U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm...

Demo who would 'tip' O'Neill slated

The "Boll Weevil" Democrat who plans to challenge House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill this coming Dec. 3 will be in Snyder Wednesday.

U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford will speak to a combined gathering of Snyder civic clubs and other interested individuals at the Scurry County Coliseum.

The noon luncheon will include the membership of the Lions, Rotary, Kiwanis, Golden K and Jaycees.

Stenholm — who represents the 34-county 17th District which includes Borden and Scurry Counties — officially announced plans to run against O'Neill last week.

Five days after Stenholm will appear here, House Democrats will elect their leaders.

When that process begins, Stenholm has said he will run against O'Neill for the speaker of the house post. The 71-year-old O'Neill has held that position since 1977.

In interviews last week, Stenholm was quoted as saying he realizes the odds are against him to unseat the Boston-based O'Neill.

Stenholm and the approximately 25 other conservative-minded "Boll Weevil" Democrats contend that O'Neill is "out of step with the times."

The Dec. 3 challenge will come as the 252 Democrats who comprise the majority of the U.S. House of Representatives meet in a party caucus to elect their leaders.

Although the [illegible] in 1979.

membership will vote for speaker after Congress convenes in January, the caucus vote is effectively the last word because Democrats run the House.

Stenholm could still challenge O'Neill at the January vote as well.

Stenholm, 46, was unopposed for re-election to his fourth term this past November. He is chairman of the Conservative Democratic Forum, a group he founded after entering the House

Chamber group aims to assist Scurry farmers

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

Finding new ways to approach the old business of farming is one of the goals of a newly formed group for Scurry County — a committee organized through the activities of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

Asked to chair the group is Byron Hedges, owner of Snyder Farm and Ranch here. He is also a former ag researcher, working for three years at the Texas A&M Experiment Station in Big Spring.

"Right now, I wouldn't get up and tell anybody what to change to make their farming operation better," Hedges noted Friday.

"But I think we need to look at alternatives."

He notes that with the current farm economy, "I think the time is right for this idea. Farmers are hurting and a lot of them are looking around for alternate ways to go."

The newly formed Agri-Business Committee is still in its early planning stages. While several individuals have been contacting, Hedges noted a complete membership list is not yet finalized.

The membership will be drawn from local resource groups, both private industry, governmental and the field of education.

Assistance will also be sought from existing research organizations, to include A&M's extension service and the research facilities at Texas Tech University.

The goal of the committee will be two-fold, Hedges notes — to offer education and, on a more long term basis, to help provide the impetus for more research.

Regarding its goal of education, a farm seminar is now planned here Dec. 6 — a Thursday.

It will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. at the Snyder Country Club with the public invited.

Those scheduled to offer farming ideas at it include three staffers from the Lubbock branch office of the Texas A&M Extension Service.

Also invited is Lavon Harmen, a Swisher County farmer who has practiced reduced tillage techniques for several years; and Dr. Dan Krieg, professor of crop physiology at Texas Tech.

Extension service staffers invited include Dr. Kirby Huffman, district extension agronomist; Dr. Pat Morrison, extension entomologist; and Dr. Bob Berry, extension plant pathologist.

Regarding what areas the committee might explore, Hedges noted such items as alternate crops, crop rotation systems, reduced tillage systems, water

State plans seal coating

Two Scurry County roads — one a Farm to Market road which runs through the center of Snyder — have been approved for seal coating projects.

These will be funded by monies made available to the Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation by the recently increased fuel tax and registration fees.

Seal coating projects are now planned along a 14-mile strip of the Big Spring Highway (Texas Highway 350) from the Mitchell County line to Snyder; and a 2.1 mile strip of FM 1605 (East 37th St.) from the intersection of College Ave. and 37th east to U.S. Hwy. 84.

Armistice commission called

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The U.N. Command called Saturday for a full meeting of the Korean armistice commission to deal with the gunbattle between troops on the North and South Korean sides of the demarcation line that left at least three dead and two wounded, including an American.

The U.N. Command said: "The deliberate use of firearms constitutes the most serious violation in the joint security area in the history of the armistice agreement" between the two Koreas that ended the Korean war in 1953.

There have been incidents of violence in the zone before, but Friday's outbreak was said to have been the first shooting incident involving casualties in the joint security area. The call for a full meeting was made after a meeting of officers Saturday.

South Korea called the incident a "criminal provocation act threatening peace," and requested an apology.

The command said the shooting erupted after a Soviet national fled south across the demarcation line that divides North and South Korea. The command and the U.S. Embassy said the man acted voluntarily.

The command said 20 to 30 North Korean security guards chased him south of the demarcation line and fired weapons, touching off a 10-minute firefight with U.S. and South Korean forces under the U.N. Command. One South Korean soldier was killed, and one American soldier was wounded, the command said. It said two North Korean guards apparently were killed and two others were injured.

But North Korean broadcasts monitored in Tokyo said a member of a tour group from the north "unexpectedly" crossed the demarcation line in the Armistice Commission conference room at Panmunjom and was "dragged away" by guards from the U.S. side. Shooting erupted, and three North Korean guards were killed and one was wounded seriously, according to the broadcasts.

The firefight occurred around an area known as the Sunken Garden Well south of the demarcation line, the command said.

The command said the joint security area was tense but quiet Saturday. It said security guards were in place on both sides and there had been no further incidents.

The call for a full-dress Armistice Commission meeting was made by U.S. Army Col. Donald W. Boose, Jr., secretary of the U.N. Command component of the commission, at a meeting of commission secretaries Saturday at Panmunjom. He said the incident was too grave to deal with at a level below that of the full commission.

The Soviet was brought 25 miles south from Panmunjom to Seoul.

Number 1 volunteer recognition Monday

Around 100 individuals have made reservations for a "second retirement" dinner planned here Monday night for Virginia Whitson, Senior Center volunteer worker and an avid supporter of the basketball programs at Western Texas College.

The event will begin at 6 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center. Included in the group attending will be the players from both the Westerner and Duster teams at WTC.

Mrs. Whitson, who first retired from teaching 10 years ago, recently announced she would be moving from the city.

In response to this, the recognition dinner was planned by her friends at both the college and the center.

The deadline for meal reservations has passed, but planners note persons who would like to attend the program only may enter through the south entrance of the center around 6:45 p.m.

Dr. Don Newbury, president at Western Texas College, will be the keynote speaker. Mort Ewing, chamber of commerce manager, will be the master of ceremonies.

Several presentations to Mrs. Whitson are expected to be made.

She moved to Snyder in 1964.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Hamburgers always taste best right after Thanksgiving."

It didn't happen this year, but there will come a day when somebody is going to give a bleeding-heart speech for ole Tom Turkey.

The turkey is a much maligned creature in this country. Call someone a turkey and everyone knows it's not meant in a complimentary manner. In fact, we know one feller pretty well who was given a turkey call for his birthday but was afraid to use it because his brother-in-law might show up for Thanksgiving dinner.

At least one day each November, the gobbler is a popular item. We read about how dumb an animal it is, but those colorful TV commercials can make those taste buds go to work. We're not much of a turkey fan, but those leftover cold dressing sandwiches are pretty hard to beat.

We agree the turkey is getting a pretty raw deal, and one of these days someone is going to start a protest movement on the gobbler's behalf.

Just last week in Britian, someone gave a false candy poisioning threat to protest the use of animals in tooth decay research. We won't soon forget the heated debate over the use of baboon hearts in an attempt to prolong human life.

We can just hear the logic now. Some guy will argue the sacred aspects of the turkey...."He's so much like family..."

Reverse liberation proved profitable in West Virginia. A female turnpike tolltaker sued to protest a requirement that all tolltakers wear pants.

She objected on religious grounds and cited the verse about a woman not wearing that which pertains to man. The judge awarded her $10,000.

No one can accuse her of skirting the issue.

In Brief

Evacuate

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The U.S. Embassy is evacuating non-essential personnel because of a threat by cocaine dealers to kill five Americans for each Colombian extradited to the United State to face drug charges, an embassy source said Friday.

Another embassy employee confirmed the report of a security alert.

Both spoke to The Associated Press on condition that they not be identified by name. They did not say how many embassy personnel and their families had left or would leave the country.

Jet hijacked

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A Somali Airlines Boeing 707 was hijacked Saturday en route from the Somali capital Mogadishu to Jidda, Saudi Arabia, and diverted to the Ethiopian capital of Addis Ababa, according to a British Broadcasting Corp. journalist who saw the airliner land.

Many march

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Tens of thousands of people attended raucous political rallies as Uruguay prepared to elect a civilian government to replace a military dictatorship in the first national elections in 13 years.

Polls open Sunday at 8 a.m. and Uruguayan law requires that all campaigning cease Friday, a full day before.

Uruguayans will choose a president, vice president, 30 senators, 99 deputies and hundreds of local officials, including chief executives for the country's 19 departments, or provinces.

Voting is mandatory, and a fine equivalent to $4 is imposed for not voting.

Break-in here

Snyder police are investigating the apparent Friday night burglary of a north Snyder convenience store.

According to preliminary reports, employees of G&G Grocery — at the intersection of Huffman Ave. and the Clairemont Hwy. — discovered the store had been entered sometime overnight after reporting for work around 4:30 a.m. Saturday.

Few details about the break-in were available Saturday morning but numerous food items were listed as taken from the store.

Reagan, Shultz to talk about arms control

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz will confer with President Reagan and other National Security Council members in the next six weeks to discuss the U.S. posture in upcoming arms control talks, a White House spokesman says.

Bob Sims, the spokesman, said Friday he did not know when Reagan and Shultz will hold their first discussions.

Shultz and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko are meeting in Geneva, Switzerland, Jan. 7-8 to talk about ways to reopen stalled arms control talks between the two superpowers.

The president is winding up a vacation at his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif.

"My expectation is that the president would be meeting with Shultz to talk about the upcoming meeting that the secretary will have with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko and that certainly between now and the time the meeting takes place the secretary would be discussing our posture for that meeting with the principals of the National Security Council," Sims said.

Meanwhile, the Washington Post reported in today's editions that Paul H. Nitze appears to be the leading candidate to become a special envoy in follow-up talks after the Shultz-Gromyko parlay.

Nitze, according to unnamed administration sources quoted by the Post, seems to be the favorite of many officials, particularly moderates. Nitze was chief U.S. negotiator in the intermediate-range missile talks that were broken off by the Soviets a year ago.

A possible hitch in Nitze's selection, said the Post, could be that choosing him would be seen by conservatives as an attempt to circumvent hard-liners within the administration, such as Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and his arms control deputy, Richard N. Perle.

Sims and State Department spokeswoman Anita Stockman had no comment Friday night on the Post report.

Asked about a CBS News report Thursday night that the United States might offer as a concession to the Soviets a three-year moratorium on testing of space weapons, Sims reiterated the administration's position, saying:

"We have said that we are testing (an anti-satellite system) because we have no operational system, and the Soviets have an operational anti-satellite system and that in the context of negotiations, we're willing to talk about mutual restraints."

CBS also said that another concession the United States possibly could make would be a temporary suspension of deployment of additional cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in Europe. Asked about that possibility, Sims said:

"We have said all along as far as missiles deploying in Europe that the deployment was continuing on schedule. We've also said we're willing to halt or reverse those deployments in the context of an agreement with the Soviet Union."

Palooka to retire

GREENWICH, Conn. (AP) — Joe Palooka, the shock-haired fighter who held the world heavyweight title for 54 years on America's comics pages, is hanging up his boxing gloves today.

Palooka, who scored the "greatest upset in the history of the ring" when he knocked out Jack McSwat with a crashing right to the jaw in 1930, retires today to his hometown of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., the hometown of the man who originated the character, the late Ham Fisher.

But Tony DiPreta of Greenwich, the 63-year-old cartoonist who has been doing the strip for the past 25 years, says he won't retire. Instead, he'll turn his pen to a new strip, "Rex Morgan, M.D."

DiPreta is saying farewell to Palooka reluctantly. He blamed the end of the strip on the smaller number of newspapers.

"Many cities have but one paper," DiPreta said this week. "So when the strip is dropped in a city, you can't go across the street and sell it to the competition."

At one point Joe Palooka was sold to 900 papers, but that number finally dwindled to 182.

Y. Arafat ousts pro-Syrian speaker of PLO parliament

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Yasser Arafat, trying to regain control of the Palestine Liberation Organization, ousted the pro-Syrian speaker of the PLO parliament and replaced him with a Moslem religious leader who once was deported from Jerusalem by Israeli authorities.

Speaker Khaled Fahoum, who joined Syrian-based anti-Arafat rebels in boycotting the Palestine National Council meeting, was voted out of office 207-7, with 47 abstentions on Friday.

Arafat loyalists said Fahoum was replaced because he failed to show up to preside over the meeting of the council, the Palestinian parliament.

At a news conference in the Syrian capital Damascus, Fahoum declared the meeting was illegal because a quorum was reached only after Arafat supporters appointed other Arafat backers to fill the seats left empty by the boycott.

Arafat convened the council meeting in the Jordanian capital Amman on Thursday despite the boycott, claiming 257 members of the 379-seat council were present. A quorum of 253 was needed to open the meeting. Arafat loyalists said four more members arrived Friday to bring the number to 261.

The council elected a new speaker, Sheik Abdel Hamid al-Sayeh, to a three-year term. It was announced that al-Sayeh was elected by a vote of 188-7. One delegate voted for Fahoum and the rest abstained, the council said.

Al-Sayeh, 78, is the oldest member of the council. He was the religious judge of Jerusalem before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. The Israelis accused him of instigating anti-Israeli activities and deported him the following year to Jordan, where he has lived since.

A Sunni Moslem, he was Jordan's minister of religious affairs in 1967 when the West Bank of the Jordan River was controlled by Jordan. The West Bank has been occupied by Israel since the 1967 war.

Fahoum had been speaker since 1977. He served for two three-year terms and was re-elected last year.

It appears the council meeting will largely focus on Arafat's effort to regain control of the PLO, which split into pro- and anti-Arafat factions following Israel's 1982 expulsion of PLO guerrillas from southern Lebanon.

The 20-year-old guerrilla movement was further weakened after the 1983 expulsion of Arafat loyalists from northern Lebanon by pro-Syrian rebel factions of the PLO.

Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres has said he doubts the council meeting will lead to any PLO support for a peace initiative, despite Jordanian King Hussein's appeal on Thursday for the guerrillas to join him in offering Israel peace in exchange for return of Arab lands occupied by Israel in the 1967 war.

Israeli officials have said they expect the split in the PLO to lead to more guerrillla attacks against Israel.

Block that big sneeze

ATLANTA (AP) — Be careful this winter if you are driving and feel a big sneeze coming on.

Safety experts say that when a driver sneezes hard, he or she could likely be stunned and cover several hundred yards while in that condition.

They advise drivers to try not to sneeze while behind the wheel.

Man to receive artificial heart

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — An Indiana man who told his doctor a man-made heart was his best chance at life, will get the world's second permanent artificial heart in an operation scheduled for Sunday, hospital officials said.

William J. Schroeder, 52, of Jasper, Ind., will undergo surgery to receive the Jarvik-7 artificial heart at Humana Hospital Audubon, the hospital announced Friday.

Schroeder, a father of six and grandfather of five who was forced to stop working because of coronary disease, has been under the supervision of doctors at Audubon for two weeks.

Dr. William DeVries, who performed the only other implant and will lead the surgical team Sunday, is the only surgeon approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration to do artificial heart implants.

Barney Clark, a Seattle-area dentist, lived for 112 days after receiving a heart implanted at the University of Utah Medical Center on Dec. 2, 1982.

Dr. Allan M. Lansing, head of Humana Heart Institute International, performed a double heart bypass operation on Schroeder in March 1983. Schroeder had suffered a heart attack in 1982.

The bypass was successful, but Schroeder's condition worsened, Lansing said in a statement Friday. He was diagnosed in October as having cardiomyopathy, or chronic congestive heart failure.

Schroeder, a retired Army ammunition quality control specialist and former president of the American Federation of Government Employees, Council 3, is a "tough old nut," said Dick McGarvey director of administration at the facility where Schroeder worked.

Schroeder has "a lot of inner strength. He has the stamina to bite the bullet to withstand this," McGarvey said in a telephone interview.

