New Gunplay Erupts In Slum Area

NEW YORK (AP) — Gunfire from a moving auto carrying four Negroes wounded two white men at 2 a.m. today in the racially seething East New York slum area of Brooklyn, police reported.

The shots were fired as the two men stood at a street corner in a section where 1,700 police reported on the streets or held in reserve.

Frank Tuledo, 24, was shot in the abdomen and was reported in critical condition in a hospital.

Gregorio Cruz, 35, was shot in the right buttock and was reported in fair condition at the same hospital.

Scattered disorders broke out through the early morning. Several policemen were injured and 15 persons were arrested on various charges.

The gunfire erupted three hours after police broke up a crowd of 45 Negro youths charging toward a predominantly Italian-American section of East New York and chanting "Get the whites."

Police in five radio cars closed in on the gang of youths — aged 17 to 25 — and chased them back toward the Negro section of East New York and adjoining Brownsville.

Police said knives and clubs were taken from some of the youths. Eight of them were arrested.

There has been racial disorder in East New York almost nightly for a week — the worst in the city since the Negro riots two summers ago in Harlem and the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn.

The Negro gang was broken up about eight blocks from the scene of racial turmoil Thursday night, during which an 11-year-old Negro boy was killed by a sniper's bullet.

Police feared violence Friday night from about 200 Negro and Puerto Rican youths at an East New York street corner. But the youths suddenly ran into the street shouting, "We want peace! We're all brothers." They joined hands and walked together along the street, encouraged by bystanders who waved at them and clanged garbage can covers.

At 3:30 a.m., today, police barred autos and pedestrians from a two-square block area because the streets and sidewalks were covered by debris hurled from windows and roofs.

A squad of police, investigating a report of early morning gunfire, found 10 fire bombs on a roof.

A policeman suffered a knee injury in the roof search. Another policeman was injured when a radio car door slammed on his fingers as he was helping disperse a crowd gathered in a Negro neighborhood.

A detective was injured when a brick was thrown through a window of a police car.

Strike Talk Fruitless

WASHINGTON (AP) — President P.L. (Roy) Siemiller of the striking machinists union said today talks in the 16-day airline strike were "fruitless" and that the strikers were determined not to give in.

"I never saw a situation where our people were so militant" Siemiller said of the 35,000 members who shut down operations of five major airlines.

As talks resumed, Siemiller said he had been receiving many telegrams from the strikers saying, "Don't sell us out... stay in there...hold, hold, hold."

Siemiller confirmed that the talks were going nowhere except in flights of verbal accusations among the negotiators.

Assistant Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds said Friday that the talks were back on the strike issues, but Siemiller commented, "He may have been talking about them, but nobody is talking to us about them."

US Rejects Red Protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States rejected today a Soviet protest against U.S. bombing at Haiphong.

It called on Moscow to help persuade North Viet Nam to halt its "aggressive activities" and start peace talks now.

The U.S. note also accused the Russians of "inaccuracies and false allegations" about the Viet Nam situation and said the Soviets have been "supplying petroleum products used by North Viet Nam to pursue its armed attack against South Viet Nam."

The State Department said the American reply to the July 9 Russian protest was delivered to the Soviet Ministry today by John C. Guthrie, number two U.S. diplomat at the American Embassy in Moscow.

Viet Battle Fast, Furious

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Helicopter-borne U.S. infantrymen pounded an entrenched Viet Cong force only 25 miles from Saigon today and overran the enemy bunkers in what a spokesman called 'fast and furious action."

To the north, U.S. Marines fighting in mountain jungles just south of the demilitarized zone between North and South Viet Nam reported killing 55 more North Vietnamese regulars to raise the number of enemy dead to 576 in eight days of hard fighting.

Over North Viet Nam, U.S. Air Force Thunderchiefs tangled with Communist MIG-17s in a fruitless one-minute exchange of fire during renewed raids on oil depots, railroads, barges and bridges.

The U.S. command announced that Australian troops had kicked off on a new clearing operation 38 miles southeast of Saigon and that the first small contingent of Thailand servicemen has arrived in the country.

The U.S. command also reported that a Navy A4 Skyhawk fighter-bomber from the carrier Oriskany was shot down over North Viet Nam today, the 306th plane lost in the air war over the north. The pilot bailed out at sea and was rescued about 35 miles north of Vinh.

U.S. spokesmen disclosed the loss in South Viet Nam of an L19 light observation plane about 100 miles southwest of Saigon and said both members of the two-man crew were killed.

Another light observation plane and a U.S. Army helicopter collided during Operation Hastings near the demilitarized zone. Three crew members of the helicopters were injured. The fate of the two fliers in the observation plane was not known.

In the fighting 25 miles north of Saigon, several battalions of the U.S. 1st Infantry Division struck this afternoon against a dug-in Viet Cong force in the Ong Dong jungles.

The infantrymen, lifted into the area by helicopters, overran enemy bunkers almost at once.

A spokesman said American casualties in the initial stages were light. He said the Communist losses were not yet reported but the infantrymen captured quantities of machine guns and ammunition.

At last report toward dark, the GIs were still in contact with the Viet Cong.

Miner Killed In Coal Mine Blast

MOUNT HOPE, W.Va. (AP) —One miner was killed and six others were reported missing in a coal mine explosion near this southern West Virginia community.

An official of the Siltex mine of the New River Co. said six miners could not be found, but that 20 to 23 others were inside the mine and safe.

Martial Law Asked In Cleveland Riots

By RICHARD H. SMITH

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A shot fired from a moving car wounded a Negro motorist critically early today in guerrilla rioting that has wracked Cleveland's East Side Negro area for five nights.

Until the shooting about 3 a.m., police and National Guardsmen had kept relative calm in areas hit by fire bombing, shooting and vandalism since Monday night.

Shots were fired from the passenger-side window of a car carrying two white youths, police said. Six white youths were rounded up in pairs, within minutes, but police clamped a tight lid on information.

The man shot was identified as Benoris Toney, 29, a father of five. His wife said he was on the way to pick up a friend at work on the West Side.

He was the 10th victim of gunfire wounds in rioting that has taken three lives and caused heavy damage from fires and looting.

Toney was shot in a parking lot of a lumber company two miles outside the Hough (pronounced 'huff') area where most of the rioting has occurred and which police and 1,750 National Guardsmen have sealed off.

The victim's car was still moving after the shots were fired. Police hunting a sniper in the area were in the parking lot when Toney was shot and took off quickly after the gunman's car.

The shooting heightened fears that riot-weary Cleveland is headed into a bad weekend. The violence Friday night moved nearer to white ethnic pockets in predominantly Negro neighborhoods where racial fighting occurred in 1964.

Police said Toney was struck in the face by a shotgun blast and part of his face had been blown away.

The fifth night of disorder saw police and National Guardsmen covering wide areas and being tougher about it.

More persons were searched. A 9 p.m. curfew was rigidly enforced against youngsters under 16. Small groups of three or four men were dispersed. Suspicious persons were photographed by police on the spot.

Mayor Ralph S. Locher received requests from two Negro councilmen for martial law, a curfew and an increase in the National Guard forces augmenting the city's 2,000 policemen.

The mayor said he expected increased lawlessness over the weekend, but had decided against martial law and a curfew, or a call for more guard.

Locher said he was flexible on asking for more guardsmen, however, and Friday night he got a telegram from a group of eight Negro community leaders urging him to request them immediately.

In their first two nights of duty, the guardsmen had been spared much of the derision the Negro crowds directed at police. Friday night the soldiers came in for a full share of taunting. Within two hours after dark 18 persons — 15 of them juveniles — were arrested for harassing the Guard.

A Negro woman screamed at the soldiers that they fired a shot into the air unnecessarily, and a young Guardsman shouted back: "And there will be a hell of a lot more shooting if you don't shut your mouth."

The Guard's commander, Col. Robert Canterbury, repeated an earlier promise the soldiers would do no shooting unless fired upon. In that case, he said, they would not "shoot to miss."

The victim was Robert Tarvin, 55, who died Saturday in a hospital.

Tarvin was helping to pour cement. He took the tire from a wheelbarrow to a nearby filling station to fill it with air. The tire exploded and the rim flew off, striking Tarvin in the head.

Jack Kirkpatrick of Post was Friday night's top team roper with a time of 14.5 seconds while G. B. Williams was tops for the evening in the stockholders roping event with a time of 32.8 seconds.

Long To Probe Price Of Drugs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Russell B. Long said today he is planning a public inquiry into drug prices and federal health programs.

When it comes, the Louisiana Democrat said, "people are going to be finding out that they're paying 400 times too much for some of their drugs."

Long's forum will be the Senate Finance Committee; his topic, prescription practices under medicare and federally aided health programs.

Long, assistant Democratic leader, has introduced a bill that would require the prescribing and dispensing of medicare drugs under their chemical, generic names, not under private brand-names.

Long said that would reduce sharply the cost of medicine prescribed under the new program of medical care for the aged.

While the hearings will deal with federal health programs, Long said in an interview, they also will focus a public spotlight on the whole field of drug prices.

Long said he has not set a timetable for the inquiry, and it may not be completed before the Senate adjourns this year. The Finance Committee now is working on unemployment compensation legislation, and the senator said other bills must be handled before hearings can be held on his drug proposal.

Long said without his proposed legislation, drug prices could send the cost of medicare soaring.

"Prescribing by brand name is the formula for monopoly," he told the Senate. Long said the government already buys drugs for its hospitals by chemical name, not brand name.

But he said 44 states have laws barring sale of drugs by generic name if the doctor has prescribed medicine by brand name.

Johnson Demands End To Rioting

By FRANK CORMIER

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP)— President Johnson flew into the Midwest today and demanded an end to rioting by big city Negroes, saying such violence breeds tyranny and will boomerang against the rioters.

In an address prepared for a civic luncheon in Indianapolis, Johnson said:

"Our country can abide civil protest. It can improve the lives of those who mount that protest. But it cannot abide civil violence."

Johnson, in a blunt warning that riots are self - defeating, said:

"Riots in the streets do not bring about lasting reforms. They tear at the very fabric of the community. They set neighbor against neighbor and create walls of mistrust and fear between them. They make reform more difficult by turning away the very people who can and must support reform. They start a chain reaction, the consequences of which always fall most heavily on those who begin them."

Johnson said, "There are ways of protesting that any civilized society can tolerate."

Getting specific, he said:

"The ballot box, the neighborhood committees, the political and civil rights organizations—are the means by which Americans express their resentment against intolerable conditions. They are designed to reform society, not rip it apart."

Johnson began a busy day at travel through Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky by discussing not only race violence but also defending his Viet Nam policies and arguing that his administration "has not shirked its own responsibility in the fight against inflation."

Dear Abby...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is to tell you about a letter you never received. Some time ago I received a call from my son's third grade teacher asking me to stop in at school to discuss a letter my son had written in letter - writing class. It was addressed to YOU, It read:

"Dear Abby,

My dad works all the time. He is never home. He gives me money and lots of toys, but I hardly ever see him. I love him and wish he would not work all the time so I could see him more. (Signed) Danny."

That was the entire letter. Abby, I grew up during the depression and wanted my children to have it better than I did, so I worked one full time job and two part time jobs, which almost doubled my income. I managed to provide my wife and two sons with many luxuries, but I realized after reading Danny's letter that I had deprived them of something more important than material things. Myself. And my time. I took stock of myself and was ashamed of what I discovered.

For instance, I had never attended a report card conference, nor visited school. Took no part in scouting, altho both sons were Cub Scouts. I had never reprimanded my sons. This responsibility was entirely their mother's. Sometimes days would pass without seeing the boys awake. Because of the standards I had set for my family, I felt I couldn't lower those standards without first discussing it with them, so we held a family meeting. The result: I quit both part time jobs and we adjusted our standard of living according.

That was nearly two years ago and now I have discovered what a wonderful family I have. I have learned that the greatest gift a man can give his children is himself, his time and his love. Today I am a happy man, and I want to thank you, Abby, because if it were not for the letter my son wrote to you, I might never have known what I was missing. (sign me)

DEAR ABBY: I have heard some very intelligent married people say that 99 per cent of the married couples cheat on each other. Is that true?

SHELLY

DEAR SHELLY: No. But it's a pretty safe bet that those who say that 99 per cent of the married couples cheat, do.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: How can a mother-in-law win? My daughter-in-law started acting very cool and distant to me, as tho something was bothering her. I debated whether to ask her if I had done or said something to make her mad at me. Then I decided that maybe something was troubling her that was none of my business, and if I asked her what was on her mind she might get the idea that I was prying.

So I pretended not to notice. Well, my son called me from his place of work this morning and told me that his wife was very put out with me for not asking her what was wrong. In your opinion, Abby, should I have asked her?

CAN'T WIN

DEAR CAN'T: If something troubles one, the trouble one should come out with it. Obvious sulking, in hopes of being drawn out is childish. You don't say how old your daughter-in-law is, but I hope she is very young because she has a lot of growing up to do.

Speck Said Able To Stand Trial

CHICAGO (AP)—Doctors say the man accused of slaying eight student nurses has not suffered a heart attack and will be able to go on trial.

Richard Speck, 24, has pericarditis—an inflammation of the sac surrounding the heart—and "is doing quite well,' Dr. Sheldon Slodki, cardiologist at the Cermak Memorial (Birdwell) Hospital in the city jail, told a news conference Friday.

Doctors had said when Speck became ill several days ago that there was an 80 per cent chance he had suffered a heart attack.

Slodki said Speck's temperature was normal and his condition was 'fine."

He said Speck would not be allowed on his feet until he has been free of fever for several days.

Speck, ex-convict and itinerant seaman born in Monmouth, Ill., and reared in Dallas, Tex., is charged with murdering Gloria Jean Davy, 22, of Dyer, Ind., one of eight South Chicago Community Hospital nurses and nursing students strangled and stabbed to death July 14 in the far South Side townhouse where they lived.

Prosecutors say he has not been officially charged with the other slayings for technical reasons.

Parents Begin Vigil Over Twin Girls

DALLAS (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Grady Lindsey of Landrum, S. C., began a long vigil today — one that could last three weeks or more — over their twin daughters who underwent a delicate kidney transplant operation.

The operation, only the second one performed at Parkland Hospital and the 33rd known to the medical profession, was completed Friday when Janet Lindsey gave up one of her healthy kidneys to her 10-year-old twin, Joyce.

Joyce is afflicted with congenital hypoplasia, a malfunction of the kidneys.

"Janet was somewhat apprehensive about losing a kidney because she thought she would not grow any more," a hospital spokesman said.

But her fears were dispelled by a visit from another set of twin girls who had successfully undergone an identical operation nearly two years ago.

They are Nancy and Mary Freeman of Fort Worth, who also were 10 when they were operated upon.

Lindsey, a textile mill employe, said members of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center team which performed the operation on his daughters told him that they "would be in the hospital three more weeks if all went according to plan."

Joyce weighed only 48 pounds when brought here. She was in the operating room 6 hours and 15 minutes. Her sister weighed 71 pounds. Her surgical procedure lasted 5 hours and 10 minutes.

