B-2 flight scheduled for this fall

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The secretary of the Air Force announced April 20 that the first flight of the advanced technology bomber, or B-2, is currently scheduled for this fall.

On its maiden flight, the B-2 will launch from its final assembly facility at Air Force Plant 42 in Palmdale, Calif., and land at the Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards AFB, Calif., where flight testing will be conducted.

The initial flight of the B-2 will highlight the return of the flying wing design to military aviation.

The secretary of the Air Force, Edward Aldridge Jr., said, "The first flight of the B-2, which has enjoyed bipartisan congressional support from its inception, will represent a dramatic leap forward in technology and the achievement of a major milestone in our nation's strategic modernization program."

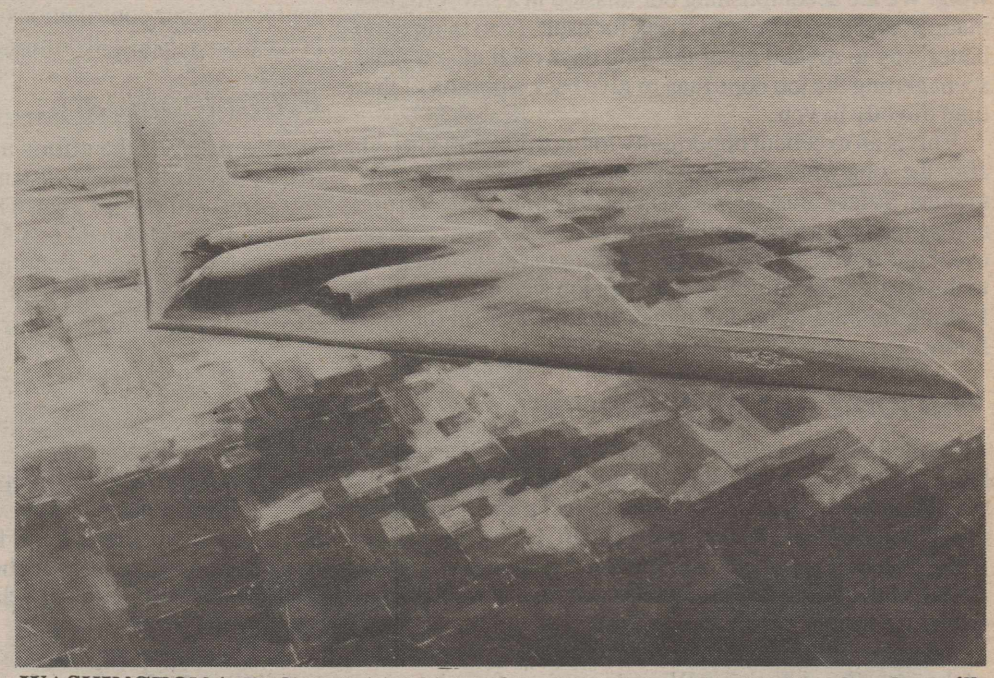

The president's decision and the congressional support to develop and procure 132 B-2s with an initial operational capability in the early 1990s, following the deployment of 100 B-1Bs, was based on the need to redress the strategic imbalance between the United States and the Soviets.

While the acquisition of 132 B-2 bombers was originally estimated to cost $36.6 billion (in fiscal 1981 dollars), the Air Force is re-evaluating cost estimates for the program as a result of current and projected fiscal constraints. When that process is completed later this year, the Air Force will release those updated figures.

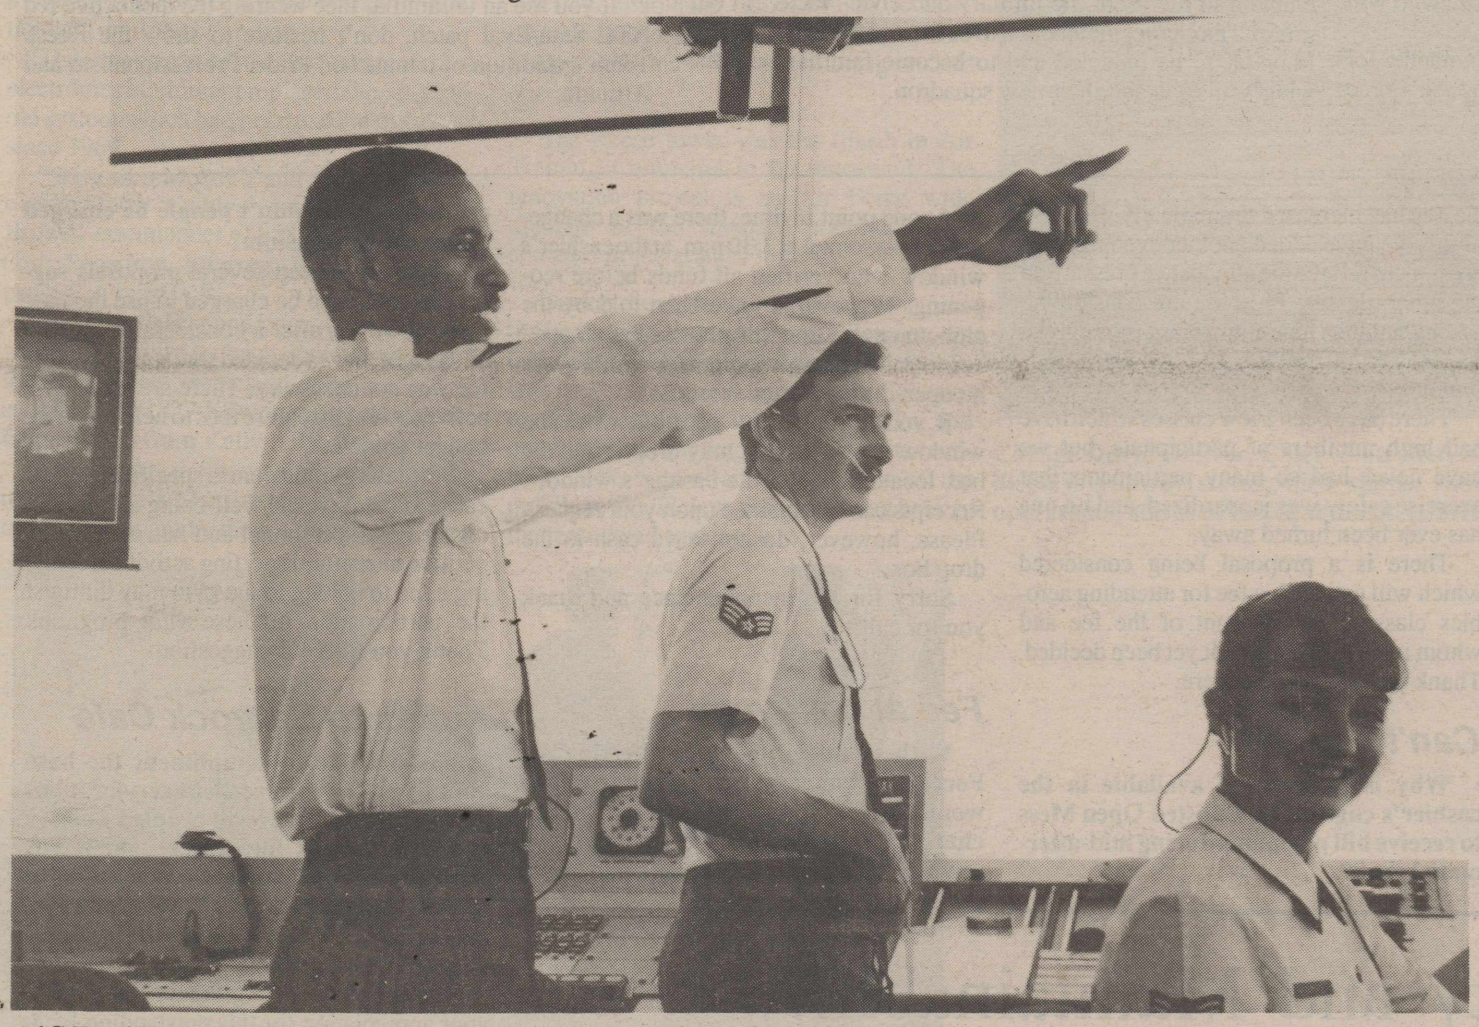

The acquisition of the B-2 ensures U.S. capability to effectively penetrate Soviet defenses well into the 21st century.

