BOSTON CAN HAVE PONZI IS MA'S RULING

Governor Orders Wizard Of Finance To Massachusetts Cell

MORE DELAYS SIGHTED

AUSTIN, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Battleground of Charles Ponzi's fight for liberty Monday shifted to Houston when Governor Miriam A. Ferguson ordered the Boston finance wizard extradicted to Massachusetts to serve a seven to nine year sentence as a "common and notorious thief."

Tuesday at Houston before District Judge Charles Ashe, Ponzi will seek release in habeas corpus proceedings. Should Judge Ashe hold Ponzi is illegally restrained of his liberty Governor Ferguson's extradition would be set aside.

Governor Ferguson ordered Ponzi turned over to John F. Mitchell, Boston police inspector empowered by Governor Alvan T. Fuller of Massachusetts to receive the "fugitive from justice" and convey him to Massachusetts. Larceny in three counts is the offense named in the requisition and extradition papers.

Should Judge Ashe refuse to order Ponzi's release from the Harris county jail, Ponzi would have right of appeal to the court of criminal appeals here, which does not sit until the first Monday in October. He could be returned immediately to Massachusetts, only should he waive appeal.

Governor Ferguson made no comment on the extradition but E. T. Branch of Houston, Ponzi's attorney, said "the governor indicated to us that she preferred to have the issues of law presented by defense counsel decided in habeas corpus proceedings. We expect to make a determined fight for Ponzi's liberty in Judge Ashe's court."

PONZI MAY GO FREE ON COURT'S ORDER TODAY.

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 2.—(AP) Charles Ponzi, according to a member of the Houston law firm he has retained to represent him, said today that their client had previously instructed them to appeal to the Texas court of criminal appeals in the event of an adverse decision on his application for a writ of habeas corpus.

The earliest the appeal might be decided, it also was said, would be next October. Ponzi moreover had indicated that if he failed to obtain his point in the appeals court he would take it to the Texas supreme court the docket of which is many months behind.

If the court grants the writ tomorrow it was pointed out, Ponzi will be a free man, notwithstanding Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson has ordered his extradition to Massachusetts. If the courts refuse it, Ponzi still has a loop hole by furnishing $12,000 bond, the amount fixed at his preliminary hearing awaiting judgment of the appeals court. He then if he chooses to use it, has the supreme court of the state as a last refuge.

From her older sister, Cassie, Merry learns that he is Anthony Gaines, a friend of her employer, Morley Kaufman, with whom she is in love.

One night Merry goes to the circus with Jinny, her youngest sister, and Derrick Jones, a college boy who lives next door. A lion breaks loose in the tent, and in the mad rush for the entrance Merry finds herself with Anthony Gaines. He takes her home and kisses her against her will. She doesn't want him to start out by kissing her, because she really cares for him, and wants her friendship with him to be something more than a continual 'petting party." When she tells Tony about her numerous other love affairs, he is disgusted with her, and makes up his mind never to see her again. But he can't stay away from her, and they make up their quarrel.

He goes out of town on a business trip, and several days pass without Merry's hearing from him. During his absence, Merry's father dies suddenly. But she forgets the incident in the general excitement.

A week after the funeral Tony comes to the house one night. Moms, who has never met him, discovers him in the front hall kissing Merry, and demands to know what he means by it. Moms had often forbidden Merry to let men make love to her.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XI

Merry was too surprised to speak. She just stood there with Tony Gaines' arms around her and blinked at her mother in the sudden dazzling glare of the hall light.

She had never seen Moms looking so angry. Her face was ghastly,and her eyes were mere points of brightness in it. She was shaking from head to foot as if she had a chill.

"Who is this man, Mary Ann?" she asked, barely moving her pale lips. But she was not looking at Merry as she said it. She was staring straight at Tony Gaines.

And it was he who answered her. He was blushing a singularly bright shade of pink above his spotless collar. But his eyes met Moms' squarely and frankly, and his voice was smooth and pleasant.

"My name is Anthony Gaines, Mrs. Locke," he said quietly. "Didn't Merry tell you I was coming here one night last week to see you?"

Moms nodded grimly, and waited for him to go.

"I couldn't. I was called out of town," he explained, in that same pleasant voice, "so I came tonight, instead. I just got off the train a few minutes ago. I—I want to marry Merry, and I came to talk to you and her father—"

He got no further. For at the very mention of Dad's name, Moms' face crumpled up and her head went down into her hands.

Crying in that dreadful, silent way of hers, she hurried blindly past them and up the stairs.

Distress and puzzlement were written on Tony's face as he watched her out of sight.

"What's the matter?" he asked, turning to Merry, and suddenly he saw that she, like Moms, was all in black.

"My father—my father died last week," she told him, struggling to keep back the tears that were flooding to her throat and eyes.

"I'd better go home. I can see your mother some other time," said Tony. "You'll want to run upstairs to her, anyway."

He made a move toward the front door. But Merry clung to him, her fingers straining at his coat sleeves as she held him close to her.

"No, no Don't go!" she whispered, drawing a long tearful breath, "I won't let you go, now that you're here. Oh, Tony, Tony, you don't know how I've missed you. I was afraid you were never coming again!"

Still clinging she drew him across the threshold of the front door, and out into the darkness of the spring night.

They sat in the vine-screened hammock at one end of the porch, where Merry had spent almost every evening last summer with Derrick Jones.

"But I never felt about Derrick the way I do about Tony Gaines," she told herself. She leaned back in his arms and touched his face with gentle fingertips as if she wanted to make sure that it was really he who was here with her, and not Derrick Jones.

"Tony," she said gravely, "I was afraid you'd made up your mind to stay away from me. I was afraid you thought I wasn't worth bothering about. But—you do like me, don't you?"

She asked it wistfully. It was the first time in her life she had ever asked any man that question. But she cared so much for Tony Gaines that she never felt sure of him for two days at a time. No woman ever does feel really sure of the man she loves.

"I don't like you—I love you, and you know it," Tony answered. In the darkness his hand found hers and crushed it until it hurt.

"What's more, I always will," he added.

"And so shall I you," echoed Merry. In the darkness her eyes, that were so gay and deep, were shining as they never had shone for any man before. It was a pity that Tony couldn't have seen them.

At eleven o'clock, Moms' voice called sharply from the darkness within the house. "Merry—Time for you to say goodnight, now."

Three minutes later as they were standing at the top of the steps, where Tony had stopped for his last kiss, Morley Kaufman's big closed car swung up the street and stopped in front of the house.

Cassie got out and came up the walk. She paused for a second as she saw Tony and Merry.

"Why, it's Mr. Gaines!" she said in a surprised tone, "how do you do?"

She shook his hand in a friendly sort of way, before she passed on into the house.

But ten minutes afterward when Merry went upstairs to bed, Cassie was waiting for her, and her face was like a thunder-cloud.

"What's the big idea, anyway?" she asked, following Merry into her bedroom.

"I don't know what you mean," Merry answered her mildly, as she sat down on the edge of the bed to undress herself.

"Why, I mean this affair between you and Gaines. That's what I mean." Cassie seemed to jerk the words out of her mouth. "Why does he come here to see you, all the time?"

Merry's blue green eyes widened.

"This is the first time he's come to call," she said quietly. She was far too happy to quarrel tonight with anyone. "I suppose he came because he wanted to come."

"Well, I wish he wouldn't," snapped Cassie, her face haggard above her black dress. "It doesn't do me any good to have you mixed up with Morley Kaufman's friends. It cheapens me—"

"Cheapens you?" Merry cut her off short. "Why, what are you talking about, Cassie Locke? How in the world could I cheapen you?"

"Because you're cheap yourself." Cassie's face was ugly with anger and her words stung. "Don't you suppose I know that any fellow who comes along can kiss you? Don't you suppose I've seen you and Derrick Jones hugging each other for dear life right out there on the front porch a dozen times? And now you're starting the same thing with this Gaines. I tell you I won't have it. I won't have it."

Her voice rose high and strident in the night-time stillness of the house. Jinny turned restlessly in her bed, and murmured something about "hiring a hall for pity's sake!"

Then the bedroom door was flung open and Moms stood there, looking from one daughter to the other, with tear-swollen eyes.

"Haven't we had enough unhappiness in this house the last week, without you adding to it?" she asked them. "What is it you're making all this noise about, quarrelling in the middle of the night? It's enough to wake the dead!"

Cassie's nostrils dilated defiantly.

"Well, it's high time somebody talked to Merry," she cried. "There she was in plain sight, kissing that Gaines man, when Morley and I drove up to the house. Kissing him, and she hardly knows him. What do you suppose Morley Kaufman thinks of me, with a sister like that?"

What Morley Kaufman might think or might not think about her was the most important thing in the whole wide world to Cassie.

Merry laughed—a low, lazy laugh. "Well if you're really worried about what Morley Kaufman thinks, Cassie," she drawled, "you might tell him that I'm going to marry his friend, Tony Gaines."

There was an electric stillness in the little room for a second.

Then Cassie sneered. "Now, tell another one, Merry," she said, her lips narrowed in an unbelieving smile.

"What she says is perfectly true, Cassie," Moms broke in. "The young man came here tonight to see me. Now, no more of this talking back and forth. You go into your room."

Cassie went. But on the threshhold she turned, still with that horrid smile disfiguring her face.

"Gaines may marry you, Merry," she sneered, "but if I were you I wouldn't hold my breath until he does."

When the door had shut behind her, Moms sat down on the edge of the bed beside Merry and looked at her anxiously. "After all we know nothing about him."

"I do. I know everything about him," Merry answered promptly.

Moms shook her head and a little frucker came between her black eyebrows.

"You know nothing except what he tells you, and he tells you only what he wants you to know," she contradicted. "And besides, you never can tell where a little love-making may lead. It's a dangerous thing to start."

Merry smiled secretly. "I just wish she knew how much petting I've done in my time," she laughed to herself.

"Moms, I'm no Dumb Dora," she said aloud to her mother. "I know my way around. I can look after myself. Don't you worry about me for a second."

"Yes, but how can I help worrying?" Moms asked, getting up to go. "There's no one but me to look after you now, Merry. I've got to be father and mother, both, to you girls from now on." One uncontrolable sob escaped her as she went out of the room, and left Merry alone with her dreams.

* * *

It was not until the very last day of June that Merry found a way of breaking the news to Moms that she had "flunked" her tests at business school.

She was wondering how to do it one morning at breakfast, when Helen walked into the kitchen with some news of her own.

"I'm leaving home next week, Moms," she said to her mother, with the air of a person who has made up her mind to get an unpleasant task done, and done quickly. Her voice was high and excited.

Moms set down her coffee cup with a clatter, and pushed back her chair from the table.

"What are you talking about?" she asked, looking stunned. "Have you lost your mind? Where would you go if you left home, I'd like to know?"

Helen flushed, and pushed back her straggling hair with a work-hardened hand.

"I'm going to keep house for Bill Hepworth," she said, calmly, and then added, "we've been married for more than a month, Moms."

Moms dropped back into her chair. Probably for the first time in her talkative life, she couldn't think of a word to say. She just sat and stared at Helen as if she were someone she never had laid eyes on before.

"Well," she said with a loud gasp, after a long pause, "well, I never heard of such a thing. When have you seen Bill Hepworth lately?"

Helen ran a nervous finger along the tablecloth, as she answered:

"Oh, at different times," she said, not meeting her mother's eyes. "Usually when I went down to the store to see Dad. And sometimes I'd meet him and we'd go for a drive, and then one day we—we just got married."

Moms' lip curled.

"I don't see why he didn't come here to see you like a gentleman," she remarked severely. "That's one thing I like about Merry's young man. He comes here to the house to see her, the way he should—not sneaking her off into his automobile like Morley Kaufman does with Cassie, as if he were ashamed of being seen here. In my day a girl didn't go out with a man until he had her parents' consent."

She shot a sharp glance at Cassie as she spoke.

