COMBAT PHOTOGRAPHER TESTIFIES:

GIs Fired At 50 Civilians

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Ronald L. Haeberle, former Army combat photographer, testified today at the court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr., that he saw American GIs fire at 50 to 75 Vietnamese civilians on the south side of the village of My Lai.

Haeberle, 28, who made pictures he said were of Vietnamese civilians slain at My Lai on March 16, 1968, said he saw people trying to get up and run.

FELL DOWN

"They just fell down," he said.

Calley, 27, is charged with the premeditated murder of 102 Vietnamese civilians.

Haeberle said he saw a woman holding a small child trying to run.

NO

Capt. Aubrey Daniel, chief Army prosecutor, asked: "Did you see any people left standing when the firing was over?"

"No, I didn't see anyone," Haeberle replied.

The stocky, dark haired, sideburned former sergeant, who was in Calley's company in the My Lai assault, was asked how many persons were in the group of Vietnamese he saw south of the village.

RAPID SHOTS

"Seems like quite a large group of people. I estimate 50-75. I noticed these people squatting in a Vietnamese position. I looked over again and about three people were walking away.

"I heard firing and I looked over to the right and I saw people trying to get up and run. They just fell down."

Daniel asked Haeberle if he could identify the type of firing he heard.

"It was rapid fire, it appeared to be machine-gun fire."

He testified that at first there were five soldiers standing in front of the Vietnamese people.

"Then I saw three of the GIs walking off into the distance. That's when I heard the automatic fire."

Q. Where was the firing coming from?

DIDN'T SEE IT

A. From one of the soldiers.

Q. Did you see any people left standing when the firing was over?

A. No, I didn't see anyone.

Earlier Roger Alaux Jr., a former artillery lieutenant in the assault on My Lai, testified on cross-examination that he witnessed no enemy fire on the hamlet.

Alaux, now a student at the University of Arizona, also said he called in no artillery fire on the village and that artillery damage he observed lay not in the village itself, but in rice paddies to the south.

Alaux testified for the prosecution Tuesday. He said he saw a group of bodies on the north-south village trail, two or three hours after Calley's platoon was landed by helicopters. He said he saw the body of a small child on another trail.

Apparently attempting to forestall any suggestion that the Vietnamese were killed by artillery shells or in the crossfire of battle, Capt. Aubrey Daniel III, the Army prosecutor, asked Alaux whether he saw evidence of artillery.

"The direct evidence of artillery was south of the village in the rice paddy," Alaux said. He added that to the best of his knowledge the platoon received no enemy fire that day.

Before testimony began, the military judge, Col. Reid W. Kennedy, asked the 27-year-old Calley how he pleaded.

"I plead not guilty," he said.

If convicted, the 5-foot-3 infantry lieutenant could be sentenced to death by a firing squad or hanging, or be sentenced to life imprisonment.

Weary Rock Climbers Near Goal

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AP) — Hungry and weary rock climbers Warren Harding and Dean Caldwell neared the 3,000-foot summit of EL Capitan today and their goal of becoming the first men to scale the sheer " Wall of the Morning Light."

A large welcoming party of friends and newsmen waited atop the giant granite monolith to greet the bearded pair with a feast of steak, eggs, pastry and other foods they have done without for nearly a month.

Harding and Caldwell had expected to reach the top of the unclimbed southeast face of El Capitan Tuesday — their 26th day of climbing — but they stopped 200 feet short of the summit and spent the night in cocoon-like sleeping bags attached to expansion bolts driven into the rock.

Harding, 46, of West Sacramento, Calif., and Caldwell, 27, of Portland, Ore., launched their venture Oct. 23 and had expected to take 10 days to climb the "Wall of the Morning Light," so named because it catches the day's first sunshine.

They carried 20 days supply of food and for the past week have subsisted on candy bars and sardines.

Case For Mitchell Starts At Ft. Hood

FT. HOOD, Tex. (AP) — Paul Meadlo, who told a national television audience he shot several South Vietnamese at My Lai, was expected to be called today in the court martial of S. Sgt. David Mitchell, but Meadlo's lawyer said he would advise him not to testify.

Defense attorneys told newsmen Tuesday that Meadlo, Terre Haute, Ind., would be their second witness today. The first witness was to be Elmer Haywood, Baytown, Tex., who also was at My Lai, the attorneys said.

John Kesler, an Indiana state representative, told the Associated Press he would advise Meadlo not to testify.

"I doubt if we'll be on the stand more than three or four minutes," Kesler said. Although Meadlo is a civilian, and therefore presumably beyond the Army's jurisdiction, Kesler said federal law authorizes the appointment of a military tribunal, to try criminals.

Kesler noted that Col. George R. Robinson, military judge in the Mitchell trial, has warned other civilian witnesses before they admit they were present during the alleged massacre at My Lai, that such an admission might tend to incriminate them.

"If they can't try them, why issue the warning?" Kesler said

Robinson ruled Tuesday that witnesses who declined to testify on their presence at My Lai would be allowed to avoid any questions about My Lai. This ruling followed a closed hearing on the issue Monday.

Meadlo told Mike Wallace of CBS last Nov. 24: "I might have killed about 10 or 15 of them—men, women and children, and babies."

"How do you shoot babies?" Wallace asked.

"I don't know. It's just one of them things," Meadlo replied. Meadlo told Wallace some members of his company found an old man and yelled to Mitchell: "There's a man over here."

"Sgt. Mitchell hollered back, shoot 'em," Meadlo said.

A film of the newscast was viewed last Sept. 17 by Col. Robinson on the issue of pretrial publicity. Robinson overruled a defense motion that the charges should be dropped because of extensive news coverage of My Lai.

'Umbrella Defense' In Tate Murder Case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defense in the Sharon Tate murder trial is planned as a joint effort—an "umbrella defense"—but the four attorneys agree that they often disagree.

"At this moment in time, we are in agreement," says one. "But I can't tell you what will happen tomorrow."

The agreement, as the defense case opens Thursday after a two-day recess, is to let one attorney—Paul Fitzgerald—take the helm, calling and questioning witnesses who will testify for all four defendants. Other attorneys will move in for witnesses whose testimony relates specially to their individual clients.

23RD WEEK

The four represent Charles Manson, leader of the hippie-type clan, and three women followers charged with murder-conspiracy in the slayings of Miss Tate and six others. The trial entered its 23rd week Monday with the state resting its case.

Arguments for dismissal of charges are set for Thursday, followed by opening of the defense case. The defense plans to call about 40 witnesses.

Squabbles during the trial have erupted around the unpredictable Manson and his unpredictable attorney, Irving Kanarek. Frequently, Manson has arisen and asked the court to fire Kanarek and let him be his own attorney. The requests—including one Monday backed by two other defense attorneys—were turned down.

Other attorneys have complained about Kanarek's tactics, and at one point accused him of trying to "dump" the girl defendants by eliciting testimony helpful to Manson but harmful to the others. At various times, each attorney has moved to sever his client's case from one or more of the others.

"There are still disputes among us," a team member said Tuesday. "It's only natural in a joint trial." But he added that the team still aims for "an umbrella defense in which all defendants stick together."

UF DRIVE OVER $90,000

The United Fund rose to $92,752.94 this morning with amounts turned in by John Burgess, chairman of the "big gifts" portion of the drive. Also included were gifts from the employes of W. D. Caldwell Construction Co. The drive is now about $17,222 away from the goal.

Fraud Case Jury Bound

DALLAS (AP) — The trial of John C. Dalton, 51, president of Greenville Aviation Inc., was expected to go to the jury today.

The defense rested Tuesday after Dalton testified he did not know claims his company made to the Veterans Administration were frauds.

He is charged with submitting nearly $8,000 in false claims to the Veterans Administration for pilot training that was not provided.

Dalton testified that "people with more expertise than I have were taking care of the business" of checking out the actual flying time of students with the hours claimed on tickets bearing their names.

Woman Slain In Model Home

HOUSTON (AP) — A real estate saleswoman was found beaten to death in a model home Tuesday night, slain with a medieval mace.

June Gleason, 36, was bludgeoned in a bathroom of the house in north Harris County.

Sheriff's officers said she was battered by a mace, a ball and chain weapon used by medieval warriors. The weapon came from a display over the fireplace in the home.

C. H. Crutchfield, a salesman for another real estate company found the body on arriving at the house, which was used as an office by the firm for which Mrs. Gleason worked.

Defense Department Buying 'Bad' Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department is still buying large amounts of an expensive pain-killing drug a government study says often has little or no effect.

The total Defense outlay for various forms of Darvon—the drug's trade name—is more than $5 million.

In the past 11 months the Pentagon has purchased more than $177,000 worth of Darvon 32 and Darvon 65 and has paid some $291,000 for a combination of Darvon and aspirin. Prices range from $1.58 per 100 for Darvon 32 and $12.38 a bottle of 500 for the larger dosage.

In June, 1969, the Pentagon paid 73 cents for 1,000 aspirin tablets.

A spokesman for Eli Lilly Co. of Indianapolis, Ind., the manufacturer, defended the drug as effective and said "there have been something like 230 million prescriptions written for Darvon and that's a good-size part of our business."

LOT SAFER

Investigators for a Senate subcommittee looking into government purchasing practices say Darvon is only one example where the Pentagon has purchased an expensive drug when a cheaper one is as effective or more so and frequently safer.

An investigator said the significance of Darvon, however, is that it is one of the biggest selling drugs in the world.

He said there were many other drugs as well as agencies involved.

volved.

In April, 1969, a panel of the National Academy of Sciences —National Research Council said Darvon, "in doses of 65 milligrams to 100 milligrams, has usually but not always proved superior to placebo in reasonably sensitive analgesic assays; however, the 32 mg. has often been found indistinguishable from placebo."

Aid Turns Up For Resigned Police Chief

SAN ANGELO, Tex. (AP) — Financial aid turned up Tuesday for Melvin James, who resigned as San Angelo's police chief last week while being tried in the shooting of a prisoner.

City commissioners voted $10,915 in severance pay for James, which was informed he was due 90 days of sick leave, 103½ days of vacation and 52½ days as holiday leave—a total of 246 days.

In addition, citizens who conducted a four-day drive for donations delivered a $1,024 check to the district clerk's office to pay a fine levied against James and court costs in his trial. Mrs. John Unger, chairman of the drive, said gifts still were being accepted.

James was charged originally with assault to murder in the wounding Sept. 25 of John T. McNelly, 17, shortly after the youth was arrested.

This charge was reduced to aggravated assault during the trial last Thursday and James pleaded guilty, at the same time submitting his resignation as police chief. He had held that office for a decade and was a member of the San Angelo force for 10 years previously.

GM Production Wheels Drag

DETROIT (AP) — One major hurdle to a return to production by General Motors Corp. — a contract agreement at a key body stamping plant — has been cleared. But the chances of getting the wheels moving again by Dec. 1 appear slim.

A highly placed GM source conceded this and said full production may be as far away as Dec. 15 or later.

GM has been closed by a nationwide strike which has idled 394,000 workers for nine weeks.

A new national contract, which eventually would raise the average production workers' annual wage to between $12,000 and $13,000, has been agreed upon and is being submitted to ratification. Through Tuesday, all 26 union locals that had voted on the pact had expressed overwhelming approval.

But all 155 GM-UAW bargaining units were authorized to continue striking until they have new local agreements to supplement the national contract, and 57 plants are still without such settlements.

GM lists 54 key plants as vital to a resumption of full operations, but sources say there are two facilities which are essential to starting up in any volume.

One, a Fisher Body Division plant at Willow Springs, Ill., near Chicago, reached tentative settlement late Tuesday.

The second, a Fisher plant in Mansfield, Ohio, is still without an agreement. Both plants produce body stampings for all GM automotive divisions.

WOMEN ALL SHOOK UP IN KILLEEN

KILLEEN, Tex. (AP) — Fifty women decided they would show the men they could best them in harvesting pecans from the plentiful trees around this central Texas town.

The women even devised their own harvesting methods. They would use parachutes to catch nuts shaken from the trees by a tree shaker.

But the method got all shook up Tuesday.

The parachutes were too heavy, the nuts missed the chutes, and the trees didn't shake.

It's not unusual for a man to make $50 in one day's work.

The women's profit was $1.87 each.

Panel To Challenge Court Ban On List Of Speakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee announced today it will challenge a court order against its report on alleged radical campus speakers by revising and reissuing the report —and prohibiting the courts from interfering.

PUBLIC PRINTING

The maneuver "sets the stage for what may well become an historic confrontation between the Congress and the federal courts," the House Internal Security Committee said in a statement.

Public printing of the report —which lists college campus speeches by 65 persons that the committee says are revolutionaries, militants and Communists—has been prohibited by U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell.

The committee is appealing Gesell's order.

But Chairman Richard H. Ichord, D-Mo., advised all members of the House by letter today that he also is going to revise and reissue the report. He said he will then ask the House to pass a resolution prohibiting the courts or anyone else from interfering with its public printing.

The chairman accused Gesell of supervising, censoring and restricting the report in violation of legislative powers the Constitution gives exclusively to Congress, not the courts.

'BLACK LIST'

Gesell ruled the report attempts to "black list" the named speakers from further campus appearances and thus violates their constitutional free speech rights.

The report contends the campus speaking circuit is a significant source of financing "for the promoters of disorderly and revolutionary activities among students."

It is based on a survey of 95 colleges that shows the 65 speakers were paid $108,000 for 155 speeches over the past two years.

Beaumont Papers Sold To Hartman

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP) — The outstanding stock of The Enterprise Co., publisher of The Enterprise and The Journal, has been sold to Bill Hartman and Associates of Baytown.

