Panel Hikes JFK Request

(See related story on page 18)
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's request for $3.5 billion to bolster this nation's military might was raised to $4.5 billion today by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Unanimously, it voted to provide every cent the President asked last week and then added nearly another billion to build up bomber, missile and satellite forces.

It was another demonstration of the mood in Congress to move fast in readying this country to meet any threat arising from the Berlin crisis precipitated by Soviet Russia.

Monday, just six days after Kennedy asked for it, Congress gave him authority to call up to 250,000 reservists into military service and extend active duty tours and enlistments one year.

Sen. A. Willis Robertson, D-Va., manager for the biggest peace-time defense appropriation bill in history, said the measure is approved by committee now carries nearly $47 billion. This is more than $4 billion above the total voted by the House June 28 and more than $6.5 billion above totals Congress voted last year.

"This is a balanced program between capacity for nuclear war and capacity for more limited conflicts," Robertson said.

"It provides a prudent reinforcement of the conventional strength for our armed forces," Robertson said he hoped to call up the bill for expected Senate passage Thursday.

The Senate committee voted $325 million to continue production of heavy long-range jet bombers without specifying the kind.

Robertson noted that Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, Air Force chief of staff, said he preferred the latest model of the jet B52 to the faster but shorter range B58.

School Term Just Around Corner

Opening of a new school term is just around the corner.

Bob Clinton, new senior high school principal, began work today in preparation for the 1961-62 term, and other principals will report for duty in a couple of weeks, said T. E. McCollum, superintendent.

First day of classes is set for Sept. 1. However, teacher orientation and registration of elementary school pupils will begin on Aug. 29. First general faculty meeting has been set to begin at 8 a.m. on the latter date, and elementary schools will register pupils, while the junior and senior high schools will have faculty meetings beginning at 1 p.m. on that date.

Pre-school for first graders will be conducted on Aug. 30-31. The

CLAIM POLIO SPREAD

Reds Threaten New Travel Restrictions

By LOYAL GOULD
BERLIN (AP)—The East German Communists threatened today to restrict travel between East and West Germany, claiming a polio epidemic in West Germany is spreading the disease across the Iron Curtain border.

Western observers saw the move as another attempt to dam the rising flow of refugees streaming into West Berlin from East Germany. A record high of 30,444 refugees poured into the Western sector of the divided city in July.

The East German news agency ADN said the Rpd regime's Health Ministry asked the Interior Ministry to take steps "in regard to travel between West Germany and the German Democratic Republic that will produce the best protection for the citizenry."

The steps were not spelled out nor was any date given for their application but Western observers felt the East German regime might use the polio pretext to close the border.

West Germany is suffering a polio outbreak, but health officials said there are no signs of a major epidemic. There were 1,254 cases, 76 fatal, reported this year up to July 15. There were 506 cases for the same period last year.

A week ago ADN claimed numerous West German tourists were being treated for polio in East German hospitals. It did not say how many. A month ago the Communist regime offered to give West Germany three million units of live or Sabin-type polio vaccine to fight what the Reds called a major polio epidemic. West German officials rejected the offer saying the vaccine's effectiveness had not been proved.

Western air travel to Berlin continued unhampered despite a new East German regulation that went into effect at midnight.

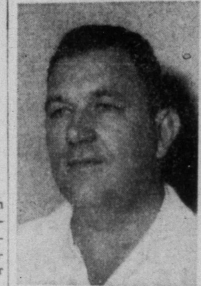

Planes crossing the Communist territory surrounding Berlin were directed to contact the East German Air Safety Center.

Western officials did not believe the order would be enforced. They told the three big civilian airlines serving West Berlin—Pan American Airways, British European Airways and Air France—to ignore the new rule and to continue to report to the four-power Air Safety Center at which U.S., British, French and Soviet officers control Berlin's air traffic.

The first four planes into West Berlin after midnight encountered no interference.

All East German refugees going to West Germany via West Berlin travel by air since all ground traffic is checked by the East Germans or the Soviets.

NEW CHIEF ON JOB—C. W. Simons, Snyder's new police chief, began his duties here today. He was appointed July 8, following a study of many applications for the post which was left vacant by the resignation of Travis Steele. Simons came to Snyder from Bryan, where he served as sergeant and night chief of the police department.

Compromise Sanctioned

By GARTH JONES
AUSTIN (AP)—The Senate State Affairs Committee recommended today passage of a $357 million tax package that taxes most retail sales of more than 25 cents.

Sen. Wardlaw Lane, sponsor of the measure which is a rewrite of the House-passed version, said he will try to get the bill debated by the Senate Wednesday.

The bill, passed out of the influential 21-man committee, was definitely a compromise between the House version, recommendations by Gov. Price Daniel I, and the Senate views.

"I'm sure this will not please everybody but none of us can get all we want in a tax bill," Lane said. "But if we furnish the service the people of Texas want us to furnish we must have some new taxes."

The first House reaction came in a special speech by Rep. Bob Eckhardt of Houston, a leader of liberal forces. He claimed the senators rewrote his proposed tax on natural gas pipelines in a manner to make it unconstitutional.

"If the bill remains in its present form the people of the state will be duped by a Senate that is willing to accept a shallow, bogus sham of a bill," Eckhardt said.

The Senate tax plan, actually written by a five-man subcommittee, was accepted on a voice vote by the full committee. There were reports an effort will be made on the floor to substitute Daniel's Pennsylvania type sales tax for the 2 per cent sales tax in the bill.

The 2 per cent sales tax on all items of more than 25 cents was the principal item of the Senate approved bill that the House turned down with a 72-72 tie in the closing minutes of the regular session. However, this time the levy exempts some clothing costing less than $10, a feature that Daniel has demanded.

"We tried to write this clothing deductible so it would apply only to work clothing," Lane said.

The sales tax also has a new feature that would give merchants a 3 per cent discount for declaring their taxes when a tax year is only half over, but only a 1 per cent discount if waiting to pay at the end of the year. Lane estimated this will add an extra $15.5 million collection to the 1960-1961 revenue.

The tax package retains the two year extension of the current $2.75 corporation franchise tax. After 1963 it would revert to $2.25. This is a vicious tax but it is a lot better than the mixed up thing the House sent over, Lane said, referring to a House recommendation that franchise taxes be broadened to include property and interstate sales. At present the tax is paid only on gross receipts inside the state.

