Ellsberg, 280 others arrested in protest

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

Daniel Ellsberg and about 280 other anti-nuclear activists were arrested when they marched on a Colorado nuclear weapons plant Sunday — exactly a year after Ellsberg and 27 others were charged in a similar protest.

Elsewhere, the legacy of Three Mile Island was dramatized in anti-nuclear protests featuring soaring balloons, frightening figures and folk songs.

About 230 Colorado protesters had trained for weeks in a plan to block three entrances to the Rocky Flats plant about 16 miles northwest of Denver, the nation's only producer of plutonium "triggers" for nuclear weapons.

About two dozen armed federal marshals and security guards from Rockwell International greeted them and 70 other protesters at the plant's east and west gates and at a railroad spur leading into the facility.

Ellsberg, who made public the Pentagon Papers on the Vietnam War, was among those arrested, fingerprinted and released Sunday. They were ordered to appear May 7 for hearings in U.S. District Court in Denver.

The demonstrators were charged with violating the U.S. Atomic Energy Act. The charge is a misdemeanor carrying a maximum fine of $1,000 and no jail term.

Last year, more than 200 demonstrators were arrested at Rocky Flats over seven months and most — including Ellsberg — were convicted and given suspended sentences.

The arrests Sunday were carried out peacefully, demonstrators singing and cheering as their fellow protesters were loaded into a blue bus and taken to a makeshift booking station at the U.S. Geological Survey headquarters in Lakewood, a Denver suburb, where magistrates were standing by.

The protesters, who split into three groups as they marched toward the plant after a prayer meeting, were accompanied by six attorneys who had volunteered their services.

The confrontation was a follow-up to a mass rally at the weapons plant the day before. On Saturday more than 10,000 demonstrators — three times as many as the organizers expected — assembled in damp, chilly weather to sing, hear speeches, and demand that the plant be shut down or converted to non-military use.

Other anti-nuclear demonstrations over the weekend, given impetus by last month's near-catastrophe at the Three Mile Island reactor in Pennsylvania, were staged at a ski slope in Vermont and a farm in Arkansas, on the banks of the Hudson River in New York and on a Navajo reservation in New Mexico.

As all this was going on, tourists were streaming by the Three Mile Island plant, snapping pictures of the facility now safely shut down.

French visitors paint picture of Brezhnev's poor health

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev ate with a spoon during most of a formal Kremlin dinner, had trouble signing his name, needed help walking up stairs and had lapses of attention during some top-level meetings.

That is the picture of the 72-year-old Soviet leader that emerged during French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's recent visit here. The spotlight fell again on Brezhnev's health, which is known to be delicate.

"There was nothing dramatic. But it was more the general impression he made," one source said about Brezhnev.

French observers said he was markedly less vigorous and alert than during his visit to France two years ago. But Brezhnev's health goes up and down, and he has just recovered from a serious lung inflammation.

Publicly, French officials went out of their way to give the impression that Brezhnev was taking "an active and continuing part" in the talks, as Giscard d'Estaing's spokesman Pierre Hunt put it.

But there was only one face-to-face meeting during the French leader's three-day visit, and the summit, which ended Saturday, produced nothing major.

Sources cited several signs of Brezhnev's problems, including his use of a spoon to eat most of a formal dinner held in Giscard d'Estaing's honor Thursday night. The menu, sources noted, was filled with soft foods that required little chewing or cutting.

At Saturday's signing of several Franco-Soviet pacts, Brezhnev reportedly needed help signing his name, and headed for the wrong exit.

No speeches were given at the signing ceremony. Brezhnev's statement was handed to the reporters in written form. The leader is known to suffer from a jaw ailment that makes his speech-reading slurred and difficult to understand.

Sources said that during the Kremlin talks, Brezhnev's eyes took on a vacant look at times, and he appeared not to follow the conversation.

Throughout the public appearances, Brezhnev walked slowly with a pronounced limp. There was always someone at his side.

At the airport to welcome Giscard d'Estaing Thursday, the Soviet leader managed to mount several steps unassisted. But at a French Embassy dinner Friday night, sources said, Brezhnev needed an aide to help him up a long staircase.

French reporters covering Giscard d'Estaing's visit were prevented by Soviets from watching Brezhnev's ascent.

Vietnam: The path since reunification

(Editor's Note: Four years ago Monday, Vietnam's communists won their long war to unite North and South. Here is an appraisal of the path that battered nation has followed since then, and its prospects for the future.)

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong promised to "constantly improve the life of the people" when he outlined a blueprint for his nation's future at a Communist Party congress in 1976. The next five years, he said, would pave the way for prosperity and bring "a civilized and happy life."

At the time, many veteran observers of Vietnamese politics, including some American diplomats who were decidedly not pro-Hanoi, believed post-war reconstruction would take precedence over military muscle-flexing. Vietnamese pragmatism, the observers predicted, would keep Hanoi from leaning toward Moscow or Peking and perhaps, with an eye turned to the West, it would become the Yugoslavia of Asia.

Today, four years after North Vietnam overpowered the South, the Hanoi regime is again at war. It has also become solidly lodged in the Kremlin fold. And only the most optimistic can say that, by the usual measures, its 50 million people have a better life.

Vietnamese troops are leading a costly, 4-month-old war in Cambodia and a sizable garrison is based in Laos to help that nation fight diehard insurgents. At home, Vietnam is under a general mobilization proclaimed during the month-long border war with China that broke out Feb. 17.

Vietnam today has an estimated one million men under arms, the sixth-largest armed force in the world. The fighting is bleeding resources from economic development in a nation that has one of the world's lowest per-capita incomes and where about 3 million people are believed unemployed.

Its economic bible, the four-year-plan due to end in 1980, has been all but scrapped, its final year goals having been cut sharply.

Although the claims of refugees must be regarded with some skepticism, the recent crop of "boat people" express greater despair about conditions in Vietnam than those who fled earlier.

"When some Saigon families are down to their last dong (the local currency) they buy poison," said one recent escapee who fled to Thailand.

Four years after Saigon — now Ho Chi Minh City — fell to the communists April 30, 1975, compromise with the new order seems impossible for many in the south.

Rice rations were cut by about half when Vietnam launched its invasion of Cambodia last Christmas Day. Diplomats and refugees say black market prices for basic commodities have soared in Ho Chi Minh City. A former nurse at the city's Nhan Dan Hospital said more and more children are suffering from malnutrition. She also said the lines of people waiting to sell blood, a traditional practice among the poor, have been growing longer.

Western diplomats based in Hanoi say there have been few dramatic changes in prices there. But they report a growing shortage of everyday items, such as rice bowls and other

Council to consider parking plan

By CINDY RUGELEY

Wichita Falls City Council Tuesday will consider a request to expand transverse parallel parking throughout the downtown area.

Midtown Now and Downtown Associaton both have recommended the expansion in an effort to relieve parking problems.

Transverse parallel parking, already implemented in an eight-block area downtown, establishes a pattern of two car-length spaces for parking and then one car-length space designated no parking.

Ed Ilschner, director of traffic and transportation, said transverse parking has "proven to be extremely successful."

The system, he said, allows a

Ginzburg to live with Solzhenitsyn

NEW YORK (AP) — Newly freed Soviet dissident Alexander Ginzburg said Sunday he and his family will go to live with exiled Soviet novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn at the writer's secluded 51-acre estate in the hills of southern Vermont.

The move, confirmed by Solzhenitsyn's secretary, will reunite two close associates who have been prominent leaders of the Soviet dissident movement. Solzhenitsyn, a Nobel laureate, has been in exile himself since 1974.

An interpreter translating for Ginzburg during a 70-minute interview with The Associated Press said that the dissident would travel to Vermont Tuesday, and that Solzhenitsyn had invited Ginzburg and his family to "live there as if they were coming home."

"I am a little tired of seeing four walls after prison — and now this room," Ginzburg said laughingly.

He was referring to his accommodations on the 37th floor of the United Nations Plaza Hotel, where he has stayed since being flown to New York Friday in an exchange of five Soviet dissidents for two Soviet spies convicted here.

Two of the other dissidents, Mark Dymshits and Eduard Kuznetsov, were attending a rally to benefit Soviet Jewry before flying to Israel to live.

Georgi Vins, a Baptist pastor, attended morning church services in Washington with President Carter.

The fifth dissident, Valentin Moroz of the Ukraine, was back here after attending a rally in his honor in Philadelphia late Saturday.

Moroz' wife Raissa said he is interested in an offer of a teaching post extended by the Ukrainian Research Institute at Harvard University, but he has not yet replied.

Ginzburg, whose latest trial last summer drew international attention, is the most celebrated of the freed dissidents. His conviction of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda" was connected with his work monitoring human rights provisions in the Helsinki accords.

The leader of the Moscow group that monitored the accord, Yuri Orlov, is in prison in the Soviet Union.

Israel welcomes Soviet Jews

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Five Soviet Jews suddenly freed 10 days ago after nine years' imprisonment in their homeland for trying to hijack an airliner arrived in Israel Sunday to a joyous welcome led by Prime Minister Menachem Begin.

"I feel very happy. I dreamed about this day all the time," said a pale but beaming Wolf Zalmanson, one of the five who arrived on a flight from Vienna along with 82 other Soviet Jewish immigrants.

Eduard Kuznetsov and Mark Dymshits, two others convicted in the hijacking incident, were among five Soviet prisoners traded in New York Friday for two convicted Soviet spies. They are to arrive here Monday.

"We waited for you for 8½ years, but the day finally came," Begin told the men at a boisterous airport reception. "In the name of God, welcome."

Remember April

By GLENN SHELTON

I suspect that if one made a study of history's greatest crimes, he would find that most of them were committed by mild-mannered, courteous folk. Apparently it's the same in nature.

Today we bid a non-reluctant farewell to April, and though she has a pastel image, this year she proved herself a pillager and a killer and we are glad to see her go.

She came to us on a Sunday, and at weekend our town hosted balletomanes from a wide area. "Ballet" is synonomous with grace and beauty. The month had made an appropriately gentle debut.

Then on the second Sunday tank cars carrying acetone exploded and burned near Crestview, Fla., causing evacuation of thousands as the winds spread thick yellow sulfur fumes over rural northwest Florida.

This also was the time of greatest concern for the nuclear crisis at Three Mile Island, Pa.

But April blew her image on Terrible Tuesday when the historic monster tornado cut a record swath through southern Wichita Falls, killing and maiming, destroying hundreds of buildings and homes.

I'll remember April, and I daresay you will, too!

She is known as a pink maiden strewing brightly colored flowers about the landscape, a gentle month of showers and mild temperatures.

But like many of history's most vicious killers, April this year was violence in disguise as a lamb, a mild-mannered, courteous killer.

So today we say goodbye and good riddance.

OFF ON A TANGENT — About a decade ago, when Owanah Anderson was manager of Wichita Falls Symphony, we discussed my dream: to book Roberta Peters for an appearance with our organization. We checked with her agent. She was too expensive. Much as we wanted to hear this exquisite soprano her talents were too costly for our means.

Well, Tuesday evening, thanks to my friend Bill Crawford, my dream was realized. In Lawton's beautiful McMahon Auditorium, auspices of the Lawton Concert Association, Miss Peters performed.

She started her singing career when she was 13. At 17 she made her debut in the Metropolitan Opera without any previous engagements anywhere. Remarkable! Unprecedented! During the ensuing 25 years she has appeared around the world. In 1972 she became the first American to be awarded the Bolshoi Medal from the Russians, an honor ordinarily reserved only for Soviet artists.

Confidentially (don't breathe a word of this to the Redhead!) I have been in love with Roberta Peters all these years.

I'm kidding. The Redhead went with me and was as ecstatic with Miss Peters as I was.

WE THOUGHT it enterprising and professional that "The Daily Skiff," student publication of Texas Christian University, ran a page 1 banner story by campus editor Chris Kelley about our tornado. Datelined Wichita Falls, the feature was pervasive, recounting several "horror stories," giving disaster statistics and some eyewitness accounts.

A FINE, PROFESSIONAL JOB, "DAILY SKIFF" OF TEXAS CHRISTIAN!

Retail gasoline supplies grow tighter over weekend

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Retail gasoline supplies got still tighter Sunday with increasing numbers of service stations closed down either because their tanks were dry or to save gasoline for weekday commuters.

Unleaded gasoline, required for late-model cars with catalytic exhaust systems, was the first to run out in many areas.

The fuel shortage results from recent tightening of supplies, due largely to the revolution in Iran, and steadily increasing demand. Most major oil companies are limiting deliveries to a percentage of what each station sold last year, meaning that by month's end many stations are pumping from nearly dry tanks.

An estimated 75 to 90 percent of the stations in Connecticut were closed Sunday and many of the remainder were limiting purchases, said Mike Klein, public relations director for the Hartford Automobile Club.

"Some stations are now limiting (purchases) to $2 per car. This should stop about Tuesday or Wednesday when the new allotments (for May) come in," Klein said.

Charles Matties, a member of the Connecticut Gasoline Retailers Association board of directors, blamed publicity in part for the shortage and for forcing stations to curtail operating hours.

"In effect, the forecast that it would happen will bring it about," he said. "What in effect happened is these organizations monitoring the situation triggered an awful lot of unnecessary buying.

"I would guess that this weekend we've got several hundred thousands of gallons of gasoline riding around in people's cars that they don't need. It feeds on itself."

A survey by the Automobile Club of Southern California found that of 333 stations checked, two-thirds planned to close Sunday. But the proportion was somewhat higher in urban areas — up to 80 percent.

Most eastern Massachusetts stations were closed Sunday, and several states reported that while gasoline was available along interstate and other major highways, a high percentage of stations in metropolitan areas were closed.

Despite the closings and shortages, there was still traffic on the roads.

"People aren't going to quit driving," said California Highway Patrol Service Desk Operator Trauny Morton. But he said motorists seem to have cut down on non-essential travel.

Morton said that when some people call for information on open stations and find the CHP doesn't know, "A lot of them say, 'Well, maybe I'll just not go.'"

In New Mexico, Jess Harris, of the state Department of Energy and Minerals, said applications by station operators for allocations of gasoline from the state's emergency reserves have increased steadily. Three months ago the department had about 80 requests, he said, but for April, it had about 260.

Good Morning!

Accounting major named Hardin Scholar at MSU

By PAT ZAJAC & CINDY RUGELEY
Staff Writers

Daryl Lin Leick, 20, an accounting major from Wichita Falls, Sunday was named Midwestern State University's 1979 Hardin Scholar during an Honors Day Convocation in Hardin Auditorium.

The Hardin Scholar Award is the university's highest award for academic achievement and is presented each spring to a student entering his or her senior year.

The award, which was presented by last year's recipient, Sharon Lippe, is for $1,250.

Leick, who has maintained a perfect 4.0 grade point average through three years of work, is a 1976 graduate of Rider High School. He is employed by Beacon Insurance Co. and is a member of the Honors Program and Phi Eta Sigma.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Leick, he is also a recipient of an Alpha Chi scholarship.

Paul Allen Borgfeld, 19, a chemistry major, was named Clark Scholar. The award is presented to a student entering his or her junior year.

Established in 1976 in honor of E.B. Clark Sr., who served for many years as chairman of the board of MSU Foundation, the award is for $500.

A 1977 graduate of Wichita Falls High School, Borgfeld is a student senator, student representative to the Honors Committee and a member of Circle K International and the Premedical Careers Club. He is also active in intramural sports.

He is secretary of Phi Eta Sigma honor society and belongs to Gamma Sigma Epsilon and Cap and Gown. He is also recipient of Williams-Dwyer and Robert A. Welch scholarships.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A.H. Borgfeld Jr. of Wichita Falls.

In other awards Sunday, Mark Hatch, 20, a chemistry major, was awarded a $1,200 scholarship by Wichita County Medical Society, and Aaron Angel, 19, a biology major, was awarded the $400 Mark Lax Medical Scholarship.

In a unique selection process, Angel was chosen by a committee of MSU students who have been accepted for entrance by medical schools next year.

Juniors Doris George and Michael Leach were awarded $400 B.B. Greever Pre-Medicine Scholarships.

Outstanding student awards in the School of Business went to Hank Rugeley, outstanding senior in economics; Jill S. Allen, outstanding student in accounting; Claude D. Brown, outstanding senior in business administration; Michael K. Kelly, outstanding senior in management science; Teresa Patricia Deutsch, outstanding senior in secretarial administration; Robert Felty, oustanding senior in finance; and Martha Helen Hornbake, outstanding female graduate student in business.

School of Education honorees include Jane Tettleton, outstanding elementary education student; Barry Lucy, outstanding secondary education student; Patsy Smith, Association for Childhood Education; Juanita Gibson, Council for Exceptional Children; Margaret Hendricks, Student Education Association; Bruce Eubanks, outstanding physical education man; Rebecka Bogart, outstanding physical education woman.

In the School of Humanities and Social Sciences, Steven Scott Draper and Barry Don Lucy tied for outstanding English student.

Vinson Awards in creative writing went to Wolfgang Richter, first place, and Steven Draper, second place, short story; Richter, first, and Leslie D. Ritter, second, poetry; Richter, first, and Ritter, second, essay; and Richter, special award.

Vinson Awards in journalism went to Aileen Ryan, first, and Dewey Mitchell, second, editorial writing; Doug Brown, first, and Susan Denney, second, feature writing; Michelle Muth, first, Carrie Rowe, second, news writing; Muth and Brown, tie, special award; and Muth, B.D. Donnell Award.

Other winners include Catherine Albertson, Kerry Johnston and Becky Hawkins, Myrtle Ledford Awards in Music; Billy Brasfield and Nancy Tate, Madge Davis Choristers of the Year; Debbie Rowland, university chorale award; Stacia Edwards, Marcella Day Coleman Scholarship for the Performing Arts; Marshell Bradley, outstanding student in philosophy; Toni Baggett, political science scholar of the year; Randall Pope, criminal justice scholar of the year; Joseph K. Boyd, outstanding psychology student; Elizabeth Grauerholz, outstanding sociology student; and Kerry Love, outstanding forensics student.

