Cambodian family learning new way of life

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

Little more than two years ago, life in his Cambodian homeland was a matter of sheer survival for Jan Mong Van.

He weighed 80 to 90 pounds. That was 60 pounds under his normal weight. His only meals were soup of rice: a fistful of rice per day, day after day. Sometimes he even had meat: one chicken shared with as many as 100 other persons.

He lost his wife and two children. The Communist government stripped him of his job as a cutter of rubies, took him from his comfortable home in Pailin, forced him to live in a hut with many others and labor on rice farms. The government provided him with only two changes of clothes — all black — a year, and he was left to fashion rudimentary footwear from strips of tire rubber. Every moment of every day saw him subjected to ever-increasing hardship and weakness.

Today, 37-year-old Jan Mong owns his own home in Midland, has a steady job, and weighs 146 pounds.

HE IS A SURVIVOR of unspeakable inhumanities in Cambodia, one who has found a new genesis in America, where he has re-married and had a native-born American son, one he hopes never will be exposed to the horrors he, his new wife, and their families have suffered.

His present wife, Kim Heang Dul, 26, also is a survivor of tribulation-like conditions. Her first husband abandoned her in Cambodia in 1976. When he sought to escape the Communist web, he wanted her to leave their 6-month-old girl behind, for to take her would mean running the risk of the Communists hearing her cry.

She would not do it. In a land where even the strongest men died of malnourishment, the baby lived only by nursing. If Kim Heang left, the infant would die.

She stayed. She never saw her husband again.

Now, Kim Heang, her daughter Sokkear, now 7, her new husband Jan Mong, his 14-year-old niece Khitong and 62-year-old mother Chey Mouy are immigrants in America, residents of West Texas, Midlanders.

Jan Mong works at Hogan Park for the City Parks Department. Kim Heang does plastic welding at Teraco. Khitong works at a barbecue restaurant in her off-school hours. Working father, working mother, working children.

"Everything (is) good" in Midland, says Jan Mong in his broken, hard-learned English. "To eat, to work, everything good."

BEFORE THE TAKEOVER of Cambodia by Communists in 1975, Jan Mong never considered abandoning his homeland for the distant skies of the United States. His only knowledge of America was vague, from word-of-mouth: he had once heard someone refer to it as "the number one place to live."

But once Communists took over Cambodia, his attitudes toward his homeland became changed forever.

"Cambodia, before Communists came (was) good (place to live), but after Communists, no good," he recalls with sadness.

After he was taken from his wooden home and thrust into a life of forced labor on a farm, each day became a matter of making it until the next day. The government provided each of them with only a handful of rice every 24 hours, and once cooked it was so thin it was more like "something to drink" than food, he recalls. They took to eating anything in order to survive — grass, dogs, cats, rodents, snakes.

"(I would) eat and not (be) full every day for four years," he says. His wife and children died, he adds, because there was "no medicine." His girl was 7 years old, his boy but 6 months.

And as his own weight dropped from malnutrition, his strength waned as

Walesa calls for strikes; Soviets land

By The Associated Press

Lech Walesa urged Solidarity members to stage bloodless strikes against Poland's martial law regime to prove the independent union "works and exists," the Norwegian radio reported Saturday. Reports from Poland said troops shot and killed 56 people and clubbed 10 others to death.

Western intelligence sources Saturday confirmed that planeloads of Soviet officers landed in Warsaw last Wednesday. There was no further elaboration.

The British Broadcasting Corp., quoting "reliable reports from Warsaw," reported early Sunday that at least 200 Polish factories were on strike, and said, "There are persistent rumors in Warsaw of soldiers in some industrial areas refusing to use force against strikers."

The State Department said it considered reports of 54 killed in worker-police clashes in Poland to be reliable. A Dutch truck driver returning from Poland said Solidarity officials told him Polish troops shot and killed 56 miners and clubbed 10 others to death in Katowice last week.

The driver, Albert Brand, reached by The Associated Press bureau in Amsterdam after he returned from a convoy delivering charity food parcels to Poland, said Solidarity officials told him 10 people were clubbed to death Wednesday and 56 shot to death Thursday night at the Wojek mine. Poland's official media reported seven demonstrators shot and killed at the mine.

Polish workers, some joined by deserting martial law troops, were holding out in factories, mines, and shipyards, according to reports reaching the West from Poland on Saturday.

Some accounts said the strikers threatened to blow up mines and ships and that Walesa suffered a heart attack, but as with all the other reports, the accounts could not be confirmed because there are no normal communications with Poland and dispatches by Western correspondents are subject to military censorship.

Walesa's appeal was written and signed by him Thursday in the village he is being held in 15 miles south of Warsaw and smuggled out of Poland by a Norwegian citizen, Norway's government radio, NRK, said.

The broadcast said Walsea urged Solidarity members to stage "passive strikes" at their factories, meaning not to report to work, and that "at plants where you have a possiblity to defend yourselves you should stage active strikes," meaning occupations, NRK said.

"Workers should not arm themselves and should avoid bloodshed," said Walesa, Solidarity's chief. The message ended with an appeal to "prove that Solidarity works and exists," the radio said.

The BBC, in a report from Warsaw, said its sources reported that "Walesa was asked officially to appear on Polish television. He refused, saying he would rather die first." There was no further elaboration.

Reports from Warsaw said hundreds of people trudged through the snow for the funeral of a prominent Polish journalist, Jerzy Zielinski, who reportedly leaped from a hospital window last Sunday after learning about the military takeover and the arrests of Sol silence. Thp leaders.

The funeral procession took place in silence. There was no eulogy, but friends described Zielinski as the "first victim of martial law."

Meanwhile, a convoy of at least 30 trucks carrying food arrived in Poland. Some of the trucks bore red "friendship" banners saying the food came from East Germany. Food appeared on usually empty shelves, sparking speculation that the government had been hoarding it.

"It was there all along," said an elderly Polish woman. "Solidarity was right all along."

Warsaw Radio reported "pauses in work" and continuing sit-ins at several plants in Wroclaw province, along the Baltic coast's industrial belt and at the Huta Katowice steel works. It also said the 10 p.m.-6 a.m. curfew was extended two hours in Gdansk, scene of fierce rioting last week, maintained at the same level in six other provinces, and relaxed two hours in the other 42.

In a later broadcast, the radio reported that a miner was killed and several others injured in a mine explosion at the Zabrze coal mine in Silesia on Friday. The report said 23 miners were rescued.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer said a pattern was emerging in which Poland's military rulers were using soldiers to seal off public areas and workplaces and using police to intimidate political activists through violence. "We again call for the release of political prisoners," Fischer said.

Red Brigades at war with NATO

ROME (AP) — The Red Brigades terrorists, in a six-page statement issued Saturday, branded kidnapped U.S. Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier "a Yankee pig," and declared war against NATO and the American military, police reported.

In Verona, Judith Dozier, her voice cracking and her eyes welling with tears, appealed to the terrorists for the safe release of her 50-year-old husband.

Italian police used helicopters and dogs to comb northeast Italy in their largest search on record, hunting for the "people's prison" where Dozier reportedly was held by the terrorists to face "proletarian justice."

The statement by the Marxist urban guerrillas was the first written dispatch since they snatched Dozier from his Verona apartment Thursday night.

"War against NATO!" read one of the slogans at the end of the message. "Attack the centers, the war strategies, and the bases of the American military machine!"

The statement accused the United States and multinational corporations of using the Western alliance to dominate Europe and criticized the "complete exclusion of the interested peoples" from the U.S.-Soviet arms reduction talks in Geneva, Switzerland.

The communique was left in a cracker box in a wastebasket on the major Rome thoroughfare of Via XX Settembre. An anonymous telephone caller told a journalist from the Rome newspaper Giornale D'Italia where to find it.

The message did not make any demands for Dozier's release.

It carried the Red Brigades' symbol at the top — a five-pointed star in a circle, and was labeled "Communique Number One."

In previous kidnappings, the Red Brigades have issued a series of numbered communiques.

"On Thursday, December 17, an armed nucleus of our organization captured and locked in a people's prison a Yankee pig of the American occupation army, Brigadier General James Dozier, vice commander of Allied Land Forces in Southern Europe," the statement said.

The message praised West Germany's Red Army Faction, another left-wing terrorist group that has claimed attacks on NATO facilities. It also called for "reopening" links with other urban guerrilla groups in Europe, naming specifically the Irish Republican Army and the Basque separatist group ETA.

Mrs. Dozier, in a brief statement at NATO headquarters targeted for the Red Brigades, said, "This is a man who lives and cares for others."

"We hope that you will return him safely and sound," she said, her voice filled with emotion.

Police said Dozier, the second-highest ranking U.S. Army officer in Southern Europe, was probably in the hands of the leftist terrorist group's hard-line Venice wing — which kidnapped chemical company executive Giuseppe Taliercio last May 20 and left his bullet-riddled body in the trunk of a car on July 6.

"I think it's the hard-liners," Police Chief Pasquale Zappone told a news conference. He did not elaborate.

Police believe the Red Brigades are divided into two factions: The "hawks," who interrogate their victims and then kill them, and the "doves," who sometimes grant safe release after a "people's trial."

Police set up hundreds of roadblocks and searched homes in the area between Venice and Milan. They were giving particular attention to empty summer vacation cottages around Lake Garda near Verona, but Zappone stressed that the terrorists had a three-hour start Thursday before police began the chase.

Poland: A land in agony

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST JR.
Editor-in-Chief, The Hearst Newspapers

Hearst

NEW YORK — During the past week Poland was suddenly sealed in savage martial law which only fortified the brave people's defiance of a discredited communist regime. It triggered the wanton massacre in Silesia of seven coal miners killed and 70 wounded with hundreds more injured throughout the battered, down-trodden nation.

Acting in tandem with advance Soviet advice, the wobbly government cracked down on hard-won reforms by the independent Solidarity union and threatened the death penalty to anyone refusing to work. Marxism expired as security forces drubbed people mercilessly on freezing, snow-swept Polish streets. These were workers in what had euphemistically been hailed as a "workers' state."

President Reagan, his anger evident but under control, told the sixth press conference of his administration in Washington that we were not "naive" about who engineered the fiasco. He refused to be drawn by leading questions, saying that he wouldn't tip his hand. But he put the Russians on notice that they couldn't expect bygones to be bygones and simultaneously rubbed it in with unstinting praise for Poland and her dedication to freedom.

After appealing for moderation to avoid Polish bloodshed, Pope John Paul II urged the satellite government to desist and engage in dialogue. A Pole himself, and once the Archbishop of Cracow who also spent time in a Nazi concentration camp, the pontiff's heart went out to his 36 million countrymen and women as it did when he toured

Charter approval announced for ClayDesta National Bank

A charter for a new national bank in Midland has been approved by the Comptroller of the Currency for the United States.

The charter for the proposed bank, to be known as ClayDesta National Bank, was approved by the comptroller after a recent hearing at which no opposition to the new bank was indicated.

The bank, now being organized, will be located at the corner of Wadley Avenue and Big Spring Street and is part of the ClayDesta Plaza development, a 105-acre office building-business complex.

The charter was granted to a group of eight West Texans headed by Clayton W. Williams Jr. of Midland, the major stockholder.

Other bank stockholders and organizers are Bob Smith, executive vice president of ClayDesta Corp.; Bob C. Lyon, president of Clajon Gas Company and Wil Gas Co.; Sam L. Pfiester, exploration manager for The Williams Company; Jamie Winkel, vice president and financial director for the Clayton W. Williams Jr. companies; Paul Olson, attorney; Gary Burnett, independent oil operator, all of Midland, and A.C. "Clint" Atkins of Fort Stockton, a longtime business associate of Williams.

The proposed full-service bank will be capitalized at $4 million ($2 million capital and $2 million surplus).

Williams said the bank would begin operations as soon as a drive-in facility is constructed. Work is expected to start on the facility in January, with completion scheduled for mid-1982. ClayDesta National Bank will move into its main building when construction is completed in mid-1983, Williams added.

Officers and directors of the bank will be named at a later date.

ClayDesta National Bank will be Midland's third national bank.

Water development board approves plan to revise Texas Water Plan

By KEN ORTOLON
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Water Development Board has approved a $295,000 planning effort designed to revise the Texas Water Plan in time to be presented to the Texas Legislature in 1983.

The board also voted to proceed with drafting rules for the use of $40 million appropriated in the enabling legislation for the unsuccessful Proposition 4 without seeking an attorney general's opinion of the bill's constitutionality.

The board voted unanimously to authorize the Texas Department of Water Resources staff to proceed with a proposed schedule for revising the present Texas Water Plan. TDWR Deputy Director Charles Nemir described the planning effort, which would be concluded by Dec. 31, 1982, as "ambitious."

The board authorized the staff to prepare a schedule, procedures and budget for the planning effort in November after the defeat of Propostion 4, which would have authorized the use of surplus state funds to finance water projects.

The water plan originally was drafted in the late 1960s at the direction of former Gov. John Connally. The plan has never undergone a major revision.

Under the schedule approved, EDWR staff members will begin immediately to revise projections of future water needs and water supplies. Nemir said that by the end of this year, TDWR hopes to have identified the major water resource issues needing to be addressed — including groundwater management, project priorization, financing alternatives, and others — and draft position papers outlining the pros and cons of each issue.

Between Jan. 1 and April 30, 1982, the department plans to gather public input from each major area of the state to determine public views and attitudes about water planning. This will be done through public meetings or surveys to be conducted by an outside agency, possibly the Texas Research League, the Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council or others, Nemir said.

Other stages of the planning effort include policy guidance from the board, TENRAC and other water-related agencies on format, issues and alternatives to be addressed in the plan; preparing a draft plan to be distributed for public review and comment; holding public hearings on the plan in most of the major population areas of the state; revising the plan to incorporate suggestions from the public hearings; and distributing the final plan for comment.

TDWR staff members hav proposed that public hearings be held in 11 urban areas including El Paso, Midland/Odessa, Lubbock/Amarillo, Abilene/San Angelo/Wichita Falls, Dallas/Fort Worth, Longview/Tyler/Marshall/Texarkana, Bryan/College Station/Lufkin/Nocogdoches, Beaumont/Port Arthur, Houston/Galveston, McAllen/Harlingen/Brownsville and Austin.

Those hearings probably will be held during September 1982, Nemir said.

The entire planning procedure is expected to cost an estimated $295,000, and Nemir said funding in the amount of $400,000 is available for the effort from state and federal sources.

The decision to revise the present plan, rather than drafting a new one, is expected to save one to two years in the planning process. Nemir said drafting a new plan would require public hearins in each of the river basins of the state, which would needlessly lengthen the process because the date to be gathered and issued to be addressed would be the same.

"We don't feel like (drafting and entirely new plan) is necessary," Nemir said.

Board Chairman Louis Beecherl, Dallas, added that action is needed promptly because there are $200 million to $300 million in water quality projects currently needing funding and which the board cannot finance until it gets more funds.

"We need to get (the plan) in shape for the next Legislature so it can look at the overal problems and decide what to do," Beecherl said.

TWDB finances water and sewage treatment projects through its Water Development Fund Program, but has been unable to sell bonds to keep the program going under present market conditions.

Proposition 4, which Beecherl supported, would have raised the interest rate the board could have paid on those bonds.

In regard to the enabling legislation for that proposition, the board voted to rescind an earlier decision to seek an opinion from Attorney General Mark White on the constitutionality of the $40 million appropriation made in that bill, House Bill 8.

TDWR General Counsel Reg Arnold said he believes the bill is "so clearly" constitutional that the attorney general's opinion is not needed.

The $40 million was appropriated despite the failure of the proposed constituional amendment, and TWDB has been attempting to determine what the funds may be used fore.

On Arnold's recommendation, the board authorized its staff to prepare rules for use of those funds. Draft rules are to be presented for board consideration Jan. 21.

Nine die in two head-on collisions

By The Associated Press

Nine people died Saturday in two head-on collisions in far West Texas and in South Texas near Sabinal, the Texas Department of Public Safety reported.

Authorities were trying to identify five people killed in a wreck just west of Pecos on Interstate 20. Troopers said a car in the wrong lane collided with a tractor-trailer rig and burst into flames.

Four people in the car, believed to be from California, were burned beyond recognition and the truck driver, who was not identified, died in the 3 a.m. collision, troopers said.

Four other people, including three members of one family, died early Saturday in another head-on collision on U.S. Highway 90 just east of Sabinal, troopers said.

A pickup driven by Francisco Mota, 28, of Del Rio collided with a car driven by Eloy Vasquez, 37, of Port Lavaca at 3:45 a.m., investigators said.

Also killed in the wreck were Vasquez's wife, 37-year-old Jesusita, and the couple's 12-year-old son, Sonny.

The couple's 10-year-old son, Christopher, was transported to Bexar County Hospital in San Antonio for treatment of two broken legs and internal injuries, troopers said.

Man sentenced for scheme to defraud

DALLAS (AP) — A Tyler man will be sentenced Jan. 15 for a scheme to defraud investors of a $725,000 down payment on 81,000 troy ounces of gold.

William Chester Carr pleaded guilty before U.S. District Judge Robert Hill Friday to one count of conspiracy to commit wire fraud and one count of transferring $5,000 from a Nevada bank for the purpose of committing fraud.

He was one of four men charged in a 13-count indictment that described the purchase as the first of several planned transactions.

Carr has been held in Fort Worth federal prison in lieu of $1 million bond since Sept. 18, when he was arrested for threatening the lives of Hill and an unnamed assistant U.S. attorney.

In return for Carr's plea, the government is expected to ask Hill to dismiss the 11 other counts against him.

Two of the other men indicted in the scheme, Walter Merle Heffington of Wichita Falls and Anthony Frank Giella of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., were convicted on all 13 counts.

The highway department will also take bids on Jan. 13 on highway construction projects in several other West Texas counties.

The highway department plans to seal coat portions of Interstate Highway 20 and State Highway 350 in Howard County, U.S. Highway 84 and U.S. 180 in Scurry County, SH 70 and U.S. 180 in Fisher County, U.S. 180 in Borden County, SH 163 and FM 670 in Mitchell County and FM 608 in Nolan County.

Pathologists await test results before ruling on inmate death

DALLAS (AP) — Pathologists are awaiting test results before ruling on the death of a Dallas County Jail inmate who was found unconscious minutes after a scuffle with guards, authorities said Saturday.

"It will be four to six weeks" before a cause of death is determined, said Keith Colvin, medical investigator with the Dallas County medical examiner's office. He said no preliminary report had been released, although the autopsy was completed Saturday morning.

Jose Young, 26, was pronounced dead at a local hospital late Friday after police efforts to revive him failed.

At least a half dozen jail guards became involved in the scuffle after Young threatened to hang himself, officers said. His clothes were removed and he was taken to a padded cell, where he was found unconscious five minutes later.

No marks were found on the body, said police spokesman Bob Shaw.

"He was fighting like a madman," Shaw said. "I assumed they may have choked him down. It's something we do all the time. We have to use whatever force is necessary to get a prisoner under control."

Shaw said the death will be investigated routinely by the Internal Affairs and Crimes Against Persons divisions.

Young, who was jailed for criminal trespass and attempted escape, began shaking and fell down outside the bus station where he was arrested. But the paramedics who were called to examine him told officers Young was putting on an act, Shaw said.

Grand Prairie police officers' penalities cut

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A civil service panel has reduced the penalties imposed by Grand Prairie's police chief on two officers accused of beating prisoners.

The two officers, one of whom admitted striking a teen-ager with weighted leather gloves, had been fired by Sonny Pfeifer, chief of police in this suburb between Dallas and Fort Worth.

But the Grand Prairie Civil Service Commission, saying Pfeifer's action was "entirely too severe," reduced the punishment to suspension without pay Friday.

The officers were fired after Pfeifer said a two-month investigation substantiated charges of police brutality filed by two teen-agers.

Officer Jimmy L. Horrocks, 38, said in testimony before the three-member commission that he struck Chris Gomez, 15, because the youth spat at him after being arrested at a car wash.

He will return to work Wednesday after serving a 30-day suspension retroactive to Nov. 23, the day the officers were fired.

Committee discusses teenage pregnancies

AUSTIN —Teenage pregnancies in Texas account for a tenth of all such pregancies in the United States, the Select Committee on Teenage Pregnancy was told Friday.

Meeting in its organizational session here, the committee received reports from family planning officials that Texas ranks fifth in the rate of teenage pregancies and second in pregnancies of adolescents of 14 years of age or less.

The committee, chaired by State Rep. Mary Polk of El Paso, has been charged with recommending legislation to address the teen pregnancy problem.

"We like to think of ourselves in Texas as beng first," said committee member Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice. "Unfortunately, we are nearly first in teenage pregnancies."

Prevention of adolescent pregancies and programs to keep teenage parents in school have been identified as two priorities for the committee's studies. The committee also plans to compile statistics on related topics such as unemployment, food stamps, child care facilities, school-age parent programs, health care costs, sex education, day care, financing needed programs and others.

"I suspect prevention is our No. 1 priority," Glossbrenner said, and Polk added that it will be up to the committee to do a public relations job on the Legislature and the prople of Texas to make them aware of the problems faced by sexually active teenagers.

Several social service, family planning and community organizations, including Teenage Parent Council of Austin, Texas Association Concerned with Adolescent Pregnancy, Planned Parenthood, United Way, and others, pledged their support and assistance to the committee.

Polk has suggested that legislation addressing educational funding and health care, sex education, parent education and day care services, be among those considered by the committee.

"If we can tell the story good enough to the local people, we will have passed the legislation we wanted," Polk said.

A series of area meetings is planned during the next several months, with the commitee's report to go to the Legislature in January 1983.

Extended forecast

Tuesday Through Thursday

West Texas: Partly cloudy Tuesday through Thursday Cooler north Tuesday and over remainder of area Wednesday Highs upper 40s Panhandle to near 70 extreme south Tuesday and upper 40s Panhandle to low 60s extreme south Wednesday and Thursday. Lows in the 20s north to the mid 30s extreme south.

Weather will be nippy and pleasant

For awhile yet, you can drop cold and harsh from your vocabulary and insert nippy and pleasant.

The reason why is in the mercury: Tonight's low temperature reading is to hover near 40 degrees. Two nights ago, the reading dropped to 14.

Today's and Monday's high is to be in the mid-70s, according to the weatherman with the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Winds are to be southerly at 15 to 20 mph today.

Saturday's overnight low was 25 degrees, which was not so cold in relation to the all-time record low of 11 degrees for Dec. 19; that was in 1973. Saturday's high of 67 degrees fell within 11 notches of tying the record high of 78 degrees for the date in 1937.

U.S. prepares to 'apply levers' to change course in Poland

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, preparing "to apply all credible levers" to change the course of events in Poland, charged Saturday that a pattern of military violence and oppression is emerging there.

The Warsaw government is "using Polish armed forces to seal off public areas and workplaces from outside interference while the armed security forces of the Ministry of Interior engage in often violent acts of intimidation and repression against protesting workers, students and intellectuals," said Dean Fischer, the State Department's spokesman.

Fischer told reporters the United States has unconfirmed information that many more people may have been killed in clashes between strikers and police and army units at coal mines near Katowice than reported by Poland's official news media.

Reports placing the number of dead at 54 apparently are based on multiple sources and "appear to be reliable," Fischer said. The official Polish government count is seven demonstrators killed during a clash at a mine in Silesia.

"We call upon the Polish government to cease its repressive attacks on Polish workers," Fischer said. "We again call for the release of political prisoners."

He said he has seen but cannot confirm reports that Lech Walesa, leader of the 9-million-member Solidarity labor movement in its 18-month struggle against Poland's communist leaders, has suffered a heart attack.

There were several meetings Saturday in Washington to draw up specific suggestions on how the United States and its NATO allies can put up a united front on the Poland events.

A senior U.S. official, who asked not to be identified, said the suggestions include a possible limitation of trade with Poland.

Anita Stockman, a State Department press officer, said that the consultations will take place "over the weekend and early next week" prior to a meeting next Wednesday of the NATO permanent representatives in Brussels.

Lawrence Eagleburger, assistant secretary of state for European affairs, is scheduled to fly to Brussels Monday and will present the U.S. suggestions to some European political and economic officials then.

Although the United States has suspended official government-to-government food credits to Poland, it remains genuinely interested in getting food aid to the Polish people through voluntary charitable organizations such as CARE and Catholic Revief Services, said the senior official who requested anonymity.

"The objective is to be darn sure it gets to the people that need it and that nothing is done to enhance the prestige and the credibility of the Polish government and its ability to do what it is doing," the official said.

However, he said the Reagan administration is considering asking the Europeans to join it in halting the granting of official export licenses, loans and food credits to Poland.

The United States and its allies had a fairly clear idea of how to proceed if there was a clear-cut invasion of Poland by the Soviet Union, the official said. But there is "a gray area" in which there may be a number of ideas by various governments in the absence of an invasion, he said.

The United States is "looking for consensus" and wants to find out where the allies stand, knowing that some may have "ideas of their own," the official said.

He said any feeling in Europe that the martial law imposed by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski was an heroic service aimed at preventing Soviet intervention all but vanished when Polish forces used violence against their own people.

At the White House, the new Special Situation Group composed of the government's top foreign policy, defense and intelligence officials met Saturday to prepare an update on the Polish developments for presentation to President Reagan.

Cambodians adjust

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

In August of 1980 the first Cambodians were brought to Midland, survivors of inhuman conditions in their homeland which had resulted in mass starvation to thousands.

At first mere refugees, escapees from indescribable horrors grasping at life in a strange land, most have firmly settled down to lives as immigrants.

Some 133 now live in Midland, including six children born as Americans on American soil. Another 37 have been relocated, most of them going to California. Six weddings involving Cambodians have been held and four families have bought houses, with each household earning its own keep.

"There's not any on welfare," noted resettlement coordinator Joanne Peterson. "Our main problem with them right now is housing, and when we're asked to take more, we can take only ones who come to live with their families."

Initially, most of the Cambodians lived in a centralized location within a series of duplexes. But as additional numbers moved in they were forced out into the community as housing became available. Today, they are intermingled with the native population in many parts of the city, she said.

Most have found jobs in the less-technical tasks, generally starting at minimum wage. The men are employed in such occupations as machine shop workers, draftsmen, welders, while the women have found employment in industrial-type jobs.

The main problem in adjusting to a new country, for most, is learning the language. While for the older Cambodians, those in their 50s and 60s, it presents a seemingly insurmountable task, many persons are taking special English classes at Midland College, said Mrs. Peterson. The children, meanwhile, take to the new language easily and obtain solid instruction in Midland public schools.

"Midland public schools have done a marvelous job with them," said Mrs. Peterson. "Teachers are taking a real interest in them."

All junior high and high school students have been going to summer school, taking catch-up courses in math, art, music, physical education, typing and English as a second language. The first high school graduation should occur this year, while one girl already has made the National Honor Society.

Socially, said Mrs. Peterson, the Cambodians have made rapid strides. Prior to coming to America, celebration of any holidays other than Chinese New Year was unheard of, while now most regularly observe such events as birthdays and Christmas.

A few Cambodians may have been exposed to Catholicism in their homeland, she added, but most were nominal Buddhists. Today, many attend Christian churches with their sponsors and 13 have been baptized, although Mrs. Peterson stressed that those who are agnostics or who maintain limited Buddhist practices are not discouraged from doing so.

"We didn't bring them here to make them do something they don't want," she explained.

Mrs. Peterson noted that in all matters sponsors have sought "to let them make their own mistakes" rather than lead them by the hand. "They were not taught (in their homeland) to think independently, but to think in terms of a family," she said.

well. But still he had to work. "Not strong, but go, go, all the time (working)," he remembers.

Now, all that is behind them. They are in America, where life, they say, is better, although certain problems continue to confront them — especially the language.

"I'm happy about a new life (but the) language (is) hard," said Jan Mong.

Kim Heang is taking special English classes at Midland College, where she is making steady progress, although overcoming a lifetime of speaking only Chinese is difficult.

FOR THE CHILDREN, Sokkear and Khittong, however, English comes easier. Ereryday usage in public school classrooms have given them ample opportunity to adjust. In fact, Sokkear speaks it not much differently than the average native-born 7-year-old.

Does he miss Cambodia? "A little bit, but not much," he says.

But he never wants to go back. "I don't want to go back to Cambodia, I don't want to go back to Thailand, I want to stay here (in Midland)," he says adamantly.

The Vans are firmly entrenched as Midlanders, doing many of the things native-born Americans do: marry, have children, buy houses, drive cars, work, take vacations. Sokkear is even learning Christmas songs in school. Her favorite is "Frosty the Snowman," but "Jingle Bells" also stirs up notes of happiness in her face.

While generally the Vans have found people especially friendly toward them in Midland, a couple of prejudicial incidents have occurred. Twice their house has been egged, including one occasion in which someone raised a window to splatter an egg against the kitchen wall. On another occasion someone wrote uncomplimentary notes on their car.

These incidents did not overly concern Tan Mong, but they did frighten Kim Heang and Chey Mouy enough to keep the doors locked when Tan Mong is not home.

The Vans usually continue to eat Cambodian food, but have developed a taste for hamburgers, though Kim Heang says she has not learned the art of making one. The native-born baby has a preference for American canned baby food, says Chey Mouy, who cares for the 6-month-old infant while Kim Heang works.

Overall, it is an existence which is far different from that they fled. And they have no regrets that American soil is under their feet instead of the muck of rice paddies.

"I'm happy about a new life," notes Jan Mong, and the rest of his family nods in affirmation.

Editor's Report

his homeland two years ago.

Poland's embattled population is homogeneous and nearly all Roman Catholic, whose hierarchy led by the Primate, Cardinal Jizef Glemp, has now openly challenged the regime. The nation's religious devotion is epitomized by a 1,000-year-old worship of the Virgin Mary as the "Queen of Poland." Its spiritual power is infinitely greater than a puppet government (in hock to the West for $26 billion) backed by Soviet troops arrayed on the frontiers and with a garrison in Poland.

To serve Soviet bidding, described by tatters of the Polish Communist Party as their "guiding light," Poland's political No.1 Gen. Wojceich Jaruzelski went on TV. He declared the draconian martial law, defied by embattled countrymen, and sent armed police and security units out around the country to enforce the ukase, a Russian word for edict. All communications have been cut to prevent reports from getting to the outside world. Even cities, villages and small outlying communities have been severed from contact with each other. Polish stooges are out to clobber Solidarity's infrastructure.

The regime swiftly rounded up dissidents and top union people, highlighted by the "house detention" of Lech Walesa, Solidarity's leader, who has become prominent the world over with his skilled negotiations. His union has 10 million members only 16 months after its first strike at Gdansk.

Workers throughout Poland rallied rapidly to join Solidarity, including the overwhelming majority of conscripts in the armed forces. Here's the joker in Jaruzelski's house of cards: of the 319,000 in the total force, there are 185,000 conscripts in service for two years. His regime cannot count on any of them shooting at fellow workers or even pretending to arrest anyone. The loyalist communist forces reportedly have taken many thousands into custody, but also face defiant and armed conscripts. Since information is hard to come by, Solidarity underground sources claim that about 2,000 soldiers simply shed their uniforms, donned workers' clothes and joined strikers at factories.

Reports from our embassy in Warsaw and from allied contacts declared the U.S.S.R. poised to pounce on Poland. The Russian assessment is predicated on the educated guess that the Soviets have the massed power to subjugate Poland but cannot compel an unwilling population to work. So they'll let it starve in the hope that reluctant Poles will work if only to feed their families.

Soviet troop strength inside and around Poland — the contiguous borders on the Russian, East German and Czechoslovak sides — totals 600,000 men, 12,000 tanks and around 7,500 aircraft. By invading Poland, they will confront guerrilla warfare on a massive scale. It adds up to the Soviet's biggest blow-up, with a never-ending occupation of Afghanistan at one end of the Russian empire and fiery Poland at the western approaches with other satellites growling for liberty.

But if the Russians march in we could immediately abrogate nuclear arms limitation negotiations in Geneva which just began. We could also terminate any form of trade or other type of exchanges with the hard-nosed powerbrokers in Moscow. As in the uprisings in Hungary or reforms for Czechoslovakia, we cannot meet force with force. We can, though, make the U.S.S.R. hurt painfully by treating them — for a long time - as lepers, including refusal to sell them technology and food.

Puppet Gen. Jaruzelski, appealing to Poles in full dress uniform bedecked ironically with Soviet medals, does not propose a Polish solution.

We must recall, as do Poles young and old, that Germans and Russians dismembered Poland to their own advantage of the moment. In mid-World War II, when the Allies were fighting Germany in Europe, the Russians didn't lift a finger to assist anti-Nazi, anti-communist Polish fighters. Poland is trying to raise its independent spirit again which is inimical to Soviet suppression.

This nation and all those who believe in human freedom can assist in the only tangible manner possible — making Soviet aggression too costly — and thus support the courageous people of Poland who only ask to be free, independent and useful to the world. For their part, the defiant Poles, at great risk to themselves, are sabotaging regime efforts to have them knuckle under. They are putting sugar in gasoline, cutting telephone lines, and generally messing up military reprisals. Let us be reminded of the Polish national anthem's opening line: "Poland is not yet lost."

Majority of Americans feel Christmas is too commercialized

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven out of 10 Americans say Christmas or Hanukkah is their favorite holiday in the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

However, large majorities of Americans also say Christmas has become too commercialized and they are cutting their spending on gifts and entertainment during the current holiday season.

The nationwide telephone poll was conducted Monday and Tuesday among 1,602 adults selected by a scientific random sampling.

Seventy percent chose Christmas or Hanukkah as their favorite holiday, with Thanksgiving at 8 percent and the Fourth of July at 6 percent. Easter, New Year's, Halloween, Labor Day, Memorial Day and other holidays shared the remaining 16 percent.

Hanukkah, the eight-day Jewish Feast of Lights, coincides with Christmas week this year, but can fall in late November or earlier in December.

Eighty-three percent said Christmas has become too commercialized in recent years, while 15 percent said it has not become too commercialized and 2 percent were not sure.

And 69 percent said that compared to last year, they are cutting back on holiday gifts or entertainment because of higher prices.

People ages 18-24 were slightly more likely than other respondents to choose Christmas as their favorite holiday.

Attorney says killing was freeway killer habit

By GENE BLAKE
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Accused Freeway Killer William G. Bonin had such an insatiable appetite to torture and murder young men and boys that it became a habit he enjoyed, a Los Angeles Superior Court jury was told Friday.

In final arguments after two months of trial, Deputy District Attorney Sterling E. Norris said Bonin, 34, a Downey, Calif. truck driver, premeditated for 10 years the series of 12 murders he is accused of committing in 1979 and 1980.

Time and again, Norris accused Bonin of "callousness and malice" in picking up the youths in his van, tying them up, having sex with them, beating them and then strangling or stabbing them to death.

"He has an unsatiable appetite for this type of killing," the prosecutor told the jury of seven men and five women in Judge William B. Keene's court. "He fully enjoys the whole episode."

Norris said that Bonin also liked to watch or read news reports of the killings and to brag about his exploits to others.

"He enjoys being the Freeway Killer, flouting it in front of other individuals," the prosecutor told the jury.

Norris said Bonin also used people of "little mentality" to help him, referring to James Michael Munro, 20, and Gregory Miley, 20, who testified they participated with Bonin in three of the murders.

The prosecutor said that neither Munro nor Miley would have been involved in the killings "without that man right there — without Mr. Bonin."

Norris told the jury the testimony of several witnesses showed that as early as 1969, when Bonin was committed to a state hospital for treatment of sexual disorders, he planned to leave "no witnesses" to future offenses.

The evidence produced during the trial showed that Bonin began carrying out that premeditated plan in 1979, the prosecutor said.

1983 budget on Congressional list

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soon after the second session of the 97th Congress opens Jan. 25, the lawmakers will hear President Reagan's State of the Union address and receive his latest budget recommendations.

Here is the status of major legislation:

Federal Budget

— Reagan's spending and revenue proposals for the 1983 fiscal year, which starts next Oct. 1, are expected to be examined by Congress along with updated economic information involving the fiscal 1982 budget.

Last week when he signed a $413 billion stopgap spending package, making about $4 billion of new cuts in domestic programs in fiscal 1982, the president said it "represents a genuine effort" at budget restraint.

Congress, putting off a decision on final figures until next year, has reaffirmed a budget blueprint projecting a $37.6 billion deficit in fiscal 1982 and has asked Reagan to submit plans for bringing spending and revenue into balance by fiscal 1984.

At Reagan's urging earlier this year, Congress approved and the president signed measures reducing federal spending on domestic programs by about $130.5 billion through fiscal 1984 and cutting individual and business taxes nearly $750 billion through fiscal 1986.

Money Bills

— Only three of the House-approved regular fiscal 1982 appropriations bills are still awaiting Senate action. These include funds for the Treasury, State, Justice, Commerce, Labor, Health and Human Services, and Education departments, the president's office and the judiciary.

But all of them are being provided money, through next March, under terms of the stopgap resolution signed by Reagan.

Before adjourning the 1981 session last week, Congress finished work on five regular fiscal 1982 appropriations bills, the biggest one containing $199.7 billion for defense. Reagan had sought $200.8 billion for defense.

Agriculture

— By a 205-203 vote last week, the House approved a Senate-passed general farm bill and sent it to Reagan. The administration endorsed the $11 billion, four-year package of basic agriculture price supports.

The legislation creates new terms for farm programs ranging from dairy products, wheat, corn and feed grains to cotton, rice, sugar and peanuts.

In addition, authorization for the food stamp program was extended for fiscal 1982 with a spending lid of $11.3 billion.

Social Security

— A bill to preserve the $122 minimum monthly Social Security benefit for about 3 million people already receiving it, instead of ending it as scheduled early next year in the budget-cutting law, was approved by Congress last week.

The measure passed the Senate 96-0, cleared the House 412-10 and was sent to the president. The legislation also would permit borrowing among Social Security's three trust funds until January 1983.

Natural Gas

— A special legislative package on financing for the $43 billion Alaska natural gas pipeline, a 4,800-mile project termed the world's largest private construction program, was signed by Reagan last week. The House completed congressional action on it earlier this month, approving Senate-passed legislation by 230-188.

Abortion

— A proposed constitutional amendment that would allow Congress and the states to share jurisdiction on restricting abortions was approved last week by a Senate judiciary subcommittee. Earlier this year, another subcommittee of the judiciary panel approved legislation to define human life as starting at conception.

Idaho rabbit killing continues

By KIM N. PRICE
Associated Press Writer

MUD LAKE, Idaho (AP) — About 600 farmers drove deep into the frigid southeast Idaho prairie Saturday, rounding up an estimated 15,000 jack rabbits and clubbing them to death with baseball bats, ax handles and tire irons.

The farmers say an estimated $5 million worth of grain crops have been destroyed by the long-eared, dingy-furred hares, which are in a population explosion that occurs about once every 10 years.

Riding horses and motorcycles, whooping and hollering, the farmers and some wives and children drove the varmints from a two-square-mile area into a funnel-shaped trap stretching almost a mile in length and then into slaughter pens.

Thousands of jack rabbits — jammed atop one another as high as three feet in their panic — kicked and screamed as they were clubbed.

"When they eat more than you can grow, you have to do something," said Kyle Carter, who farms 160 acres of grain and potatoes. "I had only 30 acres that produced anything worth keeping. When they hit you, they clean you out.

"When the rabbits hit an area, they aren't choosy," Carter said. "They'll get you just like they got your neighbor. That's why I'm here."

Idaho Humane Society officials did not attend Saturday's drive, as they had a week earlier at the previous roundup, which attracted about 800 farmers but netted only an estimated 2,100 rabbits.

The society had protested the roundup, claiming it was inhumane to beat, rather than shoot, the hares. The farmers countered that shooting would be dangerous with so many people present.

Tafoya extradition wanted in Canada

DENVER (AP) — A warrant has been issued in Ontario, Canada, for the arrest of Eugene Tafoya in connection with a car explosion two years ago, police say.

Tafoya, convicted Dec. 4 of third-degree assault and conspiracy in the shooting of a Libyan student, has been charged with arson, said staff Sgt. Joe MacDonald of the Kitchener-Waterloo police department in Ontario.

MacDonald said Friday he also would seek a second warrant for Tafoya on a charge of mischief in the fire that destroyed a sports car belonging to businessman Robert Manina.

The Ontario Attorney General's Department will review a request from police for Tafoya's extradition, said Rod McLeod, assistant deputy attorney general. The Canadian officials will meet with U.S. State and Justice Department authorities to arrange Tafoya's extradition to Canada, according to McLeod.

After his month-long trial and conviction in the October 1980 shooting of Faisal Zagallai, Tafoya was released from the Larimer County Jail on a $5,000 bond. He was ordered to appear before Judge J. Robert Miller on Jan. 5 for sentencing.

Fort Collins police and FBI agents learned about Tafoya's alleged involvement in the fire while investigating the shooting of Zagallai.

Manina's car caught fire and exploded in the driveway of his home early on the morning of May 26, 1979, according to police records.

The incident occurred two months after Manina and former CIA agent Edwin P. Wilson had an argument about a business deal involving Leigh Instruments Ltd., the company that employed Manina, officials said.

Wilson has been indicted in the United States for illegally shipping explosives and restricted military hardware to Libya for use in terrorist activities.

Three arrested in alleged extortion

AURORA, Colo. (AP) — Three men have been arrested in an alleged plot to extort money from a shoe store and use a 4-year-old boy as their "bag man," police say.

The three were seized near the scene when the boy came to pick up a bag of cash left out in response to a telephoned threat to throw a hand grenade into the store, said police spokesman Mike Sellman.

The 4-year-old, who was not identified, apparently was unaware of the scheme and was released to his parents, Sellman said.

He identified the suspects as Kenneth Ray Mickens, 25; Thaddives M. Williams, 20, and Philip Scott Perry, 20, all of Aurora. They were being held for investigation of charges ranging from extortion to contributing to the delinquency of a minor, he said.

Man trying to elude police drowns

WARWICK, R.I. (AP) — An unemployed man fleeing department store security guards plunged into the Pawtuxet River and drowned, officials said.

Police said the man was suspected of trying to shoplift a $380 imitation fur jacket from the Jordan Marsh store at the Warwick Mall.

The man, identified as Norman E. Larocque, 22, of Warwick, was submerged in the 40-degree water for about 45 minutes Friday before being taken to a hospital, where doctors could not revive him.

Detective Commander Frank Ricci said Larocque allegedly was seen slipping the coat into a shopping bag and was confronted by three security guards outside the store.

People help homeless elderly couple

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — A homeless elderly couple has gotten a fresh start with the help of contributions from strangers.

Floyd and Emma Martin, in their 70s and partially disabled by strokes, lost all their belongings when their travel trailer flipped over on a highway Dec. 7 as they were moving to Oroville.

About $11,500, a new trailer home, food, clothing and household items were donated to the couple in 10 days.

"Mrs. Martin just couldn't believe people had been so good," said a spokesman for M&H Towing Co., which coordinated the aid. "She wanted to thank every one of them, but couldn't."

Hammersteins donate to Columbia

NEW YORK (AP) — The family of playwrite, lyricist and Columbia University alumnus Oscar Hammerstein II has given $1 million to the university to create a Center for Theater Studies.

Columbia President Michael I. Sovern announced the gift Friday. It will be used to enlarge the present Theater Arts Division of the School of Arts and rename it the Oscar Hammerstein II Center for Theater Studies in the School of Arts, he said.

Hammerstein, who died in 1960, collaborated with songwriter and fellow Columbia alumnus Richard Rodgers on "Oklahoma!," "South Pacific," "The King and I," and "The Sound of Music." He once said his Columbia Varsity Show experiences launched his entertainment career.

Town may become reservoir

DENVER (AP) — The city Water Department wants to buy the tiny town of Deckers for $500,000 and flood it for use as a 15,000-acre reservoir, officials say.

Department spokesmen say if the purchase is approved, they would create the Two Forks reservoir where the town now stands.

Deckers, a well-known fuel and supply stop for anglers, campers and hikers, consists of a restaurant-lounge, grocery store, service station and 13 cabins.

The proposed reservoir has been bitterly opposed by some environmental groups. Before plans could get underway, howver, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers must prepare an environmental impact statement.

Coast Guard believes distress call may have been hoax

BOSTON (AP) — After searching four hours for a fishing boat that radioed it was sinking with 42 people aboard, the Coast Guard said Saturday the call may have been a hoax, but continued the search.

The Coast Guard received a call at 9:30 a.m. Saturday that the "Jimmy and Joan," a 290-foot combination trawler-fish processing ship, was sinking about 290 nautical miles east-southeast of Cape Cod.

Coast Guard officials located a small fishing boat by that name, with the same radio call signal given in the distress call. But the owner, located on shore, said the boat had left New Bedford only Saturday morning, meaning it could not have been 290 miles at sea, and was in no trouble, said Lt. Joseph Duncan. In addition, he said, the Coast Guard spoke to that boat's crew, who reported no problem.

Filing false reports is against the law, but "it's kind of hard to track down" pranksters, Duncan said.

After the call was received, the Coast Guard sent three planes and a cutter. The planes searched the area from about 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. when two of them left because they were running out of fuel, he said.

Oklahoma alcohol TV ad law ruled unconstitutional

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Oklahoma's law prohibiting alcoholic beverage advertisements on television has been ruled unconstitutional because it violates the right to free speech.

U.S. District Judge Lee West invalidated the law Friday in a ruling on two lawsuits filed by four cable TV companies and 13 commercial television firms from Oklahoma.

West ruled the statute also denied the companies equal protection under the law.

The cable stations had won a temporary injunction against enforcement by the state beverage control board earlier this year. West's order Friday granted permanent injunctions against the board and ended the state ban.

The cable firms were bound by their franchises to honor commercials sent into the state. Because of industry tradition, only wine and beer are advertised in other states.

"There is no question that the plaintiffs have a speech interest protected by the First Amendment to the U.S. Constitution," West ruled.

Named as defendant was Richard Crisp, director of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. He was not available for comment as the board office was closed Saturday, and a board spokesman said Friday officials there had not read the ruling and would not comment on it.

It wasn't known if the state planned to appeal.

The television companies were joined in their suits by the Oklahoma Press Association. The state was aided by Sooner Alcohol and Narcotics Education Inc., an anti-liquor lobbying group in Oklahoma.

In his ruling, West dismissed the state's argument that the purpose of the advertising prohibition was to reduce consumption of alcoholic beverages by state citizens.

"Consumption of alcoholic beverages in Oklahoma has increased substantially in the last 20 years despite the ban on advertising of such beverages," West said.

He said the firms were being kept "from advertising what the public already knows from experience ... that alcoholic beverages exist and are for sale at certain prices."

West said Oklahoma's per capita consumption of wine and beer doubled between 1960 and 1976 and consumption of distilled spirits rose by 80 percent.

U.S. launches its 15th nuclear powered sub

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — The nuclear-powered submarine USS Phoenix officially joined the Navy on Saturday, bringing the U.S. fleet of fast-attack submarines to 15.

The Electric Boat shipyard delivered the submarine to the Navy earlier this month, 4½ years after the Phoenix's keel was laid.

In an outdoor commissioning ceremony, Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., issued a call for continued increases in defense spending, saying the Soviet Union has outpaced America in military strength.

Rhodes said the Soviets' naval strength is "nothing short of awesome," and the United States should step up its defense spending, particularly in shipbuilding.

"Perhaps we need not match Soviet capabilities on a one-to-one basis. But we must build defenses that will both provide a margin of security and support a foreign policy based on consistency of purpose," he told the vessel's 127 crew members and officers and other officials attending the ceremony.

Along with higher defense spending, however, Rhodes encouraged continuing talks between the superpowers concerning arms control.

"While working to recapture our former postion of military and technological superiority, we also must proceed in a dialogue wih the Soviet leaders."

The 360-foot, 6,900-ton, torpedo-firing Phoenix is the fifth Los Angeles-class submarine delivered by EB to the Navy this year. It joins the fleet several weeks after the first of the Navy's huge Trident submarines — the USS Ohio — was commissioned.

Dutch drivers unload Christmas parcels in the Polish city of Radom, some 62 miles south of Warsaw, earlier this week as inhabitants watch. The truck is one of a Dutch convoy which left the Netherlands Dec. 13 with some 200,000 Christmas parcels donated by relief groups. The parcels should help relieve, even if only temporarily, shortages caused by economic troubles and the current disorder in Poland.

Tapes of Solidarity meeting released

Special to The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — The tapes from the Dec. 3-4 Solidarity meeting in Radom, recorded either by a participant or by government agents, were played repeatedly over Poland's radio and television stations in the week leading up to last Sunday's crackdown. Western monitoring agencies made available the English translation from which the following excerpts are taken. The commentary and subject headings are from the Polish Communist Party newspaper, Trybuna Ludu:

IS CONFRONTATION UNAVOIDABLE?

Yes, Solidarity leaders say, it is unavoidable. Lech Walesa sees this more or less as follows:

"Confrontation is inevitable and it will take place. I wanted to get to this confrontation in a natural way, when virtually all social groups would be with us. However, I have miscalculated. ... I thought that we would progress further and that we would then overthrow this parliament, those councils and so forth. It turns out that we will not move along this road any further. So we are picking a road for a lightning-speed maneuver. ...

"Obviously, a general strike today would be a stupid act, and things should be done differently. ... At the same time, I believe that we must not let ourselves be carried away by imagination and excitement, because if we did that we could again get a bloody nose.

"This occurred, for instance, in Warsaw yesterday (a reference to the clearing of the firefighting school). We could have started shouting loudly, organized another November insurrection and called for scythe. This would have certainly been very pretty, but we would have lost. The world would have said that this was the way things are everywhere. ... It was a good thing that we did not let ourselves be carried away by excitement, but the community must now be told that a confrontation is indispensable and about the role we would like it to play. ..."

Not everybody shared Walesa's skepticism with respect to a general strike. Seweryn Jaworski, for instance, believes that in the event of a law on a state of emergency being adopted it will be necessary to start strike action immediately, and his Mazowsze region will undoubtedly do so. "If you go back even one more step," he threatened Walesa, "I personally will cut your head off. If I do not do this, because I have been taken care of by them, someone else will do this."

