Vance gives Israel pledge

JERUSALEM (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance pledged an enduring U.S. commitment to Israel's survival and security today as he began a six-nation Middle East mission to try to set up new peace talks with the Arabs.

Greeting Vance at the Ben Gurion International Airport, Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon proclaimed his own determination to reach a settlement. Allon declared: "It's high time the political momentum should be revived."

Israel "is not for stagnation — on the contrary we are for movement toward peace," Allon said.

The stop in Israel is the first on the tour in which Vance will be mostly preoccupied with the Palestinian question. In talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and other Israeli leaders on Wednesday he intends to explore terms for Israel's dropping its firm resistance to participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization in the negotiations.

He also intends to promote an arms reduction in the region and to encourage a resumption of the Geneva peace conference before the end of the year.

The one-week trip also will take Vance to Egypt, Lebanon briefly, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Syria.

As he left Washington late Monday, Vance said he did not underestimate the difficulty of trying to bridge 30 years of hostiliity between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

But, he said, the Carter administration is determined to achieve "a just and lasting peace" in the region.

While in the Middle East, Vance hopes to promote arms reduction as well as to encourage a return to peace talks in Geneva.

Vance intends to find out the depth of the Arabs' commitment to creating a Palestinian state and whether they think the Palestine Liberation Organization is prepared to accept Israel's existence.

He has no meetings planned during the trip with Palestinian representatives, U.S. officials said.

In Israel, his first stop, Vance will probe for a softening in the so far ironclad objection to PLO participation in peace talks.

Vance will also register U.S. objections to Israeli oil exploration in the Gulf of Suez. State Department officials said Monday that under international law, Israel has no right to begin a new project in occupied Egyptian territory. A department spokesman said the venture was "not helpful" to peace negotiations. Other U.S. officials said, however, that it would not interfere with Vance's mission.

Vance, in an interview last week with Israeli correspondents that was released at the start of his trip, said, "I am not going to engage in shuttle diplomacy at this time."

"What I am trying to do is to ascertain as clearly as I can what the views of the key leaders are so that I can return to the United States and report to the President. We can then develop our views as to how we can be most useful in trying to promote peace in the Middle East."

Cyrus Vance

Other U.S. officials said the question of Palestinian participation in peace talks, insoluble until now, is one of Vance's overriding concerns.

Culp believed choice for judgeship

Copyright, 1977
The Midland Reporter-Telegram

Vann Culp, Midland attorney and county Democratic party chairman, is believed to be Gov. Briscoe's choice for judge of the county's new district court.

While the governor's office would confirm only that Culp's name is "in the pot" along with "several" others, there are strong indications that Culp will receive the appointment.

The Texas House of Representatives on Monday passed and sent to the governor a bill authorizing the creation of 23 new district courts across the state.

The bill was introduced earlier in the legislative session in the Senate, where it was coauthored by Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland. It received Senate approval several weeks ago.

Formal signing of the bill is expected by the end of the week.

Briscoe had given strong support to the bill, dubbing it an "emergency" measure needed to help clear a huge backlog of criminal and civil cases across the state.

With the governor's signature, the new courts could become operational as early as April 1. Some $400,000 in state funds set aside by the Legislature two years ago will be used to establish the new courts.

Culp said today he had no knowledge of a decision on the appointment having been made by the governor. "That's news that I don't have," he said in response to a reporter's claim to have knowledge of the pending appointment.

Culp said if the offer were to come, he "would have to decide then."

"There are quite a few trial lawyers who would be willing to serve and who would make good judges," he said.

Most active trial lawyers would have to make "an economic sacrifice" to accept the $32,500 per year post, he said. He included himself in that category.

Another Midland attorney known to be interested in the job said today he had received no news of the appointment.

Culp, 47, has been chairman of the

Sheriff's drug raid nets 22 pounds of marijuana

Midland County sheriff's deputies and Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agents seized approximately 22 pounds of a substance believed to be marijuana Sunday night during a raid at Airline Mobile Park.

L. W. "Porkey" Moseley, sheriff's narcotics chief deputy, said the marijuana had an estimated street value of $2,400.

Arrested at his trailer home was Gary C. Duncan, 25, who was charged with felony possession of marijuana, officials said. Duncan posted $5,000 bond Monday set by Justice of the Peace Robert H. Pine.

Sheriff's criminal division chief Gib Roch conducted the raid along with Moseley, criminal investigator George Thompson and two DEA agents.

MISD grapples with how to please parents, Texas Education Agency

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The Midland Independent School District is facing a dilemma — how to comply with state requirements for a drug education and crime prevention program in a way that's acceptable to parents.

The school district must have by 1980 a comprehensive drug education and crime prevention program for the school district. Guidelines from the Texas Education Agency (TEA) set goals which involve students' use of values clarification, interpersonal relationships, self-esteem and decision-making processes.

But some Midland parents — and school board members — question the role of these subjects in such a program, or in the schools at all.

Last of a series

Dr. Louise Vance, director of the Division of Crime and Drug Education of TEA, said school districts should develop programs which are based on the needs of their communities.

Midland schools began using, on a pilot basis, one program last year and two others this year.

Law-focused education was begun last year. Dr. Douglas Brown, assistant superintendent of schools for instruction, said the program seems to have "the orientation that people understand" and has been well received.

The other two programs are the Wisconsin Drug Program for elementary school children, being taught this year by four teachers, and Values Clarification and Decision Making for secondary students, being taught this year by five teachers.

The term "values clarification" is one that has aroused a substantial amount of comment. Brown defines the term as "the ability to make decisions based on values which one feels with conviction."

Use of the two new programs, along with exercises included in those programs, was questioned last week by parents and school trustees.

In response to direction by the school board, Brown said he has instructed the pilot teachers to re-examine everything in the curriculum and make sure it can be defended educationally.

Surveys, such as one which asks questions about the student's personality or family, are "a very minor point of the program," he said.

"I told them to be very cautious."

But, Brown said, the teachers believe there is value in all of the elements of the program. "They felt they could defend everything they have done" and were "upset" at attacks on the program.

The basis of the TEA guidelines for school districts, Dr. Vance said, is that information on crime and drugs previously has been included in school curricula but drug and crime problems still exist.

"A lot of it (the problem) is attitudinal in nature," she said, so the

Congenial describes state dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's first state dinner featured Amy Carter, her cat, concert pianist Rudolf Serkin and a surprise performer, the first lady of Mexico.

President and Mrs. Carter got all their guests away early and dispensed with a few frills as they gave a warm-hearted salute to Mexican President and Mrs. Jose Lopez Portillo on Monday night.

Nine-year-old Amy was among the 103 dinner guests and was seated at a table with her parents and the Mexican guests of honor.

President Lopez Portillo smilingly disclosed in his dinner toast that Amy had been reading "'The Mystery of the Screaming Clock' right here at the table."

Amy's Siamese cat, Misty Malarky Ying Yang, tried to come to the party,

New York gunman loved kids, Hitler

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — "He kept asking people if they knew where I was — thank God nobody did," said the supervisor who Nazi-sympathizing sharpshooter Fred Cowan was hunting for during a rampage in which he killed five persons.

"I heard the shots, and I knew he was after me," said Norman Bing, who dove under a desk Monday when the Armytrained marksman set out to avenge his two-week suspension in a siege that he ended by putting a bullet in his own brain. About 300 police and federal agents had been held at bay for 10 hours.

Bing said he suspended 33year-old Cowan from his job as a trucker's helper at a moving company warehouse because he had "refused to move a refrigerator." But he said that Cowan had caused no other trouble during his 11 years with the firm.

"He was a very gentle man who loved children," said a sister-in-law, Mary Ellen Cowan. Added a neighbor in this Westchester County community about 1½ miles north of the New York City line: "He was always a nice boy."

But others remembered the hulking, six-foot, 250-pounder, who attended Catholic grammar and high schools and was described as a brillant student, an avid gun collector and lover of Nazi uniforms.

He covered his body with tattoos — swastikas, German crosses, knives, chains, thunder, lightning, lions, and panthers — and festooned the walls of his room with swastikas.

Fred Cowan

"He hates blacks," said one neighbor, Roland Lersch. "He hates Jews."

Cowan's victims included two blacks, an Indian, and one white, all fellow employes at the Neptune Worldwide Moving Co., where the gunman worked as a furniture mover. The fifth victim was New Rochelle police officer Allan McLeod, 29, married and the father of two children.

Five persons were injured, including three other policemen.

The siege began shortly before 8 a.m. at the two-story warehouse in a commercial neighborhood of small industrial buildings, interspersed with fill-

Slayings silence townfolk

HOLLANDSBURG, Ind. (AP) — Talk in the Raccoon Lake bar usually runs to fishing, politics and country music. That was gone today, shattered by shock at the execution-style slayings of four young brothers in a town where crime has always been something that happens somewhere else.

"This is supposed to be a nice, safe community," said Virginia Tyler, whose husband owns the bar and restaurant on the fringe of the Raccoon Lake recreation area.

"Everybody is just shocked. They were super-fine boys."

Ralph Spencer, 14; Reeve B. Spencer, 16; Raymond M. Spencer, 17, and Gregory B. Brooks, 22, a stepbrother, were found Monday face-down on the blood-soaked floor of their mobile home.

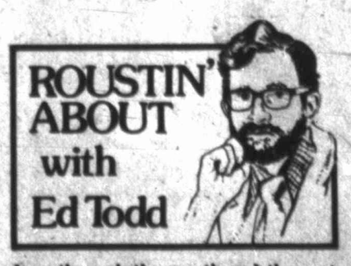

Each had been killed by a shotgun blast to the head. Their mother escaped by playing dead after gunshots tore through her wig, police said.

Betty Spencer, 43, Gregory Brooks' mother and stepmother of the three teenagers, was wounded in the back, head and shoulder. She managed to walk to a neighbor's and summon help.

The trailer was ransacked, the telephone lines were cut and the victims' wallets missing.

Mrs. Spencer told investigators four men, believed to be in their early 20s, invaded the trailer shortly after her husband, Keith, left for his job as a technician for an Indianapolis television station.

Pets find short-lived haven here

On the outside, it looks like a dog pound — an animal shelter for the doomed and for the few, very few, saved.

Outwardly, it's drab.

"We run this place like a humane society, not like a dog pound," said Jane Yarger, director of the shelter for homeless dogs and cats.

Inwardly, it's not so drab. The spirit is dog-gone bright. It's also dismal.

Animals fit for petting find refuge, a short-lived haven, at this place. Most are dogs and most are mongrels of about any description, temperament and bent.

They're homeless, abandoned, lost, stray, old and ill, wild and hapless, rabid or the round-around kind.

Their refuge may be for a few hours, a few days or weeks on end. Most get treated to euthanasia. They get an overdose of a sleep-inducing drug through the mouth and then, at needle point, through the heart.

They're taken care of.

Anywhere from 50 to 80 dogs and cats each week get gently introduced to death here. Afterward, they are unceremoniously carted off to the city's sanitary landfill, where they are buried along with the trash and garbage from the day's collection.

Grave chore.

That's the fate of about eight out of every 10 dogs and cats that are taken in at the shelter.

Those that survive live because they were adopted. But most are headed for mass burial.

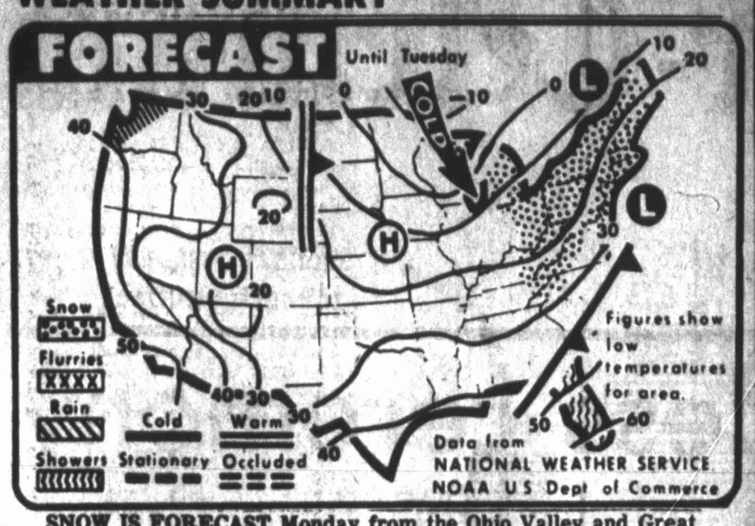

"Here's the way I look at it," said Mrs. Yarger, who tries to treat the animals as pets. "The few days that they have left is the last for most of them."

So, these otherwise forsaken animals are fed name-brand hard and soft food, are treated civilly and with a kind tongue, and are virtually guaranteed clean and unfouled stalls and cages.

Straying dogs and roaming cats may be picked up by the dog catchers, who officially are called city animal collectors. Some people just drop certain competencies, including use of values clarification.

Some of those teachers who are not in the pilot programs received and have used materials from those workshops, Bertha Starks, one of the pilot teachers and coordinator of law-focused education, said.

One such exercise is one titled "Interpersonal Communication Inventory," a questionnaire for students to fill out and score based on usual answers to the questions.

Among the questions are:

—"Is it easy for you to express your views to others?"

— "Do you ever ask the other person to tell you how he feels about the point you may be trying to make?"

— "When someone has hurt your feelings, do you discuss this with him?"

Mrs. Starks said the inventory is designed for elementary school but is not a part of the pilot program, although "a teacher used it as if it were a part of the program."

One part of the motion passed by the Midland school board last week was designed to stop use of such materials in the classroom.

Trustee Ann Page, who requested the matter be discussed by the board, said the prohibition is aimed at the materials gathered at in-service by teachers not in the pilot program, not at emphasis of values by teachers.

A state law requires training of teachers and implementation of a drug and crime prevention programs in school systems. The goals to be met have been set by the Texas Education Agency. The method used to achieve the goals is up to the school district, and the school district can emphasize those goals which are most appropriate for the school district, Dr. Louise Vance, director of the division of crime and drug education of the Texas Education Agency, said.

In area school districts, teachers have been trained to work with one or more of the pilot programs being tested in Midland. Participating are schools in Rankin, Crane, Andrews, Greenwood, Big Spring, Odessa, Garden City and Coahoma.

The Midland school board has directed the staff to report regularly on how the pilot programs are being used, with an evaluation on their effects to be conducted at the end of the year.

Weary dancers kept on truckin'

School students Mike Stanfield and Merry Allen.

Dancing into the night and yowing not to give up the beat were these paired-off MC students: Clint Galloway and Patti Cobb, Luis Guerrero and Josie Estrada, and Lionel Bell and Patty Menasco.

Every now and then, the dancers got breaks but the respite was, oh, so brief. (Ten minutes every two hours and then one hour every seven hours.)

"Oh, this thing has gone as smooth as glass," said Jones. However, like co-ramrodder McMichael, he said he would have liked to have seen more couples entered in the dance-a-thon.

Not long before the limber dancers were to be "rewarded" with a 10-minute breather, Jones noted their not-so-strange dance-floor debonair:

"They're so tired, they're simpled out, silly," he said.

Break-time came.

Are you just about exhausted, Josie Estrada?

"No," she said, "not yet. You might ask my partner. I think he's getting upset with me."

"Yea," said Luis Guerrero, her weakening partner. "I'm getting worn out (and upset). I don't know about her."

"I love to dance," Miss Estrada said. "Anything but country and Western . . . ." And there was very little of that at the funky dance, which was heavy on the toned-down rock 'n' roll.

What about you, marathon dancer Patty Menasco?

"I just hurt," she said.

"Just our feet," said her partner, Lionel Bell. "We're going for it (the whole 48 hours of dancing)." They took a brief seat to rest their feet.

And what about the team of Clint Galloway and Patti Cobb?

"We'll finish," pledged Galloway. "The feet are sore, but I'm not really tired."

"Yeah," said his dancing mate.

And so, they kept on dancing.

But early Sunday morning, the Guerrero-Estrada team gave out. Upsetting.

Finishing the dance-a-thon were the Galloway-Cobb and Bell-Menasco teams.

And the long-dancing couple that out did all others in scraping up money for the heart association is to be rewarded with an all-expense paid weekend in El Paso. Galloway-Cobb reportedly got the junket fare.

Dance on, weary ones.

State committee planning action on repeal of utility sales tax

AUSTIN, Tex.(AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee planned action today on bills that would repeal the sales tax on utility bills, reduce the sales tax to 3 cents per dollar and provide inheritance tax relief.

There were strong signs at the end of last week that the panel at least would approve a bill repealing the state sales on utility bills.

"I feel we are now ready to send our recommendations to the floor. Our action now will better enable members to anticipate revenues for appropriative purposes. Passage of legislation removing the sales tax on utilities for residential consumers means a 4 per cent savings on utility bills at the least, 5 per cent if the city follows suit," said Committee Chairman Joe Wyatt, D-Victoria.

Speaker Bill Clayton issued a statement saying there was a good possity of tax relief, "particularly in the form of reduced sales tax on utility bills."

Gov. Dolph Briscoe's program, meanwhile, continued to roll, with final House passage expected this afternoon of his bills creating 23 district courts and shifting $188,974 to meet the rising cost of natural gas regulation.

The House Public Education Committee plans a Tuesday afternoon hearing on Briscoe's bill to move some of the cost of the Foundation School Program from local districts to the state.

During debate Wednesday on the governor's highway bill, several members said rising local property taxes to finance schools are the chief concern of their districts.

But teachers are unhappy because Briscoe's bill makes no provision for a pay raise for them, and poorly financed districts are concerned that it will widen the gap between them and the rich districts.

The House Energy Resources Committee holds its hearing Tuesday on a bill that would clear the way for construction of coal slurry pipelines—something feared and hated by the railroads.

Railroads say they depend heavily on coal traffic and will be hurt financially by competition from the slurry lines.

Monday's schedule includes a night hearing by the House State Affairs Committee on 19 bills carrying out the recommendations of the blue ribbon study commission on medical malpractice insurance.

Weather cool-down expected

The razzle-dazzle weather seems to be bent on a cooling trend following a sunny weekend that topped 70 spring-like degrees.

The cooling trend that's moving in will nudge the temperature reading to a niche below freezing tonight, a spokesman at the National Weather Service said this morning.

Knocking the edge off the chill will be a high Tuesday in the mid-50s — a good 15 degrees below Sunday afternoon's high of 71.

Today's high was to be in the mid-60s.

Throughout much of the Permian Basin, gusty winds from north and northeast were kicking up sand. They were blowing in around 15-20 mph, the NWS spokesman said.

The winds are to diminish to 5-10 mph tonight.

A dry norther coasted through Texas today, gusting up to 40 miles per hour but exerting no great effect on the state's weather, the Associated Press said.

Although low clouds moved into the Panhandle section before daybreak, forecasts made no mention of moisture anywhere in the state.

By early morning the forward edge of the cool air mass lay along a line from Wichita Falls to Lubbock. It was due to reach the Upper and Middle Texas Coast by sunset.

Farther south the skies remained clear and breezes blew from the southwest at 5 to 10 mph.

Brutal slaying takes lives of four men

HOLLANDSBURG, Ind. (AP) — Four young men were shot to death early today in their family's mobile home near here. A state trooper said the victims's heads were blown off, apparently by shotgun blasts.

Police said robbery apparently was the motive. The victims ranged in age from 14 to 22.

The stepmother of three of the victims, Mrs. Betty Spencer, 41, was wounded. She was listed in satisfactory condition at a Terre Haute hospital with wounds to the back and the back of the head.

Police said at least four and possibly five persons were involved in the shootings near the Western Indiana hamlet.

Two persons in a car matching the description of the auto believed used by the assailants were taken into custody on U.S. 36, about 10 miles from the murder scene, Indiana State Trooper Jim Bell said. No weapons were found in the car, and the pair was being questioned at the Parke County Jail.

The slaying victims were lined up face down on the living room floor of the double-width mobile home, Bell said.

The wallets of all four were missing, the trailer was ransacked and its telephone lines had been cut, troopers said.

"The motive as far as investigating officers talking to her (Mrs. Spencer) at the scene is strictly robbery," said State Police Sgt. Fred Patton.

Bell identified the victims as Ralph Spencer, 14; Reeve B. Spencer, 16; Raymond M. Spencer, 17, sons of Keith Spencer from a previous marriage, and Gregory B. Brooks, 22, reportedly a half brother of the other victims.

Police said Mrs. Spencer telephoned the Parke County Sheriff about 1 a.m. and reported the slayings. Hollandsburg is a rural community on Raccoon Lake, a state park about 45 miles west of Indianapolis near the Illinois line.

Harold Escue, a neighbor to whom Mrs. Spencer ran for help, said that after calling police, the woman "just kept sitting here saying her four boys were laying up there dead. Some teenagers came up there and lined 'em up on the floor and robbed 'em and shot 'em.

"She said, 'I'm shot in the back' and said, 'If you don't keep talking to me, I'm going to pass out.'"

'It looks terrible,' but taste's not bad

NEW ORLEANS, (AP) — Soup bars may not be a gourmet's delight, but the chef says that's only because they aren't on the menu yet.

Astronauts, soldiers in Vietnam and backpackers have been about the only consumers of the three-inch brown speckled bar Edward Hirschberg calls dried soup.

"It looks terrible until it's reconstituted," said Hirschberg, the president and founder of Innovative Foods, Inc. "But it's good."

To prove his point, Hirschberg poured hot water over a soup bar at the Southern U.S. Trade Association's international food show here over the weekend. Within five minutes he was spooning through noodles and vegetables in a thick hot broth.

"You could eat it as a bar, too," Hirschberg said, offering a sample of the crunchy bar to a potential customer.

Also on display were quarter-inch meat balls and finger-nail thin peas.

"For dessert there's a nine-inch blueberry pie," he announced. Before adding water it was a fuzzy cube the size of a half dollar.

Water is the secret to Innovative Foods. The problem is money.

"A portion of canned beans cost about 10 cents," he said. "My freeze-dried beans cost about 14 or 15 cents a portion. It used to be higher, but we're getting there."

The advantage of freeze dried food is convenience and space.

A 16-ounce can of Hirschberg's beans yields 12 pounds, table-ready. That's about 48 servings, compared to four from a regular can of beans.

After 13 years of experiments at his San Francisco plant, Hirschberg says he is now clearing $70,000 a year in government sales mostly for soldiers and astronauts. But he insists the product is ready for grocery stores.

"People already are eating freeze-dried food," he said. "How do you think noodles in instant cups of soup are processed?

"Just don't call it dehydrated. They ate dehydrated food during the First and Second World Wars and hated it. The astronauts ate freeze-dried food and raved about it."

Freeze-drying doesn't just take the water out of a food; it freezes it and then vaporizes it without going through a water stage.

"It's something like they do to freeze-dried coffee," he explained, "but that's a different market."

Hirschberg's plant is one of only six in the nation dealing with the still-experimental process of freeze drying.

"I freeze-dried wine-peaches for the astronauts," Hirschberg said, "but it never got off the ground."

Vance gives Israel pledge

JERUSALEM (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance pledged an enduring U.S. commitment to Israel's survival and security today as he began a six-nation Middle East mission to try to set up new peace talks with the Arabs.

Greeting Vance at the Ben Gurion International Airport, Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon proclaimed his own determination to reach a settlement. Allon declared: "It's high time the political momentum should be revived."

Israel "is not for stagnation — on the contrary we are for movement toward peace," Allon said.

The stop in Israel is the first on the tour in which Vance will be mostly preoccupied with the Palestinian question. In talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and other Israeli leaders on Wednesday he intends to explore terms for Israel's dropping its firm resistance to participation by the Palestine Liberation Organization in the negotiations.

He also intends to promote an arms reduction in the region and to encourage a resumption of the Geneva peace conference before the end of the year.

The one-week trip also will take Vance to Egypt, Lebanon briefly, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Syria.

As he left Washington late Monday, Vance said he did not underestimate the difficulty of trying to bridge 30 years of hostiliity between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

But, he said, the Carter administration is determined to achieve "a just and lasting peace" in the region.

While in the Middle East, Vance hopes to promote arms reduction as well as to encourage a return to peace talks in Geneva.

Vance intends to find out the depth of the Arabs' commitment to creating a Palestinian state and whether they think the Palestine Liberation Organization is prepared to accept Israel's existence.

He has no meetings planned during the trip with Palestinian representatives, U.S. officials said.

In Israel, his first stop, Vance will probe for a softening in the so far ironclad objection to PLO participation in peace talks.

Vance will also register U.S. objections to Israeli oil exploration in the Gulf of Suez. State Department officials said Monday that under international law, Israel has no right to begin a new project in occupied Egyptian territory. A department spokesman said the venture was "not helpful" to peace negotiations. Other U.S. officials said, however, that it would not interfere with Vance's mission.

