Roswell Gives Portales Stars Another Loss

2-1 Score Indicates Closeness of Game

Roswell's baseball nine handed Portales another defeat last Sunday when Portales drove down to the valley town for a pre-season game, by a score of 2 to 1.

Nothing and nothing was the score up to the fifth inning, when Wallace, Portales left fielder, stepped to the plate and clouted one for a three base hit with one man out. Vinyard hit a single and scored Wallace, giving Portales their only score.

Keith, second baseman for the Roswell team, the first man to bat in the beginning of the sixth, was hit and allowed to take a base. Harp walked the next man. Keith scored on an outfield fly. Two errors and hitting the batter allowed Roswell to score their second run in the seventh.

Harp allowed three hits, walked one man, hit three, and four men were allowed on bases by errors. Both sides were equal, with ten strikeouts a-piece. Portales boys collected six scattering hits, with two on base by error.

Two of the Portales men advanced to third base in the ninth inning and Burkett was called out at the home plate. Angley was left on third, with Ridings and Wallace and first and second.

Showers Relieve Thirsty Land Wednesday—Farmers to Plant

Clouds Indicate Rain Is General

Wednesday clouds covered the skies over Roosevelt county in the forenoon and in Portales at 2:30 p. m. the rain began falling.

Heavy clouds hung in the west and southwest in the forenoon, but were scattered by wind and dust storms.

In the afternoon black clouds formed in the north and east, indicating that a good rain was falling in that portion of the county.

Floyd reported a good rain on Wednesday morning.

In Portales there was a downpour, accompanied by hail, from 2:30 to 3 p. m., and indications were that it would continue into the night.

At the time of going to press the News was unable to learn the extent of the rainfall.

The entire state has been suffering from a severe drouth, and the planting of crops has been delayed.

Rain coming at this time will enable many farmers to get in most of their acreage, but the crop will be cut short many acres.

The dust storm of Monday seriously damaged the growing beans and the tomato plants, requiring replanting in many sections of the valley.

McAdoo Well Drilling Again Below 5,860 Ft.

Landowners Oil company No. 1 State, Sec. 16, 1 South, Range 27 East, in southeastern DeBaca county, the deepest test now drilling in east central New Mexico, has reached a critical stage, and soon should either open up the anticipated pay horizons of the upper carboniferous, or will have to drill ahead for perhaps another thousand feet, if the backers hope to get oil in the lower carboniferous.

According to a report received from Fort Sumner on May 15, they had resumed work following the return of Alfred H. McAdoo from the Pacific coast on May 12.

The upper Magdalena limes were cut at 4,060 feet. The second subdivision of the Magdalena was cut at 4,850 feet. The hole is now bottomed at 5,860 feet.

The McAdoo well still has a good chance, in the opinion of Dr. Harold Evans Elliott, noted geologist and petroleum technologist, who is keeping close tabs on the cuttings as they come from the bailer.

His contention is that there is 170 feet of the Magdalena limes formation below present bottom of this hole. Then his stratagraphical column calls for at least 900 feet of the Mississippian limes, which form the lower carboniferous age, below the Magdalena of the Pennsylvanian series. Then come the schists overlying the granites.—N. M. Oil News.

Milton Speaks to Graduating Class at H. S.

Miss Wheeler and Jack Carr Perform

In a short but very splendid address, H. M. Milton of State College admonished the young people of the Portales graduating class to look beyond the chaotic condition of the present and realize the future holds for them a responsibility. To accept this trust successfully it is necessary for the young people to be properly prepared.

Mr. Milton hoped all members of the class would make a special effort to advance their education beyond their high school diplomas.

The seating capacity of the high school auditorium was taxed by the hundreds of friends who had gathered to witness the graduating program.

The seniors were preceded down the center aisle by Mr. Milton, members of the Portales school board, and the superintendent and principals of the local schools.

The seniors were directed to their locations by the young men and women of the junior class, with Collin Hilliard, president of the juniors, and J. V. Bostick, president of the senior class, leading the line with Mrs. Ernest Pogue at the piano.

The special musical numbers consisted of a vocal solo by Miss Edith Wheeler, a senior of last year, and a violin solo by Jack Carr, a member of this year's graduating class. Jack was accompanied by his sister, Miss Ruth, and Miss Edith by Mrs. A. W. Freeman.

C. M. Compton, president of the school board, presented the diplomas as the young people passed across the stage.

F. D. Golden, superintendent of the high school, presented Miss Louisa Heitzman, valedictorian of the class, and Miss Pauline Stewart, class salutatorian. He presented to Miss Annie Maud Hunter the New Mexico University medal for hte best all round student of the graduating class.

Before the benediction by Rev. C. A. Lorts, Mr. Golden expressed regret at losing the senior class from the institution, for the years' work with these students had been most pleasant, the association had been the happiest he had ever enjoyed in his school life, and it was with great pride that he saw them receive their diplomas, yet he was saddened at telling them good-bye as students of the Portales high school.

Misses Lois, Ruby and Jewel [illegible] rendered two musical selections.

After the judges had announced their decision Miss Hollis was presented the medal by Rev. J. Griffin Chapman.

The judges were Mr. and Mrs. Don Foster and Ray Lofton, all of the faculty of the Floyd high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Payne are planning to leave the first of the week for Fort Worth to get Mrs. Payne's mother, Mrs. Hill, and her sister Charles, who will spend the [illegible] in Portales. Mrs. A. W. Freeman will accompany the Paynes and visit in Fort Worth with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Thurman Harris.

"Poppy Day" in Portales Saturday

Saturday, May 27, will be "Poppy day" in Portales.

The poppies are made by disabled veterans of the late World war and will be sold by members of the American Legion Auxiliary.

"Poppy day" is an annual event and the money derived from the sale will be used for the aid of the veterans who need relief.

Buy a poppy and wear it all day Saturday.

Miss Loreta McCarty, who was critically ill with a severe heart attack several days last week, is sufficiently recovered to again attend to her duties as secretary of the Portales Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bonner motored to Fort Sumner Sunday and spent the day with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Bonner, on the Bonner ranch.

Eagle Nest Lake Fishermen's Joy

Last Saturday the News editor and wife drove to Roy, where they were the guests of Editor K. F. Guthmann and wife.

Sunday morning the party drove to Eagle Nest lake, where they enjoyed the annual fish fry put on by the T. D. Neal Mercantile company of Therma.

Eagle Nest lake is in a mountain valley on the Springer Land and Cattle company's ranch. This lake is alive with fish, bass trout, and mountain mullet, commonly called suckers.

At this season of the year the trout and mullet go up the streams which feed the lake to spawn. Fish traps are placed in all streams leading from the lake with fish ladders, which allow the bass and trout to pass over, but the mullet are held back.

To rid the waters of these fish, they are seined out, and once a year at the opening of the fishing season this firm dresses tons of fish, and give them to the visitors, with coffee and buns.

Sunday there were around a thousand cars present, representing many states. The writer noticed New Jersey, New York and Michigan tags.

After securing the fish many visitors go up some of the many canyons in the vicinity to fry them.

On the way to the lake the News party drove through the scenic canyon of the Cimarron, which is one of the most beautiful spots in New Mexico.

Cimarron is an old historic village and the St. James hotel, which was erected in 1880, still has the old bar in the lobby. This bar appears to be of solid mahogany, with fine French mirrors and the historic brass rails. The hotel contains fotry rooms, which are still furnished with antique furniture.

In the early days this village was one of the colorful spots of the wild and woolly west, and many books of fiction have it for a setting.

On the streams feeding the lake at Eagle Nest it was an interesting sight to see boys lying on the ground, reaching into the waters near the banks, and throwing out fish with their hands.

After securing the fish, the party drove twelve miles to the old historic Red River City. This is one of the ghost towns of the west, and is reported to have had a population of 10,000 people in 1860, with twenty-nine saloons and gambling houses. It still retains a relic of the past in a gambling house, where the roulette wheel, the dice table and blackjack games are still in operation. Its population at present is around twenty, except in the tourist season, when hundreds of tourists are accommodated in modern electrically lighted cabins and hotels. This was a great mining town, and at the time of the Civil war millions in gold was taken out of the mines. Scattered along the canyon are relics of heavy mining machinery, weighing tons, which were freighted in by ox teams.

On entering the city of Red river one passes over the Red River hill, the top of which has an altitude of nearly 10,000 feet. The road is narrow but good, and winds down the mountain side.

Looking over the bluff by the side of the road, one sees a sheer drop of 2,200 feet. This is just across the mountain from Taos, and is considered one of the grandest views in the entire nation. Good roads have been built into this section, and it is accessible to tourists who are able to make the drive without going over the bluff.

The mountain sides are honeycombed with mine shafts, and there are still a number of persons who make their livelihood by panning gold.

Before reaching Red River one passes through Elizabethtown, where great mining dredges, now abandoned, line the road. These dredges were floated along the stream, scooping up the sand and gravel in immense buckets, and passing it through a washing machine at the top, where the gold was washed out.

Even to the uninitiated it is apparent that, with such crude machinery as was used in the sixties, much gold was lost, and it is here that the panners of today work, finding small amounts for their labor.

In every village one is impressed by the size of the cemeteries, where many who died with their boots on have their last resting places.

Mr. and Mrs. Guthman were ideal hosts and spared no efforts to show the News editor and wife the spots of interest in this section.

Returning home Monday morning a full fledged sand storm was blowing, and for hours the road was not visible over a car length ahead.

The trip was made by way of San Jon and Logan, and from Grady to Mesquero the grass was as dry as in the dead of winter.