SAYING ONE THING AND DOING ANOTHER

Lech Walesa:

"... Since 1970 I have trusted no one under this system, no one in power. ... We really trust no one; they really want to outmaneuver us. ... After all, let us realize that we are bringing this system down. Let us at last realize this. If we agree to have private storekeepers, buy up state farms and ensure complete self-management, this system will cease to exist.

"So let us not deceive ourselves. It has been obvious right from the beginning that a struggle would take place and it has merely been a question of choosing our methods to ensure that as many people as possible understood what this struggle is about. We should not say aloud that a confrontation is unavoidable. In such talks it is merely a question of who outsmarts whom, but we are outsmarting ourselves. We must say: We love you, we love socialism and the party and, obviously, the Soviet Union. But at the same time we must keep doing our work through 'faits accomplis' and wait. ...

"Let us not deceive ourselves: Right from the beginning it has been a question of thumbing our noses, and I was fully aware of this even though I kept quiet about it. But today things have reached such a point that I see no other way out: People must be taken into confidence to some extent and told what game we are playing. They should be told that we are playing for such high stakes that we are changing realities in general and this game can only end in one way. No change of system can take place without blows being exchanged ...

"Obviously I am in favor of an accord, but this matter must be discussed. What kind of accord? Any 'National Unity Front,' any one-seventh share, is out of the question. I really believe that if it were a question of a threesome — not a threesome as such, but three main streams which would appoint their representatives, a few advisers and a few activists, with a view to resolving various problems — that solution would be accepted. ..."

The trade union's tactics emerged during this "creative" discussion. They were formulated by its adviser and leading strategist, Jacek Kuron. He stressed the view that the confrontation area should include the question of elections, of a new election procedure, of complete opposition to the so-called government provisional arrangement and a "state of emergency."

Second American expected to be named Vatican cardinal

By LOUIS B. FLEMING
Los Angeles Times

ROME — Pope John Paul II is expected to elevate Archbishop Paul C. Marcinkus soon to the rank of cardinal, which would mean that for the first time there would be two American cardinals in the Curia, the Vatican bureaucracy.

Yet despite this expected increase in high-level representation, the influence of Americans at the Vatican appears to be declining rather than rising.

In all, about 35 Americans are working in the Curia. The one American cardinal now assigned to it is William W. Baum, a former archbishop of Washington, who is prefect of the Sacred Congregation for Catholic Education.

Archbishop Marcinkus, whose elevation to cardinal is regarded as virtually a certainty, is now in effect the pope's business manager.

John Paul has called only one previous consistory, the forum for naming new cardinals. That was in June 1979. But he is now understood to be anxious to elevate the archbishop of Warsaw, Jozef Glemp, who as the primate of Poland would benefit by having the additional power and prestige that go with being a cardinal.

In all, the pope is expected to name as many as 10 new cardinals.

Marcinkus, a Chicagoan who has made a career of Vatican service, is an exception among American priests and bishops. Most do not welcome service here, and when drafted, try to keep the assignment as short as possible.

The Italian way of life, the language barrier, the isolation from norml priestly duties and plain old homesickness are the principal reasons.

Not even the availability of attractive, subsidized housing has overcome the reluctance.

So there are only the 35 or so Americans among the more than 1,500 people working in the Vatican, and only three Americans among the more than 60 major superiors who run the multitude of offices. Of the Americans, less than one-third want to stay in permanent service here.

The representation of American women is particularly small, about half a dozen. Only two have substantial responsibilities. Some, including those with experience as educators, have been drafted as typists. There is only one woman of any nationality among the higher employees, a British nun, and her work is limited to working with women's religious orders. The Vatican is a man's world.

For all the reluctance to serve here, some find the experience inspiring and some are convinced that the service they do is important.

"Something we do not think of until we come here is how much we learn from the extraordinary experience of this international setting, something to take back to the United States," one said.

A nun, formerly a high school English teacher in the United States, was ordered here as a typist, but she had no complaint. "I accepted this as God's will for me," she said. "Now I am happy in what I am doing."

The Big Three of the Americans in the Vatican are Cardinal Baum, Archbishop Marcinkus and Monsignor William F. Murphy.

Soviets are for peace: Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev, speaking Saturday on his 75th birthday, sought to assure the West that the Soviet leadership shared his "dedication to the cause of peace."

Brezhnev said, "We have no and will never have any advocates of war, agression or adventurism in politics. That's the way things are and that's the way they will continue to be."

The speech made no mention of the upheaval in Poland, or conflicts involving the Soviet Union and its allies in Afghanistan and Cambodia.

Poland's premier and Communist Party leader Wojciech Jaruzelski did not attend.

Some 1,000 members of the General Council of Trade Unions of Japan are shown shouting with placards at a rally in Tokyo Saturday in support of the Polish labor union Solidarity.

World holds Polish protest rallies

By The Associated Press

Thousands of people gathered at rallies Saturday in Europe, Asia and the United States to protest martial law in Poland and demand restoration of the independent Solidarity labor union.

About 5,000 Swiss gathered at a peaceful meeting in Berne, expressing sympathy with Solidarity and calling for removal of martial law in Poland.

The Swiss demonstrators unanimously approved a resolution, to be given to the Polish diplomatic mission, requesting restoration of democratic and trade union rights in Poland and execution of reforms agreed to by Solidarity and the Polish government before martial law was declared a week ago.

A crowd estimated by police at 3,000 marched over a two-mile route through Amsterdam.

The Dutch protesters were told by Slawomir Czarlewski, identified by rally organizers as a member of Solidarity's national committee, that resistance to the government clampdown would continue both inside and out of Poland.

In New York City, about 1,500 demonstrators, hoisting placards and chanting slogans, rallied outside the Polish consulate in Manhattan.

Speakers at the rally called for U.S. economic sanctions against the Soviet Union, despite claims by the Soviets that the imposition of martial law by the Polish military is an internal affair.

Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., said the Polish government should immediately free all Solidarity prisoners, honor the contract between the government and Solidarity and put Solidarity leader Lech Walesa on television so the world could see he is alive.

Moynihan warned that if these conditions were not quickly met the Senate would discuss economic sanctions against Poland and the Soviet Union. "We're not going to feed the army that imprisons the Polish people."

In Canada, about 600 people gathered on a rain-swept pier in Vancouver to sing union songs and pledge support for Solidarity. The demonstrators were joined by some of the roughly 160 Polish sailors on fishing boats docked at Vancouver. There have been some defections of Polish sailors in the past week.

On Parliament Hill in Toronto, more than 1,000 people gathered to vent their anger against the Polish crisis and Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's statement that martial law may not be bad if it prevents civil war.

Sponsored by the Canadian Polish Congress and the Canadian Labor Congress, the demonstration ended in chants of "Trudeau go to Moscow" as the crowd marched to the Polish Embassy.

During a news conference Friday, Trudeau said "any effort to prevent a civil war is a positive step. If a military regime has the effect of preventing a civil war, then I can't inherently say it is bad."

In Japan, about 1,000 members of the General Council of Trade Unions of Japan staged a rally with placards in Japanese and Polish.

Some 1,500 Polish expatriates and German union members gathered in West Berlin, with Gerhard Muhr, deputy chairman of the German Labor Federation, denouncing the arrests of Solidarity members and calling for democracy in Poland.

East Germany denounces Polish situation

BONN, West Germany (AP) — East Germany, long one of the harshest critics of liberalization in Poland, is now emphasizing "solidarity" with its neighbor since martial law was imposed there last weekend.

The official ADN news agency on Saturday reported a truck convoy "several kilometers long" was welcomed in Warsaw by Communist Party officials and others.

"The citizens of the GDR (East Germany) — Communists, members of other parties, non-affiliated, all forces united in the National Front — demonstrate their brotherly solidarity," ADN said.

Before martial law was declared in Poland last weekend, ADN and East German newspapers ran regular denunciations of the Polish independent labor union, Solidarity. They accused Solidarity of using Nazi-like tactics and leading the country to economic ruin and "counter-revolution."

Now "hundreds of thousands of children of our republic, supported by their teachers," are packing Christmas gifts for Poland, ADN reported Saturday.

A concert on East German radio raised 1.2 million marks (about $54 million at the official exchange rate) for aid to Poland, it was reported.

The media in East Germany, quoting Polish news outlets, have reported disturbances since martial law was declared, but they emphasize that Poles are returning to work and order is being restored.

South Korea shooting reported

TOKYO (AP) — South Korean soldiers fired more than 500 machine gun rounds Friday into North Korea from five positions in the eastern sector of the Demilitarized Zone, North Korea's official Korean Central News Agency said Saturday.

The KCNA report seen in Tokyo claimed that "similiar armed provocations occurred almost every day in recent days."

"These are extremely dangerous military provocations which may lead to armed conflict between the north and the south," the news agency said.

Nine still missing after tanker fire

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Search teams scoured Manila Bay on Saturday for nine people still missing from a fire aboard a Liberian-registered oil tanker. At least 14 died in the fire, officials said.

Apolinaria Reyes, operations manager of an oil refinery near where the 20,933-ton Oriental Navigator caught fire early Wednesday, said three more bodies were found in the bay Friday.

Sixteen of the 35 tanker crew members survived the fire. Three of the fatalities and one of the missing people were identified as Filipinos who were on a service tugboat moored alongside the tanker when the fire broke out.

Twelve dead after plane crash

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A twin-engine commerical passenger plane crashed on this South American country's northern coast, killing all 12 people aboard, the Civil Aeronautics Office said Saturday.

The Aerolineas Centrales de Colombia flight was on a domestic flight from Medellin to Covenas when it crashed Friday, a CAO spokesman said in a broadcast report in Bogota.

He said the plane crashed only four minutes away from landing at Covenas, a small resort town on the Caribbean coast. No cause for the accident was given and identities of the dead were not immediately available.

Suspected terrorist gives self up

BARI, Italy (AP) — A suspected left-wing terrorist leader wanted on murder charges came out of hiding and gave himself up in this southern Italian city, police said Saturday.

Antonio Pernisco, 24, presumed leader of the Puglia column of the ultra-left Front Line group, allied to the Red Brigades, told police he wanted to quit terrorism, which he said was "defeated."

Prosecutors have charged Pernisco, who disappeared a year ago, with slaying two policemen, staging numerous armed robberies and participation in an armed band.

Radio: Vets working with Vietnam

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Radio Hanoi said Saturday that four American veterans of the Vietnam War were working with Vietnamese officials to gather data on "U.S. chemical warfare in Vietnam" and to "denounce it to public opinion."

The broadcast, monitored in Bangkok, said the Americans would also "study the problem of seeking remains of Americans missing in the Vietnam War."

A Vietnamese Embassy spokesman here said the men — the first all-veterans group to visit Vietnam since the war — arrived in Hanoi on Friday aboard an Air Vietnam flight from Bangkok. Western reporters were not allowed to accompany the veterans.

Time bomb goes off in truck in Libya

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A time bomb hidden in a pickup truck exploded in a residential neighborhood crowded with midday traffic Saturday, killing five policemen and six pedestrians, police said.

Fifteen other pedestrians and taxi passengers were injured in the blast, police said.

The bombing came five days after an explosion demolished the nearby, five-story Iraqi Embassy in mostly Moslem West Beirut.

The force of the blast catapulated the small pickup into the air and sent it crashing on top of a car parked inside a gasoline station. The gasoline tanks of several cars in the station caught fire, but the small fires were quickly extinguished.

Blood was splattered on the fourth and sixth floors of buildings across the street from the gasoline station and glass was shattered in at least half a dozen neighboring buildings, including one housing the Soviet cultural center, which was not damaged.

Police headquarters received a telephone call from someone saying a Volkswagen car suspected of being packed with explosives was parked across the street from a gas station, the police statement said.

A four-man police patrol was dispatched to the scene, and while all four inspected the Volkswagen, an explosive charge went off in the nearby pickup truck.

Syrian troops, who police Lebanon's Moslem-Christian civil war armistice, sealed off the area and fired shots into the air to redirect traffic.

Police said rescue teams were still searching for victims buried under the rubble of the Iraqi Embassy, including the ambassador and his senior aides, when the latest bombing occurred. Thirty-two bodies have been found, but the bodies of 25 diplomats and visitors are believed still buried in the ruins.

The deaths brought to 209 the number of people killed in a recent spate of bombings in Beirut as well as northern and southern Lebanese cities since Sept. 17.

Gunmen attempt government attack

ROSEAU, Dominica (AP) — Masked gunmen stormed this island nation's police headquarters and central prison Saturday in an attempt to overthrow the government, Prime Minister Eugenia Charles said.

A policeman and a former member of the country's defense force were killed and 10 others wounded in the simultaneous pre-dawn attacks, which were repulsed by police, authorities said. Among the injured was Police Commissioner Oliver Phillip.

In a speech to the nation Saturday, Miss Charles said the attacks were linked to two previous coup attempts by former members of the now-disbanded Dominican Defense Force, aided by American and Canadian mercenaries. No foreigners were reported involved in Saturday's assaults.

Miss Charles said tne former commander of the defense force, Frederick Newton, had been arrested. She said police were searching for other former members of the force allegedly involved in Saturday's attacks.

Cabinet officials were meeting in special session and consulting with police officers, the prime minister said.

One policeman was killed and nine others were wounded during a shootout in the police headquarters compound, Miss Charles said. Phillip was shot when he approached the police headquarters during the attack. He was admitted to the Princess Margaret Hospital in Roseau, the prime minister said. Police said earlier he had been shot in the head.

Dirt is being dumped on a dike to shore up a city pond where the treated effluent is dumped in ever-increasing amounts. Ready to remount the bulldozer to spread and pack the dirt is Dalton Winkler, Midland's superintendent of the Water Pollution Control plant — the sewage treatment facility.

Sewage workers find 'water hard to stack'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Dalton Winkler took a brief respite in manning a bulldozer to shore up a dike.

Water, more murky than clear but not sour, was encroaching on the plains.

"Believe me, water is hard to stack," said Winkler, who is superintendent of Midland's Water Pollution Control plant, the euphemistic term for sewage treatment facility. "It has a habit of going where it wants to."

Winkler's role simply was to stave off the inevitable — the controlled discharge or nature's mass dumping of effluent into Midland Draw or onto farmland southeast of Midland. The city's 18 holding ponds are cresting, threatening to overflow, and some dikes are being repaired and built up to contain the water.

Back at the Midland County Courthouse late last week, Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins was trying to explain his version of Midland's dilemma to the County Commissioners' Court and to turn the court's seemingly adverse action into cooperation and support.

The county was suggesting it might sue the oil boom city, now approaching a 100,000 population, if effluent was illegally discharged or dumped into Midland Draw. So far, the draw has been spared an on-rush of treated sewage waters.

"THE WEATHER'S been good to us," explained the mayor. "And we've bought some time."

But not much.

City officials are concerned that dikes on some of the 18 effluent ponds covering 126 acres southeast of Midland may either break or be washed away by overflowing effluent.

"If it breaks...," County Judge Bill Ahders said of one particular quarter-mile dike bordering farmland, "all of the water will be released."

"The ponds are full," affirmed Midland County Attorney J. Scott Henderson, who, though empowered by the commissioners to sue the city for proposing the "illegal discharge" of water down the draw, is working with the city to cope with the near-crisis situation. "If they (the city) don't discharge, the whole dike may go, and we'll get the 250 million gallons at once."

However, Henderson conceded, "It's possible that the necessity for the suit won't arise" if the city gets state permission to discharge water into the draw.

"We should be under a controlled situation" in discharging or dumping the water, Akins told the commissioners and Ahders.

That legally "controlled situation" may come Monday afternoon, when Midland city and county officials confront the Texas Water Development board of the Texas Department of Water Resources in a 2:30 p.m. hearing in Austin. Since Nov. 20, the city has petitioned the board for an emergency permit to dump the excess effluent down the draw. That proposal is not a wholly popular one.

CURRENTLY, THE CITY lacks a permit to discharge water into Midland Draw, and many protesting landowners along the draw want to keep it that way. The city's only permit allows for the treated sewage water to be used on irrigated land. And farmers, including alfalfa producers E.F. "Gene" Jones and sons and commissioner-cotton farmer Charlie Welch, have been pumping effluent onto their land.

But that means of getting water out of the ponds has been hampered due to the coming of winter and the threat of ice and "busted" irrigation lines. Because of the season, evaporation is down and the ponds are unable to handled the 8.2 to 9 million gallons of sewage water daily flowing from the city. The plant is designed to treat about 6 million gallons of waste water daily.

In the meantime, the city has asked its water customers to conserve water use and has issued suggestions on lessening the waste and over-use of water. With those measures, with the build-up of the dikes and with the sought-after permit, the city is trying "to keep uncontrollable dumping down the draw."

"WE'VE JUST been buying a little time," Akins said, "but nobody is going to stop that water. It's going out whether someone turns the valve or it goes over the dikes.

"The water is going down the draw. There's no place else to put it," said the mayor. He said that Midland's primary-treated effluent "is better water than Odessa is dumping down Monahans Draw" south of Midland. Midland and Monahans Draws merge east of Midland in the Greenwood area and eventually drain into the Colorado River and into Lake Spence at Robert Lee. That reservoir is a source of municipal water for Midland, Odessa, Big Spring, Stanton and other cities in the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Moments after the county commissioners, the mayor and their attorneys met in the courthouse, Henderson acknowledged that the rising effluent can't be held back just by wishing it to stay put. "That's just like telling a little kid he can't go piddle, because sooner or later, something is going to give."

CRITICS, including Welch, of the city's handling of its waste water are accusing the city of last-ditch, too-late efforts.

"Really, said farmer Joe Jones, "they're not any closer to the solution (than they were a year ago). You know, the city ought to be run like a business and...plan for the future."

Howard Borland, who farms south of Greenwood, claimed the city procrastinated.

"They knew this was coming four, five years ago," he said. "They just put it off and put it off."

Jones said that there are "other means" of getting water out of ponds other than dumping it into Midland Draw.

Greenwood School Superintendent Jim Warlick was apprehensive of the effluent in the draw percolating into the ground water and into wells, thus contaminating his 800-plus students' drinking water. "I am concerned with the possibility of it getting in the underground water."

Ben Golladay, another critic of the city's waste water management, tersely told the mayor that the solution to the problem was simple: more money.

"You pay the money, you can get it (water) moved," he said. "You want to move it free."

Whether the water is "moved" under control or naturally by overflowing the dikes, city officials may be confronted with civil lawsuits from landowners along the draw.

One purpose of the water board's hearing in Austin on Monday, Henderson said, is "to do the least damage" however the water is moved from the over-taxed ponds.

Midland utilities director asks residents to curtail water use

Holding ponds at Midland's sewer treatment plant have reached capacity and the city Water Utilities Department is asking residents to help by keeping water use to a minimum.

Various water conservation techniques can be implemented in the home to curb flow of treated effluent to the overloaded sewage ponds, according to Utilities Director John Lowe.

He is asking that residents temporarily refrain from draining swimming pools and to conserve their usage of saunas, hot tubs and other major water users.

Toilets also use more water than is necessary and can operate just as easily using less. Lowe asks residents to use a method of water displacement in the toilet tank.

A brick or plastic bottle filled with water and placed in the tank can save a gallon of water each time the toilet is flushed, he said. Use of the displacement method alone could save as much as 200,000 gallons per day, providing significant relief to the treatment plant.

Toilet leaks also are a problem, he said, and can waste thousands of gallons of water a day undetected. Toilets may be checked for leaks by coloring water in the tank with food coloring and checking after 30 minutes to see if there is coloring in the toilet bowl.

A worn flush valve can silently leak 10 to 12 gallons of water per hour, he Lowe added.

A partially-filled tub or short shower also will decrease water use, he noted. Most showers use between four and seven gallons of water per minute and have a significant effect on home water consumption.

To further decrease consumption, Lowe is asking residents to make the best use of water by running the washing machine and dishwater only with a full load. Each washer uses about 40 gallons of water, he said, while dishwashers use 25 gallons per run.

Lowe said that conservative water use may help prevent breakage of holding pond dikes.

If the dikes break, it could result in uncontrolled flooding of Midland Draw and the possiblity of a subsequent lawsuit that Midland County already has threatened to file.

Meanwhile, the city awaits issuance of a permit from the Texas Department of Water Resources that would allow controlled drainage of the ponds. The department has recommended approval for controlled discharge, but state water commissioners are not scheduled to act on the recommendation until their emergency meeting Monday.

"We're counting on Midland residents to make the best use of water, and help us alleviate pressure on the dikes," Lowe said. "The conservative efforts of citizens today will result in less of a burden on taxes and sewer rates should the dikes break and Midland County pursues its intent to file suit."

Though drainage of the effluent requires a permit, Lowe continued, reference to the effluent as sewer water was misleading.

"The effluent has been treated, and is of a better quality than ground water in some areas of Midland County," he said. "I feel there is some confusion when reference is made to sewer water. The problem does not center on the treatment of sewage, but rather where to put the water once treated."

Much of the treated effluent is used for agricultural irrigation purposes, but predominant summer rainfall prohibited full use of irrigation this year, Lowe said.

"Winter months present an additional problem when irrigation comes to a standstill and evaporation is at its lowest," he added. "This along with the city's unprecedented growth has contributed to the problem."

Illustrating the growth, Lowe said the plant had treated 546.6 million gallons of sewage since October or almost 200 million gallons more than this time last year.

Nothing cross about crossing guard

She brightens days at Lamar Elementary School

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

It dawned clear and cold Friday morning.

The traffic was heavy going into downtown Midland on Illinois Avenue. Drivers with sleepy eyes squinted in the glare of the bright morning. Women with carloads of children yawned while sounds of grumpy voices and frantic searches for yesterday's homework assignments came from back seats.

At 8 a.m. the sun was shining and the temperature was hovering around 15 degrees. The day had begun.

About a block east of Midkiff Road, parked on the southeast corner of Illinois Avenue and Crestview Road, a car stood idling, the exhaust pipe throwing white clouds of smoke into the cold, crisp air.

The vehicle was unoccupied.

IN THE MIDDLE of the street, a woman stood with both hands raised to shoulder heighth, halting the flow of traffic as a group of elementary school students scampered across the frozen asphalt between the straight white lines designating a school zone crossing. She wore the dark pants, shirt and tie with the orange visibility vest of a school crossing guard.

She also wore a bright smile.

The children reached the other side of the street safely and broke into a run toward Lamar Elementary School, their breath fogging in the freezing air. The woman walked back to the side of the street and signaled the line of cars waiting patiently to move on with a smile and a wave.

No other children were in sight so she resumed her position back in the warm car, nodding and waving from behind her steering wheel at the various cars that passed her on the street.

For the past several years Mildred Oakes has been a source of pleasure for many people who suffer from the Monday morning blues every morning during the working week.

Even though she doesn't know them personally and they know her only as the friendly crossing guard at Lamar Elementary, she thinks of them as her friends.

"THEY ARE ALL so friendly," she said, as one driver returned her wave and smile. "I've had people stop and tell me that my smile gets them going in the mornings. They are just people I've seen and that I didn't know their names.

"But it really means a lot."

Mrs. Oakes has been out waving at Midland motorists and laughing with school children from 7:30 to 9 in the mornings and from 2 to 4 in the afternoons since the fall of 1962.

And she loves her job.

Although she and her husband, James, a maintenance worker for the Wilco Building, have been in Midland since 1942 when he was stationed at the Midland Army Air Base, Mrs. Oakes said it was 20 years later before she even thought of becoming a school crossing guard.

"I had a neighbor who was one (a school crossing guard) and loved it. She kept on insisting and insisting that I go apply for the job. I finally did," she said.

"I love these kids and they are real sweet to me," she said. "As a whole, people are real nice — every once in awhile there will be someone who won't stop but not very often," she said.

"And we've never had an accident in one of my crossings," she added with a laugh.

Mrs. Oakes said she also helps older students cross the street. Due to the cluster system in Midland, Mrs. Oakes sees many of the San Jacinto students and also a few from Midland High.

"They're all real nice," she said. "If they didn't want me to help them cross, I wouldn't do it. But they just get right out there."

SHE HAS FUN with the children, chatting gaily about what went on in school with one elementary student to an application for a scholarship with a Midland High student.

The Tennessee native said she had to take a test and go before the personnel department to get her job. According to Beverly Holder, who is with the city of Midland traffic division, a person applies to be a school crossing guard like he or she would apply for any other city job. The applicant must have a current driver's license and a car to get back and forth to work, she said.

And a love of children would probably help.

"These kids are just so sweet," Mrs. Oakes said with a twinkle in her eye. "I'm just glad they belong to someone else."

Of the 15 guards currently employed, Mrs. Oakes said she is probably the oldest. "Not in age," she quickly pointed out with a laugh. "I mean oldest in experience as a school crossing guard."

She won't tell her age and said that when the children ask her, she simply replies that she's a "grandmom."

"I don't know if they believe me or not," she continued. "They just look at me like they really don't."

Mrs. Oakes knows almost all the people who live around her crossing. "I've worked around here so long," she said, "all these people I call my neighbors."

One boy that she used to help cross the street when he was young returned from college and came by to see her. According to Mrs. Oakes, he told her she'd probably still be around to cross his kids.

Laughing, she answered him, "I'll be around until I get too old to dodge cars."

Rose Baggett finishes her work in the dietary department of Midland Memorial Hospital. After 28 years of contributing in a small way to nourish patients back to health, she is ready to retire.

To Mrs. B., hospital food no joke

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

Midlander in Profile

Hospital food over the years has been talked about in a joking or negative manner, but it's serious business for Rose Baggett.

Mrs. B., as she has been dubbed by her collegues, has spent the last 28 years in the dietary department of Midland Memorial Hospital.

She retired Friday.

"It's a lot to give up and hard to say goodbye," she said. "But today I realize how many people really love me."

Throughout her years of service, she has been in the shadows nourishing patients back to health.

She began working in the hospital kitchen preparing salads in 1953 when MMH was very small.

"If we had 40 patients, we had a big day," she recalled.

Her next duties included working as a relief cook and a baker. But she cut her finger in 1960 and that changed her job.

"I cut this finger pretty bad," she said, holding her index finger in the air showing a scar. "I was put in the office to do paper work and they kept me there ever since."

Presently, she is a diet aide who makes sure the food gets to the right patient through the use of a computer system, makes any necessary changes under the physicians' orders for the patients' food, fills out nourishment cards for those patients who require extra food during meals and keeps an eagle eye on the production sheet.

"The production sheet involves tallying the amount of food," she explained. "This is very important to do so you don't have too much or too little."

Mrs. B. explained it takes all of the dietary employees, about 32, to make sure "the hot food is hot and the cold food is cold."

She noted that the department sends comment cards to the patients and changes have been made because of the patients' suggestions or complaints.

"We now have insulated bowls to keep soup hot and coffee makers are placed at the nurses' stations to provide hot coffee," she said.

She added that a test tray is sent to a floor every week for an aide to check for appearance and is tasted "so we will know how to improve it."

Mrs. B. has seen many changes in the hospital over the years, including working four or five administrations.

"I think I've seen four hospital presidents come and go," she said, adding that it could have been five, "but that was so long ago."

And the physical appearance of MMH was quite different with the building only having three floors.

"Oh, you just wouldn't believe what we started out with," she said, referring to an army stove, mixer and food grinder the kitchen had inherited from an army training base at Midland Air Terminal.

The changes have been many, but Mrs. B. said she would do it all again.

"This has been the second job I ever had in my entire life," she said, adding that she had worked in Stanton as a school cafeteria supervisor before moving to Midland.

"I didn't like it (Midland) when I moved here in 1951. But when I began to get acquainted with the people here, I found it is a great place to live," she said, referring to a time when her husband was ill and a local organization helped the Baggetts.

But, she said those years are behind her now and after 28 years of service it's time to catch up on some things.

Mrs. B. has a bell collection; in fact, she has about 300 bells from all over the U.S., Germany, England, Canada and many other places.

"Now that I won't be working, I'll have time to dust my bells and maybe even get them counted," she said.

Christmas not always brightest season

By GAIL BURKE
Staff Writer

While brightly colored decorations don the streets of Midland and expressions of Christmas cheer echo the festive mood this time of year, it can be a depressing period for many.

For some people, this time reflects a mood of loneliness and depression.

During and after the holiday season can be a danger period for those people who may have trouble coping with separation, death or absence of family. And when shoppers are out, the trees are trimmed and friends and family gather for the holiday, the lonely person can slip into depression.

An individual can be depressed for months, deteriorating his health and sometimes resulting in desperation or death.

"We have seen a lot of overdoses since the beginning of December and we have had four this week already," Jeanne Gilles, Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room supervisor, said, adding that these attempts do not always mean the person wants to die. In some cases the person is reaching out for help.

There is a fine line recognizing the difference between unhappiness and depression in a person, but a major difference is that people come out of unhappiness quicker, according to Ken Wolfe, program director at the Permian Basin Community Center for Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

"This is important. An individual may be unhappy for two or three weeks," Wolfe said. He added that unhappiness is a healthy emotion — every body is unhappy sometime, but depression can destroy a person's mental and physical health.

While Wolfe believes depression may fester during the holidays, he said it is more of a problem right after the store sales begin and the trees are stripped of ornaments.

"After the holidays, people tend to think that things will continue as they were during the Christmas season, he said, referring to the Christmas spirit. "But when the bills come in and the taxes have to be paid and things get back to normal, some people slip into depression."

Signs of depression are continuous interruption of sleep, abrupt change in eating habits, the urge to cry and no optimism, Wolfe said.

Alan Schroeder, MMH director of social services department, pointed out that the holidays can be a time when stress is exasperated.

"Pressure is an inherent part of the season," he said. "People discover things are not the way they think it should be."

Schroeder said people who are prone to become depressed during the holiday season do so because they may compare a happy childhood Christmas with an unhappy adult Christmas. Or, he added, a person's financial status could make him feel guilty for being unable to buy family gifts.

Whatever the reason for depression this time of year, Mrs. Gilles, Wolfe and Schroeder agreed that "'tis the season to be jolly," is not necessarily so for many people.

"Depression can and does hit all catagories of people. It does not discriminate against wealth, race or sex," Wolfe said.

Bright lights and Christmas trees don't always mean happy spirits. The holiday time brings on a high rate of depression each year.

Morin alias matched man who slayed Denver woman

DENVER (AP) — Jefferson County authorities have matched up a man and one of his many aliases in the slaying of a Denver woman in a West Colfax Avenue motel.

Stephan Peter Morin was arrested last week and was being held in San Antonio, Texas, for investigation of the Colorado slaying and in the murders of other young women in several other states.

Jefferson County Deputy Sheriff Donald Shook explained that Colorado authorities had been seeking a man by the name of Rich Clarke in the Nov. 7 death of Sheila Ann Whalen, 23.

He said Friday that investigators were satisifed that Clarke and Morin were the same man.

Clarke had been named in a warrant last week charging him with first-degree murder, felony murder, kidnapping and commission of a violent crime in the death of Ms. Whalen.

Clarke had used Morin and up to 15 other assumed names while in Colorado, Shook said.

He is charged under the name of Morin in the Dec. 11 shooting death of a woman and the wounding of a second outside a San Antonio restaurant.

Alcohol ordinance decision 'in limbo'

McCAMEY — McCamey City Councilmen have placed in limbo a decision on adopting a city ordinance to regulate the public consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Councilmen reviewed two proposed ordinances drawn up by City Attorney John Menefee. One would make drinking of alcoholic beverages in public areas, such as parks and government buildings, illegal unless a special permit was secured from the city secretary within seven days of a planned event involving public drinking. The ordinance would provide for public drinking in street dances, parties and weddings.

Another ordinance would prohibit the carrying of an open container of an alcoholic beverage while driving on the public streets and alleys.

Andrews lawyer named to judiciary

ANDREWS — Andrews lawyer James H. Clack has been appointed by Texas Gov. Bill Clements to succeed 109th State District Judge Ken Spencer, who is retiring.

Clack, 53, will take office Jan. 1. The district coming under his jurisdiction will take in Crane, Winkler and Andrews counties.

"I look forward to the job," Clack told the Andrews County News, "and I appreciate the governor overlooking party lines in making his appointment."

Clack, a Democrat, plans to run for election in 1982 to a four-year term in the office.

He is a 1945 graduate of Andrews High School and received the law degree in 1964 from St. Mary's University. Between high school and law school, Clack served in the U.S. Navy and operated his family-owned service station and motel business here.

"I'm excited about the job. It's challenging," Clack said. "I think I'll be good at it."

Court ruling could cost oil company millions of dollars

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A Superior Court judge has upheld a state rule on property tax assessment which eventually could cost oil and gas companies hundreds of millions of dollars.

The decision Friday by Sacramento County Judge William A. White backed a state Board of Equalization rule allowing reassessment of oil and gas properties for tax purposes under certain conditions, such as rising oil prices or adoption of new drilling methods.

California's tax-cutting Proposition 13, approved in 1978, included a provision that oil and gas properties should be assessed at a base rate set in 1975 and increased by no more than 2 percent each subsequent year. The properties are then to be taxed at 1 percent of their assessed value.

Helsinki agreement conference recesses until Feb. 9, 1982

By DON COOK
Los Angeles Times

MADRID, Spain — The 35-nation conference reviewing the 1975 Helsinki agreements recessed here Friday until Feb. 9, with delegates warning that events in Poland could engulf the whole detente process and that the conference might never meet again.

"We can see circumstances in which the conference could not continue at all," said British delegate John Wilberforce. American delegate Max Kampelman commented more guardedly: "Events in Poland again pull us back, and we pray that they will not interfere with our task here, to preserve and strengthen the structure of the Helsinki process."

At a daylong plenary meeting behind closed doors, delegates from Western Europe, neutral countries and the nonaligned nations warned the Soviet Union repeatedly against intervention in Poland, and called on the Poles to reverse quickly the actions they have taken in declaring martial law, establishing a military government and embarking on wholesale arrests, detentions and suppression of human rights and liberties.

All of this was couched in generally careful diplomatic language, the banal hallmark of the "Helsinki process." This was about the only concession to Polish delegate Wodzimierz Konaraki's declaration that "any attempt to introduce these problems into our debate will be considered as an interference in our internal affairs." In a brief and dignified statement, Konarski said:

"There is no need to say that all that is going on in Poland now is first of all a painful experience for all of us, that means for all Poles. What Poland needs most at this very moment is neither advice nor international debate on its problems, but understanding and economic assistance. Without this kind of assistance, the way out from our present crisis may be still more difficult. In our history we have had much of sympathy and support, but more often in words than in deed."

UTPB to be open Jan. 4

Administrative offices at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin will be open Jan 4., in an an effort to serve prospective students who may be considering transferring from other community colleges, senior colleges or universities this spring.

UTPB President V.R. Cardozier said university officials will be on hand to help prospective students who have been attending colleges in outlying areas.

"The admissions office, as well as the deans offices will be open all week, and personnel will be on hand to advise interested persons concerning programs at UTPB," he said.

Registration at UTPB is scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon and from 2 to 7 p.m., Jan. 11-12, in the UTPB student lounge.

Enrollment at the upper-level university is open to students who have completed 60 hours of course work at any accredited community college, senior college or university.

Prospective students should notify the registrar at their previous colleges to send official transcripts directly to the admissions office at UTPB, and an application should be on file to avoid a long wait at the time of registration, according to Robert Warmann, admissions director.

Warmann noted special registration forms are available for persons wanting to enroll in the ENCORE, a no-grade option available to students not pursuing a degree, but interested instead in taking courses for enjoyment or for more information in a particular field.

"ENCORE students, by law, must meet regular admissions requirements, but will not be required to take exams or complete outside assignments. They will be attending classes with regular students.

Health class set at UTPB

ODESSA — Diet, nutrition, health food fads, chemical hazards in the home and at work, alcohol, smoking and sun tanning are a few of the topics that will be covered in a spring semester course at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

LFSC 303.01, Contemporary Human Health, is open to anyone interested in his own health and in modern health problems, according to Dr. Edwin B. Kurtz, professor and chairman of life science and instructor for the course. The class will meet from 4:15 to 5:30 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays in CR 284. UTPB spring registration is slated Jan. 11-12 in the UTPB student lounge.

"No previous biology or other science background is necessary," Kurtz said. All persons who care about their own health and the health of their families should find this course of interest, he added.

Kurtz encourages all students going into elementary or secondary school teaching to enroll in the class, since the course will satisfy the natural science requirements for graduation.

"We will look at exercise, health, venereal disease and public health problems, especially of teen-agers, and at assessing health problems and over-all improvement of health," he said.

Enrollment at UTPB is open to students who have completed 60 semester hours of coursework at any accredited community college, junior college or university. The course can be taken for three semester credits or can be taken for no-grade through the ENCORE program.

Students' art works exhibited

ODESSA — A multimedia exhibition representing the art works of 13 University of Texas of the Permian Basin art students is on exhibit at the UTPB art building through Tuesday.

Located in the community art gallery, the exhibit features the works of students who competed for the William A. King art scholarship for the coming spring semester. Gallery hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. There is no admission charge.

Pamela Price, assistant professor of art at UTPB, said each student in the competition entered three pieces in the medium of their choice. Revea Pool, Odessa junior, and Ruth Radcliffe, Midland post-baccalaureate student, each received a $175 scholarship.

Juror for the competition was Mary Ellen Acurio-Tayken, former curator of the Museum of the Southwest and currently assistant director of Marks Gallery in Midland.

The scholarships were made possible through memorial gifts to the William A. King scholarship fund. King, professor and chairman of art from 1973 to 1976, was a painter of international reputation. His paintings are in public collections throughout Europe and the United States and in private collections all over the world.

Chicano literature to be studied

ODESSA — A blending of old and new cultures will be involved in the studies of Chicano literature at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin this spring.

Dr. Genaro J. Perez, assistant professor of Spanish, will be instructor for the course which will meet at 7:05-9:45 p.m. Wednesdays in CR 384.

According to Perez, Chicano literature is a study of human experience within the two cultures of Mexico and the United States.

"The Mexican War of 1846-48 brought about a mingling of cultures creating new themes, new language, new expressive forms, and in another sense, continues ancient Mexican myths and stories," he said.

Perez said Spanish 452, Mexican American Literature, will introduce the students to Chicano literature and how it relates to Mexican and Latin American literature. The course, conducted in English, is open to Spanish and literature majors as well as anyone wishing to become better acquainted with the Mexican American experience.

Spring registration at UTPB is Jan. 11-12, in the student lounge, with late registration continuing through Jan. 26. Hours are 9 a.m.-noon and 2-7 p.m.

Students can enroll in the course through ENCORE, the no-grade option to learning. The student receives a no-grade on his academic record, thus not affecting the grade point average. The only requirement is 60 semester hours of previous college work, as set forth by the Texas legislature for all upper-level schools.

Psychology course set

ODESSA — Approaches to the theories of motivation will be discussed in a course during the spring semester at The University of Texas of the Permian Basin. The course, Psychology 471:01, Motivation, will meet 7-8:15 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays in CR 384.

Donna Thompson, psychology lecturer and instructor of the three-hour course, said the theories of motivation concerning the research behind each, its success in interpreting "reality" and its applicability today will be discussed.

"Some of the approaches to be included are Freud, drive theory, learning theory and behavior modification," Thompson said.

Motivation from the standpoint of the effects of success and failure in achievement settings such as school, job and sports will be discussed.

"This particular theory considers the effects of whether a person attributes his/her success or failure to his own ability, his effort or the difficulty of the task or luck," Thompson added.

The psychology course may be taken for three semester hours of undergraduate credit or three semester hours of graduate credit with permission of advisor. The course can also be taken through the ENCORE program, the no-grade option to learning.

UTPB spring registration is scheduled at 9 a.m.-noon and at 2-7 p.m., Jan. 11-12, in the UTPB student lounge. Enrollment is open to students who have completed 60 semester hours of coursework at an accredited community college, junior college or university.

Midlander grows champion pecans

Choctaw pecans grown by C.A. Gray of Midland were judged the grand champion in-shell pecans in the 95-county West Texas Regional Pecan Show in Midland earlier in December.

The Mohawks entered by Skipper Lively of Sterling City were judged the reserve champion in the in-shell division.

Grand champion pecans in the shelling division were Westerns owned by Dale Wood of Monahans. Reserve honors went to the Sioux entered by Ray Barrett of Midkiff.

Grand champions in the native division belonged to Joe Brown of Wichita Falls. The reserve champions were from the trees belonging to John Appleton of Big Spring.

Champion pecans in the show, as well as winners of 29 other varieties judged in the show, will be put in freezers to await the 1981-82 Texas State Pecan Show next July in Austin.

Barrett is president of the Texas Pecan Growers Association, which joined with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in sponsoring the show.

The show was held in Midland Park Mall.

High yield, low price still predicted

AUSTIN — The December report on Texas crop production is the "same song, same verse" of high-projected yields and low prices.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown said that the poor economic conditions in export markets had significantly affected prices for grains and cotton in the United States.

The current cotton crop of 5.7 million bales is 72 percent higher than last year's yield and will add to the large national carryover from the 1980 harvest. The average price for Texas cotton in mid-November was 50.8 cents a pound, which is 23 cents below last year's prices.

"China and Russia had good crops this year, and Asian textile mills have cut back on purchases," Brown said. "The high value of the dollar in foreign countries and general worldwide inflation have lessened sales of American commodities," Brown said.

Brown said that the U.S. Department of Agriculture has initiated a heavy selling campaign in new and traditional foreign markets for Texas products. The Texas Department of Agriculture also is on the search for buyers of Texas cotton.

Cotton harvest nearing completion

COLLEGE STATION — Cotton harvesting, which is in "full swing" in West Texas, is nearing completion, according to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Much cotton is being field-stored in modules while awaiting to be picked up and ginned.

Texas cattle feeders cut inventories

AUSTIN — Texas cattle feeders have cut their inventories by 13 percent from a year ago, according to Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan V. Brown.

Uncertain consumer demands and expensive borrowed money continue to plague the industry.

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service says that the number of cattle on feed in Texas as of Dec. 1 has been increased by 2 percent from the previous month at 1.7 million head.

The amount of cattle marketed from Texas feedlots in November 1981 was 10 percent below the number marketed during November 1980 at 280,000 head.

"Today's interest rates have pushed operating costs through the roof," Brown said. "Most of the feeders in Texas are running at slightly less than 60 percent of capacity.

"Cattlemen don't control the Federal Reserve Board, so they can't lower the interest rates," Brown said. "Producers have begun an education campaign to secure the future of the industry by rebutting false claims about beef and developing new markets strategies."

Landscaping can help cut energy costs

By CHARLES W. GREEN
Midland County Extension
Agent — Agriculture

Fall and winter months are the time for tree planting, and common-sense landscaping can help keep homes cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter.

This natural solution is simple and takes only minimal knowledge of wind and weather possibilities in the immediate area.

In the summer, homes get hottest in late afternoon because the sun has heated the exterior of the house and ground around it.

Planting deciduous shade trees (those that shed their leaves in the fall) on the west of the house will shade that side of the home and ground. This can lower the temperature around the house by as much as 15 degrees F. on a hot day. And during the winter the bare trees let the sun shine through to warm the home.

Most cooling breezes in West Texas come from the south and southeast, so don't block the southeast and northeast corners of the property with dense plantings. Instead plant low shrubs close to the house on the southern side to keep it cool.

Since chilling winds and storms come from the north and northwest during winter, use thick plantings of evergreens to provide a buffer.

Also, large window areas facing south can gain solar heat during the winter so you don't want to block these with evergreen plants.

IT'S THE TIME OF YEAR when cattlemen need to put up their guard against a pest that annually pilfers their pockebooks of thousands of dollars.

Lice are the culprits, and they begin to reproduce rapidly with the onset of cold weather. They reach their peak populations in late winter and early spring.

Uncontrolled, lice can soon infest a whole herd, because with cold weather, cattle tend to bunch up more and the pests can easily move from one animal to another. Heavy hair coats on animals during cold weather also afford protection for the parasites and allow increased reproduction.

There are two types of lice — blood-sucking and biting — and both infest cattle. Sucking lice pierce the animal's skin and suck blood while biting lice feed on particles of hair, scale, scab and skin discharges.

Lice infestation irritate animals, causing itching, scratching and rubbing on fencs or anything else available. this produces denuded areas, bruises and lacerations on the affected animals. Heavily infestd animals will have an un-thrifty appearance and will suffer weight reduction, decreased milk production, anemaia, and in extreme cases, death.

Lice infested animals may also be more subject to respiratory diseases such as pneumonia. Heavy infestations often stunt calves. Undernourished cattle of any age usually have the heaviest infestation.

Insecticide control of lice is not difficult to achieve but there are some problems. Most insecticides don't kill eggs; therefore, retreatment is required in two to three weeks to prevent another buildup. However, if the initial treatment comes late enough in the season, there may not be enough time for lice to build to economic levels again before warm spring weather.

Spraying and dipping infested animals with proper insecticides is an effective means of controlling lice. However, control measures are usually required when winter conditions are most harsh — a time when cold stress is a good possibility and respiratory diseases prevalent. Some of this problem can be prevented by treating animals on a mild day early enough so they can be dry before sundown.

Self-treatment devices, backrubbers and dustbags, properly placed and maintained in a preventative program offer effective lice control. These devices should be placed early in the fall prior to lice buildup in order that cattle will become accustomed to them. They should be placed in areas that cattle frequently use or placed in such a manner that cattle are forced to use them.

The spot-on formulation of chlorpyrifos is a new product that has been effective against lice. The product kills all stages of lice — eggs, nymphs and adults. One application is adequate for season-long control if the entire herd is treated and no untreated animals are later introduced into the herd.

Only a small amount of chlorpyrifos is required (merely a small spot applied to the back) thus eliminating cold stress from soaking animals with sprays and dips.

Livestock producers are cautioned that whichever lice control program is used, the cattleman should be certain to read label directions and pay particular attention to warnings, restrictions and pre-slaughter intervals.

Florida's citrus, vegetable farmers fear effects of frost

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Florida's citrus and vegetable growers escaped a killing frost early Saturday, but didn't expect to be as lucky early today as bitterly cold air settled over the state.

Five Florida cities experienced record cold temperatures for a Dec. 19 early Saturday. Some below-freezing temperatures were recorded in the citrus belt, but it didn't get cold enough or stay cold long enough to do any damage, spokesmen said.

Citrus can be damaged if the temperature drops to 28 or below and stays there for four or more hours.

"Tonight, I think we could very well have some problems," Earl Wells, spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual in Lakeland, representing 15,000 growers, said Saturday. "The preliminary indication is for possible mid-20 temperatures for four or five hours here in Polk County, and maybe a little longer up in Lake County."

Polk County, heart of the citrus belt, produces more fruit than all other citrus-growing states combined. Lake County is in the northern part of the belt, which covers most of central Florida.

Of the most concern to the industry were trees that were damaged in a hard freeze last January.

Parents go to court over daughter's ouster from Cub Scouts

By BILL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — The parents of a 9-year-old girl who "needs to be taught to be a survivor" go to court this week to press a suit over her ouster from the Cub Scouts.

The parents of Marystephanie Constantikes — "Toffie" to friends and family — filed the federal sex discrimination suit against the Boy Scouts of America when she was booted out of the group after nearly a year.

"She won all the main awards and even got the Silver Arrow for outstanding achievement in the Cub Scouts," said her mother, Joy Constantikes.

When Marystephanie won the Pinewood Derby, in which the scouts carve cars from wood and race them down an incline, "that really cemented her place in the troop," said Mrs. Constantikes.

The ouster came when Marystephanie wanted to go with her brother, who also was a Cub Scout, to summer day camp this year.

"We filled out the papers and sent them in along with the money," said her father, John Constantikes, an attorney. "Then we got a letter from the Scouts and our money back. The letter said they hadn't known that Marystephanie was a girl.

"When she joined she filled out three sets of papers with her name on them. One went to the national, one to the regional and one to the local. They are trying now to say they didn't know she was a girl."

Her father filed the $250,000 sex discrimination on Marystephanie's behalf against the Boy Scouts of America, the Cub Scouts of America and the Last Frontier Council.

The Boy Scouts don't see it as sex discrimination.

"The issue from our point of view has nothing to do with sex discrimination," said Scout spokesman Brantly Hudson. "We are a private membership organization and as such are able to determine our membership requirements."

Hudson said the decision to bar Marystephanie was not a matter of local judgment but "is based on national policies and decisions."

He said girls are permitted in the Explorer program, which is open to youths from high school through age 20. There are programs for younger girls similar to the Cub Scouts, he added.

"The Cub Scout program was started in the 1930s as a program designed to meet the emerging emotional, psychological and physical needs of young boys," Hudson said. "It's been constantly updated and modernized with the help of nationally prominent psychologists and educators who have advised us the emerging emotional, psychological and physical needs of boys differ from those of girls."

Marystephanie was in the Bluebirds, a girls' organization, for a year. "But I didn't like it," she said. "All we did was learn to keep house, to cook and sew. I know how to do that."

MC nursing program moves closer to gaining accreditation

Midland College's Associate Degree Nursing Program received its latest approval in its accreditation process from the Texas Education Agency when the TEA, along with the State Coordinating Board, granted its approval following a hearing in Austin Wednesday.

The action followed a September approval granted by the program's other controlling agency, the Board of Nurse Examiners for the State of Texas.

The accreditation process for a school to institute a two-year Associate Degree Nursing (ADN) program includes several stages. The ADN faculty, accompanied by Midland College administrators, a Midland physician and representatives of Midland Memorial Hospital, made an initial presentation before the Board of Nurse Examiners in Austin in July detailing the need for a two-year registered nurse program in Midland.

A representative of the nursing board made an on-site inspection visit to Midland and Midland College the following month. The Midland College proposal was approved in September during a public hearing in Austin.

Final approval by the nursing board is anticipated in May 1982.

