Burrows Out, Council Bypasses Mayor's Veto

Olton City Councilmen began looking for a new chief of police Tuesday night after Emmett Burrows was released from his duties during a called meeting by the group.

The group had actually voted two weeks ago to ask for Burrows' resignation, but a veto by Mayor W. E. Thomas delayed the matter until the Tuesday vote.

The council originally voted 2-1 to fire Burrows, but two members of the council did not vote, casting doubt on the legality of the action.

Thomas vetoed the vote, citing a rule in Vernon's Civil Statutes that called for a two-thirds majority vote in any case in which a city official is relieved of his duties.

But Thomas told the council that during a phone call to the Texas Municipal League last week he was told that only a simple majority vote was needed to override his veto.

Voting to override the veto and fire Burrows were Robert Dennis, Charles Sullivan and Doug Jones.

Voting to uphold the veto and keep Burrows were Lester Thompson and Parley Myers.

The original motion asking for Burrows' release, was effective immediately after the vote.

Olton voters will go to the polls Tuesday, April 4, to choose two city council members and a new mayor.

Lester Thompson is the only incumbent in the race. Terms of Thompson and Parley Myers expire this year as councilmen, and W. E. Thomas' term as mayor expires.

Thomas will not seek reelection and Myers announced early that he would seek that post. He is running unopposed.

Others vying for the position of councilmen are Bobby Daugherty, Jimmy Jenkins, Lindsay Dennis and C. C. Curry.

Daugherty, a life-long resident of Olton, is employed as a painter and he and his wife, Joyce and 12-year-old son, Joe Bob attend the Methodist Church.

Jenkins moved to Olton in 1955 and operates a paint and body shop. He and his wife, Uleta, a local school teacher, have three sons, Thomas, 14, Jerry, 10 and John, 8.

Dennis was one of the first settlers of this area and operated one of the first businesses in the town of Olton. They are members of the First Methodist Church.

Curry, has been a resident of Olton for 27 years, and is

Mayor Issues Retraction

Olton Mayor Bill Thomas sent in the following letter after his open letter printed in the Enterprise last week.

"In my letter to the taxpayers and residents of Olton in the Olton Enterprise of 3/23/67 I referred to a City Official that had implied imbezement on the part of another Official. I have been assured that any statement that was made was not for the purpose of making any accusations, but rather to investigate several complaints which had been made to him.

Due to this assurance I was evidently in error, in my statement, and by this means wish to retract my statement pertaining to the manner and qualification of this official."

The car traveled on the side of the highway for quite a distance, jumped a bar ditch, skidded across an intersecting road and came to a stop on the side of the highway. Note the broken steering column resting on the front seat. Mrs. Kemp received neck injuries and is reported to be in good condition. Gas Industry Points Up Free Enterprise

Not so many years ago, people traveling across the wide plains of the Southwest frequently saw in the distance a flaming jet of gas shooting high into the air. Some of these flaming gushers of escaping natural gas went uncontrolled for long periods of time dissipating valuable energy into the atmosphere. Gradually, as the West settled, local markets close to the gas fields developed, but the real need for the energy lay in the densely populated section of the country hundreds and often thousands of miles away. The problem was transportation.

Gas today has become an important part of the total energy picture. And, in the process, has created a major new industry. The gas utility business a decade or two ago, comparatively speaking, was in its infancy. Its greatest growth came after the discovery of means to transport natural gas safely and efficiently over long distances—the pipeline.

With this development, gas came into its own. The industry is now the nation's sixth largest in terms of plant investment—$31.3 billion. In 1966, the industry established new records in revenues, customers served, gas usage and construction expenditures. It added 900,000 new customers to its business last year, and in construction expenditures for the same period set a new record of $2.4 billion. The history of the gas industry is significant for two reasons. It illustrates the growth that is a normal part of the free enterprise system—a system that offers opportunity and hope of reward to the innovator and developer. The gas industry has also shown how, under the free enterprise system, conservation and utilization of resources go hand in hand. In short, the gas industry is a near perfect example of the reason for the phenomenal rise of this nation.

protect or to punish. Take this case:

A night watchman was rushed by a man wielding a knife. Drawing his gun, the watchman killed his assailant with two fast shots. But in due course, he himself was arrested and brought to trial on a homicide charge.

"His first shot was legitimate self-defense," conceded the prosecutor. "However, his second shot was fired after the man was already wounded. That was no longer self-defense. It was punishment."

But the court rejected Hawkins' excuse and ordered him to pay damages. Pointing out that the girl was no longer in danger at the time her father intervened, the judge said the right to protect did not include the right to punish.