The wheat is practically a failure through Curry, Quay and Harding counties, and the farmers are facing deplorable conditions.

In the mountain section the money crop is the tourist, and that crop is beginning to roll in.

Reynolds Held on Charge of Murder

Robert E. Reynolds of Cedarville is being held under a $10,000 bond on the charge of murdering his wife, Jimmie Ruth Parks Reynolds, daughter of George H. Parks of Rogers, on the afternoon of June 4, according to reports received from Estancia, N. M.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death at the time of the shooting, but the girl's father, G. H. Parks, of the Rogers community was not satisfied with the reported circumstances, and filed the charges against Reynolds.

Last Saturday a doctor from Corona, a doctor and an officer from Estancia, came to Portales and, with Dr. Hensley, went to the Longs cemetery, where the body of Mrs. Parks was exhumed and the bullets causing the death located in the body.

It is reported the doctor attending Mrs. Reynolds had said the gun shot made only a flesh wound.

Mr. Parks called Dr. Hensley to examine the body of his daughter after she had been brought to Roosevelt county for burial.

Sheriff's Force Captures Robbers

Sheriff Bond received a telephone call Friday night at 12 o'clock from D. H. Smith telling him that he thought somebody was stealing something, as they were loading some unknown object into a truck.

Bond immediately set out after the alleged thieves and had them captured by 2 o'clock. He overtook them between Delphos and Elida.

Two Clovis boys later admitted taking the things. A trailer was stolen from John Skinner, a lawn mower from Dr. Wollard's residence, and a bicycle.

Tuesday afternoon officers had not discovered who the bicycle belonged to.

Portales Junior Hi Graduates Big Class

Almost a hundred girls and boys of the Portales Junior Hi school marched into the high school auditorium to occupy a section reserved for them and receive diplomas which will admit them into the high school next September, when the commencement exercises were held last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Ernest Pogue at the piano rendered the music for the processional.

The special musical numbers consisted of a chorus by four boys and four girls from the junior high school and an instrumental ensemble. The members of this were Mardell Scott, Norma Lee Chamberlain and Sarah Lucille White, with saxophones; Bennie Compton with a baritone horn; Wayne Gunn with a clarinet, and Leon Dick with a cornet.

R. L. Allen gave the commencement address.

F. D. Golden presented the diplomas and K. E. Livingston made the awards of attendance certificates to those students who have been neither absent nor tardy during the school year.

Lois Powers, valedictorian of the class, and Doris Lee and Ina Faye Lindsey, who tied for the salutatorian honors, were introduced by Mr. Livingston.

Those pupils receiving perfect attendance certificates were:

Mary Jane Taylor, Margaret Copeland, Alice Betts, Elbert Allen, Virginia Tyson, Ora Elizabeth Brown, Harley Bateman, Ella Pearl Starkey, Nettie Bill Batton, Wynema Whitcomb, Jane Mauk, Helen Kiker, Christine Lovorn and J. B. Naylor.

Miss Ottilie Schlapp, the county health nurse, is leaving about June 1 for a summer vacation with relatives at the old home in Iowa.

Home Owners, Here's How U. S. Helps You With That Mortgage

If you own a $15,000 home with a $10,000 mortgage on it, this is the way you would go about getting relief under the administration bill approved Saturday by a senate subcommittee, says an Associated Press dispatch from Washington.

Although the bill is still subject to change, the procedure will be about the same in its final form.

You, or the holder of your mortgage, may approach a government agency to be created under the bill, known as the Home Owners' Loan corporation, and ask for refinancing.

If you are paying 6½ per cent interest on your mortgage, but are unable to continue, the holder of it may agree to accept bonds issued by the corporation in exchange for the obligation.

He would only get 4 per cent interest, but it would be guaranteed by the government and would be tax exempt. In return for the sure interest payments and tax exemption, he might agree to accept $9,000 in bonds for the $10,000 mortgage.

In either case, you would agree to repay the government corporation over a fixed period of years at 5 per cent interest.

In addition, the government would advance you cash for taxes and repairs, if necessary, which would be added to your debt, provided total obligation did not exceed 80 per cent of the appraised value of your home.

If you are out of a job and temporarily unable to pay anything, the corporation could give you a three year postponement.

Under these circumstances, in addition to any moratorium and any reduction in total agreed to by the holder of your mortgage, your annual interest payments would be reduced from $650 a year to $500.

If you own a $15,000 home and have worked the mortgage down to say $5,000, but are now out of a job and can not pay on that, the bill has a further provision to help you.

In this case the holder of your mortgage would probably not exchange it for bonds, because your home is such good security that he would rather foreclose.

To prevent this, the corporation could extend to you cash up to 40 or 50 per cent of the value of your home to pay off your debtor. You would turn the mortgage over to the corporation for security.

Instead of foreclosing immediately, the corporation then would give you time to get on your feet.

Portales Remains Accredited School

F. D. Golden, superintendent of the Portales high school, has been notified that this school has been accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools for the school year of 1933-1934.

This association is an accrediting agency comprising twenty states, and before any school can be considered eligible it must be on the highest standards, thus assuring to its graduates entrance into colleges and universities without entrance examinations and recognition in these higher institutions as students with a well grounded high school foundation.

Mr. and Mrs. George Ison and two sons and Donald T. Tucker of Mangum, Okla., were visiting with Charles Ison and family over the week end.

Highway Work to Be Finished Here This Week

Oiling and surfacing the Clovis-Portales highway, which has been under construction for over six months, will be completed this week if the weather is favorable.

The New Mexico Construction company, which has the contract for the road work, resumed operations about three weeks ago, after deserting the job in January, when snows and rains prevented the completion.

The old highway has been used part of the time for traffic during the recent completion, until the ridge of sand and oil was transferred from the side to the middle of the road allowing only one-way driving.

Mrs. George L. Batton, Mrs. Earl Brown and son, Earl Jr., all of El Paso, Tex., and Mrs. George McFadden, with her son, George III, from Roswell, are in Portales visiting in the home of their kinspeople, Mr. and Mrs. Sam G. Batton.

Friends in Portales have been informed of the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Smith of Fort Sumner. The little girl has been named Juneva. Mrs. Smith was Miss Pearl Simon before her marriage and lived here in Portales.

A reduction in the price is announced at the opening of the 1933 season.

Monday's Sand Storm Pronounced Worst One in State in Last 25 Years

Monday of this week all of eastern New Mexico suffered from one of the worst san dstorms in the history of the state. This storm covered the entire eastern portion of the state, and traffic was hindered to such an extent that very few cars were on the highways and those drove with lights burning.

The Canadian river bed was dry in the vicinity of Logan, and one could follow the course of the stream by the heavy cloud of sand rising from the river bed.

Tomatoes and other field crops in the Portales valley were severely damaged, and in many cases a replanting will be necessary.

From 8 a. m. until night the sky was filled with dust clouds, and the freshly plowed fields along the highways lost much of their soil.

Sheriff Bond's Men Arrest Horse Thief

Roosevelt county officers were notified the first of the week of a horse theft which occurred at Fort Sumner and were asked to assist in locating the thief.

Tuesday the man, with eight head of horses, was discovered near the Benson school house making his way into Texas. He was arrested and turned over to the DeBaca county officers, who took him to Fort Sumner Tuesday night.

The sheriff's office reported the alleged thief's name to be Mose Bussell.

A charge of $5 will be made for the outing.

Mr. Thorson has found it almost impossible to arrange for a two weeks camping period, but is planning to have the one week filled with things which will be of the greatest benefit and pleasure for the boys.

The local Scout masters will determine the number of boys from the Portales troops who will be able to attend camp, and these will be reported to Mr. Thorson.

SAVE THE TWO MILLION DOLLAR DEBENTURE BILL

Should the referendum on the $2,000,000 highway debenture bill carry, think of the loss to the Democratic state headquarters.

Two per cent of this amount assessed against those having jobs on the highways of the state, and a like assessment from material supply companies and contractors, will mean a loss of $40,000 to the headquarters. This loss will seriously handicap the highway machine in controlling the next election.

Will the peopple of New Mexico stand for this? Will they allow the highway-Democratic organization to be defeated for the lack of a measly $2,000,000?

If this is done, the army of highway employees will rise up in indignation and vote the Republican, the Socialist, the Jay Hawker, the Mud-Siller, or the fool killer ticket in the next election.

By all means this well oiled machinery should be kept in motion, and the public be d——.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS HOPE OF STATE

The hope of New Mexico is in the young Democrats. Both factions of the old line Democrats have proven dismal failures. The old line Republicans have been a dismal failure. There can be no hope expressed for the state from the Progressive party under its present set-up.

It is up to the young Democrats to thoroughly organize and discard all the older political leaders, or the party, so far as New Mexico is concerned, is a dead issue.

The News is sounding this warning now, before the campaign for 1934 begins. Should the News make this statement during a political campaign, it would be branded as disloyal to the party.

New Mexico is in a political muddle which, if not corrected, will retard the development of the state for several generations. The News was a loyal supporter of the party during the last campaign because it believed the nominees were in a position to give the people of New Mexico an efficient administration.

They have failed and, because the News condemns them, it is no less a Democrat than when it was fighting their political battles.

If the young Democrats fail in their duties to the state, the party will go down in an ignominious defeat.

THE SCHOOLS HAVE BORNE THE BRUNT

The schools of New Mexico have borne the brunt in the economic crisis. Here in Roosevelt county many teachers will recive as low as $350 for the coming year's work.

In the Portales schools the teachers have received a 20 per cent cut over last year, which, with the cut of the previous year, makes a reduction of around 35 per cent.

