Lubbock Now Facing Unexpected Problem

MUST ENTERTAIN C. OF C. OFFICIALS WITHOUT HOTEL

NEW LUBBOCK HOTEL NOT TO BE COMPLETED FOR EXECUTIVE MEET

Lubbock is now face to face with a wholly unexpected problem, in that the new Lubbock Hotel will not be completed for occupation in time for the annual session of the Texas Commercial Executives' Association here July 22, 23 and 24. It was announced at a meeting of the board of directors of the Board of City Development when the situation was taken up for discussion.

It has been the plan of local chamber of commerce officials all through the line of preparation for the meeting that the hotel would have been completed in ample time, and a promise to this effect had been made by the construction company not more than two weeks ago. In this, of course, no one in particular is to blame, for the construction firm has encountered unexpected obstacles in their work, and although chamber of commerce officials expressed deep regret over the fact that the building will not be ready, they have offered no censure but have turned their attention to means of overcoming the unexpected situation.

Up To People of City Now, it is up to the people of Lubbock to show the several hundred visitors who will be here for the session the best time of their lives, and sell this section of the state to those leaders in commercial enterprises and city building, many of whom possibly will be on their first trip to West Texas an appeal from the chamber of commerce today said.

Other arrangements for the meeting are under way, but pending definite agreement on certain phases of those plans, no public announcement had been made early this afternoon. It is the opinion of those in charge of arrangements that Lubbock can put on a real show for the visitors, and can entertain them royally. Each visitor will be supplied with a button on which will be his name and address, and Lubbock and South Plains people are urged to seek out especially those representatives of towns and cities where many Plains people formerly lived. A cheery smile and handclasp to every visitor, however, is urged as one of the main sources of entertainment in which each citizen can assist.

Program Arranged A program has been arranged for the business meetings, and other forms of amusement are being planned, but officials urge hearty co-operation on the part of the citizenship.

It was explained that the Association

20 Injured When Train Overtakes

Co-Eds Taken From Care of Spiritualist

BEAUMONT, Texas, July 16. (AP)—Two daughters of a well-to-do Dallas family, ages 17 and 19, were found here today by their brother with an itinerant preacher and his wife and returned to their home in Dallas. The girls are both co-eds and were firmly convinced that if their brother took them from their spiritualist advisors the car would be wrecked before they reached the railroad station, six miles away, unless the preacher were paid $150, which one of the sisters said "she owed God."

With the aid of a deputy sheriff, however, the brothers took the two sisters and they reached the railroad station safely.

"LIKE RED SHREDDED WHEAT"

These sheet iron storerooms of the Picatinny arsenal piled full of heavy shells, were twisted and warped by the blasts until they looked, observers said, like red shredded wheat. Beyond to the right, can be seen the smoking hillside that once was the Naval reservation, and where every minute or so a shell still was exploding as the photograph was made.

GASOLINE TAX IN CITY APPROVED

Ordinance Passes Its Second Reading; Plans Launched For City Warehouse

At a meeting of the City Commission in regular session this morning, the ordinance will provide for the one-half cent tax to be paid by each wholesaler of gasoline in the city, the tax to be paid on the twenty-fifth of each month.

W. H. Perkinson, superintendent of city utilities, and J. H. Hankins were authorized by the commission to draw up plans for a warehouse for the city, and advertise for bids on the building of same.

The city tax collector will now collect all taxes and costs where necessary, as per the State law. There has been heretofore some discussion of the taxes of the city and this action will clear the situation to a great extent.

The matter of passing an ordinance preventing trucks hauling nitro-glycerine from passing through Lubbock was discussed, but no action was taken, and it was held over until the next meeting of the commission.

Mayor Pink L. Parrish, Commissioners Jacob Jones, R. W. Blair, and J. H. Hankins, Superintendent of city utilities, W. H. Perkinson, and attorney E. L. Klett sat in the session.

GEORGIA BANKER TAKES OWN LIFE

Director of Trust Company Shoots Self to Death in Home at Atlanta

(By the Associated Press) ATLANTA, Ga., July 16.—J. R. Smith, president of the Atlanta Real Estate Board and a director of the Bankers Trust Company, for which a receivership was designated in Federal District Court here yesterday, shot himself at his home in Morrisville, a suburb, early today. Mr. Smith was dead when found.

The body was found by a servant attracted by a shot. The door of Mr. Smith's room was locked and the servant broke it down with an axe. His daughter, Mrs. Julia Lindsey, was among the first to reach the body.

The entire head of a shotgun had entered his abdomen. Belief was expressed that he fired the shot with his toe. Several letters found beside the body were turned over the coroner who announced that an inquest would probably be held later in the day.

Mr. Smith was a former member of the faculty of the Georgia Institute of Technology, and a director of the Georgia Farmers and Traders Bank of Atlanta, which was closed early this week.

How two men, commanders of their fellows, dashed unquestioningly to almost certain death is told in one of the rare eyewitness stories of the Lake Denmark disaster.

They were Capt. Burwell H. Clarke of the Marine Corps, and Lieutenant Dorman and his pilot dived through billows of smoke and hot sulphuric fumes to within 500 feet of the blazing ruins.

"It wasn't healthy to dive any closer than that," Dorman explained. "The place resembled the crater of an erupting volcano. No man's land is the word."

But Dorman's shots all were of the camera variety, while those coming his way from the smoking ruins were six to 16-inch shells—not quite an even give and take.

Seeking New Thrill

LAKEHURST, N. J.—Many men retire to see the world, but Commander Jacob Henry Klein, Jr., Commandant of the naval air station, who has left the navy after 28 years service, has seen too much of it. He says when he wants adventure now he's going to dodge taxis, having had quite a few thrills chasing German submarines and flying our two big airships.

Has Zoo As Hobby

NEW YORK—With the millions he made in coal, George F. Getz runs a zoo of his own for amusement now. He is in town to see about an elephant, two tigers, two leopards, a panther and a python, which he bought in Singapore and which are to be shipped to his farm in Holland, Mich.

Likes Balloon Thrill

ST. LOUIS—A thrilling way to see the country, Miss Edna Honeywell thinks, is from a balloon during a race. She flew with her dad and dropped into a preacher's yard, where the balloon as well as her knickerbockers, caused some astonishment. She's a diction, 24 years old, and now she wants a balloon pilot's license.

Seeks Excitement

NEW YORK—The links furnish too little excitement and fights for Freddie Marvin, just out of a military school. He went into a recruiting office, golf bag and all to join the marines, who are getting quite a few recruits.

