JUNCTION FIRE DEPARTMENT HOLDS ANNUAL ELECTION OF OFFICERS MONDAY EVENING

Junction School Will Enter One Act Play Contest

A one act play entitled "Pink and Patches" will be given by a cast representing Junction High School in the district interscholastic meeting which will be held in Brownwood on March 15. The characters in the play are M. C. Blackburn, Kaleta Taylor, Christine Schraub and Sarah Schneider.

The play will be presented at the Texas Theater Thursday night, March 13. The money derived from this presentation will be used to help defray the expense of taking the play to Brownwood.

The play deals with North Carolinian mountain people and won first place in the National Little Theater competition in New York last year.

Miss Mary Ellis Blackburn is coaching the cast. Mrs. Conde Hardeman, Mr. Guy C. Moses and Miss Mary Ellis Blackburn will accompany the cast to Brownwood.

This will mark the first time that Kimble County has been represented in this contest. The strongest opposition that the Junction cast will meet with will probably be Comanche and San Saba, according to reports.

It is hoped that a large crowd will attend the presentation Thursday evening, in order that enough money can be raised to send the cast to Brownwood.

Mrs. L. A. Ivy Dies Saturday At London Home

Saturday, February 22, Mrs. L. A. Ivy, a native of Kimble County, died at her home in London.

Mrs. Ivy, the youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Black, was born January 21, 1898, in Comanche County. She spent most of her life around London and vicinity, with the exception of a short time spent in San Saba and Arizona. She attended school in London and graduated with the class of 1914.

She was married to L. A. Ivy October 2, 1919, at San Saba, Texas. She is survived by her husband, five children, one boy, Snooks, age 9, four girls, Lola Faye, 7, Mary Dell, 5, Mona Juanita, 3, and an infant, Frances Lucile, a few days of age; one sister, Mrs. Bob Hunter, three brothers, T. C. Bird and J. H. Black, besides several other relatives.

Active pall bearers were: Walton Kothmann, Howard Horn, Owen Amaon, Tom Amberson, W. L. Amaon, J. E. Smith, French Cummins, C. F. Bannowsky, J. F. Gentry and Frank Thurber.

Funeral services were held from the London Community hall. Interment was in the Red Rock Cemetery. The Order of the Eastern Star was in charge of the funeral services.

ROBISON MEMORIAL WILL BE DISCUSSED

A meeting of the Robison Memorial Association will be held in San Angelo on March 19, according to W. F. Scarborough, first vice-president of the Memorial Association.

Mrs. D. T. Whittle and daughter, Miss Stella, visited Mrs. Whittle's son, Edward Whittle, and family in Rocksprings last week. They also visited her son, Wilfred Whittle, at Hackberry.

John M. Hankins Is Re-elected Fire Chief

John M. Hankins was re-elected Chief of the Junction Volunteer Fire Department Monday night at the regular annual election of officers. Leon R. Powell was re-elected Assistant Chief.

Ollie Floyd was elected foreman of the Hose Company, and Cloma Murrah was elected foreman of the Chemical Company.

There were twenty-six present at the meeting which was held at the fire station.

Banquet Date Fixed

The next banquet of the organization will be held on the evening of March 28 at the Baptist Church, with the Baptist ladies in charge of the banquet arrangements. This banquet will be unique in the history of the fire department as it will be the first "ladies' night" which the organization has ever staged. The wives and sweethearts of the firemen will be invited to attend the affair.

Quartet Will Present Sacred Music Concert

A male quartet composed of students of the State Teachers' College at San Marcos, will sing a sacred concert in a combined service of all churches Sunday afternoon at three o'clock, March 9, in the auditorium of the First Baptist Church.

The members of the quartet are all young college men, and are recommended as capable singers. No admission will be charged.

FIREMEN COMMENCE BASEBALL PRACTICE

Equipment for the Junction Fire Department baseball team has arrived and the players have started practice under the direction of Howard Blackburn, who is coaching the team.

The Fire Department boys will match games with the teams in other towns in the Hill Country Association.

BUSINESS CHANGES OWNERSHIP THIS WEEK

Another business has changed hands this week that affects local people. Messrs. Fred Coleman and Royce Buster have purchased the McDonald Filling Station from Messrs. W. M. McDonald and Luther McDonald.

The name has been changed to the Safety First Filling Station.

Mr. W. M. McDonald stated that he would remain in Junction, but Mr. Luther McDonald said that his plans were indefinite now.

Fred Coleman has formerly been connected with the Highland Chevrolet Co. and is well acquainted with the garage and filling station business. Royce Buster has been connected with the Junction Tailor Shop in the past. They will handle a good line of gasoline and oils.

Mr. J. W. Hutt, publisher of the Rocksprings Record, was a caller at the Eagle office last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. N. Harrison, who live in Del Rio now, were visiting in Junction last week. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison formerly lived here and only a month ago bought a ranch near Del Rio and moved there.

