BAPTISTS PRESS FIGHT AGAINST NORRIS

Federal Reserve Directors to Hear Plaint of Texas Banks

FIGHT TO PUT OUT HEAD OF RESERVE HOT

Plea of Banks to Oust District Governor To Be Aired

TALLEY IS SILENT

Object of Bitter Raids By Bank Officials Is Reticent

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18. (AP)—The board of directors of the Dallas federal reserve bank at a meeting this month will fix a date for an investigation into the complaints of members of the federal reserve bank, J. P. Williams, president of the First National bank of Mineral Wells, Texas, and leader in the fight to remove Lynn P. Talley as governor of the federal reserve bank of Dallas, said tonight.

While Mr. Williams said that the report that some 350 members of the reserve bank are threatening to withdraw their membership was news to him, he declared that in connection with an investigation he has been making among member banks approximately 300 have stated they are dissatisfied with the present policy of the federal institution.

Mr. Williams was invited by the directors of the federal reserve bank to meet some time before the end of November at which time a date will be fixed for the hearing of member banks complaints, Mr. Williams said.

"Conditions are far worse than the public or average business man thinks," Mr. Williams said, concerning the policies of the reserve bank. "However, I believe, as do my colleagues, that relief can be had within the organization. Our criticism is constructive and not destructive. But the purpose of the bankers whom I represent is to remove Mr. Talley and get a new governor of the Dallas bank," Mr. Williams said.

350 BANKS THREATEN TO QUIT RESERVE

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18. (AP)—Because they are not pleased with some of the policies of the federal reserve bank of this district located at Dallas, approximately 350 member banks are threatening to withdraw from that institution, according to a story published today in the Star-Telegram.

"For several months some of the leading bankers of this state have conducted an investigation to determine if the members are pleased with the present reserve bank policies. The investigation has found many dissatisfied and many are threatening to withdraw and some who although members, are not patronizing the federal reserve to any extent," the Star-Telegram says.

"Failure of the federal reserve bank to extend credits or the method pursued in denying the credits is given as one reason for the dissatisfaction. Some bankers point out that the federal reserve system under present policies are not attractive and does not enlist the support or future membership of non-members. It is the purpose of the reserve bank to mobilize finances and this, under present operations, is not being done successfully, it is contended by those who conducted the investigation.

"Scores of letters have been received by the investigators and the majority of them agree they are not pleased at the policies of the Dallas bank.

GOVERNOR TALLEY REFUSES TO TALK

DALLAS, Nov. 18. (AP)—Lynn P. Talley, governor of the Dallas federal reserve district, refused to comment on reports of threatened withdrawal of banks in the district today.

It was pointed out at the bank that there are 820 members of the federal reserve system in the district, of which 719 were said to be national banks and unable to withdraw so long as they remain national banks.

Owners of Two Ships at New Orleans May Face Charges of Gun Running

By Universal Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18.—Owners of two ships overhauled here carrying munitions of war may be held on a charge of attempting to foment a revolution in Mexico, government agents said tonight.

A check-up showed that 7500 rounds of .38 caliber shells were being carried south by the steamers Lake Winoca and the Bholuteca, when they put into port here to complete their cargo. The Bholuteca carried 4500 rounds and the Lake Winoca 1500 rounds, while 1500 rounds was found hidden in the bunks of four members of the crew.

These men gave their names as Joe Martinez, Carlos Garcia, Juan Partilla and Juan Lopez. They are held for further investigation.

Boats From New York.

The federal authorities tonight were unable to say whether the two shipments were made by the same parties, but expressed the belief that the boats had been loaded at New York, where the owners are said to reside. Their names were not revealed.

The information that the ships overhauled here were carrying munitions is said to have come from the same source that revealed a cache of arms and ammunition at Albany, Calif., near Oakland, last night. William Rosas, alias Rojas is being sought by government agents in connection with the California case but government agents would not say that he is connected with the case here.

Embargo on Arms.

The government agents pointed out that while 7500 rounds of ammunition is a small consignment, it must be taken into consideration that there is an embargo against the shipment of arms and ammunition to Mexico but that it would be possible to make heavy exportations from this country by putting a small lot on each ship touching Mexican ports and that it could be landed without attracting the attention of the Mexican officials more readily than could a large consignment.

NEW BUILDINGS PLANNED AFTER $150,000 FIRE

Penney Company To Secure New Stock Of Goods

STORE IS WRECKED

Reconstruction Work To Start Soon On Building

Plans for rehabilitation by owners of both the building and stores in the 700 block on Eighth street wrecked by the early morning fire of Friday were underway before the last line of hose had been dragged away Friday afternoon. Insurance adjusters and fire department officials Friday did not change the total loss figure in the blaze from $150,000 although part of it had been reapportioned.

Losses Heavy.

J. C. Penney and company was the heaviest loser. The stock inventory was $87,000 and fixtures $13,000, bringing the total to $100,000. A. R. Watland, local manager, said Friday the store would immediately begin to cast about for temporary location but that definite action would await the outcome of a conference with eastern officials due here in a few days. Mr. Watland said he was certain a stock would be brought into Wichita Falls as soon as possible and operation started. What will be done about returning to the present location will be decided in the future.

Wiley L. Robertson, half owner of the building, was certain it will be replaced with much of the present walls used. He has been unable to consult executors of the J. W. Stringer estate as yet as to their attitude. He placed the damage to the building at $25,000 with $27,000 insurance. Fire department officials concurred with Mr. Robertson on his loss estimate and adjusters were busy investigating just what needed to be done to repair the structure.

No definite plans were announced by Walter E. Mahanay whose cafeteria was practically destroyed. He intends to re-enter business soon but will have to have all new fixtures. The loss on his stock and fixtures was placed at $12,000 by an insurance man. He carried $6000 in insurance. One of the freaks of the fire was the icebox of the cafeteria. Late Friday afternoon it still contained much unmelted ice despite the fact it was almost in the center of the flames for over an hour.

The first alarm for the fire was transmitted from Central station at 3:22 a. m. This brought out two pumpers and other apparatus. Shortly after arrival a second alarm was sent in and brought two more pumpers to the scene with three other pieces of apparatus. Firemen were first told of the fire when a policeman walked from the Penney store to the city hall and said there was a small fire in the building.

Spectacular Blaze.

The fire at times looked as if it might get away from the department but each time was held in the building where it started. Tongues of flame leaped through the roof and at times went as high as the eighth floor windows of the Staley building. The roof of the building soon became untenable for firemen and they were forced to battle with the flames from the

PRAYER EFFECTIVE

Man Wanted Boy And Prayed; Triplets Arrive

By Universal Service.

GILLETT, Wis., Nov. 18—The venerable stork called on the Earl Sexton home here in the past, the father on being apprised of the good fortune heard "It's a girl." Three times the stork called and on each occasion the Sexton's were blessed with daughters.

Dad Sexton then prayed for a boy. He likes girls, he admits, but he wants a son. The stork flapped its wings over the Sexton household again today.

"It's a boy," the doctor announced. Mr. Sexton smiled and shook the doctor's hand.

"Another boy," the doctor announced later.

Mr. Sexton grinned and slapped the doctor on the back.

"Triplets making it three boys," cried the doctor a moment later.

Mr. Sexton swooned.

TROTZKY EXILE REPORTS SAY

Rumors Have Radek Sent To Siberia

By Universal Service.

BERLIN, Nov. 18.—That Trotzky has been exiled to Solovetzky islands, in the white sea and Radek shipped to Siberia and forbidden to come closer to Moscow than Irkutsk, are the latest reports from the Polish rumor factories which have been working overtime since the split in the Russian communist party re-awakened the hopes of the monarchists.

While the Warsaw newspaper "Czerwonny Kurrier," today withdrew its yesterday's announcement that Trotzky had been assassinated by the Cheka, another Warsaw paper, Gen. Pilsudski's "Glos Drawdy," substituted with the story of the exile of Trotzky and Radek.

The Soviet embassy in Berlin has declared both reports false.

FOUNDER OF BYERS DIES IN KANSAS CITY

Col. George W. Byers, 78, Historic Figure In Clay County

BURIAL AT SHERMAN

Byers and His Brother Also Started Town Of Petrolia

Special to The Record News.

BYERS, Nov. 18. — Colonel George W. Byers, 78, founder of the towns of Byers and Petrolia and one of the largest landowners in Clay county died Thursday night at his home in Kansas City, according to word received here today.

Funeral services will be held at Sherman Saturday afternoon.

Colonel Byers and his brother, Walter Byers, came to Clay county from Sherman in 1884, purchasing about 34,000 acres of land in the northern part of the county. They laid out the towns of Petrolia and Byers a few years later.

President of the First National Bank here and with many business interests in this section, Colonel Byers made his home here until about three years ago when he moved to Kansas City where he also has large holdings.

Walter Byers died in 1912 and in the same year Colonel Byers married Mrs. Carry Jones of Sherman.

He is survived by his wife and several nieces and nephews, among whom is Sam B. Householder of this city, a former state representative.

MAN-MADE RUBBER

Synthetic Chain Gains Third Link Soon

FRANKFORT-ON-MAIN, Germany, Nov. 18. (AP)—While the world is still guessing the component substances of the newly developed German synthetic rubber, it is reported that one of the primary ingredients is artificial benzine, itself a newly invented product.

An agency dispatch reporting the belief that artificial benzine is used in the synthetic rubber says that this thus forms a third link in the chain of synthetic manufacture, nitrogen, benzine, rubber.

It is reiterated, however, that production is not yet beyond the trial state and that final judgment on the discovery must be suspended.

TO CARRY OUT WORK OF WOOD

President Considers List Of Candidates

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—In selecting a new governor general for the Philippines, President Coolidge intends to find a man who will adhere strictly to the enforcement of the Jones organic act.

At the White House today it was also disclosed that the president also favors the selection of a man who has had some experience in the Philippines and is familiar with conditions there. He is still canvassing the list of candidates and no indication was given as to how far he had gone in cutting down the field.

The president, it was said on his behalf, is resentful over implications that friends of Leonard Wood are attempting to have a governor general selected who would perpetuate his policies in the Philippines. He resents this, it was added, because he feels that he himself was one of the governor general's best friends.

The president considers that no one appreciated the work of General Wood any more than he did.

Mr. Coolidge is of the opinion that repeated speculations in newspapers regarding a successor to General Wood are inspired both in this country and in the Philippines by a desire to obtain advance information as to who will be appointed.

Paris Police Hold Alleged Counterfeiter

AUSTIN, Nov. 18. (AP)—Charles Cain, with two charges of counterfeiting against him in federal court here is being held in jail in Paris, Texas, Austin police were notified Thursday night. Cain broke for freedom as a detective fired five shots at him on October 28, during a raid upon a house here which resulted in counterfeiting charges against his 15-year-old wife, Louise, another woman and two other men.

Ammunition Seized By Customs Officers

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18. (AP)—Customs officers seized 7500 rounds of ammunition in raids on two ships, one due to sail for Puerto Cortez, Honduras, and the other to Tampico, Mexico, here today. The ammunition for .38 calibre pistols is believed by officials to have been intended for smugglers and without connection in revolutionary activities. The seizures were referred to department of justice agents for investigation and action.

Excavations Show Bethel, Beitin Same

JERUSALEM, Palestine, Nov. 18. (AP)—Excavations by the American School of Archeology appeared to confirm that the site of Bethel, place of Jacob's dream and Jeroboam's golden calf, and Beitin, two miles east of the road from Jerusalem to Nablus and 12 miles north of Jerusalem, are identical. The excavations have disclosed Israelite pottery and remains surprisingly near the surface.

Orphans' Home Board Changed by Vote Of Convention

NORRIS REPLIES

Fort Worth Pastor To Answer Series Of Air Sermons

For the second time during the Baptist convention in session here, one man dissension which reared its futile head behind the shadow of the Rev. J. Frank Norris when the resolutions "vindicating" Baylor university and its president were passed Wednesday, was overruled at the close of the Friday afternoon session, when the 27 members of the board of trustees of Buckner's orphans home were appointed.

The report of the nominating committee, read by the chairman, A. J. Carson, of Victoria, re-appointed the majority of the trustees, leaving out, however, the names of J. D. Robinson and J. F. Parks, both of Dallas. Dwight Lewellyn, also of Dallas, rose during the consideration of the report to ask "why these two fine men had been ommitted from the nominations." Leaders among the Baptists who were on the platform said that Mr. Lewellyn "favored Norris."

WICHITA PASTOR TO PRESIDE TODAY.

Former Gov. Pat M. Neff, president of the Texas Baptist convention, left Wichita Falls after the adjournment of the Friday evening session, being called to his home at Waco on business matters. Cullen F. Thomas, one of the three vice-presidents, is also to leave Saturday morning for Dallas, he said.

The convention Saturday, in its closing session, will be in charge of Dr. O. L. Powers, Wichita Falls, and the Rev. F. B. Thorn, of Waco, vice-presidents elect, it was announced.

The report of this nominating committee had been delayed until the last transaction of the day's order of business, the remaining trustees of the various institutions have been appointed Friday morning. No official explanation was given from the floor of the convention.

Board Named

One member of the board, J. L. Smith of Amarillo, died during the last year; and the fourth man to be replaced was J. C. Calhoun of Corsicana. The board for the ensuing year, as adopted by the vote of the convention follows:

John H. Jullom, Dallas; W. P. Portwood, Fort Worth; A. C. Hoover, Ozona; O. L. Clark, Burkburnett; J. N. Killman, Dallas; Clyde West, Dallas; T. V. Murray, Dallas; J. B. Alvis, Weatherford; John G. Reed, Hillsboro; E. M. Friend, Terrell; George Murphy, Sherman; J. N. Rayzor, Denton; E. W. Saunders, Dallas; W. S. Howard, Ennis; Fred S. Hall, San Antonio; T. W. Burleson, Waxahachie; W. K. Ward, Waxahachie; J. B. Fisher, Waco; Hal S. White, Lancaster; Charles R. Moore, Dallas; W. B. Tuggle, Greenville; J. M. Black, San Antonio; J. N. Neal, Houston; Esca Harrison, Hereford; J. J. Birdwell, Mineral Wells; J. C. Jones, Nevada; and J. P. Crouch, McKinney.

Battle Over Radio.

Dr. L. R. Scarbrough announced Friday a series of radio programs November 21-28, inclusive, dealing with the convention's attitude toward the Rev. J. Frank Norris. The programs will be given over station KFQB, wave length 330, from 9:30 to 10:30 each night, and will be on the general subject of "Norrisism, Its Spirit, Method and Misrepresentations."

The Rev. Norris countered Friday night with the declaration that he would "ask his own people to he'p pay for the series of radio programs," announced by Dr. Scarbrough. He also announced that as soon as each speaker each night has completed his address, he will tune in and "give my side of the question."

Subjects and speakers announced by Dr. Scarbrough included: Monday night, Dr. L. R. Scarbrough, "Norrisism and Misrepresentation"; Tuesday, Dr. S. P. Brooks, "Baylor and Evolution"; Thursday, Dr. P. S. Groner, "Opening the Books"; Friday, Dr. J. B. Tidwell, "A Campaign of Hate"; Monday, Dr. J. L. Ward, "Certain Charges Against Norrisism."

The highlights of the Friday evening session of the convention centered around two campaigns for raising money, one in the interest of W. H. Jones, Tyron-Evergreen association missionary, of Conroe, Texas, whose Ford car was stolen Thursday, and another in the interest of the Montezuma Baptist

Money Love — A Great Love Story By Beatrice Burton — November 25

"MONEY LOVE," another great girl story by Beatrice Burton, author of "Sally's Shoulders," "The Hollywood Girl," etc., is to start November 25 in The Record News. It is the story of an American family and a beautiful, headstrong girl who started out in the wrong direction.

* * *

In the whole wide world, there probably was no one more beautifully useless than Lily, the only daughter of Cyrus Lexington of Our Town, at the time she became of age. Lily thought money was everything.

* * *

LILY had always had what she wanted until the time she was 22. The first thing she ever wanted, without knowing how to get it, was a certain handsome, black-haired young man with Irish-blue eyes. Money wasn't everything to him!

* * *

Lily got herself engaged to the richest young man in town. By marrying him she could have a mansion, servants, luxurious cars and speed boats. Her mother hoped she would marry him.

THE story of Lily's romance is one of the most absorbing love stories of the day written by America's greatest serial story writer. Watch for "Money Love" by Beatrice Burton. You won't want to miss a chapter. "Money Love" will be the serial treat of the year.

Lily Lexington is an amazing girl and you will like her.

Convention Opposes Boom For Al Smith

college, at Las Vegas, N. M., which has appealed to Texas Baptists to raise $3400 towards paying off the $200,000 indebtedness of the school.

Funds Subscribed.

The convention, after hearing addresses by C. R. Barrick, president of Montezuma college; C. W. Stumph of Las Vegas, and Dr. George Truett of Dallas, went far above the quota set by the college, raising $3705 in pledges from convention delegates and churches, and giving $310.28 in cash and checks, making a total of approximately $4000. Approximately $500 was raised towards purchasing Mr. Jones a new Ford car, which, he explained to the convention, he needed badly in his work as a missionary. Further contributions towards this fund will be accepted by W. E. Young, of the First Baptist church, the latter announced.

The subject of raising money for the New Mexico college was introduced by F. S. Groner, general secretary of the convention.

"This college," he said, "is the only Christian institution between Abilene and California, and between Missouri and Old Mexico. There are only 11,000 Baptists in that state, and they have undertaken to bear the burden of the indebtedness, if the southern states will volunteer to subscribe $25,000 of the amount. Of this stipulation, Texas' allotment is $3400."

Wichitans Aid Cause.

Dr. S. P. Brooks, president of Baylor university, also made a brief speech, urging members to contribute their all to the aid of the cause. Response was instant, W. H. Fuqua of Amarillo, answering the call of Dr. Truett with a $500 subscription. He was followed by a number of delegates who subscribed $100, among them Mrs. Carl Williamson of Iowa Park; W. T. Knight, R. E. Huff and J. C. Mytinger, all of Wichita Falls, and numerous others. The choir of the First Baptist church, it was announced by Dr. O. L. Powers, pastor, will contribute $50.

President Pat M. Neff responded to the call, pledging to give an individual donation of $25. The South Side Baptist church of Wichita Falls also subscribed $25, and included in other subscriptions was the Rio Grande Valley association, which pledged through its representative to give $150.

The meeting opened with a report on laymen's work, given by Earl B. Smyth, president of the First National bank of Mart. The report read advocated the employment by the convention of a capable layman to act as secretary of laymen's work, whose duty will be to promote denominational programs in the churches of the state. This move, it was explained, has been advocated in previous conventions with no results, and stands today, the speaker said, as "the most important responsibility confronting Baptists today." Joe J. Burnet, former president of the state Baptist convention of Tennessee, of Memphis, also spoke in favor of the recommendation. The report was adopted by the convention.

Negro Choir Sings.

H. G. Williams of Seminary Hill, chairman of the students' work committee, read his report to the convention, giving an outline of the progress of the workers maintained in the various colleges and institutions, and stressing the work of the Baptists' Student union. Further comment was offered by Andrew Allen, student of the Southwestern Baptist Theological seminary, Fort Worth, and president of the state convention of the B. S. U., and R. L. Brown, denominational worker of A. and M. college.

The report of the home missions committee was given by the Rev. W. Marshall Craig, pastor of the Gaston Avenue Baptist church, Dallas, who emphasized the point that the increasing prosperity of the south had enlarged the field of home missions. Comment on the report was offered by J. M. Dawson, Waco, and A. J. Barton of the extension department of the home mission board of Atlanta, Ga.

The convention adjourned at 10:30 o'clock in favor of a series of solos by a negro choir of about 20 voices, which was recruited and trained in Wichita Falls by the Rev. J. W. Bailey, negro minister, of Dallas.

The Friday afternoon session, devoted almost wholly to reports of institutions and committees, was opened by a song service led by Robert Jolly, superintendent of the Baptist hospital, Houston; the devotional led by W. B. Glass, missionary from China; and a vocal solo by Mr. Jolly, who played his own piano accompaniment.

Seminary Work

The topic of the work among the Baptist seminaries was introduced by the general report on these institutions, which was read by the Rev. A. L. Aulick, pastor of the University Baptist church, Austin. After the unanimous adoption of his report reported on the work of that institution; and Dr. L. R. Scarbrough, president of the Southwestern Theological seminary at Fort Worth, gave a brief report for the Baptist Bible institute at New Orleans, this institution having no representative at the convention.

Dr. W. W. Barnes, professor of seminary diverged from a report on seminary, diverged from areport on that institution to give a history of the growth of the methods employed from early times in the training of men for Christian leadership.

Aid Pastor's Son

A feature at this juncture of the session was the donation by members of the convention of $350, to be used in the furtherance of the education of the son of S. Mose, Baptist minister, who has a church in Nazareth, in the Holy Land. The son of this preacher, it was explained in addresses by Dr. Scarbrough, and Dr. George Truett, of Dallas, and others, has graduated with high honors from the San Marcos Baptist academy, and from Baylor university, and is now in the Baylor medical college, equipping himself with a scientific education that he might be a missionary scientist in the land of his father. The money was raised by about 30 convention members who volunteered $10 contributions, the remainder giving $5.

Thanks to City

A resolution expressing appreciation for the entertainment of convention members by the city of Wichita Falls, for the use of the new municipal auditorium, for the co-operation of various representatives of the press, and for the reduction of rates made railroad companies was introduced by W. R. Hornburg. The measure was unanimously passed.

The report of the committee on obituaries was read by Dal H. Heard, chairman, of Big Spring, who explained the custom of devoting a page of the annual publication of the convention to the memory of the departed dead. The assembly stood in memory of the departed ones, while Hal F. Buckner led a minutes' prayer.

Other reports were heard from C. R. Shirer, of Breckenridge, chairman of the committee on evangelism; Ross A. Smith, of Lamesa, chairman of the committee on Sunday schools; the Rev. R. W. Deazer of Temple, chairman of the B. Y. P. U. committee; and from the committe on the constitution and charter.

The spotlight of the morning session swerved into fiery brilliance when a measure urging "all Christian citizens to oppose the nomination of any man for the presidency of the United States by any party, who is a friend of the outlawed liquor traffic." The resolutions, evidently smiting the friends of Al Smith, was introduced by the Rev. George W. McCall, of Dallas, and brought forth the approval of Arthur J. Barton, Atlanta, Ga., superintendent, of the department of extension of the Southern Baptists convention, who praised the measure after he had read the report of the civic righteousness committee.

Neff Stirs Convention.

