M'BEE DEFENDANT SLASHES THROAT

About Our Friends

By STEVE A. LONG

We found the Rev. J. Stuart Pearce and Rev. E. S. James this morning...we had thought they might be taking their morning coffee at their respective homes, but found them imbibing the Java at the expense of a new friend...one who hasn't known them very long...But we didn't get in on...they were hurrying away...didn't have time to...where...if we were in any...suspicious, we might think they were trying to elude any questions we might propound...but...well...

Now Glenn Bailey editor of the Grammar School Herald, has missed us this week...or rather we have missed the paper...We feel about it just like Glenn's subscribers do when he fails to throw them a Daily News...We want the missing copy...

Now there goes Rex Moore with his good luck...spoiling a dandy story, just before press time when we might have run big headlines in the front page about his misadventure, if he had been seriously hurt...But such is life...when the editor wants a murder, a scandal or a serious accident, the victim is only slightly injured and the public does not receive the near-thrill.

Well, congratulations, Rex, while you might have provided us with a great story if you had only gotten yourself seriously injured, we are mighty glad that it was no more serious than it was...to tell the truth, Rex, we really regret that you were hurt at all...So buy us a nice little drink of some kind and we'll forgive you for your short comings...or if you had rather, we'll do the host act and call it square...

Mickey Carroll doing the good act and so we thank him...come up and see me some time...Cecil Edwards, News reporter, rushing out on an assignment expecting to find his victim all bloody and unconscious, arrives to find him walking...

Benefit Payments Are Offered Farmers

LARGE SUM TO BE SPENT TO CONSERVE SOIL

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(U.P.)—Benefit payments averaging $10 an acre were offered farmers for removal of 30,000,000 acres from extension crops under the new soil conservation program replacing the AAA.

Details of the program announced by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace provide expenditures of $440,000,000 in conserving the nation's soil fertility this year. The first of the two year temporary program.

"The new program represents a sincere effort to conserve this soil in the interest of producers and to preserve the economic gain that farmers have made during the past three years," Wallace said.

Wallace said he believes from the immediate point of view that the new program may not be quite as effective as the old one, destroyed by the supreme court but by one time point of view it may be "even more constructive."

Two types of payment are provided by farmers who cooperate in federal suggestion for conservation of soil:

1. A soil conserving payment averaging $10 an acre
2. A soil building payment up to one dollar an acre.

Fingerprints Will Be Taken Monday

M. H. French, finger print expert for the Cisco police department will make finger prints all day Monday as a special service for those not criminals, who are interested in personal identification for themselves or members of their families.

Mr. French, who has taken a great interest in identification work for the police department locally and otherwise, says that this branch of the work is entirely separate and apart from the criminal identification finger printing work. Men, women or children are often lacking in means of identification, through kidnapping, loss of memory, injuries and otherwise. Sometimes all the identification marks have been removed from persons or bodies and finger prints offer the only positive means of possible identification.

The work is becoming general over the country, said Mr. French. The idea that only criminals are finger printed is becoming dispelled by the common and practical use for honest purposes.

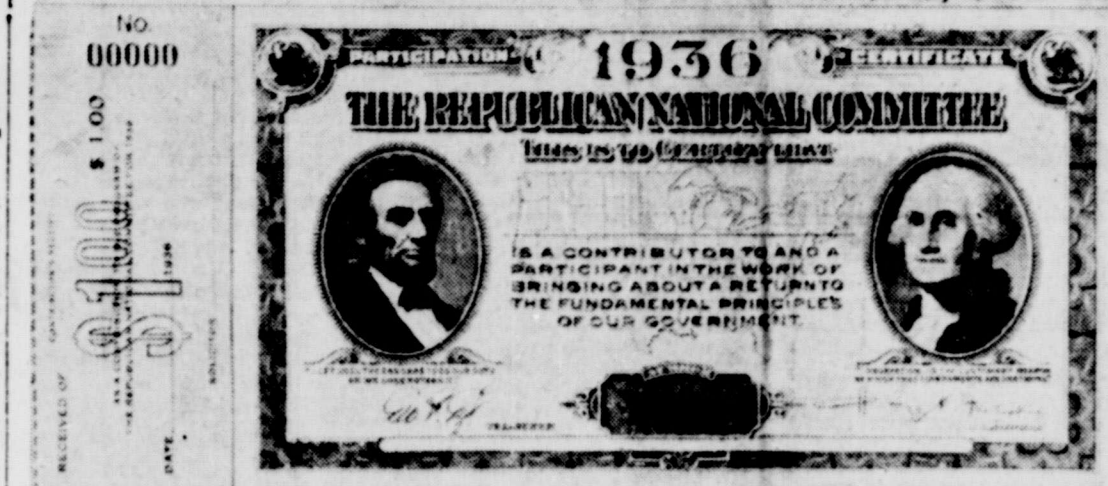

The service of Mr. French at the city hall Monday will be free, Mr. French announces, and he will be glad to serve in this way all who may desire the identification service.

INTERSCHOLASTIC LEAGUE TO MEET IN CISCO MARCH 27-28

Greater interest is being manifested as the time approaches for the Eastland county interscholastic league, which convenes in Cisco, Friday and Saturday, March 27-28. Preliminary contests in character singing and music memory on Wednesday and Thursday evenings, said Superintendent R. N. Cluck, director-general, in discussing the program and plans for the meet.

The meet already had an official membership of 58 schools and Mr. Cluck announced that something like 20 more schools had written in for membership and entrance privileges.

