Uncle Sam Demands Russian Consul Leave Country

Sensational Turn Is Taken In Soviet-American Spy Case Row

Red Claims That Russian Teachers Were Abducted Are Flatly Rejected In Note

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—The United States is stripping the Soviet consul general in New York of his official position because of his conduct in the Kosenkina affair and has demanded that Russia get him out of this country.

This sensational turn in the Soviet-American row over the refugee school teachers in New York was disclosed today with publication of an American note handed to the Soviet embassy last night.

The note flatly rejected Soviet charges that the teachers, Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina and Mr. and Mrs. Mikhail I. Samarine, were abducted by the anti-Soviet Tolstoy foundation with the connivance of American officials. The three, the note said, wanted to stay in this country.

While recognizing the right of Soviet officials to portect its nationals in this country, the note said they also are entitled to the protection of the "applicable laws of the United States."

Declaring this government will not turn Mrs. Kosenkina over to Russian authorities against her will, the note said:

"The government of the United States cannot permit the exercise within the United States of the police power of any foreign government."

The State department told Soviet Ambassador Alexander S. Panyushkin and his government that the Russian charges, including some by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, "have been based upon misinformation."

Moreover, the department told the Soviets in effect that the U. S. government holds Consul General Jacob M. Lomakin in New York responsible for this misinformation. He was accused of an "abuse" of his position and a "gross violation" of proper conduct of foreign officials.

As a result, the note said, the State department is "requesting" President Truman to revoke credentials granted to Lomakin by this country and wants him to leave the United States "within a

Mother Nature Promises Sizzling Temperatures

Texas Is Back In Bake Oven

(By The Associated Press)

Mother Nature slipped Texas back in the bake oven today, as if yesterday weren't enough.

Yesterday's temperatures set records in several places but today's were headed for possibly higher levels.

Corsicana's 106½ was the high for yesterday, and a new 1948 mark there. Austin's 103 and Dallas' 105 also were 1948 high readings.

Other sizzlers from yesterday: Mineral Wells 106, Fort Worth, Wichita Falls, Bryan and Lufkin 105, Waco and Tyler 104; Palestine 103, San Antonio and Presidio 102, Abilene 101, Houston 100.

Dallas' temperature was expected to go to 105 "or higher" today, the weather bureau said.

Not a trace of rain was reported throughout the state during the 24 hours ending at 6:30 a. m. Better luck was possible for the following 24, as widely scattered thundershowers were forecast for the extreme northwest portion of East Texas and in the Panhandle tonight and Saturday.

The only hint of relief from the heat was this line from the forecast "not so warm in Panhandle Saturday."

Soviet Agents Survey Vital Defense Areas

Officials Confirm Activity; Includes San Antonio Bases

(By The United Press)

TOPEKA, Kans., Aug. 20—Russian intelligence agents are pumping U. S. businessmen for strategic facts which could be used in planning air attacks, sabotage, or invasion.

This was confirmed today by Army officials in Washington after information first was obtained by the United Press here that the Russians had launched an information hunt in three midwestern cities vital to the U. S. military-industrial machine.

Investigation in Washington revealed that the Soviet quest is not confined to the midwest. It is being energetically pushed throughout the country.

Key Points Involved

The disclosures here involved Wichita, Kans., San Antonio, Tex., and Rockford, Ill., all of which are surrounded by key military and munitions installations.

The information sought is seemingly innocuous—highway and railway maps, telephone directories, scenic photographs, industrial brochures, business and agricultural yearbooks. All of it is more or less public property but, American intelligence officers pointed out, it is precisely the kind of material an enemy's "total espionage" machine would want to assemble. The Japanese perfected this kind of espionage before World War II, and the United States made devastating use of it in plotting strategic bombing attacks in the last conflict.

It is the kind of information, U. S. authorities said, which is essential to "order of battle" reports reports used in planning air attacks, sabotage, or invasion.

The Russian information search is being carried out by thinly-disguised "fronts" in Europe. Public utility officials, chambers of commerce, and industrialists in Wichita, San Antonio, and Rockford received letters, most of them from the Soviet zone of Germany, seeking what the Army called "basic intelligence information of strategic importance to all potential enemies of the United States."

The requests reached such a

Neither the bus driver, Chuck Langford, nor the truck driver, Odessa Oliver, was hurt.

John Starr, employe of the Stringer Funeral home at Hemphill, said lumber was thrown all over the place and through the bus. "It was a mess."

He said the bus driver was unhurt. "He's a good man, and he was all broke up over the accident" Starr said.

Starr estimated that 15 persons were in the bus. He said it was traveling south and the lumber truck north.

San Augustine is in southeast Texas.

THREE-VEHICLE CRASH IS FATAL FOR FIVE

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 20 (AP) — A three-vehicle traffic accident east of here late yesterday took the lives of five persons, four of them members of the same family, and seriously injured two others.

Brake Is Set On Easy Credit

New Rules To Begin Sept. 20

Loans, Installment Buying Affected

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—The government today pulled a brake on free-wheeling credit.

New rules to stiffen "easy payment" loans and purchases covering most consumer goods costing from $50 to $5,000 were posted officially by the Federal Reserve board. They take effect Sept. 20.

Businessmen were divided. Some thought it "fair and reasonable." One furniture executive denounced it as "rationing the poor."

These are the terms—backed up by criminal penalties and the power of the Federal Reserve board to put a violator out of the credit business:

One-third down on automobiles.

Twenty percent down on stoves, dishwashers, ironers, refrigerators, washing machines, air conditioners, radios, phonographs, television sets, sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, furniture and rugs.

A 15-month time limit to complete payment if the article costs $1,000 or less.

An 18-month limit on credit over $1,000, but with a minimum $70 monthly payment.

Ordinary charge accounts—usually payable in one, two or three months—are not affected. Personal loans, of the type repayable in monthly installments, are subject to the time limits. Single-payment loans and housing loans are exempt.

The order is the first fruit of the new Republican anti-inflation law, signed by President Truman Monday. He said the act is only a "tiny fraction of what we need" to defeat rising prices.

The anti-inflation law expires

Draft Deferments Ordered

U. S. Airlines To Hike Fares By 10 Percent

(By The United Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — A ten per cent airline fare boost is coming soon—with the added prospect that free meals in flight will be ended.

Present fares average about 5.5 cents a mile. The new rate of just over six cents will be the highest in nearly 15 years. It will take effect either in September or October, depending on when all the paper work can be completed.

Talk Over Crisis

That outlook is the result of a precedent-setting conference called by the Civil Aeronautics Board to talk over the industry's financial crisis.

The five-member CAB met with presidents and other top officials of the 16 trunk airlines yesterday and devoted almost the whole day to the fare increase and free meal problems.

Free food aloft has been traditional with the airlines. While generally rated as an attraction to business, some airline officials say it is merely a bow to necessity in that it simplifies the problem.

Airplanes cannot carry kitchens able to offer a menu such as the railroads have, nor can they make extended meal stops as the bus lines do.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 20. (U.P.)—Miss Helen Larkin surprised a burglar in her home. At the woman's scream, the burglar fled through the living room widow. Suddenly he reappeared and raced into the kitchen.

Disease Evidence Found In Prairie Dog

Gaines County Given Bubonic Plague Warning By Officials

AUSTIN, Aug. 20 (U.P.)—Residents in the Cedar Lake community in Gaines county in West Texas have been warned that the state health department has found evidence of bubonic plague in that area.

Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, said the evidence was found in a prairie dog. Investigators from the department and a crew from the U. S. Public Health Service already have begun rodent extermination.

The health officer said plague bacilli were "demonstrated in pools of fleas collected from pack rats several weeks ago in the same area which he fixed at about one-tenth mile south of the Sandolin oil camp in Gaines county.

He said plague bacilli previously "had been demonstrated in pools of fleas collected from field rodents taken in Dawson and Cochran counties in West Texas.

The last report of human bubonic plague in Texas involved three cases in January, 1921.

Five Suspects Under Arrest

Three persons, two of whom are named in indictments and the other in a charge that will go to a grand jury, were returned here from other Texas cities late Thursday to face burglary investigations; a juvenile girl was transferred here to be questioned in similar investigations; and officials left today for Oklahoma to return a man who had waived extradition on a desertion complaint.

Chief Dep. Sheriff George Eubank and City Detective LeRoy Boling, jr., delivered three of the defendants: Robert Louis Scales, 31, a Clarksville negro accused of burglary Aug 16 of a residence of Surlester Hereford, another negro; Paul James, 23, of Lubbock, charged with burglary May 14 of property controlled by Chester Putteet; and Johnny Williams, 23, a Slaton negro accused of burglary Jan. 19 of property of Hosie Wayne.

Arrested At Seminole

The girl, reputed to be only 15, was arrested by officials at Seminole, E. H. Gilbert of the state highway patrol, informed Lubbock officers. Detective Capt. Pat Davidson and Dep. Sheriff F. H. Service Chiefs To Hold Meet

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP) — Secretary of Defense Forrestal will hold a conference with the joint chiefs of staff at the naval war college at Newport, R. I., beginning late today and continuing through Sunday.

The defense department said the conference follows the pattern established at Key West, Fla., March 11-14. Similar meetings are planned at intervals of a few months in the future.

The purpose is to provide an opportunity for extended discussion of important policy questions in an informal atmosphere and at a distance from the routine administrative pressures and interruptions at headquarters in Washington.

Problems Specified

Forrestal will give the service chiefs a report on his talks with Defense Minister Brooke Claxton and other Canadian government officials during his visit last weekend to Ottawa.

Among other subjects to be talked over are: a means of appraising capabilities and performance of present and probable weapons; and the feasibility of their development in terms of cost, time and other factors.

Various problems relating to strategic air warfare will also be considered.

Single Non-Vet Registrants To Get First Call

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. — President Truman told selective service boards today to start mailing classification questionnaires to single non-veteran draft registrants by Sept. 7.

The order was in a 30-page set of regulations laying down the detailed provisions for putting thousands of young men 19 through 25 into uniform under the new peacetime draft act.

To Give Deferments

Under the order, as provided by the act, deferments will be given to men with dependents, to almost all veterans, to men in necessary jobs, including farm work, conscientious objectors and some other classes of registrants. Generally, the classes are patterned after those used in the wartime draft setup.

Single non-veteran men will be the first to get their questionnaires, which the boards will use to determine whether a registrant should be called for induction or deferred.

The questionnaires, which must be returned in ten days, will go out in the order of birth dates—with the oldest first.

Beginning Sept. 30, the boards are to start mailing questionnaires to other registrants in the same fashion. Thereafter, the questionnaires will be mailed to each registrant as soon as he reaches the age of 19.

Registration begins Aug. 30 for men born after Aug. 30, 1922, and continues through Sept. 17 for younger men.

The 25-year-olds will be the first

Slayer Sought In Multiple Stabbing

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20. (AP) — Police searched today for the slayer of Mrs. Mary Balyint, 21, who was found stabbed to death in her bedroom last night.

Mrs. Mary Yuhas, 51, mother of Mrs. Balyint, and Margaret Balyint, 23, sister-in-law of the victim, also were stabbed by the man before he escaped through a rear door, deterctives said.

Detectives quoted Mrs. Yuhas as saying her daughter went next door to see the man, and that she followed her when she heard screams.

Mrs. Yuhas and Margaret Balyint interrupted the man as he was plunging a long-bladed pocket knife into Mrs. Balyint, deterctives reported, and the two older women were cut on the arms and hands before the slayer escaped.

"THE IRON CURTAIN"

Rule By Fear Was Top Soviet Weapon

By IGOR GOUZENKO
Ex-Russian Agent In Canada
INSTALLMENT 8

When I returned to Moscow in 1942 (after the Germans had been driven back), a rule by fear was in full force. Keynoted by Stalin's speech approving what he called stern action on "a healthy suspicion," important arrests were being made throughout the Soviet union. This was designed to work a psychological effect on the public.

The wave of purging, as inspired by Stalin himself, made normal existence perilous.

The major danger behind the Stalin "suspicion" craze lay in petty political individuals making charges against rivals to protect themselves, a ruse not at all difficult where proof wasn't essential. And, in the Soviet Union, then as now, the road from suspicion to concentration camp or firing squad was very short.

What astonishes me in retrospect is the obvious fact that the "healthy suspicion" tactics caused more harm to the Soviet Union than a whole army of spies and saboteurs. What the spies and saboteurs were unable to do, the scheming, self-protecting Party leaders and bureaucrats accomplished with great success. In at least three cases, I knew of Dynamo engineers being removed from their posts because "healthy suspicions" had been voiced against them. On all three occasions their assistants were appointed to the vacancies as rewards for informing!

For four consecutive years, the hunt for "enemies of the people" continued with unabated fury. The hunters of yesterday became the hunted of today.

The NKVD became a thoroughly hated body of men. When occasion presented itself for a safe expression of opinion in a crowd setting, you'd hear individuals muttering such epithets as:

"Huns! Traitors! Murderers!"

Yet, it seemed, the more such hatred was expressed the more satisfaction they seemed to derive from their despicable work. Stalin himself repeatedly approved of this antagonism between people and NKVD, realizing, no doubt, that with the NKVD more hated than even the Tsar's Okhrana, the constant search for subversive groups would be much more effective.

The suspicion mania embraced

Red Neighbors Of Greece Hit

(By The Associated Press)

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 20 — Greece's three Communist neighbors were accused by a United Nations agency today of threatening peace in the Balkans by aiding Greek guerrillas.

The accused countries are Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. They were warned by the U. N. general assembly last night against assisting dissident forces in Greece.

The special committee on the Balkans (Unscob) reported to the assembly, after a year of on-the-scene inquiry, that the three Soviet satellites were continuing their activities against the Athens regime.

Agency Has Evidence

Unscob said it had evidence Greece's Communist neighbors had supplied arms and munitions to the guerrillas, had permitted the use of their territories for tactical operations and had given the guerrillas moral support through government-controlled radio stations.

"This assistance has been on such a scale," the report said, "that the special committee has concluded that it has been given with the knowledge of the gov-

Truman Orders Strike Action

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—President Truman today directed Attorney General Clark to seek an 80-day injunction to forestall a threatened strike of 45,000 east dock workers.

The President acted immediately after receiving a report from a fact-finding board telling of the failure of management and the AFL's long-shoreman's union to reach an agreement. A strike had been set for mid-night Saturday.

A major issue in the dispute involves a supreme court decision calling for payment of what the employers term "over time on over time."

The board completed a hearing Wednesday in the dispute between the AFL International Longshoremen's association and the New York Shipping association, representing employers.

The 45,000 longshoremen involved work in Atlantic ports from Hampton Roads, Va., to Portland, Me.

The present straight time rate for day work is $1.75 an hour. The overtime rate for night, holiday and week-end work is 1½ times this or $2.62½ an hour.

Under a supreme court decision of last June, work performed in excess of 40 hours a week must be paid for at the rate of 1½ times $2.62½ or $3.93¾ an hour.

Reds Grab German Policemen In American Zone Of Berlin

BERLIN, Aug. 20—Russian military police and German police they control invaded the American sector of blockaded Berlin today on a black-market raid and seized five German police belonging to U. S. sector forces.

An American military government official said the action clearly violated U. S. jurisdiction.

It was the second Russian-backed raid near the city borders during the day.

Earlier Russian M.P.'s and Communist - controlled German police raided downtown Potsdamer Platz, where the American, Russian and British zones meet, and arrested about 600 Germans without violence.

This contrasted to an operation last evening when Germans stoned the Communist police, who responded with gunfire which wounded four civilians.

OAKLAND, Calif., Aug. 20 —Roberta Lawson Nelson, 17, says she never knew—until police told her yesterday—that the "husband" with whom she had lived for two years was a woman.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL . . .

Repetitive Dreams Of Hardships Undermining Happiness Wife Finds In Wonderful Marriage

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My earliest recollections have to do with being told how small I was as a baby; how homely, how like my father's family; how awkward I was as a growing child; how this-and-that was wrong with me.

However, I am completely extrovert by native temperament, and outwardly at least I didn't register ill effects from this negative coaching. I like myself a lot and in my teens I eloped with a man mostly because he told me I was pretty and desirable. We got married, of course, and had one child, a daughter who is now grown and married.

My husband developed tuberculosis at the age of 35. This was followed by other ailments, and I became the family breadwinner, during the depression years of the 1930s. I did more and more work to keep my job and meet expenses, and finally my husband's death brought this chapter of drudgery to a close.

IS THERE CURE FOR NIGHTMARES?

I WASN'T widowed very long when I married a wonderful man. Truly he is one in a million and our home life is heaven. We own our home, we never quarrel. I have help in the house, a new car, furs, jewels, etc., but despite this idyllic existence I dream almost nightly that I am still coping with the final phase of my first marriage.

In these dreams it seems I'm still at work in the place of employment I left more than 10 years ago . . . that I've never left . . . that I am lost in the subway . . . that elevators won't wait for me . . . that I'm afraid I'll be late . . . that I must hurry, I might lose my job . . . that my boss is displeased, etc., etc.

In these dreams there is no inkling of my second marriage, and it seems my child isn't married either. I waken exhausted, drenched in perspiration, and at least one night a week is entirely sleepless as a result. Is there any cure for this? Signed E. S.

HER DREAMS HINGE ON SELF CONTEMPT

DEAR E. S.: In general, dreams are made up of a motley procession of fragments of thought and impulses of feeling that the conscious mind won't tolerate when it is awake and sitting in judgment on its contents, with the aim (mostly involuntary) of keeping said contents as tame, reassuring and conventional as possible.