Vance, in an interview last week with Israeli correspondents that was released at the start of his trip, said, "I am not going to engage in shuttle diplomacy at this time."

"What I am trying to do is to ascertain as clearly as I can what the views of the key leaders are so that I can return to the United States and report to the President. We can then develop our views as to how we can be most useful in trying to promote peace in the Middle East."

Cyrus Vance

Other U.S. officials said the question of Palestinian participation in peace talks, insoluble until now, is one of Vance's overriding concerns.

Culp believed choice for judgeship

Copyright, 1977
The Midland Reporter-Telegram

Vann Culp, Midland attorney and county Democratic party chairman, is believed to be Gov. Briscoe's choice for judge of the county's new district court.

While the governor's office would confirm only that Culp's name is "in the pot" along with "several" others, there are strong indications that Culp will receive the appointment.

The Texas House of Representatives on Monday passed and sent to the governor a bill authorizing the creation of 23 new district courts across the state.

The bill was introduced earlier in the legislative session in the Senate, where it was coauthored by Sen. Pete Snelson of Midland. It received Senate approval several weeks ago.

Formal signing of the bill is expected by the end of the week.

Briscoe had given strong support to the bill, dubbing it an "emergency" measure needed to help clear a huge backlog of criminal and civil cases across the state.

With the governor's signature, the new courts could become operational as early as April 1. Some $400,000 in state funds set aside by the Legislature two years ago will be used to establish the new courts.

Culp said today he had no knowledge of a decision on the appointment having been made by the governor. "That's news that I don't have," he said in response to a reporter's claim to have knowledge of the pending appointment.

Culp said if the offer were to come, he "would have to decide then."

"There are quite a few trial lawyers who would be willing to serve and who would make good judges," he said.

Most active trial lawyers would have to make "an economic sacrifice" to accept the $32,500 per year post, he said. He included himself in that category.

Another Midland attorney known to be interested in the job said today he had received no news of the appointment.

Culp, 47, has been chairman of the

Sheriff's drug raid nets 22 pounds of marijuana

Midland County sheriff's deputies and Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agents seized approximately 22 pounds of a substance believed to be marijuana Sunday night during a raid at Airline Mobile Park.

L. W. "Porkey" Moseley, sheriff's narcotics chief deputy, said the marijuana had an estimated street value of $2,400.

Arrested at his trailer home was Gary C. Duncan, 25, who was charged with felony possession of marijuana, officials said. Duncan posted $5,000 bond Monday set by Justice of the Peace Robert H. Pine.

Sheriff's criminal division chief Gib Roch conducted the raid along with Moseley, criminal investigator George Thompson and two DEA agents.

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The Midland Independent School District is facing a dilemma — how to comply with state requirements for a drug education and crime prevention program in a way that's acceptable to parents.

The school district must have by 1980 a comprehensive drug education and crime prevention program for the school district. Guidelines from the Texas Education Agency (TEA) set goals which involve students' use of values clarification, interpersonal relationships, self-esteem and decision-making processes.

But some Midland parents — and school board members — question the role of these subjects in such a program, or in the schools at all.

Last of a series

Dr. Louise Vance, director of the Division of Crime and Drug Education of TEA, said school districts should develop programs which are based on the needs of their communities.

Midland schools began using, on a pilot basis, one program last year and two others this year.

Law-focused education was begun last year. Dr. Douglas Brown, assistant superintendent of schools for instruction, said the program seems to have "the orientation that people understand" and has been well received.

The other two programs are the Wisconsin Drug Program for elementary school children, being taught this year by four teachers, and Values Clarification and Decision Making for secondary students, being taught this year by five teachers.

The term "values clarification" is one that has aroused a substantial amount of comment. Brown defines the term as "the ability to make decisions based on values which one feels with conviction."

Use of the two new programs, along with exercises included in those programs, was questioned last week by parents and school trustees.

In response to direction by the school board, Brown said he has instructed the pilot teachers to re-examine everything in the curriculum and make sure it can be defended educationally.

Surveys, such as one which asks questions about the student's personality or family, are "a very minor point of the program," he said.

"I told them to be very cautious."

But, Brown said, the teachers believe there is value in all of the elements of the program. "They felt they could defend everything they have done" and were "upset" at attacks on the program.

The basis of the TEA guidelines for school districts, Dr. Vance said, is that information on crime and drugs previously has been included in school curricula but drug and crime problems still exist.

"A lot of it (the problem) is attitudinal in nature," she said, so the

New York gunman loved kids, Hitler

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — "He kept asking people if they knew where I was — thank God nobody did," said the supervisor who Nazi-sympathizing sharpshooter Fred Cowan was hunting for during a rampage in which he killed five persons.

"I heard the shots, and I knew he was after me," said Norman Bing, who dove under a desk Monday when the Armytrained marksman set out to avenge his two-week suspension in a siege that he ended by putting a bullet in his own brain. About 300 police and federal agents had been held at bay for 10 hours.

Bing said he suspended 33year-old Cowan from his job as a trucker's helper at a moving company warehouse because he had "refused to move a refrigerator." But he said that Cowan had caused no other trouble during his 11 years with the firm.

"He was a very gentle man who loved children," said a sister-in-law, Mary Ellen Cowan. Added a neighbor in this Westchester County community about 1½ miles north of the New York City line: "He was always a nice boy."

But others remembered the hulking, six-foot, 250-pounder, who attended Catholic grammar and high schools and was described as a brillant student, an avid gun collector and lover of Nazi uniforms.

He covered his body with tattoos — swastikas, German crosses, knives, chains, thunder, lightning, lions, and panthers — and festooned the walls of his room with swastikas.

Fred Cowan

"He hates blacks," said one neighbor, Roland Lersch. "He hates Jews."

Cowan's victims included two blacks, an Indian, and one white, all fellow employes at the Neptune Worldwide Moving Co., where the gunman worked as a furniture mover. The fifth victim was New Rochelle police officer Allan McLeod, 29, married and the father of two children.

Five persons were injured, including three other policemen.

The siege began shortly before 8 a.m. at the two-story warehouse in a commercial neighborhood of small industrial buildings, interspersed with fili-

Slayings silence townfolk

HOLLANDSBURG, Ind. (AP) — Talk in the Raccoon Lake bar usually runs to fishing, politics and country music. That was gone today, shattered by shock at the execution-style slayings of four young brothers in a town where crime has always been something that happens somewhere else.

"This is supposed to be a nice, safe community," said Virginia Tyler, whose husband owns the bar and restaurant on the fringe of the Raccoon Lake recreation area.

"Everybody is just shocked. They were super-fine boys."

Ralph Spencer, 14; Reeve B. Spencer, 16; Raymond M. Spencer, 17, and Gregory B. Brooks, 22, a stepbrother, were found Monday facedown on the blood-soaked floor of their mobile home.

Each had been killed by a shotgun blast to the head. Their mother escaped by playing dead after gunshots tore through her wig, police said.

Betty Spencer, 43, Gregory Brooks' mother and stepmother of the three teenagers, was wounded in the back, head and shoulder. She managed to walk to a neighbor's and summon help.

The trailer was ransacked, the telephone lines were cut and the victims' wallets missing.

Mrs. Spencer told investigators four men, believed to be in their early 20s, invaded the trailer shortly after her husband, Keith, left for his job as a technician for an Indianapolis television station.

Congenial describes state dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's first state dinner featured Amy Carter, her cat, concert pianist Rudolf Serkin and a surprise performer, the first lady of Mexico.

President and Mrs. Carter got all their guests away early and dispensed with a few frills as they gave a warmhearted salute to Mexican President and Mrs. Jose Lopez Portillo on Monday night.

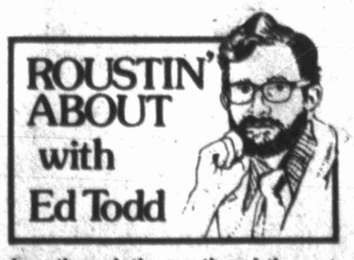

Nine-year-old Amy was among the 103 dinner guests and was seated at a table with her parents and the Mexican guests of honor.

President Lopez Portillo smilingly disclosed in his dinner toast that Amy had been reading "'The Mystery of the Screaming Clock' right here at the table."

Amy's Siamese cat, Misty Malarky Ying Yang, tried to come to the party,

Pets find short-lived haven here

On the outside, it looks like a dog pound — an animal shelter for the doomed and for the few, very few, saved.

Outwardly, it's drab.

"We run this place like a humane society, not like a dog pound," said Jane Yarger, director of the shelter for homeless dogs and cats.

Inwardly, it's not so drab. The spirit is dog-gone bright. It's also dismal.

Animals fit for petting find refuge, a short-lived haven, at this place. Most are dogs and most are mongrels of about any description, temperament and bent.

They're homeless, abandoned, lost, stray, old and ill, wild and hapless, rabid or the round-around kind.

Their refuge may be for a few hours, a few days or weeks on end. Most get treated to euthanasia. They get an overdose of a sleep-inducing drug through the mouth and then, at needle point, through the heart.

They're taken care of.

Anywhere from 50 to 80 dogs and cats each week get gently introduced to death here. Afterward, they are unceremoniously carted off to the city's sanitary landfill, where they are buried along with the trash and garbage from the day's collection.

Grave chore.

That's the fate of about eight out of every 10 dogs and cats that are taken in at the shelter.

Those that survive live because they were adopted. But most are headed for mass burial.

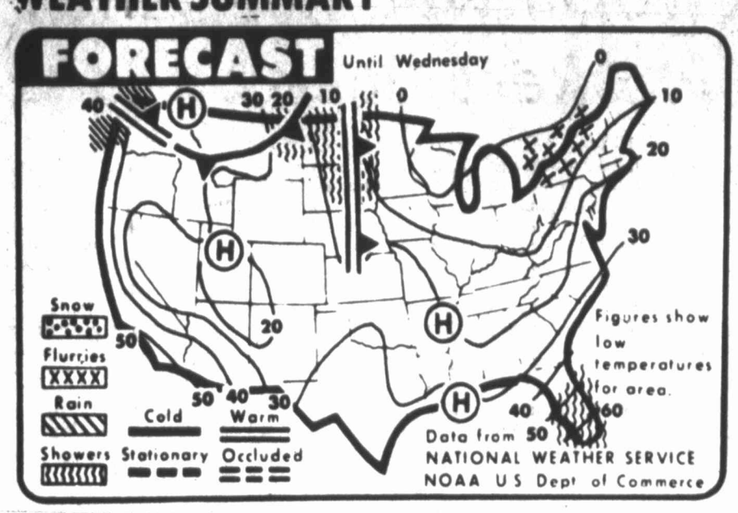

"Here's the way I look at it," said Mrs. Yarger, who tries to treat the animals as pets. "The few days that they have left is the last for most of them."

So, these otherwise forsaken animals are fed name-brand hard and soft food, are treated civilly and with a kind tongue, and are virtually guaranteed clean and unfouled stalls and cages.

Straying dogs and roaming cats may be picked up by the dog catchers, who officially are called city animal collectors. Some people just drop

Exhibit building gets donation of land, request for new annex

By JUDY JOHNSTON

Midland County's exhibit building received a double shot in the arm Monday with the donation of new land and the prospect of a new annex building considered by county commissioners.

Jim Crowder, representing the Midland County Livestock Association, told commissioners the group was donating the five acres north of the exhibit building land to the county. The land is used as the location for the association's club building.

Meanwhile, a group of interested associations and clubs in a letter to the commissioners requested that part of the federal Community Development Act funds for the next fiscal year be earmarked for a dirt-floored annex building to the exhibits building on U.S. 80 East.

The letter arrived after two announced public hearings, but the commissioners decided to consider the request and to include it in the county's preapplication for funds.

Also included in the preapplication for CDA funds are requests for funds for the Mental Health-Mental Retardation detoxification center and for library improvements.

Midland National Bank, as the lone bidder, was selected as the depository for Midland County funds for the next two years.

Sheriff Dallas Smith's office will receive two cars as the commissioners accepted a bid from Nickel Chrysler-Plymouth for $10,242 on two 1977 Fury cars. Other bids were as follows: Permian Pontiac, Inc., $9,365 on two Lemans cars; Huckabay Chevrolet, Inc., $5,141 on a Malibu; and Rogers Ford Sales, $5,353 on an LTD.

At the request of adult probation officer E. H. Kirksey, the commissioners approved acceptance of the highest bid on a car for the adult probation office.

The accepted bid was $5,198 for an LTD from Rogers Ford Sales. Other bids included $5,161 for an Impala from Huckabay and $4,850 for a Fury from Nickel Chrysler-Plymouth.

Midland Sand and Gravel was awarded the contract for aggregate rock for the road and bridge department, with a bid of $9.25 per cubic yard for both No. 3 and No. 5.

Other bids were: Trans Pecos Materials, $9.50 per cubic yard for No. 3 and $9.30 per cubic yard for No. 5; Delaware Basin Aggregate Inc., $10 per cubic yard for both No. 3 and No. 5., and Price Construction Co. $9.75 per cubic yard for both No. 3 and No. 5.

American Petrofina, as the only bidder, received the contract for these road materials: MC 30 prime, $15,288, and OA 135, $79,162.

In other action, the commissioners authorized the county auditor to advertise for bids on the following items: tires and tubes, 12 tons of fertilizer, three trucks for the road and bridge department, four pick up trucks, one steel wheel roller, one front end loader and for microfilm work for the county clerks.

A car driven by Donna S. Bowerman overturned and landed on its side in Grafa Park about 10:30 a.m. Monday. She told Midland police she was driving north on Midkiff Road when a car pulled out suddenly from Shell Drive, which made her lose control. There were no injuries, and the only damage was done to the car and some to the park.

MISD grapples with how to please parents, Texas Education Agency agency developed goals relating to attitudes "more or less in addition to" factual information.

Bertha Starks, one of the nine pilot teachers in the district and coordinator of law-focused education, said some items in the pilot programs can be changed if they are objectionable to the community. "That's the reason for the pilot program" she said.

"I do think it's a good program. I guess it's unfortunate it has the title values clarification," Mrs. Starks said.

The law-focused program covers 12 of the 14 student outcomes the values clarification program is designed to reach, Mrs. Starks said, so the law program could be used instead of values clarification. She said the purpose of trying other pilot programs it to get "a variety of things for teachers to use."

Much of the criticism of the programs has centered on the surveys covering personal questions end decision-making exercises, such as one in which the student must decide which six of ten persons should be allowed into a fallout shelter which only holds six.

One elementary school parent, whose child is not involved in a pilot program, is Shirley Watts. "I just don't like it," she said. Mrs. Watts said the "desirable student outcomes" listed by TEA are inappropriate for elementary school children.

But she wouldn't object to the use of those outcomes, or goals, for high school students. "I don't really think it will help them but I don't think it would hurt them."

Another area of criticism has arisen from use of materials by teachers not in the pilot program. Brown said he thinks it will be possible to control use of that kind of material.

"Most teachers are going to use the material we give them if it's good material," Brown said. The school board has voted to limit use of such material to the pilot program teachers, at least until the programs can be evaluated at the end of the school year.

How much and what is the school district required to do under the law?

"I think we could and should" have a program that is not offensive to parents, Brown said. It will be possible to get away from using personality-related things at the elementary level, he said.

Trustee Ann Page said that element is the subject of opposition from the community.

Brown said the school district "is not in a position" to discard all of the goals TEA has established. "We've got as much flexibility as they'll give us."

What is the minimum amount of the state goals that must be used? "I don't think I can give you a quantitative answer," he said because the school district has been looking for the best program. "I'd have to ask TEA."

For the goals not addressed, "it will be up to us to defend those elements we are not addressing" when the district is up for accreditation, Brown said.

their pets off here and let the animal shelter staffers "do the humane thing" — which could be putting them up for adoption and on death row.

City law requires that empounded animals be kept for at least three days if they are tagless and for at least six days if they are wearing tags.

"We keep them longer than we should," said Betty Reagan, assistant to Mrs. Yarger. "Anyway, we're suckers," she said.

Some dogs and cats are given preferential treatment and are kept long passed their execution date.

"It depends on how pretty they are and on their personality," Mrs. Yarger said. She singled out some of the chosen lot back in the stalls: a Brittany Spaniel, a St. Bernard and "a darling Cocker Spaniel."

And there's a standout among the chosen. He's a 3-year-old collie shepherd who has been lodging at the City of Midland-operated shelter for the past six weeks.

But this fella named Shep has a problem, as far as city living is concerned.

". . . He's a fence jumper," Mrs. Yarger said, "and he needs a country home."

Shep, who's not a first-timer at the shelter, pretty much does as he pleases around the place. He gets roaming privileges in the great out-of-doors.

"He's been picked up before," she said, "and I guess the owner got tired of paying to get him out of hock."

Ol' Shep "loves kids, loves other dogs but runs and leaps like a deer," Mrs. Yarger said.

She figures that about 40,000 dogs, both homeless and owned, run loose at one time or another in the city. And that's against the law.

"If the dog's lying in his front yard and is minding his own business, (we'll) just leave him alone," Mrs. Yarger said.

But if that dog just happens to wander out into the streets and disturbs or otherwise upsets someone, then that free-wheeling canine beast just might be picked up and hauled off to the detention center.

"People don't like us at all," Mrs. Yarger said. "They think we're going to pick up their dogs and put them to sleep."

That, routinely, does happen, particularly if the dog is acting mean, is making a nuisance of himself and if no one bothers to claim or adopt the enpounded animal.

There's no malice in putting the animals away. It, rather, seems to be a necessary chore in a city where more dogs than people roam the streets and often die there.

And these animal shelter folks say they are endeared to animals both on the job and off.

"Of course," Mrs. Reagan said, "I'm an animal lover. I don't care what they look like. I have a menagerie (at home)."

And at work.

Midland County Democratic party since 1969. He is a supporter and political ally of Briscoe.

He has been a lawyer since 1956 and is president of the Midland County Bar Association.

It has been reported that Briscoe likely will name his appointment s to all 23 judgeships when he signs the bill.

His appointments secretary, George Lowrence, said today the governor "would like to, but it might not be possible... I would expect that there would be some announcement within a short time after (the signing)."

On the House floor Monday, Rep. Bill Clark, D-Tyler, attempted unsuccessfully to amend the bill to eliminate a new court for his home county, saying the county commissioners had told him they had no space for another courtroom.

The bill creates four courts each in Houston and San Antonio, three in Fort Worth and one each in Angelina, Collin, Montgomery, Gray, Lubbock, Midland, Brazoria, Fort Bend and Smith counties.

Multi-county district established by the bill combine Atascosa, Frio, Karnes, LaSalle and Wilson counties; Hamilton, Comanche and Bosque counties, and Deaf Smith and Oldham counties.

It removes Deaf Smith and Oldham counties from the 69th Judicial District, leaving Hartley, Sherman and Dallam counties within that district.

Midland presently has one district court, presided over by Judge Perry D. Pickett.

Postmasters hold seminar in Midland

Postmasters from 63 West Texas cities will meet in Midland for a two-day seminar beginning today, Midland postmaster D. E. Holster said.

Postmasters coming in from an area including Andrews, Big Spring, Sonora, San Angelo, Pecos and Gail will study auditing, maintenance, safety, mail processing, required reports, city and rural route delivery service and other related subjects.

Holster will present Fort Stockton Postmaster Fred L. Roper the "Most Improved Housekeeping" award and other awards to postmasters who had no errors in their office audits during 1976.

A social hour is planned at the Ramada Inn Tuesday night to welcome the newly appointed postmasters and officers-in-charge that have been appointed in the past year.

During the Wednesday session, acting district manager Manuel Subia of San Antonio will be guest speaker.

Have no doubt—it's truly winter

If Sunday's weather seemed like late spring or early summer, then today's weather should remind Midlanders that this really is winter.

Today's high is expected to reach only the low 50s, compared to Monday's high of 57 degrees, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport reported.

Warmer weather is expected to return Wednesday, however, with a high in the low 60s.

Around the Permian Basin, temperatures this morning were reported in the upper 30s to low 40s. Big Spring and Stanton reported fog or light mist, but elsewhere it was dry and overcast, with little or no winds reported.

Occasional patches of light rain or snow cropped up today in the wake of Texas' latest norther, which swept across the state and into the Gulf of Mexico the day before, the Associated Press said.

too. The cat made a dramatic entrance down the grand staircase while photographers were waiting for the Carters and the Lopez Portillos to descend.

Misty was turned back by flash bulbs and a military aide.

After dinner Mrs. Lopez Portillo, a former concert pianist, played two selections from Chopin's works.

In introducing Mrs. Lopez Portillo, who once studied piano at the University of Michigan, Carter said she gave up her career to marry "the man she recognized as future president of Mexico."

Mrs. Lopez Porillo complained she had not played in public in 20 years, but her performance drew an ovation from the audience and a kiss from Carter.

Solar energy people happy

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Solar energy advocates, delighted by the most vicious winter in 37 years, say they are now convinced their industry is on the edge of a major breakthrough in public acceptance and commercial use.

Official government reports are partially confirming what solar energy pioneers have contended for years — that solar heating can be economically competitive — and operating solar projects are proving to be dependable under the strain of a harsh winter.

Major corporations have begun million-dollar advertising campaigns for solar equipment, lending the weight of well known names to the efforts of existing small companies to overcome the traditional resistance to change in the American public.

Utility bills for all-electric homes — about half of new home construction — have skyrocketed, oil prices have climbed and natural gas prices promise to follow, leaving homeowners worried about conventional systems and curious about alternatives.

"We've had mild winters and no problems since the 1973 OPEC oil price shock until this year," said Ronald Scott, assistant director of solar heating and cooling at the Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA). "Now everybody is hurting.

"A lot of people are afraid because this is a new industry and a lot of people are waiting to see what Congress is going to do about tax incentives," Scott said. "The combination makes everything sit on the ragged edge."

A tax incentive could trigger a boom, Scott and others said.

At Grumman Sunstream, the solar-wind division of the aerospace giant, public affairs director Joseph Dawson predicts a tripling of the solar energy market this year.

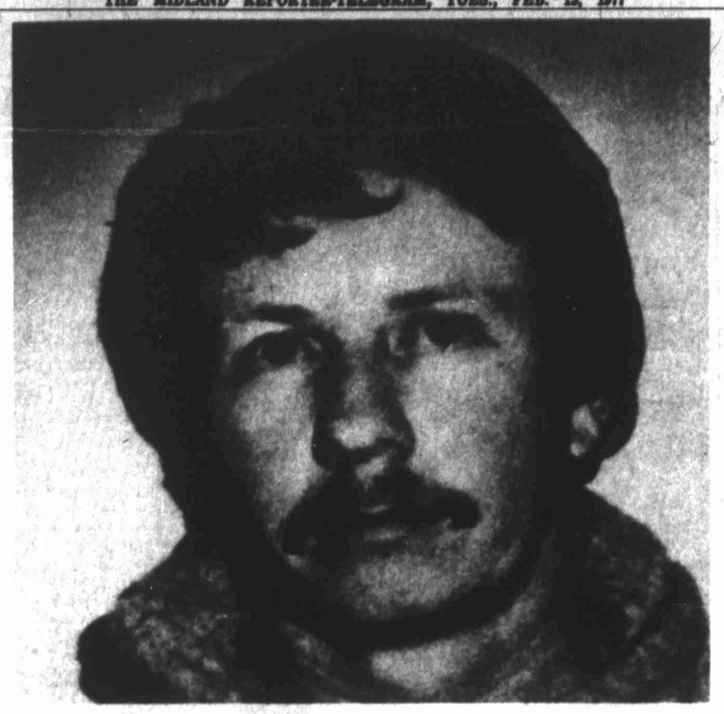

"The whole industry really started in 1973 and we had our first convention in 1974," Dawson said. "There were Rube Goldberg contraptions all over the place. By last year the equipment was sophisticated and well designed. It was like jumping the auto industry from 1900 to 1930 in two years."

Most of the present emphasis is on solar heating for hot water, a simpler business than heating an entire home, ERDA's Scott said.

"Basically we're finding that even in the extremely cold weather the systems are performing well."

One system is in its second witner of operation at the Madeira School near Great Falls, Va. There, a slanting roof covered with solar collectors heats oil, which heats a hot water tank. On a recent warm, sunny day, the solar system was keeping a 10,000 gallon tank at 100 degrees. The system is supplemented by an oil-fired boiler in a nearby gymnasium so it is difficult for school officials to judge exactly how much is saved on fuel bills, a common problem in attempting to determine the economic feasibility of solar energy. ERDA is now monitoring several buildings to try to gain precise data.

Madeira's business manager, retired Adm. William O. Snead, estimated that the extra cost of solar heat equipment would be paid back in fuel savings in about 20 years.

