Colonel Hits Importing Of 'Outside' Oil

Hearing to Correct Situation Called By Commission Head

AUSTIN, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Railroad Commission today declared oil from outside Texas appeared to be usurping Texas markets and invited evidence to be presented at a statewide prorating hearing Saturday on whether the situation could be corrected by lifting Saturday and Sunday shutdowns.

A statement by Ernest O. Thompson, commission chairman, said restoration of normal seven-day production would make available 400,000 additional barrels of crude "to meet demands which currently are being filled from outside sources."

"There is good demand for oil," said Thompson, who also is chairman of the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission. "All that is worrying anybody is price. Fortunately this commission has never considered price in prorating of oil. Price changes to meet competitive conditions. The man with the lowest price gets the business, quality being the same."

"Just now oil is being imported into Texas from Mexico and South America, Louisiana and Arkansas. This is shipping coal to Newcastles. This is done only because these oils have been made more available than Texas crude. We can correct this condition by making Texas crude available in greater quantities. More oil can be produced from Texas oil fields without causing physical waste."

Cites Cotton Situation

"We must not do in oil what has been done in cotton. Texas cotton markets were driven to South America and other places by artificial controls exercised here in the interest of price. It has proved disastrous to our cotton markets in Texas."

"Texas must not let her oil market get away from us. The oil can be produced without waste. We need the employment this extra production will bring to our state. Labor needs the pay that these two additional days of production will bring to them. Let's put these men back to work."

Texas oil fields have been closed on Sundays for approximately a year and on Saturdays also for several years.

Kansan Slain East Of Wichita Falls

WICHITA FALLS, Oct. 10 (AP)—The body of a man believed to be George Henry Ritchet of Independence, Kas., was found with three gaping holes in the skull near the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad right-of-way east of here this morning.

Investigating officers said the man had been slain during the night and the body dragged from the highway across the railroad. Half a mile away a Kansas car with Ritchet's papers inside and a bloodstained hatchet on the floor was discovered.

Near Ritchet's body was a purse containing $5 in cash and a social security card issued to George Henry Ritchet, carpenter.

A telegram in the dead man's pocket indicated he was en route to Lubbock, Texas, to accept a job offered by Guy H. Gilstrap, apparently a building contractor there.

Japs Claim Drive To Railroad Base

SHANGHAI, Oct. 10 (AP)—Japanese dispatches from the Yangtze front reported today that a strong Japanese column had fought its way to the north wall of Sinyang and that the capture of the important railroad base, 100 miles north of Yankow, was expected at any moment.

Sinyang, on the Peiping-Hankow Railway, has been the goal of a Japanese force marching through Anhwei and Honan provinces since September.

Chinese said severe fighting was going on ten miles east of Sanyang on the Loshan highway where General Sun Lien-Chung, one of the heroes of the Chinese Tairchewang victory last April, was striving to block the Japanese advance.

Spirited fighting also was reported on other fronts.

I Heard ...

LULA BELLE FREES LOVER FROM JAIL

Freedom from the county jail at Lexington, N. C., won when his fellow prisoner successfully wooed the jailer's daughter, was short-lived for Bill Wilson, right, and James Godwin, his partner in crime. Wilson is pictured stepping from a police car at Rickory, N. C., where he surrendered. Police there say he disclosed Godwin's hideout, and the second thug was captured after being slightly wounded. Sobbing her remorse, 22-year-old, 175-pound Lula Belle Kimel, left, pleaded guilty to engineering the escape of the two desperadoes. Given a sixty-day sentence, the girl was freed on $200 bail.

Readers Praise New 'Duds' Worn by News

Readers of The Pampa News were enthusiastic today in their praise of the new type faces introduced in Sunday's paper.

A change from old-style heads to a new and modern headline treatment, became a regular part of The Pampa News with Sunday's edition. So different was yesterday's paper that many failed to recognize it as their home-territory paper.

Here are some of the comments heard:

Mrs. F. E. Hoffman, 715 E. Kingsmill, "It's very nice. You should be proud of it."

Clarence Kennedy, manager DeLuxe Dry Cleaners: "It shows progress in spite of the recession. I like it."

Shelby Gantz, manager Friendly Men's Store: "I thought I had picked up the wrong paper. It's very nice, and people will probably like it still more as they become accustomed to the new style."

Bryant Caraway, manager of Murfee's, Inc.: "It's fine, and much easier to read and helps ease the strain on the eyes."

Jack Johnson, manager Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.: "It's splendid. After reading the paper through, I found that it not only dresses it up, but makes it far easier to read."

Mrs. Roy Sewell, 211 N. Wynne: "I like it. The paper is more easily read now."

M. C. Johnson, manager Montgomery Ward: "It looks fine. The nice thing about it—although it's a decided change, people will grow to like it more and more as time goes on."

Hitch-Hiking Farmer Dies When Struck by Pampa Woman's Car

J. Glen Wallace, 39, a farmer hitchhiking to his Silverton home, was killed on Highway 5, five miles east of Quanah yesterday afternoon when a car driven by Mrs. R. E. Jones of Pampa struck him.

Authorities said Wallace, who had attended a Vernon stock sale, fell into the side of the Jones car. Following an investigation, the Quanah justice the peace gave a verdict of accidental death.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones were returning from Fort Worth when the accident happened. Mrs. Jones told a News reporter this morning that she had just driven over a slight incline and saw the man walking along the highway beside the paving. Just as she came even with the man he fell into the car.

The man's head struck the windshield and his body was whipped against the door causing a large dent. Glass showered Mr. Jones who was not cut.

Mrs. Jones immediately stopped her car and while Mr. Jones rushed to the side of the man, she went to a nearby farm house and called an ambulance and officers.

A minute after the accident cars occupied by W. T. Williamson, Ben White, Bush Haggard and Sam Thomas of Pampa, E. P. Kay of Shamrock and Mr. Sabes of LeFors arrived at the scene and gave every aid possible but the man was reported dead by a physician who accompanied the ambulance.

Survivors are his widow, two sons and a daughter, his father and one brother and three sisters. The body was taken to Silverton for burial.

Over Inch of Rain Falls in Section

Pampa's 1938 rainfall total was boosted to 16.98 inches Sunday night when precipitation which was general throughout the Panhandle amounted to 1.09 inches. Five hundredths of an inch rain also fell between 3 a. m. and daylight Sunday making the day's total 1.14 inches.

At this time a year ago, Pampa received a total precipitation for the year of 19.23 inches.

Sunday's rain was the first of any consequence in the Pampa area since Sept. 12 when an 11-inch fall was recorded on The Pampa News government gauge.

The rainfall Sunday was considered highly beneficial to farmers to whom it gives an opportunity to begin wheat planting.

(By The Associated Press)

Heavy rains soaked into the dry ranges and farmlands of northwest Texas today, giving the Panhandle and South Plains their first good downpour of fall.

Most of the northwest Texas rains were over in three or four hours, long enough to give Dalhart a precipitation of 1.82 inches, Matador 2.10, Amarillo 1.80, Crosbyton 1.60, Memphis 1.52 and Childress 1.38.

Other points reported thus: Lubbock .60, Clarendon 1 inch, Miami .92, Muleshoe 1.04, Plainview .87, Quanah 1.14, Spur 1.32, Midland .46.

ST. JEAN DE LUZ, France, Oct. 10 (AP)—Fears for the safety of Jas. P. Lardner, son of the late Ring Lardner, American humorist, increased today as efforts to locate him continued fruitless, more than two weeks after he disappeared while fighting in Eastern Spain.

Ring Lardner's Son Missing in Spain

United States Ambassador Claude G. Bowers said he was exhausting all resources to learn the fate of Lardner, a volunteer of the International Brigade fighting for Government Spanish forces.

Lardner disappeared Sept. 22. Bowers said so far he had been unable to confirm reports Lardner had been killed or reports he had been taken prisoner by the Insurgents. The fact that no traces of him has been reported in insurgent prison camps increases fears that he may have fallen in action.

Bowers announced today that negotiations for exchange of 75 Americans still imprisoned in insurgent Spain will begin immediately.

Most Churches in Pampa Community Filled Sunday

Not only were most Pampa churches filled to capacity yesterday on the annual go-to-church day but residents of other communities in this section caught the go-to-church idea and filled their own churches. At LeFors more than 450 attended the Baptist church. Several local churches installed more seats to accommodate visitors and members. Most ministers pronounced that the movement was successful its second straight occasion.

Drive Report To Be Made

A report on the campaign of the Salvation Army in Pampa, inaugurated Monday a week ago following a kick-off breakfast at the Pampa Hotel, will be made at a meeting of the Salvation Army advisory board meet at 7:30 o'clock tonight in the city commissioner's room in the city hall building.

Envoy and Mrs. Frederick M. Lange of Dallas will be present. They will leave Pampa a few hours after the meeting. Envoy Lange has been in Pampa since September 23, conferring with members of the advisory board and assisting in the drive. Mrs. Lange arrived here Saturday to join her husband.

An advance gifts campaign opened on October 3, preceding the campaign proper which opened a week later. A goal of $4,000 was set to fill the needs of the Salvation Army in Pampa during the coming year. Half of this sum was secured before the campaign started a week ago.

J. M. Collins, advisory board treasurer, headed the advance gifts campaign. Paul Kasishke and J. E. Posey headed the industrial committee, whose job was to contact industrial plants in the Pampa area. Thirty-six workers from four Pampa civic clubs—the Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis, and Junior Chamber of Commerce—worked in the drive.

