Frontier Days Best Ever

DONNIE SMITH was the lead man on the winning tug-o-war team, and there was no joy like the joy of winning this contest, because it allowed you to remain clean and dry while you pulled your friends through a muddy moat. (Staff Photo)

Fun for one was fun for all Saturday as Bogata residents and friends from all over the state joined on a day of games, contests and entertainment in downtown Bogata for the third annual Frontier Day celebration.

It was the best Frontier Day ever. There were more people on the street and in the contests and the annual parades had more entries.

That it was going to be a big year was evident from the opening event, when 165 horses and riders entered the Rodeo Parade Thursday to kick off the giant Bogata Rodeo, produced by Wing Ranch Rodeo Company.

The barbecue, served between the parade and the rodeo Thursday, was catered by Ernie's of Greenville.

Saturday morning dawned clear and hot, and the free Sambo's pancake breakfast that was scheduled from 7 a.m. to 9 a.m. stretched until 9:45, when John Parrish and Clifford Barnard began the turtle auction. The most expensive turtles in the world are raised on the Barnard Farms in Cuthand bottom, and only one turtle sold for less than $5. One brought $10, but most of the turtles sold for close to $6. The auction raised $175, and $90 was turned back into prize money for the winners of the races. The surplus went to pay expenses of the Bogata Area Chamber of Commerce, which sponsors the Frontier Day.

Winner of the terrapin race was Randy Huddleston, followed by Brad Branch and Jason Ward. Rene and Kelly Watson won first place in the turtle race, followed by Aaron Robinson and Wesley Damron. Robinson also had the best decorated terrapin and Baxter Phillips had the best decorated turtle.

Fay Smith took first place in the goat milking contest for the second year in a row, but the second place winner, Harold Byram, had never milked a goat in his life. Jeff Thomas won third place in the goat milking contest, and was also the first place winner in the cow-chick-pig calling contest.

Hayden Martin and David Mauldin won the egg throwing contest. Allen Harville was first and Scott Branch second in the "14 and under" division of the cow chip chunking contest. Doug Bond won the "14 and over" contest and Mary Ellen Kain won the women's division. The little folks cow chip chunking contest was won by Shane Compton, followed by Shelia Speir in second place. Buddy McMichael and Chris Kenmore tied for third place.

The team of Lee Ann House and Doug Bond won the sack race, with Pat and Mike Speir in second place.

In the beard growing contest, Charley Lewis had the longest beard, Eddy Denny the best groomed, Floyd Noey the fullest and Jim Bill Chanlenor the scroungiest.

The kids won the contest against the WBAP Stagecoach horses. There were more kids to ride the stage than the horses had strength to pull. Big John was in Bogata for the Saturday performance of the Bogata Rodeo, and drove the full team of six into the arena for the crowning of Jennifer Glass as Rodeo Princess.

The VFW Ladies Auxiliary served barbecue chicken, sandwiches, drinks and desserts to the crowd, and manned the concession stand at the rodeo every night.

Paris radio station KPLT broadcast from downtown Bogata all day, interviewing contest winners and providing background music for the events. More music was provided by the Clarksville High School Stage Band.

Almost 200 horses were in the Frontier Day and Rodeo Parade Saturday afternoon, along with the Hella Temple Black Horse Patrol, Mustang Patrol, Motorcycles, Road Runners and Clowns. The Red River Wagon Masters paraded, as did several antique cars.

The Saturday night finals of the Bogata Rodeo hosted the biggest crowd on record, with the bleachers filling up an hour before the performance and then hundreds more spectators squeezing into the stands. Late comers were admitted free because there was standing room only.

