School Board Sets New Tax Ratio

The School Board of the Aransas County Independent School District Monday night set a new tax ratio for the 1973-74 school year, increasing it from 35 to 45 per cent, to produce the necessary revenue to meet the school system budget.

With this step taken, it is estimated that a tax rate will be established in August, 1973 that will result in a tax increase of approximately 20 per cent for each taxpayer.

An example of what this will mean follows:

The tax now on a house with full market value of $20,000 is $112.70.

The estimated tax after the tax increase will be about $135.24, or an increase of $22.54.

A complete analysis of the need for additional revenue appears on Page 16 of this issue of the Pilot.

Additional actions at the School Board meeting included: Canvassed the election returns of the April 7th Trustee Election.

Elected the following officers for the ensuing year: president, Thomas M. Rogers; vice-president, Otis Munn; secretary, Francis M. Rouquette.

Approved the minutes of the regular meeting on March 12th and the special meeting on March 14th.

Approved the monthly bills for payment.

Appointed E. J. Randow to serve as the school representative on the Joint Committee for the Region II, Education Service Center.

Authorized the purchase of additional windstorm insurance so that all school buildings will have windstorm coverage.

Changed the meeting time from 7:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. effective with the May meeting due to Daylight Savings Time.

Employed Erwin W. Janszen, Jr. and S. R. Wynn.

Rotary Club Elects Officers

A color motion picture telling the story of American railroading from its inception to the present was shown by Russell Mozeney, retired meteorologist who is a railroad hobbyist, at a luncheon meeting of Rotary Club April 4 at Corky's Restaurant.

The film traced development of railroading from its beginning in the United States to the present, stressing the vital role it has played in the settlement and development of the country from an economic and social standpoint.

It emphasized that transportation was of vital importance to the development and progress of the country and that railroads provided and continue to provide this essential service without cost to taxpayers as compared with the public support enjoyed by trucking which uses public highways, flying which depends on tax-supported airports and water transportation for which the government provides waterway maintenance and harbor facilities.

The film spelled out railroading's importance to manufacturing, agriculture, mining and lumbering, as well as transportation of people. It stressed the importance of railroads as customers for raw and manufactured products which are used in the industry, concluding with the statement that without railroads this country would be unable to maintain its position as the world's leading industrial nation.

Rotary officers and directors were nominated for the 1973-74 year as follows: president, Roy Hicks; vice president, Bob McBride, secretary-treasurer, Roy Rogers, Jr.; sergeant-at-arms, Raulie Irwin; directors, Bill Bloch, Bill Janecak and Dave Crooks.

Recently inducted as new Rotary members were Joe Hugenberg, insurance agent, and Ed Harper, real estate operator.

More than 930 business students at The University of Texas have been named to the fall semester honor roll.

To qualify for the College of Business Administration honor roll, a student must have earned at least three hours of A above a B average, while enrolled in 12 or more hours of graded work and passing all courses.

The list included Mark King Johnson, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Johnson and Richard Gary Neville.

Correction

In THE PILOT last week it was stated that the United Fund collections totaled $12,588.50 and the goal was $14,442. Then the statement was made that less than $200 was needed to reach the goal.

The editor wishes he could blame the mistake on a printer or some machine but, being honest, he said, "It was just a stupid mistake."

High School Actors Honored

Rockport - Fulton High School's one-act play "Korczak and the Children" was presented to the public with productions by four other north zone schools in Sinton April 3.

Although Rockport - Fulton was not one of the two plays chosen to compete at district level, it did receive acclaim for its actors. Out of thirty actors and actresses that were on stage that night seven were chosen for the "All-Star Cast".

Two of these seven were from Rockport - Jim McBride and Jay Deitrich. And from the seven Jim McBride was awarded "Best Over-All Actor" for his portrayal of Janus Korczak, a Polish Jew.

Miss Maria Villarreal from Sinton was awarded "Best Over - All Actress". Jay Deitrich was cited to the all-star cast for his role of a Nazi Einsatz Commander in the play. Also cast in the play were Chris Hunter, Katherine Theodore, and John Ledbetter.

Assisting with lighting and properties was Ralph Weekley. Assisting director and time coordinator was Florencio Lara. Barbara Marshall directed make-up and Florencio Lara was assisting director and time coordinator. Directing the play was Mr. Fred W. Jackson.

"Korczak and the Children" a play in one act by Erwin Sylvanus tells the story of a real situation that took place in Poland during World War II. It is a story of a Jewish doctor who ran an orphanage with sixty-six children. When given the opportunity to escape when his children were ordered to the gas chambers, he chose to stay with them to the end.

The play will be presented in the Rockport-Fulton auditorium at a date yet to be announced.

The play was produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, Inc.

C of C Promotion Programs Successful

Chamber of Commerce officials, in reviewing the results of last winter's promotion programs to attract more tourists to the Rockport area, are pleased with the results.

As has been the case for several years, the Chamber concentrated its efforts on three main approaches:

1. Advertising in a northern metropolitan newspaper (In 1972 it was the Des Moines Sunday Register which has a circulation of over half a million) to picture and describe the attractions of our area for prospective winter vacationers.

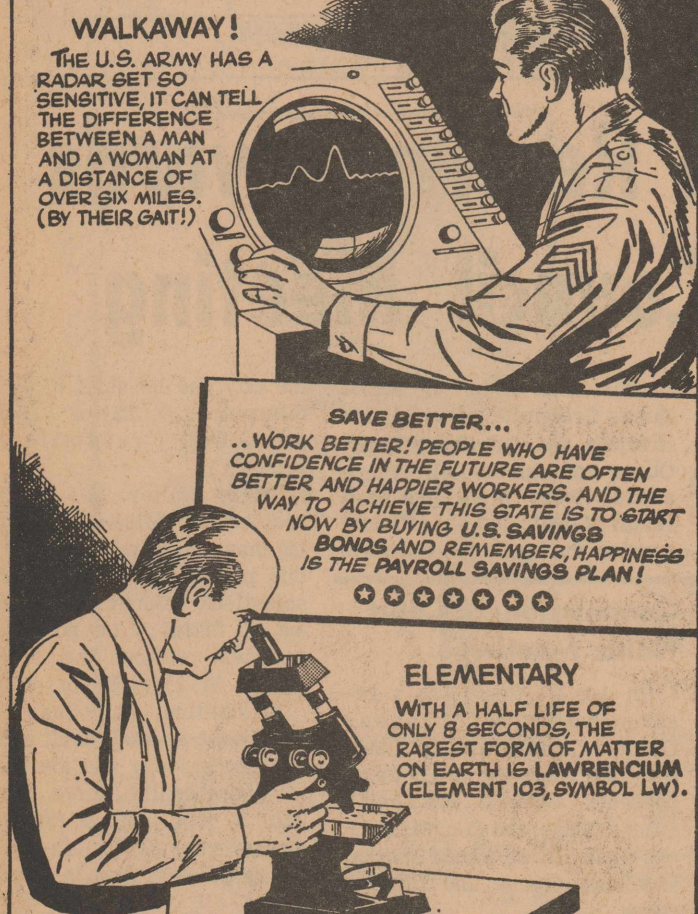

2. The "Tourists - of - the week" project in which visiting couples are selected for prizes contributed by local business firms which are members of the Chamber of Commerce. In addition, the lucky couples are photographed and their pictures, and articles about them, are published in the ROCKPORT PILOT and also sent to their hometown newspapers.

3. The fishing tournament for winter visitors, sponsored by the C of C, is enjoyed by scores of fishermen from all parts of the country who receive weekly, monthly and grand prizes for the award-winning catches of trout, redfish and flounder. These winners also are given publicity locally and in their hometown papers.

All three projects have proved to be good investments for the Chamber and for the Rockport area. Many inquiries resulted from the Des Moines, Iowa newspaper ad, and much favorable comment was produced from the Tourist-of-the-Week program and the fishing tournament.

Named for Sam

The word maverick was first used for unbranded cattle found on the range, after the Civil War. The name originated from Samuel Maverick, a Texas lawyer who had acquired some cattle in 1845. His cowhands were shiftless in branding the herds, causing unbranded cattle in Texas to be called "one of Maverick's."

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE has finished its mission after a seven-year run. Peter Graves, who starred in the series, recently shot a CBS TV pilot movie, "Call to Danger."

A TREND now seems to be buying the newest movies available and the oldest films to be found, both for TV airing. A great number of vintage films are as satisfying to viewers as are the new, streamlined productions... so it is said. Don't touch your dial, the good old ones will be telecast again and again.