Air Force previously announced that Whiteman AFB, Mo., would be the initial operating base for the B-2. Initial construction to support the aircraft's beddown at Whiteman AFB is scheduled to begin later this year. In addition, the selection of the Oklahoma City Air Logistics Center, Oklahoma City, Okla., was announced in February as the primary depot facility for the B-2.

First flight of the B-2 this fall will represent a major achievement in an aggressive and highly successful development program.

The radar-evading bomber, depicted above in an artist's rendition, will make its first flight from Palmdale to nearby Edwards AFB, Calif., this fall. (Air Force art)

Mission Milestones

Even with the high winds we had Friday, we managed to finish at 76 sorties above the requirement. The 64th Flying Training Wing is four days ahead on the T-37 time line and 6.3 days ahead on the T-38 time line.

The Reese T-37 fleet recently passed the 1,000,000 flying hours mark for accrued hours on the 74 aircraft assigned to Reese. The oldest aircraft is T-37 aircraft 56-3497 with 15,080 hours. The youngest aircraft is 68-8020 with 9852 hours. The T-37 fleet averages 13,500 hours per airframe.

Proud Day Monday

Monday has been designated Proud Day by the 64th Flying Training Wing Commander, Colonel Mark H. Lillard. No flying activity will be scheduled for Monday. However, all offices need to remain open, but as many people should be given the day off as possible. Civilians will be required to take leave if they choose not to work.

House, Senate work out budget resolution

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — House and Senate spending blueprints for 1989 differ on the size of next year's federal pay raise.

The House budget resolution favors a 3 percent pay hike for all federal workers, while the Senate supports a 2 percent raise for civilians and a 4.3 percent increase for the military.

Both houses would fund only half the raise. The remainder must be absorbed elsewhere within the Defense Department budget.

Both the House and Senate budget resolutions for fiscal year 1989 call for the same federal and defense spending levels — $1.1 trillion in federal spending with $299.5 billion of that for defense. However, only $294 billion can be spent by the Defense Department in 1989. The remainder can be obligated next year and paid in later years.

House and Senate conferees are working to resolve the differences. Both houses must then pass a compromise version of the budget resolution, the first step for Congress in its annual budget process. The resolution sets spending targets for the authorization and appropriations bills.

The first bill authorizes the various programs for the next year. The appropriations bill sets aside the money for those programs.

The two bills are supposed to adhere to the spending levels set by the budget resolution.

Budget resolutions are Congress' master plan for the next year's spending. They set overall federal guidelines in broad areas such as defense, international affairs, agriculture and energy. They also outline the assumptions behind those spending totals, such as pay levels for the next year. Only the overall totals are binding.

This year's budget resolution differs from those in previous years in that overall spending levels were set last year by the bipartisan deficit summit.

Tattoo ceremony plans underway

Reese's Tattoo of the South Plains ceremony is May 13, at 8:00 p.m. in front of Bldg. 800, wing headquarters.

This year's theme is "Volunteerism in the Military," and focuses on the special people who give freely of their time and effort helping to make the military community a better place.

Everyone is invited to bring their families and participate in this special occasion.

The Tattoo will feature fly-bys of the T-6 and B-25 vintage aircraft flown by the confederate Air Force, and T-37 and T-38 aircraft from Reese.

There will be musical performances by the Air Force Band of the West from Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio. The Band of the West marching unit performs year-round in parades throughout Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Louisiana.

The main gate will close at 7:30 p.m. and will remain closed until the conclusion of the Tattoo. There will be plenty of seating available and everyone should be in place at 7:45 p.m. The golf course gate will be open for anyone wishing to enter or leave the base while the main gate is closed.

According to Lt. Colonel Mike Vizzone, Tattoo Project Officer, "This is an event for all military family and friends young and old. Base dorm residents are encouraged to start their weekend activities with the Tattoo."

Bits & Pieces

I'm proud of you...

This coming Monday, May 2, is designated as a no-flying day and rather than refer to it as a traditional "down day," I have decided to call it a "Proud Day." You, the members of the Reese Team, have worked very hard this quarter and I am extremely PROUD of the way things are going within this wing. We are accomplishing our mission in a safe, efficient manner, and our record can speak for itself. I can think of no better way to reward all of the long days each of you have spent getting the job done than to give back a portion of that time directly to you.

This is an excellent opportunity for us to catch our breath after the long winter and to focus on the upcoming summer months. Safety must be placed at the forefront of our efforts and will remain a top priority in all that we do. I urge each and every one of you to renew your commitment and to continue to think safety. I thank all of you for a job well done and I am looking forward to having more "Proud Days" in the near future.

Will long not be forgotten...

In the last few days, Reese has witnessed the departure from the Air Force, of three of our most loyal, long-time friends and key supervisors. I always feel a small degree of mixed emotions whenever friends depart. I can share in their feelings of happiness and anticipation that comes with a new career, but I cannot help but feel just a little sadness at the loss of a close friend as well.

General Richard E. Hearne, former Wing Commander of the 64th Flying Training Wing, is retiring after a long and distinguished career and will long be remembered here at Reese for his many years of faithful service. His positive, lasting imprint and dynamic personal influence on this community leaves an impressive legacy for those who will follow. Good luck and best wishes!

Colonel Ramon K. Broerman, Deputy Commander for Maintenance, and his wife Peg, are leaving the Air Force after serving 32 dedicated years in the service of their country. The culmination of a long and successful career has to result in bittersweet emotions as you depart on your new civilian career. We want to thank you for your numerous, invaluable contributions to the welfare of Reese and to the Air Force. And I know that you, Peg, have embodied all of the characteristics of the ideal Air Force volunteer. We appreciate your contributions to the mission and to the Air Force family. You will be missed. God Bless and God Speed.

From the heart...

As a result of the efforts and generosity of the folks at Reese, the Air Force Assistance Fund campaign collected 159 percent of the set goal. This resulted in $28,947 being collected! Special thanks to Major Bruce Gamble of the 54th Flying Training Squadron for his valuable expertise and thanks to the people of Reese for their generous giving. Your efforts can and do make a discernible difference.

Janus group...

In a continuing effort to improve relations between Reese and the local community we are beginning an Honorary Squadron Commanders group to be known as the Janus Group. Each Squadron will select a leader from the local area who will volunteer his or her time in not only strengthening the bond between Lubbock and Reese and establish personal and professional relationships that will last for years to come.

As you may or may not know, the Janus Group takes its name from the Roman god of doors, gates, entrances and travel and all beginnings. Janus was most often represented with two faces each looking in opposite directions to provide watch and ward over the entire household. What better emblem to represent the military and civic "faces" in our group. The charter members will be invited to visit Reese on May 11, to be inducted and to become familiar with the wing's mission and their new squadron.

Col. Mark H. Lillard III, Wing Commander

ATC Stan/Eval informal inspection...