Dr. Phillip Dawkins, Schroeder's heart specialist in Jasper for two years, said Friday that his patient's lungs and kidneys function "quite well," and though he has diabetes, it should not interfere with the implant.

But Schroeder had been apprehensive about the man-made heart, Dawkins said.

"It wasn't a decision he made quickly," Dawkins said by telephone. "His comment to me was 'I think that's the best chance I have to live.' He feels like it's going to be successful, and I honestly do, too."

Una Loy Clark, Barney Clark's widow, said, "I was so excited, my heart started to pound," after hearing of the planned operation.

She said her advice to Schroeder's family would be to "pray a lot, stay close together and support each other — that's the best."

No was never option to Baby Fae's parents

NEW YORK (AP) — The parents of Baby Fae, the infant who survived nearly three weeks with a baboon heart in place of her own, say they never considered refusing the transplant or "had any doubt we had done the right thing."

"We weighed all the pros and cons back and forth and just figured if we didn't try — this or some other procedure — we would always wonder if we had given our best shot at giving her life," her father, identified only as Howard, said in an interview in the current issue of People magazine.

The family's identity had been kept secret by Loma Linda University Medical Center in California, where the surgery was performed Oct. 26, to protect their privacy. People magazine purchased the rights to Baby Fae's story, but has declined to say how much they paid the family.

"It was a chance to save her life," said 23-year-old Theresa, the mother of the baby girl who attracted the world's attention after the controversial transplant.

Part of the controversy centered around whether Baby Fae's parents had been fully informed about the procedure and about possible surgery to correct her fatally underdeveloped heart. Baby Fae died Nov. 15.

"They gave us all kinds of chances to back out of the whole thing — we could have stopped it right up to the time she was in surgery — but I can tell you we never once considered that," Howard said.

The unmarried couple, who had lived together for five years, had separated before Baby Fae's birth. Howard said he left his girlfriend and returned to Theresa after he learned about his daughter's birth and problems.

"And so she introduces me to Fae, and says, 'You know, she's dyin'.' And I looked at her, and my first words were, 'She looks sick.' Then I held her, and we had a few tears flowing there," he recalled.

Greek woman gives birth to quintuplets

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A 30-year-old Greek woman has given birth to what are believed to be the first quintuplets born at the Lackland Air Force Base hospital in 25 years.

Kyra Afentakis, the wife of a Greek air force officer, gave birth to two boys and three girls Friday at Wilford Hall U.S. Air Force Medical Center, an Air Force spokesman said.

Such an event is rare, occuring only once in about 85 million births.

The Afentakis quints were born about 6 p.m. at the Wilford Hall U.S. Air Force Medical Center, Sgt. Karl Gruhlkey said.

The quints, 14 weeks premature, ranged in weight from 1 pound, 3 ounces to 1 pound, 10 ounces, Gruhlkey said.

They were delivered by Caesarean section and were listed in critical but stable condition in the Wilford Hall neo-natal intensive care unit, he said.

Gruhlkey said the mother, Kyra Afentakis, was resting comfortably. Her husband, Lt. Col. Dimitrios Afentakis of the Hellinic Air Force, is a flight instructor with the EURO-NATO flight training program at Sheppard Air Force Base in Wichita Falls.

The spokesman said the woman had been a patient at the hospital for two weeks.

He said the family had requested to withhold interviews and photographs until Monday.

Mrs. Afentakis is from Volos, 200 miles north of Athens, while her husband is from Kalamata, 200 miles south of Athens, Gruhlkey said.

The last quints at Lackland were a set of girls born three months premature to the wife of an Air Force officer in 1959. All died within 18 hours, according to the San Antonio Light.

Quintuplets were born July 18, 1975 at Dallas' Parkland Hospital to Jerry and Debbie Davis. The four girls and one boy now live with their parents in the Dallas suburb of Lewisville.

The first quintuplets known to have survived more than a few hours were the Dionnes, near Callander, Ontario, Canada, in 1934.

The four girls and a boy born to Andrew J. and Mary Ann Fischer on Sept. 14, 1963 in Aberdeen, S.D., were the first set of quintuplets to survive early infancy in the United States.

Loraine band to entertain here

The Kitchen Band from the Loraine Senior Center will entertain in the Senior Center here at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. Members of the visiting band will also be guests for the luncheon starting at noon.

A 42 tournament is scheduled in the center Monday and anyone who wants to play is asked to register and draw for partners at 9:45 a.m.

Information on supplemental insurance for Medicare will be presented at 1 p.m. Friday. Bruce Carter, branch manager of the Social Security office in Big Spring, will present the program.

Daily activities begin at 8:30 a.m. when the building opens. An exercise class meets at 11:15 a.m. offering modified exercises to improve flexibility. There are two pool tables for use by senior citizens each day and table games can also be arranged.

County residents 60 years of age and older are invited to participate in senior citizen activities. Transportation to the building, located at 2603 Avenue M, can be arranged by calling the office at 573-4035.

Every culture likes ice cream

NEW YORK (AP) — Although the first commercial ice cream plant in this country was established in Baltimore in 1851, it was only another milestone in the history of ice cream, according to Chocolatier magazine.

The magazine says that nearly every culture which could get to natural ice in the summertime seems to have found a way to make some kind of frozen sweet or other. The Romans, for example, sent runners to bring ice from the frozen Apennines to be scraped, coated with flavored syrup, and enjoyed in the Mediterranean sun.

Later, Marco Polo returned from the Far East with a recipe for a frozen dessert that included milk, and ice cream history was born.

A teaspoon of mustard contains about six calories, according to Del Monte Corp., a maker of mustard.

How to videotape yuletide memories

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Preparing a "shooting script" in advance — and sticking to it — is the best way to preserve Christmas memories on film or videotape, says an industry specialist.

A shooting script outlines the kinds of shots you want to record and produces a visually interesting tape you will want to keep, according to Bob Burnett of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co.

"Professional filmmakers know there are just three kinds of composition — the long shot, the medium shot and the close-up," Burnett says. "Mix these shots up, and your tapes will be crisp and exciting."

Burnett advises that all three shots should be used, with the long shot coming first to establish the action to take place.

The tape could begin with a long shot of the Christmas tree or the festive holiday table. Or it might start outdoors with a long shot of relatives arriving by car.

Then should come a medium shot, perhaps of a child sitting at the tree unwrapping a present or the lighting of the Hanukkah candles. Burnett defines the medium shot as one which frames the subject from the waist up and gives more specific information.

Then move into a close-up, he says, with the shot framed so that the head and shoulders of the subject appear in the viewfinder.

"The close-up is like an optical window to the soul," Burnett says, "so move in to catch the excitement and wonder on your child's face as he finds a special gift."

This could be followed by the camera pulling back to another medium shot and then cutting to a close-up, perhaps to the relative who presented the toy or to the host making a toast.

Cutting from one sort of action to another is called cross-cutting, a technique setting up visual tension to make the tape interesting, Burnett explains.

To avoid candle or tree light burning an image on the tape, Burnett advises turning on all the room lights for your shots, staying back from the subject when it is lit up and using a telephoto focal length.

'Sew-in' slated at local college

The Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College will hold a "sew-in" on Monday for making ornaments for the "friendship" Christmas tree.

The session will begin at 1 p.m. and everyone interested is invited to attend. The museum will furnish some supplies and has patterns which can be used.

Additional work sessions are planned on Wednesday and Friday, both starting at 1 p.m.

Other information about the ornament project can be obtained by calling the museum office at 573-6107.

Both the Scurry County Museum and the Diamond M Museum have scheduled special Christmas programs on the afternoon of Dec. 2. The Scurry County Museum's activities will include a visit with Santa Claus, a teasting tea and planetarium shows. The Diamond M Museum is planning "A Musical Christmas," with music provided by several local groups.

Official: China fails to give grain assurance

WASHINGTON (AP) — A senior Agriculture Department official says China has failed to give any assurance that it will live up to its trade agreement with the United States to buy a specified amount of grain this year.

Richard A. Smith, administrator of USDA's Foreign Agricultural Service, said Friday the pact was discussed in consultations held in Peking this week. The agreement, signed on Oct. 22, 1980, expires at the end of this calendar year.

"The U.S. delegation expressed its deep disappointment over China's non-compliance with the terms of the agreement and requested the Chinese to fulfill their import commitment as soon as possible," Smith said. "The Chinese gave no assurance that they would satisfy the terms of the agreement."

But Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he was hopeful that China would remain a major buyer of U.S. grain, even after the current agreement expires Dec. 31.

Under the terms, China is supposed to buy a minimum of at least six million metric tons of wheat and corn each year. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 36.7 bushels of wheat or 39.4 bushels of corn.

"During the first two years of the agreement, shipments of U.S. grain to China exceeded the minimum import commitment," Smith said. "However, for the last two years, cumulative Chinese purchases for shipment through calendar 1984 total only 8.2 million tons — 3.8 million tons short of the agreed minimum."

Last year's sales included about 2.45 million tons of wheat and 1.38 million tons of corn. For 1984, so far, sales include less than 4.42 million tons of wheat only.

Smith said that while China is enjoying record grain production, "current low per capita grain consumption and increasing emphasis on livestock production means a continued and even growing reliance on imports" to supplement China's own supplies.

Dole said he was disappointed China would not be able to buy enough grain to fulfill the terms of the agreement. However, Dole said he understood the meeting in Peking was conducted on a "reportedly positive tone" and that he wants to see trade expand between the two countries.

"There may be a variety of reasons why China has not fulfilled their current obligation, but it appears they intend to treat the U.S. as a major supplier," Dole said in a statement.

"The Chinese obviously represent a tremendous market that we can't ignore, and you can bet our competition will do everything they can to increase their market share with the PRC (People's Republic of China)."

Bees are tidy

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Agriculture Department scientist says that some bees are tidier around the hive than others — and therefore can be more profitable for their owners.

"We have bred honey bees that are twice as tidy as others," says Martha A. Gilliam, a microbiologist in the department's Agricultural Research. "Good housekeeping is a trait that bees can inherit. The bees that have it are healthier than those that don't."

The "housekeeping" refers to the removal of dead and dying bees from the hive, which, when done promptly, can reduce the chance of spreading chalkbrood disease. Chalkbrood is a fungus that infected and dying bee larvae spread to healthy ones within the hive.

Ms. Gilliam and a colleague, entomologist Stephen Taber III, started breeding bees to capitalize on the good-housekeeping trait. After breeding three generations, a new breed was found to be more efficient in keeping hives shipshape. The new bees removed all their dead within 24 hours, while poor housekeepers took 48 to 72 hours.

The scientists, who work at the agency's bee research center in Tucson, Ariz., said the project has shown that bees with good housekeeping traits have a potential for reducing the disease.

Production rises

WASHINGTON (AP) — Commercial meat production in the United States last month rose to 3.67 billion pounds, up 4 percent from Oct. 1983, according to the latest Agriculture Department estimates.

Officials said Friday that beef output, at 2.18 billion pounds, was up 6 per. Veal production rose 10 percent from a year earlier to 45 million pounds.

Pork production was estimated in October at 1.41 billion pounds.

How to advoid stress of last minute Christmas shopping

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The holiday season is known as a time of good will, happy family reunions and joy to the world, but it also can kindle angry outbursts, sweaty palms, queasy stomach and tension headaches.

Described as "shopping anxiety" the symptoms stem from the chaos of last-minute Christmas gift shopping, according to a California psychiatrist.

"Even though many of us today lead very busy lives, we often feel compelled to find the perfect present for everyone on our list," says Dr. John Balog, director of the Lifestyle Dynamics counseling center in Pasadena.

Fortunately, he adds, a little advance planning can alleviate most of the anxiety, like scheduling shopping trips for early in the morning or during the dinner hour, when department stores are likely to be less crowded.

"Plan in advance which departments you'll need to visit," Balog advises. "And don't deviate from your intended route.

"Take an hour or so well before making any Christmas purchases to list all the friends and family members for whom you'd like to buy gifts. Think carefully about their lifestyles, work habits and leisure activities.

"Next, jot down appropriate gifts (always include several back-up possibilities) and the amount you'd like to spend. If your memory isn't great, it helps to keep a running list of the gifts you gave during the past years."

Another good practice is to shop throughout the year, says Balog, who suggests carrying a copy of your list with you whenever you travel.

"There's no rule that says you must shop for Christmas gifts when everyone else does," he says, adding that by shopping during vacation trips, especially abroad, "chances are you'll be saving money, not to mention loads of time, and be feeling a lot more relaxed."

Mail-order shopping offers another easy, relaxed method of buying gifts. Last year, Americans bought more than $44 billion in merchandise that way.

"Shopping by mail-order catalog is probably the most stress-free method of getting your holiday gifts assembled," says Douglas D. Anderson, president of the Brookstone Co., a major mail-order firm.

"Some companies add special services to make shopping even easier, like gift-wrapping and guaranteed Christmas delivery. And, as long as you allow time, you can make necessary exchanges or returns by mail."

Other alternatives to the hustle and bustle of stressful department store shopping are available.

Museum and zoo gift shops offer a relaxed environment for scouting out reproductions of native jewelry, sculptures, books, puzzles, slides and stationery.

But if circumstances force a delay in Christmas shopping until the 11th hour, there are steps that can be taken to make the situation more bearable.

Some department stores offer personal shopping services, which can do everything from selecting gifts to seeing that they are wrapped and sent to the people on your list.

Lighting problems can mess up photos

By The Associated Press

Christmas is one of the best times of the year to capture snapshots of family and friends, but special lighting problems sometimes go with yuletide picture-taking.

The problem with shooting color photos of a lighted Christmas tree, the exterior of a home or a community nativity scene, for example, is often too little light. Snow scenes, on the other hand, can provide too much.

High-speed film offers a better solution than a flashbulb to the low illumination problem, according to many photography experts.

"In these holiday scenes, the light is an important part of what you see," explains Robert Harris, professional photographer and instructor for Eastman Kodak Co.

"Flash often overwhelms or replaces the existing light and changes the picture. To avoid that change, try a high-speed film such as Kodacolor VR 1000, which will allow you to take hand-held pictures without using flash."

However, brightly-lighted scenes in snow can sometimes fool automatic cameras because the exposure meters often "read" the light from the snow rather than the light actually on the main subject, he says.

"If you can set the exposure settings on your camera, overexpose slightly to compensate for the snow glare," Harris advises. "Or set your camera by taking a close-up light reading directly from your subject, then stepping back to take your picture."

Since Christmas Eve is no time to discover a malfunctioning camera, the batteries that power the flash, automatic exposure and-or film advance should be checked beforehand, Harris cautions. Other tips to improve holiday snapshots:

— Keep an eye on the background of your pictures so candlesticks, Christmas trees and other objects don't appear to grow magically from your subject's head.

— Get in close. Fill the viewfinder with your main subject, not an abundance of extraneous objects.

— Remember that most cameras turn out rectangular pictures. Use that format to your advantage. Turn the camera vertically for tall, narrow subjects such as pictures of individuals, and horizontally for broader subjects, such as group portraits.

Dr. Lamb

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — A friend thinks he is a moderate smoker, since he averages a pack a day. Also, he feels that because he has smoked since age 15 and he's now 53, it would have harmed him by now if it were going to. He also drinks two or three beers a day. What do you think of this combination as far as his long-term health is concerned? He is apparently in good health now.

DEAR READER — It is very difficult to get the message across that heart and vascular disease is a silent disease. You can appear to be in very good health until you have your very first symptom — a heart attack, stroke or suden death. A high percentage of people with this disease do not live long enough to be admitted to the hospital. Under these circumstances, it is essential to do something constructive before you have that first and fatal symptom.

In adition, people really can't choose to live as they please and expect to die suddenly. Far too many have a stroke and are disabled for life, unable to walk, talk or even write. Considering those possibilities, one realizes how important it is to take sensible measures to avoid that situation.

Of course, your friend can benefit from quitting now. That is true no matter how long you have smoked. The risk of having a heart attack or stroke starts to decrease at once. By the end of the first year, the risk will have been significantly reduced, and the benefits will increase for up to 10 years later.

One pack a day is not a moderate amount. It certainly is enough to cause heart and lung disease, as well as many other health problems.

DEAR DR. LAMB — How would you diagnose a woman who has a constant craving for dirt? I'm sure I could easily consume a cupful during the course of the day. I started when I was carrying my baby, who is now almost 2. I don't care for loamy organic dirt, but for the dusty mineral kind. The only other physical problem I have is extremely dry skin. Are these two conditions related? I've been too embarrassed to tell anyone about this.