By and large, the law does not give you the right to "get even" for a wrong inflicted upon you or your loved ones.

The reason lies in the "contract" between the individual and society. The individual gives up his right to punish a wrongdoer, in return for society's promise to do it for him.

To be sure, it may be difficult in a particular case to determine whether a person was acting to

On the other hand: A landlord and tenant got into an angry scuffle, during which the tenant was knocked to the ground. While he was lying there helpless, the landlord gave him a swift kick in the head.

Because of the kick, the landlord was later held liable for assault and battery. The court said that, with danger past, the landlord had clearly acted out of sheer vindictiveness—and must therefore pay damages.

It was the law's way of echoing the warning of the poet La Fontaine: "Revenge, however sweet, is dearly bought."

GET SMART!

Dear Amy:

For the last 5 months I've been going with the sweetest guy. My parents adore him as much as I do.

When I finish high school (I'm 15), I want to marry him. I'd marry him now, but we both know how important an education is. He realizes it more than I because he didn't finish high school.

My problem is my father who, like all good fathers, wants his daughter to have the best. He wants me to go to college. I don't want to go, and I'm afraid I'll hurt his feelings if I tell him, especially because I know how much it means to him. My parents have been so good to me that I feel I owe them something.

What should I do?
Really Grateful

to see me every night and we dated.

Then they left for Florida because his father is a contractor and had work there. The boy told me he would phone me and send me his address. Well, he called me up once and that is all I have heard from him.

We are supposed to get married in April. Mom said she would sign for my license, but I don't know if he will come back. I know he has a job to finish here this coming summer, but his dad might come up himself to do the work.

I love him very much and I am worried about him. I haven't been out with a boy since he has left, and I pray every night he will call or write, but so far he hasn't.

Please tell me what to do?
V. B.

Dear Grateful:

College is 3 or 4 years in your future. I hope you have a change of heart by then. You don't "owe" your parents a college education, but rather the desire to further your education should be YOUR goal. And if you and your beau truly know the value of a good education, you will urge him to complete high school and then enroll in a college or vocational school.

Unless the groundwork is started now, your plans can not materialize to your satisfaction later.

Dear V. B.:

I'm sorry for a girl who wants marriage at 16 to a boy who is insincere, just a mere acquaintance and not ready for marriage, either.

Stop praying, dear, and get over him. It won't be too hard if you do what you are expected to do: date others, have fun and grow up. That's what youth is for!

Dear Amy:

I am 15 years old and so is my boyfriend. We've known each other since October but we like each other very much. He is always buying me presents. Is it all right if I buy him presents on the spur of the moment, too?

My family and I went away for the weekend once, and when we came back, he gave me a welcome home present. I feel odd not giving him anything. I would greatly appreciate an answer to this small problem.

Uncertain

Dear Uncertain:

I wouldn't advise you buying him gifts or accepting his. This is too costly a pastime for young teenagers to indulge in. Promptly discourage him. Encourage him to send cards or personal notes... and I hope you get the message, too.

Cross, Jones Wedding Vows Exchanged Here Saturday

Before an archway of candelabras, entwined with greenery and flanked by baskets of greenery with touches of blue, Miss Cindy Yvonne Cross became the bride of Airman 2/C Wendell Gene Jones.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Lute Cross of Olton and Mr. and Mrs. Hayden Jones of Red Oak, Iowa.

The double ring ceremony was read by the Rev. John E. Lewis Saturday, March 25 at 7:30 p. m.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ankle-length gown of white peau de soie, fashioned with a round neckline, long sleeves, softly pleated skirt and self bows. The detachable chapel train extended from the waist.

The gown had back closure of tiny covered buttons, with loop closings as did the sleeves. Accenting the neck and hem line were lace appliques. The gown was made by the bride's grandmother, Mrs. C. C. Allen of Abilene.

The shoulder-length veil of illusion dropped from a crown of roses and the bride carried a cascade arrangement of white cymbidium orchids and feathered mums with lace background. A lace-trimmed kneeling pillow of peau de soie was placed at the altar.

Serving her sister as maid of honor was Miss Jerri Lyn Cross of Olton. Misses Suzanne Martin of Olton and Miss Linda Jane Pinnell of Adrian, attended as bridesmaids. Each attendant wore a street-length dress of heaven-blue acetate, fashioned similar to the bride's. They wore blue tulle veils attached to a bow of self material and each carried a single long-stemmed white carnation.