CHARGED WITH THREE counts of aggravated rape in Dallas Monday was Guy William Marble Jr., a 29-year-old public relations executive. Police said that Marble may be responsible for more than fifty assaults on women the past 2 years. The assaults allegedly involving Marble have been attributed to "the friendly rapist," who usually apologized to his victims and was known for his relatively courteous attitude.

Warm weather sends workers back on jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government statistics show that more than half the persons put out of work this year by natural gas shortages are back at work with the warm spell.

But Monday's reports from the Commerce Department and Federal Energy Administration also showed record high American demand in January for petroleum products, almost half of it coming from foreign sources.

The FEA, meanwhile, was trying to alert oil refiners in the Northern Tier states to a Canadian offer to ship an additional 800,000 barrels of heavy crude oil to help ease this country's winter fuel problems. The offer was good only through today.

With five official weeks of winter left, after almost a week of temperatures at or above normal levels, further cold weather was predicted for the Great Lakes, Northern Plains, mid-continent and Gulf Coast areas.

Temperatures ranging from one to four degrees below normal were forecast for this week.

Commerce Department figures released Monday on gas shortage-related unemployment showed another 283,500 workers back on their jobs in the past few days.

The latest estimates indicated some 586,500 workers still unemployed because of the shortages as of the end of last week, compared to more than 1.2 million laid off at the height of the problem a few weeks ago.

Improvement was made in at least seven states, while unemployment in Alabama and New Jersey increased, the estimates show.

No explanation for the increases was provided. The milder weather of recent days appeared to speed the decrease of gas-caused unemployment, a spokesman said.

The FEA said demand for all petroleum products in the four weeks ending Feb. 4 averaged 20.8 million barrels a day — 13.3 per cent higher than a year earlier. Some 8.7 million barrels a day, or 42 per cent, came from imported crude oil and refined products.

Much of the increased demand was in home heating oil, up 29.2 per cent from last year, and in heavy fuel oil, up 25.7 per cent. The demand for gasoline was running about 4.3 per cent higher than a year ago.

Young to keep on talking

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Young believes his candid, low-key style of diplomacy is what American foreign policy needs and what the Carter presidency is all about. And he intends to go right on "speaking my mind."

"When Jimmy Carter said he wanted a foreign policy that was as good and decent as the American people, he was talking about a foreign policy with some open discussion of issues and not a foreign policy discussed in secret quarters of the State Department," said Carter's ambassador to the United Nations in an interview during his recent trip to Africa.

"To me that requires a certain amount of freedom of expression. ...Maybe I have a problem with reconciling the commitment of the Carter administration not to lie — to have government in the open — with what is a traditional reserve in the State Department.

"But I don't want to give in that easy."

Young said he knew his opinions might not reflect administration policy. But he indicated he believed it is part of his job — and the style of the Carter administration — to stir up public debate and get the Amer can people involved in the formulation of foreign policy.

"One of the most valuable things in the progress of American foreign policy in the last 100 years was the open debate and conflict over Vietnam," he said.

"When you remember the cost in the Bay of Pigs and Vietnam of leaving foreign policy to 'experts,' then I'm not sure we want to go back to that kind of closed decision making.

"And because I value openness I'm willing to take flak, to be repudiated, corrected and argued with."

President Carter told a Cabinet meeting Monday that Young had brought "notable improvement" in America's relations with black Africa. The President and Secretary of State Cyrus Vance were reported particularly pleased that he had laid the groundwork for improvement in relations with Nigeria, black Africa's biggest, richest and most powerful nation.

But the same candor that won Young praise and friends in Africa has also stirred some debate at home and required "clarifications" from the State Department to bring his pronouncements in line with administration policy.

While in Africa, he repeatedly said Americans should not be afraid of Marxists taking over southern Africa since whatever ideology they espoused, once in power they would have to turn to the West for technology, capital and trade.

He did not hesitate to become the first U.S. official to meet with President Agostinho Neto of Angola, although Washington has no relations with Neto's Marxist regime, and the Ford administration repeatedly attacked it for using Cuban troops to help fight its foes.

McCarthy aide calls film smear

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Cohn, onetime committee counsel to Sen. Joseph McCarthy, says NBC's filmed version of his late boss' career was "a biased smear job which didn't even make a pretense at felling both sides of the story."

Consumer advocates have an ally?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocates, feeling the Carter administration will open "a new era of consumerism," are renewing efforts to obtain passage of a series of longstanding proposals, including creation of a federal consumer protection agency.

The consumer movement has gained momentum during the past eight years on Capitol Hill. But the White House under Republican Presidents Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford generally was unenthusiastic about consumer legislation.

President Carter has promised things will be different in his administration. On Monday he told Ralph Nader and six other consumer advocates in a White House meeting that he wants "to have a good relationship with all consumer groups."

"I need your advice. I'll welcome it and I'll use it," the President assured the consumer activists.

Carter also reaffirmed his support for a federal agency to protect consumers. The agency would represent consumers before other federal agencies, where some activists contend the consumer viewpoint often goes underepresented.

Both houses of Congress passed such a bill in different forms last year. But in the waning days of the last Congress, the effort was dropped because Ford had threatened to veto it.

Nader, who secured Carter's support for the proposed new agency during last year's campaign, said after Monday's meeting that the President's "reaffirmation of his position was very persuasive."

Nader said there is "every indication there will be some very excellent appointments made to regulatory agencies and other agencies that affect consumer and taxpayer rights."

He added that "one possible pitfall" for consumers was whether the administration will move to permanently deregulate gas prices.

Constable may testify in grain dealer probing

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Port Aransas Constable Ben Cash said he expects to testify today before a grand jury looking into the disappearance of grain dealer Robert Johnson.

Friends said Johnson fell from a pleasure boat and drowned in the Gulf of Mexico off Port Aransas last January 3.

But Cash launched an investigation that took him from North Texas to Belize in Central America, then announced that Johnson was still alive and hiding in Mexico after undergoing facial surgery.

State and federal investigators began their own investigation and found Johnson's North Texas grain elevators short a large amount of grain. They also found that he had taken out large life insurance policies and cashed several large checks prior to his disappearance.

Last week, FBI Agent Steve Gray filed a magistrate's complaint charging that Johnson transported some 9,000 bushels of stolen wheat from a Geronimo elevator in Oklahoma to Fort Worth. U.S. Magistrate Gene Richey issued a warrant for Johnson's arrest.

Gray and Texas Agriculture department investigator Randle Clarkson testified before the grand jury Monday on details of their probes into the records of the Johnson interests.

Marines to try 2

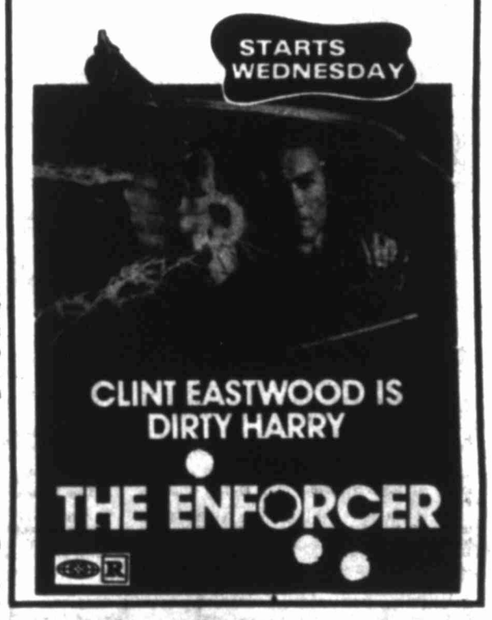

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — The Marine Corps is ordering general courts-martial trials for two more black Marines charged in a Nov. 13 barracks raid on a group of whites holding a beer party.

Lance Cpl. Ricky McGilvery, 19 of Dallas, and Pfc. Gregory A. Coffee, 21, of St. Louis are charged with six counts each of assault.

Some of the 14 black Marines arrested in the case testified in pretrial hearings they believed they were raiding a Ku Klux Klan meeting during the attack, but got the wrong room.

The general courts-martial trials ordered Monday for McGilvery and Coffee bring to five the number of such planned proceedings.

Job well, nobly done

This is a great day in Texas in many respects, as always, but there is a note of sadness in one respect.

The Hon. Charles E. Simons of Dallas today retires as a member of the State Highway and Transportation Commission after six-years of unselfish, tireless, dedicated service. He has asked Gov. Dolph Briscoe not to consider him for reappointment.

Charley Simons, although residing in Dallas, has, under the system of rotation observed on the commission, represented West Texas ... and he has done a magnificent job in this respect, while also serving the entire state to the very best of his ability. He has been one of the ablest, most efficient and most effective persons ever to serve on the Highway Commission.

Simons' service has been equally satisfactory over in East Texas, judging from a recent editorial comment appearing in The Longview Morning Journal, which said, ".... Simons has been totally committed to the task of building and maintaining the type of road system that Texans need to meet the needs of their growing economy. To the best of his ability, he has succeeded."

Publisher Charles K. Devall of the Kilgore News Herald had this to say about Simons in a recent issue of his newspaper: "Dallas Charley, as we call him, has been one of the hardest working, wisest and most constructive men ever to serve on the Commission. To say he will be sorely missed is a gross understatement — a man like that just can't be replaced."

Simons, who has spoken in Midland on a number of occasions, is well and favorably known throughout West Texas and Texas.

A former Austin newspaper reporter, Simons served several years in the 1930s as the executive director of the Texas Good Roads Association. During that period of time, he was the driving force in gaining passage of the Good Roads constitutional amendment, which is known by many as the Simons amendment.

He later served for a quarter of a century as executive vice president of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil & Gas Association, thus gaining a wide acquaintance among the oilmen of Texas. He was named to the Highway Commission following his retirement from the association, climaxing his many years of service to and interest in good roads.

In a Midland address, several years ago now, Simons pointed to the fact that the Highway Commission was running out of money and that steps soon would have to be made to adequately fund highway construction and maintenance. That exact condition has arrived, and highway funding is one of the most urgent matters facing the legislature today. The House has passed a satisfactory highway funding bill, which now is before the Senate for action. Hopefully, it will gain Senate approval promptly.

Simons, in his Midland talk, also stressed the importance of good roads in attracting industry to Texas, adding that this makes adequate funding all the more essential.

In a recent address delivered at the annual Highway Short Course held at Texas A&M University, Simons said that when he was appointed to the Highway Commission, "I was determined to do everything I could to advocate and support sound transportation policies; to reawaken public interest in highway building and, most particularly, to arouse support for the men and women who build them.

"Further, I determined I would give this job my primary attention during the time I held the position."

Simons has achieved all those objectives, and more, during his six years of faithful service as a commissioner.

He further made a commitment to his wife at that time that he would serve one term only. He also is standing by that commitment.

Charles Simons merits a snappy salute and a sincere vote of thanks from the people of the Lone Star State for his years of dedicated service in the interest of good roads in Texas ... and we express such sentiments to the commissioner from "out West Texas way."

ART BUCHWALD

The gas man cometh; heads for the meter

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — In all the fuss about the gas shortage no one has mentioned the gas man. When I say the gas man, I mean the fellow who comes to your house in a nice uniform and goes down into your cellar to read your gas meter.

For years no one has paid any attention to him. He would ring your doorbell and yell, "Gas man to read your meter!" and you'd let him in and he would disappear downstairs for five minutes, come up again and you'd shout at him rudely, "Shut the door when you leave!"

But now he has become the most important person in the lives of many of us.

Just the other day we were all eating dinner when the doorbell rang. My son answered the ring and came into the dining room, his face white. "It's the gas man. He wants to read our meter."

"Oh lord," my wife said. "How did he ever find us?"

"Be calm, everybody," I warned. "Pretend nothing has happened. Ask him to come into the dining room."

The gas man came into the dining room carrying his clipboard. "Where's the meter?" he asked.

"Would you like to have dinner?" I asked in what I hoped was a hearty voice.

"Nope. I've been offered dinner in every house I've been to tonight. I'm stuffed. Just tell me where the basement door is and I'll be out of here."

"You don't want to go down into the basement," my wife said. "It's so messy. We'll tell you anything you want to know."

"I have to check your meter," he said.

"I checked it yesterday," I assured him. "It's working fine."

"I have to read it."

"I'll send my son down to read it," I said. "He's great at reading gas meters. Here, have a glass of wine."

"I'm sorry, but I have to read it myself. It will only take a minute."

"Do you have a search warrant?" my wife asked.

He looked surprised. "I don't need a search warrant to read your meter."

"I think you had better check the Constitution. You can't just barge into somebody's house and look at his gas meter," she said.

"Well, if you feel that way, we'll just shut off your gas," he replied.

"It's all right, Mother. The man has not come to do us harm," I said. "I'm sure he won't take advantage of a family that is probably eating its last meal unless our food stamps come through."

"Could you please direct me to the basement?"

I took him to the door and opened it. Then I said, "Be gentle with us. Be good to us."

"Where have I heard that before?" the gas man asked.

"Barbara Walters said it to President Carter on her show," I said.

"Oh yeah," he chuckled, and he went downstairs.

The family all waited in the kitchen.

"Why is he taking so long?" my wife asked nervously, as she twisted the dish towel.

I put my arm around her. "It's all right, dear. the man is only doing his job."

"What kind of person would sneak into somebody's home and inform on them as to how much gas they had used?" she said.

"Hush, he'll hear you and add a couple of hundred cubic feet just for spite."

"I can take him, Dad," my son said. "Let me use karate on him."

"Will you all shut up! He's got us over a barrel. Gas meters never lie."

The man came up whistling.

"Give it to us straight," I said. "We can take it."

"You used 87,900 cubic feet of gas this month," he said.

My wife almost collapsed.

I blanched. "Does the gas company have to know?"

"Yup," he replied, writing on his clipboard. "I'll see you next month," he said cheerfully.

My wife gazed at him. "I just pray your mother never finds out what you do for a living."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Ford-Reagan rematch predicted

By JACK ANDERSON and LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — Gerald Ford and Ronald Reagan would like a rematch in 1980. Both Republican heavyweights are back in their corners, preparing for a comeback.

For prelininaries, they plan to hit the road in 1978 in behalf of Republican congressional candidates. The two should emerge, given the vicissitudes of politics, as the leading presidential contenders at the next Republican convention.

Both men have discussed their intentions frankly with associates, who are making whispered predictions about the 1980 rematch. Ex-Sen. William Brock, R.-Tenn., the capable and innovative new Republican national chairman, is less positive. But he told us he "wouldn't be the least bit surprised" if Ford and Reagan squared off for another 15 rounds at the next Republican super brawl.

Although Ford is 63 and Reagan 66, both men are in excellent health and appear younger than their ages. They also believe that the GOP nomination will be worth the fight. They sense that the electorate, weary of government interference in their lives, are turning more conservative — a trend only temporarily arrested by the Watergate scandals.

But the next scandals, they believe, will damage the Democrats. Dozens of congressmen — some say as many as 90 — are under investigation for taking cash, gifts and other favors from the South Koreans.

The offerings were distributed to Democrats and Republicans alike. But the headline names, according to our sources, will be tied to the Democratic party. No less a figure than House Speaker Thomas "Tip" O'Neill, D.-Mass., was pampered and partied by Tongsun Park, the leading South Korean Santa Claus.

The Korean bribery scandals, GOP strategists anticipate, will produce a reaction against Congress in 1978. This could lead to a massive overturn in membership, with control of Congress passing to the Republicans. Such an upheaval would strengthen the GOP for an assault on the White House two years later.

Ford and Reagan alike will be active in the 1978 campaign, ready to capitalize on any Republican upsurge. Both intend to campaign for candidates from one end of the Republican spectrum to the other. It was Richard Nixon's stump work, they remember, that won friends and influenced the right politicians. He later cashed in their political IOUs in return for the presidential nomination.

Both Ford and Reagan, meanwhile, plan to stay in public view. The former president is lining up a schedule of speaking and television appearances. Reagan, as chairman of a new national conservative citizens group, hopes to become the leading spokesman for the conservative cause.

For the two contenders, it looks as if 1980 will be Kansas City revisited.

LIVING IN SIN: The love affair between the oil and gas industry and its government regulators has been an open secret for years. It has been a flirtation that has cost the public heavily, from beneficial leaks in the tax laws to higher rates for natural gas.

With dreary regularity, we have called attention to this cozy relationship. We reported last April, for example, that the gas industry cleared a pamphlet which the Federal Energy Administration later issued as governnent doctrine. The booklet, called "The Natural Gas Story," touted gas deregulation.

Embarrassed FEA officials, caught in bed with the gas men they were supposed to be regulating, compounded the sin by whitewashing the investigation. There was enough whitewash left over, it turned out, to attempt to quash a grand jury investigation of oil price overcharges.

We identified the chief whitewasher last December as Douglas Robinson, the FEA's deputy general counsel, whom we reported was in line for a key energy post in the Carter administration.

Our story was a big enough stumbling block to stall the appointment. Robinson has been sitting out the cold crisis in an FEA office, with no new title and nothing to do.

Meanwhile, we have learned that two powerful congressmen, John Dingell, D.-Mich., and John Moss, D.-Calif., have written blunt letters to President Jimmy Carter about Robinson. The president promised at his last press conference to investigate the Robinson affair.

In the case of the surreptitious pamphlet, the FEA chiefs assigned Robinson as their hired gun to conduct an investigation that wouldn't embarrass the FEA. Robinson has admitted as much to us. He considered the FEA bosses his "clients," he said. He merely represented his clients, he explained, to the best of his ability.

The FEA promised to cooperate with Dingell in getting to the bottom of the pamphlet mystery. Yet in a confidential letter to the FEA, Dingell complained that his subcommittee "never received a copy of the various investigation reports and documents of your findings."

In a separate letter to the Carter camp, Dingell warned: "One may ... legitimately question the wisdom of appointing Mr. Robinson, who has become controversial because of his prior position at FEA in the Ford administration."

Elevate 'America, the Beautiful' to anthem status

Nick Thimmesch

WASHINGTON — The Republic endured much change in recent years. Now there is the presidential wearing of blue denims and cardigan sweaters. Pabst beer promises to become the Administration's unofficial beverage. Keeping with this spirit, I hereby offer the unoriginal suggestion that we demote "The Star-Spangled Banner" from its lofty perch as the one and only national anthem and elevate "America, The Beautiful" to share that position.

To begin, most people can't sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" very well. At public outings such as baseball and football games, it causes people to murmur, yawn, look the other way and silently wish there were some other song to sing. There are cheers after its playing because (a) it's over with, or (b) some million-dollar opera voice has just conquered it, and we admire the accomplishment.

Its content is parochial. "The Star-Spangled Banner" was inspired by the gallantry and heroism of a gang of Maryland militia at Ft. McHenry. But such great moments in American military history have been repeated hundreds of times since 1814. The Alamo, San Juan Hill, Bellau Wood, Iwo Jima, Bastogne, Pork Chop Hill, Hue-all equaled Ft. McHenry in terms of American bravery.

Most people don't realize that "The Star-Spangled Banner" has been our national anthem for only 46 of the nation's 200-year history. One congressman and a hefty lobbying effort by the Maryland Society of the U.S. Daughters of 1812 are responsible for the legislation establishing the song as national anthem, March 3, 1931. The citizenry has been frustrated in trying to do it justice ever since.

Now the Maryland ladies were justly proud of what their forefathers (no doubt cheered on by their foremothers) had done back in the summer of 1814 at Ft. McHenry. That had been a bad summer for President Madison and the United States. A British expenditionary force laid waste to villages on Chesapeake Bay and marched almost unopposed to the new capital at Washington. American militia ran away from the approaching British, who gleefully burned all public buildings in Washington, including the White House.

Heady with this symbolic triumph over the brash young Americans, the British headed for their next objective, Baltimore. But the Maryland militia was waiting for them, and the British were stopped at the Baltimore entrenchments.

Meanwhile, British ships bombarded Ft. McHenry, laying in 1,800 shells on the gutsy Americans there. Francis Scott Key was a prisoner aboard a British ship in Baltimore Bay; and, though a pacifist, he was thrilled to witness the courage of the Americans at Ft. McHenry. Key was inspired to write what are now the lyrics to "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Somehow those lyrics were set to the tune of a British barroom ballad and survived a songbag full of military tunes written in the 19th century, a period of intense American nationalism. In 1910 the first bill was introduced to make it the national anthem, and a 21-year period of intense lobbying by patriotic organizations on its behalf followed.

"The Star-Spangled Banner" has not been a popular national anthem. It was scarcely adopted when critics were calling for its replacement. The song most often cited as logical successor is "America, The Beautiful." It was set to music in the hymn "Materna."

Miss Bates' poem celebrates the "spacious skies...amber waves of grain...purple mountain majesties above the fruited plain." It asks God to "shed His grace on thee, and crown thy good with brotherhood, from sea to shining sea." The poem, now song, praises the bounty, breadth and character of the United States and does not salute a military victory. Indeed, it preaches a bit with the verse, "America! God mend thine every flaw, confirm thy soul in self-control, Thy liberty in law."

Best of all, though, is that "America, The Beautiful" can be sung by most souls, and people enjoy singing it. The good Maryland ladies lived in a country of 120 million in 1928 when they were pushing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and looking back. Now, nearly 50 years later, we have doubled in population, and we have spread our borders to Alaska and Hawaii, and indeed millions of our people have visited all over the shrinking globe. We just aren't as nationalistic as Francis Scott Key was.

There have been a number of attempts in Congress to retire "The Star-Spangled Banner" as national anthem and replace it with something else. There is little in the national mood today which responds to martial music. "Bombs bursting in air" and the sins of the cruel British spark little here. With all the sweetness and love being purveyed from these precincts, it seems like a cinch time for "America, The Beautiful."

But there will come a time, again, believe it or not, when there will be need to make our blood course and the step go livelier. For that reason I believe the most sensible suggestion on what to do with our relatively young, but unsuitable, national anthem, and its challenger, "America, The Beautiful," was made by the Chicago Tribune two years ago.

The Tribune suggested making both of them national anthems, playing "The Star-Spangled Banner" for military and diplomatic ceremonies and "America, The Beautiful" for gatherings where a cross-section of the public is assembled — graduations, athletic contests and perhaps dedications of new buildings. The original anthem could look back, and the new one could look to now and to the future.

The House hasn't met since last Wednesday. The Senate met last Friday, but won't meet again until Monday.

Before Congress became quite as sensitive about its reputation, this period was called the Lincoln Day recess. It was a time congressmen and senators made speeches marking the birthday of Abraham Lincoln and touched a few bases with the folks back home.

No one suggested there was anything scandalous about the recess unless a member of Congress chose the French Riviera as the site of his Lincoln Day speechmaking.

Times have changed. The congressional leadership has decided the word "recess" might imply that lawmakers are off playing when they ought to be working.

So, in case you hadn't noticed, the House is observing a "district work period," and the Senate is in a "non-legislative period."

This is the year of reorganization and openness. But the word hasn't reached Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The panel met last Friday to set up subcommittees under the guidelines established in the reorganization plan adopted by the Senate earlier in the week. Since subcommittees are pockets of power within the full committee, their makeup can be the subject of a lot of maneuvering, the sort of horsetrading senators would rather not do in open session.

The deadline for committees to organize was Friday.

When the Judiciary Committee met, a reporter asked if the meeting would be open or closed. "Closed," said Eastland.

N.Y. legislator urges Cuba talk

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — A New York congressman says after meeting with Prime Minister Fidel Castro that the United States and Cuba should begin direct talks on such topics as fishing rights as a step towards normalizing relations.

Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, a Democrat, who met with Castro for seven hours during a five-day visit ending today, said "there is a good opportunity" for normalizing relations and "I hope we don't miss it."

"There is no reason there cannot be direct talks on fishing," Bingham added, since Cuba has indicated a willingness to discuss the issue. Parts of the 200-mile economic zones claimed by both countries overlap in the waters between Florida and Cuba where shrimpers and other commercial fishermen operate.

Bingham, a Bronx lawyer who heads the House subcommittee on international trade and commerce, said broader talks to normalize relations would have to await the lifting of the American trade embargo against Cuba that was imposed after Castro seized all U.S. business interests on the Caribbean island in 1960.

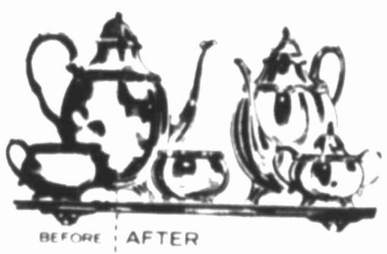

Bingham, a longtime opponent of the embargo, called the sanctions "ridiculous" and said they "serve no purpose." The Cubans view the embargo as an act of aggression and refuse to negotiate with a "knife at their throats," he said.

DEAR ABBY

Woman fears message predicting her death

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman who just turned 25. I have two small children, and I'm living in fear that I will not live to see them grow up.

When I was 13, I was fooling around with a Ouija board, when I got a message from my dead grandmother saying she would see me in heaven on my 26th birthday, meaning I was going to die on that day in an accident.