Chief of the orators, however, was Pat M. Neff, who brought surging applause from the convention with his address on law enforcement, in which he stated the view that "no officer should be elected who does not believe that the prohibition laws should be enforced." "The atmosphere of Texas," he continued," has been saturated with lawlessness for years, and it is now time to usher in a new day of law and order for Texas." W. H. Fuqua, Amarillo, and Judge O. C. Lattimore, Austin, also spoke in favor of the adoption of the reports and the resolution.

A second feature was the reading of the report of the committee to appoint trustees for the various Baptist schools of the state, which was given by D. K. Martin, San Antonio, chairman. The trustees for their respective schools follow:

Baylor University, Waco and Dallas.

National Air Line Assured If Port Is Opened, Council Told

The last great air line in the national system for the transportation of mail, express and passengers is now being completed, and Wichita Falls will be on this line if it is able to offer an adequate airport for commercial and government planes, Joe Carrigan told the business council at its luncheon Friday noon.

System Nearly Complete

The national system of airways is now complete with the exception of a line from the Pacific coast across the south, and this route is now being prepared, the council was told. Wichita Falls is assured of designation if it provides a suitable port, otherwise the route will be by way of Fort Worth.

Wichita Falls without an airport will be like a seaport town without a harbor, docks or channel markers, the speaker declared in urging the completion of the $25,000 capital stock for the Wichita Falls Airport corporation. Subscriptions now total $14,500, it was announced.

Report on the special train to Amarillo for the Amarillo-Wichita Falls football game Thanksgiving day was made by Will Huff, who urged business men to attend the game if possible, or to purchase a ticket sending a member of the high school band with the team and the Wichita Falls delegation. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of schools, also urged members to attend the game in a brief talk.

Chest Appeal

Each department of the Community Chest was discussed by James V. Allred in an appeal to the business council to help in making the campaign a success. Wichita Falls' per capita quota for the chest is the lowest of any city in Texas, he said.

J. W. Chatham announced the distribution of the industrial reports of the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce. Copies of the report are available at the chamber of commerce. The council voted to postpone its meeting of next Friday, and Arthur C. Rayzor, chairman of the council, urged all members to be present for the meeting the following week.

CANYON PAVES 42 NEW BLOCKS

One Project Already Under Way

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Nov. 18.—Extensive additions will be made to the paved streets of Canyon in the spring of 1928. Already petitions are in the hands of city commissioners asking for 36 blocks of paving, and another petition is virtually complete asking for six blocks.

The city bonds for the new paving project have already been contracted for. The bonds commanded a new high price for small town paving bonds. The Brown-Crummer company bought the bonds at 4.3 per cent interest.

Arrangements were made to buy more than the $30,000 contracted for if petitions are presented for enough paving to make the city's share greater than this.

An engineer was employed and has already begun work on the paving project.

In connection with the paving program, a six-inch water man will be added on Seventh avenue, greatly increasing the water protection for that street.

To Hold Meeting On Pease Irrigation Plan

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 18.—A meeting of the directors of the Pease-River Irrigation association will be called at an early date, according to an announcement made by Byron T. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the association. At this meeting, plans will be considered and some definite steps taken to continue investigation of the practibility of the proposed irrigation and water improvement district. It is expected that the meeting will be called before the end of November.

MANITOU PERSONALS

MANITOU, Okla., Nov. 18.—Dr. Nation of Wicalta, Kan., addressed the students of the Manitou schools Monday morning.

Mrs. W. F. Holland and son, W. F. Jr., of Amherst, Texas, are visiting at the home of Mrs. Holland's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Grissom of west of Manitou.

Mrs. Colle Williams of Amherst, Texas, is visiting with relatives and friends near Manitou.

Rev. John Halser of Denver, Colo., spent Thursday and Sunday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Stoll of east of Manitou. He conducted a meeting at the German church this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Stoll and George Zittercob and Bennie Stoll from east of Manitou visited for several days in Kansas during the past week.

A good sized audience attended the senior class play, "Bees on a String," given at the high school auditorium Monday night.

Rev. L. L. Hall, formerly of Lexington, Okla., arrived a few days ago to take charge of the pastorate of the First Methodist church to take the place of the Rev. A. L. Barrett who has been sent to Gould, Okla.

Rev. A. F. Whitlock, pastor of the First Baptist church at this place three years, and who recently accepted a call to the pastorate of the Olustee Baptist church, left Wednesday with his family for that place to make their home. Rev. Whitlock preached his farewell sermon here Sunday night to a large audience.

Rev. T. W. Preston, Dallas, Texas, evangelist, who is conducting a revival meeting at the First Methodist church at Hollister, was in charge of the chapel exercises at the high school Friday morning. Rev. H. P. Hoffman, pastor of the Methodist church at Hollister, accompanied Rev. Preston and was introduced to the school.

TATOO CALVES

New "Branding" Idea Put Into Effect At W. T. T. C.

Special to The Record News.

CANYON, Nov. 18.—The tattoo idea borrowed from the breeders of Hereford cattle in the Isle of Jersey has been put into practice on the Jersey herd owned by the West Texas State Teachers colege. Every animal, from the most valuable cow down to the youngest calf carries the tattoo in his ear for the purpose of identification.

This mark is inserted by means of special machine which places indelible ink below the surface of the skin, thereby eliminating the possibility of "changing brands."

The tattoo system makes it possible for the purchaser to buy an animal from the herd and be assured there is no possibility for a mistake in blood lines.

Today { At the Theaters

By Ruth Morrison

Majestic: "The Fair Co-ed," with Marion Davies; Fables, Topics of the Day and Paramount News.

Strand: "Ben-Hur," with Ramon Navarro and May McAvoy; comedy and Pathe News.

Olympic: "Open Range," with Lawrence Grey, comedy and stage revue, "Merrymakers Revue."

Mission: Renee Adoree in "Back to God's Country," comedy and on the stage Al Russell's Baby Vamptres in musical comedy.

Garden: Buck Jones in "Good as Gold," No. 1 of "Hawks of the Hills," serial, and comedy.

Gem: "Speeding Hoofs," with Dick Hatton; No. 5 "Perils of the Jungle," and comedy.

Picture-goers who never miss an opportunity to see Marion Davies on the screen are going to be given an opportunity to see the real Marion during the next five days, when "The Fair Co-ed," her latest starring vehicle is shown at the Majestic theater.

During her entire film career Marion Davies has had little opportunity to show her real self to her great following of screen admirers. Her roles have nearly always demanded that she almost completely change her personality.

In "The Fair Co-ed," Miss Davies will be seen as herself—a typical American co-ed of today!

Miss Davies is supported in this story of college life by a cast which includes many college graduates. There is Johnny Mack Brown, who was Alabama's star halfback two seasons ago and who is now a leading male player. There are dozens of famous college amateur athletes and there are physical instructors, cheer leaders and hundreds of students taken from the colleges and universities of California to appear in this one production.

The magnificent plot, fine characterization and beautiful love story are among the outstanding reasons why "Ben-Hur" has gripped the imagination of America for fifty years. In the motion picture now showing at the Strand theater the splendid portrayals of Ben-Hur by Ramon Novarro, Esther by May McAvoy, Mother of Hur by Claire McDowell, and Tirzah by Kathleen Key, add to the effect and enhance the romance. These players live the romantic side of the story, which is just as engrossing as the sea battle or even the chariot race.

Miss McAvoy, who previously was best remembered by her role of Grizel in "Sentimental Tommy," is a charming Esther, daughter of the Merchant of Antioch, who secretly has saved the Hur fortune for the young heir, and Ramon Novarro in the Ben-Hur role is handsome, valiant, marked by sincerity, depth and range of feeling.

Perhaps the deepest note is struck after Ben-Hur and Esther set out to find his lost kin, who have been immured in a forgotten Roman dungeon and (unknown to him) finally released as outcasts. Mother and Tirzah find the youthful Ben-Hur asleep on a bench outside the disused palace of Hur. The sister kisses his shoe but the mother does not dare to touch him. Silently they go away to save him from the ruin which is theirs.

There are few dry eyes during the enactment of this scene. But the sorrow is turned to joy after Esther discovers the outcasts in the Vale of Hinnon, takes them to the Divine Healer, whose benediction cures them and the happy four are reunited.

* * *

A picture as impressive as the vast uncharted snow regions of the North is being shown at the Mission theater today.

It is "Back to God's Country," a dynamic tale of the North, from James Oliver Curwood's ever-popular novel of the same name, and has been made into a really spectacular production by Irvin Willat who directed for Universal.

Renee Adoree is effervescent in her role which is both dramatic and gaily youthful. This characterization will win for her many more fans. Robert Frazer is handsome and manly in the male lead and demonstrates his ability as a real actor.

Electra C-C Budget 75 Per Cent Subscribed

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 18.—At the end of the third day of the membership renewal campaign, 75 per cent of the 1928 budget of $8000 had been pledged, according to E. V. Haltom, chairman of the budget committee of the Electra chamber of commerce. Members of the budget committee and campaign workers, meeting as guests of the Lion's club Thursday, stated that they were confident that the full amount of $8000 needed would be obtained when all old members and prospective members have been visited by the committees.

During the ensuing week special committees will call on members and prospective members who were out of the city during the first three days of the campaign and an effort will be made to give every business and professional man an opportunity to play his part in Electra's program of development.

French railways, which showed unusually high receipts early this year, had a drop during the late tourist season.

A doctor, a lawyer, and an engineer, alleged to belong to an international spying organization, were recently arrested in Prague.

THANKSGIVING ROMANCE

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Cheerful Spirit of Gratitude Wins Devoted Love

By Beatrice Fairfax,
An Authority on the Problems of Love and Marriage.

THESE crisp Fall days, with the President's proclamation resounding from churches, schools and homes, with the very spirit of harvest and Thanksgiving in the air, is it not natural and worth while to revert in imagination to another Thanksgiving Day just 306 years ago—a Thanksgiving Day dressed in garments of romance.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX

That first Thanksgiving Day—can you not picture it!

The weather is Indian Summer. An azure sky is flooded with sunlight, which glorifies the scarlet and gold of Autumn foliage and is reflected in a sea as blue as the sky.

Early as it is—barely nine in the morning—the entire Plymouth colony is astir. For has not the good Governor proclaimed a three day feast, lasting from Thursday morning through Saturday, to commemorate the colony's first harvest and its deliverance from famine and pestilence, privation and starvation, that first year in the wilderness of the New World!

At dawn, about ninety Indians, bidden to the feast, had arrived a little ahead of time, with screeches of delight, which were anything but reassuring to timid members of the tiny colony like weepy Remember Allison.

The morning devotion was over. The Indians had listened reverently, believing the white men were invoking their Great Spirit to bless them and kill their enemies. Fires had been lighted outside the log "Common House," over which were suspended great kettles of brass and copper. Here girls and young men, with a few young married women, were hard at work preparing vast quantities of corn and turnips, root beer, cold beef and mustard, clams, grapes, wild plums and hasty pudding. The older men were in the woods hunting game, especially that newly discovered delicacy, wild turkey, with which to grace the second day's feast.

Foremost among the workers is pretty Priscilla Mullins. She seems the very spirit of energy and joyous effervescence despite her plain drab Puritan garb.

Priscilla, for all her slender youth, is the best cook. Likewise she is the most popular girl of the colony, although she is now and then reproved by her elders for "unseemly mirth."

The dinner was a huge success.

The women ate by themselves in the Common House, the men at a rough table outdoors. At dessert, John brought Priscilla a great dish filled with a delicious concoction which was new to every one of them save the Indians who had brought a great sack of it as a surprise. It was popcorn.

Priscilla was so busy and so full of gay spirits that she did not realize that both Miles Standish and his friend John Alden were hoping and praying for the chance to tell her of their love, and ask her hand in marriage.

We all know the happy ending of her romance—how she married sturdy, handsome young John Alden, who was such a favorite with the colony because, as their historian of that day has quaintly expressed it, "he was hopeful."

The giving of thanks, the spirit of joyful appreciation of benefits and blessings, is so important to the progress and success of nations and individuals that today Thanksgiving has come to be one of our most sacred national holidays.

The real Thanksgiving spirit is essential to a girl's success in her life-long quest of romance. It banishes every ugly emotion, such as hate, pessimism, loneliness.

I am not suggesting forced cheerfulness, but the good sense which sees and stresses the sun shine, not the gloom.

Then if you can hold this Thanksgiving spirit through every day of the year, think of the lovely charm that will be yours attracting happy romance through marriage to the Lucky Man of your heart.

The Dark Angel

Temptation, Beautiful and Sinister, Hovers Over Us

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

TEMPTATION like a beautiful dark angel disturbs her peace.

And, strange, too, that the shadow of temptation should be cast by Fair Love that shines from the happiness of a White Angel.

Love, a strange emotion that has more moods and tenses than an irregular verb, has also two strong voices. One calls a trifle obviously in a loud but luring voice to things of Wealth-Land where nectar is in a cup soon drained of its happiness.

Then, a faint voice, but one that calls in a persistent tone of appeal, almost whispers of its sweet, enduring life. And again there is a Wealth-Land where gold is pure happiness and not of the coin that turns brass with time.

And, while the voices call, pictures of the future pass in quick succession.

When TEMPTATION flickers on the screen of Life, it is a vivid thing of gay happiness of a dubitable kind. A happiness of clinking glasses, noisy protestations of love that expresses itself in parties, promises and all the lure of gold-rimmed TEMPTATION.

And, the White Angel also paints her picture. A cottage window whose pane of glass is an enduring heart. A cottage vine that binds the love-folk of its home with the strength of its tight entwining. And, a curly head is glimpsed through the open window. A perfect angel come to live with them who denied TEMPTATION and were guided by the story of a White Angel.

Do You Worship Before an Idol Built of Fears?

By Lucy Lowell.

HAVE you a little idol all safely perched upon a pedestal somewhere before which you bend a faithful knee?

Yes, of course you have. Who hasn't?

An idol you've made yourself, or one you've accepted at the hands of some one else, standing firmly and all-dominating, though perhaps not acknowledged consciously.

LUCY LOWELL

Something which causes you to feel the atavistic urge to propitiation. That fear, possibly, expressed in "What will they say?" Jealousy. Quick and easy discouragement. Self doubt. Regret for things past. Doubt of the future.

All idols these, dominant and terrible. And senseless.

Emerson wrote: "We boast our emancipation from many superstitions; but if we have broken any idols it is through a transfer of the idolatry. What have I gained that I no longer immolate a bull to Jove or to Neptune, or a mouse to Hecate . . . if I quake at opinion, the public opinion, as we call it, or at the threat of assault, or contumely, or bad neighbors, or poverty or mutilation, or of murder?"

Even so. Jove of the ancients has been proved a myth and Diana of the Ephesians is no longer great.

But our little twists of character—our fears and weaknesses and our failure to maintain a sure sense of the high and fine and courageous thing always—these are colossal.

These are our idols which should be broken and cast out: from these we must one day become emanci-

"Housewife Hands" Demand Use of Rubber Gloves

By Chas. A. L. Reed, M. D.,
Former President of the American Medical Association.

IF you are a housewife of that fortunate class who do much or all of their own housework, you are very liable to have more or less trouble with your hands.

That is because civilized life, of which the real working housewife is the highest exponent, exposes the skin to constant irritation—each irritation being an assault upon the skin of the hands of "mother" and the hired girl." This might be avoided if, first, the susceptibility of the individual and, next, the constituents of patent cleansers were considered more carefully.

Much skin inflammation is due to the use of soda and soda preparations, strong soaps and the chloride of lime used for bleaching clothes. But while many women who care for their hands realize the danger of soda and take precautions after using it, very few stop to think that "quick washers" contain soda or some other irritating ingredient.

Even such an innocent substance as water itself will cause a "water maceration dermatitis"—water-soaked inflammation of the skin—in those whose hands are in water for several hours a day, such as rish washers or hospital scrubbers.

Other household preparations dangerous to the skin of housewives are the dilute acids used for cleaning lavatory basins and pans; furniture polishes, leather preservatives and metal polishes; quick drying enamels and paints, rapid paint cleaners, storage batteries, disinfectants and insecticides. Any of these may be the cause of a mysterious skin disease in the housewoker, due to the peculiar susceptibility of the worker rather than to the irritating substance itself.

The same irritant may produce different results on different skins. Some bakers, even housewives who do much baking, get a festering eruption of the skin of the arms, while others escape with reddening and skin peeling. Lime, used in cleaning and whitewashing, produces in some an inflammation of the arms and neck. In others it causes a rash at the places where the skin is folded.

There are many cases of the "housewife hand" among other occupational workers. One reason why occupational skin disease is so common is that industrial processes have multiplied and developed so quickly that the workmen have not had time to learn about the substances they handle. It may be that the employers discourage curiosity, or that many processes are necessarily kept secret.

Another difficulty is that workers will not help the doctor to discover the cause of their complaint for fear that they will be ordered to stop work. Nevertheless, it is in the patient's best interest that he should be removed from work that is harmful for his skin. Most cases quickly clear up when the exciting cause is taken away, but continued irritation is asking for severe incurable skin disorder and for eventual cancer.

Where these peculiar susceptibilities exist they should be recognized. The highly sensitive skin should be protected. This is easily done by wearing rubber gloves and by similar protection to other exposed parts of the body.

Our Rhyming OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

SOMETIMES the world's a cruel place, unfriendly as can be; again it shows another face when some one comes to tea. It's strange how such a little thing can wholly change the day, a friend's sweet smile makes pulses sing, drives fret and care away. Sometimes the hours go lagging by, no mirth, no jollity; the clock's slow ticking seems to sigh till some one comes to tea. When some one comes to tea the fire glows very bright and red, the dancing flames leap higher, higher, to shine on jam and bread. The silver teapot's gleaming spout glows rosy-hued and bright, and when the amber tea pours out it takes a golden light. The world is such a queer old place; good? bad? Men's can't agree, but still it turns a kindly face when some one comes to tea.

When Manners Are Correct

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Wedding Announcements.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN: Recently I received a wedding announcement from a young man who not so long ago was proposing to me. Need I respond? I know that a gift would be inappropriate and fear that a letter would be embarrassing. I do not know his wife, but am sure that she knows of my "affair" with him.

2. And I also want to ask you about something else. My fiance has asked me to visit his home with him some week-end, saying that his family are anxious to meet me. Would it be proper for me to go without an invitation from his mother? I feel sure that she has urged him to bring me, but feel queer about going without a more formal type of invitation. He is beginning to think I don't want to go. How can I tactfully tell him why I do not go?

3. Likewise I plan to have him visit my family soon. My father knows him. Should he write a little note to Bob, asking him to come, or is that necessary in this case? My mother is not living. M. D.

IT IS not really necessary to acknowledge wedding announcement, and, under the circumstances, I agree with you that it would be wiser not to write a note of congratulation.

2. This is a very distinct problem, and am glad that you are taking such a wise and socially-sure point of view about it. Of course you could not go without an invitation from your fiance's mother, the hostess of the home you would be visiting. It will, I assure you, be very easy for you to be gracious about explaining to your fiance why you hesitate to go before you have had an invitation from his mother. The situation demands a gracious frankness, and you will be surprised how easy the matter will be solved. Just say, quite honestly, "Bob, I should love to go to visit your family, but I really wouldn't want to go without having a direct invitation from your mother. If you will ask her to invite me, I should like nothing better in the world than to go. Will you do that?" Don't be a bit worried about doing this, dear girl, for it often has to be done!

I am sure that it is just carelessness on the part of the mother that she has not written to you to ask you to come, for that would be the correct thing for her to have done.

3. In this case, too, your fiance should be invited to visit in your home. Your father should write him and invite him welcomingly, to your home. Too, if you have an elder sister who is the housekeeper or the hostess of your home, she should also write him an invitation.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Folly's Daughter

Jill Shannon.

A Thrilling New Mystery of New York Night Life

By Ann Lisle

AS the door of Tony Savelli's apartment opened, Jill stood staring in fascinated silence . . . In another moment Tony would come swaggering in with his lithe grace. He would take her in his arms. He would draw her to him and call her his honeybunch before he kissed her as he had kissed her once—long ago. She shuddered at the remembrance. But she told herself grimly that she would forget her foolish dream when she found herself swallowed up in reality. Tony wouldn't let her remember Mac Shannon . . .

ANN LISLE

She braced herself against the wall and called gaily, though her voice shook beneath its bravdo.

"Tony! Hurry up. You're late enough. I've been waiting—and waiting."

Tony swaggered in. He was young and handsome and he had the lithe grace of a jungle cat. His arms were full of roses. He dropped them and came and seized Jill and drew her to him.

"Bella bambina!" he said triumphantly. "My honeybunch. So you've come early. You couldn't wait. You're here. I've been shopping—getting my house in order to receive you, my darling—my girl——"

"I've got to go back to Beppo's," Jill said breathlessly. "I just came to bring my things—to settle it. I thought it would be better to bring them first and then tell Beppo I was coming."

"You can't tell Beppo," Tony protested. "You can't do that. He—might—kill me. He might not let me have you——"

"You're not afraid of Beppo—" Jill began, but a girl's voice interrupted her:

"I guess he's even going to be afraid of me—when I come in and catch you like this!"

Tony screamed. And then Jill heard Mac's voice—smooth, suave, almost hard.

"Jill, I've come to take you away. This is Tony Savelli's—girl the girl who loves him. Do you want to take him away from her?"

Jill turned to Tony. But he didn't speak.

"I don't want—anything." Jill sobbed suddenly." I just want to go away—by myself—"

"My car is downstairs," Mac said.

He picked up her bag, the bag she had left in the hall. He limped a bit as the weight dragged at him. He stood aside and Jill moved down the hall and passed out ahead of him . . It was as simple as that. Tony didn't move, didn't say a word. He stood glaring at the sullen-faced girl and she stood staring at him hatred and defiance in her face . . . And in her pleading, accusing eyes the passionate fury of a love that would not be denied.

"You'll know where to find me whenever you need me, Kitty," Mac Shannon said quietly.

The girl laughed. "I'll look for you when I need a friend."

Then the door closed. Jill went down the steps slowly her head hanging, her heart aching, her mind a blank. Mac's car was at the curb. He helped her in and drove away without speaking.

"Where are you taking me?" Jill asked meekly.

"Where do you want me to take you?" He countered abruptly.

"Wherever you like—"

He turned into the Park. He drove doggedly to a turn in the main road that led into a little circle cut off from the bustle of traffic by a wall of were trees that was only a fringe of skeleton branches now. Mac stopped the car so abruptly it nosed in against a little hill, shutting off the world and its affairs.

"Where do you want me to take you?" he asked again.

"I'll get out here if you say so," she answered half under her breath.

He laughed. "And walk? And lug that heavy suitcase?"

"I don't mind. I'm too tired to care what happens next."

"What would you like to have happen, Jill?"

She looked at him. His hair was so gray now it was almost white. The iron of his face was accented by heavy lines around his mouth. His eyes were remote and steely.