Yet the taxpayers are demanding a 50 per cent cut in valuations. If this cut is secured, not a school in Roosevelt county will be able to open its doors this fall.

Taxes are too high, and this fall the voters will be called upon to vote on a constitutional amendment limiting the tax levy for all purposes to 20 mills.

The News is favorable to this amendment, but if it carries it will be necessary to call a special session of the legislature to provide funds from other sources than real estate for the government to function.

A sales tax seems to be the only means. There is a strong opposition to a sales tax, as it will increase the cot of living for the poor man, but this can be arranged so as not to be burdensome.

The man of small means receives just as much benefit from the schools and from police protection as the man of wealth.

The News does not favor taking the tax off of the wealthy and placing it on the poor. A fair income tax can remedy this.

Now is the time to begin considering how the government will function if the constitutional amendment carries.

POST OFFICE HOARDING

Withdrawal of funds from local activities and depositing them in postal savings may be good as a "safety first" measure, but it is hoarding on a colossal scale.

The President's edict should also have closed the deposit windows in the post offices. What sense to scold people for hoarding and then encourage it in this way?

Originally this function of the government was to encourage savings. While it remained such the business at the local post office was almost nil. But with the depression, instead of "postal savings," it speedily became "postal hoardings."

Within a few months a vast amount, estimated at hundreds of thousands, has left this community via the post office. Certainly in this emergency the bars should be put up against this form of hoarding.

Indeed, it would help if the government would at once call for withdrawal of these hoardings in some form of currency that would have to go to work to be valid.—Daily Sentinel, Fairmont, Minn.

NOTHING FOR CHARITY

When our government was considering resumption of specie payment after the Civil war, Sherman is credited with saying, that the only way to resume is to resume. That applies now. Everywhere the prevalent thought seems to be, "What can I do to cut down? Whom can I fire?" And so on.

Commenting on the statement that "investment and employment are cheaper than charity," F. V. Keesling, attorney of San Francisco, says: "Unless there be continuous investment and employment, there will be nothing for charity."

There is an unfortunate attitude among the people. For instance, at the golf links the other day one of the members decried the fact that there were several men employed in planting trees. When he was told that it seemed to be a highly desirable thing under the conditions, so long as the club could afford it, a clearer vision gave him a proper reaction.

You can't pile up public debts, inerease taxes, discourage industry and create unemployment without destroying the capital and earning power of the nation.

This destructive process has been going on for three years. No good fairy is coming out of the clouds and create employment. The people are going to have to create it for themselves. The good fairy will be their own desire to do something.

Every day that those of us who can afford to, delay in furnishing employment for needed and necessary work, our national wealth is reduced, taxes are increased for charitable enterprises, and the day draws nearer when there will be nothing left to give for charity, and government itself will face bankruptcy through inability to collect taxes.

There are millions of individuals and industries whose premises are sadly in need of repairs. The time to do that work is now. Delay is expensive "economizing."—Review, Santa Paula, Cal.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY OF NEW MEXICO BUSTED

The Democratic party of New Mexico is evidently busted, as it so far has been unable to pay its advertising bills for the campaign last fall.

One would think that, with the 2 per cent collected from all state employees, it would have had sufficient money to take care of the small advertising bills placed with the Democratic papers of the state.

The News is one paper which has never received a thin dime on this advertising account, nor has it been able to get a reply to any letter to the state Democratic headquarters in regard to the bill. The Kingfiish has not even so much as informed the News that he has not forgotten the bill.

The Democratic party, so far as the state of New Mexico is concerned, is dead, and unless it is buried soon the state health officers should look into it.

JUST PLAIN BRIBERY

Last night the leading spokesmen for the Seligman administration started a drive in Albuquerque to rescue the highway debentures and oil severance tax laws from the wrath of incensed citizens now militantly intent upon suspending both and at least four other recently enacted statutes.

Prison Warden E. B. Swope, administration adviser and dictator to the Eleventh state legislature, which proved the most disastrous failure in state history, is starting the campaign against the referenda now being circulated and enthusiastically recived by the voters. Warden Swope displayed no apparent ability as an intelligent legal adviser or director of the legislature, but he seems impressed with the obvious neeessity of marshalling his political forces in Bernalillo county to stop the revolt of irate taxpayers, at least to the extent of ehecking wholesale suspension of legislative acts by referendum action.

His appeal is supported by that of Pete L. Rapkoch, Cuttingite member of the state highway commission. With tearful argument Commissioner Rapkoch calls upon the public to rescue the road building program of the state by refraining from signing the referendum on the issuance of $2,000,000 in highway debentures. He says the system will collapse and all available income of the department will be necessarily diverted to maintenance of the existing federal aid highways of the state if the debentures are not kept available for sale. As a particular inducement to Albuquerque and Bernalillo residents to refrain from signing the debentures, the commissioner suggests with an open implication of promise that the concrete highway from Algodones to Albuquerque should be widened for four-car traffic. The probable cost of that project alone would require diversion of practically all new federal aid money alloted to the state, and other sections of New Mexico would be left without new road projects. The present state highway commission has given Bernalillo more than the lion's share of federal aid money. It has authorized and insisted upon a new concrete highway extension toward Tijeras canyon, to connect with the Santa Rosa-Moriarty cut-off, for diversion of U. S. Highway 66 traffic.

Commissioner Rapkoch knows that if Bernalillo county people can be dissuaded from signing the debenture referendum there will be considerable difficulty in securing the required number of signatures over the rest of the state. Both he and Warden Swope are now starting a canvass of the state at state expense, riding in state conveyances and collecting expense accounts from the state to call out the pro-Seligman political gangs for war against the referenda.

It is doubtful that the bribe of new roads or expensive improvements of old roads in Bernalillo county will stop the wave of resentment against burdensome laws enacted by the last state legislature. However, the public should be prepared to meet this new highwayman-bludgeoning campaign with determination for self-protection and not reliance upon vicarious political promises.—Las Vegas Optic.

PRICE RAISING UNDER NEW FARM RELIEF ACT

Increasing the purchasing power of farmers is the declared purpose of the new farm act. Several methods of bringing about an increase in rural buying power are provided for. Just what will be done this season and to what extent the act will aply to New Mexico will be determined immediately in hearings called by the secretary of agriculture, Henry A. Wallace. Wheat and cotton are the two basic crops named in th eact that are of most importance in New Mexico. Corn, hogs and milk and its products are also included.

The act is intended as more than farm relief—it is national relief. Farmers will buy the products of industry when they have more money. That is why the act bears the title, "To relieve the existing national economic emergency by increasnig agricultural purchasing power.' Farmers' purchasing power is low, compared to that of other groups, largely because they have, ever since the World war, produced more goods than they could sell at a fair price.

The alternative methods made possible by the act are:

1. The secretary of agriculture may arrange with individual farmers to reduce their acreage of production by a specified amount, and to compensate them either by paying rentals or by making direct benefit payments. This would be immediate relief, with only the participating producers receiving the benefits.

2. By entering into marketing agreements with processors and others to reduce wasteful and price-depressing competition, excessive handling charges, and so on, the secretary may bring about better prices to farmers.

3. Cotton growers who reduce thei racreage at least 30 per cent can be given an option contract for an equivalent amount of cotton, from stocks now owned by the federal government—more than two million bales. If cotton prices rise, the grower may have his optioned cotton sold, and take the profit. In no case would the grower be liable for losses incurred in holding this cotton. This plan may be used either alone, or in conjunction with rental or othe rbenefits for land taken out of cultivation.

Revenue

Funds to pay rental and benefit payments would come initially from the federal treasury. Subsequently, they would be derived from an adjustment tax levied on the first processing of the basic commodity.

The basic commodities named in the act are wheat, cotton, hogs, fiel dcorn, rice, tobacco and milk and its products; but the secretary may exclude from the operation of the act any of these commodities if its inclusion would not further the purpose of the act.

Farm Debt Relief

Refinancing of farm debts at lower rates of inteerst is also provided for. Farmers inteersted in this phase of the ac tshould get in touch with the nearest federal land bank, local Farm Loan association, or county extension agent.

Roswell Merchants Store Hours

Roswell drygoods and clothing merchants last night voted to open their places of business, beginning June 15, at 8:30 o'clock and to close at 5:30 o'clock on week days and to open from 8:30 o'clock until 7 o'clock on Saturdays.

Not all Roswell clothiers and drygoods dealers in Roswell present at this meeting last night agreed to this schedule, but this arrangement was reached under a majority vote. A number of the drygoods and clothing stores in the city were not represented at the conference.

Hunter Acts as Chairman

At the meeting last night which was called to discuss the provisions of the new eight hour law which becomes effective June 15, Logan Hunter was elected chairman and George B. Owens, secretary.

Operators of grocery stores met Tuesday night to discuss the same proposition, but no definite decision was reached, it being determined to invite Ralph Davy to Roswell to explain various provisions of the law at a merchant mass meeting.

The new law as explained last night has no application to farm labor and Saturday is not to an emergency occasion which will permit extra work.

Explains 'Employer

Ralph Davy, state labor commissioner who is charged with the enforcement of this law, announced at Alburquerque yesterday that any person employing other persons in the capicity of employer but who receives salary from the company for which he is manager will come within the provisions of the state eight hour law.

An employer, Davy told the Associated Press, who owns the business and who receives no salary for his efforts but who does receive what profits may be derived from the operation of the business would not be subject to the law.

May Open Sunday

In answer to the question of whether the law effects Sunday labor, the labor commisioner said the law reqquires that no person shall be worked more than 48 hours in any week of six days or more than eight hours in any given day.