ECM Ponders Britain's Bid

By JOSEPH E. DYMAN
PARIS (AP)—The six nations of the European Common Market agreed today to open negotiations with the British government for Britain's entry into the economic community.

The decision was made in a brief session of the foreign ministers of the six Common Market nations. They are in Paris for a quarterly meeting of the Western European Union (WEU), made up of the six and Britain.

Common Market headquarters in Brussels issued a communique describing the British decision to apply for membership as "a turning point in postwar European politics." The communique did not minimize the numerous problems faced by Britain and the six in reaching agreement, but the Common Market's executive promised to do its best.

Widespread praise in Britain and on the European continent greeted Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's historic announcement Monday that Britain would seek negotiations to join the continental economic group.

Most of Britain's national newspapers supported the government's move, but there were warnings that months of difficult negotiations would be necessary to get to concessions that would safeguard British sovereignty and the economies of British Commonwealth countries dependent on the British market.

French President Charles de Gaulle, anxious to make France the leader of a united Europe, was seen as the chief opponent of such concessions. Political informants said Macmillan would fly to Paris soon to try to smooth Britain's entry into the continental group.

Most of Britain's partners in the seven-nation European Free Trade Association (EFTA) quickly indicated they would follow the British lead in seeking association or membership in the Common Market.

Denmark announced it would apply for membership. Austria declared its willingness to begin negotiations for a single European trading bloc. Sweden made a similar announcement. Norway's government indicated it favors joining the group, but said the decision is up to the Norwegian parliament.

Traditionally neutral Switzerland immediately expressed its distaste for the Common Market's developing drive toward political unity. President Fritz Wahlen said Switzerland "will under no circumstances make any concession with regard to its neutrality and sovereignty."

The seventh EFTA member, Portugal, said nothing.

The announcement by Macmillan caused alarm among the Commonwealth nations who fear British membership in the market would wreck the preferential system that gives special treatment to their exports to Britain.

Moon Shot Fund Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate has passed a big money bill providing a $49 million boost to U.S. efforts to send a three-man team to the moon by 1970.

The $9,098,700,500 independent offices appropriation bill now goes to a House-Senate conference group to compromise differences.

The Senate battled down all efforts to whittle the money bill. They included a series of amendments by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., designed to cut various totals back to the amounts recommended in President Kennedy's budget request.

Asians, Africans Work For Assembly Meet On Tunisia

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Asian and African delegates worked today to get the backing of 50 U.N. members for an emergency session of the General Assembly Thursday to take up Tunisia's charge of French aggression at Bizerte.

Tunisia is also demanding that France withdraw all forces from the big Bizerte base which the French retained after Tunisia gained independence in 1956. The French contend the base is necessary to the defense of the North Atlantic alliance.

The Tunisian government announced Foreign Minister Sadok Makkadem would fly to Moscow today to consult on the Bizerte situation.

Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba, heretofore a firm friend of the West, has been bitterly disappointed by the failure of the United States and Britain to force President Charles de Gaulle to withdraw from Bizerte.

Moscow newspapers reported today that Premier Khrushchev had discussed the "aggression of French colonialists against Tunisia in Bizerte" at a meeting with the diplomatic representatives in Moscow of nine African nations.

TREAT YOUR FAMILY to a "Cook-In". Invite them to dress the part and join you for a hearty help-yourself dinner of Fettucini Americano accompanied by sausage, salami and bologna, a crisp salad, beverage and gay flowers.

Cook Up A Cook-In With Fettucini Americano

If you're suffering from the usual summer wearies, try this sunny suggestion.

Have a "Cook-In". A "Cook-In" is simply a cook-out brought inside, with everything having a casual slant. "Cook-Ins" require the most comfortable of clothes like slacks, sport shirts, Bermuda shorts and such. Another definite requirement is delicious and easy-to-fix food.

Since Italy's way is bright and flavorful, why not take an example from them. Serve Fettucini with an American touch. Call it Fettucini Americano. Mix it "Cook-In" style, right at the table and complement it with bologna, salami slices and Italian sausage.

And just what is Fettucini Americano? It's hot, buttered noodles, gently tossed with freshly chopped parsley and grated Parmesan cheese. (The fun of it is the mixing part, which should be done right at the table.)

Fettucini Americano is something else too. It's a wonderfully hearty dish with an unusually delicate flavor and requires nothing more than cold cuts and freshly tossed salad to complete the perfect "Cook-In" meal.

Introduce these two ideas to your family. Fettucini Americano and the relaxing charm of a "Cook-In".

FETTUCINI AMERICANO
3 tablespoons salt
4-6 quarts water
1 lb fettucini (or spaghetti) noodles
1 cup (2 sticks) butter, melted
1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 cup chopped parsley
Add 3 tablespoons salt to 4 to 6 quarts rapidly boiling water. Gradually add Fettucini so that the water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally to prevent noodles from sticking to the pan, for about 15 minutes, or until noodles are tender. Drain in colander (rinsing is not necessary).

essary): place in serving casserole and add the melted butter, grated Parmesan cheese and chopped parsley. Using two forks, quickly toss noodles thoroughly coating each with butter, cheese and parsley. For extra goodness, serve with additional melted butter and grated Parmesan cheese.

Where Are 20th Century Children

By MILES A. SMITH
AP Arts Editor

(ADVANCE) NEW YORK, June 17 (AP) — As human nature remains a bit of sentiment, people will be interested in "quaint" pictures of children of a bygone age. The 19th Century gave us a great flood of them. But can you visualize the 20th Century's contribution to such art?

The question arises from an addition which the New York Historical Society has made to its huge display of American portraits. It has hauled out of storage, cleaned and restored, a number of paintings of children, most of which have never been on display before.

About a dozen of them, typical of the first half of the 19th Century, now may be seen in the society's folk art collection.

They're downright sticky - icky, if your eyes have become thoroughly conditioned to contemporary abstract expressionism. They come from an age when youngsters of both sexes were kept in frilly dresses, and often the boys' ringlets were left uncut until the edge of adolescence.

