Innovative programs will bring doctors to Hereford

Thanks to an innovative plan to bring more doctors to Hereford, three physicians will be moving to the community after completion of their residency programs in 1994 and 1995.

The creative program will guarantee a stipend salary while they complete their education in exchange for a commitment to establish a practice in Hereford. The program is one that many rural and urban hospitals are using to help plan for physician coverage in the future.

Dr. Glen E. Alford, Dr. D. Bruce Clarke and Dr. R. Stephen Lawlis are graduates of Texas Tech University Medical School and are currently completing residencies. Dr. Alford has two more years of training, while Drs. Clarke and Lawlis have three years.

"This program guarantees us physicians for the future, while we are continuing a search for more physicians who can come to Hereford immediately," said Ron Rives, Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator. "Physician recruitment is the centerpiece of our strategic plan for the hospital."

All three doctors won several honors during their training, with two of the men coming to the medical profession from other fields. Dr. Lawlis was president of Alpha Omega Alpha Medical Honor Society at Tech and served as research assistant in the departments of dermatology and pathology. He was also named outstanding student of internal medicine for 1991-92.

Dr. Lawlis graduated from the University of Texas in 1982 with an engineering science degree. He completed a Master's degree in engineering at UT in 1988. He received his doctor of medicine degree at Tech in May, 1992. He worked for five years as a civil engineer with Camp Dresser & McKee, Inc.

Dr. Lawlis and his wife, Kim, presently live in Chapel Hill, N.C., where he is completing a three-year residency in internal medicine. They have two children, Sarah and Jeffrey.

Dr. Alford, who received his doctor of medicine degree from Tech in 1991, earned his BS degree in biology from Lamar University in 1971. He worked as a logging engineer for McCullough Services, and then owned his own business for six years.

He is currently serving a residency in family practice at Texas Tech Health Science Center in Odessa. Dr. Alford and his wife, Debra, have three children.

Dr. Clarke grew up in Hereford and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Clarke. He received his BS degree in entomology and his doctor of medicine degree from Tech. During his undergraduate days, he was a linebacker for the Red Raiders.

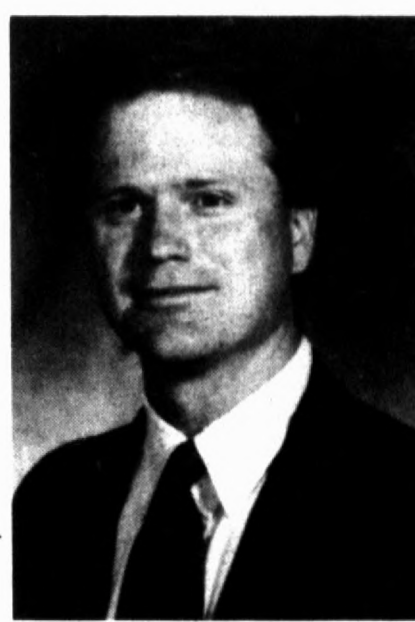

Dr. Clarke was named outstanding graduating student in entomology in 1986, and also received the award for highest academic achievement. He served a family practice preceptorship in Levelland from June 1989 to May 1991. He is serving a three-year residency in Boise, Idaho, where his now living with his wife, Melissa.

According to Rives, payment of a stipend to a physician who is completing training is becoming more common throughout the country. "Like other things in our economy, the cost of medical training is skyrocketing. This type program is good for the physicians and good for the community. It allows the young doctor to graduate without a tremendous debt, and provides safe medical coverage to areas that may be short of doctors, he said.

"The community-based physician recruitment committee has worked very hard during the past few months," Rives added. Their diligence and foresight in recruiting these three doctors for the future will help assure Deaf Smith County residents of continued quality health care.

Recycling collection is Saturday

EnCoRe and the City of Hereford have established community recycling day to be held the first Saturday of every month, beginning Oct. 3.

Collection sites will be in convenient locations within the city limits. October's collection will take place in the parking lot at St. Anthony's Church, U.S. Highway 385 and Park, from 9 a.m. to noon.

City trash trucks will be available to collect recyclable materials for transport to area dealer.

Residents are urged to bring these recyclable goods:

- Clean glass containers, sorted by color.
- Plastic containers, clean glass containers, sorted by color.
- Plastic containers, clean with lids removed.
- Newspapers and white office paper, tied in bundles.
- Car and boat batteries.
- Metal cans, clean with labels removed.

Girls perform at halftime Friday

These girls were among over 200 that performed at halftime Friday night at Whiteface Stadium. After a clinic last weekend with the Hereford High School twirlers and drill team, the girls performed routines to "Louie, Louie" with the Mighty Maroon Band. That meant over 500 persons on the field at once. The Frenship Tigers might have felt the 500 stayed on the field as the Herd shut out the visitors from Wolfthorpe in the second half to take a 27-7 win.

United Way touches everyone in county

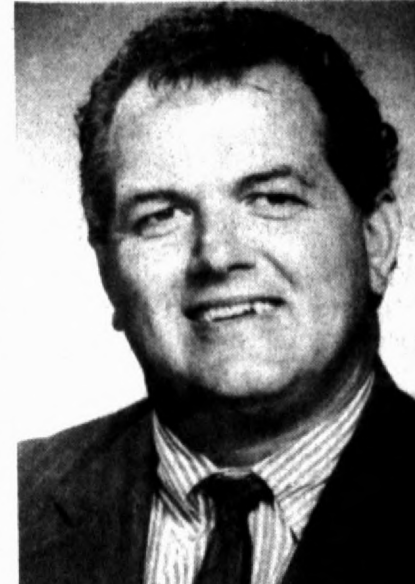

United Way of Deaf Smith County is a great way for everyone in the community to contribute to programs that contribute to the entire community, with 12 member agencies benefitting from the campaign currently underway.

Twelve member agencies which give comfort and support to all, from toddler to grandparent, regardless of age, sex, nationality or creed, will benefit from this year's campaign. The goal this year is $150,000.

In past year Deaf Smith County citizens have responded generously to help fund agencies which assist disabled children and their families, the abused and victimized, providers of value systems for young people who many times don't get support from anyone else.

United Way of Deaf Smith County helps build a strong community. Our young people are indeed the leaders of tomorrow. Perhaps even more important is what they are doing today. Campfire, Boy Scouts and Girl

"United Way of Deaf Smith County is for everyone," said Ron Rives, campaign chairman. "All 12 agencies help make this community a better place to live. They help our children, our friends, our neighbors, our parents, our siblings--and, maybe even you."

Hereford native gets first-hand look at aircraft carrier

By JEFFREY A. BENDER

ABOARD USS EISENHOWER - Carry-on luggage wasn't allowed. Drinks weren't served nor was there an in-flight movie. And the flight wouldn't rate high on the list of the most comfortable. DC-10's or 747's offer all the first class accommodations you would expect in today's air transportation business but this was a propeller driven, bare bones Navy C-2. And it wasn't bound for one of the United States' top cities, either.

Nicknamed "Greyhound" by naval aviators because of its primary mission of carrying passengers and cargo to and from aircraft carriers, this C-2, with Dr. Richard Tucker, the son of the late Floyd and Zula Tucker of Hereford, aboard was destined to land on a rolling four-and-a-half acre landing strip atop the USS Dwight D. Eisenhower, steaming off the coast of Florida. The executive director of the Construction Industry Institute, at the University of Texas in Austin, Tucker was getting a first hand look at the Navy in operation. His first stop was a bone-jarring trap on Eisenhower's flight deck.

Tucker, a 1953 graduate of Hereford High School, was among a dozen business and community leaders from around the country chosen to take part in a Secretary of the Navy Guest Cruise. These "no-cost-to-the-government" cruises are regularly scheduled to introduce civilians who have not previously been exposed to naval operations.

"It was business-like, but overall a pleasant experience," Tucker, 57, said describing his C-2 flight. "From the pilot to the load officers, everyone was helpful and very safety conscious."

Once aboard the nuclear-powered Eisenhower, Tucker and his traveling companions were greeted by Capt. William V. Cross II, commanding officer of the aircraft carrier nicknamed "Ike."

Tucker said the commanding officer's job made the biggest personal impression. "The captain's job struck me as most interesting because of the breadth of responsibility and knowledge required," he observed. "But, the level of dedication to excellence and perfection in training was evident in all the officers and crew. They are a tribute to the professionalism and efficiency of our younger generation."

Eisenhower, commissioned in 1977, is typical of the Nimitz-class aircraft carriers. With an overall length of 1,092 feet, Ike is one of the larger military vessels in the world. When its airwing is fully embarked, the ship's population numbers more than 5,500.

With a crew this size, the carrier's dining facilities serve more than 20,000 meals a day. At sea, the men of Ike enjoy two television stations, up to three radio stations and a daily newspaper. The carrier's power plants generate enough energy to meet the needs of a small town; Ike even has its own internal telephone system. Other facilities on the 95,000-ton vessel include full-service medical and dental clinics, convenience stores and fitness rooms.

As demonstrated to Tucker, first and foremost, the Eisenhower serves as a floating platform for Navy fighters, bombers and support aircraft to be used in conflict. In peacetime, carrier operations center around training and readiness, and deployment around the world preparing for the possibility of an outbreak of hostilities even while engaged in keeping the peace.

During Operation Desert Shield, the ability of the President to order American carriers to take up strike positions quickly was, according to defense analysts, a major contributing factor that led Saddam Hussein to blink, avoiding an invasion of Saudi Arabia. That blink allowed the coalition to build up the forces needed to win Operation Desert Storm. USS Eisenhower led the race to the Persian Gulf region, to project the bristling forward-deployed presence that halted the advance of Hussein's army.

Tucker has had no personal military experience except for a brief period of ROTC training while a student at UT. In his position at UT, he comes in

Tucker visits USS Eisenhower

Richard Tucker, a Hereford native who is now director of the Construction Industry Institute at the University of Texas, recently participated in a special guest cruise with the secretary of the Navy. Tucker toured Marine Corps and Navy bases and spent a day and night on the USS Dwight D. Eisenhower, a nuclear aircraft carrier.

Jana Johnson is executive director of High Plains Epilepsy Association, which provides medical attention that allows many with epilepsy to lead normal, productive lives. Services to clients and family members include counseling, employment assistance, transportation, medical arrangements and education.

"In the 5 1/2 years I've worked with the Epilepsy Association, I've seen dozens of success stories," said Johnson. "United Way makes these stories possible. It help people receive the medical assistance they need to help them lead productive lives."

The association hopes to receive $3,750 this year from UWDSC.

Big Brothers/Big Sisters of Hereford provides meaningful, long-term adult relationships for youth who need additional companionship and role models. Volunteers serve "at-risk" children between the ages of 5 and 18 from single-parent homes.

"Our program is entirely community supported," said Alva Lee Peeler, executive director of Big Brothers/Big Sisters. "There are no fees for our services, so we must depend on the United Way and other local entities to help boys and girls who need this service."

BB/BS has helped about 55 youngsters during the past year, but there are many more who could be helped if you Take Time To Care. The agency hopes to receive $15,000 this year from United Way of Deaf Smith County.

'Magic' needed for aging Fair Park

DALLAS (AP) - City workers again have conjured up some October magic to mask Fair Park's cracking walls, fading facades and crumbling infrastructure as they ready for the annual State Fair of Texas.

A little paint and landscaping here and a banner there, and - presto! - the cracks and fading artwork disappear, temporarily, and the fair is ready for the 3.5 million visitors expected to stroll through the gates during the event's 24-day run, beginning Friday. "Traditionally we have managed some magic, judiciously placing banners and colorful canvas - behind it may be a very large crack - but we manage to hide it for a while," said spokeswoman Nancy Wiley.

Firemen plan '92 prevention

Hereford volunteer firefighters and Fire Marshall Jay Spain are gearing up for a large commemoration of this year's National Fire Prevention Week observance in Hereford, Oct. 4-10.

Spain said the fire station will host county schoolchildren on tours of the station during the week. An open house is planned Oct. 10, with rides on a restored antique fire truck for children who are accompanied by at least one parent. The fire department will also be distributing special stickers for use on windows and doors of houses. The stickers ("C" for children, "I" for an invalid or any person who may not be easily evacuated in a fire) allow firefighters to more easily identify where they need to go in case of fire.

During tours, volunteer firefighters and staff members will give children an idea of what firefighters must do when they are called, and distribute coloring pages and hats.

HJH Roundup

Hereford Junior High went to the movies again this week. "All's Quiet On the Western Front" was the mood in junior high as students were involved in TAAS on Tuesday through Thursday. Some classes were completing six-week tests during the week, also, so it was actually testing week!

We've missed "The Sound of Music" from band practice because of TAAS. The band is preparing for the homecoming parade and "It's A Great Feeling" to watch and to hear the progress made. "Hat's Off" to our band directors!

Sometimes we'd like to go "Back To The Future" and "The Way We Were" as far as teaching the basics is concerned. We are seeing this concept returning and are putting it to good use. Of course, some teachers have continually blended this with other programs through the years.

To you parents who have evidently stressed value, morals and respect as you've prepared your children for life--we say "Thank You!" "It's A Wonderful Life" to work with them and they are definitely peer leaders and good examples. It's good to know that "The Ten Commandments" haven't been portrayed as the ten suggestions in your homes.

Theodore Roosevelt once said, "To educate a person in mind and not in morals is to educate a menace to society". HJH students are improving on courtesy and values and perhaps "To Sir, With Love" will soon be a reality in this area.

Stars of the week were Kris Friel and Shawna DonJuan. These students each received HJH t-shirts and courtesy cards. Other stars to be recognized are Whiteface Ford and Hereford Texas Federal Credit Union for furnishing the required pencils for use with TAAS.

Some of the essays that students are preparing include "If I Were President, Here's How I'd Help My School...", "Why A College Education Is Important" and "Famous Landmarks of the American Revolution." "Who Knows?" We may be able to say A Star is Born when a "Local Hero" becomes a winner.

And speaking of local heroes, we congratulate Bethany Townsend for her record-setting track accomplishments. Bethany excels in the classroom, also. She makes "Flying Down To Rio" a "piece of cake"

Next week, we'll be having "Sweet Dreams" of report cards and hope that each student will take home "Some Kind of Wonderful" report to their parents. You'll also be hearing news from the English and math departments.

North American leaders may hold meeting in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - President Bush will meet in early October in San Antonio with the heads of state of Mexico and Canada to initial the text of the North American Free Trade Agreement, according to published reports.

The San Antonio Express-News and the San Antonio Light reported in Saturday's editions that the meeting probably will be about Oct. 7 between Bush, Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari and Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

According to the Light, Mulroney's press secretary confirmed that his government has alerted some San Antonio hotels for a possible meeting of the heads of state in early October.

The Express-News said it was told the meeting is expected to last about two hours.

San Antonio Mayor Nelson Wolff said he is unable to comment on the plans.

Mexico's consul general said any announcements relating to Salinas' schedule would have to come from the president's residence in Mexico City.

Mark Entwistle, Mulroney's press secretary, said Friday in Ottawa that the three heads of state are trying to find a mutually agreeable time and place to approve the final draft of the proposed free trade agreement.

"They're continuing to pull together the legal text on the NAFTA, and there is talk now of organizing something to have the agreement initialed," Entwistle said.

At least one local hotel official said representatives of all three governments had called inquiring about the possibility of accommodating the heads of state and their official entourages.

Entwistle said a San Antonio site for the meeting is not certain. Regarding a Mexican news report that the meeting could take place Oct. 8-9, Entwistle said that was only one of the set of dates suggested for the meeting.

Washington sources said Salinas has scheduled an Oct. 7-8 trip to New York and Virginia and could be hoping to add the three-nation summit to his state-side agenda.

The Houston Post reported Thursday that White House sources had confirmed planning was under way for an early October meeting of the Canadian, Mexican and United States heads of state. That report quoted a Mexican news report as stating the meeting could take place in Houston.

A presidential signing ceremony, to be held next month, would be ceremonial.

But an October free-trade summit might be seen by Bush as an opportunity to challenge his campaign opponent, Arkansas Gov. Bill Clinton, to define his position on the proposed pact.

Clinton has said he favors free trade, but he has expressed reservations about details in the agreement worked out by the Bush administration.

In the elections of 1824, 1876 and 1888, the presidential candidate receiving the largest popular vote failed to win a majority of the electoral votes and the other guy (John Quincy Adams, Rutherford B. Hayes and Benjamin Harrison, respectively) got the job.

Scouts gives boys and girls a helping hand and a place to go. The Hereford YMCA helps youngsters to learn respect for themselves and others.

Other agencies help those who may be having emotional difficulty or financial troubles. Salvation Army, Rape Crisis/Domestic Violence Center and Hereford Family Services Center give people a choice, leading them into lives of hope rather than despair.

Funding for the Hereford Senior Citizens Association helps provide meals and companionship for those whom we must not forget. There are many touched every day through Senior Center activities that supported us in earlier years, so that support is returned today.

Those who are physically challenged can learn to live more productive, richer lives because of United Way of Deaf Smith County. High Plains Epilepsy Association and the Children's Rehabilitation Center offer tremendous returns in human life and regained dignity. These agencies treat the family, not just the individual, further enhancing their worth to the community.

Each year, a board of directors determines the amount that each agency will receive. No one gets a free ride: all must offer requests in writing, and the board looks carefully at the work of the past year and needs for the coming year.

"United Way of Deaf Smith County is for everyone," said Ron Rives, campaign chairman. "All 12 agencies help make this community a better place to live. They help our children, our friends, our neighbors, our parents, our siblings—and, maybe even you."

INVESTING IN REAL ESTATE

There are many excellent reasons for investing in real estate but there is a little homework that should be done before jumping in. Deciding how much you can comfortably afford is a first priority and then finding the right investment property is next. If you decide to purchase rental property, here are some suggestions that may help. Purchase property within 100 miles of your home. It's easier to manage the property and you will probably know the property values closer to your home. Look for properties that need only cosmetic repairs. Properties that need major repairs, may be "bargains" but unless you are a contractor, you will spend more in the long run. Check to make sure the rent will cover mortgage payments, insurance, taxes and improvements. Once you have decided on the right property and it's purchased, you now have your hands on an investment. Purchasing property and using the rent to cover the mortgage will build up a safe nest egg over the years. If you are considering investment property, give us a call. We have several possibilities.

That feller on Tierra Blanca Creek says one of life's big mysteries is how a two-pound box of candy can make you gain five pounds.

There's only one place in the world where you can find financial security, and that's within your income.

Butch White and Don Cumpston were playing golf and were waiting to tee off on the next hole. Don asked Butch, "What do you think of my game?"

"Oh, it's all right," said Butch, "but I still like golf better."

The Whitefaces evened their record at 2-2 Friday night by downing the Frenship Tigers, 27-7. If they continue to improve, the Herd will contend for the District 1-4A title. Dumas and Randall appear to be the teams to beat, but you can't count out winless Pampa, either. Hereford catches Randall here but travels to Dumas for the final regular season game. It could be a big one!

Fans here Friday night got a big kick out of the halftime show. The HHS twirlers and drill team recently held a clinic for girls aged 5 to 13, and expected about 50 to sign up. They had 260 turn out, and most of them participated in the halftime show Friday night!