"We are in the process of preparing the necessary curriculum materials to submit to the nursing board for initial accreditation in May, which is the last official step toward opening the program," noted Celia Harris, director of the Midland College ADN program.

The first class of ADN students will begin its study at the start of the 1982 fall semester. Upon completing the two-year curriculum, graduates will be qualified to write the State Board examination for licensure as registered nurses.

"With Wednesday's approval by the Texas Education Agency, we will begin taking applications on Jan. 18, for the 24 students to be admitted into the first year's class. Admissions will be accepted until July 1, and the class will be accepted on Aug. 15," Miss Harris explained.

Interested persons may contact the Associate Degree Nursing Department at Midland College for information between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

Miss Harris and faculty members Eileen Piwetz and Clara Usrey joined Midland College in August. All three have experience teaching in associate degree nursing education, are registered nurses and hold master's degrees.

The faculty stated, "We are pleased the accreditation process has gone smoothly, thanks in large measure to the enthusiasm of local citizens, the medical community and the total support of the Midland College Board of Trustees and administration."

Midland College has been operating a one-year Vocational Nursing program for several years. This program, which allows students to prepare to write the examination to become Licensed Vocational Nurses, will continue to be operated by the college without any change.

POSITIVE THINKING

You can be what you think you can

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

Can you kill yourself or create yourself by thought? Yes; both it seems. A Roman Catholic sister serving among the natives on Bougainville Island, in the South Pacific, decribes a dramatic case of death induced by the sheer power of belief:

"Recently a perfectly healthy woman went to the bush to look for kumu (a vegetable), and there she 'saw an evil spirit' who told her she must die. She at once went home and told her family, and then lay down and started dying. Her family carried her to the dispensary where I am a nurse, but she refused everything I tried to give her. Any medicine I put in her mouth she spit out. Her heart was good, but it took her only 24 hours of determination to stop it completely."

Death in this strange manner is not at all unusual among primitive people with an unquestioning belief in evil spirits. There are many such instances. The human mind's power to destroy the human body is apparently an actual and formidable fact.

But so too is the mind's power to develop and sustain the health of the body. A London physician once told me that we have to appreciate the powerful effect of the mind on bodily functioning. And I remember the case of an elderly man who was killed by a car while crossing a city street. The circumstances called for an autopsy, and the surgeon who performed it was so startled and amazed by what he found that he called the attention of his colleagues to the case. The man's internal organs revealed evidence of so much disease that, so far as the medical men could see, he ought to have been dead at least twenty years earlier.

When the doctor told the widow of this fact and asked if she could explain how her husband ever had kept going to over 80 years of age, she said he was unfailingly optimistic about his health. Significantly, she remarked that each night her husband used to say,"With God's help, I'll feel good tomorrow." Apparently his weakened physiology accepted the suggestion of a strong psychology and as a resit he was able to live a fairly vigorous life.

An outstanding example of mind power used for living long and living well was my old frined William Danforth, head of a large business organization. As a boy he was frail and sickly, and as a result developed an inferior feeling that he was born to be weak. Kindly-intentioned people had painstakingly explained to him that his health was just naturally delicate and he must always remember this and not get overtired.

Fortunately, however, in his teens he had a teacher, a man of stronger breed, who said to him, "Bill, your thinking is wrong. You are thinking of yourself as a weakling. Don't do that, but instead think strong. You can be a strong boy and become a man of rugged health. I dare you to be!" And he told Bill Danforth how to correct his posture — showed him how to stengthen his body, and also he told him to have faith in God "who made him good and dared him to think tall and strong."

Young Danforth took the dare. He made himself a vital healthy persn by thinking healthy, by acting healthy. The last time I saw him he was 85 years of age, in robust good health and living a vigorous, active life. When I congratulated him admiringly on his wonderful vitality, he replied that he owed it to "tall thinking" and to exercising his mind each day "on great thoughts from the word of God." He added that physical exercises were important, too — and, throwing off his jacket, proceeded then and there to put himself through an impressive series of knee-bends, muscle flexes and the like to show me how topnotch his condition really was.

"What a man thinketh, that is he," wrote an unknown philosopher of India twenty-five hundred years ago in one of the ancient treatises known as the Upanishads. "This is the eternal mystery," he wrote. "Man becomes that of which he thinks."

Any person who makes up his mind to be a strong and effective person and holds to that deep desire can be what he thinks. Life dares you to be that. Accept that dare and you can do it. Mobilize the powers of your mind, develop your faith, think positively every day all the way. If your goal is specifically conceived and firmly fixed in your consciousness, powerful influences out of the life force within you and around you will come to your aid. Don't reject but draw upon the tremendous power within the mind.

Semyonov relieved that wife has finally arrived in West

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

NEWTON, Mass. (AP) — Alexei Semyonov, whose Soviet mother and stepfather went on a hunger strike to get him and his wife reunited, said Saturday he was relieved that she has finally made it to the West.

"I am very happy; I am very grateful," Semyonov said Saturday evening when informed that his wife, Liza Alexeyeva, finally arrived in Paris. "This is all a great relief."

Ms. Alexeyeva, who had been trying to emigrate for the past three years, won her visa last week after Semyonov's stepfather, Nobel Peace Prize winner and dissident Andrei Sakharov, conducted a 17-day hunger strike with his wife, Yelena Bonner.

Semyonov expressed concern when told that reporters and photographers pinned his wife to the wall before security guards forced them back. Ms. Alexeyeva is scheduled to travel to Boston on Sunday.

"I will have to arrange for security," said Semyonov, a 25-year-old graduate student at Brandeis University.

Semyonov, who had ended an earlier marriage before leaving his native country, was married to Ms. Alexeyeva last June in a proxy ceremony in Montana. But the Soviets refused to issue her a visa.

Michigan family will be reunited for Christmas

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A Ypsilanti, Mich., family, separated by the need to seek jobs after auto industry layoffs, will be united in time for Christmas by an Albuquerque couple who learned of their plight on a television program.

Gregory and Barbara Hilts, who now live in Houston, will be waiting at the Houston International Airport Monday to greet their three children — Christopher, 14, Shelley, 12, and Michael, 11 — and their four dogs.

The children have been living with their grandmother since the Hilts, both former machinists with the Ford Motor Co., left home two months ago in search of work. He got a job in a factory at $7.25 an hour, and she waited tables at a truck stop for considerably less.

They didn't have the money to bring their children from Michigan.

VICTOR AND JUANITA Franco of Cedar Crest, just east of Albuquerque, were watching the "Good Morning America" television program on Dec. 2 when the Hilts were telling of their plight.

"It looked like they were people who are trying to help themselves," said Franco, 52, a used car dealer.

He called the producers of the television program, who put the Hilts in touch with him. Now, said Franco, "We're trying to give them a boost. They look like deserving people."

The Francos purchased airline tickets for the children and their four dogs to go to Houston permanently. And, they've leased a house in Houston and paid the rent for three months.

"They're going to be so excited to see their parents," Franco said. "The main thing is that they're getting together."

FRANCO, WHO owns Houston Auto Retailers, said he hasn't always been a person to go out of his way to help people he didn't know. But, this all changed two years ago, he said, when he almost drowned at Key Largo, Fla., in a boating accident and a man saved his life.

"He caught me almost drowning out there, and he hauled me out of the water," Franco said. "Since then, I decided I was saved for a purpose. I vowed to myself there's got to be something better than being a car salesman."

Franco said that since that incident, he tries to save money on a weekly basis to help others. This past summer, a family with "a bunch of kids" en route to San Diego were stranded in a broken-down car near the Franco's Cedar Crest home. "We got their car fixed for them and gave them a little to get them going," he said.

"It's just little things that happen. We don't go looking for them," he said.

Franco, who said he's "not religious," has, however, found that helping those in need "is sort of a religion to me now. I'm really hyped up on this."

THE FRANCOS have lived in the Albuquerque since the late 1970s. He flies to his hometown of Houston each Tuesday to work, then flies back to Albuquerque on Fridays.

The Francos will spend Christmas in New Mexico. One of their four grown children will visit them. But Franco said this will be an extra special Christmas because the Hilts family will be reunited.

"They're hard-working people, and they deserve it," he said, adding, "It's a great Christmas for us, too."

F-4E crashes with two aboard

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Rescue workers searched Saturday for an F-4E Phantom jet believed to have crashed into the Atlantic during the night with two people aboard.

Capt. Pat Osborne, public affairs officer for Seymour Johnson Air Force Base here, said officers of the base's 4th Tactical Fighter Wing had no idea what happened to the crewmen or the plane but presumed the plane crashed.

Osborne identified the pilot as 1st Lt. Michael A. Mattson, 24, of Joppa, Md., and the weapons systems officer as 1st Lt. Thomas W. Tiller, 26, of Houston.

He said the Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Service was coordinating a search for the craft in the ocean near Wilmington.

In a statement, Osborne reported that the plane was taking part in a routine night training mission over the Atlantic when radio contact was lost.

THE DAY CHRIST WAS BORN: Part 7

Flight into Egypt: Again, Mary and Joseph follow dream

"The Flight into Egypt," by Julius Von Schnorr, illustrates today's portion of the Christmas story — when Mary and Joseph again obeyed instructions given them in a dream and carried the newborn Jesus to Egypt.

By JIM BISHOP

The little family was to leave Bethlehem on their return to Nazareth when Joseph awakened the next morning early and sat in silence until Mary opened her eyes. She saw the frown and asked if he was troubled. Yes, he said, he was. In the night he had had a dream. He saw an angel, the same one he had seen before. The angel was agitated. "Rise!" he commanded. "Take with you the child and his mother and flee into Egypt! Remain there until I give you further notice. Herod is on the point of searching for the child in order to take his life!"

Mary had no doubt about the course they should pursue. They must hurry to Egypt. If an angel ordered this, then God had told the angel to do it.

Joseph realized that Mary was right. He paid the innkeeper that day, and bought some food for the saddlebag, and stocked up with water. He told no one that he was leaving, or in which direction he would travel when he did.

When the blue dark of night set in, Mary mounted the little ass, held her baby against her breast, and the young man yanked the halter strap and started to plod along the white-stoned road south to Egypt.

It seemed strange to Joseph, walking toward the great desert, that anyone would want to hurt a baby. Any baby. It seemed even stranger that God was keeping this one a secret. The only ones who knew that this tiny jostled, sleeping burden behind him was the Son of God were the despised and poor shepherds of the fields, and the despised and rich gentiles from Persia. The king of all Judea, Herod the Great, had heard about the infant Jesus, and his reaction, according to the angel, was to plot a murder.

Why? Joseph begged to understand.

Herod's palace was a place of splendid courtyards and many oil lamps on the west side of Jerusalem, about three hundred yards from a place called Golgotha, or Calvary. Men of importance were rushing, on this night, in and out of the palace. Herod the Great was in a towering rage. Many, he said, would pay for the trick which had been played upon him. Many would die.

Spies had come to him from several quarters. The first ones said that the Magi had remained in Bethlehem two days and had left for Persia, skirting Jerusalem to the south. This showed that they had no intention of keeping their promise to return to the king with news of the newborn messiah. Other spies had been sent at once to Bethlehem to find the baby and his parents and bring them to the august presence of Herod. But these had returned with bad news indeed: the little family, it seemed, had lived in a stable beneath the inn, and both stable and inn were now empty.

Herod had ordered his soldiers to arrest the innkeeper and his wife, but torture could bring no further information than that they had no room at the inn for the expectant mother, and had permitted her to live in the stable with her husband and newborn. The king was seventy years of age, and very ill, but his rage enslaved him.

The census, he roared. That would provide a solution to the problem of the make-believe messiah who had come to exact tribute from the gullible Jews. He called an aide and ordered him to go to the Roman tribune now in quarters at Fortress Antonia and to ask in the name of the king for the names of all families who had infants.

Wait, Herod screamed. We must first find out how old this particular baby is. Call my councilors!

The learned ones came in, their striped cloaks betraying the trembling of men underneath. How long, said Herod, had that accursed star been in the sky? No one knew. They had not looked for a star. Herod moaned and sobbed and pounded the wall with his withered fists.

The soothsayers said that the strange bright star could not have been in the heavens long, or else astrologers among the Jews would have broadcast the news. They would also have made their own dire predictions about it. This, they reasoned, made it likely that the star was on a path across Persia toward Bethlehem and that it had begun its flight recently.

A year ago? shouted Herod. A week ago? I must find out the age of his little majesty. The councilors looked at each other and said surely no more than a year. Probably far less.

Herod sent the courier to the Roman tribune. He was to ask, in the name of the king, for a list of all Jewish families who had male sons two years of age or less. The census would reveal the status of every family — how many members, what age. When the list was copied, he wanted it given to his chief of guards and he wanted squads of soldiers sent to Bethlehem, Jerusalem and every town and village in the area.

The soldiers were under orders from the king to tear the babies from their parents and to either kill them on the spot with the short sword, or take them out in batches and cast them from the cliffs.

There would be no exemptions, even among the babies of the soldiers themselves. This must be done at once, so that no spurious pretender to the throne could grow up and lift the scepter from Herod's cold hands.

In fact, while he thought about the matter, Herod the Great dwelled upon the idea of killing his own son, Herod Antipas. He too aspired to this throne, the throne on which none but the one Herod, the Great Herod, would sit. He said nothing at the moment, but mentally marked his son for death within the week.

Within a few days, the slaughter of the innocents began. In every village, anguish and wailing followed the visit of death. In Jerusalem, some of Herod's soldiers wept because they had to kill the babies of fellow soldiers. All up to the age of two were slain because to fail by one baby would have brought death to many soldiers.

The news mollified King Herod. He asked many questions about the killings, and was pleased that his officers had done an efficient job. Surely the so-called baby king was among the many who died in the swift raids.

For a while, his peace of mind improved his health. To celebrate this feeling of tranquility, the king ordered his son Antipater to be executed at once. When this was done, Herod felt even better because there was no one in all the nation who aspired to his throne.

He was, for a time, almost benevolent. Then he was seized with a fit, and fell to the floor of his palace. His councilors and officers were summoned and they stood around in a little group and watched the king strangle slowly. There was nothing they could do to help him, and, apparently, there was no wish to ameliorate his last hour.

When Herod's final gasp subsided in a gasp of resignation, the councilors moved to inform the nation, and Caesar Augustus in Rome, that the king was dead.

He had followed the infants, but he did not join them.

Danelo keeps Giants alive

Goat to hero performance sinks Cowboys in overtime

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Joe Danelo of the New York Giants, perhaps the most consistent placekicker in the National Football League, turned what might have been a routine — yet thrilling — victory over Dallas into a cliff-hanger Saturday. He finally kicked a 35-yard field goal in overtime and gave the Giants a 13-10 National Football League triumph.

Danelo missed three routine field goals, one in overtime, before connecting on the game-winner 6:19 into the extra period.

It put the Giants just 24 hours away from what could be their first visit to the playoffs since they lost the 1963 NFL title game to the Chicago Bears 14-10. All they need for a playoff berth is a victory by their cross-river rivals, the New York Jets, who play Green Bay.

"I WAS kicking too hard," said Danelo. "I didn't want them drifting. After missing the first one (from just 21 yards away) I tried to guide the ball instead of kicking it.

"I feel excited for the team's sake, but not for myself. It's probably the worst kicking day I've ever had," continued Danelo. "We have to make the most of our opportunities and you're not going to get five shots a game too often."

Coach Tom Landry of the Cowboys said pretty much the same thing. "Late in the game, when he had a chance to win it, we gave it away," he said of Dallas' two fumbles and one interception. "You give a team that many chances and anyone is going to score."

The victory brightened the Giants' hopes for their first playoff berth since 1963, and wiped out Dallas' hopes of finishing the regular season with the best record in the National Conference.

Danelo tied it at 10-10 with a 40-yard field goal into the wind with just 25 seconds remaining in regulation play after the Giants had relinquished an early 7-0 lead.

He had missed chip shots from 21 and 27 yards in the first period. And when rookie linebacker Lawrence Taylor recovered a Tony Dorsett fumble in the opening minutes of overtime, Danelo blew that chance, too, his 33-yard attempt striking the right upright and bouncing back 3:36 into overtime.

Three plays later, another rookie linebacker, Byron Hunt, intercepted a Danny White pass intended for Drew Pearson and returned it 7 yards to the Dallas 25.

An 8-yard pass from Scott Brunner to rookie wide receiver John Mistler on third-and-11 put the ball on the Dallas 18-yard line. And Danelo came through.

The Giants, 9-7, will clinch the remaining NFC wild-card playoff berth if Green Bay loses Sunday to the New York Jets. If the Packers win, the Giants still can make the playoffs if Philadelphia, the NFC's other wild-card team, loses Sunday to St. Louis.

THE COWBOYS finished the regular season at 12-4, automatically giving San Francisco the home field for all NFC playoff games. The 49ers, 12-3 heading into New Orleans Sunday, beat Dallas 45-14 on Oct.11.

Rafael Septien had given the Cowboys a 10-7 lead with a 36-yard field goal with 9:13 remaining in the fourth quarter.

The Cowboys were throttled through virtually all of the first three quarters. But on the last play of the third period, White and Tony Hill teamed up on a 44-yard pass play to the New York 11.

Three plays later, 1:29 into the fourth quarter, White rolled to his left and passed three yards to tight end Doug Cosbie, deep in the left side of the end zone for the touchdown that pulled Dallas into a 7-7 tie.

The Giants kicked around the ensuing kickoff and wound up with possession on their own one. And three plays later, rookie safety Michael Downs of Dallas intercepted a Brunner bomb to give Dallas the ball on the New York 47.

White and tight end Billy Joe DuPree hooked up on a 16-yard pass on the first play, the next six plays gained 12 more, then Septien put the Cowboys ahead 10-7.

The Giants, whose first touchdown came on Brunner's 20-yard pass to tight end Tom Mullady with 4:48 to go in the third quarter, failed on their first possession following Septien's field goal.

But they were given new life with 2:14 to play in regulation when Dallas running back Ron Springs fumbled and defensive end George Martin recovered.

The Giants moved from the Dallas 45 to the 23 — stalled by a holding penalty which wiped out a 15-yard run by Leon Perry — to set up the Danelo field goal that sent it into overtime.

Where's the snow?

Holiday skiers beginning to get worried

BY HERR ENG BOEN
R-T Ski Editor

If you made reservations at some place like Stowe, Smuggler's Notch, Killington, Sugarbush or Mad River Glen, you are in luck or more foresighted than someone who made plans to ski the Rockies. You can spend the holidays risking life and limb on such runs as the Nose Dive, Tuckerman's Ravine, Suicide Six.

If you made Christmas-New Year's reservations for New Mexico or Colorado, see you in church Sunday for some tall and fancy praying.

The Rockies are a little better off than last year, but not much. There's snow on the slopes, but not the kind you'd care to risk you own skis on, not unless you are in the market for a new pair soon.

LAST YEAR was a financial wipe out for the western ski centers. Normally, a third to a half of the year's financial success depends on the holidays and there just wasn't any snow, except at Wolf Creek, Colo.

And now for the second straight season, a snow drought has hit the Rockies. In contrast, back east in such places as Vermont, they've been skiing for close to two months and may have had more snow the last two weekends than the Rockies will receive all winter.

Taos, our favorite spot, isn't due to open until Dec. 26, if then. Until last year, the Ski Valley 19 miles out of the old pueblo, ordinarily had been opening over Thanksgiving or early in December.

But the winter is long and a lost holiday weekend isn't a disaster unless you saved a holiday week of vacation for skiing.

STILL, WHILE Taos is closed, Santa Fe, Red River and Angel Fire are open in northern New Mexico while, if you are desperate, Sierra Blanca has enough snow to open 80 per cent of its slopes.

Just across the Colorado border on the Continental Divide, Wolf Creek has 38 inches and 80 miles west, Purgatory, at Durango, claims 20, good for marginal skiing.

Dolphins clinch AFC East crown

MIAMI (AP) — The Miami Dolphins, a young team picked by many to finish in the lower half of their division, captured the American Football Conference East title Saturday with a 16-6 victory over the Buffalo Bills.

The triumph gave Coach Don Shula his sixth undisputed AFC East crown in 12 seasons and lifted the Dolphins' record to 11-4-1. Miami shared three division crowns in the 1970s.

"We entered this season with a lot of question marks, and a lot of the questions have been answered in a positive way," said Shula, who launched his 19th National Football League season with a team averaging about 25 years of age.

"We've got a bunch of no-names — nobody knows us," said reserve tight end Joe Rose. "But these no-names know how to win."

Quarterback David Woodley fired a touchdown pass and Uwe von Schamann kicked three field goals as the Dolphins won their fourth consecutive game and snapped the 10-6 Bills' four-game winning skein.

The victory gave the Dolphins the home-field advantage for their first playoff game Jan. 2 or 3. Buffalo will move into postseason play as one of two AFC wild-card teams which will meet Dec. 27.

SHULA SAID the key to the Dolphins' playoff stretch drive was the team's ability to battle adversities such as the injuries that sidelined several key players Saturday.

"The story of this team has really been everybody picking up for the other ones," said Shula.

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson said the Bills were disappointed not to win the division championship, but he is confident the team will regroup for the playoffs.

"A lot of teams will be going home tomorrow (Sunday) and we're still in the thick of things. There are two roads to the playoffs now, one easy and one hard. We have to take the hard one," he said.

Woodley tossed a 7-yard touchdown pass to rookie running back Tommy Vigorito with 7:22 left in the first quarter and set up field goals of 22 and 30 yards with pinpoint passing to reserve tight ends Joe Rose and Bruce Hardy.

Von Schamann's 22-yarder with six minutes remaining in the second period gave Miami a 10-0 advantage, but the Bills sliced their halftime deficit to 10-3 on Nick Mike-Mayer's 31-yard field goal with 1:01 left in the half.

Woodley, who completed 10 of 21 passes for 137 yards, directed a 13-play, 67-yard drive which led to von Schamann's second field goal midway through the third period. Key plays in the drive were passes of 20 yards to Rose and 21 to Hardy and a 14-yard halfback pass from Eddie Hill to Hardy.

Buffalo cornerback Mario Clark recovered a fumble by Woodley at the Miami 48 to set up a 36-yard field goal by Mike-Mayer which trimmed the Dolphins' lead to 13-6 with 9:09 remaining.

Von Schamann's 36-yard field goal with 2:15 to play sealed the Dolphins' 15th straight victory at home against the Bills.

Buffalo running back Joe Cribbs led all rushers with 94 yards on 17 carries.

The Dolphins moved 58 yards in 13 plays on their first possession of the game to take a 7-0 lead on Woodley's scoring pass to Vigorito.

Buffalo took the ensuing kickoff and marched from its own 31 to the Miami 5-yard line, but the drive stalled when veteran guard Conrad Dobler was penalized 5 yards for a false start and Miami cornerback Gerald Small deflected a Ferguson pass intended for Jerry Butler in the end zone.

Mike-Mayer came on to try a 27-yard field goal, but the ball hit the left upright and bounced away.

Robb Riddick's 22-yard return of a punt by Tom Orosz gave the Bills good field position at the Miami 42 early in the second quarter. But four plays later, the Bills were forced to punt.

THE DOLPHINS took possession at their 20 after Greg Cater's kick sailed into the end zone and Woodley launched Miami's next scoring drive from there.

The second-year quarterback hit Rose with passes of 15 and 33 yards and scrambled for 18 to the Buffalo 12 to set up von Schamann's 22-yard field goal.

Ferguson marched the Bills 66 yards in 11 plays to set up Mike-Mayer's 31-yard field goal which cut Miami's lead to 10-3 just before the half.

The Dolphins played without their leading ground gainer, running back Tony Nathan, who has a knee injury. The third-year pro, who has rushed for 782 yards, leads the NFL with an average of 5.3 yards per carry.

Lucchesi's toe powers Missouri

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Bob Lucchesi, Missouri's sophomore kicking specialist, said he came to the Tangerine Bowl with confidence.

"I felt if it was up to me, I could do it," Lucchesi said.

And he did.

The Colorado Springs, Colo., product drilled four field goals and left the rest up to a swarming Tiger defense as Missouri trimmed 18th-ranked Southern Mississippi 19-17 in 36th Tangerine event Saturday night, played in cold 34-degree weather.

"This game means a great deal to this team," said Coach Warren Powers of Missouri. "It was a young team with little experience and nobody thought we could come this far.

"Playing in a bowl game was something special and winning it was even better," Powers added.

Lucchesi's field goals covered 45, 41, 30 and 28 yards as the Tigers closed the season at 8-4.

Missouri's defense, led by All-American tackle Jeff Gaylord and safety Kevin Potter, sacked third team All-American quarterback Reggie Collier six times for losses of 42 yards and hurried him into errant passes most of the night.

Collier said the Tigers applied more pressure than any team he faced this season.

"Against a team like Missouri, we needed to play errorless ball, and we didn't," Collier said. "We just made too many mistakes."

Southern, 9-2-1, trailed 13-3 at halftime, but got into contention when Bruce Miller returned an interception 22 yards to the Missouri 8, setting up Sammy Winder's 4-yard touchdown run midway through the third quarter.

The Tigers, however, came right back with a 75-yard drive that ended on Lucchesi's third field goal with only 14 seconds left in the quarter. The Tiger kicker built the margin to nine points four minutes into the final quarter after Missouri took advantage of a shanked 10-yard punt by Bruce Thompson at the Tiger 34.

The 75-yard drive featured a gamble on fourth-and-7 at midfield, when Bill White took a short snap in punt formation and kept the drive alive with an 8-yard run.

The Golden Eagles struck for a touchdown with only 63 seconds to play when backup quarterback Davy Sellers connected with Louis Lipps on a scoring play that covered 74 yards. Lipps got behind the defense and made the reception at the Missouri 35.

The Tigers then recovered an onside kick.

Southern's other score came on a 30-yard field goal by Steve Clark in the second quarter.

Nine baseball owners seeking to oust Kuhn

NEW YORK (AP) — Nine major league clubowners wrote a letter last week aimed at pressuring Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to resign or not run for a third term, the New York Times said in Sunday's editions.

The paper added that the letter was never delivered. But, it continued, knowledge of the existence of the letter, written during baseball's annual winter meetings in Hollywood, Fla., served notice to Kuhn that the National League has enough votes to prevent him from continuing as commissioner in August 1983.

According to the Times, the letter did not ask Kuhn to resign, but said that "we the undersigned are not going to vote for the re-election of Bowie Kuhn."

It would take four of the 12 NL owners or five of the 14 American League owners to block Kuhn's re-election. The Times said five of the nine signees were NL owners — August Busch Jr. of St. Louis, William Williams of Cincinnati, John McMullen of Houston, Ballard Smith of San Diego and Nelson Doubleday of the New York Mets.

AL signees were George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees, Edward Bennett Williams of Baltimore, Eddie Chiles of Texas and George Argyros of Seattle, according to the Times.

Kuhn said he was "aware of the letter and I became of the group of clubs who were raising the questions the letter presented. Beyond that, there's not much I can say. I've been faced through the years with incidents very much like this, so it doesn't come as any enormous surprise to me."

NFL playoff picture clears

By The Associated Press

The New York Giants' 13-10 overtime victory over Dallas Saturday didn't clinch their first trip to the National Football League playoffs in 18 years, but it did clear up the overall postseason picture considerably.

Washington, Atlanta and Minnesota had started the day with mathematical hopes to gain a National Conference wild-card playoff berth, but the Giants eliminated all three teams.

Joe Danelo's 35-yard field goal for the Giants with 6:19 gone in overtime also meant that the loser of Sunday's Tampa Bay-Detroit game has no chance for a wild-card berth, while the winner captures the NFC Central.

Miami's 16-6 victory over Buffalo Saturday also had playoff repercussions, but only for those two teams. The Dolphins clinched the American Conference East title with the victory, while the Bills will have to settle for one of the two AFC wild-card berths.

IN THE NFC, Dallas has won the East title, and the Philadelphia Eagles have clinched one of the wild-card berths. The Giants and Green Bay Packers are the only teams that can win the second wild-card berth, and the possibilities are a little weird.

Basically, the Giants, who finished the regular season at 9-7, can't afford to have the Packers finish 9-7 unless the Eagles also finish 9-7.

If the Packers lose to the New York Jets Sunday to finish 8-8, the NFC wild-card picture is clear-cut because the Giants and Eagles will be the only non-division winners better than 8-8.

But if the Packers win, they will tie the Giants at 9-7. The first tiebreaker procedure is head-to-head results and since Green Bay beat the Giants twice this year, the Packers get the nod over New York if the two teams are the only 9-7 teams vying for the wild-card berth.

However, if Philadelphia loses to St. Louis, the Eagles also would be 9-7 and the Packers' head-to-head advantage would be thrown out the window because a third team is involved in the tie-breaking procedure.

IF THE three teams finish 9-7, the Giants would get the No. 1 NFC wild card because they have a better conference record, 7-6 vs. 7-7 for Green Bay and 6-6 for Philadelphia. The Eagles would get the next wild-card berth because of a better record than Green Bay against common opponents, 4-2 vs. 4-4.

In the AFC, the Packers-Jets game is also pivotal for the Jets' playoff hopes.

A Jets' victory would clinch a wild-card berth alongside Buffalo. If the Jets lose, they can still make the playoffs, but they will have to wait until Monday night and root for Oakland to knock off San Diego.

Going into Sunday's game, the Jets have a 9-5-1 record, a half-game better than San Diego's 9-6.

San Diego is still hoping for the AFC West title, which it can win with a victory over Oakland and a loss by Denver to Chicago. If that happens, both teams would be 10-6, but the Chargers would win on the basis of a better division record, 6-2 to the Broncos' 5-3.

Division titles also have been clinched by San Francisco in the NFC West and Cincinnati in the AFC Central.

Lake Highlands captures 5A crown

HOUSTON (AP) — Richardson Lake Highlands' Todd Tschantz kicked himself into the record books with four field goals and Aaron Grant returned an interception 66 yards for a touchdown as the Wildcats beat Houston Yates 19-6 Saturday night to win the state Class 5A schoolboy football championship.

Lake Highlands played consistent offense and took advantage of eight Yates turnovers as it completed a perfect 15-0 season.

Tschantz kicked field goals of 34, 39 and 22 yards for a 9-0 Lake Highland's lead in the third quarter. Tschantz' third field goal gave him state record for the most field goals in a single season.

Grant, who recovered two fumbles and intercepted another pass, pushed the Wildcats ahead 16-0 late in the third quarter with his interception return and Tschantz added a 36-yard field goal with 3:09 to play for his 17th three-pointer of the season.

Yates had scored 95 points in its last two ball games, but was continually thwarted by the turnovers. Quarterback Thomas Ledet was intercepted four times and the Lions lost four fumbles.

The only evidence of Yates' explosive scoring came early in the fourth quarter when Ledet connected with Randolph Wilburn on a 74-yard touchdown bomb.

Tschantz' kicking performance allowed him to pass Russell Wheatley of Odessa Permian and Tidehaven's Billy Dannels, who shared the old record of 15 field goals in a single season.

Yates started their turnovers in the first quarter when Wildcats back Thomas Jefferson intercepted Ledet for the first time. Grant got both of his fumble recoveries in the second quarter, the second leading to Tschantz' 39-yarder.

Lake Highlands' Eric Whitted fell on a Ledet fumble at the Wildcat 48 leading to Tschantz' 22-yard field goal.

Jefferson got his second theft with 26 seconds left on the clock to end Yates' final drive at the Lake Highlands' 15-yard line.

Ledet, who led Yates to a 13-2 record, finished with 11 completions on 27 attempts for 237 yards.

Kentucky coasts over Pirates

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Derrick Hord and Jim Master teamed for 25 points as No. 2 Kentucky built a 31-point halftime lead, then coasted to a 98-74 defeat of Seton Hall for the championship of the 29th University of Kentucky Invitational basketball tournament Saturday.

Hord, who finished with 21 points, had four baskets in the final 2:13 as Kentucky outscored the Pirates 14-4 to take a 57-26 lead at halftime.

A 22-foot jump shot by Master ignited a 14-2 run that gave the Wildcats a 33-13 lead with 8:27 remaining in the first half. Master finished with 14 points.

A 15-foot jumper by Hord six seconds before halftime pushed the margin to 29. Point guard Dirk Minniefield, who got 10 of his 15 points in the first half, finished the Kentucky barrage when he stole an inbounds pass and banked in a 10-foot jumper at the buzzer.

Kentucky, 6-0, quickly pushed the margin to 36 points early in the second half, but then hit a six-minute drought from the field. Dan Callandrillo fired in 13 points during that span as the Pirates outscored Kentucky 22-2 to pull within 69-53 with 10:59 to play.

No. 1 'Heels slaps Rutgers

NEW YORK (AP) — Freshman Michael Jordan and center Sam Perkins led a second-half rampage that gave top-ranked North Carolina a 59-36 victory over Rutgers Saturday night at Madison Square Garden.

Jordan scored seven straight North Carolina points to cap a span during which the Tar Heels outscored Rutgers 18-2 and took a 20-point lead, 47-27, with 8:27 to play. Perkins, meanwhile, shut down Rutgers' high-scoring tandem of big men, Clarence Tillman and Roy Hinson.

Leading by four at 29-25, North Carolina, 5-0, ran off 13 straight points, including five straight by Matt Doherty, to lead 42-25 with 10:42 remaining.

Foursome wins MCC tournament

Joe Stickney, Tom Garber, J.C. Williamson and Lloyd Ugland finished in first place Saturday with a 121 total in a two-best-ball-of-the-foursome tournament at Midland Country Club.

There was a two-team tie for second place at 122 and according to the tournament rules the tie was decided by a card playoff (a hole is designated before play begins and the team with the low score on that hole wins). R.F. Madera, Jack Lesassier, Jack Edens and Jim Ormand won the 14th hole to win the tie-breaker over Charles Perry, Joe Stickney, J.C. Williamson and Lloyd Ugland.

Fred Goodman, F.B. McPhearson, Bob Jones and Bill Barnes finished in fourth with a 124.

R.J. DePaul, playing with the fourth place team in the tournament, but not competing, aced the par-three 170-yard eighth hole Saturday using a three-iron.

Tall City shootout goes to Lee

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

In a nail-biting final played in front of a very small crowd at Chaparral Center, the Midland Lee Rebels edged the Midland High Bulldogs 58-57 in overtime Saturday to capture the title of the third annual Girls Tall City Invitational Basketball tournament.

It was at the charity stripe that the Rebels pulled out their ninth victory against four losses. Lee converted 28 out of 41 charity tosses to negate the Bulldogs five field goal advantage. MHS gunned in 20 of 55 shots from the floor while Lee managed only 15 out of 42. MHS slips to 9-7 on the year with the loss.

It was only fitting that the game should be decided at the free throw line. After Shun Harris scored off an offensive rebound to give Lee a 55-53 lead, Yshun King, who led the Rebels with 17 points, connected on a one-and-one to give Lee a four point cushion, 57-53.

Shelly Parker drilled an 18-footer to trim the margin to two before Suzanne McGaha canned the first shot of a one-and-one to push the lead to three, 58-55, with 49 seconds left.

MHS rushed down and Janice Littlefield canned a 21-footer to pull the Bulldogs within one.

After King missed a shot for Lee with 26 seconds left, the Bulldogs brought the ball down and were instructed from the bench to work for one shot. The Purple Pack got a little anxious and put up two shots, but were fortunate enough to grab the rebound before the Bulldogs lost the basketball on a three-second violation with six seconds left.

MHS quickly fouled Lurdes Duran, who hit 6 of 10 charities on the night, with five seconds remaining. Duran missed the freebie and MHS rebounded. But a long, desperation pass was intercepted by Lee's McGaha at midcourt to end the contest.

Midland High managed to build up a six point lead in the third quarter and Lee's biggest lead was nine, 50-41, with 3:47 left in regulation.

After a timeout, the Bulldogs came storming back. Penny Griffin and Vergie Cooks netted back-to-baskets to trim the deficit to five before King rolled in a layup for a seven point Lee lead with 2:36 to play.

Missy Larrimore canned two free throws and then hit a long jumper to pull MHS within three, 52-49. King gave Lee a four point lead when she hit a free throw, but the Rebs hurt themselves when the second shot was nullified by a lane violation with 58 seconds left.

MHS narrowed the gap to two when Larrimore canned two freebies and after Harris missed at the line, Larrimore canned an 18-footer to tie the game at 53-53 with 30 seconds left to play. Lee came down quickly but the Purple Pack played tough defense and the Rebels were unable to get off a shot.

Lee lead at the end of one 12-11 before Vergie Cooks tossed in seven of her game-high 22 points in the second quarter to give the Bulldogs a 27-26 lead at intermission.

MHS extended its lead to two, 39-37, after three quarters, only to squander the lead early in the fourth stanza and have its late rally come up short.

In the battle for third place, Eastwood's Carol Glover poured in 12 points to lead the El Paso five to a 47-43 win over Amarillo Palo Duro. The Dons were led in scoring by Jackie Oages with 16 points and Shawn Folsom chipped in with 11.

Big Spring outscored Del Rio 18 to 0 from the free throw stripe to upset the Queens 53-46 in the consolation finals.

The Steers had four players in double figures, lead by Shirley Dixon and Shell Rutledge with 13 points each, Elise Wheat 12 and Syliva Randle 10. The Queens were lead by Robin Gordon and Mary Schnase with 10 points each.

In the semifinal battles, Midland High avenged a 20-point loss to Palo Duro earlier in the year by bouncing the Dons 51-25 while Midland Lee zipped by El Paso Eastwood 70-57 to set up the all-Tall City finals.

The Bulldogs shutout Palo Duro 15-0 in the first quarter and never had any trouble in rolling to their fifth straight win of the year.

Larrimore's 11 points led the Bulldogs while Shelia Christian and Shelley Parker added nine points apiece.

Lee rode a balanced scoring attack to its easy win over Eastwood. King topped the Rebels with 14 points while Maudie Akins pitched in 13 and Harris added 12. Jackie Stapher and Denise Miller netted 12 points each to lead Eastwood while Glover gunned in 11.

In the early game Saturday, in the losers' bracket, Lee JV couldn't stop Big Spring's Randie and Dixon as the Steers crushed the Rebels 65-25 to gain a berth in the consolation finals.

Randie ripped the cords for 26 points and Dixon poured in 22 to lead the Steers. Faye Oudems, with 11 tallies, was the only Lee player to hit double figures.

In the other losers' bracket contest, Del Rio moved into the consolation finals with a 48-41 win over Amarillo Tascosa. Gordon led the Queens with 13 points and Cindy Guerra and Schnase added 10 points each. Nettie Gilbreath pitched in a game-high 15 points to lead Tascosa while Vickie Lewis gunned in 10 more.

In the battle for seventh place, the Rebels of Tascosa survived a late rally by Lee JV to hand the Rebels a 34-29 setback.

The Rebels, down 17-2 at one time, battled back to trim the margin to 17-15 but Lee's inexperience and sloppy ball handling short-circuited the comeback try.

Lee's JV, loser of all three of its tournament games, was led in scoring by Lesa Burnett with 10 points while Deanda Rhoads added eight. Tascosa's Gilbreath led the winners with eight tallies.

Coronado gains revenge over Rebs

LUBBOCK — Saturday night in the third-place game of the Reese Air Force Base Christmas Classic basketball tournament, Lubbock Coronado got a bit of revenge as they overcame a small Midland Lee first-half lead to go on and post a 70-68 victory.

On Dec. 4, Lee and Coronado met for the first time and it turned into an offensive battle for both teams. The Rebels overcame a Coronado 69-65 lead in the third quarter to win the game by a 92-85 count.

In the second meeting Saturday night, it was the Coronado Mustangs that had to come from behind for the win. The Rebels went up by an 18-17 count at the end of the first quarter and were ahead by two at the half, 34-32. The Mustangs outscored Lee 22-18 in the third frame for a 54-52 edge and both teams tallied 16 points in the final quarter to give Coronado the victory.

With the victory, the Mustangs improved their season record to 9-4 while the Rebels fell to the same mark.

Coronado was paced by the scoring of three players with Cody Love leading the way with 19 points while teammates Kevin Hensley and Brad Enloe added 16 and 13 respectively. For Lee, Andre Van Buren led all scorers with 26 points while Alvin Dunson added 16 and Randy Pepper nine.

For their performance throughout the tournament, Love and Van Buren were both named to the All-Tournament team.

The Rebels' next game will be another road contest as they travel to Andrews to face the Andrews Mustangs Tuesday at 6:15 and 8 p.m.

In other tournament action, Amarillo took advantage of a 15-4 third quarter to defeat Big Spring in the championship game, 49-44. Lance Simpson led Amarillo with 16 while Tony Gilbreath added 10. Bobby Williams was high man for the Steers with 13 with Kevin Watson scoring 10.

Simpson was named to the All-Tournament team and was also awarded MVP honors. For Big Spring, Gerald Wrightsil was All-Tournament.

Lloyd falls to Austin

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Tracy Austin trounced second-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd 6-1, 6-2 Saturday night to advance into the finals of the $250,000 Toyota Tennis Championships.

The victory, Austin's ninth in 16 career meetings with Lloyd, was even sweeter since it came only two days after she had dropped a 3-hour, 18-minute three-set match to Lloyd.

Austin, who captured her second U.S. Open singles title in September, will meet the winner of Saturday night's other semifinal between top-seeded Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver in Sunday's final.

The winner of this eight-woman, double-elimination tournament receives $75,000, while the runner-up gets $40,000.

Lloyd won the opening game, breaking Austin at love. But the reigning Wimbledon champion could win only 10 more points in the first set as Austin dominated her older rival.

Whatever Lloyd did, Austin did better. When Lloyd brought her opponent to the net with a chip shot, Austin won the point with a delicately placed drop shot. When Lloyd fired a two-fisted backhand cross court, Austin returned it cross court with a two-fisted backhand that was twice as hard.

Turner gives up

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner said Saturday he no longer expects free-agent Reggie Jackson to join the National League team.

"If I thought it would do any good, I'd fly Reggie in on Christmas Day and show him the city, even the torn-up baseball field," Turner said from his Charleston, S.C., home. "I'd give him the key to the city. I'd do anything I could, but I don't think there's anything I can do that would help."

Jackson made it known last week he would be content to remain with the New York Yankees as a designated hitter.

Cameron Yoe wins 3A title

WACO, Texas (AP) — Cameron Yoe end Victor Powell caught two second-quarter scoring passes from quarterback Paul Hoelscher to lead the Yoemen to a 26-3 win over Gilmer in the Class 3A schoolboy football championship Saturday.

Cameron Yoe finished its season with a 13-1-1 mark in capturing its first 3A state championship. Gilmer closed the year at 12-1-2.

Gilmer, plagued by fumbles and a feeble defensive line, failed to hold the Cameron rushing attack at bay.

After a scoreless opening period, the Buckeyes led off the scoring early in the second quarter when quarterback Chuck Waggoner kicked a 22-yard field goal.

But the Yeomen quickly countered when Hoelscher found Powell wide open in the end zone and lobbed a 29-yard scoring pass. Mariano de la Rosa's kick made it 7-3, with 10:14 left in the period.

On Gilmer's next possession, fullback Nelson Huffman recovered a Waggoner fumble in the end zone for a touchdown. De la Rosa's kick made it 14-3.

The Yeomen increased their lead when Waggoner's snap to David Cockrell for a punt sailed over Cockrell's head into the end zone, giving Cameron a safety and a 16-3 lead with minutes left in the half.

Hoelscher lost no time in renewing his passing attack. He tossed a 37-yard scoring pass to Powell, after briefly handing off to wingback Oscar Riggins, who pitched it back to Hoelscher for the toss.

A third-quarter field goal from 20 yards out by de la Rosa capped the scoring.

Bengals claim Pioneer trophy

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Senior quarterback Mike Machurek took advantage of the elements Saturday, directing Idaho State to three wind-aided second-quarter touchdowns, and the Bengals whipped Eastern Kentucky 34-23 in the Pioneer Bowl for the NCAA Division IAA national championship.

It was the first championship-game appearance for the Bengals, 12-1, who went 0-11 just two years ago. The Colonels, 12-2, were making their third championship-game trip in a row.

Eastern Kentucky was the NCAA's top-ranked Division IAA team when the game started, and ISU was No. 2.

With the 25 mph wind at his back, Machurek took the Bengals 52, 80 and 38 yards for second-period tallies. His 9-yard pass to Charles Ewing was sandwiched between a pair of 6-yard runs by tailback Dwain Wilson and ISU took a 28-9 lead into the locker room at intermission.

Machurek, who led the division in passing and total offense, also found Chris Corp for a 17-yard scoring pass in the first period and Paul Fite scored on a 2-yard plunge on the first play of the final quarter.

Eastern Kentucky scored first on a 21-yard field goal by Jamie Lovett and added a 3-yard touchdown run by Ed Hairston two plays into the second quarter, but could not mount a scoring drive against the wind the rest of the half.

The Colonels scored with the wind at their backs in the third period, marching 71 yards for a 2-yard plunge by Nicky Yeast, and moved within 11 points when Yeast banged 4 yards for a touchdown midway through the fourth quarter.

Indiana spanks K-State

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Junior Ted Kitchel scored 20 points Saturday, sparking 13th-ranked Indiana to a 58-49 comeback victory over Kansas State in nonconference college basketball.

Indiana trailed 34-25 after Kansas State scored the first six points of the second half on baskets by Randy Reed, Ed Nealy and Tyrone Adams.

Reed, who topped Kansas State scorers with 16 points, hit a jumper with 15:25 to play to give the Wildcats a 38-32 advantage. But the Wildcats went nearly seven minutes without scoring as Indiana moved ahead for good.

A Kitchel jumper with 15:11 left ignited a 10-point Indiana streak, giving the Hoosiers a 42-38 lead. Kitchel had four of the points and Randy Wittman scored the other six.

A Nealy jumper ended the streak with 8:32 remaining, but Indiana countered with six consecutive points and the Wildcats never drew closer than four after that.

Indiana, now 6-1, helped hold off the Wildcats by making seven free throws in the final minute.

No. 18 Villanova falls to Temple

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sophomore Terence Stansbury scored on a fast-break dunk and added two free throws to spark undefeated Temple to a 52-48 upset of 18th-ranked Villanova in the second game of a college basketball doubleheader Saturday at the Palestra.

Cheyney State defeated Philadelphia Textile 79-67 in the first game.

Stansbury's dunk, with 34 seconds remaining, followed a steal by freshman Ed Coe and broke a 46-46 tie. Villanova, 6-1, had squandered an eight-point lead midway through the second half and tried to hold the ball the last two minutes for the final shot.

Stansbury and Coe each added a pair of foul shots in the final 22 seconds.

Tempie, 7-0, led the entire first half behind the shooting of sophomore Granger Hall. The Owls were in front 28-24 at halftime, despite making only six of 18 free throws.

Hoyas roll over Rebels

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Eric Floyd scored 15 of his 27 points in the second half, seven during a 15-point Georgetown streak midway through the period, as the 19th-ranked Hoyas buried Nevada-Las Vegas 76-52 Saturday.

Floyd and freshman center Pat Ewing, who sat out 10 minutes of the first half in foul trouble, combined for 13 points in the first eight minutes of the second half. Georgetown, meanwhile, opened up a 51-39 lead.

The Hoyas, 7-2, extended their advantage to 66-41 with 8:05 remaining as the Runnin' Rebels went without a point for more than six minutes.

Ewing, who had only two points and two rebounds at halftime, finished with 10 points and hauled down eight rebounds. Freshman Anthony Jones scored 12 for the Hoyas, while Fred Brown added 11 and Mike Hancock 10.

Houston upsets sixth-rated Iowa 62-52

HOUSTON (AP) — Guard Rob Williams scored 15 points, including two key free throws, to rally Houston to a 62-52 upset victory over sixth-ranked Iowa in the championship game of the Kettle Basketball Classic Saturday night.

The Cougars struggled to keep pace with the previously unbeaten Hawkeyes through most of the first half until Williams hit two free throws that sparked a surge that gave Houston a narrow 30-29 advantage at the half.

In the consolation game earlier Saturday night, Clemson beat Mississippi State 59-32.

The Cougars built on their halftime lead slowly but steadily in the second half behind the shooting of Williams and Clyde Drexler.

The Hawkeyes led through most of the first half but came out cold in the second half, going scoreless during one six-minute stretch.

It was the sixth straight win and the second consecutive Kettle Classic championship for Houston, 7-1. The loss dropped Iowa to 6-1.

Williams, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, led Houston scoring, but the Cougars also got 14 points from Drexler and 12 from Michael Young.

Kenny Arnold and Mark Gannon led the Hawkeyes with 12 points apiece, and Steve Carfino added 11.

Texas Tech 71, Utah 65

SALT LAKE CITY — Clarence Swannegan scored 23 points and pulled down seven rebounds in leading Texas Tech to a 71-65 nonconference basketball victory over Utah Saturday night.

Texas Tech carried a 36-21 lead into the second half, which Utah narrowed to 48-38.

The Utes then scored eight straight points, with Mario Williams hitting two jumpers, Peter Williams scoring two baskets and Angelo Robinson hitting a jumper, making it 48-46 with nine minutes left.

The Red Raiders surged back ahead on two buckets by David Reynolds and kept a six-point margin the rest of the game.

Texas Tech, now 6-1, shot 55.2 percent from the field to Utah's 46.9 percent.

Steve Smith and Jeff Taylor each hit 10 points for the Red Raiders, while Utah, 5-3, was led by Peter Williams with 14 points and 12 rebounds and George Furgis with 11 points and eight rebounds.

Kansas 81, SMU 71

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Tony Guy pumped in a game-high 27 points and David Magley added 19 to lead Kansas to an 81-71 college basketball victory over Southern Methodist Saturday night.

With the game tied 17-17, Kansas outscored SMU 19-8 during the final nine minutes of the first half to take a 36-25 advantage. Guy scored 10 of his 14 first-half points in the surge.

Kansas opened the second half with two straight baskets by Tad Boyle and Jeff Dishman to make it 40-25, and SMU could get no closer than 10 points the rest of the way.

