Texas Under Six Flags

The Story to Be Told in Pageant and Picture When Centennial is Held to Commemorate Its Glories

(This is the second of a series of articles written by Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald and dealing with the Texas Centennial movement. It explains in some detail the purposes of the centennial idea and lays a historic justification for it.)—Editor's Note.

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD

AUSTIN, Texas, May 1.—Texas is a mighty empire in itself. Its possibilities are almost staggering and its resources almost illimitable. Texas has lived under six flags. Texas was a republic before it became a state of the union. Texas has a greater coast line than any other American commonwealth. Texas has a history as romantic as that of Greece or Rome. Texans, men and women of vision who have glowing pride in their commonwealth and its place in history are determined to stage for the world a Texas Centennial exposition. An introductory article to this series dealt with the election of Jesse H. Jones of Houston as the director general of the exposition.

This deals with the scope and the magnitude of the exposition. Jesse H. Jones, a native of Tennessee, began his career in Texas. As a developer and financier his successful achievements are known to the people not alone of Texas, but the country over. His was an outstanding personality in Washington during the World war, and he is as close to the financial throne in Wall street and the city of New York as any southerner who has mounted the ladder of success in recent years. As has been stated, Texas has lived under six flags and an exposition that would do credit to Texas calls for a united effort on the part of the representative people of Texas of all sections, as well as the expenditure of large sums of money.

Jesse H. Jones as director-general, knows how to go about selling Texas to Texans as well as to the outside world and influencing the national and the state lawmakers to make suitable appropriation for an exposition which will be international in its attractions and focused upon the Lone Star commonwealth, the men of affairs of North America and the home seekers and investors ever seeking new fields of development for brawn and brain and new fields of investment for the idle capital of the world.

There have been many great expositions in the United States. Chicago, away back in 1923 gave an exposition which was a marvel of its kind. There were national appropriations, as well as state appropriations, and the exhibits drawn from all fields of human endeavor, placed Chicago on the map for the years to come. Away out on the Golden Coast, in the city of San Francisco, was staged an exposition which received financial aid from the federal government, as well as the

PRINT BILL FOR PAUL PRY HITS MILLION A YEAR

Daily Batting Average At Printing Office Is, $5,000 Alone

By WILLIAM P. HELM, JR.

To tell an eager and expectant world all the things that congress found out through its investigations and hearings last year cost American taxpayers an estimated $1,000,000 for printing alone. Allowing 200 days as the actual time congress was in session, the batting average per day at the Government Printing office was about $5,000. This sum represents the cost of printing the volumes of hearings, testimony and related matter incidental to activities on Capitol Hill.

It does not represent the entire printing bill of congress for the year. That ran to $1,853,729. Nor does the $1,000,000 begin to cover the printing of the accumulated wisdom and revelations of the executive departments for the year. That ran to $7,500,000 more, not including the postoffice department's big order for envelopes, money order forms, postal cards and other stationery. All told, the government's printing bill for 1925 mounted to more than $11,500,000.

A 210 Mile Column.

How much of this was spent for lid-lifting literature and how much for the plain garden variety of government treatises varying from earache cures to income tax forms, not even the accountants at the printing office themselves can say without a

WICHITANS ARE WED 4,000 FT. ABOVE GROUND

Miss Rachel Simpson Is Wife of Bryan Morrow In High Ceremony

EVERYBODY HAPPY

Rev. Townsend Ties the Knot as Plane Noses Out of Clouds

It wasn't a question of the nuptial knot being tied less securely on the ground than in the air; but it was just the possibility of getting married a little differently than most folks do that gave Wichita Falls its first aerial wedding Saturday.

It was a 4,000-foot ceremony, so to speak, that made Miss Rachel Shipman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shipman, 1411 Seventh street, the bride of Bryan Morrow out at the fair grounds. They were married in the cockpit of an airplane while the big ship nosed quietly down from a high altitude, and whereas they left the ground with a sort of individual status, they came down to earth, literally and figuratively, with a Mr. and Mrs. title as official as any could be.

All Arrangements Made.

The ceremony was performed shortly after 6 o'clock. Previous arrangements had been made, of course, and the bridal party showed up at the fair grounds a little ahead of time. A plane operated by the Texas Airways, Inc., had been put in readiness with R. M. Brooks, president of the company, as the pilot.

Miss Shipman, her hubby-to-be, Rev. W. H. Townsend of the Lamar Avenue Baptist church and one witness, C. Dodson, local automobile man, climbed aboard. With the exception of the pilot, of course, the whole party was in the main passenger compartment just behind the motor.

Brooks gave it the gun and the plane roared away from the field just as the rodeo crowd was breaking up. It circled over the grounds for some time, gaining altitude, and finally when the altimeter reached the 4,000-foot mark, the pilot closed his throttle, the motor's insistent hum dropped to a quiet purr and the nose of the ship was pointed earthward at just sufficient angle to give the required speed.

The Wedding March.

The wind whistling through taut wire struts was Mendelssohn's wedding march, and it was sufficient. Rev. Townsend, his ritual book in hand, read the usual passages which could be heard distinctly above the singing wires and the muted roar of the motor. The "Wilt thous?" and the "I wilts," as all bridegrooms say, came in orderly sequence; a ring was slipped on a waiting finger—and it was over.

Brooks opened the motor again and the plane dropped to an easy landing.

Everybody climbed out, grinning broadly. A big crowd on the ground rushed up to offer congratulations and then Mr. and Mrs. Morrow raced for their car and fled.

NEGRO SHOT IN LAKE ST. FIGHT

Julius McClendon, negro, aged about 23 years, was shot and killed shortly after 1 o'clock Sunday morning in a fight in a negro residence on Lake street. King Bowie, another negro, is now in the city jail in connection with the shooting.

A .38 Colts revolver was used and four shots were fired at close range, all taking effect. McClendon died instantly.

After the shooting Bowie started for the city hall and gave himself up when officers summoned to the scene met him. He will be formally charged with murder in complaints to be filed Sunday, police said last night.

The shooting came as a culmination to a long period of enmity between the two negroes, acquaintances declared.

Rhone Arrested

L. E. Rhone of this city was arrested Saturday afternoon on a capias issued following the return Thursday of three indictments by the grand jury charging him with bribery in connection with his trial in which he was defendant in a liquor violation case. He was released on bond of $750.

It is alleged that he paid $5 to a witness last fall who left the city after he had been subpoenaed to testify against Rhone on the latter's trial for violating the liquor laws.

Hell Is Discovered In Farming Section

KLAMATH FALLS, May 1—(AP) Ranchers in the Tule lake section here are up against the modern version of the devil and the deep blue sea. Grasshoppers which had Thursday cleaned up a 10-acre field on the Dalton ranch, yesterday moved their lines to include a 100-acre field on the Myers ranch, stripping it clean.

While this action was taking place a report came into the county agent's office from the Clayburn ranch, stating that northbound geese had alighted and between sundown and sunrise clipped a 160-acre field of young wheat to the ground, leaving not a vestige of green.

Something New To Be Offered In Girl Revue

City to See Its First Beauty Contest At Olympic Theatre

An event new and unusual as it is unknown is to be staged here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week when, under the auspices of the Olympic theatre and the Record News, the first beauty contest and bathing girl revue in the city's history will be held. The two first place winners will bear the official title of "Miss Wichita Falls" and "Miss Wichita County," at the Galveston beauty revue and international pageant of pulchritude to be held on the beach the middle of the month. The two Wichita Misses will be sent to Galveston with all expenses paid by the theatre and the paper.

Three nights will be devoted to the contest here, the entry list being narrowed each evening until the final one when the two prize winners will be definitely selected. The personal appearances of the contestants will be made on the stage of the Olympic at 8:30 when the judges names of which are to be announced soon, will do the scoring. Silk or woolen bathing suits must be worn, this preventing the appearance of fancy beach costumes.

A valuable list of prizes of merchandise has been put up by local merchants co-operating in the contest, and these will also be awarded in addition to the two major prizes of the Galveston trips.

In Galveston the Wichita Falls girls will compete with others from 40 or more Texas and American cities, as well as representatives of three foreign countries. The Dominion of Canada is sending a Winnipeg girl as its official representative. Other foreign powers to be represented include Mexico and Cuba.

Numerous entries are still coming in for the Venus Art Prize to be given the Wichita Falls girl most closely approximating the physical measurements of Faye Lanphier, "Miss America." A handsome bronz statue is to be presented the winner of this.

BARWISE HEADS SARTIN CLUB

Dan Boone to be Manager of Race for Seat In Congress

Campaign headquarters have been opened and the supporting organization practically perfected for the candidacy of B. D. Sartin, Wichita county judge who is seeking election as representative from the thirteenth congressional district of Texas. Announcement was made yesterday, that M. H. Barwise, veteran Wichita Falls railroad man, had been named president of the Sartin club and that T. R. (Dan) Boone, prominent attorney would be manager of the campaign. Sam Holliday, another attorney, is to be secretary and Chester Powell will probably be named assistant secretary.

Headquarters for Sartin's campaign have been opened in the Kemp hotel building in offices recently vacated by Stehlik and Baber, realtors. A huge sign designating the offices was put up in the Kemp lobby Saturday night.

To head the ladies organizations supporting the candidacy of the Wichita Falls man will be Mrs. Ola G. Hamlin, president of the Woman's Forum and one of the most prominent and active club women of the city. An aggressive campaign among the women will be waged.

Registration and executive details will be handled in the campaign headquarters which now are open for enlistment of those interested in Judge Sartin's race.

Army Saves Life Of Boy Bitten By Diamond Rattler

SAN ANTONIO, May 1.—(AP)—Francisco Pena, aged 12, probably will live to tell of being bitten by a huge diamond-back rattle snake.

At a local hospital tonight he was reported improving, due to injection of a serum obtained from the army hospital. This serum, the only known remedy for advanced cases of rattlesnake bite, was obtained in South America by Col. M. L. Crimmins, retired. He distributed it to the army post here and to Fort Bliss and Fort Stockton.

The boy was brought here yesterday from Alice. The snake attacked him as he hoed cotton in the field. His leg already was swollen and badly discolored when he reached the hospital.

His condition still is serious.

4,000 Hear Talks At May-Day Picnic

VERNON, May 1.—More than 4,000 folk of this section were present today at the 43rd annual Doan's May day picnic and reunion, staged at the Watts place on Red river. Barbecue was served at noon.

Candidates for offices within the county and district officially opened their campaigns.

Senator J. D. Parnell of Wichita Falls and his opponent, W. D. McFarland of Graham were the feature speakers.

San Francisco Boys Are Swept to Sea

SANTA ROSA, Calif., May 1.—(AP)—Three San Francisco youths, all of them from prominent families were drowned today while fishing off a rock in the Pacific ocean near Wright's beach, Sonoma county.

They were Jack Davidson, 21, stepson of Timothy Healy, attorney; George Boschke, 19, son of George W. Boschke, chief engineer of the Southern Pacific company and Ted Barrett, 19, son of Charles Barrett, an official of the Pacific Gas and Electric company. High waves washed the boys into the ocean.

Wichita Falls Building Permits Set New High Record for Week

Building permits for the week in Wichita Falls reached a new high mark, surpassing the figure for any one week or any one month even in the history of the city with a total of $1,134,228 issued, representing a total of 49 permits.

The largest item of the week's figure is that of the new Medical Arts building which is being constructed at

Steers And Broncs In Good Trim Again For Second Day of Rodeo

Attendance records are expected to go by the boards today when the Tom L. Burnett Production company closes its annual spring rodeo at the fair grounds and concludes the period of entertainment that has so far given Wichita Falls one of the most active sporting events in its history.

Saturday was a banner day at the rodeo grounds which saw an excellent crowd turn out for the fun. The school holiday brought a swarm of youngsters to gaze in wild-eyed awe on the antics in the arena; and with them of course came parental forebears to get an eyeful themselves while they chaperoned their turbulent kiddies.

The second day of the rodeo was about like the first so far as stunts atop the twisting backs of broncs and steers were concerned. The pep and nerve exhibited in the opening day when a percipitous flight through space was the rule rather than the exception, came back again in liberal quantities, much to the discomfort of several who didn't get to ride as far as they would have liked.

Calf ropers, too, found their bleating quarry possessed of the bovine devil and it took a good rope and a husky twist to lay one down.

All the stunts and all the thrills that trick riding, bronc busting, fancy roping, steer bulldogging and the other items on the scorecard can offer were provided in profusion.

The grand finale will be staged Sunday afternoon when it is believed the grand stand will be packed. Some extra attractions have been saved until the last, Tommy Kirnan and Buck Lucas, the rodeo managers have asserted, and they are promising plenty in the way of entertainment.

While the rodeo proved a big attraction Saturday, the automobile show being staged by the Wichita Falls Automotive Dealers association got into its full stride. The auto building at the fair grounds was crowded during the day, while a big jam flocked out during the evening hours. Sunday, too, is expected to bring the full throng to the show where $500,000 worth of newest cars are on display.

MRS. WRIGLEY KEEPS SILENT

Widow of Frederick Farmer Accused of Murder, In Jail

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, May 1.—With their fate resting upon the admissibility as evidence of a pair of house shoes, dainty little pink ones, probably a present from her head husband, Mrs. J. M. Wrigley and her son Charles, 19, were in separate compartments today in the county jail, pondering over what their plea will be when they are arraigned for the second time Monday before P. V. Ruch, examining magistrate, following the filing of an information in county court Saturday morning in which the two were charged with the murder of J. M. Wrigley, husband and father, slain in his home last Sunday morning, the pair were arraigned. They anounced that they would take 24 hours to plead.

Officers allege that the pair of slippers in question, discovered when a coroner's jury visited the homestead where the pioneer citizen was slain Friday, the important links in the chain of evidence that has been gathered during a week of investigation.

Both Mrs. Wrigley and her son were non-commital today. Neither showed any emotion at the time of their arrest.

Wrigley, it is alleged in the information filed against the couple, was slain with a 12 guage shotgun while he slept in the farm home. Knowledge at least of the affair is charged against both, although the state has not indicated upon whose head they will attempt to rest the blame for pulling the trigger.

Wrigley has been one of the pioneers in Tillman county's agricultural history. He came here at the opening of this strip in 1907, and has since tilled the soil upon which death was dealed to him in Sunday's fatal shooting.

He has always held the respect of all those with whom he came in contact.

R. H. Young, Former Oil Operator, Dead

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—R. H. Young, 45, formerly president of the Southern Fuels company, was found dead this afternoon at his home here, with a bullet wound in his head. The body was in a trunk closet on the second floor of the residence when discovered by Mrs. Mattie Whittington, his mother-in-law. A pistol was beside the body.

Mr. Young had resigned as president of the oil concern several months ago, following a nervous breakdown.

Coolidge Signs Bill for Pensions

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—The Spanish war pension bill was signed late today by President Coolidge.

The measure, which adds to the annual charges of the government about $19,000,000, was approved only after the president consdered at length the budget problem involved.

It provides increased pensions for veterans, their widows and orphans, which bring the total for some classes to a maximum of $50 a month.

CALLED SESSION URGED BY KEMP

Validation Issue Urgent Wichita Falls Financier Says

AUSTIN, May 1.—(AP)—An extraordinary session of the legislature is imperative to stabilize the credit of the state, J. A. Kemp of Wichita Falls, said here today. But state Senator T. J. Holbrook of Galveston, said he did not expect a special session until after the democratic primaries, as an extra session would evolve into a political mess and the motive of the session would be buried in mud slung on political issues.

Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson will issue probably next week, said Senator Holbrook, a statement on her position relative to the special session. Kemp said if a special session is not called before the democratic primaries, of course, those urging the validation of the district road bonds would have to accept what they could get. He remarked that nothing was accomplished by the meeting of a joint committee from the house and senate here today.

A bill or bills to submit to the governor have not been completely drafted and it is understand that W. P. Dumas of Dallas, former assistant attorney general, who still contends that the district road bonds are valid despite the Archer county bond decision rendered by the United States supreme court, and former Senator T. H. McGregor of Austin, have been studying the preliminary draft.

Holders of the bonds in the east are anxious that the district bonds in Texas be validated, and Mr. Kemp said that it would prove disastrous to Texas credit if the $80,000,000 bonds validated for the sake of the it was not desired to obtain pledges from members of the legislature to convene in special session for the exclusive purpose of validating bonds, but to obtain an assurance from the members. "That is all we want—the bonds validated fo rthe sake of the state," Mr. Kemp said. Many Texas bonds can't be sold because of the Archer county decision he explained

Senator Holbrook said that nothing concrete had been reported by the special session, and that he thought James E. Ferguson husband of the governor, had correctly sized up the situation. "If anybody in the state can get to the crux of this bond affair, He then said that he is practically cer-Ferguson can."

Burkburnett Boy Shot Through Hand

BURKBURNETT, May 1.—Allison Norvell, 12, was accidentally shot in the left hand, seriously injuring the thumb and three fingers, Saturday when Allison son of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Norvell, and a neighbor boy were playing around the ruins of the Dick Howelel home which was burned about six weeks ago and found a shot gun that had gone through the fire.

The boys were hammering on the gun when the shell exploded, striking Allison's hand.

BAND SUPPLIES MUSIC.

Music for the Child Health parade Saturday was furnished by the rodeo band, the Simmons university cowboys ofof Abilene, who are in the city playing fo rthe Tom Burnett rodeo which closes today at the Texas-Oklahoma Fair grounds following a three-day showing.

CHILD JUMPS IN CAR'S PATH; DRIVER IS HELD

C. V. Garrett Released On $500 Bond Following Accident

HELD NOT TO BLAME

Tot At Play Dashes In Front of Machine And Is Crushed

Tom Lester Jr., four-year-old son of Tom Lester, 2111 Avenue Q, was instantly killed at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon when he was struck and knocked to the pavement by a large car driven by C. V. Garrett. The accident occurred on Grant street past in front of the Sam Houston school. Garrett surrendered to officers and was brought to the county attorney's office where he was put under a $500 bond pending investigation of the case.

According to the story told by officers, the child jumped in front of the car which was proceeding at a moderate rate of speed up Grant street. He was struck squarely which knocked him to the pavement. His head was crushed and he sustained internal injuries which brought instant death.

Witnesses Saturday afternoon did not attribute blame for the accident to Garrett, who was visibly affected by the incident when seen later in the county attorney's office.

The child was taken to the General hospital in an ambulance. Funeral arrangements have not been announced as yet.

Bebe Daniels Hurt Falling Off Horse

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Bebe Daniels, motion picture star, was resting easily tonight following a fall from her horse in Central Park which gave her a slight shock.

She was still confined in the Harbor sanitarium, however, pending a final examination to determine whether she suffered internal injuries.

LOAN SHARKS GETTING RICH

Atlanta Infested With Hundreds Who Bleed Unfortunates

By MILLARD FERGUSON
Special Correspondent, Record News
Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

ATLANTA, Ga., May 1.—The $10 that Uncle Burl Parrish, an old time darky, has been paying $2 a week on for the last three years without "whittling down" the principal a penny, has started the Atlanta Legal Aid society and the chamber of commerce on a finish fight against salary-buying loan sharks.

Uncle Burl, who looks as though he might have been a bodyguard to General Robert E. Lee, needed money because his "hillun was hungry," so he sold his salary to one of the "sharks" and agreed to pay $2 at the end of the week. After that he signed a slip of paper not knowing much what it was except that he was to pay another $2 at the close of the second week, and so he continued for three years. At the end of that time the loan sharks had collected $312 from Uncle Burl and he still owed the original $10.

Investigations by the Atlanta Legal Aid society show, according to J. A. Boyd, general counsel for the society, that so many others have fallen into the same net which enmeshed Uncle Burl that the loan sharks are gathering in fully a million dollars a year in Atlanta alone through usury.

With similar conditions holding true in other cities, the suffering wrought among the poor by the salary buying loan sharks is appalling, he says.

"You may wonder," continued Mr. Boyd, "why even an ignorant negro would continue to pay week after week the way Uncle Burl did. The loan sharks told him that if he did not keep paying they would tell his employer that he had sold his salary and he would be fired. Fear made him a financial slave."

A little stenographer who sold herself into financial slavery to buy her trousseau; a young man taking a flier into society, hoping to marry a rich wife; a middle-aged man on a small salary trying to appease the clothes love of a pretty young spouse; a woman trying to meet her bridge losses—these are some of the picturesque victims revealed by investigation of the salary buyers.

Minnesota Voters Urged To Vote For Democratic Solon

MINNEAPOLIS, May 1.—(AP)—Charging the Coolidge administration with failure to carry out party pledges and with favoring big business interests, Representative Oldfield of Arkansas, chairman of the democratic congressional committee tonight urged Minnesota voters to rally to the democratic standard.

Addressing a state wide meeting of Minnesota democrats he assailed congress and the White House for a "do-nothing" and "let well enough alone" attitude.

"During all the more than five years of republican misrule," he said, "I challenge man to cite the passage of any piece of legislation with administration approval which did not first have the O. K. of big business."

"If I were a cartoonist," he asserted, "I would draw a picture of a golden calf as the true emblem of the G. O. P. I would place Calvin Coolidge astride the California instead of his electric hobby horse. I would have in this cartoon figures representing the Mellons, Garys, DuPonts, Mills, Morgans, and the other leaders and dictators of the republican party bowing down in humble supplication before the great god greed."

Houston Bandits Rob Store While Customers Look On

HOUSTON, May 1.—(AP)—While 250 customers stood motionless in a local grocery store here tonight, a youthful bandit sauntered in with the crowd, and when he reached the cash register held a gun on Jack Williams, cashier, crammed more than 2,000 in his pockets, and sauntered cooly out of the front door.

The crowd of customers was prevented from interfering by the fear that there were other bandits in the crowd.

The store is located on Main street, and is patronized by residents of the fashionable district of the city.

The bandit made no attempt to rifle the pockets of the spectators. He escaped in a waiting car, and all efforts of police to apprehend him had failed late tonight.

Texans To Face Trial On Monday

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 1—(AP) L. C. Smith and G. M. Smith of Kansas City and M. M. Moss, former president of the Llano, Texas, national bank, will go on trial here Monday in federal court charged with misapplication of the funds of the Commonwealth National bank which failed here in 1922. Indictments also charge conspiracy.

More than 60 witnesses have been summoned to appear against the defendants and the trial is expected to last two weeks. The defendants are charged with illegal exchange of sight drafts between the Kansas City bank and the Union Loan company of Ranger, Texas. L. C. Smith was president of the Commonwealth bank and G. M. Smith was president of the board of directors.

This case, and two other cases now pending against L. C. Smith and John W. Thurman and John C. Stribling of Llano, Texas, are said to involve losses of approximately $175,000.

A score of smaller banks in Missouri and surrounding states were driven to the wall following the crash of the Commonwealth and many more suffered seriously.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lane of Amarillo are Wichita Falls visitors over the week end.

Engine Hanging By Underwear Makes Novel Display

The average man will probably never use his underwear to hang engines or steamroiler parts from the ceiling with, but he could, in a pinch, if he wore the right kind.

W. B. McClurkan & Company are demonstrating that in a novel window display which has attracted much attention. In the center of a window featuring a brand of men's underwear, a fordson engine block is suspended from the ceiling by a suit of underwear. Heavy duty ice scales at the top of the garment show that the block weighs in excess of 300 pounds.

Guesses by some onlookers that a wire or rope concealed in the garment holds the block prove wrong for a Record News representative who examined the display and found that only the underwear is used.

The display is in one of the Ninth street windows of the store.

Indigestion Brings Death to Barkley

Samuel G. Barkley of Houston, oil operator who was found dead in his room at a local hotel, April 24, did not meet death at his own hand but died as a result of an attack of acute indigestion according to the death certificate which was signed yesterday morning.

The body was found in a decomposed state, and an empty vial thought to have contained carbolic acid was found near the bed, and a verdict of suicide was given by Justice of the Peace O. L. Gibbs.

A thorough investigation followed and Dr. L. D. Parnell who had treated Mr. Barkley for similar attacks of indigestion testified concerning his patient's case. Further examination revealed that no acid burns of any kind had been found on the body, and the position of the empty bottle was such that it was not within reach of the man when he died.

White Shoe Days Reach the City

Today the White Shoe season begins.

Milady who will be in style on all occasions will be shod in a pair of white shoes, according to dame fashion who is today making her announcement on this important item.

Announcements of all the shoe shops appear in today's Record News and each has a variety of styles and patterns in white to offer the discriminating buyer. Read these advertisements, then act.

Oregon Forests Swept By Flames

PORTLAND, Ore., May 1.—(AP) Sixty men are fighting a fire covering between 600 and 800 acres of an old burn near Lewis, Wsh., in the Ranier national forest. High winds and old snags are making the blaze difficult to control the United States district forest office reported here today. The fire is said to have started from rubbish fire set by a contractor.

One hundred and 22 forest fires are reported in British Columbia. Hot, dry weather prevailing throughout the province has created a forest fire hazard unequalled at this time of the year in the history of the forest branch of the lands department.

SCHOOLS FACE NEW TROUBLE

Lack of Funds May Still Cripple Work In County

There has been no indication from either the Texas company or the Gulf Production company that the portion of their 1925 taxes which is due in support of the county's rural schools will be paid, and with their default there is every probability that once again the schools will be faced with a probable shut down before the end of their regular term this month, it was stated Saturday by Guy Raley, county tax collector.

There has been no word of protest or acceptance from drafts sent early in the week on these two companies when checks mailed by them to cover the necessary amount involved an endorsement the tax collector was not willing to make.

Accompanying the drafts were temporary recepits for the tax money, such as was issued and accepted by the Humble Oil and Refining company about ten days ago for its $2,400 payment.

The money which the tax collector is seeking to collect to insure a full term for the schools is money refused early in the year when the 1925 tax payments were made, minus the amount due in support of the Electra road district bonds. The tax collector ruled he had no authority to accept a "split" payment at that time. The offer was made about two weeks ago to accept money needed for the district schools and issue in return a temporary receipt for the amount received to be applied toward the amount finally to be adjudged due by either amicable or court settlement.

Clevelander Finds Radio Favorite In Concert in City

A few days ago J. K. Westbrook, local representative of the Dyo Corporation of Dallas, was giving a concert before a Wichita Falls luncheon club. His concerts, it must be explained, are abut as novel nd as interesting as any this city has ever heard, fr he is a whistler of unusual ability and on recent appearances here has created areal sensation.

He was filling the main dining room of the Kemp hotel with melodious tunefulness that filtered up into the main lobby. It attracted several of the loungers who gathered at the door to the dining hall to listen.

After the concert when Mr. Westbrook was leaving, a strangeer approached him, shook hands and asked him if he had not given a concert over WBAP, the Star-Telegram's broadcasting station at Fort Worth.

Westbrook had, and said as much.

"Well, I picked it up at my home in Cleveland," the stranger told him, "and when I heard you in there today I said to myself 'there's the fellow I heard on the radio.'"

The stranger, whose name Mr. Westbrook did not learn, is connected with a large Ohio manufacturing company.

BECOMES ZONE OFFICE

SAN ANTONIO, May 1.—(AP)—As a part of a nation-wide change, the San Antonio divisional office of the collector of internal revenue Saturday became a zone office, with Austin as the headquarters of all Texas offices. The only reduction of force here was the resignation of Major H. C. Glover, agent in charge.

Billie Swafford of Goree, Knox county, was a Wichita Falls visitor Saturday.

CADE GRANTED A NEW TRIAL

Insufficient Evidence Is Means of Another Hearing

Motion for a new trial in the case of R. C. Cade was granted by Judge H. R. Wilson of the thirtieth district court Saturday morning. Cade is charged with complicity in the hold-up at the City Bakery on Holliday Street in March, and is one of three arrested in connection with the offense. Of the other two, Henry Helms and W. E. Carter, Helms faces trial, possibly this week, and Carter is under an eighteen year sentence.

Judge Wilson's action in the Cade case in effect reverses a verdict of guilty and a sentence of five years in the penitentiary assessed by a jury of the thirtieth district court last week.

Insufficient Evidence.

The motion by the defendant as granted by Judge Wilson alleged insufficient evidence, pointing out that such evidence as had been used in the state's case was purely circumstantial, and that there had been no identification of Cade by the two bakery employes robbed.

District Attorney Ben F. Allred in arguing against the motion held that if the judge at the time of the trial thought the evidence insufficient it was his duty at that time to instruct a verdict of acquittal, declaring that inasmuch as this had not been done the entire matter of sufficiency or insufficiency of the evidence was within the province of the jury, which voted conviction and assessed the five-year penalty.

Cade when arrested at Fort Worth was in company with Helms and Carter, and had in his possession a watch stolen from one of the bakery employes. It was the state's contention in his trial that he was the fourth party in the hold up, waiting outside in his car while the others held up those inside.

Tick Fever Kills Resident Of Oregon

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., May 1.—(AP)—First death of the season due to the mysterious malady known as spotted or tick fever, occurred here today when Mrs. Winnie Souza, wife of a Mount Dome, Cal., rancher, died in a local hospital. One other reported case is on the way to recovery. The disease is carried by ticks, seemingly being most virulent during the spring and summer months when the insects are most active.

TEXAS TO STAY DUST DRY FOR NEXT 4 YEARS

Poll of State Solons Show Opposition to Repealment

By RAYMOND BROOKS
Record News Staff

AUSTIN, May 1.—Texas will stay dust-try for at least four years longer, whether the thirst of the rest of the nation is quenched or not.

The only way in which the Dean law may be modified, would be for every new member of the house and senate elected this year to be anti-prohibition. The present membership of the legislature is overwhelmingly pledged against any relaxation of the stringent state prohibition law, and many are in favor of making the Dean law still more sweeping, it is disclosed by returns of a poll conducted by the Austin American-Statesman of all members of the present house and senate.

85 Percent Opposed

Over 85 percent of the members answering this poll are on record as against any modification of the state law to meet such modification as may have been ordered by congress, if any, in the Volstead act. Omiting from the returns the members who are not candidates for re-election over 90 percent of those who expect to return to the 40th legislature are against modification, no matter what may happen to the Volstead law.

Of 60 members of the house and senate who have so far answered the American-Statesman questionnaire 35 absolutely opposed to permitting the house members and nine senators are Texas law to follow the federal laws if the matter is modified. One senator and one representative are on record for conditional modification; another senator is against the following federal modification but wants to follow the federal search and seizure act; five members of the house have open minds and want to see what kind of modification is voted, if any, by congress before saying what should be done to the Texas law. One senator is open to conviction after seeing what is done to the federal law.

PRINT BILL

somewhat exhaustive study of the books. The record shows, however, that many millions of printed pages were turned out during the year in the form of reports of hearings undertaken by congressional and other governmental branches.

"Printed matter issued by the government during the year," says George H. Carter, the Public Printer, "required the setting of 2,128,394,000 ems of type. This would make 118,244,000 lines of type if made ordinary newspaper column width and such a column set solid would string 1,113,410 feet or 210 miles in length.

"The type was made up into 1,796,688 pages and the total number of copies printed of those pages was 8,979,798,364. It took 275 proof readers a year to read all this printed matter. An individual who aspires to read all the literature of the government would have to outlive Methuselah."

Printing the Congressional Record alone cost the government last year almost $450,000. Anyone who has read the Record will find therein page after page of revealing exhibits summing up the activities of investigating committees or individual members of both houses. About 33,500 copies of the Record represents the press run and although the circulation of this periodical is limited it is handled with a speed unequalled by that of the largest daily newspapers—a factor that has much to do with running up the cost.

Speed and Taxes.

For the quick handling of the Record an entire new section was set aside in th government printing office last year. Two 64-page Hoe presses were especially designed and built for the work. Five old presses also are available, making it possible to print overnight a 256-page Record, the average, however, being about 100 pages.

Adjacent to the new presses are two new 11-box gathering machines for use whenever a Record contains more than 65 pages. At the end of the gathering machine is a powerful new continuous trimmer from which the finished copies go to nearby mailing tables where they are wrapped and carried by belts to mail sacks. These, when filled, are dropped into a chute, carried by a belt conveyor through a tunnel to Union Station and placed on out going trains within five minutes after they have come from the press.

Some speed! Some tax bill!

Just as the baby must have his bottle, so must the congressman or senator have his Congressional Record. Delivery in Washington starts at 5 o'clock in the morning so that by 8 o'clock a copy is at the office of every members. All of which, of course, adds to the cost of production and distribution.

Preparing copy for the printed reports of investigating committees involves other charges, of course, than salaries and supplies. Among those other charges are those of expert shorthand men who record and transcribe the testimony. Here is the record of payments during January, 1925, a typical month, by the secretary of the senate for such service:

High Cost of Pot-Hooks.

Testimony before the Cousens committee, $1,010.88.

Testimony before the Military affairs committee, $457.94.

Testimony before the post office committee, $1,644.70.

Testimony before the judiciary committee, $143.

Testimony before the committee on revision of laws, $38.25.

Testimony before the District of Columbia committee, $590.39.

Testimony before the agriculture committee, $14.20.

Testimony before the irrigation committee, $313.75.

Testimony before the appropriations committee, $[illegible].

Testimony before the claims committee, $16.2[illegible].

These payments, amounting to about $4,500 in a single month for testimony before the senate committees, were made to private shorthand reporters, the regular force of shorthand reporters covering congress on salary being busy with other work. They were followed during the first week of the following month, February, by similar payments of $356.16, $1,008.15, $378.50, $1,405.92 and $467.13, a grand total of $3,815.86, to private firms reporting the testimony of the same committees.

Likewise, there is noted during the same period a payment of $1,366.13 "for export clerical service" rendered a select committee investigating Gulf-to-Lakes waterways and for the expert's traveling and hotel bills. Again, there is recorded the payment of $125.90 to a press clipping agency for newspaper clippings concerning another committee's activities.

Among miscellaneous costs of lifting the lid, the charges for telegrams stands up fairly well, expenditures by the house alone ranging from $1,000 to $2,000 a week during typical months.

For printing reports of individual investigations by congress, the bills vary almost as kidely as the reports themselves. It is fairly common, however, to expend from $2,000 to $5,000 in publishing the findings of an investigating committee. Some committees spend much more. The Teapot Dome inquiry—one of the fishing excursions that brought home a whale—cost more than $14,000 in printing charges for the publication of its report.

Ned Wayburn To Be One Of Judges At Galveston Beauty Revue This Year

Times have changed! The old order is gone! Even Beauty is not Beauty any more!

Venus de Milo is declasse! Venus, adored of ages; Venus, idol of artists and artisan; Venus, marble breath of feminine perfection, is no more. Her prestige is of a past day. Her fame crumbles in the dust before the onslaughts of modernity. For—

Ned Wayburn, Broadway's beauty mentor and director supreme to the American musical stage; producer and stage director for years for the internationally famous Ziegfeld Follies, has issued a statement of far-reaching import.

Standards Change

"The standards of feminine physical measurement have changed considerably," says the noted director, who, in addition to the best editions of the Follies, has staged over 500 other successful musical productions, and thereby possesses authority for convictions. "The model of womanly beauty today is far below the actual measurements of the perfect woman of years past. So far below the measurements of Venus de Milo are the requirements of the ideal stage type today, that I fear Venus would have a difficult time making the trade with the average theatrical producer.

"Of course I guess she could get a job because of her reputation. That would still be a drawing card.

"But close scrutiny of the measurements of many of the stage stars of current fame will prove the contention of the man who has known more than 28,000 members of the fair sex during his 28 years producing beauty shows for international publics. Wadsworth spoke of "a perfect woman nobly planned," and if you had asked him what was his exact conception of the perfect woman, he would very likely have had to stutter a poetic answer.

But Mr. Wayburn is a disciple of the exact sciences even in matters of femininity.

Four of Them

"Let us take, for example, four of the many young ladies whom I am grooming for stardom: Virginia Bacon, Olive Brady, Beatrice Roberts and Helen Fables. They are representatives of the thousands of others clamoring for theatrical recognition today. In each case you will find that the girl, although fully matured to the point of standing comparison, seldom comes up to the busomness of Venus de Milo. The neck, the bust, the waist, hips, thighs, calves and ankles are invariably smaller than those of the statuesque lady.

"The measurements will range from an inch to an inch and one-half smaller in the neck. The bust suffers approximately the same less by comparison. The waist and hips of these girls are far below those of Venus while the thighs and especially the calves and the ankles show the slightest of differences.

Heights are Different.

"The heights," continued Mr. Wayburn, "are another matter, for Venus would not measure up to the modern girl who is from 1 to 2 inches taller.

"The exact figures of this quartet of beauties, whose names will soon appear in the electric signs on Broadway, in comparison to those of Venus, are shown above.

Mr. Wayburn who has consented to act as chairman of the board of judges in the first international pageant of pulchritude and seventh annual bathing girl revue, Galveston, May 15-17, will select the winners by the same standard that he chooses his stage stars.

TEXAS

California legislature, and the Pacific states and Pacific coast country were placed on the map as they never had been before.

St. Louis, Orleans.

St. Louis had an exposition and years before New Orleans, the Creol city of Louisiana and the Gulf, made a mighty bid for the eye of the world as well as the presence and the pocketbooks of those who were able to travel. There have been many expositions in American states. There is one scheduled for Philadelphia, the city founded by William Penn, where the achievements of a people and the glories of their commonwealth are to be told in pageants and exhibits to show the marvelous progress of a free people under a free flag in a free commonwealth.

According to historians there are eight periods of Texas history. First the period of Spanish discovery and domination in Texas. This extends from 1528 to 1821. Second, the period of Mexican rule, during which Texas was one of the states of the Republic of Mexico after the Mexicans had thrown off the yoke of Spain and the proud Hidalgos who were over lords in a new world. This covers the year form 1821 to 1836. Third, the period of revolution from Mexico until the final establishment of the Republic of Texas. This from 1832 to 1836. Fourth, the period of the republic while Texas was an independent nation or from 1836 to 1846.

Fifth, the first period of statehood after Texas was annexed to the United States, or from 1846 to 1861. Sixth, the period of the war between the states, during which Texas was one of the confederate states of America, or from 1861 to 1865. Seventh, the period of reconstruction, embracing the years from 1865 to 1874, and the eighth, the period from 1874 to 1926. No American state has a history like Texas. No American state was a republic before it became a state, like Texas. No handful of people under the skies of North America ever won their independnece from a mighty power as the early Texans did in their war of independence in which they conquered the armies of Mexico lead by Santa Anna.

No Such Strides

No other American state since the close of the war between the states, has made the strides that Texas has made or increased so rapidly in wealth and population. No American state has a future more bright than the empire commonwealth of the southwest. There is a Texas centennial commission. There is a director-general of the Texas centennial commission. There are six million people in the state of Texas who should be won over to the Texas centennial idea. It should be sold to Texans. Texans should be educated to the importance of the idea as well as the plan.

First their attention should be won. Then their sympathy should be won. Then their active aid should be won. Then in every city and county and village and hamlet, organization should be carried out on modern lines. This will win the influence of the wealthy who would place their state first; the attention of lawmakers willing to win first place in voting liberal appropriations for a mighty project; the support and influence of United States senators and congressmen in orden to win liberal appropriations from the American congress.

