 a.m. today in St. Ann's Catholic Church with Father Cliff Blackburn officiating. Burial was to be in Resthaven North Mausoleum, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Pallbearers were to be Ed Smead, Blackie Coffman, Gene Abbott, John Ketter, George Wolfe and Tom Ingram.

McCurdy died Tuesday afternoon in a Midland hospital after a long illness.

He was born Aug. 13, 1907, in Avondale, and grew up in Haskell, where he attended school. He married Helen Lujan in 1931, in Clayton, N.M. He began his career as a builder with his father, opening his own firm in Clayton. He later moved to Santa Fe, N.M., where he worked on a project in Los Alamos, N.M. He moved to Odessa in 1952 and to Midland in 1955. He retired five years ago. He was a member of St. Ann's Catholic Church and was active in the Elk Club and Knights of Columbus in Santa Fe.

Survivors include his wife of Midland; a son, Michael McCurdy of Dallas; two daughters, JoAnn Raney of Midland and Betti Valdez of Santo Domingo; and three sisters, Lena Ballinger of Kingsland, Worthy Koohane of Victor Ville, Calif., and Geraldine Hancock of Ruidoso, N.M.

Neta Thomasson

Neta Thomasson, 71, of 1406 W. Louisiana Ave., died Wednesday evening in a Midland hospital.

Graveside services will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

Mrs. Thomasson was born March 7, 1912, in Laurel, Miss., where she spent her early life. After finishing school, she moved to Oklahoma City, where she married V.V. Thomasson in 1932. They moved to Midland in 1951. He died in 1972. She was a member of the First Christian Church.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Tom Rasmussen of Midland, four grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

C.P. Cummings

C.P. "Barney" Cummings, 70, of 2008 Seaboard, died Wednesday evening at his home.

Services will be at 11 a.m. Saturday in First United Methodist Church with the Rev. Charles Lutrick officiating. Burial will follow in Resthaven Memorial Park, directed by Ellis Funeral Home.

He was born Feb. 5, 1914, in Tulsa, Okla. He served in the Army during World War II. In 1939 he married Iris Houser in Cleveland, Okla. She died in 1971. Cummings moved to Odessa from Dallas in 1941 and then to Midland in 1946, where he was employed with Waukesha Inc. In 1951 he became a manufacturers representative. He was a member of First United Methodist Church and Masonic Lodge.

Survivors include a son, Dr. Mike Cummings of Midland; two brothers, Fred and Floyd Cummings of Tulsa; and two grandchildren.

John T. Cantrell

CANTON — Services for John T. Cantrell, father of Bill Cantrell of Midland, will be at 2 p.m. Saturday in Haven of Memories here, directed by Eubanks Funeral Home. He will be buried at Eden.

Cantrell died Wednesday at Tyler.

He was born Nov. 10, 1895, in Martin's Mill. He was a retired farmer and school bus driver.

Other survivors include his wife, two daughters, a brother, three sisters; 19 grandchildren; 28 great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren.

Ina Butler

Services for Ina Butler were Thursday in the Ellis Funeral Home Chapel. Burial was in Resthaven Memorial Park.

Pallbearers were Jack Blevins, Jig Swann, I.C. Brannon and R.V. Brannon.

Former Odessa pathologist sued for libel

ODESSA (AP) — A pathologist has been sued for libel on grounds that he issued a "completely inaccurate and misleading" report that led to the indictment of a Fort Worth man for the 1977 murder of his wife.

Kenneth Wayne Roeder asked for $1.6 million in damages against Dr. Richard Cohen, 36, who formerly practiced in Odessa and now lives in Redding, Calif.

Roeder is scheduled to stand trial in four months for the Sept. 24, 1977 death of his wife, Sherri Gillen Roeder.

At the time of her death, Roeder told sheriff's deputies he and his wife were driving in west Odessa when she fell from the pickup into a ditch.

Deputies originally investigated the case as a traffic accident, but reopened the case in 1982. Roeder was indicted for murder in November, a charge apparently based partly on Cohen's report.