The Jayhawks' biggest lead was 21 points, 78-57, with four minutes left. Southern Methodist pulled to 81-71 with 22 seconds remaining.

SMU was led by John Koncak, who had 25 points and pulled down 12 rebounds. John Briggs had 14 points and John Addison had 12 for the Mustangs, who fell to 3-5.

Kelly Knight had 12 points for the Jayhawks, 5-2.

Arkansas 91, Biscayne 61

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — Tony Brown scored a career-high 21 points as ninth-ranked Arkansas held Biscayne College to one field goal in the first eight minutes and rolled to a 91-61 college basketball victory Saturday night.

Brown started the Razorbacks' scoring with a three-point play and hit nine of 10 from the field and all three of his free throws.

A layup by Brad Friess gave Arkansas a 19-3 lead with 12:41 left in the first half, and Biscayne never got closer than 10.

Behind Scott Hastings' six points, Arkansas had a 14-4 run that made it 39-15 with less than two minutes left in the half. The Razorbacks led by 20 at the half, and the closest Biscayne got in the second half was 56-39.

Biscayne, with leading scorer Ted Mizerak at home with a knee injury, had 14 turnovers in the first half.

Baylor 88, SW Oklahoma 65

WACO, Texas — Terry Teagle scored 28 points and teammates Joe Copeland and Jay Shakir added 13 each to led Baylor to an 88-65 win over Southwest Oklahoma in a non-conference basketball game Saturday.

Baylor grabbed an early 13-6 lead behind the shooting of Tommy Temaat, who scored 11 of the Bear's first 15 points. Shakir also hit all of his 13 points in the first half.

The Bulldogs closed the gap to 34-28 with four minutes left in the first half, but an offensive burst by Baylor gave the Bears a 42-29 halftime lead.

Teagle hit 18 of his 28 points in the second half as the Bears rolled to an easy win.

Arnold Madison and Roderick Walker each scored 12 points to pace the Bulldogs.

The win ran Baylor's record to 5-2. The Bulldogs dropped to 6-6.

BYU receiver Dan Plater hangs on to 35-yard scoring pass from Jim McMahon as Cougars beat Cougars (Washington State) in the Holiday Bowl.

No expansion for Mile High

Denver's Mayor Bill McNichols vowed that Mile High Stadium will not be expanded beyond its present 75,000 seats, "as long as I have any influence in this city." The Stadium has been sold out for every Bronco game since 1969 and a waiting list of 15,000 want to buy season tickets. Because of the demand, it has been suggested the south end of the stadium be enclosed to bring the capacity to 93,000. McNichols said enlarging the stadium to include as many as 100,000 seats would probably mean it would no longer be sold out for each home game, which means those games wouldn't be televised locally as they are now. "I would have angry football fans picketing at my doorstep. It's ideal the way it is now with just over 75,000 seats and 14,800 on the waiting list, destroying that formula is, as far as I'm concerned, like killing the goose that laid the golden egg."...

Melvin Brown quit after four years as Sam Houston State football coach and plans to seek another coaching job. Brown led the Bearkats to a 6-5 record his first season and was named Lone Star Conference Coach of the Year. His resignation comes after Sam Houston won only two games in 1981...

"If I were a pro coach, I'd pick Jim McMahon and he'd lead us to the Super Bowl," said BYU coach Lavell Edwards after the Cougars' 38-36 win over Washington State in the Holiday Bowl. McMahon was 27 of 43 for 342 yards and three touchdowns, prompting Washington State Coach Jim Walden to observe, "He's the best quarterback we faced this year." McMahon, off target early and plagued by fumbles, was a more critical judge. "I was off all night. I don't know what the problem was, but When we had to make the big plays, we did."...

St. Louis University will quit the Metro Conference to join the Midwestern City league, following a 15 month study. A limited athletic budget was one of the reasons given for the withdrawal. In the Midwestern City, a 3-year-old alignment, St. Louis will team up with Xavier of Cincinnati, Evansville, Oral Roberts, Loyola of Chicago, Oklahoma City, Detroit and Butler...

Packers, Jets shoot for NFL playoff spots

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Klecko and Mark Gastineau would like nothing better than to head Lynn Dickey off at the pass a few times today.

"The pressure is on. We're going to have to get to the quarterback," said Gastineau, who teams with Klecko to spearhead the New York Sack Exchange, the defense which has turned the New York Jets into playoff contenders.

THE JETS will make the American Football Conference playoffs by beating Green Bay — but the Packers are playing for a playoff berth in the National Football Conference. And Dickey is coming off his best game as a pro. He completed 19 of 21 passes for 218 yards and a team record-tying five touchdowns last Sunday as Green Bay ripped New Orleans 35-7.

All the Jets have to do in order to reach the playoffs for the first time since the 1969 American Football League season is beat the Packers. That will give them the second AFC wild card berth.

If they lose, they still can get the wild card — with help. The San Diego Chargers play Monday night at home against Oakland. If — after a Jets loss — the Chargers also lose, New York is in the playoffs. If San Diego ties the Raiders or beats them, the Chargers get the wild card.

IF THE Packers win today, they will tie the New York Giants, a 13-10 winner over Dallas Saturday, with 9-7 records. Green Bay, by virtue of its two victories against the Giants, gets an NFC wild card spot. However, if Green Bay wins and Philadelphia loses Sunday to St. Louis, creating a three-way 9-7 tie, the Giants-Packers head-to-head results are thrown out, conference records become the deciding factor — and the Packers lose out to the Giants there.

"Green Bay's offense is so powerful, it can score any time," said Klecko. "You can never go to sleep at any time. They have a good running attack, but that passing attack is incredible!"

"The premium will be on the pass rush," said Jets Coach Walt Michaels. "Can we get to the quarterback?"

If the Jets can't, it's likely Dickey will be able to get the ball to the Packers' two exceptional wide receivers, John Jefferson and James Lofton. "If Lynn Dickey has time to throw," Michaels said, "those guys will get open."

"Anytime a team's got two receivers like that," added injured cornerback Bobby Jackson, "it's going to be difficult. But it's no big deal. You can't go out like they're God's gift to football. They're not, or they'd have won every game."

Johnny Lynn, another cornerback who has been injured but who insists he will be ready to play against the Packers, exhibits some healthy respect for Jefferson and Lofton.

Elon captures NAIA Division I crown, 3-0

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Phil Renn kicked a 23-yard field goal early in the fourth quarter and gave Elon College a 3-0 victory over Pittsburg State Saturday for the NAIA Division I national football championship.

Renn got the chance for his only attempt of the game after nose guard Chris Worst blocked a punt by Pittsburg State's Gene Wayenberg. Strong safety Kenny Angel recovered the ball at the Gorilla 8-yard line.

Three plays up the middle gained only 2 yards, but Renn booted the ball through the uprights for the first successful field goal by either team after four tries by Pittsburg State.

Both defenses dominated the contest, but mistakes by the Fightin' Christians gave Pittsburg State its chances to score. Elon committed seven turnovers.

Quarterback John Bangley fumbled on Elon's second possession at his own 16 and Sam Pittman got the ball for the Gorillas. But an attempted 32-yard field goal by Dave Hammons was wide to the left.

On the next series, Elon's Fred Jordan fumbled at his 25, where Alan Watts recovered on the spot to set up one more chance for Hammons. Following a 12-yard gain by fullback Stan Patton, Hammons' 28-yard attempt again was wide to the left.

BENEFITS OF THE 1981 INVESTMENT TAX CREDIT

The investment tax credit offers a business which buys or leases a new truck before the end of 1981 the opportunity to reduce this year's income tax.

The investment tax credit can accomplish the following

- Lower the Federal income tax liability for your business this year
- Make the price tag look smaller after you check out the tax savings

Any business that uses a truck in its operation is eligible. A new truck acquired this year can reduce your tax liability for 1981 as follows.

- Investment tax credit of 6% for all light duty trucks depreciated for three years.
- Investment tax credit of 10% for all large trucks (600 series and higher) depreciated for five years.

This has the practical effect of reducing the purchase price, depending on the truck, either 6% or 10%.

Vehicles disposed of prior to the three or five year depreciation periods will be subject to investment tax credit recapture; however, for every period of more than one year the property is held in service, 2% of the credit will be retained.

FOR EXAMPLE:

Light Duty Trucks

If the business keeps the new truck more than one year and less than two years, it will be required to rebate the government 4% of the 6% credit claimed.

If a business keeps the new truck more than two years and less than three years, it will be required to rebate the government 2% of the 6% credit claimed.

Large Trucks

If a business keeps the new truck more than three years and less than four years, it will be required to rebate the government 4% of the 10% credit claimed.

If a business keeps the new truck more than four years and less than five years, it will be required to rebate the government 2% of the 10% credit claimed.

1981 Advantages OVER 1980

- The investment tax credit recoverable time is shorter and the repayment to the government is smaller if the truck is removed from service earlier than the normal 3 and 5 years required under the new law.

EXAMPLES OF HOW THE INVESTMENT TAX CREDIT WORKS

Light Duty Trucks

- Assume the Federal income tax liability for your business in 1981 is $12,000.
- Assume your business purchases an $8,000 light truck during the year.
- Assuming your business depreciates the truck for three years, you may credit 6% of the price paid for the truck or $480 against $12,000 income tax liability for 1981.
- You would then owe the government $12,000 minus $480 or a total of $11,520.

Large Trucks

- Assume the Federal income tax liability for your business in 1981 is $25,000.
- Assume your business purchases an $18,000 large truck during the year.
- Assuming your business depreciates the truck for five years, you may credit 10% of the price paid for the truck or $1,800 against your $25,000 income tax liability for 1981.
- You would then owe the government $25,000 minus $1,800 or a total of $23,200.

The investment tax credit information outlined here is incomplete. A business that is interested in obtaining investment tax credit information should consult its tax advisor.

Winter's snows sweep across flat farmlands

This has been a winter in which the snow storms have funneled through the midwest flatlands, dumping heaping portions on Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Kansas while Colorado and New Mexico have looked on in envy.

But the snows will come and when they do, it will be a matter of finding a place for reservations.

STEAMBOAT, Aspen and Vail are among the most popular spots and Breckenridge offers a nice variety of slopes 70 miles west of Denver.

Breckenridge Mayor Bernard P. McMenamy visited the Tall City a few weeks ago and marveled at the similarities between Midland and his town.

"I look at Midland and see the same growing pains and problems we have in Breckenridge," he said. "Our traffic problem is so bad, we encourage the use of buses to the slopes. You see, we are one of the fastest growing areas in the nation. I think a poll showed our growth at 250 percent.'

An awed listener asked fearfully, "And how big is Breckenridge?"

"Oh, we're about 900," the mayor answered.

It's probably quite a few more than that when the skiers hit town to take advantage of the picturesque community that headquarters Araphoe Basin, Keystone, Breckenridge and Copper Mountain, enough variety to keep a skier busy for weeks.

Arapahoe is the oldest and 40 per cent of the 22 mountain (10,780' to 12,450') trails are expert with the longest run 1.75 miles. Fifty per cent of the trails are intermediate class. Keystone (9,300'-11,640') has 20 trails over 520 acres with 65 per cent intermediate and 20 beginner. Longest run is 3.5 miles.

Breckenridge (9,630'-11,843') offers 67 trails on 808 acres with the longest 2.6 miles. The mountain is serviced by one triple chair lift and 11 double chairs, 1 T bar and 1 poma and it's biggest appeal is for intermediate skiers, but High Anxiety is a challenge for experts.

Copper Mountain has been the site of Flatlanders' expeditions and claims to offer it all. Some 46 trails traverse more than 50 ski miles on the (9,600-12,050) mountain with the breakdown: 25 per cent expert, 55 intermediate and 20 beginner. There are 10 double chair lifts.

PURGATORY, located outside of Durango in the dramatic San Juans, boasts 300 inches of snow annually and is a delight for powder snow and mogul enthusiasts. Five double chairs offer access to the 42 trails over 510 acres which provides a generous variety of slopes for all classes of skiers. Plush, convenient accommodations are available slopeside at Tamarron, but Durango, 25 miles away, is noted for economical package deals.

Wolf Creek (10,650'-11,775') has plans for expansion, but now spreads 21 trails over 280 acres, but it usually has snow when no one else does. Nearest accommodations are at Pagosa Springs, 25 miles away, and while 45 per cent of the trails are intermediate and 30 beginner, you've got to prove you are an expert to gain access to the powder snow atop the Divide.

IN NEW Mexico, 16 miles outside of Santa Fe (10,350-12,000) the Ski Basin boasts 31 trail on 500 acres. The longest run is three miles and the slopes are rated 40 expert, 40 intermediate and 20 beginner. Two double chairs and three pomas service the slopes.

A big plus for Red River, located around the mountain from Taos, is its extensive snow-making capabilities. It also is noted for its well-organized instructional staff of 50, which would be important to a beginner. The four double chair lifts and two rope tows lead to 36 trails on 110 acres which are rated 20 expert, 45 intermediate and 35 easiest.

Angel Fire on the eastern rim of the Moreno Valley has 24 miles of trails, 85 per cent of which are groomed for intermediates and beginners. As an added attraction, 20 miles of groomed for the increasing popular sport of cross-country skiing.

It's all there. All we need is some more white stuff.

Houston's Astros traded Cesar Cedeno to Cincinnati for third baseman Ray Knight, which means the Astros will shift Art Howe to first base. Cedeno had a .289 average in 12 years with Houston while Knight hit .259 in 1980 and .318 in 1979 for the Reds.

Adams wants action against Gervin fist

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phoenix Suns center Alvan Adams, his nose broken in two places, said Saturday that he will ask National Basketball Association authorities to take action against George Gervin for an allegedly flagrant foul during Friday night's game.

Adams said he thought Gervin, of the San Antonio Spurs, "hit me with his fist" while driving to the basket with 1:01 to play. Adams received a half-inch gash on the bridge of his nose and he also was assessed a blocking foul.

Phoenix hung on to win 108-104 in San Antonio.

The Suns lost Adams with the injury. It was serious enough for him to sit out Saturday night's game here with the Kansas City Kings.

Suns spokesman Tom Ambrose said the 6-9 Adams may return for Wednesday night's game here against Golden State.

Gervin said he hit Adams with his elbow on a follow-through to his layup attempt and it waas unintentional. But Adams thought differently.

"George always does things like this. This is something we are going to pursue," Adams said. "I think the league and the referees should take action against him."

Oilers, Steelers close out season

HOUSTON (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers and Houston Oilers, two teams that once battled for such heady honors as division titles and Super Bowl berths, close out the season on an inglorious note Sunday amid a profusion of cliches.

The bitter AFC Central Division rivals are playing this one for "pride" and "to build character."

There is little else to play for with Houston, 6-9, and Pittsburgh, 8-7, both out of the playoff picture going into the 3 p.m. CST kickoff in the Astrodome.

"We plan to play this game as we would any other," Steeler Coach Chuck Noll said. "You might say this is rthe start of next season. It would have been a good way to begin 1982."

The Oiler defense, which held the team together for an 11-5 record last year, will try to duplicate last season's feat when the Oilers beat Pittsburgh 6-0 — marking the Steelers' first shutout in 114 games.

Houston Coach Ed Biles will use the game to take another look at quarterback Gifford Nielsen in a starting role, instead of the backup for veteran Ken Stabler.

"Our priority is to win the game, but we also plan to look at a lot of people," Biles said. "I won't make coach of the year on the difference between 6-10 and 7-9."

Second-year quarterback Mark Malone will start for the Steelers at quarterback in place of Terry Bradshaw, out with a broken bone in his hand.

"This is part of pro football too, playing out the string," Oiler cornerback Greg Stemrick said. "You have to play your best regardless of the significance of the game."

There is incentive for the Steelers, however.

A Pittsburgh victory would give the Steelers a 9-7 record and a winning record for the 10th straight year, a feat accomplished by only three other teams — Dallas, Cleveland and Oakland — since 1945.

Double vision nightmare ends for Beckwith

By ROSS NEWHAN
(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Joe Beckwith, a once (and still?) promising right-hander, delivered most of his 1981 pitches from a dais rather than a mound as a member of the Dodgers' speakers bureau.

He did not appear in even one Dodger game last year. Nor did he pitch for either the Boston Red Sox or Chicago Cubs, clubs to which he was reportedly being traded.

At a time when Beckwith, 26, thought he would be establishing a reputation in baseball, he missed the season due to double vision that developed in spring training and required summer surgery on each eye.

The delicate process was performed by Dr. Steven Feldon of the Doheney Eye Foundation. Beckwith was told he had only a 50-50 chance of pitching again, but he had already reached a point of almost total pessimism and was already calling contacts in other businesses. He figured he would end up in corporate public relations, putting his Auburn business degree to use in either Atlanta or Birmingham, Ala.

NOW, HOWEVER, some 10 weeks after a second operation, Beckwith has hope. No longer does he see double. He sees instead a return to the Dodgers, a pitching career reborn.

"The last three weeks," he said, sitting in a coffee shop close to his home and the California State Univeristy Fullerton diamond on which he's been working out, "I've made more progress and feel more secure about my career than any time since the problem developed.

"The way it's turned around is unbelievable. I'm again ready to pitch in a game. I'm confident. I've reached a point where I've never felt better.

"I know it's not going to be an easy road. I know the Dodgers aren't going to hand me a job, that I've got to show them I can pitch, make them realize I'm back. But I believe now I can do that. I look at their roster and don't see a better right-handed relief pitcher. The opportunity is there for me to take advantage of and I'm working my butt off to do it."

Dodgers Vice President Al Campanis said he is impressed by Beckwith's attitude, his regenerated confidence and desire, but Beckwith's future will be determined in spring training.

"Joe has the tools," Campanis said, "but he's in a position where he has to show us again that he can still do the job. We know he's a No. 2 draft choice who has a 90-plus fastball and major league ability, but he's got to go back now and prove himself all over. He missed a full year. Things change."

YOUNG RIGHT-handers named Dave Stewart and Ted Power and Tom Niedenfuer and Alejandor Pena and Rich Rodas have moved ahead of Beckwith.

Dodger teammates voted him a full playoff and World Series share, as compensation for his physical setback and reward for his cheerleading while participating in pregame workouts and while watching every home game from a loge box.

"I can be happy about it," Beckwith said, referring to the full share, "but I'm not proud of it. It's strictly stolen money. I'd much rather have earned it. I mean, sitting and watching and knowing I couldn't contribute was the most frustrating thing I've ever been through. You're a member of the club, yet not really a member."

Drafted out of Auburn in 1977, Beckwith spent parts of the 1979 and '80 seasons with the Dodgers. He made 38 relief appearances in 1980 and had a staff low 1.95 ERA with a 3-3 record, working primarily as a long man.

While pitching batting practice for the second time last March, without the customary screen in front of the mound, Beckwith jerked his head away from a Jack Perconte line drive and almost immediately experienced double vision.

Beckwith said he tried to shake it by adhering t his regular training routine. But when the condition persisted, when it became almost impossible for him to run or throw a curveball ("I kept bouncing them in front of the plate because that's where I thought the catcher's target was"), the Dodgers, recalling the indecision and contradictions preceding James Rodney Richard's stroke, sent Beckwith back to Los Angeles for neurological tests.

"They tested for MS, a brain tumor and a blood clot," Beckwith said, "and when all the tests were done, they really hadn't found anything. I went back to Vero thinking that if the doctors weren't concerned, neither was I."

IT WAS later determined that the most severe manifestation of Beckwith's double vision occurred after physical exertion. "I could see reasonably well when I warmed up," he said, "but the more I'd throw, the worse it would get."

While pitching against the Mets in a St. Petersburg exhibition, Beckwith soon realized that something was seriously wrong.

He pitched two innings, giving up five hits and four runs. It was his last competitive appearance. "I went to dinner with friends," he said, "and couldn't even see what I was eating. It was scary."

Beckwith returned to Los Angeles. Dr. Feldon, a specialist in neuro-optholmology, ultimately determined that Beckwith was a victim of fourth-nerve palsy, that in jerking away from the Perconte liner he had damaged a cranial nerve and weakened a muscle that governs much of the movement in the left eye.

Dr. Feldon, reached at his office, said the ailment is "really fairly common, particularly in cases of severe head trauma such as stroke or tumor."

In the hope that the condition would cure itself, Feldon advised Beckwith to wait six months before considering surgery, a procedure endorsed by other specialists.

The realization that he would miss the entire year, that he would ultimately have to start all over again, drove Beckwith "up the wall," drove him "insane at first." He looked back the other day end said the patience and support of wife Jeanne Ann ("she's a fighter and it's unbelievable how hard she worked to help me get back together mentally") and the presence of a daughter (Merrill Leigh) born in January ("I was able to lose myself in her") helped him through the most discouraging days.

Feldon fitted Beckwith's glasses (he had previously worn contact lenses) with prisms to help him drive, walk and run, and prescribed steroids to increase the blood flow around the damaged eye.

BECKWITH reported to Dodger Stadium nightly, working hard and throwing hard, he said, to keep his arm in shape until he realized that "since I was still seeing double, there was a chance I could screw up my mechanics and injure my arm." He then did only light throwing in the outfield.

By August, with five of the six months having passed without improvement, Beckwith concluded that if he waited a full six months and then required a second or third operation, as Feldon had said was possible, his recovery would span much of 1982 and mean perhaps a second summer on the sidelines.

Beckwith told Feldon that he wanted to have the surgery early. Feldon told Beckwith that if he was in almost any other kind of work he could lead a relatively normal life without surgery.

SIDs pick All-Academic squad

Diana, Nelson 'head' All-Think

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Running backs Rich Diana of Yale and Darrin Nelson of Stanford and Outland Trophy winner David Rimington of Nebraska lead the 25-man Academic All-America Football Team.

The team, announced Saturday, was chosen by the College Sports Information Directors of America. To be eligible for the squad, a player must be a regular performer for his team and must have a grade point average of at least 3.0 on a 4.0 scale.

The grade point average of the team was 3.55, with 15 of the 25 first team members having grade point averages of 3.5 or better.

Nelson was the leading vote-getter in the results announced Saturday.

Nelson, an urban studies major had a 3.0 grade point average, was the first college football player to rush for more than 1,000 yards and catch 50 passes in a single season. He achieved those totals twice.

Diana, who had a 3.5 grade point average while majoring in molecular biophysics and biochemistry, starred in baseball as well as football at Yale. Rimington, a junior, majors in economics and had a 3.32 grade point average.

Other members of the first team-offense are West Virginia quarterback Oliver Luck, wide receivers Cormac Carney of UCLA and Dan Platter of Brigham Young, guards Travis Holcombe of Brown and Rob Fada of Pittsburgh, tackles Randy Theiss of Nebraska and Kari Yli-Renko of Cincinnati, and Washington place-kicker Chuck Nelson.

A tie in the voting resulted in two tight ends being placed on the first team-offense: Tim Wrightman of UCLA and Norm Betts of Michigan.

The top vote-getter on the defensive first team is linebacker Van Darkow, who made more than 100 tackles for Missouri this year. The 6-foot-1, 205-pound senior majors in biology and pre-med and had a 3.67 grade point average.

The other linebackers on the first team are Mark Jerue of Washington and Mike France of Air Force.

The four down linemen on the first team are John Bergren of Stamford, Frederick Leone of Yale, Dan Gregus of Illinois, and Tim Ford of Western Kentucky.

The team's punter is Rohn Stark of Florida State, and the defensive backs are Darren Gale of Kansas State, Ric Lindquist of Nebraska, Tim Seneff of Purdue and John Krimm of Notre Dame.

'The Scalper'

Pelz an innocent 'victim'

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — All travel agent Don Pelz wanted to do was take care of some regular customers. Instead, he was accused of scalping tickets and ripping off sports fans.

Because neither Ohio State nor Michigan was playing football in the Rose Bowl this year, Pelz wanted to come up with a substitute travel package for football fans who normally head west in January.

So Pelz began advertising a travel package this week that included a ticket to the Super Bowl in the Silverdome in Pontiac, Mich., plus round-trip charter bus transportation for $335.

Two affiliated Toledo travel agencies, Central Travel and Ticket Inc. and Elite Travel, offered the package in advertisements published in The Blade, Toledo's daily newspaper.

By mid-week, Pelz was calling for a truce and decided the package and price tag were disasters.

Pelz, executive vice president of Central Travel and Ticket, said the firm got many negative calls accusing it of attempting to make "outrageous" profits by scalping the tickets for the Jan. 24 game.

Pelz said he agrees that $335 was a lot of money for a chartered bus ride and tickets that were selling for $40. But he added, "We didn't stand to make much out of it. We were buying the tickets from a California ticket broker for $290 apiece."

"Callers thought we were buying the tickets for the face value and boosting the prices ourselves," Pelz said, "and that just isn't how it worked."

Pelz said the same company in California also put together Rose Bowl trips to Pasadena for Ohio State and Michigan football fans in previous years. In those cases, the prices of a $15 Rose Bowl ticket was raised as high as $90, a small part of a $700 to $900 package that included charter air fare.

Pelz said several local companies had used the Rose Bowl trips as sales incentives for employees.

De Agostini ski winner

SAALBACH, Austria (AP) — Doris De Agostini of Switzerland won a women's World Cup downhill ski race today, beating Marie Cecile Gros-Gaudenier of France, who had won Friday's downhill.

De Agostini covered the shortened track, measuring 1,710 meters, with a drop of 610 meters and 24 control gates, in 1 minute, 13.71 seconds.

Jal proves too much

By PETE HERRERA
AP Sports Editor

Adversity and a good memory can work wonders for a young football team.

In 1980, the Moriarty Pintos swept through 12 straight opponents and went into the Class AA championship game unbeaten. But the Pintos' youth, combined with Jal's experience in title games, proved too much for Moriarty and the Panthers walked away with the title trophy.

Returning a solid nucleus from that state runner-up team of a year ago, Moriarty turned into an explosive scoring and staunch defensive team in 1981.

This time, the Pintos launched a winning streak that stretched through 13 games and the school's first state football title.

The stars of Moriarty's unbeaten season dominated The Associated Press Class AA All-State team announced today.

Olympian in surgery

LONDON (AP) — Steve Ovett, Britain's Olympic gold medalist and the 1,500-metes world record holder, underwent surgery Saturday for a leg injury.

Ovett ran into a fence while training 10 days ago and tore a muscle above the knee. A hospital spokesman said Ovett will have his leg in plaster for two weeks and will then need to build up the affected muscle for a further six weeks before resuming training.

KENNY REDIN'S

Fin & Feather

One of America's finest professional bass anglers accomplished a dream he has been pursuing for several years now. Tommy Martin, Hemphill, Tex., a veteran along the B.A.S.S. tournament trail and winner of the 1974 BASS Masters Classic, pulled off a touranemnt victory, on of his most prestigious wins in tournament fishing history.

Martin, who's been fishing the Bass Anglers Sportsman Society's professional bass tournament trail for years now, and who's qualified for six classics, won the most recent B.A.S.S. tournament at Toledo Bend — the Texas Invitational.

BEING ONE of the most consistent professional anglers for many years, Martin stayed on a hole at famed Toledo Bend and commenced to pull out a seven-fish limit for three days and won the tournament with a combined weight of 81 pounds, 10 ounces. Figure that up and you'll agree his average bass weight was outstanding. Martin, also set a new record within B.A.S.S. tourney ranks by posting a 35 pound, two ounce daily weight with seven fish. This daily weight is the best on B.A.S.S. records since the Alabama-based fishing organization began the seven-fish per day limit.

I TALKED with Martin after the tournament and he said, "I fished on area most of the time. The place I was fishing was near a creek channel where I had located a few fish on practice days. Eighteen of the fish I weighed in in the tournament came from one spot, while the other three came from an area not too far away."

"Actually, the fishing wasn't that good on Toldedo Bend because of adverse weather conditions," Martin added. "The first day of competition was just perfect. That's when I caught my record weight, but the final two days of tourney fishing was hampered greatly by high winds. I was fishing an area that was in open water and it was tough feeling a bass strike. But, I just stayed in my favorite area, wind, rough water and all and managed to jig up enough fish to win the tournament," Martin explained.

The victory was great for Martin. He had never won a B.A.S.S. event on Toledo because he always was fishing under extreme pressure. On his home lake he was expected to always finish high in the standings, but failed to make many great showings. The other professionals also expected Martin to finish high in the standings, so that put a lot of pressure on the expert basser.

"This tournament, I went out thinking that my chances of winning were good because I had located several holes that I thought would produce some nice fish," Martin said. "But, I wasn't going to get upset if I didn't catch fish in places where I knew there should be fish. That's the problem I had in previous tournaments. If I didn't catch fish where I knew I was suppose to, I would get upset, throwing off my patience and strategy. But this year was different. I went into the tournament game plane feeling confident and had promised myself that pressure would not get me down. And it worked!"

"AFTER I HAD boated those seven fish the first tournament day, I felt very confident that I could win the tournament. The fish were all large fish and I knew that if anyone was on larger fish, I would just have to give up the ship because it's uncommon to catch seven fish that all average about five pounds of slightly largers," Martin said.

For Martin's home lake win, B.A.S.S. paid him a handsome sum of $12,550 for his winning performance plus a new Ranger bass boat and trailer.

Another Toledo Bend favorite and former guide on this East Texas reservoir, Harold Allen, now of Batesville, Miss., was the only other angler out of the 250 entered that gave Martin a run for his money. Allen, who finished second in the BASS Masters Classic, less than one month ago in Alabama, caught 16 fish that weighed a total of 63 pounds, 15 ounces for second place. He garnered more than $9,000 for his second place finish.

FORMER CLASSIC champion, Bow Dowden of Natchitoches, La., finished the tournament in third place while another Texan, Ken Walker of Cedar Park, finished in fourth.

Even with weather conditions hampering two days of fishing, anglers still managed to catch a lot of Toledo Bend bass. A total of 2,589 pounds, 15 ounces o bass were taken, proving once again that Toledo Bend is still one of the greatest bass lakes in the world.

Go climb a tree somewhere

Family takes novel hunting approach

By EARL BOHN

GREENSBURG, Pa. (AP) — The sun was 10 minutes from rising as Jack Wilkinson pulled his bearlike frame up a thick red oak into the tree blind he had built to hunt deer.

Next he pulled up a gunnysack holding blankets, lunch, picture books, coloring books and crayons. Then came a lumpy sack holding 6-year-old Jason Wilkinson, who is too small to use the pegs his father drove into the trunk.

"Deer hunting is a family affair for me," Wilkinson said after the boy and a reporter got settled 50 feet above the ground. "Even though it's a little inconvenient with the little fellow, I'm tickled that he has enough interest to want to come along."

Seated in an old swivel desk chair, Wilkinson could see another treehouse some 400 yards across a valley where his wife, Connie, and daughters Jean, 13, and Joyce, 17, hunt. Behind them, up the hillside was brother Jim Wilkinson's treehouse.

"I do miss the camp life," Wilkinson said. "The camp life was half the hunt. Camp life is fun. But ... this family likes to hunt together."

JACK, 42, has bagged his limit of one buck for 18 consecutive years. Connie has taken antelope.

Well before dawn at their home outside this southwestern Pennsylvania home, the kitchen was a commotion of unfinished breakfasts, pink cheeks and blaze orange clothing. The bearded, barrel-chested Wilkinson approached his father-in-law and his son Johnnie nea the mounted head and neck of a 900-pound elk he shot in Montana.

There were quiet wishes of good luck for the pair, who were to hunt on foot, four miles from the rest of the family.

The temperature was around 20 degrees. Propane heaters and chairs already were in the blinds. The area to be overlooked was scouted days earlier.

Wilkinson had a cold, so another important item was the small pillow he brought to muffle his coughing.

At 7:05, Wilkinson picked up a walkie-talkie from a board shelf nailed to the tree trunk. "Testing on channel A," he said.

"One just crossed through the cut and headed into the crab thicket and may come out on the power lines," Connie's voice came back.

A HALF-HOUR later, four cracks were heard from Jim Wilkinson's blind. At 8 o'clock, a "whump" also was heard. Jim got a 10-point buck. His wife, Linda, shot an eight-pointer.

"About five years ago, I sat here for a week before I got my deer," Jack Wilkinson said as the morning wore on. "That's when you really have to psych yourself if you want to kill a deer."

Six doe descended the far hillside and disappeared in the woods below the blind. Later, eight doe crossed the ridge behind it.

Meanwhile, Jason abandoned a sandwich after one bite, left "Bambi Grows Up" lying on the floor and melted the back of his blaze orange vest trying to warm his backside.

"Let me feel your hands," Wilkinson said, taking the two pink mitts in his thick, broad hands and declaring, "Oh, those are nice and warm."

A SEVEN-point buck crossed the power line, and as it moved into a thicket below her blind, Connie Wilkinson fired one shot. The deer took several steps and dropped dead.

Workers may opt out of Social Security system

By GRACE-MARIE ARNETT
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — The flood of eligible workers deciding to bail out of the Social Security system and set up their own pension plans reflects a recent national trend.

In fact, nearly as many workers have said they plan to drop out of Social Security in the last two years as in the previous 20 years combined. Since early 1980, more than 135,000 workers have given the Social Security administration notice they plan to quit the retirement fund. In the previous 20 years, 151,000 dropped out.

The flood has become so alarming to officials here that Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Tex., has introduced legislation designed to stop the outflow. While the measure did not pass Congress this year, Pickle says it has strong bipartisan support and could become law next year.

Only about 17 million members of the nation's work force have the option of dropping out of Social Security. Participation in the government's retirement fund is voluntary only for employees of state, county and city governments and for those employed by nonprofit organizations such as charities and hospitals.

Payment of Social Security taxes is mandatory for almost everyone else. Congress decided to exempt the state and local government workers when it set up the system, heeding advice from lawyers that it could be unconstitutional to mandate federal taxation of state and local governments.

BUT AS THE Social Security fund approaches bankruptcy, Congress is looking for every source of new funds and is considering forcing state and local government workers to participate, even if it means fighting the issue in the courts.

The Social Security administration says there are an estimated 13 million state and local goverment workers in the nation, about 75 percent of whom now participate in Social Security. There are an estimated four million employees of nonprofit organizations, 80 to 90 percent of whom participate in Social Security.

Currently, 115 million Americans pay into Social Security, according to agency records.

Richard Schreitmueller, actuary with the Social Security Administration in Baltimore, says it is too early to tell how the withdrawals will affect revenues for the fund. But he says he hopes the Pickle bill will pass.

"IF SOME CAN opt out of the fund while most others can't, it's unfair," Schreitmueller said. "In my opinion, the law will be changed."

A key Capitol Hill aide echoed the sentiment: "If Social Security is the basic social insurance program for the nation, then everybody ought to be under it."

California is leading the charge away from Social Security. The agency says that since 1980, 101 government entities employing more than 87,000 persons in city and county governments have said they plan to withdraw from the fund. The administration requires that organizations give two years notice before they officially are out.

One Capitol Hill Social Security expert said the Pickle bill may have set off a panic among organizations considering withdrawing, all trying to get on the books before Congress slams the door. But other factors also are providing ample incentive for workers to get out.

First, Social Security taxes are increasing for all workers as a percentage of their pay. And Congress decided in 1977 to continually increase the earnings ceiling on which Social Security taxes are paid, reaching about $27,000 this year.

Fear that the Social Security fund may go bankrupt also is motivating eligible workers to get out and set up their own retirement plan before it is too late.

The benefits schedule of the system itself also provides incentives for workers to participate for a while, then drop out to set up their own pension fund.

THE SOCIAL SECURITY benefits schedule now gives an advantage to someone who contributed for a short time at a relatively high wage over a worker who paid into Social Security all his or her life while working at a low paying job. This formula advantage given to high-wage, short-term contributors is the "windfall" that provides an incentive for workers to get out and set up their own fund.

That way they can collect from both Social Security and their own pension funds after retirement and likely come out ahead.

Haeworth Robertson, formerly chief actuary of the Social Security Administration, says those who decide to get out of Social Security based on those assumptions sometimes find they don't have the whole story.

"It is impossible to duplicate Social Security benefits," he said in an interview. "On the average it might be better to get out and set up your own plan, but there will certainly be some who are worse off than before."

It could be a boon for the highly-paid employee who has contributed to Social Security for several years and reached a benefits peak. But for the new, low-paid worker who has never participated in Social Security, it could be a bust. He or she likely will not be able to carry the private pension benefits to another job the way he can carry his Social Security contribution from job to job. This would lead to a gap in his earnings record for Social Security purposes and possibly a reduction in eventual retirement benefits.

Robertson now is a private consultant advising groups about how to get the best retirement benefits mix from Social Security and private plans. He has just completed a book, "The Coming Revolution in Social Security."

AFTER THE TWO-YEAR notification period expires, those groups who decide for sure they want out of Social Security cannot get back in. Employees who leave such organizations could participate in Social Security again if their new employers are in the system, however.

Many who give notice decide during the waiting period not to follow through, as did New York City employees during the financial crisis of the mid-1970s.

The two million employees of the federal government form the largest single block of workers not participating in Social Security. They have their own pension plan which many believe is superior to Social Security.

If Congress were to decide to make participation mandatory by state and local government workers, it would be very difficult to allow the federal employees to continue their exemption.

There are political problems, however. President Reagan has said he will not propose mandatory participation for federal workers in Social Security and in fact would like to see more private and individual retirement plans created.

If the administration does not support manadatory participation for federal workers, it is unlikey to support legislation making state and local government workers pay into the fund.

Ford consumer study to aid women, elderly

By ENEDELIA OBREGON
Hearst Feature Service

SAN ANTONIO — Sometimes the consumer feels none of the big companies listens to him or really care about the products they produce.

But Dr. Marilyn King, manager of contemporary marketing for Ford Motor Co., is conducting a study targeted specifically for women and the elderly in the hope that those attitudes will soon change.

The information gathered will be used in designing cars to meet the needs of consumers. King feels people over age 55 should be studied now because they make up much of the population.

"There are 45 million Americans over the age of 55," King said. "That's one in five Americans. About 54 percent of them are women. And that age group is growing twice as fast as the rest of the overall population."

About 25 percent of new car purchases — or $35 billion worth — is done by those 55 or older.

Among the problems the older population may face are physical ones. King hopes the company will be able to meet those needs.

"Things like arthritis make it difficult for people to grip small, thin steering wheels or turn knobs," she said. "We are trying to address these problems."

With the information King compiles, she hopes to put out brochures that will help in the selection or financing of new automobiles. There are also plans to have dealers nationwide establish clinics on such problems as maintenance.

What King learns about women's needs will be used to design cars and to change the sales approach toward women. The company also plans on putting out a brochure that will answer women's questions concerning the product, maintenance and financing. They would be written in laymen terms, King noted. She pointed out that about 80 percent of the women control consumer expenditures in the family.

But salesperson's attitudes is one aspect King feels will take a bit longer to change.

Through clinics and seminars, King hopes to re-educate sales personnel — predominately male — to the fact that the "old tried and true" methods of salesmanship will no longer work with women.

"Many times women are not recognized as legitimate buyers," she said. "I've heard of some salesmen who still call them 'honey' or 'sweetheart.' Women dislike that as much as being asked to bring in their father or husband."

Casinos trying new games after prior 'bus wars' fiascos

By PETER MATTIACE
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Atlantic City's casino hotels have a problem their colleagues in Las Vegas don't — how do you lure gamblers when the chill of winter descends on the Boardwalk?

The casinos got burned in a "bus war" for patrons last year, so they are trying new gimmicks this time around — games of chance with cash prizes hourly, sweepstakes offering free cars daily, professional boxing and wrestling, two new gaming tournaments and even appearances by television soap opera stars.

"It's good, old-fashioned American competition," says William P. Weidner, president of the Sands Hotel & Casino. "We have to give a reason for people to come out of their homes in the wintertime, out from in front of the television set, to participate in gaming."

The problem of winter is a big one. Resorts International Hotel Casino, for example, dropped from a peak gambling take of $24.3 million during August 1980 to $10.5 million last December and then peaked again last August with $21.8 million. The other casino hotels showed similar fluctuations, and all say they lose money on their operations during the winter.

Casino executives hope their new emphasis on "fun and excitement" will help lure gamblers to the city's nine gaming halls from December through March without replaying last winter's disastrous battle for bus patrons.

During the "bus wars," three of the four casino hotels then operating offered escalating bounties for people taking day-trips to Atlantic City on special buses.

The bounties brought in thousands of people, especially senior citizens playing the slot machines. But the high cost of war made losers of the casino hotels.

One new casino hotel, the Sands, lost thousands of small-time players because some bus companies switched to another casino for more money, according to industry officials.

At the height of bus wars, an enterprising Philadelphia-area rider could put down $6.90 for a round-trip ticket and pick up $15 in quarters at Caesars Boardwalk Regency or Resorts International Hotel Casino. Some senior citizens and handicapped people rode for half-fare.

And for three cutthroat weeks in January, the same gamblers could drop in at Bally's Park Place for an additional $5.

Some senior citizens reportedly rode the buses twice a day just to collect the quarters.

"The so-called bus wars didn't work," says Weidner, who helped direct Caesars' battle plan last winter. "We were giving people the wrong kind of incentive. We were putting dollars in their hands and there were people riding the buses for a profit. Now we want to make Atlantic City a little more fun during the winter."

Weidner's Sands is leading this winter's fun-and-games policy with the resort's first gaming tournament for serious players of blackjack, roulette, craps and baccarat.

The tournament offers a "world championship" with a $25,000 grand prize, plus gifts for successful gamblers.

Weidner says the tournament will cost about $250,000 to stage. Sands officials predicts the tournament could stimulate up to $6 million in gaming and hotel revenues.

The Sands also has been giving away replicas of 1937 Jaguar automobiles every month and $5,000 cash in Saturday afternoon drawings. It also is publicizing a "Sands Dollars" game in which people match winning serial numbers with dollar bills circulated in Atlantic City, New York and Philadelphia.

Soap opera buffs can get to talk to their favorite television stars at the Sands "Soap Opera Festivals" on Thursdays and Fridays. For $4, fans gossip with television villains and lovers in four shifts.

Resorts International Hotel Casino gives away a color television to bus patrons daily. It also plans a craps tournament in March.

Bally's Park Place and the Playboy Hotel & Casino are offering cash prizes with weekday drawings. Park Place has a "Half Grand an Hour" drawing, and Playboy uses its bunnies to hand out free chances for four spin-the-wheel drawings.

Park Place's game followed the scuttling of an announced plan to give away 22 Toyotas during November weekdays. The car giveaway was canceled shortly after Atlantic City-area dealers complained that Park Place should at least give away American-made cars.

Richard Knight, a Park Place vice president, says a similar car giveaway at the Claridge Hotel & Hi-Ho Casino next door really convinced officials to junk the idea.

"It didn't appear to us that it was worth it, and somebody beat us to the punch," he says. "We didn't want to appear to be duplicating someone else's promotion."

At the Claridge, which gave away 17 Renaults, the casino hotel allows selected patrons to choose unmarked gift boxes in a daily game patterned after television's "Let's Make a Deal." The Claridge calls it, "Knock, Knock, Who's There?"

Gary Saltzgiver, Claridge's director of public relations, says he is planning a "Whirlwind of Money" game for next month. In that game, a lucky player can grab cash in one minute — while a fan blows the bills around the floor.

"That's what we're doing, silly stuff," Saltzgiver concedes. "It's all for the novelty and the excitement."

The state Casino Control Commission recently rejected the Claridge's request to allow progressive slot machine winners to choose a new car or cash when they hit the jackpot. Commissioners said the idea violated state law.

The Tropicana, which opened Nov. 23, is giving away six replicas of 1936 Auburn Speedsters and has held laser light shows, a Boardwalk parade and an art competition as part of its opening festivities.

Several casino hotels, including Caesars Boardwalk Regency and Harrah's Marina, have no special promotional gimmicks.

But all are continuing their bus bounties, although somewhat subdued from last year's frenzied peak.

Did Solidarity go too far and demand too much?

By BERNARD D. KAPLAN
Hearst Feature Service

PARIS — For 16 months the Poles actually seemed to be on their way to becoming the first in Soviet Europe to free themselves from the straitjacket of the communist system.

Just when foreign skeptics began sharing some of their optimism that they might get away with it, the dream exploded.

Why did the brutal crackdown come now and not before or later? Why did the leaders of the free workers' movement, Solidarity, stumble into the trap set for them by raising their political demands to a level which, earlier, they themselves recognized would prove fatal?

These are key questions. There may be no single set of answers. It is not by chance that Poland — alone in Eastern Europe — has had three major political upheavals, each of which unseated the ruling party clique, since the Red Army marched in 37 years ago and prodded the Poles at bayonet point into the Soviet empire.

Popular pressure in 1956 and again in 1970 forced significant shake-ups of the regime. The Hungarians, Czechs and even the East Germans made their attempt at breaking out, but, once crushed, have never tried again.

For the better part of three centuries the Poles have suffered almost as much from their flights of political fantasy as from their neighbors' rapaciousness.

"Tragedy stalks Poland," remarked the 19th century German writer, Theodor Fontane, "as the hunter stalks the deer."

The Polish nobility's insatiable refusal to face reality led to partition in the 18th century by its age-old enemies, the Russians and the Germans. In the next century, Polish patriots feasted on romantic visions of national resurrection and died, outnumbered, on the barricades, mowed down by czarist artillery.

After World War I, a newly independent Poland suffered when its rulers deluded themselves with pipedreams of big power status. They wrecked whatever chance might have existed to defend themselves against Hitler. When, at the start of World War II, Polish cavalrymen attacked the invading German panzers with lances, it formed an epitaph for another era of Polish self-deception.

Modern-day Poles swore it would never happen again. Western visitors in recent years were assured that this generation had learned the lesson taught by millions of Polish dead and the nation laid waste in 1939-1945.

"We have looked at the map," non-communists and communists alike would say. "Geography has placed a limit to our aspirations. We must work as best we can within that limit."

They referred to "raison d'etat," a code phrase for Russia.

At the start, the Solidarity movement launched by the Gdansk strike in August last year was even nicknamed the "self-limiting revolution."

Its leader, Lech Walesa, a religiously devout workingman, seemed to symbolize the resolve to stick to practical economic and social demands, avoiding a direct challenge to the Marxist state, even if tacitly denying many of its premises.

But it never quite worked like that. Solidarity's insistence on economic decentralization and more social "choice" inevitably clashed with entrenched party and bureaucratic interests that gave ground only grudgingly. It also became increasingly difficult to separate the economic and social from the political and ideological. In what category, for example, was Solidarity's demand for an end to censorship?

As the regime retreated — as it did in almost every show of strength with Solidarity until last week — the party apparatus, demoralized and deserted by thousands of its members, fell apart. An attempt to restore its ability to deal with Solidarity on equal terms, by making it as responsive as the latter to popular wishes through genuinely democratic elections to party posts, was tried last summer. It came too late.

The political vacuum created by the party's dissipation proved too great a temptation for Solidarity's more radical members, who were already chaffing under Walesa's pragmatism. The old Polish romanticism rose to the surface again.

In the fortnight before the military crackdown, Solidarity spokesmen were calling for a national referendum on the nation's political future, including its membership in the Warsaw Pact, and asserting that a multi-party system should be introduced.

When Wojciech Jaruzelski, the head of the army, took over all government and party authority last October, it did not require exceptional foresight to grasp that he and his Soviet overseers had decided to employ the army against Solidarity if it crossed the line drawn by Moscow.

Solidarity talked itself into forgetting that. It is a lapse that is costing Poland dearly.

Value added tax: A growing controversy

By DAVID W. DEITCH
Hearst Feature Service

NEW YORK — There's a VAT in your future. And it's going to boil over with heated controversy.

The contemplated revenue-raising measure, old hat in Europe, is called a value-added tax, or VAT. It's a tax that's added to the price of a commodity as it gets passed along in the manufacturing process. Because consumers bear the entire burden, the VAT acts as a national sales tax.

VAT, where it exists, has replaced rather than added to existing taxes. In Michigan, for example, it initially blocked enactment of, and now has replaced, the corporate income tax.

The great appeal of VAT to supply-siders is that it could be used to completely dismantle the federal corporate income tax. And to liberals worried about bankruptcy of the Social Security System, VAT has been offered as a replacement for the payroll tax.

RECENT EVENTS appear to be elevating VAT to a higher level of national discussion. The Reagan administration and its commitment to supply-side economics is fishing for ways to expand corporate profitability, lower interest rates and increase savings. At the same time, Reagan must deal with unacceptably large budget deficits for the remainder of his administration with only limited chance for more spending cuts.

In this connection, Senate Majority leader Howard Baker recently suggested that a 10 percent VAT, in which the government would collect some $150 billion a year, might be a good idea. During the Carter administration, the ex-chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Al Ullman, twice proposed VAT legislation.

More important, perhaps, is the perception that VAT figures into the dominant supply-side ideology of the Reagan administration.

Two years ago, Norman J. Ture, now Treasury undersecretary for tax policy, wrote a spirited defense of VAT for the Heritage Foundation. Ture, one of the leading supply-side theoreticians on tax policy, argued that VAT was in fact a "neutral" tax and should replace the corporate income tax.

Investigators: blast caused by sabotage

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Government investigators said sabotage caused last Saturday's explosion aboard a Nicaraguan jetliner at Mexico City's international airport.

The federal prosecutor's office issued a report Thursday saying a volatile chemical compound similar to TNT caused the blast that ripped through the side of a Boeing 727 belonging to the Nicaraguan airline Aeronica.

The explosion left a gaping hole more than a yard in diameter in the left side of the plane's fuselage. Five people were injured, including the captain.

Thursday's report said the device was wedged between the rearmost seat on the left aisle and the cabin wall, presumably by one of the passengers who flew here from Nicaragua and El Salvador on Saturday.

The plane, with only crew members aboard, was waiting to take on passengers for a return flight when the explosion occurred.

European trade important now

By EDWARD NICHOLS
Copley News Service

On the scale of attention-riveting subjects, the buying and selling of soybeans or steel pipes hardly registers in a period when primary international focus is on the world's growing nuclear menace.