LOCAL CONTRACTOR CATCHES HUGE GAR

Hanging from the awning of the Junction Hardware Company the first of the week was a huge alligator gar measuring six feet and four inches from tip to tip. This catch was made by E. D. Porter, local contractor.

E. D. Porter, Earl Tracy, Walter Buck and Bob Waits were fishing in the waters of the Rio Grande about sixty miles above Del Rio when the big catch was made.

Mr. Porter caught the huge gar on a rod and reel, with a twenty-four pound test silk line. He worked several minutes trying to land the fish. It weighed nearly one hundred pounds.

Four catfish were caught by the party. The fish weighed from three to twenty-two pounds.

A frog was used for bait to catch the huge gar.

V. A. Judging Team Wins 3rd Place at Brady

A group of boys studying Vocational Agriculture in the Junction High School made a trip to Brady Wednesday and attended a livestock judging contest and 4-H Club show. Mr. Ross Brison, Vocational Agriculture teacher, accompanied the boys on the trip.

The Junction boys made a creditable showing in the judging contests.

Those attending the contest were: Messrs. Ross Brison, Gordon King, James Hodges, Oliver Linn Vierling, Joe Roberts, Sherman Hendricks, Jarvis Jordan, Leon Turner, Laymon Taylor and Overly Smith.

The Junction team won third place in the contest. They made a total score of 761 out of a possible 900. In the beef cattle judging contest they took third place and in the Rambouillet ewe judging they took second place.

About 45 Kimble County people attended the show.

SIMMONS COWBOY BAND WILL PLAY TONIGHT

The Simmons Cowboy Band, Inc., of Simmons University will give a concert in the High School auditorium tonight. The high school is sponsoring the appearance of this famous band.

There are more than fifty pieces in the band, and it is probably the most popular band in the south today. Mr. D. O. Wiley is director.

The band is planning a trip to Europe this summer. Everyone who enjoys good music should hear the Simmons Cowboy Band in concert here tonight.

EMIL A. LOEFFLER ADDRESSES ROTARIANS

Emil A. Loeffler, president of the Rotary Club, delivered a masterful address at the noon luncheon today. Time and space forbids a report of this address in this issue, but it will be treated fully in our next issue. Emil A. Loeffler, the prince of "Boosters," always brings a good message when he is talking about the Hill Country.

Mrs. Alex J. Hamer and Mrs. Clifford Hamer are visiting in San Antonio this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Thompson spent the latter part of the week with Dr. and Mrs. L. L. Skaggs and family in San Antonio.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Pearce visited relatives at Mason Sunday.

County Interscholastic League Will Meet in Junction March 21 and 22

Kerrville Editor And Publisher Dies Tuesday

Friends of Mr. W. A. Salter, editor and publisher of the Kerrville Mountain Sun, were shocked to learn of his death Tuesday morning. He died at his family home in Kerrville.

Deceased had been in ill health for some time, but he was stricken suddenly ill in San Antonio on February 17 while attending an executive committee meeting of the South Texas Press Association of which he was a member.

He is survived by the widow and one son at Kerrville, the mother and a sister of Oklahoma City. His brother, C. E. Salter, died some six months ago and was buried at Kerrville.

Prominent newspapermen of Southwest Texas acted as pallbearers at the funeral which was held Wednesday afternoon from the family home.

His passing removed from the field of Journalism a remarkable character. His work and efforts reaped results not only in his own community but stretched out throughout the Hill Country and South Texas. The Kerrville Mountain Sun, one of the best and most wholesome weekly publications in Texas, stands as a monument to him and his brother who passed on a little more than a half year ago.

Mrs. J. A. Miller, Pioneer Citizen, Dies Tuesday

Mrs. John A. Miller, pioneer citizen of this section, died Tuesday, March 4, at 5:30 p. m., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. P. T. Hodges, and was buried in the Junction Cemetery Wednesday afternoon at 4 p. m.

Elder J. S. Newman, pastor of the Junction Church of Christ, officiated.

Deceased was born September 7, 1853. She was married to Mr. John A. Miller on August 30, 1870, and moved to Kimble County in the winter of 1874 where she made her home up till the time of her death.

To this union were born ten children, all of whom are still living with the exception of one boy who died in infancy.

At the home of Mrs. Hodges where she died, Mrs. Miller was only a stone's throw from the spot where she and her husband with three small children, first pitched camp in Kimble County.

Mrs. Miller was baptized into the Church of Christ in the year 1914.

Besides a host of friends and her nine children now living, there are a large number of grandchildren and great-grandchildren to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Miller suffered many hardships in her pioneer life in Kimble County. It was the bravery and courage of such women as Mrs. Miller that Kimble County has been carved into a desirable place in which to live.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Glossbrenner write that they have reached Ocean Side, California, and that Mrs. Glossbrenner stood the trip fine. She will take treatment at Los Angeles, but they will stay at Ocean Side and make the trip to Los Angeles as often as needed for the treatment.