Airman 2/C Thomas E. Trucks Jr., of Birmingham, Ala. served as best man. Groomsmen were Airman 1/C John L. Griffin of Memphis, Tenn., and Airman 2/C John I. Schaefer of Carroll, Iowa. Gerald C. Brown of El Paso, uncle of the bride and Tom Sluder Jr. of Olton were ushers. Lighting the candles was James Lute Cross, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Ruth Holladay, organist, and Duward Price, soloist, both of Olton, presented wedding music.

Miss Iva Tanner, cousin of the bride, registered the guests.

At the reception which was held in the fellowship hall of the church, the chosen colors of the bride were featured in a floral centerpiece on a white cloth. Complimenting the arrangement were blue streamers lettered in silver and blue candles in silver holders. Silver and crystal appointments were used in serving. Members of the houseparty included Miss Pat Clifford of Abilene, Mrs. Sam Roden Jr., of Plainview, Mrs. Leroy Powers and Miss Iva Tanner of Olton.

Mrs. Jones is an Olton High School graduate and is now a sophomore at Hardin-Simmons University, Abilene, where she is employed part-time in the social science department.

Youth Employee Rules Ain't What They Used To Be

In doing research for a speech on minimum wage laws and how they may affect irrigation district operation and maintenance, Smith Center, Kan., Attorney Arno Windschfel, came across some common rules and regulations regarding office employees - in common usage 100 years ago.

given an evening off each week for courting purposes, or two evenings a week if they go regularly to church.

The century-old rules were part of an entertaining talk he gave to the Four States Irrigation Council in Denver, recently.

Housework At A Yawn

If this week's column appears a bit short, both in length and in helpful hints, I hope you will forgive me.

I have only one very tired excuse to offer -- I am so sleepy that my tired brain refuses to function.

Our No. 2 son finally passed his physical at the hospital and was allowed to come home. The boss and I were delighted and could hardly wait to get young Patrick home.

We are still thrilled at having the tiny mite home with us. But at times (particularly the times in the wee hours of the morning) I have contemplated the possibility of returning him to the hospital. Just for one night so I could get some sleep.

You see, due to Patrick's size, or, rather lack of size, he must be fed every two hours.

I feel like a human guinea pig for one of those sleep experiments. Although in accumulated hours, I manage to get eight to ten hours of sleep, it seems as though my head has not touched a pillow in days.

I no sooner get into that wonderful land of dreams and deep sleep than it is time to arise, warm the bottle, change a wet diaper, and feed the baby his one and one-half ounces of milk.

If I were a random housekeeper before, you should see me now. The dishes are stacked to the ceiling and thanks to today's lovely weather, the dirt is an inch thick on the floors.

This morning I decided it was time to wash diapers (as I was down to the last dozen.)

I no sooner got them washed and out on the line than you know what happened... a gentle breeze of some fifty miles an hour swept across the land bringing with it several tons of flying dust.

I have been racking my brain all week trying to think of helpful tips to pass on in my column but every time I sit down to think I fall asleep. I watched the mail anxiously every day hoping and praying that someone would write me a letter chucked full of many hints of the housewife, but it was all for naught. No one wrote and I am doomed.

This afternoon I finally located my old stand by the "I hate to Housekeep Book." It was under a stack of unwashed bottles and nipples and thoroughly drenched in formula.

I managed to keep my eyes open long enough to find a few tips that I hope will be useful. So before I fall asleep at the typewriter, here they are.

If you have to defrost a refrigerator, fill big pans with boiling hot water and set them in it, once you've turned off the current.

But don't fill your ice cube trays with boiling hot water because it removes the manufacturers' wax finish, and then your ice cubes will stick worse than they do right now.

When you finish baking in your oven always leave the oven door open, and the baking element will last longer.

If you're not hitched to a sewer and instead have a septic tank, don't give your disposer any egg shell, bones, or coffee grounds.

They will eventually fill up the tank because the bacteria stands helpless before them. In any case, you'll have to have your septic tank cleaned more often, if you have a food disposer, but it is certainly worth it.

When you're taking a bath, a good thing to remember besides soap is that the bathroom won't steam up so much if you run the cold water first. Then bring it to the proper temperature with the hot.

It is nice to know that, according to Dr. Marie Stopes, a married couple enjoys greater nocturnal bliss by sleeping in a south-north or north-south direction.

I don't know how true that one is but if I ever get a chance to get some sleep, I'll try it and let you know. I would like to make one more desperate plea to any and all of you to please send me some of your own ideas on how to make housework easier. Please, please, send me some hints. I need some help.