Nevertheless, trade problems between the United States and Western Europe can be as politically divisive as the neutron bomb issue or the potential deployment of medium range missiles.

The recent unprecedented, and almost impromptu, trade summit in Brussels was an effort by the United States to elevate the importance of the trade issue in public dialogue and to stress official concern.

Nobody expected that great decisions would be made at the summit, yet it was attended by four U.S. cabinet-rank officials: Secretary of State Alexander Haig, Special Trade Representative William E. Brock, Secretary of Agriculture John R. Block, and Secretary of Commerce Malcolm Baldridge.

"I don't know that there's been quite so high level a meeting as this before," said David Demarest, director of public affairs for the Office of Trade Representative. "Originally, only Secretaries Haig and Brock were to go ... the meeting hadn't been planned for very long at all ... the situation is not good."

"Our trade relations with Europe are in extremely dangerous times," added a senior State Department officer. "It's very serious. Our differences are very great."

Speaking for Europeans, Michael J. Lake, head of the information section of the European Economic Community, said "rhetoric about trade has become strident in tone; it's unprecedented." And Peter Hall, head of the British information Service in New York and counsellor in Washington, added that U.S. officials now are challenging established trade "working concepts" in stump speeches.

These are the perceptions on both sides of the Atlantic that prompted U.S. and European officials to hold a high level "atmospheric" summit in Brussels.

"We view the problem very seriously," said Demarest.

"The problem" consists of three broad problems. The first is the economic recession in the United States and Europe that has exacerbated long-standing differences and magnified all issues. The second is genuine disagreement between the United States and West Europe collectively over freest possible trade. The third is the conflict amomg the nations of West Europe over the Common Market budget.

Nothing's gotten Carol McCain down yet

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — Christmas for Carol McCain, you might think, should be a time to forget.

No way. There she is as director of the White House Visitors' Office, the official greeter of the public for Ronald and Nancy Reagan.

She is full of ideas, making sure that there is Christmas music and decorations in the hallways to the official mansion for visitors (in the past, there weren't any, she contends) and guaranteeing that the 50 state trees surrounding the giant national Christmas tree are decorated with mementoes of each state, not all the same.

For the thousands who will visit the White House this Christmas season, the 43-year-old McCain is making sure that Christmas is special. She represents, in a sense, Christmas' goodwill to all people. That is what is remarkable about Carol McCain. With all that has happened to her, she never gave up.

It was 8:30 p.m., Christmas Eve, 1969. Carol McCain was in a Philadelphia suburb, driving home alone from a friend's house to her parents' nearby to put her three young children to bed.

It was a difficult time. Her husband, then Navy Lt. Cmdr. John S. McCain, III, was beginning his third year as a prisoner of war in Vietnam.

She was worried. Although all would be known later, there were suspicions that John McCain was severely treated by the Viet Cong.

"Johnny" McCain was from a military family. Both his grandfather and father were famous admirals. While "Johnny" McCain was a POW, his father, Adm. John S. McCain, Jr., was Commander-in-Chief Pacific, directing the American forces in Vietnam. The Viet Cong never let son McCain forget it.

Carol McCain worried about all this and her three young children as she drove delivering presents to her friends that snowy Christmas. She was on a country road and didn't realize she was speeding until her car suddenly skidded on ice and struck a pole.

The car wrapped around a utility pole. Carol McCain was thrown out into a snow bank.

For the next nine months, she was in a hospital. After that, for the next two-anda-half years, she was in and out of hospital beds. She had 23 operations.

She had stood five feet, eight inches tall. Today, she stands five feet, four inches. Her legs almost had to be rebuilt.

Today she can joke about some of it. Hiking up her skirt, she laughs, "Look, my knees don't match." One knee is distinctly higher than the other.

Her husband knew nothing of her accident until he got off the plane in February 1973.

The accident wasn't the worst. What happened later was.

In April, 1980, her husband divorced her and married a 24-year-old woman. Carol has custody of and supports their three children.

"John missed five years of his life (as a POW) and no one could ever replace that," she says, dropping her voice to almost a whisper. "That was the hardest thing I've ever been through. I lost my husband and my best friend."

Yet, in a sense, it was through this loss that she is at the White House today.

English union sets strike vote

LONDON (AP) — Leaders of the 230,000-member National Union of Mineworkers voted 109-3 Friday to reject a 9.3 percent pay hike offer from the National Coal Board. They scheduled a Jan. 14-15 strike vote by the rank and file.

The previous Conservative government — led by Edward Heath — was brought down by a national coalminers' strike in the winter of 1974 which had put the nation on a three-day work week as power supplies dwindled.

Last February, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government capitulated under the threat of a miners' strike and scrapped plans to close 23 of the National Coal Board's 219 pits.

Miners seek a 23.7 percent increase, a minimum weekly salary equivalent to $188, a four-day week and earlier retirement. The coal board offer was for a $165 base weekly salary with increased according to grades that would raise the top miners' pay to $314.

Poll: Thatcher party at low point

LONDON (AP) — Britain's 9-month-old, centrist Social Democratic Party and the small Liberal Party together would pull half the vote in a nationwide election, a Gallup Poll published in Friday's Daily Telegraph concludes.

The poll said Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's ruling Conservatives and the opposition Labor Party have slumped to their lowest ratings since the end of World War II. Elections are not due until May 1984.

Star trek nets many celebrity-filled photos

EDITOR'S NOTE — He's a trolley driver by trade, a photographer by inclination. Gary Watson has made his photography hobby practically an obsession, talking his way into a collection of more than 5,000 pictures taken with celebrities.

By JUDITH CAPAR
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Trolley driver Gary Watson is starstruck, and has 5,200 pictures of himself with celebrities to prove it.

During the day, he's an amiable transit operator, working rush hour routes through the poor and working class neighborhoods of west and southwest Philadelphia.

But when the stars come out, he's the suave man-about-town who will bluff his way into the Academy Awards or arrive at the Studio 54 disco in New York in his 1953 Bentley, hoping to capture a moment with people he has admired since childhood.

Watson, 35, is not just another paparazzi, those free-lance photographers who take pictures of celebrities whether they like it or not. He's really the star of his own photo, slide and taped interview collection.

"Jackie, hey, Jackie," he remembers yelling to Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis one day in New York. "They don't make 'em like you anymore." And she stopped for a picture, flashing Watson a big smile.

It was the gift of a rose that charmed Princess Grace into posing with Watson during one of her frequent visits back to Philadelphia, her home town.

Watson has a style — be polite, ask permission for the photograph, be articulate and act and dress the part — which he says is why he has been able to upstage others of his trade.

Not to mention that he can be as crafty as his nickname, "The Fox."

"I'm the guy who wears a tuxedo. I'm the guy who drives a Rolls-Royce, and I'm the guy who has a dialogue to complement my interests in getting in a lot of places," he says.

He once gained entry to the New York Film Critics Awards by posing as the publisher of a fictitious magazine and was seated at a table next to Peter Ustinov.

He also cultivates a star's chauffeurs and maids, police and security guards, all people he says other photographers avoid.

Watson hasn't sold any of his pictures because he says he doesn't want to cheapen his collection. But he does admit to planning a book about his adventures and has been approached about a movie.

"The gratification of sharing a moment with a Ted Kennedy or a Jackie Kennedy, these moments are precious moments," he says. "Charlton Heston, I held his Oscar. Hey, I've never held an Oscar before and he let me hold it!"

"I have my own source of gold and diamonds," Watson says. "I was able to say that these are the things I'm going to do in life."

And, one of those things was to buy a Rolls-Royce-manufactured Bentley.

"I told my mother when I was 20 years old I was going to buy a Rolls-Royce and I did it when I was 27," he says.

Since he began tracking the famous in 1968 at a Poor Peoples Campaign March, Watson has spent nearly $30,000 for cameras, film, transportation, hotels and fees of up to $100 a day for the friends he takes along to snap the pictures.

It eats up a good portion of the $17,000 he earns as a trolley driver, but he says his wife, a hospital administrative assistant, controls the budget.

Plus, he thinks his book and the potential of a movie will eventually bring in some money. If he can recoup his $30,000 investment, he says he'd be gratified.

Creationism trial made of mysterious, exotic stuff

By BILL SIMMONS
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Methodist son of a biology teacher is deliberating the fate of Arkansas' creation law and perhaps that of the creationist movement.

The nine-day trial of an American Civil Liberties Union lawsuit against the statute ended Thursday. Testimony touched on metaphysics and molecules, the mysterious stuff of the search for man's origin.

The more exotic ideas: UFOs are a satanic manifestation to deceive the world; a rain of cosmic microbes started life on earth.

The most common postulates were the unknown and "In the beginning, God..."

In the end, federal judge William R. Overton reminded everyone that it is solely a constitutional issue. He will deal only with an act of the Arkansas Legislature and the relationship of that act to the nation's cornerstone document, the Constitution.

The tall, lanky Jimmy Carter appointee is 42, a Democrat and a Methodist whose mother taught biology and history during 38 years in Arkansas classrooms. His wife once worked for the Arkansas Senate.

Overton pores over his 300 pages of notes in his office in the quiet of the courthouse's fifth floor. In a few days, he will pen a verdict much-awaited by friend and foe of a religious, scientific and political movement that has coalesced under the banner of creationism.

By dealing with the act, he will deal, in effect, with the movement because the law is the movement's brainchild.

Creationists drew up, circulated, introduced and pushed to passage the Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act. Gov. Frank White, openly religious, signed it.

The creationists say evolution is religious, that schools teach it indoctrinally by teaching only evolution and that this violates creationists' constitutionally guaranteed religious freedom.

The law requires public schools that teach evolution to teach creation without religious materials and only from scientific data. Creationists say this will make the state neutral on religion.

This is the first court test of the legislation that embodies their religious freedom argument. The proposal is circulating in many states.

State witnesses said believing there is a creator or a God is not necessarily religious. People can believe evolution in a religious way, they said. The merit of creation-science should not be discounted just because it has arisen among religious people, they said, because good ideas can come from the darndest places.

Most state witnesses acknowledged belief that Genesis is without historical or scientific error.

Schools must obey the law next September if Overton lets it stand. An ACLU witness said obeying the law could cost Arkansas $1.6 million for teaching materials. Losing the case could cost as much if Overton orders the state to pay the ACLU's fees and expenses, ACLU legal director Bruce Ennis said.

Ennis agrees that religious freedom is the issue — the freedom of non-fundamentalists. Fundamentalists are trying to sneak a literal account of Genesis into school in a science guise, the ACLU argues.

Lover could go broke buying items in '12 Days of Christmas'

By DAVID KAYE
Associated Press Writer

A suitor could go broke these inflationary days trying to buy all the items in the traditional English song "The Twelve Days of Christmas."

If the lover followed the song, he or she would end up with a pear tree surrounded by 40 golden rings, at least 184 animals and scores of performers...plus a bill for $230,409.38.

Here's the breakdown on what "true love" costs:

— The first day: A pear tree goes for about $25 at Oser's Farm Garden Center in West Milford, N.J. Partridges are hard to come by, but the American Pheasant and Waterfowl Society says quail chicks cost about $190 per 100.

— The second day: Parrot World of Paterson, N.J., sells turtle doves for $25 a pair.

— The third day: "What's a French hen?" asks Dominick Silvestri of the Goffle Road Poultry Farm in Wyckoff, N.J. He sells Guinea hens for $2.50 a pound — $12.50 for a five-pound hen.

— The fourth day: Calling birds range in price from $40 for a canary to $2,000 for a "Yellow Nape Amazon" Parrot, according to Parrot World.

— The fifth day: Five gold rings from Cartier's in New York cost $600 each, although they could be purchased at scores of other stores for under $200 each.

— The sixth day: Cowtown Farmer's Market near Woodstown, N.J., charges $111.60 for six geese a laying with no guarantees on egg output.

— The seventh day: The Bergen County Wildlife Center says seven swimming swans sell for about $150 each.

— The eighth day: Eight maids a-milking are difficult to find because 20th century progress in the dairy industry has passed them by. Bill Clark, assistant commissioner of the New Jersey Department of Labor and Industry says livestock laborers are paid a minimum of $3.75 an hour, but workers who operate milking machines get 37 cents an hour more ... room and board extra. Our lover paid the milking maids $65.76. He only had them work two hours to compensate for the extra he spent on the rings.

— The ninth and 10th days are subject to union regulations: Charles Galbreath of the Agents for the Arts talent agency in New York City says the nine dancing ladies and 10 leaping lords get Actors Equity minimum. The fee works out to $9,450 for the dancing ladies on the ninth day and $19,950 for the dancing ladies and leaping lords on the 10th day. Both fees include a $525 per-person, per-week bond with a minimum of a two-week bond. The total does not include a 10 percent agent's fee.

— The 11th day: The American Federation of Musicians, Local 802 says each of 11 pipers gets $117.42 for a three-hour minimum plus two-hour mandatory rehearsal time. The fee includes 4 percent for his pension and $2.50 for the union welfare fund. The leader gets double pay for a total of $1,409.04 per performance.

— The 12th day: 12 drummers drumming come under the same musicians union scale for a total of $1,539.46.

Excluding room and board, transportation costs, taxes, delivery, gift wrapping and wardrobe assistants, the total comes to $230,409.38. The bill gets that high because, according to the song, the purchases are repeated.

By the end of the song, the lover's home will be filled on the 12th day with 12 pear trees, 12 partridges, 22 special-order doves, 30 Guinea hens, 36 parrots, 40 gold rings from Cartier's, 42 laying geese; 42 swans, 40 experienced female farmhands, and 100 performers.

To update the song, a 13th day might be added: the average rate to file for bankruptcy is $500 plus a $60 filing fee — a bargain compared to the first dozen days.

Photographers put strain on Charles and Diana's lives

By MICHAEL WEST
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — Prince Charles and Princess Diana, unaware of the hidden photographer, hugged and kissed on the lawn outside Highgrove, their country home in Gloucestershire, and there was the picture on the front pages of The Sun and The Daily Star.

Princess Diana, expecting a baby next June, got a craving for fruit gum candies. Unaware of the hidden photographer, she drove down to the local village shop and bought some, and there was the picture in The Daily Mirror.

It is long-lens snooping like this that led Queen Elizabeth II recently to summon British newspaper editors and heads of television and radio news and Press Association, the British domestic news agency, to Buckingham Palace to request a halt.

The queen's press secretary, Michael Shea, told the news chiefs that intrusive photographic coverage of the private life of the 20-year-old princess and the constant presence of photographers made her feel she "could not go out of her front door without being photographed."

"We expected that following the honeymoon, press attention would wane somewhat, but it has in no way abated," Shea added. "The Princess of Wales feels totally beleaguered.

"She has coped extremely well, she has come through with flying colors. But now the people who love her and care for her are anxious at the reaction it is having."

Shea said there were no worries about Diana's health but that she was showing "great strain" because of the constant presence of photographers recording her private life.

Before her marriage to Charles last July 29, the earl's daughter was a kindergarten teacher and just another face in the London crowd. Her only previous experience of press attention was when news leaked she was dating Charles. For a few mad weeks photographers camped outside her apartment and dogged her every step, causing her on one occasion to burst into tears and flee.

Shea particularly asked that her right to privacy should be respected at Highgrove and at Sandringham, the queen's estate in Norfolk where she and Charles will spend Christmas.

Afterwards the news chiefs met the queen.

The fiercest pursuers of the royals are London's five national circulation tabloids, currently locked in a ferocious battle for circulation that could see one or more disappear.

Off-guard pictures of royalty sell papers but some newspapers promised to comply.

The Daily Mirror said it was "a fair request at this time" and that it would respect it.

The Daily Express promised not to intrude on the princess's private life.

The Daily Mail said it would respect her desire for privacy.

But the Sun and The Daily Star said nothing and The Times of London noted that Kelvin MacKenzie, editor of The Sun, was significantly the only London newspaper editor not to attend the Buckingham Palace meeting.

Everett may go through another paternity trial

Everett

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Superior Court judge is considering a request for a fourth trial to determine if an 8-year-old boy should be declared the son of actor Chad Everett.

Three decisions so far have been in favor of the actor, whom the boy's mother, Sheila Scott, claims is the father.

The retrial request was presented in a two-hour hearing Friday. Judge Raymond Cardenas said he would take it under advisement along with a motion by Everett's attorneys asking that the boy's birth certificate be altered so that Everett is not listed as the father.

Cardenas also gave both sides until Dec. 20 to submit briefs on yet another motion by Everett's attorneys — to hold the boy, as an unsuccessful plaintiff, responsible for all defense costs except for attorney fees, a sum Ms. Scott said amounted to $35,000.

On Nov. 3, a jury upheld the 45-year-old star's claim that he did not father Ms. Scott's son, Dale Andre Everett, after meeting Ms. Scott on the set of his since-canceled TV series, "Medical Center."

Everett testified he never had sex with Ms. Scott the day she claimed her son was conceived.

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — The Rolling Stones were winding up their 1981 North American tour Saturday night with a sold-out concert here.

The veteran rock'n'rollers, led by Mick Jagger, have performed before more than 1 million people on the tour, which began Sept. 25 in Philadelphia.

Both Hampton Coliseum shows here, on Friday and Saturday, sold out in less than 2½ hours.

Thorpe

LONDON (AP) — Former Liberal Party leader Jeremy Thorpe, acquitted 2½ years ago of plotting to murder a former male model, plans a political comeback, according to British press reports Saturday.

Thorpe, 52, is being considered as a possible candidate for Parliament by the Liberal chapter in the southwest England city of Taunton, local leader Ann Wynn-Wilson said.

"His name came up along with other candidates who failed to win seats at the last election," the tabloid Sun quoted her as saying.

Thorpe was found innocent in June 1979 of conspiring to murder Norman Scott, a former male model who said he had a homosexual relationship with the party chief. The scandal cost Thorpe his party leadership, which he quit in 1976, and his seat in the House of Commons in the May 1979 general election.

AALBORG, Denmark (AP) — Retired soprano Beverly Sills, director of the New York City Opera, will be featured speaker at next year's Danish-American July 4 Festival, it was announced Saturday.

The festival is considered the largest U.S. Independence Day observance outside the United States.

It is sponsored each year by the Rebild Society at the Rebild National Park, a hilly tract south of Aalborg on Jutland, the peninsula of Denmark.

The park was purchased in the early 1900s by Danes in the United States, who gave it to Denmark on condition that it would be used for a Danish-American festival every July 4.

Prince Andrew

LONDON (AP) — Prince Andrew, wearing a brief Roman tunic and sandals, danced and clowned until the wee hours at a Royal Navy base Christmas party, the Daily Mirror reported Saturday.

The 21-year-old brother of Prince Charles is a helicopter pilot attached to the base at Culdrose in Cornwall, where the tabloid said the party was held Thursday night.

The paper said Andrew "moved freely" among other pilots and officers, some dressed up as Muppets.

"It was hilarious," the Mirror quoted one guest as saying. "There were some very bleary eyes at the breakfast table."

'Ghost Story's' fright level is non-existent

By CAROL OLTEN
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — There's a great spook of a movie hiding in "Ghost Story": Four young dandies became infatuated with a beautiful woman named Eve 50 years ago. They killed her in a drunken accident, or at least they thought they killed her. Now these 50 years later, as they gather around the fireplace telling tall tales, she returns to haunt them.

ENTERTAINMENT

This plot could bring out goose bumps in a jacuzzi, but "Ghost Story" is generally so poorly executed, its fright level comes close to zero. Furthermore, any movie that has Fred Astaire doing hardly anything but lying in bed breaking out in cold sweats over nightmares has problems.

Astaire is one of the members of the Chowder Society, the foursome that gathers on snowy Vermont nights to drink brandy and tell stories. Others in the group are Melvyn Douglas, John Houseman and Douglas Fairbanks Jr. The cast is agreeable, but the screenplay by Lawrence Cohen, from Peter Straub's best seller, and the direction by John Irvin make this movie nearly the pits.

Instead of following the good narrative cinema line inherent in the plot, the film rambles in dozens of directions — turning up dead bodies in hotel rooms, an erotic love affair in Florida and a looney ex-convict inhabiting a deserted haunted house.

The ex-con has so little to do with the story that you get the feeling the character is in the movie because Lance Holcomb, who plays him, does a reasonable Jack Nicholson imitation.

"Ghost Story's" good moments are those that take advantage of the gray New England winter and the snow-covered village where the action takes place. They are eerie, ultimately scary in context, and had they been employed for background more often in the film and less haphazardly photographed, they might have prevented the disaster that arrived on the screen.

Alice Krige has alluring presence as the beautiful, smug, red-haired ghost whose flesh is cold to the touch and whose porcelain doll-like face sometimes changes into a bloody, jagged-tooth skull. Patricia Neal and Jacqueline Brookes also have small roles in the movie, but their acting suffers from poor direction, as does that of the principals.

Rhythm 'n' blues changed McClinton's life

By KATHY BAKER
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) — It was almost three decades ago when a young white kid passed by a ramshackle barbeque joint on Fort Worth's west side and heard a sound that would dictate the course of his life — Delbert McClinton had heard the blues.

Now, at age 40, he's been singing professionally for 25 years. And he's spent half of those years listening to critics rave that Delbert McClinton is just about to "make it big."

The dream has eluded him, though commercial success of his 1979 album "The Jealous Kind" has brought it a little closer.

"Yeah, I been standing on the brink for a long time," he said before a recent set at Nick's, a rock'n'roll joint in Dallas. "But what is 'makin' it big' anymore?

"I figure I've already had pretty good success as far as I personally feel. I've had acknowledgements from my peers. I've got everything but the money."

The money, he said, is now both the end and the means for what he's doing.

"You know any way to do it without money?" he asked. "Sure, I need the money. But I'm fortunate that I've got something to do to make money that I enjoy doing. So long as I can make a living at it, I guess I'm winning."

McClinton is always at a loss to describe the emotion that hooked him when he first heard the blues sound as a young boy. But he insists it wasn't that unusual for a white Fort Worth kid to become obsessed with rhythm'n'blues.

"I just liked it, I don't know why," he said. "Texas is more than country music. Texas has a big blues market and always has. It got lost for a while, but I think it's come back and is real big right now."

By age 15, McClinton had formed his own blues band and was playing the tough joints on the fringes of Fort Worth where white singers rarely, if ever, ventured. And McClinton's single "Wake Up Baby" was the first song by a white artist ever played on KNOK, the local black music station.

During those early years, McClinton met and played with other musicians who went on to attain the fame that has he still seeks.

A member of one of his early bands was another Fort Worth kid named John Deutschendorf. He's better known now as John Denver.

And when McClinton toured England as harmonica player for another band back in 1960, he ended up teaching blues harp techniques to a young Englishman named John Lennon, whose then-unknown combo the "Beatles" was the warm-up act for McClinton's group.

By 1971, McClinton had followed the wave of young musicians to that mecca of commercial success, Los Angeles.

The experience wasn't what he hoped. But it did leave him with his first true taste of the feeling that originally spawned the blues, and like hundreds before him, he set the feeling down to music:

"I'm sixteen hundred miles from the people I know.

"Opportunity knockin', but I can't seem to open the door.

"Thought I'd be a big star by today, but I'm sweepin' out a warehouse in West L.A.

"But it's all right, 'cause it's midnight and I got two more bottles of wine."

He returned to Fort Worth with a broken marriage and a faltering career, but still he kept on. His working-class parents didn't exactly discourage him, but they weren't quite sure what to do with Delbert, whose two brothers had become doctors.

"There were times they didn't understand the drive and they just thought I was wasting," he said. They wanted him to take up a normal career, do "anything that everybody else did. But they're real happy for me now. They realized it was something I really wanted, something I'd gone after. Now it's happening."

But not before McClinton went through "about 50" record labels.

"I've had some odd circumstances happen with record companies," he said, "like going out of business or not knowing I'm on the label."

But with the success of his 1979 album, "The Jealous Kind," and a new record, "Plain from the Heart," he's now entrenched with Capital Records, a bastion of stability in an otherwise tenuous business.

McClinton packed up last year and moved back to L.A. with his second wife and their 7-year-old son.

But this time he's living in a house in Malibu, instead of a hovel in Venice.

He said he needs to be in California, because that's where the hub of the business as well as his collegues are. But McClinton is a Texas boy.

"Texas has always been good to me," he said, " 'cause this is where I did it at. It's good to go to Fort Worth, Dallas, Austin and see the people that have been coming out for years."

And the Texas philosopher surfaced when he's asked if he isn't bitter about the years of one-night stands, the years of scraping by while others with less talent hit the big-time.

"It's just the way it is," he said. "It's just the way it happened. If it wasn't that way, it'd just be some other way."

Movie about pope only vaguely refers to him

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One thing you should know about NBC's Sunday night movie, "From A Far Country: Pope John Paul II," is that it's not about the pope.

Actors do portray Karol Wojtyla's early life in Poland and historic footage of Wojtyla as a cardinal and pope are interjected at odd times, but "From A Far Country," which NBC calls "a compelling dramatization of the life of Karol Wojtyla," is a far cry from the movie the network thought it purchased.

What NBC got, instead, is as confusing and disjointed a movie as you'll ever see on television. So baffling, in fact, that NBC had the option to show "From A Far Country" in its longer form, the way it's being released in theaters outside the United States. But NBC decided the movie made a little more sense chopped to 2½ hours (with commercials).

Supposedly, this is a case of addition by subtraction, although it still doesn't add up.

How could NBC have been stuck with such a lemon?

The answer is pre-buying, the practice of gambling on a theatrical film before it's made. CBS, for example, tossed the dice and won on the movie "10" after buying Blake Edwards' story idea and the projected cast.

NBC took a risk on "From A Far Country" based on a skeletal screenplay, which the network thought would be timely and moving, and a well-respected production team. Vincenzo Labella, who is producing NBC's "Marco Polo" miniseries, and Giacomo Pezzali previously collaborated on "Jesus of Nazareth."

NBC is very disappointed in the final product, but didn't consider keeping it in the can, contending that a pre-Christmas showing and today's Polish situation make it presentable.

"From A Far Country" isn't a traditional biography tracing a personality's life. The best that can be said is that it attempts to explore the social, political and religious conflicts in Poland during World War II and under communist rule, with vague references to Wojtyla's personal battles and achievements.

The struggles of Poland on film could have created a historic context for its current unrest. At one point, a Polish priest responds to the German invasion by saying: "Hope and prophecy are our history."

But the film doesn't work on this level. The sub-plots of resistance to oppression are incredibly fuzzy. It seems the movie tried to be both a documentary and a drama, but ended up being neither.

And as a biography, it certainly isn't. In the movie's opening, Wojtyla, as a young boy, watches an Easter re-creation of the crucifixion. It's a tedious scene, but in the end Wojtyla spots the man playing Jesus in a local bar. "Why is Jesus drinking beer?" Karol asks his father.

Then the movie shows Wojtyla as a dedicated student and thespian, but it is unclear which actor is portraying him. By process of elimination, you could dismiss the women characters and then the blond man because someone charitably said: "Oh, it's you," and later called him Tadek.

After finally discovering midway through the film which character is Wojtyla, he disappears. Other characters talk about him, but he only resurfaces in historical footage. The movie then gets involved in an obscure father-son conflict. It's all very bizarre, to say the least.

"From A Far Country" is filmed in Europe with a cast of mostly British actors. NBC said it was the first dramatic movie filmed inside the Sistine Chapel and St. Peter's Basilica.

As a counterpoint to this critique, another viewpoint is offered: NBC said Pope John Paul II liked it.

Scrooge (Don Liscum) pours a cup of cheer for Glen W. Barb of Mobil Oil Corporation, while, from left, Edward Cratchit (Greg Rich), Janice Thomas, Tiny Tim Cratchit (Rocky Mutter) and Bob Cratchit (Bill Hossley) look on. Barb was in town to present Midland Community Theatre with its annual check for the production of Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol." Mobil Oil Corporation underwrites this traditional Christmas presentation yearly for the theater. Ms. Thomas is a member of the theater's board of directors.

Local performances are gifts of love

The time between Thanksgiving and Christmas is perhaps the busiest of the year. It is a season filled with family, friends, parties, special events, gift giving and receiving.

For some, the pressure of buying to which people allow themselves to fall victim, combined with the overflowing happiness expressed by others, cause them to grinch up their noses and say, "Bah, Humbug."

The original grinch and coiner of the "Bah, humbug" expression is onstage at Midland Community Theatre today for two final performances at 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. That's right, Scrooge walks the stage in Theatre I, complete with all the delightful characters in Charles Dickens' "A Christmas Carol."

Don Liscum plays the infamous skinflint Scrooge. Other cast members are Verna Conn, Bill Hossley, Carol Walker, David M. Clough, Greg Rich, Stephanie Stephens, Michelle Wilson, Elizabeth Smith, Lynn Granberry, Dare Rosebery, Joe White, Scott McKitrick, Jim Walker, Michelle De France, Jim Beverley, Ann Perkins, Jerry Green, Rocky Mutter, Cindy Walker, Wendy Walker, Susan Machina, Tammy Mutter, Missi Liscum, Tina Liscum and the Pickwick Players as the carolers.

The production is directed by Elizabeth and Michael Spicer.

Most of us know what happens to Scrooge and of what he learns about life by viewing his past, present and future. Anyone who has read or seen this classic also is aware of what Scrooge learns of love.

After all, Christmas means love. Perhaps no other work more poignantly expresses God's love than "The Messiah" by G.F. Handel.

On Dec. 16, the Chancel Choir of First Presbyterian Church and members of the Midland-Odessa Symphony Orchestra presented this work during the church's morning worship service. The presentation, directed by Tom Roberts, the church's music director, was well done. It certainly provided those who went with a moving and enjoyable experience.

Soloists for the occasion were William McGavran, Lewis Kluck, Daniel Wright, Midge Anderson, Daphane Pemberton, Carolyn Winkler, Gloria McGavran, Janice Archer, Sally Green and Phyllis Cowden.

The Chancel Choir and the symphony members were excellent.

Both of these presentations — "A Christmas Carol" and "The Messiah" — were gifts of love. Those associated with them gave of their time and skill so that others could be enriched with the spirit of Christmas.

Another holiday treasure presented last week, actually a first for the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale, was the organization's "Cabaret Christmas Pops" held Tuesday in Midland Center.

The symphony, directed by Dr. Thomas Hohstadt, and the chorale, directed by Dr. Stanley Engebretson, performed as one, giving the audience an evening of Christmas cheer in a relaxed and informal atmosphere. The music included traditional, popular and classical selections. It was a most delightful evening.

At a time when civic organizations and area churches are holding special concerts and services, it would be impossible to catch all of them. But it is possible to thank these people for sharing their time and their talents with others at Christmastime.

And in the words of the crippled Tiny Tim ("A Christmas Carol"), "God bless us everyone."

Merry Christmas.

Cher wins $750,000 judgment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Singer Cher has won a $750,000 judgment in a suit against a freelance writer and two publications she accused of using an interview without her permission.

The award was granted late Thursday by U.S. District Judge Manuel Real. Cher sued Forum International Ltd., Rupert Murdoch's News Group Inc., publisher of the Star tabloid, and writer Fred Robbins, whom she accused of breach of contract.

Cher testified that she did not question the accuracy of Robbins' articles about her for Forum magazine and the Star. But she "objected to the kind of questions he asked me" and the "very gossipy" tone of the stories, "a rehash of my marriages to Sonny (Bono) and Gregg Allman."

Cher said she was "totally satisfied by the decision" Thursday. She had charged that the publications misappropriated her right to control her publicity, and misappropriated her name for financial gain.

The civil suit, in a non-jury trial, began Tuesday. It centered on an April 1980 interview Robbins had with Cher.

The interview was to have been used in US magazine and was to deal with her new band Black Rose, her lawyer John Forbes said.

O'Toole thinks Hollywood is stupid, ridiculous

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Stupid, ridiculous and ultimately self-defeating." That's Peter O'Toole's analysis of working conditions after his first real experience in the Hollywood studios.

The British actor has been performing in films since "Kidnapped" in 1959, and mostly for American producers — "Lawrence of Arabia," "Beckett," "Lord Jim," "What's New, Pussycat?" "The Lion in Winter," "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," etc. Curiously, he has never undergone the Hollywood studio experience until now.

"Well, I did make some added scenes for 'Masada' at Universal," he cited, "and although 'Stunt Man' was shot mostly on location, we did a few pickup shots here."

O'Toole was spending a few moments of relaxation in his motor home-dressing room on his next-to-last day in "My Favorite Year" at MGM. His complaint was directed not at the movie, which he has greatly enjoyed, but at studio thinking that decrees a full workday. He arrives for work in the early morning and leaves well after dark.

"It makes no sense," he declared, pushing a cigarette into his holder. "Working in films is hard enough for actors — doing one-or two-minute scenes every couple of hours. To try to maintain your energy for a 12-hour period is absolutely impossible. You can't even keep your makeup in suitable condition 12 hours at a time."

Aside from the hours, O'Toole is delighted with "My Favorite Year." Understandably so, since he has a bravura role that any actor would envy. He plays Alan Swann, a larger-than-life film star who swashes buckles and swigs bottles with equal abandon. Sound like Errol Flynn? The resemblance is more than coincidental.

The year is 1954, and Swann is booked on television's "Comedy Cavalcade," starring Stan (King) Kaiser (Joe Bologna). Swann, despite his on-screen bravery, is terrified by the prospect of live TV and goes on a bender. Assigned to chaperone him is Benjy Stone (newcomer Mark Linn-Baker), an apprentice comedy writer on the show. Swann attempts some of his movie stunts in real-life, including a Tarzan-like swing from a skyscraper on a fire hose.

"I've never worked so hard nor had so much enjoyment," O'Toole admitted. "The most fun was a real Basil Rathbone-style fencing match, which is a sequence from one of Swann's movies. Now that was fun!"

O'Toole sometimes gives the impression of being on the brink of collapse. That is deceptive, he remarked, explaining:

"I'm weedy. My father was the same way: weedy. I was actually quite an ahtlete in my younger days. Played a lot of rugby, and I have something to show for it. This was the result of the boot of a player of the Swedish firemen's team." He opened his mouth to expose a scarred tongue, teeth that were not his own, plus a permanent dimple in his cheek.

One of the reasons O'Toole was able to withstand the rigors of "My Favorite Year" is that he, unlike Swann, does not drink.

"I quit when I was 40 years old," said the actor, at one time a legendary boozer, but that was 10 years ago."

Benjamin is new boy on the block

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — New director in town: Richard Benjamin.

Following the course of Robert Redford, Burt Reynolds, Sidney Poitier, Clint Eastwood and others, Benjamin has made the switch to the other side of the camera. His first film as director is MGM's "My Favorite Year," with Peter O'Toole, Jessica Harper, Mark Linn-Baker, Bill Macy, Cameron Mitchell, Joe Bologna and Lanie Kazan.

The appraisal of O'Toole: "Dick is a terrific director."

Characteristically, Benjamin is more modest. "I hope it works," he says of the $7.7-million investment under his command. And command is the right word. Although as a director he never raises his voice, there can be no doubt that he is in charge of the movie set.

I visited "My Favorite Year" during its closing days on the MGM lot. Benjamin was preparing a scene in which O'Toole, as a swashbuckling movie star, goes to dinner at the home of Linn-Baker, a fledgling comedy writer assigned to chaperone him until he can appear on a 1954 TV show. Sitting around the dinner table in the Brooklyn apartment are the young man's Jewish mother, her husband, a Filipino boxer, an uncle and an aunt, she in her wedding gown in honor of the star's presence. It's that kind of movie.

Waiting for technicians to prepare the set, Benjamin, still preppie-looking at 42, explained his road to directorship.

"I did some directing at Northwestern (University)," he related. "After I had been in the road company of 'Barefoot in the Park,' I was asked to direct the play in London, because Mike Nichols wasn't able to go there. It was a very rewarding experience. Then I did a pilot film for a series based on 'Where's Poppa?' The series didn't sell maybe because it was too crazy for TV. But I was proud of what I did, and I wanted to do more.

"When I started out in films, my agent was Phil Gersh, who kept telling me I should direct. I moved to other agents, then back to Phil, who again said I should direct. This time I was ready."

The opportunity came with "My Favorite Year," which had been put together by producer Michael Gruskoff with Mel Brooks' company, Brooksfilms. MGM officials were impressed with Benjamin's work on "Where's Poppa?" but there was some resistance to hiring an actor who had never directed a feature.

"Why do you want Benjamin?" asked David Begelman, then production chief of MGM.

"Because he's the sanest person I know," replied Mel Brooks.

Benjamin has discovered what most first-timers have found out: directing a movie is hard on the feet. "See these?" he said, pointing to his custom, cushioned shoes.

Real Estate Today

By Don Harvey Realtor

SILVER MAY CRASH-NOT REAL ESTATE

Remember when the price of silver sky-rocketed from $6 an ounce up to $50 an ounce? In a matter of a few weeks if came crashing down to $10 an ounce. The precipitous decline underscores the key difference of real estate from other investments.

Unlike the stock, commodities and bond markets-all of which are highly sensitive to short-term investment whims-the value of your home is not! Housing values level off in a recession; they don't come plummeting down like the stock market. In the 1975-75 recession, the deepes6 since World War II, real estate values flattened out in most parts of the U.S.

Homeowners, unlike stock investors, don't "cut their losses" (sell off at give-away prices); when times get tough or money is short. They simple don't sell! They wait for the economy to recover.

The periodic flattening out of housing prices-rather than declines-perplexes Wall Street analysts. What they miss is the uniqueness of the residential real estate market. A correction in real estate is no crash. It is a levelin off in prices followed by a continuation of growth. This is borne out by historic statistics as far back as housing statistics have been kept.

Colors of Christmas

In the twinkling of an eye — or perhaps a twitch of Santa's nose — it will be Christmas. There's already an abundance of evidence of the special season and the happy holiday spirit on doors, windows and lawns throughout the Tall City.

From traditional decorations — trees aglow with tiny white lights; wreaths, alone or in pairs; or a roof-top Santa — to window and porch displays containing elfin figurines or even whimsical western hats and boots, everyone has something to say about the season.

What's Midland's Christmas message? "Peace on earth, good will to men." "Enjoy!"

AT WIT'S END

Children frustrated her

By ERMA BOMBECK

I was unpacking the Christmas decorations this week when I came across a pie tin with a picture of the Blessed Virgin pasted inside dangling from a soiled ribbon.

The ornament is pitiful. It is usually the first decoration put on the tree every year by my older son, who knocks you into the fireplace, steps on your knees and physically races you to the tree to get it on first. He made it in the third grade.

This is the first Christmas he will not spend with us in 26 years. I always knew how I got three children, but I never knew why. (I used to tell people it was a 4-H project that got out of hand.)

I was frustrated by children. They didn't come with any instructions. You had to fumble around and try to get them assembled and working the best way you could. And what worked for one never worked with the other one. They were all different.

I was confused by my job. Was I supposed to serve as a buffer between them and the sidewalk? Them and disappointment? Them and failure? How close was I supposed to get? How far did I dare fall behind?

I was ultimately angered by the whole process. They were telling me that as soon as I got their teeth straightened, their hernias repaired, their bodies packed with vitamins, taught 'em to parallel park, wipe their feet, put down lids, flush, feed themselves and make their own beds, I should back off?

For the last ten years I've been "doing all the right things." I've given them room to breathe, I've smiled in all the right places. I've swallowed advice that lodged in my throat like a lump. I've resisted spreading guilt, of which I have an abundance.

When my son set off with a backpack several months ago to see the world and said, "Don't worry," I shrugged and said, "Who, me? Don't be ridiculous. Worry makes you retain water."

As a 1980s mother who believes her children should develop independence and live their own lives in their own way, I have but two questions:

If we're all doing the right thing why do I feel so rotten?

Why do I fall apart every time I see that little pie tin with a picture of the Blessed Virgin pasted inside dangling from a soiled ribbon?

Electronic 'deputy'

WALTHAM, Mass (AP) — An "informer" with total recall is helping New Hampshire State police crack down on crime.

The new source of information is a Honeywell small computer system that collects information on known and suspected criminals which state law enforcement officers use to apprehend car thieves, burglars, murderers and fugitives should they enter New Hampshire. The computer is part of a network that communicates with computers located in other states plus national "crime watch" data centers.

"The use of computers not only makes crime-related information available for the first time to thousands of state police and other law-enforcement officials nationwide, but it also means that our officers are able to make faster, more informed decisions when faced with a possible criminal situation," says Col. Harold E. Knowlton, director of the New Hampshire State Police.

Whip up a nightshirt

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

Nightshirts are definitely one of my favorite things. They are comfortable, easy to make, very easy to care for and you can make one for so little!

If you do not have a nightshirt pattern and can't find one, do not worry. You can use a T-shirt pattern.

That's right. Select a T-shirt pattern that has a simple round neckline and either cap or set-in sleeves (cap sleeves are easier).

Buy one yard of T-shirt knit (at least 60 inches wide). Pin your pattern to your fabric, with the top edges near one cut end.

Cut out pattern, cutting beyond the end of the pattern to the full length of the fabric. If desired, round off at each of the side seams.

Using one-fourth-inch seams, stitch garment together at shoulders and side seams; set in sleeves. Turn all raw edges under three-eighths of an inch and topstitch.

And you have a terrific nightshirt.

For a touch of whimsy, stitch on a perky applique.

Last year's garment can be made into this year's party special by adding glittery trims (this season it is definitely silver and gold). If you attach these trims with neat hand stitches, they can be removed after the party is over to return your garment to its former life.

Soutache braid makes fantastic "initial" braid. You can create your own monogramming by shaping soutache braid into initials. Then stitch them to your garment either by hand or machine (by machine requires a bit more concentration, but is more secure). Personalize robes, sweat-suits and T-shirts with your own monogram.

Midlander goes to India for Girl Scout program

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

Girl Scouts do more than study nature and sell cookies. One Midland Girl Scout recently returned from a trip to India, sponsored by the Girl Scouts through their International Opportunities program.

Rebecca Miller, 4604 Andrews Hwy., was in India from October 27—November 25, were she worked with handicapped children in Poona, India at Sangam, the Girl Scout World Association House. She said Girl Scouts from several countries, including Canada, the United States, India, Australia, New Zealand, Sri Lanka, Bangladesh, Japan, Holland and Norway met in India at a "big conference where we all traded ideas about what our countries did with the handicapped."

The Girl Scouts had a two-day conference, working with children from a school for the blind on the first day and children from a school for the deaf on the second.

Miss Miller said the Scouts also went to a school for the severely mentally retarded where the people who operate the school "try to make the older children feel like they have a place in society (by paying) them for making (things like) plastic bags and candles."

"Most people don't know about the opportunities for older girls in scouting," Miss Miller said. The only requirements for taking advantage of these international opportunities is that the applicant must be 16-18 years of age and a Girl Scout.

Miss Miller said any Girl Scouts who are interested should "apply to the National Council...Our council (in Midland) can send two applicants." She said the final decisions as to who is going overseas and where they are going is made in the National Headquarters for Girl Scouts of the United States of America in New York City.

"The Juliet Lowe World Friendship Fund pays every expense except $400 of the (cost of the) international flight...our council gave me $300," said Miss Miller.

"I had always wanted to go to India,"she said,"...this session was about the handicapped...and I had worked in a camp for handicapped kids (in Kansas City, Mo., sponsored by the Girl Scouts) for six weeks...about two summers ago."

Miss Miller, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David I. Miller, plans to go into speech and hearing therapy. She is a 1981 graduate of Lee High School and has been a Girl Scout for 12 years.

HINTS FROM HELOISE

Freezing helps when shelling pecans

DEAR HELOISE:

With the holidays almost here, I'm faced with a bagful of unshelled pecans which I hope will end up in Christmas cookies. The problem is shelling them.

Is there any method to make shelling pecans easier, thereby ending up with a whole pecan rather than bits and pieces which have to be laboriously picked out of the shell? — J. Boerner

■■■

Put them in the freezer and leave them for a couple of days before shelling — longer if time permits. Not only will they be easier to crack, but you'll have fewer broken pieces to bother with.

Now, if you can just avoid eating every other one of those lucious pecan pieces as you take them out of the shell (that's always one of the hardest parts of shelling pecans) you should have enough for Christmas cookies. Hugs for writing! — Heloise

MOVING TIP

Dear Heloise: A gentleman from a moving company gave me the following tip:

"When you have to seal up your refrigerator or freezer for a period of time when moving, tie about one-third cup of fresh coffee grounds — not the instant kind — in a small square of cloth or old pantyhose and put a few of these packets inside. They will prevent unpleasant odors in the appliances."

I have thanked him for that hint many times, especially after my furniture was held up in shipping for over a month during our last move. There was no musty, moldy smell inside the refrigerator or freezer when they finally did arrive.

Of course, one should always clean these appliances before shipping. — M.N.

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: When you have no problems left to experiment with in Texas, I will gladly volunteer my Hoosier home.

You can clean my windows with vinegar solutions, erase carpet stains, and all those other wonderful things you do. I have plenty here to keep your whole staff busy trying out new things.

Just bring lots and lots of your famous nylon net! — La Sonda Sue Sipe

■■■

Wouldn't that be fun! We could invite all the neighbors in and have a good old coffee klatch besides! — Hugs, Heloise

FRENCH TOAST TIP

Dear Heloise: My teenagers love French toast for breakfast but making it each day is too time-consuming.

My solution is to cook up a couple of loaves of bread into French toast in my free time, partially freeze on a cookie sheet, then stack the slices in the original bread wrapper and return the toast to the freezer.

My children can easily remove just what they need, pop the slices in the toaster and have homemade French toast every day. — Phyllis Mason

DEODORANT DRYER

Dear Heloise: I prefer a roll-on deodorant but it can be a problem when I'm in a hurry because it does take time to dry.

My solution? I simply set it for cool, then aim my faithful blow dryer at my underarms for a couple of seconds.

I can immediately dress and be on my way in minutes without having the deodorant smudge all over my clothing. — Karen

BAG THOSE BILLS

Dear Heloise: I bought three inexpensive shoebags and labeled the pockets for various household papers, such as bills to pay, receipts, etc.

This gives me a place to put everything, and it surely does help out at income tax time.

I have my shoebags hanging in a big walk-in closet, but any place on a spare wall would do. A friend of mine has hers in her utility room. — Violet

Got a great storage idea? Send it to Heloise, P.O. Box 32000, San Antonio, Tx. 78216. She can't answer your letter personally but she'll share the best tips received in her column.

Beware of ads for energy-saving

By DON CARTER
Hearst Feature Service

SEATTLE — Learn to beware of the words "saves up to . . . " in advertisements promising big savings on home energy costs.

After surveying such ads, the U.S. General Accounting Office recently cautioned consumers that energy-saving still is very much a "let the buyer beware" market.

The agency found hundreds of ad claims questionable because of exaggeration, failure to disclose material facts affecting the product's performance or performance claims made in such a way that the consumer can't compare competing products.

The GAO noted that adequate information and comparable claims are especially important because home energy-saving depends on location, house and family lifestyle. The "best" investment for a particular family may be storm windows, a solar system, a wood stove, additional insulation or some other measure.

One of the more frustrating comparisons, the agency complained, faces people shopping for wood stoves. One manufacturer may quote his stove's output in British Thermal Units. Another may say his stove will heat a certain size house. And a third may state that his stove operates at a certain percentage of efficiency. The agency said wood-stove confusion is compounded by the failure of most manufacturers to use uniform test procedures.

Some specific ad claims investigated by the agency:

VENT DAMPERS — Different ads promise "fuel savings of up to 23 percent in tests for DOE (Department of Energy)" and "saves 10 to 30 percent of home heating costs."

The GAO found the ads potentially misleading because they didn't cite conditions under which savings were possible. National Bureau of Standards research found oil furnaces save an average of 8.2 percent fuel, with a maximum of 16 percent. American Gas Association tests showed savings of about 5 percent for gas furnaces. A DOE study found vent dampers generally are not useful on furnaces located in unheated garages, attics and basements.

CEILING FANS — Ads promised "save up to 50 percent on heating bills" and "saves up to 35 percent of your energy dollar 365 days a year."

A GAO energy consultant determined the claims apparently were based on several procedural errors and false assumptions. He said a 5 to 10 percent savings might be more realistic, and noted that fans could achieve little winter fuel savings in homes with standard eight-foot ceilings.

CERAMIC INSULATION — Ad claim: "Guaranteed to save 30 percent more energy at three-inch thickness than fiber glass or cellulose at 12 inches."

The GAO had both the National Bureau of Standards and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration study this new product. The two agencies agreed documentation didn't substantiate the thermal resistance claims.

SIDING — Ad claim: "15 to 40 percent energy savings."

The DOE analyzed the house for which the claims were made and determined that installation of foam-backed aluminum siding would trim annual heating costs by less than 5 percent.

LIGHT BUTTONS — Ad claim: "Save an average of 50 percent in electricity consumption with a reduction in light output by the same amount."

A DOE study showed the product reduced a 100-watt bulb's power by 42 percent, rather than the 50 percent claimed. It also found light produced by the bulb dropped a whopping 74 percent.

Better savings could be made, the agency suggested, by forgetting the light button and simply swapping the 100-watt bulb for a 40-watt one.

FURNACE BURNERS — Ad claim: "Cut your oil bill by 30, 40 or even 50 percent."

The GAO found the ad potentially misleading because it said consumers "could not normally expect to achieve these savings." Tests conducted for Brookhaven National Laboratory showed efficiency could be improved 12 to 25 percent over a conventional burner depending on the type of burner installed, furnace condition and other factors.

Gamma ray eyes

DETROIT (AP) — Mechanical detectives with gamma rays for eyes are a new breed of worker on Detroit's auto-assembly lines.

To help spot missing pieces in car bodies that have already been welded-shut — often in another plant — the auto industry is using electro-magnetic radiation.

A control system to handle a gamma-ray device that uncovers any missing part unintentionally left off blind areas on sub-assemblies has been developed by Robotron Inc., a division of Midland-Ross Corp.

Dollar test

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — There is potential energy savings in your home under every door leading outside, says Daniel G. Mann.