Outstanding foreign language students include Dorothy Pribilski, French; Marietta A. Brooks, German; and Mrs. Marie DaSilva Edwards, Spanish.

School of Sciences and Mathematics winners include Vicki Riley, Reginald Schleider and Paul Duesterheft, biology achievement awards; Scott Hertel, geology achievement award; Teresa A. George, Rene Descartes Award; Tu Dinh Huynh, outstanding student in mathematics; Wen-Li Chang, outstanding student in computer science; Karen Ramos, outstanding first-year nursing student; Rita Gray, outstanding second-year nursing student; Ja Na Hall, outstanding medical technology student; Tom J. Whelan, outstanding radiologic technology student; Debra Paulett Price, outstanding dental hygiene student; Glynn Germany, Cicero H. Bernard Scholarship; Barbara Boatman and Thomas Gower, Wallace and Freida Ryle Scholarship; Ralf Brueckner, outstanding graduating senior in chemistry; De Khiem Nguyen, Chemical Rubber Co. Award; and Elisa Nail, Wichita Falls-Duncan American Chemical Society Award.

Cadet John Adam Humphries III was named ROTC outstanding basic course cadet, and Cadet Robert Allen Wharton was named outstanding advanced course cadet.

Lori Brown and Lisa Agricola received Wichita Falls Art Association awards.

Robert A. Welch Foundation Scholarship recipients include Robert Wallace, Joe Palkowetz, Joe Bryan, Mike Spahis, Mark Hatch, Michael Leach, Linda Shallow, Valen Radimecky, David Flack, Mitchell Magee, John W. Meux, Steven Sorey, Laurie Young, Elisa Nail, Kim Monson, Paul Borgfeld, Mark Suggs, Ralf Brueckner, David Callender and Metin Gezer.

Other scholarship winners include Clavin Kelly Campbell, W.J. Thomas Memorial Scholarship; Rebecka Bogart, fall Travis White student teaching scholarship; and Patsy Smith, spring Travis White student teaching scholarship.

Geological sciences department scholarships were awarded to Scott Hertel, Mark Rippetoe, John Forehand, Jeff Ritchie, Brad Curtis, David W. Erickson, Joan Loran, William L. Sharon Jr., Mark Thomerson and Bob Wellman.

Other scholarship recipients include Georgia Green, Phi Delta Kappa Scholarship; Doris George, Sunrise Optimist Club Scholarship; Doris George, Charisse Rigsby, Mark Puder and William Rovnak, Mrs. Timothy Ann Sloan scholarships; Phu Van Vo, Cicero H. Bernard Scholarship; Glynn Allen Germany, Wallace and Freida Ryle Scholarship; and Mary Moore, Laura Meux, Barbara Gormley and Mary Cannedy, Mr. and Mrs. Syd Gaines Scholarships for Medical Technology.

Vietnam's path since unification utensils, as well as of medicines that were once imported from China.

Vietnam's policy-makers cannot be totally blamed for the nation's economic woes. A widespread drought in 1977 was followed last year by one of the worst periods of flooding in recent history. Official statistics say about 3 million tons of rice were lost and some analysts predict a deficit of 3-4 million tons in food grains this year.

It is also difficult to assign blame in the conflicts with China and Cambodia.

Analysts say the anti-Soviet Chinese have reasons for trying to disrupt the development of their pro-Soviet neighbor. They also note that for more than a year before the Vietnamese invasion of Cambodia, Cambodian troops had staged bloody raids into Vietnam. Vietnam also has been burdened with almost 200,000 refugees who fled the repressive regime of ousted Cambodian Premier Pol Pot.

Whatever the cause, Vietnam's aging leadership of veteran revolutionaries has chosen, at least for now, a policy of guns-over-rice.

In 1977, Hanoi gave up its gradual approach to socialist transition in southern Vietnam, speeding up its timetable by almost three years with the overnight elimination of free enterprise. The move shattered the highly commercial Chinese community in southern Vietnam, leading to a large-scale exodus of ethnic Chinese.

About a half-million ethnic Chinese and Vietnamese have fled since 1975, stripping southern Vietnam of badly needed managers, technical experts, doctors and other highly trained individuals.

Last year's border feud with China, which broke into open warfare two months ago, halted about 70 Chinese-sponsored projects and cut off an estimated $300 million a year in aid from Peking.

While many of the Chinese who fled call themselves "economic refugees," others cite loss of basic freedoms, lack of a future for their children and fear of "re-education" as their reasons for leaving.

Cyclist injured

Travis D. Henderson II, 19, of Wichita Falls was reported in satisfactory condition Sunday night at Wichita General Hospital after injuring his right hand in a one-vehicle mishap in the 4700 block of Bonny shortly before 4 p.m., according to reports.

Police said Henderson was riding his motorcycle south when the vehicle apparently hit a curb and fell over.

Fire damages house

A fire of undetermined origin Sunday night caused an estimated $500 building damage and another $500 damage to the contents of a house at 810 Fort Worth, according to reports.

The fire was reported shortly after 9:30 p.m. and was declared out shortly after 10 p.m. Fourteen firefighters assisted in putting out the blaze.

Senators plan strategy to delay several bills

AUSTIN (AP) — Filibuster-prone senators plan to stall several bills if they come up this week, including lower usury penalties and employer self-insurance against workers' compensation claims.

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, and others began their delaying tactics last week and won a partial victory.

They prolonged debate over a strip mining bill while working in the wings to force compromise on a revision of the state's consumer credit code.

Doggett says Sen. Grant Jones, author of the credit code bill, agreed to several changes. Jones, D-Abilene, says the bill will rewrite state law according to existing federal guidelines and eliminate red tape from having two separate codes.

If Doggett's target bills do not tie up Senate debate, a controversial presidential primary bill could face its first floor test.

Sen. Jack Ogg, D-Houston, says time is running out for his primary bill. He wants to hold a March 1980 presidential primary separate from general party primaries in May.

State chairmen of both the Republican and Democratic parties criticize Ogg's bill as an invitation to crossover voting.

The author needs 21 votes to secure Senate consideration. However, 13 Republican and Democratic senators have signed a letter opposing it.

Doggett and others blocked debate last week of Sen. John Traeger's bill to let large employers drop their workers' compensation insurance and pay for on-the-job injuries out of their own assets. Opponents argue the measure would put employees in a sticky situation of suing their employers to settle claims.

Traeger has switched enough votes to worry Doggett's team.

One team member, Sen. Bill Patman, said he is ready for prolonged argument, if necessary, against lowering penalties for illegal interest rates.

Patman, D-Ganado, is a longtime critic of higher interest rates.

Council to consider parking plan

person to pull into a curb-side space without the awkward procedure necessary in traditional parallel parking.

Two items recommended for midtown by Midtown Now and the Downtown Association will not be considered at Tuesday's meeting.

One proposal is to change parking meter enforcement hours from 8 a.m.-6 p.m. to 8 a.m.-4 p.m.

"This should help somewhat in keeping early employees from getting the parking meters and keeping them all day. After 4 p.m., the parking would be free, maybe encouraging some shoppers to shop downtown," J.C. Boyd, executive director of Midtown Now, said.

The two groups also asked the city to consider implementing center parking on Indiana.

Ilschner said both of these items will be considered by the traffic commission before consideration by the council.

Other items on the council agenda include approving a consultant for the water rate study and extending the state of emergency disaster in the city for seven days.

The council will meet at 8:30 a.m. in the council chambers of Memorial Auditorium.

ETERNAL LIFE INSURANCE?

The past several days in our community there have been few subjects discussed more than insurance. Some were adequately insured, some under insured, and some had no insurance at all. People today insure just about everything from houses, furnishings, cars, to even their lives. But how many think about INSURANCE ON THE SOUL? In this insurance the benefits are paid directly to all who participate. Each insured participates in benefits now (Eph.1:3; Phil.4:7; Acts 2:38; 3:19) and has the assurance of eternal life one day-Mk.10:30. The policy, however, must be kept up or forfeit all rights-1Cor.9:27; 10:12. One can get in God's grace but he can also fall from it-Gal.5:4. One's physical health has nothing to do with acceptance since all are invited-Mt.11:28-30; Rev.22:17. The insured must agree to faithfully serve God in every way-2Pet.1:5-11; Rev.2:10) or his insurance will be cancelled. There probably have been some insurance companies which have not paid at all for a lack of funds, and maybe others for a lack of integrity, but for sure God has always kept His Word and will continue to do so-Heb.6:18. NEIGHBOR, would you like to be INSURED ETERNALLY? You may be upon the terms of FAITH-Heb.11:6; Mk.16:16, REPENTANCE-Acts 17:30; Acts 2:38; CONFESSION OF CHRIST-Acts 8:37f, BAPTISM FOR THE REMISSION OF SINS-Acts 2:38; 22:16; Mk.16:16, and a faithful life of service to God-Rev.2:10; 1Cor.15:58. Yes, men insure just about everything and often think of social security, but why not think about SPIRITUAL LIFE INSURANCE and ETERNAL SECURITY? All welcome where the Bible is always taught. Photographer left rich nature legacy

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Not long ago, on March 26, press photographers' cameras and world attention were focused on the signing of the historic peace treaty between Israel and Egypt in Washington.

It was a formidable first step, a bond between two nations that had been enemies for years, and a ray of hope for genuine peace in the Middle East lit the way.

To a small group of nature photographers, March 1979 had another special significance. It was the first anniversary of the death of Gail Rubin, 39, an American-born wildlife photographer, in Israel.

She was the first victim of a Palestinian terrorist raid in March 1978 on the Mediterranean coast at the Ma'agan Michael Nature Reserve, where she was photographing flocks of birds. That raid went on and left 34 Israelis dead and 80 wounded when it ended four hours later.

A landmark with a prospect for permanent peace is a significant way to remember the first anniversary of Gail Rubin's death and to recall the legacy she left in photography. She grew up in New York, was graduated from the Dalton School and Finch College in Manhattan and established herself as a top nature photographer.

She went to Israel as a nature lover searching out the animals, birds, flowers and people of the country. Her photographs were published in many wildlife magazines and last winter she had a photographic exhibition at the Jewish Museum in New York.

One of her favorite photographic retreats was at Ein Gedi near the Dead Sea, where she studied and photographed the Nubian ibex, the agile mountain goat often mentioned in the Bible.

Another was the nature reserve at Ma'agan Michael north of Tel Aviv. Migratory birds criss-crossing Israel find it an attraction because it has fish ponds where kibbutzers breed carp, mullet and other fish.

It's ironic that on the day she was found by another breed of deadly hunters, the weather was so unattractive and stormy that she was the only one who had ventured out. She was glad she could take pictures of the birds undisturbed by other visitors. She never returned.

The Israeli government took notice of the danger to the ibex in 1955 and initiated a program of conservation of it and all wild animals and birds mentioned in the Bible. Official regulations made certain all species would be preserved and allowed to proliferate.

The nature reserve at Ein Gedi has an Ibex observatory where people can watch the animals in their natural environment and take pictures if they have proper telephoto equipment.

Gail Rubin wrote an article entitled "The Ibex of the Bible is Alive and Well" and noted that Ein Gedi, which is Hebrew for "Spring of the Kid," long had been associated with the Nubian ibex.

She described the Hai-Bar Reserve for Animals of the Bible, recently opened to the public in Israel's Arava desert. It has the largest captive herd, 60 ibex that live in specially designed "no stress" conditions.

Gail Rubin left no doubt she considered Israel's sturdy mountain goats a natural resource of the country, one that needed and was getting government protection.

Her love of the animals and other free and natural wild life brought Gail Rubin to Israel, and to an untimely end.

Waldheim goes to Peking in campaign for peace

PEKING (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim brought his campaign for peace in Southeast Asia to Peking Sunday and told Chinese leaders that unless the situation is defused quickly it could "deteriorate further with consequences far beyond this region."

Waldheim was referring to the stalled peace talks between China and Vietnam after their month-long border war, and Vietnam's continuing war in Cambodia.

"It is therefore imperative that all efforts be directed towards finding a settlement in conformity with the principles of the charter of the United Nations," Waldheim said at a banquet given in his honor at the Great Hall of the People by Foreign Minister Huang Hua.

The search for such a solution is the reason for Waldheim's current Asian tour. He was politely but firmly rebuffed in Vietnam, where Prime Minister Pham Van Dong told him Vietnam was not interested in formal mediation.

Vietnam, meanwhile, said Sunday that China's eight-point peace proposal was a clear indication that the Chinese have not given up their policies of "hostility and hegemony" against Vietnam.

As expected, Waldheim got a warmer reception in China, where the leadership had encouraged his mission, than in Vietnam.

At the seven-course banquet, Huang described Waldheim as "an esteemed and well-acquainted friend of ours."

Huang used the occasion to denounce Vietnam, declaring, "the developments in Indochina call for universal concern." He asserted that Vietnam's drive into Cambodia "was instigated and supported by superpower hegemonism," a clear reference to the Soviet Union, which backs Vietnam.

Waldheim had earlier described the peace negotiations between China and Vietnam as deadlocked because both sides were adamant in their positions.

"It will be a long process to solve the problem," Waldheim told reporters. "The Chinese want to introduce all the elements of the problem into the discussions, including Cambodia and border matters. But the Vietnamese do not want to discuss Cambodia."

At the banquet, Waldheim said: "I remain ready, as I have stated in the past, to do my utmost to be helpful to the governments concerned, to make a contibrution in the search for peace and better understanding."

The Vietnam News Agency, quoting a commentary in Hanoi's Communist Party newspaper Nhan Dan, said the Chinese peace plan and a speech by a Chinese delegate to the negotiations had "distorted history and reality" by describing China as a "victim" and blaming others for what Nhan Dan described as Chinese crimes.

China's chief delegate to the talks, Vice Foreign Minister Jan Nienlong (Han Nien-lung), offered the eight-point proposal at the second round of the peace conference last Thursday in Hanoi.

It included a call for the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops from Cambodia and the return to Vietnam of more than 150,000 ethnic Chinese who fled to China during last year's border skirmishing.

The news agency report, monitored in Bangkok, said Vietnam's three-point peace plan, already rejected by China, was more realistic and provided a basis for the settlement of fundamental differences between the two countries.

The Vietnamese proposal called for the establishment of a demilitarized zone along the border, an exchange of prisoners from the border war that flared Feb. 17, and the creation of a joint commission to oversee the peace. It was proposed at the first round of talks on April 18.

Japan's Kyodo news service, meanwhile, quoted informed sources in Peking as saying a major meeting of the Communist Party leadership was under way here, presumably to consider changes in China's political and economic policies.

Police probe deaths of mother, children

MOORESVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Investigators ruled out robbery as a motive as they returned to a shallow creek bed near here Sunday to resume a hunt for leads in the slayings of a young divorced mother and her three children.

"There is nothing different we can tell you," a state police spokesman said. "The investigators have all gone back out there."

Two unidentified persons hunting mushrooms on a muddy trail in a heavily wooded area Saturday morning stumbled upon the the body of Terry Lee Chasteen, 21, of Indianapolis beneath heavy brush in the creek.

The body of her daughter, Misty Ann Chasteen, 5, was found next to the bank a few yards away. About 300 yards downstream, the bodies of her two sons, Stephen Michael Chasteen, 4, and Mark Lewis Chasteen, 2, were found in the water next to the creek bank.

Mrs. Chasteen died by strangulation, said State Police Sgt. Jerry Conner. He said the children apparently drowned.

"Right now I have no idea why it happened," Conner said.

Conner said Mrs. Chasteen apparently was taking the children to a baby-sitter for the day. He said there was no indication she was robbed.

Mrs. Chasteen was divorced about two years ago, authorities said, and her ex-husband is in the Navy in California.

Conner said he believed the family was killed at the creek at about 8 a.m. Saturday.

Mrs. Chasteen, a supermarket clerk in Indianapolis, was wearing her clerk's jacket when her body was found. She had been expected at work at 7 a.m.. Mooresville is about 10 miles southeast of Indianapolis.

The bodies were found shortly after 9 a.m. and police had taken them to a funeral home for autopsies by noon.

High prices worry Texaco dealers

By KATHLEEN CARROLL
Associated Press Writer

The high price of gasoline isn't just a sore spot with consumers. Texaco operators say they are paying more and more for the precious fluid, and those prices, coupled with rising rent payments and allocation cutbacks, are making their business tougher and tougher.

And, some dealers said, they are the brunt of consumer anger over everything from the rising cost of fuel to the political situation in the Middle East.

Last week, Texaco reported a first-quarter net income of $137.27 million, a profit increase of 81 percent over last year.

"Texaco is plumb out of the ballpark," said Dave Cook, who runs a Texaco service station in Lubbock. "Their gas is so much higher, I've got a competitor who pays eight cents less a gallon than I do. I'm lucky he's a small station.

"The only people who are sticking by us are the true-hearted Texaco customers plus those people who don't have much choice. Like when I'm the only station open," Cook added. "Why should they pay more for self-serve than they can for full-serve down the street? They drive on through, and I don't blame them.

"A lot of dealers figure Texaco is the first to go up and the last to come down."

Texaco wholesale distributor Thomas "Buck" Abraham agreed the situation isn't good, but he says customers don't always give the dealers a fair break.

"I don't know why everyone has to put a black hat on everybody in the oil business," he said.

Dale Maron, who runs a Texaco in Tyler, says he's paying for gasoline, but his regular customers keep him going.

"My prices are high, I'll be the first to admit it," he said. "But I've got to pass it on to the customer.

"And I'm still below ceiling."

Texaco spokesman Tom Norwood in Houston admitted the company is higher in price than many competitors, but said the increases are legitimate.

"I can appreciate that they (the dealers) are unhappy," he said. "We are unhappy with the situation in that we are having to allocate our product and all the while costs are going up continually."

"It's a bad deal for all of us," said Barney Crawford, another Tyler station operator, saying he has been stung by escalating lease prices. "I signed a 3-year lease 18 months ago and it really jumped then. Before then, I paid rent according to the number of gallons I pumped. It was an incentive to stay open 24 hours. But now, if I don't get but 20,000 gallons a month, I still gotta pay the same rent."