Your friend needs to know that it may take 15 to 20 years for cancer to develop after exposure to a carcinogen. He may not escape, but he can still significantly reduce his risk. Lung cancer is the leading cause of cancer deaths in men, and more than 80 percent of these could be prevented if men did not smoke.

You should have your friend read The Health Letter 19-6, The Tobacco Problem, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue for themselves or someone else can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR READER — You are not the only person who has had such a symptom. Some women crave laundry starch, clay, ice and any number of strange items. It is not unusual for this craving to start with a pregnancy. I cannot base a diagnosis on your story alone, but I can say that many individuals with this complaint have an iron deficiency.

Have a doctor check you carefully for iron deficiency. That includes measuring the iron content in your blood serum, not just a standard hemoglobin test.

If you have an iron deficiency, you will need more iron than you can expect to get from a diet. Most women in the childbearing years do need extra iron. Stop being embarrassed and get some help.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am 16 years old and very frustrated. I'm very small breasted and have been for quite some time. This defect has caused me a great deal of embarrassment. It is more than I can handle. I've had about as much embarrassment as I can enjoy. Could you please tell me something I could take or do to help speed up the process of me maturing a lot more?

DEAR READER — There is some truth in the saying, "It's not nice to fool with Mother Nature." I would not advise your taking anything until you are sure you have reached physiological maturity. At your age, you have time for natural development. If you happen to be delayed in other areas of development, such as having menstrual periods or other evidence of normal female maturity, then you should see your doctor and talk to him about it. At the right time, if you have delayed development and happen to really be low in estrogen, he may recommend estrogen for you. The breasts do develop under the influence of estrogen, and the degree of development is also dependent upon inherited characteristics.

Meanwhile, there are things you can do to help your appearance. Develop good chest muscles. You can do this by exercises that contract the muscles over the front of the chest and under the breast. This is what putting your hands together, as in prayer, and pushing the palms against each other does. Lying on your back and lifting a weight up also uses these pectoral muscles. Or you can use a health facility that has exercise equipment for this.

Don't think that these or any other exercises will increase the size of your breasts. None will. But by increasing your muscles behind your breast, they will appear larger and your profile will look better.

I'm sending you The Health Letter 18-12, Breast Basics, which discusses breast size in more detail. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Good posture helps, too. Keeping your shoulders back and avoiding the round-shoulder stance does a lot to improve the appearance of breast size.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm sure I read in your column that the body loses calcium when lying down. As I remember, you said patients with broken bones shouldn't lie down too much. Could you comment on this? My sister said this is impossible; "Where does the calcium go, into the couch?" She doesn't believe anything can harm the body except cigarettes and being overweight.

DEAR READER — You are right. Weight bearing stimulates the retention of calcium in the bones. It has been adequately shown that weightlessness, as in space flights, leads to a loss of calcium from the bones. My colleagues and I studied bed rest where the body is supported, to estimate what would happen during space flight. Normal healthy people lose calcium from their bones from bed rest. By the way, good physical activity that involves weight bearing, as in running or tennis, also stimulates strong bones.

If you exercise lying down you still lose calcium from the bones. We tried it, and the horizontal position supporting the body weight is the main factor in calcium loss.

Where does the calcium go? It is filtered out of the blood by the kidneys. That is why bed rest after a fracture is apt to increase the risk of kidney stones. Osteoporosis (dissolving bones) is also made worse by bed rest and inactivity.

Prison officers are seeking 2nd handgun

ROSHARON, Texas (AP) — The warden of a prison where officials found a .25-caliber pistol earlier this week says his officers are scouring the building for a second weapon they believe may exist.

Tim West said Friday's search began after some inmates gave differing descriptions of the weapons to be used in an escape plot foiled earlier this week.

Some inmates at the Darrington Unit said the weapon was a .25-caliber pistol, but others described it as a .38-caliber handgun, West said.

"We became concerned that they might be talking about different weapons," West said.

West said that when guns are smuggled into prisons, they are usually "extremely well hidden. It could be something as elaborate as breaking a hole in the wall and then plastering the gun inside and painting over it.

For that reason, he said, guards are conducting an "inch-by-inch search."

"I'm not going to let the officers tear the place down, but we've got to satisfy ourselves that there is not a second gun," said West.

Officers have already uncovered about 75 knives and other weapons in this and earlier searches.

The warden said officials still aren't sure how the gun which was found was smuggled into the prison.

Prison officials were tipped Wednesday that inmates were planning to escape. Prisoners have been locked in their cells ever since.

Corrections officers found a .25-caliber pistol in an inmate's locker. West said the gun was wrapped in toilet paper and black electrician's tape and hidden in a box meant for chess pieces.

In a second box, officers said they found .25-caliber ammunition.

Both the gun and the bullets were in a wooden box, one of hundreds used to store personal effects of prisoners. They are kept locked in a storeroom.

Skeleton discovery sours plan

EL PASO, Texas — The owners of a partially demolished restaurant say they've lost interest in salvaging the chimney after a skeleton was discovered wedged inside.

"Nobody wants to touch it," said Herlinda Hernandez, who owns the Farmer's Market and Restaurant along with her husband.

El Paso police believe the clothed skeleton is that of a young man who got stuck while trying to burglarize the business.

A worker at the site of the old restaurant, which is being torn down to make way for a supermarket, found the skeletal remains Friday morning.

Mrs. Hernandez, who owned the restaurant with her husband, Juventino, said the chimney is made of bricks from Italy that are at least 50 years old.

"It had done such a good job for us that we wanted to relocate it to the new restaurant, but forget it now," she said.

WTC is offering mid-winter plan

Western Texas College has scheduled a mid-winter semester from Jan. 2-10, giving students the opportunity to earn three hours of college credit.

Classes meet daily from 9-11:45 a.m. and 1-3:30 p.m. from Jan. 2-5 and Jan. 7-10. Finals will be on Jan. 10.

Courses on the schedule are business 131, English 231, 232, 233, government 231 and 232, history 131 and 132.

Students previously enrolled at WTC may register for the mid-winter session by mail. They are to send their name, address, telephone number, social security number, name of course, and $41 to Dr. Duane Hood, dean of student services at WTC.

Students who have never attended WTC must apply for admission before registering and can request an application for admission by mail.

Final registration will be held from 8-9 a.m. on Jan. 2, but students are requested to preregister for planning purposes.

YOUR ONLY RETIREMENT PLAN?

Do you think Social Security is enough for you to make it through retirement?...Well think again. Social Security was never intended to be a full retirement plan, but merely a supplement to other income.

That's where an Individual Retirement Account (IRA) from American State Bank can help. Our IRA is an easy way to accumulate a healthy nest egg for the future while at the same time providing you with tax savings today. You'll be able to deposit as much as $2,000* per year and then subtract that amount from your taxable income, right off the top. The interest you earn on your funds is tax-deferred as well. And if you're married and both you and your spouse work, you can set up two separate accounts.

Now is the ideal time to begin your financial planing for next year, so come by and let us explain to you the advantages of an IRA from American State Bank.

Deported woman dies of kidney disease

DALLAS (AP) — A woman who said she feared she would not be able to receive treatment for a kidney ailment if she was deported to Mexico has died in Mexico of peritonitis, two months after she was deported, officials say.

Mrs. Fermina Vasquez, 30, died early Wednesday at the Hospital General in Mexico City, hospital officials told The Dallas Morning News. She had been hospitalized there for an undetermined amount of time after her deportation two months ago.

Peritonitis, an inflammation of the lining of the abdomen, is often associated with a form of dialysis, a kidney specialist said.

Hispanic leaders here and members of her family blamed her death on an immigration court judge's order that she leave the United States, where she had lived for 15 years as an illegal alien.

"One of the things that she always claimed was if the United States government deported her, they were deporting her to death," said Marie Diaz, mother of Mrs. Vasquez' sister-in-law.

Mrs. Vasquez was deported to Mexico City Sept. 26. U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service officials said earlier they had received notice from the Mexican counsul in Dallas that her dialysis treatments would be available "at no cost."

Immigration officials did not return calls Friday, the newspaper reported.

"She died of a lack of medical treatment," Father Justin Lucio, pastor of St. James Catholic Church here who fought to keep Mrs. Vasquez in Dallas.

He said Friday that she had undergone a few treatments in Mexico City but was unable to continue them because the hospital began charging her.

"I only deal with reality, and she would have lived if proper medical attention had been given. She pleaded for mercy and mercy was denied," Lucio added.

Officials at the Mexico City hospital would not comment on her treatment.

Mrs. Vasquez had been receiving government funded dialysis treatments illegally by using the Social Security card of a friend during most of her last seven years in the United States, friends said.

Her kidneys had stopped functioning after the birth of her son, Tony.

Dr. Thomas Parker, medical director of the Dallas Kidney Disase Center, said Mrs. Vasquez had learned to dialyze herself at home without the use of a dialysis machine by pouring a bag of filtering solution into their abdomen through a tube, a treatment called peritoneal dialysis.

"Peritonitis (the ailment that caused her death) is the most common cause of hospitalization of patients on peritoneal dialysis," Parker said.

Parker said before she was deported, Mrs. Vasquez was given enough of the peritoneal dialysis solution to last several months.

Inmate's death linked to white supremacy

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A 31-year-old Texas prison inmate at the Ellis I Unit was stabbed to death Friday and officials said the slaying might have been related to a white supremacist gang.

It was the 23rd inmate death and "unofficially" the 364th prison stabbing of 1984, a record year of violence in the Texas Department of Corrections, TDC spokesman Charles Brown said.

Eddie Roy Jones died of multiple stab wounds to the chest and stomach about 5 p.m., Brown said.

Brown said the incident may involve a white supremacist prison gang known as the Aryan Brotherhood. Brown said the dead man is black and the two suspected attackers are white.

"Officials at the scene say it might be gang-related," Brown said. He said there were several inmate gangs at the maximum security unit outside of Huntsville.

Two homemade knives, a folding knife with a seven-inch blade and a steel rod sharpened to a point were confiscated from the recreation yard where the inmate died, Brown said.

Brown said prison officials credit the Aryan Brotherhood with a incident at Ellis I earlier this year in which two prisoners rolled a homemade bomb into the cell of a Death Row inmate.

Calvin J. Williams, a 24-year-old black man condemned to die for killing a Houston travel agent in 1980, suffered second- and third-degree burns on his legs Sept. 19 when a flammable liquid was thrown on his legs and matches and a homemade bomb were tossed into his cell.

The bomb did not explode until it was detonated by prison officials. But Williams is still recovering from his injuries, Brown said Friday night. Brown said neither of the two believed to have attacked Williams has been indicted. He said at least one of the pair wears the swastika and lightning bolt tattoo of the Aryan brotherhood.

Jones had been in prison since 1983 on a 15-year burglary sentence from Harris County, Brown said.

He said both suspects in Friday's slaying were treated for minor cuts at the prison unit infirmary before confinement in pre-hearing detention.

Brown described one of the suspects as a 33-year-old imprisoned since 1977 on a life sentence for two aggravated robberies and a murder in Dallas County. The other suspect is a 29-year-old man incarcerated since 1981 on a 20-year sentence for credit card abuse in Tarrant County, Brown said.

Prison authorities and the Walker County sheriff's department were investigating the incident, Brown said.

Yule shoppers grabbing up robot toys, flourescent socks, women's clothing

By The Associated Press

Eager holiday-season shoppers, lured by retailers' extended hours and large markdowns, are grabbing up robotic toys for their kids, fluorescent socks for trendy teens and clothes for the working women in their lives.

"I couldn't sleep last night I was so excited about it. The day-after-Thanksgiving sales always start the Christmas season for me," said Susan Vanek of Dallas, Ga., who got up early Friday morning and drove 45 miles into downtown Atlanta so she could be there when the stores opened at 8 a.m.

"There's a lot of good sales," said Jan Paul, 40, who was shopping at a mall in the Lansing, Mich., suburb of Okemos.

The day after Thanksgiving — one of the industry's busiest days — retailers went beyond providing Santa Claus' laps to sit on and glittery decorations as they try in a slowing economy to surpass last year's strong performance.

"This year, the promotions seem to be even more intense," said Jeffrey Feiner, a retail analyst with the investment firm Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith Inc. in New York. "Retailers have priced very, very aggressively and we think consumers think they can get very good prices and they're willing to come in earlier."

K mart Corp. ordered its stores nationwide to open at 7 a.m. Friday, two to three hours earlier than normal. Many other stores were open by 8 a.m.

"The stores we've talked to indicated there were several thousand people out there at 7 o'clock," said Robert E. Brewer, executive vice president of K mart in Troy, Mich. "Sales have been very strong from 7 o'clock right on."

By 7:30 a.m. in Columbus, Ohio, a hundred shoppers armed with lists and shopping bags waited outside the main doors at the Lazarus department store in a shopping mall.

"I'm going to make a beeline for the toy department," said Patti Mance. "I'm looking for a toy robot for my son. I've looked everywhere, but they're hard to find."

Not everbody was having a good time, however.

"I hate shopping. The stores are jammed and it's frustrating," said Stephen Ness at Gimbels in New York City.

A nationwide spot check by The Associated Press indicated that crowds generally were large except in a few places where foul weather hit.

"Nobody is going to come from very far with this weather. But if it clears up I know we'll get busy," said a clerk at a J.C. Penney store in rainy downtown Phoenix, Ariz.

The holiday shopping season this year is 32 days long, two more than 1933.

Toddlers' gift ideas

By The Associated Press

Santa's sack may have an unusual gift for the toddler of the house this Christmas — a microcomputer.

And what can a 3-year-old learn from a computer?

According to some experts, a preschooler probably can make as much use of a special home software program as a high school senior or college student.

Industry sources say the number of software programs available for children of all ages has nearly quadrupled since last Christmas, and the problem for parents is deciding where to begin and what to look for. There are pitfalls to be avoided.

Don't rush your preschooler, is one bit of advice heard frequently.

Although the concept of early-learning software programs for preschoolers can be of definite value, it should be kept in perspective, according to Diana Green, editor-in-chief of Parents' Choice magazine.

"This is another avenue of approach to our culture, to the overall learning process," Ms. Green says. "Books come first, and the imagination of the child must continue to be stimulated."

With this in mind, she suggests parents should follow a plan which includes:

— Recognizing their child's need to identify. "Children 3 to 6 like to feel familiar with what they see on the home microcomputer screen. A cozy and sympathetic character helps."

— Paying attention to what is familiar to a young child. A big ice cream cone or a juicy apple, for instance, enhances a tyke's sense of identification.

— Looking for animated graphics that may help a preschooler to associate letters, words and pictures.

— Searching out simplified programming that does not require a special sequence. Ideally, a preschooler should be able to press any key on a home computer and get instant action on the screen. Therefore, select software that children can use by themselves with little assistance.

"The entire spectrum of home computers must be seen through the eyes of parents who know their child," says Ms. Green. "It's a whole new path to parents and children learning together."

Ira students are eligible for scholarships

Several Ira students are eligible for scholarship consideration.

Each year the Permian Honor Scholarship Foundation makes scholarships available to many students who graduate in the top quarter of their classes. Those eligible are Barry Ezra, Phillip Carter, and Lisa Lindsey.

The University of Texas at Austin Ex-students Association each year selects scholarship recipients from among the top five percent of the Texas graduating seniors. Those eligible are Ezra and Carter.

For a number of years, Duke University has been the southern headquarters in the search for gifted and talented seventh grade students. A students ranking in the 97th percentile on any standardized achievement test in either math or reading is eligible. Cinimin Carney of Ira is eligible.

Each year the military services provide scholarships for high school seniors who attain high ACT/SAT scores. Eza and Carter are eligible.

Each year "Who's Who Among High School Students," "The American Society for Distinguished High School Students," and "Academic All-Americans" award scholarships to deserving seniors across the nation. Ezra, Carter, and Lindsey are eligible.

Dog is ring bearer

SHARON, Pa. (AP) — Call it a case of puppy love.

When Julee Ann McCamey and Donald L. Snow walked toward the altar in Sharon recently, Julee's year-old dog, Muffin, joined them in the wedding ceremony as ring bearer.

