Conviction In Court Or Padlock Is The Formula Set To Halt Beer Sales

Officers Admit That Job Is A Difficult One But Are Determined To Win Battle

CONVICT beer sellers in court or padlock their places.

That was the dual formula propounded at a before-the-battle meeting of 21 Lubbock and Lubbock county peace officers with County Attorney Vaughn E. Wilson late Monday.

Beer Is Refused

Lubbock county voters by a majority of 797 votes Saturday turned thumbs down on proposed legalization of sale of 3.2 beer and wine. Downtown restaurants that had ignored an earlier dry majority quit selling beer Sunday.

When Saturday night's tabulations showed a marked anti-beer victory, peace officers and the county attorney had issued warnings that the lid was on again.

Job To Be Difficult

They met Monday to discuss just how the lid could be kept on. From the outset, it was plain that the job was to be difficult, in many respects much more trying than enforcement of the laws against hard liquors.

As County Attorney Wilson, who will prosecute in 3.2 beer cases, explained, possession of whisky is, under the Dean law, prima facie evidence of possession for the purpose of sale. Not so with 3.2 beer.

No Violation To Buy

It is not a violation of law to buy the light beer, to drink it, to transport it.

"You can't prosecute a man for something that's not a violation of the law," County Attorney Wilson emphasized.

Beer and wine having more than 3.2 per cent alcohol by volume are penalized by the state dry law and resultant cases are tried in district court after grand jury action. Again, not so with the 3.2 beverages.

Penalties Provided

It is illegal to manufacture, sell, barter, or exchange 3.2 beer and wine in counties dry by local option, as provided in a state constitutional amendment last August. The offense, however, is a misdemeanor, and of county court jurisdiction. Both a fine and a jail sentence are provided as penalties.

Sheriff Tom Abel, Chief of Police Wiley L. Metcalfe and Constable L. H. Holt all expressed determination to enforce the beer law. Members of the three departments and the state highway patrol were present.

Commissioned officers also attended.

Jess Levens, City prosecutor, was there.

Lynn Sheriff Talks

Sheriff B. L. Parker told of methods used in stopping beer sales in his county, Lynn.

In view of the difficulty in obtaining convincing evidence of sale, consensus seemed to be that the most effective way of regulating the established business place would be that of injunction. A place may be declared a public nuisance as a result of giving away or storing beer, while the trial route requires evidence of outright sale, County Attorney Wilson said.

Increase Expected

The trial method probably would be the only effective one in dealing

Dr. Wynekoop Is Denounced As Murderess

No Direct Demand For Death Penalty Made; Defense Will Begin Today; Jury To Get Case In Few Hours

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 5.(AP)—With a demand that the jury "do unto this defendant as she did unto Rheta Wynekoop," the murder prosecution of Dr. Alice L. Wynekoop for the slaying of her daughter-in-law was ended tonight.

With those words, Prosecutor Charles S. Dougherty contented himself in recommending punishment. He made no direct demand for the death penalty.

Few Hours Remain

Only a matter of hours remained before the jury will begin deliberating Dr. Wynekoop's fate. Defense Attorney W. W. Smith will begin his closing arguments tomorrow, finishing in about three hours. The prosecution will then be allowed rebuttal arguments.

Slumped low in her chair, the 63-year old physician-defendant sat motionless today as Dougherty denounced her as a "cold-blooded murderess." Twice during the day she had fainted, once just before court opened and earlier in her cell in the county jail. Her face was bruised from the earlier fainting spell, in which she fell on the jail floor.

Evidence Displayed

As he pleaded for a conviction, Dougherty arranged before the juror's eyes on Dr. Wynekoop's antique-appearing operating table the blood stained sheets and blankets as they were found last Nov.

Lubbock Woman Is Arrested After Liquor Is Confiscated

Police confiscated about 2 1-2 pints of whisky, and 130 bottles of home-beer, and arrested a 44-year-old woman in the 1700-block Eighteenth street late Monday afternoon.

The woman would be charged in federal court with possession of whisky upon which revenue tax had not been paid, said John L. Croft, police plainclothesman, who with Patrolman H. B. Brown made the raid.

A youth about 18 years old was brought to Lubbock county jail Monday afternoon by Nath Elliott, Petersburg constable, who arrested him Saturday night at Plainview. The youth was carrying half a gallon of whisky when caught, Constable Elliott said. A federal court charge would be filed, he indicated.

Selection Of Jury Started

Eight Jurors Are Chosen Here Monday In Robbery Trial Of Bill Doupe; Proceedings To Continue Today

With eight of the 12 jurors who will decide W. E. (Bill) Doupe's fate selected, completion of the jury will begin in 72nd district court here at 9 o'clock this morning. Homer L. Pharr is presiding judge.

Doupe is to be tried for robbery with firearms of a grocery store, in the holdup of which Robert Tharp, an employe, was shot fatally by Paul Mitchell, who faces life imprisonment.

Eight Jurors Chosen

The eight jurors chosen Monday, in examination of about 50 talesmen, half of the venire, were:

E. R. Slater, Slaton; L. F. Reeves, Lubbock; A. A. Bruckner, nine miles southwest of Lubbock; G. C. Qualls, farmer; J. W. Gamel, Lubbock; W. L. Williams, farmer; T. J. Wages, farmer, Grovesville, and S. F. Cooper.

Selection Delayed

One juror was seclected before noon Monday. Selection of a jury was delayed by a defense motion to quash the indictment upon which Doupe was to be tried.

The motion to quash alleged a correction had been made in the indictment after it was drawn. George Berry, a member of the defense staff, said. Judge Pharr overruled the motion, District Attorney Daniel A. Blair said.

All Employes To Be Dropped From The Roll

Work Divisions Of State And Local Relief Administrations Will Take Up Burden On April 1

Disposition Of The Program In Rural Areas Expected To Be Announced When Hopkins Returns From Florida

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 5. — The civil works program, the expedient used by the administration to carry 4,000,000 unemployed through the winter is expected to end March 30, a full month ahead of the scheduled closing announced last week by President Roosevelt.

Harry L. Hopkins, federal emergency relief and civil works administrator, announced today all civil works employes in cities of 5,000 or over would be dropped from civil works March 30 and taken over by work divisions of state and local relief administrations April 1. A definite announcement as to final disposition of the program in rural areas where demobilization is proceeding rapidly is expected on Hopkins' return March 16 from a brief vacation in Florida.

Ended In Some States

The entire program of civil works was ended today in North Dakota and South Dakota and in the drouth areas of Minnesota and Kansas. Similar action may be taken shortly in drouth areas of Wisconsin.

Demobilization will continue during the next four weeks as originally planned and announced last week. It was pointed out virtually all of the 1,500,000 persons who will be on the payrolls March 30 will be in cities. The plan for demobilization calls for far more rapid disbanding of work forces in the country than in cities. This is due to the fact that work is beginning and with better weather most of the rural workers will find some sort of occupation.

The persons who will be transferred to work divisions will cease to be federal employes. They will become employes of the state and local relief organizations. While on civil works they were classed as federal employes and as such received the benefits of federal insurance in event of accident or death. They were paid by government checks through the veterans disbursing officers. Hopkins said a new plan for payment was being worked out.

The negro, captured in northern Texas several days after the killings, was taken to the state prison at McAlester.

Mutilated Body Of Dallas Woman Is Discovered In Trinity River Monday

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS, March 5. — The mutilated body of Mrs. Allie George Kidd, 24, was recovered today from Elm fork of the Trinity river here after the finding of her hat and a pool of blood on a nearby bridge led officers to believe there had been a slaying.

She had been killed by blows on the head, apparently struck with a hatchet or a similar heavy bladed instrument. There were four deep gashes in her skull.

Seeking a clue that might lead to identification of her slayer, police questioned her husband, Walter Kidd, 22, and a 40-year old man with whom she was said to have been acquainted. Both declared they knew nothing of any affair that might have led to her death.

Kidd said he spent last night at the home of his parents and did not leave there until 8 a. m. today. This statement was corroborated by his parents. The other man said his acquaintance with the woman was so slight he

Mothers-In-Law Footsore And Weary But They Are Happy As Amarillo Stages Greatest Day

"I Could Just Kiss Gene Howe's Old Bald Head," One Says As She Expressed Her Gratitude; "She Is More Than A Mother—A Mother Plus," Speaker Tells Celebrants

By HARRY MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Staff Writer

AMARILLO, March 5.—Mothers-in-law, although footsore and weary, were nevertheless happy tonight at the conclusion of the first observance of a day in their honor.

For the first time in their lives, they, as a group, had been praised and feted in a round of festivities devoid of hackneyed jokes or words of derision.

They Gather Early

As excited as children, they gathered early, paraded the downtown area, posed for photographers, heard an address by Ross D. Rogers, mayor, and received greetings from nationally-known celebrities before settling down for a business session of their own and entertainment.

What had been planned as a sort of parity for mothers-in-law turned out to be Amarillo's biggest observance in recent years. There were visitors from a 200-mile radius as the party assumed the proportions of a convention. Streets were jammed with traffic. Members of a civic club left their luncheon table to join soda clerks and bank presidents as escorts for those without attending "in-laws."

What They Think

What did the mothers-in-law think about it?

Mrs. L. O. Thompson, mother of Ernest O. Thompson, member of the Texas railroad commission: "I think it's the greatest thing I ever heard of. I could just kiss Gene Howe's old bald head for recognizing me as a mother-in-law. I never had so much fun."

Mrs. W. F. Donald, Howe's mother-in-law: "I simply am overcome. I had no idea this thing would be so popular. Don't give me any credit for starting it. It was that wonderful son-in-law of mine."

"It's Just Grand"

Mrs. Iona Belle Bowles, "most" mother-in-law with nine married daughters and seven married sons: "It's just grand."

Mrs. N. S. Griggs, president of the mother-in-law day club of Texas: "We are going to make it national. We had no idea it would be so popular. Hoped first to make it national in four or five years but it won't take that long."

Mrs. Billy Dixon, widow of a noted Indian fighter and army scout: "Who'd ever have thought anything like this would start out in this pioneer country?"

On every side: "Isn't this the Sale Of Bonds Asked Monday

State Bond Commission Fixes March 17 As The Final Date To Receive Bids; Officials Expect Little Trouble

(By The Associated Press)

AUSTIN, March 5.—An immediate sale of $4,000,000 in Texas unemployment relief bonds was requested by the state relief commission today.

The state bond commission, agency set up to attend to details of issuance and sale of the securities, fixed March 17 as the final date bids would be received. Confidence was expressed the difficulty felt in disposing of the first $2,750,000 block already sold and the proceeds spent, would not surround the new issue.

Others Outstanding

The legislature has authorized a total of $10,500,000 in relief bonds. There will remain $3,750,000 outstanding after the new issue is sold.

The federal government recently advanced $750,000 to tide the relief program over until the securities were marketed. The state already was $600,000 behind in its fifty-fifty matching basis with the United States, leaving Texas indebted to it for $1,300,000.

The question whether proceeds of the sale should be spread out over a definite period, was left open for a later meeting of the commission.

M. N. Crestman of Dallas, a member of the commission, proposed that the funds be budgeted to care

Princess Is Given $125,000 Damages In Libel Suit Against Film Company

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, March 5.—Princess Irena Youssoupoff was awarded 25,000 pound sterling ($125,000) damages today in her libel suit against eMtro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Ltd., producers of the film "Rasputin And The Empress."

The verdict, one of the largest in the history of British libel cases, was received with amazement by a crowded courtroom as a dramatic new climax in the sensation-filled story of the mad monk of the Russian court was written by the jury.