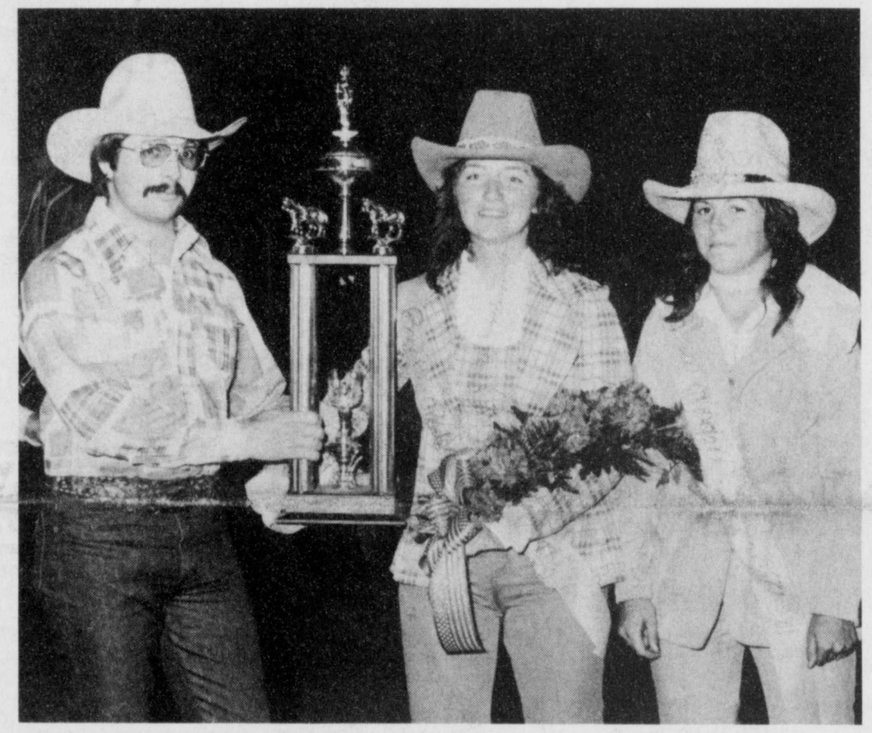

JENNIFER GLASS, right, outsold advance tickets to the Bogata Rodeo and won the title of Rodeo Princess. Other contestants were Lori Alford and Tricia Duffer. (Staff Photo)

Dues were collected and membership stands at 13. All persons interested in agriculture are invited to attend the July meeting, which was changed from July 4 to July 11, on account of the holiday.

Meeting time will be 8:00 p.m. at the Rivercrest auditorium.

Robbery Suspects Arrested

Titus County Sheriff John Moss said Saturday that four warrants have been issued for the arrest of suspects involved in the February 27 Talco State Bank robbery.

Clifton Dwayne Sosbee, 23, Danny Joe Jarrell, 23, and a juvenile male are in custody and are all under a $100,000 bond each for aggravated armed robbery.

The fourth person is not in custody yet, however, the warrant is out. According to Moss, Lewisville police picked up two of the suspects, Sosbee and the juvenile, in connection with the armed robbery of a grocery store there.

The third person, Danny Joe Jarrell, is in the Denton County Sheriff's Department custody where he is being held on a cattle stealing charge, Sheriff Moss said.

"We have been working with the Texarkana FBI office, local Texas Rangers, Lewisville police and the Denton County Sheriff's Department since the Talco robbery. The day of the robbery we had a suspect, but it has taken until now to get everything cleared up. All of these persons that have been arrested have felony charges against them in other counties," Moss explained.

TUG-O-WAR——A new contest at the Bogata Frontier Days was the highlight of the day Saturday, when a long line of burly men battled across a muddy moat constructed especially for the purpose. Winners remained dry, but the losers were dragged through the mud and water. Captain of the winning team was Jackie Gray. (Staff Photo)

Standing Room Only For Rodeo Performances

On Saturday night, the bleachers were filled to capacity one hour prior to the final performance of the Bogata Rodeo, and tickets were not sold after 8:00 due to the crowd. Spectators were admitted free after that time because the only available space to watch the rodeo from was under the box seats.

The Saturday night performance of the championship IRA rodeo saw the crowd grow to well over 5,000 persons watching the competition. The Thursday and Friday evening rodeo averaged over 3,500 persons each night.

The Bogata Rodeo Association announced plans earlier this week to construct additional seating at the Rodeo Arena, due to capacity and larger crowds for the annual Frontier Days and Rodeo celebration. Plans call for the construction to provide seating for 1,500 to 2,000 spectatrs, in addition to present seating accomodations.

The rodeo, produced by Jerald Smith of Bogata, owner of the Wing Ranch Rodeo Company saw contestants entered in competition in the seven championship events. In the contest events, winners were: Bareback Riding: Scott Fletcher, Winnsboro, La., 81; John Ward, Coalgate, Ok., 79; Tommy Baker, Tahlequah, Ok., 75; and Dave Ratchford, Durant, Ok., 74. Jim Wood, who is one of the principal organizers of the Frontier Day every year, played Bonita, and Clyde was played by John Howison. Other participants were unrecognizable.

Cancer Society Plans Screening Clinic

Oral cancer--cancer of the mouth and associated areas--took the lives of almost 7,000 men and women in the United States last year.