MARCH SHOULD GO OUT LIKE A LAMB

If coming in like a lion means anything, March should go out like the proverbial lamb this year, according to U. S. Government weather reports for Junction given out by Mr. E. Holekamp.

Sunday morning, March 2, the thermometer registered 27 degrees. Monday morning it stood at 28 degrees, and Tuesday morning it registered 23 degrees.

Iceles hung from the trees on the Court House grounds, and tender vegetation was killed back.

London Graphic Is Purchased By San Saba Man

Mr. W. C. Swinney of San Saba has purchased the London Graphic from Mr. Marvin Hunter of Bandera and assumed control of the paper Monday morning.

Mr. Dan Ernst, who leased the paper from Mr. Hunter for three months, will return to Dallas where he has accepted a position as linotype operator for the Farm and Ranch magazine.

Mr. Swinney has been in the newspaper business for many years, and will give London and community a good paper. His wife and three children will make their home in London with him.

Marvin Hunter, who sold the paper, has purchased a small ranch near Bandera and is making his home there now. He helps his father who prints the Bandera New Era and the Frontier Times.

Dr. H. E. Wright Moves In New Office Today

Dr. H. E. Wright, Chiropractor, is moving into his new office this week in the building next to the Junction State Bank. The new office will be open Friday.

Stating that the most important reason for moving is that it will be more convenient for his patients, Dr. Wright is equipping his office in the most modern way.

Dr. Wright has had more than eight years practice, and is a Palmer three-year graduate. He practiced for six years in San Antonio, and has practiced in Junction for two years. He accepts only cases where he thinks he can help the patient and has built up a good practice on this basis. He has patients from all over this section. Several difficult cases have been successfully handled by Dr. Wright in his two years of practice here.

MRS. TENNIE SPRUELL DIES WEDNESDAY

Mrs. Tennie Spruell, aged citizen of the London Community, died at her home Wednesday, February 26th.

She was a respected and well known citizen in Kimble County and had many friends in this section who lament her death.

She had been in ill-health for many years.

Mr. Ben Warren of Houston was a Junction visitor this week.

Mr. E. M. Burt is in Carrizo Springs this week looking after business interests there.

C. of C. Will Not Handle Cottonseed

Numerous calls have been coming to the Chamber of Commerce office for cottonseed, but because so many different varieties are wanted, the office has decided not to handle cotton seed this year.

If it were possible for the farmers to get together and decide to plant the same kind of seed, it would be possible for the Chamber of Commerce to order cottonseed.

All Chambers of Commerce throughout the country are urging a reduction in cotton acreage this year.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL TEAM WINS GAME OFF COMFORT

The Girls' Basketball team of Junction defeated the Comfort team Saturday night by the score of 29 to 18. The game was played in the Schreiner Institute gymnasium in Kerrville.

It was a fast game, and the Junction team outplayed their opponents throughout the four quarters, according to reports.

Country Correspondence

LONDON LOCALS

Death, the mysterious separator of time from eternity, has again invaded our community. This time it called from time the spirit of Aunt Tinnie Spruell, an old and respected citizen. Mrs. Spruell had been a patient sufferer from that dreadful disease, cancer, for many years. On February 26 death came to her relief and her spirit went out to that eternal realm from whence no traveler has ever returned. Thus we see the old, the young and the middle-aged are all subject to the call of death. How careful and constantly we should examine our lives to know whether we are ready to go.

Rev. Mr. Wallace of Abilene conducted the services for the Christian Church Sunday, preaching at eleven, at three and at 7:30. A good crowd attended each service.

The work on the cemetery grounds last week sure did improve the appearance very much.

The debate between our boys and girls this week on the subject of importance as between the Dish Rag and the Powder Puff bids fair to be interesting. The girls will affirm with the Powder Puff and the boys will fight back with the Dish Rag. It will no doubt be a battle royal.

Virginia Jones has returned home after several weeks spent at the home of her grandparent at Katemey.

Miss Faye McKinney has returned to her work in the store after several days outing on the ranch. She says she had a real good time horseback riding and doing real ranch work.

We are informed that our town paper, The Graphic, has changed hands. A Mr. Swinney has bought the plant and assumes charge at once. Mr. D. L. Ernst will return to Dallas soon and resume work on a Dallas paper. We wish the new editor much success.

The first Saturday in April is the day to elect new trustees for the 1930-31 term of school. London is now an Independent School District, has control of her school matters and this naturally increases the responsibility of the trustees, both financially and otherwise. I have always taken the stand that the most intelligent men in any community should be selected as trustees. This I have contended for in common school districts, but more especially in this true of an independent district. A board of trustees for an independent district should not only be able to select an efficient board of teachers, but they should be able to handle finance economically. Thus it behooves London Independent School District to think well and elect a board of trustees that will be equal to the responsibility. The success of our independent district, the progress of our school depend upon the fitness of your board of trustees. Let's move out. I suggest E. H. Kothmann as a member of the board of trustees.