The princess, who had asked 2,000,000 pounds sterling from the motion picture company, explained that she was "completely satisfied with the verdict" as spectators surrounded her.

The defendants are expected to file an appeal.

Princess Irena, dressed all in black, smiled slightly, as the verdict was announced, and then her smiling husband escorted her to an ante-room.

The award followed a trial filled with sensation after sensa-

Old Haunts Of Dillinger Are Being Watched

Automobile Stolen From The Garage Of Indiana Sheriff Located; Believe Contact Held With Gang

Chicago Searched

Mysterious Mrs. Dillinger Is Now In Case; Was Allowed To Visit Desperado During Stay In Jail

(By The Associated Press)

CHICAGO, March 5. —The man hunt for John Dillinger, elusive Indiana desperado, focused tonight on his machine gun gang's old haunts in Chicago.

Its intensity was disclosed along with the announcement that the automobile in which he had fled from the Crown Point, Ind., jail, had been found here and indications cropped out that he had maintained secret contact with his followers while in Durance.

Car Is Located

The car—Sheriff Lillian Holley's sedan—was discovered, police said, in front of a north side apartment Saturday night, indicating Dillinger and his fellow fugitive, Herbert Youngblood, negro, had entered the city through the elaborate net which police spread to prevent it.

Three squads of officers were keeping a day and night watch at the apartment, with orders to shoot to kill if Dillinger showed up.

The re-mobilized "Dillinger squad" swept into action to search the northwest section of the city, where the desperado had a chain of hideouts when he was last at liberty from the law.

Circled The City

Police believed Dillinger must have circled the city, after he was last seen at Peotone, Ill., Saturday and entered through the swanky suburbs on the less closely guarded north side.

A mysterious "Mrs. Dillinger" today entered the case of the restless desperado and the soft-pine revolver with which he fluffed his way out of jail. Crown Point officials, in the course of four investigations into Dillinger's break, disclosed a brunette who said she was the gunman's wife, had been allowed to visit him in his cell.

Jail attaches today looked at pictures and said with surprise that "Mrs. Dillinger" resembled Elaine Burton—sweetheart of another Dillinger gangster, John Hamilton. If they are the same, authorities believed, Dillinger must have been in communication with his gang while in the Crown Point prison.

Attorney In Denial

Dillinger's lawyer, however, de-

Samuel Insull Is Ordered To Leave Quickly

Former Chicago Magnate Gets 48 Hours To Quit Refuge In Greece; No Hint Is Given Where He Will Go

(By The Associated Press)

ATHENS, March 5 — Seventy four year old Samuel Insull, sr., who has said "I am old and sick. I will go home and die," today was ordered to get out of Greece within 48 hours.

And if the former Chicago utilities operator does not comply voluntarily with that order, John Metaxas, minister of the interior, warned "I will put him on an American bound vessel."

Refuge Is Unknown

Whether Insull, who has fought for months against extradition to Chicago to face charges of embezzlement and grand larceny, might seek refuge in the near east was not indicated.

There was no hint from his household where the once powerful utilities magnate planned to go.

For the first time since Insull fled here in October, 1932, a police guard was placed about his house.

Blocks Further Delay

The ultimatum of Metaxas, it was believed, would block further delay than is necessary to await a boat's arrival. It was assumed Insull will travel by boat or train, as his health is not likely to permit an airplane flight.

A formal order notifying the aged former financier that he must leave the country was communicated to him in person today. He received the news silently, and then went into a conference with his attorneys.

Revisions For Code Salaries Are Necessary

President Declares That It Is Immediate Task Of Big Industries To Employ More At Purchasing Wages

Assurance Given

Increase In Wages And Shortening Of Hours Is Declared Necessary; Common Objective To Be Sought

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, March 5.—In line with President Roosevelt's plea, a ten per cent slash in hours of labor and a corresponding increase in pay for industries under NRA was outlined tonight by Hugh S. Johnson at meetings called to discuss methods of reinvigorating the recovery unit.

Johnson, NRA administrator, made it plain that his proposal was tentative, but for some time such a plan, to be accomplished by a blanket presidential order after the completion of the present code revision conferences, had been foreseen.

Provide Exemptions

Questioning one of his own economists, A. J. Hettinger, Johnson said the 10 per cent cut could be accomplished by provision whereby industries not in a position to reduce hours further would obtain speedy exemptions.

President Roosevelt in his address opening the meeting of code authorities this morning, said:

"It is the immediate task of industry to reemploy more people at purchasing wages, and to do it now."

Employers Dubious

The applause, however, which accompanied Hettinger's declaration against a further hour shortening and the enthusiasm which accompanied Hettinger's declaration against a further hour shortening and the enthusiasm which followed an earlier proposal by Ralph E. Flanders of the NRA industrial advisory board, to continue the civil works administration as an alternative to hour reductions showed that many of the employers present were dubious about an additional contraction of the work week.

At other meetings tonight, prices, small business and other phases of NRA operation that have brought criticism were discussed.

Critics Get Answer

Mr. Roosevelt also gave assurance to those critics who have complained that NRA has fashioned a vise to crush small business with:

"The essential provision of the codes should check or reverse competitive methods by which the small business man was or is being squeezed out."

Another charge often made and repeated is that the recovery unit has failed to carry out the provisions which give labor the right to organize freely. Mr. Roosevelt made it plain that he wanted workers to have this privilege.

Church Societies Gather Monday; Baptists Are To Meet Again Today

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE BEAN WILSON
Avalanche Woman's Editor

THERE may come a hard freeze or so between now and summer but for the time being, spring is in the air.

Grass is beginning to show green, now that a rain has come. Pussy willow limbs have swelling catkins. Shrubs of many kinds are putting out tiny green leaves. The elms are in bloom and many bulbs are pushing green shoots through the ground.

What the weather may do between now and May is a matter of speculation, but for the time being it is spring.

OCTOBER HATS

ALMOST any fabric is elevated to the ranks of fashion in the course of a few years. Nothing is too humble to inspire designers. So now we have oilcloth hats from Paris and they are to be worn with trim spring suits. Gloves are shown to match.

SHAMROCK SALAD

FOR your St. Patrick's day party try this shamrock salad.

One package of lemon-flavored gelatin mixture, one cup boiling water, two-thirds cup boling pineapple juice, two tablespoons lemon juice, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one cup diced pineapple, one cup seeded white cherries, one-half cup diced peaches, one-half cup blanched almonds, green coloring.

Pour water and pineapple juice over gelatin mixture, stir until dissolved. Cool, add lemon juice and salt. Let chill until a little stiff. Add sufficient green coloring to give desider tint. Add fruits and almonds. Pour to thickness of one inch in shallow pan. Chill until stiff. Cut out shamrock designs, using a regular cooky cutter or a paper pattern. Serve on lettuce and surround with mayonnaise.

STYLE KEYNOTE

PERHAPS it is a herald of returning prosperity, but gold is the keynote of color in spring fashions, we are told. Outside the field of evening clothes, where everything sparkles in gold, there is much gold in the daytime mode, the stylists say. Gold threads are woven into many fabrics. Gold belts, buttons, trimmings of many kinds are to be seen on sports afternoon and other daytime frocks.

And that may be significant. We don't expect to enter any golden age of prosperity overnight and most of us are still getting furrows in our brows wondering where enough money is coming from for necessities, but it may be significant that gold has been chosen as a theme in spring fashion colors.

WE NEVER LEARN

EVERY few days we continue to read of someone who has been killed or seriously injured by an "unloaded" gun. Sometimes the person is demonstrating how he could commit suicide and does that thing. Sometimes it is the bystander who is injured by this carelessness.

It is a common enough thing for people to be shot with guns they believe to be unloaded, yet the thing continues. One wonders why we can't learn to be more careful of a weapon so dangerous. One wonders why people continue to play with something that so often causes death and injury.

Many times children are the victims. Yet people continue to leave guns where their children can get them for play and they continue to shoot guns carelessly with children about. A gun is a mighty useful thing to have at times and a dangerous one at others. Yet many of us continue to keep one lying carelessly about or to handle one as we would any other piece of steel. We seem to refuse to learn by the experience of others.

IN THE Sunday Avalanche-Journal there was a general story concerning the proposed health center here. Members of the County Children's council are back of the agitation for such a center.

If the plan is properly worked out, this column can see no reason why it would not solve many of the city and county problems. Good health, clean homes and proper care during illnesses mean a lot in the welfare of people. The health center as outlined here, would not take care of all delinquents in the county but it would help to make the number smaller. And it would be a great benefit to the people who are unable to secure proper medical care. Too, it would help to displace the haphazard care that is being given now and put it all on an organized basis.

Pre-Historic Panhandle Culture Is Said To Be One Of Extreme Interest

CANYON, Mar. 5. (AP)—Dr. Warren K. Moorehead, dean of American archaeologists, while in Canyon recently, stated that from the point of view of archaeological studies the Panhandle of Texas was a strategic center and that the pre-historic Panhandle culture, the remains of which are found in many different places, is one of extreme interest. He stated further that it was now the opinion of scientists that the Pueblo Indian culture found in New Mexico was a later phase of the same life which had its beginnings in the Panhandle region.

Asked the extent of the area in which this peculiar Panhandle culture existed, Dr. Moorehead and Floyd Studer, Amarillo archaeologist, were agreed that the eastern boundary of the Panhandle of Texas and the eastern boundary of New Mexico marked the limits of the land in which these early people lived.

None Knew Number

Dr. Moorehead said that no one knew the number of these people, that there might have been 20,000, and that it was possible the remains they left were those of many generations.

Houses built by these ancient men of the Panhandle were usually one-story in height, sometimes made of stones placed vertically in slab-like arrangements, and sometimes laid horizontally, forming substantial walls. Rooms varied in size from six to twenty-five feet square. Often one floor was superimposed upon another, although no reason for doing so had been discovered. Most of the ruins are out on the Plains, only two having been found in the shelter of overhanging cliffs.

Depended On Buffalo

It was probable, Dr. Moorehead said, that the people who built the dwellings depended upon the buffalo and other game for their sustenance, although some wild plants resembling the sweet potato have been found near the ruins and nowhere else in this section of the country.

It was not likely these early Indians used tobacco because only two small pipes have been found in an area covering many hundreds square miles.

The pottery found in the ruins was without decoration. Only two perfect jars have been found in the Panhandle and these now rest in a New York museum.

Dr. Moorehead said it was now the opinion of scientists that as the Indians slowly moved west they progressed in civilization, their culture culminating in that high type found in the ruins of the Pecos, New Mexico region.

To Have Work Done

The eastern scientist stated that the American museum society recently voted to have work done by local trained men and to have valuable specimens stay in the museums of the sections in which they were found.

"It is to be regretted," said Dr. Moorehead, "that untrained people attempt to make excavations, that amateurs destroy materials of great value which can never be replaced."

He suggested that a better proceeding would be for the amateur who thinks he has discovered a ruin, to get in touch with a well-trained investigator and then assist him in securing the treasures in the ruin.

Dr. Moorehead declared he had never found any buried treasure and had never personally known anyone who had secured anything of monetary value by digging for treasure.

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S TABLETS

A Tonic and Sedative for Women

If you want safe relief from Constipation

Science says Today use a LIQUID Laxative

1. Regulate intestinal action gently—no "purging"
2. Measure dose to suit your individual needs
3. Avoid Bowel Fatigue and the laxative habit

Here's Why:

Harsh laxatives often drain the system, weaken the bowel muscles, and in some cases even affect the liver and kidneys.

A doctor will tell you that the unwise use of harsh laxatives often does more harm than good.

Fortunately, the public is fast returning to the use of laxatives in liquid form.

A properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement. There is no discomfort at the time and no weakness after. You don't have to take "a double dose" a day or two later.

In buying any laxative, always read the label. Not the claims, but the contents. If it contains doubtful drugs, don't take it.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a prescriptional preparation in which there are no mineral drugs. Its ingredients are on the label. By using it, you avoid danger of bowel strain.

The liquid test:

This test has proved to many men and women that their trouble was not "weak bowels," but strong cathartics:

First. Select a good liquid laxative. 2. Take the dose you find is suited to your system. 3. Gradually reduce the dose until bowels are moving regularly without any need of stimulation.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has the highest standing among liquid laxatives, and is the one generally used. It contains senna, a natural laxative which is perfectly safe for the youngest child. Your druggist has Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

M., March 5 (AP)—In the state's first political convention of the year, the socialist party of New Mexico yesterday selected its ticket for the November election and adopted resolutions condemning the administration policy of the AAA as fascist in nature and urging that all army and navy appropriations be turned over for relief purposes.

Farmers Start Planting Work

First General Rains In Many Months Bring Brighter Future And Farmers Are Hard At Work This Week

The clank of metal and the swish of harness mingled with the put-put-put of motors and the chug-chug of tractors as South Plains farmers Monday began turning under the soil in preparation of the ground for spring planting.

Sharp pointed steel plows or heavy round discs turned the mellow soil upwards along long rows as farmers began taking advantage of recent rains that added moisture to long dry soil. It was the first rain of any consequence in months, since last fall. The ground had become very dry and although a good start in plowing had been made by many farmers, the work was not general.

Land Is Leased

Virtually every farm in the 18 counties of the South Plains area is to be worked this year, according to reports. Land owners have reported a general leasing of all available land in production.

The larger holders of land, such as insurance companies, banks in other sections of the country, corporations, holding companies and the like, all state they had many more calls for rent land than they could meet. Some local representatives said they had as many as ten to 25 calls for each property under their control.

Sales Are Made

It is said that a large number of sales of cultivated land have been made by insurance companies, savings banks and other corporations, to farmers who made payments of anywhere from a substantial cash down payment to the whole amount. Since last fall land has moved more freely than at any time in recent years. One or two real estate men have reported better sales of this type of land than since in 1927 and 1928.

Besides this sale, there has been a large sale of so-called "raw" land. Especially has this been true in Hockley, Cochran, Bailey, Lamb and parts of Lynn and other counties. Many large tracts of land have been sold out in these counties to tenants from other sections of Texas and from Oklahoma, as well as to farmers from this section.

Jack Thompson Punches Out Decision Over Mickey Dunivin At Armory

Crowded House Sees Dempsey Referee Bouts

Amarillo Middleweight Beats Oklahoman To Draw And Wins Judge's Decision; Bradford Kayoes Jimmie Wilson

Jack Thompson, blond scrapper from Amarillo, pounded out a decision over Mickey Dunivin, who billed last night from Pampa but who at other times claims Oklahoma City as his stomping grounds, in the 10-round main event of the National Guard's first boxing show at the Armory.

It was a good fight, fast and active. So fast in fact, that you could get odds of 3 to 1 in the third and fourth rounds that the fight would not go the route.

A packed house almost was attracted to the Armory last night, but the drawing credit can not go to Dunivin or Thompson or any or all of the eight boys on last night card.

Jack Dempsey, the Old Man Mauler himself, not looking nearly so old but still carrying the appearance of a mauler, was the magnet that drew 1,600 persons last night.

Dempsey was the third man in the ring for the prelim, the semi-windup and the main go. He received a loud ovation as he stepped into the ring to referee the Bradford-Wilson match, which resulted in the only knockout of the evening. Thereafter, Dempsey was kept humping about the ropes as the boys and girls and men and women warmed to his presence, recovered from their awe and hounded him for autographs. He autographed everything from scraps of waste paper to checks and gilt edged autograph books, never turning down a one as long as time allowed.

Wilson Takes Count

He made the usual glad-to-be-here speech and set about the business of counting out Jimmie Wilson, who in the second of a scheduled four-round preliminary, took a left jab to the jaw from Cecil Bradford and bettered the back of his noggin on the hard floor. He couldn't get up. Bradford got the worst of the first round, and Jimmie was getting better. Bradford's lucky punch probably saved the day for him.

Harry Guthrie, champion of Texas Tech's light heavies, and Joe Vernon, billed out of Amarillo, fought to a bloody six-round draw. Vernon weighed in at 167, Guthrie at 173. They banged each other about the head in the final rounds until their faces were gory with life blood, and each had an eye on the verge of closing up for the holidays as the battle ended.

Judges Julian Williamson and Claude Hutchinson called the Dunivin-Thompson a draw, basing their ruling on the simple process of addition that gave, according to their score cards, Thompson three rounds, the fifth, seventh and eighth, and Dunivin 2, the fourth and ninth. The others were called even.

The Avalanche-Journal tally counted the first for Mickey, the second for Thompson, the third and fourth even, the fifth, sixth, seventh and eight for Thompson, the ninth for Mickey and the last for Thompson.

Jack Eggs 'Em On

It might have been a slow fight, in fact they all might have been slow, had it not been for Dempsey's constant urging on. He had to warn the main eventers to keep fighting several times, and once threatened to stop the fight if they didn't get to work. The answer was action, in large quantities, and the lads' endurance was something at which to marvel.

Dunivin's long, left jabs found their mark often enough to keep it interesting, while Thompson threw in enough rights to keep the southpaw in a jam most of the way. The more seasoned fighter, Mickey appeared to have the early advantage, and was going stronger at the bell. Thompson shot his bolt in the middle rounds, absorbing a lot of punishment as each round started but winding up by charging in to catch Mickey with enough upper cuts and right crosses to win by a good margin. He was the same way in the final round, which he won by a nose, but was groggy at the gong.

Battling Shapo Wins

The curtain opener saw a brace of dusky boys flail away at each other until the final bell was a distinct relief to them as well as the fans. Battling Shapo, a 165-pound buck, won a decision over Chock Patterson, his briefer but battling 160-pound antagonist. They made the first three rounds easily enough, and slung enough leather to fill a boot factory. Luckily for both, neither landed an effective long distance punch.

Shapo started his would-be haymakers from the ankle, and swung wildly at his feinting opponent, who missed blows capable of flooring an army mule.

Although they failed to win a single Rocky Mountain conference basketball victory in 10 starts, the Bobcats of Montana State college were rated by Utah sports writers as probable title contenders next year.

Relaxed Dempsey Regales The Fight

"The Champ" Not Too Busy To Chew The Fat With Scrivener

Game And The Curse Of The Carnera

By COLLIER PARRIS
Avalanche Sports Editor

When you shake hands with Jack Dempsey you forget, for the moment, that you're shaking the hand that shook the hands of presidents, princes, kings, queens, counts and no-counts.

That's the kind of a personality Mr. Dempsey is, who may be William Harrison to court clerks and contract makers, but just plain Jack to you and you-all.

Even after an all-night drive from Dallas to the Hub of the Plains, he was as wide awake early yesterday afternoon as a college coach the night before the Big Game, but not nearly so high strung. To look at him closely and converse with him you'd gather that it would take more than a forthcoming battle royal against four Primo Carneras to give him a case of the jitters.

Strong And Healthy

His pores—and we saw plenty of 'em because he was nude from the waist up and ankles down when we bandied badinage yesterday — fairly exude with energy and personality, but not the nervous kind.

A description of the man Jack Dempsey? Well, when we sidled up to the door of his suite and was told to "Come in, Partner!" at Hotel Lubbock, he was wearing a mop of blue-black hair and a pair of slacks, nothing more, because he'd just had a shave. He was about to crowd a bathtub, but postponed this duty for half an hour. Lounging on a lounge, all 200 pounds of him (ah, you've gained, Jack), his handsome face (and you've gone pretty on us, too) lighted up as he started to talk about a subject not entirely foreign to him—boxing. He's an interesting person to talk with, to put it tritely.

And did we mention Primo Carnera above? Well, we shouldn't, at least in Dempsey's presence. Mention of the Eye-talian man mountain strikes no soft chords in Dempsey's system.

"You ask me what's the matter with the boxing game?" His voice reached a higher tempo. "Carnera and his handlers, that's what's the matter. That and—"

"Madison Square Garden," chanted in unison Dempsey and your's truly.

Grin And Take It

"But's what's to be done about the two of them, or the five of them?" we continue.

"Nothing, until somebody crowbars the tenacles of Madison Garden loose long enough to match Carnera with somebody his size, like Max Baer or Steve Hamas. But the Garden has things sewed up so tight in the Big Town that nobody can fight anybody without its permission, and it isn't going to permit anything as natural as a Baer-Carnera fight.

"And in the second place," the Champ goes on, "Primo's managers have him sewed up so's he can't fight if he could fight." (Catch the double meaning Oscar?) "They'll keep matching him with a flock of set ups like Loughran or somebody. Loughran could have knocked him out the other night if Loughran could break a pane of glass with a construction crane. Baer could floor him in the early moments. Hamas would knock the Facism out of him with one punch. What's the population here?"

"Twenty-five thousand, C. of C. figures," we tell him. "What's yours?"

"Two. Three in July, my own figures."

"Hope it's a boy, Jack."

"Thanks."

"What if it's a girl?"

"One actress in the family is enough. How far is from here to wherever you want to go, in any given direction?" he persists.

"Say, who's doin' this interviewin'? Who's the outstanding heavyweight just now? Max Baer, I thought so. And where do we go from here?"

Leaves Comeback Trail

"One thing's certain," he certifies, "No more of this comeback stuff for me. The legs, you know—the legs—Well, I'm in good shape from my hips up, and I could still go four or five rounds with any of 'em, but after that I'd get to wobbling like a dry sailor turned loose in Juarez."

It's true that Dempsey is no spring dominecker, any way you take him; he's medium young as the years toll on but past middle age as fighters go.

"What's the idea of gallivantin' around the country refereeing prize fights between palookas who don't know a right cross from a spare rib?"

"My public, pal, my public. It's an unwritten law that so-called celebrities must keep going, even if they have forgotten how to fight or dance the polka." He said this in a joking sort of way, then came on with: "I may get a chance to do something about the fight game sometime, and if I do, I want the people to know who I am. And there's been a depression, you know."

A Friend In Need

We asked him about his interest in Max Baer.

"I've nothing but a friendly interest in the boy. I did have a contract stipulating that I was to promote his next fight, but he turned from the drop-lights to the foot-lights and the contract expired. I've still got my friendly interest, and feel sure that I'll have something to say about his fight life, even if I can't direct his night life."

Dempsey rapped the manner in which fighters now train, a rapping echoed in these prints a few days ago, and contrasted the training camp of today with the training camp of Rickardian days.

"They don't know what it is to train now," he murmured reminiscently. "Boy, I used to get off to myself with a bunch of sparring partners and work for months before a fight, and the day when I didn't do 15 or 20 miles of roadwork was,—well, the roads must have been washed away. Now when a fighter trains two weeks he thinks he's ready to take on a couple of Willards in the preliminary and four Bengal tigers in the main go."

The conference was temporarily adjourned, to be resumed again at a five o'clock dinner at Hotel Hilton. Attending the stake-fest were Colonel Chas. A. Davis and Captain Ben Condray, officials of the National Guard unit here which promoted last night's fight and Dempsey's appearance; Marty Fiedler; Don Burger, manager Hotel Hilton; Sam Rosenthal and Marty Shupack, local merchants, and Howard B. Hutchinson, Dempsey's secretary, accent on the first syllable. William Harrison Dempsey also was there, leading the attack on choice portions of a young steer. And your humble servant entered the soup-inhaling contest.