This number may not seem large in terms of the millions of adults in this country. But it is large--large because so many of those deaths could have been avoided, in many cases with no great inconvenience to the person involved.

Today only 36 percent of those who develop oral cancer survive for five years or more after treatment. The survival rate could be improved by vigilance on the part of the individual, the physician and the dentist.

According to Dr. Tom Ragan, oral cancer is one of the most accessible for early detection and successful treatment. Because of this, oral cancer control has been made an especially significant part of the American Cancer Society's five-year minimum achievement program to save more lives from cancer now.

"This action program seeks to involve at least 50 percent of all dentists and physicians in a program to make cancer detection a part of every checkup examination," Dr. Ragan said. "At the same time it is hoped to persuade the public to exercise greater personal vigilance."

Dr. Ragan explained: "The oral region, the tongue and the lining of the throat are highly sensitive. Instances of unusual sensation, pain, swelling or other abnormalities such as bleeding, sores and white spots should be acted upon without delay. These are warnings that a person can recognize and do something about."

"In the case of oral cancer, the dentist can be a real source of protection. The regular dental examination focuses on the mouth, and abnormalities may come quickly to the dentist's attention."

"This is why the American Cancer Society puts great emphasis on the significant role of the dentist in the detection of cancer. This is one instance in which the dental and the medical professions can combine the weapons of modern cancer detection in the fight against cancer."

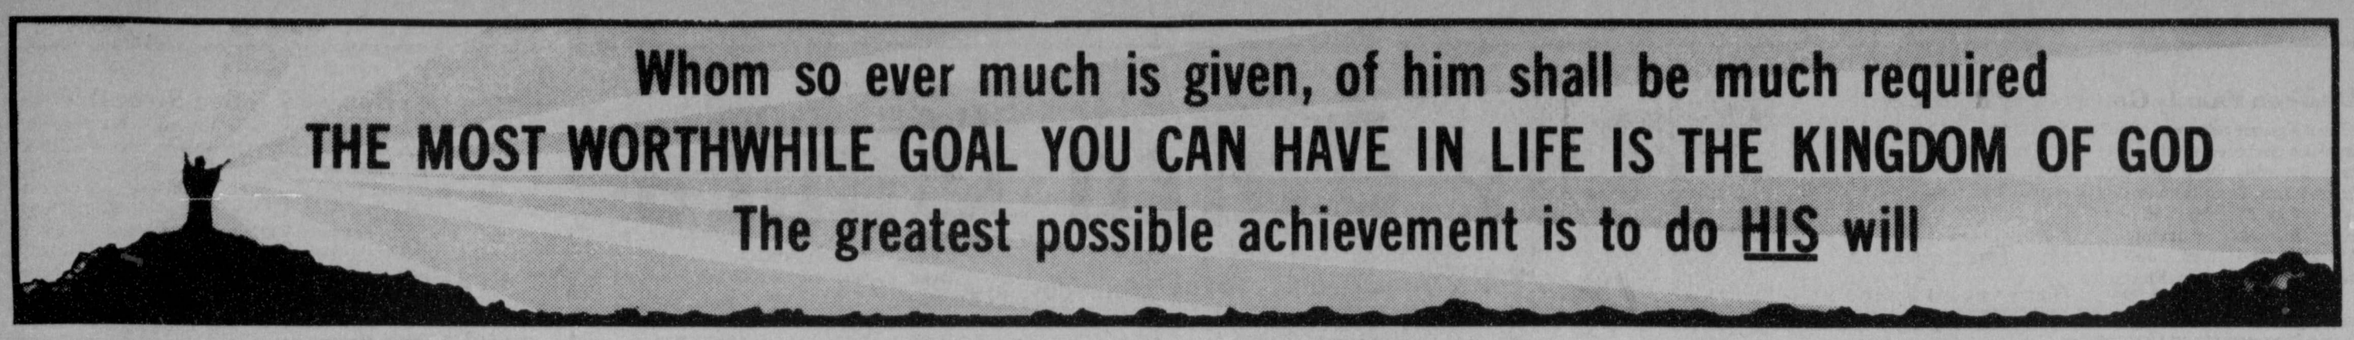

The local unit of the American Cancer Society is planning a free screening clinic to be held during July in which all the county dentists, Dr. Ragan, Dr. Troutt and Dr. Scott, will be screening for oral cancer. There will also be some county physicians participating in other types of screening.