Requires Money

It requires money for the detail work. It requires money for the educational work. It requires money to develop and direct the public mind in the right channels in order to make possible the greatest exposition ever held on American soil. And, Texas, the Texas of the past, the Texas of the future and the Texas that is to be as it is written in he book of destiny is entitled, nay, richly merits, the greatest exposition ever planned and then staged anywhere under the shining sun. It is a mighty project, calling for the expenditure of millions, a project for big men who are doers of big things to launch and direct and one that should be made outstanding for years to come in the history of the state and the nation.

A Billion Dollar Farm Bill

Texas, long ago became a billion dollar agricultural state. Texas has become a billion dollar manufacturing state. In point of population Texas is nearing the six million mark. In point of wealth its standing is of the highest and its future the most alluring. Even the school children know that in the romance of history it ranks with the empires that were covered with the dust of time ages ago, and that when Spain was almost the mistress of the world, the adventurers from its shores were landed on these shores ever seeking the golden fleece and new lands of conquest and adventure.

In pagentry every stage of Texas history could be told by the creative artists of the day, and every step of development made in conquering the virgin lands of a wilderness to make them respond so richly to the needs of mankind. It would be a mighty demonstration of pageantry as well as an almost incredible exposition of the transformation of a vast wilderness into a mighty empire teeming with magnificent cities and villages, of vast population engaged in the work of feeding and clothing the world, with all the modern accessories of civilization in evidence to show how complete the transformation has been made since the magic wand of the pioneer with rifle in hand began his work of construction of a civilization under that sky that has known six flags. And may never know another.

Senate Filibuster Rapped by Jones

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Another blow was struck today at senate filibusters.

Senator Jones of Washington, the republican whip, gave notice that he would propose to amend the rules to require senators to speak on the subject before the senate.

Such a rule would be in line with changes suggested by Vice-President Dawes in his campaign to prevent delay of tactics and would put an end to an ancient custom of senators reading articles from newspapers, magazines or other publications to delay action on a measure.

The change suggested by Senator Jones is similar to amendments to the rules previously introduced. These are before the rules committee which has failed to meet this session.

Whittemore Laughs At Trial Threat

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—In striking contrast to his savage, snarling exit from the city on his way to Buffalo just a month ago, Richard Reese Whittemore swaggered laughing aboard a train for Baltimore today to face a second jury empowered to send him to the death chamber.

"I can beat any murder case they bring against me," he boasted during the day. "I'd rather go on trial in Baltimore for murder, in fact, than stay here and stand a rap for first degree robbery. I'll beat the case and I know it."

Whittemore is under indictment here for a series of robberies in which he and his confederates stole $1,000,000worth of jewels. But in Baltimore he is wanted for the murder of a guard killed when Whittemore escaped from prison last year and New York waived its prior claim that he might face the graver charge.

Nurse, Unconscious, Found in Chicago

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—Miss Mildred Furst, unconscious for hours from some unexplained cause was identified today as a graduate nurse from Philadelphia. Miss Furst was returning from a visit to her fiance, Paul Gantz, secretary of the Sojourners club at Fort Bayard, N. M., friends said.

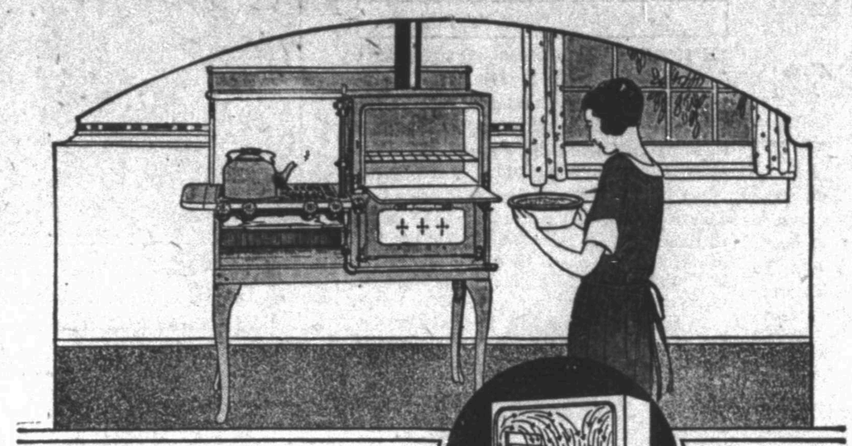

She was taken to the county hospital from a hotel where she was found unconscious yesterday. Physicians were unable to account for her continued coma. She had registered as from El Paso, Texas, and has a railroad ticket which indicated that she had bought a round trip fare in Philadelphia for El Paso.

E. T. Renfro, prominent Texas chain druggist, buys Tipton Drug store.

BIG TIM IN TEXAS

BIG Tim is in Texas. Big Tim's other name is Murphy. Big Tim has a history. He is a product of Chicago stockyards and tenament house life. He served a term in the Illinois legislature. He served another term in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, in the Sun Flower State of Kansas. He served many terms as a labor leader and labor politician in the windy city.

Now Big Tim and two associates are going to develop a tract of land containing 11,000 acres in the lower Rio Grande valley, not far from Brownsville. Big Tim hasn't lost his nerve. He hasn't lost his gall. He hasn't lost his stockyard vernacular. He hasn't lost confidence in Big Tim.

He is proud of his term in the Illinois legislature. He doesn't seem to mind it that he served a term in the Leavenworth penitentiary. Uncle San and his agents put Big Tim away for three years.

He was convicted of having something to do with a gigantic robbery and the field of operation was the United States' mail service. Big Tim hit the soil of the Magic Valley talking politics. He was free with advice. He told the democratic men and women voters of Texas what to do next July on primary election day.

He did not advise these free born Texans, who are not familiar with the methods of Illinois lawmakers nor the inside life of those with Leavenworth federal prison conditions, to vote for the attorney general of Texas for governor or for a former lieutenant governor to fill that high office.

Big Tim was very explicit. He said he knew men and he knew politics. He said that he was a democrat, and a democrat of his type presumably can do no wrong. Big Tim and his associates are going to build a city on their tract of land.

They are going to cut their broad acreage into small truck farms. They are going to plant citrus groves. They are going in strong for vegetables and all the green truck that the fancy eaters of the nation demand.

Big Tim does not ask for vindication. Big Tim feels that he has never done anything that calls for vindication. Big Tim insists that the Magic Valley is an earthly paradise.

He predicts that thousands of working men in Chicago and other large cities, when they are thoroughly informed as to the possibilities of Texas, will make haste to move their families to the Lone Star state, become fruit growers and truck farmers and create a new civilization on the banks of the Rio Grande.

Big Tim is against the Volstead Act. Big Tim says the morals of a man should not be regulated by law. He should have said that the thirst of a man should not be regulated by law in the world in which he moves.

Big Tim may be a success as a developer and a maker of homes in the lower Rio Grande Valley. But Big Tim, if he is wise, will not become active in the politics of the Magic Valley, and if he is careful as well as wise he will place a padlock on his tongue which will prevent him from telling the democratic men and women of Texas how to vote and who to pick as their public servants from the high office of governor down to the lowly office of town constable.

HARRY HAWES FOR SENATOR

CONGRESSMAN HARRY HAWES, of St. Louis, has resigned his seat in congress to make the race for the democratic nomination for United States senator. Harry Hawes is a democrat. He is the only democratic congressman elected from the city of St. Louis. He is a moist democrat and in this he runs true to form. Away back in 1911 he was very much in evidence in Texas.

He came down here to advise the anti-prohibition democrats how to defeat the prohibition constitutional amendment. This was the last victory the antis ever won in Texas. They defeated the amendment by a small majority. Not many years thereafter the World War came and with it war time prohibition. Later the voters of Texas adopted the prohibition constitutional amendment which was defeated in the year 1911.

Harry Hawes is a brilliant campaigner and a man of wealth. He is popular in a city that is both republican and wet. If he captures the democratic senatorial nomination, it is safe to predict that the republican city of St. Louis will return a large majority for a democrat.

JUST LISTEN TO ONE OF THEM

Even the wet speeches in Congress are pretty dry.

TEXAS INCOME TAXES

IN 1924 before the sweeping reductions were made in the income tax, Texans paid for the March quarter $8,233,104.00. For the March quarter after the big slashing had been done and reductions made, they paid $9,666,062.00. Furthermore, in the country at large, income tax collections for March, under the new revenue law, were $504,141,356.00 or $65,412,739.00 more than for March of last year when the higher rates were in effect.

It appears that a low tax rate swells the volume of money paid into the federal treasury. After the new tax rate had been made 2,500,000 names were dropped from the roll. For the reason that under the new revenue act they had no tax to pay. Andrew W. Mellon is responsible for the new tax act. Of course Carter Glass recommended the same rates before the Wilson administration went out of power.

A very wise man is Andrew Mellon; a very wise man is the Virginia editor who is a senator of the United States and for a time was secretary of the treasury when Woodrow Wilson held the reigns of power. All the radicals in the senate and the house declared that the Mellon tax bill was a scheme to rob the poor or of the rich.

Well, the poor do not appear to have been robbed, and the rich appear to have paid in more money under the new act than they did under the old law. There are many demagogues in politics. There are many demagogues in office, and a demogogue ever appeals to the ignorant, or rather the unthought or unthinking voter. He seeks to array class against class. He appeals to the passions and the prejudices of men rather than to their sensibilities.

He never presents real facts or displays any knowledge of economic truth. There are demagogues in Texas. They are ever in evidence. They will be in evidence in this campaign. Like the Lord's poor, they are ever with us.

FIGURES THAT FASCINATE

FIGURES fascinate. F. C. Chandler is president of one of the big motor companies of America. In a recent address, he told of the beauty of the value of installment buying and how it made for prosperity. He asserted that in the last 25 years, although installment buying has increased several hundred folds, the American people have saved more money than in any other 25 year period in the history of the republic.

Building and Loan association assets in 1900, twenty-five years ago, he said were $600,000,000.00. In 1925 they were five times as great or $3,000,000,000,00. Assets of the great insurance companies 25 years ago were $2,000,000,000.00. In 1925 they too, were five times as great or $10,000,000,000.00.

Furthermore, he said, an increase of time and saving deposits in the last 25 years is even more startling. In 1900 they were $3,000,000,000.00. In 1925 they were $20,000,000,000.00 or six and two-thirds times as great.

Then speaking of the motor car industry, he said, that from a production by all makers of about 13,000 cars at the end of 1900 "we have reached our present magnificant total of more than 20,000,000 cars in use at the end of 1925."

And the investment in cars in 1925, largely on the installment plan, approximated $3,000,000,000.00. Are figures fascinating. If there is a doubting Thomas, he should read an analy of the Chandler figures.

They tell of the tremendous increase in national wealth and the rapid stride this republic is making year in and year out regardless of the lamentations of pessimist and the prediction of political welfare workers that the country is dominated by and the people are going headlong to the devil, or that place where the devil is said to have his throne.

A HERO WINS REWARD

CAPTAIN ROBERT PAMPHLET was the commander of a Canadian schooner, a rum runner on the North Pacific coast. In order to save the lives of 12 American seamen, in a great storm, he ventured within the 12-mile limit. He saved the lives of the imperilled American sailors. he landed them and then he was arrested and his ship seized for violation of the anti-rum pact of the United States and Great Britain.

He was acclaimed a hero by the press and the people, but this did not get him anywhere.

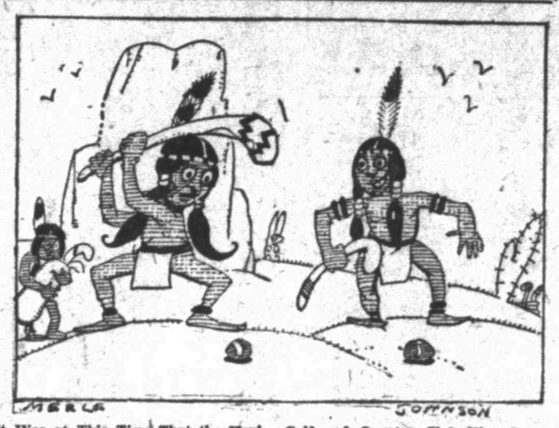

He was indicted by a federal grand jury; he was sent to trial; he was convicted and given a sentence of two years in the penitentiary. He lost his ship. He lost its cargo. Now he must wear stripes. Now just when is a hero a hero?

Women Carry Wet and Dry War to White House

White House is one of battlegrounds in wet and dry war raging in Washington. A delegation from the "Women's Law Enforcement League" is seen calling on Mr. Coolidge to urge him to bring about stricter enforcement of Volstead act. In the group are Mrs. H. W. Peabody (left of president), of Boston, national chairman; Mrs. William L. Darby, (right of president), of Washington, D. C., and other leaders in the organization.

This is How it Started —By James J. Montague

It Was at This Time That the Hopi Golf and Country Club Was Organized.

Over at St. Andrews they will tell you that it began in the days when a Pict was a Pict, and because he wore a kilt and a tam even in those days gave rise to the word picturesque. They say that the little Picts, buffeting pebbles on the beach with drift wood clubs got to laying bets with each other as to which could get from one dune to another in the smallest number of buffets. This theory is manifestly incorrect, for there is an element of chance in batting pebbles over sand dunes, and no Pict ever laid a wager except on a certainty. Besides, there is plenty of evidence that the Dutch began it, as a form of shinny when the canals froze over by rolling cheeses over the ice from one lock to another. They became so interested in the pastime that they continued it on the meadows after the ice thawed, and presently dug holes into which the cheeses must roll in order to count.

But that is wrong too. I have just been talking to an archaeologist, who can read the Maya inscriptions as if they were movie titles, and who has spent the last eleven years of his life deciphering the hieroglyphics outside the houses of the cliff dwellers, who seem to have been the original cave men. He can not only read these hieroglyphics, but can read each inscription in seven or eight different ways, which proves what an erudite man he is. Here is his story.

Old man Moqui, sitting outside his cavern one afternoon observed his little son Moquu chivvying a gourd along the ground with the shin bone of a buffalo. He thought at first that the child was engaged in some idle play, and paid no particular attention to him. But the little one was so absorbed in his occupation that his parent began to watch him more closely. Soon he discovered that another lad with other gourd along the ground, and another shin bone was chivvying anthat each of them seemed to be seeking to get the gourd into a little pit which had been scooped in the earth a few yard ahead of them, and into which had been sunk the half of a very large gourd.

When little Moquu, after selecting a smaller bone from a skin bag he carried on his arm had biffed the gourd a sharp blow and rolled it into the receptacle, the other child burst out crying, at the same time handing the victor a handful of opals, which were common in those parts in those days, and which passed for money.

Old Moqui, having nothing particular to do, there being no tourists to guide at the time when he lived, followed the children for a little distance, observing that they had several hundred acres of rolling country laid out in a series of lanes with a sunken gourd at the end of each lane.

That night he spoke to some of his friends at the Cave Club about it, and so they all came out the next day to see for themselves what the children had been doing. From behind cliffs they peered at the youngsters engaged in their sport and noticed that there was a very considering trick in the way the gourds were clouted and that for different shots it was necessary to employ different bones in order to insure the required distances and lofts.

But for some reason or other the conversation about the game flagged at the Club that night. Moqui, convinced that his fellow members were not interested went out the next morning before his little son was up, found the skin bag containing the set of bones, and began to practice with them.

He found them awkward at first, but by and by he got the hang of them. Every morning for a week he was up at sunrise, and at last was able to get the gourd from one hole to another in about seven strokes. Feeling sure of himself now he reopened the subject at the Club that night, and proposed that the members go out the next morning and try a round with him. To his astonishment all of them agreed.

Well, the old gentleman got the surprise of his life that day. He lost five opals on the first hole, but supposing that his opponent, a big raw boned Prehistoric had fluked his shots by mere brute force he bet ten on the second. He lost the ten. And he lost more heavily still on every subsequent hole. The next day he took on a new opponent, and again he lost. But he kept sternly on, till his place was denuded of opals, and he had to put a mortgage on his cave in order to get a fresh supply.

Meanwhile every father in the settlement had taken the gourds and bones away from his weepingly protesting children, who were allowed only the melancholy satisfaction of carrying the skin bags in the wake of the players, so that each could reach for the particular club he needed.

It was only be overhearing a chance remark between one player and another that Moqui discovered that every member of the Club had gone out the next morning after he told them about the game and got in hours of secret practice—and it was not till nearly a year afterward that he discovered that his only little son, Moquu, had been paid five opals an hour by each of them for giving them lessons on different mesas thereabouts—naturally avoiding conflicting engagements and never giving the succeeding patron a lesson on the same mesa as the preceding one.

It was only by overhearing a chance Golf and Country club was organized, and by its rules secret practice was forbidden, which of course made it indulged in all the more frequently. Some of the old members soon grew very proficient, not only in making shots, but in so shaping the bones that they were better suited to do the work required of them. But as soon as Moquu and his little companions grew until they had the right arm length and enough snap in their wrists they took all the money in the Club away from the members, and won all the shell medals that were offered for prizes, not to mention impoverishing their still hopeful elders.

Shortly after this time an eruption or an earthquake or something of the kind destroyed most of the country, and along with it the new game. But the inscriptions describing it were imperishably graven on the stones, and some of the invading Spaniards who followed Columbus over here must have deciphered them, for it was shortly after their return to Europe that the game broke out in Holland, travelled thence to Scotland, and was reimported to this country, where it has been raging ever since.

I know that some of my readers will doubt this story—especially those who come from Scotland and are naturally prejudiced in favor of the Pict theory. But if they will take the trouble to learn to read the heiroglyphics on the walls which are still standing in the great southwest, they need only spell out the details for themselves And they really ought to do so, for no red blooded 100 per cent American would allow another country to get away with the credit for a game of such paramount importance—if he could possibly claim it for his own land.

Mother's Day Is Proclaimed by Ma For Sunday, May 9

AUSTIN, Texas, May 1.—Mother's day, Sunday, May 9, was officially proclaimed by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson. "I consider it one of the greatest privileges of my official life to pay by proclamation my tribute to the sacred name of mother," she said.

The governor's proclamation pointed out the custom of designating the second Sunday in May each year as Mother's day was begun in 1914, under authority of congress, and that the first presidential proclamation designating the day was written by President Woodrow Wilson.

The Document

Governor Ferguson's official document said:

"There is a Jewish saying that 'God could not be everywhere, so He made mothers.' Mother love since the beginning of time has been the most glorious theme on the lips and pens of men, typifying the highest and purest form of earthly affection. From the creation of earth to the present day mother love has sacrificed, suffered and given all for others. She has crooned us lullabies in our cradles and guided our footsteps through the different paths of youth. She rejoices in our pleasures and triumphs and soothes our pains and dissappointments from childish sorrows to the heartaches of maturity.

To Think of Mothers

"Those who are blessed with mothers at your sides this Mother's day, thank God for the greatest happiness He can bestow. Those whose mothers have passed on, think of her this Mother's day. Remember her hopes and aspirations for you. Honor her memory and her affection.

'In accordance with the custom established in 1914, I consider it one of the greatest privileges of my official life to pay by proclamation my tribute to the sacred name of mother.

"Therefore I, Miriam A. Ferguson, Governor of Texas, do hereby designate and set aside Sunday, May 9, as Mother's day, and call upon the people of this state to observe it fittingly. I urge that the day be used to brighten the lives of the mothers who remain, to remember with reverence the mothers who are gone, and to encourage the youth of the land to honor their homes and parents."

HEAVY FIRE LOSS

AUSTIN, May 1.—Fire destroyed one and a third million dollars worth of property in Texas in March, a loss of more than the entire cost of state government, or nearly as much as was spent by the state for grade school education in the same period, the report of G. N. Holton, fire marshal, shows. This loss of $1,836,156 was from reported fires only and the total was even larger, it was shown.

HARRIMAN FOUND DEAD

COPENHAGEN, May 1.—(AP)—Oliver Harriman, first secretary of the American legation in Copenhagen, was found dead in his apartment today. He was to have been transferred to Warsaw next month.

Uncle Joe Cannon 90 on Friday; To Observe Birthday

DANVILLE, Ill., May 1.—(AP)—"Uncle Joe" Cannon will be 90 years old May 7. He will celebrate with a family dinner at which only immediate relatives will be present.

"Uncle Joe" is enjoying his usual good health and makes a trip downtown to his bank each day.

He spends much of his time preparin a story of his life and expects to have it ready for publication within a year.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

TAURUS

Today's planetary aspects reveal an atmosphere eminently suitable for the observances or recreations of a Sunday. They are benign, without being actively favorable, and while they denote a spirit of peace and contentment, they will not incite to enthusiasm or engender much vigor. Off and on during the day there will be sensed a desire to speak or act on impulse, and it will be necessary to guard against a surrender to these transitory emotional tendencies. These threatening periods are only of short duration and, with the exercise of a little self-control, need not interefere with the pursuance of the even tenor of your way.

Children born today will, during infancy, not display those signs of good health and vigor which all people love to associate, in their minds, with early years. Much of their future physical condition will depend on the care with which they are nutured as babies. Intemperament, they will be lackadaisical and indifferent alike to success or failure. They will lack ambition and need prodding all the time to do that which they have to do. It must, however, be said in their favor that they will not be quarrelsome and they will be very easy to get along with, as the path of least resistance will always be their choice.

If today is your birthday, you possess an artistic, rather than a practical temperament. You, loving beautiful things and esteeming culture above all things, are often the despair of those of your friends whose interests are more material. If you are engaged in any occupation where your innate characteristics are wasted, you are unhappy and, even at some personal sacrifice, should seek some other field of endeavor in justice to yourself.

You are, of course, emotional and never hesitate to demonstrate your likes and dislikes. You possess strong prejudices and are much influenced by externals. You can never appreciate the beauty of a diamond in the rough.

You, of course, are irregular in your habits and untidy in your customs. Those, however, who are dear to you, soon learn to make allowances for your faults and value you for the many kindly traits you possess.

Successful people born this date are:

William Taylor, M. E. bishop.
William L. Elkins, financier.
Abion W. Tourgee, author and journalist.
R. B. Birch, artist.
Clyde Fitch, author and playwright.
Harold McCormick, capitalist.
Norma Talmadge, movie actress.

The Married Life of Helen And Warren

"Why, dear, you're early!"

"Got to get off some letters," Warren shrugged out of his coat. "Want 'em to catch the Aquitania."

"Then you won't need me?" Helen straightened the desk, as he drew up a chair with brisk get-at-it-ness. "I was just going to call on Sir Edward."

"The old boy you chin with out on the balcony?" uncapping his pen.

"Yes, we feed the pigeons every morning. Dear, he's so lonely. He's lived here 30 years—and no one's ever called on him!"

"Huh, then why're you breezin' in?"

"He invited me for tea;! The maid's so excited—he's never asked anyone before."

"Got any stamps here? Where'd you put my stationery?"

"Use the Whitehall Court paper—it's much more impressive. Here's some ha'penny stamps. He expects me at five—I mustn't be late."

"Trot along then. Strut your stuff! But don't forget we're dinin' with the Kingsleys. Got to leave here at six if we go out by bus."

A final fluff of powder, and Helen was ready for her quixotic call on Sir Edgar Malcolm. For three years, for their annual month in London, they had had this flat adjoining his.

An Englishman of the old school. Top hat, frock-coat, cane, spats, monocle. Over eighty, but still erect, distinguished.

Helen had looked him up in the English "Who's Who"—a whole column given to his brilliant military career. Everywhere he had served—India, Egypt, Africa. Orders, decorations—half the alphabet after his name.

And now to have tea with him! His first feminine caller in thirty years.

Their feeding-the-pigeons acquaintance had been eagerly furthered by Judkins, the maid. Adorning Sir Edgar, she was always talking of his clockwork habits.

Breakfast in his private sitting-room at 8:30. At 10, a bit of bread soaked in wine. Then a walk to his club. Back at 1:15 for luncheon. A nap. A stroll to another club. Tea. Dress for dinner at 7:30—a formal, lonely meal.

"It's just five, madam," the maid, in an anxious flurry, now at the door, "Sir Edgar's quite excited expectin' you. I was just in to brush up the grate."

"Yes, I'm going now, Judkins," the flurry contagious.

Out in the spacious marble hall, Sir Edgar's door was welcomingly ajar.

With old-world gallantry, but plainly flustered, he bowed her in.

His sitting-room massively furnished. Heavy Victorian bookcases, cabinets, desk. The walls bristled with antlers and stag heads—trophies of hunting days.

"Oh, Sir Edgar, you have charming rooms," trying to put him at ease.

"I am glad you like them. They are comfortable."

His view of the Thames duly admired. Helen dropped into a chair by the fire.

"Oh, do you wish to sit there? I—I thought——" he reddened.

"Have I taken your chair, Sir Edgar?" jumping up.

"No, no! You must pardon a foolish old man—but I placed this chair for you," standing back of it. "I thought you would prefer not to face the light."

"Oh, yes, this is much nicer," crossing to the other side of the grate.

Now he fairly beamed. His stage-setting effective—his best ear toward her.

"And a footstool! You must be a wizard, Sir Edgar."

"I think Judkins should have the credit for that. She said you liked a footstool—so I had the valet get one."

That her call should mean so much! A wave of emotional understanding.

He longed for companionship—yet isolated by his austerity and prominence.

"Sir Edgar, tell me about yourself," impulsively. "The wonderful things you've done. Oh, yes, you have! I looked you up in 'Who's Who.'"

His disconcertion increased. Had she gone too far? Should she have kept to the pigeons and the weather? "Your campaign in Egypt," daringly. "I'd love to hear about it!"

"Would you? Would it not bore you? That is all like a dream now. Sometimes I wonder if I really did those things," musingly. "They seem so far away."

Encouraged by her flattering interest, he told of his Soudan campaign, the wild night ride to Khartoum. Then South Africa with Kitchener——

"I am talking too much about myself," with sudden withdrawal. "No one is interested in an old man's reminiscences."

"They ARE Sir Edgar. But you're so reserved—no one dares approach you."

"No, this new generation has no time for the past," broodingly. "I have out-lived all my friends. I am eighty-six—that must seem very old to you."

"Age doesn't matter—not with a man. Think of your glorious career."

"Ah, all in the past—all forgotten. Now no one knows nor cares."

"You don't let them, Sir Edgar—you're so austere. The other night Edward Newton dined with us—perhaps you've heard of him? When you passed to your table he said, 'There's one of the famous men of London.' He told of your brilliant war record—and how every body in Pictadilly saluted and held up traffic when you passed."

"Did he say that?" his keen eyes glowed.

Playing for his self-interest crushed by years of isolation, of thinking no one cared, eagerly Helen repeated other tributes. The doormen, the lift boys, the waiters—everyone at Whitehall Court proud of Sir Edgar.

This adulation was like a tonic. His eyes and color brightened.

Now tea was brought in. Solicitously, importantly served by Judkins.

Sir Edgar having a guest! A momentous event she had helped bring about.

A bit of toast crumbled and set aside for the pigeons was one of Sir Edgar's fixed habits, with which Helen was already familiar.

"And you love horses too?" glancing at several equestrians paintings.

"Yes, I once had a racing stable. That was Fleetfoot," indicating the painting over the mantel. "She won the Derby for me. Ah, that was years ago," sadly.

"Oh, Sir Edgar, a wonderful portrait of you!" putting down her cup, Helen crossed to a long canvas between the windows.

In uniform. The same austere, military bearing, but painted in his prime.

When she turned from the portrait, he was opening a Moorish cabinet.

"Something I would like to show you," taking out a small, age-yellowed box.

A fan! Mother-of-pearl and lace.

"Do you like it?" at Helen's glowing admiration. "Then it is for you."

"Oh, thank you, Sir Edgar, but it's too valuable. Real lace—needle-point!"

"It will give me great pleasure, if you will accept it. I have no one—only distant cousins. That is dainty—like you. You must have it."

"Oh, I love it! I'll keep it always. And it's monogrammed—L. R. M."

"L. R. N." he corrected quickly.

He was standing before the fire now, gazing unseeingly at Fleetfoot. Suddenly, stepping forward, he touched a spring under the frame. The whole panel swung slowly out, revealing a portrait in the recess beneath.

A young woman. The hoped gown of fifty years ago. In her hand—the fan!

"She was very beautiful," murmured Helen, after a tense silence.

"You remind me of her. She was small—bird-like movements— impulsive—"

He paused abruptly, touched the spring, and the panel swung back.

With swift intuition, Helen refrained from mentioning the fan again. He had not said it was the same—but he had shown her the secret portrait.

Judkins had said he had never married. Then this was Sir Edgar's romance.

"Six!" at chimes from the toll clock, "I didn't realize I'd stayed so long."

"It has not seemed long. Must you go now?"

"I'm afraid I must. We're dining in Richmond."

The spell of the portrait lost over them. She tried to lessen the tension.

"Oh, Sir Edgar, what a gorgeous tiger skin," as they passed his bedroom door.

"That was a man-eater. Killed one of our bearers and three of the natives before I got him. A larger skin by the window—would you care to see it?"

Stepping in, Helen confronted the valet laying out Sir Edgar's dinner clothes. His look of amazement! Plainly no woman had ever been in that bedroom.

"Why, Sir Edgar, I didn't know there were so many silk hats in the world!"

"Is that so many?" his eyes twinkled.

"Seven!" Helen counted the gleaming "toppers" in the open wardrobe.

"My hatter makes one every so often. He seems to think I need as many now as I ever did. I suppose I should cancel the order, but I just neglect it."

Made-to-order silk hats at habitual intervals! An exclusive London hatter.

And the bowl-and-pitcher washstand! According to Judkins, Sir Edgar never used his bathroom tub. Every morning he had a portable tub brought in. And before dinner, he took his sponge in his bedroom—old world loyalty to time-honored customs.

"It has been a great pleasure," reluctantly escoring her to the door." And you sail Saturday?"

"But we're coming over next year, Sir Edgar. You must have tea with us then."

"Next year," he sighed. "Next year —" Then with his courtly bow. "Well, I shall look forward to next year."

Down the hall, and into their own flat.

"Know what time it is?" was Warren's irate greeting. "What the Sam Hill made you stay so long? Hustle now, slap on your lid! No time to doll up."

"It won't take me a minute. Oh, dear, I'm SO glad I went. Just think—the first woman caller he's had in thirty years. You ought've seen the valet stare!"

"Huh, took you to breeze in and ruin his rep! What'd you hand him? Lot of gushy slush? Bet you bored him stiff."

"Oh, he loved it. Is my grey coat heavy enough? Dear, he's so lonely."

"Huh, dusts 'round every day to his clubs, doesn't he?"

"Yes, but age is so pathetic. He says he's outlived his generation—and all his friends. Look what he gave me."

"What's the idea?" scowling at the valuable fan. "You been gold-diggin'?"

"The way he put it—I couldn't refuse," she shrank from mentioning the portrait.

"Ready? How 'bout that fire? Better put on some coal?"

"Judkins will be in to fix it. Dear, I made him talk about himself—it was like a tonic. The way he brightened up! When we get back home I'm going to write him, and send him a card Christmas, and——"

"Now that's enough about him! Ready? Got to take the tube if we get out to Richmond by seven-thirty. No, too late—can't make it on a bus. What's that? Then why'd you stay so long palaverin' with that old boy? Come on, you look good enough," switching off the lights. "Who'd you expect to vamp now?"

Northwest Texas Enjoys Prosperity, Santa Fe Declares

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—Northwest Texas has the best season in the ground it has enjoyed for several years and crop prospects are excellent, the agricultural department of the Santa Fe railroad announced today in a statement received here from the department's headquarters at Topeka, Kansas.

Rain and snow in the latter half of March or early April contributed to this good ground condition, the report said. Small grain promises a bumper yield and pastures are greening up, while planting of row crops will start shortly and the acreage will be greater than last year because new land is being put into cultivation. The new land also will cause a slight increase in cotton acreage the report said.

In south Texas, high water and below normal temperatures have retarded the planting of row crops.

Winter wheat and oats are on the good condition with increased acreage of both. Fair crops of fruit and vegetables are expected. The report said there would be a heavy acreage of melons in south Texas and of vegetables in east Texas. Livestock shares the optimistic trend as pastures are said to be the best in years.

The Santa Fe report covers territory tranversed by the railroad and is prepared from wire reports.

Highland Heights Christian Church Makes Amazing 3 Month Growth

EXPANSION IS UNPRECEDENTED IN THE CITY

Additional Building Is Needed When First Proves Inadequate

One of the most phenomenal growths of any church in Wichita Falls has been shown by the baby religious organization of the city, the Highland Heights Christian church which was formed shortly over three months ago and now has a membership of more than 300. The Bible school which was begun three months ago with 63 members had 412 students present last Sunday. So great was the growth of the church during this time that an annex had to be built to the present tabernacle to take care of the big congregations.

Dr. Paul Henry Packard, formerly of Des Moines, Iowa, is pastor.

Packard Called Back.

There had been a feeling for several years that the city was large enough to accommodate more than one Christian church. During a revival held in September, 1925, the official board invited Dr. Packard to return in January, 1926, to conduct an evangelistic campaign somewhere in the west section of the city with a view to organizing a permanent institution.

As a nucleus around which to form the organization, volunteers were called for from the membership of the First church who would back such a movement. About a dozen men responded and plans for the new church were laid.

The tabernacle which forms the home of the church until the $150,000 edifice can be erected was built in one day by the men of the city who did volunteer work. The temporary home has proved too small and an additional tabernacle has been built next program in which they hope to erect to it in front of Junior college.

Plan $150,000 Building.

The church has planned a building a magnificent church costing around $150,000. At present a parsonage is being built at a cost of $13,000 on the corner of Hayes and Avenue 1.

The growth has been so rapid it was necessary the second month to buld another building the same size as the original tabernacle, to accommodate the growing Bible school. Classes, as large as will be found here every Sunday. The men's class in many established churches meet under the direction of William Baldridge as teacher has an enrollment of 100, as does the young people's class, taught by Dr. Packard. The Loyal Workers and the Berean class taught by Joe Crouch and John W. Bradley are two of the largest Bible classes in the city.

While the congregation is not made up particularly of people of wealth, it is doubtful if any other church in the city has raised as much money proportionately as has this little group. A church budget of $16,000 was adopted by the official board for the first year's work but several thousand dollars in excess of that amount will have been raised at the present rate.

Many Members Tithe.

The secret of the financial strength of this congregation does not lie in its wealth but rather in the fact that when the church was organized and the official board chosen, it was voted to make this a "tithing church," many of the members bringing a tenth of their income to the support of this work.

Dr. Packard believes that his congregation will not be able to serve the increasing needs of the west section of Wichita Falls very long, but that the growing city, when the new additions have been built up will demand the planting of still another congregation. His idea is not to centralize but expand and minister not from the standpoint of one congregation's satisfaction, but rather from the standpoint of the city's spiritual needs.

When asked for the secret of the phenomenal growth of his congregation Dr. Packard said:

"We have not and are not endeavoring to do any spectacular or spasmodic piece of work. Thus far we have done very little advertising and even the press of the city has been given very little of the church's activities, but by a well organized and systematic method we have reached folks in their homes. The women of the Highland Heights church, under the direction of Mrs. P. B. Curd, are the most efficient workers and the most consecrated women I have ever worked with and a large per cent of the success of the church must be given to our women. They have made as many as 1,000 visits a month and they have found people who have proved wonderful workers in the congregation. We have nothing to preach but the Gospel and have tried to put into all of our work the human touch which will help the vast army of folk to know we are here to help them solve their problems and not simply feed the intellect. My years of experience in practically every state in the union as an evangelist have thoroughly convinced me that the world wants the pulpit to quit talking about things not essential to the every day battles of life and give them a staff on which they can lean and we are trying to do that thing."

The official board is as follows: Elders: John W. Bradley, W. P. Killingsworth, T. E. Durrett, Arthur C. Howard, William Baldridge, J. H. Patton.

Deacons: Judge B. D. Sartin, E. H. Taubert, W. F. Sims, P. B. Curd, S. B. Wilson, Paul G. Putty, Joe Crouch, V. R. Henderson, Geo. Shankle, F. L. Adair, Paul Barnett, Dr. W. S. Tyson, W. R. Browning, Harley Snider, John Glaab.

The officers of the board are: John W. Bradley, chairman; Judge B. D. Sartin, vice-chairman; W. F. Sims, secretary; T. E. Durrett, treasurer.

The officers of the Bible school are: Judge B. D. Sartin, superintendent; W. F. Sims, secretary; V. R. Henderson, treasurer; Paul Henry Packard, efficiency superintendent.

Teachers of the Bible school are: William Baldridge, John W. Bradley, Joe Crouch, Rev. J. E. Tucker, Paul Henry Packard, Miss Bettye Garrison, Paul Barnett, Beulah Lane, Mrs. R. H. Stocks, Mrs. V. R. Henderson, Mrs. W. C. Duncan, Mrs. C. O. Roark.

Women's council: Mrs. P. B. Curd, president; Mrs. E. H. Taubert, first vice-president; Mrs. Harley Snider, second vice-president; Mrs. Paul Barnett, secretary; Mrs. W. P. Killingsworth, treasurer.

Christian Endeavor: Joe Adair, president; Lee Dowell, vice-president; Harriet Roe, secretary; Harriet Bradley, treasurer.

Pastors Here Extend Special Invitations To Attend Churches

An invitation has been extended to the public of Wichita Falls by the pastors of the various churches to attend services today. Special sermons and music have been arranged as features of worship.

In observance of mother-daughter week, Girl Reserves of the Young Woman's Christian association will attend in a body and will be given reserved places at the First Methodist church, south, First Christian church and Floral Heights Methodist. They will also assist in taking the offering at the morning service and serve as ushers. They will have a part in the morning program at the First Presbyterian church also.

Revival services are being held at the First Baptist church by Dr. G. L. Yates of Amarillo; and at the South Side Baptist church by Rev. Sam Taylor of Arlington.

An anthem by the chorus choir of the church will sing, "The Lord Is My Rock," (Loveing) at the morning service, and special hymns for the evening worship. The orchestra will play for the Bible school service.

Church Class In May Day Picnic On Willis Ranch

Members and friends of the Downing Bible class of the First Christian church enjoyed a real May Day picnic out on the W. T. Willis ranch near Burkburnett Friday at noon. It was the old fashioned kind where baskets were well filled with good things to eat, hot coffee made over a camp fire, and freezers full of ice cream to finish off with.

This class composed of loyal women were out for a truly good time and the fine day in the out-of-doors was thoroughly enjoyed by about 35 class members as well as some guests.