With its great Senior Citizen Center and other facilities for the elderly, Hereford is attracting a lot of retirees. Announcement of the construction of a new nursing home on North Kingwood, just south of the Fellowship of Believers Church, will add yet another asset for the community.

The home is being built by an Abilene contractor, according to a report from Mike Carr at the chamber of commerce, and will be leased to an operator. The contractors are currently building a new nursing home in Dumas.

The home here is expected to be a million-dollar facility with 120 beds and will employ about 65 people. It is expected to be completed in about six months.

The hospital board's physician recruitment committee has helped develop a plan to secure more doctors for the future, as is outlined in a news article in today's paper. The committee includes medical staff, hospital administration, board members and several citizens. Without a doubt, it is the most aggressive, most efficient method ever used locally to search for new physicians.

The group has not come up with a doctor to make an immediate move, but they are still working on the situation. Some folks may not think much of the plan to sign up doctors to come here in two and three years, but we think those critics will change their minds when the time arrives!

Meanwhile, we look forward to making an announcement that a new physician will be coming to the community in the near future.

I was having lunch Friday at K-Bob's and was paged to the telephone. "I just wanted to be the first to tell you, Speedy, that someone quotes you besides Putt Powell," said Carey Black. He said he'd just heard Paul Harvey read an item from the Hereford Bull column on his national radio show.

When I got back to the office, the bookkeeper said about a dozen people had called to say they heard the broadcast. Several more people called Friday afternoon, including a friend from Austin and a reporter from the Amarillo Globe-News.

Just in case I run for political office, I need to set the record straight right now. It was not an original story. I don't remember if I read it somewhere or the story was told to me by someone else. The item was in last Sunday's column and was about the Sunday School teacher who was having difficulty in keeping the attention of her class of youngsters.

Finally she decided to ask them some Biblical questions. She made the first one easy. "What was Christ's first name?"

The youngsters, with blank stares, looked at the ceiling and out the window. Finally, one little hand went up.

"Good for you, Bubba," said the teacher, "Now tell the whole class Christ's first name."

"Andy," said the youngster. The teacher was stunned.

"Sure," said Bubba. "It's Andy. Like, you know, in that song... Andy walks with me, Andy talks with me..."

Masons hold open house here

The Hereford Masonic Lodge will hold an open house Sunday, Sept. 27, along with other lodges across the state. The public is invited to attend the open house here and learn what Masons are about.

The following column originally appeared in March of 1991 and was written by Wanda Evans, editorial writer for the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal:

Learning that all the Masonic Lodges in Texas were planning an Open House came as a bit of a surprise to one who for years knew little about Freemasonry except that it had a reputation for secrecy.

Until a year or two ago, all I knew about the Masons was that non-Masons are not allowed in most Masonic meetings, that Masons take great pride in their Masonic affiliation and that people who need help frequently call on Masons for assistance. Now I find out that, although the precise origin of Freemasonry is not certain, it is recognized as an ancient and honorable institution, with its roots going at least as far back as the 15th century.

The early history of Scotland, England and France shows a healthy Masonry, and the organization came to the colonies with some of its earliest settlers. The great majority of the 56 signers of the Declaration of Independence were Masons.

Legend has it that whenever a new frontier town sprang up in America, the Masons first built a little white church, a little red school and a little blue lodge. And after establishing these institutions, the Masons dedicated themselves to ensuring their growth.

Masonry is the oldest and largest fraternal organization in the world, with members in every free country. Masonry also constitutes the world's largest philanthropy, spending almost $2 million each day to operate its many charitable programs.

The division of Masonry called the Scottish Rite operates the Learning Center of West Texas, which offers language retraining to children with dyslexia and graduate-level training for teachers to meet the needs of these children. No charges are ever made for the Learning Center's services to children; the work is funded by both Masons and non-Masons.

Shriners Hospitals, located in the United States, Canada and Mexico, provide outstanding care to children who have orthopedic problems or who have been severely burned.

Both inpatient and outpatient care are given to children from infancy to the 18th birthday regardless of race, religion or relationship to a Shriner. Shrine hospitals do not charge for any of the care or services they provide. Admission is based on medical and financial need.

There should be a reasonable possibility that the patient would benefit from orthopedic treatment and that treatment at another facility would place an undue financial burden on the child's family.

In addition to operating 19 orthopedic hospitals, Shriners also operate three Burns Institutes for children who have been burned and need immediate care, as well as for children needing plastic reconstructive or restorative surgery and rehabilitation as result of burn injuries. Knights Templar is the branch of the Masonic fraternity that established the Eye Foundation. It engages in research, surgical treatment and hospitalization of those who suffer from diseases of or injuries to the eye that could result in blindness. Again, treatment is free, and in this case is limited to persons unable to pay for it.

The Knights Templar Educational Foundation, created in 1922, has assisted more than 77,000 students with loans amounting to almost $35 million.

The Foundation has been sustained and perpetuated because each Sir Knight paid $1 annually for a period of nine years beginning July 1, 1924. Half of this assessment was placed in the fund for direct investment, and the other half was made immediately available for student loans for vocational, technical or professional training and for under-graduate (last two years) and post-graduate study.

Throughout the years, millions of Masons have quietly moved among their neighbors, providing help wherever they saw a need. At the same time, they sought to nourish their own educational, philosophical and spiritual well-being.

Guests at the Masonic Open House Sept. 27 will discover what Masons really have been doing all these years, and will recognize the impact Masons has made locally and throughout the world.

Help needed to land industry

BY JIM HUDSON

The Perryton Herald

Once again the Perryton Economic Development Corporation (PEDCO) is in the hunt for a new industry to locate in our city. Because of the nature of the economic development game, the name of the company, its products and even specific plans have to remain confidential.

But, the company would invest from $10 to $12 million in our community and hire 200, or as many as 400, people. Before you get too wide a smile on your face at this prospect, consider that we are just barely in the running for the operation.

Two other cities will submit proposals and, if it works as in the past, we will again be the bridesmaid, not the bride. Last year a similar prospect, also a food processing company, had PEDCO submit a proposal. That plant is now under construction in Altus, OK. Why?

The answer is simple. Altus offered a combination of tax abatement, financing and loan guarantees that proved to be the most attractive to the company. Soon, the population of Altus will grow by as many 2,500 new residents.

Over 400 people will be employed by the food processor; those employees will bring family members, an average of another 800; support service employees and their families will add another 1,000, and the rest will be the expansion of local businesses.

This all came about because the people of Altus were willing to do something that the people of Perryton were unwilling to do--tax themselves.

Yes, Altus voters approved a sales tax to pay for the inducements to lure the food processing firm to their city.

Formed about 18 months ago, PEDCO is a private, non-profit corporation and the only funds at its disposal are donated by individuals and companies. There is no taxpayer funding.

As a result, PEDCO has the ability to reach out, find out about and participate in making an offer on some company relocations, but there is no money to make Perryton's offer even an also-ran, much less the best offer to a company.

An analogy would be quail hunting. PEDCO knows where the game is, but cannot afford a gun or shells.

Many residents thought they were saving themselves money by turning down the half-cent economic development sales tax two years ago. That was false economy. Is your house worth more today than it was two years ago? Is your job more secure than it was two years ago? Are the friends and neighbors you had two years ago still here?

An economic development sales tax is not the answer to all our problems, but the funds it would make available would be an excellent tool to bring new business to our area. As we sit still and city after city across the state and nation choose to tax themselves to improve their future, more competition is generated for every new business prospect.

PEDCO needs the assistance that economic development sales tax funds could bring. We need to be in the economic development game with a hope of winning, not just playing.

Notes on the law

A rapidly growing career in the law is that of a paralegal. A paralegal is someone, other than an attorney, who performs specific legal work under the direct supervision of an attorney.

For example, paralegals perform legal research, prepare for depositions of witnesses, assist in trials and do most anything an attorney does except appear in court. As this career has developed most paralegals have been associated with a specific firm and many have primarily worked with a specific attorney or group of attorneys in that firm.

The traditional notion has been that, if a paralegal was not an employee of a law firm, then the paralegal could not work on his or her own, because that would be "unauthorized practice of law."

Anyone considering a career as a paralegal might be interested to know that, at least in some states, they could hang out their own shingle. Recently, in New Jersey, the Supreme Court held, "Neither case law nor statutes distinguish paralegals employed by an attorney or law firm from independent paralegals retained by an attorney or law firm. . . . The important inquiry is whether the paralegal, whether employed or retained (as a contractor), is working for the attorney and under the attorney's direct supervision."

The court noted that with computers, telecopy machines and other technological developments, an independent paralegal is easily supervised by the attorney.

Following this decision, the New Mexico Supreme Court, for example, has proposed changes to the rules governing "legal assistants." Under the proposed new definition of "legal assistant" in New Mexico a legal assistant or paralegal could maintain an independent office as long as the paralegal works "under the ultimate direction and supervision of an attorney." Proposed Rule 20-102 Rules Governing Legal Assistants.

In New Jersey, New Mexico and probably a growing number of other states, a career as a paralegal offers not only a handsome income, but, for the entrepreneur, the flexibility of setting your own hours and work habits.

For those interested, schools offering paralegal or legal assistant certification can be identified by contacting the Professional Legal Assistants, Inc., P.O. Box 31951, Raleigh, North Carolina 27622 or at telephone number 1-919-821-7762.

Balloon Festival begins next week

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - October means fall colors and stiff necks as people crane their heads to watch hundreds of silky hot air balloons dotting the skies over New Mexico's largest city.

This year's 21st International Balloon Fiesta Oct. 3-11 expects to attract about 650 balloons and more than a million enthusiasts to ooh and ahh over the vibrant colors or the weird shapes.

Each year, hundreds of balloons take to the skies during mass ascensions on the fiesta's two weekends, which attract the heaviest crowds to the fiesta park on Albuquerque's north side.

Early rising balloon fans huddle against the nippy air, drinking coffee or hot chocolate and eating breakfast burritos from vendors around the field as they watch pilots and crews prepare for launch around 7 a.m.

And every year thousands of people get a closer feel for ballooning by volunteering for chase crews - following their chosen airborne balloon in a pickup truck or van on the ground. Crew members scan the skies, often bouncing over rough roads or back country to pick up balloons, which land where the prevailing winds take them.

Hot air balloons fly because hot air rises - hence, they generally are launched in the early morning or evening when the outside air is coolest.

The balloons, 50 to 80 feet tall, are attached to baskets that usually hold two to four people. The baskets, or gondolas, are topped by burners and carry propane tanks to fuel the burners for flight.

Pilots begin preparations by spreading the polyester or nylon balloons - called envelopes - flat on the ground, then using large fans to blow cold air inside. Members of the ground crew then hold the mouth of the envelope open and, using a roaring burner, heat the air inside until the balloon stands up.

Most hot air balloons are sort of egg shape. But the fiesta each year also attracts balloons that look like everything from cows to soft drink cans. Those will have their own "Special Shapes Rodeo," with balloons to start inflating at 4:30 p.m. Oct. 8-9.

This year's rodeo will bring back old favorites: Tony the Tiger, a hamburger, a champagne bucket, a penguin, a polar bear, the Statue of Liberty, a cottage, a policeman with a helmet, a saguaro and a flashlight battery.

Among the new entries this year will be balloons that look like a floating castle, a sausage, a windmill and a cellular telephone.

And this 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' first voyage to the New World will bring in the Santa Maria, a replica of Columbus' flag ship and one of the largest balloons in the world. In addition, a direct descendant of Columbus, Cristobal Colon de Carvajal of Spain, will participate in the fiesta's opening day ceremonies.

The fiesta also offers the popular Balloon Glow, in which balloons remain on the ground, lighting their burners against the darkening night sky and illuminating the envelopes like hundreds of huge, softly lit light bulbs. The 6th annual Balloon Glow is set for about 7 p.m. Oct. 4.

Serena's Song, the first Federal Aviation Administration-approved handicapped-accessible hot air balloon, also will fly at the 1992 fiesta. It is set to go up both weekends, giving free rides to disabled children and adults. The balloon will be tethered Oct. 5-9 at the HealthSouth rehabilitation center in Albuquerque for tethered rides for disabled people.

Weekday flying offers a variety of events for pilots. They'll fly from the fiesta park to a designated target or try to drop anything from a hula hoop to a birdseed baggie on a target on the field.

The most difficult event is the key grab, in which balloonists - without any radio contact with the ground - launch a mile off the field and try to catch a wind that will carry them over the fiesta park and close to a 30-foot pole with a set of car keys attached. A pilot who snags the keys wins the vehicle. The key grab is set for Oct. 7 this year.

Parking at the fiesta is free. Fiesta goers also may leave their cars at Winrock, Coronado or Alameda West shopping centers, then ride the Albuquerque Sun Tran bus to the park. Buses run to the fiesta site from 5 to 7 a.m., and return between 8:30 a.m. and noon.

The cost for the bus ride is $6 age 12 and older, $5 for senior citizens and the handicapped, $4 for children ages 5 to 11 and free for children under age 5. Those riding the bus get $1 off the $3 price of admission to the launch field.

Riding the bus will cost $1 less on the second weekend.

Cowboy Gathering is planned

The second annual Red Steagall Cowboy gathering and Western Swing Festival will be Oct. 23-25 in the historic Fort Worth Stockyards.

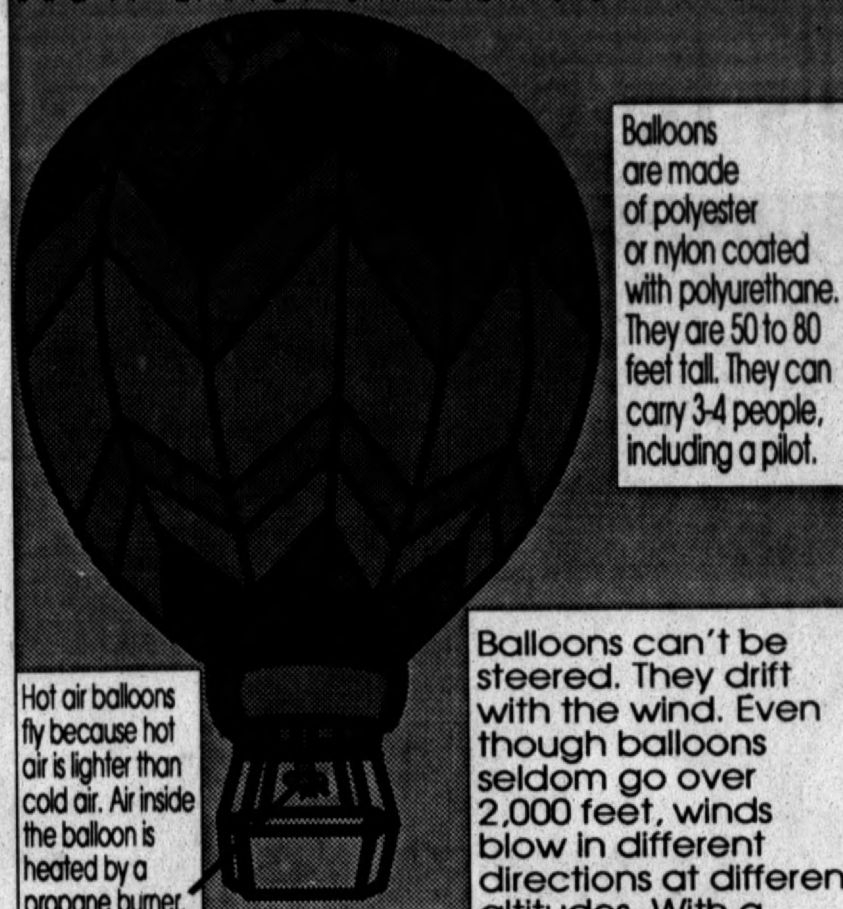

The three-day festival will include a Ranch Rodeo, Cowboy Poetry Gathering, Western Swing Festival, and Chuck Wagon Cookoff, as well as a western new/used/rare Book Fair and a trading post featuring new and collectible cowboy gear and artifacts.

The Ranch Rodeo featuring historic Texas ranches, will be at the Cowtown Coliseum. The Chuck Wagon Cookoff will be set up on the grounds of the Stockyards. The Western Swing Festival, featuring Asleep At The Wheel, the original members of Bob Wills' Texas Playboys along with Steagall and his Coleman County Cowboys, will be held at Billy Bob's Texas.

Don Edwards, one of the debut artists on the new Warner Western label out of Nashville, will host Cowboy Poetry and Music sessions, which will also feature Baxter Black and Steagall.

Bob Phillips, the Texas Country Reporter, will participate in the event Saturday and will be autographing his Country Reporter Cookbook.

How a hot air balloon works

Balloons are made of polyester or nylon coated with polyurethane. They are 50 to 80 feet tall. They can carry 3-4 people, including a pilot.

Hot air balloons fly because hot air is lighter than cold air. Air inside the balloon is heated by a propane burner.

Balloons can't be steered. They drift with the wind. Even though balloons seldom go over 2,000 feet, winds blow in different directions at different altitudes. With a change in altitude, a pilot can get the balloon to go a new direction.

New balloons cost at least $10,000. Average cost is $15,000, but special equipment can hike the cost to $200,000 or more.

Herd defense rises to occasion in win over Tigers

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor

Hereford's injury-plagued defense drew itself together and stuffed the high-powered Frenship Tigers as the Herd won 27-7 Friday at Whiteface Stadium.

Hereford improved to 2-2, while Frenship dropped to 2-2.

The Whitefaces' defense was playing without three starters from the secondary: cornerback Michael Ramirez and rovers Nathan Henderson and Joel Gaytan. Henderson suffered a season-ending knee injury in the Herd's last game.

Safety Shawn Fogo, one of the remaining original starters, said the Herd played inspired defense.

"I thought the team--the defense in particular--was inspired by the loss of Nathan Henderson, because he was a real go-getter," Fogo said.

I thought the team--the defense in particular--was inspired by the loss of Nathan Henderson, because he was a real go-getter.

--Herd safety Shawn Fogo

The Herd defense limited the Tigers to 215 total yards and only 56 through the air. In its first three games, Frenship had averaged 385 yards per game, including more than 100 per game passing.

"Defensively, we played our best game, because Frenship's a good offensive team," Herd coach Danny Haney said.

The defense also produced three turnovers, two of which led directly to Hereford touchdowns. Three of Frenship's first four possessions ended in turnovers, and two of those resulted in 14 points for the Herd.

"You've got to convert turnovers into points, especially when you're on the opponent's end," Haney said. "We were able to do that, and that'll make the difference for you."

"We struggled (offensively) because we were a little flat," Haney said. "When you're flat, it causes you to make errors like offsides or holding."

Hereford was flagged eight times for 63 yards. The penalties

District 1-4A bombs Friday

Hereford was the only District 1-4A winner in Week 4, as the rest of the district was outscored 173-76.

On Friday, Randall saw its perfect record deflated to 3-1 after a 28-20 loss at Lamesa. Borger was deflated even more, losing 19-17 to Lubbock High in a battle of 0-3 teams.

Pampa and Dumas played good teams Friday and played dearly for it. Pampa remains winless after being stomped 42-12 by Vernon, one of the top teams in Class 3A. Dumas dropped to 2-2 after being blown away by the Sandies of Amarillo High in Amarillo.