Moreover, repetitive dreams of nightmarish quality usually derive from (and seek to "blow off") unconscious anxieties obscurely pitted in the dreamer's emotional make-up; and it seems clear that your bad dreams insistently stress the damage done to your self-regard, in early years, by the negative disparaging tirades that were your elders' conversational stock-in-trade.

These dreams give a picture of a personality unconsciously disposed to expect frustration, hardship, unrewarding struggle, failure and rejection as her inexitable portion in the field of human relations and social endeavors, an anxiety trend you could hardly escape in view of your earliest recollections of your family's trampling on your ego.

FEELS UNWORTHY OF GOOD FORTUNE

THE final phase of your first marriage brought harrowing literal trials that dovetailed perfectly with your ingrained pessimistic bias; hence that chapter of experience "rang true" to your unconscious mind, which hasn't yet rallied from the shock of fears confirmed, so to speak, and continues to brood on it fixedly, thus giving rise to disturbing dreams.

At deep unconscious levels of feeling, you aren't conditioned to believe in the reality, or indeed the possibility, of permanent good fortune for yourself, despite 10 consecutive years' idyllic existence that is still in force today, which means that fundamentally you damn yourself, owing to accepting your family's long-ago views as gospel, even while telling yourself you don't.

The cure for this handicapping attitude is to realize that your mature-age performance and the blessings it has attracted give the measure of your real worth in the scale of human values. Peace of mind is based on right love of self; and a sesion or two with a penetrating psychologist might give you a lift in that direction.—M. H.

TRAVELOG

A LETTER from Jane Watson, Tech photography instructor who is touring South America, begins: "From Rio, Aug. 3. Ay yi yi—Que fino es Rio! Really this place is too fabulous, even more exciting than Lubbock." . . . Jane seems to be making headlines at the southern tip of South America. A picture of her appeared on the front of the Rio Globe showing the U. S traveler-photographer in action with her camera. Also, a deep two column cut of Miss Watson appeared in the roto section of A Noite with the following cutlines (which have been translated from Portugese): "With legitimate admiration she dispensed with furs and complicated clothes in order to satisfy a most feminine quality—curiosity." Jane writes, "They say that means I was the only woman there who was interested in something greater than vanity, but frankly, I think they were making fun of my old black dress."

She goes on to weave a verbal picture of her experiences in Copocobana, going barefooted on the beach and surfing, dancing in the Day and Night room of the Hotel Serrador to "combo-continuouso" music on a "just like velvet" marble floor, going to a garden restaurant where suckling pigs are turning on spits, and seeing the famed twin mountains, Vermelah and Orco. Attractive Miss Watson sailed Friday, August 6, on her return trip to the States.

"AMARILLO BEAT IN EVERY WAY—MORE OF A CITY"

Oklahoma City Man On Visit Here Expresses Amazement At Lubbock's Growth In 33 Years

By SCOTT RAFFERTY
Journal Staff Writer

When a young telegraph operator left a tiny South Plains village 33 years ago to seek his fortune with the Santa Fe railroad, he never dreamed that he would someday be back to see a modern, clean city that would leave him gasping in amazement.

But that was just the effect 49-year-old C. F. Sopher of Oklahoma City plainly showed today while on his first visit to Lubbock since his father signed a minor's release that started young Sopher on his way to self-support and independence back in 1913.

"I just couldn't believe it," Sopher said. "You just don't imagine a city like this out here on the plains. I asked a man yesterday to explain it and he told me 'nobody knows what built Lubbock.'"

The veteran dot-dash man, now an operator for Wilson & Co. in Oklahoma City, added that Lubbock "has Amarillo beat in every way. Lubbock is more of a city." He went even further in saying that he would rather live in Lubbock than Chicago.

Lubbock Was Small Then

In Sopher's boyhood, Lubbock had about three stores, a few houses and a depot. Amarillo was little larger and it meant that a boy had to be a "man" at the age when most modern youngsters are still in high school.

Learning to be a telegraph operator wasn't easy for Sopher. It meant long hours of work with construction and repair gangs and extra-curricular activities with the telegraph operator but it finally paid off with good jobs at Clovis, Amarillo and other points.

Sopher's best friend and constant companion in those days was Harry Marsh, currently chief Santa Fe dispatcher at Slaton and a railroader highly regarded in the company's system. It was Sopher who helped Marsh get his first job with the railroad when Sopher was 17 and Marsh two years younger. Marsh was hired at Clovis by the acting chief dispatcher, fired when the chief returned and hired again by the superintendent after being told to put on long pants.

Gives Reason For Quitting

Asked why he quit railroading, Sopher said the meat packing firm for which he works has "a swell bunch of old-time telegraph operators that a guy likes to work with."

"The pity of it all," he added, "is that the company doesn't have a plant here. I'd come out in a minute."

Sopher, with his wife, is visiting his son, Doug, who owns a farm near Lorenzo. He also plans to visit Carlsbad caverns on his vacation—a vacation he'd like to make permanent, in Lubbock.

Month's Activities Are Told By VFW Auxiliary

Reports on the month's activity were given when VFW auxiliary met at First Presbyterian Felowship hall Thursday night with Mrs. Tom Everheart presiding.

The Lubbock auxiliary sponsored two booths at the carnival given in Amarillo to benefit patients in the veterans hospital there. This project and the barbecue served to members of the Lost Battalion at their reunion here last week were reported to be highly successful.

Project for September is to clothe an underprivileged child. The next meeting of the auxiliary will be Sept. 2.

Tanks Of Chemicals Make Fine Gardens

80-Year-Old Lubbock Man Is Owner Of Growing Process

A highly-productive venture by an 80-year-old Lubbock man has proved that the benefits of science are not reserved only for future generations.

In less than a year's time, J. L. Hinsley, 1902 Ave. E has turned the yard of his modest home into a veritable tomato-grower's paradise—with very little help from Mother Nature, who sometimes turns a deaf ear to West Texas pleas for more productive land.

In two 34 by 4½ foot concrete "tanks," Hinsley turns out fine, large and sometimes seedless tomatoes which find a ready market among his neighbors—with the credit going to the aged man's hard work, and the combination of as many as 14 different chemicals with ordinary sand and gravel.

Process Described

Starting last year with a small tomato bed, Hinsley obtained a copywrighted formula from Prof Earle A. Spessard of Hardin College, Conway, Ark. The process, which develops into a "Spessard Hydroponicum" calls for 14 chemicals, including Epsom salts. The chemicals are mixed with water in a barrel and fed by pipes into the tanks filled with sand and gravel. With a minimum amount of sunlight and constant untangling of vines, the plants will grow as much as six inches every two days and will produce several types of tomatoes, predominantly pearl white and transparent red. Seedless tomatoes are perfected by spraying the blooms with chemicals.

In a single day, Hinsley sometimes harvests as much as 15 pounds of tomatoes, some weighing nearly a pound. The vines themselves have grown to as high as seven feet and will continue producing until frosts set in.

Variety To Be Used

Hinsley, a native of Arkansas, farmed in East Texas, Oklahoma and in the Lubbock vicinity until he moved into the city in 1934. However, he said he had never engaged in any extensive vegetable growing.

Although he's made a success of the present venture, Hinsley says he still makes mistakes and intends to pursue his experiments not only with tomatoes but with bell peppers and green onions. The same chemical processes will be applied to the latter experiments.

Nursing the sometimes temperamental plants means long hours of work each day but the pleased look on the hardy old man's face shows that fun, profit and good living can begin at twice the proverbial 40 years.

Removal Of Woman From Office Asked

LONGVIEW, Aug. 20. (AP) — Hearing on a petition asking the immediate temporary removal from office of Mrs. Bertha D. Allen, for 10 years Gregg county superintendent of schools, is to be held Aug. 30.

Judge Otis Dunagan of Tyler set the date for the hearing after R. L. Whitehead, Gregg county district attorney, filed the petition in 124th district court.

The petition alleges "official misconduct, incompetency in office," and "gross carelessness in the discharge of the duties of said office."

Mrs. Allen told the Longview News-Journal:

"I have welcomed this investigation and cooperated fully. My books and office records are open to the people of this county, state investigators, or federal officers. I have nothing to hide. I am ready for trial."

The complaint followed two recommendations by the grand jury to the district court: that a removal suit be filed against Mrs. Allen and that immediately upon filing of the suit the judge suspend her temporarily pending outcome of the suit.

State Mystery Near Solution

HOUSTON, Aug. 20 (U.P.)—Texas rangers and Harris county sheriff deputies today apparently moved closer to the solution of the disappearance of a 17-year-old Houston girl four years ago.

They announced they had unearthed five vertebrae, two teeth, a white linen shoe and a shotgun shell near the place where Annie Mae Dodd was last seen on the morning of May 26, 1944.

In a search through leaf mold beneath underbrush where Henry Hatchett, 14-year-old negro boy, found a skull Sunday, the officers also found a fragment of hair, believed to be human. It is being analyzed for color, origin and characteristics, and it is thought it may prove an important clue in the mystery.

Brother Joins Search

The girl's brother, George Dodd, joined the searching party yesterday. It was he who found the first vertebra.

The girl's sister, Mrs. Edna Lee Cook, said Annie Mae was wearing white linen sandals when she left home the night of May 25.

Rangers said they probably would go to Brownwood to question Annie Mae's cousin, who was with her when their car stalled on a Harris county road. He has said that he left Annie Mae asleep when he went to get help and that she had disappeared when he returned.

During the first half of this year, Ben Hogan averaged 69.86 strokes over 51 competitive golf rounds.

Johnson Blasts Stevenson In Radio Address At Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, Aug. 20. (AP)—Lyndon Johnson, who says money is being spent like water to defeat him in the U. S. Senate race, turns his course today to southeast Texas.

After a mid-day radio speech here, he said he would make afternoon stops in Kilgore and Gladewater, en route to Longview for a night rally.

Johnson made two speeches here yesterday and issued a statement saying his opposition is "spending money like water to raise a smoke screen and divert attention from the real issues."

Johnson called his opponent, Coke Stevenson, "the granddaddy of all mudslingers."

Stevenson Accused

In a radio broadcast, he accused Stevenson of "stalling, dodging and pussyfooting," and said, "thousands of those who supported him in the first primary are leaving him in disgust."

Johnson's night speech was a "non-political" discussion of air power before members of the Fort Worth chapter of the air reserve association. He said the future of U. S. air power lies more with civilians than with military men.

The important factor, he said, is a strong reserve, properly trained, and balanced between air, land and sea forces.

Johnson told reporters during an afternoon conference that he figures from "the high-priced advertisements in newspapers, the large billboard ads, and the smear sheets, that the black bag of the labor bosses has finally arrived from the north to swell the slush fund being spent to purge Lyndon Johnson."

Question Is Posed

The congressman said that Stevenson should answer one question for the voters:

"Is the Taft-Hartley labor law, which curbs the Communist labor bosses, good or bad?"

"I would not be surprised," he said in his radio speech, "if before the end of this fight, my opponent jumps on the band wagon and comes out and says he is now for the Taft-Hartley bill, lock, stock, and barrel.

"But he has waited too late, he has calculated too long, he has cooled his coffee too much to get by with any such statement."

Badly-Leaking Boat Towed By Destroyer

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP)—A badly-leaking fishing boat—the Allenel—was being towed into San Diego today by the destroyer Perry, which answered her distress call 75 miles to the south yesterday.

The Allenel, a boat less than 30 feet long, developed a dangerous leak and another small fishing boat, the Ginger, took her in tow. But, because of the seriousness of the leak, the Allenel continued sending out SOS calls over a hand-cranked radio until the Perry arrived.

It was not known how many persons were aboard the Allenel, which is owned by Allan Levine and operates out of San Pedro, Calif.

The Perry notified the Coast guard she would try to pump out the Allenel and, later, advised port here she was towing her in. The destroyer and her tow were due early today.

Meanwhile, a Coast guard cutter went to the aid of two other small fishing boats operating in the same general area south of San Diego. The cutter towed the disabled Patsy Ann to Coronado. The other boat in trouble was the Sharon Lee. Nature of her trouble was not known immediately.

A new plastic that can be molded and cut into exact models of industrial tools or machine parts and then tested under stress has been developed.

Services Held For Babe Ruth

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—The body of George Herman Ruth rested today in a receiving tomb on a hillside overlooking the Bronx river about 30 miles north of New York City.

It was taken there yesterday after sorrowing thousands had said their last goodbye to the ballplayer who won the heart of the nation.

A crowd of 6,000 gathered in a pouring rain at the gate of Heaven cemetery, at Mt. Pleasant, N. Y., for the committal services. They stood with heads bowed as Monsignor John J. O'Donnell intoned:

"May his soul and the souls of all the departed find rest and peace."

The casket was placed in the vault, where it will remain until the family decided on final burial plans.

Route To Cemetery Jammed

Streets of communities along the route to the cemetery were jammed as the 25-car funeral cortege made its way from St. Patrick's cathedral in midtown Manhattan, where a requiem high mass was conducted.

Six thousand persons crowded into the huge cathedral for the services. Another 75,000 packed Fifth avenue and adjacent streets outside.

It was a hushed and solmen throng—a mixed gathering of the famous and the obscure—come to pay a farewell tribute to the Babe whose smashing bat wrote a dramatic chapter in American folk history.

Often only the sound of falling rain was audible over the vast assemblage that stood outside in homage to the home-run king, who died of cancer Monday night at the age of 53.

Special Prayer Offered

Inside the cathedral Francis Cardinal Spellman offered a special prayer in which he asked that the devine spirit "that inspired Babe Ruth to overcome hardships and win the crucial game of life may animate many generations of American youth."

As the prayer ended, the Babe's widow, Mrs. Claire Ruth, raised her head, and said "amen.' Echoing whispers were heard throughout the cathedral.

Lamesa Youth Dies Following Accident

LAMESA, Aug. 20. (Special)—A 15-year-old Dawson county farm boy, Lillard Dale Thomas, died here at 5:30 p.m. Thursday from injuries received in the collision of his motorcycle and a butane transport truck an hour earlier in Lamesa's residential section.

Thomas suffered severe head and chest injuries in the crash at the intersection of South Fourth and South Houston streets. He was rushed to a Lamesa hospital and placed under an oxygen tent but failed to respond to emergency treatment.

Deputy Sheriff Louie Bradford who investigated the accident said the loaded butane truck, owned by Cope Butane Supply, and driven by R. A. Franklin, was going west at a slow rate of speed on South Fourth and had just entered the intersection when Thomas, who was riding his motorcycle north on South Houston, apparently saw the truck and applied his brakes.

Bradford said the machine skidded approximately 60 feet on the gravelled street and came to rest under the moving truck. The rear wheels of the vehicle passed over the boy's body, but Franklin was able to stop quickly and avoided crushing the motorcycle.

The deputy said in his opinion the accident was unavoidable and that no charges had been filed.

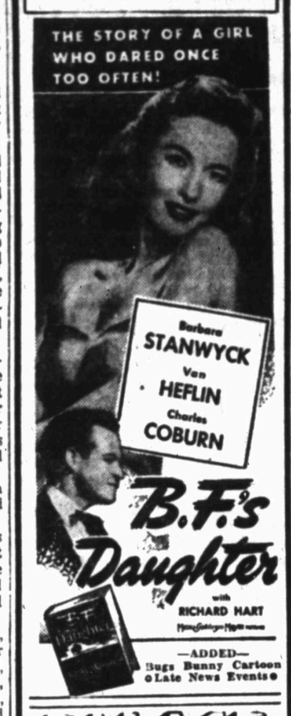

Definite funeral arrangements have not been completed, but the funeral home in charge said rites probably would be held at 3 p. m. Saturday with burial in Pride cemetery.

Survivors include the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lillard Thomas, Star Route 1, Lamesa; a grandfather, J. T. Niblett, Lamesa, a brother, Darrell Thomas, and three sisters, Mrs. Ann Foster, and Mrs. Fred Damron, both of Morton, and Mrs. Lloyd Cochran, Lamesa.

GOP Isolationist Ticket Could Have Changed Ike's Decision

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (U.P.)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower refused at least six times to become a presidential candidate, and meant it—but the selection of an isolationist ticket by the Republicans would have forced him to accept Democratic nomination.

That is the opinion of Marquis W. Childs, newspaper columnist, who tells the story of "Why Ike Said No" in a Collier's magazine article.

Eisenhower, now president of Columbia university in New York, first eliminated himself as a Republican presidential possibility. Then he had to deflate a series for Ike-for-president booms within the Democratic party.

GOP Deadlock Flared

But the general was apprehensive lest the GOP convention at Philadelphia deadlock and out of the deadlock come victory for the nationalists and isolationists in the party, Childs said.

Childs said "he knew that such a triumph would have made it impossible for him to stand aside from the political battle."

"He had contemplated a statement," Childs said, "which might have been phrased like this: 'I will join with anyone who stands for the principles of international cooperation I believe in and who will oppose those who seem determined to take our country back to isolation and unpreparedness'."

Childs added that "such a statement issued in the crucial period between the two conventions probably would have meant the nomination of Eisenhower by the Democrats."

Childs said that the general knew that his name "was tossed into a really smoke-filled room in which the stop-Dewey forces sought for a way out of their dilemma."

Dewey-Warren Approved

But Eisenhower, watching the convention on his television set, "resolutely" refused to talk with any Republican faction, although "frantic efforts" were made to get in touch with him.