Among the guests present were the Rev. and Mrs. Bash, Mrs. T. Lem Keevil, Mrs. Jack Hamilton and baby, Mrs. J. R. Perdue, Mrs. Amos Morris, Mrs. Orville Carrico, Mrs. A. H. Stewart, Mrs. R. E. Shepherd, Mrs. Homer Karrenbrock, Mrs. M. A. Parks and son, Mrs. J. H. Sides, Mrs. A. R. Prothro and daughter, Misses Alice Downing and Bettie Spreen and Master Billie Cumley. Class members were Mesdames Guthery, Nail, White, Milo Atkinson, T. W. Casky, VanDeventer, Specht, Ppreen, J. A. Staley, G. R. Walker, J. W. Snow, Bain, S. P. Jones, G. R. Ellis, M. P. Rogers, Groves, Love, Getchus, M. A. Bundy, Hill, Murphy, W. T. Willis, L. C. Tyson, S. M. Griswold, Board, Pyle, Lucy Young, Spradling, R. S. Stewart, O. T. Bacon, Dan McGrath, G. C. A Promise Fulfilled

The large number of homesites purchased, and the type of people who have bought and are now building or having architectural plans drawn for their homes, is convincing proof of the distinct approval given the Country Club Estates by the citizenship of Wichita Falls.

A subdivision, where more than 600 acres in a solid block, all with the same high type of improvements and restrictions which you now observe in this superior subdivision, restricted to brick, stone or stucco residences, and with the very best environment, overlooking the golf links of the Country clubs and the Municipal Club with, the best soil, with irrigation water under high pressure in cast iron pipes, laid out and landscaped by world renowned city planners and artists will never be duplicated in the history of this city.

The environment and attractiveness of the Country Club Estates is so strong and compelling that sales thus far have broken all precedent in subdivision history of this city.

GOTHAM CLUBS AGAINST FIELD IN BOTH LOOPS

Intersectional Games May Prevent Run-Away Races

NEW YORK, May 1.—The merry month of May promises to be a crucial one on both major leagues and the coming week, which witnesses the first invasion of the West by the Eastern teams of the National league and the first invasion of the East by the Western teams of the American league, should provide a good line on prospects in both the big time circuits.

Already the big league races have boiled down to a question of whether the Giants and the Yankees can be headed off and a couple of runaways prevented. If the New York clubs have not been given their come-uppance by the end of May, prospects will look dark for the rest of the aspirants.

Braves at Pittsburgh.

The Boston Braves will fire the opening gun in the intersectional hostilities on Wednesday at Pittsburgh On Thursday, the Giants will unlimber their heavy artillery in Chicago while Brooklyn will invade St. Louis and the Phillies will have it out with the Cincinnati Reds.

The Western clubs of the American League will not strike the East until Thursday and Friday, so widely do the erratic paths of the 1926 schedules divert. The whirling schedule in the junior league is the result of efforts to make the season fit the closing date agreed upon.

St. Louis opens hostilities against the Athletics on Thursday and Cleveland swoops down on the Boston Reds the same day. Detroit will face the Yankees in New York and Chicago will try conclusions with Washington on Friday.

Watch McGraw.

The Giants, be it said, have a fair chance—or a little better than a fair chance—of going west at the head of their league. If they do well in their first series out that way this year may witness another of those early season triumphal parades which John McGraw so often has arranged at the expense of other managers.

The big question is whether Joe McCarthy and his reorganized Cubs can hold the Giants in check and whether the Cincinnati, St. Louis and Pittsburgh team possess the power to make them back up.

If the Giants can be kept down on this invasion of the prairies and the river bottoms, there is a grand opportunity for the National League race to go sailing along a nip and tuck affair well into September.

But if the Giants have the Indian sign on the West this year, the National League race will be put away in camphor balls on the soggy Polo grounds much earlier than is hoped for by rivals.

The Giants are the best club in the East as the first round has clearly proved. Their pitching could have been better, their batters are some better collectively and they know baseball. They are not fast behind the bat but there is no need for speed behind the bat when there is no speed in sight against the Giant catchers.

Yanks Real Leaders.

The Yanks are unmistakeably leaders in their domain as the Giants are in theirs. Indeed, they are more so. The Yanks can swat harder than the Giants. If the Yank pitchers ever resolve themselves into a close corporation which allows about three or four runs a game to other teams, and no more, and the team continues to hit as hard as it has been doing, it will not have to be immaculately perfect in fielding to lead the host home in September.

GOLF

As Champions Play It

In making a long putt, say fifteen feet or more, do you advise picking out some object that is in a line with the ball and the cup, and putting for it, rather than training the eye to follow the imaginary line the full distance to the cup?

BY BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional

* * *

Do not pick out an object on the green to putt over in making a long putt. You will be son concentrated on said object that half the time you may forget to hit the putt. Train the eye to follow the imaginary line, then think of hitting firmly. All good putters do this.

If you concentrate on making the ball pass over a certain point on the way to the cup you'll be thinking of the point instead of the cup, and forget to gauge your distance. Your direction may be right but your distance all wrong. Remember only the imaginary line.

Relief Proponents Confer in Farmer

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—While awaiting house consideration next week of farmer relief legislation senators from the agricultural states continued conferences today in an effort to agree upon a measure designed to command the support of a majority in the senate.

Those favoring the corn belt plan as written into the Haugen bill, pending in the house, called in a number of senators to whom spokesmen for farm organizations explained the principal features of this proposal.

At the same time democratic senators from the cotton states initiated a series of conferences with a view to reaching an agreement on the fundamentals of farm relief on which they might go along with senators from the wheat and corn belts.

SOCK! SOCK! SOCK! BIG SUMMER AHEAD IF CHAMPS GO THROUGH WITH BOUTS

FIDOL LaBARBA

Between May 1 and the end of this year every one of the ring champions is due to risk his crown. Fidel La Barba, flyweight king, very appropriately starts the ball rolling by meeting Emil Paluso in Los Angeles. La Barba is the lad in his teens who won the title from Frankie Genaro after the mantle had fallen on Frank's shoulders at Pancho Villa's death.

LOUIS KAPLAN

As far as Kid Kaplan and his friends are concerned he is featherweight champion and will defend that title again against Bobby Garcia at Long Island City June 1. Garcia is probably the outstanding aspirant right now. Kaplan, pride of Meridan, Conn., claimed the title after his bout with Danny Kramer in January, 1925, which Kaplan won in nine rounds.

TOD MORGAN

Tod Morgan, Britisher by birth and holder of the junior lightweight title, will battle Steve "Kid" Sullivan at Brooklyn, May 7. Morgan won the title from Mike Ballerino last December and seems the best of the run of fighters who have decided a half-way title is better than none. Kid Sullivan once held the title himself—for a few minutes, losing it to Ballerino.

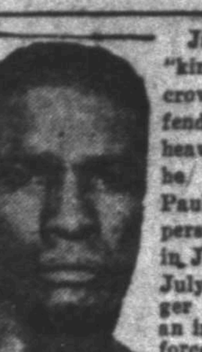

ROCKY KANSAS

Rocky Kansas, the Rip Van Winkle of boxing, who won the lightweight title 13 years after he started in quest of it, will meet Sid Terris, a leading challenger, at Coney Island Aug. 6. Kansas holds the title by virtue of his victory over Jimmy Goodrich. Benny Leonard is in retirement undefeated, but proved his mastery over Kansas.

MICKEY WALKER

Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champ, faces a real tough aspirant in meeting Pete Latzo, Scranton, May 20. Lazo has victories over all the leading welters to his credit and has the knack of turning the tables on former opponents. They have met before. It will be Walker's first big fight in months.

IGER" FLOWERS

Jack Delaney, "king without a crown," will defend the light heavyweight crown he wears against Paul Berlenbach, persistent foe, late in June or early in July. While Tiger Flowers claims an infected eye will force postponement perhaps, of his return bout with Harry Greb, from whom he took the world's middleweight title, the bout will be staged shortly after May 27.

PHIL ROSENBERG

Charlie Phil Rosenberg will be forgotten as bantam champ unless he defends his title shortly, and a bout with Bushey Graham is now being cooked up. The king of the tiny boys must fight often—it is tradition. The division has been a hectic one since the Kid Williams - Johnny Coulon days. Rosenberg won his title from Eddie Martin in March, 1925.

JACK DEMPSEY

It's too early to order tickets, but the appearance of Jack Dempsey in the ring this year is nearer a certainty since he signed a contract with Tex Rickard to risk his title in September, probably against Gene Tunney. Dempsey has not had a real fight since Luis Firpo almost won the crown three years ago. It is seven years since Jack won the title from Willard.

Yank Wallopers Top Major Loop Timber Busters

Petty, Keen, Lucas, Rhem Lead Slabsters With Three Wins

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—The hitting in the majors is being done by American league players and the most perfect pitching records so far this season belong to flingers in National circuit.

What the connection is, if any, the league records don't show but they do reveal that individuals and teams are pounding them out with considerably more success in the American and that there are more pitchers with perfect records to date in the National than in the junior league.

The New York Yankees lead the club batting standing with the only above .300 percentage in the big leagues, .336, Cleveland is next with .283 and five other teams in the circuit are averaging .250 or better. In the National, the .283 of the Phillies tops the averages, New York is second with .282 and two other clubs far above .250.

Goose Out Front

"Goose" Goslin, Washington's centerfielder, has popped into the picture with a hit percentage of .440 to lead all the players who have been in 10 or more games. Four other American players in that many contests are hitting .400 or above, records for the season through last Wednesday's games show.

The National's individual batting honors continue in the possession of Rogers Hornsby, the St. Louis manager having slipped a bit from his starting average for a present one of .436. Sand of Philadelphia is hitting .404 and 14 National players in 10 or more games have percentages of .300 and beyond.

The slugging became heavier during the second week of the season, more of the bingles going for extra bases. To date, 1,032 hits have been made in the American, 295 of them for extra bases, including 44 circuit drives. National players have hit safetly 926 times, including 259 extra base hits of which 29 have been homers. Babe Ruth and Pat Collins of the New York Americans each had three four-baggers at the end of the second week of the season and Williams and Fournier, the former of the Phillies, had equal records. Several men in each league had made as many as two home runs.

Frisch King Thief

Frisch of the Giants led the canvas thieves, with five stolen bases in the first two weeks, Mueller of the St. Louis Nationals and Rice of the Senators trailing with four pilfered sacks each.

Among the pitchers, Petty of Brooklyn, "Red" Lucas of Cincinnati, Keen of St. Louis and Rhem of St. Louis finished the opening weeks with three games won and none lost in the National play. Thirteen other flingers had perfect records, although in fewer games. Reuther of Washington was the only American pitcher with three won games and none lost, 12 other league hurlers in fewer tilts having perfect records. The veteran Walter Johnson had a percentage of .750 and the record on strike outs with 21 to his credit.

Leading American batters in 10 or more games Goslin of Washington .440; Gehrig of New York, .413; Carlyle of Boston, .405; Dugan of New York, .400; Ruth of New York, .400; Burns of Cleveland, .385; Flagstead of Boston, 383; Bluege, Washington, .337; Spurgeon of Cleveland, .367; Meusel of New York, .360.

Leading National hitters in 10 or more games: Hornsby, St. Louis, .436; Sand of Philadelphia, .404; Bressler of Cincinnati, .387; Leach, Philadelphia, .380; Kelly of New York, .367; Wheat of Brooklyn, .354; Johnson, Boston, .350; Fournier, Brooklyn, .349; Felix of Brooklyn, .340; Lindstrom of New York, ..333.

FIGHTS

(By the Associated Press.)

OMAHA, Neb.—George Russell, Philadelphia and Morrie Schafer, Omaha, fought a draw, 10 rounds.

MEADVILLE, Pa.—Nick Newman, Cleveland, knocked out Harry Slaughter, Pennsylvania, 2 rounds.

Phillies Shatter Robins' Winning Streak, 4 to 2

Leach Cracks Home Run Off Vance With Two On Bases

BROOKLYN, May 1.—(AP)—The Brooklyn winning streak was broken today as the Phillies took the last game of the series four to two. Vance pitched for the Robins and though he yielded only seven hits, two were home runs, one by Leach, coming in the sixth with two on bases. Williams hits for the circuit in the eighth. The Robins retain first place as the Giants also lost. The score:

Grantham's Pinch Poke Defeats Reds

PITTSBURGH, May 1.—(AP)—Grantham, hitting in a pinch, enabled Pittsburgh to defeat Cincinnati today, 3 to 2. With the score two-all, Grantham batted for Morrison in the seventh. He doubled to right, scoring Wright with the winning tally. The Pirates scored twice in the second inning on three hits. The Reds tied it up in the sixth on a walk and two hits. Morrison left the game after he was hit by a batted ball. The score:

Londos, When Welter, Flattened 'Em All In National Meet, Stopping Heavy Champ

JIMMY LONDOS

The Greek heavyweight, as he appeared back in 1914 shortly after the national amateur wrestling tournament in four classes. Londos, at the time a welterweight, captured the championship in his own weight and then stepped out to win the middleweight, light heavyweight and heavyweight belts. His final match was with the Olympic heavyweight champion. He won after a gruelling battle.

"Boy Hercules."

Dutch Mantell, the veteran Columbus welterweight then performing on the coast, ran into the youthful Greek one day at the Y. M. C. A. in San Francisco in 1913. The Dutchman was very much impressed with Londos' work as a tumbler.

"I asked him to work out with me," says Dutch, "and got a surprise by his display of speed and enormous amount of strength. After some time I convinced him that his future lay in the roped ring and signed him on.

"Londos entered the Olympic club and under its colors won every tournament on the Coast in 1914. He entered the National amateur tournament in four classes and came out winner in all. This set the whole country afire," says Dutch. "He was only 18 years old and was known as the 'Boy Hercules.'

Went on Stage.

"After the tournament, the Photo Weekly offered me $1,000 for a ten-minute exhibition for their weekly picture. I signed Jim on the dotted line. The Orpheum circuit offered me a ten-week contract at $400 per week. I also accepted. Londos appeared as the headliner in a posing act and did hand-balancing, tumbling, feats of strength and met all comers on the mat. We offered $100 to any man who could stay 15 minutes with Jimmy. We never had to pay off!

"From there on, Londos went like wild-fire and cleaned 'em up big and small. Today he is considered the greatest wrestler in the ring.

"Londos is a gentleman, clean through, and very religious and very popular wherever he appears.

Can't Pin Him.

"In the four years Londos was with me we went all over the country and he never lost a match. And I wager today that there is no man, regardless of how big and strong, who can pin the shoulders of Jim Londos to the mat."

The above message was sent the Record News sports editor yesterday by Mantell with the above cut the Dutchman had dug out of his relics of other days in the mat game.

Dutch, by his declaration that no man can pin Londos' shoulders does not mean that Jim hasn't nor cannot be defeated. He is of opinion that the only way Londos can be defeated is by accidental injury, be knocked out, to be crushed by a body scissors or something similar.

Londos tackles Nick Velcoff, the Bulgarian, in finish match at the Eleventh and Ohio arena Wednesday night. Mantell hooks up with Charley Olson, the Canadian middleweight champ, in a one-fall, hour limit tussle.

Van Orman Wins Litchfield Trophy

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 1.—(AP)—All contestants in the Litchfield trophy and national elimination balloon race have landed, with Ward T. Van Orman, pilot of the "Goodyear IV," the winner for the third time in succession. The last balloon to land was the United States army balloon S-23, brought to land at Mount Holly, N. C., a small town eight miles west of Charlotte.

Lieut. William A. Gray, pilot of the United States army balloon S-20, tonight wired R. E. Steubaer, a friend here, from Hitchens, Ky., that he hit some trees in the eastern Kentucky mountains last night. Apparently Lieutenant Gray had been unable to reach a telegraph wire as his message was filed at 6:62 o'clock tonight.

Coyotes Crippled As State Track Tourney Nears

Meredith Out, Dempsey In Bad Way, En Train Wednesday

The Coyote track team will leave Wednesday for the state capital to enter the state high school track meet next Friday and Saturday. Coach McCallum will take about eight men to the meet, according to an announcement by business manager Ralph Moore.

The entry of the Coyote relay team is very doubtful since the loss of Follmore Meredith and the probable loss of Dempsey Moore, two of the big cogs in the team.

Meredith injured a leg in the 100-yard dash at the district meet and has been unable to run since. Although Meredith is out of the state meet this year he is greatly counted upon to go strong in the big meet in 1927.

There is still hope that Dempsey Moore, stellar track star of the Coyotes, will be back in time for the meet. The probable line-up for the Coyotes at the meet will be:

Miller, 220-yard dash and broad jump.
Moore, shot put.
Porter, high jump and pole vault.
McKinney, 440-yard dash.
Thomas, 880-yard dash.
Pinney, low and high hurdles.
Ray, javelin.
Rugely, low hurdles.
Scoggins, 100-yard dash.

BRITTONS MAY LOSE AMATEUR LINKS CROWN

U. S. Sends Strong Team to Isles in Quest of Walker Cup

NEW YORK, May 1.—The forthcoming week will see the departure of the strongest team of amateur golfers ever sent abroad from this country. This group of eight players and alternates, sailing on the Acquitania next Wednesday under the auspices of the U. S. G. A. is going to Great Britain ostensibly in quest or in defense of the Walker cup.

However, each man on the American team is nursing the hope of wininng the British amateur championship at St. Andrews the last week in May and thus gaining the honor of being the first American since Walter J. Travis to win this coveted trophy. Travis incidentally was born in Australia so that, strictly speaking, no American has ever captured the British amateur title.

Interest in the British amateur championship will be greatly increased this year because of the presence of the American stars. There is probably more interest in this event than in any of the other British tournaments this year because many golf fans feel that the United States has too strong a team for the Britons in the Walker cup contests.

Advantage to Americans.

The fact that the British amateur competition will be held prior to the international matches this year is an advantage for the Americans psychologically as well as physically. In previous years these events have been held in reverse order.

In former years also, the American players have gone to Europe well in advance of the tournament and in endeavoring to get into condition quickly have usually played too much golf and become stale by the time of the competition.

This mistake is not likely to occur this year. In the first place the Americans will have only about two weeks to tune up.

Secondly with the British amateur title meet scheduled as the first major tournament for Uncle Sam's stars, the Americans will be able to concentrate on this event. This tournament will take the place at Murifield, an exceptionally long course rated as one of the best tests in England.

That also is one advantage to the Americans, especially to fellows like Bobby Jones, Francis Duimet, Watts Gunn and George Von Elm all long long hitters who combine steadiness with hitting power.

Another Possibility.

On the other hand, should all the Americans fail in the British amateur championship the advantage will lie with the Britons in the Walker cup contests. For having stopped the visitors in the championship rounds, they will naturally enter the team matches with increased confidence.

The personnel of the American team sailing next Wednesday comprises Robert Gardner, who again will act as captain; Francis Ouimet, Jesse Guilford, Bobby Jones, Jess W. Swetser, Watts, Gunn, George Von Elm, and Roland McKenzie.

Indian Trackers Stepping Spryly

The Junior college track team is looking better every day and it should turn out several winners in the Junior college track tournament. The place for the meet has not been decided yet but it is thought that it will be held in Dallas in a very few days.

The Indians have but nine track men out, but this should turn out to be a fair team. The nine men on the team are Steve West, Barker Chunn, Wilbur Presson, Roscoe Burks, Olin Harvey, Louis Barrett, John Wolf, Porter Bristol, and Charles Weeth.

West is showing up well in the low and high hurdles, discus and shot put. Presson has been leading the way in the 100 and 220 yard dashes, and the broad jump. Chunn is a good mile runner as well as discus and shot heaver. Barrett is showing up nicely in the 440-yard dash. Burks is showing up well with the weights and the long runs. Harvey, Wolf and Bristol have been showing up good in the practice sessions.

HARTZ CAPTURES A. C. INAUGURAL 300-MILE RACE

DePaolo Drives Second As Records Take Hard Flop

SPEEDWAY, N. J., May 1—(AP)—Six world's speed records were shattered today when Harry Hartz, 30-year-old Californian swept to victory in the 300-mile international race that opened the new track of the Atlantic City motor speedway association.

Flashing around the big mile and a half pine oval at a dizzy clip without making a single stop, Hartz triumphed in a sensational struggle in which his two foremost rivals, Peter De Paola, American speedway champion, and Bob McDonogh, another Californian, finished second and third. A crowd of close to 80,000 spectators saw the picturesque speed chase in which only six of the 16 starters finished the full course.

Hartz not only clipped nearly five minutes from the world's 300-mile record set last February 22 at Miami, Fla., by De Paolo, but carried off $12,000 the, winners share of the $30,000 in prize money distributed to the contestants.

Martz's time for the 300 miles was two hours, 14 minutes 14.18 seconds, as compared with De Paolo's mark of 2:19:12.95. His average speed was 134.1 miles an hour as compared with De Paolo's 129.295.

Although officials tonight had not computed the exact times, it was announced that five other world's marks also had been smashed.

Dempsey Has Signed Papers, Now Let's Fight

Now that Jack Dempsey has signed a contract to fight sometime, somewhere next September in defense of his dusty heavyweight crown, the question is raised once more as to whether the fight will actually come off.

And if it does come off who will be the lucky and unlucky opponent. Those who figure Dempsey through consider his prospective opponent as "in" on the title. Those who still visualize the Dempsey of 1919 and 1921 see the gent who draws the minor portion of the purse as due to get socked into a seven-day coma.

But regardless of what the result may be, who'll get the chance?

The best bet, as things stand today, is Gene Tunney.

First of all Tex Rickard, who signed Jack at Fort Worth, Texas, the other day, is known to lean toward Tunney, believing he will draw a bigger gate. And it must be kept in mind that the promoter hopes to clear expenses at least.

Tunney looms as the logical man for two reasons—his general popularity and the color that can be woven

He is the war hero who emerged from the world conflict a champion around him.

Has Atmosphere of Hero.

among fighters—in quest of the goal he now approaches. There is much in that to draw cheers.

He is of the modern type of keen, intellectual fighter, about whom copy can be woven.

And he can present the best argument in defense of his claim for the right to meet Dempsey.

HE IS THE MAN WHO KNOCKED OUT THE MAN WHO STAYED 15 ROUNDS WITH THE CHAMPION.

Wills never did anything approaching that as a spectacular feat. Wills never has done anything spectacular. Back in 1918 he won his greatest fame by knocking out the two old negro millers, Sam Langford and McVegh.

Two or three years previously, while Sam Langford had clear vision and McVegh some form, both had knocked Harry out.

Wills met Firpo in 1924—when the Wild Bull was well out of form—and outpointed him decisively in 12 rounds.

Wills' Two "Victories."

The negro picked on poor old Charlie Weinert July 2 last year and knocked him cuckoo in two rounds. Twelve or fourteen other heavies and light heavies around this fair land could do the same.

Then Wills took on poor old Floyd Johnson Oct. 26 and won a technical knockout victory in a round.

Tunney presents, in comparison to this general resume, the fact that he met Georges Carpentier in 1924, when that crafty old boy was still head and shoulders above the rank and file of our heavies, and won a technical knockout in 15 rounds.

Then on June 15 last year, Tunney climbed into the ring with the man who had held Dempsey at bay for 15 rounds in whatever kind of a fight you want to call it at Shelby, Mont., and proceeded to end Gibbons' career by knocking him out in 12 rounds.

These two achievements alone are enough to give Tunney the edge. Why bring up the matter of color, personal enmity, the color line or any other bunk to aid in making the decision?

You can figure on Tunney getting the chance—when and if the champion enters the ring again.

April [illegible]s 385 . Oilers Completed

AUSTIN, May 1.—(AP)—In April 385 producing oil wells were brought in Texas, the oil and gas division of the railroad commission announced today Archer county led with 74 producers and Wichita was second with 40.

A total of 911 permits to drill were granted, Archer leading with 128. Permits of all sorts totaled 2,407, including "shooting" permits, and permits to "plug." In March 2,880 permits of all sorts were granted of which 1,059 were permits to drill.

American Refiners Top Twilight League Batters

American Refinery sluggers led the Twilight league in long and short distance clouts and number of safe blows registered at the close of the second week of play Friday night.

McMahon and Martindale, both of the Eagles, each at bat 10 times, registered five clean wallops for a .500 percentage. Francis, third sacker with the same club, has a .543 average. He toed the pan seven times and hit safely for four occasions. Faraquar, hitting four out of 10 has a .400 average. Glidewell slugged three out of eight for .375.

Dixon of Security National has a .500 batting average, hitting safely three times out of six.

Hatton of the Panhandle hit three for three the other day in the Water department game to amass a figure of .1,000.

Rice of the Water Carriers hit .429, poling the pill to virgin territory three times in seven attempts.

WAGGONER WINS FROM TEXHOMA

ELECTRA, May 1.—The Texhoma baseball team defeated the Waggoner Refining company in a slugfest at the local park, 7 to 6. Bourdeaup pitched for the Refiners and allowed only two hits but his teammates made ten errors behind him. Purcell started for the Texhoma but was relieved in the first after filling the bases. Clinkerman then took over the hurling job and was hit hard but he kept the hits well scattered. Both teams scored one run in the first and the Texhoma scored five in the second. They scored their five tallies on two hits, singles by Purcell and Kemple accompanied by four errors enabled them to score the five markers.

NAVY CREW DOUBLES PENN

ANNAPOLIS, May 1.—(AP)—Pennsylvania's varsity crew took a terrific drubbing from Navy's powerful eight this afternoon over the Henley distance of a mile and five sixteenths. The Quaker shell straggled five lengths in the rear at the finish, Butler's combination surging over the line in 7:27. Pennsylvania's time was 7:46.

DALLAS SIGNS "TINK" RIVIERE

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—Arthur B. (Tink) Riviere, right hand pitcher, has been signed by J. Walter Morris, business manager of the Dallas Steers. This acquisition is expected to strengthen the Dallas hurling staff materially as Riviere won four of six games he owrked for Dallas last year, besides leading the league in holding opposing batsmen to the fewest number of earned runs a agame.

When he joined Dallas last season, Riviere was a free agent. He had purchased his release from the White Sox after his arm had gone bad.

He was unable to land a contract last season with Houston, Beaumont, or Fort Worth, as none of these teams figured him worth a trial. Then Conley signed him. Delay in signing with the Steers this season was due to lack of agreement on terms, Morris said.

Chicago Becomes Chief Air Port

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—Chicago will become one of the chief centers of air mail and express service in the United States next Saturday with a celebration opening the new municipl airport and christening the "Chicago," one of the new Chicago-Dallas mail planes.

The Chicago airport is being opened two months ahead of schedule to couple the event with the opening of the one thousand mile Chicago-Dallas air mail route.

EWING SCRAPS HULL THURSDAY IN 'GRUDGE' GO

Cossey Billed With Rivers, Sherrod to Box Story

Clyde Hull, the St. Poul welterweight, has agreed to a return match this week with Wildcat Ewing of Houston on a winner-take-all basis, announced Legion Matchmaker Wofford Saturday. The battle is to be staged in the Eleventh and Ohio arena Thursday night.

The number of rounds the bout will be scheduled for has not been decided yet. It's understood Ewing wants to step over the 12-round route.

Quite a bit of rivalry exists between these two fighters, outcome of a disputed decision registered the past week in their ten-rounder at the legion arena. Hull was awarded the verdict. Ewing and his followers set up a lusty howl, declaring the cards were stacked, or words to that effect.

Hull, his friends say, is quite irked over the fact newspaper accounts of the fight the next day declared the scrap should have been called a draw. He is quoted as saying he wants another crack at Ewing in which to clear up all doubt as to his superiority over the Houston swinger.

Battling Cossey, stiff punching Wichita Falls bantamweight, has been carded with Johnny Rivers of Fort Worth in a six or eight round semi-final, said Wofford. The little fellows have never met. Both have appeared in Wichita Falls rings several times.

Johnny Sherrod and George Story have been lined up for a six-rounder.

Board of Control Buys Oil and Gas For Texas Motors

AUSTIN, May 1.—(AP)—Bids were opened today and tabulated at the state board of control for $100,000 worth of oil, gas and grease for the equipment division of the state highway department. There were nine bidders, offering first and second grade lubricating oils. Awards will be made by May 10, Roy I. Tennant, member of the board of control sad, following receipt of recommendations from Ed Estes, equipment engineer.

This is the second time bids have been received for these contracts. Because of a three-cornered fight between bidding oil companies all previous bids were rejected and the Pierce Petroleum company was which had the 1925 contract was instructed to continue for four additional months. The 1925 contracts were worth about $350,000.

Has Kid Gleason Solved Secret of Groves' Fault?

Has Lefty Groves, $100,600 pitcher of the Athletics, been cured of the wildness that made him a failure his first year up?

Has "Kid" Gleason already "paid for his salt" by solving the mystery of the big lefthander's wildness and eliminating it?

Groves' work the other day against the Red Sox indicated as much. He allowed but three hits and fanned eight.

Lefty was the pitching ace of the Baltimore Orioles when Connie Mack paid a record price for him. Groves was wild with the International league club. In 1924, his last year with the team he issued 108 passes in 236 innings. But he also struck out 231 men in the same number of innings. He won 26 games, lost six and hurled five shutouts.

Either Wild or Baffling.

Dan Howley, manager of the Toronto team, perennial foes of the Baltimore team for the International League honors, summed Groves up when he said:

"When he's wild he's wild, but when he isn't you can't hit him. We would have won the pennant in 1924 if it hadn't been for Groves. That's how good he was against us, wildness or no wildness."

When Connie Mack acquired the elongated flinger a year ago he had hopes of Groves delivering even if that wildness clung to him when he worked with a big league catcher and a big league infield and outfield behind him.

Groves, however was as wild as a hare. Same old story. Either he fanned 'em or walked 'em.

He won 10 but lost 12 games. He issued 131 bases in 198 innings. He fanned 116.

Last winter Mack signed Gleason to coach his team and put some "fight" in it.

Gleason had heard of Groves, of course. When the big pitcher showed up at Ft. Myers, Fla., last spring Gleason began to watch him. It wasn't long before Gleason determined what was the cause of Grove's inability to keep his control.

Gleason decided that Groves was pitching with his shoulders "pulled up." That is, as Groves wound up and delivered the ball his shoulders were hunched much as you would pull your shoulders up and draw your head down when anticipating a slap on the back by some long lost Rotarian brother.

As he released the ball from his hand Groves let his shoulders drop. Gleason was immediately of the opinion that this dropping of the shoulders coincident with the releasing of the ball, had a tendency to lessen Grove's control.

He explained his beliefs to Groves and set to work with the hurler to correct the fault.

"Keep your shoulders down" he drummed into Groves' ears as the southpaw unlimbered on the sidelines or lobbed them over for batters in practice.

Cautioned Between Innings.

When the exhibition season started Gleason worked Groves frequently to give him actual work before the season. "Keep those shoulders down," he cautioned him before every inning. While Groves was on the mound Gleason would yell from the bench, "Where have you got 'em now?"

Apparently Gleason's discovery has "made" Groves. Of course it will take more than one impressive showing—more than a few innings in the box—to prove it but Lefty's work against the Red Sox was so much different from his work last season that there is cause now to speculate as to the success of Gleason's labors.

If the fault has been found and remedied Mr. Groves will have something to say in the disposition of the American League pennant.

SAME OLD GAG

Cowtown comment editorially Saturday morning anent that brief Fred Brainard-Red Bird melee enacted in the third stanza of the Friday game between Cats and Spudders in the stockyards sector, as was expected, proved a lame and rather shameful attempt at vindication of the Panther flinger's actions.

* * *

WHAT HAPPENED

The Spudder manager, hit in the shoulder by pitched ball, hit intentionally, so Wichita Falls players aver, strode to the mound and expressed in no uncertain terms his opinion of Bird who was on the heaving end of the sphere. With Brainard standing a scant four or five feet in front of him Bird reared back and slammed him with the ball again. Brainard didn't dodge quick enough, the fling catching him on the right elbow, temporarily paralyzing the arm. With his starboard whip hanging at his side like a wet dish rag, the Spud skipper charged Bird and they mixed it up several seconds in the center of the diamond. A crowd surged onto the field and separated the battlers before any serious casualty was registered other than the damage to Fred's wing.

* * *

It's too bad Bird didn't have a baseball bat or a shotgun out there on the hill with which to fight the unarmed Spudder boss. His aversion to scrapping bare-handed, man to man must have been quite apparent.

* * *

HAW! HAW!

Ned Record carried the following "unbiased" and refreshing aftermath opinion of the fracas in the Star-Telegram:

"Red Bird and Fred Brainard both forgot themselves during the heat of battle. Chances are Fred will remember not to approach Bird in anything but a pleasant manner after Bird has just hit him with a pitched ball. In fact, it seems best not to approach him at all. If any remarks are necessary, deliver them at the plate or en route to first base."

Again a Cowtown sports "critic" is off his base. Ned apparently isn't very well acquainted with Mr. Brainard.

About that it-seems-best-not-to-approach-Bird-at-all crack, this curious reporter seeks some info. Why for is Red ballyhooed as such a tough customer? We've seen many ball players, but Bird doesn't appear any rougher than the majority. However, we may be mistaken. They didn't think much of Jack Dempsey on his early outs and Jack fooled 'em. Incidently, Dempsey scraps with his fists!

* * *

"But then," continues Record, "a player hit by a pitched ball can be excused for any outburst. It's not the most pleasant sensation in the world to have a ball smack one unexpectedly on the shoulder.

"Bird likewise must not be blamed. When a batter hit in this manner takes occasion to walk towards the pitcher's box, the odds are 100 to 1 that he is not walking there with any good intentions towards the occupant of the box. Self defense is the first law of nature as well as the best plea in a murder trial in Texas."

* * *

That final sentence "justifies" Red Bird. He should have had a couple of cannons behind the hill with which to defend himself instead of a baseball.

* * *

THAT MUCH SATISFACTION

No wisecracker can opine we haven't a fighting ball club, win, lose or draw!

WHITE WINS AGAIN

Speaking of fisticuffs, the likeable little Tommy White tagged it on Batling Gonzales the other night down in El Paso. Tom kayoed the Mexican in the eleventh round. Sign him up as pinch hitter for the Spudders.

* * *

"Is White afraid to meet Clyde Hull aagin?" excited mitt fan asked me yesterday. It took me several seconds to recover from the shock of such a surprise before we could answer, "Why, of course not!"

"Well, look at this," and the ring worm fished out a several days' old edition of the Wichita Falls afternoon sports page on which he had underlined comment that Tommy had forfeited his southwestern welterweight championship cup—"upon refusal of White to accept terms for another fight with Hull." The sentence is correct, but misleading. Tommy did refuse to accept certain terms offered him for a return go with Clyde, but it was not because White has any fears of the St. Paul youngster. White can beat Hull any day in the week and he knows it, but he wants a larger cash recompense for his services than promoters will agree to give him.

General Tie-Up Felt in England

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—Complete paralysis of industry in Great Britain is a prospect of the coming week unless before Tuesday some agreement is reached for setting the coal strike which began today. One million miners are affected by the strike; they will be backed up, if the strike continues by some five million workers belonging to 203 trade unions.

The representatives of these unions decided today to put all their strength to the task of helping the miners, for the issue is characterized by labor as one no longer between the owners and the miners, but as affecting all labor.

Divorce Is Asked By Indian's Wife

LOS ANGELES, May 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Nola C. Smoot, wealthy member of the Osage Indian tribe filed suit today asking annulment of her marriage to Roy Smoot, vaudevilel entertainer, charging that his sole purpose in marrying her was to obtain a part of her reputed fortune. She declared in her siut that the marriage took place in San Francisco April 3, 1925, but that they had never lived together as husband and wife.

Mrs. Smoot stated in her suit that she had contributed $10,000 to the upkeep ofa home in Hollywood maintained by her husband. She asked that a deed to a $25,000 home at Eagle Rock be set aside, claiming that she inserted the name of her husband in the deed on the representation that it was necessary legally.

WILLS SHOULD PROVE CLAIMS TO TITLE BOUT

McGann Avers Negro Has Shown Little to Rate Big Fight

NEW YORK, May 1.—What about Harry Wills? Like some dark, brooding shadow he is more a man of mystery today than ever before. His future no one can read. Evidently not even he nor his manager Paddy Mullins can read it.

Wills and Mullins seem to be depending upon the workings of fate to better their fortunes. And when men do that they are disappointed more often than not.

Some boxing enthusiasts think both men are to blame for the present status of the brown boxer, but that Wills is more to blame than his manager, if only because he has not asserted himself. If, they say, Wills had forced the issue by meeting and whipping every heavyweight the public considered worthwhile, he now would have the backing of a powerful public demand that Dempsey meet him.

Instead, Harry has relied wholly upon his manager while listening to the praise of a bunch of fawning fans whose sole aim in life is to bask in the limelight that falls upon a celebrity. It is flatterng to one's sense of vanity to be told how good one is; but it does not get anyone anywhere in particular.

Meets Set-Ups.

Wills has condescended to toe the mark four times in the past two years. Against Bartley Madden he showed an effort not in keeping with his high fistic standard. He tried every blow in his repertoire of wallops to bring down the game white men while Madden throughout called him uncomplimentary names. The result that Wills lost his head and disappointed his frends. This nor did the fight with Luis Firpo cover Wills with glory. Firpo was beset with deportation proceedings up to the moment he entered the thing and was in no mood to train for, let alone fight, a man who was conceded to be about as good as Dempsey. But Firpo went through it and finished in good shape. As far Weinert, Wills had nothing at all to fear in the resurrected Jersey man. But this did not keep him from sweating profusely, or from acting in a way to draw an occasional boo from the crowd.

Dodged Tunney.

Giving up a chance to make $150,000 by fighting Tunney and adding to his prestige by beating the ex-Marine was a sorry mistake on the part of Wills, Mullins and company.

In going over to Newark and tumbling over the hulk that was once Floyd Johnson, the brown panther sickened every lover of fair play. Thousands of fans who believed in Wills and clamored for his right to try for the heavyweight title were turned against him as a result of that fight.

TO REBUILD HOTEL

AUSTIN, May 1.—A new million dollar hotel at Mineral Wells will be built by the syndicate of capitalists who have just acquired "Crazy Block," Carr P. Collins, Dallas insurance man said while here Thursday to secure a charter for the Crazy Water hotel company. The corporation has $400,000 capital stock. It will operate the Waters hotel as well as the new Crazy Water hotel, he said. Others in the organization are F. R. Bowles, H. B. Houston, J. A. Pondrom and J. L. Lancaster, Dallas; E. G. STEERS GET TO MORGAN AND ROBERTS IN ONE FRAME FOR EIGHT RUNS, FINAL, 11 TO 4

Spudders Clout Love for 11 Safeties But Can't Get Well, Brainard Smashes Homer and Triple

DALLAS, May 1—The Spudders tobogganed into their third straight loss here this afternoon, skidding under an 11 to 4 defeat registered by Dallas behind the portside slants of Slim Love.

Wichita Falls pitchers were murdered in the fourth inning by Steer batsmen for seven hits and eight runs. Wichita Falls held a 2-0 lead at the start of the round. Distel and Fitzgerald drew bases on balls in the first inning. The next two batters popped out, then Bodie drove Distel across the plate with a single to center. Turgeon struck out. The second Wichita Falls score came in the third on triple by Brainard who scored on sacrifice fly to center hit by Washburn.

That Terrible Fourth.