Joyce's deficient kidneys were not removed. 'They will do no harm," the hospital spokesman said.

He added that there is 'no shortening of the life expectency by the taking of one kidney."

Cape Teams Prepare For Gemini 11

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —While the Gemini 10 astronauts relived their dramatic moments in space for the experts today, launch teams here were busily preparing for the next Gemini adventure—No. 11, scheduled Sept. 9.

The Gemini 10 pilots, Navy Cmdr. John W. Young and Air Force Maj. Michael Collins, returned here Friday after an overnight stay aboard the helicopter carrier Guadalcanal, which retrieved them from the sea after a near-perfect landing climaxed their three-day journey.

One of the launch crews went right back to work and erected another Titan 2 for Gemini 11 on a launch stand. The spacecraft, Atlas and Agena are being checked out in hangars here.

"It's certainly nice to be back," said Young. "We aere up over 400 miles, and Columbus was right — the world is round."

Collins added:

We were very happy with the mission, but feel there is much more to be done up there."

Just what can be done is being discussed in 10 days of extensive debriefing sessions which started soon after the astronauts' return here.

Asked To Condemn US Policies

GENEVA (AP) — The World Conference on Church and Society was asked today to adopt a report containing outspoken criticism of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

At the same time, 72 American lay and religious leaders urged President Johnson not to take reprisals in the question of U.S. prisoners in Viet Nam.

Section three submitted to the conference for approval a report which included these general affirmations:

"The massive and growing American military presence in Viet Nam and the long continued bombing of villages in the south end of targets a few miles from cities in the North cannot be justified.

"They involve the danger of escalation of the war into a world conflict and for this reason do not bring South Viet Nam closer to political stability or solve the problems which have produced a revolutionary situation in that country."

The section comprised 82 laymen and theologians from all continents. The report also called briefly for an end to military infiltration of the South by North Viet Nam.

The conference will study the report Monday at its final plenary session.

The 72 Americans sent President Johnson a cable containing their views on the prisoner issue. North Viet Nam has threatened to try as war criminals American fliers held captive by Hanoi.

The cable said in part:

"The current episode involving American prisoners should not be made the occasion for any acts of reprisal. We are also calling upon the government and the people of North Viet Nam to urge that captured personnel be treated according to standards set up by the International Red Cross.

"We deplore any suggestion that we lay waste the cities of North Viet Nam..."

CAPTURED VIETNAMESE

US Pondering Sailors' Future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Navy Paul H. Nitze says the United States is pondering "the future disposition" of 19 North Vietnamese sailors it is holding as prisoners.

Nitze did not rule out the possibility of an exchange of the Communist seamen for captured U. S. airmen which Hanoi has threatened to try as war criminals. But he added: "I do not know the status of any exchange."

The North Vietnamese sailors were captured in June during a naval engagement in the Gulf of Tonkin. Other Communist prisoners have been turned over to South Viet Nam but the seamen have remained in U. S. custody, prompting unofficial speculation about possible efforts for a prisoner exchange.

At about the same time Nitze talked with Pentagon newsmen Friday, Secretary of State Dean Rusk called on the Soviet Union to join with Britain in reconvening the Geneva conference to discuss a peaceful settlement of the Viet Nam war.

Britain and the Soviet Union are cochairmen of the 14-nation body which met at Geneva in 1954 and 1962 on Southeast Asia.

"We have tried in every way we know to engage the other side in negotiations for a peaceful settlement," Rusk told the nternational Platform Association, an organization of professional lecturers.

In a question-and-answer session following his address, Rusk was asked why U. S. planes don't bomb North Viet Nam's principal port, Haiphong — "and to hell with Russian shipping" there.

"We could make this into a larger war very quickly," Rusk replied. He said it is in the best interests of the United States to "keep open the possibility of a prompt and peaceful conclusion without a general war if we can."

Rusk made no mention of captured American servicemen, but in Paris a French diplomat said he thought the U. S. prisoners would be tried but not executed.

Jean Sainteny, who recently returned from a mission to Hanoi for President Charles de Gaulle, said in a broadcast interview, "In my opinion the American pilots held prisoner will certainly be tried and in the presence of a very large crowd.

"But I do not think that the sentences — probably capital punishment — will be carried out."

Elimination Of Hazards Provides Two-Fold Benefit

Several weeks ago a state fire inspector visited Snyder. While here he inspected the city's firefighting equipment, along with fire safety conditions around town.

He expressed considerable interest in the city's program which has eliminated some hazardous structures and will do more in this area.

A few days ago the results of the inspection were translated into something concrete. The city's key fire insurance rate was reduced from 25 cents to 21 cents.

That is the fourth year in a row that the key rate has been reduced here, dropping from 33 cents to 21 cents, which means a savings of some $10,000 or more per year in fire insurance premiums for local citizens.

Part of the latest reduction is attributed to new equipment provided for the fire department, but most of it undoubtedly stems from the consistent program to eliminate hazardous structures. This program is paying off in dollars and cents for citizens as well as improved physical appearance of property.

Water Board's Projections A 'Natural' For Challenge

Sporadic disagreement with the Texas Water Development Board's population projections should not come as a surprise. And, they are not complaints born of over-ambitious community pride.

The board's population projections serve as a basis for its proposals to meet water needs in the state through the year 2020, or approximately 50 years. Thus, if a city or town has a projected census of say 50,000 in that period, one might assume that come what may it will be no greater than that because it will not have a water allocation for more growth.

In this sense, the Texas Water Development Board is cast in the role of pre-determining the eventual size of some Texas cities. It may not matter in the cases of some of the smaller towns because they could have a big growth percentage-wise and still have a negligible effect numerically on the regional picture.

Incidentally, Snyder's projected population over this period is twice the present count—or the same rate as Brownwood, Brownfield, Ballinger, Colorado City, Elgin, Fredericksburg and Seminole in the Colorado River Basin. Austin is expected to be the No. 1 city in the Colorado River Basin, while San Angelo is projected to overtake Odessa and Midland and claim the No. 2 spot. Big Spring's population is expected to increase three-fold.

In Snyder's case, if we should triple instead of double our population there probably would be enough water in contingency to take care of us. On the other hand, if one of the larger cities should have an opportunity to hike its population by 100 per cent more than expected there might not be enough water.

That's what all the hollering is about. Everyone wants a cushion to take care of more people, just in case they come along.

Mayors Call For More State Aid

HOUSTON (AP)—More help from state legislators, including a larger share of state taxes, was the major suggestion from mayors attending a four-day meeting on Southern states' problems here this week.

The Southern Conference of the Council of State governments, attended by some 200 legislators and aides, closed Friday after election of Rep. David Givens of Tennessee as chairman and Texas House Speaker Ben Barnes as vice chairman.

Next year's council meeting will be held at San Antonio.

Several of the mayors who were present at this year's sessions were attending the meeting for the first time.

Mayor Stanford Brookshire of Charlotte, N.C., told the legislators that the state governments must help the cities in their search for needed revenues.

Indicating much of the answer would depend on the legislators, Brookshire asked: "Will urban growth produce beautiful, livable cities or asphalt jungles?"

Another South Carolina mayor C. Palmer Gaillard of Charleston, suggested larger shares of state liquor taxes should be poured into the cities' treasuries.

"We don't think it is fair for most liquor taxes to benefit rural areas when most of the liquor is sold in the cities," he said. "It creates a tremendous police problem for the cities."

Kenneth A. Schmied, mayor of Louisville, Ky., suggested a city income tax as the answer to the rising costs of city government.

Congress should authorize the cities to levy an income tax of one or two per cent, which would be deductible from the amount of federal income tax due, Schmied said.

"This would be deducted not from taxable income, but from the federal income tax due and payable," he added.

Both Schmied and Gaillard criticized state and federal governments for indirectly taking tax money away from the cities and not returning a fair share.

Pooling Measure Virtually Unused

By LEE JONES
(For MAX B. SKELTON)

AUSTIN (AP) — Since the forced oil and gas lease pooling bill took effect last August it has been virtually an unused law, which has left state regulatory officials well satisfied.

The influential Texas Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO), which wrote the bill and worked hard for its passage, also is pleased with its effects.

Seven applications for compulsory unitization have been filed with the Texas Railroad Commission, but four were cancelled when voluntary arrangements were worked out. Two cases have been heard, and Examiner Fred Young plans to submit his recommendation in one of them to the commission in about two weeks.

The commission ruling will set the stage for a possible court battle.

The bill, passed in the early days of the 1965 Legislature, authorizes the commission to force pool small tracts in reservoirs discovered since March 8, 1961, the date of the Texas Supreme Court's historic Normanna decision. The commission may compel creation of production units of up to 160 acres for oil and 640 acres for gas if efforts to pool voluntarily fail.

"It has worked out amazingly well," said Railroad Commissioner Jim Langdon.

The commission's first decision under the pooling law will come on an application by Hugh Ray Ashford. He seeks to pool his 45-acre tract, which has no well, with an adjoining 35-acre tract with a producing oil well in the Sims Field of Bowie County. Records show Ashford has been unable to drill because of the field's 80-acre spacing rule.

What results has the bill had, in the absence of a rash of pooling applications to the commission?

"I feel there have been more voluntary pooling agreements with the forced pooling bill in the background," said a TIPRO spokesman. He added the belief that there has been more exploration because of lower production costs inherent in fewer wells on pooled tracts.

Langdon said the bill has helped conserve oil and gas and has given some small landowners the opportunity to make money out of their mineral rights.

"If the cost of drilling a well exceeded the value of the minerals a landowner recovered, he just wouldn't drill it," he said. "The Normanna and Port Acres decisions left the commisssion without any authority to protect small tract operators. In effect, this bill eliminates this and makes it possible for anyone who has a small tract to pool."

The Texas Supreme Court's Normanna and Port Acres decisions invalidated commission production formulas which favored small tract operators.

Young said there have been fewer Rule 37 applications for closer well spacing than allowed by field rules.

The major opponent to the bill when it was before the legislature was Stanley Woods, president of the Texas Landowners and Independent Oil and Gas Association. He predicted this week, "A lawsuit is inevitable."

Woods, disagreeing with the TIPRO official, said exploration has fallen off because of the bill.

"We've dropped over a hundred and some rigs since that bill passed. That means less oil is definitely being found. We aren't finding the reserves. For the small independent or even middle-sized independent to put a block together is prohibitive," he said.

Awards Are Planned By Fluvanna YF

FLUVANNA — A crowd of approximately 100 persons is expected Thursday night at the Fluvanna Community Center when members of the Fluvanna Young Farmers Chapter and their families gather for presentation of several awards for outstanding service to the chapter.

These will feature awards to presidents of the chapter, including Ray Herring, the chapter's first president who served in 1964; Buddy Drum, 1965 and Don Jones, 1966.

Also, the Star Farmer of the year from the Fluvanna Young Farmers Chapter will be named and a trophy will be presented to him by Johnnie Ammons, manager of Midwest Electric Cooperative, donor of the trophy.

The session also will be a farewell party for the Herman Kiesling family who will move to New Mexico soon. Kiesling has received a teaching fellowship from New Mexico State University, where he will do research on wool and work toward his masters degree.

It was Kiesling who first brought the attention of Fluvanna young men to the Young Farmers of Texas program. Through his efforts and guidance as advisor, the Fluvanna Young Farmer Chapter was formed and quickly built an enviable record of achievement.

There will be a program of entertainment and plenty of homemade ice cream and cookies will be on hand.

Viet Festival Part Of US Project Lamson II

By BOB OHMAN

PHU LOI, South Viet Nam (AP) — An Army band played popular tunes from a makeshift stage and the audience of women and children clapped in rhythm.

At the rear of a truck, another group of women jostled one another to receive free clothing. In a nearby tent, other women shouted numbers on a lottery for such prizes as sewing kits and food packages.

This was the Thuan Giao village festival, organized by the U.S. 1st Infantry Division and Vietnamese 5th Division. But only women, children and old men were present. Their attendance was compulsory.

The men of the village, between the ages of 15 and 45, were several blocks away at the schoolhouse, awaiting interrogation to determine if they were Viet Cong guerrillas.

The festival was part of Project Lamson II — the pacification program being conducted in towns and villages around Phu Loi.

Spearheading the project is a task force of young American officers working out of the 1st Division's artillery headquarters at Phu Loi, 20 miles northeast of Saigon.

Some 30,000 persons live inside the 20-square mile area chosen for Lamson II. In the first four "festivals" held, the results were: 7 Viet Cong killed and 34 captured; 23 former Viet Cong detained; 7 army deserters and 193 draft-dodgers arrested; 11 false identification cards confiscated; and 295 men held for further questioning.

The American and Vietnamese troops also served 12,000 free meals and distributed 3,000 four-pound sacks of rice, 4 million propaganda leaflets and magazines. Medical-dental teams treated nearly 5,000 patients.

"The biggest result, however, has been that now when we drive through these villages the people smile and wave," said Capt. Roy Davis of Tacoma, Wash. "When we first got here even the children wouldn't smile. Now they feel more secure. We have to convince them that we will stay here and they will be safe."

The first step in an Army-style village festival is to seal off the village the night before to keep guerrillas from escaping. At dawn, Vietnamese soldiers move through the village, house by house, gathering the men for questioning and searching for weapons.

The other residents are sent to the festival site where Army tents are set up for the entertainment and meals.

The American task force working on Lamson II considers Tan Phuoc Khan village to be its biggest success so far.

As the troops surrounded the village, several Viet Cong tried to flee. Two were killed, including the village's guerrilla chief. A 15-year-old girl led a search party to a tunnel where eight Viet Cong were found.

The one-day festival is just the beginning, however. "We have to go back as often as possible to prove that we are going to stay," Davis said.

Texan Injured In Ohio Collision

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A truck-automobile collision Friday took the life of Mrs. Sue Rue, 57, of New Albany, Ind., and brought minor injuries to Barnard Perry, 56, of Denison, Tex.

Mrs. Rue died several hours after the car in which she occupied the right side of the back seat attempted a left turn in the truck's path police said.

Mrs. Sara Perry, 57, wife of Bernard Perry, was driving the automobile. She was not injured.

The truck driver, Jimmy Spidell, 33, of Dayton, escaped injury.

Africans Must Prove Race Status

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — For years "trying for white" has been a kind of racial game played by some South Africans of mixed blood — those people known here as coloreds. Many with light skins have been able to slip across the color line into the more privileged world of the white man.

This is to become increasingly dangerous.

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd's all-white government demands that by early August every nonblack citizen must register and possess an identity card stating his racial group.

Blacks have always had to carry reference or passbooks which rigidly control their right to move or seek work in white areas.

The coloreds, numbering 1,742,000, are the racial group likely to be most affected by the new registration. It will become increasingly difficult to quietly cross the racial color line into the white world.

There are many reasons near-white coloreds want to be known as whites. Their children can study at white schools. Father gets a larger salary check working as a white and his family enjoy a better standard of living and greater social status.