The Salvation Army Advisory board is composed of Arthur Teed, president, T. DeWesse, vice-president, J. M. Collins, treasurer; J. C. Maisel, Judge Sherman White, W. A. Bratton, C. H. Walker, Aaron Meek, Paul Kasishke, J. S. Wynne, Dan Gribbon, J. R. Posey and Charles Burton.

Court Denies Mooney Plea

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP)—The Supreme Court refused today to review Thomas J. Mooney's latest appeal from San Quentin penitentiary. Mooney is serving a life sentence for complicity in the 1916 preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco.

Justices Black and Reed took the rarely-used step of denoting their dissent to the court's order which apparently closed the door to any hope that Mooney may obtain release through court action—unless new evidence should be discovered.

It still is possible for a governor of California to grant a pardon. This step is one of the issues in the present gubernatorial contest in that state. For years Mooney has been waging a fight for freedom.

Refusal of a review means that the high tribunal declined to interfere with a decision against Mooney by the California Supreme Court.

Other Decisions

In other actions, the high tribunal:

Refused to review the conviction of Anna Marie Hahn of Cincinnati, under sentence to die in the Ohio electric chair for the poison slaying of Jacob Wagner.

Refused to interfere with the convictions of Charley (Lucky) Luciano and five others sentenced to long prison terms as members of a New York City vice ring.

Heroes Claim Flier Fibbed About Ships

Famed Pilot Called Dupe and Tool Of Hitler, Chamberlain

MOSCOW, Oct. 10 (AP)—Soviet Russia's leading aviators today solemnly denounced Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in a statement accusing him of spreading lies about Soviet air strength to give Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain arguments for the surrender of Czechoslovakia.

"The Soviet statement apparently arose from unverified reports in two London newspapers that Lindbergh had been critical of the Soviet air force.

Lindbergh has made no comment on the reports it was not known immediately whether he had ever returned to England after his visit to Moscow in August. He was believed to be in seclusion at his home on Illice Island, off the north coast of France.

"His visit to Russia figured in a guarded statement during House of Commons debate last Thursday. Ellen Wilkinson, Laborite, said that 'influential people' had told Chancellor Lillier that in no circumstances would Britain fight for Czechoslovakia, and added that 'it is a very serious thing that when a very prominent American aviator' was being lunched by these people, 'they assured him it was impossible for this country to do anything' because Germany's airforce was 'better than the Russia, British and French combined.'"

The Moscow statement was signed by eleven Soviet aviators, including Civil Aviation Chief Vasily Molokoff. Ten of the group had been designated officially as "heroes of the Soviet Union."

Published in the Communist party newspaper Pravda, the statement called Lindbergh a "stupid liar, a lackey and a flatterer of German Fascists."

"Has Been," Soviet Says

It accused Lindbergh of telling guests of Lady Astor in London that Germany's air fleet was powerful enough to defeat the combined air strength of France, England, the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia.

His purpose, the statement said, was to provide Chamberlain with arguments for handing over parts of Czechoslovakia to Adolf Hitler.

The statement characterized Lindbergh as a "has been" aviator, who recently took advantage of Soviet hospitality toward

109 Donley Men Employed on Dam

A total of 109 Donley county workers are now employed on the Lake McClellan lake project in Gray county, as a result of the transfer of 79 additional workers from the Highway 88 project north of Clarendon. There were 30 Donley county men already at work on the dam in Gray county, before the new workers were transferred.

Arrangements for the transfer of the men was effected in a conference here between Sherman White and Donley county commissioners G. G. Reeves and John Hermesmeier, and A. C. Donnell, WPA foreman.

The transfer assures the workers of 110 hours a month. On the Highway 88 project their time was 84 hours a month. The Highway 88 project consisted in the laying of two courses of caliche for a distance of two miles on each side of the Salt Fork of the Red River, on Highway 88. The laying of the caliche has been completed and work was stopped about October 1.

There are now 260 men working on the McClellan lake project. Transfer of the Donley county men was rushed when only 180 of the 260 men assigned to the dam reported for work the past week.

When original request was made for the transfer of the Donley county men was made it was expected that some Pampa men on the job could be used on a project to tear down the grandstand at Recreation park. City Manager W. T. Williams said.

Venado Blanco Has Guest Speaker On Special Program

WHITE DEER, Oct. 10.—Guest Day was observed by the Venado Blanco Study club Thursday afternoon at the recreational building of the Baptist church with Mrs. Ed Hardin of Amarillo as guest speaker.

Mrs. Hardin gave a vivid description of many beautiful gardens which she has visited on her tours into many parts of the world, adding interesting bits of information and stories about each one as scenes from these gardens were thrown upon a screen.

Preceding Mrs. Hardin's talk, Miss Eleanor Ansley and Glenn F. Morris played a group of piano selections; Miss Gladys Holley gave a resume of the accomplishments of the club since its organization a year ago and its plans for the new year. Wendell Cain read "Match-making," and Mr. Davis sang "I'll Go a Vagabonding" accompanied by Miss Ansley. Mrs. B. R. Weeks, club president, was in charge of the program.

10 Year Objective Set as Goal For Business Women

Opening the observance of National Business and Professional Week in Pampa, a breakfast was given for the club members at Six Owen's dining rooms Sunday morning.

Following the breakfast and program, the group attended the First Baptist church in a body. In the afternoon Betty Dunbar spoke over radio station KPDM on the aims and purposes of the club.

Furthering the program for the week the club has decorated a window at Murfee's department store. Other activities of the week will be announced later.

Included in a brief resume and history of the club the objects of the organization were stated as follows:

In 1931 the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, incorporation adopted the Ten Year Objective as their goal. The objective read: "During the next decade the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, incorporated, should fit itself to assume real leadership in thinking on economic problems and their social implications with a view toward helping in the establishment through scientific methods, of conditions which assure to women, and to men as well, the fullest possible opportunity, and reward, for the development of whatever capacities they may possess."

Today approximately 65,000 Business and Professional Women in 48 states, the Hawaiian Islands, Alaska, are continuing toward this goal with the study of "My Business and Yours" as their year's program. Each member in the National Federation at the end of the year's program on "My Business and Yours" will have had an opportunity to analyze her own job, her particular qualifications, the market for her skill and services, her relationships with her superiors and subordinates, her budget, her savings, and her future possibilities in her business or her profession.

The most important source of material for this program will not be in libraries or research projects in the community but is to be found

Harvester Who's Who

- Do you know 150 pounds of pep and joviality, a head of dark brown hair and a pair of smiling blue eyes? Of course, it's Truman "Levi" Rumble.
- It seems that Truman prefers blondes—his favorite screen star being Alice Faye.
- Swimming is second only to football on his "preferred" list of sports. His position was changed this year from guard to the backfield. According to Coach Mitchell, Truman enjoys his work in the backfield better. Thumnaal sketches of Truman are:

  1. Popular with boys.
  2. Has lots of determination.
  3. Doesn't know when he is whipped.
  4. Takes his football seriously.
  5. Hates to make a mistake.
  6. Loyal to school, team and coach.

Jeanette Nichols, a sophomore, was editor of the Rough Rider, the school paper for the Roosevelt Junior High school in Oklahoma City. She was also a member of the National Junior Honor society for three consecutive years and was on the debating team.

EXCHANGE

There was a little girl And she had a little smile; She sent it to a little boy, Across a little aisle.

An observant school boy once defined flirtation as being "attention without intention." What do you think girls?

The modern girl's idea (And she doesn't think it wrong) Is to keep right on getting married 'Til the right man comes along.

Dr. Brown is my chemistry teacher. I fear I shall not pass. He leads me to express my ignorance before the class for the grade's sake.

Yea, though I study day and night, I shall learn no chemistry. Even though I try for a drag with the head of the department, I shall get no comfort from my chemistry grade. The outlined quotations they brought me.

Trout preparath examinations for me, which thou knoweth I cannot pass; thou presenteth my grade unto the registrar, my reputation is darkened.

Surely "F's" and "D's" shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall pursue the course of chemistry forever.

Jonah is a good example of the old saying that you can't keep a good man down.

First Senior: "Busy?" Second Dope: "You busy?" First Ditto: "None." Second Ditto: "Then let's go to class."

Dear Lord, I wish you'd get this straight: I know I asked you for a date Last Saturday, but what I really meant Was anyone but the guy you sent.

WONT GO HUNGRY Families whose daughters are members of 4-H clubs will not go hungry this winter.

Making use of knowledge gained in club activities, the girls are canning and preserving all kinds of food for the family larder, including meats, vegetables and fruits.

Attendance Pilot Makes New Rules Students who miss home room will be required to make up a full hour, according to Tom Herod, assistant principal.

Several students of P. H. S. have enrolled in classes and then changed without informing the teachers they originally enrolled under.

When a student is absent he must bring an excuse from home or have his parents call Mr. Herod by telephone, preferably the latter.

Pension And Scrip Agitation

Old-age pension panacea, characterized by President Roosevelt as "shortcuts to Utopia," are playing a prominent part this fall in political campaigns in many states. The Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday plan in California and a state version of the Townsend plan in Oregon have a good chance of being approved by the voters on November 8. In the meantime, support is being mobilized behind the General Welfare Act, based on Townsend principles, under which the federal government would pay large pensions to every citizen over 60 years of age.

Promoters of all these pension proposals, state and federal, proclaim that their plans would bring permanent prosperity by injecting new purchasing power into the economic machine and by speeding up the circulation of money. Plans of the Townsend type would be financed by a special tax either on all forms of business transactions or on gross income. Plans of the Thirty-Dollars-Every-Thursday type depend upon issuance of scrip to which redemption stamps, purchased with lawful money, would have to be affixed each week.