Morgan was pitching for Wichita Falls when the fourth inning cyclone landed. Riley led off with a double to left. O'Brien drew a life at first when Brainard fielded his grounder and threw low to the base. O'Brien followed with a steal of second. Both runners scored on single to center by Morse. Morse went to second on the throw-in and made third when Billings singled at short. Love was walked, filling the sacks. Bauman flied out to center, Morse scoring after the catch. Gross bunted and beat the play to first again loading the bases. Williams singled to right, scoring Billings. Miller followed with a two-bagger to left field to score Love and Gross, sending Williams to third. Morgan was derricked and Roberts started pitching. Roberts walked Riley on four straight balls and O'Brien followed with a single to left, scoring Williams. Miller went to third. He scored on sacrifice fly to left field hit by Morse. Billings flied out to left, retiring the side.

Spudders Two in Fifth.

Wichita Falls scored two runs in the fifth inning when Fitzgerald on base after being hit by a pitched ball, Brainard knocked a home run into the left field bleachers.

A single by Miller, double by Riley walks to O'Brien and Morse and a sacrifice fly to left by Billings scored two runs for Dallas in the sixth.

Miller drew at at third base in the Dallas half of the eighth when Distel threw his grounder away. He scored on an outfield out.

The two teams line up again Sunday afternoon.

Dallas has an edge on Wichita Falls in inter-city play so far, having defeated the Spudders three times and losing one.

Frogs Whale Rice Hurler at 7-1 Clip

FORT WORTH, Texas, May 1.—(AP) — "Dutch" Meyer's Horned Frogs whaled "Grandpa" Wood to all corners of Clark field here today to win, 7 to 1 against Rice. This was Texas Christian university's seventh victory in nine starts. "Hobo" Carson pitched steady ball for the Christians, though touched for 10 hits. Lightning support aided him in pulling through, two double plays and errorless ball doing the work Rice made four errors afield. Only one walk was issued during the game, that by Carson. Wolf and Washmon led the attack for the Frogs with three hits apiece.

PHALAROS WINS VICTORIA

HURST PARK, Eng., May 1.—(AP)—Phalaros, owned by Mrs. Arthur James, won the Victoria cup race of 2,000 pounds sterling here today. Lord Glanely's Capture Him was second and Sir George Bullough's Ethnarch was third. Seventeen ran. Phalaros won by four lengths and there was a length and a half between Capture Him and Ethnarch.

"Athletic Heart" Usually Due To Over-Training In High School

BY ROBERT EDGREN.

Columbia is collecting health figures based on examination of incoming students, especially investigating the subject of "athletic hearts." There is a suspicion that over-indulgence in sports is more harmful than insufficient exercise. Without a doubt a great deal of harm is done by athletic strain in the public schools and high schools. Coachers are usually quite willing to sacrifice boys for the purpose of winning points and "making a showing" that will improve their own reputations.

Very few prep school star athletes are good for anything in college sports, simply because they are burned out by too much training and competition in the schools, while they are growing rapidly and need all their strength and vitality for growth and development. In the course of a long athletic experience I have known hundreds of athletes who started too soon and were "burned out" long before they were twenty-five, when they should have been absolutely at the top of their athletic form. I have known very few exceptions.

One is Hussey, the national sprinting champion, and in school Hussey was fortunate enough to have a coach who cared more for the boy's future than for padding his own reputation by sending him out to run at every opportunity. While Hussey was in prep school he was continually besieged with invitations to run in club and open A. A. U. meets, but he never ran in an open meet until he went to college. His coach wouldn't let him. He ran only a few races a year, and only where his school had teams entered in interscholastic meets. That's why Hussey wasn't "burned out."

Another is Bud Houser, the Olympic champion with shot and discus. Houser was national champion with the shot while still a student in Oxnard high school. He defeated big Pat McDonald for the title. But he was powerfully built and fully developed boy at that time, and weight throwing doesn't burn out an athlete. The effort is only momentary and there is no sustained heart strain like that in the sprints and longer runs. It is more like exercise taken purely for development. Matt McGrath, still American champion hammer thrower is nearly fifty, and as good as ever, and few weight throwers reach their best performances until after thirty.

Rockne Wants Farmer Lads.

Houser's closest rival as a shot and discus champion during the past three years has been Glenn Hartranft, who won several intercollegiate championships, broke the world's discus record and came within a fraction of an inch of Ralph Rose's famous 51 feet with the shot. Physically, Hartranft should be able to beat Houser every time they meet, yet Houser usually wins, and while Houser has improved steadily Hartranft has slipped back. The reason, without any doubt, is that Hartranft started as a hurdler in prep school, ran many races and burned up some of the energy that should have carried him through many years of top form competition in weight throwing.

Coach Rockne of Notre Dame was the first of college coaches to do away with scrimmage during the football season. Rockne says that he'd rather have a strong farmer boy out for football than the best prep school star. He makes his teams of material that hasn't been "burned out" in too early competition. The Notre Dame drills are entirely "skull work" with no danger of injury, and no over strain. Other coaches have been following Rockne's lead until now only a few of the old timers go in for a lot of rough practice play in the autumn. The old idea was to take a team out and hammer it into shape week after week. Hammering may toughen some men, but it softens many more. The change in training in football is marked. Most of the physical preparation is gone through in the spring, and there is little scrimmaging before and during the football season.

Red Grange says that an afternoon scrimmage practice at Illinois was more wearing than any game of professional football.

The idea of conserving vitality in training, instead of using it up, has extended to all sports.

Boxers Have Changed Ideas.

Professional boxers used to run long distances every day, diet rigorously, cut out all liquids, do a tremendous lot of rough boxing while training, go through hard fights and drink and overeat and grow fat in the intervals between fights. The successful modern boxer plays golf instead of running his legs off on the road, eats moderately at all times, drinks no liquor and avoids all dissipation, is always in good condition, and doesn't need to work furiously to take off layers of fat and straighten out an abused stomach before a fight. Two weeks of training takes the place of two months of gruelling work in a training camp, for no man in good health and fair condition needs much time to get into fighting trim. The result is that the modern boxer has more vitality in the ring, can come back better after a knockdown and finish stronger than any fighter, who burned himself up with fierce periods of overwork.

Plain, moderate living makes a champion, if the fighter has the natural qualities of a champion. In John L. Sullivan's time fighters had the old English idea that it was necessary to eat hunks of rare beef to develop a fighting spirit, and to drink a lot of ale to fill out tissue burned up on the road. The modern idea, practiced by fighters like Tunney, Dempsey, Leonard, Walker, LaBarba and other first class ringmen, is to keep in condition all the time.

Athletes generally are recognizing the fact that vitality should be saved for the actual competition, not thrown away in too much preparation.

Bobby Jones, amateur champion golfer, used to spend at least an hour before an important match, trying out his irons and putting. He has found that all this is unnecessary. Now he merely hits two or three preliminary balls. Other golfers do the same.

Too Much Warming Up.

At athletic meets you see amateur athletes warming up. This is often overdone. There is a bottled-up nerve force in a man prepared for competition, and it's foolish to throw it away in preliminary practice. Bud Houser has twice broken the world's record with the discus. Each time he did it with his first throw. If he had taken a dozen "warming up" throws he would have thrown away that bottled energy that gave him a record distance.

Jack Dempsey's fighting system is to use that first explosive burst of bottled up energy in an efforе for a quick knockout. After taking a furious "socking" from Dempsey in the first round his opponents usually aren't good for much, even if they weather the three minutes. Old time fighters used to think it was a smart trick to shadow box half a dozen rounds in their dressing rooms just before going to the ring. They had the wrong dope. They were using up that bottled energy before the fight started.

Columbia investigators will find that there is danger in our system of school boy athletics and that many boys have been burned out by being sent through competitions too young. They'll find that the best candidates for college teams are the farmer boys, who have worked and developed health and strength without the strain of early athletics. And they'll find that in athletics the modern idea of avoiding too much "scrimmaging" in any sport burns out the best men—in college and afterward. A fellow who is "burned out" may have a fine record to look back on, but not much to look forward to.

Texas League Charmed Circle Hitters

With a batting average of .458, Edington of Fort Worth leads Texas league hitters participating in 10 or more games. Riley of Dallas, .411, has the best mark of the men in every game. Wilson of Waco leads in number of hits with 24. McNamara of the same club is the leading run-getter with 17. Galloway of Beaumont is setting the home run pace with 5 and Washburn of Wichita Falls leads in stolen bases, 5.

Beaumont has the best club batting average .309, and leads in hits, 141, and in home runs, 15. Dallas tops in runs, Wichita Falls in stolen bases.

Two pitchers, Shuman of Dallas and Davenport, Houston, have won three games without meeting defeat. Kirke, Shreveport, has hit safely in every game.

.300 hitters and pitchers winning half or better of their games through Wednesday follow: (players in three or more games.)

TWILIGHT THIS WEEK

Sunday, Texhoma vs. Panhandle.
Tuesday, W. F. Electrics vs. Security N. Bank.
Wednesday, Water department vs. Americans.
Friday, W. F. Electrics vs. Panhandle.

STANDINGS

Clubs	G	W	L	Pct.
W. F. Electric	2	2	0	1,000
Panhandle	2	2	0	1,000
Americans	3	2	1	.667
Texhoma	3	1	2	.333
Security N. Bank	2	0	2	.000
Water Department	2	0	2	.000

THAT GAME TODAY

This afternoon's game in the Twilight league will be watched with interest by all who have been following league play very closely. The Texhoma Refinery and the Panhandle Longhorns will hook up in their first meeting of the year. Skipper Boone of the Texhoma club is undecided as to the pitcher he will use, but the Panhandle is positive of their selection. The Longhorns will send Randolph to the hill. Boone will decide before the game between Jimmie Parker and Johnnie Beasley.

* * *

Both clubs will use the same lineup they have been playing this spring. The Panhandle will show the same batting order as before, but the Texhoma club will shift theirs around a little. Freddie Boone will be placed in left field for Texhoma.

This has been the Oilers weak spot and they hope to fill it with Freddie. Gerard Boone and Paul Enloe have been handling this post.

Skipper Boone will shove the best infield possible at the Longhorns in an effort to stop their onslaught. Slim Kellogg at first base; Doc Allen at second, Shadie Hale at short and Andy Taylor at third will form the infield that will represent Texhoma.

Freddie Boone, Rabbit Gordon, and Hoop Cannon will be in the outfield.

* * *

The Panhandle will use the infield they had on the field in the Water Department game last week. They will also use the same outfield. This is one team that will be hard to beat if their pitching and hitting keeps up at the present pace. McDuffy, Randolph, Connor, Winters, and Hatton make a mighty sweet pitching staff, and possibly with no better in the league.

* * *

Look over the scores and box scores of the three games the American Refinery has played there are two interesting features brought out. Vernon Farquhar has played in right field all three games and has not missed an inning. He has not had a single chance in the outfield.

◆ ◆ ◆

The other point of interest that has been brought out is in the base running of Speck Roberts. This young man has pilfered three bases, one in each game. They all have been clean thefts and by good margins.

Roberts is fast and plays good baseball. He gets his leads and is started for the next base without warning. He promises to be one of the leading base stealers in the league this year.

* * *

The Water Department team will hook up with the Glass Factory club this afternoon on the Ball Brothers' diamond. The team that they will face is a combination team of the Traction company and the factory workers.

* * *

The Martin-Douglas club is working hard to get a winning combination together for the games yet before them. They have men lined up for their club that should help them over the heap.

Manager Martin will not announce any names yet, but he hinted on two pitchers, two infielders, and an outfielder at least, maybe more.

Muggsy All Het Over His Mound Staff These Days

John McGraw has a right to be well satisfied with the work of his pitchers to date.

Jimmy Ring, Virgil Barnes, old Jim Scott, young Greenfeld and Lloyd Davies, ancient rookie, have all contributed a share toward the Giants' success to date. Even Hugh McQuillan has shown plenty of stuff although he lost his first tilt to the Boston Braves.

So McGraw is quite happy. But he will find an added measure of joy when Fitzsimmons, another husky youngster, and Tim McNamara, obtained from the Boston Braves last winter, show they can add their bit to the defensive strength of his hope fuls.

Jawn figures that he can make a reliable pitcher—at least a good relief hurler—out of the former Bostonian. This despite the fact that Davey Bancroft labored several seasons to make a successful hurler out of him with no results. Last season Tim was a total loss to the team, failing to break into the victory column.

McNamara, however is one of those who seemed to be anxious to join a club that had better chances of landing some place besides the collar. He seemed to have the stuff. Each spring he showed promise of becoming one of the regulars. This was true in the spring of 1924, when he had to labor hard to win eight games for his team.

Steve Latzo, who is booked to meet Mickey Walker, welterweight king, May 20, at Scranton, Pa., has be licked five times while compiling the record which won him a chance at the champ. But the interesting part about his career is that he didn't stay licked.

General Haldeman Wins at Lexington

LEXINGTON, Ky., May 1.—Gen. Haldeman, from the Kenton farm stables, won the first running of the centennial futurity here this afternoon. His time for the four and one-half furlongs was .53 4-5 of a second of the track record.

Accomplish was second, a length behind and Thirteen Sixty third, two lengths in the rear. Sixteen ran. The race was worth $11,411 to the winner. General Haldeman paid $6, $4 and $3 on each $2 mutual ticket to win, place and show. Accomplish paid $5 and $3.60 and Thirteen Sixty $2.80.

Rain Stops Duel Between Wachtel And Adkins In Fifth

SHREVEPORT, La., May 1.—(AP)—Rain spoiled a pitching duel between Paul Wachtel of the Cats and Grady Adkins of the Sports and gave the locals a 1 to 0 victory over the Ats men in four and a half innings today. Adkins had allowed one hit and Wachtel two. In the first inning a base on balls, and an error and a fielders' choice gave Shreveport a run. One Sport was on first in the fifth with none out when the rain halted play.

"HAIR-GROOM"
Keeps Hair Combed, Glossy
Well-Groomed All Day

"Hair-Groom" is a dignified combing cream which costs only a few cents a jar at any drugstore. Millions use it because it gloss and well-gives that natural groomed effect to the hair—that final touch to good dress both in business and on social occasions. Even stubborn, unruly or shampooed hair stays combed all day in any style you like. "Hair-Groom" is greaseless; also helps grow thick, heavy, lustrous hair.

Mrs. J. McCallum Endorses Moody, Attacks Davidson

AUSTIN, May 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Jane Y. McCallum of Austin, state chairman of the ratification committee when Texas ratified the nineteenth amendment, today endorsed the candidacy of Lynch Davidson. Her statement came in reply to one of April 22, supporting Davidson by Miss Decca Lamar West of Waco.

Referring to Mr. Davidson's statement respecting results obtained from Moody's prosecuting of the American Road company, Mrs. McCallum asked: "Is it not highly probable that Mr. Davdson would have had a clear feld with no youthful, red-haired opponent, had his attitude toward the present ruling have been less ambiguous?"

Debt Commission Completes Work

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—The debt commission virtually cleaned up its work of funding America's ten billion dollars world war loans wth the conclusion today of negotiations for a settlement of Jugo-Slavia's debt of $51,000,000.

Jugo-Slavia agreed to pay a total of $95,177,155 principal and interest over a period of 62 years. Payments will be $200,000 annually for the first five years increasng to $375,000 annually for the last 50 years.

Interest charges for the first 12 years will be foregone, but thereafter the rate wll increase to a maxmum of 3 1-3 per cent.

The settlement was signed for Jugo-Slavia by Dr. George Dicuritch.

The world's record is about 156 feet, and the southwestern conference mark is 134. Baylor won the meet from the Mustangs 64 1-3 to 52 1-3.

CHILD HEALTH WEEK OBSERVED

University Club Hears Talks on Troubles of Kiddies

Perhaps the most important essential in a child's early education is health, which was the subject for the program presented at the weekly meeting of the University club Saturday noon at the Kemp hotel marking the opening of Child Health week to be observed from May 1 to 8.

Musical numbers, a health play and a talk by Miss Ruth Johnson of Alamo school were given under the direction of Miss Beatrice Hall, city nutritionist. Dr. O. B. Kiel made the principal address of the meeting. He spoke of the efforts to establish better facilities in the schools, that the child's health may be improved. From statistics compiled it is found that six out of every thousand cases of typhoid result in death; four out of a thousand die from the measles; less than one-half die from tuberculosis; and four out of a thousand scarlet fever cases are fatal, he said. Heart disease is increasing at a startling rate 300,000 more dying from this than from tuberculosis.

Neglect Children

Dr. Kell pointed out that from the time a child is two years old until he enters school he receives less attention as to his health than any other period in his life, due, perhaps to the amount of care given younger children in the family. "This is an added reason why healthful education should be stressed in the grade schools. The teaching of health is the keynote of public health and the teachers are beginning to realize the care required to fulfill this. All teachers should be familiar with symptoms to prevent attendance at school and spreading of the diseases," Dr. Kell said.

Sanitaiton, sleep and diet are necessary for a healthful child to observe. The relation of play and work was spoken of and the importance of health examination in schools, which should be stressed more than anything was spoken of.

A five piece orchestra composed of third grade children from Austin school proved their musical talent in two selections with Miss Mattylyn Wilson accompanying them. Children of the fifth grade presented a health play in which various healthful foods were impersonated.

Miss Johnson Talks

Miss Ruth Johnson from the fourth grade at Alamo spoke on the work that is being done for the American school children in the way of health education. Vocal solos by Miss Mary Toncred, "Song of Songs" and Miss Minnie Baker, "Friends O' Mine," and whistling selections by J. K. Westbrook of Dallas completed the program.

Guests at the luncheon were Rev. Dan Greider and Mr. E. A. Skalinder of Deadwood, S. D. Mr. Greider is taking Dr. Grafton's place at the First Presbyterian church during the latter's absence from the city. Rabbi Samuel Philips was presented as a new member of the club.

Mexicans Charged With The Violation Of Neutrality Laws

SAN ANTONIO, May 1.—(AP)—Trial of eight Mexicans on charges of conspiracy to violate the neutrality laws in connection with an alleged plot against the Calles government, scheduled to open May 10 in federal court, has been postponed until May 17 by agreement between government and defense attorneys.

The Mexicans indicted recently by a federal grand jury here, include Jorge Prieto Laurens, Resparza Martines, Lorenzo Nieto, General Francisco Coss, Salvado Uries, Leovilgido Garcia, Olfonso De La Huerta and Antonio Ferrer. The defendants are at liberty under $2,500 bond each.

Portia Shows Way To Evade Alimony

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—A pioneering portia has shown Chicago and Illinois lawyers a new wrinkle in divorce law.

She is Miss Matilda Fenberg and by filing for her client, Ferdinand F. Nellzen, a petitio penitentiae, "apologizing to the wife who won a separate maintenance from him in 1923, she is believed by attorneys here to have devised a method of evading alimony payment which if successful will be a landmark in the state's divorce law.

The petition acknowledges Nellzen's regret for the treatment for the wife who in 1923 was granted $60 a week alimony and begs her to come back and live with him, declaring that he is broken in health and mind because of her absence.

"I invented it," laughed Miss Fenberg, "I found an instance in the law which a woman had entered a plea of pententiae to win back her husband from whom she was separated and I thought it ought to work the other way, too."

The petition sets forth that if, after hearing her husband's plea, Mrs. Nellsen refuses to return to him, she ought not be permitted to continue to get alimony.

Colonel Mitchell Now a 'Cave Man'

GRANT PASS, Ore., May 1.—(AP) William Mitchell, formerly of the United States army air service, ate raw meat and "drank the blood of a dinosaur" here today as part of the rites of being initiated as a cave man.

Cave men in full regalia—the costume consisting of raimant of hairy skins and horns—took Colonel Mitchell off a train at Hornbrook, Cal., today and rushed him by automobile to this city. Surrounded by 40 members of the cavemen, Colonel Mitchell pledged himself as a member of the order.

After a luncheon in his honor by the cavemen and the American Legion Colonel Mitchell was taken by automobile to Roseburg, where he was again placed aboard the train.

The cavemen comprise a community organization taking its name from caves near here.

Rivercrest Park Open To Public Sunday On City's Western Edge

Rivercrest Park addition, Wichita Falls newest sub-division, makes its bow to the city today.

On the highest point of the country, laying just to the right of the Seymour road, Rivercrest Park is unquestionably the possessor of the most natural beauty of any addition in Wichita Falls. Bert King, owner of the new sub-division, announced yesterday that the firm of Crane-Willis company would handle the marketing of the home sites, as general sales agents.

Seventy-eight Acres

The addition proper consists of 78 acres divided into some 85 beautiful lots or tracts. These lots are all spacious, having from 70 to 250 foot frontage and every lot in the entire addition is a most desirable homesite. The ground has been laid off by Hare and Hare, landscape architects of Kansas City, and attractive winding drives have been opened up to all parts of the addition.

"Those seeking a homesite of unusual beauty, are cordially invited to call out at the addition today and see for themselves what a wonder spot this is. Few people have noticed the rugged, grass-covered hills to the right on the Seymour road—but now with the drives opened, an opportunity will be given the public to see the city from the highest points within 10 miles, and incidentally to inspect what is believed to be the finest real estate values ever offered in Wichita Falls.

"Those who have already seen this sub-division, have invariably expressed surprise and delight over the beautiful view from this height—with the river winding in the background and a multitude of flower covered hills and valleys in between, while on the other side, the lake and all the land and improvements lying in between.

Perfectly Drained

"Rivercrest Park, being high and on gently rolling land, is perfectly drained. Contracts have been signed for all city conveniences and those who buy are assured of every restriction protection. Over half a mile of the addition lies along the Seymour road, stretching back to the very peaks of the hills in the background. We know that if there is even a breath of air stirring, that this high point will get it all and those who want the coolest spot, will seek a homesite [redacted].

The addition is being beautified and today marks its opening. The owner is not putting a high price on the property, for this pre-development sale, but is offering lots from $1,000 to $3,000 and feels confident that these will not last long.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to drive out today and see Rivercrest Park. A big sign designates the addition and motorists will have little trouble in locating the new addition. Representatives on the ground will gladly give any information desired.

Archer County Grand Jury Will Make Thorough Investigation Of Charges Against Jack B. Jackson

District Attorney Allred Promises Full Inquiry Into Robbery Alleged to Have Been Led By Wichitan

Actual investigation by a grand jury of the high-jacking at Holliday in April following which J. B. Jackson, convicted Iowa Park murderer, Mumford, deputy sheriff in Wichita county, and a man named E. E. Savage were arrested and jailed on charges of highway robbery is promised by District Attorney Ben P. Allred in connection with the meeting of the Archer county grand jury which convenes at Archer City Monday. The affair will be investigated in detail, he stated Saturday before leaving for Archer county.

Jackson has been held at the Young county jail at Graham following the affair, upon permission from the governor to delay his departure to Huntsville where he has been sentenced to serve 25 years for a year old murder offense. Both Mumford, former deputy sheriff, and Savage, however, have been released under bond pending the meeting of the Archer county grand jury.

The Archer grand jury will also investigate the shooting near K-M-A three weeks by Tom Shook, Electra peace officer. Charges of assault with intent t omurder have been filed against Shook, who is at liberty on bond.

RECOVER $1,658

SAN ANTONIO, May 1.—(AP)—Forcing the door of a small delicatessen store near the Fort Sam Houston infantry post late Saturday night, police found Chris Engler in a dying condition and recovered $1,658 in currency found in numerous small packages. A further search of the premises will be made Sunday.

A brother, Otto Engler lives in El Paso. No other relatives have been located. Engler is said to be about 80 years old, and small chance is held for his recovery.

MISS CADILLAC FINISHES TOUR

Crowds Friday See Her Buy Merchandise At Booterie

Miss Cadillac, the dainty miss in the big white Cadillac who has been visiting in Wichita Falls for the past few days wound up her shopping expeditions yesterday morning with a trip to Sanderford's Booterie.

Half an hour before her scheduled arrival, crowds began to throng the sodewalks in front of the Booterie and when the snow white car made its appearance there was an eager craning of necks. Right up on the sidewalk she drove and alighted in the very doorway of the Booterie.

She was met at the door by Mr. Sanderford, who escorted her inside and fitted her in a pair of the new "Tip-Toe-Tie" shoes—a new Booteries model with black satin vamp and heel, white moire quarter and white silk tie with gold kid tassell tips. Miss Cadillac was delighted with her purchase and insisted upon having her picture made when she left the store.

Yesterday afternoon she "made" the rodeo and the pretty girl in the big white car was seen everywhere on the grounds.

Congressman Free In Indian Fraud

MUSKOGEE, Okla., May 1.—(AP) T. A. (Bert) Chandler of Tulsa, former congressman from the first Oklahoma district indicted by the grand jury here investigating Indian affairs appeared before United States commissioner at Tulsa today and furnished bond of $5,000. Nine other men indicted at the same time including Shade E. Wallen, superintendent of the five civilized tribes gave similar bonds here and at Vinita.

Socialists Table World Court Plan

PITSBURGH, May 1.—(AP)—Resolutions dealing with the world court and the league of nations were tabled until the next convention by the socialist party of America at its national meeting here today. The resolutions were laid aside to permit members to study further the issues.

The resolution declared "that whether the United tates joins the world court and the league of nations at this time are of no immediate concern to the working class of the United States."

During the debate that preceded the action on the league of nations issue, Morris Hillquit, socialist attorney of New York, defended the league against attacks that it would strengthen the power of "capitalists" and "imperialists," while congressman Victor L. Berger of Wisconsin asserted there was "more militarism and more men under arms today than ever before."

Miss Quinn Goes To Houston Meet

Miss Mary Quinn leaves today for Houston where she will represent the Eleventh district of Graduate Nurses in the state convention to be held there. Prior to the opening of the convention she will visit in Dallas.

From Houston, Miss Quinn will go to Atlantic City, N. J., where she will represent the association in the national convention.

For the past six years, Miss Quinn has been with the local chapter of Red Cross and has done work in inspection of children in the public schools. She recently has resigned her position and will probably not return to this city.

BABY WEEK

His Royal Highness, the Baby! Is there anything too good, is any effort too great for the King of our Hearts? That cuddlesome bundle of happiness has made willing slaves of us all!

So it is with a great deal of pride that Baby's parents and other relatives will avail themselves of the suggestion herewith. The object of Baby Week is to educate us in the newest scientific methods of caring for children and thereby "Help Insure America's Future."

Pure Ice for babies health

Keep the Babies' Milk Fresh

Baby's milk has to be kept on ice to keep it fresh, and the importance of having the ice pure cannot be overestimated. The slightest imperfection in the ice—a germ, a bit of dirt, that may get into the milk may prove fatal.

Our ice is made of distilled water, and is guaranteed as absolutely pure. It can be eaten without fear of trouble. It is in a class by itself for purity.

Let us serve you. The cost is low.

The Record News Review of Markets and Finance

MARKET SHOWS ANOTHER WEEK OF STABILITY

Investments Especially In Excellent Condition Again

BY BYRON SELKES.

Special Correspondent of The Record News.
Copyright, 1926, By The Consolidated Press Association.

NEW YORK, May 1.—The investment market has had another week of pronounced strength, although interest has been diverted from the strictly high grade group, such as United States government bonds and the first mortgage railway obligations, to securities giving a higher yield and to new offerings. The most important development of the week, however, was the conclusion of a debt refunding agreement between the United States and France. In the last few days attention was centered on the foreign list on this account.

French Bonds Steady

French dollar bonds, which at current market prices yield between 7 1-2 and 8 per cent, have been remarkably steady all year considering the persistent decline of the French franc and the accumulating pessimism about French finances. From time to time they have yielded, but never in proportion to the franc. Of course, theoretically, as dollar bonds, they are not directly affected by fluctuations in the franc. Still, a larger range between the high and the low would not have been surprising. Particularly in the week just past, while the franc was making new record lows for all time almost daily, was the steadiness in the French dollar bonds conspicuous. When the news came of the agreement at Washington, French bonds turned upward and some of them, notably the sevens and the eights, reached new tops for 1926. All the gains were not held, but at least the temporary independence of the bonds from the franc was clearly indicated.

Permanent improvement of the market for French bonds depends upon many other things than any tentative settlement of the war debt. That is good as far as it goes, indicating as it does, the purpose of the French people to meet their obligations to the American government. That they intend to secure for their indebtedness to private investors in America may be taken for granted.

Some people believe that all the European borrowers will put service on private loans ahead of that on inter-government borrowings. That theory as been advanced recently with regard to the status of the German external loans in relation to reparations payments.

Improves Credit

It does improve French credit in American eyes to have the war debt obligation recognized. What is not changed, however, is the French internal financial situation. That remains as dubious as ever. Witness the failure of the exchanges to reflect the signing of the agreement at Washington.

Meanwhile, sentiment toward the South American investments continues to become more favorable. Practically all the loans floated recently for account of countries and municipalities in the continent to the south have been over-subscribed and actually placed to a great extent in the hands of permanent investors. A good many of these issues are selling at premiums over the offering prices. This gratifying condition could easily be altered by an over supply of new bonds, but so far the market has been able to absorb the output as it came along.

In the general market, high grade domestic issues have held firm but advances have not been so uniform as earlier in the upward movement. Rather there has been a search for issues selling out of line and to some degree a turning to the higher yielding grades. The remarkable feature is the small response made by junior railway bonds to the highly encouraging March traffic statements. The comparison in earnings between March this year and March, 1925, has been so striking that decided gains in those railway securities which ordinarily fluctuate market-wise with changes in the financial condition of the roads concerned would naturally have been expected. Little has happened however.

The fact is that the investment community is in a very conservative state of mind. Eventually strength in highest grade bonds widens out until it reaches the speculative section.

The movement as yet has not gone that far.

Fundamentally, the money market has not changed during the week, there has been the usual hardening that precedes the end of the month, but this is only temporary. Time funds are obtainable at practically the low of the year. Discount holdings of the New York federal reserve bank have increased as the result of the cut in rate from 4 to 3 1-2 half per cent and the reserve ration is down substantially from that of the preceding week, but still above what it was a year ago.

There is no change in the outlook for the bond market which still is highly favorable. Neither in money nor in commodity prices are there indications of anything that would reverse the trend toward higher prices for prime investment securities. Falling off in speculation in stocks works all to the advantage of sound bonds. Judged by the standards of the past five years, prices look high. But compared with pre-war levels, there is still room for improvement.

Ruby and Howard Station Is Opened

G. S. Howard and W. P. Ruby, old residents of Wichita Falls and with a battery and electrical experience of approximately eight years, opened yesterday their new Ruby-Howard Battery company station at 1200 Eighth street, where according to Mr. Howard they will operate a complete and efficient battery and auto electrical service. Mr. Howard states that they have secured the agency for the Prest-O-Lite battery, which is exceptionionally popular in the east and different parts of the country, being used as standard equipment for Marmon, Chrysler, Imperial, Packard, Hudson, Essex, Locomobile, Stutz, Chandler, Cleveland, Gardner, Roamer, Velie, Fiat and Pontiac motor cars.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, May 1.—(AP)—The cotton market today was fairly active for a short Saturday session although trading lasted for three hours instead of two as has been the custom heretofore on Saturdays. Although the market opened easier in sympathy with weakness in Liverpool, losing five to seven points in the early trading, it soon improved and rallied moderately during the rest of the session the high points reached at the end showing gains of 12 to 16 points over the lows of the morning. The rally was due mainly to the official forecast for unsettled and probably showery weather in the west over Sunday and to rains shown by the weather map in southern Texas. Although the coal strike which went into effect last midnight caused weakness in Liverpool it exerted but little influence on the market here notwithstanding the announcement that a general strike was scheduled for Tuesday. The close was steady at a net gain for the day of five to nine points.

Although Liverpool was eight to 11 penny points lower than due at the start here the local market opened only four to seven points down. Early trades here were at 17.48 for July, 16.57 for October and 16.55 for December or five to seven points net lower. These were the low points of the day.

The subsequent rally, due to shorts covering on the prospects of rain over Sunday and bullish private crop reports expected early next week, finally carried July up to 17.60, October to 16.72 and December to 16.71, or 12 to 16 points above the lows and six to 10 points above the close of yesterday. The market closed at the top.

Exports for the days were rather heavy, totaling 53,989 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—The unfavorable British labor news was reflected here by moderate decline at the opening of the cotton market today, but rallies followed, July selling up from 18.10 to 18.25 and closing 18.22. The general market closed steady at net advances of three to nine points.

The market opened steady at a decline of two to eight points under liquidation by recent buyers and some southern or local selling which was probably inspired by the weakness of Liverpool and the British labor troubles. Offerings were by no means heavy, however, while there appeared to be sufficient demand to absorb them around 18.35 for May and 17.22 for October.

The market soon steadied and worked up on trade buying to fix prices in old crop positions, covering of shorts, and a moderate commission house demand for new crop months. May advanced to 18.70 and October to 17.35, net gains of about five to nine points on active months. The close was within three or four points of the best.

The market acted as if sentiment had been prepared for the British coal strike, as the news failed to bring in any large volume of fresh selling, and contracts appeared relatively scarce in the forenoon. This was regarded by local traders as indicating a healthy transactional position and the rally was promoted by apprehensions of unsettled weather in the southwest which some thought might work over the central and eastern belts before Monday morning.

Talk of increased exports also may have been a factor on the rally, as the amount of cotton on ship board awaiting clearance at the close of the week was estimated at 111,000 bales against 78,000 last year.

Private cables reported bedring with local and continental selling in Liverpool due to the labor troubles and that cloth and yarn buyers in Manchester were holding off in anticipation of lower prices.

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Desultory trading characterized today's stock market with the general body of stocks drifting within narrow and irregular limits. Weakness cropped out in a few special issues, but it failed to cause any unsettlement in the standard rails and industrials. Total sales were only 456,100 shares.

Except possibly to restrict trading, the calling of a general strike in Great Britain for next Tuesday had little influence on the securities market. It did cause some selling of sterling exchange, demand bills easing ¼ of a cent to around $4.85⅝. While no effort was made to minimize the seriousness of the situation in Great Britain there was a rather general feeling in the financial district that if the stock went into effect it would be of short duration and not cause any serious disturbance to international trade.

U. S. Steel common fluctuated within a range of one point, closing ⅛ lower at 127⅝.

Oils displayed a relatively firm undertone as a result of the recent upward readjustment of gasoline prices. Motors sold off in the early trading but rallied on short covering pertaining rumors of a generous extra cash dividend by General Motors this month acting as a sustaining influence.

American Agricultural Chemical common and preferred broke to new low levels for the year, the latter sinking over four points to 54½, and then recovering about half its loss. Gimbel Brothers broke four points to 51, and rallied one.

Rails were sluggish, the only change of consequence being a drop of nearly two points in St. Louis-Southwestern.

Foreign exchanges, other than sterling, held relatively steady in quiet trading. French francs ruled around 3.90 cents and Belgian francs around 3.40 cents. Other exchanges were nominal.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—High temperatures and continued drought over most parts of the wheat belt did a good deal today to strengthen grain values. Besides, deliveries of wheat on May contracts both here and at Liverpool were meager. The wheat market in Chicago closed firm ¼ to ⅝c net higher, May (new) $1.64; to $1.64¼ and July $1.43¼ to $1.43½, with corn unchanged to ½c up, oats at ..@¼ to ½@⅝c advance, and provisions showing 5 to 15 cents gain.

Corn and oats sympathised with wheat strength. Large deliveries of corn on May contracts appeared to have been discontinued in advance.

Packers' buying gave firmness to provisions.

Produce

TEXAS PRODUCE.

SAN ANTONIO, May 1.—There was a fair movement of fruits and vegetables from Texas points yesterday, notwithstanding the fact that wet fields made harvesting difficult. The day's rollings consisted of one car of white potatoes, 380 of onions, three of mixed vegetables, 10 of cabbage and one of string beans, all of which were listed as incomplete. Pick up for previous days totaled 45 cars of potatoes for the 28th and 31 for the 29th. Seventy-six cars of onions for the 29th and 12 for the 30th; 49 cars of mixed vegetables for the 28th and 18 for the 29th; 23 cars of cabbage for the 28th and seven cars for the 29th.

In the shipping point markets trading in onions was improved yesterday. Rollers sold f. o. b. Laredo for $1.50 per bushel crate of yellow Bermudas on a wire order basis of terminal inspection allowed, while the cash market on this stock was in the neighborhood of $1.30@1.44 as against $1.25@1.30.

At Crystal whites at Raymondville were quoted at $1.40@1.50 for yellows on wire orders. String beans, carlots, beets, cabbage at lower valley points were unchanged, but potatoes showed stronger tendencies and the market advanced to $5.25 cwt. usual terms and $4.00 cwt. cash track for No. 1 triumphs.

Eggs are only about steady to slightly weaker this morning, poultry not greatly changed.

San Antonio: Hens 23@24c; fryers 25@26c; mostly 25c; small 23@30c; old roosters 13c; turkeys No. 1's, 25c pound liveweight basis.

Eggs, fresh gathered firsts $6.90@7.00 per case with cases returned.

Fort Worth: Hens large 21@23c; small 18@20c; springs large 25@26c; small 28@30c; old roosters mostly 13c; turkeys No. 1's, 26@28c pound liveweight basis; geese $1.25@1.50; ducks 75@90c; guineas 30c each.

Eggs, fresh gathered firsts to producers $7.20@7.45 with cases.

Butter, packing stock, country 22c; creamery A grade 40c; B grade 38c pound.

CHICAGO POULTRY.

CHICAGO, May 1.—(AP)—Poultry alive, easier; receipts two cars; fowls 28@31c; broilers 36@42c; turkeys 30c; roosters 19c; ducks 30@32c; geese 16c.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, May 1.—Nominal conditions in the cattle trade with a tinge of weakness in the stock was the verdict of salesmen at Fort Worth today.

Receipts 500 grown cattle and 200 calves. She stock predominated in the cattle run, and here the lower bids were registered.

But two cars of beef steers arrived, one selling at $6.00 and the other $7.25.

Butcher cows had a top of $5.25, one loads $4.50@4.65.

The usual spread was seen in canners and cutters, the low coating cows being largely in the majority.

Nothing to test the trade in young slaughter stock arrived, small bunches heifers $4.50@6.50, and yearlings $5.50@6.50, also in small drafts.

No really good calves appeared in the usual number of arrivals. Few veals took top of $8.50, but carloads heavyweight $8.50@7.75.

The 400 hogs on the market showed decline of ten cents, and top on weights around 200 pounds stood at $13.40. Hogs of 225 to 250 pounds, made $13.00@13.25. Heavy weights sold from $13.25 down.

No sheep arrived. Market nominal.

Cattle receipts 500; grown cattle and 200 calves; beeves $5.50@8.50; stockers $5.00@7.50; fat cows $4.00@6.00; cutters $3.50@3.85; canners $3.15@3.35; heifers $5.00@8.00; yearlings $5.50@9.50; bulls $3.75@5.50; calves $4.00@10.00.

Hogs, 400; nominal, light $13.00@13.40; medium $12.50@12.75; heavy $12.00@12.35; mixed $11.50@12.00; common $11.00@11.50; sows $10.50; pigs $10.50@12.50.