Bill Pierce Is To Help Coach Head With Austin College Gridiron Club

SHERMAN, March 5. (Special) — Bill Pierce, brilliant Notre Dame guard and former St. Edwards line coach, has signed a contract to become assistant coach at Austin College for the 1934 gridiron season, it was announced by J. B. Head, Kangaroo mentor.

Pierce will assume his duties immediately and take charge of the Kangaroo line candidates now reporting for spring practice. He will probably devote special attention to candidates for the running guard berth.

The new assistant Kangaroo coach was one of the three regular guards on Knute Rockne's wonder team of 1930 which tackled one of the most difficult schedules ever undertaken by a grid team. The fighting Irish ran up a string of consecutive victories and clinched the national championship by defeating Southern California.

Played With Carideo

Running in the backfield of that famous Rambler team were Frank Carideo, Marchmont Schwartz, Joe Savoldi, Marty Brill and that fifth regular, Larry Mullins. Carideo was named for both the All-American eleven and the outstanding football player of that season.

Pierce won three varsity football letters and received a numeral as regular guard on the freshman team while attending the Irish institution. He was the fifth sophomore in the history of Notre Dame to receive a varsity letter.

Pierce received his first football training at Sherman High school, playing three years at guard and tackle under coaches Hugh Butler, Dutch Smith, and Wesley Bradshaw. He did not go out in his freshman year.

After his graduation from Notre Dame in June, 1932, Pierce joined Jack Chevigny at St. Edwards as line coach for the 1933 grid season. The two Rockne pupils tutored the Saints to a Texas conference championship last year.

Horned Frog Officials May Name Coach In Day Or Two

FORT WORTH, March 5. (AP)—No definite date for the meeting of the athletic committee of the Texas Christian university board of trustees to select a successor to Coach Francis Schmidt had been set Monday afternoon, according to Athletic Director L. C. (Pete) Wright. He said, however, that some action would be taken "in the next day or so."

It was revealed that Schmidt's resignation had been in the hands of T. C. U. officials since Saturday. He wired President E. M. Waits to that effect immediately after his appointment at Ohio State. Schmidt, who returned this morning from Columbus, conferred with both President Waits and Wright.

His request for a leive of absence during April to handle spring training at Ohio will be granted, it was indicated. He plans to return here in May and will move to Columbus about the middle of June.

Hagen-Creavy Team Leads In 4-Ball Joust

Perkins And Stonehouse Lose To Walter And Tom Who Are To Meet Smith And Runyan In International Title Race

(By The Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla., March 5.—Finishing their closely-fought match in the rain, Walter Hagen, the Detroit veteran, and young Tom Creavy of Albany, N. Y., beat Phil Perkins of Cleveland and Ralph Stonehouse of Indianapolis, two up, today on the 36th hole of their second round match in the international four-ball golf championship.

This qualified Hagen and Creavy to meet the defending champions, Horton Smith of Chicago and Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., in tomorrow's semi-finals. Smith and Runyan, breaking the tournament record this morning with a 62, ten under par, were 15 under par altogether for 31 holes as they trounced Al Watrous and Mortie Dutra of Detroit 6 and 5.

Denny And Al Win

Denny Shute of Philadelphia, holder of the British open title, combined dazzling display of golf to eliminate the "seeded" entry of Willie MacFarlane and Johnny Revolta, 4 and 3. Shute and Espinosa had a 66 this morning and were eight under par for 15 holes this afternoon, finishing with ten consecutive threes.

Wild Bill Mehlhorn and Wiffy Cox, the Brooklyn veterans, won the right to the other semi-final berth and will play the Shute-Espinosa team tomorrow. They defeated Henry Ciuci and Mike Turnesa, young Metropolitan district pair, 3 and 2, in a hard fought match.

Carnera Places Wreath On Grave Of Young Stribling

MACON, Ga., March 5. (AP)—Up a green-carpeted hill to a pine-studed knoll Primo Carnera plodded his way today to place a wreath on the grave of W. L. (Young) Stirbling.

Here to take part in a memorial program honoring the Georgia fighter, the world's heavyweight champion went to the cemetery accompanied by "Pa" Stribling, who served as manager and trainer for "W. L."

Placing the wreath with the inscription "to my dearest friend from his sincerest admirer" on the grave the man mountain turned with tears in his eyes to embrace "Pa."

Twice Carnera met Stribling in the ring—winning one engagement and losing one.

Jack Woods Plans Comeback In Go With Clingman

Ken Gaston, powerfully-built middleweight from Roswell and former student at Texas Tech wrestles Dorry Detton, of Lubbock, tomorrow night in the main three-fall event of the grappling program at the Auditorium arena.

Otis Clingman, one of the mightiest matmen of this circuit, meets Sailor Jack Woods, of Littlefield, in the thirty minute time limit special event.

Sailor Jack, who looked bad last week in a prelim, is out to redeem himself this week by taking a crack at Clingman, who is himself an ex-gob. Both Clingman and Woods are claimants to navy wrestling titles, so they should have an added incentive tomorrow evening for making a battle of it.

Kodrick vs. Heard

The pocket edition Hercules, Louis Koderick, of Strasburg, Austria, returns to Lubbock for the second time, meeting little Charley Heard, of San Antonio, in the curtain-raiser which may very easily swing the show.

Koderick looks and acts enough like Dutch Mantell to be his son. Always with a plug-ugly expression on his face and very unorthodox in his tactics, the little Austrian's performance here a few weeks ago was greeted with almost as many barnyard noises as an appearance of the Amarillo Apeman provokes.

Welterweights are scarce in this section, but in Heard, Koderick will find a very suitable opponent.

A close battle, with Detton a slight favorite, is expected in the main event. Gaston is a swift and dangerous wrestler, but he is not as full of tricks as Dorry.

Matty Bell Greets 40 Men As SMU Training Begins

DALLAS, March 5. (AP) — Forty candidates for the 1934 Southern Methodist university gridiron teams drew uniforms today, met their new line coach, Madison A. Bell, and ran through a light limbering up drill as they opened annual spring training.

Ray Morrison, head coach of the Mustangs, called his linemen up by positions in order that Bell, who is leaving Texas A. and M., might see what material he will have for his forward wall next fall. Bell expressed satisfaction with the prospects and told the squad he was proud to be associated with it.

Holdout Dean

Paul Not Just An Ordinary Hurler

BRADENTON, Fla., March 5. (AP) Paul Dean, brother of the "great Dizzy," who fondly admits that "Paul is even greater than I am, if that's possible," is a determined holdout from the St. Louis Cardinals.

Paul, who won 22 and lost only seven games, pitching last year for Columbus of the American association, arrived here yesterday at the Cards training camp in the company of brother Jerome Herman Dean, alias "Dizzy."

Dizzy did the talking. He explained that the Red Birds offered Paul "the same salary the club offered to other young pitchers and Paul ain't an ordinary pitcher."

Paul, according to the official Dean spokesman, has a job lined up in a mill at Houston, and will go back to Texas if an adequate salary is not forthcoming from the Cardinals.

Princeton's Great Runer In Thrilling Finish To Overtake Field And Beat Gene Venzke At New York

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK, March 5. — Princeton's great runner, Bill Bonthron, far back in the pack for most of the distance, came with a rush in the final lap tonight to win the intercollegiate indoor 1500-meter title by two meters in a driving finish with Gene Venzke, Pennsylvania sophomore.

Loping along as if just out for a practice warm-up through most of the race, with Venzke setting the pace far out in front, Bonthron turned on the heat in the final two laps to catch the Pennsylvanian and break the tape in the unimpressive time of 3 minutes 57.4 seconds, four and two tenths seconds behind the world record set by Glenn Cunningham of Kansas, in defeating the Princetonian in the National championships February 24.

Lott And Barnes Go Motoring — It's A Breath-Taking Tale!

By NEA Service

ALTHOUGH Bruce Barnes, the lanky pro netter now playing with Bill Tilden's troupe, will deny it, the following yarn is told by some of his pals as being honest to gosh:

George Lott, the cleft-chinned Chicago veteran, was taking the Texan on a tour of New York. Lott was driving his gas buggy and started through the Holland tunnel. He told Mr. Barnes that the proper thing to do was to hold one's breath throughout the 9250 feet of the tunnel, because carbon monoxide gas, released through the car's exhaust, would be fatal if breathed into the lungs.

Barnes, not knowing the length of the tunnel, fell for the yarn and nearly burst before he hazarded a breath. And did George get a great big laugh!

OPTOMETRY

The Progress Of Optical Science

Our great National Educational Optometric Program is aimed to remedy the evils of apathy and lack of knowledge, which have long formed a barrier between optometry and the public. We bring to you every month a message on optometry in relation to better vision care. It is part of our national educational program to bring to the public a clearer understanding of the conservation of vision. We all know that too many people postpone attention to their vision until emergency forces them to do so, and that but slow progress is being made in the vital matter of proper attention to the eyes of children.

Optometry shall never stoop to quarrel with any others who are engaged in the treatment of visual disorders. Our purposes are entirely constructive; our aim is solely to enlighten every man, woman, and child concerning this great profession of Optometry, and the importance of the conservation of vision. As our educational program infringes more and more upon public consciousness and as the public is brought to understand the true importance of conserving vision, people will seek the services of qualified optometrists in constantly increasing numbers. Optometry does not maintain the defensive, but is putting forth every effort to take the offensive—to assume a rightful place in the sun of public acceptance and esteem.

The Optometrist is often asked to explain the basic fundamenals that are envolved in the practice of Optometry. Like the practice of medicine, surgery, or dentristy, Optometry is a separate and distinct profession, devoted exclusively to the conservation of vision and the correction of visual defects. Another principal characteristic of the Optometrist is that he uses no drugs in his practice. The Optometrist determines by the skillful use of scientific instruments whether or not vision is normal. He examines the eye, not while it is under the influence of drugs or drops, but rather while it is in its normal state. He not only measures the degree of any existing defects in vision, but he determines whether eyes are visually efficient. When the Optometrist has completed an examination of the eyes—an examination which is scientific and trustworthy and which gives full and accurate information concerning the refractive condition of the eyes—he prescribes suitable lenses or other measures to correct the condition he finds abnormal. After such an examination the patient goes about his duties without having to wait long hours for the effect of drugs or drops to wear off.

Optometry's mission is that of rendering highly specialized service in determining the accommodative and refractive states of the eye and the scope of its functions in general.

Urgent School Needs

MEMBERS of the House Education Committee have been told by school authorities from various parts of the nation that at least $100,000,000 in federal money must be appropriated if public schools are to function properly in the 1934-35 session.

There certainly have been enough calls on Uncle Sam's purse in the last year to justify one in suspecting any new call to the most strict scrutiny.

But it does not take very long to demonstrate that this plea for money for the schools is one which thoroughly is justified.

The full effects of the depression have been slow in hitting the schools. Whereas the worst of the depresson now is past, its full force just is beginning to hit the school system. School revenues this year are lower than they were last year; next year they will be lower still.

We cannot permit our school system to collapse. If federal funds are needed to carry the system, federal funds must be voted—generously.

SOLVED HIS OWN PROBLEMS

Striking is the case of Edward Dwyer, of Weymouth, Mass. Mr. Dwyer is a dairy farmer. At 31 he stands out as a conspicuous example of what initiative and intelligence and close application to work can do in the achievement of success.

His case came to public attention the other day when the Massachusetts state department of agriculture honored him for his "creditable accomplishments in dairying."