I told my husband about my fears, telling him to marry again soon after I die so my children won't be without a mother, and he said, "That Ouija board stuff is a lot of bunk, so forget it."

Abby, for some reason, I can't forget it. I am not afraid to die. If God wants me, I'm ready to go, but I only have 11 months to prepare myself if the Ouija board was right.

Have you or any of your readers ever had any experiences with a Ouija board? I'm terribly confused and very frightened.—W. VA. READER

DEAR READER: I agree with your husband. While I respect the rights of others to believe as they wish, I have yet to find a shred of convincing evidence to support the theory that the living can communicate with the dead.

I urge you to put those frightening thoughts of impending death out of your head, dear.

DEAR ABBY: My grandchildren live out of state. They are old enough to write, but they never acknowledge my gifts. I spend a lot of time shopping for things I think they will enjoy, and my presents are never cheap.

Please don't tell me to stop sending them gifts. You know a grandmother can't forget her grandchildren on their birthdays, Christmas and Easter. So what do you advise?—FORGOTTEN GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Send them each a box of "thank you" notes for Easter. That's eggs-actly what they need.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very handsome (and weak) man who does not hold up very well when faced with temptation. He maintains that when a lady makes a pass at a gentleman, he should not insult her by turning her down, and he has no choice other than to oblige her.

I say he is out of his head, that a true gentleman would find a courteous way to decline. I would like your opinion.—ALABAMAN

DEAR AL: Your husband should first get his terms straight. If a woman makes a pass at a man, she's no "lady." And if the man obliges her, he's no "gentleman."

And if your husband is practicing what he preaches, you'd better lock him up before his "chivalry" kills him.

East takes the ace of spades and returns the queen. South ruffs, draws two rounds of trumps with the king and queen, then takes two top clubs and ruffs a club with dummy's ace of diamonds.

Declarer gets back by ruffing a spade and draws the last trump. Sooner or later, South must lead a heart and guess whether to play the king or jack from dummy. Of course, West must play a low heart without any telltale hesitation. How does South know which opponent has the ace of hearts.

SHOULD KNOW

In this case South should know where the ace of hearts is by using the old horse-finding logic.

What would you do in third position after two passes if you had a long spade suit headed by A-Q-J and the ace of hearts. You'd bid spades, of course, and so would any other horse.

Since East didn't bid spades, he cannot have this hand. That is, he cannot have the ace of hearts. Since West must have the ace of hearts, the correct play from dummy is the king of hearts.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one diamond, and the next player bids one spade. You hold: S-K92; H-A873; D-6 C-J10962. What do you say.

ANSWER: Pass. The hand is not strong enough for any free bid. Wait to see if your partner can find a reopening bid or double.

Friend claims people won't buy used house

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have a friend who has been trying to sell her house for six months and frankly, I'm worried about her.

The other morning, while having coffee, I excused myself to use her bathroom. She threw her body across the door and said, "Do you really have to use this? I mean, you couldn't wait and stop at the service station on the way home, could you?"

"Get hold of yourself, Gloria," I said. "Ever since you listed your home you've developed a clean fetish."

"Are you finished leaning back on that pillow?" she asked, grabbing it and punching it up with her fist.

"See what I mean? You're going crazy with neatness. What happened? We never see a newspaper at your door anymore. We never see garbage cans at your curb. I almost hate to ask, but where are your children?"

"I laundered and stored them until after we move," she said, grabbing the cup and saucer away from my lips and rinsing them under the faucet.

"Face it. No one buys a house that looks like it's inhabited."

"That's a dumb thing to say."

"It's true. Take your average model home. The light switches might not work, the walls snell like paste, there is no water, and the doors are hung backwards. No problem. The house will still sell. But if the lids are up on the bathroom commode — forget it!"

"I don't believe that at all."

"It's true. Take this house. Please. It was a model home when we bought it. I'm here to tell you a virgin house is the most beautiful sight in the world. There was even a bowl of waxed fruit on the coffee table. Then we moved in. First, it was a basketball in the foyer, handprints around the light switches, a cardboard box in the utility room to hold the dog, cup dispensers on every wall, a calendar over the stove, notes on the refrigerator, an ironing board in the dining room, a boot in the flower bed, rolled-up newspapers in the spouting, 50-pound bag of fertilizer on the porch, a bread card in the window . . ."

"And the waxed fruit?"

"It's still in the bowl with initials carved into it, along with a brush roller, two marbles and a transistor battery. The illusion is gone."

Just then the realtor came up the drive with a prospective couple. "Quick," yelled Gloria, grabbing her sweater. "Put the coffee pot in the oven, the mail in the freezer and follow me to the basement. Just pray they don't slip on the driveway. I waxed it yesterday."

Breakfast gives boost to body

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

Starting the day with a good morning meal is not only using your head. It may literally provide "food for thought" which helps your kids get more out of school.

Dr. Jean Mayer, former professor of nutrition at Harvard, notes children tend to have faster metabolisms than adults. "Unless young people start off the day with a good-sized, balanced meal, long before noon rolls around they might be operating without adequate reserves. They may not be as alert as they need to be and their learning may be impaired."

This goes along with a finding by University of Iowa researchers that "...students who bypassed breakfast took longer to make decisions, were less steady, and didn't produce as much work as the students who did stop to refuel."

Breakfast can dish up benefits to adults, too. A well-balanced bite can help sustain energy and be good "defensive eating" for dieters.

But what you eat is as important as whether you do. A poor breakfast can give you the jitters and a push toward midmorning slump and unwanted coffee break calories.

The reason? A meal or snack high in sugar or refined carbohydrate, such as syrupy pancakes or sweet rolls washed down with coffee, can result in a relatively rapid rise in blood-sugar levels. This may be followed by a relatively sharp drop in about two or three hours.

Caffeine containing beverages and nicotine can also affect blood-sugar levels.

Emanuel Cheraskin, M.D., D.M.D., describes what can happen. "The combination of caffeine, sugar and nicotine triggers a flood of insulin into the system. Blood-sugar levels first rise, then plummet...just in time for the midmorning coffee break."

New lease regulations begin

COLLEGE STATION — Consumers who lease items will do so under a new set of government regulations—starting March 23rd—if those items are worth less than $25,000, and if they are leased for at least four months, according to Lynn Bourland, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Firms that lease to consumers will have to follow a strict new set of government rules that will require them to give a description of options to buy, if there are such options, the specialist said.

Some families and businesses find leasing automobiles, furniture and other big ticket items a better option than buying, Mis Bourland noted.

Chaps finish strong to beat Clarendon

ALVIN MAYES (34) of Midland College and Bobby Nard (25) of Clarendon College battle for a rebound during Monday's Western Junior College Conference game at MC gym. The Chaps won 95-75.

BY TED BATTLES

Midland College finished with a last half rush to defeat Clarendon College, 95-75, and Gene Davis, a sometime wrestler who coaches the Bulldogs, was mad enough to wrestle an official at the MC gym Monday.

Davis didn't go quite that far, but was vocal enough to get two quick technicals called against his team eight minutes into the second half and Tommy Parks converted three of the four accompanying shots.

The way things were going at the time for Clarendon, it wasn't the ball game, but it made the Chaparrals' task that much easier and in the tough Western Junior College Conference, any help is greeted with open arms.

AFTER PARKS finished his free-throwing, Midland led 63-50 and was on its way to that elusive 18th win.

But it didn't start out like any piece of cake. Clarendon, 5-10 in WJCC, tossed a full-court press at the Chaps and forced MC into a nasty rash of turnovers to sprint to a 19-10 lead and a 26-16 lead before the Chaps started to battle back.

"I guess you'd say the turning point was when we adjusted to their press and came back with one of our own," Coach Delnor Poss commented. "No, the press wasn't a surprise. In fact, we worked on it and although it gave us trouble at first we adjusted well."

Poss said, "Jeff (Jackson) played the best game I've seen him play."

Jeff wound up with a high of 20 points as five Chaps scored in double figures.

THE SIX-SIX Midland Lee product provided the Chaps with a 43-38 halftime lead with a three-basket burst in the final 1:15 of the first half and it was his jumper from the corner with 5:07 left that gave Midland a 31-30 lead, its first since the early moments.

Jackson Pace, going seven of 11 from the field, wound up with 18 points and Parks, pretty much confined to play-making chores until the final eight minutes, had 16 points, 11 coming late in the ame.

Pace also led MC in rebounds with 10 while Ricky Hudgins, a 10-point night, had nine caroms. Jackson, hitting both inside and from the 8-10 foot range was nine of 12 from the floor.

Carl Davis, a 6-3 forward from Queens, N.Y., led Clarendon with 22 points while Pampa's Billy Wilbon scored 17.

Midland College will host South Plains College in WJCC action Thursday.

Pastorini wants out; hinting at the Rams

HOUSTON (AP)—Houston Oiler Quarterback Dan Pastorini, stung by fans crticism and frustrated by what he terms unkept promises, said he no longer feels loyal to Oiler fans and wants to be traded to a team with a winning tradition-specifically Los Angeles.

"I'm at the end of my contract and I really don't want to play here anymore," Pastorini said in an interview with The Associated Press. "I'm tired of waiting for promises to be kept. I've confronted Bum (Oilers Coach Phillips) with it.

"I've told him it wouldn't be fair to the city of Houston, the Oiler organizaton or my teammates to make me play here against my will."

Pastorini has been quoted several times recently as saying he wants to be traded. Oiler officials have said the outspoken quarterback was either just momentarily upset or was laying groundwork for a new contract.

But those explanations aren't valid anymore. "I really don't want to renegotiate and I think the feeling is mutual, " Pastorini said. "They haven't asked me about a new contract either."

Pastorini said his disenchantment with Oiler fans started last fall after he was involved in an early morning car accident on a Houston street. Pastorini said public reaction to the accident had given him a 'salty' attitude.

"I've taken a defensive approach to the public ever since then," Pastorini said."I almost lost my life in that accident and all people wanted to know was why I was out at 4 A. M., was I drunk and who I was with."

Pastorini, who received the brunt of criticism for Houston's 5-9 record last season, said he no longer owes any loyalty to Houston fans.

"What does an athlete owe to anyone who is cheering him one minute and then literally ready to tear him apart the next?" Pastorini said "The only loyalty I owe is to the Oiler organization and to my teammates."

Pastorini said if a trade can't be arranged with the Rams he will play out his option this year and seek a new team next season. "I'm just tired of waiting," Pastorini said.

Shopping time again for baseball owners

By The Associated Press

Baseball's long-awaited second inter-league trading period got under way at midnight Monday and those teams which did not get what they wanted the first time can go shopping across league lines again.

Although 24 players switched leagues in 11 transactions during the first inter-league swap period from Oct. 26-Dec. 10, the Detroit Tigers still are seeking a second baseman and the New York Mets have been looking for a full-time third baseman since their birth in 1962.

In addition, the Milwaukee Brewers are offering Don Money for a power-hitting outfielder, a second baseman or a relief pitcher; the New York Yankees would like to get a shortstop, and Bill Veeck has promised to acquire a slugging outfielder for his Chicago White Sox.

The start of spring training is less than a week away, and the 26 major league clubs have until midnight March 15 to deal with teams in the opposite league.

In the first inter-league trading period, such players as Jeff Burroughs (Texas to Atlanta), Richie Zisk (Pittsburgh to the White Sox) and George Hendrick (Cleveland to San Diego) changed uniforms.

Last Friday's five-player deal that sent two-time National League batting champion Bill Madlock from the Chicago Cubs to San Francisco for Bobby Murcer—both still are unsigned—could open up things in the trading market. But there are fewer marketable players than ever because of the new free agent rules.

Rebels in big one tonight

By BOB DILLON

Robert E. Lee needs a victory badly tonight and also needs some help from the Midland Bulldogs in District 5-4A basketball action.

The Rebels hit the road for a date with the Abilene High Eagles while Midland entertains Abilene Cooper in the MHS Gym.

Lee, Abilene and Cooper are all tied for first place in the standings in the second half of the race with 5-1 records, but Cooper has the inside track to the overall title since the Cougs tied Odessa Permian for the first half crown and Mojo is out of the running in the second half.

Should Cooper tie for the second half, it would advance on into the Class AAAA state playoffs without a playoff game.

Midland almost knocked off the Cougars in the first half, losing 47-45 in Abilene. Lee, meanwhile, has beaten Cooper twice, but has a pair of losses to Permian.

STARTING FOR the Rebels tonight will be Billy Ray Ennis, Mike Denny, Bobby Alexander, Mike Wallace and David Pitts. Abilene will most likely counter with David Little, Cisco Smith, Byron Roberts, Slick Hines and Mark Pierce.

Midland will go with Craig Dunn, Brently Jackson, James Hicks, Terry Rogers and Walter Bryson. Cooper is led by Dennis Bradford and Tim Orr. Joining them in the starting lineup will be Keith Turner, Bobby Biers and Sam Houston.

In other games tonight, Permian entertains San Angelo and Odessa High is at Big Spring.

Radio station KCRS will do the play-by-play from Abilene with tip-off set for 8 p.m. A junior varsity contest will start at 6:15 p.m. both in Abilene and the Tall City.

The regular season winds up Friday with Midland at Lee; Permian at OHS; San Angelo at Big Spring and Cooper taking on Abilene in the Taylor County Coliseum.

Teen steals net show

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 14-year-old girl with braces on her teeth and pigtails stole the show from the established players Monday night in the first round of a $100,000 women's tennis tournament that features Chris Evert.

The fact that little Tracy Austin of nearby Rolling Hills, Calif. lost her doubles match was almost secondary to the fact that she kept her composure and thrilled the crowd of 2,176 at the Sports Arena.

However, the top-seeded Miss Evert and second-seeded Martina Navratilova do not play their first-round matches until tonight, so Miss Austin had the crowd to herself.

"Actually, I don't get as nervous for the pros, not as much as for a junior tournament," said the teen-ager, who spent the morning and afternoon attending classes at the Dappiegray Secondary School before showing up for her doubles match.

Playing in her first big match before a hometown audience, Tracy teamed with Kate Latham of Palo Alto, Calif. They lost to Brigitte Cuypers and Marise Kruger, both of South Africa, 6-4, 6-1.

Lee girls end season

The Lee girls ended the basketball season in the Lee gym Monday night with a 57-25 win over Abilene High.

Lee ends the season with a 22-3 record.

Four Lee girls posted double digits with the victory. Sandra Poole led the way with 16 points while Patty Adams added 13 markers. Debra Kittle and Schila McCalister each had 12 points. Other members of the varsity team who played Monday night were Debra Ledbetter, Jan Carnes, Sheryl Oudens, Cindy Harrison, Lix Hellinghausen, Coria Goodley, and Laurie Brown.

Kentucky, UCLA swap places

By The Associated Press

Kentucky and UCLA exchanged places in this week's Associated Press Top 20 college basketball poll, the Wildcats rising to second and the Bruins falling to third.

Kentucky, 18-2, beat Florida State 97-57 and Auburn 89-82 last week, and received 946 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters, in voting announced today.

UCLA, 19-3, beat Washington State 65-62 but lost to Washington 78-73 and tumbled to third. The Bruins received 863 points.

Meanwhile, San Francisco, 25-0, defeated Nevada-Reno 92-76 and St. Mary's Calif. 99-82 and remained in first place with 1,006 points. The Dons collected 48 of the 51 first-place votes, with Kentucky getting one and UCLA two.

Alabama, 19-2 and No. 7 a week ago, beat Mississippi 72-68 and Mississippi State 73-69, and jumped to No. 4 with 530 points.

Michigan, 18-3, defeated Minnesota 86-80 but lost to Indiana 73-64 and remained fifth.

The Rebels of Nevada-Las Vegas routed Denver 106-84 and edged Louisville 99-96 in leaping from 10th to No. 6.

Wake Forest, 19-3 and fourth last week, lost to Clemson 70-66 before beating North Carolina State 84-77 and fell to seventh.

Louisville, 18-3 after beating Providence 68-64 and Southwestern Louisiana 103-82 and losing to Nevada-Las Vegas, fell from No. 6 to eighth.

Marquette, 16-3, lost to Cincinnati 63-62, then beat Chicago Loyola 81-71 and Manhattan 86-60, remaining No. 9.

Cincinnati, 18-3, upset Marquette and beat Eastern Kentucky 78-60 and Georgia Tech 84-73, rising from No. 12 to 10th.

Birdsong honored for play

DALLAS (AP) — Otis Birdsong pumped in 103 points in pacing Houston to three victories last week, nailing down the Southwest Conference single-season scoring record for all games and earning him the title of SWC player of the week.

"The Bird," a 6-4 All America candidate, has 751 points for the season, eclipsing the mark of 710 posted by SMU's Gene Phillips in 1971. In SWC play, Birdsong needs 40 points in the last three contests to establish a conference season record. He currently has 389 SWC points.

By BOB DILLON
R-T Sports Writer

ODESSA — Two Midland fighters walked off with titles Monday night before a record-breaking crowd of 6,000 fans in the finals of the 31st Regional Golden Gloves Tournament in the Ector County Coliseum.

Johnny Abila, 102-pounder from the Tall City, took a decision over David Lujan of Seminole in the High School Division while Ronald Smythe, a 95-pounder from Midland, scored a win in a Junior Division exhibition.

The only other Midland fighter in the finals — Danny Smith, a 159-pounder, lost to Johnny Lopez of Andrews in the High School Division.

THE BEST fight of the night and the one that drew the loudest reaction from the crowd came in the Football Division when Odessa High's Johnny Morrison, a 144-pounder, took a hard-fought decision over Odessa Permian's John Muery. It was a crowdpleaser and Morrison won the fight with a second round knockdown after both were even in the first and third rounds.

IN ANOTHER Football Division battle, Danny Dixon of Fort Stockton knocked out Permian's Vic Vines in the first round and this brought a great ovation from the OHS fans.

Another knockout came in the Football Division when OHS' Ed Roe, a 176-pounder, sent Pecos' Edward Terasero to the canvas in the first round.

Kenneth Fulton of Rankin took on Mike Issacs of the Odessa Boxing Club in a High School Division fight and the two stood toe-to-toe in a crowd-pleaser with Fulton winning in a 130-pound bout.

Tony Stafford, 155 of Woodson Boys Club scored a TKO over David Fulton of Rankin in another High School Division fight.

Dan Levario, last year's regional champion in the bantamweight division, scored a split decision over Greg Bingham of Seminole. Bignham was last year's featherweight champion. This came in the Open Division.

Winners of the Open Division advance into the State Golden Gloves Tourney in Fort Worth, March 9-12.

With Monday's 6,000 in attendance, the overall record was set this year with a total of 19,000 fans seeing the five nights of action.

The Midland High girls ended the basketball season at the MHS gym Monday with a 43-41 win over Abilene Cooper. The Bulldogs end the season with a 22-3 record.

Beth Thomason led the attack with 15 points while Terry Dean added 13 and Karen Cook nine.

Kim White, JoAnn Johnson, Susan Sloan and Pam Forrest played well on defense. Since Midland High did not have any seniors on the squad, all of the players will return next year.

Field work planned in regions of Eddy

Field activity is planned for Eddy County, N.M., areas.

Hondo Drilling Co., Midland, plans No. 1-C Exxon-State Communitized as a ¾-mile north offset to the one-well Turkey Track (Morrow) gas field, 19 miles northeast of Carlsbad.

Drillsite is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 17-19s-29e, and scheduled depth is 11,500 feet.

The discovery, Hondo No. 1-TX Union-State Communitized, finaled in October 1974 for 2.786 million cubic feet of gas per day, through perforations at 11,144-11,202 feet.

Yates Petroleum Corp., Artesia, filed application to drill No. 1-HL Maralo-Federal as a ⅞-mile northeast and northwest outpost to Morrow gas production in the Burton Flat, East field of Eddy.

It spots 1,980 feet from south and 660 feet from east lines of section 12-20s-28e, 12 miles northeast of Carlsbad. It is slated for a bottom depth of 11,900 feet.

Also, Yates Petroleum intends to reenter and plug back to 3,000 feet for tests of the Yeso in an undesignated sector of Eddy, eight miles south of Artesia, at No. 1-L-HM Mallard, former Morrow gas well in the Atoka field.

Location is 1,650 feet from south and 990 feet from west lines of section 28-18s-28e.

Offset tests scheduled

Offsets to discoveries have been staked in Schleicher and Runnels counties.

Gulf Oil Corp. filed application for No. 1-VO State, a ½-mile southeast stepout to the one-well University 54 (Ellenburger) gas field of Schleicher, 26 miles northwest of Eldorado.

It has a projected depth of 8,500 feet, and spots 660 feet from north and west lines of section 8, block 54, ULS.

The discovery, Gulf No. 1-TB State, finaled Dec. 13, 1976, for a calculated, absolute open flow of 5.9 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through perforations at 7,800-7,832 feet.

W. W. West, Midland, staked site for No. 2 William M. Meadows, one location south of the two-well N.A.M. (Fry sand) field of Runnels.

It spots 2,241 feet from north and 467 feet fron most northerly west lines of G.P.D. Clark survey, abstract 1018, seven miles west of Winters. Planned depth is 4,900 feet.

Meeting scheduled

The Midland Chapter of Independent Professional Earth Scientists will hold its annual dinner meeting for members, wives and guests Friday at Midland Country Club.

A social hour is slated for 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8 p.m.

Newly elected officers will be installed after the dinner. They are Bill Donnell, chairman; Earl Gaertner, vice chairman; Toby Carleto, secretary; and Jerry Bartley, treasurer. Past chairman, John Wood, will become chairman of the membership committee, replacing John Scherer.

The Midland SIPES chapter is the largest in the United States.

Governor, FEA meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe went to bat for natural gas deregulation with Carter administration officials Monday, but apparently came away with no firm commitments.

Briscoe worked in meetings with Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary, presidential energy adviser James Schlesinger and other officials while preparing for Monday night's state dinner honoring Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

The governor called the talks "pleasant and productive," but declined to give specifics. He is known to favor legislation sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Bob Krueger, both Texas Democrats. That legislation would remove federal price controls on new gas sold in interstate commerce. It would also protect Texas consumers against out-of-state companies "bidding up" the price of gas.

T. C. Hunter

Three Gulf retirements announced

Gulf Energy and Minerals Co.-U.S. has announced the retirements of three men in its Midland District Comptroller Department.

T. C. Hunter of Midland, senior unit supervisor, left the company Jan. 1 after 37 years and one month of service.

He started his Gulf career with Gulf Research and Development Co. in Louisville, Miss. He served in various seismic jobs throughout the years working in Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, New Mexico and Louisiana.

He moved to Wichita Falls in 1958 as unit supervisor and was promoted to area clerical supervisor in 1962.

Hunter was transferred to the Goldsmith Area in 1969 and promoted to Area Services supervisor in 1970. He was transferred to Midland in 1973 as senior unit supervisor.

He will make his home in Odessa.

W. B. Brown Crane, senior accounting clerk in the Crane Area, retired last Tuesday after 18 years and five months with Gulf.

He was employed by the company as a general clerk in the Sand Hills field office. His entire tenure has been in the West Texas area.

In addition to his retirement classification, he served the company as general clerk, clerk and senior clerk. He will continue to make his home in Crane.

E. C. Rogers of Midland, a senior clerk, also retired last Tuesday. He had 29½ years with Gulf.

He started with the company at Odessa in 1947 as a clerk. He later was promoted to senior clerk. He also served four years in the New Orleans District.

Sinai oil exploration said contrary to law

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Israeli oil prospecting in occupied Egyptian waters off the Sinai coast "is contrary to international law" and also "complicates the achievement of a settlement" in the Middle East, the State Department said Monday.

Speaking on the eve of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's trip to the Middle East, his first diplomatic mission, department spokesman Frederick Z. Brown said Vance intends to discuss Israel's disputed oil exploration in Both Jerusalem and Cairo. Brown was responding to a report several weeks ago in The Los Angeles times in which the Israeli operations were disclosed.

According to the Times report, which Brown's statement verified, Israeli drilling activity, said to be near an oil strike, is taking place in a section of the Gulf of Suez the Egyptian government had leased to an American company. The company, Amoco International, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, leased drilling rights in the site in 1974.

Last September, Israeli gunboats forced Amoco prospectors away from and adjacent lease, and some reports at the time said shots were fired.

Vance "definitely" will discuss the matter with both Israel and Egypt this week, Brown said. "American companies are involved, and we have a responsibility to them in this matter."

A State Department official later told reporters that the oil prospecting issue is considered one of a series of important secondary matters to be brought up during Vance's trip. The secretary hopes to concentrate on the main issues of how to move toward a peace conference and how to solve the question of Palestinian participation in a settlement, the official said.

