'Christian Approach To Delinquency' Topic of Methodist Family Meetings

Members of First Methodist Church will begin their third annual Family Fellowship Program Sunday evening, March 9, at 6 p.m. Four Sunday evenings of study, fellowship and worship have been planned for the entire family, according to the pastor, the Rev. James B. Sharp.

Adults in the program will study "A Christian Approach to Delinquency—Juvenile and Paternal." Two groups will be formed, one for those with children at home, another for those without children in the home.

"How to Live with Parents" will be the topic of discussion for the senior Methodist Youth Fellowship, while the Intermediate group will discuss "Living with Parents."

"God's Helpers" will be studied by the kindergarten department, with the primary and junior departments devoting the four evenings to mission studies.

Topics for discussion in the adult groups include "What is Delinquency—Juvenile and Paternal?" on March 9; "What Causes Delinquency?" on March 16; "What can we Do About it in the Community?" on March 23; and "What can we do about it in the Church?" on March 30.

One of Texas' foremost authorities on delinquency problems, Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas, will be speaker for the evening worship service on March 16.

Other speakers have been engaged for the evening service throughout the series. The Rev. Hubert Bratcher, district superintendent of the Pampa District of the Methodist Church, will speak at both the morning and evening services on March 9.

The schedule to be followed each of the four evenings will be as follows: Dine-a-mite, 6-6:30 p.m.; Study groups, 6:30-7:20 p.m.; Evening Worship, 7:30-8:15 p.m.

Local Farmer Honored by State Jaycees

A Slaton farmer, Andrew Kitten, was honored in Austin Friday night by the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White was principal speaker at the banquet, sponsored by the Austin Jaycees.

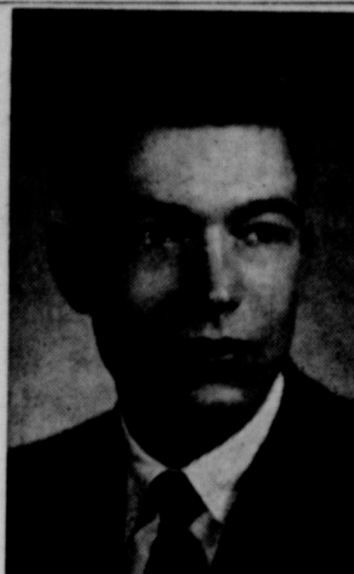

White charged that economic planners in Washington had ignored the vital role American farmers play in the national economy. Citing the current recession and unemployment as an example of what happens when the farmer and his problems are forgotten, White declared:

"Certainly we should know, by now, that a national depression sweep from the doors of a family farm. We should know that a nation prospers only as the farmer prospers—that agriculture is the backbone of our American economy."

Top Agriculture award at the banquet went to Johnnie E. Stefa of Caldwell. Runners-up were James L. Norris of Paris, and Weldon A. Mauney of New Waverly.

Kitten, along with young farmers from Ft. Worth, Corpus Christi, Memphis, Smithville, Mingo, Midland, Granbury, Temple, Fredericksburg, Henderson, Valley Mills and Paris, were recognized as Outstanding Farmers by the State Jaycee organization.

Raymond Wilkins, a salesman from Abilene, spent a day or two in this area last week and visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wilkins.

RED CROSS HEAD—Don Crow, manager of Crow Chevrolet will head the 1958 Red Cross Fund Drive in Slaton, it was announced by county headquarters this week. Final plans for the drive are to be made this week, with the quota and other pertinent information available early next week, Crow said.

RED CROSS WORKER—Hobart Trimpa will serve as chairman of the Red Cross Fund Drive in Slaton this year. He will be working with Don Crow, who is drive chairman for Slaton. Trimpa and Crow were named by county Red Cross workers who were here this week.

Commissioners Set March 20 as Deadline for Paving Contracts

Thursday, March 20, has been set as the final day for having money in the office of the City Secretary in order to have paving done here this spring.

City Commissioners this week set the deadline in order that the paving contractor can finish his work here and move on to other commitments.

Curb and gutter has been poured on about 12 blocks, and base has been put down on the majority of those streets for the paving.