The Dewey-Warren ticket satisfied him, Childs said, although his personal choice was a ticket composed of Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg for president and Harold Stassen for vice president.

Then came the Democratic boom for Ike which brought together "surely the oddest combination that ever tried to get a bandwagon in motion," Childs said.

Ike issued another "I won't accept" statement and then wrote to Sen. Claude Pepper, D., Fla., in a similar vein to finally stop the boom.

The Ike booms and boomlets made him "definitely unhappy," Childs said. He considered them signs of political weakness and atrophy.

Wasps are helpful to man. They sometimes damage fruit, but they also destroy large numbers of caterpillars and other harmful insects.

A HINT FOR BUTCH

EUNICE, N. M. (U.P.)—A young lad named Butch who liked to light matches set a neighbor's automobile on fire. The Eunice Enterprise reported the event, concluding with the observation: "The car escaped with only a slightly scorched read end. It is sincerely hoped that Butch did equally as well."

Barbara Stanwyck Buzzing For Co-Star Role With Bing Crosby

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Staff Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 20.—Barbara Stanwyck, a woman who usually gets what she wants, is hot for a co-starring film with Bing Crosby.

Barbara has no definite picture in mind, but she has been buttonholing everybody on the Paramount lot, including Bing Crosby himself, for a chance to appear with the groaner. And why shouldn't she? Crosby hasn't made an unsuccessful picture.

Has the U. S. forgotten the roaring twenties so soon? Paramount guesses so. Preview audiences couldn't understand "The Great Gatsby," F. Scott Fitzgerold's story of the flaming age. So the studio added a prologue picturing the era—racketeers, speakeasies, etc. Later previews drew a much better response.

Ladd Habits Improved

George Raft is back here for the rest of "Outpost In Morocco," for which he shot six weeks of exteriors in North Africa some months ago. Raft claims it's the first time the real foreign legion has been used in a picture.

Alan Ladd, who used to slug down straight shots on the screen in the best tough-guy tradition, has done practically no drinking in his last three pictures. He either explains he doesn't drink or nurses a beer during a scene. He also does very little smoking in "One Woman." The reason, of course, is the objections of his fans.

Bill Holden is hunting for a western story to star himself and his wife, Brenda Marshall. He'd like to do it as his own production, if and when he gets permission to do so . . . I hear "Act Of Violence" retakes will feature Lee Tracy. It would be the first time he has been on the MGM lot in many years.

Between . . . The Lines

—— By JOE KELLY ——

The Chamber of Commerce, despite the poor showing made by Lubbock during the district American Legion tournament—and by poor showing, we mean the failure of the fans to turn out in support of the games—has invited the National Baseball Office to stage its annual national baseball tournament here next year. The Chamber of Commerce, hopeful that Lubbock's indifference to the Legion tournament is not indicative of Lubbock's true attitude, has gone ahead with original plans. It remains now for the NBO to decide whether Lubbock should be given this honor.

There's also a proposition being made by Altus, Okla., Legion officials that Lubbock and other cities band together in a Legion baseball league. The proposal, as it now stands, would link Lubbock, Altus, Wichita Falls, Clovis, Oklahoma City and Tulsa in a six-man loop. If feasible, possibly two other teams would be added from other cities. The Altus Legionnaires go on to propose a regular series of games between teams from these cities.

These series would consist of each team meeting the others in the loop several times during the course of the season. It would be a regular, organized league and teams would travel, playing three-game series each time they invaded another city. Local Legion officials are in favor of the plan, since it would give the Lubbock boys a chance to play better, faster teams long before the state tournament. There hardly would be much chance of another case of nerves as here was this year and the boys would learn much from the competition.

One of the principal stumbling blocks is arranging a place to play the three-game series in Lubbock. Any such schedule would have to take into consideration the fact that the Hubbers are in and out of town, if the games were to be played at Rosenthal Field. It is a problem that could be worked out and probably will be, if anything concrete is done. Personally, we think the suggestion is one of the best to come along this year. Undoubtedly playing Altus was good experience for the local lads and if they could meet such teams regularly during the season, they would profit greatly. We hope the league is formed.

The Thomas-Sunbeamers softball team, which went to the finals of the state A.S.A. tournament at Wichita Falls, has received an outstanding honor. Three of the local players were named to the all-state nine. And two of the players are twin brothers, an unusual recognition and unique occurence. Yes, Roy and Ray Butler were named to the squad, as was Jackie Neel, unquestionably the top softball hurler in Texas. The only other player from the Texas Softball League to be named to the team was Red Denham of Crane, another hurler and a good one, too. We salute the three local players for their achievement.

Ted Vernon of Route 6 comes up with a nice postcard that we appreciated a great deal. He also muses that it is hard for him to make up his mind about whether he places his opportunity to see Babe Ruth hit three World Series homers (one game) against St. Louis, or his 20-minute talk with the grand old man of baseball, Connie Mack, also in St. Louis, as the most important. We'd have to go along with his indecision. We've seen Connie, but we've never talked to him. We both saw and talked to the Babe. Both were great men, both were different. Both would be unforgetable experiences. We'd treasure both and keep them like that.

Letters were put in th mail this week to all superintendents of schools on the South Plains, requesting information on football schedules, etc. The grid season is almost here and, as last year, The Avalanche-Journal is going to give the most comprehensive coverage possible to area high schools. It can't all be done here in Lubbock. As a result, we are calling on superintendents and coaches to help. Meanwhile, roving reporter-photographer Bill Clark and C. W. Ratliff will be around to get pictures, aided and abetted by Earl Scudday. The latter, with Scott Rafferty and yours truly, will cover area games. With your help, these sport pages on Saturday morning and during the week should have a distinctly South Plains aspect.

Hubbers Beat Dukes, 6 To 4; Play Again Tonight

The Lubbock Hubbers have reason to appear proud today.

The local ball team beat the league-leading Albuquerque Dukes on their home field last night 6-4, thereby gaining prestige and a closer look in the league standings at the leaders. It didn't do them any good in their personal feud with Amarillo and Pampa, both the second and fourth place nines winning.

Gold Sox Beat Loboes

Amarillo took the measure of Lamesa in a typical West Texas-New Mexico League slugfest, 16-11, while the Oilers edged out the Clovis Pioneers, 9-7. Abilene didn't have too much trouble beating the Borger Gassers 9-5.

Jim Skidgel's three home runs—he enjoyed a perfect night at the plate with five for five—was the only happy thing in the Lobo picture. The Gold Sox jumped into an early lead on five runs in the first frame and three in the second, after which the game virtually was over. It was a weird contest, with Lamesa outhitting Amarillo, 16-15, but failing to make the blows count.

Last night was the first time since May 31 that the Hubbers have been able to beat the Dukes on their home field and it marks only the second time this season that they have beaten them in Albuquerque. Tears were thicker than water over the shame!

Have Been Easy Marks

So far the Hubbers have been easy picking for Manager Herschel Martin's gang in its home lot. The Dukes took both games of the April 29-30 series, They dropped the May 31 game, but took the two remaining tilts of the series, and they won all three games of the series played July 12 through 14.

In nine games this year at Albuquerque, the Hubbers have won only two, while losing seven. At home it is a different story, where the Hubbers have taken six of their ten games from the Dukes, including a sweep of a doubleheader in May.

Albuquerque took a lead in the first inning last night, but didn't hold it long, Virgil Richardson singling and Frank McAlexander tripling him home in the second. The Hubbers went ahead in the third on a single by Gene Hixson and Manager Jackie Sullivan's double after two were out.

The Dukes promptly sewed up the score in their half of the frame on a walk, a wild pitch, a long fly and a single.

Take Permanent Lead

Then the Hubbers took what turned out to be a permanent lead in the sixth. Sullivan walked, Richardson bunted safely, Floyd Walker walked and McAlexander slammed a single that scored the two front runners.

Two more runs — the winning margin—scored in the seventh on Sullivan's single, Richardson's triple and Walker's single, all taking place after two were out.

Cotton Russell weakened in the eighth and had to have help from Roland Miller, who got Les Mulcahy on a foul fly and then fanned Ray Machado and Len Attyd. In the ninth, a single and a walk got him trouble, but Jackie Wilcox started a fast double play to avert that danger and Martin skied to Don Moore to end the game.

Tonight an old foe, Don Cantrell, probably will go after an even split, while Sullivan possibly may shoot Red Ramsey at the Dukes.

Unbeaten Teams To Play Game In Waco

WACO, Aug. 20. (AP)—The winner of tonight's game between Central Freight of Waco and Morris Jewelers of Waco probably will be favored to win the state tournament of the American softball association.

Both clubs won their first two games.

Central Freight trimmed Lyshagt Furniture of Fort Worth, 4-0, last night.

Morris Jewelers nosed out the Hardman Oilers of Grand Prairie, 1-0. Clayton Dugger of the Jewelers retired the first 26 batsmen to face him. The 27th walked, and the last hit a double.

Treadwell Cafe of Dallas became the first team to be eliminated from the meet, defaulting for the second straight night, this time to Hubbard American legion.

The Riesel Lions club shut out Service Mutual of Waco, 7-0, with Jay Brock turning in a two-hit hurling job.

Texas Boxing Champ To Fight In Dallas

DALLAS, Aug. 20 (AP) — Bert Linan of Austin, Texas welterweight boxing champion, meets 18-year-old Chebo Hernandez of El Paso in a non-title, 10-round bout here tonight.

Joe Andreas, Dallas bantam, meets Irish Pat Riley of Austin in the six-round semi-windup. Another six-rounded pits Mile Palma of El Paso against Chralie Neff, Lubbock bantam.

The Cleveland Browns, champions of the All-America pro football conference, boast 16 players who learned their college football in Ohio schools.

Collegians To Take To Air

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (AP) — The annual lake-front football pareant will be on display in Soldier field tonight when the College All-Stars meet the Chicago Cardinals in the 15th annual game of the series.

A crowd of 100,000 or more is expected to watch the collegians attempt to make it three victories in a row over the professional champions. Last year the stars defeated the Chicago Bears, 16 to 0, while in 1946 they blanked the Los Angeles Rams by the same score.

Pros Hold Edge

The National Football league champions, however, hold the edge in the series with seven victories, five defeats and two ties. Tonight marks the first appearance of Coach Jimmy Conzelman's Chicago Cardinals in the pre-season football spectacle.

Notre Dame's Frank Leahy, coach of the All-Star squad for the second consecutive year, will aim a twin offensive at the Cardinals in the form of a T-formation unit led by Notre Dame's Johnny Lujack and a single wing combination spearheaded by Charlie Conerly, Mississippi's great passer. On the single wing side also will be such expert passers as Bob Chappuis, Michigan; Herman Wedemeyer, St. Mary's, and Howard Yerges, also of Michigan.

The college squad of 71 players numbers 14 men from last season's undefeated Notre Dame squad. Michigan placed nine men.

Injury List Long

College injury lists are long though. It included Capt. Bump Elliott of Michigan, Pete Ashbaugh and Bob Livingstone of Notre Dame. From the Cardinal camp at Waukesha, Wis., came word that Bill Campbell, Pat Harder, Bill Blackburn and Charley Trippi were ailing.

The collegians are expected to fill the air with passes. Included among the squad's talented receivers are Bob Mann and Len Ford of Michigan; Bill Swiacki, Columbia; Tom Fears, UCLA, and Paul Cleary, of Southern California.

The Cardinals have nowhere near the depth that Leahy has, but they'll have splendid passing as long as Mal Kutner and Bill Dewell are around to catch Paul Christman's passes, and good running if Trippi and Elmer Angsman are sound of wind and limb.

White Sox Defeat Yankees, 30 To 12

A powerful White Sox nine blasted the Yankees, 30 to 12, behind Ronald Hall in Thursday's Pee Wee league game, while the Jaycees nudged ABC, 4 to 3, in the Junior affair at Lubbock Boys Club.

Ronald Hall gained credit for the mound win. K. D. Watson sparked the White Sox attack, with four singles in six times up. For the Yanks, George Dawson banged out a single that drove in two runs.

In the Junior affair, both teams were scoreless until the first of the fifth, when the ABC's got three hits, which were good for their three runs. In the last of the sixth frame, the Jaycee squad opened up with Ira Owens' single. Mickey Bradey then tripled, Carroll Walker drew a base on balls. Doney Presley came up and singled, Perry Martin doubled to drive in the two runs which placed the game on ice for the JC's.

Walker fanned fourteen ABC batters. Truman Jones was the leading hitter for the ABC's, with two singles in four times at bat. While on the mound Jones struck out thirteen players.

Friday, the Red Sox will meet the Dodgers in the Pee Wee affair and Methodist Men will meet the Exchange Club nine in the Junior league game.

Six former Notre Dame athletes are members of the Buffalo Bills of the All-America Football Conference.

Harry Brecheen Beats His Oldtime Jinx

Ace Hurler For Cards Appears To Be Cinch To Become A 20-Game Winner

BY JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

Now that Harry (The Cat) Brecheen has demonstrated he can puzzle the hitters during the daytime as well as at night, the St. Louis Cardinals' ace hurler appears a cinch to realize his ambition to become a 20-game winner.

For years the slender 33-year-old southpaw from Ada, Okla., has been known as a whiz at night, but no more than a good pitcher under the sunlight.

Now the daytime jinx seems to be conquerred. Brecheen pitched one of his best games of the year yesterday, shutting out the Cincinnatti Reds on four scattered hits, 4-0.

It was his fourth victory against two losses in day games and his 15th triumph of the year. He has won 11 and lost two at night.

The triumph pushed the third place Cardinals within two games of the leading Boston Braves.

Brecheen struck out seven to wrest the strikeout leadership from Cincinnati's Ewell Blackwell, 107 to 105.

Get Only Six Hits

The Cards made only six hits against Kenny Raffensberger, but put together four in the sixth to score three runs. The other was tallied in the fourth on Terry Moore's home run.

Rip Sewell hurled his fifth victory of the season over the Chicago Cubs as the fourth place Pittsburgh Pirates prevailed, 2-1. It was Sewell's eighth of the year.

The 40-year-old righthander was touched for eight hits, but was tough in the clutch, standing 11 runners.

The Pirates talled in the first when Andy Pafko dropped catcher Bob Scheffing's throw on a steal and pushed over the winning run in the sixth when Dixie Walker singled, reached second on Emil Verban's error, and scored on Danny Murtaugh's single. The victory shoved the Pirates only four and one-half games behind the idle Braves.

A's Climb Again

The Philadelphia Athletics regained second place in the American league race, turning back the Boston Red Sox, 10-3, in Boston. Connie Mack's fighting A's, knocked out of the runner-up spot by the Red Sox yesterday, pounded five Boston pitchers for 14 hits. They now trail the pace-setting Cleveland Indians by two and a half games.

Tied 2-2 going into the seventh, the A's drove Joe Dobson to the showers with a four-run rally to give Dick Fowler his 12th victory against four defeats. Fowler retired in favor of Lou Brissie in the eighth, complainmg of fatigue.

Allie Reynolds held the Washington Senators to five hits in pitching the fourth place New York Yankees to an easy 8-1 victory. Reynolds helped his own cause with a two-run single during a six-run fourth inning against Early Wynn.

A scheduled game between the Braves and Giants at New York was postponed by rain. All remaining teams were idle.

BODY CONTACT DRILLS STAGED

Grid Training Tempo Stepped Up By South Plains Coaches

South Plains grid mentors stepped up the "body contact" phases of their drill sessions Thursday, as reports from additional football camps indicated that this area will be represented by a stronger group of class A teams than had been predicted in pre-season forecasts.

Coach Durwood Green and Assistant John Edwards are sending their Sundown grid hopefuls through a tough training grind at their camp near Belton, in Central Texas. The 25-player squad, which includes seven lettermen, is making rapid progress and is expected to be in top shape for the opener with Denver City Sept. 3 at Sundown.

Sundown Returns Aug. 25

The Sundown group, which made the journey to the camp site Sunday, will return to the home gridiron about Aug. 25.

Another District 4-A power, Sudan, is reportedly finding training sessions not so difficult under the cool temperatures prevailing at its grid camp at Cowles, N. M. The squad of 30 players, under the direction of Head Mentor Francis Smith, has been holding workouts since Monday and is making rapid progress under the favorable conditions. The Hornets will return home this weekend.

Muleshoe, ranked as a top threat in the strong 4-A loop this season, is conducting one drill session each afternoon on the Muleshoe gridiron. Coach James A. Beam is working with 25 to 35 boys every day, with four lettermen topping the roster. Muleshoe opens the 1948 slate Sept. 10 against Springlake.

WESTERNER GRIDDERS IN LENGTHY SESSIONS HERE

Lubbock's Westerner grid hopefuls found the going a little tougher Thursday, as Head Mentor C. R. (Pat) Pattison sent the youngsters through two lengthy sessions at the Chapman field gridiron.

Despite a hot sun and torrid temperatures, the latest edition of the Black and Gold ran through a drill on play assignments and wind sprints yesterday morning, then came back Thursday afternoon for a session on blocking and pass offense and defense.

Coach Pattison announced that a tackle candidate, Gene Roberts, had been lost to the squad as a result of the discovery of an old injury, and reported that Wayne Stroud, a backfield prospect, would be out of action for a few days because of a minor foot injury.

Two regular practice periods are scheduled today, with conditioning and passing drills continuing to feature the practice slate.