Not only that. The limners idealized their subjects' faces to the point of making them angelic. A good example is "Henry Woodward Cooper and his Brother," painted in 1842 by Daniel Huntington. It shows two little boys dressed almost like girls, with wistfully sweet faces.

The question is, aren't some of these children's pictures a little like some of England's most famous portraits of the 18th Century? The classic example, Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," shows an older boy and the painting has more grace. Lawrence's "Fanny" is a girl in the same category. Another is Gainsborough's "Master John Heathcote," newly hung in the National Gallery. Essentially the appeal is the same.

Portraiture remains with us, even to this day, but its heart died when photography came along. Could art galleries of the future display any sentimentally quaint pictures of 20th Century children? Would they be cubist? Expressionist?

An interesting aspect of the new display is that several of the subjects are offspring of the painters. John P. Paradise (1783-1833) did a double portrait of his daughter Juliet and his son John. He also did separate portraits of Juliet and his son Aaron. The latter two, not as sticky as Huntington's example, have the soft, quiet charm of a less urgent American era.

A better known painter, Ashur B. Durand, is represented by a picture, painted about 1834, of his children John, Caroline and Lucy. There also are several primitives, such as "Boy With Toy Horse," by Joseph W. Stock (1815-1853).

They all fit the word "quaint." Can there be a 20th Century equivalent?

Snyder Boys Are Attending Camp

Prude Ranch Summer Camp began its fourth session Sunday July 23 with Snyder well represented. Seven of the 105 campers hail from Snyder.

The campers will enjoy a full program of western life activities with the added attraction of special instruction in ballet, tap, rope twirling, and baton twirling.

The campers from Snyder are John Conley, III, Dale Dawson, Scott Dawson, Rickey Hall, Dennis Harman, Drake Snyder, and Joellen Snyder.

A small head of cabbage should make plenty of cole slaw or pan-fried cabbage for four eaters. Small cabbage heads usually weigh about 1 1/2 pounds.

BERLIN: City Of Contrasts

By CARL HARTMAN
BERLIN (AP)—Isolated, divided, threatened, divided, the city of Berlin is a place of contrasts. All of them are accurate.

But just as remarkable is one characteristic of the city that no single word can describe. It is the only place on earth where you can walk across the street from communism into the Western world, and vice versa.

This is a legacy from Adolf Hitler and the Nazis whose swastika banners flew in Berlin from 1933 until the country was driven to collapse in 1945.

The Red army occupied the city in the closing days of World War II but then turned over a little more than half the city to the Americans, French and British allies.

This division in defeat was a low point for a city that had once been the capital of efficient Prussian monarchs and steady German emperors. Hitler was the last ruler of a united Germany to ride in triumph along its broad boulevards.

The Nazi dictator built a new chancellery in what was then the center of the city, next to the president's palace, near the U.S., British, French and Soviet embassies. Western bombers and Russian artillery destroyed them all, along with 45 per cent of all the housing in the city. All that is left of the chancellery now is a little grass-covered hill just inside the border of the Soviet sector—East Berlin.

Less than a year before Hitler's body was burned in his chancellery garden, his major enemies agreed to divide the city. The Western allies got the more populous half, with some of the best living quarters. The Soviet sector included the central district of government buildings and shops, but there was little left of them.

The system of four-power rule did not last in Berlin. By 1948, East and West Berlin had separate currencies and city governments. They were soon to have separate — and unconnected — telephone, electric power and surface transport systems. Subway and elevated trains, however, continued to run through both parts of the city. There was little interference with pedestrians and private cars. The only time the Iron Curtain was effectively rolled down was for a few days during the anti-Communist uprising of 1953.

But the Communists isolated West Berlin much more effectively from West Germany. This was easy, since the city lies in the middle of Soviet-controlled East Germany, with the rest of the Western world 110 miles away. The Communists permitted contact between West Berlin and West Germany only across two canals, four roads, four rail lines and three air corridors. Communist East Germany took control of the overland routes, except for a small amount of Western military traffic. The Soviets continue to work with the three Western allies in controlling the air lanes through the Berlin Air Safety Center.

In June 1948, the Communists blocked everything but the air corridors and the "knapsack life" smuggling. For 11 months a Western airlift—mainly American—supplied West Berlin's 2 1/2 million citizens. Rations and fuel were short, but there was no talk of giving in to Communist pressure.

After the blockade ended, Western authorities set about building up stockpiles of everything a city needs, from hairpins to the bulky and uneconomical brown coal that fuels so many Berlin homes. Supplies for about 18 months were accumulated.

It was after the blockade, too, that West Germany's "economic miracle" spread to Berlin and the city's contrast between the East and West sectors. Now anyone can see it by taking a short ride on the elevated.

West Berlin is a city of new buildings, has heavily stocked shops, even luxury shops. Streets are filled with well-dressed people and there is the beginning of a traffic problem. The air of prosperity is none the less genuine for being based on heavy subsidies from West Germany and the United States.

East Berlin has much less to show in the way of construction, least of all in what was once the heart of the city. Wilhelmstrasse and Unter den Linden, the great names among Berlin streets, are dead. Shops are poorly stocked and the stock is sleazy. There are few people on the streets and their clothes, though adequate, are weary-looking. Cars are scarce.

In one field the Communists make an effort to compete. East Berlin has two operas, to West Berlin's one, and East Berlin's theaters have a good reputation. But East Berliners flock to West Berlin to see Western movies rather than productions of the Communist countries. West Berlin's Philharmonic Orchestra is much better than anything East

Berlin can offer. Berlin, the Western showcase, has probably enhanced the attraction of Berlin, the escape hatch. The Communists, having made East Berlin the capital of their "German Democratic Republic," found it hard to stop people going there from the provinces. Any visitor could compare for himself the advantages of the Communist and Western systems. Any visitor had only to go up to the nearest policeman for help if he decided that the West was where he wanted to stay.

Hundreds of refugees have been coming over to West Berlin every day, and at peak periods the daily figure has topped the 1,000 mark. Though they have had to leave behind almost everything they owned, they have had good prospects for jobs.

The flight of refugees has hit the Communists heavily, in both their economy and their propaganda. West Germans are fond of saying that although voters don't have any opportunity for choice in an election on Communist territory, a great many people from there have learned to "vote with their feet." In recent years, about the only practical place to do this has been Berlin.