Aransas National Refuge Wintering Home of Famous Whooping Cranes

All of the world's wild whooping cranes winter on or near the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge on the Texas Gulf Coast. Whoopers are about five feet tall, with red-crowned heads and black-tipped wings. Grus americana, as he is called by the scientist, weighs close to 20 pounds, and during migration flights high, sometimes out of sight, on wings with a seven-foot spread, signaling his passage with a trumpet-like call. In flight, the cranes have a slow downbeat and a fast upbeat of the wings. They fly with their long necks and legs extended.

During the last 30 years, the whooping crane has staged a gallant battle for survival. Annual counts made on the Aransas Refuge since its establishment in 1937, dramatically reveal this. Although whoopers were found in much larger numbers during the early exploration and settlement of the country, it is believed that they have not really been abundant since the early Pleistocene period, 500,000 years ago.

The population increase of the last few years, while encouraging, is not reason for optimism. Several times in the past, similar increases have been made, only to have their numbers fall off alarmingly again.

The whooping cranes make their home in Texas during the period from late October until mid-April. Their summer home is 2,500 miles to the north in and near Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park, almost touching the Arctic Circle, over this 2,500-mile flight path, above farms and factories, the whoopers make their hazardous round trip every year. During fall migration, the cranes face the natural hazards that make their trip to Aransas exceedingly dangerous. They fly through provinces and states whose waterfowl hunting seasons are open. Their safety during this period depends upon the cooperation of hunters, conservationists, and all who have an interest in our nation's wildlife resources.

On the nesting grounds, each breeding pair of whooping cranes lays one or two buff and brown, mottled eggs in a mound-like nest on the ground. The eggs are laid two to four days apart, and the female begins incubation when the first egg is laid. The male bird assists in incubating the eggs while the female feeds. It takes about 34 days for whooping crane eggs to hatch, and the new chick is about half the size of an adult robin. The young crane grows rapidly and in about ninety days, is ready for its first flight. Several days of practice flight are required before the youngster is ready to accompany the parents on their long journey to the wintering grounds.

Whooping cranes formerly nested in the states of Louisiana, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, North Dakota, and northward into Canada. The advance of civilization eliminated the southern segment of this nesting area. For years, the nesting area of the small remaining flock of whoopers was a mystery. In 1954, a fire in a remote section of the 11,000,000-acre Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada brought foresters into the area who discovered the cranes on their present nesting grounds. The short "free" period of these northern nesting areas is a major hazard to the nesting cranes and probably partially accounts for the fluctuations in the production of young birds.

If initial nesting attempts are unsuccessful, it is likely that a second nesting attempt would fail because of the short summer season. The young must be raised to strong flight stage before heavy freezes in the fall.

Wood Buffalo Park is so vast and remote and the whoopers so scattered during the nesting season that total population and production counts are not possible. Only upon the return of the birds to the Aransas Refuge in the fall are the results of nesting known.

The young birds are easily recognized by their spotted, rusty-brown appearance. These rust-colored young have black wing tips like their parents. The feathers of the juvenile birds are lost in a gradual molt and are replaced with adult plumage during the first winter. By spring migration time, it is difficult to distinguish young from mature birds. Wild whoopers are believed to mate for life, and they make excellent parents, continuing to guard and feed the young as long as eleven months after hatching. They keep the juveniles between them when flying, and close at hand when feeding and preening.

The first whoopers normally arrive at Aransas in mid-October. They appear in family groups over a period of several weeks with the usual migration season ending by late November. Each family establishes a territory of a few hundred acres which is guarded against intrusion by other whooping cranes, but left open for use by waterfowl and shore and wading birds which share the same wintering grounds.

Winter food for the whooper includes a wide variety of plant and animal life. Blue crabs, shrimp, small fishes, frogs, worms, other marine crustaceans, and mollusks make up a large part of the diet. The cranes also feed on acorns and readily accept various planted grains and vegetables grown for them in two 100-acre mammal-proof food plots on the refuge.

While at the Aransas Refuge, the whooping cranes receive more attention than they do at any other time of the year. Aerial surveys are made each week, and frequent boat patrols assure the whoopers' well being. Although visitors to the refuge are not permitted to enter the whooping crane habitat, they frequently can observe birds from a well concealed observation tower near the territory of one family group.

The "whoop" from which the bird received its name is a piercing call of Ker-loo, Ker-loo-oo, which can be heard for great distances. The whooper's trachea is four feet long and forms large loops, some of which are coiled inside the breast bone. This coiled length enables them to produce the bugle-like calls.

In addition to the wild whooping cranes, there are a few crippled birds and their offspring in the Brackenridge Zoo in San Antonio, Texas, and in the Audubon Zoo in New Orleans. Also, a few whooping cranes are being reared at the Bureau's Patuxent Research Station at Laurel, Maryland. Research conducted with sandhill cranes has made possible artificial incubation of eggs taken from the nest of wild whooping cranes. The normal clutch for these birds is two eggs, but usually they only succeed in rearing one chick to flight stage. Thus, removal of one egg from several nests in the Canadian breeding grounds does not have a material effect on production of wild birds.

Restlessness of the cranes in late winter signals the start of their spring migration to the nesting grounds. In late March and early April, the family groups begin departing, and normally all of the cranes leave the Aransas Refuge by April 15. The family group is believed to remain together during spring migration, but when the nesting grounds are reached, the young birds are forced to leave their parents.

As the cranes depart the Aransas Refuge in the spring, the many interested organizations and individuals who have assisted this magnificent bird in its struggle for existence must wait until fall to see if their efforts have been rewarded. The Canadian Wildlife Service, the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, the National Audubon Society, the National Wildlife Federation, state conservation departments, numerous individuals and clubs; all have played an important role in this, the symbol of our total conservation program. The success of these efforts depends not only on these people and their organizations, but upon you, the private citizen.

Aransas National Wildlife Refuge is on a broad peninsula between San Antonio Bay and St. Charles Bay, overlooking Matagorda Island and the Gulf of Mexico. Refuge headquarters is southeast of Austin, and within easy driving distance of Corpus Christi, Port Lavaca, Rockport, and Refugio. Established in 1937, this refuge is administered by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

The 47,261-acre refuge consists of bays, tidal flats, marshes, and sandy higher broken ground by long, narrow ponds. Most of the soil is deep sand covered by running live oak and blackjack oaks on the low ridges lean permanently away from the Gulf winds. Interior ponds and lakes vary from 1 to 385 acres in size, and are fed by runoff and wells. Tidal flats, 2 miles wide, extend about 10 miles along the lower east boundary.

Aransas Refuge is the principal wintering ground for the rare whooping cranes. Family groups establish territories soon after reaching the refuge. They begin to arrive in mid-October, after a 2,500-mile flight from the northern nesting grounds near Great Slave Lake in Canada. They usually start north in early April.

Large numbers of waterfowl winter on the tidal flats, open parks, and fresh-water impoundments. Canada geese, which sometimes number 20,000 in late fall, leave for the north in February and March. Ducks occur in numbers up to 60,000, with pintails and American widgeon predomi-nating. Many other species of ducks use the refuge during the winter, as do ibises, egrets, herons, and sandhill cranes. Nesting pairs of the colorful roseate spoonbill and mottled duck, together with many species of shorebirds, frequent the refuge in spring and summer. Over 300 different species of birds have been recorded here.

An observation tower overlooks the Mustang Lake area, where a family of whooping cranes can usually be observed during the winter months. Another tower, near the Patrol Station, overlooks a waterfowl feeding area. Telescopes are provided at the observation towers for the use of visitors.

Grazing of cattle under permit is allowed on the refuge as a tool of wildlife management. Grazing encourages the growth of both annual and perennial forbs and weeds which provide food for turkey, quail, and deer. Grazing also keeps down rank vegetative growth, making the area more desirable for grazing by geese.

Visitors are urged to bring their cameras. Excellent opportunities exist to photograph deer, turkeys, and other interesting wildlife.

Although picnicking is allowed on the refuge, facilities are limited at present. Visitors are urged to be careful with litter and to help keep Aransas National Wildlife Refuge as beautiful as possible.

The refuge is farming two 100-acre plots to raise food for the wintering whooping cranes. A wide variety of crops is raised in order to determine food preferences. About 600 acres of winter wheat, grain sorghum, and improved pastures are cultivated to provide food for waterfowl.

White-tailed deer have flourished, and thousands have been live-trapped for stocking in Texas and other southern states. Javelina, wild turkey, bobwhite quail, armadillo, raccoon, skunk, squirrel, and an occasional coyote or bobcat, constitute the larger upland species.

REFUGE TOUR: Self-guided tours are facilitated by directional signs placed at appropriate locations along the public roads. There are 24 miles of shell-surfaced roads open for public use.