Tri-State Tennis Tourney Planned

AMARILLO, Aug. 20. (Special)—One of the feature net events of the Southwest, the eighth annual Tri-State Open tennis tournament, will be conducted here Sept. 2-6, officials have announced.

The meet, which is so-sponsored by the Amarillo Tennis club and the Amarillo News-Globe, is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis association to determine the champions of Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Play will start Thursday, Sept. 2, but out of town entries will be allowed to play their first round matches on Saturday, Sept. 4, if desired. Deadline for all entries will be Tuesday, Aug. 31.

The tourney, which will be staged on six concrete courts in Ellwood park and six new courts in Memorial park, will include all the standard divisions of competition. Trophies will be awarded to all winners.

The tournament opens today with two games and continues Saturday with at least two more. Finals in the Region 6 tournament will be run off Sunday.

Missions Cling To Fourth In Texas

(By The Associated Press)

For the first time in five days the battle for fourth place in the Texas league is status quo. There was no change last night as San Antonio, holder of this spot, and Shreveport, a half-game behind, won their tests.

This is the only contested place—that is, for a place that counts in the play-offs—as the race rolls through its final weeks.

Leading Fort Worth strapped cellar-dwelling Beaumont 14-1 and Houston pulled within three games of runner-up Tulsa by trimming the Oklahoma outfit 3-2.

San Antonio clung to its position with a 2-1 triumph over Oklahoma City.

Shreveport held the pace by downing the Dallas Rebels 4-0.

Application Is Made To Drill Wildcat Well In King County

Humble Oil & Refining Company, through its North Texas division office at Wichita Falls, has filed an application with the Texas Railroad Commission, requesting a permit to start drilling by August 31, on a 7,000-foot wildcat in the Bateman Ranch area of East-Central King county.

The exploration will be Humble No. 43 Bateman Trust estate. It is located 7.3 miles northeast of the town of Guthrie, and 4,052 feet from north and 1,065 feet from east lines of section 114, block A, John B. Rector survey.

This prospector is adjacent to producers from the regular Bateman Ranch pay in the upper Pennsylvanian lime, at around 3,700 feet.

It is presumed that operator hopes to find the Ellenburger in going to 7,000 feet in the No. 43 Batesman Trust estate.

Drillstem Test Is Made

Cities Service No. 1 Burney, Southwest Scurry county deep wildcat, 15 miles southwest of Snyder, and 1,980 feet from north and 2,130 feet from west lines of section 143, block 97, H & T C survey, took a one hour drillstem test in a Pennsylvanian lime at 7,414-30 feet.

There was a fair blow of air throughout the period. Recovery was 130 feet of muddy, salty, sulphur water, and 500 feet of salty, sulphur water. No signs of oil or gas were reported.

The exploration is making more hole below 7,455 feet in lime.

It had shown some small quantities of free oil in a previous drillstem test at 7,394-7,415 feet.

Magnolia Petroleum Company No. 1 Winston, four miles south of Snyder, in South-Central Scurry county, and 330 feet from north and west lines of tract 72, Kirkland and Fields survey No. 37, took a two and one half hour drillstem test in the Pennsylvanian at 7,183-7,200 feet.

Gas Shows At Surface

Gas, of an unreported amount, showed at the surface in 21 minutes. Recovery was 310 feet of oil, 95 feet of oil cut with drilling mud, and five feet of salt water.

The development is drilling ahead belowe 7,236 feet. This prospector has shown for a possible small commercial producer from a Pennsylvanian lime above 6,918 feet. It is scheduled to drill on down to the Ellenburger, unless it gets better indications of possible production than has so far been encountered.

Phone Charges Are Increased

DALLAS, Aug. 20. (U.P.)—Southwestern Bell Telephone company today announced the first increase in intrastate long distance toll charges in Texas since 1919, effective Sept. 1, along with the abolition of all report charges.

The increases, which apply principally to calls for shorter distances and to person-to-person calls, will give Southwestern Bell about a 7½ per cent hike in gross revenue in Texas, General Manager W. L. Prehn said today.

Prehn said that increased operating costs forced the company to invoke the increase. He pointed out that since the last increase 28 years ago, toll charges have been reduced 11 times by the company.

New Changes Listed

In addition to elimination of all report charges, the new scales will:

Revise schedule for basic station-to-station day rates resulting in a 5-cent increase for about half the calls under 146 miles. Basic rates for longer distances are unaffected.

Establish a uniform differential of 40 per cent between basic station-to-station day rates and person-to-person day rates with a minimum differential of 15 cents on calls under 45 miles and 10 cents on calls under 31 miles.

Establish a uniform discount of 20 per cent from basic station-to-station rates for night and Sunday on calls costing more than 40 cents with the same money discount applying on person-to-person night and Sunday calls between the same points.

Draft Calls

inducted. The Army expects to make its first call for about 15,000 men next week and have them in uniform sometime in November.

Under the regulations issued today, each registrant between the 19 through 25 will be considered as available for military service until his status in a deferred or exempt classification "is clearly established to the satisfaction of the local board."

Dependents Explained

The regulations providing for deferment of registrants with dependents takes in any man with a wife or child or whose induction would result in hardship or privation to a person depending on him for support."

A "dependent" would include the registrant's wife, divorced wife, child, parent, grandparent, brother, or sister, or a person under 18 or one physically or mentally handicapped "whose support the registrant has assumed in good faith."

Airline Fares

that while there is no formal of the CAB told a news conference agreement on the increase, the board relieves all airlines have accepted it. Asked what would happen if anyone did not go along, O'Connell said he hadn't even given any thought to that idea.

Airline fares reached their lowest point in 1946. They averaged 4.6 cents a mile then. In 1935 the average was 5.75 cents.

As for ending free meals—estimated by the CAB to cost the airlines $11,000,000 a year—O'Connell said:

"If the board had had to come to a conclusion today, it would have voted—at least by a majority—to end free meals."

In view of the discussion, however, he said the board will study the question further. It also will hear more from the airlines about questions relating to scheduling, joint use of airport facilities, improved connecting arrangements and an industry-wide educational and sales effort.

The industry lost $22,000,000 last year and is doing little if any better this year. The losses have piled up in the face of record volumes of passenger, express and freight traffic.

Don, Ross Mitchell Qualify Under Par

PLAINVIEW, Aug. 20. (AP)—Bill Houck, 17-year-old son of Borger's professional Joe Houck, won medal honors with a sharp 67 in the Plainview fourth annual invitation golf tournament yesterday.

Houck joined 31 other low-scoring West Texas amateurs in match play over the 72-par route today. Nine qualifiers bettered par in the scramble for places among 104 golfers.

A father and son combination from Lubbock were among the par breakers. Don Mitchell's 70 was one stroke better than his son, Ross' 71.

John Bell of Plainview beat par by two strokes and Red Brown of Floydada beat it by one stroke.

Others were John Evans of Amarillo, 69; Bill Cole of Quanah, 70; Jack Williams of Plainview, 70; and Gene Milton of Amarillo, 71.

swering her description in recent weeks had entered numerous houses here. If occupants were found inside the intruder would ask to use the phone, or would inquire where the bathroom was. If no one was there, officials said they believed she took possessions.

The suspect had been sought over a wide section of this area in recent days.

Dep. Sheriff Earl Horton and Police Patrolman Jerry Hoover left for El Reno, Okla., where officials said they were holding J. C. Wells. Wells, it was announced here, is under 72nd court indictment charging desertion of minor children.

Officials said Scales was arrested at Clarksville, Jones at Palestine and Williams at Sweetwater.

Women Are Fined

Police said 16 women were fined $25 on pleas of guilty of guilty of vagrancy by prostitution. Two other women, both negroes were fined for simple assault, after one reputedly beat the other with a chairleg.

Fender skirts valued at $25 were stolen from the car of Maxey Bagwell of Texas Tech.

County Judge Walter Davies said bonds were set for two defendants who pleaded innocent of charges—Willie Jean Green, about 35, a negro woman charged with aggravated assault upon an 8-months-old infant, and Billy Gene Johnson, charged with driving while his operator's license was suspended.

The mother of the infant, Virginia Askew, swore to the complaint naming the Green woman.

Damages Action In Land Sale Is Filed

A suit asking actual damages of $5,708.17 and exemplary damages of $20,000 was filed in 99th district court late Thursday against Dr. Olan Key, a Lubbock physician, and Herbert Crawford of Deaf Smith county, as outgrowth of an alleged sale of 2,100 acres of Hale county land Dr. Key owned.

The plaintiffs, J. W. Jackson and E. E. Rogers, partners in a real estate business here, and Floyd Shipman, a Hale county real estate man, said in their petition filed by the law firm of Dillard, Cooke and Dillard, that $5,708.17 is commission due them as outgrowth of the sale of the property. Crawford, tenant of the property, entered negotiations for the sale just before the property was sold, the petition said.

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—Cotton futures were irregular in slow dealings today. Scattered selling developed on reports of further easing in prices for cotton textiles due to a slow demand for goods. Hedge selling was light, as producers awaited better prices in the futures market for hedging purposes.

Advices also said the warehousemen and ginners predict a large part of the southeastern ginnings will go into the government loan at current prices. Storage space for loaned cotton was reported ample.

Funeral arrangements were pending.

Boss Is Tried For Kissing Secretary

DETROIT, Aug. 20 (U.P.) — Tony Texakes said today he would appeal a conviction for assault and battery for kissing his secretary.

The secretary, blonde June Parris, 17-year-old high school student, said he kissed her against her will.

Defense Attorney Joe Lutomski argued that "a friendly kiss from the boss is an every day occurrence in the business world."

Judge O. Z. Ide ruled otherwise. Sentence was deferred pending an appeal.

Boys Held In Reno Tragedy

RENO, Nev., Aug. 20 (AP)—Two "awful sorry" negro boys were held by juvenile authorities today for starting a downtown fire Sunday which killed five persons and injured 137.

Police Chief L. R. Greeson said the nine-year-old boys told him they started a paper fire in the basement of a vacant building then tried vainly to put it out as it spread to stored junk.

"I won't play with matches no more," one told him. Both were placed under juvenile court jurisdiction but are being housed temporarily in the county jail.

Fire Chief Earl Evans announced last night an investigation showed "an accumulation of gas, generated by burning materials" caused an explosion which killed the five victims. Spectators had crowded near the burning buildings when the blast flashed out, hurling debris among them.

The investigation was made by representatives of the National Fire Underwriters board, the Fire Prevention Bureau, the district attorney's office and the police department.

"Iron Curtain"

almost every human action. This was exemplified at the temporary school to which we cadets were sent when Moscow was in danger. It was situated in a forest almost totally isolated from the rest of Russia. The women cleaners were brought from a village which was a thousand kilometers from Moscow and far removed even from a railway station. Practically the entire population was illiterate, dull and apparently half-starved. Yet one day our chief, Colonel Ershov, called us to a meeting and solemnly warned us to exercise extreme caution with these cleaners because he had been warned that some of them might be "spies" and "diversionists."

From that moment we looked at the poor, plodding old women with ill-concealed suspicion. We even locked our classroom doors while studying. The thought of those precautions now makes me smile. But I believed it then.

A group of us made one trip—and one only—to the village. What we saw left us abjectly depressed.

We arrived at the lunch hour and found peasants of the local Kolkhoz at the mess hall waiting in queue for a piece of bread about the size of a fist. Once the bread queue had been passed, the peasants moved on to another queue where they were handed a dirty wooden bowl into which muddy-looking liquid was ladled. This combination of "soup" and bread represented a meal that would cause a riot in an average penitentiary.

Felt Burning Anger

Within me, once again, I felt burning anger that these poor human beings should be forced to live so close to the animal fringe. But, as quickly as the anger rose, it was suppressed by the training that compels one to abstain from critical observations on anything associated with the Soviet system. I didn't dream there was any country in the world where free speech on such matters could be attempted without fear of concentration camp—or death.

Communist training ingeniously educated us when seeing such evidences of maladministration to think how much worse off these peasants would be under the capitalistic system. Later I often remembered those shuffling lines of peasants in ragged coats, nondescript caps, their faces dirty and haggard. They returned to memory whenever, here in Canada, I read propaganda pamphlets featuring the glowing benefits offered the "under-privileged" by Communism.

Yet, even as these Russian people starved and fought like dogs for crusts, there were outrageous contrasts. My wife's brother, Gousev, worked at one time as supply agent for the mess at a large aircraft factory in Moscow. It happened on one occasion that the distributing point from which he usually obtained the food products had run out of its stock. As the factory was of prime importance, some high personage permitted an issue of food to be made from a Government provision supply base.

Close Guard Kept

Gousev was instructed to accompany a truck driver to an address on Highway No. 10. They drove as directed and found themselves at a shack. Gousev rapped on the door, which was opened by an armed soldier. After a careful check of documents, the soldier pointed to a narrow road off the highway into the forest.

"Drive along that road until you're stopped," he said.

They turned into the forest and, after a quarter of a mile, were halted by armed guards before a gate leading through a barbed-wire entanglement. Their credentials were again checked before a guard opened the gate and told them where to report.

The provision supply base was subterranean and astonishingly extensive. Their eyes almost popped with what they saw stored along the sides. There were stacks of smoked fish, thousands of smoked hams, mountains of sugar sacks and flour sacks, canned goods of almost every type—tons of edibles.

Amasement Amusing

The amazement on Gousev's face apparently amused the warehouse manager.

"What's the matter with you? he laughed loudly. "Not hungry today?"

"Do you mean . . ." Gousev stuttered, "we can eat some of this?"

"Eat all you want."

Gousev and the driver went a little berserk. They ate their fill for the first time in years. As they began loading the truck, Gousev became sick. His stomach was not used to such generous feeding.

Meanwhile, the "common" people in that particular district were getting one small piece of bread a day.

A child's life meant little. The small tots were dying like flies from undernourishment.

Lavish feasts were the bureaucrat's privilege, while starvation ranged outside the very windows! Never before has Russian soil supported such a class of parasites—a debauched and unprincipled layer of hypocrites living at the expense of the Russian people. During the war all kinds of groceries were sent to Russia from the United States, but the ordinary Russian people saw very few of these. Mainly they were allocated to the innumerable stratas of bureaucrats.

Therein Lies Iron Hold

Therein lies the iron hold of the Soviet system.

The vast horde of bureaucrats are vigorously loyal because of what it means in food, drink, homes and parties. The vast army is loyal for the same reason it stayed loyal during Russia's grimmest war years—you eat well in the army.

There are vast hordes of other privileged classes such as the Komsomols. And, at the top, there are, I calculate, some 5,000,000 official members of the Communist Party.

Most Americans and Canadians seem to think all Russians are Communists. Such is not the case. Membership in the Party is much sought after because of the privileges and better chances it offers for top jobs. And it isn't so easy to become a member. There are three stages. First comes that of sympathizer, then candidate and finally member. Observation is exceedingly intensive and promotion from one stage to the next happens only after careful consideration. However, you may readily appreciate that the 5,000,000 members represent a staunch supporting element for the Soviet system, a loyalty held by special privileges, special rations and fear of death and suffering if higher-up displeasure is incurred.

All So Very Simple

A conspiracy against the Soviet is utterly impossible as long as the NKVD is operating. It is all so very simple. Everybody knows that giving valuable information to the NKVD means privileges. If any two people got together to hatch the overthrow of the Soviet system, it is most likely that one of them would come around to the thought of reporting the other to the NKVD.

So it goes all the way to the top, where any man who puts his hands in his pockets in the presence of Stalin is liable to be shot instantly. The same goes for standing behind Stalin.

There were Germans, they say, who used to pray for defeat in the hope of having kind and just liberators take over Germany. I feel that many in Soviet Russia pray along the same line. I have long since reached the conclusion that such is Russia's only hope, unless more men like me make a decisive move toward breaking down the iron curtain behind which the Soviet "shelters" its millions from exposure to democracy.

While concentrating its fire on Lomakin, the United States declared its reports on the refugee teacher cases in this country "indicate that officials of the Soviet government have been engaged in conduct which is highly improper."

The note "categorically" rejected all charges made by the Soviets against American authorities.

peak that in a secret order dated June 7, 1948, the Army alerted all of its public information officers to watch for them. More than 80 chambers of commerce in all sections have received such requests.

The officers were instructed to confer secretly with chambers of commerce and industrialists and to notify Army intelligence of any suspect inquiries.

Most of the letters received in the three midwestern cities came from individuals or institutions in Soviet Germany, a large percentage of them from the Leipzig area.

Information Given

H. M. Van Auken, general manager of the Wichita Chamber of Commerce, said that in reply to two requests from Germany he sent booklets giving the city's altitude, geographical location, frost-free periods, and average temperature, precipitation, and wind velocity.

Wichita, a wheatland city of 200,000, is the site of Boeing Aircraft's No. 2 plant where most of World War II's B-29 bombers were made.

The booklets sent to Germany by the chamber of commerce detail Wichita's transportation facilities, describe its oil and gas fields, list airlines and airports, and enumerate factories operating there.

San Antonio received information requests from Austria and Switzerland. An "Austro-American society" in Vienna wanted a copy of the San Antonio red book—a directory of business firms. A Swiss "journalist" sought photographs of "interesting scenes of the San Antonio area." He was writing some articles, he said.

The Texas city is the site of Fort Sam Houston, Fourth Army headquarters. Nearby are Randolph field, Kelly field, and Brooks field, key Air Force centers.

A Leipzig manufacturer of electrical instruments asked the Rockford chamber for a "map showing the highway roads and railway lines of your state and a report of your chamber of commerce."