Caprock fell to Canyon 28-7 on Thursday, giving the Longhorns a 2-2 record.

particularly hurt in the second half and on the Herd's first possession of the game.

Cody Powell was the Herd defense's big-play man in the first quarter. He caused a fumble and recovered it to stop Frenship's first drive, and he had an interception to stop Frenship's second drive.

The fumble led to a 7-0 Hereford lead. Frenship's Kendrick Hollie caught a pass at the Hereford 22-yard line, then was drilled from behind by Powell. The ball popped loose and Powell recovered it.

Seven plays later, Hereford had its first score. Tailback Petey Colvin had runs of 22 and 28 yards in the drive and finished it off with a five-yard run. Greg Coplen's extra-point kick made it 7-0 with 6:16 left in the first quarter.

Frenship got the ball back and was able to gain a couple of first downs and move into Hereford territory, but Powell picked off Shane Stewart's pass at the Hereford 32. Hereford couldn't score this time.

Frenship took advantage with a 68-yard scoring drive. A 30-yard run by Stewart set Frenship up at the Herd 24, then, on third-and-eight, Stewart found Shawn Reeves open in the end zone for a 22-yard scoring toss. Donnie Hart's kick knotted the score at 7-7.

What followed was an action-packed minute of football. Hereford quarterback Richard Sanderson fumbled the ball on the Frenship 36 and the Tigers' James Gomez covered it. Frenship was forced to punt. Herd return-man Jason Tatarevich muffed the punt, and Frenship got it back on the Hereford 34. On the next play, Stewart was picked off by Hereford's Ronnie Gomez for Gomez' third interception of the season.

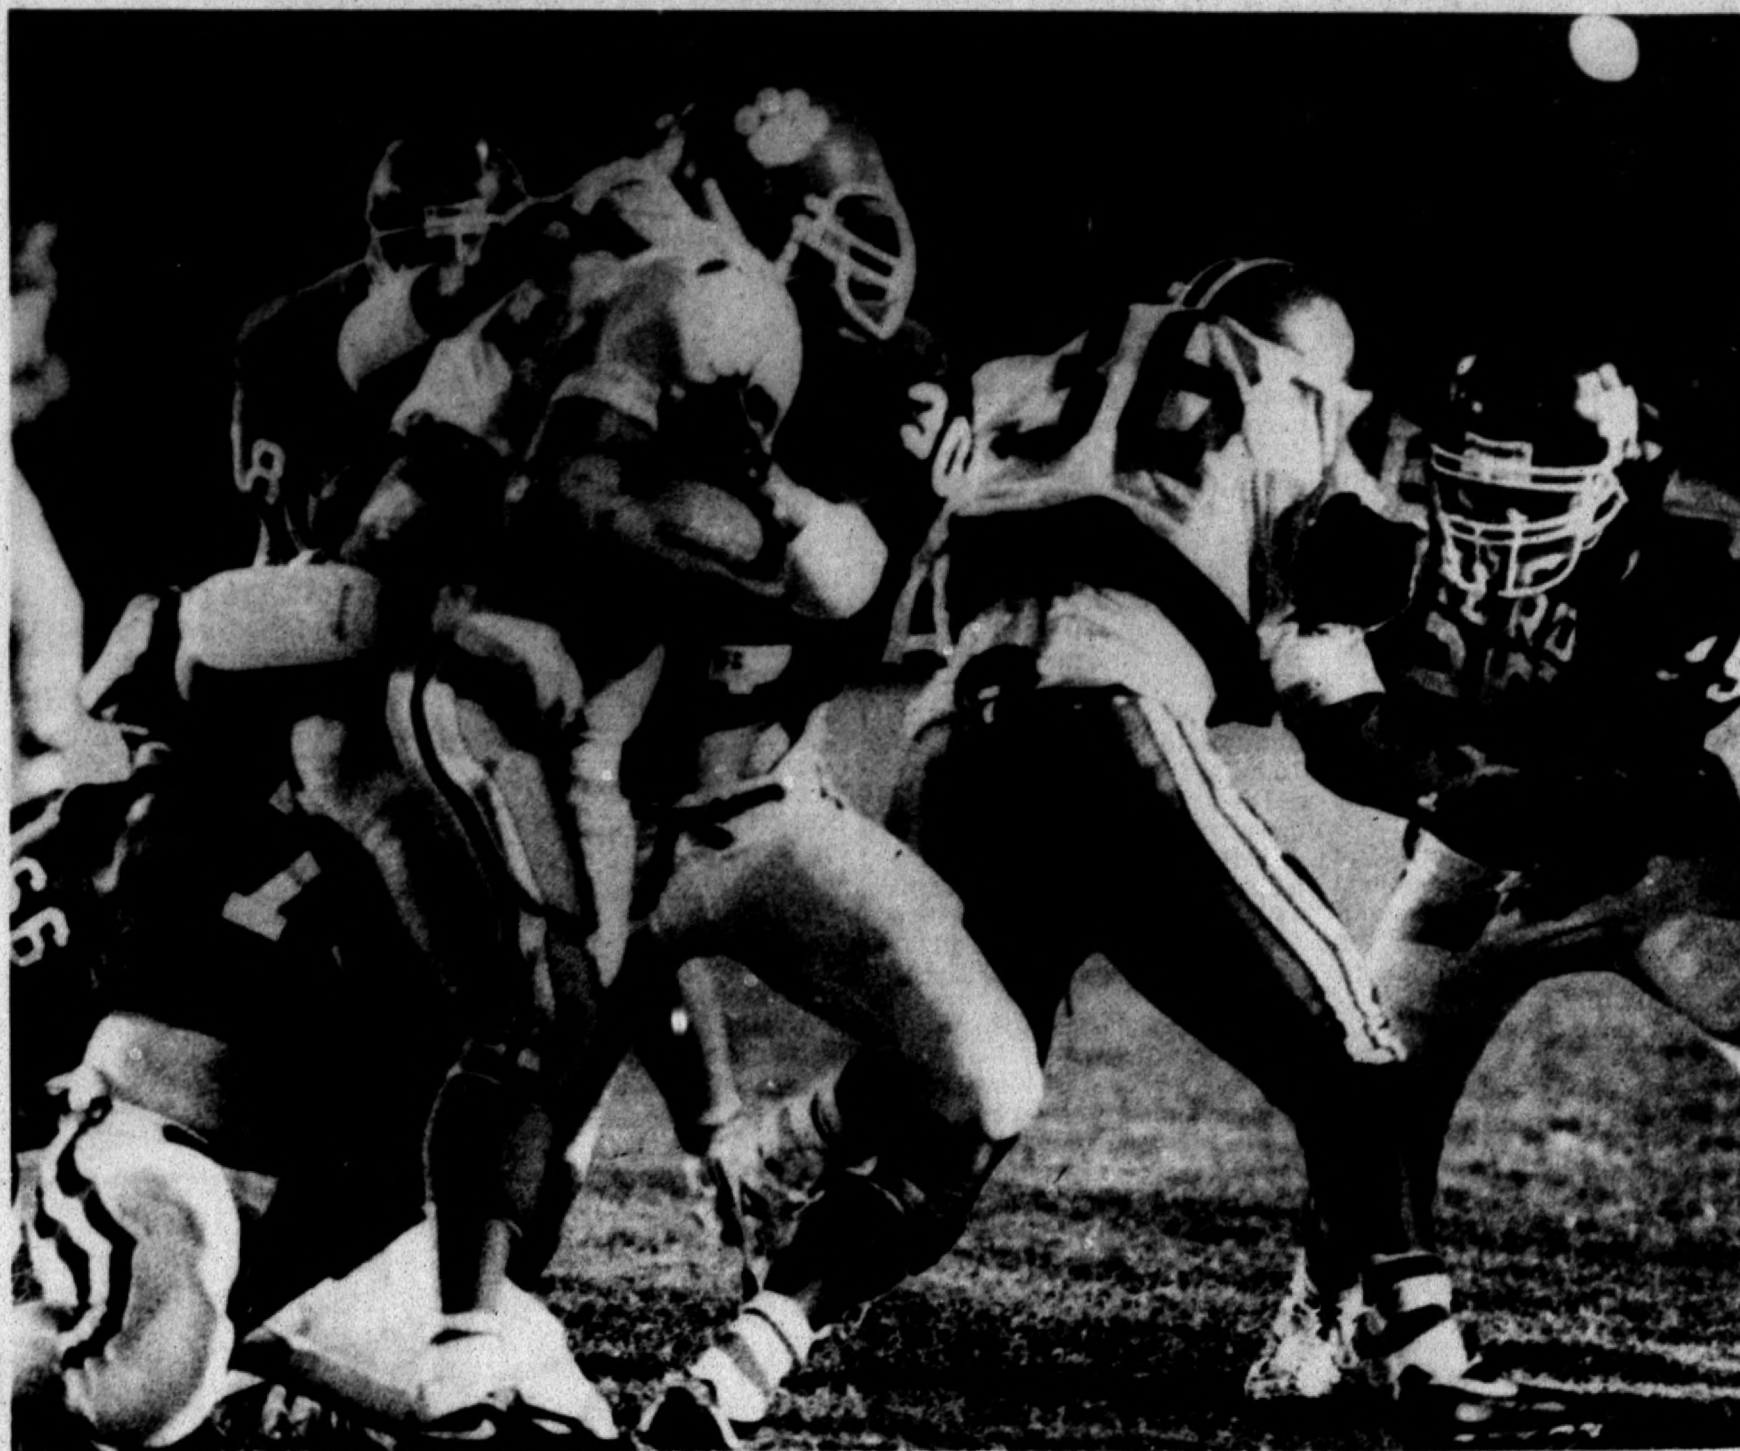

From the midst of that chaos arose a beautiful play. On Hereford's first play after Gomez' pick, Sanderson faked handoffs to the running backs and held the ball behind his back for a moment. Before the Tigers decided where the ball was, Sanderson threw a 50-yard line drive perfectly to Richard Wilbanks, who had two steps on the safety, Hollie. Wilbanks pulled the ball in, tore out of Hollie's grip near the 10-yard line and ran in for the touchdown.

"We just learned (that play) this week," Wilbanks said. "Richard had a real good fake. The corner bit, and the safety bit, but he got back. It was a perfect pass, I'll tell you that."

Coplen's kick made it 14-7 with 3:10 left in the second quarter.

The Whitefaces had a chance to score again just before halftime, but they didn't, and they ended up wasting a nice play by Steven Blea and Chris Brummett.

At midfield, Brummett took a reverse handoff and went to the left side, where Hereford was hurt by two penalties, and on fourth down Sanderson had Tatarevich open in the end zone, but Frenship's Mike Young deflected the pass. The half ended with Hereford leading 14-7.

In the first half, Hereford used turnovers to stop Frenship. In the second half, the Herd just plain stopped Frenship. The Tigers were only able to make five first downs in the second half.

"Just after the half, I could tell right away they weren't going to be able to move the ball at all," Fogo said. "I knew if we could keep them from scoring, the game was ours."

Frenship didn't score. They got close once, getting inside the Hereford 20, but that was it. Ramiro Garza stopped Duane Young cold on third-and-two, and after a delay of game penalty on the Tigers, an incomplete pass ended their last threat.

Hereford scored twice more. With 9:01 left in the third quarter, Colvin scored his second touchdown on a 13-yard run.

"With tosses near the goal line, they're pretty much gold," Colvin said.

get in on the tackle. The Herd improved its record to 2-2 by beating Frenship 27-7 Friday at Whiteface Field. Frenship falls to 2-2.

Along with his two scores, Colvin ran for 143 yards on 16 carries. It was his third 100-yard performance in row.

"I had good blocking on all the runs," Colvin said. "All the linemen did a good job tonight."

The Herd had to overcome 25 yards in penalties to score its fourth TD. Two long runs by Sanderson were brought back because of penalties for illegal blocking in the back. Big plays which stood were an 18-yard pass play to Brummett from Sanderson and a 26-yard run by Colvin, on which Hollie pushed him out at the 17.

The touchdown was a 17-yarder to Brummett from Sanderson. Brummett caught the ball at the five and put a move on a defender.

"I didn't want to run through him," Brummett said. "I decided to let him move."

Coplen's kick was short. It was his first missed extra-point try of the season after nine good ones. Hereford led 27-7 with 9:42 left in the game.

Hereford missed a chance at scoring more points in the fourth quarter. A snap went way over the Frenship punter's head, and Hereford took over at the Tiger 12.

On third down from the 14, Sanderson scrambled to his right and spotted Brummett completely uncovered in the left corner of the end zone. Sanderson threw across the field--the ball was in the air for what seemed like minutes--and Brummett dropped it.

"I was all alone," he said. "That was the first time I was open. I just dropped it. I'd have caught it if somebody was covering me."

It came late in a game his team won by 20 points, so it was something that could be joked about. Defensive coordinator Mike Purcell walked by Brummett in the locker room and said: "Hey, Hands."

"I'm glad we were up by 20," Brummett said. "If we weren't, I would have cried."

The final score was 27-7, and if tears were shed, it wasn't on the Hereford side.

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Nolan Ryan might never leave American League hitters alone.

Baseball's all-time leader with seven no-hitters and 5,663 strikeouts announced Friday he intends to return for a record 27th season.

"I am looking forward to pitching in 1993," the 45-year-old Ryan said. "I still feel I can help our ballclub win. This was a disappointing season on both a personal and team basis, and I anticipate better results in both cases next season."

Ryan, 319-287, is tied at 26 seasons with James McGuire, a catcher who played from 1884-1912, and Tommy John, who pitched from 1963-89.

Under the contract agreed to between Ryan and the Texas Rangers on July 18, 1991, the team has a $3.6 million option for 1993, of which $900,000 would be deferred with interest. The team has until eight days following the season to exercise the option, and must pay a $200,000 buyout if it doesn't.

Ryan said the money had at least something to do with his decision. His performance this year likely played a larger part.

He said he was disappointed with his 5-9 record, which includes a 3.83 ERA and 152 strikeouts in 150 1-3 innings. He missed several starts, including three in August because of tendinitis.

"From a personal standpoint, I never got in the groove that I wanted to," he said. "I certainly don't cherish the thought of going out of my career with this kind of record."

Ryan said the Rangers young talent was another factor in his decision.

"I think it's a very exciting time for the Rangers and I want to try and be a part of that," he said. "I couldn't see coming back next year to a club that wasn't in a position to win their division."

Ryan, whose fastball is still clocked around 95 mph, said he felt capable of pitching at least 200 innings next season.

"I think for me to help this club, I have to start 30 games and pitch those kinds of innings," he said.

But Ryan said he would have to put in extra work during the off-season to keep his aging body in shape. He added that he and Rangers pitching coach Tom House were working on variations in his routine.

"Right now we're throwing some things around because we're going into uncharted waters," he said. "I think we'll be trying some things that aren't too taxing."

The Rangers said they were also considering a lesser role for Ryan to avoid wearing him down.

"I would have to be open-minded to that in some degree," Ryan said.

Ryan will pitch Sunday against Seattle. He threw six scoreless innings Tuesday against Minnesota, giving up four hits in a game the Rangers lost 1-0 in 13 innings.

It was typical of the poor luck that has plagued Ryan throughout the season. In addition to several nagging injuries that have taken him out of the rotation several times, the Rangers' bullpen has blown six saves behind him.

Ryan started the season by going 13 starts without a victory, the longest drought of his career. During that streak, he was taken out of games by foul weather eight times and the bullpen blew leads four times.

Rangers general manager Tom Grieve said Ryan's decision would help him start planning for next season.

"Anytime you have definite plans, it makes it a lot easier," Grieve said. "We're beginning the planning right now and the timing is good on Nolan's part."

Ryan said he didn't know if next season would be his last.

"Sooner or later, I have to retire. It is going to happen," Ryan said. "It's just a matter of when and the timing of it."

Athletics clinch tie for division title

By The Associated Press

Almost there.
The Oakland Athletics are one small step from their fourth AL West title in five years. They clinched a tie for the crown Friday night even though Milwaukee beat them 4-1. A 4-3 loss by Minnesota to Kansas City pushed the Twins to the brink of elimination.

"We got a break and I don't apologize for catching a break, but you've got to take care of your own business," A's manager Tony La Russa said. "Tomorrow, we'll come to the ballpark with a chance to win the championship."

Ricky Bones (9-9) pitched three-hit ball in 7 1-3 innings and Kevin Seitzer hit a two-run homer for the Brewers, second in the AL East, 3 1/2 games behind the Toronto Blue Jays. Toronto lowered its magic number in the AL East to five with a 3-1 victory over New York.

Also, it was Chicago 6, California 5; Detroit 6, Cleveland 5; and Seattle edged Texas 4-3 in 16 innings.

Boston's game at Baltimore was postponed by rain.

Mariners 4, Rangers 3, 16 innings

At Arlington, Texas, Omar Vizquel's two-out single won it in the 16th inning. Dan Smith (1-1) walked Harold Reynolds with one out and Shane Turner sacrificed. Vizquel followed with the RBI single.

Dennis Powell (4-2) pitched 3 1-3 innings for the victory. Brian Fisher, the 11th pitcher used by Seattle, got the last three outs for his first save since 1989.

Both teams combined to use 54 players, setting a major-league record. The previous record was set by the Chicago Cubs and Houston Astros in an 18-inning game on Sept. 2, 1986.

Royals 4, Twins 3

At Minneapolis, George Brett got hit No. 2,994 and scored on Gregg Jefferies' double as the Kansas City beat the defending World Series champions.

"Get a hit to inch a little closer and at the same time score the winning run to help my team win," Brett said. "That's the ultimate for me at this point."

Brett has nine games to get six hits. The Twins have too few games left to catch Oakland.

Twins starter Scott Erickson lost for the first time in six decisions.

Blue Jays 3, Yankees 1

At New York, in a driving rain, the Blue Jays closed in on their crown. Toronto maintained its 3 1/2-game lead over Milwaukee and beat the Yankees for the 10th straight time.

Recently acquired David Cone (4-2) gave up four hits and struck out nine. He has fanned 252 this season, most in the majors. Duane Ward worked the eighth and Tom Henke pitched the ninth for his 32nd save.

Melido Perez (12-16) struck out 11, moving him into second place on the AL list with 212. He gave up nine hits in his 10th complete game.

Tigers 6, Indians 5

Sparky Anderson got his 1,131st win in Detroit, tying him with Hughie Jennings as the all-time winningest Tigers manager. Chad Kreuter's pinch-hit double in the 10th won it. Skeeter Barnes singled with one out in the 10th and took second on Mark Carreon's single. Kreuter pinch-hit for Mike Henneman, who entered the batting order after designated hitter Cecil Fielder moved to first base.

White Sox 6, Angels 5

At Chicago, Robin Ventura's two-run double with one out in the ninth handed California its fifth straight loss. Ventura's game-winner off reliever Joe Grahe scored Frank Thomas and pinch-runner Shawn Jeter.

Defense, special teams scoring big in NFL

By The Associated Press

The first three weekends of the NFL season have seen 26 touchdowns scored on returns, the highest total at this point since the league began keeping statistics in 1932.