Jack Stults, a Dallas dealer, said his rent "jumped from $1,300 to $1,800 a month."

Amin aide held in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Deposed dictator Idi Amin's right-hand man, British-born Robert Astles, is still being held in Kenya, contrary to reports he was returned to Uganda, Kenyan President Daniel Arap Moi said Sunday.

Moi made the statement during services at St. Stephen's Anglican Church.

On Saturday, Kenyan government sources and a man who claimed to have witnessed the scene at Uganda's Entebbe Airport said Astles had been extradited to Uganda.

A Ugandan government official said Sunday that Astles was to have been returned Saturday but that there was no secure place in which to hold him. All the prisons in Kampala were opened, and some were wrecked, by invading Tanzanian troops and Ugandan exiles who captured the city and ousted Amin earlier this month.

The Ugandan official said it was only a matter of days or weeks before Astles is returned to face charges. Last week Ugandan Attorney General George Kanyaihamba said the government of President Yusufu Lule was undecided as to what the charges would be.

Files in the offices of Amin's dreaded State Research Bureau, which was responsible for the arrest, torture or death of hundreds of thousands of Amin's real or imagined enemies, show Astles to have been involved with the bureau's murderous activities.

In Vatican City on Sunday, Pope John Paul II said he had learned that an Italian missionary, the Rev. Lorenzo Bono, had been slain in northern Uganda. Details of his death were not available.

The pope, addressing a crowd of 100,000 in St. Peter's Square, prayed "that the Ugandan people can find peace again, that no further blood is shed and that the spirit of reconciliation prevails."

Broadcasters ask for deregulation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Association of Broadcasters is urging the Federal Communications Commission to deregulate small-market radio stations, saying fears are unfounded that deregulation would result in less public service.

John A. Summers, NAB executive vice president, said it appears the FCC may try to exclude small-market radio stations from any deregulation plan for fear it would hurt public service programming. However, Summers said, FCC files show that small-market stations far exceed commission standards for non-entertainment programming.

Town under water

The small town of Joliette, N.D., just south of the Canadian border, is inundated with the rising waters of the Red River, which has spread itself over thousands of acres on its run to Canada. The flooding has displaced thousands of persons. (AP Photo)

Residents work to save town from flood

PEMBINA, N.D. (AP) — For seven straight days, residents of this upper Red River Valley town just two miles from the Canadian border have labored around the clock to keep a sea of water from washing over their protective dikes.

"If a dike broke, we'd have five feet of water in town, and we're table-top flat," said Ed Jundt, who directs the flood-fighting efforts for the 850 townspeople.

"The dike in south Pembina in some places is 20 feet high, and water is splashing over the top."

Jundt didn't know Sunday if the worst was yet to come as the flood crest on the north-flowing Red River continued its relentless push into Canada, where mandatory evacuations have been ordered in some areas.

"Flood stage here is 42 feet," Jundt said, "and the water is 11 feet above that. The National Weather Service predicted a flood crest of 53 and a half feet on Tuesday, but we're 53.6 now."

The Red is on its biggest rampage of the century, isolating hundreds of rural dwellers and inundating a score of towns in the flat valley terrain.

Nearly 1 million acres have been under water the last two weeks in the 200-mile-long valley.

The normally calm river is about 100 yards wide at Pembina, "but it's 10 to 15 miles wide here now," Jundt continued. "The big loss is to farmers, who have thousands and thousands of bushels of grain stored on their farms. A lot of farmers have moved out."

Across the Canadian border in Morris, Manitoba, Albert Kran's face bristled with anger as he shouted, "God damn, I'm well able to look after myself and I can work, don't think you're going to kick me out."

Jack Murray, mayor of the usually thriving agricultural community of 1,800, about 40 miles south of Winnipeg, tried patiently to explain to the 69-year-old retired farmer that he must go, the town is in danger, real danger, and only the young and strong were staying to help strengthen the dike that surrounds the community.

"I've lived here since 1919 and I'm not leaving just because the stupid government pushes the panic button," Kran said.

And Mayor Murray, looking down the wide and now completely deserted main street of this town in the Red River Valley where the waters are rising and day by day, admits Kran isn't the only one who doesn't want to go.

At night the mayor and one of his aides go from house to house checking to see if any lights are on. It's the only way they can really tell if people have obeyed the evacuation order.

And now, just two days before the water is expected to peak, only a few more than 100 persons are left along with soldiers flown in to help and to keep eyes open for possible looting.

Meanwhile, the National Weather Service said the swollen Mississippi River should remain at its crest of 47.9 feet through Tuesday at Vicksburg, Miss., and was expected to crest at 54.7 feet Sunday downstream at Natchez.

In the lower Mississippi Delta, about 450,000 acres remained flooded because continuing high water on the Mississippi River is keeping rivers and streams from draining.

George Mullendore, a cotton specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service, has said the flooding will hurt cotton farmers in the area. "We're looking for anything from no cotton to just a fraction of the percentage they would like to have," he said.

Vietnamese boat people arrive in Iowa

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Hailing Gov. Robert D. Ray as a "savior," 167 tired Vietnamese boat people arrived in Iowa on Sunday to begin new lives in America's heartland. "We promise to be useful," a spokesman said.

A large sign greeted 154 of the refugees who went to Camp Dodge. It read: "Chao Mung Cac Ban den Iowa" — "Welcome to Iowa."

And the refugees responded with a sign of their own. "We the boat people are grateful to Governor Ray and the Iowans. Thanks to all of you who has welcomed us with your opened arms," it said.

"We feel like we have been reborn in this wonderful state," said Nglyea Tu Cuong, from Saigon, spokesman for the first of as many as 1,500 boat people expected to settle in Iowa this year.

The group — some ill after a 24-hour flight from Malasyia, where most lived aboard crowded boats after fleeing Vietnam — were met by the governor at Camp Dodge where they will be given food and clothes then matched with sponsor families

"You set out in search of a place where you can live in freedom. For some of you that meant living loved ones behind. We hope this marks the end of the journey for you and a new beginning," said Ray.

"We promise to help you. We won't guarantee your success. But your sponsors truly want you to succeed," added the governor.

Ray had told President Jimmy Carter that Iowa could accomodate 1,500 boat people this year.

"We feel like Governor Ray is our savior. We pray that other states will take his lead and follow," said Cuong. "We promise to be useful."

The Iowa Refugee Service Center will place the boat people, and its director, Colleen Shearer, welcomed the refugees in their native language. Her effort was received with many laughs and smiles.

Most of the refugees wore only light clothing and sandals in the 50-degree weather. Many children wore only shorts and small tops.

Dr. Patriz Orduna, an assistant public health director for Des Moines and Polk County, said many children had sore throats and diarrhea from the long flight.

There were 196 refugees on board the charter flight. Twenty traveled on to Chicago, where they will stay at Hawthorn Hill, a United Methodist Retreat Center, until Tuesday.

Another nine Vietnamese were going to Minneapolis, Minn., and stayed at the Des Moines Airport to await their flight. Thirteen were sponsored by the U.S. Catholic Conference and the Lutheran Immigration and Refugee Services and also will settle in Iowa.

Women's group vows 'no kidding around'

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — The president of the National Organization for Women says the group is through "kidding around" and plans to get more aggressive — especially on the Equal Rights Amendment.

"NOW has taken on a 'no more kidding around' mental attitude," Ellie Smeal told a state conference held Saturday at Yale Divinity School. Ms. Smeal, who claimed the organization's membership is more than 100,000, said NOW has "taken on the opposition (to ERA) ...in 10 states and defeated them soundly in nine." She vowed to continue the ERA fight.

W.P. Davenport

W.P. Davenport, 79, of 100 Bailey died Sunday in a Wichita Falls nursing home.

Graveside services will be at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in Lakeview Cemetery under direction of Young & Co. Funeral Home.

Davenport was born Jan. 7, 1900, in Sherman, Texas. He had resided in Wichita Falls 55 years and was a laborer.

Survivors include a son, John D. Davenport of Denver, Colo.

The family will be at 1613 Harrell Lane.

Study of violent delinquents indicates psychiatric problems

CHICAGO (AP) — Nearly all of the violent delinquents studied in a Connecticut reform school by Yale University researchers have been found to have brain or neurologic disorders or psychiatric problems.

Dr. Jonathan H. Pincus, a neurologist on the research team, says this suggests that factors other than socio-economic conditions may contribute to violent behavior in delinquents.

Pincus, reporting the study at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Neurology last week, said 96 percent of the violent delinquents studied were found to have neurologic abnormalities compared to 22 percent of a nonviolent group in the same institution.

Results of the study, he said in an interview, may indicate that a different type of treatment is needed for such youths. But until such treatment is available, Pincus said, he favors institutionalizing them.

The 97 youths studied, under age 16, included 78 who were classified as violent and 19 who were nonviolent. Both groups were given psychological and neurological examinations.

The neurologist said three out of four of the violent children had been seriously abused by their parents or caretakers as compared with a third of the less violent. This abuse, he said, included being hit with a belt buckle or whip, being burned and beaten with a stick and other severe forms of abuse.

The violent group had more frequent occurrence of memory lapses, history of blackouts, dizzy spells followed by fatigue or headache, dreamlike states, unusual anxiety attacks and hallucinations involving taste, smell, hearing, touch and sight.

Members of this group also had such symptoms as small heads, enlarged brains, abnormal foot reflexes, a history of convulsive seizures, twitchy movements and other indications of lack of limb coordination. The violent group also had lower IQs.

The violent delinquents also tended to be paranoid and have loose, rambling, illogical thought patterns, Pincus reported.

Pincus said it is not likely that psychotherapy or educational or social programs would be be useful without some type of medication in treating the violent youngsters.

"These children have disease of the nervous system of psychotic proportion," he said.

He pointed out that only about 10 percent of delinquent youths who show up in court are violent.

Sooner DA to begin extradition of Coleman from Arizona

MUSKOGEE, Okla. (AP) — Muskogee County District Attorney Mike Turpen said Sunday he will begin extradition proceedings Monday to return escaped murder suspect Charles Troy Coleman here from Tucson, Ariz.

In addition, Turpen said he would file charges Monday against two of Coleman's relatives who allegedly were involved in a scheme to deliver about $40,000 worth of heroin to Coleman after his escape, in an effort to provide the fugitive with enough money to flee to Mexico.

The alleged plot was worked out in a telephone call Coleman made to one of the relatives from the Muskogee County Jail on Easter Sunday, Turpen said.

Coleman, 31, was captured near Tucson Saturday night after a deputy sheriff he had kidnapped broke free and radioed for help, authorities in Arizona said.

Coleman escaped from the Muskogee County Jail April 23, while awaiting trial on charges of murdering Mr. and Mrs. John Seward of rural Muskogee last Feb. 9. Authorities allege that Coleman killed the couple when they surprised him during a burglary.

In addition to his own extradition plans, Turpen said the Tulsa County district attorney's office is interested in extraditing Coleman in connection with the shooting death of Russell E. Lewis Jr., 49, of the St. Louis, Mo., area.

Oklahoma

Lt. Milton Robinson of the Tulsa County sheriff's office said a railroad crew discovered Lewis' body Saturday in Tulsa, just a few hours before Coleman's capture.

Authorities said Coleman was driving Lewis' pickup truck at the time of his arrest near Tucson.

Preliminary medical reports indicated Lewis had been shot once in the head and had been dead since about Thursday, Robinson said.

Coleman also faces charges in Oklahoma County, for allegedly slashing the neck of Luther polce officer Tommi Dotson and stealing a shotgun and pistol from Dotson after the officer stopped him on a traffic complaint Tuesday.

"I hope to meet with the others interested in trying him (Coleman) and try to convice them our case is perhaps the most serious and the farthest along," Turpen said, explaining Coleman has already completed a preliminary hearing and is now ready to face trial in the Seward murders.

Corrections probe to resume Monday

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — A legislative investigation of the state Corrections Department will resume at 10 a.m. Monday.

The probe is focusing on Corrections Director Ned Benton's role in an emergency prison funding request, and the firing of Deputy Corrections Director Paul Inbody.

Inbody is scheduled to continue his testimony Monday.

Members of the committee gave both Benton and Inbody high marks on their presentations.

They said the committee's deliberations this week will be an effort to establish who is telling the truth in connection with the Inbody firing and circumstances surrounding a $13.6 million prison funding plan that ultimately was slashed to $6 million by lawmakers.

Inbody claims he was fired by Benton for telling House Speaker Dan Draper that Benton was seeking millions of dollars more than was needed to upgrade prisons to court-ordered standards.

Benton denies that was the reason he fired Inbody, and has also denied he tried to pad his funding request.

Some members of the committee said that even if it is shown that Benton tried to pad his department's budget, that fact alone would not justify a push to have the corrections official removed, as sought by Draper and other lawmakers.

Rep. Carl Twidwell of Spencer, head of the joint investigative panel, said it appears the investigation probably will extend into a third week.

Community bulletin board

For as long as it is needed, Wichita Falls Times and Record News as a public service will publish in all of its editions a Community Bulletin Board listing information of a public nature concerning the recovery of Wichita Falls from the April 10 tornado.

Gathering information for the bulletin board will be the responsibility of the community relations department of the newspapers.

The daily listings will be designed to act as a referral service for those affected by the tornado and to keep the general public informed about the city's status as the massive recovery effort continues.

All directors of agencies who have information in the public interest are urged to contact the community relations department of the Times and Record News between the hours of 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Monday through Friday at 767-8341, extension 258, or by coming to Times Square, 1301 Lamar.

Red Cross

Service Center

Beginning Monday the Red Cross will operate a full service center at MSU Clark Student Center, only. A Red Cross information center has been set up at the Disaster Assistance Center located in Washington School, 700 Flood. Hours for both are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Rehabilitation

The Texas Rehabilitation Commission, 1000 Brook, can provide help to the handicapped or those who are vocationally handicapped as a result of disaster injuries. Services include helping storm victims and other handicapped to return to work. Call 322-7887.

Unemployment

To better serve individuals who are filing for unemployment benefits, the Texas Employment Commission has opened an office at 926 Indiana. Hours are 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Claimants who have filed at the TEC office at 1101 11th should also report to the new Indiana Ave. location.

Unemployment assistance will continue to be available at Federal Disaster Centers.

Housing

Federal Disaster Assistance Administration housing director in Wichita Falls is asking persons who know of any available houses, apartments, or multi-family units to call 855-8601 or 855-8501. Ask for David Gelles or Ann-Marie Ladner.

Contractors

Persons desiring information on out-of-city contractors can call a toll-free number, according to the Wichita Falls Board of Commerce and Industry.

South Plains Better Business Bureau has established the number. Persons with a complaint about a contractor should notify the bureau at the same number. Call 1-800-692-4466.

Tetanus Shots

Two cases of tetanus have been reported. Those with wounds acquired in the tornado or in cleanup who have not received a tetnus shot should see their private doctor or obtain the shot from the Wichita City-County Health Unit, 1700 Third.

Federal Center

A Disaster Assistance Service Center is open at Washington School, 700 Flood. Hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday indefinitely.

Purpose of the service center is to provide assistance to applicants in filling out forms or to answer questions regarding applications and to accept new applications.

Food

Red Cross continues to provide sandwiches and drinks in roving vans to people working in the disaster area.

Baby-sitting

A Saturday baby-sitting service is offered by the Teens of Trinity, at Trinity American Lutheran Church, 3505 Kemp, to assist families who are tornado victims in working on their homes. If you plan to use this service, please call ahead at 692-0094.

For 'umbrella' agency

Texas' Sunset Commission has begun a study of "umbrella" licensing of professionals, which would use a single agency to qualify and license architects, engineers and other professionals.

Opponents of single-agency licensing argue that only architects, for example, can fairly pass on other architects, or physicians on other physicians.

However, there's more to the problem and its solution than simply making political appointments to a licensing commission. Twenty six states already use single administrative organizations to license professionals.

Advantages given for these single-agency licensing organizations is better business management, improved personnel practices, improved licensing and enforcement activities, improved protection of the public interest and increased accountability.

The last two advantages alone would make an efficient, effective single licensing agency worthwhile. Having lawyers police the activities of other lawyers, or physicians police activities of other physicians, depending on circumstances of particular cases, can be described as akin to turning a fox loose in a chicken house to manage the farm's egg production.

A central agency could be made accountable to a public commission of representatives of all professions under the agency's purview, along with representative outsiders, to license practitioners of all professions and rule on problems, and problem members, of all.

We see such an agency as beneficial to professions and the general public alike.

Boondoggle, not boon

Our federal government has been in the education business since 1867, when sub-cabinet Department of Education was established. It was soon downgraded to the Bureau of Education and placed under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior. Later it became part of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Now 112 years have passed and quality of public education, at least in the last 50 years, has steadily deteriorated. Since the early 1960s an increasing clamor has been heard for establishment of a cabinet-level Department of Education.

The cabinet-level department is being promoted as a boon to education. We feel it would be a boon to the federal bureaucracy and the education establishment, but a boondoggle to teachers and students, where emphasis should be placed.

Education is under attack from other directions, notably alleged dilution of academics. Perhaps this could have occurred without contribution of the federal education bureaucrats, but many experts in education feel it's fact.

Early federal efforts on education were aimed at spreading availability of public education. At this stage, what additional role could the federal government play in education that would benefit students? We challenge proponents of increased federal involvement in education to demonstrate just what benefit it would have on academic standards, quality of instruction and the learning process in general.

Unless these improvements can be justified, a separate federal Department of Education would be nothing more than a costly mistake.

A challenge for charisma

By MARTHA ANGLE
& ROBERT WALTERS

LEBANON, N.H. — For a clear indication of which candidate has surpassed all others, Democrats and Republicans alike, in organizing for the 1980 presidential campaign, glance around the family den in businessman Roger Wood's home.

Displayed atop the piano in a place of honor is a color photograph of Rep. Philip M. Crane. "I'm looking forward to working with you over the next two years," says the handwritten inscription. "Warmest regards, Phil."

