Is U. N. Threat To Sovereignty?

BY LUCY DYSART

Containing the following comments by school pupils launched two weeks ago, the scene shifts this week to Travis Junior High School.

Seven pupils were asked this question: Do you think the United States sovereignty is destroyed by the U. N. Treaty?

GARY PERSER (9th grade): "I think that the United States is losing more of its power through the U. N. every day. The U. N. is becoming dominated by communist nations that are hurting the rest of the free world. Many false accusations and arguments are started there, causing the world to get a bad impression of the United States. I think that if the United States is to continue supporting almost half of the U. N., as it is doing now, we should be sure that the U. N. is an asset to all of the world, and that the free nations are not being robbed of their sovereignty."

ANITA BUCHANAN (7th grade): "The United States' sovereignty is not destroyed by the U. N. treaty because it is the most prosperous nation in the world and it always will be. The United States should try to help other nations and try to keep peace between the nations. I am proud to be a citizen of the United States of America."

DON BRUNKEN (9th grade): "I feel at the moment that the U. S. sovereignty is not being destroyed by the U. N. treaty. But if we should make a treaty with the U. N. giving up all powers of warfare, our sovereignty would be in grave danger. I feel this way because the communists then could, by political force, take over the U. N. This would result in a communist world."

KENNY HASKELL (8th grade): "I don't think the U. S. sovereignty is destroyed by the U. N. treaty because the U. N. gives the nations a place to go to discuss world problems. If every other nation supported the U. N. as we do, the world would be a better place to live. Our country would never be in any threat of war again if every nation could find a peaceful agreement on world problems."

GLENNDA SEHERSTED (9th grade): "Yes, I do think that the U. N. is bad for the U. S. and it is destroying, or at least restricting, the power of the U. S. The U. S. is practically supporting the U. N. and gets only one vote. Many other countries pay no dues but get a vote. This isn't fair. With the communist countries also in the U. N. I don't think it is accomplishing anything anyway. Russia is completely against it. With these communist countries in the U. N. no bill can be passed in which communism is not helped in some way. We can't just kick the communist countries out and no real good can come with them in, so I think the best thing for the U. S. is to withdraw from the U. N. Without the U. S. the U. N. would probably fail for lack of money. The U. N. was originated for a job that certainly needs to be done, but can anything or anyone bring about complete and everlasting peace in our world? Only when all countries are united in God can this happen."

TRIESTA ANGEL (8th grade): "I believe the U. N. is a good thing, even though it does have its bad points. Just as everything else does. The United States pays almost half of the money into the U. N. which should entitle the U. S. to more power. The Russians have men who are able to veto things, such as sending troops into some countries, where the United States does not have this much power. In countries like Laos and Viet Nam the communists have taken over while the U. S. looks on, even though soldiers were sent. The United States backs down to the communists too many times. But I must say the U. N. has kept peace between Russia and the U. S. over the many disputes of these countries."

BRENDA FEATHERSTON (7th grade): "No, I think the U. S. is truly a great country, and if we would all put Christ first in our lives there would be no problems with the countries."

ANITA BUCHANAN (7th grade): "The United States' sovereignty is not destroyed by the U. N. treaty because it is the most prosperous nation in the world and it always will be. The United States should try to help other nations and try to keep peace between the nations. I am proud to be a citizen of the United States of America."

No Clues Yielded By Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market last week put on a mixed and indifferent performance, yielding no clues as to where it may be heading.

Volume dropped to the lowest total in two years. Turnover for the week was 11,822,758 shares, compared with 13,956,680 the week before. It was the smallest weekly total since 10,852,200 shares were traded in the week ended Oct. 15, 1960.

The reason for the light trading was cut drastically Monday because of the Jewish holiday Yom Kippur. The Columbus Day observance Friday also dampened trading. In addition, World Series baseball distracted Wall Street's attention.

A further reason for slow dealings was great uncertainty as to where the market is heading and, consequently, a reluctance of many investors to commit themselves.

"The public seems to have deserted the stock market, at least for the time being," said Bradbury K. Thurston of Winslow, Conn. & Stetson.

The Dow Jones industrial average was off 12 at 586.47, a minor change.

This average, incidentally, was moving close to where it was in the Columbus Day week of 1960, also a period of marked uncertainty. That year the market began to pick up steam before election day, a start of the tremendous market upsurge of 1961. Some stock analysts believe that election results this year, as well, may spur the market, but most of the experts have their fingers crossed.

The Associated Press average last week made a small gain of 1/4 at 218.4.

Even before the week started, Wall Streeters expected little of it. The holidays and the baseball games were too much to contend with, they knew.

The general market level was drifting along in a limbo between the June lows and the August highs, making no decisive moves.

AREA OIL

11 feet which were treated with 2,500 gallons of acid.

Ralph E. Fair, Inc., of Midland No. 1 Justice Estate, Southeast Garza County wildcat, encountered shows of oil and gas in the Wolfcamp.

The petroleum came during a two-hour and 20-minute drillstem test at 7,442-62 feet. Gas surfaced in one hour and 55 minutes.

Recovery was 375 feet of heavily gas-laden mud which was 99 per cent oil. The tool was plugged throughout the test. Initial shut-in pressure bottomhole pressure in 30 minutes was 3,400 pounds. The final pressure after one hour was 2,800 pounds.

Minimum flowing pressure was 411 pounds. Gravity of the oil was .42 degrees. The operation, slated for an 8,200-foot Ellenburg bottom, is making hole below 7,541 feet in an unclassified formation.

It is three miles south of Justiceburg and 1/4-mile south of the Tobe (Strawn and Wolfcamp) field and two miles east of the multiphase "A" field.

The location is 330 feet from Section 18 and 990 feet from west line of Section 18, block 6, H&N survey.