We are happy to have Colonel Jim Mitchell and his folks from Air Training Command Standardization/Evaluation here at Reese looking us over. We have a young Instructor Pilot force and any suggestions on how we can do our job better and safer are always welcomed.

If you see an unfamiliar face wearing the distinctive red ATC Stan/Eval patch, don't hesitate to show the Reese Team's tradition of unmatched Pride, Professionalism and Attitude.

Careline

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. Mark H. Lillard, III, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line number is 885-3273.

Too many civilians

I have a concern about the overcrowding of the aerobics classes held at the Mathis Recreation Center during lunch and off-duty hours. Also, it has been brought to my attention that we may have to pay for these classes.

As with all other Physical Fitness Center programs, functions, and activities, active duty military members and their dependents assigned to Reese do have priority over all others for use of our facilities. During the past few months, our attendance for aerobics classes has increased dramatically. Because of this we have added another evening class at 6 p.m. to relieve the attendance pressure on the other classes. Plus, we are considering adding another lunchtime class (possibly at 11 a.m.) to relieve the 12 noon attendance pressure.

There have been a few classes which have had high numbers of participants, but we have never had so many participants that exercise safety was jeopardized, and no one has ever been turned away.

There is a proposal being considered which will establish a fee for attending aerobics classes. The amount of the fee and whom it will affect has not yet been decided. Thank you for your concern.

Can't pay bill

Why isn't someone available in the cashier's cage at the Enlisted Open Mess to receive bill payments during mid-afternoon hours?

At one point in time, there was a changeover of personnel at 3:30 p.m. at the cashier's window who verified all funds before reopening. However, I have been told by the club managers that this process has stopped and to provide better service the window will be open during posted hours.

If you desire to pay your bill when the window is closed, you may drop it into the box located next to the cashier's window. Receipts can be obtained upon your request. Please, however, do not leave cash in the drop box.

Sorry for the inconvenience and thank you for calling.

Fee at base gym

With all the budget cuts affecting Air Force programs, activities, and facilities, I would like to suggest a membership fee be charged for using the base gym. Since we pay fees to belong to the clubs and youth center, why shouldn't people be charged to use the gymnasium?

There have been several proposals suggesting that a fee be charged to use the base gym, however, after a considerable amount of thought, it was decided that a membership fee was not necessary. There are some gym activities which require fees to help offset the budget crunch.

Since the gymnasium is specifically dedicated to the physical well-being and morale of Air Force personnel and has many competitive intramural sporting activities, charging a fee to belong to the gym may diminish the participation in these vital programs. Thank you for your suggestion.

Kudos to Caprock Cafe

I would like to compliment the base dining hall for the excellent service it has provided me and several people I know. I especially would like to recognize Mr. Raul Hernandez who always goes out of his way, even during the busiest hours, to make the patrons of the dining hall feel special. Thank you.

Thank you for taking the time to express your appreciation for this outstanding facility. It is always a pleasure to hear compliments about the "above and beyond" performances of Reese people. Mr. Hernandez and the entire Caprock Cafe staff are truly assets to the Reese Team.

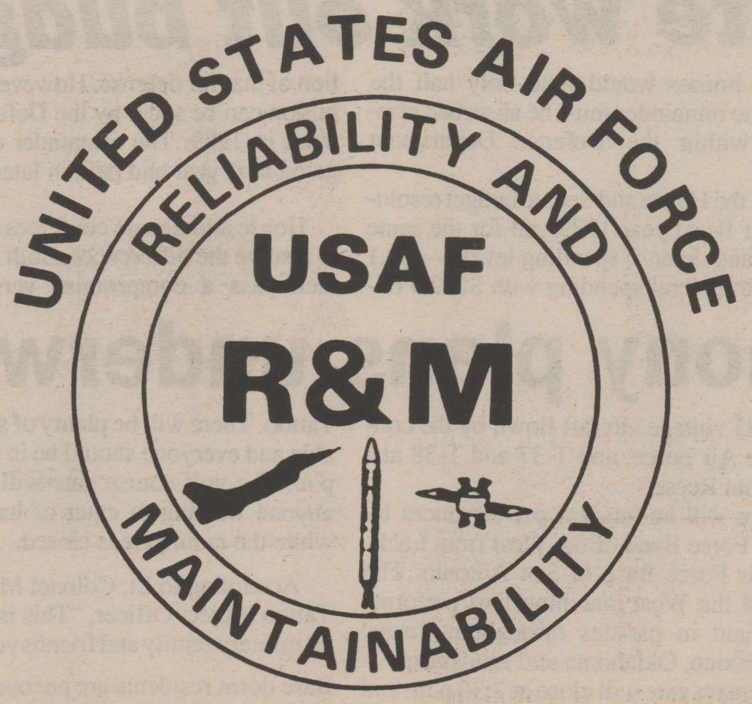

Reliability and Maintainability (R&M) 2000

Reliability

The measure of how long a part lasts before it needs to be repaired or replaced. For example, an aircraft radio may last 300 flying hours before it needs to be repaired or replaced. The common 100 watt light bulb will typically last 5,000 hours before it needs to be replaced.

Maintainability

The measure of how long it takes and how easy it is to restore a broken system or item back into operation. To replace the light bulb in your desk lamp may take only 10 minutes. To remove, test, repair and replace an aircraft radio may take two men, five hours each, or a total of 10 man-hours.

Tower gets $257,000 equipment renovation

Reese's Air Traffic Control tower cab has a new look, thanks to a three-month renovation and equipment update.

The new state of the art computerized electronics equipment replaced the 30-year-old system which had been used in the tower since 1969.

"We took a Model-T and replaced it with a brand new Caddy," said Capt. Gerald Brown, commander, 1958th Communications Squadron, referring to the $257,000 project.

The remodeling and console installation was done mainly by local contractors while the updated electronics equipment was installed by the 1827th Engineering and Installation Group from Kelly AFB, Texas.

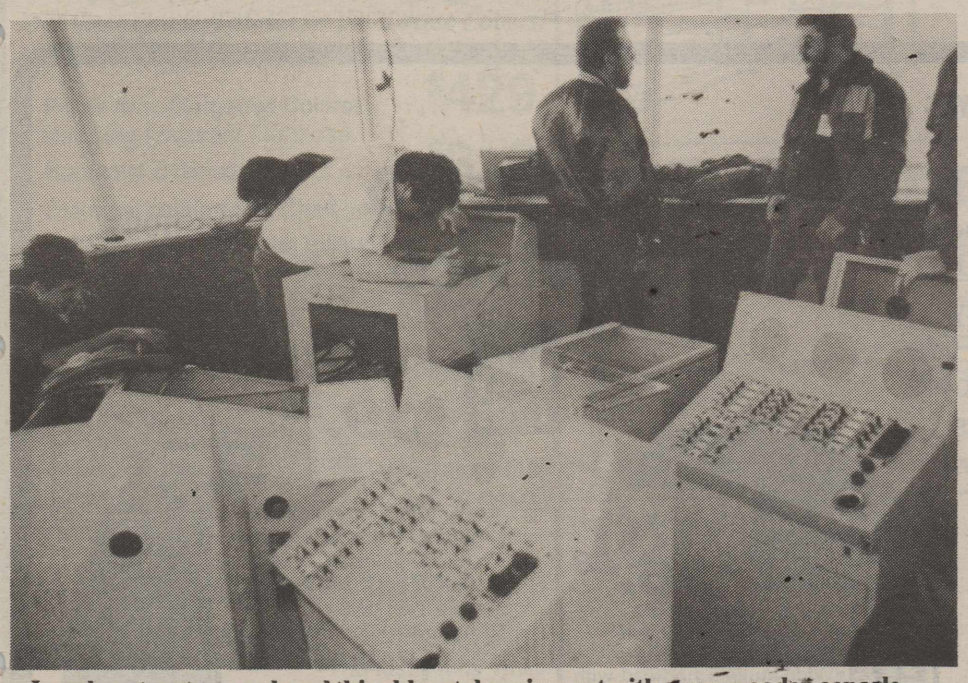

Fortunately, the new equipment did not require Reese's 22 military Air Traffic Controllers to upgrade their training, but just familiarize themselves with the new console. The renovated cab, however, is more comfortable for the crew of three to four controllers who man the tower during airfield operations.