A little more rain, a little less chill would suit us fine.

On an improvised throne in the patio, Miss Austin Durst, beloved primary teacher, was crowned "Queen of Our Hearts," and presented with a large heart-shaped box of candy by the young host.

The pretty red and white birthday cake, surmounted with eight red, white and blue candles, was cut and the many favors aroused much merriment.

SYNOPSIS

Margaret Loder, married, Luke Maddison, wealthy banker, after he has transferred to her every dollar he has in the world. After the ceremony he asks her for some money with which to pay an obligation. She refuses, declaring that she shall never have a cent of his money back. She discloses to him the fact that her brother, Rex, who was found shot, had left a note saying that Maddison had ruined him, and Margaret had married Luke for revenge. She does not know that Rex had forged Maddison's name to a large check. Maddison leaves her and wanders about London, trying to understand what happened, while she is in a rooming house, an underworld character who had previously brought him a message from Gunner Haynes, a famous American crook.

The two are attacked by Joe Connor's gang, who think Luke is a detective whom Lewing has put on their trail. Lewing is killed and Maddison seriously wounded. He recovers, consciousness two weeks later and finds he is known in the hospital only as "Smith." He decides to retain that name. A messenger from Connor calls at the hospital, gives him $5 and the address of a Mrs. Fraser, explaining that there is a room there for him and that the gang wants to make amends for its mistake in attacking him. Luke goes to the Ginnett street address and finds a good room ready for him.

Marionette Margaret has had a vision from Luke, and she is now in a rooming house, looking for him. She has found consolation elsewhere and will let her share a divorce. She is a genuine. Danton Morell, a friend of her brother, Rex, who had been in jail to get some money. She borrows him to tell him that she has given all the money which Luke gave her back to him, and she is making her an allowance to live on. She has convinced that Luke has gone to his favorite resort in Spain and intends to join him there. Morell realizes that Margaret is in love with her husband and that his own schemes are likely to fail there.

While they are talking, Gunner Haynes is announced. Morell goes to see him, and when she meets Morell in another room. Haynes tells her that he is a jewel thief and that he is just out of prison, but Luke Maddison had offered to do him a favor and he wants to return it if possible. He asks if Danton Morell is a friend of hers, and who her husband left her.

SEVENTH INSTALLMENT

Margaret saw Luke driving a car in company with a fat-headed girl. She did not recognize her husband, with his beard, but overheard a conversation. Luke, the cleverest woman in the world, had been asked to act as her chauffeur. He drives her to a famous jeweler's shop and parks at the curb far to the left. She rushes from the door, jumps in and tells him to drive on at once. He does so, and is amazed to see the next car in the line of a jewelry robbery by a woman who got away in a car driven by a wealthy man. He has unwittingly become an accomplice of thieves, and considers fleeing to Spain, but realizes that he has no passport.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

Luke dismissed from his mind his experience of the afternoon. That was something not to be thought of without a shudder—he was whistling cheerfully when Mrs. Fraser came with a pair of bright, new slippers to collect the gray tweed suit he had discarded, and to bring him a pair of brown shoes, so hideously bright that they dazzled him.

"Connor says you'd better leave your mustache," she suggested.

"Where is Connor? Is he on the premises?"

"No, he phoned me."

"I didn't know you had a phone," he said in surprise.

Mrs. Fraser smiled cryptically.

"We've got lots of things here that people don't know anything about," she said.

She came back a little later with a tube of shaving paste, a brand new lather brush, and a razor which had evidently been purchased recently, for when he opened the cast he found it still enclosed in oil paper. Shaving was a painful process in spite of this, but apparently the results were satisfactory, for when the woman brought him some food later she stood in the doorway and craned her approval.

"Well, I should never have known you, Mr. Smith," she said, "and I'll bet your best friend wouldn't know you."

As to this Luke was perfectly convinced. What an extraordinary change a mustache made in a man's appearance! To him it lent a touch of the sinister—the stolid gazing, fascinated, at his reflection in the mirror.

Mrs. Fraser seemed more inclined to be conversational than she had been before; asked him if he was married, and before he could answer announced herself as a widow.

"At least, practically," she amended the statement. "My husband got a liver two years ago."

She was quite cheerful about this calamity, and Luke gathered that life had not run any too smoothly for the woman.

"He asked for it," she said. "Shot a copper and nearly killed him; and naturally, Connor wouldn't stand for that. Connor says a gun's all right for the unders. Fraser was that kind—flash! He tried everything—"

"Had he been in prison before?"

She smiled amusedly. "Why, of course! He did two stretches."

Luke did not ask what a stretch might be; he had a vague idea that it meant penal servitude.

"He did one stretch," said the communicative Mrs. Fraser, "for a swindle up in Manchester—he and Danty were in it—"

Luke's jaw dropped. "Danty?" he said incredulously. "Who is he?"