Just one little tip on a postcard would be wonderful.

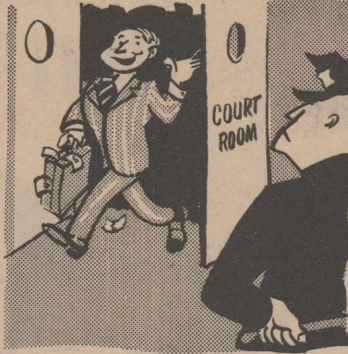

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Through the Loophole

No doubt about it: the case was a shocker. A city alderman had been caught taking a bribe. But when he was brought to trial, it turned out that there was a loophole in the state's criminal code. By mistake, the code failed to make this particular action a crime.

So the alderman went free. As speedily as possible, the state legislature passed a new law closing the loophole. But as far as the alderman was concerned, it was too late. He had slipped safely through the law's clutches.

Does that make sense? Should the court let a man "get away with it" just because of a loophole in the law?

We have to start with one blunt fact: no law is perfect, with no loopholes at all. Human wisdom cannot foresee all the possible variations of conduct that may arise in the course of time.

Still, when a mistake in the law is so obvious, shouldn't the court stretch a point in the interest of justice? For example, in the alderman's case the court might have said:

"Loophole or no loophole, this fellow has done a wrong thing and must be punished."

The trouble is, a court simply does not have that power under our constitutional system. Judges may interpret laws, but not make them. In the words of the United States Supreme Court: "It is the legislature, not the court, which is to define a crime and ordain its punishment."

To be sure, there is harm in letting a wrongdoer escape the punishment he deserves. But in the process, he gives society vital information—just as the escaping fish shows the fisherman where his net needs patching.

And closing even a single loophole in the law may have far-reaching consequences. Thus:

A flour company in New York once used a society girl's picture in its ads without asking for her permission. When she sued, the court could find nothing in the law that forbade such unwanted publicity. The girl's suit was dismissed.

In short order, the state legislature closed the loophole with a new law. And, as it turned out, this law was the cornerstone of one of the most significant legal developments of our times.

It was, in fact, the first "right of privacy" law in history.

TAX MAN SAM SEZ:

Since Internal Revenue Service processes all the income tax forms through the computer they have to match the name, address and social security number with last year's information in the computer tape.

This makes it very important for taxpayers to use the pre-addressed tax forms they receive in the mail from Internal Revenue Service.

If you cannot use the form you receive in the mail, take off the piggyback label and use it on your return so Internal Revenue can identify you. Don't get "lost" by sending in a different name or social security number.

KITCHEN KORNER

By Lela Gallion

Today is a beautiful spring day, and believe it or not, no wind! But, of course, by the time you read this it may not be so pretty.

This kind of weather always makes me think of springhouse-cleaning and needless to say I am not a random housekeeper so would really like to tear into the typical cleaning of the house. This means that a quick meal is the best kind for me at this time.

When you have a small family and have quite a few left overs, it is a good idea to take foil pie plates and put a complete serving for one on each plate and wrap well and freeze for those days when you are really busy cleaning house. Just whisk them in the oven with a package of hot rolls and make a quick lettuce salad and your family will think you have spent several hours preparing the meal.

SWEDISH MEATBALLS

Blend 1 can Campbell's cream of celery soup with 1/2 can water. Measure out 1/4 c. soup mixture. Combine with:

- 1 lb. ground beef
- 1 egg, slightly beaten
- 2 Tbsp. minced onion
- 2/3 c. fine dry bread crumbs
- 1 Tbsp. chopped parsley, if desired

ASPARAGUS AND CHEESE

- 2 cans asparagus
- 2 Tbsp. flour (heaping)
- 1 c. grated cheese
- 1 c. juice or milk
- 1/4 cube oleo
- 3 boiled eggs, chopped

Place asparagus in baking casserole. Stir in juice or milk along with flour, salt and pepper. Add eggs, dot with oleo. Add cheese. Put in oven and bake slowly until bubbly and brown.

CHERRY CHIFFON PIE

- 1 large can evaporated milk
- 1 No. 303 can sour pitted cherries
- 1 pkg. cherry flavored gelatin
- 1 8-oz pkg. Philadelphia cream cheese
- 1 c. chopped pecans
- 1 c. sugar

Drain cherries, combine juice with enough water to make 1 cup. Mix with gelatin. Put in ice box, until sets to a soft jell.

Pour sugar over cherries. Chill milk until ice crystals form. Whip gelatin until foamy. Whip together milk and cheese to a high peak. Add gelatin, cherries and nuts. Pour into graham cracker crust. Place in ice box to chill. Makes 2 pies.