Hartman and The Enterprise Co. issued a joint announcement of the completion of preliminary negotiations Tuesday.

The transaction, which includes the Jasper News-Boy of Jasper, Tex., will be completed by the end of the year, the statement said.

The amount of purchase was not disclosed.

The announcement came just 11 days after The Enterprise celebrated its 90th birthday. The oldest business institution in Southeast Texas to operate continuously under the same name since its inception, the company was founded in 1880 by the late John W. Leonard. The first issue of The Enterprise came off a hand-operated press Nov. 6 of that year.

BAYTOWN NATIVE

Hartman, executive vice president and co-publisher of the Baytown Sun, will become chairman of the board of directors and publisher of The Enterprise and The Journal.

He was reared in La Porte and Baytown and has been associated with his father, Fred Hartman, and with Carmage Walls of Montgomery, Ala., and Galveston, and other newspaper ventures in Texas.

The elder Hartman has been identified with the Baytown Sun since 1935.

A majority interest in The Enterprise Co. is owned by the estate of the late Mrs. J. L. Mapes. First Security National Bank is trustee for the estate.

DEDICATED PEOPLE

John E. Gray, chairman of the board of directors of the bank, participated in negotiations leading to the agreement to sell the newspaper properties.

"Bill Hartman, his father, Fred Hartman, and their associate, Carmage Walls, are experienced, dedicated newspaper people," Gray said Tuesday.

"All of these men have a deep sense of community responsibility and we welcome them to our community.

"They operate many excellent newspapers throughout Texas and the South, and they know that locally-oriented newspapers are extremely important to the growth and development of the community and the area they serve," he said.

"I know they will continue to publish newspapers in Beaumont and Jasper of which these communities and area may justly be proud," he said. Walls lives in Montgomery, Ala.

NO CHANGES

R. M. Frost, veteran Beaumont newspaper executive, will remain as president and general manager of the company. No personnel changes are anticipated, the joint announcement said.

The Bill Hartmans and their three children, Fred Blailock, William Lee and Elizabeth Ann, will move to Beaumont in the near future. Mrs. Hartman is the former Miss Suzanne Blailock of Dallas. Both are Baylor University alumni.

Hartman graduated from Baylor in 1962. He is a member of the board of directors of the Baytown Chamber of Commerce and holds the office of secretary of the board.

He also is the director of Citizens National Bank and Trust Co. of Baytown. He is a former deacon of the First Presbyterian Church in Baytown and is a member of the Baytown Rotary Club.

"I feel highly privileged to become associated with an institution like The Enterprise Co.," Hartman said, "and I look forward to being associated in Beaumont with Mr. Frost and Don Boyett, and working with new colleagues who have made The Enterprise and The Journal outstanding newspapers."

Boyett is vice president of the company and editor in chief of the two newspapers.

DEMONSTRATOR LED AWAY IN ROME PROTEST — An elderly woman is led away by helmeted riot policeman in Rome Tuesday, when victims of the 1968 Sicilian earthquake tried to march into the Italian Chamber of Deputies. About 100 Sicilians had camped out in tents since last week to protest the slow pace of relief operations.

Scientists Urging Senate To Kill 'Bill Of Horrors'

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 750 top scientists including six Nobel Prize winners are urging the Senate to kill a defense facilities and industrial security proposal they say is "a bill of horrors."

The scientists from 138 universities, medical schools, hospitals and research institutions n 35 states and Washington, D.C., signed a petition "against what they see as a threat to their work in the laboratories," a spokesman said.

A delegation arranged a meeting with Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., today to present the petition opposing the House-passed bill, which would apply to campus research on classified military projects.

Petition signers include Nobel laureates Hans Bethe, Arthur Kornberg, Salvador Luria, Linus Pauling, Albert Szent-Gyorgyl and George Wald, plus presidential scientific advisers Jerome Wiesner and Jerrold Zacharias of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and George Kistiakowski of Harvard, the spokesman said.

Backers of the legislation, which cleared the House 274 to 65 last January, call it an effective means of balancing an individual's interests against the nation's security interests.

Howard County Airport Also Lacks Slope Landing Device

The Howard County Airport is one of 304 airports in the continental United States that lack the glide slope landing device.

It is the lack of such a device that has been partly blamed for the 75-death Marshall University football air tragedy last weekend.

Most of the planes landing and taking off at Howard County Airport do so in fair weather during daylight hours, Dean Berry, airport manager, said. The airport has one flight which lands at 9 p.m. daily, other flights arrive between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m.

"The terrain around the airport is flat, wide-open land," Berry said. "There are no tall buildings or trees to obstruct the landing approach."

A glide slope system beams an electronic signal at the plane to line up the crosshairs on a cockpit instrument and turn on a red warning if the jet strays too low or too high.

The Huntington, W. Va., airport where Marshall's chartered twin-engine DC9 jet hit a tree-studded ridge while coming in too low on a rainy night has neither radar nor a glide slope device.

Berry said more than 5,000 passengers passed through the local airport last year, travelling on CV600's, convair-type airplanes with turbojet engines.

"As we are now (without the equipment) we have to have at least a 500-ft. ceiling with one mile visibility before a plane can land; and at least a 200-ft. ceiling with a half-mile visibility before a plane can take off," Berry said.

Berry said the local airport is rarely plagued with the rainy, foggy types of bad weather for which the slope landing device is designed.

"We may have two or three days in a row, and then go for two or three months before we have any more bad weather," Berry said.

Other Texas commercial airports listed in the latest FAA statistics as lacking guidance equipment include Borger, Brownwood, College Station, Galveston, Harlingen, Laredo, Lufkin, McAllen, Paris, Temple and Victoria.

Cowboy Award Winner Named

DENVER, Colo. — Phil Lyne of George West, Tex., was named winner of the annual Bill Linderman award, the Rodeo Cowboys Association said here today.

Lyne, 23, who was professional rodeo's Rookie of the Year for 1969, received the award by winning the most money — $18,428 — in both riding and timed events.

To be eligible for the award a cowboy must win in at least three events — one timed and two riding or one riding and two timed.

The award was originated to commemorate the career of Linderman — King of the Cowboys — after he was killed in a commercial airline crash at Salt Lake City, Utah, in 1965. Linderman was successful in both riding and timed events, and won nearly a half million dollars in the rodeo arena in his 25 year career.

Life On Planets Still Possible

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — There's been no life or evidence of life found in any of the samples brought back from the moon by Apollo astronauts, but many scientists still believe there may be life forms somewhere in outer space.

Astronauts on the last four Apollo missions will drill into the moon's surface and bring back soil samples from below the top layer of lunar dust. Many scientists believe that if the moon harbours life, it will most likely be several feet beneath the surface, away from te 250-degree heat of the surface temperatures.

Conditions on other planets, such as Mars and Venus, appear to be even more adverse to life. But even there, scientists believe, life is possible.

Their best argument is that life is found on earth in the most unlikely of places.

Microbes, viruses or algae has been found in such places as the boiling waters of a geyser, the hot exhaust of jet engines and the extreme cold of glacier ice.

One scientist recently even found an algae thousands of feet from the ground, living and reproducing in the atmosphere.

America's first concerted search for life on another planet will come in the middle of this decade when an unmanned spacecraft called Viking will land on Mars. Electronic devices in the spacecraft will examine the Martian soil, searching for signs of life.

'Gunsmoke' Ropes First

NEW YORK (AP) — "Gunsmoke" was back in first place again as the top-rated television show for the week of Nov. 2-8.

Flip Wilson was close behind in second place in the Nielsen ratings.

Missing from the top 10 because of the election coverage were regulars "Marcus Welby, M.D.," and the ABC Movie of the Week.

"Men From Shiloh," the revised version of "The Virginian," made its first appearance in the top 10 for the week.

Here are the top 10:

1. "Gunsmoke," CBS. 2. Flip Wilson, NBC. 3. Walt Disney, NBC. 4. "Ironside" NBC. 5. "Men from Shiloh," NBC. 6. "Bonanza," NBC, and "Here's Lucy," CBS, tie. 8. "Mod Squad," ABC. 9. "Hawaii 5-0," and Thursday Movie, "The Shuttered Room." both CBS, tie.

Robs Bank With Note

DALLAS (AP) — Without displaying a weapon, a robber with long blond hair used a note to hold up the Citizens National Bank and fled with his loot in two shopping bags Tuesday.

Officials said he obtained less than $5,000.

Teller Carolyn Rogalsky said he handed her a note demanding $20, $50 and $100 bills and warning, "Don't activate any alarms."

She had no $100 bills, Mrs. Rogalsky said, but she put $10s, $20s and $50s in the bags he held and, at the bandit's command, also tossed in his note.

He departed beneath a sign beside a television camera over a doorway which reads, "Smile, you are on bandit camera." At that point Mrs. Rogalsky activated the camera and an alarm, but he escaped on foot.

Roudebush Asks Recount

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Republican Rep. Richard L. Roudebush Tuesday challenged the official tabulation showing Sen. Vance Hartke ahead by 4,383 votes in his bid for re-election.

Roudebush asked for a recount in 464 precincts of 11 Indiana counties.

Roudebush, who abandoned a five-term congressional career and sought the Senate seat with backing of the Nixon administration isdahe ilbe eeetrhdvetration said he believed the recount would boost his total vote above Hartke.

Secretary of State William N. Salin Monday certified the Nov. 3 election results with figures showing Hartke 4,383 votes in front of Roudebush, a margin of just under one vote per precinct.

The final figures were Hartke 871,090, Rodebush 866,707.

In signing petitions asking the recount, Roudebush said they were not based on fraud charges. Instead, he said, they asked corrections of what he believed to be errors.

Militants Over Hill, Says Official

FORT WORTH (AP) — Dr. C. E. LeMaistre, chancellor of the University of Texas System, says student bodies across America are "responsible and sincere" and fed up with "rabble rousers."

He predicted in an interview that mass dissent and militancy on campus is ended.

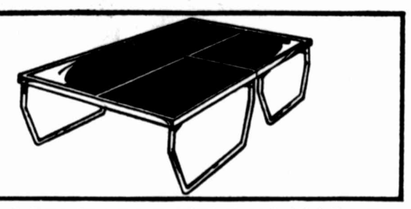

"Students on campuses in this state haven't taken up the crime and violence the radicals sought and this has left those radicals more frustrated," he said.

Much of the campus unrest he attributed to non-students.

Dr. King, RFK Shot Down

White House Diary

By Lady Bird Johnson
Part Twenty-Two

THURSDAY, April 4, 1968

The White House

I was back at the White House by 3 o'clock from my brief visit to that beautiful never-never land — Mrs. Merriweather Post's home in Palm Beach. The headlines of the Washington papers today were so hopeful — "Hanoi Offers Talks on Bombing Halt"... "U.S. Accepts, Will Establish Contact" . . . "Johnson Off Today for Hawaii Parley on Vietnam Policy." And another headline — "RFK-HHH See LBJ."

While Mr. Per was fixing my hair, Lynda Bird, who had been watching TV, came flying into my room crying: "Dr. King's been shot!" Quieting down a little, she told us that Martin Luther King, about to lead a march in Memphis tomorrow, had been shot on a motel balcony, and was on his way to the hospital.

'HE'S DEAD'

From that moment on the evening assumed a nightmare quality. A few moments later Lynda came in and said, "Mama, he's dead!" Everybody's mind began racing off in its own direction, as to what this would mean — to racial violence in our country, to the work of so many who were trying to bring us together — how far would it set us back?

There I sat with an elaborate hardo, in my elegant, festive, flame-colored chiffon, ready for the Democratic Dinner, which was already in progress. But the hands of the clock had stopped, and we were in a strange sort of suspended state, for the next hour or two.

Lyndon was in his office — I knew he was working on a statement. He delivered it on TV from the White House: "American is shocked and saddened by the brutal slaying tonight of Dr. Martin Luther King. I ask every citizen to reject the blind violence that has struck down Dr. King, who lived by nonviolence. I pray that his family can find comfort in the memory of all he tried to do for the land he loved so well. I have just conveyed the sympathy of Mrs. Johnson and myself to his widow, Mrs. King."

The line that cried out to me was, "I hope that all Americans tonight will search their hearts as they ponder this most tragic incident. . ." And then was the line that settled our our personal, immediate questions — "I have canceled my plans for the evening. I am postponing my trip to Hawaii."

Dinner was a strange, quiet meal. I thought, and maybe everybody else did, that we had been pummeled by such an avalanche of emotions the last four days that we couldn't feel anymore, and here we were, poised on the edge of another abyss, the bottom of which we could in no way see.

WEDNESDAY, June 5

The White House

If was a short night. The phone jarred me awake from a deep sleep. Lyndon was saying tersely, "Will you come in here?" I did not see how it could be morning. I was too tired. And sure enough, I saw the hands of the clock stood at 4:20.

He was propped up against the pillows, looking as though he had never been asleep, and all of the TV sets were turned on. He was listening intently, and I realized at once that something serious was happening.

I am not sure whether I heard it first from the TV set or from Lyndon. Senator Kennedy had been shot. All three faces of the three TV sets were on and the scene was total confusion. Bobby had been at his headquarters in Los Angeles with Ethel, celebrating his victory in the California Primaries. Every few minutes the tabulation of the voting would come on the screens. The vote was about 44 or 45 per cent for Kennedy and 41 or 42 per cent for McCarthy.