In a day when all branches of farming are crying for aid and the government is supplying this in increasing quantities, and when unrest in some agricultural sections is taking the form of mob violence, the case of the Massachusetts dairyman is deserving of more than ordinary attention. Mr. Dwyer began farming in 1915. He made his start with one cow, and today owns 75 head of cattle, 1,000 swine, seven horses and 800 hens.

His sow had a family, which Dwyer sold and, with the proceeds, bought a cow. With the cow's milk he started a small delivery route among his neighbors. Then from his father he borrowed a little money and enlarged his herd, meanwhile graduating from the Norfolk county agricultural school.

He probably still has his problems, but in reaching his present stage of success he demonstrated an ability for dealing with such things that must give him a very satisfying feeling of confidence in the future.

SUPER-HIGHWAYS

When the economic crash came and all government found itself bankrupt or perilously near the brink it was thought that the days of costly public improvements, such as great highway systems, were over for many years. Two years ago the prospect for a further and immediate extension of state systems of hard-surface roads were dark indeed.

Had anyone predicted two years ago that the depression woud have just the opposite effect on public construction the world would have called him crazy and laughed at his hallucinations. And yet such a propheey would have found realization.

Back in the good old days when it was thought federal, state, county and municipal governments were borrowing money like Allies and spending it faster not even the country's wealthiest state, New York, could afford four trans-state trunk-line highways wide enough to permit separation of truck and passenger traffic on four broad lanes. Today the federal government is seriously considering financing such a project as a part of its reemployment program.

Segregation of slow truck traffic to speed up passenger traffic and reduce congestion to a minimum will come in time. There are relatively few highways wide enough to permit it now but they must be built before a new era of prosperity puts millions of new cars, trucks and buses on the roads, if the highways are not to lose their usefulness.

Living is cheaper in some ways. People used to pay $1.50 to see gals dressed as they are now.

POSSESSED BY THE LORD

Our lack of belief in this statement is seen by the attitude of most of us Protestants. We go to church to be persuaded by a preacher of the existence of God in this universe. We need the lesson of our more ritualistic brethern who go to Church to meet the living Presence, rather than to be convinced of His existence.

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By George Durno

COULD it be that Professor Rexford Guy Tugwell is on those gently teetering skids that ease a man out of New Deal official life yet keep him on as a potent "unofficial advisor?"

Lest you have forgotten the fact this keen-featured, handsome gentleman with grey-flecked hair is assistant secretary of agriculture. He rates No. 1 among the principal brain trusters. He is champion of the very moot new bill to regulate foods, drugs and cosmetics. He's a high disciple of the group opposed to any and all price-fixing in codes. Tugwell shortly is to be on his way to Puerto Rico at the head of an economic mission to determine how best that island can pull its shoes on over its stocking feet.

A heavy negative shout undoubtedly will go up in high official quarters against the imputation that Tugwell is slipping out of the official picture. Still if he should be the chances are better than even he will continue to catch a favorable ear off and on at the White House though with none of the publicity attending his present job.

Yet there is unmistakable handwriting on the wall. If it means what it says some powerful undercover influences in the national capital figuratively will be at the dock to give him a joyful send-off.

FIGHTS: Attached to what might be called the Tugwell case are certain significant incidents.

First this irrepressible member of the Columbia faculty decided to fashion himself a piece of legislation that would take up all the slack in the old Wiley Foods & Drugs Act. He has succeeded in stirring up a lobby against the idea that it must be costing millions to support. And the fight shows every sign of being successful.

Secondly the professor got himself into the thick of the AAA fight between Secretary of Agriculture Wallace and George Peek over code formulas for foodstuffs.

The borers-from-within have been widening both these openings in their favor.

EXITS: A large disclaimer went up when Prof. Ray Moley went out of the official picture by much the same exit as seems to be yawning for Tugwell.

Moley was "temporarily detached" from his duties as Assistant Secretary of State to make a crime survey. As a well qualified expert in the abstract phases he could have done the job in a week yet his report still waits to be made public.

From previous study Tugwell probably knows the cures for Puerto Rico's woes as well as Moley knows crime.

FAT: General Johnson has another surprise package for the several thousand industrial gentlemen assembled here to tinker with the codes.

The knowing say an executive order is about to be issued—either from the White House or blue eagle headquarters—telling all code authorities to trot out audits of their books. Strange rumors have trickled into Washington that some of the high code authorities have been drawing down exorbitant salaries and expense accounts.

Enough scandal has already developed in CWA and PWA to suit Democratic tastes. Those in power wouldn't like it a bit if at some subsequent date it leaked out that those directing industry's self-constituted reconstruction agencies were reconstructing their own private wellfare at the expense of NRA.

The General has been trying to limit code authority salaries to $10,000. They say at the main station reports come in that in some industries this figure is being vastly exceeded.

NOTES: The United States, Great Britain and Japan are feeling their way toward a naval conference next year. . . . Administration officials don't favor $500,000,000 for schools and education as demanded by National Education association. . . . They say relief must come first. . . . Publishers are pricking up their ears at Senator Schall's assertion that the proposed new communications law would pave the way for censorship of news dispatches. . . . President George Peek says export-import banks will not accept foreign paper in financing trade but will extend credit on domestic securities only. . . . How to help Cuba buy American silver is worrying him. . . . Don't pay too much attention to hullabaloo over NRA codes—the real fight will not come until next session of Congress. . . . Republican politicians say that western Pennsylvania is entitled to a Senator and that Dave Reed suits the Philadelphia organization—so they kiss Pinchot good-bye.

NEW YORK
By James McMullin

LOCAL conservatives are viewing-with-alarm in a big way about the possible effects of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill on industry. They claim it would confer on the Federal Trade Commission dictatorial powers that should make NRA and AAA blush for shame and leave Mussolini himself a piker by comparison.

They figure it this way: Any corporation not privately owned must be listed on a recognized exchange to protect its stockholders. As the bill stands, listing will be granted only on condition that the corporation binds itself in advance to abide by any ruling of the F. T. C. Then the Trade Commission gets authority to suspend trading in any issue for any cause it considers proper. Suspension of trading—under modern market conditions—might not be a death sentence but would be at least equivalent to solitary confinement on bread and water.

"The Commision thereby has power to fix salaries, to force changes of management, to compel compliance with government labor policies, to do any darn thing to industry it pleases. Why, they could suspend trading if they didn't like the color of a corporation president's hair."

BACK-DOWN: Business leaders are irked most by introduction of what they call a revolutionary move as a mere rider to a bill to regulate Exchanges. "Naturally the public is all for regulation and the opposition of Whitney and his tribe only convinces them they're right. But where do we get off?"

There's a lot of private mobilization of sentiment on these lines and future objections from industry will be much more heated than those registered by Henry I. Harriman of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce—and by the National Association of Manufacturers. A major dog-fight is in the making unless Washington backs down on the issue. Several New York insiders predict that Washington will duck rather than jeopardize its drive to stimulate private initiative.

Of course there's the Constitution to fall back on if all else fails and some corporation lawyers are already laying plans on those lines. But there would be plenty of market fireworks before the case was settled if it ever got that far.

PROTEST: General Johnson isn't going to get his 36-hour week without a protest. Various industrial interests are quietly loading up with bricks to heave when the time is ripe.

Figures by the ream will be issued to prove that industry can't survice a 36-hour week—that it would destroy the profit incentive. A special point will be made of the National Industrial Conference Board's estimate that prices rose by only 3.6 per cent from July to December of last year while labor cost per unit of product went up by 54.3 per cent.

But impartial experts agree that the comparison isn't entirely fair. July prices represented the peak of the summer boom while labor costs had not begun to rise appreciably at that time. A comparison of December with almost any other month would show less of a discrepancy. It's safe to assume that the President and General Johnson know this. It's more than possible that the government will produce offsetting figures of its own.

REBUTTAL: For instance it's simple to show—from earnings statements for the last half of '33—that the rise in labor costs didn't seriously interfere with profits up to that time. Of course a further advance in labor costs might hurt more proportionate but industry will have to be doggoned ingenious to prove it.

Married Flirts

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY MORELL and TOM WEAVER are married the same day as LILA HOTALING and DEREK BLISS. Lila expects to live in luxury, while Gypsy intends to go on with her job, teaching in a settlement school.

On the first night Gypsy and Tom spend in their New York apartment VERA GRAY, an old friend of Tom's, telephones. Later Vera calls and she and Gypsy dislike each other.

Weeks later Lila and Derek return from their European honeymoon. Lila invites the Weavers to dinner. Among the guests is wealthy MARKO BROUGHTON, who once acked Gypsy to marry him He showers her with attentious which she accepts because she is jealous of Tom's interest in HILDA BLANCHARD.

After the party Tom and Gypsy quarrel, but peace is restored. They spend a week-end with Gypsy's parents, and SUE CANAVAN, an old friend of Gypsy's, calls with her cousin, HUNT GIBSON.

NOW ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XI

The streets were full of scurrying crowds. Already, although it was early afternoon, the lamps were lighted, moons glowing in a blue dusk. All along the avenue these lamps made a chain and, people hurrying past through the snow, scuffled on without noticing. The shop windows were gay with tinsel and ribboned boxes and glittering things to eat and to wear. There were skis and white woolly sweaters and necklaces and bracelets and boxes of candied fruit and here a whole windowful of peanut brittle, magnificently turned out of a gilded barrel. For a dollar you could buy a frilled collar or a book or a string of imitation pearls or an artificial orchid.

The trouble was, Tom Weaver wanted none of these. He wandered along, with his coat collar up, staring and puzzling about what to get Gypsy. She should have (he thought) that delicious silvery squirrel coat in the corner shop. She should have a glittering string of real jawels to adorn her pretty throat. And he groaned to himself for a stupid fol because he could not buy her these things. For there was the rent to be thought of, and the monthly bills, and the first of January staring you in the face.

Christmas! Oh, it would be a glorious thing if a man could go out with his hand in his pocket and buy what he saw—this and this and this—without ever asking the cost or counting it afterward! Only the trouble was, some of us have to consider the landlord and the grocer and the tailor. We'd love to make a grand gesture, Tom told himself, only we're worms and wage slaves and we haven't brains enough to corral enough money to do it.

He was discontented. Christmas ought to be a time to make folks happy, but it didn't affect Tom that way. When he had been younger and the sum of happiness had been bound up in a pair of skates or a train of cars or boots with a Boy Scout knife thrown in, then life had been simpler. Now he was grown, he had a young and lovely wife and he was too poor to get her the sort of gift her youth and beauty deserved.

So he trudged along, staring moodily into first this window and then that one. Christmas was only four days away and still he had nothing for Gypsy. Ten dollars—fifteen—twenty—that was the very most he could spend. He felt cheap and mean. He considered perfume, but the bottle he wanted was too small. He went into shop after shop, getting, in his male fashion, more and more depressed and bewildered. Women—it was funny!—seemed to love the business of shopping. They elbowed and pushed and reached around other people's shoulders, snatching "specials" from the bargain counters.

At last he bought her a bottle of scent—mimosa, it was—and a book she had been wanting and a pair of gloves, long, sleek, white ones. Christmas morning he would add roses and her favorite candy. But he was still dissatisfied. His mood of discouragement hung over him. It was a half day at the office. He had nothing further to do and Gypsy herself was shopping. But he was not conscious of the Christmas spirit. He was disgusted with himself for not being a captain of finance—like Marko Broughton.

Meantime, Gypsy went briskly about her purchasing. She had things for Mums and Daddy and the twins. She had a resplendent rose crepe kimona for Clytie. But Tom? He was last on her list, because closest and best beloved. He needed—oh, everything! Socks and ties and shirts and gloves. But what prosaic things, thought Gypsy, humorously, to put on the altar of the loved one!