BLACK AND GOLD

By Janis Atwood

Most annual staffers should be fairly good salesmen and saleswomen in later life. This week the staff members have been selling Tiger's Lair subscriptions, for games, and class pictures.

For selling the annuals, the staff members divided into two teams. The "Black" team is headed by Charlotte Stewart, editor of the Tiger's Lair, and the "Gold" team is headed by Judy Richardson, assistant editor.

Members of the "Black" are Charlotte Stewart, Terry Alexander, Paulette Jones, Janet Head, Stuart Long, Roger Weaver, Kay Logan, and Becky Lewallen. The "Gold" team members are Judy Richardson, Sandra Brinner, Dana Falls, Pete Greene, Kathy Wellborn, Linda Williamson, Janelle Scribner, Mary Brice, and Janis Atwood. The team selling the most annuals wins a party given by the losers.

When class pictures were distributed, the picture exchanging rush was on. There were many exclamations of "This is horrible of me, but great of you!" and so on.

The Homecoming Queen was chosen Thursday in advisory. However no one will know who the queen is until Nov. 9 at the Snyder Sweetwater game. Candidates for Homecoming Queen were Terry Alexander and Kay Smith, Seniors; and Mary Brice and Diana Alor, Juniors. The two sophomore princesses will be Connie Robinson and Sherri Belt.

This year big plans are being made by the students and teachers. We all hope the exes will return to their old Alma Mater to take part in the festivities, and remain as proud of SHS as when they were students.

The new FFA Boys (Future Farmers of America) were initiated Monday, Oct. 8. The inductees wore burial suits. They were dipped into 55 gallons of ice water. They were given a dinner of very delectable. The salad was of very hot foods. The drink consisted of vinegar, coffee grounds, mineral water, and just about everything else. The boys had to kiss the FFA emblem, and just as they did, they were pushed into floor. Six boys were initiated, and 15 or 20 boys were present.

The purpose of FFA is to help boys who plan to go into Ag work. The sponsor is Mr. McMullan. Recently a new farm was bought on the Colorado City Highway. The boys built a barn, pig parlor, and a farrowing house on the 18 acre farm. They plan to cultivate five acres. All visitors are welcome. This farm is for FFA boys who live in town.

OUR VIEW

Enrollment Crush Points Up Junior College Needs

A tremendous increase in college enrollment figures in Texas fulfills past predictions of deluges for the state's institutions of higher learning.

The congestion on college campuses apparently stems from two factors: There are more students being graduated by high schools, and more of the high school graduates are going on to college.

College degrees are sought for various reasons, not the least of which is the "space age" environment. There is a competitive spirit in the educational realm between our country and Soviet Russia, and youngsters seem eager to become competitors.

This, along with other inducements, sent throngs of teenagers to college this fall — far more than ever before in Texas.

Greatest gains, numerically at least, have been recorded by the senior colleges and universities. Yet, junior colleges over the state have reported substantial gains in enrollment themselves.

For several years, the junior colleges have been fulfilling a great need at the two-year level simply in easing the congestion at the four-year colleges.

However, in more recent years, the state has elevated junior colleges to four-year status and assumed operational control of other senior colleges at a faster rate than it has permitted public junior colleges to be established. If this trend continues, the crush on senior colleges is going to become alarmingly acute, and the existing junior colleges will not be able to relieve a fair share of the problem.

If enrollment figures continue to rise at the rate they did this fall, the state should be happy to see counties such as Seury establish their own junior colleges. And there is every indication that enrollment figures will continue to soar.

Backstage...

We finally found the ultimate in status symbols for the affluent West Texas citizen. We haven't seen one yet, but we hope that by passing this intelligence along someone will get one soon. Any good West Texan has a pickup truck. And he is supposed to have a Cadillac too. And here's the answer — A Cadillac pickup. The nine by fifteen inch color ad we have here says that the vehicle "glides smoothly ahead, commanding the attention and respect of everyone." And that we don't doubt. And for less than $10,000 too! We'd like to see one of the county commissioners (one who doesn't plan to run again) buy one for his precinct. The national publicity we could get would be worth way more than the cost. Which one of you will do it?

Short Week Seen As Obstruction

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — A short-work week would obstruct the national effort to speed up the rate of economic growth, a report by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Saturday.

The study, analyzing increasing demands by labor unions for a reduction in working hours to spread employment, suggested that the end result could be the opposite—the spreading of unemployment.

The report noted, on the other hand, a variety of social gains that might result from cutting the 40-hour week to 38 hours, 36 hours or less. It mentioned more time for education, healthful recreation, civic activities and family life.

But the conclusions were similar to those reached by President Kennedy, who has opposed any "arbitrary" reduction of the work week as a potential handicap to business expansion at home and American trade overseas. Kennedy told a news conference he hopes instead to see "employment high five days a week, and 40 hours."

The Chamber study said a shorter work week standard "will inevitably raise total labor costs," and employers would be forced either to increase prices or reduce the amount of earnings devoted to research and investment.

This in turn would damage the ability of domestic goods to compete with foreign goods and in the long run could be self-defeating to labor, the Chamber said. It argued:

"In the highly competitive setting in which most firms operate today, the interests of labor will be better served if the level of profits of the business is adequate for continued investment than if the total increment goes to labor or as higher wages or a shorter work week."

"If profits are maintained through increased prices, inflation drains away the excess labor gain. But if profits are not maintained, enterprise failure and unemployment must follow."

While progress in technology is sure and certain, the report went on, the gains in goods and incomes which could be achieved will never be produced if labor takes its share in the form of shorter work hours.

The study disputed the argument that the shorter work week would reduce the unemployment impact of automation. It would increase the demand for highly trained and well educated clerical and technical workers who have no unemployment problem now, the Chamber said, and whose work cannot be "shared" with laid-off manual laborers and blue-collar workers.