City officials said this week that about 4 1/2 blocks were yet uncertain as to whether they would be paved.

Paving contractors said that work would be completed as soon as the weather permitted, with the paving being done probably toward the end of the month.

Persons interested in having paving done should make arrangements through the office of the city secretary.

Mrs. Ernest Ward has returned to her home here after having spent a month with her daughter, Mrs. Lowell Merrell, Mr. Merrell, and family in Tulsa, Okla.

Mrs. C. M. Epps left Tuesday morning to return to her home in Sonora after having been with her daughter, Mrs. M. M. Schlueter, while she was recuperating from major surgery. Mrs. J. E. Vickers is Mrs. Epps' daughter, also.

Dr. Bratcher Will Be Guest of Methodists Sun.

Dr. Hubert Bratcher, District Superintendent of the Pampa District of Methodist Churches will be the guest preacher at First Methodist Church Sunday, March 9.

Dr. Bratcher will speak at the 10:40 hour and again at 7:30.

"Those who will hear him will find him to be a forceful and interesting speaker with a message that will make one glad he heard him," says the Rev. James B. Sharp, pastor of the church. He appeals to young and old alike.

Dr. Bratcher was pastor of St. John's Methodist Church in Lubbock for eight years.

Bad Weather Holds Back Crowds For Stock Show Here Saturday

Adverse weather conditions held attendance to a bare minimum at the 17th annual Lubbock County Fat Stock Show held here last Saturday. An estimated 100 persons attended the show in addition to the contestants. Entries were numbered at 321.

Top honors in the show went to Lubbock residents. They included nine-year old Murray Brigham who showed the grand champion steer.

Patti Linder showed the champion in the swine division, and Wenzel Williams of Shallowater showed the champion lamb.

Jimmy Anderson showed the champion female swine, and Don Fritz took the reserve title with his entry.

Dr. Casey Fine of the Animal Husbandry Department at Texas Tech was judge of the show. When the weather worsened, Stanley Anderson, also of the Tech department, aided in the judging.

Roy Strube, Slaton member of the Lubbock County 4-H Club showed the first place junior Poland China gilt. First place in the heavyweight Chester White Barrows went to Joe Bob Jones, also a 4-H member. Jones placed third in showmanship contests for swine exhibition.

Mystery Illusion Revue Presented Friday, 8 p.m., by Slaton Lions

Ever see a pin-up girl come to life? The baffling maiden is but one of the amazing mysteries that illusionist Lee Grabel brings to the state of the Slaton High School Auditorium Friday at 8 p.m.

Slaton Lions Club has brought the attraction to Slaton for the first time. Grabel is now on a transcontinental tour of the country after a Broadway run that brought him the plaudits of the critics.

Tickets for the presentation are on sale and may be obtained from any member of the Slaton Lions Club.

A dozen gay and entertaining offerings will include the illusion of shooting a lady from a cannon, the comedy sensation, "Don't Drop It," "Pipe Smoker's Dream," and "The Disappearing Pin-up Girl," in addition to others.

In far away lands Lee Grabel has observed the mystery of the Orient and the gaiety and excitement of Europe as well as the dynamic power of American free enterprise.

After his foreign tours, Grabel completely revamped his extravagant production, which had been a tremendous success, and made it even greater.

For real theatrical thrills don't miss illusionist Grabel and his exciting Broadway Mystery Extravaganza. It is a full evening of hilarious fun and mystery. Tons of equipment are being brought here for the presentation.

Mrs. C. L. Tanner spent three days last week in San Angelo. She accompanied her husband who was on a business trip. She visited with Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Bryan, former Slaton residents.

IN AND OUT—Have you ever tried something like this? If you have, then you're aware how difficult it can be, especially when you get to going too fast. But it's a wonderful way for athletes to strengthen their legs. Located just outside the gymnasium at the new high school building, boys in training for sports go through this drill as a part of an over-all program of body building underway for prospects for next year's Slaton High School Tigers. Coaches Leonard Ehrler, Marvin Smith, and John Taylor are in charge of the program.

Somewhere I read that pain strikes the weakest part of the body, and since then I've been worried about these headaches of mine ...