"I'd like you to love me again," she cried. "I'd like to go with you to the end of the world. I went to Tony Savelli to—forget you. And then you came and took me away. Why did you come with that girl?"

"Because I want you," he said curtly. "Because she loves him."

"You still—care?" she asked halt under her breath. "You knew what you'd find when—she brought you."

"Child, I'm gray and hard—and almost twice your age! I had to——"

"So I've heard," she broke in, suddenly pert again. "But I'm the oldest nineteen that ever was. And you're the only man I can—think of—even when I try to drug myself by getting engaged to a little rabbit like Ames or by going to a—panther like Tony. I—want to belong to you, if you want me—Mac."

"I want you all right," he said grimly.

"Then take me—back to the Shannon with you—and don't let me go."

He laughed then, and he turned and caught her in his arms. He held her close, and kissed her fiercely, while a bold little squirrel who wasn't afraid of the oncoming Winter tilted his head at them inquiringly and then went on digging for a nut he had buried somewhere in the vicinity. The squirrel scolded noisily.

"That's all the audience I care for," Mac laughed.

He loosed his arms. He held Jill off for a moment and smiled at her.

"I love you, dear," he said.

Then he turned the car and drove out of the circle and up into the eastern stretch of the avenue.

"You're not going to the Shannon!" Jill cried suddenly. "Where are you taking me? I don't want to leave you."

"I'm taking you to your sister, Vivian Scarlett," Mac said quietly. "We're calling for her because she wants to—give the bride away——"

"The bride," Jill asked half under her breath.

"My bride," Mac Shannon said gently.

Jill sighed.

"But first we're going to let your big sister dress you like a bride. And then we're going to drive down to the bureau where they'll issue the license——"

"Mrs. MacNeil Shannon," Jill said half to herself. "That's a pretty good name."

"No better than Heath," Mac said quietly. "Your name is Heath, dear. Vivian wants to tell you about that . . ."

Jill smiled at him. She didn't tell him that she knew it already. She didn't tell him about the document she had burned to protect Vivian. She only smiled and waited for the words she saw trembling on his lips.

"We'll give Vivian her hour, darling," he said gently. "We can spare her that—because we've a whole lifetime ahead—my wife."

"That's the name that counts," said Folly's daughter. Her eyes were stars.

Wilbarger Gin Reports Show Slump

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Nov. 18.—A total of 58,009 bales of the 1927 Wilbarger county cotton crop have been ginned, ginners of the county reported Thursday. The weekly ginning report showed a decided slump in the ginnings, indicating that the major portion of the crop has been picked. The slump is attributable in part to unfavorable weather which prevailed part of the week.

Last week's ginnings totaled about 3000 bales as compared with 9000 reported two weeks ago. Reports of the gins in every part of the county show a slump. Night work has been stopped.

The ginners' reports follow:

Surprise Party.

Mrs. Edd Glasgow of the Sunshine Hill community, entertained with a surprise party at her home, Monday afternoon, fro mtwo till five o'clock, honoring her daughter, Mrs. Leslie Swanson, who is visiting with her for a few weeks. Mrs. Swanson received many useful and beautiful gifts. Games were enjoyed throughout the afternoon and Mrs. Sharley Smith won the prize in the word contest. At the close of the afternoon refreshments were served to the following guests: Mesdames W. A. McClure, J. W. Swanson, M. O. Proctor, W. R. Bogart, O. L. Talley, E. O. Conyers, Shirley Smith, W. E. Beck, F. M. Talley, Carl Dillard, L. S. Bogart, W. J. Dillard, W. L. Bilser and E. M. Robeson and Miss Evie Swanson

Vogue Bridge Club.

Miss Juanita Grisham entertained the Vogue Bridge club Monday evening at her home on North Wichita avenue, with four tables of bridge. Miss Peggy McGann won high score and Miss Irene Keller won low score. The rooms were beautifully decorated with chrysanthemums and cutf lowers. After the games a dainty plate luncheon was served to the following: Misses Ava Shaw, Lucia Magee, Wilma Kilpatrick, Carlotta Miller, Irene Keller, Elizabeth Floyd, Dixie Tuttle, Louise Gaston, Carrie Cross, Norma Andrewa, Minnie Nell Yelldell, Willemae Waters, Peggy McGann and Mrs. Paul Bilbrey, with Mrs. T. E. Easley and Mrs. George Hawley as special guests of the club.

South Circle.

The South Circle of the First Baptist church met Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. H. M. Tarleton on West Ida avenue. The home was profusely decorated with lovely fall flowers. The meeting was opened with prayer, followed by the devotional given by Mrs. A. M. Rose. After a discussion of the Bible lesson, the meeting was dismissed and a social hour followed, and a "going away" shower given to Mrs. Byron Johnson, who leaves Electra soon. Later, refreshments were served to the following: Mesdames C. O. Roberts, Roy Russell, E. L. Scoggins, A. M. Rose, Ben W. Tipton and Byron Johnson, members, Mesdames M. M. Love, R. R. McClung, J. F. McKinney, B. M. Hardy and W. P. Slaton, guests.

Oil Man on Bond

A. Sheldon Clark, Chicago sportsman and vice president of the Sinclair Refining company, photographed coming from grand jury room at Washington, has been released on $10,000 bond after having been formally charged by the government with conspiracy to tamper with the Teapot Dome oil trial jury. He refused to testify before the grand jury.

Girls Younger Than Boys at Clarendon

CLARENDON, Nov. 18.—In a recent survey conducted in Clarendon Municipal college the average ages of all students was found to be 18 years and 3 months. The girl students had the lower average with a flat 18 years while the male students were slightly above the average for the whole school. While this college is a Junior college giving only two years of college work, these ages are thought by college authorities to be among the lowest for any college in the land.

EXCELLENT SUGGESTION.

"You lead the orchestra, sir?" asked the tired business man in the cabaret.

"I do," replied Professor Jazzolo, proudly.

"Then would you mind leading them out for a bit of air?"

SUIT TO TEST MOTOR BUS LAW

Complaints Filed On Operators at Vernon

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Nov. 18.—A test of the new motor bus law pased by 40th legislature, which requires operators of bus lines to obtain a certificate from the railroad commission, looms as a possibility here following the filing of a complaint against Jake Davis, Herbert Sparks, Red Claybrook, J. C. Parker and Jim Blythe, in which the defendants are charged with operating a line between Vernon and Floydada without a certificate.

The defendants have been arrested and released on bond. W. F. Daniels, J. D. McKnight and C. A. Briscoe, operators of bus lines between Vernon and Floydada, instituted the complaint.

Mr. Daniels asserts that following a hearing before members of the railroad commission here in September, the lines operated by Daniels, McKnight and Briscoe were granted certificates, with the provision that adequate equipment be added. He further claims that the alleged illegal bus operators were given the privilege of commercial transportation over the line for one month from the date of the ruling.

Mr. Daniels claims that the plaintiffs have met all requirements of the commission and charges that the other bus drivers continue to operate over the Vernon-Floydada route.

Clarendon P.-T. A. Works For College and School

CLARENDON, Nov. 18.—A recent organization was perfected among Parent Teachers association here to work both in the interest of the Clarendon Municipal college and the high school. The organization formerly was known as the Clarendon high school Parent Teachers club.

VALLEY VIEW NEWS

VALLEY VIEW, Nov. 18.—The Ladies Aid society of Valley View met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. H. Coburn and in connection with a number of social games enjoyed by those present, the members gave a shower to the retiring president, Mrs. Clarence Lennon, after which the society assisted in a business session and elected the following officers: President, Mrs. Paul Powell; vice president, Mrs. Albert Haynes; corresponding secretary, Mrs. E. H. Coburn; recording secretary, Mrs. Clarence Lennon; treasurer, Mrs. E. H. Coburn; local treasurer, Mrs. Clarence Lennon.

Young People's superintendent, Mrs. Paul Campbell; mission study, Mrs. J. Guy Chilliness; superintendent of publicity, Mrs. C. A. McCarty; superintendent of social service, Mrs. Louis Pfluger; superintendent of local work, Mrs. Albert Haynes; superintendent of supplies, Mrs. Baker.

Mrs. Claude Hamilton of Wichita Falls, a former member of the society, was guest at the meeting and a participant in the shower.

Refreshments were served following the meeting.

Personals.

Leslie Lennon, son of Mr and Mrs. Clarence Lennon, who has been at home for some time recovering from injuries received in an automobile wreck, has returned to school at Arlington.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bourdieu, who have been citizens of Valley View for the past eight years, have moved to Brownwood.

Miss Maude Kaufman spent the week-end with relatives in Holliday.

The Rev. E. H. Coburn, pastor of the First Methodist church, delivered his regular second Sunday services last Sunday to a large congregation, both morning and evening.

The Demonstration club met at the Valley View school on Friday afternoon.

HE SHOULD KNOW.

A boastful American had been admitted to heaven and was talking "splurgingly" about Niagara Falls. Someone near him laughed aloud.

"Maybe," said the talkative one from the U. S., "you don't think 5,000,000 cubic of water pass over them every second. Maybe you don't think that is a lot of water? Might I ask your name, sir?"

The one who had laughed aloud said softly: "Certainly. It's NOAH!"

To add to his income a London miner has taken up the making of hand-beaten silverware, specializing in church vessels.

Burns on the Rack

BURNS is on the rack. This particular Burns is William J. He was for years head of the secret service of the federal government. He has been head of a great detective agency for years. His detectives shadowed the jurors in the Sinclair-Fall case. That is, government agents and prosecutors say that the jurors were shadowed.

One of the Burns detectives appears to have played both sides of the game. He says his soul revolted against the iniquitous part he had to play by orders of those above him. After this revolt of soul, he got in touch with Gifford Pinchot and Gifford placed him in touch with the agents of the government and the prosecutors in the case. After this close communion, playing both sides of the game, he turned in secret reports to the government and confidential reports to his detective chieftain. In the language of the man in the street, he double-crossed his first employer while drawing pay from the aforesaid employer, and returned to his second employer valuable information as to all the happenings behind the screens as well as the personnel of the men who are said to have pulled the invisible wires.

A double crosser is a rare bird. It is said a man cannot serve two masters. It is a fallacy. There are men who could serve a dozen masters after a revolt of soul has taken place and then manage to get in the headlines for more than a day. This is why Burns, William J., admitted one of the shrewdest detectives of his time, finds himself on a grand jury rack on the banks of the Potomac.

A newspaper reporter turned in the scandal; a street car driver gave the newspaper reporter the tip that started the fire works. And now Arthur Brisbane is asking if the grand jury will confine itself to returning indictments against mere detectives and permit multi-millionaires to go stock free.

Writer Brisbane is of the opinion that it is impossible to convict a millionaire or a multi-millionaire for violation of law in this land of the free. Well, there will be another trial of Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair in the opening month of the new year.

Give a rich man a show for his money. Give a detective a show for his white alley. Give the newspaper reporter and the street car conductor who gave him the tip a place in the head lines.

Never overlook the reporter. He is there with the goods. Never overlook the street car conductor or the elevator boy. They have ears to hear and eyes to observe.

Trade of the Latin-American

AMERICAN economists let the world know that the people of the United States are the chief customers of Latin-American industries; that the total business with the Latin-American nations to the south of us has grown in 50 years from $200,000,000 to $2,000,000,000 a year, and lastly that since 1923 American buyers or customers have taken five billions worth of Latin-America products, raw or refined or 30 per cent more than Great Britain and France and Germany combined.

And yet there are Americans who say that the imperialistic dollar of the republic founded by George Washington is a menace to the Latin-Americans or the Latin-Indians all the way from Laredo to Patagonia. Really the American dollar is the dollar that has brought prosperity and a higher degree of civilization to Mexico, Central America and the South American republics.

There Is Money in Oil

THERE is money in oil, and the light that it sheds is spreading around the world. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has made a gift of $2,000,000 for the erection and maintenance of an archaeological museum in Palestine.

It will be built on a plot of land outside and immediately north of the wall of Jerusalem and a position commanding a view of the Mount of Olives.

In the dead ages the torch of civilization was first lit in the far east. It was carried to Europe and then to the continents of North America and South America and around the world.

Now the torch is on its return trip from the Occident to the Orient. There is money in oil and Texas contributes a lot of it.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—A friend living in a neighboring Westchester town reports that he was arrested for a minor traffic violation and was given a summons to appear in the local court on the following Wednesday. Coming home at four in the morning, two days before the time for his appointment with the judge, he found a note left by his wife, which advised him to get in touch with police headquarters immediately.

So off our gentleman drove to the habitat of the local constabulary and gently inquired for what reason was he summoned.

"Where were you tonight?" asked the sergeant ominously.

"I was working," replied the hero of our tale. "I wasn't supposed to appear until Wednesday!"

"Yeh?" the officer snorted. "Let's see your summons."

The minion of the law scowled at this latter document for some time and observed that the time set was indeed Wednesday.

"Awright," he admitted grudgingly. "But be sure and be here on Wednesday. I guess there was some mix-up in the dates."

My friend promised that he would not fail and slunk home to bed. Which is the proper way of leaving or entering a police station—slinking, I mean. It has been my own, as well as others' experience, that the sergeant is always right.

The latest of some umpty-ump movie versions of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" opened at the Central recently. Previous to the opening, the inspired press agent conducted a census among the newspaper critics and as a result he found, that only two confessed to reading Mrs. Stowe's novel. For some reason or other this was considered a sad state of affairs by the film producers and so ,two days before the opening, each critic received a special movie edition of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," profusely illustrated with scenes from the new picture. That's what you might call teaching your critics how to criticize.

And speaking of super-movie openings reminds me of the dodges used by the gentlemen in charge. Should you attend one of these premieres you will perhaps be frightened and certainly be flattered as you pass through a lane, lined with awe-struck, eager-eyed movie fans. They have no tickets; they are just waiting to see the stars go in. And believe me, no opening would be worth while without these lowly aids to the proper atmosphere. Now I learn that these are not voluntary star gazers. On the contrary they are hired for the night, to stand there with that look of awe on their faces, thus making the third assistant movie critic of the Mt. Vernon Clarion feel just a little more important than Adolph Zukor.

And did you hear the story about the man who was waiting for a friend in the lobby, at one of these events? No. Well, while waiting, he was surprised to find a photographer focusing his camera and taking flashlights of him at two minute intervals. Evidently, he thought, the photographer had mistaken him for one of the visiting great.

"Here, here, my man," he said, "I'm not the man you think you're photographing."

"I don't care who you are," the camera man replied. "I'm being paid to take a picture with a flashlight every two minutes and that's what I'm going to keep on doing. Get in the picture or get out of the way!"

And so saying he shot another flashlight.

"So, what do you want?" is current Broadway repartee used as a biting comment on a pointless story.

HATTIE

A STORY OF LOVE AND SACRIFICE

By SAMUEL MERWIN

HATTIE JOHNSON, just 17, works in the mailing room of a printing and book-binding establishment. A former fellow employe,

LUCILE OVERMAN, takes her to the Earthwide Picture studio, where she is seen by

ARMAND DE BRISSAC, famous director. He makes a screen test of Hattie and takes her to California with him to make a picture. With her go,

GRANDMA, old and lame, and

ALICE, Hattie's married sister and her baby, all dependent on Hattie. Hattie becomes engaged to

HENRY O'MALLEY, De Brissac's head camera man. De Brissac makes love to her and wants her to go with him for a vacation on his yacht, but she refuses. She leaves his company and works at another studio, but is not successful away from De Brissac. Lucille advises her to go back to him. Alice's husband,

ARTHUR, who has deserted her, comes back, making another for Hattie to support. The De Brissac picture is a success and he offers Hattie a new contract at a much higher salary. She wants to give up pictures and be married and keep house for Henry, and when she finds he has no idea of this she breaks her engagement and goes back to De Brissac. It is decided that Hattie and the director will go to New York and make personal appearances together at the showing of their latest picture. Then

JULIAN DEMPSTER, a young magazine writer, comes to interview her.

She is much attracted to Julian and decides to go to the Thursday night dance at the hotel and meet him there.

They dance together and go for a ride in her car and find that they are taking the same train east.

CHAPTER THIRTY-SEVEN

Arthur had grown very silent. She knew how closely he was watching. At moments it was hard to keep from laughing in his face. The wonderful thing about this new love—she had to admit it to be that—was the buoyancy of it, the gaiety. It was a force that had picked her up and carried her exultantly out of herself. She had to fight back an eager desire to tell everybody. She and Julian laughed and played like happy children. And still he had not kissed her. He would, of course. That would be the perfect happiness. She almost wanted to delay it, to make the situation last. . . . She couldn't keep Arthur from going to the train with her. And she wouldn't warn Julian. Not again. Not in this exquisite relationship. And of course they had to come bang together, he and Arthur there on the platform.

Her eyes danced. She could have laughed aloud as she studied Arthur's puzzled face. As he would put it, he didn't get her. This wasn't the meek little Hattie who did everything she was told and hadn't the spirit of an earthworm. This was a quietly smiling young star—really something of a beauty now, whatever she might have been a year back — who knew how to wear her clothes and how to stand and walk. People turned and looked after her, even women. Many whispered the name of Harriet John. And there was the young chap named Dempster helping her with her baggage as a matter of right, with an unworldly smiling light in his eyes. Going right off across the continent together, bold as you please! More disquieting even than all this was the abrupt thought that the girl was of age, technically, and perhaps couldn't be headed. Feeling her oats! The thing might lead anywhere! How would they ever handle De Brissac. . . . That relationship, now, with a mature man, and based firmly on the rock of business, had something solid about it, but this . . . !

He drew Hedwig aside, furtively slipped a twenty-dollar bill into her hand, and whispered—

"Take good care of Miss Harriet, Hedwig."

Something dourly the woman inclined her head.

It occurred to him then that he was twenty dollars out. Just that. Hedwig would never tell him anything. She didn't like him. And she knew well enough who was the breadwinner in this family!

The two of them were on the observation platform when the train moved out, shamelessly making themselves comfortable. This, he reflected, was the rebellious younger generation of today. Just tossed their caps over the windmill and romped off regardless of consequences. Things had come to a pretty pass! Ignoring their elders, ignoring all authority. He grew very angry about that younger generation as he walked back across the platform to Hattie's car.

De Brissac would need a lot of handling. He wasn't the man to take rebellion lightly. Arthur pressed the starting pedal with a savage kick, nad drove off through the city. These picture people were an intense lot. Temperamental. No wonder there'd been violence at times in Beverly. Take De Brissac, now; a big, strong man, very able, very determined, yet all the sensitive artist, to his finger tips the sensitive artist — what would he do when the truth burst on him that Hattie was (the word came, with no awareness of the incongruity of it) unfaithful to him, probably the best course would be to keep close to him and break it to him gradually, not give the man's doubtless terrible temper a chance to rise.

The train was climbing the grade out of San Bernardino to the Mojave Desert. Hattie and Dempster found a table for two in the dining car. He was in confessional mood, eager to spread his life before her.

"Mother and I have a little apartment on Twelfth street. She's wonderful. And she'll love you. No bigger than you. Slim and little. White hair with a young face. Keeps her figure. And dances like a breeze. She's taught in a girls' school for sixteen years. Earns a little regular salary that way. And we just pitch camp together. . . . I never felt before that I wanted to make money. I pick up a sort of living, of course, writing articles and reviews and such. My novel was a critical success and brought in a little over nine hundred dollars. The essays and the poems are luxuries. I've got three plays—one of 'em is being read by the Theater Guild now . . . It's a topsy-turvy world. I suppose you get infinitely more than I."

"I don't think money means much to me," said she, gently, "I don't like the pictures very well."

"I don't quite see how you can help it, when you think of the money and the terrific publicity and all. Enough to turn anybody's head."

"It's never seemed real to me, though. It's a big machine that picks you up and rushes you along. You can't think. A year and a half ago I was folding magazines in Pratt and MacIntyre's bindery, over in West Twenty-second street. I have to pinch myself to realize all that's happened since. They pay me twelve hundred and fifty a week now."

She saw, and felt, across the table, that this announcement had an unhappy effect. After a silence he remarked, gloomily—

"I took in about twenty-six hundred last year, altogether."

"But it's all perfectly crazy," she said, quickly. "And what's the good of money if you're unhappy."

"I wonder," in sober mood he leaned back in his chair and gazed out at the stark mountains. "Of course what I want to do — right now — is to ask you to marry me. That's what I'm wild to do really. But nowadays you have to have a little sense. Look at us . . . or look at me! My income wouldn't much more than rent an apartment in New York. And then I've got Mother to think of. She can't go on earning much longer. Not a great deal longer. I'll confess I've allowed myself to think a little about writing for the pictures. Just these last few days. Some of these people seem to pick up a surprising amount of money."

"Why don't you do that?" she asked.

He moved a listless hand. "I couldn't Harriet. Never in the world."

"I don't see why."

"You may not like my reasons. It's, been interesting, this little glimpse of the picture people at work . . . and curious."

"Why curious?"

"Oh . . . well, look here . . . they do some beautiful things. Particularly in photography. And now and then for a moment in direction. There are some good pictures . . . now and then a good picture especially among the comedies. At invention, tricks, all that, these people are ingenious and interesting. But the thing isn't an art."

She was studying his slender fingers as they twisted a spoon around and around. She didn't quite know what he meant, but she felt the clarity and freshness of his thinking.

It's hardly more of an art than the packing business of Armour and Swift. Quantity production, all the drive and efficiency of a first-class automobile plant. Factory men running it and hiring showmen to give it a flavor. The most ingenious devices for finding out what the public wants and then giving it to them. And that public is being ground out of the public school hoppers by the million without culture, without traditions — and swarming in by shiploads from the backwaters of Europe. It's just what you said Harriet—a machine, a big machine. But the funny thing is, all these people are so sensitive. Sensitive about their dirt—and above all about her morals. The penalty of conspicuousness, I suppose. There they are, so successful that every body in the world can see them. They stick out like a range of canvas Himalayas. Arrogant about it too. Perfectly aware that no mere Shakespeare or Dickens or Balzac or Tennyson or Longfellow or Milton ever dreamed of reaching so huge a public. Take yourself—in all of her seventy-six years Sara Bernhardt has been seen by, say, twenty million people at the outside. I suppose at least that many have seen you in the last year alone. And you're just a little girl."

Hattie gathered that this Sara Bernhart was an actress.

"And why on earth should they worry about their morals?"

Hattie leaned forward, her sensitive nerves tightening, and clasped her hands on the table.

"They're normal enough. Just a lot of moderately Bohemian people working hard together . . . probably a shade less moral—I'm using the word in its roundest-headed sense — that some of our more quiet suburbs, certainly better than the general average of New York or Boston or Chicago. People are so blind! And they put such an absurdly bitter emphasis on these little personal matters. I'd a heap rather live with an ordinary, big-hearted, sometimes sinning human being than with these prurient moral monsters that run the vice societies. The censoring sort. Ever occur to you what a disapproving lot we Americans are? We disapprove wonderfully. Nothing we can't do it to."