Republican Campaign Contributors to Get These

$185 IS QUOTA WANTED TO AID FLOOD VICTIMS

In a telegram received from William M. Baxter, of the Midwestern branch of the Red Cross organization with offices in St. Louis, Mo., J. E. Spencer secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, and in charge of Red Cross activities in Cisco and Eastland county for the past several years, was notified of the wide spread death and suffering of flood victims of eleven states, and the need for instant action in supplying food, clothing, medical attention and shelter to the extent of more than three million dollars.

The telegram called attention to the national proclamation of President Roosevelt urging prompt and generous action, and asked Mr. Spencer to take steps to raise the quota of $185.00 for this chapter. Mr. Spencer is asking for prompt donations to this fund to relieve the dire calamity which has fallen upon these unfortunate flood victims. Those who will contribute are asked to get in touch with him at once so that Cisco may do her bit in Red Cross assistance.

Spring Arrived Saturday, 21st

Saturday, March 21, which marks the coming of spring, also marks the vernal equinox at which time the days and nights have reached the stage of being equal in length. Since December 22, which marks the longest night and the shortest day in the year, the nights have steadily grown shorter and the days longer until Saturday they had become equal. Now the nights will continually grow shorter and the days longer until June 21 which is the longest day and the shortest night in the year.

The days will then change and become shorter and the nights longer until the autumnal equinox, September 21, when they will have again become equal in length and, then, the days will shorten and the nights lengthen until December 22, is again reached with the shortest day in the year and the longest night. Equinox time always brings more or less disturbances in weather conditions, wind storms and rains, usually.

Seale and Wood Are Trustee Candidates

Dr. Hubert Seale and S. R. Wood have consented to allow their names to be placed on the ballot for school trustees for the Cisco Independent school district election to be held April 4.

Both of these men are patrons of the schools and are well and favorably known. In yielding to the wishes of their friends, they have signified their willingness to work for the best school interest of their community if elected.

SISTER OF GOV. JAMES ALLRED KILLED BY AUTO

MINEOLA, Tex., March 21.—(U.P.)—Mrs. W. B. Stokes, Jr., 26, the former Hazel Allred and younger sister of Governor James V. Allred, was killed today when her automobile collided with an oil truck at a small concrete bridge 11 miles east of Mineola.

Her husband riding in the car, was injured only slightly. The light automobile was crushed between a truck and the concrete part of the bridge.

Mrs. Stokes was killed so quickly her husband said he did not believe she realized what happened. The body was brought to a hospital here. Stokes made arrangements for burial services.

Stokes and the governor's younger sister were married several months ago in the historic drawing room of Governor Allred's mansion in Austin and after a honeymoon trip to Mexico, returned to Texas to live in Gladewater. They were enroute to Dallas when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Stokes is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Renne Allred, Sr., of Bowie, and after attending school there was graduated from the University of Texas. She lived in San Antonio for several years before her marriage.

Jeweler Returns From Repair School

E. C. Duncan, jeweler at Dean Drug company, has just returned from Fort Worth where he took special training in jewelry repairing.

All the new ideas about modern methods of jewelry mounting, styling and other detail work of a fine nature, were taught in special courses by specialists in their line. Mr. Duncan expresses himself as highly pleased with the work done at this assembly, and says that Jewelers like other business men must keep abreast with the newest ideas and methods of his profession.

APPRECIATION EXPRESSED BY TWO OFFICIALS

Expressing their appreciation for the invitation to hold their annual West Texas picnic in Cisco this summer and recalling their own personal pleasant experiences when gathering in Cisco on former occasions, two Lone Star officials of the Dallas office, replied to the letters of Dallas Wales, president of the Junior chamber of commerce, in which this body presses a hearty solicitation to enjoy the recreational advantages offered by Lake Cisco this summer.

Wishing to have this organization make its annual gathering a permanent event for Cisco, Dallas Wales wrote the Lone Star Gas company at Dallas a pressing invitation to stage their annual picnic at Lake Cisco this year and to make it a permanent feature for Cisco if possible.

Replies from two prominent officials of that organization have been received. Here are the letters:

Dear Mr. Wales:

We are glad to have your letter inviting us to hold our West Texas picnic in Cisco. Of course we know about your splendid facilities from previous pleasant experiences in Cisco. This invitation is being thoroughly considered, and personally I am hopeful that we can have the picnic this year, in Cisco.

Kind regards,

WILL C. GRANT,
Advertising Director.

Dear Mr. Wales:

I want to thank you for your letter under date of March 6. It is a little early yet for us to discuss the Lone Star picnic but I assure you that when we do, we shall certainly consider Cisco.

Sincerely yours,

CHESTER L. MAY,
Vice President and General Manager.

174 Patrons Within Four Months; Daily Cheese Output, 1,000 Lbs.

Building from nothing to 174 patrons and reaching in less than four months a goal of 1,000 pounds of cheese a day which was the expected amount to be achieved in one year, is the record of the cheese plant at Abilene where George H. Sweeney is operating a plant in connection with his milk and produce business.

And Abilene is a city of 20,000 people and three ice cream plants to absorb the milk supply of a section that has a much less potentiality than Eastland county as a dairy farming section, said Mr. Sweeney, in discussing the possibilities of Cisco to attain the 15,000 pounds of milk per month which

NEW DANGER TO FLOOD CITIES; DEATH LIST 215

(Copyright, 1936, by United Press)
Rain tonight brought new danger to flooded cities in New England and heavy snow in Western Virginia. Relief work in devastated areas.

The death list for the entire fourteen state was 215 and still was mounting as the swollen rivers surged over remote communities and additional bodies were found in places where the flood had receded.

The Red Cross estimate indicated 325,000 persons homeless, and damage $350,000,000 or more. President Roosevelt for a third time postponed his vacation in order to assist direction of relief work.