Palestinian participation at a peace conference, which the Israeli's categorically refused to accept as long as the Palestine Liberation Organization speaks for the Palestinian Arabs, may be the major issue that has to be dealt with, reporters were told.

In this context, oil drilling, U.S. supply of arms to Israel and to some of the Arab states and the Arab economic boycott of Israel are all regarded as subsidiary questions.

Up to now, the question of illegal Israeli oil prospecting has been regarded as a highly sensitive matter within the State Department, and officials have refrained from any public statements on the issue.

Privately, however, officials had said the United States contends that Israeli drilling violates the 1907 Hague Convention on the responsibilities of an occupying power. The convention allows an occupying power to tap existing resources but forbids exploitation of new resources.

In Monday's statement, the State Department made public its Our legal view "that Israel, as an occupying power, does not have the right to exploit natural resources in occupied territories that were not already being exploited when the occupation began. It is our belief that the activity which we are referring to with regard to this new drilling is contrary to international law."

Spokesman Brown said, "We believe that Israeli development of oil resources in these occupied territories is not helpful to efforts to get peace negotiations under way and complicates the achievement of a settlement."

Actually, the Hague Convention prohibition on development of new resources in an occupied zone, while allowing exploitation of existing resources, represents a legal anomaly from which the Israelis have already benefited.

Discovery, wildcats reported in WT areas

A new pay has been opened in a Pecos field and wildcat sites have been staked in Pecos and Crane counties.

The Petroleum Corp. of Delaware has recompleted No. 1-84 Cannon-Allison to open Canyon gas production in the Sheffield, Southwest field of Pecos, 17 miles west of Sheffield.

It had a calculated, absolute open flow of 48 million cubic feet of gas per day, with gas-oil ratio measuring 20,797-1. Completion was through perforations at 7,636-7,644 feet, after a 4,000-gallon acid treatment. Gravity of the condensate is 65 degrees.

A workover operation, it originally was completed in April 1976 as a Strawn oil discovery for 600 barrels of 39-gravity oil per day, through perforations at 7,636-7,644 feet, and then was reclassified for 183 million cubic feet of dry gas per day, through the same perforations.

Total depth is 10,275 feet, and it has 5½-inch casing set on bottom. It is plugged back to 8,340 feet.

Location is 2,350 feet from north and 2,164 feet from east lines of section 84, block A-2, TCRR survey.

Forest Oil Corp. finaled its No. 1-A W. M. Palmer as a location north extension to Ellenburger gas production in the Gomez field of Pecos, 12 miles northwest of port Stockton.

The calculated, absolute open flow was for 36.39 million cubic feet of gas per day, producing through perforations at 22,102- 22,138 feet, following acid treatment with 20,000 gallons.

Location is 1,320 feet from north and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 22, block OW, TCRR survey, 12 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

CRANE WILDCAT

Achieving desirable goals tough problem

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Reporter-Telegram
Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — One of the toughest problems facing the Carter Administration and the nation is how to attain desired goals relating to energy supplies, a healthy economy and a cleaner environment without trampling over one to get to the other.

The current shortage of natural gas during an unusually cold winter had helped drive home the point that inadequate energy supplies have a big impact on the economy and on the unemployment level.

The threat of chronic fuel shortages in the future unless something is done to increase supplies raises the distinct danger of economic malnutrition in the years ahead.

Obviously, the nation's economic welfare and its energy development go hand in hand, each dependent to a large extent on the other. A slowdown in energy supply means a slowdown in the economy.

Similarly, environmental improvement must necessarily be linked with the economy and energy.

Obviously, a healthy economy is better able to pay the cost of environmental improvement than a sick or weak economy. It's equally apparent that a good environment is one in which there is enough energy to keep people warm in winter and cool in summer. Furthermore, a great deal of energy resources are needed to supply the equipment and the power that is needed to bring about a cleaner, better environment.

In daily practice, however, conflicts arise over ways and means of achieving the desired goals.

A current case in point: There is a May 31 deadline for national compliance with pollutant standards set under the Clean Air Act of 1970. Many areas of the country simply are not going to meet that deadline, and as a result they face severe restrictions on industrial growth.

J. K. Evans, a Washington, D.C., oil consultant, has spent eight years in trying to get the required permits for a refinery to be built at Portsmouth, VA. The refinery—which was planned to produce environmentally desirable low-sulfur fuels—received all necessary state approvals and preliminary approval from the Environmental Protection Agency. However, less that a year ago an official in an EPA regional office in Philadelphia found the refinery "environmentally unacceptable" because the surrounding area has not attained the required oxidant standard. So the project is stymied and may never get built.

The government itself is facing a problem. The Federal Energy Administration, carrying out a program set up by Congress, is developing plans for stockpiling petroleum supplies for use in an emergency, such as another oil embargo.

Much of the planned storage will be in salt domes along the Texas-Louisiana Gulf Coast. But this area is an oxidant non-attainment area, meaning that by May 31 it will not have reduced oxidants from all sources to the required level. Since petroleum storage would result in loss of hydrocarbon vapors to the air it may be ruled out of the oxidant standards are maintained without change.

There are many other examples of such conflicts between energy and other requirements and environmental goals.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that some revisions will have to be considered and some time-table changes made if the nation is to make progress in meeting its energy requirements and maintaining a healthy economy.

Environmentalists are fearful that clean air and clean water standards may be abandoned or greatly weakened.

The issue was discussed last week at a congressional committee hearing. An oil industry spokesman warned that unless there are some changes in what the industry feels are unnecessarily restrictive policies, the country is in for some serious difficulties on the energy front.

Eddy gasser guages rate

Cities Service Oil Co., Midland, was waiting on calculated, absolute open flow potential, after taking four-point tests at No. 1-CV State, north outpost to the Burton Flat (Morrow) gas field of Eddy County, N.M.

Four-point test gauges ranged from 1.180 million cubic feet of gas per day on an 8-64-inch choke, to 2.7 million cubic feet daily on a 16-64-inch choke.

The flow was through perforations at 11,014-11,068 feet.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 760 feet from west lines of section 16-20s-28e, 9½ miles north of Carlsbad.

Langdon asks 'old' oil regions to contribute

ABILENE (AP) — New York and Pennsylvania might be able to meet some of their oil and gas needs if forced to look for energy within their own borders, a member of the Texas Railroad Commission said Monday.

Jim Langdon made the statement in a speech prepared for the West Centeral Texas Oil and Gas Association.

He also said this winter shortened the lifetime of existing gas reserves more than had been expected.

"Perhaps it would help all states if each state that produces less than its total energy requirements was required to hypothethically assume that it had just received its last BTU of energy from outside its own boundaries; and that henceforth it coud look only to its own resources to satisfy its energy needs," Langdon said.

"States like New York and Pennsylvania, once great oil and gas producing states in their own right, might find ways to recover their 'unrecoverable' oil."

He said Texas would continue to do its best to meet its own energy needs and "as much of the nation's needs as it can reasonably be expected to bear."

Langdon said most shallow gas reservoirs have been located, and current discoveries are largely made by deep drilling.

"Wells drilled to 20,000 feet or deeper often cost 100 times as much as even the very costly 10,000-foot wells," he observed.

Meanwhile, demand increases, he said.

"In 1975, we had an estimated life of reserves of 11.3 years, which presumably would be sufficient to carry the nation until about this day in the year 1986. Unfortunately, if we have to burn as much gas in future years as we have had to burn this year just to keep warm, it won't last till 1986," Langdon said.

Emil E. Ogden, with Chaparral Minerals, Inc., of Abilene was re-elected president of the West Central Texas Oil & Gas Association.

One new vice president was elected and three vice presidents were re-elected.

The new vice president is Bob H. Harrison with Petroleum Corp. of Texas of Breckenridge.

The re-elected vice presidents are John H. Chalmers, Harry S. Edwards and Jack Frizzell, all Abilene independent oil operators.

Dorman N. Farmer, also of Abilene, was re-elected treasurer. He is an independent.

Texaco Inc. has amended its No. 1-J Sterling Fee to a 1¼-mile southeast outpost to the Big Salute (Canyon) field of Sterling County.

It previously was scheduled Conger (Canyon) gas, and it is slated to 7,960 feet. Location is 1,320 feet from north and west lines of section 25, block 31, T-5-S, T&P survey, 13 miles southwest of Sterling City.

General Crude Oil Co., operating from Snyder, will drill a 6,200-foot venture in East Central Scurry, ¼ mile east of Hermleigh. It is No. 1-148 Henderson.

Drillsite is 1,980 feet from north and east lines of section 148, block 3, H&TC survey, three miles east of the Earnest (6,500 Pennsylvaian sand) field.

Commission favors busing in large cities

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission says children in large metropolitan areas should be bused between the inner city and the suburbs to reverse a trend of increasing segregation in bigcity schools.

"While elsewhere much progress has been made in desegregating public schools," the commission said, "it is these children of the cities more than any others who have yet to reap any benefit from the promise" of equal educational opportunity.

The commission, in a 119-page report released today, said, "the problem is growing worse, not better" as "the boundaries between cities and suburbs have become not merely political dividing lines but barriers that separate people by race and economic class."

The report comes two days after Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell said that he believes the Supreme Court has narrowed the scope of busing that may be ordered by federal judges to achieve desegregation.

Last summer the bipartisan commission created a controversy with a study that found busing to desegregate schools was working smoothly in most cities. The study accused then-President Gerald R. Ford of trying to "curb" court-ordered busing.

Some critics charged the study was rigged in favor of busing.

In its latest report, which caps a three-year study, the bipartisan commission rejected claims that desegregating schools across city and suburban borders would require more busing, long trips and tremendous administrative problems. Experience shows travel time can actually be reduced, the panel said, and school district mergers long have been commonplace.

The report blamed government at all levels for fostering "racial ghettos." It cited numerous instances of federal housing practices since the 1930s that it said helped set the present patterns of minorities being restricted to the inner cities while whites have gained almost exclusive control of the suburbs and suburban schools.

It charged: "Although national policy has now changed to favor equal housing opportunity, government has yet to undo the damage its policies have inflicted over the past century; indeed, in some areas, government agencies continue to be partners to racially discriminatory activity."

Judge orders school district desegregation

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The Kansas City school district has been ordered to begin integrating five predominantly black schools by next fall.

U.S. District Court Judge Earl E. O'Connor, issuing the order Monday, said the district had done nothing to eliminate segregation in the schools, which all have enrollments at least 99 per cent black.

But O'Connor said he limited his ruling to five schools on the city's northeast side because he had no authority to integrate "one-race or virtually one-race schools" unless the imbalance was intentional.

The order stemmed from a May 1973 Justice Department suit. Some other schools in the district have similar enrollment figures, but O'Connor said the predominantly black character of those schools was due to factors beyond the school district's control.

The judge also rejected the government's charge of illegal segregation in the remainder of the school district and dismissed consideration of a multi-district desegregation plan.

School board members' immediate reaction was favorable.

"I guess in view of the number of charges brought against us it would be fair to say one would have to be pleased," said William M. Modrcin, school board president.

Modrcin and two other members of the board indicated they were inclined not to appeal. The remaining members either declined to comment or could not be reached.

O'Connor said forced busing to achieve racial balance "shall be required only as a last resort."

He said the full desegregation plan for the five schools did not need to be fully implemented in the fall but he ordered that "measurable progress" should be made.

Name gets him on committee

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee now has a non-lawyer member, Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming. With minor exceptions, it is the first time in the committee's history.

Wallop, a rancher, wound up on the Judiciary Committee not because he sought the assignment but because his name begins with a "W."

One of 18 freshmen senators, he is at the bottom of the heap in seniority and the Republicans, unlike the Democrats, adhere strictly to seniority in making their committee assignments.

In filling the places allotted to them by the Democratic majority, the Republicans finally had only one slot left. It was on the Judiciary Committee. And Wallop, because of his low seniority standing, was the only one left for the assignment.

Of the eight GOP newcomers to the Senate, John Danforth of Missouri is tops in seniority, followed by John Chafee of Rhode Island and S. I. Hayakawa of California. They took office ahead of the others because their predecessors resigned before the end of their terms.

Next in seniority ranking among the Republican freshmen is H. John Heinz of Pennsylvania, because he is a former House member. The seniority of the rest was determined alphabetically, with the result that Wallop was at the bottom.

Back in the 1950s Sen. Earl Clements of Kentucky got on the Judiciary Committee, even though he was not a lawyer. He was called judge because of a county post he had held. This led senators to assume when committee assignments were made that Clements was a lawyer.

But committee aides say that in about two months, after senators became aware of this mistaken impression, Clements transferred to the Agriculture Committee.

Two non-lawyers served briefly on the Judiciary Committee at the start of the present Congress. One was Heinz and the other was Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., another freshman.

This was because all of the 18 new senators were temporarily assigned to committees by lot pending Senate action on the restructuring of its committee system.

When the Democrats and Republicans made their regular assignments, they turned out to be entirely different with few exceptions. However, three of the Democratic freshmen and three of the Republicans ended up on at least one of the committees to which they earlier had been assigned by lot.

Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., stayed on Appropriations and Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., on the Budget Committee and James Sasser, D-Tenn., on Governmental Affairs. Hayakawa stayed on Agriculture, Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., on Commerce, and Richard Lugar, R-Ind., on Governmental Affairs.

Lillian Carter mobbed by workers in Vikhroli

VIKHROLI, India (AP) — "This is the greatest day of my life, honestly," said Lillian Carter as she returned today for a tearful reunion with friends in the community where she worked 10 years ago as a volunteer nurse for the Peace Corps.

Some 4,000 workers mobbed President Carter's 78-year-old mother in this modern industrial center 15 miles northeast of Bombay.

"Ever since I left here, I've told of my love for Vikhroli, not just India, but Vikhroli," said Mrs. Carter. "This is where I've wanted to be."

Her friends and former coworkers presented her with a sandalwood wreath and a handmade necklace. At a ceremony later, a dot of red dye was placed on her forehead, the traditional Indian symbol for welcome.

Mrs. Carter, a registered nurse, visited the community clinic where she used to give out birth control advice and work with lepers. Inside, she met a 40-year-old former patient who had come to see her.

"How I remember him! I cured him of asthma," she said.

Mrs. Carter, wearing an aquamarine pants suit, also visited a school where the children performed native dances for her.

"I've forgotten I came over for a funeral, I am so happy," said Mrs. Carter, who returned to India Sunday as the head of the U.S. delegation to the funeral of Indian President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed.

"Everything they have done today has touched me to the bone," she said. "Today, when I saw that crowd, I really forgot that I was the President's mother. I was one of them again, just like I used to be."

Recalling her meeting with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on Sunday after Ahmed's funeral, she said she found India's leader "a very nice woman, a very warm woman."

"I came out of there admiring her very much, and my whole opinion of her changed," said Mrs. Carter.

She said she had been misquoted in a magazine interview last fall in which she was quoted as saying: "Mrs. Gandhi, herself, cares nothing for the poor. She's just a politician. The things we send them never get to the poor. They're divided among the big shots in the government."

Mrs. Carter said she was not referring to Mrs. Gandhi personally.

The American delegation left Bombay in midafternoon for the United States in a special Air Force plane. It was to make brief refueling stops in Tehran and Madrid.

"She's incredible," said an Indian security guard assigned to accompany Mrs. Carter. "I've been with her the whole time and she looks great, but I'm exhausted."

The President's mother said she was feeling "fine as can be" as she flew from New Delhi to Bombay on Monday evening after doing some shopping in the capital and attending a condolence meeting for President Ahmed.

'Reverse Scopes trial' ensues in Indiana town

SELLERSBURG, Ind. (AP) — A ninth-grade biology textbook that allegedly promotes the Biblical theory of creation has stirred up a controversy and a lawsuit in this southern Indiana town.

Attorneys for the West Clark Community School Board plan to be in court next week to defend the book.

West Clark Supt. Herman Miller describes the court case as "a Scopes trial in reverse."

He referred to the famous trial of John Scopes, a Tennessee school teacher convicted in the 1920s for teaching evolution in public schools contrary to state law.

The Indiana Civil Liberties Union filed suit against the board on behalf of two patrons, E. Thomas Marsh and Robert D. Hendren, who claim the Biblical theory is promoted in ninth grade classes while other theories are downgraded.

The book, entitled "Biology—A Search for Order in Complexity," was approved by the Indiana Textbook Commission and adopted by the board last fall over another book recommended by a committee of biology teachers and parents.

Marsh, Hendren and others claim the book has religious overtones and that board members were influenced by religious groups in the community in choosing it. Miller said there was no pressure, that it was one of seven biology texts approved by the state commission.

"I personally don't think it has religious overtones," Miller said.

In its preface, the book states it was published for "the many private schools directed by those seeking to maintain an educational philosophy and methodology consistent with traditional Christian perspectives."

Seven school systems in Indiana use the book, but the ICLU decided to challenge only West Clark in the suit because that system had patrons willing to take legal action.

The suit, to be heard Feb. 23, asks that an injunction be issued to prohibit use of the book in classes.

Mississippi center develops shuttle motors

By RON HARRIST

BAY ST. LOUIS, Miss. (AP) — While the space shuttle is getting attention with desert tests, America's space ship of the future won't get off the ground without work being done in South Mississippi.

The National Space Technology Laboratories, once roaring with the noise of moon rocket engines, are the test center for the mighty rocket motors that will one day push 4.4 million pounds of shuttle into orbit.

The three shuttle engines, each weighing 6,900 pounds, will develop an estimated 32 million horsepower to lift the shuttle into orbit.

David Martin, resident shuttle main engine project engineer for NASA, said that while the old Saturn V rocket test stands at the complex were altered to accommodate the shuttle engines, the new equipment is much more complex than its old space cousins.

"These engines are similar to the engines of the Apollo program but much more advanced," Martin said. "For example, each engine has its own 200-pound computer that actually contols the engine. And the shuttle engine operates at about three times the pressure of other engines — making it much more efficient."

He said the testing program at NSTL was unlike earlier rocket programs because some engine components are checked as the entire engine-package is put through its paces.

The tests have been in progress for about 1½ years, starting with short bursts at minimum power and eventually building up to operating levels.

Martin said test engines have been run for short periods at the power needed to push the shuttle into space, "and now we're building up to duration tests."

He said that unlike conventional rockets, the shuttle engines can be throttled back to 50 per cent power or pushed beyond the required operating levels.

He said the lower thrust would allow the three-man shuttle crew to ease the ride for passengers and delicate equipment at critical points. The higher-than-normal thrust could help in case of engine problems.

The engines burn liquid oxygen and hydrogen, which is pumped into the combustion chambers under extremely high pressure, Martin said. "In fact, the high-pressure fuel turbine pump, the main pump on each engine, requires 76,000 horsepower just to turn it," he said.

Martin said that as soon as the preliminary testing is completed, three new engines will be brought in and mounted on a simulated orbiter for further testing. Then the three engines, which will power the first space shuttle, will be tested, he said.

The shuttle-package will include the orbiter, a swept-wing craft roughly the size of a DC-9 passenger jet, the external fuel tank and two solid-fuel rockets.

Martin explained that the shuttle rockets and solid-fuel rockets will lift the shuttle from the launch pad, in the same manner as conventional rockets. He said prior to achieving orbit, the solid-fuel rockets will be jettisoned, and then the fuel tank.

MHS squad wins tourney

Midland High School was sweepstakes winner at a speech tournament at Sonora High School Friday and Saturday.

Midland High students who placed in individual competition included Hal Coon, who placed first in humorous interpretation; Clay Guthrie, who won first place both in poetry and dramatic interpretation; David Smith, first place winner for prose reading, and Carla DeBose, who placed first in Bible reading.

Jane Forsyth won first place in persuasive speaking and Mike Mauldin placed third in that event. Cecile Davis placed third in Bible reading.

Man 'guarded' after accident near Midland

An Odessa man remains in guarded condition Tuesday, following a three-vehicle accident late Sunday 23 miles east of Midland on Texas 158 in Glasscock County.

Frank W. Leek, 24, Odessa, suffered head injuries and was admitted to the intensive care unit of Odessa Medical Center Hospital.

Two passengers in the Leek vehicle, Deborah Edwards, 23, 603 Midkiff Road, Midland, and Joyce Leek, 18, Sterling City, received lesser injuries and were treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said Leek's van was westbound on the road when a tractor-trailer truck operated by Joe E. Collier attempted to pass him. Leek, who was towing a car, attempted to pull to the side to allow the truck to pass, the spokesman said.

Leek apparently lost control and a collision occurred with the truck. The towed car also became loose and collided with the truck, the spokesman said.

The van overturned and the passengers were thrown out. The truck driver was not injured.

Firemen probing Charleston fire

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Firemen are investigating possible arson in four downtown Charleston hotel fires, one of which briefly trapped guests on two floors.

No serious injuries were reported in the Monday night blazes, although the Heart o'Town Motor Inn was severely damaged and guests were trapped for a time on its eighth and ninth floors.

Fire Chief John Britton said he believed arson was involved.

Several dozen people were treated for smoke inhalation, and four were hospitalized. All were listed in satisfactory condition at the Charleston Area Medical Center.

The other three fires — at the Charleston House Holiday Inn, the Sheraton Motor Inn and the Elk River Holiday Inn — did not cause major damage, police said.

Students locate city's dangerous intersections

A group of high school students are taking on the task of pinpointing city intersections that are dangerous because of sign obstructions or blocked views.

SITCA, the Students Involved Through Community Action Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, are seeking citizen cooperation in this project. The members request citizens who are aware of dangerous intersections to telephone or write the chamber office.

"We feel this is a project we can realistically accomplish while providing valuable information to the city departments which deal with traffic safety," Johnny Northington, SITCA director from Midland High School, said.

Ilene Gould, SITCA director from Lee, said the group became aware of the need to pinpoint the dangerous intersections as a result of a student survey SITCA conducted in both high schools in November.

"While it wasn't the number one concern of the students, several surveys indicated there was a need for the city to make an effort to get rid of many of these "blind or obstructed intersections," she said.

Information regarding such intersections may be sent to: SITCA Street Project, Box 1890, Midland, 79702. The telepne number is 683-3381.

Idaho warns Washington not to try rain robbery

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — In the midst of the Northwest's worst drought in years, Idaho has warned Washington not to try The Great Rain Robbery.

Oregon and Washington governors fear 76,800 farm jobs will be lost, along with $1.6 billion worth of crops, because drought has left reservoirs and rivers almost dry. Major power shortages also are feared, and industries depending on hydroelectric power already are laying off workers.

Some Washington officials are asking the state to try a $125,000 cloudseeding project over the almost snowless Cascade Mountains.

But inland states like Idaho and Montana get much of their moisture from the same clouds off the Pacific Ocean that drop rain and snow on Washington and Oregon.

Idaho Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell warned Monday that his state will go to court to prevent rain rustling. A University of Idaho geographer has predicted that northern Idaho and western Montana could lose 10 per cent of expected rainfall if Washington grabs the moisture first.

"I appreciate Washington's problems," said Kidwell. "But ... there is sufficient evidence to indicate a good possibility that what would be good for Washington's potential drought could be even more detrimental to Idaho's pending crisis situation."

Yet, there is great pressure on Washington and Oregon officials to act quickly.

Utility and federal officials say that unless the dry spell ends soon, there won't be enough water behind hydroelectric dams to generate sufficient electricity.

Unusual patterns of air pressure have caused the drought, weathermen say, and moisture that normally would bathe the Northwest has hit the Midwest and East.

Unsuspecting Bonneville Power Administration officials sold 1.6 billion kilowatts of electricity to California early this winter, before anyone knew there would be a crisis. Officials call that early winter generosity awkward and embarrassing.

DEAR ABBY

Woman fears message predicting her death

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman who just turned 25. I have two small children, and I'm living in fear that I will not live to see them grow up.

When I was 13, I was fooling around with a Ouija board, when I got a message from my dead grandmother saying she would see me in heaven on my 26th birthday, meaning I was going to die on that day in an accident.

I told my husband about my fears, telling him to marry again soon after I die so my children won't be without a mother, and he said, "That Ouija board stuff is a lot of bunk, so forget it."

Abby, for some reason, I can't forget it. I am not afraid to die. If God wants me, I'm ready to go, but I only have 11 months to prepare myself if the Ouija board was right.

Have you or any of your readers ever had any experiences with a Ouija board? I'm terribly confused and very frightened.—W. VA. READER

DEAR READER: I agree with your husband. While I respect the rights of others to believe as they wish, I have yet to find a shred of convincing evidence to support the theory that the living can communicate with the dead.

I urge you to put those frightening thoughts of impending death out of your head, dear.

DEAR ABBY: My grandchildren live out of state. They are old enough to write, but they never acknowledge my gifts. I spend a lot of time shopping for things I think they will enjoy, and my presents are never cheap.