BLESSED ARE THEY WHO HEED THIS MESSAGE

Come listen while your Church explains
What our New Testament contains,
Which all through history remains
A literary fount:
A multitude from far and wide
Had gathered on the mountainside,
While He addressed this human tide
Too numerous to count;
And people of whatever creed,
Or what degree of human need,
Would all do better if they'd heed
The Sermon on the Mount.

hear the word of God,
and keep it."

Mrs. David Lee Miller

Hales-Miller Vows Exchanged

In a candlelight ceremony Saturday, June 24, at seven thirty o'clock in the sanctuary of the Church of Christ, Kayla Renee Hales and David Lee Miller exchanged nuptial vows. Officiating for the double ring ceremony was Tom Barthell of Blossom.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hales. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Miller are the parents of the groom. The "Glad Tidings Chorus" of Mount Pleasant sang the traditional wedding processional, "Twelfth of Never", "Love Me Tender", "The Wedding March", "Be With Me Lord".

The altar background had an arch of greenery centered with blue and white wedding flowers accented with soft blue ribbons. This was flanked by two seven branch candelabras holding blue tapers. The chancel rail was accented with a basket of white carnations and stephanotas. The family pews were marked with blue ribbons.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. For her wedding she chose a victorian styled gown of sheer white organza fashioned with bishop sleeves, fitted bodice and high neckline, accented with narrow bands of venice lace and seed pearls. Matching bands of lace extended down the front encircling the full skirt which swept into a chapel length train. The below the shoulder length veiling of silk illusion was outlined in venice lace and fell from a lace and pearl cornet. She carried a nosegay of blue and white carnations, baby's breath and greenery. She also carried two long stem red roses, which she presented to her mother and his mother.

Kathy Keith of Dallas was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Cindy Conner and Jeannie Edge. Each wore a full length gown of pastel blue. The maid of honor carried a long stem blue carnation and the bridesmaids carried long stem white carnations.

Wesley Rychlik of Mount Pleasant was the best man. Groomsmen were Tony Hinson and Jimmy Hearron. Altar taper lighters were Aaron Sessums of Bogata and Dale Grissom, Talco.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents were hosts to a reception in the Community Room of the Talco State Bank. Receiving the guests were the new Mr. and Mrs. Miller and their parents. The bride's table was laid in red with an overlay of ecru lace. Centering the table was a three branch wrought iron candelabrum holding a mass arrangement of red tulips, poppies, baby's breath, greenery and red votive candles. The three tiered columned cake was decorated with white frosting and suger spun red roses. Cresting the cake was the traditional bride and groom. Red punch, nuts and mints were served from crystal service. The red napkins were inscribed in gold with "Kayla and David". Mrs. Teri Easterling, Talco and Mary Keith of Bogata presided at the serving table.

The couple will make their home in Mount Pleasant.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Leon Drum of Denison, Mr. and Mrs. N.K. Hales of Denison, Mary Briggs of Dallas, Patricia and Tommie Ann Smith of Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Talkington of New Boston and James Ramey of Mount Pleasant.

Auto Service Tips

Safe driving, good tire mileage, and responsive steering depend upon correct tire pressure. Check tires (and spare) at least once per month to assure recommended pressure is maintained. Invest in a good tire guage and learn how to use it. If tire wears on edges, tires do not have enough pressure; wear in the center indicates too much pressure.

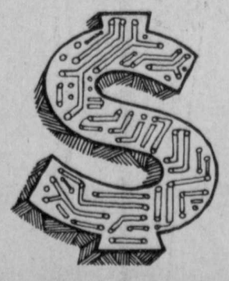

Printed Circuitry

We're plugging it in to keep your rates as low as possible.

No one is happy when we have to ask our customers to pay higher rates for telephone service. Not you. Not we. And that's why we fight inflation — the number one cause of rate increases — every day in every way we can.

One of the ways we hold inflation at bay is to look for new and better ways to serve our customers more efficiently.

Printed circuitry is one of the new and better ways. Your radio and television sets probably have it, and you get better service with minimum maintenance because of it.

Now, in many of our exchanges, plug-in modules eliminate many of the tubes that burned out with such monotonous regularity. Plus thousands of hand-soldered connections. And miles of tiny wires that had to be traced to the source of any problem.

Plug-in circuitry is requiring a tremendous investment, but it's an investment that helps Continental control its operating costs and hold the line on rate increases.

Your rates for telephone service are based on our costs of doing business. With printed circuitry and other proven technological advancements, we're doing our best to do more for you.