Hattie stirred; then her lids drooped and she sat very still. But her fingers were white where they pressed together.

The ONE-MINUTE PULPIT

I am the good shepherd, the good shepherd*giveth his life for the sheep.

But he that is an hireling, and not the shepherd, whose own the sheep are not, seeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the sheep, and fleeth: and the wolf catcheth them, and scattereth the sheep.

The hireling fleeth because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep.—John, x, 11-13.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Dr. McCoy's menus suggested for the week beginning Sunday, November 20.

SUNDAY

Breakfast—French omelet made of the whites of eggs in milk, stewed figs, Melba toast.

Lunch — Buttered macaroni, cooked spinach, raw celery.

Dinner — Jellied tomato consomme, broiled chicken, string beans, baked egg plant, *cauliflower salad, ice cream.

MONDAY

Breakfast—Coddled egg, 2 or 3 slices of crisp bacon, stewed prunes, Melba toast.

Lunch—Eight-ounce glass of grapejuice.

Dinner—Vegetable soup, Salisbury steak, spinach, turnips and tops, salad of sliced tomatoes with celery, gelatinized milk with whipped cream and prune juice.

TUESDAY

Breakfast—Cottage cheese, Melba toast, applesauce.

Lunch—Baked ground beets, combination salad of celery, tomatoes and small pease on lettuce.

Dinner—Mushroom soup, roast mutton, steamed carrots with parsley, salad of cold asparagus (canned), baked apple.

WEDNESDAY

Breakfast—Baked egg, Melba toast, stewed raisins.

Lunch—Oranges as desired.

Dinner—Broiled lamb chops, string beans, cooked celery, McCoy salad, pineapple gelatin (shredded pineapple in gelatin.)

THURSDAY

Breakfast—Coddled egg, Melba toast, stewed apricots.

Dinner — Ripe olives, salted roasted nuts, roasted turkey or chicken, Melba toast dressing, baked egg plant, mashed carrots and turnips, prune whip.

Supper—Cold roasted turkey or chicken, combination salad of celery, tomatoes, cucumbers and chopped cabbage.

FRIDAY

Breakfast—Re-toasted breakfast food with cream (no sugar), ripe or stewed figs.

Lunch—Raw apples as desired.

Dinner—Clear vegetable broth made of celery and tomatoes, baked white fish, spinach, salad of sliced tomatoes and celery, no dessert.

SATURDAY

Breakfast—French omelet, Melba toast, stewed raisins.

Lunch—Sandwiches made of real wholewheat bread with lettuce and peanut butter, raw carrot salad.

Dinner—American cheese, cooked cucumbers, asparagus, combination salad of tomatoes, cucumbers and celery on lettuce, pineapple sponge.

*Cauliflower salad: Separate the tender flowerets of a head of cauliflower and arrange on a nest of shredded lettuce and endive. Over all pour a dressing made of peanut butter thinned with a little milk, when ready to serve. If you have never eaten raw cauliflower, you will be surprised at its pleasing, nutlike flavor.

QUESTION: M. M. C. asks: "Will your views on childbirth (first you views on childbirth (first child) at the age of 39 as compared with the woman of 29? Is it exceedingly risky for a woman to bear her first child after the age of 35? Please also state if you think a woman who has led a sedentary life is taking a greater chance than the woman who has led a more active life."

ANSWER — Theoretically, it should be more difficult to bear a child at the age of 39 than at 29, but by actual observation I have found that the woman at the older age can have almost a painless childbirth if she will diet and exercise properly during pregnancy. Some of the easiest births I have observed have been with women around 40 who have trained properly for this important event in their lives.

QUESTION: M. F. H. writes: "Kindly state in the column what fruits do not contain acid. Or, if all fruits do contain acid, does cooking destroy it? I would like to eat fruit but can not if they contain acid, so I am very desirous of knowing which fruits do not contain acid, either cooked or uncooked."

ANSWER: Fruit acids are changed somewhat by cooking. Also, dried fruits have less acid than when fresh. Many people are afraid of using fruit because of the acid, but could do so if they understood how to use the fruits properly. It is better to use only the stewed fruits with meals, and take fresh fruits by themselves, making an entire meal of one kind of fruit. Practically all fruits contain some acid, but because of their effect upon increasing the flow of bile their final reaction in the body is alkaline. If you have over-acidity of the stomach, you will find that a fruit fast of a few days will greatly benefit you.

QUESTION: E. L. M. writes: "I am troubled most of the time by a drowsy heavy feeling. It ,does not necessarily follow eating. I sometimes have it immediately upon arising. Will you please tell me the cause and remedy?"

ANSWER: You are probably suffering from some kind of toxic condition. Try eating less and exercising more. Take a good walk twice daily, finishing with a cold shower each time.

QUESTION: Mrs. C. J. writes: "I would like to know what you think of using baking soda in cooking vegetables?"

ANSWER: I do not recommend the use of soda in cooking vegetables, as it is wholly unnecessary if the vegetables are properly cooked although I do not believe that the use of bicarbonate of soda is particularly injurious.

QUESTION: J. L. writes: "I am a daily reader of your articles, and I would be deeply indebted to you if you would answer the following questions in your column. Nobody seems to be able to answer the first one: (1) What is the cause of appendicitis? (2) Is there any way of curing it outside of an operation? (3) Is it a dangerous operation?"

ANSWER: (1) Inflammation of the appendix is mostly caused by constipation and any bad eating habits which will bring on colitis. (2) Most cases can be cured by dieting, and colon cleanliness. (3) The average operation for this trouble is not dangerous, as it is seldom more than an inflamed condition. If pus has developed, the operation may be dangerous.

SAD, SAD!

A tourist from the East had stopped to change tires in a desolate region of the Far West.

"I suppose," he remarked to a native onlooker, "that even in these isolated parts the bare necessities of life have risen tremendously in price."

"Yer right, stranger," replied the native, gloomily, "an' it ain't worth drinkin' when ye get it."

Whitney Charms Audience of 500 In Recital at College Auditorium

Edwin M. Whitney, considered by many as one of the greatest dramatic recitalists in America, presented a three-act play, "Turn to the Right," written by Winchild Smith to an audience estimated at more than 500 Friday night at the Junior college auditorium.

Miss Juanita Khaey, in presenting the speaker said that the greatest compliment that could be paid a speaker was to say that he had the faculty of turning men's ears into eyes. This faculty was exhibited by Mr. Whitney as he played the three-act play and represented each of 15 different characters so well that he kept the large audience intent on everything he said.

Before Mr. Whitney was half through with his first act the audience was so familiar with the different characters being portrayed that it was possible to tell the character speaking by the expression on Mr. Whitney's face. Mr. Whitney, before beginning the prologue to the play, stated that Winchild Smith had originally written the play as a comedy, but that there was a real bit of life philosophy contained in the character of the little mother. In presenting the play, the recitalist kept every one in a state of half laughter and half sympathy with the problems of the characters involved.

The plot was essentially the reformation of two crooks from the bowery of New York and their relations with a young man who had been framed and made to serve a year in prison for the crime of another man.

Out-of-Town Scribes At Convention Here

The Texas Baptist convention, which is holding the interest of readers throughout Texas, is being "covered" by representatives of four publications besides the two local newspapers. Buren Sparks, of Dallas, represents the Baptist Standard; Miss Selese Hunter, writes of the session for the Baylor Lariat, college newspaper; Miss Bessie Stephenson is representing the Fort Worth Star-Telegram; and Mr. and Mrs. N. P. Bagby are attending the convention representing the Dallas Morning News.

Joe Johnston, who is attending the University of Texas at Austin, is visiting in Wichita Falls.

Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scout movement, is being mentioned as a possible recipient of the Nobel Peace Prize next year.

CHURCH MAKES 140 ADDITIONS

First Christian Revival Proves Success

The evangelistic meeting at the First Christian church is now closing its four week. There have been 140 additions to the church during this period and numbers more are expected, according to church leaders.

While there has been intense interest from the beginning, all sensational methods have been studiously avoided, it is pointed out.

In preparation for his sermon Sunday night on "Christian Unity," Dr. Jesse Kellems preached Friday night on the "Origin of the Churches." His address was a church history and lecture sermon, in which he pointed out those things which have brought the modern denominational order into being. He showed that modern denominational is the result of incomplete efforts at reformation and showed that unity can be brought about only by a return to the primitive pattern as it is set forth in the New Testament.

Sunday at the morning service Dr. Kellems will preach on "The House of Many Mansions," and in the evening, "Christian Unity."

New Buildings On Site of Fire

ground or from the building adjoining on the west.

Two explosions were heard during the fire. One was caused by the bursting of a water tank from steam and the cause of the other was not known. Firemen were uncertain as to what caused the blaze but Fire Chief J. L. McClure was inclined to believe it started in the cafeteria kitchen.

J. D. Jones, fireman from No. 8 station was slightly injured when the ladder on which he was standing slipped and crashed to the ground. Friday afternoon he was complaining of a sore back and hip but was able to walk. Several other firemen received minor scratches and bruises.

The second story of the building had formerly been a hotel but was vacant at the time of the fire.

The interior of the building was practically wrecked. Both the ceiling and floors fell through, leaving little but the walls in place. The fire was brought under control after a three-hour fight by the department. One line of hose and a crew of men were kept at the building until late Friday afternoon.

T. J. Martin of Dallas, general agent for the Erie Railroad system, was a visitor at local railroad offices Friday.

Norris To Discuss Seven-Year War With Church Leaders Sunday

A resume of his life, of his dealings with the Texas Baptists "from beginning to end," and a complete windup of the "war" that has been waged with Baptist leaders for the last seven years, are to be included in the address by the Rev. J. Frank Norris Sunday afternoon, which will be held in the Wichita Falls gymnasium, 605 Scott, he announced late Friday night.

"I'll tell everything," he said, "and I'll tell it to a crowd of people too, for I've arranged the affair in a place that will accommodate the audience I'm expecting."

"And I won't mind bringing in the court room episodes of my life either," the pastor continued. "There seems to be a lot of people interested in that."

The Rev. Norris is scheduled to speak Sunday afternoon on the subject, "Six Reasons Why Al Smith Should Not Be President of the United States."

NORTH TEXAS TRAVERSED BY ROUTE OF PROPOSED OZARKLINE

10-INCH LINE TO BE BUILT

Great Lakes-to-Pecos Line Planned

Special to The Record News.

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 18.—The Pecos-Winkler area of West Texas, said by many oil men to be the largest potential field in the world, is to be connected with the Mid-Continent and Great Lakes regions by a new pipe line.

Ozark Pipe Line corporation, transportation subsidiary of the Roxana Petroleum corporation and a unit of the Shell combine, will construct the new line. The completed line will include the present 10 inch of the Ozark from Cushing, Okla., to Chicago, via Alton, and it will be doubled with a second 10 inch line and the six inch line from Cushing to Healdton will be taken up and replaced by a 10 inch line, and a new 10 inch line southwest from Healdton through north, central, west central and into West Texas.

The finished project will be approximately 600 miles in length and it may eventually be connected with a lateral to the Texas Panhandle.

When completed the new Ozark Line will move the Pecos, Winkler and other crude oils, said to contain a high sulphur content, and this will be mixed with sweet oil produced in Central and North Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas and then pushed on to the Alton or East Chicago refineries, where it will be refined. Experiments of the Roxana in mixing Panhandle crude with Oklahoma-Kansas oils and running it at Arkansas City and Alton have proven that the mixed crude makes an ideal refining material. Tests in mixing Healdton and Oklahoma-Kansas oils also proved the process practicable.

Standard Oil company of New Jersey is already mixing Pecos and Panhandle crude oils. Panhandle crude is going via the Prairie Pipe Line company to Ringling and there it is mixed with Seminole oil and the mixed crude goes on to the Standard of Louisiana refinery at Baton Rouge, La., to be refined. Pecos oil goes to Baytown, Texas, and is then mixed with Mid-Continent crude and refined at Bayonne, N. J., and Baltimore, Md.

Potentality of the West Texas area is causing a great volume of new pipe line work there. Humble, Gulf, Mid-Kansas, Transcontinental and other producers are busy building tankage and lines.

New Producers Boost Seminole Production

TULSA, Okla., Nov. 18. — The Greater Seminole field totalled 421,217 barrels, a gain of 2987 barrels over Wednesday's production of 418,230 barrels. There are now 996 wells.

Two new producers, one each for Bowlegs and Earlsboro, and results of other wells that have been shot, accounted for the increase. The shooting gave Seminole City pool a good gain, while Little River and Searight pools declined.

As soon as three tanks which Wednesday night were connected up, are cleaned out, Gypsy Oil company will open its wildcat well, No. 1 Solomon, in the southeast corner of the northeast of 21-10-7, which has been shut in since getting the Cromwell pay more than two weeks ago.

Geo. L. Miller Enters West Texas District

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 18.—With the acquiring of a 6000-acre tract in Terrell county, George L. Miller of Oklahoma plans to begin immediate operations in West Texas by sinking a deep test for oil on this acreage. He is one of the Miller brothers who have made their 101 Ranch famous, as well as themselves.

The Terrell county acreage on which the test will be sunk is ten miles south of Sheffield and is made up of sections 6, 7, 8, 11, 19, 20 and 21, some of the sections being double. It is out of the Texas-Mexican Ry. Co. survey.

Well in New Mexico Flows 120 Barrels

ARTESIA, New Mexico, Nov. 18. The new well of the Texas Production company in its No. 1 Rhodes, in 23-26-37, Lea county, flowed 120 barrels in the 24 hours ended Sunday morning. This well is flowing through a gas trap.

In Eddy county, adjoining Lea on the west, George Getty's No. 1 Hinkle, in 23-20-29, is producing heavy oil through a ten inch hole the pay being at around 1370 feet.

W. T. Utilities Gives Power to Oil Line

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 18.—Power for the 400-mile pipe line from the Yates oil field in Pecos county to tidewater at Houston, now under construction, will be supplied by the San Angelo plant of the West Texas Utilities company, it is announced by G. L. Murphy, assistant superintendent of the San Angelo district of the utility concern. The San Angelo plant is now being enlarged to 16,000 horsepower to take care of this additional load.

Parsons to Drill Two Wells in Ranger Area

RANGER, Nov. 18.—Ed V. Parsons and others of Fort Worth are preparing to drill two wells in this general district at once. One will be on the Blackwell 800 feet east and across the Leon river from the Barkley and Gholson producer and the other will be on the Jones tract approximately 4000 feet southeast of the Barkley and Gholson well. Both will be carried to the level of two producing wells in this district.

11 Producers, No Dry Holes in West Texas

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 18.—Six producers in Pecos county, three in Crane and one each in Winkler and Upton counties, comprised completions last week in the Permian Basin of West Texas, no failures being listed.

Prize Ring Vet To Drill for Oil In Pecos Field

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 18. — Hugh O'Kane of Bend, Oregon, lightweight pugilistic champion of the world in the early 70s, later a scout with General Terry's command when Custer was massacred, a race horse man and globe trotter, is in San Angelo, preparing to drill for oil on a strip of land in eastern Pecos county, which he bought by mail over three years ago. The property is the west 40 acres of section 58, block 1, I.-G.-N. Ry. Co. survey, and is only a mile and a quarter southeast of big production.

Application for a charter for the Texas-Oregon Oil & Gas corporation, with Mr. O'Kane president, has been prepared by John D. H. Tester, attorney for the Mann-Freel Oil Co. here, and is being forwarded to the secretary of state at Austin. Mike Dragich of Bond, who is accompanying Mr. O'Kane on his first trip here, is vice-president and Mrs. Helen O'Kane, wife of the 76-year-old adventurer, is secretary - treasurer. The new company holds the lease to 280 acres scattered through a half dozen New Mexico counties, while Mr. O'Kane and Mr. Dragich individually own leases on approximately 5000 acres in West Texas.

WELLS GAUGED "ONE BY ONE"

Rest of Field Pinched In As Tests Made

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18. (AP)—Official figures placed the one hour total production of fifty-six producers in the Yates pool in Pecos county on November 16 at 18,686 barrels, oil men said here today. The wells were gauged separately with the rest of the field pinched in to its allowed production.

This hourly flow was at the rate of 448,464 barrels per day, which oil men think might, but most probably would not represent what the field would do on a 24-hour production basis with all wells flowing.

The figure is used, however, as a common denominator to determine each producer's share of the total 42,000 barrels per day pipe line capacity the pool will have between November 16 to 30. Each producer's share of the pipe line will be 9.39 per cent of the 24-hour "potential" production.

The Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental, operating partnership, under this figure, with a "potential" of 241,152 barrels, will have pipe line capacity for 22,487 barrels, to be divided among five leases.

California company ranks second with 7782 barrels daily permitted runs from two leases.

The McMan-Marland partnership leases is third with 4586 barrels daily, in addition to which Marland is allowed 1888 barrels from its wholly owned Yates-A lease.

This gives Marland third rank in producing units in the field, or fourth with a division of the Mid-Kansas and Trans-Continental total.

Simms is fifth with 2634 barrels from its Smith lease, and McMan is sixth.

None of the others have as much as 1000 barrels per day production.

North Archer Test Drilling

George L. Pace, Wichita Falls operator, has started drilling on one of the most important wildcat developments started in Archer county in some time, testing out additional territory in the northwest portion of the county where many oil men believe a big field may be found.

The test is Pace's No. 1 Coleman in block 27, Brazos county school lands, and north of Scotland. It is drilling at 600 feet.

Montague Has 172 Bbl. Well

The Texas Company Friday completed the largest well completed in Montague county in several months in its No. 2 Hinton which produced 172 barrels in the 24 hours. The sand was topped at 780 and drilled to 789 feet.

The new producer is eight miles northwest of Nocona and in the Coates survey, where Humble, Continental and other companies are active.

GRAHAM FIELD.

Four wells in the East Graham area of north central Young county are drilling below 1500 feet and all of them may be in the prolific 2300-foot Strawn sand next week.

Paulie Oil company's No. 3 Morrison in the E. Sherrill survey is drilling at 2000 feet. Pitzer and West's No. 4 Morrison is drilling at 1800 feet and their No. 5 Morrison at 2000 feet. Pitzer and West are drilling at 1900 feet in their No. 2 Hinson, offsetting the well which uncovered the new sand.

New wells starting in this area include Paulie Oil company's Nos. 5 and 6, Morrison, direct 420-foot locations south of No. 4 in the Sherill survey. Nash and Windfohr are building derrick for their No. 3 Hinson, north of No. 1 in the Paul Pier survey and their No. 2, west of the producer, has spudded in.

Pitzer and West's Nos. 3-B and 4-B to be drilled on 420-foot locations from No. 2. Simms Oil company's No. 1 Graham in the Ben Hill survey is drilling at 620 feet.

HAMMOND-McCARTY.

Wayne Hammond is drilling at 600 feet in his No. 1 S. H. McCarty, located northeast of KMA and in the southeast corner of the west 40 of the east 60 acres of the Wm. Eaves survey, abstract 447, Wichita county.

Hammond has also made location to drill his No. 2 Mitchell, 50 feet north of No. 1 in block 3 of the P. Castleman survey, southwest of Iowa Park in Wichita county.

GRISHAM-FARMER.

W. J. Grisham and C. P. Burton are drilling at 900 feet in their No. 1 W. R. Farmer, a wildcat located 1230 feet from the west line and 1435 feet from the south line of block 2, J. Poitevant survey, Archer county.

STALEY-WAGGONER.

Staley and Wynne are drilling at 1950 feet in their No. 1 Waggoner, located in section 9, block 5, H. & T. C. survey. This cable tool test is holding much interest among Wilbarger county operators.

GRAYSON COUNTY.

Grayson county is bound to get considerable drilling within the next few months, it is claimed by numerous oil men, and location has been made for another test which helps to bear out this prediction. It is Miller Drilling company's No. 1 Getzendaner, located 150 feet from the north and west lines of the T. E. Jones survey.

SHAPPELL-KEMP.

Shappell Oil company is rigging up for its No. 10 Kemp and Kempner in block 19, Kemp Wichita Valley lands, south Wichita county.

COTTON TAKES STRONGER TONE

Receipts On Local Market Down to 14 Bales

The cotton market recovered from its slump of the last two days to close Friday ten points higher than the close of Thursday.

Local buyers differed slightly in the prices offered for middling, some paying 18.75 cents and others offering 16 cents a pound. The range was upward from about 17 cents for snaps.

Receipts went to the low level of 14 bales, local cotton yards report.

Wichita Falls gins continued to pay $35 a ton for seed.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. (AP)—An early decline in the cotton market today was checked by trade buying and covering, which caused rallies, January selling up from 19.25 to 19.56 and closing at 19.48 compared with 19.37 at the close yesterday. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 9 to 19 points.

The opening was barely steady at a decline of 7 to 14 points under renewed liquidation, southern and scattered selling, encouraged by talk of possible mill curtailment and relatively easy Liverpool cables. December eased off to 19.18 and March to 19.46 under these early offerings, a net decline of 13 to 14 points and new low prices for the movement. Spot house brokers continued buying December against sales of later months at about recent differences, and appeared willing to take all the December offering at about 27 to 28 points under March. There also appeared to be trade buying of the later months in considerable volume at the new low prices, and after early offerings had been absorbed, the market turned steadier.

No particular news feature was mentioned in explanation of the advance which followed, but there probably was covering on the firmer technical position of the market and expectations of a further rally before publication of the census ginning figures on Monday morning.

The best prices of the day were reached in late trading, when December sold at 19.58 and March at 19.77. But the close was a few points off from the best under southern selling and realizing.

Private cables said continental trade buying in Liverpool had been offset by hedge selling or liquidation, but reported a fair cloth demand from the continent and he colonies and said that a smaller Indian crop was expected because of damage by rain.

Port receipts today 42,743 bales, U. S. port stocks 2,568,556. Exports 27,796, making 2,894,407 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 18. (AP)—After declining less than one dollar a bale in the early trading on further December liquidation, the cotton market today rallied on covering by shorts when it became apparent that December liquidation was about finished. The general market closed 2 to 9 points net higher for the day.

December declined 18 points to 19.28 in the early trading, rallied to 19.62 and closed at 19.52, ten points under the high but seven above yesterday's close.

Liverpool was about as due and first trades here showed losses of 7 to 9 points. The market continued to ease off until January, May and March at 19.52, 16 to 18 points below yesterday's close.

The market then steadied and prices advanced until January sold at 19.73 and March 19.87. Shorts found offerings limited when they sought to cover.

In the final few minutes prices reacted 10 to 11 points from the top on realizing and the close was steady, January showing a net gain of 7 points and March of 9 points. Exports for the day were 22,756 bales; for the week 297,183 bales.