The scoring returns included nine fumble recoveries, eight interceptions, six punt returns, one kickoff return, one blocked field goal and one blocked punt.

Not included in the total was a spectacular kickoff return Sunday by Houston rookie Corey Harris, whose 98-yard dash to the end zone was called back by a penalty.

"I've never felt anything more exciting than that," Harris said. "I was standing there in the end zone doing whatever I felt like. And then I turned around and realized what had happened."

Even without getting the touchdown, the rookie from Vanderbilt still finished with three returns for 83 yards in the Oilers' 23-20 overtime victory over Kansas City that kept Houston one game behind Pittsburgh in the AFC Central.

"At least that kickoff showed what we're capable of doing," Harris said. "It was called back, but I think to break it like that you can say it's been done. Now it's just a matter of getting a few things corrected."

Harris corrected an earlier problem with bobbling the football that cost him the job of returning punts for the Oilers (2-1), who play host to winless San Diego on Sunday. He blamed the problem on wearing old contact lenses.

"It's easier to catch kickoffs because you know where the ball is going," Harris said. "It goes up from one spot and so you can track it better. Punts are different. You have to make a lot more adjustments on the punts."

Elsewhere in the NFL on Sunday, it's Atlanta at Chicago, Buffalo at New England, Denver at Cleveland, Minnesota at Cincinnati, Tampa Bay at Detroit, Miami at Seattle, the New York Jets at the Los Angeles Rams, Pittsburgh at Green Bay and San Francisco at New Orleans. On Monday night, the Los Angeles Raiders are at Kansas City.

Dallas, Indianapolis, the New York Giants, Philadelphia, Phoenix and Washington have open dates.

Because of Harris' depth-perception problems on punts, Pat Coleman is still Houston's punt returner.

"I really think that the opportunity to return punts will come, but right now I'm returning kickoffs," Harris said. "Coleman is doing a good job of that and although he didn't have any long returns, he did a good job of protecting the ball. You've got to protect it first."

The Houston-San Diego matchup pairs the NFL's top pass attack at 315 yards per game against the Chargers' No. 1 AFC pass defense, allowing 164.7 yards. The last time the two teams met was 1990 when Warren Moon threw for 355 yards and two TDs in a 17-7 victory.

San Diego has amassed over 300 yards for two consecutive games, but hasn't won. The Chargers were outscored 16-0 in the fourth quarter Sunday against the Steelers in a 23-6 defeat.

Pittsburgh seeks a 4-0 start for the first time since 1979 when it makes its first visit to Green Bay since 1983.

The biggest game between division rivals Sunday matches San Francisco and New Orleans, both 2-1 atop the NFC West.

The 49ers are still waiting for the return of Joe Montana, but without him they have the NFL's top-ranked offense at 439 yards per game. Steve Young is No. 2 in the league with a quarterback rating of 123.2, trailing only the Eagles' Randall Cunningham.

San Francisco is facing a Saints defense that has surrendered an NFC-low 28 points. New Orleans has yet to allow a passer to throw for 300 yards or a receiver to have 100 yards in receptions.

Moon: Oilers haven't played badly

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) - There is a perception that the Houston Oilers aren't playing as well this season as they did at the start a year ago when they had a 7-1 first half en route to their first AFC Central Division title.

It's an incorrect perception in quarterback Warren Moon's view.

"We lost our first game so I guess if we won the first game, nobody would say we've struggled," Moon said. "Definitely the last two weeks have been more must win situations than in the past because we usually win our opener."

The Oilers will take a 2-1 record into Sunday's game in the Astrodome against winless San Diego, but the fans are restless. The Oilers were booed at times before they defeated Kansas City 23-20 in overtime last week.

"I think the team overall is playing better at this point than we did last year," Moon said. "I don't think we've struggled. We haven't played our best ball but because we lost the first one it puts you in a situation where you don't want to drop down."

The Oilers may be victims of their high-scoring offense, which started last season with victories over the Los Angeles Raiders (47-17) and Cincinnati (30-7).

This season they've been beaten by Pittsburgh (29-24) in the opener and defeated Indianapolis (20-10) and the Chiefs.

Fans complain throughout the week on radio talk shows about the faltering run-and-shoot, although the Oilers rank No. 1 in the NFL in passing and No. 4 in total offense.

"It's the way teams have been playing us," Moon said. "When they drop seven or eight guys off in coverage, it's hard to find those seams. We had a couple of blowout games last year but we got some turnovers that put those games out of reach."

Ah, turnovers, a sore subject with the Oilers. Moon has seven interceptions in three games and the Oilers' giveaway-takeaway ratio is minus four.

"We've done a lot of things to hurt ourselves," defensive end William Fuller said. "The biggest difference from last year is the turnovers on both sides of the ball."

"Offensively, we've had turnovers and defensively we haven't gotten the turnovers."

Fuller expects another difficult day for the Oilers offense and defense against the Chargers, tied for second in the NFL in total defense and ranked second against the run and eighth against the pass.

"They move the ball well, they haven't played bad defensively and it's really hard to believe that these guys are 0-3," Fuller said. "We just have to make sure they get to 0-4 and not get untracked against us."

"I don't think we'll have any problems getting ready. You look at the film and it's right there. They are a good football team. I'm not just shooting you guys. They are a scary team."

The Chargers are trying to overcome the second half blahs. They've been outscored 44-10 in the second half this season. Pittsburgh had 16 unanswered points in last week's 23-6 victory.

"We're still pumped up and very excited," running back Marion Butts said. "We're still working together and trying to excel. The coaches are really pushing us. All we need is a victory."

San Diego will present the second big-back attack against the Oilers in as many weeks with Butts and Rod Bernstine in the Charger backfield. Bernstine is the leading rusher with 193 yards on 33 carries and Butts has 138 yards on 36 carries.

"We try to run the ball and keep the other team off balance and make them respect that," San Diego coach Bobby Ross said. "If we can to that, maybe we can keep the ball out of Warren Moon's hands."

Players just keep getting bigger

BY JIM LITKE
AP Sports Writer

The gospel of the NFL preaches that bigger is better. One expert in the science of how players get bigger, however, begs to disagree.

"If you look at the outer limits of how big a body can be and still function safely," Bob Goldman said, "you'll see that we're getting awfully close."

Exactly how close and how the bodies are reaching that critical point are both causes for concern to Goldman, author of "Death in the Locker Room," and one of sports' leading researchers on steroid and drug abuse.

In a paper to be published in next month's Journal of the National Academy of Sports Medicine, Goldman looked both back and ahead at the size of linemen in football. And when he had crunched all the numbers, he found plenty of disturbing trends.

The average size of an NFL lineman last season was 6-foot-4 and 287 pounds. Beyond that were 73 players who weighed at least 290 pounds and another 56 who weighed more than 300 pounds. And Goldman found no reason to believe they won't keep getting bigger.

From 1950 through 1980, the weight of college linemen increased by about 10 pounds each decade, from about 195 to 233 pounds. From 1980 to 1990, however, their weight jumped 20 pounds, an increase of 8.6 percent. At the same growth rate, the average weight by the end of the decade will be 282 pounds.

At the next level down, the average size of high school linemen last season was 260 pounds. And the average for the offensive line of one preseason All-America squad was 6-5 and 294 pounds.

"If you could send the linemen of today back in time to a football field 30 years ago, the reaction would be, 'These guys must be from another planet!'" Goldman said.

"But the really frightening part is the direction we're headed in. I've been looking not just at height and weight, but body composition. In that sense, we're seeing more and more kids who look like men. They've got that kind of muscularity and body-fat percentages under 10 percent."

"These are not slow, fat guys we're talking about any more; these are bona fide athletes."

With continuing advances in nutrition, conditioning and weight training expected, we could expect in the foreseeable future some number of pros with very high muscle mass weighing 330 pounds and running as fast as gazelles. Already, some collisions in some NFL games simulate car crashes. And the vehicles will only get bigger and faster.

"And the damage is not just to other players," Goldman said. "We can bulk up guys from 250 pounds to over 300 now and soon, that could go to 350. At that weight, you're starting to break down the body's systems. A heart that will feed a 250-pound man will not deal well with another 100 pounds of mass."

"That's why giants - and by that I mean freaks of nature - typically die at an early age. The cardiovascular and skeletal systems cannot handle such tremendous stress. It virtually guarantees a shortened life."

Yet, there is an even more immediate danger to be found in this growth trend.

In his paper, Goldman concluded that "the dramatic increases are so profound, and combined with the high levels of abuse of anabolic steroids noted by athletes, lend credence to the part ergogenic aids may have played."

Goldman does not claim to know the number of steroid users at any level. And while he is encouraged both by increased enforcement and educational efforts in recent years, he does not doubt that steroid use remains "much greater" than what is turned up by drug tests.

"Guys this size used to be a freak occurrence. There used to be just one per team. Now, you've got three or four or five or more. ... Put it this way," he added, "the quantity is going beyond what we would consider an anomaly."

Cowboys, Eagles await showdown

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

IRVING (AP) - What a difference three years has made for the Dallas Cowboys. And Coach Jimmy Johnson.

"The fans gave us what we deserved" in 1989, when the team won one game, Johnson said. Now the so-far undefeated Cowboys are basking in rediscovered affection by fans who fill Texas Stadium.

After victories over all but one of their NFC rivals, the Cowboys, 3-0, have this week off to get ready for the Eagles, the last - and so far best - one.

"I'm glad to have the extra time to get ready for Philadelphia," he said. "We'll have to play better than we have to beat them."

Johnson said the game almost has a mini-Super Bowl flavor.

"With each team having a week off there will be a lot of buildup," Johnson said. "For a regular season game, you can't get much bigger. It's on Monday Night Football, it's a division foe, and we both are unbeaten. It's a big, big game."

The Cowboys have won eight consecutive regular season games and are 13-3 over the last 16 games.

Teaff's farewell tour going by too quickly

An AP Sports Analysis
By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

WACO, Texas (AP) - The game day Saturdays whiz past too fast now for Baylor football coach Grant Teaff. He loves those days even when he loses. Teaff has eight more glorious autumn afternoons of prowling the sidelines, making decisions, teaching, and absorbing around atmosphere he relishes: athletes putting their soul on the line for their alma mater.

Then he can retire to the plush north end zone and watch the game day action in a lush green chair with a Dr Pepper and chocolate chip cookies within easy reach.

"Not really," Teaff said recently. "See that creek over there. I'll probably be pacing up-and-down by it during the games."

Teaff is making his farewell tour of the Southwest Conference these days, starting this weekend in Lubbock. It's his 21st and last season as head coach at Baylor and 30th overall.

"It's not going to be easy next fall," said Teaff, who as Baylor athletic director must hire his own successor. "This stuff gets in your blood."

Teaff's young team stumbled out of the gate with losses to Louisiana Tech and Colorado but showed vast improvement in outclassing Utah State 45-10 for his 122nd victory with the Bears.

As usual, Teaff and his wife, Donnell, made the trip to the press box to talk about the game. Teaff is the only coach who still does this, win, lose or draw.

Donnell had been in the stands agonizing over every play and sweating just like her husband on a blistering day in which the on-field temperature reached 104 degrees.

"He's already had his shower," said Donnell, resplendent in a bright yellow dress. "I hope this doesn't take too long. I need one bad."

But Grant does linger. It's as though he wants to savor every moment, every game of his goodbye to college football. His final regular season game will be hosting Texas on Nov. 21.

"It will all go fast now," he said. Someone kids him about how he will have to beat back all the rumors in regards to his successor, particularly Ken Hatfield of Clemson, who reportedly has had his ups-and-downs with alumni.

Hatfield's coaching ability, coupled with the fact that he might be ready to leave Clemson and his well-known religious ideals, makes the former University of Arkansas coach a prime suspect on the Teaff replacement watch.

"Sure, right after our last game we're going to name Hatfield," Teaff kidded. "We're only about $600,000 a year short."

Teaff did say that Baylor will activate a replacement committee Nov. 15.

"We'd like to name a coach by Dec. 5 because of high school recruiting," Teaff said.

Such a quick announcement after the final game of the season would lead one to believe that Teaff already has someone in mind.

But remember what happened to Darrell Royal when he retired to become athletic director at Texas? Royal already had defensive coordinator Mike Campbell groomed to continue the Longhorns line of SWC champions.

Then the Texas administration got into the act, shot Campbell down and hired Freddie Akers.

Texas football hasn't been the same since.

No wonder Teaff wants to relish his bitter sweet autumn.

The real head-knocking at Baylor this year may be after the final play at Floyd Casey Stadium when the Bears try to name a new head coach.

Texan starts for Tennessee

By TOM SHARP
AP Sports Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - When Tony Thompson dove into the Virginia end zone with 31 seconds left in the 1991 Sugar Bowl, the immediate impact was a 23-22 Tennessee victory.

The secondary impact is now starting at free safety for the Vols.

Jason Parker was a junior at North Garland High School in Dallas that night. He was one of those outstanding athletes that everybody wanted - Notre Dame, Colorado, that kind of everybody - but when Thompson vaulted into the end zone his mind was made up.

"I was just waiting for that phone call," he said. "I woke up the next morning and said I wanted to go to Tennessee and be a Volunteer."

It didn't take the 6-foot-1, 190-pounder long to make the Vols thankful anew for the Sugar Bowl victory.

Parker played in his first game as a true freshman. He was the starting free safety by last week's third game. And it was against Florida, with an offense that can perturb even experienced defensive backs.

"I didn't really think I'd start that early, but I knew I had a chance to come in here in and play," Parker said. "It really shocked me last week when I was playing with the first-team defense. I said, 'Well, I guess I'm starting.'"

After turning in four big plays against the Gators, he may be starting for some time to come.

"I thought his ballgame Saturday was excellent," said secondary coach Tim Keane. "He made a couple of mistakes, but I expected that. But he came up with some big plays."

Two of those big plays were back-to-back on Florida's second possession in a scoreless game.

With a second-and-goal at the Tennessee 4, the Gators tried a reverse to Harrison Houston. Parker knifed through to stop the play for a yard loss. On the next play Shane Matthews tried a quarterback draw, and Parker was there with tackle J.J. Surlas to stuff it for no gain.

"Basically I just read the play," Parker said of the first one. "I saw Harrison Houston coming around the end and I thought well, it must be a reverse, so I just met him in the hole."

Same for the quarterback draw, he said.

"I had a feeling even when they were lining up. They were on the 3-yard line with all the receivers spread out wide. I thought it was a draw play and there it was," he said.

The Gators then missed a 22-yard field goal and the momentum had begun to shift toward the Vols, who went on to win 31-14.

"Those were two big plays, and I thought it was a big turning point when they didn't get the touchdown and then missed the field goal," Keane said.

Defensive coordinator Larry Marmie also likes what he's seeing.

"Jason played very well considering it was his first start and in a game of that magnitude," Marmie said. "He made some mistakes and was probably caught out of position a little bit, but not enough that it resulted in big plays. But he certainly overcame that."

Parker also broke up a pass and intercepted another against the Gators.

He moved to the starting lineup after Georgia's Eric Zeier riddled the Vol secondary, including Parker, for 354 passing yards.

The next week Parker was at free safety and J.J. McCleskey had moved from wide receiver to strong safety.

That sort of thing, especially at the expense of upperclassmen who had been starting, could cause friction. But Parker said the team is "like a big family."

"We get along just fine," he said. "We tell each other when we make a mistake, basically we all look out for one another."

Army vet has seen worse than trenches at E. Texas

By DAVID BOCLAIR
Fort Worth Star-Telegram

COMMERCE, Texas (AP) - Philip Anderson knows one thing for certain.

"A human body and a hand grenade cannot occupy the same space," he says.

Who would argue? Certainly none of the defensive linemen at East Texas State. Anderson is one, and in part-time duty this season he has recorded one sack for the 2-1 Lions.

There is a lot that 30-year-old Anderson can teach his teammates simply because he has lived longer than any of them. He also has lived more.

An abbreviated career in the Southwest Conference and seven years in the U.S. Army have given him life experience that few other college seniors match. Then again, most would be willing to bypass one event he endured in that time.

It was three years ago when Anderson was a squad leader in the Army. Prohibited from saying more than that he was in combat in a Third World country, the story is told with amazing ambiguity.

"We were on an urban assault mission," he said. "A hand grenade bounced into the room I was in."

Anderson was blown through a window.

The injuries he sustained to his back and shoulder, as well as partial hearing loss, helped bring an end to his military career. It will be two years next month since Anderson received a medical discharge.

"I was a squad leader, and I really did enjoy my job," Anderson said. "I was going to make it my career, but when you get hurt in the Army, you get treated differently. After a few months I no longer wanted to be in."

His life as a soldier taught Anderson the importance of setting goals, then achieving them. He decided to go back to college. And he decided to go back to college football.

"I had to set a realistic goal," he said. "I figured I could play in Division II or in the NAIA."

Not so long ago his football goals were much loftier.

In 1980, the Grand Saline defensive lineman was a highly sought-after recruit. Offers came in from as far away as Hawaii. Anderson finally settled on Texas Tech and realized a boyhood dream of competing in the SWC. He played two seasons - and redshirted another - before a disagreement with the coaching staff prior to the start of his junior year. Unable to reach an accord, Anderson departed.

Enlisting was the best option. School, at that time, was a necessary evil to play the game. During his time at Tech, Anderson accumulated a 1.6 grade point average.

"One thing the Army teaches you is discipline," he said. "It takes discipline to play football and to study. I'm much better at it now."

This summer, Anderson completed 17 hours with a GPA of 3.51. For the fall, his goal is to make the dean's list. He will graduate in the spring with a business administration degree.

Anderson finally will finish his football eligibility at the end of this season. His 4.7 speed of 10 years ago is now 5.0. The hearing loss causes him to miss some defensive audibles during the game.

Still, he played in every game at ETSU last season and made 19 tackles and two sacks. His teammates call him Terminator.

"When we make an adjustment, all I can do is play it straight up," Anderson said. "I like to make the big play. I still hit pretty hard." Nothing like a grenade, though.

Pesticide containers will be collected at Bull Barn on Tuesday

A temporary collection center for used pesticide containers will be open in Hereford on Tuesday.

The collection, for very well rinsed metal and plastic containers, will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Deaf Smith County Bull Barn.