Open House at school is always fascinating, and you can find out many things about your young ones. Like the notebook, Karen, my daughter, had prepared. In answer to the question, "What Do You Want To Be When You Grow Up?" Karen listed "Ad Sales." The spelling is hers, too.

So our children do see us through eyes of love, and whatever we do is what they want to do. It's our example, not our sermons, that count.

The Baggett family went skating last week ... First time in many a year that James and I had been on skates although we first met on a skating rink in Lubbock. Karen is a pretty fair skater, but it was Glendal's first bout with the slippery eighth. He was up and down all evening long, but he was well pleased with his efforts.

Mr. Weaver tells me that, in addition to the rink, there will soon be little car rides for the kiddoes. I had hopes at one time that Mr. Weaver would go crazy and put in a bowling alley. I still wish someone would.

Elsewhere in the Slatonite you will read that the Slaton Rangers were hosts to the Idaho Roping Club. What it doesn't say is that John Fondy, president of the group, was presented with a beautiful trophy for "outstanding" work done for the club. The trophy was deserved. I get the idea from talking with Mr. Fondy, that he would fight a circle saw for the rights of the club and its members. Next week we'll have a picture of John and the trophy.

Waymon Muse is expected to arrive in Slaton this week. Then after his leave he is scheduled to spend some time on Midway. One time, when Waymon was a little shaver, he hid out and was trying a cigarette on for size, and little sister Charlotte tattled on him. As much concerned with the tattling as with the smoking, Mrs. Foster asked Charlotte why she had tattled on Waymon. "Cause he wouldn't give me a puff!" answered the four-year-old.

Usually there's some such motive behind all tattling—even in grown-ups.

Waymon is engaged now, to a very pretty girl in Carlsbad, New Mexico. It was confirmed shortly after Richard's announcement of his approaching marriage to Marilyn, and that led someone to ask, "What is it that these New Mexico girls have that Slaton girls haven't?" Anyone want to answer?

NOTE TO TEEN-AGERS

Now and again some magazine prints a woebegone paragraph describing the parlous state of the times, only to reveal that the dismal analysis was written a century or so past. The implication usually is that, taken together, Things Are Not So Bad After All.

The other day we encountered such a paragraph detailing the tribulations of parenthood. Never, the writer said, had things been so tough for fathers and mothers striving to rear their offsprings in the paths of rectitude; never had so many destructive influences been brought to bear upon the hapless young. The editor's note coyly disclosed that the plaint had first appeared in George Washington's day. It was thus implied that being a parent today is no worse than it was a couple of hundred years ago.

This, as many a harried and well-meaning parent would confirm, is nonsense. Never before have young people, from infancy to maturity, been subjected to so many stimuli. Never have they been tugged and hauled by so many influences—television, automobiles, radio, movies, the whole complex of changes brought by two worldwide upheavals within the span of a generation. Never have parents been under so many and such varied pressure to demand less and provide more, to do this or that or the other thing lest their children grow up to be delinquents.

The only point to be made here is that those chauffeurs, disciplinarians, pals, counselors, allowance-providers, community workers and general handymen known as parents are not a bad lot. They do the best they can, most of them, at a difficult and demanding job. Above all, they mean well. Teen-agers please note.

AT 50, IT'S 243 FEET

Most auto drivers seem to be loaded with self-confidence. They handle their cars with authority. They appear to know the precise limitations of both men and machine. So it seems. But that is not the way it is.

The contrary fact, many traffic officials insist, is that the majority of drivers have quite fuzzy ideas about their own limitations and those of their cars. They do not, for example, have an accurate notion of how quickly they can stop.

Few drivers know that at the moderate speed of 30 miles per hour the average motorist requires 88 feet to come to a halt. On dry pavement, that is. At 50 miles per hour, stopping takes 243 feet—about 11 car lengths. If the driver guns his joy wagon to 76 m.p.h., he'll be traveling at 112 feet per second and won't be able to stop short of 450 feet where he was when he started to apply the brakes.

It is safe to conclude, from this and related data, that what most drivers need is not more self-confidence; they need an understanding of their limitations and a healthy respect for the physical laws that affect moving bodies.