Cassie said nothing. She, herself, couldn't understand why Morley Kaufman never came to the house. It worried her, because he never had. It didn't look as if he "meant business."

"Well," Moms sighed. "I don't know what I'm going to do without you, Helen. Right in the middle of the canning season, too—" she sighed again.

This was Merry's chance.

"I'll tell you, mother," she cried, eagerly, "I'll take Helen's place in the house. I'll help you with the work."

"You!" Moms' tone was withering. "You, that can't even boil an egg or make a bed so it's fit to sleep in. You'd be a lot of good to me, wouldn't you?"

"If I'm going to get married, I ought to learn something about housework," Merry went on stubbornly.

"You're not married yet," Moms reminded her, "and right now we need money more than anything else. Thank goodness you're through with your business course and can go right into an office."

Merry drew a long breath. "But I'm not through with it," she said with a little gasp. "I flunked—I flunked part of it."

Faced with the problem of going to work, Merry decides that she must marry at once. How her plan works out will be found in the next installment of "The Petter."

"We've been married for a whole month," Helen said shyly.

This is reckoned by a report fishing village on the Halifax county line, near which the voyagers passed last Wednesday. They are in the tiny open craft Leif Arikson, a copy of the ship that brought the Vikings across the ocean ten centuries ago.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Professor A. This was greeted with vigorous cries of "no" and laughter by the university women.

Waves So High Couldn't See Sky! Houstonians Aboard Steamer In Hurricane Tell Pop-Eyed World

S. S. Momus Rocks Like Cradle, Drifts Miles Off Course, Passengers Sleep In Life Preservers, But Nobody Loses Life

HOUSTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—It was a wild ride that Houstonians who were aboard the steamship Momus of the Morgan Line told their friends about when they arrived home Sunday.

The ship arrived in New Orleans Saturday afternoon from New York after having weathered one of the worst hurricanes ever experienced by ships of that line off the Florida coast.

They told of mountainous seas, wave-swept decks, terrific winds, crying women and children and heroic efforts of the ship's officers and crew that finally brought the vessel safely into the Gulf.

The worst of the storm struck early Tuesday morning, according to Mrs. H. Kalmans, while the Momus was off the coast of Florida, near Miami.

"It looked to us at times the waves were splitting the ship in half," she said. "The waves were so high that sometimes we couldn't see the sky.

"Nobody went to the table to eat Tuesday and when time came to sleep, many went to bed with life preservers on. There was water in the state rooms and our clothes were soaked."

Though some of the women were crying and most everybody looked worried, on the whole the passengers remained fairly calm, according to Ben F. Harless, wholesale jeweler of Houston, who was also on the ship.

"It was just as much like the old Galveston storm of 1915 as it could be," he declared. "The waves went as high as 40 feet and the wind attained a velocity of 85 miles an hour about noon Tuesday. All the dinner slid off the stove so there wasn't much eaten that day, even by those who could eat.

"We came within 14 miles of Jupiter Light. The wind was from the east and we headed into it. Later the ship was allowed to drift with the current and we went back northwards for more than 100 miles. It was good maneuvering on the part of the captain and that was what saved us, I think."

Walter Ward Not "Lost" to Family

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The whereabouts of Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire barkery owner who disappeared May 6 under mysterious circumstances are known to his family.

This became known last night when Sheriff Howe of Suffolk county, long Island, notified the missing persons bureau of the New York police department that a bottle had been washed ashore near Riverhead bearing of the following note:

"Held on Robin's Island. For God's sake send help—Walter Ward."

Detective Thomas Williams informed the sheriff that relatives of Ward had been in touch with him for more than a month and a half and that they had requested that the long search for him be called off.

Ward, who was acquitted of the murder of Clarence Peters in an alleged blackmail plot in 1922, has vanished on previous occasions. Once it took his own detective more than a week to trail him and when they found him he was "following the ponies" at a Maryland race track.

WINE CAUSES FIRE LOSS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A desire to loot the wine cellar reported to be in the basement of the historic Ravensworth home in Fairfax county, Va., was seen today by county officers as a possible motive for the setting of the fire which destroyed the mansion early yesterday.

With the burning of the mansion Virginia lost another landmark deemed worthy of rank with Mount Vernon and the Lee mansion at Arlington. Built by Lord Ravensworth about 140 years ago, it formed the manor house of his then vast estates which had been granted by the crown of England.

SOCIETY

FIFTY girls, sunburned and tired from the two week's camp at Craterville Park held under the auspices of the Camp Fire Girls, have returned from the fifth annual summer outing at "Letoli." The summer camp was in two sessions, each lasting one week, and a majority of girls stayed the fortnight. A definite program had been arranged and was carried out, Miss Mary Mellheran, local executive said, and varied lines of instruction formed an interesting part of camp life. Swimming, tied dyeing, nature study, laws of Camp Fire, camp cooking and other studies were conducted during the camp.

The following account was given of the camp by a group of Camp Fire Girls:

Council Fire.

The Council Fire on Friday evening was the climax of the week's work. The Council Fire was held at the Council Ring, surrounded completely by beautiful oak trees. The call of Wohelo was given by Miss Mellheran, executive, and camp director, wearing the ceremonial gown. From the trees in the distance the call was answered by the girls who began to appear from three directions, each line being led by one girl bearing the flaming torch. The circle was formed, and the three girls bearing the torches, lighted the fire with the ritual work, health and love, symbolic of the three sides of "Wohelo" triangle as follows: Cliftin Butler, work; Jean Fisk, health, and Edith Crump, love. By the light of the fire, the hand sign was given, and "Wohelo for Aye", sung by the group.

Symbolisms.

The symbolism of the Camp Fire Girls system of honors was explained, showing how each honor bead or special honor, is a symbol of accomplishment to the wearer, and is worn only by those who have really earned them. The "Know Every Girl" honor was awarded to each girl who made an accurate list of first and last names of every girl in camp. Those earning these honors were: Dorothy and Norma Rollins, Maerita Horn, Lucile Snyder, Dolores Graves, Lois and Jean Fisk, Helen, Elizabeth and Mrs. Tandy of Fort Worth, Muriel and Majory Jones, Fannie Blank, Cliftine Butler, Augenia Edgar, Nell Smith, Edith Crump, Merle Barnett, Mrs. Geo. Hengy, Helen Vogel, Mary Moore Brown, and Olive Humphreys.

A special handcraft honor was awarded to the girls who did special voluntary service to camp in painting honors. These went to Elizabeth Tandy, Olive Humphries, Loraine Mathis, Mary Moore Brown, Majorie Jones and Edith Crump. The Hand Craft honors were awarded to those completing three articles in handcraft including basketry, tied dye work, count books and bird baths. Those earning handcraft honors were: Helen, Elizabeth and Mrs. Tandy, Dorothy and Norma Rollins, Edith Crump, Cliftine Butler, Jean Fisk, Mrs. Geo. Hengy, Evelyn Van Emden, Majorie Jones, Thelma James. Neat Tent honors were awarded to Jean Fisk, Olive Humphries, Fannie Blank, Helen Vogel, Louise and Charlotte Kennedy, Francis Hyland, Laura Linn Hathaway, Dorothy and Norma Rollins, Merle Barnett, Louise Van Emden, Augenia Edgar, Helen and Elizabeth Tandy, Edith Crump, Cliftine Butler, Muriel Jones, Maerita Horn, Mrs. Geo. Hengy, Thelma James.

The land honors are devided into three ranks, Fagot Finder, Trail Maker and Gypsy. Those earning Fagot Finder only were: Mary Moore Brown, Helen and Elizabeth Tandy, Norma and Dorothy Rollins, Merle Barnett, Muriel Jones, trail makers were Mrs. Tandy and Mrs. Geo. Hengy. Gypsy honors went to: Elizabeth Crump, Jean Fisk and Cliftine Butler.

The swimming ranks of Pollywog, Frog, Fish and Flying Fish formed the basis of work accomplished during two weeks at camp. Appreciation of Mrs. Geo. Hengy's splendid work with the girls was given at the council fire. Week honors earned were as follows: Pollywog: Laura Lynn Hathaway, Charlotte Kennedy, Augenit Edgar, Fannie Godfrey, Dorothy Smart, Dorothy Lee Taylor, Louise Beaseley, Elizabeth Downing, Myrtle Vincent, Linnie Mae Baggett, Alizabeth James, Dorothy Sommervilie, Emeline Link, and Margaret Davis, Mildred Johnson. Frog: Evelyn Van Emden, Mae Belle Turner, Thelma James, Dora Jennette Nix, Margaret Walton and Genevieve Fritz. Fish: Olive Humphries, Ola Frances Walton, Lois Brackett, Lee Ellen Boardman, Martha Lou Laws, Mary Hyatt, Lois Fisk, Frances Tyson, Lorene Prichart, Georgianna Sherwood and Fannie Blank. Flying Fish: Jean Fisk, Cliftin Butler, Mrs. Geo. Hengy. Second week: Pollywog: Helen Vogel and Mary Brown. Frog: Elizabeth Tandy, Lorraine Mathis, Charlotte Kennedy. Fish: Mary Mellheran, Louise and Evelyn Van Emden, Nell Smith, Dorothy Rollins, Dolores Graves, Muriel and Majorie Jones, Edith Crump and Augenta Edgar.

Honor for Nursing

A special honor was presented to Thelma James, 13-year old Camp Fire Girl who nursed George Hengy Jr., the 7-months-old son of the swimming councillor, Mrs. George C. Hengy. She prepared his food scientifically, bathed and dressed him and cared for him very efficiently. Mrs. Hengy also presented her with a minature Indian squaw and papoose as a symbol of her services at camp.

The Boating Song was sung by the following girls: Edith Crump, Cliftine Butler, Jean Fisk, Dorothy Rollins, Dolores Graves, Helen Tandy. Several cheers were sung to "Cookie" —our very efficient cook, Blackjack —Mr. Frank Rush and to Mr. and Mrs. Evan Kelly. Impromptu talks were made by Nell Smith, Mrs. Lewis Tandy of Fort Worth, Edith Crump and Mrs. Frank Rush. The Camp Fire Girl's favorite motion song, "Mammy Moon," was sung as the Council Fire burned low. "Lay Me to Sleep" closed the ceremonial and the girls filed out singing "How Our Camp Fire Fadeth."

At the Game Preserve.

An all day picnic was held on Wednesday at Panther Creek, beautiful location inside of the U. S. game preserve.

An interesting event of each week was the Thursday evening banquet which was planned and carried out by the girls. Dorothy Smart was toastmistress the first week, calling on the different members to toast the camp director, councillors, visitors, the cook ad the girls. Miss Dorothy Rollins presided as toastmistress the second week, appointing Muriel Jones and Lois Fisk as the decoration committee, and Norma Rollins and Merle Barnett to take charge of the making of the place cards. Songs and toasts were the program for the evening. Some were given to Mary Mellheran, Pat Hengy, swimming councillor; Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Tandy of Fort Worth, Mr. Kelly, business manager of the district Boy Scout Home, Vesper Rocks, K. P.'s the camp goat and Letoli's weather. A tie and dyed scarf was presented to Mrs. E. N. Kelly and a sewing basket was presented to the wife of the camp cook.

Where Did She Get That Graceful Figure

You remember her of course—not so long ago she was a regular scarecrow—skinny is a mild word for the way she looked.

Just look at her now—if ever a woman had a perfect figure she has it—she is the envy of half the girls in town.

It's nothing to get excited about—all she did was to take on weight—filled out the hollows in face, neck and chest—any skinny weak, run down woman can do the same and gain a clean clear complexion at the same time.

Just get 60 McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets for 60 cents at Smith and Renfros drug stores or any druggist. Take two after each meal and two at bedtime and if any excessively thin woman, or man either for that matter, doesn't gain at least five pounds in 30 days! Why! Money back.