Davy said he intended to enforce the law as it was passed until such time as the supreme court sees fit to declare it void becuase of constitutionly or wording.

CAUSEY ITEMS

A nice rain fell here last Saturday night. Farmers are singing to the old mules, "Hay, oats and corn; pick up your feet and jog along."

Monday was a day typical of the west. It reminds old timers that we still live in the west.

Mrs. H. E. Rickard has been under the care of a doctor the last few days, but is reported better at this time.

Mrs. Cross and Mrs. Caviness made a business trip to Levelland, Tex., last Monday.

There is a new bachelor on the Lewis & Rogers ranch, two miles west of Causey.

Last Saturday was a big day at Causey. W. D. Hudson, one of the merchants, served free ice cream.

Rev. Coleburn from Roswell, a Seventh Day Adventist preacher, has been doing some real preaching at Causey for the last twenty nights. This man is a clean, fair-minded preacher. He preached from the Bible and did not fight other people. He still lives in the minds of some of the good people around Causey. He is not gone, but will return. He does not believe in debating, does not believe in fighting over church amity, but will meet any man with the Bible.

Mrs. Lee Seefeld has been on the sick list but is better now.

The Causey ball players were playing a game with another team the other day. A visitor asked Doc Terrill, one of the Causey players, "How does the game stand?" Doc replied, "18 and 0." The visitor said, "Getting beat, aren't you?" Doc answered, "No, the Causey boys have not been to bat yet."

E. Rickard says believe it or not, he guesses he ii the best blacksmith in Causey.

If you get sick, Causey has the medicine man; if you get hungry, Causey has the grocery man; if you get hot and tired, Causey has the cooling refreshments. Causey does need a barber an Saturdays. Will some one please send a barber to Causey?

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Wright have rented an apartment in the Wollard duplex and will be located there during the summer. During the winter they have an apartment at the drug store.

Forest Corps Men Live Simple Life

Albuquerque, N. M., May 18 AP —There are no "taps" or "reveille" at the Sulpher Springs civilian conservation corps camp, 35 miles east of here, but that doesn't keep the boys from turning in early at night and rising at 6 every moorning.

"There is nothing militaristic about the camp," Capt. L. J. Whitlock, commander of the camp said. "The only reason army officers are present is to serve as business managers of the camp. We have no bugle calls nor drills The boys are free to go and come as they please. My only duty is to manage the camp and see that they get the proper food and care."

While some 70 C. C. C. men are out with the forest service men working on the Sandia mountain loop drive, the balance of the camp contingent is busy at work erecting camp buildings. A store house, kitchen and shower bath are the only permanent buildings being erected.

QUARTERED IN TENTS

The men are housed in eight army hospital tents, 24 to a tent. The officers have their quarters in regular officers' tents. At present the kitchen is located in a tent. A mess tent will be erected and tables will be set up as soon as the kitchen is completed.

However it's cafeteria style at meal time and each man ines up in front of the kitchen tent with his mess gear. The men are receiving the regular army rations which are sent to the camp from Fort Bliss twice a week, even the bread is baked in Fort Bliss and shipped to the camp.

The camp is supplied with water piped from two springs and arrangements are being made for electric lights as soon as the camp is completed. A forest service telephone connects it with the outside world.

START AT 6 A. M.

The men when enrolled are given a complete toilet outfit, a suit of O. D. or khaki uniform, blue overalls suits, a pair of shoes and six pair of soxx.

The day starts at 6 a. m. with roll call to determine if any of the corps are sick, then comes breakfast at 7 o'clock, and the forest service trucks arrive to take the men to work at 7:30. The work day closes at 4:30 in the afternoon and supper is served at 5.

Capt. Whitlock said at present the camp has no recreational equipment but hopes to have soon.

EARLY TO BED

As for getting the men to bed at night without taps so far there has been little trouble as most of them are ready to call it a day by 9:30. In the morning a whistle blown by one of the army men in charge starts the day off.

Approximately 65 per cent of the 155 men stationed at the camp are Spanish-speaking. All of the C. C. C. 'at this camp are from New Mexico.

There has been no "slakers" and all of the men reported they were receiving excellent treatment and food. Leave is granted over the week-ends to those who want to go to their homes.

While outside the camp at work the men are under the supervision of John Adams, forestry supervisor .

Mrs. C. B. Billingsley of Stanford, Tex., is in the city, a guest in the homes of her sisters, Mrs. Durwood Wright and Mrs. W. I. McCarty.

E. P. Compton and Brode McAlister have given up their apartment in the Miller duplex at the corner of Kansas and Union streets and during the summer will spend much of the time out of Portales.

Mrs. Ted Forbes left this week with her cousin, Janie V. Hamons, for Abilene, Tex., where Mrs. Forbes will visit for a while in the Hamons home.

Miss Bess Dohoney is recovering rapidly from the operation for the removal of her tonsils. Miss Bess has been ill since an attack of the flu last winter and her friends are hoping she will soon be entirely recovered.

Farm Notes

F. E. Ming, who has been principal of the Richland school for the last several years, is teaching at Porter in Quay county next term. Mr. Ming has made a good record in Roosevelt county and many of the school men will regret to see him leave the county.

C. C. Anderson says he has quit keeping up with the net income from his cows since the cream checks have been larger, and has delegated that duty to his wife.

E. G. Givens of the Rogers community was marketing hogs in Portales Saturday. e reports his cows are holding up remarkably well.

C. C. Price of the Red Lake community says that some of the farmers are planting, but the rain was too light to insure a stand.

There was a report about town Saturday afternoon that the price of cream was 21c in Clovis. But after the price was checked, it was found to be 18c. One farmer thought that he would have received more for his cream in Portales, considering his gas bill and the wear on his car.

Mrs. John Cox of Delphos was quite sick last week. Miss Lillie Thompson was staying at the Cox home helping care for Mrs. Cox.

D. H. Jones of Richland reports that the ground was wet down about 2½ inches below the surface on his farm.

S. S. Luttrell, who lives about ten miles south of Portales, was marketing his cream in Portales Saturday.

Walter Griffin of the Floyd community was marketing some nice hogs in Portales Saturday. They borught $3.90, but Walter says he lost 25c per hundredweight by not selling the day before.

A. G. Ross was selling his sweet potato seconds Saturday at 25c per crate. They were selling at a fair rate.

W. O. McCormack came from Missouri and was discussing the rain signs Saturday afternoon. He said that their sign back there was that if it did not rain the first three days of June they would have a heavy mass crop, but if it rained during that time the grain crop would be good.

Lindsay Haragan has put his dairy cows on his forty acres of wheat and barley and they are doing well on it. He stated that if it had rained two weeks ago it would have made good grain. He plans later either to plant it in sudan or cane, or prepare it for wheat again next fall.

W. W. Ratliff says his cows are doing as well as he thinks they should. He has fed them a lot of the cheap grain during the winter and some of them are fat enough for beef. This care is showing up on his cream checks at this time, he thinks.

Robert L. Little of the Bethel community planted his tomatoes in the field. It is not known how they are standing the severe winds o fthis week. His potatoes are doing well.

J. W. Bowie, who purchased the J. W. Key place, is planting his crop.

Frank Greathouse of Rogers reported Saturday that there was some rain in his community, but not enough to insure a stand of planting.

Bruce Lackey is knifing his listed ridges to get rid of the weed crop. He had not started his planter the first of the week.

J. F. Foster of the Bethel community stated Saturday that he planned to try some cotton if he got rain within the next four or fiv edays.

H. Hill of the Arch community reports his cattle are doing fine considering the drought. He has had enough rain to start the grass the first of the week, but unless more rain comes soon the grass would stop growing.

Cecil Smith of Bluit said that he only had enough moisture to start the grass and do some planting.

RELATIVE INJURED IN WRECK

Mrs. J. Griffin Chapman has learned that last Wednesday her cousin, Dr. W. J. McGlothlin of Greenville, S. C., was injured and his wife killed when their car was demolished in a collision with another car on Kings Mountain, near Charlotte, S. C.

Dr. McGlothlin, president of Furman university, is president of the Southern Baptist convention, and was en route to Washington, D. C., for the annual meeting of the organization.

Dr. McGlothlin's mother and Mrs. Chapman's father were sister and brother. Dr. McGlothlin also is an acquaintance of Miss Kate McManaway of Portales.

A late Associated Press dispatch reported the doctor's condition not serious.

Mr. and Mrs. U. V. Dobbs and their daughter arrived in Portales Friday evening from their home in Grant, Neb., and remained until Tuesday visiting in the home of Mr. Dobbs' mother, Mrs. C. M. Dobbs, and his sister, Mrs. F. T. Burke, and family.

Miss Rosalie Littlefield, one of the teachers in the Portales grade school, has returned to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Littlefield, in Elida for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Golden are planning to leave the last of the week for a visit with relatives in Texas. They plan to spend the greater portion of the summer here in Portales.

V. O. Roberts is one of the Roosevelt county farmers who had cream to sell Saturday.

J. E. Renni had a nice load of maize heads in Portales Saturday afternoon. The grain dealers had only offered him $10.

Henry Ford
Dearborn, Mich.

May 15, 1933

Time and again I am told——by my own organization and by others ——that I penalize myself by quality.

Friendly critics protest our putting into the Ford V-8 what they call "twenty-year steel." They say such quality is not necessary; the public does not expect it; and that the public does not know the difference anyway.

But I know the difference.

I know that the car a man sees is not the car he drives——he drives the car which the engineer sees. The car which is seen, comprises beauty of design, color and attractive accessories,——all desirable, of course. The best evidence that we think so is that they are all found on the Ford V-8.