Mrs. Snow says she has dedicated much of her life to dogs and to the Mercer County Humane Society, operating one of the society's foster homes for pets.

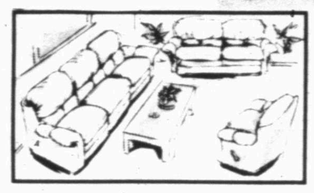

The gray wire-haired terrier means a lot to her, Mrs. Snow said. Her previous dog died of cancer last year. Shortly afterward, Mrs. Snow adopted Muffin from among the animals in her care.

Muffin was stolen the day after adoption from a yard enclosed with a locked fence, Mrs. Snow said. After newspaper and radio advertisements, the dog was returned three days later.

The idea of incorporating Muffin in the wedding came in a dream, Mrs. Snow said. Her fiance had no objections.

A few of the approximately 50 wedding guests knew of the surprise. But "you never saw so many cameras at a wedding in your life" when Muffin was led down the aisle by the flower girl, Don's niece Angela Snow of Sharon.

In annual WTC Classic here...

Howard, Grayson, SPC first-day winners

Western Junior Athletic Conference members couldn't quite pitch a shutout here Friday night but they did take three of the four games played in the annual WTC Classic.

The two-day affair was to continue Saturday at Scurry County Coliseum.

Western Texas, Howard and South Plains all defeated their Northern Conference foes Friday. Amarillo was the lone victim, falling 69-67 to Grayson County College on a last-second shot by Julie Cardinale.

Grayson, favored to win the Northern Conference this season, will be pitted against host Western Texas in Saturday's 8 p.m. contest. Other games had Amarillo and Weatherford battling at 2, South Plains and Hill at 4, and Howard and McLennan at 6.

The Classic opened with Howard College's Hawk Queens in a 79-49 romp over Hill Junior College.

Coach Don Stevens' Queens led off with a press, ran up a quick 11-0 lead, then backed off and cruised into halftime ahead 41-24. Hill didn't reach double-figures on the scoreboard until Monique Allen hit with 5:37 left in the half, making it a 26-11 ballgame.

Sue VanHooser and Joyce Boudreaux led the Queens with 16 points each while Tammy Winsmann popped for 15. Vicki Wade, Allison Dickson, Molly Early and Kim Barry pitched in a half-dozen points apiece. In all, 11 Queens scored in the game.

Allen, a 5-8 freshman from Illinois, scored 24 of Hill's 49 points. Carol Havelka was the only other player in double figures, with 12.

In the second game, 5-10 freshman Sally Walling scored 17 points to lead South Plains past Weatherford, 60-47. Shari Shilling scored 14 points for the Texans while Vicky McKenzie scored 10 and Cynthia Baker added 9.

Things were tied up 67-67 between Grayson and Amarillo until Cardinale, a 5-6 sophomore, tossed up a 20-plus footer. The ball bounded from the rim, went up against the glass, then fell back through as the buzzer sounded.

Paula Crutcher was the big gun for Grayson, scoring 27 points. Cardinale and Joy Roberts notched 8 points each while Paula Ford and Kasi Higgs drilled 6 apiece.

Debby Jones led the Amarillo Lady Badgers with 21 points. Georgia Walton and Pam Cox put in 11 apiece.

Coach Joe Cushing's WTC Dusters took on defending Region V Tournament champion McLennan Community College in the nightcap and came away with a 69-34 victory.

Cushing made constant substitutions as the Dusters played solid defense in forming a 32-14 halftime lead. McLennan didn't break 10 points until almost 16 minutes into the contest.

Clara Campbell led the Dusters with 19 points. Renvy Evans cut the hoop for 11 points.

Davis paced McLennan with 13 points.

Coach Cushing gets serious as conference opener nears

Fans must have thought Western Texas College Coach Joe Cushing couldn't make up his mind, the way he was running players in and out of the game with McLennan Community College here Friday night.

Actually, Cushing knew what he was doing. He just wanted to make sure his girls did, too.

"We haven't been mentally alert and ready to play," said Cushing. "We've got to gear up for conference play, quit fouling and quit turning the ball over and play more intelligent."

With Cushing pulling anyone who fouled or turned the ball over, the Dusters got serious enough to blitz defending Region V Tournament champion McLennan 69-34. The Highlassies, perhaps victims of their own success a year ago, trailed 32-14 at halftime.

"The girls were ready to play because McLennan was the team that knocked them out of the regional tournament last year," pointed out Cushing. "I thought everybody did a real good job tonight. Our defense was truely outstanding. It was a great defensive effort."

Western didn't allow McLennan a 10th point in the game until 4:01 was left in the first half. The Highlassies got only 13 field goals in 57 attempts for the night.

Cushing played everyone - numerous times - and eight girls scored. Clara "Speed" Campbell led the pack with 19 points and 10 rebounds. Renvy Evans had 11 points and 10 boards while Lyndy French and Rhonda Hoelting scored 8 each and Patti Hayes and Leslie Rose added 6 apiece.

The path from the Duster bench to the court was so much in constant use that in the span of seven seconds Cushing pulled Campbell for fouling, put in Rose, then yanked Rose for a turnover and put Campbell back in again.

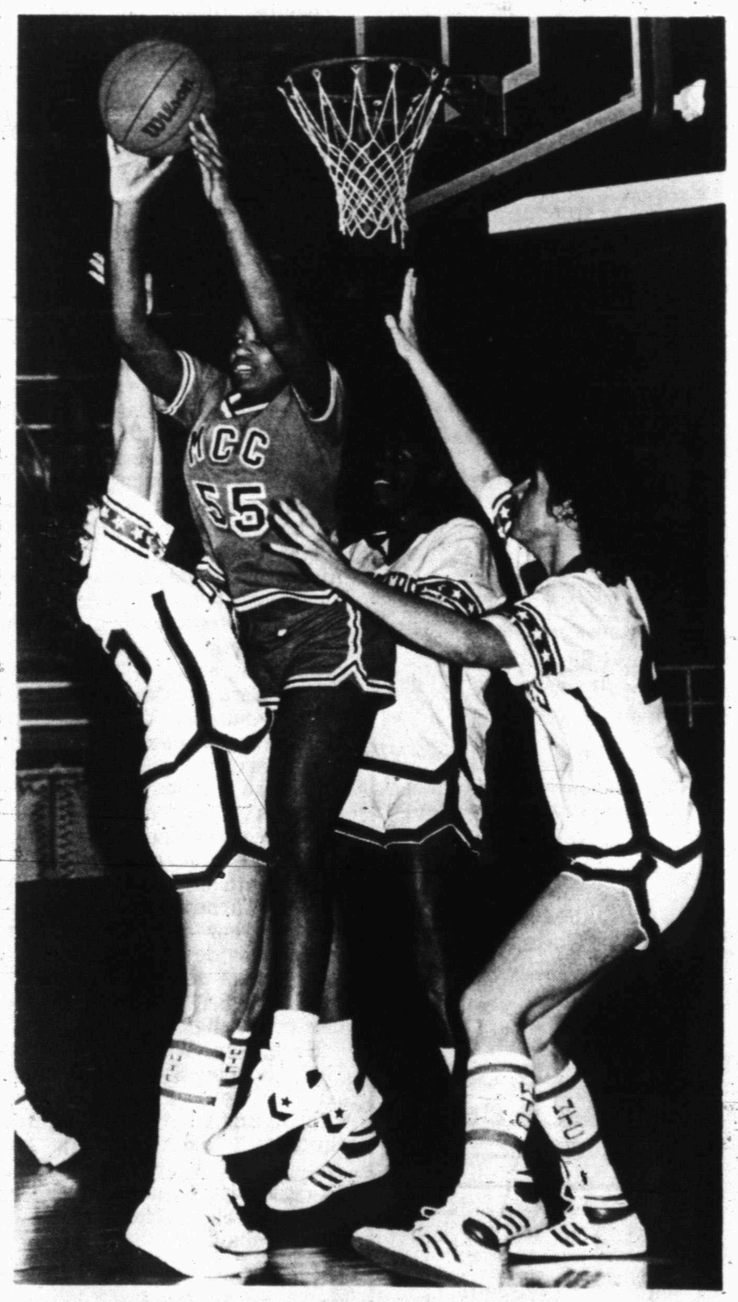

"We've got to learn that when we're 15-16 points ahead there's no need to foul inside like that. We've got to be more intelligent," he said.

If a Duster player fouled or turned the ball over, she came out of the game. She stayed in as long as she played error-free ball.

To help get ready for the WJCAC opener next Tuesday in Levelland, Cushing indicated he might use the same strategy in Saturday night's 8 o'clock game with Grayson County.

"Grayson will be a good test. They have a fine ballclub," he said of the team favored to win the Northern Conference this year. "We're going to play as many girls as we can. They'll stay in until they foul or make a mistake or until I deem it necessary for a change."

Western goes into the game with an 11-2 record. Grayson is 6-4.

Western rips AAU, 136-82

ODESSA -- Western Texas College smashed the 100-barrier for the second straight outing here Friday, ripping Odessa AAU 136-82 in the Odessa Thanksgiving Tournament.

WTC had defeated Angelo State junior varsity 127-56 Thursday.

The Westerners, 9-1, were to play Hill Junior College at 5 p.m. Saturday in the classic's final day.

"We thought it was going to be a tough test for us, but they (Odessa AAU) didn't have all the same players as when they played Odessa College the night before," said WTC Coach Phil Spradling.

Bulldogs wrap up another campaign

It'll haunt Ira Coach Mitch Lee for a long time, the loss to Grady, but there's no denying the Bulldogs had a good 1984, and look to be strong again in '85.

"We thought we had a good football season. There was a time or two I thought we could have done a little better. If we could take back one ballgame (the 42-27 loss to Grady), I think we would have had a super year. It still kind of hurts to think about that ballgame, but we got a lot accomplished this season. I believe we could have as good a ballclub next year," said Lee.

The loss knocked Ira out of a runnerup playoff berth. The Bulldogs later ended in a three-way lock for the spot, but were eliminated in a tiebreaking system.

Ira ended the season with a 6-2-1 record, including a big win over rival Borden County. Lee credited his seniors with much of the Bulldogs' success.

"Our senior class was probably our biggest surprise. They did a fine job for us," he said of upperclassmen Darren Hughes, Don Crane, Barry Ezra, Lloyd Goswick, Chris Reyna, Jay Baze and Philip Carter. "They came through when they had to. I felt like the seniors as a group did a good job in every game, even against Grady."

Lee said Ira's biggest loss will be at defensive end where Goswick and Ezra graduate. Together, they had 132 solo tackles.

"That will be the spot we'll need to work on the most. They did an excellent job. I'm hoping for some post-season honors for those folks," said Lee.

The Bulldogs will return four on defense and three on offense next season, including Bruce Strickland, Jay Clark, Brent Bearden, Steve Denson and Reyez Juarez.

Clark was the 'Dogs quarterback while Strickland led in rushing yards, total points and tackles.

"We'll lose a top running back , but Denson is really coming on. He could be one of the better backs in the district. Had he logged more carries, he would have been more productive, and maybe we should have given him the ball more," the coach said of Denson, who rushed for 337 yards on 36 carries, an 8.7 per-carry average.

"We're really going to be counting on those guys next year."

Also in to help the Bulldogs will be Donnie Davis, who was ineligible this year because he transfered in from Hermleigh. Davis worked out with the 'Dogs most of the season, however.

"We averaged about 78 yards in penalties a game which really cost us the output of a running back. We feel like we are going to have to cut down on some of that next year."

Ira averaged 81 yards in kick returns per game. Reyna led in that effort by carrying 21 times for 374 yards and three touchdowns.

District 2-4A reps advance in bi-district grid playoffs

District 2-4A football playoff contenders stayed in the hunt Friday night as both Sweetwater and Monahans won.

Sweetwater, the state's No. 8 ranked team, downed Borger 29-0. Monahans had a tougher time of it, locking Lubbock Dunbar in a scoreless tie, 0-0. The Loboes won on penetrations, 1-0.

Monahans got the only penetration of the game with 8:41 remaining when tailback Dana Amos scooted from the Dunbar 24 to the 18. The 2-4A runnerup squad eventually pushed to the 5-yard line but fumbled on a fourth-and-two play.

Following the Monahans effort, Dunbar staged a drive of its own. The Panthers drove inside Lobo territory to the 49. Monahans thwarted the drive when safety Jimmy Hines picked off a Michael Freeman pass.

Dunbar rebounded on a recovered fumble minutes later, but was stopped at the Lobo 29-yard line.

Hines led Monahans' rushers with 77 yards on 22 carries. Dunbar's Nelson Pearson had 95 yards on 17 totes.

The Loboes, now 10-1, will face Wichita Falls Hirschi next week.

Sweetwater had an easier time in disposing of its opponent. The Mustangs relied on junior quarterback Neal Hoover to score three of their four touchdowns - two on passes of 35 and 57 yards in the first half.

Sweetwater popped for seven first-quarter points when Hoover hit split end Anthony Norman on the 35-yarder. Thomas Goodman got the next TD on a 27-yard run. Mike Welch added to the total on a short pass from Hoover, which he broke for the 57-yard touchdown.

The Mustangs also got a 36-yard field goal from Archie Huckabee late in the second quarter to take a 23-0 lead into halftime.

Hoover completed the scoring on a two-yard run in the third period.

Sweetwater managed 187 yards rushing and 97 passing while holding Borger to just 85 total yards and seven first downs.

The Mustangs, 10-1, will meet Fort Worth Brewer next week in further playoff action.

No details of either playoff were available Saturday morning.

x-clinched wild-card playoff berth

Giants, Cards square off in key NFL battle

by The Associated Press

With a National Football League playoff berth looming, the New York Giants are keeping a wary eye on Sunday's foe, the Kansas City Chiefs.

"I'm just worried about Kansas City, not anything else," said Giants Coach Bill Parcells. "They have guys who can hurt you. (Carlos) Carson, (Henry) Marshall and J.T. Smith all are capable of making the long play."

Kansas City, 5-7 and last in the American Conference West, made only one long play against the Giants in last year's 38-17 victory over the Giants, but Parcells remembers how his team's mistakes contributed to the loss.

"They (Kansas City) intercepted a pass for a touchdown ... they got another touchdown on a third-and-17 play," he said.

The Chiefs also recovered a fumble to set up another touchdown.

"It was certainly right up there with the bad beatings we took last year," Parcells said.

With four weeks remaining in this season, the Giants are tied with the Washington Redskins, one-half game behind National Conference East Division leader Dallas.

The Cowboys took a half-game lead with a 20-17 victory on Thanksgiving Day over the New England Patriots. Detroit beat Green Bay 31-28 in the other game Thursday.

Dallas is 8-5, while Washington and New York are 7-5. The Redskins will meet the Bills in Washington on Sunday.

A key matchup in the American Conference will send second-place Seattle, 10-2, to Denver, which leads the AFC West with an 11-1 record. Thanks to Detroit's victory over Green Bay, the Chicago Bears, 8-4, can clinch the NFC Central with a victory over Minnesota, and the San Francisco 49ers, 11-1, can wrap up the NFC West with a victory over New Orleans. The Pittsburgh Steelers, holding onto a two-game lead over Cincinnati in the AFC Central with a 6-6 mark, play host to the San Diego Chargers.

In the rest of the league, it's Indianapolis at the Los Angeles Raiders, the Los Angeles Rams at Tampa Bay, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Atlanta at Cincinnati and Houston at Cleveland.

Monday night's game has the New York Jets at Miami, which clinched the AFC East with New England's loss.

Flutie hits winner as BC nips Miami

MIAMI (AP) - With 28 seconds remaining and 10th-ranked Boston College trailing Miami by four points, Eagles Coach Jack Bicknell prepared himself for what he felt was the inevitable defeat.

"My kids had given so much and had still come up a little short," he began. "I was already thinking about what I could tell them to get them prepared to play again next week."

Bicknell should have known better. When you've got Doug Flutie on the field, you don't concede until time has expired.

"He's a winner, what more can I say," Bicknell said after the diminutive quarterback heaved a 48-yard "Hail Mary" touchdown pass to Gerard Phelan on the game's last play to give Boston College a 47-45 victory over the 12th-ranked Hurricanes Friday.

"I didn't believe it until I saw the kids going nuts," he added. "It was a miracle. I know it was, but we deserved it because we had played well enough to be in a position to do it."