They can dine in plush white restaurants, stay at white hotels, enjoy white movies, churches and theaters, or ride buses and trains labeled "whites only."

Many border-line coloreds are dodging the law that requires them to register. They fear the consequences of an official probe into their family background which may prove them to be living illegally in a white area.

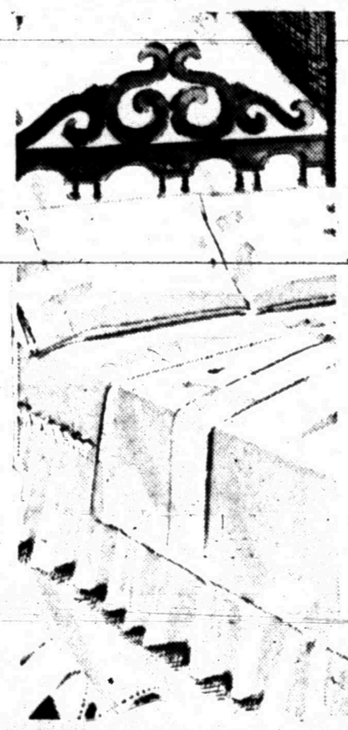

The law, effective Aug. 1, makes it a criminal offense for any white, colored or Asian to be without a registration card. It must be produced if demanded by a law officer. Anyone who fails to register under the law will draw a $50 fine.

Snyder Tops Stonewall-Kent

C-City, Snyder Meet In Finals

Snyder's American Little League All - Stars continued their winning ways Friday night by defeating the Stonewall-Kent Counties' All-Stars 13-8, and moved to the tournament showdown with Colorado City Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Snyder's Little League Park.

Tonight's winner will be able to remain in Little League competition while the loser will drop out like the three preceding games.

Colorado City drew a bye in the second round of the tournament, and got the chance to play in the finals when they beat Rotan 9-5 Thursday night. Snyder's American League reached the finals with two wins over Snyder's National League and Stonewall-Kent.

The tournament is a single elimination affair, and a loss by any team ends their season while winners advance in hopes of playing in national competition.

Snyder led all the way after scoring two runs in the first inning without the aid of a base hit, but the decisive inning was in the third when they scored seven times on four singles.

Scotty Sullivan walked, Gary Patterson singled, Jackie Murray walked, and Albert Hernandez drove in the first run with a ground ball. Two back-to-back singles by Mike Glasscock and Carlos Cisnero did further damage. With two out and two runners on, Butch Buchanan singled driving in two runs and advanced to third on Stonewall-Kent errors. He then scored on a wild pitch by losing pitcher Windell Dickerson to end the innings scoring.

Snyder also scored three runs in the fifth and one in the sixth to maintain an easy lead.

Mike Glasscock was the winning pitcher, but had to have relief help in the bottom of the fifth inning from Buchanan. Between them they recorded 14 strikeouts, but both pitchers were in trouble in nearly every inning. Stonewall-Kent scored in every inning except the first and second frames, but their biggest surge was in the fourth when they scored three times with the aid of two walks by Glasscock and a timely single by Ronnie Letz.

Starting pitchers will not be announced until game time tonight, but Snyder will probably remain about the same in the overall lineup. Colorado City, with a day's rest and having played only one game in the playoffs, could be in the best shape as far as pitching is concerned, but Snyder could have enough momentum for two straight wins to carry them through.

Tonight's contest could be a free scoring affair as both teams have already proven their ability to score runs. Colorado City won their first game 9-5 while Snyder won two games by the scores of 8-0 and 13-8.

Palmer Says Anything Can Happen Yet

By HAL PARIS
Associated Press Sports Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — "Anything can happen on this course."

And with that comment, Arnold Palmer sounded the battle cry that could make Sam Snead, Al Geiberger and Don January cringe.

The 54-year-old Snead, the halfway leader in the PGA Golf Championship, has put together rounds of 68-71—139.

He showed signs of weariness Friday but was the only player in the field able to master par for the 36 holes of the rugged par 70 Firestone Country Club course.

Geiberger, the first round leader with Snead, and January, from Dallas, Tex., were only a stroke back with 140s.

But Palmer, the all-time leading money-winner, wasn't ready to concede a thing despite a 75-73—148 that left him nine strokes off the pace.

"If a guy gets going and gets a break or two, he could shoot a good score, even a 65," Palmer said. "Better putting could have put me in reasonably good shape."

And several others echoed his sentiments.

Jack Nicklaus, the Masters and British Open king, said he was playing better after tagging a 71 to his opening 75 for a 146.

And January, asked if he felt better with the edge the leaders had over Palmer and Nicklaus, responded:

"What is a fairly safe lead distance over those guys?"

Veteran Julius Boros, who had 141 at the midway point, said even par should win this tournament.

'I'd take 280 but I'm sure Sam probably would like a 276," he quipped.

Most of the players also concurred that the course, baked by hot and dry weather, was playing tougher than ever.

The greens are getting crusty and hard and a lot of them are turning a little brown.

Senate Confirms Judges' Nominations

They are judges Irving L. Goldberg of Dallas, to the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals; Woodrow B. Seals and John V. Singleton Jr., to the Southern Texas District; Ernest Guinn and Jack Roberts, to the Western Texas District; and William M. Taylor Jr., to the Northern Texas District.

Jesse Dobbs was confirmed as U. S. marshal for Western Texas.

KAGOSHIMA, Japan (AP)—A three-stage Lambda 3H rocket, forerunner of one Japan hopes will orbit its first artificial satellite by 1968, was successfully fired today.

The Lambda 3H soared to a height of 1,100 miles over the Pacific. A spokesman for the Institute of Space and Aeronautical Science of Tokyo University reported the 60-foot, 8.4 - ton rocket was launched from the institute's space observation center in southern Japan.

Crash Kills Instructors

HEMPSTEAD, Tex. (AP)—Two Houston ROTC instructors on a training flight to Houston from Mineral Wells, Tex., crashed into a wooded area east of here Friday. One died and the other was injured.

Army Maj. Melvin Gus Burleson, 36, an ROTC instructor at Booker T. Washington High School in Houston, died at Waller County Hospital here.

Injured was Army Maj. Cleveland Roy Petitt, 36, an ROTC instructor at Worthing High School in Houston. He was transferred late Friday from Waller Hospital to Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Both of the men were reserve officers in the 75th Maneuver Area Command.

Burleson was pilot of the single-engine Beechcraft which crashed about six miles east of here, slamming into a tree. Investigators said the craft's fuel tanks were empty when it was found.

Military authorities and the Federal Aviation Agency will investigate the crash.

Cuban Scientists Return From Deep

BROYLES ARRIVES — University of Arkansas coach Frank Broyles is shown receiving a hearty Snyder welcome as he leaves the plane at the Snyder airport Saturday morning. Broyles is in Snyder to compete in the Snyder Country Club 1966 Open Golf Tournament. Darrell Royal was expected to arrive later in the afternoon. Broyles is shown shaking hands with Joe Sentell and Arkansas native, Guy Sullivan. Manager of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, Jim Heath is looking on as Sentell welcomes the famous coach.

Battle 'Royal' Here Says Frank Broyles

Frank Broyles, University of Arkansas coach, arrived at 10 a.m. Saturday ready to play in the Snyder Country Club 1966 Open Golf Tournament.

Broyles was met at the airport by members of the Producers Club who gave him the gold carpet treatment as the nationally famous coach stepped from the plane flown by Bill Atwood.

Darrell Royal, University of Texas coach and long time rival of Broyles, was expected to arrive for the tournament later in the afternoon. Both are avid fans of golf and compete in many golf tournaments this time of year.

Broyles declined to mention much about football, but did say he was sure the SWC was in for a thrilling year. His main thoughts, however, were turned on the next two days of golf, and he was looking forward to playing on the 6400 yard lay-out at the Snyder Country Club.

Broyles is teamed with Charles Bruce, pro at the Snyder Country Club, in the Open. Bruce, an Arkansas native, speculated that the boys from Arkansas would beat the Texas challengers.

Bruce flew with Atwood to pick up Broyles, and both had a chance to discuss golf strategy. Broyles and Royal have never played on the Snyder course, and the sand trap-laden greens may give the two amateurs a little trouble.

Royal has already said he was looking forward to playing in the same tournament again with Broyles, but no one expected the two to talk much about the upcoming season on their brief stay in Snyder.

Both Royal and Broyles are given good chances by preseason prognosticators to coach teams capable of winning the coveted SWC crown this year.

Nationally ranked Arkansas won the SWC last year, and is given an excellent chance to repeat as the champions. Texas finished with a 6-4 record, worst year for Royal, but is given a good chance this year to make a comeback with very strong sophomores.

In the Open division, a pro and an amateur or two amateurs will play from scratch as partners. In the amateur division two amateurs will play with handicaps.

There will be five prizes in each division with merchandise going to the amateurs and prize money going to the pros. The pro on the winning team will pick up $200 with $175, $100, $75 and $50 going to the next four.

In addition, the four low pros will receive $175, $100, $75 and $50 respectively.

Henry Ransom, current senior champion of the Texas PGA, was due to add spice to the event. His partner is Cloyce Talbott, one of the tournament co-chairmen, in the partnership match.

Royal is teamed with Ft. Worth pro Doug Higgins in the Open Division.

Fred Carter, famous Los Angeles Negro pro, was here and was recognized as one of the favorites of the tournament. On the practice round Friday, Carter was a cool 6 under par.

Dodd Denies Fare Paid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Thomas J. Dodd has denied that the Los Angeles Junior Chamber of Commerce paid his air fare to California in 1964 during an investigation for which he was reimbursed by the Senate.

He said the Jacycees' $320.78 check was for his wife's expenses.

"My own expenses for the California trip, including my air transportation, were properly paid by the juvenile delinquency subcommittee in connection with our investigation into drug addiction and the interstate shipment of firearms," the Connecticut Democrat said Friday in a statement.

Victor Stark, executive secretary of the Jaycees, said the organization also sent the senator a check for $320.78 for his air fare. Senate records show Dodd was paid a similar amount from the Senate contingent fund for his roundtrip fare.

Dodd is under investigation by the Senate Ethics Committee on misconduct charges.

Bows Out Of Racing

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp., which virtually swept the boards in stock car racing this year, is bowing out for 1967.

B. M. Rodger, Chrysler's special car manager, said the change was made to "encourage the return of stock car racing to a more independent status."

Chrysler reportedly poured about $3 million into its stock car racing program in the past year.

Chrysler said its drivers, including Richard Petty, Paul Goldsmith, Norm Nelson, Jim Hurtubise, Sam McQuagg and Dave Pearson, will finish out their 1966 contracts.

Ford withdrew earlier in a dispute over use of its overhead camshaft engine .Ford declined comment Friday on Chrysler's action, saying it will meet and decide next week what to do about 1967.

General Motors Corp., and American Motors Corp., have kept out of factory-sponsored racing, although some of their dealers have entered cars.

Pancake Palmer Adds Title To Famous Nicknames List

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — Move over Mudcat and Catfish. The American League pitching fraternity has added the name of Jim (Pancake) Palmer to its list of colorful nicknames.

The 20-year-old right-hander has won seven of his last eight decisions. Significantly, the only time he didn't figuratively flatten the opposition was when he failed to eat pancakes for breakfast.

"I don't know whether that has any bearing on it," Palmer said, "but I don't want to find out."

Palmer ate his pancakes Friday and then hurled a six-hitter as the league leading Orioles beat Chicago 3-1 and maintained their 11½-game lead over the runner-up Detroit Tigers.

Palmer permitted only four hits after yielding a first-inning run. A two-run homer by Brooks Robinson and a squeeze bunt by Paul Blair helped Palmer to his 11th victory in 15 decisions — tops on the Baltimore staff.

It was the third victory in a row for Palmer since he lost to Kansas City on June 28.

"We arrived in Kansas City early in the morning after a flight from Los Angeles," Palmer said. "I stayed in bed for extra sleep, and then I didn't have time to eat before getting the bus for the ball park."

Palmer's wife Susan is aware of the pancake kick. She prepares them at home and reminds Jim by telephone to eat his pancakes on the road.

In Boston last month, Palmer could eat only half his order because blueberries had been added and the pancakes were filling. That didn't affect the charm. Baltimore scored 16 runs that day for Palmer.

Once, when Oriole Manager Hank Bauer was undecided about his starting pitcher, Palmer ate pancakes two days running before getting his turn on the mound. He won.

Palmer goes through other routines to ward off evil spirits which cause pitchers to lose.

The Oriole hurler places three pieces of bubble gum in his hip pocket when he pitches, making certain he doesn't mix the two brands available in the locker room.

Just before leaving the clubhouse to warm up, Palmer and relief pitcher Stu Miller touch their right forefringers together.

"That started when Stu was on a winning streak," Palmer said. "I figured some of his luck would rub off."

Early in the year, Palmer's pet superstition was catching the ball from coach Gene Woodling with his bare hand as they passed each other between innings.

"I broke him of that," Woodling said. "What would he do if I didn't show up?"

But so far, Woodling hasn't been able to do anything about the pancakes.

Golfer Says Game Is A Science

BARRINGTON, Ill. (AP) — "Golf is a science, and I just hope I don't drop the test tube."

That is how Barbara Fay Boddie summed up her 36-hole match for the Women's Western Amateur Golf Championship today against teen-ager Peggy Conley, a University of Washington art student from Spokane.

Mrs. Boddie, 26, daughter of a Shreveport, La., golf pro and wife of his assistant, seeks to become the first Western Amateur winner in three consecutive years since Bessie Anthony did it starting with the tournament's 1901 inaugural.

She has been six under par for the entire meet over the rolling Barrington Hills Country Club course after setting a competitive course record of a five-under 71 to capture medalist honors.

Mrs. Boddie defeated 17-year-old Jane Huntsberger of Camarillo, Calif., 5 and 4 in Friday's semifinals.

Peggy had to rally in eliminating Sharron Moran of Carlsbad, Calif., 2 and 1.

Ancient Cannon Balls Netted By Boat

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The fishing boat Alaford recently netted two Civil War cannon balls dated 1862 in the Cape Fear River. A Navy demolition team will take charge of the cannon balls, which the Coast Guard says are probably filled with black powder and iron shot.

Noting that the cannon balls had not exploded, a Coast Guardsman with a decided Southern drawl, said "Maybe that's why we lost the Civil War."

Swinging Sammy 'Golden' Leader

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Swinging Sammy Snead is tickling the hearts of oldtimers the world over with his youthful early footing in the PGA's Golden Anniversary Championship.

No longer The Slammer by his own admission, the 54-year-old West Virginian left behind him a field packed with youngsters who weren't born when Snead won his first golf championship.

Snead shot a 36-35—71 Friday for a 139 total and was the only one under par at the halfway mark of the tournament over the 7,180-yard, par 35-35—70 Firestone Country Club course.

Al Geiberger and Don January were one shot behind at 140.

Limping along with a hip injury, Snead went to the practice tee after Friday's round to work on his theory that "the time to practice is when you're playing well."