During a Feb. 12 hearing before District Judge R.L. McKim, Cohen testified he found evidence of a "nutcracker" injury that may have resulted from the 23-year-old woman's head being slammed between a pickup door frame and the door.

"As a result of the libel...the Plaintiff has been charged by indictment with murder and has been held forth to the public as a murderer," the suit said.

Roeder's attorney, Michael McLeaish, said Wednesday that Cohen's November 1982 report "was outside the scope of his employment...not based on the professional standards of conduct that he is bound to follow, is based on the wildest speculation and conjecture, and is completely inaccurate and misleading."

Cohen, who did not perform the initial autopsy, said he based his conclusions on photographs of the site where Mrs. Roeder's body apparently fell, photographs of the autopsy and the autopsy report.

Following the Feb. 12 hearing, McKim ordered Mrs. Roeder's body exhumed for a second autopsy. The exhumation is set for March 14, and Foster has said the state will bring pathologists from Houston and Amarillo for the new study of the dead woman's injuries.

Cohen was reached Thursday at his home but declined to comment on the suit.

"I haven't been served, I have no idea and I have nothing else to say," Cohen said.

But Ector County Assistant District Attorney Anthony Foster Thursday said this was a "defense attorney's ploy."

"It sounds to me like a desperate man taking desperate measures," Foster said. "It doesn't affect our desire to go ahead and prosecute and I really don't think there's much of a lawsuit there...We're going to go ahead and prosecute Mr. Roeder come hell or high water."

Similarities link suspect to Chambers County killing

ANAHUAC, Texas (AP) — Similarities between a killing in Abilene and one in a small Chambers County town led officers to question convicted killer Henry Lee Lucas about the latter, officials said.

Lucas, who claims he has killed 150 women, gave sheriff's officers "complete, very accurate details" about the July 1980 robbery and killing of Betty Kay Choate, 41, Sheriff C.E. "Chuck" Morris told The Baytown Sun.

Mrs. Choate, of Barbers Hill, was killed in a savings and loan office.

Morris said investigators had linked Lucas, 48, to the killing after Lucas became a suspect in an Abilene slaying.

Chief Deputy Fred Dodd met with Lucas Tuesday in Williamson County Jail, where Lucas is being held on a murder charge.

"This is something that we've been waiting for a long time," Dodd told the Sun Wednesday. "And we've finally gotten the break on it."

"His details tied in with the original summations of our findings," Morris said. "He was very cooperative with us. He gave us sworn statements and we know his information in detail to be very accurate."

Bicycles, not bombs, now roll through base's tunnels

WEST FORT HOOD, Texas (AP) — Army Maj. Richard Overmeyer followed a visitor's gaze to the brown stains on the acoustical tile in the ceiling above his head.

"When we get a hard Texas rain," he said, "we get some drips."

Hard rain, indeed. Considering it has to penetrate about 80 feet of mountain, 2 lead and steel shields and 4 feet of concrete before the rainwater gets anywhere near the ceiling tile in Overmeyer's tiny, underground office.

The concrete walls of Overmeyer's office are crowded with decorations — photographs and memorabilia of his 1981 assignment in West Berlin and a clock from his alma mater, Ohio State University.

Overmeyer is a workaday denizen of the Fort Hood tunnels — where the winters are hot and the summers cool and grown men and women ride children's bicycles through thousands of square feet of polished concrete corridors that magnify every footfall or whispered word.

Thirty-one years ago, the tunnels were carved out of the mountain by the Strategic Air Command. For eight years, the tunnels served as storage rooms for nuclear bombs bound for the bellies of Air Force B-47 and, later, B-52 bombers, which operated from a nearby runway.

Steel rails for overhead cranes to move the bombs about still line the 30-foot ceilings of the tunnels, which are 20 feet wide, but the last bombers flew away with the last nuclear bombs to another base in 1961.

The tunnels grew dusty until the mid-1970s, when the Army and aerospace manufacturer Martin Marietta Corp. decided to reopen them to house a central IBM computer system with a satellite link to Army forts throughout the nation.