In a radius of 50 miles from Rockford are five ordnance plants. They are the Elwood plant 15 miles south of Joliet, the Kankakee works 10 miles west of Joliet, the Green River plant at Dixon, the Illinois plant at Carbondale, and the Oak works at Illiopolis.

There was no brush between British and Russian forces. The lieutenant colonel commanding the Britons talked amiably with the troop commander after the first raid.

The tension was greatest last evening.

Police opened fire last night when the crowd stoned them as they overstepped into the British and American parts of the square.

Germans in the crowd yelled "Communist pigs" at the police. It was a question, however, whether the shouters were sincere anti-Communists or just piqued black marketeers.

Five hours after the smoke had cleared and the Soviet-sector police had retreated the black market trade was going on as usual.

"Operation Little Vittles" To Have Backing Of Air Force Men

WESTOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Mass., Aug. 20 (AP)—The pilot of Berlin's lollipop bomber isn't going to be caught without handkerchiefs if the 521st air transport group at Mobile, Ala., can help it.

The men at Brookley Air Force base began rounding up handkerchiefs and candy yesterday to send to Pilot Gale S. Halverson in Germany.

Halverson, whose home is in Garland, Utah, touched the hearts of the Brooklyn men when he reported he was running out of handkerchiefs which he used as miniature parachutes to drop lollipops to the Berlin children.

The children mass at Templehof airdrome to watch for the tiny parachutes when Halverson's plane arrives.

He is one of the fliers assigned to "operations vittles," designed to break the Russian food blockade of the German capital.

Halverson has designated his lollipop bombings as "operations little vittles."

Harold E. Shublick, a Brookley captain, said the handkerchiefs, stamped "operations little vittles," will be flown to Lt. Halverson along with the candy.

One question raised quickly was this: Will the order drive the low-income consumer out of the market for things he needs?

A spokesman for the New York consumers council charged that it will "help the needy at the expense of the greedy." One automobile dealer said it will "unquestionably keep some people from buying."

Consumers who were polled at random here showed no resentment. One woman, typical of many, thought that "if a person can't pay for a car in 18 months he shouldn't buy it."

ernments of Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia."

The report added:

"So long as events along the northern borders of Greece show that support is being given to the Greek guerrillas from Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia, the special committee is convinced that a threat to the political independence and territorial integrity of Greece will exist, and international peace and security in the Balkans will be endangered."

Union Set For Dutch States

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands, Aug. 20. (AP)—A projected union of the Netherlands and its colonies on an equal footing moved a step nearer reality today.

A constitutional amendment authorizing the union was ratified, 76 to 22, by the second chamber of the Dutch parliament last night. It still must be approved by the first chamber or senate.

The amendment would revamp the constitutional structure of the Netherlands, creating a Netherlands-Indonesian union headed by the queen. The union would have two main parts—the United Kingdom, including Holland, Surinam (Dutch Guiana) and the Netherlands Antilles on the one hand, and a United States of Indonesia on the other.

Target Date Set

Premier William Dress asked approval of the amendment so the government might "proceed with a solution of the Indonesian problem through establishment in Indonesia, firstly, of an interim federal government, and thereafter, of a United States of Indonesia and the formation of a Netherlands-Indonesian union."

The interim government would function until the establishment of a United States of Indonesia. Dutch authorities have set Jan. 1, 1949 as the target date for inauguration of the United States of Indonesia.

The first step in organizing the new U. S. I. was taken in March, 1947 at Cheribon, Java, when an agreement recognized the Indonesian republic in Java, Sumatra and some smaller islands. Warfare later erupted between Netherlands colonial forces and republican forces over the method of carrying out the Cheribon agreement.

Other states in the U. S. I. will include Borneo and East Indonesia, which embraces all of the Netherlands East Indies east of Java and Borneo except New Guinea.

Former Russian Citizen Says He Saved Teacher From Agents

NEW YORK, Aug. 20 (AP) — Victor A. Kravchenko, author of the anti-Communist book, "I Chose Freedom," says he saved Russian school teacher Mikhail Samarine from sailing into the hands of Soviet authorities.

Kravchenko, who has repudiated his Soviet citizenship, told his story yesterday in a 3,000-word statement. He repeated it later in an ABC radio interview.

He said he was the intermediary who spirited Samarin away from a New Jersey farm last Aug. 8 at a time when Soviet "agents were overrunning New York and New Jersey on the trail" of the teacher and his family.

Fate Understood

Kravchenko said he then arranged to have Samarin brought under the protection of the House un-American activities committee.

The rescue took place, Kravchenko said, the morning after Russian consular officials fetched Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina, another Russian teacher, from an anti-Communist farm retreat in New York state. She leaped from the consulate.

"I well understood," Kravchenko said, "that if Samarine should fall into the hands of Lomakin (Soviet Consul General Yakov Lomakin) they (the Russians) would duplicate the story of Kosenkina."

He said that if Samarine, who also has repudiated his Soviet citizenship, and his wife were returned to Russia, they would be "disposed of and their children—born in America—would be consigned to the children's prison."

Committee Informed

Kravchenko said his search for New York and two other farms in Ne wYork and two other farms in New Jersey before he finally located his hiding place. He said he then took Samarine to New York City where he was "received by FBI officials."

Later, the Russian writer said, he informed the House committee that Samarine desired to appear before it, and Samarine subsequently received a subpoena, bringing him under the committee's protection.

Kravchenko, who resigned as an employe of the Soviet purchasing commission in Washington in February, 1944, said he expects to be dubbed a "White bandit, agent of the FBI and traitor to the Russian people" by Soviet officials.

"But I don't care," he said. "Fact is fact."

He said "we will be very stupid if we don't exploit to the fullest the story of Kosenkina and Samarine for the political education of the world."

He described Samarine as a man who "hates politics and publicity," and who "dreams of the day he will face his first class" in some American college.

Tokyo's B type encephalitis plague turned up its 1,537th case today.

TOO MUCH POP

MIAMI, Okla. (U.P.)—Police were not surprised when the 11-year-old boy complained of a stomach ache. Police Chief Witt Ellis had asked him what he did with 36 bottles of pop taken from a wholesaler's truck. "I drank most of it," the youngster confessed.

Korean Trade Is Increasing

SEOUL, Aug. 20. (AP)—Political barriers between Soviet occupied North Korea and American occupied South Korea are being hurdled by traders.

A brisk trade between the two areas has been going on since last November. Even the ballots in the South Korean election in May were made from woodpulp obtained from North Korea.

The trade at first operated with informal approval. The South Korea military government legalized it on Aug. 2.

On Chung Soo, director of commerce under the military government, said that 134 export permits have been issued under the new order. Applicants are permitted to move specified goods north if equally specified goods from the Soviet zone are moved south.

Major Items Listed

The peoples committee which governs North Korea under the Soviet appears to have a similar arrangement to get needed goods across the poplitical barriers of the 38th parallel.

Oh said he had seen traders with their goods stacked on each side of the line. Police of both zones watched while the traders exchanged samples.

The principal items sent to North Korea are light bulbs, rubber, cotton and woolen goods, and shoes. The south gets such badly needed items as fertilizer, cement, caustic soda and other chemicals and wood pulp.

Oh said he beleived the total quantity was substantial but not enough to be a major economic factor.

Brothel Is Closed By Judge In Nevada

RENO, Nev., Aug. 20. (AP) — Legalized prostitution isn't here to stay—not yet, Dist. Judge A. J. Maestretti decided last night. He ordered Mae Cunningham to close her house—even before she's finished paying for it—until courts can determine whether it is a public nuisance.

Earlier, Judge Maestretti dismissed a petition filed by Mae herself, asking an order to restrain county action against her. She maintained her $20,000 house was entirely legal, citing a recent district court decision ending a wartime ban on such establishments.

No date has been set for hearing of the district attorney's complaint that Mae is operating a public nuisance which should be closed.

Attorney Emerson Wilson, Mae's attorney, said there would be further legal action on her behalf, too.

Man In San Antonio Charged With Fraud

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 20. (AP)—Federal officers today held a warrant for the arrest of a 51-year-old San Antonio man charged with using the mails to defraud a number of banks and stores.

U. S. Commissioner A. V. Knight issued the warrant yesterday after postal inspectors filed a complaint.

Postal Inspector J. H. Osborn said the man swindled at least eight Texas banks and several San Antonio stores of about $3,000.

He said the banks are in Brownsville, McAllen, Harlingen, Beaumont, Odessa, Amarillo, Fort Stockton, and Midland.

The first watch was invented about 1500 by Peter Henle, who lived in Nurnberg, Germany.

Both Jews And Arabs Warned To Avoid Violations Of Truce

By LARRY HAUCK
Associated Press Staff Writer

LAKE SUCCESS, Aug. 20.—The United Nations warned both Arabs and Jews today to avoid further violations of the month-old Palestine truce.

Responding to fears expressed by the Palestine mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, that the situation in Jerusalem was "gradually getting out of hand," the Security council voted the warning last night.

It was almost the last item of business before the council adjourned for what it hopes will be a month-long recess prior to reconvening in Paris.

Resolution Advanced

The warning was given in a resolution advanced jointly by the United States, Britain, France and Canada. No delegate voted against the proposal but Russia, the Soviet Ukraine, Syria and Colombia abstained on some sections in a point-by-point vote.

The council told the Jews and Arabs they are responsible and told them to see that their own offenders are punished and to refrain from undertaking reprisals or retaliations.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jacob A. Malik, council president for August, said no more meetings would be held in the United States between now and Sept. 1 unless there is an emergency. From Sept. 1 to Sept. 21 only emergency sessions will be held in Paris, where the 58-nation General assembly is holding its regular annual session. The council will return to Lake Success after adjournment of the assembly, expected in December.

The council remained in session 12 hours yesterday, closing with a private session in which delegates completed an annual report to the assembly.

Trieste Case Voted On

Besides Palestine, the council voted on the Trieste case, in which Yugoslavia had charged the United States and Britain with violating the Italian peace treaty.

A Yugoslav demand that the council condemn the two western powers and hold them guilty was defeated when only Russia and the Soviet Ukraine supported it. As a non-member of the council, Yugoslavia had no vote.

The United States and Britain denied the charges and in turn accused Premier Marshal Tito of using them as a smokescreen to cover up moves to annex Trieste to Yugoslavia. The other nine council members abstained on the vote.

In another ballot in this case, delegates rejected a Ukrainian proposal declaring that the council considered it urgent to name a governor for Trieste. Witn seven votes needed for passage, only Russia, China and Syria backed up the Ukraine.

Vets' Complaints On Housing Taken

DALLAS, Aug. 20. (AP)—Veterans' complaints about 1,316 housing units in the southwest are on file here with the regional compliance directors of the office of the housing expediter.

Compliance director Perry N. Moore said most of the complaints are from Dallas, St. Louis, Houston, Denver, Fort Smith, Ark., and New Orleans—the six cities where the building program is the largest.

Moore said his office is taking compliants on grounds of side payments or overceiling sales, deviation from specifications, and faulty construction.

Washington Set To Harvest Bumper Crop

Fine Tourist Yield Forecast For Capitol City This Year

By ARTHUR EDSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Let Maine rave about its potatoes. Let Iowa brag about its corn. Let Kansas holler about its wheat.

Here in Washington we're harvesting a bumper crop, too.

I'm happy to report that, judging from the early sampling, we'll have a very fine tourist yield this year.

This is a strange town. It's biggest industry, of course, is government. It's next biggest is the tourist business.

The Washington board of trade estimates that 3,500,000 people come here each year to gawk at the sights. While gawking, they part with around $60,000,000.

The board of trade figures end here. But the Edson statistical service, whose unreliability has never been questioned, chips in with a few other morsels.

It estimates that most of these 3,500,000 visitors will have their pictures taken while standing in front of the U. S. capitol.

Capitol Shown Dimly

All too many of these, judging from the specimens I've observed at work, will show the capitol dimly, but give a wonderful view of Aunt Bessie's store teeth, which almost fit.

It takes 45 buses, and hundreds of taxis taxiing part-time, to tote these tournists to the places they want to see.

Bob Atwood, who manages a bus line, says these are the goals of the average visitor, in the approximate order of their popularity:

Inside the city
1. The White House.
2. The capitol.
3. The Smithsonian institution.
4. The bureau of engraving.

Outside the city
1. Mount Vernon.
2. Arlington.
3. Alexandria (all in Virginia).

The high up Washington monument also rates high up with the visitors, but it isn't on Atwood's list. That's because it takes so long to stand in line, waiting for an elevator, that most of his buses don't stop.

New Attraction Added

In addition to such things as the Apothecary shop where Mrs. G. Washington used to order castor oil, by the quart, historical Alexandria has a new attraction. Tourists seem impressed when the spieler spouts:

"And here is the home of John L. Lewis!"

Although most of the people want to see the White House most of all, they all can't make it. The place is open only two hours a day, five days a week. But 5,046 managed to squeeze in during the two hours of Aug. 10. The average is close to 4,000 a day.

Any tourists have strange ideas about our nation's capital?

"Yes," said Atwood, whose company has been hauling them for 36 years. "Many of them, for example, think the President either lives or works at the capital."

Actually he's rarely there except to address joint sessions of Congress, although President Truman goes up to Capitol hill occasionally to lunch with old senate cronies.

Atwood says the misconception he likes to remember came several years ago when an old railroader chuffed into town.

He took one look at that large, marbledomed building and cried:

"Great scott, what a marvelous roundhouse!"

He seemed plumb put out when the bus driver told him that was no roundhouse—only the U. S. capitol.

Swimming Lessons Come Before Home

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 20 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemp, who have a place to build a home, want to learn to swim.

Yesterday they asked the city building inspector's office for a permit to construct a swimming pool.

After they learn to swim, Mrs. Kemp said, they plan to build a house over the pool and make it the basement of their home.

"Wheatheart" To Be Named At Perryton

PERRYTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—The nation's "wheatheart" will be selected here tomorrow.

If you think that's corny, don't let it chaff you. Shucks, it's wheat and the 29th anniversary of this North Plains wheat center that are being honored.

Twenty-nine candidates from Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma and Kansas towns will try to reap the glory of the title. It may be quite a shock to the ones who lose.

The two-day celebration gets underway today.

The girls will appear before the judges at the climax of a parade tomorrow morning.

A free barbecue will be served at noon tomorrow. Ochiltree county farmers and stockmen have contributed enough beef and money to serve 15,000 people.

That ain't hay.

Gold Mine On West Coast Will Reopen

SAN FAANCISCO, Aug. 20 (AP)—The historic Central Eureka mine, located near Sutter Creek in California's famed Mother Lode country, is preparing to resume production of gold next month.

This old property, discovered in 1852 and one of the few mines in the Mother Lode still rated as a gold producer, was shut down in October, 1942, because of the war. Rehabilitation work was started in 1946 and will be completed this month at a cost to stockholders of about $1,000,000 in assessments.

C. C. Prior, president of the company, notified stockholders this week that milling of ore would be resumed some time in September, when 2,000 tons of ore will be in the mill bins.

Large Crop Of Hunters, Birds Predicted For Coming Season

By LLOYD LARRABEE
United Press Staff Writer

A bumper crop of hunters and birds is expected in the field when shooting starts on mourning dove Sept. 1, game officials said today.

The northern zone's open season on dove will last until Oct. 15, and prospects are for "plenty of doves," the Game, Fish and Oyster commission says.

A large field of hunters also was indicated for the official opening of the regular hunting season.

Howard Dodgen, executive secretary of the game commission, said the number of hunters was expected to be about seven per cent above last year.

Number Increased Since War

The total has been on the upgrade since the end of the war, and last year there were 95 per cent more hunters than five years previously.

The game commission now is distributing hunting licenses which will go into effect Sept. 1. Last year 234,000 such licenses were sold, netting the commission $433,791. Present licenses expire Aug. 31.

But total licenses, including artificial lure fishing licenses, trapping and commercial licenses, pushed over the million mark.

The one factor which may hold back some nimrods is the high cost of hunting, reflected in the prices of equipment and shells.

Actually the "fall" hunting-season was teed off to an early start by Texas' second summer deer hunt in history in five East Texas counties—Sabine, San Augustine, Tyler, Jasper and Newton.

No Reports Made Yet

The deer hunt started Aug. 16 and continues to Sept. 14. However, no reports on the first week's shooting had been received by the game commission. All the wardens, a spokesman said, are "out in the brush."

The same bag and possession limits on mourning dove and white wing dove as were in effect last year will be followed for the 1948 seasons.

A 10 a day bag limit and 10 in possession are permitted in the mourning and white wing seasons.

After polishing off a few days' hunting of mourning dove in the northern zone, hunters will trek to the Rio Grande valley for white wing season on Sept. 17, 19, and 21 from 4 p. m. to sunset.

Zone Boundary Given

The northern zone for purposes of hunting mouring dove runs north of a line extending roughly northeast from Maverick to Sabine county.

At least one sportsmen's club in Denton county—is out to see that hunters don't hunt dove out of season.

The group has posted large signs over the county offering a $25 reward for anyone who turns over information to game warden T. D. Bobbitt on hunters killing dove out of season.

The Denton County Pointer and Setter club says the offer holds true for any out of season period during the year.

Checker Playoff Won By Jimmy Robertson

Jimmy Robertson of Burns park defeated his fellow player from Burns, Neil Sikes, to win the city-wide playoff in checkers held Thursday afternoon at the park. The event, sponsored by the City Recreation department, also was attended by participants from Carlisle and Pioneer parks.