By JAMES HASWELL and LEON M. SILER
NEA Service Writers at the Disaster

DOVER, N. J., July 16.—Since 1892 Morris R. Utter had lived, all unconcerned, eight next door to sudden death.

But when the disaster long predicted by the countryside finally came, 34 years after the government built its arsenal at Lake Denmark, Utter's faith seemed justified.

For the vast explosion, which rocked the land for miles around, by some freak left himself and his little home unscathed.

"But it was sure some jar," he says. The old man, 77, lives alone in a farmhouse 100 yards from the arsenal gates.

The first blast found him preparing supper. From his doorway he watched down the road to Dover, fleeing women and children, the wounded, maimed, and, finally, the garrison in retreat.

All night long he watched the fireworks. He saw flames tower into the darkness above the hills, and felt their heat. He trembled at deafening blast after blast from the piled explosives. He saw houses fall, watched fiery shell fragments dig holes across the road.

He saw the soldiers return, seeking their dead. Late the next day he mounted his bicycle as usual and set off on his Sunday visit to his daughter. She, of course, had given him up for dead.

Two miles down the road he came upon the deadline of safety set by military authorities. A vast crowd of newspaper men, residents of the vicinity, and the curious waited beyond.

"Why didn't you leave with the rest?" he was asked. "Why?" drawled Utter, taken back. "I don't know. I never thought of it."

Aboard an NEA Service airplane, Robert P. Dorman, photographer, exchanged shots with the burning naval munitions plant as he sailed over the desolate scene with the sunrise of the morning after.

But Dorman's shots all were of the camera variety, while those coming his way from the smoking ruins were six to 16-inch shells—not quite an even give and take.

SHOT TO DEATH IN GARAGE; RESULT OF STAND ON LAW

FIVE SHOTS TAKE EFFECT BUT NO TRACE FOUND OF ASSASSINS

(By Associated Press) CANTON, Ohio, July 16.—Threats on the life of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, because of his activities against alleged gamblers were carried out here early today.

Five bullets brought to an end the career of the young publisher, who came here a year ago to publish the News, owned by James M. Cox, publisher of a number of papers. Mellett was putting his automobile in the garage in the rear of his home when the assassin's gun spoke. Neighbors who heard the shots immediately dashed for the garage, but Mellett was dead—a bullet through his left temple having ended his life almost instantly.

The slayers had disappeared in an automobile which they had parked about a block from the Mellett home.

Favored For Life. That Mellett feared his life would be taken was evident for several weeks and as a result of the threat police guards had been stationed at the Mellett home. The policeman was off duty last night, however.

Neighbors reported seeing a suspicious-looking automobile, bearing a Pennsylvania license plate, in the vicinity of the Mellett home. A short time after the shooting it had disappeared and no trace of it has been found.

Mellett, one of seven children, all in the newspaper business, came here from Akron, where he formerly was employed on the Akron Press. A brother, John, who writes magazine articles under the name of Jonathan Brooks, is the secretary of the Indiana Tractor association, and another brother, Jess, formerly mayor of Anderson, Ind.

His widow and four children survive.

IN SOCIETY

The Woman's Daily Editorial

How many people start off on a vacation absolutely exhausted by the effort of preparing for it. Then it takes all of the time away from them and energy and they are not even able to enjoy it. Mothers with families know perhaps better than anyone else the strain of preparation.

The very word "vacation" sounds ominous, and they lie awake nights wondering how many dresses it is going to take to keep Betty and Jean presentable, and if it will be possible to keep Bobby in wash suits with laundry bills like mortgages taking away the joy of life.

Well, the whole plan of the summer vacation is wrong if it is going to cause any one an undue amount of worry—mother most of all. It is mother who needs the vacation!

If you are going some place where it takes more clothes and more managing to care for those clothes than it does at home, then don't go. Instead, find some place where you can take what you could do with at home.

The ideal place for the family vacation for people of limited income (and also for the more prosperous) is the unpretentious cottage in a quiet country spot, preferably near water of some sort.

The only added expense is the rent. Other expenses run the same as housekeeping at home. Dress the children simply. They'll probably live in bathing suits most of the time anyway. Use paper napkins and towels and tablecloths, and keep down the cooking to the simplest things.

If mother wishes to stay at home with father and feels that the children need a vacation, there are our wonderful summer camps for boys and girls over eight.

Considering the advantage and care they get, these are not any more expensive than any other vacation would be. It does children good to get away from their mothers occasionally.

And as for mothers getting away from their children, you may quote me as saying they are ten times as efficient mothers for the rest of the year.

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Fried onion, cereal cooked with dates, cream bread, toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Fried potato balls, sliced tomatoes, brown bread, sandwiches with peanut butter, milk, tea.

DINNER—Hot meat loaf, DeMouille potatoes, creamed carrots, molded Swiss chard salad, strawberry blanc-mange, Graham bread, milk, coffee.

Filled Potato Balls
Two and one-half cups mashed potatoes, 3-4 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, left-over chopped meat, 1 cup white sauce.

Beat egg well and add to mashed potatoes with milk, salt and pepper. Mix and sift flour and baking powder and stir into potato mixture. Drop from tip of spoon onto a well-buttered baking pan. Flatten slightly making a depression in the center of each ball. Combine chopped meat and white sauce and fill each cup with this mixture. Cover with potato mixture and brush over with melted butter. Bake about 20 minutes in a moderately hot oven and serve at once.

DOTY CONVICTED ON FRENCH COUNT

Condemned To Eight Years At Hard Labor for Deserting French Army in Syria

(By The Associated Press) BEIRUT, Syria, July 15.—Bennett J. Doty, of Memphis, Tenn., was condemned by a court martial at Damascus today to eight years' imprisonment at hard labor for deserting from the French Foreign Legion, in which he enlisted under the name of Gilbert Clare.

An officer representing the government, as prosecutor, demanded the death penalty. Lieutenant Gallifer, for the defense, eloquently described the brave conduct of Doty prior to his desertion.

This conduct, he pointed out, had gained Doty the Croix De Guerre, and he asked that the court grant a suspended sentence. The hearing established "abandonment of post before armed rebels." The judgment of the court martial declared this offense was proved, but it allowed extenuating circumstances.

Doty, who is 25, is the son of Lewis H. Doty, a Memphis attorney, and is a veteran of the World War, in which he served with Battery E, 115th Field Artillery, 20th Division.