"He's a con man—you must have heard of him. I think he's straight now, but you can never tell. He lives up west, knows all the swells, and has got a flat in Half Moon Street. He and Gunner Haynes used to work together—"

"Gunner Haynes—you know him?" asked Luke quickly.

From her expression and tone he gathered that Haynes was a person of some importance in the hierarchy of the underworld.

"No, I don't know him. I've only heard of him. But what do they call Danty now?" She frowned in an effort of memory. "I had it on the tip of my tongue—a swell name. Danton Morell—that's it! Connor told me only the other day about him."

The room seemed to swim before Luke Maddison's eyes. Danton Morell—a confidence man, an ex-convict? It was incredible! And then suddenly he had the stunning realization that Danty Morell was his wife's best friend!

"What is he like in appearance?"

"Danty? I've seen him two or three times."

She described Morell in her homely language. There was no doubt at all that this was the man! It was more vitally necessary than ever that he should escape from this environment and re-appear as Luke Maddison.

His vague plans became definite. He could leave the house that night, seek out Halbert, and tell him the truth.

At nine o'clock that night he was preparing to leave when an unexpected difficulty arose. He was just about to turn out the light when Mrs. Fraser appeared. She closed the door behind her, and from her manner he gathered that something serious had happened.

"Two of the Lewing crowd are down below," she said in a low voice. "I haven't had a chance to call up Connor; the phone is in the parlor, and they came in before I knew what was happening."

She had something hidden under her apron, and when she withdrew her hand he saw that it was a small Browning pistol. "Put that in your sky," she said urgently. "You don't know what these fellows are after."

"In my—" he began, bewildered.

"In your pocket," she said impatiently. "Do as you're told."

Mechanically he took the pistol from her hand and slipped it into his hip pocket. The one thing he did not wish to challenge was a scene with two members of the rival gang. It was vital that he should get away from Ginnett Street with the least possible delay, and if this pistol helped him it was welcome.

"They want to see you—" she began.

And then a voice came from the foot of the narrow stairs. "Come on, Smith!"

There was a menace in the tone. Mrs. Fraser flung open the door.

"Wait!" she said sharply. "Who do you think you are?"

Luke heard a grumbling voice and the slam of the door which separated the foot of the stairs from the parlor. And then, at the beckoning jerk of the woman's head, he followed her down the stairs.

There were two men in the parlor. One stood with his back to the fire, the other significantly near the door that gave egress to the shop. They were respectfully dressed. Luke realized that if he had seen them in the street he would have thought they were decent artisans. There was certainly nothing sinister in either face. One was tall and rather stout, the other a slightly built man, who wore as his necktie the colors of a cavalry regiment.

The big man who stood with his back to the fire lowered his chin to his breast and looked at Luke from under his eyebrows.

"Is this Smith?" he asked.

"That is Mr. Smith," said Mrs. Fraser primly.

"What's the idea of your coming here and pretending you're somebody you're not?" asked the little man by the door with extraordinary rapidity.

His big companion silenced him.

"You shut up. I'll do all the talking, Curley," he said. "You did that job today, didn't you, Smith?"

"I've done many jobs," said Luke coolly.

"You're pretending you're a fellow named Smith whom our governor brought over from Australia—no, I'm not talking about Lewing; he was nobody. Swank killed him, and he's well dead. But you're not Smith."

He pointed a finger to the man at the door. "That's Curley Smith."

"I'll say I am!"

The little man was quivering with anger; he spoke with a shrill cockney whine.

"You've been using my name"—he qualified the name with a violent adjective.

The stout man by the fire rebuked him.

"There are ladies present," he said, with such solemnity that Luke almost laughed at the incongruity of the reproach.

"The point is," said the big man, who, Luke discovered, was named Verdi, "you was picked up when Lewing was chived, and you got yours too, and naturally Connor thought you were the man Lewing was supposed to meet off the boat in the London Docks. And instead of going to meet him, Lewing got cold feet, because he thought the Connor lot were after him for a squeal. But you're not Smith, and I'll take my oath you've never been to Australia."

"Him!" Curley Smith was quivering with contempt. "That feller couldn't get a living in Australia."

He suddenly tugged a newspaper from his side pocket. "Do you see what you've done for me?" he hissed, and thrust the paper under Luke's nose.

Luke Maddison read the paragraph which the grimy thumb of the man stabbed.

In connection with this robbery the police are seeking information concerning a man named Smith who landed a few weeks ago from the Orient liner Pontiac.

"Do you see what you've done?" repeated Smith savagely. "You've got the dicks after me!"

His hand strayed to his trousers pocket.

"Steady your mitt!" growled Verdi. "This bird's got a gat—what do you think the old woman went up to see him about?"

Mrs. Fraser flared at the insult.

"Old, am I, you fat snail! We'll see what Connor says to that! He'll be here in five minutes."

Verdi planced uneasily at the door.

"Bluff," he said. "Anyway, Connor can't complain if we come around to make a few inquiries. We're entitled to a bit of information."

"Do you want to see me any more?" said Luke, and moved toward the door.