Martford, Conn., was most seriously affected tonight after rivers still were rising slightly. More than 50 square blocks of the Connecticut capital city were flooded. In some places the water was 25 feet deep.

National guardsmen and others rescued more persons from inundated homes in the southern parts of Hartford where federal business houses were believed in danger of collapsing.

Springfield, Mass., Hartford, Middletown, Conn., were without electric power.

Conditions became increasingly serious in northeastern Massachusetts and industrial cities along the Merrimack. Several feet of water wilted parts of Haverhill's business district.

Water service was restored to most of Pittsburgh but snow impeded traffic and slowed down relief work there and in Johnson and other western Pennsylvania cities. The snow added to the suffering of the homeless. Numerous cases of disease were reported in the area.

Colored To Sing At Methodist Church

The colored school pupils under the direction of their teacher, Mrs. Abigail Love Haley will furnish music for the vesper service of the evening worship hour this evening at the First Methodist church. It has been announced by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Cole.

Negro spirituals will be the main type of songs used by them. This service begins at six o'clock and closes at seven. The public is invited.

ALLOCATES $25,000,000

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(U.P.)—President Roosevelt today allocated $25,000,000 to the WPA for repair or replacement of public owned properties or utilities ruined by floods. This allocation, which is in addition to an emergency allotment of $18,411,000 made Feb. 29, will be apportioned to the stricken states as needed the White House explained.

Gassaway Hears Bid From Films

Percy L. Gassaway

Class such as a wild west film never knew before may be added to a coming Hollywood production, featuring a real congressman who wears a 10-gallon hat and $50 boots as a matter of course while expounding on the house floor. Representative Percy L. Gassaway (Dem., Oklahoma), shown in militant pose, admits he has been approached, and he hasn't said "No," but is too busy legislating to decide right now.

CCC REDUCTION TO BE OPPOSED BY DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(U.P.)—A powerful house democratic bloc will meet Tuesday to plan legislative action to halt proposed reduction of Civilian Conservation Camps.

President Roosevelt placed his decision to rescind his executive work-ers for reduction for the CCC to 300,000 enrollment and around 1,400 camps by midsummer although he pointed out that it was intended to transfer boys from abandoned camps to other camps without forcing any out. Enrollment has been dropping, CCC officials said, at a rate sufficient to bring it under the 300,000 figure by July.

Congressmen, however, have protested the abandonment of camps and have proposed to earmark relief funds to keep all of them open.

The corpus decision was reached at a secret session of 75 house democrats protesting against the order to cut the camps.

The group sent a petition signed by 34 congressmen to representatives Edward Taylor, (d. Colo.), chairman of the group to make a corpus mandatory.

Costs of December Floods In Houston

HOUSTON, March 21.—(U.P.)—Damage resulting to the city from the Buffalo bayou flood last December has been set by Public Works Director John Nagle at approximately $400,000.

Two bridges must be replaced at a cost of $200,000 and repairs to streets, sewers and bridges approaches at between $200,000 and $400,000.

'I'M INNOCENT OF CHARGE' HE CLAIMED

EASTLAND, March 21.—Jack Smith, 40, one of four persons charged with murder in the hanging skeleton death of H. L. McBee at Rising Star, was slashed to death in his cell here Tuesday night. Justice of Peace M. Newman, who held an inquest, returned a verdict of death from self-inflicted wounds.

E. T. Kilborne, Eastland county jailer, said Smith was in a cell with Joe Ferguson, who is held on an auto theft charge. Ferguson told Kilborne that Smith, who had been in jail for several days, asked for a drink of water.

Ferguson said he turned away from his cellmate to obtain the water, and that when he turned around with a lighted match in his hand, he saw Smith was bleeding profusely from long, deep gashes in the throat, and that he gasped.

"I'm innocent of what they have me charged with. Don't let them blame this on anybody else," Kilborne, in the living quarters of the jail, went to the scene, he said, when summoned by a bell. He said Smith died as he was being taken from the cell, and before medical aid could be obtained. The wounds had been inflicted with a razor blade.

Smith's brother, Lynn, also a defendant in the McBee death case, occupied a cell a few feet from the one in which Jack Smith and Ferguson were held.

Raymond Henry, another defendant, is also in the Eastland county jail. His wife, Mrs. Della Henry, the fourth person accused in the case, was released on bond Thursday.

Kilborne said Jack Smith had been ill and had appeared depressed recently. Kilborne quoted him as having said yesterday that he and his brother were innocent in the McBee slaying.

McBee was slain May 1, 1933, at Rising Star. His body was buried and later exhumed and the skeleton swung to an oak tree, the state contends. It was discovered in December 1934 and the Henrys were arrested and indicted for murder soon thereafter.

Jack and Lynn Smith were indicted in the case recently and at the same time new indictments were returned against Mr. and Mrs. Henry after officers said they had uncovered new evidence. Trials in the case have been set for March 30.

NO PLANS MADE TO INTERVIEW DR. CONDON

TRENTON, March 21.—(U.P.)—Governor Harold Hoffman has no "present plans" for an interview for Dr. John Condon, the Jafise of the Lindbergh ransom negotiation, despite the setting of the execution date for Bruno Hauptmann it was announced tonight.

Reports that the governor is to seek an interview with the elderly educator today or tomorrow in an effort to clear up what he regards as discrepancies in the stories told by Dr. Condon, were denied by William Conklin press aid to Hoffman.

Hoffman has taken the stand it is the duty of the state police to re-examine Condon.

Meanwhile there were conflicting versions of an interview in the death house between Hauptmann, who was scheduled to die March 31, and Council C. Lloyd Fisher. First reports were that Hauptmann has changed his story and is now ready to admit seeing Condon before and after the $200,000 ransom payment in April 1932.