A sharp decline in the numbers of some of our predaceous birds, that is birds of prey, has been directly connected with our use of the chemical DDT and other closely related pesticides. This is also true with some of our water and shore birds, especially those who feed on fish.

Each animal, starting with the little microscopic organisms in the water, picks up a little of the DDT, stores it in his body, then passes it along to the animal higher on the food chain that consumes him. The DDT stored in the body is never released, once it gets in the body -- it's there for good. The birds of prey are considered to be about the top of their food chain so they take in all the insecticide that has been gathered by all the animals below them. They store the DDT in their fatty tissues, their reproductive organs, and in some of the other organs of the body.

This accumulation of DDT doesn't seem to bother the adult bird but scientists have found that the thickness of the shell of the bird's egg is directly related to the amount of DDE found in the egg. DDE is a breakdown product of DDT. The more DDE found in the egg, the thinner the shell will be.

These scientists say that the nose-dive in the numbers of our birds of prey is primarily a result of failure to reproduce and this failure was traceable to the accidental breakage of these thin shelled eggs. Incidentally, the first report of this change in shell thickness came in 1947 -- just one year after DDT was made available for general use.

Two of the victims of the population decline are, to me at least, among the most beautiful and interesting birds in the world. The first of these is the peregrine falcon. It would be impossible to find a bird that I admire more than this one. Back in the olden days that we refer as to as the days of chivalry -- when knights went out looking for dragons to slay and maidens to rescue -- this bird was trained for use in the sport of falconry, and he still is today. He was known as the Royal Falcon because his ownership was limited, by law, to the royal family. He was light and easy to carry on the wrist, but he made up in speed and agility for any lack of size. He is a killer, sure, but he doesn't kill for sport the way men do. He kills only for food -- and he's wild, and free, and wonderful, and if we lose him we will have lost something magnificent.

The other bird I mentioned is the osprey, the beautiful bird that many call the fish hawk. This common name is certainly appropriate because he feeds almost exclusively on fish. This makes him especially susceptible to DDT because fish are very efficient in gathering and storing the lethal chemical. Just before the fish is killed by the accumulation of insecticide he is so sick that he swims slowly along just under the surface. This is exactly what the osprey is looking for. The big, grey hawk will plunge down from the heights, seize the fish in his talons, rise up out of the water, shake the water from his plumage in mid-air, and fly away to his favorite perch to consume his poisonous dinner.

These, of course, are only two of the birds that seem to be doomed by our careless use of pesticides. With such as this going on, is it any wonder that some people say that, due to the activities of man, man himself should be included on the list of endangered species?

Tax Payers Ask IRS

Q - If I designate $1 of my tax to the Presidential Election Campaign Fund, will it change any of the figures on my tax return?

A - No. If you designate $1 ($2 if married filing jointly) to the fund by completing and attaching Form 4875 to your return, it will not change any of the figures on your tax return. In other words, the tax due IRS, or if applicable, the tax refund the IRS owes you, will not be changed.

Q - Is the cost of sending my child to kindergarten while I go to work a deductible child care expense?

A - Yes. If you itemize your deductions, expenses for nursery school or day care for pre-school dependent children may be deducted subject to certain limitations if they are paid to enable you to be gainfully employed.

Q - What about the cost of meals or education at a nursery home or kindergarten -- are they included in the child care deduction?

A - Benefits incident to child care, such as food or education, are not child care expenses. However, where the manner of providing the care is such that the payment covers other incidental benefits inseparably a part of the care, the entire cost will ordinarily be considered as being for care. Benefits will not be considered as inseparable if the expense includes education in the first or higher grade level. Such expenses must be apportioned between the part that represents the cost of education, and that part that represents care of the child.

Q - What form should I use to compute my child care deduction?

A - IRS Form 2441, "Expenses for Household and Dependent Care Services," or equivalent computation detail should be submitted with your return, if you deduct child care expenses. Use the order blank on the back of your tax form package to obtain a copy.

IRS Publication 503, "Child Care and Dependent Care," describes the limitations on the deduction. It's available free by contacting your local IRS office.

Q - My son is a full-time student. How much money can he earn before I can no longer claim him as a dependent?

A - Regardless of his age, if your son was a full-time student for some part of each of any five calendar months (not necessarily consecutive) of 1972, or was less than 19 years old at the end of the year, you can claim him as a dependent no matter how much money he made. You also must meet all the other dependency tests, including furnishing over one-half of your son's total support.

Q - I was out sick for 10 weeks last year and received sick pay. How much of this can I exclude from my income?

A - It depends on how much you received in pay for the time you were out. If you received over 75 percent of your regular salary from a wage continuation plan while you were sick, there is a 30-day waiting period whether or not you were hospitalized at any time. After it expires, you may exclude up to $100 a week from income as sick pay.

If you received 75 percent or less of your regular pay, there is a 7-day waiting period. Then you may exclude up to $75 a week. After 30 days, you may exclude up to $100 a week as sick pay. If you were hospitalized, there is no 7-day waiting period.

For more information, contact your local IRS office and ask for a free copy of IRS Publication 522, "Adjustments to Income for Sick Pay."

FEBRUARY SHRIMP LANDINGS DOWN

Shrimp landings in Texas in February amounted to 1.7 million pounds valued at $2.7 million. This was 6 percent below the volume and value of landings in February 1972. Current landings brought the 2-month 1973 total landings to 3.3 million pounds -- 25 percent below the volume for the corresponding 1972 period. The following table represents landings of headless shrimp for specified areas and periods:

Area	February 1973	Jan. - Feb. 1973	Jan. - Feb. 1972
	Pounds	Pounds	Pounds
Port Arthur-Sabine	102,100	314,500	198,200
Galveston-Seabrook	70,500	149,400	425,500
Freeport	124,600	318,900	521,100
Matagorda-Palacios	9,700	17,100	72,600
Port Lavaca-Port O'Connor-Seadrift	56,800	79,300	113,600
Aransas Pass-Rockport	403,600	829,400	942,300
Brownsville-Port Isabel-Port Mansfield	958,600	1,546,100	2,087,100
TOTAL	1,725,900	3,254,700	4,360,400

Vessels working brown shrimp in waters beyond 30 fathoms off Texas and Louisiana made poor trip catches of 160 pounds per night in sea conditions that ranged from rough to hazardous throughout the month. Vessels were concentrated in 30-42 fathoms from east of Freeport to south of Morgan City, Louisiana. Long-range trawlers working the high seas off Mexico made trip catches of about 200 pounds per night from southeast of Port Isabel to the Gulf of Campeche. Units working white shrimp adjacent to major passes made only poor catches of small whites.

Oyster landings of 26,000 barrels were 13 percent below February 1972, however, meat yields from Galveston Bay were the highest on record at almost 3 gallons per Texas barrel of shell oysters. Cold water temperatures and excellent bay conditions accounted for this exceptionally good meat recovery. Blue crab landings totaled about 200,000 pounds in February. This was 40 percent below landings in February 1972 and inadequate to meet the present demand for crab meat. Cold water temperatures and high winds curtailed crabbing operations in larger bays from Galveston to Corpus Christi. Fishermen received from 10-12 cents per pound for live crabs.

Landings of finfish in central and north Texas were the poorest in recent years. Rough seas made Gulf fishing impossible and cold water temperatures forced most fish out of bay systems accessible to commercial fishing gear. Many fresh markets had only fresh-water catfish and frozen products for market.

Three large vessels entered the shrimp fishery in February. One was lost at sea.

The shortage of fuel oil was quite pronounced along the entire coast as all distributors were under quotas or at least had difficulty obtaining fuel shipments on a regular basis.

Monday, April 16, Tax Filing Deadline

As the end of the tax filing season approaches, the Internal Revenue Service will further expand its office hours for assistance to the public, George Zerda, Administrative Officer of IRS for Corpus Christi, said today.

Monday, April 16 is the filing deadline this year, and the Corpus Christi office will be open all day the next two Saturdays, April 7 and 14, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The taxpayer assistance program is aimed at self-help, and many taxpayers, especially those who use the short Form 1040A, can complete their own returns by following the instructions. However, the IRS wants to help, and is ready to provide assistance to taxpayers by telephone at 884-1901, or at the IRS office in the Smith Building, 425 Schatzel.

On the final day, Monday, April 16, the Corpus Christi office will be open from 7:45 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and beginning Tuesday, April 17, regular hours of 7:45 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. will be resumed, Zerda said.

A golf ball should weigh no more than 1.62 ounces.

One of a series of messages on the Energy Crisis as it affects South Texas

What it takes to outrun an energy crisis.