Economists are unanimous in predicting that such pension schemes not only would fail to produce the hoped-for results but that they would spread economic ruin and fiscal chaos. New purchasing power, they insist, cannot be produced by any such magical means. Payment of the pensions proposed would merely transfer purchasing power from one group of the population to another group. The pensioners could purchase more, but the others would be unable to purchase as much. And the matter would have to pay for the pensions.

It has been estimated that payment of $30 weekly to California old people would impose an average tax of $625 a year on every employed Californian. It is asserted, moreover, that the scrip would depreciate, prices rise, and bankruptcy follow for many businesses. Taxes proposed under the Townsend plan and its variations would also cause price increases, business failures, and a lowering of the general standard of living.

The evil effects arising from payment of pensions on a scale beyond a government's financial capacity have been demonstrated in Colorado. A provision written into the state constitution two years ago called for payment of the comparatively modest sum of $45 monthly to persons over 60 years old. Pensions in the full amount were paid for only four months. Deductions from the pension checks had to be made thereafter. The pension amendment, moreover, specifically earmarked such a large proportion of the state's revenues as to throw the state's whole financial structure out of joint and force a series of reductions in other state welfare activities. An effort is now being made to obtain adoption of a superseding amendment that would limit old-age pensions in Colorado to a maximum of $30 monthly.

Behind the Scenes In Washington

Washington, Oct. 10.—Can you conceive of Adolf Hitler as an exponent of peace on earth and good will to men? Some of the State Department masterminds had to stretch their imaginations considerably, but they did. At least, they imagined a Hitler who could so picture himself in moments of introspection.

This story is given only for what it's worth. But it's a fact that men who worked on President Roosevelt's second cablegram to Hitler actually tried a little long-distance psychoanalysis of the Fuehrer.

Clearing their minds of personal prejudice, they checked closely with Foreign Service men who thought they knew something of the Hitler character. The analysis produced, to be brief, a picture of a soldier with Nietzsche in his philosophical background—a man who considers himself godlike. A man with possibilities of philosophical ecstasy which at best could blaze into fine idealism and at worst into sheer insanity.

Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde? In other words, the boys figured that there might be a side of the Hitler character that they could appeal to. What Mr. Roosevelt thought of it all is not known to this writer. But it was the basis of a special appeal, evidenced especially by assurance to Hitler that a grateful world would rise up and call him blessed if he would only call off the dogs of war.

That no one has any great faith that Hitler is now a reformed character or that the second Roosevelt message appealed to his better nature is indicated by the way Roosevelt's soft-pedal earlier attempts to make F.D.R. the hero of the occasion. No one wants to take credit for what may prove to be a grave dug for democracy.

Wallace Boom? Don't be surprised if Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace gets a tryout as the next New-Deal-fair-haired boy for the 1940 Democratic nomination. And don't be surprised if he doesn't. The less talk you hear about Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson and Harry Hopkins, both more or less ruled out when incipient booms to make first one and then the other governor of New York fizzled, the more you hear about Wallace.

Sharing the Comforts Of Life

By R. C. Hoiles

BENEFITS TO FREE TRADE When the advocates of protective tariff contend, as they invariably do, that we must have protective tariffs in order to maintain the standard of wages, it is interesting to hear them answer the following question:

"If some foreign country could furnish you absolutely free all the clothing we, in the United States, needed and paid the freight to deliver, would the workers of the United States be better off?" If they attempt to be consistent and say they would not be, then the next logical question to ask these advocates of protective tariff is whether the workers would be better off if they had to work and pay for air they breathe instead of having it free. They invariably will agree that the workers are better off with free air than if they had to pay for it.

The point in the discussion is that if the workers are better off because the air is free, then they would be better off if shoes were free. Of course, this cannot be, but if workers could trade something that took only one-fourth the energy to produce to get the shoes as it would to produce their shoes in this country, would not the workers in this country then be better off?

The advocates of protective tariff fail to realize that no one from a foreign land would continue to furnish the people of the United States the comforts of life without we, in the United States, producing something here to send abroad to pay for these comforts; that we never imported anything, unless it be to our advantage; that it cannot be imported without eventually sending something abroad to pay for it; that if we can trade to our advantage, then the workers of this country are better off by having a free exchange than to have a barrier compelling them to produce something that requires more labor than necessary to get what they need and want.

The whole crux of the belief that protective tariff helps the working man seems to come from the fallacious idea so commonly heard and expressed, that men want to work. It is not work they want, but it is the fruits of work that they are after. And anything that will increase the fruits of labor is to the advantage of labor. Anything that decreases the fruits is to the disadvantage of labor and lowers the standard of living of the workers.

Probably the general belief in tariffs is a result of propaganda from people who want their particular product protected, to the disadvantage of producers of other products.

As we see the states in Europe and America encroaching more and more on the rights of the individual, it might be well to remember that those states, that of necessity are obliged to protect people from neighboring aggression, must be able to have a greater control over the lives of the individual than the state that is not surrounded by danger of invasion from the neighboring state. Just to the degree that a state becomes industrial, rather than lives by conquest, should the individual freedom be increased.

So, we, in the United States, should not feel that we are obliged to follow in the footsteps of Europe in government control where they have covetous nations on all sides.

Herbert Spencer, in his essay on "The Great Political Superstition," points this out when he says, "Defense of the society as a whole against external invaders, has for its remote end to preserve each citizen in possession of such means as he has for satisfying his desires, and in possession of such liberty as he has for getting further means. And defense of each citizen against internal invaders, from murderers down to those who inflict nuisances on their neighbors, has obviously the like end—an end desired by every one save the criminal and disorderly. Hence it follows that for maintenance of this vital principle, alike of individual life and social life, subordination of minority to majority is legitimate; as implying only such a trenching on the freedom and prosperity of each, as is requisite for the better protecting of his freedom and property. At the same time it follows that such subordination is not legitimate beyond this; since, implying as it does a greater aggression upon the individual than is requisite for protecting him, it involves a breach of the vital principle which is to be maintained."

Those who are the strongest advocates of the government doing most everything for everyone, are now the ones who are advocating the government selling wheat and cotton abroad for less than it is sold to the workers in this country.

Years ago, these same people protested, and rightly so, the selling of manufactured goods abroad at a lower price than was sold in this country.

The consistency of politicians and reformers is conspicuous by its absence.

THE 4-POWER PEACE PLAN AT HOME

Around Hollywood

By ROBBIN COONS HOLLYWOOD—Short-short story: This dialogue comes from the American version of "Dawn Patrol," an anti-war picture. Courtney (Errol Flynn): "And that comparison goes for their whole war, Donny—a big, noisy, rather silly game. Here we are—going at it hammer and tongs—and we don't really know why or what it's all about. . . . And I'll bet you our friend's over there—the enemy—feels exactly the same way."

"Some day it will end—just as suddenly as it started—and we'll all go home . . . until some other bunch of monkeys sitting around a long table pushes us into another war." And this dialogue comes from the for-British-consumption version of the same scene: Courtney (Errol Flynn): "And that comparison goes for the whole war, Donny—a big noisy game—but if it hadn't been for the war, we wouldn't have had this flying corps coming along as it is. All of us here are pioneers—but it's growing up, my boy. Our equipment's improving every day and we're the feeling they're behind us back home. . . . It makes us proud, doesn't it. . . . All through the centuries the instant old Britain's in any kind of trouble, every kind—every Jack—is up and at 'em just like you—ready to give 'em—give—to give it to them. That's all. But will Flynn consent to the necessary war-glorifying in the British version? He's been obdurate thus far."

A little more disrupted shooting on the "Sweethearts" set the other day—for three takes—and incidentally revealed that the old African lion-hunter and adventurer, W. S. Van Dyke, is a skinner of moths. "High places" of this and another is "Blackwell's Island" begun as just another movie—is being built up (under Mike Curtiz's direction) into something bigger—because John Garfield's part in it wasn't enough after "Four Daughters."

The new crime wave—in the movies—has overreached itself. . . . Crime School, Crime is a Racket, They Made Me a Criminal, Crime and Crime and Crime (usually with the Dead End-Crime School Kids). . . . And Jackie Cooper celebrated his sixteenth birthday as a "Gangster Boy!"

Hollywood's going to be on ice in a big way this winter. Sonja Henie, of course, and Irene Darr, the child skater, and now "The Ice Polles," with the cast of that touring attraction of the same name. . . . The Trocadero puts in a floor show on ice.

Some talk of Harold Lloyd's re-making his silent hits ("Grandma's Boy," "The Freshman," "Speedy," etc.) with a young comedian playing the roles—and that brings up Eddie Quillan, the boy Lloyd had in mind for that same purpose several years ago.

"Dramatic School" is Luise Rainer's first non-costume picture since "Big City." . . . In it the sideliners are witnessing a chess match between Rainer and Paulette Goddard for scene-stealing honors. Goddard has some loud dialogue but Rainer, keen to the goings-on, is stealthily underplaying making her the favorite in the betting.

FDR RETURNING WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt, returning to Washington from Hyde Park, scheduled a White House conference today on next year's budget. Mr. Roosevelt arranged to talk with Secretary Morgenthau, Assistant Treasury Secretary John Hanes and Acting Budget Director Daniel W. Bell. Morgenthau was listed for his regular Monday luncheon conference with the President.