The Reese tower was the fourth in Air Training Command to be renovated. The renovation project is an Air Force wide upgrade of the standard communication consoles in the control towers.

During the three month project, the controllers worked out of a mobile tower, referred to as the TSW-7. The tower was on loan to Reese from the 3rd Combat Communications Group at Tinker AFB, Okla., and operated between the inside and center runways. The controllers worked out of the mobile tower 78 days before moving back to the remodeled tower cab.

How do you rate as a customer?

By Col. Donald McCullough
Deputy Commander for Resources

Customer service continues to receive a lot of attention at Reese and rightly so. You might ask "why," but you should understand that's our job – to provide a service to our customers.

Whether the customer is a student pilot receiving training, a maintenance crew chief who needs a part to fix an airplane, or a dependent wife taking her child to the nursery, all are customers.

As we pursue our goal of excellence in all functional areas, we should be constantly striving to improve customer service because it directly impacts on mission accomplishment. But there's another side of this coin as well. We also need to focus on being better customers too! Here's a couple of examples to illustrate what I mean by being a better customer.

Incomplete descriptions on items to be purchased with purchase requests, or even being ordered from supply causes needless delays, wastes time, and generally increases the frustration level for all the people in the chain. For example, when buyers in the Contracts Division get an incomplete item description, they must stop their requisition process and call the customer for more details to ensure that the proper item is bought. This causes delays and uses more time for both individuals.

A customer who comes to supply with a request which should ordinarily be routine, but has to have it in 24 hours, has probably not planned his work very effectively—particularly if the project has been planned for many days or several weeks. Usually, to get the mission done, items should be ordered and generally obtained. The problem comes from the increased costs to get it faster than normal, reduced support to customers who did plan ahead, and the increased probability of errors when things are "rushed."

Sometimes, these situations are unavoidable and the system will make compensations to get the job done. But if we, as customers, do our jobs correctly, do the proper planning necessary, and ensure that our requests are clearly understandable, everyone benefits.

Customer service remains our top priority. What we would also like to do is have the smartest and most efficient customers in the world! As a recent TIG Brief article discussed, you should consider periodically how you would be rated as a customer from the person behind the counter. If you have never thought about it, and never asked, try it. I'll bet they'll tell you how you rate as a customer.

Save your life–buckle your seatbelt

By Lt. Col. Phillip S. Marzolino
Chief, Safety Division

Last weekend there was some spectacular footage on the news of an F-18 hitting the ground on the backside of a loop during an air show. Recently, another member of Air Training Command and his family were traveling on leave when they were in an accident that completely destroyed their van. Closer to home, three members of the Reese family have been in very serious accidents recently where their cars were destroyed.

What do all these seemingly unrelated accidents have in common? First, every individual involved lived through the accident. Second, they were all wearing seatbelts, and finally, without the seat belts they would all probably be dead, or injured much more seriously than they were.

We've all heard, and perhaps used, the somewhat tired cliches as to why we fail to buckle up. Additionally, I'm sure virtually all of you have read numerous articles where these reasons have been shown to be completely erroneous. The fact is, however, that we still have far too many of our people who fail to use this life-saving device all the time (personally, I think one person forgetting is one too many times).

I would like for you to consider something with me for just a moment. In all the cases I listed in the first paragraph, with the exception of the aircraft crash, for which an accident investigation board will determine the cause, the accident was the fault of someone else. The military member was driving along legally and properly when someone else forced an accident upon them. In every case, the time to react was very limited, and in three of the four cases the accident occurred within five miles of the base. The point here is that every time you get into your car and fail to buckle up, you're playing Russian roulette that someone else will not do something unforeseen, causing you to have an accident. I don't know about you, but I'm not really prepared to bet my life on someone else not making a mistake.

One of the reasons I mentioned the aircraft accident at first was to make a point: if seatbelts holding you in place hitting the ground at over 300 mph can protect the pilot, isn't it obvious that these same restraint systems can protect a driver at 55 mph?

Lubbock continues to be a high-threat area for motorists. Please, save your life. BUCKLE UP!

Get rid of your boxes

The Packing and Crating section of the Transportation Division provides a much-needed service for those who have just arrived to base housing or those people interested in the do-it-yourself move (DITY).

Relief from the boxes stacked around your house is available. Call 3632 or 3275 and the boxes from your recent move will be picked up. However, there are a few requirements before this can be done. The boxes must be in good condition, clean and dry. Boxes full of trash or discarded items will not be picked up. If packing material is left in the boxes they can still be picked up.

If you are planning a DITY move, you are eligible to use the boxes collected by the Transportation Division. Stop by Building 541 (across from the bank) to get the boxes you need. You may want to call first (3632 or 3275) to be sure boxes are available.

Honor Guard member recognized

The Honor Guard member of the month for March is SrA. Jeffrey Fagnant of the 1958th Communications Squadron. He has been a member of the Honor Guard since May, 1986. He has scored an outstanding on all inspections and has participated in several details. He is also a member of the Drill Team.

The Honor Guard member of the quarter, January through March, is Sgt. Douglas Thomas. Sergeant Thomas is assigned to the 64th Supply Squadron. He has been a member of the Honor Guard since May, 1986.

In the past month the Honor Guard has participated in numerous functions including presentations in retreats, NCO status ceremonies, Undergraduate Pilot Training graduations and funeral services for eight fellow servicemen.

If you are interested in becoming a member of the Reese Honor Guard, call 3783.

Scholarships now available

Park College is accepting applications for the annual Military Family Scholarship for the 1988-89 school year.

The scholarship is a full one year, 30 semester hour tuition scholarship and may be used at either the resident center at Reese Air Force Base or the home campus in Parkville, Missouri.

Those eligible are dependents of active duty military assigned to Reese AFB.

Selection criteria include the following:

- Demonstrated leadership or active involvement in school, community, church, athletic, recreational, volunteer service and charitable activities or demonstarated responsibility in part-time and summer jobs or work in support of the family unit.
- Proven scholarship in high school or in previous college work — a 3.0 average or better on a 4.0 system.

National Defense

U.S. Southern policy outlined

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Communist presence in Latin America is just as threatening to U.S. interests as the threat posed by the Warsaw Pact in Europe.

Gen. Fred F. Woerner, commander in chief of the U.S. Southern Command, told the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Defense that "bottom line threats to our national security interest in Latin America are every bit as real and more subtle than those of the Warsaw Pact."

The Army general pointed out that despite a transition to democratic governments from authoritarian military dictatorships in Latin America since 1976, six of the regional democracies are being challenged by active Soviet and Cuban-sponsored insurgencies.

General Woerner said Soviet aid to Cuba exceeds that given to the rest of the world combined — $16.2 million in economic assistance and $1.7 million in military assistance daily. He told the subcommittee that there are 2,800 Soviet advisers in Cuba, 100 in Nicaraguq and 500 in Peru, compared to a total of 147 U.S. advisers in 16 Latin American countries.