TEXAS SPOT COTTON.

HOUSTON.—Spot cotton closed steady, 10 up. Middling 19.60; sales 6978 bales.

GALVESTON. — Spot cotton closed steady, 10 up. Middling 19.70; sales 2284 bales.

CHICAGO FUTURES.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18. (AP)—Cotton futures closed: January 19.73-75; March 19.83; December 19.54.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. (AP)—Cotton seed oil was moderately active and irregular today, with final prices 5 points lower to 5 points higher. Nearby positions were easy under renewed December liquidation, while the late positions recovered, due to less pressure from refiners and scattered demand in response to the steadiness of cotton and lard and the strength of corn. Sales 21,800 barrels. Prime crude 9.000; prime summer yellow spot 10.55; December closed 10.61; January 10.68; March 10.85; May 11.06; June 11.11.

FOREIGN WOOL.

ROME, Nov. 18. (AP)—The Australian wool crop of the present season is estimated at 798,000 pounds, thin, fine, sound and suitable for continental requirements, says telegraphic information received today by the International Institute of Agriculture.

The crop this year is lower than that of last year which reached 900,000,000 pounds, but is above the five-year average of 743,000,000 pounds.

WOOL MARKET.

BOSTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—Demand is a little broader in fine and half blood combing territory wools graded. French combing wools are selling at $1.05 to $1.08 clean basis. Original bags fine fresh combing and average strictly combing staple are bringing as high as $1.07 to $1.08 clean basis, for choice staple. Demand is still slow on the shorter staple original bag wool and on clothing cloths.

Increase In Brokers' Loans Momentarily Jolts Prices Of Stocks In Wall Street Market

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 18.—President Coolidge and John A. Raskob influenced a flood of new buying that put the stock market higher today. Their remarks Thursday night were studied closely by the speculative community and but momentary unsettlement was experienced at the opening as a result of the increase of $71,500,000 in loans to a new high record price.

Before noon the loan figure was almost entirely forgotten and except for a few stocks influenced by individual developments the list was steadily moving higher. General Motors resumed its place as leader but the outstanding advances were scored by such specialties as Union Carbide and Midland Steel Products preferred. Steel Common and other standard industrials enjoyed better demand also.

Commodities ruled quiet with both cotton and wheat rallying after early weakness. Sterling and other exchanges held firm in a somewhat dull market.

Commendation and support of partial payment buying at the dinner given by John J. Raskob, the chairman of the General Motors finance committee, proved an even greater bullish influence than did the speech of President Coolidge before the Union league of Philadelphia. It has been the nervousness regarding the growth of installment buying that has influenced considerable of the bearishness in Wall street for the last few months. That the executive of the leading motor corporation should predict and support even further growth was accepted as evidence that the powers-that-be are not worried. In as much as Raskob is an associate of the Du Ponts who with the Morgan-First National interests have a strong voice in the General Motors management, Mr. Raskob's words were given added weight.

Further advance in Steel Common as well as the independent steel shares was due to the outline of the administration's plans for development of the country's resources, flood control and naval expansion. With steel prices firming up and consumers generally showing more inclination to place early 1928 business, the president's remarks could not have been made at a better time, in so far as the steel stockholders were concerned.

Union Carbide soared to a new high record as the Chicago group continued the operation that was first told of here a fortnight ago. The same interests were identified with continued activity in Loose Wiles, which brought a new high for the move, as well as being prominent in the further advance of Harvester and Montgomery Ward. The last two stocks have long been favored by the mid-westerners under belief that earnings will continue to improve and eventually cause better treatment of stockholders. Midland Steel's advance was the largest of the day and put the stock within a fraction of the 200 goal. The Freeport Texas pool, working on the theory that a larger dividend will be paid in 1928, came close to attaining the 100 mark forecast rather widely many months ago.

Livestock

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18. (AP)—Around 20 cars of steers were marked up for the day in Fort Worth with only a small supply of fed steers included. Sales reported at $9.25 to $10.50. A string of eight cars of grass steers did not move on the first round of bidding.

Cows were hardly as plentiful as Thursday's offering. Bulk butchers sold $5.25 and $6.25; meaty cutters $4.75 to $5.25; canners $4.25 to $4.75. Stocker cows fairly active at steady values.

Bulls were steady to strong with car lots selling at $5.85 a few small lots around $6.00; bologna bulls $5.00 to $5.50.

Calf trading was only fairly active at values about in line with Thursday's decline for butcher calves; stocker calves barely steady. Desirable veals lacking in receipts.

With northern markets registering heavy declines hogs at Fort Worth were slow in getting started. Early sales appeared 10 to 15 cents lower, top in the truck division $9.15; car lots at $9.00. Packing sows sold around $8.00 with pigs making $8.35 and $8.50.

With no sheep sales made in the morning values were considered nominally steady.

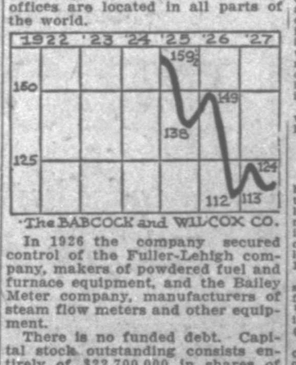

THE BABCOCK & WILCOX COMPANY.
5-Year Record.

The Babcock and Wilcox company manufactures water tube steam boilers for stationary and marine purposes. It also makes stokers, superheaters, economizers and accessories.

It was formed under the laws of New Jersey in April, 1881.

The principal plants of the company are located at Bayonne, N. J., and Barberton, Ohio. Each covers about 100 acres. A subsidiary known as the Babcock & Wilcox Tube company manufactures all the tubes for the company at Beaver Falls, Pa. The company has foreign subsidiaries in Canada and England. Sixty-five branch offices are located in all parts of the world.

The BABCOCK and WILCOX CO.

In 1926 the company secured control of the Fuller-Lehigh company, makers of powdered fuel and furnace equipment, and the Bailey Meter company, manufacturers of steam flow meters and other equipment.

There is no funded debt. Capital stock outstanding consists entirely of $22,700,000 in shares of $100 par. Stock must be held twenty days to entitle the holder to a vote.

Dividends have been paid at the rate of 7 per cent in 1924; 7 per cent and 3 per cent extra in 1925, and 7 per cent in 1926 and 1927. Divider s at the quarterly rate of 1 3-4 per cent have been declared up to April 1, 1928.

In 1926 the company showed a net profit of $2,036,516, or at the rate of $8.97 a share. This compares with $1,445,751 in 1925. As of January 1, 1927, profit and loss surplus amounted to $6,205,599. On that date, current assets totaled $16,557,800 and current liabilities $2,336,012, leaving net working capital of $14,221,788. Book value applicable to the stock, excluding foreign rights and patents, amounted to $134.80 a share. The company started 1927 with $8,683,858 in unfilled orders on its books.

CORN BULLISH IN GRAIN PIT

Shorts Get Rude Jolt In Price Gain

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18.—Enlistment of some of the active local operators on the bull side of corn made a strong market in that cereal and stimulated considerable interest. Shorts in general were disturbed by the advance in prices and heavy covering was done, with stoploss orders uncovered on the bulge. Closing quotations were practically at the top for the day.

The wheat market was heavy and closed lower, although there was a fair recovery from bottom in sympathy with the upturn in corn. Considerable long wheat came on the market and more or less hedging pressure. Oats were stimulated by the strength of the corn market but showed no activity and advances were moderate. Rye was weak.

Corn closed the day at net advances of 2 25/8c, while wheat showed a loss of ⅝@¾c. Oats closed ⅛@⅜c higher and rye was ⅝@1¼c lower. A pause in the export buying was reported and sales in all positions at the seaboard were reported at 250,000 bushels. Liverpool wheat closed ⅝@⅝ pence lower.

Broader interest is being displayed in the corn market. Some of the big traders are friendly to the bull side of corn and recently have taken important quantities of the future deliveries. Shorts in general were disturbed by the advance in prices and buying from this source was heavy. In fact the most active demand in the latter part of the session came from shorts. Commission house bought corn early and there were realizing sales on the advance.

Oats reflected the corn strength and were also helped by some commission house buying.

Rye showed considerable weakness.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, Nov. 18. (AP)—Remarkable buoyancy in the corn market developed today, with speculators purchasing on a large scale. An outstanding factor was a report from a Chicago crop expert that in 13 out of 15 years the final official estimate on corn yield has been lower than the government's November 1 estimate.

Closing quotations on corn were strong, 1⅞ to 2⅛c net higher. Wheat finished at ⅛ to ⅜c net decline, oats at ⅛ to ¼c advance, and provisions varying from 20c decline to a rise of 2½ @5c.

Wheat rallied some in sympathy with corn, but acted draggy. Export sales of North American wheat today amounted to the slender total of 250,000 bushels. A bear influence was announcement that the French tariff rate on wheat had been raised to 27¼c a bushel.

Offerings of oats to arrive were nil and the market tended also to reflect the strength of corn.

Provisions were responsive to a fair cash demand for lard, but the meat trade was slow.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18. (AP)—Wheat prices remained unchanged Friday. Exporters bid $1.36 to $1.37 for No. 1 hard wheat delivered to Texas gulf ports, a half cent under Thursday's bid. Milo was one to two cents higher.

Wheat, corn and oats unchanged.

No. 2 milo $1.40@1.43; No. 3 milo $1.38@1.38.

Rest unchanged.

KANSAS CASH GRAIN.

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 18. (AP)—Wheat: No. 2 hard $1.26@1.40½; No. 2 red $1.40½; Dec. $1.23; May $1.27⅝.

Corn: No. 2 white 76c; No. 2 yellow 81c; Dec. 79¼c; May 86¼c; July 88¼c.

PLACE OF HONOR RESERVED FOR MR. TURKEY IN WEEK'S MENU

PLAN TURKEY DINNER EARLY

Shopping For Food Then Is Real Pleasure

BY MRS. SIDNEY COCHRAN
Winner $5 Menu Prize.
Neapolitan Oranges
Cream of Almond Soup
Toast Sticks
Roast Turkey and Dressing
Celery Hearts Olives
Cranberry Relish
Delmonico Potatoes
Buttered Peas Dinner Rolls
Smothered Cauliflower
Jellied Fruit Salad
Frozen Pumpkin Pudding
Roquefort Cheese Saltines
Coffee
Salted Pecans Bonbons

With the Thanksgiving dinner completely planned a few days in advance, the marketing and preparation of it becomes a comparatively simple matter. The turkey is put in readiness for baking the day before, and such "fixings" as the bonbons, salted nuts, celery, cranberry relish, soup and jellied salad are also prepared. For the centerpiece in the table decoration o cornucopia filled to overflowing with the colorful furits and nuts of the harvest season will symbolize the beauty that inspired the first Thanksgiving. Autumn leaves in the brilliant reds and yellow are used to complete the decoration. (This menu may be simplified for a Sunday dinner.)

Neapolitan oranges are prepared by peeling small seedless oranges and slicing in crosswise sections. Pile a mound of these slices on a colored glass plate, sprinkle with bits of angelica and serve to each guest.

Cream of Almond Soup.

Make the stock for soup at least a day ahead from a knuckle of veal weighing about four pounds. Place it in three quarts of cold water, allow it to come slowly to the boiling point, then simmer for hour and half. Half hour before removing from fire, add one stalk of celery cut in pieces, one onion sliced and three teaspoons of salt. Next day when stock has cooked remove fat, strain, heat, and thicken with three tablespoons of cornstarch moistened in water. Add a quarter cupful of almonds which have been blanched and put through the food chopper. On each serving put a tablespoonful of whipped cream and either sprinkle with paprika or grated yolks of hard cooked eggs.

Roast Turkey and Dressing.

For the family of average size, a turkey hen weighing between 10 and 12 pounds seems most satisfactory. Twenty minutes to the pound should be time alloted to roasting. An attractive brown surface is attained by basting the turkey in buttered drippings. A most delicious dressing is made using equal parts of corn bread crumbs and whole wheat bread. Crumbs, bound together with turkey stock from the dripping pan, and seasoned with the usual sage, onion, salt and pepper, nuts meats, pimento or hard boiled eggs may be added. Cranberry relish is prepared by adding the juice of an orange, and the grated peel, also a few seedless raisins to cranberry sauce. An unfailing recipe for cranberry sauce is:

2 cups cranberries.
1 cup sugar.
1-2 cup water.

Cook slowly 10 minutes after it begins to boil.

Delmonico Potatoes.

Peel and cut into small dices enough potatoes to make a quart. Butter a deep fireproof dish, put in a layer of potatoes, sprinkle with salt, pepper, chopped onion and parsley and dot with butter. Repeat until dish is full, having the seasoning on top. Add milk merely to cover and bake slowly for 45 minutes.

Smothered Cauliflower.

Cook a fine head of cauliflower until tender, salting the last part of the time, and place in a deep buttered baking dish. Pour around it and over it a pint of thick highly seasoned stewed tomato to which have been added two tablespoonfuls of butter and a little grated onion. Cover with fine crumbs, a layer of grated cheese and set in hot oven to brown.

Jellied fruit salad has for its foundation a rather stiff gelatin flavored sharply with lemon or orange juice and paprika. Cool the jelly, but before it begins to congeal, add sliced peaches, bananas, white grapes, halved and seeded, and maraschino cherries, and stir in also two tablespoonfuls of whipped cream dressing. Mold, chill thoroughly and serve on lettuce leaves with whipped cream salad dressing.

Frozen pupkin pudding is simply one's favorite pumpkin pie recipe adapted to make an ice cream. The custard foundation is cooked in a double boiler until thick, pumpkin and spices added, half pint of whipped cream and folded into the cooled pumpkin mixture and frozen.

Kitchen Hints

MENU HINT

Not every one thinks of combining the baked potato with meat and making one dish of them. Sausage meat or bacon may be used in place of the link sausage advised in the recipe.

Sausage and Potato
Stewed Tomatoes
Apple Celery Salad
Cookies Tea or Coffee

Butter Cookies—One cup butter, one cup sugar, two eggs two and one-fourth cups flour, one teaspoon cream tartar, one-half teaspoon soda. Cream butter and sugar together, add well beaten eggs and dry ingredients sifted together. Roll thin on floured board, cut in small rounds. Bake quickly in hot oven.

Brown Sugar Drop Cookies—Two cups brown sugar, one cup shortening, three eggs, five cups flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one teaspoon soda, one-fourth cup milk, one teaspoon vanilla. Cream shortening and sugar together, add well beaten eggs, milk and flour sifted with salt and soda; add vanilla. Drop in spoonfulls on greased pans and bake in moderate oven.

Salamagundi—This word is French and means a mixture of many kinds.

Suggestions

Garden Leftovers.—Try combining tomatoes, carrots (diced and cooked soft) and corn if you have it, and cook well and seal in good jars. This is handy for vegetable soup during the winter.

Also take tomatoes, onions, mangoes or peppers (and celery if desired), cook well together and seal in jars. This is handy for your Swiss steaks, chili con carne and any Mexican dishes which you prepare.

A fine relish can also be made from small beans, carrots, celery, cauliflower, pickles, mangoes and lima beans. Cook each vegetable separately with small amount of water and then combine with a sweet pickling vinegar, then seal hot.

BAKED HAM ON THIS MENU

But It's Real Thanksgiving Dinner, at That

BY MRS. CHAS. GREEN,
Winner $2.50 Menu Prize.

I have tried to plan a Thanksgiving menu. One in which the housewife will have prepared several days ahead and won't be too tired to entertain her guests. Virginia baked ham with plenty of fanciful garnishing is especially fitted to become the piece de resistance at any Thanksgiving table. A fruit centerpiece is best arranged low on a tray backgrounded with autumn leaves. Each piece of fruit should be prepared and carefully washed and polished for its important mission of forming a centerpiece.

Oyster Cocktail
Wafers
Curled Celery Salted Nuts
Olives Cranberry Conserve
Virginia Baked Ham Asparagus
Carrot Pineapple Salad
Baked Stuffed Tomatoes
Candied Sweet Potatoes Biscuits
Mince Pie Pumpkin Ice Cream
Glaze Dates Sultana Cake Grapes
Cafe Noir.

Oyster Cocktail.

One pint of oysters, drained from their liquor, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons vinegar, 3 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon tomato catsup, 1 tablespoon horseradish, 1 teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, few drops tobasco. Mix all together and let stand in ice box over night. Serve ice cold in small glasses as a first course, or they may be served in halves of grapefruit set on a lettuce leaf.

Virginia Baked Ham.

Scrape a whole ham with a blunt-edged knife and scrub it thoroughly with hot water and a stiff brush. Then soak it over night in cold water. In the morning rinse it well and place it in a large kettle of fresh water. Bring slowly to the boiling point and skim well. In half an hour add half dozen whole black pepper corns, the same number of allspice berries, a small pod of red pepper and half a dozen cloves to the liquor and lower the heat so the ham may just simmer. As the wajer evaporates add more, keeping it two inches above ham. When the ham is so tender it may be pierced with a folk take from fire and let cool in the liquor. Lift from the pan and trim off fat and ragged portions and stick a pattern of whole cloves in the fat. Next place the ham in a saucepan and pour a quart of cider over it. Let it soak for six hours, then wipe it dry and brush all over with beaten egg. Cover it with a mixture of bread crumbs and brown sugar, using equal quantities of each, then place it in a dripping pan. Pour the cider about it and bake in a slow oven from one to two hours according to size of ham, basting it with the liquid every half-hour. Make a gravy of the cider, seasoning it highly with paprika.

Candied Sweets in the Real Old Southern Style.

Boil four medium sized potatoes, peel and slice them and place the slices in a baking dish. In a sauce pan put 1 cup brown sugar 1-2 cup water, 2 tablespoons butter and cook this mixture until it forms a thick syrup. Add a pinch of salt and pour this over the sliced potatoes. Bake about 20 minutes, when they will be so deliciously candied and golden brown that they will fairly melt in your mouth.

Stuffed Baked Tomatoes.

Cut a thin slice from the blossom end of six tomatoes and with a spoon scoop out the pulp. Chop a small amount of cabbage and small onion fine and mix with them bread crumbs and the pulp; season with pepper, salt, 2 teaspoons sugar, 1-2 cup sweet cream or 1 small can evaporated milk. Mix these ingredients, fill the tomato shells, replace the slices and place the tomatoes in a buttered baking dish and put just enough water in pan to keep from burning. Put a lump of butter on each tomato, bake 20 minutes in hot oven.

Cranberry Conserve.

One quart cranberries, 2 cups raising, 4 cups sugar, 1 grapefruit, 2 cups cold water, 2 1-2 cups boiling water.

Run cranberries and raisins through food chopper, add cold water and cook until soft. Add juice and pulp of grapefruit, sugar and boiling water and cook until thick. Good with baked ham.

Curled Celery.

To prepare celery for table cut off roots and leaves. Separate stalks, wash and scrape. Gash the tops of stalks several times and chill in ice water. This will make the ends curl back. Add a slice of lemon to ice water and celery will be kept white and crisp.

Carrot and Pineapple Salad.

2 cups raw carrots, grated
1 cup grated pineapple drained
2 cups white grapes cut small
1 pimento cut in shreds
1-2 cup boiled salad dressing
1-2 cup heavy cream whipped stiff.

Soak three teaspoons of granulated gelatine in three tablespoons cold water. Then dissolve in fourth cup boiling water, cool and stir into the salad dressing and cream. Mix all together and chill over night in individual molds. Serve on lettuce nest with a teaspoon of mayonnaise on each serving. Sprinkle with paprika. This is a very good salad and nutritious, too.

Sultana Cake.

1 1-2 cups butter
1 1-2 cups sugar
6 eggs
1-2 cup canned cream
1 cup Sultanas
1-2 cup candied peel
1-2 cup almonds
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 cups flour.

Cream butter and sugar, add eggs, two at a time, beating a while between. Then flour sifted with baking powder, then fruit floured and lastly cream. Bake in loaf pan which has unbuttered letter paper cut to fit pan, pour cake batter into this and cover the entire top with almonds, placing them as desired. Bake one and a half to two hours in a slow oven. This cake is better made several days before it is used. Blanch the almonds.

Glaze Dates.

Remove the stones from one pound dates, stuff each date with half a walnut, put two cups sugar and one-fifth of a teaspoon cream of tartar in a saucepan and cook until sugar is entirely melted, stirring to keep from burning. Dip each date in the syrup and place on a well greased dish to harden. Arrange with fruit in centerpiece.

Hemming Curtains.—When putting the hems in curtains if you loosen the tension to your sewing machine when stitching them you will find it a great help in case you ever want to alter them. The stitches look as well as when tighter and are much easier to remove.

MENU HINT

A new and holesome dessert is a boon to any woman who is planning a good sized family dinner or one for guests. The dinner menu printed hereafter is a hearty one. The pear meringue might be made. I should think, with canned peare, omitting the first baking. It would be a good recipe to file if the family likes pears.

Coyotes All Set For Critical Test With Plainview Today

PACK FACES FORMIDABLE RIVAL IN PLAINS TEAM THIS AFTERNOON

McCallum Slips Up to Amarillo to Scout Game Between Golden Sandstorm And Electra

With Coach Alavro McCallum in Amarillo Friday afternoon where he was an interested spectator at the Amarillo-Electra contest, Coyal Francis, assistant coach, was in charge of the Wichita Falls high school Coyote pack in their final unlimbering exercises preliminary to Saturday's engagement with the powerful Plainview eleven.

Members of the Plainview squad arrived in Wichita Falls Friday night and immediately retired for a good rest prior to the contest this afternoon. The game will be called at 3 p. m. at Spudder park. The Plainview squad is expected to pay a brief visit to the field Saturday morning for a brief signal drill, more to unlimber than anything else.

Members of the Coyote squad are definitely convinced that they will have plenty to do this afternoon to win from their Plainview rivals. After a bad start early in the season, the Plainview eleven has been playing heads-up football, recently holding Lubbock to a six-all deadlock. As a basis of comparison it may be pointed out that Lubbock held Wichita Falls to a 12-12 tie.

For the last week members of the Coyote pack have been going through stiff workouts and as a consequence the team is declared by its coaches to be in the best of form. Announcement that Allred, star halfback, may appear in the game today after a long absence due to injuries, has added fuel to the fire of hope in the Pack's lair.

The probable starting line-ups today:

Coyotes	Pos.	Plainview
Chewning	Left End.	Laird
Scott	Left Guard.	Simpson
Barton	Center.	Stephens
Ramey	Right Guard.	Bond
Smith	Right Tackle.	Carter
Powell	Right End.	Terrell
Black	Quarterback.	Roper
Perkins	Left Half.	Schroeter
Mitchell (c)	Right Half.	Magill (c)
Mills	Fullback.	Rucker

Officials for the game at two posts have been nominated but the umpire is yet to be selected. St. Clair, (Baylor) will referee while Ward (Texas) will serve as head linesman.