Experience in the rubber industry, where shortened hours have been in effect for years, suggests that a high percentage of workers will simply take a second job to improve their incomes and will wind up working longer hours instead of shorter, the report said.

It conceded that a shortening of hours may be "highly acceptable" in recessions so as to keep the whole labor force at work, and could be useful in some areas having temporary distress.

Goerch To Speak For K&F Club

CARL GOERCH

A North Carolina editor and radio commentator who doubles frequently as a philosopher-humorist and is a favorite with large state and out-of-state convention groups, will be the guest speaker to address members of the Knife and Fork club at their next meeting the evening of Tuesday, Oct. 16, at the Snyder Country Club.

A New Yorker by birth, being raised in historic Tarrytown, Carl Goerch came to North Carolina early in a budding journalistic career. He went from New York to Raleigh on an assignment as state reporter for the Washington Daily News in 1913. The job lasted until 1920 when the paper was consolidated with another Washington paper.

Mr. Goerch then went to work for Jim Dawson at New Bern on the Sun Journal; and a few years later was running the Wilson Mirror for the Beasley-Langston interests. When this paper suspended operations, Goerch returned to Washington for a few years, but 1933 found him back in Raleigh. He then started "The State," a weekly paper which now is going into its 26th successful year. With his paper well established, he has decided to take things somewhat easier, which accounts for his being here for the address before the Knife and Fork Club. Actually taking things easier isn't what it might sound like because Mr. Goerch still does his daily broadcast, Monday through Friday, while the North Carolina Legislature is in session, and continues his weekly broadcast for radio stations in Raleigh, Winston Salem and Wadesboro.

Rose Queen Crowning Set

TYLER (AP)—The crowning of the queen Thursday starts Tyler's annual Rose Festival.

The queen is Miss Harriet Sue Caldwell.

Other highlights are a rose show, luncheons and the big Saturday Rose Parade.

Friday's first full day of activities will include a ribbon cutting ceremony opening the rose show at 10 a.m. in the garden center building.

Vice Adm. William Raborn Jr., deputy chief of naval operations, will speak at the distinguished guests luncheon.

Raborn was the first to test fire the Polaris missile from a submarine.

Beginning Friday will be tours of Tyler's rose fields, now abloom in gorgeous color.

Kennedy 'Image' Faces Biggest Test

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Next month President Kennedy's public image, built so laboriously and so zealously, faces its great trial.

On Nov. 6 voters choose 435 representatives, 39 senators and 35 governors.

John F. Kennedy's name won't be on any ballot. Many races will be settled strictly on local issues and local personalities. Yet the results are bound to affect the President's political reputation.

Democratic gains, be they ever so humble, will be seized upon as proof that Kennedy is all-but invincible, sure of another term in the White House.

Republican gains, especially in the House, will be taken as evidence that Kennedy will have his troubles in 1964.

Making it more exasperating for Kennedy, tradition is against him. Historically the party in power loses ground in these off-year elections.

Republicans may pick up a few governors, where they now trail 34-18.

Democrats are expected to hold their own, or even gain, in the Senate, where they lead 64-36.

Most interest centers in the House, where the Democrats have control, more or less. Statistically

Republicans must gain 44 seats to take over. Actually enough conservative Democrats have lined up with them to block pet presidential projects.

Since Kennedy and his advisers insist he must pick up five or six house seats, what the voters think of the President becomes increasingly important.

Our impressions are influenced by Kennedy's speeches, messages to Congress, vacations, legislative proposals, news conferences, trips abroad, subordinates, eloquence, errors and relatives, maybe the most restless political family of all time.

The image a politician casts is often thought more important than what he is or what he stands for.

Perhaps this is an inevitable part of an age in which techniques of packaging, of selling, often are stressed until quality is forgotten.

Possibly too much has been made of Kennedy's differences with news writers and commentators, of his calling up reporters to protest, of his going to visit a columnist in an effort to persuade him to change his mind.

Rarely is it pointed out that Kennedy, once a newsmen himself, always was interested in the written word, especially when it described him.

Most presidents have frowned on granting private interviews. Kennedy may give as many as three a week, to pollsters, to columnists, to White House reporters who have problems they think only he can solve.

Kennedy has another gimmick that seems to work nicely. He (or Press Secretary Pierre Salinger) picks out a state and invites some of its publishers to lunch.

Not much solid material may come out of private interviews with the President or his staff, but a reporter inevitably will return a better perspective on the administration's problems.

Does this accessibility, unprecedented in modern times, subtly influence the tone of the news and the political criticism?

Some reporters fear it might,

and don't ask to see the President.

Some Republicans insist it does, and declare Kennedy is handled more gently in print than his predecessors.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is known to feel the press treats Kennedy too tenderly. He was particularly surprised that there wasn't more of a public outcry after the invasion of Cuba fiasco so miserably.

If Republicans are correct in their conclusion, then Kennedy indeed has been successful in selling himself.

This success, if it is a success, may not help Kennedy much on election day.

Presidential costials aren't what they used to be.

More endangered than anything else, though, is the precious image that in elections the Kennedy family has established.

This can be tarnished by the nationwide results of Nov. 6.

So look for a steady flurry of presidential activity.

The Kennedys never aim for second place.

Memorial For Hickman Set

AUSTIN (AP)—The Supreme Court said Saturday it will conduct memorial services Oct. 20 for John Hickman, an appellate judge and Methodist lay leader who died in April.

Leon Jaworski of Houston, president of the State Bar Association, will preside.

Hickman for 12 years was chief justice of the state. For 34 years he was on Texas appellate benches.

He began that career in 1927 on the Eastland Court of Civil Appeals after graduation from the University of Texas and practicing law 15 years. He was appointed to the Supreme Court Commission of Appeals in 1935 and became an associate justice when the court was increased to nine members in 1945. He presided over the high court from 1948 until he retired in 1960.