The memento is a mass-produced item, one of thousands of identical copies. But behind it lies the story of a political organization that has outpaced all others ever since it was created last summer to support the presidential aspirations of the conservative Republican from Illinois.

Late last year, Crane's campaign staff organized a mass mailing aimed at about 20,000 influential Republicans, ranging from grassroots activists and precinct chairmen to officers of county and state GOP committees throughout the nation.

Each recipient was invited to join Crane's "National Advisory Council," a nebulous institution whose principal purpose apparently is to act as a reservoir for Crane support. Those who accepted, almost 1,400 so far, received the inscribed photo as a reminder of their commitment.

The significance of that sophisticated operation lies in the fact that it was well under way at a time when most other contenders hadn't even prepared the basic piece of campaign literature, the throwaway pamphlet or leaflet invariably distributed by aides during the candidate's handshaking tours.

Other presidential hopefuls now have assembled paid staffs ranging from a half-dozen to a dozen people, Crane has a campaign payroll of about 30 full-time organizers, most working from national headquarters in a northern Virginia suburb of Washington.

Crane's first group of field organizers already is in place, in New Hampshire and in other states that will hold early primaries or precinct caucuses, including Iowa, Florida and Illinois.

Crane's 22 trips to New Hampshire far exceed the total of any other White House aspirant. He recently became the first 1980 contender to purchase television time in the state, and in coming months will be buying time for radio commercials and opening storefront offices.

That high-powered, fast-paced operation already has produced benefits for Crane. When he declared his intentions last August, most of the supposedly sophisticated political experts wrote him off as a long shot, but today he's almost always listed as one of six "serious" contenders for the Republican presidential nomination.

The only other candidate whose organization in New Hampshire approaches that of Crane is George Bush.

Lesson from Truman

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The Republican party soon will have to decide whether its platform in the 1980 elections will be one of promise or performance.

It will be easy to run on promises. Jimmy Carter made several in the 1976 campaign. It will be more difficult for the GOP to come up with an impressive performance in Congress on what likely will be the paramount issue of the 1980 campaign: controlling government spending.

Yet the opportunity is within reach of Republican members of Congress to demonstrate what they would continue to do if given power two years hence.

These circumstances would create that opportunity:

By May 15 both the House and the Senate are required by their own rules to pass a budget resolution fixing spending and revenue goals for fiscal year 1980. They also will allocate the limits of appropriations in the major categories of spending.

The thrust of this budget resolution will determine the heart of the fiscal policy of the federal government this coming year and probably for years to come. The issue to be decided is whether President Carter's proposed budget reducing the deficit to $30 billion is going to be imbedded in the congressional resolution with appropriation limits established to make it a reality.

Normally the Democratic majority has been indifferent to how the Republicans voted. The Democrats had enough votes to prevail in any direction—and almost invariably the direction was toward spending and higher deficits.

But this year the situation is different. The Democratic chairman of the House Budget Committee needs Republican help to keep the expected deficit under $30 billion. If he must rely on Democratic liberals, he will have to make compromises which could boost spending far higher.

Only the Republicans can insure a budget resolution that will give the Administration the kind of fiscal austerity it has been seeking.

The House Republicans have two courses they can follow: let the Democrats stew in their own dilemma or share responsibility for shaping a budget resolution that will immediately put into practice the conservative economic principles on which the GOP will contest the election in 1980.

It is tempting to play politics as usual with one of the issues at the heart of the Administration's anti-inflation program. It is not irrational for the Republicans to hope—and expect—that the liberal-conservative divisions in the Democratic congressional ranks would get the Administration into a sorry pickle. But it would be dangerous for the country and for the Republicans if they help to bring it about.

The GOP ought to remember a bit of history. On the eve of the 1948 election President Truman called a special session of the then Republican Congress and asked for some legislation the GOP had already favored.

Inside Report

Reagan moving to center

By ROWLAND EVANS
& ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Movement by front-running Republican presidential hopeful Ronald Reagan toward the center has been confirmed by his effort, though unsuccessful, to hire the campaign management firm that defeated him for the 1976 nomination.

The spurned offer was made to the Washington-based firm of Bailey and Deardourff, which handled the finishing stages of Gerald Ford's victorious campaign against Reagan. John Deardourff (who broke into national politics as an aide to Nelson Rockefeller) and Doug Bailey are pre-eminent practitioners of moderate Republicanism.

Consequently, conservatives who have heard about it were stunned by Reagan's move. They believe it confirms their worst fears that Reagan manager John Sears wants to run a non-ideological campaign not attuned to the issues.

Sears contacted the Bailey-Deardourff firm, and Reagan conferred with Bailey last month. But the firm informed Reagan, as it has other Republican presidential hopefuls, that it does not intend to take on a presidential campaign this time.

The reasons are twofold: first, Bailey and Deardourff would rather concentrate on interesting state races, especially Illinois, Pennsylvania and California, in 1980; second, no presidential prospect, Reagan included, particularly appeals to them.

A footnote: The 1984 campaign might be another matter. Bailey-Deardourff has close contacts with several Republican governors, James Thompson of Illinois, Richard Thornburgh of Pennsylvania, Lamar Alexander of Tennessee, who might be ready to go national that year.

Turkey's Whip Hand — Turkey, the long-time U.S. ally that was denied U.S. military aid several years ago by Congress under influence of the pro-Greek lobby, holds a whip hand over the U.S. that is giving policymakers the jitters and raising questions about the new strategic arms limitation treaty.

When aid was restored by President Carter, the Turks agreed to reopen important American bases, but only for a one-year test period. That year runs out in October.

The problem is that, as a result of the Iranian revolution, the loss of U.S. stations in Iran that could monitor Soviet missile tests has made the Turkish bases more important than they used to be. Although the Turkish stations could never fully take the place of the monitoring stations in Iran to verify Soviet performance on SALT, they are far more important today than ever before.

The pro-Greek lobby is still furious at Turkey for its refusal to make concessions on Cyprus demanded by Greece. That means Congress retains the threat to reduce the new U.S. aid program, a threat the Turks take so seriously they will not promise the American bases will stay open indefinitely. Without such assurance, the Carter adinistration is reluctant to spend the sums needed to upgrade the bases.

Connally's Triumphs — While his foes insist he soon will self-destruct by peaking too early in his run for the Republican presidential nomination, John B. Connally continues to pile up little triumphs. Two new examples:

He was given an unusual standing ovation after addressing the weekly breakfast meeting of a group of influential Republican House members.

A few days later, he dazzled an important group of American Jewish Committee members in New York, many of whom had been suspicious of his business ties with the Arab world.

On the negative side, Connally has shown the need for better preparation. His answers to some serious queries about the economy have struck the questioners as superficial.

Haig's Assignment — Herman Kahn, the cerebral whiz who runs the Hudson Institute, has had "preliminary talks" with Gen. Alexander Haig over the possibility of Haig doing long-range, foreign-military policy work for the institute after he retires as supreme commander of NATO, and from the Army, the end of June.

If Haig takes the job, it would be a sure signal that the four-star general who has run North Atlantic Treaty Organization for more than four years wants to move into elective politics.

Haig has offers from at least three major corporations for top-rated jobs, in addition to offers from some of the nation's think tanks. These are government-financed research organizations that do long-range planning in strategic, technological and other specialized work. Hudson Institute, one of the foremost, wants Haig. Haig's response: no decision on his future until after his retirement on June 30.

Georgetown U wedding due

By DIANA McLELLAN

WASHINGTON — A lollapalooza wedding's hitting town later this month. Multimillionaire Rocky Agusta, Italian heir to the walloping Agusta-Bell Helicopter and Aircraft fortune, will wed Monica Conforti, devastatingly rich daughter of the biggest stereo and TV makers in Italy. Here's the hit bit: It'll be at the humble wee Dahlgren Chapel at Georgetown U. (Both went to Georgetown, but never clapped eyes on each other until they got back home to Italy.) A monsignor will be airlifted in from Rome for the hitching. So will a huge passel of contessas and other adorables. Georgetown hairdresser Roberto of Italy will hang about for days to tart up everybody's hair. (Roberto frosts Nancy Kissinger. 'Nuff said.) Our Italian Connection moans that nobody can get married in Italy any more. "They worry dreadfully about kidnapping when they're filthy rich," he told us. We will weep buckets for the bride, of course. Maybe not quite as noisily as usual.

Losing, But Nice — You noticed, natch, that "Weekend," NBC's squeaky wee answer to "60 Minutes," is being shuffled off the tube. Well. The gloomy news of their firing hit Linda Ellerbee, Lloyd Dobyns and producer Reuven Frank as they paddled about Palm Springs, waiting to tackle Jerry Ford for a "Weekend" feature. Glumly, the trio schlepped back to New York to mope. Came Monday morning, Linda Ellerbee trotted out, bought a pair of roller skates and laced them on. Then she skated to Rockefeller Center, shot in the door, whizzed by the guards, skated the entire two-block length of the marble-floored lobby with wheels thundering and whistle-blowing guards in hot pursuit, and sprang into an elevator, Jojo Starbuck style, just as the doors slid shut. She spun her wheels all the way up to the 16th floor, then whizzed out and jetted into the "Weekend" office. Only Reuven Frank looked up. "Linda, how many times do we have to tell you not to roller skate on the carpet?" he asked. We're charmed.

What Is This Thing? — There were gloomy glares all round at Sam Brown's ACTION recently. (Remember ACTION? Nest of the nifty? Exemplar extraordinaire of equality?) In the wake of a messy wee Equal Employment lawsuit (Garns vs. Brown), the judge's decision has gone out in a memo from Office of Compliance honcho Raul Rodriguez: Every single manager and supervisor at ACTION has been ordered to take lessons in how to comply with Equal Opportunity regulations, within nine months. What's left, illusion-wise? Read on.

For Whom One Can Sling? — Susan Morrison, big-time pressie at the Democratic National Committee, is ankling over to the GOP, we hear with a shiver. (You know Suze: Her husband, Marty Plissner, is a political background biggie for CBS.) She's off to toil for George Bush, as communications director for his campaign. . .Rick Smith, tip-top Timesman here, has been talking heavily to CBS, word's around. . .Washington Post reporter Susanna McBee ("Killer" McBee, we like to call her) has been nominated to succeed Eileen Shanahan as first flack at HEW. She's getting geared up already: When another scribbler asked her what she covers now, she wouldn't tell.

Ballet thanks

Editor:

I wish to extend a belated "thank you to the persons who worked so hard to make the 17th annual Southwest Regional Ballet Festival 1979 the huge success that it was.

I attended both evening performances and the classes taught by Robert Joffery and Norbert Vesak. What a thrilling experience!

Your really great arts editor, Martha Steimel, wrote last Sunday that it seemed strange to be writing about music, dance and drama in the wake of the terrible devastation wreaked on the city. And it does. But how barren our lives would be without an aesthetic consciousness.

As Kenneth clark says, "A strong, catholic response to works of art is like a comfortable account in a Swiss bank. One can never become emotionally bankrupt."

I'm drawing on mine, now.

Barkham Reviews

For almost half his life Howard Hughes lived like a troglodyte, hidden from view, sealed off against the germs he feared would poison him, jockeying his companies through hand-picked executive factotums. In an age of mass communications he succeeded in keeping his privacy inviolate.

Only after his death did the world learn what had become of the once-dashing aviator, film producer-playboy, and large-scale industrialist. He had died like a beggar — an emaciated skeleton weighing under 100 pounds, his head covered with matted hair, his body unkempt, his arms pitted with needle marks, yet still one of the wealthiest men in the world.

Hughes hid from mankind, and it has taken the three years since his death for Donald Bartlett, and James Steele of the Philadelphia Inquirer to exhume from an Everest of documents the story of Hughes' life, his pathological obsession with secrecy, the grotesquerie of his behavior and the eccentricity of his business career. It is an extraordinary story that future generations will find hard to believe. Yet it's all here in chapter and verse drawn from a quarter-million pages of documents in 50 cities and five foreign countries.

Bartlett and Steele have avoided overwhelming the reader with financial data, concentrating instead on demonstrating Hughes' personal and financial aberrations.

They pinpoint his compulsive fear of contamination by germs and the weird methods he employed to avoid infection, citing his three-page single-spaced memo detailing how he wanted food cans to be opened to prevent dissemination of bacteria.

Hughes was given to writing such detailed memos on trifles while at the same time bandying millions of dollars about like poker chips. He believed that talent could always be bought and to some extend proved it. He sought to intervene in presidential elections with financial contributions, made and lost vast sums in corporate deals executed by his representatives.

Reading the book, one is struck repeatedly by the manic incongruity of Hughes' behavior, which verged on the pathological. At a time when his ship the Glomar Explorer was hunting for a sunken Soviet submarine in the Pacific, he was becoming frantic because the employee he paid $500 a day to give him enemas had gone home to visit his family without asking permission.

"The truth," comment the authors, "is that he never related at all to other people, only to mechanical objects, especially airplanes."

Hughes, it is clear, was mentally unstable in his last years. Bartlett and Steele reveal that he suffered his first nervous breakdown as early as 1944 and a more serious one in 1958, after which he severed contact with the outside world.

"Hughes," they conclude, "passed into his own asylum. Isolated, feeding on fantasy and drugs, he suffered a breakdown of psychotic proportions, regressing to a childlike state."

Howard Baker confirms plans to seek presidency

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker Jr. confirmed Sunday he would be a candidate for president in 1980, but insisted that his formal announcement was yet to come.

Baker, in an interview on CBS' "Face the Nation," said flatly that "I am a candidate for the Republican nomination."

But, when asked if that did not amount to his announcement, Baker insisted that a formal announcement has become a ritualistic ceremony — and "a media event" — over the years, and that he still intends to hold such a ritual in the future.

Baker also said he will retain his post as minority leader of the Senate, although he would allow the assistant Republican leader, Sen. Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, to take over most of the duties. Baker said it is "not the precedent o the Senate" for the leadership to resign while seeking higher office.

New books at Kemp

Several volumes about the Southwest and a selection of books on child rearing are on the new book table this week at Kemp Public Library.

Highlight of the Southwest collection is John Fischer's "From the High Plains." Tales of Col. Goodnight, Geronimo, the glass-eyed bartender and maps of buried jugs of whiskey spark this offering from the olden days in West Texas and Oklahoma.

More about the Southwest: "Hispano Folklore of New Mexico," Lorin Brown; "Big Falling Snow," Albert Yava; "Guide to Official Historical Markers," Texas Historical Foundation; "Southwestern Indian Detours," D.H. Thomas; "Fodor's Southwest, 1979."

Child rearing: "Growth of the Child," Jerome Kagan; "Growing with Your Children," Herbert Kohl; "Adoption without Agencies," William Meezan; "Mother Care," Lyn DelliQuadri; "Mother's Medicine," Nancy Thurmond; "Sins of the Fathers," Ruth Inglis; "Parallels," Harvey Stein; "Parallel Play," Eleanor Dinkin.

Biography: "Albert Camus," Herbert Lottman; "Madisons," Virginia Moore; "Edward VII," Giles St. Aubyn; and "An Open Book," the autobiography of Monica Dickens, granddaughter of Charles Dickens and the author of many books herself. The accounts of her early years in nursing school in England during World War II are very interesting.

Fiction: "No Villain Need Be," Elizabeth Linington; "Rivers of Darkness," Ronald Hardy; "Some Summer Lands," Jane Gaskell; "Portrait of a Scoundrel," Nathaniel Benchley; "Medusa's Children," Bob Shaw; "Whose Little Boy Are You?" Hanoch Bartov; "False Face of Death," Anita Allen; "Spring of Sea Lavender," J.R.L. Anderson; "Stone Arrow," Richard Herley; and "House Called Pleasance," Laura Conway. In "Nightingale," novelist Eric Pace plots and completes the theft of the crown jewels or Iran.

Miscellaneous: "First Horseman," Frank Trippett; "Empire Builders," Jim Hicks; "National Trust Book of British Castles," Paul Johnson; "Europe at the Crossroads," Wallace Henley; "Inventing America," Garry Wills; "O.J. Simpson's Most Memorable Games," Jim Baker; "Ri," George Allen; "Karl Marx's Theory of History," G.A. Cohen; "Crisis for the American Press," John Hohenberg.

Ethics committee to open investigation of Talmadge

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Ethics Committee is scheduled to open on Monday its first public inquiry in 12 years into the ethics of a senator.

Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., is accused of five violations of Senate rules. The most serious of the five alleges that he converted campaign contributions to his own use. Another alleges he overcharged the Senate on his expense vouchers.

Unless there should be a last-minute agreement to end the probe, it will open Monday with testimony from three current employees of Talmadge's office and one former eployee.

The committee announced Saturday that it planned to call as its first witnesses T. Rogers Wade, Talmadge's administrative assistant since 1974; Rita Hubler, the senator's personal secretary; Allyne Tisdale, his executive secretary and former campaign treasurer; and Dathine Brunson, who was Talmadge's former personal secretary and who now is a congressional relations aide at the Agriculture Department.

Also scheduled to testify during the hearing is Talmadge's former wife, Betty.

At Wit's End

A nice personality just isn't enough

By ERMA BOMBECK

A magazine recently surveyed a group of teen-age girls and 80 percent of them said that a pleasing personality and a sense of humor were the prime considerations in accepting a first date.

Oh sure, and I'll bet the boys said the same thing. They always do.

Being touted for a blind date by reassuring the blindee "she has a wonderful personality" is like being named Miss Congeniality in the Pillsbury Bake-off. It's a kiss-off. Who cares?

I'm no dummy. When I was in school I saw boys date girls with waists bigger than their IQs. I sat next to a girl once who had the personality of a leftover, but she definitely was assembled at the factory. She took the history of Russia course only because the class was at 9:30 a.m. and she got the morning sun on the right side of her body. (This worked out perfectly with "The Wit and Humor of Ho Chi Minh," which she took because it had a window with a western exposure so that she could tan the left side of her body.)

She had a date when she had her teeth cleaned.

I pegged her as one of the few who would never diagram a sentence but would somehow overcome this handicap.