Flutie, a 5-foot-9 senior who's considered the leading candidate for the Heisman Trophy, didn't hurt his chances for the award that goes to the nation's top collegiate player.

The triumph boosted Cotton Bowl-bound Boston College's record to 8-2 with one regular-season game remaining against Holy Cross. Miami, headed for a Fiesta Bowl date against UCLA, dropped to 8-4.

Western

"We got to play everybody again. I kept switching them out every five minutes. I thought everybody played well," said Spradling.

Alvin Hicks led the Westerners with 18 points. Vince Turner put in 16 while James Dawn had 14, Jeff Gibson 13, Floyd Singleton 12 and George Moore and Billy Chambers 10 apiece.

Fourteen Westerners put points on the board.

Turner and Ed Teal ripped down 10 rebounds apiece. Other individual leaders were Gibson and Victor Spencer, who had 8 and 7 assists respectively, and Chambers and Anthony Smith, who had 6 assists apiece.

Western opens WJCAC play next Tuesday in Levelland, facing South Plains at 8 p.m.

"South Plains hasn't looked overpowering, but I'm expecting them to be real tough in conference play," said Spradling. "That's why we're here, to get in some playing time before conference. We play three of four games on the road so this experience is good for us. It's keeping us loose and letting a lot of kids play."

Rodriquez claims body building title

TOP BODY BUILDER -- Snyder's Ramsey Rodriquez won the Teenage Division at the Lackland Body Building Classic in San Antonio. The 19-year old is a Snyder High graduate, attending UTSA.

Snyder graduate Ramsey Rodriquez won the overall Teenage Division title in the Lackland Body Building Classic in San Antonio recently.

Rodriquez also won his class in the Teenage Division and was Best Poser in the division.

Approximately 25 entered the Teenage Division. Twelve were in Rodriquez's class, the short class.

The 19-year old is attending The University of Texas at San Antonio as a sophomore.

It was the second competition for Rodriquez, who plans to competed in the South Texas Teenage Competition in April.

"I get a lot of enjoyment out of it," said Rodriquez, who was a powerlifter at Snyder High School. "I guess I'm a natural for it because it's easy for me to get up there and do the poses and all."

Rodriquez works out four days a week in the off-season and six days a week when preparing for a meet.

"It teaches you discipline," said the teenager, who said the diet is not a major problem for him.

"I've never had much problem putting on weight. I just eat balanced meals. It gets a little tougher when I'm getting ready for a competition, but it's not that bad."

Rodriquez is the son of Pete and Debbie Rodriquez of Snyder.

Services for Petra Lazcano, 54, of 12th Street and Avenue P will be at 2 p.m. Sunday at Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church with Fr. Chris Coleman officiating. Burial will be at Snyder Cemetery under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. A rosary will be said at 8 p.m. Saturday at Bell-Seale Chapel.

She died at 8:50 a.m. Friday at Codgell Memorial Hospital. She was born Nov. 13, 1930.

She married Genaro Lazcano Jan. 24, 1959 in Crystal City. He survives.

She was a housewife and member of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church and had lived in Snyder 22 years.

She is survived by two daughters, Sara Arizmendi and Linda Hermosillo, both of Snyder; a son, Ramiro Lazcano of Snyder; two granddaughters and one grandson; a sister, Rosa DeHoyos of Poth, Tex.; three brothers, John Hernandez of Snyder and Santos Hernandez and Rosalio Hernandez, both of Poth.

Shelton Holmes

BIG SPRING — Graveside services for Shelton K. Holmes, 65, who moved here from Snyder in 1955, were conducted at 1 p.m. Saturday at Trinity Memorial Park.

He died Friday at 2 p.m. at Shady Oaks Rest Home in Abilene after a lengthy illness.

He was born Sept. 21, 1919 in Snyder and married Aletha Goodnough May 29, 1938 in Snyder also.

Survivors include a daughter, Sheila Bennett of Austin; a son, Dennis H. of Big Spring; a brother, Horace of Emory; three sisters, Mrs. Coy Neal and Mrs. Libby (Ruth) Grimmett, both of Snyder, and Martha Lou Henley of Lubbock; four grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Haircut leads to quitting

AGAWAM, Mass. (AP) — A woman has resigned from police training after police academy barbers cut her hair in what she called a "Mohawk" style, and a state commission on discrimination is investigating.

Luz Lizarribar, a 26-year-old cadet appointed by the city of Holyoke, said she knew she'd have to get a haircut every two weeks, per regulations at the Western Massachusetts Criminal Training Center in Agawam.

But she left the academy after four days' training in September because, she claimed, barbers clipped her hair very close to the sides and left a thick strip up the middle — a style modeled on the haircuts of Indians in old westerns.

Troopers chanted, "Cut it off. Cut it off," she said, adding, "From then on, all they ever called me was Chief or Mohawk."

Lt. Charles Appleton, training program commandant, denied that the woman's hair was cut shorter than other cadets'.

"Everybody — man or woman — gets a haircut," he said. "We do not discriminate against minorities."

Philadelphia convicts 3 former cops

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A federal jury Friday convicted three former policemen and acquitted two others of taking bribes in part of a racketeering conspiracy that extorted $350,000 to protect illegal gambling in the city.

The verdicts brought to 17 the number of ex... found guilty of corruption since the FBI began investigating Philadelphia's police department 3½ years ago.

Former Lt. Albert Mazzo, 41, and former officer John Anderson, 41, were acquitted of all charges of conspiracy, racketeering and extortion.

Convicted were former officers Thomas "Dutch" Volkmar, 34; George Novak, 31; and Andrew Kelly, 44.

U.S. District Judge Daniel Huyett III did not set a date for sentencing.

The jury found each defendant innocent of some of the counts in the indictment.

Volkmar was acquitted of three of 14 counts of taking bribes. Novak was found innocent of two of four counts, and Kelly on one of four counts.

Prosecution witnesses testified that payoffs were made to policemen by owners of video poker machines to allow the machines to be used for gambling, mostly in bars. The machines are legal for entertainment purposes, but payoffs for winning on them are illegal.

The five were accused of accepting $350,000 between 1980 and mid-1983.

Some witnesses also testified that they paid bribes to protect illegal lottery games.

The investigation has reached almost to the top of Philadelphia's 7,200-member police force. Last summer, the department's No. 2 officer, Deputy Commissioner James Martin, was sentenced to 18 years in jail for taking payoffs to protect the poker machines.

So far, in four trials, besides the deputy police commissioner's, a chief inspector, two inspectors, a captain and a half-dozen lieutenants have been convicted, in addition to a number of vice officers.

Attorneys for Kelly and Volkmar said they would appeal the verdict. Anderson's attorney said he would decide whether to appeal after sentencing.

U.S. Attorney Howard Klein, one of the two prosecutors, said, "We had 15 defendants, 10 have been convicted and 3 pleaded guilty and one is still to be tried."

Actor's belongings to be auctioned

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The possessions of the late Steven McQueen, an enormously popular tough-guy actor who zealously guarded his off-screen life, are going public in an auction to benefit his children.

Some 1,500 people have purchased $30 bidding passes for the auction that begins today at the Imperial Palace Hotel, said Kris Engelstad, who spent months visiting McQueen's former haunts to help collect more than 100 antique motorcycles, 25 vintage autos, gas pumps, movie memorabilia and numerous antiques.

By Friday, more than 2,000 people, considering bidding for McQueen's possessions, had wandered through the showroom, eyeing a 1957 Jaguar XK-SS with a magnesium body or the firefighter's hat he wore in "The Towering Inferno," Ms. Engelstad said.

"He never threw anything away," said Ms. Engelstad, daughter of Ralph Engelstad, who owns the Imperial Palace, where the auction takes place today and Sunday. "There were partial scripts, the cars he used in 'The Hunter' and 'The Reivers,' even a production board from the movie 'Yentl,' which indicates people had contacted him about the movie 10 years ago."

Engelstad, whose hotel has a display of antique cars, predicted the Jaguar will bring more than $150,000. Hotel officials valued the estate at more than $1 million.

The proceeds from the auction will go to McQueen's children, Terri, 26, and Chad, 23.

McQueen died of a heart attack in 1980, after suffering from cancer. He was born on March 24, 1930, in Indianapolis, and became a top box-office star in action and adventure movies of the 1960s and 1970s. Among his films were "The Magnificent Seven," "The Great Escape," "Love With a Proper Stranger" and "Bullitt."

Much of the auction material came from an airplane hangar in Santa Paula, Calif., where McQueen stored an antique plane and retreated from Hollywood.

"Everything sat untouched for four years from the day he walked out of the hangar and locked the door," Ms. Engelstad said. "There were 120 motorcycles jammed into the place, things hanging from the walls and the ceiling, antique toys all over the place. It took us a day just to catalog all the bikes, another day to catalog the toys.

"There was still food and dishes in the kitchen," she said. "Boxes were there just as he left them. There were a lot of creepy crawlies around."

McQueen apparently lived in the hangar between marriages to Ali McGraw and Barbara Minty "because he wanted to live around the things he loved the most," Ms. Engelstad said.

McQueen's collection of motorcycles includes some dating back to 1928.

Ms. Engelstad said she believes this is the first time the entire estate of an actor has been auctioned since Rudolph Valentino's estate was sold in the 1920s.

5 prison escapees captured

BURKEVILLE, Va. (AP) — The last of five inmates who escaped from a southern Virignia prison was recaptured Friday night about a half-mile from the institution, authorities said. The four other escapees were caught earlier in the day.

Anthony Fox, 28, who was serving life plus 335 years for convictions of rape, sodomy and abduction, was spotted about 8 p.m. walking along a highway, and arrested about an hour later.

"He was hiding in some bushes along the road," said Wayne Farrar, spokesman for the state Department of Corrections. "The tracking dogs flushed him, and he attempted to run a short distance but was apprehended."

The five inmates broke out of the 3-month-old Nottoway Correctional Center on Thursday evening by cutting a hole through two chain-link fences beneath a guard tower. Four of the men were recaptured Friday morning.

One of them, Richard Vescuso, 27, serving 22 years for robbery and weapons convictions, surrendered at the home of a court clerk, saying he was cold.

Farrar said authorities arrested three of the fugitives around 4:30 a.m. as they were walking across a bridge a half-mile from the prison.

He identified the three as Jimmy Jones, 39, serving 43 years for armed robbery; Robert Stockman, 23, serving 18 years for breaking and entering and grand larcency, and Jimmy Lee Hollingsworth, 23, serving a 45-year sentence for grand larceny and burglary.

The escape was the first from the Nottoway facility, which was opened in August in the wake of a series of uprisings and breakouts at the Mecklenburg Correctional Center, 50 miles to the south at Boydton.

Minor wrecks worked Friday

Snyder police officers were called to investigate three minor traffic mishaps in the city Friday.

Involved in the day's first mishap at 8:41 a.m. in the 3000 Block of College Ave. were a 1977 Chevrolet driven by Edith Witte of the Clairemont Rt. and a 1982 Chevrolet driven by Bamma Strayhorn of 2801 32nd St.

The 1800 Block of 25th St. was the scene of Friday's second accident at 5:10 p.m.

Involved in it were a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Anton Bert Lopour of 3611 Hill Ave. and a 1982 Pontiac driven by Joe Steven Lee of 2911 El Paso Ave.

The day's final mishap was reported at 8:40 p.m. in the 500 Block of the East Highway.

Involved in it were a 1976 Kenworth tractor-trailer rig driven by Don Young of Plains and a 1971 Buick driven by Sherry Brooks of 1904 Coleman Ave.

No injuries were reported in any of the Friday accidents.

Friday arrests total 7 locally

Snyder police logged seven misdemeanor arrests on various drug and alcohol charges Friday evening.

One adult suspect was arrested in Towle Park and charged with misdemeanor possession of marijuana, possession of prohibited drug paraphernalia and misdemeanor assault.

A juvenile suspect was also jailed at the same time and charged with one count of possession of prohibited paraphernalia.

Four other subjects were jailed for public intoxication and one was jailed for driving while intoxicated through the course of the evening.

Team of American doctors to aid Mexican blast victims

HOUSTON (AP) — Half a dozen American doctors have gone to Mexico City in hopes of alleviating the suffering of 500 burn victims injured in natural gas explosions, but one says their help could be like "an Alka-Seltzer in the sea."

Dr. Hugo F. Carvajal heads the team that left Houston Friday. He said he and the other physicians would "assist as advisers" to the Mexican doctors and nurses treating the injured.

But Carvajal said he hopes American doctors could continue to visit Mexico for the next three months.

"I certainly hope this (one-week trip) will not be the end of this," Carvajal said. "If so, it will be like my father said — 'an Alka-Seltzer in the middle of the sea.'"

The trip is being paid for by the government of Mexico and the University of Texas, Carvajal said.

"If you get 10 major burn victims, it would be a big thing," Carvajal told reporters at Houston Hobby Airport. "Mexico City is dealing with 500."

Officials in the Mexican capital said 346 people were killed and 500 injured Monday when a series of explosions ripped through natural gas storage tanks.

Carvajal said he and Dr. Donald Parks, the chief of plastic surgery at Hermann Hospital, were invited to Mexico City by the governor of the state of Mexico, Alfredo del Mazo.

The doctors said they developed a friendship with Mazo four years ago when they operated on the governor's son, who had been burned in a grease fire.

The doctors will also be taking along a cargo of special gauze designed for burn victims and other medical supplies.

"We'd like to have the feeling we assisted the health providers in Mexico in this time of their need," Parks said.

Parks said the team has not been briefed on what to expect when they arrive, but they believe fighting infection in burn victims will be one of their first duties.

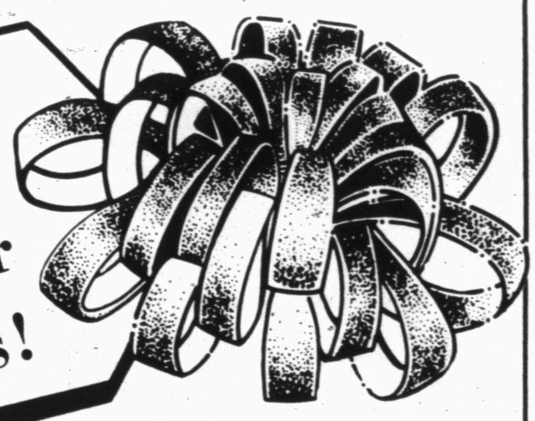

"Certainly there will be a lot of unknowns," Parks said. "I hope we can render some assistance. I hope we can learn something from them as well."

Accompanying Parks and Carvajal is Javier Aceves, a resident pediatrician, who is from Guadalajara, Mexico.

"It can be a blessed experience to help those terribly burned kids and adults," Aceves said. "They need some help. It doesn't matter what country they're from."

By Vicki Brown SDN Society Editor

(Editor's note: This is the first of a two-part series dealing with stresses a wife must cope with that are a direct result of her husband's occupation. In the first story, readers catch a glimpse of the wives of professional men.)

Wives of men in high visibility jobs may tend to feel somewhat isolated, as though nobody could possibly understand what it's like to be married to a coach or public official.

But interviews with some of those wives indicate that at least in some areas they have more in common than they might think.

Most of the women interviewed indicated that time — or rather, the lack of it — is one of the major stress factors in their lives.

But most of the women were quick to add that "it's the quality of time and not the quantity that counts."

According to Brenda Newbury, whose husband Don is president of Western Texas College, a wife must have almost the same kind of commitment to her husband's job that he does.

"You have to be committed to the time involved. If it's happening, we go — to museum functions, fine arts events and all the athletic events we can." She added that they also try to participate in as many community activities as possible, including high school athletic events and plays.

Margaret Tomlin, wife of Snyder High School's head football coach and athletic director Dennis Tomlin, added that her husband puts in extra time with young people aside from the time he spends with them on the field.

"Coaches are expected to take more responsibility for athlete's behavior, so they spend more time with them."

As the women's basketball coach at Western Texas College, Joe Cushing must also spend much more than 40 hours per week at his job. Even though time is still of major concern for his wife Gail, she remarked, "During our first five years I felt obligated to go to the games and I resented the time it took. But you learn to adjust through age and maturity. I've learned to appreciate the time it takes."

"You have to be committed to the time involved."

Although perhaps to a lesser degree, Cyndee Gayle's life is also affected by time. As city manager, her husband John must spend many evenings in various meetings. "There are so many functions that we could go every night," She remarked.

