OUR TESTIMONY—I have preached righteousness in the great congregation: Lo I have not refrained my lips, O Lord, thou knowest. Psalm 40:9.
PRAYER—O God, help us the redeemed of the Lord ever to say so.

THE FOUNDATION OF HAPPINESS

Happiness is a great thing. Happiness in a nation and in a home, means much yet many people seem to try to build this happiness on a very flimsy foundation. Leaving this country not long since, after a sojourn of several months, Jiddu Krishnamurti, youthful Hindu seer, summed up his impressions of the national life and character in these words: "America has been extraordinarily kind to me, but I cannot wholly admire your civilization. There is too much noise and speed, too much emphasis on mere material prosperity, too much desire to show off and attract attention, and too much selling."

Most of the traits which Krishnamurti condemns in us, it may be observed, are attributes by which we lay greatest store. They are, indeed, a powerful impetus to progress, a wellspring of achievement, though civic clubs may organize anti-noise campaigns in the larger cities, do we not rather glory in the whirl of motors, the chug of engines and the roar of traffic? These sounds are music to many ears; they blend into the hum of industry—a spirited and altogether pleasant message that things are getting done. As for speed, is not that a sign of exuberant youthfulness? It, too, is indispensable to accomplishment. And as for display, the attracting of attention, and selling, do these not constitute the very warp and woof of the Nation's economic structure? Such things keep the wheels of industry turning and the marts crowded with shoppers. They are fundamental to that material prosperity which, Krishnamurti insists, we value too highly. Is that criticism justifiable? To be sure, we cannot accept this seer's philosophy, with its aspirations to Nirvana and Eternal Nothingness. A more positive goal must be ours; yet is it not possible that we are sacrificing, for the sake of worldly, ephemeral opulence, priceless and imperishable riches of the spirit? Would we be doing violence to our own religious traditions were we to confess that the seer is right? Again and again The Master admonishes us concerning the peril to the soul which lies in material wealth. He draws an apt figure to illustrate the difficulties which beset the rich man who would enter the Kingdom of Heaven—who would find the peace which only the spiritually-minded life can bestow. Repeatedly He counsels the renunciation of earthly possessions and pursuits, that we may lay up treasure in Heaven. Could there be greater contrast than that between the religion which Jesus taught and exemplified, and the everyday life of America. Observation of this pursuit of idols, this worship of the golden calf under a new name, Efficiency, is not confined to visiting philosophers. One of our own writers, Mrs. R. Le Clere Phillips, lately took occasion to deplore the state into which we have fallen and to recall our ancestors' happier lot. We have only to study the chronicles, memoirs and intimate records of other days to realize that they were lighter-hearted, more joyous men and women than ourselves. That our fathers were more pious than we may be freely granted; but it also would appear that they derived more real, lasting enjoyment from the business of living. Whilst laying up treasure in Heaven, one builds the foundations of the only secure happiness in the here and now. Good old Isaac Walton draws a moral from a precursor of the modern "go-getter" in his day: "Let me tell you, Scholar, I have a rich neighbor that is always so busy that he has no leisure to laugh; the whole business of his life is to get money and more money, that he still may get more money and more money. . . he considers not that it is not in the power of riches to make men happy." And Walton relates the charming anecdote of the great philosopher at a fair, overcome by its variety and plenty: "Lord! How many things are in this world, of which Diogenes hath no need!" True piety may find an antidote to the ills of the age, whether meditating in some vast cathedral or, like the gentle Isaac, in God's own temples: "I will walk the meadows by some gliding stream, and there contemplate the lilies that take no care, and those very many other various little creatures, that are not only created but fed, man knows not how, by the goodness of the God of nature, and therefore trust in Him."

BARRIERS

There is a general desire among the people of this Western country to break down all of the barriers whether real or imaginary, between city and urban people. Between the North and South and in fact in the Western country it is as one great family, living in other parts of the house only. There is a real desire to build more of a family feeling in the communities and between the towns of the Southwest. Inter-city meetings of chambers of commerce and between civic organizations and church organizations is doing much to bring about this in this section, but in some of the other sections of our nation such good luck is not being achieved. Herbert Pell, Jr., former Congressman from New York has contributed an article to one of the Eastern newspapers along this line, which while true, we hope will cause men to think, and to endeavor to overcome much of the prejudice and ill will that exists, and in its place build a paving of good will that will let us glide smoothly through the commercial and social world in a way that will bring cooperation that will build for the nation a greater trade and better feeling throughout the Nation and finally spread into other nations. Mr. Pell says: "There is in every part of the world a certain dislike of foreigners, or of outsiders and of their customs. There is throughout this country a feeling of dislike for the city of New York. In the South little good will be said of the Yankees. New England despises the rest of the Nation. The average country man does not care for his urban fellow-citizens."