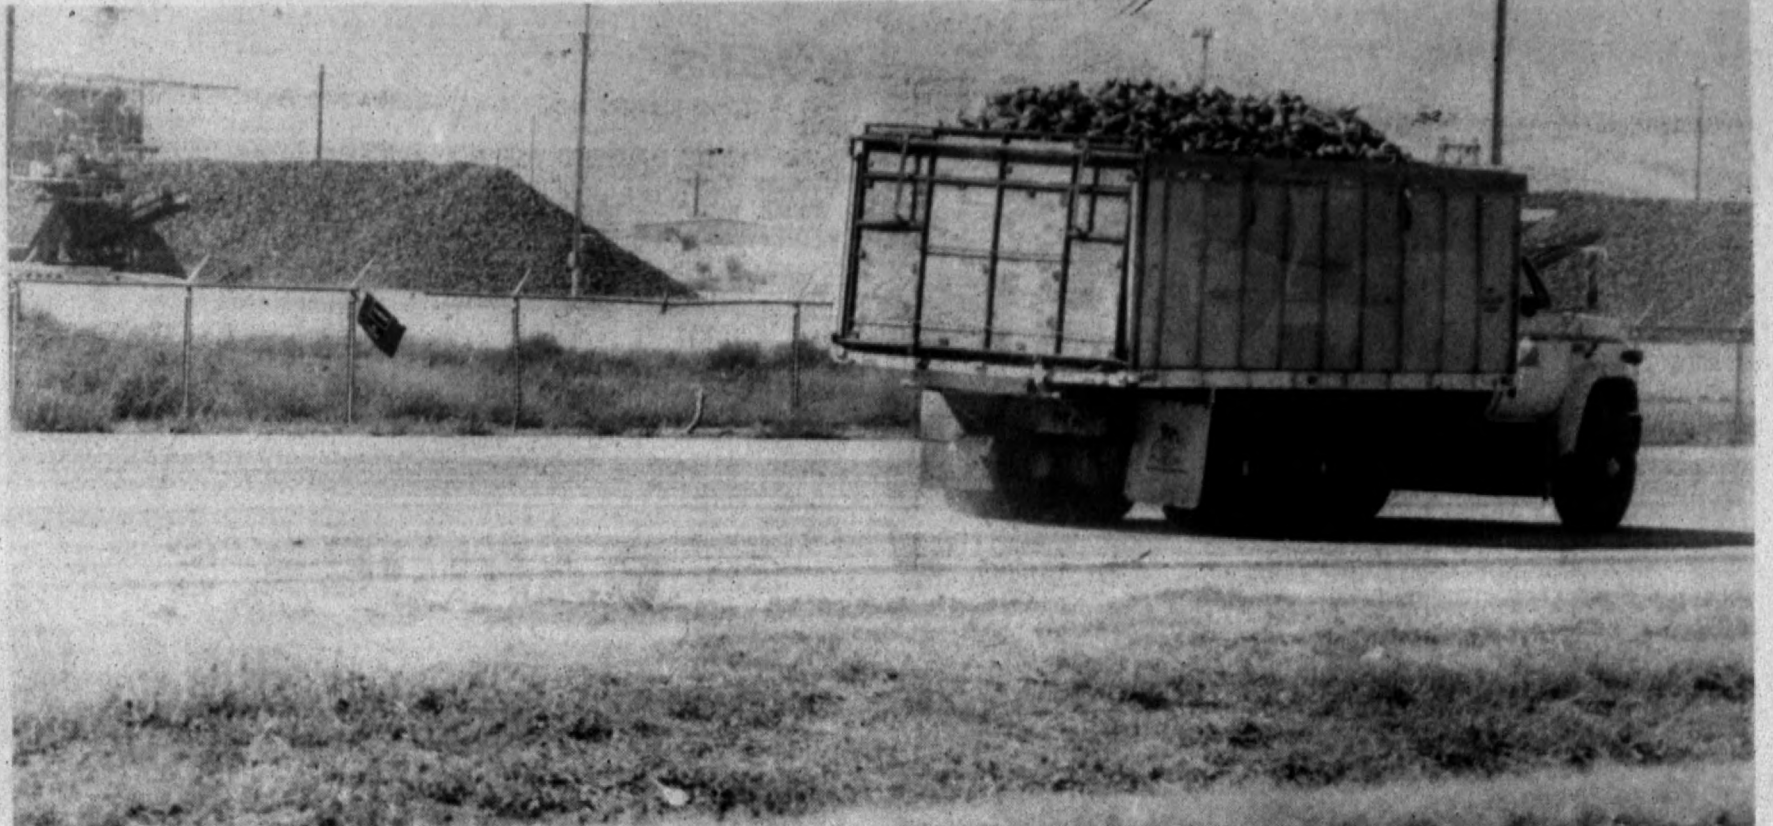

"These voluntary collections are an excellent example of farmers taking care of a potential environmental problem without being legislated and ordered to do so," said ag commissioner Rick Perry.

Since the program began in November, more than 37,600 pounds of plastic and almost 60,000 pounds of metal containers have been collected. The collections are conducted by the Texas Department of Agriculture, Texas Water Commission, Extension Service and National Agricultural Chemical Association.

The collected plastic containers will be granulated and made into new pesticide containers. Metal containers are also crushed and recycled.

Improperly cleaned containers will not be accepted. In addition to being pressure or triple rinsed, containers must have labels, foil seals, wire and nylon handles removed. Thirty-gallon plastic drums should be cut into four lengthwise pieces. All containers will be inspected, and forms stating that containers have been properly rinsed must be signed at the site.

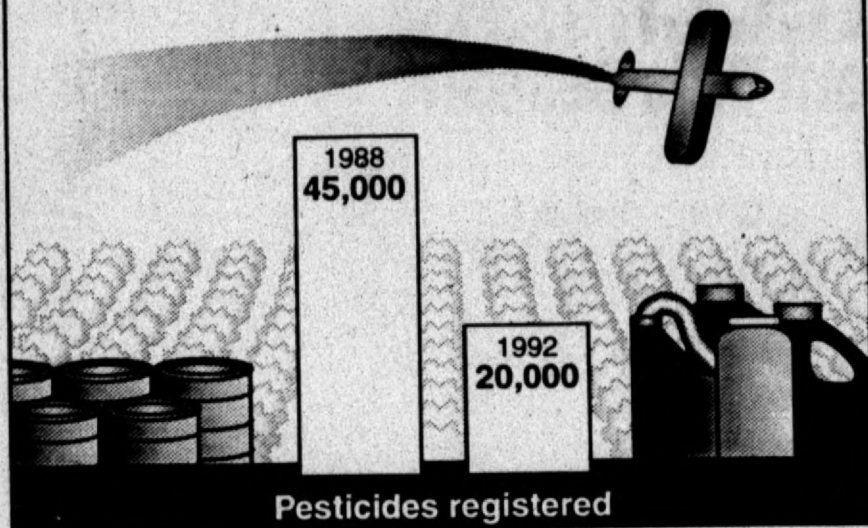

Beet harvest progressing

The mountains of beets are climbing higher at Holly Sugar in Hereford as the first stage of harvest continues in full swing.

Growers are taking advantage of the open weather to harvest what appears to be a good beet crop this year.

Pesticide registration plummets

The number of pesticide products registered for use on all major or minor crops has decreased by more than half since 1988, largely because of greater costs for registering them. The loss of pesticides could lead to more expensive fruits, nuts and vegetables and could erode agricultural profits.

'Hula hoops' can detect leakage into region groundwater

COLLEGE STATION -- To outsiders, they might look a bit like toys, but to Texas A&M researchers, they may help avoid groundwater contamination by leaky livestock lagoons.

"It really looks like a couple of hula hoops, except for the meter around your neck," said John Jones, a graduate research assistant at Texas A&M University, about an electromagnetic soil conductivity meter.

The meter has been successfully used to detect potential groundwater pollution in sandy or loamy soils in other parts of the United States, but its effectiveness on better-conducting clay is unknown. Jones is coordinating a Texas Agricultural Experiment Station project examining its use in clay soils around lagoons.

"You can tell on some soils exactly where the leak is and how deep it is," said Jones, a student in Texas A&M's agricultural engineering department. "I had originally wanted to use the meter to test different kinds of livestock industry lagoon liners and different methods of building them, but first we need to make sure this works on clay soils."

Jones selected three lagoons at Texas A&M's dairy and swine research centers to check for leaks. The research grew out of interest in the effectiveness of various liners, which Jones said have never been compared.

Even though the soil conductivity technology has been available since the 1960s, there are many uses for which it hasn't been tested, Jones said.

When it became clear that the clay soil of Brazos County was giving Jones unexpectedly high soil conductivity readings, he changed the direction of his research, focusing instead on determining conductivity characteristics of clay soil.

Lagoons, which are ponds or pits holding livestock waste, are used by the dairy, poultry and swine industries. In several areas of Texas, including the High Plains cattle feedlot region and the Central Texas dairy region near Stephenville, the issue of groundwater pollution has become an important political issue.

Leaky lagoons can allow chlorine, nitrate and sulfate ions, which are byproducts of livestock waste, to spread into and pollute soil and groundwater.

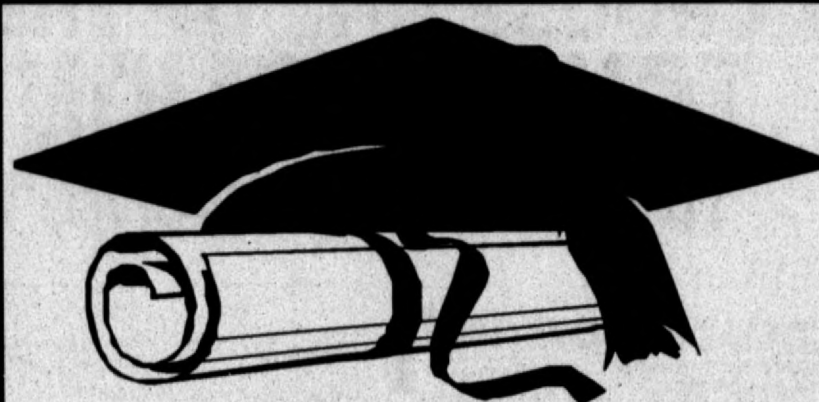

The state now requires liners to meet certain standards and can fine or prosecute producers whose lagoons cause groundwater pollution in an area.

The technique works by giving a reading for the average conductivity difference between normal soil in an area and soil that might be polluted by water seeping into the surrounding ground from lagoons. The magnetic fields produced by the meter are conducted at different strengths through soil, water or air, depending on the composition of each.

The meter is composed of two hoops, about the size of hula hoops, that are joined by a cable of at least 10 meters in length. One hoop is also connected by cable to an electromagnetic transmitter, while the other is connected to a receiver. The hoops are either upright on the ground or laid directly on it.

The cable joining the two hoops conducts the signal between the transmitter and receiver at one strength. Meanwhile, the hoop attached to the transmitter sends the signal through the ground, which conducts the signal at a different average strength. The conductivity of the soil is calculated from the difference of the two.

Clean soil would have one conductivity rating, while soil containing ion-polluted groundwater would have another. Knowing the conductivity of a particular type of soil

FAIR

Two months ago, Dallas voters rejected a one-year half-cent sales tax to pay for major roof, wiring and structural improvements to 20 buildings at Fair Park, home of the Cotton Bowl and the State Fair.

That tax boost would have generated some $60 million for the park, a National Historic Landmark, but it also would have given Dallas the highest sales tax among the nation's largest cities.

Still, the show must go on. This year, $1.5 million has been spent on patchwork repairs and improvements, including colorful benches for rest areas, sidewalk and street repairs and a fresh coat of turquoise paint for the Coliseum, where livestock events are held.

Eddie Hueston, executive general manager of Fair Park, said most of the improvements are cosmetic.

"We're not having any kind of capital improvement projects going on," he said. "Certainly, we make sure the buildings are working and that everything is working as far as lighting and plumbing, but basically we're talking about things like setting up booths and tents and painting."

This year, paint, banners, foliage and white light-covered trees will go a long way in sprucing up Fair Park, which has some buildings dating back to 1905.

Even so, "behind the banners and the fresh coat of spot paint, the problems still exist," Ms. Wiley said.

"What we're talking about is water accumulation after heavy rain that will leak down and run down and ruin ceilings," she said. "What we worry about is something leaking through on an exhibit. It's a cosmetic issue now, not chunks of the roofs falling in on people."

Much of the classic faded artwork at the park, which includes the "Spirit of the Centennial" mural, dates back to Texas' 100th birthday in 1936.

Many of the giant Art Deco murals were painted over with cream-colored paint after World War II because officials thought the artwork was too gaudy, Ms. Wiley said.

The murals are now showing through, along with ceiling cracks. Fair Park historians hope to restore the artwork to its 1936 glory.

The State Fair has a budget of about $12 million, and generates up to $14 million from the fair. Any additional revenue is reinvested into the park for improvements, such as airconditioning and new restrooms for the Centennial Building.

This year's Spirit of Discovery theme will take some park visitors on a trek through space with a National Aeronautics and Space Administration video and display of space-age artifacts. Those who remain behind can plunge into the underwater world at the Sharks! exhibit or examine the bronze and pottery artifacts of a lost civilization at The Etruscans display.

The jewelry, costumes and furnishings of an 18th century Russian empress await visitors to the Catherine the Great exhibit, while toe-tapping tunes from Broadway will blare during the "Will Rogers Follies" at the Music Hall.

would allow researchers to map soil for conductivity variances around a particular site.

Jones, who is working with Dr. Bruce Lesikar, a Texas A&M assistant professor of agricultural engineering, has collected meter readings on the soil and in October plans to take soil samples from several areas around the lagoons. The team will take conductivity measurements from the samples and compare them with the meter readings, seeking a mathematical relationship between the two that would verify the meter's effectiveness.

The data will then be checked by an "expert system" computer program at Clemson University that takes into account soil types, water conductivity and pollutant types being examined. The expert system will help verify whether any meter-reading variances Jones might have received result from leakage or runoff rather than terrain or soil differences.

Clemson, where the electromagnetic technique was developed, then could add Jones' soil data to its expert system, he said. The net result would be that researchers or regulatory agencies would be able to use the meter for more tests on more types of soil, Jones said. It also could help provide cheaper and better regulation of both lagoons and other structures or activities that could affect groundwater quality.

Club elects officers, representatives

Members of the Peers as Leaders Club at Hereford High School met recently to elect officers and class representatives for the 1992-93 school year. This club was organized so that students have the opportunity to make new friends, say "no" to alcohol and drugs, and be a positive example to others. New club leaders are, from left, Domingo Vasquez, Ted Peabody, Erin Spies, Lee Harder and Misty Peabody.

Nance Hereford Ranch toured by study club

Members of Hereford Study Club toured the Nance Hereford Ranch Sept. 17 for the first meeting of the 1992-93 season.

Eighteen members enjoyed dinner and a social period prior to a short business meeting called by President Gladys Setliff. New club yearbooks were distributed and discussed by Vice President Hazel Ford.

The Nance Hereford Ranch was founded by George Nance Sr. and originally consisted of 6,000 acres. The ranch house, now being restored, was built in the early 1920s and contains rugs, furniture and art objects originally belonging to George and Lucille Nance.

After Mr. Nance's death in 1953, the ranch was leased for several years before being donated to West Texas

State University to be used in the study of agriculture. The first purebred Hereford cattle was purchased in 1936 and many of the top commercial and registered cattle in the Southwest are decedents of the Nance Ranch.

The tour was enjoyed by Jean Ballard, Willie Braddy, Doris Bryant, Morgan Cain, Addie Cunningham, Elizabeth Cesar, Hazel Ford, Mildred Garrison, Betty Gilbert, Nedra Robinson, Gladys Setliff, Gracie Shaw, Bessie Story, Virginia Winget, Helen Spinks and Joan Yarbrough.

During the Great Depression, Congress authorized the formation of the Civilian Conservation Corps in 1933.

Busy season beginning for gardeners

Members of the Deaf Smith County Historical Society are busy working in the E.B. Black House gardens. Paula Edwards and Betty Kriegshauser, society members, discuss plans for the flower beds at the Black House.

Gardening at the gazebo

By CARMEN FLOOD

The first day of fall has come, and one might initially think that our gardening activity has come to an end for this year, when in reality we are about to begin one of the busiest times of the year. There are many chores which will occupy our time for the next couple of months, and we would like to share with you in this column exactly what we are up to at the Black House Gardens.

If you are planning any changes in existing flower beds or borders, now is the time to prepare the ground for next spring's planting and growth. You begin by digging and turning over the soil to a depth of two feet if possible. Simply running a tiller over the ground will not do the job effectively, so be prepared for some hard work if you intend to have beautiful flowers next year. After the ground has been turned and loosened as deeply as possible, you will need to add some soil amendment, such as composted cotton burr (one of the best we've found), or other composted material, and if possible some coarse sand. These will help to loosen our hard clay soil, and are very much necessary for a lovely garden as they allow the roots of plants to spread, and to absorb nutrients in the soil.

After the soil is prepared, then the fun begins in selecting the flowers which need to be planted in the fall, as well as any spring flowering bulbs such as tulips or daffodils. We Black House Gardeners have been pouring over the catalogues, planning what we think will be exciting beds for the spring show. We deal with two considerations when we select bulbs since these beds need to compliment one another and be seen from the street as well provide flowers for the lovely arrangements used inside the house during our spring luncheons held every April. Each of the triangular beds in the Gazebo Garden will feature a different color of Tulip along with daffodils. We also try to extend the blooming season by using early, mid and late season tulips. One particular tulip which we found to be exceptional last year and we are going to have more of next year is called Menton.

It is late blooming, gets quite tall, and has a very large bloom which begins as medium pink and matures into a rich apricot/pink blend. The flowers lasted very long both in the garden and in cut arrangements, so we can recommend this one highly. We have also had good luck with a species tulip called Red Riding Hood. Species tulips have a much higher rate of return year after year than their hybrid cousins and can even be considered for naturalized areas in your yard. This one is bright red, and the foliage is interestingly striped, but there are other colors available in this variety of tulip which usually blooms early, and stays fairly short.

Daffodils are always a harbinger of spring, and are available in many color variations of yellows and white. So far, we've not seen a true pink, though the hybridizers keep promising, but even with a limited color range. They are so necessary in a complete garden. There are many other minor bulbs available for gardens, and we always include Anemones, Bulb Iris, and Hyacinths because they add so much. As in the past, we are planning to plant about two thousand bulbs for a dazzling spring show.

At the Black House Garden, we are still dealing with the damage of last fall's untimely freeze in our boxwood and rose of sharon hedges. We are also removing several trees which were killed outright, or have been so severely damaged that they must be removed. These will be replaced with different varieties which can better withstand our weather patterns.

Once again, we would like to welcome any comments or questions you may have, as well as remind you that we are all amateurs ourselves and only garden for the love of it, and apparently because we like a challenge. We also welcome anyone who would like to come and join in the fun and the work with us. We can always use the extra hands, and we can learn from you, too.

Accent on Health

Whenever a school, organization or individual plans a program on health subject, among the first resources to explore is the Texas Department of Health's (TDH) Audiovisual Library.

At the TDH central offices in Austin, the library is the nation's largest state-operated collection of films, videotapes and slide presentations on health subjects. And perhaps as important as the size of the selection is the low cost—usually no more than the price of return postage for any borrowed presentation.

Librarian Jane Hazelton said that the library's latest catalogue lists more than 1,500 separate presentations. She and her staff can supply nearly 5,500 prints, since multiple copies of the most popular presentations are made available to meet demand.

"In addition," Hazelton explained, "We try to offer selections suited to the audience's age and education level, as well as specialized professions. Also, some programs are available in Spanish."

She said, "Such subjects as nutrition, sex education, AIDS and disease prevention are explained in a variety of formats." The collection includes 16mm films, 1/2-inch VHS video cassettes, 3/4-inch "U-Matic" videocassette, slide-tape programs and some audiovisual models.

The Ford Motor Co. publicly unveiled its V-8 engine in 1932.