But these are not the car. The car proper, which is the basis of all the rest, is the type of engine and its reliability; the structure of chassis and body, ruggedly durable; the long thought and experiment given to safety factors; the steady development of comfort, convenience and economy. These make the car.

A car can be built that will last two or three years. But we have never built one. We want the basic material of our car to be as dependable the day it is discarded as the day it is bought. Ford cars built 15 years ago are still on the road. It costs more to build a durable car——but two items we do not skimp are cost and conscience. A great many things could "get by"——the public would never know the difference. But we would know.

The new Ford V-8 is a car that I endorse without any hesitancy. I know what is in it. I trust our whole thirty years' reputation with it. It is even better than our previous V-8. It is larger, more rugged and mechanically a better job all round.

I readily say this in an advertisement because I know the car will back it up.

suppose. But little girls like pretty clothes. Will you let me take them shopping?"

Stephen agreed, in an absent-minded fashion, and presently changed the subject. But he did not forget what Natalie had said.

"Barbara," he said that evening, finding her alone in the library after the children had gone to bed, "wouldn't you like to go shopping? I thought you or Gay might need something. Dresses, slippers — something like that."

"I'm afraid we can't, Uncle Stephen."

"Why not?"

She flushed. "I—we haven't any money."

Stephen knew he had blundered. "I'd like to buy them for you," he said.

Her lashes lifted. She looked at him gravely.

"Oh, no," she said quickly. "Thank you very much. But we—I—I can't let you do that."

"Why not?"

"How could we ever pay you back?"

"Must you?" Stephen asked, liking her independence, wondering how he could buy her the clothes she needed without hurting her pride.

"Of course," she said, as though there could be no question at all about that. "But we are shabby, aren't we?" Her fingers touched the worn frock. "I don't want you to be ashamed of us."

"I'm not," Stephen said quickly, watching the pucker, soft as a wrinkle in silk, between her curving brows.

"You have reason to be," she decided, after an interval of thought. "Maybe we could pay you back. There'll be some money when they sell the Provincetown house."

"That's a good idea," Stephen agreed. "I'll present you with all of the bills."

"Promise?" she asked very gravely.

"I promise," he gravely agreed.

A day or two later he took them shopping, leaving the office at noon with no explanation, which caused Miss Finch to wonder more than ever what had happened to Mr. Drake.

Stephen wondered, too. The children, he thought, were discovering for him qualities which he did not know that he possessed. He was suddenly interested in hats and dresses and slippers, jealously wanting to do everything for Barbara's children himself as long as they were with him. He did it for her—the Barbara he had loved.

He was a little embarrassed, at first, by the suave saleswomen in the shop Natalie had recommended. But the embarrassment gradually merged into interest and pride. Gay was enchanting in the frocks which the saleswomen selected.

"We can't afford much for me," Barbara said when they had selected frocks for Gay and a coat with a squirrel collar and a cap banded with soft, dark fur.

"Try them on, anyway," Stephen suggested, seeing the wistful expression in her eyes.

They changed her amazingly, he thought. He had not realized the magic of pretty clothes. In these frocks, cunningly cut and fitted, she looked older—until he saw her eyes. Then she looked like a little girl dressing up.

"We can't," she protested when Stephen would have instructed the saleslady to send the enchanting frocks.

"One or two?" He smiled at her.

"One or two," she agreed, quickly returning the smile.

The saleslady displayed a short fur jacket the color of coffee with cream.

"Gracious!" Barbara exclaimed. "I can't buy fur coats, Uncle Stephen!"

"Try it on," he suggested.

She slipped her arms into the coat.

"Will you let me buy it for a present?" Stephen asked when the saleslady had disappeared in quest of other temptations.

"I can't, Uncle Stephen," she said. "You've done so much for us, I can't let you buy presents like this."

"Barbara," Stephen said, "do you know what a godfather is? He's a second father. Now, will you let me buy you the coat?"

"But you've done so much, Uncle Stephen."

"I like doing things for you," Stephen said gently. "It gives me a great deal of pleasure."

"Then I'd let him," Gay advised.

Barbara finally agreed.

"Thank you," she said, when they had decided that she should wear the coat. "I guess I have a frivolous disposition. I wish—" She paused and a wistful expression crept into her eyes. She wished

"I Like Doing Things for You," Stephen Said Gently.

Bruce could see her in the fur jacket with the muff and the soft little pull-on hat.

Stephen saw the wistful expression. He thought she wished that her father might see her. Or her mother, perhaps. Stephen, of course, knew nothing at all about Bruce.

That evening Barbara saw, for the first time, the painting which hung above the fireplace in Stephen's room.

"I wanted you to see me," she said, standing in the open door just before time for dinner. She wore one of the frocks they had selected that afternoon, a frock the color of a tea-rose, which fell to her ankles in graceful folds.

"You look very nice," Stephen said, feeling a strange disturbance in his heart.

And then she saw the painting; red rocks, blue sea, distant rust-colored sands, a girl with the wind blowing her skirt against her bare brown legs.

"Father did that!" she said, moving toward the fireplace.

"Yes," Stephen said.

"It's Mother." She stood looking up at the painting, her lashes misted with tears. "It isn't Mother's face exactly but the rest of it is."

"Yes," Stephen said again.

"She was lovely, wasn't she?"

"Very lovely." Was it memories of the Barbara he had loved, Stephen wondered, or was it the Barbara in the tea-rose frock that caused the strange disturbance in his heart? He saw her, standing there in the firelight, as he had not seen her before. She seemed, for a moment, a woman old enough to be loved as he had loved her mother.

Emily came to see Barbara and the children.

The visit was not entirely a success. She came one rainy Saturday afternoon and Henry took her directly up to the schoolroom. Stephen was there with the children. The room was in an uproar. They had been playing some sort of a noisy game. All of this, she thought, must be very upsetting to Stephen who liked quiet and order.

Stephen did not appear to be upset. "You're just in time," he said. "We're playing a very exciting game."

He had wanted Emily to see the children. He had thought that she would be friendly and gracious. She was—but with a difference. Her manner was playful and slightly condescending. She made the fatal error of calling them "Stephen's kiddies."

The children lost interest in the game. They were reserved and very polite. It was apparent that they did not intend to include Emily in the happy intimacy which Stephen shared. Stephen had wanted Emily to see the children at their best. They could be very appealing. Now they looked like bored little puppets whose strings weren't working well.

Barbara joined them, presently.

"This is Barbara," Stephen said, thinking how pretty she looked.

"How do you do, Miss Trent," Barbara said, poised and self-possessed. "I'm rather drippy, I'm afraid. I've been walking in the rain."

She wasn't a child, Emily thought, resenting Barbara's poise, resenting her glowing cheeks and the curly soft brown hair. Her manner was gracious and reserved. She was a very pretty girl.

Conversation became increasingly difficult.

"Are you having a nice visit?" Emily asked.

"Very nice," Barbara answered.

"Very nice," Gay echoed, trying to be tactful and polite.

Emily had brought Kit a book—"The Motorboat Boys in Southern Waters." Kit thanked her politely and laid it aside. Emily felt that something was wrong. And then she noticed that "Moby Dick" lay on the table beside Kit's chair. The book she had brought was too juvenile, though the clerk in the bookshop had assured her that it was a favorite with boys of any age. She grew pink with confusion. She wished that she had not come.

She wanted to be charming to the children. All the way out she had pictured herself winning their immediate affection. But everything was wrong. She introduced subjects which she thought might interest them. They were polite but bored. Emily became increasingly nervous. Her head ached. She felt as though she were getting a cold.

If only she wouldn't try so hard, Stephen thought, feeling sorry for Emily, resenting her inability to interest the children. If she would treat them as equals instead of using that playful tone. He exerted himself to restore the usual gayety of the schoolroom. It was useless. Emily was nervous and uneasy. Barbara looked uncomfortable. The children were bored and polite.

There was, however, one bright moment amid the difficulties of the visit. Gay, a born diplomat, admired Emily's hair.

"It must look lovely when it's let down," she said, glancing up at Emily from under her long curled lashes. "Like the fairy tale—'Rapunzel, Rapunzel, let down your hair.'"

Emily flushed with pleasure. She hoped Stephen saw her as a fairy-tale princess. She relaxed, for a moment, and was friendly and gracious, especially to Gay.

But only for a moment. She saw Stephen look at Barbara, curled on the sofa in a smart little frock of honey-colored wool. She saw herself in the glass doors of the bookcase. She didn't look like a fairy-tale princess. She looked almost middle-aged, compared with Barbara's glowing youth. Her head throbbed painfully. She wished again that she hadn't come.

Henry brought tea and little frosted cakes. Barbara served it prettily.

"I've had lots of experience," she said to Emily, wanting to be friendly. "Father had 'Visiting Days' at the studio. There were always a great many ladies. Father was very handsome."

"That must have been nice," Emily said vaguely. Stephen had said that Barbara was a child, "younger than any of them in many ways." She didn't act like a child. Her manner was assured. And the way she had been brought up! Artists—

"Two lumps for you, Uncle Stephen." Barbara dimpled and smiled as she handed him the cup. "I've learned that, anyway."

Artful, Emily thought. Stephen looked at her so tenderly. But he looked at Emily, too. She felt better when they left the schoolroom and walked downstairs together. She spoke of Gay with enthusiasm as they waited in the hall for Thomas to bring the car.

She knows I think less of Gay than any of them, Stephen thought. She's jealous of Barbara. That was absurd. Emily was too intelligent to be jealous of a child. He silently apologized. Stephen, as Aunt Edith had once before observed, had much to learn about women.