Gators Smash Aggies, 42-6

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida Gators cut loose with their vaunted running power after two weeks of frustration and swept to a 42-6 victory over outclassed, fumbling Texas A&M Saturday.

Scoring bursts of 15 yards by Sam Mack, 73 yards by Bob Hoover and 10 yards by Larry Dupree gave the Gators their first three touchdowns. Tom Shannon put some frosting on the cake when he passed 13 yards to Ross Brown for a fourth TD and 27-0 halftime lead.

Aggie fumbles led to three touchdowns and spoiled the homecoming for Hank Fuldberg, rookie Texas A&M coach who formerly was an assistant at Florida.

Florida built its lead to 34-0 before the Gators took advantage of a Texas mistake, a pass interception, and put their six-point lead on the scoreboard with a 26-yard drive.

A blocked punt in the last seconds gave Florida its final touchdown and the Gators went for two extra points to run up their largest score since 1959.

Florida's pass defense, miserable in its first three games, turned brilliant and an interception by Lindy Infante on the first scrimmage play of the game set the pattern.

The Aggies stopped Florida's first threat one yard from the goal. But it wasn't long before Jerry Newcomer returned a punt to the Texas A&M 15—with an assist by Bruce Starling, who recovered Newcomer's fumble.

Mack scored on the first play. Fumbles gave Florida opportunities to build up its lead after Hoover rambled out for a 140 lead and the next two drives had to cover only 30 and 22 yards.

Florida's mistakes, too, but was strong enough to overcome them. The Gators didn't let the foe off the hook as they did last week after leading Duke 21-0 at half time only to lose 28-21.

The Aggies made only two sustained drives and both were stopped inside the Florida 20.

Violent Weather In Frisco Puts Crimp In Series Play

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The worst October storm to hit San Francisco since 1904 washed out Saturday's sixth World Series game at swampy Candlestick Park and threatened to force a third postponement Sunday.

The Tiger defense—as in the memorable Big Spring game of last month—bordered on the stupendous following a so-so showing against Kermitt last week. The heralded Bulldog attack came to a crashing halt during the first two periods, as they were held to 30 yards rushing and were kept sacked up deep in their own territory by the alert Tiger defenses.

So competent was that defense that the nearest Bulldogs could get to the Tiger goal was their own 36-yard line before they came back to mesh their gears somewhat during the last half.

The Tigers refused to be counted out as were still in the half game until the last second after falling behind by 0-10.

The picture looked dismal for the locals until late in the final quarter, with the prospects dim indeed as they trailed by the 10 points, had only slightly over a minute and a half of playing time left, and were running from their own 30.

Lightning struck at that moment, however, when Walton dropped back and flipped a short flare pass to Brown, who was some four yards behind the line of scrimmage. Behind a wave of blockers, he wheeled and streaked goalward, racing all the way untouched down the west sideline for the score.

Darrell Aldridge's conversion boot spelt the uprisals as 1:38 showed to be left to go.

Time Marched On
Following an attempted onside kick that failed to materialize, Stamford ran one series and punted, after which the Tigers managed to run three more plays before the clock caught them as they were nearing midfield.

The Bulldogs cooked up their pot of gravy early in the third period. Snyder received the kickoff, reeled off two running plays netting five yards, and then a pass from the hand of Jimmy Wilson was picked off abruptly by defensive halfback Paul Rider. He hugged it back 17 yards before being toppled on the Tiger 19.

From the point of talkback Andy Miller, the leading ground gainer of the night with 96 yards on 23 carries—picked up five over right tackle. Rider added the same amount around right end for a first, and Miller ripped through guard for seven to the two-yard line.

Miller made it complete by slanting over left tackle for the touchdown with 8:42 still remaining in the game.

Commissioner Ford Frick called off Saturday's game soon after he arrived at the park. He immediately went into a huddle with Matty Schwab, the groundskeeper, on the possibilities for Sunday.

"We'll proceed on a strictly day-to-day basis," said Frick. "If it is bad Sunday, I'll be out with Matty early. I'll make a decision then."

Asked about the soggy outfield under the high grass that has not been cut for several days, Frick said, "We have a very serious problem." He quickly quashed any rumors that the Series might be shifted to any other site.

"Positively not," said Frick. "It will be played right here if we have to wait until Christmas."

"The soil is adobe," said Schwab. "That is the trouble. The water can't penetrate. You could play on it but it would be like football. When the ball hits it will stay right there."

The weatherman gave some hope that the storm was tailing off and there was a chance of only "Partly cloudy" weather Sunday, the most optimistic forecast the baseball people had heard yet.

However, a later forecast added that there was a 50 per cent chance of rain Sunday.

Informed that the weather man said there was a likelihood of rain Sunday, Frick said, "If I was a gambling man, I'd hire that fellow to go to Las Vegas for me. His predictions are pretty good."

The two-day postponement already was the longest weather break since the 1911 Series when the Philadelphia A's and New York Giants waited a week from Oct. 17 to Oct. 24 to play the fourth game in Philadelphia.

That Series lasted 13 days, and didn't end until Oct. 26. The current series will go into its 10th day Sunday.

The New York Yankees, leading 3-2 in this best-of-seven series that has turned it into a rest cure, were championing at the bit. Manager Ralph Houk tried desperately to find a field house with a dirt floor for a workout but had to give up. He gave orders for everybody to be ready at 9:30 a.m. Sunday because "we'll work out someplace if they can't play the game." He mentioned Modesto, San Jose and Fresno as possibilities.

Houk still planned to pitch Whitey Ford, 34-year-old winner of 10 Series games, when the sixth game is played—if ever.