Tommy Aaron, who was born the year Snead won his first tournament — the Oakland Open in 1937 — walked past Snead, who kept threading perfect shots down the practice fairway.

"No sense practicing next to him," said Aaron. "It only makes you look bad."

"You'd look like a diamond over here son," said Snead. "See that shot, that was a seven iron. You'd only need a nine to get that far."

How much has Snead lost on his shots off the tee as the years have piled up? "Twenty five yards on all the long shots," he said. "If you need two long shots to get to a hole, you're starting off with a 50-yard disadvantage. That's a lot of yardage and you have to make up for it with accuracy and putting."

Putting, however, is not one of Snead's strengths these days.

"Age works on your nerves and putting is all nerves. I've thought about taking pills for the nerves but they take away your coordination and you can't play golf without coordination," he said.

Snead, with only the wrinkles around his piercing eyes showing any sign of his age, still has the fluid, beautiful swing which has earned him more than 100 championships.

"Yep, the swing's the same," said Snead, "but you lose the elasticity in your body as you grow older. That's the whole difference along with nerves, of course."

Snead kept banging away at the practice tee, telling onlookers exactly what he would do with each shot and then doing it.

Going into those final two rounds Snead also was trailed by Julius Boros at 141. Grouped at 143 were Gary Player, Doug Sanders, Jacky Cupit, Aaron, and Billy Farrell.

Jack Nicklaus, the Masters and British Open champion, was tied with those at 146. This group also included U.S. Open champion Billy Casper. Arnold Palmer was nine shots away with 148.

Texas League Star Bats In 8 Runs

By The Associated Press

Willie Crawford of Albuquerque had himself a night in the Texas League when he batted in eight runs to lead his team to an 11-1 victory over Dallas-Fort Worth.

It sounded like a record until an examination of a game played 64 years ago showed a man named Nig Clarke hit eight home runs in eight times at bat playing for Corsicana again Texarkana.

Runs batted in weren't kept in those days, however, and it could not be determined if Clarke hit his homers with men on base. He probably did.

Anway, Crawford can claim to have tied the record in the absence of this information.

The victory kept Albuquerque in a tie with Austin for third place. Austin clubbed Amarillo 6-5 to give Arkansas another long lead.

Arkansas downed El Paso 6-4 and is 3½ games ahead of second place Amarillo.

Bill Larkin of Albuquerque became the winningest pitcher in the league as he twirled a seven-hitter. He now has a 13-6 record.

Arkansas scored four unearned runs to beat El Paso as the biggest crowd of the season—4,182—turned out at El Paso. Brian Sinnott won his 11th pitching victory, although he needed relief in the last three innings.

Pitcher Gene Garnell drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly as Austin shaded Amarillo. A two-run throwing error by Amarillo third baseman Doug Rader set it up for Garnell's payoff punch.

Amarillo again is at Austin, Dallas-Fort Worth at Albuquerque and Arkansas at El Paso tonight.

Ryun, Clarke Head List Of Stars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — It was a two-day but not entirely a two-man show that got underway today in Los Angeles' climactic track and field meet of the year, the International Games at Memorial Coliseum.

Runners Ron Clarke of Australia and America's 19-year-old Jim Ryun, were billed as the outstanding individuals.

The 29-year-old Clarke, a man who loves to run, was given ample opportunity in today's 5,000 meters and Sunday's 10,000 meters.

Ryun, the new world record holder in the mile, was set to go after another record in Sunday's 800 meters.

But their supporting cast, fellow Americans, select groups and individuals gathered from around the globe, was star-studded.

Clarke's opposition at 10,000 meters included Olympic champion Billy Mills and Tracy Smith of the United States and New Zealand's Bill Baillie.

Ryun could expect no runaway from another of America's best, Tom Farrell of New York.

The 1,500 meters Sunday finds veteran Jim Grelle of Portland, Ore., favored over such foreigners as Stig Rekdal of Norway and Ian Studd of New Zealand.

Danny Kemple of Pottsville, Pa., led New York University freshmen hitters with a .333 average this spring. He's a 6-foot-3 first baseman.

JACK SPIKES

Spikes Retires From Football

Jack Spikes, Snyder High All-Stater and T.C.U. All-American, has announced his retirement from pro football to join the investment firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis in Dallas.

Spikes, who played AFL football in Dallas, Kansas City and Houston, will become a registered representative after completion of the brokerage firm's Dallas training program and nine-week investment course in New York, according to R. T. Carlson, Dallas Resident Manager of Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis.

Last season Spikes alternated with Carlie Tolar at offensive fullback for the Houston Oilers.

This spring he sold his controlling interest in Jack Spikes, Inc., an oil field construction firm in Levelland.

A 1956 graduate of Snyder High School, Spikes was selected as an All-American halfback in his last season at Texas Christian, 1959, where he received a Bachelor of Businesss Administration degree.

A first draft choice of the Pittsburgh Steelers and the Denver Broncos, he signed with Denver and was traded to the Dallas Texans where he played from '60 through '62, moving with the club to Kansas City for the 1963-64 seasons. Selected by the new Miami Dolphins off the Houston roster in January, Spikes elected this week to retire from pro football.

Married to the former Jane DeWald of Snyder, who attended Texas Tech and graduated from T.C.U., the Spikes have a boy, 5 and a girl, 2.

Paine, Webber, Jackson and Curtis is one of the nation's oldest and largest investment firms with 49 offices, over 800 stockbrokers, 2,000 employees and 250,000 clients.

Spikes was born in Big Spring. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Spikes reside at 2806 Thirty-seventh Street in Snyder.

SWC Kickoff Is Scheduled

FORT WORTH (AP) — The eighth annual football rally—"official kickoff of the Southwest Conference football season"—is scheduled here Aug. 18, with Bud Wilkinson, former Oklahoma coaching great, as the principal speaker.

Charlie Needham, chairman of the sports committee of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce which puts on the affair, said an effort was being made to sell 2,000 tickets.

All eight Southwest Conference coaches will be in attendance and each will have three of his outstanding football players to be introduced.

There were 1,000 persons at the banquet last year.

Wilkinson, past chairman of the President's Council for Physical Fitness, is now a sports announcer for ABC.

Best Coaches Are Announced

HOUSTON (AP)—High school coaches of the year in basketball, track and baseball—Jimmy Horn of Snook, Howard Johnston of San Antonio Highlands and Cliff Gustafson of South San Antonio—will be honored at the Texas coaching school here Aug. 4.

The three, named by the Texas Sports Writers Association, will receive their awards at the annual luncheon of the Texas High School Coaches Association, at which time the coaches will induct five into the Hall of Honor.

Horn's Snook basketball team won its second straight Class B championship last winter and in so doing tied the all-time national high school record for consecutive victories at 78. In four years at Snook, Horn has compiled a record of 181 victories against only 14 losses.

Johnston's Highlands track team was undefeated for the 1966 season, winning the Class AAAA state title with only one senior on the squad. He has won five district and three regional titles in five years.

Gustafson has a fabulous record in baseball and is the first to be named coach of the year three times. He won the honor in 1958 and 1961. In 11 years at South San Antonio, Gustafson won 306 games and lost only 65 and during the period won six state Class AAA championships.

Don Coleman of Spring Branch Memorial's Class AAAA state champions was runnerup to Horn in basketball. James Segrest of Monahans, who won the Class AAA track title, was a close second to Johnston. J. B. Carroll of Freeport Brazosport, whose team was Class AAAA state champion, was second to Gustafson for baseball coach of the year.

The Coaches Association will induct these coaches into its Hall of Honor—Gene McCollum of Port Neches, Tom Pruett of Victoria, Bill Stages of Corpus Christi Ray, Flash Walker of Freeport and Henry Frnka of San Antonio. The four represent more than a century of coaching. Frnka not only coached at Greenville High School but also served at Tulsa and Tulane Universities.

Cash Grand Slams Tigers To Victory

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Though he must now concern himself with a problem of greater moment than the winning or losing of baseball games, Bob Swift is reveling in Norm Cash's heroics along with all the other Detroit Tigers.

Cash's grand-slam home run Friday night sent the Tigers to a 10-5 victory over Cleveland and broke a six-game losing streak. And it gave Swift, back in a Detroit hospital, the first good news he'd had that day.

Swift, who became acting manager when Charlie Dressen was felled by a heart attack earlier in the season, was told Friday he had a malignant lung tumor. But when the team physician, Dr. Russell Wright, came to visit Swift in the hospital he found the former Tiger catcher as concerned with the team as himself.

"He said he'd like to see them doing better," Wright said. As far as Cash was concerned, it was no sooner said than done.

The big first baseman stepped up in the sixth with Tigers on every base and drove a pitch by Gary Bell into the upper right-field stands, ending Bell's work for the day.

Later Cash had two chances to enter the record books, but had to settle for another two runs batted in. In the seventh and ninth innings Cash came up with the bases jammed, but the first time he was walked and the second time hit a sacrifice fly.

In other American League games, Baltimore beat Chicago 3-1, Kansas City knocked off Washington 7-2, Boston edged Minnesota in 11 innings 6-5 and California took New York 6-1.

In the National League, Houston beat Pittsburgh 5-2, New York blanked Los Angeles 3-0, San Francisco took Philadelphia 4-1, St. Louis crushed Chicago 9-4 and Cincinnati bombed Atlanta 8-2.

Coach Frank Skaff will run the Tigers until either Dressen or Swift is able to return. Swift's condition is described as one that should be responsive to treatment.

Jim Palmer threw a six-hitter as the Orioles maintained their 11½-game bulge over the rest of the league. It was his 11th victory of the season. Brooks Robinson hit his 19th homer.

Jim Gosger and Danny Cater homered for Kansas City as Washington lost its fifth game in a row. The Athletics had gone eight games without a homer.

George Thomas singled in a run with two out in the 11th to give Boston its victory. Don Demeter led off the inning with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and scored on Thomas' smash between first and second.

Tom Satriano hit a two-run triple in the ninth to push California into third place. Satriano's blast came off reliever Jim Bouton after Rick Reichardt had tripled and Bob Rodgers was intentionally walked.

Mets Shut Out Dodgers For 7th Straight Victory

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The New York Mets have quit messing around with Ron Swoboda, and now he's messing around with everyone else.

The Mets' young left fielder continued his personal onslaught Friday night while the Mets continued their extraordinary winning ways, defeating the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-0 for their record seventh straight victory.

Swoboda, who complained last month that the Mets were restricting his effectiveness by playing him irregularly, hit a two-run homer that sealed the Mets' latest victory.

In New York's two previous games, both with San Francisco, Swoboda hit a 10th-inning homer that gave the Mets a 3-2 victory — rapped three hits — and drove in three runs in their 14-3 triumph.

The 22-year-old slugger has been playing every day recently, which is what he felt he should have been doing the entire season.

"They've been messing around with me," Swoboda complained about six weeks ago. "They messed around with me at the end of last season and they've been doing it again. If you have to sit around and not play for three days, you might as well quit.

"It's the young guys who are going to make this ball club. But how's a young player supposed to learn when he's in and out? I've only batted against a couple of righties. You can't learn that way. If I have to be platooned, I'll look for something else to do."

The Giants and Dodgers wouldn't mind that at all.

While the Mets remained one-half game out of eighth and moved to within one game of seventh, the Giants climbed to within two percentage points of first place in the National League by defeating Philadelphia 4-1 behind Gaylord Perry, who pitched a two-hitter and struck out 15.

Elsewhere in the NL, Houston defeated Pittsburgh 5-2, Cincinnati whipped Atlanta 8-2 and St. Louis knocked off Chicago 9-4.

In the American League, Baltimore trimmed Chicago 3-1, Detroit defeated Cleveland 10-5, California stopped New York 6-4, Boston edged Minnesota 6-5 in 11 innings and Kansas City whipped Washington 7-2.

Swoboda's homer, off Claude Osteen, came in the eighth inning. The Mets also scored in the third on Ron Hunt's single. Bob Friend blanked the Dodgers on eight hits.

Perry held the Phillies hitless for seven innings, but Clay Dalrymple led off the eighth with a line single to right field. Perry struck out Rich Allen four times and Bill White three. Willie McCovey drove in three San Francisco runs with a homer and a double.

Houston's Larry Dierker gave up home runs to Bob Bailey and Willie Stargell, but the Astros already had built a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Bailey's error, doubles by Rusty Staub, Lee Maye and Bob Aspromonte and Ron Brand's single accounted for the unearned runs.

Cincinnati exploded for six runs in the sixth inning, three on Leo Cardenas' double and two on Pete Rose's homer. That wiped out Atlanta's 2-1 lead. Frank Bolling scored both of the Braves' runs, the first on a first-inning homer.

Joe Hoerner's three-run homer climaxed a four-run, eighth-inning rally that carried St. Louis past Chicago. The blast by the relief pitcher helped the Cardinals get over the .500 mark for the first time this season. Dick Ellsworth suffered his 15th setback against four victories.

North, South Hope To Extend Streaks

HOUSTON (AP) — Two winning streaks go on the line at the Texas coaching school all-star games here next week.

The North will be seeking its fifth straight triumph in the football game with the South at Rice Stadium Thursday night, Aug. 4.

The preceding night will find the South seeking its fourth consecutive victory in the all-star basketball game at Sam Houston Coliseum.

In the overall, the North leads both series, boasting an 18-10-3 margin in football and 12-9 in basketball.

Crowd records in both games were set during the past two years. There were 39,100 at the football game in Fort Worth in 1964. At Dallas last year 8,721 turned out for the basketball game for a record.

The South, because of better height, will be a solid favorite to repeat in basketball. There is no clear-cut choice in football, although the North may be a slight choice on the basis of a better line.

Sailing Race Set

CHICAGO (AP) — One hundred and sixty-two sailing yachts — the greatest fleet in the history of the Chicago to Mackinac Island Race — today awaited the starter's gun in Chicago's outer harbor.

Ted, Casey Will Enter Hall Monday

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP)— Ted Williams, seldom hitless in 19 major league seasons, and Casey Stengel, never speechless in more than five decades as a player and manager, formally enter baseball's Hall of Fame Monday.

The pair of baseball's most colorful personalities will increase the number of members in the hall to 104.

Baseball Commissioner William D. Eckert will preside over the morning ceremonies at Cooper Park in the rear of the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum.

Stengel, 75, was elected in March when the veterans committee waived the normal five-year waiting period after a man's retirement and took a special ballot.

Williams, 47, who feuded with several writers during his playing days, was elected last January in the first year he was eligible. The former Boston Red Sox star received an overwhelming 93.3 per cent of the votes of the 10-year veterans of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

New Star Emerges In Girls Golf Meet

DALLAS (AP) — A new star emerged Friday in the State Junior Girls Golf Tournament, long dominated by Kathy Ahern of Dallas.

Lou Dill, 18, of Houston, who eliminated Miss Ahern in the semifinals, beat Jackie Evans of San Antonio 3 and 2 for the championship.

Miss Dill took three of the first five holes and Miss Evans never could catch up.