The whole terrible event had taken place under the eye of the television cameras, and we saw, over and over, the film of the shooting itself and heard the light crack of the gun. We saw Senator Kennedy lying on the floor, a pool of blood under his head, and heard that he had been taken to one hospital, where he was briefly treated, and then dispatched to another — the Good Samaritan. There was an air of unreality about the whole thing — a nightmare quality. It couldn't be true. We must have dreamed it. It had all happened before.

'WHAT'S HAPPENING'

Very early in the morning — I can't remember exactly when, I think it was around 7 o'clock — Senator Mansfield came in. I got him a cup of coffee. He had a staring look in his eyes. He said, "What is happening to our country?" The feeling of being a sleepwalker in a dream persisted.

I had told the kitchen that dinner might be very late and that Lyndon might have some of his staff with him. At 10:07, Lyndon went on TV. He must have had at most two hours of sleep last night. He did look tired, but strong, commanding, and reassuring. All day long I had heard this cacophony over and over — the reactions of people questioned What is our country coming to? What is happening to us? Are we a sick society?

I welcomed what Lyndon said, after a condemnation of this assassination attempt on Senator Kennedy and of the spirit of violence that made such things possible, that "two hundred million people did not strike down Robert Kennedy. . ." We have to cling to the belief that the fabric of American life is still strong; that people are still good; that it's not the fault of every last one of the two hundred million of us; that there is enough virtue and courage and discipline and hard work in Americans to solve our problems.

SATURDAY, June 8

New York and Arlington National Cemetery

This was a day completely detached from the normal, a capsule of time suspended in unreality — the day of the burial of Senator Robert Kennedy. We left about 8:20 from the White House lawn in the helicopter, and then from Andrews we flew in a small jet. Lyndon and Marie — always a comfort — Joe Califano, Jim Jones, and I.

New York was a strange sight. The streets were lined with people who stood silent, motionless. For three days the television had been invoking the phrase "like a Greek tragedy," and indeed, there was much of a Greek drama about this, these mute crowds, the voiceless chorus.

DRAMA, BEAUTY

The ceremony was one of staggering drama and beauty. There was one lone mike standing in front of all the robed priests and archbishops, and to it went Senator Teddy Kennedy, who delivered a most beautiful eulogy of his brother. He was strong and composed, though his eyes were red-rimmed. Part of the way through his voice began to quaver, but then came under control, and he ended calmly. He asked that his brother be remembered simply as "a good and decent man, who saw wrong and tried to right it, saw suffering and tried to heal it, saw war and tried to stop it." He quoted one passage from Robert Kennedy that was sheer poetry. "Some men see things as they are and say, why? I dream things that never were and say, why not?"

Then at last it was over.

We walked to the right, past the front row where all of the Kennedy family were seated, and stopped to speak first to Ethel, whose face was beautiful, said, composed. She said very simply, "You have been so kind," to Lyndon. We spoke to several of the children and then to Mrs. Rose Kennedy.

Then I found myself in front of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy. I called her name and put out my hand. She looked at me as if from a great distance, as though I were an apparition. I murmured some word of sorrow and walked on. . .It was somehow bewildering.

NEXT: The candidates, the Democratic convention and the election.

Drop In Industrial Output Dims Administration Hopes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The worst monthly drop in industrial production in more than a decade has dimmed Nixon administration hopes that the economy is snapping back and moving toward recovery.

Seasonally adjusted figures released Tuesday show the industrial production index in October fell 2.3 per cent, the most since August, 1959, when there was a nationwide steel strike. The index is down 6.3 per cent from October, 1969.

THIRD STRAIGHT DIVE

Half of October's percentage decline was blamed on the auto workers' strike against General Motors and its depressing effect on industrial output. Tentative agreement has since been reached but GM is still struggling to resume production.

But, strike or no strike, the drop in the important economic indicator still would have been large, the Federal Reserve Board said.

It was the third straight monthly decline in the index, a disappointment to administration officials who have been trying to carry out a strategy of gradual economic recovery.

A spokesman for President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers said the decline was a "negative" development but not surprising in view of the auto strike.

But the Federal Reserve Board said it blamed "further curtailments in output of consumer durable goods other than autos, business and defense equipment and industrial materials."

RUBBER BOUNCE

Since early in the year, Nixon administration economists have predicted the economy would pick up in the fall. In recent weeks, some have said the upturn is already at hand.

Although not considered the broadest measure of the economy's performance, industrial production is a key indicator in gauging output.

In October, the index fell to 162.3 of the 1957-59 average, the base period for which it is figured. It was the lowest index figure since January, 1968. September's index stood at 166.1.

Industries produced more television sets in October but output of most other household goods declined, the board said.

"Production of industrial, commercial, and freight and passenger equipment was reduced further," it said. "Among materials, output of steel, construction materials, paper and some chemical and rubber products was down."

Dinner For Ralph

AUSTIN (AP) — An appreciation dinner for lame duck Sen. Ralph Yarborough, defeated this year for re-election, will be held Dec 15 in municipal auditorium.

Byrd, Kennedy Play Cat-And-Mouse Game

WASHINGTON (AP) — Edward M. Kennedy and Robert C. Byrd are spending a lot of time on the Senate floor in a cat-and-mouse game involving the chamber's No. 2 Democratic leadership post.

ROBERT C. BYRD

EDWARD M. KENNEDY

Byrd from West Virginia is an undeclared contender for the Democratic whip post now held by Kennedy.

NOT AFRAID

At the moment, the Massachusetts senator is confident he can keep the post that makes him heir apparent to Majority Leader Mike Mansfield.

Byrd, a master of cloakroom politics, now holds his party's No. 3 leadership post and is said to feel he did much of the routine Senate work during the last two years while Kennedy was tied up in a re-election battle and the aftermath of the Chappaquiddick incident.

A successful Byrd challenge would give the whip post to a senator who voted with Southerners on civil rights legislation and perhaps would also kill Kennedy's hopes for national leadership.

As a result, Kennedy has been on the Senate floor as much as Byrd since Congress reconvened Monday.

IT'S TOO EARLY

Byrd said in an interview he has made no decision to challenge Kennedy.

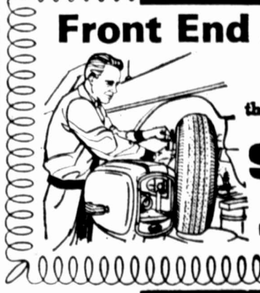

"It is too early," he said. "I'm putting the work of this session first."

As to the evident maneuvering with Kennedy to do favors that endear one to fellow senators, Byrd said, "I'm just doing what I have been doing all along."

When Kennedy was asked about a possible contest, he said, "I will run; I intend to win."

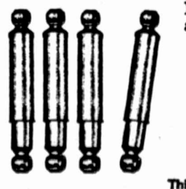

In 1969, he received support from 31 of the 57 Democratic senators, and an aide indicated he expects backing now from at least that many, if not a few more.

'ROUND TOWN

BY LUCILLE PICKLE

Never will I cease to be amazed at the things I find about my house when I am looking for something else.

Only yesterday I wanted to find the instructions book to my blender because I don't know what procedure to follow to chop. In my little storage drawer that holds my warranties for various appliances I found my book on how to enjoy the color television set and what to do when it got out of kelter. Also the electric stove manual and how to use the time-bake cycle (which has never worked and has frequently caused us to have something else for dinner instead of the planned chicken or roast.) There is a good booklet on an ice crusher and what not to do to it; and the bun warmer and the can opener and knife sharpener, both of which I found I could use without instructions. But I still don't know how to chop vegetables in the blender. . . That information I will probably find when I'm looking for how to get the best results from the steam iron.

Glandular Imbalance Basic Cause Of Acne

By MARY SUE MILLER

The eruption of acne on the face is a cause for anguish. The mental reaction often gets out of proportion to the medical significance.

Acne is not a skin disease but a manifestation of a glandular imbalance associated with adolescence, a not abnormal occurrence and nothing to be ashamed of. Nor is acne painful. What hurts like fury is the emotional stress it so often triggers.

The resulting black moods, antagonisms and nervous tension serve not at all to improve the situation. Tension and nerves actually work against the skin, even good skin. The effect on an ailing complexion is pure aggravation.

It's a kind of round-robin. The look of acne upsets you and your upset tells on the skin. To keep the tides of tension from rising obviously is desirable, and not only for the sake of your complexion but also for your general well-being.

The best antidotes are nine hours sleep, mild exercise in the fresh air, a balanced diet and a well-regulated schedule of activities. You must learn to pace yourself — not to plan more tasks or activities for yourself than you can reasonably accomplish. That does not mean that you can pamper yourself and play the invalid Camille.

The idea is to keep going and keep your cool. You'll be so nice to be with, nobody will even notice your complexion.

FACTS ABOUT ACNE

Is acne your problem? If so write to Mary Sue Miller in care of the Big Spring Herald, requesting her leaflet, "Facts About Acne." Advice covers medical and home care; use of cosmetics; diet and tension control. Please enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope and 15 cents in coin.

Military Aids Burn Victims From Snyder

Two men from Snyder were transported to the Brooke Army Burn Center Tuesday night following a chain of events that demonstrated the aerial evacuation techniques of the U.S. military.

Ernest McCall and Kerry Kull, victims of a pipeline accident, were burned over most of their bodies when they cut through a high pressure propane line while digging a trench for a new pipeline. Snyder doctors requested assistance from the military.

An Army burn team immediately flew to Webb aboard a T-39 Sabreliner, where they transferred to an HH-43 Pedro Helicopter piloted by Maj. Robert D. McDougal, commander of Detachment 18, 42nd Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron, for the flight to Snyder.

Other members of the crew were Capt. Richard A. Algood, co-pilot, and Sgt. Andrew B. Gonzales, crew chief. Meanwhile, an Air Force C-9 Flying Hospital came to Webb from San Antonio and was waiting on the scene when the helicopter returned to Webb with the burn victims. The patients were then flown to the burn center, where doctors list McCall as "very seriously ill" and Kull as "seriously ill."

Short-Change Artists At Work

"If you haven't got change for a $50 bill, here's a $10. Hey, wait a minute, I gave you a $50 bill and you gave me change for a $10."

This is the typical ruse used by short change artists to confuse an already harried cashier. This type of con is usually pulled in the busier stores where the clerks are rushed at the check-out counter, according to information from the Howard County Sheriff's Office.

Two men attempted this gambit Tuesday morning on a cashier at the College Park TG&Y. Reportedly, the clerk realized the men's intentions and confronted the pair with the accusation that they were trying to short change her. The pair then fled the store.

When the incident was reported, no description of the vehicle the pair drove could be given. Sheriff's officers later questioned a suspect driving a car with Kentucky license tags that had been spotted in the area by other shopping center merchants. Nothing was discovered in the questioning and no arrests were made.

To Attend Flood Control Hearing

Mayor J. Arnold Marshall is tentatively planning to represent Big Spring at a Nov. 24 hearing of the Texas Water Rights Commission in Austin on the Beals Branch flood control project.

The project in its early planning stages calls for the construction of a 29,600-foot channel through the Beals Creek basin financed by federal and city funds according to preliminary estimates by the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

Approval by the governor is required, even though state funds are not involved, and the Water Rights Commission is to make a recommendation in the matter.

The project has a long way to go before reaching the stage where federal appropriations are made. Congress would have to earmark about $1,578,000 for the construction work, and the city would be required to spend about $948,000 for easements and rights-of-way.

The plans, as explained by the Corps of Engineers to Cong. Omar Burleson at the beginning of August, included improved drainage for One Mile Creek west of town, complete control of floods expected to occur once in 50 years, and maximum control of floods of the size expected to occur once every century.

Deputy Recovers Stolen Automobile

A car reported stolen Friday in Corpus Christi was recovered at 12:20 a.m. today in Howard County.

Sheriff's Deputy Jimmy Ellison found the vehicle abandoned on the South Service Road one-quarter mile east of Cosden Oil & Chemical Co. Ellison recognized the car as fitting the description of a stolen car given by a Department of Public Safety bulletin.

The Corpus Christi police were notified this morning of the car's recovery. The car will be stored with a local wrecker company until the Corpus Christi authorities request further action.

Students Gather For Drug Session

The absentee rate at Big Spring High School was no more than normal today as students gathered for an all-day drug lab.

Louis Dunnam, student coordinator for the lab, said he hadn't noticed more absentees than normal:

"Some of the students told me that they weren't interested in the drug lab and weren't coming today — but I noticed this morning that they were here."

Lynn Hise, assistant superintendent for instruction and coordinator of the lab, said he felt that the students were interested in the lab.

"When the first group of students gathered in the auditorium there was quite a bit of noise. But when we got underway with the film you could have heard a pin drop," Hise said.

By mid-morning the students had broken into small groups and were discussing the drug problem in Big Spring and possible solutions.

The information gathered by student recorders in each group will be used by the administration in planning a drug education program next year. Similar drug labs are planned Thursday for junior high and 5th and 6th grade students.

Local Riders Attend Confab

Five Howard County residents are to attend the national convention of the American Association of Sheriff's Posses and Riding Clubs in Brownwood Thursday through Sunday.

Expected to attend from this area are Mack Gamble and his daughter Valorie Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. Cecial Allred and R. G. Click. Approximately 400 persons in all are expected at the activities in the Riverside Motor Inn and the Brownwood Coliseum.

The local delegates will be representing both District 5, headquartered in San Angelo, and the newly organized District 4, headquartered in Big Spring.

Gamble is president of District 4 and vice president of District 5, and Allred is parade chairman of District 5 and vice president of District 4. Allred also serves as executive director of District 4 on the national board. Beginning this year the group will represent only District 4.

Convention registration begins at noon Thursday, and an association dinner is scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday.