People You Know

By ARCHER FULLINGIM Sweetwater creek was one creek on which we had never camped, so we decided it would be a good place to try out. Some of the boys had hoped to find a swimming hole but you could tell there were no swimming holes in that creek—too much sand, but they found a swing, a cable tied to a high cottonwood limb, and they forgot about the swimming hole. Some of the boys were going to pass their cooking so we hunted a place to build the fires. The rest hunted arrowheads. . . . There was a tall cottonwood tree in the heavily-wooded bottom, about 300 yards from the stream. "We'll go to that tree." But to get there we had to crawl on our hands and knees through the tangled underbrush. There we found the keel place to camp. It was like a big room and was enclosed by log-wood, redbud, elm, cottonwood, and by the time the fires were built and the boys were cooking their meat over the coals, the place looked familiar, like something that you had always known and liked. "This is the place," said Larry. "Boy, ain't it!" said Billy Wayne. "Remember, I made my fire with one match," said Jim Bob. "Boy, watch me turn this meat with this stick!" said Billy Joe. And this one looked at those dozen boys who were cooking their meat over the coals, and he said, "I wouldn't take a million for this bunch—or just one of them!"

Down at the swing the stick slipped to one side in Dickey's hands and he fell into the creek. We had to wash his clothes and build a big fire in the dogwood to dry them. So that gave us a good excuse for staying until long after the bronze harvest moon came up behind the flagpole that marks old Fort Elliott. . . . and we painted each other's faces with the red juice of poke berries to look like Indians and we told an Indian story, and came home. . . .

The question is not whether or not the child is to be disciplined but rather by whom, under what conditions, and when the disciplining is to be accomplished. For if the parent shirk their responsibility and miss their opportunities, the disciplining must be carried out later by others likely to be less interested in the welfare of the child.

All of the learning is based upon discipline, if by disciplining we understand the repression of ineffective and impertinent impulses so as to favor the more effective ones. Discipline certainly is desirable. The virtue of discipline lies in that it favors our getting on with the rest of the human family.

As one psychiatrist has aptly phrased it, "The child in the walled garden can be more free than the one playing in an open field on the top of a cliff."

Perhaps part of the modern prejudice against child discipline arises from the mistaken idea that all discipline must be repressive and that to effect discipline one must have recourse to punishment.

This, too, is a serious misconception. Properly administered discipline is positive and reassuring in its effect upon the child. It promotes the child's feeling of security and its sense of orderly relations.

So They Say

They have averted a catastrophe which would have ended civilization as we know it. —PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN, on the parties to the Czech partition agreement.

Sweet reasonableness had won nothing except terms which a cruel, revengeful enemy would have dictated to a beaten foe after a long war. —ALFRED DUFF COOPER, resigning as Lord of the Admiralty, on Chamberlain's meetings with Hitler.

CHILD DISCIPLINE. It is unfortunate that many of the apt expressions and neat figures of modern psychiatry have entered the public fancy and have entered into common language conveying ideas totally different from those originally intended.

Examples of such commonly misunderstood and misused psychiatric terms are "inferiority complex," "repressions," "inhibitions" and "the unconscious."

Were these to remain merely conversational items (that is, things talked about), the damage would be slight. Not a few, however, are prone to carry over into practice certain of these misconceptions.

A case in point is the matter of child discipline. Many persons labor under the impression that any kind of discipline is bound to thwart the child, to burd-n it with "inhibitions" and to distort its infantile life that it will later suffer from "neuroses," and worse.

Thus many parents attempt to raise their children in an atmosphere of complete freedom.

The question is not whether or not the child is to be disciplined but rather by whom, under what conditions, and when the disciplining is to be accomplished. For if the parent shirk their responsibility and miss their opportunities, the disciplining must be carried out later by others likely to be less interested in the welfare of the child.

All of the learning is based upon discipline, if by disciplining we understand the repression of ineffective and impertinent impulses so as to favor the more effective ones. Discipline certainly is desirable. The virtue of discipline lies in that it favors our getting on with the rest of the human family.

As one psychiatrist has aptly phrased it, "The child in the walled garden can be more free than the one playing in an open field on the top of a cliff."

It must be great to be a specialist in something or other. It leaves you such a great variety of things you don't have to worry about. . . . From a group of psychologists engaged in a study of social issues comes the announcement that wars are likely the result of spats at the breakfast table.

The idea is that the accumulation of small irritations around the house, which a man can't dispose of in a violent way and say out of jail, leads him to jump at the chance to go out and make a significant war against a far-away enemy he has never seen. . . . This is where the psychologist comes to a close and is privileged to pick up his hat and walk out on the problem. That's the comfort of being a specialist. What economic forces may have been indirectly responsible for the tension at home if somebody else's concern.

Maybe a previous war put the country in such shape that the state of business got on the boss's nerves and the boss got on the nerves of the man who fought at home and went out to fight to work his anger off. . . . Possibly one of the things the world needs is a Blind Men's Permanent Committee for the Study of the Elephant. Enough copious related study over long periods might eventually produce a realistic picture of the beast in toto.

A man hesitates to be overly vocal on the subject of speedy justice in times when justice—something—is just too speedy for belief in some quarters of the world. But at the same time a man can't help feeling just a bit like prodding somebody when he runs across such a story as appeared the other day in a New York paper.

Remember the "kidnap plot" story about Paul H. Wendel in connection with the Lindbergh case? Ellis H. Parker and his son, Ellis Jr., were convicted in New Jersey of kidnaping Wendel to force him to confess to the Lindbergh kidnaping. The Parkers were indicted for the same kidnaping in Brooklyn. The New Jersey case has been appealed. Efforts to extradite the Parkers for trial in Brooklyn have been without success.

The indictment in Brooklyn was obtained two and a half years ago. As a material witness Wendel has been kept in a hotel suite with a bodyguard, at Brooklyn's expense, for two and a half years. . . . This cost Brooklyn a tidy sum of $10,000. . . . As a citizen and a taxpayer—it asks you want to prod, just a little.

The Capital Jigsaw

By HOWARD C. MARSHALL AUSTIN, Oct. 10 (AP)—The municipal tourist camps which 15 years ago dotted Texas from end to end have just about disappeared.

This is the information from state offices of the League of Texas Municipalities and the State Health Department. . . . Time was when the camps were crowded on summer nights with tourists, many of whom were driven there by the automobile.

YOU AND YOUR Nation's Affairs Gold Problem and Its Causes

By WALTER E. SPAHR Professor of Economics, New York University

A great number of our people know that the gold stock of this country now exceeds thirteen billion dollars, and that we are the greatest hoarders of gold in the world.

With increasing frequency we see comments on our gold problem. Why did we accumulate so much gold? What are we going to do with this huge supply? What is the solution to this gold problem?

The principal reason why the United States has accumulated so much gold is because our government, in 1933-1934, placed an excessively high price on it. It may be recalled that we paid $20.67 per ounce of gold before the Administration suspended specie payments in March, 1933. After suspension, the value of our paper money in terms of gold declined rapidly. By September 20, 1933, the depreciation of our paper dollar had reached 38 per cent. Thereafter it showed signs of appreciation. But before this appreciation in value could make any headway, the government (on October 25, 1933) embarked upon the Warren monetary program of driving down still farther the value of our paper money in terms of gold on the theory that this scheme would raise prices and create general prosperity. After November 25, 1933, and until January 16, 1934, the government persistently raised the paper money price of gold (and drove down the value of our dollar) until the price of an ounce of fine gold was $34.45. On January 31, 1934, the President, under authority of the Gold Reserve Act of January 30, fixed the price at $35 per ounce.

This price was purely artificial, and the procedure by which it was fixed was unsound and unprecedented. Our present gold problem is largely the direct result of this unwise policy. The price of $35 per ounce of gold was so far above the cost of mining gold throughout the world that mines were opened in every corner of the globe, and gold poured into the United States, not only from mines but from hoards.

ing expensive model automobiles. They were regarded as assets to business and cities tried to make them attractive. Some had public baths and furnished free fuel for cooking.

But the picture has changed, says E. B. McAdams, secretary of the League of Texas Municipalities. The most prominent point in it is the tourist court.

The privately-owned tourist court has almost completely supplanted the old tourist camp and is drawing the cabin-apartment traveler, most of whom not only do not want to camp, but don't want to cook. "Only a few cities in Texas now have tourist camps," said McAdams, formerly city manager of Waco.

"The old style of camp, which really was a glorified wagon yard, served its purpose as a transition period between the horse and buggy days and modern motor travel. "Now it is about gone and nobody is shedding tears over its demise."

A somewhat related type of camp is maintained by some Texas cities for trailer traffic, McAdams said. The State Health Department likewise reports this winter. In the progress of taking its final breaths.

The proprietor of one of the largest tourist courts in Amarillo told the writer recently she would remove the kitchens from most of her cabin-apartments this winter. "Travellers, she said, weren't using the kitchens, but were eating in restaurants. She planned to turn the kitchens into bedrooms."

The State Health department has published a list of about 800 tourist courts and organized camp grounds which it has approved. Approval is based on a sanitation standard. The minimum standard includes: well-drained site.

A reliable caretaker who is responsible for the condition of the court, including sanitation, cleanliness, drainage, mosquito control, etc. Adequate supply of potable drinking water properly protected and its quality checked by periodic bacteriological tests.

Modern flush toilets with connection to a sewer system if possible. Otherwise, a connection to an approved disposal plant. Metal fly-proof, covered garbage cans and means of disposing of garbage daily by incineration or burial. A sufficient number of storage receptacles for trash or refuse which is disposed of properly.

All living quarters shall be properly screened and maintained with adequate lighting, heating and ventilation facilities. Absence of rodents, flies, roaches and other insects. Cabin interior furnishings including bed covers, linen, etc., shall be clean.

Adequate bathing facilities with provision for disinfection and cleaning. Regular inspection by local health authorities to see that regulations are carried out and the court kept continuously in a condition to merit approval.