Highway Official Seeking Pictures

Robert Milligan, of the state highway engineer's department, with offices at Brownwood, is seeking pictures of human interest from this section to be used in publicity by the highway department in connection with the Texas Centennial.

Small pictures are wanted, not larger than common postcard, said Mr. Milligan. Those having pictures of this kind are requested to leave them with the local Chamber of Commerce.

By All Means, Attend the Mass Meeting

Some ten years ago, the people of Cisco decided that of all things, they wanted a cheese plant established in their city. They were sold on the possibilities of the land to produce feed enough to maintain sufficient numbers of dairy cows to produce the amount of milk necessary to support an industry of this kind.

They were also sold on the idea, through much conversation with many farmers in the adjacent territory, that these farmers, many of who were playing with the idea of keeping a few extra cows and selling the surplus as either butter or sour cream, wanted an industry such as a cheese plant and was greatly desired by them, if it would give a permanent market for the surplus they were producing and for which they were finding little inducement to continue to produce.

Some doubted the fact that there were enough cows in the country to maintain any sizable production of a plant of this kind. Others doubted that farmers would be willing to buy more cows, even though they be assured of a steady and profitable market.

So the chamber of commerce, through pressure of advocates of the idea, called a mass meeting and asked for volunteers to go out and take a count of the cows in a fifteen mile radius of Cisco and among other questions, ask if they could and would buy more cows, and how many, should a dependable market be provided.

It was enthusiastically done and the result was a revelation and a big success. The business men did their part and the farmers responded. But the plant went to Waco, which was among many competitors for the industry.

Since that time the "Boosters" have clamored for industries; people from every corner of the city have clamored for industries. Now our prayer is ready to be answered if we want it. A market for milk and produce and a cheese plant, amply equipped by people who say the market is unlimited, is ready to be handed us if we want it. Indifference on our part would discourage the most enthusiastic, but a little work, a show of wanting something and a willingness to work to get it, is all they want. You are not called upon to go out as you were ten years ago an account cows or ask questions of farmers. You are not asked to put up any money or to buy any stock in the company, nor to guarantee anything. HERE IS WHAT YOU ARE ASKED TO DO.

A meeting has been called to talk over the matter and learn what the plans are for establishing a milk assembling depot for whole sweet milk. Go to that meeting. Talk it up and see that other business men go to that meeting. The meeting is at the city hall. The date is Friday, March 27. The time is 3 o'clock in the afternoon. There is only one thing to do and the market is yours. Go yourself and see that others go with you. It is not George's business, it is yours. Do it.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR PAID CIRCULATION

Behind the Scenes in Washington

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

NEA Service Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON—The NRA is down to its last 500 employees and they'll all be gone by the end of this month, when the Blue Eagle formally ascends into bird heaven.

Few of the remaining workers will be on hand at the end. Most of them have "accumulated leave" and want to take it while still on the payroll. Others, however, will struggle earnestly until the last moment with the series of postmortem studies on which NRA has largely been engaged since the Schechter decision last May.

OBSESSING this latter group is much heavy speculation as to whether Secretary of Commerce Daniel Roper will undertake to censor or suppress sections of the forthcoming reports on industry, labor, code administration, trade practices, price-fixing, and other items covered by the studies.

It was Roper, you'll remember, who inherited the NRA carcass in the end, even though General Johnson had driven him from the henyard in earlier and more exciting days.

Some of the reports will be valuable and well done, others comparatively sloppy. None of the higher-ups appears to have taken a sincere interest in an able scientific survey of the industrial situation and the lessons and facts learned through NRA.

Nevertheless, much good factual material has been assembled for use of the president and Congress as they consider innumerable bills fostered by industry—all of which ask for practically everything except a federal hand in labor relations.

Some aspects of the reports will be sensational and some of the men who have written them are so interested in their work that if Roper tries to censor them he probably will cause more publicity for those aspects than otherwise would be the case. Theoretically, the plan is to make many mimeographed copies of the studies available, but certain industries oppose publication. Especially they object to revelations as to pricing, financial structures, corporate organization, and certain trade practices. And to such juicy material as that which will show how corporation managements have enriched themselves enormously at the expense of both customers and investors.

STUDIES were begun of industries employing 13,500,000 persons and with annual sales of $65,000,000,000. Many of these studies have been curtailed, but there will be important reports on automobiles, coal, lumber, paper, fertilizer, electrical manufacturing, iron and steel, textiles and tobacco.

Squabbles between industrial-minded and labor-minded or consumer-minded NRA employees have persisted to the last. The Labor Studies Section was treated shabbily from the beginning and half its original 70 workers were assigned to other jobs.

The section on trade practices had about 200. It now has 11 employees. Anti-labor and anti-New Deal men have been used to review labor studies, it is charged, and it is possible to find marginal notes of criticism by superiors, such as the following on a study of working hours:

"Re-employment only one angle. Probably least important."

That will interest you especially if you recall the good old idea that NRA eventually would eliminate unemployment through shortening of hours.

OUT OUR WAY

THE HOUSEBREAKER

FARMERS INTERVIEWED SATURDAY
ALL AGREED MILK MARKET NEEDED

R. R. Bradshaw, of Stanton, old resident of that fine farming community and a man well acquainted with conditions around Cisco, was quizzed Saturday about sentiment toward the establishment of a whole sweet milk assembly point at Cisco.

He thinks the farmers will take to the matter wholeheartedly if the price justifies the feed and trouble involved. His community never has much worry over feed production, being as it is, one of the richest farming communities adjacent to Cisco.

Most of the farmers of the Stanton community are well-to-do citizens, believers in education for their children and always alert to all progress. This community was the seat of Britain's Training school, which was later moved to Cisco and became the nucleus from which Randolph college was evolved.