New Hall-Mills Clues Doubted

Woman Who Would Solve Murder Not Taken Seriously

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Virginia Dorothy Delson Harding, wife of a Milwaukee filling station employe, who came to Chicago with the assertion that she was prepared to solve the murder of the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, was among the missing today. She had checked out at her hotel and her whereabouts was unknown, although she was believed to be still in the city.

Officials were not inclined to take her statements any too seriously, while those in New Jersey and Mrs. Hall herself, held in connection with the slaying, manifested little if any interest. Mrs. Harding had found it difficult if not impossible to find railroad fare to New Jersey, officials having learned she had a penchant for traveling. She declared Mrs. Hall was innocent and she could prove it.

SENATOR WIRTZ A WINNER

ALL the returns are in and Senator A. J. Wirtz of Seguin is the democratic nominee in the 19th senatorial district. His rival for the prize was Judge T. J. Ellis of Maxwell. Wirtz carried the counties of Caldwell, Hayes and Gonzales. According to the returns from all six counties Wirtz has a majority of 457 votes.

Congressman Harry Wurzbach is a resident of Seguin and Guadalupe and Comal are in the 14th congressional district. On account of a state-wide republican primary, the lines were drawn and the democratic friends of Wurzbach had to face the issue. They had to cast their ballots in a democratic primary and go all down the line, or rather the primary ticket, from sovernor to constable.

Wirtz is a young man who has cut a decided figure in the upper house of the Texas legislature. First, he was elected to fill a vacancy, then he was given a regular nomination by the democrats of his district. Luck did not attend him when the names were drawn from a hat for the long and the short term. He drew a short term.

In the firts session that he figured, Pat Morris Neff was governor. Neff had a pet measure. He called it the Ousted bill. This bill provided that sheriffs and prosecuting attorneys who were charged with indifference when it came to law enforcement could be dragged to Travis county for trial.

This so-called ouster bill robbed an official of a right to face his accusers in his own county or district where he had been the choice of the majority of the voters for the place that he filled. Senator Wirtz fought the ouster bill tooth and toe and nail. He declared that it was an abridsement of the constitutional rights of citizens, an invasion of the bill of rights, a contemptuous disregard for the cherished democratic doctrine of home rule and local self-government.

Wirtz and those who rallied to his standard defeated the bill and Neff went down in defeat. He is the author of the search and seizure law. It was enacted by the 39th legislature. It is not an inovation. It merely provides a penalty for over zealous officers who search and seize, or invade the premises of property of another, without a warrant.

This was the principle issue in the 19th district, Judge Ellis holding that the search and seizure act should be so amended that officers of the law could search and seize automobiles or other public conveyances, without a warrant. Senator Wirtz in his career as a lawmaker, has shown himself to be very friendly to the institutions of higher learning and the public schools in making appropriations for the same.

He is the protege of former State Senator Ferdinand C. Weinert.

For many years a state senator and the author of all the reform laws which deal with penitentiary problems and the care of convicts. Weinert put the indeterminate sentence law over. He was responsible for the suspended sentence act and the first draft law was penned by Weinert and was intended for youthful first offenders. It was never intended for men of mature years convicted of crime.

Senator Weinert is responsible for the parole act, and he never agreed with Neff or Ferguson in any way these sovernors handled penitentiary matters. He has been a student of penology for many years, he is knwon as a very wise and humane old man who followed his own convictions while in public life and never bowed to the dictates or demands of governor or party boss.

It was known early in the campaign of the year that the highway scandals shocked Senator Weinert and in private life as he did not take the public platform to express his views) the rugged old democrat and lawmaker had plenty to say to his friends and followers as to the duties of all public officials when it came to honesty in government and an economical expenditure of the people.

TOM CONNALLY OF TEXAS

TOM CONNALLY of Texas had opposition this year. Tom has been the pride of the 11th district for many years. He must be losing his hold or his grip on the voters of the district. His majority over the unfortunate is only 25,000. Speaking of wallops, it happened in the contest in the Connally district and the other fellow got it.

A SENATORIAL VOTE COUNTS

THERE is to be a special session of the of the legislature in September, and now the politicians are busying themselves about the senatorial lineup when it comes to the confirmation of Ferguson administration appointees. It requires two-thirds of all the senators to confirm. It requires one more than one-third to reject. There are 31 senators.

There is a vacancy in the ninth district. W. S. Moore of Cooke county won the nomination two years ago and was elected. He served in the senate of the 39th. A district judge died. Colonel Alvin C. Owsley of Denton county became an applicant to fill the vacancy. He had been a Ferguson supporter. The Fergusons named Senator Moore and when he qualified as judge, he was automatically out of the senate.

Ousley became a candidate for judge against Moore. It was a battle royal between two Ferguson followers and when the returns were all in Owsley had by 78 majority, and now the defeated one is threatening to sue Owsley for the recovery of heavy damages for alleged libel in the closing days of the campaign. This isn't where the rub come sin.

There is a vacancy in the senatorial district, and Ed Westbrook, who defeated S. B. Cowell on July 24, and is the regular party nominee, has announced as a candidate to fill the vacancy created by the passing of Moore, first to the district bench and later to private lift. Westbrook is anti-Ferguson, and all three counties in this senatorial district were carried by Moody in the recent landslide.

Cooke county is the former home of Joseph Weldon Bailey, but gave a majority for Mooody on July 24. Should Westbrook be nominated or rather elected to fill the vacancy there are politicians who say that there will be 11 senators opposed at all times to the confirmation of many of the Ferguson appointees. There are other politicians who say that there are 15 or 16 senate and perhaps a greater number who will constitute an independent group when the legislative grind begins in September who will follow their own flag and not the flag of the administration or the administration to come. All this is dealing in futures. It will be well to watch and wait.

RAGGING THE REPS

AND now the newspapers of the state are ragging the republicans. They are ragging those of the house of Creager as well as those of the house of Wurzbach. Out of something like 1,350,000 qualified voters in Texas, the total vote of both factions of the republicans will fall below the 15,000 mark.

Gooseneck Bill McDonald is the leader of the republican blacks. He is a Fort Worth banker, as black as ebony, and as shrewd a member of the Afro-American contingent as the south contains. Gooseneck Bill says, or rather he said before the upheavel came, that 150,000 negroes had poll tax receipts, but as they are not of the house of Creager or of the house of Wurzbach, they would not show up on primary election day. Gooseneck Bill is something of a prophet. His black followers did not show up. They voted in large numbers two years ago and thousands voted for the Fergusons and against Dr. George C. Butte.

Is there a republican party in Texas? If so, what happened to it on primary election day?

TEXAS

JOSEPT A. KEMP, whose name has appeared in the public print many times of late, came out of the contest smiling, He was astride of the crest of the waves. This is what he said, "I believe that Texsa is entering upon a period of stabalization in politics and financial affairs that has never been equalled. Texas has resources. They are being developed. It is only a question of time with afairs of Texas in proper hands and that Texas will be the outstanding state in the entire United States and known all over the world for its enormous wealth from natural resources." It was a great day for the builders of Texas. It was a great day for the wealth makers of Texas. It was a great day for that vast army of Texans who would place their state first They have spoken.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

That morning Lou carried uptown the mental picture of a spirit that seemed rather beaten down into doggedness. The old smile wasn't so quick and bright of late. Of course, that task of trudging from office to office, looking every moment her brightest and prettiest, was a wearing experience. And the time was coldly passing even when a bit might be picked up in a spring tryout. Lou watched her during the next few days with guarded concern. She knew that Bee wouldn't welcome any effusive sympathy. Neither of them went in for that sort of thing. One small opportunity came, to do an ugly little role with one of those hopeful semi-amateur groups that of recent years have made themselves felt in New York. The play was a bitter tragedy of rural life in Czecho-Slovakia, the theater a built-over stable, the pay nothing at all. After some hesitation, weighing the remote possibility that the production might attract sufficient critical attention to prove a stepping-stone to better things, Bee decided against it.

Instead, she went back into one of the more popular of the village restaurants, where she had worked before in similar lean times, and where her pleasantly fresh personality was welcomed as an asset. This place was in a basement over near Washington Square, and was known as the Peacock Feather. As a waitress she received the merest pittance, but had her dinners free; and furthermore, since she didn't have to report until tea-time, the middle hours of each day were still hers to walk Broadway. The proprietors were two well-known young women of the village, pseudo-artists both, and most of the patrons were Bohemian acquaintances. Russian tea and sundry exotic dishes were served. Bee wore a becoming apron of unbleached linen from a hand loom, with an edging of embroidery in the bright blues and reds and greens of eastern Europe.

Lou made it a point to drop in nearly every evening for dinner. She had decorated the interior boldly in peacock colors, and was a privileged character there.

One evening, when all but the last of the diners had drifted out, Bee brought her own dinner as usual to the table where Lou sat smoking.

"Bee," said Lou—she was in sober mood—"they're closing The Gondoliers' next week. The cast all have their notices."

"Hmm! Then I'm not so much worse off than the rest of them. Only two weeks' pay."

"Business seems to be falling off fast." Lou looked away toward the wide front window and the steps that led up to the sidewalk and drummed lightly on the table. "It's going to come down pretty hard on Leslie. He expected it to run on into the summer. He won't have put by a cent. I don't quite see what he'll do."

"Probably drift along like the rest of us," remarked Bee. "He's ablebodied." His name hadn't come up in their talk since the night Lou destroyed his letter. Those other letters had come since, Bee knew—bulky ones. One or two she had herself brought up from the mailbox, to leave them casually on the table. What became of them after that she didn't know. She hadn't seen Lou reading them.

Lou moodily deposited the ash of her cigarette in a saucer. "Of course you've noticed," she said, "I'm not having any too happy a time these days."

"Well, I have rather thought—"

"Oh, you'd see it. I'm afraid he needs me." She smoked thoughtfully. "It did seem best to stop the affair—cut it off short. But it's pretty difficult." There was a rather long silence; then Lou added this: "I used to think you could benefit by your emotions—use them for stimulus, even. But I'm not so sure. Once you really let go"

"That's what has always scared me," said Bee. "I've never been able to face it." She reached for her friend's cigarette-case. "Hmm. Yes, it scares me. Probably I've been right. If you find it hard to swing, with your poise and mentality, I never could. Never in the world. I know I'm a child in some ways. And it's no game for children. Of course I've considered it. If I really had a mind—but I haven't."

"That's nonesense."

"Not at all. I haven't—not like yours. You know perfectly well that your brain is a trained machine."

"I don't know any such thing." Lou's voice had taken on a slight edge that Bee hadn't heard in it before. "The worst of it is, I'm simply beset by emotion. Hemmed in! Les is at me all the time, of course. He's discouraged. Doesn't seem to have any independent drive in him. And at the office I have Wilbur all day."

"Oh, I'd half forgotten Wilbur."

"I haven't." Lou sighed. "He's a whipped dog. Doesn't say anything, but I can't get away from it. There he is, all the time. The fact is, dear, I'm shaken. It certainly is no game for children. I'm beginning to wonder if I'm not a child too. But there's no good in talk."

So she dismissed it. For Lou never given to self-pity or to personal confession, this had been a good deal of an outburst.

Bee went to the kitchen for her dessert. When she returned their talk veered to other matters. Bee reported a fruitless but amusing interview with a producer, while Lou listened, more her usual controlled self now, smoking away and idly watching the legs of passersby on the sidewalk.

"Have you heard the news about Arthur Rockwell?" Lou asked, as a random memory stirred.

Bee looked up quickly.

"Come to think of it, I was asked not to say anything. Jo Abeloni told me. He's going too."

"Going where?"

"On that big museum expedition to central America. Next month, Jo says Arthur is in a state of excitement about it. Deciphering old inscriptions and studying primitive literary forms."

"Central America in summer," mused Bee. "It sounds hot."

"I don't know that the tropics are any hotter in summer than in winter. Probably the thing is to avoid the rainy season."