Daily Crude Flow Rises

TULSA (AP)—Daily average domestic oil production increased 7,190 to 6,971,150 barrels during the week ended July 29, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Biggest declines were in Kansas, down 3,860 barrels to 302,275, and Nebraska, off 2,500 to 63,490. The Journal estimated 1961 production at 1,510,821,000 barrels compared with 1,485,606,000 a year ago.

Increases were reported for Arkansas, up 4,600 barrels to 78,100; Louisiana, 125 to 1,125,450, and Oklahoma 1,000 to 509,000. Colorado was down 600 to 182,300 barrels.

Production was unchanged in Texas, 2,447,300 barrels; and New Mexico, 302,100.

OUTLOOK DEFINITELY IMPROVED

Paul Applauds Players; Bemoans Game's Outcome

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
BOSTON (AP) — Admittedly unhappy over what he called an "unsatisfactory ending," perfectionist Paul Richards, the American League All-Star manager, today expressed pleasure over at least one aspect of Monday's rain-out at Fenway Park.

"I am happy to report that the American League team, to a man, certainly is deserving of no criticism," he said.

"The boys had a little different outlook on this game. I thought I could detect a little more determination."

Was Richards implying that the American League stars had not given their best efforts in the first All-Star game, won by the National League, 5-4, in San Francisco, two weeks ago?

"Well," said Richards, measuring every word, "it might have been more imagination on my part, or perhaps I felt the way I did because it was my first All-Star game as manager and I wanted so badly to win it, but I honestly felt there was not as much anxiety and determination as in this second game."

Did Richards lay down the law to his players, or perhaps give them a pep talk?

"I did talk to them," he acknowledged. "It was no attempt on my part to give the boys the Knute Rockne type of fight talk. I merely pointed out how much the game meant to the American League and asked them to play it up to the very hilt."

They didn't have to be coaxed. They're all great competitors."

Did Richards think the American League's earlier lackadaisical attitude was largely responsible for the National League's winning march which produced 10 victories in 14 games, cutting the American League once-huge margin to 16-14?

"I would say the attitude might have helped a little," he replied.

Was he in favor of the continuance of the two-game set?

"I am opposed to the two-game idea," Richards said. "One All-Star game a year is a spectacle unmatched by any other in the world of sports. A second game is merely an anti-climax."

Richards went all out in an effort to win Monday's game for a standoff in the two-game series. He stacked his starting team with eight right-handed hitters in an effort to take advantage of the chummy left field wall, and, for necessary pitching changes and a catching switch, he made no substitutions. National League Manager Danny Murtagh used 19 players.

The tie was a bitter disappointment to Richards.

"A high hopper and an infield scratch single was the difference between a brilliant 1-0 shutout and an unsatisfactory tie," he said. "It's too bad the game could not have been played to a conclusion."

The high hopper and the scratch single took place in the sixth inning when the Nationals overcame a 1-0 American League lead built up by Rocky Colavito's first-inning home run off right-hander Bob Purkey of Cincinnati. After Henry Aaron had grounded out to open the sixth, Eddie Mathews walked. Willie Mays fled out but Don Schwall, Boston's precocious rookie right-hander, hit Orlando Cepeda with an errant pitch, and Eddie Kasko beat out a high bounce to short. Bill White, who got two of the national's five hits, then singled behind second base, to score Matthews with the tying run.

Until then, the Nationals had been held in check by Detroit's Jim Bunning, who pitched three perfect innings, and Schwall, who kept Mays and company from crossing the plate despite three hits in the fourth and fifth innings. Minnesota's Camilo Pasqual nearly duplicated Bunning's perfect pitching, yielding only a base on balls and striking out four in the final three innings.

Four national league pitchers limited the opposition to four hits. Stu Miller, the little San Francisco hurler, turned in the most brilliant job of all. He fanned five of the ten batters he faced, including Mickey Mantle, Ellie Howard and pinch hitter Roy Sievers after Al Kaline had singled to open the last half of the ninth.

Jon Douglas Vieing For Cup Slot

SOUTHAMPTON, N.Y. (AP) — Jon Douglas, fresh from his victory in the Pennsylvania grass-court championships, resumed his bid for a berth on the U.S. Davis Cup team today in the Meadow Club Invitation Tournament.

Douglas, who Monday defeated Frank Froehling, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1, in the final at Haverford, Pa., plays Eugene Scott of St. James, N.Y., in a second-round match. The former Stanford quarterback drew a first-round bye.

Another victory in the Meadow Club event, a traditional stop on the Eastern grass-court circuit, would virtually insure the Santa Monica, Calif., slugger a berth on the Davis Cup squad in its next American zone match.

The U.S. faces the survivor of this week's duel between Mexico and Morocco, Aug. 18-20.

Froehling, the 19-year-old sensation from Coral Gables, Fla., joins the Meadow Club field as its third-seeded player, along with second-seeded Jack Frost, Monterey, Calif., and fourth-seeded Dennis Ralston, Bakersfield, Calif.

'Super Stars' Abundant Over Years

CHICAGO (AP) — It's college All-Star football week and time for another look at memory lane, and heroes of the past.

Remember such names as Sammy Baugh? Gaynell Tinsley? Tommy Harmon? Jackie Robinson? Otto Graham? Elroy Hirsch? Buddy Young? Charlie Justice? Ted Wead? Bobby Conrad? Bobby Mitchell?

When the All-Stars take on the champion Philadelphia Eagles in Soldier Field Friday night, who knows but there may be another name or two to add to the illustrious list of past heroes.

The All-Stars are boasting a powerful team this year and are given an excellent chance of upsetting the Eagles. And there are plenty of candidates for the hero list.

It could be hard-running Joe Bellino of Navy or such able passers as Bill Kilmer of UCLA or Normen Sneed of Wake Forest. There's Bill Brown, a powerful fullback from Illinois, and Tom Mafie, an Ohio State back who also can pass.

It could be Mike Ditka of Pitt, or Earl Faison of Indiana or El Kimbrough of Northwestern or Marlin McKeever of Southern Cal—some of the finest ends in college circles last fall.

Or the hero could be a lineman like Houston Antwine of Southern Illinois, Myron Pottius of Notre Dame, Greg Larson of Minnesota, Earnest Ladd of Grambling or Ken Rice of Auburn.