THE ULTIMATE AIM

It is axiomatic that in a world at dagger-point the nations must go heavily armed. But that kind of situation should not be our ultimate aim, as the British Information Services pointed out in a summary of the recent White Paper on Defense.

"Peace is being maintained," says the summary, "by a balance of arms. The ultimate aim, however, must be comprehensive disarmament by all nations coupled with comprehensive inspection and control by a world authority. The West is ready to discuss proposals of all kinds with Russia, and with sincerity and perseverance agreement should not be impossible, but negotiations are bound to be protracted. Meanwhile the free world cannot afford to lower its guard."

Both that final word of caution and the statement of ultimate aim should be kept in mind when we think of the sort of world we want.

Sooner or later, every man has to make a stand for freedom. Like out in Minneapolis, where a barber named William Shaker is unshaken in his demand to be allowed to have a barber pole out in front of his shop.

A fellow just can't depend on anything staying put, any more. Even the famous brokerage firm of Merrill Lynch, Pierce & Beane has changed its name. Now it's Merrill Lynch, Fenner & Smith.

There are a lot of products on the market today that are supposed to give strength to the physical body. We do not doubt that many of them are good indeed.

There is a strength that mankind needs that cannot be bought over the counter. That is a strength that the heading of this column suggests.

Strength for the week comes from a daily source. God is that source day by day and week by week. Jesus said, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Whether the food is physical or spiritual, it should be taken daily for strength.

Why is it true that many are not getting plenty of spiritual food? For many it is because their Bible is used only to press flowers and as a place to keep clippings. Others go day after day and do not pray. Still others are content to stay at home and not attend a place of worship on the Lord's Day. Many an excuse is given for this disobedience.

We are reminded of the preacher who asked a lady to attend the services at the church where he was pastor. She said that the weather was too hot, crowds made her nervous, and the half-mile to the church was too far to walk.

Soon after these events, a fire broke out within a block of the church. It wasn't long until a crowd had gathered, including the preacher. To his surprise he saw the lady running the distance from her home to the fire, that was hotter than the weather, to a crowd that was now larger than the crowd at church.

Little doubt that one as this has very little strength to go through the day, much less the week. They need to get strength from Christ as Paul did. He said, "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Philippians 4:13.

We suggest that to get strength for the week, you get that strength day by day. Remember, there is no substitute for Bible study, prayer, and regular attendance at worship service at the church to gain "Strength for the week."

'Attendance' Is Emphasized At Rotary Meeting

An unusual program emphasizing attendance was presented by Wayne Liles Thursday noon at the Slaton Rotary Club. Wayne is chairman of the attendance committee.

Eight speakers were used, each telling of their experience in making up their attendance at other clubs. Those who made talks were M. G. Davis, W. C. Williams, Jack Berkley, J. J. Maxey, Francis Perry, Lee Vardy, Bruce Pember and Rev. Henry Treptow.

Rev. Treptow was presented a plaque for the member making up his attendance the most at other clubs and having a 100% attendance record for the year.

Visitors were Harold Priddy, Ralls, and Mark Haley, Lubbock. The entire membership gave a rising vote of appreciation to Claude Anderson and J. D. Holt for being able to attend the club again. Both were present after having been absent almost a year because of an automobile accident.

President Davis announced that the Slaton Club was second in attendance of the 43 clubs in the district during the month of January.

The club plans to attend the schools next Thursday in observance of "Texas Public Schools week."

Fireman Edwin Ford left Sunday for San Diego after having spent a 15 day leave with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Ford. Ford, who has been in the U. S. Navy for 18 months, has spent the past eight months in Japan. He will be in San Diego aboard the U.S.S. Jason for the next several months.

Mrs. H. W. Cooper has returned to her home after a two week visit in the home of her sister, Mrs. Francis Perry, Mr. Perry and Richard. Mrs. Cooper had flu while she was here.

John Frye of Dallas was in Slaton over the week end. Mr. Frye formerly lived here with his aunt, Mrs. S. H. Adams.

Court Ruling on Bracero Wages Says Higher Wages To Be Paid

Farm wages which the U.S. Secretary of Labor finds to be "prevailing wages" must be paid by employers of braceros when the prevailing wages are higher than the contract rates. That is the essence of a February 25 decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. It reversed a district court judgment involving J. H. Morris, a cotton grower in Fisher County, Texas.