"It's nuts for Arthur, of course," said Bee. "But what'll Delia do? He could hardly—"

"Take her? Oh, no. Not with that sort of proper scholarly outfit. If he tried it, they'd never let him bring her back. I'd have you to understand, young woman, that the morality of this fair land is above reproach." Then, abruptly, he touched Bee's arm and added, in a lower voice: "Look! See who's here!"

I'M THE GINK

I'm the ginkette who never attempts to inspire my husband to ambitious projects or worth-while things. I surround him with a lot of vacuous talk of bridge and entertainments. I lisp baby phrases and demand a lot of being taken on his knee and kissed. Of course it is easy enough to kill ambition with a lot of insane chatter and froth. I don't mind. I like my pleasures now and his future doesn't matter.

Questions From the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

Which Helps Her Husband Most, the Wife Who Saves and Looks Shabby or the One Who Spends and Looks Smart?—The Two Sisters Who Toil For Their Worthless Brother—The Spoiled Wife and Her 'Unbelievable Husband.

Dear Miss Dix—My sister-in-law is so saying that she really doesn't keep herself looking decent. Never has anything but the cheapest clothes. Won't even have her teeth fixed, although they badly need it; puts every penny in the bank. She criticizes me because I dress well and take care of myself; but I notice that her husband never takes her out, while mine is proud to be seen out with me and to show me off. Which one of us is right?

MRS. EXTRAVAGANT.

ANSWER:

Parsimony and extravagance are equally to be condemned. If you have to lean to one side of the other it is probably better to be too stingy than to be too wasteful, for, at least, the tightwad does not hurt any one but himself, whereas others always have to pay the waster's bills.

Of course, there is a happy medium in spending, as in everything else. Fortunately are those who achieve it, who know when to open their pocketbooks and when to snap them shut; who are liberal without being extravagant; who keep well within their incomes and save up something for the rainy day without becoming penny-pinchers.

But when all is said—when you leave generalities and come down to brass tacks and small incomes—there is no more difficult problem that a woman has to solve than whether it is better to be frugal or extravagant, and how much she is justified in spending on personal adornment.

Because few married women have any way of earning money they feel that the only way by which they can help their husbands is by saving. Therefore, the wife who is ambitious for her man becomes a nickel-nurser.

She pares every expense to the bone. She scrimps the very food they eat. She eliminates every pleasure and grace of life. Her talk is always of money, money, money. She works so hard that she grows old and ugly before her time. She never has any pretty clothes and looks the shabby household drudge that she is.

But instead of her husband and children appreciating the sacrifices she makes for them and being grateful for the money she has saved for them, they invariably look upon her with contempt. They are ashamed of her appearance. They don't want to be seen out in public with her, and her parsimony gets on their nerves.

Look around among your acquaintances and you will see that the best-loved wives and mothers are not the ones who have inched and pinched and squinched to help buy a home or send their children through college and who are wearing year-before-last's bird's nests on their heads, but the frilly ladies who always kept themselves well dressed and attractive-looking and who have taken their fair share of pleasure as it came along.

Nor can a woman always be sure that the best way of helping her husband is by putting every nickel in the bank instead of some of them on her back. A man's wife is his show window, where he advertises whatever measure of success he has met with, and it hurts his credit for her to be shabby and ill-dressed.

I once heard of a doctor whose miserly wife always looked as if she had just been fished out of the ragbag say to her:

Lyrics of Life

LYRICS OF LIFE
By Douglas Malloch.

MA ON CATS AND DOGS

If I'm like something, then a cat
Is what I'd like to be.
A man is like a dog—on that
We certainly agree.
Although to women men must hark,
When women talk or sing,
A man will either growl or bark
Or never say a thing.

A cat will catch a mouse or two
While dogs will lay and nap,
You cannot get a man to do
So much as set a trap.
A dog will lay around and sleep,
One eye upon his dish;
A cat at least will earn its keep,
And eat the things you wish.

And when a man in love is crossed,
Some woman starts a strike,
It's just some girl who won't be bossed
The way that men would like.
And, if a wife is like a cat,
It might be well if men
At times would just remember that
And pet her now and then.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. When is maple sugar tapped?
2. What trees yield turpentine?
3. Where do the cedears wielding cedar oil grow?
4. Is the parlor rubber plant the source of commercial rubber?
5. What sort of sugar is made from sorghum?
6. What is the difference, in the diet, between the use of saccharine and of ordinary sugar?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

WANTED TOO MUCH

A newspaper editor with a moving pen, who had never been in Vermont in his life, wrote an editorial, at an appropriate season of year, asking what had become of all the fine old Vermon maple sugar. He was deluged from the marble state with great cakes of the finest sugar the old tree ever yielded. Much pleased, he wrote another editorial, asking what had become of all the fine old chippendale furniture. You have one guess—

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. Dragon flies have four wings.
2. Scarabs are beetles.
3. Insects breather through pores.
4. Insects have no lungs; the blood is directly aerated.
5. Scorpions do not bite as a means of offense; they sting with their tails.
6. Scorpions are not insects but belong to a related group once important, now shrunk to a few remaining forms.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

LEO

Today's planetary aspects loom up satisfactorily, and are favorable. They continue so until after sundown, when they become overcast and gloomy. The signs denote that, although encouraging conditions prevail, active efforts along the line of fresh enterprise will not be so successful, as the efforts made in connection with the unraveling of some complex problem or the solution, hitherto unattainable, of some difficulty. It should be an auspicious occasion for invention or legal work. In the evening, it will be necessary to seek recreational relaxation in order to counteract the depressing influences that will be sensed, and to establish normalcy.

Children born today will, during infancy, be subjected to many worrying ailments and their physical development will, in their earlier years, be slow. Much care must be exercised in the character and method of their alimentations, and they must be given plenty of fresh air. The signs denote that they will, in their early 'teens, quickly make up lost ground, and a vigorous adulthood is assured them. They will, at all times, be very amenable to good influence and environment. They will possess strength of character and will not readily yield to temptation. They will be earnest students and possess the necessary ambition to make a success of their lives.

If today is your birthday, you act only after careful thought. You are not prone to form snap judgments of either affairs or of people. Once your mind is made up, however, it is very difficult, if not impossible, to persuade you to change your opinion. You are independent in thought and in action, and are very little influenced by what others may say or do. You, however, are considerate and never try to force your opinions on others. You concede them the same degree of liberty that you claim for yourself. You are self-contained and persistent, and can accomplish much in your own quiet, effective way. The limelight is abhorrent to you. Emotions have a great effect upon your temperament. Your love is deep and strong, and, in order to flourish as it should, must be sincerely reciprocated and your happiness demands the steadfast devotion of your mate.

BARRAGE OF PINK.

Pink Mingles With the Near Words of Gotham.

NEW YORK.—With mid-summer blowing hot breezes across New York's fashionable roof gardens, pink has descended like a colorful pall on a heat-deadened city.

Pink blooms like wide-petaled roses in the picture hats or tulle or taffeta that nod ever wide skirted matching silk frocks. Pink makes crushed strawberry ices out of the demure pleated sport dresses that crowd in among more formal costumes. Pink so pale as to be little more than the breath of the color, glimmers like a pearl in the rich taffeta robes de styles that make the most gracious of all evening toilettes.

DOLL BIRTH RATE HIGH

Estimated Doll Population Placed At 20,000,000, New York

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The fashionable race suicide tendency deplored by economists as a stigma of highly civilized countries, has left unaffected the doll family of America. Although the size of the average American family of humans has shrunk from eight to five persons in the last 40 years the size of the doll family holds to the old-fashioned ideal, manufacturing statistics show. The estimated doll population of this country is 20,000,000, with an annual "birth rate" of 20,000,000.

SHAW HEARTY AT SEVENTY.

Good Health Due to Proper Diet and Light Eating.

LONDON—George Bernard Shaw was 70 years old on July 26, but he will not overload his stomach with an elaborate birthday dinner.

In fact, the eccentric dramatist never eats a heavy dinner. That is the reason he says he is in good health and is able to work steadily without exhaustion. He rarely accepts an invitation to dine out, and if he does he eats only simple food. Vegetables and fruit make up his diet. He never eats meat.

NEGRO BEATS AGED WOMAN

Dallas Black Strikes When Money Request Is Refused

DALLAS, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Jessie Overton, 77, pioneer resident of Dallas county, residing five miles south of Dallas, was knocked unconscious and severely beaten by a negro at her home Sunday afternoon.

A posse searched the river bottoms and special investigators from the district attorney's office placed on the case.

Mrs. Overton was found unconscious by members of her family when they returned from a fish fry yesterday evening. When she regained consciousness she told them that a negro called at the house about 5 p. m., asking for food. She gave him some sandwiches which he ate on the back porch. He then demanded money as she turned from the door, he hit her in the head with a plate. She was knocked unconscious and it is believed the negro then kicked her.

PICKS POCKET IN JAIL

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 2.—(AP) The bull-pen of the city jail was the scene of operation of a 17-year-old "dip" who picked $20 from the pocket of another prisoner.

Albert of Belgium Economy's King

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Aug. 2.—(AP)—King Albert, by strict adherence to his own decrees as financial dictator, is giving forceful example to his subjects in the matter of economy. Black bread now is exclusively served at the royal table and none of the king's three motor cars has been seen on the streets since the economy campaign began.

Two gendearmes spotted a lone motorcyclist racing toward Brussels for Lacken the other day and halted the speeder, demanding his papers. When they read the driver's permit they nearly fainted as it was made out to "Albert of Belgium."

The king shook hands with the gendarmes and reassured them by saying "you did right; it is your duty—but I am a little late for work," and he sped away.

FREIGHT HALF OF ROAD COST
Contractors Plan Movement to Cut Down Carriers' Charge.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Aug. 2.—(AP)—A movement among Texas road contractors to reduce freight rates on road materials may be started by Harry Wilder of the firm of Brammer and Wilder, who declares that rates are literally eating up the taxpayers money.

Mr. Wilder, who has been building many roads in the Rio Grande valley and other sections of south Texas, stated today that on some of his jobs half of the contract price went to the railroads.

A TIME FOR ALL THINGS

Once upon a time—this, as the sequel will show, was before prohibition came to the Palm Beach Flier, northbound, was compelled by reason of a wreck ahead to detour over a side line. When the passengers on the Pullmans awoke in the morning they found the train halted for an indefinite stop at a small settlement set among the scrub oaks, jack pines and dwarf palmettos of interior Florida. Next only to the tiny station the most important looking structure in sight was an unpainted frame shack facing the tracks. Over its doorway, it awkward capitals, was lettered this imposing promise:

NEW YORK BAR
ALL KINDS OF FANCY DRINKS SERVED HERE

Reading this sign, two easterners on board one of the sleeping cars were seized with waggish idea. They left their state rooms and, crossing the rails, entered the establishment.

Its interior decorations were exceedingly simple. At the front was a broad, unpainted board, supported on two barrels. Behind this barrier, against the wall, a small bleared mirror hung. On either side of the mirror, upon a narrow shelf, stood a black bottle, flanked by a meager store of smeary toddy glasses. Beneath it was a beer keg, resting upon the floor on its side.

In the rear was a small rusty stove. The air being chilly, a fire of pine knots blazed in it. A lanky individual plainly the proprietor, sat in a broken chair close to the stove with his bare feet in the warm ashes, reading a tattered copy of a Jacksonville paper.

He did not raise his head as the strangers entered, nor did they hail him. They lined up side by side before the makeshift bar, and one of them, addressing space, said:

"Seeing that they serve all sorts of fancy drinks here, I'll have a gin rickey. What are you going to have?" he added, addressing his fellow joker.

"Well," said the other, "I think I'll take a dry martini cocktail, made with French vermouth."

Without shifting his position or lifting his eyes from his paper the proprietor now spoke:

"I kin lick any dam' Yankee in the house—an' I ain't even looked yit!"

BEARS DEFEAT WACHTEL, 2-1

Both Owens and Panther Spitter Allow Six Hits

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Paul Wachtel held the Bears hitless for four innings until Joe Rabbitt ripped off the first hit in the fifth to start a batting rally that gave San Antonio a 2 to 1 victory in the final game of the Fort Worth series Monday.