Air infiltration from the outdoors through space below a door can account for much of a home's heat loss, says the Phillips Petroleum supervisor and energy-conservation professional.

To check a door for airtightness, put a dollar bill underneath the door and close it. Then, try to slide the bill from side to side. If it slides easily, weather-stripping is necessary, or adjustment to the weather-stripping already there.

99 bells

NEW YORK (AP) — The Mormon Tabernacle Choir, Mahalia Jackson, the Chipmunks and Elvis Presley have something in common. They have all recorded the Christmas classic "Silver Bells."

In fact, a total of 99 artists have made records of the song, which was introduced in the 1950 Bob Hope movie, "The Lemon Drop Kid," according to Famous Music, which holds the copyright on the tune.

California toymaker fills house with fun

By LISA LEVITT
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Welcome to the Funhouse, Ted Smith, Prop. Shimmy past the stuffed rabbits, hang your coat over Joan Crawford's face, pull up a rocking horse and have a seat amongst the bears.

Here, surrounded by 100 stuffed teddies, an army of clowns and a handful of angels, Smith — entrepreneur, toymaker and professional clown — ruminates, creates and luxuriates in fun.

"Life isn't worth living without fun. As long as you're having fun, it makes everything a little bit better," says Smith, a mustachioed 34-year-old who has made an art, and a profit, out of having a riproaring good time.

Smith, founder of a one-man company called, appropriately, The Funhouse, is sitting in his living room flanked by a lion and giraffe, both stuffed and life-sized.

Off to one side, a peacock flaunts its finery; a baby-sized porcelain angel dangles overhead; dolls — W.C. Fields and Mae West — occupy a corner. The walls are covered with carnivalesque color; original circus posters, massive hangings from sideshows.

"I don't see why people have to live in dull surroundings," Smith says. "I think this is good for me. It keeps me young."

It also keeps him well-to-do, thanks to what he calls "fun consciousness."

"That's the whole key to success. If you're having fun at what you're doing, you're going to make money," says Smith, gesturing to the centerpiece of this madcap museum, a shrine to his latest entrepreneurial obsession, Joan Crawford.

Paramount's movie version of "Mommie Dearest," the book by Ms. Crawford's adopted daughter, Christina, has earned the late actress a cult following, and Smith has come up with some ways for her fans to display their adoration.

Shopkeepers from Norfolk to New York can't seem to keep their shelves stocked with his cards and T-shirts, emblazoned with the actress' image and things like "Daddy Dearest" and "The Joan Crawford Day Care Centre," a tongue-in-cheek reference to Christina's allegations of abuse at her mother's hand.

In one scene from the movie, Ms. Crawford beats the little girl with a wire coathanger. So for Christmas, Smith has created a paper-covered hanger bearing Ms. Crawford's face in a wreath and the words, "Merry Christmas, you little ..." an item he calls "probably the most unique thing to ever hit the card market."

"I have really come to love Joan Crawford doing this," admits Smith, who painted a 3- by 5-foot portrait of the actress wearing bejeweled tiara and one of the 30,000 pairs of false eyelashes from the Crawford estate.

"There's something about her ... She's strong, she's unconquerable, and yet she was sad. I feel like she regretted some of her life," he says, adding, "I'm not going to stop with Joan Crawford. Bette Davis is going to be next. Then I'm going to do Judy (Garland). All the great ladies."

As he speaks, another great lady, Laughing Sal, who greeted 30 years' worth of visitors to Playland, a defunct oceanside amusement park, waits against a wall, all 5-foot-10 inches poised to guffaw at even the tritest gaff.

A solid wooden rocking horse the size of a large pony dominates what once must have been a dining room. A stuffed monkey wearing a cowboy hat sits astride the beast under the watchful eye of a life-sized Santa Claus, clutching a huge Pepsi bottle cap.

A trio of Easter eggs the size of basketballs rests on the floor; nearby, a giant jar filled with clowns heads; on the wall, a close-up of the green, gnarled hands of the Wicked Witch of the West closing in on Dorothy's ruby slippers.

Timeless favorites: America's ten most-loved Christmas toys

What makes a toy a classic — a plaything that never goes out of style or favor?

With Christmas just ahead, Harper's Bazaar in its December issue reports on what the experts at F.A.O. Schwarz—the famed 119-year-old New York City toy emporium—consider the most-loved and sought-ater Yule toys. Says the company's President Pieter Oeschle,"What we look for in a toy is long-lasting appeal, a tradition of association with children, challenge or interest, and safety." Further, "it must be durable—not only well-made, but consistently interesting."

With these thoughts in mind, the experts picked today's ten most-loved Christmas toys:

1. MONOPOLY is the biggest board game ever—80 million sets sold since 1935, in 18 languages and 29 countries. It was devised during the Depression by an unemployed engineer who named the properties for streets in Atlantic City, N.J. Its fans are so loyal that when city officials tried to change the names of the real Baltic and Mediterranean avenues, outraged fans forced them to abandon the plan.
2. BUILDING BLOCKS. Even Frank Lloyd Wright had to start somewhere!
3. TEDDY BEAR. Thank President Theodore Roosevelt for the birth of his namesake, which was created after TR refused to shoot a trapped bear during a hunting trip.
4. MODEL RAILROADS.
5. ARTIST'S EASEL AND PAINTS.
6. BARBIE faced a skeptical toy industry at her 1958 debut, but little girls loved her at once, and through the years Barbie has acquired more houses, hobbies and costumes (20 million sold each year) than any thousand real teenagers.
7. THE ROCKING HORSE, cowboy.
8. TOY TRUCKS.
9. RAGGEDY ANN's most irresistable feature is her secret message: the small "I love you" printed over her heart. She was created in 1914 by John Gruelle, an Indianapolis cartoonist, who penned drawings and stories for his ailing daughter.
10. ROLLER SKATES. A children's toy that has very nearly become an adult lifestyle. Wheee!

DEAR ABBY

Light-fingered girl carries heavy load

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm 15 and an only child. My family is upper middle-class and I guess you could call me a straight-laced conservative teen-ager. For the last six months I have been on a shoplifting binge. It's not peer pressure. I'm always alone when I do it. I never go into a store intending to steal, but I immediately look for floor walkers and mirrors. I usually have enough money to buy whatever I need, so I can't understand why I take things. (I will buy a pair of panties and steal a pair.) I've even taken stuff I have no use for.

If I tell my parents, they'll never trust me to go anywhere. Please don't suggest that I talk to a priest. I just couldn't. I'm getting scared, Abby. I hate to leave the house for fear I'll go into a store and steal something. You may print this if you think it might help somebody else, but please don't use my right name or town. — LIGHT-FINGERED IN IOWA

DEAR LIGHT-FINGERED: You could be a victim of kleptomania — a persistent neurotic compulsion to steal without economic motive. Kleptomania can be cured with treatment.

The fact that your conscience bothered you enough to write to me proves that you are not a common thief. If you absolutely can't tell your parents, please talk to your school counselor. If you're to be helped, you'll have to reach out for it.

DEAR ABBY: I recently ordered a birthday cake from a high-class, well-known bakery. It is famous for its beautifully decorated cakes. When I went to pick up my cake, it was setting on the display counter, uncovered — no cellophane, tissue, or anything at all to protect it from the possibility of contamination. The bakery was crowded, and people were leaning over the cake as they were being waited on.

One child, about eye-level with my cake, had a bad cough, and she was coughing and blowing her nose not six inches from the icing on my cake!

Abby, I am not a fanatic about germs, but I do think this is a very unsanitary practice. I immediately lost my appetite for that cake, and when it was served that evening I couldn't take even one bite.

If bakeries want to display their work, shouldn't they protect it?

I haven't mentioned this to anyone else for fear of appearing foolish. Also, should I let the bakery know how I feel? — SQUEAMISH IN BALTIMORE

DEAR SQUEAMISH: You would be doing the bakery a favor by mentioning it to them.

I agree, bakery goods should be covered. And your complaint together with this item should cover it.

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote in to say that the blare of rock music and the noise of small children in public were as much of a public nuisance as smoking, and you answered, "Don't tolerate it. Go to the source and complain!"

Abby, how could you? What has happened to make us a nation of complainers? Why should we complain every time someone offends our ears or noses? That's what's wrong with society today. No one is willing to tolerate anything that is even slightly annoying. No wonder there are so many divorces and so many unhappy people nowadays.

Come on, Abby, let us all be more tolerant. What's wrong with the old adage, "Live and let live"? — TIRED OF COMPLAINERS

DEAR TIRED: I'm all for living and letting live, but the right to swing one's arms ends where the other person's nose begins.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

Construction work not just for men

By EVELYN DEWOLFE
(c) 1981, Los Angeles Times

NORTHRIDGE, Calif. — Jobs that were once almost totally the province of men — pulling up flooring, laying carpets, carpentry, painting and wallpapering — are everyday tasks for Marsha Broderick and her all-woman team of professional union construction workers.

"We're not in this field because we're out to compete with men," insisted Broderick, one of the few women who are licensed general contractors in California. "We're in it because we like it and because it's a lucrative business."

One might expect a group of hammer-swinging, ditch-digging females to be somewhat scruffy and tough-looking. But what you see at a Marsha Broderick construction site is a crew of trim, attractive women in pink hard hats and pink T-shirts imprinted with a hammer-and-rose logo.

"I call them my pink ladies," said Broderick, noting that the crew had just completed the interior construction for the offices of R.R. Gable in Northridge. "The girls are all from union hiring halls, so we don't have any ringers here."

Broderick's "regulars" include two paperhangers, one upholsterer, a carpet installer and two carpenters. She also employs a male draftsman and senior carpenter, and subcontracts the heavier jobs to male colleagues.

Christina Reichert is a third-year apprentice carpenter, with one more year to go. "When I reached 30, I decided I would change my profession from legal secretary to doing what I always wanted to do . . . building. I started working in concrete forms and that was very tough. Some of the men were very supportive. Others enjoyed playing tricks on me. But, if I felt like crying, I always waited till I got home."

Broderick's decision to expand to general contracting was the out-growth of disenchantment with her chosen field of interior design.

"There are many frustrations fo the interior designer," lamented Broderick, adding that frustration accounts for a 3.5 yearly burnout of professionals in the field.

"For one thing we're not licensed and therefore we are not treated as true professionals. An interior designer has no lien rights, while a general contractor does," she added.

Broderick is both a member of the American Society of Interior Designers and the International Society of Interior Designers, and has long been an activist in the field. She is chairman of professional practices for Certified Professional Interior Designers and assistant editor for the Insider, an ISID publication.

"The field of interior design has been undergoing big changes," admitted Broderick, who is a designer-contractor, member and now a lecturer for the National Association of Women in Construction, and member of the Building Industry Association. "Wholesale outlets are more accessible to the average housewife and a resale license is easy to come by, these days."

As a general contractor, Broderick feels her profession is more defined. "I had been doing quite a bit of consultation on remodeling, acting as a 'middleman' dealing with construction firms on behalf of my clients. I soon perceived it would be more lucrative to eliminate the middle plateau. That's when I took the step up. Knowledge of construction allows me to be more flexible and creative in the early planning stages."

When she received her contractor's license, Broderick felt she needed a gimmick to draw attention to her expanded activities. "Putting together a long-stemmed rose and hammer logo on a T-shirt may have seemed ludicrous, but the girls liked it. So I went a few steps further with the pink helmet, pink stationery and business cards."

Marsha Broderick Interiors & General Contracting has scored somewhat of a breakthrough in the construction field by undertaking a start-to-finish approach to most projects. Apart from working with her construction team on home remodeling projects, Broderick assignments are veering to the commercial projects, as in the case of the real estate firms of R.R. Gable and S.J. Heritage, both in Northridge, where her responsibilities have included space planning, design, construction and furnishings.

In conjunction with the R.R. Gable firm, Marsha Broderick Interiors will be offering a service to homeowners who wish to give their homes a "house lift" prior to or while selling. This service will allow payments to be postponed for 120 days or to close of escrow.

Some of Broderick's experience for her present occupation has been building up for years. "It actually goes back to my observation of my mother who, like myself, enjoyed making things look beautiful. At 10 I saw my mother build a large-scale dollhouse, frame it and put it together. It made a big impression on me. Construction seems to run in the family. My brother Ken Mullin, became a carpenter."

By and large Broderick and her team have had excellent acceptance "once a client who has been accustomed to burly male help gets over the initial shock."

"One could almost say that I have been mostly in the business of house lifts. It's a year for remodeling both homes and commercial buildings. With our present economic turmoil and high interest rates people are more interested in fixing up what they already have," Broderick believes. And that should keep the pink ladies busy for a long spell.

Canada promotes diesels

The Canadian federal government has decided to provide a $400 grant for each farm or commercial vehicle purchased new with a propane fuel system or converted from gasoline to propane. Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Midland established as an independent agency to reach more children

By NANCY LORD
Lifestyle Writer

Midland people helping Midland people. That's how Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Midland, Inc. was described by its executive director, Carol Layman.

The agency, which services children from single-parent homes, recently withdrew from its parent organization, Family Services, and was established as an independent agency. The new agency was incorporated in October and moved into its new offices shortly thereafter. It is a self-supporting agency.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Midland, Inc. is a fully accredited member of Big Brothers/Big Sisters of America, Inc., a national organization which began in 1903 in Cincinatti, Ohio. There are now over 400 agencies serving over 200,000 children.

The agency recruits mature, stable adult volunteers to be friends and mentors to children from single-parent homes, Mrs. Layman said. She noted that the group is the only youth-serving organization in the world based on the warmth of a one-to-one friendship between an adult and a child.

She said that children from these single-parent homes must face the pressures and challenges of contemporary childhood with only one parent and that the adult volunteers help these children to increase their self-esteem and productivity.

Although not all children in this situation require the support of a Big Brother or a Big Sister, statistics show that one in five of these children need the agency's services, Mrs. Layman explained. She said that Midland has over 3,000 children in single-parent homes — meaning that approximately 600 Midland children need the aid of Big Brothers/Big Sisters.

Presently, there are 30 children who are now being helped by the program and another 30 children on the waiting list. Mrs. Layman said that the agency wanted to expand its services, but didn't have the facilities or personnel it would take to do so.

"The decision to become an independent agency (separate from Family Services) was made because we realized that a separate identity was the first step toward expansion," Mrs. Layman explained. She noted that Family Services is involved in family counseling and that a certain amount of confidentiality for its clients is necessary. "Our expansion can only come about through publicity," she said.

Since becoming an independent agency, Big Brothers/Big Sisters has an added opportunity for publicity, more office space and additional personnel.

She said that the need for additional personnel is an important one because the staff works at recruiting, screening and orienting volunteers, and monitoring existing volunteer-child matches. Additional staff members are necessary if more children are to be helped.

"We have to be very careful when matching a child with a volunteer," Mrs. Layman explained. "If it's a bad match, it can destroy everyone involved."

Previously, the staff consisted of Mrs. Layman and a part-time social worker to screen and oversee all volunteers and children. Now, in addition to Mrs. Layman, the staff consists of a full-time caseworker and a part-time secretary and bookkeeper. Mrs. Layman hopes to add another caseworker to her staff soon.

Mrs. Layman said that volunteers, especially Big Brothers, are always needed. To be a volunteer, a person must be over 18-years-old and be a resident of Midland County. Volunteers are asked to spend between two to three hours per week with the child.

According to Mrs. Layman, one of the most rewarding things about working as a volunteer for the agency is that "...you see results so quickly." She also said that studies have shown that Big Brothers/Big Sisters works by reducing juvenile delinquency and emotional problems. She pointed out that a "match" costs approximately $650 per year, whereas if a child enters in the juvenile justice system, it will cost the taxpayers over $3,000 per year, and in the event of institutionalization, the cost is from $18,000-$65,000 per year.

Mrs. Layman noted that the break from Family Services couldn't have happened without the support of the Big Brothers/Big Sisters advisory committee. Members of this committee are now on the board of directors of the new agency.

Board members include Jim Chapman, president; Diane Newland and Steve Stewart, vice presidents; Doug Burleson, secretary; Steve Gray, Danny Huerca, Doug Scharbauer and Jeff Smith. She also cited Judge Willie DuBose, C.H. Brackett and Robert Barnes as being particularily helpful in the withdrawal from Family Services.

Mrs. Layman said she would rather not think of the withdrawal as a "break" from Family Services, rather "We established our independence so we can expand to serve the 600 Midland children who need us."

Mr. and Mrs. George Satterfield of 1201 S. Pratt St. exchanged wedding vows again Thursday in the Southside Lions Club in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

The couple was married Dec. 24, 1931. She is the former Clara Richardson. They have 13 children, 37 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

The children, who were hosts to the anniversary party, were Howard Satterfield of Hereford, Betty Brillion and Ray Satterfield of Odessa, Barbara Williams, Wanda Denney, Sally Pool, Johnny Satterfield, Retha Schnieder, Larry Satterfield and Bobby Satterfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Satterfield have lived in Childress, Hooks, Lotney and Plainview. He formerly was employed by the City of Midland. They are members of the Church of God of Prophecy.

Two wheelchair users start business to aid disables

LANTANA, Fla. (AP) — Two wheelchair-users in Lantana have started a $200,000-a-year business in which being in a wheelchair is actually an asset instead of a handicap.

"We've used wheelchairs all our lives. That's why we understand the special needs of our disabled customers," says Donna Batelaan.

Two years ago, Mrs. Batelaan, 33, and her husband, Dave, 36, a computer programmer, opened Action Mobility Products and Services Inc., a firm specializing in equipment for the disabled.

Sales for 1981 are expected to reach $200,000 — triple the previous year — and Action Mobility will move from its 1,000-square-foot storefront in Lantana into a 9,000-square-foot building in Lake Worth in June.

The firm supplies lifts and vans for wheelchair users. "That's how we got started," said Mrs. Batelaan. "But our racing and recreation chairs brought us a reputation."

The couple met at a wheelchair basketball game. A champion swimmer, wheelchair racers and basketball player, Batelaan started playing basketball from a 55-pound chair, awkward to maneuver and pedal. Now, a 29-pound chair is normal for sports. The firm sells sleek 18-pound recreational chairs for racing.

Mrs. Batelaan became involved in the business through a personal dilemma. Although she used to have a specially equipped car, it couldn't carry a wheelchair. She could travel, but when she reached her destination she lost her mobility. So she purchased a van equipped with a lift. But she said the lift broke down so often, she would arrive someplace and not be able to get out of the van.

A friend, a representative of another firm, had a better lift rig, and suggested that the Batelaans take over a dealership for the area.

Their first customer had a car he could drive, but he was unable to load his wheelchair without help. His order was rushed so he could drive to the airport alone and pick up his grandchildren for a visit.

"We have no desire to be a sickroom supply store. We want our products to be rehabilitative, to make people independent," said Mrs. Batelaan.

"Too many handicapped people are sold products they can't use. Wheelchairs, motorized or hand-operated, can be adjusted to individual needs. Like my own vehicle, adjustments allow my stronger hand and foot to operate the vehicle," she added.

NOBODY READS SMALL SPACE ADS... DO THEY???

American Style: J.D. and the Kid

By ED SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo. (AP) — John Hale is a 2-year-old who sometimes thinks he's a chimp. His buddy J.D. is a 2-year-old chimp who usually thinks he's a boy.

"They were born two weeks apart in September 1979," said Maxine Hale, the wife of an exotic animal breeder.

"From their earliest days they have been together," she said. "They would lay there side by side with their bottles and not have any idea they were different."

J.D. began walking first, of course, but as soon as John found his legs they learned how to get into mischief together.

"Neither one of them was tall enough to open a door," said Dave Hale, the boy's father, "so John would lean against the door, J.D. would climb on his shoulders to turn the knob, and off they'd go."

J.D., member of an endangered species, lives with the Hales in their spacious hilltop ranch house. He has his own room and, when the Hales' daughters are around to keep an eye on him, eats with the family.

"He can handle a fork and spoon a lot better than most humans his age," said Hale. "But you have to watch him. He's quick."

The Hales said J.D. has added a lot to family togetherness.

"The other kids love him," said Mrs. Hale. "The girls treat him like a little brother and take him everywhere with them. Then, of course, there's the simple entertainment value."

"We don't need to watch television," said Hale. "When those two start playing it's the most hilarious thing you've ever seen. And when you laugh, it just spurs them on."

AP Laserphoto

John Hale and J.D. the chimp romp in John's bedroom at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dave Hale. Hale, a breeder of exotic animals, said John and J.D. have been inseparable since they were born two weeks apart two years ago. J.D. has his own room in the Hale's spacious ranchhouse and often eats at the family dinner table.

But tears quickly bring sympathy. On a recent visit, John was feverish with the croup and the chimp put his arm around the boy, kissed his face and tried to console him.

The Hales said J.D. has never embarrassed them. John has, however, on occasion.

"Not long ago we were down in our gift shop and I gave John a banana," said Mrs. Hale. "He took it and romped off yelling, 'Hoo, hoo, hoo.' Everybody in the shop cracked up — including me."

J.D. serves a purpose in the community, too. "They love to have him come and visit nursing homes and charity events," said Mrs. Hale. "We try to do it whenever we can."

Eventually, the Hales know, the relationship between chimp and boy will have to end.

"We've been told that when chimps get to be about 10, they get tough," said Hale. "They say that a time will come when we will not be able to discipline John in front of J.D. Even now, if we spank J.D., John cries and if we spank John, J.D. comes after us.

"But we'll worry about that when the time comes. Right now it's fun for all of us. We do wonder about what John will tell his children, though."

Lona Dion: She's not a skinny girl anymore

By RUDY MAXA
(c) 1981, The Washington Post

BEFORE: As a high school student in suburban Philadelphia, Lona was a skinny girl with no figure. Then she grew up and met an entrepreneur and body builder named Ken Dion, who introduced Lona to the Nautilus system of body building and to matrimony.

AFTER: Today, 27-year-old Lona Dion is Philadelphia's princess of pin-ups, a curvy brunette who poses in tiny bikinis for ads that promote a chain of health clubs she and her husband run. And she's coming to Washington.

"Women started coming in our clubs and saying, 'I want to look like you,' " says slender (106 pounds, 5 feet 6) Lona Dion. "So Ken thought, 'Why don't we put you in the ads to show women they aren't going to develop large muscles?' "

In the fall of 1980, the Dions designed their first ad, a color portrait of Lona in a black bikini. They bought a full-page in Philadelphia magazine for $4,000, and before you could say "Wow," an institution was born.

A survey found that of 87 ads in one issue of Philadelphia magazine, the one starring Lona ranked at or near the top in tests measuring readers' recollection and identification. So successful were the ads in attracting new business to the Dions' Philadelphia-area Nautilus Clubs that the ads became monthly affairs. There was Lona in a hardhat with the line, "We build them better." With her back toward the camera, looking over her shoulder, Lona appeared with the caption, "A means to an end."

"Women took the ads and upt them on their refrigerator doors," says Lona. Students pasted them to the inside of lockers. Receptionists at the Dions' clubs fielded suggestive phone calls. And the business came rolling in.

Nautilus is a line of weight-training equipment used widely by professional athletes. Neither a franchise nor chain of health spas, Nautilus sells equipment to anyone. In 1978, after using the equipment themselves, the Dions decided to open their own clubs using Nautilus machines. Their clubs don't offer the usual panoply of swimming pools, snack bars and sun rooms — just the forbidding-looking exercise machines and locker rooms.

Now, with some 42 investors, the Dions run (and partly own) clubs in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Florida.

The first of a series of ads featuring Lona in Washingtonian magazine caught the attention of James Ostmann, a Washington lawyer and part-time song writer. Inspired, he wrote a rock song called "Love for Lona" and sent a tape of it to the Dions. At the Dions' request, Ostmann softened a few suggestive lyrics and is cutting a record he'll issue under his own label, Counsel of Record Company.

"I was thinking about writing a song about a lady, and I wanted to use a name I had not heard before in a title," says Ostmann, 37. "I opened up Washingtonian and saw her picture and that was the inspiration to write the tune. I think she's the most beautiful woman I've ever seen, pure and simple."

Plumbing groans lead to cures

By AL CARRELL

Your plumbing system can be the source of all sorts of weird noises. These sounds can be an attack on your nerves. But if you're smart, the noises can also be a warning against some other problems that could be about to happen... a sort of cry for help. On the other hand, they could just be the sounds of complaint from the pipes telling you they need some first aid.

One noise is the banging noise that you hear whenever water is running. That usually means a loose pipe or fixture is being moved by the flow of the water. The movement is causing the pipe to hit against something. Leave it alone, and you'll have an annoying noise... right up until the banging knocks the pipe loose. Then you'll have a flood.

To track down such a noise may be a simple matter of looking at the pipes, seeing where the motion is and then stopping it. However, if the motion is inside a wall where you can't see the pipes, it's not going to be that easy. It's made more difficult because pipes act like a broadcast network and sometimes carry noises throughout the system, making it more difficult to pinpoint the location. Start with pipes coming out of the wall and see if there's any movement there.

Once the movement is found, you can often stop the noise by merely clamping the pipe to a joist to anchor it. Sometimes you can slip a piece of slit garden hose over the pipe as a pad where it's hitting. Caulking around where a pipe comes through a hole in the wall may be the answer. If a faucet is loose under the sink, tightening can stop the movement.

Another pipe noise happens only when the water is shut off. It's a hammering noise and is called "water hammer." The plumbing system should have a series of air chambers. These are short sections of vertical pipe with air inside. When you shut off the water, the sudden stoppage has a sort of shock wave effect. The air is compressed by this water pressure and absorbs the shock waves. If you have no air chambers, or if they have become waterlogged or clogged, the shock waves aren't absorbed, and so the hammering happens.

If your home has always had this problem, you probably don't have the air chambers. There are devices to add on. If the problem just started, it may be the waterlogging situation. If so, cut off the water supply and drain the lines and open all taps. This will solve the hammer. However, if the chambers are clogged, as happens with old galvanized pipe, you may have to use one of the add-ons we mentioned above since the air chambers are usually within the walls.

If you get a chatter only when you turn on a particular faucet, it's a signal that that faucet is the culprit. Probably the washer is loose or worn out.

A screaming or whistling noise is usually a restriction in the line. This can be from a bad washer, a partially closed valve somewhere, or a lime and scale buildup within the pipes. The first two problems can be easily solved once you find the trouble spot. The clogged pipe often happens in old galvanized pipes. Such a buildup at faucets and other fixtures can be remedied. The addition of a water conditioner unit can stop more clogging, but it's not a cure for what's already there. Pressure flushing done by pros can sometimes work. Otherwise, there's no cure except a very expensive replumbing job.

Groaning or singing in a toilet as it fills up means the washer or washers are probably going bad. These are in the ballcock assembly and can usually be replaced.

Rumbling in the hot water lines usually means that either the heat setting is too high and steam is being created or that sediment has built up in the tank. Try setting the dial down. The tank should be drained periodically in most areas anyway. All you do is drain a small amount off the bottom until the water runs clear. Attach a garden hose and drain a little at a time. Be sure to have a hot pad to use for shutting the tank valve back off because it'll be hot. If it drips, use a hose cap to screw on over the tap. If you've never drained an old heater, the tap may be stuck; if so, don't use so much force that you do damage.

Listen to your plumbing, and it can tell you a few things.

Gilbert Bates Construction enters unique plan in CIA Parade of Homes

One of the most unique plans in the 1981 Parade of Homes is the three-bedroom, two and one-half bath at 4501 Stillmeadow. The 2,525 square foot residence is by Gilbert Bates Construction.

Dominated by tones of brown and accented by almonds and rusts, the home contains a built-in vacuum system in the walls. Outlets are available in the respective rooms to connect the cleaning hose.

Entrance into the open-classic residence is gained through an entry hall accented by parquet wood floors and a high skylight in the ceiling.

One wall in the living area will have raised molded paneling while another section will have a wall-to-wall hearth and large fireplace. The area also has a wet bar.

Another feature is the builder designed pantry in the kitchen area. Walnut-stained cabinets provide lots of storage and the kitchen faces an open glassed-in atrium.The redwood-lined atrium is the center of the home.

Across from the atrium is the master bedroom combination sitting room with a master bath suite. The large area will have built-in bookcases and feature a ceiling fan. The master bath suite is secluded from the remainder of the home. The walk-through bath area has two closets, a separate tub and shower. Color combinations are blues, cremes and rusts.

Floored for extra storage space, the attic has a pull-down entrance in the garage. Anther feature of the garage is custom workbenches

The parade, which is a first for Midland Homebuilders Association, will be held through Dec. 20 in Skyline Terrace West Addition. Tickets are $1 to tour all 22 unique houses. The parade will benefit Christmas in April, Midland's volunteer housing repair project coordinated by the Human Relations Council of Midland. For ticket information, contact HRC or the Midland Homebuilders Association.

A hand with hems

By BETTY W. KINSER
Copley News Service

On very delicate, lightweight fabrics (such as for bridal gowns and bridesmaids' dresses), hemming can be a bit of a pain. By hand is time-consuming and by machine can get your fabric eaten. Here is a neat trick that works like a miracle.

Turn under one-fourth inch of the raw edge. Lay a strand of matching embroidery floss down the center of this narrow hem. Narrow zigzag over the floss and you have a beautiful hem with a lot of class.

Hems come in all shapes and sizes and most of them are a pain in the neck. But a little advance knowledge can save you lots of trouble later.

For instance, when turning up the hem of medium- to heavyweight fabrics, fudge the hem down just a tad at all seams. The thickness at the seams prevents the hem from being pressed as flat as the rest of the hem and therefore appears shorter.

Never make your hemming stitches over the hem edge of medium- to heavyweight fabrics. This causes a ridge to appear on the right side of the fabric. Make your stitches between the hem and the garment about one-fourth to three-eighths of an inch below the edge of the hem.

Not all fabrics require a finishing for the hem edge. If your fabric is OK without, don't burden it with finishing.

If you do need to finish off the raw edges of a hem, use any of the following (depending on the type fabric).

"Seams Great" — a very lightweight bias-cut tricot-type strip that folds over raw edges for a perfect, no-weight finish.

"Bias tape" — to be used only on fabric heavy enough to take it.

"Lace seam binding" — not a very good idea unless you are sure no one will see your hem. Reason? Lace seam binding says "homemade."

Machine stitches — you can use zigzag, overlock, overcast or straight stitching for finishing raw edges.

Questions may be addressed to Mrs. Betty Kinser, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Shore juniper is good alternative to grass

By TOM STEVENSON
The Washington Post

Q: The slope in front of our house is too steep to grow grass. Is there an alternative?

A: Shore juniper, which grows to a height of 1 foot and spreads 4 to 5 feet, is good for such a situation. The plant has fine texture, the gray-green needles are about half an inch long, it grows rapidly in full sun and will tolerate partial shade. Bar Harbor is another juniper well adapted as a ground cover.

Q: We plan to plant some shrubs in front of our home. How far from the house should they be planted?

A: Most shrubs should be at least 4 feet from the house. Though small growing ones can be as close as 2 feet. If larger ones are planted closer, it may be necessary to shear them regularly.

Q: The apples from our trees don't last very long. How should be stored?

A: Most apples kept best at 30 to 32 degrees F. with a relatively humidity of 85 to88 percent. McIntosh, Yellow Newton and Rhode Island Green8ng do best at 35 to 38 degrees. The average freezing point for most apples is 28 to 29 degrees F. The apples should be cooled and stored as soon as poss8ble after picking. The sooner it is done the longer the fruit will keep.

Q: When is the best time to prune my Henri clematis?

A: Henri produces blooms on the current year's growth and should be cut down to about a foot from the ground in late winter or early pring. Clematis that produce their blooms on old wood should be pruned heavily every five or six years.

Q: We had our big maple tree cut down. What is the best way to get rid of the stump?

A: Stumps can be burned out, pulled out by a bulldozer or rotted out. One way to speed rotting is to cut the stump off close to the ground and cover it with about 3 inches of soil. Then apply about one-half pound of nitrogen at regular intervals. The nitrogen will increase the population and activity of bacteria and speed decay. They are active only when the temperature is between 50 and 90 degrees.

Q: I'd like to have a putting green in the backyard for practicing my golf game. What kind of grass is best, one that can be used for the entire backyard?

A: One of the best probably is Fylking Kentucky bluegrass. It can withstand mowing as low as one-half inch. When cut this low, most grasses die back, become sparse and weeds soon appear. Fylking can take it.

Q: I want to transplant a young rose bush. When is the best time to do it?

A: It can be done in late fall or early spring.

Q: How should onions from my garden be stored?

A: They will last indefinitely at around 33 degrees F. in a dry area. Dig the onions when the tops fall over, let them dry for a few days and then store them.

Q: I picked my cucumbers while they were small this summer. About one in three was so bitter it could only be eaten by slicing and salting. My soil is acid; was that the cause?

A: Usually fluctuations in temperature cause the bitter taste of cucumbers. Cucumber mosaic disease also can cause bitterness. The disease overwinters on pokeweed, milkweed and other weeds and in the spring is spread by aphids and other insects. Plant a variety resistant to the disease, such as Burpee's M&M hybrid.

Q: I've tried several times to grow parsley from seeds, and the seeds never come up. What is the secret of getting them started?

A: Parsley seed are slow to germinate. Plant them off to one side and keep them moist but not soggy. They can also be planted indoors in Jiffy-7s, and when they sprout, plant pot and all outdoors.

Wreath cake makes Christmas special

This year your holiday table can reflect the spirit of the season with a special Christmas wreath cake. Like the wreath on your door, a festive homemade dessert says "welcome" to your guests.

A delicious eggnog cake, baked in a wreath-shaped pan and decorated with green and red icing and candy trim, turns a holiday meal into a special celebration. The wreath can also double as a centerpiece for Christmas dinner. Served with steaming coffee or hot chocolate, this dessert is a special treat for hungry Christmas carolers or guests at a tree trimming party.

The eggnog wreath cake was developed for the novice cake baker and decorator by Wilton Enterprises, leader and innovator in cake decorating design, products and publications. The cake, made with a mix and flavored with bourbon or rum, is baked in specially crafted wreath pan and decorated with buttercream icing.

Professional results are easy to achieve because the wreath pattern is baked right into the cake. A decorating bag, tips and icing are used to outline the contours made by the pan; a zigzag pattern fills in the design. Decorating requires only two tips and two basic techniques to finish this show-stopping dessert for holiday entertaining.

The following hints are offered for cake decorating:

Cuff the top of the bag over your hand to fill.

Never fill the bag more than half full.

Keep the top of the bag twisted tightly to prevent icing from coming out of the bag.

When writing or outlining, touch the tip to the surface so that icing sticks; raise tip slightly and apply even pressure. To finish, release pressure, touch the tip to the surface and pull away.

CHRISTMAS EGGNOG WREATH CAKE

1 package yellow cake mix-pudding or regular
¼ cup bourbon or rum or 1 tblsp. rum flavoring
1 tsp. nutmeg
½ cup chopped nuts
Buttercream icing, recipe follows
Gumdrops

Mix cake according to package directions, substituting bourbon or rum for ¼ cup of the water; or use rum flavoring, plus water. Add nutmeg and beat according to package directions. Stir in nuts. Pour into greased and floured 13¾x10⅜x2-inch wreath-shaped pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes or until cake tests done. Cool 10 minutes; unmold. Cool at least 1 hour and decorate as instructed with buttercream icing.

Yield: One cake.

Variation: Use plain yellow cake or other favorite two-layer cake recipe.

BUTTERCREAM ICING

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup solid vegetable shortening
1½ tsps. vanilla
5 cups confectioner's sugar
3 tblsp. milk

Red and green paste or liquid food color

Cream butter and shortening with electric mixer in large mixing bowl. Add vanilla. Gradually add sugar, 1 cup at a time, beating well at medium speed. Scrape sides and bottom of bowl often. When all sugar has been mixed in, icing will appear dry. Add milk and beat at high speed until light and fluffy. Set aside ¼ cup plain icing. Use paste color or liquid color to tint 2 cups of the remaining frosting dark green, ¼ cup light green and ¾ cup red.

Yield: 3½ cups.

DECORATING INSTRUCTIONS

To decorate wreath cake, ice the smooth center section with white icing. Use a No. 3 tip and red icing to write message. Use a No. 3 round tip and dark green icing to outline the leaves formed by the wreath pan. Follow the same procedure to outline the bow with red icing. Use a No. 18 star tip and a zigzag pattern to fill in the leaves with green icing, alternating between light and dark for contrast. Use the same zigzag pattern and red icing to fill in the bow. To make zigzags, touch the tube to the surface and steadily squeeze, moving your hand in tight side-to-side motions.

Frost the sides in dark green with the star tip in a zigzag pattern from top to bottom.

To put berries on your wreath, cut red gumdrops in half and arrange in clusters of three around the cake.

Beginning cake decorators can create a unique eggnog wreath cake for holiday entertaining by using a specially crafted wreath pan and a few basic decorating tools available at leading department stores and cake decorating speciality shops.

Beauty by Choice: Think beautiful, be beautiful

By TRISHA YEAGER
Copley News Service

Shakespeare said, "God hath given you one face, and you make yourselves another."

He could have been talking about applying makeup, but I like to think Shakespeare was talking about applying mental principles.

If a person believes in, affirms and visualizes gradual improvements in appearance, and at the same time is able to overcome doubt and discouragement, positive changes will occur.

Consider the case of Stefanie. A captivating brunette of majestic proportions, Stefanie is noticed wherever she goes. Heads swivel as if on cue when she walks by and her entrance into a room is invariably accompanied by a hush in conversation.

She's beautiful, yes, but she wasn't born that way. In fact, a critical observer would notice significant flaws: heavy legs, coarse skin and a large nose. Yet, these flaws are but trifles when one considers le tout ensemble. This includes a body lithe and firm, whittled to perfection during long hours in the gym, hair that shimmers and dances when she moves, and a smile that could melt the frost off the pumpkin.

What is her secret?

Stafanie truly believes she is beautiful and she acts in accordance with that belief. But it wasn't always that way.

In the beginning, Stefanie didn't think she was beautiful at all. No one ever told her she was. In fact, her family repeatedly told her she wasn't.

But Stefanie wanted to be beautiful. She wanted it very much. She began by affirming positive statements about herself, based upon what she thought to be possible. And in her quiet moments alone she visualized herself as she hoped one day to be.

At the same time she began to act as though she were beautiful. This combined with her own self-conceived improvement program began to affect some amazing changes: She was actually becoming what she believed she could be. Afer a while she no longer had to make believe. The ugly duckling had become a swan.

First, your expectations should be realistic but hopeful. If you expect drastic changes overnight, you will surely be disappointed. But, if you set reasonable goals, and consider the attainment of these goals a step-by-step process, you will be rewarded.

Second, you must "see" clearly and specifically what you want to accomplish. To murmur vaguely to yourself, "I want to look better," is futile. To effectively produce a result, the body needs a clear mental picture. To illustrate, try asking your body to salivate. Doesn't work, does it? Now, picture yourself biting into a large slice of a juicy lemon. See what I mean?

Third, remember that positive action must accompany positive thinking.

And fourth, be persistent. Be aware that your energies and enthusiasm toward a goal normally wane over time. Choose to continue, and success will be yours.

Please send your questions about beauty to Trisha Yeager, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered in this column. Volume of mail prohibits individual replies.

Dear Trisha: I believe in the power of the mind and have tried using it to achieve greater health and beauty, but so far I haven't had much success. What's wrong? — T.L.

Dear T.L.: For mental principles to work, four conditions must be met.

Montreal bird sanctuary

Ile Notre Dame, the site of the 1980 International Flower Show in Montreal, recently became a bird sanctuary, one of the first public centers for conservation in an urban setting in Canada and perhaps the only one of its kind.

Furniture aid sought

Norway's 450 furniture-manufacturing companies have no important marketing organization, but exports amounted to $57 million in 1980. The industry is seeking $3 million in state aid to pay for advertising at home and abroad, for special exhibits, compiling of catalogs, etc.

CHEESE FLOWERPOT BREAD

3¾ to 4¼ cups all-purpose flour, divided
2 tblsp. sugar
1 tsp. salt
1 package dry yeast
1¼ cups milk
2 tblsp. butter
1 egg
1½ cups shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
Melted butter
1 egg yolk
1 tblsp. water

Combine 2 cups flour, sugar, salt, cheese and yeast in a large mixing bowl; set side. Combine milk and butter in a saucepan; heat until very warm (120 to 130 degrees). Add milk mixture gradually to dry ingredients. Add egg; beat 2 minutes at medium speed of electric mixer, scraping sides of bowl occasionally. Stir in enough of the remaining flour to make a stiff dough. Turn dough onto a lightly floured surface; knead until smooth and elastic, 8 to 10 minutes. Place dough in a buttered bowl, turning to butter top. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour.

Punch dough down; turn onto a lightly floured surface. Cover and let rest 10 minutes. Divide dough into 7 parts. Shape each part into 4 balls. Place one ball in bottom of seasoned, oiled clay flowerpot; place remaining 3 balls on top. Repeat with remaining dough. Brush each with melted butter. Cover and let rise in a warm place until doubled in bulk, about 30 minutes. Combine egg yolk and water; brush top of each bread with mixture. Bake at 375 degrees 17 to 19 minutes or until done. Remove from pots and cool on wire racks. Yield: 7 small loaves.

NOTE: To season and prepare flowerpots, thoroughly grease insides of 7 new or well-washed clay flowerpots (3¼ inches in diameter across top of pot). Place pots on cookie sheet. Place in a 375 degree oven for about 30 minutes. Cool. Repeat procedure three times. Do not wash pots after seasoning. Cover hole in bottom of pots with aluminum foil.

PIZZA POPCORN

⅓ cup butter, melted
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
½ tsp. garlic salt
½ tsp. crushed oregano
½ tsp. crushed basil
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. onion powder
10 cups freshly popped popcorn

Combine butter, Parmesan cheese and seasonings; mix well. Pour over popcorn; mix well. Spread into a shallow baking pan; bake at 300 degrees for 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Yield: 10 cups.

WINTER STRAWBERRIES

1½ cups finely chopped pecans
1½ cups grated coconut
3 (3 ounce) packages strawberry-flavored gelatin
1 (14 ounce) can sweetened condensed milk
1 tsp. vanilla
Green food coloring
4 ounces slivered almonds
½ cup red-colored sugar

Combine the first five ingredients; blend until smooth. Shape into a ball; chill at least 1 hour.

For strawberry stems, combine green food coloring and enough water to get desired color. Dip almonds in mixture; remove and place on paper towels to dry.

Shape 1 tblsp. pecan mixture into a strawberry shape; repeat with remaining mixture. Chill again if necessary. Roll candies in red sugar. Insert two almonds in top for stems. Store in an airtight container in refrigerator. Yield: About 45 pieces.

PARMESAN CROUTONS

4 (¾-inch thick) slices bread
¼ cup melted butter
2 tsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Spread cubes in a single layer on a generously buttered cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes or until dry and lightly browned. Yield: About 4 cups.

CREAMY OLIVE DRESSING

⅓ cup mayonnaise
2 tblsp. finely chopped pimento-stuffed olives
2 tblsp. chopped onion
1 tblsp. chopped pimento
1/8 tsp. garlic powder
½ tsp. sugar
1 cup plain yogurt

COFFEE-BUTTERSCOTCH ICE CREAM SAUCE

1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup butter
¼ cup Half and Half
1 tsp. instant coffee powder

Combine all ingredients in a saucepan; bring to a boil. Boil, stirring constantly, for 2 minutes. (Sauce thickens as it cools). Serve warm over vanilla, chocolate or butter pecan ice cream.

PEPPERMINT HOT FUDGE SAUCE

1 (12 ounce) package semi-sweet chocolate pieces
¾ cup evaporated milk
1/8 tsp. peppermint extract or to taste

Rekindle sweet memories of the holiday baking season; prepare luscious chocolate treats to delight guests.

Chocolate treats stir up memories

Some of the fondest memories of the holiday season are in the aromas of the festive foods prepared in your kitchen. The smell of fresh breads, cookies and elaborate desserts lingers on after the tinsel and tree trimmings are stored for another year.

If these memories are starting to fade just a bit, why not recapture them by preparing some luscious homemade chocolate treats to delight your guests during the holiday season.

For example, the Chocolate Rum Bundt Cake is a rich and chocolatey cake studded with pecans. Spoon on Butter Rum Glaze after baking for an even more festive and tasty dessert.

Or, serve Holiday Chocolate Mousse. Many chocolate fans declare mousse the most delectatble and luscious of chocolate desserts. Give this creamy mousse a special touch by flavoring it with Amaretto, Grand Marnier or Kirsch and serve in your fanciest stemware glasses. Highlight with sliced almonds and a cherry garnish just before serving.

Very little time to spare, but still want to serve something homemade? Prepare Chocolate Nut Cups. Chocolate Mini Chips and peanut butter chips are melted together, nuts are stirred in for crunchiness before spooning into bite-size nut cups.

CHOCOLATE RUM BUNDT CAKE

¾ cup coarsely chopped pecans
¾ cup butter or margarine
1⅔ cups sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
¾ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup rum
2 cups unsifted all-purpose flour
⅓ cup unsweetened cocoa
½ tsp. salt
2 tsp. baking soda
¾ cup buttermilk or sour milk
Butter Rum Glaze (recipe below)

Glaze and flour 9-cup or 12-cup Bundt pan. Sprinkle nuts over bottom of pan. Set aside.

Cream butter or margarine, sugar, eggs and vanilla in large mixer bowl until light and fluffy; blend in sourcream and rum. Stir baking soda into buttermilk or sour milk. Combine flour, cocoa and salt; add alternately with buttermilk to creamed mixture. Beat 2 minutes at medium speed. Pour batter into prepared pan. Bake at 350 degrees for about 50 minutes. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Remove from pan; cool 30 minutes. Place onto serving plate. Prick top with fork or toothpick. Prepare Butter Rum Glaze; spoon and brush glaze evenly over top and sides. Allow cake to absorb glaze.

BUTTER RUM GLAZE

¼ cup butter
2 tblsp. water
½ cup sugar
¼ cup dark or light rum

Melt butter in small saucepan. Stir in water and sugar. Boil 3 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from heat; stir in rum.

HOLIDAY CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

½ cup butter
1 cup (6 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate mini chips
1 tsp. vanilla or 2 tblsp. Amaretto or Grand Marnier
4 eggs, separated
¼ cup sugar
3 tblsp. water
¼ tsp. cream of tartar
2 tblsp. sugar

Melt butter in small saucepan; remove from heat. Add chocolate chips; stir until melted. Blend in vanilla or liqueur.

Beat egg yolks in small mixer bowl until thick and lemon-colored. Heat ¼ cup sugar and water in small saucepan until mixture boils rapidly. Remove from heat; immediately pour hot mixture in thin stream into egg yolks, beating constantly. Continue beating 3 minutes on high speed or until doubled in volume. Carefully fold chocolate into egg yolk mixture; chill 20 minutes. Beat egg whites with cream of tartar until foamy; gradually beat in 2 tblsp. sugar. Beat until stiff peaks are formed. Fold whites into chocolate mixture; spoon into small dessert dishes or stemware.

Refrigerate several hours or preferably overnight. Garnish just before serving with sliced almonds or sweetened whipped cream and a cherry, if desired. 8 to 10 servings.

CHOCOLATE NUT CUPS

1 cup semi-sweet chocolate mini chips
1 cup peanut butter chips
2 tblsp. vegetable oil
1 cup salted peanuts

Combine chocolate chips, peanut butter chips and vegetable oil in top of double boiler. Place over hot water, stirring until chips are completely melted and well blended. Remove from heat; stir in peanuts. Cool slightly.; drop by teaspoonsful into decorative nut cups. Garnish with additional peanuts, peanut butter chips or sprinkle with finely chopped peanuts. Chill until firm. Store in covered container in refrigerator. About 4 dozen cups.

Learning to cope with the popular African violet

By DX FENTON
(c) 1981, Newsday

It's the most popular plant in America and sometimes the most frustrating. And sometimes, when your cherished African violet doesn't bloom, you have an overwhelming urge to send it back to its ancestors in its homeland. Who needs this aggravation?

The original African violet was pathetic looking with, in the eyes of its discoverer, "some possibilities." Over the years, everyone from large growers with more precise controls, to little old men and women working in their kitchens and basements have made improvements on the original saint-paulia. Ah, and what improvements! Today's plants are sturdier, hardier, resistant to certain diseases and pests and more colorful.

Today's African violets have been bred to bloom and bloom and bloom. All that breeding and hybridizing is directed to that end. So that if they just sit there with their leaves hanging out, if they bloom once and then stop, if they bloom when you buy them and never bloom again — you must be doing something wrong.

Sorry! You have no other excuse. You can't blame the plants, your so-called lack of green thumb or other vagaries of life. So you see, there is good reason to learn more about these delightful plants and apply this knowkedge so that you can once again see their charming, colorful blooms.

First , consider that African violets are not, as is generally believed, true shade-loving plants. These plants need a lot of light if they are going to thrive and bloom. The key is the kind of light. Give them plenty of bright, but indirect, light.

Another important factor is location. If your African violets are in a spot where they get little else but northern light from a north-facing window, you've found out why they haven't been blooming. Since a north window gets less light than any other window in the house, you can understand why the plants will refuse to bloom. African violets need a great deal more light than a north window can supply.

You can try to get some additional light to these plants by using reflectors or by cleaning the window. If this fails, put your plants under fluorescent lights.

If you want your plants to bloom using only window light, the best to choose are east- or west-facing. They receive the greatest amount of natural light, almost without regard for the season. While more light is available during some seasons than others, there is still enough light for your African violets to bloom well even during the darkest months. During the warmer months, you'll find there is so much light streaming in through those windows, you'll need some gauzy cirtains between the window and the plants to protect them from the burning rays of the sun.

Realize also that with an eastern or western exposure, the amount of light diminishes as the plants are moved further and further from the window. Similarly, at the other extreme, during cold weather, you should protect your plants by keeping them away from the glass and protecting them at night by slipping several sheets of newspaper between the plants and the freezing glass.