He left the French lines in Southern Syria, where a campaign was underway to subdue the Druse tribesmen. When word came, early in June, that he had been arrested with several companions, and faced a possible death sentence, the American government instructed U. S. Ambassador Herrick in France to intercede in his behalf.

The machinery of the French government was promptly put into action. War Minister Painleve, at the instance of Premier Briand, telegraphed military authorities in Syria to suspend execution of any sentence until the war ministry had passed on the evidence.

Receiving a staff correspondent for The Associated Press in the Damascus military prison on June 15, Doty declared his "momentary desertion" was caused not by cowardice, but by acute homesickness.

Lectures and Recitations In Summer Term Close Saturday; Exams Next Week

All lectures and recitations for the summer session of the Tech summer school are to close Saturday afternoon, according to President Paul W. Horn. Examinations are to be held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week and the school is to officially close for the term Thursday. Most of the students will leave by Wednesday, he said.

All business offices of the college will be kept open for the remainder of the summer, although many of the secretaries and stenographers will be given vacations beginning August 1, the president said. Dr. Horn expects to remain in Lubbock all summer with the exception of the last week in July. Some of the faculty members have planned to study in other colleges, teach in other institutions or take vacations. Their plans were announced in the Journal several weeks ago.

The South Plains Teachers Institute will be held at the college September 6 to 10 and entrance examinations for the fall term will be held September 16-18. The fall term of school will open September 20 with three days for registration of students. Classes will start September 22.

It is thought that there will be a 12-weeks summer term at the Tech next summer, Dr. Horn told the Journal Friday.

Women Leaders Urge Development of Talent

DES MOINES, Ia., July 16 (AP)—The seeking out of promising young women and development of their talents for business and professional service was urged upon member clubs today by the education committee of the Federation of Business and Professional Women. The committee reviewed the vocational guidance work of numerous clubs, declaring this work one of the greatest services that might be undertaken by the organization.

Adequate preparation is necessary for women in business, the committee holds. It has been urging commercial schools to require highly schooled entrants.

To Meet Paul Berlenbach For Light-Heavy Rotary And Exchange To Play Game For Civic Club Flag After Kiwanis Entry Loses Annual Game To Rivals

JACK DELANEY

JACK DELANEY, popular New England pugilist, will get another chance to win the light heavyweight championship when he clashes with his old rival Paul Berlenbach, tonight after postponement of the scheduled bout last night due to rain. Delaney, who many experts claim is the most likely-looking contender for Dempsey's laurels (a few years hence) has met the Astoria Assassin twice before. Back in 1924 he kayaked Delaney in four sessions just at the time the latter was hanging up a string of successive knockout victories of unusual length. Last December they met again, Berlenbach winning on points after Delaney had all but duplicated his 1924 triumph. Delaney stands a good chance of depriving Paul of his laurels this time; in fact such a feat wouldn't cause any great surprise.

The Rotary club's baseball team, which yesterday afternoon swept from its path the pine wearing the livery of the Kiwanis club, will meet the Exchange club's team in the near future to decide the civic club championship of the city. The Board of Strategy, composed of E. Y. "Big" (in) Freeland, Sled Allen, Judge Raley and Charlie Guy, has decided following the receipt of the Exchange challenge to meet in finish fray the winner of the annual Kiwanis-Rotary conflict. In hectic battle of baseball the elderly gentlemen's organization turned back the youngsters of the Kiwanis club by a count of 9 to 3 at Merrill park.

Catch Freeland, on the mound for the Rotarians, hurled a four hit contest, his opponents scoring only as the result of bobbles. Past fielding on the part of Centerfielder Oscar Sensabaugh, and errorless support on the part of his colleagues saved other scoring, however, and although Fitcher, Herbert Stubbs, of the Kiwanians, turned in a well hurled game during the time he was on the mound, consecutive batters in the third frame coupled with two errors being his only trouble.

Rotarians Score First
Neither team scored until the first of the third when the Rotarians, battling to erase their 9 to 3 defeat of last year, suddenly solved the wrong arm slants of Stubbs for three tallies. With one away the diminutive Raley shot a single to left center, counting a moment later on Guy's one-baser to right. Freeland skirted to Jones but the Kiwanis manager erred a moment later when Allen's hot ground ball escaped him. Guy taking second to score immediately on Hilburn's crash to center, Allen going to third. Baker then booted Sensabaugh's grounder scoring Allen.

Kiwanians Grow Active
The Kiwanians counted twice in the fourth when batters and errors were merged. McMillan's triple and Jones' double were largely responsible for the trick. The Indians also scored once in the fifth when McAfee erred on Clapp's ground ball behind Howard's triple to center.

Rotary's big inning came in the fourth frame when Stubbs gave way to Holland on the bill. The Kiwanians pasted the offerings of the veteran right-hander for six scores. McAfee, Griffith, Raley, Guy, Freeland and Allen counted during this session, Stubbs returning to the mound with two outs and retiring the side when Roberts went out, Stange to Howard.

Joe Griffith and Frank Jones each secured one hit in one trip, Jones' blow being a slashing double to right. In the only double play of the contest Clapp was caught at the plate after Inman took Stubbs' throwing fly and Hilburn grabbed Guy's toss to home to catch the runner.

BERLENBACH NOW IS FAVORITE IN TITLE BOUT

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Paul Berlenbach's chances of successful defense of his light heavyweight championship against Jack Delaney tonight increased today with his weight. Before rain at Ebbetts Field caused postponement of the struggle last night, Delaney was a six to five favorite. Today the champion was five or six pounds heavier, than when he weighed in. This would give him a ring-side advantage of probably ten or more pounds. Delaney was eight and one-half under the limit and although his followers considered Berlenbach's big advantage doubtfully, Delaney maintained he was in the best condition of his career.

HELPFUL HIN WESTERN CLUBS RELEGATE EAST IN MAJOR LOOP

By GOLFING ST
DODGERS PUT DOWN BY CARDS IN LAST STAND OF EASTERN TEAMS

There was every indication in today's standing of the teams that this year's struggle for the National League bunting would be settled on Western baseball battlegrounds. The East has been crowded out of the first division—the result of an 11 to 5 defeat administered to Brooklyn yesterday by the St. Louis Cardinals. The place of the East's last remaining first division contender was taken by the Cubs with a 3-1 triumph over the Braves.

Manager McKechnie of the Pirates went into action as the Cubs scored in behind Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and St. Louis. He fined Eddie Moore $100 for listless playing, while President Heider of the National League chipped in a three day suspension for catcher Gooch, because of an altercation with Umpire Rigler. Then the Corsairs stepped out and blanked the Giants, 3 to 0.