It takes a greater supply of energy than demand.

One form of energy, of course, is electrical — which is our responsibility at CPL. Electrical energy is generated from fossil fuels such as the natural gas we use to make electricity. Because a power plant without fuel is meaningless, it also becomes CPL's responsibility to secure enough fuel to make enough electricity to meet the growing demand in South Texas.

Because this is a growing area, we have been planning and working some years to expand our system to stay ahead of anticipated growth. Already planned is substantial new generating capacity for every calendar year between now and 1981. The total of added electric power is 1,945,000 kilowatts — almost doubling CPL's generating capacity as it stands today.

But we said our responsibility doesn't stop with building power plants. Recently we signed a fuel contract that provides for a long term supply of natural gas, synthetic gas and fuel oil. Thus, we feel assured of providing an adequate supply of electric power for this area's needs, now and in the future. Almost all of our generating units now are equipped to use any of the above fuels to produce electricity.

Here in South Texas, your power supply is in good shape. Reserves of electric power are adequate for all needs, including expected growth. We're planning to keep it that way.

Last Minute Tax Filers Make Most Mistakes

Last - minute income tax filers should double check their returns, since those filed just before the deadline are much more likely to contain errors, George Zerda, Internal Revenue Service Administrative Officer for Corpus Christi, Texas, said today.

Errors on returns delay processing and any refund that may be due.

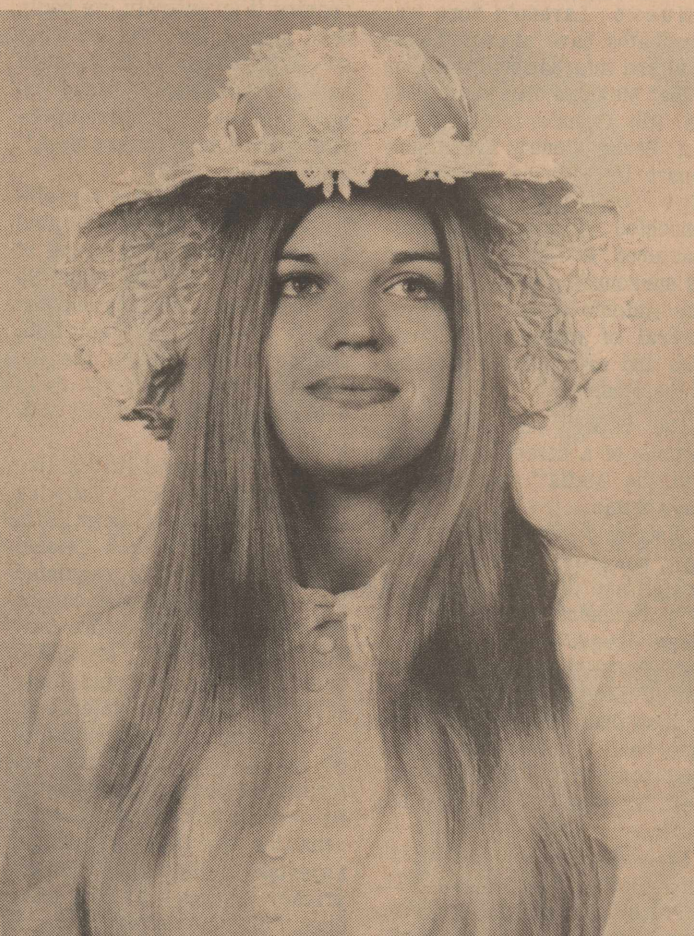

Missing information accounts for many of the errors. This type of error could be a return received without a required signature, Social Security number, or W-2 statement.

Taxpayers who use the tax form they received in the mail can avoid Social Security number problems. These forms have pre-addressed labels that show the taxpayer's name, Social Security number and address just as they appear in IRS files.

The label can be lifted off the form it came on and placed on the Form 1040 or 1040A that you file.

Taxpayers who have someone help them with their return should be sure their pre-addressed label is on the form they file.

Candance Daley, Charles Cantwell Say Vows

Miss Candance Lynn Daley and Charles F. H. Cantwell were married Saturday evening in Corpus Christi Cathedral.

Doye D. Daley Jr., Corpus Christi, and Mrs. Melba S. Thomas of Brownwood are the bride's parents. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E.R. Cantwell Jr., of Fulton.

The bride's full length gown was fashioned of sheer polyester. The shirt waisted bodice of the gown was accented by a lace collar and waist sash with covered buttons extending to the waist. The skirt of the gown was overlaid by sheer pleated polyester. The sheer sleeves were gathered slightly and were accented by lace cuffs. The bride's wide brim picture hat of lace flowers held her floor length English bridal illusion.

Mrs. Pamela Hullum of El Paso, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Lee Bailey of Brownwood, Mrs. Sherre Ernster of Cuero, the groom's sister, Mrs. Paula Pierce of Garland and Miss Diane Lindeum.

The bridesmaids wore identical empire dresses that gathered in tiers to the floor, with short transparent puffed sleeves. The dresses were mint green accented by blue flowers and white trim. Each bridesmaid carried a blue carnation and wore wide brim picture hats of mint green horsehair.

E. Robert Cantwell III, of Sandia, the groom's brother, was best man. Groomsman were J. Curtis B. Cantwell, brother of the groom, Allen Strickland of San Antonio, Don Freisen of Alberta, Canada, and Brian Elkourl.

Sharleen and Cletus Ernster of Cuero were flower girl and ring bearer.

A reception was held at Ramada Inn. Following a wedding trip to Monterrey, the couple will live at 401 University in Corpus Christi.

The bride is a graduate of Brownwood High School and attends Texas A&I University. The groom was graduated from King High School and attended St. Mary's University, San Antonio.

Compliance With Meat Price Ceiling Urged By IRS

R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, announced that the IRS will begin efforts today to assure compliance by food firms with the meat price ceiling.

Phinney said that, as part of a nationwide effort, contact will be made with all the major food firms with annual sales of $50 million or more headquartered in the Austin IRS District to inform these firms of their obligations.

IRS will make available to all food firms technical and interpretative assistance and a standard format for computing ceiling prices.

"Meat price ceiling regulations were issued by the Cost of Living Council last Thursday," Phinney said, "and before the ceiling prices are posted by April 9 as required, IRS will review the major firms' method of computation and verify the accuracy of the ceiling prices."

After posting, IRS routinely will spot check retail, wholesale and manufacturing firms for compliance with the ceiling prices. Monitoring will be done on an item basis (e.g., chuck roast, bacon, pork loin).

Consumers who, after April 9, detect counter prices exceeding posted prices should contact their local IRS office.

'War' Being Waged Against Organized Crime In Texas

A public education program on the problem of organized crime is being opened by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council.

The Council, established in 1970, is co-chaired by Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir, Director of the Department of Public Safety. It is a subsidiary of the Texas Criminal Justice Council.

Gambling, narcotics, auto theft, prostitution, loan sharking, credit card fraud, and infiltration of legitimate businesses were classified by the Council as initial target areas of criminal activity.

State enforcement officials say crime organizations do not operate today in the classic style of the Mafia, but there are similarities.

"We know some of these people have syndicate connections, but we don't believe they are under the direct control of the national crime cartel. However, the results are about the same," Attorney General Hill commented.

"With the cooperation of the news media throughout the state, we believe we can alert Texans to what the problem is and how they, as individuals, can help us combat organized crime," Colonel Speir noted.

The Council was created by executive order of the Governor to help coordinate work in Texas of law enforcement agencies in their fight against organized crime. The public education program was assisted by the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, U. S. Department of Justice, through the Governor's Criminal Justice Council.

In addition to a public education program, the Organized Crime Prevention Council will seek certain new laws to help wage war on organized crime

In Texas.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the beginning of a series of articles dealing with the rise of organized crime in Texas and the steps being taken to combat it. Education of the public to the dangers of organized criminal activities is one of the prime goals of the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council. Statistics used in these stories were made available through the Council in conjunction with the Texas Department of Public Safety. This first story deals with a broad view of the problem. Subsequent stories will deal in specific types of criminal activity. Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir serve as Co-Chairmen for the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council. This series is a part of a public education program developed by the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council with assistance from the Texas Criminal Justice Council, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, the Texas Department of Public Safety, the Office of the Attorney General of Texas and local law enforcement agencies.)

Organized crime has become a billion-dollar-a-year business in the State of Texas. Governor Dolph Briscoe, in his first address to the Legislature, said "...it is correct to say Texas is in the frontier stage of organized crime, but we still have time to react and do something about it." Attorney General John Hill and Colonel Wilson E. Speir, Director of the Department of Public Safety, are acutely aware of the problem and both have it high on their priority list. "We are not about to sit back and let Texans be victimimized by mobsters," Hill said recently.