After Segrist hit into a double, Golvin followed with a single to right and Wirts ditto ed, whereupon the latter stole second and Owens walked, filling the bases. Flashkamper met one on the trade mark for a single to left, on which Golvin and Wirts scored.

JEEMS, SNIPE SPLIT

BEAUMONT Aug. 2.—(AP)—The Exporters made it two out of three from the Steers by splitting a twin bill today, taking the opener, 9-4, and dropping the second, 6-0. Dick Morgan held the Dallas sluggers well in check in the opener, allowing but four hits until the ninth inning, while Slim Love was shot full of holes. Morgan fanned 11 visitors, striking out Hack Miller on each of his four trips to the plate. The hitting of Deviveros and Connolly were big factors in the triumph over the ancient enemy. Spike Hunter checked the terrific hitting in the second game.

BUFFS DOWN SPORTS

HOUSTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—With Frank Barnes pitching great baseball, the Buffs won, 4 to 1, from the Sports today. Shreveport had won seven straight prior to this tussle. The hitting of Hack Miller was the chief cause of Grady Adkins' defeat. Adkins had won the first of the series, and was the unexpected choice for pitching duty by Manager Art Phelan.

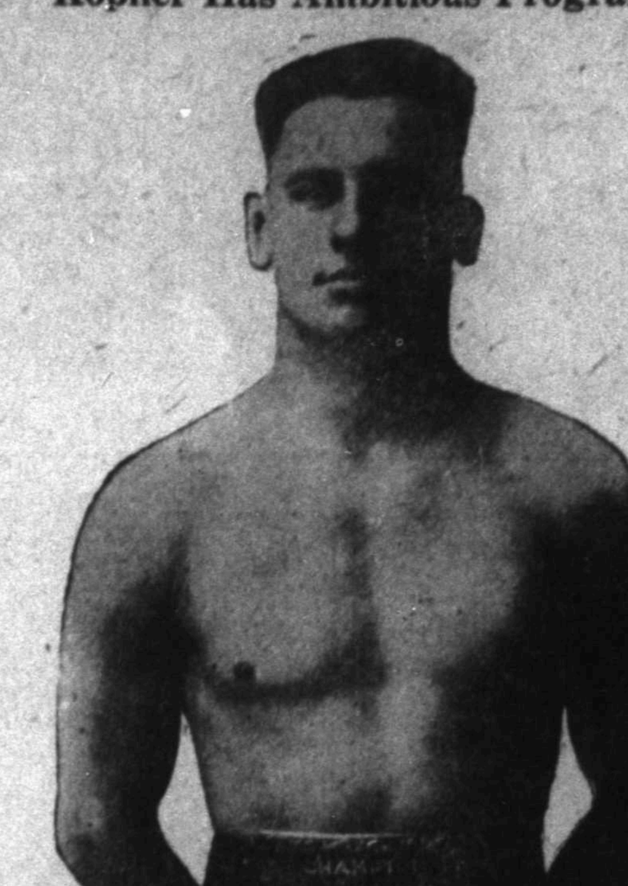
Kopher Has Ambitious Program



JOE KOPHER,

Rugged South Dakota welterweight who tackles Tommy Record, the Louisville battler, here Thursday night in a finish match on the Gorman-Romonoff card at the Eleventh and Ohio arena, has cleaned up in his home sector. Now he seeks new "worlds" to conquer. Thursday will be his first invasion of Wichita Falls. If Kopher beats Record he wants a shot at Gorman. Should he beat Gorman he wants Matsuda. That's an ambitious program.

Faber Bests Shocker, 2 to 1, Falk Driving Over Runs

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP)—New York's winning streak of 11 games was broken today when Chicago defeated the Yankees, 2 to 1, in a pitching duel between Urban Faber and Urban Shocker, two spitball pitchers. Collins' single, Sheely's double and Falk's hit gave the White Sox their two runs, while the league leaders made their long tally on Gehrig's double, Paschal's single and an infield out by Lazzeri. The Yankees filled the bases in the ninth, but were unable to score.

Walberg and Grove collaborated to win the second, Grove especially being invincible with men on base. Manush's home run in the second game was his eleventh of the season. Score:

Unranked Collegian Eliminates Williams

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 2.—(AP)—American tennis for the second successive day was rocked today by the downfall of a member of its "big four."

America's Davis cup captain, R. Norris Williams today was defeated in the first round of the Seabright Lawn Tennis club's annual invitation tournament by an unranked collegian from the Pacific coast, Lionel Ogden of Leland Stanford. The score was 6-4, 6-8, 10-8, three errors by the Davis cup star finally settling the issue.

Yesterday Vincent Richards conquered William T. Tilden in the Metropolitan championship final. Today Richards and William M. Johnson, remaining members of America's 1925 Davis cup squad, balanced the defeat of Williams with impressive victories.

Perseverance Brings Him New Trial

Harvey Hendrick, once found wanting as a big league ball player, will join the Brooklyn Dodgers next spring. Hendrick has "made the big league bosses like it" by the way he has slammed the ball around Southern League lots this season while playing first for New Orleans. The Yanks and Indians once decided Hendrick wouldn't do.

Top 'O Morn Stuff

Motto: "RAZZ THE RAZZERS"

NEXT YEAR?

There'll be a string of new mugs tagged onto remnants of the old machine next spring when the Spudders line up for their 1927 picture. That's to be expected.

UP AND DOWN

No doubt several of this season's crop will don major league monkey suits. Several other members of what stacked up at the beginning of the current race as a sure-fire pennant combination will step down. That's the inference emanating from headquarters and it's a natural one considering the present location of the club in the percentage column.

BUY AND SELL

Prez Gardner checked for the middle west and east Monday p. m. on a single mission, that of arraying new blood for the 1927 scramble. That is, Gardner repeated his announcement of last week. "I'm going to get some more ball players for the 1927 race." But it is likely Gardner will sell "some ball players for the 1927 race, too."

* * *

A bevy of major loop ivory sleuths are following the Spudders on the present road jaunt. Scouts from both hosiery concerns, the Red and White Sox; the Athletics and Cubs have dogged the domestics persistently.

ALEX UNDER SCRUTINY

They're watching Alex Metzler, the center fielder, for one. Their glims are focused on Jenkins, too. Also Kiefer. Bill Drennan, the Mack scout, likes Metzler's looks possibly more than any player in Texas. So it's indicated, anyway.

JUST A GUESS

On his trip north, Gardner stops over in Philadelphia. Although he has divulged nothing, this announcement makes very much of a noise sounding like a conference with Athletic moguls. And Gardner will be pow-wowing with the buying end of the firm, not the sales force. Mezler may become a "White Elephant" of another color. There is no doubt the Mack office has designs on the young Californian. Whether such a deal will go through remains to be seen. Gardner can get far more cash on the barrel for Metzler next year than he can now. Alex is rising like a rocket. Then, perhaps wer'e on the wrong trend. Perhaps Gardner has no intentions of sending Metzler up this year. However, Alex will ride under the big tent eventually and the current of baseball talk has set the date for the immediate future.

* * *

Besides business with Cub moguls Gardner plans copping off a brace of players in the Three-Eye, Tut Jenkins' birthplace as a ball pastimer. Lee McGee, the Spud scout, has been looking 'em over in this sector.

DUTCH OUT OF QUESTION

Wichita Falls mat fans who have called for a Mantell-Gorman match will never have their wish fulfilled. The final attempt to cajole Mantell into tangling with the home favorite has gone onto the rocks. Dutch now and for all time wants none of Gorman. As a last resort the writer put the matter up to Mantell after Matchmaker Alec Ross' efforts failed.

CHARMING MISSIVE, WHAT?

Mantell refused to answer the following missive (do you or don't you blame him?)

The Great Mantell!
Greetings!
Heh, heh, heh.
Notice by the paps-e-r-rs that the famous monkey-man has passed another milestone in life, said to be his forty-fifth.

Bet he's getting handsomer and tougher with each parting year.

Peculiar how some people manage to exist so long while others kick off early. But it's an ancient and honorable adage that the good die young. You and I probably will live forever.

What's the matter with you?

Has old age weakened your spirit?

Or are you just too busy making money to drop down and pay me another visit?

* * *

So far, razzing you wholeheartedly and more or less unmercifully has failed to bring you out of your hole. Can you suggest any more stringent methods I might use?

Seriously, Dutch many of your friends in Wichita Falls are losing faith in you. I've had any number of people come up to me on the streets and say:

"What's the matter with Dutch Mantell? Can't you get him to come down here and shut up these fellows who're all the time challenging him? I had always admired Mantell's guts, but I'm darned if I don't believe he's going back on me."

Others have said:

"I used to believe Mantell would fight a wildcat if it made a face at him, but he's certainly surprised me here lately. The idea of letting this Gorman buffalo him!"

Several fellows have told me:

"I used to think a lot of that Dutchman's nerve and ability, but I've got to admit his knockers are correct. It looks like Mantell is a four-flusher and hot air merchant, after all!"

Some of the boys have been kidding me because on several occasions I quoted you as saying:

"The tougher they are, the better. The old reliable Dutchman will be there!"

You've said that many times, haven't you, Dutch? At hand, dug up from my files, I have two letters written me by you using this phrase. Got you in black and white. Have you any come-back? Are you yellow, after all, like some of them say? Are you a four-flusher? A hot air merchant?

Dutch, I certainly hope not, even though the evidence is against you. You've gone back on me and you've gone back on your friends here. Do you think anybody in Wichita Falls wants to admit he's your friend and then get laughed out? They come to me and say, do you really think he's yellow? I laugh and reply well, these other wrestlers say he is, but maybe he'll pop up some day and fool us all.

* * *

Opinion here, Dutch, is that you're afraid to wrestle outside of Amarillo? Is that true?

Many fans have declared they would like to see you suddenly break in down here and call somebody's hand. Evidently they're destined to be disappointed. You've certainly had enough publicity to bring in a good gate, even though most of the people would come hoping to see Gorman beat you.

Jack, incidently, has told many people here that you're afraid to wrestle him. He says so in the barber shops and restaurants. Charley Veros and and some of the boys at the cafe, Mr. Pink and one or two others told Jack that he shouldn't talk that way. Said you weren't afraid of him, but Jack laughed in their faces.

* * *

If a man stabbed me in the back like that and had the people talking about me that way I'd run him down to earth sooner or later even if he gave me the licking of my life while I was at it.

By the way, understand you've made several dirty cracks about me. Cut it out. The more anybody tries to knife me the better I like it. You can't hurt me cussing me. Besides, I might get mad at you and turn you across my knee.

But, back to facts, brass tacks and the like, if you care to come down here and make us all out as liars, figure it about August 12.

Will see to it personally that you're treated right.

If you have any fears that the referee might try to frame you all you have to do is say so and I'll get in there and see that you get a square deal by refereeing myself.

Well here's hoping that the next time I see you I don't forget myself and beat you up. You want to keep in good shape so if I do, it won't hurt you much.

Let me hear from you,

BLONDY CROSS.

CRACKS FROM CONSUMERS

Intelligence Wins

"Dear Mr. Cross:

"Having played baseball for the last 20 years and witnessing all the Twilight games played here I am submitting what I believe is a very good lineup and I giving you my reasons 'Why' . . .

"Davis, catcher, because he holds the younger players down, is a good, clean player and is fighting win or lose.

"Connally, pitcher, can outlast any pitcher in the twilight, studies the batter, uses his brain, is cool and never gets sore when errors are made behind him.

"Douglas, first base, fields good, is a good hitter and has perfect footwork.

"McMahon, second base, is a brainy ball player, uses good base-running judgment and is dangerous at bat.

"Hines, shortstop, covers world's of territory and is a 100 per cent hitter.

"Hargrove, third base, fields perfectly, has a wonderful arm and is always fighting.

"Waller, left field, has a good peg, is a good hitter and is fast on foot.