Curley Smith stood squarely in his way.

"We want to know—" began Verdi.

"You know all you're likely to know," said Luke curtly.

He took another step forward, but Smith did not move. Suddenly Luke's hand shot up, gripped the little man and swung him across the room. It was not a moment to compromise or to argue; instinctively he knew he was taking the right line as he pulled the door wide open.

"Get outside, both of you!" he said.

"That's all right," he said. "We don't want any unpleasantness."

He was smiling when he came abreast of Luke; but Mrs. Fraser had slipped to the other side of the table, and saw the life preserver he carried in his right hand.

"Look out!" she cried shrilly. As the deadly little stick rose, Luke struck for the man's jaw, and he went over with a crash against the wooden partition which separated the shop from the parlor.

For a moment he was stunned, and in that time Luke had jerked the life preserver from the man's hand (a leather cord attached to it was twisted around his wrist) and had dropped it into his pocket.

"Come on, you." He beckoned Curley Smith, and the little man sidled nimbly past him.

Verdi was on his feet by now, a little dazed, blinking with his pale blue eyes at the man who had knocked him down.

"All right," he said, and went heavily after his companion.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION IN PUBLIC SCHOOL

(By Wilbur Jeter)

Vocational education in schools is the most important subject in any school besides English. The students that take vocational work will learn, or have the opportunity to learn, anything about how to take care of animals or plants that surround them. This subject will put you in better condition to do good work or jobs, that you would have otherwise had done by some experienced person, that knew something about it.

Vocational work in the schools is a big benefit to the school and pupils. The pupils improve the grounds, buildings, and erect play material for the children of the smaller grades. One who has taken this work will be a benefit to the country that is around him, for he may be called to do work for someone which might save him some money.

I think every student who has gone through high school without vocational work has just missed part of his work in school. I think the student who takes vocational work is better equipped for every day life. I should think vocational work should be a required subject in school for the boys.

JUNIOR NOTES

Miss Nellie Bennett, the Junior sponsor, called a Junior class meeting Monday morning in room 13 for the purpose of discussing the chapel program, which was previously planned. The program will be published next week.

Mrs. Felps—"Is trousers singular or plural?"
Leonard—"Singular at the top and plural at the bottom."

Buckshot—"I can tell you the score of the game before it starts."
Hazel—"What is it?"
Buckshot—"Nothing to nothing—before it starts."

Devers—"Say, Honey, what do you say to a kiss?"
Lois—(demurely) "I've never spoken to one."

NINTH GRADE NOTES

Everyone seems glad that six-weeks' examinations are over again.

Myrtle Wuest, one of the Sophomores, moved to Fredericksburg last Saturday. She has lived here since school started.

T. M. Tomberlin went to Menard Saturday night.

Mrs. Dutton took some of the ninth grade pupils on a picnic Friday night.

Dad—"What do you say to the nice lady who gave you the apple?"
Kid—"Peel it."

Many sophomores study with too much ease—that's probably why they get so many.

Time is more precious than gold. Don't waste it.

SPANISH CLUB NOTES

Se celebró la sesión de la Daya Espanola el miercoles. Los socios discutieron la cuestion de demotas, y despues hablaban de procurar broches del club.

La Senorita Hendricks leyo un papel sobre la vida de Jose de Espronceda. La Senorita Boone dio la historia de "La Virgen de Montserrat," una pequena imagen en el monasterio de Montserrat.

Despues del programma se sirvieron refrescos a los socios del club y a un convidado, el Senor Moses.

La Daya Espanola met on Wednesday. The members discussed the question of dues and later the question of getting the club pins.

Norma Hendricks read a paper on the life of Jose de Espronceda. Temple Boone gave the history of "La Virgen de Montserrat," a small image in the monastery of Montserrat.

After the program refreshments were served to the members and Mr. Moses, an invited guest.

JOURNALISM WORK GAINS FOLLOWERS

The attitude taken toward journalism work in school by students who are not members of the editorial staff proves encouraging. The viewpoint of one student is expressed in the following:

Journalism in High School (by Opal Porter)
Every high school should have its own paper or a part in the local paper.

If a school has a paper, the whole student body is going to be more interested on account of their paper; and not only the pupils, but the people outside of school are going to take a greater interest in the school work.

A school paper should be of great benefit to those who write the news because: It teaches them to observe things that are going on about them more closely, and it teaches them to write in a clear and interesting manner.

What would this school be without Ella and Lorena?
Who is Lucille, anyhow?
What is Dever's purpose in life?
When will Buckshot grow up?
Who is Blake's "honey" now?

Mr. Moses—Oscar, I want you to quit driving so fast. Can't you use your noodle?
Oscar (the next day)—Mr. Moses, where is the noodle? I've searched that dash board all over and couldn't find it.

Junction streets need paving.