Part of the $6.3 billion the Soviets spent last year assisting Cuba was exported to support 25 Marxist insurgent groups in Latin America. The general also noted that forward depoloyed Soviet forces south of the U.S. border include a brigade and a 2,100-man intelligence center in Cuba.

General Woerner said there are no technological "quick fixes" for the region, and that progress will be measured in small increments rather than quick successes. He said strategic planning for Latin America should examine the development of deterrent activities to counter threats to U.S. national interests.

Deterrent activities should achieve support for the democratic process, General Woerner said. He added that Latin American military forces must become more professional and need to legitimize their role in democratic processes.

"The mission of the U.S. Southern Command is to defend the southern flank of the United States and advance U.S. national interests in Latin America," Gen. Woerner told the lawmakers.

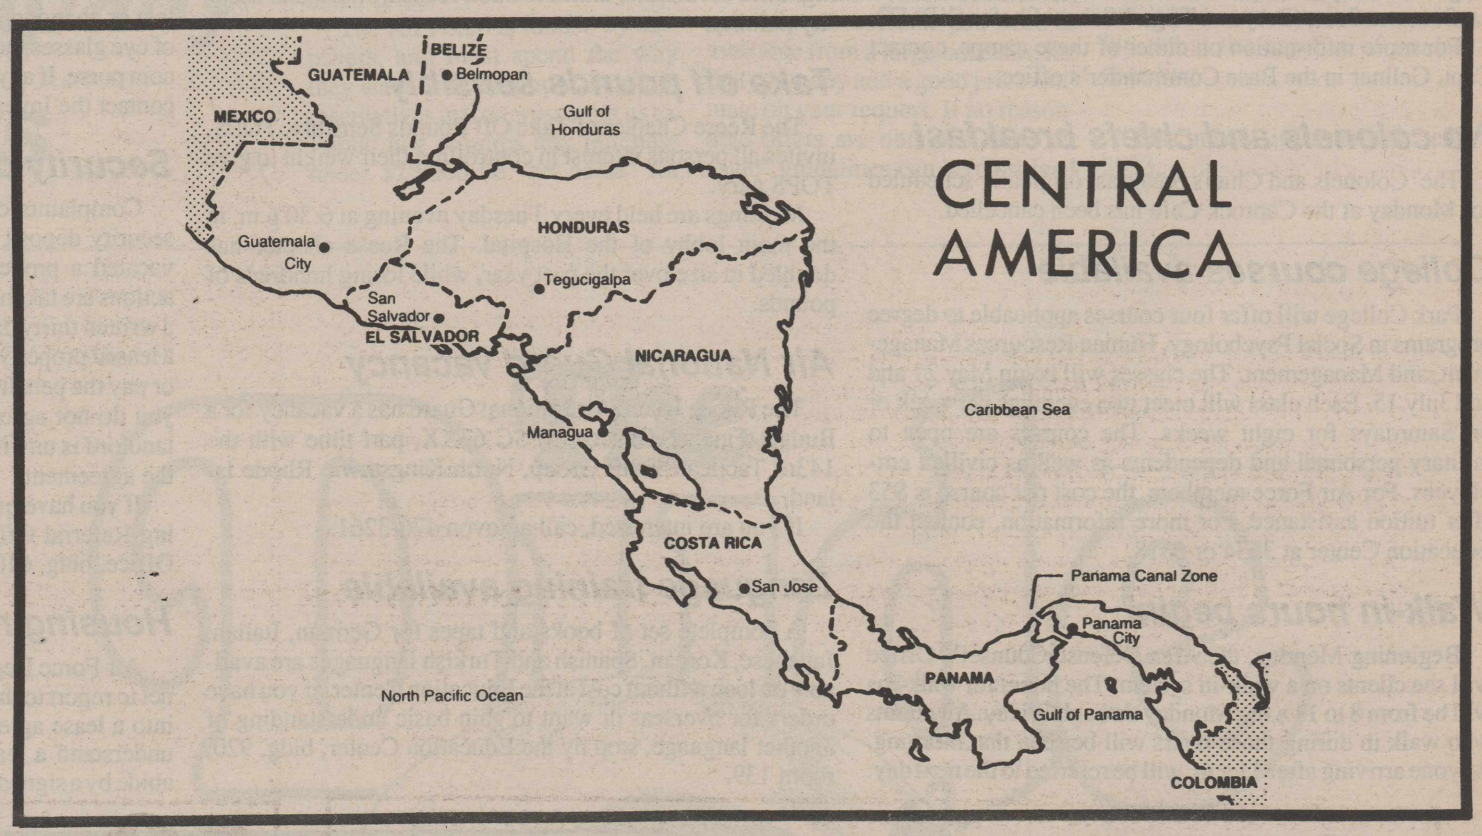

He noted that his force capability requirements are uniquely different from every other unified commander. "My most effective force capabilities are not related to the direct application of military power, but rather more subtle politico-military methods that demonstrate and reinforce the armed forces' legitimate role in democracy," he said.

General Woerner said his balanced theater strategy is one of an economy of force. Failure to fund force options at least at 1987 levels, which were less than 1 percent of the DOD budget, could bankrupt the strategy, he warned.

The general stressed that the effectiveness of Latin American strategy "hinges on long-term and consistent U.S. commitment."

General Woerner said it is time the United States took full measure of its national interests in Latin America. He told the lawmakers, "A strategy without resources is empty rhetoric which leads to failure and frustration.

"The fundamental question," he said, "is that of our willingness to step in with an enduring commitment to democracy and economic development in this hemisphere and the willingness to underwrite the relatively low costs of providing the security shield behind which they can be achieved."

Giant garage sale

The Mexican-American Club will sponsor a giant garage sale this Saturday and Sunday from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. each day. The garage sale, featuring furniture, clothing, appliances, tools, toys—all at tremendous savings—will be held at 407 Ironton in Lubbock. Everyone is invited.

NCO status ceremony

The NCO Status Ceremony is today at 3:00 p.m. at the Enlisted Open Mess. All base personnel are invited to attend.

Camp project officers assigned

The Easter Seals Day Camp is scheduled for June 13-17. 2nd Lt. Jeff Moore, DPMQ, is the project officer for the camp.

Camp Blue Yonder is scheduled for Aug. 1-5 (Girls) and Aug. 8-12 (Boys). Project Officers for these camps are 2nd Lt. Summer Scott (DA) and TSgt. Michael Shafer (XPMT).

For more information on either of these camps, contact Capt. Gellner in the Base Commander's office.

No colonels and chiefs breakfast

The Colonels and Chiefs breakfast originally scheduled for Monday at the Caprock Cafe has been cancelled.

College courses available

Park College will offer four courses applicable to degree programs in Social Psychology, Human Resources Management, and Management. The classes will begin May 21 and end July 15. Each class will meet two evenings per week or on Saturdays for eight weeks. The courses are open to military personnel and dependents as well as civilian employees. For Air Force members, the cost per course is $53 after tuition assistance. For more information, contact the Education Center at 3634 or 6318.

Walk-in hours begin

Beginning Monday, the Area Defense Counsel's Office will see clients on a walk-in system. The hours for walk-ins will be from 8 to 11 a.m., Monday through Friday. All clients who walk in during those hours will be seen that morning. Anyone arriving after 11 a.m. will be referred to the next day. If you have any questions, contact Capt. Robert Bartlemay, 3645.

Recreational aides needed

The Nonappropriated Fund Personnel Office is accepting applications for Temporary Part-time Recreational Aides, grade PS-3 at the Youth Center. Recreation aides will work with the Youth Center's Summer Day Camp program.

For more information, contact the Civilian Personnel Office at 885-2978.