Channel Swimmer Is Foiled In Attempt

DOVER, England, July 16. (AP)—The English channel has turned back the first of its would-be conquerors this morning. The attempt was made today by Frank Perks, a well known Birmingham swimmer. Perks went by motor boat to Cape Gris-Nez, on the French side, last night, and took to the water at midnight. The sea was smooth and all conditions apparently favorable. A heavy northwesterly wind spring, however, raised a choppy sea. Perks also added to the swimmer's difficulties and he abandoned the attempt after nine hours in the water.

The NUT CRACKER by Joe Williams

Speaking of the Cincinnati ball club, you might say that Mr. Hendricks and his crew are making the rest of the league see Red these days.
Rock Kansas got $50,000 for fighting at a Kansas benefit show in Chicago last week. What the world needs is more self-sacrificing big-hearted guys like Rocky.
Atlanta sent a train load of admirers to New York to welcome Bobby Jones home. We don't know whether they called it the Midnight Special or the Midiron Special.

The experts say Wayne Munn's younger brother, who is boxing in New York, is twice as good as he was. This seems like going a long stretch out of the way to rap the newcomer.
Natural history note: You can't put four legs on a worm and make it look like a zebra and besides the whole procedure would be silly.

The Queen of England refused to give Suzanne an audience. But she did give her the air.
We are one of those big royal Americans through whose veins courses the red blood of patriotism. But something or other it seems to mean nothing to us that America was beaten abroad in the mixed tennis events.

The forty-six contenders for the welterweight championship spent a safe and sane Fourth... Which is to say, they kept away from Mr. Latzo.
Muscular guests will continue to be welcome guests at week-end parties where it takes stupendous power to remove the tops of cocktail shakers.
Mr. O'Goody's little mamma wants a string of graduated pearls and the poor sap is wondering what college he can buy them at.

It is now planned to match the winner of the Dempsey-Tunney fight with White... This promises to be the highlight of the 1927 fistie season or will miss our guess.

DIAMOND DISPUTES DECIDED

By BILLY EVANS
What is the usual procedure of major league umpires in determining an infield fly?
The infield fly is a judgment play, hence there is no set rule that could deal with it.
What would be regarded an infield fly by one umpire, might not be so interpreted by another official equally competent.
The infield fly is any fair fly ball other than a line drive that the umpire believes can be handled by an infielder.
With less than two out and first and second, or first, second and third occupied, the batsman is automatically out when the umpire so rules.
Most umpires make it a rule definitely to decide the status of the drive after the ball has reached its height and has started to descend.

FINANCIER FACES A FIVE YEAR OLD INDICTMENT

NEW YORK, July 16. (AP)—Charles W. Morse, aged financier, must plead to an indictment returned almost five years ago charging him and others with using the mails to defraud in the sale of steamship company stock. When the case was called today Federal Judge Holmes directed the Morse defense argued that his client is a "helpless invalid" under persecution. Decision to call Morse was reached after protracted argument during which Fletcher Dabyns, Special Assistant Attorney General of Chicago, demanded the forfeiture of $200,000 bail posted by Morse in 1922.
Council for Morse said that his client was more than 70 years old had suffered two strokes of paralysis could not walk without assistance, has small powers of comprehension, can speak only with difficulty and is "virtually gone." He said Morse was now in Bath, Maine.
Attorneys for the government replied that representatives of the government sent to see had been refused entrance to his home and a doctor sent to examine him reported that such symptoms as he had of paralysis, were of the sort that could be simulated. They recalled that Morse was released from Atlanta penitentiary during President Taft's administration because of illness. Morse, they said, "agreed to die in six months, but failed to live up to his end of the contract."

EDITORIAL POLICIES

"Why don't you pour it on 'em' for such and such?"
"How come you don't get on old man Blank for so-and-so?"
"Why don't you come out against John Doe?"

These and many similar questions are part of the every day conversation of the editor of every newspaper and his friends and associates—many of whom have the erroneous idea that the purpose of the editorial columns of every paper is to make somebody feel bad—to criticize somebody or something for most any stand or action.

The Journal is always ready to accept suggestion for Heaven knows it's a hard enough matter to find live, interesting editorial subjects in a city
the size of Lubbock—but at the same time it wishes to rise, at this point and explain that the purpose of the editorial columns of this newspaper is not to make people feel bad—is not to stir up strife, animosity and prejudice.

Of course the Journal from time to time, has come out against certain prevailing conditions and will continue to do so whenever it feels that the public good is being harmed—
that the public right is being wronged.

But so far as adopting an editorial policy of destructive criticism of any person or anything, The Journal, plainly, is "not interested." It is the newspaper for all of the people, not the mouthpiece of any individual or set of individuals, and stands staunchly behind everything that is for the good of the community.

CIRCUMSTANCES

Circumstances alter cases. But circumstances don't make the man who makes the circumstances.

Look around at the people you know.
Colonel Blubb, the great statesman,
probably owes his position to accident.

While he was in college, he found he could play poker at night if he took law, because the law classes didn't start until afternoon.

Mrs. Brown, the social leader, would have married a poor young man if he had come to this city instead of going to a neighboring village. But the young fellow went to the neighboring village, so the girl never met him. She married Mr. Brown. Now she's a social leader.

All so silly. All hanging upon threads so slender. All apparently controlled by circumstances.

Yet, there are personal factors. The ambition which made Colonel Blubb
a great statesman would have made him a great doctor, merchant, engineer.

The good sense and determination
which made Mrs. Brown a social leader, er would have won her recognition
in any walk of life.

Circumstances don't make the man
who makes the circumstances.

INTUITION

Women are inquisitive. They simply will not believe a thing unless it is true. Not unless they want to believe it.

Consider one Chicago girl. A man gave her the ring. The stone was almost large enough to be an imitation.
He spent money freely.

She thought she loved him. One night they were at a road house. "Marry me now," he said.

"No," said the girl. "Let's wait. If you love me enough to live with me always, you love me enough to wait
a few months."

It was her intuition. Later the police learned he had three wives.

IN NEW YORK SEE-SAVING UP and DOWN BROADWAY

NEW YORK, July 16.—They tell a story on Broadway of a pretty 17-year-old heroine who appeared at the theatre with a dime savings bank.
"Ah, what the heck are you going to save for?" demanded her improvident sisters.

"Well," came the reply, "I'm going to put away a dime a week so that I'll have enough money to get my face lifted when I get old."

Beat this one and win a pair of asbestos ice tongs.