Please don't tell me to stop sending them gifts. You know a grandmother can't forget her grandchildren on their birthdays, Christmas and Easter. So what do you advise?—FORGOTTEN GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Send them each a box of "thank you" notes for Easter. That's eggs-actly what they need.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a very handsome (and weak) man who does not hold up very well when faced with temptation. He maintains that when a lady makes a pass at a gentleman, he should not insult her by turning her down, and he has no choice other than to oblige her.

I say he is out of his head, that a true gentleman would find a courteous way to decline. I would like your opinion.—ALABAMAN

DEAR AL: Your husband should first get his terms straight. If a woman makes a pass at a man, she's no "lady." And if the man obliges her, he's no "gentleman."

And if your husband is practicing what he preaches, you'd better lock him up before his "chivalry" kills him.

East takes the ace of spades and returns the queen. South ruffs, draws two rounds of trumps with the king and queen, then takes two top clubs and ruffs a club with dummy's ace of diamonds.

Declarer gets back by ruffing a spade and draws the last trump. Sooner or later, South must lead a heart and guess whether to play the king or jack from dummy. Of course, West must play a low heart without any telltale hesitation. How does South know which opponent has the ace of hearts.

SHOULD KNOW

In this case South should know where the ace of hearts is by using the old horse-finding logic.

What would you do in third position after two passes if you had a long spade suit headed by A-Q-J and the ace of hearts. You'd bid spades, of course, and so would any other horse.

Since East didn't bid spades, he cannot have this hand. That is, he cannot have the ace of hearts. Since West must have the ace of hearts, the correct play from dummy is the king of hearts.

Friend claims people won't buy used house

By ERMA BOMBECK

I have a friend who has been trying to sell her house for six months and frankly, I'm worried about her.

The other morning, while having coffee, I excused myself to use her bathroom. She threw her body across the door and said, "Do you really have to use this? I mean, you couldn't wait and stop at the service station on the way home, could you?"

"Get hold of yourself, Gloria," I said. "Ever since you listed your home you've developed a clean fetish."

"Are you finished leaning back on that pillow?" she asked, grabbing it and punching it up with her fist.

"See what I mean? You're going crazy with neatness. What happened? We never see a newspaper at your door anymore. We never see garbage cans at your curb. I almost hate to ask, but where are your children?"

"I laundered and stored them until after we move," she said, grabbing the cup and saucer away from my lips and rinsing them under the faucet.

"Face it. No one buys a house that looks like it's inhabited."

"That's a dumb thing to say."

"It's true. Take your average model home. The light switches might not work, the walls snell like paste, there is no water, and the doors are hung backwards. No problem. The house will still sell. But if the lids are up on the bathroom commode — forget it!"

"I don't believe that at all."

"It's true. Take this house. Please. It was a model home when we bought it. I'm here to tell you a virgin house is the most beautiful sight in the world. There was even a bowl of waxed fruit on the coffee table. Then we moved in. First, it was a basketball in the foyer, handprints around the light switches, a cardboard box in the utility room to hold the dog, cup dispensers on every wall, a calendar over the stove, notes on the refrigerator, an ironing board in the dining room, a boot in the flower bed, rolled-up newspapers in the spouting, 50-pound bag of fertilizer on the porch, a bread card in the window . . ."

"And the waxed fruit?"

"It's still in the bowl with initials carved into it, along with a brush roller, two marbles and a transistor battery. The illusion is gone."

Just then the realtor came up the drive with a prospective couple. "Quick," yelled Gloria, grabbing her sweater. "Put the coffee pot in the oven, the mail in the freezer and follow me to the basement. Just pray they don't slip on the driveway. I waxed it yesterday."

Breakfast gives boost to body

By MARION WELLS
Copley News Service

Starting the day with a good morning meal is not only using your head. It may literally provide "food for thought" which helps your kids get more out of school.

Dr. Jean Mayer, former professor of nutrition at Harvard, notes children tend to have faster metabolisms than adults. "Unless young people start off the day with a good-sized, balanced meal, long before noon rolls around they might be operating without adequate reserves. They may not be as alert as they need to be and their learning may be impaired."

This goes along with a finding by University of Iowa researchers that "...students who bypassed breakfast took longer to make decisions, were less steady, and didn't produce as much work as the students who did stop to refuel."

Breakfast can dish up benefits to adults, too. A well-balanced bite can help sustain energy and be good "defensive eating" for dieters.

But what you eat is as important as whether you do. A poor breakfast can give you the jitters and a push toward midmorning slump and unwanted coffee break calories.

The reason? A meal or snack high in sugar or refined carbohydrate, such as syrupy pancakes or sweet rolls washed down with coffee, can result in a relatively rapid rise in blood-sugar levels. This may be followed by a relatively sharp drop in about two or three hours.

Caffeine containing beverages and nicotine can also affect blood-sugar levels.

Emanuel Cheraskin, M.D., D.M.D., describes what can happen. "The combination of caffeine, sugar and nicotine triggers a flood of insulin into the system. Blood-sugar levels first rise, then plummet...just in time for the midmorning coffee break."

New lease regulations begin

COLLEGE STATION — Consumers who lease items will do so under a new set of government regulations—starting March 23rd—if those items are worth less than $25,000, and if they are leased for at least four months, according to Lynn Bourland, family resource management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Firms that lease to consumers will have to follow a strict new set of government rules that will require them to give a description of options to buy, if there are such options, the specialist said.

Some families and businesses find leasing automobiles, furniture and other big ticket items a better option than buying, Mis Bourland noted.

Members of Congress hard to find at Capitol nowdays

The House hasn't met since last Wednesday. The Senate met last Friday, but won't meet again until Monday.

Before Congress became quite as sensitive about its reputation, this period was called the Lincoln Day recess. It was a time congressmen and senators made speeches marking the birthday of Abraham Lincoln and touched a few bases with the folks back home.

No one suggested there was anything scandalous about the recess unless a member of Congress chose the French Riviera as the site of his Lincoln Day speechmaking.

Times have changed. The congressional leadership has decided the word "recess" might imply that lawmakers are off playing when they ought to be working.

So, in case you hadn't noticed, the House is observing a "district work period," and the Senate is in a "non-legislative period."

This is the year of reorganization and openness. But the word hasn't reached Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The panel met last Friday to set up subcommittees under the guidelines established in the reorganization plan adopted by the Senate earlier in the week. Since subcommittees are pockets of power within the full committee, their makeup can be the subject of a lot of maneuvering, the sort of horsetrading senators would rather not do in open session.

The deadline for committees to organize was Friday.

When the Judiciary Committee met, a reporter asked if the meeting would be open or closed. "Closed," said Eastland.

N.Y. legislator urges Cuba talk

HAVANA, Cuba (AP) — A New York congressman says after meeting with Prime Minister Fidel Castro that the United States and Cuba should begin direct talks on such topics as fishing rights as a step towards normalizing relations.

Rep. Jonathan B. Bingham, a Democrat, who met with Castro for seven hours during a five-day visit ending today, said "there is a good opportunity" for normalizing relations and "I hope we don't miss it."

"There is no reason there cannot be direct talks on fishing," Bingham added, since Cuba has indicated a willingness to discuss the issue. Parts of the 200-mile economic zones claimed by both countries overlap in the waters between Florida and Cuba where shrimpers and other commercial fishermen operate.

Bingham, a Bronx lawyer who heads the House subcommittee on international trade and commerce, said broader talks to normalize relations would have to await the lifting of the American trade embargo against Cuba that was imposed after Castro seized all U.S. business interests on the Caribbean island in 1960.

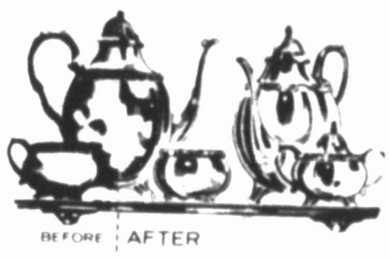

Bingham, a longtime opponent of the embargo, called the sanctions "ridiculous" and said they "serve no purpose." The Cubans view the embargo as an act of aggression and refuse to negotiate with a "knife at their throats," he said.

Vance to probe PLO issue

LAJES, The Azores (AP) — Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance was headed for the Middle East to seek concessions on the Palestinian issue in the hope of resuming the Geneva peace conference by the end of the year.

Vance's plane stopped at this U.S.-manned Portuguese Air Force base to refuel early today en route to Israel, the first stop on his tour.

The one-week trip also will take Vance to Egypt, Lebanon briefly, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Syria.

As he left Washington late Monday, Vance said he did not underestimate the difficulty of trying to bridge 30 years of hostility between Israel and its Arab neighbors.

But, he said, the Carter administration is determined to achieve "a just and lasting peace" in the region.

While in the Middle East, Vance hopes to promote arms reduction as well as to encourage a return to peace talks in Geneva.

Vance intends to find out the depth of the Arabs' commitment to creating a Palestinian state and whether they think the Palestine Liberation Organization is prepared to accept Israel's existence.

He has no meetings planned during the trip with Palestinian representatives, U.S. officials said.

In Israel, his first stop, Vance will probe for a softening in the so far ironclad objection to PLO participation in peace talks.

Vance will also register U.S. objections to Israeli oil exploration in the Gulf of Suez. State Department officials said Monday that under international law, Israel has no right to begin a new project in occupied Egyptian territory. A department spokesman said the venture was "not helpful" to peace negotiations. Other U.S. officials said, however, that it would not interfere with Vance's mission.

Vance, in an interview last week with Israeli correspondents that was released at the start of his trip, said, "I am not going to engage in shuttle diplomacy at this time."

"What I am trying to do is to ascertain as clearly as I can what the views of the key leaders are so that I can return to the United States and report to the President. We can then develop our views as to how we can be most useful in trying to promote peace in the Middle East."

Other U.S. officials said the question of Palestinian participation in peace talks, insoluble until now, is one of Vance's overriding concerns. The Administration supports Israel's right to exclude the PLO from negotiations, but if the Palestinian National Council revises its covenant next month, that would open new possibilities, the U.S. officials said.

The PLO charter now calls for destruction of the Jewish state.

Vance, in the interview, said PLO participation in peace talks "would be out of the question" so long as the PLO is unwilling to accept the "framework" of United Nations resolutions that recognize Israel's sovereignty and call for a peaceful settlement. He said he will ask both the Israelis and the Arabs to reduce their arms purchases.

Insurance bill fight expected

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Senators expected a fight today over a bill that would remove higher insurance premiums from the penalties for breaking the 55 miles per hour speed limit.

Sen. Bill Moore, D-Bryan, served notice of intent to seek the four-fifths vote necessary to take up his bill to eliminate insurance premium surcharges for speeding tickets when drivers were not exceeding the pre1974 limit of 70 miles per hour. It also would prevent the addition of such tickets to one's driving record.

House members planned to debate a bill setting up a procedure for taxing farm, ranch and timber land on its productive value, not its price on the real estate market.

In Monday's action, the House voted final passage to Gov. Dolph Briscoe's "emergency" bills creating 23 new district courts and transfering $188,974 from oil and gas to gas utility rate regulation.

The measures were sent to Briscoe for signature.

Also sent to Briscoe was a bill allowing teachers with high school certificates to teach sixth grade classes without obtaining new teaching certificates.

Senators passed, 26-2, and sent to the House a bill that would prevent a state bank from moving from one county to another.

New courts created by the governor's bill would include four each in Houston and San Antonio and three in Fort Worth, plus one each in Angelina, Collin, Montgomery, Gray, Lubbock, Midland, Brazoria, Fort Bend and Smith Counties. It would establish multicounty districts comprising these counties: Atascosa, Frio, Karnes, LaSalle and Wilson; Hamilton, Comanche and Bosque; and Deaf Smith and Oldham.

Briscoe asked for quick action to help clear clogged dockets and speed up trials, both civil and criminal.

Cost of the new courts is estimated at $1.6 million over the next two years. Funds already are on hand for courts that start work before Sept. 1.

Sheriff's drug raid nets 22 pounds of marijuana

Midland County sheriff's deputies and Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA) agents seized approximately 22 pounds of a substance believed to be marijuana Sunday night during a raid at Airline Mobile Park.

Midland Sheriff Dallas Smith said the marijuana had an estimated street value of $2,400.

Arrested at his trailer home was Gary C. Duncan, 25, who was charged with felony possession of marijuana, officials said. Duncan posted $5,000 bond Monday set by Justice of the Peace Robert H. Pine.

Sheriff's criminal division chief Gib Roch conducted the raid along with sheriff's narcotics chief deputy L. W. "Porkey" Moseley, criminal investigator George Thompson and two DEA agents.

MISD grapples with how to please parents, Texas Education Agency

By LINDA SCHAFFRINA

The Midland Independent School District is facing a dilemma — how to comply with state requirements for a drug education and crime prevention program in a way that's acceptable to parents.

The school district must have by 1980 a comprehensive drug education and crime prevention program for the school district. Guidelines from the Texas Education Agency (TEA) set goals which involve students' use of values clarification, interpersonal relationships, self-esteem and decision-making processes.

But some Midland parents — and school board members — question the role of these subjects in such a program, or in the schools at all.

Dr. Louise Vance, director of the Division of Crime and Drug Education of TEA, said school districts should develop programs which are based on the needs of their communities.

Midland schools began using, on a pilot basis, one program last year and two others this year.

Law-focused education was begun last year. Dr. Douglas Brown, assistant superintendent of schools for instruction, said the program seems to have "the orientation that people understand" and has been well received.

The other two programs are the Wisconsin Drug Program for elementary school children, being taught this year by four teachers, and Values Clarification and Decision Making for secondary students, being taught this year by five teachers.

The term "values clarification" is one that has aroused a substantial amount of comment. Brown defines the term as "the ability to make decisions based on values which one feels with conviction."

Use of the two new programs, along with exercises included in those programs, was questioned last week by parents and school trustees.

In response to direction by the school board, Brown said he has instructed the pilot teachers to re-examine everything in the curriculum and make sure it can be defended educationally.

Surveys, such as one which asks questions about the student's personality or family, are "a very minor point of the program," he said.

"I told them to be very cautious."

But, Brown said, the teachers believe there is value in all of the elements of the program. "They felt they could defend everything they have done" and were "upset" at attacks on the program.

The basis of the TEA guidelines for school districts, Dr. Vance said, is that information on crime and drugs previously has been included in school curricula but drug and crime problems still exist.

"A lot of it (the problem) is attitudinal in nature," she said, so the agency developed goals relating to attitudes "more or less in addition to" factual information.

New York gunman loved kids, Hitler

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP) — A handful of facts and a dual personality of a "gentle man" and a Nazi worshiper were all authorities had today in their search for why 34-yearold Fred Cowan shot and killed five persons at the warehouse where he worked.

The Army-trained sharpshooter wiped out chances to provide an answer himself when he put a bullet in his brain Monday and ended a 10-hour siege by 300 police and federal agents.

Although Cowan appeared to be motivated by revenge against his employer over a two-week suspension from his job, he issued no major demands once inside the warehouse.

"He was a very gentle man who loved children," said a sister-in-law, Mary Ellen Cowan. Added a neighbor in this Westchester County community about 1½ miles north of the New York City line: "He was always a nice boy."

But others remembered the hulking, six-foot, 250-pounder, who attended Catholic grammar and high schools and was described as a brillant student, an avid gun collector and lover of Nazi uniforms.

He covered his body with tattoos — swastikas, German crosses, knives, chains, thunder, lightning, lions, and panthers — and festooned the walls of his room with swastikas.

"He hates blacks," said one neighbor, Roland Lersch. "He hates Jews."

Cowan's victims included two blacks, an Indian, and one white, all fellow employes at the Neptune Worldwide Moving Co., where the gunman worked as a furniture mover. The fifth victim was New Rochelle police officer Allan McLeod, 29, married and the father of two children.

Five persons were injured, including three other policemen.

The siege began shortly before 8 a.m. at the two-story warehouse in a commercial neighborhood of small industrial buildings, interspersed with filling stations and garages.

Cowan was to have returned to work Monday, the end of a two-week suspension caused by a difference with a supervisor.

Slayings silence townfolk

HOLLANDSBURG, Ind. (AP) — Talk in the Raccoon Lake bar usually runs to fishing, politics and country music. That was gone today, shattered by shock at the execution-style slayings of four young brothers in a town where crime has always been something that happens somewhere else.

"This is supposed to be a nice, safe community," said Virginia Tyler, whose husband owns the bar and restaurant on the fringe of the Raccoon Lake recreation area.

"Everybody is just shocked. They were super-fine boys."

Ralph Spencer, 14; Reeve B. Spencer, 16; Raymond M. Spencer, 17, and Gregory B. Brooks, 22, a stepbrother, were found Monday facedown on the blood-soaked floor of their mobile home.

Each had been killed by a shotgun blast to the head. Their mother escaped by playing dead after gunshots tore through her wig, police said.

Betty Spencer, 43, Gregory Brooks' mother and stepmother of the three teenagers, was wounded in the back, head and shoulder. She managed to walk to a neighbor's and summon help.

The trailer was ransacked, the telephone lines were cut and the victims' wallets missing.

Mrs. Spencer told investigators four men, believed to be in their early 20s, invaded the trailer shortly after her husband, Keith, left for his job as a technician for an Indianapolis television station.

Congenial describes state dinner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration's first state dinner featured Amy Carter, her cat, concert pianist Rudolf Serkin and a surprise performer, the first lady of Mexico.

President and Mrs. Carter got all their guests away early and dispensed with a few frills as they gave a warmhearted salute to Mexican President and Mrs. Jose Lopez Portillo on Monday night.

Nine-year-old Amy was among the 103 dinner guests and was seated at a table with her parents and the Mexican guests of honor.

President Lopez Portillo smilingly disclosed in his dinner toast that Amy had been reading "'The Mystery of the Screaming Clock' right here at the table."

Amy's Siamese cat, Misty Malarky Ying Yang, tried to come to the party,

Pets find short-lived haven here

On the outside, it looks like a dog pound — an animal shelter for the doomed and for the few, very few, saved.

Outwardly, it's drab.

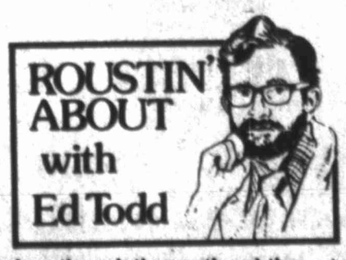

"We run this place like a humane society, not like a dog pound," said Jane Yarger, director of the shelter for homeless dogs and cats.

Inwardly, it's not so drab. The spirit is dog-gone bright. It's also dismal.

Animals fit for petting find refuge, a short-lived haven, at this place. Most are dogs and most are mongrels of about any description, temperament and bent.

They're homeless, abandoned, lost, stray, old and ill, wild and hapless, rabid or the round-around kind.

Their refuge may be for a few hours, a few days or weeks on end. Most get treated to euthanasia. They get an overdose of a sleep-inducing drug through the mouth and then, at needle point, through the heart.

They're taken care of.

Anywhere from 50 to 80 dogs and cats each week get gently introduced to death here. Afterward, they are unceremoniously carted off to the city's sanitary landfill, where they are buried along with the trash and garbage from the day's collection.

Grave chore.

That's the fate of about eight out of every 10 dogs and cats that are taken in at the shelter.

Those that survive live because they were adopted. But most are headed for mass burial.

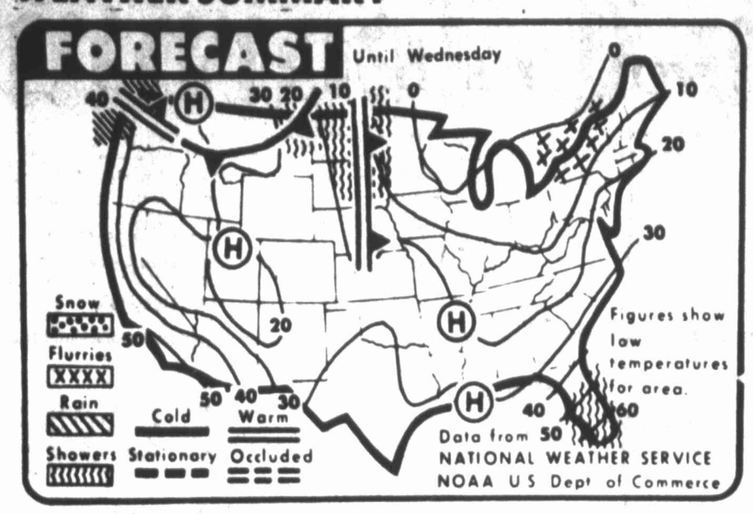

"Here's the way I look at it," said Mrs. Yarger, who tries to treat the animals as pets. "The few days that they have left is the last for most of them."

So, these otherwise forsaken animals are fed name-brand hard and soft food, are treated civilly and with a kind tongue, and are virtually guaranteed clean and unfouled stalls and cages.

Straying dogs and roaming cats may be picked up by the dog catchers, who officially are called city animal collectors. Some people just drop heir

Exhibit building gets donation of land, request for new annex

By JUDY JOHNSTON

Midland County's exhibit building received a double shot in the arm Monday with the donation of new land and the prospect of a new annex building considered by county commissioners.

Jim Crowder, representing the Midland County Livestock Association, told commissioners the group was donating the five acres north of the exhibit building land to the county. The land is used as the location for the association's club building.

Meanwhile, a group of interested associations and clubs in a letter to the commissioners requested that part of the federal Community Development Act funds for the next fiscal year be earmarked for a dirt-floored annex building to the exhibits building on U.S. 80 East.

A car driven by Donna S. Bowerman overturned and landed on its side in Grafa Park about 10:30 a.m. Monday. She told Midland police she was driving north on Midkiff Road when a car pulled out suddenly from Shell Drive, which made her lose control. There were no injuries, and the only damage was done to the car and some to the park.

The letter arrived after two announced public hearings, but the commissioners decided to consider the request and to include it in the county's preapplication for funds.

Also included in the preapplication for CDA funds are requests for funds for the Mental Health-Mental Retardation detoxification center and for library improvements.

Midland National Bank, as the lone bidder, was selected as the depository for Midland County funds for the next two years.

Sheriff Dallas Smith's office will receive two cars as the commissioners accepted a bid from Nickel Chrysler-Plymouth for $10,242 on two 1977 Fury cars. Other bids were as follows: Permian Pontiac, Inc., $9,365 on two Lemans cars; Huckabay Chevrolet, Inc., $5,141 on a Malibu; and Rogers Ford Sales, $5,353 on an LTD.

At the request of adult probation officer E. H. Kirksey, the commissioners approved acceptance of the highest bid on a car for the adult probation office.

The accepted bid was $5,198 for an LTD from Rogers Ford Sales. Other bids included $5,161 for an Impala from Huckabay and $4,850 for a Fury from Nickel Chrysler-Plymouth.

Midland Sand and Gravel was awarded the contract for aggregate rock for the road and bridge department, with a bid of $9.25 per cubic yard for both No. 3 and No. 5.

Other bids were: Trans Pecos Materials, $9.50 per cubic yard for No. 3 and $9.30 per cubic yard for No. 5; Delaware Basin Aggregate Inc., $10 per cubic yard for both No. 3 and No. 5., and Price Construction Co. $9.75 per cubic yard for both No. 3 and No. 5.

American Petrofina, as the only bidder, received the contract for these road materials: MC 30 prime, $15,288, and OA 135, $79,162.

In other action, the commissioners authorized the county auditor to advertise for bids on the following items: tires and tubes, 12 tons of fertilizer, three trucks for the road and bridge department, four pick up trucks, one steel wheel roller, one front end loader and for microfilm work for the county clerks.

teachers in the district and coordinator of law-focused education, said some items in the pilot programs can be changed if they are objectionable to the community. "That's the reason for the pilot program'" she said.

"I do think it's a good program. I guess it's unfortunate it has the title values clarification," Mrs. Starks said.

The law-focused program covers 12 of the 14 student outcomes the values clarification program is designed to reach, Mrs. Starks said, so the law program could be used instead of values clarification. She said the purpose of trying other pilot programs is to get "s variety of things for teachers to use."

Much of the criticism of the programs has centered on the surveys covering personal questions end decision-making exercises, such as one in which the student must decide which six of ten persons should be allowed into a fallout shelter which only holds six.

One elementary school parent, whose child is not involved in a pilot program, is Shirley Watts. "I just don't like it," she said. Mrs. Watts said the "desirable student outcomes" listed by TEA are inappropriate for elementary school children.

But she wouldn't object to the use of those outcomes, or goals, for high school students. "I don't really think it will help them but I don't think it would hurt them."

Another area of criticism has arisen from use of materials by teachers not in the pilot program. Brown said he thinks it will be possible to control use of that kind of material.

"Most teachers are going to use the material we give them if it's good material," Brown said. The school board has voted to limit use of such material to the pilot program teachers, at least until the programs can be evaluated at the end of the school year.

How much and what is the school district required to do under the law?