These people, many of whom already have good cows, own pasture land and are financially able to buy good stock if the market price should command their interest.

A. H. Lockhart, farmer-dairymen, of that good farming section south of Cisco, was in town Saturday and he had been reading about the plans for a milk depot for Cisco and a cheese plant when the production shall have reached an amount that would justify operations.

Mr. Lockhart always keeps a few cows, selling butter and cream at whatever prices he can get, realizing that the market is nearly always unsatisfactory because he has no regular organized system that is dependable, he says.

The trouble has always been, he says, is that we can't get a market until the production has reached sufficient volume and the farmer can't afford to increase his volume until he has a market, so it has been a checkmate in every instance. But this solves the problem, he thinks. We will have a market for what we have and all the time the volume is being increased. Then when a cheese plant is justified by an increase in the production, it is being promised us.

Mr. Lockhart says he will buy four or five more cows if he finds the market justifies the expenditure.

Certain of patrons

L. D. Stanard, of Nimrod, says farmers in his section have been reading about the plans for a milk depot in Cisco and a market for their whole sweet milk brought to their door, and he is sure that it will be patronized, since many farmers in his community keep cows and raise an abundance of feed when seasons are at all favorable.

Cisco Daily News want ads are a good investment.

Boxing, Wrestling
At Randolph College

A boxing and wrestling match will be staged in the Randolph college gym next Monday evening at 8 p. m. for the benefit of the basketball boys who are trying to buy sweaters. Some of the best of Randolph's fistic and hugging talent will be displayed for the appreciation of the public. One of the main attractions of the evening will be the "battle of the giants" in which Horace Sneed the six foot eight inches center will box Sammy Roberts, a mere lad of six feet six and a half inches. Arthur (Sluggers) Barker will have his wave wicketed right at Leighton (Leviticus) St. Clair from Seymour, Texas. Elton (Freacher) Dennis the fistic marvel of Bivins Hall will trade punches with his mammoth opponent, Jack (the Great) Brooks.

Two preliminary bouts will feature Randy's quartette of battling bantams. Enders Huey, the little Kingfish, will swap blows with O. C. Barnhill, the college ladies' man. Charles (little Prexy) McKistick and Donald Surles, the Big Bill Tilden of Randolph will settle a grudge of long standing without benefit of clergy.

Two wrestling matches have already been arranged and possibly there will be others. Richie Davis, the fiery 165 ministerial bombshell will grapple with Marcus (the Fearful) Lee, the friendly but eccentric lynamo from the tall timber. Perhaps the most interesting bout of the evening will be the battle in which five wrestlers will be blindfolded and turned loose in the ring, left to the tender mercies of each other and the 195 pound Brook. Those beside him who will participate in this event are George (Romero) Roberts, Albert (Bismarck) Wendle, Lowell (Tucker) Burks, and Ivan (Dizzy) Little.

Texas Woman Helps Edit Big Magazine

MRS. BEN C. BALL OF DALLAS

SHE has been selected as a "typical American homemaker" by the Woman's Home Companion, and is spending two weeks in New York as one of the editors of the magazine. Her selection is part of a plan to keep the contents of the magazine closer to its average readers. Twelve "reader-editors" are being selected, each from a different section of the country. They will each spend two weeks in New York, where they will work with the regular magazine staff on problems which confront any woman in her home, particularly in the kitchen.

Mrs. Ball went to Texas as a baby, graduated from the Hillsboro High School and then from Baylor University. In 1925 she married Mr. Ball, a banker. They have two children. Her indoor hobbies are cooking and sewing; outdoor hobbies, golf and swimming.

1936 Advertising To Go To Newspapers

Tangible evidence that the Continental Oil company's heavy use of newspaper space in its marketing territory during 1935 was a sound advertising move is indicated in the figures of the company's annual report for 1935 just issued.

These show that the company increased the volume of its general business as well as its profits, and that it enjoyed a notable gain in the sales of its patented "germ-proofed" motor oils. This product, which was especially stressed in the company's advertising, had an increase in sales of over 14 per cent in comparison with the figures for the previous year.

Continental recently announced that it would again expend the larger part of its 1936 advertising appropriation for newspaper space.

For the past several years the Continental Oil company has carried a sizable constant advertising schedule in the Cisco Daily News.

Island Forest Is Seeded by Plane

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20 — (U.P.)—CCC officials, returning from Honolulu, report the discovery of a mystery forest on the Island of Kauai.

CCC workers were engaged in building trails in Waimea Canyon on the island when they came upon a forest of thousands and thousands of young trees on terrain where all previous expeditions showed that no forest existed. The trees were of the karaka variety which is native to New Zealand and not to Hawaii.

An investigation of the mystery developed the fact that in 1929, the United States Army tri-motor Fokker "Bird of Paradise," which made the first non-stop flight from

BEGIN HERE TODAY

TOBY RYAN, 19, works behind the jewelry counter of a large Manhattan department store. She poses for a photograph to be used in a store advertisement and MARY HIAIT, the photographer, tells her she has a "homemade face."

Toby goes to dinner with BILL BRANDT, who works in an advertising agency. A few days later Toby loses her job, due to the scheming of jealous MARY HIAIT. She is employed in the jewelry department. Toby's efforts to find another job are fruitless. Then she meets Mary Hiait again. He sends her to BEN BLAKE, manager of a modeling agency. Blake tells her she must have photographs and arrange with Hiait to take the pictures.