"Hell's Kitchen," once the most menacing
section in all Manhattan, now broods peacefully over its past sins.
Where gang guns peeped the streets in the old days, lines of push-chairs now present a colorful panorama.
Corners that were melodramatically listed as "sure death" have become bustling market places for housewives.

"Hell's Kitchen" was the name given to a belt of the theatrical geography of which was 36th to 41st streets and Ninth avenue to the water front.

Here ranged the "Gopher Gang," a band of death-dealing gangsters whose exploits rival the had men of the "wild and woolly west."

Such names as "Rubber" Shaw and
"Tanner" Smith climbed into notorious eminence. Merchants of the neighborhood, fear in their hearts, paid big protection money. They would contribute to funds used for keeping gangsters
out of prison.

Time began to pat a soothing hand over this fevered belt. The "gophers" went the way of all gangs. But the name "Hell's Kitchen" stuck and still has a fearsome connotation.

Peace-loving people went about their ways and, little by little, commerce invaded the district.

Outside of Orchard street upon the East Side, there is, perhaps, no section of New York so colorful with pushchairs as this death hole of yesterday.

The peaceful hucksters find bold youngsters their only menace.

One merchant who weathered the stormy years, looks back and smiles.
Does he ever see any of the old gangsters?

Yes, indeed. And as they grew up they became industrious and substantial citizens, he recites. Several are married and have families and come to him with their trade. One has become one of Broadway's important supper club figures.

HE'LL GET ALONG

A young man living on the shores
of Lake Erie bought himself a sailboat with which to while away some happy summer hours on the water.

Two or three days after he bought it someone stole it. Now that was a sad thing to happen to any young man who has just bought a boat. But being a man of action, the erstwhile yachtsman wasted no time in idle reflection and crying over spilt milk,
but hid himself to an airplane field
where he chartered a plane and flew

He found it beached at a port some miles away. We are willing to wager that this enterprising young man will get on in the world.

The Day After Pa Fired the Best Hired Hand in the Country

Stewart's WASHINGTON LETTER

IS THE TAIL OF INSURGENCY ABOUT TO WAG G. O. P. — OR FALL AWAY?

By CHARLES P. STEWART NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Republican insurgency — described by the scholastic Congressman Berger as "the elephant's tail" — has reached such proportions in the last week or so that one of two things appears likely to happen:

1—Either the tail will shortly be wagging the elephant, or else.

2—It is quite among the possibilities that the tail will detach itself from the elephant and undertake to be a party
on its own account.

To appreciate how formidable the elephant's tail — insurgency — has become, it is first necessary to consider the question:

What is a political insurgent?

The answer seems to be that he is a member of a political party who is out of harmony with its leadership to some extent.

Now President Coolidge, by virtue of his office, at least theoretically is the republican leader at the present time. Any republican who bolts one of his essential policies becomes an insurgent automatically.

No Coolidge policy is more absolutely an essential one than his policy toward agriculture. It is to this policy that the recent startling spread of republican insurgency is due.

Just how extensive it is throughout the country remains to be seen. Even as to the House of Representatives there may be a little uncertainty, the lower house is so unwieldy.

But the Senate is easy to size up.
If the Santa Fe is an index, the elephant
and his tail are near the parting of the ways.

Senators La Follette, Frazier, Norris
and Nye have been republican insurgents all along. Though a nuisance to the party organization, they were numerically too weak to be very dangerous.

On the farm proposition it was to be expected that Senator McNary would be an insurgent, inasmuch as he was author of one of the bills which flies straight in the face of everything the administration considers agriculture entitled to.

Senators Capper, Howell, Johnson, McMaster and Norbeck have been occasional insurgents, so perhaps it is not surprising that they are completely off the reservation over the question of farm relief.

But Senators Cameron, Cummins, Deness, Gooding, Harrell, Jones of Washington, Means, Oddie, Pineo, Robinson
of Indiana, Schall and Stanfield?
These were "regulars." They are insurgents as to farm relief.

And Senator Watson, who was a recognized "White House advisor" and frequently its spokesman in the Senate?
He won his primary campaign in Indiana on an insurgent platform
—as to farm relief and other things, too.

Most significant of all, Senator Curtis voted against the administration on the farm relief bill. Curtis is republican floor leader in the upper house of Congress. His defection must have given President Coolidge a jolt.

In fact, the President would have been definitely turned down in the Senate on the farm issue, but for the democratic votes of Senators Bayard,
Bruce, Dill, Edwards, Gerry, King,

Helpful Health Hints

By DR. HUGH S. CUMMING
Director General U. S. Public Health Survey

BABY MUST HAVE SLEEP

Air, nourishment and sleep are the prime essentials in the cure of the baby.

During the first two weeks of its life, a healthy baby will sleep nearly all of the time, waking only long enough to nurse. During the second month a baby should sleep about 20 hours out of the 24.

Not With Adults.
It is a mistake to allow a baby or child to sleep with adults. It is bad enough for two people of about the same age and physical condition to occupy the same bed, but for a child, especially if not strong, to sleep in the same bed with a grown person, is harmful.

Nervous children may be lulled to sleep more quickly if the mother's hand rests upon the crib or bed. This touch has a reassuring effect on the baby.

No Binding Clothes.
Babies sleep best in a dimly lighted or dark room. The baby should be free from binding clothes and the room
should be ventilated, but the child should not lie in drafts. Quiet is also important.

Hunger is a frequent cause of sleeplessness. Mothers should be careful, however, not to allow the habit of feeding at odd hours to develop. Feeding should be regular.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NATURE

THESE ENTERTAINERS ALSO MUST EAT

By ARTHUR N. PACK
President, The American Nature
Association.

All through the summer we enjoy the songs and companionship of our familiar birds. Some of these go to milder climates when winter comes,
but others prefer to remain with us,
and these often find it hard to get enough food.

So if we establish and keep stocked for them a feeding table, we shall not only help them to survive, but furnish entertainment for ourselves.

Such is one of the foods most appreciated. It may be tied to a limb protected by a loose meshed bag, or merely cut finely and placed in a shallow dish.

Other acceptable foods are peanut butter, rolled oats, and any table scraps.
For chickadees and nuthatches, a coconut with a hole cut in the side, wedged to a tree trunk, will be daily
visited by the chickadees until empty.

Water should also be furnished, and,
summer or winter, forms one of the surest lures. We know of one enthusiastic bird lover who has greatly added to the popularity of his lunch counter by furnishing a shallow fountain with a tiny jet of gas, which, kept burning in cold weather, keeps
the water just above the freezing point.