IS IT POSSIBLE THAT

Lucille really loves Bill?
Muriel is a man hater?
Ella has decided to be an old maid?
Hazel is cute?
Marie, Wynona and Opal are separable?
Raymon is not in love with someone?
A girl never hangs around Devers?
Margaret is beautiful and sweet?
The tenth grade history class is called the "know-nothings?"

Devers McElrath shows his ability to get on the "good side" of the girls. Read the following article and see for yourself.

GIRLS BASKET BALL TEAM

The girls basketball team has been receiving a large amount of publicity during the last two weeks. The comment is not coming from the newspapers, but the students.

The girls have had a splendid year in basket ball, with only one defeat against their record. This defeat, which was very unfortunate, should not have happened because the girls had defeated the same team a few short weeks ago.

I think that the commenting rumors should stop, as the girls have practiced very hard this year; and I think that the defeat was due to the fact that the players were off guard, and having won the first game, probably were a little overconfident. I still think that the girls are bound to win.

CAN U FEATURE—?

Harry talking sense?
Louise passing a course in English?
Hazel gentle and patient?
Leonard serious?
Lorena not playing basketball?
Wilbur yodeling?
Ella not in a hurry?
Buckshot of importance?
Raymon S. seriously in love?

FRIENDS

(by Ruby Davis)
How valuable and how pleasant it is to have friends. It is so much easier to accomplish a difficult task when one feels his friends are interested in his efforts. Wealth can be counted; and the things money can buy can be estimated; but the value of true friendship is inestimable. We find people who say they do not want friends. Such people have never been friends to anyone, and realizing this, realize also that they are undeserving of friendship. Then we find people who do not appreciate friendship. Because they have not needed friends they cannot realize their importance and value. Friends are not like many other things—here today and gone tomorrow. They give of their best until the befriended one does something which proves he no longer deserves that friendship. To quote Emerson: "The way to have a friend is to be one."

JUNIOR HISTORICAL CLUB HAS MEETING

The Junior Historical Club met last Friday in another successful meeting. The club members gave interesting reports on both domestic and foreign matter. If you want to hear some very interesting reports on topics of the day just make a visit to our club on any Friday from 11:15 to 12 a. m.

The club was honored by a visit from Mrs. G. W. Crabb and two sophomore pupils, Rownie Motley and Harrell Ramsey.

Remember we predict a very interesting meeting for next Friday, March 7, and we hope you will be a visitor.

A prize has been awarded by the sponsor, Mrs. Dutton, to the boy or girl of the club who contributes most to the scrapbook, by the end of the term. We expect this arrangement to cause much competition, and, consequently, better club work.

SENIOR NOTES

Jake Beasley, accompanied by his "wad" of Blow-Gum, spent the week-end at the ranch. If there's one thing the Seniors can do, it is to get up their civics notebooks. Ain't it so, Mr. Bowers?

Last Thursday was the Senior's day to entertain in chapel. One of the numbers was an impersonation of four old women gossipers. The gossipers were Ruby Davis, Ruth Sandherr, Norma Hendricks and Marjorie Montgomery.

The Glee Club also sang, and Pairalee Linn and Juanita Cowart read. One or two musical numbers were given, and then the Glee Club sang another song.

Mr. Moses—"Jake what is a line?"

Jake—"Contrary to the dictionary, a line is not a string, a cord or a rope. Neither a thread-like mark of pencil or pen."

If straight it is not necessarily the shortest distance between two points.

A line is what makes a beautiful girl roll her eyes at a man who has freckles, big ears and no money.

After all a line is nothing more than a loose flow of words that doesn't amount to anything.

When Merle came limping up the steps Monday morning we wondered what boy she was living at when the horse pitched her off.

Temple came to school Monday morning saying she was sore from riding horse-back, but Ira, we told you to not take any girls riding in your "Hoopie."

Junior asked in English class if Dragons were people dressed up or really animals. Junior thought you learned to kindergarten.

N. G. L. C. MEETS

The N. G. L. C. met in its regular business session last Friday, February 28, 1930.

The meeting was called to order by the president, Betty Kroppf. Many interesting topics were discussed by different members of the club. The topics discussed were about the important political and national events of the day.

Junction Trade Notes

(By G. G. Co.)

The National Wool Co-op, which is ready to function in Texas, announces the following schedule of proposed advances on wools: 70 cents per pound on 8 months, secured basis; 75 cents per pound on 12 months. It is stated the schedule of advances on mohair would be announced this week from San Angelo. Wool warehouses over the state have made the statement that if the Co-op plan of marketing is proved more advantageous to the growers than the warehouses they are willing to liquidate their holdings and join in the Co-op movement.

Spring shearing of goats in the Junction territory is going forward rapidly and Junction wool warehouses are receiving consignments daily.

A flock of goats on the Omer Wright ranch clipped 3 1/2 lbs. about half the flock being nannies, which indicates that the Wright flocks are coming out of the winter in good shape.

Fred Dunderstadt's cattle, on feed, walked away from the feed grounds Monday and laid down, which may indicate rain soon; or a dry spring, whichever way one cares to interpret it.