Speir commented, "We have all aspects of the problem under close surveillance and already are making many arrests. It may be however, that new laws will be needed to assist us in cracking down hard on certain elements of organized crime."

Hill and Speir are co-chairmen of the Texas Organized Crime Prevention Council which consists of the state's top law enforcement personnel. The Council has compiled some startling information.

---Gang killings, used effectively to gain promotion up through the ranks, are still occurring in and around the major metropolitan areas.

The majority of the gangland murders are believed tied to narcotics trafficking and underworld power struggles.

---Bookmaking is perhaps the largest money maker for organized crime in the state. Bookies realized a gross profit of $98 million from both college and professional football games during the 1971 season alone. Bets totaled some $815 million which means about 12 per cent "off the top" went into the pockets of organized crime.

"Bookmaking is the most intricately organized field in all of crime," Colonel Speir commented, "and our investigations have just touched the surface but we are making progress."

---Prostitution is prevalent in many areas, especially those with sizeable populations.

Available information places the average gross weekly income per prostitute in Texas at $1,400 for those working in the more sophisticated operations.

This is usually split on a 60/40 basis with the "house" or the procurer.

Prostitutes, in many instances, are lured into that "profession" to obtain money to support a costly narcotics habit.

---At least eighteen separate narcotics smuggling rings are known to be operating in Texas cities. There are several hundred major traffickers who have been located and identified by various law enforcement agencies.

Vigorous prosecution at all levels of law enforcement has been stepped up on drug pushers. Arrests are increasing statewide.

The "take" in Texas on illicit drug traffic is almost impossible to reduce to dollars and cents, partially because of strong indications that in addition to supplying users in the state, the pushers also supply the markets in at least nine other states.

Texas drug rings are known, for example, to supply connections in Chicago, New York and Miami.

This unsavory phase of gangland is highly profitable, however. It also leaves in its wake thousands of broken and shattered lives and death. Violence comes easy in the uneasy world of the drug pusher.

Nuevo Laredo's dope war bloodbaths have attracted national and international attention to that Mexican city just across the Rio Grande from Texas.

A Bexar County grand jury report last spring "isolated" nine criminal organizations connected with narcotics headquartered in San Antonio and the surrounding area. Since then San Antonio police have put several of these out of business and are actively working on the others.

The report said "no indications of a direct connection with the Mafia" was found in San Antonio.

District Attorney Ted Butler says, however, "organized syndicates are directly connected as purchasers and sellers of illegal drugs."

---Poetically, or jokingly, dubbed the "Wheels of Crime," no less than 40 auto theft rings have been uncovered in Texas. Last year in Dallas alone car theft hit near the $7 million mark.

Statewide there were 48,323 auto thefts reported in 1971. Valued at over $50 million, these hot cars were "fenced" in Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, California, Mexico and even Europe.

Not only are cars stolen to be stripped of their valuable parts but also resold after changing the true identification. Texas law enforcement officials state flatly that stolen vehicles figure heavily as transportation for crooks involved in armed robbery, kidnapping and other offenses.

The thieves don't limit themselves to automobiles by any means.

Campers, motorcycles, mobile homes, heavy equipment, boats and motors -- just about anything and everything on two or four wheels is fair game.

In the theft area, the problem of the "fence" is a major one. Many of them recruit newcomers, especially youths for a car heist, with the thieves thus launched on criminal careers.

Narcotics, car theft rings, the "fence" (purchaser of stolen goods), and bookmaking are areas in which law enforcement officials feel strong laws are needed.

Specifically, they refer to the political hot potato of electronic surveillance.

Federal court ordered electronic surveillance, which includes but is not limited to wire tapping, is legal under the Federal Omnibus Crime Control Act, but the Texas Legislature has yet to authorize it in this state by statute.

"While not in favor of just opening it up entirely, we badly need such a law. But we must see that proper controls such as a court order based on probable cause, proper supervision and discretion are used," said Colonel Speir.

"Uses of electronic surveillance must be carefully limited and the penalties for abuse of this power must be high. No bill will ever have my support which does not protect law-abiding citizens from the invasion of their privacy," Governor Briscoe told the Legislature.

Attorney General Hill is also cautious about "bugs" and wire taps. He concurs, though, with Governor Briscoe and Colonel Speir that tightly regulated electronic surveillance can be effective in investigating certain conspiratorial, organized criminal rings -- who plot their criminal plans by telephone.

"In seeking this type of limited law to assist our law enforcement personnel, we must be certain to build in adequate penalties for those who would undertake to illegally invade the privacy of law-abiding citizens," Hill pointed out.

But organized crime in Texas is not limited to gambling, prostitution, narcotics or auto theft. There is evidence the policy rackets have moved into the Gulf Coast area.

"The Numbers" long has been a key part of mob business throughout the United States, but apparently it isn't that big a threat in Texas yet. Poor people are the major customers for numbers racket operators.

Loan sharking has not found too fertile a field in which to operate in Texas, although there is some evidence it exists. Organized crime also has quietly moved in legitimate business in Texas in recent years.

Symptoms of criminal schemes to take over legitimate business operations surfaced in Texas during 1972. A major Texas newspaper reported one "text book" example in a coastal city.

The owner of a small company was lured into joining a "mob - controlled conglomerate" by fantastic offers of credit, stability and dizzy promises of rapid financial success.

In the end, the firm's assets were raided (transferred and milked) and the company was left bankrupt.

Lawsuits pending in Texas courts list charges of "fraudulent advertising of assets resulting in an increase in stock prices," "conspiring to gain control," and "attempting to dissipate the assets of both the company and the holding company."

One federal crime fighter recently noted "more and more racketeers are going into securities transactions."

In recent months several Texas banks were defrauded in an illicit securities scheme that began in San Francisco and had ramifications in New Jersey.

"Cities hit in this one scheme included Houston, El Paso and Lubbock," investigators said.

One of the oldest tools of organized crime is the application of pressure to coerce potential victims.

Operators within criminal ranks will resort even to murder if the purpose suits their bosses.

Even office holders are not immune from being the object of criminal conspiracies.

For example, one office holder found himself the target of an alleged plot which resulted in indictment of three South Texas men at the conclusion of a two-month investigation.

"The conspiracy involved the attempt to hire someone to commit murder," said a court spokesman.

Although it may not sound like it from the above facts, Texas organized crime really isn't rampant at this point.

There's no Murder, Inc. as such, and there are no gang lords with overtones of "Godfathers."

Organized crime is not necessarily synonymous with the Mafia.

"In general," said Colonel Speir, "it consists of unlawful activities of the members of a highly organized, disciplined and sophisticated association engaged in supplying illegal goods and services."

Accent on Health

J.E. PEAVY, M.D., Commissioner of Health

Good health is a prized possession—something to be sought by those who don't have it and something to be held onto by those who do.

As in the case of a communicable disease, says the State Health Department, it is much wiser and easier to keep a person from having a preventable disease than it is to treat the victim.

During 1973 preventive health services will be extended to thousands of children in Texas through an agreement between the State Health Department and Department of Public Welfare.

The new title for the program is 'early and periodic screening diagnosis and treatment' for certain Texas youngsters who are on aid for dependent children rolls.

The State Department of Public Welfare is responsible for administration of the Texas Medical Assistance Program, and consequently, has responsibility for implementation of the periodic screening program.

But, the State Health Department has staff and experience in this field, particularly in providing regular maternal and child health and crippled children services.

Through a cooperative arrangement between the two big state agencies, the State Health Department soon will begin screening children who are eligible for medical assistance. Children who are found to be in need of a more definitive diagnosis and treatment then will be referred by the Welfare Department to practicing physicians and other appropriate sources for such services.

State Health Commissioner Dr. James E. Peavy said the program can have a tremendous effect on what could be long-term illnesses. 'This program will allow us to catch these defects now, while they are still amenable to treatment,' he said.

The medical screening will cover health and developmental histories, physical growth, physical inspection, inspection of the ear, nose, mouth and throat, vision and hearing testing, along with certain other tests for anemia, tuberculosis, lead poisoning, etc.

Although the State Health Department has responsibility for conducting the basic screening the Welfare Department responsibilities lie in different areas. It will be concerned with identifying individuals to be screened (up through five-year olds at the start), for assisting families in following recommended referrals, diagnosis and treatment.

In instances where a family does not have or know of a physician or other appropriate practitioner, it is anticipated that a County Medical Society can be of assistance in advising families on obtaining such assistance. Neither agency intends to make referrals to specific physicians.