By its aid about half a hundred different species of birds have been induced to come to lunch, in fact have become more or less regular visitors.

Establish a feeding station for winter birds and you will soon have species in your yard that, perchance you would never see otherwise.

COOKE COUNTY

We should go ahead and do the best we can with our more pressing road problems in Cooke county, expecting little or nothing out of the present proxy administration. Some day, perhaps, highway affairs will be conducted on a business basis. But we can't afford to sit down and wait for that day to come. The most pressing need right now is a better road to the new oil field. The proper development of this field is important to every citizen of the county, and there should be no complaint from any quarter at efforts to improve this road. — Gainesville

AMARILLO 100,000 BY 1930?
Amarillo's population is a matter of much speculation these days. Board of City Development officials estimate it at forty thousand. Many coming here from other cities say the figure is above that. Carl Metzger of Dallas, who recently opened a creamery
here, says Amarillo will have 100,000
by 1930.

That's the general impression of all those from Dallas and other cities who have visited here, and with whom I have talked," says Mr. Metzger.

Representatives of a directory company are making preparations for a census in Amarillo. It will be the first census since the various new suburbs were voted into the city limits, and its results may bring some startling surprises.

It is difficult to take a census in a rapidly growing city and where there are so many families in apartments and in the same homes. In order that the new director may be representative of Amarillo's growth and offer a fair indication of the city's population, those taking the census should have the well planned cooperation of the "members of chambers."

Everybody will be interested in knowing what Amarillo's population really is.—Amarillo Globe.

IRRIGATION

A wise and momentous decision is that of the Supreme court relative to irrigation, in a case questioning riparian right, arising from Tom Green county. The decision is wise in that it protects the rights of the individual along streams as well as those of the irrigation district. It is momentous in that it sets precedent for settlement of numerous other irrigator controversies in Texas as well as in other states. Doubtless the decision will be one of the most greatly quoted
of Texas court decisions.

Any other decision might have undone legislation on which many irrigation projects in Texas have been based, and possibly might have disrupted the progress of irrigation in Texas.

The decision apparently is a real and distinguished service to Texas—

KEEP WORKING

Sweetwater citizens have done some mighty good work this year in the shape of community improvement.
Eight points in the list are the voting
of school and municipal auditorium bonds, street paving, park improvement and so on.

But the completion of this program
by no means permits folks to mop
their brow and sit down with a sigh of relief that everything is done. For it isn't. These things are just a starting point—a place to begin the real work of making Sweetwater a city.

Items mentioned above are merely tools in the hands of local folks for some real constructive work. Mighty good tools, but they must be used to be effective. What's needed mainly is more cooperated effort on the part of various business interests of this city in putting Sweetwater definitely on the map in a big forward program. It can be done.

The time is ripe. West Texas has the best crop prospects it ever had.
More development will be seen in this section this coming year than it has ever known. We can get our share
if we go after it. Let's go.—Sweetwater Reporter.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JOHN and FAY MILBURN buy a home when their baby girl is born and the advertising agency in which John is partner and copy writer lands a new contract. Among their acquaintances are:

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern."

PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose domestic life is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

Fay took JUDITH, the baby, to visit her parents in Houston, and during her absence John "ran around" a good deal. When Fay returned, gossip had retailed some of his actions and sharp quarrels followed, one of which drove John "out on a tear." Fay, learning he had been out with other women, threatened to leave him if it was repeated.

John finds that people are talking about him. NAT GRAHAM, his partner, charges his actions are damaging the firm's reputation. John, later, by accident, meets Nell Orme at Vera Boyd's. He resolves to see her again, realizing that she is carrying him off his feet, but he does, and the day comes when he takes her madly in his arms.

Fay learns of it and goes through with her threat and leaves him. John closes the house and takes an apartment. When PAUL DAVIDSON, a friend, makes an unfortunate marriage and then deserts his wife, leaving her all his money, gossip begins to flay Paul and John has his hands full defending him. He is nearly crazy with grief because of Fay's action, while Fay is nearly heartbroken herself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LIII

THERE was an invitation to dinner at the Menefee, and John, though he hated to inflict his miserable company on Dick and Margaret, could not very well refuse.

Clara was there, and she was quite sympathetic. Clara, according to Dick, was quite happy these days, with three or four ardent suitors on the string, and she had received at least two proposals—Dick was not sure but that it had been more.

"And by the way," Menefee added when he and John had been deserted for the time being by the women, "I don't want to offend, of course, but what about this couple named Orme?"

John hardly knew how to take this. He was not sure that Dick was not trying to quiz him.

But he told Menefee all he knew—that Nell Orme, a lovely woman, apparently was unhappy with her husband and he could not begin to explain it, for Howard, sphinx though he was, still seemed to be a fairly decent sort of fellow. There was some mysterious trouble between them that John couldn't fathom.

"Both are unusual people," he added, "quite unusual." "I have only met Howard Orme a few times, and although I don't profess to be a mind reader, John, I think I can guess at part of the trouble anyway. I'm fairly certain that the man is a victim of melancholia."

"Now don't laugh," he admonished as he fished out a cigar, "for I'm not to be held professionally accountable for this haphazard diagnosis. Nevertheless, I'm quite satisfied that Howard Orme is just naturally depressed."

"Melancholia presents an interesting study. Here is a man, young, fairly prosperous, handsome, possessed of a wife who is supposedly attractive—and yet—" He stopped, puffing reflectively on his cigar.

"It's something hard to explain. Very often the victims labor under the delusion that the rest of the world is in actual conspiracy against them. They feel that every one is talking about them. And it is quite amazing, too, the various kinds of mentalities that it attacks. Orme, of course, is highly intelligent. Yet the last case that came to my attention was entirely different. He was a janitor, a rough, phlegmatic sort of fellow. Hardly speaking, I think, he had committed suicide. It was found that he had a lot of money. Strange stuff, John."

"But what's the cause of it, Dick?" John asked. "There must be one."

"Oh, yes, there's an explanation for everything. But I have no idea what it is in this case. I presume he has some fancied grievance. Has his wife ever hinted at it?"

"Hinted, and that's all," John answered. "I think they quarrel a lot."

What a peculiar thing, he thought as he made his way back to his apartment. What was behind it? Why should Orme be despondent? He sat up for hours before going to bed, his mind dwelling on Nell Orme.

Once more in the camera of his brain was the picture of the graceful Nell, flashing through the air in one of those beautiful dives from the springboard. And another picture of her with her hand resting on his arm, her lips upturned to receive that mad, impassioned kiss.