Melea Goodroe Weds Donald Edwards

Melea Goodroe became the bride of Donald Dean Edwards in a formal, double ring ceremony on Friday, June 23 at 8:00 in the evening at the Talco Church of Christ. Tim Richardson, minister, Commerce Church of Christ, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.T. Goodroe of Talco. Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Edwards of Commerce are parents of the groom.

Recorded a cappella music was presented prior to the ceremony. The "Glad Tidings" chorus of Mount Pleasant, Texas sang the traditional wedding processiona, "True Love", "Walk Hand in Hand", "Be With Us Lord", "Sunrise, Sunset", and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You".

The focal point of the setting was a 15-branched candletree entwined with greenery in the baptistry above the wedding scene. It was accented with an oval 15-branched candelabra and two spiral candelabras holding apricot tapers interspersed with summer greens. Classic columns held massive arrangements of sunset and apricot gladiolas and polished foliage. The chancel rail was accented with candle groupings and summer greens. The center aisle to the altar was lighted with hurricane lamps, polished foliage and apricot silk roses.

Escorted by her father, the bride chose a wedding gown of candlelight qiana which featured an elegant inset yoke of sheer English net trimmed in Venise lace. The bodice of the sleeveless gown was accented by a high neckline and an empire waist encircled with Venise lace. The lace motif of the gown was echoed on the skirt with a scattering of lace accents. The gracefully flowing skirt which was edged in Venise lace swept to a chapel length train. Her finger tip length veil of candlelight English net encircled with Venise lace flowed from a matching lace-covered Juliet cap. She carried a hand-made Chantilly lace fan, cascaded with sonya roses, french mums, and baby's breath. The bride wore a genuine six-pence in her shoe, brought to her from England by her aunt, Mrs. Elizabeth Cato.

Mrs. Albert Clark of Bedford was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Marquite Stearman, Glynelda Edwards, both of Commerce, Mrs. Mike Slaughter of Winnsboro, and Kelli Holmes of Talco, who was junior bridesmaid.

The attendants wore formal length halter gowns of apricot qiana overlaid with matching capelets and fashioned with empire waistlines, forming diamond shaped motifs in the center front. They carried hand-made lace fans, similar to the bride's, accented with apricot silk roses, baby's breath and greenery. They wore a single silk rosebud in their hair.

Amy Cohen of Fort Worth, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a floor length apricot dress and carried a miniature lace fan identical to the bridesmaids.

Warren Eubank of Commerce served as best man. Groomsmen were Jack Ballard of Deport, George Calhoun, Danny Alexander and David Alexander of Commerce. Ushers were Albert Clark of Bedford, Andy Barnes of Garland, and Lee Bassinger, Jr. of Fort Worth.

Registering the guests in the foyer of the building was Kim Brooks of Bogata.

Following the ceremony, the bride's parents were hosts for a reception in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W.H. Kelly, aunt and uncle of the bride.

The bride's table was centered with a silver candelabra holding votive candles, interspersed with apricot fresh flowers and greenery. The table was laid with a white imported Army-Navy tablecloth.

The three-tiered cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom, accented with a trellis. Apricot punch was served from a silver punch bowl. Mints and nuts were served from silver compotes. Rice paper napkins were inscribed, "Melea and Don".

The groom's table was laid with a hand embroidered linen tablecloth. It was centered with a tiered monkeypod lazy susan filled with frosted fruit and flowers. Apricot pound cake was served from a crystal cake stand. Punch was served from an imported Italian glass punch bown in a wrought iron stand.

Members of the houseparty included Mrs. Chris Watson of Commerce, Kim Brooks of Bogata, Mrs. Barbara Hanson of Bossier City, La., Mrs. John Blair of Irving and Debbie Hays of Mount Pleasant.

For her wedding journey, the new Mrs. Edwards chose a floral voile, off-the-shoulder blouson dress.

The bride is a 1975 graduate of Rivercrest High School and is currently a senior at East Texas State University.

The bridegroom is a 1972 graduate of Commerce High School, and a 1976 graduate of East Texas State University. He is presently a graduate student.

ASCS NEWS

By James B. Allcorn

The final crop certification deadline is just around the corner, July 15, and a number of producers have indicated that since they signed up in the program, they are through certifying too. This is probably a misconception. All crops must be certified field by field for the crop and the acreage by July 15.