Frankly, a pleasing personality and a good sense of humor bear too great a stigma to ever overcome. Mothers used to say that when they were trying to palm off a girl who breathed through her mouth and had a nice tooth.

Or when they were trying to set up a boy who raised earthworms and had a collection of Barbie dolls in his room.

In all the years I was in the dating marketplace, not once did I hear a boy or girl say, "Wow! Would you get a load of that pleasing personality and check out that sense of humor."

Worse, no one ever described a blind date as "really stacked and looks like a prom queen, but don't hang up — underneath it all she has a pleasing personality and a sense of humor."

I'm skeptical. I think surveys reflect what the participants want to believe is true. Face it. Guys don't go out with a pleasant personality and a sense of humor.

They marry it though.

Ecuador votes for civilian leaders

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Ecuadoreans voted Sunday for a civilian government to restore democracy in this South American country after nine years of military rule.

An initial, unofficial count in the presidential race gave Jaime Roldos, a center-left populist, a substantial margin over the conservative candidate, Sixto Duran Ballan.

With scattered districts reporting, Roldos had 87,912 votes and Duran 42,396 out of some two million ballots cast, according to the national information office.

Significant results were not expected before early Monday.

Voters also were choosing 12 at-large and 57 provincial representatives to a single-house national legislature. The president and representatives will serve five-year terms and cannot be re-elected until another five years have passed.

Adm. Alfredo Poveda, chief of the ruling military junta, has promised to transfer power to the new government Aug. 10, national independence day. A new constitution approved in a January referendum will take effect the same day.

If the plan is followed, Ecuador will join Colombia and Venezuela as the only major South American nations with elected civilian governments.

Ecuador has switched from authoritarian to elected governments 35 times in its 149-year history. The new constitution is the 18th since 1830.

Thousands of voters lined up in good weather as the polls opened in this 9,300-foot-high Andean capital, but the queues appeared much shorter than those in the first-round presidential election last July 16.

Election officials expected almost 2 million of the 2,088,874 registered voters to cast their ballots at 4,602 voting places across this Colorado-sized nation of seven million people, tucked between Colombia and Peru on the western bulge of South America.

Roldos, a 38-year-old Guayaquil lawyer, won the most votes in the six-man race for the presidency in July but failed to get the required majority. Duran, 57, an architect and former mayor of Quito, was the runner-up in that election that eliminated the four other candidates.

Roldos is supported by the Concentration of Popular Forces Party and campaigned on the slogan "Force of Change." He promised a redistribution of the nation's wealth.

Duran, who is backed by the Constitutionalist Front Coalition, based his platform on respect for private property and initiative.

Among other South American nations, moves are under way in Bolivia and Peru to transfer power from military dictatorships to civilian democracies.

Bid on gangster's car turned down

PECATONICA, Ill. (AP) — A bid of $200,000 was turned down Sunday for a 1936 Lincoln Roadster that belonged to Charles "Lucky" Luciano when he was New York City's underworld czar.

The specially built two-passenger classic machine, 20 feet long including front fenders 8 feet in length, was the star attraction of the annual collector car auction at the Winnebago County Exhibition Center.

Despite steady rain, some 200 cars went through the auction line and several thousand persons were on hand to make bids. The owner of Luciano's Lincoln is Lou Lazarus, an antique car collector and seller at Forreston. He also is sponsor of the auction.

The bid of $200,000 was entered by a New York broker whose name was withheld and was rejected by Lazarus who originally had said he wanted $250,000 for the car.

"I decided today, however, if I could get $200,000 I would sell. I certainly wasn't going under that," said Lazarus, 30, who describes himself as a "car-nut" and heads a family dealership.

"The commission to the auctioneer is $5,000 so it meant that I would have to get $205,000. But the bidder just wouldn't come up another $5,000 so it was no sale. However, a deal still may be pending."

When the gleaming red Lincoln was driven on the block the auctioneer's asking price was $500,000. Bids started at $100,000 then jumped to $150,000, $175,000, $185,000 and finally to the $200,000.

Lazarus was not the only owner to reject a bid. A 1931 Ford Roadster with rumble seat and side-mounted spare tires was withdrawn by its owner on a bid of $13,800. He wanted at least $15,000 for the restored Model A.

James Price and Nita McAfee will be in charge. Hosts for the social hour will be Mrs. A. G. Matlock, Messrs. and Mmes. R. D. Cantrell and R. B. Parkinson.

Where you can help!

(Editor's Note: Many individuals are concerned with what they can do to help those who have been tornado victims with specific needs, such as doing laundry, transporting people to appointments or providing hot meals and supplies. To offer information on any small, individual aid that can be given, the following column will run daily in the Wichita Falls Times and Record News family pages.)

● Marjorie Booker, district supervisor in charge of the Texas Rehabilitation Commission office at 1000 Brook in Wichita Falls, reports that a client whom the commission placed in employment needs some additional help in repair of his wheelchair, braces and crutches. Call 322-7887.

● The Rev. W. C. Harting, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church, where three pickup truck loads of clothing, food and supplies were received from four Lutheran congregations in Dallas, said the clothes have been sorted to size and placed in the church basement.

"Those who suffered loss are welcome to come by between the hours of 8 a.m.-noon and 1-5 p.m. at the church, 11th and Holiday.

"In addition to clothing there also are food, pots and pans, bedding and a few items of furniture," Harting said.

The church and Our Redeemer Lutheran Church of Wichita Falls, both affiliated with the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod, also are administering cash assistance sent from the Dallas congregations, as well as the Synod's district, Harting said.

Clothing is available in sizes from infants to adults.

● Mrs. John Barker, volunteer services chairman for the American Red Cross, lists two primary needs.

Weddings

Lunn-Terry

MRS. LUNN
(Miss Terry)

Sidney Ann Terry and Raymond Nathaniel Lunn III were married April 14. Jim Hance, Church of Christ minister, officiated in the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Lunn Jr., 2011 Hampstead. Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Terry, Del Rio.

The bride wore an ivory floral organza gown.

Mrs. Bill M. Baber, Petrolia, matron of honor, wore a rose colored organza gown.

Kyle Lunn was best man for his brother. Will Lunn, brother of the groom, was candlelighter and usher. Todd Williams of Gruver also was candlelighter and Scott Bickford of Dallas was an usher. Jason Baber was ring bearer.

The bride's parents were hosts for a reception in the home of the groom's parents. Assisting were Mary Ann Mayo and Mrs. T. J. Leach.

The groom's parents gave the rehearsal dinner at The Pipeliner in Olney.

The couple are living in Wichita Falls after a trip to New Orleans. The bride is a graduate of Comstock (Texas) High School and Midwestern State University and is employed by Southwest National Bank. The groom, a graduate of Wichita Falls High School and MSU, is self-employed.

Cuba-Ewick

The marriage of Patricia Mary Ewick and Leroy James Cuba was solemnized Saturday in St. George's Catholic Church, Worcester, Mass. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Cuba, 5615 Seymour Highway.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Marion C. Ewick of Holder, Mass., and the late Stanley D. Ewick. She earned the B.A. degree from Tufts University, Medford, Mass., and the master's degree from Yale University. She is working toward the doctorate at Yale.

The groom, a graduate of Southern Methodist University, is also a doctoral candidate from Yale. The couple are on a wedding trip to Puerto Rico and will live in Anchorage, Alaska.

Attendants were Susanne Rubenstein, maid of honor; Deborah Ewick, Sandra Ewick, Janet Killion, bridesmaids; and Amy Wolochowicz, flower girl.

Michael Carlson was best man; Peter R. Ewick, Morgan Koppel, Marshall Jones were groomsmen with Joseph J. Ewick, ring bearer. The Rev. Joseph Dinnia officiated at the ceremony.

For skin care

"There's no magic in a $40 jar of cream," emphasizes a dermatologist. Using pure gentle beauty aids is the key to healthy skin.

"The basic principle of skin moisturization relates to the retention of water," explains Dr. Bobby Lee Limmer, clinical professor of dermatology at the University of Texas Health Science Center.

"Since water content is what keeps a women's skin soft and youthful-looking, I suggest that women apply their moisturizer over moist skin to keep the water from evaporating." This way the skin is being softened and the water content sealed in.

"I often recommend baby oil although I recognize that the moisturizer selected is largely a matter of personal preference," adds Dr. Limmer.

"Many lotions and creams are complex compounds that can lead to pore-plugging and cause whiteheads," the dermatologist explains.

Ann Landers Says

Waitresses resent 'no skill' bit

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Readers: If I never get waited on in any restaurant in the North American continent I would not be surprised. I'm in big trouble.

In a recent column I wrote: "If I didn't have any special skills and would like to make as much money as possible, I'd be a waitress. Granted, the salary isn't great, but an energetic waitress who is competent, cheerful, and gives first-class service will clean up in tips — and that's the name of the game, honey."

Now, I'll leave it to you. Did I say anything against waitresses? Well — THEY thought I did.

Here's what I've been getting by the bushel-basketful:

From Omaha, Neb.: What do you mean, no special skills? A good waitress has to have plenty of skills! How would YOU ike to take orders from eight people when every two seconds someone changes from fish to steak, or says, "Forget the spuds. Make it coleslaw." Or, "Kill the salad, I'd rather have two vegetables." or, "If the dessert isn't included in the price of the dinner, skip it."

These are just a few of the things we "dummies" have to get straight. Then there's the problem of remembering who ordered what — and who said, "Hold the onions," and get well-done lamb chops.

The real fun starts when you have to carry trays that weigh 20 pounds and smile and be cheerful about taking things back to the kitchen because they "don't taste right."

Then there are the slobs who come right in and sit down at a table that still has the last customer's dishes on it. It takes the tact of an ambassador to ask them to please get up and wait to be seated.

No skills? You owe waitresses in this cockeyed world an apology. —Sore Feet In Suffolk County

Dear Sore Feet . . . and all the others who wrote: Sorry about that "no special skills" line. What I meant was — if I couldn't make it as a human relations columnist, or an opera star, or a tennis pro, and couldn't afford to go to law school or medical school or business school, or pay the cost of secretarial training or a teacher's college — I'd choose to be a waitress because they can get on-the-job training. And if they are really good, they can make excellent money in tips. Now am I forgiven?

Your Health

Hemorrhoids a problem

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.
NEA Writer

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 59-year-old man and have trouble with hemorrhoids. A specialist did a sigmoidoscope examination and checked me out in general. He said to soak my hemorrhoids and stay away from spices, roughage and booze. Whenever I have a bowel movement it hurts and stings for awhile. I have been back to the doctor a couple of times and he said I'm too old for surgery so I'd have to live with it. This doctor is a specialist in the field of rectal problems. Have you any suggestions?

DEAR READER — I think you have misunderstood what your doctor said or misinterpreted his meaning. If at age 59 you're too old for surgery, there are an awful lot of people having surgery who are too old for it. He either thinks your hemorrhoids are of such a nature that you don't require surgery at this time or you must have some rather serious health problems that are not mentioned in your letter.

Hemorrhoids are simply varicose veins of the rectum. The veins become overstretched and dilated. Women are more prone to have them than men because of childbirth. The delivery of the baby's head creates so much pressure on the veins in this area that it often results in hemorrhoids.

ATTENTION ALL WEIGHT WATCHERS MEMBERS—
WE'RE HOLDING YOUR MEMBERSHIPS OPEN

We know that you, like everyone else in Wichita Falls, are busy rebuilding your city and your homes.

We're concerned with your efforts, but we're also concerned that you not lose all the time and effort you have put into being a member of Weight Watchers.

So, to all of you who were current members of Weight Watchers on April 10, we're holding your memberships open for you through the whole month of May.

This means that you can come back to your Weight Watchers class in Wichita Falls anytime before June 1, without having to pay for missed meetings during that time and without having to pay a fee to rejoin.

Here's hoping to see you in class soon.

Thunderstorms hit San Antonio

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms produced hail and dumped large amounts of rain on San Antonio Sunday as snow fell in Minnesota and North Dakota. Much of the nation's weather was mild or warm.

Heavy rain was expected in Texas, and severe thunderstorm watches were issued in the south and south-central portions of the state. Winds of up to 60 mph were reported in Victoria, where trees and powerlines were knocked down.

The showers in Texas spread into Louisiana. Rain and drizzle extended across northern New England and from the upper Great Lakes into the upper Mississippi Valley.

Snow — some of it mixed with rain — fell in Minnesota and North Dakota.

Flooding remained a problem along the Red River in North Dakota and Minnesota, and in Mississippi near Vicksburg and Natchez along the Mississippi.

Elsewhere, temperatures were in the 50s and 60s from the West Coast across the Plains, and from the Mississippi Valley to the East Coast from North Carolina to Maine.

Even warmer weather — in the 70s and 80s — was reported from South Carolina across Florida and the eastern Gulf Coast, as well as from southern Texas across and New Mexico to Southern California.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 p.m. CDT ranged from 33 in Devils Lake, N.D., to 90 in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

The forecast called for thundershowers from the Texas coast to Georgia and Florida, and for rain mixed with snow over portions of the upper Great Lakes. Rain was expected in the rest of the Great Lakes Region and into northern New England.

Mild weather was expected through the Plateau and southern Rocky Mountain regions, and across Georgia and Florida. Cool conditions will prevail over the remainder of the nation.

2 killed in Nepal protest

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP) — Police opened fire on students and workers demonstrating in a southern town, killing two and seriously injuring three others, the National News Agency of Nepal reported Sunday.

The agency said the incident occurred Saturday in Hetauda, about 70 miles south of Katmandu, capital of this Himalayan kingdom, after the demonstrators burned cars, disrupted transportation and attacked police with stones and sticks.

Police and demonstrators have clashed periodically since early April, when authorities halted a student march on the Pakistan Embassy to protest Pakistan's hanging of its former prime minister, Zulfikar Ali Bhutto. Nepalese dissidents also have been calling for a return to the constitutional-monarchy form of government that was suspended here 19 years ago.

The news agency reported extensive property damage but gave no other details. It said Ramanand Prashad Yadav, an assistant government minister, was held hostage by the demonstrators for 10 hours Friday before he was rescued by police.

Bomb threat grounds plane

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Eighty-eight people aboard a Trans World Ailiner got an unscheduled look at this Kansas community after TWA officials reported receiving a bomb threat.

Siamese twins await crucial operation

By RON BARKER
Associated Press Writer

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Siamese twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen giggle and play on their living room floor like other 18-month-old children, even though the tops of their skulls are fused togeher. They are blissfully unaware that within weeks, pioneering surgery may give them independent lives — or death.

Doctors who are preparing for a delicate and untried operation to separate the twins' heads admit hundreds of things could go wrong, and one or both of them could die.

In the past year, the girls have undergone four complex operations, each aimed toward eventual separation.

"We're thinking this next one may be it," said David Hansen, the girls' father. "The doctors say it could be within two or three weeks."

Dr. Stephen Minton, head of the surgical team at the University of Utah, said the exact timetable is uncertain.

"We have no precedent to follow," he said. "We're not sure what the constraints are." Every step must be evaluated before the next one is taken, he said.

Although the girls' brains touch and share delicate blood vessels, they are separate, doctors say. Lisa's skull flows naturally into Elisa's, with a slight narrowing that marks where one girl's head stops and the other's begins.

In the previous operations, many of the shared veins were tied off, a process requiring painstaking examination of angiograms — X-rays which reveal the pattern of the vessels. "It's very time consuming," said Minton.

The crucial operation will involve cutting the skulls apart, separating the remaining blood vessels and tissue and covering the exposed surfaces of the girls' brains.

If separation is successful, the next step will be plastic surgery to restructure the tops of the girls' heads.

Separation is not expected to affect either of the girls' mental processes, and the twins' parents and doctors say the operation is the only chance they will have for a normal life.

If at all possible, that's what Hansen and his wife, Patricia, want for Lisa and Elisa.

Aside from the fusing of their skulls, "They are completely normal ... both physically and mentally," said Minton.

"They're two normal children who just happen to be stuck together," echoed the girls' parents.

Doctors' fees for the operations have been donated, and hospital costs have been paid by Medicaid, Hansen said. When Lisa and Elisa were born, their parents had no health insurance and no way to pay for the enormous cost of their medical care.

Hansen, now a management trainee in a grocery chain, pays everything over a fixed portion of his salary to the Utah Department of Social Services to offset partially the medical costs.

Despite the time they've spent in the hospital, the girls lead a relatively normal life, say their parents. "They're starting to talk and jabber a lot," said Hansen. "They say, 'Mommy' and 'Daddy.'"

Lisa and Elisa have distinct personalities, said Hansen. Elisa is less aggressive and somewhat shy.

They have learned that they have to cooperate in order to get what one or the other wants, Hansen said.

But since both girls face up when lying on their backs, one sister occasionally grabs what the other one is holding up to look at.

They first learned to move by rolling over together, and when Lisa and Elisa learned to crawl, they did so either by going sideways, or with one crawling forward and the other one backward.

Now, bending over at the waist, "they're starting to try to walk. They hang on to the couch and pull themselves along," said Hansen.

Their surgery has been performed at the University of Utah's medical center in Salt Lake City, and Lisa and Elisa have become very popular with the nursing staff. "Every time they come home after an operation, they're spoiled," said their father.

But it's hard not to spoil the girls, considering their ordeal, Hansen noted. "The last time, they had to tie their hands and feet afterward so they wouldn't reach up and grab the bandages, and that's hard on little kids," he said.

Lisa and Elisa have been warmly received by the Hansens' nieces and nephews, and they are enormously popular with the children in their neighborhood.

"Kids come out and want to play with the girls," said Mrs. Hansen. "I've always got offers for babysitting."

"Little kids are funny," added her husband. "They'll come in and see the babies, and say, 'Look, Mommy, their heads are glued together,' and the mothers will get all embarrassed and say, 'Shhh.'"

Those comments don't bother the Hansens. While adults sometimes have to search for words, children express themselves honestly, the father said.

His 4-year-old nephew illustrates the attitude children have toward the twins. While the girls were visiting at a relative's home, they began to cry. In an attempt to comfort them, the boy walked over to Lisa and Elisa and said, "'Don't cry. We'll find a way to get your heads apart.'"