But why, he had asked himself, did Nell get a divorce—and Dick didn't know. But now John suddenly remembered something Pat Forbes had once said in answer to this question. . . . Nell had been brought up on the theory that divorce was wrong.

"And it is wrong, too!" he cried aloud at the sudden thought of Fay.

xxx

Sooner or later, he saw, he must make some explanation to Nell for his steady refusal of Vera's invitations. Did Nell really care for him? He found himself a little warmed by the thought, in spite of his new knowledge that there would never be another to take the place of Fay. . . . Yes, he owed it to Nell, at least, to talk things over with her, to explain the uselessness of their going any farther.

Two days after his talk with Menefee, Vera Boyd called him up and was terribly insistent, so that he had to repulse her almost rudely.

"But John," she said at last, "you really ought to come. Howard's beginning to make trouble."

"I'm sorry," was all he had to say, and he hung up the receiver with the feeling that he had acted like a boor. Not until several hours later did the thought occur to him that by "Howard making trouble" Vera might have meant he had learned somehow of what existed between himself and Howard's wife.

This, indeed, was danger, and from an entirely unexpected quarter. What if Howard, like Fay, suspected them of something more serious. . . . Well, he didn't see how things could get much worse than they already were.

He was busy with Briggs early that afternoon when Nell Orme dropped in the office, and John's first impulse was to be angry with her for this intrusion. But a reproachful look in her large eyes stopped him and forced from him a polite smile. And, despite himself, he again felt that thrill that he had always experienced in this woman's presence.

"You won't be angry?" she asked, a little hesitantly, and he smilingly shook his head and shrugged, thankful, just the same, that Nat Graham chanced to be out at the time.

"I hadn't seen you in such a long time," she was saying, "and I did want to tell you how sorry I was." She added hastily, and a little confusedly, "I happened to be down town shopping and thought I'd drop in. You think I'm bold, of course."

He assured her, a trifle uncomfortably, he thought nothing of the kind.

She was obviously very much embarrassed. After another awkward moment or two, she took a few steps toward the door. John, following, and at the threshold paused to say, "I really must see you. It's about Howard."

"All right," he called, "at Vera's. Any time you wish." She'd call you."

"All right," he smiled his goodby, and, walking slowly back to his work, the thought struck him of how unpleasant it would be to go to Vera's again after the words he had had with Noel. Well. . . .

xxx

So it was that he half feared to answer the telephone every time it rang. But strangely enough the expected call did not come, though a week passed. He was beginning to think that the incident with Nell was closed, that perhaps his coolness toward her had frightened her off, or plucked her.

But he was wrong. Alone in his apartment one night, he heard a low knock on his door, and when he went to open it Nell Orme, her eyes reddened with weeping, stood before him.

Bar Association Raps Paternalism In U. S. Government

DENVER, Colo., July 16. (AP)—Increasing paternalism of the Federal Government was scored today by the American Bar association. The organization's 49th annual convention placed itself on record through adoption of the report made by its committee on American citizenship which declared that the "American citizen of today is bartering his individual liberties and rights for government bounties and bonuses," and decried the increasing tendency toward centralization in government.

County Club Boys Doing Excellent Work

Lubbock County Farm Club boys are doing excellent work in their propagation of pure grain seed, according to County Agent D. F. Eaton, who left town this morning for an inspection tour of the county in connection with the boys' work. Pure seed, supplied from the government station here, was given the boys through the office of the county agent, and this was planted in three and five acre tracts by the boys. There are some 20 of these tracts, and each of them is in excellent condition. Mr. Eaton said, "For instance, in one locality, one boy has now enough pure-bred maize to supply his immediate vicinity; and a few miles further on another party is furnishing another club with enough kafir seed to supply its immediate territory, and with recent rains, the crops on these and five acre tracts are practically perfect," Mr. Eaton stated.

QUINN VILLAGE BURNS

Quinn village, July 16. (AP)—Fire threatened the entire village, but was extinguished before it could do more than burn a few buildings.

"Neighbors' Wives"

"Why Nell?" he exclaimed. "Oh John," she cried, "you must listen to me." Her voice trailed off as she began to cry violently. At first he thought she was simply acting. But supporting her with his arm, he led her to a chair and with nervous fingers found and lit a cigarette before he spoke again.

"Now for heaven's sake," he said, "compose yourself and tell me what's the matter." "Howard—" she began and again fell to sobbing. He saw then that he would have to wait, so he said nothing for quite a while but stood where he was, half leaning against a table, and watching her.

And finally, between fits of tears, she made John give thanks to the scene she had just gone through with Howard. There had been a violent quarrel—not the first by any means, nor was it the first over the same thing. Howard believed, and simply insisted, that John had come between them, and he was threatening divorce.

Finally, so maddened did he become by Nell's persistent denials, that he struck her. "And, John," she sobbed, "I didn't know what to do, or where to go. He struck me, Oh!" and she was sobbing again, unable to speak.

It was hard to believe that the half-hysterical woman in front of him was Nell Orme. Where now was all her poise, all her swag? "Funny thing," he supposed all women did cry—but Nell Orme?

He said, "I don't know what to do about it, Nell. I think, though, you'd better go home. I'll see Howard, if you want me to, and explain to him." "No, no," she had risen and was approaching him, dabbing at her eyes with her handkerchief. "No, you must not do that—never."

"But Nell—" "Oh John," she cried, and was plucking helplessly at his coat sleeve. Her hand crept up to his shoulder. "You've changed so," she complained. "So changed, John. Don't you care for me at all any more?"

"But Howard," he reminded her, not knowing what else to say, and thought, "Well, I have got into a mess, sure enough." "I don't want to talk of Howard—I don't want to think of him. I want YOU, John."

Her arms were around his neck, her lips seeking his, but instead of yielding he kept thinking. "What a rotter I am—that a rotter."

Gently, yet forcibly, he took her wrists in his hands and pulled them downward. "I'm no angel," he said grimly, "but I haven't forgotten, Nell, that you're another man's wife. I—I guess I've been a fool."

She was hurt, he could see it, terribly hurt. And while he was thinking of something to say to her, there was a sound behind him. And turning quickly around he saw Howard Orme standing in the doorway.

KIWANIANS HAVE WEEKLY PROGRAM

Music, Readings and Talks By Those On Program are Well Received By Clubmen

Musical numbers, readings and interesting talks made up a delightful program for the Kiwanis club today at noon, when T. W. Sawyer, local realtor, was in charge of entertainment. Principals on the program included Miss Mary Scott, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Payne and Robert H. Higgins.