"Mission 66," a program to improve the National Park System, takes its name from its target date for completion, 1966. That year will mark the 50th anniversary of the founding of the National Park Service.

Why Not An Even Half Dozen Games?

BOSTON (AP) — The player representatives of the Major League clubs meet today to decide if they want one or two All-Star games a year in the future and also to consider a resolution calling for the end of segregation in spring training.

The players are expected to ask for continuation of the two All-Star games, because the bulk of the receipts and television money goes into the fund supporting their pension plan. They have played two games in each of the last three years.

Barber Clips January In Playoff

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Jerry Barber of Los Angeles, a saved-off little guy with a whittled-down magic putter and a tell-all card file, is the PGA golf champion today after firing a 67 and beating young Don January by one stroke in a par-busting 18-hole playoff at Olympia Fields Country Club.

Oldest PGA champion ever at 45 and one of the smallest at 5-5 and 137 pounds, the never-quit son of an Illinois farmer finally got the title he let slip away two years ago.

Barber, who said he got nervous about golf at the age of 14 when he read of Bobby Jones' grand slam, did it with putting and a cardfile of Olympia Fields' North Course he made during practice rounds.

"I picked up the idea from Gene Andrews, a good amateur out our way, about three years ago," he said. "I pace off each course, chart it and it tells me to the yard just how far every point is from the green."

That kept him out of serious trouble all during the tournament. The putter put him up in the headlines. First, he pulled even with the lean, lanky January on Sunday by sinking incredible putts on the last three holes.

Then, in the playoff Monday while another hot sun baked the rain-softened, 6,722-yard, par-

35-35—79 course in Chicago's south suburbs, Jerry twice came from two strokes behind. He finally wrapped up his first major title when, after getting birdies on three of the previous five holes, he hit a pressure 3-iron shot out of a fairway trap to within 18 feet of the cup on the last hole.

Coming to the 18th, Barber and January were even. Each was three under par in a brilliant display of golf under steamy, hot conditions and crunching pressure. There Barber hit his great trap shot—"183 yards, by my card file of the course," he said—and two-putted for a par 4 and a 35-32—67.

January, 31, tour regular from Dallas, had a similar trap shot but couldn't bring it off. He caught another trap near the green, pitched up to within 10 feet and missed the putt. He had 34-34—68.

Pro at the Wilshire Country Club at Los Angeles the last seven years, Barber was a farmer, hotel clerk, printer and lathe operator before turning pro golfer. He operated golf driving ranges in California for several years, practiced putting by street light into the night, and finally tuned his game enough to become a regular on the pro tour about 10 years ago.

A consistent money-winner, he had never won a major championship however—losing the 1959 PGA by one stroke to Bob Rosburg when he bogied the last two holes.

THIS IS IT — Diminutive Jerry Barber waves his putter as his 58-footer drops into the cup on the 18th green of the final round of the National PGA golf tournament at Olympia Fields, Illinois. The sensational putt enabled Barber to tie front-running Don January and force a playoff. Both had 72-hole totals of 277. (AP Wirephoto)

In That Good Old Summertime

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—How is your summer going?

Summer is a perilous time, the most dangerous of the seasons, when both nature and the gadgets of man lie in wait to ambush the unwary.

Most people have enough sense to come in out of the cold in winter, but few have enough wisdom to come in out of the heat in summer. They flee to the great outdoors—to a mountain, lake or beach resort—where all kinds of pitfalls await them.

I prefer to flee to the great indoors when the temperature zooms over the 90-degree mark. The best way to survive summer is to pull in your welcome mat, and hole up for the duration in an air-conditioned apartment on the door of which you have hung a sign saying "Do not disturb until autumn."

Our family has followed this policy with fine success. With summer at the half-way mark not one of us has—
Had a bad case of sunburn.
Come down with smoke poisoning—or ptomaine poisoning—from helping a suburban pioneer father in a backyard cook-out.
Caught a summer cold, or the mumps, or the measles.
Been stung by a wasp or bee.
Had to fight off a colony of ants seeking to take over a picnic sandwich.

Stepped on a thorn.
Been stepped on by a horse, or had to run from a bull.
Fallen out of a hammock while trying to read "War and Peace," or other light summer literary fodder.

Been hit on the head by a baseball, horseshoe or tennis racket.
Come home bankrupt from a race track.
Lost a toe in a power lawnmower.

Been visited by a cloud of relatives, or bitten by a snake chigger.

Stalled for hours in an endless summer Sunday highway snarl, or bawled out by a traffic cop.
Been smashed across the storeach by a shovel in the hands of a grave-eyed small child at the seashore.

Had our sleep broken by the noisy chirping of an early bird up at dawn looking for a belated worm.

Sat for fruitless hours in a boat slapping at swarms of mosquitoes while fishing in a lake where nothing bigger than a tadpole has been since 1969.

Had a tent collapse on us in a rainstorm while camping in a public park.

Tumbled from a mountain peak or got lost exploring a cave.

Been struck by lightning, or knocked down by a flying golf ball.

Crawled over backward in a rickety hotel while listening to antique ladies brag about their symptoms.

Suffered writer's cramp writing postcards to friends during a trip abroad.

Each day my wife has to venture across the street to the grocery store and announces on her return: "My, it's hot out there."

"Well," I tell her, "let me know when you see an icicle—then I'll go to the store."

Yep, it's been a wonderful summer so far. Of course, we've missed a few things. Last week, for example, our TV set was out of whack for a few days and our neighbors down the hall told us we

One Is Made To Wonder About Government In NY

BY RICHARD STARNES

The Mayor of New York is generally held to be the second most important elected official in the country, but I know of no reason why this should require that the men who hold the job be such hopeless second-raters.

I don't hold with those who claim New York is the worst-governed city on earth, but ordinary civic pride leads me to conclude that it will be a very good second to whatever place wins that dubious distinction.

There are few aspects of this sprawling municipality that are not touched with graft, inefficiency, indifference, or all three. Even school children are fair game for the boot boys; the past few months have brought sickening revelations of graft and corruption in the school building program. In some cases, it is clear, the malignant urge to pilfer even resulted in conditions that could have cost the lives of children.