This distaste seems natural, but unless it is artificially strengthened it will act more as a stimulant than as a menace to peace and prosperity. No one will, just to satisfy spite, organize an anti-Western movement in New England.

The dislike of foreign peoples is, however, fostered in this and in other countries by a very expensive organized propaganda supported by individuals who expect to get a profit from some special privilege granted by their government—usually in return for political contributions, but ostensibly to protect the people from some foreign bogey set up by the propagandist.

It is quite true that no politicians, and certainly none of those who make use of them, are consciously desirous of war; but each one feels that his own game can be improved a great deal at an apparent small public cost. They believe that a little local suspicion and dislike of foreigners is unlikely to have much effect one way or another on great international questions, and it may be of real use in justifying their legislative servants in voting them special favors. Each one is doing his bit to add to that explosive mass a hatred which, if it be great enough, may at the coming of a spark result in a tremendous catastrophe.

One of the most important lessons of the war, which has hardly been considered by the public, is that drawn from the unity of Germany. Less than fifty years before 1914, Prussia and Bavaria were at war. The king of Bavaria in 1914 carried a Prussian bullet in his body. Yet after the most stunning defeat experienced by any great nation in recent years, with the shattering of all the governments of Germany, there has been no serious move to revive the independence of Bavaria. And why? For more than half a century there has been no private profit to be gotten in Berlin out of popular hatred of Bavaria or of Hamburg. A Berlin brewer cannot ask for protection against the pauper hops of the wicked Wittelsbach, so he either makes his beer cheap or good or goes out of business.

It is worth remembering that what happened in the Nineteenth Century to Germany happened to Italy, too, and to every other nation in Europe at some earlier time; and it is worth remembering that the nations of Europe became solidified within themselves only as they did away with internal economic barriers. There are only two cases that the union has not been permanent—Norway and Sweden, and Belgium and Holland. Except for these cases no independent governments have ever coalesced and destroyed the tariff wall between them and ever afterward willingly separated. On the other hand no alliance in which the economic barriers between the contracting nations were maintained has ever outlasted the crisis which brought it into existence.

We can study this question in the United States itself. This country today is the biggest free-trade area in the world. It is the largest and most divergent economic unit. There is, of course, a natural and healthy regional rivalry. There are local prejudices which, within bounds, do more good than harm; but there would not be sufficient profit in arousing sectional hate to make it worth while for any business man to pay the expense of a campaign of propaganda. And because suspicion of other nations can be made the source of private profit, is the only reason why there is a regular organized propaganda of hatred and distrust here and in every country of the world.

SO THINK WE

Lubbock is one of the best educational centers in the Southwest today, and is getting better all the time. Our public schools are of the very highest type, and then the Tech college. There are few places in the Southwest where a child can go from the kindergarten to a college degree without moving out of his tracks so to speak. Lubbock offers that kind of school facilities.

People are indeed happily located when they live in Lubbock. We have the finest schools to be found anywhere in Texas, and modern stores, splendid church organizations and buildings, and people should feel thankful that they live here, and we believe most of them are.

It has always rained in this country, when we could not get along without it. We need not be getting unduly alarmed at the continued dry weather. There is time to make a bumper crop yet.

A jury of women brought in a verdict in twenty minutes. It is seldom that twelve women can agree on anything, but possibly they did not get into an argument.

France is even trying to blame the Americans for the failure of their aviators to make the trip across to New York.

Dignity is very much like a banana peel. It's hard to stand on.

The blunt man is some time a very sharp one after all.

A forty-cent monkey wrench can stop a forty thousand dollar machine, and a few dozen people can stop a fire truck and cause a terrible fire loss. This is liable to happen most any time in Lubbock, the way the people flock out into the street when the fire whistle blows.