Defense Opens At Midland

MIDLAND, Tex. (AP) — Houston attorney Bill Walsh, opening the defense case in the William B. Nichols murder trial here today, was expected to stress the personality change which his client underwent in the months before the slaying.

Nichols, 33, a Midland oilman, is accused of the April 22, 1968, shotgun killing of his socially prominent wife, Diane, 30.

From December 1968 until last October he was committed to the Big Spring State Hospital. A jury recently decided he is sane and fit to stand trial.

The prosecution closed its case Tuesday after six witnesses had been heard.

Use Of Mexican Troops To Stop 'Wetbacks' Plea

JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Officials said Tuesday that Mexico may use troops to patrol its side of the international border to stop illegal crossings by laborers to work in Texas and New Mexico cotton fields.

The idea came under consideration by representatives of this country's Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock.

An inter-secretarial commission headed by Luis Oquihua Hernandez of Mexico City, a high official of the ministry, met with Juarez Valley farmers to discuss the first phase of a government aid program to increase national cotton production in 1972.

Juarez is across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex.

Use of Mexican troops to stop the "wetbacks" was urged by Federico Estrada, president of the Juarez Valley Growers Association.

His request will be placed before government authorities in Mexico City, Oquihua Hernandez said.

Estrada told commission members that "wetback" restrictions on the part of the U.S. Border Patrol are "relaxed," especially during the cotton picking cycle when demand for labor is heavy on the Mexican side. The farmers asked that the government relieve the situation by ordering troops to patrol the border.

Thousands of farm workers from the interior flock to the border during the cotton season to cross illegally. These workers refuse to work on Mexican farms because wages do not compare with the pay they get on Texas and New Mexico farms, the commission was told.

Fire Ruins Buildings

CROSBY, Tex. (AP) — An early morning fire destroyed two 35 by 60 foot buildings in the center of this small town Tuesday.

The buildings, one a two-story structure, joined by a connecting passageway, housed the Crosby Floor Covering and Ceramics Co.

The firm was owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Fuchs.

No estimate of the loss was made. The buildings and the contents of linoleum, rugs, carpeting and ceramics were destroyed.

Crosby, Highland, Deer Park, Baytown and Channelview fire departments fought the blaze for more than an hour before controlling it.

Adjoining buildings were not damaged because of the quick response of fire fighters.

Crosby is just northeast of Houston.

New HCJC Science Center Named For Horace Garrett

J. W. Cooper Construction Co. of Odessa submitted the apparent low bid Tuesday for contruction of a new vocational-technical building which will highlight the new Horace Garrett Applied Science Center at Howard County Junior College.

Trustees of the college immediately memorialized the late Horace Garrett, for nearly two decades a member of the board and many years its president. He was also instrumental in several gifts from the foundation established by his grandmother, Mrs. Dora Roberts, and made the growth of Howard County Junior College one of his prime concerns. Mrs. Garrett has been named to his place on the board.

Cooper's bid was for $661,126 on the base, lower by nearly $17,000 than the next lowest submitted by Area Builders, Inc. of Odessa. It was 17.1 per cent under the high bids of $774,460 by Oates Construction of Abilene.

However, the board exercized two alternates eliminating carpet on part of the floor ($4,000) and changing factory steel windows to aluminum ($3,900), which left the net bid of $653,226.

The actual contract award is subject to approval of the Texas Education Agency which has approved $400,000 participation in the facility in distributing federal funds for vocational education.

With furnishings, and equipment site preparation, and fees, the total cost of the building will approximate $810,000.

Cooper specified 200 working days, which is the shortest time of any of the bidders. Barring bad weather which would cost time, the building could be ready for next autumn, or soon thereafter.

It will be located just north of the power plant and on the site where some temporary frame buildings are located across the street southeast of the Student Union Center.

Trustees also approved the audit by Hollingsworth & Co. and termed it the most comprehensive to date. They also approved the transfer of $220 in voiced dormitory deposits to a miscellaneous fund, and in turn approved a $18 medical payment from it in behalf of a foreign student.

John Coffey, Dr. P. W. Malone and Dr. Charles Warren were named as a committee to arrange for removal of the frame buildings on the science center site. They hope to be able to exchange the buildings for a cleared site.

A trip to the Southern Association of Colleges meeting in Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 29-Dec. 3 was approved for Dr. W. A. Hunt, college president, and Ben Johnson, academic dean.

Amistad Trail Hearing Set

A delegation of Big Springers interested in highway improvements left for Austin this afternoon to appear in support of the Amistad Trail idea proposed by Del Rio to the Texas Highway Commission.

The hearing to be held Thursday morning is in response to a request from Del Rio that state highway status be given to a stretch of roadways from Lubbock to the Amistad Dam on the Rio Grande, some of which are now farm to market roads.

The route proposed by Del Rio would pass through Big Spring, Garden City, Big Lake, Ozona, and across the Devils River to Del Rio.

Among those included in the Big Spring delegation are Chamber of Commerce Manager Tom Eastland, County Commissioner Ray Nichols, Charles Tompkins and Joe Pickle.

Exceeds Goal

Although the figures aren't complete, the Arthritis Foundation Drive has already exceeded its $2,000 goal. The totals so far are $2,124 from the Victory March Monday, with not all amounts counted; and $93 from Saturday's Teen Tag Day. The business solicitation has not been tabulated, according to Frances Wheat.

Massachusetts Girl Says Police Mistreated Her

The Herald received a letter today from Carol Fontaine, 18, of Gardner, Mass., complaining of treatment after she was picked up with Kim Teger by Big Spring police last week. She wrote that she and three others passing through town stopped at the city park, and two of her friends left in the car to eat dinner.

"At 11:15 two officers claimed our friends had had car trouble," she wrote. "We got in the officer's car to see if we could help. They took us to the station and then proceeded to charge us with vagrancy. The arresting officer (David) Sutton claimed we did not have any visible means of support."

Miss Fontaine wrote that she had $100 in traveller's checks and Teger had $80 in cash. She said five policemen forcibly took her possessions as she entered the jail cell when she refused to hand them over on the grounds that "they had no reason to arrest me."

She said while in jail neither of the two had been allowed a phone call or advised of their rights, and complained of the food, cockroaches in the cell, and bedding. She closed by saying that she had called the FBI in Dallas without getting any help, and plans to call the FBI in Washington.

Detective Capt. Stanley Bogard explained that the two had been arrested under the suspicious persons ordinance, not the vagrancy law, after her other two friends had been arrested and jailed for possession of marijuana.

The law provides that police officers may arrest persons without warrant when "found in suspicious places, and under circumstances that are reasonably calculated to cause such officers to believe that such persons have been guilty of some felony or breach of the peace, or threaten, or, are about to commit some offense against the law."

The fact that the girl was held as long as 33 hours, said Linda Robinson, detective secretary, was due to her refusal to allow herself to be photographed and fingerprinted as required by standard department procedure.

Excess Heat To Go Into Garden?

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A project that may lead to tropical fruit gardens next to power plants in temperate climates has been launched by a state agency and a power company.

The experiment in climate control was announced jointly by the state Environmental Conservation Department and Niagara Mohawk Power Co., who will split the $25,000 estimated cost.

'VICE' PILLS NOT FOR SALE

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Druggist Ralph Couch says he is taking birth control pills off the counters at his six pharmacies.

"Our attorneys are getting nervous," said Couch, owner of the Couch Pharmacies chain. "We have been accused of peddling vice, even by professional people. We have been accused, by implication, of peddling dangerous drugs."

PLANE CRASHES INTO HOUSE — A single engine private plane with two persons aboard crashed into two frame houses, shortly after takeoff from Green Airport in Warwick, R.I., setting them afire after exploding. One woman in the house was injured and the two occupants of the craft were taken to Rhode Island Hospital with undetermined injuries.

Profs Warned About Taking Part In Campus Disruptions

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The American Association of State Colleges and Universities (AASCU) put faculty members on notice Tuesday that that participation in campus disruptions will not be tolerated.

College presidents representing 274 schools throughout the nation adopted the stand in a resolution that stated, "The concept of (academic) freedom should be accompanied by an equally demanding concept of responsibility."

This position, approved on a 97-23 vote in a heated session of the group's 10th annual meeting, was interpreted as a warning that faculty members must not stimulate or participate in campus disruptions.

It was an enlargement of a statement on academic freedom adopted in 1940 by the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

AAUP representatives claimed the new stand is a repudiation of the concept of academic freedom, but Darrell Holmes, president of the college association, disputed their view.

Holmes, new president of the University of Northern Colorado said the new position simply added the concept of faculty responsibility to academic freedom.

"We want to make it clear that we are not striking down the tenets of academic freedom," Holmes said.

The move does mean, however, that the group will ask its name be withdrawn from the list of organizations that have endorsed the university professors' statement.

This is the first time since the AAUP statement was adopted 30 years ago that an organization has withdrawn its name from the document.

No Cases Tried

No cases were heard in Howard County Court this morning. Jurors reported at 9 a.m. and were dismissed shortly afterwards. Four cases of driving while intoxicated had been set for trial today.

West Texas 'Howdy' For Foreign Students

A West Texas welcome was extended to more than two dozen international students and their wives Tuesday evening.

Sponsored by the Key Club, a reception in the high school cafeteria honored the students at Webb AFB and at Howard County Junior College. Each of the men received mementoes of the occasion.

A table of refreshments, prepared by the homemaking department girls, spotlighted tidbits from other nations, particularly the homeland of students, while the American table had the coffee, punch and cookies.

Kevin Penner, chairman of the Key Club international relations committee, extended the welcome and had each member introduce his guest. It was explained that later the members would have the students in their homes and hope that this will encourage other people in the community to do likewise.

Music for the evening was furnished by Clyde Green on the organ, and hostesses were the club sweetheart, Jamie Langley, and the three sweethearts for various seasons of the year.

Approximately 200 persons turned out for the affair.

Big Springer Is Elected President

Wade Choate, manager Webb AFB Federal Credit Union, was elected the first president of the recently organized Texas Defense Credit Union Council at a quarterly meeting held Saturday, at Sheppard AFB, Wichita Falls.

The Texas Defense Credit Union Countil is a sub-council of the Defense Credit Union Council, Washington, D.C. The Council acts as a liaison between military credit unions, the Department of Defense and Congress.

The Texas Council meets quarterly each year to exchange ideas, discuss problems and acts as a liaison to the Defense Council as representing the 38 Defense Credit Unions in Texas.

Other officers elected were, Don Massie, Wichita Falls manager, Sheppard Military Credit Union, vice president; Mrs. Virginia Trussel, Austin, Bergstrom AFB Credit Union, secretary-treasurer. The next meeting will be held in January at Security Service FCU in San Antonio.

Survey Shows Surplus Of CD Shelters

The fifth and final survey for the Big Spring-Howard County community shelter plan shows that the county will have a surplus of shelter spaces for all county residents.

Permission was given by the Department of Civil Defense to include Borden, Glasscock and Sterling counties in the Howard County shelter plan, due to the surplus of shelter spaces here.

The plan enables the local government to give its people information so they may know where to go and what to do in case of emergency or nuclear attack.

Individual information brochures, maps and traffic routes will be distributed by April, 1971, W. D. Berry, director of the local Civil Defense office, said.

This final phase completes and updates five years of study by the Army Corps of Engineers and the Department of Civil Defense.

Real Good News For 5 Million 'Poor' Taxpayers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Treasury Department says new income tax regulations will excuse about five million low-income Americans from filing tax returns next April.

The regulations, part of the 1969 Tax Reform Act, excuse a single person from filing a return if his gross income is $1,700 or less a year. They also exempt married couples, with one working, or single persons 65 years or over who earned $2,300; a couple where one spouse is over 65 with earnings of $2,900; and a couple where both are working and are 65 or over with earnings of $3,500.

NOV 18

DEAR ABBY: I have a wonderful husband and a beautiful baby boy. When Eric and I got married I was two months along. When we told my parents about my condition they wanted nothing to do with us, so Eric's parents gave us a small but lovely church wedding and reception for which I shall always be grateful to them.

Soon after the baby was born my parents realized they had made a mistake so they called asking if they could come and see their new grandchild.

Our course I let them, and they have been just wonderful since then. Abby, I still love my parents and am happy to let bygones be bygones.

My problem is my mother-in-law. She is still mad at my parents and said I was a fool for making up with them. She said "When you needed them they turned their backs on you, but now they want the joys of being grandparents, which they do not deserve."

Abby, I know I owe Eric's mother a lot, and I hate to hurt her, but I can't bear a grudge against my own parents. Did I do wrong? IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR IN: Be assured you did the right thing in making up with your parents. Your mother-in-law is in the wrong for trying to encourage ill feelings between you and your parents.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: What is a mother supposed to say when her child asks, "Can Jimmy stay for supper," and Jimmy is standing right there looking up into your face?

I always say, "Of course, but Jimmy has to call his mother and get her permission first."

Then my brat says, "Mother, you call Jimmy's mother. He's afraid to."

So, like a ninny, I go to call Jimmy's mother. I don't like being maneuvered into it this way and my son pulls this often. Also, after supper they play until it's dark, and guess who has to take the dinner guest home? Is there a solution?

ON THE SPOT

DEAR ON: Your resentment at being outsmarted by a couple of junior con artists is understandable, but be glad your son has friends. Simply tell him to ask you privately if he may have a guest for supper.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 25 years old and he still sucks his thumb. He only does this at night. He says that's the only way he can fall asleep.

It doesn't bother me except that I think there must be something wrong with him, and I'd like to break him of this habit. He is normal in every other way. What should I do?