Plane found after 4 months

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP) — A light plane whose Christmas Day disappearance prompted a prolonged mountain search has been found, four months later, by a U.S. Air Force pilot on a training mission with the Civil Air Patrol.

Authorities recovered three bodies Sunday morning from the wreckage of a Piper Navajo that vanished in a snowstorm while trying to land in the rugged Adirondack mountains here on a flight from Detroit.

The bodies were believed to be those of three Key West, Fla., men who were aboard the light plane when it disappeared on a landing approach. State police and Environmental Conservation officers were ferried in by helicopter to the site five miles west of the Lake Placid airport as recovery efforts got underway in raw, overcast weather.

Col. Ceil Andretta, a spokeswoman for the Civil Air Patrol, said CAP Major John Roskos was on an air search training mission from Plattsburgh Saturday when he spotted the wreckage at about 6:00 p.m.

Roskos was at the scene of the wreck Sunday and could not be reached for comment.

Relatives and friends of the missing men had launched a massive search after the plane's disappearance, calling in psychics and complaining when state officials called off the search after days of subzero temperatures and two feet of snow.

Their resolve was heartened by the survival of a Aqui, a dog who had been aboard the plane when it crashed. The emaciated animal wandered up to a farmhouse Jan. 4, not far from where the green and white plane was spotted Saturday.

Lisa Teifer, who counted a brother and a boyfriend among the missing men, moved up to this small mountain village shortly after the plane disappeared.

Former Talmadge aide becomes senator's chief accuser

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Herman Talmadge's political career is cut short, it will be largely the result of accusations made by a dapper former aide now registered as a Washington lobbyist for a group of Japanese businessmen.

By all accounts, Daniel Minchew was a trusted confidant to Talmadge from 1971 to 1974 when he worked as the senator's administrative assistant and political adviser.

Aides to Talmadge say the senator rarely made close friends with members of his staff. But Minchew came as close as anyone.

Minchew traveled with Talmadge to Georgia and elsewhere and was "delegated a great deal of responsibility," according to a current member of the senator's staff.

Some of the checks Minchew acknowledges writing in Talmadge's behalf went to pay the owner of a Washington fruit stand for purchases of crates of Spanish melons favored by Talmadge.

Sources say Minchew also purchased opera tickets for Talmadge's family and guests.

It is not precisely clear when the relationship soured. By the time the investigations began into Talmadge's finances, Minchew had become — with Talmadge's strong recommendation — a member of the International Trade Commission.

Aides to Talmadge now say Minchew, while working for a Democratic senator, used contacts in a Republican-run White House to obtain the appointment to the commission.

In any event, Minchew acknowledges that when he began sensing trouble over Talmadge's finances, he drafted a memo and took it to Talmadge's Washington apartment at about dawn on June 14, 1978.

In the memo, Minchew said he had converted thousands of dollars in Senate expense checks to cash for use by Talmadge, his wife and his son.

"I am...coming to you in this fashion so that you can decide just who and how many people you want involved in this," the memo said.

"At best, it is sticky and embarrassing, and at worst it could go into a prolonged examination of matters all of us wish we did not know about," wrote Minchew.

Talmadge characterizes the memo as the self-serving effort of a thief and blackmailer to save himself.

Minchew says he was there to urge Talmadge to come clean and admit that some money was misspent.

Whatever the motive, Minchew and his former boss are now bitter enemies. Accusations and counteraccusations have cluttered the months of preliminary investigations which will culminate with eight days of public hearings by the Senate Ethics Committee beginning Monday.

Except for graying hair, Minchew, a University of Georgia graduate, appears younger than his 39 years. There is little physical evidence that he is enmeshed in a bitter legal and political battle with one of the most senior members of the U.S. Senate.

Before leaving his post with the International Trade Commission, Minchew reportedly negotiated a fee of more than $100,000 a year with the Japanese business group.

Minchew's wife, Shirley Coffield, is a member of the staff of special White House trade representative Robert Strauss. According to Talmadge's aides, she has worked on matters relating to U.S.-Japanese trade.

Ms. Coffield also served as a campaign aide to Republican Sen. Mark Hatfield, a new member of the Ethics Committee. She worked in Hatfield's campaign when he was ran for governor of Oregon, and was a student when he taught at Willamette College in Oregon.

Hatfield acknowledged the coincidence last week, and the commitee informally decided there was no conflict in his role as judge of the accusations against Talmadge.

Houston attack puzzles police

HOUSTON (AP) — Police said Sunday they still don't know why a Houston man fired four shots at his maid, then held authorities at bay for 13 hours while he negotiated terms of his surrender from his barricaded house.

Jerry A. Becker was still in custody Sunday, charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon. State District Judge Joseph M. Guarino set bond at $1,000.

The maid escaped without injury Saturday, and the man gave up peacefully late that night after threatening to shoot anyone who tried to enter his house.

"During the negotiations he told us he was an expert shot and could handle any situation we could present," said Sgt. R.A. Noskrant.

Police negotiated with the man by phone and brought in his relatives to help with the discussions.

"At times we had a real good repport. Then he would get real hostile for no reason at all and hang up," said Noskrant.

Becker's wife, who recently gave birth to a girl, was released from a Houston hospital after the shooting incident occurred and advised to go to the home of a family friend.

The maid, Juanita Levy, 48, told police she was cleaning the downstairs rooms when she heard Becker say, "I know you're down there. You better not move."

She said she thought Becker was talking to the family dog until she glanced upstairs and said she saw Becker aiming a rifle at her. She said Becker fired four times as she fled through a kitchen door, but all of the shots missed.

Police spokesman J.G. Burmester said Sunday authorities still do not know what prompted the incident.

Relatives of sniper offer motive

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Relatives of Ira Attebury say a fatal accident eight years ago may have played a role in his random attack on a street full of parade watchers in San Antonio.

Attebury, 64, directed a withering fusillade of sniper fire on police and spectators at the Battle of the Flowers parade Friday in San Antonio. Two women died and 55 others were injured by gunfire or the panic that ensued as Attebury fired into a crowd of about 5,000.

His family said Saturday that Attebury was never the same after his semi-trailer truck rammed into a car that ran a red light in front of him eight years ago in Ohio. Both women occupants of the car were killed.

Attebury's two brothers said he was not at fault in the crash. But they said the accident left him with a disabling injury and emotionally scarred.

"He thought the police were after him all the time after that," said his older brother W.H. Attebury, 66, of Poplar Bluff, Mo.

"It really upset him. He told me sometimes he felt someone had something against him and that someone was looking for him," said a younger brother, Herman Attebury, 32, of Rockford, Ill.

Attebury injured his neck and back in the crash and had to retire from truck driving, his primary occupation since leaving the Coast Guaard at the end of World War II.

Herman Attebury said Ira had heart trouble and "maybe it caused a blood clot to lodge in his brain, and that could have caused his brain not to work right."

W.H. Attebury added: "I had no reason to think he would be violent. He tried to do right. He went to church all the time."

Vietnam suits consolidated

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Nearly 300 suits filed on behalf of Vietnam veterans exposed to the toxic herbicide Agent Orange will be consolidated into one case to be heard in New York.

Six district judges from around the country assigned the cases Friday to U.S. District Judge George Pratt of New York's Eastern District. The suit asks that a $4.2 billion fund be set up by six chemical companies that it claims made and sold the defoliant to the government, to compensate those injured by the chemical and reimburse federal agencies for benefits paid out.

The companies named in the suit are Dow Chemical Co., Hercules Inc., Northwest Industries Inc., Diamond Shamrock Corp., Monsanto Co. and North American Philips Corp.

Changes considered for 'NBC Nightly News'

By GARY DEEB
Chi. Trib.-N.Y. News

NBC, the network that soon may be eligible for federal disaster relief, is on the verge of throwing out the baby with the bath water. If it happens, a dear price will be paid by discriminating news viewers.

Just as NBC bossman Fred Silverman has been tinkering around with "Supertrain" in a bid to make that show a hit, so is he considering major surgery on "NBC Nightly News," the first-rate newscast anchored by John Chancellor and David Brinkley. Apparently Freddie believes that any program, be it trashy entertainment or hard journalism, can be improved by a personnel change here and some cosmetics there.

Around NBC these days, nothing is sacred. Like some modern-day Dr. Frankenstein, Silverman has been trying to pump life into inanimate objects, junk like "Supertrain," "Brothers and Sisters" and "B.J. and the Bear."

Every once in a while, however, this Great American Schlockmaster veers away from the fluffy creations he knows best and stumbles into an area he doesn't understand at all. Such an area is television news, and so far Silverman hardly has distinguished himself in this foreign territory.

Freddie torpedoed "Weekend," NBC's stylish Sunday night newsmagazine. He also demoted Reuven Frank, the creator and executive producer of "Weekend," who has served NBC News brilliantly for nearly 30 years.

Because "Weekend" was attracting small audiences, Silverman decided to rename the program, get rid of co-hosts Lloyd Dobyns and Linda Ellerbee, bring in Hollywood hot dog Tom Snyder as the new anchor and replace Frank (who had rejected previous attempts to install Snyder as "Weekend" host).

Now, hot on the heels of the "Weekend" massacre, Silverman is making nasty noises about possibly moving Chancellor or Brinkley, or both, out of "NBC Nightly News" and into less visible jobs.

The problem with the newscast isn't its quality. It's a smooth, well-oiled program that's masterfully written and superbly presented five nights a week. The "Segment 3" portion is the only nightly in-depth reporting to be found on network TV. And the contributions of Chancellor and Brinkley, who write much of the newscast themselves, are even more noticable than those of Walter Cronkite to the "CBS Evening News."

But the audience ratings for "NBC Nightly News" are lagging somewhat. As runner-up to Cronkite & Co. nearly 10 years, the NBC newseast usually has drawn a viewership just a notch or two below CBS, and miles ahead of ABC.

Today the situation has changed for the worse. In recent weeks, the "CBS Evening News" has been averaging 29-30 percent of the viewers; NBC pulls just 23 percent, and ABC's "World News Tonight" isn't far back at 20 to 21 percent.

And so Dr. Silverman is thinking of making a house call. He already has presided over a slight reduction in the frequency of the "Segment 3" reports. They no longer appear each night, which some NBC News people see as a step backward.

Furthermore, Silverman is mulling the chances of putting Tom Brokaw, the host of the morning "Today Show," in place of either Chancellor or Brinkley on "NBC Nightly News."

Brokaw, to be sure, is a fine all-around newsman who could do a nice job as a nightly network news anchor. But dumping Chancellor and-or Brinkley would be a terribly premature move. There's simply no justification for it, either journalistically or in the audience ratings.

Even though NBC's news numbers are down a bit over a few months, it's far too early to determine whether the dip is a genuine trend or just a temporary statistical aberration. In addition, the chief factor behind the audience decline has to be NBC's woeful prime-time audience ratings, which can't help but hurt programs in other time slots.

Silverman realizes this, and yet he's still talking like a trigger-happy gunman. NBC insiders theorize that Freddie badly wants to put "his own personal stamp" on NBC's news division. Replacing Chancellor or Brinkley would be one way to accomplish that goal.

That may be a crucial motivation for Silverman. But fooling with a class act like "NBC Nightly News" can only damage Silverman's image even further, and hurt millions of intelligent viewers who aren't ready to see Chancellor or Brinkley get cast to the buzzards.

NETWORKING: Redd Foxx, the wonderful human being who has "demanded" himself right off television, has been ordered to pay a $30,000 judgment to one of his former employees. The payoff stems from a dispute in which Foxx allegedly pistol-whipped the plaintiff....ABC is filming a two-hour "Return of the Mod Squad," with original stars Michael Cole, Peggy Lipton and Clarence Williams III....Bud Grant, CBS vice president for programming, has signed a three-year contract renewal.

Japan marks 'Golden Week'

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's major airports and train stations were jammed Sunday as an estimated 57 million people headed for family homes and holiday spots at the beginning of "Golden Week."

Three national holidays come this week — Emperor Hirohito's birthday Sunday, with Monday as a day off, Constitution Day on Thursday and Children's Day on Saturday.

Officials estimated more than 120,000 Japanese would take overseas vacations during Golden Week, with most traveling to Hawaii, Guam and the U.S. West Coast. Many Japanese still work a six-day week, and the spring Golden Week traditionally provides a chance for travel.

Bureau to issue bid invitations

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bureau of Reclamation is expected to issue nearly $124 million in construction and equipment bid invitations from April through June, Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus has announced.

The largest anticipated bid invitation in May will be the Fountain Valley Conduit in Colorado, extending north from Pueblo Dam west of Pueblo north to Stratmoor Hills near Fort Carson.

Texas triumphs, 10-0

Late Ranger rally rips Chisox

CHICAGO (AP) — Buddy Bell's two-run double keyed a three-run eighth inning Sunday and the Texas Rangers went on to beat the Chicago White Sox 10-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Dock Ellis and Jim Kern.

Held to only one hit and two runs by loser Richard Wortham, 3-2, through the first seven innings, the Rangers struck in the eighth when Nelson Norman beat out an infield single with two out. Billy Sample doubled off reliever Larrin LaGrow and scored on a single by Al Oliver.

The Rangers added five runs in the ninth, sending 10 men to the plate against three Chicago pitchers.

Ellis, 1-1, allowed four hits in 62-3 innings before Kern came in to pick up his third save.

The Rangers got an unearned run in the second when Richie Zisk reached on an error, went to second on a balk and scored when Eric Soderholm threw wild past first on Jim Sundberg's grounder.

Gary Gray led off the Texas fifth with an infield single for the first hit off Wortham, stole second, went to third on a wild pitch and scored on Sundberg's sacrifice fly.

Mike Jorgensen led off the five-run ninth with a double, Sundberg walked and Bump Wills singled to score Jorgensen. Norman also walked before Sample singled in a pair. Oliver and Zisk followed with run-scoring singles.

The start of the game was delayed one hour and six minutes because of rain and play was halted for 34 minutes in the second inning. Most of the game was played in a steady drizzle.

The White Sox didn't have too many opportunities. Soderholm walked with two outs in the second and went to third on a single by Marv Foley. But Greg Pryor hit into an inning-ending force play.

Thad Bosley opened the Chicago third with a single and was bunted to second, but Ellis got both Chet Lemon and Mike Squires to ground out.

Another Chicago threat developed in the fifth. Pryor doubled with one out and one out later Ralph Garr beat out a single to extend his hitting streak to 12 games. Lemon walked to fill the bases, but Squires grounded out.

Putts push Green to New Orleans win

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A pair of critical putts down the stretch, one for a tie-breaking birdie and one for a victory-saving par, brought Hubert Green a 1-stroke triumph Sunday in the $250,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

"I was always around the lead somewhere, and I got some good breaks," said Green, who broke a five-way tie for the lead with a 10-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole, then preserved it with a critical par-saver of about the same length on the last hole.

"On 16, I put a pretty good stroke on the ball, looked up and it was going where I wanted it to," Green said. And he shrugged off the pressure attached to the final putt, the one that won it for him and averted a five-man playoff.

"We were just out there playing golf," he said. "If they'd tied me, well, we'd just have played some more," he said.

"I was lucky to win," said Green. "I wasn't hitting the ball well — actually I was embarassed the way I finished, the way I was hitting it coming down the stretch — but I got some lucky breaks. Maybe some of the other guys got bad breaks."

Green claimed his second title of the season and 16th of his career with a 273 total, 15 strokes below par on the 7,040-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Green, winner of the Hawaiian Open earlier in the year, solved a multiple-man scramble with his 16th hole birdie, pulling out of a tie with Lee Trevino, Steve Melnyk, Bruce Lietzke and surprising Frank Conner.

That lifted him one shot in front of the pack. But he almost gave it back when he hit his approach in the fringe on the final hole, putted 10-12 feet beyond the cup and had to make that critical putt coming back to salvage the $45,000 first prize.

Trevino, Conner, Lietzke and Melnyk all tied for second at 274.

Trevino, who won this tournament in 1974 without making a bogey, again got around 72 holes without a bogey. He shot 70 over the last round, which was dampened by occasional showers.

Lietzke, a runnerup the last week in the Tournament of Champions, shot 67. Melnyk, who once had the lead alone until making bogey on the 16th, had a 68 and Conner, a former tennis player who never before had challenged in a PGA tour event, closed with a 70.

"I guess I put myself in position where it was my tournament to win or lose, and I lost it," said Melnyk.

"Hubert just played a little bit better than five or six of the rest of us out there," said Lietzke, who now has challenged unsuccessfully on two consecutive weeks. "I'm going on to Houston a little bit disappointed."

"Coming down to the wire, I figured Hubert was the man to beat in that pack," said Trevino. "He was the man with the experience. I didn't make a bogey for the tournament, and I made 14 birdies. That's pretty good playing. I'm not crying. Hubert just played fantastic."

It was the seventh time in about 14 months that Trevino had been a runnerup.

Curtis Strange, the young man who held the lead through 54 holes, could do no better than match par 72 and was tied at 275 — 2 strokes back — with Cal Peete and Bob Gilder, both of whom had closing 69s. Jim Colbert was alone at 276 after a 68. That showed nine men crowded within 3 strokes of each other at the top and represented one of the closest finishes in years.

Lon Hinkle, the 1978 New Orleans winner, shot a 7-under-par 65 that was too late to put him in title contention. He finished at 279. Tom Watson, the year's leading money-winner, finished with 67-281.

The victory clinched for Green a spot on the 1979 Ryder Cup team and put him in the rich World Series of Golf. The first place check lifted his money-winnings for the year to $127,357 and marked the seventh consecutive year in which he has won $100,000 or more.

Simpson-Finkler prevail at Sheppard

By TOM SELTZER
Staff Sports Writer

Tournament Director E.C. Black is not a cruel man by nature. But golfers competing in the Sheppard Air Force Base Partnership might think otherwise after Sunday.

With the sun shining and weather no longer a factor, Black and the Sheppard crew had to come up with something to keep golfers guessing. So they cut the most difficult pin placements they could — to the agony of the players.