"Gordon, center field, is fast, has a good head, a good peg and can get them from all angles.

"Rawls, right field has good peg and is a good hitter.

"Andree, utility, can play any position good.

"Randolph, Cannon, pitchers.

"Jess Winters, manager.

"I have seen the boys named above play under various conditions. There is more to a ball player than hitting and catching the ball—"Brain Work," less foolishness when on the base and a thousand other things. With the above lineup you can take on any of the Texas, Southern or Western league and not be afraid with Winters as manager. Why not start something interesting? We are behind you with the ball club above.

"A TWILIGHT FAN."

This fan shows rare judgment in his selection. There are many amateur athletes who are wonderful natural ball players, little short of brilliant in the physical and mechanical end of the game. That's the difference between your professional athlete and your amateur as a rule, the pro has besides this outward brilliance a head on his shoulders. The above selection is good, but we disagree with the fan when it comes to comparing this mythical team to class A organized leagues. There may be one or two clubs in the Western these amateurs with months of preliminary training might give a good, stiff fight, but none in the Texas and Southern.

* * *

He's Unprejudiced

"Dear Blondy:

"I have just read in this morning's paper a couple of fans' pick for an all-star twilight league ball club, and I feel that in justice to the sandlot boys who amused us that more of us express ourselves.

"So here goes my pick:

"Catchers, Hicks and Martindale. Hicks first. He and Cox at first base worked about perfectly together. Cox would lead them off and Hicks throw them out. Pitchers, Douglas, Lupher, Connally and Randolph for relief. Cox first base; Johnson, second base; Hargrove, third base; Hines, shortstop; Waller, left field; McMahon, center field; Gordon, right field.

"Lauderdale umpire. He knows the game and would work. I suggest that you file these selections for future reference—for some of these boys will go up—.

"AN UNPREJUDICED FAN."

In your reference to some of these boys going up I didn't get you exactly straight. You don't include Lauderdale, do you? Let Laudinum stick to the tonsorial game. Your advice about filing for future reference has been taken, of course.

* * *

"Der Blondy:

"What do you think of this for an all-star team?

"Hicks and Martindale, catchers; Randolph, Connally, Lupher Douglas, pitchers; Hoehn, first base; Roberts, second base; Hargrove, third base; McMahon, shortstop; Gordon, center field; Rawls, right field; Waller, left field; Christian, utility.

"Yours truly,
"PAUL ANDREE."

Pretty fair team, but why put this guy, Hoehn on first base? You ask what do I think? Well, after looking it over I've decided not to think about it.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Philadelphia defated Pittsburgh, 8 to 3, today by hammering Don Songer and recruit hurler Nichols for seven runs in the first four innings. Dean won his second straight game from the invaders and had trouble only in the sixth when the Pirates touched him for two runs. Score:

COUCH STARTS LAST TRIP

Body of Well Known Cotton Mill Man Goes East

FORT WORTH, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The body of B. W. Couch, 57, for years one of the leading cotton oil mill men of Texas, probably will leave for Fort Worth Monday night from San Diego, Cal., where he died earlier in the day after an illness of several weeks. At the bedside were District Attorney and Mrs. R. K. Hanger, son-in-law and daughter of the dead man.

A party of close friends of the family probably will meet returning relatives at El Paso, it was stated Monday night. Funeral arrangements had not been completed.

GIBBONS SAYS CHAMP'LL WIN

Veteran, Knocked Out By Gene, Fears Dempsey Most

OSAKIS, Minn., Aug. 2.—(AP)—"If Dempsey is as good as when I met him he'll win from Tunney in about seven rounds."

That was the estimate tonight of Tommy Gibbons, the heavyweight pugilist who withstood 15 rounds of hard battling at the hands of Dempsey at Shelby, Mont., only to be knocked out by Tunney in New York City.

"I think Dempsey will win," Gibbons reasserted. "But, I'd rather see Gene beat him," he added as an afterthought. "You know, I think the public is getting tired of Dempsey."

Gibbons, despite his declaration that Dempsey will emerge the victor, has wholesome respect for Tunney as a fighter and man. "A fighter all the way," was his estimate of the contender for the world's heavyweight crown.

"Gene is a nice clean boy. A snappy fellow. He's the kind of a boy Dempsey likes to meet—fast and aggressive," was Tommy's description of the New York battler.

"Personally I think Tunney is smarter than Dempsey. He's hard. He's aggressive. Its going to be a great fight and I'd like to see it. Yes I think a fair estimate would be seven rounds," he repeated as an afterthought.

"Dempsey is far the harder hitter of the two. Gene is faster—he's got speed and brains, but Dempsey hits hard."

The St. Paul man's eyes lightened with this. He apparently recalled those 15 rounds July 4, 1923, when he lost a decision to the champion after taking every variety of blow in Dempsey's repertoire—except a knockout.

In those 15 rounds Gibbons learned much of the champion—his hard hitting offensive, his stamina, his ring generalship, but most of all of punches which had the speed and power to penetrate the neat defensive which Gibbons had worked out for months.

Tom Should Know.

In the Tunney fight, a year ago last June, Gibbons took his first knockout—from the new sensation in the heavyweight ranks, Gene Tunney. The crushig blow which sent Gibbons to the canvas in the ring encounter marked Tommy's last appearance in the ring.

Gibbons is here at his summer home with his family, fishing and boating his mind as far as possible from gloves and rosin.

"Of course," he said. "one never can tell. I havent heard anything about Dempseys condition, except what the newspapers say. His retirement from activity may have been hard on him.

"But as I say, if Dempsey is as good as he was when I met him—well about seven rounds."

Both Are Busts Opined Irate Fan

Yet Waner and Smith Step Out and Hold Pirates In Race

BY GEORGE CHADWICK.
Copyright 1926 by the Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Any kid baseball player who starts with a batting average of .150 on the sixth day of May and can squint at a new combination of .336 on the last day of July, is a help to his old man and to his team and has come a deuce of a long way from home to get there.

It was the end of the first week in May that the National league batting averages reported to a curious and popped eyed public that young Paul Waner, outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates—no one knew then whether he was to be just a regular, that he was hitting the ball at the rate of .150.

"This guy's a bust," muttered a disappointed fan just in front of Earl Smith, Pirate catcher. "If he's a bust then I'm a bust," retorted Smithy—and when the genial Smith retorts, the air reverberates, and sound waves penetrate for miles.

"You are a bust," said the fan.

That, too, seemed quite proper, because Smith at that time was batting in the temperate seventies just a scant .270 to be exact. Fortunately Smithy was so taken aback at being called a "bust" that he had no strength to reply crescendo. Had he done so there might have been action physically as well as by words.

It is Smithy's idea that words play a part in baseball just as important as the bat, if the words are carefully selected and are equipped with a complete line of picturesque landscape effects.

"The bat," Smith once said, "gets onto the hide of the ball, but words get under the hides of some of these ball players who have skins no thicker than a whisper."

This merely goes to show how badly Smithy was stumped when he couldn't shift his tongue from the side of his mouth to the other side after he had been called a "bust" right to his Arkansas face.

"What has been the cause of the Pirates being able to hold their own in this hot and cold race when they haven't had the kind of pitching this year that they had last," was asked of Bill McKechnie, the tamer.

"All the boys have been the cause," replied Bill.

That is just like Bill. He wouldn't say anything because he plays fair with his men, although folks who are not with the Pittsburgh club know that Bill, in his fairness leans backward. The fact are that not all the Pirates have been so foremost, as Bill says. It is two or three of them who have come to the front when they were needed to keep Pittsburgh in the race, while three or four others have crossed wires spavined intellects and ingrowing ideas ever since the season opened.

"Would you give special credit to Smith or Waner and hasn't it been their increased batting which has had a great deal to do with the winning of the Pirates?" McKechnie was asked, to his face.

"Those boys have hit good all of the time," said Bill. "But those two have a lot to do with bringing in the perk if the Pirates capture the barrel this year."

"They sure will," Bill beamed. "Say, do you know that kid Waner is likely to get so darned high in the National league before the year is over that he will win the batting championship. Mind. I am not predicting. When I predict I am a general squizzle."

GOOD WEATHER AIDS GASOLINE

Refiners Report Sunny Days Help Keeping Commodities Moving

Mid-Continent refiners report that good weather is prevailing throughout the territories of great consumption, and thus is keeping movement of gasoline and petroleum products moving.

Kerosene continues also in good demand, and inquiries for fuel oil are increasing. According to Platt's Oilgram, the Fort Worth and Denver railroad is inquiring for 30,000 barrels of fuel oil to use for its locomotives.

Word from New York city says the Standard Oil company of New Jersey has advanced the export price of standard white kerosene one-fourth of a cent a gallon to new price of 19.15 cents in cases, while water white kerosene went up one-half cent to 20.65 cents in cases.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Cotton market opened steady today with first trades showing gains of 1 to 8 points, the improvement being due to the large consumption total by Secretary Hester, and to rain in the eastern belt. October traded at 17.70 and December at 17.55 and then eased off on the continuance of favorable weather in the west, October dropping to 17.55 and December to 17.43. The market soon rallied, recovering 6 to 7 points of the loss. Secretary Hester made the total consumption total by Secretary Hester, and to rain in the eastern belt. October traded at 17.70 and December at 17.55 and then eased off on the continuance of favorable weather in the west, October dropping to 17.55 and December to 17.43. The market soon rallied, recovering 6 to 7 points of the loss. Secretary Hester made the total consumption of world cotton last season 15,165,000- bales, the largest on record, and the carry over 5,362,000 bales.

The New Orleans figures estimating the world's consumption of American cotton last season 15,165,000 bales and a carry over of 5,362,000 bales attracted some bullish comment and probably promoted the early buying, after selling up to 17.73 for December and 17.94 for March contracts, or about 4 to 8 points net higher, the market eased under renewed realizing or liquidation by early buyers who evidently have been disappointed by the failure of the official forecast to show developments in the southwest. Otherwise selling was restricted by the outlook for continued showers in the eastern belt and prices held within a point or two of Saturday's closing figures al mid-day.

The market turned firmer after midsession owing to the continued bad weather in the eastern belt and the somewhat unsettled outlook for the west. The bullishness of Secretary Hester's consumption report was also a helping influence. October duplicated the earlier high at 17.70 and later months made new highs at 12 to 15 points above the lows and 6 to 9 points above the close of Saturday. At the beginning of the las hour prices were steady and at the highs.

The market ruled comparatively steady during the morning with only moderate trading. Prices fluctuated mainly within the earlier range, although December made a new low at 17.44, or 11 points down from the early high and 6 points under the previous close. Prices rallied slightly near mid-session to levels 4 to 5 points above the lows and only 2 points under the previous close. The weather forecast called for more rain in the eastern belt and more unsettled weather in the west. The unfavorable weather prospects appeared to be the main sustaining influence.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The cotton market opened steady today at unchanged prices to a decline of 6 points under a renewal of the realizing movement which developed after the advances of last week and which was probably promoted by talk of better weather in the western belt. December sold off to 17.61 and March to 17.85 at the opening, but the market was steadied by covering at these figures, while apprehensions of renewed showers in the southwest probably brought in a little fresh buying. Prices rallied to 17.71 for December and 17.93 for March, with the active months showing net gains of 3 to 6 points by the end of the first half hour. A private report published this morning made the condition of the crop 66.5 compared with 72.6 a month ago and placed the indicated yield at 14,193,000 bales.

The market showed increased firmness during the afternoon on complaints of low night temperatures in Northern Texas and the detailed weather reports showing too much rain in the eastern belt. By 2 o'clock prices were up to 17.77 for December with active months showing net advances of about 10 to 12 points.

Final Continental Payment Received

Bank deposits in Wichita Falls were swelled Monday when the City National bank received a check from the Continental Oil company of Denver, Colo., for $3,286,560, final payment for purchase of the Texhoma Oil and Refining company stock. The sale price of the Texhoma company was over seven millions, another payment having been made by the continental company some months ago.