"Being underground," said Overmeyer, assistant director of the facility, "means our computers do not have the electrical and atmospheric problems that others have. We're also completely out of the way of any microwave shots."

The IBM 370 computer occupies an air-conditioned room just inside the first set of steel security doors at the end of the 740-foot-long entry tunnel. Beside a wall map of the United States showing communication centers at places like Fort Lewis, Wash., Fort Benning, Ga., and Fort Knox, Ky., winking red, green and yellow lights signal the 24-hour flow of data to and from the main computers.

GOP hopeful re-announces for Midland sheriff's race

At filing deadline, which fell at 6 p.m. on Feb. 6, Shaner was on an oil-well site north of Plains. By the time Painter had driven the 167 miles to the wellsite, the deadline had passed. Shaner, however, accepted the application on the condition the Secretary of State would sanction the late filing. It was rejected.

Painter said he thought it was unfair that his application was denied and that Shaner had "made a mistake."

Shaner was out of town at the filing deadline, had not made arrangements for anyone else to accept the filings and said by law he couldn't. He said he didn't think anyone else would be filing on the Republican ticket.

Shaner noted that Painter had had 30 days in which to file. But Painter said it wasn't until the afternoon of Feb. 6 that he and his family — after much prayer and encouragement from friends — decided he would run for sheriff.

"The people need a choice," Painter had said.

Joe Carr, a detective sergeant on the Midland Police Department, is the sole contender for the Democratic Party nomination for sheriff. Carr, 44, ran against Smith in 1980 but was defeated in the general election.

"I'll be starting my campaign," said Painter, a former Texas Department of Public Safety trooper who had been working for the sheriff for 1½ years. He was salaried at almost $30,000 a year.

After Painter's application for candidacy was rejected on Feb. 8, Shaner said, "I would love to have him on the ballot...if he can figure a way to be put on the ballot."

Smith said Painter had made him a good deputy and that he had "no objection" to his running for sheriff.

"And I'm hoping," said Painter, "he's still got his open-arm policy (toward Painter's candidacy)."

Man surrenders peacefully

LAREDO (AP) — A man who held a cocked pistol to his head and threatened to kill himself in a high school office surrendered peacefully after he was allowed to talk to a woman he had demanded to see, authorities said.

District Attorney's investigator Pedro Rocha said the 19-year-old man walked into the administrative office at Martin High School Thursday about 4 p.m. Thursday, after classes had recessed for the day, and demanded to talk to a woman who worked parttime at the school.

Rocha said the man pointed a cocked .22 caliber pistol at his head and said he would kill himself if he could not talk to the woman.

The principal, Roberto Flores, tried to talk to the man, a former student, by telephone from an adjoining office.

Midessa teen pageant winner announced

From Staff Reports

Miss Midessa Teen 1984 was crowned recently at the Holiday Inn Centre in Odessa. Chosen from a field of 17 entrants ages 14-17, Camille Cain, daughter of G.H. and Peggy Cain of Midland, was pageant winner.

Runners-up were: Lucy Childers, daughter of David and Mary Childers of Odessa, first; Kimberley Yancy, daughter of Keller and Kayloma Yancy of Odessa, second; April Sturdivant, daughter of Jerry and Olivia Sturdivant of Midland, third; and Cindy Willmon, daughter of Eddy and Peggy Willmon of Stanton, fourth.

The contestants performed a group dance choreographed by Dr. and Mrs. Billy Cook of Midland. Entrants were given personal interviews during the preliminaries, and during the pageant competed wearing swimsuits and evening gowns.

Camille Cain

Miss Cain will represent the Midland/Odessa area in the Miss Texas Teen pageant in El Paso in November.

Missing child insurance plan: 'Idea whose time has come'

Hearst Feature Service

An insurance policy that covers missing or kidnapped children sounds like the creation of a cynical, calculating corporate mind. But with the increased nationwide attention on the thousands of American children who disappear each year, one insurance company believes its "Missing Child Assistance Plan" is an idea whose time has come.