"Will you come for dinner some evening soon?" Emily asked as Stephen settled her into the car and folded the robe about her. "Father enjoys your visits so much. You have rather neglected us lately."

Had he hesitated a moment too long before he had accepted the invitation, Emily wondered, as the car followed the winding drive. She told herself that Stephen had not changed. He must, of course, spend some time with the children. Everything would be right again when they had gone.

But her arguments were not convincing. Stephen had changed. Tears filled her eyes, spilled down over her cheeks.

When Stephen returned to the schoolroom, he found the children engaged in a heated argument. They looked a little guilty.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

"Gay says you're goin' to marry her," Jamie said indignantly, his face and his ears very red.

"Jamie!" Barbara said.

"Shut up!" hissed Kit.

"Are you, Uncle Stephen?" asked Gay, who loved a romance.

"Why?" Stephen felt embarrassed. He lit a cigarette.

"Well," Gay reported, ignoring warning glances from Kit and Barbara. "Sarah told Henry you were and your Aunt Edith told Mrs. King. It seems as though everybody knows."

"Did they?" Stephen wondered irritably. He looked at Barbara, recalling what Aunt Edith had said a day or two ago. "You shouldn't pay so much attention to Barbara," Aunt Edith had said. "Girls are always ready to fall in love. You don't want to hurt her, Stephen."

Aunt Edith had "notions," Stephen thought. "She thinks I'm a nice old man," he had told her, annoyed at the fantastic notion that Barbara might fall in love with him. It was flattering to think that the child found him attractive. But he hadn't thought, for a moment, that Aunt Edith had reasonable grounds for so fantastic a notion.

He was sure of it now. Barbara smiled at him from the sofa.

"Why shouldn't Uncle Stephen marry anyone he likes?" she asked with a merry disarming laugh. "He should have some children of his own. He knows how to treat them so nicely."

Stephen should have felt relieved. But, somehow, he didn't exactly.

* * * * * * *

Barbara wrote to Bruce—

". . . We are to stay for Christmas. Isn't that lovely of Uncle Stephen? Kit is lots better. Thomas took him for a ride this afternoon and he's able, now, to have meals in the dining room. Aunt Edith (I don't call her that to her face. It would be too much like calling the queen of Belgium 'Aunt Lizzie') wishes we'd have our meals in the schoolroom. We do talk a lot, I guess, and sometimes Jamie spills things. But Uncle Stephen doesn't mind. He says he has just found out that dinner can be an entertaining occasion.

"Uncle Stephen took me to the opera the other night all alone. The opera! Doesn't that sound grand? We sat in a box, if you please, and I had a dress the color of strawberries and cream and a strawberry velvet wrap and gilt slippers with buckles. I felt very elegant and not at all like me. And the music, Bruce! It was 'Madame Butterfly.' I cried at the part where she wait-

ELIDA PARTY

All bridge and domino players of Portales have been invited to the benefit party being given at Elida tomorrow night by the Rebekah lodge. The proceeds of the evening will be placed to a fund to finance the expenses of the Elida Rebekah drill team to Albuquerque next October.

Both bridge and forty-two will be enjoyed during the evening. A charge of 25 cents will be made for admission.

1930 CLASS PICNIC

Twenty-three members of the 1930 graduating class of the Portales high school, drove to the John Young ranch last Tuesday evening and were the guests of Jimmie Young Smith in a class reunion.

The party left Portales about 7 o'clock and, after a picnic supper, enjoyed games and stunts of various kinds during the evening.

Mrs. W. E. Daniel was sponsor of this crowd of young people during their sophomore, junior and senior years, and Tuesday evening she was invited to gather with them for the party.

This was a happy celebration for the members present and if the reunion becomes an annual event, it doubtless will be held later in the summer, that the students from college may be able to attend.

PRESBYTERIAN AUXILIARY

The members of the Presbyterian auxiliary were the guests of Mrs. Rex Forrest on Tuesday afternoon, when she entertained in the home of Mrs. Ernest Pogue.

Two visitors joined with the members in enjoying the program led by Mrs. Pogue on the subject, "Bible Schools in China." Mrs. Pogue also directed the study of the Psalms.

During the social hour Mrs. Forrest served a bountiful salad course.

BRIDGE BENEFIT

Seventeen tables of card players gathered at the Portales Woman's club building last Tuesday evening for a bridge party.

Several progressions were enjoyed, with the contest beginning at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Bailey received the high score prizes of the evening.

The finance committee, of which Mrs. Ed J. Neer is chairman, had purhcased a number of kitchen utensils and these were awarded to the holder of high score at each of the tables. At a given signal these were placed in front of Mrs. J. K. Brough, with the best wishes of the members. Mrs. Brough, as Miss Bloomer, has been one of the active and interested members of the club during the last year, and the gifts were all useful articles for her new home.

Misses Jewel, Ruby and Lois Webb were in charge of the musical program given during the social hour. The selections consisted of piano, violin and vocal numbers.

Refershments were served by the members of the finance committee, with bowls of pinks centering the quartet tables.

BRIDGE PARTY

Mrs. William LeMaster and Mrs. Rusha Smith entertained at bridge in the home of the latter on Tuesday afternoon of this week.

Five tables of players enjoyed six progressions of bridge between the hours of 2 and 5.

A salad course with iced drinks comprised the refreshments served at the conclusion of the afternoon.

Miss Naomi McCarty received the prize for high score, Mrs. Sam Batton for low score, and the traveling prize went to Mrs. J. D. Marlow.

Pinks and larkspur were placed in bowls about the porch where the players were located.

The guests included Misses Mabel Morrison, Naomi and Maybelle McCarty, Mesdames J. J. Spires, W. W. King, S. H. Batton, J. W. Slone Jr., J. D. Marlow, L. S. Kirby, Sydney Stone, H. H. Davenport, Bert Rawlins, J. C. Compton, Sam Mersefelder, Luther Thomas, J. D. Turner, J. H. Lee and Ray Snelson.

Earl B. Womack was purchasing materials with which to paint the inside of his new adobe hen house Tuesday. He is going to use a formula he learned from a farm publication. It consists of lime, soap, alum and salt.

WOMAN'S CLUB

The Portales Woman's club closed the year of 1932-1933 on Wednesday, May 24, with a dish luncheon at 1 o'clock at the club house, followed by a business session.

The retiring president, Mrs. M. B. Jones, opened the meeting by asking for the singing of "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," a favorite song of hers.

Mrs. J. G. Greaves read the Collect.

The new club members were introduced and welcomed into the club.

Mrs. Jones then gave a report covering a part of the two years she has been president.

An outstanding feature of Mrs. Jones' administration is that she has never missed a meeting and has prsided over each meeting.

Praise was justly given each officer in the club and thanks given to each member for the undivided loyalty and co-operation.

Mrs. Jones reviewed in part the work of each committee and praised them for their untiring efforts and co-operation in making the year successful.

The beautiful new club building has been erected during her administration and under her leadership.

The Portales Woman's club is recognized as having one of the outstanding, wide-awake, progressive clubs of the state.

The donor of the president's beautiful chair, who has been a mystery for months, was revealed as being Mrs. E. T. Hensley. She acknowledged to Mrs. Jones, just before going away, that she was the culprit who caused so much anxiety and accusation.

Mrs. J. G. Greaves, the new president, was then introduced and she, with the assistant secretary, Mrs. C. M. Compton, were escorted to their places of honor by the retiring secretary, Mrs. R. A. Young.

She presided over the business session that followed.

She acknowledged the honor and responsibility connected with the new office, asking for the hearty co-operation of the club, and promising to do her best.

Mrs. Greaves named her first committee, the program committee, as follows: Miss Kate McManaway, chairman; Mrs. Kenneth Brough, Mrs. Ray Bonner, Mrs. Marion Stinnett, Mrs. Bert Rawlins and Mrs. W. B. Oldham.

After the business session the club enjoyed a violin duet by the Webb sisters, accompanied by Miss Webb.

Miss Edith Wheeler sang, "All Nature Sings of You," with Mrs. E. Pogue at the piano.

Mrs. Guy Billingsly of Salida, Colo., and Miss Lucy Stinnett of Fort Sumner, N. M., were guests of the club.

Hostesses for this most enjoyable affair were Mesdames Batton, Christoe and E. C. Luna.—Contributed.

The five girls gave piano selections and Mrs. J. M. Sanders rendered two vocal solos, with Mrs. Freeman as accompanist.

Several music lovers formed the audience of invited guests who gathered to enjoy the program.

The piano numbers were given by Mary Jane and Patsy Taylor, Mildred Minick, Nettie Belle Batton and Juanita Taylor.

Silver Utensils Once Prerogative of Rank

In the early days of civilization sterling silver was restricted to royalty and the nobility. In fact, we are told that at one period of England's history the number of sterling silver spoons and suchlike one could own were actually restricted and governed by statute. One could almost reconstruct the regulatory table—one lord, one spoon; one duke, four spoons; one princess, one chest, and so on. Sterling was displayed upon all ceremonial occasions and those aristocrats of a far past day treasured their silver to as great an extent as the young bride of today.

Five hundred years ago, with the advent of the Florentine republic, a new era began. Foreign commerce brought wealth to men of lesser rank, who established magnificent homes and filled them with works of art and beauty, chief among which was sterling. Today sterling silver continues to be the inevitable tableware of the person of discrimination. Its use is not confined to the royal houses, nor to the tables of the wealthy. It is available for every home of taste and moderate means.

...e the publication of my ... Plan a few days ago, I ... received hundreds of letters ...hone calls, personal visitors ...verbal messages concerning it.