We imagine that there would be more real business men if they were taught business in school rather than latin and algebra.

Women may not have much inventive genius, but we would ask who invented alimony. It certainly could not have been a man.

It seems that what is the matter with the Mississippi is that she needs a double track.

President Coolidge is said to have perfect feet. Possibly that is because he runs so well, and if he doesn't allow them to get cold, he will probably make another good race.

When real friends meet there is very seldom much ceremony to their greetings.

It looks like people just cannot be pleased. Some folks criticize us because we do not say anything while others criticize us for what we do say. Just what are we going to do anyway.

Keep the back yard clean. Sack the trash and put it where the trash wagon can get it, and they will haul it away without cost to you. They cannot stop their wagons long enough to rake the trash up however.

The colored folks of this town will receive good treatment at the hands of the white folks so long as they stay in their place, but they must remember that they have a place and must stay in it if they are to have the treatment that they probably should have.

A good painting will help the looks of many of the houses in Lubbock. It makes them last longer and look much better.

The poor old Mississippi just can't keep within its bounds these days. Its sides are bursting, and it can't contain the water that is delivered to it from the tributary branches.

Many people cannot stand other folks to be prosperous, but usually such fellows cannot even stand to be prosperous themselves.

The Mineral Wells Index says that there are more twin lambs this year than was ever known in the history of the State, but that same paper reminds the people that all such news might not be what it is said to be.

The Texas legislature wants to put a tax on whiskey. We thought this was a prohibition state, and no whiskey is supposed to be sold.

The medical doctors in session in one other state passed resolutions that the prescription law be abolished for the sale of whiskey, as it reflected to the discredit of the profession. Most of the doctors would rather not be a party to the sale of the stuff.

It has been discovered that leisure hours in a two hour hike around the golf course.

Texas is a great State. It is getting greater every day. Pretty soon it will be growing every kind of fruit, every kind of vegetable, and every kind of people. We trust it will always be known for its broad-minded people.

It is a common thing to hear an old line Democrat make the remark that they will vote the Republican ticket before they will vote for Al Smith for President on the Democratic ticket.

The Chicago police department has changed their slogan. The slogan used to be "Alm to Please," but now it is "Shoot to Kill."

CHICKENS BUILD BRICK HOUSES

Mrs. Harry Clark, who resides a little ways southeast of Ralls, was shopping in the city Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Clark made the Banner a pleasant visit. She stated that she now had about one thousand chickens, and that if one of these days, she saw a brick house being built out there on their farm, she could just attribute it to chickens, cows, etc. Mr. and Mrs. Clark are numbered among our diversified farm folks, and though this kind of farming necessitates a great amount of work and keeps them from sliding around over the country as much as some of the farmers, yet it places them, no doubt, in position to live comfortably throughout the year, and evades huge "bills" coming due when the "cotton is out."—Ralls

Avoiding Disease

Yellow Jaundice Needs Prompt Medical Aid

BY DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

What used to be called "yellow jaundice" is now recognized to have been merely a symptom of many conditions that may interfere with the proper flow of bile.

When the gall or bile duct or tube which carries the bile from the gallbladder to the intestines is blocked through some mechanical cause, such as a stone or the presence of a tumor in a neighboring organ, or by a swelling of its opening in the intestines, the bile is taken up by the blood. It is then circulated throughout the body, and the skin becomes yellow. Sometimes the taking of too much alcohol or of irritant foods or spices may set up an inflammation in the intestinal tract, with similar results.

Associated with the absorption of the bile there may be loss of appetite, nausea, severe headache, heavy coating of the tongue, bad breath and similar symptoms. Naturally the excretions of the body are also discolored with bile.

It is customary in such instances to put the patient at rest, to administer a laxative which will tend to remove irritating substances from the bowels, and to lower the amount of food intake, while increasing the amount of fluid intake so that general flushing of the intestinal tract occurs. IT'S A FINE OLD WORLD

It's a fine old world we live in. If we do the best we can, To make it so, by kindly acts and true. If we always will remember to put in every daily plan, To do to others as you'd have them do to you. If we bear in mind that we must live not to ourselves alone, But, with the flag of selfishness unfurled, We march along our daily route, We'll find that we must own, It really is a very fine old world.