What she wanted, really, was to buy him one of those wafer-thin platinum watches. He carried his father's heavy old one and it stuck when you tried to open it. She wanted to buy him an opulent blue satin dressing gown, so that he might look like a second-act hero. She wanted to buy him a top hat, because he would look well in one, and Derek Bliss owned one. But how?

After a while she got dreadfully tired. During the early part of the afternoon the crowds had given her a sense of mild exhilaration. But now that feeling had dwindled and she was conscious mainly of an ache in her shoulder and of immense fatigue. You were pulled this way and that. You never knew which way you were going. The crowd sucked you in and drew you along like the tide.

Somehow she found herself in a little corner sweet-shop. It was more expensive than those she usually patronized but she was actually too tired to go any farther at the moment. In a corner, behind a screen of greenery, an orchestra played softly. Waitresses in smart yellow uniforms flitted to and fro with laden trays. A tall, exquisitely dressed young woman beckoned

Enlargement Campaign Being Staged; Representatives Of 15 Churches Are Gathering Each Afternoon

An associational-wide Baptist Sunday school enlargement campaign is being conducted this week with headquarters at First Baptist church, according to announcement of J. D. Riddle, educational director of that institution. Representatives from 15 churches are to meet each afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church for assignments made by Rev. J. W. Lites of Dallas. Schools are being conducted at the various churches each evening.

Forty workers representing 10 churches met at the First Baptist church for conferences Monday afternoon. The first courses of study were to begin last night.

Enlarge Enrollments

One of the objectives of the campaign is to enlarge church school enrollments, Mr. Riddle said.

Directors in the courses at local churches, who will discuss methods of teaching, will be Dr. W. F. Fry, who will be at College Avenue Baptist church, the Rev. Dee Carpenter at the Calvary Baptist church and Mr. Riddle at First church.

Others In Campaign

In addition to the three local Baptist churches in the campaign, churches from the following places are being entered: Abernathy, Acuff, Estacado, Fairview, Idalou, Levelland, Liberty, Lorenzo, Post, Shallowater, Southland and Witharral.

Commencement exercises are scheduled for next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the First Baptist church. At this time a banner will be presented to the church that makes the highest percentage in enrollment in the classes in proportion to the church membership.

Checking Of Hog Contracts Is Started By Committee

Checking of hog contracts was begun Monday by the county committee and at the same time it was announced Wednesday was the dead line for all contracts, W. T. Dawdy, chairman, said.

Mr. Dawdy said he estimated approximately 450 contracts to reduce the number of hogs, would be signed and approved. Members of the committee are, J. A. Russell, Union and Owen Powell, Becton.

County Agent P. T. Montfort said he believed a total of 6,000 or more hogs would be sold to the secretary of agriculture. This will bring into the county slightly over $30,000.

Good Increase In Business Reported By Santa Fe Agent

A substantial increase in passenger business for February, 1934 over the corresponding month in 1933 is reported for Lubbock by F. Pancher, division passenger agent of the Santa Fe. New low fares, in effect since December, have added to the passenger business both in volume of traffic handled and in revenue income, Mr. Kancher said. Freight business is holding its own and is showing an increase, the rail official added. With recent rains stimulating wheat growth and enabling farmers to begin spring planting, Mr. Kancher said he believed there would be a general increase in business all over this section.

THE SON OF TARZAN, No. 32

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

That which filled the lad with excitement was the fresh spoor of men—of white men, for among the prints of naked feet were the outlines of shoes. The trail marked the passage of a good-sized company headed north, probably toward some coast settlement, the boy thought. He was all eagerness to be off in pursuit. The old ape objected. He wanted nothing of men. To him the lad was a fellow ape, for he was the son of the king of apes. He tried to dissuade the boy, but without success. A few hours later they came upon the rear guard of the white men's caravan he was so anxious to overtake. Stumbling along the tangled trail of those ahead, a dozen heavily laden blacks were being prodded mercilessly forward. On each side of them walked two giants, blond white men, both using heavy whips on the naked backs of the poor natives. The boy's cry of greeting died on his lips. Even the great ape growled beneath his breath at the useless torture being inflicted. "So these are the creatures you would go with?" he muttered to the lad. "They ARE fiends," replied the boy, "but I will ask them where is the nearest port, and then, Akut, we can leave them." So saying he swung to the ground, starting at a brisk walk toward the "safari." He was a hundred yards away, perhaps, when one of the whites caught sight of him. The man gave a shout of alarm, instantly levelling his rifle upon the boy and firing. The bullet struck just in front of its mark, scattering turf and leaves against the boy's legs. A second later the others were firing hysterically at him. Jark leaped into a tree, unhurt, the ape climbing excitedly after him. As the two disappeared, so quickly and in such manner, the white men and natives huddled together to determine just what to do.

"HOW DEAR TO MY HEART
ARE THE SCENES OF MY CHILDHOOD
WHEN FOND RECOLLECTIONS PRESENT THEM TO VIEW."

As we type these lines how vividly do the once familiar objects, associated with my younger days, troop by, as they come from memory's store house. The old china berry tree, where the robins fed in the winter; the old locust tree, where the mocking bird sat while he warbled his love songs to his nesting mate; the little pasture, where grazed my pony and the calves; the old rambling house, where Mother, busy always, had a smile for her boy. It was not much of a house, but, it was home, it was ours. There's no other place comparable.

Are you one who can recall those childhood days and sing the song which is quoted in part above, wiping the tear from the eye, the tear which only joy from sweet memories bring forth? We will plan you the kind of home your children will rejoice in recalling, many years hence.

WIN

A Month's Free Ticket to The Lindsey or Palace

Look in Sunday's Avalanche-Journal, on the Amusement page (Page 6, Section 2) and you will find the Calendar for March, showing all pictures to be at the Lindsey, Palace, and Texan theaters.

This calendar names such pictures as "Roman Scandals," "Hold That Girl," "Wild Cargo," "Orient Express," "Lady Killer," and many others. You must make "funny" sentences from these titles, for example:

"Jimmy, The Gent" took "Queen Christina" a "Gallant Lady" dressed in "Fashions of 1934," to see her "Long Lost Father," "David Harum." They met the "Meanest Gal in Town" and several other "Little Women" trying to get from "Broadway to Hollywood," etc.

The entries will be judged from the standpoint of neatness, originality, uniqueness, and number of titles used.

The person submitting the BEST entry will receive ONE Guest Ticket to the Lindsey Theater, which will entitle the bearer to see all pictures shown at the Lindsey in March, while the person submitting the second-best entry will receive ONE guest ticket to the Palace for all the month of March.

CORRECTION
Due to error in Sunday's Avalanche-Journal we stated that each winner would receive TWO GUEST TICKETS—this was incorrect, as each winner will receive ONE guest ticket.

All entries must be at the Avalanche-Journal Classified Ad Department before 6 P. M. Tuesday, March 6th.

Five Dead In House Flames

Official Announcement Made By Coroner's Jury Countered; All Killed At Hands Of Parties Unknown

LAURENS, S. C., March 5. (AP) — A coroner's jury here today countered an official announcement that J. L. Rush, 62, killed his wife and three daughters and then committed suicide, with a verdict that all five died "at the hands of parties unknown."

The bodies of Rush, his wife, Cynthia, 45, and Ruth, 47, Ruby, 14, and Helen, 11, were discovered just before dawn when flames enveloped their house.

Evidence as to how Rush died was meager, but others all had suffered crushed heads, and an iron bar was found nearby.

Rush's suitcase, containing money and insurance policies on various members of the family, was found in an outbuilding which was not touched by the fire.

One theory advanced at the inquest was that the aged man had slain his family, removed the valuables and then set the house on fire, becoming a victim of his own torch through a heart attack.

CAR IS RECOVERED

A 1929 Ford coach that W. A. Izard, the owner, of 1712 Texas avenue, reported late Sunday as stolen, was found about the 1300-block Avenue A early Monday, police reported Monday night. The automobile was not damaged, although a tire, believed to have been ruined by carrying a load while flat, was missing, police said.

Stocks

WALL STREET REPORT

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, March 5.—Trading in the stock exchange came close to a stalemate today.

A few tobacco and non-ferrous metal issues received a little bullish attention, but on the whole price changes were narrow, and the day's turnover of 987,490 shares was the smallest since January 9.

The price average of 90 representative issues sagged .4 of one point, but the bond market held about steady. Commodities were quiescent. Grains sagged fractionally; cotton was barely changed. But silver futures slid off .25 to .45 of a cent an ounce, despite concurrent strength of mining stocks.

President Roosevelt's NRA address was the outstanding event of financial news, and the securities markets, although hesitant, seemed inclined to take the longer range now of the president's challenge to industry to shorten working hours and increase wages.

While would-be profiteers could take no comfort from the president's program of increasing payrolls, and preventing monopolistic price-fixing, there was scant disposition to sell securities in response to his address.

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, March 5. (AP)—Cotton fluctuated uncertainly today dipping early and recovering later to close steady one to five points net higher. Trading was comparatively quiet as traders marked time on expected Washington developments particularly action on the Bankhead bill.

The opening was easier as Liverpool cables came in rather lower than due. First trades here showed losses of 6 to 7 points.

Later in the morning the market rallied 9 to 10 points mainly on shorts covering, but trading continued quiet. After fluctuating narrowly, the market became more active and firmer in the late trading owing to some advance in stocks. Prices made new highs for the day at 12.23 for May, 12.34 for July and 12.46 for October, or 14 to 16 points up from the lows of the morning. There was a slight reaction at the end of 1 to 4 points on realizing. May closed at 12.19, up 4 points net, July at 12.32, up 5 points net, and October at 12.45, up 1 point net.

Port receipts 10,906, for week 17,509, for season 6,515,039, last season 7,364 200. Exports 23,145, for week 40,095, for season 5,577,357, last season 5,684,887. Port stock 3,349,774, last year 4,470,693. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 136,004, last year 116,952. Spot sales at southern markets 11,337, last year bank holiday.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, March 5. (AP)—Trading in cotton was comparatively quiet today and prices moved within a range of some 10 or 15 points. After selling off to 12.23 for July during the morning, prices steadied up on covering and trade buying, advancing to 12.36 for that position in the later trading. July closed at 12.33 with the general market closing steady 4 points net higher to 1 point lower.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 2 to 6 points in response to relatively easy Liverpool cables, general business seemed to be restricted by uncertainty over the cotton control bill, and the market was narrow enough to be influenced by comparatively small orders during the greater part of the day. Initial offerings were readily absorbed by trade or commission house buying but moderate bulges met increased realizing or liquidation following an easier turn in the stock market, and prices sagged to 12.11 for May and 12.37 for October or about 6 points below Saturday's closing quotations. The decline was checked by trade buying at these prices and the market promoted by reports that a special rule was being sought in the house for early consideration of the Bankhead bill and steadier tone in the later stock market. May sold up to 12.23 and October to 12.50 making net advances of 5 to 8 points, but closing prices were 3 or 4 points off from the best on most positions.

Exports today were 23,145 making 5,695,411 so far this season. Port receipts 10,906. U. S. port stock 3,345,775.

Livestock

KANSAS CITY REPORT

KANSAS CITY, March 5. (AP)—Most all classes of livestock sold on an unevenly lower basis at midwestern markets today. Increased receipts and an unsettled dressed beef trade were depressing factors to the trade on steers and yearlings. Best yearlings offered scored 7.50 at Chicago and at St. Joseph choice 1185 lb. long yearlings reached 7.00. At Kansas City, eight loads of medium grade 1278 lb. Texas steers sold at 5.00. An 111-head of lightweight Texas steers of good quality brought 5.80; most steers around the circuit sold in a range of 4.50@5.50. Some choice stock calves averaging 364 lbs. went at 5.95 at Kansas City.