It is the intent of both agencies to help families understand the health status of their children and to obtain further diagnosis or treatment from appropriate sources when it is needed. Freedom of choice by both families and practitioners is recognized.

The State Health Department

TIPS FOR OUTDOORSMEN

by Vern Sanford

That day is coming, in the not too distant future, when you will be carrying another license card in your billfold. Or, perhaps we should add—if you qualify.

Already you are licensed to drive a car, or you'd better not drive. Also you must possess a license before you can pilot a plane, or you'll be in violation of both State and Federal laws.

In both cases you must demonstrate certain abilities and prove that you are knowledgeable of safety regulations and procedures before you can obtain these permits.

Today there are millions of boats operating in the fresh waters of these United States. Yet very few of the owners have even taken, much less passed, a safe driving course.

Such a requirement is coming... and sooner than you think.

Stringent safety regulations have already been written into the Federal laws. They are still inadequate, but far better than none at all. These rules are for your good. They were drafted for your protection and will be enforced for your benefit. Strict adherence to them may save your life, or the life of your family or closest friends.

But, instruction is not mandatory; nor is a "driver's license" required of boat operators who operate recreational vehicles.

For many years private groups, government organizations and the Coast Guard thought that safety laws relative to boating were unnecessary.

ment screening will be accomplished at clinics already in operation and through other medical facilities and individuals, including mobile units where necessary.

Physicians in practice in local communities throughout the state are the key in providing the services which screening indicates the children may need.

The medical program will be the second to be initiated for children in welfare families—those who ordinarily couldn't afford preventive treatment. Also operating within the State Health Department is a dental care program. Both have their separate directors and the key staff members but will share centralized administrative, data processing and fiscal programs.

Through screening and early diagnosis and treatment, both programs should have a strong impact on the present and future health of thousands of young Texans.

Young Homemakers Of Texas Meet

The monthly meeting of the Young Homemakers of Texas was held April 3 in the high school homemaking building.

President Becky Livingston introduced Dr. Maurice Cadwalder to the club members and their husbands.

Dr. Cadwalder, a practicing evangelist and psychologist from Corpus Christi led an informal discussion on emotional disturbances. He emphasized that most of the common terms connected with emotional disturbances are highly misused.

The next scheduled meeting is May 1.

Greta Kay Adams was admitted to Spohn Hospital to have her appendix removed. She was released April 7.

sary. So, voluntary safety courses were offered by the Coast Guard Auxiliary, the U. S. Power Squadron and others.

However, only one out of five recreational vehicle owners enrolled.

So, another boating self-study program soon may be available, with participation as a possible basis for issuance of a license by individual states under Federal guidelines.

Proposed licenses would include everyone who operates a boat of any size—from canoe to cruiser.

Today a ten-year-old is not allowed to drive a car on Texas highways for two very sensible reasons—he is not physically able to handle the machine, and he does not have the experience and judgment to react properly in an emergency.

Yet this same ten-year-old youngster can commandeer a 220 H.P. inboard loaded with kids of all ages and drive on a crowded lake at full throttle and be within the law. Such wild and dangerous acts must be prohibited, as should many other unsafe practices by young and old alike.

Check your area for members of the Coast Guard or the Auxiliary—or any group offering instructions in boating (be they Civic Clubs, Chambers of Commerce, Boy or Girl Scouts, FFA, etc.) and sign up for their training program. Enroll your entire family—and be ready for the mandatory exam that's bound to come.

LOUISA'S LETTER

Dear Louisa,

My husband is always grumbling about my coffee table and pole lamps. I like to fix up my house so that it looks the best that it can. I don't think these things are worth fussing about. I like them and I like to work in the house. Everybody has these things so why should he dislike them? What do you think?

Answer: What is your husband's objection to the coffee table and lamps? Is it because the lamps do not give enough light to read by or is it because they are in places where they are easily knocked over?

I can't imagine why anyone should object to coffee tables as they are very handy places for magazines, ash trays or a bowl of flowers. Perhaps he has a reason for disliking the one you have.

I think it is every wife's business to make her home as attractive and comfortable as possible, within her budget. But the main idea of a happy home is one in which all members like to come back to at the end of the day.

Louisa.

Kaline Recalls The Memorable Hits, HR's In 21-Year Career

By Edward H. Sims

LAKELAND, FLA. -- Al Kaline, subject of the new book by Hal Butler, "Al Kaline and the Detroit Tigers," was discussing his twenty years as a Major Leaguer. He was asked to name the most important hit of his career (he's collected 2,782):

"I'd have to say one in the World Series against the Cardinals in 1968--in the fifth game. We were down 3-1 in games, our only win having been Mickey Lolich's second-game victory. We trailed 3-2. It was late in the game--sixth or seventh inning.

"There were two on; to lose was the Series. I drove in two runs, which gave us a 4-3 lead. Norm Cash, I think, followed with a single. That made it 5-3 and that's the way it ended. I'd have to say that was the most important hit I ever got."

"What was the most important homerun in your career (of 376 thus far):

"I think it would have to be the first homerun in the World Series. There was one on and it gave us a 2-0 lead. We didn't keep it but at the time, of course, it looked important." (Kaline had two homers in the 1968 World Series, batted .379 in the seven games and played errorless ball.)

(Last of a Series.)

"What pitchers do you consider especially tough in the American League?"

"There're many. To name a few, Gaylord Perry of Cleveland is real good. Jim Palmer of Baltimore is one of them. Another is Nolan Ryan of the Angels. They stand out in my mind."

In the current book just released on Kaline, author Butler recalls that Kaline used his bonus money for signing in 1953 to pay off the mortgage on his parents home.

"That's true," Kaline said. "I got fifteen thousand to sign."

Asked if it was true he once returned a contract to Jim Campbell (Tiger General Manager) because he didn't think he was worth that much, Kaline confirmed it, and said he played for less than offered.

The difference between Kaline and many modern-day ballplayers is demonstrated clearly by refusal of that money, several thousand dollars, offered voluntarily by the club.

The best managers he played under? "Charlie Dressen and Billy are the best fundamental managers I've played for."

Social Security to Spend More on Rehabilitation

Social security will be able to make about $45.6 million available in fiscal 1973 for vocational rehabilitation services for people getting monthly disability benefits, according to social security officials here.

This is about $15.2 million more than was available in fiscal 1972.

"The added money means more disabled people can receive rehabilitation training to help them return to jobs," a social security spokesman said.

Social security pays monthly benefits to eligible workers who are severely disabled and cannot work for a year or more—and to members of their families. In selected cases, social security helps pay for vocational rehabilitation services provided by State and local agencies.

In fiscal 1971, social security provided about $30 million for vocational rehabilitation services for more than 45,000 severely disabled workers. About 10,000 were successfully rehabilitated, the spokesman said.

The amount available for rehabilitation services each year is based on the total amount of social security disability benefits paid during the previous year.

"A recent change in the social security law increased the amount available for vocational rehabilitation from 1 percent of the previous year's total disability payments to 1.25 percent for fiscal 1973 and 1.5 percent for fiscal 1974 and after," the spokesman said.

About $29 million in additional funds will be available for rehabilitation services in 1974.

The amount of your social security benefit is based on your average earnings over a period of years.

Going Boating? Watch the Weather

AUSTIN -- Texans, of all persons, should know how fast the weather can change in their state.

So it's surprising how many boaters are caught unawares when bad weather hits. They are lulled into a false sense of security by bluebird weather and then come limping into port under gale-force winds.

If you're planning an outing on the water, watch the weather reports, advise Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

Clear weather where you live doesn't mean it's clear five miles out on the water. Storms tend to brew quickly over water. Coastal boaters can watch for the flags or lights at weather stations.

A red flag accompanied by one pennant, two pennants, or a square flag with a black center or two flags or the same design all mean one thing for the man in a small craft -- take warning. One red pennant tells the boater that a small craft advisory is in effect. Should you see such a flag, think twice about venturing far from shore if your boat is not equipped to handle rough waters and strong winds (18 to 33 knots).

At night, small craft advisories are signified by one red light above one white light. Two red pennants warn of gale force winds and heavy seas (34- to 37-knot winds and 10-foot waves). At night, such conditions are signified by one white light above a red light.

A single square flag with a black square on it also signifies storm warnings. Winds are rated between 43 and 63 knots and the small boater should stay in port. At night, two red lights would be shown if the same conditions prevailed.

Hurricane warnings are given by two red flags with black square centers. Hurricane winds are 64 knots or more. At night, these warnings are a white light between two red lights. No boater should be out during this time.