Know how many acres you are certifying because too few acres is just as bad as having too many, from the stand point of the program. If you do not know how many acres are in a field, come by the ASCS office and we will help you decide the acreage with the aerial photograph. If this is not possible, it may be to your advantage to request measurement service, either by actual ground measurements or the aerial observation method.

Continuing dry weather and no rainfall is causing concern among many about the production capability of their grain sorghum crops. If you decide the crop is not going to make, you need to request an appraisal from ASCS. Then, make absolutely sure the appraisal is completed and that you agree with it before you destroy the crop or make other use of it. For more information, contact ASCS at 214-784-6678.

Wheat loan rates have been announced for Lamar County for 1978 at the rate of $2.32 per bushel for both warehouse and farm stored grain. All premiums and discounts will be effective at the time of disbursement for warehouse stored grain. For farm stored wheat, premiums will be available only at the producer's request. This request must be accompanied by : (1) A protein certificate issued by a recognized laboratory and identified with the lot or bin of wheat from which the sample was drawn; or (2) Draw your samples, identify each according to the bin from which it came, and bring to ASCS when you file your request for loan. ASCS will forward the sample to either the Farwell Grain Exchange or the Lubbock Grain Exchange for you to have the protein level determined. The analysis will be at your expense and will cost $3.50 per sample; or (3) Request ASCS to draw samples and submit them for you. The charge for this service is $10.00 plus $5.00 per bin over one plus the protein determination fee of $3.50 for each sample.

If you are not interested in the protein analysis, you may simply request a loan on farm stored wheat at the rate of $3.32 per bushel. Any premiums or discounts will be effective at the time of forfeiture of the loan to CCC, if it is not redeemed prior to maturity.

Grain farmers are reminded of the availability of grain bin measurement service available from ASCS. If you are unsure about the amount of grain in your bins, have ASCS guarantee the quantity for you at the nominal fee of $10.00 plus $5.00 per bin over one.

Many producers have been asking what they can do with their set aside land that is growing up. Weeds must be controlled in order for your farm to comply with the program, however, a stubble cover must remain on the soil surface to protect from erosion. Shredding of set aside cover is one of the best methods to use to comply with the program requirements but plowing with sweep type plows is also an accepted practice.

ACP sign-up continues for critical area and waterway shaping and for the construction of water pipe drop structures. Funds are limited and will be approved only on practice requests which are determined to be the most sorely needed from a conservation standpoint.

Prevent Food Poisoning

To prevent food poisoning, keep hot foods hot and cold foods cold--and live longer in good health.

Specifically: cook foods thoroughly and serve them hot, prevent recontamination through cleanliness and use of sanitary utensils, promptly cool or freeze foods after preparation to retard bacteria multiplication, and, fully reheat stored foods to destroy bacteria.

In a survey of 2,503 households, 63 percent of those sampled used at least one high risk practice in handling, preparing and storing selected meat and poultry products.

Most of these high risk households left fresh meat, poultry or fish out at room temperature for more than two hours thinking it was safe to eat. They were wrong--meat is a haven for bacterial growth.

Over two and one-half million people were affected in 1976 by Salmonellosis, one of the major food borne illnesses affecting man. Many more cases go unreported because people assume they have a "bug" or the flu.

Salmonella--a group of bacteria almost worldwide in distribution--may be found in water, poultry, meat and meat products, eggs and egg products, fish, shellfish and oysters. Freezing does not kill salmonella--it only prevents multiplication.

Many homemakers are not aware of the problems involved with handling food safely at home. Food handling in the home is extremely important and one that most consumers can correct.

Cotton Council Protests Cotton Dust Standards

The decision by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) on the cotton dust standard is another example of excessive and inflationary regulation by big government, National Cotton Council President Lon Mann said today.

Mann, a Marianna, Ark., cotton producer and ginner, stated the standard raises strong doubts as to whether the Administration is serious about fighting inflation.

"The cotton dust standard will exact a high toll in increased consumer prices, loss of jobs, increased taxes, and elimination of many small businesses," Mann asserted.

Reviewing details of the standard, Mann said modification of OSHA's original proposal and the extension of compliance time will be helpful. "However, both the Administration's top economic advisors and the cotton industry have pointed out options that would provide worker protection at far less cost," he said.

The Council president added, "In ignoring these options, the Administration has continued to decide in favor of unreasonable regulations and inflation."

Mann pointed out that the President's Council on Wage and Price Stability raised questions on the standard's inflationary impact. It stated at least another $125 million in annual costs could be saved through medical surveillance and work practices with apparently little loss in health protection.