... many people have asked for ... matter, that I am writing ... letter for publication seeking ...ve the answers to some of the ...tions so that people may in...ently pass upon the merits ...e plan.

... is no secret that thousands ...people in Mississippi have lost ...r homes and their lands be...se of their utter inability to pay ... taxes that have become due ...ng the last few years.

...hen I was Governor of Missis...pi during 1927, the state owned ... hundred thousand acres of ...d which had come back to the ...te in tax sales. Today the ...te of Mississippi owns over one ...llion acres of land which citizens ...ve lost on account of taxes.

...This land is scattered all over ...e state and is in every sized ...act or tract. Some of this land ...s in each county and community. ...ach of it is timbered or cut over ...nd. A lot of it is in the big dra...age districts in the Mississippi ...tta.

...Not one cent is the state getting ... taxes or revenue from this land. ...n many instances the former ...wner of the land is still living on ... and hoping to be able to regain ...he title to the land.

...It is apparent that when one ...cre of land is sold to the state for ...axes all other must pay a pro...portionally higher tax rate in ...rder to make up the share of ...evenues which the first acre had ...ormerly paid.

My plan is simply this: Let's sell this land and get it back on the tax rolls.

I propose to present at the next regular session of the legislature, which meets in January 1934, or to any called or special session that may be called between now and that time, a bill which would do the following things:

1st. Give the State Land Commisioner additional quarters, help expense money so as to allow him to more intelligently and promptly handle the state land matters.

2nd. Provide for a survey or inspection of all of the lands that the state owns, so that the land commissioner may have on file in his office a full and detailed description of each piece of land, including the name of the former owner, the amount of the land, proximity to the church and school whether timbered or not, cut-over, cleared etc.

3rd. Authorize the sale of this land to bonafide purchasers at a price approximately $1.00 per acre, with the provision that the former owner of the land be given the first option and the refusal of the land. That the first payment should be in cash and for one tenth of the total amount, the balance to be paid in nine annual instalments each for another one tenth of the total price.

4th. Provide that no one person should be allowed to purchase more than 160 acres of this land, except that the former owner may be allowed to purchase the full amount of the land which he lost through tax sale. This provision would prohibit speculators and big large and valuable tracts and holdin...e for exorbitant prices.

5th. Make same provision for setting aside tracts of wild and waste lands which the state owns and which would hardly be profitable for agricultural purposes as state parks or state game reserves to be handled probably by the State Forestry Department co-operating with the State Game and Fish Department.

6th. Make come provision for the care and protection of the tracts of pine lands largely in South Mississippi now owned by the state looking toward prevention of the stealing, waste and destruction of the growing timber.

Since any state or nation is benefitted when a large per cent of its populated are home owners, I am somewhat inclined to the belief that it might be well if people who do no own land or homes be favored in the sale of this land. However this is a matter that would reqquire further study.

As I view it the state should not be in the real estate business. In fact, I am opposed to the state engaging in any business except the business of government. The state does not need this land. Its citizens should own it. Above all, this land which the state owns and which if it were all together and in one tract would comprise about Four counties, should be back on the tax rolls. Therefore, the price which the state receives as purchase of this land is not at all material.

Since the publication of this proposal, I have received a number of letters from other states. Many small farmers in Louisitna, Alabama, Georgia and other states have written inquiring about this matter and saying that they would be glad to come to Mississippi and take up some of these lands.

Hundreds of people in our own state say that they want a chance to buy and build a little home of their own.

Will a plan of this kind work? Mr. Babington of the Southern Finance Company of Magnolia, Mississippi, writes to me: "We bought 713 acres of ordinary pine land at a tax sale here. It formerly belonged to some Michigan folks who refused to redeem it. We sold it in five different tracts to Pike County farmers at $1.00 per acre and all of them are well pleased while the county and state has not lost one single cent in taxes on it.

I realize that naturally there may be some valid objections to a plan of this kind There is nothing is perfect and with a state as large as ours and with local conditions so varied, it will be hard in this or any other matter to plan somesatisfactory to everyone. I believe, however, that this idea is sound, and I present it not with any large degree of pride of authorship, but with the sincere hope that out of its consideration there may be some result attained that will benefit not only the State of Mississippi but also a number of needy and deserving people.

I invite any suggestion or criticism.

Yours very truly,
Dennis Murphree

BLOOMER—BROUGH

Miss Ruth Bloomer and J. K. Brough were united in marriage Monday afternoon at a very quiet wedding held in the Christian parsonage, with Rev. C. A. Lorts reading the ceremony.

The wedding was witnessed at 4 o'clock and the young couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Steiner.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Brough have been valued and efficient members of the Portales high school for the last few years. Mr. Borugh came to the local institution in September of 1927 as head of the Spanish department from his home state of Iowa.

Mrs. Brough has been connected with the local institution for four years ,having come from Kansas City, Mo., and in this time has proven her worth as an instructor in English.

The newly-weds have rented an apartment in the Wollard duplex, and immediately after the ceremony went to their new home, where they will be located throughout the next year.

Both these young people have made many staunch and loyal friends during their residence in Roosevelt county, and they will be greeted most heartily as continued builders of the school, home, church and social interests of their adopted state.

BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUB

The new officers of the Portales Business and Professional Women's club were seated last Monday evening at the regular dinner and business meeting held in the Chamber of Comemrce rooms.

Mrs. Ed J. Neer is the newly elected president and has outlined a busy and very worth while business year for the organization. A program committee will complete the numbers for the year book within the next few weeks.

The members gathered at 7:30 p. m. for the dinner, which was in charge of a committee under the direction of Miss Mabel Morrison. All were seated at one long table and the dinner was served family style.

At the conclusion of the meal Mrs. Neer invited the attention of the members to the business meeting which occupied the remainder of the evening.

Mrs. Neer, Mrs. Lacy Armstrong and Miss Verda Oakley gave reports of the state convention which was held in Carlsbad the first of the month.

They presented to the club the silver loving cup which had been won at the convention by the Portales club for the largest number of new members and the greatest number of renewals. The local organization was the only club at the convention with a 100 per cent renewal of charter members.

It was voted to withhold subscriptions to the state scholarship loan fund and use that money in Portales in aiding some worthy senior of the high school. A letter of great appreciation was received from the pupil whom the club assisted during the last school year.

The student body of the local school, through its president, Miss Annie Maud Hunter, sent a note of thanks to the club for the two medals which will be given in the high school each year by the Business and Professional Women's club.

The three members who had attended the ocnvention had many attractive souvenirs and programs which had been given at the Carlsbad meeting showing the rapid growth and meritorious work of the organization.

HONORS SISTER

Mrs. Ray Snelson entertained on Monday afternoon of this week honoring her sister, Mrs. John Barnard, who has been living in Clovis but is now moving to Belen.

The guests included those persons who had become most intimately acquainted with Mrs. Barnard on her visits to her sister here in Portales.

A color plan of green and yellow was used in the preparation of the refreshments and also in the house decorations, the tallies and score cards.

Three tables were arranged for the bridge contest, which occupied much of the delightfully happy afternoon hours.

At cards Mrs. George Sollock held high score, Mrs. L. S. Kirby second high and the traveling prize went to Mrs. Ronnie Blair.

The friends enjoying the occasion with Mrs. Barnard were Miss Mabel Morrison, Mesdames J. D. Turner, Luther Thomas, J. H. Lee, Sam Mersefelder, Sydney Stone, L. S. Kirby, W. C. Snelson, F. E. Roberts, Ronnie Blair and George Sollock.

Several progressions occupied the hours of the delightfully happy contest.

Mrs. H. H. Buchanan held the high score for non-members, Mrs. Snelson high for members and Mrs. J. D. Turner low for the afternoon players.

Mrs. Forbes served an attractive plate lunch at the close of the card game to the following guests: Miss Mabel Morrison, Mesdames William LeMaster, Rusha Smith, H. H. Buchanan, John Barnard, Sydney Stone, Sam Mersefelder, Ray Snelson, J. H. Lee, Luther Thomas, J. D. Turner and H. W. Davidson.

FAREWELL PARTY

Vivian Hinerman was unable to participate in the pleasures of the outdoor party given in honor of Norma Lee Chamberlain and herself last Thursday morning by the members of the Junior Hi Bridge club.

The party left Portales about 9 o'clock for the sand hills, where games and outdoor activities were enjoyed and later a picnic lunch was spread.

Miss Elsie Parnell, Miss Hazel Galloway and Miss Ora Dendy accompanied the girls and assisted in making the morning a delightfully happy several hours.

Both of the honorees expect to be away from Portales much of the time during the summer vacation time.

METHODIST MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Mrs. B. F. Smith was leader of the program last Thursday afternoon when the Methodist Missionary society met in the home of Mrs. H. V. Thompson, with Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. L. L. Brown hostesses.

The afternoon program was devoted to a study of the work and responsibilities of the church deaconess, and this was emphasized by a little playlet given by Mrs. Joe Machem, Mrs. Carl Bremer, Mrs. J. D. Marlow and Miss Lucille Kiker. Mrs. Fred Ohr also had an interesting number and Mrs. Frank Craddock rendered a vocal solo, with Mrs. A. W. Freeman as pianist.

The hostess served an ice course during the social hour.

The members were sorry not to be able to have the meeting with Mrs. Murrell as was planned, but were glad to report some improvement in Mrs. Murrell's condition. She had been ill for the last four or five weeks.

More than thirty members were present at the Thursday meeting.