Kindergarten registration set

Registration for Kindergarten classes for the 1988-89 school year at Reese Elementary will be held from 3 to 5 p.m. Thursday, May 5. Eligible students must be 5 years old on or before Sept. 1, 1988.

The following records must be furnished when registering: birth certificate, immunization record, and social security number.

Take off pounds sensibly

The Reese Chapter of Take Off Pounds Sensibly, TOPS, invites all persons interest in controlling their weight to give TOPS a try.

Meetings are held every Tuesday evening at 6:30 p.m. in the main lobby of the Hospital. The Reese chapter has doubled in size over the past year, while losing hundreds of pounds.

Air National Guard vacancy

The Rhode Island Air National Guard has a vacancy for a Budget Finance Officer, AFSC 67XX, part time with the 143rd Tactical Airlift Group, North Kingstown, Rhode Island.

If you are interested, call autovon 476-3261.

Language training available

A complete set of books and tapes for German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Spanish and Turkish languages are available on loan without cost at the Education Center. If you have orders for overseas or want to gain basic understanding of another language, stop by the Education Center, bldg. 920, room 139.

Instructor needed

The Reese Professional Military Education Center is looking for a professional, highly motivated staff sergeant for instructor duty. If you are interested, contact SMSgt. J. T. Washington, 3634 or 3147.

Former smokers needed

If you've kicked the habit, you can help others do the same. Ex-smokers are needed to help teach the Fresh Start stop-smoking classes. If you would like to help, call 3536. Training through the American Cancer Society will be arranged.

Lost and found

The Security Police Section has the following lost or abandoned property: one boy's jacket, one pair of eye glasses, and a motorcycle cover. The following property was lost or abandoned at the USAF Hospital, Reese: three pairs of eye glasses, one officer's flight cap, one Air Force tie, one coin purse. If any of the property listed above belongs to you, contact the Investigations Section at 3999.

Security deposit reminder

Complaints concerning landlords who fail to return a security deposit or who charge for rent after a tenant has vacated a property are not uncommon. Most often these actions are taken when a lease is not fulfilled in its entirety or a written thirty day notice was not delivered prior to vacating a leased property. You must fulfill your part of a signed lease or pay the penalty. To avoid any problem, read your lease. If you do not agree with the conditions of the lease and the landlord is unwilling to change them in writing, do not sign the agreement.

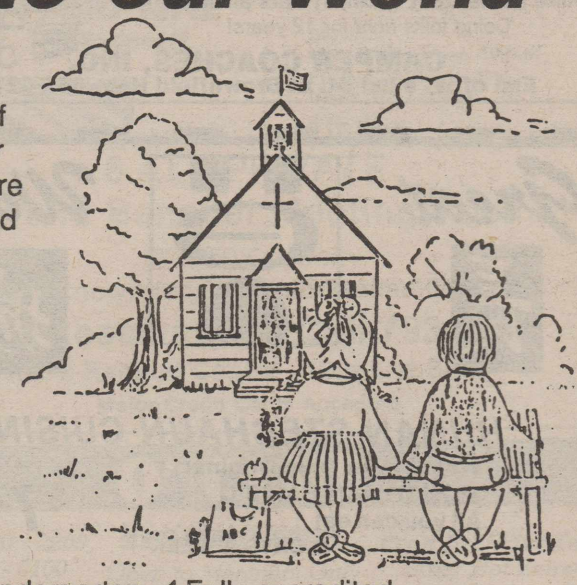

If you have questions about your lease, contact the Housing Referral Office at 3601, or stop by the Base Housing Office, bldg. 6100.

Housing reminder

Air Force Regulation 30-15 requires all military personnel to report to the Housing Referral Service prior to entering into a lease agreement or salec contract. Make certain you understand a lease contract before you sign it. You must abide by a signed contract or face possible Civil Court action.

Blood drive to be held Thursday

What will you be doing to kick off your summer? Camping? Fishing? Skiing? Giving blood?

If this summer follows recent patterns, hospitals in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico will face another critical shortage of blood. As the weather gets warmer and we get busy with outdoor activities and vacation plans, we tend to forget those who so desperately need our blood.

It is a sad fact that in the summer months, when regular donations of blood fall off, the need for blood actually goes up.

To forestall another summer shortage, Reese AFB is conducting a blood drive on Thursday, May 5, at the Mathis Recreation Center from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. This is Reese's opportunity to help more than 500,000 people in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico who must depend on voluntary blood donors for life-sustaining blood and blood components.

To ensure absolute safety, all donated blood is tested by United Blood Services for HTLV III antibodies, syphilis, and hepatitis, and is typed in ABO groups and given an Rh factor, either positive or negative, for use in 30 area hospitals, including USAF Hospital, Reese.

It only takes 30 minutes of your time to give blood and get the terrific feeling that comes with knowing you have helped someone get back on the road to recovery. Come on out next Thursday and help make the Reese Blood Drive a success.

Large company vs. small company prices

By Capt. Robert Verica
Chief, Contracts Division

Why do we buy from small businesses when the same item is available from a large company at a better price?

The Air Force is funded by taxpayers, and must spend the way they want or at least how their representatives in Congress want us to. Public law requires any purchase under $25,000 be "set aside" for small business if competition exists and the prices are reasonable.

This means we are prohibited from even calling a large business for a price quote unless unreasonable price quotations are given from small businesses.

This is where you, the customer, can help. If the item you need is available from a large business, list that company and a good price estimate on your request. If no reasonable offers are obtained, the "set aside" guidelines can be dissolved and a purchase made from the large business.

The Air Force is committed to complying with public law and will use the "set-aside" for most purchases. Small businesses are the backbone of our economy and needs business in order to survive, but not at the expense of prudent spending.

For more information, call 3993.

"Monetary incentives, like Aviation Career Incentive Pay and the Aviation Officer Continuation Pay (AOCP) are critical to the Services' efforts to stem the exodus of these experienced pilots. Additionally, the Services are exploring non-monetary incentives that may be useful in retaining pilots; incentives that involve quality of life and family stability."

Spouse preference working well

By Sgt. Maj. Rudi Williams, USA
American Forces Information Service

Hundreds of military spouses are writing to the DoD Family Policy Office asking about their job preference rights with civil service. Many are requesting copies of the Military Spouse Employment Preference pamphlet, which answers many of their questions.

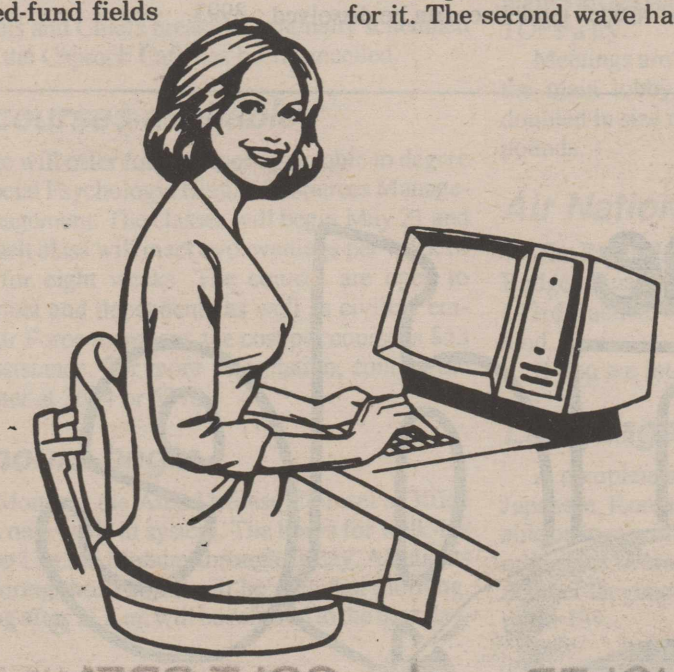

The brochure covers the types of job preferences for spouses in both appropriated- and non-appropriated-fund positions, stateside and overseas. Military spouses have been given job preference overseas for many years. They now have preference for positions in the competitive civil service and non-appropriated-fund fields throughout the United States, its territories and possessions.