"OSHA contends the final standard has already been modified from its original $2.7 billion capital cost to a $625 million level. However, our industry specialists believe the OSHA estimate is grossly understated," the Council president said.

He explained that OSHA's contractor, Research Triangle Institute, had found capital costs of more than $1 billion to reach a 0.2 mg-m3 exposure limit in yarn production areas only.

"The estimated cost was expressed in 1974 dollars. If you adjust for the more than 30 percent increase in machinery prices since then and include estimated costs for sectors other than yarn manufacturing, it is evident that the true cost of the standard approximates $1.7 billion," Mann stated. "This is three times the figure OSHA cites for the standard's cost."

He said the industry had made recommendations which, if followed, would protect workers at about one-sixth of the cost of OSHA's final standard. He added the industry approach embodies the principles of the President's Executive Order directing regulatory agencies to consider inflationary impact in its rule-making.

Tracing the industry's concern about the standard's inflationary potential, Mann said the Council filed a statement in June, 1977, stressing OSHA was irresponsible in stating on opening day of the hearings that it would ignore costs or inflationary impact.

In its post-hearing comments, the Council stated the proposed standard would be inflationary, Mann stated. He added the industry's concern also was stressed in letters and meetings with Administration officials during recent weeks.

Mann explained that finding a solution to the cotton dust problem has been a top priority of industry since 1971. He said the industry is cooperating with NIOSH in research to see if the problem exists in gins, oil mills, and other sectors.

At the same time, he explained, other research has been greatly expanded.

"Between 1971 and 1976 Cotton Incorporated has spent more than $5 million on research to find answers, and its current budget is over $1.6 million," Mann said.

"I want to emphasize that the cotton industry fully supports the need to protect worker safety and health," the Council president stated.

"At the same time, the industry is appealing for a regulatory approach that will protect workers yet avoid excessive inflation and allow an essential industry to survive," Mann said.

Trissell Constructs Waterways

J.D. Trissell recently constructed 6.0 acres of grassed waterway. The waterways were installed for terrace outlets. The shaping and sprigging were completed April 6.

The waterways are located on FM 909 three miles south of Clarksville. They are shaped with a bulldozer to a parobolic bottom. "I can cross the waterway with equipment", Trissell stated as he looked down the waterways.

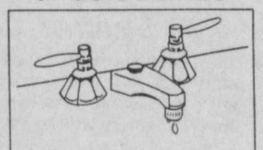

Construction will begin on the terraces as soon as the soybeans are harvested this fall. A total of 23,405 feet of terraces will empty into these waterways. Waterways are normally about from one to two feet deep. With this much depth the channels of the terraces can drain, without ponding water.

Trissell contacted the Soil Conservation Service for help on his waterways. Technicians grid-mapped his field and found that the waterways could be constructed in a wet area in the field, and all terraces could be paralel and evenly spaced.

The ASCS office furnished cost-share assistance on building the waterways. This is one of the practices that the ASCs pays 75 percent of average cost. Trissell plans to get ASCS cost-share on the terraces he constructs this fall.

Waterways should be shaped and sodded now, if farmers are planning to install paralel terraces this fall. The soil Conservation Service will provide assistance on design, layout and check the practice for completion.

Depending on type, your toilet uses three to seven gallons of water per flushing. Less frequent flushing — or, water saving devices — in the toilet can help reduce your water bill. Also, check faucets for drips. A mere 60 drips a minute can waste up to 2,200 gallons of water per year.

Farm Pond Tragedies Are Preventable

Farm ponds provide Texans with many enjoyable hours of recreation, but they can also be hazardous, says a safety engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"In the last 10 years, more than 325 rural Texans have suffered fatal drowning accidents, the majority of these occurring in farm ponds," points out Dr. Gary S. Nelson.

The engineer adds that most drowning victims never intended to go into the water; they slipped and fell off the bank or out of a boat.

"To begin with, a first safety practice for non-swimmers wading at the pond's edge or going out in a boat is to wear a life vest," cautions Nelson.

The safety engineer also suggests keeping the following items near your pond: a 12-foot cane pole, painted white, with friction tape protecting the sharp tip; a capped gallon plastic jug buoy containing one inch of water inside (to add weight for throwing), attached to 40 feet of weatherproof rope, with a short stick tied on the loose end of the rope so it won't slip through your hands on a throw.

"You can 'fish out' distressed swimmers near the water's edge with the cane pole, or throw the jug or ring buoy if they are farther out," explains Nelson.