CRASH KILLS 16

BRUSSELS, Oct. 10 (AP)—A Belgian air liner crashed today at Soest, Germany, killing 16 in the United States, and four Belgian members of the crew.

That had our government let us inconvertible money seek its natural level in terms of gold we could therefore have fixed the value of our dollar in terms of gold at a level much closer to $20.67 than to $35 per ounce. Proof of this lies in the fact that, although the paper money price of gold was raised 69 per cent by January 31, 1934, the average of prices of all other goods had increased only about 18 per cent. They should have been close together and would have been in time had the government not made the bad and foolish mistake of assuming that it could control prices and prosperity by manipulating the price of gold.

But the mistake has been made, and we are now swamped with gold. What are we going to do with the gold, and what are we going to do about the problem? The government has never been able to answer either of these questions. Gold is being dug up all over the world, shipped to the United States, and again buried in the ground at Fort Knox, Kentucky. Perhaps the world has never before observed a monetary phenomenon of this sort its absurdity should be obvious.

The problem could have been prevented and solved in advance had our government in 1933 let our currency find its natural level, and had we joined the other leading nations in stabilizing their currencies at the London Economic Conference in the summer of that year. But the President wrecked that conference in order to try the indefensible Warren monetary scheme in 1933. Since then, other leading currencies, such as the British pound and French franc, have depreciated still further with the consequence that the price of gold is not only excessively high in the United States but is becoming too high in the leading countries of the world. This means that the problem of an excessive gold supply is becoming world wide and increasingly difficult to solve. Indeed, it grows clearer each day that it probably is too late to solve it now, and that the world will have to face the fact that in years to come prices will tend to reach new high levels as the gold comes out of hoarding and goes into use. So long as it is hoarded, as we are now doing it, the effects of the increased supply on prices are difficult to measure. It should also be emphasized that such a hoarded supply is no guarantee against currency inflation.

Governments should put competent monetary commissions to work on this problem. It seems clear that time will show that the wrecking of the London Economic Conference in 1933 was a world catastrophe.

Yanks Win Last Game 8-3 and World Series

By GAYLE TALBOT.
NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP)—The 1938 world series of baseball passed away quietly last evening at the Yankee stadium before 60,000 braced spectators, with Rufus Ruffing pitching and Bill Dickey catching. Please do not send flowers.

The fact that the New York Yankees, in beating the Chicago Cubs four straight, established a record of three consecutive world series triumphs over the struggling National league does not seem very exciting. The only happy feature of the series lay in the fact that none of the Cubs was seriously hurt by an infield grounder.

It never was a contest from the time the Cubs' infield blew up in the opening game at Chicago until the Yankees scored four runs off four (count 'em) pitchers in the eighth inning yesterday to make the final result 8 to 3.

The Cubs, facing a team that now has won 84 of its 27 world series games, were a lightweight trying to stand up to a heavyweight. They could only take a few quick kicks at the giants' shins before they got walloped.

They got stretches of magnificent pitching from Phil Cavarretta and Clay Bryant, and they banded out a lot of good hits, first and last. But their pitchers invariably were knocked for a loop before the end of the game, and their hits for the most part were futile, pecking blows that only annoyed the Yankee moundsmen.

There are many today, including eight National league managers, who are viewing with alarm the stranglehold the Yankees have taken on baseball. They were equally gloomy about the future of the game a year ago, when the Yanks beat the Giants, four games to one. Still, there seems a ray of hope in the fact that the players will divvy up a purse of $434,094.66, which is a record for a four-game affair.

No Yankee Hero.
Off the play against the hapless Cubs, there is no sign of the long-heralded crack-up of Joe McCarthy's great team. Maybe it will go on forever, like a cricket game. Lou Gehrig, the old "iron man" first baseman, is supposed to be on his legs, but you can't detect it by his play the past week. One of his final acts in the ninth inning yesterday was to nearly break his neck diving into the stands after a foul ball.

There was a sort of unofficial contest last night to pick the individual Yankee hero of the massacre. It was called off because it threatened to wind up in a fist-fight between the supporters of Charley Ruffing, who pitched two victories; Joe Gordon, the rookie whose home run upset Bryant in the third game; and Frankie Crosetti, whose fielding at shortstop cracked the Cubs' spirit in the first game and whose home run wrecked Dizzy Dean's finest effort in the second.

Five Home Runs.
Never in a contest more vividly demonstrate the value of power hitting than did the Yanks this time. They belted five home runs, and three of them virtually were game winners. Tommy Henrich's four-run homer in the sixth inning was the winning run of yesterday's game, notwithstanding the Cubs' blow-up in the eighth.

The blow-up, incidentally, came just when it looked like the Cub might get into the ball game. Ken O'Dea, substitute Chicago catcher, had smashed a home run in the first of the eighth, notwithstanding the Cubs' blow-up in the eighth.

And that was when the Cubs began using their pitchers in squads and the game became a shambles. Doubles by Hoag and Crosetti, sandwiched between singles by DiMaggio and Gehrig, two walks and a wild pitch by Tex Carlton, closed the series on a high, hilarious note.

How to See Football

THE 6-3-2 DEFENSE
By JERRY BROWNFIELD
NEA Service Writer

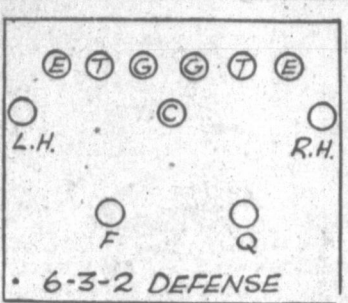

The defensive team meets strategy with strategy these days, and the 6-3-2 set-up is one of the flexible formations which coaches find very effective against a club that has a well-balanced offense.

The six-man line is backed up by the center, the fullback and a halfback. The backs are stationed wide of the ends about five yards behind the line, with the center a yard or so closer up.

The last line of defense consists of the quarterback and the other half, who are 10 to 12 yards to the rear, and in a straight line back from their tackles.

Although this set-up leaves the defense somewhat vulnerable to a quick kick, it is strong against a short passing game.

The center and first two backs are able to stop anything that breaks through the line and yet remain in good position to take care of potential pass receivers who come just across scrimmage or who sit out in the so-called flat territory to the right or left.

The two backs in the rear line can come up fast to guard the middle alley and are in position to stop a receiver who might sneak beyond the center and two defending backs close up.

NEXT: The 7-2-2 defense.

Football Settles Down To Deciding Sectional Races

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP)—Free finally of the football season from base—all the 1938 football season to be full charge of the sports scene this week.

Three weeks of preliminary string, marked on the whole by surprising adherence to the form charts, simply have whetted the appetites of football fans for major tests to come. Thus far it has been largely batting practice but from now on sectional championship hopes will be on the line week after week.

This week's program lines up as follows:

EAST: Two undefeated New York rivals, Cornell and Syracuse, collide at Syracuse in the main domestic title. Cornell, in triumph over Colgate and Harvard, the latter 20-0, has shown great all-around strength. Syracuse routed Maryland, 53-0, last week but has not yet really been tested.

Four more unbeaten arrays meet at Holy Cross, 19-6 victor over Manhattan College, 14-0, and Dartmouth, 22-0, conqueror of Princeton on three long runs. Geneva Brown's vastly improved "creeper" Columbia, paced by Sid Luckman and Art Radavits to a sensational 20-18 victory over Army, angles to win the Ivy League title. Harvard held Duke to a 7-0 count.

Purdue vs. Fordham.
Penn. whose potent attack built around Francis Reenan and Jim Connel, crushed Yale 21-0, meets Princeton next. Harvard and Army quarrel on Oct. 11, the latter 20-0, the third straight beating in a game with navy which rolled up a 33-0 score on Virginia.

The inter-sectional program is headed by the annual duel between untested Fordham and Purdue's "Soilers" who surprised in a 17-0 victory over Washington State. Southern California returns to its own base to play Washington State, already beaten in three conference tests. Washington and Oregon State collide in the fourth conference game.

Utah, unbeaten far western independent, eases off against Arizona.
ROCKY MOUNTAIN: While the University of Colorado is playing George Washington in an inter-sectional battle, Brigham Young, currently 15-0, meets Utah, which ran up 20-0 count on Colorado, stacks up against Denver.

Reynolds Called 'All-American Out'

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP)—They'll be remembering Carl Reynolds' as the "All-American Out" for this world series.

The ex-American leaguer, who returned to the big show this year with the Chicago Cubs and batted a neat 300 in the National league's regular season, was officially at bat 12 times in the four games of the just concluded fall classic with the Yankees—and he failed, completely and entirely, to make a single safe hit.

The last time a player went for a line of "goose-eggs" in the composite box score for a series was in 1911, when John Murray of the New York Giants did it. Only four others did it before Murray.

In a lot of ways, Reynolds work at the plate was far more unique in the 1938 championship set than Lefty Gomez's six-game undefeated winning streak for his series career, or Bill Dickey's four singles in the game between the Yankees and Kansas State. The latter plays Friday night against Marquette whose 7-0 conquest of Southern Methodist was one of last week's prime upsets.

SOUTH—The pivotal clash between undefeated Alabama and Tennessee, Alabama was unimpressive in a 14-0 setback of North Carolina State while Tennessee was winning a Southeastern conference

Takes Shock Out of Blocking

Tackle Dan Rhule of the University of Kansas wears something that looks like a cross between a housewife's apron and a mattress, but actually it is a shock absorber. It is designed to reduce the risk of injury in practice and allow the men to drill more vigorously. Officially known as blocking armor, the equipment is made of heavily-padded white duck. A strap that goes over the wearer's head fastens to the waist in back.

11 Unbeaten Texas Teams Now on List

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF, Associated Press Staff.