P.A.L. class visits schools

Members of the Peer Assistance and Leadership (P.A.L.) class visited the third grade students at Tierra Blanca, Northwest and Aikman Schools recently to help prepare them for the TAAS test.

The students performed a skit featuring two muscle men who "came to pump you up." The class offered tips to their younger fellow students on getting ready for the test and taking the test.

You can learn something from everything. Everything can teach us something, and not only everything God has created. What man has made has also something to teach us. What can we learn from a train? That because of one second one can miss everything. And from the telegraph? That every word is counted and charged. And the telephone? That what we say here is heard there.--Hasidic Saying

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In a recent column, you told "Carl from Akron" that you would never charge a child of yours interest on a loan. Pray tell, why not?

Most parents feel that charging their children a modest rate of interest on a loan is a generous favor, which indeed it is. Your statement encourages kids to get as much as they can for nothing.

You also neglected to take into account that giving an interest-free loan deprives children of the opportunity to tap into their own ingenuity and learn how to take care of themselves. And, I might add, a modest charge for interest discourages frivolous requests and encourages self-reliance and better family relationships. —Been There in Falls Church, Va.

DEAR VA.: I received a heavy response to this subject, which I've covered before. Almost nobody supported me. Read on for additional clobbering.

From Newark: Time and again you've made the point, "What people get for nothing is rarely appreciated." How come you have abandoned that philosophy? I'm surprised and disappointed.

Seattle: Borrowing from a parent saves the cost of loan fees, credit checks and appraisal fees. Why should we expect our parents to forgo interest on their hard-earned money so we can save a few more bucks?

Enid, Okla.: I don't know about Carl, but my mother has her extra money invested in certificates of deposit and collects interest. If she withdraws from those CDs early, there's a penalty. Most people don't have a lot of extra cash sitting around.

Hamilton, Ontario: Every time my husband and I borrowed money from his family we paid an interest rate 1 percent lower than the bank would charge and 1 percent higher than they could have gotten from a bank certificate of deposit. All his siblings had the same deal. In MY family, it was a different story. My parents gave a sizable interest-free loan to my sister to buy a house. When my brother and I asked for the same deal, we were refused. This caused a lot of animosity in the family and some bitterness toward her sister.

Munich, Germany: If Carl's kids can afford to buy a bigger home, they should be able to pay their father the going rate of interest on the loan. Wake up, Ann!

Schenectady, N.Y.: When we borrowed money to buy a home, we paid my mother-in-law interest. We learned later that her other children had also borrowed but did not pay interest. When I asked my mother-in-law about this, she said, "You offered. They didn't." We felt ripped off, and things haven't been the same since.

Erie, Pa.: I'm about your age, Ann. We spoiled our kids, and now they are spoiling their kids worse. An interest-free loan was the beginning.

San Bernardino: Interest-free loans give kids a false idea of what life is about. There are 10 "children" over 25 years old on our block who are still living at home. Too much "help" can be crippling.

Hollywood, Calif.: We charged our 14-year-old son interest on his first loan of $150. He wanted to buy a motor for his go-cart. He signed a contract and made a payment every Saturday. Years later, he worked 40 hours a week while attending college and law school and is now a successful attorney. He thanked us for the way we raised him and said, "I'm going to raise my kids the same way." What a reward!

Gem of the Day: The nicest thing about new friends is they haven't heard your old stories.

What's the truth about pot, cocaine, LSD, PCP, crack, speed and downers? "The Lowdown on Dope" has up-to-the-minute information on drugs. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $3.65 (this includes postage and handling) to: Lowdown, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Some time ago, my wife, "Sherry," developed a close relationship with a gay male co-worker, "Greg." She enjoyed his company both on and off the job. When they weren't together, they were on the phone. Sometimes Sherry would invite me on their outings, but all that work talk made me feel like an outsider, so I usually stayed home.

One night I overheard Sherry talking to Greg on the phone. She said, "I love you, honey." When I confronted her about it, she said I was being ridiculous and that Greg was just a very special friend, but that started me thinking.

A few months ago, I learned that Sherry had taken a test for AIDS. The results came back negative. When I asked her about it, she said she took the test because she was unsure of MY fidelity. She could give no reason for her suspicion, except that the frequency of our lovemaking had decreased.

Greg recently accepted a job in another state. I secretly rejoiced and thought our problems were over. No such luck. Sherry telephones him almost daily. She has gone to visit him several times and stayed with him and his gay female roommate. I'm afraid if I put my foot down and tell her she can't go, she'll go anyway and it will be the end of our five-year marriage.

Sherry says if the situation were reversed, she'd be more understanding. Other than this, our marriage has been good. Can you give me a clue as to what's going on? —Torn in Fontana, Calif.

DEAR FONTANA: Has it ever occurred to you that Greg might be bisexual? Now that AIDS has become part of the sex scene, it would be wise for you to consider this possibility. Some males who are perceived as gay can and do have affairs with women. In time, the truth is sure to surface. You will then have to decide what you want to do about it.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have a problem that needs an unbiased viewpoint. A friend I've known for 22 years came down to Florida to live. Since he was a close pal of long standing, I invited him to stay with me. We become roommates and got along fine.

We agreed that we would play the state lottery with the following understanding: Each of us would purchase at least one lottery ticket every week, and if any of those tickets was a winner, we'd split the prize.

Although I was unemployed for a period of time and not eligible for unemployment benefits, I still managed to buy a ticket every week. Often when I asked my friend if he had bought his ticket, he would say, "I forgot," or "The lines were too long." When a friend of his came to town, my roommate went 50-50 on his friend's ticket but did not buy the ticket we were supposed to share. I then told him, "You're going to be mighty surprised if I win and you don't receive half." (He doesn't remember my saying this.)

Well, I hit five numbers, won $5,000, and decided not to cut him in on the money since I felt he did not keep his part of the agreement. Our lease was up, and we parted. He has all but shut me out of his life, and I'm sure this is the reason. Was I wrong? —D.A., Pembroke Pines, Fla.

DEAR PEM: The agreement was sloppy to say the least. Too bad there wasn't anything in writing that invalidated the agreement under certain conditions. I would have suggested that you give him $500, for friendship's sake, even though it could be argued that he wasn't entitled to anything.

Is that Ann Landers' column you clipped years ago yellow with age? For a copy of her most frequently requested poems and essays, send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Jean Holbert and Charles W. Cobb were married Sept. 21 in Rogue River, Ore. Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Cliff Custer. The couple will make their home on Walnut Road in Hereford.

Garden problems discussed

Natha Carroll, new member of Bud to Blossom Garden Club, presented a program on detecting and solving fall garden problems when the club met recently at the Hereford Garden Center for the first meeting of the new club year.

Carroll gave examples of home remedies to control pests and also explained how to chemically treat garden problems. Damaged foliage was displayed and the speaker told of the problem and explained the remedy.

Roll call was answered with "pleasures and problems of gardening."

During the brief business meeting with President Phyllis Brown presiding, members reviewed yearbooks and upcoming events. Those present also purchased the 1993 Visions of Beauty calendar.

Members in attendance included Wilma Bryan, Naomi Hare, Mildred Fuhrmann, Maria Escamilla, Billie Johnson, Patricia Robinson, Phyllis Brown and Natha Carroll.

The story of George Washington and the cherry tree was invented by writer, clergyman and bookseller Mason Locke Weems.

Chili cook-off set Oct. 3

Registration fees for those planning to participate are: $15 for chili division; $15, brisket; $5, beans; and $30 for all three divisions. The deadline to sign up is 10 a.m. Oct. 3.

Featured during the festivities will be a live band, a concession and arts and crafts. Also, a variety of prizes will be given away during drawings. All proceeds from the cook-off will be used for community projects.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Key scenes for a new Bon Jovi music video were missing when the film arrived at a Texas lab for processing, a publicist said.

About 2,500 feet of film was missing from the 40,000 feet of film and videotape used for the video, publicist Paul Wasserman said Thursday.

The film was for the title single from the upcoming "Keep the Faith" album. The single is due Oct. 6 and the album Nov. 9.

Producers were trying to find replacements for the missing scenes from the outtakes, Wasserman said. Authorities in Texas are investigating the film's disappearance.

Treasure autumn leaves

If your fall walks take you into the woods, beside a stream or even on the sidewalk from the corner bus stop to your home, you know the irresistible pleasure of collecting colorful leaves. My kids bring them home by the fistful all month long. Here are some ideas for displaying and using fall's masterpieces.

Let your kids shine a copper vase or pot you may have stashed away in a corner or cupboard. When bright and shiny, fill it with colorful leaves for a centerpiece on the kitchen table. Baskets work well, too. Replenish the container with a new collection of leaves every day or two.

For a quick and easy indoor art project for your pre-schoolers, make fantastic leaf creatures and people. Glue a leaf on a piece of construction paper, stem end up. With markers, crayons or pens, your kids can design the characters around the leaf "torso." The stem can be the neck and other points and angles on the leaf can be arms and legs or whatever triggers your kids' imaginations.

Older kids will enjoy making exquisite leaf prints with metallic gold, bronze or silver acrylic paint brushed on the back of their collected leaves. Gently press the painted leaves on a cotton tablecloth or placemats and cotton napkins.

When shopping with your child, you have a great opportunity to develop their skill in finding the best buy for the money. Choose an item that is something they recognize, but not something they are trying to buy, such as milk or bread. Ask them to tell you which brand, or which size container is the best buy? They may have learned some buying skills at school. Let them show you what they know. Ask them to share how they made their choice.

Take a few minutes to show them the unit price label on the shelf. This helps them spot quickly which one costs the least per ounce or pound. Then ask them how much they think the family needs. Would one size be better than another for your family? Would one type be better for the use intended? Is there some other reason why the lowest price may not be the best buy? Share how sometimes our personal preference for a taste or texture of a food influences our choice about which one is the best buy. Some people prefer whole grain bread over enriched white bread and are willing to pay more for it.

Explain how the giant, economy size may not be the best buy if you need only half as much. Help them see that products that look alike may have different purposes, such as skim, low-fat and homogenized milk. Show how other products that may look entirely different can be a better buy, such as non-fat dry milk for cooking; or, canned rather than fresh tomatoes for soups and sauces. If you are shopping for clothing, let them compare the cost of brand name items with the cost of similar items having a store or generic brand. Let them figure out whether it is more important to them to have more of the items (jeans, shirts, shoes) at a lower price, or fewer at a higher price. Which is more important to them, and what trade-off are they willing to make to get what they want?

Next, choose an item on your list and give them the responsibility for finding the best buy. Build their confidence by showing them how much they saved the family by making the best buy.

Learning to use time and knowledge to compare prices and products develops youth's resourcefulness.

Don't salt fresh meat before broiling, deep-fat frying, pan frying or broiling over charcoal, as the salt draws juice from the meat preventing both browning and sealing in of flavor.

Stock market tips subject of program

Holly Bixler presented the program, "Stock Market Tips for the Small Investor" when members of Xi Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority met recently in her home.

Bixler opened her program by giving a first-hand description of her experiences regarding investing in the stock market. Copies of "Seven Tips on How to Invest" were distributed along with the stock market report from the daily newspaper. Members were asked to choose a stock and check how it fared that day on the stock market. Her biggest tips was to buy U.S. Savings Bonds for long-term investments for college and to look into buying municipal bonds.

President Kay Williams led members in repeating the open ritual which was followed by 15 members answering the secretary's roll call. Minutes from the previous meeting were read and approved.

A correspondence was read by President Williams regarding chapter insurance. Also, a motion was made by Marge Bell to purchase chapter liability insurance.

Correspondence was also read from international suggesting donations be made to a hurricane relief fund to aid the victims in Florida and Louisiana. The chapter voted to donate to the fund.

Beta Sigma Phi's 1992-93 cookbook, "Food in the Fast Lane", is available to chapter members.

Appreciation was extended by Bell for the cards and rose sent to the family regarding a death in the family; Linda Arellano, anniversary gift and Beginning Day gift; and Carol Kelley, gift of earrings.

Connie Matthews read a card from adopted sister, Billie Brown, thanking the chapter for the chocolate Easter bunny and chapter birthday party gift.

Peggy Hyer quizzed members on their knowledge of Beta Sigma Phi and chapter secret sisters as part of the on-going fundraiser for the Christmas Stocking Fund.

Program Chairman Gaye Reily reported that she will give the Oct. 6 program entitled "Our Place in Life: Who and What We Are." Co-hostess will be Connie Matthews. The video program will be held at Deaf Smith County Library.

Reily also announced that the Oct. 20 program will be given by Sharon Bodner and guest speaker, Joe D. Rogers, on the historic Prisoner of War Camp. Co-hostess will be Marge Bell.

Ruby Sanders, social chairperson, announced that an October couple's party is being planned with details to be revealed at the next meeting.

New member, Brenda Ramey, is serving on the social and scrapbook committees.

At the conclusion of the meeting, members repeated the closing ritual and mizpah.

UNIVERSAL CITY, Calif. (AP) - Director Spike Lee has signed a multiyear deal with Universal Pictures that gives the studio first dibs on his movie projects.

Financial terms of Wednesday's agreement weren't disclosed.

Lee worked with Universal in his movies "Do the Right Thing," "Mo' Better Blues" and "Jungle Fever."

Making progress against pain

When it comes to migraine headaches, reducing a patient's susceptibility to migraine is the main goal of treatment. But when a migraine headache breaks through, effective relief is needed.

Pain-relieving medication (analgesics) are used to relieve the pain associated with migraine. Nonprescription analgesics such as aspirin are of little value. Ergot derivatives, which can have significant side effects, are standard treatments. Codeine is also used, as are stronger analgesics, some of which are narcotics with a potential for dependence and addiction.

For now, the key to relief is:

1. prevention of migraine attacks to the extent that this is possible;
2. improved drugs for pain relief; and
3. new methods to facilitate their use.

Until now, some pain-relieving drugs had to be administered by injection to quicken the onset of pain relief. Fortunately, a new nasal spray dosage form for a proven pain relief drug has been developed by mead Johnson Laboratories, a Bristol-Meyers Squibb Company. The drug, Stadol NS (butorphanol tartrate) is the first potent analgesic to become available as a nasal spray, and begins working within 15 minutes.

Women's Division to meet at hospital

Members of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce Women's Division are encouraged to attend the organization's quarterly meeting planned at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 1, in the dining room of Deaf Smith General Hospital.

The scheduled speaker is Elizabeth Fowler, hospital administrative assistant and ValuCare coordinator. She will be talking about the changes that have been made at the hospital as well as informing the women about future hospital plans. She will also give the Women's Division members a tour of the recently redecorated hospital facilities.

Because seating arrangements are limited, reservations need to be made by 5 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 30, by calling the Chamber of Commerce office, 364-3333. A $2 charge will cover the cost of the dessert, coffee and tea served by the kitchen staff.

During the business meeting, four committees will be honored and presented with certificates of participation by Rita Bell, Women's Division president. They include beauty spot of the month committee with Sonya Torbert serving as chairman; Town 'n' Country Jubilee, Dee Hamilton; Style Show, Janet Brigrance; and blood drive, Mildred Fuhrmann.

Also, officers will be elected. Peggie Fox has been nominated for president elect and the two board members nominated are Sonya Torbert and Lacy Mueggenborg.

CHICAGO (AP) - Chemistry teacher Lee Marek says it was David Letterman's fault that the talk show host - and not the "Late Night" audience - was sprayed with foam during a recent experiment.

Marek planned to shoot plastic foam through a shredder, producing an electrical charge that would send foam spraying onto the studio audience.

"They wouldn't let me rehearse. I didn't know they had big fans directed at the stage. So, instead of blowing it into the audience, it blew all over the camera people and Letterman," Marek said.

How did Marek escape the foam storm? "I saw it coming and left."

Marek, 47, has appeared on Letterman's show five times since the entertainer's staff read about his group called Weird Science - five teachers from different schools who perform science shows.

Children invited to party

By JOE WEAVER
HAPPY BIRTHDAY, HANK! Ten years ago John Erickson introduced a scrappy little cowdog named Hank in a magazine article, (Western Horseman, if my memory serves me). Since then, Hank has been featured in more than a dozen and a half tales. Erickson reads his own stories for the cassette versions, using different voices for each character (over two dozen throughout the series) and, to be honest, that is the only way I personally have experienced the mutt. A major focal point of each story are songs such as "Bark At The Mailman Battle Hymn", "When God Made A Cat He Was Desperate", and Wallace the Buzzard's "A Pox, A Pox On Emily Post."

Why do I mention this now? Two reasons: 1) to announce that we now have The Case of the Missing Cat and 2) and most important, to announce that Deaf Smith County Library is having a Happy Birthday, Hank party this Thursday, from 4:30 to 5:30 in the Library Basement. Kids are invited to join us in singing some of Hank's songs, eating dog biscuits and puppy chow, watching a video of Erickson reading and singing, and entering a stuffed animal of their choice in the "Stuffed Pet Show." Some of the ribbons to be awarded are The Beulah Award (Most Likely To Steal Your Heart), the Pete Award (Most Likely To Cause Trouble), and the Rip and Snort Award (The Wildest).

It happened too late in the week to get in last week's column, but the first Family Film of the season was a big hit. Over sixty people attended and lots of popcorn was sold. Don't get left out next month! Mark your calendar now for October 15th.

Columbus is a big thing this year, and one of the things we've done to help recognize him is our living history presentations around the area. "Vicente Pinzon," captain of the Nina, has been visiting local schools and other organizations telling of his experiences with the great navigator. So far we have made the presentation at Nazarene Christian 3rd Grade, two presentations at Community Christian, one at Walcott, once for the Texas Panhandle Library System, and last Friday at Aikman and Tierra Blanca Elementary Schools. There will be a respite this coming week before we hit it hard again for the next two. If your organization would like the program, call the library at 364-1206 during the business hours.

New books this week:

PrairieEarth by William Least Heat-Moon. Heat-Moon had a big hit several years ago with Blue Highways and his current book was on the best-seller list for several weeks earlier this year.

Conservatives, take note! The Way Things Ought To Be is here! True conservatives will not need to be told that this is the long-awaited book by Rush Limbaugh, America's #1 talk show host. Those of you who listen regularly will probably not find anything new here. He deals with the same issues as on his program, and it's impossible to read without hearing his voice. The thing I like about Rush is that he is able to put things into words that so many feel, but are unable to articulate.

As popular fiction grows more violent and risqué, those who want an interesting story without the offensive language and graphic descriptions are turning to Christian fiction.

Another popular author of Christian fiction is Bodie Thorne and her stories of the Holocaust and beyond, Vienna Prelude is the first of "The Zion Covenant" series, and is the story of a Jewish concert violinist who has adopted as Ayran stage name to avert laws aimed at Jews.

Sandra Brown fans may want to catch a couple of hers that have been reprinted: A Treasure Worth Seeking and A Whole New Light.

There is lots of great fall reading at the Library!

All school-age children are invited to the "Hank the Cowdog" party from 4:30-5:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 1, at the Deaf Smith County Library.

The library is currently accepting book donations of used books for its annual book sale planned in October. All donations, especially children's books, may be brought to the library.

Wednesday is named for Woden, the chief god in Teutonic mythology.