Alvin Dark, manager of the Giants, re-affirmed his decision to stay with Billy Pierce, his 35-year-old lefty who has a 12-0 record at Candlestick Park.

Jack Sanford undoubtedly would be his seventh game pitcher, if and when, with Ralph Terry as his opponent.

Dark thought of having the club work in the Cow Palace until he learned that the ice was down in the arena for the hockey team. There was a chance they might be able to use it Sunday.

Schwab said he heard from one fellow in Oakland who had a jet racer and offered to drive up the field.

"What would happen to the grass?" Schwab asked.

"That would burn off," the man said.

"No thanks," said Schwab. "With no grass and ruts in the outfield we'd be worse off than we are now. What we need is for the rain to stop, the sun to shine and the wind to blow."

The Snyder Tigers held the vaunted Stamford Bulldog scoring machine completely in check here Friday night throughout the first half, but saw their strong bid for victory go up in smoke when the visitors rang up 10 points in the third period in taking a 10-7 triumph.

One milestone on the part of the Tigers was crossed, however, when a touchdown late in the contest ended the Bulldogs' season-long streak of not having been scored on. A flare pass from quarterback Dalton Walton to halfback Leslie Brown covered 70 yards turned the trick to the delight of some 5,000 fans who turned out to witness the battle in perfect football weather.

Spartans Shut Out Michigan

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State turned two early fumble recoveries into touchdowns and displayed a seldom-used passing arm in overpowering arch-rival Michigan 38-0 Saturday.

Sherman Lewis, a 154-pound halfback, paced the Spartans' versatile ground-air attack by scoring three touchdowns. He scored twice on runs and once on a pass.

The quick-striking Spartans hit for two fast touchdowns and seized command by midway in the first quarter of this 55th meeting between the Big Ten rivals.

The Spartans, who had passed sparingly in their first two games, surprised the Wolverines with the dead-end and a record-overload Spartan stadium crowd of 77,500 that ringed the sidelines.

Michigan recovered five Spartan fumbles but could mount only one serious threat. It came in the second quarter and got the Wolverines to the State 11 where they set the ball on down.

GOING FOR BROKE—Pictured is an almost-touchdown of Friday night when Leslie Lovorn got his mitts on a pass on the Tiger goal, but had the ball (clerical) batted free by defender Jimmy Taylor, who was right on top of the play. The clock ticks the story, as 2:10 was left to go in the game and Snyder was trailing by 0-10. The Tigers took over after the above fourth down play, however, and scored a touchdown of their own—the first points to be scored on the Bulldogs all season—on a 70-yard pass play from Dalton Walton to Leslie Brown. Carol Burnett Is Making It On Own

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Social note: Carol Burnett, Hollywood High School, class of '31, was back in town.

Miss Burnett was also UCLA, class of '35, but she never quite made it to the sheepskin, show biz interceded.

As any student of the television art knows, Carol is the putty-faced zany who romped to the heights of success as Garry Moore's irrepressible buddy. She has the Emmies to show for it.

She also has the beginnings of a serious fortune now that she is off on her own. She went out this summer "with much trepidation" on the Carol Burnett Show, playing big outdoor stadiums as well as the Las Vegas big time.

What did she pick up? A bundle of money from smash business, a new reputation for being able to carry the load as a single. Oh yes, she also picked up a Nevada divorce from Don Saroyan.

To climax her triumph, Carol was here to star on a Jack Benny show, playing a mad Jane to Jack's Tarran. Carol came down from her vine-swinging long enough to reflect on her change of status.

"Some people got it wrong about how I left Garry," she remarked. "A few reports made it sound like a benevolent kiss-off—that he was getting rid of me."

"It wasn't that way at all. I went to him last year and said I thought after four seasons that it was time for me to leave and see if I could make it on my own. Garry was very sweet and understanding. He said he would like me to stay, but he knew how I felt. He said that he once had to decide to leave Jimmy Durante."

Having proved herself on the summer tour, Carol is branching out in all directions. She'll be doing some television specials this season, including "Calamity Jane" from the old Doris Day movie. There is talk of movies for her, and she has signed for a Jules Styne musical on Broadway next season based on the book "The Unfair Sex."

She has come a distance from Hollywood High.

Carol was no mime then. She was a journalist, of all things, and decided she would invent all the Hollywood High grads who had made it in films.

"I cut classes to go see them," she said, "and this didn't set too well with the school."

Since UCLA had no undergraduate journalism, Carol majored in theater arts. During one comedy exercise, she found her fellow students laughing at her in the right places—"and that's all it took."

She left UCLA and California in 1954 to seek her fortune in New York. Why not Hollywood?

"Movies never interested me," she admitted. "You've got to be a beauty to make it here."

This Year To Be Chester's Last

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — This is positively, absolutely the last year during which Marshall Matt Dillon of "Gunsmoke" will confide his problems, hopes and dreams to his admiring assistant, Chester. Unless, of course, something unexpected occurs.

Dennis Weaver, the Actors Studio alumnus who created the role eight seasons back was determined to move out of Dodge City this season, but a projected television variety show never got beyond a pilot program. "It didn't turn out well," said Weaver frankly, "and no one would buy it."

But now Weaver has signed a contract, in which CBS — "Gunsmoke's" own network—is a partner, to star in a dramatic series. If he doesn't find one suitably stimulating and exciting, he has been promised a CBS variety show of his own next fall.

Meanwhile, Dennis will appear in 15 of this season's "Gunsmoke" episodes, and the producers are introducing a new character, a blacksmith played by Burt Reynolds, who will appear in at least seven shows. If all goes well, Reynolds will quietly take over Chester's basic function—providing star James Arness with somebody to talk to, thus keeping the audience up to date on his motives and plans of action.

With all this firming up, Weaver thought it would be a jolly idea to have "Doc," another of the show's regulars, perform an operation curing Chester's stiff knee in Weaver's last appearance on the show. The producers and writers went along with the project at first. But then caution took over, and Chester, alas, will limp to the last.