Sheep and lambs none arrived, market nominal, genuine lambs $12.00@14.00; shorn lambs $10.00@12.50; shorn feeder lambs $8.50@8.50; yearlings $9.00@12.00; Wethers $8.00@8.75; ewes $6.00@7.00; culls $1.00@2.25; stockers 53.00@6.00; goats $1.50@3.75.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK.

KANSAS CITY, May 1.—Cattle, 300; calves 50; compared with a week ago: Fed steers are uneven, steady to 15c lower; Texas grassers steady; top $12 pound yearlings $9.85; 1,153 pound steers $9.50; heavy steers $9.40; mixed yearlings and heifers week to 25c lower; better grades off most; butcher cows strong; canners and cutters 10 to 15c higher; bulls 15 to 25c higher; veals 50c higher; stockers and feeders 15 to 25c higher; bulk prices follow: Fed steers $8.25@9.25; Texas grassers $6.50@7.25; mixed yearlings $8.25@9.25; heifers $7.00@9.00; butcher cows $5.25@7.00; stockers and feeder steers $7.50@8.75; good to choice veals $9.00@10.00.

Hogs, 2,000; steady; bulk of sales $12.20@13.10; packing sows $10.50@11.00.

TO ALL CITIZENS OF CITY OF WICHITA FALLS.

An unusual wet spring has caused weeds to come up early and they must have attention at once, or they will cause a great deal of sickness, and this is to notify one and all to cut them, in your back yards, alleys and curbs in a great many places, and all vacant lots must be cleaned of them and kept clean during the summer months. Complaints will be filed when ordinance is not obeyed.

City Health Department.
P. A. ALVERSON,
Sanitary Officer.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Sealed proposals for the improvement of a portion of Marshall street; Buchanan street; Twenty-fourth St.; Jasper St.; Victory Ave; Twenty-fifth St.; Twenty-sixth St.; Taylor St.; Fillmore St.; alley block 166; Fourth St.; Denver Ave.; and Monroe St., will be received at the office of the City Clerk until 7:30 p. m. May 10th, 1926, and then publicly opened. Bids will be received on brick, concrete, warrenite-bitulithic and sheet asphalt (Willite Process) pavements with necessary appurtenances. NOTICE TO AUDITORS AND ACCOUNTANTS

Sealed bids for contract for a detailed audit of the books of the City of Wichita Falls, for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1925, will be received by the Board of Aldermen, until 7:30 p. m. May 10, 1926, and then publicly opened. Detailed information as to records to be audited may be obtained at the office of the City Clerk, City Treasurer, Tax Collector, and Water Department. The audit shall also cover the books of the Wichita General hospital for the period Jan. 1, 1925 to March 31, 1926.

W. E. McBROOM,
City Clerk.

A SUGGESTED PROCLAMATION

It has been brought to my attention by the Girl Reserve department of the Young Women's Christian association that one week of the year is observed annually as Mother and Daughter week. The first week of May has been chosen for this week, and I am happy to encourage the proper observance of such an event.

Therefore, in order to promote a more complete understanding and comradeship between mother and daughter, to broaden and enrich the study together of their mutual problems, and to inspire each in the other that perfect confidence of love and true intent, I, R. E. Shepherd, mayor of Wichita Falls, do hereby proclaim the first week in May as Mother and Daughter week and earnestly request that it be observed by our mothers and daughters to their mutual uplift and happiness.

R. E. SHEPHERD, Mayor.

TO THE OWNERS OF PROPERTY ABUTTING ON AVE. J, BETWEEN TAFT STREET AND JONES STREET AND TO ALL OTHERS INTERESTED.

for inspection of the demonstration house of "Better Built Homes in America" week 2303 Bullington St., Talunar Place. This beautiful home has attracted thousands of visitors the past week and if you have not seen it, you should drive by this afternoon from one o'clock until nine to see it and its furnishings.

We have a beautiful six-room English home on a lot 50x150 that has every modern arrangement and is now ready for occupancy. If you require three bed rooms this home will please you. It is for sale at a reasonable price and with terms if desired.

We have just started a five-room stucco house that will be built as a stucco should be. Its architecture will be of Italian influence, two south bed rooms, many large closets, carefully planned interior. If interested we suggest that you follow its erection and you will observe how well it is built. It will be reasonably priced.

If you have a particular floor plan, we will be glad to erect your home in Talunar Place. Select any inside lot for only $1,750 (paving paid) and we will build your house according to your requirements and desires.

Police Unable To Issue Warrants For Whiskey Searches

OKLAHOMA CITY, May 1.—(AP) Police judges are without power to issue search warrants for liquor the criminal court of appeals ruled today in reversing the conviction of Mr. and Mrs. Orval Gardner on a liquor charge in Oklahoma City police court. Evidence obtained through these warrants may not be used in any other court, the appellate court held.

"Under the provisions of the enforcement act," Judge Thomas A. Edwards said, "the authority for issuing search warrants to search and seize intoxicating liquors is specifically delegated to judges of courts of record and justices of the peace. A police judge is without authority to issue warrants in connection with alleged violation of the prohibitor liquor laws."

CHARGE ABANDONMENT

KANSAS CITY, May 1.—(AP)—Lawrence H. Garrison, 28, an aviator for the National Air Transport, Inc., which has the contract air mail through here was arrested late today at Richards field on a warrant issued at Omaha, Neb., charging wife and child abandonment.

Omaha authorities were notifed of his arrest.

GOLCONDA, Ill., May 1.—(AP)—Paul Meadows, 13, of Herrin, Ill., was given a license to preach in the Methodist Episcopal church by the Carbondale district conference at Ullin yesterday. He is the youngest licensed preacher in Illinois.

INHERITANCE UPHELD

FORT WORTH, May 1.—(AP)—May (Debeque) Piller's inheritance of the entire estate of her foster mother, Maggie Debeque, was upheld by the second court of civil appeals in an opinion handed down today by Chief Justice Conner. The estate is placed by May Piller's attorney at $100,000.

New Effort to Raise S-51 From Ocean Floor Under Way

Crew of navy's most expert divers is preparing for a new effort to raise submarine S-51, which was rammed and sunk off Rhode Island last summer with loss of more than 20 lives. Lieut. Comdr. Edward Ellsberg, commander of the detachment, is seen testing new underwater steel-cutting torch with which it is hoped to penetrate sides of the vessel. Also shown are some of the divers.

Fannin School Wins First Place In Child Health Parade Here

THOUSANDS SEE BIG PROCESSION

Schools of City Vie In Arrangement of Varied Floats

Thousands of Wichitans viewed the Child Health parade in this city Saturday morning at 10 o'clock, the first of its kind ever to be held when floats featuring ideas for the health of the childhood of America made up the procession. Schools of the city vied with each other in a contest for a prize. Fanin school won first place and was awarded $15 for the float representing "Our Health Friends." Foods that would bring about good health were shown by students dressed in costumes symbolizing vegetables and fruits.

Carrigan Wins Second

The second prize of $10 went to Carrigan school whose float represented the "House of Health." A half cut loaf of whole wheat bread, vegetables with the necessary elements and fruits showing what a child should eat to keep him healthy was shown.

Crockett school won the third prize of $5 for their float which featured the elements that go to make a healthy child, fresh air, rest and exercise.

An annonoymous donor presented $10 to the Washington school (colored) for the float representing the "Crusade of Health."

Honorable mention went to Sam Houston school.

Get Idea Over

The points in judging were first, getting over the health idea irrespective of expenditure, 50 per cent; originality of the idea presented, 25 per cent; workmanship, 25 per cent. The judges were Mrs. Coolidge, Cornell university; Mrs. A. D. Montgomery; Mrs. Watson, Dr. Fillmore, city health officer, and Mrs. Grace Ashbaugh, Red Cross representative of St. Louis.

The Child Health parade was sponsored by the Red Cross in carrying out the idea of the National Child Health association in setting aside May Day as a time to teach children and parents things concerning welfare of the childhood of America.

Miss Beatrice Hall, nutritionist of the Red Cross, has had a great part in putting over the observance of the day in Wichita Falls. She was assisted by the service clubs of the city, civic organization and public spirited citizens, as well as the public schools where a great part of the constructive work in nutrition is being done.

Big Bond Issue Before Council

The climax of about three months' discussion of matters relating to the Wichita Falls water supply situation is expected at the meeting of the city council Monday night when that body will be asked to call an election to present a proposed $1,200,000 bond issue.

The commissioners in the main are known to favor the water improvement project and there is little likelihood that any opposition will develop. A hitch is possible, though, in that other requests for money for sewer extensions and street improvements may be made which will run the bond issue some higher. And this higher figure may easily meet with opposition among the commissioners and hold up the water issue.

Perkins Gives New Trucks to Scouts

Boy Scouts of Wichita Falls will have a new truck, according to Frank B. Creighton, scout executive. J. J. Perkins, local business man, called the scout office the other day and asked the boys to come down town and select the kind of machine they needed.

Repairs are being made to the truck the scouts now possess and two will be ready for use by summer, it was said.

Well Heeled For Convivial Times

Of a gross of attractively priced "hip-pocket" flasks received by a downtown Wichita Falls store the first part of last week, all but four had been sold Saturday, according to a statement by the proprietor. Which means that at least 140 Wichitans have now the means at hand to carry what the flasks may be presumed to contain in a convenient and ever ready manner.

The flasks sold were of the small half-pint variety.

Wurzbach Opponent Seeks House Place

SAN ANTONIO, May 1.—(AP)—Fred E. Knetsch, county attorney of Guadalupe county since June, 1924, today announced his candidacy for congress from the 14th district. He enters the race supported by the Creager-Nolte faction of the Texas republican organization and will oppose Harry M. Wurzbach, incumbent.

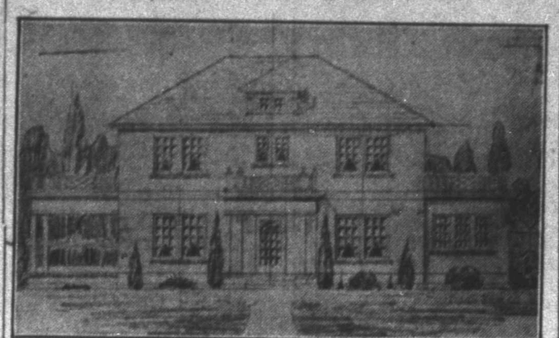

CONDUCTOR RETIRES

After 53 Years Without a Wreck, Trainman Quits Service

PITTSBURGH, May 1.—(AP)—Completing 53 years service as a railroader during which he traveled an estimated 2,681,917 miles without a wreck, Michael J. McCarthy, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie passenger conductor, has retired.

McCarthy, whose home is in Youngstown, Ohio, began his railroad career at the age of 17 as a water boy.

Attractive New Home Here

Architect's drawing of the new home of Dr. and Mrs. H. B. White, now under construction in Westmoreland park. This eight-room brick home will have many attractive features. SUMMER CAMP PLANS STUDIED

Camp Fire Council In Discussion Saturday On Activities

Plans for future activities were discussed by the Camp Fire Girls council in the monthly meeting held Saturday at noon at the Y. W. C. A. club rooms when reports were heard from various groups. A cake sale to be held Saturday, May 8 was announced and bouquets of wild flowers will be gathered and sold with the cakes. Those wishing special orders for Mother's day are asked to call headquarters, 8095.

Miss Crump Presides

Edith Crump, president, presided at the business session, which opened with the singing of a Camp Fire song. An interesting report from the Electra representative, Laura V. Lebus, was given on the progress the two groups have made in beautifying an old house which has been donated to Camp Fire Girls there fo ra club house. Window panes have been replaced, flowers planted, and plans are being made to put up draperies and secure furniture.

Faye Guthrie was elected as the new secretary, to succeed Beth Weber who will be out of the city for the next few months, and probably will not return to Wichita Falls.

"Secret" Discussed

The "Secret" was also discussed in detail, and definite plans made for its disclosure in the near future.

Those attending were: Cliftine Butler, Marjorie Vincent, Kathleen Colligan, Marjorie Bash, Phyllis Creighton, Francis Hyland, Fern Mashburn, Dorothy Smart, Faye Guthrie, Marguerite Holland, Edith Crump, Miss Mary McIlheran and four girls from Electra, Rose Mary McGee, Laura V. Le Bus, Ruth Andrews, Deella Mae Woods.

4 More Officers Leave Department

Resignation of four other members of the police department effective as of Saturday morning, May 1, were announced Saturday by Mayor R. E. Shepherd. No appointments to fill places thus vacated were announced.

Those leaving the department as a result of the resignations, which were made in line with a recent reorganization of the department are John Saye, Ben Robinson and L. Minnick, plain clothes men and J. A. McClelland, motorcycle officer.

The police department shake-up was started several weeks ago with the resignations of four other members on the force at that time. Whether any more changes are to be made has not been indicated by those administering the department's affairs.

Thus far the changes have not effected any member of the regular night staff of the department and none of the men on the evening shift have been involved in the changes.

Teachers and principals of the schools acted as judges of the events. Miss Esther Berry is principal of Huey; Miss Bessie Stewart, Austin, and R. A. Jarrett, San Jacinto.

Ladies Night At Realty Club Set Thursday, May 13

The annual ladies night meeting of the Rotary club will be held May 13, probably at the Country club, it was announced Saturday.

New Officers have been elected by the directors of the club, but it will not be announced who they are until the annual meeting. The club will hold its regular weekly meeting on May 6 at the usual time and place.

The annual meeting was originally set for May 4, but it was found necessary to postpone it.

ADAMS TO BE SPEAKER HERE

Will Address Banquet At Temple Israel Thursday

Arthur Adams will be the principal speaker at Temple Israel Thursday evening, May 13, at a banquet given under the auspices of B'nai Brith lodge at 6:30 o'clock. Reservations may be made by calling Temple Israel between 2 and 6 o'clock.

He will speak in the temple at 8 o'clock Thursday evening and the public is invited to hear him.

On Friday evening he will deliver an address at Temple Israel at 8 o'clock, speaking on the subject, "East European Relief and Texas Jewry."

Aid In Fund

Mr. Adams is greatly responsible for the success of the United Jewish campaigns in Texas, Rabbi Samuel Phillips said, and more than $300,000 has been raised. He has visited every large community and he congratulates Wichita Falls Jewry for over subscribing.

Adams, who is only 31, is a graduate of the Sorbonne, Paris, France, and University College, London. He speaks eight languages and has covered the globe twice and has learned intimately Jewish conditions in many countries. He has represented British concerns in the Orient, but left business and joined the social service at the recommendation of Jacob Billikoph of Philadelphia. He represented the Palestine Foundation fund in many states of the union and until he joined the field forces of the joint distribution committee, he was the national secretary of the Denver sheltering home. In the interim he promoted two mining companies of the west.

Novel Program On At Kiwanis Club

Members of the Kiwanis club are expecting a novel program at the noon day luncheon at the Kemp hotel Mogday in the regular meeting when the Girl Reserves of the Young Women's Christian association will take part in keeping with mother-daughter week, May 3-10. It is hinted that some of the Kiwanians, namely, Joe Pate Sanderford and Len Noble will recite fish experiences on the opening of the fish season, and perhaps illustrations will be used.

Wichita Falls Society Enjoys Wealth of Spring Parties

Peggy Piedmont

—The Forum Campaign —Dances Galore
—Even the Rodeo —The Country Club Party
—Visitors in Town —The Woman's Franchise

DEAR KITTY:

We're doing things down here, Kitty, and it's not only big real estate deals either but we "carry on" and seem to get along successfully in whatever we put our hands to these days. No, we are not puffed up and full of ourselves, but progress and prosperity is apt to make us so. Now mind you, don't gather that we are having a boom, because that means something like a bubble that blows up and bursts, while ours has come t ostay.

Outstanding features of a busy week was the Forum drive for funds with which to build a $50,000 women's club house, and several unusually large parties. For the entire week beginning Monday the ladies, big and little, old and young, worked on the drive and I am told that a goodly amount has been collected. And then social affairs, there were so plentiful that one lady actually didn't have time for a bob trim. Not that it mattered much, because under her hat her shaggy locks didn't show, and she was just as pretty as if she had been marceled to a finish.

And then I almost forgot one of the annual events in which everyone is interested, the rodeo was a feature of the week-end. As usual everybody said they did not intend to go this year and everybody was there. We have the love of the west too strong to withstand the lure of the cowboy and cowgirl who display almost uncanny skill in their stunts on this occasion.

AND again this week as of last, visitors have furnish inspiration for some of our largest parties. One I am thinking about especially was given on Wednesday when Mrs. J. A. Kemp and her daughters, Mrs. W. N. Maer, Mrs. J. A. Kemp Jr., and Mrs. W. S. Langford entertained about 500 guests at the Country club complimenting Mrs. Horace Gilbert of Austin, who is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Kemp Jr., and Mrs. A. B. Booth of Chicago who is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Kemp. Another affair somewhat smaller, but none the less enjoyable was a bridge and "42" party given by Mrs. Paul Barnett, honoring Mrs. George T. Macatee, guest of Mrs. Frank Creighton. For this event, colorful tulips and baskets of other spring blossoms were used for decorations, and the honoree was remembered with a pretty polychrome desk set. The guests included Mesdames P. B. Curd, Harley Snider, B. B. Craft, A. R. Cannon, Orville Carrico and E. E. Fisher.

Another out-of-town visitor honored was Mrs. O. E. Ward of Muskogee, Okla., who is the guest of friends and relatives here. Mrs. C. E. Naylor complimented Mrs. Ward with bridge when three tables were arranged for the games. Lovely prizes were given and the honoree was remembered with an orchid vase. The guests for this affair included Mesdames R. B. Parker, Tom Parker, John Baker, Roy Coffee, James P. Cook, E. E. Friend, and C. F. Morgan.

A LARGE event of the past week was the bridge party given by Mrs. Fred Elbert and Mrs. J. Pickens Coleman at the Country club Saturday afternoon when 200 guests were entertained. Out-of-town visitors included Mrs. E. H. Maupin, and Mrs. Foxworth of Dallas, and I almost forgot, the largest club affair of the week, the annual luncheon at the Wichita club when the Travel club, the Junior Travel and the Tuesday College Women, were guests.

And dances, you never heard of so many. Friday night the DeMolays gave one at the Country club and Saturday morning the students and ex-students of the high school and Junior college were special guests when the seniors of both schools were especially honored with a dance at Lake Wichita. This was an early morning affair, the dancing beginning at 6 o'clock. Tuesday night another dance will be given at the Country club for the benefit of the Woman's Forum building drive and Wednesday night another one at the same place, by the Shriners following their ceremonial.

Those of us who are not arranging for trips somewhere or returning from one, are staying at home arranging for school commencement, parties for graduation or benefit entertainments, as you no doubt have realized from the persual of my epistle up to now. But I must tell you that conventions have also played an important part in furnishing us some place to go the past week. For with the closing of the first district Texas Federation of Women's clubs held at Vernon the week before, and which we haven't gotten through talking about, two more women's meetings followed closely upon its heels. The state federation of music clubs at Dallas and the eighth district convention of the P. T. A. association at Canyon. Both events were attended by groups of local women who attended as delegates and visitors.

But speaking of the proposed new club house which Wichita women mean to build, according to Mrs. I. H. O'Harra, prominent Pennsylvania club woman, says that the need of of the hour is concentration of energy and advocated a central club house for meetings. She says in part: "Is woman's work ever organized? Are there too many cultural clubs?' Is there waste of effort, of time and money in women's clubs in Philadelpia because of a lack of unity and concentration?

According to Mrs. O'Hara this condition is not only true of Philadelphia, but of the whole country. The crying need of women's work today is for concentration of energy and unity of purpose. That need may be met, she says, by the erection of central club houses, large enough to accommodate quarters for every woman's club in the city, and with facilities for meeting of hundreds of women at a time. Such a building of course necessitates the amalgamation of the clubs under one head, which we have already done in the formation of the Forum.

IN THIS way she points out, when a man of national renown and consequently, of limited time is asked to speak before club women of a given locality, an audience of several hundred persons will be assured him in place of small groups of women. With such an organization, the membership is always large enough to be certain of funds with which to bring the most expert authorities before the clubs, a privilege which few small organizations can afford. Mrs. O'Harra also points out that aside from the financial benefits such an arrangement also entails almost incalcuable power.

Women's clubs did not organize in this country, and they did not originate in this century or the last. They started hundreds of years ago, when women of early times gathered around the village well.

From these primitive beginnings to the present clubs, with their beautiful homes, their cultural surroundings and their staffs of trained officers, was only a matter of race progression and civilization. Up to the present day the development of the woman's club has been a thing of natural and slow steps, but now the time has come for a forward move of a determined and well-considered character.

Years ago there was need for organized groups of women with officers and a certain meeting house. That was before the time of universal distribution of the means to culture and education, and the only way for the average woman to keep in touch with the world outside her home was membership in a club, with the stimulating contacts it brought.

THESE clubs, founded to supply the need of the day, still exist in this city and every neighborhood. Now the Forum has been formed from a combination of all and the result is that there is more power, no duplication of effort, waste of money and time.

Now that women have the franchise, the influence of the combined club women in Wichita Falls like in every other city, is state-wide, and possibly even nation-wide. Under the system club women have been working (before the organization of the Forum) it was virtually impossible to obtain a consensus on any subject, because, while one club was discussing the question from a certain angle, every other club might adopt quite a different angle. Now with all combined and with a central meeting place, who knows what the women of Wichita Falls may not accomplish.

But I could write you indefinitely about this proposed new club house, and the general chairman, Mrs. G. D. Anderson and others taking an active part in the drive, say "We're going to get it, no one need worry," so this is the last word from—

Mother-Daughter Banquet One Of Season's Prettiest

The Mother-Daughter banquet of the Girl Reserve of the elementary schools held at the Y. W. C. A. Friday evening proved one of the delightful affairs of the season with various members of the club taking part. "Hello Mother, Dear," was the song that greeted the mothers by their daughters in "Get Acquainted."

Charlotte Joiner was toastmistress. A toast was given to Mrs. Dean J. Wolff, chairman of the girls' work; Lafon Duncan gave a toast to the mothers. A tribute to mothers was given by Peggie Joe Bobo. The response was given by Mrs. L. L. Albritton.

Pageant Is Given

A pageant, "Motherhood Eternal," was given with the following characters: Mother, Miss Mildred Mayes; the four daughters, Mary Clare Burton, Juanita McAda, Nina Bell Conant, Kathleen Meeks; spirit service, Catherine Bird; spirit of love, Irene Hamilton.

Mrs. Wolff gave the principal talk of the evening and brought into her address a closer relation between mothers and daughters.

The Junior Business Girls' club served the banquet. Mrs. Charles Enloe assisted by Mrs. Lasky were in charge of the arrangements. Covers were laid for 160 mothers and daughters.

Medical Womans Auxiliary Hold Business Meeting

Members of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Wichita County Medical association met at the First Methodist church in an important business session Thursday afternoon when committees were appointed as follows: Program, Mrs. J. A. Heyman; membership and phone, Mrs. R. L. Hargrave, chairman and Mesdames G. H. Hampshire, H. D. Prichard J. M. F. Gill of Burkburnett, C. H. Parmley of Electra and Gordon Clark of Iowa Park. Educational, Mrs. Carrie Wilcox, chairman and Mesdames A. D. Patillo, S. H. Burnside and R. C. Smith; social, Mrs. O. B. Kiel, chairman and Mesdames James W. Powers and J. B. Nail.

Mrs. Kiel was elected delegate to the State Medical meeting to be held in Houston May 23, with Mrs. R. L. Hargrave, alternate.

The next meeting of the auxiliary will be held at the First Methodist church in June, the exact date to be announced later.

IN THE GLOW OF THE CAMP FIRE

The Guardians Association of Camp Fire Girls will meet Tuesday evening at 7:30 at headquarters for regular business session. A representative of the Red Cross will attend the meeting to explain the Christmas bags which are to be made for the boys in the hospitals. Miss Mary McIlheran has suggested that Camp Fire Girls might take over the making and filling of these bags.

Temskatawa Group.

The Temskatawa Camp Fire Girls met at home of guardian, Mrs. T. N. Colligan, 1309 Taylor, Friday afternoon, for a business and handcraft meeting, and finished places started at previous meetings. An overnight and ceremonial meeting was planned for May 28. The next meeting will be at the Walton home, 1605 Lucile street, when the girls will meet the new mascot of Camp Fire Girls, little Nell June, which Camp Fire girls are going to adopt as their baby. A note of thanks from Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Robinson for the flowers sent by group was read to members.

Those attending meeting were: Nell and Maxine Duffy, Virginia Wilson, Marion Proctor, Edith Long, Kathleen Colligan, Sarah Beth Hail, Marjorie Dalton and the guardian.

Dr. White To Talk At Department Meeting

The health department of the Woman's Forum will meet in its last session at the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Dr. F. S. White, well known nerve specialist, will talk on the cause, effect and cure in nervousness in children.

Mrs. A. G. Bachman, 2002 Wilson, is reported ill at her home.

In The Pictures

Mrs. J. Truman Stevens, popular matron in local club and church work, was recently elected president of the Dramatics Art club.

Mrs. J. Luis Nelson, formerly Miss Helen Davis, whose pretty home wedding was a spring social event to her intimate friends, has returned to Wichita Falls with her husband from an overland trip to Brownwood, and will remain here a few weeks.

Mrs. W. H. Davidson Jr., sister-in-law of Mrs. Nelson, was matron of honor at the wedding.

Miss Sue King of Dallas, cousin of the bride, and frequent visitor here, was her bridesmaid.

Mr. and Mrs. Riggs Give Bridge Party

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Riggs gave one of the prettiest small parties of the week at their home on Tilden Friday evening when they entertained several couples at bridge. The house was elaborately decorated for the occasion in baskets filled with tulips, roses and other colorful spring blossoms and six tables were arranged for the games.

Mrs. T. S. Masters won the high score favor among the women guests, an attractive boudior lamp and Mrs. C. C. Arnold was consoled for low with an embroidered table cover. H. C. Cheshire was fortunate among the men, and received a handsome neck tie, and Royce Huddleston, who made low, was given a gentleman's handkerchief.

A salad plate was served to Messrs. and Mesdames Bert Adrain, C. A. Prichard, E. R. O'Brien, J. A. Kemp Jr., T. S. Masterson, Hugh Weaver, H. C. Cheshire, Charles Robinson, L. L. Smith and Mrs. A. C. Ludlam. Mrs. C. C. Arnold and Royce Huddleston and Wilburn.

Mrs. P. H. Myers and small son have returned from San Anotnio where they visited and attended the Battle of Flowers.

Birthday Party Saturday Wesley Girls Circle

Observing the birthday of her daughter, Miss Edna May Spegall, Mrs. Frank Cole entertained a group with a delightful party at her home on Polk street Friday evening when cut flowers and potted plants were used in the decorations. Games were played and an ice course served to Misses Alta Daniels, Edith Fleming, Bonita Biggers, Opal Cates, Irene Goff, June and Moline Tidwell, Susie May Wilson, Nell Moss, Ruby Walker and Homer Lee, Jr., Virgil Davis, Elree Griffin, Jimmie Brannon, James Patterson, Shiek Bryan, Woodrow Nelson, Ross Saye, Pat Moore and Jimmie Moore.

Hawthorn-Main Nuptials Solemnized

Announcement is made of the marriage of Sam Hawthorn, Jr., of Lufkin, Texas, and Miss Emily Main of this city. The ceremony was read by the Rev. E. F. McGaughey, pastor of the East Side Presbyterian church Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. Miss Main has been here for some time, and is a professional nurse at the Clinic hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Hawthorn will be at home on Lake Side Drive after a brief honeymoon trip.

Mesdames Elbert And Coleman Entertain In Elaborate Saturday Party

Culminating a week of delightful affairs, Mrs. Fred Elbert and Mrs. J. Pickens Coleman entertained about 200 guests with one of the most gorgeous bridge parties of the spring season at the Country club Saturday afternoon. The May Day idea was cleverly carried out in the elaborate decorations of spring flowers in the pastel shades while the card tables were arranged in eight groups, each group being designated by an individual color. The score pads were gold folders through the back of which was run sprigs of artificial spring flowers and the tally cards were decorated with colorful May baskets. The much loved state flower, the blue bonnet was featured in the floral decorations and were used profusely in baskets and vases on the mantels and tables of the club reception suite.

Ice Course Served.

An ice course with imported candies moulded in the shape of lilies, and salted nuts, was served preceding the games.

The prizes were lovely wedgewood plates for high scores, while novelty vanities were the consolation favors. Each of the eight groups played for high and low score, and in the final count, the winners found their favors arranged on a dainty tea table centered with a Maypole under the colored streamer and tied with the color corresponding to the group in which they played.

The guest list included: Mesdames W. S. Abbott, C. N. Alexander, Charlie Anderson, Dillard Anderson, Jake Avis, M. M. Adicks, H. A. Allen, G. D. Anderson, Charles Bass, Otis Bacon, C. E. Beavers, J. HOCKLEY MAN FOE OF MARRS

J. A. Humphries to Seek Election as State Superintendent

AUSTIN, May 1.—J. A. Humphries, Hockley county school district superintendent, Saturday made public here his announcement as a candidate for state superintendent of public instruction.

He is the third candidate in this race, following the withdrawal of W. E. James of Austin. State Superintendent S. M. N. Marrs and W. W. Bennett of Center are already in the race.

Mr. Humphries' announcement said he had spent 42 of his 48 years in Bell county, and five in Hockley county; that he has been teaching for 20 years, five of which has included his serving in elective and appointive places as school district superintendent, member of the county board of examiners, and inspector of schools. For four years he was justice of the peace in Temple, and Bell county commissioner.

He declared he is a democrat, and if elected will "use all the resources at my command in a free-handed discussion of the merits of books to be selected by the textbook commission: but when outvoted by its members I shall bow to result—and relieve the state of unwarranted litigation and the expense of useless delays.

"I shall accept one decision of the courts as final on matters of construction of the law."

RULE

SENIORS ENTERTAINED.

Spring flowers were used as decorations Friday evening, when Miss Dora Lee was hostess to the members of the seniors class of the Rule high school at her home in the east of Rule.

After severalu hours of playing "42" and radio music enjoyed the hostess served lovely refreshments to the following: Misses Vivian Kelley, Ina Mae Henry, Ina Walker, Adelade Hicks, Mattie Lea Bell, Willie Davis, Elizabeth Steele and Foster L. Davis and Auvil Eaton.

METHODIST SOCIETY.

The Methodist Missionary society met at the church Monday afternoon, with Mrs. Server Leon in charge, in their monthly Bible study.

After a song followed by prayer Mrs. Leon conducted the Bible study from the book of Exodus. Mrs. J. M. Steels who was a delegate to the Methodist Woman's Missionary convention in Lubbock last week brought a very interesting report back to the society and read it after the Bible study was conducted.

Twenty-three members were present and the remaining chapters of the book of Exodus will be studied at the next monthly Bible study which will be the third Monday in May.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN

The Juniors of the Rule high school entertained the seniors with a pretty appointed banquet at the Whorton hotel Tuesday evening of this week. Plates were laid for 40 guests. After the banquet with several speeches during the meal, and music enjoyed also, the guests were invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Lindsey and were entertained with a lawn party where various games were played till a late hour. A very enjoyable time was had by all.

JAZZ VS. COOKERY

English Women Prefer This to Cooking Instructions Over Radio.

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—English women who listen in on the radio prefer jazz to cookery instructions. The British Broadcasting company has abandoned the "Household Hints" feature of its popular afternoon programs, because it was shown that the women would rather listen to jazz music than be instructed in how to cook, or care for the baby.

However, the feminine who failed to become enthusiastic about the lore of the kitchen or nursery is eager for lectures on travel or stories of adventure, and the broadcasting company has arranged to give over its afetrnoon woman's hour to a mixture to such lectures along with popular music.

DISPUTE OVER LANGUAGES

Berlin Agitated Over Whether English Or French Shall Be Taught.

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—Parents and teachers are agitated over the question of whether English shall replace French as the first of the required foreign languages taught in Berlin high schools.

The administrative council recently ordered that English be switched into first place. The high school board challenged the authority of the council to order the change, and was upheld by the Prussian ministry of education.

It is argued that while English is more widely spoken in the world than French, English grammar is "too easy" to provide the mental stimulation which leads to proficiency in learning other languages.

BOXER WITH MEASLES

LONDON—Examined before entering the ring at Convent Garden, George Neil, featherweight pugilist, was found to have the measles.

Scalloped Skirt Is Still Popular

A dress of black taffeta with golden satin border illustrates the popularity of the scalloped skirt hem, new length waist and deep V neck.

Lord's Help Is Invoked for Tourist

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—Religion plays an important part in the lives of the people in the mountainous Thuringian forest. It was explained therefore, that the inn keeper near the village of Braunsdorf was by no means entirely facetious when he pointed to gilt letters above the inn entrance:

"God bless your entrance."

If you are thirsty, and bless your departure.

If you're paid your bill."

Friend or stranger meeting on the winding roads, where automobiles are rare, greet each other with the words "Gruess Gott" (God Speed). On the fronts of century old homes can be seen freshly painted numbers of inscriptions reading "Traveler, may God ease your road," a blessing which is earnestly intended despite the fact that the mountain paths are no longer treacherous as they were centuries ago.

BEAUTIFY IT WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Just Dip to Tint or Boil to Dye

Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—and tell your druggist whether the material you wish to color is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—Adv.

British Sense Of Humor Is Apparent Now, She Believes

LONDON, May 1.—Mrs. James J. Walker, wife of the mayor of New York City, who has been touring Europe in the party of the American Hotel association, doesn't believe any more that the English have no sense of humor.

"Until I came to England, I had always believed that the English couldn't see a joke, nor tell one," said Mrs. Walker during her visit in England. "But in my jaunts about the country, meeting officials and others, I was agreeably surprised at the keen sense of humor displayed by the English."

"In so short a time, I don't recall ever having heard so much subtle wit as since I landed on these shores.

"The address of welcome of Mayor Mitchell of Plyfouth was a gem—sparkling with good humor, and had the 300 Americans who heard it, in an uproar for seven or eight minutes.

Royalty's Pipes In Demand in England

LONDON, May 1.—Tobacco pipes used by the noted in England hold just as much interest for Englishmen as the "Dawes pipe," used by the American vice president, holds for Americans.

Recently one of the Briars of Stanley Baldwin, the prime minister, brought L15 at a charity bazaar auction. Since then, many members of the government and others of note have been beseiged with requests for their discarded pipes.

Lord Eustace Percy, minister of education, as a rule smokes a corn cob bearing the label: "Made in Missouri," with a clay pipe for a change, but when asked to part with these for charity, he declined, giving instead a little used merschaum which sold at auction for L10.

The Prince of Wales gives most of his cast off briars to his valet to be disposed of as he sees fit.

ELECTRA

SMITH-BLANER

Buzzy Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Smith, and Miss Bettie Blaner, of the Clara community were quietly married Thursday at 1:30 o'clock by Justice of Peace C. C. Campbiel of Walters, Okla. The young couple were accompanied by Miss Marguirite Rouse and Robert Wallace of this city.

The bride is a member of a prominent Clara family, her father being an oil promoter of some note as well as a prominent farmer. While the groom is the son of one of the best known families in Electra. He was a student in the local high school and one of the school's best football players. Mr. Smith was chosen as one of the all-star football players at the end of the football season. He is popular among the younger set.

The bride was a member of the graduating class of the Clara schools, whose graduating exercises will be held Friday evening with the play to be held Saturday night. Mrs. Smith has one of the leading roles in the school play.

The marriage of the young couple came as quite a surprise, due to the fact that Miss Jimmy Smith, young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Smith, and sister of the groom, was quietly married to W. E. Jordon at Quanah, Monday. Miss Smith also attended the local high school.

STITCH AND CHATTER CLUB

Mrs. Clyde Crass was the delightful hostess to the Stitch and Chatter club at her home on West Roosevelt avenue Thursday afternoon. A very happy afternoon was spent in embroidering and "chatting," while late in the afternoon refreshments of pineapple ice cream and cake was served to the following guests: Mesdames Tefis Bickley, Byron Wilbanks, Frank Buttler, Eland Stearns, J. C. Wilbanks, of Lubbock, and the hostess, Mrs. Ed Rownsler will be hostess next week.

NEW CAMP FIRE GROUP

Miss Mabel Mabrey, the newly recommended guardian for a group of Camp Fire Girls met with her girls Thursday afternoon at the club room at which time a name was discussed for the group, but no name definitely decided upon. Officers were lected at this meeting, the following being their names and offices: President, Rose Mary Magee; vice-president, Odessa Stidham; scribe, Elizabeth Cooper; secretary, Blonnie Wear; song leader, Pauline Allison. Others present wree Elizabeth Barrow, Irene Cooper, Alma Bell Walton, Ethel Hamilton, Modena Stroud and the guardian. Plans were discussed for the improving of the club room, and adding pictures to it.

Y. W. CIRCLE

The Young Women's Circle of the First Baptist church met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. E. Schlemeyer on East Ida avenue with Mesdames C. C. Stidham and J. C. Mozley acting as hostesses.

Mrs. J. L. Graham conducted the lesson which was taken from the book "How to Pray," with the lesson being very interesting and inspiring. Sentence prayers followed.

In the business session, plans were discussed for raising money on the church and also to help dress the girl graduate in the Buckners Orphanage. After the business a social hour was enjoyed in which the hostess served a salad plate with tea to sixteen members present. Mrs. O. L. Laumen will be hostess to the circle next week.

PROGRAM SUNDAY MORNING

A nice program has been arranged for the Men's Bible class meeting next Sunday morning at the First Methodist church. The entertainment committee has invited the supervisors of the various are departments of the Electra public schools to take part in the program, and next Sunday morning expect to be favored with a piano concert by Miss Mary Ellen Scott, teacher of piano. The old Gospel singsong that is held by the class every Sunday morning is attracting wide attention and has proven popuar with the class. The members of the class will be glad to learn that the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Baker, Lila Lee, will favor the class with a reading.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH LADIES

A lovely three course chicken dinner was served by the ladies of the Christian church to delegates at the Eastern Star school of instruction. The color scheme of spring flowers was carried out and about 150 guests were served during the evening. The members of the Lampas club of the Christian church served the food, each lady wearing a white frock.

Two new members were taken into the society. Mesdames Bud Claypool and H. A. Mitchell, with Mrs. Hopkins as the guest. Refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames H. A. Mitchell, A. C. Rippy, J. H. Elliott O. E. McDavid, T. H. Parmley, Tom Vanderventer, Billie Riggs, Frank Terrell, Mrs. John Dyson and the hostess.

CICLE D.