The Wichita State University field house, with 10,235 permanent seats and temporary seating on the playing floor, had an average attendance at its first 11 basketball games during 1965-66 of 10,842 fans.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

BY JOHN ABNEY

MEXICO CITY — Here we have a lot of people sitting around thinking the Marines are rowdies for inventing tear gas warfare. They use it to smoke out the communists from caves and tunnels and you possibly are thinking it is a terrible thing to do to the enemy.

Let us go on record as of now with a statement: the Aztecs invented gas warfare.

Word of honor.

It happened about 430 years ago when the Spaniards were busily conquering the country. And since the Spaniards had new fangled weapons like horses and cannon, the Aztecs were hard pressed to come up with something different.

So it occurred to them to burn big piles of dried chili and let the smoke blow into the Spanish ranks. They discovered the Spaniards were out of action for half an hour or so and couldn't do a thing about it except sit around and cry.

Of course we have not known the exact circumstances of this matter until today when I ran across these old documents hidden away in a drawer with some unpaid bills.

It seems that during a particularly heated battle on one of the causeways leading into the Aztecs' lake city of Tenochtitlan (Mexico City now), the Spaniards were pushing forward relentlessly and creating an awful disturbance.

One of the Aztec battle chiefs named Orville was complaining because his men had not eaten all day and the service was awful. So he called some of the cooks up and asked how about serving a little southern fried eagle or at least some hamburger to his troops.

The head cook shrugged and said, "Sir, we ain't got anything but a ton of dried chili pepper in the storehouse."

"What happened to the venison our warriors brought in yesterday?" Chief Orville asked.

And the cook said, "They et it. All we got is chili."

The Aztecs were stalwart warriors but their grammer was terrible.

"I can serve you some warm chili but you know how that stuff smokes and acts up when you put the fire to it," the cook said.

Orville studied him a moment and said, "Cookie, bring me out a wheelbarrow of that chili and dump it right over here. The wind is off the lake tonight and we might eat after all."

The cooks filled up a couple of wheelbarrows with chili and dumped it at the indicated spot and Orville flung a torch in the pile.

A few minutes later the wind was blowing dense clouds of smoke into the Spaniards and they were coughing and retreating and using bad language and I don't know what.

This was the first recorded gas warfare. Tear gas. Because Cortes and his men were crying faster than they could run.

Then the Aztecs made some grenades, filling hollow gourds with chili powder and hot coals. Followed the retreating Spaniards and flung the grenades into their ranks and kept them scooting and sobbing.

Frankly I don't know why the Aztecs didn't win the war with a weapon such as this. It had everything except aiming power.

And the Spaniards undoubtedly stayed upwind from them after that lamentable experience.

Vagabond Lover Proves He's Really Young At Heart

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Up and down long stairways, nimble as a mountain goat, Rudy Vallee led a tour of his hilltop mansion.

To a photographer and a reporter trailing him, he bawled cheerfully:

"No pictures with the damned megaphones! To hell with the megaphones! And the saxophones! I live in the present and the future."

To a generation of his fans it may seem unbelievable, but next Thursday the granddaddy of crooners will be 65 years old.

Vallee 65? That slim, smooth fellow with the wavy hair, who led the Connecticut Yankees dance band?

In his early days he sang through a megaphone. Remember "I'm Just a Vagabond Lover," "The Maine Stein Song," "The Whiffenpoof Song," "The Daring Young Man on the Flying Trapeze"? Him 65? Impossible!

Yes, said Vallee—

"I've made out my medicare forms and, like (the late) Adolphe Menjou probably will drive to the Social Security office and collect my $125 any month I don't work."

On his birthday he plans to be starring at the Melodyland Theater in suburban Anaheim in "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." The Pulitzer Prize musical comedy brought him back from obscurity to three triumphant years on Broadway.

Valle recently completed his same role of pompous, snappish business tycoon in a movie version of the show.

After Melodyland there will be two-week stands in "How to Succeed" at Nyack, N.Y., and Houston, Tex., and "then probably Las Vegas or another picture."

Vallee sat at one of several umbrella-shaded tables overlooking the swimming pool and tennis court. Since 1941 he has owned the huge, Spanish-style house, built in 1930 by Ann Harding on the crest of one of Beverly's highest hills.

The front-door chimes ring the first five notes of his old-time theme, "My Time Is Your Time."

A chamber beneath and as big as the tennis court has a rubber doormat announcing "Rue de Vallee." The vault houses memorabilia of Maine because of his hero-worship of saxophone virtuoso Rudy Wiedoeft.

There are great racks of Vallee orchestrations — "$230,000 worth," he said. Stacks of sheet music with his picture on the cover — "Betty Coed," "Every Little Girl Wants a Rudy Vallee." All of the scripts from his famous radio hour, which spanned the decade 1929-39 and was second only to Amos 'n' Andy in popularity.

Every record he ever made is stored, every movie script, every program from tens of thousands of appearances.

There are panels of photos: radio costar John Barrymore; astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. and President John F. Kennedy at "How to Succeed;" some of the stars whose radio careers he helped launch, such as Kate Smith, Eddie Cantor, Bob Hope, Edgar Bergen, Red Skelton, Bob Burns.

There are great racks of bottled wine, much of it spoiled. "I just stupidly never used it," said Vallee. There are shelves full of large scrapbooks, now numbering 222, in which he pastes newspaper clippings, letters, photos, theater programs and other mementos.

On other shelves are Vallee's old saxophones and megaphones from his vaudeville days. "In the boxes they said they couldn't hear me."

Back by the pool, Vallee — affable, debonair as ever, a torrential talker, bubbled with plans.

"I'd love to do the life story of Toscanini on film. Conducting is my life. It could do for me what 'From Here to Eternity' did for Sinatra.

"I do a one-man show of humor and songs. Forty minutes of humor. I played a Hawaii engagement in '59, the Pearl Harbor officers' mess, with their wives, and fractured 'em."

"I'm just a person who abhors waste. I smoke 7-cent cigars because I like them. A man gave me a big, $200 box of cigars and I gave them away."

Vallee shares the big house with his handsome, red-haired, fourth wife, the former Elanor Norris, 27 years his junior. They were married in 1949.

His greatest satisfaction?

"My radio success. I was the toast of the East, simply by broadcasting from a little night club."

That was the Heigh-Ho Club in New York, in 1928 and Vallee came on the air there and on later network broadcasts — remember? — with: "Heigh-Ho, everybody!"

Texas' Dry Heat Browns Ranges

COLLEGE STATION (AP)—Dry heat plagued farmers last week. Early crops are maturing rapidly and ranges in most of the state are browning and stock water in some areas is becoming short, said John Hutchison, director of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Generally, he said, cotton did well with harvesting increasing in South Texas. Irrigation is heavy in the west and northwest and in other areas where water is available, Hutchison said.

Livestock are in fair to good shape with grazing still adequate in most sections. Feeding has started in some counties, he noted. General rains would be welcomed in most counties for both crops and pastures, he said.

The Panhandle has reached a critical moisture stage in hot and dry weather. Ranges are below average and feeding is increasing. All wheat has been harvested and grain sorghum has been planted. The onion and potato harvests were active.

South Plains' moisture is short but light and spotted showers helped some. Cotton was blooming and excellent. Sorghum is beginning to head. Onions, cucumbers and potatoes are being harvested. Ranges need rain. Irrigation wells are being pumped to capacity. Labor is limited. General moisture, especially on dryland crops, will be urgently needed within several days.

All the Rolling Plains (Vernon) needs rain. Cotton growth and fruiting was fair to good. Insects were causing some damage. Cantaloupes, cucumbers and hay are being harvested. Major chores are cultivation, poisoning and stubble plowing. Some calves were being marketed and stock water was needed in several counties.

Only Collin, Rockwall and Tarrant counties in North Central Texas have adequate moisture. Crops still look good and are holding up well, however. Ranges are deteriorating but livestock are in good condition.

Spotted rains in Northeast Texas failed to relieve the drought and all field work and harvesting have been slowed by the dry, hot weather. Corn and grain sorghum had reached the soft dough stage. Cotton is blooming.

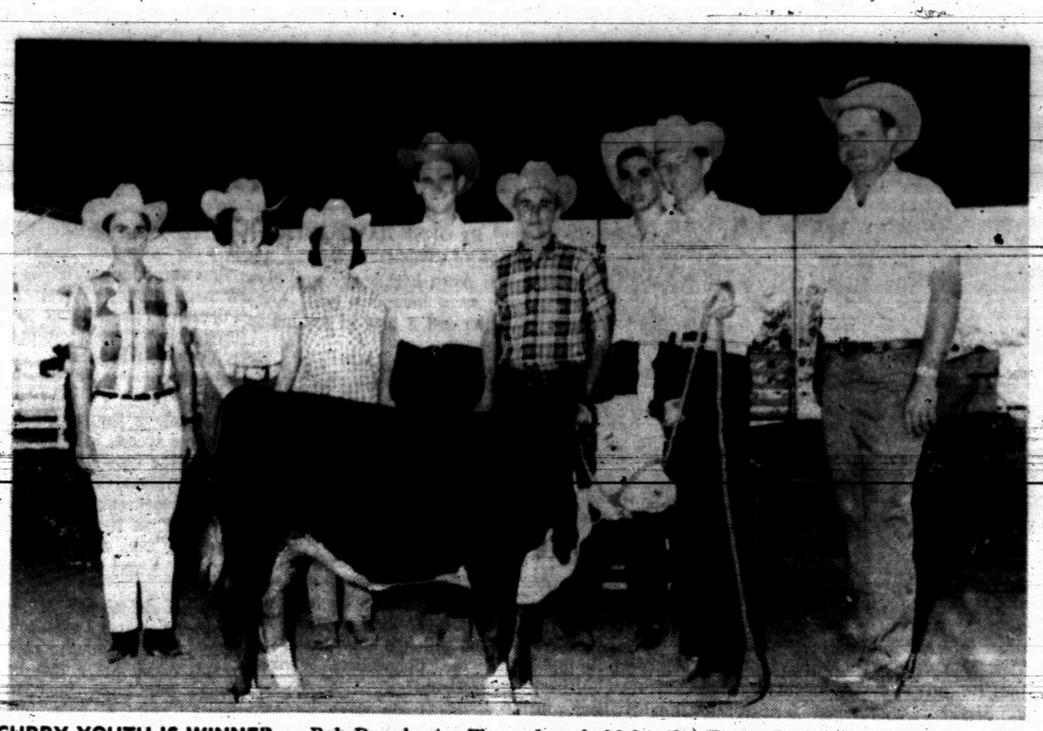

Ranges and dryland crops in far West Texas need rain. Irrigated crops are excellent. Cotton insects are increasing. Livestock condition were good. Labor is short.

Very short moisture is noted in West Central Texas. Cotton was blooming and insects were very light. Early sorghum is maturing and needs rain badly. The peach harvest is in full swing with yields and quality good. Ranges have deteriorated badly and rain is needed to counter the hazard of grass fires and to fill stock tanks. Livestock are in fair to good condition. Marketing is orderly. Some goat shearing has started.

Moisture is short in Central Texas and all crops are hurting. Cotton is making good growth and insect infestations generally are light. Early sorghum is being harvested. Midge are damaging late sorghum. Harvesting of peaches, melons and vegetables has reached the peak. The hay harvest has slowed with little regrowth noted. Ranges are average but drying; livestock are in good shape; marketing is light; water is adequate; and goat shearing is beginning.

East Texas moisture ranges from short to very short. Crops and pastures need rain now. Early corn is about ready for harvest and the crop will be short. Some insect damage to cotton is reported. Cotton and corn need rain. Livestock were in fair to good condition with marketings normal.

Moisture in Southeast Texas was short to adequate. The cotton outlook is poor and insects are damaging cotton and other crops. The watermelon harvest has passed the peak. The first rice has been harvested in Matagorda County.

SCURRY YOUTH IS WINNER — Bob Daugherty, Fluvanna, Scurry County 4-H Club member, was the winner of the registered Hereford heifer given by the Big T Hereford Ranch at the Texas Junior Hereford Association Field Day held at the ranch recently. The Big T Hereford Ranch, located near Longview, was host to a crowd of 300 visitors at the first of three field days held by the Texas Junior Hereford Association. Shown from left are David Nance, Haslet, treasurer; Kim Box, Carizzo Springs, first vice president; Connie Swinford, Wichita Falls, reporter; Murray Edwards, Clyde, director; Bob Franke, College Station, director; Mark Barr, Coahoma, president; Bob Daugherty, winner of the heifer, and Larry Seaman, manager of Big T.

Insect Count Is Still Declining

Insects continued to decrease in number during the past week in most Scurry County fields. Hot, dry weather probably contributed most to the lower insect count.

Fleahoppers were the most noted insect, but only in occasional fields were they found to be high enough to be a threat. Infestation counts ranged from 1 to 24 per cent, with only three fields showing more than 10 per cent.

Bollworms are still around, but damage has been less than 5 per cent in all fields checked. This insect must be watched closely in the event of an irrigation or rain, populations could increase rapidly and damage occur. Many feel that the presence of beneficial insects have aided in keeping the boolworm under control.

Grain sorghum producers are alerted to the possibility of damage to grain sorghum heads by the bollworm. This insect is also known as the corn earworm or tomato fruit worm. The worm can cause severe damage to grain sorghum by eating the grain and may go unnoticed since damage may occur on the inside of the head, and show no outside damage. These worms are cannibalistic, however, and usually only one worm will reach the full-grown stage in each head. As grain sorghum matures or the grain hardens, damage lessens.

If infestations develop and care must be exercised in the selection of an insecticide so that a harmful residue will not be left on the grain sorghum.

History Has Yet To Write Suez Crisis' Final Page

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Day by day, the crisis grew in intensity until the peace of the whole world seemed to hang by a thread.

As events neared a frightening climax, ominous reports rolled into Washington from London, Paris, Cairo, Tel Aviv: reports that Britain and France had conspired with Israel to invade Egypt and topple President Gamal Abdel Nasser.

The shock waves rocked Washington and Moscow. Washington showed dismay and anger. From Moscow came threats of Soviet intervention and even of missile attacks on London.

Today — 10 years after Nasser grabbed the Suez Canal and set in motion the wheels of that world crisis — only he of all the major figures involved remains in power. His purposes and policies seem essentially unchanged. He still evidently cherishes a dream of Arab unity and glory from the easternmost reaches of Iraq to the Mediterranean shores of Tripoli.

On July 26, 1956, Nasser seized the 103-mile strip of gray-blue water called the Suez Canal. His bold action raised the curtain on 97 days of frustrating, often tortured interallied dealing and maneuvering.

The final balance sheet of the crisis has yet to be written, but at the least it diminished British and French influence in the Middle East, which they dominated for a century.

Evidence accumulated over the intervening years suggests that the administration of President Dwight D. Eisenhower should hardly have been surprised when the British, French and Israelis launched their desperate gamble in early November against Nasser.