Toby tells BILL BRANDT all about this. Later, on the way home, BILL says, "Toby, there's something I want to say to you."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER X
BILL spoke slowly. "It's like this, Toby. I think you're going to make the grade all right. I mean when Blake sees those pictures I think he'll say you're great. At least, he will if Hiait's any good as a photographer. I think you'll go over like a million dollars. Honestly I do! But—well, just in case those pictures shouldn't do justice to you—they might not, you know—I want you to remember there are other jobs. Good ones, too. It isn't a good idea to set your heart on this thing too strongly."

Toby said, "Of course not. I know what you mean, Bill."

"Now, don't get the idea I'm trying to discourage you," he insisted. "Not a bit of it. I don't want you to think—"

Toby shook her head. "You haven't discouraged me," she said, smiling. "You've done just the opposite. It's been a beautiful evening, Bill. It helps so much to talk things over with someone who understands, someone who's on your side. I guess that was what I needed. And the flowers—" She turned her head to catch the fragrance of the gardenias on her shoulder. "I know very well I shouldn't have let you buy them, but oh—I do love them!"

Bill's moment of seriousness was gone. He grinned. "Some of these days, my fine friend, you'll be wearing gardenias by the truck load."

Toby, studying the picture, thought, "But she's beautiful. Oh, I know I haven't a chance!"

your heart on this thing too strongly—"

Oh, but Bill was a dear! He didn't want her to be hurt when the report came about the photographs. "And he's right, too," Toby told herself. "I mustn't count on anything. I won't even think about it any more. I'll start to-morrow morning and look for a job."

Resolutely she clung to this decision. "Bill's right," she told herself again. "He was trying to help me." And he had helped her with all his nonsense and gaiety, with his sound advice, too. She thought, "I'm lucky to have a friend like Bill. There's nobody else like him."

It was true. There was no one like Bill. No one Toby had ever known. Back in her school days there had been boys who had taken her to football games, class parties and movies. She hadn't cared for any of them in particular and when she left school without graduating she had automatically dropped out of "the crowd." Toby had been too busy since then earning a living to think much about men. The ones she'd met in the last two years weren't the sort to inspire romantic thoughts—"fresh guys," most of them, and Toby knew how to deal with them promptly.

TOBY went to bed that night firmly resolved to be up early next morning to begin the search for a job—a job in a store or running an elevator or operating a switchboard, something she knew she could do.

She kept the resolution. But it was Saturday, the poorest day in thought. "But she's beautiful. Oh, I know I haven't a chance!"

Monday morning she left the house early, a list of addresses from the want ad pages in her purse. At one place a woman with her hair in an old-fashioned pompadour told Toby there might be something in 10 days or so, and advised her to come back. With dozens of other girls, Toby stood in line in several offices, only to hear, after waiting for a hour or so, that the vacancies had been filled. She rode subways and street cars and trudged blocks on foot, but she came home jobless.

It was the same on Tuesday. More offices, more interviews—but nowhere a job. It was the middle of the afternoon and there were two more addresses on Toby's list when suddenly she stopped in dismay. A wide and ugly line—a run, several threads wide—had appeared in her stocking.

Toby thought, "Another pair of stockings ruined!" That was bad enough, but there was something worse. She couldn't go looking for a job wearing such stockings. Anyone would see that run. A new pair would cost 50 cents and she'd have to buy them right away.

Fifty-nine cents was all Toby ever paid for stockings. She knew a shop where very serviceable ones were sold at that price.

By the time she reached the shop and made her purchase it was too late to do anything but go home.

Toby rode home on a surface car. Wearily she opened the door of the rooming house, went inside. Almost instantly a door at the far end of the dim hall opened and a head appeared.

"That you, Miss Ryan?"

"Yes."

The broad outlines of Mrs. Moeller, owner of the rooming house, emerged from the gloom. "There was a telephone call for you," she announced. "About half an hour ago."

"Who was it?" Toby asked eagerly. "Did they leave any message?"

Mrs. Moeller shook her head. "It was a woman's voice," she said. "Didn't give any name. Didn't leave any message."

"Oh—!" Toby hesitated. Then she said, "I'm going to my room now, Mrs. Moeller. If there's another call, I'll be there. It may be important."

"I'll let you know if anyone calls," the rooming house keeper promised. Her manner implied that she considered this extremely doubtful.

Toby climbed the two flights of stairs. She decided after a wait of nearly an hour that Mrs. Moeller was right. There was not going to be another call that afternoon. Either the photographs had been hopeless or Ben Blake had forgotten all about her.

And then, almost magically, she heard the muffled ringing of the telephone. Toby was half-way down the second flight before Mrs. Moeller had finished the last syllable of her shrill "Miss Ryan!"

Toby said, "Yes, I'm here."

Toby said, "Yes, I'm here—"

the United States to Hawaii, had scattered the territory with seeds from the air.

At that time many mountain regions of the islands difficult to reach on foot were planted from airplanes through army cooperation with the territorial forestry board, but little if any attention had been paid afterward to the results.

Eyed as Edward Hints Marriage

When King Edward VIII, in a message to the House of Commons, seemed to hint that at last he might marry, delighted, well-informed Britons turned eyes on eligible, charming Princess Eugenie, above, 26-year-old daughter of Prince George of Greece, and cousin of Princess Marina, wife of the King of England's brother, George. In the royal message mentioning "the contingency of his marriage," King Edward asked Commons to renew the civil list, providing the royal household and personal expenses.

Attorneys Agree On Injunction Terms

WASHINGTON, March 21.—(UP)—Attorneys for the Public Works Administration and five Texas power companies agreed today on terms of a temporary injunction which will permit continuation of work on hydro-electric projects on the Brazos and lower Colorado rivers in Texas.

The decree will permit construction to continue May 18 the date set for a hearing on the suit in District of Columbia supreme court.

The power companies, which sought on enjoining the number of projects on the ground of the production of the PWA program, would harm their business agreed to allow construction to continue on the Buchanan dam and the clearing of the site for the proposed Buchanan reservoir.