"I think we could and should" have a program that is not offensive to parents, Brown said. It will be possible to get away from using personality-related things at the elementary level, he said.

Trustee Ann Page said that element is the subject of opposition from the community.

Brown said the school district "is not in a position" to discard all of the goals TEA has established. "We've got as much flexibility as they'll give us."

What is the minimum amount of the state goals that must be used? "I don't think I can give you a quantitative answer," he said because the school district has been looking for the best program. "I'd have to ask TEA."

For the goals not addressed, "it will be up to us to defend those elements we are not addressing" when the district is up for accreditation, Brown said.

Have no doubt—it's truly winter

If Sunday's weather seemed like late spring or early summer, then today's weather should remind Midlanders that this really is winter.

Today's high is expected to reach only the low 50s, compared to Monday's high of 57 degrees, the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport reported.

Warmer weather is expected to return Wednesday, however, with a high in the low 60s.

Around the Permian Basin, temperatures this morning were reported in the upper 30s to low 40s. Big Spring and Stanton reported fog or light mist, but elsewhere it was dry and overcast, with little or no winds reported.

Occasional patches of light rain or snow cropped up today in the wake of Texas' latest norther, which swept across the state and into the Gulf of Mexico the day before, the Associated Press said.

pets off here and let the animal shelter staffers "do the humane thing" — which could be putting them up for adoption and on death row.

City law requires that empounded animals be kept for at least three days if they are tagless and for at least six days if they are wearing tags.

"We keep them longer than we should," said Betty Reagan, assistant to Mrs. Yarger. "Anyway, we're suckers," she said.

Some dogs and cats are given preferential treatment and are kept long passed their execution date.

"It depends on how pretty they are and on their personality," Mrs. Yarger said. She singled out some of the chosen lot back in the stalls: a Brittany Spaniel, a St. Bernard and "a darling Cocker Spaniel."

And there's a standout among the chosen. He's a 3-year-old collie shepherd who has been lodging at the City of Midland-operated shelter for the past six weeks.

But this fella named Shep has a problem, as far as city living is concerned.

". . . He's a fence jumper," Mrs. Yarger said, "and he needs a country home."

Shep, who's not a first-timer at the shelter, pretty much does as he pleases around the place. He gets roaming privileges in the great out-of-doors.

"He's been picked up before," she said, "and I guess the owner got tired of paying to get him out of hock."

Ol' Shep "loves kids, loves other dogs but runs and leaps like a deer," Mrs. Yarger said.

She figures that about 40,000 dogs, both homeless and owned, run loose at one time or another in the city. And that's against the law.

"If the dog's lying in his front yard and is minding his own business, (we'll) just leave him alone," Mrs. Yarger said.

But if that dog just happens to wander out into the streets and disturbs or otherwise upsets someone, then that free-wheeling canine beast just might be picked up and hauled off to the detention center.

"People don't like us at all," Mrs. Yarger said. "They think we're going to pick up their dogs and put them to sleep."

That, routinely, does happen, particularly if the dog is acting mean, is making a nuisance of himself and if no one bothers to claim or adopt the enpounded animal.

There's no malice in putting the animals away. It, rather, seems to be a necessary chore in a city where more dogs than people roam the streets and often die there.

And these animal shelter folks say they are endeared to animals both on the job and off.

"Of course," Mrs. Reagan said, "I'm an animal lover. I don't care what they look like. I have a menagerie (at home)."

And at work.

too. The cat made a dramatic entrance down the grand staircase while photographers were waiting for the Carters and the Lopez Portillos to descend.

Misty was turned back by flash bulbs and a military aide.

After dinner Mrs. Lopez Portillo, a former concert pianist, played two selections from Chopin's works.

In introducing Mrs. Lopez Portillo, who once studied piano at the University of Michigan, Carter said she gave up her career to marry "the man she recognized as future president of Mexico."

Mrs. Lopez Porillo complained she had not played in public in 20 years, but her performance drew an ovation from the audience and a kiss from Carter.

Serkin, the famous concert pianist, performed afterwards. "We tried to find the best performer in our country," Carter said, because of the Mexican first lady's interest in music.

Carter, who frequently listens to classical music in his office, disclosed that "eight or 10 hours every day I listen to music similar to what he's going to play tonight."

After Serkin's performance of Mendelssohn and Beethoven was greeted with prolonged applause, the President said, "It was almost worth campaigning for two years just to come here and hear that."

For their first state dinner, the Carters served only American food and made a point of printing the menu in English instead of French — except for "demitasse."

They served shrimp gumbo soup, capon in white grape sauce and burnt almond ice cream ring with butterscotch sauce for dessert. American wine was served before and after dinner, but there was no hard liquor.

The dinner started at 7:30 p.m., a half hour earlier than usual.

Ark to be topic of presentation

The purported discovery of Noah's Ark will be the subject of a slide presentation and talk in the community room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

Jim Innes and Jim McCormack, representing Holy Ground Mission of Frankston, will present the program, which includes photos and artifacts alledgedly from the Ark.

There will be no admission charge.

while about 50 others were reporting to work. But upon his arrival, in the words of fellow employe Clint Wynant, "He just started shooting and everybody started running all over the place."

He shot the first two employes he encountered and then shot a third coworker who tried to escape, killing all of them.

McLeod was the first patrolman on the scene and drove into the truck loading area. He was gunned down by Cowan as he made an initial rush toward the warehouse entrance.

As more police cars pulled up, Cowan, an Army-trained sharpshooter, retreated to the second floor of the warehouse and began spraying the outside area with his M16 automatic rifle.

Shortly before 6 p.m., a task force of 30 New Rochelle, New York City and FBI law enforcement agents, emboldened by hours of silence from within the warehouse, decided to chance a showdown with Cowan.

"In the last 45 minutes we were searching the building room by room, and then we found him," said Police Commissioner Wiliam Hegerty. "He was dead in a room in the north corner of the building. He shot himself in the head."

immediately about the incident because she was heavily sedated, although listed in satisfactory condition at a Terre Haute hospital.

The assailants fled in Raymond Spencer's car, which was found about six hours later abandoned on a rural road 7 miles away. Police said they assumed there was a second car, but had no description of it.

"There might have been at the most $30 taken," said State Police Sgt. Don Aldrich. "It looked like an execution-type slaying. However, we don't have a reason for it. Killing four people over $30 doesn't make a whole lot of sense."

Hollandsburg, a quiet hamlet of several hundred, is tucked away in rolling farmlands near the Indiana-Illinois border and is so small it isn't even on the map. The only crimes anyone here can recall was an occasional robbery of the general store.

"The boys have all worked for us at one time or another," said Mrs. Tyler. "They seemed to be good students. They were good workers. They didn't run with gangs."

Postmasters hold seminar in Midland

Postmasters from 63 West Texas cities will meet in Midland for a two-day seminar beginning today, Midland postmaster D. E. Holster said.

Postmasters coming in from an area including Andrews, Big Spring, Sonora, San Angelo, Pecos and Gail will study auditing, maintenance, safety, mail processing, required reports, city and rural route delivery service and other related subjects.

Holster will present Fort Stockton Postmaster Fred L. Roper the "Most Improved Housekeeping" award and other awards to postmasters who had no errors in their office audits during 1976.

A social hour is planned at the Ramada Inn Tuesday night to welcome the newly appointed postmasters and officers-in-charge that have been appointed in the past year.

During the Wednesday session, acting district manager Manuel Subia of San Antonio will be guest speaker.

Three Gulf retirements announced

Gulf Energy and Minerals Co.-U.S. has announced the retirements of three men in its Midland District Comptroller Department.

T. C. Hunter of Midland, senior unit supervisor, left the company Jan. 1 after 37 years and one month of service.

He started his Gulf career with Gulf Research and Development Co. in Louisville, Miss. He served in various seismic jobs throughout the years working in Texas, Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, New Mexico and Louisiana.

He moved to Wichita Falls in 1958 as unit supervisor and was promoted to area clerical supervisor in 1962.

Hunter was transferred to the Goldsmith Area in 1969 and promoted to Area Services supervisor in 1970. He was transferred to Midland in 1973 as senior unit supervisor.

He will make his home in Odessa.

W. B. Brown Crane, senior accounting clerk in the Crane Area, retired last Tuesday after 18 years and five months with Gulf.

He was employed by the company as a general clerk in the Sand Hills field office. His entire tenure has been in the West Texas area.

In addition to his retirement classification, he served the company as general clerk, clerk and senior clerk. He will continue to make his home in Crane.

E. C. Rogers of Midland, a senior clerk, also retired last Tuesday. He had 29½ years with Gulf.

He started with the company at Odessa in 1947 as a clerk. He later was promoted to senior clerk. He also served four years in the New Orleans District.

Sinai oil exploration said contrary to law

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Israeli oil prospecting in occupied Egyptian waters off the Sinai coast "is contrary to international law" and also "complicates the achievement of a settlement" in the Middle East, the State Department said Monday.

Speaking on the eve of Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance's trip to the Middle East, his first diplomatic mission, department spokesman Frederick Z. Brown said Vance intends to discuss Israel's disputed oil exploration in Both Jerusalem and Cairo. Brown was responding to a report several weeks ago in The Los Angeles times in which the Israeli operations were disclosed.

According to the Times report, which Brown's statement verified, Israeli drilling activity, said to be near an oil strike, is taking place in a section of the Gulf of Suez the Egyptian government had leased to an American company. The company, Amoco International, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of Indiana, leased drilling rights in the site in 1974.

Last September, Israeli gunboats forced Amoco prospectors away from and adjacent lease, and some reports at the time said shots were fired.

Vance "definitely" will discuss the matter with both Israel and Egypt this week, Brown said. "American companies are involved, and we have a responsibility to them in this matter."

A State Department official later told reporters that the oil prospecting issue is considered one of a series of important secondary matters to be brought up during Vance's trip. The secretary hopes to concentrate on the main issues of how to move toward a peace conference and how to solve the question of Palestinian participation in a settlement, the official said.

Palestinian participation at a peace conference, which the Israeli's categorically refused to accept as long as the Palestine Liberation Organization speaks for the Palestinian Arabs, may be the major issue that has to be dealt with, reporters were told.

In this context, oil drilling, U.S. supply of arms to Israel and to some of the Arab states and the Arab economic boycott of Israel are all regarded as subsidiary questions.

Up to now, the question of illegal Israeli oil prospecting has been regarded as a highly sensitive matter within the State Department, and officials have refrained from any public statements on the issue.

Privately, however, officials had said the United States contends that Israeli drilling violates the 1907 Hague Convention on the responsibilities of an occupying power. The convention allows an occupying power to tap existing resources but forbids exploitation of new resources.

In Monday's statement, the State Department made public its Our legal view "that Israel, as an occupying power, does not have the right to exploit natural resources in occupied territories that were not already being exploited when the occupation began. It is our belief that the activity which we are referring to with regard to this new drilling is contrary to international law."

Spokesman Brown said, "We believe that Israeli development of oil resources in these occupied territories is not helpful to efforts to get peace negotiations under way and complicates the achievement of a settlement."

Actually, the Hague Convention prohibition on development of new resources in an occupied zone, while allowing exploitation of existing resources, represents a legal anomaly from which the Israelis have already benefited.

Oil operators report Nolan, Gaines activity

Attempt will be made to complete a confirmation in a Gaines field and a stepout is scheduled for a Nolan County area.

Cleary Petroleum Corp., Midland, plans to reenter and clean out to 5,600 feet at No. 2-74 R. H. Cummins, Gaines County wildcat failure, for completion attempt as a second San Andres well and location south and slightly east extension to the Homann field.

Originally drilled by Sheldon Petroleum Co. of Lubbock as No. 1 Monaghan & Pitts, it was plugged and abandoned in November 1971.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 1,460 feet from west lines of section 74, block G, WTRR survey, 6½ miles northeast of Seminole. The site originally was reported in error as being 1,980 feet from north and 1,100 feet from west lines of the section.

The old total depth is 5,547 feet.

Moore & Miller of Oklahoma City plan to drill No. 1-A Tatum Estate as a location west offset to the discovery in the Estaban (Strawn) reef field of Nolan County.

Location is 1,980 feet from north and 1,860 feet from west lines of section 72, block 23, T&P survey, two miles southwest of Sweetwater. Planned depth is 7,000 feet.

The field has two wells in the Strawn pay and recently was reopened to Ellenburger production.

Governor, FEA meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe went to bat for natural gas deregulation with Carter administration officials Monday, but apparently came away with no firm commitments.

Briscoe worked in meetings with Federal Energy Administrator John O'Leary, presidential energy adviser James Schlesinger and other officials while preparing for Monday night's state dinner honoring Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo.

The governor called the talks "pleasant and productive," but declined to give specifics. He is known to favor legislation sponsored by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen and Rep. Bob Krueger, both Texas Democrats.

Achieving desirable goals tough problem

By CLYDE LA MOTTE
Reporter-Telegram
Washington Oil Correspondent

WASHINGTON, D.C. — One of the toughest problems facing the Carter Administration and the nation is how to attain desired goals relating to energy supplies, a healthy economy and a cleaner environment without trampling over one to get to the other.

The current shortage of natural gas during an unusually cold winter had helped drive home the point that inadequate energy supplies have a big impact on the economy and on the unemployment level.

The threat of chronic fuel shortages in the future unless something is done to increase supplies raises the distinct danger of economic malnutrition in the years ahead.

Obviously, the nation's economic welfare and its energy development go hand in hand, each dependent to a large extent on the other. A slowdown in energy supply means a slowdown in the economy.

Similarly, environmental improvement must necessarily be linked with the economy and energy.

Obviously, a healthy economy is better able to pay the cost of environmental improvement than a sick or weak economy. It's equally apparent that a good environment is one in which there is enough energy to keep people warm in winter and cool in summer. Furthermore, a great deal of energy resources are needed to supply the equipment and the power that is needed to bring about a cleaner, better environment.

In daily practice, however, conflicts arise over ways and means of achieving the desired goals.

A current case in point: There is a May 31 deadline for national compliance with pollutant standards set under the Clean Air Act of 1970. Many areas of the country simply are not going to meet that deadline, and as a result they face severe restrictions on industrial growth.

J. K. Evans, a Washington, D.C., oil consultant, has spent eight years in trying to get the required permits for a refinery to be built at Portsmouth, VA. The refinery—which was planned to produce environmentally desirable low-sulfur fuels—received all necessary state approvals and preliminary approval from the Environmental Protection Agency. However, less that a year ago an official in an EPA regional office in Philadelphia found the refinery "environmentally unacceptable" because the surrounding area has not attained the required oxidant standard. So the project is stymied and may never get built.

The government itself is facing a problem. The Federal Energy Administration, carrying out a program set up by Congress, is developing plans for stockpiling petroleum supplies for use in an emergency, such as another oil embargo.

Much of the planned storage will be in salt domes along the Texas-Louisiana Gulf Coast. But this area is an oxidant non-attainment area, meaning that by May 31 it will not have reduced oxidants from all sources to the required level. Since petroleum storage would result in loss of hydrocarbon vapors to the air it may be ruled out of the oxidant standards are maintained without change.

There are many other examples of such conflicts between energy and other requirements and environmental goals.

It is becoming increasingly apparent that some revisions will have to be considered and some time-table changes made if the nation is to make progress in meeting its energy requirements and maintaining a healthy economy.

The issue was discussed last week at a congressional committee hearing. An oil industry spokesman warned that unless there are some changes in what the industry feels are unnecessarily restrictive policies, the country is in for some serious difficulties on the energy front.

Sutton area gains tests

R. L. Burns Corp. of Dallas filed applications for stepouts on the southeast side of the Aldwell Ranch (Canyon) gas field of Sutton County, 18 miles southwest of Sonora.

No. 2-179 Keene, one mile north of production is 1,200 feet from north and 1,000 feet from west lines of section 179, block C, HE&WT survey. It is slated to 9,500 feet.

No. 1-157 Keene, one mile northeast, spots 1,000 feet from south and west lines of section 158, block C, HE&WT survey, Planned depth is 9,700 feet.

No. 1-157 Keene, also slated to 9,700 feet, spots 1,350 feet from south and 1,000 feet from west lines of section 157, block C, HE&WT survey, one mile southeast of production.

Langdon asks 'old' oil regions to contribute

ABILENE (AP) — New York and Pennsylvania might be able to meet some of their oil and gas needs if forced to look for energy within their own borders, a member of the Texas Railroad Commission said Monday.

Jim Langdon made the statement in a speech prepared for the West Centeral Texas Oil and Gas Association.

He also said this winter shortened the lifetime of existing gas reserves more than had been expected.

"Perhaps it would help all states if each state that produces less than its total energy requirements was required to hypothethically assume that it had just received its last BTU of energy from outside its own boundaries; and that henceforth it coud look only to its own resources to satisfy its energy needs," Langdon said.

"States like New York and Pennsylvania, once great oil and gas producing states in their own right, might find ways to recover their 'unrecoverable' oil."

He said Texas would continue to do its best to meet its own energy needs and "as much of the nation's needs as it can reasonably be expected to bear."

Langdon said most shallow gas reservoirs have been located, and current discoveries are largely made by deep drilling.

"Wells drilled to 20,000 feet or deeper often cost 100 times as much as even the very costly 10,000-foot wells," he observed.

Meanwhile, demand increases, he said.

"In 1975, we had an estimated life of reserves of 11.3 years, which presumably would be sufficient to carry the nation until about this day in the year 1986. Unfortunately, if we have to burn as much gas in future years as we have had to burn this year just to keep warm, it won't last till 1986," Langdon said.

Emil E. Ogden, with Chaparral Minerals, Inc., of Abilene was re-elected president of the West Central Texas Oil & Gas Association.

One new vice president was elected and three vice presidents were re-elected.

The new vice president is Bob H. Harrison with Petroleum Corp. of Texas of Breckenridge.

The re-elected vice presidents are John H. Chalmers, Harry S. Edwards and Jack Frizzell, all Abilene independent oil operators.

Crane oiler completed

Exxon Corp. has completed its No. 62-B Jax M. Cowden as a sixth upper Clear Fork well in the W.E.R. field of South Crane County, 10 miles southwest of Crane townsite.

It finaled for a calculated, daily potential of 168 bls of 37.4-gravity oil, through perforations at 3,109-3,128 feet, which had been acidized with 4,000 gallons. The potential was based on an actual 27-hour potential test, which produced 186 barrels of oil and nine barrels of load water.

Location is 467 feet from northwest and 1,507 feet from southwest lines of section 37, block 2, H&TC survey.

Canyon well potentials

The Arden, South field of Irion County gained a third lower Canyon sand oil producer and that pay was extended two miles southwest with completion of James P. Dunigan Jr., Abilene, No. 1-32 Field.

It was completed on the pump for 30 barrels of 39.1-gravity oil and 37 barrels of water per day, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,180-1. Completion was effected through perforations at 6,486-6,542 feet, after treating with 1,000 gallons of acid and fracturing with 40,000 gallons and 47,500 pounds of sand.

It is 660 feet from south and 1,980 feet from east lines of section 32, block 10, SPRR survey, 14 miles north of Mertzon.

Commission favors busing in large cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Civil Rights Commission says children in large metropolitan areas should be bused between the inner city and the suburbs to reverse a trend of increasing segregation in bigcity schools.

"While elsewhere much progress has been made in desegregating public schools," the commission said, "it is these children of the cities more than any others who have yet to reap any benefit from the promise" of equal educational opportunity.

The commission, in a 119-page report released today, said, "the problem is growing worse, not better" as "the boundaries between cities and suburbs have become not merely political dividing lines but barriers that separate people by race and economic class."

The report comes two days after Atty. Gen. Griffin B. Bell said that he believes the Supreme Court has narrowed the scope of busing that may be ordered by federal judges to achieve desegregation.

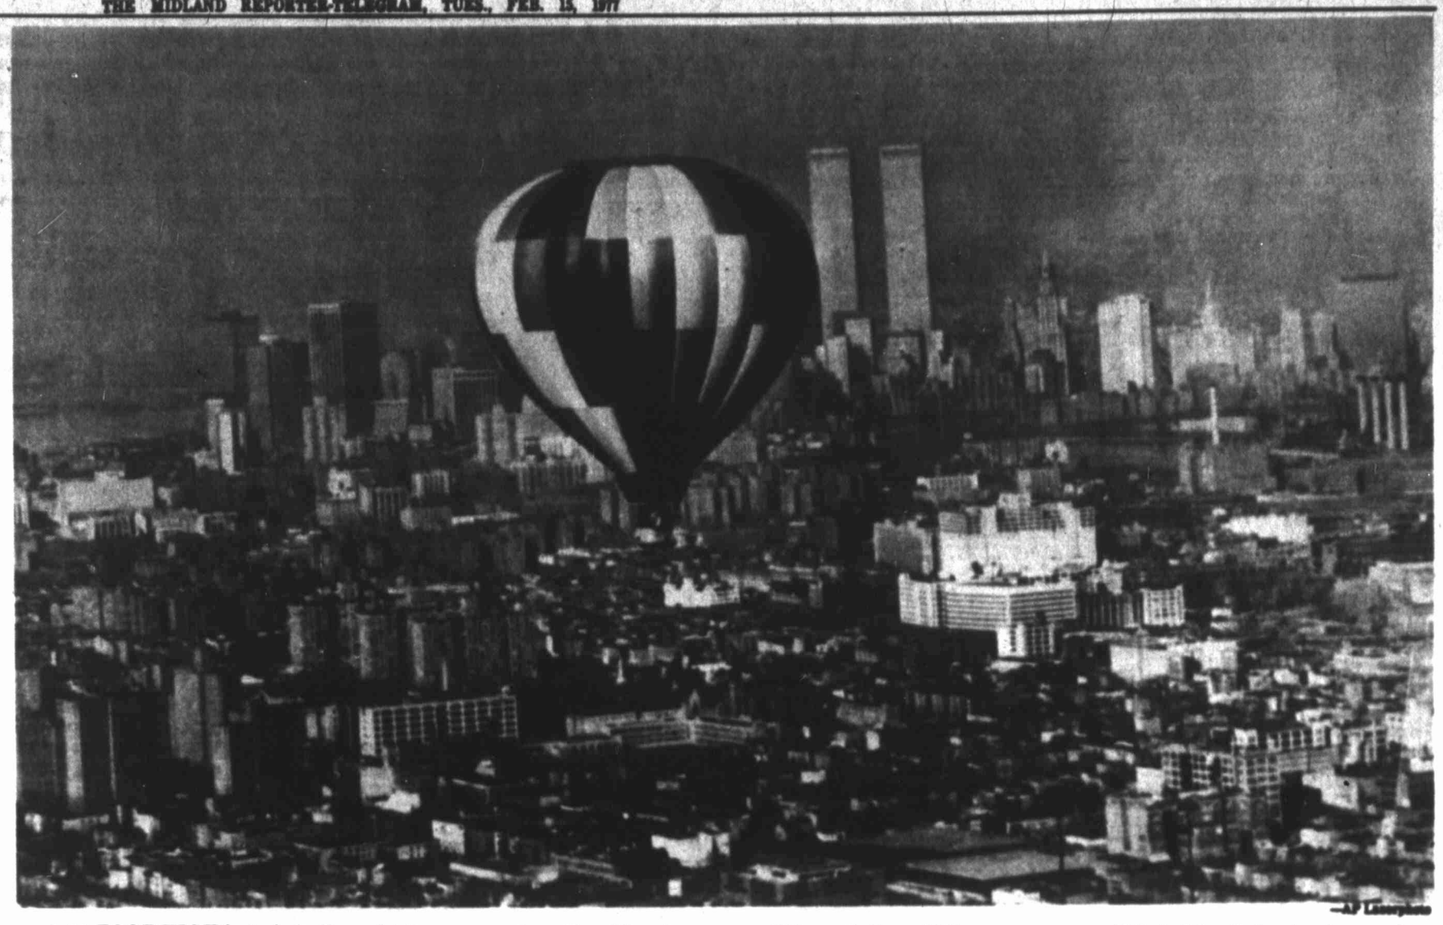

Last summer the bipartisan commission created a controversy with a study that found busing to desegregate schools was working smoothly in most cities. The study accused then-President Gerald R. Ford of trying to "curb" court-ordered busing.

Some critics charged the study was rigged in favor of busing.

In its latest report, which caps a three-year study, the bipartisan commission rejected claims that desegregating schools across city and suburban borders would require more busing, long trips and tremendous administrative problems. Experience shows travel time can actually be reduced, the panel said, and school district mergers long have been commonplace.

The report blamed government at all levels for fostering "racial ghettos." It cited numerous instances of federal housing practices since the 1930s that it said helped set the present patterns of minorities being restricted to the inner cities while whites have gained almost exclusive control of the suburbs and suburban schools.