"They decided not to risk curing Chester," the actor explained. "You know, it's television, and what if some catastrophe occurred and they needed him back?"

The cause of Chester's limp has remained a deep, dark secret through all of "Gunsmoke's" popular seasons. The character acquired it at the suggestion of the show's first director, Charles Marquis Warren, who decided that the handsome, tall Weaver looked too much like a leading man himself to provide sharp contrast with the handsome and even taller Arness.

"He decided Chester should have some kind of a physical handicap," recalled Weaver, "and that he should never carry a gun and would never be involved in the marshal's official duties. What we were trying to get away from was that familiar younger-star and older-man set up they used in Westerns—you know, the Gabby Hayes type of thing."

Weaver's theatrical background and talents are so broad that he has long since been cast as playing one character in what often are the repetitious situations.

"All I know about a future series is that the character will be completely different from Chester," he said firmly.

Weaver is a soft-spoken product of Joplin, Mo., and has never lost his drawl. He was an athlete in his high school and college days, also, while at Oklahoma University, was interested in dramatics.

Many suburban localities such as Mesquite find themselves with big city problems without the necessary organization and funds to deal with the situations which arise," the bureau said.

One of the major problems of financing school construction in the quickly growing metropolitan areas is the higher cost of interest on bonds caused by a greater risk than with bonds issued by older and well established cities.

Rural areas are faced with a steadily declining population, leaving them with excessive school facilities and mounting per student costs.

The bureau said educational construction in this decade should be a major component of the total building activity in Texas.

Arquette Is Back To Stay This Time

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The gypsy life of Cliff Arquette has led him back to California, this time to stay.

That's what he says, anyway. But you never can tell about Cliff. Life has been one continuous surprise for him.

Cliff is that old fustibudget of Jack Paar fame, Charlie Weaver. But Charlie is not Cliff, if you get what I mean. Cliff himself is a razor-sharp, jolly fellow who seems to fuss not at all.

Cliff-Charlie now appears every Saturday night on the new Roy Rogers variety show over ABC-TV. For Arquette it is a return to the area where he spent the bulk of his performing years.

"I guess I was out here about 30 years in all," he recalled. "For a while I was following radio wherever it went. I started in Chicago when the big action was there. Then it moved to New York and I went with it. Then back to Chicago, then out to Hollywood."

Longtime Californians remember his many characterizations on local and network radio shows; my favorite was a lovable old bag named Aunt Addy.

"I was always playing old men and old women," he laughed. "Used to say some day I would grow into those roles. Now I just about have!"

His crew-cut white hair and Santa Claus belly are the only indications, however. He looks totally different, and many years younger when not in his Charlie Weaver get-up.

Cliff had been retired for a couple of years when Jack Paar asked him to come on his late-night show. Four highly successful years followed. When Paar left the show, so did Cliff. He has no plans to return to it, nor to Paar's new weekly show.

Charlie Weaver is still a scamp on the Roy Rogers telecast, though not as rabid as he was with Paar. Nor is his tipping mentioned — "But Charlie never talked about it before—it was always Paar who made the cracks."

Cliff has other things to keep him busy. He closed up his Gettysburg, Pa., museum of military uniforms and plans to open it in the Orange County tourist belt that includes Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm and the Hollywood Wax Museum. He is planning to open another one for French uniforms at St. Tropez on the Riviera.

Cliff keeps trucks going into town.

GRANTHAM, England (AP) — A fine new highway curves round the edge of Grantham, but long-distance truck drivers ignore the bypass and continue to clog the town's narrow main street.

Investigating officials found they like to eat at Tony's Cafe, where a plate of eggs, chips and tomatoes sells for 3 shillings—42 cents.

"I'd rather get stuck in any traffic jam than miss a good fry-up at Tony's," said John Welsh. "Most of the lads think the same."

The authorities have persuaded Tony to move his cafe to a site on the highway.

BURT LANCASTER and Neville Brand co-star as cop and convict in "Bird Man of Alcatraz," opening Sunday, Oct. 21, at the Palace Theater. The drama is based on the story of Robert Stroud, who has been imprisoned in a U. S. Penitentiary longer than anyone alive.

Two Youths Captured

YAN HORN, Tex. (AP) — Two teen-agers who handcuffed a deputy sheriff to a fencepost and fled with his money, his gun and his unmarked patrol car, were captured Friday night at Van Horn.

The boys, both 15, told officers they had run away from their homes in Arlington. They have been charged with armed robbery and auto theft.

Culbertson County Sheriff A. B. Neil said the patrol car belonging to Deputy Sheriff Boyd Tinnin of Toyah was found abandoned four miles north of Toyah.

Tinnin stopped to give the boys a ride. They left him handcuffed to the fence about five miles west of Pecos.

To oven-fry filets, dip them in melted butter or margarine and sprinkle with paprika; place in a shallow pan (on greased foil if you like) and bake without turning in an extremely hot (500 degrees) oven about 10 minutes or until the fish flakes easily.

Highlight In Rush Parties

And P-TA Activities

GOOD KIDS—Mrs. Jo Birdwell and Mr. Jake Phillips play the part of the "little Angels", never doing anything wrong in the Lamar P-TA skit to be presented Monday night. Plan to attend as their costumes promise to be quite a sight.

LITTLE DEMONS—The three characters, portraying school children, do everything but what they should do as they give the teacher, Mr. Jimmy Lynch a bad

Nathan Mearse, president, Mrs. Horace Bostick, secretary, Mrs. Cecil Mearse, treasurer, and Mrs. Zane Payne, vice president.

Tips On Football Party

With gridiron fever rampant, you'll rate special cheers if you hostess an after-the-game party featuring a football theme.