TUNA-PEA CASSEROLE

- Mix together:
- 1 can tuna, flaked
- 1 tall can English peas

Add to above:
1 1/2 c. thin white sauce
Place in greased casserole dish and sprinkle generously with potato chips. Bake 15 minutes at 375 degrees F.

CHEESE NOODLE SCALLOP

- 4 c. wide noodles
- 1/4 c. butter
- 1/4 c. chopped onion
- 1/4 c. chopped green pepper
- 2 tsp. salt
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 1/2 tsp. celery seed
- 2 c. milk
- 1 lb. cottage cheese
- 3 Tbsp. flour.

Cook noodles until tender in boiling, salted water. Drain well. Sauté onion and green pepper in butter for 3 minutes. Stir in flour, salt, pepper and celery seed. Slowly stir in milk, then cottage cheese. Toss noodles with sauce and place in a 2 quart casserole. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake in 350 degree oven, 40 to 50 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

INTERNATIONAL CHOIR and Sing-Out '67 stage band of Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, entertained the Olton High School student body at an assembly, Tuesday morning. The 35-voice choir is directed by James D. Cram and includes members from Illinois, Kansas, Arizona, New Mexico, Missouri, Colorado, California, Alabama and 17 Texas cities. Their stop in Olton was part of the scheduled spring tour through Texas cities, which began Tuesday and will continue through April 2.

"The announced increases in discounts for shorter staple and lower quality cottons is not at all what PGC wanted for its members, and while our efforts to prevent them were not totally successful, we do feel that discounts would have been increased considerably more without those efforts."

Those are the words of Donald A. Johnson, executive vice-president of Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., in a recent report to the 23-county cotton producer organization's Board of Directors.

He referred to arbitrary increases in such discounts, which amounts to a decrease in the cotton's loan value, ostensibly made by the Secretary of Agriculture to encourage producers to grow the longer staple, better quality cottons and to help move more of the shorter staples into the market.

Traditionally, all premiums and discounts in the loan schedule have been based on a nine-month average of the 15 spot market quotations.

On that basis, Johnson said, the discount for strict low middling 15/16 inch cotton, below the base 20.25 cents per pound for middling one inch, would in 1967 have figured to about 320 points or 3.2 cents per pound.

He compared that to the 400 point, 4.0 cent per pound discount announced for that quality, which is an 80 point increase, reducing the value of a 500-pound bale by an additional $4.00.

Some influential non-producer groups had recommended a discount for strict low middling 15/16 of around 500 points or more. And it is on this basis that Johnson feels the extensive data presented to the Department of Agriculture on the subject by PGC may well have reduced the arbitrary discount increases by as much as 50 per cent.

"If, for example, discounts for all qualities below one inch staple average out to 50 points less by reason of PGC action," Johnson reasoned, "that's $2.50 per bale and means High Plains producers will probably get some $2.5 million more for their 1967 crop."

He pointed out that without any manipulation by the Department of Agriculture, the 320 point discount on SLM15/16 inch cotton would have been a 40 point increase over 1966. "And we believe that increase, coupled with a 75 point drop in the loan rate in 1967 to 20.25 cents, would have given our producers more quality incentive than they will be able to put to use under current circumstances."

Johnson also reported the U.S.D.A. announcement included increases in the micronaire discounts for 1967. These range from a 5 point increase for cotton with a micronaire reading of 3.3 or 3.4 (35 points) to an increase of 40 points for that "miking 2.7 through 2.9 (25 points). For cotton classed "Wasty", or that miking 2.6 and below, there was an increased discount of 35 points, from 300 to 335. The 3.0 through 3.2 discount was upped 15 points from 90 to 105.

The desirable micronaire range will get a premium in the loan in 1967 of 30 points, compared to 20 in 1966.

Above that, 5.0 through 5.2 will be discounted 95 points, up from 20 in 1966, and micronaire higher than that will be cut 165 points, up from 100 in 1966.

In considering overall economic effect on the area it is important to note that, even with lower physical prices, producers will still have a slightly higher total income per bale from cotton than in 1966.

This is because of the increase this year in the level of price support payments, made on each farmer's projected yield from the domestic portion of his allotment, which is 65 per cent of his total allotment.

This payment was at the rate of 9.42 cents per pound in 1966 but was raised for 1967 to 11.53 cents, which will more than offset the increased discounts on actual production.

In other action, the PGC board heard a report from the Textile Imports Committee, headed by Roy Forkner, of Lubbock, who is also Chairman of the Board.