Terence Robertson, a British-born Canadian historian, whose book "Crisis" is widely considered an authoritative account of the Suez imbroglio, wrote:

"When the news of the first bombings reached the White House, the astounded Eisenhower roared: 'Bombs, by God. What does Anthony (British Prime Minister Eden) think he's doing? Why is he doing this to me?' Robertson reported that Eisenhower then turned to his secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, and said: 'We've got to stop them — fast.'"

The Americans and the Soviets teamed to stop them. Within a week, their missions unfulfilled, the British, French and Israeli attackers were observing a cease-fire ordered by the United Nations. And within 70 days a broken Sir Anthony Eden (now Lord Avon) was out as prime minister.

In the decade since the crisis, French and Israeli leaders who helped engineer the invasion, also went into political eclipse. Guy Mollet, former premier of France, went back to managing the affairs of the Socialist party. Christian Pineau, his foreign minister, now writes children's books. David Ben-Gurion, who was Israel's prime minister, is retired to a Tel Aviv apartment.

Nasser, the lone survivor, still accepts aid from the Soviets and Americans alike, still bosses the Suez Canal, now wider and deeper in parts and more profitable than ever, despite the gloomy predictions of Europeans that the Egyptians never could operate it.

For Britons, Suez meant that never again could their nation, alone, embark on a military venture without the support of their American allies.

The French, under President Charles de Gaulle, turned inward toward Europe.

The Eisenhower administration discovered that Britain and France meant business and labored to head off military action. This served only to deepen interallied resentments and cut off British-French contact with Washington on Middle East affairs.

Eden and Mollet announced their ultimatums, then told President Eisenhower why there had been no advance consultation. The French message exhibited a trace of the resentment of America later to be displayed under De Gaulle.

It said: "We did not wish to incur further delays...designed to prevent us from acting—or have to wait for you as we did from 1914 to 1917 and from 1939 to 1942."

French participants have spoken openly of the Sevres meeting, although to this day the British participants profess ignorance of the whole thing and the Israelis have remained silent. According to various memoirs:

—Israel would invade the Sinai Desert in force on or about Oct. 29 and head for the Suez Canal.

—French planes would protect Israel against a possibility of Arab counterattack. French warships would lie off Israel.

—British planes would neutralize Egyptian airpower at the moment of attack.

—A British-French ultimatum then would order Israel and Egypt to stop fighting and stay away from the canal. This could have provided an opportunity for the British and French to occupy the canal zone.

The plan proved a debacle for the British and French. For Britons who lived through that crisis, the memory still hurts.

Eden took the position that Nasser's seizure of an international waterway, financed largely by British and French investors, amounted to theft. He appeared to view the U.S. attitude as a double-cross. He had predicted ruin of the canal, the spinal column of the Commonwwealth and the Persian Gulf's oil funnel to Europe, under Egyptian management.

Britain and France learned a painful lesson: Suez marked the end of the road for gunboat diplomacy in the style of the 19th century.

US Marines In Viet Nam Using Mechanical Monster

CA MLO, Viet Nam (AP) — The U.S. Marines in Viet Nam are using a mechanical monster that probably frightens as many Communist troops as it kills.

The weapon is called the Ontos, which is Greek for "The Thing." It is a 10-ton armored vehicle which carries six 106mm recoilless rifles plus .50 and .30 caliber machine guns.

The .50 caliber weapon is used as a spotter rifle to aim the bigger guns. The .30 caliber machine gun is for close fighting.

The Ontos originally was designed to destroy tanks, but in Viet Nam it is being utilized against ground troops, bunkers and other enemy structures.

Jack Allerton, 40, of Harlingen, Tex., first sergeant of B Company, 3rd Antitank Battalion, 3rd Marine Division, thinks the Ontos' killing capability may be outweighed by the psychological value.

"The Viet Cong are scared to death of these things," Allerton said. "They don't know which way they are firing because fire comes out both ends of the barrels on the big guns.

"The shell, naturally, goes out the front, but fire—the backlash—goes out the back 25 or 30 feet. Anything in the path of that backlash is gone too."

Usage of the Ontos has been limited in Viet Nam, mainly because military tacticians are not sure of its ability to negotiate rice paddies, mountains and other obstacles which stop tanks.

"About the only thing we can't do is go in the forests, hills that are real steep with lots of rocks, and places where there are lots of deep streams," Capt. Don C. Satcher said.

Satcher, from Kilgore, Tex., is commander of B Company. He has been in Viet Nam only three months, and hopes to get his machines—which he affectionately calls "Pigs" — into more Marine operations.

"These Pigs can do a lot of things," Satcher said. "They can even be fired like artillery. They have quite a bit of range."

The most recent combat deployment of the company was in early July when a Vietnamese Marine convoy was ambushed about 400 miles north of Saigon.

Satcher's company moved in with the whole brood of "Pigs" to chase the fleeing ambush party. The [illegible] machines plowed across rice paddies, up and down hills, and generally impressed tacticians.

Several of the attackers were killed, and one Ontos commander even captured a Communist infantryman.

Ontos fired on two fleeing raiders, killing one and wounding the other in the leg.

The wounded man tried to run, but was slowed by his injured leg, so the Ontos commander jumped out of his vehicle and grabbed the man.

In the vernacular of the Texas-born company commander, "he bulldogged him like you would a steer."

Texas Retail Sales Up Sharply

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas retail sales rose unseasonally to $1,230,400,000 in June because of "greatly expanded durable goods sales," the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research reports.

The bureau said sales normally drop by several percentage points from May to June. This year, there was a 5 per cent climb, the bureau said.

Durable goods sales — such things as furniture, autos and household appliances — totaled $490.8 million in June, offsetting a 1 per cent decline in nondurables.

"Businesses showing large increases in the durable sales category were automotive stores and lumber and building material dealers," the report said.

For six months, retail sales were up 3 per cent over 1965.

"Apparently the pall which descended on automotive sales is lifting," the report said.

Accompanying rising business activity are sizeable gains in employment and personal income, the bureau said.

"These gains should supply thrust to retail sales over the coming months. The newly enacted medicare legislation should have some upward influence on state retail sales, as consumers can spend money which had heretofore been set aside to cover medical expenses. Additional impetus should also be received from summer automobile sales," the report continued.

Water Board Hearings At Midpoint

RICHMOND, Tex. (AP)—The Texas Water Development Board has reached the halfway mark in public hearings on its long-range plan to meet the state's water needs.

At its 13th hearing here Friday, the board heard Col. Walter Wells, general manager of the Brazos River Authority, praise the general concept of the plan, then issue a warning against 'overly detailed projections."

The board opens its next hearings in Odessa Monday, moves to Austin Wednesday and returns to Bay City on the Gulf Coast next Friday.

Wells said the general concept of the $3.7 billion preliminary plan, freed of "unnecessary detail," offers a sound framework for guiding the development and use of Texas' available water to meet the expected needs of the future.

He added: "We must not allow ourselves to fall into the trap of specifying now overly detailed projections and assumptions to guide us to specific solutions, which 50 years from now may be 50 years out of date."

The plan projects the state's water needs through the year 2020.

Wells asked the board to provide adequate protection for water rights so the Brazos River Authority can honor its commitments for water supplies.

He also asked that the board assure adequate Brazos River Channel capacity both to accommodate the water being transferred through the Brazos and to satisfy water requirements of the Brazos River Basin.

In other action Friday, a representative of an outdoors club told the board its plan for redistricting the state's surplus water may mean the end of commercial shrimping and oystering in Galveston Bay.

L. B. Rothfeld of nearby Shoreacres, chairman of the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club, said this so-called surplus water reduces salinity, or salt content, as it flows into the bay.

"Marine bilogists," Rothfeld said, "tell us that a substantial increase in salinity would spell the end of commercial oystering and shrimping."

All-cotton fabrics now have [illegible] finishes.

Gardener's Corner

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

YOU MAY NOT think about it in your little garden, but plant disease epidemics cost Americans about $5 billion each year.

A South African plant specialist, Dr. James E. van der Plank, speaking at a world workshop recently at Pennsylvania State University, said a plant disease takes on epidemic form when it attacks whole population of plants.

The disease may devastate large areas where huge plantings of crops grow side by side. Once started, the epidemic sweeps through closely planted fields, said Dr. van der Plank, who is chief of the Plant Protection Research Institute in the South African Department of Agriculture.

He explained that the intensity of an edpidemic depends on "a disease triangle" involving the host (plant) the pathogen (viruses, bacteria or fungi) and the environment.

A change in any of the three can make an epidemic worse or halt it. Plant-pathologists try to alter either the environment or the host to control an epidemic.

They change the environment with pesticides. They try to control temperature and humidity levels since the pathogen can operate only under specific climatic conditions. But maintaining these conditions is costly and difficult outdoors.

Host alteration is achieved by breeding more resistant plants. Various crops are being mated with more disease - resistant varieties.

Van der Plank reported that in his work on increasing the resistance of potatoes to disease, a Mexican weed, a distant relative of the potato, was found to have a high resistance to the fungus responsible for potato blight. After many crosses, scientists developed a hybrid that resembled the potato plant but had the resistance of the weed.

Of course, crossbred plants may succumb but they are less liable to be infected than a non-resistant plant and the infection will not spread as widely, van der Plank explained.

A relatively simple way to fight epidemics, van der Plank said, is to space resistant plants with nonresistant ones, much as a fire break in he woods. The rows of resistant plants stop the progress of an epidemic.

Those big dahlias have colorful little cousins. One variety, named Collarette, is a fine border, bedding or cut flower plant. It reaches about two feet high, grows as fast as the big, showy dahlias and blooms in late summer and early fall.

The flower has a center of gold, an inner ring, generally of white, and an outer ring that may be pink, red or sunny yellow. They are easy to care for and will last for many seasons.

Why should corn be planted in several short rows rather than one long one?

A good crop of corn depends on good polination. If other factors are equal, the distance between the tassels of the corn plant, which are the male flowers, and the silks of another (which lead to the femal flowers) may decide whether you have an abundant crop or not.

Be sure you get what you're looking for when you shop for milk and other dairy products. Read those labels. You may find a dairy food which has been altered by the addition of a non-dairy product, or in some cases actual non-dairy products may be substituted for the real thing. Only a pure dairy product can carry a dairy food name.

TO WED—Mr. G. K. Fambro, 2110 Twenty-sixth Street, Snyder, announces the engagement of his daughter, Rita Ann of Abilene, to Harvey Bronniman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Bronniman Sr. of Abilene. Vows will be exchanged August 26 at 7 p.m. at Lloyd Mountain Church of Christ. The bride-elect is a graduate of Snyder High School and a student at Abilene Christian College. Her fiance is a graduate of Adrian High School and a student of ACC.

Cantaloupe Cup With Mint

1 jumbo-size cantaloupe
½ cup each sugar and light corn syrup
2-3 cup water
½ cup lightly packed fresh mint leaves plus mint sprigs

Halve cantaloupe and remove seeds; peel and dice into ½-inch cubes—there should be 4 cups. Cover and refrigerate. In a small saucepan over low heat, stir together the sugar, corn syrup, water and mint leaves until sugar dissolves; bring to a boil; simmer for 5 minutes. Remove mint, pressing out syrup that clings to it; chill syrup. Just before serving, drain cantaloupe and mix with mint syrup. Garnish with mint sprigs. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Lemon Green Beens

1 pound young snap beans, tipped
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup olive oil
1 clove garlic, peeled and halved
½ teaspoon crushed dry thyme
Juice of 1 medium lemon (2 generous tablespoons)

Gently boil the whole beans, covered, with the boiling water and salt until tender - crisp — about 10 minutes. Drain. In a shallow container, mix together the remaining ingredients; mix in beans. Cover and chill for several hours or overnight, turning beans a few times. Remove garlic before serving. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Novelist's Childhood In Bengal

TWO UNDER THE INDIAN SUN. By Jon and Rumer Godden.

The 'two" are sisters—Jon, a painter and novelist; collaborated on a really fascinating description of a storybook world.

The time and place deserve the word exotic. The place was a small town on the Lakya River in East Bengal (now a part of Pakistan) where their father was a steamship agent. They have written the story of five years of their childhood, beginning in December 1914, when Jon was 7½ and Rumer was 6.

Their household was almost a little kingdom of its own. There were Fa and Mam, Aunt Mary (who gave them their lessons), two younger sisters, a series of governesses and a dozen or so native servants.

Jon and Rumer roamed the bazaar, rode their ponies, flew their kites, visited other European families, played games with the gatekeeper, watched the festivals and took the profusion of flowers and animals for granted.

They had a long riverboat trip and several times made treks to the hill stations to escape the heat. Brought into contact with various Hindu castes, Muslims, a Tamil convert to Catholiciam, a Eurasian, some Anglo-Indians, and even a Lepcha from Sikkim, they absorbed ideas about religions and languages that no classroom could have given them.

In later life they were to conclude that it would have been better for them—'but not nearly as interesting"—if they had been brought up "without these royal ideas; in the simplicity of our Hiingley Quaker forebears perhaps, or the austerity of Buttons, the professor in Virginia who refused to own slaves." Yet so much of life would have been lost.

Their book is delightful as a tale of that "time that is gone," but it is more than that. It is a vivid, universally appealing evocation of childhood.

Miss Walton Wed To Terry LaFortune In First Baptist Church Of Snyder

Lighted tapers in gold candelabra banked with emeral green foliage and accented by gadiolus and palms, formed the setting for the wedding of Keitha Jeanene Walton and Terry Lee LaFortune on Sunday July 17th at the First Baptist Church of Snyder.

Dr. A. B. Lightfoot, pastor, read the 2:30 p.m. service uniting the couple in marriage.

A white hand-designed memory candle was lighted by the couple following the exchange of vows.

Mr. Ralph Wesson, organist, and Mr. Jim Casey, soloist presented "Because" and "Oh, Perfect Love." The ceremony was climaxed by the "Wedding Prayer" sung by Mr. Casey.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Walton, 3713 Avenue U, Snyder. Parents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. Stan LaFortune of Garden Grove, California.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length empire gown of white bridal crepe fashioned and made by her mother. It featured a re-embroidered Alcon lace jacket embroidered in seed pearls around the bateau neckline, sleeves and waistline. The chapel train of Alcon lace extending from the empire waistline was edged in bridal crepe and the entire length of the lace was embroidered in seed pearls. Her veil of French silk illusion was attached to a crown of re-embroidered Alcon lace edged in seed pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses, gladiolus and feathered mums.

Tradition was kept with something old, a handkerchief which belonged to her grandmother, something new, her bridal gown, something borrowed, her crown and veil which was worn by Mrs. Van Tarver, and her blue garter which was made by Mrs. Hobert Wood of O'Donnell. In her shoe she wore a lucky six pence, minted in the year of her birth.

Maid of honor was Jo Ann Griffith of Long Beach, Calif. Her gown of yellow dacron over cotton was fashioned after the bridal gown, with empire waistline, featuring yellow handcut lace on the floor-length A-line skirt.