Arrived this week: White House baby chick starter, chick scratch, hen scratch, laying mash, all kinds chicken feed, Gann Grocery Company. Also Sure Crop and Yellow Dent seed corn, Sudan, Dwarf Maize, Hagera.

The President of Ford Motor Company, in a newspaper interview, says business and financial conditions are steadily improving. And he ought to know, he's on the road every day. The sale of four and five year old steers at $95 for April delivery is announced at Uvalde.

This newspaper item from Alpine is interesting to ranchmen who depend on windmills for water: An 18-foot mill on the Merrill & Son ranch in Big Bend lifts water from a 320-foot depth and forces it through 3200 feet of pipe to a tank 400 feet higher than the mill.

And a frost and freeze in Florida early in the week caused a loss of 90% to beans and tomatoes and 50% damage to potatoes.

In stock: Tomato juice in tins for those who desire it. Fresh stock Texas preserved Pigs and pig jam, Gann Grocery Company. Special low price on Uvalde honey this week.

There is a good farming season in Williamson County, according to O. W. Cardwell who is here this week on business. Mr. Cardwell has recently introduced polo at Georgetown and has four players and a referee in his own family.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Penn of Ballinger were visitors to Junction Monday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Mohr at beautiful Kimble Courts. Mrs. Mohr and Mrs. Penn are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Warren of Houston are in Junction for a vacation, occupying their comfortable summer home fronting the South Llano.

The weather is typically March—with egg prices showing a slight advance from the low ebb.

Gann Grocery Company "Everybody's Store."

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. May of Mason were Junction visitors Sunday.

Reuben Loeffler, who is attending school in Austin, spent the week-end visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emil A. Loeffler.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Heyman left Tuesday for a visit to the Winter Garden district of Texas. They have property there and the looking after interests there.

Mrs. A. Hodges, Misses Blix Hankins and Cristelle Reid and Mr. Dillard Motley went to San Angelo Sunday to visit Mrs. J. D. Walker. Mrs. Walker will be remembered as Miss Mildred Hodges before her recent marriage.

PATERSON & RIECK RANCH HAS GOOD STOCK

The manager of the Junction Eagle enjoyed a brief visit to the Paterson & Rieck ranch near Roosevelt yesterday afternoon with Captain H. W. Rieck who made a little business run out to see how everything was moving on the ranch, and incidentally to have a truck load of the Rieck Goat Coats, which are becoming very popular with ranchmen who believe in saving their goats, brought in to distribute to men in various sections of the goat raising section. Goatmen throughout the country have found that the Rieck Goat Coats are a boon to the industry. These coats save thousands of goats every spring, especially when rain falls during the shearing season.

The Paterson & Rieck ranch is composed of 30,000 acres of good ranch land and is stocked with 6,000 fine sheep, 2,500 goats, 400 white-face cows and more than 100 horses. Captain Rieck believes in fine stock and has spent considerable money in getting the best. The writer saw some of the finest sheep he has ever seen. They are real show stuff. The ranch force is well organized and everything is carried out with dispatch. It is a genuine pleasure to visit a ranch where everything seems to be so well planned and the work is carried on so orderly and systematically.

Excavation is under way for the beautiful ranch home that Mrs. Paterson and Captain Rieck are building. This building will cost approximately $25,000 when completed and furnished. It will be complete in every detail as described in the Eagle in the issue of January 30.

ROOSEVELT SCHOOL NEWS

The pupils were served hot cocoa at noon Wednesday. Mrs. Woods furnished the milk for the cocoa. We appreciate Mrs. Woods kindness.

The literary society held its regular meeting Friday. At this meeting we elected new officers. Bert Allison was elected president and Reba Barfield secretary. We appointed Ruby Lawler and Ben Allison as a program committee.

Roy Thiers cut his foot badly Thursday afternoon. It took fifteen stitches to sew it up. The following ladies visited the school Friday afternoon: Mrs. Arch Surber, Mrs. Lonnie Smith, Mrs. Henry Leifeste and Mrs. Oscar Camp.

George and Annie Ruth Hoover returned to school Monday after two weeks' absence on account of illness.

Mr. Homann, county agent, came out Tuesday afternoon and gave an interesting lesson on judging of sheep. Most of the club members have their demonstration started and are taking a great interest in them. All we need is the hearty support of the parents of the community.

Mr. Murf of Junction came out and make a picture of the school Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Arch Surber surprised us Thursday by bringing out a large pot of chili beans for a hot dish at lunch. We will serve a vegetable soup Wednesday as we have some of the beans left.

Plant More Feed

THE experience of the ranchmen in Kimble and adjoining counties this winter and early spring teaches that more feed should be grown to take care of just such emergencies as we are passing through. If the feed should not be needed as it is this season, there is always a good sale for it.

It is now time to plan for your feed crops. Our County Agent, Mr. R. E. Homann, will be glad to advise with farmers and ranchmen about their feed crops for the year.