Some letters include copies of the writer's Standard Form 171, Application for Federal Employment, but Kathleen O'Beirne, family programs information coordinator, advises against including 171s.

"Don't send them (171s) to Mrs. O'Beirne," she said. "I don't have a thing to do with hiring. Use them at your local installation. And never send anyone the original copy of your 171 — send copies of it."

Interest in the pamphlet has been incredible, O'Beirne said.

"Family service centers and civilian personnel offices are asking for it. The second wave has been spouses writing for it. We've gone through more than 240,000 of them. We're finding that a number of commands are getting savvy about it and are asking for enough to put into their welcome packages."

Spouses should be able to get the pamphlet at their local family and community service centers or at civilian personnel offices. Or they can write to: DoD Family Policy Office, OASD (FM&P) (FSE&S), Room 3A272, The Pentagon, Washington, D.C. 20301-4000.

A revision of the pamphlet is under way that includes spouse preference guidelines for grades GS-2 through GS/GM-15. Under the old regulation, the preference was given only to GS-5s through GS/GM-15s.

"Another real breakthrough is that one no longer has the six-month cutoff time in which to use spouse preference," said O'Beirne. "The new DoD policy is that a spouse may use preference one month before leaving the old duty station and for almost the entire tour at the new duty station, up to six months before that tour is over. Under the old version, spouses had a month before a permanent change of station to six months after they move.

"You can use spouse preference only once at a given location," O'Beirne pointed out. "You may make a number of job applications using your spouse preference, but once you accept or decline a position, you may not use it again at that location."

But O'Beirne said that unless spouses have personal civil service status, chances for employment are more limited for vacancies stateside than in foreign countries or for non-appropriated fund positions.

Under the Military Spouse Preference Act, spouses on the list of best-qualified applicants must be hired. If there is more than one spouse on the list, the employer must decide which one to hire. This includes those on the best-qualified at grade levels GS-2 through GS/GM-15 (or equivalent wage-grade system positions). Preference for non-appropriated-fund positions is at grades UA-8 and below and equivalent positions and for those jobs paid at an hourly rate.

Spouses without civil service status can find out how to go about applying for these jobs from their local civilian personnel offices.

Applicants with higher preferences than spouses are veterans, career employees displaced from their jobs through no personal cause, selected employees placed under the DoD equal opportunity program and selected planned career progressions of employees in developmental positions.

The preference doesn't apply to positions in the National Security Agency or the Defense Intelligence Agency or to positions primarily charged with intelligence, counter-intelligence, investigative or national-security responsibilities.

Finding the right place for your child

American Forces Information Service

"Child Find" is the name for the Department of Defense Dependents Schools effort to identify children who have conditions requiring special education.

If you're a parent of a child in the DoDDS system and suspect that your child needs special attention, contact your local school. You'll be called by a person from the school who can help you.

With parental approval, qualified teachers, consultants or other specialists will give your child special tests when he or she is referred for evaluation. DoDDS provides special education for children in the following categories:

- mentally retarded
- hard of hearing
- deaf
- speech impaired
- visually handicapped
- seriously emotionally disturbed
- orthopedically impaired
- other health impaired
- deaf-blind
- multihandicapped or
- specific learning disabled

Learning disabilities account for almost 75 percent of DoDDS special education students.

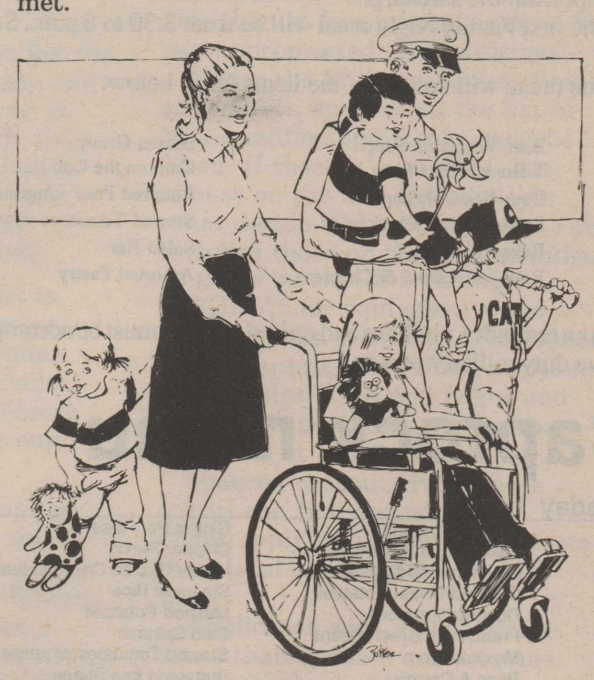

"Special education" means an instructional program designed to meet the child's special needs. Some children may require special equipment, others may simply need tutoring. An individual education program is prepared for each child. When the child's program requires it, DoDDS provides services such as transportation, help with speech and hearing problems and psychological and occupational services.

DoD Instruction 1342.12 requires DoDDS to provide a free, appropriate education for all handicapped children eligible to use the system. This includes civilians who, incidentally, cannot be denied an overseas assignment simply because an area does not have necessary services available — arrangements will be made to provide these services.

This education must be in the least restrictive (closest to non-handicapped peers) environment suitable to the child's needs. DoDDS serves handicapped children aged 5 through high school graduation. Some areas have special preschool programs for handicapped children 3 through 5.

Parents and guardians should participate in preparing the child's individual educational program. In fact, DoD requires that parents be fully informed about, and give written consent to, every decision regarding their child's education. Typically, the program is prepared by the child's parents, teachers, selected specialists and administrators' consultants, along with a psychologist or doctor. Sometimes, the child may help.

If you have a child you believe needs special education, military assignment personnel will work with DoDDS educational specialists to send you to a place where these needs can be met.

Tips to conserve energy while you sleep

By Chris Davis
Wing Energy Manager

Has anyone in your workplace ever conducted an after-hours energy check? The purpose of such a check is to discover energy-waster that might not be detected during the workday.

When conducting an after-hours walk-through:

Notice the Lighting. How many lights are left on? Are they necessary for security or custodial reasons, or can they be reduced or eliminated?

Listen for unusual noises. Do you hear hums, hisses, drips, clanks, and other like noises? Is the humming coming from a piece of equipment left running? Could the hiss signal an air leak? Can drips be traced to leaks in faucets, pipes or equipment? Is the clanking coming from pipes or mahcinery that may need maintenance?

Check the thermostats. Are they set for nonworking hours? If they are on timers, have the timers been seasonally adjusted? Are the timers working?

Check doors and windows. Are unused rooms closed off and thermostats set at appropriate temperatures for those spaces? Are open windows causing the heating/cooling system to operate unnecessarily?

Make notes about your energy-check findings and see that your building custodian gets a copy. Then follow up and make sure the problem areas are corrected.

Physical Fitness and your health

By SSgt. Randy Pratt
Physical Fitness Instructor

A number of people have commented to me lately that they have begun an exercise program to lose weight either voluntarily or were forced to be on the Weight Management Program (WMP) and have gained weight instead of losing it.

Whenever a previously inactive and overweight person suddenly begins an exercise program several changes start to occur in the body composition. One change is the body starts drawing the extra fuel needs from its excess accumulation of fat. Another thing is that the body's musculature must change to adapt to the increased physical demand placed on it. This means the muscles grow and become denser.