THUMB SUCKER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: If he's normal in every other way, let him alone.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Could you please tell the world to stop punishing dogs with a rolled up newspaper? No wonder dogs bite newspaper carriers. They see the newspaper and they think they are going to get hit, so they attack the person who's delivering it. I know. I am a newspaper carrier.

TOM IN LYNCHBURG, VA.

Bottling Executive Elected To Board

PHILADELPHIA — J. Conrad Dunagan, president of Monahans Coca-Cola Bottling Co. at Monahans, Tex., was re-elected to a three-year term on the National Soft Drink Association Executive Board at its annual convention here during the weekend. He has served on the NSDA executive board since 1961. He is chairman of NSDA's national affairs committee, and serves on the public relations research committee.

Dunagan is a past president of the Texas Bottlers also, the Permian Basin Bottlers Association. He is also chairman of the board of the First State Bank and the Texas Savings and Loan Assn., Monahans, and serves on the Texas State Finance Advisory commission.

There Must Be A Word For It!

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Rev. Royce Makin, associate pastor of Central Christian Church, told of difficulties he encountered in locating the wording in the Thanksgiving proclamation—signed by President George Washington on Nov. 26, 1789.

Makin said he first called the San Antonio Public Library, but an employe said the "person in charge of Texas history" was not in.

He then called a local newspaper, thinking its library might have a clipping that had the wording in its file.

"I'm sorry sir, but our files do not go back that far," Makin said he was told by a librarian.

He said he never did find out how the proclamation was worded.

The Ultimate Tax Complaint

GREAT FALLS, Mont. (AP) — Cascade County Treasurer Clarence Lindseth hears all sorts of complaints from taxpayers.

Friday the 13th brought this comment from one in the form of a note:

"Why don't you people send a nurse along with the next tax bill, and she can draw out a pint of blood at the same time, because that's about all we have left."

FOREST DEMON — An adult Gypsy Moth, only ¾ of an inch long, is pictured at a news conference in Washington. Such moths are a serious threat to woodlands, particularly in the Northeast United States, defoliating great numbers of trees annually. Scientists at the Department of Agriculture now have developed a powerful synthetic lure, indistinguishable from the female Gypsy Moth's attractant, to bait traps to capture the pests.

Webb Honors Instructor

Capt. Kenneth J. Rider II, of the 3561st Pilot Training Squadron, was recently selected that squadron's Instructor Pilot of the Month for October at Webb AFB.

Lt. Col. Robert L. Reid, commander of the 61st, said about Capt. Rider, "The dedicated and professional manner in which he approaches all tasks has been superbly effective."

The native of Hoyterville, Ohio, entered the Air Force through the Reserve Officer Training Corps at Bowling Green State University, Ohio, where he majored in international studies. He arrived here in November, 1965, shortly after his commission, and entered the undergraduate pilot training program. In 1967 Capt. Rider went to Randolph AFB where he completed pilot instructor training, then returned to Webb as an instructor pilot.

He married the former Miss Nan Van Scoyoc of Beshler, Ohio.

Engineers Study Recruiting Method

Means to avert a shortage of 300,000 engineers by the mid-70s will be outlined Thursday by Kenny Carr, Fort Worth, to the November meeting of the Permian Basin chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers.

The meeting, scheduled at 6:30 p.m. in the Ramada Inn at Midland, will be preceded by a workshop at 4:30 p.m. by Carr. High school guidance directors and Explorer Pack 44, sponsored by the TSPE chapter, will be guests.

At the dinner session, Carr will speak on "The Romance and Challenge of the Engineering Profession." Carr has been honored at both the state and national levels for his work as chairman of the guidance committee of the Engineers Council for Professional Development, said W. Paschal Odom, Big Spring, president of the Permian chapter. Carr's presentation will be beamed toward methods available for selling the engineering profession to the high school student.

Press Walkout For The Record

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half a dozen reporters walked out on a meeting Tuesday with Jerris Leonard, assistant U.S. attorney general for civil rights, when they were told his remarks would be "off the record."

Leonard, who has chief responsibility in the Nixon administration for enforcing civil rights laws, has not spoken for the record to reporters since early August.

About 14 newsmen had been invited to the meeting. Representatives of seven news organizations left the meeting when they were told by Justice Department information officer John W. Hushen that Leonard could not be quoted by name.

Off the record remarks and so-called "backgrounders" are frequently employed by government officials. Under the background format, an official is referred to as "a high government source" but not by name.

In most agencies, off the record means the official's comments cannot be attributed even to government sources.

Asked why Leonard would not allow his remarks to be attributed to him, Hushen replied: "We've had so many requests to see Leonard we wanted to get everybody in together. That's the way we set it up."

A few reporters remained behind. Representatives of the following news organizations walked out: Associated Press, United Press International, the New York Times, the Los Angeles Times, Chicago Tribune, Newhouse National News Service and Newsweek Magazine.

The Chicago Tribune reporter later went back into the meeting.

VA To Finance Mobile Homes

Air Force members buying mobile homes will be eligible for Veterans Administration financing starting Dec. 22.

A new public law, signed by President Richard M. Nixon, authorizes VA to guarantee or make direct loans for this purpose. It is designed to provide low-cost housing for low and moderate - income servicemen and veterans.

The law establishes a special mobile home loan guarantee or direct loan benefit for those who have not used any of their $12,500 home loan guarantee eligibility to purchase conventional homes.

VA may also approve loans up to a maximum of $10,000 for a mobile home, and up to $17,500 where a suitable lot to place the mobile home on is bought.

Guest Speaker

WESTBROOK (SC) — Ralph Bryant, Odessa, former resident of Westbrook and principal of the Westbrook school, will be the guest speaker at the Baptist Men's monthly meeting at 7 p.m. Thursday. J. K. Williamson, president, said supper will precede the program.

New Big Plus.

We took most of the lead out, to help clean up the air.

We left half a cc of lead in, because engine tests show some lead is needed to prevent possible valve damage.

We doubled the amount of engine-cleaning detergent, to cut exhaust emissions even more.

We kept octane high, so 9 out of 10 drivers can use it without worrying about engine knock.

And we kept the price below most major premiums, leaded or unleaded.

We call it Big Plus. It's the lowest-lead, highest-octane gasoline for the money.

Ky Will Visit Four Texas Military Bases Thursday

By The Associated Press

Vietnam's Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky comes to Texas Thursday to see four of the nation's top military installations, including one which is training his countrymen in an area of critical importance to winning the war in his homeland.

Ky will visit San Antonio, Fort Worth and Mineral Wells.

At Mineral Wells, Ky will see South Vietnamese troops being trained at Ft. Wolters for helicopter gunships and other whirlybird purposes.

He is on a 17-day tour of the United States.

NEWS 'BLACKOUT'

Ky has called his tour "unofficial" and has asked that the entire trip be closed to newsmen.

Ky is scheduled to arrive at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio Thursday morning. He then will go cross-town to Lackland Air Force Base, one of the largest military training centers in America.

After a luncheon in San Antonio, Ky flies to Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth.

From there, he will go to Ft. Wolters near Mineral Wells where late Thursday afternoon he will review troops and will spend the night at that major Army helicopter base.

At Ft. Wolters he will see the No. 1 helicopter training center for Vietnamese troops. They live in an area designed especially to make them feel at home.

Commissioners Can Move, Won't Have To Resign

AUSTIN (AP) — The state attorney general says a county commissioner can move from one precinct to another without having to resign.

The opinion was made in answer to a question from County Atty. Bill McCoy who said one of Ector County's commissioners wanted to move to a new home that is outside the precinct in which he was elected.

The attorney general said such a move would not automatically vacate the commissioner's office and he could continue to serve his term.

State's Cotton Harvest 45 Per Cent Complete

AUSTIN (AP)—The University of Texas cotton economic research reports the state's cotton harvest is 45 per cent complete, or 10 per cent ahead of last year's schedule.

Research director W. F. Harris said Tuesday the harvest is so fast on the southern High Plains that many ginners are adding night crews to keep up with the work load.

Also, he said, cotton production in the Abilene and Lubbock areas "is on the move," and some cotton in the Coastal Bend remains to be harvested. He said Coastal Bend crops probably will be plowed under because of poor quality due to heavy rains in recent months.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture crop and livestock reporting service estimated the Texas upland cotton production as of Nov. 1 at 3,325,000 bales. The yield is expected to average 319 pounds of lint per acre, compared with 292 pounds in 1969.

In the High Plains counties, prices for cottonseed ranged from $55 to $64, with some Hockley County gins paying the higher price. Rolling Plains counties were quoted as paying $52 to $59 per ton.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	5 ♣
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡

West's opening bid of four hearts left South no room for scientific investigation and he was more or less obliged to compete blindly by bidding five clubs. The alternative was to double, however it seemed unlikely that partner would name a suit of his own and South was reluctant to defend without having taken at least one bid.

West opened the king of hearts which South ruffed. In the normal course of events, declarer might expect to restrict his losses to two tricks—one diamond and one spade. This assumption is based on finding the diamonds divided three-two and one of the spade honors located in the West hand. West's preemptive bid suggested however that the cards had been distributed in a highly unbalanced pattern, and that South would not be able to look to the percentage table for guidance.

Declarer decided to take whatever precautions he could to allow for adverse distribution. He led a club to the jack in order to ruff a second heart. The North hand was reentered with the queen of clubs and South was pleased to note that the trumps—at least—divided two-two. The dummy's last heart was ruffed to complete the preliminary stripping operations.

South tested the diamond suit by cashing the king. When West dropped the ten, declarer was reluctant to continue with the ace for fear of establishing two diamond tricks for the opposition if West had a singleton. South led a low diamond, West discarded a heart and North's seven forced out East's jack. The latter exited with the six of diamonds and South played small from his hand, winning in dummy with the eight.

A diamond was led to the king, clearing that suit, and declarer led a small spade—putting in the ten from dummy. East was in with the queen and now he was hopelessly end played. The forced spade return eliminated South's other loser in that suit and the declarer succeeded in confining his losers to one spade and one diamond.

JUDGE HUGHES SAYS:

1,000-Year Prison Terms 'Ridiculous'

DALLAS (AP) — Federal Judge Sarah T. Hughes thinks 1,000-year prison sentences are "absolutely ridiculous."

Moreover, she holds that jail terms for young drug offenders do not deter others.

Four 1,000-year or greater sentences have been handed down in the Dallas courts this year. One was for 1,500 years. Three of the cases involved robbery, the other sale of heroin.

"Nobody can live a thousand years in the first place, so they are unrealistic," Judge Hughes says. "And it neither deters, nor does it rehabilitate—and these are the reasons for sentencing offenders."

The federal judge holds that many youthful drug offenders are best rehabilitated by being placed on probation.

"In many instances a person is better rehabilitated in the community," she says. "This is particularly true if the person has a family who is interested in him. Boys and girls in high school and junior high should be given a second chance."

Judge Hughes thinks many first offenders are not rehabilitated by prison terms because they are exposed to more crime there.

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Public hearings on Tulsa city revenues, which may lead to a new one-cent sales tax proposal, may be held before Jan. 1, it was indicated Tuesday.

The sales tax increase is being considered by Tulsa business leaders as an alternative to hikes in the water and sewer rates. Making the study is a metropolitan Tulsa Chamber of Commerce committee headed by H. O. Reyburn.

A Devotion For Today . . .

Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you. (Matthew 6:33)

PRAYER: Father God, teach us the right relation between spiritual and material riches. Help us to seek them aright and use them properly. We ask in the name of Thy Son, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Mr. Bentson Has A Memory

Robert H. Finch, President Nixon's close friend and White House counsellor, has circulated a five-page memo to editors amplifying the administration's views that its election campaign was "clear success."

Speaking of the Senate, Finch claimed a gain of "two seats politically and four ideologically." Among the ideological victories he included Lloyd Bentsen, the Texas Democrat who defeated Republican George Bush. Finch said the President now has a "working majority" in the Senate of the 92nd Congress.

However, Finch failed to check with Sen.-elect Bentsen. "I'm glad to know they think that much of me because a few days ago I could have sworn I was public enemy No. 1," Bentsen said.

The new senator added: "I have great respect for the office of the presidency and the incumbent President . . . but in January I will take my place in Washington as a member of the loyal opposition, and nobody worked harder to earn that place."

Mr. Bentsen also recalled that members of the Nixon cabinet, the vice president and the President himself all came to Texas trying their best to defeat him. Moreover, the GOP national committee poured its largest amount into the campaign against Mr. Bentsen. Small wonder that he is hardly straining eagerly to fit into the Finch mould, or to absorb the more recent warm approbation of the president.

Tragedies Focus Demand For Safety

The second airplane crash to wipe out a college football team and coaching staff this season has claimed lives in Marshall College near Huntington, West Va.

This is a shocking tragedy; a thing almost unbelievable, so great are the odds that this could happen at all, and certainly within the same season.

It will be easy to jump to conclusions that air travel by football teams is bad, that there is something second rate about the facilities and equipment furnished teams. There seems, however, little parallel between the Marshall University and the Wichita State University tragedy earlier in the year. There was serious question about safety of the equipment which carried the Wichita team to its death; this does not seem to be the case with the Marshall crash.

But what is involved is the problem of air safety in general. The FFA must insist upon the utmost observance of safety precautions, and it is entitled to have any and all loopholes closed. It is probably true that most tragedies result from human error, but enforcement in this area must be so rigid as to reduce this to the barest minimum. We are dealing here with something that seldom has a second chance.