SEYMOUR PUTS CUBS TO ROUT

Panthers Win Hot Grid Tilt 13-Nothing

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Nov. 18.—Playing a fast brand of football, the unbeaten Seymour Panthers Friday afternoon halted the Olney Cubs in their tracks, 13 to 0, on the local gridiron. Olney was somewhat outclassed throughout the contest with the exception of a desperate drive in the final quarter, which was ineffective, however. As a result of their victory over Olney, the Panthers will next week play Strawn for the Class B. district championship at a place to be announced later.

The Seymour Panthers scored their first touchdown shortly after the opening of the contest by a series of line plunges which drove the ball down field through Olney territory. Walker carried the ball over and Gorman kicked goal.

In the second quarter, the Panthers succeeded in making two powerful drives into Olney territory but each time lost the ball on the twenty-yard line, the first half ending without any additional scoring.

Seymour's second touchdown of the game came in the third quarter when Walker again went over on a line plunge. The ball was brought into scoring position by several sweeping end runs by Jones and Langford.

No News Yet In Sale Of Fussell

Final Steps to Be Taken At Dallas Meet

What's what and how come in the Fred Fussell deal whereby the Spudder ace of hurlers goes to the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National league in exchange for some important currency and a couple of good players the Bucs do not need as badly as a fine twirler will be known definitely after December 6.

Information to this effect was obtained Friday from J. Alvin Gardner, Spudder prexy, who averred that all matters pro and con anent the deal would be ironed out at the Dallas meeting of the national arbitration board of baseball leagues to be held during the first week in December.

"There's nothing new to say about the Fussell deal these days except that we'll know our stuff after the meeting at Dallas on December 6," the Spudder chieftain asserted.

Incidentally, President Gardner and Secretary Guy Airey of the Spudder organization are planning to do things up in Dallas in fine style during the arbitration meet. In order to have plenty of room for himself and his friends, Gardner has engaged a number of rooms at a Dallas hotel to serve as Spud headquarters.

JOE STECHER WINS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 18. (AP) Joe Stecher, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, defeated Renato Gardini of Italy, two out of three falls here last night.

Lewis osses Munn From Ring to Win

Ed (Strangler) Lewis, who claims to be the world's champion heavyweight wrestler, took Wayne (Big) Munn, former champion, to quite a rough cleaning here Friday night in the first fall of a scheduled finish match.

It was a finish match all right. Munn was finished for the evening at least, after Lewis hoisted him out of the ring with a flying headlock to conclude 53 minutes of wrestling. Following his catapult exit from the matted arena, Munn staggered back to be finished by another of Lewis' head strangles. This concluded the evening's show as Munn was unable to return to the ring for the second fall.

In the preliminary, Pat McGill disposed of Art Mondt in 19 minutes with a reverse headlock.

Southwestern Pirates Stop Trinity's Tigers

GEORGETOWN, Nov. 18. (AP)—The Southwestern university Pirates defeated the Trinity university Tigers 21 to 8 here Friday afternoon in a loosely played game.

An Open Letter to Judge Landis

By HAROLD SCHERWITZ
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 18.—An open letter to Judge Landis:

Dear Judge: We know we're a bit late—the board of arbitration has met and adjourned—but, Judge, the terrible situation we feel it our duty to bring to your attention just dawned upon us in all its horror yesterday.

Judge, you've got to save these poor, starving baseball players!

Think fast, Judge, or it may be too late!

Today we stumbled on a little group of baseball's great army of unemployed. There was Stormy Davis, and Frank Watt, and Joe Rabbitt, and Lefty Gudat, and some others. Judge, these men were desperate. They wanted work. They had scanned the papers closely for advertisements seeking food testers in restaurants. Subjects to be put to sleep by vaudeville hypnotists, actors for sleeping scenes, thousand-dollar bill counters in banks, even night watchmen in mattress factories. Stormy Davis—the guy who outfielded for Fort Worth and Waco in the Texas league and did the same in the Western league last summer, Judge—this Davis even had thought about opening a school to develop baseball pitchers — even that, Judge! Think of it!

Davis wanted to get up out of that comfortable chair in the Travelers hotel cigar stand, Judge, and go over and get a baseball, Judge, and come back and sit down and show young pitchers now to throw two new deliveries that he had thought up himself—imagine that, Judge!—called the "grass ball" and the "double kicker-in ball." Davis explained that the grass ball is first wrapped carefully with long blades of grass. It is delivered so that it does not turn until it reaches the plate and then it starts whirling furiously, throwing grass in the batter's eyes and continuing on right over the heart of the plate and into the catcher's mit. Imagine Davis being willing to let others in on his great secret, Judge, just to earn a few thousand dollars to buy bread and other things.

And that double kicker-in ball, Judge. He's even willing to divulge that precious pitching formula. He told it with tears in his eyes—how the ball, held between the thumb and the little finger, with the forefinger on the seam, is propelled like a hand grenade, and how, halfway to the plate, it jumps in half a foot, causing the batter to leap back, whereupon it jumps in half a foot more and the poor batter drops his bat in fright and begs the umpire to call him out.

But, Judge, you haven't heard the worst. Those poor devils there, with their diamonds unpolished and their shirts unchanged since morning, were plotting something—something that will wreck homes here, keep husbands out after the supper hour; that will cause untold suffering among those who must sit helplessly and see its culmination. Judge, those desperate men, their jobs gone until next spring, are fomenting winter baseball!

Judge, as the all-powerful czar of the mighty baseball kingdom, stop them! Hear the pleas of helpless fandom! Don't let 'em do it, Judge! The people here suffered enough last summer after the Bears blew up. This will be too much—too much—too much!

P. S.—Maybe you can devise some scheme, Judge, of organizing, each winter, a tour of the South Sea Islands for the baseball players, making it compulsory that every man go, and feeding the first guy to the cannibals who starts to write a letter home.

15,000 FANS TO VIEW TILT

Simmons-Howard Payne Interest Intense

Special to The Record News

ABILENE, Nov. 19.—Preparations are being made by Simmons University to accommodate a crowd of 15,000 people at the annual Thanksgiving Day grudge battle between the Simmons Cowboys and the Howard Payne Yellow Jackets. An added attraction for the occasion will be the annual homecoming for thousands of alumni and ex-students of Simmons.

The battle between the Ranchers and the Golden Tornado was witnessed by 12,000 people here two years ago, and early seat sales indicate a larger crowd this year. The Texas conference clash will be second in interest and crowds only to the Aggie-Longhorn tilt at College Station for battles in the state Thursday.

Last year Simmons took a 12-6 victory from Amis' men at Brownwood. A win for the Jackets this year means the championship of the Texas conference, and the Cowboys are determined that the Brownwood school shall not have that championship.

All visiting exes will be served a turkey dinner at the Simmons cafeteria at noon Thursday.

G. B. Sandefer, athletic manager for Simmons University, announced early this week that practically all the 1000 reserved seats placed on sale had been sold. Reservations have been made for 500 Brownwood boosters.

With completion of temporary stands, all things are in readiness on the Simmons campus to entertain the largest crowd ever to witness a grid clash in West Texas.

Hollis Defeats Vernon 18 to 13

Lions Unable to Block Passing Attack

VERNON, Nov. 18.—Led by Nance, husky full, the Hollis football team passed its way to victory over the Vernon Lions here this afternoon. The game was hard fought and the visitors made their final touchdown to make the 18-13 score in the last few minutes of play.

The Oklahoma eleven baffled the Lions with the aerial attack, and Nance took advantage of the Lions' attempts to open up for the aerial game, and reeled off long gains off tackle and around ends. The husky full was the outstanding man on the field, and was seldom stopped by less than two Vernon men.

The Lions took the third quarter after Baggett had replaced the reserves on the field with regulars, and presented a formidable aerial attack of their own. But the Hollis eleven came back in the final quarter with a continuous barrage of passes. The visitors piled up 16 first downs and Vernon made eight.

Hollis scored early in the first quarter when Nance carried the ball over after it had been brought down the field on a series of off-tackle plays. After the Hollis eleven had advanced the ball down the field within the 20-yard line in the second quarter Coach Baggett sent in his regulars. But the Hollis attack could not be stopped and Nance swept over left tackle for five yards and the touchdown with Baggett's first string on the field. He failed to boot for the extra point, leaving the score 12-0.

Near the close of the first half, Dodson on his own 40-yard line passed 30 yards to Key who ran the remaining distance for the touchdown. Castleberry kicked goal. In the third quarter Vernon took the ball from her own 40-yard line to the Hollis 30-yard line on a lateral pass, Key to Moore to Cox. Key then passed to Cox on Hollis' seven-yard line. Cox then went through center for the counter.

Hollis scored the final when E. Simms picked up Key's fumble deep in Vernon territory and ran for a touchdown.

The line up:

Vernon	Pos.	Hollis
Nabers	Left End.	Jenkins
Norwood	Center.	Newberry
Johnson	Right Tackle.	Seeright
Brown	Right End.	Burgette
Black	Left Guard.	E. Simms
A. Key	Right Guard.	Eaves
Sharp	Left Tackle.	J. Simms
Dodson	Quarterback.	Walker
Cox	Left Half.	Curb
Moore	Right Half.	Tucker
Withers	Fullback.	Nance

Substitutions: Vernon — Hacker for Nabers, Waggoner for Sharp, Kineman for Black, Parker for Norwood, Adams for A. Key, Stevens for Johnson, Castleberry for Moore, C. Key for Withers, Thomas for Waggoner, Hacker for Brown, Johnson for Stevens, Castleberry for Moore, Nabers for Hacker, Waggoner for Thomas, Moore for Castleberry.

Hollis—Johnson for Walker, Campbell for J. Simms.

SHERMAN WINS TITLE

SHERMAN, Texas, Nov. 18. (AP) Sherman high school's football team cinched the championship of District 5 here Friday afternoon by defeating Gainesville high 34 to 0. It was a rather slow game.

BUFFALOES WIN 27-6

CANYON, Nov. 18. (AP)—West Texas state teachers' college Buffaloes Friday afternoon drubbed the Stephen F. Austin Teachers of Nacogdoches 27 to 6 here Friday afternoon.

BROWNWOOD WINS TITLE

BROWNWOOD, Nov. 18. (AP)—Brownwood high school won the class B championship of this district by defeating Kerrville high school 8 to 6 here Friday afternoon.

Baseball Star In Role of Hero

IRONWOOD, Mich., Nov. 18. (AP) A dramatic story of the futile and heroic fight Ralph Shinners, widely known ball player, made to save the life of Charles Wilson, 59, a guide, came out of the snow storm that swept over northern Wisconsin and the upper Michigan peninsula.

Wilson's frozen body was recovered today in the woods near Pine Lake by a rescue party that started out after Shinners, fighting the cold and snow drifts, had made his way through the woods to summon help. It lay on a bed of cedar boughs fashioned by Shinners after he found he could not carry Wilson. The 59-year-old guide had become exhausted when they sought to find their way out of the woods Monday. Snow had obliterated the trail.

Shinners played last year as an outfielder with the Oakland team in the Pacific Coast league and at various times has been with the New York Giants, St. Louis Cardinals and the Toledo American association club.

SPUDS ELECT OLD OFFICERS

Gardner Again President Of Baseball Club

J. Alvin Gardner was re-elected president, Lloyd Weaver vice president and Guy F. Airey, secretary and treasurer at the annual meeting of stockholders of the Wichita Falls Baseball club held Friday morning.

All members of the club's board of directors were also re-elected at the meeting. They are J. Alvin Gardner, Lloyd Weaver, R. O. Harvey, C. E. McCutchen, William E. Huff, Fred Weeks, Dr. E. P. Bass, E. G. Hill and L. H. Cullum.

Only routine matters incidental to the formality of an annual stockholders' meeting were acted upon, Spudder officials stated after the conference.

Lewis Puts "Kibosh" On Paul Jones Twice

DALLAS, Nov. 18. (AP)—After grappling for one hour, one minute and 25 seconds before he threw Paul Jones, Texas wrestler, the first time, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, threw his opponent for a second fall in only two minutes and 25 seconds, winning the match here last night. Jones first fall knocked him unconscious.

STEEDS FEAR RAGS OF T. C. U.

Star Horned Toad End To Be Marked Man

Special to The Record News.

DALLAS, Nov. 19.—"Keep Rags out," is the cry at Mustangville these days as Ray Morrison prepares his Southern Methodist University Mustangs for their turkey day tilt with T. C. U. at Fort Worth.

Last year Rags Matthews, playing at end for the Horned Frogs, dealt the Mustangs plenty of misery. He was probably the greatest reason why the Mustangs only won by one point. The Mustangs know and fear Rags as the greatest defensive end that has ever battled them and for that reason they are eating and sleeping "Keep Rags out."

All week the Ponies have labored on a set of new plays to flash in their invasion of Horned Frogland and it is no state secret that a great many of these plays have been fashioned to get around, or over, or under, Rags—at least to keep the Mustang backs from becoming too closely acquainted with the great Frog end.

Turkey day will see Mann, Lawson, Tatum and Craig in harness for the last time. They say, "It's our last go-round and we refuse to be stopped. Watch us go." Mann and Dawson are especially anxious to get their great passing game working again as it did in the Missouri game.

C. Williams To Shoot At Teals

Spudder Pilot Off For Duck Hunting Trip

The cotton's in and the land's all plowed, the fall crop's stored and the pigs are sewed—so Carl Williams, prominent farmer of Santa Anna blew into Wichita Falls Friday hunting for something to do to keep time from hanging heavy on his hands. And hunting for something to do, Carl has decided to do some hunting—for ducks. Therefore, Williams, accompanied by several friends from Santa Anna, left Friday night for Big Lake to spend Saturday shooting or shootin' at some teal and mallards.

Williams and company went to Lake Kemp as guests of E. G. Hill, Slick Ansley and several other Wichita Falls baseball fans. They will occupy Hill's hunting lodge at the big pond during their stay which may last several days.

Williams, who runs a 300-acre farm and cabbage patch down Santa Anna way when he isn't busy piloting the Spudders to their championships, announced upon his arrival in the city Friday that he had about completed his fall plowing. He reported disposing of a fine turkey crop and stated that his hogs are large and fat, ready for butchering as soon as "killing" weather comes.

Aside Spudder chances next year for a repeat in the Texas league championship race Carl Williams believes that the local club is still the class of the field.

Five All-Conference Stars To Play When Mustangs Meet T. C. U. Toads

Special to The Record News.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 19.—Fans who see the T. C. U. Horned Frogs and the S. M. U. Mustangs clash here Thanksgiving Day in the first homecoming game for the Frogs, will have the opportunity of observing five athletes in action who receive all-conference rating last year.

They were Raymond "Rags" Matthews, T. C. U. 's stellar wingman, and four S. M. U. stars, Gerald Mann, quarterback, Redman Hume, halfback; "Dog" Dawson, end and John Roach, tackle.

This fact also is an example of the edge the Ponies have on the Frogs in the matter of team material. Graduation in June, 1927, removed 12 veterans from the Frog squad, five of whom had received all-conference mention during their stay in T. C. U. Those five are, Herman Clark, Raymond Wolf, John Washmon, Horace Brewster and Luther Scarborough.

The Ponies, on the other hand, had practically the same squad to work with—the combination that won the undisputed championship of the conference last year. Moreover, the fact that both teams have their records chunked this year with two defeats each, puts them on more or less of an even footing. The Frogs also have two ties against them which really amounts to another loss.

Some critics gave the Christians the edge over the Methodists even in the face of the above facts inasmuch as the Frogs held the Texas Aggies to a scoreless tie while the Farmers handed the Mustangs a 20 to 13 beating. And in addition to this, the Frogs held the Centenary College Gentlemen to one lone touchdown to take a 7 to 3 while the Gents downed the Ponies 24 to 12.

Purkers Battle With Kangaroos Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 19. (AP)—With six victories out of seven starts in football games this season, the Arkansas Purkers are striving to perfect defense that will prove impenetrable to the Austin college Kangaroos aerial attack in the best game of the season here Saturday.

TOMMY LOUGHRAN MATCHED

Frog Cagers Look For Strong Squad

Several Letter Men Back For Basketball

FORT WORTH, Nov. 19.—With five conference games scheduled for Fort Worth, the basketball season for the Frogs bids fair to attract much attention in North Texas. With Baylor, A. & M., S. M. U., Texas and Rice playing on the local court, fans will have opportunity to see the best teams in the Southwest perform.

Six trips are billed for the Purple. Two games will be played in Fayetteville, Ark., on January 6 and 7. On January 12, the S. M. U. Mustangs will be played in Dallas. Contests with A. & M. at College Station, Rice at Houston, Baylor at Waco and Texas at Austin complete the remainder of the out-of-town play. The final game of the season will be played at Austin on February 25.

Start Practice Early

Several members of the Frog team have been warming about the Purple court for several weeks getting their eyes on the basket. While it is several weeks until official practice starts, gridiron players who are not engaged in football work have been greeting, passing and generally on it the order will prevail.

Under the leadership of Chris McDonnell last year's lettermen at center, the squad has been working two of whom are veterans of the 1926 team of Francis Cantrell, for three years a regular forward in the conference, will be handle ball in the Frogs. However, Lewis Cunningham, Harrell Hall and "Shorty" Williams, all veterans, are varsity timber should be little worry about the forward end of the court.

Two Letter Centers

At center, two lettermen will return, Chris McDonnell and Jim Robertson with the latter the strongest offense. With the advent of Buster Walker, last year freshman, into the realm of "big time" athletics, will make the position triply secure.

Last year the Frogs finished fourth in the conference race, having vanquished six teams and lost to four for a percentage of .600. While T. C. U. has always been high in the standing when the final whistle has trilled, a championship has never been gained the trophy room of the Purple. This year with the material on hand this year hopes of the university are running high.

"Knuckle Pushing" Faces Swift "K. O." by Civic and Religious Abolitionists

By ED HUGHES

Professional boxing, it appears, is soon to have a real fight on its hands. The battle will in every sense be a professional affair for the gent in the other corner is none other than your old blue-beaked friend—the professional reformer. Prominent and religious organizations, donning the mitts of self-constituted censorship, expect to hand an early knockout wallop to knuckle entertainment in the Empire state anyway. Early next year the professional devil-chasers hope to introduce a bill demanding the repeal of the Walker law, which legalizes the glove game in New York.

The battle, as a matter of fact, is already under way, and it should interest devotees of boxing to report that the agents of high-pressure purity have had something of the better of it. Out of 45 questionnaires sent to candidates to the assembly 30 answered favorably to the bluenoses. That would indicate that John Q. Public, who elects lawmakers to interpret his wants, should get on the job.

The professional reformer, alive to every strategem of politics, unholy and otherwise, is not the puny foe of personal liberty that some folks depict.

* * *

Statistics Indicate Boxing Is Wanted in Empire State

Citizens of the Empire state have amply demonstrated that they want boxing, that it is as necessary to their hours of leisure as the theater, the movie house, the billiard parlor, the ball park or the bridge table. Attendance records of the boxing clubs and corporations testify generously to that—an item that appears to have missed the vote-getting calculations of assembly candidates.

Wise politicians understand that professional reform organizations are in the business of "painting" the universe for purely personal gratification, as merely another means of "earning" a living. The paid reformer has no more genuine regard for the public's needs than the snaky creature who palms off "quack" medicines as sure-thing cures for human ailments.

* * *

How Boxing Fans Should Deal With Office Seekers

Smaller political fry, misinterpreting the duties of office, may represent a real menace to the welfare, to the public's interest in boxing's impending clash with the purists. That is, they will unless lovers of boxing seize their respective coat lapels and read the riot act to them.

Boxing fans, through personal effort and political organizations dedicated to the cause of the "peepul," have it in their power to repulse this latest campaign of the reformer against the entertainment the ring affords.

* * *

Pals of the Angels Score First Blood of Battle

However, it will require some concentration on the conflict at hand if their beloved amusement of boxing is to survive. Just at present, it would seem, the gentlemen who rub wings with the angels are setting the pace. They already laid impressive hands on assembly candidates with the mistaken notion they are elected to office for something other than feeling the pulse of the people.

* * *

Some Statistics That Should Be Furnished Certain Folks

The public pulse beat in respect to professional boxing is indicated in the statistics of the game at Albany. It might be a good idea for boxing to see that the gentlemen of the legislature are supplied with the true facts regarding the public's attitude toward boxing and those who would kill it.

The worst blockhead among office seekers understands that he cannot long bite the hands that feed him his salary and the blissful moments of "fame" that are attached to office holding.

When Jim Driscoll Attempted To Explain British Defeats

Some years before he died the great Jim Driscoll attempted to explain the cause of British failures in the ring. The writer summing up Phil Scott's chances, spoke of the suicidal fetish which Britons had made of the "straight left" and "soft" boxing in general. Here is what Driscoll had to say about it:

"It has been a bitter disappointment, too. The opportunities were there but the boxers who have come up—if one can apply the term to them—during the past few years have shown an utter disregard for the essential to true success in the ring, the old British style, which, despite a notion far too prevalent, is superior and will ever be superior to all others.

"Its supremacy was decried at one time, say 10 or 12 years ago when most of the world's titles were held by men who prided themselves on being real American 'huskies.' These men were great 'infighters.'

* * *

Driscoll Couldn't Praise Champs Who Used Swings and Hooks

"They sought close quarters invariably and relied for their success on their ability to assimilate punishment and to deal it out. They scorned the use of the straight left, or else professed to do so. Some of them actually did, relying on swings, hooks and particularly rough tactics to batter their way to victory.

"They were successful over the straight lefters who went up because they were stronger and tougher men physically. Also because the British stylists whom they met and defeated were only half-educated pugilistically.

* * *

Everything Was Theirs But Real Force and Accuracy

"These men might have been able to hit straight, but were ignorant or indifferent to the necessity of putting real force into their punches as well as accuracy of aim. All the real champions and first fighters of today, American and French, are 'straight lefters,' disciples of the old British school.

"Jack Dempsey, Tom and Mike Gibbons, Harry Wills, Georges Carpentier, Benny Leonard, etc., are all men who hit straight, use the left hand as it should be used, and the first, last and all the time boxers first and fighters afterwards."

That gives you a fair idea of the Briton's persistent stubbornness in not recognizing the value of improved methods in the ring. Calling Dempsey a "straight lefter" and first of all a boxer is perhaps the best illustration of the cause of British failure in the ring.

* * *

Dempsey Was Strictly a Fighter And a Hooker

John Bull will have it that it is a "bawxing" match and not a fight, and so he continues to miss "straight lefts" and take it on the chin.

Driscoll, of all people, should have known better.