Sikes played Don Sharp of Pioneer in the first round, and Bobby May of Carlisle defeated Roy Day of Pioneer in the same round. Harry Stacey and Robertson advanced to second round on byes.

City-wide finals are to be played next week in horseshoes at Carlisle, and in "Wari" at Burns. Local park tournaments to determine park winners are now in progress and are open to all.

A jack rabbit can run faster than a race horse, according to the World Book Encyclopedia. The jack rabbit has been clocked at 45 m.p.h. while top race horse speed is only 42.3 m.p.h.

Premier Says Greek Forces Victorious

ATHENS, Aug. 20 (AP)—Premier Themistokles Sophoulis says the Greek army has won the Grammos mountains campaign against Communist-led guerrillas.

The rebels of Communist leader Markos Vafiades are "lying prostrate," Sophoulis said last night in an order of the day to the Greek army. He expressed gratitude to all Greek soldiers for their valiant efforts.

A general staff spokesman, however, said guerrillas resistance has stiffened. He estimated the rebels still hold about 100 square miles along the Albanian border. An American officer, Col. James F. Brittingham of Baltimore, said yesterday he thought the campaign in the north would end victoriously within 10 days.

Nancy Held For Bail As Owner Seeks Job

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20 (AP)—They're holding Nancy for $5 bail.

The fact that Nancy has won blue ribbons and can sit up and beg for food doesn't help the situation.

The neighbors complained that Nancy gracefully leaped the fences and ate their pelargoniums, aspidistra, also geraniums. They called the poundmaster.

Nancy's owner, Vivian Miller, 13, is looking for a baby-sitting job to earn the $5 ransom.

Nancy, it's hardly necessary to add, is a Toggenberg goat.

Bank Holiday On For China

SHANGHAI, Aug. 20. (AP)—The banks of China closed today to get ready for a new "gold yuan" which will replace the virtually worthless Chinese paper yuan.

Nanking announced plans for the new currency yesterday, saying it would be "backed by a 100 per cent reserve" and would be worth 4 to $1 U. S. at the official exchange rate. Other foreign currency exchange rates will be announced later.

The going black market rate for the fantastically inflated old currency is 12,000,000 to $1. Chinese were given until Nov. 20 to exchange their old yuan currency for the new at 3,000,000 to one.

There was almost universal skepticism in Shanghai, the financial heart of China, about the new "Sun" currency, as it is called.

Commodity traders showed a lack of confidence in it. Commodity prices this morning were 20 per cent higher than yesterday.

The head of one U. S. bank in Shanghai told a reporter the step was taken by the government "against sound advice" and was no solution.

Ellis Ezra, prominent local financier, declared: "The change from one piece of paper to another will not make any difference."

Financial skepticism was heightened by all the restrictions accompanying the new issue, such as outlawing of gold, silver and foreign currencies.

Financial circles said if the new currency actually was backed by a 100 per cent reserve, as the government maintains, it would not be necessary to make such restrictions.

A finance ministry spokesman in Nanking said the gold yuan would be supported by 40 per cent gold, silver and foreign currency and 60 per cent by government "guarantees."

The bank holiday will last for two days.

Mailbag Returned To Place It Was Found

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (AP)—Mrs. Ursula Linder saw a mailbag lying on the southside suburban platform as she waited for her train into the city.

She reasoned, "it shouldn't be left out there." So she took it carefully into the city and turned it into the lost and found of the railroad.

The lost and found returned it to its destination—the station where Mrs. Lindner had found it.

The normal temperature of most birds is between 104 and 108 degrees.

Russian Newspaper Contradicts U. S. Government Spokesman

MOSCOW, Aug. 20. (AP)—Pravda gave the lie today to a spokesman for the United States State department.

The paper, organ of the Communist party, said State department press officer Michael McDermott's version of the case of naval Lt. Robert Dreher last Sunday was "in complete contradiction of the facts."

Earlier that day, Pravda had declared that Dreher, an assistant U. S. naval attache, had been nabbed receiving secret information from a Soviet official and hustled out of Russia by demand of the Soviet government.

(McDermott, at a news conference in Washington, after the Dreher story was first published Sunday, said Russian authorities had framed the espionage charge against the naval lieutenant. He said the evidence had been planted by the Russians after Dreher had applied for a visa to leave the Soviet union.)

On support of its new accusation today, Pravda cited U. S. Ambassador Walter B. Smith. Pravda declared that Smith, in a talk with Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky about the Dreher case, "admitted that Dreher at the moment he was apprehended was receiving military information."

Dreher, 32, who comes from Oil City, Pa., left Moscow on May 1. His tour of duty there began in November, 1947. He had been the naval representative in Odessa for more than a year before that.

Ambassador "Quoted"

Smith, Pravda said today, told Vishinsky:

"In the future he would request the State department to send to Moscow more intelligent and careful persons able to keep their tongues behind their teeth."

Pravda brought Smith's name into the case after McDermott's citation of the ambassador's remarks to Vishinsky last April 26, concerning the Dreher case. The paper said Smith "admitted to Vishinsky that at the moment he was apprehended Dreher was receiving information of a military character."

Pravda said Sunday Dreher was arrested when he was caught exchanging written "secret military information" with a Soviet customs official. It said papers and documents were seized by police even though Dreher, "trying to tear them out of the hands of the representative of Soviet security organs, began to beat the security representative."

Graduates Warned Of Threat To U. S.

ALPINE, Aug. 20. (AP)—Eighty-five graduates of Sul Ross State Teachers college last night heard Teachers college tonight heard Chas. A. Guy, Lubbock newspaperman, warn that "enemies of Democracy have launched an ideological war against the United States by which they hope to do what force of arms has failed to do: overthrow our form of government and plunge our people into serfdom."

Guy, editor of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, told the graduates, 31 of whom received master's degrees, that they and others of their age group will be soldiers in what he called "this intellectual war, which will last for years to come, whether or not the world avoids a shooting World War III." Taking as his subject, "Peace Hath Her Victories No Less Renown'd Than War," the Lubbock editor urged his listeners to enlist in the fight as active protectors of the American way of life and the American constitution.

Guy was introduced by Dr. Richard M. Hawkins, Sul Ross president, who also conferred the degrees. Former Lt. Gov. Walter F. Woodul, of Houston, a member of the board of directors of Texas State Teachers colleges, spoke briefly. Music was furnished by the Sul Ross choir and Federal Judge R. Ewing Thomason, of El Paso, former member of Congress from the Sixteenth Texas district, was an honor guest.

Key To Solution Of Chinese Problem Said To Be Economic

By DeWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press Staff Writer

China's disastrous economic and military crisis had me humped over my desk in a brown study yesterday when my friend Dr. Chen Li-Fu dropped in to say how-de-do and have a little chat.

The good doctor being vice-president of the Chinese Legislative Yuan (national parliament) and an economic expert (among many notable achievements), I promptly challenged him to give me a solution for his country's ills. He grinned—as well he might on being asked to solve off-hand one of the world's major problems—but nodded and then proceeded to outline a plan which I found so interesting that I'm going to repeat it here in substance, without trying to use the doctor's language. It would be difficult to quote him exactly, anyway, because he talks as much with his very expressive hands as he does with his tongue. He is a striking personality.

Solution Is Economic

Dr. Chen believes the key to the solution is economic and not military. He says that China's economic system is wholly wrong, and that until this is put right there can be no lasting military success or economic recovery.

What's the matter with the system? Just this: It was devised to serve commercial interests almost solely, whereas China is chiefly agricultural. Plenty of help for the big business man, but little or none for the farmer who is the backbone of the country. The economy provides for the short-term loans required by commercial houses, but can't handle long-term loans for the farmer.

Dr. Chen would arbitrarily change the Chinese system and base it mainly on the requirements of agriculture. He admitted rather ruefully that as a matter of fact he had put forward such a program and it had been approved by the government. However, it hasn't been implemented thus far. He is returning to China in the immediate future and hopes to get some action.

Civil War Questioned

"But what about the civil war with the Chinese Communists?" I asked.

Dr. Chen remarked that he isn't a military man. However, he has some very definite views about how the military side should be handled. In the first place it is futile for the government to keep chasing Reds all over the place, expending men and materiel, under present conditions. Military success must be premised on economic reform, and without that reform the war could run on indefinitely.

The doctor pulled over a sheet of paper and drew a serpentine line on it to represent the mighty Yangtze river which winds from east to west across central China. He put some crosses on the southern bank, and they represented government armies. That was the map of his strategy.

He Would Drive Reds North

He would drive all the Reds north of the Yangtze, and then would station his government armies on the southern bank to hold the line and keep the Communists in the north. It would be a holding job for the Nationalists, that's all.

Sure, that would cut the country in halves—would create two separate states, if you want to put it that way. But the southern half which is held by the government has great resources. With economic reform the Nanking government could get on its feet. Then it would be prepared to handle the Chinese Reds to the north of the Yangtze and reunite the country.

Well, that's the story. It would be interesting to see such a program tried out, especially since everything else so far has failed.

First Garza County Bale Finally Ginned

POST, Aug. 20. (Special)—Garza county's first bale of the 1948 cotton crop was ginned here yesterday for A. Sanchez, who farms on the Emery Williams farm 12 miles north of here.

Sanchez gathered his cotton Monday, but Planter's Gin company of Post, who ginned the bale Thursday, were unable to have their plant ready for operation earlier.

The Garza county farmer's cotton was grown on dry land just below the Caprock. His bale, which weighed 420 pounds, was ginned from 1510 pounds of seed cotton, and yielded 620 pounds of seed. The cotton was of the Northern Star variety.

This year's first bale was ginned on the same date as last year's first bale, but since it was gathered on Monday, it was in effect three day's earlier than last year's.

Sanchez's bale is the earliest known to be gathered and ginned in Garza county, according to the records of the Post Dispatch and the Chamber of Commerce.

Celebrated Nurse Is Claimed In England

LONDON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Dame Rosalind Paget, 93, celebrated nurse who worked with Florence Nightingale and was honored by Queen Victoria, died at her Sussex home yesterday.

She was considered Britain's oldest nurse. In a long and distinguished career of social service she did much to improve the status of nursing and raise the standards of midwifery. Part of her work was done in some of London's worst slums.

Strange Bait, But Day's Limit Caught

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 20. (AP)—Out in San Francisco bay sailed Mrs. Woodward Melone on her first fishing trip.

Her husband jokingly told her the best bait to use was fried bacon, a slice of tomato and a geranium. She followed his advice.

Her catch—the limit for the day.

85-Year-Old Man Still Keeps Hand In Flying, And Believes Women Better Pilots Than Men

By HARMAN W. NICHOLS
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 — Ladies, I met a champion of yours today. You'd love him for his manly courage.

He had the temerity to suggest that you gals are a better hand at steering a piece of machinery than the men. Particularly, guiding those flying machines.

Your hero is James W. Montee of Los Angeles, who claims to be—and doubtless is—the oldest licensed pilot in the world. This bald old-timer with a fringe of gray fuzz around the rim is 85, shovin' 86.

"Women make better pilots than men," old Jim allowed, "because they follow the rules better."

Learned Flying Late

And Mr. Montee has another pat on the back for you girls: He says you're also better behind the wheel of a car. He cited the Los Angeles safety records to prove it.

Jim dropped into Washington, by air, of course, to see his son, Harold, who is vice president of Seaboard & Western airlines.

The old man didn't begin to learn to fly until he was 60 and wasn't granted a private license until 1927. That was the year one Charles A. Lindberg solved the mysteries of the skies over the Atlantic. They called Lindy the "Lone Eagle."

"In those days they called me crazy Flyin' Machine Montee'," he said with a chuckle.

He did take a few fool chances in the old days with those flappy-winged old jennies, "but who didn't and I never had me a crack up."

All told, he has soloed 3,063 hours and 11 minutes and drew a dog-eared, leather-bound log book from his pocket to prove it.

He still flies—solo—a couple of hours a week to keep his hand in and generally uses a borrowed Stinson-Voyager. He has no fear of the new-fangled planes on the market and keeps up with all aviation developments.

"If the controls are marked," he said, "I can make 'em go."

He once acted as co-pilot on a four-engined C-54. In all, the little old fellow who's only 5 feet 6½ inches high and weighs but 130, has flown 36 types of planes.

He thinks old folks would live longer if they had the good sense to take up flying.

"An hour in the air does me more good than all of the vitamin B pills I could swallow in a whole year," he said, taking a vitamin pill out of his pocket.

Jet Operation Ambition

Mr. Montee, who is entitled to a prejudice if anyone is, believes that aviation is here to stay. He does contend, though, that the CAA and other agencies should tighten up on regulations and not let anybody leave the good earth unless he has a two-way radio aboard.

His ambition now is to sit at the controls of a jet plane and blitz through the air at 600 or so miles an hour.

"They won't let me though," he said. "The army owns 'em and civilians can't fly 'em."

His other regret is that his wife won't go up with him.

"She doesn't think I've had enough experience," he said.

GOP May Propose Changes In Labor Law During Campaign

By JACK BELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20—New Democratic demands for repeal of the Taft-Hartley act brought speculation today that Republicans may propose some changes in the labor law.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the GOP presidential nominee, has not ruled out such a course.

But he and Republican campaign planners evidently must decide first whether any such proposals can be made appealing to organized labor without alienating other citizens who want the act kept pretty much as it is.

Dewey's Taft-Hartley comments have been few recently. But he said in Salt Lake City in May that he never had seen a "perfect law."

"I hope that my party will be more ready to make corrections than the Democratic party has been," he added.

Later the Republican platform pledged "continuing study to improve labor-management legislation in the light of experience and changing conditions."

Defense Of Act Seen

Thus Dewey goes into the active phase of the campaign next month with the way open for him to propose possible changes in the law without being tied down in advance to any specific revisions.

There seems little doubt but that he will defend the general principles of the act.

Democratic national chairman J. Howard McGrath forecast such a stand in a statement last night commenting on the visit of House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., to Dewey in Albany.

McGrath said Martin's assertion that the Republicans will brag about the record of the GOP-controlled 80th Congress hangs an "albatross' around Dewey's neck.

Dewey previously, McGrath said, "appeared to be running for the presidency under the pretense that the Congress during the past two years had been controlled by Hottentots or gremlins, rather than by Republicans."

But now, the Democratic chairman added, it seems that Dewey "will soon abandon his attitude of being too noble to concern himself with such mundane problems as high prices and housing and run as a Republican on the Republican record."

Truman To Go On Cruise

McGrath said the "failures" of the Taft-Hartley act will plague Dewey and his running mate, Gov. Earl Warren of California, in the campaign.

President Truman is expected to add what he can to that plaguing in his Detroit Labor Day speech.

Mr. Truman leaves today (noon, EST) for a nine-day river and coastal cruise aboard the presidential yacht Williamsburg to work on his campaign speeches and get in some rest ahead of his forthcoming political tours.

The chief executive repeatedly has called for repeal of the Taft-Hartley act passed over his veto. He said in his nomination speech that it "has disrupted labor-management relations and will cause strife and bitterness to come."

The President told his news conference yesterday the law is working out just the way he said it would. He had been asked about the national labor relations board's ruling against CIO maritime union hiring halls on the Great Lakes.

Neither of the two big labor organizations has come out for Mr. Truman, or anyone else yet.

But the CIO's top leadership moved a step in that direction yesterday when, by an 8-to-1 vote, it adopted a statement blasting in turn at: "do nothing" Republicans, "bigoted Dixiecrats" and the "disunity" created by Henry A. Wallace's Progressive party.

The dissenting vote was cast by Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the CIO United Electrical workers. He objected to the Progressive party criticism.

A meeting of the CIO's 51-member executive board will be held here August 30 to discuss the matter of endorsing a presidential candidate.

The AFL's educational and political league will meet in Chicago five days earlier to consider the same matter. AFL President William Green has said the federation will never support Dewey, but Phil Pearl, the federation's publicity director, expanded on that remark to say the AFL won't support Mr. Truman either. Pearl said the emphasis will be on congressional races.

Also, the AFL teamsters have said Green wasn't speaking for them in his remark about never supporting Dewey.

Most Republicans are pretty well satisfied that the general public wants the Taft-Hartley law kept on the books. They think they have the wider appeal in any straight-out argument with the Democrats over repeal.

But some party members say they might counter to some extent the Democrats' bid for organized labor support if the GOP promised to make some changes. These Republicans are hoping that Dewey will do just that in a major campaign speech.

Senator Ives (R-NY), who came to the Senate with Dewey's help, led a move at the regular session of Congress to knock out of the law the requirement for plant elections before a union shop can be installed. Ives' bill didn't pass because Republican leaders decided to wait until next year before bringing up any amendments to the act.

Rep. Hartley (R-NJ) himself has proposed that corporation officials, as well as labor union officers, be required to sign affidavits that they are not Communists.

The Senate-House committee on labor-management relations, headed by Senator Ball (R-Minn) has talked of changing the section which bars political contributions by unions.

The Supreme Court already has held that union newspapers can comment on political matters. But other courts have disagreed over how far unions can take part in campaigns.

Whether Dewey takes up these or any other changes in the law may depend in part on the outcome of talks he has been having with such labor leaders as William McFetridge of Chicago, president of the AFL building service employes, and others.