In addition the lower Colorado river authorities may proceed preliminary work on it's dam.

The injunction issued in District of Columbia supreme court permits clearing of lands necessary for the Marshall-Ford dam and reservoir and advertising for bids for construction of the dam.

AUSTIN

By GORDON K. SHEARER
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN, March 21.—(UP)—Director of Old Age Assistance offered real organization problems to Orville S. Carpenter, former state auditor and efficiency expert, upon whom the job fell.

The pension force is among the largest in the state although its first employee did not go to work until Feb. 14. Instruction of this force was only one of the problems. Many little things bobbed up for solution.

Postage, for instance, had Carpenter stymied for a time. The Postal Department notified him that pension applications, although on printed forms, must be paid for as first class mail after the blanks in them had been filled. Furthermore federal law prohibited sending them by express or freight to escape postage.

Carpenter got out his always ready pencil and computed how much stamps would cost. Three hundreds applications blanks were sent out. For them to be returned after filling of blanks would cost $9,000. Solution: An automobile was sent to collect the blanks from the 20 district offices scattered over the state.

Despite the instructions on the blanks and the detailed explanations issued, many make applications who are obviously not eligible. There "dud" applications have to be sorted out, delaying the time when inspectors took the field to check on applications that apparently were sound.

Strangely enough the pension division which will distribute millions of dollars needs few book-keepers. It has only one account so can get along with less book-keeping than many a little store.

Who will have the privilege of placing "36" on his automobile in centennial year is the latest mystery in official circles. As is customary the Governor received License Plate No. 1. That number plate will be on the family car. Secretary Ed Clark heard that Secretary Pat Moreland had applied for No. 36 and thought it would be a good joke to get it away from Moreland by applying for it for the Governor's personal car. But Moreland had No. 27.

Then newsmen became interested to know who really would have No. 36. The highway department informed it had not been issued. Gobb Gilchrist, chief engineer, was ill and could not be queried on who had applied for the number. Numbers up to 100 are reserved for issuance to officials and prominent citizens, who get a kick out of two-figure plates.

Beginning with "101" plates are sent to counties for distribution through tax collector's offices. The counties are assigned brackets covering the expected number of registrations. The first lot goes to Anderson county. If the plates are issued in regular turn some one in that county will have "1936".

Governor Alfred has the first drivers' license issued by Texas as well as car license No. 1. Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul got the first Centennial Stamp at Gonzales on March 2. He has automobile license No. 2. Jack Chevigny, football coach at the University of Texas, has license No. 12. He wanted that number because it is the one he wore on the gridiron for Notre Dame. Number 13 went begging for many years. Ted Read, now of Oklahoma City, then asked for it and it was assigned to him.

Getting the low numbers does not mean that registration fees are waived. They are collected just the same. Special colored plates with the figures preceded by X are used for vehicles entitled to exemption.

Gambling tables seized by the S-men in raids at San Antonio, have been turned to the purpose of law-enforcement in contrast to lawbreaking. The tables are being used by fifty pretty filling clerks. They do play games on the tables. They use the tables in sorting and classification of the drivers' licenses. Some of the tables are pool tables. The clerks find the pockets of these convenient holders for vanity cases.

"If we could convert roulette wheels into tabulators and slot machines into mechanical sorters we'd be sitting pretty," Director L. G. Phares said.

Phares is not much worried about who will get the special numbers on either car licenses or drivers' licenses. He is more worried about the size of the drivers' licenses. The licenses are just a trifle too large to fit into the ordinary billfold or pocketbook.

Phares felt less charringed when he discovered that the U. E. Internal Revenue officials had made the same error in income tax report blanks. They are too large to fit in the usual business envelope.

The drivers' license must be kept handy at all times after April 1, when the licenses are required. The man or woman who drives several different cars should carry the license. Those who drive the same car continuously can conveniently have the drivers' license attached to the dashboard.

Training School Ends Friday Night

The Church Training school which has been held this week at the First Methodist church ended Friday night. It began Sunday afternoon and included representatives from seven church schools. The schools represented were Cisco First Methodist, Twelfth Street Methodist, and the First Presbyterian church: Carlton, Ranger, Scranton, and Eastland.

Fifty-two were enrolled in the training school, and many came from time to time but were not actually enrolled. It was composed of four classes. These classes were: the children's division, taught by Mrs. Juanita Kent, the young people's division, taught by Mrs. Lela Mason, the Intermediate Department, taught by Rev. E. R. Stanford of Eastland; and Rev. J. B. Curry, presiding elder for the Methodist church taught the "Organizing for Christian Education."

Two class periods of 50 minutes each, were held and for a period of twenty minutes between the entire group was gathered together for an activity. In which all participated.

Believe New Oil In Stephens County

ERICKENRIDGE, March 21 — Attention of the oil fraternity yesterday was centered on what appeared to be a new oil pool in Young county near the Stephens county line.

This came about after the Pitzer and West No. 1 McCluskey encountered pay at the 2,700-foot level. The well is located a mile and a half north of South Bend, and today was said to be about two miles from any other well producing from that sand.

Pitzer and West have been getting good wells recently in Young county in the South Bend territory but in the others production has been from a 4,100-foot horizon.

The sand encountered in the McCluskey is the Strawn sand, production from which has been obtained in this section, but which will open a new pool for that section.

It was said that the well is expected to be brought in Thursday afternoon.

However, few people realize, except the housewife, the toil and drudgery necessary to prepare three meals a day. Just think of preparing over a thousand meals a year beside the many other laborious duties of a housewife.