As far as the pond area is concerned, the Extension engineer advises roping off a safe area with a gradually sloping bottom, from shallow to deeper water, for swimming. Put up a sign indicating this safe swimming area. Signs labeling "drop offs" are good warning signs for danger. If the water is too shallow or stumpy for diving, warn would-be divers with signs. Swimmers are killed every year by diving headlong into shallow or stumpy water.

As a further precaution, Nelson suggests posting these rules by the pond: No swimming alone. Non-swimmers must wear life preservers. Never dive into stumpy or shallow water. Inspect swimming areas.

Department Of Treasury Strives To Stop Chainletters

The Department of the Treasury is aware that, despite its efforts--in association with the Postal Service, Federal Reserve Banks, issuing agents and others--to stop chain-letter activities involving the use of U.S. Savings Bonds--schemes continue to reappear, from time to time.

Chain-letter schemes, including those involving U.S. Savings Bonds--which use the mails to facilitate their purpose--are considered by the postal authorities as in violation of the Postal Lottery and Fraud laws. Such schemes are considered lotteries, because the question as to whether the chain will be broken is a matter of chance; it is also a matter of chance whether a participant will reap anything from his participation.

The fraud aspect enters into the schemes, because representations are made that the participants will, eventually, receive substantial rewards. In the usual case, however, the chain of gullible persons soon vanishes-- and there is no way by which a new participant can determine whether there is available a reservoir of interested persons sufficient to move his name to the top of the "list".

Take Care Of Potatoes

Fresh potatoes can be harvested any time for immediate consumption once the tubers are of sufficient size, says Gary Bomar, county agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

However, yield is reduced and storage quality is lowered by harvesting potatoes before tops begin to dry down. Potatoes harvested early (immature tubers) have thin skins which allow fairly rapid water loss, causing them to shrivel and become soft shortly after storage.

Once harvested, proper storage is important to maintain the quality of the fresh potatoes. Bomar suggests storing the potatoes in complete darkness in moist air at about 60 degrees F. for several weeks. Lower temperatures to 38-40 degrees F. for long term storage. Colder temperatures prevent sprouting while warmer temperatures encourage it. Whatever the storage temperature, keep potatoes in complete darkness. Exposure to light causes freshly dug potatoes to turn green and to develop an undesirable bitter flavor.

Digging potatoes at the right time and storing them properly can mean a supply of top quality potatoes for some time, adds Bomar.

Tomatoes Plagued By Diseases

The most widely grown vegetable in Texas gardens is the tomato. However, this popular vegetable is also subject to a number of diseases, notes Gary Bomar, county agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

The first disease problem that most homeowners face with tomatoes is damping off. Bomar advises planting in warm, well-drained soil and spraying with the fungicide Captan when the disease occurs.

Fusarium wilt is another common disease problem in tomatoes. The only control is the use of wilt resistant varieties. These include Spring Giant, Spring Set, Terrific, Better Boy, Big Set, Homestead Elite, Small Fry and Monte Gande. Small Fry is a cherry type tomato.

Root knobs nematodes also attack tomatoes, notes Bomar. Resistant verieties are the most effective means of reducing losses to these microscopic pests. Such varieties include Nematex, Terrific, Big Set, Better Boy and Small Fry.

Fruit decay may also set in as tomatoes near maturity. The most effective control of this condition is to use a cage or mulch of some type to keep fruit from touching the soil. Foliar fungicides will also aid in controlling various fruit rots.

Blossom end rot is another condition that occurs often, the result of improper watering or lack of uniform moisture conditions. This is identified by a brown to black area on the bottom of the fruit.

As is readily evident, a great deal of time and effort are required to produce beautiful, delicious tomatoes, notes Gary Bomar, with particular attention needed to control of diseases.

Bargains

If you can buy chicken breasts for less than 50 per cent more per pound than whole broiler-fryers, then the breasts are a better buy. Packages of legs and thighs can cost up to one-third more per pound and still be a better bargain.

Dear Bob,

One of the duties of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars is to see that our flag is never desecrated, and to teach the children of our land what this means.

Are we teaching them this when adults are allowed to burn their trash and throw cans close to our Memorial Park, and an open fire so that it mars the appearance, we feel there is no excuse for this. There is a burn pen behind the bank which is placed on concrete away from the eyes of travelers, and is safe. The City picks up cans when bagged and set out.

We have spent lots of time and money having our Park landscaped to show honor to our dead. They died for all of us, so lets keep their memory and their park clean.