Texas schoolboy football teams dug in for the stretch drive today during a week's schedule including 33 conference games which bring the championship campaign to every district.

It is the first week when conference play dominates the race and the results will go a long way toward determining favorites in the respective areas.

A battle at Wichita Falls between undefeated, United Chuldriss and the state runner-up Coyotes, headlines the schedule. Wichita Falls has one on its record—that with Maxon Home, the surprising Fort Worth team—but has run up an excellent record.

The outstanding inter-district tilts matches teams with unblemished records. Livingston and Goose Creek. Cisco plays Brownwood in a crucial Oil Belt conference struggle Cisco, unbeaten and untied and apparently beating back toward last gridiron glories in the battle-scarred West Texas sector, tangles with a defeated but tied.

The week's play is likely to trim the list of teams with unsullied records to fewer than ten. The list now reads: Childress, Graham, Cisco, Gainesville, Tyler, Livingston, Lufkin, Corsicana, Waco, San Houston, Houston, Austin, Houston and Goose Creek. Last week's play swept 10 from the ranks.

Districts 5, 6, 14, and 15 have conference games this week. They are the last sectors to open the championship drive. Paris and Denison are the lid in district 1. Denton meets Highland Park (Dallas) in district 6. Orange meets Calveston in district 14 and Corpus Christi plays Kingsville in district 15.

All told there are 57 games on the week's card. 11 of them being inter-district battles and three inter-sectional with Plainview meeting Clovis, N. M., Amarillo against Norman, Okla., and Jeff Davis (Houston) tackling Byrd High of Shreveport.

Lonsview Falls.
The fall of Lonsview's state championship Lobos before Highland Park and Defeat of North Side (Fort Worth) by Mascenic Home were probably the outstanding features of last week's play. But, while Highland Park was impressive, the game was no real test, inasmuch as Lonsview was badly crippled.

Masonic Home practically clinched the Fort Worth district championship by taking out North Side. Austin of Houston became one of the outstanding South-Texas threats with its 21-6 victory over Corpus and Corpus Christi continued to show to advantage by smashing Brackenridge, the San Antonio favorite, 25-7.

Sunset, the only undefeated Dallas team, walloped Beaumont, 42-7, in a somewhat surprising show of power and Port Arthur smashed over Byrd High, 44-0, in another fine performance. Downfall of undefeated, United Mission at the hands of Class B Raymondville was the big noise of the Rio Grande valley.

Green Stands Out In LSU-Rice Game

J. R. Green, former Pampa Harvester football star, was one of the standouts for the Rice Owls in their heart-breaking 3 to 0 loss to Louisiana State Saturday night in Baton Rouge.

The associated Press account of the game stated "The powerful Rice forward wall, with J. R. Green and Jimmy Rogers playing outstandingly, held L. S. U. at bay pretty thoroughly during the game. Another Pampa boy, Bill Haner, who starts at a guard position was on the sidelines with an injury. His

TCU to Play Aggies In Week's Big Game

By FELIX R. MCKNIGHT Associated Press Sports Writer

David and his slingshot, still a fatal combination, move on to the Brazos river banks next Saturday for a face-to-face meeting with one of the burliest gridiron Goliaths they could duel.

Tiny David O'Brien, Texas Christian's quarterback with the six-point arm, takes an undefeated team into the Aggie lair at College Station. And the odds that he will bring them back in the same unsullied condition are almost too small to mention.

Key man in eight of the Horned Frogs' touchdowns in an unbeaten surge, O'Brien will be matching his throws against the clanging feet of Dandy Dick Todd, leader of one of the finest farmer teams of a decade. Deep in rural territory, College Station, nevertheless, was expected to be the stopping spot for some 20,000 to 25,000 fans for the "natural" of the year.

It was O'Brien and his passing darts that tripped up Pop Warner's Temple Owls, 28-6, at Philadelphia Friday night, the wee one getting the Frogs off to a 21-0 start before he trotted to the sidelines and began worrying about the Aggies. Second and third stringers carried on as the Christians tipped Easterners off to their power.

Todd Leads Attack.
Far away on the Pacific Coast the Aggies were taking defeat, 7-0, but from one of the coast's best teams of all time—the Santa Clara Broncos. Coast fans wiggled and squirmed as the Aggies, underdogs by a 2-1 margin, rocked the Broncos on their heels with the exception of one downfield drive that gave Santa Clara victory in the late stages. Once the Aggies, touched off by Dick Todd's 30-yard broken field jaunt, got to the 10 stripe, but a fumble killed their hopes.

Out of the spotlight after two straight lickings, Rice's champion-ship Owls had one more inter-sectional date before starting conference play—Tulane at New Orleans Saturday. The Owls, unable to get Ernie Linn and Ollie Cordill to their 1937 pitch, lost a killing, 3-0 game to Louisiana State before 40,000 at Baton Rouge in the last 15 seconds of play. Twice the Owls had moved within a step of the Bengal goal but fumbled the ball.

Unbeaten Baylor had a rough customer to deal with Saturday at Waco in Centenary. The Bruins left their hopes with sophomore Bob Nelson in the last 30 seconds of the Arkansas game last Saturday—and he delivered. His 19-yard field goal from a ticklish angle beat Arkansas, 9-6.

The Razorbacks, who had the statistical edge over Baylor both on the ground and by air in a battle that saw 67 passes chucked, and he delivered a meek Texas team in their Saturday meeting at Little Rock, Texas, with only a net gain of 11 yards against Oklahoma on the ground and their annual game to the Sooners at Dallas, 13-0.

A week of rest before the Pittsburgh game at Pittsburgh on Oct. 22 is the diet for Southern Methodist, still stunned by the upset defeat it took from Marquette, 7-0, at Chicago Friday night.

Cubs to Get $4,674 Each

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP)—While it doesn't entirely make up for losing the world series in four straight games, the Chicago Cubs had some consolation today in knowing they would collect $4,674 apiece for taking a beating.

The four games of the world series "made" a total "gate" of $651,169 from 200,830 paying customers. Of this $434,094.66 went into the players' pool to be split up among the world series rivals and the other first division clubs of the two leagues.

The total was a record for a series decided in four games although in 16-game series, drawing larger crowds to the first four games from which the players' "cut" comes, the Yankees and Giants cut up a $450,002.66 melon in 1936.

The shares of the two clubs also were records for four-game affairs, in which interest generally becomes less as they turn out to be lopsided. They split up 70 per cent of the pool on a 60-40 basis.

The Yanks, who gave out $3,500 in cash gifts and split the remainder into 304 shares, will get $5,815.28 apiece while the Cubs will draw down $4,674.87 on each of 25 full shares. The all-time records are $6,544 collected by the Detroit Tigers in 1935 when they beat the Cubs, and $4,556.40 which the Giants got for losing to the Yanks in 1936.

The cuts of the various other clubs are: $32,557.10 each to the second-place Boston Red Sox and Pittsburgh Pirates; $21,704.73 to the third-place Cleveland Indians and New York Giants, and $19,852.37 which the Detroit Tigers and Cincinnati Reds get for finishing fourth.

absence weakened the Owls considerably.
On Friday night, J. P. Matthews, last year a guard with the Harvesters, smashed through and blocked a punt to give the Rice Freshmen their first touchdown. The play gave the young Owls confidence and they smashed out a 20 to 0 victory over the College of Marshall.
Moose Hartman and Stokes Green, other former Harvesters, are members of the Rice Owls.

Pampa's Next Foe Will Be Port Arthur

Coming out of their game with the Lawton Wolverines Friday night unimpaired, the Pampa Harvesters will spend this week preparing for a tougher foe—the Port Arthur Yellow Jackets—here Friday night.

It will be the last night game of the season for the Harvesters and the last game before the Harvesters meet the Amarillo Sandies on Butler Field the afternoon of Oct. 29.

Coach Odus Mitchell and J. C. Prejan plan to work their charges long and hard this week in an effort to get their new line clicking. With only four days to practice, the rejuvenated Harvesters held the veteran Lawton eleven to a 21-21 tie last Friday night. Their play will get good considering the late changes.

Port Arthur will come to Pampa for a return game, the Harvesters making the 800-mile trip to the Gulf city last fall, accompanied by a special train carrying more than 300 fans.

Although not using twelfth grade players in conference games, Port Arthur uses their ineligible players against inter-sectional foes which will mean that the Harvesters will face the strongest Yellow Jacket lineup available.

Port Arthur is undefeated but tied once this season, by Longview, 1938 long-time champions. Last week the Yellow Jackets took a 44 to 0 decision from Byrd High of Shreveport, La.

Next week the Harvesters will start working behind closed gates in preparation for their invasion of Amarillo. That will mean that fans will have their last opportunity to see boys practice this week.

City to Buy Famed Home

GALVESTON, Oct. 8 (AP)-The Oaks, erected more than 100 years ago as the home of Galveston's founder, Col. Michael B. Menard, and marked by the Texas Centennial Commission with a Centennial monument, may soon become a civic center and memorial.

Civic groups banded together quickly when the historic mansion was offered for sale and the fund being gathered is climbing toward the amount required to close the deal.

When Col. Menard formed the Galveston City Company more than a century ago, he reserved for his heirs a 10-acre tract of land in the southwestern part of the city. It was bare of trees at the time, but under his care a grove of some of the island's largest oaks was developed and furnished the home with its historic name.

Tradition says the two central rooms of the mansion were framed in Mexico and brought to Galveston on sailing vessels--as were all building supplies in those early days. The massive columns supporting the lofty front roof, and the frame, were also brought over on the sailing craft.

The entire building was morticed together and joists were set with white lead.