PANTHERS TIE CONTEST LATE

Wesley Drive For Score In Last Quarter

Wichita Falls Junior college's Indians and Wesley college's Panthers fought each other to a thrilling six-to-six deadlock Friday afternoon in a hard battle on the Spudder Park gridiron. The Indians, scoring first, held the edge on the Panthers only to be tied later when the Greenville team made a sensational drive. Both teams failed to kick goal.

The Indians' score came as a direct result of a poor punt by the Panthers which gave the local team the ball on the 25-yard line. However previously the Indians had driven the ball to the Wesley one-foot line there to lose on downs, and the Panther punt was made from behind the Wesley goal.

The Panthers made their marker when Clarence Bledsoe and Frankie Segall carried the ball almost the length of the field to shove it over for a touchdown in the last five minutes of play.

It was on the shoulders of these two Panther backs that the brunt of the Wesley ground gaining fell. Bledsoe was the outstanding star with Wesley both on the offense and the defense.

Ray Stars In Line.

Hunky Ray, former Coyote, was the man in the line for Wichita Falls all the way. Time after time Ray was the man who stopped the fleet Panther backs before they could get off to a good start. With Ray and Sammons holding down the Wichita Falls right of the line there was very little gaining through this sector.

Schroeder, Turner and Bost in the Wesley line stood out with their defensive work. Hendrix, Bledsoe and M. Castlebury held up most of the work in the secondary defense.

Edmondson, Atkins and Tarkington were the trio that afforded Hunky Ray his greatest assistance in his noble stand in the line. Lefty Watson stood out in the backfield on the defense with several great tackles.

Moore Plunges Gains.

Dempsey Moore, hard plunging Wichita Falls back, did most of the gaining for Wichita Falls with McConnell and Hodges putting in with several nice gains.

Both teams battled on even terms both in score and first downs, each making 17 first downs during the game.

The Indians started off with a rush at the first of the game. Wichita Falls kicked off to Wesley and the ball was put in play on the Wesley 40-yard line. Wesley fumbled and the alert Hunky Ray covered it up. McConnell plunged into the line twice to gain five yards. Enloe passed to Watson for a 15-yard gain. McConnell failed to gain, but Hodges ripped off 8-yards through the line and then followed up with a first down on the Panther 10-yard line. McConnell failed twice to gain through the line. Then Wesley drew a 5-yard penalty. Moore went into the game and on his first play he ripped off 3-yards through center. On his next plunge he liked some six inches making a touchdown and the ball went over.

Wesley Punter Rushed

The Wesley kicker was rushed on his punt and it went out of bound on their 25-yard line. Hodges thundered around the Wesley left end for a six yard gain. Moore made one yard and then Hodges made six yards over center. Enloe and Hodges made two yards on two plunges. A pass was incomplete. On another pass Red Ewing was slightly injured while taking a dive after the ball and it was incomplete, but Wesley drew a 5-yard penalty. Moore made three yards at center and then hit a stone wall defense. Enloe also failed to gain through the line as the Panthers made a great stand on their own goal line. Hodges made one yard and Enloe followed this with a plunge over for the last foot and a touchdown.

Wesley Makes Threat.

Later Wesley threw a scare in the Indians when Segall tossed a pass to M. Castlebury who ran down the field for a 35 yard gain before Watson brought him down with a beautiful tackle. This placed the ball on the Wichita Falls 18-yard line. Segall plunged twice for three yards. Rundell then nailed Segall for a loss and he fumbled with Wichita Falls recovering the ball.

Bledsoe stopped a Wichita Falls threat by intercepting a pass on his own 29-yard line and then starting an advance up the field that sent the ball over the goal line. Segall made seven yards at left end. Bledsoe shoved through center for six more yards. Bledsoe gained four yards through the line. Bledsoe had been running wild on this last minute rampage of the Panthers. Frankie Segall gained four yards when the Indians began to lay for Bledsoe and were crossed up. Again they were crossed up and M. Castlebury made nine yards on a long right end run. Watson held Bledsoe for a three-yard loss to place the ball back on the four-yard line. Bledsoe ripped off one yard at center and then went over the Wichita Falls right tackle for three yards and a touchdown. A line plunge for extra point failed.

Indian Rally Fails.

The Indians made one last gallant effort to regain the lost victory and they started plunging down the field and passing until they reached the Wesley 40-yard line. Lefty Watson tossed a pass to Hodges that gained 18 yards and placed the ball on the Wesley 21-yard line. Shorter plunges with a nine-yard buck by Hodges put the ball on the Wesley five-yard line and fourth down. A lateral en up by Hendriv for a five-yard en up by Hendriz for a five-yard loss. It was a pretty tackle by the Panther back.

For the last few minutes of the game the two teams battled in midfield.

Joe Dundee Suspended By N. Y. Fight Board

NEW YORK, Nov. 18. (AP)—Joe Dundee of Baltimore, world's welterweight champion, was suspended today by the New York state athletic commission as a result of the recent Los Angeles fiasco in which his title fight with Ace Hudkins fell through at the last minute.

At the same time two of the New York commission's official physicians pronounced Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, unfit to fight as a result of an injury to one of his fingers, thereby supporting the boxer's excuse for calling off a fight scheduled Friday night at Madison Square Garden with Tom Heeney.

A St. Andrew's Cross, as used by railways of this country, has been adopted as the standard sign of warning at unguarded railway crossings in Europe.

STEERS GUARD AGAINST HURTS

Longhorns in Good Trim For Turkey Day

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 18.—Texas will take the field against the Texas Aggies at College Station next Thursday with a team that is in the best condition it has been in all season. For by that time, Texas coaches have indicated that every man on the squad will be in the pink of condition for the fracas.

Texas has been seriously hampered by injuries all season. A large group of injured players that were left over from last year have hampered the progress of the Longhorns this season. Coaches this year have been highly careful to see that no man gets injured unnecessarily in practice.

Care Against Injury

Especial care is being taken this and next week by the Texas coaches to see that scrimmage and practice does not take the toll of any of the Longhorn athletes. Every precaution is being taken to keep the team in good condition, which it has at last gotten around to.

The Longhorns were taken behind strictly closed gates Monday, and will work in strict secrecy for the Aggie-Texas classic the rest of the training period.

Longhorn coaches met with Coach Littlefield early in the week and worked out their entire training schedule for the ten day period that it alloted to them for getting ready for the Thanksgiving affair.

Texas Freshmen are being called over almost daily for scrimmage work with the Longhorns. How hard the scrimmage is being the Longhorn coaches do not indicate. They only say they are being careful.

Overflow Crowd Expected

Indications from the early season sale of tickets indicate that a crowd of 16,000 fans will likely be turned away from the classic, because the Texas A. & M. facilities can only accommodate 26,000 fans. Texas rooters' tickets went on sale Monday and 699 Texas boys bought tickets on the first day. Practically the entire student body will be at the game.

Iowa Park Teams In Scoreless Tie Contest

IOWA PARK, Nov. 18.—Two Iowa Park high school teams, one composed of senior and sophomore players and the other of junior and freshman gridders, fought to a scoreless deadlock here Friday afternoon. Both teams played steady football and appeared as evenly matched as the score indicates.

Playing 'em Over

With the Dixie Champions

On May 23, the Spudders invaded Buffalo-town and lost to Penner, Houston ace, who handed them a 5 to 1 trimming, lacing for what have you. But the Spuds kept their grip on first place, which they had held since the opening of the season and which they were not to relinquish throughout the entire race.

Herb Cobb did mound duty for the Spuddertown nine. He allowed eight hits of which Kane, Buff second sacker, collected three, all being singles. The Spudders got only five licks in a total of 30 times at bat but three of these were for extra bases, Mann getting two doubles and Jenkins a triple.

Payne relieved Cobb in the eighth and allowed one more run.

The Spudders' lone run came in the ninth inning, too late to put much of a dent in the lead Penner's mates had piled up for him.

1800 To Vie In 'TU' Athletics

Intramural Program to Be Extensive Affair

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 18.—Over 1800 students are again expected to participate in Intramural Athletics at the University of Texas this season. Exactly 1840 took part in the various sports last season. This number includes members of 315 teams that took part in contests at the University last season.

Football as an intramural sport was abolished at the beginning of the current season, because of lack of equipment, due to the top heavy Freshman football team of 157 members. It is likely that the sport will be resumed next year.

Fourteen sports decorate the roster of intramural athletics at Texas university. Baseball, basketball, track, tennis, cross-country, golf, boxing, wrestling, rifle-shooting, handball singles, handball doubles, swimming, diving, and fencing are the sports that are engaged in by the intramural athletics.

The only rules that govern the participation of individuals in intramural athletics is that the student must not have lettered in sport in which he participates at this or any other major college or university, and that he must not be a member of any university squad at the time he is participating in intramurals. The student likewise must have permission from his doctor to take part in the sports.

Three divisions of intramural sports are made. The sports are conducted in each division alike. The champions of each division then meet to decide the championship of the university. Sports are engaged in in the independent, departmental, and fraternity divisions.

Intramurals at the university are under the direction of Berry Whittaker, former Texas head coach. Under Whittaker are the senior council members, W. D. Waldman, John Stifer, and George Smith who direct the work of intramurals a term each. Six junior councilmen, Al Smith, Woodward Reagan, Roy Smith, O. D. Manes, Walter Wukasch, and Isadore Cohen.

Tennis and golf are the sports that are in sway now. A tournament in both sports is being staged in Austin under the direction of the intramural department.

Carl Williams Sees Indians Tie Wesley

Carl Williams, popular manager of the Wichita Falls Dixie baseball kings, and George LaFayette, first baseman for that same crew of well known fence busters, saw a different game of ball from that they play in Spudder Park when they watched the Wichita Falls Junior College Indians and the Wesley College Panthers battle to a 6 to 6 draw Friday afternoon.

The skipper looked to be in mid-season form right now. This was the first football game he had witnessed in the park this year, but LaFayette has been a regular fan at all of the games.

SAINTS IN HOME COMING

AUSTIN, Nov. 18. (AP)—Former students of St. Edwards' university will gather here Saturday in the annual home coming of the institution which will be featured by the football game between the Saints and the Daniel Baker college of Brownwood.

Kyle Field Will Care For Fans

Record Crowd Expected At Turkey Day Game

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 18.—Although the attendance at the Texas Aggie-Longhorn game on Kyle field Thanksgiving day will be the largest in the history of A. & M. athletics, no difficulty is expected by the athletic department in taking care of the large crowd, according to James Sullivan, business manager of athletics.

Much care has been taken in planning every possible convenience for the visitors and an effort is going to be made to get every person to his seat as quickly and with as little trouble to him as possible.

The tickets for the game are marked with gate, ramp, section, row and seat numbers, and if ticket holders will follow these numbers, they will have no trouble in finding their seats, and will reach their places by the shortest routes, Mr. Sullivan said.

SANDIES CHECK ELECTRA, 27-0

Amarillo Continues Dash Toward District Title

AMARILLO, Nov. 18.—Amarillo's Golden Sandstorm continued its whirlwind advance in the race for the District No. 1, Class A, Texas interscholastic league championship, here Friday by defeating the fast Electra Tigers by a score of 27 to 0. The Sandies' machine work in the contest was the outstanding feature, while the Tigers played hard football despite the odds against them.

The Amarillo Sandstorm will now give its undivided attention to the Thanksgiving Day contest with the Wichita Falls Coyotes which is expected to decide the district race.

The Sandies will go into the game with the Wichita Falls pack Turkey Day with a record of having been scored on only once this season. Plainview managed to push one touchdown across the Sandstorm goal before losing 13 to 6 early in the season.

BURK SOCIETY

BURKBURNETT, Nov. 18. — The Mothers Self-culture club was delightfully entertained by Mrs. McFarlane and Mrs. R. D. Cunningham at the home of Mrs. Cunningham's mother, Mrs. J. M. F. Gill on East Main. Mrs. Henderson had charge of the lesson. Mrs. Rex Smith opened the program by reading a letter from Dr. A. A. Burlee concerning bees. Dr. Bruce writes a letter on what ever these clubs select as their topic each month. Mrs. H. L. Johnson read a paper on "Something About Bees" and Mrs. Frank Kelly one on "Flowers and Their Friends." The topic of Mrs. Dudley Ellis' was "Marriage Among the Clovers". Mrs. Rex Smith closed the program with a song. A special number was a song by Miss Nora Wofford.

Refreshments were served to Mesdames Clyde Henderson, Mrs. A. E. Hill, Frank Kelly, E. Williams, Frank Bell, W. B. Hogg, Dudley Ellis, Al Lohoefener, Carl Cowles, T. A. Dodson, Clayton White, Wilson, Bain Leake, Ryan, Rex Smith, McFarlane, R. D. Cunningham, and Miss Nora Wofford.

Rotary Luncheon.

At the weekly luncheon of the Rotary in the annex of the Central Christian church Glen R. Kincaid presided. Al Gronvold and Harry Jones led the club in songs. Ed Williams gave a classification talk on ice, using an ice refrigerator with a glass back for demonstration. Past President Paul P. Browning welcomed Isaac Harwell into the club as a new member classified as an insurance agent. Visitors from Wichita Falls were Joe Hucklns, Milo Conley, P. A. Welty, and Al Deathridge. Guests of Jack Chatham were R. F. Rhodes, of Abilene and Lee Myers of Burkburnett.

University Club.

The University Study club met at the home of Mrs. Bob Travis Wednesday. Mrs. W. R. Hill presided over a shortbusiness session and then turned the meeting to Mrs. I. E. Harwell who announced the subject of the lesson as, "Art and Museums," and spoke on the "Louvre in Paris." Mrs. R. M. Gilchrist read a paper on "Britjsh Museums". Mrs. Russell Chamberlain discussed very interestingly, "Metropolitan Art Institute. Ted Harwell displayed copies of art pictures that he had been studying in school and gave interesting talks on each of them.

After the program a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served to Mesdames J. M. Pogue, R. D. Waters, R. D. Cunningham, J. C. Adams, M. L. Urban, Joe Davis, E. J. Williams, J. M. F. COMET GETS INTO PICTURE

Big Telescope Trained On Celestial Body

By Universal Service.

WILLIAMS BAY, Wis., Nov. 19. Encke's comet has had its picture taken at last, Prof. G. Van Biesbroeck of the Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago announced here today.

Using the 24-inch reflector of the observatory, Prof. Van Biesbroeck photographed the comet, which is 10,000 times fainter than a star just visible to the naked eye.

Encke's comet was discovered 141 years ago by Mechain of Paris. Thirty years later, J. F. Encke, the German astronomer, found that the comet was periodic. It exhibited a peculiarity in that its period seemed to be shortened at each return, interpreted to be the result of resistance.

But this theory has been abandoned since the end of the last century, when the lessening of the comet's period and the corresponding decrease in its distance from the sun ceased.

Families of French Fliers Get $50,000

PARIS, Nov. 18. (AP)—A fund of $50,000 collected in the United States was delivered today to the families of Charles Nungesser and Captain Francis Coli, lost French trans-Atlantic fliers.

Theodore Rooseau, American banker, visited Madame Nungesser, mother of the noted French flier, at her Paris apartment and gave her $25,000, part of which was in French bonds.

Rescuers Reach Two Of 20 Entombed Men

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, Nov. 18. (AP)—Rescue parties, working furiously to dig out 18 native miners and one European entombed 3000 feet underground in the Crown mines by a fall of rock, today succeeded in rescuing two of the natives. Four men, two dead and two alive, were extricated yesterday.

Youths Deny Robbing Dallas Grocery Store

DALLAS, Nov. 18. (AP)—Three youths, ranging in age from 13 to 16 years Friday loudly denied their guilt of having robbed a grocery store in East Dallas of $15 and a meal Thursday night. The grocery store was near the East Grand Avenue State bank which was looted of $2024 by two unmasked bandits Thursday afternoon.

NOCONA, Nov. 18.—Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon for the Rev. Jesse Lee McCord, 78, who died Tuesday. Services were held by Rev. Frank Phillips of Poolville, Okla., assisted by the Rev. J. A. Russell. Rev. McCord had served in the ministry for 49 years.

Aid Cowgirl

From Mexico to Canada, friends of Lorena Trickey, once world's champion cowgirl, accused of killing her common law husband, "Slim" Harris, cowboy, have come to Lakeview, Ore., to aid her. They tell of brutal assaults on the cowgirl by Harris, and his threat to kill her. Miss Trickey says she killed him in self-defense, afterwards sitting in the road vainly attempting to bring him back to life.

Amsterdam Taximen Asked to Learn English

DALLAS, Nov. 18. (AP)—All policemen, street car operators, taxi cab drivers and other public servants in Amsterdam, Holland, have been ordered to learn English before next summer in order to receive the Englishmen and Americans on the occasion of the Olympic games in 1928, A. J. B. Van Herwynen, southwestern passenger agent for the Holland-America steamship line, said while here Thursday.

Election of officers for the W. C. T. U. chapters of Wichita Falls will be held at a meeting at the First Methodist church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, Mrs. J. W. Akin, chairman of the central chapter, announced Friday.

The meeting, which was to have been a joint assembly of the Central and Floral Heights chapters, was originally scheduled for Friday afternoon but was postponed because of the annual Flower show of the Womans Forum.

Reprieve Granted.

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 18. (AP)—Byron Dunn, sentenced to hang today in Lake Charles for the murder of Deputy Sheriff Sam Duhon, was granted a reprieve by Governor Simpson today until December 16, in order to allow the United States supreme court to pass on the case.

Who's Who in the Community Chest

The Family Relief

The Family Relief agency was organized last year to take care of a portion of the work which had in the past been handled by the Salvation Army—the care of needy families living in Wichita Falls. At the beginning of last year it was decided that the Salvation Army would care only for transient relief cases and the Family Relief was organized with a board including representatives from the various luncheon clubs and civic organizations of the city.

This organization does constructive welfare work to as great an extent as is possible with a limited budget, as it is necessary to care of the needy families who call Wichita Falls their home and this entails a large expenditure for food, clothing and shelter. But in every case a consistent effort is made to put each family in a position to take care of itself as soon as possible.

A thorough study is made of every case, a record kept in the files of the organization and the case handled in the light of the information secured by this careful and sympathetic investigation.

The board of directors of this association includes, Joseph Huckins, 3rd chairman and Dr. M. H. Glover, J. L. Jackson Jr., Joe B. Hatchitt, H. J. Bruce, J. D. Bright, Claude Miller, Dr. Paul Henry Packard, C. C. Stevenson, Jim Coffman, Mrs. Homer McGregor, Mrs. T. H. Lawson, Mrs. C. C. Randle, Mrs. Wm. Huff, Mrs. W. W. Cook, Mrs. C. E. Bailey, Mrs. C. R. Hartsook, John O'Donohoe, Mrs. Abe Marcus, Mrs. M. D. Rowe, W. B. Hamilton and R. O. Harvey.

Bandit Search Goes To Texas-Okla. Border

DALLAS, Nov. 18. (AP)—Search for two youthful bandits who held up the East Grand Avenue State bank here Thursday and escaped with $2024 Friday was extended to the Texas-Oklahoma border in the belief that the bandits might have fled in that direction, Ranger Captain Tom Hickman and Sergeant M. T. (Lone Wolf) Gonzaullas arrived in Dallas Friday and joined in the search.

Small Banks to Get "Idle" State Funds

AUSTIN, Nov. 18. (AP)—A policy of depositing "idle" state funds in country banks of Texas so they can make farm loans giving farmers plenty of time to market their crops, was reaffirmed on behalf of the state depository board by Treasurer W. Gregory Hatcher, member, Friday in an announcement that more than 50 such banks have just been designated as state depositories.

Austin Movies Win Sunday Show Cases

AUSTIN, Nov. 18. (AP)—Victory for local moving picture operators in their campaign to show Sundays was seen today when J. J. Hegman, charged with violation of the Sunday closing law, was found not guilty. The verdict was the third acquittal out of four cases tried the other having resulted in a "hung" jury.

INJURIES FATAL.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 18. (AP)—Injuries suffered Tuesday night when an automobile which he was driving crashed into a freight train here proved fatal early this morning to Frank Prado, 21.

"It is a wise father," says meditative Meg, "who knows whether his daughter has seen a mouse or is practising a new dance step."—By Gettler.

COMMUNITY CHEST CAMPAIGN

NOVEMBER 21st to 24th

What Is the Community Chest?

The Community Chest is an organization formed to raise a sum of money among the citizens of Wichita Falls, and to disburse the funds so received to meet the requirements of the current operating expense of non-sectarian, civic, educational and philanthropic institutions which provide relief for the needy and sick and upbuild the young life of the city in morals and character. This is its annual campaign to raise funds needed to care for the participating agencies for the year 1928. The experience of the past four years demonstrates that the Community Chest is the most satisfactory and the quickest way to accomplish this.

The boards directing the activities of the Community Chest and the participating agencies are made up of men and women who give their time and talents without pay to this work.

REMUS RAGES BEFORE JURY

Prosecutor Rouses Ire Of Bootleg King

By Universal Service.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 18.—In a wild burst of fury, George Remus, on trial for the murder of his wife, Imogene, threw the criminal court into an uproar late today when he threatened the chief of the prosecution, Charles P. Taft, with physical violence and blazingly termed him "a pitiable offshoot" of his father, William Howard Taft, chief justice of the United States supreme court.

Remus' outburst came with the jury excluded while attorneys were disputing before the court a question that arose when Remus indicated to a talesman he was examining that the reason he was barred as a lawyer from the state of Illinois was because of his violations of the prohibition act.

Taft Riles Remus.

"The bar of Illinois had been waiting ten years for a chance to disbar Remus," Taft told the court.

Remus leaped to his feet, a flush mantling his massive face and shiny bald head.

"This off-shoot of that great and renowned character, Chief Justice Taft, is pitiable," cried Remus.

His frame shook and he started toward Taft menacingly.

"I'd wreck you physically if I had you in the hallway," roared Remus, pounding the table two feet away from Taft.

Young Taft, tall and athletic looking and a former Yale football star, regarded him disdainfully.

Electricity in Air.

Remus looked like a blood-thirsty fullback on a football team. He is a powerfully built man weighing close to 200 pounds, in excellent physical condition and he prides himself on his ability as a boxer.

An electric atmosphere prevailed in the court room. The spectators held their breaths.

Assistant Prosecutor Carl Basler came to Taft's defense with the declaration to the court that he should call a halt on Remus' "Villification."

Remus exploded.

"You, you—," he cried in derision, "why you, Basler, you buy it by the pint—by the pint and I know it."

Basler's dark face flushed.

"This man should be prevented from making these wild assertions," declared Basler.

"I will have my say," Remus shouted above the uproar. "Remember, I am here on the charge of murder and I have said that any statement I may make can be used against me.