CHRISTIAN LADIES AID

Members of the Christian Ladies Aid enjoyed a three course dinner last Thursday when Mrs. J. H. Breshears, Mrs. J. M. Sanders and Mrs. J. J. Brown were hostesses to the members of the organization at the Christian church.

There were twenty adults present and these were seated at quartet tables attractive with the appointments and decorations.

During the afternoon the regular program and business session of the Aid was held. Mrs. R. B. Ohlhausen was in charge of the program, with "Christ's Plan for Winning the World" as the afternoon subject. The women assisting with the numbers were Mrs. W. H. Catt, Mrs. C. A. Lorts, Mrs. J. W. Circle No. 3 members gathered in the home of Mrs. J. P. Steiner and nine were present for the Royal service lesson under the direction of Mrs. Claude Smith. Those assisting the leader were Mrs. Golden, Mrs. Steiner, Mrs. Wollard, Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Compton.

All circles are uniting for the meeting this afternoon in the church, when a business and social hour will occupy the time.

During the business session a new president will be selected, as it is impossible for Mrs. J. S. Green to serve during the busy summer months.

JUNIOR HI CLUB

All the members of the Junior Hi Bridge club were present last Friday afternoon, when Norma Lee Chamberlain and Ottis Belle Lovorn were hostesses in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lovorn.

Frances Cheek was the guest of her classmates for the afternoon.

The girls met soon after the close of school and this was the closing meeting before the summer vacations, when the club members will be out of town much of the time.

Instead of the usual card game, the members spent the time with other games and outdoor sports.

Refreshments of sandwiches and iced drinks were served at the close of the party to Vivian Hinerman, Norma Lee Chamberlain, Nettie Belle Batton, Wynema Whitcomb, Jane Mauk, Frances Cheek, Blanch Lyons, Mary Jane Taylor and Ottis Belle Lovorn.

Mrs. I. D. Johnson returned home last Thursday from Chicago, where she has been receiving treatment for an injured eye. Mrs. Johnson cut the ball of her eye with the edge of a newspaper and for many weeks her condition was very grave. The specialist was successful in saving the sight of Mrs. Johnson's eye.

Miss Lillian Marshall, who has been teaching in the Clovis schools, is home for the summer.

HONORS WITH BREAKFAST

Miss Ruth Bloomer was the honor guest at a lovely breakfast in the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Steiner last Saturday morning when Mrs. Steiner, Mrs. C. F. Brown and Mrs. Ray Bonner entertained at 9 o'clock.

The quartet tables were spread with white linen cloths and centered with green bowls filled with yellow flowers. Yellow and green predominated in the preparation of the three course breakfast. The hostesses were assisted in serving by Mrs. A. D. Ribble.

Each of the friends had brought to Miss Bloomer a gift and these were showered upon her at the close of the delicious meal.

The unwrapping and viewing of these occupied the after breakfast hours.

Those enjoying the morning with Miss Bloomer were Miss Verda Oakley, Miss Kate McManaway, Miss Ruth Wheeler, Miss Berenice Van Kirk, Miss Jamie Greenwaldt, Mesdames J. J. Spires, H. H. Buchanan, P. Ribble, James Christoe and the three hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Parker, who own and operate an irrigated farm in the East Valley View community, are enjoying a visit from their son Lewis, who arrived from San Diego, Cal. The young man has been with the hospital corps of the navy for the last four years and has re-enlisted for another term of service. After a month's visit with his parents, he will again join his ship at the California port.

Norma Lee Chamberlain is leaving the last of the week for her summer vacation which will include visits at Ruidoso, N. M., and El Paso, Tex.

HANDKERCHIEF SHOWER

Miss Fay Walker was surprised with a shower of beautiful handkerchiefs last Thursday afternoon by the members of the Rebekah lodge when she was invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Barnett. Miss Walker is one of the teachers in the Portales grade school and her very splendid work and faithful attendance at lodge meetings was shown in the gifts of lovely handkerchiefs given by about twenty women.

Mrs. Barnett, Mrs. C. C. Pendley and Mrs. J. B. Lee were the hostesses.

The friends were invited at 5:30 and, after the presentation of gifts and a short social time, a delicious supper was served.

Miss Walker will spend her summer vacation in her home and plans to return to Portales for the opening of school next September.

PICNIC PARTY

Fred Lowery of Floyd was host to a few Floyd and Portales friends last Monday evening at a picnic supper.

It had been planned to enjoy the picnic at the H Bar ranch, but due to the very windy day it was later decided to gather at the gymnasium in Portales for the occasion.

Later in the evening several members of the party attended the declamatory contest at the Baptist church.

The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Don C. Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Ray J. Lofton and Mrs. Perry from Floyd, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Golden, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Steiner, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Bailey, Mr. and Mrs. Coe Howard, Mrs. Lucille Cumbie and E. P. Compton of Portales.

Mrs. N. F. Wollard is leaving Sunday with the LeMaster party and will go as far as Springfield, Mo., where she will visit with relatives for a week or ten days.

RICHLAND CLUB

Miss Erma Embree and Mrs. Dewey James were the new members added to the Richland Homemakers club when the members met last Thursday with Mrs. Boyd Rice for an all day meeting.

Two guests, Mrs. Roscoe Alford and Mrs. Eugene Butts, joined with the nineteen members in making the day a profitable and pleasant occasion.

Much of the day was spent quilting. Miss Verda Oakley gave a demonstration on clothing which was most interesting and very helpful.

During the business meeting plans were made for a club picnic in July and this will take the place of the regular meeting for that month.

The exhibit for this fall was discussed and a committee appointed to be responsible for the display. An alternate committee was also appointed.

The next meeting will be held on June 15 with Mrs. Hibbard Fulton. Everyone is asked to bring individual sewing, as much of the day will be spent with needle work.

Report of F. H. A. Meeting at Clovis

Dear Mr. Editor—

It has been the passing of several moons since I have claimed space in your valuable columns. I think I have been a constant subscriber and reader of the Portales Times, the Portales Herald-Times, Portales Journal, etc., throughout the years. I have scanned its pages, contributed to its columns and am still anxiously awaiting each week its weekly visit to my home. I have, however, to listen to second hand news much of the time, as my wife and children often beat me to the mail box.

Mr. Editor, you are indeed an important factor in the lives of men, women, boys and girls.

I should like to relate some of my experiences in attendance at the Farm Holiday association meeting at Clovis last Saturday.

Farmers, labor unions, merchants, mechanics, engineers and all kinds of organized interests were represented by throngs of people from all parts of the country—literally thousands bound together seemingly by one common tie: that of mutual economic interests brought and strongly emphasized by the depression.

The meeting convened at the fair grounds.

One Mr. Smith, representing the mayor of the little city, gave an invitation and address of welcome on behalf of the merchants and business interests of Clovis, which was replete with expressions of kindly fellowship and one common brotherhood, saying that the Holiday association was welcome to the use of the fair grounds and buildings and was glad that we as American citizens had the right of peaceable public assemblage, and such were always welcome in Clovis.

This was a great lesson running along the bars and shining out of the stars of our national flag and reaching a climax in our feelings as throngs sang "America" and other patriotic songs.

A number of short speeches were made by preachers, teachers, men from our legislative halls, as well as "horny-handed sons of toil" all alike advocating national righteousness and a striving to lift men, women and children from want and degradation into a more advanced life.

Millions of our citizens are lacking the commonest comforts of life in a land of plenty and sitting in luxury and wealth by the privileged class. Under our present system of economic conditions, and while condemning a bloody revolution, it is plain that an economic war is already raging that will not be assuaged until an armistice is arranged bearing not just miserable promises but fruits, the practical application of the "Golden Rule."

A parity of business relations must be maintained among all classes. Government must come back to the people and the "multi-millionaire pauper" must get his lesson as well as the so-called successful one who now has the circulating medium of exchange hoarded from the channels of commerce or else manipulated under our present system so as to prevent a parity of exchange, either domestic or foreign.

Every industry except agriculture is organized and demanding their governmental rights—yea, more.

Unjust and unfair concessions have been granted, through our legislatures and congress, to these trusts and combines until we are in the throes of political and economic unrest.

This will never be settled until it is settled right.

The masses are now too intelligent and well educated to bear it longer. Educated intelligence cannot be enslaved. Patience in unrequited toil ceases to be a virtue.

Oh! I am forgetting my task—ha! ha!

O. P. Bartlett, the state president, gave a short address which received a great ovation. After which the noon lunch was spread and eaten. After dinner all retired to the grand stand and heard negro minstrels render several selections, among them, of course, was "Dixie."

A prepared address was delivered by President Bartlett and the delegates from different counties went into closed session. Reports on the national meeting at Des Moines were given and well received.

A report from the continental congress at Washington, D. C., was read and discussed and approved.

Wonderful enthusiasm prevailed throughout the day.

The annual state meeting will convene the first Monday in June at Clovis.

A Farm Holiday picnic will be held at Dora, seventeen miles south of Portales, Friday, May 26. All come and bring well filled basket. Singing and speaking by entertaining speakers will be the order of the day.

Perhaps the most impressive event of the day to me was the outstanding co-operation of all union labor with the farmers of America, the amalgamation of whose interests and work, if constantly adhered to, will constitute an invincible army that must and will bring capitalism to terms of justice and right.

A Slogan—"Dictation of commodity prices without just repersentation is peonage for the masses."

—U. S. FRAZE.

Miss Mary Alice Waltom has returned from Fort Sumner, where she has taught for the last two or three years. Miss Waltom will be a member of the Portales school faculty next year.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Pendergraft came down from their Amarillo, Tex., home and spent the week end in Portales with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Pendergraft.