Under the plan, Continental Insurance Co. will pay up to $25,000 in reward money, $5,000 for advertising the reward, and the cost of up to 70 days for a private detective to help officials search for the child. In addition, the plan will pay up to $25,000 for successful prosecution of a kidnapper, $5,000 in living expenses — for example, plane fares if a parent has to fly to another city to identify a child — and an extra $5,000 for "anything else" required during the search.

The plan covers both children believed to have been spirited away by a stranger and those believed to have been abducted by a parent when the parents are separated. However, it does not cover runaways.

With the vast number of missing children in this country — about 150,000 disappear each year — the company has a large potential clientele.

The missing child plan is part of a new insurance package offered to people who fear they or a family member might be a potential victim of crime. Other parts of the package offer coverage for those worried about becoming victims of everything from violent crime to fraud.

The annual cost of the entire package is $410, although each plan may be purchased separately.

In New York, the plan received enthusiastic support from Child Find, a national organization devoted to helping locate missing children.

"There is a terrific need in this country for something of this sort," said Janette Demenkoff, department head of location and recovery for Child Find. "Parents do not know where to turn, they don't have money or resources and they're faced with horrendous legal bills, private investigators' bills and traveling bills."

Social problems miserable for victims of 'phobia'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Convinced she was "a total flop" when it came to crowds, Susan dreaded speaking before more than one person at a time. Even Tupperware parties unnerved her; she gasped and trembled at introductions.

Her lifelong terror worsened over time, especially after she learned that her job for a large Pittsburgh corporation required her to show films to employees.

"It was this fear of getting up and talking. I'd sometimes feel faint, I'd gasp for air, I'd be all choked up. I'd be awake all night for days ahead of time," said Susan, 33, who asked that her real name not be revealed.

She tried hypnosis, relaxation classes, dream therapy. She considered resigning.

Nothing helped until she contacted Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic, where she learned that what she had thought was only severe shyness was in fact a debilitating disorder known as social phobia.

Up to 35 percent of the population suffers from some form of social phobia, according to Constance Dancu, a senior clinician at the institute.

Yet, like Susan, few sufferers realize they have a certifiable illness and that help is available, Ms. Dancu said.

"Either they go into a social situation, they tough it out and they're very uncomfortable. Or it becomes so uncomfortable that they avoid the situation," she said.

Their fears involve everything imaginable.

"For some it may be attending business meetings. It might be attending luncheons for others," Ms. Dancu said. "It could be a fear of writing in front of people or drinking or eating in front of people. Or just being in a social situation and interacting with people.

"The fear is a fear of embarrassment, a fear of rejection, being evaluated in a negative fashion by others."

There's nothing wrong with a little anxiety — in fact, it's "a very positive life force," Ms. Dancu said. But there's a boundary.

"All of us have social anxiety to a certain degree when we're giving a speech or meeting new people," she said. "We're going to feel the butterflies, maybe the sweaty palms. But we attribute it to the situation, and after a few minutes we start feeling better."

The response of those suffering from social phobia is "very different," according to Ms. Dancu.

"They would be feeling very anxious, thinking people can tell they're anxious and negative thoughts (about themselves)," she said.

In the past year, Ms. Dancu and two colleagues, Dr. Samuel Turner and Deborah Beidel, have counseled about 15 social phobia victims aged 18 to 60. The psychologists began treating phobias in January 1980 as part of the institute's Anxiety Disorders Clinic.

Western Psychiatric Institute and Clinic finances its research itself. Forty-one other centers around the country receive money from the National Institute of Mental Health to study social phobia.

Although social phobia usually begins in the adolescent years, the condition is learned and can affect anyone, anytime, Ms. Dancu said.

Because it is learned, it can be unlearned, she reasons.

The psychologists, in weekly counseling sessions, encourage patients to do what they fear most. No medication is prescribed.

The success rate is high after 12 to 15 weeks of therapy, Ms. Dancu said.

"People are getting out and doing the things they were unable to do," she said.