If we struggle against adversity and never grouse or whine, Though hard luck's shots against us oft are hurled; If we still believe, though days are dark, the sun again must shine, We'll own it is a very fine old world. If we bear in mind that we must live not to ourselves alone, But, with the flag of selfishness unfurled, We march along our daily route, We'll find that we must own, It really is a very fine old world. If we always will remember to put in every daily plan, To do to others as you'd have them do to you. CAT PENNOCK TIGERS F 9 TO 2

(By The Associated Press)

DETROIT, May 17.—Cat Pennock took this place as pitcher of the Detroit team, defeating Detroit.

It was Pennock, as many starts the Yankees, who was wild about Babe Ruth, regaining long American League when he drove a center field fence, hitting it was his own and it came, was empty.

Rip Collins was hit by the Yankees and lost defeat of the pitcher.

Bob Meusel, outfielder, was out, having broken a small bone in his left leg when he was hit by a pitch from the Detroit pitcher.

The box score: Yankees, 9; Tigers, 2. AB: Yankees, 9; Tigers, 9. R: Yankees, 3; Tigers, 1. E: Yankees, 1; Tigers, 1.

CUBS WIN FROM BRAVES AFTER 22 FRAMES

(By The Associated Press.)
BOSTON, May 17.—Running up a total of 49 innings in two consecutive playing days, Boston and Chicago battled for 22 innings here today. As in the previous extra inning encounter, the Cubs were victorious. The score was 4 to 3.
When the game threatened to reach the Major League record of 26, innings, established in 1920 by the Braves and Brooklyn here, Bob Smith, who went the full distance for Boston, passed Willie K. The first pitch to face him at the opening of the 22nd Stephenson sacrificed, the runner, along and Grimm brought him home with the winning run by a single to center field.
In the game played here on May 16, which set the record for length of games, Lefty Cadore of Brooklyn and Joe Oeschger of Boston went the whole route. On Saturday last the Cubs and Braves went 18 innings. Chicago ultimately winning 7 to 2. Monday's game was postponed because of rain, so the two extra inning encounters were consecutive games in the same series.
The game was full of sensational moments and figured but Bob O'Brien, who went into the box for Chicago in the ninth was the hero. He pitched the rest of the game holding Boston to six hits. Both he and Smith received sterling support. R. Smith went the whole route, nearly 2 1/2 regulation games—for the Braves, being relieved only in the 22nd for a pinch hitter. After the Cubs had squeezed the long awaited run across.
The visitors had many near chances to score. 19 Cubs, dying on the path; Boston's left on base totally, a dozen.
The Cubs were held runless from the fifth inning to the 22nd when R. Smith weakened under the strain. The Cubs used three hurlers, Blake, Brillhart and O'Brien, the latter coming through as victor. The Braves called 15 hits against 20 for Chicago.

Golfers Open For Texas Meet Today

SAN ANTONIO, May 17 (AP)—One hundred and sixty-four of Texas' best golfers will tee off for the qualifying round of the 21st annual golf tournament of the Texas golf association Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock. The last 18 holes of the championship match will be played Saturday afternoon.

Despite the flimsy gusty wind on Tuesday morning golfers entered in the Texas Amateur championship managed to turn in fairly low scores in their impromptu matches over the San Antonio club course. The young San Antonio representatives Reuben Albach and Frank Lewis, Jr. appeared in good form for the qualifying round, which starts Wednesday morning at 7:30. Ossie Carlton of Houston, defending champion did not appear up to his usual form, nor did Tom Cochran of Wichita Falls.

Commodore Heard, Houston, Charles Dexter, Dallas, and Clarence Hubby of Temple were among those on the course which is now in the best of condition for the event. The size of the field made predictions as to the winner very uncertain.

This age strives to excel in all things and it recognizes and rewards excellence.

This age of high standards welcomes the Camel quality

MODERN smokers are the most exacting ever known, and they place Camel first among cigarettes.

For Camel was created to succeed in the hardest-to-please age ever known. It was made to satisfy those who demand the utmost, and modern smokers have given it such popularity as no other cigarette ever had.

If you're downright hard to please, just try Camels. Tobacco taste and fragrance will be revealed as never before, for Camels are rolled of the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos, supremely blended. This modern cigarette exceeds all other standards but its own. To light one is to find taste fulfillment. "Have a Camel!"