Graft is bad enough, dear knows, when some overworked and underpaid cop takes from a horse room or a painted Zebebe. But stealing from kids takes a species of postulant greed that decent people find difficult to believe. The minds missed seeing 37 interesting murders, 84 stirring barroom horse opera brawls, and a heartwarming speech or two by Khrushchev on the Berlin crisis.

But then you can't have everything.

All in all, however, the safest way to survive the good old summertime is to hibernate at home in your own air-conditioned foxhole. It's cool, man, cool!

of our children have become currency in the business of graft, just like so many paving contracts. There is one case with which I am passing well acquainted, because it happened in the public school attended by two of my tads. The mothers' club of that institution, a group of strong-willed ladies formidable enough to drive any sane man to drink, worked and scraped until they had gotten together a library worth several thousand bucks.

Unfortunately, however, there was no room suitable for use as a library, so the books gathered dust and several hundred young minds continued to be filled with television rubbish. The mothers' club school authorities to refurbish a room so that the library could be put to use, but they were met with the plea that no funds were available.

Then the good ladies discovered that the school was about to spend more than $15,000 on a public address system that by an intelligent reckoning was useless in an elementary school. They complained to an official now under suspension and were bluntly told it was none of their business. The school now has scratchy Victrola records piped into every classroom and the books still molder unread.

The school scandal is wicked, but it is not surprising. Stealing from the taxpayer is now the big game in New York, having lately even surpassed church bingo. Street paving is so bad that it would be scorned by a Mississippi yahoo driving a Model T.

Whole areas within the limits of the city are without sewers but depend on cesspools that create a health hazard every time there is a hard rain. Traffic is an endless nightmare, a drunken wretch on his hands and knees can cross Manhattan faster than a man driving a motor car. Only the fact that bridges, tunnels and rapid transit have been taken away from the looters and placed in the hands of autonomous authorities has saved New York from death by strangulation years ago.

You would think that in the face of the undisputed chronicle of failure the city's incumbent lawgivers would ship out aboard the first cattle boat for the Tierra del Fuego, with a party of vigilantes wishing them bon voyage from the Battery.

Nothing is further from the truth. Led by the city's somnolent burgomaster, the Hon. Robert Wagner, all who are not attending grand jury quizzes or under suspension are preparing to wage battle in a primary in September for the privilege of bestowing the same sort of peerless leadership on the city for another four years. The sorriest earnest of New York's political bankruptcy is that the "reform" element of the local Democratic Party has just endorsed Wagner for another term. Cynics might observe (in Mr. Khrushchev's salty trope) that this is like putting a goal to guard a cabbage patch, but I can't agree with it. I don't think Mayor Wagner is a crook; he is just a boobhead.

Stormy Weather Tapers Off In Nation's Northern Areas

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Stormy weather and heavy rains tapered off today after Monday's thunderstorms caused flash floods in many areas from southern New England to Colorado.

A violent thunderstorm hit New York City at the evening rush hour, tying up traffic, flooding subway tunnels and expressways and knocking out service on the Pennsylvania Railroad's main line to Philadelphia.

Flash floods also hit the area of Johnstown, Pa., after a two-inch rainfall. Floodwaters rolled out of the southwest Virginia mountains into the town of Haysi, washing away several houses and two general stores and leaving about 50 persons homeless.

Thunderstorms caused flooding in sections of Colorado, with heavy property damage. A woman was killed by lightning in a storm near Delta in Western Colorado.

Eight inches of rain drenched Alpha, in northeast Iowa. Nearly 7 inches of rain was reported in Hawkeye, Iowa.

Operation Saves 'Mixed Up' Child

NEW YORK (AP)—A 2½-year-old boy who doctors said would die within a year is a healthy and normal child today, thanks to a Chicago specialist, a newspaper and a lot of New Yorkers who cared.

The youngster, Andrew Gottesman of Brooklyn, was born with "mixed-up insides." His appendix was on the wrong side. His alimentary tract was incomplete. His kidneys did not function properly.

Andrew was slowly dying of uremic poisoning. The doctors told the boy's mother, Betty Gottesman, 32, that the case was hopeless.

Two months ago, the mother went to the New York Daily News with her story. The newspaper printed an article on it, asking: "Must this brave little lad die now?"

People began to call Mrs. Gottesman with suggestions and offers of aid. One of them said her daughter had suffered from a similar condition and had been successfully treated by Dr. Ovar Swensen of Chicago. The American Legion of Brooklyn offered financial help and a month ago Mrs. Gottesman took Andrew to Chicago.

After an examination, Swensen decided the case was not hopeless. He performed two operations on the child.

Andrew was back home Monday playing and romping on the floor like any other healthy child of his age.

Mrs. Martin said she and her husband, Sinatra and Lawford, will depart Thursday.

Miss Leigh plans to meet Mrs. Lawford — Joseph Kennedy's daughter-in-law — in New York on Aug. 7, en route to Europe. Tony Curtis, Miss Leigh's husband, is working and can't go.

Mrs. Martin said Lawford and Sinatra plan to extend their vacation to six weeks and will charter a yacht to tour the Mediterranean.

Junior Editors Quiz on ANIMALS

SOME TINY ANIMALS

QUESTION: What is the smallest warm blooded animal in the world?

ANSWER: Before we answer, let's make it clear exactly what we mean when we speak of "warm blooded animal." Many of the small animals are cold blooded, which means that the animals get warm or cold according to the outside atmosphere. But with the warm blooded animals, the blood keeps the body at an even temperature no matter what the outside is like. Birds and mammals are both warm blooded. Our picture shows first, an extremely small mammal, perhaps the smallest member of the animal kingdom. Next is a tiny fish, the half inch goby, and this is the smallest animal with a backbone. Of course these are both cold blooded. When we come to the warm blooded animals we find the smallest to be the humming birds, and the smallest of these is a midge living in Jamaica whose Latin name is Mollia minima. It's two and three eighths inches long. This is the exact answer to the question but it will be interesting to include the smallest mammal. The fourth animal in our picture, is the English Pygmy Shrew and it is three inches long.

FOR YOU TO DO: Stop reading at the end of this sentence and try to figure out why we show a mouse in our picture of the tiny shrew. Answer: the mouse and the shrew are in the same class, and since the mouse is so big it is also the size of a real shrew. His body is only three inches long.