Western dance to benefit St. Jude's

From Staff Reports

"Saving Children's Lives" is the theme for the eighth annual Country and Western Dance Saturday. Sponsored by Beta Eta chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha International, the dance will be 9 p.m.-12:30 a.m. at American Legion, 501 Airpark Road. All funds raised will benefit St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital.

Founded by entertainer Danny Thomas in 1962, this hospital is devoted to research and medical treatment of children stricken with cancer and other catastrophic diseases. According to Sally Davis, ESA publicity chairman for the benefit dance, the hospital is non-sectarian, interracial and free to patients admitted by physician referral, and if their disease is under study. Once a patient is accepted St. Jude's provides total medical care for the child as well as lodging and transportation for the parents if necessary. More than 6,000 children from throughout the nation and the world have been treated at St. Jude's.

ESA nationally has raised $7 million for St. Jude's since 1972, said Ms. Davis.

Music will be provided by Shade Country Band. Tickets are available in advance or at the door for $10 per couple or $6 for single ticket. For more information about ESA, St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital or the benefit dance, call 697-3739 or 682-2202.

Research center studies nutrition's effect on aging

BOSTON (AP) — It is, without a doubt, the most expensive hotel in Boston and perhaps anywhere. Guests are cloistered for months on end while scientists feed them with painstaking care.

The idea is to see how diet affects the seemingly unstoppable process of growing old. And it may, if the research succeeds, find ways for old folks to help preserve their bodies far into their retirement years, simply by watching what they eat.

The effects of diet on health have long interested scientists. But getting hard facts is difficult. Compared with a guinea pig or a rat, the human being is an expensive creature to study.

There is no good way to do it unless people can be persuaded to live in confinement for a long time while the experts measure and analyze everything that goes into them, everything that comes out of them and how their bodies change in the process.

This is the goal of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University.

Three upper floors of its newly opened building in downtown Boston house a combination hotel and laboratory. Currently it is home to 14 live-in volunteers, and soon this will be expanded to 28. Some stay a day or two, others for six months or more.

AP Laserphoto

Thomas Rice, 63, wears equipment to analyze his exhaled gases as he pedals an exercise machine at the Human Nutrition Research Center on Aging at Tufts University. His EKG and blood pressure are also monitored as part of a project to see how diet affects the aging process.

IT WOULD not be everyone's idea of a good time, even though there are amenities.

Volunteers get comfortable private rooms. They use a rooftop swimming pool, a game room, a library as well as dining rooms and lounges. The center arranges outings to the theater, movies and the beach.

But on the other hand, they must undergo frequent tests to check the effects of their diet on their blood, their bones and their organs. Some have to collect all their feces and urine. At mealtime, they are persuaded to eat everything on their plates.

And they cannot leave the building alone.

If they need to attend a wedding or go to the bank, they must be accompanied by a chaperon. The scientists want to make sure that the volunteers don't spoil their experiments by stopping off for a pizza and beer.

The center recruits these people through churches and elderly groups as well as ads in newspapers and on radio and television.

WHY DO they come here?

"The biggest motivation is the feeling of making a contribution," said Dr. Robert Russell, the center's director of human studies.

There are other reasons, too. Most of the volunteers are elderly, and some of them are simply lonely.

"We were surprised that a number of people wanted to be in here over Christmas," said Dr. Bess Dawson-Hughes, an endocrinologist. "They didn't have anywhere else they wanted to go."

For others, it's a change of scenery.

"I thought it would be an adventure for me," said Lillian Rosen, 80, who signed up for a five-day stay. "I figured I'd be getting a nice vacation for free. It's as good as any hotel."

The volunteers also receive a daily stipend of $10 or $20, depending on how demanding and unpleasant their tests are. But center officials downplay the money.

"We are looking for volunteers as opposed to human guinea pigs who want a livelihood," said Dr. Jeffrey B. Blumberg, the assistant director.

But the dollars can be an enticement, especially for younger people who are recruited for comparison groups.