Muscle weighs more than an equal volume of fat. Sometimes a person's weight actually increases during the first one to three weeks of the program. If that person sticks with the program, the muscles will adapt to the demands and stabilize, and then the fat levels which have been decreasing all along will begin to be noticed at the weight scales.

I must stress, however, that this occurrence does not happen universally, and must not be used as an excuse for being overweight during official weigh-in.

Secondly, our jobs, our duties, and responsibilities in the USAF are to maintain peace, and if necessary, to respond instantly to a hostile situation anywhere in the world. Those who are out of shape are a detriment and liability to our country's responsiveness to these adverse conditions.

There is no excuse for people in the military to be out of shape and overweight!

Programs to focus on emotional child abuse

The South Plains Committee for the Prevention of Child Abuse announces that the month of April has been designated as National Child Abuse Prevention Month

In recognition of this, the South Plains Committee and Chater Plains Hospital, Lubbock are sponsoring two educational programs focusing on emotional child abuse.

The public forum, entitled "Positive Parenting" will be held on Thursday, April 28, 6:30-8:30 p.m. at First United Methodist Church located at 1411 Broadway in Lubbock.

Soft drinks and hot dogs will be served and a nursery will be provided for children between the ages of two years and ten years old.

Attendees will also be eligible for several door prizes which will be given away during the evening.

The program and the nursery are free of charge.

Reservations are requested as seating will be limited.

For more information or to make reservations contact Children's Protective Services at 747-4936.

Program presenters for the public forum are Elaine Eassa, Ph.D., Program Director for Charter Plains Child and Adolescent Units; Nancy Benz, South Plains College, Child Development Center; and Nancy Hoke, child counselor in Lubbock.

Topics to be covered are positive parenting skills, building self-esteem in children and positive discipline techniques.

A short film,"Words Can Hurt Forever," will be shown.

In addition, Rafael Garcia, M.D. will moderate a question and answer session which will allow participants to ask specific questions or voice concerns about parenting and receive tips from the presenters.

The professional seminar, entitled, "The Psychologically Battered Child" will be held on Friday, April 29, 9 a.m. - 3 p.m. at Charter Plains Hospital located at 801 N. Quaker Ave., Lubbock.

All professionals working with emotionally or physically abused children are encouraged to attend. Lunch will be provided.

Registration will begin at 8:15 a.m. The program and lunch are free of charge.

The program has been approved for continuing education credit through the Department of Continuing Education at Texas Tech University.

Individuals requesting credit will be assessed a $10 filing fee from Texas Tech.

Program presenters are Fernando Garcia, M.D., Director of the San Antonio Metropolitan Health District, San Antonio, Texas; Elaine Eassa, Ph.D., Program Director of the Child and Adolescent Mental Health private practice and consultant to Child Protective Services;

Ray Brown, Ph.D., Director of Psychological Services, Canyon Lakes Residential Treatment Center; William Hoke, Ph.D., Jenkins and Brown, Pshchologists; and Ruth Cantrell, Civil Chief and Assistant District Attorney for Lubbock County.

There will also be a legislative update by Betty Anderson, a child welfare advocate and lobbyist in Austin.

Rattlesnake Rodeo set for May 12

On Thursday, May 12, the sound of gunfire will echo throughout the rolling hills of West Texas. The originating site will be at old Clairemont, the home of the Caprock Peace Officers Association. Clairemont is located 40 miles east of Post.

The occasion will be the 40th annual Peace Officers Meeting and Rattlesnake Rodeo.

This year's event is to be dedicated to the memory of Purvis SoRelle, the late Kent County Sheriff who died while in office.

He had served the people of his community for more than 15 years, as well as serving as an officer and director for the Association.

Gaining in popularity each year, the Directors are expecting a record-sized crowd this year. As in the past, the highlight of the rodeo will be the Rattlesnake Rodeo and the Rattlesnake Shoot, for trophies and prizes.

Top prize this year will be another $150 pair of boots.

Another event which draws attention each year, is the riot gun trap shoot, in which riot guns are used. The guns are furnished by and through the Association. Valuable trophies and awards await the winners of the various groups.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. The registration includes a membership card, a decal, and a delicious barbecue dinner.

A drawing will be held after lunch for valuable door prizes, which are donated by merchants of the towns and cities in the area.

Guests and visitors are welcome, and are eligible to compete in the Rattlesnake Shoot, in a special group reserved for visitors and guests only.

The Association Directors extend a sincere welcome to come and to observe and participate in the activities of the day.

Special Olympics competition begins today

More than 400 mentally retarded athletes will participate in the Area 17 Special Olympic Track & Field/Gymnastic events on April 29 and 30.

Today, gymnastic competitions begin at 1 p.m. in the Lubbock High School gymnasium and field event competitions begin at 4 p.m. at the Estacado High School track.

Tomorrow, opening ceremonies will be performed at Estacado High School track by Reese Air Force Base and the Estacado High jazz band at 10 a.m.

Track event competitions begin at 10:30 a.m.

Students visit Air Force Base

Lt. Adrian Belinne of the 54th FTS conducted a tour of Reese Air Force Base for the third graders of Christ the King Elementary School on Friday, March 11.

"Lt. Belinne was wonderful as he showed us how things worked at Reese.

"Along with another tour guide and class, we toured the flight line, fire station and a static display," said Laura Graulty, third grade teacher at Christ the King Elementary.

Lt. Roger Graulty, 54th FTS also conducted a tour for third graders of Christ the King school on March 11.

"Graulty was the guide for the students. He explained how the simulators work, showed the students training offices, parachutes, and the fire station," said Debbie Jackson, third grade teacher.

Rattlers lose another

By Woody Wuttke
Sports Reporter

The Reese Rattlers played to a 5-2 loss last Sunday against the Generie team at the South Plains Fair Grounds Coliseum.

In the first half, the Generie team caught the Rattlers off guard and scored two quick goals.

In the second quarter, Mike Roberto scored from a ball that went out to nearly mid-field to bring the team back to 2-1. About 10 minutes later Steve Cook scored on an off the wall deflection from Chuck Kunde which brought the game to a 2-2 tie.

Soon after evening up the game, the Rattlers were shut down by the Generie team. "The experience of the other team gave us a lot of problems," said Chuck Kunde, "but we'll be playing strong as a team soon."

"We're doing better thanks to our new players," said Kunde. The new players for the Rattlers are Ed "Train" Miller, Mike "Slaprock" Ferdinand and Curtis Rhodes.

If you are interested in playing soccer, call Bob Montgomery, 885-3191, or Chuck Kunde, 791-2420 or 885-6298, or show up for practice at the football field next to base housing at 2 p.m. May 1.

Reese Rattlers meet Goodfellow Skyhawks

The Reese Rattlers—men's varsity softball team—traveled to Goodfellow AFB, San Angelo, Texas, to meet the Skyhawks for a two-game weekend set.

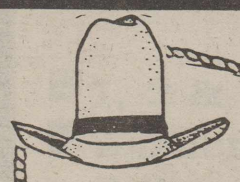

According to Coach Gary Grant of the 3500th Mission Support Squadron, the Rattlers made a valiant attempt to catch up in Saturday's game, but the 14 runs scored by the Skyhawks in the first two innings were too much to overcome. In spite of some hard hitting by the Rattlers, the Skyhawks won by a score of 21 to 17.

Sunday's game was a complete turnaround. The Rattlers' hot bats left the Skyhawks in the dust by a final score of Rattlers 18, Skyhawks 10.