Circle B of the Methodist church met with Mrs. Talley on North Wichita Street at the usual hour Monday. Mrs. A. N. Richardson, conducted the devotional with Mesdames W. B. Babcock and J. B. Hopkins having the lesson from the "Views of Japan." In the social hour refreshments were served to Mesdames A. N. Richardson, W. B. Babcock, J. B. Hopkins, Archie McDavid, Homer Hill, J. C. Hunt, W. A. Hughes, Ella Jackson, Herbert Stroud, L. J. Crawford, J. C. McDavid, Bill Baker, C. W. Coffey, Pitts, Proctor, Stinnett and Miss Katie Jackson.

"FORTY-TWO" PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Weaver were hostesses to a two tables of "forty-two" at their home on North Waggoner Street. Those playing were Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Saye, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Bilbrey, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Reneau and Mr. and Mrs. Weaver. Fruit and candy were served during the games, and at the conclusion of the evening, ice cream and cake was served. Mr. and Mrs. Bilbrey were the honored guests as they leave this week for Archer City.

HONORS RECENT BRIDE.

Mr. A. L. Bobo was charming hostess at a dinner party at her lovely new home on North Main Street Wednesday evening honoring Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Jordan. Mrs. Jordan was formerly Miss Jimmy Smith of this city whose marriage was solomnized Monday afternoon at Quanah. The guests list included Mesdames C. A. Morris and Anna L. Cross, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Smith and son, Aldon Smith; Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Sadler, and Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Ryan and daughter, Gloria June of Burkburnett, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Robb, Dink Robb and the honoree, Mr. and Mrs. Jordan.

The dinner was served at 6 o'clock and consisted of six courses, with the decorations in the lovely dining room being in the spring flower motif, with snap dragons, roses and carnation in profusion. Soft shaded candles added to the effect.

After dinner music and a general social time was enjoyed in the drawing room until late. The honorees leave Thursday for their new home in Vernon.

MEETING AT NAZARENE CHURCH.

The Nazarene church on North Wilbarger Street was the scene of an all day meeting Wednesday when the following program was scheduled for the day. 10:00, devotional by Mrs. George Clark of Wichita Falls; 10:45 o'clock special music. 11 o'clock, Rev. Mrs. Rosa Engle of Wichita Falls made an address; 12 o'clock a bountiful lunch was spread on the lawn of the church with about 150 people attending the lunch; 1:30, song and prayer service; 2 o'clock, a forty-five minute discussion on "How to Finance the Local Church," by J. P. Ingle of Wichita Falls. Special music, 3 o'clock, "How to Reach Young Folks," by Mrs. Maude Busby; 3:30 o'clock, discussion on "How to Build and Maintain a Woman's Missionary Society," by Rev. J. D. Wiggington.

This group meeting was well attended with the building filled to capacity in the evening, which service began at 7:45, with Rev. J. P. Ingle conducting the service.

VERNON GIRL WEDS AT ELECTRA.

Miss Marguerite Francis Anderson, a prominent member of the younger set in Vernon and a young daughter of one of the oldest established families in that city became the bride of Mr. Tom David of Mansfield, La., at 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening at the Baptist parsonage with Rev. E. M. Francis, saying the ring ceremony. The young couple was accompanied by Miss Gladys Walker, also a prominent member of the younger set in that city. The bride wore a frock of orchid georgette and carried an arm bouquet of bride's roses.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple motored to Vernon, but will make their home in Nocona. The bride is well known in Electra having visited here on many occasions, and has many friends in this city. She is graduate of the Vernon high school.

CONCORDIA NIGHT PARTY.

Mesdames Robert McGann and Claude Suggs were joint hostesses Wednesday to the Concordia Bridge club with the husbands as special guests at the home of Mrs. McGann on South Main Street. In the games, Mrs. Dannie Dale received a linen set as the high score for the women, while a box of linen handkerchiefs were presented to Ed Latimer as he high score for the men. Sweet peas were used for decorations and at the conclusion of the games, ice cream and cake with iced tea were served. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Barr and Mr. and Mrs. Dannie Dale as guests, with thje others being Mr. Mrs. Ed Latimer, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gookin, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Gillis, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Grizzle, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lebus, Messrs. Robert McGann and Claude Suggs and the hostess.

WICHITAN GIVES RECITAL

Miss Margurite Fisher of Wichita Falls, assisted by Mrs. J. Brown Hopkins, vocal soloist and Miss Sallye Huffaker, accompanist, gave a highly entertaining recital at the home of Mrs. F. W. Weaver on North Waggoner Street, Wednesday afternoon under the auspices of Circle C of the Ladies Missionary society of the First Methodist church. The program was attended by fifty guests and was greatly appreciated. Between the numbers Mesdames Fred Muder, W. L. Rivers and Austin served light refreshments.

The program was as follows:

First number "Legend on the Sacred Village," piano accompanist, Mrs. E. Y. Haltom.

Second number, (a) "Olga Olsen Has Her Picture Taken;" (b) "Angeline at the Seelbacks;" encore, "When Fat Women Diet."

(The first two numbers were in costumes and given as costume monologues.)

Third numbers, vocal selections, "The Old Roads," "Spring Song," "Old Refrain," "Smilin' Thru," by Mrs. J. Brown Hopkins, accompanied by Miss Sallye Huffaker.

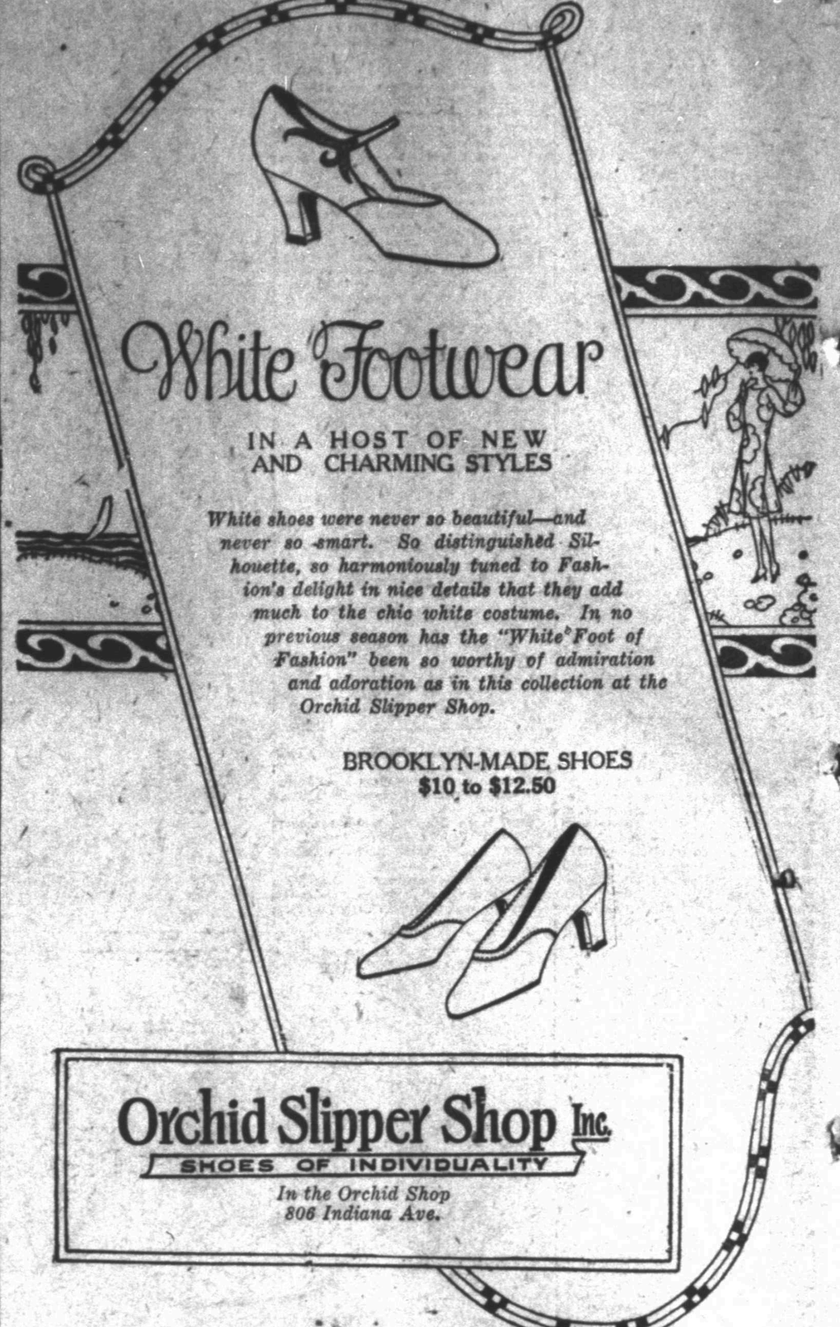

Fourth number, two dialect monologues.

(a) When Men Propose.
(b) Nicoletta.

Athenian Club Holds Meeting At Library

Members of the Athenian club met at the library and began the study of the new chautauqua text book, "The Nature and History of Art," with Mrs. S. P. Jones directing the lesson. Seven chapters were given, the lesson being divided by the members.

Mrs. Charles Pridgen, delegate from the club to the first district federation meeting held at Vernon, gave her report, and during the business session Mrs. B. B. Crafe made a report on the club's work done in the Forum building fund drive.

Those present were Mesdames L. P. Amason, T. J. Brock, W. M. Barringer, B. T. Burgess, Paul Barnett, Frank Creighton, R. B. Craft, A. R. Cannon, S. P. Jones, H. G. Harris, C. B. Montgomery, Charles Pridgen, C. W. Rountree and J. F. Vincent.

Stolen Altus Cars Recovered in Texas

ALTUS, May 1.—The Ford roadster belonging to E. E. Gibbons, stolen on the streets of Altus Feb. 16, and the one stolen from L. K. Glenn on the streets here Feb. 9, were located by members of the Jackson county sheriff's force this week in Haskell, Texas.

The cars are believed to have been stolen by Claude Wilson who is now in the federal jail in Oklahoma City. Wilson was held in the Jackson county jail for about one month on a charge of stealing the cars, and was later held in jail in Frederick for a similar charge before being turned over to the federal officers when the cars were located.

Paroled Convict Sentenced Again

ALTUS, May 1.—Luke Tenney, who pleaded guilty Thursday in district court, to a charge of forgery in the second degree, was sentenced by Frank Mathews, district judge, to serve one year in the state penitentiary at McAlester, and was taken there today by J. L. English, sheriff.

He formerly served a term in the penitentiar on a charge of homicide, was released on parole, the parole was revoked on a charge of passing a bad check and he was released from the state penitentyiary Feb. 24, according to Lonnie Yates, county attorney.

HAMLIN

BRIDGE CLUB

Mrs. L. E. Morgan delightfully entertained the members of the Twentieth Century club at her home on Central Ave. on Thursday afternoon. The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and blooming pot plants.

At the close of the games of bridge Mrs. J. T. Bynum won high score. Delightful refreshment plates were served to the following guests: Mrs. J. T. Bynum, Frank Waggoner, B. Mosley, H. S. Scales, C. OLNEY

FIRST PICNIC OF THE SEASON

The first picnic of the season was planned Tuesday evening, when a dozen or more young people met at the Farmer home, from which place they planned to go to the lake for a picnic spread. But due to a sudden downpour, the nature of the entertainment was changed and the crowd enjoyed a movie.

Those present were Misses Hallye, and Anne Farmer, Ione Wallace, Janette Scott, Rosena Sipes and Messrs. Glen Nixon, Olin Calvin, Ernest Edwards, Raymond Garett, Richard Suite, Dudley Myers, Bill Hallman, and Richard Daly.

MRS. LUNN HEADS W. M. U.

At a business meeting Monday at the First Baptist church, Mrs. W. N. Lunn was elected president of the local organization for the coming year. Mrs. Lunn's election fills the vacancy which occured at the resignation of Mrs. Thomas Guimarin several weeks ago.

After the election the new president asked for suggestions for next year's programs. There were 12 women present.

BOYS' CLASS FETED

One of the social events of the year was the banquet tendered the Boys' Class, "Progressives" at the First Christian church on Friday evening, the cumination of an automobile contest in which the boys in their Fords gave all the Packards and Cadillacs their dust.

The banquet table was beautiful in its decorations of cut flowers and hand-painted place cards. The following menu was well-prepared and served beautifully by representatives of the other classes in the school: baked ham, creamed potatoes, new peas in timbales, pickles, cheese straws, ice cream, and angel food cake.

After the feast, various games and contests were enjoyed. Those present were:

Mrs. and Mrs. E. B. Madden, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weber, Mesdames Henry Groves, Marvin Burris, Perry Killian, Misses Chorene Shaw, Mozelle Duckworth, Vergie Grisham, Neta Flake Burris, Cora Lee Hughes, Esther Perry and Messrs. M. M. U. MONDAY

With Mesdames M. D. Council and A. D. McMillan hostesses to the Methodist's Missionary society, enjoyed an interesting program and social hour Monday at the Church.

The subject for the afternoon was, "The Council at Work in Japan." Mrs. S. J. Dinsmore was leader of the devotionals, and was followed by two talks by Mesdames M. P. McCracken and Clyde Gibson on, "The Bennett Memorial Leaflet" and "The Bulletin." Mrs. W. C. Harrell led the round table discussion and the program was concluded by a prayer by Mrs. J. D. Rodgers. A goodly sum was reported realized from the chicken dinner sale Saturday.

At the conclusion of the program the hostesses assisted by Mesdames R. A. Drum and T. L. Blewett served a salad plate to those present.

ALTUS, May 1.—Olustee senior and junior schools won the loving cups of the eighteenth annual Jackson county athletic and oratorical meet and Headrick school won second in class A of the senior and junior departments. Altus won third in these classes.

In the senior boys' track events of the meet Olustee scored one point higher than Altus while in the girls' track events Altus scored one point higher than Olustee.

Aaron won the senior and junior silver loving cups for class C.

Burch, of Olustee, was high point man; Reid of Altus, second, and Hurst of Headrick, third, for the senior department, and Patton, of Martha, first; Russell, of Altus, second, and Crane, of Altus, third, in the junior department.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 88

"Purges" and "Physics" Bad for Old Folks

While Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, knew that constipation was the curse of advancing age, he did not believe that a "purge" or "physic" every little while was necessary.

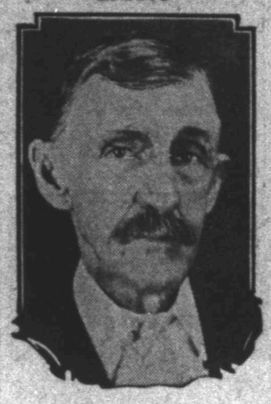

To him, it seemed cruel that so many constipated old people had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, colomel and nasty oils.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to "regulate" the bowels of old folks. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy movement but each does helps to strengthen the bowel muscles, shortly establishing natural "regularity." It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

If past fifty, buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

SEEKS TO RULE MOTOR EXPRESS

State Rail Commission Would Extend Scope Of Its Powers

AUSTIN, May 1.—Legislation to enable the state railroad commission to exercise supervision of motor express lines, and probably over motor bus and freight commercial lines as well, was recommended by the commission in its 24th annual report, filed with Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson Saturday.

Specific news laws covering motor transportation and other phases of the railroads commission's duties, will be submitted just before the opening of the 40th legislature, the report said. "There are some needed amendments to the law which should be enacted," the commission said. "The duties and responsibilities of the railroad commission are greater and more far-reaching today than they have ever been before. The volume, magnitude and complexity of our duties are growing constantly."

Has Made Supervision.

The Texas railroad commission corresponds to general utilities bodies of many states, and supervises railroads, motor express lines, express companies, and pipelines as common carriers. One division supervises gas utilities; one department controls the issuance of stock by railroads; one fixes, supervises and regulates freight, express and passenger rates not in conflict with interstate rates; one department administers oil and gas conservation laws; and the auditing department follows the required reports of all railroads.

The commission's report points out it has regulatory power concerning and may issue lawful orders affecting property in Texas far exceeding a billion and a half dollars in value.

Limitations Unimportant.

"While the development of commerce and the general tendency of the times have thrown some restrictions around the exercise by all states of rate-making authority," the report said, "the limitations are by no means as far-reaching as many suppose them to be. Since the decision in the Shreveport rate case—it has been necessary for all state commissions to take into consideration whether or not proposed state rates would become a real discrimination against or unjust burden upon interstate commerce. This decision and the transportation act of 1920, mean simply a greater right of appeal from the judgment of state commissions to the interstate commission, in principle the same as the appeal of cases from one court to other courts. Within the limitation, all state rates are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the railroad commission.

Two for One

AUSTIN, May 1.—Two men by the same name in the race for the same office is a possibility which is being hinted here. George B. Terrell is a candidate for re-election as commissioner of agriculture. It is said George Terrell of Houston is likely to enter the race as his opponent; though so far as known here there has been no definite announcement by the Houston man.

In case George Terrell of Houston does enter the campaign, however, there will be four Terrells on the democratic primary ticket for state offices: George B. Terrell, present commissioner, and himself for the agricultural department, C. V. Terrell for re-election as railroad commissioner and S. W. Terrell for re-election as comptroller.

Amnesty Bill By Which Ferguson Was Cleared May Be Repealed Or Revamped as Legislature Wants

Complexion of Each House to Govern What Is Done In Way of Official Vindication, Loftin Finds In Considering Candidacy

BY S. RAYMOND BROOKS.
Record News Staff.

AUSTIN, May 1.—"When is a pardon not a pardon?" has been answered.

"Whenever you repeal the amnesty bill," seems to be the answer.

The attitude of Representative Rube Loftin of Clay county toward becoming a candidate for speaker of the next house indicates the same amnesty contest which brought on the most bitterly-fought battle of recent years, will shove its way to the front early in the next session—even into the elections this year, entirely aside from the Ferguson candidacy for re-election.

This has focussed attention on the undisputed fact the noted amnesty bill is just a general law like any other, and can be repealed or amended by a majority of the legislature.

Repealed or Revamped.

Not only can it be repealed, but it can be repealed, re-enacted, re-repealed, rehashed, revamped, revised or reconstructed at the varying wishes of succeeding legislatures.

That the beneficiary and future beneficiaries—of this bill may be "pardoned" as the term was frequently used in its enactment, for a two-year period, and then not pardoned for the next two years, and then maybe pardoned again, depends simply upon the complexion of each legislature, whether a majority are for or against the amnesty bill.

May Be Candidate.

Mr. Loftin, in discussing the speakership, admitted he may be a candidate for the office, but prefers to look over the ground and size up the membership before he decides finally. The election of the speaker is by the house members themsives at the beginning of the session. If he concludes a majority of Ferguson friends are in the house, this will have much to do with his candidacy. If it is overwhelmingly opposed to the present administration, then he will probably remain out of what would thus promise to be a three-cornered race.

The amnesty bill was easier to enact than the original judgment it declares it sets aside. That is, it took 21 senators to carry the impeachment judgment; but it would have required only 16 senators to pass the amnesty bill and a simple majority of the house members.

SUMMER SCHOOL

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—A summer session for foreign students modeled after summer schools in American colleges and universities will start at the University of Berlin, July 15. France Kicking On Too Many Aliens

PARIS, May 1.—(AP)—French people are complaining that their country is getting to be too much of a "melting pot". They feel that they are being overrun by foreigners, not those who come as tourists, but those who come to settle.

As an example, the part of this foreign element plays in general labor is given by the personnel of a cafe-restaurant, where the proprietor is the only representative of France. The cashier is a Turkish woman, the two waiters are Spanish, the orchestra is composed of a violinist who is Belgian, an English pianist, a Polish saxophonist and a Martinique native for jazz effects. This restaurant is in a leading seaport of Brittany, where foreigners are most likely to be found, but there are many foreigners in other cities.

COW CATCHERS FOR AUTOS

Locomotive Idea Adopted for Motor Cars on Streets of London.

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—The American railroad "cow catcher" has been introduced in London streets in the form of a safety first apparatus on automobiles.

The "cow catcher" as used here, is attached to the front wheels of motor cars, the idea being that the unwary pedestrian will be thrown to one side rather than run over. The device has attracted much attention, as its like has never been seen here before. English locomotives like those on the straight fronts and to Americans on Continent are cow catcherless, having gear as if not completed.

The invention came out just after the announcement was made by Sir William Johnson-Hicks, home secretary, that more than ten persons were killed on the roads of England every day last year.

Whiteman Will Play in France

PARIS, May 1.—When the Paris musical world learned that jazz had invaded the Metropolitan Opera house in New York, there was considerable tilting of noses with the feeling that no such profanation was possible within the "National Academy of Music" as the Paris Opera house is known.

Now it has been announced by Comoedia officials that Paul Whiteman's band of American jazz artists will give two concerts at the opera during the latter part of June.

The recent presentation of a jazz ballet at the Metropolitan brought comment from musical Paris, that after all it was no great matter that a "new rich" musical organization like the Metropolitan should admit "freak music."

BURKBURNETT

NEEDLE CLUB

Mrs. A. J. Key entertained the Wednesday Needle club this week in her pretty home on East Fourth street where the hours passed in a session of brief business considerations, friendly gossip and flying needles.

The special social hour was featured with a surprise shower for Mrs. O. C. Wills in honor of her birthday anniversary; and a most attractive and well useful collection of cup towels were presented and added to her household linens.

The closing favor of the hostess was a splendid plate of angel food cake, pie, almonds and coffee, served to the following members assembled: Mesdames J. S. Mills, E. W. Windham, M. E. Prinzing, S. B. Baker, George Armstrong, W. M. (Dutch) Wolfe, S. G. Cruse, R. M. Maloney, J. D. Majors, J. L. Boase, O. C. Wills and Mrs. K. C. Spell and little son Kenneth Spell of Wichita Falls, also other children of the members, Frank Cruse, James Bosse and Jonita Majors.

ENTERTAINS FOR SON

On Monday afternoon Mrs. Earl Kincaid assisted by her visiting sister, Mrs. Freda K. Egle, entertained ten little boys and girls in special honor of her son, Nolen Kincaid's eighth birthday.

The young folk had a merry time in games, jokes and gay laughter, spending most of the time on the pretty lawn in the spring sunshine.

Following the fun and frolic a real treat of cake and cream was enjoyed supplemented with joy of cutting the big birthday cake. And the favors were police whistles for the boys, and tiny umbrella for the girls.

Those enjoying Nolen's happy party were the following friends and playmates: R. G. Wilson, David Samson, Claude Petty Billie Walling Wilbur Kincaid, Wanda Gale Covington, Marion and Margaret Boden, Virginia Lee Skipwith and Martha K. Alexander.

CARROLL B. Y. P. U.

The Carroll B. Y. P. U. met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Robertson Tuesday evening in business session.

The meeting was opened with song followed by prayer by Mr. Hullum; after which business matter relative to this branch of the church work was presented and discussed.

A social hour closed the gathering and was featured by the enjoyment of a refreshment treat of strawberry shortcake by the following ladies and gentlemen present: Mr. and Mrs. S. A. M. Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. Gotsher, Mr. and Mrs. Hullum, Mr. Stallings and Mr. and Mrs. Robertson.

SELF CULTURE CLUB

The Mother's Self Culture club held its regular meeting Tuesday afternoon in the First Baptist church building and was called to order by the president, Mrs. Rex Smith.

Following a brief business session during which Mrs. J. Frank Kelley was admitted as a new member, the program was turned over to Mrs. A. H. Lohoefner, leader for the afternoon, on the lesson topic: "What the Child Means to its Parents." Those taking part in the round table discussion were Mrs. Ed Williams and Mrs. R. D. Cunningham. Mrs. Loehoefner then introduced Mrs. S. G. Cruse who gave a splendid review of the story: "The Child's Dream of a Star."

The young mothers report the session to have been one of unusual interest and inspiration. Those present were: Mesdames C. D. White, S. G. Cruse, H. A. Dodson, Rx D. Smith, Butler Westerfield, A. H. Loheofner, J. Frank Kelley, R. D. Cunningham, A. R. Hill, C. R. Cowles, Ed J. Williams, R. H. McFarlane, J. D. Majors Joe Cariker, Jewell Covington and W. B. Hogg.

SEYMOUR

KING'S DAUGHTERS ENTERTAIN

One of the loveliest affairs of the spring season was given at the Baptist church on Tuesday afternoon when the King's Daughters, a class of young matrons, entertained members of the T. E. L. class and all teachers of the Sunday school.

The auditorium of the church was never more beautifully decorated, transformed as it seemed into a veritable spring garden with spring flowers in all the delicate pastel shades, intermingled among ferns, palms and greenery. Other decorations in pink and white, the class colors, gave a lovely color note.

In the receiving line were Mesdames L. W. Dalton, D. A. Holman, Roy Whiteside, E. A. Newman, Chas. Caldwell, W. T. McWilliams, H. K. Jackson, F. E. Culver, R. E. Ford, B. C. Johnson and W. F. Kirkland. Iced punch was served the guests on entering by Mrs. R. E. Ford and Cas. L. Caldwell.

The program delighted all who were so fortunate as to attend, opening by singing "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" followed by prayer by Mrs. R. E. Ford. "Have Thine Own Way," the class song, was sung by King's Daughters. The welcome was given in well chosen words by Mrs. L. W. Dalton, teacher of the class, Mrs. W. E. Bailes responding for the T. E. L. class. Other numbers composing the program were: Class History, paper read by Mrs. F. E. Culver; vocal solo, Mrs. W. T. McWilliams; reading, Alice Newman; piano solo, Mrs. R. A. McCurry; reading, Mrs. Otis Avery; vocal solo, Mrs. L. G. Slogner of Wichita Falls. Several contests were enjoyed following the program, after which a refreshment plate of brick ice cream and angel food cake, in the class colors of pink and white was served. Tiny pennants of the class were cleverly used as favors About seventy-five attended.

WINNERS AT I. L. MEET

Seymour was proud of her representatives from the city schools in the various contests of the district interscholastic league meet held in Iowa Park. Contestants returned with three first places in literary events. Nicholas Mitchell won first in extemporaneous speaking. VACATION COSTS RISE

PARIS, May 1.—(AP)—Summer vacations in France will be more expensive for tourists this year with a new 10 per cent increase in all railroad fares going into effect, probably early in May. The new rates will make journeys more than three times as costly as they were in July, 1914.

The 10 per cent increases, now being prepared by the minister of public works, added to those put in force the first of the year, make a total of 25 per cent since January 1. The new first class rates work out at virtually two cents per mile.

A Mother's Confidence

"I HAVE been familiar with the benefits of Cardui ever since I was a girl," says Mrs. John Brown, of near Cleveland, Tenn. A recent picture of Mrs. Brown is reproduced above.

"I first took it when I was in my teens," she says, "and my mother took it before me. It was from her that I first learned of this splendid medicine. She gave me several bottles, and I remember that it helped me a lot.

"After I married, I suffered from weakness, so I asked my husband to get me some Cardui to take, which he did, and I was soon feeling much better.

"I have been married thirty-five years, and during that time I have had occasion to take Cardui several times, and every time it has been of great benefit to me. I can heartily endorse it. I have given it to my daughters, as they grew up. It is a splendid tonic."

The above statement is convincing evidence of the high regard in which Cardui is held.

"My mother took it . . . . I have given it to my daughters."—Confidence, indeed.

Your druggist can supply you with this well-known, purely vegetable compound.

Perpetual Care Cemetery

A reserve fund set aside out of every sale of a lot is just as essential to perpetuate a cemetery as it is for a reserve fund to be set aside out of your premium to make good your life insurance policy.

It has been found by experience in old and settled communities that cemeteries operated by cities or individuals which do not have a reserve fund finally grow up in weeds, and in many places houses are built where the dead were formerly buried.

When you buy a lot buy in the place that gives you this protection. We will sell you a lot on easy terms to be paid for over a period of years.

"American Venus" To Headline Excellent Movie Bills

What the Movie Theatres of Wichita Falls Are Offering This Week

BEAUTIES WILL RULE STAGE AT THE OLYMPIC

"American Venus" to Be Presented This Week

One of the most widely publicized and eagerly awaited screen productions will be unfolded to local moviegoers next Sunday when Paramount's magnificent beauty comedy spectacle, "The American Venus," begins a three days' run at the Olympic theatre.

This is the photoplay that has the recent Atlantic City bathing beauty pageant for its colorful background, and which includes in the personnel of its cast Fay Lanphier, who was crowned "Miss America," several of the leading national beauty contestants, twenty of the loveliest mannequins in America, to say nothing of a brilliant group of film and stage favorites, headed by Esther Ralston, Lawrence Gray and Ford Sterling.

This wondrous array of youth, beauty and talent is further enhanced by the most lavish and luxurious costumes, sets and scenic effects ever seen on the screen. The high point of spectacular display in the picture is the sumptuous fashion show and the artistic tableaux, which were filmed in color.

The theme of the story is a beauty contest staged by a group of artists who are desirous of finding a modern American Venus. The personalities who become involved in the tangled skein of the plot are a small town girl, who enters the contest to help boost her father's complexion creams, her press agent-lover, and a rival beauty cream manufacturer and his son who attempts to defeat her ambitions for selfish business reasons.

The picture sets a swift pace from the moment it begins to unreel and maintains the interest and suspense right up to the final stirring finish. There is comedy in abundance, heart appeal galore and thrills aplenty. In fact, the hair-raising motorcycle race and dizzy aerial stunts are guaranteed to give the most blase film fan a few extra palpitations of the heart.

Frank Tuttle has deftly directed the production which is based on Townsend Martin's original story.

Marian Nixon Now Real Daughter Of Picturesque West

Marion Nixon is now a real daughter of the West—by experience.

The petite Fox star, since first playing opposite Buck Jones, has learned steadily through leading roles with Tom Mix and other western players, until today she has acquired a great knowledge of the "wild and wooly."

Miss Nixon's latest role with Buck is in "Durand of the Bad Lands" which comes to the Gem theatre today, and in this production she displays mastery of her teachings. Now she drives horses with a snap, gallops wildly over perilous country, and, in all, handles her horse like one brought up with them.

"Durand of the Baad Lands" was directed by Lynn Reynolds, one of the most noted makers of western films, and is announced as the most thrilling picture in which Buck Jones has ever appeared.

Malcolm Waite, Fred De Silva Carol Lombard, Buck Black and James Corrigan are cast in major supporting roles.

DeMille's Great Picture Coming To The Mission

The Red Sea and San Francisco are about five thousand miles apart. The Israelites led by Moses on their exodus from Egypt are separated by about forty centures from Sunday afternoon jazz dancing today. Yet, Cecil B. DeMille has managed to put them together convincingly in his picturization of "The Ten Commandments." This great Paramount picture is coming to the Mission theatre on Sunday, where it will be shown for the fist time at popular prices.

The modern story opens on a devout mother driving one of her two sons from home because he will not "apologize to God," for what she believes sacrilege. The son goes out into the world, not bitterly, but boyishly exultant, to smash every commandment. Then DeMille develops his theme that "if you try to break the Ten Commandments they'll break you."

A gorgeous Biblical episode, done in natural colors, is enacted by such popular players as Estelle Taylor, Theodore Roberts, James Neill, Charles de Roche, and Lawson Butt. The two million persons who have paid from one to two dollars to see this greatest of Paramount pictures testify that the highest point the cinema art has yet reached, has been achieved in this most ambitious directorial effort of Cecil B. DeMille.

CHEAPER FOR NATIVES

Tourists in France Charged More for Hotel and Other Accommodations.

PARIS, May 1.—(AP)—Although it has always been so, but never openly admitted, it is becoming a recognized thing that tourists pay more than the natives in France. A French woman, married to an Englishman, stopping off at a Vignon on the way to the Riviera was given a room at a hotel marked sixty francs. When it was learned that she was French and that she lived in France the price was lowered to 45 francs, and the manager explained that the hotel wished to cultivate native clients who might return or send their friends, whereas the foreign tourist was not likely to pay a second visit to the town.

TOO MANY SUICIDES

Berlin Official Alarmed at Number Who Annually Take Their Lives.

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—The rate at which Berliners tire of life and commit suicide is still alraming city authorities. Although self inflicted deaths have dropped slowly in the years following the inflation period, the average is more than four a day.

Official statistics show 1,127 suicides last year, 102 of which were persons over 70 years old, and eight of persons under fifteen. There were 96 murders, excluding those where the slayers committed suicide before being apprehended.

IBANEZ FILM TO BE SHOWN AT THE STRAND

tVivid Spanish Picture Is Produced by Metro Company

Translating and adapting a novel for the screen at the same time was the odd feat of Dorothy Farnum, noted scenarist, in preparing the scenario, of "Ibanez' Torrent," the vivid new Cosmopolitan feature to be seen at the Strand theatre, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

The new story, produced on a massive scale with Ricardo Cortez, Greta Garbo and a notable cast, and directed by Monta Bell, is from the famous Spanish novel by Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

Miss Farnum started an adaptation from an English translation of the book, then decided that she might have missed some of its story values as, she holds, translations often lose the color of the originals in another language. So she obtained a Spanish copy of the work and, with the aid of a translator and her own knowledge of Spanish, had it translated verbatim.

Such a translation would not read so freely as one into which colloquial English phrases replace the Spanish, but, she says, gives a much better basis for screen adaptation.

The new story, a romantic tale of the love of a young Spanish statesman and an operatic prima donna, was given a lavish production at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, with gorgeous settings representing famous operas of the world, the Madrid royal throne room and other locales.

FANS POPULAR AGAIN.

LONDON, May 1.—Fans are becoming popular again. Queen Mary has had her monogram surmounted by a crown set in small pearls on the handle of a black spangled fan for use this summer. Many fashionable shops are already showing fans with pearls and other gems in harmony with the color of the fans.

ED WYNN'S QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN

"THE PERFECT FOOL"

He Knows All—He Sees All

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I'm the fellow you hollered at last night in the automobile. I was in a hurry so could not stop to help you. I saw you and your wife slip and fall and also saw the lamp post fall over on top of you both. Sorry I couldn't stop to help you. How did you get out of your truble?

Yours truly,
I Auto Stopped.

Answer: We didn't slip. It was the wind which ble us over and also ble the lamp post over on top of us.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I sent for the postmaster and he took the post office. (off us).

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Will water always put out a fire?

Yours truly,
N. Surance.

Answer: Not always. I know of a case where a man threw a match off the Brooklyn Bridge and it lit on the ater.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I have been keeping company with a young lady for two years. We are engaged to be married. Every time I kiss her she closes her eyes. Why does she do that?

Sincerely,
J. Cups.

Answer: Send me your photograph and I'll answer that.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a bank messenger and carry an enormous payroll every Tuesday. With all this crime wave going on what would you advise me to do?

Sincerely,
S. Kared.

Answer: Play safe.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I have travelled all over the world. Evehything is hustle bustle. There seems to be no sentiment left in the world. Is there one place in the world where I can find "happiness" and "contentment?"

Yours truly,
Phil. Osofer.

Answer: There sure is. You can find them both in the dictionary.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a young man, just 20 years old. I have a good position and earn good wages. I want to get married but I am afraid of having trouble because I'd rather play golf than eat. Is it possible to find a wife who will stand for that?

Truly yours,
N. Theruff.

Answer: A man who would rather play golf than eat should marry a girl who would rather play bridge than cook.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am 27 years of age and a travelling salesman. I am madly in love with a girl who lives in Harrisburgh and feel the same about another girl who lives in Albany. Can a man love two girls?

Yours truly,
Isell Ketchup.

Answer: Sure. As they live in different cities you're perfectly safe.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
While riding in a bus last night, a woman got on and just as she paid her fare the bus started and she fell in the street. I told the driver, but he kept right on driving. Did he do right?

Yours truly,
Paise U. Enter.

Answer: He did perfectly right. He figured as long as the woman had paid her fare she could do as she pleased.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
I am a man 42 years of age and live in a boarding house. I love the landlady and also love her daughter. Which one shall I marry?

Sincerely.

Answer: That is very easy to decide. If you marry the mother you will soon lose the daughter, while, on the other hand, if you marry the daughter you will never be able to lose the mother.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Do you believe in equal rights for men and women? I do. Is there anything a man can be that a woman can't be?

Truly yours.

Answer: Yes there is something a man can be that a woman can't be. That's a "father" to a big fmily.

Dear Mr. Wynn:
Is it true that the recent liquor poll was the straw-vote intended to break the camel's back?

Yours truly,
C. Derchest.

EVERY TIME I KISS HER SHE CLOSES HER EYES.

WHICH ONE SHALL I MARRY?

Answer next week.

ED WYNN.
The Perfect Fool.

(Ed Wynn, as he has often told you, is one of the wisest men in the world. He sees all—he known all. Do you think you can stump him with any kind of a question? If you do, send it to him in care of the editor of this paper and watch for his reply.))

Eczema Disfigured Baby Sister's Face Cuticura Healed

"My baby sister had eczema very badly on her face, arms and back. It broke out in fine pimples that itched, and when she scratched the affected parts sore eruptions formed. Her face was very much disfigured, and she was restless at night. The trouble lasted many weeks.

"We used other remedies without success and then sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. After a few applications there was an improvement so we purchased more, and after using one box of Cuticura Ointment and two cakes of Soap she was healed." (Signed) Miss Eula M. Patterson, Appomattox, Va., July 13, 1925.

Clear the pores of impurities by daily use of Cuticura Soap, with touches of Cuticura Ointment as needed to soothe and heal. Cuticura Talcum is fragrant and refreshing, an ideal toilet powder.

Last Majestic Bill To Be One of Season's Most Pleasing

VARIED NUMBER OF OFFERINGS ON THIS WEEK

Dance, Song, Music And Fun Combined On Program

With the last bill of the season the Majestic theatre offers this week what is said to be one of the best bills of the season, too. The theatre will close for the summer after the curtain is rung down on the final act Friday night.

To begin with it presents the Kelso Brothers, assisted by Florence Darley and Maurie Kelly in their "Crazy Quilt Revue" which is made up of a little bit of everything put together in an attractive vaudeville manner. Music, dancing, foolishness and all the rest are incorporated in the number.

Billy DeLisle and company in "A Variety of Surprises" have a versatile offering in which real surprises tumble after each other in rapid fashion. DeLisle is one of the premier entertainers on the stage today and has surrounded himself with a capable vaudeville company.

"Outside the Circus" is a skit on life around the big top. It is given by a company that thoroughly understands what it has to do and presents an admirable portrayal of what really goes on among the circus folks.

Furtell's jungle lions is an act unusual in the extreme. Capt. Louis Furtell, a young man although a seasoned big game hunter and explorer, has trained a number of big man eaters in a manner that keeps the crowds gasping. His beasts go through all sorts of thrillers and present an attraction that is seldom seen on the stage or elsewhere for that matter.

To conclude, the Majestic offers another dance revue, "A Patter of Footsteps," with Frank Mack and Norene Thrash. The latter is a Texas girl and is well known in this city.

A company of five present the offering, which is said to be one of the liveliest and most colorful numbers ever brought to vaudeville.

The feature picture will be Harold Lloyd in "Among Those Present."

Roaming The Air

BY S. D. FOX.

Practically every nationality was represented in a two-hour program at KOA April 21. The program was arranged by the students and professors of the Colorado School of Mines.