RUSSIAN GIRL WANTS TO STAY IN SWEDEN—The Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter identified the "Swedish Kosenkina" as Lydia Marcelle, 19. Miss Marcelle, a musical student in the Swedish capital, has refused to leave Sweden and return to Russia as requested by the Soviet embassy. She said she had fled to Sweden in 1944 after her mother had died at Leningrad. A spokesman said the Swedish Foreign Office has turned down repeated requests that the girl be sent back to Russian and told the Russian embassy to "leave the girl alone."

KIDNAPING PRECAUTIONS TAKEN

Girl Haunted By Red Agents In Sweden Taken To Hideout

By NED NORDNESS
INS Staff Correspondent

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 20—Lydia Marcelle, 19-year-old "Swedish Kosenkina" battling the efforts of Soviet authorities to force her return to Russia, was taken today to a secret hiding place in Stockholm—safe from Russian agents.

The step was taken on advice of the Swedish government.

Members of the Folke Bigner family, in whose isolated sea-side villa 60 miles from Stockholm the pretty music student had been staying until she was located there by Soviet officials, indicated the move was made to block any "kidnap" attempts.

They pointed out that the Bigner home is more than a quarter of a mile from the nearest neighbors, and that "if the Russians entertained the idea of forcibly abducting the girl, they could do so there with ease."

Woman Highly Nervous

Bigner is an engineer and his wife a musician.

Lydia, who uses her mother's name of Marcelle instead of her father's name, Markarov, was said to be "nervous and on the verge of a breakdown."

The Swedish foreign ministry, in suggesting that she be moved to Stockholm, said that it wanted to avoid arousing so much public interest in the case that the Soviet government might claim grounds for retaliation.

It insisted, however, that Lydia has every right to remain in Sweden unmolested by the Russian embassy—a stand similar to that of the United States in the case of

38 Unhurt In Plane Mishap

Pilot Praised For His Skill

CHICAGO, Aug. 20 (AP)—Thirty-eight persons owed their lives today to the skill of a pilot in landing a crippled airliner.

They were aboard an American Airlines ship which, as it prepared to land at Chicago's municipal airport at the end of its flight from Cincinnati, was unable to lower its nose wheel. An emergency landing was made at the Glenview naval air station 30 miles away.

Finally Nosed Over

As they came into the municipal field Capt. Edward T. Cycon, 33, and his co-pilot, Ervin Boldt, both of Chicago, attempted to lower the wheel. Their efforts were futile, and they circled the field for more than an hour before going to the navy field to land.

With less than an hour's supply of gasoline, Cycon brought the plane in tail-heavy. The two main wheels touched the concrete. Sparks showered as the plane scraped forward, finally nosing over at the end of its landing.

All passengers left the plane safely. There was no fire, although a large force of navy fire-fighters stoodby. The ship was a two-engined Convair.

Afterward passengers were loud in their praise of Cycon, who joined American in 1940. John Reardon, 1501 Knowlton street Cincinnati, said, "the captain did a marvelous job. He said exactly what he was going to do, and then he did it."

L. J. Stout, 3586 N. Wallace avenue, Indianapolis, added, "it was a thrill. It broke the monotony of every-day flying. The crew was so self-assured I never worried."

The stewardess, Agnes Mae Vaughn, 21, of Chicago, a recent graduate of the hostess school, said the pasesngers maintained complete calm. No one was injured.

Woman Seriously Burned In Blast

HOUSTON Aug. 20. (U.P.)—An explosion in the Meadows Motel last night seriously burned one woman and slightly injured a man.

The blast ripped three walls and the roof off the second-floor apartment of Mrs. G. W. Graham, who was seriously burned, and damaged three other apartments. M. Vignati, who occupied the apartment below Mrs. Graham, was injured by falling plaster. Both injured persons were permanent residents.

The explosion, apparently caused by accumulated gas, originated in Mrs. Graham's apartment.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS GOOD

Prosperous Future Faces Hale Center

By BILL CLARK
Journal Staff Writer

HALE CENTER, Aug. 20 — To the tune of the saw and the hammer, Hale Center residents are singing the song of a town that is building itself a prosperous future.

As implied in the name, Hale Center is near the geographical center of Hale county, a rich diversified farming area bordered on the South by the cotton area, and on the north by the wheat area.

History says that originally there were two small townsites about a mile southwest of Hale Center—Hale City and Epworth. They didn't get along very well until 55 years ago, when they decided to bury the hatchet, move to the present townsite and combine the town under the name of Hale Center.

Co-Operation Is Noted

The hatchet stayed buried, and today Hale Center presents a splendid example of a community which, not content to let its town just grow, puts its collective shoulder to the wheel and works together for the common betterment of the town.

Not the count, seat, Hale Center is only 11 miles from its neighbor to the north, Plainview, and only 35 miles from Lubbock.

In spite of this, the town is "beginning to bust out at the seams," in the words of its young mayor, P. L. Pollard.

Seven new business buildings, two new church structures and almost 100 new residences have been built in Hale Center in the past 25 months. The town, which had an official census count of 849 in 1940, now has an estimated population that will crowd 1,600, Pollard figures.

Good Business Seen

And in the air is talk of still other business buildings and new homes.

Hale Center businessmen look forward to the greatest fall sales in their history, due to irrigated row crops and a record high production of cotton.

Opeators of cotton gins in Hale Center say that the immediate territory will produce more than last year's crop of 10,000 bales—3,000 more than any previous season.

Also looking good are row crops of corn, feed and such "sideline" agriculture products as livestock, potatoes, alfalfa and others.

The oil field appears to be closing in on Hale Center, too. Center of attention is the new wildcat, Nick Alley No. 1, being drilled by the Cooper-Hemphill Oil company four miles west and a mile south of town, which may bring the oil play virtually to Hale Center's door. Leasing activity has been heavy, one block of more than

Nation Needs Good Cheap Fishburger

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Aug. 20. (AP)—What this country needs, says a government scientist, is a good popular-priced fishburger.

It might compete with the traditional American hamburger which once sold for five cents—with pickle and mustard.

At the U. S. fish and wildlife service laboratory here, Norman D. Harvis has been experimenting with more than 40 species of fish in the production of canned fish pastes.

He uses tomato, flour, dried skimmed milk, margarine and a small amount of seasoning—and fish, of course—in a formula which he hopes to perfect this fall. The formula then will be made available to the fish canning industry.

Reservists Get Navy Warning

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP) — The Navy warned its organized reservists today that if they miss as few as five weekly drills a year they'll lose their draft exemptions.

At the same time, it announced that young volunteer reservists (who do not attend regular drills and are not draft exempt) can compete for appointment to the naval academy if they have had 14 days of active duty before the examination date next April.

Must Take Part

Under the draft law, members of an organized reserve unit are exempt only as long as they take part satisfactorily in drills and training.

Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan defined "satisfactory participation" today as not more than a 10 percent absence from the full 48 scheduled drills a year.

And everyone must take the two weeks of annual training duty unless an "acceptable excuse," such as sickness is presented, he added.

Furthermore, a young man otherwise likely to be drafted, had better watch his step around his reserve unit.

"Satisfactory participation, Sullivan held, "involves satisfactory performance of duty as determined by the individual's commanding officer.

"It is based on proficiency in rating, preparation for advancement in rating, interest displayed, the manner of doing assigned tasks, military bearing and conduct."

Army reserve rules are not as tough. For those who signed up by June 24, the requirement is a minimum of 35 scheduled drills, training periods of "days of active federal service or combination thereof per year."

In other words, 21 weekly drill periods plus two weeks in summer training camp will mean exemption from the draft.

WHY IT WOULDN'T DRAW

GENEVA, N. Y. (U.P.)—City officials wondered last winter why it took so much coal to heat the city hall. They found the answer. When the chimney was cleaned this summer, 75 wheelbarrows of soot were removed from it.

Prisoners Of Atlanta Penitentiary Are Too Tied Up In Work To Take Vacation

ATLANTA, Aug. 20 (AP)—It seems that some of the 2,200 inmates of Atlanta's federal penitentiary just don't want to get away from it all.

The warden's proffer of a week's vacation—with room and board for free—brought out the shopworn reply: "I just can't make it now. I can't leave my work."

Warden W. H. Hiatt offered the vacation plan as a morale builder, but some of those eligible for an easy time of it turned him down cold. Only prisoners with outstanding records are given vacations—if they can tear themselves away from their chores.

As an eligible machinist told the warden: "I can't let a vacation interfere with my work."

"Vacation" at the big house means sleeping as late as you want to, basking in the sun, playing tennis, spending the day in the library, going to two shows, lounging in your bunk—things like that. All, of course, inside the penitentiary walls.

Hiatt said many of the prisoners had been working at the same task seven days a week for years, and just didn't want to let a little fun interrupt their work.

Strange, isn't it?

MUSIC COMPOSER'S MEDICINE

Orchestra Launches Career For Detroit Mental Patient

DETROIT, Aug. 20. (AP)—A young mental patient's music career was launched last night by the nationwide radio broadcast of the composition he wrote to restore his mind to sanity.

Nodding his pudgy head in time with the tempestuous music, short, stocky Ernest Salisbury stood in the wings of the outdoor bandstand at the state fairgrounds while the Detroit symphony played the first movement of his work.

"It sounded terrific," the 25-year-old composer said afterwards.

Mind's Battle Theme

But as Salisbury received a thunderous ovation from the audience of 14,000, his desperate struggle back to respectability from the squalor of "skid row" was vivid in his mind.

That struggle—the battle between sanity and insanity—was the theme of his composition.

Salisbury was taken to a mental hospital more than a year ago after what he said was a four-year debauch on "skid row."

"He had been drinking mixtures of rubbing alcohol, polish and aspirins," said Dr. Ira Altshuler, the psychiatrist who treated him. "He was emaciated and in terrible condition, but we were surprised to find in his pockets the notes of Tschaikowsky's music jotted down on scraps of paper."

Treatment Success

That led Dr. Altshuler to use a treatment which had already worked wonders with other mental patients. The medicine was music.

Day after day, the patient listened to tunes from Tschaikowsky. After a while, as Salisbury's condition improved, he and his doctor began to write music together.

So the "Eloise Symphony," the work of many months, was created.

Crowds of friends forced their way backstage to congratulate the bespectacled young musician after the Detroit symphony played his work.

Salisbury addressed the audience briefly and asked for "confidence in mental hospitals," which had done so much for him.

He will be ready to leave the hospital in two weeks," Dr. Altshuler said. "He wants his story told to encourage others."

Pre-Registration At Tech Gets Underway

Pre-registration for the fall semester at Texas Technological college began this morning for students in summer school, and will continue until the end of the summer session, W. P. Clement has announced.

Pre-registration booths have been set up in all of the major buildings on the campus and students may register at any of these stations. Packets of registration cards will be sent to the student when he has pre-registered or given other indication that he plans to attend the college during the fall semester.

Registration and scheduling of classes begins Sept. 16, and continues through Sept. 18, with classes beginning at 9 o'clock the morning of Sept. 20. All students will report for registration at the hour and on the date which will be stamped on the cards he will receive in the mail, Clement said.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Plainsman currently is down at Alpine and in the Big Bend country, performing a speaking job that El Paso editors might better be doing in their own backyard. To even things up he asked William J. Hooten, El Paso Times editor, to handle this stint yesterday, which he did, and Editor Edward M. Pooley, of the El Paso Herald-Post, to guest-write today. Mr. Pooley's own Herald-Post column, "Side-Bar Remarks," is widely read in El Paso and along the Texas border.)

By EDWARD M. POOLEY
Editor, El Paso Herald-Post

I HAVE not seen printed for many a day words any more poignantly pitiful than 12 which recently appeared on the front page of the Herald-Post.

A college girl, only 20, killed herself. Her last note read:

"Dear Mom and Dad: Just forget me. Life has become too complicated."

She gave no details. She blamed no person. For her, life was a problem she could not solve. And so she parted with life. Her decision was her own. She went without a whimper.

She had not lived long enough to build a shell of cynicism around the heart of youth. Life was deadly serious to her. She was not able to shrug away the problems of herself and the world around her. She was a bit too serious and a bit weaker than most, but many are as serious and as weak as she.

Life always seems complicated to youth, I think I remember. Today it should seem more complicated than ever. Today's youth, peering into the future, can not see the brightness that was uncovered for his father and grandfather. Added to youth's own miseries are the world's. Youth sees no promise of future security, of pleasant years passing one by one in comfort, of a respected and dignified end. Curiosity as to what the moving finger will write and the gallantry that is natural in the young and strong keep youth going forward. Thank God that is their way.

STILL, let only he who has never felt discouragement, who has never wondered about the future, and feared it just a little, speak harshly of the girl.

Rather, shed a tear of pity. Think of her as she went to her date with death. As she sat alone in her home and came at last, in her loneliness, to the decision. For a long time the disapointments, the heartbreaks, the failure of ambitions, the wrongs she had done and been done, had multiplied in her secret heart. She looked back at the past, she considered the present, and then she looked forward into the future and saw only bleakness and despair.

She looked at life and shuddered: she looked at death and smiled. And so she took him by the hand and together they fled. And wherever they are, may she find no complications.

AS you know, four honest and intelligent persons, standing shoulder to shoulder, can witness an auto accident and come up in traffic court with four varying stories, sometimes so different that all they were able to agree on was that there was an accident.

Since time immemorial this has plagued courts and investigators, and nobody has found the reason for such perverse human behavior.

But maybe the wink is the answer. Science, which does strange things on occasion, has been investigating the wink. Science Service reports. Dr. Robert W. Lawson of the University of Sheffield (England) is the investigator.

He wanted to find out how quick is a wink, but I could have told him that it is the next fastest thing to a gnat swimming a dipper—the natural wink, I mean—and saved him a lot of trouble.

Anyhow, the ordinary type of wink occurs each 2. seconds in men. Girls are a little slower, but maybe that is because they can put meaning in a wink.

Dr. Lawson found that each wink blacked out vision for 0.3 of a second, which he figured means that you are blind 11 per cent of your waking hours, and partly blind 20 per cent.

Thus those four people viewing the auto wreck would miss from 11 to 20 per cent of it and, unless they winked in unison, each would miss different details.

That could explain the four different stories.

DR. Lawson thinks maybe this winking business hasn't been taken into consideration in flying. In a jet-ship going 600 miles an hour, each wink would mean that the pilot was blind for 264 feet, about a city block.

This wouldn't make much difference if the flyer were out to bomb a railroad yard. If he didn't get one end, he would get the other. But suppose he was trying to drop an atom on the Kremlin. It would be a shame to miss the Central Committee of the Communist party by a wink.

After all, though, it isn't the airman's or the accident witness's wink that is so dangerous.

The one that causes trouble is that slow, langourous closing of a female eyelid whose lashes are so long that the mascara rubs off on the upper lip.

Such a wink as that has

Gen. Clay Can't Work Harmoniously With Equals

WASHINGTON.—The reported dispute between Averell Harriman, ambassador-at-large for the ECA, and Gen. Lucius Clay is nothing new for the latter.

He has rowed as hotly with the government agencies he has had to deal with as he has with the Russians.

The U. S. commander in Germany is a man of unquestioned ability. He is several cuts above the usual brass hat. But he has two serious defects. Clay cannot delegate authority and has to do everything himself; and he cannot work harmoniously with equals.

As he is intensely conscientious and drives himself unsparingly, the first deficiency results in his always being staggeringly overworked and in a state of near exhaustion. During his recent Washington visit, his eyes were bloodshot and his neck so stiff he couldn't turn his head.

Clay had been summoned back for consultations of the utmost importance on the explosive Berlin crisis. His doctors pleaded with him to rest a few days before flying the ocean. But he wouldn't hear of it. In fact, he cut a night's sleep short in order to get off four hours ahead of schedule. As a result, he was half dead with pain and fatigue throughout his whirlwind stay in the capital.

This frazzled physical state inevitably leads to snap-judgment tiffs with other executives. This is particularly the case in backing up the judgments of his subordinates. With a few exceptions, Clay's staff is not notable for high caliber. But his first reaction is always to support them right off the bat, brusk and snappy. The frequent result is another clash with Washington.

Usually, Clay cools off and his underlying good sense reasserts itself. But it's second thought, and the task of reaching a workable understanding is encumbered by ruffled tempers.

(Note—A favorite saying of the late Gen. George Patton was, "more battles are lost by tired generals than by tired troops.")

Pals

There is one Washington executive, however, with whom Clay never bickers.

He is Undersecretary of the Army William H. Draper. The former Dillon, Read banker, once a subordinate of Clay, is now his immediate superior.

The reason for their harmony is that Draper never crosses Clay. Draper still "yes, sirs" him. Although now second top man in the Army department, Draper's whole attitude is still that of a subordinate of Clay.

Their relationship is touchingly illustrated by the following:

Clay's office in Frankfort is a huge, baronial chamber in the one-time giant world headquarters of the notorious I. G. Farben cartel. The vast room has black marble pillars and, although Clay visits the office only about once a week, it is banked with fresh-cut flowers every day. On an imperial-sized desk stands a large, shiny brass name plate reading, "General Lucius D. Clay"—apparently to remind him who he is if he should forget.

On a near-by small desk stands one photograph, the only one in the office. It is a picture of Draper with a very warm autograph to Clay.

Five thousand miles away, in the Pentagon on the Potomac, is Draper's office. It is one-tenth the size of Clay's, and very simple. There is no name plate, but there is a photograph. Also, the only one in the room.

It is a picture of Clay, with all his ribbons, and a very warm autograph to Draper.