"The placements were so tough that we just tried to play for the middle of the greens," Jim Simpson explained after he teamed with Todd Finkler to win by two shots.

Simpson and Finkler, who came from one stroke off the pace to claim the second annual title, were one of only three teams to finish under par in the 36 hole event. Their 71 on Sunday gave them a 141 total, three-under-par on the 7074 yard, par 72 course. Bob Anderson-Jerry Curtis and Gary Gragg-Bobby Smith posted one-under-par 143s.

Anderson and Curtis, in the consolation bracket after a 74 on Saturday, declared up and made it pay off with a sparkling 69 that gave them second place. Their 69 was one of only two sub-70 rounds in the tournament.

Tom Miller and Charlie Spragins, who shattered the 70 mark on Saturday to take the first round lead, slipped to a 75 on Sunday to finish at even-par 144. The teams of Bill Holstead-Tony Black and David Norris-Roger Beck also finished at 144.

Finkler and Simpson did nothing fancy in bagging the first city golf title of the year on the area's toughest course. What they did do was play steady, consistent golf capped by a 34 on the final nine holes that broke a close tournament open.

Simpson and Finkler birdied two and parred seven of those final holes while bogies spelled the downfall of their challengers.

Finkler said he was surprised that 141 won the tournament, despite the difficulty of the Sheppard course.

"Our strategy was to play another solid round like yesterday's and hope for the best," he added.

After a birdie on the 535-yard, par five tenth hole, they ran off five straight pars before another birdie on the 359-yard, par four sixteenth hole wrapped things up.

In championship consolation, Alan-Brasher-Ronnie McAda carded a 76 to best Jim Phillips-Bob Carpenter by a single shot.

Monte Yancey-Terry Watson broke out of a three-way tie to win first flight by two strokes over Bob Henderson-Jeff Koontz and Jim Webber-Don Bomer.

Bob Cremeens-Bob Holloway came in with a 73 to win first flight consolation by three shots over Larry Donley-Tom Seltzer.

John Coggins-Donald Moser, who managed a 71 Saturday, held on for a one-stroke win in second flight. Their 147 edged out Curtis Drake-Harvey Coombs and Roy Reid-Sammy Milam.

Jerry Gossett-Steve Middleton finished with a 74 to claim a two-shot win in second flight consolation. Ernest Hernandez-Bill Bowden and J.C. Gray-John Rutledge carded 76s.

In third flight, John Spessard-Bobby Boyd matched par to come from three strokes off the pace and win with a 147 total. Robert Pert-Layne Riley finished a stroke back and Charles Donnelly-Dick Trout took third place with a 154 total.

Third flight consolation was won by Mike Reed-Mike Avery with a 78. Gene Bankhead-Ron Milke took second with an 82.

Prizes were awarded to the first three places in each flight and the top two places in the consolation brackets. Consolation players counted only their final 18 holes.

Jimmy sees Atlanta in playoff loss

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — President Carter, describing himself as an avowed Atlanta Hawks fan, joined a sellout crowd Sunday for the final game in the Hawks-Washington Bullets playoff series.

The Bullets won the game 100-94 to claim the NBA Eastern Conference semifinal game.

Carter, a native of Georgia, was accompanied by his wife, Rosalynn, daughter Amy and Rep. Morris K. Udall, D-Ariz., a former professional basketball player.

Before the game began, Carter said "I'm for the Hawks. I always have been since they were born."

The president was given a standing ovation by the crowd at the Capital Centre and drew cheers as he made his way to a seat in the fourth row just off midcourt.

A fan with a T-shirt that read "I've got Bullet-mania," sat nearby, waving a sign that read, "Bullet Fever."

The president flew to the Capital Centre by helicopter from the White House.

At halftime, Udall said that, for balance, he was rooting for the Bullets. But he said, "The Hawks have been hot. Their shots have been going in. We've been doing about equally good."

Between the halves, the president remained at his seat for a brief interview on nationwide television on the game and his own athletic pursuits, particularly jogging.

76ers edge Spurs, 92-90 to knot series at three-all

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia 76ers beat the San Antonio Spurs 92-90 Sunday on a broken play.

With the Spurs ahead 90-89, the Sixers brought the ball in bounds, and, Julius Erving said, the pass was supposed to go low to Darryl Dawkins. But "Dr. J" spotted rookie Maurice Cheeks sliding through the lane and passed to him.

"I wanted to take it low to Darryl, but it worked out and we got the two points," said Erving. Cheek's layup won the game, and tied the best-of-seven National Basketball Association playoff series at three games apiece.

The 76ers, who rallied in the last period from a 13-point deficit, meet the Spurs in San Antonio Wednesday night in the seventh game.

Caldwell Jones, who led the 76ers with 20 points and 17 rebounds, belied his reputation as purely a defensive player.

"I wasn't looked upon to score in previous years because we had Doc and (George) McGinnis," said the 7-foot-1 center. "I was told to play defense and rebound ... but when they asked me to score, I could score."

There may have been a litttle confusion among the 76ers on the winning play, since Cheeks thought it was designed for Erving.

"But he (Erving) told me he was going to be double-teamed ... I just slid down the lane and got down low ... I just wanted to put a good shot up," Cheeks said.

The Spurs' last planned play of the game was designed to get the ball to either James Silas or George Gervin and have either one take it in, San Antonio Coach Doug Moe explained.

"You couldn't ask for two better players than these to do the job," Moe said.

Silas got the shot, a 10-foot jumper, but it didn't drop. Mark Oberding missed a desparate 40-footer at the buzzer.

Moe said the Spurs knew the 76ers were going to go to Dawkins on the inbounds play that resulted in the winning field goal, so they double-teamed the big forward. "In the scramble, Cheeks got open and since we didn't cover up on him, he dribbled and scored... it was a broken play for them. Cheeks made a helluva play," Moe added.

"Sometimes nothing you do goes well," said Silas. "We went cold. The series is even and it's going to be an all-out dogfight."

San Antonio led by 13 points, 76-63, with 10:53 remaining in the final quarter. But baskets by Henry Bibby, Steve Mix, Julius Erving and Dawkins reduced the margin to five with 8:45 left.

Silas, who led the Spurs with 25 points, broke the Philadelphia rally momentarily with a field goal at 7:13, but Erving and Bibby both scored to reduce the margin to three at 78-75.

San Antonio twice boosted its lead to five, but a field goal by Cheeks with 3:03 still to play sent the 76ers ahead 85-84.

Coby Dietrick put San Antonio ahead 86-85, and when Dawkins and Oberding traded baskets, it was 88-87 with 2:07 remaining.

Erving dropped in a layup and Silas a 20-foot jumper to give the Spurs a 90-89 advantage as the clock ran down to 20 seconds.

Ten seconds later, Cheeks connected on a left-handed layup after a pass from Erving for the winning basket. Philadelphia added a free throw for its final point.

San Antonio led 27-25 after the first period and 53-48 at halftime. The Spurs were in command, 72-61, at the end of three quarters, and they pushed it to their 13-point margin on early final period baskets by George Gervin and Larry Kenon around a field goal by Philadelphia's Eric Money.

Cheeks, the 6-foot-1 rookie from West Texas State, wound up with 15 points, as did Erving.

Prep netters file against UIL

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Six high school girls who want to stop a tennis tournament because heavy flooding prevented them from playing in the qualifying round are scheduled to appear in federal court here Monday afternoon.

The Beaumont Forest Park High School students filed suit against the University Interscholastic League after the girls were told they had defaulted their positions in the regional competitions April 21-22. In the suit, the girls said they could not attend the Houston-area tournament because heavy flooding stranded them in Beaumont and cut off their telephone communications.

Much of the area surrounding Beaumont was flooded when torrential rains that filled the Neches River spilled into hundreds of Southeast Texas homes and businesses.

Behind Moreno, Stargell blasts

Pirates pummel Astros, 10-0

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Omar Moreno and Willie Stargell drove in three runs apiece to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 10-5 victory over the Houston Astros Sunday.

Houston began the game with a leadoff homer by Terry Puhl off Pirates starter Don Robinson, who left the game with a shoulder injury after delivering the home run pitch.

The Astros added an unearned run in the first inning off reliever Bruce Kison, 1-0, but he held Houston scoreless over the next five innings.

Twins 5, Tigers 3

DETROIT (AP) — Hot-hitting Roy Smalley collected four hits, including a homer, to help the Minnesota Twins defeat the Detroit Tigers 5-3 Sunday.

Smalley singled and scored in each of the first and third innings and hit a solo homer in the fourth. His four hits improved his batting average to .400.

Jeff Zahn struggled to his third victory without a loss and Mike Marshall, who relieved in the sixth, picked up his seventh save.

Expos 7, Giants 5

MONTREAL (AP) — Gary Carter drilled two home runs in a game for the 10th time in his career and drove in four runs to power the streaking Montreal Expos to a 7-5 victory over the slumping San Francisco Giants Sunday.

The Expos erased a 4-3 San Francisco lead in the fourth inning when Ellis Valentine, making his first appearance since serving a three-game suspension for bumping an umpire, slammed a three-run pinch homer off Giants starter Vida Blue, 4-2, scoring Larry Parrish, who doubled, and Chris Speier, who walked.

Brewers 3-3, Jays 0-5

TORONTO (AP) — Consecutive home runs by Rick Bosetti and Bob Robertson leading off the eighth inning led the Toronto Blue Jays to a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers and a split of their doubleheader Sunday.

Mike Caldwell blanked the Blue Jays on six hits as the Brewers took the opener 3-0.

Red Sox 2, Angels 0

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Steve Renko hurled two-hit ball before leaving with one out in the ninth inning, pitching the Boston Red Sox to a 2-0 decision over the California Angels Sunday.

Renko, 1-1, had a no-hitter until Don Baylor spoiled it with a one-out double in the seventh.

Phillies 4, Padres 3

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Manny Trillo's single climaxed a two-run Philadelphia rally in the ninth inning Sunday as the Phillies defeated the San Diego Padres 4-3 before a crowd of 50,722.

Indians 5, Royals 4

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Toby Harrah delivered a two-run double and Rick Wise retired 12 straight batters after a shaky fourth inning to give the Cleveland Indians a 5-4 victory over the Kansas City Royals Sunday and snap a four-game losing streak.

Dodgers 8-3, Mets 3-6

NEW YORK (AP) — Richie Hebner drove in the go-ahead run with a looping single to center and Joel Youngblood smacked his fourth homer in six games to lead the New York Mets to a 6-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers and a split of their Sunday doubleheader.

Dusty Baker drove in five runs and Gary Thomasson had three RBI as the Dodgers won the opener 8-3 behind Don Sutton's five-hit pitching.

Orioles 13, A's 1

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Jerry Roenicke and Ken Singleton each belted three-run homers during a 10-run seventh inning as the streaking Baltimore Orioles overpowered the Oakland A's 13-1 Sunday.

Kiko Garcia, Lee May and Rich Dauer also homered for the Orioles, who have won 10 of their last 11 games and have beaten the A's 14 times in 15 games.

Cubs 6, Braves 5

ATLANTA (AP) — The Chicago Cubs, blanked on two hits for eight innings, erupted for six runs with two out in the ninth against Atlanta relief ace Gene Garber, capped by Bobby Murcer's three-run homer, and edged the Atlanta Braves 6-5 Sunday.

Atlanta starter Larry McWilliams entered the ninth with a 5-0 lead but Dave Kingman led off with a single and Steve Ontiveros walked. McWilliams then retired the next two batters before walking Ted Sizemore to load the bases.

Mariners 6, Yankees 5

SEATTLE (AP) — Bruce Bochte's pinch-hit RBI single off Dick Tidrow with two out in the bottom of the ninth capped a three-run rally and led the Seattle Mariners past the New York Yankees 6-5 Sunday.

Seattle relief pitcher Rafeal Vasguez, 1-0, who pitched four shutout innings, was the winner while Yankee reliever Paul Mirabella, 0-2, took the loss.

Reds 5, Cardinals 1

CINCINNATI (AP) — Paul Moskau pitched 52-3 innings of scoreless relief and drove in the winning run for the Cincinnati Reds in a 5-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Sunday.

Moskau, 1-0, took over in the third inning when Tom Seaver reinjured his back.

Blalock claims Crisman

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Janie Blalock shot a par-72 Sunday to win the LPGA's Otey Crisman Classic by six strokes and said, "This could be my best season."

Blalock went into the final round of the 54-hole $100,000 tournament eight strokes in front of Pat Bradley, who notched a 2-under-par 70.

Blalock's rounds of 68-65-72—205 were good for $15,000 — her second tour victory in a row and third in seven outings — and led her to say afterwards: "I've never enjoyed myself more. I'm just starting to peak. There's no part of my game I fear, not a shot I can't handle."

"This could be my best season," she said. "I feel I'll be in contention in every tournament in the next few weeks. I've got a good mental attitude."

Depailler takes Spanish GP win

JARAMA, Spain (AP) — France's Patrick Depailler led Sunday's Spanish Grand Prix from start to finish to score a brilliant victory and move into a tie for the lead in the World Drivers Championship standings with Canadian Gilles Villeneuve.

The only car that could stay with him was that of his teammate, Jacques Laffite. They appeared heading for another Ligier 1-2 sweep when Laffite's engine stopped, probably with electrical problems, on the 16th lap of the 75-lap event.

Argentina's Carlos Reutemann, in the older Lotus 79, took over second place and held the position the rest of the way.

The fastest lap went to Villeneuve, fighting back after a pit stop in his Ferrari to finish seventh at 99.56 mph.

De Vicenzo-Boros Legends champs

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Argentina's Roberto De Vicenzo birdied five straight holes in the playoff, including a 5-footer on the sixth extra hole, Sunday to carry the De Vicenzo-Julius Boros tandem to the $70,000 first prize in the Legends of Golf Tournament.

Tommy Bolt, who birdied three straight holes in the playoff, and Art Wall, who had seven birdies for the day, earned second place money of $40,000 in the gathering gloom of Onion Creek Country Club.

"I play many holes in playoffs before but I never won it," said De Vicenzo.

"If I had helped Art at all during the regular round, we wouldn't have lost it," said Bolt.

Both the Bolt-Wall and Boros-De Vicenzo teams shot final round 7-under par 63s to get into the playoff with 15-under par 195s on the par-70, 6,584-yard course.

Boros and De Vicenzo birdied the last three holes, to tie for the playoff. They were four shots behind with five holes to play.

Wall, who has 35 career aces, almost made a hole-in-one on the 53rd hole to send his team 15-under par. He had a one-foot tap-in.

Both teams parred the first playoff hole, then began matching birdies. After the 55-year-old Wall made a 3-foot birdie putt on the second playoff hole, the 56-year-old De Vicenzo rammed home a 10-footer. De Vicenzo birdied the third extra hole with another 10-footer and the 61-year-old Bolt got down an 8-footer. On the fourth playoff hole, De Vicenzo made a 3-footer and Bolt responded with an 8-footer.

On the fifth extra hole, Bolt knocked home a 10-footer and De Vicenzo fired back with an 8-footer.

On the sixth extra hole, a 360-yard par-4, De Vicenzo lashed a long drive, then wedged to within 5 feet. Bolt missed a 20-footer and Wall was short with a 45-footer to set the stage for the winning putt.

Fred Haas Jr. and Dick Mayer, who led the tournament most of the way, stumbled home with a final round 70. Haas was assesed a 2-shot penalty on the final hole when he dropped his putter and it hit his ball. The team was tagged with a double-bogey 7.

They earned third-place money of $30,000 for a 198 finish. Had Haas made his birdie putt, his team would have been in the playoffs.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON
Monday, April 30

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Your greatest fulfillment this year comes through service to others. Even if you are not gainfully employed, you will be involved in useful activities. Money may be easier to acquire. Physically, you mostly feel fine. Family relationships become closer. Romance is rewarding.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Person who is usually cooperative, helpful, may now be difficult, obnoxious. Control your temper. If willing to face facts, you win. Be aware of your own worth.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Friend in trouble confides and expects your sympathy. Key is not to show distress. Sense of humor proves best ally. Overcome tendency to brood, worry. Social life due for lift.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Maintain your present situation at place of employment. Organize priorities. Let member of opposite sex know how you feel. Toss aside false pride. Socialize tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Concentrate on odd jobs before tackling new projects. Insist on proof and be skeptical of others' lavish promises. Offspring demand more time, effort.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Postpone new starts. Time on your side. Traditional insights are helpful regarding a job or health matter. Much pleasure likely to come by meeting new people tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Working environment conducive to finishing off old business. Distant contact plays important role in business, personal success. Interest in travel, distant friends is generated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good day to concentrate on complex matters. Mixing business with pleasure is futile. Judgment is sound regarding future ties with others. Loved ones affectionate.

France honors elderly nun

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — France has conferred the National Order of Merit on a Roman Catholic nun who worked in Fiji for 70 years.

Sister Marie Estelle, 98, left France for Fiji in 1908 and never returned home. Born Pauline Chassignon, she joined the Marist Sisters in 1907. She taught school on the Pacific island, cared for leprosy patients and now, as a Fiji citizen, lives in retirement at St. Mary's convent in Suva.

France's charge d'affaires in Suva, Bernard Malandain, said Sunday that Sister Marie received the award for having set "an excellent example that very few people have achieved."

Oswald: "The recent death of Howard Schenken makes it seem appropriate to discuss the weak two bids that he and the late Ed Hymes Jr. developed back in 1942 or '43 and the way we recommend using them so as to make things as simple as possible."

Alan: "Two clubs is the forcing opening bid. It shows either a normal strong two bid in some suit or notrump hand with either 23-24 high-card points or with 27 or more high-card points. Partner responds with an artificial two-diamond response to deny any ace, king or two queens. With this response the partnership is committed to getting to one trick from game — with any other responses game must be reached."

Oswald: "South was able to bid three hearts with his one-point hand because he knew that he had denied any real strength by his two-diamond bid and that he had been forced to bid to within one trick of game. North had only nine tricks in spades, but he expected that six hearts would either be a lay down or at least there would be a good play for it, so North bid the heart slam."

Alan: "A 3-0 heart break would defeat the slam. The 4-2 spade break didn't bother it."