A contest is being carried on by a Denver paper to obtain a new word which will describe in one breath an earth-girdling broadcast attempt by the Denver station KOA. The newly coined word must represent the undertaking in the same manner that "circumnavigate" and "globe-trotting" tell their story.

The outdoor concerts to be played throughout the summer by the United States Marine band will be broadcast weekly by WRC and WJZ. The concerts are presented on the monument lot in the capital's Sylvan theatre. The summer concerts will begin the week of May 29.

The American Radiou Foundation, in seeking to learn the weak points now existing in broadcasting, invites listeners to answer that question, "What, in the opinion of the radio listener, is the greatest defect or cause of complaint in the present system of broadcasting and reception?" The foundation is a New York organization with members in all but a few of the states.

Simeon Oliver, whose Eskimo name is Nutchuk, is the only Eskimo broadcasting from any station in the country regularly. He is studying music in Chicago and his ability as a pianist can be heard on Wednesday night from WJJD. Considerable interest has been aroused in the young man by virtue of his unusual ability.

"Al Short and His Boys" from the Capitol theatre are on the air each night at WOK. The "gang" recently started around the world trip and each week will represent them as being in a different port.

WSWS has instituted an editorial department, borrowing a line from the newspapers. Editorials of the day are given each night at 6:05 o'clock by Stephen A. Day, editor of the Industrial Justice magazine. Mr. Day has been chosen to head the station's newest department.

Baseball games to be broadcast play by play by WRC during May are: May 3, 4 and 5, Washington and Boston; May 6, Washington-New York; May 24 and 25, Washington-Philadelphia; May 31, Washington-New York.

Majorie Hebestreit, a WLW artist who has been absent for several months, has returned and with Irene Downing will be heard at noon each Wednesday in original pipe organ and piano duets.

The second annual radio exposition at Indianapolis will see the exhibitors demonstrating their receivers in sound proof test rooms. Plans for the exhibition already are well under way, although the show will not be held until Oct. 25.

Government figures indicate that 4.5 per cent of the farms in the United States are radio-equipped Illinois leads all other states while New York is second with total number of radio sets.

A model radio house is being exhibited on Staten Island. Practically every room in the house is supplied with radion through a master set. Special wiring and plenty of speakers assure plenty of radio, while the kitchen is supplied with its own programs through a separate receiver. The master set even has a time clock by means of which the receiver can be turned on automatically in time for the morning setting up exercises.

A New York columnist—Stuart Rogers—has entered the new field of selecting an "all-American radio team." He bases his selections on 25 classifications.

That radio is serving industry well and guarding lives in addition is shown by the report of the United States naval communication service which says that 137,092 gearings were furnished to 64,407 vessels.

The Wurlitzer collection of music instruments were heard Tuesday in a concert from WIP. These instruments were recently brought to this country from Europe and represent an investment said to be $68,000.

Edward F. Schultz, physical director of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A. is the new physical instructor of the WLW class of radio "reductionists." Lessons are broadcast at 7:30 o'clock each morning except Saturdays and Sundays.

A portable radio receiver was set up on the top of a bus running between Norwood and Cincinnati, Ohio, recently. A number of radio fans who were present at the tests reported good reception of stations in the vicinity. This is a hint for fans who motor in the summer time.

Although the heads of the radio department of the Bureau of Standards and the chief radio inspector have both been asked to conduct tests to learn the real cause of poor reception in the past few months, these men have refused to tackle the job. It is explained that the two departments are without time and funds to conduct such investigations.

WLS pays $2,500 this year for the privilege of broadcasting copyrighted music, it was learned during hearings on the proposed copyright bills.

Romance, Comedy Mingled in Film At Palace Today

The elements of comedy and young romance have been pleasantly stressed in the development of Bob Custer's latest and breeziest western vehicle, "The Ridin' Streak," slated for exhibition at the Palace theatre today.

Action, too, and vigorous melodrama have not been ignored but it is the blithesome, carefree notes of comedy and romance that combine to make "The Ridin' Streak" one of the best of the Bob Custer attractions brought to this community in many a pallid moon.

A fine cast was assembled for the production of F. B. O., by which company Mr. Custer's pictures are sponsored. Chief in support of the fast-moving young star are the personable Peggy Udell and little Billy Lord, the boy star. The story was written by William Oliver and Del Andrews directed.

Texas Girl, Sister of Wichitan, Featured on Majestic Vaudeville

Miss Norene Thrash, who appears as a headliner at the Majestic theatre this week is a native Texan and a sister of C. E. Cox of Wichita Falls, who is conducting a book shop at Tenth and Broad streets. Miss Thrash's home is in Fort Worth. Within the last two or three years she has made a name for herself in theatrical circles, however, once holding an important position with Gilda Gray. She will be in Wichita Falls Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, in connection with the Majestic bill for the week.

Wrong Numbers In Paris Prove Costly

PARIS, May 1.—Even wrong numbers on Paris telephones cost money since the rates were increased, and in big hotels it is just as expensive to get the wrong number as the right one.

The new rates have done away with all free telephoning or even reduced rates for customers in cafes and restaurants, most of which carry a sign warning regular customers that all former arrangements are ended.

Distracted Parisians feel that paying the same sum t talk to an unknown and usually ill-tempered subscriber as to the persons asked for, is the logical but bitter climax to their admittedly poor telephone service.

President of German Republic Enjoys Cigarettes But Dislikes Pipe.

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—President Von Hindenburg enjoys cigarets and smokes nothing else. He can't stand the odor of a pipe and does not like cigars.

The chief executive's strong preference for the cigaret was divulged in a statement issued the foreign office in which it was said he did not take kindly to an article by an American newspaperman in a weekly magazine.

The article, among other things described the president at "bier abend" (beer evening) squatting in a big chair, puffing a long-stemmed, fat-bowled pipe between draughts of beer from a huge mug. The president is quoted as saying he never smokes any sort of pipe.

ARTIST, CRITIC MEET

"Daub Fair" in Paris Brings Out All Classes of Those Inclined to Art.

PARIS, May 1.—(AP)—Artist and critic met on even terms in the annual "Daub Fair' 'of the Boulevard St. Michel, which this year, turned out to be unusually successful for the Montparnassian painters who exhibited in this open air salon.

Pipe in mouth, artists stood by their paintings, eager to discuss are in its deepest phases, and ready to explain to those who sought knowledge. Some of the pictures brought good sums.

The "Daub Fair" is one of the best known of the sidewalk salons of Paris and this year was heavily patronized by American tourists, appreciative of art, but not caring to pay the higher prices charged in the more pretentious showings.

Camera Wielders Don't Occasion Squawk As Pictures Will Appear and Add Beauty to Drab Lives—By Ring

To the editor:

Los Angeles is the hot bed of what is jokingly called the motion picture industry, but San Francisco offsets whatever advantage that may be by harboring more old fashioned still life photographers than there is notary publics in Florida. In fact the town is so congested with camera wielders that one half of the ain't got no home and 2 or 3 roomed with us at the hotel the first few days of our all too brief sojourn in California's former metropolis. But who am I to squawk as long as most of the pictures for which I posed has appeared or will appear in the papers and perhaps bring a touch of beauty into many a drab life. The photographer who spent the second day in our costly quarters addressed most of his remarks to the little woman and invariably called her Mrs. Runyon which was a complete surprise to both her and I and added not a little zest to his visit.

How Lange Invented Fadeaway.

San Francisco's leading P. M. paper is the Call and it did not take me long to nickname it the Early Call as on 2 different occasions the city editor telephoned at 8 in the morning to say they was a reporter coming to see me and one of them followed so close on the heels of the warning that I was obliged to dazzle him by appearing in a costly silk dressing gown of blue background embellished with black up and down stripes that come with the garment and numerable brown and yellow spots of uncertain origin that has been added at one time another since the purchase. Mr. Peak was the name of this interviewer and his first question was what did I think of radio and it was nessary to exclaim to him that on a long pleasure junket of this kind I genally always made a successful effort not to think about radio at all for the first couple hrs. after daybreak.

Bill Was Still 10 Ft. Distance When He Was Overwhelmed By a Whim to Lay Down and Take Another Nap.

Next to having the madam called Mrs. Runyon the biggest surprise I got in San Francisco was Tom Meighan's picture, "The New Klondike," which was described on the bill boards as a roaring comedy of Florida written by the undersigned. The audience seemed to like the picture and I done the roaring when I realized that 286 of the 288 titles I had wrote had been throwed into somebody's ash bbl. and that they was a couple baseball incidence in it that would make a ball player wonder if the author had fell out of a toy balloon in infancy.

Speaking about ball players it will be recalled that San Francisco is the home of Bill Lange who played with Chicago under Cap Anson and was one of the most spectacular outfielders in baseball history if any. Bill always catched fly balls with one hand on acct. of they being a flask in the other. He invented sliding to bases and it happened in Cincinnati when they was only 2 hotels there and Bill had mis-

Tender Message for Local Gals.

When Bill heard we was in town he arranged a big party. Whenever they's even the least breath of a rumor that anybody is in town, Bill arranges a big party. I told him we would go if he would leave me pay the check, but when I seen the party, this agreement kind of slipped my mind. First he took us to see his pretty new home on the hills above Millbrae and to meet the even prettier proprietress of same. Then we all went to Tait's on the beach and eat dinner and danced. I suppose they's a good many other husbands like I who am a complete flop as a danseuse and hate to dance anyway and if so I would recommend them to get Bill to dance with their wife and after that they don't never even suggest that you dance with them again.

While the madam and the other gals was trying in vain to wear Bill out on the dance floor I was permitted to grunt the second base part in a quartette of whom the other stars was Fui Brayton, Lee Cutler and Brad Melvin and even my wife said it sounded pretty good and my 3 singing opponents confessed that I done well for a person that don't know the wds. or music to nothing and was on the wagon besides. All and all Bill's party was pretty near the high spot of our sojourn on the Pacific coast and I heartily advice other easterners to not keep your San Francisco visit a secret from Bill.

Another old pal I seen out there at San Francisco and environment was the best outfield I ever looked was Frank Schulte, member of the world's champion Cub outfield which seems to be crowded with former Chicago outfielders. Frank is living in Richmond acrost the bay and has a part interest in the Standard Oil Co. If he was in the game now and taking that old rhythmic swing at the modern lively ball, the right fielders on the other clubs wouldn't dast start after them hits of his without provisions for 3 days and a couple of complete changes of underwear. Frank and his Mrs. has got a German police dog and a Eskimo Spitz and 3 canaries and if I was give the choice of which of these pets to be left alone in the canaries rm. with I would select one of the Well, Bill started for second base, but was still 10 ft. distance from same when he was overwhelmed by a whim to lay down and take another nap. Tommy Corcoran was supposed to take the throw, but he looked at Bill and seen how uncomfortable he was and he left the ball go and picked up the base and stuck it under Bill's head. Bob Emslie's grandfather, who was umpiring, called Bill safe and he scored on triples by Everitt and Dahlen and a safe bunt by Tim Donohue.

Hair Dry, Brittle from Constant Waving, Curling

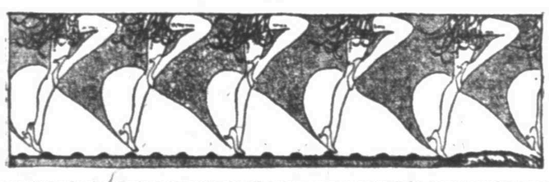

The constant curling and waving demanded by present styles in bobbed hair, slowly burns the color, lustre and very life from the hair, leaving it dry, faded, brittle, and full of dandruff; then the hair roots shrink and the hair falls out fast.

Since girls just must curl and wave the hair to appear their prettiest, try "Danderine" to offset any bad effects. After the first application your hair will take on new life and that healthy, youthful lustre, becomes imcomparably soft, wavy and appear twice as thick and abundant. Falling hair stops and dandruff disappears.

A 35-cent bottle of refreshing "Danderine" from any drug store or toilet counter will do wonders for any girl's hair. It goes right to the roots, invigorates, nourishes and strengthens them, helping the hair to grow thick, healthy and luxuriant.

THE WOODROW WILSON I KNEW

By MARY ALLEN HULBERT

This is the concluding installment of Mrs. Hulbert's reminiscences of "my friend Woodrow Wilson"—a story covering the events of sixteen crowded years.

In this final article she describes a meeting between Mr. and Mrs. Wilson and herself, which took in September, 1919, a few days before the sudden physical breakdown which led to the president's gradual withdrawal from public life. She has not seen him in more than four years; she finds him now a "great, tragic figure—the tall crusader seeing defeat shaping in the murk."

In revealing details she recorded their last conversation. Then, briefly, she writes of the president's death. It is a dramatic finale to the narrative of a remarkable friendship.

The Hotel Alexandria in Los Angeles, Where the President and Mrs. Wilson Entertained Mrs. Hulbert While Hundreds Waited in the Lobby.

It was a lovely morning in September that the president arrived in Los Angeles, the western end of his League of Nations tour of the country. A peaceful morning. The sunlight trickled warmly through the screen of bamboo and vine on my little porch. Humming birds busily attacked the hearts of the great fuchsias which reached higher than the windows. The palms rustled in a gentle breeze.

Into this serenity came bowling an obviously official motor car. It drew swiftly to the curb. A gray-mustached man sprang out and, walking briskly up the path to the steps where I stood, inquired.

"Mrs. Hulbert?"

"I am Mrs. Hulbert."

"This is a note from the president of the United States," proffering the envelope with great embarrassment.

The note, in its familiar writing or typing—I forget which—was an invitation for luncheon on the next day at one o'clock. It contained the expression of pleasure of an old friend at the thought of being once more in touch with me and spoke of the opportunity of my meeting Mrs. Edith Bolling Wilson for the first time.

As it was quite impossible for me to get to the Hotel Alexandria the next day for a one o'clock luncheon because of other obligations, I wrote this fact in my reply and added that I would be glad if, as they were driving on the next day, they would come in for a cup of tea with me.

As soon as the parade and the speechmaking had ended in Los Angeles, Woodrow Wilson called me up; so it was over the telephone that I heard his voice again after all the years, saying:

"How jolly to hear your voice. You must come to us, for while we will be interrupted by occasional delegations, we can have practically an entire afternoon together. Can you arrange it at half after one?"

I said I could make it, and the following day I took the street car, and escorted by the son of a friend presented myself at the Hotel Alexandria. One arrays one's self in one's best to meet a president and when that president is a dear old friend with a new wife one longs for better than one's best.

Curiously enough, I was arrayed in the same gown in which I had last appeared in the president's household in 1915. Seeing the ladies' entrance to the hotel surrounded by a crowd of people, I took the main entrance, asking at the desk that I be announced to Mrs. Wilson.

The very grant clerk was arranging keys and was quite a long time before he turned wearily to me. But when he realized what I was there for he grew alert and said in a loud voice:

"Mrs. Wilson, the president's wife."

"Yes, please," meekly.

He fixed me with a stern eye and demanded:

"Are you the lady they are expecting for luncheon?"

"Yes, I am," primly.

Then he called the smallest bell boy in the world, who, cocking his hat a bit more rakishly, took me in the elevator to the floor where the Wilsons were. In the hall were scores of women hoping for an audience, and down the center length of the corridor came Rear Admiral Grayson in uniform.

"Where were you?" he cried. "We knew you had left Hollywood, but—"

I told him that, to avoid the crowd, I had come through the main entrance, whereupon he exclaimed:

"But the crowd was waiting for you. They wanted to photograph the president's invited guest."

As we approached the presidential suite the door was flung wide, my coat taken by an attentive valet, and Mrs. Wilson stood there to greet me. Almost instantly Mr. Wilson joined us, and we went in to luncheon—four of us, for Admiral Grayson was of the party. It was a simple, homelike luncheon, and the chat was gracefully diverted from subjects disturbing to digestion. We talked, I think, of church—how the president went to the Presbyterian church, you know, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, and that she in turn attended her own church—Protestant Episcopal—accompanied by the president.

I devoted some time to singing the California climate song and telling my old friend how well I thought he was looking—as fit as possible, in fact. Really, I was surprised and delighted that there should be so little evidence of the strain of those terrible years of war.

He had, I may put it, more the air of a man of the world so far as outward appearance went, partly due, doubtless, to the efficiency of his valet, who was, Mrs. Wilson assured me, most devoted to him. The valet, she said, was having service far beyond duty and I was at once constrained to repeat what the president had once said to me:

"Mere duty does not profit. It is that which we volunteer over and above duty, the loving service we give, not the cold letter of that for which we receive wage."

I assure you conversation could be no more general. But, luncheon over, we went into the reception room of the suite. A delegation was announced almost at once, making it necessary for Mrs. Wilson and me to retire to an adjoining room, where a little later, was staged the last talk I ever had with my old friend.

All through the long afternoon we talked, save for occasional interrupting delegations or for the appearances of those who were, as Admiral Grayson expressed it soot

"Converts, sir."

And on one occasion Admiral Grayson came in to ask Mrs. Wilson if she would receive a group of representative women. She said, firmly:

"No, no. We will receive no one this afternoon. We have kept it free for Mrs. Hulbert."

"But if you do find you have a moment," insisted the Admiral rather beseechingly, "please see Mrs.——. She has done such wonderful work here for the Red Cross and would appreciate it so much."

"No," repeated Mrs. Wilson. And the admiral surrendered, departing at once for the home of Douglas Fairbanks.

Mrs. Wilson was not in the least as I had expected to find her from the exquisite Arnold Genthe photograph which was the official likeness issued at the time of her engagement to Mr. Wilson. She was much more Junoesque, less spiritelle, but handsome, with a charming smile that revealed her strong, white teeth.

She was without question, the maitresse femme. She played well that most difficult role of being the third part to the reunion of two old friends endeavoring to rehearse the incidents of years in a single afternoon.

We sat in triangular form—Mrs. Wilson and the president a little apart, and I at the appex. We finished with generalities before we came into this room. And then Mr. Wilson at one asked me to tell him all that had befallen me since our last meeting in Washington on Memorial day, 1915.

Slowly I began the recital of all that weary time. I tried to make him realize that it was all over and not to be looked upon too seriously. What had happened had happened. It was too late to help. He kept very still. Occasionally he bowed his head and nodded. Mrs. Wilson said nothing.

In my previous articles I have set down about everything I told the president and his wife, but I recall one incident which I may have overlooked in this series. A trifle vague, perhaps, but it was this:

In 1916, after I had made the inventory of the Nantucket house, I had come upon a few of Woodrow's earlier letters—letters which I had not tucked away with the collection I had taken with me to California. As I sat there on the floor in the midst of the old trunks I was exploring and in which I had found these letters it suddenly occurred to me that parts of them were missing. Then I thought that it was possible that whole letters were missing.

I pondered this as I returned to New York. I wrote to the president about it. In that letter I told him, too, of the rumors which abounded to the effect that there were great political forces at work seeking material to be used in impeaching him. I told him of those who had approached me. To be sure none of it was very positive stuff, yet I looked at it as my duty to write—my duty to an office I revered—my president, my country. I do not now want to seem mawkish, but—

In my letter I asked him to let me come to him in Washington and make it clear that I simply wanted him to be forewarned and therefore forearmed. Or, I wrote, I would be glad to talk to someone whom they could trust if he should come to me in New York. I might, I explained, at least tell them some of the things they should know.

The answer came from Mrs. Wilson. She was good enough to reply that they knew of no one they could send. She asked me to let her know if they could help me in any way.

All through the afternoon we talked. We talked not wholly of matters concerning me but about them—the Wilsons—and about the nation. I told him, as I have told you, how I was approached by that alleged "representative of the republican party" who said that a member of the Wilson cabinet and his wife were ready to testify against the president if there were impeachment proceedings.

"Of course that's a lie about the ———s," replied the president quickly.

I told him of the man who had come to me in Los Angeles bearing a letter from a member of his official family—the man who said that "Wilson and McAdoo are worrying" about me. And as I talked the president kept murmuring:

"So and So did that? Why did So and So do that?"

My answer was always the same:

"That is for you to discover. I have neither the desire nor the means to know. I merely present it as it come to me. You are in a position to learn the truth; I am not."

The president of the United States smiled wanely, but was silent.

We laughed over similar tales of iniquity thrown about both of us—Woodrow Wilson and me—as a garment. I told them of one afternoon in 1916 when a woman friend and I stood in front of Fauncé's Tavern in New York city reading the inscription on the tablet. Suddenly there appeared between us and over our shoulders the face of a man—a young man—who, with the tones of a villain in an old Drury Lane melodrama, hissed:

"See who's behind Mrs. Wilson.

Utterly astonished, we turned quickly to see the young man dart into the crowd. We looked after him. He paused just before the crowd swallowed him and nodded his head vigorously in our direction.

"What do you suppose he meant?" asked Mrs. Wilson.

"I cannot guess," I mourned.

And I cannot—with any certainty. Perhaps he meant to assure me that the department of justice or the secret service, represented by him, was behind Mrs. Wilson. Not that it mattered. However, that incident was rather a comfort to me, as I suspected there were many who had not believed me when I told my little tales of espionage. But this time I had a witness.

"God," cried Woodrow Wilson at last, "to think that you should have suffered so much because of me!"

"But," I replied, "it is all over now and you will notice please, that I am very well and certainly not downhearted. It is all over, as far as I am concerned. Now you know the truth and you should be able to scotch the lies. Let us talk now about you—the League of Nations—these fourteen points I have heard so much about. And why, please, all this erroneous personal animosity?"

Instantly the man changed. The Woodrow Wilson crying in the political wilderness appeared.

"That's just it. That's just it," he cried. "Venomous personal animosity! If I had nothing to do with the League of Nations it would go through like that!"

And he made a swift gesture.

"But," he went on, "they all failed me—Lloyd George, Clemenceau, Orlando—all of them, all of them!

There, facing me, was tragedy. Instantly my trouble faded away. In their stead came those of this great, tragic figure—the tall crusader seeing defeat shaping in the murk.

We rose, then sat down again. Conversation lagged for a time, and then I sought to amuse him with the story of the Italian who came to my house two days before the Wilsons arrived in Los Angeles.

This Italian came telling me that

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

WILLYS PROVES MAIN FEATURE AT AUTO SHOW

New Improved Models Are Center of Much Interest As Exhibitions

No better way of judging the popularity of a new automobile can be had than that of the approval of and interest shown by the public at the various automobile shows, according to veteran automobile manufacturers.

This being true, the new Willys-Knight Six "Seventy" apparently is destined to become one of the most popular of the medium priced sixes within the next few months. At every automobile show in which the new sleeve-valve six was displayed this new car was the object of the most sincere attention by those who are interested in the newer mechanical features and the tendency toward the lighter and more powerful cars.

Develops More Power.

The new Willys-Knight Six "Seventy" was designed by Willys-Overland engineers to develop more power with a smaller piston displacement than had been hitherto attained. The new car, with a wheelbase of 113 1-4 inches and a bore of 2 15-16 inches and a 4 3-8 inch stroke, has attracted unusual attention in the two short months since appearance because of its flexibility and ability to perform under all conditions.

In a 2,500 mile test run conducted by Willys-Overland engineers, two of these new "Seventies" averaged 18 miles to the gallon of gasoline on the run which extended far north into Canada to obtain the greatest possible temperature range. Another instance of the great economy of this new six was completed recently when a new "Seventy," loaded with five occupants and a total weight of 4,027 pounds, drove through one of the worst New York state snowstorms experienced in years from Little Falls to Buffalo for an average of 19 1-4 miles to the gallon. The trip was made at night and the 288.1 miles was covered in 8 1-2 hours.

During the New York Automobile Show a total of 102,909 New Yorkers eagerly crowded into the New York factory branch to see the "Seventy" display. At the New York show orders were taken for 594 automobiles, including many of the new Willys-Knight Six "Seventies," while Chicago, Cleveland and Elmira reported sales gains over 1925 automobile shows with totals of 400, 180 and 125 respectively. Buffalo reported 402 bona fide sales

Chevrolet Climbs Capital Steps In Mississippi Capital

The two millionth Chevrolet produced by the Chevrolet Motor company recently climbed the steps of the new state capitol building at Jackson, Mississippi, while members of the adjourning state legislature viewed the performance.

A heavy rain preceding the event made the climb at a 45 degree angle, hazardous, but failed to scatter a crowd of more than 7,000 which waited throughout the downpour. Burned patches of rubber on the steps marked the progress of the coach up the step incline, indicating the power necessary to make the ascent.

The climbs had been negotiated only once before and several powerful types of cars recently failed to arrive at the top.

Dukes Greeted.

Many members of the legislature, themselves Chevrolet owners, greeted G. Porter Dukes, service manager of the Capitol Chevrolet company, local distributors, as he reached the summit of the capitol entrance. Several ornamental stone prions on the ascent caused the car to proceed slowly and added to the difficulty of the feat.

After once making the climb, the car backed down, damonstrating the holding power of its brakes, and then repeated the demonstration. The car was a regular stock model and because of being the 2,000,000th Chevrolet produced, had been shipped to various cities of the country for exhibition. The Capitol Chevrolet company planned the stunt as a final showing of the car before selling it to a resident of Jackson.

A parade of several hundred Chevrolet automobiles, driven by their owners and headed by the mounted police division of Jackson and the demonstrating car, preceded the exhibition at the capitol. Mayor Scott, City Commissioner Hawkins and R. F. Hicks, assistant Chevrolet zone sales manager gave brief talks on completion of the ascent.

Mining Town In West Now Has An Auto for 1st Time

Cecilville, a mining town in Siskiyou county, California, has an automobile. Its first and only motor car arrived recently on the backs of nine mules and is now making frequent trips over the only available stretch of road of seven miles between Cecilville and Summerville, the home of the Farnsworth brothers, who own the car. Cecilville has a postoffice, it has a few stores and is the community center for a mining district, but it had never boasted an automobile or a motor cop. It does not boast of a motor cop as yet and the constable says that the car can do its stuff as long as it does not tangle up with another car and that it will take at least a year for that to happen, if then.

When the Farnsworth boys bought their State touring car at Eureka, they started home over the Pacific highway. Up the Klamath River highway and over Hald Mountain they sped merrily along. Even when they arrived at Sawyer's Bar they had a branch road that had just been built by the forest service. Up this they drove until it ended, then for two miles they clambered over a trail through the hills, but driving ended there.

They were still a long ways from Cecilville and no wheeled vehicle was ever driven there from the outside.

A pack train of mules still carries in the supplies and the mail three times a week in western style of the days of '49. The boys took the Star to pieces and the pieces had to weigh not more than 350 pounds for that is the limit that a good mule can pack over the Cecilville trail.

The body was too big and too heavy so it was sawed in two pieces. With an experienced packer and nine mules wonders can and have been performed for the sections of the car were strung on the backs of the hee-haws and packed home.

MORE THAN 1 AUTO NEEDED

American Families Now Turning to More Transportation

In many families the transportation needs of the individual members are becoming so complicated that a single motor car is incapable of taking care of them. The man of the house must travel daily to and from his place of business; the woman has her shopping and social obligations; and the young folk have their school parties, dances, theatre engagements, etc. All in all, the average motor car is a more abused beast of burden than the camel. Moreover, there is a "last straw" just as there is with the camel.

That the straw has been added in many instances is being proven daily by the sales records of the Chrysler Sales Corporation. Among Chrysler owners there are hundreds of families who operate two or more cars, divided usually between closed and open models.

The tendency has been noted even in the case of the newly announced Chrysler Imperial "80." In the family of Harold Knowlton of Upton, Mass., there are three cars of this type, a roadster, a coupe and a seven-passenger sedan-limousine. All three cars were ordered and delivered at the same time, and are now in daily use.

Mr. Knowlton was formerly a Chrysler "70" owner, and in placing his order for the new Chrysler Imperial "80's" stated that if the new ones performed as well as his old one he will be perfectly satisfied.

WALES IN CHASES.

LONDON, May 1.—The Prince of Wales following in the footsteps of King Edward, has joined the ranks of steeple chase owners, and intends to put several horses into training next season.

These will be in charge of H. A. Brown, a well known trainer at Atherstone, some of whose jumpers the prince has already taken over the hurdles. The prince will not ride his horses in races, but probably will have the mount on them during training.

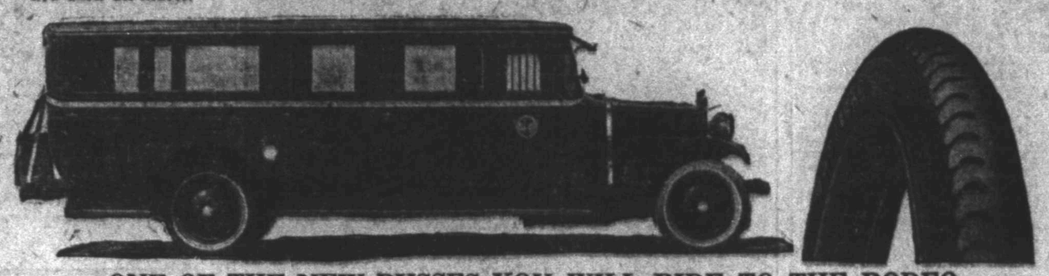

The prince's racing colors are red, blue sleeves and black cap, and he hopes to see these first past the post in some future grand national. King Edward won this race once with Ambush II.

The matchless quality and supreme value that are earning for Nash cars such tremendous nation-wide popularity are vividly illustrated in this Special Six 4-Door Sedan.

Here is superb beauty in appearance, thoroughness in construction, and especially excellence in performance—at the LOWEST PRICE ever placed on a Nash 4-Door Sedan.

No car is more efficiently lubricated. A steady film of oil under high pressure is forced to all main bearings, connecting rod bearings and camshaft bearings, keeping them thoroughly and constantly immersed, and immune from the possibility of burning out during long and sustained speed.

No engine is better protected against the harmful effects of flying dust and other foreign particles. The motor is entirely encased. Even the flywheel and clutch are enclosed in a dust-proof bell-housing.

And three purging devices—oil purifier, gas filter and air cleaner—contribute to long life and perfect operation by cleansing all oil, gasoline and air.

Among the other features that Nash provides are Nash-type four-wheel brakes, full balloon tires and 5 disc wheels—all in the price of $1315 f. o. b. factory.

BIG PROBLEMS GROW SIMPLE

Rodeo, Airplane, Auto Not So Difficult When Understood

Some of the greatest scientific and engineering problems, which baffled human ingenuity for years, in the end proved absurdly simple, when approached from the proper angle. The radio, the airplane and the automobile, in their evolution became simpler, less costly and more serviceable.

Light Progresses.

Electric light and power for farms has progressed in the same manner. In ten years time engineers have gone from heavy, expensive, troublesome machinery to simple, trouble-proof, compact mechanism, many times superior to the farm light and power plant of half a decade ago.

In presenting its newest model, which operates without storage batteries, the Delco-Light Company has marked another forward step in engineering and at the same time has made electricity available to additional hundreds of thousands of farmers who prefer this type of service to the previously offered.

Model Is Automatic.

This new model is absolutely automatic in operation. When a light switch is turned the plant starts running and continues until the switch is turned off, when it stops immediately. "Now there is a Delco-Light to fit every need and at prices to fit every pocket-book" declares E. G. Biechler, President and General Manager of the Delco-Light company. "And every plant from the smallest automatic, non-battery plant to the largest storage battery plant carries the Delco-Light and General Motors guarantee and can be purchased on the GMAC plan of easy payments."

Bargain Hunters In Battery World Usually Lose Out

"The in battery business we find bargain hunters just the same as in any other merchandising business," says Kindle Paulk, local Willard battery dealer. "Few stop to consider the cause for low prices, but see prices only."

The result is they are continually having trouble and the upkeep of their bargain soon eats up the difference in price.

The old saying "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure" holds true with the price element. Mr. Paulk says that at his station many car drivers come in with cheap batteries not properly fitted for their cars and which are therefore a practical waste of money.

A battery to an automobile is just as important as pasteurized milk for a baby. Would you spare any expense in getting the best of milk obtainable. Of course not—it means the life of your child and builds up strength for later life.

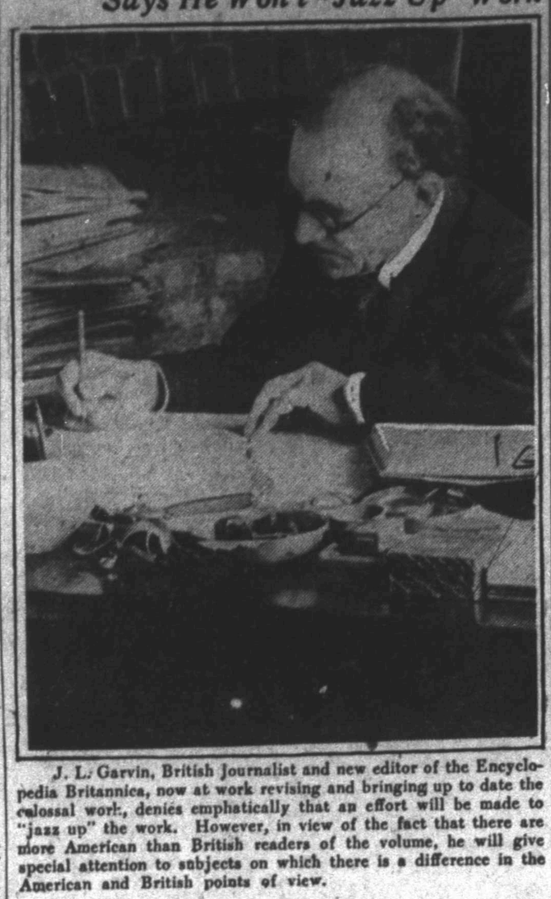

Money spent at the start of both of these cases, is a careful investment and the cost of maintaining will be less later on.

Manufacturers of quality storage batteries realize this mistaken feeling but refuse to sacrifice quality for price. They are, however, able to offer, because of volume business, a better line of batteries at lower prices than ever before in their history—batteries in which low price is combined with quality.

Ennis Residents Injured in Wreck

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—Mr. and Mrs. C. Green of Ennis were injured by the overturning of their car while on their way to Dallas today. Both were pinioned under the car and were rescued by passing motorists who heard their cries. Green was injured about the head and possibly internally. His wife was not seriously hurt. He is a telegraph operator for the Southern Pacific railroad at Ennis.

New Editor of Encyclopeaia Says He Won't "Jazz Up" Work

J. L. Garvin, British journalist and new editor of the Encyclopedia Britannica, now at work revising and bringing up to date the colossal work, denies emphatically that an effort will be made to "jazz up" the work. However, in view of the fact that there are more American than British readers of the volume, he will give special attention to subjects on which there is a difference in the American and British points of view.

Chinese Rickshaw Goes Into Oblivion As New Modes Come Into Use

The rickshaw, that frail two-wheeled vehicle operated by man power, which has been the Chinese method of local transportation, for centuries, is passing before the most modern type of motor car and truck.

The roads of China have little to commend them for use of rubber tired conveyances, but many of the native population, as well as foreign residents prefer this newer method of transportation which enables them to eliminate time in a country where time is reckoned by dynasties or centuries.

Even in the newer military regime of Chihi, Gen Wu is using this fleet the incursion of Soviet doctrine, the motor truck has become an important link in the operations.

The big factor in bringing about this condition is the use of Dodge Brothers Motor cars and Graham Brothers trucks, which are now in general use in the provinces of Hankow and Honan.

30 Cars Sent.

Recently a shipment of thirty Dodge Brothers chassis was made to Gen. Wu Pei Fu, commanding the Chinese army at Tientsin, in the Province of Chili. Gen. Wu is using this fleet for transporting troops and for road building.

Two other large shipments of these units were received by the L. E. Gale company, Dodge Brothers dealers at Hankow. These shipments were disbursed to other points in the provinces of Hankow and Honan for road building and for transportation needs.

The shipments comprised two train loads, one load containing 55 Graham Brothers trucks destined for Kaifeng, Honan. The other train load, consisting mainly of Dodge Brothers chassis, was for distribution from the L. E. Gale company's headquarters at Hankow.

The huge shipment was made across the Pacific ocean to Shanghai. Here the heavy export boxes were transferred to lighters for the trip up the Yang Ytze river a distance of 600 or 700 miles inland. The lighters used were "Junks," small frail sail boats of native design, capable of holding three or four of these huge boxes. Four days is required to make the inland journey.

On arrival at Hankow more difficulties were experienced. Lack of modern equipment for unloading such bulky freight was confronted. But there were coolies, myriads of them, ready on the bank eager to assist in the work.

Boxes Removed.

The boxes were removed from the deck of the Junk by use of a long steel cable and a windlass. Back from the river bank is a long, broad concrete wall for flood protection. This wall is about 12 feet high. Another task confronted Mr. Gale and his associates in getting the heavy boxes up to dry ground. The boxes were rolled to a pair of skids which had been placed on the steps of a driveway leading to the top of the wall. A "yoke" made of bamboo was stretched around the box to be raised. To this "yoke" are attached a number of circular slings made of leather or some heavy cloth. These slings are thrown over the right shoulder of each man at work and by continual forcing they manage to take the heavy freight up the required distance. Usually about 30 coolies are employed at this task.

The coolies go about their work with a manner which belies their stoical nature. A leader is chosen and he directs the work. As the men take hold of their box the leader begins a "song" which is similar to the "heave-ho; heave ho" chant of the American track layers.

The boxes are carried by this manual labor to the waiting freight cars some distance down the wall of the river bank.

To Enlarge Sales Room.

The L. E. Gale company recently enlarged its show room and service garage. The newly arrived fleet of Dodge Brothers Motor cars and Graham Brothers trucks were exhibited. The occasion marked an epic in the life of the city of Hankow. Chinese merchants with officials of the city besides hundreds of other local residents participated in the "open house." Speeches lauding Mr. Gale and associates on their enterprising methods and the quality of their merchandise were made in Chinese and these in turn were interpreted in English and French.

APPROVE POTASH BILL.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—The house mining subcommittee today approved the bill of Congressman Hudspeth of Texas, who would promote American potash production by authorizing appropriation of $100,000 annually for investigation of supplies.

Cars in Need Of Tuning Up Now As Spring Comes

The advent of balmy weather is the signal for the great spring touring offensive and the vanguard of millions of cars freed of winter operating restrictions are beginning to be seen on highways and byways headed for "parts remote." The family car will behave with maximum satisfaction on these expeditions if treated to a bit of cleaning up and tuning up before the start of the season, advises the Ford Motor company. This advice, although directed primarily to approximately nine million Ford cars now in service, is applicable to cars of all makes.

Cooling System.

Probably the first feature of the car to be scrutinized is the cooling system, the Ford service bulletin advises. Radiator and jacket should be flushed thoroughly, and if there is any evidence of scale, filled with a solution composed of water and about one and one-half cupfuls of soda sash and the motor run for a few minutes. This solution, in turn, should be thoroughly flushed out. An inspection should be made of all connections of the system to make certain that they are tight and any evidence of looseness or poorly fitting connections corrected, especially in the fan and bracket.

In order to remove all particles of carbon from the engine, it is good policy to remove the crankcase bottom cover and clean it thoroughly.