Morris employed eight braceros during the cotton harvesting season of 1955. His contract with them was to pay the workers at the rate of $1.55 per cwt or the prevailing rate, whichever was higher.

Midway of the season, the Secretary of Labor determined that the prevailing wage for the area was $1.75 cwt. The government sued to recover the difference between the contract rate and the determined prevailing rate which it was obligated to pay the Mexican government under the terms of an international agreement between the United States and Mexico.

The case is said to have widespread significance because a large number of other employers have refused to pay the established prevailing wage rate when it was higher than the rate mentioned in their contracts.

C. S. Wilkenson left Sunday with a group of area farmers on a chartered bus for a tour of the Rio Grande Valley and Falcon Dam. They plan to be back Thursday night of this week.

W. R. Shelton has been ill for the past three or four weeks at his home here. Several of his children and their families have been to see him. His condition remains serious.

The Custer family, sixth cousin removed from General George Custer, is proud of its Western heritage. Consequently when the family name is at stake it's worth fighting for and right now their name is at stake. Those taking part in the play are Kenneth Callaway, Jerrellyn Huddleston, Arla Mae Neugebauer, Delmar Wilke, Chris Gin-

Evans High Wins Second Place in State for Class B Schools

Evans High School of Slaton reached the finals of class B State Basketball Tournament in Prairie View, last week, before being defeated by Crane High School of Crane, Texas, in the finals 74 to 59.

It was a rough go in order for Evans to reach the finals but with good team spirit and hard playing the Slaton five turned the trick. Placed in a tough bracket with state defending champion Douglassville, Slaton was able to edge them in a thriller 55-53. Douglassville lost only one player from their state championship team but was eliminated early from the tournament by Slaton.

Willie Johnson led the scoring with 37 points followed by George Conner with 8 points. In the second game Johnson also led the scoring with 15 points in defeating Granger 44-43. Melvin Johnson with 10 points was second in the scoring department.

After fighting their way to the finals, Slaton was determined to win the championship and led Crane 37-34 at half time. Slaton was very cold from the floor during the second half and was able to score only 22 points. Willie Johnson and George Conner tied for high point with 25 points each.

Herbert Hammons, E. Montgomery and Melvin Johnson played a good defensive game all through the tournament and deserve much credit for the two victories. H. Smith and M. Scott along with coach Gipson and Principal Allen made the trip to the State Tournament.

"Although Evans finished in second place in the Class B State Tournament, we should feel proud of our boys and hope

Free Study Plan For Students Set This Summer

High school juniors who show exceptional promise in science have an opportunity to apply for special tuition-free study at one of five Texas institutions this summer.

More than 100 Texas high school students will be named to participate in institutes to be held on the campuses of Texas Tech, Southern Methodist, Rice Institute, University of Texas and Texas A&M.

Students must apply through the office of their high school principal or superintendent before March 30. Final selection of students will be made by the Institutes' directors April 14, according to J. W. Day, Tech associate professor of physics and a director.

The special institutes are sponsored by the Texas Education Agency and high school under a Fund for the Advancement of Education grant.

Each participating institution will give about 25 students an intensive five-week enrichment course in mathematics or science. Outstanding faculty members and laboratory facilities are provided by the colleges and universities for the Science Institutes.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Welcher and son, Albert, of Fort Worth were week end guests of Mrs. Welcher's brother, M. T. Townsend, and family.

Future Strength of Nation Dependent On Strong, Non-Delinquent Youth Today

By Judge Sarah T. Hughes
(Ed. Note:—This is the last of a series of articles on the state's growing problem of juvenile delinquency by one of Texas' foremost authorities on the subject, District Judge Sarah T. Hughes of Dallas.)

The strength of our nation depends in no small degree on the boys and girls of today, and it is imperative that we do something about the rising tide of juvenile delinquency. In a recent talk to the Texas Junior Chamber of Commerce, the governor of Texas pointed out that 46% of the major crimes in the state during 1956 were committed by persons 17 years of age and under.

The responsibility for combating juvenile delinquency belongs to all of us—parents, first of all—but to the church, the school, and the community as well.