(Thomas Marziale of Akron, Ohio $10 for this question. Send your question on a post card to Junior Editors, in care of this newspaper. In case of duplicates we will have to pick the winner).

Market Pact May Solidify Europe

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press, News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — That simple symbol of survival—the almighty buck—may do more to bring the people of Western Europe together than all the philosophers, kings, war and oratory in history.

The latest example: British Prime Minister Macmillan Monday hemmed and hawed and hesitated but managed to murmur he'd like to take Britain into Europe's Common Market.

He wasn't talking out of an impulse toward humanitarianism or nobility. Britain is hurting in the pocketbook. The history behind his wish and the Common Market had its roots in humility and desperation.

For generations the West Europeans lived like tomcats on the prowl for real estate or trade, even if it meant war, which it often did. In the end they fought one war too many, the last one. It left them broke and second rate in a new world dominated by the United States and Russia. In their moment of disaster they suddenly showed a common sense which had been unthinkable when they had muscle.

Soon after the war a French economist, Jean Monnet, had an idea. France and West Germany both had coal and iron ore. Why not pool their resources? Besides, it would bridge some of that ancient gulf between them.

It would certainly help economically. The idea appealed, too, to Italy, the Netherlands, Belgium, Luxembourg. So the six nations signed a treaty creating the European Coal and Steel Community (ECSC).

Another Frenchman, Premier Rene Pleven, got another thought instead of having separate European armies glaring at each other as in the past, why not unify them in one army, including Germany, which then would be an ally and not an enemy?

The French Parliament, still afraid of a rearmaged Germany, killed this notion. But the idea of cooperation among the six—called the Inner Six—was just starting.

In 1957 they signed another treaty, called the European Economic Community or Common Market.

The six would trade freely among themselves, wiping out tariffs on each other's goods. A man in Rome could buy a German car for the same price he'd pay in Bonn.

With this start, it was thought, the Inner Six could go on to even greater cooperation, perhaps some day to a common citizenship. Collectively they would achieve far greater strength in coping with the United States and Russia than they could ever hope for singly.

But Britain, with its long love-hate history of staying out of continental "entanglements" and playing one power off against another, wouldn't join.

"It created a rival trading group of its own called the European Free Trade Association (EFTA). In 1960, it had seven members known as the Outer Seven: Britain, Switzerland, Austria, Portugal, Sweden, Norway, Denmark.

But while the purpose of the Inner Six was to eliminate tariff barriers against their own goods, they also arranged to create a uniform tariff wall against the goods of any other country.

This began to hurt British trade. The Inner Six nations have 160 million people. The Outer Seven have only 85 million. Britain began to see itself squeezed out of many of its traditional markets.

So Macmillan finally came around to the idea that if you can't lick 'em, join 'em, and he is starting to talk of taking Britain into the Common Market of the Inner Six. Immediately afterwards the headquarters of Britain's partners in the Outer Seven urged the merger of the seven with the six.

Before it can all happen a lot of difficulties—for instance, Britain's own preferential trade arrangements with the nations in the British Commonwealth—have to be considered.

But if the merger comes, it will be a new era and more civilized era than any Western Europe has ever known. In time it might—but this seems far off now—lead to a United States of Europe.

If it happens, thanks must go to the power of the buck and not to man's abilities to settle his affairs intelligently because he wanted to be intelligent.

Small Loan Firms' Suit Is Dismissed

By JOE BENHAM
SAN ANTONIO (AP)—An anti-trust suit, filed on behalf of more than 300 small loan companies over the state, drew a partial dismissal by U.S. Dist. Judge Ben Rice Monday.

The suit, brought by a Waco loan company operator, charged 35 larger companies with fixing small loan rates "to make it impossible for the plaintiffs and all other similarly situated to stay in business."

Rice granted a summary judgment asked by Seaboard Finance Co., of Los Angeles, Calif., one of the defendants in the suit filed by J. L. House Jr. of Waco, operator of the Gulf Management Co.

The judge also dismissed the suit against the American Credit Co., Houston; Ben Gordon Finance Co., Houston; City Finance of Midland Inc., Midland; Columbia Finance Corp., Dallas; State Finance Co., Houston, and Steadman Credit Co., Houston.

House said he filed the suit on behalf of all small loan firms in Texas. House's petition said the firms have more than $4.5 million invested in their operations.

The petition asked $900,000—three times actual damages—and an injunction against what it called "continued illegal monopoly and combinations, conspiracies and contracts in restraint of the plaintiffs' trade and commerce."

Seaboard's answer, filed by Austin attorney Dean Moorehead, said the firm could not properly be made a party to the suit since it does not operate in Texas and since the suit did not claim to involve interstate commerce.

The defendant's petition claimed House could not complain about his business being injured since it was not a legal one, noting that Atty. Gen. Will Wilson had obtained an order from a Waco district court enjoining House and several other Waco loan company operators from charging illegal interest rates.

House said the defendants violated the Sherman and Clayton anti-trust legislation by fixing interest rates charged both to individual lenders and to small loan firms such as that operated by House, by misleading the public about interest rates, by influencing the legislature to pass laws which House said make it impossible for small loan firms to operate and by conspiring to eliminate competition.

Court observers said Judge Rice's action indicates he will dismiss the rest of the suit or return summary judgments in favor of the other companies sued by House.

Man Draws 30 Years In Gold Hoax

RUSK, Tex. (AP)—Dorris E. Jones, 40, filling station attendant who made headlines two years ago by announcing he had found $2.5 million in gold bars while berry picking, has been sentenced to three years in prison.

Jones, father of nine, pleaded guilty Monday to theft by false pretext. He was accused of taking $2,500 from Henry McAdams of Dallas and not delivering a gold bar as promised.

Jones admitted his story was a hoax after failing a lie detector test. He said he got the idea while "the boys were sitting around the filling station talking about buried gold."

The Corsicana filling station attendant who was then working at Albany touched off a rash of buried treasure fever among East Texans when he reported finding 86 gold bars in 1959.

He said he found the bars while berry picking but buried them until he could establish legal claim to his find.

The story attracted the interest of government officials. The bubble of Jones' treasure was punctured when he admitted that the gold bars were strictly the product of his imagination.