Weather conditions are printed in local newspapers and can also be obtained from television and radio stations.

Cantata April 15 At First Baptist

"Hallelujah! What A Savior!" This is the name of the "cantata of the victorious Savior" by John W. Peterson to be presented by the choir of the First Baptist Church on Palm Sunday night, April 15th, at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Wanda Fake is the choir director. Mrs. Jean Faye McLead, organist and Mrs. Phyllis Goodin is pianist. Soloists in the musical are: L. M. Dyson singing "Behold, We Go Up To Jerusalem" and "My House Shall Be Called The House of Prayer"; Mrs. Linda Bradley--"Tis Midnight, and On Olive's Brow"; George Peirce -- "Behold, I Bring Him Forth To You"; and Rev. Charles Fake--"Father, Forgive Them."

The public is invited to come and hear these and other selections which tell the story of the First Easter and also provide enjoyable listening and an inspirational experience in song.

Presidential Campaign Check-Off

Taxpayers may now elect to designate part of their tax liability to be paid over to the political party of their choice in the next Presidential election, George Zarda, Administrative Officer of Internal Revenue for Corpus Christi said today.

The amount designated will be used by the 1976 Presidential and Vice Presidential candidates of the party you choose. You may also designate the amount to a non-partisan general account for all eligible candidates. Participation in the campaign check-off will not change the amount of refund or tax liability due.

Single taxpayers may designate one dollar and married persons filing joint returns may designate two dollars.

Taxpayers wishing to participate should complete Form 4875 and attach it to their 1972 Federal income tax return. This form is contained in the tax package received from IRS. Form 4875 will be disassociated from the tax return in the Service Centers to assure the taxpayer's political affiliation does not become part of his tax file. Also, taxpayers filing Form 1040A or 1040 are eligible to participate.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Value of Personal Belongings

Your coat disappears from a checkroom. Your curtains are damaged at the laundry. Your couch is stained by water leaking down from an upstairs apartment. Assuming you are entitled to compensation, how much money can you collect? What is the value, in dollars and cents, of your personal belongings?

A simple test was suggested by the proprietor of a restaurant, after a woman's coat vanished from his checkroom.

"We will pay her what it would cost to buy a secondhand coat of similar quality," he said in a court hearing. "After all, that is what she lost—a secondhand coat."

But the court awarded her substantially more than the secondhand value. The judge said that, in her eyes, it was her own personal garment—not just a "secondhand coat."

Generally speaking, in fixing damages for personal belongings, the law will take the viewpoint of the original owner rather than of the person responsible for the loss. Accordingly, it relies mainly on the original cost of the item (minus depreciation).

What if the lost or damaged merchandise was part of a matching set? May you collect for the entire set? The law usually says yes, again taking the viewpoint of the owner.

Thus, when five out of a set of eight matching drapes were ruined at the laundry, a court held the laundry liable for all eight. The judge said that since the customer would have to buy a whole new set, this was the truest measure of the harm she had suffered.

Nevertheless, the law does not ordinarily grant compensation for values that are strictly sentimental.

For example, suppose those drapes happened to be especially precious to the woman because they had been made by her late mother. Obviously, this would heighten their value in her own eyes.

Yet, because this factor is so purely personal, it would not be counted against the laundry as an element of damages. The law would consider it unfair to place upon the laundry a special responsibility about which, when it accepted the drapes for cleaning, it knew nothing at all.

NEW ESTIMATED TAX REQUIREMENTS FOR CORPORATIONS

Many corporations may have to make estimated tax payments in 1973 for the first time, R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, said today.

Under a 1968 law, the $100,000 corporate exemption from estimated taxes has been phased out. So for tax years beginning in 1973, corporations will have to pay estimated taxes if they expect their income tax liability, after credits, to be $200 or more according to Phinney. Last year, a corporation had to pay estimated taxes only if its tax liability amounted to $5,540 or more.

Corporations do not file declarations of estimated tax with the IRS. However, Phinney emphasized that corporations must deposit estimated taxes in authorized commercial or Federal Reserve banks. Each deposit must be accompanied by a Federal Tax Deposit Form 503. These forms are mailed to all corporations who file Form 1120. Additional Forms 503 may be secured from the Internal Revenue Service Center, 3651 South Interregional Highway, Austin, Texas 78740.

For calendar year corporations, the first estimated tax due date is April 16, 1973. Remaining installments for 1973 are due by June 15, September 17, and December 17. Due dates for fiscal year corporations are the 15th day of the 4th, 6th, 9th and 12th months of the tax year.

"Form 1120-W, Corporation Worksheet for Computation of 1973 Estimated Tax, was included in all tax packages mailed to corporations for the year 1972 and may be used as a guide in determining estimated tax liability," Phinney said. "This form, however, is not to be filed with the IRS. Corporations may obtain additional copies of Form 1120-W from any IRS office."

Dahlias may be grown from seed but most gardeners prefer to set out the tuberous roots.

E. J. MOORE DIES

Smart Discovery

A visitor of the golf club teed up for the first hole, made a wild swing and completely missed the ball.

"It's a good thing I found out from the start," he said. "This course is at least two inches lower than the one I usually play."

Attends Decorating School In Garland

GARLAND, TEXAS: Mrs. David A. Murray of Murray's Fine Furniture in Woodsboro, Texas attended a three days sales and decorating school sponsored by Norman's of Salisbury, manufacturers of nationally advertised custom window treatments and bedspreads. The school was held at the Dallas-Garland Holiday Inn (#11) in Garland.

At this school the retailers are trained in the art of window dressing and are considered "window fashion experts" when they complete the school. While at the school the retailers attended workshops on the use of color and fabrics in the art of window dressing and were shown how to coordinate other room furnishings with the window treatments. A panel of four retailers discussed the aspects of various types of businesses where home furnishings and window dressings are sold. The four panelists represented a carpet shop, a contract operation, a decorator business and a furniture store.

To popularize a production, famous actors often take roles that require their appearance on screen for only four or five minutes. Hence, any famous "face" seen briefly on a screen is considered a "cameo"....

News Article In 1926 Quoted Judge Harper on Highway Project

Mrs. Bertha Harper, retired teacher, was very proud of her husband, the late County Judge Joe A. Harper, and particularly his efforts in behalf of the "Hug-the-Coast" Highway project. "He made up the name 'Hug-the-Coast,'" Mrs. Harper states.

Mrs. Harper has compiled a scrapbook of news articles relating to the judge's work in connection with the project. Following is one article that appeared in 1926:

A joint meeting of the directors of the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce with representatives of Aransas Pass and Rockport Chambers of Commerce, was held Wednesday morning in the Chamber of Commerce rooms in the city hall building, says the Corpus Christi Times:

Rockport and Aransas Pass were represented by Judge Joe A. Harper, W.H. Allard, J.A. Zimmerman, W. L. Field and C. Spencer. This meeting was arranged to discuss matters of vital interest to these three cities. The principal talks for the visitors was made by Judge Harper, who pointed out the innumerable advantages that could be had by a close co-operation of these three points.

Judge Harper also called attention to the efforts being made to build the "Hug-the-Coast" highway, which is to run from Corpus Christi by Rockport and other coast towns to Houston and Galveston.

"This," said Judge Harper, "will open up a vast area of rich land and prosperous people; a direct benefit to Corpus Christi and provide a highway for the enormous number of people that would come to Corpus Christi from Houston and Galveston."

Recognizing Corpus Christi as the coming commercial center of this area, which is destined to become one of the greatest resort areas of the entire country, he pointed out that it was necessary that Corpus Christi co-operate with the other towns and that the other towns co-operate with Corpus Christi in order to build a real resort territory that would open to tourists and visitors some thing more than one point of interest.

Aransas Pass with its recently completed park on Ransom Island which is open to tourists absolutely free and the magnificent Live Oak Peninsula at Rockport, (the natural playground of the Gulf coast) form two of the greatest attractions that can be brought to the notice of visitors to Corpus Christi and give to these visitors points of interest that will retain them here much longer than if they had no other attractions than that of the beaches here.

Mayor Zimmerman of Aransas Pass pointed out the advantages of routing tourists for drives to that point, which has been equipped for their approach to Col. Sam Robertson's Ocean Beach Driveway, by the use of the short railway and drive built by Col. Robertson the time for the ferrying has been cut down to about one-fifth. He pointed out that this gave the tourist one of the greatest fishing resorts along the entire coast, if not in this country.

Mr. Allard also pointed out the advantages possessed by Rockport in making a pleasant day or more for tourists to Corpus Christi, and as he stated, they must come back to Corpus Christi if they were sent down there for a few days pleasure, as they had no adequate hotel facilities except their natural advantages, which would be thoroughly enjoyed by the tourist and it would spread much more rapidly than it has heretofore.