During the 15 years Col. Menard lived after building the home, "The Oaks" became the scene of many brilliant social events.

A feature held within the grounds of "The Oaks" was the annual meeting of the Shawnee Indians. Col. Menard, then the Indian commissioner, was also a member of the tribe from his youth, having lived with them for many years, and was at one time chief of one of the principal Shawnee tribes.

Hobbs Fliers Die In Crash of Plane

HOBBS, N. M., Oct. 10 (AP)-Marshall Franklin and Andrew Allen fell from a plane to their deaths on a golf course yesterday, their ship crashing apparently because of a downdraft.

Both victims were Hobbs businessmen and were about 25 years old. Golfers witnessing the crash said the plane circled the golf course, plunged downward suddenly throwing Pilot Allen and Franklin out of their seats. The plane leveled off but crashed shortly afterward.

Hitler Hits At Churchill, Cooper, Eden

BERLIN, Oct. 10 (AP)-Informed circles today interpreted Chancellor Adolf Hitler's Saarbruecken speech as a warning to German that the future still carries war dangers.

The chancellor declared that Germany was ready "for a policy of understanding with our neighbors, but was preparing herself defensively more than ever."

He indicated that Germany would continue especially to keep an eagle eye on three British statesmen--former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, former First Lord of the Admiralty Alfred Duff Cooper and Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty during the World War--whom he described as "leftovers from Versailles."

"The experience of the past eight months," he said, "shows we must strengthen our determination and be careful to leave nothing undone for our security and rights."

"There are those abroad who do not want peace. The construction of their states is such that men of peace can, at any time, be supplanted by others."

"Supposing after Chamberlain (British prime minister) there came Cooper or Eden or Churchill? They are men who would like to make war."

"We must, therefore, always be ready for peace but in every hour prepared for defense," he continued. "I have, therefore, decided to continue to build up our fortifications with increased intensity."

"On the other hand, I am glad to be able to say that certain measures of security in these past critical weeks and months will be rescinded in the next few days."

Hitler said in his address he would include two districts--Aachen and Saarbruecken--in the fortification chain.

He also announced that "certain measures of security necessary in these past critical weeks and months will be rescinded in the next few days."

"Reservists will be discharged, I am happy to thank them here for what they did."

SERIAL STORY

MURDER TO MUSIC

BY NARD JONES

COPYRIGHT, 1938 NEA SERVICE, INC.

CASE OF CHARACTERS
MYRNA A. DOBBY—heroine.
WIFE of the deceased swing band leader.

YESTERDAY: Tait and Anne had Myrna in an abandoned cabin and bring her back to the city to face the music. Tait vows to help her until the end.

CHAPTER VII

ALMOST three hours later, just as the little coupe was crossing the north city limits, Myrna awakened on Anne's shoulder. The dawn was breaking into full day, and the spirits of the trio rose with the sun.

He turned to Myrna. "Feeling better?"

"Yes... a little."

"Anne and I have decided you should sleep some more, though—in my apartment. Another 20 minutes and we'll be there."

But when Tait arrived at his apartment building he decided that caution would be the better part of valor. Instead of parking near the entrance way, he drove around to the alley.

"I'm going up and have a look. It may be that Dannie Feeley's got suspicious and has someone waiting for my return. You girls sit tight here in the car." He grinned at Myrna. "And I expect to find you here when I get back."

She managed to return a smile. "I'll be here," she said.

Tait hurried up the back stairway of the apartment, slowing down only when he reached his floor. Quietly he opened the door from the back landing into the long hall. To his relief, no patrolling stranger was in sight. Nevertheless he went down the hallway to listen before his door.

SUDDENLY he stopped. The door of his apartment was slightly ajar. Tentatively he pushed it open and looked inside—and was amazed to see, seated in his one easy chair, Harris Rogers.

"Well," he tried to keep the anger from his voice. "You're an early-riser. You say an early caller?"

Rogers got up, shrugging his shoulders and straightening his collar. "Better call me a guest, Tait. The fact is, I've been here all night." He smiled, not unpleasantly. "You see, I came last night. You hadn't arrived, and I persuaded the janitor that I was a friend of yours. I hope I didn't exaggerate, Tait."

"It's not necessary to exaggerate with the janitor if you've a $5 bill," Tait said.

"I really expected that you'd return—and then somehow I fell asleep in that very comfortable chair. I hope you'll forgive me. But under all the circumstances..." His voice trailed off, and he made a gesture which said that Tait would unquestionably understand.

"What can I do for you?" Tait was still standing. He was puzzled at Rogers' curious visit, was nervous about the two girls in the car. Suppose they grew disturbed at his long absence, and walked into the apartment to investigate? "I don't want to rush you, Rogers. But the fact is, I've an early appointment."

Again Rogers smiled. "I won't be long. Here's the point, Tait. I've known you for quite a while, and I've always liked you. Somehow I got the impression, down there at the Pacific Plaza last night, that you were interested in this terrible business."

"Interested? How do you mean?" "Well, curious, then. I can understand that. After all, you're a newspaper man by training. You've been at the finish of a lot of things like this. But this is one that I wouldn't get worried about, Bob."

THE seemingly mild suggestion startled Tait. "You—you're not giving me warning, are you?"

"Of course not." Harris Rogers laughed disparagingly. "It's just a friendly tip. And, frankly, it's for my sake as well as yours."

"I see..." Tait drew cigarettes from his pocket and offered the pack to Rogers. Then, carelessly, he closed the door into the hall. Turning, he said, "Now we're getting somewhere. What's really on your mind?"

"Just this. As you know, I managed Dobby myself—as well as the band go on, both because it means a good spot for me, and because of—Mrs. Dobby. Poor Lud is dead. I don't know who killed him. I'd like to get my hands on him—but I think it's more important to keep things going for the girl he loved. And I'm telling you, Tait, if they start investigating all over the place there'll be a bad mess of publicity. That wouldn't be good for either the girl or her business."

"Her business?" "Of course you didn't know—but Dobby made her a partner in Swingsters. She's liable for the debts of a corporation, and there are plenty." Rogers held his palms upward. "I tried to control Lud, but he was impossible when he was on a spending spree. Never realized that the money couldn't last forever. But with luck, Tait, I can bring things into shape, keep Myrna from getting into a mess, and probably make her wealthy."

Tait was silent a moment. Then: "I get the idea. But I don't quite see how it would help to stop investigating Dobby's murder. I'm afraid that Dannie Feeley couldn't see your argument."

"Naturally not. The police will keep on investigating. But it's a tough case. You know that. It may slide along for considerable time."

The photographer smiled. "In other words, you figure that the fewer who are interested, as you put it a moment ago, the less chance of getting the reputation of Dobby and the band dirtied up."

"That is it precisely. I thought you'd see it my way."

TAIT shook his head. "But I don't see it your way, Rogers. In the first place, the most logical suspect that the police have right now is Mrs. Dobby. Until they can get some leads elsewhere she's going to have a bad time. In the second place, I'm not at all certain that she's interested in the money you can make for her with Lud's reputation and his band—"

"Do you know her well enough to be sure of that?" Rogers wanted to know. "It occurs to me that their acquaintance before marriage was rather short."

Ignoring the remark, Tait proceeded: "In the third place, Rogers, all I have is your word that Dobby's affairs are in a mess and that his past might not look well in print."

"And you doubt my word. Is that it?"

"No—not just yet, at any rate. You might give some notion of what you mean and then I'll be glad to tell you whether I'm willing to believe it."

Rogers' face darkened. "All right, Tait. I can tell you plenty complete the problem of cotton surplus. Cotton markets reacted to the forecast, prices-closing for the day 9 to 14 points lower on the New York market."

Fire Prevention Poster Drawn By Pampa Chinese Boy Wins Lavish Praise

A poster entitled "Fire Hazards in the City," made by Henry Gee, 13-year-old Chinese American boy who is in the seventh grade in Pampa Junior High school, has been commended by both adults and students who have seen the work displayed in a hall of the school.

Young Gee received his idea for the poster from a talk made by a member of the Pampa Fire department to students. The poster Gee made embodies the points stressed in the talk, made in connection with fire prevention week, which opens today.

The Chinese boy has been in America only two years and ten months, coming to this country from Canton, China. He did not know a single word of English when he first came to this country. He was a pupil in Sam Houston school before he settled in Pampa Junior High school.

In the center of the poster drawn by Henry Gee is enclosed a sketch of burning currency with the caption "$500,000,000 annually." A burning house is shown in the upper left hand corner and five coffins are seen in a window sketched in the opposite corner. Between the two is a map of the United States.

Beneath the map appears a sketch of a rat at an open match box, and a can of gasoline. In the lower left hand corner is a burning waste paper basket and a smoking stand. A small pile of trash at the foot of some stairs, and a sketch of a man ascending the stairs who carelessly is throwing a match on a rug, are shown in the lower right hand corner.

Fire prevention week has been the subject of talks in all Pampa schools during the past week. In the Pampa Junior High school, the topic is of special interest to the Safety club, a group formed to study safety problems, and with the aim of patrolling the school grounds and warning students against the unsafe use of bicycles. There are 21 students in the club. Formed this semester, under the sponsorship of Maggie Matthews. Badges, belts, and caps are to be supplied the club by Pampa Kiwanians, according to the Safety club sponsor.

Wallace Replies To Senator Smith

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8 (AP)—Secretary Wallace reiterated tonight, in a letter made public after the Federal Crop Reporting Board had forecast an unexpectedly large increase in this year's cotton crop, new processing taxes should be enacted to finance subsidy payments to cotton growers.