HECTIC SCENES OF CONVENTION END AS DELEGATES RETURN HOMEWARD

merce in the closing hours of its ninth annual convention here Tuesday recalled its "stand against what it termed 'unfair treatment' in allotment of state highway aid."

The legislature to place a tax on the 3,000,000 acres of University of Texas land in West Texas, recommended creation of an oil and gas division of the organization to protect the oil industry, and elected Attorney R. W. Haydel, of Abilene as president.

Port Worth, the only city placed in nomination, was selected for next year's meeting place. It was nominated by R. Q. Lee, or Clee, former president of the organization. Honey D. Wade was re-elected general manager at a meeting of the executive committee and his salary was raised from $7,500 to $10,000 a year. The selection was unanimous, and his work was highly praised by the committee members.

Flood Commented On.
The morning session was featured by an address by R. R. Ellis of Memphis, Tenn., vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, who said all sections of the country must unite to prevent the disastrous floods which have visited the Mississippi valley.

The afternoon session was taken up with the "My Home Town" speaking contest, which was won by Walter Ell of Abilene. There were 12 contestants, each speaking five minutes on the virtues of his home town. Bert Clardy of Brownwood took second, Miss Ollie Bell Collins of Florida, third, Miss Katherine Marshall of Quanah, fourth, and Cecil Abner of Gainesville, fifth.

Leaving Cup Presented.
A silver loving cup was presented by Thomas Eberidge of San Antonio, who originated the contest. The first and second winners also received $100 each donated by Col. C. C. Walsh of Dallas and Leon Shields of Coleman.

The resolutions on highways "uttered no criticism of the present highway commission, but said that the policy of allotting state aid on the basis of the 1920 census is unfair to West Texas, and requested the highway commission to take this matter into account and 'right this inequality.' The general attitude was expressed in a paragraph advocating a connected system of highways throughout Texas which should be 'pushed aggressively but conservatively so that ultimately every section be united through such a system.'

Oil Division Wanted.
The resolution urging the executive board of the Chamber to consider creation of an oil and gas division, said such a division should "lend its aid to protecting this na-

Medicine Rated As Performing Near Miracles

$20,000 for His Discovery
Thousands of former sufferers from stomach trouble—many of whom had given up hope of ever being well—unqualifiedly endorse "Gordon's," the discovery of a well-known Dallas pharmacist, as a medicine for the successful treatment of stomach and bowel troubles, some go so far as to rate it as performing "near miracles." "Gordon's" relieves constipation, gas on stomach, dyspepsia, heartburn, bloating, flatulence, excess acid, bad breath, sick headache, nervousness, and stimulates the stomach and bowels to their normal function.

"Gordon's" is sold by good druggists—$1.50 for 64 doses—less than 2 cents a dose. Your druggist will refund your money if one bottle fails to benefit. Ask for "Gordon's."

graphic and hydrographic surveys in West Texas, favors congressional aid in the development of potentialities, favors a "reasonable limit" to consolidations of public utilities so as not to discourage individual development, and in this connection "particularly disposes monopolistic acquisition by such utilities of others of water powers and rights so necessary to the welfare of the people generally."

The report urges limited forestation in West Texas including wind breaks on farms; commends the state federation of women's clubs for its efforts toward cleaning up Texas; reaffirms its stand on educational institutions and urges further railroad extensions in West Texas.

Harmony Urged.
Harmony among the various sections of West Texas was urged. The primary object of the organization was stated to be service to West Texas "and every portion of West Texas without favor or discrimination." A resolution stated that the organization should refrain from taking sides where there exists a controversy or difference between any sections, and that no action should be taken on any controversial matter, until after a comprehensive and study of the matters of one side or the other is so overwhelmingly established and of such vital interest to our territory that it would be cowardly not to take action."

Agree With Moody.
The report of the resolutions committee gives concurrence with Governor Moody in his declaration that many of the boards and bureaus of the state government are useless and should be abolished. It reaffirmed the organization's stand on agriculture and the live stock industry. It again urges reduction of cotton acreage and intensive diversified farming; encourages the storage of storm and flood waters for irrigation purposes; recommends continuation of the Topo-

Work Progressing On Lockney Mill

LOCKNEY, May 17.—Lockney's new cotton mill is well under way and the contractors are making remarkable headway in its construction.