Forkner told Board members that the committee had studied the tremendous increase in U. S. Textile Imports over the past few years as well as discussed them with R. Dave Hall, chairman of the cotton committee of the Textile Manufacturers Institute and W. Ray Shockley, assistant secretary treasurer of ATMI.

The committee recommended that the PGC Board adopt the following resolution:

Resolved, that Plains Cotton Growers, Inc., (A) Support appropriate action to provide reasonable protection against excessive imports of textile products, including apparel, and (B) encourage action to strengthen and increase both export and domestic markets for U. S. cotton, opposing any action which might weaken or decrease such markets.

In addition to Forkner, other members of the committee are J. W. Borders of Witharal, Don Anderson of Crosbyton and E. O. Willingham of Morton.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford

Texas cities now have won at least half of their battle for authority to levy a one per cent sales tax.

Both houses of the Legislature passed the bill. It's now ready for the Governor's signature. Final step is approval by local voters.

Failure of the bill to obtain a two-thirds majority vote of the Legislature means that the law cannot go into effect until 90 days after adjournment. This means that it probably will be September before any city can hold an election on the subject.

Approval over heavy opposition was a major victory for Gov. John Connally and officials of the Texas Municipal League, Legislative presiding officers Lt. Gov. Preston Smith and House Speaker Ben Barnes also strongly backed the controversial measure.

These are important features of the bill:

* Tax can be levied only on those items covered by the present two per cent state sales tax. (It will not fall on auto purchases.)

* City governing bodies can submit the issue to election on their own motion or by petition of voters.

* Voters also can petition to get rid of the levy after two years.

* State comptroller will supervise collection (along with state sales tax) and refund one per cent, less administration costs, to the cities.

Passage of this bill, sponsored by Rep. John Traeger of Seguin and Sen. Joe Christie of El Paso, is viewed as having one effect not intended by some of the strongest backers: it likely will make any increase in state sales tax this year more difficult if alternate revenue programs fail.

FEED LOT BILL RIPPED, PASSED--A "version" of the bill by Rep. Tom Holmes of Granbury to license cattle feedlot operations cleared the House, but it was hardly recognizable.

Led by Reps. Bill Finck of San Antonio, Felix McDonald of Edinburg and Jim Nugent of Kerrville, opponents tacked on amendments which would make licensing strictly voluntary and would remove the protection against nuisance suits on findings of inspectors.

Provisions in Holmes' original bill would have made the law mandatory for feed lots having capacities of 1,000 head or more, but smaller feed lots would be covered only if they asked to be, individually.

Holmes moved the bill to final passage, even though it had been rendered virtually meaningless. Apparently he's hoping for a better fate in the Senate, then beefing up by a conference committee.

WILDLIFE WEEK -- Bills strictly for the birds and the bee-keepers have been passed by the House.

One would remove pelicans and peregrine falcons from the unprotected bird list. Another would provide for branding and registration of bee-keeping equipment.

A Senate committee followed up by approving a ban on commercial exploitation of Texas tortoises and horned toads.

ANTI - WIRETAPPING -- Telephone wiretapping and electronic eavesdropping were frowned upon by the House which passed (116-29) a control bill recommended by the Governor.

Wiretapping could be authorized by court order if evidence expected to be gained might save human life, or prevent extortion, kidnapping, armed robbery, rape or arson. Evidence thus obtained would be admissible in court.

Bugging by law enforcement officers would be permissible without court order for a one-day period where the procedure conceivably might save a life. The bill now goes to the Senate.

PARKS BILL PASSED -- A resolution that would authorize the state to issue $75,000,000 in bonds to finance acquisition of land for state park sites was unanimously passed by the House.

A proposed constitutional amendment by Rep. Gene Hendryx of Alpine passed 149-0. It had been amended twice by the House Constitutional Amendments Committee. One amendment was minor. But the other cut from six per cent to four and a half per cent the maximum interest rate to be paid on the bonds.

Measure now goes to the Senate.

COURTS SPEAK -- A divided State Supreme Court reversed an important Taylor County oil land leasing case. It ruled invalid a lease which it upheld three years ago. Leasing of oil and gas rights under seven million acres or more was at stake in the decision.

High court also said a Tarrant County woman judge was wrong in refusing a legislator-attorney's request for postponement of a divorce case during legislative session. It ordered a new trial.

Court overruled a $60,815 award to a Houstonian who complained that his expensive new auto jumped the road due to faulty brakes and steering mechanism. Decision was that neither the dealer nor the manufacturer was legally responsible.

Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin has asked the U. S. Supreme Court to grant a full hearing on its recent decision invalidating the 1965 redistricting of the Texas House of Representatives. Martin said the court's ruling dissolved the Texas Legislature.

STANDARDS HEARINGS SET-- Texas Water Pollution Control Board has set April 12 for the last in its series of scheduled public hearings on water quality requirements.

Austin hearing will be open to all interested parties. Water quality requirements will be set for rivers, lakes, bays and estuaries and portions of the Gulf of Mexico within the territorial limits of the state.

Evidence gathered will be considered by the Board in establishing standards for permits and applications for discharges of wastes into public waters. Witnesses should contact the Austin office of the Pollution Control Board at 1100 W. 49th St., at least 10 days before hearing.

DISTRICT ENLARGED -- Middle Sabine River Navigation District will add Upshur, Van Zandt, Smith and Wood counties under legislation just signed into law.

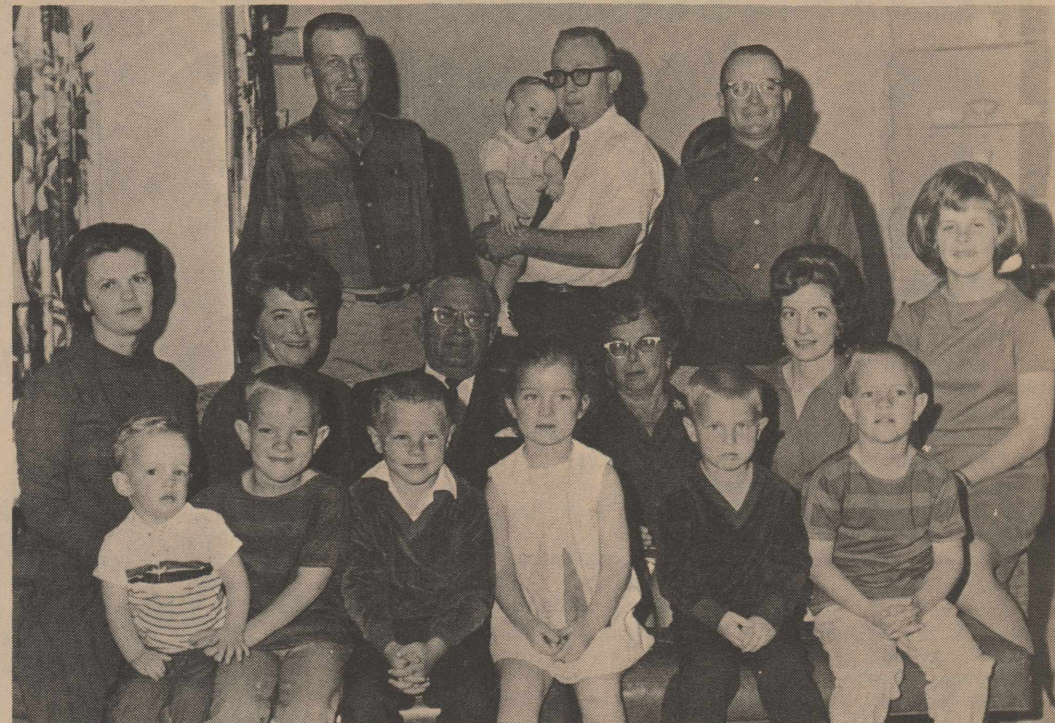

District formed two years ago to promote moving barge traffic from the Gulf of Mexico up the Sabine River included Gregg, Rusk, Harrison and Panola counties.

APPOINTMENTS ANNOUNCED -- Alfred W. Negley, San Antonio businessman and rancher, was named by Governor Connally to the Texas Liquor Control Board. He succeeds Wilson Heard Jr. of Refugio.

Connally also selected Wayne Gibbons of Breckenridge as Director of the Division of State-Federal Relations in Washington. Gibbons has been performing the duties of director, while serving as administrative assistant to the governor.

T. Autrey Smith of Winters and Fred Conn of San Angelo were designated Directors of the Upper Colorado River Authority and G. C. Allen of Robert Lee was re-appointed as a director.

Connally announced these additional re-appointments: Asher J. Thompson of Lubbock and Mrs. Alfred A. Ratner of El Paso to the State Commission for the Blind; Dempsey Henley of Liberty, to the Commission for Indian Affairs; Hudson Davis of Borger as Canadian River Compact Commissioner; and James Bozka and Robert Pesek FAMILY RE-UNION-- The family of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Straw were together recently for the first time in several years. Pictured above are Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Straw, Sheryl and Brad of Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Van Earl Nichols, Vandra, Chuck and Rocky of Friona; and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Roy Straw, Roy, Rod, and Scot of Gruver, with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Straw.

of Hallettsville as directors of Lavaca County Flood Control District No. 3.