Stockholders of the Texhoma company will be given final payment for their stock by presenting their stock certificates to the City National bank, according to J. J. Perkins, one of the organizers of the Texhoma company.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Buying is rather slow in the Ohio fine wool section. Growers, as a rule, are firm, but sell rather readily at the current market level of 40 to 41 cents. A few of the less desirable clips can be obtained for one cent a pound lower. Growers with some of the choicest fleeces are inclined to hold above the present market and are naming a higher figure but do not get buyers. Ohio fine delain on the Boston market gets little call other grades having a spotty demand for a limited quantity at unchanged prices.

MANILA, Aug. 2.—(AP)—The insular supreme court sustained today a lower court decision sentencing David Mutua, Pedro Zauiat and five other Filipinos to 17 years each in the penitentiary for having cut off the ears of Popio Montenegro and otherwise maltreating him.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, August 2.—(AP)— Stock prices continued to work higher as trading was resumed today with a good demand in evidence for public utility, motor and investment railroad shares. Baltimore and Ohio reached a new top price for the year and substantial opening gains were recorded by Studebaker, Chrysler, North American and Radio corporation in response to reports of higher earnings.

Unlike recent market sessions, the early buying demonstration embraced both railroad and industrial shares with the popular issues in both groups moving forward in a quiet and orderly manner.

The diversion of trading interest into the carrier stocks late last week carried the price average of this list 4o within striking distance of the year's high record and seemed to give greater stability to the upward movement of the entire market. High grade issues, such as Delaware and Hudson, Atlantic Coast Line and New York Central, were favored in the early dealings. Meanwhile, General Motors, Hudson, Nash and other automobile issues jumped 1 to 3 points in the first half hour in anticipation of still larger sales after the introduction of new models. Foreign exchanges opened firm, with demand sterling unchanged and French and Belgian francs selling around 2.60 cents.

Indications of 50,000,000 bushels more winter wheat being harvested in the United States than was looked for a month ago upset wheat values today. Closing quotations on wheat were weak, 3¾ to 4¼c net lower, whereas corn showed ¾ to 1¼c advance, with oats varying from ¼c decline to 1¾c gain, and provisions 2c to 50c down.

Unofficial domestic crop estimates is used here today by leading experts suggested winter wheat yields ranging from 596,000,000 bushels to 643,000,000 bushels with an average of 617,000,000 bushels.

Contributing to the weakness of the wheat market was announcement of nearly 9,000,000 bushels increase of the United States wheat visible supply total. Besides, arrivals of new wheat at Chicago today were greatly enlarged, amounting to 1,212 cars. Better weather and crop news from Canada tended also to promote selling pressure.

Strength in the corn market resulted from estimates that production of corn this season will be 56,000,000 bushels less than was expected a month ago. Oats were affected by wheat weakness. The average of private estimates of the oats harvest however, was cut down to 44,000,000 bushels, under last month's figures.

Unexpected larger receipts of hogs weakened the provision market.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Private crop estimates suggesting that the 1926 wheat yield in the United States will prove to be far above expectations induced heavy selling of wheat today and a rapid fall in prices. The estimates of winter wheat averaged 50,000,000 bushels more than was the case a month ago with the spring wheat average about unchanged. Unofficial forecasts of corn production turned out bullish.

Wheat closed weak, 3⅝c to 4¼c net lower, corn ⅝ to 1¼c advance, oats varying from ½c decline to 1¾c gain and provisions 2 cents to 50 cents down.

Financial

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Another sensational advance of 12 points in General Motors, which touched the record high level of 201, overshadowed all other developments in today's stock market. Transactions in this one issue totalled 261,400 shares, or about one-eighth of the day's entire volume of business, with buying stimulated by the statement, credited to a prominent banker, that the recent sharp rise had been justified and that still higher prices were warranted on the basis of current earnings.

The general market moved irregularly higher despite the marking up of the call money rate from 4½ to five per cent, coincident with the heavy calling of loans. Publication of another series of favorable earnings statements, predictions of good business in the second half of the year by several leading bankers and rail executives, and reports of a further stiffening of wholesale gasoline prices in Chicago all helped to provide ammunition in the campaign for higher prices.

Heavy profit taking was in evidence in many stocks on the theory that a technical reaction was in order after the brisk advance of last week, but offerings generally were well absorbed. Commission houses reported an increase in public participation.

The general automotive list derived strength from reports that several of the new automobile models brought out this summer were meeting with an unexpected good reception. Hudson was bid up nearly three points to 73¾, but sagged a point below that figure on profit taking, while Mack Trucks and Nash each closed at net gains of more than a point.

The advance in steel shares was held in check by reports of a slight curtailment of operations in the west. United States Steel common, however, closed nearly a point higher at 147¾, the independents showing only small fractional changes. Atlantic Refining, up 4¾ at 114¾; General Asphalt up 3⅝ at 71¼, and Pan-American-B up 2¼ at 69¾, were the leaders in the oil group.

Pools were again active in a number of public utilities and specialties. New peak prices for the year, or longer were established by American Sumatra Tobacco certificates, Auto Essex, Brooklyn Edison, Bush Terminal debentures, Butterick Publishing, Crucible Steel preferred, DuPont, Loose Wiles biscuit second preferred, J. C. Penny preferred and Public Service of New Jersey.

Rails took on a new lease of life, with the average of 20 leading issues mounting to the highest price since the war. New York Central, Southern railway and Baltimore and Ohio all exceeded their previous 1926 peak prices.

Commodity markets were mixed. Active wheat futures broke three to four cents a bushel, on bearish Canadian crop estimates and reports of larger receipts at Chicago. Cotton rallied after an early decline, closing three to seven points higher. Raw sugar was unchanged and coffee prices dropped 11 to 20 points.

Call money opened at 4½ per cent, the highest renewal rate since July 15, and then advanced to five per cent as banks called about $25,000,000 in time money and comercialp aper rates wer unchanged.

Foreign exchange sharp rally of 20 points in French francs, which ruled above 2.60 cents features the foreign exchange market. Demand sterling was slightly higher around $4.85⅝.

GENERAL MOTORS HIGHER

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Leading another vigorous upturn in the stock market, General Motors today crossed $200 a share, establishing a record high price for the present shares. The tremendous buying movement in the stock which has been underway for a week or more gathered fresh speed today, lifting the price more than 10 points above last week's closing figures. Dupont kept pace with the rise and many other motor issues were heavily bought.

GRAIN RATE CUT NO HELP TO US

Two Cent Decrease in Freight North But Our Market South

Announcement made Monday by the Interstate Commerce Commission, that reduction of three cents per per 100 pounds on grain from southwestern producing areas to Minnesota mills had been granted to six railroads, will have little or no effect on the movement of grain out of and through Wichita Falls, was the consensus of opinion of both railroad officials and local grain exporters. The ruling, which will be in actual effect within a few days, réduces the actual cost to market from this section of almost two cents per bushel, but owing to the fact that grain movements are already established to the Gulf ports, and due to markets already established, little, if any more grain will be routed north.

The Fort Worth & Denver railway freight department has handled approximately their entire grain shipments through the southern ports, as has the M.-K.-T.; however, the M.-K.-T. has handled a great deal of grain into Oklahom milling centers and other points north and east.

No Official Notice

No notice of the rate reduction has as yet been received by any of the local railroad offices, but such notice is expected within a day or so and local shippers will have the opportunity to avail themselves of the saving in rate if they care to do so.

Most of the grain produced in this section and in the Panhandle and Texas this year has gone to Galveston for export with the exception of small lots in to Mexico via Laredo.

Texas Wheat Not That Kind

The Minnesota mills require a grain of high protein quality an dnone of the southern wheat will meet their qualifications, T. A. Bagget, traffic manager of the Wichita Falls Mill & Elevator company, stated yesterday, adding however, that northern Oklahoma wheat was of sufficient protein content to meet the demands of the Minnesota mills, and the rate reduction would likely influence the shipping of considerable wheat from that section into Minnesota.

Late Wheat Damaged

G. L. Berry, of the Mytinger Grain company, is of the opinion that the rate reduction would not effect the local movements to any extent. He stated that the grain crop in this section this year was finer than usual and that the quality of the first shipments was excellent, but added that he expected the late wheat to be considerably damaged owing to rainy weather, and this alone would preclude any unusual movement of grain into the greatest of all wheat centers.

Three' Quarters Shipped

The local wheat crop is almost three-fourths shipped, according to freight agents and milling operators. The crop is above normal and the quality good. A bulk of local wagon grain consumed by local mills and through carlot shipments are diverted generally to Galveston for export. A portion of grain goes to Oklahoma milling centers and is also diverted to local mills in Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, and other central states.

I. C. C. ANNOUNCES CUT OF 3 CENTS ON GRAIN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Special permission to reduce by three cents per 100 pounds , the rate on grain from southwestern producing areas to Minnesota mills has been granted to six railroads in that territory by the Interstate Commerce Commission, effective five days after the roads formally notify the commission of thei rreadiness to put the changes into operation.

The reduction will make the eight cents per 100 pounds, but it will apply only to shipments from the producing area to destinations east of the Illinois-Indiana line routed through Minnesota.

The six roads are the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, the Chicago, Burlington & Quniey, Chicago, Great Western, the Chicago & Northwestern, Chicago Rock Island & Pacific and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul.

The roads secured permission to cut the rate in order to compete with the Minneapolis 7 St. Louis, which recently voluntarily reduced its rate 3 cents.

BANK ROBBERS CAUGHT

Fort Worth Cops Take Haslet State Hold-up Men in Cottonfield.

FORT WORTH, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Two brothers, M. and V. Turner, 38 and 43, respectively, admitted after being brought to the sheriff's office here Monday afternoon that they robbed the Haslet State bank at 9:45 a. m. of $1,600. They gave their address as Dallas and said they spent Sunday night here.

The two men were captured in a cornfield two miles northwest of Haslet and the entire amount of the loot was recovered by four Fort Worth deputy sheriffs and turned over to the bank.

"We were out of work, badly in need of money, and preferred to hold up a bank rather than rob some poor person," V. Turner declared.

Exchange Shows Cotton Crop Rise

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Secy. H. G. Hester of the New Orleans cotton exchange announced today the commercial crop for the year ending July 31 amounted to 15,614,707 bales, an increase over last year of 916,351, an increase over previous year of 3,324,310 and an increase over 1922-23 of 4,331,901 bales.

Southern consumption which he stated at 3,778,926 bales, Mr. Hester said, indicates an increase of 398,808 bales compared with last year and an increase compared with year before last of 793,598.

The consumption of cotton, including linters, in the southern states is the largest ever known.

Mr. Hester makes the world's consumption of American cotton 15,165,000 bales and the amount carried over at the close of July, 5,362,000 bales.

The world's consumption, said the secretary, has never before reached 15,000,000 bales. He makes the year's exports, including shipments to date, 8,252,163 bales, practically reaching last year's total.

Commenting on the enormous consumption Mr. Hester said that it is largely due to the use of relatively cheap low grade cottons by the mills and other consuming establishment.

Other data relating to port movements, exports and other items, will be announced in a few days, Mr. Hester announced.

OKLAHOMA AT POLLS TODAY

Prohibition, Klan, Evolution Form Basis of Many Addresses

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 2—Candidates for national congressional and state nominations in Oklahoma, tonight were concluding campaign affairs in their home precinct headquarters after making prohibition, the klan and evolution principal issues in their drives for votes at tomorrow's primary elections.

Eleven hundred are registered under five banners—democratic, republican, socialist, farmer-labor and independent. Prohibition and the klan formed the basis of many addresses while some opposed teaching of evolution. The senatorial race is one of the hardest fought with six republican candidates opposing Senator J. W. Harreld. J. C. (Jack) Walton, deposed governor and defeated democratic nominee for the senate in 1924, has four opponents.