The Santa Fe has just completed its track to its site and within the next few days this work will be finished.

A number of men are now employed in the laying of the foundation, which is nearly complete, and a number will be put to work later as the work progresses, but there is a plentiful supply of labor now on hand even though the contractors double their working force, it was stated.

Work in the past has been hindered to a great extent on account of lack of material, but according to recent reports, there is a plentiful supply of material now available.

Miss Nona Boyles, of Vernon, is here visiting with friends at the Tech for several days.

Widow Avenges Slain Husband

Spencer Norton. Mrs. Lorren Wiedenmann

Life sentences for Spencer Norton and Ralph Perry, 15-year-old desperadoes, in Kansas City, ended the search of Mrs. Lorren Wiedenmann for her husband's slayers. After the murder of her husband in a robbery at Kansas City, Mrs. Wiedenmann helped the police to trace the boys, who were arrested in Los Angeles. Through her efforts the bandits were brought back to Kansas City to face murder charges, though they had pleaded guilty to robberies on the coast and each had received sentences of 70 years.

Legion Auxiliary Plans Meeting

Simultaneously with the American convention here Saturday and Sunday, for which special preparations have been made by business men of this city along decorative lines, the Ladies Auxiliary of the Division will offer a program of entertainment, and business, and it is expected that at least 100 women from this territory will be in attendance.

Auxiliary officials here are to sponsor an entertainment program Saturday evening at the First Baptist church, and Sunday will join Legionnaires in the patriotic program and rally at the First Presbyterian church at 11 o'clock, following which will be a barbecue banquet to be held in the stock

Judging pavilion at the Tech college.

Mrs. Wright Armstrong, former state president of the Auxiliary, and God-Mother of the fair-faced Old Grey Mare band, of Brownwood, will preside over the business sessions of the Auxiliary. Other distinguished visitors will include Miss Florence Klein, of El Paso, member of the Rehabilitation committee; Mrs. Merritt, of Colorado, prominent state woman leader; and possibly Mrs. Frank Hardin, state president of the Auxiliary.

CALLES WEDDING

besides the bridegroom. These were his brother, Warren Robinson, A. T. Smithers, a college classmate, and Colonel A. J. Dougherty, commandant of Camp Stephen D. Little, who occupied a place of honor as the representative of the United States.

President Calles was not present, business keeping him in Mexico City.

From the Martinez home, the wedding party went to one of the night clubs of Nogales, Sonora, which had been reserved for a formal reception and banquet. Although but twenty persons were guests at the wedding many more received invitations to the reception at the club.

Robinson and his bride took an early leave and departed for Tucson, Ariz., in official automobiles of the Mexican government. Robinson previously had arranged for permit for the passing of luggage by both United States and Mexican customs officials.

APPROPRIATIONS

Today, that was to cut out the job of poultryman, paying $1,200 a year, at the Rusk state hospital. The bill was passed by committee amendments, however to about $15,000 less than the original bill. That figure includes $50,000 written in for a home for delinquent negro girls. Otherwise, total cut would have effected a $495,000 reduction.

Economists Fail
The house voted around a 65-45 majority for all the committee amendments, and against the more stringent amendments of the economy faction.

Against ideas of the appropriation committee, however, the house designated Dallas as the site for the new state psychopathic hospital, which was to have gone to Galveston. Vote was 70 to 32, after the house had struck out $43,800 for second year upkeep and made $165,200 construction and upkeep item of the first year not available until 1929, as the committee recommended as an economy move.

Fun making and merriment was threaded through the day's proceedings. Representative Farrar was laughed and twitted into defeat of his attempt to strike out a $1,000 item for teaching of beggary parlor technique at the Gainesville girls training school, which he declared not right when "the farm girls are not furnished any such course."

rean said that the water was running one foot deep over the Texas and Pacific railroad tracks at Palmetto and at Morrow on the western extremity of the Bayou Des Glaises lake, eight miles from Palmetto. It was rising two feet a day. Every precaution was urged against "these unprecedented conditions in the Atchafalaya basin." The crest of the flood still was more than a hundred miles away from Ferriday in the Texas basin and moving slowly down upon the Atchafalaya. The weather bureau said its stages were three feet above those of the flood of 1882. It was estimated it would require from three to four weeks for it to reach Morgan City at the edge of the Gulf of Mexico.