Bridemaids were Judy Roman of Big Spring and Wayla Walton of Snyder, cousin of the bride. They wore dresses identical to that of the maid of honor. Head pieces were yellow silk illusion. Each carried a long stemmed white rose.

Candlelighters were Lou Walton of San Angelo and Marta Walton. Nan Walton of San Angelo was flower girl. All are cousins of the bride. They wore white wristlets of flowers. Their dresses and head pieces were identical to those worn by the bridesmaids.

Jackie Walton, brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were Gary Walton, also a brother of the bride, and Joe Inman of Yermo, Calif. Ushers were Prince Altom and Dannie Lunsford.

The bride's mother wore a beige embroidered silk linen dress with matching accessories. She wore a Cymbidium orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in fellowship hall. The brides table was laid with a beige handwoven cloth from the Cape of Africa. The three tiered bride's cake of white featured white roses and was topped with a pearl circlet and two white feathered doves. The white handmade candle featuring doves and wedding bells and bridal bouquet was also used on the table appointments were of crystal and silver.

The groom's table was laid with a cutwork linen cloth from Florence, Italy, and held a double heart chocolate cake. Appointments were of silver. The centerpiece and napkins carried out the theme of the doves, as that of the bride's table.

Serving at the bride's table were Josephine Linville, Donna Lenoir, Sue Willet of Seymour and Sandra Stansell of Fluvanna. Serving at the groom's table were Benny McDaniels of Muleshoe, and Mrs. Charles Yoast.

Nan Walton registered guests and Marta and Lou Walton passed rice bags.

Also in the house party were Mrs. Dale Walton of San Angelo, Mrs. Wayland Walton, aunts of the bride, Mrs. R. C. Patton and Mrs. Ben Lenoir.

For her wedding trip the bride chose a two - piece suit of beige Italian silk with ivory and beige overblouse, and matching accessories. She wore a green Cymbidium orchid corsage. After the wedding trip to Carmel, Calif. and San Francisco, Calif. the couple will be at home at 8943 Hewitt Place, Apt. 1, Garden Grove, Calif.

The bride is a 1961 graduate of Snyder High School. She received a B. S. Degree in Elementary Education from Hardin Simmons University in 1965. While in HSU she was a member of Tri Phi Social Club, Concert Choir, and West Gate Lions Club Sweetheart and pianist in 1965. She taught in the Campton Schools and will be employed by the Magnolia Elementary School district of Anaheim, Calif. next school term.

Mr. LaFortune attended Cenitas College in Norwalk, Calif. and is now employed by The First Western Bank of Los Angeles, Calif.

Out of town guests were from Fort Worth, Dallas, Abilene, Sweetwater, New Home, O'Donnell, Muleshoe, Brownfield Waco, Roby, Crosbyton, Plainview, Tahoka, Seymour, Fluvanna, Hermleigh, Big Spring, Haskell, San Angelo, Texas, Long Beach, and Yermo, California.

On Saturday night a rehearsal dinner was hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Yoast on their patio at 2215 Forty - fourth Street. Co-hostesses were Mrs. R. C. Patton and Mrs. Edd Raborn.

Camera Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

PHOTOGRAPHY Gives us an opportunity to distinguish between seeing and perceiving. Whatever appears in the viewfinder at any time can be seen. But only when something is perceived should the shutter be released. And for truly worthwhile pictures, what we perceive should have significance in addition.

This is an introductory thought of Prof. O. R. Croy, Austrian photographic educator, editor and author, in his latest book, "Croy's Creative Photography." Originally published in Germany an English edition was printed by Focal Press, London, with American distribution by Amphoto Books, N.Y.

Most of the photographs which we see daily are routine shots. To gain attention—and hold it—they need "something special." Prof. Croy has become a European authority in pioneering various techniques to consciously create unusual designs in photographs.

He ususally starts with the negative of a scene, person or object which has been photographed. He believes the original scene in front of the camera is like a blank canvas to an artist, something to be worked on as a foundation but transformed by various photographic methods.

He searches out minute details, makes big enlargements, crops drastically, and rearranges the subject matter. Pictures are copied and recopied on extreme contrast films, reversed, turned into positives and intersolarized, others have tints, screens or design-producing materials (like muslin) added.

The picture which finally emerges is an eye - catching photo design which may bear little resemblance to the photograph from which it started. In most cases the results of Prof. Croy's efforts are dramatic but some of them seemed overworked and I preferred the integrity of the original photographic rendition.

The book's format consists of about 120 full-page illustrations of the professor's creations unbroken by titles, captions or any change in size. This is followed by an explanatory section which shows, in miniature size, the original photos from whigh the designs are derived and a summary of the technical processes used to arrive at the result shown.

Prof. Croy's first book on photo tricks appeared in Germany about 30 years ago. In recent years, graphic photo designs have appeared in advertising, photographic exhibitons and among the winning pictures in photo contests.

With careful consideration and a willingness to work overtime in the darkroom, amateur photograhpers can use Prof. Croy's book as a guide in putting vitality and excitement into their own photographs. It requires serious study of pictures already taken and final selection of those which can be transformed by close cropping and recopying on process film to accentuate the design elements.

Cadette Troop 54 (Mrs. B. J. Bartels) spent five enjoyable days of camping during June at Garner State Park. The girls participated in hikes, swimming, paddleboat rides, miniature golf, and horseback riding. One of their hikes was to see a small and beautiful cave. The girls also visited Uvalde and went through the Garner Historical Museum.

The whole troop would like to thank Mrs. Gallman for her assistance during the trip and for the surprise birthday cake she gave Mrs. Bartels on her birthday Tuesday, June 7th.

Cadettes who went on the trip were: Jane Barnett, Cynthia Bartels, Sheila Brown, Debra Dinwiddie, Janet Early, Jan Rains, Marion Watts, and Dana Weaver. Mrs. Bartels, leader; Michael and Mary Gallman; Roy Bartels, Keith Mitchell, and Terry Woellert also made the trip.

Fresh Peach Crisp

½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
5 cups sliced peeled fresh peaches
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup quick-cooking rolled oats
¼ cup unsifted regular flour
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted

In a medium mixing bowl, stir together ¼ cup of the brown sugar, conamon and ginger; add peaches and sprinkle with lemon juice; toss together. Turn into a square baking dish or cake pan (about 8 by 8 by 2 inches). In a small mixing bowl, toss together the remaining ¼ cup brown sugar, with the remaining ingredients. Sprinkle over peaches. Bake in a moderate (375 degrees) oven about 30 minutes or until peaches are tender. Serve warm with sour cream or vanilla ice cream. Makes 6 servings.

Sardine Sandwiches

2 cans (each 3¾ ounces) brisling sardines
¼ cup mayonnaise
1-3 cup India - type sweet pickle relish
½ cup minced celery
12 slices buttered bread

Mash the sardines, including the oil, with the mayonnaise; stir in relish and celery. Make 6 sandwiches of the filling and bread, using about ¼ cup filling for each; cut each in half. Wrap individually and tightly and refrigerate until ready to pack into picnic vacuum bag. Makes 6 servings.

Strawberry Jar

2 cups ripe small strawberries
1¾ cups sugar

Remove caps from berries; rinse in cold water and drain. In a medium saucepan with a potato masher, mash the berries. Stir in the sugar. Cook and stir constantly until sugar dissolves; bring to a boil. Boil gently, stirring occasionally, for 10 minutes or until reduced to almost 1½ cups. Skim. Cool. Turn into an attractive jar that can be brought to the table; cover and store in refrigerator. Makes about 1½ cups and has delightful pure strawaberry flavor.

ENGAGEMENT—Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Wright of Crandall, Texas, announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Sandra Lee Wright, to Jack Scott McDonald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gayle S. McDonald of Snyder. The couple will exchange vows on August 20th at Central Baptist Church in Crandall. Both are 1966 graduates of Texas Tech.

Rubber spatulas come with wide and narrow blades and both sizes are needed in the kitchen. Use the wide-blade spatula to scrape down batter from a large mixing bowl, the narrow - blade spatula for mixtures in small bowls. The narrow-blade spatula is also efficient to use in scraping down mixtures in an electric blender.

Pop-Up Bacon

Cooking breakfast bacon now takes no more effort than making toast thanks to a new aluminum foil package. The bacon is pre-cooked and sealed in foil. The housewife (or even the man of the house) pops the packet into the toaster and gets four slices of finished bacon in 60 seconds.

Bowling Booms

AP Newsfeatures

Driving home after scoring a 300 game — that dream of all bowlers — Kay Vandiver lost her right arm in an automobile accident. Months later the Minot, N.D. girl was back in the lanes, this time a left-handed bowler, scoring a 295 game in a recent tournament.

In New Orleans Mrs. Sarah Kuchler is a twice-a-week league bowler at the age of 90.

These are two of 17 million women bowlers across the country, a dedicated group that's growing by strikes and spares. The total bowling population is figured at more than 39 million.

More and more women are joining leagues — 2,736,393 in 1965, compared with 5,357 in 1927. There's no doubt that women, from pre-teens to senior citizens, have taken the sport to heart.

The big feminine invasion began about eight years ago — and the traditional bowling alley became the posh, modernistic bowling center.

The pinboys, who had had such an unsettling effect on women bowlers were replaced by automatic pinsetters.

Nurseries and baby sitting accommodations were installed for the daytime bowling mothers. Many a center put in automatic laundries, beauty salons, swimming pools.

Coffie klatches, fashion shows, club social events fill the day, which begins, for many bowlers at 9 a.m.

Dutch Girl Likes Baggy Britches

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Pretty Odetta Papier, 17, of Holland, says she doesn't think she could ever fall in love with a boy who wears hair to his shoulders "like a girl."

"I'd like to marry a real boy. But I guess one should look more at what the boy is really like than the way he wears his hair."

Odetta competed in the International Teen Pageant finals in Chicago. She was chosen by a Dutch magazine to represent the Netherlands.

She doesn't have a steady beau, and doesn't want one. She is "young and likes to be free," she says, but even if she didn't feel that way, she'd have trouble meeting boys. She goes to an all-girls school which "is terrible," she says.

They have only one party with boys every year and the girls must do the inviting. They don't like that idea. Next year, things will be different — the system might be changed so that boys may go to her school.

"Thank goodness," she says.

The Holland school set up in different from American schools. Girls are better at languages so they get more of that.

Boys are better at math and technical things and their schools concentrate on those subjects. All the schools have a variety of studies that can be chosen in addition to required courses.

"We don't get much chance at sports because we have so much to study in school. We must learn to read ten German, ten English and ten French books, and we must know all English, French and Dutch literature. We also study history, needlework, geometry.

Odetta speaks fluent English, French, German and some Spanish besides her own Dutch language. She is a dark - eyed brunette, looks French, but isn't. Her father's own name, Yaccopapie was misunderstood as Jacques Papier during the war, so he shortened it.

Op, pop and Mondrian fashions are already passe in Holland, she says. Girls are wearing hair long and straight and they dress like English boys — pants and shirts or like English girls in very short skirts. Her wardrobe for this trip includes discotheque dresses and other costumes, such as a britches suit worn above the kneee, inspired by the Dutch britches worn by the men in Volendam, Holland. It was designed in Holland by Miss Ferry Verrbeek.

Odetta would like to be a journalist or an actress. She is a great admirer of Audrey Hepaii the time and studies jazz ballet.

She can always recognize an American school girl in Holland by her bobby socks. Dutch girls wear wool stockings.

LAUNCHING A FASHION . . . Holland's entry in the International Teen Pageant, Odetta Papier, 17, wears a modern version of the baggy britches outfit inspired by a costume worn by men of Volendam, Holland.

White House Wedding Will Be Wedding Of History And Sentiment

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lilies of the valley are planted, the cook has baked a sample cake and had it approved, the choirs are rehearsing. Everything's about ready for Luci Johnson's wedding to Patrick J. Nugent Aug. 6.

It's going to be a wedding of sentiment and history.

You couldn't get more sentimental than President Johnson's 19-year-old, blue-eyed, black-haired daughter, Luci.

And having a President's daughter hold a reception in the White House is something that hasn't happened in 52 years.

Luci said she was getting nervous as the big day loomed closer.

"But," she said, "I'm not just nervous. I'm happy, excited, filled with hopes, dreams, desires — a conglomeration of emotions, including a little bit of apprehension and a great deal of happiness."

Her 23-year-old fiance was kept busy on active summer duty with his Air National Guard Reserve unit in Savannah, Ga., until shortly before the wedding.

The President was described as "awfully glad to be getting a son at last."

Mrs. Johnson has spent anxious months planning, working on her daughter's trousseau, coping with every detail, including the big decision: no television from the church and limited press coverage of the wedding scene.

Seven months ago — on Christmas Eve — the Johnsons announced from their Texas ranch that Luci, a nursing school freshman, was engaged to a tall, blond, good-looking, little-known young man from Waukegan, Ill.

Son of investment and insurance counselor, Gerard Nugent, and of Tillie Jocius Nugent, young "Paddy" was newly graduated from college, where he majored in history.

And so, at high noon Saturday, Aug. 6, before 700 friends and relatives, the President, in cutaway coat and striped pants, will escort his daughter down the aisle of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception in northeast Washington.

It will be a double-ring ceremony. "That's what 90 to 95 per cent of Catholic couples prefer nowadays," a spokesman for the Archdiocese of Washington reported.

Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle, 70, who rarely officiates at such occasions, will celebrate the 80-minute nuptial Mass for the President's daughter and her fiance.

A lifelong friend of the Nugent family, the Rev. John Kuzinskas, 40, assistant pastor of the Church of the Nativity of the Blessed Virgin Mary in Chicago, will marry the couple in a 10-minute ceremony.

Luci, 5-foot-4, and slimmed down "to please Pat" to 110 pounds and a size 7, has picked an elegant, long, white bridal gown. Her mother said it's "the kind you would hand down to your grandchildren."

The 12 bridesmaids, including Luci's 22-year-old sister, Lynda, the maid of honor, will wear gowns of blending pink. The 6-foot-1 bridegroom and his 12 groomsmen will wear formal morning attire.

Young friends and relatives will attend the bride and bridegroom, with two 5-year-olds serving as flower girl and ring bearer.

Nugent's father is to be standin best man for another son, Marine Lt. Gerard Nugent Jr., on duty in Viet Nam.

A few things the Johnsons and the White House made plain about this historic wedding:

—It is a personal and family event, not a state occasion. Though the church could seat 3,500, they asked 700 to attend. They did not invite world figures, diplomats or officials unless they were close friends.

—Everyone invited to the church also was to be a guest at a White House reception afterward in the East Room.

—The church may be immense and spectacular, but Luci and Nugent picked it because they had often worshipped there together. They'll be the first couple ever married in the $21-million national shrine, built with donations from Catholics across the nation. Normally couples are advised to wed in their parish church.

Luci, originally Episcopalian like her mother, converted to Catholicism on her 18th birthday.

Like any other parents of the bride, the Johnsons are footing the bill for the wedding. A family spokesman said the Johnsons long ago established a special account to handle all the wedding costs from engraving invitations to buying a trousseau. As to how much it's all going to cost, the White House said only: "Weddings come high now."