She noted she feels that now that her children are in elementary school, time pressure is not as stressful as it was when they were younger.

Betty Metzger, too, knows what it's like to have her husband work more than 40 hours per week. Because he is pastor of First United Methodist Church, Robert Metzger spends a great deal of time in meetings and visiting church members and prospects during evening hours. Betty added, "But if you have the same commitment to the church, you understand. I would find it hard to accept (the time he spends) if he were putting in that much time just to make money."

All of the women face some pressure from the amount of time their husbands must spend out of town.

Even though time appears to be the greatest concern for these women, there are other common stresses too. The expectations of other people, even if those expectations are somewhat different for each woman, add stress. Cushing's wife Gail remarked, "I feel I have to extend his philosophies and his coaching techniques. I feel that when Toby (the couple's son) and I are out in public, we represent him. Even when I go to the store, I take time to look nice. People, even those I don't know, call me by name. I think that you should be careful what you do and say, but people should do that anyway. When I'm not representing him, I'm representing myself."

She added, "People expect me to know all the (basketball) rules, who the girls are, where they're from and how tall they are."

Coach Tomlin's wife Margaret responded that people are sometimes surprised at how much she knows about football and its rules. "They expect me to know (my husband's) reactions and they expect me to know about the players. I don't take things very personally. Even when I hear things from the stands, I take them with a grain of salt and attribute it to their lack of understanding."

Betty Metzger said expectations from others can also be a problem for her. Those expectations became more vivid when she worked outside the home. "After all," she said, "who's going to cuss in front of a pastor's wife?"

"I would like to present an image, publicly, that is acceptable..."

Co-workers' usual reaction to the news that she is married to a preacher is "why didn't you tell us?"

Church members also have their own ideas about what pastors' wives should and should not do. "Everyone else's wife went to work long before pastors' wives. When they did get jobs, they were usually nurses or teachers," she remarked.

"Sometimes people will call with theological questions for Robert and when they find out he's not home, they say, 'Well maybe you can answer this question.'" She added that people tend to forget that she hasn't had the theological schooling that he has.

Brenda Newbury said she doesn't view herself as a public figure, but she said "I would like to present an image, publicly, that is acceptable to my role as the president's wife."

Because these ladies realize that Dad's job will also affect their children, they try not to put extra pressure on them. "We try not to put pressure on them just because they are the president's children," Brenda said. "But we expect them to live up to our expectations because we know what they can do."

Cyndee Gayle remarked, "I don't think our children are affected yet because they are too young to have a clear concept of what (John) does. As they get older, (our expectations of them will come) more from the law enforcement aspect. If they were to have any police involvement, it will be different. We will probably be a little stricter with them."

Betty Metzger added she and her husband emphasize to their children that "we live the way we live because we are Christians, not because Daddy is the preacher."

The ladies indicated that even though there are aspects of their husbands' professions that they can never be a part of, they still "feel" for them. Gail Cushing said, "If he's worried about a loss or about a game, then we worry about the loss or about the game. We tend to feel about his job the way he does."

Married at First Baptist...

Double ring ceremony unites couple

The chapel of First Baptist Church was the site of the union of Kimberly Denise Butler, daughter of Kay Dodson Butler, to Jeffrey Edward Minor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roaal Minor of Snyder. Rev. Ken Branam, pastor, officiated the evening, double ring ceremony on Aug. 25.

A rainbow candelabrum flanked by two heart-shaped candelabra decorated with greenery and pink flowers centered the altar. The pews were marked with pink ribbons, greenery and votive candles.

Teresa Waller, the bride's cousin, and Lynn Bethel provided nuptial selections as the guests were seated including "Truly," "Evergreen," "Ice Castles," and "Almost." Waller played "Westminster Chimes" and chimed the hour just before the "Wedding March."

Susan Clark, the groom's sister, and Darrell Collins sang "Almost Paradise." Collins also performed "The Lord's Prayer." "Time After Time" was played as the couple lit the memory candle.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Wayne N. Dodson, the bride wore a Mendocino original gown of sheer white chiffon edged in three ruffles of Chantilly lace and satin. The molded bodice featured a high collar with a deep schiffli lace "V" outlined in Alencon lace and pearls. Chantilly lace ruffles adorned the shoulders and bands of Chantilly lace with pearl covered, satin inserts decorated the bottom of the sleeves. Alencon lace and pearls formed the cuffs. The fitted waistline flowed to a chapel-length train. The gown's hemline and the train were encircled with three ruffles of Chantilly lace and satin.

To complete her ensemble, the bride chose a bandeau headpiece of reembroidered Chantilly lace sprinkled with pearls and a floor-length, silk illusion veil.

She carried a bouquet of pink and white roses, lilies and baby's breath adorned with pink ribbons.

For something old, the bride wore her maternal grandmother's original wedding band. A rare white topaz given to her by her great uncle served as something new. A blue bow adorned her garter and she wore pennies minted in the couple's birth years in her shoe.

Debbie Raney of Lamesa served as maid of honor with Becky Pylant, Shonna Slaughter and Audra Blackard as bridesmaids. Katye Galloway was flower girl. The women wore light and hot pink taffeta dresses with fitted bodices and crushed cumberbund waists. Triple alternating colored ruffles worn off-the-shoulder adorned the necklines. Full, flared shirts, drawn to scallops with hot pink ribbons, overlapped hoop skirts of hot pink. They carried nosegays of light and hot pink carnations and wore flower covered combs in their hair.

Nolan von Roeder stood as best man for the groom with Jay Butler, the bride's brother, Cal Eaton and Mike Head as groomsmen. The groom wore a white tuxedo while his attendents were attired in silver tuxedos.

Tommy Parks, Thad Springer, Darren Fletcher and Bill Bell, the groom's cousin, served as ushers. Also dressed in a silver tuxedo, Dusty Peters of San Angelo, the groom's nephew, was ring bearer.

A reception followed in the garden room of the church.

Covered with a white satin assorted pink flowers and topped with two wedding bells, doves and flowers. Teresa Waller, Radonda Smith and Brandi Bell, the groom's cousin, presided.

Mary Ann Taylor presided over the groom's table which was covered by a grey cloth and overlayed with white eyelet. Fruit, cheese and coffee from a silver service were served.

Brandi Bell registered guests in the bride's book.

Dr. Jim Tulley videotaped the ceremony and Harley Bynum served as photographer.

The bride was honored with a gift tea on Aug. 9 in the garden room of First Baptist Church by hostesses Norma Thompson, Jean Godair, Mollie Byrd, Gay Idom, Doris Blackard, Mary Ann Taylor, Kay Echols, Betty Hataway, Patsy Taylor, Patsy Sitton, Laverne Thompson, Donna Wilson, Anne von Roeder, Janice Hart and Jeanie Liner.

She was also given a shower in Lamesa on Aug. 17 at the Richard Gentry home. Hostesses for the event included Sue Ernfinger, Gwen Gentry, Kathleen Brown, Stella Raney, Radonda Smith, Alice Kidd, Joyce Gibson and Barbara Gruben.

A recipe and bachelorette shower was given by Becky Pylant, Carrie Crenwelge and Audra Blackard in the Pylant home.

Hostesses Mollie Byrd, Sue Mize, Buice Harrell, Lounnette Null, Quida Bruner, Ena Carroll, Betty Youngkin and Helen Clark honored the bride with a bridesmaids' luncheon at the Snyder Country Club.

A graduate of Snyder High School, the bride is employed by Betco Supply.

Employed by B&F Well Service, the groom also graduated from Snyder High School.

EARLY HOLIDAY START MAKES WAITING HARD

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) — A too long anticipation time can create overstimulation and anxiety for children, warns a family development specialist for Cornell Cooperative Extension, who urges parents not to start Christmas preparations too soon.

"A long anticipation period can be very difficult for children to cope with," says Suzanne West, who is also director of the nursery school in the New York State College of Human Ecology at Cornell University. "Children have a different sense of time. Six weeks to a child can seem like an eternity of waiting."

To make the season a meaningful and pleasant holiday for children, don't give in to the commercial pressure of beginning the celebration far in advance, she advises. Preschoolers often expect immediate gratification and they may express their frustration in waiting as many as six weeks for Christmas to arrive through whining, irritability and other behavioral changes, Ms. West notes.

Fiber from the fluffy, white cotton ball teams with the fashion industry to produce fashion which is in demand worldwide. Fabrics made of this versatile fiber appeal to consumers for fashion as well as comfort. Cotton's popularity has increased; consumers are buying more cotton and cotton-blend products.

Characteristics

Cotton can be styled into an array of fabrics, from cool lightweight knits to warm corduroys and velveteens. By changing fabric weights, finishes and garment styles, cotton or cotton-blend ensembles are suitable for many occasions and activities. Most cotton fibers are styled into clothing and household items such as sheets, towels or upholstery fabric.

Whatever the temperature outside, cotton and cotton-blend fabrics that contain at least 50 percent cotton are comfortable to wear. A natural fiber, cotton absorbs moisture from the skin, then allows it to evaporate. Cotton keeps the body comfortable through a range of temperatures.

Cotton is static-free, can be soft or crisp to the touch and sheds balls or pills in the fabric's surface. Cotton fabric can be dyed in a wide range of colors and is available in many colorfast prints and patterns.

Flame-resistant cottons are used in uniforms for fire fighters, in nonpressurized space suits for astronauts and uniforms for other workers with specialized needs. Sleepwear, particularly for children, is available in flame-resistant cottons.

Cotton is blended with other fibers to combine the best qualities of each fiber. Cotton can be blended with other natural fibers such as linen, wool and silk or with fibers such as polyester and rayon. Fabric blends containing at least 50 percent cotton perform more like all-cotton fabrics.

Care

Today's cottons are easy to care for. Read labels for specific performance features. Because of recent permanent press advances, cotton fabric can shed wrinkles and does not require ironing. Shrinkage has also been controlled. To maintain these qualities, carefully follow care instructions on laundry products and on clothing or household items. Permanent press washer and dryer cycles relax wrinkles. Do not overload the washer or the dryer. Remove clothes promptly from the washer to prevent dye transfer to other items. Also remove items from the dryer so they do not form wrinkles. A brief tumbling in a warm dryer may remove or reduce wrinkles.

Cotton fibers are durable and strong and can be washed at high water temperatures, chlorine bleached and dryed at high temperatures if safe for the fabric and garment style, dyes and other finishes. Bleach removes certain stains and whitens whites. High water temperatures can be used for washing heavily soiled items or for pesticide removal. High dryer temperatures may be needed for thick or bulky items. Clean all clothing or household items before storing them because insects are attracted to soiled clothes and will particularly attack food stains, leaving holes. Cottons will mildew if stored damp.

Fall Fruit Tree Spraying Controls Diseases

Fall is often the time when fruit tree care is forgotten or neglected, but it's a critical time for controlling many peach and plum tree diseases to insure a good crop next year.

With the arrival of fall, there's often a tendency to forget our peach and plum trees that served us so well last summer.

Applying a copper fungicide now can stop or reduce three of the six diseases that attack peach and plum trees in Texas. These are peach leaf curl, bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker.

Puckered and distorted peach tree leaves that were either bright red or light green in diseased areas last spring were due to peach leaf curl fungus. The only time to effectively control this disease is in the fall with a copper-containing fungicide such as Kocide 101 or Kocide 404.

Timing of the fall spray is critical for effective control and for avoiding tree damage. Copper is a metal and may cause severe defoliation unless applied correctly.

Dr. Jerral Johnson, extension plant pathologist, advises spraying when 70 percent of the leaves fall off the tree. Spraying too early will cause leaf shed or cause the spray to be ineffective later.

Bacterial leaf spot and bacterial canker can be partially controlled by fall spraying with a copper fungicide. But again it's important to spray at the right time to prevent foliage burn.

Bacterial leaf spot affects both fruit and foliage. The infection causes fruit to crack and leaves develop angular spots which drop out. Bacterial canker will kill trees slowly. Infected trees will have gum or wax forming on the trunk and main limbs.

Fall spray in northern Texas is most often applied from late October to Nov. 15, in Central Texas from Nov. 1 to Dec. 1 and in South Texas from Nov. 15 to Dec. 15.

Fall spraying is important to the health and production of fruit trees, because there's no other time when 50 percent of peach and plum tree diseases can be controlled with one spray.

A one-two punch KO's declarer

By James Jacoby

Some of the most unnatural defensive plays can be justified by a little common sense and logic. After South had reached the slam via the bidding in the box, the first problem for the defense was the opening lead. Usually the best shot against a small slam would be a lead of the unbid suit, since it has the most potential for developing a trick or even taking two tricks. Thus leading away from a king or queen is a normal practice. So why didn't West lead a diamond? The answer is in the bidding. When North was responding to the Blackwood inquiries for aces and kings, East had two opportunities to make a lead-directing double. Since he failed to double either five or six diamonds, it was a fair assumption that he lacked as much as the diamond queen. Hence the opening lead of the spade deuce.

The opening lead was only half the battle for the defenders. South called for the spade queen from dummy and East won the king. Since it was apparent that declarer had all the aces (he had tried for a grand slam by asking for kings), the only chance was to deprive him of tricks from the club suit. Accordingly East returned a spade right into dummy's A-10. Declarer now had to lose a second trick no matter how he played, since he no longer had an entry to dummy to cash any club suit winners that were stranded.

Flexible lives create flexible kitchen need

By BARBARA MAYER
AP Newsfeatures

The advent of gourmet cooking as a hobby and the smaller space available for kitchens are a few of today's lifestyle changes which have made yesterday's "dream kitchen" obsolete.

According to Ellen Cheever, a kitchen designer and consultant to kitchen cabinet and appliance manufacturers, today's more flexible lives have created a need for more flexible kitchens.

Since today's kitchen is often smaller than the kitchen of the 1950s or earlier, a priority is to make every inch of space work. In response to this need, noted the designer, who is based in Sacramento, Calif., kitchen planning has progressed so that engineering efficient smallspace kitchens is less of a challenge than it used to be.

Among methods she advocates for increasing use of kitchen space are: running cabinets up to the ceiling; using corners more effectively; incorporating moveable work surfaces, such as a food preparation island on casters or pullout shelves.

Selecting appliances that go up the wall instead of across the floor horizontally is also advisable, she said, pointing out that a one-piece stove that includes a built-in oven, fourburner cooking surface and overhead microwave is now available. This type of stove fits into 30 inches of space while a separate cooktop and wall ovens require 63 inches.

One flaw found in many kitchens built before the days of microwave ovens is that there is rarely a convenient space for it. She has found that microwaves are desirable because they offer time-savings.

"The need to reheat food when different family members eat at different times or the 'I-forgot-to-defrost-something-for- dinner' syndrome make microwaves almost mandatory," she said.

Kitchens in which the ovens can be built in are likely to be more efficient. Some possible locations include wall cabinets, underneath the countertop or on a wall near a built-in oven. If installing the microwave oven in a wall cabinet, locate the unit low enough so the person using it can look into the oven and down on the food being cooked, she said. A spot underneath the countertop is particularly useful if children will be using the microwave.

Not every family lives in a home with a very small kitchen. For some, the kitchen is a large room that serves as the center of the house. Even in large rooms, however, today's different style of living calls for different priorities in kitchen design.

Three important considerations in creating a comfortable open kitchen where many activities take place include: odor removal, noise control and flexible lighting. Yet, despite their importance, these requirements are often overlooked.

Odor control can be handled by installing a good ventilation system. A new type of ventilation method which may offer some improvements over the traditional venting hood is a downdraft system which is located at the cooktop instead of above it. By trapping greasy particles and strong odors at their source, the stove-top system helps keep kitchen wallcoverings and fabrics cleaner.

Noise control is enhanced if well-insulated appliances are selected. She noted that there is a substantial difference in the amount of noise operating appliances produce. Consumers should ask about insulation when they purchase appliances such as dishwashers and food waste disposers and, if possible, should try to observe the model which they are considering in operation.