"My life is at stake. My life, Basler—not yours," cried Remus.

A profound silence fell over the courtroom as Remus paused.

Bailiffs jumped in between the lawyers and stood waiting, ready to intervene if any of the participants in the heated argument came to blows.

Court Intervenes.

Judge Chester R. Shook, in a soothing voice, interjected:

"Mr. Remus, will you kindly sit down."

Remus hesitated a moment, then complied.

Then prosecutor Taft arose and objected to the court permitting Remus to "villify" the attorneys for the state.

"This is the second time this has happened," said Taft.

Taft was composed and grim. Basler looked daggers at Remus. There still was fire in the eyes of the man defending himself on the murder charge. He seemed to be holding himself back by a supreme effort.

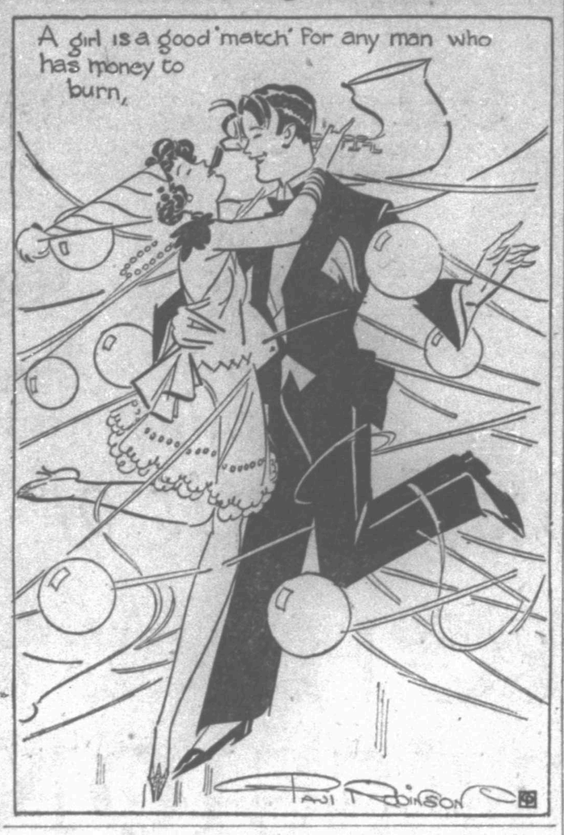

Judge Shook waited until calm was completely restored and then gently reprimanded Remus, informing him firmly that if he persisted in the tactics he had just adopted the defense would have to get another lawyer in place of the defendant.

Last Juror Chosen.

Then, in the last few moments before court adjourned until Monday, the "emergency" juror—the thirteenth—was selected. And the judge ordered that the jury be taken to the scene of the crime, Eden Park, Cincinnati, where Remus shot and killed his wife, Imogene, on the morning of October 6 last, when she was on her way to court to divorce him.

Remus arose and quietly stated that he waived his right to visit the scene.

Just Among Us Girls

Navy Program Not Affected by Conference

WASHINGTON, Nov. 18. (AP)—While President Coolidge expects the navy to be increased by the addition of some cruisers, it was reiterated at the White House today that the failure of the Geneva conference would have no effect on the navy building program he will recommend to congress.

CONSTABLE HAS BARREN AREA

Just Jackrabbits In New District

By Universal Service.

BORGER, Nov. 18.—From now on the jackrabbits in Harrison county, have got to behave and to make sure that they do, the county commissioners today assigned the "Jackrabbit district" to Constable Roy T. Macy.

Yesterday Macy had a right lively district to constable over, the city of Borger, but in redistricting the county, the commissioners made Borger a new precinct, thus leaving the section of the county where there is not a living soul, to be policed by a constable. And Macy got the assignment.

Food Handlers May Face Court Charges

Dr. L. I. Lucey, city health officer, announced Friday that he will start filing cases in corporation court against food handlers who have not had Wasserman tests made. He will also make them against the handlers who have had tests with positive results and not reported to Dr. H. D. Fillmore, city physician for examination.

Inspector Prepares Reports On Pumps

C. A. Kirkland, state inspector of weights and measures, Friday sent to Dr. L. I. Lucey, city sanitary officer, figures on his examination of gasoline pumps in the city. The inspector found 69 pumps to be condemned for repair out of 302 examined. There were 112 filling stations in the city visited.

Girl Who Comes Here to Work Is Stranded; "Broke"

A local taxicab driver stopped by the home of Mrs. W. O. Davidson, Travelers' Aid, at the Union station, Thursday evening late and told her there was a young girl at the bus station trying to borrow money to get home on.

"Maybe you can do something," he said. "She's a nice girl—came here to take a job and it busted up on her."

Mrs. Davidson got in touch with the night travelers' aid who went to the bus station to see the girl. She learned that she had come to take a place in a local institution but was turned down because of being too light for the work. She had less than a dollar and was young, in a strange town, and evidently very much frightened at her plight. She had a sister in a town near Dallas, who was working her way through college, but couldn't get in touch with her by phone at night.

The Travelers' Aid made arrangements for the girl to spend the night at the Salvation Army citadel, and in the morning Mrs. Davidson got in touch with the sister through the college registrar and money was telegraphed for the girl's fare home. She left on the 3:35 train Friday afternoon.

In speaking of the manner in which the case was reported to her, Mrs. Davidson stated that the Travelers' Aid department in Wichita Falls received the most helpful co-operation from the Union station and bus station officials, as well as other local public service organization. It is this co-operation, she stated, which enables the two workers to get results so quickly on some of the most troublesome cases.

Czechoslovakia is to have two new government railroad lines.

Star Mail Route Opens Monday To Serve Byers and Petrolia

Star route mail service for Byers and Petrolia postal patrons was announced Friday by Lon Howard, assistant postmaster at Wichita Falls. The new service will become effective Monday morning.

The star route will be in addition to the regular train service for Byers and Petrolia. This comes as the second improvement in the mail service for those towns which has been made in recent weeks. A short time ago a change in the train schedules was made so that Byers mail from the north could be delivered from Waurika, Okla., instead of being taken to Fort Worth and back to Wichita Falls, necessitating several hours delay.

Mail for the star route will be carried over the Rainbow bus line. It will leave here at 7:30 o'clock in the morning, arriving at Byers at 9 o'clock. Returning, the mail will leave Byers at 4:15 o'clock in the afternoon, arriving here at 5:05 o'clock.

This service will take care of mail that has accumulated in Wichita Falls after the departure of the regular Byers train mail at 8:40 o'clock in the evening. The star route will carry letter mail only.

School - College Notes

Charles Christenson, the official pianist of the Baptist convention, gave the first number of the Junior college-high school Girls club program Friday morning. He played several piano solos and then sang for the club, playing his own accompaniment on the piano.

B. S. Copass, from the Baptist Seminary at Fort Worth, who is here attending the Baptist convention spoke to the members on the real ambitions of a girl. He treated the subject from the viewpoint of a girl's ambition as a home builder and a girl's duty and place in the world as a home builder. Mr. Christenson led in prayer and the club adjourned after singing the Girl Reserves song "Follow The Gleam."

PLAN PROGRAM.

Various members of Mrs. Gilberts Junior college Spanish classes were seen Friday morning practicing for their part of the assembly program for Tuesday morning. At the time they were endeavoring to master the technique of "Valencia."

PUBLIC SPEAKING CLASS HEARS ADDRESS.

B. A. Copass, member of the Baptist convention, spoke to the second period public speaking class Friday morning. The classes of the public speaking department have been studying the works of art in the Junior college building recently so the talk by Mr. Copass, on the original of Joan of Arc standing before the cathedral of Rheims, was quite appropriate.

SENIOR PARTY.

A slumber party was planned by the girls of the mid-year senior class of the high school at a recent meeting. The party will be held Saturday night at the home of Hazel Diestlehorst.

"KID PARTY" PLANNED BY FRENCH CLUB.

A "Kid Party" will be held by the Junior college French club Saturday evening at the home of Miss Clarice Pitman at 1105 Alma street. The party will be for club members only and those who have not paid their dues will have to pay 25 cents to come to the party. Everyone is to be dressed as children in short trousers and pink ribbons.

BIRDS DEPART PARENT NEST

But Human Beings Not Always So Wise

Why Married Children Must Leave the Home Nest. How Can a Wife Keep Her Handsome Husband Out of Other Women's Clutches? How Can an Unwilling Bridegroom Make His Fiancee Break Engagement?

Dear Dorothy Dix—Do you think it is the proper thing for married people to live with their parents, or go to themselves? My married daughter has lived with me for four years and she makes much more work for me. I would like for her to go to herself but if I tell her so, she won't like it. However, I do not feel that I can stand the work any longer, as I have three single boys to take care of. What shall I do?

A TIRED MOTHER.

Answer:

Even the birds have enough sense to shove their young out of the nest when they are grown, and it does look as if human beings should have an equal amount of intelligence.

No young couple have a right to get married until they are able to set up their own independent homes. It is an imposition for them to come and settle down on their parents and graft their living off the old people.

Only too many boys and girls do this. They have so little independence of character and so little spirit of fair play that rather than wait until they are ready to meet the responsibilities of matrimony, they take unto themselves husbands and wives and bring them back home for mother and father to support.

In only too many households instead of the parents being relieved of the burden of their children's support when they are grown they are saddled with more mouths to feed, more backs to clothe.

Father has to work harder at 50 than he did at 30, because he has his in-laws and his grandchildren to take care of, and mother instead of being able to take things easy as she had always looked forward to, becomes the unpaid nurse for daughters' babies.

Of course, parents are very silly to let their children make goats of them this way. They also do their children a great injustice because they encourage them in becoming parasites instead of forcing them to go to work and become self-respecting, self-supporting men and women.

The youngsters will have to do a lot of hustling, and make many sacrifices, and have a lot of ambition and carve if they set up their own homes that they will escape if they go and live on mother and father, but it is just precisely this experience that they need to develop them. It will toughen the muscles of their souls and do them good as long as they live.

There is something radically wrong about any young couple who don't want their own place. Especially is there something wrong about a woman who doesn't long for her own home. It shows that she is lazy. She isn't willing to do the work that it takes to make a home, and the sooner she is cured of this vice, the better.

Moreover, Satan still finds work for idle hands to do, and he furnishes it a-plenty for the young wife who boards, or lives with mother, and lets mother do it. It is the idle young wives who haunt the stores and the movies, who get so bored that they get into flirtations in their hunt for thrills.

So, poor tired mother, for the good of your daughter's soul, and your own peace and comfort, make her and her husband go to housekeeping, and serve notice on all your other children that they have to set up their own homes when they get married, and that they can't bring their husbands and wives to live with you.

Have as much brains as an English sparrow. Push your youngsters out of the nest and make them try their own wings.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—What can a wife do with a handsome husband that all the women fall for? I have one of these sheiks. Recently a girl that I supposed was my friend has been calling him up and begging him to take her riding. She even goes to his place of business. I told her to let him alone, and she got mad and told him he was a fool for telling his wife everything. So my husband is peeved with me.

WORRIED WIFE.

Answer—The woman who marries a handsome man, who is particularly attractive to other women, tackles a hard job. She will have a life-long fight to keep him. Even the best of men are flattered by the admiration and attentions of women, and so far as we know, Joseph is the only man on record who ever ran away from temptation. The common, or garden variety of man, hastens to meet it.

You are wise to face the fact that women will always try to make a fool of your husband, but having admitted that to yourself, also face the fact that jealousy will get you nowhere. If you get green-eyed over every woman who ogles, and walks across your path, you merely drive him into their arms. He will go from a wife who scolds him and upbraids him, and tells him what a poor, weak creature he is to let himself be led into silly entanglements, straight to those other women who flatter and cajole him and pour oil over his wounded vanity.

So your best play is to summon a sense of humor to your aid. Tease him about his conquests. Laugh at them. Banter him about being taken in by wiles that a baby could see through. Ridicule him for being the victim of elderly coquettes, with dyed hair and painted faces. Make him see his Lady Love through your eyes, and you will dispel his illusions about them.

I have known women who have taken these tactics with husbands who were fascinators, and in that way they were able to keep their husbands' affections as a family joke instead of their becoming serious, and so averted tragedy. Also, they kept their husbands' confidence because they laughed instead of having hysterics.

Never ask a woman to leave your husband alone. It humiliates you and makes her all the more determined to keep him. No woman will give up the man she wants to please his wife. If she regarded the wife's feelings, she wouldn't take him in the first place.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man 29 years old and am very easily led. Now, some match-makers have led me into promising to marry a girl I don't like. I don't even know her well and the more I see her the less I like her, but if I should break the engagement it will spoil her good name among our people. Still, if I marry her, it will ruin my future, but if she should break the engagement off of her own accord, everything would be all right for everyone. How can I make her break the engagement?

AN UNWILLING BRIDEGROOM.

Answer—You can ask her to break the engagement, but it doesn't seem very likely that she will do that if, already knowing that you are a lukewarm lover, she still holds on to you.

But if she does refuse to break the engagement, spunk up and have enough manhood about you to break it yourself, for you will bring lifelong misery on her and on yourself if you marry her against your will.

It is nonsense to say that you will ruin her good name. No one with a grain of sense will think the less of her for it. Girls are jilted every day, and while it hurts their pride at the moment, they get over it and marry just as well as they would have done if they had had no faithless swain.

Anyway, you have yourself to consider first, and if you don't like the girl and don't want to marry her, don't be weak enough to let any one coerce you into doing so.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man of 35, with steady habits, and the vice president of a small but money-making concern. I am in love with a beautiful woman of 30, who is gay, sympathetic, intelligent and companionable, and who says she cares for me. She refuses to marry me, however, on the grounds that life is so tragic that she would never bring a child into the world to face it. She says that on every side one sees disillusionment, disappointment, heartbreak and sorrow, and she does not wish to be the cause of thrusting such suffering upon any human being. How can I cope with such pessimism?

EDWARD.

Answer: Your best weapon will be a good liver pill. A wit once said that whether life was worth living or not depended upon the state of the liver, and nothing but a case of extreme biliousness can induce such a jaundiced view of the world as your Lady Love takes.

For she isn't seeing things true. She is looking at them through green goggles.

Of course, there is pain, but there is also sunshine. There is sickness and suffering, but there is likewise strength and health, and there are more people running and leaping about than there are on crutches. There are tears, but they endure but for the night, and laughter comes with the morning. Even our hardships bring us pleasure because there is a sacred joy in work and struggling.

Now and then, perhaps, but very rarely, you can find a man or a woman who regrets ever having been born. Occasionally there is one who finds life intolerable and commits suicide, but that most people find life not only bearable but enjoyable is sufficiently proved by the fact that few people are willing to die.

So I think that your sweetheart is unduly morbid, and that she might well feel that if she passed on the torch of life she would confer a blessing, instead of bringing down a curse upon the little hands that received it.

DOROTHY DIX.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

MODISH MITZI — Headlines—Uneven and Unexpected — By JAY V. JAY

There's no one in the dressing room—no one except a mouse. After all, it's the maid's place to dust, not to chase mice. She's no Pied Piper of Hamlin—and a mouse will have to take its chances with the ladies or vice versa.

The mouse, of course, was running to cover. He had enough sense, however, not to run under any of the trains on the floor. For one thing there was only the scanty fish tail train, and the side drape that little more, than touched the floor.

In fact, trains are so short, unexpected and unusual that any mouse would feel more adequately covered taking his chances in the open. Many of the newest trains grow from the weather hip, or the low flounce.

Mitzi wears the dress with a lace yoke with the uneven hemline made by a dipping flounce. "In fact, a hazardous line is drawn between the uneven hem and the train," remarks the mouse—collecting material as it were for public safety.

OYSTERS USED IN DRESSING

This Dinner Fit For Cal Or Lindy

BY MRS. W. A. McGEE.
Winner $1 Special Award.

Turkey Oyster Dressing
Giblet Gravy
Cranberry Sauce Celery Sticks
Pineapple Salad Parker House Rolls
Coffee Pumpkin Date Pie
Table Centerpiece.
Bowl of blooming white narcissus or vase of chrysanthemums preferably large bronze.

Turkey.

Salt and parboil until tender, a medium sized fat turkey that has been dressed and on ice two or three days; then remove place in roaster and brown, after which carve for serving.

Giblet Gravy.

Chop gizzard, liver and heart and add 1-8 teaspoonful pepper, dash of salt, and 1 1-2 cups of stock in which turkey was cooked. Thicken with 2 tablespoonsful of flour mixed with cold water to a paste consistency. Boil gravy 3 minutes.

Oyster Dressing.

To remaining 3 or 4 cups of hot turkey stock, add 3 or 10 slices of stale lightbread crumbled with 10 large soda crackers, 1-4 chopped celery, 1 can oysters, 3 boiled eggs sliced, salt and pepper to taste. Personally I prefer also, that contents of giblet gravy be added to dressing. Oyster dressing made in this way is fit for Coolidge or Lindbergh, but will not disagree with the common folk! Most certainly not on Thanksgiving day!

Cranberry Sauce.

Place to cook 1 quart cranberries in 3 cups water. When berries have cooked until they all burst, add 2 cups sugar, a pinch of salt, a few drops of lemon juice and allow to simmer low. Chill and serve when congealed.

Pineapple Salad.

Place on crisp lettuce leaf, 1 slice pineapple spread with mayonnaise. Add another slice and spread top with hippolite and garnish with finely diced candied cherry, or 1-2 cherry in center if preferred.

Pumpkin Date Pie.

To 2 cups stewed pumkin add 2 cups whole milk, 1-2 teaspoonful salt, 3-4 cup sugar, 2 eggs well beaten. 1-2 teaspoonful allspice, 1-2 cup chopped dates, 1-4 cup chopped nuts, carmelize part of sugar and milk. Cook in baked crust, and dot top with quartered marshmallows and brown.

Sweet Potato and Ham Casserole

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)—One pound ham, three medium sized sweet potatoes, two trat apples, one tablespoon butter, two tablespoons brown sugar, milk. Cut ham in slices suitable for serving and place in casserole. Add the apples pared and sliced. Parboil the potatoes until slightly tender, peel and slice them over the apples. Add butter, sugar and cover with milk. Bake in moderate oven at 360 F. from one to one and a half hours. Just before taking from oven remove cover and brown.

Sausage and Potato — select large potatoes and with apple corer make opening straight through. Insert an uncooked sausage, plug up ends with potato and bake in ordinary way.

Today's Recipes

Scalloped Eggplant—Dice eggplant after peeling and cook in a small amount of salted water. Use one-half cup of this water after the eggplant is cooked with one cup of milk to make a white sauce. Place a layer of cooked eggplant in a casserole, then a layer of white sauce until all is used. Sprinkle the top with buttered crumbs and brown in the oven.

Ham Baked With Pineapple

(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)—Soak a slice of ham one inch thick in warm water for at least an hour. Drain and sprinkle the baking pan. Melt a little fat in the shaking pan, preferably a piece cut from the ham, and brown meat in it. Pour one cup crushed or grated pineapple and one-half cup water over the ham and bake slowly until tender or about one hour. Remove to hot platter and pour pineapple around it.

Industrial Reports Mailed by C-C 500

Copies of the industrial reports of Wichita Falls and a survey of its trade territory, which were compiled by the chamber of commerce under the direction of J. W. Chatham, traffic and industrial director, were being mailed out to 500 business firms, industrial executives and investors in this and other cities Friday.

The reports consist of 43 typewritten pages of subject matter, giving comprehensive data and statistics regarding Wichita Falls and the towns and counties in its trade territory, a map of the trade territory and an aerial view of the city of Wichita Falls, all neatly bound in book form.

In addition to the copies which were mailed out, a large supply will be kept on file at the chamber of commerce for local reference and to send to business men and prospective investors.

CAN YOU BEAT THIS?

TOLEDO, Ohio.—A man on a street car here observed a locust on the back of a girl's coat. Carefully, so as not to frighten the girl, he brushed at it with his newspaper. The locust clung. "There's a bug on your back, lady," he told her. "I know, I put it there," the girl answered, "it's for style." "Can you beat that," said the man as he got off in confusion while the passengers laughed.

FEELS STRENGTH INSTEAD OF PAIN

Lady Says She Was in Awfully Bad Shape, Aching in Back and Sides, Before She Took Cardui.

Honea Path, S. C.—"I suffered a long time with my back and sides, before I knew about Cardui," says Mrs. J. E. Drexler, of Harper Street, this city. "I was thin, and my color was a pale yellow. I was in awfully bad shape.

"I tried several things, but nothing seemed to help me much. About five years ago, I just happened to be reading a paper which had an account in it of a lady who had been benefited by taking Cardui, so I sent for a bottle.

"I was agreeably surprised to find myself much better after I had taken it. The cause of the ache in my side was a strain. In some way I had strained my side by heavy lifting, and I had let it run on too long.

"Gradually I grew stronger; the periodic pains in back and sides disappeared, and I felt like a new woman. I gained about twenty pounds in weight, and my color got over so much better.

"I am delighted with Cardui, and can heartily recommend it. I have taken it several times since my first experience with it, and it has always helped me. I wish I could tell all suffering women to try it."

DAMAGE SUIT GOES TO TRIAL

Workman Asks $35,075 In Court

Trial of the case of D. J. Braziel against the Fort Worth and Denver railroad in which he is asking a total of $35,075 damages was started Friday in the 78th district court before Judge W. W. Cook. Braziel alleges he was permanently injured in an accident on April 8 when a push car was shoved into him by a fellow worker.

The railroad in its testimony offered the statement of the foreman of the crew which Braziel was working. The foreman stated in a deposition read in the court that Braziel told him of the accident at the time and said he had attempted to step on the push car and his hammer handle had caught, throwing him to the ground.

The case is expected to reach the jury Saturday.

Show Window Tells Need of Chest Fund

One of the most striking and most timely window displays exhibited in Wichita Falls recently is the Community Chest window of Perkins-Timberlake company. The window was installed by T. A. Bradley, advertising manager for Perkins-Timberlake, and is of his own origination, and with Rudolph Ermel, display manager, the window has been perfected as one of of the best shown in the city.

The window is occasioned by the Community Chest drive. In the background is a large heart suspended with the words inscribed, "Open Your Heart," the slogan of the drive. In the foreground is shown a destitute mother and child in a cold and poverty stricken room and the mother leaning on an old table with empty food containers and empty dishes littering the table. The child is begging for food.

Silk Suit Traps Super-Thief

Armand Caulier, who was recently arrested by the Paris police and who long has been known as the "King of Hotel Thieves," was betrayed by a black silk costume he wore. An officer who asked him to supply particulars of a motor accident noticed the costume which is a kind often worn by bedroom thieves at night. Caulier is suspected of stealing $1,000,000 worth of jewelry of Deauville some years ago, and one of his boasts is that he robbed a foreign prince in Paris of $1500.