Many West Texas homemakers have found a happy solution in the elimination of unnecessary toil in the kitchen. Today, the modern mother can place an entire meal in the oven of her range, set the oven control and time control and return home hours later to find a "piping hot" meal ready to serve. This is the marvel of automatic electric cookery!

SPORTSMEN TO MEET IN AUSTIN MARCH 27-28TH

AUSTIN, March 21.—(U.P.)—Sportsmen and conservationists of Texas, leading state in the value of hunting and fishing resources, will gather at Austin, March 27-28, to confer on methods of insuring good sport in future years.

The Texas Wildlife Conference, fashioned after a recent national conference at Washington, was called by Governor James V. Alfred. It is the first such state conference ever held.

Will J. Tucker, executive secretary of the state game, fish, and oyster commission, pointed out several "firsts" about Texas wildlife.

First in annual value ($80,000-600).
 Greatest variety in any state.
 Greater benefit to landowners and farmers than in any state.
 Texas has more game than any other state.

Tucker estimated that $25,000,000 is spent by hunters and fishermen in this state each year, although the state ranks 19th in the amount of money spent annually for preservation and restoration.

Many problems will confront the conference. Many sections of the state have dropped from "abundant" to "depleted" in the index of wildlife. Many valuable game species, with normal facilities for increasing, actually are decreasing. In this category, Tucker listed the mountain sheep, pronghorn antelope, and prairie chicken.

The sportsmen will seek to arouse public sentiment for needed laws protecting game and fish. Laws would be simplified and made feasible to deal with emergencies.

Because of favorable climate our great size, the individual efforts which many landowners have initiated, and the remnant of wildlife we have available for restoration efforts, more can be accomplished in Texas if a start is made now than in any other state making equal expenditures, the invitation to the convention said.

The Texas Wildlife Conference maintains headquarters in San Antonio. It plans to incorporate all local conservation groups into a state unit.

Market For Melons

Endorsed by Farmers

RISEING STAR, March 21.—About 25 farmers gathered in the Liberty Theatre here Monday afternoon to attend a mass meeting, called by the Rising Star Chamber of Commerce for the purpose of getting the sentiment for the establishment of a watermelon market square here for the coming season.

In a round table discussion it was brought out that all present were mostly in favor of the plan and pledged the support of various communities represented. The Chamber of Commerce plan was laid before the meeting by secretary Frank Robertson, who informed the growers present that his organization was ready to provide a shed and other needed facilities if sufficient interest was shown.

Each man present pledged himself upon returning home to make a canvass of his neighbors to see how many acres would be planted this season and report back to the Chamber of Commerce within 30 days, at which time definite action will be taken on building the shed.

DANGEROUS WITH BETTE DAVIS AT THE TEXAS TODAY

Bette Davis comes to the Texas theatre today and Monday in her latest Warner Bros. production, "Dangerous", with Franchot Tone playing opposite her and Margaret Lindsay her rival.

The screen play by Laird Doyle is said to be sheer drama of dynamic intensity and tremendous emotions. Bette has the role of a famous actress, who after rising to the top of the ladder of success, tumbles to the gutter through her own egotism and selfishness, although she calls it a jinx, dragging down those who loved her.

It is after her fall that Tone, in the role of a young architect, sets about sobering her up and trying to reestablish her as the brilliant star she had been.

But Bette loves lightly and too well. She already has a discarded husband she has ruined, of whom the architect knows nothing. The situation leads to a veritable scandal which ends in dynamic and tumultuous scenes and an amazing climax.

Miss Davis is not presented in a pretty light, but the part is said to give her the strongest characterization which she has had in films.

Others in the cast include Alison Skipworth, famous on both stage and screen, John Eldredge, Dick Foran, Walter Walker, Richard Carle, George Irving, Pierre Watkin, Douglas Wood and William Davidson. Alfred E. Green directed the production.

This Is The Bank That Service Is Building*About Our Friends

ing away...another ambition unsatisfied...K. H. Pittard and W. J. Leach wanting to know who the good looking woman is...but they were only expressing what all the others of the gathering were thinking...

Well, now retribution does come, as the good book says...Dr. E. L. Graham, always jolly and humorous, even sometimes when he means to be serious, talking to H. L. Dyer about the fine thing to do about the old, unpainted building for calling attention to the factings on Main street and how much we needed to take up a collection a few years ago had frozen up the if necessary to paint up vacant places...

And then Hal Dyer, always doing the wrong thing at the wrong time, sign and getting these old build-turned and pointed to the sign that was old and worn, almost crumbling to dust as the Wonderful One-horse Shay, and hanging, as it were, by a thread...a slender thread...yes, a very slender thread...And that sign said something about a Dr. Graham being up stairs at your service if you need a physician...a good one...Well, it didn't exactly say that in so many words, but one got the impression that the doctor expected the victim to believe such to be the case...

So Dyer is even with the good old English-mannered doctor now about the old, unpainted building for calling attention to the factings on Main street and how much we needed to take up a collection a few years ago had frozen up the if necessary to paint up vacant places...

So, now to make the thing right, let's do something about fixing the wrong thing at the wrong time, sign and getting these old buildings repainted, and unsightly ones and trash piles made tidy the eyes of our centennial visitors...and the Lion visitors...and thousands that are coming through Cisco over the Broadway of America constantly...weekly...

Our visitors are all the time streaming through...Why not these jibes of the men who mean to be serious into inspiration that will really help the Gate club...the Twentieth Century club and all others who are doing the bit to dress up our little city and keep it the beautiful and queen of the great highway that runs across the continent from New York to California...

QUINCY, Mass. —(U.P.) — What may be the world's smallest, is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stewart. Once owned by the poet, Robert Burns, it is only 1 1/2 inches long and 1-4 inch thick.