Fudge sauce from the recipe box

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

FUDGE SAUCE
(Large Version)

1 cup sugar
¼ cup cocoa
2-3rds cup milk
½ cup light corn syrup
2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate, chopped
4 tablespoons butter
2-3rds cup heavy cream
2 teaspoons vanilla

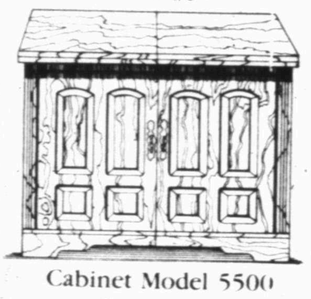

Into a heavy 3-quart saucepan sift sugar and cocoa; stir well. Stir in milk and corn syrup until blended. Stirring constantly over medium heat, bring to a full boil. Stirring occasionally, boil 12 minutes. Off heat, stir in chocolate and butter until melted. Gradually stir in cream until blended. Stirring constantly over medium heat, return to a boil. Stirring occasionally, boil 3 minutes. Off heat, stir in vanilla. Cool. Store in a tightly covered jar in the refrigerator. Reheat, uncovered, in the jar in a saucepan of almost simmering water until liquefied. Makes about 2½ cups. Given on request.

Above the Fold

By Donny Brown

We've commented before regarding our meat and potatoes background.

That is, how fried and baked beef — accompanied by fried and baked, boiled and mashed spuds — comprised 75 percent of any meals served up prior to the mid-60s.

This produced the impression that anything with an Italian or French name was an "exotic" dish — if you can imagine your basic issue West Texas yahoo who though spaghetti was something served only on television.

To take this point even further back in time, we can remember thinking that such untasted specialties as filet mingon or curry or bouillon must somehow be another line of food entirely.

That is, a kind of cosmic foodstuff — literally some other type of protein beside chicken, steak and catfish.

Our thinking was probably confused with the Sunday school lesson of the Biblical manna, but it was with some surprise when we finally figured out that such dishes were only spiced up versions of the more basic foodstuffs we'd always been eating.

The net effect of this has been a built-in distrust of food in general. One of those guys who likes every serving on the plate to not touch any of the others.

With Thanksgiving just past, we were reminded anew of our ignorance regarding some foods as we inquired about pumpkin pie.

Where in the heck do they get the pumpkin? An initial inquiry to the ladies in composition here at the paper informed us, "From the can."

A logical answer, but one that left us dissatisfied.

Anyone who has ever scraped out a Jack-o-lantern at Halloween knows that a pumpkin's inside consists of about one handfull of a stringy and semi-revolting mess.

We always half-believed that this was what they made that delicious and rich pie filling from — secretly hoping it wasn't so.

The part that nagged us was, how many pumpkins would it take to fill one pie tin? Based upon our experience, 20 or 30 at least.

And how did you winnow out the seeds from all that glop? A mental picture of that process was enough to keep us satisfied to dine on slices of mince meat and coconut pie only.

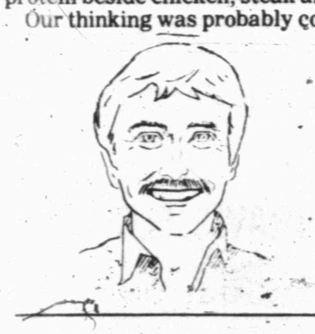

So we pressed our question during Thursday's traditional meal, and an older sister informed us the pumpkin pie's good stuff was made from a portion of the rind.

It is somehow rendered down and undoubtably sweetened, although we didn't press for details.

Our personal history has proven that when it comes to food, we're happy to take a little bit of knowledge a long way.

The horrible explosion in Mexico City, in the last account I read, had claimed well over 300 lives with another 500 seriously burned. You read about it in the paper and probably saw the grisly visual reports on TV. But as bad as this thing was, another calamity of much greater proportion looms over the capital city of our southern neighbors, and threatens every citizen in the city of 16 million.

The entire megalopolis faces destruction by implosion. Liquefied petroleum is not the culprit this time, people are - too many, too close together and in the wrong place. Here are some statistics:

By the end of this century, Mexico City is projected to have 30 million inhabitants, making it the world's largest city. Fully one half of the current population is 18 or younger. That is a lot of child bearing age women entering the propagation stage of a culture that revels in reproducing.

Twenty-two percent of the country's population lives on less than 1 percent of the land. Why? Mexico City is where the jobs are.

Like West Texas, Mexico City has severe water problems on the horizon. Our water problem may be serious, but it is simple enough to understand — not enough agua. Mexico City's problem is paradoxical. The 650-year-old city sits atop a mountain in a bowl. The bowl is getting deeper every day because the city is sinking due to the soggy bottom of the bowl. Because of the mountain locale, and dry geography, water must be pumped up, over and in. Because of the bowl, water must also be pumped, up, over and out.

That is a description of the big picture of the water problem. The day-to-day mechanics of managing this water-shortagesoggy soil problem defies simplistic description.

One example of the situation facing city planners, and builders, is the subway system that was started in 1969 and is trying to catch up with the population. Large office buildings are built above subway stations. Either that or a thick concrete slab. Otherwise the stations would "bob" to the surface for the same reason an empty bleach bottle bobs on a trotline. There is five parts water to every part soil in Mexico City's dirt.

Since office space can be rented, buildings are usually preferred to slabs. I wonder if John Gayle would have thought of this? And could he have sold the idea to our city council?

Living in a "bowl" poses other problems. Smog, for example, has no place to go, so it doesn't, so Mexico City tops the world's chart in another category.

The city, and country, is making progress on inflation. It was down 20 percent in 1982 from a recent high in 1980 of 100 percent.

For a city with so many problems in a country with so many problems, Mexico City is a wonderful place. I hesitate to write about somewhere I've never been. It seems sort of like extoling the virtures of a restaurant where I've never eaten. Still, I'm going to do it.

I'll begin safely with another statistic. Violent crime is rare. The streets of Mexico City are considered safer than streets of American cities.

Mexico City is vibrant. The hustle and bustle on the busy sidewalks is cheery and friendly, like a shopping mall on Christmas Eve, except without the harried pace. Contributing to this festive flavor are the sidewalk cafes, small shops, and street vendors fairly pulsating along side the many staid temples and shrines.

It is cheap, if you have American dollars to trade. The subway, which serves 4 million a day, costs one peso to ride, the world's cheapest, and less than one penny. A hotel suite with the amenities we Americans consider necessities, can go for less than $10 a night.

Extreme wealth co-exists with dire poverty while a middle class emerges. There is an endless variety of things to do and see.

All Regional choir competition at Abilene's Cooper High School saw five Snyder students qualify to advance to state competition in Odessa Jan. 5, it was reported Monday.

In addition, of the 20 SHS choir members who qualified to compete at Abilene Saturday, 18 were named to the All Region Choir and the remaining two were chosen as alternates.

Snyder choir members who qualified to compete at state were Dana Parham, Terry Rumpff, Marvin Morrell, Patrick Malone and Geoffrey Chamblee.

A bid of $48,654 was awarded Monday morning to T.E. Shelburne & Son for interior renovation to the Scurry County Health Unit.

The work will include new vinyl wall coverings plus new carpeting for the facility.

Snyder's two 4-H Gold Star winners joined other youth from across West Texas at the 27th Annual South Plains 4-H Gold Star Banquet Monday night in Lubbock.

Representing Snyder were Jana Tate and Tammy Ritchey. Jana was also among program participants at the banquet.

TUESDAY
November 20

Plans were announced Tuesday to honor the woman doubly billed as the Senior Center's busiest volunteer and the WTC basketball program's biggest fan.

Virginia Whitson, who now plans to move from Snyder, will be the guest of honor at a dinner scheduled at 6 p.m. Monday in the Senior Center.

Despite the weekend rainfall of some 1½ inches at Lake J.B. Thomas, no significant amount of runoff was caught at the Snyder and Scurry County water source, it was reported Tuesday.

In response to the low lake level, officials with the Colorado River Municipal Water District reported they have implemented cutbacks in the amount of water now being pumped out of Thomas.

Directly affected by this action is the district member city of Big Spring, a cutback from 7 to 4 million gallons of water from the lake daily.

Snyder Chamber of Commerce directors pledged themselves to a new project Tuesday — an ongoing effort to lobby with state highway officials to acquire state or federal monies to create a truck route making a western loop around Snyder.

The loop would connect the Lubbock Highway from the northwest to the Colorado City Highway to the southeast.

Garland Williams, a 21-year veteran of the Snyder Volunteer Fire Department, was named Fireman of the Year for 1983-84 at the conclusion of the 55th Annual Fire Department Thanksgiving Banquet Tuesday evening.

Sandra Clawson, wife of Fire Captain Ronnie Clawson, was named Fire Department Sweetheart for the year.

The nominees for new directors to the Snyder Chamber of Commerce board were revealed Tuesday.

Four locals are proposed to include Gene Thomas, Mike Banta, Tom Latos and Margaret Drum.

Mike Otto, chairman of the WTC Science Division, became the second instructor at Western Texas College to be honored by the local chapter of the nationally affiliated Phi Theta Kappa.

The honor — presented annually to recognize outstanding service to WTC students — was announced Tuesday.

THURSDAY
November 22

With funding finally approved for their long sought Golden Terrace Village, members of Snyder Senior Citizens Inc. have now turned their efforts to a related money raising project.

To do this, the volunteer group faces both a deadline and a money goal. The deadline date is Feb. 1, 1985 and the money needed as of this week equals approximately $17,000.

FRIDAY
November 23

Snyder police said Friday morning the theft of a 1984 Chrysler Laser from Snyder Motor Inc. has been cleared with the Thursday afternoon arrest of a 14-year-old suspect in Odessa.

Investigation of the theft began Wednesday afternoon when personnel at the local Chrysler dealership reported the car had been driven off the lot between 3 and 5:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The traditional Thursday holiday for Thanksgiving was followed Friday in the city by the arrival of Santa.

A line of kids around the courthouse square welcomed Saint Nick as the Christmas season officially began in Snyder.

Look Back

By Noble B. Young

FIVE YEARS AGO

Sheila Sandbothe of Anson was crowned Western Texas College Anniversary Queen Saturday night — Nov. 18 — during halftime of the WTC-South Plains College Basketball game in the Scurry County Coliseum.

Snyder Fireman of the Year for 1978-79 — named at the 51st Annual Snyder Fire Department Thanksgiving Banquet Monday night — Nov. 19 — was Mike Kozelsky.

New directors named to the Snyder Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors last night — Nov. 20 — included Elizabeth Potts, Tommy Lay, Brenda Hedges and Truett Bryan.

10 YEARS AGO

Local individuals honored this week with Alumni Awards from the Scurry County 4-H for their contributions to the 4-H effort included Pat Falls, Cecil Boren, Ruth Tate and Nellie Smith.

Officers of the Company G 142nd Infantry Association elected during the group's first-ever reunion here — Nov. 23 — were: John Portis, chairman; Don Adams, treasurer; Lance Mullins, publicity chairman; and J.C. Williamson and Ches Horsley, committeemen.

15 YEARS AGO

Members of the board of trustees of the Scurry County Junior College District sworn in Monday — Nov. 24 — following approval of the district by local voters Saturday, were W.A. (Bill) Jones, Edwin Parks, R.C. Patton, L.A. (George) Patterson, Dr. Robert Hargrove, M.L. Broman and William H. (Bill) Wilson. After being sworn-in by County Judge Sterling Taylor, the board held elections with Broman elected president, Hargrove elected vice-president and Patterson named secretary.

20 YEARS AGO

John Sanders, an employee of the Texas Company and member of the Snyder Volunteer Fire Department, was named Fireman of the Year for 1963-64 at the 35th Annual Snyder Fire Department Thanksgiving Banquet this week.

W.O. Christopher of Dunn was honored by his fellow members of the Dunn Masonic Lodge Wednesday evening — Nov. 19 — with a pin commemorating 50 years of membership in the Dunn Lodge and an honorary lifetime membership in the organization.

This week's fifth graders were interviewed at West Elementary?

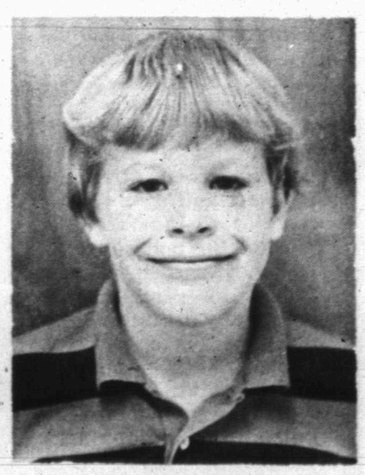

Question: Recently doctors transplanted the heart of a baboon into a baby girl in order to try to save her life. Do you think they did the right thing?

AMY HODGES
Age 10
"In a way it was okay if it will save her. But also they had to take away from the animal and that hurts the animal too."

KEN REAVES
Age 10
"Yes, because they should do anything to keep someone alive."

ADAM THORNTON
Age 10
"Yes, because it would have been a horrible experience for the parents if the baby had died."

TISHA EVANS
Age 11
"It was a real good idea if it helped her. Doing anything to save a little baby is good."

Letter to the Editor

To the editor,

I recently mailed questionnaires to all registered families in my legislative district whose names appear on the list in the Secretary of State's office. Unfortunately, due to the lag time between registration and appearance on that list and because some voters have changed residences, a few people may not have received a questionnaire.

It is very important to me that anyone who did not receive a questionnaire have the opportunity to complete one. I hope that those people who would like to have a questionnaire will call my Capitol office collect at (512) 475-6239. I want to assure that all voters have the chance to express their opinions about the upcoming legislative session.

Sincerely,
Steven A. Carriker

Memories of hitchhiking days still linger

EUGENE, Ore. (AP) — Grace Small is grounded these days, which is a shame. But she still can travel a long way on her memories.

Her tiny Danebo-area trailer home is crammed with 80 scrapbooks of newspaper clippings, photos and postcards, chronicling her days as Eugene's "Hitchhiking Grandmother." Whenever the travel yen struck her — which was often — Mrs. Small stuck out her thumb and went.

To every continental state, including Alaska. To Puerto Rico. To Europe. But don't ask how many miles she traveled on her thumb.

"Honey, I've been across the United States at least 10 times," she said. "You figure it out if you want to."

Mrs. Small kept hitchhiking until a few years ago — when she already was well into her 80s. She is 89 now.

But a series of small strokes that began last year put her in and out of hospitals and nursing homes for a time, and sapped her travel strength.

"I haven't any aches or pains or anything else," she said. "But when you get tired walking to the store for two blocks, you kinda think you ought to pull in your horns."

Mrs. Small first stuck out her horns — and her thumb — in the 1950s, when she was in her 50s and already a grandmother several times over. (The current count: "Four children, eight grandchildren, 16 greatgrandchildren, and I don't know how many great-greats.")

What turned her into a senior citizen version of Jack Kerouac?

"Well, I wanted to go someplace, and it cost money." She wanted to visit her grown children and other relatives and friends scattered around the country.

Mr. Small was born in a small town in Illinois and moved to Oregon — first Salem, then Eugene — after her divorce. She worked a variety of jobs, but never earned enough to finance her wanderlust by conventional travel means.

So she'd pack her tiny suitcase, don her little veiled hat, gloves, sensible shoes and jersey coat, and start cadging rides. "I tried to look just like a lady going to church," she said.

She stayed in YWCAs and hostels, and at the homes of people she'd met on previous trips. "You see, my address book is set up according to states," she said, holding up a worn little black book stuffed with pages. "Then, two or three times, the police have taken care of me — and I let 'em." But they always put her up in a hotel, never in jail, she added — and none ever gave her a ticket for illegal hitchhiking.

Mrs. Small said she never worried about troubles from the people who picked her up along the way.

"You have to know where to stand, who to ride with," she said. "I turned down as many rides as I took. The car told me what kind of people they were, and I was able to tell who was going to be interesting. If I didn't like their looks, I didn't get in. Only one or two times did I make a mistake."

Mrs. Small lives alone, as she has for the past 30-plus years, refusing to move in with her children. Her travels now are limited to trips to church, senior citizen club and historical society meetings.