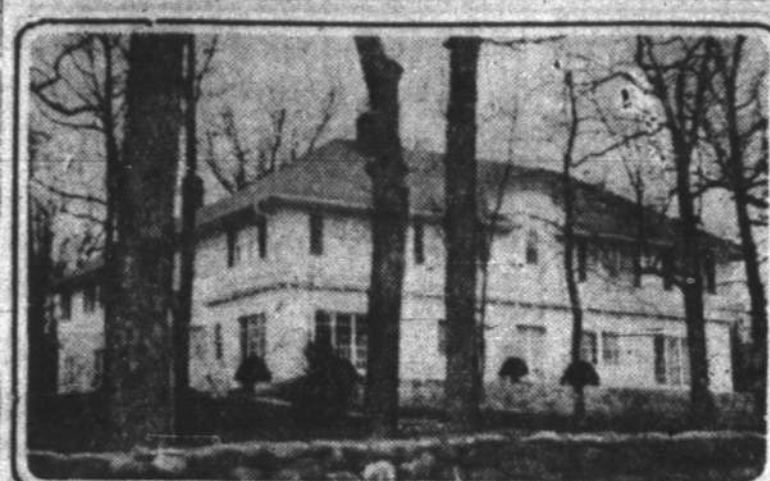

Water 20 Feet Deep
The weather bureau said that conditions now in sight indicated the flood in St. Martin parish would be 17 to 20 feet deep in the bottoms.

The Mississippi river below Old River will not change materially within the next few days, the bulletin said, but precautions were urged continued against stages previously predicted.

Twelve square miles already had been inundated from the Melville crevasse. A high railroad embankment at the town was believed to have contributed largely to the safety of the inhabitants by breaking the first rush of the waters.

Parish to Be Covered
The waters from the new crevasses added to those already streaming down the valley from the Bayou Des Glaises breaks will cover virtually the entire eastern part of St. Landry parish, Opelousas and other towns to the west, being saved by their location on a ridge. The Melville crevasse waters will follow virtually the same path to the Gulf of Mexico, passing through St. Martin, parts of Assumption, St. Mary and Terre Bonne parishes. Highway Men Will Decide Upon Name

LAMESA, May 17 — Directors of the new $2 highway association formed in Lamesa April 19, will meet at Lamesa June 7, at which time the judges will determine from among suggestions the name of the organization.

Unknown Battler Signed For Champ

NEW YORK, May 17.—Wyoming Warner, of whom you've probably never heard, has been signed for a title crack at the world heavyweight champion in 1929.

No, that is not the dream of an idiot, but a fact, with Jack Curley promoter of some prominence, as the promoter of the big bout in 1929.

Wyoming Warner is a big husky from Wyoming. He was recently brought to New York by Otto C. Floto, who is credited with finding Jack Dempsey.

After looking over what this Warner husky had to offer and listening to the tales told him, Curley signed Warner up for a title bout in 1929.

"Looks like I'm getting daffy in my old age," Curley admitted when asked about the contract, "but it is true. You might call it a speculation in clairvoyance, but this boy looks every bit a potential champion."

"Warner is a six-footer, weighs about 150 pounds and is still in the prime class," Curley added. "He'll get socked plenty for reverses between now and then, but don't laugh too much now. Wait a couple of years and see which side to laugh on."

INSIDE BASEBALL

BY SHILY EVANS

1. What is the penalty if pitcher stands on the rubber with the ball for a period of longer than 20 seconds before delivering it?

2. What are the rights of the pitcher at the start of each inning?

3. Fielder throws his glove at a batted ball but misses it. Is there any penalty?

4. What happens if the umpire is struck by a batted ball after the fielder has made a play on it?

5. Baserunner is struck by a batted ball on which to play has been made. What is the ruling?

THIS TELLS IT.
1. The umpire has the right to call a ball on the pitcher for the delay.
2. He has a right to throw five balls to the catcher or an infielder as a preliminary warning.
3. There is no penalty. There must be a contact between glove and ball.
4. The ball is considered in play.
5. Baserunner is out, batsman is entitled to first and no runners can advance unless forced.