Twenty-two candidates entered the Sooner state gubernatorial race when the supreme court held that Governor M. E. Trapp, who succeeded Walton in 1923, was ineligible for re-election due to a law that a governor can not hold office for successive terms.

Four claims of victory already won emanated from as many camps of leading democratic candidates for governor.

A plurality of 35,000 for W. M. Darnell, Panhandle farmer, was claimed by his manager.

The campaign manager of O. A. Cargill, former street car motorman and now mayor of Oklahoma City predicted a plurality of 70,000 for him.

Headquarters of Henry S. Johnston claimed 125,000 of a possible 250,000 votes.

J. B. Robertson, former governor, contended himself with a simple claim of victory.

J. C. Walton, deposed governor of Oklahoma, one of the five democratic candidates for the United States senatrial toga worn by J. W. Harreld, republican, was making speeches on the eastern side of the state tonight and could not be reached for a statement on his chances. Elmer Thomas, congressman, wound up his campaign for the democratic senatorial nomination at Lawton, his home town. W. A. Ledbetter listed as one of the "big three" in the race remained at his home here and refrained from speaking.

Olney Boasts Building Boom

New School, City Hall and Sanitarium Planned Next

OLNEY, Aug. 2.—With a new brick garage, brick filling station, brick theater, brick buss station, brick church, all under construction at present and with a new high school, city hall and sanitarium being planned by efficient architects Olney boasts quite a building program. Many new homes are appearing in the residential section of the city. Olney is growing rapidly. There is little comparison between the Olney of 1925 and the Olney of 1926.

The new country club, artistically situated among the native mesquites on a picturesque elevation some two miles from town, the modern Hotel Hamilton, two stories, brick, with every convenience available—cafe, and barber shop annex; the two storie brick telephone exchange building; the airplane bungalow type of house built for Dr. Grogg, the S. O. Callahon residence and the beautiful and pretentious new brick home of Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Goldsmith rivaling any like structure of beauty—all corborate the statement that in a year's time the city has produced many material blessings.

The Presbyterian church on Main street is nearing completion. Practically all the exterior features need only the finishing touches and the interior decorating will begin soon.

The new Palace theater will open soon. The building of light tan brick is capable of housing a larger audience than is any other auditorium in Olney.

The new bungalow home of Dr. and Mrs. Fred Harrell is finished and the family have moved in.

ALLRED RALLY

club would be formed in that city tonight or tomorrow.

County Judge B. D. Sartin and Judge R. O. Kenley both spoke, expressing confidence in the ability of Allred to beat Pollard in the run-off primary. It was pointed out that Allred received most of his votes from the country districts of the state, and failed to carry a single urban district with the exception of Wichita Falls, running next best to Tarrant county where he was second in the race. At that it was stated, whereas he received 8,100 of 10,100 votes cast in Wichita county, he polled a better majority than Pollard in Harris county where Pollard received but 18,000 out of 32,000 votes cast.

In a short speech following the organization of the club Allred stated that he would spend most of his time in the run-off campaign in the cities of the state in an effort to turn the vote of those places his way. He told of meeting Claude Pollard at McKinney last week, and speaking before the old settlers' picnic there just before him.

"Pollard is a corporation lawyer with the record of a corporation lawyer back of him," Allred declared Monday night. "He is not what the people of Texas want in the attorney general's office."

Three brothers of Allred, Reene, Jr., of Bowie, Ben P. Allred of Wichita Falls, and O. H. Allred of Breckenridge, will take the stump for their brother in the coming campaign, it was stated.

Mr. Allred left Monday night for Dallas and San Antonio.

Stage Star Weds Millionaire Packer

CHICAGO, Aug. 2.—(AP)—Green and yellow decorations of the University of Chicago chapel, the bride's peach chiffon gown and her bouquet of roses and lillies gave the only color of a gray day to the wedding this afternoon of Claire Dux, opera favorite and Charles Swift, millionaire packer and patron of the arts. The service closed to the bride the career in grand opera which won her decorations from three European rulers and which brought her to America four years ago as a prima donna of the Chicago civic opera company. She has said she would quit the stage upon her marriage but only yesterday was she finally able to do so, when the San Francisco opera company released her.

ARTICHOKE IS POPULAR

Vegetable Is Eaten Raw as a Salad in America'

NEW YORK.—The artichoke, sixteenth cousin of the national flower of Scotland, is winning its way into the hearts of Americans by the proverbial route. Green crocers "feature" it among theid display of vegetables. Ten years ago, they say, the thirstle-like plant was seldom demanded by customers. Now it has become a favorite as a salad. Italians are credited with its introduction. They stuff its petals with spices and cook it in oil. But the New Yorker eats it raw, snapping off its petals and dipping them in oil and vinegar.

BOOST TAXES IN THIS CITY

Ten Cent Raise Puts Rate Eighty Cents; New Funds Made

An increase in the county tax rate of from 70 cents to 80 cents on the $100 valuation was voted by the county commissioners Monday on the recommendation of County Auditor C P. Walsh. The additional ten cents provides for the creation of two new funds, that for public building, with a tax of 2 1-2 cents to support it, and for hospital maintenance, with a tax of three cents to support it. It also provides for an increase of one cent in the par road improvement warrants fund, of seven mills in the Holliday road improvements warrants fund, of eight mills in the general fund, of 2-7 cents in the second class, bridge and highway fund.

The commissioners also voted to increase the tax in support of the Electra road district bonds from 40 cents to 50 cents on the $100 valuation.

School taxes, in accordance with a schedule prepared by Count Superintendent Burl Bryant, were also voted by the commissioners.

The county tax rate, itemized is as follows:

The assessed valuation for this year shows a slight increase in the grand total over that of last year, although considerable loss in the oil revenue is felt.

The total assessed valuation for 1925 was $58,539,940 while the 1926 grand total is $60,703,360, a net increase of $2,163,420. This increase is due to the improvements in the county, noticeably in the Wichita Falls vicinity, and is a more comfortable margin than has been made in several years.

Floral Heights to Hold Frolic Tuesday

Members of the Floral Heights Baptist Sunday school will frolic Tuesday afternoon at Cedar Park when the annual picnic will be held, according to Solon R. Featherston, superintendent. Children and those who have no transportation to go to Cedar Park are asked to meet at the church at 4 o'clock and cars will leave at 4:30 for the picnic grounds. Those who wish to come later are welcome, Mr. Featherston said.

Games of interest to old and young have been planned by the entertainment committee. Indoor baseball will be played outdoors by the men and boys. J. M. Ward will captain one team, and E. E. McNiel's nine will vie with his for honors. Webb Dozier is captain of one of the boy's teams, and Glenn Burgess captain of the other.

Mrs. J. M. Ward is general chairman of the entertainment committee and is assisted by a corps of helpers, Mrs. Lester Flatt is chairman of provisions. Thomas R. Wynn is superintending the choosing of drinks and ice cream and he reported yesterday that a "sufficiency" of red pop would be on hand with plenty of cream. J. M. Martinis is chairman of conveyance committee.

Butchers Secure Change in Ordinance

An amendment to the city abattoir ordinance permitting butchers of the city to slaughter beeves at houses bearing the approval of the city, and place the meat in cold storage for refrigeration at other places, also bearing the city's approval, was passed by the city council at its meeting Monday night. The amendment to the ordinance in effect nullifies that portion of the old ordinance which the butchers found objectionable, that is, that portion which made it mandatory to slaughter the meat and store it for refrigeration at the same place. But one place, that known as the city abattoir, not, however, a municipal affair, answered the specifications of the ordinance in this regard.

It was pointed out at the meeting of the council, however, that a rigorous inspection of the slaughter-houses and refrigeration houses would be maintained by the city in order to keep up the sanitary standards.

WICHITA LEADS STATE IN HOMES

Three Hundred and Nine For Each Ten Tousand Persons in 1925

That Wichita Falls is a city of homes and a city of home builders is evidenced by the latest reports from the United States department of labor which have been received by City Clerk W. E. McBroom. Wichita Falls ranked fifth in the state for the past seven months in the rate of building permits, but the U. S. department report Wichita Falls as the leading city in the state in the construction of homes per capita during the year 1925.

An additional figure of these statistics comes from a local investigation which indicates that Wichita Falls is building a better and more expensive class of homes than any other city in the state. In fact there are fewer small, cheap dwellings in this city than in any other town or city in the state in ratio of population.

Figures given by the United States department of labor gives Wichita 1,239 new homes, and Dallas second with 4,877. These figures show that Wichita Falls is building homes at the rate of 309.1 for each 10,000 in population.

Other Texas cities ranked as follows: Galveston third with a ratio of 144.9; Fort Worth fourth with a ratio of 134.6; San Antonio fifth with a ratio of 116.1.

Keep 'em Or Turn 'em Loose; 3 Want Home

Trio of Children Pass Psychiatric Test; Ready For Adoption

Three children, bright eyed youngsters, two boys and a girl, want homes. One of the boys is two years old, the other is a red headed lad of four, and the little girl, freckled face, and blonde headed, is five. The children are wards of the Texas Children's Home and Aid society and are ready to be placed, according to Miss Katherine Henricle, superintendent. They have passed physical and psychiatric tests, and are found to be unusually bright and alert.

"We want a high grade home for these little tads," the superintendent said as she spoke fondly of the three parentless children. "We would rather place them out of town, and the children may be taken on approval to see if they suit the home and if the home suits them," she said.

Miss Henricle may be reached by calling at room 14, Ward building, or telephoning this month to 7645, she said yesterday.

PECANS DUE TO ENRICH COUNTY

Clark Tells Rotary Mix 'Em With Cantaloupes, Product Dollars

"Within a few years, the Wichita irrigated valley including Wichita Falls will become a grand and magnificent pecan orchard. When that time comes, the valley will be one of the greatest agricultural centers of the world and will be noted for its products," Mora C. Clark declared to the members of the Kiwanis club in an instructive address on pecan growing. Mr. Clark is an agriculturalist and manager of the Pecan-Fruit orchards which he is developing on his farm east of the city.

"The agricultural department of the United States says the pecan tree will enhance land value $100 per acre per annum without irrigation," Mr. Clark said, "and will produce in three years with irrigation what it would ordinarily produce in five years."

The speaker gave a solemn warning to the people of Wichita Falls when he said that if citizens of the irrigated valley will not set the land in pecan trees, non-residents would, and the finest groves would be owned by outsiders. He gave instances of the Georgia pecan orchards, some of the finest in the country, which are owned by persons living in Chicago and New York.

Cantaloupes on the Side.

Speaking of the distance the trees should be planted, Mr. Clark said 50 feet was the proper space, and the best trees are those with four-year-old roots and two-year tops. He expects to have bearing pecan trees from his orchard next year, and in 1929-30 he expects to have a profitable yield.

Between the pecan trees, Mr. Clark is growing cantaloupes of a fine variety which were exhibited at the club and halves served to the Kiwanians. He said in a few years he would be serving strawberries in May, August or October, grown on his irrigated farm. He is working on the project now.

Lester Jones introduced the speaker of the day and presented to the club the cantaloupes grown on the Pecan-Fruit orchard farm.

Just Hobbying Along.

Walter Nelson, Jr., introduced a number of Kiwanians who told of their hobbies. J. N. Sherrill, secretary, confessed newspapers as his hobby, and since he is a subscriber to four dailies, he said his wife was going to buy him one when they found oil. Lawrence Elkins admitted a weakness for golf; Bob McCulloch, a fondness for baseball in summer and football in winter. Speaking of balls, Captain Smith Langford stated he preferred highballs. A. A. Spencer said his hobby was filling stations; Frank Guesser, cantaloupes; M. A. Ellis, music, tennis, bridge, girls, and a number of others.

J. L. Jackson, president of the club was in charge of the meeting. Ed Riley, chairman of the "On to Muskogee" committee, spoke in the interest of the district meeting to be held in September at Muskogee. D. M. Bernard named F. R. Collard and Dan Lundien as members of the publicity committee for the Muskogee trip.