Astro-Graph

By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

Nov. 25, 1984

Even though you may have a few obstacles to overcome, considerable material growth is likely in the year ahead. Keep trying until you achieve the results you desire.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions continue to look impressive for you in the financial realm. Keep searching for ways to add to your income or holdings. Your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead can help guide you to happier tomorrows. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If there is a slight buzzing in your ears today, it's apt to be because friends are talking about you. Don't fret; they'll be saying nice things.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Friends might request things from you today they dare not ask of others. They know you're a caring person who will help if it's within your means.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your popularity among your peers is ascending. Even those who treated you a bit coolly in the past will do an about-face and welcome you warmly.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Continue to concentrate on meaningful goals. The larger and more important, the better. Big things can be accomplished if you have the determination.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Strive to maintain a philosophical attitude today, regardless of what occurs. If your outlook is positive, negative situations can be easily reversed.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest benefits today are likely to come from situations that aren't of your making, yet there is a special need that you alone can fulfill.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) There is a possibility that your services may be required today to serve as a spokesperson for another. You're the right guy for the job.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) More than ample help should be available today to handle difficult tasks you thought you would have to do on your own. Enlist aid.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today you may be more bold and enterprising than usual and dare to take risks in areas others will shy away from. Know your limitations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Rather than going elsewhere for your fun and entertainment today, plan a happening at home. Call in some choice pals to share the events.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Make it a point today to try to cultivate friendships with people you've recently met and admire. They could turn out to be lifelong pals.

Nov. 26, 1984

It's to your advantage this coming year to build sturdier foundations of knowledge pertaining to your chosen field of endeavor. Your efforts will enhance your expertise and give you a big edge over others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're in a cycle where old debts will be repaid. In fact, something of value that you're entitled to, but has been frustratingly delayed, may come your way today. Major changes are in store for Sagittarius in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) New projects that you launch at this time have a good chance of succeeding, provided you get them under way in a practical manner.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In competitive career situations today, try not to tip your hand prematurely. Let the other guys play their cards first, then trump them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are good at building friendships at this time. The secret to improving relationships is to treat each pal as sincerely as possible.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Owing to the assistance of another, you should be able to fulfill an ambitious objective today. This person will help supply know-how you lack.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Base important decisions today on the practical aspects of the issue, not hopes or maybes. You won't go wrong if you're realistic.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Regardless of the difficulty of the challenge, you are capable of overcoming obstacles today where work or career is concerned.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extra considerate and attentive to people you encounter socially today. Something of consequence can result through one you've become chummy with.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Any matters that affect your family should be given priority today. Put them at the top of your agenda instead of merely trying to fit them in.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Someone you are fond of may come to you for advice today. The kindest way to help this person is to level with him.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Material conditions look promising for you today, provided you stay in familiar areas. Your gains are apt to come from sources you've previously tapped.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your greatest asset today is your talent for solving problems. Once you come up with the remedy or solution, follow it through until you get desired results.

Companies offer day care facilities

BLOOMFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Meg Lines faced more than just a language barrier when she recently adopted a Chilean child. As a single parent, she also had to find someone to care for the 4-year-old boy while she was at work.

Leaving her job to raise the child was out of the question since Ms. Lines is the sole support of the boy, named John. Hiring a live-in babysitter or putting John in a private day care center would be too expensive.

Fortunately, Ms. Lines works at the Cigna insurance company, one of the state's largest corporations and one of the first to build a day care center for its employees.

"I was very lucky," Ms. Lines says. "I'm not sure I could have adopted John if the day care center weren't there."

Nationally, more than 500 major corporations provide such day care centers on or near the company site, says Dana Friedman, a senior research fellow at the Conference Board, a nonprofit, national clearinghouse for business-related research.

Successful new companies with young executives are usually among the first to establish such programs.

"So many presidents of these companies are about 37, with spouses who work and preschoolers," Ms. Friedman says. "The lack of day care hits them closer to home."

In Cigna's case, the company's former president, Henry R. Roberts, thought a day care center "would give us an edge over other companies, because working women would be attracted back to the work forces," says Cynthia Powell, director of the company's center.

"He made it as a business decision, not an altruistic decision," she says.

It seems to be working. Alison Kenworthy, assistant director of employee services division, says some women have turned down job offers from other companies because of the day care program.

"The center is definitely one thing that keeps me with Cigna," says Betty Caruso, whose three boys use the center.

In January 1975, Connecticut General Life Insurance Co. — which merged with INA Corp. to form Cigna — established the center with three children in a remodeled dairy barn on company property.

Today, operated by Cigna, the center is licensed to handle almost 100 children, including infants. An ever-growing waiting list has more than 200 children, "including some not even born yet," Ms. Powell says.

Political names

No candidate polled a majority of the popular vote in the 1824 election between Andrew Jackson and John Quincy Adams because the Democratic-Republicans were a loose coalition of competing groups. Adams was elected by the House of Representatives. By 1828, the supporters of Andrew Jackson became known as Democrats, and John Quincy Adams' and Henry Clay's backers were Republicans.

Dear Abby

Today's High Cost of Holiness Takes Worshipers by Surprise

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our 24-year-old daughter, her husband and their 6-year-old son recently moved from Las Vegas to a small town in northern California. (Her husband's company transferred him there.)

They wanted to attend services for the High Holy Days, but were told the "tickets" cost $50 apiece—even for the child. Her husband went to see the rabbi and told him they couldn't afford it because they were expecting another baby soon, and making ends meet was difficult.

I offered to pay for their tickets, but they said they needed a larger apartment, a crib and other things for the baby more.

I am very sad to think a ticket to attend services on the High Holy Days costs more than a ticket to a Michael Jackson concert.

Abby, it seems to me that there should have been some way this could have been worked out for people who want to worship at a temple. I await your reply.

APPALLED MOTHER IN OHIO

DEAR APPALLED: I, too, was appalled, so I called Rabbi Jacob Pressman at the Beth Am Temple in Los Angeles and read your letter to him.

His reply: "Unlike churches that are supported by weekly collections or tithing, synagogues are sustained by annual membership dues. Because of the great number of worshipers who want to attend only for the High Holy Days, the seating capacity exceeds the limit, so it is necessary to reserve seats for those who make prior arrangements. Those who do not wish to join the congregation make their contributions, then seats are reserved for them. They are also welcome every other day of the year. (Nobody has to 'pay to pray.')

"Those who cannot afford a full membership or even a High Holy Day donation are welcome in any synagogue in the world, if they make their special needs and limitations known to the responsible parties."

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Concerning your answer to "Runner-up" in which you explain how far some beauty contestants go in the use of artificial attachments: I have seen wigs, caps, plates, artificial freckles, phony suntans, falsies, hip and rear-end padding, false fingernails, colored contacts, false eyebrows and hair colored every color on the palette—sometimes all on one head—plus various other beauty "aids," but who ever heard of a teen-ager with silicone implants? Certainly not I, and I am a ...

BOSOM BUDDY

DEAR BUDDY: You should get around more. I assure you there are some.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I am not asking for advice, I need help. I think I speak for a lot of elderly folks with arthritic hands. We cannot open those tamperproof pill bottles! And why should we have to?

Instead of making the druggist put those caps on all prescription bottles, why not put the responsibility where it belongs? Make the customers ask for them if they want them!

Thanks for listening.

Quality of Chinese life is improving

PEKING (AP) — After 35 years of communism, the quality of life for many of the billion people of China has begun to improve dramatically. Two years ago the economy, long stagnant in a period of hapless experimentation, took off.

The propellant was the profit motive, an idea introduced by that doughty old realist, Deng Xiaoping.

Suddenly, after years of taking orders from Peking, the Chinese both in the cities and in the countryside were told to get out and make money on their own, not only for the state, but for themselves.

The result has been spectacular. Thanks to the new affluence, the Chinese by and large eat better, dress more stylishly, own more of the material things of life, have more leisure and seem to enjoy themselves more than they have since the communists came to power in 1949.

Few people lament the death of the utopian ideology of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung, who twice purged Deng, now China's leader.

"The Chinese," says one American diplomat, "are nothing if not cynical. They also are a nation of pragmatists. The Deng realism suits them more than Mao's unattainable utopianism."

That was my impression, too, on a recent return visit to China. I had a chance to observe them for three full weeks in Peking, Harbin and Dalian, better known as Dairen.

I found a mood of optimism and a national pride that had been lacking before. People in those very different cities were encouraged by the economic upturn. While admitting that pockets of poverty remain and that managerial skills are in short supply, they were enthusiastic about the results already achieved in a short time.

Some foreigners in residence in those three cities conceded that there has been real progress. Others remain skeptical. Some businessmen chafe at the communist bureaucracy.

"Everyone has been told to make a profit," says an American businesswoman of Chinese ancestry, "but not how to do it. So they just raise their prices indiscriminately. They are pricing themselves out of the market."

A Japanese salesman adds: "What's maddening is that we meet qualified people at the lower level, but their superiors are politicians with no expertise. As a result, they make all the wrong decisions."

I first saw communist-run Peking in 1971 with the American table tennis team. It was not the Peking I had loved as a young correspondent in the 1940s. The people seemed frightened. Public life ground to a sullen halt early in the evening.

Today's Peking gives a different impression — fear seems to have dissipated and there's a new air of exuberance.

In Harbin, which I had last seen as a guest of Communist commander Lin Biao in 1946, I sensed an immense vitality.

The Chinese here dress better, and more elegantly, than anywhere else in China. The Harbiners consider themselves more cosmopolitan than their fellows. They make a point of eating bread, rather than rice, for breakfast.

There are slums in the outskirts of Harbin and housing is a problem. It is the Pittsburgh of China, a great, sprawling industrial city, not particularly beautiful.

Dalian, on the other hand, is a thing of beauty, laid out by the Japanese like a miniature Paris with Sun Yat Sen square at the center. Its tree-lined avenues radiate outwards and are broken by 35 smaller squares. The Gulf of Pohai glitters nearby.

For someone who has accepted that the cultural event of the year is a tractor-pull, this appeals to me very much. Mexico City has been listed as one of the most cosmopolitan cities in the world — whatever that means.

Sooner or later, and sooner I hope, I will go to Mexico City. It sounds ideal for someone who travels on the poverty plan. In the mornings, I'll stroll up and down the busy streets and loaf in the plazas. In the warm afternoons, I'll bask in the thin mountain air that happens by my balcony, while I observe the drama unfolding below on the noisy street.

I'll mingle with the crowds and lend my own odor to the smells of La Merced, the fresh air market that encompasses 60 city blocks and at one time fed the whole city, not to mention an army of rodents.

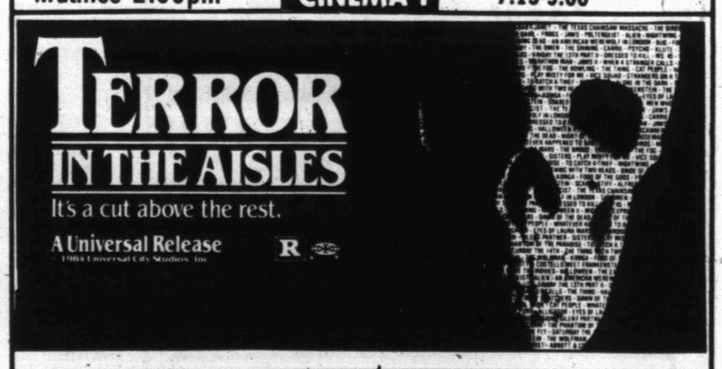

Mexico City may not be your idea of vacation land, but I plan to make it there before the city that sinks as much as 10 inches a year hits bottom. The officials won't have to worry about me. I'll drink none of their precious water.

Walter Surry Gillum and Lucy Gillum, shown in the picture, lived about three miles from the Pete Snyder home near Hell RoaringHoller As youngsters, Lucy Gillum and her family often visited with Pete and Nellie Snyder.

The Snyders looked upon Lucy as their own child and showered her with lovely gifts. Lucy, later to become Mrs. J. E. Whitefield, says in her letters that "Aunt Nellie Snyder was a lovely person and a beautiful friendship existed between the two families."

Mrs. Whitefield recalls that the Snyders gave her a doll each Christmas and Mrs. Snyder made clothes for the dolls even though she was blind at the time.

Mrs. Whitefield's brother, Claud, worked for Pete Snyder on the ranch and was with him when he died.

Perfectionists are vulnerable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Do the children make you feel irritable, tense, detached or withdrawn? If so, you could be approaching parent burnout, says therapist Marilyn Lammert.

A symptom of this affliction is the difficulty in carrying out your expectations of what a parent should be and do, says Ms. Lammert, a professor at The Catholic University of America's National Catholic School of Social Service.

"Burnout, or emotional depletion, occurs when your own demands and those from others exceed your resources to carry out what needs to be done," she explains.

The constant demand by young children for attention and caretaking are what gets most parents down, but living with adolescents can also be stressful, she says.

Also wearisome for parents are other requirements such as working as nursery school volunteers and taking children for regular medical checkups and providing proper nutrition, Ms. Lammert adds.

"A person's internal demands can contribute to burnout. Perfectionists may be especially vulnerable," she points out. "A perfectionist mother, for example, might worry excessively that her child will fall down the steps, and she will spend much time and effort buying and installing secure gates for stairways."

Maintaining a neat house can also be stressful for perfectionist parents who may be worried about their reputations as poor housekeepers or infections their children may get from a dirty house.

"Some people replicate the ways they were mothered," says Ms. Lammert. "Some girls become little women by incorporating their mother's personal style of mothering. Even when an adult woman decides she will do things differently, she may not be aware that she has internalized her mother's style."

Ms. Lammert is concerned that some mothers with high career expectations may feel extraordinary amounts of stress.

The potential for burnout is greater for women than for men because women are still primarily responsible for children, she says.

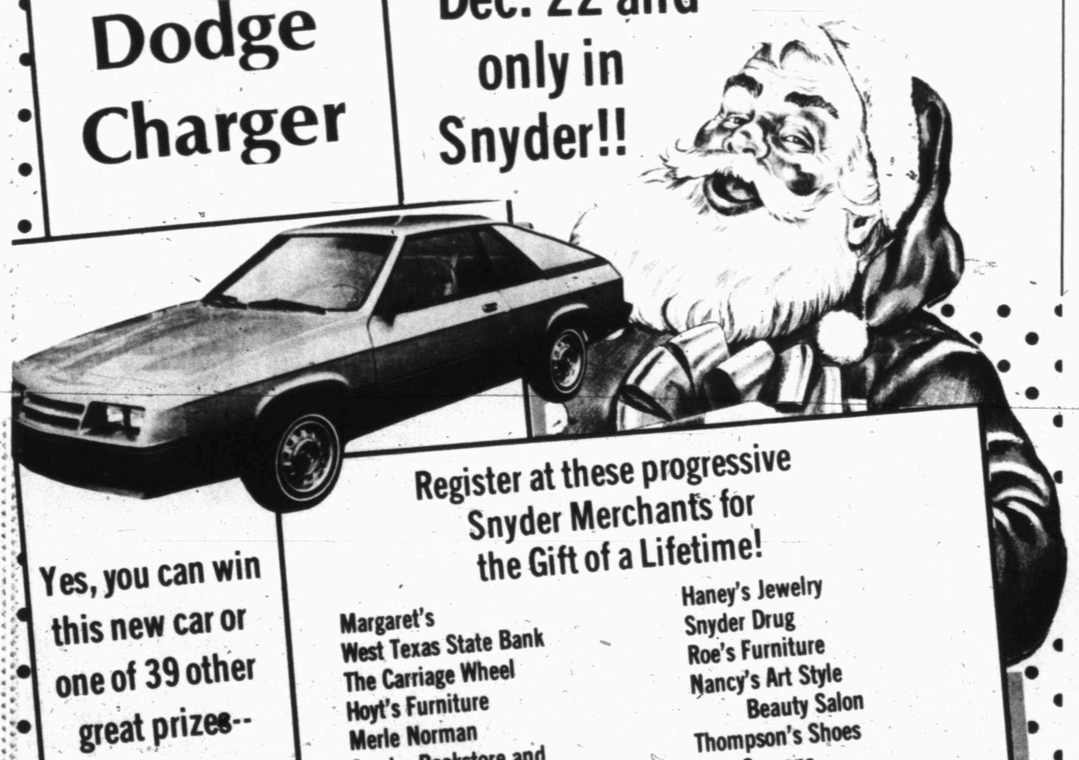

Also stressful for some women is the public's focus on careers and motherhood, says the educator. "One who adequately combines a career and motherhood is considered a good woman by society, but isn't a good woman also someone who maintains a good relationship with her husband?"

She points out that a person's irritability or withdrawal will usually affect his or her spouse. "Often in cases of mother burnout the father is ignored and neither he nor the mother receives the nourishment needed in the marriage relationship."