No Restraint On Wage Increases

WASHINGTON — The administration is sorry and yet glad about the ending of the automobile strike. Secretary of the Treasury David Kennedy says that the settlement is "inflationary," but that he is happy an agreement was reached. He told a news conference that wage increases cause "real concern because they have to be absorbed either in price or in profits."

THE SECRETARY didn't, however, go into detail about all the other effects on the economy which a strike of the proportions of the one in the automobile industry has on the American economy. For the unions in many an industry take it as a pattern and insist they are entitled to wage increases just as high.

It is surprising that the national administration remained silent throughout the automobile strike and didn't insist upon the use of some guidelines to measure the amount of productivity that should be derived from the raises in wage rates. For the economists have been arguing all along that wage increases which are accompanied by corresponding gains in productivity would have a healthy effect upon the whole structure of an industry.

THE AUTO UNIONS are about to start bargaining with Ford and Chrysler for virtually the same terms as the General Motors settlement, and in the event of disagreement, of course, there may be strikes. Work stoppages are forecast in many other industries. Railroads are faced with a serious situation in their forthcoming negotiations with the unions. There is talk of the possibility of strikes in the oil-refining industry. The steelworkers union is holding important policy meetings in Pittsburgh the latter part of this month, as basic steel contracts expire the middle of next year. Preliminary sparring has already begun. Copper mining and smelting firms and aluminum companies may also be confronted with strikes.

THE ACQUIESCENCE of the administration in the automobile strike was not surprising during a political campaign year. But at the same time the number of costly strikes shows no signs of diminution. The big queston which arises is what the total effect will be of the increase in wages granted in the automobile industry. If, as Secretary Kennedy says, this is going to have an inflationary effect, why was no voice raised against it? Certainly almost everybody knew that the acceptance of the wage demands was bound to have an inflationary result. The administration, of course, knew it, too.

THE REALISTIC answer that can be made is that officials here didn't wish to muddy the waters in an election year and were disinclined to arouse the antagonism of the labor unions of the country by starting a battle over wages and prices during a political campaign.

The automobile settlement is one of the most costly in the history of the United States, and failure to check the extremes to which it went means that unions in other industries will feel free to make similarly high demands. This will continue the inflationary trend despite the administration's efforts to stabilize matters by reducing government expenditures.

IT IS DIFFICULT for the public generally to understand how a fight can be waged to "curb inflation" while the government stands by and lets a major strike be carried on and end with huge increases in wages which certainly will be followed sooner or later by corresponding rise in prices to the consumer.

Billy Graham

I have lived with my spouse for 30 years, and quite happily. But, every now and then we have a heated dispute, and it disturbs me. I heard a couple say they never quarreled. What I want to ask is this: is it a sign that love has fled when a couple argue?

N.S.

Mild disagreements are normal and healthy between marriage partners. They show that both husband and wife have wills of their own. The airing of opinions, and spirited arguments are merely assertions of the individuality of marriage partners.

When couples say they never argue, it may mean that one of the marriage partners dominates the other completely, and this is not good. One man told me he slapped his wife in the mouth when she talked back to him. This sort of behavior destroys love and respect, for it is more like the relationship between parent and child, than husband and wife. Immature action and reaction damage self-respect, and can impair a healthy relationship between husband and wife. Husband and wife are to be equals in importance. The Bible does say: "Wives submit yourselves to your husbands," but it also says, "Submitting yourselves one to another." So, in the successful marriage, each should often defer to the other. An unyielding spouse wed to an equally unyielding spouse, may resemble two boxing partners more than two happily married people. Mild arguments are healthy, but continuous quarreling and fighting are sin and will destroy a marriage.

Food To Spare

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — New Zealand appetities are small by America standards. That's why, when America oilmen flung a party for 800 people, and 1,350 turned up, there was still food to spare.

The oilmen, drilling in the South Island's Blackwater Valley, decided to hold the party for residents of the nearby district of Murchison.

For the 800 people they expected to attend they reckoned 2,000 pounds of food would be enough. They ordered 400 pounds of beef, five lambs, three sheep, 25 chickens, 300 pounds of stuffing, 40 pounds of sausages and 50 loaves of bread.

It was more than enough. Although 550 extra people came along they all had a whale of a time and there was still 20 pounds of food left over.

HARD LOAD TO CARRY

Commercial Paper Risks

NEW YORK (AP) — The commercial paper market has long been an unglamorous area of high finance, a market in which large corporations routinely lent or borrowed from each other for short periods.

Commercial paper is an unsecured note. A company seldom can afford to keep any excess cash idle, so it lends it to another company or institution, perhaps through a dealer, for a few days or up to 270 days.

Single deals run into many millions of dollars, and the amount outstanding now totals more than $30 billion, but the business had always been conducted solely amorg professionals, and so quietly as to be unknown to the public.

No longer. The default by Penn Central Transportation on its commercial paper has shaken professionals who felt there was no danger in such investments. And hearings may provide the public with a fascinating insight into this hidden world.

The background involves, among other things, incredible laxness and naivete on the part of professional money men; a misunderstanding of responsibilities; and a puzzling lack of knowledge about the product dealt in, the quality of the paper being bought and sold.

Regarding the last point: The Penn Central was one of the most highly publicized corporations in America. Presumably, as much or more information was known about this operation as any other, with tons available from Interstate Commerce Commission Hearings and procedings leading to the merger of the New York Central and Pennsylvania railroads.

And yet, some of its directors were uncertain about its financial condition until a few days before it filed for reorganization under the bankruptcy laws.

The firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co., which bought and resold Penn Central paper, believed one month before the collapse that the company was sound.

Goldman, Sachs is now being sued for $23 million in damages by a large mutual fund and three other businesses which bought quantities of the railroad's paper through it.

Insurance companies, banks and other corporations which bought the paper also are angry at commercial paper dealers, feeling that the dealers failed to properly inform them about purchases.

The dealers believe they have no obligation other than to present all available information and add that, furthermore, all purchasers of commercial paper have equal access to the facts on their own.

But many professionals who purchased Penn Central paper concede they forgot that paper was an investment involving risk. They forgot about the need for the buyer to beware. They failed to ask questions a child would ask before buying candy.

Fear Making New Will?

NEW YORK (AP) — Almost everyone would like to live to a ripe old age—but before you can be old you first have to be middle-aged.

That's the fly in the ointment. Many who think of old age as a time of golden serenity before the final curtain regard middle age with a feeling akin to horror. To them it is a kind of second adolescence even more gruesome than the first one.

The odd thing about it is that people often become middle-aged without even being aware of it. The mental and physical symptoms creep up on them so subtly they are unnoticed. How can one tell if this is happening to him?

Well, you are getting middle-aged if—

When you sign an apartment lease you have to trust your landlord, because it is simply too much trouble to read the fine print.

At a cocktail party you prefer to talk with people who share your prejudices. That way you don't have to bother to think.

You don't really mind young people as long as they stay in their place. Their place is some other place than where you are.

When you go into your doctor's office, you both know even before he opens his mouth just what it is he is going to tell you what you have to give up "for your own good."

Now that at last you have a little something to leave to others, you know you should have a lawyer redraft the will you made the first year of your marriage—but you keep postponing the chore from month to month. Secretly, you have the fear that making out a new will might bring some form of bad luck.

You don't go fishing as much as you used to, because if you did catch a big one worth bringing home it would be such a nuisance to clean and scale it.

As you straighten back up after bending to pick something from the floor, you have the distinct impression that a telephone is ringing in your head.

You can count on the fingers of one hand all the close friends you have left from childhood; on the fingers of the other hand, the close friends you have made since then on your thumbs, those you could borrow money from readily and without embarrassment.

A lot of small favors for others you used to do gladly and graciously you now do grumpily and grudgingly.

The road you drank one for the night before, inevitably leads you the next morning to the aspirin bottle.

You decide not to worry about today's big new world crisis, because you may need your strength to worry about a newer and even bigger world crisis tomorrow.

Early Signs Of Buerger's Disease

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Many of your articles are valuable because they give people warnings that may prevent ailments you describe.

However, I have never seen in a column a description of the early symptoms of warning signs of Buerger's disease.

So much is printed about lung cancer and emphysema. Isn't it time some doctor-columnist advises the lay public of the early onset signs of Buerger's disease?—L.H.K.

Perhaps it is. Buerger's, while it does not cause as many deaths, nor affect as many people as the other two diseases you mentioned, is still a disease that can be crippling, destructive, and dangerous, and one more reason for being wary of cigarettes.

Another name for it is thromboangiitis obliterans, an inflammatory disorder of arteries and veins which obstructs ("obliterates") circulation in the affected blood vessels.

Unless its progress is controlled, it can shut off circulation to the extent of causing gangrene of the extremities, so it is, very obviously, important to start treatment as early as possible.

The early symptoms: coldness of feet and hands, aching of fingers and feet, phlebitis, discoloration (a duskiness) of the extremities.

While the exact cause of Buerger's disease has not been pinpointed, a definite relationship to cigarette smoking has been established. All use of tobacco must be stopped — an absolute must in treating this disease.

Men are more affected than women, for whatever reason, and about 50 per cent of those affected are Jewish..

The use of tobacco is so important that Bperger's disease should be added to the evils of cigarette smoking, and it pays to be suspicious of Buerger's if any of the above symptoms are noted. I should add, however, that any of the symptoms can also apply to other ailments.

Treatment consists first of all of convincing the patient that he has to give up tobacco entirely, plus certain exercises, simple but frequently repeated, plus medication and other more sophisticated methods of maintaining circulation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am interested in having the rubella test to determine whether I am immune to German measles. My doctor has never heard of such a test, although he can get German measles vaccine. He checked with a pharmacist who also had no knowledge of the test.—Mrs. W.H.

The test is being done by many city, county, and state health department laboratories, and private laboratories do it for physicians who do not have facilities for the test. I suggest an inquiry at one of the health departments.

What are ulcers? How should they be treated? What can you do to help rid yourself of ulcers and stay rid of them? For answers, read Dr. Thosteson's helpful booklet, "How To Heal Peptic Ulcers and Keep Them Healed." Around The Rim

Old Pictures Tell The Story

The outlook for a viable museum to preserve the heritage of this area is excellent here, and within the next six months hopefully the doors can be opened on this new institution.

AN APPEAL has been sounded for people to volunteer things which they feel will help tell the early history of this area. This can be done by calling either Wade Choate (7-6373) or R. H. Weaver (7-8203). Arrangements have been made to receive items pending the opening of the museum, and to provide safe storage for them. Many have been reluctant, and understandably so, to yield prized possessions because of the fear these might be allowed to be lost or destroyed. That is no longer the case; security of collections is a watchword.

THERE IS A WEALTH of this material still around, and hopefully, members of our old families will respond to this appeal.

One thing which could be done immediately, aside from donating things, is to present pictures which tell how things were back in those days. Pictures are interesting within themselves, but how much more valuable are they if they are identified and the related history attached to them.

THE OTHER EVENING Miss May Dell Alderman, daughter of the founder of the city waterworks and telephone companies, had a stack of priceless old photographs. These were typical of those so many families have and which accurately reflect the customs, the dress, the architecture, the transporation, the churches, the recreation of the earliest days.

FOR INSTANCE, there was a handsome picture of the old Texas & Pacific hotel operated by Mr. and Mrs. John Birdwell adjacent to the T&P tracks. There were pictures of many of the business buildings (including the omnipresent false front), plus some excellent views of interiors of stores,. There were pictures of cattle herds, cowboys on the range, people dressed in their finery and those in their overalls; pictures of a huge horse, "Old Gray," which was near unbeatable; pictures of gay blades launching on automobile journeys; a picture of the city's first car wreck; an awesome view of an approaching sandstorm in 1894.

THE LIST IS ENDLESS, especially when multiplied by families which have many within their possession. So if there is one plea which I could make, it is to get out those old photographs which have to do with the early history of this area (and even some within the last generation or two), begin writing the identification of people on the back of pictures plus something about the circumstances of or the occasion for the picture, the approximate dates, etc. We could build up a tremendous catalogue for pictoral preservation of our heritage in the new museum.

Lost In Texas

'The Miracle At Derrick'

By ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Writer

One of the nicest things that has happened to Texas in a long time is a grubby little character named Christopher with a voice like two sandstorms colliding.

A great many persons throughout the world will be learning about Christopher by Christmastime.

For he is the central figure in "The Miracle at Derrick, Texas," which is The Associated Press Christmas story this year and which will be published in serial form by throngs of newspapers.

AND AT LAST poor Christopher has found this season a permanent home — between covers in a book called "The Christmas Carol Miracle."

It is an all-Texas production considering everything. The town of Derrick, Tex., exists under another name, with a bit of the Midland skyline added. Authors have lots of fun taking two cities and making one of them, or borrowing a skyscraper here or a river there.

The writer is a Texan — at least Texans claim her because she has lived so much of her life in this state.

She is Luise Putcamp Jr., a writer and critic who has done much toward improvement in writing by Texans. She is the wife of Robert H. Johnson Jr., former Associated Press chief of bureau in Texas and now general sports editor of the Associated Press in the New York general headquarters.

THE STRANGE history of the story shows what a bit of imaginative, sound writing can do.

The first version was turned out to meet a pressing need for something to fill a spot.

Then it ended up in one of the major national magazines, and usually that is about the end of a piece of fiction.

But it seemed that Miss Putcamp's agent in New York found an increasing demand for "The Miracle" each year.

It has been translated into Danish and been printed in one form or another all over the world.

This season it will get the greatest possible exposure through The Associated Press.