Whether they have been rooting for high school, college or professional teams, pigskin fans like to "gather around" following an afternoon game to discuss the plays and analyze the game—especially where food and drink are served.

The simplest solution for an after-the-game party hostess is a buffet supper of hearty food and drink for the football followers and "armchair quarterbacks". By preparing a "football" table setting ahead of time, and most of the food too, so all it needs is an oven warm-up, you can join the fun.

Here are two suggestions for table settings highlighted by flower centerpieces in the football motif:

Take narrow strips of a white fabric and lay them on a green fabric cloth to form a gridiron pattern. Paint daisies and anchor them in styrofoam at one end of the table, to represent goal posts. Use a football helmet as a centerpiece for autumn flowers, such as mums and pompons.

School or college colors can be repeated in your napkins made of fabric remnants. White or light green dinnerware, for example, would blend harmoniously in such a table setting.

If you wish to avoid showing partiality toward a team, design a perpendicular centerpiece of large white chrysanthemums, using a few brown leaves as fillers. Form a miniature stadium of white construction paper, about four inches in width, and place it around the base of the flowers. Draw several inverted "U"s on the paper to denote stadium entrances. Using scraps of felt of different colors, cut small pennants, tape them to pipe cleaners, and then the pipe cleaners to the inside "stadium" wall. Place a few brown leaves in front of the centerpiece.

Use of a brown or burnt-orange colored table cloth with lighter or darker shades of napkins, and dinnerware featuring a leaf pattern on a white background, would blend nicely in such a table setting.

Your colorful and unusual flower centerpieces carrying out the football theme will make you a party winner, even if the home team loses the big contest.

Increased leisure time has made it possible for a family to spend more time in a home away from home. Just as the automobile industry discovered a large area of expansion in the "second car" market, so is the building industry meeting a growing demand for second homes.

These homes generally are used for weekends and vacations, which means they usually are within 50 or 100 miles of the owners' regular dwellings. Prefabricated houses are very popular in this category, since smaller, less expensive structures can be erected quickly when the components are built at a factory on a mass basis. Of course, prefabricated housing has now reached a stage where homes of any size can be—and are being—constructed. But it is getting an especially big play in the second-home market.

When the buyer of a second home wishes to save some of the labor costs by doing part of the work himself, he can get a shell house. This is not a precise term, since shell houses come in various stages of completion, depending on how much work the new owner can or wishes to do.

Prospective purchasers should be certain they know exactly what has to be done to make the home complete. They also should investigate all aspects of the financing, since mortgages may be difficult to obtain until the house is finished. But for those who are handy, decided savings can be effected.

In the majority of cases, the buyers of second homes already have the lots, which they purchased on time or with cash. This gives them the advantage of week-ending or vacationing at places of their own choosing. But many builders have bought large tracts of land in desirable locations, then built and sold second homes.

There was a time when any family with more than one home was considered a member of the upper bracket set. And with good reason. It just didn't seem practical for families in the middle-income area to buy houses in which they would spend only a couple of weeks during the year.

These days, with extended weekends, longer vacations and additional days off holidays, a considerable part of the year can be spent in second homes.

QUESTION: I have a number of projects on tap and have decided to use plywood. In looking over lumber yard advertisements, I sometimes see the term "lumber core." Can you tell me if and how this differs from regular plywood?

ANSWER: In what you call regular plywood, there are a number of layers or plies of veneer. Each piece of plywood has an odd number of plies, such as three, five,

Senator Faces Crisis In Novel

NOON ON THE THIRD DAY.
By James Hulbert.

The central figure of this story is a liberal member of the United States Senate. Its theme is how he faces a crisis in his political career.

The book is steeped thoroughly in the complexities of high-level politics, and readers who enjoy the sights and sounds of the Washington scene will be well rewarded.

Sen. John Burnet has been representing Missouri for 29 years, and is coming up to an election that should bring him his fifth term in the upper house.

At this point there is a big, noisy fight over a bill which bears the tag "labor reform", involving high stakes for both unions and management. Meanwhile Burnet's protégé in the governor's chair back in Missouri has decided to challenge him in the primary.

Hulbert has filled his book with all the lore of legislative machinery, lobbying, fence-mending and the mercurial hazards of political expediency and his own conscience.

The pressure of both management and labor lobbyists is depicted mainly through two men representing an electric company—the old Judge, and young Paul Finch, who hopes to succeed the Judge; and through two men on the union side—Ed Flowers, a shapely figurehead, and Frank Raeder, a schemer behind the scenes.

Hulbert has put a lot of excitement and color into his story. His dialog may not always be as smooth as it might be, but it gets the ideas across. It is an interesting narrative on an interesting theme.

Thoughts Of Narrator

THE ENCHANTER. By Robert Newman.

Of the four major characters in this fanciful story, three are reasonably rational human beings.

The three are Carl Harris, an American painter of considerable repute, his wife Anne, and their 18-year-old daughter Sara. Sara has gone to France for the summer, and is supposed to be staying with an elderly lady as a boarder. But when her letters suddenly stop arriving, and a cablegram of inquiry brings no answer, Harris and his wife fly to France to find out what is happening.

They find Sara has moved into the chateau of the man who is the enchanter of the book's title. He is Leo Borelli, a pretty fabulous character. He has become wealthy as a film actor—a pantomimist, particularly; he composes ballets, and plays music with professional skill; he is an art collector and world personality. His chateau is pretty fancy too. He lives there with his wife, ex-wives and assorted children, and entertains lavishly for cultured persons from all over the world. Obviously, he has a hypnotic effect over the whole menage, backed up by the power of wealth.

The story is about the efforts of the Harrises to come to grips with this enchanter and break his influence over their daughter. There also is a subplot of Harris' own attempt to find his artistic bearings.