He said his curiosity was aroused and he went to a banker to find out what he should do if he found gold. The banker sent him to a lawyer.

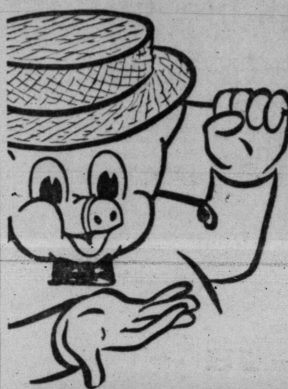

Although he had only 7 cents in his pocket at the time Jones said he signed a contract with a lawyer, figuring he had nothing to lose.

The criminal charges were filed after the alleged sale of the gold bar to the Dallas man last fall.

They Prefer Cars

VIENNA (AP)—A Czechoslovak newspaper report that 100,000 Czech citizens applied for automobiles last year while 100,000 women received permission to have abortions.

The interest in a car or other luxuries has priority over interest in a happy family, commented the paper, Smeu of Bratislava. The Communist Czech government authorizes abortions in "justified cases."

Kennedy Is Given Requested Power

By W. B. RAGSDALE JR.
WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has given President Kennedy the authority he asked to call up to 250,000 reservists into military service and extend active duty tours and enlistments one year. Final approval came only six days after Kennedy requested the military manpower buildup.

The House Monday passed 403 to 2 the emergency resolution authorizing the President to put a quarter-million ready reservists in uniform for one year, either as individuals or in units.

The resolution, approved earlier by the Senate 75-4, also authorizes extending training periods for the 2,400,000 members of the ready reserve.

The Defense Department matched pace with Congress in expediting the swift strengthening of U.S. armed forces. Kennedy called for legislation Tuesday.

The Pentagon announced late Monday that four Air Force bases slated for deactivation, would remain on active status—McDill in Florida, Chennault in Louisiana, Doolittle in South Carolina and Laughlin in Texas.

This is necessary to provide facilities for continued operation of B47 jet bombers which had been slated to give way to later model aircraft.

The Navy plans to add 60 vessels to the fleet, mainly for transport and antisubmarine service. Twenty new ships will be provided from the combatant ship-building program, many of them destroyer-type craft for antisubmarine work. A corresponding number of older destroyers will remain in service instead of going into mothballs.

Some 40 ships are expected to be recommissioned from the mothball fleet, 22 troop and cargo transports and 18 smaller craft for antisubmarine service.

In California, Brig. Gen. Robert Turkey Waterway

Will Stay Open
ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Turkey will not close the vital waterway between the Black Sea and the Mediterranean if the Communists try to close off West Berlin. Gen. Cemal Gursel said Monday.

He was asked by newsmen if Turkey, a NATO ally of the West, planned such action as a reprisal should the Soviet Union let East Germany shut off access to West Berlin.

"This is the first time I have heard of such a suggestion," the Turkish president replied.

The 1936 Montreux convention guarantees peacetime passage through the Straits of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus to all warships of Black Sea nations except aircraft carriers and submarines. In time of war the straits are closed to all participants if Turkey is neutral.

Jobless Pay Hike Derailed

AUSTIN (AP)—The House State Affairs Committee has side-tracked in a subcommittee a bill increasing jobless benefits for Texas workers.

The bill, introduced with approval of the Texas Employment Commission, was heard Monday night. It proposes a $37 maximum weekly benefit for 26 weeks. The present benefit maximum is $28 weekly for 24 weeks.

"Management and labor are not entirely satisfied with this bill, so perhaps we have a chance to get it passed," said Rep. John Huebner of Bay City, the author.

The bill also contains a new formula for computing benefits and a one-week waiting period between filing a claim and receiving the first benefit check.

Rep. Tony Koriath of Sherman, who introduced an unsuccessful unemployment compensation bill in the regular session, said the legislature ought to wait until another special session to pass such a bill.

"You do not know the effect of the one-week waiting period," he warned.

"This bill is a very liberal bill for employees," said Jake Pickle, management representative on the TEC. He said employers would have to pay $9.8 million a year more in unemployment compensation taxes.

Referral to subcommittee probably means the bill will die.

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—

Space ships that could skip off the earth's atmosphere for a second try at landing in case of a re-entry goof were forecast today by a government scientist.

Dr. Eugene S. Love of the Langley Research Center—4th National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said possibilities exist for designing space craft so they could bounce off the earth's atmosphere, like a stone skipping off water, in the event the original return approach from outer space was faulty.

Addressing a space science conference at Virginia Polytechnic Institute—and amplifying in an interview—he said such a space ship might approach to within 80 miles of the earth, and then zoom off into a 300-mile-high orbit to await a new try at a more favorable landing.

Dr. Love said NASA scientists see chances of equipping space ships with special chemical jets—or even airplane flaps—so they could be positioned to get a bouncing lift from the earth's atmosphere upon entering it.

Dr. Love's speech was prepared for a conference of American and Canadian defense-research space scientists jointly sponsored by VPI, the National Science Foundation, and NASA.

He said it well could be that a manned space ship, returning from a mission to the moon or the planets, could go into the re-entry phase at a faulty angle that would carry it wide of the area where recovery forces were waiting for the pickup. In that event, he said, a skip maneuver would be indicated.

The scientist also said space ships of the future might be equipped with throwaway compartments so that the final re-entry vehicle, reaching the earth, would be only the living quarters of the astronaut crew.

He said one NASA concept of manned space craft calls for a modular, or sectionalized, vehicle in which the crew would ride in the nose cone section, while auxiliary propulsion and scientific instrument sections would ride behind. The two latter sections would be jettisoned after they served their purpose.

Dr. Love said space scientists are not over-concerned about the hazards of the Van Allen radiation belts because, he said, trajectories of manned space vehicles could be tailored to minimize the danger.

Of greater concern, he said, are radiations from mostly unpredictable eruptions on the sun—as well as possible hazards from prolonged periods of wakefulness in flights to the moon and the planets.

I Wanted More But ...

PAL OALTO, Calif. (AP)—A burglar dropped through a skylight in Palo Alto and borrowed a small truck to take away 91 big tires valued at $3,800. Patrolman Charles T. Downing discovered the door unlocked and a postscript to burglary chalked on the floor. It read: "If I had a bigger truck I'd have taken them all."