"It would be noble to say that I can do something for medical science, and in a way, that's one reason why I'm here," said Robert White, 39, a free-lance graphic artist from Boston. "But I can't deny that the financial incentive was there, too."

However, the daily pay is just a small part of the expense of operating the nutrition center. When all the backup services are taken into consideration, it costs $630 a day for each volunteer.

JUST FIXING dinner here is no simple matter. Technicians weigh and analyze all the ingredients that go into each meal. Some are prepared in duplicate so the labs can keep track of exactly what the patient has eaten.

By varying the nutrients in the volunteers' food, the scientists can, over time, see what effect they have on people's health.

The purpose of all this is to learn whether diet can reduce or delay the degenerative diseases that come with aging.

"We decay as we grow old," said Blumberg. "To what degree does nutrition play a role in this process?"

Currently, the scientists are concentrating on two diseases of old people — osteoporosis and cataracts.

Osteoporosis, or brittle bones, is a major disorder of old people, especially women. Some research suggests that people can forestall it by eating more calcium.

Doing 'without' makes weird moms proud

By ERMA BOMBECK

A young reader in Omaha who acknowledges that I do not give advice has asked me to explain the actions of her "weird" mother.

"Don't get me wrong," she wrote, "Mom's come a long way since the days she listened to 'Young Dr. Malone' on the radio, wore cotton housedresses, and a PTA meeting was the highlight of her month. She learned how to drive at age 50, got her degree at 58 and now teaches handicapped children, but the way she lives is positively PRIMITIVE!

"She doesn't have a microwave, a dishwasher or a garbage disposal. They have a bathtub, but no shower! How can you wash your hair without a shower? She oohs and aahs over my matched stoneware, but there's not more than three plates in the woman's kitchen that match. Imagine, they've been married 38 years and they're still drinking out of jelly glasses.

"She launders foil and plastic bags and uses them again and I'm embarrassed to tell you what she does with paper towels."

Paula

Paula, you have just described not only my mother but an entire generation who never throw away a rubber band or a brown paper bag, who chew gum half a stick at a time and chase the last bean around the plate for as long as it takes to catch it.

Women who never burn the fireplace because it makes the brick black, who still have heels replaced on their shoes, still soak dish towels in bleach and never throw away the necks of chickens.

For a long time I thought they were cheap. They didn't know how to live life to its fullest. They cut corners and deprived themselves of life's conveniences.

And then something happened to make me take a second look. I got married and with it came austerity, not of my own choosing. If we were to survive at all, I had to make it by hand, make it from scratch and make it last or I'd never make it to the end of the month. I complained and vowed that someday I'd never have to live like that again.

But, with the struggle, came a certain pride that nothing else matched.

I can explain your mother, Paula. I know her very well. She's a wise lady who is not depriving herself of anything she needs or wants. She knows something about herself that few of us are privileged to know. She has learned that she can live "without." When you know that, somehow living "with" just doesn't seem to be very important.

Doctor: PMS real problem

Hearst Feature Service

SAN FRANCISCO — Dr. Carol Jessop calls today's woman "the ideal candidate for premenstrual syndrome (PMS), as she juggles home, family and career in a high-stress lifestyle."

The physician, a two-career type herself, is committed to research on promising new treatments of the disorder, which is finally receiving widespread attention. She is actively seeking funds for clinical trials in a long-term study of different therapies at Lyon-Martin Women's Health Services here. The doctor is on the faculty of the University of California-San Francisco.

Premenstrual syndrome affects as much as 90 percent of the adult female population in varied degrees. Most women find it an annoyance, but 20 percent of those affected — an estimated 10 million American women — are incapacitated.

Cancer victims avoiding drugs

CHICAGO (AP) — Though potent drugs are available to relieve pain, some terminally ill cancer patients are suffering needlessly because of fears they will become addicted, says a new report in today's American Medical Association.

"In the terminally ill patient, consideration of a drug's addiction potential is .. an impediment to the delivery of optimum pain relief," William T. McGivney and Glenna M. Crooks, drug specialists for the AMA, said.