Home Most Important

Most important in the life of boys and girls is the right kind of home. There must be real love, love which does not over-indulge and which includes guidance for the child's life now and for his future life as an adult. Children need a sense of their own significance and to be recognized as individuals. They want understanding of their problems and as they grow older, independence to make decisions. Parental responsibility is to maintain a balance of giving boys and girls whatever amount of independence they are mature enough to handle—at the same time providing guidance and discipline when these are needed.

In my experience trying juvenile cases, there is in most instances something wrong in the home situation, and some of the attributes of the right kind of home are missing.

Community Responsibility

At the same time the community may have fallen down on its responsibility. Blaming parents for the delinquencies of teen-agers is too simple an answer. With increasing industrialization, the job of being a parent is much more difficult than it used to be. There are fewer chores around the home, less play space, a higher percentage of cars, paved roads, and taverns available to boys and girls.

It is the community's responsibility to assist in counteracting these changed conditions by providing such character-building organizations as scouts, 4-H clubs, junior achievement, etc., by establishing more community centers and parks, and by individuals volunteering time and effort to such agencies.

Church and School

The role of the church is important. Religion should be a vital factor in the life of boys and girls, and it should be presented in such a manner that it can be applied to their daily lives. Church-sponsored activities—many more than now exist—are needed, activities which will appeal to young people and give them a creative role in the church.

The school's responsibility has likewise increased with the drastically changed conditions of modern society. There is need for the schools also to help provide more means for taking care of the idle time society has forced upon teen-agers who don't know how to handle it.

Prevention Vs. Rehabilitation

While our chief effort should be in providing a positive program to prevent delinquency, there will always be teen-agers—as there are adults—who commit offenses and are brought before the courts. It is therefore necessary to have a constructive program of rehabilitation for youthful offenders.

In such a program the efforts of the judge and probation department are devoted to the individual child and his problems. There is need to try to find the causes of his delinquency and to remove them. There should be less concern with handing out punishment than with trying to rehabilitate the offender.

More Probation Officers Needed

The sentence of the court may be probation or an institution. The difficulty is that there are not nearly enough probation officers, and, without a sufficient number, probation cannot do the job.

And our state institutions at Gatesville and Gainesville—though the programs are good—are far too crowded, and those committed must be released sooner than they should be, so as to make room for others.

In order for boys and girls released from the institution to find their place in society there is great need for officers. At present, only larger counties have sufficient officers; and yet, without active supervision after release many an effort expended in institution may well turn out to be a loss to the state, as to the child.

Let's Face Our Job

The job we face—to find constructive activities that will prevent juvenile delinquency—to provide a positive program to rehabilitate offenders—is one. It is the responsibility of each of us. It can't be ignored by those who have no children. As members of the community and of the church we have responsibility. And how much responsibility? We ask. I think this definition: Responsibility is our response to the ability God gave us. Until each of us has responded fully to our God-given abilities, we cannot say we have assumed our full responsibility.

ANY TIME'S A GOOD time for a cup of hot coffee, according to Mrs. Wyatt Swint, a busy housewife and saleslady. Mrs. Swint works with her husband in the operation of Western Auto Store.

Slaton Women Give Their Favorite Tested Recipes

"There's not enough hours in the day to allow me to do all the things I would like to do," states Mrs. Wyatt Swint. She is the busy mother of two children, Janis, 7, and Ronnie, 4.

"I enjoy people most of all," Mrs. Swint added, and agreed that it was a lucky thing that she did because of the many hours she spends helping her husband operate his business.

Mrs. Swint is assistant director in the Primary II Department of the First Baptist Church, where she and Mr. Swint are members. She is also a helper of Brownie Troop No. 363.

For relaxation, Mrs. Swint prefers watching television, although she also enjoys canasta, and other games of this type.

"About the only unusual thing about me is that I have an identical twin," Mrs. Swint stated. She is Mrs. H. M. Moore of Abilene. Asked if there had been times of mistaken identity, Mrs. Swint answered, "Yes, even Wyatt has had trouble telling us apart sometimes."

Mrs. Swint selected as her favorite recipe the one listed below and claims that it never fails to make a hit.