Trade in hogs was very uneven. Government orders and outside demand for lightweight hogs took a small share of averages under 240 lbs. at steady to 15 higher rates on the early rounds. Big supplies went at weak to 25 lower prices. A load of choice 500 lb. averages at Chicago brought 3.85.

The market on lambs was very slow at generally 25 to 40 lower prices. Bulk of the good and choice wooled skins ranged from 9.00@9.50 but some held higher. Aged stock was scarce and little changed.

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, March 5. (AP)—Hogs 2,100. Truck hogs steady; rail hogs 15 to 20 cents lower; top 4.50; part load good to choice 285 pound rail butchers 4.50; 175-270 pound truck hogs 4.50; 150 to 170 pound averages 4.00@4.45; packing sows 4.00.

Cattle 1,700; calves 900; lower grades slaughter cows around 25c lower; other classes cattle and calves mostly steady; several loads fed steers 4.25@5.10; better grades fed yearlings 4.75@5.50; few good fat cows 3.00; good heavy fat calves on short yearling order up to 5.25.

Sheep 1,200; receipts mostly shorn fed lambs selling steady to 25c lower; medium to good shorn fat lambs 7.00@7.25; fleshy wooled feeder lambs 7.60.

Grains

FORT WORTH REPORT

FORT WORTH, March 5. (AP)—Demand on the Fort Worth cash grain market was slow as the new week opened.

Prices ranged as follows, basis car loads on track at Fort Worth, freight paid to delivery point:

Delivered Texas Gulf ports, export rate, or Texas common points, wheat: No. 1 hard 93 1-4@94 3-4. Barley No. 2 nominally 56@57; No. 3 nominally 55@56. Sorghums No. 2 milo per hundred pounds nominally 1.14@1.16; No. 3 milo nominally 1.12@1.14; No. 2 kafir nominally 95@96; No. 3 kafir nominally 93@94.

Delivered Texas common points or group three: corn No. 2 white 66 1-2@67; No. 2 yellow 65@65 1-2. Oats No. 2 red 43 1-2@44 1-2; No. 3 red 42 1-2@43 1-2.

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, March 5. (AP)—A moderate sag in grain prices today accompanied President Roosevelt's NRA address.

Little else than the president's talk attracted notice among traders, and the sag of values was in general ascribed to scattered selling based on assumption that nothing which he said seemed to apply directly to grain markets. A fresh decrease of the United States wheat visible supply helped to give relative steadiness to prices toward the last.

Washington announcement of supreme court refusal to review decisions against suspension of the Chicago board of trade as a contract market came too late to affect prices today.

Wheat closed easy at the same as Saturday's finish to 1-2 cent lower, corn 1-8 to 1-4 down, oats 3-8 to 1-2 off, and provisions unchanged to 1 decline.

most fun? I'm just excited to death."

Howe The Originator

The idea for the day came from Howe, editor and publisher of the Amarillo News and Globe.

Mrs. Donald was adjudged the stateliest and most beautiful. Mrs. W. R. Gann, 34, was the youngest. Mrs. Bowles was adjudged the "most" mother-in-law with 16 living "in-laws"—five here, five in Abilene; five in California and one in Kansas. She is 68 and her oldest child 54 and the youngest 22. Mrs. Rose Jasper Nickell, Amarillo poet, won first prize for the best tribute.

Registrations for the day were not tabulated finally but it was estimated that 2,000 attended.

Praise Is Given

James O. Guleke, member of the state board of education, said in tribute:

"Those of us who have been privileged to enjoy the benign influence of a good woman, the mother of our mate, and the grandmother of our children, are fortunate indeed. She is more than a mother—a mother plus—supplying all of the love and devotion that is nurtured in a mother's heart, willing to assume tasks where others fail, supplying good counsel and advice gleaned from experience.

"To her we accord the highest respect; to her we extend tender devotion and we all pledge our watchful care to guard against word or deed that may detract from her heritage so justly earned, the position of mother-in-law."

with sales at residences and dives, a majority of the officers agreed.

An increase in sale of home-made beer, a brew of greater alcoholic content than 3.2, also was anticipated.

Metcalfe Asks Tips

With enforcement of the beer law in the business district likely to push beer back into "joints and dives," and with an increase in the number of irreputable sales places probable, Chief of Police Metcalfe earlier Monday asked that citizens learning of beer operations in their neighborhoods so inform him. Confidences of such informers will be respected, he said.

With addition Monday of votes of Caldwell, Becton, Woodrow, and McClung, the last four of the county's 33 precincts to report, an unofficial tabulation showed a total of 2,996 votes against and 2,199 for legalization of sale of 3.2 beer in Saturday's election.

Although 37 ballots were cast at McClung, one was voided because it was unmarked, and the remaining 36 were evenly divided, 18 to 18, an election judge said.

Results of Monday's tabulations with totals of the 29 precincts reported Saturday were:

	For	Against
	2,159	2,857
Precinct 6, Caldwell	2	19
Precinct 9, Becton	8	55
Precinct 21, Woodrow	12	47

did not see why police should think it necessary to question him.

Mrs. Kidd, also known as Allie Wright, lived at a rooming house, Mrs. Marie Morgan, who operated the place, said Mrs. Kidd left there alone about midnight Sunday and failed to return.

The search for the body began shortly before 7 a. m. today when her blood-soaked hat and a large pool of blood were seen on the wooden bridge by R. C. Black, 33, refinery employe. He notified police and, after three hours of dragging the stream, the body was located.

Complaints Being Lodged On Shipments Of Beer In Texas

AUSTIN, March 5. (AP) — Complaint was made to Attorney General James V. Allred today that out-of-state breweries were shipping what was purported to be six per cent beer into Texas.

Those protesting were representatives of Texas 3.2 beer manufacturers and of the better business bureaus of Dallas and Houston. They said labels appearing on the bottles advertised the alcoholic content at six percent. It is unlawful to sell a beverage of more than 3.2 alcoholic content in Texas.

However, the better business bureau representatives said analysis of the beer showed it to contain only from 1.86 to 2.18 per cent alcohol. They claimed this beer was bringing five cents per bottle more than the 3.2 products.

FDR Speaks

senting 600 industrial groups and consequently the great majority of America's employers—who filled every seat in constitution hall and overflowed into smaller chambers nearby, listened intently.

Symbolic of the administration's determination to go forward on new paths, cabinet members and many house and senate leaders were upon the platform.

The restrum was brightly illuminated by Kleig lights overhead and their glare accentuated the greenish gold of a huge silken curtain across the rear of the stage. The ruddy faced Johnson, veteran of many a verbal battle during his brief term as administrator, acted as master of ceremonies.

If there was any doubt before hand, there was none after the president spoke that the three-day meeting of code authorities in Washington will consider first and foremost the question of shortening hours and raising wages.

As if amplifying Mr. Roosevelt's own words, Senator Wagner (D-N. Y.) head of the national labor board, later told the gathering that "it is essential that most code wages be revised."

Already unofficial estimates have been made that 30 per cent—perhaps more—of the industries represented are in a position to employ more men and pay them more. The central theme will be—how?"

Ends Are Outlined

The actual work of discussing code revision was made the task of night meetings of the various groups, but Mr. Roosevelt had clearly outlined, meanwhile, the ends in view.

The chief executive devoted most of his address to NRA despite the fact that it lacked only a day of being the anniversary of the tumultuous time when he took the oath.

He did, however, sketch briefly the reasons why he has led the American people away from the deeply rutted roads traveled by other regimes and was solemnly earnest in declaring:

Not Going Back

"One thing is very certain, we are not going back either to the old conditions or to the old methods."

As for the recovery unit itself, the president told his audience: "You have set up representative government in industry.

"You are carrying it on without violation of the constitutional or the parliamentary system to which the United States has been accustomed.

"The aim of this whole effort is to restore our rich domestic market by raising its vast consuming capacity."

Johnson Leads Applause

Johnson, himself, led the explosion of applause that followed this statement.

Mr. Roosevelt explained why he had stressed reemployment and higher pay by reminding his listeners "we must remember that the bulk of the market for American industry is among the 90 per cent of our people who live on wages and salaries and only 10 per cent of that market is among people who live on profits alone."

"No one,' he said, "is opposed to sensible and reasonable profits, but the morality of the case is that a great segment of our people are in actual distress and that as between profits first and humanity afterwards and humanity first and profits afterwards we have no room for hesitation . . .

"It is worth while keeping in front of our heads the thought that the people in this country whose incomes are less than $2,000 a year buy more than two-thirds of all the goods sold here . . .

"Every examination I make, and all the information I receive leads me to the inescapable conclusion that we must now consider immediate cooperation to secure increase in wages and shortening of hours. I am confident that your deliberations will lead you also to this conclusion."

G. L. Clements, 44, of Lorenzo, was slightly injured about 11:30 o'clock last night when he stepped from the running board of a car driven by his son, Roy, about five miles west of Ralls. Twelve Rescued From Bering Sea

MOSCOW, March 5. (AP)—The ten women and two children among the 101 persons marooned on Bering sea ice from the sunken vessel Cheliuskin were rescued today by the airplane Ant-4.

They were flown to Cape Wellen.

Their rescue was reported in a radio message from the castaways camp to the government rescue commission here.

The Ant-4 was manned by Pilot Lepidevsky and Mechanic Petroff. They made their hazardous flight from Cape Wellen in a temperature of 40 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

The message from the ice floe said that the whole party was greatly cheered by this first relief from the outside world.

The party has been on the ice since Feb. 13 when the Cheliskin sank while on the way from Wrangel island.

Vigorous Plea Is Made For Rejection Of Naval Proposal

WASHINGTON, March 5. (AP)—Approaching virtually certain passage of the hale billion dollar naval construction bill, the senate today heard a vigorous plea for its rejection from Senator Borah (R-Ida.) who charged munitions manufacturers were responsible for all wars through "insatiable greed' for "sordid profits."

Borah, strong disarmament advocate, in one of the most vigorous speeches of his long career, declared American arms makers were now selling war equipment on a large scale in the orient. If war should break out between America and Japan, he said, our soldiers would be "torn limb from limb and disembowled by munitions sold by their own compatriots."

Money For Anti-Tubercular Work In Texas Being Asked

WASHINGTON, March 5. (AP)—The federal relief administration was asked today by Senator Connally (D-Tex) to give immediate consideration to a proposal that four and one half per cent of all relief money allocated to Texas to be set aside for anti-tubercular works.

Connally, in a letter to Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, referred to a communication from Dr. J. W. E. H. Beck, chairman of the state senate's public health committee, saying the Texas relief commission had made a formal application on the subject.

Wallace Declares U. S. Is Now In A State Of Theory

NEW YORK, March 5. —The United States is passing through a temporary state of theory, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace declared today, out of which must come a definite and thoroughly planned economy or else "return to a state like 1932."

"We may continue to live in this illusion, or theoretical state for another year or two or three," the secretary said, "but if we do not cut through that illusion to the necessity of going in one of several directions . . . there will be uncontrolled inflation."

Man Fulfills Determination Of Texas Head For Capital

AUSTIN, March 5. (AP)—Oil men from all sections of Texas were on a trek to the Texas capitol tonight, bent upon doing their utmost to get a woman governor to approve or veto, according to their views, legislation intended to tighten production proration.

Governor Miriam A. Ferguson had on her desk, placed there by the recent special session of the legislature, three bills that their sponsors believed would effectively rout "hot" oil artists, persons who are surrpetiously producing petroleum in violation of railroad commission orders.