DEAR ABBY

Emergency phones matter of life, death

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: If this message to the public makes your column, hundreds of police and fire department dispatchers across the nation will thank you from the bottom of their hearts.

When there is a widespread power failure in your area due to a storm, DO NOT CALL THE POLICE OR FIRE DEPARTMENT UNLESS YOU HAVE A GENUINE EMERGENCY!

For the last 12 years I have been employed as a communications officer, dispatching paramedics, police officers and fire fighters where they are needed.

During a widespread power failure, we are extremely busy handling the many emergencies that occur as a result of the power failure, and our lines are jammed with calls from people asking, "How come there's no electricity, and how long do you think we will be without it?" Consequently, those calling to report fires, robberies, accidents and heart attacks get a busy signal or they are put on hold.

Abby, I hope you think this is important enough to print. — C.E.M., HUNTINGTON BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR C.E.M.: It is. And I hope this will cause people to think twice before picking up their phones to ask non-emergency questions about a power failure. I am sure many did not realize that those lines should be kept open for calls from people who need help in genuine emergencies. I didn't.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 50 and newly divorced. I would like to go out with a man for a good time such as dinner, theater etc., but I'm told that times have changed since I last dated 20 years ago.

Today when a man takes a woman out, he automatically expects her to go to bed with him. I am talking about men in their 60s! I would like to know how to handle this situation. Should I let a man know ahead of time that I do not go in for that sort of thing? Or should I wait until I am backed into a corner? — NEW AT THE DATING GAME

DEAR NEW: Don't presume that every man who asks you out wants to hustle you into bed. Some may not. And others cannot.

DEAR ABBY: I am a girl, age 15, with a good reputation, which means a lot to a girl my age. I have a real close friend (let's call her "T") and her reputation is really bad.

The stories told about her are in a sense true, but she is really not as terrible as a lot of people say she is. My parents want me to stay away from "T" because they say if I hang around with her, my reputation will get bad, too. I am struggling to know what to do. Should I drop "T," or should I keep hanging around with her and hope my reputation doesn't get damaged?

What should I do? — "G"

DEAR "G": A person's character is what he IS. A person's reputation is what people SAY he is. Does "T" drink, smoke, curse, take drugs and get too tight with guys? If she does, even though you like her a lot, you would be wise to hang around with girls whose standards are more like your own.

Abigail Van Buren is a columnist for Universal Press Syndicate.

Nicotine defenses harmful

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The body harms itself when it tries to defend itself from nicotine, the addictive component in cigarette smoke, researchers say.

White blood cells called neutrophils, reacting to foreign bacteria or viruses, release potent enzymes that act like a germicide, says Dr. Robert Senior, a professor at the Washington University School of Medicine. These cells gravitate toward nicotine, dissolving the lining of lungs.

Senior characterized the white blood cells concentration as "a hazard — too much of a good thing," as the enzymes digest vital components of nearby cells.

Senior headed a group of researchers.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD WANT AD

1. IT'S ALWAYS BEST to start your advertisement with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment or room for rent or property for sale, it's better to start your advertisement with the location.
2. BE CLEAR. Readers react more quickly and favorably when given complete or definite information. One of the most important considerations of any advertisement is to include the price.
3. MAKE IT EASY for the reader prospect to reach you. ALWAYS INSERT your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time to have prospects contact you.
4. THE GREATEST READER RESPONSE can be secured for your advertisement by using consecutive insertions. Play safe. The thrifty 15 day plan is best and costs less per insertion. There are also special monthly rates for those who want to keep their name and offers before the public each and every day. Cancel when you get results, the charge will be the rate earned at the time of cancellation.
5. PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you would like to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good classified ad.
6. CLASSIFIED READERS ARE already interested in buying used or new merchandise. These people have the money and are in the market to buy. Give them every advantage you can with good ad copy.
7. WANT ADS THAT FAIL do so not through any lack of readership, but because they are often quickly worded and do not contain enough information to get prompt action.
8. TO PLACE YOUR ADVERTISEMENT in The Midland Reporter-Telegram, where you reach the active Classified market,