But despite the permanence of the idea — it looks like the story will last forever, a sort of folk fable of our time — it never had been granted the stability of a hard-cover edition that could be presented as a gift or put on the bookshelf for second readings.

ONE MOVIE profucer turned down the idea on the grounds that it would have appeal only during the Christmas season — a strange sort of reasoning since in many cities the holiday period is the best of all for movie attendance.

It did appear as a segment on a noted Christmas TV program. And it won the Christopher Award.

Abingdon Press of New York did publish it this year for $2.95. It is a slim little book, its size not at all comparable to its quality.

The story centers on seemingly hopeless efforts to save the orphanage at Derrick just at Christmas.

How Christopher fits in and what he does — or did he? — is not a subject for this column. That would be telling.

It'll make anyone believe in miracles.

Some Discipline For The Colleges

WASHINGTON — One whining complaint which is unlikely to cause adult America to toss fitfully on its bed at night was delivered here the other day by John C. Weaver, new president of the troubled University of Wisconsin, who "warned" that colleges and universities have become the targets of repressive tactics by an aroused citizenry.

In the first place, grownups no longer are impressed with cries from campus about a "police state." Weaver's recital of "repressive" measures passed by state legislatures to keep order in the halls of acedeme may scare the hysteria-prone, but I suggest that Main Street will find a modicum of reassurance in the legislative actions.

IT IS WEAVER'S position that this "repression" includes "demands for new levels of control in the inner life of the university which can very quickly become control of the thought process."

Poppycock. At last look, most of the laws enacted by 32 states clarifies the powers of college officials as well as local law enforcement agencies in dealing with disruptive protests. Much of the legislation sets out jail terms and fines for rioting and causing personal and -or property damage. Thus it is aimed at giving to students, faculty and campus buildings the same protection guaranteed to other individuals and to the corner drugstore.

WEAVER HAS complained that at least one state passed legislation specifying the minimum hours that professors must teach each week. As one who has observed at fairly close hand what might humourously be described as the working habits of these pedagogues, I find this amusing rather than frightening. Although the law may seem a touch severe, I am nevertheless tempted to remark that it's about time.

I AM ALSO unimpressed by Weaver's claim that most university administrators are working "48 hours a day, 14 days a week" to keep their academic houses in order. Again, about time? Weaver should be reminded that such a wearying work week would not now be necessary had the campus bosses employed their very considerable powers in the past.

PERHAPS THE new laws will indeed bring about injustices and inequities, but the John Weavers brought it on themselves. They asked for outside interference because it finally became obvious they couldn't maintain order. As for Weaver's contention that the new laws threaten control of the thought process, this is really reaching 'way back. The legislation is aimed at such physical processes as rioting and arson, not at what thoughts, if any, pass through the minds of the crazier students.

YOU GET the message, Weaver? It is that segment of the country which looks good in long pants has had it. The folks are now insisting that college presidents become big boys, too.

It begins with the burning of Zozobra — Old Man Gloom — pushing aside the cares of the everyday world to make way for Fiesta gaiety.

PREVAILING FOR PAIR — Decell Lewis (41) of the Jayhawks goes up for a sure two points in Tuesday night's basketball opener between Howard County JC and Christian College of the Southwest played here. Contesting strongly for the ball is CCSW's Rod Shaw (23). Others are William Valentine (34) of the Dallas school and HC's Lawrence Young. The Hawks won, 91-86.

Hawks Settle Down To Nudge Trojans

By TOMMY HART

Christian College of the Southwest offered maximum resistance to Howard County JC before a near-capacity crowd here Tuesday night before yielding, 91-86.

The visiting Trojans showed an affinity for planting themselves under the basket to contest for the rebound. The Hawks applied a full court press with a game of "keep away" to come home in front.

"We made a lot of mistakes," new coach Harold Wilder said following the cliffhanger, "but we'll get better."

As expected, veterans Decell Lewis, Shelley York and Melvin Perez steadied the locals when they threatened to blow a gasket and quick-silver quick Kenneth Neal and Archie Myers hawked the ball as if they had read a favorable script.

The Hawks' inability to pull away can be blamed on the fact that they could not always maintain consistency. They would adjust expertly to a situation, then suddenly relax and open a route to the basket for the opposition. They need work on their free throws, too.

CCSW built a five-point advantage, at 23-18, with about nine minutes gone in the first half but the Hawks came charging back. The Trojans led again, at 40-38, with less than two minutes to play in the first half but when Neal zeroed in from out front with less than a minute left the locals went ahead to stay. By half time it was 48-44, HC.

The Dallas school pulled within a point of a tie, at 71-70, with a little over seven minutes remaining, when Rod Shaw went to the line for a "one-and-one" free shot but he missed the first one and the Hawks quickly pulled away again.

HC lost Myers on fouls with 7:44 remaining and Lawrence Young was later to bow out for the same reason. Young, who hit 13 points, didn't depart before he had pulled down eight caroms.

Perez sacked 16 points to lead all the Hawks in scoring and had eight rebounds, as did Myers. Lewis was a factor on the boards, too, with seven rebounds.

HC had six boys in double figures, Christian College only two. John Roundtree banged in 26 points for CCSW, John Gage 24.

The Hawks go to Levelland Thursday where they play at 4 p.m. against Chochise, Arizona, in the first round of the South Plains tournament.

OVER MICHIGAN

Buckeyes Given Nod In Battle

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Roll out the crystal balls, set up the ouija boards, flip the proverbial coin.

That's the kind of weekend it promises to be for college football forecasters as the season heads down the stretch with the top teams shooting for post-season bowl berths and conference championships.

Can Michigan do it again to Ohio State? Can Louisiana State get revenge against Notre Dame, a team it's never played before? Can Texas Tech throw a monkey wrench into the predicted Texas-Arkansas Southwest Conference dogfight? Stay tuned.

Michigan at Ohio State—Mrs. Anne Hayes of Columbus, Ohio, wrote a letter recently to a friend who lives on Michigan Boulevard in Chicago. Mrs. Hayes penciled on the envelope: "Ugh! Can't you change streets?"

Last year, Mrs. Hayes recalled: "When our son finished high school, I told him, 'Steve, I'll pack your bags and we'll send you to any college in the country . . . except one. If you pick Michigan, I'll throw you out on the sidewalk . . . and your bags after you!' "

Mrs. Hayes' husband is Woody, the Ohio State coach, and Woody is out for revenge after last year's 24-12 crusher.

It says here that Ohio State's Rex Kern will return to his 1968-9 brilliance and the battle of the unbeatens will go to . . . Ohio State.

Louisiana State at Notre Dame—Notre Dame's sudden desire to end a 45-year bowl ban cost LSU a post-season trip of its own last season, but both teams will wind up in a bowl this year, with the Cotton Bowl rooting heavily for . . . Notre Dame.

Arkansas at Texas Tech—Red Raiders have a shot at the Southwest Conference title, one of the best-kept secrets of the year. If they beat Arkansas and Arkansas, in turn, beats Texas, that's it. I've got a secret, too. Arkansas.

Southern California vs. UCLA —No bowl at stake this time. USC.

Frazier Is Fighting For Worldly Prestige

DETROIT (AP)— Joe Frazier, a king fighting for universal acceptance, and Bob Foster, a king who has turned his back on the class he rules, meet tonight for the heavyweight championship of the world.

The scheduled 15-round fight is set for 9:30 p.m. CST, at Cobo Arena and will follow, as part of a closed-circuit television doubleheader, a scheduled 10-rounder between heavyweights George Foreman and Boone Kirkman in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Although Frazier is the heavyweight champion and unbeaten in 25 pro bouts, he fights in the shadow of Muhammad Ali, also known as Cassius Clay.

So, if Frazier beats Foster—he is the 5-1 favorite—it will be another step toward stamping out the shadow of Ali because it will bring closer to realization a Frazier-Ali fight.

As for Foster, he has said no matter what happens in the Frazier fight he will not defend his light heavyweight championship again.

MAY GO 190

Foster, who was expected to weigh from 185 to 190 pounds for tonight's fight, says he cannot make the light heavyweight limit of 175 any more. It also is possible for a fighter to make more money as a heavyweight contender or trial horse than as the light heavyweight champion.

A crowd of about 15,000 which would mean a gate of $300,000 is expected at the $1,500-seat Cobo Arena to watch Foster try to become the first light heavyweight champion to win the heavyweight title. Seven previous light heavy kings tried unsuccessfully a total of nine times.

The closed-circuit telecast will be seen in 110 locations, with a seating capacity of 500,000, in 91 cities in the United States and Canada. The fights also will be beamed to 27 countries in Europe, Africa, South America, Central America, Asia and the South Pacific.

Frazier has been guaranteed $150,000 against 40 per cent of all receipts. Foster will get 22 per cent.

No matter what Frazier makes on this fight it will be peanuts compared to what he would get for fighting Ali. That would be the most lucrative fight in history, with predictions of a $10 million gross.

If everything goes right Frazier and Ali would probably fight in February. Ali fights Oscar Bonavena in December and the U.S. Supreme Court isn't expected to act until at least March on an appeal of Ali's conviction of refusing induction into the Army— a conviction that carried with it a five-year prison sentence and led to his being stripped of the heavyweight title.

THEY DIFFER

Tonight's fight will off a contrast in styles. Frazier, from Philadelphia, is a boring-in style of fighter who likes to work first on the body and is extremely dangerous when he has his opponent on the ropes or in a corner. Foster, of Washington, is a standup boxer with a good left hook and a tremendous right hand.

The 26-year-old Frazier will outweigh Foster by about 15 to 20 pounds, including his beard which he will not have to shave off, but the 31-year-old Foster at 6-feet-3½ is 4¼ inches taller than Frazier and has an edge of 5½ inches in reach.

"I don't see where I can miss once I'm under his arms," says Frazier who usually fights at a height and reach disadvantage.

Promising Heavies Set To Meet In New York

NEW YORK (AP))— It's bee some time since George Foreman and Boone Kirkman, two promising young heavyweights, were termed prelim fighters.

But both returned to that status tonight when they meet in a 10-round fight at Madison Square Garden. It's the main event for the live Garden card but only an appetizer to the closed circuit showing of the heavyweight title fight in Detroit between Joe Frazier and Bob Foster.

As soon as Kirkman and Foreman finish their fight, the Garden ring will be encompassed by a four-sided screen lowered from the ceiling and the New York fans will watch Frazier defend his crown against Foster. Similarly, fans in Detroit's Cobo Arena will get a closed-circuit look at Foreman and Kirkman before watching the in person Foster-Frazier fight.

Foreman, unbeaten in 23 fights, has scored 20 knockouts since turning professional after capturing the Olympic heavyweight crown in 1968.

Kirkman has 18 knockouts in 23 bouts and has lost once. That was three years ago when Doug Jones stopped him on a cut. He reversed that setback, knocking Jones out a few months later.

Kirkman, a former Amateur Athletic Union champ, was ruled a 3-1 underdog against Foreman, whose last outing in the Garden was an impressive three-round romp over Canadian champ George Churvalo.

Promoters are plugging this fight as a possible stepping stone for a shot for the title against the winner of the Foster-Frazier battle. But the shadow of Muhammad Ali, the former champ, stands between Foreman or Kirkman and Frazier, assuming the champion retains his title against Foster.

Pistons Are Hoping To Revive Attack

By The Associated Press

The Detroit Pistons better catch their second wind soon because the balloon they blew up so big earlier this season is losing air fast.

The Pistons, after turning in the worst record in the National Basketball Association last season, were the surprise of the league this year when they won 12 of their first 13 games. But since then, the Pistons have lost five in a row, the last to Philadelphia 113-91 Tuesday night.

Although they hit a team record 21 consecutive free throws, the Pistons fell flat from the field, hitting only 29 of 108 shots, or 27 per cent, their worst in several years.

Only San Francisco's 111-105 victory over the Chicago Bulls kept the Pistons from falling to third place in the Midwest Division behind Milwaukee and the Bulls.

Elsewhere, the New York Knicks showed no signs of flattening by beating Phoenix 103-100; Los Angeles continued on with a 116-105 victory over Atlanta, and Buffalo squeaked by Portland 102-101.

In the American Basketball Association, the Floridians beat Pittsburgh 122-116, Indiana stopped Utah 125-122 in overtime and Memphis topped Virginia 119-103.

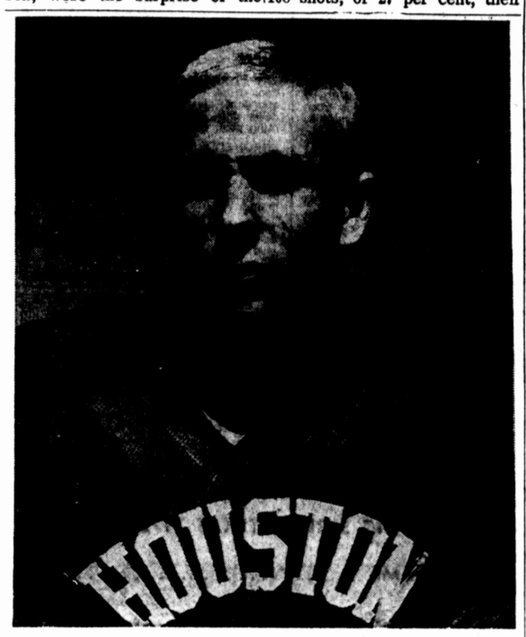

The Pistons, who led the Bulls by one game, trailed only 50-44 at the half before the 76ers broke it open as Archie Clark hit eight points and Hal Greer seven. Clark finished with 24 while Dave Bing had 23 for the Pistons.