CRIME RATE AT NEW HIGH--Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, reports that major crime in Texas reached an all-time high in 1966.

Total was 297,810, compared with 284,249 the year before. Murder and homicide went up 17.5 per cent, robbery 10.4 per cent, burglary 9.2 per cent, theft 3.2 per cent and auto theft 11.2 per cent.

Local, state and national efforts to curb crime, said Garrison, "will be meaningless until each person determines to make crime prevention a personal issue and lend his support to law enforcement activities."

SHORT SHORTS

A proposal by Reps. George Hinson of Mineola and Ralph Wayne of Plainview for annual legislative sessions has been reported out of the House Committee on Constitutional Amendments with the recommendation that it be passed.

A bill by Rep. Will Smith of Beaumont to exempt Texas from daylight savings time is out of the House Rules Committee and on the floor.

Senate labor committee hearing on the minimum wage bill has been reset for April 3. A bill legalizing therapeutic abortions received Senate Committee approval.

An equal-rights-for-women amendment again has been passed by the Senate.

Governor Connally has signed into law an historic sites restoration-maintenance bill.

IN CHILDREN

Rheumatic Fever Causes Heart Disease

Rheumatic fever accounts for much of the heart disease found in children and young adults, says Today's Health Guide, the American Medical Association's book of health information for the American family.

Rheumatic fever usually occurs between the ages of 5 and 15, although adults can have it. It may effect any part of the body temporarily, but damage to the heart, which can be long lasting, is the greatest danger.

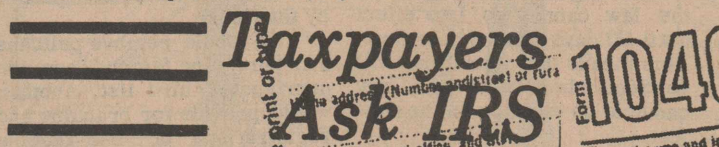

Rheumatic heart disease results from the scarring of the heart muscle and valves by rheumatic fever. This may interfere with the vital work of the heart. Many patients recover without permanent injury to the heart valves, but the disease has a way of repeating itself and each attack renews the chances of heart damage.

Rheumatic fever is preceded by a streptococcal infection such as strep sore throat, scarlet fever or a strep ear infection. It can be prevented by treating the strep infection promptly and thoroughly with antibiotics. Because persons who have had rheumatic fever are susceptible rather than immune to repeat attacks, long-term preventive treatment is often prescribed for them. Regular doses of penicillin, under the direction of a physician, can prevent further strep infections and thus ward off subsequent attacks of rheumatic fever.

You can protect your child against rheumatic fever by consulting your doctor if the child develops a sudden, severe sore throat, or is he has been exposed to someone with scarlet fever or another strep infection.

SNIPER TOOK DRUGS-- University of Texas sniper Charles J. Whitman "ate" amphetamine drugs "Like popcorn," and found a seemingly endless supply through illegal sources. A legislative committee was given this information by C. Dean Davis, general counsel for the Texas State Board of Pharmacy.

Q- Is a man entitled to claim something for child care expenses?

A- Yes, under certain circumstances men as well as women are entitled to use this provision of the law.

Q- I sold some family property I inherited. What do I use on the basis to determine whether I made any profit, the original cost of the property or its value when I inherited it?

A- Generally the basis should be the fair market value of the property at the time you inherited it.

Q- My buddy says strike payments are taxable while unemployment payments aren't. Is that right?

A- Strike benefits are taxable unless they are clearly intended as a gift. Unemployment payments are not taxable.

Q- I don't work but do have my own savings account. Is it necessary for me to have a Social Security number?

A- The law requires you to furnish an account number to any payer who is required to report to IRS interest paid you. Check with any IRS or Social Security office for an application form to obtain a number.

If you are married and file a joint return you must report any interest you earn on the account as income.

Q- Is a government disability pension taxable? I retired last year at age 57.

A- A disability pension received before normal retirement age may be treated as sick pay. In that case up to $100 a week may be excluded from income. When retirement age is reached, the pension will be treated as an annuity for tax purposes.

Q- I just moved. Should I notify you of my new address since I'm expecting a refund?

A- Yes, it will avoid delays receiving your refund.