Heiress to at least half a million dollars herself, Luci announced early they'd live on young Nugent's income, which ranged from $93.50 a month on military service to $5,180 a year in a District of Columbia Education Advisory Commission. But he has improved his salary considerably since joining a new educational consultant firm here.

Luci this week announced she and Nugent plan to go back to school at the University of Texas after their wedding and take up housekeeping in a small, comfortable "dream house" they have rented in "a nice neighborhood" of Austin, Tex., near friends.

It's a one-story rambler type of old brick with another duplex unit attached. That raised speculation — unconfirmed — that their closest neighbors may be the Secret Service.

Luci says she'll do her own cooking and housekeeping, noting "I don't think we're going to be in a position to have a maid."

Luci would not disclose the address of her dream house.

In planning this wedding, the White House has had to cope with a deluge of requests from news media. But church coverage will be held down to a small pool of reporters.

The reception will be a gala affair, with music, dancing and dining. The 700 guests will fill the historic formal rooms of the White House, with dancing probably to be featured in the East Room, where the cake-cutting ceremony also will be held.

Press coverage is being limited to a 10-minute view of the receiving line and a glimpse of the cake-cutting, so the Johnsons can feel free to celebrate with old friends and relatives. The "President's Own" scarlet-coated Marine Band will provide some of the music and White House cooks are busy preparing special fare.

Every effort is being made in the White House to help the newlyweds get off on their honeymoon undetected.

There was one report they planned to tour the United States by car. Nugent has a new 1966 car and Luci a flashy, dark green, three-year-old one.

They were also offered use of the Acapulco resort residence of the president of Mexico.

THE RELUCTANT DRAFTEE!

Old South Is No Longer Land Of Cotton And Kinfolk

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

As warm to the heart of Dixie as the old browned Confederate daguerreotype in the parlor is its defiant battle cry: the South will rise again.

Now, at long last, it is.

This is not the rising of the straggling marches or the slow paper revolution of the ballot box. This rising is an industrial revolution whose effects, often indistinct, may change the Southland in the long run as much or more than protest, or the courts.

Dixie is no longer the land of cotton and kinfolk. Industry, the lifeblood of the nation, is making a quiet invasion of this once agrarian countryside. It has become a lever randomly prying loose the old Southern society, a lever that has augmented demands for better education, has wrenched at the grip of the stand-pat politicians of the backwoods, has spread a notion that skill, not skin, is the criterion for jobs, and that what is good for business is good and what isn't, isn't.

Not all the changes stem from industry alone. Not all the changes are welcome. But industry is.

"Industry has been our salvation," said Sidney Smyer Sr., a leading Birmingham businessman. Gov. George C. Wallace, as proud of his success in industrializing Alabama as he is of his stand on segregation, says:

"I don't care if an industry comes in and hires 100 per cent Negroes and has a Negro president. I want jobs."

Ironically, industry and segregation in the long run may prove incompatible. "Industry," said a native Atlantan, "wants order. In the past segregation represented order. After a couple of riots, businessmen switched to a moderation that would restore order."

Dixie today is a land of boosters, and the voice of the Chamber of Commerce is heard throughout the land.

By any standards the growth has been remarkable.

The rising steel webs of the Atlanta skyline change so rapidly the Chamber of Commerce has taken eight different photographs of it in the last six months to keep current, invariably with Braves Stadium in the foreground.

Town, county and state development officials chart the pace in full color booklets and with reams of tables. South Carolina, for instance, ranked fifth in the nation in gain of new manufacturing jobs from 1957-66. It was first in relation of the gain to its population. Non-agricultural employment increased 4.5 per cent in the United States last year. The gain was 11.8 per cent in Mississippi.

In the last 10 years industry has invested $2.77 billion in North Carolina, creating 1,814 new plants and 278,000 new jobs.

New and expanded industry last year in Mississippi totaled $520 million, creating 19,000 new jobs. South Carolina exceeded $600 million, and it was $623 million in Alabama, tops in the South.

In Atlanta 70 new office buildings have gone up or been announced in the last five years. Unemployment in Georgia is appreciably below the national average. Atlanta has a labor shortage. And so it goes.

The post-Civil War years were hard for the South. The country expanded dramatically — but westward. A group of Atlanta businessmen, hoping to attract Northern industry, invited William Tecumseh Sherman to revisit the city he had singed 20 years earlier. But industry decided it had business elsewhere, and many Southerners thought it just as well.

Northern industrialists had their own prejudices about the South. "They long thought the Southern countryman was untrained," said Dr. Rupert Vance, a sociologist at the University of North Carolina.

But a change came gradually. During World War II laborers from the South moved North and West and proved their mettle in the defense factories. In the postwar boom industry looked for new markets, for areas with ample room and water and labor for new plants. Land and water the South had always had.

Now it had labor. The small farmer with his team of mules and 40 acres found it increasingly difficult to make a living. King Cotton had abdicated for the vast mechanized farms of West Texas, New Mexico and California.

Southern college graduates and former sharecroppers were moving North where the jobs were. The Deep South faced deeper poverty.

Then the migration turned. First came the textile plants, relocating from 19th century New England mill towns. Large corporations established fabricating and distribution centers, particularly in Atlanta, to serve a relatively untapped southeastern market. Whatever their reason, they came.

Some came, said Maynard Smith, an Atlanta labor relations lawyer, "because of mistakes they made in the North that made them highly unionized. Unions sell management mistakes — and that's all they sell."

In general, however, the larger firms pay wages comparable to the rest of the nation. In Alabama in 1964, for instance, state figures indicate non-union scales topped union rates.

Not that management isn't aware that most Southern states have right-to-work laws and mean to keep them. In part this is due to the desire to attract industry, in part because, as Vance says, the Southern ex-farmer is independent and unused to unions and sees no reason to pay dues if he feels he is acceptably paid.

But visions of union-free labor are not the only attractions for South-bound management. State development boards from Dixie have turned carpetbaggers in reverse, wooing Northern industry with tax benefits, sales talks and facts, facts, facts.

State development boards are armed with all conceivable information from the chemical composition of the water to whether a town has an adult theater group. They advertise widely. They scan trade journals to learn of expansion plans. They send field representatives calling across the country.

Charges that they are pirating industry from the rest of the country rankles the Southern talent scouts. "Plants follow markets and we have the markets," said Moffit Kendrick of the Greenville, S.C., Chamber of Commerce. "They say we stole industry. Hell, they still have their headquarters in the North, however ugly they may be."

In Georgia up to 80 per cent of new jobs are the result of expansion of existing plants, not relocation.

Some states offer considerable tax benefits. In Mississippi, Alabama, Tennessee and Arkansas, municipalities can float bonds to buy land and build plants for a new industry. Georgia forgives sales taxes on new machinery.

Junior Editors Quiz on PRIMITIVE BOATS

QUESTION: What were boats like before there was sail and power?

• • •

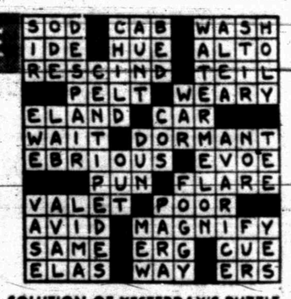

ANSWER: The first boats probably were logs on which primitive men crossed streams and lakes, paddling with their hands or pieces of wood (1). Somehow they must have found that a log with a hollow inside it, would float higher, (because of the larger amount of air). A hollow log boat was much easier to paddle and many things could be carried inside. So men started to hollow out tree trunks to turn into boats. With only primitive tools, this was difficult, but they found the answer by building a fire on top of the trunk, scraping out the burned part, starting another fire and so on (2). At first, sharp-edged shells were used for scraping. Later came the use of edged stone and bronze tools. A major development was to build a thin wood frame and cover it with skins or tree bark, as in the wonderfully-designed Indian canoes (2). Then, thin planks of wood were used instead of skins, and men constructed such masterpieces of boatbuilding as the large decorated boat of the Northwest Indians which we show being used in a special ceremony.

FOR YOU TO DO: Help our artist finish his picture by coloring the designs on the boat, and the figures in it, with red, blue and brown. 7-23

Benefit by the experience of a friend of ours. He decided to refinish an old but sturdy wooden kitchen table. He asked our advice about removing the old finish. We gave it, but as a kind of last word, suggested that he first scrub the table clean to determine the condition of the old finish.

A few days later, we got an excited phone call. Our friend had cleaned the table—with a stiff brush and a little scouring powder—and had, as he put it, "gotten off a ton of wax and dirt." The table looked pretty good now, and could we come over and take a look at it?

We did—and discovered a maple table with a smooth finish. There were no nicks or other blemishes in it. There was, in fact, no reason at all to take off the old finish, which has lost some of its original lustre but was otherwise in fine shape. A new, single topcoat of varnish made the table as good as new without the necessity of removing the old finish, a messy job at best.

The lesson: before you plunge into the task of removing the old finish from a piece of furniture, try cleaning it first. And if you aren't lucky—and find that the finish must come off—remember that the greatest enemy of a successful paint or varnish-removing job is impatience. (You can get Andy Lang's helpful booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 954, Jamaica, N.Y. 11431.)

Most persons run into trouble getting off an old finish simply because they won't wait long enough for the remover to do its work. They brush it, wait a few minutes and then begin scraping. The proper method is to brush on the remover, wait about 20 minutes and then, using a dull-bladed putty knife, start scraping. If the finish doesn't begin to curl off easily and quickly, stop immediately. Wait another 20 minutes or so, then try again.

If the finish remains stubborn, it probably is composed of several coats and needs extra attention. Quickly apply another coat of remover, directly over the first, then go through the entire procedure again. And if necessary do it all a third time The more old coats of paint or varnish are on the surface, the more applications are necessary. Through it all, remember the principle: let the chemicals in the remover do the work.

In applying the remover, do it generously. Flow it on with a full brush, moving in one direction and not brushing it out. After the finish is off, wash the surface with whatever is recommended on the container. Removers with a wax base require a neutralizer, those with a non-wax base usually need only water. And follow the directions to determine what precautions must be followed during the application, as many removers are flammable and toxic.

QUESTION: We have a flat roof, the kind that has a slight pitch to it to allow the rain to drain off. It has asphalt roll roofing in it. We recently purchased two air conditioners, one for each floor, and have been told that we can save money on electricity by painting the roof white. Is this ture?

ANSWER: Studies indicate that the interior temperatures of a house, especially on the upper floor, can be reduced as much as 20 degrees by painting the roof white. Naturally, if the interior of the house is cooler to begin with, the air conditioners will not have to work as hard or as long, which can mean a savings on electricity.

But this will be true only if (1) you have air conditioners with controls that turn on and off by themselves or (2) if they must be controlled by hand, you use the controls wisely so that the air conditioners do not continue operating when the house is sufficiently cool. As for the painting, you did not say whether you are having it done professionally or intend to do it yourself. A professional should know what kind of paint to use.

If you plan on doing the painting, be sure not to use a self-cleaning or chalking paint, since the chalk might stain the sides of the house as it wears away. Be sure, also, not to use a solvent-thinned paint, which will have a chemical reaction on the asphalt and cause bleeding. The proper paint is an exterior latex paint.

To save yourself a tough job, apply the paint with a roller attached to a long handle, working as though you were cleaning a floor with a mop. Paint only on a clear day when there is no prospect of rain. Apply a second coat when the first has thoroughly dried.

Dos Passos Studies Jefferson

THE SHACKLES OF POWER. By John Dos Passos.

Thomas Jefferson presided over a nation for eight years, over an era for nearly 30 and virtually passed from the minds of his countrymen at his death. A temporary eclipse is often the price of greatness, but Jefferson's influence on American institutions was lasting.

In this fine study of the Jeffersonian decades and spirit, Dos Passos, the novelist turned historian, is concerned less with institutions and social forces than with the men who shape them and the interplay of strong personalities in the formative years of the Republic. In a sense, then, this is "old-fashioned" history, but it succeeds admirably.

The central figure is Jefferson himself. By the standards of today's bedevilment, the government he, Madison and Monroe headed seems refreshingly uncomplicated, but as usual, there were troubles enought to go around.

The youthful Union was confronted with the secessionist cauldron in New England; the prospect, realized under Madison, of war with old England; the economic griefs of Jefferson's embargo acts, designed to prevent that war by keeping U.S. shipping at home; the machinations of the serpentine Aaron Burr. By the middle of his second term, Jefferson began to long for retirement at Monticello.

It was also the heady period of America's first expansionary thrust: the Louisiana purchase, the march westward, the acquisition of the Floridas. The war of 1812 brought benign economic consequences in the stimulation of demestic industry; Jefferson, modifying his agrarian outlook, approved of the trend.

The peace with Britain—as Dos Passos says, one of the few treaties that didn't create more problems than it solved—ushered in a political "era of good feelings." Division between anti-Jeffersonian Federalists and Jeffersonian Republicans began to fade. Yet even the congenitally optimistic Jefferson felt a chill in this springtide of the Republicans, the power of the federal government was growing ominously. They watched with mounting concern how the Supreme Court under John Marshall kept reenforcing the federal power.

Worse were the forebodings over the Missouri question. The compromise by which Missouri was admitted as a slave state and Maine as a free state left Jefferson unconsoled. "I considered it at once the knell of the Union," he wrote. "It is hushed indeed for a moment, but this is a reprieve only. . ." The irrepressible conflict was beginning.

As a final chapter, Dos Passos recounts the journeys and researches of de Tocqueville, whose impressions form a sort of summation of the Jeffersonian area. Tocqueville found the American experiment in democracy thriving, though he had some apprehensions about the future. In most respects later history proved him right.

How To Predict A Trend

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—You too can be a fashion prophet simply by predicting that everything in style today will reverse itself tomorrow.

In fact, in this age of extremes the pendulum sometimes swings back with such suddenness that it meets itself coming and going.

Try crystal ball gazing with beachwear as a starter.

With toplessness and bikini bareness designers have minimized swimsuits until they are barely there.

If the trend to nothingness were to continue there would be no swimsuit industry at all.

The obvious solution, therefore, is to swing back to the other extreme coming up with a completely covered up look of the Victorian age. Then the fashion reduction can begin all over again.

Putting this over as a new style is easy.

As soon as each beach babe has bared her tanned body nearly completely a fashion reaction sets in—a frantic urge to be different from the masses. This urge is extremely strong among all females today.

When you have made these observations and deductions about beach attire, you are ready to predict with accuracy great future for the long, long bathing suit, a la max sennett.

And, ha, you are right. The young style pace-setters may never have seen a silent movie but these leggy swimmers in gaudy, sure-to-be-seen horizontal stripes are mad enough to appeal to modern misses.

On a hot day when you pack off to the cool waters you will see for yourself what a good guesser you are. If you are a girl watcher who wants more of a girl to watch, you may be disappointed in the over-all bathing suit.

But if you wait a minute, you may find that the girl you're watching is only using her sennett suit to cover a bikini. A girl has to protect herself from too much sun you know.