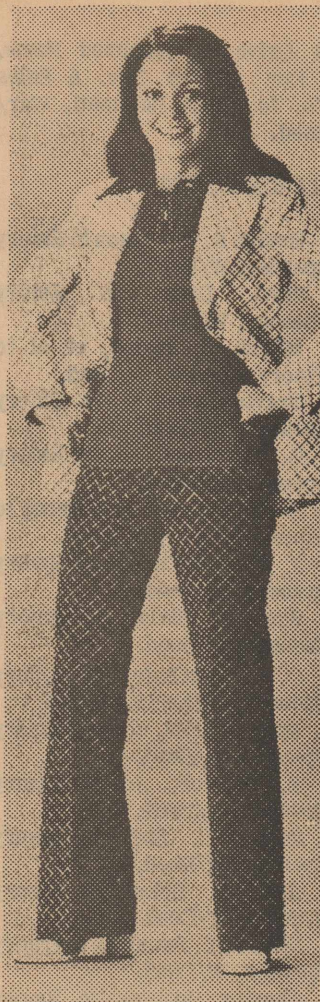

Short talks were made by Spencer and Field, both expressing the desire to have closer and friendly relations between these points now that they had secured a beautiful highway from Corpus Christi to Aransas Pass and Rockport.

Several talks were made by members of the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce in appreciation of this desire on the part of the people of Aransas Pass and Rockport to co-operate and join in making Corpus Christi the commercial city which it must be, realizing that Corpus Christi will prosper in proportion to the prosperity of its neighbors and its neighbors will prosper in proportion to the prosperity of Corpus Christi.

It was the general opinion of all present that these joint meetings were bringing a spirit of friendship and co-operation that would be of a benefit to the whole Corpus Christi bay coast.

After the meeting the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce was host at a luncheon at the Nueces hotel attended by members of the board of directors, the press, and the visiting guests of Rockport and Aransas Pass.

School Board Sets Tax Ratio

The taxpayers of the Aransas County Independent School District have provided the support to develop an excellent school system for the boys and girls of this community. The high standard of education in your schools must be maintained and where possible, improved.

A tax ratio of 35% was set in March, 1968, and has remained unchanged since. A total tax rate of $1.61 was set in August, 1970, and has remained unchanged since. We and the nation have experienced much inflation during the past few years. At this time, a change from a 35% to a 45% tax ratio is necessary so that a legal tax rate can be established in August 1973 that will meet budget requirements. 76.5% of the annual budget is salaries and this is the area where increased costs is most significant. 6.8% of the annual budget is used to retire our bonded debts. Thus 83.3% of the annual budget is fixed. This leaves only 16.7% in which any economy can be practiced yearly.

The Board of Equalization will continue to operate as usual; that is, equalizing taxes. We need your support to provide for the boys and girls of this community.

The following information is presented in explanation of the need for an increase in the tax ratio at this time. This need is based on an estimated budget for the 1973-1974 school year including both revenue and expenditures.

Local Maintenance

Estimated Expenditure	$ 1,757,302.00
Estimated State Revenue and Local Balance	$ 793,653.00
Revenue needed from local taxes	$ 963,649.00

Based on the current tax ratio of 35% with a maximum tax rate of $1.50 (established by law), the maximum revenue available would be $841,423.00 or a deficit of $122,226.00 in needed funds.

*Estimated Budget for 1973-74 school year.

At this time it is roughly estimated that a tax rate will be established in August 1973 that will result in a tax increase of approximately 20% for each taxpayer.

Example:

The tax on a house at a full market value of $20,000.00 is as follows:

Present tax	$112.70
Estimated tax	$135.24
An estimated increase of	$ 22.54

MEAT CEILING REGULATIONS

R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, today reminded meat sellers that they have until April 9 to post a list of ceiling prices on all meat items.

The meat ceiling regulations, announced on March 29 by President Nixon, impose a ceiling on the prices of beef, lamb and pork for an indefinite period. The regulations apply to all sales after slaughter except those made by retailers with annual sales or revenues of less than $100,000 and by restaurants to consumers.

Under price control regulations, meat sellers must maintain a copy of the ceiling price list and the calculations and supporting data upon which the list is based at each place where those meat items are offered for sale. Sellers must also inform meat product purchasers that the list is available and that they may compare the ceiling prices to current item prices, Phinney said.

In addition to these requirements, food retailers have special obligations. Each retail food store must display a list of ceiling prices for each of its meat items, except those offered for sale for the first time after the list is posted. These ceiling prices must be prominently posted and clearly legible on posters within the department in which the majority of the meat items are sold. The poster should be designed so that a purchaser may conveniently determine the name of each individual meat item and its ceiling price.

"After the April 9 deadline, the IRS will begin spot checking retail and wholesale firms for compliance with the ceiling prices. Consumers should then contact the IRS when a firm does not post prices or when current prices exceed the posted price," Phinney said.

Meat sellers seeking help in complying with the meat ceiling or a form to compute their ceiling prices may contact their Internal Revenue office.

Q. When must meat ceiling price lists be posted by retailers?

A. Ceiling price lists must be prominently posted in the department where a majority of the meat items are sold no later than April 9.

Q. What other information must be available?

A. Each seller of meat and meat products—manufacturer, wholesaler and retailer—must prepare a list of ceiling prices on all meat items. At the time and place of a sale, the purchaser must be informed that the list is available and that he may compare the ceiling prices to the current prices of the product. Also, the meat seller must have readily available for inspection by the Cost of Living Council or the Internal Revenue Service the calculations and data to support the ceiling price calculations.

Q. When are the meat ceiling prices effective?

A. The meat ceiling prices were made effective as of 9:00 p.m., EST, March 29, 1973. They will remain in effect indefinitely. No seller may charge a higher price than the ceiling and no purchaser may pay a higher price. There are no restrictions on setting prices below the ceiling.

Q. How are meat ceiling prices computed?

A. 1) Ceilings are based on the prices charged in the 30 days that ended Tuesday, March 27.

2) To compute his ceiling price for each meat item, the meat manufacturer, wholesaler, or retailer may use the highest price at or above which he made 10 per cent of his sales in the 30-day period. That price is the ceiling price. For example, a meat market sells 100 pounds of pork chops during the base period.

87 lbs. at $1.39/lb.

6 lbs. at $1.59/lb.

2 lbs. at $1.79/lb.

5 lbs. at $1.99/lb.

The ceiling price would be $1.59.

Q. Does the temporary meat price ceiling cover the corner grocery store which has been exempt through most of the Economic Stabilization Program?

A. Yes, except the very smallest retailers with annual sales or revenue of less than $100,000.

Q. Are restaurants and other food services organizations covered by the meat price ceilings?

A. Not in their sales to consumers, but they are covered as purchasers.

Time and people both change and there is no reason to worry about the process.

DOOR-TO-DOOR SALESPeOPLE MAY BE IGNORING TAX LAWS

Cosmetics, cleansers, cooking pots, and clothing are among the most common items sold by a million-and-a-half to three million Americans who ring their neighbors' doorbells or arrange "house parties" almost every day.

Unlike their fellow citizens who work in stores, factories and offices, many of those in direct sales may not be aware of their responsibilities as taxpayers, R. L. Phinney, District Director of Internal Revenue for southern Texas, said.

He explained that these salespeople usually are not considered employees by the firms manufacturing or distributing the products they sell, but are treated as "independent dealers." Because the dealers are not employees, they are not subject to income tax withholding, and they often mistakenly fail to file an income tax return or to include their income with their husband's or wife's return.

Independent dealers must file

Do high radio and television towers have a tendency to draw lightning and thereby lessen the danger to lower structures and trees nearby?

Yes, high metal towers will often draw electrical discharges from clouds passing overhead. So will especially tall buildings. Since the electrical charges of clouds are attracted by the nearness of high grounds, like transmission towers, these towers often pull the lightning that would otherwise discharge later, elsewhere.

If you live in the vicinity of very tall buildings or high metal towers—these structures will act as the old lightning rods were supposed to—draw the lightning and ground it harmlessly.

The tendency of these tall towers to attract lightning is recognized to an extent that builders install special lightning devices to carry off the frequent bolts that strike them. In a lightning storm, stay away from such structures, tall trees and any other high objects which might suddenly become a ground for electrical discharge from the clouds.

ELECTION TAX

The Internal Revenue Service reports about 2.8 per cent of the first 21 million persons to file income tax returns this year have authorized the new $1 check-off for financing presidential election campaigns.