Little Miss Hopkins, daughter of Judge and Mrs. John L. Ruliff, gave two highly appreciated readings, "At the Circus" and "I Don't Know," followed by L. E. Payne, baritone, accompanied by Mrs. Payne, who sang "On The Road To Mandalay." Miss Mary Scott then read, "At The Baseball Game," and an Italian dialect number, "What's The Use?"

Kiwanian Robert Higgins then addressed the club on the subject, "Building a City" which was unanimously applauded. Prior to the opening of the program, Rev. D. B. Oak, presiding elder of the Methodist church in this district, inducted William MacMillan and J. C. Davis into the club. President Garland Woodward urged members to attend the annual Kiwanis-Rotary ball game this afternoon and announced that plans were being formulated for the annual Ladies' Night program.

ISSUE NOW IS TO SELECT RIGHT MAN TO TAKE HIS PLACE, SAID

(Special to the Journal) FLORESVILLE, Texas, July 16.—Speaking here this morning to a large crowd of Wilson county farmers and business men of this city, Lynch Davidson declared that "after careful survey of the political situation in all parts of Texas, it can be authoritatively stated that James E. Ferguson is one of the race for the governorship. Davidson added that "Ferguson still maintains a part of his former strength in certain counties of Southeast Texas and Central West Texas, but in other places even his celebrated 'vest pocket vote' has quit him."

LOCAL MAN LAUDS TRAINING CAMP IN TEXAS

The Reserve Officers Training Camp of the 90th division, held at Ft. Sam Houston during the past fifteen days, was the most successful that has been held, according to Dr. V. V. Clark, who returned to Lubbock Thursday evening from the camp.

While in the camp Dr. Clark passed examinations for his commission as Lt. Colonel of the Reserve, and his promotion is practically complete now.

The work of the Reserve is expanding constantly, Dr. Clark said. The entire Junior Class of the A. & M. College, comprised of 223 boys, was present for the Camp, as were 28 members of the Junior Medical class of Baylor University.

Two hundred reserve officers, who had seen service in the war, were present for the session, with 300 student officers, of the R. O. T. C. In addition, approximately 1,000 were enrolled for the Citizen's Military Training camp.

Dr. Clark was one of the instructors of the student officers of the R. O. T. C. Those desiring to take the C. M. T. C. work at Ft. Bliss, El Paso, may make application through Dr. Clark or any other Reserve Officer in Lubbock, before July 20, Dr. Clark stated.

tion usually holds its annual meeting in May or early June, but that persuasive power was brought to bear, and over protests of many members of the organization, the date was set for late July so that the new hotel here might be completed for the session.

The operating company of the hotel has everything in readiness, and has had for some time, but placing of this of course is held off pending completion of the building. The Board unanimously recorded a vote of thanks to the operating company for their efforts.

Meeting Very Important

The meeting is considered one of the most important in the state, being considered as second only to a press association, for those who will be present are missionaries from other parts of the state, and it is the duty of Lubbock to see that these visitors are accorded proper attention if they are to draw the right impression of this city and surrounding country.

Various committees are now at work on certain phases of the preparations, and everything will be in readiness, but it will take undivided co-operation of the citizenship as a whole to make the success of the meeting that the Plains country deserves. Jed A. Kix, a member of the Board said today.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roberts and sons left Friday morning for Dallas.

Miss Irena Dalrymple is visiting in Dallas.

Mrs. H. D. Grant left several days ago for Honey Grove where she was called by the illness of her mother.

MR. AND MRS. W. C. TERRELL and son, W. C. Jr., are traveling through North Texas in the interest of Mrs. Terrell's health.

J. E. GARRISON RETURNED FRIDAY from Springfield, Mo., and Eureka Springs, Ark., the Ozark Mountains and Oklahoma City.

Mrs. Bob Pendleton, who underwent an operation at the Lubbock sanitarium Friday morning, was thought to be doing nicely soon after noon.

Mrs. L. S. Metcalf returned to her home in Southland today after spending a week in Lubbock. She is the mother of Wylie Metcalf, police desk sergeant.

FLASHES AT SCENE OF BIG ARSEBAL EXPLOSION

Commander E. A. Brown, chief medical officer of the station. It is told by Viola McConnell, 17, who lived with the Browns. The Brown and Clarke families occupied a double house on the reservation. "When the first flash came, the fire was blue," said Viola. "Commander Brown was in the house."

gone came a tremendous red blast, that shattered things and deafened us. The house nearly fell in. We couldn't hear anything more for hours. "Mrs. Clarke ran in from next door and we almost fell into the cellar," Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Clarke, Harriet Brown, 2, Orville Clarke, 6, and Hayden Clarke, 5, a neighbor and I. "A second blast followed, and Mrs. Brown was cut by flying glass. The families stumbled outdoors, just as two marines ran up, shouting that they must fly. They knew what had happened to the officers. All piled into the Brown auto. The marines clung to the running boards. Mrs. Brown drove. "She was bleeding," says Viola. "The seemed everywhere, and the earth rocked."

pot at Plectiny and Lake Denmark. Quiet, easy-going, they took for granted the 2909 acres of potential death and destruction. Tens of thousands of recreation seekers thronged these mountain communities in the summer. Many came and went without learning of the arsenal's presence. The arsenal hadn't amounted to much at first. This when the ordnance department of the army established a shell-loading and powder storage plant there in the '80s. But the powder keg grew. Back there in the hills with but a sparse civilian population for miles around seemed the most appropriate of places for it. No hostile warships could bombard it, for the seacoast was a full 50 miles away. The navy came and built a depot for giant shells, smokeless powder, depth bombs, and the like. A hundred million dollars' worth of explosives were hidden away for a wartime rainy day.

Still the communities which clustered about the Marston camp took it for granted. And then the powder keg went off one night. "A safe place to manufacture munitions? There isn't any," concludes Major Hugh Ramsey, the Plectiny arsenal's commander, as he surveys the ruin the naval munitions depot blast had wrought. The major's own coat is red-stained from the disaster. "Search Yourself for Matches" read a sign near the entrance. "Leave Your Matches Here" said another a little farther down the road. Lightning rods tipped the roofs of all the buildings the army and navy had put up. They called the buildings "fire-traps." Day and night soldiers and marines kept guard. Commanding officers imposed the most rigid rules. The waiting Zeus must have hunched as his lightning bolt shot through the man-made foil.