Gasoline is the life steam of the motor and care should be exercised that the various features of the fuel system function properly. The sediment bulb should be drained and cleaned and any slight obstructions in the feed line should be blown out.

Need Good Oiling.

The need of a thorough oiling and greasing is particularly urgent in the spring because of the fact that during the winter months, this attention is made unpleasant by cold weather. Here, Ford simplicity of construction will be appreciated by the owner for the accessibility of chassis points which require lubrication makes the oiling and greasing job the work of only a few minutes.

Tires will also probably bear some attention before the long tours begin. Every small cut or break in the rubber may harbor some small stone or piece of glass which is steadily working its way in toward the tube. A few minutes of probing will prevent many a puncture.

These features of the Ford car which require frequent and regular attention have been so simplified as to make it possible for the owner to keep his car constantly "in the pink." But for motor adjustment, replacements or other vital service, the owner is advised to place his car in the hands of the dealer from whom he purchased it and is best qualified to know its needs.

START PARLOR CARS.

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—The first parlor car service ever offered in Texas will begin May 15, when the "Sunbeam" train of the Houston and Texas Central between Dallas and Houston, will carry cars of that type, local agents announced today.

Milegae Gains By Proper Care Of Tires, He Asserts

Mileage may be increased from 10 to 25 per cent with the proper care of tires, according to "Bill" Hart, of the Panhandle Refining company, Firestone distributors here.

Mr. Hart, who has given tire service close and careful study, points out that maximum mileage can not be obtained from tires unless they are given the right attention and that it is just as essential to care for tires as it is to look after the motor in a car.

"There is hardly an article in general use today," he said, "that gets more abuse or that is more responsive to proper treatment than the automobile and truck tire.

"There are three important factors that must be looked after in getting maximum mileage from tires—wheel alignment, proper inflation and load capacities. The first two are what cause the most trouble.

"While it is necessary in all tires to look after wheel alignment and air pressure, it is especially essential in balloon tires.

"Tires on wheels misaligned will wear out much faster. They are subject to an action which is very similar to filing the tread off a tire.

"Damage equally as severe is caused by under inflation. From five to ten pounds less air pressure than required may lead to quick and costly ruin of your equipment.

"Motorists who do not know, or fail to appreciate these facts are not getting maximum service from their equipment and are losing money every mile they run their cars. The remedy lies in the proper care of the tire.

"Our recommendation is that the air pressure in tires be checked once a week and wheel alignment every month at least. We urge our customers to let us provide this service. The value of it will be attested by the greatly increased mileage which the tires receive."

Mistakes Brother For Robber, Shoots, Wounds Are Fatal

HONEY GROVE, May 1.—(AP)—Mistaken by his brother for a burglar, Al Scott was shot to death late Friday night as he passed through a bedroom in the Scott home, three miles from here.

Al, who lived with his brother, Ed and Mrs. Scott, made a slight noise as he passed through their room. Mrs. Scott, awakened suddenly, screamed. Ed Scott grasped a shotgun at the bedside and fired both barrels. The charges entered Scott's face and he died en route to a sanitarium at Paris.

WOUNDED IN FIGHT.

LAREDO, May 1.—(AP)—Jack Nabors is in jail and Jack Buby is in a hospital suffering from a knife wound in the abdomen. They quarreled on the street last night. Both are oil field workers.

I Have Made My Last Compromise!

SEE THE NEW RICKENBACKER TODAY AT THE AUTO SHOW

VISIT OUR SALES ROOM

I am through with compromise cars . . . . . next automobile I buy will be a one hundred per cent proposition . . . . . have every last feature I desire in my car.

I want a Rickenbacker . . . . . and nothing less will satisfy me. And that's that.

Time and again in years past I have let myself be sold cars that were not the last word . . . . . in either quality or performance . . . . . Let a few dollars less in price . . . . . or a few dollars more trade-in allowance on my old car . . . . . turn the balance of my decision . . . . . and drove away a compromise car . . . . . a second best . . . . . instead of the car which was my first choice of all cars.

There is no pleasure in the possession of such a car . . . . . no keen edge of satisfaction . . . . . no pride of ownership.

This time I am going to buy the car that is my ideal of all an automobile should be.

Power a'plenty . . . . . and then some . . . . . performance, so superior to any other . . . . . there are no grounds for comparison.

I want the smartest body ever designed . . . . . one made to the custom-built idea . . . . . I can't help it . . . . . I don't want to be put in a pigeon-hole . . . . . I derive no joy from a mass-production car.

I want an exclusive car . . . . . one that is driven only by the elect . . . . socially and financially . . . . . people of faultless taste . . . . . I like to herd with that crowd . . . . . I concur in their tastes in motor cars . . . . . furniture, houses, and other things.

My next car must be upholstered in the best materials known or obtainable for that purpose . . . . . springs and other unseen things, also of the best . . . . . and I am going to examine and know that they are of that quality . . . . . I want an instrument board that looks like a jeweler's display.

Temperature gauge . . . . . electric clock . . . . . gasoline gauge, oil pressure gauge . . . . . cigar lighter . . . . . speedometer, ampere meter, and all the usual things . . . . . of course.

Every kind of indicator right there before me . . . . . artistically arranged . . . . . conveniently grouped . . . . . rich but not gaudy.

My next car will represent no compromise with price or value . . . . . it will be a one hundred per cent automobile.

It must have every latest device and refinement that the most advanced engineering can specify . . . . . an air cleaner . . . . . a dilution eliminator—not an attachment either . . . . . but built into the very design of the engine. It must have a vibrationless motor . . . . . that means two fly wheels . . . . . it must have the best springs ever invented . . . . . cradle springs . . . . . and it must have the best . . . . . safest . . . . . most uniform . . . . . and smoothest . . . . . 4-wheel brakes.

No more 2-wheel brake cars for me . . . . . nor any that depend on liquid in a tube for safety. I want full mechanical brakes, internal-expanding . . . . . enclosed and fully protected from water, sand, mud and ice.

It is because it has all these things and many more I never have seen in any other car that . . . . . I crave the distinction of owning a Rickenbacker!

There's a car into which no compromise . . . . . with price or expediency . . . . . has been permitted to enter!

I have made my last compromise.

My next automobile is going to be a Rickenbacker.

Only question I have not decided yet is . . . . . will it be a Six or a Vertical-8?

Going to decide that by driving both types . . . . . do my own driving too . . . . . no salesman along . . . . . no sleight-of-hand man at the wheel.

I have been kidded by experts in automobile demonstrations . . . . . going to do my own demonstrating this time . . . . . She can go along . . . . . but no one else.

BRAZIL NOT TO START RUBBER GROWING AGAIN

Resources of World Are Adjusting Themselves To Situation

"The likelihood that Brazil will engage actively in the production of wild rubber is not so great now as it was half a year ago," said W. O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber company, in the course of a recent address on the rubber situation. Mr. O'Neil believes that the rubber resources of the world are gradually adjusting themselves so that the high price of last year will not be repeated, though he does not believe we will again have rubber as cheap as it was in the winter of 1924-1925, when the British Colonial restrictive laws began to pinch.

"The Brazilians, who have hundreds of millions of first class rubber trees, showed great activity and interest in their native industry when rubber passed sixty cents a pound on the way up. Brazil can not compete with Malay labor or plantation methods for the production of rubber, for in Brazil the rubber gathering is done by natives—Indians—who would starve on wages that mean prosperity to the Malay. When rubber neared a dollar a pound, however, there was a chance for the Brazilians to work their rubber trees at a profit and much publicity was given the fact that South America might have a heavy hand in breaking down the Middle East monopoly of the Malay British and Dutch.

Enthusiasm Wanes.

"But since rubber has come down again into the fifties and sixties South American enthusiasm has waned considerably in the last few months. This is to be regretted, for Brazil is the birthplace of the heves, or high grade rubber tree, and as North America uses most of the world's crude rubber it would be much more convenient to obtain our crude rubber supply without going around the world for it.

"Nevertheless the South American rubber 'hams,' so-called to distinguish them from the crepe and sheet rubber of the Malay plantations, are seen much more frequently now in the American market than in the last ten years. The result of the recent strain on rubber has been a general loosening up of all the world's resources, and the additional supplies now appearing will be permanent and will gradually increase, so long as the growers and handlers can make a profit. The obvious necessity of a profit for them is one of the things that make it certain that rubber prices will follow cost of production as well as demand and will not, for many years at least, be as they were a year ago.

No Actual Shortage.

"When the rubber crisis first appeared we predicted that there would be no actual shortage of rubber, such as would interfere with manufacturing operations in American factories. The panic was such that there were many who took issue with us on that point, but events now are proving that we were right. Eastern plantations are producing more efficiently; the Malay labor supply is being utilized to better advantage, and the effects of the effort to provide for the future are being felt to a small but appreciable degree.

"The whole situation is most important, because of the many wild reports about the rubber market that have been in circulation. It seems certain now that the wild part of the flurry is over; that buying is being done so carefully that dollar rubber will not appear again and that the rubber scare of 1925 will be forgotten in a year or two."

Whiskey Runners Pay Policemen Big Protection Amount

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Aboard the steamer Ekar, at anchor today in the shadow of the statute of liberty with $1,200,000 of raw alcohol below decks, was found evidence, federal agents claim, of $20,000 paid for protection.

A confession and a memorandum, obtained as an arraignment in the ship's cabin last night,, federal men say, revealed payment of $20,000 to get through New York Harbor and up the Hudson to Yonkers where the vessel was seized Thursday night. The 12 members of the crew were held with another man, picked up in a row boat near the vessel. Officers today were seeking the captain and engineer.

Assistant United States Attorney Herman T. Stichman thinks the alcohol estimated at nearly 25,000 gallons, stored in a tank below and also in the water tank on the upper deck, was intended for seven mother ships in rum row which make their own "Scotch and rye." It could be split to 60,000 gallons in the process, he said, basing his estimate of the value on a price of $20 a gallon.

Customs inspectors smelled the alcohol 50 feet away.

Though sailing a "wet" cargo, the crew were parched with thirst, saying they had been without water since Wednesday night.

Some of the notations in the memorandum book found on the ship were: "Paid cops $8,500;" "paid prohibition agents $1,000;" "paid cop $125;" "ferry $250;" "pay-off $20,000.

Shamrock Woman Burns to Death

SHAMROCK, May 1.—(AP)—While her husband worked in a field, Mrs. Barney Howe, 42, was burned to death as their smoke house was razed, presumably from a kerosene explosion near here today.

Howe, a farmer, in the field with his son, Melvin, 17, did not know of the fire until the smoke house was nearly destroyed. The Shamrock fire department extinguished the blaze and recovered the body. Howe said he had left his wife cleaning house this morning and that her work probably led her to the smoke house, where a can of kerosene was kept.

Would Divert Waters of Niagara Falls to Preserve Beauty

In order to preserve the beauty of Niagara Falls the American Super-Power Corporation of which Henry L. Doherty is chairman of the board, is asking the State Water Power Commission of New York for permission to divert 120,000 cubic feet of water a second from the present flow over the Canadian Falls for power purposes. They claim the great amount of water which pours over the Horseshoe or Canadian Falls is causing them to recede at the rate of six feet a year and will gradually destroy their beauty by causing a long gradual flow instead of the present sightly drop. Photos show the location of the Horseshoe and American falls and inset of Henry Doherty.

Lynch Davidson Urges Co-Operation Of Farm Marketing

BARRY, Texas, May 1.—(AP)—Cooperation salesmanship of the farmers products is the real silver lining to the cloud of agricultural problems, Lynch Davidson, candidate for governor, said in a speech here today, to an audience of farmers.

Diversification of crops and efficient production are splendid aids, but after all if the products cannot be sold for more than it costs to produce them there will be no profit, Mr. Davidson said.

"As long as the speculator can rob the farmer of the power to sell at a profit, just that long will the rural population be in financial bondage," he said. "Scientific marketing salesmanship is the silver lining to the cloud. Cooperative farm marketing organizations are fighting their way to the front. Their plans of operation are not yet perfected but are a start in the right direction.

"This country will not prosper unless crops can be sold for more than it costs to raise them. Cooperative salesmanship with proper financing will remedy the situation."

Mr. Davidson attacked the scattered prison system, with it 14 separate plants and advocated sale of river bottom farms and centralization of the system.

'Pussyfoot' Speaks In Dallas Sunday

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—William (Pussyfoot) Johnson, champion of prohibition, is to deliver a lecture at the Abbey Presbyterian church here Sunday night. His subject will be "As the Orients Sees America."

Rev. Atticus Webb, state superintendent of the anti-saloon league, who made the announcement, said Mr. Johnson's tour is under the auspices of the national league.

Johnson is one of the most widely known of the dry crusaders. He is the veteran of many prohibition battles. He lost an eye in London several years ago in attack by a mob.

Befriends Stranger And Loses His Car

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—Befriending a stranger with a ride cost V. D. Miller his automobile and $10 last night. Miller saw a man standing on a corner apparently waiting for a street car about 10:30 p. m. He invited thje man to ride.

They had gone a block when the stranger pulled a pistol on Miller, made him hand over his money and pushed him out of the automobile. Police are seeking the car and the stranger.

The Woman Pays But Not in Court

FORT WORTH, May 1.—(AP)—"The woman pays" may be true in other things but not in traffic court, at least not without a struggle, city records show. Men usually pay off at the sergeant's window, where a $2 standard price is the rule.

But women insist on going into court and fighting their case. Sometimes it costs them more that way, but they have the satisfaction of putting up a struggle, attaches of the court declare.

FOR WORKING PEOPLE

The best of workers get out of sorts when the liver fails to act. They feel languish, half-sick, "blue" and discouraged and think they are getting lazy. Neglect of these symptoms might result in a sick spell, therefore the sensible course is to take a dose or two of Herbine. It is just the medicine needed to purify the system and restore the vim and ambition of health. Price 60c. Sold by all drug stores.—Adv.

More Fun for The Tourist, His Aim

BERLIN, May 1.—(AP)—Convinced after a business trip to the United States that American tourists ought not to be hampered in the pursuit of pleasure, Burgomeister Karl Scharnagl, of Munich, is advocating a modification of the public ordinance under which cafes and cabarets are now closed at 1 a. m.

Though warning against propaganda which would have Munich famous for nothing but its powerful Bavarian beer, Mayor Scharnagl said Americans want a good time and within reasonable bounds he is going to see that they get it. Munich, in the states, has a reputation for art, scholarship, beauty and hospitality, he said, but he feels that after browsing around museums and art galleries all day, Americans want to frolic at night.

Lays in Wait, Bags Automobile Thief

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—A loaded shotgun held in readiness for the purpose was used last night by Jack Cobb on two men tampering with an automobile parked in his brother's driveway.

Arnold Brae, 21, was shot in the side but is not believed to be seriously injured.

When Cobb's sister-in-law heard men working about the car she telephoned next door for Cobb. He saw two men jacking up the automobile and fired.

Brae was taken to a hospital. When his companion called at police station to ask about the shooting, he was arrested.

Cobb had loaded the gun several nights ago following a number of automobile thefts in the neighborhood.

Prisoner Calmly Accepts Sentence Of 20-Year Term

SAN ANTONIO, May 1.—(AP)—Thad L. Griffith, who was tried four times before he was convicted for the slaying of George Mason, appeared before Special Judge O. M. Fitzhugh in thirty-seventh district court today and calmly accepted a 20-year sentence in the state penitentiary.

Defense attorneys announced that no motion for a new trial would be made and that the case will not be appealed.

Judge Fitzhugh overruled a motion of Richard Hall for a new trial in connection with the murder of J. W. Posey.

Witnesses were placed on the stand in an attempt to prove that a material witnessfor the defense, who could not be located in the previous trials, would appear if another trial was granted.

Judge Fitzhugh pronounced sentence of life imprisonment upon Hall who gave notice of appeal.

Overland Sales In April Gain In Entire Country

Retail sales of the Overland Six throughout the country for April were 50 per cent over the sales for the same month last year and at a total rate for the year which, if maintained, will bring this popular model well up to the position of the largest selling motor car in the light six field.

The sales increase is not confined to any one section but is general in all parts of the country and with the opening of the roads in the northern sections a noticeable spurt in the total volume of orders received at the factory has developed within the past two weeks.

Dealers stocks in this model throughout the country are somewhat below normal for this period of the year, the demands on the factory having been of such a nature as to eliminate any possibility of the dealers stocking up although it is not unusual for dealers supplies of cars on hand in early May to be large in anticipation of the usual heavy rush of orders at this time of the year.

The advanced engineering principles presented by Willys-Overland in this Overland six have been the reason back of the heavy buying demand which has been maintained steadily since the introduction of this model slightly over a year ago.

Among the conspicuously new engineering features are the low hung motor with a straight line drive, the low weight of the car which has produced a condition of staple equilibrium that has given this car a marked ability on the road, and the proportioning of the body dimensions which have given it an unusually comfortable riding quality and seating convenience.

The local representative reports a heavy demand.

THIRD in the World

-and Sales still mounting

During the first three months of 1926 Dodge Brothers, Inc., built and sold more motor vehicles than any other manufacturer in the world, except Ford and Chevrolet.

71,189 retail deliveries were made by Dodge Brothers Dealers in the United States and Canada between January second and April third. This represents a gain of 37 per cent over the same period last year and 69 per cent over the first quarter of 1924!

Third largest in the world! And sales CONTINUING to mount week after week to new record breaking levels.

In fact, during the week ending April 24th retail sales reached the remarkable total of 9,566—the greatest single week in Dodge Brothers history!

These figures are all the more significant when you realize that the gain of the industry as a whole over last year is only 12 per cent.

There could be no more convincing evidence that today's product is regarded as better than ever before and that the present prices make it the most impressive value Dodge Brothers have ever offered.

How Can Anybody Tell What Natural Gas Will Cost?

The natural gas industry is perhaps the only utility that has no way of determining its costs in advance. It is in effect a mining operation, with all the hazards of that enterprise.

When a street car company is proposed, it is possible to tell within a few dollars of how much it will cost to build, equip and operate the entire plant.

When an electric light plant is to be built, it is comparatively easy to ascertain how much a certain number of installations will cost, and how much will be necessary for a given amount of current.

But when the provision of natural gas is undertaken, who knows where the gas required will come from, what the wells will yield, how many miles of pipe lines will be required, or what the transporting pressure will be? There is simply no way to find out except to go and do the many things needful.

Nor is the maintenance of the supply any more to be figured in advance. So long as wells decline in volume and pressure—and they always will—new wells must be found, new lines constructed, and additional capital obtained and invested.

CADILLAC WILL HAVE NEW HOME FOR OFFICERS

Work Progressing Rapidly On $600,000 Home In Detroit

Work is progressing on the fourth floor of the new $600,000 administration building of the Cadillac Motor Car company facing Clark avenue in Detroit, Mich. The new building is the final unit in the company's plant-building program begun in 1919.

Announcement of additional building plans amounting to three million dollars was made by the Cadillac company last November, since which time a new assembly unit 750 by 125 feet has been erected and equipped and is now in operation.

Ground Broken.

Ground was broken for the new administration building March 1 and it is expected to be ready for use by mid-summer. Its completion will release for manufacturing purposes 44,000 square feet of factory space now occupied by the company's general offices. The new administration building is to be the finest of the group of factory buildings. It will be of the modern industrial office-building type, of reinforced concrete construction, fire-proof, conforming generally in architecture with the remainder of the plant, but with an exterior of ornamental brick and stone.

It is 321 feet long, 60 feet deep and will be four stories high, with provision for a fifth floor. In the rear of it will be a garage 275 by 60 feet with storage space for 60 cars.

On the ground floor a showroom finished in Terrazino will occupy the north half of the building. Lobby and stairway will be finished in Tavernelle marble and the south section will be devoted to the offices of the Purchasing department.

The executive offices, sales and technical departments will be on the second floor, and all other office departments on the two remaining floors.

Started by Widman.

Ground for the new administration building was broken by Albert U. Widman, works manager, and H. M. Stephens, general sales manager. Mr. Stephens, as construction engineer for the DuPont interests, was in charge of the building of the new Cadillac plant from 1919 to 1921. It occupies a 47-aure tract between the New York Central and Mihhigan Central railroads and has a floor space of more than 53 acres. Since the original plant was finished, a salvage building has been added, also a two-and-one-half-million-dollar foundry unit comprising brass, aluminum and iron foundries, and sand-storage building with an 8,000-ton capacity and a five-story pattern-storage building. Three million dollars is being expended in the present building program and improvements to plant equipment have been made at a cost of another two and one-half million. Cadillac production for the first eight months of the new car season has been double what it was in the corresponding period one year ago.

Hydro-Electric Plants Authorized On Colorado River

AUSTIN, May 1.—(AP)—Permit to construct five hydro-electric power dams on the Colorado river, two in Travis and three in Burnett county today was granted the Syndicate Power company of Dallas by the state board of water engineers.

Action on the sixth proposed dam was postponed until later in the day. Estimated cost of the project is between 15 and 20,000,000 dollars. "The results that will follow the granting of these permits makes today the biggest day in the history of the board of water engineers," John A. Norris, chairman, said. "The men behind this project have unlimited capital. Astounding development will follow the utilization of the 125,000 horsepower to be generated."

State Begins May With $7,705,680

AUSTIN, May 1. — (AP) — The state began the month of May with $7,705,608 in the general revenue fund, W. Gregory Hatcher, state treasurer announced today. During April, $2,250,133 was received by the general revenue fund and $2,017,400 was paid out.

The state highway fund, at the close of busines April 30, amounted to $4,058,895; University of Texas permanent fund, $3,066,215; available school fund, $408,925; permanent school fund, $399,141; Confederate pension fund $728,272; special game fund, $164,275; University of Texa building fund, $65,693; available university fund, $81,855. The remaining funds are of $20,000 and less each.

Boy of 13 Begins Business Career To Support Others

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—Virgil West, 13, began his business career Saturday that he might support a younger brother and sister, while their father, W. V. West, serves a life sentence in the penitentiary for killing the husband of their divorced mother.

The children are determined, they said, not to return to their mother. West charged she was stolen from him by Walter S. Williams, whom he shot to death last fall.

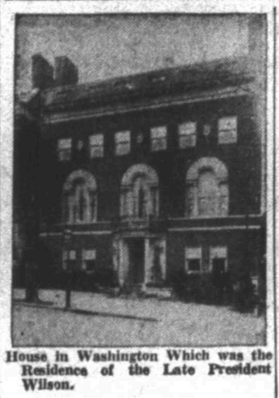

Equipped with a new bicycle, given him by a Dallas woman, Virgil, the new "head of the house," went to work today as a messenger boy. A Waxahachie grocer has offered to supply the children with groceries, while a Dallas man sent $20 to the Dallas county jailer to give them.

Sanger Manager Killed in Wreck

DALLAS, May 1.—(AP)—Recuperating from a confining illness, Sam Levy, 65, floor manager of the local Sanger department store, took a ride in the fresh air of the country today and met his death.

Levy was fatally injured when his automobile collided with another on the orphan's home road out of Dallas. The accident was near a cemetery. He died thirty minutes later, after being removed to his home.

Levy, a native of New York, came here from Sherman 40 years ago. Besides Dallas and New York relatives, he is survived by a sister, Mrs. Anna Cohen of Beaumont.

Oldsmobile Will Stress Service

In recognition of the close connection between automobile service and sales, these two departments of Olds Motor Works have been correlated by the appointment of a service promotion manager who will work under the direction of D. S. Eddins, general sales manager. T. H. Stambaugh, who has had extensive automotive experience both in sales and service, has been appointed to the position.

Mr. Stambaugh is a native of Lansing, Mich., where Olds Motor Works is located, and his first position was with that company After a year with Oldsmobile, Mr. Stambaugh spent three years in banking and then joined the Maxwell Motor company, working both in the factory and as field service man.

Following a year's service in the Marine Corps, Mr. Stambaugh took charge of service in the Denver zone for the Chevrolet Motor company. He was transferred to the Sheridan Motor Car company when the General Motors organized that division, and later joined the Durant Motor company of Indiana as service manager. He was later made assistant to the general manager, continuing in that position until transferred to Flint as assistant to the general manager of the Flint Motor company, which position he held until coming with Oldsmobile.

WILSON

he was just out of the hospital and offering me pins and needles from his peddler's pack. I could buy nothing, but I gave him some shirts, collars, and neckties which were my son's. As he took them I noticed his hands—really beautiful hands, well kept and manicured—not the hands of a peddler.

"Ah, lady," he cried, "you geeva me dees? Lady, listen; on de twenty seex of dis mont—re twenty-seex—de Italian poet—ah, I do not know, you ask."

"You mean D'Annunzio?" I asked. "What is he trying to do in Fiume?"

And I was to be disappointed once more, for the president did not tell me. Instead he said, vehemently:

"Bah. He is behaving like an ass."

As I prepared to leave the Wilsons (for the hour of their departure was approaching) the president laid his hand on his wife's shoulder and said to her:

"Isn't there something we can do?"

She made no reply for I broke in saying, "not for me; not for me. I am quite all right."

Mrs. Wilson turned away, disappearing into another room to tell the valet to fetch my wraps. Woodrow Wilson came close to me and said again:

"Mary, is there nothing we can do?"

"Not for me," I repeated. "I am all right. But you can help Allen, if you wish, Woodrow. He is in New York, nearer you."

The president took out a memorandum book.

"Give me his address," he said, quickly.

"Woodrow, there are some things I cannot understand. I suppose we will not understand until—"

"No, Mary, he interrupted, softly, "not until—"

He did not finish.

Mrs. Wilson went with me to the elevator. She bade me a kindly farewell and there arose from the throng of patient women in the corridor a murmur of relief. They had been so patient. And they were so interested. The elevator quickly dropped me out of the life of my friend Woodrow Wilson—forever. The sun was low on the foothills as the jolting street car bore me back to Hollywood. Long shadows fell in the palm-shaded street where stood the little house I called home. In a quiet room, until darkness fell, I sat alone—thinking.

A few days later, on his way back east. Woodrow Wilson surrendered to destiny. He collapsed into the decline which was to have its mortal end in a crypt on Mount Saint Albans in Washington.

Perhaps no succession of days in my life had been so eventless as those following that last meeting with Woodrow Wilson. In them I followed, through the newspapers, his progress—a progress which was spiritually upward but physically downhill. Perhaps I felt a sort of futility, an emptiness, because I believed in the man, in his ideals, in his moral code. Yet I could see why he was failing where he could never see.

There foundered a man who could give of his mind but could not take of other minds; who did not know humanity for all of his yearnings to serve it. And yet, knowing that Woodrow Wilson's own mind was a large factor in his own defeat. I spent days mourning that it should be so. His mind was a rod of steel—polished, flashing inflexible, true, hard but narrow.

I read the newspapers and to myself protested that the editors should know so little of the man. They had but his superficial measurements and standards, but so painted him. This, perhaps, was his fault, for he could not find it possible to reveals himself to them. A few of them held fast to the truth that to his own self he had remained true, but you cannot feed the mass mind abstractions.

I think I know as clearly as any person outside of his immediate family what a moral thrust the election of 1920 was for him.

The morning of February 3, 1924, found me living in a little flat in New York city. Woodrow Wilson was dying. It was Sunday morning. I left my rooms to walk many blocks to church. I walked down Park avenue, and here and there, as I passed people, I caught the name Woodrow Wilson. I passed several churches. The congregations were gathering early. I could hear them speak of Woodrow Wilson.

I was walknig alone. Services had begun when I reached the Christian Science church I had adopted as mine. It was ten or fifteen minutes after eleven. As I approached the door there came to me suddenly a realization that he was dead. I entered knowing that he was dead. I had spoken to no one, and no one had told me. Yet I knew. And a feeling of peace was upon me. I had no sense of mourning.

As I took my seat a voice was heard singing:

"The heart of the world is dying for a little bit of love."

The services concluded. I walked home in the city's Sabbath quiet. That night I learned that Woodrow Wilson had died as I was entering church—late, as I usually had been in all things. I took his copy of the Oxford Book of Verses and read, as he once had on the South Shore at Bermuda, Dominus Illuminatio Mea:

For even the prest delight may pall,
And power must fail and the pride must fall,
And the love of the dearest friends grow small—
But the glory of the Lord is all in all.

IT DRIVES OUT WORMS

The surest sign of worms in children is paleness, lack of interest in play, fretfulness, variable appetite, picking at the nose and sudden starting in sleep. When these symptoms appear it is time to give White's Cream Vermifuge. A few doses drives out the worms and puts the little one on the road to health again. White's Cream Vermifuge has a record of fifty years of successful use. Price 35c. Sold by all drug stores.—Adv.

GRAHAM BROTHERS TRUCKS SOLD BY DODGE BROTHERS DEALERS EVERYWHERE

82% started to buy higher priced cars

—then decided on the Overland Six because of what they found

HERE are some remarkable facts, brought out in a recent investigation among Overland Six Owners.

They tell the story of Overland popularity in a way that words can never describe.

This check-up shows that 82% of these present owners actually started out to purchase higher priced cars—then changed their mind and bought an Overland when they compared the values offered.

It revealed the fact that 62.5% chose this Six because of its amazing power. "Nothing like it on four wheels today" . . . "its performance thrills me to the finger tips" . . . these are some of the typical things they say.

18% bought this car on its beauty alone . . . without even a demonstration.

15% said that comfort was its greatest feature.

Today over 95,000 Overland Sixes are in use. And sales are multiplying at the rate of 1500 cars every week.

Surely no car could hold this pinnacle place in public favor . . . unless sheer merit put it there.

What you get in the world-famous Six

This car has tremendous power . . . performance-ability you have never experienced in any automobile of equal or nearly equal engine-dimensions.

Its full 40-brake horsepower is delivered in a straight line from its low-swung engine through to the rear-axle shaft.

This big sturdy Six will out-pull, outrun and out-perform anything else of its size, or weight, or price-class.

It is a car of exceptional comfort. The big, broad door openings are 32½ inches wide. You can get in or out with the utmost ease.

Seats are wide, luxuriously comfortable. There is more cubic feet of inside space than in any car of this price . . . with plenty of room for five full-size passengers. Room to stretch your legs without feeling cramped or crowded.

The rear springs are extra long . . . and underslung. They are 52 inches long and are made of Chrome Vanadium Steel . . . a costly metal, but it's the best for absorbing the jolts and jars of the road.

Nothing has been spared to make this car a positive comfort-revelation. Owners accustomed to more expensive cars tell us this is true.

An Artist Created It

The distinguished, smart looking Overland Six you see in the illustration is not a chance result.

An artist created it. Every line, every curve and contour is the result of painstaking craftsmanship and study.

Frankly, we took the 18 best cars of America and Europe and combined their salient features in this new-type Overland Six.

It is a strikingly beautiful automobile. Low swung . . . it fairly hugs the ground.

And it possesses a singularly happy color-combination.

Even practical men call it "a superlatively handsome car". And women revel in its unobtrusive smartness, its beautiful Velour upholstery and attractive fitments.

Do you wonder that we urge you to see this car? That we ask you to find out what it offers before making up your mind?

Don't let the low price mislead you

The exceptionally low price of the Overland Six is made possible by the tremendous purchasing power and manufacturing facilities of Willys-Overland which are unexcelled throughout the world.

There is no Six built today that offers greater value . . . no car made in which finer quality of material is used or better workmanship employed.

Get the utmost for your money. Ride in this car . . . test it in comparison to the value others offer. In fairness to yourself buy no car until you do.

ODD FELLOWS CELEBRATE

The local lodges of Odd Fellows and Rebekahs held a joint meeting Tuesday night and celebrated the 107th anniversary of the founding of Odd Fellowship. Hon. J. W. Chancellor of Bowie and Judge B. D. Sartin of Wichita Falls delivered interesting addresses. Other numbers on the program were readings by Miss Allene King and vocal solos by Miss Jimmy Norman. After the program the dinngroom of the lodge.

PLAN COUNTY FEDERATION

The second meeting of the cdlub women of the county was held at the Christian church Saturday afternoon to form definite plans for a county federation. Ten different organizations were represented by 28 women present. Reports of the district federation held at Vernon april 21-23 were given by Mrs. Joseph Edwards and Mrs. F. O. Moore. A roun table discussion followed these and plans were made and was voted unanimously in favor of a county federation and June 15 was the date set to have an all day meeting to form a permanent organization. There will be an interesting program with prominent out-of-women as principal speakers. Every organization in the county whether town or rural P. T. A., Civic league, home demonstration study clubs and others, is urged to take this matter up and elect a delegate to cast the clubs vote and to attend in a body. Lunch will be served to all delegates and guests.

Miss Ernestine Mason, home demonstration agent, is assisting Mrs. W. S. Mount, county chairman, with the arrangements. An enjoyable and profitable day is in prospect. The slogan is, "Know Your County, Know Your State, Know Your Nation."

CIVIL SERVICE - By FANNIE HURST

Copyright, 1926, by
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The World's Highest Paid Short Story Writer

Author of "Lummox", "Humoresque"

The thirty-eight years that John Flynn had given to civil service were an honor to himself and to his government.

He and Meena had watched the old neighborhood fade away—like the prolonged dying of something that had once been gay and young and good.

But in the end Meena's dream came true, in the sun-drenched little bungalow with climbing roses over the door and a date palm that shaded it.

THE years that John Flynn had given to civil service were an honor to himself and to his government.

For thirty-eight of them, without missing a day, except the year he suffered a fractured shoulder bone from a blow from a packet of second-class matter being unloaded from a Post Office truck, John Flynn had been mail carrier in the same residential district of the large manufacturing city in which he had lived all his life.

That is, he was mail carrier in what used to be a residential district. In the years that had marched on during John's service, petty shops, garages, meat markets and feed stores had gradually forced their way into the neighborhood, so that toward the latter years of his service, mail carrying had lost much of the personal flavor over which John could wax reminiscent and garrulous.

The good old days when the Bronsons occupied the brown stone house now converted into a fancy fruit shop on the sidewalk level and piano show rooms above. Old Mrs. Bronson, who used to open the front door herself, even in the palmy days when the Bronson Tools Works was at its height, and hand John out a sack of her steaming hot doughnuts to tuck into his mail bag.

The Trefuses, whose house used to stand where the Five- and Ten-Cent Store now stood, used to invite John Flynn and his wife Meena to Thanksgiving dinner every year of their lives. The Trefuses were dead now, to the last one of them. Meena and John, eating their Thanksgiving dinner in the little flat over a shoe cobbler's that they had occupied for thirty-four of the thirty-five years of their married lives, would swallow down the tears with their turkey, these latter years.

Times had changed.

It was a matter now of tossing the mail in through the shop-door or delivering it to a black boy with gilt braid on his cap at the entrance of an apartment house, or slipping it into a box and touching an electric bell beneath it.

Gone were the personal contacts of the old days. The feeling of actual joy with which you delivered a letter to old lady Grindell from her son in the navy. The eagerness with which you waited for Clothilda Brown to open the door so that you might hand her a letter from her husband in Arizona and watch her smile broaden as she broke open the envelope to see if therein there might not be tucked a message for John Flynn, the postman.

In those days, the women sent Meena curious cryptic messages about sewing afternoons and two yards of muslin to be cut on the bias. The Corrigans were forever giving him small packets of tissue paper to deliver to Meena. Patterns for her to putter over before the next meeting of their sewing society. At Christmas time the Corrigans always handed him out his basket containing two ducks, two jars of Grandma Corrigan's pickled mangoes and a box of the loveliest candied violet leaves done by Edith, the second daughter.

John and Meena delivered their packets, too, during those happy years—gifts that Meena made by hand for the friends on "the beat."

Then there was the other side. The heartbreaking side. The side that gradually was to disintegrate the old neighborhood. John carried the letter to Clothilda Brown one Saturday morning that was to cause the first real shift in the neighborhood. With a smile on her lips Clothilda opened it while John stood waiting, with his leather pack on his knees and one foot lifted to the top step of the porch.

He caught Clothilda as she reeled toward him. Calvin Brown, supposed to be convalescing of a lung complaint in Arizona, had died suddenly, overnight.

Two months later, the Brown home was occupied by a woman in a bombazine dress who kept roomers.

Curiously enough, that was the beginning. Scarcely a month passed that there was not contained somewhere in a packet of mail delivered by John a letter destined to change the fortune of one of the families living in the district.

Hiram Bronson wrote his mother from Detroit one day that his future business interests would keep him in that city and suggested that she sell the house and join him in the Michigan city with his sisters and two brothers.

That was how the Bronson mansion, the showiest in the neighborhood, came to be converted into the piano salesrooms.

Morton Trefus, said to have married a French countess, wrote his parents from Paris one day, inviting them to share their elaborate villa in a suburb called Fontainbleau.

Morton's had been almost the only foreign letter John ever delivered on his beat. When the Trefuses moved away, he missed it as if a friend had ceased to live.

And so it went. Year after year of change, disintegration. The influx of new life. New interests. New, strange, busy people with no personal contacts with the moth-gray, stoop-shouldered old man who passed on three daily rounds with the mail sack on his back.

Only the Flynns did not seem to change, except to grow older, grayer, a bit dimmer. A bit sadder. There was something inexpressionly sad about the defection of the old neighborhood. The prolonged dying of something that had once been gay and young and good.

One day, walking up a flight of apartment house steps, old John Flynn sank softly forward to his knees in a faint.

The doctors diagnosed his ill as nothing serious. Nothing serious except years. John was getting old. John's strength was going. At last he was face to face with the contingency of having to accept his pension and retire.

For eight years John had valiantly fought off this moment. Fought it off in the face of Meena's pleas and the growing weakness that he could no longer deny.

The time had come for Meena's little dream to ripen now into fulfilment.

The dream of a bungalow on a tiny plot of ground in the sun-drenched neighborhood of Southern California. For fifteen years Meena had been hoarding real-estate literature, booklets, pamphlets, that had to do with that God-Kissed country.

The time had come.

One rainy day, the middle-west town which these two brown little, drab little, obscure folks had made their life-time home, saw them board a train for the land of Meena's heart's desire.

John and Meena, without leaving so much as even a temporary hole in the community, dropped out of it one day. Quietly. Unsung. Unhonored. After thirty-five years of service.

But the dream had come true. Thrifty, even shrewd little Meena Flynn. By the grace of conniving, and making one penny go further than two, there was their hoard of savings carefully sunk into what promised to be a wise investment. And the dream! There it stood in the sunshine. A four-room bungalow on the edge of Los Angeles, with climbing roses over the front door and a date palm tree that shaded the stoop.

Meena, the day that they moved in, wept the saltiest tears of her life.

Tears of thanksgiving. Of peace. Of fulfilment.

Something in John opened, too. Like a bud. A dried old bud coming to life in the sunshine. The long, sweet days. The perfumed silence. Meena at work in their tiny kitchen, singing.

Life was good.

After a while, when the leisure began to pall and strength came flowing back to John, he found a pastime, too. Something to do that helped him find joy and recreation during the long, inactive days.

The mailcarrier on their route was a genial young fellow named Pete Sleek. He let John accompany him, the three times a day he delivered, as a special favor, permitting John to lug the mail bag.

And life became complete.