It charged: "Although national policy has now changed to favor equal housing opportunity, government has yet to undo the damage its policies have inflicted over the past century; indeed, in some areas, government agencies continue to be partners to racially discriminatory activity."

Kissinger asked to let transcripts be examined

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief archivist of the United States has asked former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to voluntarily reverse his position that transcripts made of his telephone conversations while in office are his personal property.

In a letter sent to Kissinger last Friday, Chief Archivist James B. Rhoads said Kissinger's refusal to allow examination of the documents runs counter to established practices, regulations and the law.

The general counsel of the General Service Administration, the housekeeping agency responsible for federal records, recommended that the Department of Justice be brought into the situation if Kissinger rejects or declines to answer Rhoads' request.

Rhoads based his position on a legal opinion from GSA counsel Donald P. Young.

Kissinger, following the advice of then-State Department legal counselor Monroe Leigh, classified the transcripts as his personal property and donated them to the Library of Congress under conditions that prohibit access for 25 years.

Rhoads has asked that professional U.S. archivists be allowed to examine the material to decide if any of the transcripts are public property.

Rhoads sent copies of his letter and the GSA opinion to Kissinger's successor, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. However, State Department officials were unable to say immediately whether the current legal office supported the original statements made by Leigh.

Kissinger is vacationing in Mexico. His Washington office had no comment on the situation.

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee now has a non-lawyer member, Malcolm Wallop of Wyoming. With minor exceptions, it is the first time in the committee's history.

Wallop, a rancher, wound up on the Judiciary Committee not because he sought the assignment but because his name begins with a "W."

One of 18 freshmen senators, he is at the bottom of the heap in seniority and the Republicans, unlike the Democrats, adhere strictly to seniority in making their committee assignments.

In filling the places allotted to them by the Democratic majority, the Republicans finally had only one slot left. It was on the Judiciary Committee. And Wallop, because of his low seniority standing, was the only one left for the assignment.

Of the eight GOP newcomers to the Senate, John Danforth of Missouri is tops in seniority, followed by John Chafee of Rhode Island and S. I. Hayakawa of California. They took office ahead of the others because their predecessors resigned before the end of their terms.

Next in seniority ranking among the Republican freshmen is H. John Heinz of Pennsylvania, because he is a former House member. The seniority of the rest was determined alphabetically, with the result that Wallop was at the bottom.

Back in the 1950s Sen. Earl Clements of Kentucky got on the Judiciary Committee, even though he was not a lawyer. He was called judge because of a county post he had held. This led senators to assume when committee assignments were made that Clements was a lawyer.

But committee aides say that in about two months, after senators became aware of this mistaken impression, Clements transferred to the Agriculture Committee.

Two non-lawyers served briefly on the Judiciary Committee at the start of the present Congress. One was Heinz and the other was Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich., another freshman.

This was because all of the 18 new senators were temporarily assigned to committees by lot pending Senate action on the restructuring of its committee system.

When the Democrats and Republicans made their regular assignments, they turned out to be entirely different with few exceptions. However, three of the Democratic freshmen and three of the Republicans ended up on at least one of the committees to which they earlier had been assigned by lot.

Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., stayed on Appropriations and Wendell Anderson, D-Minn., on the Budget Committee and James Sasser, D-Tenn., on Governmental Affairs. Hayakawa stayed on Agriculture, Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., on Commerce, and Richard Lugar, R-Ind., on Governmental Affairs.

'Reverse Scopes trial' ensues in Indiana town

SELLERSBURG, Ind. (AP) — A ninth-grade biology textbook that allegedly promotes the Biblical theory of creation has stirred up a controversy and a lawsuit in this southern Indiana town.

Attorneys for the West Clark Community School Board plan to be in court next week to defend the book.

West Clark Supt. Herman Miller describes the court case as "a Scopes trial in reverse."

He referred to the famous trial of John Scopes, a Tennessee school teacher convicted in the 1920s for teaching evolution in public schools contrary to state law.

The Indiana Civil Liberties Union filed suit against the board on behalf of two patrons, E. Thomas Marsh and Robert D. Hendren, who claim the Biblical theory is promoted in ninth grade classes while other theories are downgraded.

The book, entitled "Biology—A Search for Order in Complexity," was approved by the Indiana Textbook Commission and adopted by the board last fall over another book recommended by a committee of biology teachers and parents.

Marsh, Hendren and others claim the book has religious overtones and that board members were influenced by religious groups in the community in choosing it. Miller said there was no pressure, that it was one of seven biology texts approved by the state commission.

"I personally don't think it has religious overtones," Miller said.

Dual chamber meetings to study job fair idea

Should a job fair be held to match area unemployed with Midland and Odessa employers?

The Midland and Odessa chambers of commerce will hold orientation meetings Thursday to consider that question.

Jim Harwell, executive director of Texas Industrial Commission, will conduct the meetings, which take place 10 a.m. in the Midland City Council chamber, and 3:30 p.m. in the Coach Room of the Inn of the Golden West in Odessa.

The meetings will determine whether the two cities have employers interested in the job fair, and whether they will have enough job vacancies likely in the next four months to justify having a job fair.

"If there are 500 job vacancies in the area, we'll put on a job fair'" Harwell said.

Job fairs are conducted through Gov. Dolph Briscoe's Texas First economic development program.

Assisting the industrial commission with the possible Midland-Odessa job fair are Texas Employment Commission, Texas Association of Business and Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

Lillian Carter mobbed by workers in Vikhroli

VIKHROLI, India (AP) — "This is the greatest day of my life, honestly," said Lillian Carter as she returned today for a tearful reunion with friends in the community where she worked 10 years ago as a volunteer nurse for the Peace Corps.

Some 4,000 workers mobbed President Carter's 78-year-old mother in this modern industrial center 15 miles northeast of Bombay.

"Ever since I left here, I've told of my love for Vikhroli, not just India, but Vikhroli," said Mrs. Carter. "This is where I've wanted to be."

Her friends and former coworkers presented her with a sandalwood wreath and a handmade necklace. At a ceremony later, a dot of red dye was placed on her forehead, the traditional Indian symbol for welcome.

Mrs. Carter, a registered nurse, visited the community clinic where she used to give out birth control advice and work with lepers. Inside, she met a 40-year-old former patient who had come to see her.

"How I remember him! I cured him of asthma," she said.

Mrs. Carter, wearing an aquamarine pants suit, also visited a school where the children performed native dances for her.

"I've forgotten I came over for a funeral, I am so happy," said Mrs. Carter, who returned to India Sunday as the head of the U.S. delegation to the funeral of Indian President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed.

"Everything they have done today has touched me to the bone," she said. "Today, when I saw that crowd, I really forgot that I was the President's mother. I was one of them again, just like I used to be."

Recalling her meeting with Prime Minister Indira Gandhi on Sunday after Ahmed's funeral, she said she found India's leader "a very nice woman, a very warm woman."

"I came out of there admiring her very much, and my whole opinion of her changed," said Mrs. Carter.

She said she had been misquoted in a magazine interview last fall in which she was quoted as saying: "Mrs. Gandhi, herself, cares nothing for the poor. She's just a politician. The things we send them never get to the poor. They're divided among the big shots in the government."

Mrs. Carter said she was not referring to Mrs. Gandhi personally.

The American delegation left Bombay in midafternoon for the United States in a special Air Force plane. It was to make brief refueling stops in Tehran and Madrid.

"She's incredible," said an Indian security guard assigned to accompany Mrs. Carter. "I've been with her the whole time and she looks great, but I'm exhausted."

The President's mother said she was feeling "fine as can be" as she flew from New Delhi to Bombay on Monday evening after doing some shopping in the capital and attending a condolence meeting for President Ahmed.

MHS squad wins tourney

Midland High School was sweepstakes winner at a speech tournament at Sonora High School Friday and Saturday.

Midland High students who placed in individual competition included Hal Coon, who placed first in humorous interpretation; Clay Guthrie, who won first place both in poetry and dramatic interpretation; David Smith, first place winner for prose reading, and Carla DeBose, who placed first in Bible reading.

Jane Forsyth won first place in persuasive speaking and Mike Mauldin placed third in that event. Cecile Davis placed third in Bible reading.

Crosland said still in coma

LONDON (AP) — The Foreign Office reported no change today in the condition of Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland, who is in a coma after apparently suffering a stroke two days ago.

Radcliffe Hospital in Oxford announced Monday night that the condition of the 58-year-old Labor party leader "has gradually deteriorated and he is now dangerously ill."

Crosland's American-born wife, the former Susan Watson of Baltimore, Md., was at the hospital with him.

Crosland collapsed Sunday while working on Foreign Office papers about the Rhodesian situation at his country home 55 miles northwest of Oxford. Foreign Office sources said they believed the stroke was brought on by the strain of office, including the deadlock in the Rhodesian negotiations and the additional work required because he was chairman of the European Common Market's Council of Ministers for a six-month term.

Political commentators said Prime Minister James Callaghan undoubtedly would have to replace him. They said this posed a major problem for Callaghan because the most experienced and likely candidates have all been switched to new posts recently.

Meanwhile, Crosland's deputy, David Owen, took over his duties.

Crosland himself had no experience in foreign affairs when Callaghan appointed him last April. He was one of British socialism's chief theoreticians and had held various cabinet posts, but all were in domestic fields.

He had been expected to replace Denis Healey as chancellor of the exchequer, the No. Two post in the government, in the summer.

Students locate city's dangerous intersections

A group of high school students are taking on the task of pinpointing city intersections that are dangerous because of sign obstructions or blocked views.

SITCA, the Students Involved Through Community Action Committee of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, are seeking citizen cooperation in this project. The members request citizens who are aware of dangerous intersections to telephone or write the chamber office.

"We feel this is a project we can realistically accomplish while providing valuable information to the city departments which deal with traffic safety," Johnny Northington, SITCA director from Midland High School, said.

Ilene Gould, SITCA director from Lee, said the group became aware of the need to pinpoint the dangerous intersections as a result of a student survey SITCA conducted in both high schools in November.

"While it wasn't the number one concern of the students, several surveys indicated there was a need for the city to make an effort to get rid of many of these "blind or obstructed intersections," she said.

Information regarding such intersections may be sent to: SITCA Street Project, Box 1890, Midland, 79702. The telepne number is 683-3381.

Idaho warns Washington not to try rain robbery

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — In the midst of the Northwest's worst drought in years, Idaho has warned Washington not to try The Great Rain Robbery.

Oregon and Washington governors fear 76,800 farm jobs will be lost, along with $1.6 billion worth of crops, because drought has left reservoirs and rivers almost dry. Major power shortages also are feared, and industries depending on hydroelectric power already are laying off workers.

Some Washington officials are asking the state to try a $125,000 cloudseeding project over the almost snowless Cascade Mountains.

But inland states like Idaho and Montana get much of their moisture from the same clouds off the Pacific Ocean that drop rain and snow on Washington and Oregon.

Idaho Atty. Gen. Wayne Kidwell warned Monday that his state will go to court to prevent rain rustling. A University of Idaho geographer has predicted that northern Idaho and western Montana could lose 10 per cent of expected rainfall if Washington grabs the moisture first.

Man 'guarded' after accident near Midland

An Odessa man remains in guarded condition Tuesday, following a three-vehicle accident late Sunday 23 miles east of Midland on Texas 158 in Glasscock County.

Frank W. Leek, 24, Odessa, suffered head injuries and was admitted to the intensive care unit of Odessa Medical Center Hospital.

Two passengers in the Leek vehicle, Deborah Edwards, 23, 603 Midkiff Road, Midland, and Joyce Leek, 18, Sterling City, received lesser injuries and were treated and released from Midland Memorial Hospital.

A Department of Public Safety spokesman said Leek's van was westbound on the road when a tractor-trailer truck operated by Joe E. Collier attempted to pass him. Leek, who was towing a car, attempted to pull to the side to allow the truck to pass, the spokesman said.

Leek apparently lost control and a collision occurred with the truck. The towed car also became loose and collided with the truck, the spokesman said.

The van overturned and the passengers were thrown out. The truck driver was not injured.

Police checking equipment theft

Police are investigating the theft of power wrenches and a power drill from Overhead Door Co. of Midland, 711 S. Colorado St. late Sunday or early Monday.

Taken were two 3½-inch impact wrenches and a ⅝-inch drill worth $685, police said.

Dallas officer held

DALLAS (AP) — A series of weekend arrests, including that of a Dallas police officer, has resulted in the seizure of over $1 million in counterfeit bills, according to spokesmen for the U.S. Secret Service and Dallas police.

Calvin E. Etley, 31, a Dallas police investigator, was arraigned before a U.S. magistrate in Austin Monday on charges of passing counterfeit reserve notes.

Dallas Police Chief Don Byrd said his department had been advised of the investigation since its inception in December and had assisted the Secret Service in the probe.

Etley was relieved of his police credentials Sunday night, Byrd said.

Ronald Towns, Dallas Secret Service agent in charge, said more than $1.1 million in bogus $50 and $20 bills were seized.

'Roots' claimed rampage cause

CINCINNATI (AP) — "Roots," the televised epic inspired by a black man's search for his ancestry, triggered Jesse Coulter's rampage, says the lawyer for the 42-year-old man accused of taking eight hostages in an attempt to reunite his family.

"This man sat on this for 20 years, and the dynamite was 'Roots,' " said attorney Eugene Smith.

During the siege that began Friday night at the Catherine Booth home for unwed mothers, Coulter demanded the return of a son born at the home 20 years earlier. The child had been put up for adoption.

Smith said his client, who is black, had been frustrated over the loss for some time.

"Jessie told me when he saw Chicken George (a character in "Roots") get his own family back together, he couldn't help himself," Smith said. "He had to come back to Cincinnati and get the kid."

As it turned out, the effort was in vain. The siege ended when an undercover Cincinnati detective fooled Coulter and his ex-wife Rita Gibran into thinking he was their long-lost son and they surrendered.

Coulter and Mrs. Gibran were arraigned Monday in Criminal Court and their cases were continued until Friday. Bond was set at $1 million each.

The television program was based on a book in which author Alex Haley traced the history of his family from black Africa through the days of slavery in the South. The dramatization concluded 12 days before Coulter came here.

Smith said, after Monday's hearing, that the Utica, Mich., man saw similarities between his life and the serial. "He had seen how families were split up in slavery, and he was bitter about his own family being split up," Smith said.

Money remains mystery

ALICE, Tex. (AP) — The legal battle lines have been drawn today as a grand jury opens a special investigation into the two Alice boys and $486,000 in mystery money.

Both boys—Percy Garcia, 15, and 16-year-old Dean Bridges— were subpoenaed to appear before the Jim Wells County grand jury, but lawyers for the pair filed quash motions on the grounds the youths were juveniles.

"The only way they can get him to testify is to declare him an adult," says Garcia's lawyer, Charles Barrera of Alice.

The two boys were stopped in Waco on Jan. 31 for running a red light. Officers discovered the cash stuffed in two suitcases in the trunk of their just purchased Thunderbird.

Officers also found a small quantity of marijuana and a semi-automatic pistol.

The boys reportedly told police they had dug up the money in the backyard of an Alice area ranch belonging to Bridges' father, James E. Hiroms of Corpus Christi.

"We are interested in determining whether any criminal offenses were committed," says Assistant Dist. Atty. Rolando Ramirez who adds that several persons were subpoenaed and are expected to testify today.

Hiroms' lawyer, Phil Westergren of Corpus Christi, criticized the local police for indicating during the past two weeks that Hiroms had disappeared and could not be found.

"I told the Alice police, the Waco police and the Texas Rangers that I was in touch with my client and my client was not trying to hide," he says.

Law enforcement officers and the district attorney's office say they are searching tax and title records to determine who owns the ranch or had legal possession of it when the money was found.

Tax votes expected next week

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Speaker Bill Clayton says he expects the House to vote next week on a measure that would cut gas and electric bills by 4 per cent and exempt estates of less than $200,000 from inheritance taxation.

"I support it," Clayton told reporters Monday after the House Ways and Means Committee cleared the measure (HB1) for full floor debate.

Rep. Joe Wyatt, D-Victoria, committee chairman, said tax legislation has a high calendar priority, so the bill should get speedy action.

The bill would:

—Repeal the 4 per cent state sales tax on residential gas and electric bills and give city councils the authority to do same the with the 1 per cent local tax.

—Exempt from the inheritance tax $200,000 of an estate passed on to one's wife, children, grandchildren and parents.

Bogus parts in 100 jets ordered out

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration said Monday that bogus replacement parts that never were certified as safe have been installed on as many as 100 U.S. jetliners and must soon be removed.

The agency ordered five airlines to remove all of the parts within 45 days and said three other airlines also flying Boeing 727s and 737s also may be affected. The two planes are among the most popular short- and medium-range jetliners in the nation.

In describing the highly unusual case, an FAA spokesman said: "We don't know for sure they're bad, we just don't know for sure they're good (parts.)"

The parts, which in some cases can cost thousands of dollars, were basically electronic ones and operate various aircraft systems, such as flaps, slats (flaps on the front edge of a wing), flight instrument accessories and air conditioning systems. The spokesman said some of the parts involve critical flight systems.

He added: "The important thing is that there is no evidence of an immediate hazard." An FAA announcement said that the agency does "not know that they (the parts) conform to FAA requirements (for safety) and further investigation is continuing."

Removal and inspection of 13 suspected parts was ordered within 30 days and within 45 days for another 15 parts.

The FAA identified the source of the parts as the ADS Supply Co., an eight-employe firm in Bellevue, Wash., that sells replacement parts to airlines. The agency said another business, Air Repair Inc. of Renton, Wash., had issued identification that all or most of the parts had been manufactured by Boeing and thus had been certified for use in airplanes.

The ersatz Boeing parts were discovered in the course of investigation by King County, Wash., officials after Boeing security officials reported losing "significant numbers" of tools and blueprints from their plant, said Gene Anderson, chief of the fraud division of the King county prosecutor's office. He said the distribution of the suspected parts dates to at least 1974.

Report raps bad bridges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Iowa children were killed when a school bus crashed through a bridge guardrail last August. Despite the guardrail's deficiency, state highway workers used the same type rail as a replacement, federal safety officials say.

The National Transportation Safety Board feels the incident underscores a growing nationwide problem with deteriorating and unsafe bridges.

The board, in a report released today, said the guardrail on a bridge near Neola, Iowa, was deficient and "would not offer an appropriate level of protection even to automobiles."

The report criticized the Iowa Department of Transportation for not using a stronger rail as a replacement.

While the problem of unsafe bridges confronts federal, state and local highway officials, funds to repair the bridges are limited.

The Department of Transportation has classified 34,600 bridges on federal highways as deficient, and says replacements would cost $10 billion. Thousands of bridges on local roads are in the same class.

Sen. John C. Culver, D-Iowa, in a Senate speech on the problem last week, called the situation "critical."

"Many of these bridges are simply unsafe and should be repaired or replaced immediately, but it is becoming obvious that demands far outstrip the available financial resources," Culver said.

He said $180 million is authorized annually through 1978 for work on structurally deficient or obsolete bridges on federal highways.

He and several other senators have introduced a bill that would increase the annual amount to $600 million, with 15 per cent of the funds allocated to each state to be used on bridges under county control.

In the Iowa case, the driver and 29 other children also were injured when the school bus crashed through the rail and over a concrete parapet last Aug. 6. The bus landed on its roof on an embankment 15 feet below the bridge.

Scientists revise Richter Scale

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The 40-year-old Richter Scale that is used as a measurement of ground motion in an earthquake has been revised, changing the ratings of previous great earthquakes.

For example, the 1960 quake in Chile released 62 times as much energy as formerly believed. The San Francisco earthquake of 1906 has been scaled downward.

Modification of the Richter Scale was announced Monday and, for the first time, a few quakes now register above 9 on the scale.

At the same time, scientists and engineers meeting at the California Institute of Technology struck an optimistic note about the effects of the so-called "great quakes."

"These great seismic events are not uniformly associated with catastrophic damage," said Dr. Paul C. Jennings, Caltech professor of applied mechanics.

The revision came because of new instruments and theories that more accurately record and explain energy released by the so-called great quakes.

The new rating scale for large quakes announced by Dr. Hiroo Kanamori, Caltech geophysics professor, revises the Alaska quake of 1964 from 8.4 to 9.2 and the 1960 Chilean quake from 8.3 to 9.5.

Previously, no quake had been given a magnitude greater than 8.9 on the scale devised by Dr. Charles Richter in 1935. The new rating system does not replace the Richter Scale, but it changes how the higher magnitudes are computed.

The Richter Scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 7.5 reflects a quake 10 times stronger than one of 6.5.

Brown listens to Texas solons on A7 fighter

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Harold Brown says no final decision has been made on the future of the A7 attack fighter plane.

"He said the entire defense budget is under review. I got the feeling he has an open mind," Rep. Jim Mattox, a Dallas Democrat, said Monday after he and other Texas congressmen met with Brown.

Mattox said Brown did not say when the Carter administration will make a final decision on whether to continue production of the A7. The decision must be made by the end of this month, when Carter will have to tell Congress how he wants to change the fiscal 1978 budget he inherited from President Ford.

The Ford budget had a total of $75 million for A7 work, including $45 million for the construction of six new planes. The appropriation is not in itself enough to cause a boom at the LTV Corp. factory in Grand Prairie, Tex., where the plane is built.

But it might enable LTV to keep the A7 production line open long enough to benefit from a major order from Pakistan.

Pakistan is considering purchasing 110 A7 planes for more than $700 million, an order that might cause callbacks of some of the 17,000 workers LTV has laid off at Grand Prairie since 1970. There are currently 9,000 workers at the plant.

But an arms sale of that magnitude requires administration approval. The Carter administration has said it will not approve any arms sales to the Pakistanis unless they agree to cancel a contract they signed with France for the purchase of a nuclear fuel reprocessing plant.

The administration is committed to stopping that sale and a similar one from West Germany to Brazil, on the grounds that they would set dangerous precedents in allowing Third World nations access to the type of enriched nuclear material that can be used to make nuclear weapons.

Mattox said it might take months to resolve that issue. In the meantime, LTV would be faced with expensive costs to close down the assembly line and start it up again in the event the Pakistani sale is approved.

The group of congressmen — Mattox, Dale Milford, House Majority Leader Jim Wright and Appropriations Committee chairman George Mahon — did not confine themselves to asking Brown to retain the A7 appropriation. They asked that it be enlarged to allow construction of 12 planes instead of six.

The A7 has been a target of Pentagon economizers for several years. The Air Force stopped ordering them in 1975, and the program was saved only when Texas legislators convinced the Navy to begin buying a modified version.

The plane was back in the endangered category last week, when it turned up on a list of possible cuts circulated in the Pentagon by Brown's office. But, Texas congressmen had been promised by Brown that the plane would not be scratched before they had a chance to make their case.

They were angered, Mattox said, when they read weekend reports from Plains, Ga. that the administration had completed its work on the defense budget. Monday's meeting was hastily arranged after Brown heard that the congressmen were miffed.

Carter delays sale of bombs

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The White House has asked for a study of the accuracy and military uses of the controversial concussion bombs Israel is seeking to buy from the United States, it has been learned.

President Carter said at his press conference last Tuesday that he would decide within a week whether or not to permit the sale, which was approved by President Ford.

The effect of the study apparently will be to delay a final decision. Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, who set out on a tour of the Middle East Monday night, presumably will be able to tell Israeli and Arab leaders that the sale is under study, rather than anger one side with a decision during his trip.

The new study was ordered after the White House learned of questions about the utility of the bomb called CBU-72.

The U.S. Air Force has not purchased CBU-72s, because it "hasn't identified a need for them," a spokesman said Monday.

The Marines have the concussion bombs in their inventory, however, and would use them to clear minefields and to blast out landing zones for helicopters.

Israeli officials have said they want the weapon for three purposes: to clear minefields, to attack surface-to-air missile sites that are partly underground and to attack airplanes protected on the ground by concrete revetments.

The CBU-72 falls to earth under a small parachute and therefore is liable to being windblown away from its target.

However, it has a strong concussion over a circle roughly 50 feet diameter and lesser shock waves over a wider area.

The United States has not sold CBU-72s to any foreign country. Israel promised in a letter to the Penatgon last Dec. 16 that it would only use CBU 72s against military forumed targets, and only if Israel were attacked by more than one country.

State Department officials recommended to Vance, however, that the Ford administration approval be reversed. Because the CBU-72 has a devastating effect over such a large target area, a ban on sales to any country was urged in a briefing paper for Vance.

Vance said he would make his recommendation to Carter before leaving for the Middle East.

He told Israeli reporters in an interview Monday that the United States has three criteria for weapons sales to the Middle East:

"First, does the country requesting arms have a requirement for those arms for its national security?

"Second, what would the transfer of those arms do to the critical balance which exists in the Middle East?

"And third, if the arms sales were made, would they facilitiate the movement to peace?"