His letter, addressed to Senator Smith, Democrat, S. C., replied to demands of a group of Southern Senators and Representatives for an additional federal subsidy of three cents a pound on this year's cotton or an increase in the rate of federal loans on the crop.

Wallace reiterated he preferred subsidy payments to increased loans, which he said would tend to block exports, plus additional government cotton holdings and tend to bring about complete government operation of the cotton handling, selling and exporting industry.

The crop board forecast a yield this year of 12,212,000 bales—an increase of 387,000 bales over its estimate made a month ago. Officials said this increase would further complicate the problem of cotton surpluses. Cotton markets reacted to the forecast, prices-closing for the day 9 to 14 points lower on the New York market.

Wrestling's Meanest Men on Card Tonight

MAIN EVENT
Sir Joseph Kopecky, Taylor, Texas, vs. Jack Hagen, Shreveport, La.

SEMI-FINAL
Walter Stratton, Cincinnati, Ohio, vs. Gus Johnson, Seattle, Wash.

PRELIMINARY
Sheik MarAllah, Persia, vs. Scotty Williamson, Louisville, Ky.

This is the night mayhem is to be committed at the Pampa Athletic arena four blocks east and one south of the postoffice. It is the night Joe Kopecky and Jack Hagen will settle their differences for all time in a main event wrestling match.

The main event between Williamson and MarAllah is scheduled for 8 o'clock sharp and fans who want to see one of the classiest wrestlers in the nation should be on hand to see Williamson in action.

The semi-final according to dope will be a scientific main event of speed, skill and endurance. Stratton is a famous strong man while Johnson is a real grappler.

The two main events are blood-thirsty villains. They would rather stand up and slug than wrestle if they could.

THOMPSON

eral months, this because of slackened demand.

Last week Thompson said that although the industry appeared to be jittery it was not an unusual condition and he was not apprehensive over the price structure or other features.

In his statement, he continued with the assertion that while the Texas law did not allow the commission to consider economic maladjustment "we cannot sit by and watch our oil markets be taken away by other fields."

"It is not our purpose to make oil scarce in order to make it high in price," he said. "Prices cannot be controlled by any authority on earth. We have never tried to control price. We would be foolish to try it. It always fails."

"The reason control has been successful in Texas is that we have confined our efforts solely to the prevention of physical waste in the interest of all the people. This means that the reservoir energy shall not be wasted and that ultimately the public will get for the use the greatest possible yield from our oil fields. Markets not readily met are driven away from Texas and are very hard to recover. Once lost they may never be regained. We must not lose our established and rightful markets."

"There is nothing strange about producers going to get their oil where it is most plentiful. Oil is plentiful in Texas. We should see to it that oil is made easily available in Texas in quantities large enough to care for all our markets. It should not be necessary for foreign oil to come into Texas. It should not be possible for anybody to take our customers away from us in the oil business in Texas."

"The commission has always raised allowable production anywhere and at any time anybody had a customer or a market if one oil could be produced without causing any excessive drop in reservoir pressure. In other words, if the oil can be produced without hurting the field we raise the allowable to meet all demands."

Market Briefs

NEW YORK, Oct. 10. (AP)—Utilities bounded upward in today's stock market but many strong leaders of the past week backed away under mild profit taking pressure.

Continued favorable business prospects remained as a market stimulant but the fact the list had shot up in size out of ten sessions tended to induce some speculative contrarians to cash in and await possibly better buying opportunities.

Some lightening of commitments, brokers said, may have resulted from the reading of Hitler's Sunday speech in which he stressed that the future war dangers had not been obliterated and that the Reich's fortifications would be expanded on the western front.

Dealings attained sufficient speed after the opening to put the ticker tape behind for a short time. The proceedings were fairly fast until afternoon when there was a slow-down and declines running to a point or more in steel, motors, rails and specialties were reduced. The closing tone was irregularly lower. Transfers approximated 1,600,000 shares.

Pampa Schools To Hold Fire Drills

Fire drills in every Pampa school, talks in schools on fire prevention and a series of inspections are on the program this week in observance of National Fire Prevention week, which opens Sunday.

"The main thing about this week is that we want everyone to think about fire prevention," Fire Chief Ben White said today. "Did you know 7,000 people die from fires in the home in the United States in each year, and that half of these are children?"

"Since 1930, when communities began paying attention to fire prevention, there has been a big decrease in fire losses."

Talks to students of Pampa schools have been scheduled to date as follows: 9:45 a. m. Tuesday, Faris Oden to pupils of Pampa Junior High school; 11 a. m. Wednesday, E. A. Wright, to Pampa High School pupils; 2:30 p. m. Wednesday, Paul D. Hill to pupils of Woodrow Wilson school.

Roby Praised By Minister

Funeral services were conducted Saturday afternoon in the First Methodist church for John Roby, 39, who died of a heart attack on Thursday morning in his office. The church was filled with friends of the popular young business man and the front of the church was banked with 200 beautiful floral offerings.

The Rev. W. M. Pearce, pastor of the church of which Mr. Roby was a member, conducted services. Burial was in Fairview cemetery under the direction of Emenkel-Carmichael Funeral home.

"Death is never so distressing as when it claims its victims in the meridian of life. Then it comes not as the natural event in the course of life, but it seems to us, as the supreme tragedy in life itself. This community has again been brought poignantly aware of the great loss sustained by the sudden going of one of its most useful citizens," Rev. Pearce said.

John Roby had achieved a large place of respect for himself thru his activities in the government of Pampa, the civic welfare of this area, and his leadership in business and commercial affairs. Advancing from telegraph operator at the age of twenty, when he first came to Pampa, to the vice-presidency of our First National bank and the administrator in a large estate, coupled with highway extension, Board of City Development promotions, and service club activities. Through the very qualities that won him confidence did he draw others to him in strong bonds of friendship.

"There is but a step between me and death," is the Scripture text that ought to make us all mindful of the certainty of this "step" and likewise how uncertain is the time and the place and the circumstances when this final parting and solitary step must be taken by every one."

Mr. Roby is survived by the widow, a daughter, Jan Roy, a son, Wayne, his mother, three brothers and four sisters.

LINDBERGH

Americans by barging into Moscow without an invitation."

Among other things the statement said:

"Five years ago Lindbergh visited the Soviet Union, where he was cordially and sincerely received by the Soviet people. The Soviet people cordially opened to Lindbergh the doors of schools and theaters and the gates of airports.

"And then, not long ago, Lindbergh again visited the Soviet Union. It should be noted that nobody invited him, and that if he was permitted to come it was because Americans had requested it.

"Availing himself of this permission, Lindbergh attended Aviation Day (demonstration Aug. 18 during the American aviator's visit to Moscow) and now that he has returned to London he has used his sojourn in the Soviet Union as the basis of calumnies and insolent attacks on the Soviet Union—which was the dish served up to guests of Lady Astor."

"Crossed Lie."

The statement, replying to alleged assertions in London by the American aviator to the effect that the Soviet air fleet was weak and disorganized, said that Lindbergh told guests of Lady Astor that "Germany possesses such a strong air force it is capable of defeating the combined air fleets of England, France, the U. S. S. R. and Czechoslovakia.

"Having uttered such a colossal lie, Lindbergh was inwardly amazed at himself and decided to try another.

"His second declaration exceeded his first. He said that during his stay in Moscow he was offered the job of chief of Society civil aviation.

"Lindbergh in the role of 'Chief of Aviation' Among us pilots such a wild lie could only cause laughter! Such so-called pilots, and even former pilots, will not be permitted to come within cannon shot of our leadership!

"Another unbridled lie followed. Lindbergh declared the Soviet air fleet is without leadership and is in a chaotic condition.

"Soviet aviation holds a majority of world records. The Soviet Union has hundreds and thousands of perfect pilots who not only know how to fly but at any time could be perfect organizers and leaders."

Called "Stupid Lie" Lindbergh, the statement said, "plays the role of stupid liar, lickety and flatterer of German Fascists and their English, aristocratic pro-

... He had an order from English reactionary circles to prove the weakness of Soviet aviation and give Chamberlain an argument for capitulation at Munich in connection with Czechoslovakia.

"The bribed liar, Lindbergh, fulfilled the order of his masters. That explains everything."

The American embassy said that during his visit to Moscow in August, Lindbergh received only such assistance as normally would have been given to traveling Americans.

The embassy attitude was that Lindbergh was not in Moscow as the guest of the United States government any more than any other American citizen.

Sees Air Review

Lindbergh was received by Soviet officials when he and his wife made their surprise visit to Moscow last Aug. 17.

On the day after their arrival, the Lindberghs were guests at the Soviet "Aviation Day" celebration. From seats among Soviet officials they saw mass demonstrations by parachute jumpers, stunting by scores of planes, and a sham battle in the air.

The American flyer visited the air academy where Soviet aviators and trained, inspected industrial plants outside Moscow, and studied the technical progress of Soviet aviation under the guidance of Moscow engineers.

On Aug. 26, Col and Mrs. Lindbergh flew from Moscow to the Soviet Ukraine. After two stops in the Ukraine they flew to Rumania on Aug. 31. On Sept. 1 they made an unscheduled landing at Olmutz, central Czechoslovakia, then went on to Prague.

Visits Prague

At Prague, Lindbergh talked with President Eduard Benes and was decorated by the Czechoslovak government. He and his wife flew from Prague to Paris Sept. 8, then on to their Illiec Island home.

In October, 1937, the Lindberghs visited Germany. At Munich, the aviator heard the chairman of the Littlefield Society for Aviation Research pay tribute to him at one of the society's sessions.

In Berlin, he visited aircraft factories under the guidance of General Ernst Udet, German World War ace.