African violet growers generally agree that natural light from windows is unpredictable and offer no guarantee that your plants will bloom consistently. They feel that by substituting artificial light, in the form of fluorescent light, you'll end up with a winning combination virtually every time.

What you are aiming for is continuous bloom, so plan to give yur African violets between 12 and 14 hours under the fluorescent each day. Set up your plants on blocks or overturned saucers, so they are about 7 to 8 inches beneath the lamps. Watch your plants in this position for a few weeks. If they appear to be getting leggy, as if they were reaching for the light, raise them up another inch toward the light. It's a good idea to set the lights on a timer, which will remember far better than you will, and be sure to turn those lights off and on on schedule.

Which kind of tubes are best? Expert opinion varies widely. You should be able to get good results by using one cool white and one warm white tube in a two-tube fixture. If you'd like to experiment and have the room and the resources, you might try blooming some African violets under one cool white, others under only warm white and still others under one of the "grow" or "bloom" lights available at garden centers and nurseries. Most successful african violet growers used the combination cool-warm white tubes for most growing and until the plants start to bloom. Then they switch to the special bulb that gives off more light at both the far red and far blue ends of the spectrum. This they feel, will gove their plants additional stimulation and the impetus to produce vigorous bloom.

Though light, the amounts and kinds of it, is the most important ingredient in getting African violets to bloom lustly, other considerations must be evaluated. For example, african violets do not like to grow and certainly will not bloom if they are punished with tight pots. Often, the soil in an African violet pot will become packed down tight. If the roots cannot get air, if they become rootbound, their growth will slow considerably — ending any chance of flowering. Check your pot and check the plant's roots periodically. If it looks like there are too many roots in the pot and they don't have any room to grow, check further. See if the roots are a white or brown color. Brown roots are unhealthy and this will indicate one possible reason for the lack of bloom.

Should you find brown roots indicating the need to repot go ahead and do it, but carefully. Choose a pot one size larger than the current one. Gently remove some of the old soil or try to wash it off under a slowly running faucet. Tenderly replace the plant in its new pot and refill that new pot with a good potting mixture (which you can either buy or make) composed of approximately equal parts of peat moss, potting soil, perlite and vermiculite. This sort of potting mixture will drain well while holding enough nutrients to keep your African violet happily growing and blooming.

Just about the last consideration is food. After you are certain your plants are getting enough light and root space, check on the proportions of nutrients in the food you have been giving your plants.

Try these suggestions and watch your plants. It shouldn't take long before you'll be enjoying beautiful blooms.

Gugelhupf, above, is a traditional Viennese specialty. The cake contains a generous dose of cinnamon and is studded with raisins and almonds.

Viennese Gugelhupf features cinnamon, raisins and almonds

Cinnamon was one of the first Oriental spices to be introduced to Europe and consequently many of the desserts associated with the art of fine baking in Germany and Austria feature this sweetly aromatic flavor. Coffee cakes, dessert cakes, fruit tarts and puddings are among the cinnamon-y recipes.

One of the best known of the coffee cakes is Gugelhupf, the coffee cake with the hole in the middle and swirled fluted walls, which has many variations. The cake, a Viennese speciality, can be made from either a yeast dough or sponge cake mixture, sometimes plain or marbled with chocolate, and lovingly dosed with cinnamon. For holiday breakfasts it's a tradition to toast the cake slices and serve with butter and jam.

GUGELHUPF

2 packages active dry yeast
1 cup lukewarm milk (105-115F)
4 cups all-purpose flour (unsifted)
4½ tsp. ground cinnamon
1½ tsp. grated lemon peel
½ tsp. salt
1 cup butter or margarine, softened
½ cup sugar
4 eggs
1½ cups raisins
1 cup slivered almonds
Confectioner's Sugar Icing

In a small bowl combine yeast and milk; set aside for yeast to dissolve, about 5 minutes. Meanwhile, combine flour, cinnamon, lemon peel and salt. In the large bowl of an electric mixer cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add flour mixture alternately with reserved yeast mixture beginning and ending with flour. Gently stir in raisins and almonds. Cover with plastic wrap and a towel. Refrigerate overnight. Punch down dough. Place dough in a greased 10-inch Bundt or tube pan. Cover with a damp towel. Let rise in a warm place 1½ hours. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Bake until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean, about 45 minutes. Turn out on a wire rack; let cool. Spoon Confectioner's Sugar Icing over top of cake. Sprinkle with slivered almonds and raisins, if desired.

Confectioner's Sugar Icing: Combine ½ cup sifted confectioner's sugar, 1 tsp. milk and 1/8 tsp. pure vanilla extract; mix well until smooth. Yield 1 10-inch cake.

APFELBETTELMANN

5 tblsp. butter or margarine, divided
2 cups soft pumpernickel bread crumbs
¾ cup firmly-packed light brown sugar, divided
½ cup chopped walnuts
¼ cup golden raisins
¼ cup dark rum
2¼ tsp. ground cinnamon
4 tart cooking apples, peeled, cored and cut into ¼-inch slices (8 cups)
1 tblsp. lemon juice

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Melt 4 tblsp. of the butter. In a medium bowl combine melted butter, bread crumbs, ½ cup of the sugar, walnuts, raisins, rum and cinnamon; set aside. In a large bowl combine apples, lemon juice and remaining ¼ cup sugar. In a well-greased 1½ quart soufflé dish or casserole spread one-third of the reserved bread crumb mixture. Place one-half of the apples over mixture. Repeat layers ending with bread crumb mixture. Dot with remaining 1 tblsp. butter. Bake, uncovered, until apples are tender, about 50 minutes.

Worcester, Vt. vs. Washington, D.C.

By DAVID MACDONALD
(Special from Reader's Digest)

There was a time when the sovereign state of Vermont was far too self-reliant to accept financial handouts from Washington. In 1927, for example, after severe floods left many homeless, Gov. John E. Weeks flatly refused an offer of federal aid. "Vermont," he insisted, "will take care of its own."

But times, and attitudes, change. And so, when Congress established the local public-works program in 1976, providing $6 billion for state and local job projects, some 60 Vermont communities joined thousands across the nation in seeking funds. One applicant was the tiny town of Worcester (pop. 700), which was soon to make some amazing discoveries about Washington largesse.

Nestled in a valley 10 miles north of the state capital, Montpelier, Worcester had long been regarded as a fine place to raise children - but not to educate them. Its only elementary school, Doty Memorial, built for 50 pupils, had 105 of them jammed into two rundown buildings, one so chilly in winter that youngsters sometimes wore mittens in class.

In mid-'76, Washington offered $2 billion for Round I of its public-works program. To Mary Evans, a Worcester resident then working for Vermont Congressman James Jeffords, that seemed a likely solution to the school's problems. She drafted a bid for $532,000 - the estimated cost of upgrading Doty Memorial - and sent it to the Economic Development Administration (EDA), a Commerce Department agency that would process all such requests.

Vermont's share of the Round I awards was $10 million. Of that, $1.4 million went to Washington County, where Worcester was among a dozen applicants. But all the money was allocated to just two towns: $1.1 million for a new school at Northfield and $266,300 for water mains in Waterbury.

EDA officials led Worcester to believe that the town would benefit from a Round II grant. But three months later, when another $4 billion was doled out nationwide, the town again got nothing.

All told, EDA allocated $31 million to Vermont in 100-odd awards - some of them very odd. Of five communities sharing $2.6 million in Washington County, for example, three were granted $1.5 million more than they had asked for.

In spite of appeals and protests, Worcester got nowhere with EDA. One official claimed the town deserved no help because it had no unemployed people. Told that the town had dozens of jobless, he airily responded, "Well, it's all done by computers - as if it therefore must be right.

Tom Evslin, 33, a computer expert and moderator of Worcester's Town Meeting, knew that computers are only as reliable as the instructions they receive. So, in accordance with the new Freedom of Information Act, he obtained a copy of the computer program used, and the EDA's specifications for it.

The 1976 law had established seven criteria for the public-works grants. But - Evslin found to his surprise - the EDA 11 months later had promulgated its own regulation, stipulating only one consideration: severity of unemployment. "In other words," he says, "rules set by Congress were changed in the middle of the game by some unknown bureaucrats."

Evslin next hired lawyer Richard E. Davis from nearby Barre and, in summer 1977, the Worcester School District sued the Department of Commerce and EDA, charging that both had ignored procedures mandated by Congress and asking for a fair redistribution of Washington County's $2.6 million. The suit was backed by a petition bearing the signatures of almost every adult in town. As Evslin had suspected, no unemployment figure for Worcester had gone into the federal computer. So the machine automatically assigned a rate of 0.0 percent, which meant automatic exclusion from a grant. Yet a door-to-door survey showed that the real jobless rate had been 12.7 percent.

Evslin presented his figures at a hearing crowded with local supporters. Besides showing how EDA had violated the Congressional rules for Round II funding, he proved that EDA had countermanded another Congressional order: In cases where the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics had no unemployment rates for small towns, it was to use up-to-date state or local figures. But "to save time," as Washington lawyer Robert Pleshaw acknowledged, EDA had instead projected unemployment statistics from the latest census - showing that Worcester had no unemployment in '76 when its actual jobless rate was almost 13 percent.

Today, thanks to a hard-won award of $364,000, Doty Memorial School has five modern classrooms, a library, gymnasium - and room for 145 pupils. Worcester's victory proved that you CAN fight the government - and win.

RINGING THE BELL

Federal courts cure unhealthy things in government

With BOB TIEUEL

From a Black Perspective: The Department of Justice intends to play an active role in affecting the principles on which Ronald Reagan campaigned, states Attorney General William F. Smith. "We will attempt to reverse this unhealthy flow of power from state and federal legislatures to federal courts — and the concomitant flow of power from state and local governments to the federal level," adds Smith.

"Unhealthy?" We agree with Richard Reeves of the Dallas Morning News, that the Federal courts, as a matter of fact have cured more unhealthy things in modern American government than they caused. What triggered the active role of judges and federal courts were state and local governments that deliberately and systematically discriminated against the Americans who happened to be black. And state and federal legislatures that refused to take any action to deal with the obvious distress of Americans who happened to be politically unpopular — black school children and prisoners, for example.

And as my white brother and fellow columnist R. Reeves says, the United States has come a long way in this century. We have tried to face up to the problems of race and a racist history, and Americans have learned more and more about the value of truth in government.

David R. Brink, president of the American Bar Association, has said that the U.S. Attorney General's charges "tend to undermine public confidence in our system of justice."

As brother Carl Rowan puts it, "We Americans have believed for good reason for 100 years that independent judges and juries turning the wheels of justice are what make us rather unique in this world." Smith's doctrine seems to be: "While waiting to pack the courts, intimidate the current judges."

Driving along the familiar trails of West Texas and Southeastern New Mexico the other evening, we heard a radio news item that said 200,000 Oklahomans would go to bed tonight hungry. Can you believe it? How many Texans? How many New Mexicans will go to bed tonight hungry? Which brings us to what Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said the other day. She remarked that world hunger could be wiped out if dollars spent on military expansion were diverted to food programs.

Do we preserve the human body in health and vitality only to sacrifice it on the altar of war? she asked. The cost of one intercontinental missile "could plant 200 million trees, irrigate 1 million hectares (2.47 million acres) feed 50 million malnourished children...buy a million tons of fertilizers, erect a million small biogas plants, build 65,000 health care centers or 340,000 primary schools," she said.

Mrs. Gandhi, leader of a nation of 684 million people, called on all nations — particularly more advanced countries that are duty bound to aid developing nations — to reorder their spending priorities.

"The prosperity of any single country is linked with that of the rest of the world. The food-security larder requires much more than the periodic generosity of the rich," she added. She spoke before the 21st Congress of the Food and Agricultural Organization in Rome and composed of some 147 nations of the world, it was reported.

Among the resolutions passed by the recent Conference on Aging in Washington, D.C., by the thousands of delegates and observers present were:

1. A call for a continuing high level of government support for older people.
2. No reductions in Social Security benefits or Medicare and Medicaid spending.
3. Creation of a national health insurance program that would cover home health services for the elderly.

Charge account bill disputes can be solved if procedure is followed

By LINDA TRUITT
Better Business Bureau
of the Permian Basin, Inc.

Most of us have completed our Christmas shopping and can now begin to enjoy the festivities. The holiday mood will stay with us until the January bills start arriving. Since more merchandise is charged this time of year, it is also possible more billing mistakes will occur. The Truth in Lending law outlines a specific procedure that both you and the business must follow in order to resolve charge account bill disputes.

The billing dispute procedure mandated by the federal law is set in motion when you send a written notice to the creditor describing the error. The notice must be mailed or delivered to the creditor within 60 days after the bill was received, and must include your name and account number, a brief statement of why you feel a billing error exists, and the type, date and amount of the error. Any of the following are considered billing errors:

— Accounting errors;
— Failing to credit payments or the return of goods;
— Unauthorized charges or charges not made; — Charges for goods not delivered as agreed or which were not accepted;
— Incorrect dates, descriptions or amounts on bills;
— Any charge when the consumer asks for additional clarification, including documentary evidence;
— Sending the bill to the wrong address provided that the creditor was given a change of address notice at least 20 days before the bill was sent.

The notice must be acknowledged by the creditor within 30 days and settled within 90 days. During this time the creditor must either correct the billing error and send a correction notice to the consumer, or send a written explanation as to why the bill is correct.

While conducting the investigation, the creditor cannot demand that the disputed portion of the bill be paid, although it is your responsibility to pay the rest of the bill. The creditor is also not allowed to issue an adverse report to any person about your credit standing, or report that the account is delinquent because of your failure to pay the disputed amount.

If the creditor determines the bill is correct, he must notify you in writing of the amount that is due, including the finances charges, and when the bill must be paid. Reports concerning the delinquent account can only be issued if you fail to pay within the specified time period.

If you send a second written notice disagreeing with the bill, then the creditor must also include in the report that the account is in dispute. You must also be furnished with the names and addresses of all who receive a report. Later, if the dispute is resolved, the creditor must send a new report to all those who received the former one.

It is hoped that your holiday credit shopping will go smoothly and you will billed only for those items you purchased. If, however, you experience a billing problem and are unable to resolve the dispute, contact the Better Business Bureau at 563-1881.

First commodores chosen since World War II

By KIP COOPER
Copley News Service

The Navy is expected to announce soon the names of captains to be promoted to the rank of commodore — the first appointment of commodores since World War II.

A selection board of senior flag officers met in Washington from Dec. 8 to Wednesday, Dec. 16, to select the new commodores from a list of eligible captains.

Because of a change in the law approved by Congress that revives the rank of commodore, captains selected for promotion no longer will be advanced directly to the rank of rear admiral.

Heretofore, Navy captains jumped to the two-star rank when promoted, whereas their colonel counterparts in the Army, Air Force and Marine Corps advanced to the one-star rank of brigadier general.

The pay for the newly selected flag officers was the same because the rear admirals, although wearing and enjoying the prestige of two stars, were in a pay status called "rear admiral, lower half."

When the Navy men advanced to full rear admiral, they became rear admirals of the upper half and their pay became comparable to major generals in the other services.

But brigadier generals were able to wear two stars only when they advanced to the rank of major general.

The stars worn by flag officers level out at the three-star rank of vice admiral and lieutenant general.

The rank of commodore was revived by congress when it accepted an amendment offered in the fiscal year 1982 defense authorization bill.

The Navy sought to retain the rank of rear admiral for new selectees then sought to have the title read "commodore admiral."

But Rep. Sam Stratton, D-N.Y., said the Navy wanted the longer title so that officers holding the rank still could be addressed as "admiral."

Stratton said "commodore" was good enough for Matthew Perry who opened Japan to Western commerce and that it should be good enough for the commodores of today.

Some of the most famous naval heroes in American history have held the rank of commodore. Among them have been Stephen Decatur, Edward Preble, David Porter and Isaac Hull.

The rank of commodore was a courtesy title in the Navy until 1862 and was conferred upon a naval officer commanding more than one ship, according to Navy history.

Then the rank became official until 1899 at which time it was abolished. It was restored in 1943 and abolished again after World War II.

According to naval records, the sea service did not commission admirals of any rank until 1862 because of early American prejudice against monarchic forms.

The captains selected for promotion by the recent board will have their names forwarded to President Reagan for approval, via the chief of naval operations, Adm. Thomas B. Hayward, and Navy Secretary John Lehman.

As president, Mr. Reagan is commander in chief of the armed forces.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Beware of dipping into savings to complete holiday spending. Use tact when handling problems with your elders. You meet new people, gain fresh insights at social functions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The emphasis is on your ability to show someone that you truly care. Person who has been reluctant to express his or appreciation now does so! You feel fulfilled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Avoid getting caught up in crowds. Rely on your own talents and you will go far. Romance looks promising. Accept a last-minute social invitation. You could meet your dream mate!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It may be hard to get much work done this week. Do the best you can. Some bosses have the same spirit of Scrooge! Situation with mate works out just fine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You and loved one may have to deal with sensitive matter. Thoughts of romance, holiday socializing make it hard to concentrate. Your arguments on a job topic are persuasive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be responsible when making your final holiday plans. Keep budget in mind. An organized effort is important in keeping holiday commitments. Handle phone calls, appointments promptly.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may be able to turn an imaginative idea into additional income. Family matters take precedence now. Talk things over with mate before moving in a new direction.

The rush for smaller cars seems to be ending

By DAVID LIGHTMAN
The Hartford Courant

WASHINGTON — American consumers are shifting gears and turning away from small cars, according to research surveys, sales figures and dealer comments.

"Attitudes have changed," says Carl W. Hendrickson, division manager at Market Opinion Research, which conducted a nationwide poll on car buyers' habits. "Last year fuel economy was the absolute buzzword. This year it's financing."

"The small car boom has temporarily ended," confirms Ford sales analyst L. Ray Windecker. "The mid-size decline has stopped."

Hendrickson's independent Detroit-based firm surveyed 1,000 licensed drivers and 200 dealers across the country, and found only 36 percent of those polled had their eye on a compact or subcompact as their next car.

The figure was a striking drop from just a year ago, when the same survey found 55 percent interested in smaller cars.

Those same consumers were now coveting the bigger models. Forty-one percent said they would buy mid-sized cars and 17 percent like large cars, compared to 33 percent and 12 percent figures respectively in 1980.

Sales figures also indicate that the trend for smaller cars has leveled off. Manufacturers' reports show that in the first 11 months of this year, subcompact cars had 43 percent of the total market while mid-sized and compact cars had 40.7 percent.

Those percentages are about the same as last year, but that stability is significant because for years the smaller cars' share of the business ballooned like an out-of-control air bag.

It went from 29.1 percent in 1975, just after the first Arab oil embargo, to 36.6 percent in 1979, during the second wave of gas lines.

Now it has leveled off, and through the first nine months of 1981, sales of several large models are running well ahead of last year, even while the auto industry remains stuck in neutral and often reverse.

Oldsmobile and Buick, for instance, are showing notable strength. Buick had 8.4 percent of the car sales market in the 1981 model year, compared to 7.6 percent the year before and 6.9 percent in 1979.

Its Skylark vaulted into second place in sales for all domestic makes in September, just behind the Citation. Last year the Skylark finished 11th.

At the Olds showrooms, the Delta Royale, the 98, Toronado, Calais and Omega all show sizable sales gains this year over 1980.

In contrast, Plymouth has lost nearly 25 percent of its 1980 Horizon sales, while AMC Spirit is proving a lifeless seller at 30 percent below last year's levels.

Dealers, analysts and experts see a number of influences meshing to create this trend, and many find one particular car most representative of the change — the new Chevrolet Cavalier, or J-car.

Introduced last spring, this was to be General Motors' most high-powered entry yet into direct competition with foreign cars. Solid production values, long considered the imports' strong suit, were stressed heavily.

But quality cost money, because, as GM's Harold Jackson said, "We really put the screws on at those plants. We turned back whole shipments of parts, for instance, after the car's announcement date had already been set."

That was the first problem — there often were not enough Cavaliers on hand to sell while the car was being introduced.

And when it was around, the four-door sedan had a sticker price of $7,187, some $288 more than the popular Chevy Citation, and in the ballpark of the larger Malibu.

"When people haven't been in a showroom in three or four years, that kind of price surprises them," said Jackson.

Further, "People look at size, rather than value," said Cindy C. Cavanaugh, fleet manager for Gene Cable Chevrolet in Independence, Mo. "The Cavalier is very well made; you can tell that just from shutting the door.

"But Chevy hasn't done a good job promoting it. They advertise that it has 41 standard features, but that can really get a little picky."

Cavalier sales have been miserable, and Chevy is ready with a new strategy. Next month, it is expected to introduce a Cavalier Kadette at about $1,100 less than the current models.

The Cavalier's problems reflect a broad change in car-buying patterns brought on by several factors.

Bill Pippin REAL ESTATE

2.7 MI. EAST OF Y ON HIGHWAY 70

Telephone 378-4016

P.O. Box 966 — Ruidoso Downs, New Mexico 88346

December, 1981

Dear Friends, Past, Present and Future Customers and to Whom it May Concern:

I'd like to take a moment to share with you something I learned the hard way. In December of 1977 I sold my real estate business. This of course was no big deal - people sell their businesses every day. The unfortunate part was that I sold my name also. For an ole ex school teacher, that wasn't too smart. I just did not realize how dear a person's name is until you no longer have it. To make a l-o-n-g story short, I now have my name back. I AM NOW ME AGAIN. BILL PIPPIN REAL ESTATE is now owned and operated by BILL PIPPIN himself. I have operated under the trade name Trail's End Real Estate for the past couple of years. Needless to say, it's good to be yourself again.

We have a different location, a different mailing address and a different phone number. We do still have the same reliable service we tried to provide in years past. We will handle general real estate as always and will have a good inventory of saleable properties.

We have been camped out in the old restaurant building in front of our home. We are located approximately 1 mile east of the Chaparral Motel Hotel. (Which we are proud to say we recently sold to Joe McDermott, John Connally and Ben Barnes.) At present, we've got a wood burning stove you can back up to while you drink a good cup of coffee and talk over your real estate needs. We might even force a hunting story on you. By summer, we hope to be in the same building but with a completely different atmosphere and a real live secretary. You need to drop by now so you can witness the before (now) and after (later).

I sincerely appreciate the many friends in Ruidoso as well as all over the country. Many-many of these friends came about through the real estate business, Many we sold property to, many we sold for and some we just showed. So it goes without saying that I am a very fortunate man. God, as well as all the wonderful friends, have indeed been good to me.

The main thing, we just wanted you to know we are back in business as Bill Pippin Real Estate and sure hope you will come by for coffee. As some other enterprising person stated, "We don't want all the business, just yours". We are looking forward to serving your real estate needs and can assure you we will do our best.

Since it is so close to Christmas, we would like to take this opportunity to wish everyone a wonderful Holiday Season and a New Year filled with peace, health, wealth, love and happiness.

Sincerely,

Bill Pippin

Poll says

Americans favor stopping oil purchases from Libya

By TIMOTHY HARPER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans familiar with reports that Libya has dispatched an assassination team to kill President Reagan are overwhelmingly opposed to U.S. military action against that country, according to the latest Associated Press-NBC News poll.

The poll, however, also said there is strong support for President Reagan's ban on American travel to Libya and for ending U.S. oil purchases from Libya as a result of the reports.

Telephone interviews with 1,602 adults, selected in a nationwide scientific random sampling on Monday and Tuesday, were the basis for the poll.

U.S. officials reported earlier this month that Col. Moammar Khadafy, Libya's ruler, had assembled a team of killers to assassinate President Reagan and other top American officials. Khadafy denied the accusations and challenged the Reagan administration to prove the claims.

Reagan said Thursday that he had "complete confidence" in the reports and that it would be "foolish" to relax the increased security around him.

In the poll, 59 percent said they think the threat to the president is serious, while 22 percent thought it is not, and 19 percent either were unsure or said they had not heard or read of the reports.

Among those who said they were familiar with the assassination plot reports, 57 percent said the United States should stop buying oil from Libya, 27 percent said the United States should conntinue buying Libyan oil and 16 percent were not sure.

The State Department's energy office estimates the United States is currently importing 150,000 barrels of oil a day from Libya, or about 3 percent of total U.S. oil imports. Estimates from industry analysts range from 150,000 to 300,000 barrels a day.

Libya, whose oil prices are among the highest in the world, currently is producing about 600,000 to 700,000 barrels daily, according to industry estimates. That is down from about 1.7 million barrels a day in January.

Eighty-seven percent of the poll respondents who had heard or read of the assassination team reports said the United States should not take military action against Libya, compared with only 6 percent who said there should be a military response and 7 percent who were not sure.

Pending the outcome of investigations into the reports, Reagan's principal response was last weekend's announcement of a ban on travel by U.S. citizens to Libya and a request that the estimated 1,500 Americans now working in Libya return to the United States.

Among all respondents, barely half said they had heard or read about Reagan's recent actions with regard to Libya, but those people were more than 4-to-1 in favor of the president's ban on travel to Libya.

Respondents who said they favor the travel ban and those who say the threat to Reagan is serious were more likely than other respondents to say the United States should stop buying Libyan oil.

And Republicans were more likely than Democrats or independents to say the United States should stop buying oil from Libya.

As with all sample surveys, the results of AP-NBC News polls can vary from the opinions of all Americans because of chance variations in the sample.

For a poll based on about 1,600 interviews, the results are subject to an error margin of 3 percentage points either way because of chance variations. That is, if one could have talked this past week to all Americans with telephones, there is only 1 chance in 20 that the findings would vary by more than 3 percentage points.

Of course, the results could differ from other polls for a number of reasons. Differences in the exact wording of questions, differences in when the interviews were conducted and different methods of interviewing could also cause variations.

Midland uses less labor

Employers in the Midland area report a slight dip in the employment outlook for the next three months, according to a quarterly survey conducted by Manpower, Inc., the world's largest temporary service firm.

Wally Richman, owner of Manpower's Midland office, said, "Overall, 27% of the area employers polled plan to hire additional workers during the first quarter (January, february, March), down from the 43% with similar intentions one year ago. However, none expect staff reductions, and 73% plan no change in staff levels. While these results are less optimistic than those reported here one year ago, they are well ahead of national and regional results for this quarter."

In a similar survey conducted one year ago at this time, 7% expected staff reductions and 50% predicted no change in staff levels.

Poor to get $350 million heating aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government said today it has freed an additional $350 million in low-income energy aid grants to states.

The Department of Health and Human Services had previously made $700 million available.

Congress appropriated $1.75 billion for the energy aid program in fiscal 1982, and states have been clamoring to get the aid with winter coming on.

Basin rig count nearing 500

There was a samll increase this past week in the Permian Basin rotary rig count, according to a survey by Reed Rock Bit Company. The tally rose from 491 DEC. 11, to 497 on Friday.

The national count is still climbing, up 20 at last count from the previous week's total. The International Association of Drilling Contractors reports 4,525 rigs actually making hole across the nation, offshore and on, Dec. 14. One month earlier the count was 4,469. On Dec. 15, 1980 the IADC recorded 3,303 working rigs.

IADC figures indicate 1,381 land rigs were working Texas last week. An additional 156 were making hole in New Mexico.

One year ago Reed counted 371 rigs turning to the right in the Permian Basin.

Midland County ranked 37th in state crude oil sales

Dallas — The sale of crude oil and natural gas from Midland County wells in 1980 boosted the county economy and accounted for $239.5 million of the $31.2 billion value placed on Texas production last year.

In a report on the economic impact of oil and gas industry operations in the top producing counties of Texas, Dallas-based Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association said the county ranked 37th among Texas' 254 counties on the basis of the value of its marketed petroleum production. This includes condensate and casinghead gas.

The county's wells produced 7.1 million barrels of crude oil, valued at $152.5 million, and 58.5 million Mcfs of natural gas, valued at $87 million. Owners of royalty in the county received $29.9 million as their share of the output, the Association said.

"Although crude oil and natural gas production in Texas declined slightly last year from 1979 levels, we in the industry are encouraged by the fact that drilling starts in 1980 were up 16 percent over the previous year," said the Association's chairman, Avery Rush, Jr., of Amarillo. "Since petroleum remains the cornerstone of our state's economy and its tax base, Texas must continue to encourage the development of its energy resources," Rush added.

In addition to paying local, county, and state property taxes, producers in the county also supported state government through production tax payments estimated at $13.5 million, according to the Association. Crude oil taxes amounted to $7 million while natural gas levies totalled $6.5 million.

Based on Texas Employment Commission figures, some 11,743 oil and gas industry employees in the county received wages of about $267.6 million in 1980.

In the search for new petroleum reserves in the county, oil and gas operators spent a reported $16.7 million in the drilling of 68 wells, including one wildcat, or exploratory, well. This effort resulted in the completion of 66 oil wells, although some $981,556 was lost in the drilling of two dry holes. As of March 1, 1981, there were 1,454 producing wells in the county; 1,288 oil and 166 gas.

Petroleum processing also contributed to the county economy, with four natural gasoline plants, having a total daily capacity of 211.1 million cubic feet of natural gas, and one petrochemical plant in operation.

The well tested at 530 barrels of oil per day plus 249,000 cubic feet of gas per day on a 6/64 inch choke with 1,500 pounds flowing tubing pressure, and is currently producing at 440 barrels of oil per day plus 243,000 cubic feet of gas per day on a 9.5/64 inch choke with 1,450 pounds flowing tubing pressure.

A second well, the Riggs No. 2 (located 1,200 feet south, and 400 feet east of the discovery well) was spudded in November.

Mid-America and its affiliates own 18.75 percent of the working interest and Dynasty Oil Corporation and its affiliates own 6.25 percent. Stone Oil Corporation is the operator and owns 75 percent of the working interest. The prospect on which this discovery well is located comprises approximately 3,800 acres.

SAN FRANCISCO — Production has started on the fourth platform of the Natomas Company in the Zelda field of Indonesia's Java Sea.

Sufficient oil resources have been confirmed and a fifth platform will be intstalled.

The Zelda D platform started production at an initial rate of approximately 2,700 barrels of oil per day from one of nine scheduled Zelda D platform wells located in the Southeast Sumatra contract area where Natomas is operator with 53 percent of the contractors' interests.

The location for the fifth platform in the Zelda field, the Zelda E platform, was confirmed when the Zelda No. 13 delineation well flowed at the cumulative rate of 4,163 barrels of oil per day from two tests in the Talang Akar sands.

Contingent upon approval from Pertamina, Natomas plans to install a nine-well platform in April 1982, begin production immediately from two initial wells and continue development drilling on the remaining seven wells.

Natoma's IIAPCO division is operator in the contract area for a group of companies, which hold a production-sharing contract with Petramina, Indonesia's state-owned petrolum enterprise. Other group members include Reading and Bates Petroleum Co., Reading and Bates Corp., Hudbay Oil (Indonesia) Ltd. (a subsidiary of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Company Limited), Warrior International Corp., Tidewater S. E. Sumatra Inc. and Hilliard Oil and Gas Inc. (both subsidiaries of Tidewater Inc.), Sunda Shell N. V., Getty Oil (Sumatra) Inc., Japan Low Sulfur Oil Co. Ltd., Transocean Gulf Oil Co. (a subsidiary of Gulf Oil Corp.), and Tom Brown, Inc.

DENVER, Colo. — Energy Management Corporation (EMC) announced it has tested substantial flows of gas and oil from two wells in Major County, Oklahoma, owned 100 percent, by the Company and its 1977-C Energy Gas & Oil Drilling Program

EMC said its Ratzlaff No. 2 well located in section 11, township 20 north, range 12 west, flowed at the rate of 2.7 million cubic feet of gas per day during a test of the Hunton sand within the interval 8,488 — 8,522 feet. Flowing tubing pressure was 1,000 pounds per square inch on a 12/64 inch choke.

EMC also announced that its Karber No. 2 well, located one mile south of the Ratzlaff No. 2 well, flowed oil on production tests at the rate of 168 barrels of oil per day. The Karber No. 2 well encountered 34 feet of Hunton sand within the interval 8,518 - 8,563 feet.

EMC and its 1977-C Energy Gas & Oil Drilling Program own a 100 percent working interest in both the Ratzlaff No. 2 and Karber No. 2 wells. EMC acquired 92 percent of the 1977-C Energy Gas & Oil Drilling Program in January 1980 through an Exchange Offering of common stock.

EMC is a Denver-based firm engaged in energy exploration and production activities in the Texas/Louisiana Gulf Coast, West Texas, and Anadarko, Arkoma, and Rocky Mountain Basins. EMC also serves as general partner for the Energy Gas & Oil Drilling Programs. EMC's stock and convertible debentures are traded on the American Stock Exchange.

RIVERTON, Wyo. — Minex Resources, Inc. of Riverton said it is setting production casing on its Minex Federal 31-35 well in Cheyenne County, Nebraska.

The well, in section 35, township 15 north, range 50 west, is less than a half-mile from oil production and was drilled on Minex Resources' Sioux Depot Prospect.

In a preliminary drillstem test, 83 feet of oil was recovered, along with 90 feet of heavily oil and gas-cut drilling mud and 90 feet of salt water. Gas flowed to the surface during the entire second opening, increasing to a final volume of 166,000 cubic feet per day. Reservoir pressure was 784 pounds per square inch. Although the test results were favorable, they do not assure that the well will produce oil or gas in commercial quantities.

Minex owns a 100 percent working interest in the well, which was drilled to the "D" sand at approximately 4,720 feet. If the well proves commercially productive, the company's net revenue interest will be between 70 percent and 82.5 percent, depending on production rates.

The Sioux Depot Prospect consists of three federal leases totaling 1,800 acres. A gas processing plant operated by Marathon Oil is nearby.

Dennis W. Tippetts, president, said Minex will immediately begin drilling a second well, in section 18, township 14 north, range 50 west, about six miles southwest of the Minex Federal 31-35.

MINNEAPOLIS — Dyco Petroleum Corporation announced the completion of two granite wash wells extending the Meritt Field, Beckham County, Oklahoma, two miles to the southwest. Dyco finaled the Trimm No. 1-7 and the White No. 1-13, testing 2.6 million cubic feet of gas and 80 barrels of oil per day on a 14/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,300 pounds per square inch and 3.5 million cubic feet of gas and 78 barrels of oil daily on a 14/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,200 pounds per square inch, respectively.

Both wells were acidized prior to testing and both are shut in awaiting pipeline connection.

The extension tests are located in Dyco's Carter Northwest Prospect, with the Trimm No. 1-7 in section 7, township 10 north, range 22 west, and the White No. 1-13 in section 13, township 10 north, range 23 west in Beckham County, Okla.

Dyco is the operator on the wells and shares a 35.12 percent and 28.34 percent interest in the wells, respectively, with the Company's 1981-2 Oil and Gas Drilling Program.

••••

MINNEAPOLIS — Dyco also announced initial test results on the McCoy No. 2-17 well, located in the Company's Hollis N.W. Prospect in Section 17 of Township 14 North Range 26 West in Roger Mills County, Oklahoma. The well perforated sixteen feet of Upper Morrow Hollis sand from 14,864 feet to 14,880 feet, testing 4.13 million cubic feet of gas per day on a 17/64-inch choke with a flowing tubing pressure of 2,892 pounds per square inch.

The McCoy well links production in the south portion of the Hamburg West Field with production out of the Reydon Field. Wells in each of the two fields produce up to 10.9 million cubic feet of gas daily.

Dyco is the operator on the well and shares a 46.7 percent interest with the Company's 1981-1 Oil and Gas Drilling Program.

Other joint interest owners in the McCoy No. 2-17 are Trigg Drilling Company, Mabee Petroleum, Craig, Ltd., Kansas-Nebraska Natural Gas Company and Panhandle Eastern Exploration Company.

Dyco Conducts exploration activities for the oil and gas programs it organizes and manages. The Company is headquartered in Minneapolis, with operations headquarters in Tulsa. Other operations offices are located in Denver, Colo. and Elk City, Okla.

CALGARY, Alberta — Coseka Resources Limited of Calgary, in its first venture outside of North America, is participating in the drilling of the Progreso-IX Philippines well on Mindoro Island in the Republic of the Philippines.

The well is on a 212,500-acre onshore and offshore concession operated by Sedco Energy Corporation of Dallas.

The projected 6,000-foot Miocene test is 105 miles west of the Cities Service Galco No. 1 Miocene sandstone oil discovery, drilled in August 1981.

Sedco is the operator, with Coseka earning a 25 percent interest in the concession.

The well is expected to reach total depth in January 1982.

HOUSTON — A third natural gas discovery on the K/10 block in the Dutch sector of the North Sea has been reported by Pennzoil Nederland Co., operator for a group of international companies.

The discovery well, designated K/10-9PG, tested gas from the Rotliengendes sand formation at a rate of 28 million cubic feet per day through a one-inch choke.

The interval tested from the bottom part of a 350-foot gas-bearing section.

The new well, located about 100 miles northwest of The Hague, was drilled to a total depth of 9,413 feet. It was tested from perforations between 9,262 and 9,275 feet.

Recreation areas opened to mining

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Interior Department said Friday it was issuing regulations opening five national recreation areas to mineral exploration and revoking restrictions on motor boat trips through the Grand Canyon.

Environmental groups immediately attacked the changes, saying they showed how far Interior Secretary James Watt was willing to go in promoting development no matter how much it harms the National Park system.

But Interior Department officials said the mining regulations had been ordered by a federal court and the motor boat change resulted from instructions from Congress.

The five recreation areas are Lake Meade in Arizona and Nevada, Glen Canyon in Utah and Arizona, Whiskeytown in California and Ross Lake and Lake Chelan in Washington.

The Carter administration had proposed that oil and gas drilling be allowed in the five areas, but the Reagan administration went further and also permitted "hard rock" mining for minerals such as copper, nickle, and manganese.

Ron Tipton, a national park specialist with the Wilderness Society, said Watt's changes were a serious reversal of earlier policy because of the potential for environmental damage presented by mining operations.

"Oil and gas leases have significantly less impact than hard rock mining," he said. "When you mine the top of a mountain or take a pit out of a meadow, you are lessening the public's enjoyment of these areas."

National Park Service spokesman George Berklacy said the regulations had been drafted in response to a 1979 court decision ordering the government to issue rules governing mineral leasing in national recreation areas where such leasing is permitted by law.

He said the rules provide that portions of all five recreation areas will be exempted from mineral and oil leasing where such activity would be "incompatible with the primary purposes for which these recreation areas were established."

The country's 17 national recreation areas allow swimming, boating and other recreational activities with less emphasis on conservation than in the national parks.

Berklacy said the mineral rules would be formally issued next Monday. He said a policy change affecting motorized boats and rafts on the Colorado River as it flows through the Grand Canyon is already being implemented.

The new policy reverses a 1979 decision to begin a five-years phaseout of motorized boat traffic through the canyon. Watt has been outspoken in his criticism of the ban which environmentalists said was needed to keep the river from getting too congested.

Under the new policy, instead of phasing out all motorized craft, the number will actually increase because the park service is also allowing a 77 percent hike in the number of trips allowed down the river, Tipton said.

But Berklacy said the park service felt obligated to make the change because Congress put langauge in the 1981 budget forbidding implementation of the ban.

"This is the worst park service decision we have seen," Tipton said. "The idea behind the 1979 policy was that at least one river in America should offer the kind of silence and solitude that comes only in wilderness."

Saudi Arabian order making barrel of oil crude heavier

HOUSTON — The average barrel of Saudi Arabian crude oil is getting heavier as Aramco attempts to fulfill a Saudi goverment order that by January 1986 crude production be split equally between extra light and light oil and the medium and heavy grades.

But in 1980, Arabian Light still accounted for 65.11 percent of total Saudi production and one field - Ghawar, the world's largest, still was the source of 57.60 percent of all Saudi production.

The figures are among many made available to PI International by the technical division of the Ministry of Petroleum and Mineral Resources. They are part of the most detailed information about drilling activity and production ever released by Saudi authorities, the weekly publication says in its December 14 issue. The data includes the number of wells by type, and the distribution of Saudi crude oil production by field, area and types of crude.

PI International reports that the Ghawar field still produces 57.6 percent of Saudi Arabia's crude.

Aramco drilling activity increased during 1980 with 50 percent more wells being drilled than in 1979. the company's output also increased by four percent, to a total of 3,525,080,035 barrels during 1980.

PI International, which covers oil and gas developments worldwide, is published by Petroleum Information Corporation, a subsidiary of A.C. Nielsen Company.

Oil companies cutting gasoline prices

By ROBERT BURNS
Associated Press Business Writer

Several major oil companies cut wholesale gasoline prices by nearly one cent a gallon Friday, foreshadowing lower prices at the pump for American motorists.

Amoco Oil Co., the nation's third-largest gasoline seller and a unit of Standard Oil Co. (Indiana), cut wholesale prices for all grades of gasoline in most areas of the country by between one-half cent and 1.2 cents a gallon.

"It's competitive marketing conditions," that have forced Amoco and other gasoline marketers to cut prices, said Mike Thompson, an Amoco spokesman in Chicago.

The reductions do not automatically mean lower prices at the pump, but analysts said the savings probably would be passed on to consumers within days.

Gasoline prices have been falling steadily since last spring, mainly because of the worldwide oversupply of crude and refined petroleum and conservation that has reduced U.S. oil consumption by about 4 percent this year.

"The continuing price resistence of the consuming public has caused so much fierce competition" that gasoline marketers "have been struggling just to hang on to their traditional share of the market," said Dan Lundberg, who publishes an industry journal.

The national average price of wholesale gasoline, excluding taxes, has dropped from $1.13 per gallon in mid-March to $1.09 per gallon in early December, according to Lundberg Survey Inc., a price research firm in Los Angeles.

Amoco cut wholesale prices as much as 0.7 cent per gallon in most of the South and Southeast, up to 0.8 cent per gallon in most of the Northeast, and up to 1.2 cents per gallon in most states between the Rocky Mountains and the Mississippi River, Thompson said. That represents most of Amoco's market.

Conoco Inc. cut wholesale prices Friday by between one-quarter cent and one-half cent a gallon in the Midwest.

"This is in reaction to the industry's supply surplus," said Al Amsden, a Conoco spokesman in Houston.

Earlier this week Conoco cut prices 0.4 cent per gallon in Washington state and one cent per gallon in the Midwest and Gulf Coast states, its main markets.

Exxon Co. U.S.A., the nation's second-largest gasoline marketer, said it cut wholesale gasoline prices a half cent per gallon for all grades on the West Coast and in parts of the Rocky Mountain area.

Exxon's lower wholesale prices were effective Thursday, according to A.F. Icken, Exxon's manager of fuel products coordination in Houston. A week earlier the company had cut its prices by an average 0.7 cent a gallon in all regions not affected by Thursday's move.

Marathon Oil Co., which sells gasoline mainly in the Midwest and Southeast, confirmed it cut wholesale prices by one cent a gallon on all grades throughout its system. A week earlier it had cut all prices by one-half cent.

In addition to sagging demand, oil companies are facing another competitive pressure in West Coast markets: higher imports of Chinese gasoline.

Wholesale gasoline prices on the West Coast have fallen particularly fast in recent months, and some companies say they are forced to reduce prices to compete with cheaper Chinese gasoline.

The value of imported Chinese gasoline in the first eight months of this year totaled $122 million, according to the latest Commerce Department figures. That is about 50 percent more than in all of 1980.

Six arrested for equipment theft

HOUSTON (AP) — Six men caught trying to sell $300,000 worth of stolen oil field equipment were held Friday pending federal charges, police reported.

The men, three from Mississippi and three from Louisiana, were arrested late Wednesday when they reportedly tried to sell the equipment to a businessman.

The six men were being held in city jail pending a variety of federal charges including interstate transportation of stolen property, conspiracy and theft from interstate shipment, authorities said.

15 permits to operate pipelines granted by RRC

AUSTIN — Fifteen permits to operate new pipelines in Texas were granted by the RRC in November 1981.

Eight of the permits were for gathering pipelines, five were for trunk transmission lines, and one was for a gas plant line. Another was for a multi-purpose line.

Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases, while a trunk transmission line is a larger diameter line into which smaller lines connect. At gas plants, natural gas is stripped of liquid hydrocarbons usually present in wellhead gas.

Thirteen of the newly-permitted pipelines will transport gas, while two will move petroleum products.

Private pipelines accounted for 12 permits last month, while two were for common carriers and one was for a gas utility. A common carrier performs public work for hire, such as the movement of petroleum products.

In November, four permits were granted in East Texas, three in Southeast Texas, two each in the Midland area and North Texas, and one each in West Central Texas and the Refugio and San Angelo areas. Another permit was issued for a line from Hemphill County in the Panhandle to Pecos County in West Texas.

Gathering lines approved:

B&M Operating Company, Inc., Houston, gas, Harris County; Gulftide Gas Corporation, Houston, gas, Rusk County; Seagull Pipeline Corporation, Houston, gas, Brazoria County; Rutherford Oil Corporation, Victoria, gas, Victoria County; Trico Pipeline, Inc., San Angelo, gas, Coleman County; Red River Gas, Ltd., Duncan, Okla., gas, Grayson County; Longhorn Gas Pipeline Co., Graham, gas, Young County; Morrow Resources, Inc., Odessa, gas, Tom Green County.

Trunk transmission lines approved:

Red River Pipeline, Dallas, gas, Hemphill, Wheeler, Collingsworth, Donley, Hall, Briscoe, Floyd, Crosby, Lubbock, Lynn, Dawson, Gaines, Andrews, Ector, Crane, Ward, and Pecos counties; Navajo Pipeline Co., Artesia, N.M., products, Culberson, Ector, El Paso, Hudspeth, Loving, Midland, Reeves, and Winkler counties; Midland-Lea Pipeline Co., Hobbs, N.M., products, Culberson, Ector, El Paso, Hudspeth, Loving, Midland, Reeves, and Winkler counties; Esperanza Transmission Co., Corpus Christi, gas, Sabine County; American Pipeline Co., Houston, gas, Rusk County.

Gas plant lines approved:

Pinewood Gas Co., Dallas, gas, Smith County.

Multi-purpose lines approved:

West Columbia Pipeline Co., Houston, gas, Brazoria County.

AUSTIN —Sixty seven refineries in Texas processed 130,093,707 barrels of crude oil and hydrocarbon blends during July 1981.

This volume compares with 131,297,971 barrels in the previous July, the Commission's Oil and Gas Division reported in its monthly recapitulation of Texas refinery operations. Inputs of crude oil and blends totaled 128,346,360 barrels in June 1981.

Mitchell engineers develop new recovery technique

THE WOODLANDS — Two Mitchell Energy & Development Corp. petroleum engineers have invented a technique for boosting oil recovery from some formations by as much as 10 to 15 percent.

Mitchell Energy's George W. Hover and Robert M. Barber, and outside consultant Ralph E. Gilchrist, last September received a patent for their new method of tertiary oil recovery. The patent rights have been assigned to Mitchell Energy.

The technique involves injecting water and a combination of chemicals into an oil reservoir. Caustic chemicals in the mixture help form a soap which breaks apart droplets of oil and water within the formation. A polymer, or thickening agent, reduces the mixture's ability to flow so that the oil, instead of being bypassed, is pushed through the formation to a production well.

Use of caustics and polymers is nothing new to the petroleum industry. But up to now, they were injected separately. In the new process, the oil reservoir is first flooded with polymers, followed by injection of the caustic-polymer mix.

"In 1976, when we started work on our process," Barber says, "polymers were used only after other chemicals had been injected. When others were using polymer injection as a last resort, we employed it as a first step. Combining the chemical mixture with polymers was a natural evolution for us."

Mitchell Energy is testing the new process in the Alba Field in Northeast Texas. Field test results to determine how well it works in the real world should be ready for evaluation a year from now.

"The technique is only applicable to certain formations and certain kinds of oil," says Hover.

Seismic crews declining

The total number of seismic land crews and marine vessels searching for oil and gas in the U.S. and U.S. waters during November has declined for the second consecutive month. According to the most recent monthly survey by the Society of Exploration Geophysicists, the November total was 733, reflecting a decrease of eight land crews from the previous month.

The November total (733) represents a decrease of 1 percent from last month, a 28 percent increase over November, 1980, a 67 percent increase over November, 1979, a 99 percent increase over November, 1978, a 119 percent increase over November, 1977, a 167 percent increase over November, 1976, and a gain of 177 percent over the same month in 1975.

Growing cooperatively

Midland and sister city, Odessa, aren't commonly known for their cooperative spirit. In fact in certain circles they're better known for their competition, rivalries and infighting.

But in recent days residents have witnessed a couple of examples of the type of cooperative spirit that's likely to become more crucial as the cities' growth continues.

The first: Midland Memorial Hospital and Odessa's Medical Center Hospital. The two battled one another a little more than a year ago, vying for a certificate of need for a cancer therapy machine. Midland Memorial finally won, but a change in legislation since that time allowed Odessa to also acquire a cancer therapy machine.

While Odessa's hospital is being remodeled for the new equipment Midland Memorial is providing treatment for Odessa cancer patients.

The second area of cooperation came this week when an agreement was negotiated to move the extra-territorial jurisdiction line between the two cities in order for a new development between Midland Regional Airport and Odessa to be served by only one city. Although the proposed development originally straddled the jurisdiction line, the municipal governments agreed to move the line east, toward Midland, while assuring the integrity of the airport, which lies in Midland's jurisdiction.

Anyone who drives the 18 or so miles of U.S. 80 between the two cities is well aware of the growth that is bringing the two communities together. Even a drive along Interstate 20 between the two makes obvious the point that growth is bonding Midland and Odessa. As that growth continues into the exciting 1980s, more and more occasions will present themselves for cooperation.

The line between the two cities — or counties, as the case may be — eventually may become so faint or indefinable as to be virtually unrecognizable. Undoubtedly there will be questions to be answered: Who owns what? Which city or county will provide this service and which will provide that service? Who has jurisdiction here and who there?

All these questions are certain to arise. With a continuation of the spirit of cooperation shown by the two cities in recent days, those questions and more will be answered smoothly and in the best interests of the residents of both Midland and Odessa.