The story has an air of unreality about it. But that is no real objection; it is that kind of story. An unusual attraction of this novel is the author's gift for conveying the thoughts of his narrator, Harris. Newman does a beautiful job of transmitting into words the electrical spasm and spiced electricity that flash through the human mind.

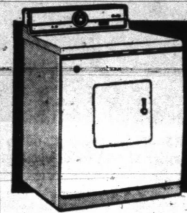

It is an experienced writer's first novel, and quite remarkable.

Oregano, that savory herb, does wonders for lamb whether the meat is broiled, roasted, braised.

WOMEN HONORED — These nine senior members of the East Side Church of Christ were honored with a Fall salad luncheon in the home of Mrs. Richard M. Williams, 3615 Avenue B Thursday noon. A Fall and Halloween motif was carried out in the table and home decor. The ages of the honorees ranged from 66 to 83 years young.

Mrs. Voss Hostess To H-D Club

The Tri Community Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Carl Voss, Jr., with nine members present.

The thought for the day was "I grumbled every morning when I had to get up, until one morning I couldn't get up."

The following letter from the Abilene State School was read by Mrs. Billy Huddleston.

"Dear Volunteers:

"First, there must be a dream — then comes the accomplishment. It is by this process that all worthwhile things are achieved."

"It is the dreamers of the world, volunteers with imagination, who have seen great possibilities in their mind's eye, and who have undertaken the project of converting the former dairy barn into a recreation center for the exclusive use of the 2,000 students at Abilene State School."

"Make no little plans — they have no magic to stir men's minds. And our dreams are not small — plans call for a large living room complete with T.V., radio, magazines, and books; a snack bar where we hope to serve hamburgers, hot dogs, pop corn, and snow cones; a room for games and square dancing; an outdoor patio; a large doll house; an arts and crafts house, and many other types of entertainment for the students."

"To date, the concrete slab floor has been completed. However, much remains to be done. As you visualize the enormous undertaking of such a project, you will see the Volunteer Council will need assistance from many volunteers in providing cash donations — plus — work — as part of our regular volunteers. We believe the 'Enchanted Barn' will be a place of enjoyment for years to come."

"Please publicize this project in your area. All checks or money orders must be made payable to the Volunteer Council, and envelopes should be addressed to Volunteer Council, Box 451, Abilene, Texas. We will be most grateful for all contributions, large or small."

"Our deep appreciation goes to each of you who have been so faithful and cooperative in helping provide a home of love and a sympathetic environment for our 'forever children'."

Mrs. Guy Stoker presented the program on "Make Sense With Your Clothing Dollar."

Step Saver

A number of step - saving improvements often can be made in large kitchens. One way to increase efficiency is to install an island that will double as a meal preparation and serving area. To make the island completely usable, it should be surfaced with a durable material such as ceramic tile. Real tile can't be scratched or burned and is easily cleaned.

Flowers In The Home, Inspiring

When crisp autumn days inspire you to inject a new note in your home's decorating scheme, and to do more entertaining, capitalize on the many offerings of the fall to reflect indoors the change of season.

You can easily capture the zesty mood of the season and give your home, family and friends a new outlook on life with arrangements and prominent displays of russet - colored flowers, bright berried branches, unusual dried materials and of glossy green-growing plants.

Bouquets of vibrantly colored autumnal flowers — such as chrysanthemums, pompons and carnations — and eye - catching dried arrangements, together with luxuriant green plants, make exciting focal points in your rooms and interesting accessories for entertaining.

Fresh flowers in autumn's rich colors are the perfect choice for formal and family dinner settings; green plants provide the friendly atmosphere and hospitality so important in a home, and dried arrangements with their muted colorings and interesting textures, offer timely accents for homeliving and entertaining.

Arrangements of golden mums, copper - toned pompons, bright-berried bittersweet, green huckleberry foliage and wisps of wheat, for instance, make charming centerpiece in the harvest spirit for buffet and sitdown dinners.

The possibilities for the fall and winter use of exotic foliage, pods, seeds and plant forms, virtually are endless. Dried arrangements may be designed in any style, contemporary or period, to harmonize with any room decor. For instance, colorful celosia, aspidistra leaves and feathery fern arranged in a classic container are ideal for a formal or traditional room. Artichoke flowers, preserved fern and baby wood roses in tall, modern containers, for a contemporary room.

Since dried arrangements are long - lasting, the temptation is to let a single design provide room decoration all winter long. This should be avoided, since even the most beautiful composition will become so familiar it will go unnoticed after a couple of weeks. Instead, have several dried arrangements and alternate them frequently.

A new look, and a change of pace, can always be given dried arrangements by the addition of a few fresh seasonal flowers.

PLANTING A ROSE isn't a complicated, arduous chore. Follow these instructions and you're on the road to having beautiful roses. 1. Dig a hole 18 inches wide and 12 to 15 inches deep. Replace several inches of loose soil, mixed with rose food, peat moss, leaf mold and compost, and form a mound in the center.

2. Place the rosebush on the mound and spread the roots naturally down the slope. Place the plant on the mound so that the bud union (the knot-like swollen area) is at ground level.

3. Cover the roots with soil, working in the soil around the roots to eliminate air pockets. Fill the hole three quarters full and tamp down firmly. Pour a liberal amount of water (several pails) and permit to drain.

4. After the water has completely settled, fill the remainder of the hole with soil and mound up around canes to a height of about eight inches. Remove protective mound after a week or 10 days.

the tomato. The cells have died because water did not reach them.

You may worsen the situation by cultivating too close to the plants. Use of too much nitrogen fertilizer and failure to water also will increase blossom - end rot. Spraying or dusting will not help. If you have tomatoes on stakes, you probably will find that these were hit harder than those not supported.

When rain comes, the trouble generally clears up on subsequent tomatoes.