FEAR FOUL PLAY

WELLINGTON, Kas., March 5. (AP)—Fearing foul play, authorities today were asked to aid in a search for Henry C. Offutt, telegraph operator for the Santa Fe railroad here, who left Wellington January 1 on a 60-day leave of absence and has failed to report back for duty.

Quick House Action Looms On Bankhead Cotton Plan

WASHINGTON, March 5. (AP)—Privileged legislative status to expedite house consideration of the Bankhead compulsory cotton production control bill will be asked tomorrow of the rules committee.

The decision to bring the bill up under a special rule was reached by Jones and Bankhead after Republicans had said they would refuse to permit it to be considered under unanimous consent in view of minority report filed by a group of five of their colleagues on the agriculture committee.

Both senate and house agriculture committees have reported the bill favorably to limit production in the coming cotton year to 10,000,000 bales and to levy a tax of 50 per cent of the market value on cotton produced in excess of quotas allotted to farmers.

Old Haunts

nied stoutly "Mrs. Dillinger" was anyone but Mrs. Dillinger—"his wife or his common-law wife."

"She was in my office when Dillinger escaped," said Attorney Louis Piquett of Chicago. "She ran out. She was nearly hysterical with fear."

Bailiffs recalled that Dillinger's visitor on at least one occasion carried on a strange chat in which she mingled affectionate phrases with what sounded like football signals.

"She'd say 'I go four you honey." said Bailiff Ralph Pierce, "and then she'd say 'seven twenty three nineteen.' I made her stop it."

Possibilities Cited

Prosecutor Robert G. Estill and other investigators said the woman might have smuggled money to Dillinger, might have told him of road routes over which to flee, and might have named a hideaway for him.

Crown Point buzzed with the various investigations today as state and local authorities attempted to fix the blame for the escape.

County commissioners met with President Charles Baran, insisting that Sheriff Holley should resign.

"I won't resign," she retorted, as she conducted her own inquiry into the escape. "I welcome a thorough investigation."

Beatty Rites Are Set Today

Aged Attorney Dies On Monday After Residence In Lubbock 42 Years; Burial Is To Be In Brady Wednesday

Funeral rites will be read today for George L. Beatty, 89, who as a youth followed the Stars and Bars of the Confederacy as one of General Morgan's raiders, subsequently became a Kentucky sheriff and Texas judge, and came to West Texas as a pioneer lawyer.

The services will be conducted at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the Beatty home at 1317 Avenue N, where the aged attorney died unexpectedly late Monday morning. Death was attributed to natural causes common to old age. He had walked about there an hour before his death.

Burial At Brady

Rev. J. O. Haymes, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, of which Mr. Beatty was a member, will officiate. The body will be taken to Brady for burial there Wednesday, Rix-Bynum Funeral home announced.

Pallbearers, all lawyers here, will be:

George R. Bean, W. D. Benson, sr., W. F. Schenck, W. H. Bledsoe, Roscoe Wilson, and J. E. Vickers.

Widow Survives

A widow survived Mr. Beatty, who had lived in Lubbock county 42 years. He came here in 1892 as a young lawyer soon after the county was organized.

As a youthful soldier in the Confederate gray, he had participated in more than a hundred raids and attacks by the band led by General Morgan.

After the war, Mr. Beatty served in the sheriff's office at Georgetown, Ky., and in 1875 came to Texas. He also served as deputy sheriff and later for a period of ten years as judge of McCullough county.

Was Legal Advisor

Soon after moving to Lubbock, Mr. Beatty was employed as legal advisor to the county government at a salary of $25 a month. His legal opinions and advice prevailed on nearly every question which had to be decided by local authorities. At that time county scrip was nearly worthless, so Mr. Beatty suggested that taxes be paid with scrip and this measure immediately increased its value to 50 cents on the dollar and at the end of two years county paper was at par.

Mr. Beatty not only handled a large volume of public business but had a private practice extending over several counties. He was the first attorney in this section to represent the "nesters" in their conflict with the ranchers.

He kept up his professional work until 1915, when he retired on account of increasing deafness.

He made a comfortable fortune from his early law practice and at the time of his death was the owner of a considerable amount of real estate here.

He was a staunch Democrat.

Gypsy to a table. She sat down and put her few parcels on the other chair. Without even glancing around her, she drew forth her compact and proceeded to powder her nose. This done, she felt her self-respect restored. She did not look so draggled as she had feared. The wet wind had added roses to her cheeks.

She looked down at the menu in its silver holder. Tea and toast would restore her feeling of gaiety. She sat back, giving her order, and glanced about her.

Quite without warning, her eyes met those of the man at the next table. He had risen . . . he was bowing . . . now he was coming toward her.

"Marko!" Gypsy murmured. And indeed he was the last person on earth you would have expected to find here!

Marko's manner with her was perfect. No hint, now, of the discarded gallant. No, he was almost fatherly. How was she—and that handsome husband of hers? She was looking well . . . and so on and so on . . .

Gypsy found herself babbling to him of all sorts of things. The waitress fluttered over, removing his order to her table, and they settled cozily down to a talk. He was suave, he was polished, thought Gypsy, and yet you felt he really cared what happened to you—to all his friends. She told him about her afternoon. How Tom would have hated to hear her! But indeed there was nothing disloyal in her conversation. It was just an innocent outpouring.

Presently Marko knew everything. About Tom's cut, and the watch she wanted to get him, but couldn't, and the apartment and all the rest.

"My dear child . . ." His eyes were almost suffused. That was one embarrassing thing about Marko, he wept easily. "My dear child, you really must let me help you . . ."

All at once she realized what she was doing. She caught herself up. "But really, Marko I love it. It's fun. You mustn't mind what I say." She was bitterly ashamed of herself for having said anything. But that was the worst of being a babbler. Her mother had always warned her against it.

"No, no." He was patting her hand now. He was all gentleness and sympathetic interest. "It's a shame a lovely child like you hasn't everything she wants. You must let me do something, really."

There was more of this. Gypsy protested, she would gladly have bitten her tongue out to have recalled some of her confidences. At length she managed to convince Marko that she meant what she said. Of course he was used to women trying to get things from him! Naturally that was what he had thought she meant. Her cheeks burned at the thought.

She finished her eat and Marko paid for it. His fur collared coat, his expensive soft hat made him look a little like a corpulent opera singer. Gypsy was conscious of heads turning to watch them as they left the shop. She was just about to give him her hand in parting when a great car slid up from no where and a uniformed man held open the door.

"Nonsense, my dear, I'm dropping you wherever you want to go." Marko handed her in, and a fur rug was wrapped around her wet galoshes. The door shut noiselessly and the motor slid forward. Marko held a lighter to his cigaret.

"Look here," he said exhaling slowly. "I've an idea for you to earn some extra money. You have Saturdays, haven't you? Ah, then, you remember how you admired my library. It's sadly in need of cataloguing. Something I've never got around to. You could do it for me."

Gypsy's eyes were round with pleasure and excitement. This was something else again. Taking help from Marko was, of course, quite out of the question. He must understand, once and for all, that she wasn't in the class with the pretty ladies who "worked him" for the sweets of life. But if she could do some real work for him, work that needed to be done that was another matter.

"I—you're terribly nice to think of it," she murmured.

The details were arranged. Marko was most businesslike about it all. No one in his senses, thought Gypsy with pride, could have suspected him of an unworthy motive. His man would be there to receive her, everything would be ready. This was what? The twenty-first? Well, she could start work the following week, if she liked.

"And, of course I shall give you an advance" Marko smiled.

Gypsy protested, but to no avail. A banknote was pressed into her reluctant palm. Marko had given her address to the chauffeur through the speaking tube, but she had scarcely noticed that they were drawing up before her own door.

"Saturday, then!" Marko handed her out as though she were a princess.

Gypsy turned and waved goodby. Then she sped like an arrow through the flying snowflakes into the lobby. Surely that was Tom's tall figure she had seen, just rounding the corner. She was conscious of heightened color and quickened heartbeat. She told herself that Tom needn't know about her pact with Marko just now—he might not like it, and there was no use quarreling about it.

The halliboy held the elevator door wide and Gypsy slipped within, stuffing the bill into her purse. She had scarcely done so before Tom strode through the lobby.

"Here comes Mist' Weaver," the boy grinned. Gypsy was terribly nervous. Had Tom seen her enter? Ought she to tell him? After all, there was nothing wrong in her encounter.

His look of pleased surprise and his greeting dispelled the suspicion. The words were on the tip of her tongue. "I just ran into Marko Broughton . . ."

But she fought them back. Something warned her this was not a propitious time to tell him. The banknote burned, it seem to her, through the thin lining of her purse.

Oh, she would buy Tom the platinum watch. She would give him a really nice Christmas present.

Because she had taken a lightning glance at the note just before Tom entered. It was a $50 bill.

No, she couldn't possibly tell him now. He would never understand in the world. It would be a secret she would have to keep for some time to come.

Texas Tech Expedition Crosses The Border And Heads Now Into Mexico

BY CHARLES A. GUY

Tech-Yaqui Expedition

TUCSON, Ariz., March 5.—Before this day's end the Texas Technological college expedition to the Rio Yaqui country of Sonora, Mexico, will have crossed the border into the southern republic. First stop is to be at Hermosillo.

Preliminary to arrangements for entering Mexico members of the expeditionary party fraternized a day and a half with interned Yaquis in Barrio Pascua village near here. Members of the expedition camped Saturday night in the "plaza" of the Indian village.

Word had gone ahead to 'General' Guadalupe Flores, chief of the Yaquis held in Tucson as political refugees, and the general, who explains that he was a general in Yaqui land but not again, treated the Texans royally. He has undisputed authority over his group and led many of them, one by one, to the Tech expedition's camp where Dr. William Curry Holden, leader, and Dr. Charles J. Wagner, medical advisor, conversed with them through an interpreter and Dr. Carl J. Seltzer, Harvard physical anthropologist, made various measurements.

Yaquis Know Of Expedition

When the expedition pulled out of Tucson this morning for Nogales, point of entry, its members were cheered by the word that news of their coming had already been sent ahead by 'General' Flores to the 80-year-old chief of the Mexico Yaquis, Jesus Menguia, of the coming of the Texans. 'General' Flores, who speaks no English, assured Dr. Holden through Interpreter Bennie McWilliams that his party will not only be permitted to enter the closely guarded country but that its members will be royally welcomed by Menguia and his bucks.

Dr. Holden's connections with the Yaquis have been carefully worked over a period of eight months through Ivan Williams, now a border patrolman at Marfa, but formerly of Tucson. It was Williams and two aides who, in 1927, captured the Indians after Mexican soldiers, in a skirmish, had inadvertently driven them across into American territory. Nearly starving and accompanied by their women and children, the Yaquis were fed and cared for by Williams, who since then has been their best friend and closest advisor. He has been taken into their tribe and made an honorary chief.

Everything Assured

Williams has made arrangements for the Tech expedition and in conference with the party Thursday night in Van Horn assured Dr. Holden that everything has been fixed to permit the party to enter and work where no other scientific expeditions have ever penetrated and which few white men and Mexicans have entered to return alive.

While subjected to American laws, the Yaquis here have shown no disposition to become Americanized. They live to themselves and in the marriage, religious and burial rites display a wierd combination of paganism and Christianity. Yaquis in their own sector are expected by the Tech party to be an even more interesting and unusual type of Indian.

The expedition expects to reach Hermosillo, capital of Sonora, by Tuesday night; Guaymas, 300 miles below the border, by Wednesday night and Potam, first of the eight Yaqui mystery villages, by Thursday night.

After that, as Mexicans say, "Quein sabe?"

At the time of the armistice, American aircraft manufacturers were able to produce 21,000 planes a year; more than all the Allies combined.