Begin's Golan gamble

Prime Minister Menachem Begin is gambling that his annexation of the Golan Heights will create a protective shield against Syrian guns and guarantee peace for the people of the area. In the long run the gamble may lose more for Israel than it wins.

Anyone who has been to the Golan Heights can understand why Mr. Begin is worried about it. It is high ground, 500 square miles of it, overlooking the Jordan River and Galilee. Soldiers stationed there have an excellent firing range for targets in the villages and kibbutzim below, and it was the Syrians who took advantage of this military opportunity when stationed there prior to Israel's capture of the Heights in 1967.

So it is not just another border strip that the Begin government annexed. It is a border strip that can be of mortal danger to the Israelis, and has been. Mr. Begin is not whistling in the dark.

Nevertheless, his precipitous act in pushing the Golan gamble through his parliament has caused anguish among allies as well as provoked adversaries to wrath. It came about as the Middle East peace efforts had reached a particularly sensitive phase, and needed caution and finesse by all parties concerned.

Syria reacted predictably, calling Begin's move a "declaration of war." Egyptian leaders were upset for a different reason, calling the Golan take-over "a blatant violation of the framework for peace in the Middle East signed on Sept. 17, 1978, and Security Council resolutions on which the Camp David agreement was based."

The State Department was no less troubled by the long-range ramifications of Mr. Begin's surprise. One spokesman said, "It will be taken by the Arabs as a further sign of U.S. unwillingness or inability to constrain Israel on crucial symbolic issues." Another added: "It also isn't a good omen for Israeli intentions on the West Bank."

Prime Minister Begin's fears deserve understanding, for the Golan Heights provide made-to-order gun emplacements for a Syria that does not recognize Israel's right to life. But the future of Israel and the Middle East could have been better served if Mr. Begin had sought a diplomatic solution.

ART BUCHWALD

Santa's heart has soft spot for Defense!

It was Christmas in the White House. Santa Claus, who looked like a very fat David Stockman, sat in his chair tearing up letters from children all over the country. "Everyone wants a free lunch," he said angrily to one of his assistants.

Art Buchwald

A Cabinet officer came up to Santa and got up on his lap.

"What do you want, and make it short?" Santa said.

"I'm the head of HUD and I don't want anything new. I was wondering if you could restore my rent subsidies for the poor and let me have a few dollars to provide heating oil for the old and indigent who hardly have roofs over their heads."

"Ho, ho, ho," Santa said. "I know all about you. You've been a very naughty boy this year. I told you to cut out all the frills and waste in your department and all you could come up with was a few billion dollars. You deserve a spanking. Don't come back until you sell all the public housing this country is stuck with. Who's next?"

"The secretary of Human Resources, Santa," the assistant said.

"Don't get up on my lap, you lousy kid. What do you want for Christmas?"

"I'm not asking for much, Santa. But please don't take away my Head Start Program and medical research funds."

"Do you think Santa Claus is 'made' of money? You're lucky you're still going to have Medicare checks to send out. If I had my way, I'd dump them, too."

"But you promised there would be a safety net for people who were down and out."

"I make a lot of promises I can't keep. That's why kids, when they grow up, stop believing in Santa Claus. Now beat it before I start hacking away at your Social Security benefits."

"Santa, this is the chairman of the largest steel company in America."

"You can get up on my lap."

"Santa, I've been a very good boy, and I don't want anything."

"You must want something."

"Well, there's one thing I kinda would like."

"What's that?"

"Another tax loophole, so I won't have to pay any taxes this year."

"And are you going to build a new steel plant with your tax loophole?"

"No, I want to buy the Marathon Oil Company with it. Then I won't have to worry about making any more steel."

"That's a sensible thing to want for Christmas. Give Santa a kiss and I'll see you get it."

"I love you, Santa."

Santa said to his assistant, "I wish all the kids were as well behaved as that one. Who's next?"

"Santa, I'm a governor from a big Eastern state, and I was supposed to take care of all the people the federal government was responsible for, and you were going to provide me with block grants to do the job. Now you've cut off my block grants. What am I supposed to do with the people?"

"That's your problem, kid. If there is one thing Santa Claus can't stand it's a governor who wants federal money to do his job. Get out of my sight. You make me sick. Next."

"Santa, I'm the secretary of Education and I need..."

"Save your breath. I don't even care to hear what 'you' want for Christmas."

"You're a cute fellow. What's your name?"

"Caspar Weinberger, and I'm the secretary of Defense."

"And what do you want for Christmas?"

"I want planes, and missiles, and submarines, and aircraft carriers and guns and tanks and an MX missile system, and germ warfare shells, and a trillion dollars."

"Ho, ho, ho. That's a lot of toys. You're going to empty out my bag."

"I'm going to hold my breath until I get them."

"All right, Caspar. I'm not going to spoil your Christmas, if you've got your heart set on all these things. Stop pulling on my beard. I SAID YOU'D GET THEM!"

After Caspar stomped away, the assistant said, "He really got to you."

"It's a weakness of mine. I can't stand to see a little secretary of Defense cry."

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Executive order threatens FOI safeguards

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration is quietly trying to slam down an iron curtain of secrecy upon the operations of the government.

Jack Anderson

A sweeping executive order has been drafted that will make it far easier for bureaucrats to sweep their embarrassments under the secrecy label. The overworked claim of "national security" will be expanded to cover an even greater multitude of sins.

The draft executive order is an end run around Congress. It can be put into effect with a simple presidential signature.

Not surprisingly, the order gives the Central Intelligence Agency something it has been unable to get from Congress — almost total immunity from public inquiry under the Freedom of Information Act. For the spy agency, this amounts to a license to kill, steal and lie just as it did in what the spooks fondly regard as "the good old days."

It has become routine government practice for officials to use their "CONFIDENTIAL," "SECRET" and "TOP SECRET" rubber stamps as a shield against exposure when they're up to something of questionable legality or potential embarrassment politically. The Freedom of Information Act was designed to give the public, as well as individual victims of the bureaucrats' shenanigans, at least a fighting chance to find out what the connivers had done.

The administration's proposed executive order would effectively eviscerate the information act. Far from giving the public the benefit of the doubt, the order demands that documents be classified "if there is a reasonable doubt about the need to classify." No bureaucrat worth his swivel chair could fail to think up a "reasonable doubt" about the need to restrict a document he has prepared — if only for the cachet of importance it lends to his work.

Just how rampant the use of classification stamps has become throughout the government is made clear by the fact that the executive order has been reviewed by no less than 35 government agencies in its progress through the bureaucracy. Their comments have been forwarded to the National Security Council, where the order is being whipped into final shape for President Reagan's signature.

The draft order has also been reviewed by my associates Bob Sherman and John Dillon. They found the changes in policy to be subtle but significant. Here are some of the more glaring examples:

— Under the currently operative executive order, signed by President Carter in 1978, intelligence sources and methods were to be protected by classification only if it could be demonstrated that disclosure would damage national security. Under the new order, "information relating to sources and methods is presumed to cause damage to the national security."

— By definition, the new order would exempt virtually all CIA operations from the Freedom of Information Act. That's because the act exempts from public access material classified "under criteria established by an executive order."

While few would argue that many legitimate CIA activities must be kept secret, it takes no great imagination to conjure up a whole new generation of dirty tricks that would be hidden from the public under the cover of the new executive order. The CIA's illegal drug experiments on Army personnel and other unwitting human guinea pigs, for example, was brought to light in part through an FOIA request; these programs could be kept secret under the "intelligence sources and methods" cover of the new executive order.

— Not every agency that reviewed the draft order was happy with it. Incredibly, some felt it wasn't strong enough. The Pentagon, for instance, wanted a new, catch-all stamp that would classify information that didn't fit exactly into the three existing categories. The request was rejected.

— One agency did object to the draft order on grounds that it was too sweeping. The National Science Foundation complained that, for one thing, the new order seems to negate an agreement between the NSF and the National Security Agency by declaring that all research in cryptology is automatically classified, not just that which clearly involves national security.

The scientists also expressed fear that the new order may be interpreted to mean that all scientific research can be classified. The NSF pointed out that "limitations imposed on scientists' openness for short-term security reasons may reduce the ability of American scientists to respond to our long-term national security needs."

— The current executive order requires that the public's interest be a consideration in decisions to classify information. This provision is deleted from the administration's draft order.

— The current order requires the National Security Council to rule on all challenges to existing classification within one year. This provision is not in the new order.

— A whole new horde of bureaucrats would be authorized to classify documents under the new executive order.

— In perhaps the most flagrant attack on the Freedom of Information Act, the draft order allows officials to classify material after it has been requested under the FOIA. In other words, documents that weren't secret can be made so retroactively when a member of the public asks to see them.

The Reagan administration has shown an unfortunate leaning toward greater secrecy in government. Far from championing the people's right to scrutinize its government, the White House has lobbied for changes in the information act that would hinder the public's ability to find out what is going on.

So far, supporters of the Freedom of Information Act have managed to stall these efforts. The proposed executive order can — with the stroke of a pen — circumvent the congressional champions of the public's right to know.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Sunday, Dec. 20, the 354th day of 1981. There are 11 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Dec. 20, 1922, 15 Asian regions joined to form the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

On this date:

In 1972, the violence in Northern Ireland registered one of its bloodiest days as gunmen killed eight men and wounded five others.

In 1973, Spanish Premier Luis Carrero Blanco was killed when assassins bombed his car in Madrid.

In 1978, Israeli planes struck three Palestinian camps in Lebanon, leaving dozens of casualties, in retaliation for Palestinian terror attacks.

And in 1979, Commonwealth peacekeeping troops began arriving in Salisbury on the eve of a ceasefire in the 7-year-old Rhodesian War.

Ten years ago: Zulfikar Ali Bhutto was sworn in as president of Pakistan, returning that nation to civilian rule for the first time since 1958.

Five years ago: Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin resigned after losing his government's slim margin in parliament.

Today's birthdays: Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia is 67; film director George Roy Hill is 59.

GEORGE F. WILL

NATO isn't expensive luxury, but illusion of security

WASHINGTON — The British prime minister, disappointed by the German chancellor's indifference to proper standards of debate, urged him to try harder to present "well-marshalled arguments." Although there is, I believe, only one photograph of Hitler smiling (it is of him examining a model of the first Volkswagen), surely he smiled broadly about Neville Chamberlain's suggestion. But no broader than Brezhnev must be smiling about the West's reaction to events in Poland.

The efficiency of Moscow's move, through its friends in Warsaw, is not just in its Hitlerian dispatch. (He, too, worked on weekends, in occupying the Rhineland and the Anschluss.) With a single strike, Moscow has secured the northern flank of the Warsaw Pact and has set NATO nations to doing the one thing they do in unison, making noises like the crackling of empty, dried corn husks.

George F. Will

The London Times' report of Britain's declaration of war in 1914 began: "Back in 1870 . . .". A report on today's condition of NATO might begin: "Back in 1945 . . ." or "Back in 1961 . . ." or "Back in 1975 . . .".

Some people, flinching from the facts about today's moral abdication, will argue that the military decisions that led to the Yalta agreement in 1945 made "understandable," even "inevitable," NATO's passive acceptance of the Berlin Wall in 1961. And they will argue that the acceptance made redundant the ratification at Helsinki in 1975 of Soviet hegemony over Eastern Europe. But such argument is a symptom of the degeneration of political will that is the real explanation for the West's supine reaction to events in Poland. NATO nations seem incapable of any common theme other than approbation for Russia's "non-involvement," a patent fiction.

What is outrageous is the absence of outrage. The protests are perfunctory to the point of politeness. Imagine what would be the reactions of NATO governments if the Greek or Spanish military imposed martial law. Remember the outrage when Chile's Salvador Allende was overthrown in 1973? Some governments broke diplomatic relations with Chile before they knew who had done what, or why.

Given the primacy of commercial values in the societies that achieved prosperity behind NATO's shield when it really was a shield, it is hard to imagine what "grave consequences" the NATO nations are threatening in the event that Soviet involvement in Poland becomes so conspicuous that it cannot be obligingly denied in the West.

NATO governments could inflict severe economic punishment on Poland's tormentors and could, by so doing, summon their citizens to a renewed seriousness about the struggle they are in. But the Russians know from the Reagan administration's words and deeds how much the administration dislikes grain embargoes and other interferences with free trade. And this year there are no Olympics not to go to.

With West Germany, the heart of NATO, positioning itself as an intermediary between the alliance and its adversary, what remains of the alliance? Soviet troubles — in Poland, Afghanistan and domestically — have given rise in the West to a cottage industry in the wishful-thinking business, a cottage industry producing predictions that the Soviet empire will soon crumble like stale Stilton cheese. But what shows signs of crumbling is the alliance that was called into existence to contain the Soviet Empire.

Henry Kissinger notes that many NATO nations seem to believe that their identity should be measured by their diplomatic distance from America. Increasingly, the leaders and publics of Europe and America lack the emotional attachment to NATO that once derived from personal involvement in the creative response to danger that produced the alliance. NATO nations increasingly gauge the success of their diplomacy by their relations with Russia, rather than with members of the alliance. And, Kissinger says, negotiations have come to be considered psychiatric exercises for establishing an atmosphere of goodwill.

The end of U.S. strategic nuclear superiority has meant the end of the ability to use threats of general war to enforce regional security. Europe, increasingly rejects the concept of nuclear war for regional defense, and refuses to invest sufficiently in conventional forces to make any other war-fighting plan credible. As Kissinger says, if peace is the sole goal of NATO nations, the alliance lacks the political coherence that is a prerequisite for its continuation, and the future belongs to the power that is prepared to threaten war.

NATO is in imminent danger of becoming as ornamental as most modern monarchs. It has been said that modern monarchs are to life what illustrations are to books. But illustrations are pleasant luxuries and do no harm, which cannot be said of an alliance that perpetuates delusions of security.

In politics, it's again time of year for the voice of tradition

By BILL KIDD
Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Since this is the time of year when traditions and great expectations are prominent, it's not surprising to see politicians following time-honored practices and expressing hopeful sentiments.

Consider the attorney general's race.

Attorney General Mark White, who has said that every Texan wants — or should want — to be governor, decided to join in the chase for the Democratic nomination for governor.

That, in itself, shows White is an optimist, since two veteran campaigners — Sen. Peyton McKnight of Tyler and Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong — already had taken to the field.

White's announcement that he would exit from his current office came after much speculation as to whether he would join the gubernatorial hunt — since many observers feel White's chances of raising the money it will take for a successful challenge are slim.

But as an attorney, White presumably is aware of precedents, and there are a number of those — in a political scene — where his office is concerned.

White's predecessor, John Hill, also attempted to use the attorney general's post as a stepping stone to the governor's mansion — but stumbled over political novice Bill Clements after defeating an incumbent governor.

White would like to defeat an incumbent governor himself, although he's still quite a ways from that.

But White can look to the example of Price Daniel and James Allred, who made the move which he would like to make.

As soon as White announced that he was going to announce, some of the folks who had been saying they were thinking about running for his office began making it official that they are running — beginning with former State representative and former U.S. attorney John Hannah of Tyler.

Hannah recently resigned as a special prosecutor after directing the prosecution of a number of cases against county officials on bribery and kickback charges.

AUSTIN NOTEBOOK

Hannah began his initial campaign pitch on the theme that Texas needs someone in state government to go after corruption on the local level, without waiting for the federal government to do so.

That, too, is something of a traditional theme for candidates for attorney general, although the office really doesn't have too much to do with criminal law enforcement.

Part of that is due to resistence by local officials to allowing some upstart from Austin to come in and begin meddling in local matters.

The office does have a role in organized crime investigations, and Hill and White noted that role in speeches around the state.

Attorney General Will Wilson, during the late 1950s, conducted a major effort against organized crime in Texas, especially in the Galveston area.

Hannah argues that the attorney generl can, if he wants to, investigate political corruption and assure that cases are prosecuted.

But some attorneys general have complained they really don't have adequate powers to take on the cases they would like to prosecute.

Hill attempted to bring suit against the Water Quality Board and Water Rights Commission over water rights for the South Texas Nuclear Project.

Hill argued, during court appeals of that attempt, that the attorney general "is not a mere lackey to defend a state agency whether the action it took was legal or not."

But the courts concluded that Hill, as the state's lawyer, couldn't sue his own clients.

"If the attorney general cannot protect the public interest," Hill added, "...then who can?"

White hasn't sought to sue any state agencies, but he's been busy enough with defending state agencies that he might have had little opportunity — even if he had the authority.

Two major areas of litigation are still working their way through the legal maze, and will continue to occupy White's attention in 1982 — the prison reform lawsuit, and the various challenges to the redistricting plans.

Then there are such matters as the state's challenge to the Windfall Profits Tax, which are likely to continue into the next administration.

In fact, the state of Texas is a defendant or plaintiff in some 1,700 lawsuits (a good many of these by prisoners), and there's no indication that the number of cases is going to diminish — with citizens busily establishing a tradition of bringing suit on almost any issue.

So whatever happens with White, and whoever ends up replacing him, the attorney general's office will continue to be that of the State's top lawyer, and that of a potential candidate for other office.

KINGSBURY-SMITH

Threat to Poland's labor movement also a threat to major U.S. banks

By JOSEPH KINGSBURY-SMITH
National Editor The Hearst Newspapers

WASHINGTON — Russia's attempt to have the Polish army crush the Polish workers' freedom movement has created a financial threat to some major U.S. banks that could have serious repercussions.

Within three days after martial law was imposed in Poland, the Polish central bank notified Western banks, including six major American banks, that Poland could not meet its commitment to pay about $500 million by the end of the year in past-due interest. The Polish bank asked for new loans totalling $350 million so that it could meet, at least partially, the interest payments.

Because the state of virtual civil war in Poland has greatly increased uncertainty about the Polish economy, the American banks were reluctant to provide additional loans to Poland to make the overdue interest payments. The N.Y. Times reported that Citibank informed the Polish central bank it would not provide any new loans until past interest payments were met. Other banks were expected to do likewise.

If Poland cannot raise the money to meet the interest payments, it could be declared in default. Poland owes foreign banks and governments $26 billion. Western financial experts have long feared that if one of the poor countries which owe large sums to Western banks and governments defaulted, it could precipitate a chain reaction of defaults by other countries. Third World foreign debts are estimated to total $500 billion. The Wall St. Journal reported last January that this vast Third World indebtedness appeared to some analysts as "starkly ominous, threatening a chain reaction of country defaults, bank failures and a general depression matching that in the 1930's."

One of Britain's leading financial experts, Lord Harold Lever, a senior cabinet member in the last Labor Government, told The Hearst Newspapers early this year that most of the Third World countries, including Poland, would never be able to pay back the principal of the loans received from the West "and nobody expects them to do so." He said if a serious default threat developed, the Western banks would count on their governments to bail them out since a general default could precipitate a grave financial crisis in the West.

This assumption may have encouraged the New York banks to believe the federal government will, if necessary, provide Poland with American taxpayers' money to meet interest payments on the loans.

There is some question as to whether the Federal Reserve Board has the power to do so. Rep. Andrew Jacobs, D.-Ind., believes it obtained that authority under the Monetary Control Act which was approved by Congress early last year and signed by President Carter March 31, 1980.

Inserted in this act shortly before it was approved was a six-line amendment giving the Federal Reserve Board the power to purchase foreign securities. Within six weeks after President Carter signed the act, Rep. Jacobs introduced legislation to withdraw the authority to use dollars to purchase foreign securities. That legislation is still pending.

Rep. Jacobs told Hearst Feature Service this week he is "most certainly" concerned that the Federal Reserve might use the authority to purchase Polish government securities in order to bail out the New York banks and avert default by Poland on its indebtedness.

Federal Reserve spokesman Joseph R. Coyne said there has been confusion about the authority granted the Federal Reserve, but there is no intention of using that authority to purchase foreign securities with dollars. He recalled that Federal Reserve Board chairman Paul A. Volcker so testified before Congress last year. Mr. Coyne added that the Federal Reserve Board had requested the authority to enable it to use its foreign currency holdings in order to earn interest on them. He further said the Federal Reserve has no intention of purchasing Polish securities to provide the Polish government with dollars to meet the interest payments due the American banks.

Rep. Jacobs said it would be "reprehensible" for the Federal Reserve to do so, adding that using American taxpayers' dollars to purchase Polish government securities in order to bail out the New York banks would create greater inflation and budgetary problems for the American economy.

If the Polish government cannot obtain new loans from Western banks and/or governments to meet the interest payments, it may have to look to the Soviet Union for such aid or default.

Soviet bloc indebtedness to the West is now estimated to total between $60 and $80 billion. According to Commerce Department estimates, that indebtedness could exceed $100 billion by 1985.

A default by Poland on its $26 billion, or even the amount due this year on its interest payments, could endanger the solvency of Western, including American, banks that have become involved in lending huge sums of money to it.

Does Christmas belong to both characters?

The bearing of gifts is about the only correlation between Christ's mass and Santa's dawning. But the relationship may be incidental.

Actually, whoever said that Santa Claus was an integral part of Christmas? Maybe it's just coincidental that Santa and his flying reindeer haul elf-made toys on the eve of a day — Dec. 25 — called Christmas.

The Wise Men brought gifts of homage and adoration to the babe — the Christ child — in the manger. The fabled Santa Claus drops off gifts — often bought on credit at department stores — at homes far and near.

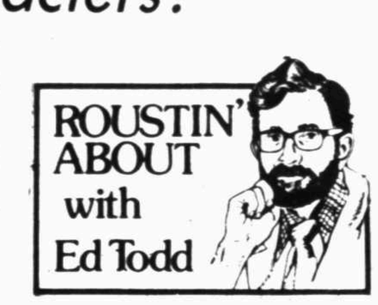
Though separate, the Westernized Santa Claus and the Babe in the Manger have become One in a bastardized sense.

Historically, the distant origins and commercial merging of the twain can be explained. But understanding the logic and sense of the union is baffling.

At least, Christmas is a time when hardcore heathens and lukewarm Christians can join in the same mixed-up celebration and not feel ill at ease with one another.

The mere instance of Christendom meekly allowing itself to be drawn into the Santa Claus fairy tale and deeper into paganism is an act of unfaithfulness. It is prostitution.

It is also embedded into the economy and into the psyche. It's ingrained.



Department stores alternately play "Jingles Bells" and "Silent Night." They aim to please shoppers.

Some churches professing Christianity have sanctioned rotund fellows decked in Santa Claus costumes to saunter up and down the aisles and grunt "Ho-Ho," hug and kiss the little ones and then pass out token gifts. But does Santa relate the story of the Christ child? Very remotely. Very.

Now, it's fairly easy to rationalize the Christ Child-Santa Claus phenomenon at Christmas time. Children become joyful; sometimes they are bribed into becoming good. Grown-ups become childlike; sometimes, they wish for simple joy.

Why, behold the happiness and cheer! Witness the reunion of families and friends and the sharing and bearing of gifts! Good. But is a holiday marked by commerce, religion and paganism a requisite for those good and thankful times? Certainly not. It is a conditioning which can be undone.

Our fellowship

To The Editor:

Your September 27, 1981, edition carried an article "Is Your Child an Alcoholic?," describing a teenager's alcoholism recovery in Alcoholics Anonymous.

We are most grateful for your references to AA, which has grown in size to well over one million members, thanks in no small measure to the excellent treatment it has received from the communications media. Many AA members first learned of this world wide fellowship through pieces such as this one — and that has been true since the beginning of Alcoholics Anonymous.

Our tradition of anonymity has been respected at the level of press to a degree that continues to amaze us. Media generally appreciates the fact that we want the public to know about our fellowship and the AA program of recovery — but not the identities of AA members — which leads me to ask you to please omit my name as a staff member, should you wish to reprint this letter.

Thanksgiving

To The Editor:

At this season when we traditionally count our blessings, I have special reason to pay thanks to all of Midland.

As Campaign Chairman of the United Way Campaign for 1982, I would like to thank the thousands of Midlanders who gave generous monetary support to help fund our 20 human service agencies for next year.

I would like to thank volunteers throughout our city who helped raise more than $1,392,000. They made our success possible and made my term as campaign chairman an especially beneficial experience.

But most of all, I want to express my gratitude for being part of a city that continues to grow in sensitivity and responsiveness to the growing needs of its citizens.

I hope the many Midlanders who were part of the United Way campaign this year take pride in making Midland a better place for us to live.

To The Editor:

The Midland Reporter-Telegram, Reagan, CIA, FBI, Al Haig, etc., need to put up or shut up. They need to produce the proof for the Khadafy hit squad claims, or we are left with the reckless charges of a desperate, failing Reagan administration, looking to focus the attentions of the American people elsewhere.

What a bargain

To The Editor:

Judge Pat Baskin and City Attorney Vern Martin are as sick as the young man who brutally murdered Karen Ritchey.

Just think about "plea bargaining" for a 25 year sentence (⅓ time off for good behavior leaves a sentence of eight years) for running over a girl and beating her to death with a rock.

I trust those gentlemen will sleep well with thoughts of what he is capable of repeating when he is released.

It would seem some resignations are in order.

Right on, Editor

To The Editor:

Right on, Mr. Editor! Tell it like it is and was! As I agree with most of your editorials, I assume I qualify as a right wing radical. I would be more comfortable with the descriptive term of "Informed, Right-Wing Radical Redneck."

I would suggest that Mr. Daffer avail himself to the historical facts concerning the "whys" and "wherefores" of the great depression before he assails Mr. Hoover and the Republican party. I was a boy during this period. I didn't see any nightmares, but we had a goat and some chickens. Does this qualify me to speak on the subject?

Mr. Daffer, you well might be right about depressions and scandals in the past 75-80 years during Republican administrations, but I respectfully ask you to consider the fact that four wars and hundreds of thousands of lives have been lost during the same era under Democratic Administrations.

That, Mr. Daffer, is not propaganda.

'The Polish mess' takes some of glow from Leonid Brezhnev's 75th birthday

By HELLA PICK
The Guardian

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev was 75 years old Saturday. He has been in power for 17 years. He has progressively surrounded himself in the Soviet Communist Party and government with trusted collaborators — most of them of an equally ripe age.

His life and times are being eulogized throughout the Soviet land; in schools and univerities, on television and in the other media. A new version of his memoirs has been published, which is being praised in the Soviet Union as a reflection of his "enormous charge of spiritual energy" and for their "deep philosophical reflections."

Brezhnev has, in the last few years, accumulated every possible decoration and title that the Soviet Union and its allies in the communist bloc can offer to their national monument.

Yet, as he embarks on his day of official celebration, Brezhnev can hardly be in anything but an extremely bleak mood. Poland is casting a very long shadow across the picture of progress, peace and stability that the official Soviet propaganda machine is trying to paint after 17 years of Brezhnev rule.

True enough, it is by no means the only reason why the leaders of the communist bloc, gathered in the Kremlin for the festivities, must, in their heart of hearts, be drawing up a very negative balance sheet.

Poland, however, highlights an accumulation of failures; and pinpoints many of the issues that bedevil the Soviet Union and the whole socialist community and make the outlook so uncertain.

Brezhnev must have hoped that his 75th birthday could show economic progress in the Soviet Union and a firm alliance with the Warsaw Pact countries, in which the Soviet model is accepted not only because it is expected of them but because it demonstrably works. He must have hoped that detente in East-West relations would have gone beyond the uneasy veneer of peaceful co-existence.

In fact, the Soviet economy and the economies of virtually all the communist bloc countries are highly precarious. Only East Germany and Hungary have managed to hold their own; and Hungary alone has introduced radical economic reforms by drawing away from the centralized decision-making mechamism and adapting to a profit mechamism that is far from the communist model preferred by Moscow.

In international relations, Soviet invervention in Afghanistan proved a major setback to Brezhnev's "peace policy." The election of President Reagan has made it still harder for the Soviet Union to maintain its credibility in the United States as a peace-loving power.

But it is "Die Polnische Wirtschaft" — the Polish mess, as the East Germans describe it — that so blights the Kremlin today. More than any other of the Soviet Union's satellites, Poland has now revealed the Soviet leader's incapacity to provide a workable solution to the theoretical model or the practical problems of modern industrialized society.

Under former Communist Party leader Edvard Gierek's leadership, Poland faithfully followed Soviet practices of economic management. It sought to maintain the highly centralized system; it built up a party elite, separated from the mass of the people by privilege, often marked by corruption.

But it borrowed far too heavily from the West, leading Western bankers to believe that the Soviet Union was behind it, acting as a guarantor of last resort. It sought for a long time to contain the influence of the church and only belatedly recognized the need for dialogue with the Roman Catholic hierarchy.

The emergence of a Polish pope resulted in a fundamental shift of power in Poland, which the Kremlin was slow to recognize, and only few members of the Polish Communist Party recognized at the time. But the visit of Pope John Paul II to his country in July 1979 was really the beginning of what afterward turned into the Solidarity free trade union movement. For the first time, the mass of Polish people defied their leaders and showed where their true loyalties and aspirations lay.

A year later, Solidarity was formed in the sit-ins of the shipyards in Gdansk and Szczein. By then, there was no longer any way of blinkering over the gradual collapse of the Polish economy.

The Kremlin did not know how to respond. A pluralistic society was trying to organize itself in Poland, where the leadership role of the Communist Party was increasingly being treated as a symbol without substance or meaning. The Soviet Union had nothing to contribute to the debate in Poland because it was unwilling to recognize the upheavals in Polish society and had little to offer by way of constructive thought or practical economic help.

Now, this weekend, the communist bloc leadership has to assess the future. Poland is in the grips of a military coup. Whether or not it was engineered by Moscow — as a measure of last resort — remains unclear. Western diplomats in Moscow are coming to think that there are grounds for believing that the Polish military acted under pressure from Moscow.

For Brezhnev on his 75th birthday the need for a military takeover, whether or not it was propelled from the Kremlin, still represents nothing short of the failure of the socialist system and the failure of the party as a commanding force in the country.

It is not yet known whether the Polish army can maintain its authority, or whether the military will be forced to call on Moscow to help keep order. If Brezhnev had to order Warsaw Pact troops to move into a friendly country for a second time — he did it in 1968 with Czechoslovakia — an old man's dreams and aspirations would lie shattered in devastating ruin.

Basin Tex-Tronics saves you money

One concern of business people, whether they are connected with a large or small business, is saving money while increasing efficiency. Basin Tex-Tronics, 2514-B West Ohio, can save your business money and make your mailing process simpler.

Basin Tex-Tronics is an authorized agent for Friden electronic mailing equipment. Boyd Bowen has been in business 17 years and has been as agent for Friden mailing equipment for the past 4 years.

Friden has mailing equipment to handle small businesses, as well as complete systems for the large business. A small business could use a postage meter to save money. Meter mail moves through the mail faster and there is the convenience of having the machine in the office. Time that used to be spent buying stamps at the post office now may be spent productively. Large businesses could benefit from a complete mailing system that could include an all-electronic postage computing scale, an electronic UPS register, and all-electronic accumulating printer.

Bowen says electronic scales are the most money-saving, time-saving item they have. Friden is now selling a line of newly-designed mailroom furniture, which Bowen feels is the best of the market.

Basin Tex-Tronics also sells and services Toshiba and Canon calculators.

Basin Tex-Tronics is an established, long-time business, and as an agent, can give their customers more time and personalized attention.

Boyd Bowen, Mary Lue Schmitt and Mark Bowen of Basin Tex-Tronics are shown holding a Friden electronic scale. To see how the scale or other electronic mailing equipment can help your business, stop by 2514-B West Ohio or call 683-1351.

SBI considering workers' insurance change

AUSTIN — State Board of Insurance members again are considering a controversial proposal to eleminate the $300 weekly payroll elimitation for calculation of worker's compsenstation insurance premium charges.

National Council on Compsensation Insurance has removed its request for that change, which has brought protest from such groups as the Texas Association of Business,Associated General Contractors and various labor organizations.

NCCI contends the changes would lower rates; the opponents argue it would increase rates.

SBI considered, and denied, a similar request in 1980.

Gerald Dorsey of TAB indicated at the SBI's hearing he thinks the board may adopt the proposal, noting that use of "unlimited payroll" has been adopted in other states.

SBI also is looking at a small reduction in worker's compensation rates — the agency staff has recommended an overall reduction of two tenths of one percent.

The workers compensation hearings also brought debate over the use of investment income in setting property and casulaty rates.

SBI has begun to receive replies to a questionnaire sent 37 states which expressed and interest in the investment income study being conduucted by the board; that study is expected to require two years.

According to a preliminary survey performed for the Governor's Task Force on Samll Business, 47 state agencies — many of them licensing agencies — "seem to have impact on small business."

Some of the 47 — such as the Comptoller's Office and Industrial Accident Board — have authority over all types of businesses, while others are limited to specific areas, such as the Alcoholic Beverage Commission, the survey notes.

Thus far, the recently orgainzed task force hasn't decided what impact the agencies have — or should have — on small businesses.

••••

Another recently created panel, the Governor's Task Force on State Trust and Asset management, held its organization meeting and was briefed on the various funds in which state monies are held.

Tim Lewis, Governor's budget and Planning Office, reported $12.4 billion is held in the four major types of funds — retirement systems, State Tresury, Permanent School Fund and Permanent University Fund.

The Teacher Retirmenet System and Employee Retirement System hold $7.9 billion, and generate $700 million in income annually.

The PUF, with $1.5 billion, produces $100 million annually, while the PSF produces $200 million. Treasury funds produce some $300 million a year.

The task force is charged with looking at such matters as risk versus rate of return, investment machanisms, nontraditional alternatives, and relationshps between actuarial assumptions and rate of return — with aview to recommending ways the state may use to get better returns.

Texas Board of Health has approved creation of a Solid Waste Resources Recovery Advisory Council to evaluate proposals and advise on resource recovery plans, program development and legislation.

Helath Commissioner Dr. Robert Bernstein says the 13-member panel deomonstrates the board's commitment to "move Texas into resource recovery at a responsible pace."

The group will include representatives of the general public, cities of various sizes, elected officials, environemental groups and solid waste commercial operators.

Nominations to the council are being taken through Jan. 15.

Jack C. Carmichael, chief of the Bureau of Solid Waste of the Texas Department fo Helath, says that "in the past 10 years we have gone from the open dump to managed, sanitary landfills ... Now it's time for us to move from land disposal to resource recovery."

Texas Savings and Loan League reports mortgage lending by Texas associations slowed in July, after a "rebound" in activity during the first half of the year.

The total in mortagage lending for the first seven months was up from the 1980 pace, however — at $3.7 billion for the first seven months fo 1981, or 28 percent more than the comparable 1980 period.

Construction loas closed for the first seven months were nearly 31 percent more than the comparable 1980 totals — with single-family loans up 28 percent, in contrast to the nationwide average (which showed and increase of only 0.3 percent).

Only three metropolitan areas in Texas — Wichita Falls, Beaumont and El Paso — had fewer loan closings in the 1981 period than they had for 1980.

Economic recovery planned

By CHET CURRIER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the midst of a recession that caught many of them by surprise, Wall Street economists now are trying to sort out the prospects for recovery some time in 1982.

There is widespread agreement that the economy won't continue slumping at its current rate. Most analysts believe the most severe damage from the recession will show up in the quarter that ends this month, with the gross national product declining at an inflation-adjusted annual rate of 5 percent or more.

But when the discussion gets down to details such as the potential timing and strength of the recovery, the forecasts begin to diverge widely.

The whole subject is important to investors because the securities markets tend to move several months in advance of trends in the economy.

For the stock market, said Maury Harris, money-market economist at Paine Webber, "a common view is that a good rally should start a bit before the (economic) downturn ends. But if the recession still has a good way to go, it might seem premature to begin ae bond mrket, Harris said, the extent of the recession will help determine how much inflation slows, and what credit policy the Federal Reserve will pursue. "If history repeats itself, the end of the recession will at least temporarily halt the bond market rally."

Looking back on the drop in stock prices in the late spring and summer of this year, many analysts say it was a classic case of the market "discounting" an approaching recession in advance.

After accurately foreshadowing the economic slump, the marke has been sending off more ambiguous signals lately. In the past week, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 10.75 to 875.76.

The New York Stock Exchange composite index dropped .%f a 10 percent cut in income taxes, but that doesn't take effect until July 1.

"Yet we still expect a sluggish recovery during next year's first half, followed by vigorous growth of between 6 percent and 8 percent over the remainder of 1982," says Edward E. Yardeni, chief economist at E.F. Hutton & Co.

"Economic activity will be so depressed by January that the drop in interest rates we foresee should stimulate at least a modest recovery next year."

In Yardeni's view, lower price and wage inflation will help sustain the turnaround. In addition, he says, "Reaganomics should start to work by mid-1982. The various savings and investment incentives that are part of the president's economic program should boost business activity once the recovery is fully under way."

Yardeni acknowledges there are several things that could go wrong in his generally optimistic script. "The most likely upset to our forecast would be a spring recovery that would quickly be aborted by a surge in interest rates. Alternatively, the current recession could intensify and become a depression.

"The risks to our forecast are not trivial," he says.

Joy and peace,
from all of us.

Report says economy to get worse before it gets better

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Evidence continues to mount that the economy will get worse before it gets better, as the government reported further declines in industrial production and plans for future construction while inventories of unsold goods grew.

Bank of America, the nation's largest bank, predicts that even with an expected economic upturn next year, unemployment will average 8.7 percent in 1982, up from an estimated 7.6 percent this year and 7.1 percent in 1980.

Leland Prussia — chairman of BankAmerica Corp., the parent of the San Francisco-based bank — said this past week that unemployment could peak in double digits for a month or two next year before the predicted recovery. The national unemployment rate reached a six-year high of 8.4 percent in November.

"The economy will not turn around immediately, partly because it takes time to reverse downward momentum once begun, and partly because it will take time to work off the inventory imbalance," according to Bank of America's 1982 economic outlook.

"But by mid-year, the economy should begin a recovery," it said. "The ensuing upturn is likely to be relatively weak by historical standards."

The Federal Reserve Board reported that industrial production fell 2.1 percent in November, the steepest monthly decline since a 3 percent drop in May 1980, during the height of the last recession. The Fed also said U.S. manufacturing plants operated at 74.9 percent of capacity in November, the lowest rate since July 1980.

The Commerce Department reported that unsold goods held by U.S. business rose 0.9 percent in October. "Production cutbacks are likely to carry on into early 1982, with attendant further increases in unemployment until business improves," said Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige.

The Commerce Department also reported that permits issued in November for future construction fell 0.6 percent to an annual rate of 718,000, for the sixth straight monthly decline. While work started on new houses rose 0.8 percent in November from the previous month, it was still 44 percent below November 1980 levels.

"Economic decline and stagnation are likely to continue through mid-1982, but thereafter aggregate business activity should recover, and expansion should persist into 1983 and beyond," said economists H. Erich Heinemann and Charles Lieberman at the investment firm of Morgan Stanley & Co.

Among hopeful signs this past week was a Commerce Department report that personal spending by Americans climbed 1 percent in November, a faster pace than the 0.6 percent rise in personal income.

It was an indication that growing consumption was beginning to reduce stockpiles of unsold goods.

The buildup of inventories, as sales sagged, contributed heavily to expansion of the nation's gross national product in the third quarter of this year.

The Commerce Department said the inflation-adjusted total of goods and services produced by the economy grew at an annual rate of 1.4 percent between July and September. That revised an initial report of a 0.6 percent decline for the period and a follow-up report of 0.6 percent growth for the third quarter.

GNP fell at a 1.6 percent annual rate in the second quarter, and preliminary Commerce Department estimates for the final three months of this year project a 5.4 percent decline.

In other business and economic developments this past week:

—President Reagan said at a news conference, "I have no plans for increasing taxes in any way" to cope with projected massive federal deficits. But White House deputy press secretary Larry Speakes later said Reagan probably will send Congress at least a few measures to increase taxes as part of his budget plan for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, 1982. Speakes would not rule out the possibility of proposals to increase federal excise taxes, such as levies on gasoline, alcohol and cigarettes.

—Two banks — which had undercut the rest of the industry on Nov. 30 by lowering their prime lending rates to 15.5 percent — retreated and raised their key business-borrowing rate to match the industrywide level of 15.75 percent. The prime rate is the base upon which banks compute interest charges on short-term business loans to their most creditworthy customers.

—U.S. automakers reported sales during the first 10 days of the month plunged 27.5 from the same 1980 period, the worst early-December in 22 years. The industry journal Ward's Automotive Reports said stockpiles of unsold cars rose to an 83-day supply as of Nov. 30, compared with an 81-day supply at the end of October and a 65-day supply at the end of November 1980. Indefinite layoffs in the auto industry soared to 211,625, the highest level this year, and automakers said temporary layoffs soared 58 percent to 62,975. The number of indefinite layoffs does not include more than 50,000 jobs eliminated earlier in the auto industry's sustained slump.

—The Commerce Department reported the nation's surplus in foreign trade of goods and services grew to about $2.1 billion in the third quarter, the fifth straight quarterly surplus.

—Standard & Poor's Corp. said industry paid 19 cents out of every sales dollar for labor costs in 1980, the lowest amount since 1954, when the survey began. Most of the credit for the 7 percent decline from 1979 went to strong sales by oil companies, boosted by rising oil prices.

New savings opportunity promises a big nest egg

By JIMMY THORNTON
Copley News Service

If you are 25 years of age — and can afford to set aside $39 a week — you could retire at age 65 on $2 million. If you are 35, you could build a retirement nest egg of $629,328. If you are 45, in your golden years you could run your fingers through $177,227.

Even if you are 55, it's possible to accumulate $41,030 to supplement your pension.

No, this isn't a script for "Fantasy Island." It is the opportunity made possible by changes in the new tax laws that affect consumers.

The preceding figures are the result of some computations by Wells Fargo Bank which, like other financial dealers around the country, will be offering an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) the first of the year.

Simply put, an IRA is a savings account that you can set up for your retirement. You put money into it until you retire at which time you can start drawing money out of the account. Payment of federal taxes on funds in the account is deferred until you retire.

While IRAs have been around for years, recent changes in the tax laws make the accounts available for the first time to people who work for employers providing pension plans as fringe benefits. Workers covered by company retirement plans in the past were excluded from the IRAs.

What all this means is that just about everyone, with some exceptions, can set aside a nest egg now and not have to pay federal taxes on it until withdrawing the money at retirement.

The accounts not only are exempt from immediate federal taxation but they earn interest.

Now about those fantastic nest eggs.

To begin with, the Wells Fargo computations for all age groups are based on an assumption that the savers would have a sum of $2,000 ready to invest Jan. 1. And every Jan. 1, $2,000 more would be added to the IRA account until retirement. The computations are also based on an assumption that the money would earn 12 percent interest. And, in the case of the 25-year-old, it would have to remain untouched for 40 years.

However, optimistic savers who can come up with a regular sum of money to sock away in an IRA account are cautioned that there's no guarantee that interest rates will remain steady over the years. Too, tax laws could change. And once today's 25-year-old who has faithfully saved $39 a week — or about $2,000 a year — for 40 years retires in the year 2023, there's no telling what inflation will have done to the real value of his $2-million nest egg.

The bank figures do show, however, that wage-earning consumers have a lot to gain by being IRA thrifty.

Perhaps the $2,000 yearly investment is a bit optimistic if you are an average wage earner. Creditors report most Americans are sitting on the edge of bankruptcy, living from one pay check to another while juggling bills like a circus performer.

But the IRA is an attractive carrot at the end of the savings' stick. It's incentive for you to get your budget on track and put some dollars away for retirement — which, if inflation continues, means the pension dollars you draw at that time will be worth little by today's standards.

The tax break alone is valuable.

By putting $2,000 into an IRA, you are subtracting $2,000 from the sum of your income taxed by the federal government. If your tax bracket is 35 percent, your savings is $700, or the amount of tax that would be levied on the $2,000 if it were not in an IRA.

So, if your federal tax would normally be $10,000, by having $2,000 in an IRA, your tax bill is reduced to $9,300. State income taxes still apply.

The big question consumers must answer is how much can they afford to put into an IRA and keep it there untouched year after year. The sum they can afford to save in such an account may not come near the $2,000 limit ($4,000 for working couples, or $2,250 for Spousal IRAs, which can be set up by a couple when only one spouse earns an income).

Excluded from participating in the new IRA plan are retirees who will be 70.5 years old in 1982 and workers 70.5.

If you are considering an IRA, remember that it will be supplemental to any plan your company may be offering. If that plan is generous (check with your personnel office), you may be satisfied setting aside far less than $2,000 each year.

Elcor anticipates losses, announces dividend

Elcor Corporation of Midland announced recently that it anticipates a net loss of about $2.6 million to $2.9 million in its sec-ond quarter ending December 31, 1981. Mr. Roy E. Campbell, President, said "The sharp decline in the economy has adversely affected our roofing products business. In addition, delays in awards of major pending engineering and construction projects for the oil and gas industry have deferred projected income into subsequent quarters. These two factors are the primary reasons for a larger loss in the second quarter than had been previously anticipated."

With respect to the second half of its fiscal year ending June 30, 1982, he said, "Based on the current economic outlook, it appears that the company may experience a smaller operating loss in the third quarter and be profitable in the fourth quarter. Second half of the results should benefit from an increasing engineering and construction workload and improving contributions from new industrial products and roofing products. In addition, normal seasonal improvement in roofing products demand in the June quarter as well as possible improvement in the housing and home improvement areas could also benefit results later in the fiscal year."

Campbell said, "The outlook for future years continues to be excellent. In the last few years, Elcor has substantially expanded its manufacturing capacity and its engineering and construction capacity, developed several new products, expanded its markets, improved productivity and the depth of its management organizations. When the economy and our markets strengthen, Elcor is well positoned for sharply hgiher earnings in the years ahead."

Campbell announced Thursday, the declaration of a regular quarterly cash dividend of $.075 per share which will be paid February 4, 1982, to shareholders of record January 14, 1982.

IRA at a glance

Following is the Individual Retirement Account (IRA) at a glance:

An individual may set aside up to $2,000 a year and defer paying federal income tax on the money until retirement.

A working couple may deposit up to $4,000 a year.

Some married couples will qualify for a Spousal IRA (completely revised for 1982) whereby they may set aside up $2,250 a year.

Ideally, you should put the full sum into an account at the beginning of the year so it will earn interest. The interest is plowed back into the account, so you don't pay taxes on it.

People 70.5 years of age in 1982 are not eligible.

Workers aged 70.5 also are not eligible.

You may wait until age 65 to start withdrawing funds, at which time they are subject to federal taxation. Or you may begin tapping the fund at age 59.5.

State taxes do not exempt IRA funds.

There are early withdrawal and tax penalties if you close the account before retirement.

Filing for a tax exemption is simple. Simply enter the amount of the IRA on Line 24 of the federal 1040 tax form.

You need no special receipt. However, you should maintain bank statements for your own records and as proof if the IRS audits your account.

You must forfeit six months' interest and pay taxes and a tax penalty if you withdraw early.

Taxes on foreign firms backfiring

By JANET LOWE
Copley News Service

A plan designed to prevent foreign corporations from avoiding California taxes is causing the firms to avoid California instead, according to Assemblyman Wadie Deddeh, D-Chula Vista.

The controversial unitary method of taxing foreign-owned corporations should be repealed to "improve the business climate and bring new businesses to domicile in California," Deddeh said.

Under the unitary method, the state has the right to tax a portion of the worldwide profits of foreign multinationals doing business in the state.

Deddeh, who is running for a state Senate seat, toured two Japanese-owned companies here yesterday, gathering information for a hearing that starts tomorrow in Sacramento on Assembly Bill 1238, a measure he has introduced to substantially modify the unitary tax.

Arthur Jonishi, head of Kyocera International, one of the plants Deddeh toured, said the unitary tax forces his company to pay 60 percent to 70 percent in local, state and federal taxes on income, while other California businesses pay taxes of about 50 percent.

Another Japanese-based company, Fujitsu, objects because of the complexity of reporting involved. Fujitsu must collect data on about 60 different operations to compute the tax.

Strong opposition to Deddeh's bill and other reform measures comes from the Franchise Tax Board, the state body responsible for collecting all California income taxes.

Because of severe deficits at the state level, Deddeh said, the board hesitates to cut taxes further.

The assemblyman noted, however, that the unitary tax has discouraged many businesses from coming to California and has caused other companies to curtail expansion plans. If the tax were repealed, he said, tax income would be generated from the additional jobs and businesses attracted to the state.

Estimates vary on how much state revenue would be lost if the taxation method were changed so foreign corporations paid tax oly on income generated in California.

Corporations centered in other states pay unitary tax as well, and Deddeh's bill gives both out-of-state and out-of-the-country firms the option of choosing an alternate tax method.

The Franchise Tax Board estimates that if AB 1238 were adopted, $800 million to $900 million in state revenue would be lost.

The business community disputes that figure, with the San Diego Economic Development Corp. estimating that if the law were changed only for offshore companies, the tax lose would be as small as $12 million.

Deddeh said it could take as little as three years for enough new business to be generated to make up for the shortfall.

Deddeh conceded that his bill has little chance of passing under ctrrent conditions in Sacramento, but said he hopes to change the law inxiDil inc8xO(O⅛t

The cost of fuel. And why it affects your electric bill now more than ever.

When we say "fuel" at Texas Electric, we mean the fuel that we use to make your electricity—primarily natural gas and lignite coal.

The cost of fuel is a necessary part of the cost of making electricity. Next year all the fuels we use will cost more, especially natural gas. This is partly because an old contract for low-cost natural gas expires at the end of this year. The gas provided by that contract will have to be replaced with gas selling at the "going rate," which is about 15 times as much as we now pay under the contract.

We buy all our fuels at the lowest price available.* We charge our customers exactly what we have to pay for fuel. And we show the amount for "fuel" on your bill each month.

If you'd like more information about the fuels it takes to make your electricity, give us a call. At Texas Electric, we want you to understand what you're paying for.

*With completion of our Comanche Peak plant, the use of nuclear fuel will help hold down the increasing cost of our fuels.