Jerry Lucas hit three clutch baskets in the final period and gathered in 29 rebounds as San Francisco held off the Bulls, who trailed 91-78 with 4:15 left. Chicago pulled within 100-98 before fading.

Ron Williams had 28 points for the Warriors while Bob Love had 32 for Chicago.

The Knicks, after leading most of the game, fell behind 96-90 in the final quarter with injured Willis Reed on the bench. However, the Knicks held the Suns scoreless for the final 1:52 while Walt Frazier and Mike Riordan hit baskets and Bill Bradley added two free throws for their 12th straight victory over Phoenix. It also was the third consecutive triumph for the Knicks, now 15-5.

Reed still led the Knicks with 19 points and 18 rebounds while Dick Van Arsdale and Clem Haskins had 23 each for the Suns.

ALTERNATING QUARTERBACK — Gary Hinds, former Big Spring quarterback, is alternating at that position for the University of Houston freshman team this fall. The Kittens recently clawed LSU's first-year team and will seek its fifth win of the year Thursday night against Wharton Junior College in Wharton.

Odessa Seeks New Mentor

ODESSA — While cross-town Permian fans whoop it up for the Class AAAA football playoffs, Odessa High finds itself without a head coach.

A rumor which gained wide currency became fact Tuesday when Joe Means, 41, submitted his resignation. Means' team completed a winless season last week.

Means, who was earning $13,043 annually at the time of his departure, said no pressure had been applied "other than what I've put on myself."

Floyd Manry, Odessa superintendent of schools, said that it will be Means' option to remain in the system.

Means' teams have won only 13 games in five seasons. They lost 33 and tied three.

Joe served as head coach at Phillips from 1957 until 1965. He quit there to succeed Hank Watkins as head coach at Odessa High in 1966. His first team at Odessa won five, lost four and tied one — his best record at Odessa.

Manry said that applications were already being accepted for the position. The new man, he added, would be free to name his assistants.

JOE MEANS

Means said he was prepared to step down as early as Jan. 31 but would remain if a replacement cannot be found by that time.

Joe's son, Jim, was a member of this year's Odessa football team. Means had another year to go on his present contract.

Truman Nix Calls It A Day As Colorado City Coach

COLORADO CITY (SPL) — Truman Nix, 45, has quit as head football coach at Colorado City with an announcement he will no longer coach. He added he hopes to remain in Colorado City.

Nix is a native of Loraine and played his college football at McMurry in Abilene.

His 1970 Colorado City team has a 2-7 record, with one game remaining. The Wolves wind up Thursday against Lubbock Dunbar.

Nix's resignation becomes effective at the end of the school year. Truman formerly coached at Wink, where he developed several championship clubs. He was born at Wastella.

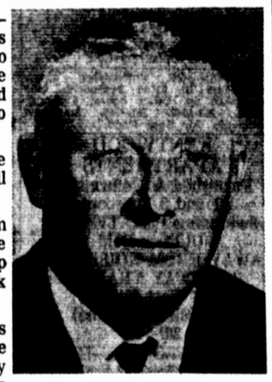

Nix had been with the Cee City system since 1964. He also had coaching tenures at Hamlin, Andrews and Rule. Last year he was president of the Texas Coaches Association.

Nix did not mention his health as a reason for his resignation but has had several bouts with ulcers which required hospital care. He did say:

"I'm well now, and I want to stay that way."

Nix's family maintains a prosperous cotton farm near Loraine.

Supt. of schools Lloyd McKee said that the school board will consider the resignation at its next meeting. If it is accepted, he added, the board would probably begin to consider applications for the coaching job.

TRUMAN NIX

Colorado City was in Class AA ball when Nix moved there but is now a member of 3-AAA.

The point spread of the trophy is 48 inches and had 13 spikes. Nichols made his kill on the eastern slope of the Rockies near Waltenburg. The animal dressed out to about 900 pounds. Nichols killed another elk in the same general vicinity last year. W. J. Harlow, Stanton; and A. J. Barron, Colorado City, accompanied him on the trip.

John Bench Youngest To Win MVP Premium

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench of the Cincinnati Reds, the 22-year-old slugging king of the major leagues, added another crown today when he became the youngest player ever to win a Most Valuable Player Award.

Bench, who led the majors in home runs with 45 and runs batted in with 148 while leading the Reds to the National League pennant, outdistanced a field that included two other strong Cincinnati candidates in the balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The young, strong catcher received 22 of the 24 first-place votes and a total of 326 points. Billy Williams of the Chicago Cubs was second with the other two first-place votes and 218 points.

Bench's slugging teammate, third baseman Tony Perez, finished third in the balloting with 149 points while another member of the Reds, outfielder Pete Rose, also cracked the top 10, finishing seventh with 54 points.

Bench is only the second player in the 40-year history of MVP balloting to win the award at the age of 22. Stan Musial was 22 when he won in 1943, but Musial's birthday falls on Nov. 21 and Bench's on Dec. 7.

Musial, however, still retains the honor of having won the MVP earlier in his career than any other player. He was only in his second season when he won the National League award. Bench just finished his third year with the Reds.

Bench also is the first catcher to win the award in the NL since Roy Campanella did it with the 1955 Brooklyn Dodgers and is the first Red to win since Frank Robinson, now with Baltimore, did it in 1951.

Robinson, who helped the Orioles defeat the Reds in the World Series, was in the top 10 in the American League MVP balloting won earlier by first baseman Boog Powell of the Orioles.

Bench appeared on every ballot in winning the award, being named second on the other two cast. Besides his two firsts, Williams was placed second on 17 ballots. He also had three third-place votes, one fourth and one fifth.

After Perez in the voting came Bob Gibson, the fireballing St. Louis right-hander who previously was named the Cy Young Award winner as the league's outstanding pitcher. He received 110 votes. Wes Parker of the Los Angeles Dodgers was fifth with 91.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

It's becoming increasingly obvious that the U.S. Supreme Court will delay a decision in Cassius Clay's appeal against a five-year prison jolt for sidestepping the draft until such time that a favorable decision will not arouse the wrath of the Red-White-and-Blues — those patriots who reason the law and its ramifications should apply to all people equally and alike. Jurists can read, too, you know.

Once the emotion evolving from the issue dissipates, Clay will emerge from his inquisition more unassailable from those who might argue he, in reality, used the color of his skin to further his ambitions and neutralize the rap against him.

Opinions about Muhammad Ali, nee Cassius Clay, will linger for years to come but one fact becomes crystal clear. The man has an uncanny knack for drawing people to a prize fight. He knows it and demands his due. The pigeons eagerly lining up to fight him know it. And the promoters, who never let a little thing like principles stand in the way of making a fast buck, are acutely aware of it.

The flaks hired by the entrepreneurs to erase any stigma that might linger in the wake of his marathon fight with his draft board will write so convicingly about him between now and the time he steps into the ring with Joe Frazier it will be difficult to separate his image from that of Sir Galahad and the White Knight.

Clay isn't the first boxer to cop a plea for privilege and live in the eye of a hurricane. Jack Dempsey was accused of being a draft dodger during World War I and emerged from the eddy of controversy the most revered man in all fistiana. Sugar Ray Robinson climbed off a troop ship bound for troubled waters during World War II and his gate appeal wasn't tarnished.

Others took soft jobs in industry in times of international strife rather than risk being shot at, and lived to become national idols — invited to stand at the side of presidents and movie queens in returning the salutes of the worshipful masses.

Cassius will die a rich if not a happy man, mainly because the ranks of the curious include not only those who admire him but who regard him as reprehensible. He can walk down any street and draw a crowd.

Three head coaching jobs in the Big Ten could open up after this season and an assistant mentor at Ohio State, Lou McCullough, likely will have his pick of the positions.

The mentors swimming against the tide are Jim Valek of Illinois, Iowa's Ray Nagel and Indiana's chieftian, John Pont.

Valek and Nagel apparently won't be asked to return. Pont is said to be eyeing the athletic director's job at Kent State, where sometimes the student body has been known to play games more dangerous than football.

McCullough has been an assistant to Woody Hayes at Ohio State the past seven seasons. A master of defense, he is said to be even better at recruiting. One observer described Lou as someone who could charm the cotton out of a water moccasin's mouth.

McCullough has never been a head coach since he started 21 years ago out in Wyoming.

When Midland High's Fountain Smith scored five touchdowns against Odessa High recently, he tied a school record that had endured since unpredictable Jay Francis was leaving people in his prop wash back in 1937 and '38.

Dennis Smith, a dangerous runner for Odessa High against Big Spring recently, is only a sophomore.

Both San Angelo and Odessa Permian had 1971 games canceled on them by 15-AAAA teams. San Angelo was to have met Temple and Permian had Killeen under contract but the schools had to beg off due to the addition of Waco LeVega to the circuit.

UNLESS 'PUBLIC NEED' SHOWN

Newsman Cannot Be Ordered To Appear Before Grand Jury

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal appeals court has ruled that a newsman cannot be ordered to appear before a secret U.S. grand jury session unless the government demonstrates a "compelling public need" for his presence.

The decision by the three-judge 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals panel held that Earl Caldwell, a New York Times reporter, was innocent of contempt for failure to appear last June before a federal grand jury probing Black Panther activities.

COMPELLING NEED

Judge Alfonse Zirpoli had ruled in U.S. District Court last April 3 that the newsman must appear, although entitled to refuse to answer certain grand jury questions until the government demonstrated "a compelling and overriding national interest" requiring his testimony.

Caldwell declined to appear and was cited for contempt.

EARL CALDWELL

The three-judge panel, reversing the June 5 contempt citation, said in an opinion written by Judge Charles M. Merbill: "Where it has been shown that the public's First Amendment right to be informed would be jeopardized by requiring a journalist to submit to secret grand jury interrogation, the government must respond by demonstrating a compelling need for the witness's presence before judicial process properly can issue to require attendance."

'A NARROW ONE'

The opinion declared that if a newsman were compelled to testify in secret his sources "might very understandably fear that the reporter's resolve to protect them would crumble in the pressures of the secret hearing."

Passage Of State Wiretap Law To Fight Crime Urged

AUSTIN (AP) — Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin told judges and prosecutors today the legislature ought to pass a wiretapping law to help rub out organized crime —"a cancer that can literally kill a nation."

Martin told the conference on organized crime that "organized crime has not succeeded in Texas—but the tentacles of the Mafia have already reached our state.

"It is most probable that they are already operating legitimate businesses, cover businesses, in Texas."

MAN'S CASTLE

Martin said the proposed wiretap law, which was defeated by the 1969 Legislature, has enough constitutional safeguards that it "would no more be an invasion of privacy than a duly executed search warrant."

The attorney general said current laws do not enable law officers to catch the criminals who give the orders because they are "probably just an anonymous voice on the telephone. And so on up the ladder—an invincible layer of insulation, and the only connecting link is the telephone. That is why we need wiretap legislation. . ."

"Certainly we care about our civil liberties," Martin said. "Certainly a man's home is his castle. Even his corner phone booth is his castle. But putting a dime in the phone ought not give a man a license to plan a crime. Organized crime doesn't run on interofficememos."

'BOOK' RACKETS

One of Texas' top law officers told the conference "gambling and bookmaking are by far the most lucrative rackets that organized crime has at its disposal in Texas today."

Lt. Col. Leo E. Gossett, assistant director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said "organized crime in the Southwest and in Texas operates with extreme caution."

Gossett defined "organized crime" as the "unlawful activities of the members of a highly organized, disciplined and sophisticated association engaged in supplying illegal goods and services, including but not limited to gambling, prostitution, loan sharking, narcotics, labor racketeering, and other unlawful activities of such organizations."

He said one of the greatest difficulties in halting bookmaking "lies in the fact that large numbers of people from all walks of life and in almost every community, participate in violation of the gambling laws. "Far too many people look upon gambling or bookmaking as a very minor infraction of the law. Far too many people fail to stop to think that this type of activity is part and parcel of the criminal conspiracy."

Gossett noted that the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council created in March hopes to develop within four years a "major, coordinated and continuing statewide effort against organized crime."

Boys' Club Gets Donation

Big Spring's Boys' Club got a boost for its operations this week when the employes of the 7-11 Stores presented the club with a donation of $350.00.

"We really appreciate the gift," said Bert Andries, president of the club. "We are not a member of the United Fund, and so are dependent on individual donations to maintain operations.

Employes at 7-11 stores have a small amount of money deducted from each payroll check for charitable purposes to avoid individual solicitations on the amounts to be given to during the year. They then vote different charities. The Boys' Club, located at 114½ E. 2nd, now has a membership of 200.

SST, Headed For Senate Showdown, Faces Inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The supersonic transport, headed soon for another Senate funding showdown, is under investigation by the General Accounting Office, the government's spending watchdog agency.

But results of the major study into all aspects of the controversial SST project won't be available for at least a year.

The GAO probe is expected to be seized by critics as a new reason for holding up further SST funds, at least until the study is complete.

Sources close to senators opposing more federal aid for the faster-than-sound passenger plane said the investigation will include the feasibility and desirability of federal funding to build the SST prototype, the terms of the contract and the possibilities of cost overruns.

Senate critics contend a fleet of SSTs in regular transcontinental service will befoul the environment with noise and air pollution.

The sources said SST critics in the Senate attempted unsuccessfully to get the GAO to step up the pace of its study in hopes its conclusions will help sway a vote against continued appropriations for the project.

It was also learned the GAO may have a report soon on allegations of irregularities in subcontracts for the costly project.

That report was requested by the office of Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., based on unconfirmed information it had received.

Proxmire is a leading SST critic, attacking it as a billion-dollar waste.