— YOUR EYES — ABOUT SMOKING

Everyone knows that smoking is bad for you and the people around you. It's been associated with emphysema, lung cancer and other problems. Did you know that smoking is bad for your eyes, too?

Most obviously, smoke irritates the eyes and eyelids, especially of those wearing contact lenses. But nicotine and carbon monoxide may also cause the blood vessels in the eye to constrict, reducing oxygen supply, which affects the ability of the eyes to adapt from light to dark and may also affect peripheral vision.

Yet another problem was discovered by research at Johns Hopkins University: scientists found that smokers were twice as likely to develop premature cataracts (before age 70) as those who didn't. Stopping smoking can reverse the risk.

What can you do? Don't smoke, and avoid areas where others do. Your optometrist may suggest eye drops to relieve the discomfort or irritation from smoke.

Gililland serves on Amarillo theater board

Amy Gililland has been selected to serve on the board of directors for the Amarillo Little Theatre.

According to Gililland, season memberships are available throughout the year. This year performances scheduled include "Rumors", a comedy by Neil Simon, Oct. 1-3; "Here's Love", a musical by Meredith Wilson, Dec. 3-6 and Dec. 10-13; "Agnes of God", a drama by John Pielmeier; and the musical, "Fiddler on the Roof."

Season ticket packages are priced at $25 senior/student, four admissions; $30 single member, four admissions; $50 star member, eight admissions; $150 family member, 16 admissions; $250 angel, 24 admissions; $500 sponsor, 32 admissions;

$1,000 patron, 40 admissions; and $2,000 benefactor, 48 admissions. Ticket packages may be obtained by calling 1-355-9991.

Gililland stressed that by purchasing season tickets now, the patron will be able to see "Rumors", a hilarious play which takes place in the townhouse of the deputy mayor of New York City. He and his wife have invited four couples over to celebrate their 10th wedding anniversary. The party never begins because it is revealed that the host has shot himself in the head and his wife is missing. His lawyer decides on a cover-up which gets progressively more difficult to sustain as the other guests arrive and nobody can remember who has been told "what about whom." What ensues is a roller-coaster ride of hilarity, as the couples get more and more crazed trying to sort everything out. Performances are planned Oct. 1-3.

The Amarillo Little Theatre Academy has been established to provide training for performers of all ages using a skill-specific theatre and dance curriculum. The faculty expects the individual's needs to explore, reflect and communicate ideas and all levels of skill and ability are supported with high expectations.

The curriculum offers many opportunities for all ages in various areas of theatre and dance. Further, the program allows the individual to participate in courses based on interest as well as previous experience.

One play could run you clear of home buying interference.

Financing, Down Payments, Price negotiations. Inspections. All obstacles that could block you from buying a home.

But one move could get you right through that red tape. A call to an experienced real estate agent.

An expert agent can coach you smoothly through the entire home buying process. From using the sophisticated multiple listing service to find the home that fits your needs and your budget. To tackling financing options. Setting up and monitoring inspections. Negotiating price. And even maneuvering you through closing.

So when you need a skilled teammate, get someone who really knows the housing field—a real estate agent.

Read The Hereford Brand for more information about qualified agents. Every day, the real estate classifieds list many properties and agents. And on Sundays the housing section examines the latest market trends and home buying opportunities.

Getting the right coaching now could mean the difference between confusion and closing.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

TO SERVE or NOT to SERVE

When you're in business, you need all the friends you can get. A good way to build lasting friendships is to allow yourself some time to devote to volunteer service.

Unless you hide in the back room of your business, sooner or later someone will ask you to serve. It may be your local chamber of commerce, service club, youth group or church, but they will ask you. Deciding what organizations to get involved in, and what committee or board appointments to accept, can be critical to your business or career. Serving effectively in a small role will often lead to additional service opportunities. Every organization needs people who will say, "I'll get it done," and then go do it. If you are that kind of person, word gets around.

Volunteer service can be rewarding, but it can also be frustrating. Meetings and travel can consume a lot of time. Phone calls, project work and follow up can eat into even the most organized schedules.

Will the rewards outweigh the frustrations? Definitely yes, if you ask the right questions before you commit to service.

Before you commit

I believe there are six questions you should ask before agreeing to serve on any committee or board of directors.

1) Is the organization worthwhile and do its mission, goals and objectives agree with your personal beliefs. You need to know if the organization is a benefit to the community and if you believe in its purpose.

2) Are you really interested in the activities and mission of the organization? We are more effective in roles where we have personal interest and can receive enjoyment and fulfillment.

3) Do you really have the time and energy to serve effectively? How much time is required? Is it a meeting a month or several hours per week?

4) Are your skills, abilities and perspective valuable to the organization?

5) Who else is on the committee or board? Will you fit in and be accepted by other members?

6) What do you expect to gain from this service? Can you help others? Will it offer an opportunity for growth? Will you meet new and exciting people? Will this exposure help your business or career?

After you have asked and answered these questions, you can decide if this position is right for you. If you agree to serve, use the tips that follow to make the experience rewarding.

How to win friends

This is not a Dale Carnegie short course, but I do want to offer 10 tips for being an effective and well-liked board or committee member.

1) Attend all meetings and arrive on time.
2) Avoid any potential conflicts of interest.
3) Do your homework regarding the organization and its mission and purpose.

4) Know the issues. Use the facts and common sense to make decisions.

5) Bring a little humor to tense situations.

6) Insist on full disclosure of financial and credit information. You may have liability, and ignorance is no excuse.

7) Brush up on your parliamentary procedure - but don't be a bore about it.

8) Get to know other group members. Remember one of your objectives is to network and make lasting friendships.

9) Don't dominate discussions. Yoga Berra said, "You can hear a lot just by listening."

10) Pull your share of the load. Don't accept the whole load, just your fair share.

You may write to Don Taylor in care of "Minding Your Own Business," PO Box 67, Amarillo, Texas 79105.

OCTOBER 1992

Margie's notes

This is that busy time of the year!

We are now in the United Way fundraising campaign. Ron Rives, Deaf Smith General Hospital administrator, is our campaign chairman. Audrey Powell and I are co-chairing the Senior Citizen division. The funds we receive from United Way are going to be more vital this year than ever before to our organization, since the state and federal funds are being cut. So please help by sending in, our bringing by the office, your contribution! We appreciate your help.

We are getting ready for the Festival of Trees. This is a very important time for us. It's also very exciting, fun and stressful! We depend on this project not only as our major fundraiser, but also as outreach into the community. Our interaction with our children in our schools is so important. Our attitude and actions with all of the children can be a great influence in their lives--whether good or bad! We hope and pray it will be good. If you would like to volunteer and be a part of this wonderful project, enjoying the excitement, fun and stress, please come by the office and tell Loretta. We need You!

You really need to watch the activities and listen to all announcements for the next couple of months. Deaf Smith General Hospital is sponsoring several programs that will benefit all of us. We appreciate all the hospital is doing for us.

Matt Audette will be giving a concert in our auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 8. Gene and Bill Patton heard him while on one of their trips and put them in touch with us. They were pleasantly surprised when they heard him, and I have a tape he sent us. It is very good. Hope you'll come out for an evening of good gospel and country music. The tickets are $4 each. We are fortunate to have a place for concerts such as this.

A breast cancer screening clinic will be held at the Center on Sept. 30 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. This is a project of Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital. To schedule an appointment, call 1-800-377-4673. This could be the most important call and appointment you've made all year!

My friends, please beware of scams!! This is the time of the year when crooks are out after your money. If anyone suspicious calls on you or calls you on the phone, contact the Chamber of Commerce office, district attorney's office, or the Senior Center office. We will have them checked out.

We'll see you at the Center at all our functions!

Audette concert scheduled Oct. 8

Country music artist Matt Audette will perform in concert at 7 p.m. Oct. 8 at the Senior Center.

Audette is a singer, songwriter and recording artist. He has appeared on TV and radio and his records are sold around the world.

Tickets are $4 per person and are available at the Senior Center.

Audette is a native of Blaine, Wash., and has performed on state with many stars including Webb Pierce, Irlene Mandrell and Grandpa Jones. He has performed across North America and mixes traditional and crossover sounds with gospel favorites.

Breast cancer screening set

A breast cancer screening clinic is planned Sept. 30 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Hereford Senior Center.

Appointments may be made by calling 359-4673 or 1-800-377-4673. Financial aid is available.

Doctors suggest that women have at least one mammogram every two years, and more often in many cases, especially for older persons.

The screening is a project of the Don and Sybil Harrington Cancer Center and High Plains Baptist Hospital.

Third annual Festival planned for Nov. 19-22

The agenda is in place for the third annual Festival of Trees at the Senior Center on Nov. 19-22.

Several committees are working on the event. Business sponsors have been recruited and workers are now completing registering decorators.

Festival brochures will be distributed soon, and volunteers are needed for several of the activities. Items are needed for sale at the bazaar.

Take control of your life

By BEVERLY HARDER
County Extension Agent-H.E.
"Taking Control of Life's Changes"

Dr. Judith Warren, Gerontology Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University will hold a seminar at the Hereford Senior Citizens Center to help in "Taking Control of Life's Changes." The seminar will be free and open to the public and will be presented at 2:00 on October 5th in the afternoon in the auditorium of the Center. Reservations are not required but additional information may be obtained by calling Beverly Harder, Deaf Smith County Extension Agent-H.E. at 364-3573.

Making decisions about health is an important part of every older adult's life. When it comes to making changes to continue to have the best quality of life, many find those changes hard to make and difficult to follow through in a day to day routine. Come learn about yourself and why continuing healthful change may be difficult and some methods to make change needs become change realities. Learn about support you may need to keep your health and independence in your later years. Families with a concern in elder care will also benefit and gain information on how to help their elder friend or family member keep their independence.

Dr. Judith L. Warren is the Gerontology Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service at Texas A&M University. She holds a Ph.D in Education from Syracuse University where she worked at the All-University Gerontology Center for three years. Dr. Warren has developed instructional materials for nutrition workers in Senior Centers, as well as programs for the Institute of Retired Professionals. She has coordinated "Seniors Teaching Seniors and was co-principal investigator of Project OASIS, a Hogg Foundation project to train older adult volunteers as mental health paraprofessionals in long term care settings.

This program has been planned as a result of health awareness programs sponsored by the Family Living Committee of the Deaf Smith County Extension Service.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

President's Corner

BY LESTER WAGNER, President
Hereford Senior Citizens Association

After a short, wet and cool summer, we are into autumn which I think is the most beautiful season of the year. This is also the time of year we elect new board members. I want to welcome Clarence Betzen, Wayne Amstutz and Shirley Garrison to the governing board of our Senior Citizens Association.

This means that this will be my last letter to you as president of the association. I have enjoyed being on the board for the past four years and have been proud to serve as president for two years. I appreciate the cooperation and efforts of our board, our director Margie Daniels and her staff, and the membership in our efforts to make this the best senior citizen center in the state. I would also like to give a special thanks to all of the volunteers who serve us in so many ways and who receive no compensation for this time.

Young at Heart Choir

The choir is still working hard on our new musical and it will soon be ready for presentation.

A program of some of our favorite selections from other musicals we have performed were presented Sunday, August 30th at the Assembly of God Church. Thirty-four members enjoyed a time of food, fun, and fellowship after the night service. This church fellowship is always so very generous toward the choir. Charlie Bell directed in the absence of Steve Paul.

The same program was presented to the retired teachers organization at their regular meeting at the senior citizens center on Monday, September 14. Twenty-four members directed by Steve Paul participated.

We are always ready for an invitation to sing. We welcome anyone to come and join us.

The story of George Washington and the cherry tree was invented by writer, clergyman and bookseller Mason Locke Weems.

Let us show you a Texas you've never seen before.

THE ROADS OF TEXAS is the culmination of a mammoth project that has involved many individuals for over two years. When you get your copy of THE ROADS OF TEXAS you'll wonder how you ever traveled the state without it.

This 172 page atlas contains maps that show the complete Texas road system (all 284,000 miles) plus just about every city and community! Texas A&M University Cartographics Laboratory staff members produced the maps, based on county maps from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation. The details shown are amazing—county and local roads, lakes, reservoirs, streams, dams, historic sites, pumping stations, golf courses, cemeteries, mines and many other features too numerous to list.

America's graying poses questions

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) - People who care for elderly patients face constant ethical questions that are far less glaring than headline cases like cutting off life support to the terminally ill and doctor-assisted suicide, aging experts say.

"These neon light cases, these dramatic cases, are very important," said James F. Childress, a professor of medical ethics at the University of Virginia. "But many ethical questions about elderly care are mundane."

Such questions include how to handle a patient who refuses to take medication, or what to do when a nursing home resident refuses to obey the institution's rules.

"How do nursing home workers handle an 80-year-old man, an adult who's still mentally sound, who has a heart condition and is on a restricted diet but who insists on eating what he wants?" said David L. Sadowski, executive director of a Petersburg agency that acts as an advocate for elderly services.

"The problem is the health care staff has been trained to prolong life," Sadowski said. "But the question for the patient is the quality of life."

Sadowski and Childress were among dozens of aging experts who attended a recent conference on "A Celebration of Aging."

Sadowski said he has known caring, intelligent people who wanted to end their lives because of serious illnesses. Such cases are getting more public discussion as the nation's elderly population increases, he said.

About 12 1/2 percent of the U.S. population is over 65, with 2 percent annual growth predicted for the next 25 years. The increasing elderly population has produced new challenges to maintain good health and a high quality of life in older years.

But just as ethical concerns have arisen in caring for older people, such problems also have inhibited studies on what would contribute to improving the lives of the elderly.

Kathleen C. Buckwalter, a University of Iowa nursing professor and director of nursing research, said her work with aging patients in special care groups sometimes faces interference from worried family members.

Childress said trying to define ethical principles for treating older people runs the risk of further segregating them from the general population. But they have special needs and vulnerabilities, he said.

For an older person who is being put into a nursing home and doesn't want to go, the issue is forcing someone to give up their way of living in order to take care of them properly, he said.

Once in the home, he said, the patient likely will have to get up at a certain time, eat at certain times and be limited in moving around.

"To say to an elderly person you're free to refuse treatment, you're free to commit suicide, is likely to be seen as indifference," Childress said. But to order someone to undergo treatment is medical tyranny, he said.

He offered a list of "relevant" principles and values, leading with: "First of all, at least do no harm." Other principles on the list include being truthful, keeping promises and respecting privacy and confidentiality.

In 1964 and again in 1970, President Bush ran for the U.S. Senate from Texas, but lost.

Nutrition Notes

By CHARLOTTE R. CLARK
MS RD/LD
BETTER NUTRITION SERVICE
FOR THE ELDERLY

Nutrition plays a vital role in maintaining health, independence, and quality of life of older Americans. Testimony, written testimony and witnesses contributed information to the recent congressional hearing before the House Select Committee on Aging.

A critical and increasing overlooked problem facing our Nation is the lack of general understanding on the part of our society and the federal government regarding the importance of nutrition in the lives of older Americans. It is the hope of Dietitians that the hearing will prompt increased attention on the benefits of good nutrition to all Americans, and establish nutrition services as an integral component within the health care continuum.

Older Americans are at a greater risk of malnutrition due to physiologic, socioeconomic, and psychological factors. A greater likelihood of chronic diseases such as osteoporosis, atherosclerosis, diabetes, hypertension, and cancer may occur. Nutrition is linked to prevention and treatment of many of these chronic diseases. It is estimated that 85% of all older persons have one or more chronic, potentially debilitating diseases that could benefit from nutrition intervention and services.

All too often individuals confuse signs of malnutrition with the signs of aging. Sometimes an older person who is dehydrated and malnourished may appear confused and disoriented. This can be interpreted as senility rather than as a nutritional problem. The outcome of untreated malnutrition is often considerable dysfunction and disability, reduced quality of life, and some instances, increased morbidity, along with increased health care costs, and premature mortality.

Nutrition services are not only a key to enhancing the quality of life for millions of older Americans, but can also bring about substantial savings in future health care costs. Susan Calvert Finn, PhD, RD president-elect of The American Dietetic Association recently stated that, "Nutrition Services must be provided at all levels in order to keep older Americans in the most independent and cost-effective living setting as possible."

Without adequate nourishment, human beings, both young and old, cannot survive. An investment in the future by our government by ensuring the availability of nutrition services to older Americans at risk will in the long run produce savings not only in health care costs, but also in human lives. Early nutrition interventions is the key.

Older Americans can get facts about cancer tests

One-half of all cancers occur in people age 65 and older, making screening tests crucial to detect cancer in its earliest, most treatable stages.

A new 16-page booklet from the National Cancer Institute (NCI) describes these early detection screening tests and their importance for the 32 million people who fall into the 65 plus age group and make up the fastest growing segment of the U.S. population.

The booklet, Cancer Tests You Should Know About: A Guide For People 65 and Over, is now available free of charge through NCI's Cancer Information Service 1-800-4-CANCER. The booklet was created by NCI in collaboration with the National Institute on Aging and the Centers for Disease Control.

Because most types of cancer do not cause any symptoms or pain in their early stages, they often go undetected. That's why it is vital to be tested on a regular basis. Most cancer tests such as mammograms, Pap tests and prostate exams are quick and easy, and can be done right in the doctor's office.

The majority of people who are tested do not have cancer. But for those who do, early detection can significantly increase their chances of surviving it.

The NCI booklet offers two foldout checklists, one for men and one for women, to help keep track of which screening tests are recommended and how often they should be performed.

Youthful energy charges CMA Awards

On Wednesday, CBS presents The 26th Annual Country Music Association Awards from the stage of the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville, Tenn. Vince Gill and Reba McEntire will serve as hosts of the show and scheduled performers include Mary-Chapin Carpenter, Alan Jackson and Trisha Yearwood.

CMA Awards founder Hall of Fame nominee

By Dan Rice

Country music is more popular than it's ever been, as is evident from runaway record sales and growing concert attendance. Younger performers and audiences have brought a higher energy level into the industry, and the Country Music Association shows its gratitude when The 26th Annual CMA Awards airs Wednesday, Sept. 30, on CBS.

The two-hour event, which originates from the Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville, Tenn., pairs returning host Reba McEntire with first-timer Vince Gill at the podium. Both are "Entertainer of the Year" nominees. Among the artists slated to perform at the ceremony are Mary-Chapin Carpenter, Alan Jackson and Trisha Yearwood.

The executive producer for the event, Irving Waugh, has been at the helm of the CMA Awards since its inception in 1967. With music publisher Jack Stapp, Waugh persuaded NBC's Kraft Music Hall to televise the ceremony for the first time in 1968. Waugh, a visionary who was instrumental in the development of the Opryland entertainment complex and Nashville's first television station (WSM-TV), credits the burgeoning of country music to its increasing appeal to younger listeners.

"The Garth Brooks, for example, are bringing much younger audiences to country music," Waugh says. "I attended a Garth Brooks concert in Dallas, and I was amazed at the large percentage of teenagers."

Waugh also believes technological progress has widened the country-music audience. "This world of ours is not urban and rural anymore because of communications, because of television. We're closer to being one as far as taste."