Card sense

Immediate ace showing responses to opening forcing two bids. A convention that is not recommended.

Iran rejects support from Soviet Union

(Editor's Note: The fall of the monarchy in Iran two months ago was a blow to the strong U.S. position in that strategic country. But has it conversely been a boost to the Soviet Union? AP Correspondent Thomas Kent examines the question in the following analysis.)

By THOMAS KENT
Associated Press Writer

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Despite the sharp decline in U.S. influence since the ouster of the shah, the Soviet Union has made no major diplomatic inroads in Iran, even though it gave strong support to the revolutionaries.

The Islamic regime of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has been adamant that it will not let Soviet "imperialism" replace the former American role in the country. Khomeini told the Soviet ambassador two weeks after the revolutionary victory that Iran will not tolerate interference from any country in its internal affairs.

In recent weeks, Islamic anti-communist groups have distributed leaflets in Tehran attacking Soviet policies, particularly the discouragement of religion inside the Soviet Union. Some 2,000 Iranians and Afghans demonstrated at the Soviet Embassy here last Thursday to protest Soviet involvement in neighboring Afghanistan.

"I think the new government is more anti-communist than the old one," a politically active banker in Tehran says. "They think the Russians are all atheists, and in an Islamic republic (Iran), an atheist is nobody."

Meanwhile, Soviet officials believe the U.S. role in Iran may be far from finished, despite the anti-American rhetoric of the February revolution.

They note that the Iranian economy is still oriented to the West. They expect that foreign companies — including American firms — may be invited increasingly to resume business in Iran to put the faltering economy on its feet.

The Soviet Union maintained polite diplomatic relations with the regime of Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. But it gave increasingly vocal support to Khomeini's revolutionaries as the shah's government last year showed its first signs of crumbling.

When Soviet Ambassador Vladimir Vinogradov became the first envoy of a major power to be received by Khomeini after the revolution, Soviet opportunities for immediate influence in Iran seemed strong.

Since then, however, little momentum toward closer Moscow-Tehran ties has appeared. On the contrary, revolutionary leaders continue to dismiss U.S. and Soviet influence in the same breath.

Much local suspicion of the Soviet Union stems from its efforts to reduce the influence of religion, particularly among the 35 million Soviet citizens who live in traditionally Moslem areas of the Soviet south.

A leaflet signed by the "Dawn of Islam" organization and distributed during Thursday's protest at the Soviet Embassy referred accusingly to Soviet prohibitions on religious evangelism.

The "Dawn of Islam," apparently a Moslem fundamentalist group, also asserted that some communists back "free sexual relations and complete hippie-style relationships."

Iran's No. 2 Shiite Moslem leader, Ayatollah Kazem Shariatmadari, reportedly expressed hope to Soviet visitors this month that Moscow will give its own Moslems "more freedom."

Women dislike Labor Party

LONDON (AP) — Young British mothers say they don't like Conservative Party leader Margaret Thatcher's upper middle-class accent and aggressive manner, but they like the Labor Party's socialist policies even less, according to an opinion poll published Sunday.

The poll indicated mothers under the age of 45 — a group whose support some analysts consider vital to victory — will vote for the Conservatives by a 4-percentage-point margin over Labor in national elections for a new Parliament May 3.

A Conservative victory would make Mrs. Thatcher Britain's first woman prime minister, yet the women polled by the Marplan organization ranked her third in the personal popularity contest behind Labor Prime Minister James Callaghan and David Steel, leader of the Liberals, the third-strongest party. The poll was published in the News of the World newspaper.

On the campaign trail Sunday, Mrs. Thatcher told a suburban London gathering of 2,000 Conservative union members that "Britain is at a turning point."

"Its people will choose either to continue our lonely road toward socialism and poverty or to turn again toward the free world of the Western democracies before it is too late," she said.

Callaghan, who has been running a low-key, "why-change-a-good-thing" campaign, took the day off and was resting at Chequers, his country home.

The mothers, who account for 7 million of Britain's 40 million registered voters, favored Labor by a 55-45 margin in the last nationwide balloting five years ago.

Marplan said most of the 1,017 women it questioned in 54 of the 635 electoral districts listed union pay demands as the primary cause for a doubling of consumer prices during the past five years of Labor Party rule.

Most of the women also said they believe that Tory plans to cut taxes and scrap burdensome state controls will bring a better life for their children, the poll reported.

While all the major pollsters agree a Conservative victory is likely, the confusion over the extent of that plurality continues.

The Gallup poll has given the Conservatives an 8 percent lead over Labor, up by 2½ percentage points from its previous prediction a week ago. Market Opinion and Research International, however, gave the Tories only a 3 percent margin, down from a predicted 6-point margin three days ago.

Research Services put the Tory lead at 11½ percent. A week ago the organization showed the Conservatives leading by 21 points.

House begins budget work

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, accustomed to fattening the federal budget to stimulate the economy, is starting work on a 1980 budget that is likely to require some belt-tightening in order to slow inflation.

The spending plan recommended by the House Budget Committee would, after inflation is considered, allow defense spending to rise by about 1.5 percent over this year's level. Other government programs would be authorized an average increase of about 0.3 percent.

Spending would total $532.7 billion. The deficit, a figure on which the fight against inflation has been focused, would be $24.9 billion, compared with the $36.6-billion deficit expected this year.

This marks the first time in the five-year history of the congressional budget process that lawmakers will be making an effort to hold down spending, rather than increasing it to spur the economy.

Consideration of the budget is expected to occupy the House for three days this week. The Senate, meanwhile, plans to complete action on a bill creating a separate department of education and on legislation aimed at reducing aircraft noise.

The Senate Ethics Committee will open hearings Monday on five allegations against Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., including accusations that he converted Senate expense money and campaign contributions to his personal use.

President Carter's energy program faces another possible setback this week. The Senate Energy Committee is expected to reject Carter's proposal for standby authority to order the weekend closing of gasoline stations.

The panel probably will substitute a plan that would allow the governors to meet federal fuel-conservation standards the best way they see fit.

The budget being considered by the House would cut Carter's defense budget by about $3 billion. It would add $900 million for education and $3.1 billion more for a variety of assistance programs such as meals for the elderly and child nutrition.

The proposal would reduce the program of public-service jobs for depressed areas under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act to 200,000 jobs by the end of 1980. In approving its budget last week, the Senate recommened a cut to 100,000.

House budget-writers also proposed to eliminate the program of revenue-sharing for the states, at a saving of $2.3 billion. The Senate wants to continue that aid.

The Senate and House are required to agree by May 15 on a spending ceiling for fiscal 1980, which begins next Oct. 1. That target figure will serve as a guide for lawmakers as they consider legislation this summer. After the ceiling is reviewed in late summer, it will limit expenditures during the following 12 months.

The already-confusing budget process is even more murky this year because the House, Senate and the Carter administration cannot agree on the course of inflation and economic growth.

The administration is using the most optimistic assumptions, forecasting that inflation this year will average 7.4 percent — compared with last year's 9 percent — and that the economy will grow by 2.2 percent.

Drive line

RADIO TRIBUTES: Radios are so much fixtures of today's cars, it's hard to believe that in 1928 it took Earl "Madman" Muntz a week to install a radio in a Cord L-29. Muntz was one of the fastest and best in the business.

The first radios were installed in automobiles in 1922. They were converted home models and could only be played with the engine off. Reception was terrible. Another item in the radio trivia file might explain that: One form of antenna for early cars was chicken wire under the roof liner.

LAZY MAN'S CAR, that's how we remember hearing some describe an early model car with automatic transmission. The idea seems to have caught on. Ninety-three percent of the cars manufactured in the U.S. in 1978 have automatic transmissions. Eighty-one percent have air conditioning.

WATCH OUT FOR TRAINS DEPARTMENT: It takes a passenger train with eight cars 3,500 feet to stop, on the average, if the train is going 60 mph. For a 150-car freight train, traveling 30 mph, the stopping distance is 3,150 feet. Crossing accidents are often the result of a driver misjudging the train's speed and thinking he'll beat it. The point is, there's no margin of error. Trying to beat a train is like playing Russian roulette with five bullets in the gun.

LITTLE PASSENGERS. In 1976 more than 800 children in the U.S. under the age of 5 died in motor vehicle collisions. An estimated 100,000 more suffered significant injuries. This tragedy is compounded by the fact that the overwhelming majority of these deaths and injuries could have been prevented had the children been correctly placed in adequate restraint systems. A Washington state study showed that 91 percent of infant to 5-year-old fatalities could have been prevented had the children been so protected. Infants and children under 5 can't secure themselves correctly. We have to do it for them.

Driving Impressions

MacPherson and his strut

By DON JAMES
Staff Writer

Few have ever heard of Earl MacPherson or the Chevrolet Cadet, but almost everyone knows about the MacPherson strut.

Since MacPherson's front suspension design was introduced to the world in a British Ford, everyone assumes it was a Ford development. However, MacPherson designed the strut for the Cadet, a small car designed for Chevrolet but never produced, then resurrected the design after going to work for British Ford.

Earl MacPherson had a few other bright ideas for the Cadet, among them the transaxle. The cadet had a front engine but the transmission was mounted in the rear to eliminate the transmission hump in front and produce enough room for three in the front seat.

The Cadet would have been an interesting technical exercise, although it almost certainly would not have been a financial success for General Motors, being a couple of decades before its time. But the design sold Ford on MacPherson's talent for designing a space-efficient car and indirectly led to his employment with Ford.

The MacPherson strut is essential for the front suspension on transverse engine, front-drive cars. As applied to the Chevrolet Citation and other recent designs, it utilizes a sliding pillar with a built-in shock absorber and a single lower control arm to save space on either side of the wide engine-drive line package. Turning the engine crosswise uses up most of the available space between the front wheels.

Most transverse engine front-drive cars also have rack and pinion steering, again for space considerations. There's simply no room for the customary ball and sector, worm and roller or cam and nut gearboxes.

This is a fortunate happenstance, for rack and pinion steering, although it requires an expensive power steering arrangement, is the only way to go for maximum road feel.

The rack and pinion design is far from new. The first car I saw with it was a 1949 Morris Minor. My 1952 MG-TD had it, but General Motors and other U.S. manufacturers stayed away from it until Ford offered it in the U.S. on the Mustang II. Incidentally, the Morris Minor also had torsion bar front suspension in 1948, something that was introduced as "all-new" on the U.S. market in the late 1950s.

Only shortcoming of MacPherson struts is the difficulty and expense of replacing shock absorbers.

Many "advances" in American car design came from others, which doesn't detract from the fact that U.S. cars remain the world's most durable. They're the easiest to service and parts availability, particularly for body parts, is better on the most obscure U.S. makes than the best-selling imports.

I'm not against imported cars. I love all cars and have owned and driven both U.S. and European cars, and there's no contest as far as ease of service and rugged dependability are concerned.

Leading Italian author dies

ROME (AP) — Ugo Spirito, a leading Italian philosopher and author, died of a heart attack at his Rome home Saturday, his family announced Sunday. He was 83.

Spirito had been a professor of philosophy at several Italian universities. He was a controversial figure in Italian political life and a fervent advocate of positivism — a school of thought rejecting metaphysical speculation in favor of the more concrete.

35 EPA ESTIMATED MPG / 47 EPA ESTIMATED HIGHWAY MPG
Remember: Compare these estimates to the "estimated mpg" of other cars. You may get a different mileage, depending on how fast you drive, weather conditions and trip length. Also remember that your actual mileage will probably be less than the EPA estimated highway fuel economy. California EPA estimated mpg lower.

The Mercedes-Benz 240 Diesel— is it the world's finest economy car, or is it the world's most economical fine car?

Best EPA mileage figures in it class, yet first class finish in side and out. So frugal-minded that a manual shift is standard, yet so Mercedes-Benz that 4-Wheel Independent suspension, 4-wheel disc brakes, even a quartz-crystal chronometer are standard, too.
A Mercedes-Benz is engineered like no other car in the world

BUSINESS SERVICES

23—11—Building and Remodeling

COURTMAN MANAGEMENT CO., INC.

Has your Home been Damaged or Destroyed! We suggest the following steps:

1. Do Not pay off your mortgage with the Insurance Fund.
2. Escrow the Insurance Money with Mortgage Company.
3. If your home is only partially damaged, have an Architect or engineer check it. It will be money well spent.
4. GET SEVERAL BIDS. Beware of the unscrupulous firms. Ask for a detailed list of work to be done.
5. Check with SBA for reconstruction or repair loans.
6. Don't Panic — Go slow.

We would like an opportunity to help you solve your rebuilding or reconstruction problems, large or small. We can help you arrange financing, and we will give you a competitive bid. In business since 1963.

George Segal marriage shaky

By LIZ SMITH
Chi. Trib.-N.Y. News

Entertainment

"A man may be a fool and not know it, but not if he is married," wrote H.L. Mencken.

The long, long marriage between George Segal and his movie editor wife Marion is as shaky as the San Andreas Fault. The actor, who many feel has such a light comic touch, wasn't laughing as he moved out of his house a few days ago, and only last weekend his wife was around at parties saying some harsh things about little Georgie.

The Segals' union has almost broken records for "togetherness" through his ascending Hollywood career. They dote on their two daughters, so you can look for several tries to patch things up before anything drastic happens.

FRIED GRAVEL: In Garson Kanin's upcoming book and TV mini-series about Hollywood, Joe DiMaggio will come across as the really good guy in the Marilyn Monroe story, but playwright Arthur Miller won't exactly win any medals as a hero ... Burt Reynolds wouldn't mind hosting the "Tonight Show" if Johnny Carson leaves but says he could do it once a week and never on a long-term basis. (Doesn't NBC already have a host for the "Tonight Show" like that?). . .Heiress Joy Parkinson, who has been described as one of the richest women in the world and stands to inherit $30 million from a Wall Street fortune, still wants a divorce from her husband, Anthony. (He claims she made the decision because of her astrologer.) While he seeks $1,000 a week alimony and custody and support of their children, insiders say that Mrs. P. already has offered him $2 million to get out of her life. It is said that Mr. Parkinson wants a lot more than that.

FOURTH ESTATE-GATE: That man who constantly applies his cat-o'-nine-tails to the backs of U.S. journalists, Alex Cockburn, wrote a fascinating column the other day about the rumored existence of secret lists naming some 4,000 persons who are said to have received gifts (of up to $10,000) from the shah of Iran's ex-Washington Ambassador Ardeshir Zahedi. The story of the shah's beneficence in trying to control the American press is complete with hints of implicit blackmail should these names ever be made public. (Some on the lists are rumored to be politicians, but most are media-ites.)

Now almost every major investigative publication in the United States has secured or been offered such lists (said to have been originally kept in three blue ledgers found in the Washington embassy after Zahedi hot-footed it off.).

BE SPECIFIC: I already told you all about Newsweek's good fortune in getting a color cover photo of Jerry Brown and Linda Ronstadt. What I didn't say — and it needs to be said — was that the picture was supplied by UPI.

Recital a pleasure to hear

By MARTHA STEIMEL
Arts Editor

There wasn't a thing ordinary about Doris Lambert's recital Sunday afternoon.

The soprano chose music that was a pleasure to hear, performed it as though she enjoyed doing so and enhanced her own abilities with the support of flute, by Enola Ranolph; clarinet, by Jack Bowman; and strong piano accompaniment by Jan McDaniel.

Mrs. Lambert displayed her grasp of particular stylistic requirements in the Handel ("Nell Dolce Dell'oblio") — this was the one with flute — and her flexibility in the group of six songs by Louis Spohr written for voice, clarinet and piano. Her soprano is one that she knows how to use effectively and has the good sense not to avoid songs because they might be a mite difficult.

None of the music on this recital was a cinch. The Leonard Bernstein songs, "I Hate Music," were full of difficult intervals and quick changes of tempo and mood. They also were the only part of the program done in English.

The most colorful music was "O, Luce di Quest Anima" from "Linda di Chamounix" — Donizetti — and it gave the singer an opportunity to use her full voice plus some dramatic flair.

Five Ravel songs, Greek in inspiration and entirely charming in their zest and appeal, also were part of Mrs. Lambert's afternoon of music, performed in Hardin Auditorium at Midwestern State University. She is a student of Dr. Don Maxwell and gave the recital as part of the requirements for the master of music degree.

Public radio to air shows on Moscow competition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Public radio stations in May will be airing two two-hour programs devoted to the Olympics of music: the Tschaikowsky competition in Moscow.

"No American broadcast organization, radio or television, has ever devoted a program to the competition and its winners, until now," says National Public Radio. "These are absolutely unprecedented."

The programs focus on violinist Elmar Oliveira and cellist Nathaniel Rosen, the first American gold winners in the competition since Van Cliburn won the piano competition in 1958 and assured himself a place in musical history.

The more than 200 public radio stations may elect when they will air the programs, as they are being mailed tapes. Listeners should consult local listings.

Both programs feature material made available by Radio Moscow — the actual award-winning performances recorded at the competition. The U.S. producers have presented the performances in their entirety so that listeners can hear and judge for themslves why the two Americans were chosen for gold medals.

There are also interviews with people who know the two young artists and have personal experiences of the competition itself.

There is Daniel Heifitz, who shared the fourth place in violin in 1976.

Susan Starr, pianist who won the silver medal in 1962, describes the audiences at Moscow as sometimes laughing at contestants who fumbled, as if they were watching a Marx Brothers movie.

There are interviews with Joseph Fuchs, a violinist and former Moscow competition judge, and pianist Eugene Liszt, who comments that too few Americans enter the competition.

There are also bits from personal friends and colleagues of Oliveira and Rosen. And the two artists themselves talk about their careers, the agonies of the competition and the rewards.

Alabama due aid to reclaim mines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Alabama will receive $130,000 in federal funds to reclaim two abandoned strip mines and to stop the flow of sediment into Lake Lahusage in DeKalb County, the Interior Department has announced.

Walter M. Heine, director of the department's Office of Surface Mining, said the problem poses "a threat to the public health, safety and welfare of some 150 residents near Mentone in the northeast part of the state."