GEN. TOOHY SPAATZ, retired air force chief of staff and sharp navy critic, was being urged by several service friends to return to harness. Spaatz couldn't see it.

"But, Toohy," pleaded one airman, "you're badly needed. You ought to stay in the government even as a civilian."

"Well, there is only one job that would interest me," was the soft admission. "I'd like to be secretary of the navy for just about six months. That would be all I'd need."

Hidden Record

Hidden deep in the treasury's archives is a very interesting biographical note on Secretary John Snyder.

In March, 1933, the treasury was flooded with applications from hundreds of minor bank officials with Democratic connections for jobs as "conservators" of closed or ailing banks. One of the applications was from St. Louis, Mo.

It was signed, John Snyder, and he enclosed a snapshot of himself in the uniform of a World War I army captain. The job he was after paid $2,900 a year.

CIO CHIEFS have inside word that the indictment of the 12 Communist party leaders has thrown a monkey wrench into Leftists' plans to set up a national labor organization of their own.

The secret scheme was to pull certain Communist-controlled unions out of the CIO as the nuclus for a new outfit. Among these unions are the electrical workers, the office and professional workers, the mine, mill and smelter workers and the tobacco and agricultural workers.

This planned "walkout was in line with Communist tactics in other countries, where separate labor organizations are being set up.

But apparently, the conspiracy indictments raised hob with the scheme in the U. S. The Communists were going to stage their labor coup soon after Henry Wallace's convention. But for the time being, at least, they have pulled in their horns.

Privately, CIO leaders are disappointed. They want the Communists to get out. It would clean house at one fell swoop and save the trouble of ripping them out.

Optimist

Adverse polls and political reports are having no effect on President Truman. He continues to exude complete confidence that he will win.

The other day a senate friend called at the White House. The President lost no time in asking the senator to make some campaign speeches for him.

"It's going to be tough going," the senator said.

"It's always tough going in a fight," Truman retorted cheerfully. "But I want to tell you one thing. I can still beat Dewey. I can take him, and I'm going to take him. He's got some surprises in store for him."

Comment by Rep. Edward Hebert, rabid Dixiecrat from Louisiana: "The trouble with Harry Truman is that he takes his own advice."

I wondered then and I still do—Did the G-men give him a chance for his life?—Taylor Hester, Miami, Fla . . . Dear Taylor Hester—They gave him the same chance he gave innocent men he murdered. His first crime, when he was in his teens, took place in Mooresville, Ind., where he hit an old man on the head from behind with a railroad spike to rob him of money to buy a girl a beer. He tommy-gunned Dominick O'Malley, an East Chicago policeman, who walked in on a bank robbery and didn't see Dillinger, who was stationed at the end of the tellers' counter. As he came out of the Chicago movie, an F.B.I. man called out "John!" Dillinger was digging for two automatics in two specially-designed pockets as he was shot front and back simultaneously. No, he got no chance for his life. This was grim stuff, not a sporting contest.

THE Cancer Society has raised $25 or $30 millions since it began appealing for public funds. Of that 25 per cent has been supposed to be used for research into the cause and prevention of the disease. That would be about $7,000,000, enough if properly used to finance real scientists for many years, and probably many times as much as was spent to find the sulfa drugs, penicillin, 606, calomel, quinine and all the other great medical discoveries.

The remainder of the millions is supposed to go for education. That would be around $20,000,000. What are the results? You can best answer. How much education have you received?

Incidentally, it takes the biggest commercial advertiser in the world four or five years to spend that much, and everybody knows the name of a soap or a cigaret.

Perhaps the greatest imposition of all has been the infantile paralysis drive. Many millions have been raised in the last 15 years . . . This year is one of the worst for polio. What happens to all the money?

This year $13,000 was raised in El Paso. About $8,300 was sent away somewhere; $4,700 was kept here. In the 16 months ended May 1, there were five El Paso county cases treated.

Now those five cases should have been treated, but it seems to me that a couple of thousand dollars would have been enough.

* * *

WE hope next year that the El Paso and Lubbock chapters of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—and all the other chapters all over the land—will declare their independence, raise enough for local needs and send no money away. If the Foundation now hasn't funds enough for research, it never will have.

It's time for local organizations, everywhere, which do virtually all the good done by the various and sundry associations, to stop the hives of the state, regional and national drones.

Let the welfare "workers" live up to their name.

The Feminine Viewpoint

IT'S fine you're going to go off to the mountains or the seaside while your friends swelter in the city. Have a good time, but . . .

DON'T send back post cards bragging that you're sleping under blankets every night. And don't torture the friends back home with any "wish you were here" comments.

MILLETT

DON'T bore your friends by talking about your trip for weeks after you get back.

If you take stacks of snapshots don't make your friends look at them all. If you must show your snaps, pick out a choice half dozen for passing around.

NO MOVIES, PLEASE

AND if you're a movie camera fan keep your movies for family consumption. Even your best friend won't really want to sit through an evening looking at home movies you took while on vacation. The only persons who enjoy home movies are (1) those who took the movie and (2) those who expect to see themselves in it.

If you remember those few pointers your friends won't mind in the least your getting a nice vacation while they slave away at home.

And, oh yes, one more thing. Don't bring back a lot of knick-knacks to clutter up your friends' homes. Bring 'em something they won't have to have around for years.

By Bennett Cerf

"Try And Stop Me"

"ANGEL in the Wings" is an unpretentious but lively musical that became one of the season's hits on Broadway. It confirmed a fact that many people already knew: Grace and Paul Hartman are a very engaging and resourceful couple. It also made a star of a hitherto comparatively unknown comic: Hank Ladd.

Ladd says he'd like everybody to overlook the first monologue he delivered as a youth. It was in a pop-vaudevjlle circuit deep in the sticks, and the highlight of the performance, he recalls, came when the orchestra leader yelled up, "Hey, Hank, did you take a bath Saturday night?" and Ladd answered, "Why, is there one missing?"

His narrowest escape from disaster came when he was entertaining thousands of G.I.s in a South Pacific base as star of a USO troupe. In the middle of his act, a stooge interrupted to hand him a slip of paper. Ladd feigned deep concern, and announced "The commanding officer is wanted in the emergency ward immediately. There's a Top Secret message waiting for him there—and it's leaking badly." The C.O., it developed, had practically no sense of humor, and Ladd had practically no time at all to get off that particular island.

Great Empire In West Needs Government Balancing Power

McCALL, Idaho — Here in the great empire of the west you get a different view of Washington. It is like looking through the wrong end of a telescope at a lot of little men who seem to be quarreling over issues and ideologies that have no relation to the needs and the problems of the country.

CHILDS

It is on the Pacific coast and in the mountain states that the greatest possibilities for growth and development still exist. That is reflected in the astonishing population growth shown in the recent census bureau report. California and Oregon have both gained more than 40 per cent since 1940, as compared to 5 per cent for New York state and 6 per cent for Pennsylvania.

This growth is reflected to a somewhat lesser degree in the mountain states. The boom is still at the crest here. The demand for almost everything that Idaho produces is at the peak and so are the prices paid to the producer.

Hotel Is Newly Opened

This is being written in a newly opened resort hotel as fine as anything in the east, with great picture windows in every room that look out across Payette lakes to the magnificent mountains beyond. It is part of a development that will include one of the longest ski lifts in the world, all of it being built with local capital.

But the big question is whether this is to be merely another boom. And that is where government comes in.

The balance in the empire of the west must be maintained by government. It cannot be left entirely to private exploitation. That is recognized even by some of the ablest and most hard-driving exploiters.

It is so because of the delicate balance between water power in this great empire. A third element is power—cheap water power from the rivers of the west making it possible to compete with the east in spite of all the political advantages the east has arrogated to itself.

The millions who have come out west in the past six or seven years all have jobs in the present boom. A lot of them are finding it mighty hard to get along with sky-high prices. But they are working and they like the new land they have discovered.

But if they are to be kept at work and jobs provided for the other newcomers, then there must be industrial expansion. It is not enough to stand still. Government alone can expand and initiate the great hydro-electric projects that can mean low-cost power and new industry.

ECONOMIC prophets who have often been right in the past, such as Marriner Eccles of the Federal Reserve board, are saying that the inflationary price level is bound to bring a depression. That could mean millions of unemployed, and the burden would be especially heavy in the west with its great new population.

Against this background the quarrel between the President and the negative, nullifying Congress has an ominous look. Time is running out. It may, as the gloomy prophets say, be already too late.

That is the short-term consideration. If a depression should come, it would not necessarily be severe or prolonged. So much needs doing and building.

There is another and even more vital role that government must play in maintaining the balance essential to growth and prosperity in the empire of the west. That is in protecting the watersheds which mean the difference between life and death for this whole region.

The west has for many years been living off its capital, like a heedless rich man who believed his bank account was limitless. Or, to put it more accurately, the east has been dipping into the west's capital.

Capital Drained Off

That capital—in the form of forests, soil, water—has been drained off at a terrifying rate. The federal government must apply restraints, and effective restraints, if this new growth and this new prosperity is to be sustained.

I have just come from a trip through a part of the wilderness area of the Payette national forest. On horeback, with a pack train of mules, we traveled over mountain trails through lost, lonely country. Here the life-giving streams flow crystal and pure down to the sea. Here is the capi-

A MOST WORTHY HELPMEET

Many successful men have done no more than give credit where it was due in attributing a large share of their success to their wives. Probably few men have been blessed with such helpful life partners as former Vice President John Nance Garner in the person of Mrs. Mariette Elizabeth Garner, who died Tuesday in their Uvalde home.

Her major role in his achievements as a business man and statesman have been emphasized repeatedly by the former Vice President. This was a fact known not only to the intimates of the couple, but to the most casual observers. Mrs. Garner was his confidential secretary throughout his public life. Mr. Garner often said, and it was a known fact, that he never took an important step or made an important decision without consulting "Etty." He rarely went contrary to her advice and, as he confessed, he usually regretted it when he did.

She was a good and a splendid woman whose fine qualities were accentuated because she insisted upon performing her truly important role behind the scenes, as far removed from public view and credit as was possible for her to place them.

Girl Haunted

Mrs. Oksana Kosenkina.

The ministry, rejecting a Soviet embassy charge that Lydia was held prisoner in the Bigner villa under Swedish government "auspices," stated that she lived there of "her own free will." The girl hereself made a similar statement to International News Service.

Sweden earlier warned Russian embassy officials not to "bother" the girl.

The Soviet embassy authorities in Stockholm tried to get the girl away from the Bigner family retreat by showing her a letter allegedly written by her father in Russia, urging her to return to the Soviet Union.

The Bigner family spokesman said the letter was typewritten and could have been composed in the Russian embassy. It was not signed by hand.

Lydia's father was an engineer in the Red army during the war with the rank of general. He now presumably has resumed a civilian status.

A Russian legation official had charged that Lydia was being kept prisoner in a dirty, windowless room with police guarding the house.

An I.N.S. correspondent visited the Bigner home and found it to be a beautiful white-painted villa set on a promonotory overlooking the ocean.

Struggle Within Progressive Party Reported By Newspaper

BALTIMORE, Aug. 20. (AP)—The Baltimore Sun today said it had been told by a former Wallace-for-president leader that a "struggle" is being fought within the Progressive party.

It quoted Rexford Guy Tugwell, ex-governor of Puerto Rico and chairman of the platform committee at the recent Progressive party convention in Philadelphia.

"I hope its (the party's) organization and program will develop in a way that will permit those of us who are old-fashioned American progressives to go along with it," he was quoted.

Tugwell Expresses Fear

The article said Tugwell expressed fear that "wrong people" might "get control" of the party.

Asked whether he referred to Communists, Tugwell was reported to have replied:

". . . I certainly don't know whether they are Communists, but they act as though they are."

Norton quoted him as saying, ". . . There is still a struggle going on between a certain group and those of us who are simply progressives."

Tugwell said he had not decided whether he would vote for Wallace in November Norton wrote.

Summer Meeting Of Beekeepers Is Held

Approximately 35 members and guests attended the summer meeting of the South Plains Beekeepers association last night at the offices of County Agent D. W. Sherrill, 1320 Ave. Q.

Jack Creel, farm editor of radio station KFYO, introduced program participants, first of which was B. T. Rucker, president of the association, who discussed management of bees, honey production and methods of extracting honey. He also discussed the various pieces of equipment necesary for a beekeeper to have and discussed some of his experiences as a beekeeper.

Sound Film Shown

A program highlight was the presentation of the sound film, "The Honey Bee," prepared by Encyclopaedia Britannica films, which showed the entire life cycle of the honey bee. Closeups of the way nector and pollen from plants is gathered was shown, as well as closeups of the death fight between two rival queen bees, the process of feeding bee larvae, construction of the honey comb by the bees, and bee "swarming." The film was obtained through the Texas Tech department of extension.

Jason O. Gordon talked on insecticides and bees, and distinguished between those insecticides which are harmful to bees and those which are not. He emphasized that farmers, in so far as possible, should avoid use of harmful insecticides, especially if another person's bees are aiding him in pollenization of his fruit trees and crops.

County Agent Sherrill discussed the value of bees to the farmer, and cited examples of increased fruit and crop yields as a direct result of pollenization by bees.

A junior bee keeper, Ben Rucker, son of the association's president, briefly told some of his experiences with bees.

W. E. Gillispie of Plainview was introduced, and discussed his beekeeping experiences and observations in both West and central Texas.

Following the program, officers for the forthcoming year were elected, including Jack Creel, president, and Joe Doyle, secretary.

tal on which the empire of the west must build and live. Fire, flood and insect pests have seriously threatened the balance. It is a never-ending struggle to maintain it.

I want to try to describe that struggle and what it means for the west and the country. It is at the very root of politics in this year of 1948, even though the Washington sideshow seems intended to disguise that fact.

Ultimatum Issued Workers In Japan

TOKYO, Aug. 20. (AP)—Transportation Minister Seiichi Okada today issued an ultimatum to 300 striking government railway workers on Hokkaido island to return to work tomorrow or be discharged.

Okada said that the strikers, whom he accused of being led by Communists, had tied up 80,000 tons of freight and reduced train operations up to 15 per cent of normal.

Hale Center

12,000 acres having recently been leased.

At present Hale Center is nearly equi-distant between the Petersburg field to the southeast and the Anton-Irish field to the southwest.

Business Outlook Good

Hale Center's bank deposits at present are approximately $2,500,000, reflecting the wealth of the farm area surrounding it.

Hale Center businessmen plug their town aggressively, both individually and through their organizations.

One of the most active of these service organizations is the Lions club, of which Rev. Woodrow Adcock, Methodist pastor, is president. The Lions have recently provided lights for the Hale Center Owls football field, promoted paving, organized a July 4 homecoming in cooperation with the American Legion and taken other worthwhile projects under wing.

Legion Post Active

The American Legion post of Hale Center, with 140 members, is also unusually active. Glen Thomas is commander of it, and post adjutant is Adolph Geyer, a resident of Hale Center about a year who had held many Legion offices in Kansas. Geyer, a Navy veteran of World War I and Army veteran of World War II, holds a 30-year membership card.

Geyer also heads Hale Center's Central committee, a group representing all of Hale Center's organizations, including the churches, clubs, school board, city commission, Boy Scouts and others, which functions as an over-all civic promotion group.

In the place of a chamber of commerce, Hale Center has the Hale Center Merchants association. Walter Struve is president of it and R. A. Jefferies is secretary.

Hale Center's Scout organization is active, with four boys' and girls' organizations functioning. The businessmen of Hale Center have contributed most of the money for a tile Boy Scout building on which work is to start soon. Belton Gates sparked the idea, and the Farm Bureau, composed of people living in the Hale Center area, raised $700 at a box supper. T. A. Shipp is president of the Farm Bureau federation, John I. Bowling is vice president and L. E. Ing is secretary.

Marvin Bridges, a Hale Center contractor, offered to build the structure for $1,500 contributing the labor on the job. The next lowest bid was $2,057.

Other Projects Built

Among larger new projects under construction or recently completed are a new $45,000 Church of Christ, of which Joe Banks is minister; a theater owned by Boyd Prather, a $75,000 grain elevator of the Hale Center Wheat Growers association; and a $130,000 hospital completed last year which is now undergoing extensive additions to provide additional bed and clinic space.

The hospital, of which J. L. Monroe is manager, has served 1,400 clinic patients and 600 bed patients in the year it has been operating. Hale Center businessmen consider it one of the most valuable developments the town has made since the war.

Hale Center's trading area is served by a progressive weekly newspaper, The Hale Center American, whose young editor, Tom Rambo, is typical of the youthful businessmen of the town. Rambo, an Army veteran of World War II, is an active supporter of worthwhile projects in Hale Center.

Another Hale Center resident, Vic Lamb, has for many years boosted his town through newspaper columns and by giving his time and effort to community undertakings. He is now in the printing and office supply business.

FARE REMAINS STABLE

MOSCOW. (AP)—A ride on the Moscow subway no matter from where to where costs seven and one-half cents. The fare was set some years ago and has remained without change for a considerable period. It comes to forty kopecks which is to say forty one-hundredths of one ruble. The ruble is pegged at 5.30 rubles per one American dollar.

Some other forms of Moscow municipal transport are cheaper. The street car, for instance, costs less than four cents. To ride on a trolleybus one must pay according to distance. Taxis are now on the streets again after an absence during much of the war. They cost about 35 cents for six tenths of a mile.

In a recent three-game series in the Polo Grounds, the Cincinnati Reds made 16 hits against Giant pitching but couldn't score a run.