Waugh calls on his showbiz savvy when asked to name some of the hottest contenders in this year's awards show. "Travis Tritt (tied with Vince Gill for the lead in nominations with five each) has a tremendous youth appeal. Mary-Chapin Carpenter is a totally different artist but very attractive and writes some interesting material."

Veteran performer George Jones is among those nominated for the CMA Hall of Fame.

"A phenomenon, of course, is the Billy Ray Cyrus thing," Waugh continues. "Many people think he's just a flash in the pan, but many people thought Elvis (Presley) was a flash in the pan or that the Beatles wouldn't last. So I'd be slow to say that Billy Ray wouldn't be here next year."

Cyrus' megahit, "Achy Breaky Heart," which was composed by Don Von Tress, is nominated for three awards: Single of the Year, Music Video of the Year and Song of the Year. Though the song is a popular dance tune in country-music nightclubs, it is up against some tough competition in the last category, including Mary-Chapin Carpenter's "Down at the Twist & Shout," Travis Tritt's "Here's a Quarter (Call Someone Who Cares)" and "Don't Rock the Juke-

Every third year of the Awards, the CMA Hall of Fame inducts a non-entertainer into its ranks. In 1992, Waugh is one of the five nominees for the honor. With a blend of modesty and pragmatism, Waugh, who is the namesake of the annual Irving Waugh Award of Excellence, observes that "There's one gal (BMI's Frances Preston) against four old men, so my guess is the gal will get the award, which is fine."

Waugh, a man who mentions his wartime interview of Gen. Douglas MacArthur as one of the high points of his long and illustrious career, has a matter-of-fact attitude about his many achievements. "If you live long enough," Waugh says, "you have some highlights in your life."

SOAP TALK

"Oklahoma girls" love their soap

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: A group of friends of mine and I have enjoyed watching All My Children for years. Most of us work during the day, but we tape the show and get together every couple of weeks for an AMC marathon.

We would like to know about the actress who replaced Kate Collins as Natalie. We think she is beautiful. I know this is mean, but we like her better than Collins. Would you please tell us what other shows she has been on? Also, why did Collins leave? We heard she and the actor who plays Trevor didn't get along. — "The Girls" in Oklahoma.

Dear Readers: Melody Anderson stepped into the role of Natalie when Collins decided it was time to move on. Collins felt she had done everything she could with the role. Reportedly, she didn't leave because of problems with James Kiberd (Trevor).

Anderson is best known for her work in the television series Jake and the Fatman. She had a recurring role in St. Elsewhere and appeared in the cable series Phillip Marlowe and The Hitchhiker.

Anderson is happy to have the role and plans to bring a new perspective to it.

Dear Candace: I began watching General Hospital last April because a friend of mine, Frank Runyon, joined the show as Simon Romero. From what I understand, GH had been trying to get him on the show for about three years.

Now he is off the show and I don't understand why. Did they get rid of him because of money? I met him a few years ago and have corresponded with him since and I am concerned about his welfare. He treated me so kindly and he is just incredibly nice. Can you please tell me what he is doing now and if he has another job? — Debra Sermons, Greenville, N.C.

Dear Reader: Runyon knew that his story line was a short-term one, so he wasn't really surprised when he received the news. There is the possibility he could return to the show at a later date and he would consider that possibility. He has moved back to his home in Connecticut, but is still interested in pursuing work in L.A.

Soap opera writer rules destinies

CHICAGO (AP) - Kay Alden's life is a soap opera. Really.

As a head writer for CBS' "The Young and the Restless," she helped capture its first Emmy for writing this summer. But, more important, she's helped decide matters of life and death, rule entire destinies and change the courses of lives - characters' lives, that is - when real-life circumstances require it.

Contracts and storylines often cause characters' deaths or sudden departures from Genoa City, the program's Midwestern setting, she said.

Sometimes, a villain becomes so evil he's beyond redemption and must be killed or imprisoned. But death isn't always certain in soap-opera land. Like a cat with nine lives, characters can overcome the toughest adversity.

Take the program's David, wealthy Nina's greedy, murderous husband. Nina thought she'd shot him dead, only to learn he had undergone plastic surgery, had taken on a new identity and started dating her mother.

But David got his just rewards: First, his surgeon carved the words "KILLER" into his forehead, and later he was fatally smashed in a trash compactor.

"Garbage to garbage, we said," recalled Alden.

Some villains are just too delectable to kill. Take Sheila, who apparently died in a fire - only to sneak out alive. She's still playing the same role but is hiding out and creating more havoc on Bell's other soap, "The Bold and the Beautiful," set in Los Angeles.

"In Sheila, we had a character people hated so much, but loved to hate," Alden said. "She was not redeemable. ... (But) we didn't want to put her in a mental institution or jail. And we definitely did not want to kill her."

Alden, who writes from her home, faxes her copy to the Los Angeles-based program and discusses story lines by phone probably 20 hours a week with the other writers, including creator Bill Bell. She began writing for the 19-year-old program 18 years ago.

Alden, 45, said Bell develops most of the story ideas and the writing team helps execute them. "We probably have a story line in mind six months ahead of time," she said recently.

Soap writers occasionally live to regret some story lines. The character Victor, for instance, started out as a jealous maniac who locked wife Julia's lover in a basement cell - only years later to turn into a rich businessman and pillar of the community.

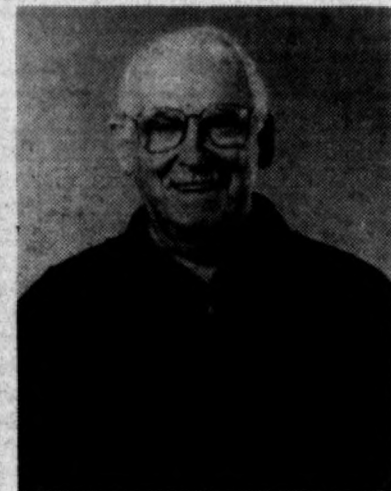

"When the character of Victor came on the show, I think we hired him for maybe six weeks or six months," she said, noting the writers hadn't expected him to become a permanent, relatively good character.

Unlike many of her characters, Alden, the mother of three, has been happily married for 13 years.

Alden has enjoyed soaps since she was a child. "Literally, I'd thought since I was very young probably the neatest thing you could really do would be to be a soap opera actress," she said. "Being a writer is probably the best of all possible worlds: You get to do all the parts that way."

Clea Lewis plays wary, foul-tempered Megan in Flying Blind, airing Sundays on Fox.

Mondays on NBC, Emmy and Tony winner Barnard Hughes plays kindly Buzz Richman on Blossom.

The dramatic story of Charles Lindbergh's historic solo flight across the Atlantic is one of many aviation milestones featured in Frontiers of Flight, a 13-part series premiering Saturday on The Discovery Channel.

'Frontiers of Flight' focuses on aviators' lives

Series draws on Smithsonian exhibits

By Suzanne Gill

Over 90 years have passed since brothers Wilbur and Orville Wright began making annual treks from their Dayton, Ohio, home to the sand dunes at Kitty Hawk, N.C., to test their experimental gliders. In the decade just past, brothers Burt and Dick Rutan respectively engineered and flew their Voyager in the first round-the-world flight without refueling.

Frontiers of Flight, debuting Saturday, Oct. 3, on The Discovery Channel, looks at the pioneers of aviation from Wright to Rutan, including Charles Lindbergh, Jimmy Doolittle, Amelia Earhart, and Chuck Yeager. Produced in cooperation with the Smithsonian's Air and Space Museum, the 13-part series looks not only at the aircraft and the science of flight, but at the lives of the aviators as well.

The premiere episode pulls together such widely separated Wright monuments and memorabilia as the family home, which now rests in Dearborn, Mich., the Wright Bicycle Co. in Dayton, an original aircraft at the Air and Space Museum in Washington, D.C., and several stone markers in Kitty Hawk. Along with a tour of the bachelors' home is a description of family life, which they shared with their father, a widowed bishop, and their sister, who did not marry until after their father's death.

A serious oversight in the press copy of the episode is the omission of any introduction or credit for the brothers' grand-nephew Wilkinson Wright, who helps explain their work habits and demonstrates the workings of the aircraft.

Future episodes feature Donald Lopez, the Air and Space Museum's own World War II ace, and portraits of aviators whose names are not household words like Wright or Lindbergh: Lts. Kelly and Macready, who flew non-stop from coast to coast in 1923; air-race hero Wiley Post; and Col. Pete Knight, an X-15 test pilot who has flown faster than anyone else in the world. Up in the sky, these are truly super men and women.

PBS offers 'Higher Goals' for student athletes

For young athletes who would rather be told to hit the showers than hit the books, there's PBS' upcoming special Higher Goals, which attempts to put a new spin on that attitude. British actress Helena Bonham Carter, known for her roles in costume dramas including Lady Jane, A Room With a View and Howard's End, will make her American television debut this season as Marina Oswald, widow of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald. The NBC TV movie, dubbed Marina's Story, is being filmed on locations in Texas and Russia. STAR NOTES

Flanery enjoys playing globe-trotting hero

By Suzanne Gill

When it comes to heartthrobs, fans want to know important things like, "What does he eat for breakfast?" In the case of Sean Patrick Flanery, the answer is Cream of Wheat — a good, stick-to-the-ribs choice for a globe-trotting adventurer.

Flanery is the principal lead in The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles, airing Monday nights on ABC, playing the teenage Indy in George Lucas' history-action series.

Flanery is some years older than the character he plays, but just as wide-eyed, enjoying on-location shoots from North Carolina to Prague, his favorite European city. Despite the travel, he's still in touch with old friends at home in Houston, where he gets around town in a "20-year-old (BMW) 2002."

Though he was recently named to a "50 most beautiful people" list, Flanery frankly says he isn't popular enough to be mobbed on the streets, and he still answers his fan mail — from parents, kids and college students — himself.

As for his own idols, Flanery says he has added several, including Albert Schweitzer, to the list since the series began. Asked which historical character he would most like to encounter in an upcoming episode, Flanery knows instantly: "I'd like to meet Baron Manfred von Richthofen — the Red Baron. You know, that'd be kind of a cool story — World War I, flying aces and stuff like that." © TV Listing Inc.

Walsh puts Irish upper-classmen to test

By Michael Scogin

Stanford head coach Bill Walsh continues his 1992 back-to-school tour on NBC Saturday, Oct. 3, when the Cardinal visit Lou Holtz and the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame in a matchup between two highly-ranked national powerhouses. Tom Hammond handles play-by-play duties, joining analyst Cris Collinsworth and sideline reporter John Dockery.

Walsh is in the first year of his much-heralded return to Stanford, where he was defensive-back coach from 1963-65 and head coach from 1978-79. In his previous reign, Walsh compiled a 17-7 record, guiding the Cardinal to two straight postseason bowl victories. He gave up his three-year job as NBC's No. 1 pro football analyst to return to Stanford and the NCAA.

Walsh is best remembered, however, as head coach of the San Francisco 49ers teams of the 1980s. Under Walsh, the 49ers were able to go from the doormat of the NFC West to three-time Super Bowl winners, with seven NFC playoff appearances and six NFC Western Division titles. Walsh amassed a 10-year record of 102-63-1 and was named Coach of the Decade for his efforts.

A proven winner and masterful teacher, Walsh is expected to catapult Stanford from a regional to national power and place the team in direct recruiting competition with top drawing cards such as Miami and Notre Dame.

Family life is not the same

LOS ANGELES (AP) - It's difficult to find a typical American family on television these days.

The reason is because more than ever television reflects the changes in family life in this country and the variety of family groups.

"Television is more realistic and more reflective of the diversity within our culture," says David Poltrack, CBS senior vice president for planning and research. "The families of 'Leave It To Beaver' or 'Ozzie and Harriet' were typically white, middle-class families. Two parents, two children and a dog. The families of television today represent almost every different configuration of family unit, as well as reflecting the black population and other minorities."

The most popular family of the 1980s was the Huxtables, a black, middle-class family on "The Cosby Show." The most popular family of the 1990s is the Connors, a struggling blue-collar family portrayed on "Roseanne."

What's the typical family? The Thatchers on ABC's "Life Goes On," a white family whose son has Down syndrome? The Winslows on ABC's "Family Matters," a black family headed by a policeman? The working newlyweds on NBC's upcoming comedy "Mad About You"? The Russos on NBC's "Blossom," suffering the aftermath of divorce and an older brother who is a recovering substance abuser?

Television has changed, and so has the family. One in eight families today is headed by a single parent. Among blacks only about one in three families was headed by two parents, according to the U.S. Census Bureau.

"I think television reflects family values from top to bottom," says David Jacobs, executive producer and creator of CBS' "Knots Landing." "On shows like 'thirtysomething' and 'Knots Landing' there are happy marriages, there are troubled marriages, there are broken marriages. I think when television does a farcical approach to marriage as in 'Married...with Children,' it's obviously a farce."

The reflection of family values came under attack last May when Vice President Quayle criticized the out-of-wedlock birth on CBS' "Murphy Brown." The assault on television increased at the Republican National Convention, and although the Republicans have backed off somewhat, Quayle continues to flog Hollywood on the campaign trail.

"I would hate to think that anyone would make decisions on how to raise their family based on a sitcom," says Danny Jacobson, executive producer and co-creator of "Mad About You." "It's hard for me to believe there would be that much effect. As far as family values go I don't think that 'Murphy Brown' is going to be the ruination of any family."

Lew Hunter, a professor of screenwriting at UCLA, writer and former network executive, says he thinks the portrayal of families has become more cynical.

"I think the audience has become more anesthetized to what they see and hear," Hunter says. "Kids hear the f-word more than 24 times in an average R-rated movie, and don't tell me they're not getting in. I went to a meeting about responsibility in motion pictures, television and records last night. They played a record that was absolutely unbelievable. You can't even print the title."

Peter Chernin, president of Fox Entertainment, said in an address to a cable convention in San Francisco last month that it would "be arrogant and cynical of us - and a grievous mistake - to turn a deaf ear" to Quayle and the issue of family values.

FAMILY

role models versus negative role models," Poltrack says. "The public does not perceive Murphy Brown as a negative role model. But they do perceive Al Bundy of 'Married...With Children' as a negative role model."

"I understand that on 'Married...With Children' they are making fun of these people, but my kids think they're cool. It's not so much Al Bundy as it is the kids. Kids see the promiscuous daughter and gross son as cool. Kids don't make the distinction."

Bob Myer, a former executive producer of ABC's "Roseanne," says such shows as "The Cosby Show" and "Roseanne" helped bring back the nuclear family to television after a long flirtation with surrogate families.

"Roseanne" is the most realistic portrait of a family ever presented in a comedy series. It ignores politics and the big soap-box issues so many producers find irresistible to concentrate on the small matters that bring a family closer together or drive them apart. Unlike many family shows that concentrate on precocious children, "Roseanne" is told from the viewpoint of the parents.

Poltrack says "The Cosby Show" was a major breakthrough in 1984 because the black middle-class family in the show became the ideal family to whites as well as blacks. In polls conducted by CBS, the Huxtables, played by Cosby and Phylicia Rashad, were the most popular characters on television and the most admired.

"You had the white population saying these black characters were role models they admired or related to," Poltrack says. "It was a major breakthrough. Before that black families were more representative of the white person's view of black America."

Later, Roseanne Arnold of "Roseanne" became the most admired woman on television, then was replaced by Candice Bergen as "Murphy Brown."

A number of new family shows are coming to television this season. Among them: ABC's "Laurie Hill" tells of a young woman doctor, her writer husband who works at home, and their son. CBS' "Bob" sees the return of Bob Newhart as a comic-book artist with a wife and a grown daughter. CBS' "Frannie's Way" is about a working mother with a Cuban-born husband who finally rebels against having to wait on the men in her life. Singer Patti LaBelle has a daughter and takes a young man under her wing in NBC's "Out All Night."

Both Lucy in the right: foggy on doggie

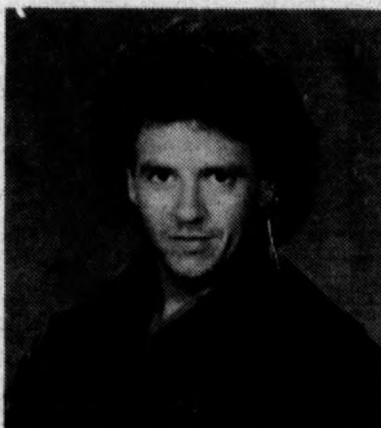

By Taylor Michaels

Q: My wife and I have a bet on the following question: Did Scott Valentine (Nick) ever star in a spin-off show from Family Ties? I have $20 that says there never was such a show. —Michael Lucy and Lucy Michaels Leigh (Those are really our names!), Oak Park, Mich.

A: The time now comes to split a few hairs, Michael. Valentine never appeared in a spin-off series from Family Ties as such, so you're right. But he did appear in The Art of Being Nick, a 30-minute "special" that ran in August 1987 and smells suspiciously of a failed pilot episode, so your wife's right, too.

Q: I'm a big fan of Peyton Place. I would like to know quite a bit about it. How often and what time of day did it come on? Did it do well in the ratings, etc.? —New fan of the old Peyton Place, Grenada, Miss.

A: Based on the novel of the same name by Grace Metalious (which was made into a movie in 1957), Peyton Place was, and still is in reruns on many stations, an immensely popular television series. The show's first airdate was Sept. 15, 1964, Monday at 9:30 p.m. (EST) on ABC. There were more backstabbing, illicit affairs, murder mysteries, dark secrets and failed romances in the serial than one could decipher in three lifetimes, portrayed by a constantly changing ensemble cast that would take the rest of this column to list. The first true soap opera to air in prime time (Dallas, Dynasty, Knot's Landing, etc.), owe this show a lot, every one of the show's 514 episodes during the first five years was original — no reruns. This is a remarkable accomplishment, especially when considering during the first four years Peyton Place ran up to three times a week! Many of the show's regulars, including Mia Farrow and Ryan O'Neal, became superstars because of the recognition they received on the show. The last original episode aired on June 2, 1969.

Q: My best friend and I have a disagreement regarding the old Starsky and Hutch television show. It pertains to the kind of car they drove. We both agree that it was a Ford; however, he says it was a Gran Torino and I say it was an LTD II. Can you give us the correct answer and end this for us? —Virgil A. Saxon, Hilton Head Island, S.C.

A: I'll never forget what kind of car those two drove around in because my best friend's brother owned one — complete with the big white stripe down the side! Sorry, Virgil, but it was a 1974 Gran Torino.

Q: What I'm interested in is not an address or anything like that, but a cartoon character.

When I was a child, Quick Draw McGraw was a popular show. He had a donkey sidekick named Baba Looey. Then there was this dog. He wasn't in every episode, but if he was fed a dog biscuit, he would jump up in the air and float back down. During all this he would be moaning "Ummmmmm" — Mary Wright, Rosemount, Minn.

A: Quick Draw McGraw, featuring invaluable sidekick Baba Looey (Remember how he called him "Queeks Draw?"), also ran shorts starring Snooper & Blabber, and Augie Doggie and Doggie Daddy. But the intermittent co-star you mention was Snuffles, a bumbling bloodhound, from whom the dog biscuits elicited such behavior. You and I both can thank Shea McNutt of Turner Program Services for her diligent research in answering this question.
